A complaint for breach of a contract within the statute of frauds is not fatally defective for failure to allege a writing because the law will presume the contract to be valid and therefore evidenced by a writing. A defendant relying on the statute of frauds as a defense to such an action must plead the statute [Alaska Salmon Co. v. Standard Box Co. (1910) 158 Cal. 567, 569, 112 P. 454 ; McLaughlin v. McLaughlin (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 287, 292, 323 P.2d 820 ; for forms of affirmative defense raising the statute of frauds, see Forms 1, 2]. A general denial of entering into the contract is also sufficient to raise the defense of the statute of frauds [San Francisco Brewing Corp. v. Bowman (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 607, 618, 343 P.2d 1 ; Walsh v. Standart (1917) 174 Cal. 807, 810, 164 P. 795 ; for forms of general and specific denial of allegations, see Ch. 26, Answers]. Failure to deny the contract or to plead the statute of frauds, however, waives the defense of the statute [Healy v. Obear (1916) 29 Cal. App. 696, 698, 157 P. 569 , reh'g denied, 157 P. 570] .

In an action founded on a contract, the defendant or cross defendant may object by demurrer or answer that it cannot be ascertained from the pleading whether the contract is written, oral, or implied by conduct [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(g)]. A party failing to object to a complaint or cross complaint either by demurrer or answer is deemed to have waived the objection [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80]. For a discussion and forms relating to demurrers on this ground, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

§ 530.24 Establishing Statute of Frauds as Defense

[1] Demurrer, Motion, or Objection Is Required

Even though the defense of the statute of frauds has been placed in issue by the answer, the right to rely on it is waived by failure to demur to the complaint, to object to the introduction of testimony to prove the oral agreement at trial, or to move to strike the testimony [Pao Ch'en Lee v. Gregoriou (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 502, 506, 326 P.2d 135 ; Coleman v. Satterfield (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 81, 83-84, 223 P.2d 61 ; but see Tahoe Nat. Bank v. Phillips (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 11, 23-24, 92 Cal. Rptr. 704, 480 P.2d 320 (modifying approach taken in Pao Ch'en Lee; defendant who did not object at trial may not object on appeal to trial court's receipt of extrinsic evidence, but may argue on appeal that the extrinsic evidence conflicts with any interpretation to which instrument is reasonably susceptible); for forms of denial and affirmative defense placing the statute of frauds in issue, see Forms 1, 2]. An objection or motion to strike on grounds that evidence violated the statute of frauds may be made at any time during the trial [McGirr v. Gulf Oil Corp. (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 246, 252, 115 Cal. Rptr. 902 (after "substantial" testimony); see Bank of America v. Hutchinson (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 142, 149-150, 27 Cal. Rptr. 787 (motion, two weeks after trial, to strike all testimony relating to defendant's representations regarding credit of third party properly denied as untimely and indefinite)].

A defendant may also assert the statute of frauds in a motion for nonsuit at the close of plaintiff's case [Carrier & Braddock v. S.W. Straus & Co. (1931) 213 Cal. 508, 513, 2 P.2d 811] . In some instances, motion for nonsuit may be the first time that the issue of the statute of frauds may be properly raised [see Ira Garson Realty Co. v. Brown (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 615, 621, 4 Cal. Rptr. 734 (plaintiff presented case on theory of oral contract supported by written memorandum until time of motion)].

If evidence of an oral agreement is introduced to prove an oral contract not subject to the statute, or if there is evidence of estoppel to rely on the statute, so that evidence of the contract could not be excluded, a request for a jury instruction on the issue of the statute of frauds is sufficient to preserve the statute as a defense, even though there was no objection to evidence of the oral agreement, motion to strike, or motion for nonsuit [San Francisco Brewing Corp. v. Bowman (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 607, 618-619, 343 P.2d 1] .

[2] Who May Assert Defense

The statute of frauds may be asserted as a defense by third persons who are in privity with a party to the contract, but not by third persons who are neither parties nor in privity with a party to an unwritten contract [O'Banion v. Paradiso (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 559, 562-563, 39 Cal. Rptr. 370, 393 P.2d 682 (successor in title to real property may assert statute); Demeter v. Annenson (1947) 80 Cal. App. 2d 48, 57, 180 P.2d 998 (taxicab operators unable to raise statute in regard to contract between competitors and railway for exclusive right to solicit passengers at railway station)].

PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

46-530 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 530.32

§ 530.32 Decisions

[1] Conflict of Laws

In federal diversity action on oral contract between California resident and New York resident, when substantive law statute of frauds of New York and of California would produce different results, each state had interest in having its law applied, and New York's interest would be most impaired by application of California law, New York law applied to bar action. Rosenthal v. Fonda (9th Cir. 1988) 862 F.2d 1398, 1401 (applying California's conflict analysis)

[2] Contracts Outside Statute of Frauds

[a] Contract May Be Performed Within One Year

Oral agreement for permanent employment is not within statute of frauds if it is capable of being performed in one year. Eisenberg v. Insurance Co. of North America (9th Cir. 1987) 815 F.2d 1285, 1290-1291 (criticizing Newfield v. Insurance Co. of the West (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 440, 447, 203 Cal. Rptr. 9 , which was later disapproved by Foley v. Interactive Data Corp. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 654, 675 n.19, 254 Cal. Rptr. 211, 765 P.2d 373)

Provision giving one party option to end contract if other party did not meet condition, to be determined at end of one year, took contract out of operation of statute of frauds. Plumlee v. Poag (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 541, 549-550, 198 Cal. Rptr. 66

Oral agreement to support person for balance of his or her life is not subject to statute of frauds because possibility exists of performance within one year. Leonard v. Rose (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 589, 592, 55 Cal. Rptr. 916, 422 P.2d 604 ; see Civ. Code § 1624(a)(1)

[b] Promise to Pay Another's Debt Benefits Promisor

Chairman of board's promise to pay corporate debt is exception to statute of frauds under Civ. Code § 2794(4) because creditor promised to forbear canceling company's insurance, primarily serving chairman's object of welfare of his children, who had interest in company, and his own business reputation, as he had undertaken to save failing company. Farr & Stone Ins. Brokers, Inc. v. Lopez (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 618, 621-622, 132 Cal. Rptr. 641

[c] Real Property Transactions

Contract to install off-site improvements is not contract for the sale of land or interest in land, and is not within statute of frauds. Pollyanna Homes, Inc. v. Berney (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 676, 679, 16 Cal. Rptr. 345, 365 P.2d 401

Written forebearance agreement was not enforceable against holder of note secured by deed of trust, because agreement was not signed by holder or any predecessor in interest as secured creditor. Secrest v. Security Nat'l Mortgage Loan Trust 2002-2 (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 544, 552-553, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 275

Option contained in written lease allowing renewal of lease for period in excess of one year is exercisable orally because original lease provides writing satisfying statute of frauds. Ripani v. Liberty Loan Corp. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 603, 609-610, 157 Cal. Rptr. 272

Joint venture agreement calling for transfer of realty to venture is not within statute of frauds of Civ. Code § 1091 or Code Civ. Proc. § 1971 (former Code Civ. Proc. § 1973). Epstein v. Stahl (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 53, 63-64, 1 Cal. Rptr. 143

[d] Settlement Agreements

Statute of frauds inapplicable to oral settlement agreement stipulated to by parties to litigation before court following judicially mandated and supervised settlement conference. Kohn v. Jaymar-Ruby, Inc. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1530, 1534, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 780

Statute of frauds is inapplicable to oral out-of-court settlement agreement involving transfer of real property. Hastings v. Matlock (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 826, 837, 217 Cal. Rptr. 856

Lawsuit settlement agreement is not sale of chose in action and not barred by statute of frauds of Com. Code § 1206. Greyhound Lines, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 604, 608-609, 159 Cal. Rptr. 657

[3] Contracts Required to Be in Writing

[a] Agreements Not to Be Performed Within One Year

Agreement calling for employment not to be performed within one year is required to be in writing under statute of frauds. Robinson v. Hewlett-Packard Corp. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1108, 1120 n.10, 228 Cal. Rptr. 591

[b] Real Property Transactions

When father orally instructed daughter to sign his name to grant deed conveying property to himself and daughter as joint tenants, conveyance was deemed valid as a deed executed by the grantor under Civ. Code § 1091 because daughter acted as mere "amanuensis," performing mere mechanical function in signing deed rather than exercising her judgment or discretion. Estate of Stephens v. Williams (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 665, 678, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 358, 49 P.3d 1093

Oral lien on real property is precluded by statute of frauds of Code Civ. Proc. § 1971. Remainders, Inc. v. Bartlett

Agreement restricting the use of land is within statute of frauds. Triangle Ranch, Inc. v. Union Oil Co. (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 428, 438-439, 287 P.2d 537 ; see Civ. Code § 1091; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1971, 1973

[c] Sales of Goods and Personal Property

Contract between brokerage firm and customer, as purchaser, for sale and purchase of shares owned by brokerage firm was contract between vendor and purchaser, not regular agency agreement, and thus not within exception of former Com. Code § 8319(2). Leason v. Rosart (9th Cir. 1987) 811 F.2d 1322, 1325 (except one order confirmed under Com. Code § 8319(1)(c))

Confirmation under former Com. Code § 8319(1)(c) was effective even though mailed with wrong zip code and buyer denied receipt when there was no evidence that it was sent but not returned by postal service to sender. Leason v. Rosart (9th Cir. 1987) 811 F.2d 1322, 1325

[4] Estoppel to Assert Statute of Frauds

[a] In General

Doctrine of estoppel requires that unconscionable injury will result from failure to enforce oral agreement; unconscionable injury results from denying enforcement of oral contract after one party is induced by another to seriously change its position in reliance on the oral agreement or in cases of unjust enrichment. Allied Grape Growers v. Bronco Wine Co. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 432, 444, 249 Cal. Rptr. 872

Doctrine of estoppel requires that unconscionable injury or unjust enrichment would result from failure to enforce oral agreement; when plaintiff will lose only opportunity and can obtain return of monies paid, estoppel is not to be invoked. Isaac v. A & B Loan Co. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 307, 313, 247 Cal. Rptr. 104

[b] Estoppel Found

Serious change of position estopped party from relying on statute of frauds when wife, in reliance on oral contract with husband to make reciprocal will benefitting daughter after death of both testators, later failed to change will to make daughter sole beneficiary at time wife became concerned with daughter's welfare. Redke v. Silvertrust (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 94, 101, 98 Cal. Rptr. 293, 490 P.2d 805

Unconscionable injury and unjust enrichment were established when husband refrained from making inter vivos gifts or testamentary disposition for daughter and gave all property before and at his death to wife in reliance on agreement that her will would provide for his daughter equally with her own children. Day v. Greene (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 404, 408-410, 29 Cal. Rptr. 785, 380 P.2d 385

Under Com. Code § 1103, equitable principles survived enactment of Uniform Commercial Code in California; thus estoppel was applicable to bar assertion of statute of frauds against oral contract for sale of goods under Commercial Code. Allied Grape Growers v. Bronco Wine Co. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 432, 442-443, 249 Cal. Rptr. 872 ; contra, C.R. Fedrick, Inc. v. Borg-Warner Corp. (9th Cir. 1977) 552 F.2d 852, 856-858 (California not likely to allow estoppel to bar Commercial Code statute of frauds)

Beneficiaries of will made in breach of oral contract to make mutual wills after testator accepted benefits under mutual will were estopped to assert statute of frauds against intended beneficiaries of mutual will. Stahmer v. Schley (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 200, 203, 157 Cal. Rptr. 756

Unconscionable injury shown that could estop oil company from relying on statute of frauds when plaintiff gave up lease on profitable service station and entered lease, paid deposit, and bought inventory for unprofitable station in reliance on oral promise to also lease a second, profitable station. McGirr v. Gulf Oil Corp. (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 246, 253-254, 115 Cal. Rptr. 902 (but no estoppel due to Civ. Code § 2309 "equal dignities rule")

Quasi-specific performance is available when party to reciprocal wills made pursuant to oral agreement accepts benefit of other party's will and then revokes own will; those acts constituted constructive fraud on first decedent and beneficiaries of oral agreement so as to estop reliance on statute of frauds. Mintz v. Rowitz (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 216, 223-224, 91 Cal. Rptr. 435

Unconscionable injury to seller estopped buyer from relying on statute of frauds when seller, in reliance on contract, sought no other buyers for perishable crop until buyer's repudiation, at which time crop had deteriorated in value. Mosekian v. Davis Canning Co. (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 118, 123-124, 40 Cal. Rptr. 157

Unconscionable injury to seller estopped buyer from relying on statute of frauds when seller, in reliance on contract, transported automobiles to California from Louisiana, and was caught in market slump after buyer's breach of contract made during very high market. Goldstein v. McNeil (1954) 122 Cal. App. 2d 608, 611-612, 265 P.2d 113

[c] Estoppel Not Found

Real estate broker was not able to assert equitable estoppel against statute of frauds defense to enforcement of oral commission agreement unless there was showing of actual fraud, because it was not reasonable to rely on oral listing contract. Phillippe v. Shapell Industries (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1247, 1259-1270, 241 Cal. Rptr. 22, 743 P.2d 1279

Unconscionable injury was not established by giving up terminable-at-will employment to go to work under oral contract not performable in one year. Ruinello v. Murray (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 687, 698-690, 227 P.2d 251

Testimony that admits existence of oral contract does not waive statute of frauds; fact that defendant made declaration in another action and referred to "an agreement" with plaintiff in that declaration did not bar defendant from asserting defense of statute of frauds in action on contract. Isaac v. A & B Loan Co. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 307, 311-312, 247 Cal. Rptr. 104 ; but see Com. Code § 2201(3)(b) (contrary result if contract is for sale of goods)

Alleged oral employment contract for period of three years was within purview of statute of frauds; plaintiff's move from Texas to California for employment when unemployed and unable to maintain stable employment in Texas together with sale of home in Texas and purchase of comparable home in California did not constitute unconscionable injury; therefore defendant was not estopped to assert statute of frauds. Munoz v. Kaiser Steel Corp. (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 965, 971, 972-974, 203 Cal. Rptr. 345

Buyer's loss of bargain was insufficient to estop seller from relying on statute of frauds. Carlson v. Richardson (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 204, 208, 72 Cal. Rptr. 769

Unjust enrichment of breaching seller of real property was not established by increase in property's value resulting from market conditions rather than from act of forbearance of buyer. Carlson v. Richardson (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 204, 208, 72 Cal. Rptr. 769

[d] Motion for Summary Judgment

Fact question regarding whether decedent's estate was equitably estopped from using statute of frauds to bar cohabitant's claim under oral property agreement precluded summary judgment for estate as to cohabitant's claim for breach of property agreement. Byrne v. Laura (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1054, 1068-1069, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 908

[5] Fully Performed Contract

Full performance of contract taking it out of statute of frauds was established when parties exchanged residences, assuming balances due on property acquired, one party paid balance due and received deed directly from former owner pursuant to oral exchange agreement while other party defaulted on assumed deed of trust. McGlasson v. Blythe (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 152, 155-156, 299 P.2d 325

Full performance of agreement terminating trust over real property and selling it to trustee and estoppel to assert statute of frauds were established when trustee gave agreed consideration, took possession, paid taxes, and made repairs and improvements. Robison v. Hanley (1955) 136 Cal. App. 2d 820, 824-825, 289 P.2d 560

[6] Memorandum of Agreement

[a] Sufficiency of Memorandum

If memorandum includes essential terms of agreement but meaning of those terms is unclear, memorandum is sufficient under statute of frauds if (1) extrinsic evidence clarifies terms with reasonable certainty, and (2) evidence as a whole demonstrates that parties intended to be bound. Sterling v. Taylor (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 757, 771, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116, 152 P.3d 420 Memorandum is required to contain essential elements of specific, consummated agreement; what is essential depends on agreement and failure to express that which is clearly implied does not render memorandum deficient. Seaman's Direct Buying Service, Inc. v. Standard Oil Co. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 752, 762-763, 206 Cal. Rptr. 354, 686 P.2d 1158

Writing evidencing "requirements" or output contract is sufficient when it indicates that there has been real transaction for sale of output or for purchase of requirements. Seaman's Direct Buying Service, Inc. v. Standard Oil Co. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 752, 762-764, 206 Cal. Rptr. 354, 686 P.2d 1158

Time of performance of act required for sale of property subject to statute of frauds is not essential element of agreement and may be implied pursuant to Civ. Code § 1657. House of Prayer v. Evangelical Assn. for India (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 48, 53-54, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 24

Application to Commissioner of Corporations for approval of stock transfer was memorandum of contract to sell stock. Kaneko v. Okuda (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 217, 230-231, 15 Cal. Rptr. 792

[b] Signature

E-mail signed with party's name satisfied statute of frauds, assuming binding oral agreement existed and e-mail included all material terms of that agreement. Lamle v. Mattel, Inc. (Fed. Cir. 2005) 394 F.3d 1355, 1362-1363 (applying California common law); see Civ. Code § 1633.7 (signature may not be denied legal effect solely because it is in electronic form)

"Mother" was insufficient signature when not intended to be legally binding signature. Berdan v. Berdan (1940) 39 Cal. App. 2d 478, 483, 103 P.2d 622

[7] Modification of Written Agreement

When one party, through oral representations and conduct or custom, has behaved after execution of contract in manner antithetical to one or more terms of express written contract and induced other party to rely on those representations and conduct or custom, equity upholds apparent modification. Wagner v. Glendale Adventist Medical Center (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1379, 1388, 265 Cal. Rptr. 412 (dicta, as conduct was not sufficient)

Oral modification of term of written agreement requires new consideration; employee's move, after elimination of position, to locale of another facility of employer did not amount to consideration because detriment was incidental to preparation to accept out-of-state offer of employment. Malmstrom v. Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corp. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 299, 314, 231 Cal. Rptr. 820

Reliance on oral statements alleged to modify or supersede written agreement is not justifiable; thus, doctrine of estoppel is unavailable to provide basis for oral modification unless unconscionable injury or unjust enrichment would result from failure to enforce oral modification. Malmstrom v. Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corp. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 299, 319-320, 231 Cal. Rptr. 820

Obligation that party was required to perform under written contract was not consideration that would support oral modification. Marani v. Jackson (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 695, 704-706, 228 Cal. Rptr. 518

[8] Part Performance

Part performance by parties to contract not to be performed within one year bars both parties from asserting statute of frauds. Dean v. Davis (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 166, 168, 166 P.2d 15

[9] Who May Assert Defense

Defendant whose fraudulent acts and misrepresentations have caused another to fail to perform in conformity with promises under oral contract is not permitted to assert statute of frauds as defense to action for tortious interference with contractual relations. Friedman v. Jackson (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 517, 518, 72 Cal. Rptr. 129

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

46-530 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 530.40

§ 530.40 Methods by Which Statute of Frauds May Be Raised

[1] On Demurrer

☐ Special demurrer:

☐ Used to force the party pleading the contract to indicate whether the contract is written, oral, or implied in law [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(g); see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings].

☐ General demurrer:

☐ Available when it appears from face of the complaint that the contract is oral and within the statute [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a); see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings].

[2] In Answer

☐ General denial of unverified complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)] or complaint involving $1,000 or less [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.40; see Howard v. Adams (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 253, 257, 105 P.2d 971 ; Ch. 26, Answers].

☐ Specific denial of contract (i.e., generally denying execution of alleged contract) [Walsh v. Standart (1917) 174 Cal. 807, 810, 164 P. 795 ; for a form, see § 530.50].

☐ Affirmative defense specifically pleading applicable code section requiring alleged contract to be written [Jamison v. Hyde (1903) 141 Cal. 109, 112, 74 P. 695 ; for forms, see §§ 530.51, 530.52].

NOTE:

Even though the defense of the statute of frauds has been raised in the pleadings, the right to rely on the statute may be waived by failure to demur to the pleading that alleges the oral contract or by failure to preserve the defense of the statute at trial [Pao Ch'en Lee v. Gregoriou (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 502, 505-506, 326 P.2d 135 ; see § 530.24[1]].

[3] At Trial

☐ Motion to exclude or strike evidence of the oral contract [see Pao Ch'en Lee v. Gregoriou (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 502, 505-506, 326 P.2d 135 , discussed at § 530.24[1]].

☐ Motion for nonsuit [Carrier & Braddock v. S.W. Straus Co. (1931) 213 Cal. 508, 513, 2 P.2d 811 (proper when plaintiff not prejudiced by delay; otherwise entitled to reopen); Ira Garson Realty Co. v. Brown (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 615, 621, 4 Cal. Rptr. 734 (proper when first opportunity to object, as when case proceeded on theory of oral contract supported by memorandum); see § 530.24[1]; see also Ch. 389, Nonsuit and Motions for Judgment].

☐ Request for jury instructions: available when evidence of oral agreement is admissible to prove oral argreement not within statute of frauds, e.g., when there is a claim that there is a sufficient memorandum of the agreement, or when there is evidence of estoppel to assert the statute of frauds [San Francisco Brewing Corp. v. Bowman (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 607, 618, 343 P.2d 1 ; see § 530.24[1]].

PART V. FORMS

46-530 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 530.50

§ 530.50 General Form of Affirmative Defense That Contract Is Unenforceable Under Statute of Frauds

[1] FORM General Form of Affirmative Defense That Contract Is Unenforceable Under Statute of Frauds

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that the contract alleged in the complaint is invalid under the provisions of _____ [allege particular statute applicable, e.g., Civil Code Section 1624(a)(5)] because it _____ [specify reason contract is within statute of frauds, e.g., is an agreement to provide for _____(name) by will] which is not in writing, nor is there any note or memorandum of it, subscribed by _____ [defendant or specify person through whom defendant claims right to property] or his/her agent.

[2] Use of Form

The form of affirmative defense in [1], above, is for use in an answer to an action based on an oral agreement that is unenforceable under the provisions of the statute of frauds. Failure to deny the making of the contract or to plead the statute of frauds as a bar constitutes waiver of the defense [Healy v. Obear (1916) 29 Cal. App. 696, 698, 157 P. 569 , reh'g denied, 157 P. 570] . However, merely pleading the affirmative defense of the statute of frauds is not sufficient. To preserve the defense, counsel also must demur to the pleading that alleges the oral contract or raise the defense of the statute at trial, or otherwise by motion [see Pao Ch'en Lee v. Gregoriou (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 502, 505-506, 326 P.2d 135 ; §§ 530.24[1], 530.40[1] and [3]].

[3] Affirmative Defense Required When Oral Contract Is Admitted

The assertion, as a separate defense, that a contract is invalid under the statute of frauds pursuant to a specified code section raises the issue of the statute of frauds. The issue may be raised in this manner even though the answer otherwise admits making the oral contract. However, a defendant who admits the oral contract in his or her answer must assert the statute of frauds as an affirmative defense; if the defense not raised, under the doctrine of judicial admissions, the defendant will be held to have waived protection of statute of frauds [Jamison v. Hyde (1903) 141 Cal. 109, 112, 74 P. 695 ; Burt v. Wilson (1865) 28 Cal. 631, 639 ; Isaac v. A & B Loan Co. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 307, 311, 247

Cal. Rptr. 104 ; cf. Com. Code 2201(3)(b) (operative January 1, 1990; applicable to contract for sale of goods for price of $500 or more, and discussed in § 530.12[12][d]); see also § 530.19[3]].

§ 530.51 Affirmative Defense That Oral Contract for Sale of Goods Valued at Over $500 Is Unenforceable Under Statute of Frauds [Com. Code § 2201]

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense That Oral Contract for Sale of Goods Valued at Over $500 Is Unenforceable Under Statute of Frauds [Com. Code § 2201]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

1. The contract set forth in plaintiff's complaint, on which plaintiff bases his/her cause of action, is an oral contract for the sale of goods valued at $500 or more, enforcement of which is barred by Section 2201 of the Commercial Code.

2. No written note or memorandum of the [alleged] contract signed by defendant or any authorized agent of defendant exists [(add if parties are merchants: nor did defendant receive any written confirmation of the (alleged) contract from plaintiff).]

[3. _____ (Defendant or Plaintiff) has neither accepted nor received any part of these goods, nor given anything in part payment of the (alleged) contract. (If plaintiff is seller, add: These goods were not specially manufactured for defendant).]

[4. The contract set forth in plaintiff's complaint is not a "qualified financial contract" excepted from the rule of Commercial Code § 2201.]

[2] Use of Form

The form of affirmative defense in [1], above, is for use in an answer to an action based on an oral contract for the sale of goods valued at $500 or more. The form alleges facts bringing the contract within the statute of frauds pertaining to contracts for the sale of goods [see Com. Code § 2201, discussed at § 530.12[12]].

Com. Code § 2201(1) provides that oral contracts for the sale of goods valued at $500 or more are unenforceable by way of action or defense, except as otherwise provided in Com. Code § 2201 [see Com. Code § 2201]. Paragraphs 2 through 4 of the form provide allegations negating the existence of some of the exceptions to the rule of Com. Code § 2201(1). These paragraphs are included for optional use because it is not clear which party must plead and prove these exceptions to the statute of frauds--the party relying on the statute or the party seeking to come within the exception to the statute. The general rule is that a party relying on a statutory right which includes an exception in its enacting clause must negate that exception, although the party need not negate an exception made in a proviso or a subsequent section [see People v. Gordon (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 711, 724, 234 P.2d 287] . The effect of this rule on pleading and proof under Com. Code § 2201 is not clear.

Omitted from this form is any allegation negating the existence of the exception of Com. Code § 2201(3)(b), discussed at § 530.12[12][d], which allows enforcement of a contract for goods to the extent the party against whom the contract is sought to be enforced admits in his or her pleading, testimony, or otherwise in court that contract for sale was made [Com. Code § 2201(3)(b)].

[3] Allegations of Optional Paragraphs

The bracketed allegations in Paragraph 2 of the form negate the existence of the exception of Com. Code § 2201(2), discussed at § 530.12[12][b], which allows enforcement of a contract between merchants if a confirmation was sent to the party against whom the contract is sought to be enforced and that party did not object to the confirmation [Com. Code § 2201(2)].

Paragraph 3 of the form provides an allegation negating the existence of the exceptions of Com. Code § 2201(3)(a) and (c), discussed at § 530.12[12][h] and [i], which allow enforcement of a contract:

- For goods which are being manufactured specifically for defendant/buyer and are not suitable for sale to others in the ordinary course of the seller's business [Com. Code § 2201(3)(a)].

- To the extent of goods received and accepted or accepted and paid for [Com. Code § 2201(3)(c)].

Paragraph 4 of the form provides an allegation negating the existence of the exception to the rule of Com. Code § 2201(1) for "qualified financial contracts" [Com. Code § 2201(4); see Civ. Code § 1624(b)(2)(definition); see also § 530.12[1][c]].

§ 530.60 Allegation of Part Performance Rendering Statute of Frauds Inapplicable to Oral Contract to Convey Real Property

[1] FORM Allegation of Part Performance Rendering Statute of Frauds Inapplicable to Oral Contract to Convey Real Property

1. On _____ [date] plaintiff and defendant entered into an oral contract by which it was agreed that _____ [plaintiff or defendant] would convey to _____ [defendant or plaintiff] certain real property described as _____ [describe real property], and _____ [defendant or plaintiff] would pay _____[plaintiff or defendant] $_____, to be paid _____ [describe terms of payment, e.g., by check, $_____ at the time of the agreement, and $_____ on _____ (date)].

[EITHER]

2. Pursuant to the contract _____ [plaintiff or defendant] delivered and _____ [defendant or plaintiff] took possession of said real property, and at all times thereafter, _____ [defendant or plaintiff] has maintained actual possession of said premises by _____ [allege facts constituting actual possession, e.g., residing thereon with his/her family and all their household possessions].

[AND/OR]

2. _____ [Defendant or Plaintiff], in reliance on the oral contract, has made substantial and permanent improvements on and to the real property in that he/she has _____ [indicate nature and cost of improvements, e.g., graded and paved a driveway and constructed a garage at a cost of $_____].

[EITHER]

3. _____ [Defendant or Plaintiff] paid the purchase price of the property in full to _____ [plaintiff or defendant] _____ [specify amounts and dates of payments, e.g., by checks dated _____ (date), and _____ (date), for $_____ and $_____, respectively], and _____ [plaintiff or defendant] accepted and retained the payment(s).

[OR]

3. _____ [Defendant or Plaintiff] has paid to _____ [plaintiff or defendant] and _____ [plaintiff or defendant] has accepted the following sums to be applied to the total price of said real property: _____ [list amounts paid and dates of payment]. _____[Defendant or Plaintiff] tendered the balance due of $_____to _____ [plaintiff or defendant], but _____ [plaintiff or defendant] refused then, and continues to refuse, to execute a deed conveying said real property to _____ [defendant or plaintiff].

[2] Use of Form

The form of allegation in [1], above, may be used in any action in which a party seeks to rely on an oral contract for the sale of real property which has been partly performed [see Civ. Code § 1624(a)(3)(agreement for the § 530.18[4] (sufficiency of part performance)]. Thus, for example, the allegations may be inserted in a complaint for specific performance of such a contract or for damages for breach of such a contract. When appropriate, the allegations may also be included in a defendant's answer to an action in which the defendant bases his or her rights on an oral contract for the sale of real property, such as a quiet title action or an action to enjoin interference with property rights.

For an example of a complaint for specific performance of a contract to convey real property, see Ch. 528, Specific Performance .

[3] Allegations

This form alleges:

- The making of the oral contract (Paragraph 1),

- That the party who bought the property went into actual possession of it pursuant to the contract, or made valuable improvements on the land in reliance on the contract, or both (Pararaph 2), and

- That the vendee made full or part payment of the purchase price (Paragraph 3).

[4] Requirement of Actual Possession

Mere payment of the purchase price is not sufficient to establish part performance which would take the contract out of the statute of frauds. It must be shown that the vendee was given, and took, actual possession of the property pursuant to the terms of the contract and continued to hold possession or made valuable improvements on the land in reliance on the contract [Davis v. Judson (1910) 159 Cal. 121, 131, 113 P. 147 ; McGinn v. Willey (1914) 24 Cal. App. 303, 308, 141 P. 49 (possession, improvements, and part payment of purchase price)]. For example, part performance was sufficient when the vendee did the following [Engasser v. Jones (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 171, 175-176, 198 P.2d 546] :

- Taking possession under the oral sales contract;
- Expending money in moving onto the property;
- Furnished the house;
- Arranged to buy water rights; and
- Maintained exclusive control of the property with the vendor's consent and knowledge.

To constitute part performance, the vendee must be in physical possession of the property. The possession must be so visible, notorious, and exclusive as to clearly manifest that the vendee is claiming a distinctive ownership which is inconsistent with the right of ownership in any other person [Davis v. Judson (1910) 159 Cal. 121, 132, 113 P. 147 (visiting lots every year or two insufficient); Francis v. Colendich (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 128, 131, 14 Cal. Rptr. 56 (surveying, fencing, and occupying parcel adjacent to previously owned property sufficient)]. Visiting lots every year or two is not sufficient possession [Davis v. Judson (1910) 159 Cal. 121, 132, 113 P. 147] , nor is possession by one who is already in possession as lessee. In the later case, possession would not taken pursuant to the terms of the sale contract [Hawke v. Ellwanger (1930) 108 Cal. App. 105, 107, 291 P. 279] .

Slight and temporary improvements or trivial outlays, such as placing few loads of gravel on lot and planting some trees, or spending $500 for development plans, are insufficient to constitute valuable improvements taking the contract out of the statute of frauds [Wood v. Anderson (1926) 199 Cal. 440, 445, 249 P. 862 ; Harrison v. Hanson (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 370, 377, 331 P.2d 1084] .

PART V. FORMS

§ 530.61 Allegation of Qualified Financial Contract Not Subject to Statute of Frauds [Civ. Code § 1624(b); Com. Code §§ 1206(3), 2201(4)]

[1] FORM Allegation of Qualified Financial Contract Not Subject to Statute of Frauds [Civ. Code § 1624(b); Com. Code §§ 1206(3), 2201(4)]

1. On _____ [date] plaintiff and defendant entered into an oral contract for _____ [specify type of qualified financial contract listed in Civ. Code § 1624(b)(2), e.g., the purchase and sale of foreign exchange], which was otherwise valid and enforceable.

[EITHER]

2. There is sufficient evidence that a contract has been made: [specify type of evidence listed in Civ. Code § 1624(b)(3), e.g., plaintiff has a recording of the telephone call, admissible in evidence under California law, which indicates that the parties made a contract].

[OR]

2. Pursuant to a [prior or subsequent] written contract dated _____, plaintiff and defendant agreed to be bound by the terms of the qualified financial contract from the time they reached agreement _____ [by telephone or otherwise] on those terms. A copy of that contract is attached hereto marked "Exhibit A" and made a part hereof by this reference.

[2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, may be used when a party seeks to rely on an oral contract that falls within the exception to the statute of frauds [see Civ. Code § 1624(a)(1)] for certain qualified financial contracts [Civ. Code § 1624(b); see § 530.12[1][c]]. For example, the allegations may be inserted in a complaint for specific performance of such a contract or for damages for breach of such a contract.

[3] Allegations

This form alleges:

- That the agreement or contract is a qualified financial contract which is valid in other respects and is otherwise enforceable (Paragraph 1) [see Civ. Code § 1624(b)(2) ("qualified financial contract" defined)].

- Either there is sufficient evidence to indicate that a contract has been made, [see Civ. Code § 1624(b)(3) (what constitutes sufficient evidence that contract was made)] or the parties have agreed by means of a prior or subsequent written contract to be bound by the terms of the qualified financial contract from the time they reached agreement on those terms (Paragraph 2) [see Civ. Code § 1624(b)(4) ("writing" includes tangible written text produced by electronic signals)].

Chapter 531 STATUTES AND ORDINANCES
PART I. SCOPE

§ 531.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses and contains forms relating to statutes and ordinances generally, including the manner of pleading statutes and ordinances. It includes forms to allege the existence of county ordinances and municipal corporation ordinances in California [see §§ 531.150, 531.151], to allege compliance with conditions precedent to an action under a statute or ordinance [see § 531.152], to allege violation of a statute or ordinance [see § 531.153], and to allege the existence of foreign or sister state statutes and ordinances [see § 531.154]. It also includes forms of notice of a request for the court to take judicial notice of a statute or ordinance [see § 531.155] and of a declaration of a city clerk that a copy of an ordinance is correct [see § 531.156].

This chapter also contains a brief discussion of declaratory and injunctive relief against enforcement of unconstitutional or otherwise invalid statutes or ordinances. For forms and further discussion relating to declaratory relief to determine the validity of statutes and ordinances, see Ch.183, Declaratory Relief . For forms and further discussion relating to a taxpayer's suit to restrain the expenditure of public money to enforce an unconstitutional statute or ordinance, see Ch. 466, Public Entities and Officers: Taxpayer's Actions . For forms and further discussion relating to injunctive relief generally, see Ch. 303, Injunctions . For forms and further discussion relating to judicial notice generally, see Ch. 321, Judicial Notice . For discussion of California constitutional law, see Ch. 126A, Constitutional Law .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

§ 531.10 Governing Statutes

Laws, including statutes, are defined in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1895-1899. Ordinances are authorized under Cal. Const., art. XI, §§ 5 and 7, and Gov. Code § 37100. Pleading of ordinances and private statutes and of conditions precedent under statutes and ordinances is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 459.

Judicial notice is governed by Evid. Code § 450 et seq., and proof of official writings is governed by Evid. Code §§ 1530 and 1531.

Interpretation of statutes generally is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1858, 1859, and 1866. Additionally, particular codes and acts may have definitions and rules of construction applicable to the interpretation of provisions included within that code or act [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 2 et seq. (Civil Code); Bus. & Prof. Code § 23000 et seq. (Alcoholic Beverage Control Act)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

§ 531.11 Statutes Defined

The written law of California is contained in its constitution and statutes, and in the constitution and statutes of the United States. "Statutes" are written laws other than the state and federal constitutions [Code Civ. Proc. § 1897]. Except for private statutes, which concern only certain designated individuals and affect only their private rights, all statutes are public [Code Civ. Proc. § 1898]. The only way in which the Legislature may make law is by statute [Cal. Const., art. IV, § 8].

§ 531.12 Ordinances Defined

Cities and counties generally may make and enforce within their limits all local, police, sanitary, and other ordinances not in conflict with general laws [Cal. Const., art. XI, §§ 4(h), 7]. Ordinances must not conflict with the constitutions or statutes of California or the United States [Gov. Code § 37100]. However, charter cities may make and enforce ordinances in respect to municipal affairs subject only to the restrictions in their respective charters. With respect to municipal affairs, city charters supersede all inconsistent laws [Cal. Const., art. XI, § 5(a); for further discussion of the scope of the power to make ordinances, § 531.91[3]].

A. In General

§ 531.13 Judicial Notice of Statutes and Ordinances

Judicial notice may be mandatory or permissive. California courts must take judicial notice of the decisional, constitutional, and public statutory law of California and the United States, and of the provisions of any city or county charter described in Cal. Const., art. XI, § 3, 4, or 5 [Evid. Code § 451(a)]. In addition, to the extent that they are not encompassed in the mandatory notice provisions of Evid. Code § 451, California courts may, and on proper request, must, take judicial notice of the following matters [Evid. Code §§ 452, 453]:

(1) The constitutional and statutory law of any state of the United States and the resolutions and private acts of the United States Congress or the California Legislature [Evid. Code § 452(a)]; and

(2) Regulations and legislative enactments issued by or under the authority of the United States or any public entity in the United States [Evid. Code § 452(b); see Grant v. Hipsher (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 375, 380 n.2, 64 Cal. Rptr. 892 (city and county ordinances may be judicially noticed as regulations and legislative enactments issued by or under authority of public entity)].

For a form of request that the court take judicial notice of a statute or ordinance of a sister state, a foreign statute, or an ordinance of a public entity, see § 531.155. For discussion of other matters subject to judicial notice and of the procedure for taking judicial notice, see Ch. 321, Judicial Notice .

§ 531.30 Necessity and Manner of Pleading Public Statutes and Ordinances

Matters subject to mandatory judicial notice need not be pleaded [see Loranger v. Nadeau (1932) 215 Cal. 362, 364-366, 10 P.2d 63 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1875, which listed matters subject to judicial notice but did not have a mandatory/permissive scheme comparable to Evid. Code §§ 451-453, overruled on other grounds, Reich v. Purcell (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 551, 555, 63 Cal. Rptr. 31, 432 P.2d 727)]. Thus, California and federal public statutes need not be pleaded [see Evid. Code § 451(a)]. However, because city and county ordinances are subject only to permissive judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 452(b)], they should be pleaded. It is sufficient to plead an ordinance by its title and date of passage [Code Civ. Proc. § 459]. As an alternative to the simplified method of pleading an ordinance provided for in Code Civ. Proc. § 459, an ordinance may be pleaded by setting forth the substance of the provision relied on [Clements v. T.R. Bechtel Co. (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 227, 241, 273 P.2d 5 ; see § 531.151]. Mere reference to an ordinance by number, however, is insufficient [Agnew v. Los Angeles (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 105, 106, 221 P.2d 340] . If the pleading gives notice that judicial notice of the ordinance will be requested and furnishes the court with sufficient information to enable it to take judicial notice of the ordinance, judicial notice will become mandatory [see Evid. Code § 453; see also § 531.13; for forms, see §§ 531.150, 531.151, 531.153, 531.154].

§ 531.31 Necessity and Manner of Pleading Private Statute

Because private statutes are subject only to permissive judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 452(a)], they should be pleaded [see Necessity and Manner of Pleading Public Statutes and Ordinances, above]. In pleading a private statute, an ordinance of a county or municipal corporation, or a right derived therefrom, it is sufficient to refer to the statute or ordinance by its title and the day of its passage [Code Civ. Proc. § 459; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1898 (definition of "private statute"); discussion § 531.11; see also § 531.150].

§ 531.32 Pleading Right to Recover Based on Statutory Liability

When a party seeks to recover on a purely statutory liability, the complaint must allege facts demonstrating his or her right to recover under the statute. The complaint must plead every fact which is essential to the cause of action under the statute. If the statute contains a limitation in the clause creating and defining the liability, the limitation must be negated in the complaint [Green v. Grimes-Stassforth S. Co. (1940) 39 Cal. App. 2d 52, 55, 102 P.2d 452 ; see Bach v. McNelis (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 852, 865, 255 Cal. Rptr. 232]. If the statutory liability is limited by a proviso, however, or by a later section in the same act, the exception does not have to be negated in the complaint [see People v. Gordon (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 711, 724, 234 P.2d 287]. For a form of allegation pleading a violation of statute giving rise to liability, see § 531.153.

§ 531.33 Pleading Conditions Precedent Under Statute or Ordinance

In pleading the performance of conditions precedent under a statute, an ordinance of a county or municipal corporation, or a right derived therefrom, it is not necessary to state the facts showing performance, but it may be stated generally that the party duly performed all the conditions required by the statute or ordinance on his or her part [Code Civ. Proc. § 459; Blumer v. Kirkman Corporation (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 480, 485, 241 P.2d 17]. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 459, an allegation that acts were done "pursuant to," "according to," "in conformance to," or "in compliance with" a specified statute is sufficient to allege the performance of conditions precedent imposed by the statute [Motor City Sales v. Superior Court (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 342, 347, 107 Cal. Rptr. 280]. For a form of allegation pleading performance of conditions precedent, see § 531.152.

§ 531.34 Statute or Ordinance Creating Duty in Negligence Action

It is not necessary to plead or to refer to a statute or ordinance relied on as creating a duty when the action is predicated on the defendant's negligence and is not an action to enforce a liability or penalty imposed by statute [McNeill v. A. Teichert & Son, Inc. (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 5, 8-9, 289 P.2d 595 ; Jackson v. Hardy (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 6, 12, 160 P.2d 161]. A motion to strike an allegation of a statute or ordinance is properly granted when the cause of action is not for violation of the statute [see Szopieray v. West Berkeley etc. Co. (1924) 194 Cal. 106, 113, 227 P. 720 (ordinance)].

Even though it has not been pleaded, an ordinance is admissible as evidence of negligence [Szopieray v. West Berkeley etc. Co. (1924) 194 Cal. 106, 113, 227 P. 720 ; McNeill v. A. Teichert & Son, Inc. (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 5, 8-9, 289 P.2d 595].

46-531 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 531.35

§ 531.35 Effect of Repeal on Cause of Action

[1] When Right Accrues Solely From Statute

When a cause of action rests on a statute, the repeal of the statute destroys the right unless the right has been reduced to final judgment or unless the repealing statute contains a saving clause protecting the right in a pending litigation [Governing Board v. Mann (1977) 18 Cal. 3d 819, 829, 135 Cal. Rptr. 526, 558 P.2d 1]; Cross v. Bonded Adjustment Bureau (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 266, 275-276, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 801 .

For discussion of retroactivity and vested rights, see § 531.71.

[2] When Right Accrues From Statute Codifying Common Law

The rule that a repeal of the statute destroys the right only applies when the right in question is a statutory right and does not apply to an existing right of action which has accrued to a person under the rules of the common law, or by virtue of a statute codifying the common law. In such a case, it is generally stated that the cause of action is a vested property right which may not be impaired by legislation. In other words, the repeal of such a statute or of such a right should not be construed to affect existing causes of action [Callet v. Alioto (1930) 210 Cal. 65, 67-68, 290 P. 438 ; Cross v. Bonded Adjustment Bureau (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 266, 275-276, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 801]. In short, the repeal of a statute affects a cause of action based solely on the statute; it does not affect a claim that exists at common law [Cross v. Bonded Adjustment Bureau (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 266, 275-276, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 801].

C. Statutory Interpretation

§ 531.50 Interpretation Is Question of Law

The interpretation and applicability of a statute is a question of law [Suman v. BMW of North America, Inc. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1, 9, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 133 ; Bravo Vending v. City of Rancho Mirage (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 383, 391, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 164 ; Cabrera v. Plager (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 606, 611, 241 Cal. Rptr. 731]. An appellate court is not limited by the interpretation of a statute made by the trial court, or limited to the evidence presented on the question of statutory interpretation in the trial court [Bravo Vending v. City of Rancho Mirage (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 383, 391-392, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 164 ; see Cal-Air Conditioning, Inc. v. Auburn Union School Dist. (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 655, 667, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 703 (interpretation and application of statutory scheme to undisputed set of facts is subject to de novo review on appeal)]. The rules of statutory construction apply equally in construing statutes enacted through the initiative process [Day v. City of Fontana (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 268, 272, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 457, 19 P.3d 1196].

The interpretation of a statute is an exercise of the judicial power the California Constitution assigns to the courts. The Legislature has no authority to interpret a statute because that is a judicial task. If the courts have not yet finally and conclusively interpreted a statute and are in the process of doing so, a declaration of a later Legislature as to what an earlier Legislature intended is entitled to consideration. But even then, a legislative declaration of an existing statute's meaning is but a factor for a court to consider and is neither binding nor conclusive in construing the statute. Moreover, once the California Supreme Court has finally and definitively interpreted a statute, the Legislature has the power (subject to constitutional restraints) to overrule the decision by amending the statute, but it has no power to decide that the amendment merely declares existing law [McClung v. Employment Dev. Dep't (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 467, 475-476, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 428, 99 P.3d 1015 (Legislature lacked power to state that amendment of Gov. Code § 12940(j) was "declaratory of existing law," because amendment changed law by overruling definitive and final judicial interpretation of that statute); see Carter v. California Dept. of Veterans Affairs (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 914, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 223, 135 P.3d 637 (because Supreme Court had not yet definitively interpreted Gov. Code § 12940(j)(1) with respect to employer liability for sexual harassment of employees by nonemployees, Court gave due consideration to legislative statement that 2003 amendment of statute was declaratory of existing law)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Statutory Interpretation

§ 531.51 Legislative Intent to Prevail

The fundamental task of statutory construction is to ascertain legislative intent so as to effectuate the purpose of the law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1859; People v. Cruz (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 764, 774-775, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117, 919 P.2d 731 ; Walnut Creek Manor v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 245, 268, 284 Cal. Rptr. 718, 814 P. 2d 704 ; Altaville Drug Store, Inc. v. Employment Development Department (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 231, 238, 242 Cal. Rptr. 732, 746 P.2d 871 ; Pollack v. Department of Motor Vehicles(1985) 38 Cal. 3d 367, 372, 211 Cal. Rptr. 748, 696 P.2d 141 ; Marina Green Homeowners Assn. v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 200, 204, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 364]. Thus, determining legislative intent is said to be the fundamental, or cardinal, rule of statutory construction [Tyrone v. Kelley (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 1, 10-11, 106 Cal. Rptr. 761, 507 P.2d 65 ; Los Angeles Taxpayers Alliance v. Fair Political Practices Com. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1214, 1219, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 472], and the many rules of statutory construction established in the decisional law are all basically guides for courts to use in determining that intent [Kinder v. Pacific Public Carriers Co-op, Inc. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 657, 664, 164 Cal. Rptr. 567].

Whenever possible a construction must be adopted which will give effect to all provisions of a statute [Parris v. Zolin (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 839, 845, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 109]. Accordingly, a statute must be construed in light of its legislative purpose and design, and in enforcing its command, both the policy expressed in its terms and the object implicit in its history should be recognized [In re Schaefer (1981) 116 Cal. App. 3d 588, 597, 172 Cal. Rptr. 335].

The object that a statute seeks to achieve and the evil that it seeks to prevent are of prime consideration in its interpretation [Sierra Club v. City of Hayward (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 840, 860-861 n.12, 171 Cal. Rptr. 619, 623 P.2d 180 ; Dubins v. Regents of University of California (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 77, 83, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 336 ; Judson Steel Corp. v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 658, 669, 150 Cal. Rptr. 250, 586 P.2d 564].

When the Legislature enacts a remedial statute, courts must construe it liberally to promote its purposes and protect persons within its purview. When the meaning of such a statute is in doubt, courts must construe it to suppress the mischief at which it is addressed, to advance or extend the remedy provided, and to bring within the scope of the law every case that comes clearly within its spirit and policy [Tetra Pak, Inc. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1751, 1756, 286 Cal. Rptr. 529].

Statutory interpretation involves a three-step analysis [Herman v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 819, 823, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144]:

- First, a court should examine the actual language of the statute [see discussion in § 531.53, together with following discussion of rules for interpreting words of statute].

- If the meaning of the words is not clear, the court must take the second step and refer to extrinsic sources, including the ostensible objects to be achieved, the evils to be remedied, the legislative history, public policy, contemporaneous administrative construction, and the statutory scheme of which the statute is a part [Mejia v. Reed (2003) 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 390, 74 P.3d 166 (if neither statutory language nor legislative history is dispositive, court should consider relevant policy considerations as they bear on question of legislative intent); Hoechst Celanese Corp. v. Franchise Tax Bd. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 508, 519, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548, 22 P.3d 324 , cert. denied, 122 S. Ct. 614 (2001) ; Day v. City of Fontana (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 268, 272, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 457, 19 P.3d 1196 ; see discussion in § 531.55]. If the statute is part of a uniform act adopted by the Legislature, the history surrounding the creation and adoption of the uniform act is also relevant [Hoechst Celanese Corp. v. Franchise Tax Bd. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 508, 519, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548, 22 P.3d 324 , cert. denied, 122 S. Ct. 614 (2001)] .

- When the first two steps have failed to reveal clear meaning, the final step is to apply reason, practicality, and common sense to the language at hand.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Statutory Interpretation

§ 531.53 Words of Statute as First Consideration

In order to determine legislative intent, courts begin by examining the current language of the statute [Lamie v. United States Trustee (2004) 540 U.S. 526, 124 S. Ct. 1023, 157 L. Ed. 2d 1024, 1033 (starting point in discerning legislative intent is existing statutory text, not predecessor statutes); People v. Cruz (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 764, 775, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117, 919 P.2d 731], because those words are generally the best indicator of legislative intent [Rhiner v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1213, 1217, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 129, 848 P.2d 244 ; Hoyme v. Board of Education (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 449, 452, 165 Cal. Rptr. 737] . If the Legislature has declared its intent, the court must accept that declaration [Tyrone v. Kelley (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 1, 10-11, 106 Cal. Rptr. 761, 507 P.2d 65] .

Awkward or ungrammatical language does not make a statute ambiguous, if the intended meaning is nevertheless clear. For example, the disjunctive nature of a list set forth in a statute may be made clear by the context in which the list appears, despite the inadvertent omission of the word "or." In contrast, the meaning might be altered or obscured if a "not" were missing or if an "or" were inadvertently substituted for an "and" [Lamie v. United States Trustee (2004) 540 U.S. 526, 124 S. Ct. 1023, 157 L. Ed. 2d 1024, 1034] .

Ambiguity may be established through the existence of conflicting opinions of courts that have interpreted either the relevant words or the same words in similar statutes [Hoechst Celanese Corp. v. Franchise Tax Bd. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 508, 522, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548, 22 P.3d 324 , cert. denied, 122 S. Ct. 614 (2001) (conflicting opinions of other states' courts interpreting uniform law demonstrate that reasonable minds may disagree over meaning of statutory words)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Statutory Interpretation

§ 531.54 Interpretation of Unambiguous Statutes

When statutory language is clear and unambiguous, there is no need for construction and a court should not indulge in it [People v. Jones (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 1142, 1146, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 753, 857 P. 2d 1163 ; DaFonte v. Up-Right, Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 593, 601, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 238, 828 P. 2d 140 ; In re Lance W. (1985) 37 Cal. 3d 873, 886, 210 Cal. Rptr. 631, 694 P.2d 744]. A statutory phrase is clear and unambiguous if the meaning assigned to it is not in conflict with other language in the same act [Dubins v. Regents of University of California (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 77, 83, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 336].

The unambiguous language must be given its plain meaning, and rules of statutory construction are applied only if there is ambiguity or conflict in the statute's provisions or if a literal interpretation would lead to absurd consequences [Droeger v. Friedman, Sloan, & Ross (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 26, 38, 283 Cal. Rptr. 584, 812 P.2d 931 ; Marina Green Homeowners Assn. v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 200, 204, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 364 ; Castaneda v. Holcomb (1981) 114 Cal. App. 3d 939, 942, 170 Cal. Rptr. 875 ; see Edgington v. County of San Diego (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 39, 46, 173 Cal. Rptr. 225].

Nevertheless, a claim of ambiguity cannot always be decided from the face of the statute. It may be latent, in which case it requires a provisional examination of extrinsic matters to determine whether the claim is tenable [City of Sacramento v. Public Employees' Retirement System (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 786, 795, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 545].

When ambiguity does exist, consideration should be given to the consequences that flow from a particular interpretation [People v. Cruz (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 764, 782, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117, 919 P.2d 731] . For further discussion, see § 531.55.

The literal meaning of the words of a statute may be disregarded to avoid absurd results or to give effect to manifest purposes that, in light of the statute's legislative history, appear from its provisions considered as a whole [People v. Belleci (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 879, 884, 157 Cal. Rptr. 503, 598 P.2d 473 (following plain meaning); Looney v. Superior Court (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 521, 532, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182]. One case, for example, involved a conflict between a Vehicle Code provision that, under certain circumstances, authorized immediate suspension of the driver's license of a person with blood-alcohol content of 0.04 percent or more, and another Vehicle Code provision that required blood-alcohol content of at least 0.08 percent to sustain the suspension at an administrative hearing [see Veh. Code §§ 13353.2(a)(3), 13557(b)(2)(C)]. Because the two provisions could not be harmonized, the court of appeal concluded, in light of the manifest purpose of the statutes to protect the public, that a blood-alcohol content of 0.04 percent was sufficient both to warrant the initial suspension and to sustain the suspension at an administrative hearing [Rehman v. Department of Motor Vehicles (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 581, 584, 587-588, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 510 ("[T]his is one of the rare instances in which we must disregard the literal terms of a statute because they conflict with another statute and would compel an absurd result that the Legislature obviously did not intend.")].

A literal reading of a statute may also be disregarded when one of its provisions is rendered meaningless by the literal reading [Clavell v. North Coast Business Park (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 328, 331-332, 283 Cal. Rptr. 419 ; see also Every Word to Have Meaning, below].

C. Statutory Interpretation

§ 531.55 Interpretation of Ambiguous Statutes Generally

When a statute is ambiguous, courts typically consider evidence of the Legislature's intent beyond the words of the statute. The court may examine a variety of extrinsic aids, including the statutory scheme of which the provision is a part, the history and background of the statute, the apparent purpose, and any considerations of constitutionality, in an attempt to ascertain the most reasonable interpretation of the measure [Hughes v. Board of Architectural Examiners (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 763, 776, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 624, 952 P.2d 641]. If the statute is part of a uniform act adopted by the Legislature, the history surrounding the creation and adoption of the uniform act is also relevant [Hoechst Celanese Corp. v. Franchise Tax Bd. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 508, 519, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548, 22 P.3d 324 , cert. denied, 122 S. Ct. 614 (2001)]. The court will select a construction that comports most closely with the apparent intent of the lawmakers, with a view to promoting rather than defeating the general purpose of the statute, and to avoiding an interpretation that would lead to absurd consequences [Day v. City of Fontana (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 268, 272, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 457, 19 P.3d 1196 ; see, e.g., Graham County Soil & Water Conservation Dist. v. United States ex rel. Wilson (2005) 545 U.S. 409, 125 S. Ct. 2444, 162 L. Ed. 2d 390, 400-402 (faced with ambiguous federal statute of limitations, Court selected plausible construction that starts time limit running when cause of action accrues, rather than alternative construction under which time limit could expire before accrual of cause of action)].

Words in a statute should, unless otherwise clearly indicated, be given their usual, ordinary, commonsense meaning [Crawford v. Metropolitan Gov't (2009) -- U.S. --, 129 S. Ct. 846, 172 L. Ed. 2d 650, 656 ; Walnut Creek Manor v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 245, 268, 284 Cal. Rptr. 718, 814 P. 2d 704 ; People v. Belleci (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 879, 884, 157 Cal. Rptr. 503, 598 P.2d 473 ; Hoschler v. Sacramento City Unified Sch. Dist. (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 258, 263-264, 266, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 115 (when statute requires that notice be given, but does not specify manner of giving notice, personal service is required); George M. v. Superior Court (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 755, 759, 247 Cal. Rptr. 330]. That meaning is to be ascertained and the words interpreted in the sense in which they would have been understood at the time of the statutory enactment [People v. Cruz (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 764, 782, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117, 919 P.2d 731 ; see, e.g., Carcieri v. Salazar (2009) -- U.S. --, 129 S. Ct. 1058, 172 L. Ed. 2d 791, 800-802 (in 25 U.S.C. § 479, which authorizes Secretary of Interior to acquire property for use of Indian tribes "now under Federal jurisdiction," word "now" refers to time of time of statute's enactment, rather than time of acquisition of property)]. In determining the common meaning of statutory words, the court may refer to a standard dictionary [see, e.g., Crawford v. Metropolitan Gov't (2009) -- U.S. --, 129 S. Ct. 846, 172 L. Ed. 2d 650, 656 (relying on dictionary definition of "opposed," which appears in 42 U.S.C. § 2000e-3(a) and is left undefined by statute); Estate of Griswold (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 904, 911, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165, 24 P.3d 1191]. However, when a statute prescribes the meaning to be given to particular terms used by it, that meaning is generally binding on the courts [Great Lakes Properties, Inc. v. City of El Segundo (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 152, 156, 137 Cal. Rptr. 154, 561 P.2d 244].

In according words their usual, ordinary, and commonsense meaning, the purpose for which the statute was adopted should be kept in mind [Hamilton v. State Bd. of Education (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 132, 141, 172 Cal. Rptr. 748]. When a word of common usage has more than one meaning, the one which will best attain the purposes of the statute should be adopted, even though the ordinary meaning of the word is thereby enlarged or restricted [Sierra Club v. City of Hayward (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 840, 860-861 n.12, 171 Cal. Rptr. 619, 623 P.2d 180]. For example, if a statute uses a general word in conjunction with other words describing specific acts that would ordinarily be within the ambit of the general word, the court may infer that the general word refers to conduct other than those specific acts [see Estate of Griswold (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 904, 911, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165, 24 P.3d 1191 ("acknowledged the child," in Prob. Code § 6452, refers to conduct other than contributing to support or care of child, since statute specifically requires such contribution plus acknowledgement before natural parent may inherit from child who was born out of wedlock)].

A potential ambiguity created by the organizational structure of a statute can be clarified by the clear meaning of the words of the statute. For example, in a statutory subparagraph that is divided into clauses, a limiting provision that appears only in one clause may nevertheless be construed to apply to another clause if it purports to apply to "this subparagraph" [Koons Buick Pontiac GMC, Inc. v. Nigh (2004) 543 U.S. 50, 125 S. Ct. 460, 467-468, 160 L. Ed. 2d 389 (construing 15 U.S.C. § 1640(a)(2)(A)(i), (ii) in light of ordinary meaning of "section," "subsection," "paragraph," "subparagraph," and "clause" as used in congressional legislative drafting manuals)].

A party contending that a provision of an act should not be applied according to the natural or customary purport of its language must show either that some other section of the act expands or restricts its meaning, that the provision itself is repugnant to the general purview of the act, or that the act, construed with other acts on the same subject matter or with the legislative history of the subject matter, imports a different meaning [Great Lakes Properties, Inc. v. City of El Segundo (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 152, 155-156, 137 Cal. Rptr. 154, 561 P.2d 244].

§ 531.57 Judicial Alteration of Statute Impermissible

In construing a statute, the court's function is simply to ascertain and declare what is in terms or in substance contained in the statute, not to insert what has been omitted, or to omit what has been inserted [Code Civ. Proc. § 1858]. The courts may not alter the words of a statute or insert qualifying provisions to accomplish a purpose or assumed intention that does not appear either on the statute's face, or from its language, or from its legislative history [In re Hoddinott (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 992, 1002, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 706 ; People v. Gaines (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 508, 517 ; City of Sacramento v. Public Employees' Retirement System (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 786, 793, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 545 (meaning of statute is to be sought in language used by Legislature and words may not be inserted in statute under guise of interpretation); Cemetery Board v. Telophase Society of America (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 847, 858, 151 Cal. Rptr. 248 ; see also People v. Tilbury (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 56, 70, 284 Cal. Rptr. 288, 813 P.2d 1318 (when Legislature enacts statute in area fraught with medical and scientific uncertainty, courts must be careful not to rewrite statute); Planned Parenthood Affiliates v. Swoap (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1187, 1194-1195, 219 Cal. Rptr. 664 (court may not impeach legislation by extrinsic evidence that legislation does not genuinely reflect Legislature's will)].

If the Legislature's intent is clearly ascertainable, however, words inadvertently omitted from a statute may be supplied in the process of construction in order to effectuate the legislative intent [People v. Hernandez (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 888, 900, 168 Cal. Rptr. 898 (obvious error in reference to subdivisions of another statute corrected by court)].

§ 531.58 Title or Chapter Heading Not Controlling

A title or chapter heading merely states the general subject of a legislative act. Therefore, provisions found within the body of an act are not restricted in operation by the statement in the heading [People v. Garfield (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 192, 200, 219 Cal. Rptr. 196, 707 P.2d 258 ; People v. Tawney (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 599, 613, 336 P.2d 659] . Although a title or chapter heading by itself is not sufficient evidence in support of a restrictive reading of provisions found within the body of an act, the heading is nevertheless a useful guide in determining the intended scope of legislation [see People v. Garfield (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 192, 199-200, 219 Cal. Rptr. 196, 707 P.2d 258 ; see also § 531.63[1]]. Therefore, it appears that titles, chapters, and section headings may be persuasive when coupled with other evidence in support of a particular statutory construction [see People v. Silverbrand (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1621, 1626, 270 Cal. Rptr. 261 (statutory reference to "criminal proceeding" includes prearrest warrant hearing because statute governing warrant hearing appears under heading of criminal "proceedings," criminal magistrate presides over hearing, and hearing comes within ordinary meaning of word "proceeding")].

§ 531.59 Every Word to Have Meaning

In attempting to ascertain legislative intent, effect should be given, whenever possible, to the statute as a whole and to its every word and clause; an interpretation that renders particular terms of a statute surplusage is ordinarily rejected [City of San Jose v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 47, 55, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73, 850 P.2d 621 ; Dyna-Med, Inc. v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1379, 1387, 241 Cal. Rptr. 67, 743 P.2d 1323 ; Gay Law Students Assn. v. Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 458, 478, 156 Cal. Rptr. 14, 595 P.2d 592 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1858; Adams v. Murakami (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 105, 123, 284 Cal. Rptr. 318, 813 P. 2d 1348 (court is not to presume that Legislature engages in idle acts)]. For example, the statute of limitations applicable to claims of domestic violence provides a three-year limitations period measured from the date of the "last act" of domestic violence by the defendant against the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 340.15(a)(1)]. A court of appeal has held that the words "last act" would be rendered superfluous unless the statute is interpreted as adopting the continuing tort theory, allowing domestic violence victims to recover damages for all acts of domestic violence occurring during the marriage, provided the victim proves a continuing course of abusive conduct and files suit within three years of the "last act" of domestic violence [Pugliese v. Superior Court (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1444, 1451, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 681] .

In general, a word that has a particular meaning in one part of a law should be given the same meaning in other parts of the same law. However, this axiom of statutory construction does not control when the word is qualified by different modifiers. For example, Public Resources Code Section 5540 restricts the ability of a regional-park or open-space district to convey land that has been "actually dedicated" for park or open space purposes, and that statute specifies that dedication may be accomplished by a resolution of the district's board of directors [Pub. Res. Code § 5540]. Public Resources Code Section 5565, however, simply states that land is "dedicated" when acquired by a regional park or open space district [Pub. Res. Code § 5565]. Construing these provisions together, the California Supreme Court held that "actually dedicated" and "dedicated" do not mean the same thing. Treating the two usages of "dedicated" as meaning the same thing would render the qualifying word "actually" surplusage, thus violating the rule of statutory construction that courts should, if possible, accord meaning to every word and phrase in a statute so as to better effectuate the Legislature's intent [Ste. Marie v. Riverside County Reg'l Park & Open-Space Dist. (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 282, 289-290, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 369, 206 P.3d 739 (also, if under Pub. Res. Code § 5565 land is deemed dedicated at moment of acquisition, Pub. Res. Code §5540's provision for dedication by resolution of district board would be unnecessary and superfluous)].

Although every word in a statute must be given effect, it is important to distinguish between a prefatory statement of purpose and its operative language; the former usually does not limit or expand the scope of the operative language, although it may help to clarify the meaning of the operative language [District of Columbia v. Heller (2008) -- U.S. --, 128 S. Ct. 2783, 171 L. Ed. 2d 637, 649 & nn.3, 4 (interpreting U.S. Const., amend. II)]. In any event, rules directing courts to avoid interpreting legislative enactments as surplusage are mere guides and will not be used to defeat legislative intent [Lamie v. United States Trustee (2004) 540 U.S. 526, 124 S. Ct. 1023, 157 L. Ed. 2d 1024, 1035 (preference for avoiding surplusage constructions is not absolute); People v. Cruz (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 764, 782, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117, 919 P.2d 731].

Chapter 531 STATUTES AND ORDINANCES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Statutory Interpretation

§ 531.60 Words Qualified by Context

The meaning of the words of a statute can only be determined with reference to the context in which the words are used; that is, with reference to such purpose as may be discerned from examining the entire enactment of which the words are part [Dubins v. Regents of University of California (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 77, 83, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 336]. For example, if a statute uses a general word in conjunction with other words describing specific acts that would ordinarily be within the ambit of the general word, the court may infer that the general word refers to conduct other than those specific acts [see Estate of Griswold (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 904, 911, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165, 24 P.3d 1191 ("acknowledged the child," in Prob. Code § 6452, refers to conduct other than contributing to support or care of child, since statute specifically requires such contribution plus acknowledgement before natural parent may inherit from child who was born out of wedlock)].

The doctrine of ejusdem generis provides that when a general term or category follows or precedes an enumeration of particular classes of persons or things, the general term or category will be construed as applicable only to persons or things that are similar to those that are specifically enumerated [International Fed'n of Prof'l & Technical Eng'rs, Local 21 v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 319, 342, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 693, 165 P.3d 488] . The rationale for the rule is that if the general words were intended to be used in their unrestricted sense, the particular things would not have been mentioned as they would in that case be surplusage [Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. San Diego County Dist. Council of Carpenters (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 317, 331 n.10, 158 Cal. Rptr. 370, 599 P.2d 676]. Ejusdem generis is inapplicable, however, when there is no general or collective term that precedes or follows a list of items. Thus, in a simple disjunctive phrase that combines specific and general items, ejusdem generis provides no basis for assuming that the specificity of some listed items is intended to limit the generality of the other listed items [see Ali v. Federal Bureau of Prisons (2008) 552 U.S. 214, 128 S. Ct. 831, 169 L. Ed. 2d 680, 689-691 (construing 28 U.S.C.S. § 2680(c))].

Similarly, the rule noscitur a socis provides that the meaning of a word may be enlarged or restrained by reference to the object of the whole clause in which it is used [People v. Stout (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 172, 177, 95 Cal. Rptr. 593 ; but see Ali v. Federal Bureau of Prisons (2008)552U.S.214, 128 S. Ct. 831, 169 L. Ed. 2d 680, 691 (noscitur a sociis not applicable to limit ordinary expansive meaning of "any other law enforcement officer" in 28 U.S.C.S. § 2680(c): "although customs and excise are mentioned twice in § 2680(c), nothing in the overall statutory context suggests that customs and excise officers were the exclusive focus of the provision")].

Additionally, words grouped in a list should be given related meaning [Droeger v. Friedman, Sloan, & Ross (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 26, 38, 283 Cal. Rptr. 584, 812 P.2d 931 (rejecting argument that, in statute regarding married person's power to lease for more than one year, sell, convey, or encumber community property, encumbrances should be treated differently than leases, sales, and conveyances)], and modifying phrases must be applied to the words immediately preceding them and are not to be construed as extending to more remote phrases [City of Victorville v. County of San Bernardino (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1312, 1322, 285 Cal. Rptr. 206 ; but see Hoechst Celanese Corp. v. Franchise Tax Bd. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 508, 521, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548, 22 P.3d 324 , cert. denied, 122 S. Ct. 614 (2001) (application of "last antecedent" doctrine--under which qualifying words are to be applied to immediately preceding words but not to more remote ones--supported finding that language of Rev. & Tax. Code § 25120(a) was ambiguous)]. However, the latter principle--the "last antecedent" rule--may be inapplicable, depending on the context. For example, when several words are followed by a clause that applies as much to the first and other words as to the last, or when the sense of the entire act requires that a qualifying word or phrase apply to several preceding words, the last antecedent rule does not apply [Renee J. v. Superior Court (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 735, 743, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 828, 28 P.3d 876 , superseded by statute as stated in In re Angelique C., 113 Cal. App. 4th 509 ("[p]rinciples of statutory construction are not rules of independent force, but merely tools to assist courts in discerning legislative intent")].

When a sentence in a statute contains a transitive verb that has an object, an adverb that modifies the verb is commonly understood to apply to the entire action conveyed by the complete predicate, including the object of the verb. Thus, under a statute that penalizes a person who "knowingly transfers, possesses, or uses, without lawful authority, a means of identification of another person" [see 18 U.S.C. § 1028A(a)(1)], punishment may be imposed only if the government proves not only that the defendant knew that he or she was transferring, possessing, or using something, but also that the defendant knew the something was another person's means of identification [Flores-Figueroa v. United States (2009) -- U.S. --, 129 S. Ct. 1886, 1890-1894, 173 L. Ed. 2d 853, 857-862] .

Some words are particularly subject to varying interpretations and depend on context for their meaning in a given statutory provision. In one case, for example, a federal statutory provision barred judicial review of decisions of the Attorney General "the authority for which is specified under this subchapter to be in the discretion of the Attorney General" [see 8 U.S.C. § 1252(a)(2)(B)(ii)]. The parties in the case disagreed over whether the statutory word "under" referred only to the Attorney General's discretionary authority specified "in" the statute, or whether it encompassed matters made discretionary under regulations adopted "pursuant to" the statute. Looking to the context surrounding the word "under," the United States Supreme Court concluded that the word referred only to matters specified in the statute. In so holding, the Court remarked that "[t]he word 'under' is chameleon; it 'has many dictionary definitions and must draw its meaning from its context'" [*Kucana v. Holder (2010) -- U.S. --, 130 S. Ct. 827, 175 L. Ed. 2d 694, 2010 U.S. LEXIS 764, at 22 (quoting Ardestani v. INS (1991) 502 U.S. 129, 135, 112 S. Ct. 515, 116 L. Ed. 2d 496)].

§ 531.61 Legislative Specification of One Thing Excludes Any Other

Under the rule of expressio unius est exclusio alterius, when exceptions to a general rule are specified by statute, other exceptions are not to be implied or presumed [In re Lance W. (1985) 37 Cal. 3d 873, 888, 210 Cal. Rptr. 631, 694 P.2d 744 ; Wildlife Alive v. Chickering (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 190, 195, 132 Cal. Rptr. 377, 553 P.2d 537 ; Bearden v. U.S. Borax, Inc. (2006) 179 L.R.R.M. (BNA) 2993, 138 Cal. App. 4th 429, 436-437, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 482 (Industrial Wage Commission lacked authority to adopt regulation creating new exemption to employers' duty to provide meal periods in addition to exemptions provided by statute)]. However, this rule gives way when it would operate contrary to the legislative intent to which it is subordinate or when its application would nullify the essence of the statute [County of Alameda v. State Bd. of Equalization (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 374, 381, 182 Cal. Rptr. 450].

A similar rule of construction is inclusio unius est exclusio alterius, inclusion of the one is the exclusion of another [see, e.g., Murillo v. Fleetwood Enterprises, Inc. (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 985, 991, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 682, 953 P.2d 858 (court rejected buyer's contention regarding Civ. Code § 1794(d))]. This rule of statutory construction is a rule of reasonable inference and may not control over the plain meaning of the statutory language [Murillo v. Fleetwood Enterprises, Inc. (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 985, 991, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 682, 953 P.2d 858].

These rules of construction are inapplicable in construing two statutory provisions that govern discrete subject areas. For example, if a list of exemptions from a provision invalidating fraudulent transfers omits transfers made under marital settlement agreements, while a list of exceptions from a provision validating marital settlement agreements omits fraudulent transfers, the Legislature's failure to address the rare instance in which these provisions overlap does not suggest any legislative intent as to which should prevail [Mejia v. Reed (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 657, 666-667, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 390, 74 P.3d 166 ; see Civ. Code § 3439 et seq. ; Fam. Code § 916].

§ 531.62 Omission of Provision Included in Related Statute

When a statute contains a particular provision, the omission of that provision from a similar statute on the same or a related subject reveals a different intent [Murphy v. Kenneth Cole Prods., Inc. (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 1094, 1109 (that Legislature chose to eliminate "penalty" language in Lab. Code § 226.7(c), while retaining it in other statutes enacted in same measure, indicates that "additional hour of pay," required by Lab. Code § 226.7(b) when employer fails to provide required meal period or rest period, constitutes wage rather than penalty); Committee of Seven Thousand v. Superior Court (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 491, 507, 247 Cal. Rptr. 362, 754 P. 2d 708 ; City of Dublin v. County of Alameda (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 264, 280, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 845 ; see Suman v. BMW of North America, Inc. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1, 10-11, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 133 (when Legislature has carefully employed term in one place and excluded in another, it should not be implied where it is excluded); but see Webster v. State Bd. of Control (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 29, 35-36, 242 Cal. Rptr. 685 (rule held inapplicable in light of other canons of statutory construction)]. Similarly, when one part of a statute contains a term or provision, the omission of that term or provision from another part of the same statute indicates that the Legislature intended to convey a different meaning [Cornette v. Department of Transp. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 63, 73, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 26 P.3d 332].

The implications raised by disparate provisions in related statutes are not as strong if the two statutes were not considered or enacted together. In one case, for example, the United States Supreme Court held that the Age Discrimination in Employment Act prohibits retaliation against a federal employee who files an age-discrimination complaint. The Court interpreted the Act's prohibition of "discrimination based on age" in federal employment [see 29 U.S.C. § 633a(a)] as encompassing retaliation, even though the Act's federal-sector provision does not expressly mention retaliation. In so holding, the Court rejected an argument that the express prohibition of retaliation in the Act's private-sector provision [see 29 U.S.C. § 623(d)] implies that Congress did not intend to prohibit retaliation in the federal sector. Noting that the federal-sector provision was enacted seven years after the private-sector provision, was not modeled after the private-sector provision, and is couched in very different terms [Gomez-Perez v. Potter (2008) 553 U.S. 474, 128 S. Ct. 1931, 1940, 170 L. Ed. 2d 887, 899].

§ 531.63 Interpretation in Context of Related Statutes

[1] In General

A statute should be construed in the context of the entire statutory system of which it is a part in order to achieve harmony among the parts [Nickelsberg v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 288, 298, 285 Cal. Rptr. 86, 814 P. 2d 1328 (construing related statutes to avoid implied repeal of conflicting provisions); Droeger v. Friedman, Sloan, & Ross (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 26, 43, 283 Cal. Rptr. 584, 812 P.2d 931 (dicta); Ohio Farmers Ins. Co. v. Quin (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 1338, 1348, 244 Cal. Rptr. 359 ; see also CBOCS W., Inc. v. Humphries (2008) 553 U.S. 442, 128 S. Ct. 1951, 1956, 170 L. Ed. 2d 864, 870-871 (United States Supreme Court construes 42 U.S.C. § 1981, which prohibits racial discrimination in contracts, and 42 U.S.C. § 1982, which prohibits racial discrimination in property ownership, alike because of statutes' common language, origin, and purposes); Sonoma County Bd. of Education v. Public Employment Relations Bd. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 689, 163 Cal. Rptr. 464 (statutes in pari materia (on same subject) may be construed together)].

To construe a specific provision with reference to the entire statutory system of which it is part, and to respect the policy sought to be implemented, the titles of acts, headnotes, and chapter and section headings may properly be considered in determining legislative intent [Bowland v. Municipal Court (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 479, 489, 134 Cal. Rptr. 630, 556 P.2d 1081 ; American Federation of Teachers v. Board of Education (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 829, 836, 166 Cal. Rptr. 89]. Some codes, however, may provide that headings of divisions, chapters, articles, and sections are not to be considered to affect the scope, meaning, or intent of the provisions in the code [see, e.g., Evid. Code § 5; Prob. Code § 4; see also Title or Chapter Heading Not Controlling, above].

It should be noted that various codes and acts may provide definitions and rules of construction that govern or affect the interpretation of statutory provisions within that code or act [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 2 et seq. (governing Civil Code); Bus. & Prof. Code § 23000 et seq. (Alcoholic Beverage Control Act); River Trails Ranch Co. v. Superior Court (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 562, 565-566, 168 Cal. Rptr. 747 (construing Civil Code provisions); see also Nickelsberg v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 288, 298, 285 Cal. Rptr. 86, 814 P. 2d 1328 (rule of liberal construction set forth in Lab. Code § 3202 should not be used to create inconsistency among statutes to be interpreted in context of overall statutory system)].

Even if two potentially conflicting statutes are contained in different legislative acts, the courts will strive to effectuate the purpose of each by harmonizing them, if possible, in a way that allows both to be given effect [Chavez v. City of Los Angeles (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 970, 986, -- Cal. Rptr. 3d --, 224 P.3d 41] . In one case, for example, the California Supreme Court dealt with a potential conflict between Code Civ. Proc. § 1033(a) and Gov. Code § 12965(b). Section 1033(a) authorizes a trial court to deny costs to a prevailing plaintiff in an unlimited civil case if the judgment could have been recovered in a limited civil case. Section 12965(b), which is part of the California Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA), gives the trial court discretion to award attorney's fees and costs to a prevailing plaintiff in a FEHA action. Giving effect to both provisions, the Court held that section 1033(a) gives a trial court discretion to deny attorney's fees to a plaintiff who prevails on a FEHA claim but recovers an amount that could have been recovered in a limited civil case. In exercising that discretion, however, the trial court must give due consideration to the policies and objectives of the FEHA in general and of its fee-shifting provision in particular [Chavez v. City of Los Angeles (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 970, 986989, -- Cal. Rptr. 3d --, 224 P.3d 41] .

[2] Specific Statute to Prevail Over General

A specific provision relating to a particular subject will govern a general provision, even though the general provision standing alone would be broad enough to include the subject to which the specific provision relates [Civ. Code § 3534; Code Civ. Proc. § 1859; San Francisco Taxpayers Assn. v. Board of Supervisors (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 571, 577-578, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 245, 828 P. 2d 147 ; Cavalier Acres, Inc. v. San Simeon Acres Community Services Dist. (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 798, 802, 199 Cal. Rptr. 4 ; see, e.g., People v. DeLaCruz (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 955, 962, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 202 (construing term "notwithstanding other provisions of law")]. The specific provision governs whether it was passed before or after the general statute [Nunes Turfgrass, Inc. v. Vaughan-Jacklin Seed Co. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1518, 1539, 246 Cal. Rptr. 823 ; People v. Garcia (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 85, 109, 171 Cal. Rptr. 169 (passed after); Consumers Union of U.S., Inc. v. California Milk Producers Advisory Bd. (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 433, 446, 147 Cal. Rptr. 265 (passed before)].

Statutes relating to the same subject matter should be harmonized if possible, and the Legislature is not presumed to overthrow long established principles of law unless it clearly makes its intent appear by express declaration or necessary implication. Thus, the rule that a later specific statute governs an earlier general statute on the same subject matter applies only if the statutes are irreconcilable and the necessary implication of intent to overthrow the established principle of law exists [Palmer v. Agee (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 377, 383, 150 Cal. Rptr. 841]. There is a strong presumption against the implied repeal of an earlier statute, and the presumption may be overcome only if the two acts are irreconcilable, clearly repugnant, and so inconsistent that the two cannot have concurrent operation [Merrill v. Navegar, Inc. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 465, 487, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370, 28 P.3d 116 ; Western Oil & Gas Assn. v. Monterey Bay Unified Air Pollution Control Dist. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 408, 419-420, 261 Cal. Rptr. 384, 777 P.2d 157 ; Sanford v. Garamendi (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1109, 1122, 284 Cal. Rptr. 897]. When a general statute standing alone would include the same matter as a special act, and therefore conflict with it, the special act will be considered as an exception to the general statute, whether it was passed before or after that general enactment [People v. DeLaCruz (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 955, 962, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 202].

The principle that a specific provision takes precedence over a general provision is inapplicable if neither provision under consideration is significantly more specific than the other. For example, a provision governing the validity of marital settlement agreements [see Fam. Code § 916] might seem more specific than a provision that generally invalidates fraudulent transfers [see Civ. Code § 3439 et seq. (Uniform Fraudulent Transfers Act)], because the latter applies to all transactions, not just those made as part of marital settlements. On the other hand, the fraudulent-transfer provision might seem more specific, given that it deals only with fraudulent transfers, while the marital-settlement provision regulates all transfers made in marital settlement agreements. In such a case, an apparent conflict between the provisions cannot be resolved by application of the principle that a specific provision takes precedence over a general provision [Mejia v. Reed (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 657, 666, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 390, 74 P.3d 166].

A presumption exists that, in enacting a statute, the Legislature did not intend to violate the Constitution, but instead intended to enact a valid statute within the scope of its constitutional powers. Therefore, a statute must be interpreted in a manner consistent with the statute's language and purpose that eliminates doubts regarding the statute's constitutionality [Hughes v. Board of Architectural Examiners (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 763, 788, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 624, 952 P.2d 641 ; see Dyna-Med, Inc. v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1379, 1387, 241 Cal. Rptr. 67, 743 P.2d 1323 ; Rowe v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1711, 1722, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 625]. A court may not engage in wholesale rewriting of statute, however, to preserve its constitutionality [Bayscene Resident Negotiators v. Bayscene Mobilehome Park (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 119, 134, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 626 ; see also Judicial Alteration of Statute Impermissible, above].

If a statute is reasonably susceptible of two or more interpretations, of which at least one raises constitutional questions, it should be construed in a manner that avoids any doubt about its validity [Association for Retarded Citizens v. Department of Developmental Services (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 384, 394, 211 Cal. Rptr. 758, 696 P.2d 150].

So long as a statute does not threaten to infringe on the exercise of constitutional rights, ambiguities in the statute, even if numerous, do not justify the invalidation of a statute on its face [People v. Scott (1993) 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 179].

§ 531.65 Legislative History

Courts consider legislative history as an extrinsic aid to help elucidate legislative intent [City of San Jose v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 47, 54, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73, 850 P.2d 621 ; see, e.g., Jevne v. Superior Court (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 935, 948, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 685, 111 P.3d 954 (considering report by Assembly Committee on Judiciary and Senate floor analysis in determining legislative intent); see also District of Columbia v. Heller (2008) -- U.S. --, 128 S. Ct. 2783, 171 L. Ed. 2d 637, 665 ("legislative history" refers to pre-enactment statements of those who drafted or voted for law; it is persuasive not because it reflects general understanding of legislation, but because legislators who read or heard those statements presumably voted with that understanding)]. However, in construing the terms of a statute, courts resort to its legislative history only if its terms are ambiguous. An ambiguity arises only if there is more than one construction in issue that is semantically permissible, that is, more than one usage that makes sense of the statutory language given the context and applicable rules of usage [City of Sacramento v. Public Employees' Retirement System (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 786, 795, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 545]. Statements in a report of a legislative committee concerning the object and purposes of a proposed amendment should be followed [Hassan v. Mercy Am. River Hosp. (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 709, 717, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 623, 74 P.3d 726 ; People v. Swinney (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 332, 342, 120 Cal. Rptr. 148 , overruled on other grounds, People v. Zamora (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 538, 565, 134 Cal. Rptr. 784, 557 P.2d 75 ; People v. Cherry (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1131, 1135-1136, 257 Cal. Rptr. 684]. It is reasonable to presume that the Legislature acted with the intent and meaning expressed in the Legislative Counsel's digest [San Francisco Police Officers' Assn. v. Superior Court (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 183, 189, 248 Cal. Rptr. 297]. A legislative analyst's report is also admissible as "cognizable legislative history" [Aguimatang v. California State Lottery (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 769, 788-789, 286 Cal. Rptr. 57]. However, while the Digest may be helpful in interpreting an ambiguous statute, it is not the law. At most, the legislative counsel's interpretation of a statute is to be accorded great weight, but even that principle has no application when the comments directly conflict with the statutes; in that case the comments are to be disregarded [In re Barry W. (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 358, 367, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 161].

Material in the legislative record that does not state the intent of the legislature has no persuasive value in interpreting an ambiguous statute. For example, a letter asserting a private party's interpretation of proposed legislation has no value in interpreting the legislation if the legislative history shows no support for that interpretation from within the Legislature itself [Hassan v. Mercy Am. River Hosp. (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 709, 722-723, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 623, 74 P.3d 726].

[2] Statements of Individual Legislators

Statements of individual legislators showing their motives or understandings are not admissible in construing a statute, even though the legislator whose motives are profferred authored the bill in controversy, because there is no guarantee that the other supporters of the proposal shared the author's view of its compass [Williams v. Garcetti (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 561, 569, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341, 853 P.2d 507]. However, an individual legislator's letter may be considered if the circumstances indicate that the letter reflects the Legislature's collective intent [City of Long Beach v. Department of Indus. Relations (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 942, 952-953, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 518, 102 P.3d 904 (prior to bill's enactment, legislator's letter was presented to full Senate, which carried legislator's motion to print it in Senate Daily Journal)]. For example, a legislator's statement may be considered when it is a reiteration of legislative discussion and events leading up to adoption of proposed amendments rather than a mere expression of personal opinion, or when the statement gives some indication of arguments made to the Legislature and was printed on motion of the Legislature as a "letter of legislative intent" [Bronco Wine Co. v. Jolly (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 943, 977 n.46, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 180, 95 P.3d 422 (legislative intent was evidenced by statements of author of bill, particularly because statements reiterated what was contained in committee reports and did not amount to mere expressions of personal opinion); see Sierra Club v. California Coastal Comm'n (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 839, 853 n.8, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 316, 111 P.3d 294 (considering letter from author of legislation, because letter purported to reiterate statements made to Legislature during consideration of bill and letter was printed with Senate's consent pursuant to motion of author of legislation); California Teachers Assn. v. San Diego Community College Dist. (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 692, 699-701, 170 Cal. Rptr. 817, 621 P.2d 856 ; Haworth v. Lira (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1362, 1368-1369, 284 Cal. Rptr. 62 (letter from legislator's staff member expressing staff member's opinion of legislative intent not admissible because it did not allude to arguments presented in securing passage of legislation or reiterate discussion and events taking place in Legislature)]. In addition, courts may take judicial notice of various letters and legislative staff analyses related to the particular legislation; however, in determining legislative intent, courts will not rely on evidence of the individual views of proponents of the legislation [People v. Cruz (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 764, 780, fn. 9, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117, 919 P.2d 731].

[3] Rejection of Specific Provision

When the Legislature rejects a specific provision contained in an act as originally introduced, or rejects an amendment to a bill, the rejection is most persuasive to the conclusion that the act should not be construed to include the omitted provision [Murphy v. Kenneth Cole Prods., Inc. (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 1094, 1107, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 880, 155 P.3d 284 ("The rejection of a specific provision contained in an act as originally introduced is 'most persuasive' that the act should not be interpreted to include what was left out.") (quoting Wilson v. City of Laguna Beach (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 543, 555, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 848); California Coastal Com. v. Quanta Investment Corp. (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 579, 601-602, 170 Cal. Rptr. 263 ; Madrid v. Justice Court (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 819, 825, 125 Cal. Rptr. 348].

If, when it enacted a given statutory provision, the Legislature was advised concerning a potential effect of the provision and chose not to address the subject with specific legislation, the absence of legislative action does not serve as a basis for drawing any conclusions as to what the Legislature intended regarding that subject [Mejia v. Reed (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 657, 667-668, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 390, 74 P.3d 166].

[4] Reports of Drafting Commissions

Reports of commissions which have proposed statutes that are subsequently adopted are entitled to substantial weight in construing the statutes, particularly when the statute proposed by the commission is adopted by the Legislature without any change and the commission's comment is brief [People v. Garfield (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 192, 199, 219 Cal. Rptr.

196, 707 P.2d 258 (Law Revision Commission) ; Owens v. Superior Court (1980) 28 Cal. 3d 238, 246, 168 Cal. Rptr. 466, 617 P.2d 1098 (Judicial Council) ; Brian W. v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 618, 623, 143 Cal. Rptr. 717, 574 P.2d 788 (special study commission created by governor)]. In that type of situation, there is ordinarily strong reason to believe that the legislators' votes were based in large measure on the explanation of the commission in proposing the bill, lending weight to the commission report [Brigante v. Huang (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1569, 1581, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 354 (Report of Discovery Commission)]. On the other hand, if the commission's comment on a given statutory provision is just one item in a lengthy report, the inference is less strong that the Legislature approved that comment [Conservatorship of Wendland (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 519, 542, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 412, 28 P.3d 151 ("one may legitimately question whether the Legislature can fairly be assumed to have read and endorsed every statement in the commission's 280-page report on the Health Care Decisions Law," 1999 Stats., ch. 658)].

[5] Election Brochure Arguments

Election brochure arguments may be used as an aid in construing legislative measures and constitutional amendments adopted pursuant to a vote of the people [Day v. City of Fontana (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 268, 274-282, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 457, 19 P.3d 1196 (reviewing ballot pamphlet materials, including ballot arguments, to support court's construction of statute enacted through initiative process); Legislature v. Eu (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 492, 504-505, 286 Cal. Rptr. 283, 816 P.2d 1309 (in reviewing constitutionality of proposition, Supreme Court considered arguments in official ballot pamphlet both for and against proposition); White v. Davis (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 757, 775 n.11, 120 Cal. Rptr. 94, 533 P.2d 222].

C. Statutory Interpretation

46-531 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 531.66

§ 531.66 Subsequent Enactments

[1] Reenactment or Modification After Judicial Construction

When determining the Legislature's intent in amending a statute that has been the subject of judicial construction, courts must proceed in light of the decisional background against which the Legislature acted [People v. Mobil Oil Corp. (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 261, 270, 192 Cal. Rptr. 155]. A statutory amendment may explicitly state the Legislature's intent to overrule a specific judicial decision construing the statute [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 1714(b)]. But even in the absence of the specific rejection of a judicial decision, the circumstances may indicate that the amendment was intended to reject the judicial construction of the statute [see Goodman v. Lozano (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1327, 1336, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 219, 223 P.3d 77 (repeal and reenactment of statute with new language showed that Legislature was aware of, and intended to reject, judicial decisions construing statute)].

When a statute has been construed by the courts and is reenacted in the same or substantially the same terms, the Legislature is presumed to be familiar with that construction and to have adopted it as part of the law [People v. Atkins (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 76, 90-91, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 738, 18 P.3d 660 ; Wilkoff v. Superior Court (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 345, 353, 211 Cal. Rptr. 742, 696 P.2d 134 ; In re Marriage of Skelley (1976) 134 Cal. Rptr. 197, 556 P.2d 297 ; see also People v. Williams (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1643, 1647, 284 Cal. Rptr. 241 (failure to change statute in a particular respect when subject is before Legislature, and changes are made in other respects, indicates intention to leave law unchanged in that respect)]. However, this presumption is merely one factor in the total effort to give fair meaning to statutory language [I. J. Weinrot & Son, Inc. v. Jackson (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 327, 336, 220 Cal. Rptr. 103, 708 P.2d 682]. For example, a legislative enactment subsequent to a judicial interpretation does not incorporate the judicial decision into the meaning of the statute when it is clear that the legislative enactment had nothing to do with the topic of the judicial decision [I. J. Weinrot & Son, Inc. v. Jackson (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 327, 336, 220 Cal. Rptr. 103, 708 P.2d 682].

When the Legislature modifies a statute without addressing a provision that had been interpreted by case law, the modification does not necessarily indicate acquiescence with the prior law. Something more than mere silence is required before acquiescence is elevated into a species of implied legislation [Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins.

Companies (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 300-301, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58 (overruling previous Supreme Court interpretation of standing under Ins. Code § 790.03(h))]. Legislative silence after a court has construed a statute gives rise, at most, to an arguable inference of acquiescence or passive approval. Thus, when a statute that is part of an act has been construed by the courts, and the Legislature subsequently adds other statutes to that act, but takes no action on the previously construed statute, the Legislature is not presumed to have been aware of and to have acquiesced in the judicial construction. Again, the Legislature's silence does not amount to implied legislation, because the Legislature's failure to act may indicate many things other than approval of a judicial construction of a statute [Cianci v. Superior Court (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 903, 923, 924, 221 Cal. Rptr. 575, 710 P.2d 375]. Thus, if the court determines that its original interpretation was erroneous, it may overrule that interpretation even though the Legislature has amended other aspects of the law while leaving the construed language unchanged [Cianci v. Superior Court (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 903, 923 n.7, 924, 221 Cal. Rptr. 575, 710 P.2d 375 (also holding that correction is not precluded by stare decisis)].

The Legislature's failure to abrogate a decision is not a cause for finding a presumption of legislative approval of the decision when the decision is a single decision on a question of first impression, and not a consistent and long-standing judicial interpretation of the statutory language [Snyder v. Michael's Stores, Inc. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 991, 1002, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 476, 945 P.2d 781].

Because the Legislature is far more likely to revise the "bottom line" results of decisions rather than to rewrite broad judicial language as an abstract exercise, the presumption of legislative acquiescence in prior judicial decisions extends only to the decisions' holdings, not to broad language unrelated to the specific factual situations presented by the cases [Harris v. Capital Growth Investors XIV (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 1142, 1156-1157].

[2] Use of Previously Construed Language

When legislation has been judicially construed and a subsequent statute on the same or an analogous subject is framed in identical language, unless a contrary intent appears, it will ordinarily be presumed that the Legislature intended the language used in the later enactment to be accorded the same meaning [People v. Wells (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 979, 986, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 699 ; In re D. (1980) 28 Cal. 3d 210, 216, 168 Cal. Rptr. 455, 617 P.2d 1087 ; Kaplan's Fruit & Produce Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 26 Cal. 3d 60, 73, 160 Cal. Rptr. 745, 603 P.2d 1341 ; see also Orange County Employees Assn., Inc. v. County of Orange (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 575, 581-582, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 695 (Legislature presumably aware of Attorney General's opinions when using language identical to that previously interpreted in such opinions)]. Similarly, the court may look to prior construction of a general word [see Droeger v. Friedman, Sloan, & Ross (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 26, 38, 283 Cal. Rptr. 584, 812 P.2d 931 ("[f]rom the earliest days of statehood we have interpreted 'any' to be broad, general and all embracing")].

[3] Incorporation of Statute That Is Subsequently Amended

When a statute adopts by specific reference the provisions of another statute, regulation, or ordinance, those provisions are incorporated in the form in which they exist at the time of the reference, not as subsequently amended [Palermo v. Stockton Theatres, Inc. (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 53, 58-59, 195 P.2d 1]. However, if the reference is general instead of specific, such as a reference to a system or body of laws or to a general law relating to a particular subject, the referring statute takes the law or laws referred to not only in their contemporary form, but also as they may be changed from time to time or even as they may be repealed [People v. Cooper (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 38, 44, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 219, 37 P.3d 403].

[4] Material Change in Language

An intent to change the law or the meaning of a statute will be inferred or presumed from a material change in statutory language, as when the Legislature makes such an amendment subsequent to judicial decisions interpreting the statute in its former wording [People v. Hickey (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 426, 439, 167 Cal. Rptr. 256 ; Van Nuis v. Los Angeles Soap Co. (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 222, 228, 111 Cal. Rptr. 398 ; see Dubins v. Regents of University of California (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 77, 85, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 336 (any material change in language of original act is presumed to indicate change in legal rights)]. However, a mere change in wording, incident to a revision of the Constitution or a statute, does not result in a change of meaning unless the intent to make such a change clearly appears [Mosk v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 474, 493, 159 Cal. Rptr. 494, 601 P.2d 1030 ; DeCastro West Chodorow & Burns, Inc. v. Superior Court (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 410, 418, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 792]. Similarly, it is highly unlikely that the Legislature intended to codify a previous judicial decision if the amendment merely makes minor changes in wording unrelated to the substance of that decision [Lambert v. Commonwealth Land Title Ins. Co. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 1072, 1080, 282 Cal. Rptr. 445, 811 P.2d 737].

[5] Statute Patterned on Federal Statute

It is presumed that the Legislature has the interpretation of a federal statute by the federal courts in mind when it enacts a state statute patterned on the federal statute. In addition, when the federal interpretation is rendered after the state statute was enacted, it may be persuasive and is entitled to great weight even though it is not binding [Kahn v. Kahn (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 372, 387, 137 Cal. Rptr. 332 ; see Kaplan's Fruit & Produce Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 26 Cal. 3d 60, 65, 73-74, 160 Cal. Rptr. 745, 603 P.2d 1341]. The federal interpretation, however, is relevant only to the extent that the federal provisions may be fairly said to parallel the state statute [Wildlife Alive v. Chickering (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 190, 202, 132 Cal. Rptr. 377, 553 P.2d 537].

[6] Use of Legislative History From Other States

A court may also consider the legislative history of enactments in other states. For example, the California Supreme Court has considered legislative history regarding other states' fair employment practices acts in construing the meaning of similar language in the California Fair Employment and Housing Act (Gov. Code § 12900 et seq.) [see Robinson v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 226, 236-239, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 782, 825 P. 2d 767].

[7] Expression of Intent of Earlier Act

When the Legislature declares a statutory amendment is intended to "clarify" the meaning of a preexisting version of the statute, any such declaration is not binding on courts or determinative of the meaning of the earlier version; courts still must ascertain the scope and meaning of the earlier version from all the pertinent circumstances and considerations [People v. Cruz (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 764, 781, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117, 919 P.2d 731]. However, the declared legislative intent may be considered together with other factors, including subsequent amendments or other related enactments, in arriving at the true legislative intent of the earlier version of the statute. Thus, subsequent amendments or other related enactments or attempted enactments may be considered to clarify the intent of the earlier statute [Eu v. Chacon (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 465, 470, 128 Cal. Rptr. 1, 546 P.2d 289 (considering vetoed bill that would have created exception to statute being interpreted by court); Estate of Lacy (1975) 54 Cal. App. 3d 172, 189, 126 Cal. Rptr. 432 (later statutes enacted to clarify and restate requirements of statute being interpreted); Friends of Lake Arrowhead v. Board of Supervisors (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 497, 506, 113 Cal. Rptr. 539 (later statute creating exception to statute being interpreted, and amendment of statute being interpreted)].

The Legislature's subsequent expression of intent made in an act that simply states the Legislature's intent as to a prior statute and states that this was the intent when the statute was originally enacted is not binding on the court, but may properly be used in determining the effect of the prior statute [In re Retirement Cases (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 426, 480-481, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 790]. If the prior statute has already been construed in a different fashion by the California Supreme Court, however, an appellate court is bound by stare decisis to follow the Supreme Court's interpretation, despite the Legislature's subsequent expression of its intent [People v. Savala (1981) 116 Cal. App. 3d 41, 59, 171 Cal. Rptr. 882 ; see McClung v. Employment Dev. Dep't (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 467, 475-476, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 428, 99 P.3d 1015 (once California Supreme Court has finally and definitively interpreted statute, Legislature has power, subject to constitutional restraints, to overrule that decision by amending statute, but it has no power to decide that amendment merely declares existing law)].

[8] Failure to Pass Bill

The failure of the Legislature to pass a bill, such as a bill that would have amended a statute so as to expressly set forth the interpretation of the statute adopted by the court, is little evidence of legislative intent because the bill may have failed passage for reasons other than its merits, including the possibility that the Legislature believed that the interpretation was already manifest [State Compensation Ins. Fund v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 43, 62-63, 152 Cal. Rptr. 153 ; Burgess v. Board of Education (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 571, 580-581, 116 Cal. Rptr. 183]. Moreover, a later Legislature's failure to adopt a proposed amendment to an existing law is of little weight in determining the relevant intent of the earlier Legislature that enacted that law [Lolley v. Campbell (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 367, 378-379, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 571, 48 P.3d 1128 ("[N]o clear inference may be drawn from the failed amendment about the Legislature's understanding of [Lab. Code § 98.2(c)] at the time that it was enacted. ... [T]he statute presently in effect [is binding], not ... a legislative statement of intent that failed to become law")].

However, when the courts put the Legislature on notice of the potential scope of a statute and the Legislature fails to amend the statute to restrict the statute's scope, the Legislature's failure to act is of some, but not controlling, significance [Coulter v. Superior Court (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 144, 151, 145 Cal. Rptr. 534, 577 P.2d 669 (failure of Legislature to exclude social hosts from liability for serving alcoholic beverages under Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602 after Supreme Court decision gave notice of possibility of such liability; liability later barred by amendment of Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602 and Civ. Code § 1714 after decision in Coulter)].

For a discussion of the effect of the Legislature's failure to enact a provision contained in the original bill, or in an amendment to a bill which is passed, see the discussion under Legislative History, above.

[9] Nonrepealable Enactment Not Permitted

A legislative body may modify or abolish acts passed by itself or its predecessors. Therefore, a legislative body cannot restrict the powers of its successors by enacting legislation that is purported to be nonrepealable. A legislature may not bind a future legislature to a particular mode of repeal. It may not declare in advance intent of future legislatures, nor may it declare in advance the effect of subsequent legislation on existing statutes [County Mobilehome Positive Action Committee, Inc. v. County of San Diego (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 727, 734, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 409].

[1] Persuasiveness

The contemporaneous construction of a statute by an administrative agency charged with its enforcement generally is given great weight by courts [Water Quality Assn. v. Santa Barbara County (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 732, 744, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 184], and the agency interpretation of the statute will be followed if not clearly erroneous [Judson Steel Corp. v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 658, 668-669, 150 Cal. Rptr. 250, 586 P.2d 564 (Workers' Compensation Appeal Board interpretation of Labor Code provision); Zenker-Felt Imports v. Malloy (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 713, 720, 171 Cal. Rptr. 482 (interpretation of Code of Civil Procedure provision by Judicial Council in California Rules of Court); see also Federal Express Corp. v. Holowecki (2008) 552 U.S. 389, 128 S. Ct. 1147, 170 L. Ed. 2d 10, 18 (when federal agency with statutory authority to issue regulations invokes that authority to issue regulations interpreting ambiguous statutory terms, courts defer to agency's reasonable interpretations; citing Chevron U.S.A. Inc. v. Natural Res. Def. Council, Inc. (1984) 467 U.S. 837, 843-845, 104 S. Ct. 2778, 81 L. Ed. 2d 694); Davey Tree Surgery Co. v. Occupational Safety & Health Appeals Bd. (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1232, 1243, 213 Cal. Rptr. 806 (defense to safety violations developed by Occupational Safety & Health Appeals Board in board decisions)]. Moreover, the contemporaneous administrative construction of a statute is considered as highly relevant and material evidence of the likely general understanding of the times and of the opinions of the persons who probably were active in drafting the statute [Whitcomb Hotel, Inc. v. Cal. Emp. Com. (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 753, 756, 757, 151 P.2d 233 ; Webster v. State Bd. of Control (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 29, 36, 242 Cal. Rptr. 685 ; see also Department of Water & Power v. Energy Resources Conservation & Development Com. (1991) 2 Cal. App. 4th 206, 220, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 289 (administrative agency ruling 16 years after statute was enacted is not contemporaneous and is not entitled to great weight)].

Consistent administrative construction of a statute over many years, particularly when it originated with those charged with putting the statutory machinery into effect, is entitled to great weight [Gay Law Students Assn. v. Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 458, 491, 156 Cal. Rptr. 14, 595 P.2d 592 ; Castaneda v. Holcomb (1981) 114 Cal. App. 3d 939, 945-946, 170 Cal. Rptr. 875]. Nonetheless, an administrative agency and its employees may not enlarge the scope of a legislative enactment [California Department of Transportation v. Superior Court (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 852,

The general rule of deference to an agency interpretation does not apply if the interpretation was not adopted in accordance with applicable legal requirements. For example, the California Supreme Court has held that the interpretive policies contained in the enforcement manual of the California Division of Labor Standards Enforcement (DLSE) are void as regulations, because they were not promulgated in accordance with the Administrative Procedure Act [Tidewater Marine Western, Inc. v. Bradshaw (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 557, 572, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 186, 927 P.2d 296 ; see Gov. Code § 11340 et seq. (Administrative Procedure Act)]. As a result, courts do not give weight to statutory interpretations that may be implied from the DLSE's enforcement manual [see, e.g., Church v. Jamison (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1568, 1577-1583, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 166 (rejecting DLSE's "reverse" application of statute of limitations to limit years for which terminated employee may seek compensation for unused vested vacation under Lab. Code § 227.3)].

Whether or not it is owed deference, an administrative interpretation of a given statute is not binding on the courts. Ultimately, it is for the judiciary to ascertain the correct interpretation of statutes [Murphy v. Kenneth Cole Prods., Inc. (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 1094, 1106, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 880, 155 P.3d 284] .

[2] Internal Agency Memoranda

The rule of judicial deference to the administrative interpretation of a statute by the agency charged with its enforcement does not apply to internal agency memoranda, as opposed to administrative regulations, especially when the memorandum is composed after the agency becomes amicus curiae to the case in which the memorandum is brought to the court's attention [Jones v. Tracy School Dist. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 99, 107, 165 Cal. Rptr. 100, 611 P.2d 441 ; Campbell v. Arco Marine, Inc. (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1850, 1860, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 626 (Department of Fair Employment and Housing non-contemporaneous interpretation of Fair Employment and Housing Act)]. However, even though not entitled to deference, the agency's interpretation of a statute is entitled to a "measure of respect" if it has been applied consistently by the agency and reflects a body of experience and informed judgment to which courts and litigants may properly resort for guidance [Federal Express Corp. v. Holowecki (2008) 552 U.S. 389, 128 S. Ct. 1147, 1156-1158, 170 L. Ed. 2d 10, 21-23 (adopting Equal Employment Opportunity Commission's interpretation of "charge" that starts waiting period before employee may file suit under Age Discrimination in Employment Act, 29 U.S.C. § 626(d), as embodied in EEOC's compliance manual and internal directives, which had been binding on EEOC staff for at least five years)].

[3] Reenactment of Statute After Agency Interpretation

Reenactment of a statutory provision without a change in light of a prior administrative interpretation is persuasive of a legislative intent to adopt the administrative interpretation [Division of Industrial Safety v. Municipal Court (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 696, 700-701, 132 Cal. Rptr. 573]. Nonetheless, the ultimate interpretation of a statute is an exercise of judicial power, and courts are responsible for declaring a statute's true meaning even if that requires rejection of an earlier erroneous administrative interpretation [Wheeler v. Board of Administration (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 600, 605, 159 Cal. Rptr. 336, 601 P.2d 568 ; Estate of Elsman (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 721, 734, 141 Cal. Rptr. 657 (administrative interpretation rejected even though statute subsequently reenacted without change)].

[4] Federal Agency Interpretation of Similar Federal Regulation

A federal agency interpretation of a federal regulation may be persuasive authority for interpreting a state regulation. However, federal authority is lessened to the extent the federal regulation differs from the state regulation [Aguilar v. Association for Retarded Citizens (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 21, 31, 285 Cal. Rptr. 515].

§ 531.68 Attorney General Interpretation

The California Attorney General's opinion regarding the meaning of a constitutional provision or statute is not binding on a court [City of Long Beach v. Department of Indus. Relations (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 942, 952, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 518, 102 P.3d 904]. It is, however, entitled to great weight and respect, however [Fischer v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 87, 101, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 452 ; Tafoya v. Hastings College (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 437, 445 n.7, 236 Cal. Rptr. 395] . This is true even though the opinion is unpublished [California Assn. of Psychology Providers v. Rank (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 1, 270 Cal. Rptr. 796, 793 P.2d 2].

In addition, the Legislature is presumed to act with knowledge of opinions of the attorney general that affect the subject matter of proposed legislation [Burden v. Snowden (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 556, 564, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 531, 828 P. 2d 672] .

Chapter 531 STATUTES AND ORDINANCES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Statutory Interpretation

§ 531.69 Criminal Statutes

In construing a criminal statute, a defendant must be given the benefit of every reasonable doubt as to whether the statute was applicable to him or her [People v. Baker (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 44, 46, 69 Cal. Rptr. 595, 442 P.2d 675]. Generally, criminal statutes are to be construed according to the fair import of their terms, with a view to effect its objects and promote justice [Penal Code § 4; Bowland v. Municipal Court (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 479, 487, 134 Cal. Rptr. 630, 556 P.2d 1081]. If two interpretations of a criminal statute are possible, the construction that favors the defendant is preferred unless such a construction is contrary to the public interest, sound sense, and wise policy [People v. Garfield (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 192, 200, 219 Cal. Rptr. 196, 707 P.2d 258 ; People v. Squier (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 235, 241, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 536 ; In re Kemper (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 434, 438, 169 Cal. Rptr. 513].

The penalty clause of a penal statute should be given the narrowest construction which is reasonable in light of its legislative purpose. This principle applies even when the underlying action is civil in nature [Tos v. Mayfair Packing Co. (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 67, 79, 206 Cal. Rptr. 459 ; People v. Mobil Oil Corp. (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 261, 276, 192 Cal. Rptr. 155]. The rule of strict construction of penal statutes is not, however, an inexorable command to override common sense and evident statutory purpose [People ex rel. Lungren v. Superior Court (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 294, 312, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 855, 926 P.2d 1042 ; People v. Anderson (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1104, 1145-1146, 240 Cal. Rptr. 585, 742 P.2d 1306].

§ 531.70 Civil Statutes Imposing Monetary Penalty

The rule of strict construction of penal statutes, discussed under § 531.69 above, has generally been applied in this state to criminal statutes, rather than statutes which prescribe only civil monetary penalties [People ex rel. Lungren v. Superior Court (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 294, 312, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 855, 926 P.2d 1042 ; People v. Forbis (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 599, 603-604, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836]. The rule is not an absolute one, however, and there may be circumstances in which civil statutes should be strictly construed [see People ex rel. Lungren v. Superior Court (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 294, 312, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 855, 926 P.2d 1042 (concluding that circumstances for strict construction did not exist)].

Chapter 531 STATUTES AND ORDINANCES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Statutory Interpretation

46-531 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 531.71

§ 531.71 Retroactivity

[1] When A Statute Has Retroactive Effect

A statute has retrospective effect when it substantially changes the legal consequences of past events [Western Security Bank v. Superior Court (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 232, 243, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 243, 933 P.2d 507 ; Kizer v. Hanna (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 1, 7, 255 Cal. Rptr. 412, 767 P.2d 679].

In contrast, a statute affecting the consequences of past events is not considered to have retroactive effect if it does not impair rights that arose when the events occurred [Myers v. Philip Morris Cos. (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 828, 847, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 40, 50 P.3d 751]. The California Supreme Court applied this principle in a case involving a statute that granted immunity for certain conduct but was repealed by a subsequent statute. Noting the absence of a clear indication of legislative intent to have the repealing statute act retroactively, the Court held that the repeal of the immunity statute did not remove any immunity for conduct occurring while the immunity statute was in effect [Myers v. Philip Morris Cos. (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 828, 840-847, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 40, 50 P.3d 751 ; see Civ. Code § 1714.45 (formerly granting tobacco companies complete immunity in certain product liability suits as of January 1, 1988; amended to remove that immunity as of January 1, 1998)]. However, the Court also held that the repealing statute did remove protection that had been available under the immunity statute for conduct occurring before the immunity statute's effective date. In effect, the repealing statute restored the law to what it had been prior to the effective date of the (later-repealed) immunity statute. Thus, the removal of protection for conduct predating the immunity statute was not an impermissible retroactive effect of the repealing statute, because a retroactive effect is one that impairs rights a party possessed when he or she acted [Myers v. Philip Morris Cos. (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 828, 847, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 40, 50 P.3d 751].

In another case, the California Supreme Court approved the application of Proposition 64 to cases pending on the measure's effective date, because that did not constitute an impermissible "retroactive" application. Proposition 64, which took effect with its passage on November 2, 2004, added a standing requirement to California's unfair competition and false advertising laws [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200 et seq., 17500 et seq.]. Specifically, a private plaintiff can no longer bring a class or representative action under those laws unless he or she suffered injury in fact and lost money or property as a result of the alleged unfair competition or false advertising [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17203, 17204, 17535, as amended by Proposition 64]. The Supreme Court held that applying Proposition 64's standing provisions to cases pending on the measure's effective date did not constitute a "retroactive" application, because the measure did not change the legal consequences of past conduct by imposing any new or different liabilities based on such conduct. The measure left entirely unchanged the substantive rules governing business and competitive conduct. Nothing that was lawful before Proposition 64 became unlawful, and nothing that was unlawful before the proposition was made lawful. Moreover, the measure did not eliminate any right to recover. Although applying Proposition 64's standing rules to pending cases could be seen as impairing the settled rights and expectations of uninjured plaintiffs to continue prosecution of their actions, that consequence was relatively insignificant and did not make such application of the measure "retroactive" [Californians for Disability Rights v. Mervyn's, LLC (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 223, 230-233, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 57, 138 P.3d 207] .

Often, the critical question for determining retroactivity is whether the last act or event necessary to trigger application of the statute occurred before or after the statute's effective date. For example, the California Supreme Court has held that Penal Code § 3003.5(b), which places restrictions on where paroled sex offenders subject to lifetime registration may reside, applies to persons who were convicted of registrable offenses before the effective date of the statute but were paroled--and sought housing--after that date. The Court explained that for purposes of retroactivity analysis, the pivotal "last act or event" that must occur before the mandatory residency restrictions come into play is the registered sex offender's securing of a residence upon his or her release from custody on parole. If that last act or event occurs after the effective date of Penal Code § 3003.5(b), then a conclusion that it was a violation of the registrant's parole does not constitute a retroactive application of the statute [In re E.J. (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1258, 12731274, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 165, 223 P.3d 31] .

[2] Two-Step Approach for Initiatives

Courts addressing retroactive application of initiatives generally follow a two-step analysis. First, the court must determine whether the initiative has been retroactively applied. If so, the court must then decide if the people intended that the statute be so applied. On a finding of intent, the initiative may be enacted unless it is prohibited by state or federal constitutional provisions [Yoshioka v. Superior Court (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 972, 979, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 553 ; Gutierrez v. De Lara (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 1575, 1578, 234 Cal. Rptr. 158].

[3] Legislature's Expressed View Considered by Courts

Some codes specifically provide that their provisions do not apply retroactively unless expressly declared retroactive [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 3; Code Civ. Proc. § 3; Penal Code § 3; see also Droeger v. Friedman, Sloan, & Ross (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 26, 42-43, 283 Cal. Rptr. 584, 812 P.2d 931]. The Legislature's expressed views on the prior import of its statutes are entitled to due consideration by courts [Carter v. California Dept. of Veterans Affairs (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 914, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 223, 229, 135 P.3d 637 (because Supreme Court had not yet definitively interpreted Gov. Code § 12940(j)(1) with respect to employer liability for sexual harassment of employees by nonemployees, Court gave due consideration to legislative statement that 2003 amendment of statute was declaratory of existing law)]. Ultimately, however, the interpretation of a statute is an exercise of the judicial power the Constitution assigns to the courts [Western Security Bank v. Superior Court (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 232, 244, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 243, 933 P.2d 507 ; California Emp. etc. Com. v. Payne (1947) 31 Cal. 2d 210, 213, 187 P.2d 702]. Moreover, once the California Supreme Court has finally and definitively interpreted a statute, the Legislature has the power (subject to constitutional restraints) to overrule the decision by amending the statute, but it has no power to decide that the amendment merely declares existing law [McClung v. Employment Dev. Dep't (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 467, 475-476, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 428, 99 P.3d 1015].

[4] Postponement of Statute's Operative Date Not Determinative of Retroactive Effect

The effective date of a statute is the date on which it becomes law; the operative date is the date on which the directives of the statute may actually be implemented [Preston v. State Bd. of Equalization (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 197, 223, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 407, 19 P.3d 1148]. Although the effective and operative dates often are the same, the Legislature may expressly postpone the operative date. However, a postponed operative date does not necessarily imply an intention to give the statute prospective effect only. The Legislature may postpone the operative effect for reasons unrelated to an intent to avoid retroactive effect. For example, the Legislature may delay the operation of a statute to allow persons affected by the statute [Preston v. State Bd. of Equalization (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 197, 223-224, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 407, 19 P.3d 1148]:

- To become aware of it and to comply with its terms;
- To give governmental authorities sufficient time to prepare a mechanism to administer or implement the new law;
- To provide time for cleanup amendments and the passage of related legislation; or
- To simplify bookkeeping or setting retirement dates.

[5] Presumption of Prospective Application

Statutes are not given retroactive effect unless that is clearly the intent of the Legislature [Balen v. Peralta Junior College Dist. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 821, 828, 114 Cal. Rptr. 589, 523 P.2d 629 ; Estate of Hilton (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 890, 906-907, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491]. Such intent may be inferred from the express provisions of the statute as well as from extrinsic sources, including the legislative history [Preston v. State Bd. of Equalization (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 197, 221-222, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 407, 19 P.3d 1148].

If a statute and its legislative history are silent as to retroactive applicability, the Legislature is presumed to have intended the statute to have prospective application only [Nelson v. A.H. Robins Co. (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 862, 870, 197 Cal. Rptr. 179 (alternative ground that Code Civ. Proc. § 3 provides that no part of the Code of Civil Procedure is retroactive unless explicitly so declared)]. This long-established presumption applies particularly to laws creating new obligations, imposing new duties, or exacting new penalties because of past transactions. The rationale behind the presumption is that retroactive laws are characterized by want of notice and lack of knowledge of past conditions, and they disturb feelings of security in past transactions. Also, the purpose of a legislative alteration would not often be significantly advanced by application of the legislation to transactions that preceded it [In re Marriage of Reuling (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1428, 1439, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726].

The presumption is subordinate to the fundamental rule of construction that a statute must be interpreted to effectuate the Legislature's intent. Thus, the presumption is to be applied only after it is determined impossible to ascertain legislative intent [In re Marriage of Bouquet (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 583, 587, 128 Cal. Rptr. 427, 546 P.2d 1371 (statute changing nature of property from community to separate intended to apply retroactively); Mannheim v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 678, 686-687, 91 Cal. Rptr. 585, 478 P.2d 17 (statute adding persons as distributees for purposes of intestate succession intended to apply retroactively); see also Hudson Properties Co. v. Governing Board (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 63, 70, 213 Cal. Rptr. 909 (rule of construction giving prospective application of statute should not be followed blindly)]. In other words, the absence of an express declaration of retroactivity does not prohibit a finding that the Legislature intended a statute to apply retroactively. However, it is a significant indication that the Legislature intended the statute to apply prospectively only [In re Cindy B. (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 771, 780-781, 237 Cal. Rptr. 677].

[6] Clarification Is Not Considered Retroactive Enactment

A statute that merely clarifies, rather than changes, existing law does not operate retrospectively even if applied to transactions predating its enactment [Western Security Bank v. Superior Court (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 232, 243, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 243, 933 P.2d 507 ; Bowen v. Board of Retirement (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 572, 575 n.1, 229 Cal. Rptr. 814, 724 P.2d 500 ; Negrette v. California State Lottery Com. (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1739, 1744, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 809 ; Arcadia Redevelopment Agency v. Ikemoto (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 444, 457, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 112].

When a statute provides that it clarifies or declares existing law, the provision indicates a legislative intent that the amendment apply to all existing causes of action from the date of its enactment. In accordance with the general rules of statutory construction, the court must give effect to this intention unless there is some constitutional objection [Western Security Bank v. Superior Court (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 232, 244, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 243, 933 P.2d 507].

A court may consider the surrounding circumstances to determine whether material changes in statutory language by the Legislature were an effort only to clarify a statute's true meaning [see, e.g., Colmenares v. Braemar Country Club, Inc. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1019, 1028-1031 (based on legislative history and contemporaneous amendment of other statutes, enactment of Gov. Code § 12926.1 effective January 1, 2001, clarified existing law that impairment need not substantially limit major life activity to constitute physical disability under Fair Employment and Housing Act, Gov. Code § 12926(k))]. If the true meaning of the statute remains the same, the legislative act has no retrospective effect [Western Security Bank v. Superior Court (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 232, 243, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 243, 933 P.2d 507].

If the court does not accept the Legislature's assurance that an unmistakable change in the law is merely a "clarification," a declaration of intent may still effectively reflect the Legislature's purpose to achieve a retrospective change [Western Security Bank v. Superior Court (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 232, 243, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 243, 933 P.2d 507 ; California Emp. etc. Com. v. Payne (1947) 31 Cal. 2d 210, 214, 187 P.2d 702]. However, an erroneous statement that an amendment merely declares existing law is not sufficient to overcome the strong presumption against retroactively applying an amendment that was enacted in response to a judicial interpretation of the statute [McClung v. Employment Dev. Dep't (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 467, 475-476, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 428, 99 P.3d 1015 (once California Supreme Court has finally and definitively interpreted statute, Legislature has no power to decide that subsequent amendment merely declares existing law)].

[7] Due Process Challenge

[a] Change Impairing Vested Rights

The retroactive application of a civil statute may be unconstitutional if it deprives a person of a vested right without due process or if it impairs the obligation of a contract [In re Marriage of Heikes (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1211, 1218-1225, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155, 899 P.2d 1349 ; In re Marriage of Bouquet (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 583, 591-594, 128 Cal. Rptr. 427, 546 P.2d 1371 (retroactive application of statute changing community to separate property held not to constitute unconstitutional taking of property without due process); Mannheim v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 678, 688, 91 Cal. Rptr. 585, 478 P.2d 17 (retroactive application of amendment of intestate succession statute lessening occasions for escheat held not to constitute unconstitutional gift of public funds); Estate of Hilton (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 890, 906-907, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491 (modification of statutory compensation rates could not be used to force repayment of prior interim fee award in absence of clear evidence of retroactive operation of amendment)].

However, retroactive application is not unconstitutional per se, even when it impairs vested rights. The constitutional question in such a case is not whether a vested right is impaired by the change in the law, but whether the change reasonably could be believed to be sufficiently necessary to the public welfare to justify the impairment [In re Marriage of Bouquet (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 583, 592, 592 n.8, 128 Cal. Rptr. 427, 546 P.2d 1371]. For example, statutes enacted to cure an injustice in the law and promote the interest of the state in the equitable division of community property have been applied retroactively against the contention that to do so would violate due process [see In re Marriage of Taylor (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 435, 443, 234 Cal. Rptr. 486]. Similarly, although the Legislature generally cannot provide retroactive relief for taxes that have become fixed and vested, a retroactive tax exemption may be upheld if it is based on the Legislature's reasonable determination that the exemption serves a public purpose [Preston v. State Bd. of Equalization (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 197, 224-225, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 407, 19 P.3d 1148 (upholding retroactivity of sales-tax exemption under Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 6011(c)(10), 6012(c)(10), to further public purpose of providing certainty to business taxpayers and improving business climate in California)]. For a discussion of retroactive criminal laws as unconstitutional ex post facto laws, see California Criminal Defense Practice, ch. 140 (Matthew Bender).

An alternative analysis in determining if a retroactive initiative violates due process requires a weighing of a variety of factors [In re Marriage of Bouquet (1976) 16 Cal.3d 583, 592, 128 Cal. Rptr. 427, 546 P.2d 1371 ; Yoshioka v. Superior Court (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 972, 983, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 553].

The following factors are considered by the court [In re Marriage of Bouquet (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 583, 592, n.2, 128 Cal. Rptr. 427, 546 P.2d 1371 ; Yoshioka v. Superior Court (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 972, 983, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 553]:

- The significance of the state interest served by the law.
- The importance of the retroactive application of the law to the effectuation of that interest.
- The extent of reliance upon the former law.
- The legitimacy of that reliance.
- The extent of actions taken on the basis of that reliance.
- The extent to which the retroactive application of the new law would disrupt those actions.

[c] Change in Procedural Law

The application to pending litigation of a statute changing procedure or providing a new remedy for the enforcement of existing rights does not violate the principle that statutes are presumed to act prospectively only, and such laws have historically been held to apply to pending or existing matters [Anton v. San Antonio Community Hosp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 802, 826, 140 Cal. Rptr. 442, 567 P. 2d 1162 ; Angeli v. Lischetti (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 474, 478, 24 Cal. Rptr. 845, 374 P.2d 813 (change in manner of enforcing valid judgment); Governing Board v. Commission on Professional Competence (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 447, 461, 140 Cal. Rptr. 206 (amendment of statute to empower agency to stay disciplinary orders subject to probationary terms applied to uphold agency action when amendment occurred pending appeal from superior court judgment upholding agency's order)]. Such an application of a change in procedural law is actually prospective in nature because it relates to procedure to be followed in the future, and the statute is not made retroactive merely because it draws on facts existing prior to its enactment [Strauch v. Superior Court (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 45, 48-49, 165 Cal. Rptr. 552 (late filing of certificate of merit in medical malpractice action allowed by trial court saved by subsequent amendment extending time for filing and easing effect of failure to file)]. Furthermore, reasons of fairness dictate prospective application of procedural changes, in the absence of clear legislative intent to the contrary [Estate of Hilton (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 890, 906-907, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491 (statutes not to be given retrospective application absent clear legislative intent to do so)].

When a new time limit has been imposed or an existing time limit has been shortened, courts have not resorted to expressions of legislative intent to determine when the new time limit began running. Rather they have relied on a presumption that drafters did not intend to terminate existing rights but instead intended to give parties a reasonable time in which to preserve their rights [Save Our Forest & Ranchlands v. County of San Diego (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1757, 1767-1768, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 708]. If the statute operates immediately to cut off an existing remedy, or within so short a time that a party has no reasonable opportunity to exercise his or her remedy, then the retroactive application of the statute is unconstitutional regarding that party [Rosefield Packing Co. v. Superior Court (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 120, 122-123, 47 P.2d 716 ; Santangelo v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 804, 815, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 735 (when change in statute of limitations became operative, two months for claimant in uninsured motorist arbitration to complete arbitration was reasonable under circumstances)].

A statute is procedural when it neither creates a new cause of action nor deprives defendant of any defense on the merits [Strauch v. Superior Court (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 45, 49, 165 Cal. Rptr. 552]. The classification of a law as substantive or procedural depends on its effect rather than its form, and a statute which might ordinarily be classified as procedural may so change the legal effect of past events that its application to pending matters may be retroactive [Perry v. Heavenly Valley (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 495, 504, 209 Cal. Rptr. 771 (presumption against retroactivity applied to amendment which abolished basis for action in negligence by making worker's compensation exclusive remedy); Coast Bank v. Holmes (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 581, 594-595, 97 Cal. Rptr. 30 (statute altering effect of attorney's fees clauses in contracts deemed both procedural and substantive; legislative intent for retroactive application found); City of Sausalito v. County of Marin (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 550, 557, 90 Cal. Rptr. 843 (statute on procedure for local zoning proceedings deemed substantive as it established standard of validation of such proceeding by reviewing court and did not reach court's procedure; legislative intent to apply to pending litigation found)].

[8] Equal Protection Challenge

Equal protection requires that persons similarly situated receive like treatment [Georgie Boy Manufacturing, Inc. v. Superior Court (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 217, 224, 171 Cal. Rptr. 382].

When a statute or initiative classifies individuals in a manner which involves economic rights, the rational basis test applies. The test is met if the court finds both of the following [Yoshioka v. Superior Court (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 972, 986, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 553]:

- The statute has a legitimate purpose.
- The lawmakers reasonably believed the classification would promote that purpose.

The court must conduct a serious and genuine judicial inquiry into the correspondence between the classification and the legislative goals even if the court is invoking only the rational relations test [Fein v. Permanente Medical Group (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 137, 163, 211 Cal. Rptr. 368, 695 P.2d 665] .

However, equal protection violations are generally not found under the rational relationship test unless the classification rests on grounds wholly irrelevant to the achievement of the state's objective [Yoshioka v. Superior Court (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 972, 986, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 553] . The question therefore is not whether in fact an act will promote the legislative objectives but whether the Legislature could rationally have decided that it might do so [American Bank & Trust Co. v. Community Hospital (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 359, 374, 204 Cal. Rptr. 671, 683 P.2d 670, 41 A.L.R. 4th 233 , quoting Minnesota v. Clover Leaf Creamery Co. (1981) 449 U.S. 456, 466, 101 S.Ct. 715, 725, 66 L. Ed. 2d 659]. The burden to prove this rests on the challenger [Yoshioka v. Superior Court (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 972, 987, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 553].

§ 531.90 Preemption

[1] State Law by Federal

The authority of Congress to preempt state law derives from the Supremacy Clause in the U.S. Constitution. It provides that the federal constitution and federal statutes and treaties are the supreme law of the land and bind state judges, despite state constitutional and statutory law to the contrary [see U.S. Const., art. VI, cl. 2]. In exercising its legislative powers, Congress may expressly preempt state law [California Service Station etc. Assn. v. Union Oil Co. (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 44, 51, 283 Cal. Rptr. 279] . Moreover, absent express preemption, there are three bases for finding implied preemption [Bronco Wine Co. v. Jolly (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 943, 955-956, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 180, 95 P.3d 422] . Whether the preemption is express [see Southern Cal. Gas Co. v. Occupational Safety & Health Appeals Bd. (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 200, 205, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 892] or implied [see Jevne v. Superior Court (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 935, 960-961, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 685, 111 P.3d 954] , the scope of the preemption must also be determined.

For detailed discussion of federal-law preemption of state law, see Ch. 126A, Constitutional Law, § 126A.23.

[2] Local Ordinance by State Statute

City and county ordinances must not conflict with general laws [Cal. Const., art. XI, § 7; Gov. Code § 37100], but they will be presumed valid until a conflict is shown [Water Quality Assn. v. Santa Barbara County (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 732, 740-741, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 184] . However, once a conflict with state law is found to exist, the ordinance is void [Building Industry Association of Northern California v. City of Livermore (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 719, 724, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 902] .

EXCEPTION:

Under Cal. Const., art. XI, §§ 5 and 7, it is clear that ordinances enacted by a charter city are not subject to and controlled by conflicting state legislative action if the subject matter is a "municipal affair," as those words are used in Cal. Const., art. XI, § 5 [Whisman v. San Francisco Unified Sch. Dist. (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 782, 789, 150 Cal. Rptr. 548 (school system not municipal affair)].

For detailed discussion of state-law preemption of local law, see Ch. 126A, Constitutional Law, § 126A.24.

§ 531.91 Equal Protection

Equal protection of the law with respect to state legislation is guaranteed by U.S. Const., amend. XIV, § 1,, and Cal. Const., art. I, § 7(a). The first prerequisite to a meritorious equal protection claim is a showing that the state has adopted a classification which affects two or more similarly situated groups in an unequal manner [People v. Travis (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 1271, 1291, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 177] . There are two tests for determining the validity of a classification under the equal protection clause. The conventional standard presumes the legislation to be constitutional and merely requires that distinctions drawn by a challenged statute bear some rational relationship to a conceivable, legitimate state purpose. A more stringent "strict scrutiny" test is applied in cases involving "suspect classifications" or touching on "fundamental interests." In those cases, the state bears the burden of establishing not only that it has a compelling interest that justifies the law but that the distinctions drawn by the law are necessary to further its purpose [Kasler v. Lockyer, 23 Cal. 4th 472, 480, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334, 2 P.3d 581 (2000) (quoting Warden v. State Bar (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 628, 640-641, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 283, 982 P.2d 154)].

§ 531.92 Privileges and Immunities

The privileges and immunities clause of the California Constitution, which requires privileges and immunities to be granted to all citizens on like terms [see Cal. Const., art I, § 7(b)], statutory classifications are valid unless the classification is unreasonable or arbitrary [City and County of San Francisco v. Flying Dutchman Park, Inc. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 74, 87, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 532 ; People v. Housman (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 43, 53, 210 Cal. Rptr. 186] . Thus, this provision is "substantially the equivalent" of the equal protection clause of the Fourteenth Amendment to the federal constitution [Dep't of Mental Hygiene v. Kirchner (1965) 62 Cal.2d 586, 588, 43 Cal.Rptr. 329, 400 P.2d 321] .

§ 531.93 Due Process

Under the California constitution, a person may not be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law [Cal. Const., art. I, § 7(a)]. Similarly, the federal constitution provides that "no State shall ... deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law" [U.S. Const., amend. XIV, § 1]. The touchstone of due process is protection of the individual against arbitrary action of government [County of Sacramento v. Lewis (1998) 523 U.S. 833, 845-846, 118 S. Ct. 1708, 140 L. Ed. 2d 1043 , quoting Wolff v. McDonnell (1974) 418 U.S. 539, 558, 94 S. Ct. 2963, 41 L. Ed. 2d 935] , whether the fault lies in a denial of fundamental procedural fairness, i.e., procedural due process, or in the exercise of power without any reasonable justification in the service of a legitimate governmental objective, i.e., substantive due process [County of Sacramento v. Lewis (1998) 523 U.S. 833, 846, 118 S. Ct. 1708, 140 L. Ed. 2d 1043] .

The interpretation of ordinances and statutes are proper matters for declaratory relief [Walker v. County of Los Angeles (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 626, 637, 12 Cal. Rptr. 671, 361 P.2d 247 ; Redwood Coast Watersheds Alliance v. State Bd. of Forestry & Fire Protection (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 962, 970, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 24].

Declaratory relief is also available to adjudicate the constitutionality of statutes and ordinances on their face or as applied to a particular party or situation [State v. Superior Court of Orange County (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 237, 251-252, 115 Cal. Rptr. 497, 524 P.2d 1281 ; Excelsior College v. Board of Registered Nursing (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1218, 1228 n.2, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 618] .

For discussion relating to actions for declaratory relief to determine the constitutional validity of statutes, ordinances, and administrative regulations, see Ch. 126A, Constitutional Law .

For a further discussion and forms relating to actions for declaratory relief, including forms of complaints for declaratory relief to interpret statutes, ordinances, and administrative regulations, or to determine the validity of ordinances and administrative regulations under the statutes, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief .

[1] To Restrain Enforcement or Implementation in General

As a general rule, an injunction may not be granted to prevent the execution of a public statute by officers of the law for the public benefit [Civ. Code § 3423(d); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(4)]. For example, injunctive relief is not available to a plaintiff who makes no claim of unconstitutionality or of irreparable injury to a property right but who is merely seeking to have a penal statute construed in a manner that will allow him or her to engage in an activity undertaken merely for pleasure [Manchel v. County of Los Angeles County (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 501, 506, 54 Cal. Rptr. 53].

Injunctive relief may be granted:

- When a statute or ordinance is being applied to conduct not within its terms [Crittenden v. Superior Court (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 565, 569, 39 Cal. Rptr. 380, 393 P.2d 692 ; Novar Corp. v. Bureau of Collection & Investigative Services (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 1, 6, 206 Cal. Rptr. 287] ; or

- In a taxpayer action to enjoin the illegal expenditure of public funds [Code Civ. Proc. § 526a].

For discussion relating to actions for injunctive relief to determine the constitutional validity of statutes, ordinances, and administrative regulations, see Ch. 126A, Constitutional Law .

For discussion and forms relating to obtaining injunctive relief against illegal acts of public officials, see Ch. 303, Injunctions , and see Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies .

For discussion and forms relating to taxpayer's suits, see Ch. 466, Public Entities and Officers: Taxpayer's Actions .

[2] Penal Statutes

Once criminal prosecution has commenced, injunctive relief against a criminal statute or ordinance is not available because there is an adequate remedy at law [Miller v. State of California (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 202, 204-205, 85 Cal.

Rptr. 801 ; Holden v. Arnebergh (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 87, 92, 71 Cal. Rptr. 401 , appeal dismissed, 394 U.S. 102, 89 S. Ct. 926, 22 L. Ed. 2d 112 (1969)].

A preliminary injunction against enforcement of a penal statute or ordinance regulating moral conduct is to be granted only under extraordinary circumstances [Theresa Enterprises, Inc. v. Davis (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 940, 946-947]. The applicant for preliminary injunctive relief must show that he or she will suffer irreparable injury from enforcement of an unconstitutional law pending trial [EWAP, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 179, 188, 158 Cal. Rptr. 579 ; 7978 Corporation v. Pitchess (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 42, 46, 115 Cal. Rptr. 746].

[3] Taxpayer's Suit

Taxpayers may bring suit to restrain the illegal expenditure of public funds, which includes the expenditure of a public official's time in performing illegal and unauthorized acts. In a taxpayer's suit, public officials may be enjoined from implementing an unconstitutional statute or ordinance [Code Civ. Proc. § 526a; Blair v. Pitchess (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 258, 267-269, 96 Cal. Rptr. 42, 486 P.2d 1242 ; see Ketchens v. Reiner (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 470, 474, 239 Cal. Rptr. 549]. Declaratory relief is also available in a taxpayer's action [Van Atta v. Scott (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 424, 449-450, 166 Cal. Rptr. 149, 613 P.2d 210]. For discussion and forms relating to taxpayer's suits, see Ch. 466, Public Entities and Officers: Taxpayer's Actions . Also see Ch. 303, Injunctions and Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies .

§ 531.134 Decisions

[1] City Charters

City charters as interpreted by rules of statutory interpretation. Castaneda v. Holcomb (1981) 114 Cal. App. 3d 939, 942, 170 Cal. Rptr. 875

[2] Constitution

Constitutional provisions as construed in accordance with natural and ordinary meaning of its words; literal language to be disregarded to avoid absurd results and to fulfill apparent intent of framers; language to receive liberal, practical common sense construction that will meet changed conditions and growing needs of people. Los Angeles County Transportation Com. v. Richmond (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 197, 202-203, 182 Cal. Rptr. 324, 643 P.2d 941

Constitutional amendments as interpreted by rules of statutory construction. State Bd. of Equalization v. Board of Supervisors (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 813, 823, 164 Cal. Rptr. 739

[3] Constitutional Construction Preferred

If terms of statute are by fair and reasonable interpretation capable of meaning consistent with requirements of Constitution, statute as given that meaning, rather than another meaning in conflict with Constitution. Association for Retarded Citizens v. Department of Developmental Services (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 384, 394, 211 Cal. Rptr. 758, 696 P.2d 150 ; Metromedia, Inc. v. City of San Diego (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 180, 186, 185 Cal. Rptr. 260, 649 P.2d 902 ; McLaughlin v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 473, 483, 189 Cal. Rptr. 479

Court as permitted to rewrite ambiguous language when literal meaning would cause statute to be facially unconstitutional and statute can be reasonably construed to avoid constitutional difficulty. Lillebo v. Davis (1990) 222

Cal. App. 3d 1421, 1439-1440, 272 Cal. Rptr. 638 (substituting "in" for "and")

[4] Injunctive Relief

When injunctive relief against legislative enactment is sought, relevant provision for purposes of appeal as being measure that is in effect at time appeal is decided; thus, in action challenging validity of ordinance, which was amended in good faith during pendency of appeal, action as remanded to trial court for reconsideration in light of new ordinance. Building Industry Ass'n v. City of Oxnard (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 1, 3-4, 218 Cal. Rptr. 672, 706 P.2d 285

[5] Ordinances

Rules for construction of statutes as applicable to resolutions of planning commission that were treated as ordinances under city charter. Russ Bldg. Partnership v. City and County of San Francisco (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 839, 847 n.8, 244 Cal. Rptr. 682, 750 P.2d 324

Rules of statutory construction as applicable to construction of city ordinance. City of Berkeley v. Cukierman (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1331, 1338-1341, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 478

Ordinances as construed by same rules that courts apply to statutes. Anderson v. San Francisco Rent Stabilization & Arbitration Bd. (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1336, 1343, 237 Cal. Rptr. 894

Declaration of emergency and enactment of emergency ordinance by municipality as prima facie evidence of sufficient inquiry of existence of emergency. Northgate Partnership v. City of Sacramento (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 65, 69, 202 Cal. Rptr. 15

Motives of city's legislative body in passing ordinance as not considered in determining ordinance's validity absent fraud when improper motives are neither shown on face of ordinance nor inferable from its operation and effect under circumstances of which judicial notice may be taken. National Independent Business Alliance v. City of Beverly Hills (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 13, 22, 180 Cal. Rptr. 59

[6] Resolutions

Construction of city planning commission resolution as governed by same rules as construction of statutes and ordinances when particular resolution has same force and effect as ordinance. Terminal Plaza Corp. v. City and County of San Francisco (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 814, 825 n.7, 230 Cal. Rptr. 875

[7] Retroactivity

Critical question for determining retroactivity usually is whether last act or event necessary to trigger application of statute occurred before or after statute's effective date. In re E.J. (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1258, 12731274, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 165, 223 P.3d 31

Although Legislature generally cannot provide retroactive relief for taxes that have become fixed and vested, retroactive tax exemption may be upheld if it is based on Legislature's reasonable determination that exemption serves public purpose. Preston v. State Bd. of Equalization (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 197, 224-225, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 407, 19 P.3d 1148

Context of legislation, its objective, evils to be remedied, history of times and legislation on same subject, public policy, and contemporaneous construction as factors considered in determining Legislature's intent as to whether statute is to be given retroactive effect. Fox v. Alexis (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 621, 629, 214 Cal. Rptr. 132, 699 P.2d 309

If retroactivity were imposed and it would have only limited effect on a defined group of people for a relatively short period of time, then members of the group lack standing to raise retroactivity question. Quackenbush v. Superior Court (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 454, 464-465, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 271

Absence of express language providing for retroactivity as strongly implying statutory amendment was intended to be prospective only when Legislature specifically conferred retroactive application on other amendments passed in same measure. Wienholz v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1989) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1501, 1505-1506, 267 Cal. Rptr. 1

Statute as properly applied retroactively when statutory language and circumstances of enactment demonstrate that purpose of statute was merely to clarify existing law. Bradley v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 404, 409, 260 Cal. Rptr. 470

Statute that, by its terms, applies to matters "not final" as interpreted to govern all matters not yet free from further direct attack, including judgment on appeal. Bradley v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 404, 408, 260 Cal. Rptr. 470

Test of whether application of statute is retroactive as whether statute operates to alter materially legal significance of prior event. California Trout, Inc. v. State Water Resources Control Bd. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 585, 609, 255 Cal. Rptr. 184

Doctrine disfavoring retroactivity as intended to avoid unfairness that attends changing law after action has been taken in justifiable reliance on former law; doctrine as qualified with exceptions for circumstances that ordinarily do not give rise to substantial claim of unfairness. Mahon v. Safeco Title Ins. Co. (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 616, 620-621, 245 Cal. Rptr. 103

Law as properly given retrospective application when Legislature clearly evinces that intent and when no vested or constitutional rights are infringed. Leavenworth Properties v. City and County of San Francisco (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 986, 994, 234 Cal. Rptr. 598

Civ. Code § 4800.3 as constitutional when retroactively applied because retroactive application cures "rank injustice" of former law. In re Marriage of Slivka (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 159, 164-168, 228 Cal. Rptr. 76

Statute raising rate of interest on judgments that by its terms purported to become effective prior to its enactment date as construed to have only prospective effect in light of legislative history indicating effective date was inadvertent error and to avoid unconstitutionality of retroactive effect. American National Bank v. Peacock (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d

Enactment's operative date as able to differ from effective date, and effective date will not be given retroactive application unless there is clearly apparent intention for so doing. City of Sacramento v. State of California (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 182, 193-194, 203 Cal. Rptr. 258

[8] Severability

When portion of administrative rule conflicts with statute, invalid portion as severable from whole if (1) language of invalid portion is mechanically severable from remainder of rule and (2) remaining provisions stand on their own, unaided by invalid provisions nor rendered vague by their absence nor inextricably connected to them by policy considerations. California Beer & Wine Wholesalers Assn. v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 100, 110, 247 Cal. Rptr. 60

Severability clause in statute as not to be used to delegate task of rewriting statute to courts. People's Advocate, Inc. v. Superior Court (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 316, 330-331 n.15, 226 Cal. Rptr. 640

Severable, invalid parts of ordinance as not invalidating parts of ordinance that are valid in themselves; test of severability as whether or not invalid part can be severed without destroying legislative scheme or utility of remaining provisions. Galligan v. City of San Bruno (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 869, 874, 183 Cal. Rptr. 466

When part of statute is declared unconstitutional, remainder as standing if complete in itself and if it would have been adopted had legislative body foreseen partial invalidation of statute. Park & Shop Markets, Inc. v. City of Berkeley (1981) 116 Cal. App. 3d 78, 89, 172 Cal. Rptr. 515

[9] Special Legislation

Legislation as special when it confers particular privileges or imposes burdensome conditions, in the exercise of a common right, on class of persons arbitrarily selected from general body of persons standing in same relation to subject of legislation; law as general when it applies equally to all persons embraced in class founded on some natural, intrinsic, or constitutional distinction. White v. Church (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 627, 632, 231 Cal. Rptr. 565

[10] Statutory Construction

[a] Ascertaining Legislative Intent

To determine what a statute means, courts first consult the words themselves, giving them their usual and ordinary meaning. Smith v. Fair Employment & Housing Commission (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 1143, 1155, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 700, 913 P.2d 909

Fundamental rule of statutory construction as being that court should ascertain intent of Legislature so as to effectuate purposes of law; in determining intent, court as required to first look to words of statute. State of California ex rel. Van de Kamp v. Texaco, Inc. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1147, 1182, 252 Cal. Rptr. 221, 762 P.2d 385 ; T.M. Cobb Co. v. Superior Court (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 273, 277, 204 Cal. Rptr. 143, 682 P.2d 338 ; Price v. Tennant Community Services

Legislative intent as usually determinable from statutory language; statutes as required to be given reasonable construction that conforms to apparent purpose and intention of law makers, and various parts of enactment as required to be harmonized by considering particular clause in context of whole statute. Nunn v. State of California (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 616, 624-625, 200 Cal. Rptr. 440, 677 P.2d 846

Court's overriding purpose in construing statute is to ascertain legislative intent and give reasonable construction conforming to that intent; in interpreting legislative intent, court first looks to usual and ordinary meaning of words of statute. Home Depot U.S.A. v. Contractors' State License Board (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1592, 1600-1601, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 302

Utility of legislative history as confined to construction of statutory text. City of Sacramento v. Public Employees' Retirement System (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 786, 794-795, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 545

Legislative purpose as effectuated even when it is inconsistent with strict letter of statute. Bliler v. Covenant Control Com. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 18, 26, 252 Cal. Rptr. 50

When statutory language is susceptible of more than one meaning, duty of courts as being to accept that meaning intended by framers of legislation, so far as its intention can be ascertained; to discern intent, court as required to examine legislative history and statutory context of act under scrutiny. Los Angeles County Safety Police Assn. v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1378, 1388, 237 Cal. Rptr. 920

[b] Avoiding Constitutional Questions

Courts will not reach constitutional questions unless absolutely required to do so, if other grounds are available and dispositive of issues in the case. California State Electronics Association v. Zeos International, Ltd. (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1270, 1274, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 127

[c] Common-Law Language Used in Statute

When new right not existing at common law is created by statute, that statutory remedy is exclusive; for rights that already existed at common law before creation of statutory right, statutory remedy is usually regarded as merely cumulative, permitting plaintiff to pursue common law remedy as well. Cabesuela v. Browning-Ferris Industries of California, Inc. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 101, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 60

Intent of Legislature in enacting statute that uses common-law language as presumed to continue common-law rules in statutory form. People v. Martin (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 1111, 1116, 214 Cal. Rptr. 873

[d] Conflicting Statutes; Specific Statute Prevails Over General Statute

In examining statutes that appear to conflict, court as required, if reasonably possible, to reconcile them, even when court interprets provisions in different codes. Walters v. Weed (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 1, 9, 246 Cal. Rptr. 5, 752 P.2d 443

When special and general laws conflict, former as prevailing; special law as treated as exception to general law, regardless of which was first enacted; thus, Com. Code § 2719(3) rather than Civ. Code § 1668 as applying to test unconscionability of contract limiting consequential damages in commercial transactions. Nunes Turfgrass, Inc. v. Vaughan-Jacklin Seed Co. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1518, 1539, 246 Cal. Rptr. 823

Special statute dealing with particular subject as constituting exception so as to control and take precedence over conflicting general statute on same subject, even though, standing alone, general provision would be broad enough to include subject to which more particular one relates. Jones v. Pierce (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 736, 742, 245 Cal. Rptr. 149

[e] Construction to Meet Evolving Mores of Society

Courts as enlarging terms and provisions of statutes to meet evolving mores of society, unless there is clear indication that to do so will interfere with legislative intent underlying enactment of statute; while powers granted by statute do not change, such powers as applying in different periods to all things to which they are in their nature applicable. Barrett v. Superior Court (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1176, 1192, 272 Cal. Rptr. 304

[f] Effect of Administrative Agency Interpretation

In absence of formal adoption of regulations to which courts would owe deference, agency's internal memoranda interpreting statute that agency is empowered to enforce is entitled to "measure of respect" if that interpretation has been applied consistently by agency and reflects body of experience and informed judgment to which courts and litigants may properly resort for guidance. Federal Express Corp. v. Holowecki (2008) 552 U.S. 389, 128 S. Ct. 1147, 170 L. Ed. 2d 10, 21-23

Agency's interpretation of statutes it is charged with enforcing and interpreting as entitled to great weight and to be followed unless clearly erroneous. County of Alameda v. State Bd. of Control (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1096, 1106, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 487

Although statutory construction is matter for courts rather than administrative agencies, agency's construction of its own regulations as entitled to great weight unless clearly erroneous or unauthorized. Sangster v. California Horse Racing Bd. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1033, 1038, 249 Cal. Rptr. 235

No judicial deference to administrative construction of statute required when meaning of statutory language and its legislative history is accessible and intelligible to judges, without need for administrative expertise. California Beer & Wine Wholesalers Assn. v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 100, 107, 247 Cal. Rptr. 60

Longstanding administrative construction of statute as entitled to judicial consideration in interpreting statute because it is reasonable to assume Legislature would have taken corrective action had it disagreed with administrative interpretation. Jones v. Pierce (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 736, 745-746, 245 Cal. Rptr. 149

Although general presumption exists that amendment to statute is made with intent to change law, presumption as rebutted when practice of relevant administrative body indicates that amendment was merely clarification. Anne B. v.

State Bd. of Control (1984) 165 Cal. App. 3d 279, 285, 209 Cal. Rptr. 83

[g] Effect of Attorney General's Opinions

Legislature as presumed to act with knowledge of opinions of attorney general that affect subject matter of proposed legislation. Burden v. Snowden (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 556, 564, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 531, 828 P. 2d 672

California Attorney General opinion, even if unpublished, as entitled to great weight when construing statute. California Ass'n of Psychology Providers v. Rank (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 1, 270 Cal. Rptr. 796, 793 P.2d 2

Opinions of Attorney General as not controlling as to meaning of constitutional provision or statute but as entitled to great weight and respect. Tafoya v. Hastings College (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 437, 445 n.7, 236 Cal. Rptr. 395

[h] Effect of Federal Acts on State Legislation

Federal act as not automatically giving meaning to state legislation unless it is part of a mandatory regulatory scheme; when federal funding program is optional, state Legislature as able to enact legislation that does not fully comply with federal program. Coastal Care Centers, Inc. v. Meeks (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 85, 93, 228 Cal. Rptr. 883

[i] Effect of Federal Acts on State Liability

If rule requiring clear statement of Congressional intent to impose monetary liability on states is overcome or inapplicable so that liability is imposed, Supremacy Clause as making federal statute law in every state, fully enforceable in state court. Hilton v. S.C. Pub. R. Com. (1991) 502 U.S. 197, 112 S. Ct. 560, 116 L. Ed. 2d 560, 567, 572 (rule did not prevail over application of stare decisis doctrine in FELA action; but Court stated rule should be applied in cases of statutory construction, as already applied in Eleventh Amendment cases)

[j] Effect of Sister-State Interpretation

Ambiguity of statutory language may be established through conflicting opinions of other states' courts interpreting uniform law; such conflict demonstrates that reasonable minds may disagree over meaning of those statutory words. Hoechst Celanese Corp. v. Franchise Tax Bd. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 508, 522, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548, 22 P.3d 324 , cert. denied, 122 S. Ct. 614 (2001)

Judicial interpretation of sister-state courts of parallel legislation on same subject as relevant in construing California legislation, if no relevant California judicial authority exists. Webster v. State Bd. of Control (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 29, 37 n.3, 242 Cal. Rptr. 685

[k] Exceptions to Statute

When statute specifies exceptions to general rule, other exceptions as not to be implied or presumed. In re Lance W. (1985) 37 Cal. 3d 873, 888, 210 Cal. Rptr. 631, 694 P.2d 744

As general rule of statutory construction, if statute announces general rule and makes no exception to it, courts as unable to make exception. Burnsed v. State Bd. of Control (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 213, 217, 234 Cal. Rptr. 316

[l] Exclusive Versus Cumulative Statutory Remedy

Under "new right-exclusive remedy" rule of statutory construction, statutory remedy as exclusive when statute creates right that did not exist at common law and provides comprehensive and detailed remedial scheme for its enforcement; under "preexisting right-cumulative remedies" rule of construction, new statutory remedy as cumulative when it is provided for preexisting common law right. Rojo v. Kliger (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 65, 79, 276 Cal. Rptr. 130, 801 P. 2d 373

[m] Implied Amendment or Repeal

Presumption against implied repeals as requiring that in order for later law to repeal or supersede earlier law, later law must constitute revision of entire subject so that court may say that it was intended to be substitute for earlier. Board of Supervisors v. Lonergan (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 855, 868, 167 Cal. Rptr. 820, 616 P.2d 802

Presumption against implied repeal as strong; courts as especially reluctant to find implied repeal of statutes that serve important public purpose. Henning v. Division of Occupational Saf. & Health (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 747, 761-762, 268 Cal. Rptr. 476

Amendment or repeal by implication as disfavored and as to be recognized only when irreconcilable conflict exists between statutes; in absence of clear expression by declaration or necessary implication, implied repeal of tax deduction as not presumed. California State Auto. Assn. v. Franchise Tax Bd. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1253, 1261, 237 Cal. Rptr. 44

Legislative enactments as not presumed to overthrow long established principles of law unless intention to do so clearly appears either by express declaration or by necessary implication. Hochheiser v. Superior Court (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 777, 788, 208 Cal. Rptr. 273

[n] Initiative Measures

Courts as required to determine voters' intent when interpreting constitutional provision enacted by initiative; when existing statutory language is incorporated into initiative, court as not permitted to resolve ambiguity by turning to statute's legislative history because history demonstrates Legislature's intent, not voters' intent. Delaney v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 785, 798, 800-801, 268 Cal. Rptr. 753, 789 P.2d 934

Ballot summaries and arguments as accepted sources for ascertaining voters' intent and understanding of initiative measures. In re Lance W. (1985) 37 Cal. 3d 873, 888 n.8, 210 Cal. Rptr. 631, 694 P.2d 744

Words of initiative as interpreted in common, popular way and, absent some strong reason to contrary, not in technical sense inconsistent with words' popular meaning. AIU Ins. Co. v. Gillespie (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1155, 1159, 272 Cal. Rptr. 334

Rules of construction applicable to statutes enacted by legislature as applicable to statutes passed by voters. San Francisco Fire Fighters v. Civil Service Com. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 919, 922, 236 Cal. Rptr. 713

Purpose of voters' initiative as to be determined with reference to language used, ballot summary, argument and analysis presented to voters, and contemporaneous construction by Legislature. People v. Horn (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 1014, 1028, 205 Cal. Rptr. 119

[o] Judicial Alteration

Generally, it is not for courts to determine whether or not policy of statute is economically sound or beneficial; such determination is matter solely for legislature. ABC Internat. Traders, Inc. v. Matsushita Electric Corp. (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1247, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 112, 931 P.2d 290

Court as not permitted to insert into statute qualifying provisions not intended by Legislature and as not permitted to rewrite statute to conform to assumed but unapparent legislative intent. Burnsed v. State Bd. of Control (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 213, 217, 234 Cal. Rptr. 316

In construing statute, court as not authorized to insert qualifying provisions not included or rewrite statute to conform to assumed intention not appearing from statutory language. McLaughlin v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 473, 482, 189 Cal. Rptr. 479

[p] Legislative History as Evidence

[i] Amendments in Course of Enactment

That Legislature amended original bill to eliminate "penalty" language in Lab. Code § 226.7(c), while retaining it in other statutes enacted in same measure, indicates that "additional hour of pay," required by Lab. Code § 226.7(b) when employer fails to provide required meal period or rest period, constitutes wage rather than penalty. Murphy v. Kenneth Cole Prods., Inc. (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 1094, 1107

Rejection of specific provision that was part of act when originally introduced as indicating that law as enacted should not be construed to contain that provision. Ventura v. City of San Jose (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 1076, 1080, 199 Cal. Rptr. 216

[ii] Historical Circumstances

Both legislative history of statute and wider historical circumstances of its enactment as properly considered in ascertaining legislative intent. Dyna-Med, Inc. v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1379, 1387, 241 Cal. Rptr. 67, 743 P.2d 1323

[iii] Individual Legislator's Statements and Motives

Despite judicial reticence to rely on statements made by individual legislators as expressions of entire Legislature's intent, committee hearing transcript incorporating bill author's testimony as commanding respect when (1) court has in the past accepted that legislator's statement as aid to ascertaining statute's underlying purpose when statement gave some indication of arguments made to Legislature and was subsequently printed by Legislature, and (2) transcript reveals discussion and events at hearing showing that other legislators and witnesses share author's views. Walters v. Weed (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 1, 10, 246 Cal. Rptr. 5, 752 P.2d 443

Declarations of city officials and members of planning commission and board of permit appeals as disregarded to extent they purport to offer declarants' opinions, understandings, and interpretation of resolution at issue; declarations as considered, however, to extent they contained narratives of discussions and events leading to adoption of resolution. Terminal Plaza Corp. v. City and County of San Francisco (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 814, 827-828, 230 Cal. Rptr. 875

Motives or understandings of individual legislators in voting for bill as not considered by courts in interpreting statute; fact that motives of individual legislator are offered creates no exception to rule because no guarantee can issue that other legislators who supported bill shared individual author's view of its compass. Flood v. Wyeth Laboratories, Inc. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1272, 1279, 228 Cal. Rptr. 700

[iv] Law Revision Commission Comments

Law Revision Commission's comments as declarative of intent not only of drafters of codes, but also of legislators who subsequently enact them. Hochheiser v. Superior Court (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 777, 789 n.6, 208 Cal. Rptr. 273

Report of Law Revision Commission proposing statute that is subsequently adopted without change as entitled to substantial weight in determining legislative purpose and intent. Hong v. Somerset Associates (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 111, 115 n.6, 207 Cal. Rptr. 597 ; Guthman v. Moss (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 501, 510, 198 Cal. Rptr. 54

[v] Legislative Committee Reports

Legislative committee reports, while legitimate and valuable aids in determining legislative intent, as certainly not conclusive, and omissions in reports as inherently less reliable indicia of intent than positive statements. Committee of Seven Thousand v. Superior Court (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 491, 508, 247 Cal. Rptr. 362, 754 P.2d 708

Statements of legislative committees pertaining to purpose of legislation as presumed to express legislative intent of statutes as enacted. Altaville Drug Store, Inc. v. Employment Development Department (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 231, 238, 242 Cal. Rptr. 732, 746 P.2d 871

Legislative history of bill, including committee staff analysis and enrolled bill report, as evidence of legislative intent. Ventura v. City of San Jose (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 1076, 1080-1081, 199 Cal. Rptr. 216

[vi] Legislative Counsel Opinion

Summary of bill by legislative counsel forwarded to Governor as properly used to determine legislative intent. People v. Rodriguez (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 207, 214, 206 Cal. Rptr. 563

[q] No Construction of Clear Statute

Determination by highest state court that statute is clear and unambiguous as requiring statute's provisions to be applied according to its terms without further judicial construction. People v. Ross (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 368, 371-372, 211 Cal. Rptr. 595

Starting point for interpretation of statute as language of statute itself and no need for construction when language clear and unambiguous. Guelfi v. Marin County Employees' Retirement Assn. (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 297, 302, 193 Cal. Rptr. 343

Clear words of statute as not to be changed by court to accomplish purpose not appearing from face of statute or from its legislative history. People v. Mobil Oil Corp. (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 261, 270, 192 Cal. Rptr. 155

[r] Particular Words

"Under" depends on context for its meaning in any particular statutory provision; in federal statute barring judicial review of Attorney General's decisions that are discretionary "under" particular law [8 U.S.C. § 1252(a)(2)(B)(ii)], context indicates that "under" refers only to discretionary authority specified "in" that statute, rather than matters made discretionary under regulations adopted "pursuant to" that statute. *Kucana v. Holder (2010) -- U.S. --, 130 S. Ct. 827, 175 L. Ed. 2d 694, 2010 U.S. LEXIS 764, at 22

In 25 U.S.C. § 479, which authorizes Secretary of Interior to acquire property for use of Indian tribes "now under Federal jurisdiction," word "now" refers to time of time of statute's enactment, rather than time of acquisition of property. Carcieri v. Salazar (2009) -- U.S. --, 129 S. Ct. 1058, 172 L. Ed. 2d 791, 800-802

In construing plain meaning of statute, ordinary usage of "and" is to condition one of two conjoined requirements by other, thereby causally linking them; use of conjunction "and" in one statute indicates contrasting meaning to another statute's disjunctive "or," in former public entity must act after both events occur, and in latter either event allows action. Kobzoff v. Los Angeles County Harbor/UCLA Medical Center (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 851, 861, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 803, 968 P.2d 514

Term "notwithstanding other provisions of law" as indicating express legislative intent to have specific statute control despite existence of other law that might otherwise govern. People v. DeLaCruz (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 955, 962, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 202

Although usually "effective" date is same as "operative" date, Legislature as having power to fix future date on which act will become operative; legislation as possibly having practical legal consequences once effective, even in advance of operative date. Sutco Construction Co. v. Modesto High School Dist. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1220, 1230, 256 Cal. Rptr. 671

"Consist" as meaning to be composed of or made up of, but as not synonymous with "including," which always implies there may be others that are not mentioned. Doyle v. Board of Supervisors (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1358, 1364, 243

Proviso or clause beginning with word "unless" as meaning an exception or condition subsequent rather than a condition precedent. Baggett v. Housing Authority (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 383, 389, 240 Cal. Rptr. 640 (involving interpretation of federal regulation)

"Any" as used in statutes as interpreted to be broad, general, and all embracing; as used in such statutory expressions as "any other source," word "any" as meaning "every," thus, "every other source." Burnsed v. State Bd. of Control (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 213, 217, 234 Cal. Rptr. 316

"Or" as ordinarily used as disjunctive that marks alternative generally corresponding to "either." Citizen Advocates, Inc. v. Board of Supervisors (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 171, 176, 194 Cal. Rptr. 61

[s] Punctuation and Sentence Structure

When sentence in statute contains transitive verb that has object, adverb that modifies verb is commonly understood to apply to entire action conveyed by complete predicate, including verb's object; thus 18 U.S.C. § 1028A(a)(1), which penalizes person who "knowingly transfers, possesses, or uses, without lawful authority, a means of identification of another person," punishment may be imposed only if government proves not only that defendant knew he or she was transferring, possessing, or using something, but also that defendant knew that something was another person's means of identification. Flores-Figueroa v. United States (2009) -- U.S. --, 129 S. Ct. 1886, 1889-1894, 173 L. Ed. 2d 853

Although not controlling, punctuation as required to be considered in interpreting statute; fact that qualifying phrase is separated from antecedents by comma as evidence that qualifying phrase is supposed to apply to all antecedents, instead of only to immediately preceding one. Victoria Groves Five v. Chaffey Joint Union High Sch. Dist. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1548, 1553, 276 Cal. Rptr. 14

"Last antecedent rule" of statutory construction as requiring qualifying words, phrases, and clauses to be applied to words or phrases immediately preceding them and not to words or phrases more remote. Mayo v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 406, 409, 238 Cal. Rptr. 465

Erroneous punctuation of statute or other enactment as disregarded in construing its meaning. Indian Springs, Ltd. v. Palm Desert Rent Review Bd. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 127, 134, 238 Cal. Rptr. 112

[t] Reasonable Construction Preferred

Statutes as given reasonable and commonsense interpretation consistent with apparent legislative purpose and intent, and which, when applied, will result in wise policy rather than mischief or absurdity. Dyna-Med, Inc. v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1379, 1392, 241 Cal. Rptr. 67, 743 P.2d 1323

Statutes must be construed in a way that renders them reasonable, fair, and harmonious with their manifest legislative purpose; literal meaning of words must give way to avoid harsh results and mischievous or absurd consequences not intended by Legislature. Hall v. Regents of the University of California (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 1580, 1586, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 387

Golden rule of statutory construction as being that unreasonableness of result produced by one among alternative possible interpretations of statute is reason for rejecting that interpretation in favor of another that would produce reasonable result. Jones v. Pierce (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 736, 743 n.7, 245 Cal. Rptr. 149

Statute that is reasonably susceptible to two interpretations construed as the more reasonable and just of the two. Palmer v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1241, 1249, 237 Cal. Rptr. 800

[u] Shall and May

Justice is not the slave of grammar, and "shall" has sometimes been judicially construed as directory or permissive; "shall," used in statute, does not always import that its provisions are mandatory, although in most cases it does; the test is this: "If to construe it as directory would render it ineffective and meaningless it should not receive that construction." Cole v. Antelope Valley Union High School Dist. (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 1505, 1512, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 443

When "shall" and "may" appear in close proximity in particular context, inference as proper that Legislature intended mandatory and discretionary meanings, respectively. Mughrabi v. Suzuki (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1212, 1215, 243 Cal. Rptr. 438 ; People v. Mobil Oil Corp. (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 261, 270, 192 Cal. Rptr. 155

When used in statute, "shall" as importing that its provisions are mandatory if that meaning is in accord with legislative intent. Doyle v. Board of Supervisors (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1358, 1364, 243 Cal. Rptr. 572

Whether use of "shall" means statutory provision is mandatory or directory as distinction used to determine whether action taken in violation of provision is valid; failure to comply with mandatory, rather than merely directory, provision as rendering action void; characterization of provision as mandatory or directory as depending on provision's importance in legislative scheme. Myers v. Patterson (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 130, 135, 241 Cal. Rptr. 751

Word "shall," as used in a statute, as not always importing that its provisions are mandatory. Johnson v. Mead (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 156, 159, 236 Cal. Rptr. 277

In absence of necessity to effectuate legislative intent by using another meaning, word "may" in statute interpreted as permissive, or conferring discretion. Rhyne v. Municipal Court (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 807, 817, 170 Cal. Rptr. 312

[v] Statutes Construed in Context of Whole

If statute uses general word in conjunction with other words describing specific acts that would ordinarily be within ambit of general word, then court may infer that general word refers to conduct other than those specific acts; thus, "acknowledged the child" in Prob. Code § 6452 refers to conduct other than contributing to support or care of child, since statute specifically requires such contribution plus acknowledgement before natural parent may inherit from child who was born out of wedlock. Estate of Griswold (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 904, 911, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165, 24 P.3d 1191

Statute to be construed with reference to whole system of law of which it is part so that all may be harmonized and have effect. Moore v. Panish (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 535, 541, 186 Cal. Rptr. 475, 652 P.2d 32 ; O'Brien v. Dudenhoeffer

Statute as required always to be construed in context, keeping in mind nature and purpose of statutory act. CEJA v. J. R. Wood, Inc. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1372, 1375, 242 Cal. Rptr. 531

Two code sections on same subject as required to be read together. Johnson v. Mead (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 156, 159, 236 Cal. Rptr. 277

[w] Strict Construction

Statutes imposing new and unusual liability in nature of penalty as strictly construed in favor of persons sought to be subjected to operation; penal statute as requiring narrowest construction that is reasonably susceptible in light of its legislative purpose. Tos v. Mayfair Packing Co. (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 67, 78-79, 206 Cal. Rptr. 459

[x] Subsequent Enactments

When statute adopts by specific reference provisions of another statute, those provisions are incorporated in form in which they exist at time of reference, not as subsequently amended; however, if reference is general instead of specific (such as reference to system or body of laws or to general law relating to particular subject), referring statute takes law or laws referred to not only in their contemporary form, but also as they may be changed from time to time or may even be repealed. People v. Cooper (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 38, 44, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 219, 37 P.3d 403

Legislature as presumed to have been aware of and to have acquiesced in previous judicial construction when it amends statute without altering portions of provision that were judicially construed. In re Malinda S. (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 368, 380, 272 Cal. Rptr. 787, 795 P.2d 1244

Reenactment of statute that has been judicially construed as establishing presumption that Legislature adopted construction placed on statute by courts. Wilkoff v. Superior Court (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 345, 353, 211 Cal. Rptr. 742, 696 P.2d 134

Legislature's failure to change law in particular respect when subject is generally before it and changes in other respects are made as indicative of intent to leave law as it stands in aspects not amended. Shaw v. McMahon (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 417, 424-427, 243 Cal. Rptr. 26

Court as considering state of law existing prior to enactment of provision in determining intent of statutory enactment. People v. Horn (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 1014, 1031, 205 Cal. Rptr. 119

[y] Surplusage Avoided

Word "dedicated" does not have same meaning in Pub. Res. Code § 5540, which restricts regional-park or open-space district's ability to convey land that has been "actually dedicated" for park or open-space purposes, and in Pub. Res. Code § 5565, which states that land is "dedicated" when acquired by regional-park or open-space district; treating two usages of "dedicated" as meaning same thing would render qualifying word "actually" surplusage, thus violating rule of statutory construction that courts should, if possible, accord meaning to every word and phrase in statute so as to better effectuate Legislature's intent. Ste. Marie v. Riverside County Reg'l Park & Open-Space Dist. (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 282, 289-290, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 369, 206 P.3d 739

In statutory construction, courts as required, if possible, to place significance on every word, phrase, sentence and part of an act to achieve underlying legislative purpose for particular statute or legislative scheme; interpretation making some words surplusage as to be avoided. *CEJA v. 46-531 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 531.150

§ 531.150 Allegations of Passage and Title [Code Civ. Proc. § 459] and Existence of Ordinance--Attaching Copy and Setting Forth Substance

[1] FORM Allegations of Passage and Title [Code Civ. Proc. § 459] and Existence of Ordinance--Attaching Copy and Setting Forth Substance

1. On _____ [date of passage], the _____ [legislative body, e.g., Board of Supervisors] of the _____ [specific public entity, e.g., County of Paradise] duly made and passed an ordinance entitled "_____" [formal title of ordinance] [if desired for further clarity, add: and more commonly known as _____ (popular name, and municipal, or other, code number)]. The ordinance was in full force and effect _____ [at all times mentioned herein or on _____ (date of occurrence or transaction at issue in the case)]. [A correct (certified) copy of said ordinance is attached as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.]

[2. The ordinance provides, in part, _____ (allege the substance of material parts of the ordinance, verbatim or by allegations summarizing its terms and showing their legal effect, as an aid to appreciation of the significance of subsequent allegations in the pleading or paper).]

3. _____ [Specify pleading party, e.g., Plaintiff] requests that judicial notice be taken of the ordinance.

The foregoing allegation is for use in a pleading to allege the existence of an ordinance.

Matters that are judicially known do not need to be pleaded [Loranger v. Nadeau (1932) 215 Cal. 362, 364-366, 10 P.2d 63 , overruled on other grounds, Reich v. Purcell (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 551, 555, 63 Cal. Rptr. 31, 432 P.2d 727]. Ordinances, however, are not subject to mandatory judicial notice but to permissive judicial notice which becomes mandatory only if a party requests notice to be taken, gives each adverse party sufficient notice of the request, through the pleadings or otherwise, to enable such adverse party to prepare to meet the request, and furnishes the court with sufficient information to enable it to take judicial notice of the matter [see Evid. Code §§ 452(b), 453]. Paragraph 3 of the foregoing allegation may be included in a pleading to provide notice of a request for judicial notice of the ordinance.

For further discussion and forms to use in requesting judicial notice generally, see Ch. 321, Judicial Notice .

[3] Allegation of Ordinance

An ordinance or private statute may be alleged by reference to its title and day of passage [Code Civ. Proc. § 459]. Citation of a number or popular name, attachment of a copy, and allegation of relevant terms of the ordinance or private statute are not necessary but may be provided in order to clarify the pleading.

§ 531.151 Allegation of Substance of Ordinance

[1] FORM Allegation of Substance of Ordinance

1. At all times herein mentioned, there existed in full force and effect in the _____ [specify county or municipal corporation, e.g., County of Paradise] a certain _____ [municipal or county] ordinance providing as follows: _____ [set forth the substance of the ordinance relied on, verbatim or by allegations summarizing its terms and showing their legal effect]. [A correct (certified) copy of the ordinance is attached as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.]

2. _____ [Specify pleading party, e.g., Plaintiff] requests that judicial notice be taken of the ordinance.

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing allegation is for use in pleading an ordinance. As an alternative to pleading an ordinance by title and day of passage, as authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 459 [see § 531.150], an ordinance may be pleaded by setting forth the substance of the provision relied on or by incorporating a copy of the ordinance by reference [Clements v. T.R. Bechtel Co. (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 227, 241, 273 P.2d 5].

Paragraph 2 of the form may be included in a pleading to provide notice of a request for judicial notice of the ordinance [see Evid. Code § 453(a); for discussion, see § 531.150].

[3] Decisions

Pleading adoption and effect or language of ordinance as alternative to pleading title and day of passage. *Simpson v. [EITHER]

Plaintiff duly performed all the conditions precedent to _____ [the bringing of this action or specify right derived from statute] required by _____ [cite or identify statute or ordinance].

[OR]

Plaintiff _____ [specify condition precedent generally, e.g., gave notice to defendant] in the manner and within the time provided by _____ [specify, e.g., law or cite or identify statute or ordinance].

[OR]

The _____ [specify act requiring conditions precedent, e.g., sale] in all respects complied with the provisions of law contained in _____ [cite statutes, e.g., Division 5, Chapter 7 of the Food and Agricultural Code].

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing allegations are alternatives for use in alleging performance of conditions precedent under a statute, an ordinance of a county or municipal corporation, or of a right derived therefrom. If statutory conditions are not pleaded, the complaint will be subject to a general demurrer even if the existence of the conditions does not appear on the face of the complaint, because the court takes judicial notice of their existence [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a); Evid. Code §§

451(a), 452(b)].

When plaintiff is relying on an ordinance as part of his or her cause of action, this form may be combined with § 531.150 or 2, pleading the ordinance and requesting that judicial notice be taken of it.

[3] Contents of Allegation

The allegations allege as a conclusion the performance of a condition precedent under a statute or an ordinance of a county or municipal corporation. In making the allegation, it is not necessary to state the facts showing performance, but it may be stated generally that the party duly performed all the conditions on his or her part required by the statute or ordinance. If the allegation is controverted, the party pleading performance must establish facts showing such performance at trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 459].

§ 531.153 Allegation of Violation of Statute or Ordinance

[1] FORM Allegation of Violation of Statute or Ordinance

1. On or about _____ [date], at _____ [address or location] _____ [allege acts or omissions in violation of statute, e.g., defendant, a retail automobile dealer, sold to plaintiff a motor vehicle, taking plaintiff's old car in trade and accepting an assignment of the insurance policy pertaining to plaintiff's old car. Defendant has collected $ _____ on the insurance policy, but has failed and refused to credit that amount toward plaintiff's monthly payments or to refund the amount to plaintiff] in violation of _____ [cite or identify statute or ordinance, e.g., Section 18450 of the Business and Professions Code], then and there in full force and effect [which provides that: _____ (set forth relevant portions of ordinance, when ordinance is involved)].

[2. Plaintiff requests that judicial notice be taken of _____ (cite or identify ordinance relied on, if any, in Paragraph 1). (A true and correct copy of that ordinance, certified as such by _____ (certifying official), is attached as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.)]

The foregoing allegation is for use in alleging violation of a statutory duty or a duty imposed by ordinance in an action to enforce a liability or penalty imposed by the statute or ordinance. It is not necessary to plead or refer to a statute relied on as creating a duty when the action is one predicated on defendant's negligence and is not one to enforce a liability or penalty imposed by statute or ordinance. When the case is predicated on negligence, the statute or ordinance is merely evidentiary, and may be introduced at trial without being pleaded [McNeill v. A. Teichert & Son, Inc. (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 5, 8-9, 289 P.2d 595 (ordinance); Jackson v. Hardy (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 6, 12, 160 P.2d 161 (statute)]. Although violations of statutes are frequently alleged without objection in connection with general allegations of negligence, this practice is improper, and the statutory references may be striken as surplusage [see Szopieray v. West Berkeley etc. Co. (1924) 194 Cal. 106, 113, 227 P. 720] .

The optional second paragraph is for use if Paragraph 1 relies on an ordinance, and is designed as a request and notice of a request for judicial notice of the ordinance [see Evid. Code §§ 452(b), 453; see § 531.150]. If the duty relied on in Paragraph 1 arises out of a California or federal public statute, the second paragraph is unnecessary because judicial notice of such statutes is always mandatory [see Evid. Code § 451(a); for a discussion of public versus private statutes, see § 531.11].

For forms of allegation of violation of statutes and ordinances relating to any particular subject, see the chapter relating to that subject in this set.

2. _____ [Specify pleading party, e.g., Plaintiff] requests that judicial notice be taken of the _____ [statute or ordinance].

3. _____ [Allege facts showing applicability of foreign or sister state statute or ordinance to the facts and issues of the case].

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing allegation is for use in alleging foreign or sister state statutes or ordinances of public entities in foreign nations or sister states.

Statutes and ordinances of foreign countries and sister states are subject to permissive judicial notice which may be made mandatory by request, and Paragraph 2 of this form is designed to request and give notice of a request for judicial notice [Evid. Code §§ 452(a), (b), (f), 453; for discussion, see § 531.150].

[3] Allegation of Statute or Ordinance

The allegation sets out information sufficient to identify the foreign or sister state statute or ordinance which is relevant to the case.

[1] FORM Notice of Request [Evid. Code § 453(a)] That Court Take Judicial Notice of Statute or Ordinance of Sister State, Foreign Statute, or Ordinance of Public Entity

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that _____ [specify party, e.g., plaintiff], _____ [name], _____ [specify when judicial notice will be requested to be taken, e.g., at the hearing on the motion for summary judgment], will request the court to take judicial notice of _____ [specify matter to be noticed, e.g., _____ County ordinance _____ (number), duly enacted and passed by the _____ County Board of Supervisors on _____ [date], and entitled _____].

[EITHER, in the case of sister state statute]

The request will be made on the ground that the statute is subject to judicial notice under Evid. Code §§ 452(a) and 453.

[OR, in case of foreign statute or ordinance]

The request will be made on the ground that the _____ [statute or ordinance] is subject to judicial notice under Evid. Code §§ 452(f) and 453.

[OR, in case of ordinance of public entity in California or sister state]

The request will be made on the ground that the ordinance is subject to judicial notice under Evid. Code §§ 452(b) and 453.

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing notice of request is for use in giving notice of a request that the court take judicial notice of an ordinance of a public entity of California, a sister state, or a foreign nation. The notice may also be used to give notice of a request to take notice of a sister state or foreign statute. The form may be adapted for use in giving notice of a request that the court take judicial notice of other matters listed in Evid. Code § 452 [see Evid. Code § 453; for discussion of matters listed in Evid. Code § 452, see § 531.13].

This form of notice should be used when notice of a request that judicial notice be taken was not given through the pleadings. Even if notice has been given through the pleadings, this form may be used in connection with a pretrial proceeding, such as a motion for summary judgment, to make it clear that a request for judicial notice to be taken will be made at the hearing on the pretrial proceeding.

This form does not provide a complete form of notice, but is intended for incorporation in a notice of motion or points and authorities relating to the pretrial proceeding at which notice will be requested. If the issue of judicial notice should arise when no other papers are called for, the foregoing form may be adapted for use by the addition of a caption, introduction, and signature block.

The foregoing declaration may be used to furnish a court with sufficient information to enable it to take judicial notice of a city ordinance [see Evid. Code §§ 452(b), 453-455]. It may be adapted for use in furnishing the court with information regarding a county ordinance.

Use of this form is not necessary if a copy of the ordinance is available that purports to be published by the authority of the public entity in which the ordinance is kept, because such a copy is also prima facie evidence of the existence and content of the ordinance [Evid. Code § 1530(a)(1)].

[3] Contents of Declaration

Although Evid. Code § 453 does not define what constitutes sufficient information to enable a court to take judicial notice of a matter, a copy of a writing in the custody of a public entity attested or certified [or declared (Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5)] as a correct copy by a public employee, or by his or her deputy, having legal custody of the writing is prima facie evidence of the existence and content of the writing [Evid. Code § 1530(a)(2)]. Because the declaration would be prima facie evidence of an ordinance, it would of necessity be sufficient information to enable the court to take judicial notice of it.

The declaration states that the copy is a correct copy of the original, or of a specified part of the original, as is required in an attestation or certificate (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) of a copy of a writing for the purpose of evidence [Evid. Code § 1531]. The declaration also states the day of passage of the ordinance, and that the ordinance was still in effect on the date of the transaction or occurrence at issue in the case in order to show its existence at the pertinent time.

This chapter discusses the requirements, scope and effect of stipulations, as well as the method for seeking relief from a stipulation's terms. The chapter contains the following forms:

- General form for a stipulation [see § 533.40].
- Stipulation of facts [see § 533.41].
- Notice of motion and supporting declaration to set aside a stipulation [see § 533.42] and order granting the motion [see § 533.43].

46-533 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 533.10

§ 533.10 Governing Law

[1] Attorney's Authority

An attorney's authority to enter into a stipulation is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 283.

[2] Local Rule Limitations

All trial courts are required to implement the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act, Gov. Code § 68600 et seq. through local rules [Gov. Code §§ 68605.5, 68620]. These local rules may restrict the availability of stipulations [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.10(a) (as general rule, no time standard may be modified, extended, or avoided by stipulation unless written order approving stipulation is first obtained from judge hearing case)].

Local trial delay reduction rules must, however, allow the parties to agree, by stipulation filed with the court within 30 days of service of the responsive pleadings, to a continuance not to exceed 30 days [Gov. Code § 68616(d)].

For further discussion, see Ch. 552, Trial Court Delay Reduction .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 533.11 Stipulation Defined

A stipulation is an agreement entered into between counsel, relating to business before the court [see Spindell v. State Bar (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 253, 260-261, 118 Cal. Rptr. 480, 530 P.2d 168] . Unless contrary to law, court rule or policy, it is also binding on the court [T & O Mobile Homes, Inc. v. United California Bank (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 441, 451 n.11, 220 Cal. Rptr. 627, 709 P.2d 430] .

It may be made at any step of the action or proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 283]. For discussion of matters to which the parties may stipulate, see § 533.13.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

46-533 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 533.12

§ 533.12 Authority of Attorney to Bind Client

[1] Implied Authority

An attorney has the authority to bind his or her client in any of the steps of an action or proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. § 283(1)]. An attorney may enter into stipulations without a client's prior, express authority with respect to tactical decisions or necessary or incidental matters regarding the management of the suit [Blanton v. Womancare, Inc. (1985) 38 Cal.3d 396, 404, 212 Cal. Rptr. 151, 696 P.2d 645 ; see also Hayman v. Block (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 629, 634 n.5, 222 Cal. Rptr. 293 (attorney has control over presentation of evidence and can enter into stipulations without client's concurrence)]. An attorney also has the authority to stipulate to a temporary judge to hear the action without first obtaining express authority from the client [In re Horton (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 82, 92-93, 284 Cal. Rptr. 305, 813 P.2d 1335] . In these instances, the authority of the client is implied and the client is bound by the stipulation.

[2] Express Authority

An attorney must obtain his or her client's consent before entering into a stipulation which impairs a substantial portion of the case or involves a waiver or compromise of a fundamental right [Levy v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 578, 584, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 878, 896 P.2d 171 (agreement to settle signed by attorneys is not enforceable under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6); Blanton v. Womancare, Inc. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 396, 407, 212 Cal. Rptr. 151, 696 P.2d 645 (attorney cannot stipulate to binding arbitration without client's authority); see also Linsk v. Linsk (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 272, 276-278, 74 Cal. Rptr. 544, 449 P.2d 760] . However, a client may ratify an unauthorized stipulation entered into by his or her attorney [Redsted v. Weiss (1945) 71 Cal. App. 2d 660, 664-665, 163 P.2d 105] .

Chapter 533 STIPULATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

46-533 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 533.13

§ 533.13 Particular Matters to Which Parties May Effectively Stipulate

[1] Extending Service of Process Requirements

The parties may stipulate to extend the time required to effectuate service of process [Big Bear Mun. Water Dist. v. Superior Court (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 919, 923, 75 Cal. Rptr. 580] . However, local rules may limit the length of an extension (see § 533.10 [2]). For further discussion on impact of an extension on dismissal of the action, see Ch. 212, Dismissal, § 212.60 et seq.

[2] Extending or Waiving Pleading Requirements

Subject to local rule limitations, discussed in § 533.10 [2], stipulations may extend the time to move, answer, or otherwise plead to the complaint [see, e.g., Farrar, Herrick & Associates v. Safecare Co. (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 123, 127, 131, 171 Cal. Rptr. 191 ; Consolidated Dock & Storage Co. v. Superior Court (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 949, 951, 952, 96 Cal. Rptr. 254] .

A stipulation granting an open extension of time to respond to a complaint will not preclude dismissal of an action for delay in prosecution [see Marra v. Mission Foods Corp. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 724, 728, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 741 ; Martin v. K & K Properties, Inc. (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 1559, 1566, 234 Cal. Rptr. 161] .

A stipulation to take a motion off calendar may have unintended consequences as, for example, where a demurrer was taken off calendar in exchange for plaintiff's agreement to file an amended complaint. The court dismissed the action with prejudice on the basis that the stipulation deemed the demurrer sustained without leave to amend [see Harding v. Collazo (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 1044, 1053, 223 Cal. Rptr. 329] .

[3] Preserving Confidentiality of Documents

Parties commonly enter into stipulations to preserve and protect the confidentiality of certain documents during litigation. The parties may stipulate to a protective order in anticipation of or in response to written discovery requests and then seek the court's approval [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017(c) (Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.020 operative July 1, 2005), Code Civ. Proc. § 2019 (Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.030 operative July 1, 2005), Code Civ. Proc. § 2021 (Code Civ. Proc.

§ 2016.030 operative July 1, 2005)]. A stipulated protective order may include adescription of documents which are to remain sealed, which are to be redacted to conceal confidential information, and a procedural mechanism for the parties to challenge confidential designations of documents [see e.g., Flagship Federal Sav. Bank v. Wall (S.D. Cal. 1990) 748 F.Supp. 742, 749] .

[4] Dismissing Claims

Stipulations may provide for the dismissal or abatement of an action [see, e.g., Reid v. Valley Restaurants, Inc. (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 606, 609-610, 311 P.2d 473 ; Cal-Vada Aircraft, Inc. v. Superior Court (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 435, 448, 224 Cal. Rptr. 809] .

[5] Narrowing Issues or Defenses

The parties may stipulate to limit the issues or defenses to be adjudicated [Title Ins. Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 715, 733, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 822, 842 P.2d 121 ; see also County of Sacramento v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1117, 1119, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 290 (stipulation clarifying issues in controversy); Golden State Homebuilding Associates v. City of Modesto (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 601, 614, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 572 (limiting scope of court's ruling to real property lots at issue)]. A stipulation may also admit liability or damages [Gonzales v. Pacific Greyhound Lines (1950) 34 Cal. 2d 749, 754, 214 P.2d 809] .

[6] Admitting Facts or Waiving Evidentiary Requirements

[a] Admitting Facts

Stipulations are frequently made concerning evidentiary matters. Proof of facts may be dispensed with by stipulations in civil or criminal actions [People v. Adams (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 570, 580-582, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 831 P.2d 831; Greatorex v. Board of Administration (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 54, 58, 154 Cal. Rptr. 37] . Once a party has stipulated to a fact, he or she is bound by the stipulation even if other provisions of the stipulation are later set aside [Rossman v. State Bar (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 539, 542, 216 Cal. Rptr. 919, 703 P.2d 390] . For discussion of relief from a stipulation based on mistake of fact or law, see § 533.17[1][b], below.

[b] Admission of Otherwise Inadmissible Evidence

The parties may stipulate to the admission of evidence even if the evidence is otherwise inadmissible [County of Alameda v. Risby (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1425, 1430, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 333 (paternity blood test results admissible pursuant to stipulation); Civil Service Assn. v. Civil Service Com. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 449, 459, 188 Cal. Rptr. 806 (polygraph test results admissible pursuant to stipulation; overruled on other grounds)].

[c] Evidence Introduced in Other Proceedings

Parties may also stipulate to admit evidence introduced in other actions or proceedings [Werner v. State Bar (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 611, 614, 150 P.2d 892 ; see also In re Kerry O. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 326, 332, 258 Cal. Rptr. 448 (stipulation to use child's prior testimony in dependency proceeding)].

[d] Admission of Depositions

Depositions may be admitted in evidence by stipulation [see, e.g., Los Angeles County Employees' Assn. v. Sanitation Dist. No. 2 (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 294, 300, 152 Cal.Rptr. 415] .

[e] Expert Witnesses

The parties may also stipulate to the qualifications and findings of an expert witness [McGuire v. Baird (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 353, 356, 70 P.2d 915 ; People v. McCoy (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 565, 568, 252 P.2d 371] .

[f] Judicial Notice

The parties may stipulate that the trial court take judicial notice of particular matters [Laguna Beach Taxpayers' Asso. v. City Council of Laguna Beach (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 412, 416, 9 Cal. Rptr. 775] .

[7] Modifying Trial Procedures

Stipulations are frequently made pertaining to procedural steps during trial. For example, stipulations may:

- Extend the time for trial or for a hearing on a motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 1054; see also, Miles v. Speidel (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 879, 884, 259 Cal. Rptr. 582 (extension of five-year period to bring action to trial); but see § 355.10 [2], discussing the impact of rules under the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act, Gov. Code § 68600 et seq.].

- Provide that the action be tried by a temporary judge or special master [see, e.g., In re Horton (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 82, 97-98, 284 Cal. Rptr. 305, 813 P.2d 1335] .

- Provide for the consolidation of actions with court approval under Code Civ. Proc. § 1048(a) [see, e.g., Ranchers Bank v. Pressman (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 612, 616, 97 Cal. Rptr. 78] .

- Designate the content of jury instructions [see, e.g., Cracknell v. Fisher Governor Co. (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d 857, 862, 56 Cal. Rptr. 64] .

- Waive findings by the court [see, e.g., Worcester v. Worcester (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 56, 62, 54 Cal. Rptr. 436] .

- Provide that the case be taken under submission without further hearing [see, e.g., Jacoby v. Feldman (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 432, 445, 446, 146 Cal. Rptr. 334] .

- Waive the requirement that the court provide a statement of reasons for granting a new trial when it has expressly adopted previously filed reasons [see, e.g., Herman v. Shandor (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 476, 481, 87 Cal. Rptr. 443] .

- Provide that the court determine liability issues before deciding whether to certify the case as a class action [Woosley v. State of California (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 758, 794, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 30, 838 P.2d 758 , cert. denied, 124 L. Ed. 2d 639 (1993)] .

[8] Settlement and Stipulated Judgment

[a] Stipulating to Entry of Judgment

The parties to an action or proceeding may stipulate to the entry of judgment [see, e.g., California State Auto. Ass'n Inter-Ins. Bureau v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 658, 664, 268 Cal. Rptr. 284, 788 P.2d 1156 ; Xebec Development Partners, Ltd. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 501, 574, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726] . The court may enter judgment on motion of a party pursuant to the terms of a settlement agreement that has either been stipulated to orally in court or by written agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6; Corkland v. Boscoe (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 989, 994, 203 Cal. Rptr. 356] . If requested by the parties, the court may retain jurisdiction over the parties to enforce the settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6].

A Section 664.6 stipulation requires the direct participation of the parties; a stipulation signed only by the attorneys is not enforceable under Section 664.6 [Levy v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 578, 585-586, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 878, 896 P.2d 171] . For further discussion of Section 664.6, see Ch. 520, Settlement and Release .

For forms of stipulation and notice of motion for entry of judgment pursuant to stipulation, see Ch. 318, Judgments, § 318.40 et seq., for disscussion regarding stipulating to the reversal of a judgment as part of a settlement, see Ch. 48, Appeal: Abandonment, Dismissal, and Stipulated Reversal .

[b] Res Judicata and Collateral Estoppel

A stipulated judgment is a decision on the merits [Greatorex v. Board of Administration (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 54, 58, 154 Cal. Rptr. 37] , and the doctrines of res judicata and collateral estoppel apply to those claims and issues embraced within the consent judgment [Greatorex v. Board of Administration (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 54, 58, 154 Cal. Rptr. 37 ; Ellena v. State of California (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 245, 260, 138 Cal. Rptr. 110] . A stipulated judgment normally determines all matters placed in issue by the pleadings but the parties can agree to restrict the scope of the judgment by expressly withdrawing an issue from it [see In re Marriage of Buckley (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 927, 935, 184 Cal. Rptr. 290 ; Ellena v. State of California (1977) 69 Cal.App. 3d 245, 260, 138 Cal. Rptr. 110] . For further discussion, see Ch. 491, Res Judicata .

For forms of stipulation and notice of motion for entry of judgment pursuant to stipulation, see Ch. 318, Judgments, § 318.40 et seq.

[9] Matters Affecting Appellate Procedure or Review

The parties may stipulate to appellate procedures, including:

- Voluntary abandonment and waiver of the right to appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.244(b); In re Cody W. (1994) 31 Cal. App. 4th 221, 231, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 848] .

- Limitations of issues on appeal [see, e.g., People v. Harris (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 1, 7, 95 Cal. Rptr. 468 ; Phillips v. Patterson (1939) 34 Cal. App. 2d 481, 483, 93 P.2d 807] .

- The issuance of a writ of supersedeas [see, e.g., Willingham v. Pecora (1940) 40 Cal. App. 2d 123, 124, 104 P.2d 405] .

- The preparation of a partial transcript [Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 8.130(b)].

Although parties may stipulate to have a judgment reversed or vacated, the appellate court is statutorily directed not to reverse or vacate the judgment unless the public interest outweighs the parties' reasons for the request [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128(a)(8)]. For further discussion, including the test used by the court, see Ch. 48, Appeal: Abandonment, Dismissal, and Stipulated Reversal, § 48.12.

[1] Matters That Are Illegal or Contrary to Public Policy

A stipulation is not binding on the court if it is illegal or contrary to public policy [*see California State Auto. Ass'n Inter-Ins. Bureau v. Superior Court(1990) 50 Cal. 3d 658, 664, 268 Cal. [2] Matters That Constitute Questions of Law

A stipulation will not bind the court on questions of law, including legal conclusions to be drawn from admitted or stipulated facts, or interpretations of the federal and California Constitutions, statutes, and ordinances [Fields v. Blue Shield of California (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 570, 579, 580 n.5, 209 Cal. Rptr. 781 ; County of Inyo v. City of Los Angeles (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 1178, 1183, 207 Cal. Rptr. 425] .

[3] Matters Affecting Subject Matter Jurisdiction of Court

Jurisdiction over the subject matter of an action or proceeding generally cannot be conferred on the court, enlarged, or waived by stipulation of the parties [Harrington v. Superior Court (1924) 194 Cal. 185, 188, 228 P. 15 ; Norman I. Krug Real Estate Investments, Inc. v. Praszker (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 35, 47, 269 Cal. Rptr. 228] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 533.15 Requirements for Stipulations

[1] Written Record

Code Civ. Proc. § 283(1), provides that a stipulation is effective at any of stage of an action or proceeding when filed with the clerk, or entered on the minutes of the court [see Lipscomb v. Krause (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 970, 974, 151 Cal. Rptr. 465] . The purpose of Section 283 is to ensure that there is a record of any stipulation that will preclude any question concerning its character or effect. The extent of the agreement must be ascertainable from the record--either from the minutes, if oral, or from a writing filed with the clerk [Cathcart v. Gregory (1941) 45 Cal. App. 2d 179, 187, 113 P.2d 894] . The terms of an oral stipulation entered in the minutes must be definite and certain to be valid and effective [Harris v. Spinali Auto Sales, Inc. (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 447, 452, 49 Cal. Rptr. 610] .

An unexecuted agreement that is neither embodied in a writing filed with the clerk nor entered on the minutes of the court is not binding and can be revoked at any time before it becomes executed [McDowell v. Orsini (1976) 54 Cal. App. 3d 951, 960, 127 Cal. Rptr. 285] .

[2] Exceptions to Requirement of Writing

Stipulations that are neither filed with the court nor entered on the minutes of the court will be recognized if they have been executed and cannot be nullified without doing an injustice to one party [see Baker v. Ramirez (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1123, 1135, 235 Cal. Rptr. 857 (stipulation set aside due to finding of injustice)].

An oral stipulation may be enforced based on the parties' conduct through either estoppel or ratification, despite the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 283 [Harding v. Collazo (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 1044, 1052, 223 Cal. Rptr. 329] . For example, if, under the terms of a verbal stipulation, one party has received the advantage sought, or the other party has given up some right or lost some advantage, sothat it would be inequitable to insist that the stipulation is invalid, then the first party may not repudiate the stipulation on the ground that it was not entered in the court's minutes. If the party admits making the stipulation, it will be as binding as if entered in the minutes [Harding v. Collazo (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 1044, 1052, 223 Cal. Rptr. 329 (party bound by stipulation to take hearing on demurrer off calendar and to file amended complaint by a certain date)]. If, however, the stipulation is disputed and there is no showing of estoppel or ratification, the stipulation will not be enforced [Estate of Cattalini (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 366, 370-371, 158 Cal.

Rptr. 640 (stipulation regarding division of broker's commission on sale of property in decedent's estate unenforceable)].

Thus, a stipulation entered into and fully executed by the parties in open court and duly reported in the trial proceedings, but not entered in the minutes, is binding on the parties [Webster v. Webster (1932) 216 Cal. 485, 489-490, 491, 14 P.2d 522 ; Cathcart v. Gregory (1941) 45 Cal. App. 2d 179, 187-188, 113 P.2d 894] .

Similarly, the parties may not repudiate a written stipulation on the ground that it has not been filed with the clerk if they have acted on it to such an extent that it would be inequitable not to recognize its binding effect [Smith v. Whittier (1892) 95 Cal. 279, 288-289, 30 P. 529 ; Harding v. Collazo (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 1044, 1052, 223 Cal. Rptr. 329] .

[3] Signature or Assent by Attorney of Record

When there is an attorney of record, no stipulation as to the conduct or disposal of an action can be entertained by the court unless signed or assented to by the attorney [Wells Fargo & Co. v. San Francisco (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 37, 42-43 152 P.2d 625 ; Toy v. Haskell (1900) 128 Cal. 558, 560, 61 P. 89] . A definite and complete agreement usually does not require the signature of the parties to be effective [see Johnston, Baker & Palmer v. Record Machine & Tool Co. (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 200, 206, 6 Cal. Rptr. 847] . For further discussion of the scope of attorneys' authority to bind clients, see § 533.12.

[4] Timely Filing of Written Stipulation

There is no time limit for filing a stipulation under Code Civ. Proc. § 283. The stipulation should be effective when filed if no injury is shown resulting from a delay in filing [Clemens v. Gregg (1917) 34 Cal. App. 245, 253, 167 P. 294] .

When filed, the stipulation becomes binding on the parties as of the date of its execution [Smith v. Whittier (1892) 95 Cal. 279, 290, 30 P. 529] .

Chapter 533 STIPULATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 533.16 Construction and Effect

Stipulations are generally considered to be contracts [Palmer v. City of Long Beach (1948) 33 Cal. 2d 134, 142, 199 P.2d 952 ; Rappenecker v. Sea-Land Service, Inc. (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 256, 263, 155 Cal. Rptr. 516] . In construing stipulations, courts apply the rules for construction of contracts [J.C. Penney Co. v. Superior Court (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 666, 669, 343 P.2d 919 ; Sy First Family Ltd. Partnership v. Cheung (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1334, 1341, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 340 ; Floystrup v. City of Berkeley Rent Stabilization Bd. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1309, 1318, 268 Cal. Rptr. 898] .

The parties must set forth the terms of a stipulation clearly and properly if they intend to be bound by it, and a party cannot later complain if it is determined that his or her own carelessness resulted in the wrong choice of words [Cohn v. Bugas (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 381, 392, 116 Cal. Rptr. 810] . Thus, a court will interpret a stipulation using an objective standard to give effect to the mutual intent of the parties; it will not be construed so as to give it the effect of an admission of an act obviously intended to be controverted or a waiver of a right not plainly intended to be relinquished [Searle v. Allstate Life Ins. Co. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 425, 438-439, 212 Cal. Rptr. 466, 696 P.2d 1308] .

It is immaterial that one of the parties had an undisclosed intention or belief as to what the stipulation meant [Consolidated Dock & Storage Co. v. Superior Court (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 949, 952, 96 Cal. Rptr. 254] . A court's paramount consideration in construing a stipulation is the parties' objective intent when they entered into it. Labels are not controlling. Where practicable, the meaning of an agreement must be derived from a reading of the whole contract. If an inconsistency exists in the language of a contract, courts must give effect to the parties' main purpose [Sy First Family Ltd. Partnership v. Cheung (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1334, 1341-1342, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 340] . The court may not add to the provisions of a stipulation, insert terms, or make a new stipulation for the parties [California State Auto. Ass'n Inter-Ins. Bureau v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 658, 664, 268 Cal. Rptr. 284, 788 P.2d 1156] .

A stipulation is conclusive with respect to the matters covered by it, unless the court, for good cause shown, later permits its abandonment or withdrawal [Spindell v. State Bar (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 253, 260-261, 118 Cal. Rptr. 480, 530 P.2d 168] . However, when stipulations are entered into for specific restricted purposes, they should be used only for those purposes, and are not binding outside the scope of those purposes [Winn v. Board of Pension Comm'rs (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 532, 540, 197 Cal. Rptr. 111] .

Lack of or failure of consideration is generally not an issue in construing stipulations. One court has held that when the parties act on a stipulation that has been presented to the court, it is deemed supported by consideration [see Barendregt v. Downing (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 733, 736, 346 P.2d 870] .

Chapter 533 STIPULATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 533.17 Relief From Stipulations

[1] Grounds

[a] Grounds Summarized

A party must show good cause in order to be released from a stipulation [Huston v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 856, 865, 157 Cal. Rptr. 355] . A court may exercise its sound discretion and set aside the stipulation in the following situations [see Baker v. Ramirez (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1123, 1135, 235 Cal. Rptr. 857 (party relieved from stipulation that had not been filed or executed); Roth v. Morton's Chefs Services, Inc. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 380, 385-387, 218 Cal. Rptr. 684 (party relieved from stipulation on Code Civ. Proc. § 473 motion); In re the Marriage of Kerry (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 456, 465, 204 Cal. Rptr. 660 (party relieved from stipulation on Code Civ. Proc. § 473 motion)]:

- When a stipulation has been entered into through inadvertence, excusable neglect, fraud, mistake of fact, or mistake of law;

- When facts stipulated have changed or there has been a change in the underlying conditions that could not have been anticipated; or

- When special circumstances exist rendering it unjust to enforce the stipulation.

The court has inherent power, independent of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 to set aside a stipulation in these situations [see In re Marriage of Jacobs (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 273, 283 n.3, 180 Cal. Rptr. 234 (dicta; collecting cases discussing motion for relief that did not mention Section 473)].

A poor outcome is not a principled reason to set aside a stipulation by counsel [Mileikowsky v. Tenet Healthsystem (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 262, 279, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 831 (discovery stipulation may waive a party's right to insist on a formal order compelling responses as a precursor to an issuance of evidentiary, issue, or terminating sanctions)].

Under some circumstances, a stipulation entered into without the consent of the client may be set aside [see § 533.12].

[b] Mistake of Fact or Law

The trial court may, in its discretion, disregard a stipulation that has been entered into through inadvertence or mistake of fact [County of Sacramento v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1121, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 290] . The court may relieve a party from a stipulation that incorrectly sets forth material facts that are contradicted by undisputed evidence [Sinnock v. Young (1943) 61 Cal. App. 2d 130, 131, 142 P.2d 85] . A mistake of fact must be of a material character, that will change the legal rights of the parties, as well as one that could not have been avoided by the exercise of ordinary care [Harris v. Spinali Auto Sales, Inc. (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 447, 454, 49 Cal. Rptr. 610] . When there is no mistake but merely a lack of full knowledge of the facts, which is due to the failure of a party to exercise due diligence to ascertain them, there is no proper ground for relief from the stipulation [Robinson v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 784, 791, 239 Cal. Rptr. 841 ; Huston v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 856, 866, 157 Cal. Rptr. 355 ; see also County of Sacramento v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1121, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 290 (poor outcome is not principled reason to set aside stipulation by counsel)].

Some courts have stated that a stronger showing should be made to justify relief from the effect of a mistake in law than in the case of a mistake involving a matter of fact [see, e.g., L. A. City Sch. Dist. v. Landier Inv. Co. (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 744, 751, 2 Cal. Rptr. 662] . Under that view, to set aside a stipulation on the ground of a mistake of law, it must be established that the mistake was mutual or arose from a misapprehension of the law by one party, of which the other was aware but did not rectify [see Civ. Code § 1578; L. A. City Sch. Dist. v. Landier Inv. Co. (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 744, 751, 2 Cal. Rptr. 662 ; see also Civ. Code § 1577 (mistake of fact)].

[2] Procedure

[a] Noticed Motion

A party may be relieved from a stipulation only on a noticed motion to set it aside, made in the trial court and supported by an affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury stating the grounds for relief [Harris v. Spinali Auto Sales, Inc. (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 447, 453, 49 Cal. Rptr. 610 ; L. A. City Sch. Dist. v. Landier Inv. Co. (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 744, 750, 2 Cal. Rptr. 662 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (declaration under penalty of perjury)]. The motion should be made to the court in which the stipulation was made, and notice should be given to the other parties to the stipulation [Harris v. Spinali Auto Sales, Inc. (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 447, 453, 49 Cal. Rptr. 610 ; L. A. City Sch. Dist. v. Landier Inv. Co. (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 744, 750, 2 Cal. Rptr. 662] .

For forms of motion and order to set aside a stipulation, see §§ 533.42 -533.43.

[b] Standing

An individual who is not a party to a stipulation nor the person for whose benefit it was entered into may not seek to set the stipulation aside [People v. Mendez (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1773, 1783, 286 Cal. Rptr. 216] .

[c] Timeliness of Motion

An application to the trial court for relief from a stipulation must be timely made [see Smith v. State Bar (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 525, 534-535, 213 Cal. Rptr. 236, 698 P.2d 139] . What is timely depends on the circumstances.

If the motion to set aside a stipulated judgment or order is made under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, the motion must be brought within a reasonable time, in no case exceeding six months of the judgment or order [County of Alameda v. Risby (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1425, 1430-1431, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 333] .

Motions that in effect seek to cancel a void stipulation or to rescind or reform an originally valid agreement on the ground of mistake ordinarily are controlled by the three-year statute of limitations contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d) for actions for relief on the ground of fraud or mistake. From the standpoint of laches, whether a party has delayed unreasonably resulting in prejudice to another party is a question of fact and depends on the circumstances of the particular case [L. A. City Sch. Dist. v. Landier Inv. Co. (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 744, 750-751, 2 Cal. Rptr. 662] .

For further discussion of time requirements for Section 473 motions and relief from void judgments, see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders .

Other provisions may govern timeliness of motions for relief from stipulations. For example, in Smith v. State Bar (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 525, 213 Cal. Rptr. 236, 698 P.2d 139 , a state bar disciplinary proceeding, the motion for relief was untimely under a former State Bar Rule of Procedure.

If the motion is addressed to the court's inherent power, independent of Code Civ. Proc. § 473, to set aside a stipulation, the motion should be made as soon as the grounds become known [see In re Marriage of Jacobs (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 273, 283 n.3, 180 Cal. Rptr. 234 (dicta)].

An order granting or denying relief from a stipulation is not directly appealable; an appeal lies from the judgment in the action [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1, 904.2].

The trial court has discretion whether or not to grant relief from a stipulation, and its discretion will not be disturbed on appeal absent a showing of abuse [Ward v. Clay (1890) 82 Cal. 502 ; Baker v. Ramirez (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1123, 1135, 235 Cal. Rptr. 857] . The existence of a stipulation is also a question of fact within the trial court's discretion [In re Marriage of Lieberman (1981) 114 Cal. App. 3d 583, 586, 170 Cal. Rptr. 757] .

Relief from a stipulation may not be granted when requested for the first time on appeal [Leonard v. City of Los Angeles (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 473, 478, 107 Cal. Rptr. 378] .

§ 533.34 Decisions

[1] Authority of Attorney to Bind Client

Attorney's authority to stipulate does not include power to compromise claim or confess judgment. Preston v. Hill (1875) 50 Cal. 43, 50-57

Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6, providing that parties may stipulate to settlement and entry of judgment, empowers trial court to determine whether or not litigant's attorney had authority to settle case on client's behalf. Haldeman v. Boise Cascade (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 230, 233-234, 221 Cal. Rptr. 412

Agreement to dismiss cause of action by attorney without client's authority is beyond attorney's authority. Bowden v. Green (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 65, 73, 180 Cal. Rptr. 90 (dismissal of cross complaint by attorney pursuant to purported stipulation)

Stipulation in joint pretrial statement withdrawing certain objections to executor's account was not unauthorized abandonment of substantial rights by trial attorney. Estate of Cooper (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1124, 90 Cal. Rptr. 283

[2] Construction and Effect

A stipulation stating that defendant could file a motion for sanctions if it did not receive plaintiff's supplemental discovery responses by a certain date had the same effect as a court order stating such, despite the fact that it was neither signed by the discovery referee or court or filed with the court. Mileikowsky v. Tenet Healthsystem (2005) 128 Cal App 4th 262, 279-280, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 831

Stipulations are not deemed amended to conform to proof because point of stipulation is to obviate need for proof. County of Sacramento v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1120, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 290

Stipulation is agreement and subject to ordinary rules employed to interpret contracts; court's paramount consideration in construing stipulation is parties' objective intent when they entered into it; labels are not controlling; when practicable, meaning of agreement must be derived from reading of whole contract; when inconsistency exists in language of contract, courts must give effect to parties' main purpose. Sy First Family Ltd. Partnership v. Cheung (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1334, 1341-1342, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 340

Stipulation is agreement between attorneys for adverse parties relating to matter involved in judicial proceeding, relating to evidence or facts, and resulting in judicial admission removing issues from case. In re Marriage of Hahn (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1236, 1239, 273 Cal. Rptr. 516

In construing stipulations, court applies rules for construction of contracts. Harris v. Spinali Auto Sales, Inc. (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 447, 453, 49 Cal. Rptr. 610 ; L. A. City Sch. Dist. v. Landier Inv. Co. (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 744, 752, 2 Cal. Rptr. 662

Stipulation entered into by parties in litigation is construed according to ordinary rules for interpretation of contracts, with paramount consideration being parties' objective intention at time of contracting. Porreco v. Red Top RV Center (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 113, 119, 264 Cal. Rptr. 609

Stipulation to postpone trial indefinitely subject to being reset on motion to advance by any party is subject to rules of contract construction. Imperial Ins. Co. v. California Casualty Indem. Exchange (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 540, 546, 204 Cal. Rptr. 819

Stipulation by Workers' Comp. Appeals Board as to applicant's disability which was made after public pension board's determination to deny disability pension and labeled as for workers' compensation purposes only is not binding on pension board in determining whether to award disability pension. Winn v. Board of Pension Commissioners (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 532, 540, 197 Cal. Rptr. 111

Stipulation extending time indefinitely to plead under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 is subject to general rules for construction of contracts. Farrar, Herrick & Associates v. Safecare Co. (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 123, 130, 171 Cal. Rptr. 191

Stipulation is conclusive on parties; having stipulated, party is estopped from taking contrary position in same or related litigation. Palmer v. City of Oakland (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 39, 44, 150 Cal. Rptr. 41

Stipulation that plaintiff's prior arrest was made with probable cause entered in criminal proceeding is binding so as to bar plaintiff's subsequent action for false imprisonment. Leonard v. City of Los Angeles (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 473, 476-479, 107 Cal. Rptr. 378

Stipulation is not one of usual pleadings, but proceeding in cause under court/s supervision, by means of its coercive power over parties and their attorneys; actions of unqualified temporary judge who suggested stipulation and who initiated waiver of statutory provisions as nullities. Lovret v. Seyfarth (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 841, 856-857, 101 Cal. Rptr. 143

Court as interpreting stipulations so as to protect parties from their erroneous legal assumptions. Burrows v. State of California (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 29, 33, 34, 66 Cal. Rptr. 868

Court as interpreting stipulations so as to carry out parties' intent and to ascertain that intent if language used in stipulation is ambiguous. Southern Cal. Gas Co. v. Joseph W. Wolfskill Co. (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 882, 888, 28 Cal. Rptr. 345

[3] Writing Requirement

Code Civ. Proc. § 283 as applicable to making of oral stipulation not reduced to writing and filed with clerk or entered in minutes. May v. May (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 264, 277-278, 79 Cal. Rptr. 622

[4] Relief From Stipulation

In ordinary civil case, trial court has discretion to disregard stipulation entered into by reason of inadvertence or mistake of fact; same good cause rule should apply to this workers' compensation proceeding; lack of diligence is not good cause; applicant's attorney entered into stipulation in open court that in hindsight appeared to have impaired applicant's case, but poor outcome is not principled reason to set aside stipulation by counsel; record devoid of any reasons why client should not be held to stipulation. County of Sacramento v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1121, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 290

Trial court has discretion to allow party to withdraw stipulation for good cause; trial court allowed city to withdraw its stipulation that plaintiff had not earlier stipulated to having commissioner hear matter and found that plaintiff had so stipulated. Flahive v. City of Dana Point (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 241, 247, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 51

In usual case, party is not permitted unilaterally to avoid valid stipulation; fact that stipulations serve convenience of parties, often simplify and expedite proceeding, and are supported by policy favoring compromise to reduce volume of litigation as reason for supporting stipulations against ensuing attack in most instances. In re Marriage of Hahn (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1236, 1239, 273 Cal. Rptr. 516

Summary adjudication that indisputably changed material circumstances relative to rights and duties of parties provided court with discretion to refuse to compel performance of stipulation. Abadjian v. Superior Court (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 363, 370-371, 214 Cal. Rptr. 234

Dismissal of cause of action based on stipulation to dismiss that was not authorized by client is subject to being vacated at any time. Bowden v. Green (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 65, 73, 180 Cal. Rptr. 90

Lack of supporting evidence does not necessarily invalidate stipulation. Aten v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 113, 119, 142 Cal. Rptr. 42

Stipulation that trial court could determine issues involved on record before jury in principal action as no longer binding if made under false assumption that trial judge who presided at jury trial would decide action. Kerr Chemicals, Inc. v. Crown Cork & Seal Co. (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 1010, 1017, 99 Cal. Rptr. 162

Appeal from judgment by stipulation as frivolous under Code Civ. Proc. § 907, entitling reviewing court to add damages to costs on appeal. Lawler v. Bannerman (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 893, 894, 87 Cal. Rptr. 756

Relief from stipulation as available for mistake of fact or other special circumstances rendering it unjust to enforce it. McDonagh v. Gourneau (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 1033, 1038, 83 Cal. Rptr. 63

Setting aside of stipulation appropriate when entered into in reliance on false testimony. Brown v. Superior Court (1935) 10 Cal. App. 2d 365, 366, 367-368, 52 P.2d 256

IT IS HEREBY STIPULATED AND AGREED by and between the parties hereto, by their respective counsel, that, for the purpose of trial in this action, the facts listed below are undisputed and may be treated by the court as facts proved in open court.

The parties may, during the trial of this matter, call witnesses and offer evidence for the purpose of proving any additional facts as the parties may see fit.

[In making the stipulation, the parties do not waive any legal objection to the relevancy, the materiality, or the admissibility in evidence of any of the facts set forth in this stipulation, and each party reserves the right to offer any legal objection to those facts, or any part of those facts, either by filing written objections or by stating such objections orally in open court, at any time during the trial before the objecting party concludes his/her offer of evidence and rests his/her case. An objection so made shall be considered timely.]

The undisputed facts are as follows:

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion and supporting declaration in [1], above, may be used by any party seeking to set aside a stipulation previously agreed to between the parties. A memorandum of points and authorities is required to be served and filed with the notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.113(a)].

[3] Grounds

The motion is made on the general ground that good cause exists to set aside the stipulation. For discussion of particular grounds for setting aside a stipulation, see § 533.17[1].

[4] Timing

An application to the trial court for relief from a stipulation must be timely made. For further discussion of timing requirements, see § 533.17 [2].

PART I. SCOPE

§ 534.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses and provides forms for submitting controversies to a court on stipulated facts. The chapter discusses submission to the court both of an "agreed case" [§ 534.13] and an agreed statement of facts [§ 534.14] and compares these procedures [§§ 534.10-534.12].

The chapter includes a Research Guide [§ 534.30 et seq.], and the following forms:

- Submissions of an agreed case [§§ 534.40, 534.41].
- Declaration to accompany the submission [§ 534.42].
- Judgment on an agreed case [§ 534.43].
- Stipulation of agreed statement of facts [§ 534.44].

§ 534.11 Purpose of Submitting Controversy

The term "submitted controversy," as it is used in this chapter and by most California attorneys, includes both the agreed case and the agreed statement of facts submitted by stipulation. The purpose of submitting a controversy, in either manner, is to provide the court with a set of facts which both parties are willing to accept as a factual basis to which the applicable law is to be applied [*see, e.g., Faust v. § 534.12 Distinction Between Procedures

The agreed statement of facts is only a substitute for evidence of facts pleaded, and in this respect it differs from the agreed case which is submitted for decision without any pleadings [Towle v. Sweeney (1905) 2 Cal. App. 29-32, 83 P. 74 (disapproved on another point in Gaffigan v. Lawton (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 722, 729, 37 P.2d 79)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 534.13 Submission of Agreed Case Without Commencement of Action

[1] Submission of Dispute That Could Have Been Subject of Civil Action

Parties to a "question in difference" may, without bringing an action, submit an agreed case to any court which would have had jurisdiction if an action had been brought to that court originally. The question in difference must be one which might be the subject of a civil action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1138]. The persons submitting an agreed case must be interested, authorized, and capable of litigating the question as if an action had been filed [see Bailey v. Johnson (1898) 121 Cal. 562, 562-563, 54 P. 80] .

By using this special summary proceeding, parties may avoid the expense and delay of an ordinary action [Market Street Ry.Co. v. Hellman (1895) 109 Cal. 571, 578, 42 P. 225] so long as the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1138 are satisfied [see White v. Clarke (1896) 111 Cal. 425, 427-428, 44 P. 164 (submitted controversy did not show that question in difference could be subject of civil action; affidavit did not show controversy was real or proceedings were in good faith)].

For forms for submission of the agreed case, see §§ 534.40, 534.41.

[2] Affidavit Required Stating Controversy Is Real and Brought in Good Faith

An affidavit, or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5], must be submitted by each party, stating that the controversy is real and that the proceeding is brought in good faith to determine the rights of the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 1138; see White v. Clarke (1896) 111 Cal. 425, 427-428, 44 P. 164 (affidavit did not show controversy was real or proceedings were in good faith)].

The affidavit or declaration is mandatory, and an agreed statement on appeal that recites that the trial court heard the case on an agreed statement and on an affidavit that the controversy was real is inadequate [see Mellois v. Chaine (1862) 20 Cal. 679, 680] .

For a form of declaration, see § 534.42.

[3] Heard as Though Action Had Been Brought

The court hears and determines the case and renders judgment as if an action had been brought [Code Civ. Proc. § 1138]. The judgment is to be determined solely from the submitted facts [Cannon v. Handley (1887) 72 Cal. 133, 138, 13 P. 315] .

[4] Judgment in Agreed Case

Judgment is entered as in other cases, but without costs for any proceeding prior to trial. The case, the submission, and a copy of the judgment constitute the judgment roll [Code Civ. Proc. § 1139]. For a form of judgment, see § 534.43.

[5] Enforcement of Judgment

Judgment in an agreed case may be enforced as if it had been rendered in an action in the same court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1140].

[6] Review

A judgment in an agreed case is subject to appeal in the same manner as any civil judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1140].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

46-534 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 534.14

§ 534.14 Agreed Statement of Facts

[1] Stipulation to Facts After Action Has Been Commenced

An agreed statement of facts is a submission to a court, after an action is commenced and jurisdiction obtained, of a controversy involving a set of facts. The submission is nonstatutory and is made by stipulation of the parties involved [see, e.g., Faust v. San Diego (1931) 115 Cal. App. 277, 275-279, 1 P.2d 543] .

For a form of stipulation, see § 534.44.

[2] Stipulation Is Substitute for Evidence; No Jury Trial

A written stipulation of an agreed statement of facts may be submitted to the court by the parties involved in an action after the action has commenced. The agreed statement of facts is only a substitute for evidence of facts pleaded, and in this respect it differs from the agreed case, which is submitted for decision without any pleadings [Towle v. Sweeney (1905) 2 Cal. App. 29, 31-32, 83 P. 74] .

There is no jury trial when an agreed statement of facts has been submitted, for the statement itself makes formal findings unnecessary [see, e.g., Division Labor Law Enfmt. v. Brooks (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 631, 632, 38 Cal. Rptr 284] .

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by parties who agree as to the facts of an actual controversy to submit the case to the court for determination. The form is used when no action has yet been commenced on the controversy, but when the controversy could be the subject of a civil action within the jurisdiction of the court to which it is to be submitted [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1138; see also Ziegelmaier v. Rasmussen (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 881, 881-884, 159 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 881, 324 P.2d 116 (submission to court, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1138, to determine whether sellers entitled to interest on unpaid purchase price from date purchasers entered into possession or from date escrow closed)].

Once submitted, the court must render judgment as if it were an action, and as such may award any proper remedy exceptpretrial costs [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1138, 1139].The judgment may be enforced or appealed as in an ordinary civil action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1140].

[3] Affidavit or Declaration Required

This form must be accompanied with a supporting affidavit, or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5], from each party [Code Civ. Proc. § 1138]. For a form of declaration, see § 534.42.

This chapter discusses and sets forth procedures for obtaining and serving subpoenas and subpoenas duces tecum. In addition to forms for subpoenas [see §§ 535.60, 535.61, 535.84, 535.85], the chapter includes the following forms:

- Declarations and statements for use in declarations in support of subpoenas duces tecum [see §§ 535.62 -535.66].

- Declaration of a custodian of business records for use when a subpoena duces tecum does not require personal appearance [see § 535.67].

- Declaration by the attorney of the subpoenaing party when the business records were made available to the attorney for inspection and copying pursuant to a subpoena duces tecum [see § 535.68].

- Notice to a consumer or employee that his or her personal records are being sought [see § 535.69] and authorization by a consumer or employee for the release of those records [see §§ 535.70, 535.73].

- Notice to an employee that his or her employment records are being sought [see § 535.72] and authorization by an employee for the release of those records [see § 535.73].

- Authorization by a consumer for the release of telephone records [see § 535.71].

- Moving papers for bringing a motion for an order to quash a subpoena [see §§ 535.74 -535.77].

- Notices to be used in lieu of subpoenas [see §§ 535.78, 535.79].

- Objections to a notice to produce [see §§ 535.69, 535.80].

- Moving papers for bringing a motion for an order to produce [see §§ 535.81 -535.84].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 535.10 Governing Law

Most of the general provisions relating to subpoenas are set out in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985-1997. The issuance of subpoenas is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985-1986, service by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1987-1988, motions to quash, modify, or comply by Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.1, and penalties for disobedience of a subpoena by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1991-1994. Temporary removal of prisoners and their production in court is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1995-1997, and subpoenas in criminal proceedings by Penal Code §§ 1326-1332. The service of subpoenas on certain peace officers is governed by Gov. Code §§ 68097.1-68097.10. The use of subpoenas duces tecum for the production of business records is governed by Evid. Code §§ 1560-1566.

In the case of subpoenas used in the context of obtaining discovery, the provisions governing subpoenas generally are modified by the more specific provisions of the Civil Discovery Act (Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.010 et seq.) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2020.010]. Subpoenas issued in an action pending outside California are governed by the Interstate and International Depositions and Discovery Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.100 et seq.; see Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.500 (other applicable law)]. For further discussion and forms relating to provisions specifically applicable to deposition subpoenas, see Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions .

There are also a number of additional provisions governing issuance of subpoenas in specialized contexts and proceedings [see, e.g., Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 341, 664 (juvenile dependency and wardship proceedings); Mil. & Vet. Code § 460 et seq. (military court proceedings); Prob. Code § 451 (issuance by probate referees); Educ. Code § 48918 (school expulsion proceedings); Veh. Code § 14104.5 (informal hearings before the Department of Motor Vehicles)]. However, this is only a partial listing and relevant code indexes should be consulted to determine if any additional provisions governing issuance of subpoenas are applicable in a specific context.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 535.11 Use of Subpoenas and Subpoenas Duces Tecum

[1] Purposes

A subpoena is a writ or order directed to a person requiring his or her attendance at a particular time and place to testify as a witness. It is the process by which the attendance of a witness is required [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(a)].

A subpoena duces tecum requires the witness also to bring with him or her any books, documents, or other things under the witness's control which he or she is bound by law to produce in evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(a)].

[2] Special Provisions

Special provisions concerning service and payment of fees apply when the witness being subpoenaed is a peace officer, fire fighter, or technical analyst in a related area [see Gov. Code §§ 68097.1-68097.10]. For discussion of service of subpoena and payment of fees relating to these individuals, see §§ 535.17[5] and 535.19[1][a], respectively.

Special provisions may also apply if a party has subpoenaed the records of certain businesses [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1987.3; Evid. Code §§ 1560-1566]. These provisions are discussed in § 535.20.

Special requirements also apply when the personal records of consumers, as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3, the employment records of employees, or the private records of public employees are sought by subpoena duces tecum [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3 (consumers), 1985.4 (public employees), 1985.6 (private employers)]. These requirements are discussed in §§ 535.21 and 525.22, respectively.

Parties and certain party-related persons may be compelled to attend and produce certain things by notice to their attorneys, instead of by a subpoena or subpoena duces tecum [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(b), (c)]. This method of compelling attendance is discussed in § 535.24.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 535.12 Obtaining Subpoena

[1] To Require Attendance Before Court or at Trial

A subpoena to require attendance before a court, or at the trial of an issue therein, is obtainable from the clerk of the court in which the action or proceeding is pending [Code Civ. Proc. § 1986(a)]. It is unclear what significance this provision would have when the subpoena is going to be issued by an attorney pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(c) [see discussion under § 535.13[2]]. Since the attorney of record may sign and issue a subpoena which requires attendance pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1986(a), it would appear that the mandatory Judicial Council subpoena forms [see §§ 535.60, 535.61] could be obtained from any court, as long as the attorney fills in the name of the court in which the action or proceeding is pending.

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 1986(a) refers only to subpoenas, and not to subpoenas duces tecum, it appears that both are obtained in the same manner.

[2] To Require Attendance Before Commissioner Appointed by Non-California Court

A subpoena to require attendance before a commissioner appointed to take testimony by a court of a foreign county, or of the United States, or of any other state in the United States, or before any other officers empowered by the laws of the United States to take testimony may be obtained from the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the witness is to be examined [Code Civ. Proc. § 1986(b)].

[3] To Require Attendance out of Court in Cases Not Provided for by Code Civ. Proc. § 1986(a)

A subpoena to require attendance out of court, in cases not provided for in Code Civ. Proc. § 1986(a) (see discussions in [1], above and [4], below), before a judge, justice, or other officer authorized to administer oaths or take testimony in any matter under California laws, is obtainable from the judge, justice, or other officer before whom the attendance is required [Code Civ. Proc. § 1986(c)].

[4] To Require Attendance Before Officer on Taking Deposition

Code Civ. Proc. § 1986(a) provides that a subpoena to require attendance on the taking of a deposition in an action or proceeding is obtainable from the clerk of the court in which the action or proceeding is pending.

The last paragraph of Code Civ. Proc. § 1986 provides that if the subpoena will require attendance before a commissioner or other officer on the taking of a deposition, it must be obtained "as of course" from the clerk of the superior court of the county where the attendance is required on application of the party requiring it. This provision appears to conflict with Code Civ. Proc. § 1986(a), which provides that the court from which the subpoena is obtained is the court in which the action or proceeding is pending.

[1] By Clerk or Judge

The clerk, or a judge, issues a subpoena or subpoena duces tecum signed and sealed, but otherwise blank, to the party requesting it, who must fill it in before service [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(c)].

[2] By Attorney

The attorney of record in an action or proceeding may sign and issue a subpoena to require attendance before the court in which the action or proceeding is pending, or at the trial of an issue therein, or on the taking of a deposition in an action or proceeding pending therein. The subpoena in such a case need not be sealed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(c)]. The attorney of record may also sign and issue a subpoena duces tecum to require production of the matters or things described in the subpoena [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(c)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 535.14 Limitation to California Residents

[1] In General

Generally, a person is not obliged to attend as a witness before any court, judge, justice, or other officer, unless the witness is a resident within California at the time of service of the subpoena [Code Civ. Proc. § 1989].

PRACTICE TIP:
Seek Voluntary Appearance. It may be worth a telephone call or a letter to the out-of-state witness. Communication may yield an agreement to appear voluntarily. By Corinne Burt.

[2] Definition of Residence

Residence, for the purpose of a subpoena, means residence in fact and not domicile. Pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1989, the term "residence" envisages nothing more than an abode, possibly combined with a professional base of operations, which gives the resident a sojourning connection with the area of a type and duration related to the status of witness and which does not make it a hardship for him or her to attend the legal proceedings at which he or she is commanded to appear [In re Morelli (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 819, 831, 91 Cal. Rptr. 72] .

[3] Exception for Custodian of Records if Attendance Not Required

The limitations of Code Civ. Proc. § 1989 do not apply when a subpoena duces tecum is served on a custodian of records or other qualified witness as provided by Evid. Code §§ 1560-1566 and his or her personal attendance is not required by the terms of the subpoena [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.3; see discussion in § 535.20[1]].

[4] Exception for Member of California Highway Patrol

A member of the California Highway Patrol may be required by a subpoena requiring attendance to appear as a witness before any court located in California, in any civil action or proceeding, in connection with a matter regarding an event or transaction which he or she has perceived or investigated in the course of his or her duties, even if he or she is not subject to a subpoena pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1989 [Gov. Code § 68097.3].

§ 535.15 Agreement to Appear at Another Time

[1] Availability

A subpoenaed person, in lieu of appearance at the time specified in the subpoena, may agree with the party at whose request the subpoena isissued to appear at another time or on such notice as may be agreed on [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.1; Gov. Code § 68097.9 (peace officers and related persons)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Coordinate With Witnesses to Save Time and Gain Cooperation. To save time and scheduling headaches, contact witnesses before serving the subpoena to let them know they will be subpoenaed and that you want to accommodate their schedule. This will not only save time, but it may yield a more cooperative witness. In the event that there is an agreement to appear at another time, make sure it is memorialized in writing. By Corinne Burt.

[2] Failure to Appear

Failure to appear pursuant to an agreement may be punishable as contempt by the court issuing the subpoena [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.1; see discussion in § 535.26[1], and in Ch. 135, Contempt]. Facts establishing or disproving such an agreement and the failure to appear may be proved by an affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) of any person having personal knowledge of the facts [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.1].

If a witness disobeys a subpoena served in a civil action pursuant to Evid. Code § 1560(e), the disobedience may be punished as a contempt as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 2020.240 [Evid. Code § 1560(e)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 2020.240 provides that disobedience of deposition subpoena may be punished for contempt under Code Civ. Proc. 2023.010 et seq. without the necessity of a prior order of court directing compliance [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.030(e) (court may impose a sanction for misuse of the civil discovery process by issuing an order treating the misuse as a contempt of court); for discussion of the use of contempt orders to punish disobedience of subpoenas generally, see § 535.26[1]]. The witness or person who fails to appear pursuant to a subpoena or a court order is also subject to the forfeiture and payment of damages set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1992 [Code Civ. Proc. § 2020.240]. As an alternative to a contempt sanction, the court may issue a warrant for the arrest of witness or person who fails to appear [Code Civ. Proc. §

§ 535.16 Affidavit Supporting Subpoena Duces Tecum

[1] Requirements

A copy of an affidavit (or declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) on which a subpoena duces tecum is based must be served with the subpoena duces tecum [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985(b), 1987.5; see §§ 535.61, 535.62 et seq.].

[2] Contents

The affidavit or declaration must show good cause for the production of the matters and things described in the subpoena, specifying the exact matters or things desired to be produced, setting forth in full detail the materiality thereof to the issues involved in the case, and stating that the witness has the desired matters or things in his or her possession or under his or her control [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(b); see Lee v. Superior Court (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1108, 1126-1130, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 712 (subpoenas duces tecum were ineffective because each failed to include declaration containing "a sufficient statement of materiality" as required Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(b); see also §§ 535.61 -535.66]. The affidavit must show that the requested material contains competent and admissible evidence that is material to some disputed issue of fact at the trial [People v. Schmitt (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 87, 106, 317 P.2d 673] . The affidavit cannot consist of reliance "merely upon the legal conclusion, stated in general terms, that the desired documentary evidence is relevant and material" [McClatchy Newspapers v. Superior Court (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 386, 396, 159 P.2d 944 ; Lee v. Superior Court (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1108, 1112, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 712 (declarations that lacked any factual bases for legal conclusion that documents were material to proceedings failed to comply with Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(b), collecting cases, quoting McClatchy); Johnson v. Superior Court (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 829, 837, 66 Cal. Rptr. 134 ("the trial court must be afforded the factual data by the required affidavit to enable it to make an informed ruling on the issues of materiality and good cause.")]. Rather, the documents or other things should be described with such certainty that the person producing the records is reasonably apprised of what is required [Pacific Auto. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 61, 68-69, 77 Cal. Rptr. 836 ; see also Flora Crane Serv., Inc. v. Superior Court (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 767, 785-786, 45 Cal. Rptr. 79] .

[3] Filing

The party causing the subpoena to be served must retain the original affidavit or declaration until final judgment in the action, and must file this affidavit or declaration with the court only on reasonable request by any party or witness affected thereby [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.5].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 535.17 Service

[1] In General

The service of a subpoena generally is made (except on peace officers, firefighters, and specified technical analysts, discussed in § 535.17[5]) by delivering a copy or ticket containing its substance to the witness personally [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(a)]. However, when service is to be made on a minor, service must be made on the minor's parent, guardian, conservator, or similar fiduciary, or if one of them cannot be located with reasonable diligence, then service must be made on any person having the care or control of the minor or with whom the minor resides or by whom the minor is employed, and on the minor if the minor is 12 years of age or older. However, if the minor is alleged to come within the description of Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 300, 601, or 602 and the minor is not in the custody of a parent or guardian, regardless of the age of the minor, service also must be made on the designated agent for service of process at the county child welfare department or the probation department under whose jurisdiction the minor has been placed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(a); Penal Code § 1328(b); see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 300 (persons subject to jurisdiction of juvenile court), 601 (persons subject to jurisdiction of juvenile court as ward for refusal to obey parents, violation of curfew, or truancy), 602 (persons subject to jurisdiction of juvenile court and adjudicated as ward for violation of law or ordinance defining crime)].

Service may be made by any person [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(a)].

[2] Time of Service

Service must be made so as to allow the witness a reasonable time for preparation and travel to the place of attendance [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(a)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Allow Witness as Much Time as possible. Give as much notice as possible to avoid the assertion that the notice given was not reasonable. By Corinne Burt.

When serving a written notice instead of a subpoena [see § 535.24[1] for discussion of when written notice may substitute for subpoena], the notice must be served at least 10 days before the time required for attendance unless the court prescribes a shorter time [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(b)]. The notice may include a request that the party or person bring books, documents or other things if the notice is served at least 20 days before the time required for attendance, or within such shorter time as the court may order [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(c)].

[3] Subpoena Duces Tecum

A copy of the affidavit on which the subpoena duces tecum is based [see discussion at § 535.16] must be served simultaneously with the subpoena duces tecum. If it is not, the service of the subpoena duces tecum is invalid [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.5]. A subpoena duces tecum requiring appearance and the production of matters and things at the taking of a deposition is not valid unless a copy of the affidavit on which the subpoena is based and the designation of the materials to be produced, as set forth in the subpoena, is attached to the notice of taking the deposition served on each party or its attorney as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 2002 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.5; see also Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions].

Although the general provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure dealing with the issuance of subpoenas, Code Civ. Proc. § 1985 et seq., apply to deposition subpoenas as well as to trial subpoenas, they do so only to the extent that those provisions are not modified by provisions in the nonparty discovery chapter of the Civil Discovery Act, Code Civ. Proc. § 2020.010 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 2020.030 (general subpoena provisions that include Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985 and 1987.5 apply to a deposition subpoena "[e]xcept as modified in this chapter"); see § 535.10]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.5 provides that in the case of a subpoena duces tecum requiring appearance and the production of matters and things at the taking of a deposition, the subpoena is not valid unless a copy of the affidavit on which the subpoena was based and the designation of the materials to be produced, as set forth in the subpoena, is attached to the notice of taking the deposition served on each party or its attorney. Code Civ. Proc. § 2020.510(b), however, provides that a deposition subpoena commanding the attendance and the testimony of the deponent, as well as the production of business records, documents, or tangible things need not be accompanied by an affidavit or declaration showing good cause for the production of the documents and things designated. Faced with these two contradictory and irreconcilable provisions, one court of appeal held, as a matter of first impression, that Code Civ. Proc. § 2020.510(b) controls [Terry v. SLICO (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 352, 355, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 900] . The court reasoned that treating Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985 and 1987.5 as the controlling provisions would be at odds with Code Civ. Proc. § 2020.030 and with the "fundamental understanding that has prevailed since the adoption of the Civil Discovery Act," that to the extent that its provisions concerning nonparty discovery overlap or conflict with other provisions of more general application, the provisions of the Civil Discovery Act prevail [Terry v. SLICO (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 352, 359, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 900] . Because service of the deposition subpoena on a nonparty witness was effective despite the absence of a supporting affidavit or declaration, the trial court did not err in imposing reasonable monetary sanctions for the witness' failure to comply with the subpoena [Terry v. SLICO (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 352, 359, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 900] .

Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.5 does not apply to deposition subpoenas commanding only the production of business records for copying under Code Civ. Proc. § 2020.420.

For a discussion of the special requirements for a subpoena duces tecum for production of a consumer's personal records or an employee's employment records, see § 535.21.

[4] On Concealed Witness

If a witness is concealed in a building or vessel to prevent the service of a subpoena on him or her, any court, judge, or officer issuing the subpoena may, on proof by affidavit (or declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) of the concealment and of the materiality of the witness, order that the sheriff of the county serve the subpoena. The sheriff may then break into the building or vessel where the witness is concealed for the purpose of serving the subpoena [Code Civ. Proc. § 1988].

[5] On Peace Officers, Firefighters, and Other Public Employees

If a witness is a peace officer of Department of the California Highway Patrol, member of the California State Police, employee of the Department of Justice who is a peace officer or analyst in a technical field, sheriff, deputy sheriff, marshal, deputy marshal, district attorney inspector, probation officer, building inspector, fire fighter, or city police officer, and he or she is required as a witness before a court or other tribunal in a civil action or proceeding in connection with an event or transaction that he or she has perceived or investigated in the course of his or her duties, the subpoena may be served by delivering a copy either to him or her personally or by delivering two copies to that person's immediate superior at the public entity by which he or she is employed [Gov. Code § 68097.1(a) (service may also be made on superior's designated agent)]. If a witness is any other state employee or any employee of the trial courts required to testify regarding a matter, event, or transaction about which he or she has expertise gained in the course of his or her duties, the subpoena may be served by delivering a copy either to him or her personally or by delivering two copies to his or her immediate superior [Gov. Code § 68097.1(b) (service may also be made on superior's designated agent)]. For a provision relating to service of subpoenas on peace officers in criminal proceedings, see Penal Code § 1328.

The attendance of this type of witness may be required pursuant to Gov. Code § 68097.1 only in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1989 [Gov. Code § 68097.1(c); see § 535.14[1]].

[6] On Nonresident Members of the California Highway Patrol

A member of the California Highway Patrol who is not subject to subpoena pursuant to the limitations of Code Civ. Proc. § 1989 (limitation to residents of California) may nevertheless be served by delivering a copy, during usual office hours, at least five days before the date of the member's required attendance, to the person in charge of the office of the California Highway Patrol where the member filed his or her report of the event or transaction [Gov. Code § 68097.3].

[7] Fees for Service

The fee for serving a subpoena by a public officer, registered process server, or other means is an allowable cost under Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(a)(4), (b) (defining "prevailing party," directing court to determine prevailing party in cases not coming within definition, and providing that prevailing party is entitled to recover costs) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(a)(4), (b)]. If service is by a public officer, the recoverable cost is the fee authorized by law at the time of service [Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(a)(4)(A)]. Fees for service by sheriffs, constables, and marshals are governed by statute. For sheriffs, the fee for service of process is governed by Gov. Code § 26721, and certain charges for actual expenses are set out by Gov. Code § 26748. Marshals are required to charge and collect for their services the fees, expenses, and mileage allowed by law to sheriffs [Gov. Code § 71266]. If service is by a process server registered pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 22350 et seq., the recoverable cost is the amount actually incurred in effecting service, including, but not limited to, a stakeout or other means employed in locating the person to be served, unless those charges are successfully challenged by a party to the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(a)(4)(B)]. If service is made by a person other than a public officer or registered process server, the recoverable cost is the sum actually incurred or the amount allowed to a public officer in California for that service, whichever is less, except that the court may allow the sum actually incurred in effecting service on application pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(c)(4) (granting court discretion to allow or deny) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(a)(4)(D)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 535.18 Witness Fees

[1] In General

A witness subpoenaed in any civil or administrative action or proceeding must be given written notice on the subpoena that he or she may be entitled to receive attendance fees and payment for mileage [Code Civ. Proc. § 2065]. If the witness demands it, payment for travel (mileage) and attendance fees for one day must be given or offered to him or her at the time of service of the subpoena [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(a)]. A witness who demands such payment is not compelled to attend under the terms of the subpoena until the fees are paid [Gov. Code § 68097]. The amount of witness fees for each day's actual attendance and for mileage actually traveled, both ways, is provided for by Gov. Code § 68093.

PRACTICE TIP:
Have Fees Ready. Don't forget to have a check ready. Overlooking this detail could have dire consequences. By Corinne Burt.

[2] Fees for Experts

[a] Availability

A party subpoenaing an expert witness to testify before any court, tribunal, or arbiter in any civil action or proceeding must pay the reasonable and customary hourly or daily fee for the actual time consumed in the examination of that witness by any party attending the action or proceeding [Gov. Code § 68092.5(a)]. However, the hourly or daily fee must not exceed the fee charged the party who retained the expert except when the expert donated his or her services to a charitable or other nonprofit organization [Gov. Code § 68092.5(a)]. A daily fee may only be charged for a full day of attendance at a deposition, or when the expert was required by the deposing party to be available for a full day and the expert necessarily had to forego all business he or she would have otherwise conducted that day but for the request that he or she be available all day for the scheduled deposition [Gov. Code § 68092.5(a)].

For the purpose of this provision, "expert witness" means a witness other than one who is a party or employee of a party, and who is one of the following [Gov. Code § 68092.5(a)]:

- An expert described in Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.210(b) (an expert retained by a party in connection with litigation);

- A treating physician and surgeon or other treating health care practitioner who is to be asked during the deposition to express opinion testimony, including opinion or factual testimony regarding the past or present diagnosis or prognosis made by the practitioner or the reasons for a particular treatment decision made by the practititioner, but not including testimony requiring only the reading of words and symbols contained in the relevant medical record; or

- An architect, professional engineer, or licensed land surveyor who was involved with the original project design or survey for which he or she is asked to express an opinion within his or her expertise and relevant to the action or proceeding.

An express contract, relating to compensation, entered into between a person and the party requesting or requiring the person to testify prevails over the provisions of Gov. Code § 68092.5 [Gov. Code § 68092.5(e)].

There is currently no prohibition against allowing costs for expert witness fees under Gov. Code § 68092.5. Prior to its 1988 amendment, expert witness fees paid pursuant to Gov. Code § 68092.5 were not allowable costs [see former Gov. Code § 68092.5(a); see also Posey v. State of California (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 836, 852, 225 Cal. Rptr. 830 (decided under prior law)].

The deposition of an expert witness is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.010 et seq. [Gov. Code § 68092.5(f)]. The compensation of experts for depositions is set forth in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.420-2034.450. For additional discussion and forms relating to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2034.430-2034.470, see Ch. 198, Discovery: Exchange of Expert Witness Information . Special provisions relating to compensation of experts appointed by the court are set forth in Evid. Code §§ 730, 731. For discussion of Evid. Code §§ 730, 731, see Ch. 551, Trial .

[b] Tender of Fees

The party requiring the attendance must either accompany the service of the subpoena with a tender of the expert's fees based on the anticipated length of time the expert is required to remain at the place specified in the subpoena, or must tender the fee at the required time of appearance. The expert's fee must be delivered to the attorney for the party designating the expert. If the appearance of the expert takes longer than anticipated, the party serving the subpoena must pay the balance of the expert's fee within five days of receipt of an itemized statement from the expert. The party designating the expert is responsible for any fee charged by the expert for preparing for the testimony and for traveling to the place of the civil action or proceeding, as well as for any travel expenses of the expert, unless otherwise determined by the court [Gov. Code § 68092.5(a)].

The service of a proper subpoena accompanied by the tender of the expert witness fee is effective to require the party employing or retaining the expert to produce the expert for testimony. If the party serving the notice or subpoena fails to tender the expert's fee, the expert is not required to appear at that time unless the parties stipulate otherwise [Gov. Code § 68092.5(b)].

[c] Motion to Set Compensation

If the subpoenaing party deems that the hourly or daily fee of the expert for providing testimony is unreasonable, that party may move for an order setting the compensation of the expert. The motion must be accompanied by a declaration stating facts showing a reasonable and good faith attempt at an informal resolution of each issue presented by the motion. Notice of the motion must also be given to the expert [Gov. Code § 68092.5(c)].

In any such attempt at an informal resolution, either the party or the expert must provide the other with the following information [Gov. Code § 68092.5(c)]:

- Proof of the ordinary and customary fee actually charged and received by that expert for similar services provided outside the subject litigation;

- The total number of times the presently demanded fee has ever been charged and received by that expert; and

- The frequency and regularity with which the presently demanded fee has been charged and received by that expert within the two-year period preceding the hearing on the motion.

In addition to any other facts or evidence, the expert or the party designating the expert must provide, and the court's determination of the reasonableness of the fee must be based on, the proof described in the foregoing list. The court may also consider the ordinary and customary fees charged by similar experts for similar services within the relevant community, and any other facts the court deems necessary or appropriate to make its determination. On determining that the fee demanded by the expert is unreasonable, and based on the evidence and factors considered, the court must set the expert's fee [Gov. Code § 68092.5(c)].

For a form of motion to set the compensation of an expert deponent pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.470, which may be adapted for use under Gov. Code § 68092.5(c), see Ch. 198, Discovery: Exchange of Expert Witness Information .

[d] Notice of Continuation or Cancellation

If the proceeding at which the expert witness has been notified his or her attendance is required is continued or canceled in advance of the time for which it is scheduled, the witness must be so notified by the party requiring his or her attendance by the quickest and most reliable means of giving notice under the circumstances, or the expert witness is entitled to receive the compensation specified in Gov. Code § 68092.5(a), notwithstanding his or her failure to give any testimony [Gov. Code § 68092.5(d)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 535.19 Fees for Public Employees

[1] City and County Employees, Peace Officers, Firefighters, and Specified Others

[a] In General

Special rules apply when any employee of a local agency or any peace officer, as defined in Penal Code § 830 et seq., any firefighter, or any state employee is subpoenaed [see Gov. Code §§ 68096.1 (local agency employees, including employees of a city, county, city and county, special district, redevelopment agency, or any other political subdivision of the state), 68097.2 (peace officer, firefighter, specified county employee, state employee, or trial court employee)].

A party subpoenaing any of these individuals must tender the amount of $150, together with the subpoena, to the person accepting the subpoena for each day that the employee or officer is required to remain in attendance pursuant to the subpoena [Gov. Code §§ 68096.1(b), 68097.2(b)].

For purposes of Gov. Code § 68097 et seq., the term "firefighter" has the definition provided in Gov. Code § 50925, and a volunteer firefighter is deemed to be employed by the public entity for which he or she volunteers as a firefighter [Gov. Code § 68097; see Gov. Code § 68097.2(f) (when payment to volunteer firefighter is required)].

[b] Salary and Expenses

Any local agency employee, peace officer, firefighter, or state employee who is obliged by subpoena to attend as a witness must receive the salary or other compensation to which he or she is normally entitled from the public entity by which he or she is employed during the time that the officer or employee travels to and from the place where the court or other tribunal is located and while required to remain at such place pursuant to that subpoena. That officer or employee must also receive from the employing public entity the actual, necessary, and reasonable traveling expenses incurred in complying with the subpoena [Gov. Code §§ 68096.1(a), 68097.2(a)].

[c] Reimbursement of Entity

The party at whose request the subpoena is issued must reimburse the public entity for the full cost the public entity incurred in paying the employee or officer his or her salary or other compensation and traveling expenses, for each day that the employee or officer is required to remain in attendance pursuant to the subpoena [Gov. Code §§ 68096.1(b), 68097.2(b)]. However, it is not necessary to reimburse a public entity which is itself a defendant through the actions of its officers or employees. In that case the usual statutory provisions with respect to witnesses are applicable [Patterson v. Sharp (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 838, 840-841, 61 Cal. Rptr. 517 ; see Gov. Code §§ 68093, 68097; see also Gov. Code § 68096.1(a) (specifically limiting its provisions to actions to which employing city, county, or city and county is not party)].

[d] Overpayment or Underpayment

If the actual expenses should later prove to be less than the amount tendered, the excess of the amount tendered will be refunded [Gov. Code §§ 68096.1(c), 68097.2(c)]. If the actual expenses should later prove to be more than the amount deposited, the difference must be paid to the public entity by the party at whose request the subpoena is issued [Gov. Code §§ 68096.1(d), 68097.2(d)].

[2] Deposit for Nonresident Highway Patrol Officer

When a member of the California Highway Patrol is subpoenaed under Gov. Code § 68097.3 (when not subject to subpoena pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1989; see discussion at 535.14[4]), a deposit in an amount equal to the estimated amount of his or her salary and expenses for the time and travel required by the subpoena must be made with the clerk of the court prior to the issuance of that subpoena [Gov. Code § 68097.4].

[3] Deposit for Appearance at Subsequent Proceedings

If a court continues a proceeding on its own motion, no additional witness fee are required prior to the issuance of the subpoena or to the making of an order directing an employee or officer to appear on the date to which the proceeding is continued [Gov. Code §§ 68096.1(e), 68097.2(e)].

No peace officer of the Department of the California Highway Patrol, peace officer member of the State Fire Marshal's Office, employee of the Department of Justice who is a peace officer or an analyst in a technical field, sheriff, deputy sheriff, marshal, deputy marshal, firefighter, or city police officer may be ordered by the court to return for subsequent proceedings beyond the date stated in the subpoena referred to in Gov. Code §§ 68097.1-68097.4 or the day on which that witness appeared pursuant to the provisions of Gov. Code § 68097.9 (agreement by witness to appear at time other than specified in subpoena), unless the party at whose request the subpoena was issued, or the party at whose request the witness is ordered to return, first tenders to the public entity that employs the witness the same sum required to be tendered for the issuance of the subpoena in the first instance [Gov. Code § 68097.5 (language was not amended to reflect amendment to Gov. Code § 68097.2(b) eliminating deposit prior to issuance of subpoena); see discussion at § 535.19[1][a]].

[4] Relief From Deposit or Payment Requirement

The court, on good cause shown, including the fact that the party is proceeding in forma pauperis, may relieve a party of the duty to make any deposit or payment required by Gov. Code §§ 68096.1, 68097.1-68097.5 [Gov. Code § 68097.55].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 535.20 Production of Business Records by Subpoena Duces Tecum

[1] When Personal Attendance Not Required

[a] In General

When a subpoena duces tecum requiring the production of all or any part of a business' records is served on the custodian of records or other qualified witness of the business, in a civil action in which the business is neither a party nor the place where any cause of action is alleged to have arisen, the custodian or other qualified witness may comply with the subpoena duces tecum by mailing or otherwise delivering to the clerk of the court (or the judge, if there is no clerk), within 15 days after receipt of the subpoena, or within the time agreed on by the party who served the subpoena and the custodian or other qualified witness, a true, legible, and durable copy of all of the records described in the subpoena duces tecum, together with an affidavit (or declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) pursuant to Evid. Code § 1561. This procedure does not apply if attendance is required pursuant to Evid. Code § 1564 [Evid. Code § 1560(b)].

[b] Transmittal of Records

The copy of the records is to be enclosed separately from the affidavit in a sealed inner envelope or wrapper, with the title and number of the action, name of the witness, and date of the subpoena clearly inscribed on it. The sealed envelope or wrapper must then be enclosed in an outer envelope or wrapper, sealed, and directed as follows [Evid. Code § 1560(c)]:

- If the subpoena directs attendance in court, to the clerk of the court, or to the judge thereof if there is no clerk;

- If the subpoena directs attendance at a deposition, to the officer before whom the deposition is to be taken, at the place designated in the subpoena for the taking of the deposition, or at the officer's place of business;

- In other cases, to the officer, body, or tribunal conducting the hearing, at a like address.

Unless the parties otherwise agree, or unless the sealed envelope or wrapper is returned to a witness who is to appear personally, the copy of the records must remain sealed and will be opened only at the time of trial, deposition, or other hearing, on the direction of the judge, officer, body, or tribunal conducting the proceeding, in the presence of all parties who have appeared in person or by counsel at the trial, deposition, or hearing. Records that are original documents and that are not introduced in evidence or required as part of the record will be returned to the person or entity from whom received. Records that are copies may be destroyed [Evid. Code § 1560(d)].

[c] Records Made Available to Attorney

As an alternative to the procedures described in Evid. Code § 1560(b), (c), and (d), a subpoenaing party in a civil action seeking discovery of records may direct the witness to make the records available for inspection or copying by the party's attorney or the attorney's representative at the business address of the witness under reasonable conditions during normal business hours. When provided with at least five business days advance notice by the attorney or his or her representative, or by the deposition officer (see Code Civ. Proc. § 2020.420), the witness must designate a time period of not less than six continuous hours on a day certain for copying of the subpoenaed records by the attorney, the attorney's representative, or deposition officer [Evid. Code § 1560(e)].

It is the responsibility of the attorney's representative to deliver any copy of the records as directed in the subpoena [Evid. Code § 1560(e)].

Evid. Code § 1560(e) does not apply to criminal cases [Penal Code § 1326(b)].

[d] Admissibility of Copies

If the original records would be admissible in evidence if the custodian or other qualified witness had been present and testified to the matters stated in the affidavit, and if the requirements of Evid. Code § 1271 (record as evidence) have been met, the copy of the records is admissible in evidence [Evid. Code § 1562].

[2] Personal Attendance of Custodian or Witness

[a] In General

A party who desires the personal attendance of the custodian or other qualified witness may obtain it through a subpoena duces tecum containing the clause set out in Evid. Code § 1564 [see Evid. Code § 1564; § 535.6[1]].

PRACTICE TIP:

Consider Deposing Custodian of Records. Always consider deposing the custodian of records. This is a good way to ensure that you have received all documents responsive to the subpoena. In the course of questioning the custodian, you may also learn whether further investigation is necessary. By Corinne Burt.

[b] Witness Fees and Mileage

When the personal attendance of the custodian of a record or other qualified witness is required pursuant to Evid. Code § 1564 in a civil proceeding, he or she is entitled to the same witness fees and mileage permitted in a case when the subpoena requires the witness to attend and testify before a court in which the action or proceeding is pending and to any additional costs incurred as provided by Evid. Code § 1563(b) [Evid. Code § 1563(c); see Gov. Code § 68093 (witness fees and mileage); see also discussion at § 535.18[1]].

[3] Reasonable Costs for Production of Business Records

[a] Set by Statute

When the records are delivered to the attorney, the attorney's representative, or a deposition officer for inspection and photocopying at the witness' place of business, the only fee for complying with the subpoena must not exceed $15, plus the actual cost, if any, charged to the witness by a third person for retrieval and return of records held offsite by the third person. If the records are retrieved from microfilm, the reasonable cost defined in Evid. Code § 1563(b)(1) also applies [Evid. Code § 1563(b)(6)]. The party serving a subpoena duces tecum may be charged all reasonable costs incurred by any witness who is not a party in the production of all or any part of business records pursuant to the subpoena duces tecum [Evid. Code § 1563(b)].

"Reasonable cost," as used in Evid. Code § 1563, includes, but is not limited to, 10 cents per page for standard reproduction of standard documents, 20 cents per page for copying documents from microfilm, actual costs for reproduction of documents requiring special processing, reasonable clerical costs in locating and making the records available to be billed at the maximum rate of $24 per hour per person, actual postage charges, and the actual cost charged to the witness by a third person for the retrieval and return of records held by that third person [Evid. Code § 1563(b)(1)].

[b] Demand for Payment and Itemized Statement of Costs

The party requesting production of business records is not required to pay reasonable production costs or any estimate of them prior to the time the records are available for delivery pursuant to the subpoena. However, the witness may demand payment of costs pursuant to Evid. Code § 1563 simultaneous with actual delivery of the subpoenaed records, and, until such time as payment is made, is under no obligation to deliver the records [Evid. Code § 1563(b)(2)].

The witness must submit an itemized statement for all reasonable costs to the requesting party or the requesting party's depostion officer, setting forth the reproduction and clerical costs incurred by the witness.If the costs exceed those authorized by statute [see [a], above], or if the witness refuses to produce the required itemized statement of costs, the witness, on demand of the requesting party or that party's deposition officer, must furnish a statement setting forth the actions taken by the witness in justification of the costs [Evid. Code § 1563(b)(3)].

[c] Petition to Reduce Excessive Costs

The requesting party may petition the court in which the action is pending to recover from the witness all or a part of the costs paid to the witness, or to reduce all or a part of the costs charged by the witness pursuant to Evid. Code § 1563(b), on the ground that the costs were excessive. On the filing of the petition, the court must issue an order to show cause, and from the time the order is served on the witness the court has jurisdiction over the witness. The court may hear testimony on the order to show cause, and if it finds that the costs demanded and collected, or charged but not collected, exceed the amount authorized by Evid. Code § 1563(b), it must order the witness to remit to the requesting party, or reduce its charge to the requesting party by an amount equal to, the amount of the excess. If the court finds the costs excessive and charged in bad faith by the witness, the court must order the witness to remit the full amount of the costs demanded and collected or excuse the requesting party from any payment of costs charged but not collected, and the court must also order the witness to pay the requesting party the amount of the reasonable expenses incurred in obtaining the order, including attorney's fees. If the court finds the costs were not excessive, it must order the requesting party to pay the witness the amount of the reasonable expenses incurred in defending the petition, including attorney's fees [Evid. Code § 1563(b)(4)].

[d] When Witness Entitled to Reimbursement

If a subpoena is served to compel the production of business records and is subsequently withdrawn, or is quashed, modified, or limited on a motion made other than by the witness, the witness is entitled to reimbursement pursuant to Evid. Code § 1563(b)(1) for all costs incurred in compliance with the subpoena to the time that the requesting party has notified the witness that the subpoena has been withdrawn, quashed, modified, or limited. In the event the subpoena is withdrawn or quashed, if those costs are not paid within 30 days after demand therefor, the witness may file a motion in the court in which the action is pending for an order requiring payment, and the court must award the payment of expenses and attorney's fees in the manner set forth in Evid. Code § 1563(b)(4) [Evid. Code § 1563(b)(5)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 535.21 Subpoena Duces Tecum Requiring Production of Personal Records of Consumer or Employment Records of Employee

[1] In General

Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3 establishes procedures for obtaining personal records of consumers by use of a subpoena duces tecum. Similarly, Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.6 provides requirements for seeking employment records of employees through a subpoena duces tecum. Failure to comply with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3 and 1985.6, discussed below, is a sufficient basis for a witness to refuse to produce, by a subpoena duces tecum, personal records of a consumer [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(k)], or employment records of an employee [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.6(j)].

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3 and 1985.6 do not apply to any subpoena duces tecum that does not request the records of any particular consumer or employee and that requires a custodian of records to delete all information that would in any way identify the consumer or employee [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(i), 1985.6(h)], or to proceedings under Lab. Code §§ 50-175, 3200-6002, 6100-6149, or 6200-6208 [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(j), 1985.6(i)]. In addition, if the subpoenaing party is the consumer or the employee, and the consumer or employee is the only subject of the subpoenaed records, notice to the consumer or to the employee and the delivery of the other documents specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(b), or in Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.6(b) is not required [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(l) (consumer); Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.6(k) (employee); see § 535.21[4][a]].

PRACTICE TIP:

Give Notice to Consumer. Don't forget notice to the consumer when subpoenaing personal records. By Corinne Burt.

[2] Definitions

[a] Personal Records and Witnesses

The phrase "personal records" as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3 means the original or any copy of books, documents, other writings, or electronic data pertaining to a consumer that are maintained by any "witness" [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(a)(1)]. "Witness," in turn, is defined as a physician, dentist, ophthalmologist, optometrist, chiropractor, physical therapist, acupuncturist, podiatrist, veterinarian, veterinary hospital, veterinary clinic, pharmacist, pharmacy, hospital, medical center, clinic, radiology or MRI center, clinical or diagnostic laboratory, state or national bank, state or federal association as defined under Fin. Code § 5102, state or federal credit union, trust company, anyone authorized by the state to make or arrange loans that are secured by real property, security brokerage firm, insurance company, underwritten title company, title insurance company, escrow agent (either licensed under Fin. Code § 17000 et seq. or exempt from licensing), attorney, accountant, institution of the Farm Credit System as specified in 12 U.S.C. § 2002, telephone corporation that is a public utility as defined in Pub. Util. Code § 216, a psychotherapist as defined in Evid. Code § 1010, or a private or public preschool, elementary school, secondary school, or post secondary school as described in Educ. Code § 76244 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(a)(1)].

[b] Consumer

The term "consumer" as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3 means any individual, partnership of five or fewer persons, association, or trust that has transacted business with or has used the services of the witness or for whom the witness has acted as agent or fiduciary [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(a)(2)].

[c] Employment Records

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.6, "employment records" means the original or any copy of books, documents, other writings, or electronic data pertaining to the employment of any employee maintained by the current or former employer of the employee, or by an labor organization that has represented or currently represents the employee [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.6(a)(3); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.6(a)(4) ("labor organization" defined)].

[d] Employee

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.6, "employee" means any individual who is or has been employed by a witness subject to a subpoena duces tecum [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.6(a)(2)]. "Employee" also means any individual who is or has been represented by a labor organization that is a witness subject to a subpoena duces tecum [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.6(a)(2); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.6(a)(4) ("labor organization" defined)].

[e] Subpoenaing Party

The phrase "subpoenaing party" as used in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3 and 1985.6 means the person or persons causing a subpoena duces tecum to be issued or served in connection with any civil action or proceeding. (Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3, the civil action or proceeding must be commenced pursuant to the Code of Civil Procedure.) The term does not include any state or local agencies described in Gov. Code § 7465 or any entity provided for under Article VI of the California Constitution in any proceeding maintained before an adjudicative body of that entity pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6000-6228 (State Bar Act) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(a)(3), 1985.6(a)(5)].

[3] Time Allowed for Production

The subpoena duces tecum must be served in sufficient time to allow the witness a reasonable time, as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2020.410-2020.440, to locate and produce the records themselves or copies of them [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(d) (personal records of consumer), 1985.6(d) (employment records)]. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2020.410, a party issuing a depostion subpoena duces tecum for the production of records for copying must specify a date for compliance that is no earlier than 20 days after issuance of the subpoena, or 15 days after its service, whichever is later.

PRACTICE TIP:

Act Promptly to Object. If the consumer has objections to the subpoena or plans to file a motion to quash, counsel should notify the person or entity in control of the documents, as well as opposing counsel, immediately. Also, the objections and/or motion to quash should be filed with the court immediately if opposing counsel will not agree to limit the scope of the subpoena. By Corinne Burt.

[4] Service of Subpoena Duces Tecum, Affidavit, and Notice on Consumer or Employee

[a] Requirements

Prior to the date called for in the subpoena duces tecum for the production of personal or employment records, the subpoenaing party must serve, or cause to be served, copies of the following on the consumer or employee whose records are being sought [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(b) (personal records of consumer), 1985.6(b) (employment records); see [b], below; § 535.69]:

- The subpoena duces tecum.

- The affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) supporting the issuance of the subpoena, if any.

- The notice described in Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(e) (personal records of consumer) or 1985.6(e) (employment records).

- Proof of service as indicated in Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(c) (personal records of consumer) or Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.6(c) (employment records).

However, if the subpoenaing party is the consumer or the employee, and the consumer or employee is the only subject of the subpoenaed records, notice to the consumer or to the employee and the delivery of the other documents specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(b), or in Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.6(b) is not required [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(l) (consumer); Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.6(k) (employee)].

The service must satisfy the following requirements [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(b) (personal records of consumer), 1985.6(b) (employment records)]:

- It must be made to the consumer or employee personally, or at his or her last known address, or in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1020, or, if the consumer or employee is a party, to his or her attorney of record. If the consumer or employee is a minor, service is to be made on the minor's parent, guardian, conservator, or similar fiduciary, or if one of them cannot be located with reasonable diligence, then service is to be made on any person having the care or control of the minor, or with whom the minor resides, or, in the case of a consumer, by whom the minor is employed, and on the minor if the minor is at least 12 years of age.

- Service must be completed not less than 10 days prior to the date for production specified in the subpoena duces tecum, plus the additional time provided for by Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 if service is by mail.

- Service must be completed at least five days prior to service on the custodian of records, plus the additional time provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 if service is by mail.

If service is by mail, the time for service is extended by five calendar days if the place of address and the place of mailing is within the state of California, 10 calendar days if either the place of mailing or the place of address is outside California but within the United States, and 20 calendar days if either the place of mailing or the place of address is outside the United States [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.010 et seq. (incorporating by reference provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(c), (e) (extension when service is by Express Mail or fax); for discussion of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1020, see generally Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

A subpoena duces tecum for personal records maintained by a telephone corporation that is a public utility, as defined in Pub. Util. Code § 216, is not valid or effective unless it includes a consent to release, signed by the consumer whose records are requested, as required by Pub. Util. Code § 2891 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(f); see § 535.71].

[b] Contents of Notice

The notice accompanying every copy of the subpoena duces tecum and affidavit, if any, served on a consumer, employee, or his or her attorney must be in a typeface designed to call attention to the notice and must indicate the following [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(e) (personal records of consumer), 1985.6(e) (employment records); see § 535.69]:

- Records about the consumer or employee are being sought from the witness named on the subpoena;

- If the consumer or employee objects to the witness furnishing the records to the party seeking them, he or she must file papers with the court, or serve a written objection as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(g) (consumer) or 1985.6(f) (employee), prior to the date specified for production on the subpoena; and

- If the party who is seeking the records will not agree in writing to cancel or limit the subpoena, an attorney should be consulted about the consumer's or employee's interest in protecting his or her right of privacy.

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.6 (employment records), the notice must also indicate that the employment records may be protected by a right of privacy [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.6(e)].

If a notice of taking of deposition is also served, that other notice may be set forth in a single document with the notice required by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(e) and 1985.6(e) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(e) (personal records of consumer), 1985.6(e) (employment records)]. For forms of notice of taking deposition that may be combined with the notice to a consumer, see Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions .

[5] Proof of Service or Written Authorization Served on Witness

Prior to the production of personal records of a consumer or employment records of an employee, the subpoenaing party must perform either of the following [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(c) (personal records of consumer), 1985.6(c) (employment records)]:

- Serve or cause to be served on the witness a proof of personal service or of service by mail attesting to compliance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(b) regarding notice [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(l), 1985.6(k) (when notice to consumer or employee is not required); [4][a], above]; or

- Furnish the witness with a written authorization to release the records signed by the consumer, employee, or his or her attorney of record.

The witness may presume that any attorney purporting to sign the authorization on behalf of the consumer or employee acted with the consent of the consumer or employee, and that any objection to release of records is waived [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(c) (personal records of consumer), 1985.6(c) (employment records); see § 535.70].

[6] Motion to Shorten Time or to Waive Notice Requirements by Subpoenaing Party

On good cause shown and provided that the rights of witnesses and consumers or employees are preserved, a subpoenaing party is entitled to obtain an order shortening the time for service of a subpoena duces tecum or waiving the requirements of constructive notice and service of a certificate when due diligence by the subpoenaing party has been shown [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(h) (personal records of consumer), 1985.6(g) (employment records)].

[7] Motion to Quash by Party Consumer or Employee

Any consumer or employee who is a party to the action and whose personal records are sought by a subpoena duces tecum, may, prior to the date for production, bring a motion to quash or modify the subpoena duces tecum pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.1. Notice of the bringing of the motion must be given to the witness and deposition officer at least five days prior to production. No witness or deposition officer can be required to produce the records after receipt of notice that such a motion has been brought, except on order of the court in which the action is pending or by agreement of the parties, witnesses, and consumers or employees affected [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(g) (personal records of consumer), 1985.6(f) (employment records); see § 535.74]. The phrase "prior to the date for production" is designed to guide the witness with the records regarding when he or she may safely honor or not honor the subpoena when the consumer or employee objects. It does not limit the court's jurisdiction to motions brought by that time [see Slagle v. Superior Court (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 1309, 1312, 260 Cal. Rptr. 122 (consumer)]. Motions to quash or modify subpoenas are discussed more fully in § 535.23.

[8] Objection by Nonparty Consumer or Employee

Any nonparty consumer or other nonparty, or any employee who is not a party to the action, whose personal records or employment records are being sought by a subpoena duces tecum, may, before the date set for production, serve on the subpoenaing party, the witness, and the deposition officer, a written objection that cites the grounds on which the production of the subpoenaed records should be denied. No witness or deposition officer is required to produce personal records of a nonparty consumer or other nonparty or employment records of a nonparty employee after receipt of notice that the motion has been brought by the consumer or employee, or after receipt of a written objection from a nonparty consumer or nonparty employee, except upon order of the court in which the action is pending or by agreement of the parties, witnesses, and consumers or employees affected. The party requesting the requests then may bring a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.1(a) to enforce the subpoena within 20 days of service of the written objection. The motion must be accompanied by a declaration showing a reasonable and good faith attempt to resolve the matter informally between the requesting party and the consumer or the consumer's attorney [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(g) (consumer), 1986.6(f) (employee)].

[9] Medical Records

The Confidentiality of Medical Information Act (Civ. Code §§ 56-56.37) [see Ch. 429, Privacy, § 429.60 et seq.] prohibits unauthorized disclosure by a health care provider, health service plan, or contractor, of medical information regarding a patient of the health care provider, or an enrollee or subscriber of the plan [see Civ. Code § 56.10(a)]. An exception to this prohibition exists under Civ. Code § 56.10(b)(3) when disclosure is compelled by a party to a proceeding before a court or administrative agency pursuant to a subpoena duces tecum. For the exception to be valid as against a patient's privilege against disclosure of medical information, the subpoenaing party must have complied with the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3, including the requirement that the consumer be given notice of his or her right to object and to seek the services of an attorney in order to protect his or her rights of privacy [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(e); Colleen M. v. Fertility and Surgical Assocs. of Thousand Oaks (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 1466, 1479, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 439 (citing Inabnit); Inabnit v. Berkson (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1230, 1236-1239, 245 Cal. Rptr. 525] . Failure by the patient to take any action to prevent unwanted disclosure after receiving the requisite notice constitutes a waiver of the privilege, and leaves the health care provider in the position of being compelled to disclose the medical records under Civ. Code § 56.10(b)(3) [see Colleen M. v. Fertility and Surgical Assocs. of Thousand Oaks (2005) 132

Cal. App. 4th 1466, 1479, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 439 (in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 56.10(b)(3), subpoena required health care provider to disclose patient's medical records to ex-fiance's attorney because ex-fiance's attorney complied with Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(e), and patient did not file objection; this undisputed evidence was sufficient to establish complete defense to cause of action under Code Civ. Proc. § 56.10(b)(3)); Inabnit v. Berkson (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1230, 1236-1239, 245 Cal. Rptr. 525] .

Chapter 535 SUBPOENA
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

46-535 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 535.21A

§ 535.21A Subpoena Requiring Production of Electronically Stored Information

[1] Party May Require Production

A subpoena in a civil proceeding may require that electronically stored information (ESI) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.020 (definition); § 535.21A[2]] be produced for inspection, copying, testing, or sampling [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.8(a)(1)]. The party serving the subpoena requiring production may specify the form or forms in which each type of ESI is to be produced [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.8(b)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.8 establishes procedures for a party to obtain discovery of ESI [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.8(c); § 535.21A[3]; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.8(d) (opposition to discovery); § 535.21A[4]].

For a more detailed discussion of the California Electronic Discovery Act [Stats. 2009, ch. 5] and the process of "e-discovery," see Ch. 195A, Discovery: Discovery of Electronically Stored Evidence (E-Discovery). For in-depth coverage of e-discovery and a step-by-step guide to subpoenaing ESI from nonparties, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California E-Discovery and Evidence, Ch. 6, Demanding Production of Electronically Stored Evidence in California Court.

[2] "Electronic" and "Electronically Stored Information" Defined

"Electronic" means relating to technology having electrical, digital, magnetic, wireless, optical, electromagnetic, or similar capabilities [Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.020(d)]. "Electronically stored information" is information that is stored in an electronic medium [Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.020(e)].

[3] Requesting Production

Unless otherwise agreed or ordered by the court, if a subpoena requiring production of ESI does not specify a form or forms for production, the person subpoenaed must produce the information in the form or forms in which it is ordinarily maintained or in a form that is reasonably usable [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.8(c)(1)]. However, the same ESI need not be produced in more than one form [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.8(c)(2)].

If the person subpoenaed establishes that the ESI is from a source that is not reasonably accessible because of undue burden or expense, the court may still order discovery if the subpoenaing party shows good cause, subject to specified limitations [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.8(e); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.8(h) (limitations); § 535.21A[5]].

If the court finds good cause for the production from a source that is not reasonably accessible, the court may set conditions for the discovery, including allocation of the expense [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.8(f)]. If necessary, the subpoenaed person, at the reasonable expense of the subpoenaing party, must translate, through detection devices, any data compilations included in the subpoena into a reasonably usable form [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.8(g)].

The party serving the subpoena must take reasonable steps to avoid imposing undue burden or expense on a person subject to the subpoena [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.8(j)]. Additionally, a court order requiring compliance with a subpoena for ESI must protect a person who is neither a party nor a party's officer from undue burden or expense resulting from compliance [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.8(k)].

[4] Opposing Production

The subpoenaed person opposing the production, inspection, copying, testing, or sampling of electronically stored information on the basis that information is from a source that is not reasonably accessible because of undue burden or expense bears the burden of demonstrating inaccessibility based on undue burden or expense [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.8(d)].

For a more detailed discussion and a step-by-step guide to opposing the production of ESI, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California E-Discovery and Evidence, Ch. 6, Demanding Production of Electronically Stored Evidence in California Court.

[5] Limiting Discovery

The court must limit the frequency or extent of ESI discovery, even from a source that is reasonably accessible, if the court determines that any of the following conditions exists [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.8(h)]:

- It is possible to obtain the information from some other source that is more convenient, less burdensome, or less expensive.

- The discovery sought is unreasonably cumulative or duplicative.

- The party seeking discovery has had ample opportunity by discovery in the action to obtain the information sought.

- The likely burden or expense of the proposed discovery outweighs the likely benefit, taking into account the amount in controversy, the resources of the parties, the importance of the issues in the litigation, and the importance of the requested discovery in resolving the issues.

A claim of privilege or work product protection may also limit discovery of ESI [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.8(i); see Code Civ. Proc. § 2031.285 (governing claim of privilege or protection)]. For detailed discussion of privilege and work product protection in the ESI context, see Ch. 195A, Discovery: Discovery of Electronically Stored Evidence (E-Discovery).

[6] Sanctions

Absent exceptional circumstances, the court may not impose sanctions on a subpoenaed person or that person's attorney for failure to provide ESI that has been lost, damaged, altered, or overwritten as the result of the routine, good faith operation of an electronic information system. However, this provision does not alter any obligation to preserve otherwise discoverable information [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.8(l)(1); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.8(l)(2)].

For a step-by-step guide, as well as forms for use to seek or oppose sanctions for noncompliance, see Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California E-Discovery and Evidence, Ch. 13, Seeking or Opposing Sanctions for Noncompliance.

46-535 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 535.21B

§ 535.21B Subpoenas in California for Out-of-State Proceedings

[1] Governing Law

Effective January 1, 2010 [Stats. 2008 ch. 231, § 3; Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.900], the Interstate and International Depositions and Discovery Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.100 et seq.] governs deposition subpoenas, subpoenas for inspections and copying of books, documents, records, ESI, or tangible things, and for inspection of premises in California for out-of-state actions. The Act applies to requests for discovery in cases pending on or after its effective date [Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.800]. The Act is California's version of the Uniform Interstate Depositions and Discovery Act [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.700].

The Civil Discovery Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.010 et seq], as well as Code Civ. Proc. Title 3 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985 et seq. (means of production)] and any other California law or court rule governing a deposition, the production of documents or other tangible items, or an inspection of premises, including any law or court rule governing payment of court costs or sanctions, apply to discovery under the Interstate and International Depositions and Discovery Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.500].

[2] Definitions

For purposes of the Interstate and International Depositions and Discovery Act, "foreign jurisdiction" means either a state other than California or a foreign nation [Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.200(a)]. A "foreign subpoena" is a subpoena issued under authority of a court of record of a foreign jurisdiction [Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.200(b)].

"Person" means an individual, corporation, business trust, estate, trust, partnership, limited liability company, association, joint venture, public corporation, government, or governmental subdivision, agency, or instrumentality, or any other legal or commercial entity [Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.200(c)].

"State" means a state of the United States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, a federally recognized Indian tribe, or any territory or insular possession subject to the jurisdiction of the United States [Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.200(d)].

"Subpoena" means a document, however denominated, issued under authority of a court of record requiring a person to do any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.200(e)]:

- Attend and give testimony at a deposition.
- Produce and permit inspection and copying of designated books, documents, records, electronically stored information, or tangible things in the possession, custody, or control of the person.
- Permit inspection of premises under the control of the person.

[3] Procedure for Obtaining Subpoena

To request issuance of a subpoena, a party must submit the original or a true and correct copy of a foreign subpoena to the clerk of the superior court in the California county in which discovery is sought to be conducted [Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.300(a)]. A request for the issuance of a subpoena in these circumstances does not constitute making an appearance in the California courts [Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.300(a)].

In addition to submitting a foreign subpoena, as described above, a party seeking discovery must do both of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.300(b)]:

- Submit an application requesting that the superior court issue a subpoena with the same terms as the foreign subpoena. The application must be on the official Judicial Council form [see Judicial Council Form SUBP-030, reproduced and discussed in Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions, § 193.180].
- Pay the specified fee [see Gov. Code § 70626].

When these requirements are satisfied, the court clerk must promptly issue a subpoena for service on the person to which the foreign subpoena is directed [Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.300(c)].

[4] Subpoena Form and Contents

A subpoena issued under Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.300 must [Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.300(d)]:

- Incorporate the terms used in the foreign subpoena.
- Contain or be accompanied by the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of all counsel of record in the proceeding to which the subpoena relates and of any party not represented by counsel.
- Bear the caption and case number of the out-of-state case to which it relates.
- State the name of the court that issues it.
- Be on the official Judicial Council form [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.390; see, e.g., § 535.85[1] (subpoena for production of business records in action pending outside California)].

[5] Party Not Required to Retain Local Attorney

A party is not required to retain a local attorney to depose a witness in these circumstances. The Act permits an active member of the California State Bar who is retained by a party to an out-of-state court proceeding to issue a deposition subpoena [Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.350(a)]. A subpoena that issues under Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.350(a) must [Code

Civ. Proc. § 2029.350(b)]:

- Incorporate the terms used in the foreign subpoena.

- Contain or be accompanied by the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of all counsel of record in the proceeding to which the subpoena relates and of any party not represented by counsel.

- Bear the caption and case number of the out-of-state case to which it relates.

- State the name of the superior court of the county in which the discovery is to be conducted.

- Be the official Judicial Council form [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.390; § 535.85[1] (Judicial Council Form SUBP-035)].

[6] Service of Subpoena

A discovery subpoena issued under the Act must be personally served in compliance with California law, including, without limitation, Code Civ. Proc. § 1985 [Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.400]. For discussion of service, see § 535.17.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 535.22 Private Records of Public Employees

The procedures set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3 [discussed in § 535.21] are applicable to a subpoena duces tecum for records containing "personal information," as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 1798.3, that are otherwise exempt from public disclosure under Gov. Code § 6254 that are maintained by a state or local agency as defined in Gov. Code § 6252 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.4]. For the purposes of applying the procedures of Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3 pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.4, the term "witness" means a state or local agency as defined in Gov. Code § 6252, and the term "consumer" means any employee of any state or local agency as defined in Gov. Code § 6252, or any other natural person [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.4]. Gov. Code § 6254(c) exempts personnel, medical, or similar files, the disclosure of which would constitute an unwarranted invasion of privacy, from the public disclosure requirement of the Public Records Act (Gov. Code §§ 6250-6267). For a more detailed discussion of the disclosure requirement of the Public Records Act and its exemptions, see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act .

§ 535.22A Nonparty Objection to Subpoena

Nonparties who want to challenge a deposition subpoena calling for either records only or records and testimony may, but are not required to, file a motion to quash the subpoena. They may simply wait, putting the onue on the proponent to move to compel, and object to the subpoena in opposition to the proponent's motion [Monarch Healthcare v. Superior Court (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1282, 1284, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 619 (as matter of first impression, petitioner nonparty's timely objection to records-only discovery request for privileged information was sufficient; nonparty was not required to file a motion to quash); see § 535.23; cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.1(a) (motions to quash) with Code Civ. Proc. § 2025.460(a) (objections to disclosure)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 535.23 Quashing, Modifying or Enforcing Compliance With Subpoena

[1] Motion Procedure

The court may issue an order quashing a subpoena entirely, modifying it, or directing compliance with it on specified terms or conditions. This may be done on a motion reasonably made by the party, the witness, any party-consumer described in Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3, any party-employee described in Code of Civ. Proc. § 1985.6 [see discussion in § 535.21[7]], a person whose personally identifying information [see Civ. Code § 1798.79.8 (definition)] is sought in connection with an underlying action involving that person's exercise of free speech rights, or on the court's own motion after giving counsel an opportunity to be heard [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.1(a)]. In the case of a consumer or employee, this also may be done by on the filing of a motion by the requesting party after written objections are served by a nonparty consumer or employee pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(g), 1985.6(f) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(e), (g), 1985.6(f)]. The court may also make any other order to protect the parties, the witness, the consumer, the employee, or the person whose personally identifying information [see Civ. Code § 1798.79.8 (definition)] is sought in connection with an underlying action involving that person's exercise of free speech rights, from unreasonable or oppressive demands, including unreasonable violations of the right of privacy of the person [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.1(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(g) (consumer), 1985.6(f) (employee); for forms, see §§ 535.74 -535.77]. Pursuant to a motion to quash, the court examines the issues raised and determines the relevancy of the evidence sought to be elicited and whether the requested order for production would constitute an unlawful invasion of privacy [Southern Pac. Co. v. Superior Court (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 206, 209, 100 P.2d 302] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Meet and Confer. Meet and confer with opposing counsel before bringing a motion. It may result in narrowing or eliminating the discovery dispute. By Corinne Burt.

[2] By Public Employees

Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.1 does not mention a motion to quash by a public employee whose private records are sought by subpoena duces tecum [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.1(a); see discussion at § 535.22]. However, Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(g), which provides that a consumer that is a party to the action may bring a motion to quash under Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.1, is made applicable to certain public records by Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.4. Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.4

defines the term "consumer" for its own purposes as an employee of a state or public agency, as defined in Gov. Code § 6252, or any other natural person [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.4]. Thus, it appears that Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(g) and 1985.4, taken together, entitle a state or local agency employee who is a party to the action to bring a motion to quash pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.1(a) when the records in question are covered by Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.4. Furthermore, Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(g) provides that a nonparty consumer whose personal records are sought may serve a written objection that states the specific grounds on which production should be prohibited. Therefore, a nonparty public employee would be similarly entitled to file a written objection to prevent production, in lieu of bringing a motion to quash, under Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(g) [see discussion at § 535.21[8]]. For a more detailed discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.4, see § 535.22.

[3] Grounds for Motion

A motion to quash or modify a subpoena may be made on the grounds that the subpoena fails to comply with the form, content, or service requirements of the applicable statutory provisions [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 53.30, 1985, 1985.3, 2020.210 et seq.; see Mosk v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 474, 479, 159 Cal. Rptr. 494 (subpoena quashed on grounds that public investigation pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 902.5, was unconstitutional in light of California Constitution)]. It may also be made on the grounds that the matters sought to be discovered are privileged, protected, or otherwise beyond the scope of discovery [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010; see also Rudnick v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 924, 929, 114 Cal. Rptr. 603 ("[t]here can be no discovery of matter which is privileged")]. The motion may also be made on the grounds that the discovery sought is an unreasonable or oppressive demand or unreasonable violation of the deponent's right to privacy [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.1(a)] or that it is unreasonably cumulative, duplicative, or obtainable from another source that is more convenient, less burdensome, or less expensive [Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.030(a)].

[4] Costs of Motion

If the court finds that the motion to quash or modify was made or opposed in bad faith or without substantial justification, or that one or more of the requirements of the subpoena was oppressive, the court, in its discretion, may award the amount of the reasonable expenses incurred in making or opposing the motion, including reasonable attorney's fees [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.2(a)].

If a motion is filed under Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.1 for an order to quash or modify a subpoena from the state of California for personally identifying information [see Civ. Code § 1798.79.8(b) (definition)], for use in an action pending in another state, territory, or district of the United States, or in a foreign nation, and that subpoena has been served on any Internet service provider, or on the provider of any other interactive computer service [see 47 U.S.C. § 230(f)(2) (definition)], the court must award the amount of the reasonable expenses incurred in making the motion, including reasonable attorney's fees, if the moving party prevails, and if the underlying action arises from the moving party's exercise of free speech rights on the Internet, and the respondent has failed to make a prima facie showing of a cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.2(b)].

§ 535.24 Notice in Lieu of Subpoena

[1] Persons Subject to Notice

The service of a subpoena is not required for certain parties if written notice requesting the witness to attend before a court or at a trial of an issue therein is served on the attorney of the party or person. The following persons may be compelled to attend with written notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(b)]:

- A party to the record of any civil action or proceeding;
- A person for whose immediate benefit the action or proceeding is prosecuted or defended; and
- Anyone who is an officer, director, or managing agent of any such party or person.

For a discussion of the use of a notice pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 2025.280(a) in lieu of a subpoena re deposition, see Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions . For a discussion of the time of service of the notice, see § 535.17[2].

[2] Definition of "Benefitted Persons"

A benefitted person is one who would have an immediate right to an amount recovered, or some of it, as soon as it is recovered by a nominal plaintiff [Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Superior Court (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 832, 837-838, 103 Cal. Rptr. 709, 500 P.2d 621 ; Waters v. Superior Court (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 885, 897, 27 Cal. Rptr. 153, 377 P.2d 265] . A person with immediate and direct liability is a person for whose immediate benefit an action is defended [Waters v. Superior Court (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 885, 897, 27 Cal. Rptr. 153, 377 P.2d 265] .

[3] Time of Service

The written notice must be served on the attorney of the party or person at least 10 days before the time required for attendance, unless the court prescribes a shorter time [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987].

[4] Witness Fees on Notice

If entitled to such compensation, the witness, on demand, must be paid witness fees and mileage before being required to testify [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987; see § 535.18].

[5] Requests for Books, Documents, or Other Things

If the notice is served at least 20 days before the time required for attendance, or within such shorter time as is ordered by the court, it may include a request that the party or person bring with him or her books, documents, or other things. The notice must then state the exact things or materials desired and that the party or person has them in his or her possession or under his or control [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(c)]. This procedure is alternative to the procedure provided by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985 and 1987.5 (subpoena duces tecum and accompanying affidavit), in the cases provided for in Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(c). No subpoena duces tecum is required in these cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(c)].

[6] Objection to Notice Requesting Production

Within five days after service of the notice, or within such other period as the court may allow, the party or person to whom the request to bring books, documents, or other things is made may serve and file written objections to all of any part of the request with a statement of grounds [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(c); see § 535.80; see also § 535.75 (form for Written Objection to Subpoena Duces Tecum by Nonparty Consumer or Employee)]. The five-day period for objection is extended if the notice was served by mail [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(c), (e) (extension when service is by Express Mail or fax); Shell Oil Co. v. Superior Court (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 489, 491, 123 Cal. Rptr. 307 (interpreting Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a) before 1980 amendment)].

§ 535.25 Examination of Prisoners

A court in which the action or special proceeding is pending (with the exception of small claims court) or certain judges (as provided for in Code Civ. Proc. § 1995(2)) may order the production of prisoners before the court or the prisoner's examination in jail for the purpose of deposing him or her [Code Civ. Proc. § 1995]. The production of the prisoner may only be required if the witness is imprisoned in a jail in the county in which the action or proceeding is pending. In all other cases, the examination of the prisoner, when allowed, must be taken on deposition [Code Civ. Proc. § 1997].

Such an order may be made only on the motion of a party, on affidavit showing the nature of the action or proceeding, the testimony expected from the witness, and its materiality [Code Civ. Proc. § 1996]. See the discussion of examination of prisoners in Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions.

[a] In General

Disobedience to a subpoena or refusal to be sworn, to answer as a witness, or to subscribe an affidavit when required may be punished as a contempt by the court that issued the subpoena [Code Civ. Proc. § 1991]. For a discussion and forms relating to contempt, see Ch. 135, Contempt .

Failure to appear at another time or place or on such notice as may be agreed on pursuant to an agreement with the party at whose request a subpoena is issued may also be punishable as contempt [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.1]. Facts establishing or disproving such an agreement and the failure to appear may be proved by affidavit (or declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) of any person having personal knowledge of the facts [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.1].

Advising a witness to conceal himself or herself for the purpose of avoiding service of a subpoena is a violation of Penal Code § 136.1 (preventing or dissuading person from testifying as misdemeanor), and therefore is unlawful within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1209(a)(8) (unlawful interference with process or proceedings of court as contempt) [In re Holmes (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 934, 942-943, 193 Cal. Rptr. 790] .

[b] Service of Subpoena on Witness Necessary for Jurisdiction

For contempt proceedings to be proper when a witness has not obeyed a subpoena, the subpoena must have been served directly on the witness. Substituted service of a subpoena on an attorney does not confer personal jurisdiction over the witness. Therefore, the witness may not be held in criminal contempt for not obeying the subpoena if the service of the subpoena was made without the witness's knowledge and out of the witness's presence [In re Abrams (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 685, 687, 694-695, 166 Cal. Rptr. 749] .

[c] Direct Contempt

A contempt committed in the immediate view and presence of the court or the judge at chambers, known as a direct contempt, is treated summarily [Code Civ. Proc. § 1211; Arthur v. Superior Court (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 404, 407, 42 Cal. Rptr. 441, 398 P.2d 777] . No hearing is required in a direct contempt proceeding [DeGeorge v. Superior Court (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 305, 315, 114 Cal. Rptr. 860] .

[d] Subpoena Requiring Attendance Out of Court

When the subpoena requires attendance of the witness before an officer or commissioner out of court, special rules apply. The witness may not be punished for any refusal to be sworn, to answer a question, or to subscribe an affidavit, unless after a hearing on notice, the court orders the witness to be sworn, to answer, or to subscribe. The witness may then be punished for disobedience of the court's order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1991]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1991 includes provisions for reporting such disobedience and for issuing the order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1991].

Different provisions apply, however, if the subpoena requires attendance at a deposition [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1991.1, 1991.2, 2020.240, 2025.480]. For discussion, procedures, and forms relating to acts and omissions at depositions, see Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions .

[e] Public Safety Employees

Notwithstanding Code Civ. Proc. § 1211 or any other law, if an order of contempt is made affecting a public safety employee acting within the scope of employment because of the employee's failure to comply with a subpoena or subpoena duces tecum, the execution of any sentence must be stayed pending the filing within three judicial days of a petition for extraordinary relief testing the lawfulness of the court's order on which contempt is based [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 128(c), 1209(d)].

"Public safety employee" includes any peace officer, firefighter, paramedic, or any other employee of a public law enforcement agency whose duty is either to maintain official records or to analyze or present evidence for investigative or prosecutorial purposes [Code Civ. Proc. § 128(c), 1209(d)].

[f] Sexual Assault Victims

Notwithstanding Code Civ. Proc. § 1211 or any other law, if an order of contempt is made affecting the victim of sexual assault, when the contempt consists of refusing to testify concerning that sexual assault, the execution of any sentence is stayed pending the filing within three judicial days of a petition for extraordinary relief testing the lawfulness of the court's order, a violation of which is the basis for the contempt. "Sexual assault" means any act made punishable by Penal Code § 261, 262, 264.1, 285, 286, 288, 288a, or 289 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128(d)].

[g] Victims of Domestic Violence

Notwithstanding Code Civ. Proc. § 1211 or any other law, if an order of contempt is made affecting the victim of domestic violence, when the contempt consists of refusing to testify concerning that domestic violence, the execution of any sentence is stayed pending the filing within three judicial days of a petition for extraordinary relief testing the lawfulness of the court's order, a violation of which is the basis for the contempt [Code Civ. Proc. § 128(e)]. In a finding of contempt for a victim of sexual assault or domestic violence who refuses to testify about that sexual assault or domestic violence crime, the court may not incarcerate the victim [Code Civ. Proc. § 1219(b)]. As used in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 128(e), 1219, "domestic violence" means "domestic violence" as defined in Fam. Code § 6211 [see Ch. 293, Harassment and Domestic Violence]. For purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 1219, "sexual assault" means any act punishable by Penal Code §§ 261, 262, 264.1, 285, 286, 288, 288a, or 289 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1219(c)].

[2] Penalty

A witness who fails to obey a subpoena (or a court order) forfeits to the aggrieved party the sum of $500 and all damages that he or she may havesustained by the failure of the witness to attend. This forfeiture and damages may be recovered in a civil action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1992; see discussion in Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions]. In addition, the court may order that misuse of discovery process be treated as contempt of court [Code Civ. Proc. § 2020.240] or, in the alternative, issue a warrant for the arrest of witness or person who fails to appear [Code Civ. Proc. § 1993(a)(1); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1993(a)(2), (b), 1993.1-1993.2 (procedures); see also § 535.26[3]].

[3] Warrant and Arrest

As an alternative to a contempt sanction [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2020.240], the court may issue a warrant for the arrest of a witness who failed to appear pursuant to a subpoena or a person who failed to appear pursuant to a court order. The court, on proof of the service of the subpoena or order, may issue a warrant to the sheriff of the county in which the witness or person may be located and will arrest the witness or person and bring him or her before the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1993(a)(1); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1993(a)(2), (b), 1993.1-1993.2 (procedures); Gov. Code § 26744.5 (fees)].

A warrant of commitment issued pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1985 et seq. must specify, particularly, the cause of the commitment. If the cause is for refusing to answer a question, that question also must be stated in the warrant; see Allison v. County of Ventura (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 689, 702, 137 Cal. Rptr. 542 (body attachment issued to compel witness's attendance must specify reason for attachment, decided under prior law)].

[4] Other Sanctions

In addition, a judicial officer has the power to impose reasonable money sanctions, not to exceed $1,500, payable to the court, for violation by any person of a lawful court order without good cause or substantial justification. The term "person" includes a witness, a party, a party's attorney, or both [Code Civ. Proc. § 177.5].

PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

§ 535.43 Decisions

[1] Administrative Proceedings

Before confidential third party personal records may be disclosed in administrative proceedings, subpoenaing party is required to take reasonable steps to notify third party of pendency and nature of proceedings and to afford third party fair opportunity to object to disclosure by seeking protective order or by instituting other legal proceedings to limit discovery; legislature's failure to incorporate explicit notice provisions do not diminish constitutional privacy rights. Sehlmeyer v. Department of General Services (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1072, 1079-1081, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 840

[2] Disobedience of Subpoena

Act of knowingly assisting another person to evade service of process is unlawful act in violation of Penal Code § 136.1 (preventing or dissuading person from testifying is misdemeanor) and is within acts or omissions constituting contempt under Code Civ. Proc. § 1209(a)(8). In re Holmes (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 934, 936, 942, 193 Cal. Rptr. 790 (attorney who assisted husband in avoiding service of subpoena compelling him to testify as expert witness in civil case)

Punishment of contempt of court is not applicable to person not duly served with subpoena. Chapman v. Superior Court (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 194, 197, 67 Cal. Rptr. 842

Courts and judicial tribunals possess power to compel attendance of necessary witnesses. Walker Mining Co. v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1939) 35 Cal. App. 2d 257, 262-263, 95 P.2d 188

[3] Motion to Quash

Motion to quash subpoena duces tecum on ground of improper service is denied if service was only on California partner of national corporation, not on designated out-of-state custodian of records. Boal v. Price Waterhouse & Co.

(1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 806, 810-811, 212 Cal. Rptr. 42

Order quashing subpoena duces tecum does not prevent party from securing subpoena for attendance of persons without books or documents described in subpoena duces tecum. Walker v. Signal Companies, Inc. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 982, 1002, 149 Cal. Rptr. 119

Party does not have right to quash subpoena through motion based on invasion of third party's right to privacy. County of Kern v. Superior Court (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 396, 399, 401, 147 Cal. Rptr. 248

Motion to quash is procedurally appropriate method of testing validity of subpoena duces tecum. People ex rel. Dept. of Public Works v. Younger (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 575, 579, 86 Cal. Rptr. 237

[4] Production of Business Records

Compliance with subpoena duces tecum for production of business records under Evid. Code § 1563(b)(1) does not allow recovery of computer costs. In re Marriage of Stephens (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 909, 913, 203 Cal. Rptr. 331

[5] Production of Personal Records of Consumer

In accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 56.10(b)(3), subpoena required health care provider to disclose patient's medical records to ex-fiance's attorney because ex-fiance's attorney complied with Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(e), and patient did not file objection; this undisputed evidence was sufficient to establish complete defense to cause of action under Code Civ. Proc. § 56.10(b)(3). Colleen M. v. Fertility and Surgical Assocs. of Thousand Oaks (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 1466, 1479, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 439

Psychiatrist served with subpoena duces tecum requiring production of patients' records is required to produce those records if patients were notified that their records were sought and were informed of their right to object, but failed to take action to prevent disclosure. Inabnit v. Berkson (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1230, 1236-1239, 245 Cal. Rptr. 525

[6] Sufficiency of Affidavit Accompanying Subpoena Duces Tecum

Declarations that lacked any factual bases for legal conclusion that documents were material to proceedings failed to comply with Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(b). Lee v. Superior Court (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1108, 1112, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 712 (collecting cases)

Service of deposition subpoena on nonparty witness was effective despite absence of supporting affidavit or declaration; Code Civ. Proc. § 2020.510(b), providing that "[a] deposition subpoena need not be accompanied by an affidavit or declaration showing good cause for the production of the documents and things designated," controlled, prevailing over Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.5, which provides that service of subpoena duces tecum issued before trial without copy of affidavit is invalid. Terry v. SLICO (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 352, 359, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 900

Subpoenas issued for investigation permitted by statute does not require affidavit showing good cause. Fielder v. Berkeley Properties Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 30, 40, 99 Cal. Rptr. 791 (investigation pursuant to Gov. Code §§ 11180, 11181(a), (e) for Agricultural Code violations)

Affidavit for issuance of subpoena duces tecum based only on information and belief is insufficient. Grannis v. Board of Medical Examiners (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 551, 564, 96 Cal. Rptr. 863

Party is required to show good cause supporting affidavit for subpoena duces tecum for production of matters and things described in subpoena. Kenney v. Superior Court (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 106, 109, 63 Cal. Rptr. 84

[7] Witness Fees

Rule that fees of experts employed by one party are not allowable is codified in Gov. Code § 68092.5. Posey v. State of California (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 836, 852, 225 Cal. Rptr. 830

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLISTS

§ 535.50 Party Seeking Subpoena

[1] Make Preliminary Determinations

☐ What facts need to be proved to prevail?

☐ Who has the burden of proof?

☐ What information is necessary to prove those facts?

PRACTICE TIP:
Plan Requests to Save Costs and Avoid Objections. It is useful to spend the time before serving the subpoena to decide exactly what information is necessary, and then what specific questions or documents will yield this information. This will save expensive deposition time and may result in fewer objections to document requests. By Corinne Burt.

☐ Which will be more effective proof, witness testimony, or documents, or both?

☐ Who can provide that information, either by testimony, or the production of documents?

[2] Decide the Type and Content of the Subpoena Best Fitting Your Needs

☐ Does witness reside in California [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1989; § 535.14]?

☐ Status of witness:

☐ California Highway Patrol member [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1989 Gov. Code §

68097.3; § 535.14[4]].

☐ Party or party-related person [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(b)(c); § 535.54].

☐ Purpose of subpoena:

☐ To require attendance in court or for trial of issue in court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1986(a); § 535.12[1]].

☐ To require attendance out of court (except at deposition) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1986(c); § 535.12[3]].

☐ To require attendance on taking of deposition [see § 535.12[4]; see also Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions , Procedural Checklist].

☐ Date, time, and place for appearance.

☐ When service will be made, which must be reasonable time to allow witness to prepare and travel [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(a); § 535.17[2]].

☐ Documents to be produced, if any [for a checklist for a subpoena duces tecum if documents are to be requested, see § 535.51].

☐ Whether attorney of record in an action or proceeding may sign and issue subpoena without seal or must obtain signed and sealed subpoena from clerk or judge to be filled in by attorney. Attorney may sign and issue [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(c); for discussion, see § 535.13]:

☐ If subpoena is to require attendance before court in which action is pending; or

☐ If subpoena is to require attendance at deposition in action or proceeding.

☐ If person to be subpoenaed is public employee for whom fees must be paid [see § 535.19[1] -[3]], whether good cause may exist for relief from the duty to make any deposit or payment of fees or portion thereof [see Gov. Code § 68097.55; for discussion, see § 535.19[4]].

[3] Calendar Relevant Dates

PRACTICE TIP:

Calendaring the Relevant Dates Is Critical. Depending on the type of subpoena, the time within which to make an objection or motion to quash may be quite short. Always use calendaring to keep track both of the date after which objections are waived by lapse of time, and also of the date after which penalties for noncompliance may be enforced [see §§ 535.21[7], [8], 535.23, 535.26]. By Corinne Burt.

[4] Fees for Resident Peace Officer, Other Public Employee, or Nonresident California Highway Patrol

Member

☐ Be prepared to tender witness fees if witness is local agency employee, peace officer, firefighter, state employee, or trial court employee [see Gov. Code §§ 68096.1(a), (b), 68097.1, 68097.2(a), (b); § 535.19[1]].

[5] Prepare and Issue Subpoena

☐ As attorney of record, fill in, sign, and issue subpoena [for the form, see §§ 535.60, 535.61] if subpoena is to [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(c); § 535.13[2]]:

☐ Require attendance before the court in which the action or proceeding is pending.

☐ Require attendance at deposition in the action or proceeding.

☐ In any other situation, obtain signed and sealed subpoena from clerk or judge and fill it in [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(c); § 535.13[1]].

[6] Service

☐ Deliver original and one copy to server, who may be any person [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(a)].

NOTE:
The fee for a sheriff to subpoena witnesses is provided for in Gov. Code § 26743.

☐ Except for public employees, serve by delivering a copy of the subpoena, or ticket containing its substance, to witness personally or, if a minor, deliver to parent, guardian, conservator, or similar fiduciary, and, in specified cases, to the designated agent for service of process at the county child welfare department or the probation department under whose jurisdiction the minor has been placed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(a); § 535.17].

☐ For peace officers, firefighters, and other public employees or employees of the trial courts [see § 535.17[5]], serve as follows [Gov. Code § 68097.1(a), (b)]:

☐ Deliver one copy to the witness personally; or

☐ Deliver two copies to the employee's immediate superior (or agent designated by that superior to receive that service) at the place of employment.

☐ For peace officers of the Department of the California Highway Patrol (CHP):

☐ Deliver a copy to the peace officer personally [see Gov. Code § 68097.1(a)]; or

☐ Deliver two copies to the employee's immediate superior (or agent designated by that superior to receive that service) [see Gov. Code § 68097.1(a)]; or

☐ If witness is nonresident member of CHP, deliver a copy during office hours to the person in charge of the office of the CHP at least five days prior to the date scheduled for attendance [see Gov. Code § 68097.3].

☐ Pay witness fees.

☐ If demanded, pay required fees to witness on delivery of subpoena [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(a); Gov. Code § 68097; Gov. Code § 68093; § 535.18].

☐ For city or county employees, peace officers, firefighters, and state employees [see [2], above].

☐ For expert witnesses [see Gov. Code § 68092.5(a)]. If expert's fee is unreasonable, move for an order setting the compensation of the expert [Gov. Code § 68092.5(c); § 535.18[2]].

☐ Prepare proof of service [for an illustration of the form, see §§ 535.60, 535.61].

☐ File subpoena and proof with court (recommended but not required) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985 et seq.].

[7] Obtain Penalties for Noncompliance

☐ Contempt proceedings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1991, § 535.26[1], see also Ch. 135, Contempt].

☐ Request court to issue warrant to have witness arrested and brought before court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1993, 1993.1-1993.2; § 535.26[3]].

§ 535.51 Party Seeking Subpoena Duces Tecum

[1] Make Preliminary Determinations

☐ For checklist of initial determinations, see § 535.50[1].

☐ Facts showing good cause for requiring production of things to be produced under the subpoena, including [see § 535.16]:

☐ Materiality of the things to be produced to the issues involved in the case;

☐ Possession or control of things by witness who is to be subpoenaed.

☐ Whether subpoena is for production of business records of a business that is neither a party nor the place where the cause of action arose:

☐ If so, whether to require attendance of custodian of records and production of original records [see § 535.20].

☐ Whether subpoena is for production of consumer records [see § 535.21].

☐ If records sought are personal records maintained by a public utility telephone corporation [see Pub. Util. Code § 216], obtain consent to release signed by the consumer [see Code Civ. Proc. §

1985.3(f); for a form, see § 535.71].

[2] Deposit Fees for Nonresident California Highway Patrol Member

[3] Prepare and Issue Subpoena Duces Tecum, and Supporting Papers

☐ For checklist for preparing and issuing the subpoena, see § 535.50[3].

☐ Prepare supporting affidavit or declaration supporting subpoena duces tecum [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985(b), 2015.5; for forms, see §§ 535.61 -535.68].

☐ In case of subpoena duces tecum for personal records of consumer or employment records:

☐ Set a date for compliance that is no earlier than 20 days after issuance of the subpoena, or 15 days after its service, whichever is later [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(d), 1985.6(d), 2020.410(c); see § 535.21[3]].

☐ Prepare notice to affected consumer or employee [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(e), 1985.6(e) [for a form, see § 535.69]].

[4] Service

☐ For checklist for serving a subpoena, see § 535.50[3]. Accompany subpoena with:

☐ Supporting affidavit or declaration of good cause.

☐ If records sought are personal records maintained by a public utility telephone corporation, consent to release signed by the consumer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(f)].

☐ If records sought are consumer or employment records:

☐ Serve notice, proof of service, subpoena duces tecum, and supporting affidavit or declaration, if any, on consumer or employee [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(b)(1), 1985.6(b)(1); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(l), 1985.6(k) (when notice to consumer or employee and delivery of documents specified in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(b) or 1985.6(b) is not required); see generally § 535.21].

☐ Demonstrate compliance with notice requirements, by either:

☐ Serving subpoenaed witness with proof of personal service or of service by mail [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(b), (c)(1), 1985.6(b), 1985.6(c)(1)]; or ☐ Providing witness written authorization to release the records signed by consumer or employee, or by his or her attorney of record [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(c)(2), 1985.6(c)(2); for a form, see § 535.70].

☐ Payment of witness fees and reasonable costs [see § 535.50[6][c].

☐ If business records have been requested from a nonparty witness [see Evid. Code §§ 1563(b); § 535.20[3]].

☐ Time of service:

☐ Allow reasonable time [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(a); § 535.59[6][d]].

☐ Service must allow reasonable time to locate and produce the records themselves or copies of them. [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(d), (h) (consumer) or 1985.6(d), (g) (employee)].

NOTE:
Party subpoenaing a consumer's personal records or employee's employement records may be entitled to an order shortening time for service or a waiver of the requirements for providing notice to the consumer or employee [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(h), 1985.6(g)].

☐ Proof of service. The person making service prepares proof of service on reverse side of original subpoena [see §§ 535.60, 535.61].

NOTE:
Appearance at Deposition. For requirements relating to service of a subpoena duces tecum regarding a deposition, see Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions .

[5] File Documents

☐ Retain original affidavit until final judgment, and file with court only on reasonable request [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.5]. If original affidavit is filed on request, file with the original subpoena duces tecum and proof of service.

☐ If business records from a nonparty were made available at the place of business rather than sent, deliver copy of records as directed in the subpoena, with affidavit stating that the copy is a true copy of all the records delivered [see Evid. Code §§ 1560(e), 1561(c); § 535.68].

[6] Obtain Penalties for Noncompliance With Subpoena Duces Tecum

☐ For checklist for obtaining penalties against a person for failure to comply with a subpoena, see § 535.50[5].

§ 535.60 Civil Subpoena with Proof of Service [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985; Cal. Judicial Council Form SUBP-001]

[1] FORM Civil Subpoena with Proof of Service [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985; Cal. Judicial Council Form SUBP-001]

The civil subpoena set out in [1], above, is a reproduction of Cal. Judicial Council Form SUBP-001, adopted by the Judicial Council for mandatory use [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appendix, Div. A]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form is for use in requiring the personal attendance of a witness at a trial or hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(a)]. For a form for a subpoena duces tecum, requiring the witness to produce records in addition to or in lieu of a personal appearance, see § 536.61.

[3] Procedure for Obtaining Subpoenas

The subpoena may be obtained from the clerk of the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1986(a)]. If the subpoena requires attendance before a commissioner appointed by a non-California court, it may be obtained from the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the witness is to be examined [Code Civ. Proc. § 1986(b)].

[4] Issuance

The subpoena or subpoena duces tecum is issued, signed and sealed by the clerk or a judge to the party requesting it [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(c)].

The attorney of record may also sign and issue a subpoena to require attendance before the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(c)].

[5] Filling in Form

[a] Heading

The heading should be filled in with the name, bar membership number, address, and telephone number of the attorney for the subpoenaing party, the name of the subpoenaing party, the name and address of the court (including its branch name, if any), the names of the plaintiff and defendant, and the case number. The name of the witness should be filled in under "THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA, TO (name)."

[b] Attendance Requirement (Paragraph 1)

Paragraph 1 directs the witness to appear at a particular time and place in order to testify unless the witness agrees otherwise with the person named in item 3 [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985(a), 1985.1].

[c] Agreement to Appear at Another Time (Paragraph 2)

Paragraph 2 is included to comply with the notice required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.2. Paragraph 1 provides that the person must appear as a witness unless the person subpoenaed makes a special agreement with the person named in Paragraph 2. Hence, Paragraphs 1 and 2 also serve to notify the witness that in lieu of appearance at the time and place specified, the witness may agree with the party at whose request the subpoena was issued to appear at another time or on such notice as may be agreed on [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.1].

Paragraph 4 is designed to satisfy the requirement that any witness subpoenaed in a civil or administrative action must be given written notice that he or she may be entitled to receive witness and mileage fees [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2065]. See the discussion of witness fees generally at § 535.18 and fees for public employees at § 535.19.

[6] Disobedience of Subpoena

This form states that disobedience of a subpoena may be punished as contempt [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1991] and that the person disobeying the subpoena will also be liable for a $500 penalty and all damages resulting from his or her failure to obey [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1992].

[7] Proof of Service

The reverse side of the subpoena form contains a proof of service to be filled in by the server after service is made.

[2] Use of Form

The civil subpoena duces tecum and supporting declaration set out in [1], above, is a reproduction of Cal. Judicial Council Form SUBP-002, adopted by the Judicial Council for mandatory use [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appendix, Div. A]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form is for use in requiring a witness to appear in person and produce specified records, books, documents, or other things, or, alternatively, to produce the specified records only [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(a); Evid. Code § 1560 et seq.]. For a form for a subpoena for use in requiring personal attendance only, see § 536.60.

[3] Procedure for Obtaining Subpoena Duces Tecum

If the subpoena duces tecum requires attendance or production of records before a court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1986(a)]. If it requires attendance or production of records before a commissioner appointed by a non-California court, it may be obtained from the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the witness is to be examined [Code Civ. Proc. § 1986(b)].

[4] Issuance

The subpoena duces tecum is issued, signed and sealed by the clerk or a judge to the party requesting it [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(c)]. The attorney of record may also sign and issue a subpoena duces tecum to require production of the matters or things described in the subpoena [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(c)].

[5] Filling in Form

[a] Heading

The heading should be filled in with the name, bar membership number, address, and telephone number of the attorney for the subpoenaing party, the name of the subpoenaing party, the name and address of the court (including its branch name, if any), the names of the plaintiff and defendant, and the case number. The appropriate information should be filled in under "THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA, TO (name, address, and telephone number of deponent, if known)."

[b] Requirement of Attendance and Production of Records

Paragraph 1 directs the witness to appear at a particular time and place unless the appearance is excused under Paragraph 3(b), discussed below, or the witness makes an agreement otherwise with the person named in Paragraph 4, discussed in [c], below [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985(a), 1985.1].

Paragraph 2 provides notice to the witness that, if he or she is the custodian of consumer or employee records sought under Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3 or 1985.6, and he or she has been served with a motion to quash the subpoena or an objection, then he or she is not to produce the records unless and until further directed by a court order or agreement of the parties [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(g), 1985.6(f)(3) and discussion in § 535.21[7], [8]; for forms for an objection and a motion to quash, see respectively §§ 535.69 and 535.74].

Paragraphs 3(a) and 3(b) are mutually exclusive, and only one is to be checked by the subpoenaing party. Paragraph 3(a) is checked when personal appearance by the witness or custodian is required.

Paragraph 3(b) is checked when, alternatively, the subpoenaing party does not require personal appearance but only that the custodian mail or deliver copies of all the records described in the subpoena in compliance with Evid. Code § 1560 et seq. [see § 535.20[1]]. Paragraph 3(b) provides the witness or custodian with instructions for delivering the required copies. Note that if the subpoenaing party in a civil action has chosen the alternative procedure set out in Paragraph 3(b), a witness or custodian may comply with a subpoena duces tecum by making the records available to the subpoenaing party's attorney or that attorney's representative or deposition officer at the business address of the witness under reasonable conditions during normal business hours [see Evid. Code § 1560(e) and discussion in §§ 535.20[1][c], 535.67[2], [3]].

[c] Agreement to Appear at Another Time

Paragraph 4 is included to comply with the notice required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.2. Paragraph 1 provides that the witness or custodian must appear or produce records as directed, unless he or she makes a special agreement to do otherwise with the person named in Paragraph 4. Paragraphs 1 and 4 also serve to notify the witness that, in lieu of appearance or production at the time and place specified, the witness or custodian may agree with the party at whose request the subpoena was issued to appear at another time or on such notice as may be agreed on [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.1].

[d] Witness Fees

Paragraph 5 is designed to satisfy the requirement that any witness subpoenaed in a civil or administrative action must be given written notice that he or she may be entitled to receive witness and mileage fees [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2065 and discussion in § 535.18 (witness fees generally), § 535.19 (fees for public employees)].

[6] Supporting Declaration

A subpoena duces tecum must be accompanied by a copy of an affidavit or declaration that shows good cause for the production of the matters and things described in the subpoena duces tecum and that sets forth their materiality to the issues involved in the case [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(b)]. Page two of the form allows to the subpoenaing party to check one of two options: (1) that the subpoena is supported by an attached declaration [see, e.g., §§ 535.62 -535.67], or (2) that it is supporting by the form of declaration provided on that page (with accompanying attachments, if any).

In order to make a proper showing of good cause, the affidavit or declaration must specify the exact matters or things desired to be produced, setting forth in full detail their materiality to the issues involved in the case, and stating that the witness has the desired matters or things in his or her possession or under his or her control [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(b); see Lee v. Superior Court (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1108, 1126-1130, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 712 (subpoenas duces tecum were ineffective because each failed to include declaration containing "a sufficient statement of materiality" as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(b))]. The affidavit must show that the requested material contains competent and admissible evidence that is material to some disputed issue of fact at the trial [People v. Schmitt (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 87, 106, 317 P.2d 673] .

The affidavit cannot consist of reliance "merely upon the legal conclusion, stated in general terms, that the desired documentary evidence is relevant and material" [McClatchy Newspapers v. Superior Court (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 386, 396, 159 P.2d 944 ; Lee v. Superior Court (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1108, 1112, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 712 (declarations that lacked any factual bases for legal conclusion that documents were material to proceedings failed to comply with Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(b), collecting cases, quoting McClatchy); Johnson v. Superior Court (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 829, 837, 66 Cal. Rptr. 134 ("the trial court must be afforded the factual data by the required affidavit to enable it to make an informed ruling on the issues of materiality and good cause")]. Rather, the documents or other things should be described with such certainty that the person producing the records is reasonably apprised of what is required [Pacific Auto. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 61, 68-69, 77 Cal. Rptr. 836 ; see also Flora Crane Serv., Inc. v. Superior Court (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 767, 785-786, 45 Cal. Rptr. 79] .

For further discussion of the supporting declaration, including retention requirements, see § 535.16.

[7] Disobediance of Subpoena

The form, at the bottom of the first page, states that disobedience of a subpoena may be punished as contempt [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1991] and that the person disobeying the subpoena will also be liable for a $500 penalty and all damages resulting from his or her failure to obey [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1992].

[8] Proof of Service

Page three of the form contains a proof of service to be filled in by the server after service is made.

_____ [name],	)	DUCES TECUM
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Dept: _____
		Trial Date: _____

I, _____ [name], declare:

1. I am _____ [identify declarant, e.g., an attorney at law duly admitted to practice before all the courts of the State of California and the attorney of record herein for _____ (specify party) or other statement as appropriate].

2. This cause was duly set for trial on _____ [date], at _____ [time], in Department _____ of the above-entitled court.

3. _____ [Name of witness] has in his/her possession or under his/her control the following things:

_____ [specify exact matters or things to be produced].

4. The described items are material to the issues and good cause exists for the production of the described items, in that:

The above-entitled action is one for personal injuries arising out of an automobile accident; the plaintiff named above received medical care and attention for said injuries at _____ Hospital, located at _____ [address]; these medical records, diagnoses, histories, X rays, and other data are material and relevant and necessary for a proper prosecution of the above case. Good cause exists for their production in that _____ [specify reasons, e.g., they are unavailable elsewhere].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[2] Use of Form

The form of declaration in [1], above, signed under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5], is for use in support of a subpoena duces tecum requiring a hospital to produce in court documents relating to the medical care and attention received by a plaintiff subsequent to injuries suffered by him or her. It should be attached to the mandatory form of subpoena duces tecum [see § 535.61[1] and [6]].

Such a declaration is required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(b) for issuance of a subpoena duces tecum.

For discussion of compliance by hospital records custodians with subpoenas duces tecum, see §§ 535.20, 535.67.

[3] Deposition Subpoenas

The process by which a nonparty is required to provide discovery through deposition is a deposition subpoena [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2020.010-2020.020, 2025.280(b)]. The Judicial Council has adopted three forms of deposition subpoenas. One is for use to require the attendance, testimony, and production of documents or tangible things of a nonparty deponent. The other is for use to require the production of business records by a nonparty. When either form is appropriate, its use is mandatory [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.30-1.35]. A deposition subpoena need not be accompanied by an affidavit or declaration showing good cause for the production of documents or things designated [Code Civ. Proc. § 2020.410(e)]. For discussion of deposition subpoenas, and reproductions of the Judicial Council forms of deposition subpoena, see Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions .

3. The accompanying copies are true copies of all the records described in the subpoena that are in my possession as custodian of records of _____ [name of business].

[OR]

3. All of the records described in the subpoena duces tecum were delivered to _____ [name of subpoenaing party's attorney or that attorney's representative or deposition officer] at _____ [address], my business address, under reasonable conditions during normal business hours.

[CONTINUE]

4. These records were prepared by the personnel of _____ [name of business], and by other persons acting under the control of those personnel, in the ordinary course of business, at or near the times of the acts, conditions, or events recorded therein.

[5. If additional records requested are not being produced, add: Of the records described in the subpoena duces tecum, _____ (name of business) does not have the following: _____.]

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [signature of custodian or other qualified witness]

The form of declaration in [1], above, is for use by a custodian of business records or other qualified witness whose personal attendance was not requested by the subpoenaing party pursuant to Evid. Code § 1564, in complying with a subpoena duces tecum that requires the production of all or any part of the records of a business in an action in which the business is neither a party nor the place where any cause of action is alleged to have happened [see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.3]. It should be attached to the mandatory form of subpoena duces tecum [see § 535.61[1] and [6]].

Alternative allegations regarding the form of the custodian's compliance are provided in Paragraph 3 [see Evid. Code § 1561(a)(2)]. The first alternative is for use when the custodian is providing copies of the documents requested. The second alternative is for use when the subpoenaing party in a civil action chose the procedure of Evid. Code § 1560(e), and when the custodian delivered the records for copying by the subpoenaing party's attorney, that attorney's representative or deposition officer described in Code Civ. Proc. § 2020.420. The declaration is to accompany the records called for in the subpoena duces tecum [see Evid. Code § 1561(a)].

[3] Time of Compliance

The custodian or qualified witness may comply with the subpoena duces tecum by mailing or delivering, within 15 days after receipt of the subpoena, or within the time agreed on with the subpoenaing party, a true, legible, and durable copy of all records described in the subpoena together with this declaration or an affidavit to the court clerk or, if there is no clerk, to the judge or to another person described in Code Civ. Proc. § 2026.010 (person conducting deposition outside California) [Evid. Code § 1560(b)].

If the subpoenaing party in a civil action has chosen the alternative procedure authorized by Evid. Code § 1560(e), there is no time of compliance specified, although the "reasonable conditions" requirement arguably implies the same 15-day requirement. When provided with at least five business days advance notice by the attorney, his or her representative, or deposition officer (see Code Civ. Proc. § 2020.420), the witness must designate a time period of not less than six continuous hours on a day certain for copying of the subpoenaed records by the attorney, the attorney's representative, or deposition officer [Evid. Code § 1560(e)]. Under that alternative, the attorney's representative has the responsibility of delivering any copy of the records as directed in the subpoena, as well as an accompanying affidavit [Evid. Code §§ 1560(e), 1561(c); see § 535.68].

If a witness disobeys a subpoena served pursuant to Evid. Code § 1560(e), the disobedience may be punished as a contempt as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 2020.240 [Evid. Code § 1560(e)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 2020.240 provides that disobedience of deposition subpoena may be punished for contempt under Code Civ. Proc. 2023.010 et seq. without the necessity of a prior order of court directing compliance [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.030(e) (court may impose a sanction for misuse of the civil discovery process by issuing an order treating the misuse as a contempt of court); for discussion of the use of contempt orders to punish disobedience of subpoenas generally, see § 535.26[1]]. The witness or person who fails to appear pursuant to a subpoena or a court order is also subject to the forfeiture and payment of damages set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1992 [Code Civ. Proc. § 2020.240]. In addition to a contempt sanction, the court may issue a warrant for the arrest of witness or person who fails to appear [Code Civ. Proc. § 1993(a)(1); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1993(a)(2), (b), 1993.1-1993.2 (procedures); see generally § 535.26[2], [3]].

[4] Declaration of Custodian or Witness

The accompanying affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) of the custodian or other qualified witness must state the following [Evid. Code § 1561(a)]:

- The declarant is the duly authorized custodian of the records or other qualified witness and has authority to certify the records;

- The copies are true copies of all records described in the subpoena duces tecum, or, pursuant to Evid. Code § 1560(e), the records were delivered to the attorney, the attorney's representative, or deposition officer for copying at the custodian's or witness's place of business, as the case may be; and

- The records were prepared by the personnel of the business in the ordinary course of business at or near the time of the act, condition, or event.

If the business does not have any of the records described, or has only a part of them, the custodian or other qualified witness must so state in the affidavit and deliver the affidavit and any available records in one of the manners provided in Evid. Code § 1560 [Evid. Code § 1561(b); for discussion, see § 535.20].

Counsel will note some variation between the format of this form and the explicit provisions of Evid. Code § 1561(a); this was deliberate and reflects compliance with Evid. Code § 1560(e). There is some inconsistency between Evid. Code §§ 1560 and 1561 regarding the description of the person served. Some provisions refer to a custodian or other witness [see Evid. Code §§ 1560(b), 1561(a)-(c)]. Evid. Code § 1560(e) specifies that the records be made available at the witness's place of business and is the only provision not using the term "custodian." Although in most instances the custodian and witness are the same person, that is not necessarily always the case and the declaration is limited to "witness."

[5] Transmittal

The copy of the records and the declaration or affidavit are mailed or delivered in the manner described in the Procedural Guide, § 535.42[1] [see Evid. Code § 1560(c)-(e)].

[2] Use of Form

The form of declaration in [1], above, is for use by the subpoenaing party's attorney, that attorney's representative, or deposition officer when business records have been made available by a witness pursuant to Evid. Code § 1560(e). Evid. Code § 1560(e) provides an alternative to the procedures described in Evid. Code § 1560(b), (c), and (d), and authorizes the subpoenaing party in a civil action to direct the witness to make the records available for inspection or copying by the party's attorney or the attorney's representative at the business address of the witness under reasonable conditions during normal business hours. When this procedure is used, the attorney's representative has the responsibility of delivering any copy of the records as directed in the subpoena [Evid. Code § 1560(e)]. The declaration is to accompany the copy of the records made by the attorney, his or her representative, or deposition officer [Evid. Code § 1561(c)].

[2] Use of Form

[a] Adopted by Judicial Council for Mandatory Use

The form in [1], above, is a reproduction of Judicial Council Form SUBP-025, adopted for mandatory use in providing the notice described in [b], below [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appendix, Div. C]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[b] Notice to Consumer or Employee That Personal Records Are Being Subpoenaed

The primary use of the Judicial Council form in [1], above, is by a party who is serving a subpoena duces tecum on a witness to compel the production of records that contain personal information concerning a consumer or employee. In this situation the subpoenaing party must serve this form, together with a copy of the subpoena, in order to provide notice to the consumer or employee that his or her personal records are being sought for inspection [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(b), 1985.6(b); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(l), 1985.6(k) (when notice to consumer or employee and delivery of documents specified in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(b) or 1985.6(b) is not required); see generally § 535.21[4][a]].

If a notice of taking a deposition is also to be served on the consumer or employee, the deposition notice may be attached to this form and served as a single document [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(e), 1985.6(e); see § 535.21[4][b]]. For forms for a deposition notice, see Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions .

This form may also be adapted for use to give notice to a state or local agency employee or any other natural person of a request for production of records containing "personal information," as defined in Civ. Code § 1798.3(a), maintained by a state or local agency that pertain to that individual, when this notice is required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3. The subpoena procedures set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3 apply to subpoenas of records of state or local agency employees or other natural persons maintained by state or public agencies when these records are otherwise exempt from disclosure by the terms of Gov. Code § 6254 (exemption from disclosure under Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6250 et seq.] when disclosure invades privacy) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.4].

[c] Objection by Non-party Consumer or Employee

A portion of the form set out in [1], above is an objection for use by a non-party recipient of the notice who wishes to object to the productionof the subpoenaed records. The objection must be served on the subpoenaing party [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(g), 1985.6(f)(2); see § 535.21[8]].

[3] Contents of Notice

The notice to the consumer or employee/s or to his or her representative indicate the following in a typeface designed to call attention to the notice [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(e), 1985.6(e)]:

- Records about the consumer or employee are being sought from the witness named on the subpoena.

- If the consumer or employee objects to the witness furnishing the records to the party seeking the records, the consumer must file papers with the court prior to the date specified for production in the subpoena.

- If the party who is seeking the records will not agree in writing to cancel or limit the subpoena, an attorney should be consulted about the consumer's or employee's interest in protecting his or her right of privacy.

[4] Procedure for Notice to Consumer or Employee

[a] Accompanying Papers

Notice is given to the consumer or employee whose records are being sought, or to his or her representative, by delivering copies of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(b), 1985.6(b); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(l), 1985.6(k) (when notice to consumer or employee and delivery of documents specified in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(b) or 1985.6(b) is not required); see generally § 535.21[4][a]]:

- The subpoena duces tecum.

- The affidavit supporting the issuance of the subpoena, if any.

- This form of notice that records of the consumer are being sought, together with the proof of service (included on the second page of this form) indicated in Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(c) (personal records of consumer) or Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.6(c) (employment records).

[b] Method of Service in General

If notice is given directly to the consumer or employee, it must be given personally, at the consumer's last known address, or in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 et seq. If the consumer is a party, notice may be given to his or her attorney of record [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(b)(1), 1985.6(b)(1)].

[c] Method of Service When Consumer or Employee Is Minor

If the consumer or employee is a minor, service must be made on the minor's parent, guardian, conservator, or similar fiduciary, or if one ofthem cannot be located with reasonable diligence, then service must be made on any person having the care or control of the minor or with whom the minor resides or by whom the minor is employed, and on the minor if the minor is at least 12 years of age [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(b)(1), 1985.6(b)(1)].

When Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3 and 1985.6 were amended to include the notice provision for cases involving minors consumers, they were not similarly amended in their authorization or objection provisions. An authorization for release must be signed by the consumer or employee or by his or her attorney of record [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(c)(2), 1985.6(c)(2)]. Objection papers must be filed with the court by the objecting consumer or employee [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(e), 1985.6(e)]. Thus, because Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3, 1985.6 do not explicitly allow the minor's fiduciary to authorize or object to the release of records, it is not clear whether the parent's or fiduciary's signature is sufficient. However, a witness may rely on the signature of a consumer's or employee's attorney, and, by analogy, it could be argued that a witness may presume the signature of the parent or fiduciary is valid [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(c)(2), 1985.6(c)(2) (witness may presume that attorney's authorization is with consent of consumer or employee)].

[5] Time of Service on Consumer or Employee

The subpoenaing party must deliver this form of notice with copies of the subpoena duces tecum and supporting affidavit not less than 10 days prior to the date for production specified in the subpoena duces tecum, plus the additional time provided for by Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 if service is by mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(b)(2)].

[6] Order Shortening Time or Waiving Requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(b)

If good cause and due diligence by the subpoenaing party have been shown, and provided that the rights of witnesses and consumers or employees are preserved, a subpoenaing party is entitled to obtain an order shortening the time for service of a subpoena duces tecum or waiving the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(b), 1985.6(b) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(h), 1985.6(g)].

[7] Proof of Service or Written Authorization Served on Witness

Prior to the production of personal records of a consumer or employee, the subpoenaing party must do either of the following [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(c), 1985.6(c)]:

- Serve or cause to be served on the witness a proof of personal service or of service by mail attesting to compliance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(b) regarding service of a copy of the subpoena duces tecum,of the supporting affidavit or declaration, and of the notice on the consumer or employee [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(l), 1985.6(k) (when notice to consumer or employee and delivery of documents specified in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(b) or 1985.6(b) is not required); see generally § 535.21[4][a]]; or

- Furnish the witness with a written authorization to release the records signed by the consumer or employee or by his or her attorney of record [see § 535.70 (written authorization)].

For discussion and forms relating to proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

If the consumer records sought are personal records maintained by a telephone corporation that is a public utility, as defined in Pub. Util. Code § 216, the consumer must consent to their release, as required by Pub. Util. Code § 2891 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(f); see § 535.71 (consent to release)].

[2] Use of Form

The form of written authorization in [1], above, may be used by a subpoenaing party to obtain a consumer's consent to the release of his or her personal records by a witness. This form may be used by serving it on the consumer along with the copy of the subpoena duces tecum, supporting affidavit, and notice [see § 535.69] served pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(b). If the consumer, or his or her attorney of record, signs the form and returns it to the subpoenaing party, the subpoenaing party should furnish the witness with the form prior to production of the records. The witness may presume that any attorney purporting to sign the authorization on behalf of the consumer acted with the consumer's consent, and that any objection to release of records is waived [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(c)(2)].

If written authorization is not obtained from the consumer for the release of his or her personal records, the subpoenaing party must serve or caused to be served on the witness a proof of personal service or of service by mailattesting to compliance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(b) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(c)(1); see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

The form may also be adapted for use when seeking production of records containing "personal information" maintained by a state or local agency when the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3 apply to those records [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.4]. For discussion of the applicability of Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.4 to records maintained by state or local agencies, see the discussion at § 535.69.

The form of written consent to release in [1], above, may be used by a subpoenaing party to obtain a consumer's consent to the release of his or her personal records maintained by a telephone corporation that is a public utility, as defined in

Pub. Util. Code § 216. A subpoena duces tecum for personal records maintained by such a telephone corporation is not valid or effective unless it includes a consent to release signed by the consumer whose records are requested, as required by Pub. Util. Code § 2891 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(f)]. After it has been signed by the consumer, this form may be used by serving it on the witness along with a copy of the subpoena duces tecum and supporting affidavit [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(b), (f); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(l), 1985.6(k) (when notice to consumer or employee and delivery of documents specified in *Code Civ. [2] Use of Form

[a] Generally

The notice of motion for an order to quash, modify, or enforce a subpoena or subpoena duces tecum in [1], above, is for use by a party, the witness, any consumer described in Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3 whose personal records are being sought from a witness, or any employee described in Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.6 whose employment records are being sought. This form also may be used by a person whose personally identifying information [see Civ. Code § 1798.79.8 (definition)] is sought in connection with an underlying action involving that person's exercise of free speech rights, from unreasonable or oppressive demands, including unreasonable violations of the right of privacy of the person. The motion may be made with regard to proceedings before a court, at trial, or at the taking of a deposition [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.1(a); see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(g), 1985.6(f)].

The court may make an order quashing, modifying, or directing compliance with the subpoena on those terms or conditions that it declares, including protective orders. In addition, the court may make any other order as may be appropriate to protect the parties, witnesses, consumer, employee, or person whose personally identifying information [see Civ. Code § 1798.79.8 (definition)] is sought in connection with an underlying action involving that person's exercise of free speech rights, from unreasonable or oppressive demands including unreasonable violations of that person's right of privacy [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.1(a)]. This form can be adapted for use as a notice of motion for a protective order.

The court, in its discretion, may award the amount of the reasonable expenses incurred in making or opposing the motion, including reasonable attorney's fees, if it finds that the motion was made or opposed in bad faith or without substantial justification or that one of the requirements of the subpoena was oppressive [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.2]. However, the court must award the amount of reasonable expenses incurred in making a motion filed under Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.1 for an order to quash or modify a subpoena from the state of California for personally identifying information [see Civ. Code § 1798.79.8(b) (definition)], for use in an action pending in another state, territory, or district of the United States, or in a foreign nation, if that subpoena has been served on any Internet service provider, or on the provider of any other interactive computer service [see 47 U.S.C. § 230(f)(2) (definition)], if the moving party prevails, and if the underlying action arises from the moving party's exercise of free speech rights on the Internet, and the respondent has failed to make a prima facie showing of a cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.2(b)].

[b] By a Party Consumer or Employee Whose Records Are Sought

A consumer who is a party to the action and whose personal records are being sought by a subpoena duces tecum, or an employee whose employment records are being similarly sought, may use this form to bring a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.1 to quash or modify the subpoena duces tecum. A motion to quash is the procedurally appropriate method of testing the validity of a subpoena duces tecum, attacking an order made for discovery of documents without showing of good cause, or attacking a request for documents which is not particularized [see People ex rel. Dept. of Public Works v. Younger (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 575, 579, 86 Cal. Rptr. 237 (prior to adoption of Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.1); Pacific Auto. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 61, 67-68, 77 Cal. Rptr. 836 ; Flora Crane Serv., Inc. v. Superior Court (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 767, 787, 45 Cal. Rptr. 79] .

The motion must be brought prior to the date for production. Notice of the bringing of the motion must be given to the witness and deposition officer at least five days prior to production. No witness or deposition officer is required to produce the records after receipt of a notice that such a motion has been brought, except on order of the court in which the action is pending or by agreement of the parties, witnesses, consumers, and employees affected [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(g), 1985.6(f)]. The time limit specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(g) is designed to guide witnesses concerning when to honor or not honor the subpoena safely, but it does not restrict the jurisdiction of the court [see Slagle v. Superior Court (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 1309, 1312, 260 Cal. Rptr. 122] .

[c] By a Nonparty Consumer or Employee Whose Records Are Sought

A consumer or nonparty employee whose personal or employment records are sought may serve a written objection to the production of the records on the requesting party and the witness [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(g); Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.6(f)(1)-(3); see § 535.76 for a form for a written objection]. The party requesting the records may then use the form above to bring a motion to enforce the subpoena [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(g); Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.6(f)(4)].

[d] By Person Whose Personally Identifying Information Is Sought in Connection With Underlying Action Involving Free Speech Rights

A person whose personally identifying information, as described in Civ. Code § 1798.79.8, is sought in connection with an underlying action involving that person's exercise of free speech rights may used this form to bring a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.1 to quash or modify the subpoena duces tecum [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.1(a), (b)].

The "personally identifying information" referred to in Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.1(a) includes [Civ. Code § 1798.79.8]:

- First and last name or last name only.
- Home or other physical address, including, but not limited to, a street name or ZIP Code, other than an address obtained pursuant to the California Safe At Home program or a business mailing address for the victim service provider.
- Electronic mail address or other online contact information, such as an instant messaging user identifier or a screen name that reveals an individual's electronic mail address.
- Telephone number, other than a business telephone number for the victim service provider.
- Social security number.
- Date of birth, with the exception of the year of birth.
- Internet protocol address or host name that identifies an individual.
- Any other information, including, but not limited to, the first and last names of children and relatives, racial or ethnic background, or religious affiliation, that, in combination with any other nonpersonally identifying information, would serve to identify any individual.

[e] By Person Immune From Service of Process

A subpoena is the "process" by which the attendance of a witness is required [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(a)]. Certain persons are immune from service of process under specified circumstances [see, e.g., 22 U.S.C. § 254d (diplomatic agents); Cal. Const., art. IV, § 14 (California legislators); Penal Code § 1555 (person brought into California on or after waiver of extradition based on criminal charge)]. It would thus appear that a person who is immune from service of process, if served with a subpoena, could move to have service of the subpoena quashed. With appropriate modifications, this form may be used to move for an order quashing service of the subpoena on the ground of immunity. For a form for a notice of motion to quash service of summons on this ground which may also be adapted for use to move to quash service of the subpoena and for further discussion, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Inconvenient Forum and Appearances .

[3] Awarding Expenses

If the court finds that the motion to quash the subpoena was made or opposed in bad faith or without substantial justification, or that one or more of the requirements of the subpoena was oppressive, the court may in its discretion award the amount of the reasonable expenses incurred in making or opposing the motion, including reasonable attorney's fees [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.2(a)].

However, the court must award the amount of reasonable expenses incurred in making a motion filed under Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.1 for an order to quash or modify a subpoena from the state of California for personally identifying information [see Civ. Code § 1798.79.8(b) (definition)], for use in an action pending in another state, territory, or district of the United States, or in a foreign nation, if that subpoena has been served on any Internet service provider, or on the provider of any other interactive computer service [see 47 U.S.C. § 230(f)(2) (definition)], if the moving party prevails, and if the underlying action arises from the moving party's exercise of free speech rights on the Internet, and the respondent has failed to make a prima facie showing of a cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.2(b)].

If those expenses are requested, include the appropriate paragraph of the form and state the grounds on which the award is requested.

[4] Accompanying Papers

A supporting memorandum is required to be served and filed with this notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), (c), 1010; see also discussion and forms in Ch. 417, Points and Authorities].

[2] Use of Form

The declaration under penalty of perjury in [1], above, is for use in support of a motion to quash, modify, or enforce a subpoena or a subpoena duces tecum [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.1].

[3] Showing Required for Subpoena Duces Tecum

The motion to quash may point out the deficiencies of the affidavit or declaration supporting issuance of the subpoena duces tecum. The party at whose instance the subpoena was issued must show good cause for the production of the items and their materiality to the issues in the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(b)]. The declarant in support of issuance of the subpoena cannot rely merely on the legal conclusion, stated in general terms, that the desired documentary evidence is relevant and material [People ex rel. Dept. of Public Works v. Younger (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 575, 580, 86 Cal. Rptr. 237] .

[2] Use of Form

The order in [1], above, quashing, modifying, or directing conditional compliance with a subpoena or a subpoena duces tecum is for use when the court grants a motion for an order quashing or modifying the subpoena or directing compliance with it on those terms that the court may declare, including protective orders. In addition, the court may make any other order as may be appropriate to protect the parties, witnesses, consumer, employee, or person whose personally identifying information [see Civ. Code § 1798.79.8 (definition)] is sought in connection with an underlying action involving that person's exercise of free speech rights, from unreasonable or oppressive demands, including unreasonable violations of that person's right of privacy [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.1(a)].] The form includes a provision for a protective order.

If the court finds that the motion to quash the subpoena was made or opposed in bad faith or without substantial justification, or that one or more of the requirements of the subpoena was oppressive, the court, in its discretion, may award the amount of the reasonable expenses incurred in making or opposing the motion, including reasonable attorney's fees [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.2(a)].

However, the court must award the amount of reasonable expenses incurred in making a motion filed under Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.1 for an order to quash or modify a subpoena from the state of California for personally identifying information [see Civ. Code § 1798.79.8(b) (definition), for use in an action pending in another state, territory, or district of the United States, or in a foreign nation, if that subpoena has been served on any Internet service provider, or on the provider of any other interactive computer service [see 47 U.S.C. § 230(f)(2) (definition)], if the moving party prevails, and if the underlying action arises from the moving party's exercise of free speech rights on the Internet, and the respondent has failed to make a prima facie showing of a cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.2(b)].

If the above expenses are ordered, include the final paragraph of the form.

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice in [1], above, is for use in lieu of a subpoena to compel attendance before a court or at trial of an issue therein [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(b); for discussion, see § 535.24].

[3] Persons Subject to Notice

This form of notice may be used to compel attendance of any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(b)]:

- A party to the record of any civil action or proceeding;

- A person for whose immediate benefit an action or proceeding is prosecuted or defended [for discussion, see § 535.24[2]]; or

- An officer, director, or managing agent of any such party or person.

[4] Effect of Notice

Giving this form of notice has the same effect as service of a subpoena on the witness, and the parties have such rights, and the court may make such orders, including the imposition of sanctions, as in the case of a subpoena for attendance before the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(b)].

[5] Service

This form of notice must be served by mail, at least 10 days before the time required for attendance, unless the court prescribes a shorter time, on the attorney for the party who is required to attend [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(b)].

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice in [1], above, is for use in lieu of a subpoena duces tecum [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(c)]. Persons subject to the notice, and the effect of the notice, are the same as for a notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(b) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(c); see § 535.78[2] et seq.].

[3] Time of Service

This form of notice is to be served at least 20 days before the time required for attendance, or within such shorter time as is ordered by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(c)].

[4] Contents of Notice

The notice must state the exact materials or things desired to be produced and that the named party or person has them under his or her possession or control [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(c)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(c) has no requirement that the notice contain a showing of materiality or that good cause exists for the production as in an affidavit or declaration supporting a subpoena duces tecum [see § 535.61[6]]. However, the party or party-related person to whom the notice is given may object to the request [see § 535.80] and thereafter, on noticed motion, the requesting party must make a showing of materiality and good cause to obtain a court order for the production [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(c); see §§ 535.81, 535.82]. In addition, this procedure applies to consumers and employees, under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(g) and 1985.6(f), respectively.

plaintiff) _____ (name) will also move for an order requiring (specify party or party-related person, e.g., defendant) _____ (name) to pay to him/her the reasonable expenses of making this motion, including reasonable attorney's fees.]

The motion will be made on the grounds that _____ [specify party or party-related person, e.g., defendant] _____ [name] has such _____ [books or documents or other things] in his/her possession or under his/her control, that a notice to produce said items was served on his/her attorney on _____ [date], and objections to that notice were served and filed by him/her on _____ [date], pursuant to Section 1987(c) ofthe Code of Civil Procedure, and that _____ [specify moving party, e.g., plaintiff] _____ [name] has good cause to request the production of these items and that they are material to the issues in this action, all as is more particularly set forth in the declaration of _____ [name] attached hereto. [If reasonable expenses of motion sought, add: The motion for expenses is made on the ground that the objections were made _____ (in bad faith or without substantial justification).] The motion will be based on this notice of motion, the declaration of _____ [name] and the memorandum of points and authorities served and filed herewith, the papers and records on file herein, and such oral and documentary evidence as may be presented at the hearing of this motion.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion in [1], above, is for use by the requesting party after he or she has served the attorney for the person or party whose presence is requested with a notice to produce documents, etc., [§ 535.79] and that attorney has served and filed objections to the production [§ 535.81] under the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(c).

[3] Accompanying Papers

A supporting memorandum is required to be served and filed with this notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1113(a); see discussion and forms in Ch. 417, Points and Authorities].

[4] Award of Expenses of Motion

In making an order pursuant to a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 1987(c), the court may in its discretion award the amount of reasonable expenses incurred in making or opposing the motion, including reasonable attorney's fees, if the court finds the motion was made or opposed in bad faith or without substantial justification or that one or more of the requirements of the subpoena was oppressive [Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.2]. Since the form in [1], above, would most likely be opposed on the same grounds as those stated in the objections, the request in the form for expenses and attorney's fees is based on the ground that the objections to the notice were made in bad faith or without substantial justification. A moving party seeking the expenses of the motion should include the appropriate optional language in the form.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a reproduction of the Judicial Council's subpoena form for use in criminal and juvenile proceedings [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.31]. Use of this form is mandatory [Gov. Code § 68511; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.31]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form may be used to require the attendance and testimony of a witness in criminal or juvenile proceedings before a court or magistrate [see Penal Code §§ 1326-1332; Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 341, 664]. It may also be used to require the witness to attend and to bring with him or her books, papers, or documents [Penal Code § 1327; Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 341, 664].

[3] Issuance

[a] Criminal Proceedings

The subpoena or subpoena duces tecum may be signed and issued by any of the officials described in Penal Code § 1326.

A subpoena issued in a criminal action that requires the custodian of records or other qualified witness of a business to produce books, papers, documents, or records must direct that those items be delivered by the custodian or qualified witness in the manner specified in Evid. Code § 1560(b), within five days after the receipt of the subpoena or within the time agreed on by the party who served the subpoena and the custodian or other qualified witness [Penal Code § 1326(b); see § 535.20[1][a] (discussing Evid. Code § 1560(b))]. The alternative procedure set forth in Evid. Code § 1560(e) does not apply to criminal cases [Penal Code § 1326(b); see § 535.20[1][c]].

Further, in a criminal action, no party, or attorney or representative of a party, may issue a subpoena requesting the custodian of records or other qualified witness of a business to provide books, papers, documents, or records, or copies of these documents or records, relating to a person or entity other than the subpoenaed person or entity in any manner other than that specified in Evid. Code § 1560(b) [Penal Code § 1326(c)]. When a defendant has issued a subpoena to a person or entity that is not a party for the production of books, papers, documents, or records, or copies of those documents or records, the court may order an in camera hearing to determine whether the defense is entitled to receive the documents [Penal Code § 1326(c)]. The court may not order the documents disclosed to the prosecution, except as required by Penal Code § 1054.3 [Penal Code § 1326(c); see Penal Code § 1054.3 (requiring defendant's disclosure to prosecutor of names and addresses of persons to be called as witnesses, relevant written or recorded statements, or reports, of those persons, including experts' reports or statements, and any real evidence defendant intends to offer in evidence)]. This law, however, does not prohibit obtainingbooks, papers, documents, or records with the consent of the person to whom those items relate [Penal Code § 1326(d)].

[b] Juvenile Proceedings

The subpoena or subpoena duces tecum must be issued by the court or the clerk of the court on the request of the probation officer, district attorney, the minor, or the minor's parent, guardian, or custodian.

The subpoena or subpoena duces tecum may be issued by the court or the clerk of the court on the court's own motion [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 341, 664].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a subpoena for production of business records in an action pending outside California. It is a reproduction of Cal. Judicial Council Form SUBP-035, adopted by the Judicial Council for mandatory use [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appendix, Div. A]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form may be used to request production of business records under the Interstate and International Depositions and Discovery Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.010 et seq.]. For a detailed discussion of the Act, see § 535.21B.

Additional Judicial Council forms for use under the Interstate and International Depositions and Discovery Act, including the application, a subpoena for personal appearance only, and a subpoena for personal appearance and production of documents and things, are reproduced and discussed in detail in Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions, § 193.180 -193.182. The Judicial Council subpoena form for the inspection of premises in an action pending outside California is reproduced and discussed in Ch. 195, Discovery: Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 195.70.

[3] Procedure for Obtaining Subpoena

To request issuance of this subpoena, a party must submit the original or a true and correct copy of a foreign subpoena to the clerk of the superior court in the California county in which discovery is sought to be conducted [Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.300(a)]. A request for the issuance of a subpoena in these circumstances does not constitute making an appearance in the California courts [Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.300(a)].

In addition to submitting a foreign subpoena, as described above, a party seeking discovery must do both of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.300(b)]:

- Submit an application requesting that the superior court issue a subpoena with the same terms as the foreign subpoena. The application must be on the Judicial Council form [see Judicial Council Form SUBP-030, reproduced and discussed in Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions, § 193.180]. No civil coversheet is required.

- Pay the specified fee [see Gov. Code § 70626].

When these requirements are satisfied, the court clerk must promptly issue a subpoena for service on the person to which the foreign subpoena is directed [Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.300(c)].

[4] Notice to Consumer or Employee and Objection

Paragraph five of this form states that if the person has been served with this subpoena as a custodian of consumer or employee records under Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.6 and a motion to quash has also been served on the custodian, then a court order, or agreement of the parties, witnesses, and consumer or employee affected must be obtained before the custodian is required to produce the consumer or employee records [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3, 1985.6]. For further discussion of subpoena duces tecum requiring production of records that contain personal information concerning a consumer or an employee, see §§ 535.21 and 535.69[2].

[5] Proof of Service

The form includes a proof of service to be filled in by the server after service is made. A discovery subpoena issued under the Act must be personally served in compliance with California law, including, without limitation, Code Civ. Proc. § 1985 [Code Civ. Proc. § 2029.400]. For discussion of service, see § 535.17.

PART II LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 536.11 Subrogation Defined

"To subrogate" is to put in the place of another, to substitute. Subrogation is the substitution of another person (the subrogee) in place of the creditor or claimant (the subrogor) to whose rights the other person succeeds in relation to the debt or claim. The subrogee is equitably subrogated to the subrogor, and succeeds the subrogor's rights against the obligor [Reliance Nat'l Indem. Co. v. General Star Indem. Co. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1063, 1077, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 627].

An action in subrogation is an equitable remedy by which a third party is substituted in the place of a creditor when the third party, by reason of some obligation or to preserve an interest, has paid the creditor the debt of the principal debtor; its purpose is to enable the third party to recover from the debtor the amount of the payment made [see Offer v. Superior Court (1924) 194 Cal. 114, 118, 228 P. 11 ; Redington v. Cornwall (1891) 90 Cal. 49, 58, 27 P. 40 ; Ferraro v. Southern Cal. Gas Co. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 33, 47, 162 Cal. Rptr. 238 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Goodman v. Lozano (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1327, 1336-1338, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 219, 223 P.3d 77]. Equitable subrogation has also been defined as a legal device that permits a party who has been required to satisfy a loss created by a third party's wrong to step into the shoes of the loser and recover from the wrongdoer [Transit Cas. Co. v. Spink Corp. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 124, 132, 156 Cal. Rptr. 360 (disapproved on another point in Commercial Union Assurance Cos. v. Safeway Stores, Inc. (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 912, 921, 164 Cal. Rptr. 709, 610 P.2d 1038)].

For a discussion of the historical development of the doctrine, see Offer v. Superior Court (1924) 194 Cal. 114, 120-121, 228 P. 11 .

§ 536.13 Elements of Subrogation

[1] In General

Subrogation applies when one person, not a volunteer, pays a debt for which another is primarily answerable and that, in equity and good conscience, should have been discharged by the latter [Stein v. Simpson (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 79, 83, 230 P.2d 816 ; Phoenix Ins. Co. v. United States Fire Ins. Co. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1511, 1525-1526, 235 Cal. Rptr. 185 (finding indemnification rather than subrogation)]. The doctrine is liberally applied to promote justice [St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Murray Plumbing & Heating Corp. (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 66, 72, 135 Cal. Rptr. 120].

The prerequisites for equitable subrogation generally are: (1) payment was made by the subrogee to protect his or her own interest; (2) the subrogee did not act as a volunteer; (3) the debt is one for which the subrogee was not primarily liable; (4) the entire debt has been paid; and (5) subrogation does not work any injustice to the rights of others [Caito v. United Cal. Bank (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 694, 704, 144 Cal. Rptr. 751, 576 P.2d 466 ; Grant v. De Otte (1954) 122 Cal. App. 2d 724, 728, 265 P.2d 952].

[2] In Context of Insurance Claims

Subrogation issues commonly arise in connection with insurance claims. With respect to insurance, subrogation takes the form of an insurer's right to be put in the position of the insured to pursue recovery from third parties legally responsible to the insured for a loss that the insurer has both insured and paid [Reliance Nat'l Indem. Co. v. General Star Indem. Co. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1063, 1077, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 627]. In this context, the courts have identified the following elements as essential to an insurer's cause of action based on equitable subrogation [Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Maryland Cas. Co. (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1586, 1596, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 762 , Troost v. Estate of DeBoer (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 289, 294, 202 Cal. Rptr. 47]:

- The insured has suffered a loss for which the party to be charged is liable, either because the latter is a wrongdoer whose act or omission caused the loss, or because he or she is legally responsible to the insured for the loss caused by the wrongdoer;

- The insurer has wholly or partially compensated the insured for the same loss for which the party to be charged is liable;

- The insured has an existing, assignable cause of action against the party to be charged, and the insured could have asserted that that cause of action for his or her own benefit if he or she had not been compensated by the insurer for the loss;

- The insurer has suffered damages caused by the act or omission upon which the liability of the party to be charged depends;

- Justice requires that the loss should be entirely shifted from the insurer to the party to be charged; and

- The insurer's damages are in a stated sum, usually the amount it has paid to its insured, assuming the payment was not voluntary and was reasonable.

§ 536.14 Kinds of Subrogation

[1] Legal and Conventional

Subrogation has been said to be of two kinds, "legal" and "conventional." Legal subrogation has its source in equity and arises by operation of law. Conventional subrogation arises by the act of the parties and rests in contract [Fifield Manor v. Finston (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 632, 638, 7 Cal. Rptr. 377, 354 P.2d 1073 ; Knight v. Alefosio (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 716, 723, 205 Cal. Rptr. 42].

What is treated as conventional subrogation in other states is to some extent covered by statutes in California. For example, Civ. Code §§ 2849, 2903, 2904 provide the right of subrogation to a lien on property that is afforded in other states by conventional, that is, contractual, subrogation [see 83 C.J.S. Subrogation § 4]. A right to subrogation may not be created by contract, however, if there is an express statutory reservation against assignment of the type of claim involved [see Fifield Manor v. Finston (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 632, 639-640, 7 Cal. Rptr. 377, 354 P.2d 1073 (involving claim arising from tortious injury to person which was nonassignable under former Civ. Code § 956 (repealed; now see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.22))]. Morever, when a contract, such as an insurance policy, reserves a right of subrogation with respect to claims paid under certain policy coverages (otherwise assignable), it does not have the right to subrogate as to other coverages that do not reserve the right [Knight v. Alefosio (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 716, 724, 205 Cal. Rptr. 42].

Legal subrogation arises, for example, when a person having a liability or a right or a fiduciary relationship in the premises pays a debt due by another under such circumstances that he or she is in equity entitled to the security or obligation held by the creditors whom he or she has paid. It does not arise from any contractual relationship between the parties, but takes place as a matter of equity with or without an agreement to that effect [Knight v. Alefosio (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 716, 723, 205 Cal. Rptr. 42]. The doctrine cannot be invoked, however, to override the contract of the parties and, hence, is not applicable when its enforcement would be inconsistent with the terms of the contract or if the contract expressly or by implication forbids its application [Knight v. Alefosio (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 716, 724, 205 Cal. Rptr. 42 (quoting out-of-state case with approval)].

[2] Common-Law and Statutory

Subrogation is also classified as common law or statutory [see Commercial Union Assurance Co. v. City of San Jose

(1982) 127 Cal. App. 3d 730, 734, 736-737, 179 Cal. Rptr. 814 ; Phoenix of Hartford Ins. Cos. v. Colony Kitchens (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 140, 144-145, 128 Cal. Rptr. 893 ; see also County of San Diego v. Sanfax Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 862, 875-876 , n.7,]. Common law subrogation may be either nonstatutory or merely confirmed by statute, and arises from common law equitable principles. Statutory subrogation is subrogation that is expressly authorized by statute [State Bar of Cal. v. Statile (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 650, 662-663, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 72]. Examples of statutory subrogation include Gov. Code § 21451, giving the State Retirement System a cause of action against a person causing a member's injury or death to recover one-half the actuarial equivalent of the benefits for which the system is liable because of that injury or death; Gov. Code § 31820, giving a similar right to a County Employees' Retirement System; Lab. Code § 3852, subrogating the employer (or the employer's insurer [see Lab. Code § 3850(b)]) who has paid worker's compensation to the employee's cause of action against a tortfeasor responsible for the employee's injuries; and Veh. Code § 17153, subrogating the owner who is liable for tortious injuries caused by a person operating the owner's vehicle with the owner's consent to the rights of the injured person against the operator. Causes of action for tortious injury to person are not assignable [see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.22] and therefore would not be subject to subrogation without that express statutory authorization [see Fifield Manor v. Finston (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 632, 639-640, 7 Cal. Rptr. 377, 354 P.2d 1073]. (Causes of action for tortious damage to property are, however, assignable under Civ. Code § 954 and are subject to subrogation [see Fifield Manor v. Finston (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 632, 640, 7 Cal. Rptr. 377, 354 P.2d 1073 ; Offer v. Superior Court (1924) 194 Cal. 114, 121, 228 P. 11 ; Royal Indem. Co. v. Security Truck Lines (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 61, 64, 27 Cal. Rptr. 858].)

Business and Professions Code § 6140.5(b) provides, with respect to the Client Security Fund (CSF) of the State Bar:

> Upon making a payment to a person who has applied to the fund for payment to relieve or mitigate pecuniary losses caused by the dishonest conduct of an active member of the State Bar, the State Bar is subrogated, to the extent of that payment, to the rights of the applicant against any person or persons who, or entity that, cause the pecuniary loss. The State Bar may bring an action to enforce those rights within three years from the date of payment to the applicant.

In one case, the attorney and his clients settled a lawsuit concerning the attorney's alleged misappropriation of client trust funds, while preserving the plaintiff's right to seek full reimbursement for their losses from the CSF. As part of the settlement, the attorney agreed not to object to any notice of intent to pay issued by the CSF. After the settlement but before the defendant had paid some of the payments structured in installments, the CSF paid amounts of money to some claimants involved in the matter. When the State Bar filed a subrogation action against the attorney, the issue arose over what subrogation rights the State Bar acquired against the attorney when the CSF paid the claims. The appellate court framed the issue in the following manner: "When an injured party releases a tortfeasor but reserves its right against a party with statutory subrogation rights, is that party later permitted to seek reimbursement from the tortfeasor if it pays money that the tortfeasor owed the injured party?" The court held that neither the statutory scheme nor the settlement agreement in this case limits the State Bar's subrogation rights against the attorney [State Bar of Cal. v. Statile (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 650, 669, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 72].

In addition, rules applicable to the two kinds of subrogation may differ in some respects. For example, if the right to subrogation is nonstatutory or is merely confirmed by statute, then the normal rules of equitable subrogation apply; that is, the subrogee succeeds to the rights of the subrogor and may not, for example, recover an amount greater than that which could have been recovered by the subrogor [see Breesev. Price (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 923, 929, 176 Cal. Rptr. 791, 633 P.2d 987 (involving employer's right to recover from tortfeasor benefits paid to or on behalf of injured employee); County of San Diego v. Sanfax Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 862, 876 n.7, 140 Cal. Rptr. 638, 568 P.2d 363 (same)]. In addition, the action by the subrogee is subject to the same statute of limitations that applies to the subrogor's action [see Commercial Union Assurance Co. v. City of San Jose (1982) 127 Cal. App. 3d 730, 734, 179 Cal. Rptr. 814 ; see also § 536.20].

However, in the case of statutory subrogation, if the statute providing for subrogation expressly authorizes recovery from an obligor (for example, a tortfeasor) in an amount necessary to compensate the subrogee for the full amount of payments made by it, and that amount is greater than that which could have been recovered in an action by the subrogor, the action to that extent is in the nature of an action for indemnity. For example, Lab. Code § 3852 (relating to workers' compensation), to the extent it authorizesrecovery by an employer (or the employer's insurer) of an amount required to be paid to the Department of Industrial Relations pursuant to Lab. Code § 4706.5 (death benefits when deceased employee leaves no dependents), subjects the tortfeasor to liability for an amount greater than that for which he or she would have been liable in an action by the deceased employee's estate [see Associated Indem. Corp. v. Pacific Sw. Airlines (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 898, 907, 180 Cal. Rptr. 685].

In addition, if an applicable statute expressly so provides, a purely statutory right to subrogation may be subject to a different statute of limitations providing a longer period in which the subrogated action may be brought. In this event the subrogee has a greater right than that of the subrogor [see Commercial Union Assurance Co. v. City of San Jose (1982) 127 Cal. App. 3d 730, 736, 179 Cal. Rptr. 814 ; Allstate Ins. Co. v. County of Alameda (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 418, 421, 109 Cal. Rptr. 53 ; see also § 536.20].

Chapter 536 SUBROGATION
PART II LEGAL BACKGROUND

47-536 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 536.15

§ 536.15 Subrogation and Assignment Distinguished

[1] In General

Although assignment was once regarded as one form of subrogation, and both subrogation and assignment entail the substitution of a third party for an existing party to prosecute a claim against another, they do have certain technical differences [see Fifield Manor v. Finston (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 632, 640, 7 Cal. Rptr. 377, 354 P.2d 1073]. Except as otherwise provided by statute, subrogation presupposes an actual payment and satisfaction of the creditor's claim to which the subrogor is subrogated for the purpose of recovering the payment from the obligor. It operates only to secure recovery to the extent of the payment made. It presupposes that payment was not made officiously but by reason of some obligation or for the protection of some interest. Finally, at least so far as legal subrogation is concerned [see § 536.14], it is the act of the law, substituting one party for another, and depends not on contract but on principles of equity [see Caito v. United Cal. Bank (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 694, 704, 144 Cal. Rptr. 751, 576 P.2d 466 ; Fifield Manor v. Finston (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 632, 638-640, 7 Cal. Rptr. 377, 354 P.2d 1073 ; Offer v. Superior Court (1924) 194 Cal. 114, 118, 228 P. 11 ; Iusi v. City Title Ins. Co. (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 582, 586-588, 28 Cal. Rptr. 893].

Assignment, on the other hand, contemplates the continued existence of the claim unpaid at the time of the assignment; it is unconcerned with any officiousness of the assignee; and it is the act of the parties, depending generally on intention [see Civ. Code § 953-955.1; Fifield Manor v. Finston (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 632, 639-640, 7 Cal. Rptr. 377, 354 P.2d 1073 ; see also Ch. 60, Assignments].

[2] Limitations on Subrogation to Nonassignable Cause of Action

Nonassignable claims are not subject to subrogation absent statutory authorization [Fifield Manor v. Finston (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 632, 640, 7 Cal. Rptr. 377, 354 P.2d 1073 ; Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. McDonald, Hecht & Solberg (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1373, 1383, 1387, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 424 . Thus, because a tort cause of action for injury to the person normally is not assignable, a right of subrogation to a cause of action for tortious injury to the person is not recognized, except when the right of subrogation has been expressly granted by statute [Fifield Manor v. Finston (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 632, 639, 7 Cal. Rptr. 377, 354 P.2d 1073 (former Civ. Code § 956 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.22))]; Peller v. Liberty Mut. Fire Ins. Co. (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 610, 612, 34 Cal. Rptr. 41].

Similarly, California law prohibits assignment of most legal malpractice claims. Thus, a liability insurer that pays a claim against its insured that resulted from the negligence of the insured's attorneys has no subrogation rights with respect to the insured's legal malpractice claim against the attorneys [Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. McDonald, Hecht & Solberg (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1373, 1387, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 424].

One exception to this prohibition against assignment involved an attorney who sued concurrent counsel for indemnification of malpractice damages. In that case, the attorney's insurer may be subrogated to the attorney's indemnity claim against concurrent counsel [Musser v. Provencher (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 274, 285-287, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 373, 48 P.3d 408].

[3] Agreement for Reimbursement as Avoiding Nonassignability

While a cause of action to recover damages for personal injuries is not assignable, provisions in a health insurance contract requiring an insured who obtains a settlement or judgment against a third party tortfeasor for personal injuries to reimburse the insurer for medical payments arising out of those injuries are valid and enforceable [Samura v. Kaiser Found. Health Plan Inc. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1284, 1292, 1297, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20 (involving health maintenance organization); Lee v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 458, 465-466, 129 Cal. Rptr. 271]. Enforcement is justified based on the assumption that the recovery from the party at fault will create a fund from which medical costs may be paid without burdening the injured party [Samura v. Kaiser Found. Health Plan Inc. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1284, 1296, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20]. Hence, a provision in an insurance policy or health plan requiring the insured to reimburse the insurer or provider for medical payments in the event the insured recovers damages from a third party tortfeasor bars bars an insured who has settled his or claim against the tortfeasor from recovering medical payments from the insurer [West v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 562, 565, 106 Cal. Rptr. 486].

However, the doctrine of contract unconscionability may limit the enforceability of such a provision in some fact situations. If the tort victim does not recover enough from the third party to compensate for lost wages, future loss of earning capacity, or uninsured future medical expenses, the victim would also bear the burden of paying medical expenses from the tort recovery. In such a case, enforcement of the medical lien may create a heavy burden on the injured party by reducing recovery of actual economic losses, and the victim may be able to present a defense to enforcement on the ground of unconscionability. Unconscionability involves (1) an inequality of bargaining power resulting in no real negotiation and the absence of meaningful choice and (2) surprise, which occurs if the terms of the bargain are hidden in a printed form drafted by the party seeking to enforce the disputed terms [Samura v. Kaiser Found. Health Plan, Inc. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1284, 1296-1297, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20].

§ 536.16 Common Subrogation Actions

[1] By Sureties

The most common situation in which the right to subrogation arises is when a surety pays a principal debtor's obligation to a creditor and the surety is subrogated to any causes of action that either the creditor or the debtor has against third parties responsible for the loss, as well as to the creditor's rights to priorities or securities [see Civ. Code §§ 2848, 2849; Regents of Univ. of Cal. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 624, 638 n. 6, 147 Cal. Rptr. 486, 581 P.2d 197 ; Commercial Standard Ins. Co. v. Bank of Am. (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 241, 247, n. 1, 129 Cal. Rptr. 91]. A surety or guarantor is defined as one who promises to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another, or hypothecates property as security therefor [Civ. Code § 2787]. Surety is a class of insurance defined in Ins. Code § 105 [Ins. Code § 100(5)].

A surety, on satisfying the obligation of the principal, is entitled to enforce every remedy that the creditor then has against the principal to the extent of reimbursing what the surety has expended, and also to require all his or her cosureties to contribute thereto, without regard to the order of time in which they became sureties [Civ. Code § 2848]. The question whether the obligation which is satisfied is in fact the obligation of the particular principal is to be decided in accordance with the rules of law and principles of equity [Painter v. Berglund (1939) 31 Cal. App. 2d 63, 67, 87 P.2d 360].

In addition, a surety is entitled to the benefit of every security for the performance of the principal obligation held by the creditor, or by a cosurety at the time of entering into the contract of suretyship, or acquired by him or her afterwards, whether the surety was aware of the security or not [Civ. Code § 2849].

Civ. Code §§ 2848 and 2849 are but reenactments of well-settled rules of equity on subrogation [Title Guar. & Sur. Co. v. Duarte (1921) 54 Cal. App. 260, 265, 201 P. 790]. Civ. Code § 2848 is, however, merely declaratory of the common law and controlling only so far as it goes; it is neither comprehensive nor exclusive as to the rights of sureties to subrogation [Estate of Elizalde (1920) 182 Cal. 427, 432, 188 P. 560 ; Commercial Standard Ins. Co. v. Bank of Am. (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 241, 247, 129 Cal. Rptr. 91]. Hence, the doctrine of subrogation applies, for example, to the creditor's rights against third persons when the surety's equities are superior to those of the third party wrongdoer [

Commercial Standard Ins. Co. v. Bank of Am. (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 241, 247, 129 Cal. Rptr. 91 ; see § 536.42[9]].

The right of subrogation provided for in Civ. Code §§ 2848 and 2949 is to be distinguished from any right the surety may have for reimbursement from the debtor whose obligation was discharged by the payment [see Civ. Code § 2847]. A surety who pays the principal debt extinguishes the obligation and thus cannot sue the debtor as subrogee of the original debt [Regents of Univ. of Cal. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 624, 637-638, 147 Cal. Rptr. 486, 581 P.2d 197].

For further discussion of suretyship and forms of complaints for use by a surety to secure reimbursement from a principal and to compel contribution by cosureties, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

[2] By Insurers

[a] Property Insurance

Although the principle on which the right of subrogation is founded applies to cases of suretyship, the doctrine of equitable subrogation is broad enough today to include every instance in which one person, not acting as a mere volunteer or intruder, pays a debt for which another is primarily liable, and which in equity and good conscience should have been discharged by the latter [Caito v. United Cal. Bank (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 694, 704, 144 Cal. Rptr. 751, 576 P.2d 466 ; St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Murray Plumbing & Heating Corp. (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 66, 72, 135 Cal. Rptr. 120].

For example, another common situation, in part confirmed by statute, in which the right to subrogation arises is when an insurer pays a property loss sustained by its insured as a result of the wrongful act of a tortfeasor and the insurer is subrogated to the claim of the insured against the tortfeasor [Ferraro v. Southern Cal. Gas Co. (1980) 162 Cal. Rptr. 238 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Goodman v. Lozano (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1327, 1336-1338, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 219, 223 P.3d 77 (involving fire insurer); see Ins. Code §§ 1996 (marine insurance), 2071 (fire and other casualty insurance)]. The right of the insurer against the third party wrongdoer does not arise out of or depend on any contractual relation or of privity between them, but emanates from the nature of the insurance contract as a contract of indemnity [Automobile Ins. Co. v. Union Oil Co. (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 302, 305 ; St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Murray Plumbing & Heating Corp. (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 66, 72, 135 Cal. Rptr. 120]. The right arises independent of any provision in the insurance contract giving the insurer the right to recover damages from the person responsible for the loss [Offer v. Superior Court (1924) 194 Cal. 114, 118, 228 P. 11].

The insurer's subrogated right in such case generally is its right to be put in the position of its insured against third parties legally responsible to its insured for the loss which the insurer has both insured against and paid [Commercial Union Assurance Co. v. City of San Jose (1982) 127 Cal. App. 3d 730, 733, 179 Cal. Rptr. 814 (subrogation of insurer to insured's claim against city for property damage from falling tree branches allegedly caused by city's negligence); see Travelers Indem. Co. v. Ingebretsen (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 858, 864, 113 Cal. Rptr. 679 (insurer, after paying amount of loss on property insured, stands in place of its insured and is subrogated in like amount to insured's right of action against any other party responsible for that loss)]. Thus, the insurance carrier may recoup a loss inflicted on its policyholder by equitable subrogation to the policyholder's claim [Transit Cas. Co. v. Spink Corp. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 124, 132, 156 Cal. Rptr. 360 , disapproved on other grounds, Commercial Union Assurance Cos. v. Safeway Stores, Inc. (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 912, 921, 164 Cal. Rptr. 709, 610 P.2d 1038].

The doctrine of equitable subrogation applies after the insured has already been made whole by the insurer, and the insurer is proceeding against the individual responsible for the loss. Although some decisions indicate that the doctrine requires no contractual provision, there appears to be no instance in which a court has permitted intervention under this theory while the insured is actually pursuing a lawsuit against a person claimed to be responsible. When the insured is a party plaintiff in an action against a tortfeasor, and no contractual right of subrogation is in evidence or admitted by the parties, the right of equitable subrogation has been held not to apply [Continental Ins. Co. v. American Prot. Indus. (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 322, 327, 242 Cal. Rptr. 784 (summary judgment against insurer and in favor of alleged tortfeasor); Knight v. Alefosio (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 716, 725-726, 205 Cal. Rptr. 42].

Some courts have held that language in an insurance policy that grants the insurance company "all rights of recovery to the extent of its payment" overrides the common law made-whole rule [see, e.g., Barnes v. Independent Auto. Dealers Ass'n of Cal. Health & Welfare Benefit Plan (9th Cir. 1995) 64 F.3d 1389, 1393, 1396 ; see also Progressive W. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 263, 274, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434]. However, according to the growing trend of California authority, the contractual provision that intends to vitiate this rule must clearly and specifically give the insurer a priority out of proceeds from the tortfeasor regardless of whether the insured was first made whole [see Progressive W. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 263, 274-275, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434 ; Sapiano v. Williamsburg Nat'l Ins. Co. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 533, 538-539, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 659].

In the proper case, a property insurer may intervene in a lawsuit brought by the insured against tortfeasors, to bring a complaint in subrogation. A nonparty has a right to intervene in a pending action if the person seeking intervention claims an interest relating to the property or transaction that is the subject of the action and if that person is so situated that the disposition of the action may as a practical matter impair or impede that person's ability to protect that interest, unless that person's interest is adequately represented by existing parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b); Hodge v. Kirkpatrick Dev., Inc. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 540, 547, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 303 ; see Ch. 395, Parties]. In one case, for example, an insurer had a statutory right to intervene in a construction defect lawsuit brought bythe insureds against third-party tortfeasors, after the insurer obtained partial subrogation rights (by operation of law and pursuant to policy provisions) against the third parties by paying a portion of the insureds' claims for property damage to their house [Hodge v. Kirkpatrick Dev., Inc. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 540, 550, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 303].

If the insurance company does not interplead itself into the underlying action, the insurance company's rights to recover any payments received by its insured are limited. Under the made-whole rule, if an insurer does not participate in the insured's action against a tortfeasor, despite knowledge of that action, the insurer cannot recover any funds obtained through settlement of the action unless the full amount received exceeds the insured's actual loss. Furthermore, the insured need not account to the nonparticipating insurer for more than the surplus remaining in the insured's hands, after satisfying the loss in full and reasonable expenses incurred in the recovery. Therefore, if an insurer elects not to participate in the insured's action against a tortfeasor, the insurer is entitled to subrogation only after the insured has recouped the loss and some or all of the litigation expenses incurred in the action against the tortfeasor [Progressive W. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 263, 273, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434].

[b] Liability Insurance

Subrogation issues may arise among insurers covering the same risk. For example, if an insurer of one party indemnifies its insured under a liability policy, it may later bring an equitable subrogation action against an insurer of a co-defendant in the action to recover the second insurer's portion of the sums paid.

In one case, a contractor entered into an indemnity contract for the benefit of its subcontractor on a construction project. The contractor was named as an "additional insured" under the subcontractor's primary commercial general liability policy, which provided aggregate coverage of $2 million. The subcon-tractor was also the sole named insured on a commercial umbrella policy, which provided a general aggregate and "per occurrence" limit of $9 million. The umbrella policy also contained an "other insurance" clause specifying that it was an excess policy to other applicable insurance. The contractor was insured under a primary commercial general liability policy by a different insurer. After a worker was killed while on the job, the worker's family brought a wrongful death action against the contractor, the subcontractor, and others. The subcontractor's primary insurer assumed defense of the action on behalf of both those defendants. Following a verdict for the plaintiff apportioning fault (70%/20% against the subcontractor and contractor, respectively), the parties stipulated to a reduction in the damages award to $4.9 million. The subcontractor's primary insurer paid $1 million in a 70/20 split. The subcontractor's excess insurer paid $3.9, also split 70/20. The contractor then filed a complaint against the subcontractor and both its insurers, seeking complete indemnity for the full amount of damages awarded, pursuant to the indemnity agreement with the subcontractor; and declaratory relief against the subcontractor's excess insurer regarding indemnity. The subcontractor's excess insurer then filed a cross-complaint for equitable subrogation and equitable indemnity against the contractor's primary insurer, alleging that any obligation it owed under its policy is subject to the terms and conditions of its policy, and that it was entitled under equitable principles of subrogation to reimbursement from the contractor's primary insurer of its settlement payment on behalf of the contractor; and also alleging equitable indemnification rights. With regard to the equitable subrogation claim, the appellate court noted that the contractor was covered by its primary insurer for the damages arising from the accident. Thus, the subcontractor's excess policy was excess to the contractor's primary coverage. Accordingly, having paid a portion of the settlement funds on behalf of the contractor's primary insurer, it was entitled to seek reimbursement from that insurer by way of its cross-complaint for equitable subrogation. The court also found that favoring the subcontractor's excess insurer does not entirely negate the indemnity clause of the subcontract because the contractor was insured by the subcontractor's primary as well as excess insurer. The court therefore held that the contractor's primary insurer is not entitled to indemnification by the subcontractor's excess insurer on the basis of the indemnification clause in the construction contract. Accordingly, the trial court properly awarded summary judgment in favor of the subcontractor's excess insurer on its claim for equitable subrogation against the contractor's primary insurer [JPI Westcoast Constr., L.P. v. RJS & Assoc., Inc. (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 1448, 1463-1466, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 91].

In another case, the insured landlord owned a shopping center. The insured and one of its tenants were successor parties to two effectively identical leases originally executed by the organizers of the insured's company and a corporation related to the tenant company. The leases each contained provisions requiring the tenant to maintain liability insurance, and requiring the tenant to indemnify the owner regarding damage occurring on the premises arising out of the tenant's failure to perform lease requirements. They also contained a release and waiver of subrogation, providing [see Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Sizzler USA Real Property, Inc. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 415, 417, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 715]:

> The parties release each other and their respective authorized representatives from any claims for damage to any person or property of either Landlord or Tenant ... about the Premises that are caused by or result from risks insured against under any insurance policies carried by the parties... .
> The parties further agree that neither party shall be liable to the other for any damage caused by fire or any of the risks insured against under any insurance policy and each party shall cause each insurance policy obtained by it to provide that the insurance company waives all right of recovery by way of subrogation against either party in connection with any covered damage.

In the underlying suit, the injured patron, who was accosted in the tenant club by assailants who later attacked him in the parking lot, brought suit against the landlord. The landlord sought indemnification and defense from the company that owned the tenant club, which directed the landlord to its insurance. That insurance, however, provided only $750,000 coverage, after a self-insured retention of $250,000, and did not name the landlord as an additional insured on that policy. The landlord turned the case over to its own liability insurer. That insurer tendered the defense to the insurer for the tenant's owner, which stated that it would defend the landlord under a reservation of rights, after its defense and settlement costs exceeded $250,000. The landlord's insurer proceeded to defend the landlord, and settled the underlying suit, expending $300,000 in settlement and $84,000 for defense costs. It then commenced the instant suit against the owner of the tenant club, to recover what it had paid, and attorney's fees under a lease provision. The appellate court upheld judgment for the defendant because the subrogation waiver provision was part of a mutual release of claims and damages that were covered by insurance [Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Sizzler USA Real Property, Inc. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 415, 422, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 715]. The court rejected the insurer's arguments that the defendant's failure to obtain the full amount of required insurance precludes enforcement of the waiver, and that enforcement of the waiver would defeat the parties' intent that defendant be responsible of the club's prior nuisance designation by the city and its consequences [Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Sizzler USA Real Property, Inc. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 415, 420-422, 86

Cal. Rptr. 3d 715].

[c] Med-Pay Coverage

"Med-pay" is first-party, no-fault medical payment insurance coverage in an automobile policy in case of an accident [see 21st Century Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 511, 515, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 516, 213 P.3d 972 ; see also Ch. 88, Automobiles: Automobile Insurance, § 88.20]. Med-pay insurers must seek recovery for personal injury claims through contractual reimbursement rights against their insureds, because they are not allowed to assert subrogation claims directly against third-party tortfeasors. This rule is based on the premise that personal injury claims are not assignable, and therefore a med-pay insurer generally has no right to sue the tortfeasor directly and has no standing to intervene. If insureds must reimburse their insurers once they recover from the tortfeasors, they are prevented from receiving double recovery and the financial responsibility for their loss is placed on the tortfeasor. Med-pay insurance contracts typically contain provisions that grant the insurer a right of reimbursement for certain payments that the third party who caused the insured's losses makes to the insured. These provisions are often interchangeably referred to as reimbursement or subrogation provisions, depending on the context [21st Century Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 511, 518, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 516, 213 P.3d 972] .

In California there is a technical difference between subrogation and reimbursement. While subrogation refers to the right of the insurance company to step into the shoes of the insured and assert the insured's rights against the third party, reimbursement refers to the right to receive payment back of what has been expended by the insurance company. In California, both the subrogation rights and reimbursement rights of the insurance company fall within the rubric of subrogation [21st Century Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 511, 518 n.3, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 516, 213 P.3d 972] .

[3] By Stranger Paying Mortgage at Debtor's Request

The doctrine of subrogation has been extended, by analogy, to one who, having no previous interest and being under no obligation, pays off a mortgage, or advances money for its payment, at the instance of a debtor party and for his or her benefit; such a person is in no true sense a mere stranger and volunteer and, hence, may be subrogated to the right of the mortgagee against the mortgator [Grand v. De Otte (1954) 122 Cal. App. 2d 724, 729, 265 P.2d 952].

[4] By Persons Authorized by Statute

Certain insurers are authorized by statute to subrogate to nonassignable claimsthat otherwise would not be subject to subrogation. These include liability insurers that have paid an uninsured motorist claim under the terms of their policies and workers' compensation insurance carriers (or self-insured employers) who have paid or become obligated to pay claims on behalf on injured employees [see Ins. Code §§ 11580.2(g) (uninsured motorist insurers), 11580.26 (same); and Ins. Code § 11662 and Lab. Code §§ 3850-3864 (workers' compensation insurers)]. For further discussion of subrogation in the context of uninsured motorist insurers, see Ch. 88, Automobiles: Automobile Insurance , and Ch. 88A, Automobiles: Uninsured Motorist Claims .

Another common form of statutory subrogation is that of a public retirement system to recover a portion of payments made on account of injury to an employee-member by a third party tortfeasor [see, e.g., Gov. Code §§ 21450-21456 (subrogation of Board of Administration of Public Employees' Retirement System to recover from tortfeasor portion of benefits payable for injury to or death of covered employee-member); 31820-31823 (similar provisions applicable to county employees' retirement associations)].

The State Bar has a statutory subrogation right under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6140.5(b) (Client Security Fund), after paying a person for pecuniary losses caused by the dishonest conduct of an active member of the State Bar, to bring an action against that attorney [State Bar of Cal. v. Statile (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 650, 669, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 72 ; see §

PART II LEGAL BACKGROUND

47-536 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 536.17

§ 536.17 Doctrine of Superior Equities

[1] As Limitation on Right to Subrogation

In some cases, a wrongdoer (primary obligor) is enabled to complete the wrong only by the act of some third person, for example, by a bank (third person) which pays the wrongdoer, a dishonest employee (primary obligor), the proceeds of a forged check drawn on the account of the employer (subrogor) who is insured and the surety or insurer (subrogee) is required to cover the loss by reason of its policy. Under the normal rules of subrogation, the surety or insurer would be subrogated to the right of the employer against the employee, but the employee has frequently absconded or is insolvent. The question arises whether the surety or insurer can be subrogated to any right the employer may have against the third party, e.g., the payee bank [see Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 797, 805-832, 149 Cal. Rptr. 883 ; Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. v. Bank of Am. (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 545, 550, 34 Cal. Rptr. 23].

Since subrogation is a creation of equity, it is subject to the limitation that it will not be allowed when it will be inequitable to third persons [Federal Ins. Co. v. Allen (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 648, 650, 92 Cal. Rptr. 125]. Or, as otherwise stated, subrogation will never be enforced when the equities are equal or the rights not clear [Meyers v. Bank of Am. Nat'l Trust & Sav. Ass'n (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 92, 101, 77 P.2d 1084 ; Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Morse Signal Devices (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 681, 686, 198 Cal. Rptr. 756]. Consequently, whether the surety or insurer can recover depends on whether the equity in favor of the surety or insurer is superior to the equity in favor of the third party. Put another way, the surety's or insurer's normal right of recovery through subrogation against a third person when a wrongdoer causes loss both to the surety or insurer by reason of its bond or insurance policy and to the third person is limited to situations in which the equity of the surety or insurer is superior to that of the third person [Continental Ins. Co. v. Morgan, Olmstead, Kennedy & Gardner, Inc. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 593, 602, 148 Cal. Rptr. 57].

In any such action, the burden is on the surety to establish its superior equity, and for the purpose of weighing the equities, the negligence or other fault of the insured is imputed to the surety or insurer seeking subrogation [Continental Ins. Co. v. Morgan, Olmstead, Kennedy & Gardner, Inc. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 593, 602, 148 Cal. Rptr. 57 ; see § 536.107].

[2] Examples of Application of Doctrine

Following the rule of superior equities, a cross complaint by a surety for subrogation in an action by a property owner against a building contractor and its surety arising out of the contractor's default on an agreement to construct a duplex in which the surety cross complained against a bank that had made a construction loan to the owner and had agreed to disburse the funds to the contractor on the basis of work completed was held sufficient where it was alleged that the loss was caused by the bank's negligence in disbursing an excessive amount of the loan proceeds to the contractor [Commercial Standard Ins. Co. v. Bank of Am. (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 241, 246-247, 129 Cal. Rptr. 91].

On the other hand, California decisions have denied the right of subrogation to sureties on employee bonds where the surety has sought to recover from drawee banks the proceeds of payments on checks forged by the bonded employee [see Continental Ins. Co. v. Morgan, Olmstead, Kennedy & Gardner, Inc. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 593, 602, 148 Cal. Rptr. 57 ; see also Meyers v. Bank of Am. Nat'l Trust & Sav. Ass'n (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 92, 102-103, 77 P.2d 1084 ; American Alliance Ins. Co. v. Capital Nat'l Bank of Sacramento (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 787, 793, 171 P.2d 449].

The rule has also been applied to deny recovery in other situations, for example: (1) to deny recovery by a surety on a fidelity bond seeking subrogated recovery against a purchaser of property stolen by the bonded employee from his employer; (2) to deny recovery to the fire insurer of a subcontractor which asserted a claim based on subrogation to its insured's right of action against the prime contractor for failure to procure its own fire insurance; (3) to deny recovery to the insurer of a title company which sought recovery in subrogation from the employers of an employee who had procured illegal releases of liens on property by the use of forged instruments; and (4) to deny recovery to the surety of an employer who sued the purchaser of cotton stolen by the employee from the employer insured by the surety [see Continental Ins. Co. v. Morgan, Olmstead, Kennedy & Gardner, Inc. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 593, 602-603, 148 Cal. Rptr. 57]. In a case thatinvolved the theft of some $3 million dollars worth of United States treasury bills, the rule was applied to deny the surety, which had paid the employer its loss, the right to subrogation against the brokerage firm (which had purchased some $500,000 of the bills and resold them) because the negligence of the employer--which was imputed to the surety--permitted, if it did not invite, the theft of the bills [Continental Ins. Co. v. Morgan, Olmstead, Kennedy & Gardner, Inc. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 593, 604-605, 148 Cal. Rptr. 57].

In another case, the doctrine was applied to deny an insurance company which had paid fire and burglar losses to its insureds to recover the amounts paid from defendant fire and burglar alarm companies [Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Morse Signal Devices (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 681, 687-688, 198 Cal. Rptr. 756]. Each of the defendants had contracted with plaintiff's insureds to maintain burglar or fire alarm systems; the systems failed to function, either because of mechanical failure or because of the failure of defendants' personnel to notify police or fire departments on receiving signals from otherwise properly functioning systems. The court denied subrogation on the grounds that (1) plaintiff paid what it contracted to pay under its insurance policies; (2) while the defendants may have been negligent in the performance of their contractual duties to plaintiff's insureds, their breach of duty did not create the harm; (3) the primary cause of each insured's loss was the creator of the fire or the burglar and that defendants' negligence was secondary to creation of the perils; (4) the insureds were in the best position to place a value on the contents of their premises (and hence to secure insurance in a proper amount); and (5) the insurance company, which charges its premiums based on the extent of insurance coverage, was in the best position to spread the risks assumed. That is, the court held that the insurer did not have a superior equity permitting it to recover from defendants [Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Morse Signal Devices (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 681, 687-688, 198 Cal. Rptr. 756].

The court of appeal has held that the nature of the underlying cause of action is a relevant factor in balancing the respective equities of the parties [State Farm Gen. Ins. Co. v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1098, 1109 n.8, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 785] . In that case, the tenant of an apartment building caused a fire by careless disposal of hot ashes into a plastic trash can, which was the only waste container provided to him. A bank was the executor of the estate that owned the apartment complex, the executor contracted with a property management company, and the management company contracted with a waste management company to service the complex. The insurer that paid out

$2 million in claims arising from damage to adjacent condominiums sought subrogation from the estate, the executor, the property management company, and the waste management company. The trial court granted the defendants' motion for summary judgment. The court of appeal reversed, holding that the defendants were not entitled to judgment as a matter of law, based on the doctrine of superior equities. The court noted that the gravamen of the insurer's subrogation claim was that the defendants negligently permitted a fire to occur and to spread to its insureds' property; and that it would be inequitable to bar the insurer from pursuing its claim solely because the defendants did not place the ignition source in the trash can. The court held that the contest was between an innocent insurance company (which admittedly received premiums for the very loss that occurred) and alleged tortfeasors (who did not physically start the fire, but whose negligence allegedly permitted the fire to be started and to spread by failing to provide for the safe disposal of fireplace ashes) [State Farm Gen. Ins. Co. v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1098, 1117-1119, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 785 (remanding case for determination of merits of negligence claim)].

Although the court of appeal questioned the continued vitality of the superior-equities rule, it held that the law in California is that the doctrine of superior equities applies in all cases of subrogation, and therefore the trial court properly applied the doctrine and required the subrogating insurer to establish its superior equity in seeking recovery against the defendants. However, in comparing the relative positions of the parties, a court is required to determine who ultimately ought to bear the loss; and there is no facile formula for determining superiority of equities. If third parties are involved to various degrees of responsibility, courts balance the equities by looking for the party who, in good conscience, ultimately ought to bear the loss. If a third party dealing with a direct wrongdoer is in a better position to avoid the loss, the insurer is said to have superior equities [State Farm Gen. Ins. Co. v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1098, 1110-1114, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 785] . In this case, there was no contractual relationship between the insureds and the defendants. Instead, the insurer's subrogation claim was premised on a tort claim--that the defendants' negligence permitted a fire to occur and spread. The court of appeal held that if the third party is an indirect cause of the loss, because it contributed to or permitted the loss, the court must differentiate between primary and secondary causes of loss to determine whether the third party was in a better position to avoid the loss. The mere fact that the defendants did not start the fire does not automatically mean that they have a superior equitable position over the insurer. A significant factor in weighing the equities is whether a defendant's negligent acts were related to or contributed to the primary cause of loss. The court of appeal concluded that the issue in this case was whether the defendants were in a better position to avoid the loss than the insurer or its insureds. Although arguably an insurer should in fairness bear the loss if the third party's liability is solely contractual, such a result is unfair if the loss has been caused by the third party's tortious conduct [State Farm Gen. Ins. Co. v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1098, 1117-1118, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 785 (remanding case for determination of merits of negligence claim)].

[3] Circumstances Establishing Superior Equity

The language of the California cases has not been entirely consistent in defining the circumstances in which a surety has a superior equity which permits recovery [Continental Ins. Co. v. Morgan, Olmstead, Kennedy & Gardner, Inc. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 593, 603, 148 Cal. Rptr. 57]. To illustrate, the court in Continental discussed the following three cases: Meyers v. Bank of Am. Nat'l Trust & Sav. Ass'n (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 92, 98-102, 77 P.2d 1084 ; Commercial Standard Ins. Co. v. Bank of Am. (1976) 129 Cal. Rptr. 91 ; and Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. v. Bank of Am. (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 545, 34 Cal. Rptr. 23 . In the first of these cases (Meyers), the California Supreme Court held that the surety's equity does not become superior to that of the person (a bank that paid checks forged by an employee of the surety's insured) against whom subrogation is asserted merely because that person is guilty of ordinary negligence, but that the person against whom subrogation is sought must have participated in the wrongful act of the primary wrongdoer, be guilty of "culpable negligence," or have notice of the wrongdoing prior to payment. In the second case (Commercial Standard), an allegation that a bank had been negligent in disbursing loan proceeds contrary to its obligation to inspect was held by the court of appeal to be sufficient to withstand a general demurrer where the bank was sued by a surety as subrogee of a property owner's rights against a defaulting contractor whose obligation was insured by the surety. In the third case (Hartford), the court of appeal, dealing with a nonsuit, held that the superior equities rule did not, as a matter of law, bar subrogated recovery by a surety which had issued a fidelity bond covering an employee who forged his employer's check where the bank paying the check negligently departed from banking custom and its own rules in not confirming the check's validity.

The apparent discrepancy in the language of the cases is nevertheless explainable and the rule may be stated as follows: fault of the third person which creates the superior equity in the surety suing in subrogation must be related to the "primary cause" of the loss. It is only when the person dealing with the wrongdoer is in a better position than the insured or the surety to avoid the loss that the surety has the superior equity permitting it to recover as subrogee [Continental Ins. Co. v. Morgan, Olmstead, Kennedy & Gardner, Inc. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 593, 603-604, 148 Cal. Rptr. 57].

Thus, in the case of the check forged by a bonded employee (Meyers), the primary cause of the loss was the conduct of the dishonest employee. The action of the bank in paying the check was secondary. Absent some negligent conduct of a character which promotes or encourages the employee's fraud, the bank was not in a better position to avoid the loss than was the insured's employer. In the case of the bank negligently disbursing proceeds of a construction loan (Commercial Standard), the action of the bank was related to the primary cause of the loss because the bank undertook a contractual duty to inspect before disbursement, placing itself in a superior position to avoid loss from a false claim to a sum disbursed. In the case of a bank grossly departing from its own and generally accepted practices (Hartford), the trier of fact could find that the departure was the primary cause and that the bank failed to avoid the loss where it was in the best position to do so [Continental Ins. Co. v. Morgan, Olmstead, Kennedy & Gardner, Inc. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 593, 604, 148 Cal. Rptr. 57].

PART II LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 536.18 Subrogation Actions Against Public Entities

[1] Claims Requirement

Compliance with the claims statutes (Gov. Code §§ 900-935.6) is normally mandatory before suit may be filed against a public entity, and except in the case of a defective but substantial compliance with the filing requirement, failure to file a claim is fatal to the cause of action [Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. v. County of Riverside (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 183, 188, 165 Cal. Rptr. 29].

Moreover, in a tort action against an insured, a subrogee-insurer's right of action is not independent and separate, but is equal to and limited by the insured's right of action, because the subrogee simply stands in the stead of the original claimant. Therefore, if the insured has filed a cross complaint against a public entity, having already satisfied the requirements of the claims statutes, and a subrogee-insurer that paid the injured party was substituted as intervenor in the insured's cause of action, the subrogee assumes the rights of insured and need not file a separate claim against the public entity [Smith v. Parks Manor (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 872, 881, 243 Cal. Rptr. 256]. Likewise, in the case of an injured employee suing an alleged third-party tortfeasor, the employee's compliance with the written claim requirements of the Tort Claims Act [see Gov. Code §§ 911.2, 945.4] satisfies the employer's compensation carrier's claim filing requirement for the purpose of intervening in the employee's action because the public entity is made aware of the employee's claim by its filing and the carrier's claim is entirely included within the employee's claim [San Diego Unified Port Dist. v. Superior Court (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 843, 846-852, 243 Cal. Rptr. 163].

For a discussion of the procedure for filing a claim, a procedural checklist, and forms for use in filing or amending a claim, applying for leave to present a late claim, and seeking judicial relief from a failure to have filed a claim, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

In addition, any suit brought against a public entity on a cause of action for which a claim is required to be presented must be commenced within the time limits specified in Gov. Code § 945.6. For a discussion of the procedure, a procedural checklist, and forms of pleadings, including allegations of the presentation and rejection of the claim, for use in such actions, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

These rules apply to subrogation actions against public entities founded on a tort liability [see Commercial Union Assurance Co. v. City of San Jose (1982) 127 Cal. App. 3d 730, 733-735, 179 Cal. Rptr. 814 ; Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. v. County of Riverside (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 183, 193-194, 165 Cal. Rptr. 29]. In this connection, it should be noted that the filing of a claim with a public entity by an employer to recover workers' compensation benefits paid on account of the death of its employee [see Lab. Code § 3852] does not relieve the widow of the deceased employee from the necessity of filing a claim on her own behalf when she seeks damages from the public entity for wrongful death [Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. v. County of Riverside (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 183, 188-192, 165 Cal. Rptr. 29 ; cf. Smith v. Parks Manor (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 872, 880-881, 243 Cal. Rptr. 256 (rights of subrogee of cross complainant not controlled by Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. because not based on separate and distinct injury)].

[2] Time in Which Claim Must Be Filed

A claim relating to a cause of action for death or injury to person must be presented not later than six months after the accrual of the cause of action [Gov. Code § 911.2]. For the purpose of computing the six-month time limit, the date of accrual is the date on which the cause of action would be deemed to have accrued within the meaning of the statute of limitations that would be applicable in the absence of the claim-filing requirement [Gov. Code § 901]. The statute of limitations normally applicable to the underlying action may be altered, however, by another statute specifying a different period of limitations for a particular subrogation action. For example, although the limitations period normally applicable to an action for personal injury or wrongful death is two years (one year, prior to January 1, 2003) [Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1; see former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3); Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.14], Ins. Code § 11580.2(g) provides that the insurer paying a claim under an uninsured motorist endorsement or coverage is entitled to be subrogated to the rights of the insured to whom the claim was paid against any person legally liable for such injury or death to the extent that payment was made and that such action may be brought within three years from the date that payment was made. Under this statute, the subrogee's cause of action does not accrue until insurance benefits are paid. Hence, the claim of an insurer, as subrogee, against a county was held to have been timely filed under Gov. Code § 911.2 because it was presented within 100 days after the insurer had paid the insured under the uninsured motorist coverage, even though the injury giving rise to the claim occurred more than 100 days prior to the date the claim was filed and the insured had filed no claim [Allstate Ins. Co. v. County of Alameda (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 418, 420-423 ; see People ex rel. Dep't of Transp. v. Superior Court (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 744, 754-755, 163 Cal. Rptr. 585, 608 P.2d 673].

[3] Equitable Indemnity Actions Distinguished

Actions against public entities based on equitable subrogation are to be distinguished from actions against public entities by tortfeasors seeking equitable indemnity. An action by a tortfeasor for equitable indemnity against a public entity (or any other joint tortfeasor) to recover all or a portion of the amount of any judgment rendered against the tortfeasor in an action by the injured party is separate and distinct from the injured party's action against the tortfeasor. Normally, the time for filing a claim against a public entity does not commence to run until the time the action accrues for statute of limitations purposes [Gov. Code § 901]. But an action for equitable or partial equitable indemnity against a public entity accrues on the date on which a defendant is served with the complaint giving rise to the defendant's claim for equitable or partial equitable indemnity against the public entity [Gov. Code § 901 (in effect repudiating in part the holding of People ex rel. Dep't of Transp. v. Superior Court (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 744, 747-748, 750-760, 762-763, 163 Cal. Rptr. 585, 608 P.2d 673); Smith v. Parks Manor (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 872, 880-881, 243 Cal. Rptr. 256]. For further discussion of equitable indemnity and forms for use in enforcing the right, see Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution .

Chapter 536 SUBROGATION
PART II LEGAL BACKGROUND

47-536 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 536.19

§ 536.19 Partial Subrogation

[1] Terminology

There may be situations in which the third party (subrogee) pays the creditor (subrogor) only a portion of the principal debtor's or tortfeasor's (obligor's) obligation. In such event the third party is a partial subrogee and the creditor is a partial subrogor [see Bank of Orient v. Superior Court (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 588, 594, 136 Cal. Rptr. 741].

[2] Enforcement of Partial Claims

Both the partial subrogee and the partial subrogor have a claim against the obligor and each may sue the obligor [see Ferraro v. Southern Cal. Gas Co. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 33, 43, 162 Cal. Rptr. 238 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Goodman v. Lozano (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1327, 1336-1338, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 219, 223 P.3d 77]. That is, each has a right of action against the obligor [see Ferraro v. Southern Cal. Gas Co. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 33, 41, 47, 162 Cal. Rptr. 238 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Goodman v. Lozano (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1327, 1336-1338, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 219, 223 P.3d 77 ; Ventura County Employees' Ret. Ass'n v. Pope (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 938, 953, 151 Cal. Rptr. 695].

[3] Splitting Cause of Action

[a] Rule Against

Although both the partial subrogee and the partial subrogor have a right of action against the obligor, there is only one cause of action. Hence, they may not (except to the extent that the rule has been modified by a specific statute), over the objection of the obligor, each sue the obligor in a separate action and recover judgment, thereby subjecting the obligor to two actions instead of one; this would constitute an impermissible splitting of the cause of action, which is condemned as subjecting a defendant to vexatious litigation and as a waste of judicial resources [Wulfjen v. Dolton (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 891, 894-895, 151 P.2d 846]. This rule applies to subrogated insurers, since the insured and the subrogated insurer are "privies" and the same parties under Code Civ. Proc. § 1910, relating to parties concluded by a judgment [Travelers Indem. Co. v. Ingebretsen (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 858, 867-868, 113 Cal. Rptr. 679].

[b] Raising or Waiving Objection

The splitting of a cause of action is not a jurisdictional defect but rather an affirmative defense that must be pleaded by the defendant or is waived [Ferraro v. Southern Cal. Gas Co. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 33, 43-44, 162 Cal. Rptr. 238 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Goodman v. Lozano (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1327, 1336-1338, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 219, 223 P.3d 77]. The same is true of the alternative objection that the partial subrogee or partial subrogor has failed to join the other as a party in his or her action against the obligor; the failure is not a jurisdictional defect in the fundamental sense, since it does not deprive the trial court of subject matter jurisdiction [Ferraro v. Southern Cal. Gas Co. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 33, 44-45, 162 Cal. Rptr. 238 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Goodman v. Lozano (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1327, 1336-1338, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 219, 223 P.3d 77]. The omitted party is not an indispensable party but only what would have been classified as a conditionally necessary party under Code Civ. Proc. § 389 prior to its 1971 amendment [Peerless Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 358, 362, 85 Cal. Rptr. 679]. Hence, the objection of nonjoinder is waived if not timely and properly made (usually by demurrer or answer) [Peerless Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 358, 361, 85 Cal. Rptr. 679]. A fortiori, the objection may not be raised for the first time on appeal from the judgment [Ferraro v. Southern Cal. Gas Co. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 33, 44-45, 162 Cal. Rptr. 238 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Goodman v. Lozano (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1327, 1336-1338, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 219, 223 P.3d 77].

[c] How to Raise Objection That Action Has Been Split

The defense that the action has been split may be raised by demurrer if the objection appears from the face of the complaint or from matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice, or by answer if the objection does not appear from the face of the complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10, 430.30, 431.30(b)(2)]. The ground of objection is that (1) there is a defect (i.e., nonjoinder) of parties plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(d)], or (2) there is another action pending between the same parties on the same cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(c)], or (3) the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] since the action is barred by the doctrine of res judicata.

Thus, if the partial subrogee and the partial subrogor each sues the obligor in a separate action, the obligor may plead in either action, or in both actions, that there is a defect of parties plaintiff or move to compel joinder of the omitted party [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 389, 430.10(d)]. Alternatively, the obligor, in the second action, may plead the pendency of the first action in abatement, based on another action pending. If judgment has previously been rendered on the merits in the first action, the obligor in the second action may plead the judgment in the first action in bar, based on res judicata [Ferraro v. Southern Cal. Gas Co. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 33, 41, 162 Cal. Rptr. 238 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Goodman v. Lozano (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1327, 1336-1338, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 219, 223 P.3d 77 ; Phillips v. Western Pac. R.R. Co. (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 441, 444, 99 Cal. Rptr. 451].

For further discussion and forms of affirmative defenses and demurrers on the above grounds, see Ch. 3, Abatement of Actions ; Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings ; and Ch. 491, Res Judicata . For discussion and forms for use in moving to secure a separate trial of the affirmative defense, see Ch. 3, Abatement of Actions, § 3.110 et seq.. For discussion, procedural guides, and forms for use in moving to compel joinder of an omitted party or to intervene in an action, see Ch. 395, Parties .

[d] How to Avoid Defense That Action Has Been Split

To avoid the defense that the cause of action has been split (as well as the issue of nonjoinder of a party), both the partial subrogee and partial subrogor should, each to enforce his or her own claim, join together as plaintiffs in a lawsuit against the debtor or tortfeasor. If either the partial subrogee or partial subrogor is unwilling to be joined as a plaintiff in an action by the other, the other may sue the obligor and name the unwilling plaintiff as a defendant in that action, as authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 382 [see Offer v. Superior Court (1924) 194 Cal. 114, 118-119, 228 P. 11 ; Phillips

v. Western Pac. R.R. Co. (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 441, 443, 99 Cal. Rptr. 451]. If this is done, a cross complaint by the unwilling plaintiff as defendant on his or her partial claim against the codefendant (the principal debtor or tortfeasor), does not constitute, but rather prevents, an impermissible splitting of a cause of action [Phillips v. Western Pac. R.R. Co. (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 441, 445, 99 Cal. Rptr. 451 ; see Ferraro v. Southern Cal. Gas Co. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 33, 42-43, 162 Cal. Rptr. 238 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Goodman v. Lozano (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1327, 1336-1338, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 219, 223 P.3d 77 (explaining court's holding in Phillips)].

[e] Prohibition Against Double Liability of Obligor

An adjunct of subrogation is the rule prohibiting double liability or double recovery of damages, a rule of special importance in the prosecutionof subrogation claims because the proration of damages among those who have shared the costs of personal injuries, for example, increases the possibility of duplicate claims for the same loss. Only one totality of recovery of damages for personal injuries is allowed, and only one totality of liability can be imposed on the tortfeasor. Duplicate recovery of damages is barred, and neither double recovery of the same item of loss nor double liability for the same item of injury is permitted [Board of Admin. v. Glover (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 906, 915, 196 Cal. Rptr. 330, 671 P.2d 834 ; Ventura County Employees' Ret. Ass'n v. Pope (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 938, 952, 151 Cal. Rptr. 695].

The nature of subrogation and its prohibition against double recovery make clear that subrogation involves succession to the rights of others. Rights under subrogation are derivative rights, and succession to another's rights, like water, cannot rise higher than its source [Board of Admin. v. Glover (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 906, 915, 196 Cal. Rptr. 330, 671 P.2d 834 ; Ventura County Employees' Ret. Ass'n v. Pope (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 938, 952, 151 Cal. Rptr. 695]. Thus, regardless of substitution of parties and subrogation of claimants who have borne portions of the costs of, for example, personal injuries, all claims of third parties for damages for personal injuries to an injured person--including the employer which reimburses for lost earnings, the medical service group which provides medical care, the compensation insurance carrier which reimburses for loss of future earnings, the medical insurer which underwrites future medical care, and the pension fund or retirement association which pays benefits for loss of ability to work--derive from the injured person's claims against the tortfeasor for damages for personal injuries. In their own right these claimants possess no claims of their own against the tortfeasor, for the tortfeasor has committed no wrong against them. It is only because they have carried part of the costs of the injured person's losses that they acquire claims against the tortfeasor as subrogees to the injured person's claims for damages for personal injuries [Board of Admin. v. Glover (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 906, 915, 196 Cal. Rptr. 330, 671 P.2d 834 ; Ventura County Employees' Ret. Ass'n v. Pope (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 938, 952, 151 Cal. Rptr. 695].

Thus, the obligor cannot be compelled to pay the entire amount of the partial subrogee's claim plus the full amount of the subrogor's claim without credit for the amount of the claim paid to the partial subrogee. Payment made to the partial subrogor by the partial subrogee is not payment from a "collateral source," within the meaning of that term, and to allow the partial subrogor to collect from the obligor the full amount of the claim without an offset for the amount the obligor must pay the partial subrogee would subject the obligor to double liability on the same claim [Ferraro v. Southern Cal. Gas Co. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 33, 46, 162 Cal. Rptr. 238 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Goodman v. Lozano (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1327, 1336-1338, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 219, 223 P.3d 77 ; Ventura County Employees' Ret. Ass'n v. Pope (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 938, 951, 151 Cal. Rptr. 695 ; see Board of Admin. v. Glover (1983) 196 Cal. Rptr. 330, 671 P.2d 834 . For example, if the total amount of an insured's loss from a fire is $100,000, the liability of the torfeasor who caused the fire is $100,000. If the insurer pays the insured the policy limit of $50,000, the tortfeasor is still liable for the full amount of $100,000. $50,000 of this amount would go to reimburse the partial subrogee and the balance would go to the partial subrogor. That is, the tortfeasor would not be liable for the amount of $150,000 ($50,000 to the partial subrogee and $100,000 to the partial subrogor).

This is also true where the obligor has paid the partial subrogor the full amount of its liability. Thus, in the example above, if the tortfeasor-obligor had paid the partial subrogor the full amount of $100,000, the partial subrogee could not recover its payment of $50,000 from the obligor. The partial subrogee may not, at least where the obligor had no notice of the subrogee's claim, recover the amount of its claim from the obligor, since this would constitute double recovery [see Board of Admin. v. Glover (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 906, 916, 196 Cal. Rptr. 330, 671 P.2d 834].

Moreover, a workers' compensation carrier (a partial subrogee) which has paid benefits to an injured employee may assign its lien on any recovery that might be obtained by the injured employee in an action against a third party tortfeasor to the third party tortfeasor and his or her liability carrier, who may then set off the face amount of the lien against any recovery by the injured employee, even though the lien was assigned for less than its face value [Quinn v. Warnes (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 309, 317, 192 Cal. Rptr. 660].

Chapter 536 SUBROGATION
PART II LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 536.20 Statutes of Limitations

A few statutes relating to subrogation by particular parties expressly provide a longer period of limitations on the subrogated action than that normally applicable to the subrogor's cause of action. For example, Gov. Code § 21455, relating to a subrogation action by the Board of Administration on behalf of California's Public Employees' Retirement System against a tortfeasor for injury to or death of a member-employee to recover the authorized portion of benefits paid, requires that the subrogated action be commenced within three years after the liability of the system to pay benefits is fixed. (For the respective obligations of the system, an injured member-employee, and an alleged third party tortfeasor within the context of a personal injury settlement between the tortfeasor and the member-employee and a reimbursement claim by the system against the tortfeasor for disability retirement benefits paid to the member-employee, see Board of Admin. v. Glover (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 906, 909-919, 196 Cal. Rptr. 330, 671 P.2d 834 .) A similar provision applies to subrogation actions by county retirement associations to recover the authorized portion of benefits paid for injury to or death of an employee [Gov. Code § 31823]. Another example is Ins. Code § 11580.2(g), relating to a subrogation action by an insurerto recover the amount it paid in settlement of a claim under the uninsured motorist endorsement in a motor vehicle policy, which requires that the subrogated action be brought within three years from the date payment was made [see Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v. Fales (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 712, 716, 106 Cal. Rptr. 21, 505 P.2d 213 ; Commercial Union Assurance Co. v. City of San Jose (1982) 127 Cal. App. 3d 730, 735-736, 179 Cal. Rptr. 814]. The purpose of these extended periods of limitation is to protect the subrogation rights of the subrogee when the statute of limitations on the subrogor's cause of action might expire before the subrogee's cause of action arises; but in any such action the subrogee may not rely on the statute of limitations applicable to the subrogor's action to cut off the obligor's right to seek affirmative relief by a cross claim [Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v. Fales (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 712, 716-717, 106 Cal. Rptr. 21 (construction of Ins. Code § 11580.2(g))].

Except as otherwise expressly provided by statute, a subrogation action is subject to the same statute of limitations that applies to the subrogor's action against the obligor and commences to run at the same time [see, e.g., Employers Ins. of Wausau v. Granite State Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 2003) 330 F.3d 1214, 1218 (insurer entitled to same limitations period as insured bringing suit on own behalf; applying four-year limitations period); Commercial Union Assurance Co. v. City of San Jose (1982) 127 Cal. App. 3d 730, 734, 179 Cal. Rptr. 814 ; Iusi v. City Title Ins. Co. (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 582, 588, 28 Cal. Rptr. 893 ; Automobile Ins. Co. v. Union Oil Co. (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 302, 304-305, 193 P.2d 48]. For example, if the subrogor's action arises out of injury to real property or to goods or chattels, the action is, unless otherwise expressly provided by statute, governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 338(b) or (c) and, under this statute, must be commenced against the tortfeasor within three years [Automobile Ins. Co. v. Union Oil Co. (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 302, 306-307, 193 P.2d 48]. By the same token, if the subrogor's action arises from a personal injury as the result of a wrongful act, the action is, unless otherwise expressly provided by statute, governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1 and, under that statute, must be commenced against the tortfeasor within two years (one year, prior to January 1, 2003) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1; County of San Diego v. Sanfax Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 862, 869, 871-886, 140 Cal. Rptr. 638, 568 P.2d 363 ; Ventura County Employees' Ret. Ass'n v. Pope (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 938, 947-955, 151 Cal. Rptr. 695 ; see also former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3); Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.14].

Thus, in a subrogation action under Lab. Code § 3852 by an employer against a tortfeasor to recover a sum equivalent to the benefits that the employer was required to provide the employee under the Workers' Compensation Law, the Supreme Court pointed out that since 1953 California courts have consistently held that former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1), the statute of limitations that governs actions for injury caused by the wrongful act or neglect of another, governs an employer's action against a third party, just as it would govern an employee's suit against the third party, and that, under these decisions, an employer has one year from the date of the employee's injury in which to bring an action against the third party [County of San Diego v. Sanfax Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 862, 868-869, 140 Cal. Rptr. 638, 568 P.2d 363 ; see Board of Admin. v. Glover (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 906, 911-912, 196 Cal. Rptr. 330, 671 P.2d 834 ; Jordan v. Superior Court (1981) 116 Cal. App. 3d 202, 206, 172 Cal. Rptr. 30].

For the statute of limitations applicable to an action by an employer for indemnity against a third party tortfeasor to recover money paid for personal injuries to its employee under the Federal Employers' Liability Act (45 U.S.C. §§ 51-60), which, unlike California's Workers' Compensation Act, has no provisions subrogating the employer to the employee's rights against a third party, see Southern Pac. Transp. Co. v. Ohbayashi Am. Corp. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 233, 236-238, 195 Cal. Rptr. 63 . For discussion of the Federal Employers' Liability Act, see Ch. 522, Ships and Shipping .

PART II LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 536.21 Defenses Generally

Except as noted under § 536.20, a subrogee is subject to any defenses the obligor has against the subrogor [Breese v. Price (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 923, 930-931, 176 Cal. Rptr. 791, 633 P.2d 987 ; Commercial Union Assurance Co. v. City of San Jose (1982) 127 Cal. App. 3d 730, 733, 179 Cal. Rptr. 814 ; Iusi v. City Title Ins. Co. (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 582, 588, 28 Cal. Rptr. 893]. In addition, the obligor may raise any defenses he or she has against the subrogee--for example, that the subrogee's payment was voluntary [see § 536.120], that the subrogee's action is barred by the statute of limitations [see § 536.122], or that the obligor has a money claim against the plaintiff that may be set off against the plaintiff's claim against the obligor [see § 536.123]. An insured sued by its own insurer in a subrogation action may raise the affirmative defense that an insurer is barred from suing a third party that it has also insured under a separate policy [National Union Fire Ins. v. Engineering-Sci. (9th Cir. 1989) 884 F.2d 1208, 1210 ; see § 536.124].

Chapter 536 SUBROGATION
PART II LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 536.22 Effect of Release on Subrogation Rights

The general rule is that execution of a valid release extinguishes any subrogation rights against the released party. For example, in the insurance context, when an insured has released a third party, neither the insured nor the subrogated insurer thereafter has any right to recover from the third party [Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Maryland Cas. Co. (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1586, 1597, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 762]. This rule derives from the principle that since the subrogated insurer stands in the shoes of its insured, it has no greater rights against the third party than the insuredhad [Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Maryland Cas. Co. (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1586, 1597, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 762 ; Continental Mfg. Corp. v. Underwriters at Lloyds London (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 545, 556, 8 Cal. Rptr. 276].

It appears that there is a significant exception to this rule, however. When a tortfeasor obtains a release from the insured with knowledge that the insured already has been indemnified by the insurer, the courts have stated that the release does not bar the insurer's subrogation right [Conservatorship of Edwards (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 1176, 1184, 244 Cal. Rptr. 330 ; see also Board of Admin. v. Glover (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 906, 916, 196 Cal. Rptr. 330, 671 P.2d 834 ; Ventura County Employees' Ret. Ass'n v. Pope (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 938, 952, 957, 151 Cal. Rptr. 695]. However, while courts readily recognize the existence of this exception, it has been applied infrequently, if at all, in the reported cases [see California Insurance Law & Practice, Ch. 35, § 35.11[5][b] (Matthew Bender)].

Chapter 536 SUBROGATION
PART II LEGAL BACKGROUND

47-536 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 536.23

§ 536.23 Doctrine of Comparative Negligence

The doctrine of comparative negligence applies to the action of a subrogee against the obligor [Breese v. Price (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 923, 930, 176 Cal. Rptr. 791, 633 P.2d 987 ; see § 536.121]. For example, if a fire caused $100,000 worth of damage to insured property, the insurer, on paying the insured $100,000, would be subrogated to the rights of the insured against the person whose negligence caused the fire [see Ins. Code § 2071]. If, in that action, the trier of fact concluded that the defendant was only 60 percent at fault and the insured was 40 percent at fault, the $100,000 recovery would be reduced 40 percent--that is, the insurer would recover judgment for only $60,000 on its subrogated claim.

As another example, if an employee were injured by a third-party tortfeasor and the employer's compensation insurer paid benefits as a result of the injury, either the employee or the employer (or the employer's insurer) could sue the third-party tortfeasor, or they could join in an action against the tortfeasor, or one could intervene in the other's action against the tortfeasor, or, if the employee alone sued, the employer's insurer could secure a lien on any judgment recovered [see Lab. Code §§ 3852-3856; County of San Diego v. Sanfax Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 862, 872-873, 140 Cal. Rptr. 638, 568 P.2d 363]. Suppose that, in an action by the employee and the employer's insurer, the jury awards the injured plaintiff-employee total damages in the sum of $550,000 and it finds the tortfeasor was 22 percent negligent, the employee 78 percent negligent, and the employer zero percent negligent. Suppose further that the employer's insurer paid benefits in the sum of $52,423. In this case, the total damages awarded would be reduced by the amount of $429,000 (78 percent attributable to the employee), leaving a difference of $121,000 as the total amount to be paid by defendant tortfeasor. Of this amount, the employer's insurer would recover $52,423, which, subtracted from $121,000, leaves $68,577, which would be the employee's net recovery [see Jarvis v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 246, 259, 191 Cal. Rptr. 29].

PART III RESEARCH GUIDE

47-536 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 536.42

§ 536.42 Decisions

[1] Application of Equitable Principles

Equitable subrogation enables one who pays, otherwise than as volunteer, an obligation for which another is primarily liable, to be given by equity the protection of any lien or other security for payment of debt to creditor, and to enforce security against principal debtor or collect obligation from debtor. In re Deuel (9th Cir. 2010) 594 F.3d 1073, 1079

In application of maxim of jurisprudence that he or she who seeks equity must do equity, court does not create substantive rights under guise of doing equity; that is, court does not confer rights if one who invokes maxim has none. Stein v. Simpson (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 79, 82-83, 230 P.2d 816 (denying subrogation to junior lienholder who without obligation to do so paid senior lienholder pursuant to fraudulent scheme to deprive owners of their property)

Right to subrogation is governed by equitable principles. Meyers v. Bank of Am. Nat'l Trust & Sav. Ass'n (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 92, 96-97, 77 P.2d 1084 ; Liberty Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Auto Spring Supply Co. (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 860, 865, 131 Cal. Rptr. 211

While Civ. Code § 2848 provides that surety, on satisfying obligation of his or her principal, is entitled to be subrogated to that extent to all remedies which creditor has against principal, question whether obligation which is satisfied is in fact obligation of the particular principal is to be decided in accordance with rules of law and principles of equity. Painter v. Berglund (1939) 31 Cal. App. 2d 63, 67, 87 P.2d 360

[2] Assignment, Subrogation, and Reimbursement Compared

Assignment and subrogation distinguished. Fifield Manor v. Finston (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 632, 638-640, 7 Cal. Rptr. 377, 354 P.2d 1073

Cause of action for personal injuries is nonassignable and, in absence of statutory authority, is not subject to subrogation. Fifield Manor v. Finston (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 632, 639, 7 Cal. Rptr. 377, 354 P.2d 1073 ; Lee v. State

Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 458, 465, 129 Cal. Rptr. 271 ; Peller v. Liberty Mut. Fire Ins. Co. (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 610, 612, 34 Cal. Rptr. 41

Rights accruing to party entitled to be subrogated to claim of another do not differ from those that would be conferred by assignment of same claim. Meyers v. Bank of Am. Nat'l Trust & Sav. Ass'n (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 92, 94-95, 77 P.2d 1084 ; Snider v. Basinger (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 819, 824, 132 Cal. Rptr. 637

Formal written assignment adds nothing to enforceability by assignee of cause of action. Meyers v. Bank of Am. Nat'l Trust & Sav. Ass'n (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 92, 94, 77 P.2d 1084 ; Federal Ins. Co. v. Allen (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 648, 650, 92 Cal. Rptr. 125

California law prohibits assignment of legal malpractice claims, and nonassignable claims generally are not subject to subrogation absent statutory authorization; thus liability insurer that pays claim against its insured that resulted from negligence of insured's attorneys has no subrogation rights with respect to insured's legal malpractice claim against attorneys. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. McDonald, Hecht & Solberg (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1373, 1387, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 424

Subrogation operates as equitable assignment. Allianz Ins. Co. v. Municipal Court (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 1043, 1046, 179 Cal. Rptr. 334

Although recorded assignment of note and deed of trust vests in assignee all rights and interests of beneficiary, including authority to exercise any power of sale given beneficiary, equitable subrogee of senior lienholder's right does not have identical rights; for example, equitable subrogee is not able to compel written assignment or to foreclose by nonjudicial process as can assignee of such rights by written instrument. Strike v. Trans-W. Disc. Corp. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 735, 744, 155 Cal. Rptr. 132

Party entitled to equitable lien by subrogation acquires all rights that would otherwise be acquired by written assignment; insofar as assignment would entitle party to priority senior to that of junior encumbrancers, party is likewise entitled to same priorty as subrogee. Snider v. Basinger (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 819, 825, 132 Cal. Rptr. 637

While cause of action to recover damages for personal injuries is not assignable, provisions in insurance contract requiring reimbursement of medical payments under label of subrogation, but providing only access to proceeds of settlement or judgment resulting from exercise of rights of recovery by injured person, were valid and enforceable. Lee v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 458, 465-466, 129 Cal. Rptr. 271

Although assignment of cause of action to recover damages for personal injuries is prohibited by Code Civ. Proc. § 377.20 et seq. (relating to survivability of actions), as well as at common law, agreement to reimburse insurer in event of recovery of such damages by insured from third party tortfeasor by either judgment or settlement is valid. West v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 562, 565, 106 Cal. Rptr. 486

[3] Compliance with Claims Statutes in Actions Against Public Entities

Absent special considerations, insurer's right to recover on insured's cause of action against alleged tortfeasor (city) for damages to insured's property is barred when statutory period under Gov. Code § 945.6(a) ran on insured's claim. Commercial Union Assurance Co. v. City of San Jose (1982) 127 Cal. App. 3d 730, 735, 179 Cal. Rptr. 814

Compliance with claims statutes is mandatory to suit against public entity and failure to file claim is fatal to cause of action. Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. v. County of Riverside (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 183, 188, 165 Cal. Rptr. 29

Demurrer to widow's complaint in intervention for wrongful death filed in action against county by employer, which had properly filed claim prior to suit, to recover benefits paid to survivors under workers' compensation law, was properly sustained because widow had failed to comply with claims statutes; claims filing requirement does not abrogate right of joinder granted by Lab. Code § 3853, but merely conditions availability of joinder when third party tortfeasor is governmental entity. Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. v. County of Riverside (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 183, 192-193, 165 Cal. Rptr. 29

Insurer's claim as subrogee under uninsured motorist coverage (see Gov. Code § 11580.2(g)) against county was timely filed under Gov. Code § 911.2, requiring claim for injury to person to be filed within 100 days after accrual of cause of action, when, though injury giving rise to claim occurred more than 100 days prior to filing date and insured had filed no claim, claim was presented within 100 days after insurer had made payment to insured. Allstate Ins. Co. v. County of Alameda (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 418, 420-423, 109 Cal. Rptr. 53 (decided prior to January 1, 1988, amendment extending claim period to six months)

[4] Constitutionality

Legislative classification allowing statutory pension or retirement system to pursue subrogation against third party tortfeasor for disabling injuries to employee-member does not violate equal protection clauses of state and federal Constitutions. Ventura County Employees' Ret. Ass'n v. Pope (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 938, 946, 151 Cal. Rptr. 695

Subrogation action by employees' retirement association pursuant to Gov. Code § 31820 against third party tortfeasor who had caused disabling injuries to employee did not violate constitutional prohibition against impairment of contract [U.S. Const. art. I, § 10; Cal. Const. art. I, § 9], even though employee had settled her claim against third party and executed general release, where association had not given written consent to general release, as required by Lab. Code § 3859, which provision was implicitly incorporated into defendant's general release. Ventura County Employees' Ret. Ass'n v. Pope (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 938, 946, 151 Cal. Rptr. 695

[5] County Retirement Associations

Gov. Code §§ 31820-31822 incorporates employer subrogation provisions of workers compensation law (Lab. Code §§ 3850-3864) into statutory scheme for county employees' retirement. Ventura County Employees' Ret. Ass'n v. Pope (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 938, 942, 151 Cal. Rptr. 695

[6] Cross Complaints

In action by insured against insurer on fidelity bond to recover indemnity for loss caused by dishonest employee, insurer's cross complaint for declaratory relief against third party (accounting firm), whose negligence was alleged to have permitted or increased amount of insured's loss, for judgment that third party is liable to insurer if insurer is liable to insured, was proper. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v. Harris, Kerr, Forster & Co. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 1100, 1102-1104, 89 Cal. Rptr. 437

[7] Defenses

Defendant third party tortfeasor in action by subrogee is entitled to contest both liability and causation of injuries to same extent as if injured subrogor had brought action, and right to contest liability includes right to raise issue of comparative negligence. Breese v. Price (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 923, 930, 176 Cal. Rptr. 791, 633 P.2d 987 ; Ventura County Employees' Ret. Ass'n v. Pope (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 938, 943, 945, 151 Cal. Rptr. 695

Under settled principles, insurer, in its role as subrogee, has no greater rights than those possessed by its insured, and its claims are subject to same defenses. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v. Fales (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 712, 717, 106 Cal. Rptr. 21 505 P.2d 213

Equitable doctrine of subrogation passes to insurer only those rights that assured had; if rights of assured have been limited by lawful contract, rights of insurer are likewise limited. Rokeby-Johnson v. Aquatronics Int'l, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 1076, 1086, 206 Cal. Rptr. 232

Surety subrogated to rights of principal against third person takes rights subject to all defenses that third person had against principal. Rokeby-Johnson v. Aquatronics Int'l, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 1076, 1083, 206 Cal. Rptr. 232

Illustrations of apportionment of damages based on comparative negligence in workers' compensation carrier's subrogated action. Jarvis v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 246, 258-259, 191 Cal. Rptr. 29

Defendant third party tortfeasor in subrogated action by insurer is usually permitted to assert all defenses available against insured including statute of limitations. Commercial Union Assurance Co. v. City of San Jose (1982) 127 Cal. App. 3d 730, 733, 179 Cal. Rptr. 814

Insurer-subrogee of claim of its insured is subject to same defenses applicable to action by insured on that claim. Phoenix of Hartford Ins. Cos. v. Colony Kitchens (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 140, 144, 128 Cal. Rptr. 893

Tenant who burns waste in incinerator constructed and maintained in violation of provisions of Pub. Res. Code § 4446 is negligent as matter of law when unattended fire escapes from incernator and burns landlord's buildings; landlord's insurer, which paid loss, is barred from recovery in subrogation against tenant on ground of landlord's contributory negligence consisting of landlord's having maintained incinerator in violation of law. Travelers Indem. Co. v. Titus (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 515, 517-518, 71 Cal. Rptr. 490

Subrogee has no greater rights than subrogor and is subject to same defenses. Iusi v. City Title Ins. Co. (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 582, 588, 28 Cal. Rptr. 893

Any defenses that wrongdoer has against insured are good against insurer in action by insurer as subrogee of insured's claim against wrongdoer. Royal Indem. Co. v. Security Truck Lines (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 61, 66, 27 Cal. Rptr. 858

Wrongdoer in action against it by insurer as subrogee of its insured is entitled to file counterclaim against insurer on unrelated claim it has against insured. Royal Indem. Co. v. Security Truck Lines (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 61, 66, 27 Cal. Rptr. 858 (former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 437, 438 (now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 428.80, 431.30(c), 431.70))

[8] Definitions

Subrogation is substitution of one party in place of another with reference to lawful claim, demand, or right; right of subrogation is derivative, acquired by satisfaction of loss or claim that third party has against another. Hamada v. Far E. Nat'l Bank (9th Cir. 2002) 291 F.3d 645, 649

Definition, origin, development, and scope of subrogation. Redington v. Cornwell (1891) 90 Cal. 49, 58, 27 P. 40 ; Offer v. Superior Court (1924) 194 Cal. 114, 119, 228 P. 11

Subrogation, a legal fiction, is broadly defined as substitution of one person in place of another with reference to lawful claim or right. State Bar of Cal. v. Statile (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 650, 662, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 72

Subrogation is substitution of another person in place of creditor or claimant to whose rights he or she succeeds in relation to debt or claim. Morgan Creek Residential v. Kemp (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 675, 690, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 232 ; State Farm Gen. Ins. Co. v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1098, 1105, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 785 ; Gulf Ins. Co. v. TIG Ins. Co. (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 422, 430-431, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305

Subrogation defined. Bush v. Superior Court (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1374, 1381, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 382

[9] Doctrine of Superior Equities

Subrogation not available when party seeking subrogation was primarily liable on letter of credit; subrogation depends on superiority of equities of party asserting it over equities of one against whom it is sought; defendants, as mere guarantors, bargained for limited exposure. Morgan Creek Residential v. Kemp (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 675, 690-691, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 232

Doctrine of superior equities prevents insurer from recovering against party whose equities are equal or superior to those of insurer; although insurer might have subrogation interest in insured's claim against party that caused loss, it cannot enforce its subrogation rights unless it has equities superior to those of wrongdoer; in California, doctrine of superior equities is critical in determining whether right of subrogation exists. State Farm Gen. Ins. Co. v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1098, 1107-1108, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 785

In subrogation litigation, California follows doctrine of superior equities, which, in action by insurer against third person, requires court to consider negligence of insured and that of third person; burden is on surety to establish its superior equity. Rokeby-Johnson v. Aquatronics Int'l, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 1076, 1084, 206 Cal. Rptr. 232

Insurer which under its policies paid losses resulting from fires and burglaries was unable to recover payments from fire and burglar alarm companies whose alarms failed; surety has superior equity permitting it to recover as subrogee only when person dealing with wrongdoer is in better position to avoid loss than is insured or surety. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Morse Signal Devices (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 681, 687, 198 Cal. Rptr. 756

California cases have approved application of doctrine of subrogation to creditor's rights against third persons when surety's equities are superior to those of third party wrongdoer; such surety, on its payment to employer, is subrogated to employer's rights. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 797, 805 n. 6, 149 Cal. Rptr. 883

Doctrine of superior equities explained. Continental Ins. Co. v. Morgan, Olmstead, Kennedy & Gardner, Inc. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 593, 602-604, 148 Cal. Rptr. 57

California cases have approved application of doctrine of subrogation to creditor's rights against third persons when surety's equities are superior to those of third party wrongdoer. Commercial Standard Ins. Co. v. Bank of Am. (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 241, 247, 129 Cal. Rptr. 91

Insureds who had recovered judgments against county for earth slippage damage to their homes triggered by county's construction work were unable to defeat subrogation claims of their insurers, which had made payments to them in connection with their losses, on theory that insurers could not have recovered against county on basis of their subrogation rights on ground, among others, that county was innocent party and insurers must prove they have greater "equities" than county; argument is without merit since equities of county, whose actions (whether negligent or not) caused the damages, were inferior to those of plaintiff insurers. Travelers Indem. Co. v. Ingebretsen (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 858, 863-864, 113 Cal. Rptr. 679

Subrogation is creation of equity and subject to limitation that it will not be allowed when it will be inequitable to third persons. Federal Ins. Co. v. Allen (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 648, 650, 92 Cal. Rptr. 125

Surety subrogee is able to recover only if it shows an equity superior to that of defendants. Federal Ins. Co. v. Allen (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 648, 650, 92 Cal. Rptr. 125

In surety's action arising from its payment of theft claim on employee fidelity bond to recover value of stolen goods from defendants who had purchased them from employee, plaintiff failed to establish superior, or even equal, equity to entitle it to recover when it was shown that defendants had no notice of theft and there were no facts to put them on inquiry, whereas plaintiff had, in effect, vouched for employee's integrity and accepted premium for its agreement to indemnify against employee's defalcations. Federal Ins. Co. v. Allen (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 648, 650, 92 Cal. Rptr. 125

[10] Double Liability of Obligor Prohibited

Double recovery from or liability of obligor by reason of subrogation prohibited when obligor is unaware of subrogee's claim. Board of Admin. v. Glover (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 906, 915-916, 918-919, 196 Cal. Rptr. 330, 671 P.2d 834 ; Ventura CountyEmployees' Ret. Ass'n v. Pope (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 938, 951-952, 151 Cal. Rptr. 695

[11] Elements of Subrogation

Equitable assignment or right of subrogation is creature of equity, and is applicable to all cases in which one party involuntarily pays debt for which another is primarily liable and that in equity and good conscience should have been paid by party primarily liable. Fidelity Nat'l Title Ins. Co. v. Miller (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1163, 1174, 264 Cal. Rptr. 17

[12] Estoppel

Lender is estopped to recover a deficiency judgment against guarantor when it elects remedy (nonjudicial foreclosure) that cuts off guarantor's subrogation rights against debtor. Union Bank v. Gradsky (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 40, 46, 71 Cal. Rptr. 64

Lender that elects nonjudicial foreclosure and thereby cuts off loan guarantor's subrogation rights against debtor is estopped to recover deficiency judgment against guarantor when waiver language in guaranty agreement did not adequately inform guarantor that destruction of guarantor's subrogation rights gives guarantor an estoppel defense against recovery of a deficiency judgment. Cathay Bank v. Lee (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1533, 1542, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 420 , superseded by statute as stated in WRI Opportunity Loans II, LLC v. Cooper (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 525, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 205

[13] Indemnity and Subrogation Distinguished

When claim must be filed by tortfeasor to secure equitable indemnity against public entity alleged to be joint tortfeasor. People ex rel. Dep't of Transp. v. Superior Court (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 744, 747-748, 750-751, 163 Cal. Rptr. 585, 608 P.2d 673 (repudiated in part by 1981 amendment of Gov. Code § 901)

Right of subrogation and right of indemnity distinguished. Associated Indem. Corp. v. Pacific Sw. Airlines (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 898, 906, 180 Cal. Rptr. 685

Lab. Code § 3852 (recovery of benefits paid as workers' compensation from third party tortfeasor in action by employer or by employee for damages for injury) provides action for indemnity when action is to recover from defendant "damages" employer is required to pay to State pursuant to Lab. Code § 4706.5 when employee dies leaving no dependents. Associated Indem. Corp. v. Pacific Sw. Airlines (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 898, 907, 180 Cal. Rptr. 685

[14] Insurers

Subrogation lien is not express lien based on agreement, but instead is equitable lien impressed on moneys on ground that they ought to go to insurer. See Sereboff v. Mid Atl. Med. Servs., Inc. (2006) 547 U.S. 356, 126 S. Ct. 1869, 1877, 164 L. Ed. 2d 612 (ERISA action determining when fiduciary may sue beneficiary for reimbursement of medical expenses paid by ERISA plan; not involving subrogation)

Made-whole rule does not bar automobile insurer from seeking reimbursement for med-pay proceeds that it paid to insured, subject to deduction under common-fund theory for its share of attorney's fees that insured expended to obtain payment from tortfeasor. 21st Century Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 511, 518, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 516, 213 P.3d 972 ; see also 21st Century Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 511, 515, 533-535, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 516, 213 P.3d 972 (conc. opn. of Werdegar, J.)

If attorney properly sues concurrent counsel for indemnification of malpractice damages, attorney's insurer may be subrogated to attorney's indemnity claim against concurrent counsel. Musser v. Provencher (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 274, 285-287, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 373, 48 P.3d 408

Under settled principles, insurer in its role as subrogee has no greater rights than those possessed by its insured. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v. Fales (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 712, 717, 106 Cal. Rptr. 21, 505 P.2d 213 ; State Farm Gen. Ins. Co. v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1098, 1106, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 785

Good-faith settlement order does not bar nonsettling tortfeasor from asserting indemnification claim against settling defendants based on express contract; because insurer stands in shoes of its insured, insurer can pursue cause of action against settling tortfeasor for breach of express contractual indemnification clause. Interstate Fire & Cas. Ins. Co. v. Cleveland Wrecking Co. (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 23, 32-33, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 606

In case involving contractor and subcontractors, in which injured party was employed by one subcontractor and injured by other subcontractor, insurer had right of equitable subrogation against second subcontractor as settling tortfeasor; only first subcontractor indemnified contractor although both were obligated to do so; elements of subrogation are met by following: (1) insured general contractor suffered loss for which defendant is liable; (2) loss was one for which insurer was not primarily liable; (3) insurer compensated insured for loss; (4) insured has cause of action against defendant; (5) insurer suffered damages arising from defendant's act or omission; and (5) insurer's equitable position is superior to defendant's. Interstate Fire & Cas. Ins. Co. v. Cleveland Wrecking Co. (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 23, 34-49, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 606

Claim by insurer or claim by right of subrogation is not "covered claim" under California Insurance Guarantee Association (CIGA); under Ins. Code § 1063.1(c), CIGA is required to pay only "covered claims," excluding claims for subrogation and claims covered by any other insurance; CIGA has no duty to reimburse solvent workers' compensation carrier for benefits paid to injured employee. Baur v. Workers' Compensation Appeals Board (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1260, 1266, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 493

In insurance context, equitable subrogation doctrine permits paying insurer to be placed in shoes of insured and to pursue recovery from third parties responsible to insured for loss for which insurer was liable and paid; because subrogation rights are purely derivative, insurer cannot acquire anything by subrogation to which insured has no right and can claim no right that insured does not have. Great American Ins. Cos. v. Gordon Trucking, Inc. (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 445, 451, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 65

Because insurer is subject to same defenses as insured, statute of limitations on insurer's cause of action runs from date of accrual of its insured's cause of action. Great American Ins. Cos. v. Gordon Trucking, Inc. (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 445, 451, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 65

When insured has released third party, subrogated insurer's claims are also released. Great American Ins. Cos. v. Gordon Trucking, Inc. (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 445, 452, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 65

In insurance context, equitable subrogation generally involves the substitution of insurer in position of its insured to seek reimbursement from responsible third parties for loss paid to insured by insurer. Crowley Maritime Corp. v. Boston Old Colony Ins. Co. (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1061, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 605, 2008 Cal. App. LEXIS 36 , p.7 (involving equitable contribution, not subrogation)

Insurer does not have standing to recover insured's unpaid deductible in subrogation suit; under general law of subrogation, insurer has right to sue only for its subrogated loss, i.e., what it paid its insured. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Superior Court (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 19, 23-24, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 199

Ins. Code § 790.03(h) enumerates unfair claims settlement practices; 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2695.7 is part of larger regulatory scheme designed to curtail unfair business practices in insurance business, and concerns settlement of claims, not pursuit of claims in litigation; regulation does not confer standing on insurer to seek its nonparty insured's deductible in lawsuit. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Superior Court (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 19, 24-26, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 199

Excess insurer cannot maintain subrogation action against primary insurer, based on unreasonable refusal to settle underlying tort claim, if tort claim did not go to trial, and no excess judgment was entered against insured. RLI Ins. Co. v. CNA Cas. of Cal. (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 75, 82-83, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 667 ; see also Hamilton v. Maryland Cas. Co. (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 718, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 318, 41 P.3d 128 (judgment in excess of policy must be entered before there can be claim for breach of primary insurer's duty to settle); but see Fortman v. Safeco Ins. Co. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1394, 271 Cal. Rptr. 117

In personal injury actions, insurer may not assert its subrogation claim directly against third-party tortfeasor on its own behalf and may not seek to use policyholder's personal injury attorney as collection agent by suing attorney to pay it any judgment or settlement proceeds from third party recovered by that attorney; to preserve its right of subrogation, insurer must either interplead itself into any action brought by insured against third-party tortfeasor or wait to seek reimbursement under language of its policy from its insured to extent that insured recovers money from third party. Progressive W. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 263, 272-273, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434

If insurer pays out claim on first-party insurance policy to its insured, insurer is subrogated to rights of its insured against any tortfeasor that is liable to insured for insured's damages; subrogation provisions of most insurance contracts typically are general and add nothing to rights of subrogation that arise as matter of law. Progressive W. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 263, 272, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434

Because insurer obtained assignment of insured's claims against nonsettling defendants in underlying defective-construction suit, insurer had option to pursue insured's claims by way of assignment rights, and insurer was not under obligation to pursue equitable subrogation rights; subrogation is right, not obligation. Casa Eva I Homeowners Ass'n v. Ani Constr. & Tile, Inc. (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 771, 782, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 401

Pilot who rented and then damaged airplane was not insured on policy issued to airplane-rental company, could not bring bad faith action, and was properly defendant in subrogation action brought by insurer. McKinley v. XL Specialty Ins. Co. (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 1572, 1575, 1578, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 98

Insurer entitled to subrogation is in same position as assignee of insured's claim and succeeds only to rights of insured; in insurance context, right to equitable contribution arises if several insurers are obligated to indemnify or defend same loss or claim, and one insurer has paid more than its share of loss or has defended action without any participation by others. Hartford Cas. Ins. Co. v. Mt. Hawley Ins. Co. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 278, 287, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 128

Intervening insurer is not subject to same limitation on damages that was imposed on its insured due to jurisdictional flaw in insured's complaint; if insured sued tortfeasor but erroneously capped damages at $25,000, after being paid $130,000 in benefits by his own insurer, his insurer was nevertheless allowed to recover from tortfeasor's insurer full amount of its subrogation judgment of $130,000 plus interest and costs. Low v. Golden Eagle Ins. Co. (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 1354, 1363-1364, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155

Insurer has no right of equitable subrogation against its own insured with respect to loss or liability for which insured is covered under policy because, as between insurer and insured, insurer assumes responsibility; if policy does not cover insured for particular loss or liability, however, it would neither undermine insured's coverage nor be inequitable to impose loss or liability on insured if insured caused or was otherwise responsible for loss or liability. Truck Ins. Exch. v. County of Los Angeles (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 13, 21-26, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 179 (county, additional insured under hospital liability policy, required to reimburse insurer for defense of malpractice action against hospital because injuries were caused by county's referral of high-risk patient to hospital)

Subrogation takes form of insurer's right to be put in position of insured to pursue recovery from third parties legally responsible to insured for loss that insurer has both insured and paid. State Farm Gen. Ins. Co. v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1098, 1106, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 785 ; Gulf Ins. Co. v. TIG Ins. Co. (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 422, 431, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305

Elements of insurer's cause of action for equitable subrogation are: (1) insured has suffered a loss for which party to be charged is liable; (2) insurer has compensated for loss; (3) insured has existing, assignable causes of action against party to be charged, which insured could have pursued had insurer not compensated for theloss; (4) insurer has suffered damages caused by act or omission that triggers liability of party to be charged; (5) justice dictates that loss be shifted entirely from insurer to party to be charged; and (6) insurer's damages are in stated sum, which is usually amount paid to insured, assuming payment was not voluntary and was reasonable. Truck Ins. Exch. v. County of Los Angeles (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 13, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 179 ; United Servs. Auto. Ass'n v. Alaska Ins. Co. (2001) 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449 ; Gulf Ins. Co. v. TIG Ins. Co. (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 422, 432, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305

Insurer that acted as surety on performance bond was not equitably subrogated to principal's rights as insured with respect to principal's commercial general liability (CGL) insurer, because insured did not suffer an injury for which surety paid, such that CGL insurer should be held liable; insurer acting as surety was not equitably subrogated to insured's rights with respect to bad faith claim against CGL insurer because CGL insurer's alleged wrongful conduct did not result in any injury to the insured. Gulf Ins. Co. v. TIG Ins. Co. (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 422, 432, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305

Lessor's fire insurance provider, which paid fire-damage claim benefits to lessor, was entitled to sue lessees under subrogation theory for negligence and breach of contract, asserting that lessees negligently caused fire; under rental agreement, parties had no reasonable expectation that lessees were exculpated from liability for negligently caused fire damages or that lessor's policy was for their mutual benefit. Fire Ins. Exch. v. Hammond (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 313, 321, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 596 (summary judgment for defendants reversed)

Because equitable subrogation doctrine shifts entire cost burden between insurers, insurer seeking subrogation must show that other insurer was primarily liable for loss and that its own equitable position is inferior to that of second insurer. Maryland Cas. Co. v. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1082, 1088, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 374 (applying equitable contribution, rather than equitable subrogation)

Insurer's settlement of lawsuit involving claims for which it had potential liability, without judicial determination of coverage, was not binding concession by insurer that all settlement proceeds were attributable to all damages covered under its policy, and did not preclude insurer from contending settlement proceeds encompassed elements of loss other insurer's policy covered; "other insurance" clause of no application in assigning priorities to policies under facts of case; settling insurer's right to subrogation or indemnity was disputable, precluding summary judgment. Pines of La Jolla Homeowners Ass'n v. Industrial Indem. (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 714, 726-727, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 53

In equitable subrogation action arising from underlying personal injury action in which primary insurer of one defendant initially refused to settle within primary limits, resulting in ultimate settlement contributed to by excess insurer, and in which jury subsequently found that insured-defendant was totally faultless, injured party is entitled to sue primary insurer after assignment by excess insurer; absence of judgment against insured in excess of primary policy limits does not preclude equitable subrogation action. Fortman v. Safeco Ins. Co. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1394, 1399-1402, 271 Cal. Rptr. 117 ; see also Hamilton v. Maryland Cas. Co. (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 718, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 318, 41 P.3d 128 (judgment in excess of policy must be entered before there can be claim for breach of primary insurer's duty to settle); but see RLI Ins. Co. v. CNA Cas. of Cal. (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 75, 79, 85, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 667 (declining to follow Fortman)

In action by insured against insurer to recover property damage claim that insurer partially denied, damages for which insured had already recovered in action against tortfeasor, insurer has waived right to subrogation, and therefore defense of insured's violation of subrogation clause in contract, by failing to plead breach of subrogation clause at trial. Kardly v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 479, 488, 255 Cal. Rptr. 40 (recovery limited to amounts not already paid by insurer)

Both subrogee (insurer) and subrogor (insured) have right of action against third-party tortfeasor; subrogated insurer is not limited to intervening in action between insured and third-party tortfeasor but is permitted to bring separate independent action to recover directly from third-party tortfeasor. Basin Constr. Corp. v. Department of Water & Power (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 819, 825, 245 Cal. Rptr. 178

California Insurance Guarantee Association is entitled under Ins. Code § 1063.2(c)(1) to credit in full amount of claimant's uninsured motorist coverage when claimant has "covered claim" against it; credit also inures to benefit of insureds of insolvent carrier. California Ins. Guarantee Ass'n v. Liemsakul (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 433, 442, 238 Cal. Rptr. 346

Premises liability insurer that is obligated to defend personal injury action against its insured, a physician, and settles action is subrogated to insured's claim, if any, against its medical malpractice carrier that had denied coverage and refused to contribute to settlement. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Cooperative of Am. Physicians, Inc. (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 199, 202-206, 209 Cal. Rptr. 251

Insurer subrogated to rights of property owner by virtue of insurance policy has standing to maintain action in inverse condemnation against city seeking recovery of claims paid to property owner. McMahan's of Santa Monica v. City of Santa Monica (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 683, 690-691, 194 Cal. Rptr. 582

Insurer-subrogee's right to seek recovery in inverse condemnation either in insured's name or in its own name. McMahan's of Santa Monica v. City of Santa Monica (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 683, 690-691, 194 Cal. Rptr. 582

Insurer who pays claim by insured whom it is required by contract to indemnify is not subrogated to insured's rights against third parties also contractually liable to indemnify insured unless loss involved is causally related to breach of duty by that third party. California Food Serv. Corp. v. Great Am. Ins. Co. (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 892, 898, 182 Cal. Rptr. 67 (nevertheless holding that equitable contribution doctrine applies when two insurers each insure against same loss)

Excess insurer, on paying insured's liability to injured claimant, is equitably subrogated to rights of insured against primary insurer, including insured's right of action against primary insurer for bad faith failure to settle. Northwestern Mut. Ins. Co. v. Farmers' Ins. Group (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 1031, 1040, 143 Cal. Rptr. 415

In action seeking declaration of rights and liabilities of three insurers whose policies provided concurrent coverage for accident, each policy containing excess insurance clause providing that policy was excess insurance to other insurance available to insured, trial court properly found under established principles of subrogation that plaintiff insurer's comprehensive general liability policy was excess insurance when defendant insurers' policies covered tortfeasor employee and plaintiff insurer's policy did not. Argonaut Ins. Co. v. Colonial Ins. Co. (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 608, 614-615, 138 Cal. Rptr. 855

Subrogation as applied to an insurer as right to be put in position of its insured against third parties legally responsible to insured for loss which insurer has both insured and paid. Liberty Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Auto Spring Supply Co. (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 860, 864, 131 Cal. Rptr. 211

Surety for compensation on employee fidelity bond is subrogated to employer's rights on payment of claim under bond. Federal Ins. Co. v. Allen (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 648, 650, 92 Cal. Rptr. 125

Equitable subrogation is not permitted to insurers whoses losses are not causally related to breach of duty for which party to be charged may be liable to insured for loss compensated by insurers; hence, liability insurer of permissive driver of car involved in accident is not entitled to reimbursement from car owner's insurance agent for his negligent failure to have had owner's liability policy renewed; plaintiff's loss results from its insured's having negligently caused accident and not from agent's failure to have procured renewal of owner's insurance. Mid-Century Ins. Co. v. Hutsel (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 1065, 1070, 89 Cal. Rptr. 421

Purpose of provision waiving subrogation against lessee in fire insurance policy issued to lessor. Sacramento-Yolo Port Dist. v. Cargill of Cal., Inc. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 1004, 1012, 84 Cal. Rptr. 822

Under California law, employer who is held derivatively liable for negligent acts of employee has right to recover from that employee for loss caused by negligence, and insurance carrier compelled to pay loss is permitted, having equitable right of subrogation, to recover amount which it has paid by suit against negligent employee. Transport Indem. Co. v. American Fid. & Cas. Co. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 950, 956, 84 Cal. Rptr. 856

Employer is permitted to recover from employee for loss to employer caused by employee's negligence which employer neither authorized nor participated in, and employer's insurer is subrogated to employer's right to such recovery. Pacific Indem. Co. v. Truck Ins. Exch. (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 420, 426, 74 Cal. Rptr. 793

Subrogation agreement assigning insured's cause of action for personal injuries to her insurer to extent of payment made to her by insurer under uninsured motorist coverage does not constitute determination of extent of insured's damages as between her and tortfeasor. Johnson v. Oliver (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 178, 180-182, 72 Cal. Rptr. 137

Although insurer who issues fidelity bond is not surety for employer and principal, if any, is unnamed and prospective criminal employee, courts by analogy have held principles of subrogation to be applicable to fidelity bond situation; insurer in such case is permitted to have subrogation against third party, including third party bank, provided its equities are superior to those of third party. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. v. Bank of Am. (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 545, 550, 34 Cal. Rptr. 23

On insurer's payment of insured's loss resulting from employee's forgery of checks, insurer is immediately vested with all rights of employer against drawee bank, subject to priority of equities as between insurer and bank. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. v. Bank of Am. (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 545, 550, 34 Cal. Rptr. 23

Insurer who has indemnified insured for property loss is subrogated to insured's right against person wrongfully causing loss; rule applies whether insured's cause of action is in contract or tort. Royal Indem. Co. v. Security Truck Lines (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 61, 65, 27 Cal. Rptr. 858

[15] Intervention

In action brought by subrogor insured against tortfeasor, complaint in intervention filed by insurer with property subrogation claim is subject to running of five-year dismissal rule (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310, 583.360) from time when original complaint was filed, if complaint to recover subrogated property loss states essentially same causes of action as original complaint. Bright v. American Termite Control Co. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1464, 1468-1469, 269 Cal. Rptr. 793

Injured employee is able to intervene under Lab. Code § 3853 in action brought by his or her employer's insurer against public transit district to recover workers' compensation paid, even though employee's complaint was not filed within limitation period of California Tort Claims Act when employee had timely filed claim against defendant public entity. Home Ins. Co. v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 522, 525-527, 241 Cal. Rptr. 858

Demurrer to widow's complaint in intervention for wrongful death filed in action against county by employer, which had properly filed claim prior to suit, to recover benefits paid to survivors under workers' compensation law, was properly sustained wherewidow had failed to comply with claims statutes; claims filing requirement does not abrogate right of joinder granted by Lab. Code § 3853, but merely conditions availability of joinder when third party tortfeasor is governmental entity. Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. v. County of Riverside (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 183, 192-193, 165 Cal. Rptr. 29

Motion of health insurer to intervene in personal injury action by one of its subscribers against doctors, hospital, and others, even though insurer's contract provided for lien and reimbursement with respect to benefits provided for tort-caused injuries and subscriber had separately agreed to make good faith effort to recover costs of benefits in pending action was properly denied, since cause of action in tort is not "property" and insurer's contract is not "transaction" which is subject of litigation within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), relating to mandatory intervention. California Physicians' Serv. v. Superior Court (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 91, 96-97, 162 Cal. Rptr. 266

[16] Issues

Matters required to be determined by court in action by county employees' retirement association, as subrogee, against third party tortfeasor, to recover portion of disability benefits payable under Lab. Code §§ 3854, 3855 and Gov. Code § 31820 to employee-member of association as result of automobile accident (nonservice connected disability). Ventura County Employees' Ret. Ass'n v. Pope (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 938, 944, 151 Cal. Rptr. 695

[17] Judgments

Surety which has satisfied judgment against principal is entitled under doctrine of equitable subrogation to enforce execution against codefendant tortfeasor. Painter v. Berglund (1939) 31 Cal. App. 2d 63, 66, 87 P.2d 360 (former Code Civ. Proc. § 709 (now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 882, 883))

[18] Jurisdiction

Subrogee (workers' compensation insurer) was assignee within meaning of former Code Civ. Proc. § 117.5 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.420), relating to small claims courts, and was, under that section, barred from prosecuting action in small claims court. Allianz Ins. Co. v. Municipal Court (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 1043, 1044-1046, 179 Cal. Rptr. 334

[19] Lessor-Lessee

Right of lessor to be subrogated to right of lessee under former Pub. Res. Code § 4702 (now see Pub. Res. Code § 4852) to receive damages for injuries to leased premises caused by flood-borne logs to extent lessor has made expenditures in repairing damage done. Bess v. Wise (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 158, 163, 79 Cal. Rptr. 611

[20] Lienholders

Contingent remainderman's interest in real property sufficent to entitle him or her to pay delinquent taxes without being considered mere volunteer and, under equitable principles of subrogation, to succeed to lien held by public taxing bodies. Riley v. Turpin (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 152, 156, 301 P.2d 834

Rule that holder of junior lien on property who, to protect his or her interest, pays debt secured by senior lien thereby becomes subrogated to rights of senior lienholder as against owner of property, even though he or she takes no assignment of senior lien (see Civ. Code § 2904), is subject to rule that person invoking doctrine of subrogation must, in making payment, have had some interest to protect and must not have been a volunteer, that is, an officious intermeddler. Stein v. Simpson (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 79, 84, 230 P.2d 816

Person who discharges lien on another's property mistakenly believed to be his or her own is subrogated to rights of lienholder. Stein v. Simpson (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 79, 84, 230 P.2d 816

[21] Nature of Subrogation

Nature of subrogration and its prohibition against double recovery make it abundantly clear that subrogation involves succession to rights of others; rights under subrogation are derivative rights, succession to another's rights, like water, is not able to rise higher than its source. Board of Admin. v. Glover (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 906, 915, 196 Cal. Rptr. 330, 671 P.2d 834 ; State Bar of Cal. v. Statile (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 650, 663, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 72 ; Ventura County Employees' Ret. Ass'n v. Pope (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 938, 952, 151 Cal. Rptr. 695

Equitable subrogation permits party who has been required to satisfy a loss created by third party's wrongful act to "step into the shoes" of loser and pursue recovery from responsible wrongdoer. Great American Ins. Cos. v. Gordon Trucking, Inc. (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 445, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 65 , p.8

Subrogee's rights are able to rise no higher than those of subrogor. Transit Cas. Co. v. Spink Corp. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 124, 132, 156 Cal. Rptr. 360 , disapproved on other grounds, Commercial Union Assurance Cos. v. Safeway

Stores, Inc. (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 912, 921, 164 Cal. Rptr. 709, 610 P.2d 1038

[22] Parties

Nonjoinder of partial subrogor or partial subrogee in action by one of them against obligor is not jurisdictional defect in fundamental sense and does not deprive court of subject matter jurisdiction. Ferraro v. Southern Cal. Gas Co. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 33, 44-45, 162 Cal. Rptr. 238 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Goodman v. Lozano (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1327, 1336-1338, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 219, 223 P.3d 77

[23] Prerequisites to Equitable Subrogation

One who claims to be equitably subrogated to rights of secured creditor must satisfy following prerequisites: (1) payment must have been made by subrogee to protect its own interest; (2) subrogee must not have acted as volunteer; (3) debt paid must be one for which subrogee was not primarily liable; (4) entire debt must have been paid; (5) subrogation must not work any injustice to rights of others. Morgan Creek Residential v. Kemp (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 675, 690, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 232

Actual loss to subrogor is not a prerequisite to equitable subrogation; all that is required is that subrogor would have suffered loss had not subrogee discharged liability or paid loss. Northwestern Mut. Ins. Co. v. Farmers' Ins. Group (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 1031, 1044, 143 Cal. Rptr. 415

[24] Principle on Which Subrogation Is Founded

Principle on which subrogation is founded applies if one person, not a volunteer, pays debt for which another is primarily answerable and which, in equity and good conscience, should have been discharged by latter. Stein v. Simpson (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 79, 83, 230 P.2d 816 ; Offer v. Superior Court (1924) 194 Cal. 114, 118, 228 P. 11 ; Meyer Koulish Co. v. Cannon (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 419, 424, 28 Cal. Rptr. 757 (repudiated on another point in Patent Scaffolding Co. v. William Simpson Constr. Co. (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 506, 514-515, 64 Cal. Rptr. 187)

[25] Public Employees' Retirement System

Gov. Code § 21451 grants Public Employees' Retirement System right to recover against negligent third party who caused member's injury, which subsequently required member's disability retirement and imposed burden of retirement benefits on System. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. v. Board of Admin. (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 766, 769, 153 Cal. Rptr. 62

Although subrogation rights of Employees' Retirement System are equal to those of employer, System is not bound by releases to which it has not consented. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. v. Board of Admin. (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 766, 770, 153 Cal. Rptr. 62

Gov. Code §§ 21453, relating to public employees' retirement system, incorporates subrogation provisions of workers compensation law, including Lab. Code §§ 3852, 3859, and 3860, relating to actions against third-party tortfeasors, release, and settlement respectively. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. v. Board of Admin. (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 766, 770, 153 Cal. Rptr. 62

Gov. Code § 21453 gives Public Employees' Retirement System same right to proceed against third party who settled without its consent as employer who has paid compensation is accorded under Lab. Code § 3859 (settlement or release by employee with third party without employer's consent is subject to employer's right to proceed to recover compensation paid). Board of Admin. v. Kuppens (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 758, 761-764, 122 Cal. Rptr. 856

Gov. Code § 21451, providing for reimbursement of Public Employees' Retirement System for benefits paid by reason of member's injury or death resulting from third party's act, is inapplicable when member's injury or death is proximate consequence of act of member's employer; hence, system is unable to recover benefits provided in Gov. Code § 21451 from third party whose act may also be proximate cause of member's injury or death. McQuillan v. Southern Pac. Co. (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 802, 805-806, 115 Cal. Rptr. 418

[26] Small Claims Courts

Workers' compensation insurer is subrogee of rights of workers' employer against third parties as "assignee" of employer's claims against third parties within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 117.5 and hence barred from filing or prosecuting claims in small claims court. Allianz Ins. Co. v. Municipal Court (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 1043, 1046, 179 Cal. Rptr. 334

[27] Splitting Cause of Action

Basis of rule against splitting cause of action. Wulfjen v. Dolton (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 891, 894-895, 151 P.2d 846 ; Ferraro v. Southern Cal. Gas Co. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 33, 41, 162 Cal. Rptr. 238 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Goodman v. Lozano (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1327, 1336-1338, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 219, 223 P.3d 77, 2010 Cal. LEXIS 868 ; Phillips v. Western Pac. R.R. Co. (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 441, 444, 99 Cal. Rptr. 451

Insured splits cause of action by filing complaint against tortfeasor after insured has been partially reimbursed for loss by insurance benefits and subrogated insurer to amount of such payment. Ferraro v. Southern Cal. Gas Co. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 33, 41-42, 162 Cal. Rptr. 238 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Goodman v. Lozano (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1327, 1336-1338, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 219, 223 P.3d 77

Defense that plaintiff has split cause of action is affirmative defense which is waived if not pleaded by defendant in abatement or in bar. Ferraro v. Southern Cal. Gas Co. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 33, 43, 162 Cal. Rptr. 238 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Goodman v. Lozano (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1327, 1336-1338, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 219, 223 P.3d 77 ; see Phillips v. Western Pac. R.R. Co. (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 441, 444, 99 Cal. Rptr. 451

[28] Statute of Limitations

Action by employer against third party tortfeasor to recover workers' compensation benefits paid to injured employee is governed by former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1 (two-year statute of limitations)), providing one year period of limitation on actions for injury caused by wrongful act or neglect of another. County of San Diego v. Sanfax Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 862, 868, 140 Cal. Rptr. 638, 568 P.2d 363

Statute of limitations applicable to action for indemnity for payments made to injured employee under Federal Employers' Liability Act (45 U.S.C. §§ 51-60). Southern Pac. Transp. Co. v. Ohbayashi Am. Corp. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 233, 236-238, 195 Cal. Rptr. 63 .

Subrogation by insurer to rights of its insured against third party tortfeasor is enforceable in equity only when action is brought within time in which action could have been brought to enforce original obligation to which right of subrogation is sought; same rule is applicable to common law subrogation, as distinguished from indemnity or contribution, and to employer's statutory right to subrogation against tortfeasor for workers' compensation benefits paid to employee for injuries caused by tortfeasor's negligence. Commercial Union Assurance Co. v. City of San Jose (1982) 127 Cal. App. 3d 730, 734, 179 Cal. Rptr. 814

Absent special considerations, insurer's right to recover on insured's cause of action against alleged tortfeasor (city) for damages to insured's property is barred when statutory period of Gov. Code § 945.6(a) (time for suit against public entity after denial of claim) ran on insured's claim. Commercial Union Assurance Co. v. City of San Jose (1982) 127 Cal. App. 3d 730, 735, 179 Cal. Rptr. 814

Insurer's action under Ins. Code § 11580.2(g) (subrogation to insured's rights when insurer pays uninsured motorist claim) must be brought within three years after date of payment. Commercial Union Assurance Co. v. City of San Jose (1982) 127 Cal. App. 3d 730, 735-736, n. 2, 179 Cal. Rptr. 814

Disability of minor which tolls statute of limitations (Code Civ. Proc. § 352(a)) is personal and not subject to transfer by assignment or subrogation. Amie v. Superior Court (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 421, 426, 160 Cal. Rptr. 271

Action by insurer pursuant to Ins. Code § 11580.2(g) to recover amounts paid under uninsured motorist endorsement in policy is barred if not brought within three years from date payment was made. Phoenix of Hartford Ins. Cos. v. Colony Kitchens (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 140, 144-145, 128 Cal. Rptr. 893

Statute of limitations is tolled by filing of declaratory relief action against third person before surety has made payment under its bond for loss caused by dishonesty of insured's employee. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v. Harris, Kerr, Forster & Co. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 1100, 1104, 89 Cal. Rptr. 437

Statute of limitations applicable to obligation on which subrogated action is brought applies to subrogated action. Iusi v. City Title Ins. Co. (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 582, 588, 28 Cal. Rptr. 893 ; Automobile Ins. Co. v. Union Oil Co. (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 302, 304-305, 193 P.2d 48

[29] Sureties

Civ. Code § 2848, relating to sureties, does not comprehensively and exclusively measure surety's rights to subrogation; section is merely declaratory of common law on subject and controlling only so far as it goes. Estate of Elizalde (1920) 182 Cal. 427, 432, 188 P. 560 ; Commercial Standard Ins. Co. v. Bank of Am. (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 241, 247, 129 Cal. Rptr. 91

Surety making payment as subrogated to all rights and remedies that were available to creditor to obtain payment from any person or property of any person who, as to surety, is primarily liable for debt; both gratuitous and paid sureties have all rights, remedies, and priorities of party to whom they have paid debt of principal. Rokeby-Johnson v. Aquatronics Int'l, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 1076, 1083, 206 Cal. Rptr. 232

Construction of surety bond is question of law. Continental Cas. Co. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 565, 570, 52 Cal. Rptr. 533 ; see also Civ. Code §§ 1639, 2837

Bond given for faithful performance of contract to which it refers is binding surety for labor performed and materials furnished thereunder as completely as though surety were party to contract. Continental Cas. Co. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 565, 568, 52 Cal. Rptr. 533

As general rule, if subcontractor's bond is put up in order to indemnify prime contractor for any claim for which latter may be held liable and for payment of which subcontractor is primarily liable, subcontractor's surety is required to indemnify principal contractor, or latter's surety, for any liability imposed for labor and materials furnished to subcontractor. Continental Cas. Co. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 565, 568, 52 Cal. Rptr. 533

Failure on part of subcontractor to pay for materials and supplies furnished pursuant to subcontract is breach of subcontract, and bond that undertakes to guarantee faithful performance of subcontract to furnish all necessary labor and materials for specified portion of structure implies promise to pay for such labor and materials furnished. Continental Cas. Co. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 565, 569, 52 Cal. Rptr. 533

Cosureties and successive sureties distinguished. Continental Cas. Co. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 565, 570, 52 Cal. Rptr. 533

First of two successive sureties forced to pay debt is subrogated to creditor's rights on bond and permitted to enforce it against second surety. Continental Cas. Co. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 565, 570-571, 52 Cal. Rptr. 533

[30] Volunteers

Doctrine of subrogation is inapplicable to one who, in paying another's debt, acts as volunteer or officious intermeddler. Stein v. Simpson (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 79, 84, 230 P.2d 816

Person who discharges another's obligation or lien on another's property or who is induced to make payment by fraud or duress is not officious intermeddler. Stein v. Simpson (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 79, 85, 230 P.2d 816

Premises liability insurer that, with medical malpractice insurer, was, by allegations of complaint, obligated to defend its insured and, in doing so, settled claim against insured was not volunteer with respect to medical malpractice insurer against which it seeks subrogation of amount paid in settlement. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Cooperative of Am. Physicians, Inc. (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 199, 203, 209 Cal. Rptr. 251

One who advances money to pay off encumbrance on real property at instance of either owner of property or holder of encumbrance, either on express understanding or under circuimstances from which understanding will be implied, that advance made is to be secured by first lien on property is not mere volunteer; in event new security is for any reason not first lien on property, holder of security, if not chargeable with culpable and inexcusable neglect, is subrogated to rights of prior encumbrancer under security held by him or her, unless superior or equal equities of others would be prejudiced by it. Katsivalis v. Serrano Reconveyance Co. (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 200, 210, 138 Cal. Rptr. 620

Person voluntarily paying debt of third person with no promise of repayment by person whose debt is paid is not entitled to reimbursement under doctrine of equitable subrogation. McMillan v. O'Brien (1934) 219 Cal. 775, 779, 29 P.2d 183

Subrogation is not applied in favor of one who has officiously and as mere volunteer paid debt of another for which neither payor nor payor's property was answerable and which payor was under no obligation to pay. Grant v. De Otte (1954) 122 Cal. App. 2d 724, 728, 265 P.2d 952

[31] Waiver or Release of Subrogation Rights

Under standard American Institute of Architects (AIA) construction contract (1) requiring owner to maintain property insurance covering interest of owner and contractor; and (2) containing a mutual waiver of owner's and contractor's rights against another for damages covered by that property insurance, owner's insurer could not recover as subrogee for rain damage to interior of facility cause by contractor's alleged negligence; owner's waiver of all claims to extent covered by insurance barred owner's property insurer from recovering as subrogee, even though damage was outside scope of contractor's work. Lloyd's Underwriters v. Craig & Rush, Inc. (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1194, 1199-1201, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144

When insured has released third party, neither insured not subrogated insurer has any right to recover from third party. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1586, 1596-1597, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 762 (subrogation claim by excess insurer against primary insurer); Continental Mfg. Co. v. Underwriters at Lloyd's London (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 545, 556, 8 Cal. Rptr. 276

Guaranty agreement informing guarantor that he might lose subrogation rights, but failing to inform guarantor that loss of subrogation rights gives guarantor immunity from a deficiency judgment in form of estoppel defense, and that guarantor was waiving that defense under terms of guaranty agreement, failed to contain a sufficiently "explicit" or "specific" waiver of estoppel defense. Cathay Bank v. Lee (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1533, 1539-1540, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 420 , superseded by statute as stated in WRI Opportunity Loans II, LLC v. Cooper (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 525, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 205

When tortfeasor obtains release from insured with knowledge that insured has already been indemnified by insurer, release of insured does not bar insurer's subrogation rights. Conservatorship of Edwards (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 1176, 1184, 244 Cal. Rptr. 330 ; see Steigerwald v. Godwin (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 591, 595, 301 P.2d 386 ; Mitchell v. Holmes (1935) 9 Cal. App. 2d 461, 463-464, 50 P.2d 473

[32] When Subrogation May Be Sought

Although principle on which right of subrogation is founded applies to cases of suretyship, doctrine of equitable subrogation is broad enough to include every instance in which one person, not acting as mere volunteer or intruder, pays debt for which another is primarily liable, and which in equity and good conscience should have been discharged by latter. Caito v. United Cal. Bank (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 694, 704, 144 Cal. Rptr. 751, 576 P.2d 466 ; Stein v. Simpson (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 79, 83, 230 P.2d 816

Equitable subrogation is applicable to holder of three senior encumbrances when holder of fourth encumbrance would not be prejudiced by application of doctrine but be left in same position as before. Smith v. State Savings & Loan Ass'n (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 1092, 1098, 223 Cal. Rptr. 298

Fact of recording of junior encumbrance is not by itself a bar to equitable subrogation, even though equitable subrogation is denied to new lender who has actual knowledge of junior encumbrance. Smith v. State Savings & Loan Ass'n (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 1092, 1098, 223 Cal. Rptr. 298

Equitable subrogation was improperly denied on ground that senior encumbrance holder had no interest in property to protect and was "mere volunteer," because holder had advanced money at request of debtor to pay off encumbrance with understanding that advance would be secured by first trust deed, thus was not "mere volunteer." Smith v. State Savings & Loan Ass'n (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 1092, 1098-1099, 223 Cal. Rptr. 298

Subrogation, although equitable right, is enforceable in court of law, and separate suit in equity is not required. A.F.C., Inc. v. Brockett (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 40, 42, 64 Cal. Rptr. 771

Right to subrogation is capable of being established in third party claim proceedings as well as in direct two party actions at law. A.F.C., Inc. v. Brockett (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 40, 42, 64 Cal. Rptr. 771

[33] Workers' Compensation

Lab. Code §§ 3850 and 3852 (relating to workers' compensation) are merely codification of judicially created principles of equitable subrogation. Breese v. Price (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 923, 929, 176 Cal. Rptr. 791, 633 P.2d 987 ; County of San Diego v. Sanfax Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 862, 876 n. 7, 140 Cal. Rptr. 638, 568 P.2d 363 ; Allianz Ins. Co. v. Municipal Court (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 1043, 1045, 179 Cal. Rptr. 334

Substantively, as well as procedurally, employer and employee actions against third party tortfeasor under Lab. Code § 3852, relating to workers' compensation, are interchangeable; regardless of who brings action, it is essentially same lawsuit. Breese v. Price (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 923, 928, 176 Cal. Rptr. 791, 633 P.2d 987 ; County of San Diego v. Sanfax Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 862, 874, 140 Cal. Rptr. 638, 568 P.2d 363 ; Buell v. CBS, Inc. (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 823, 826, 186 Cal. Rptr. 455

Lab. Code § 3854 (if action is prosecuted by employer alone, evidence of any amount which employer has paid or become obligated to pay due to injury or death of employee is admissible; such expenditures or liability to be deemed as proximately resulting from the injury or death in addition to any other items of damage), means only that (1) intervening act of employer's payment to employee of compensation shall not be construed as breaking chain of causation which is essential to plaintiff's recovery under traditional negligence principles, and (2) employer is entitled to full reimbursement if defendant's tort liability, in an amount equal to or in excess of employer's expenditures, is otherwise established. Breese v. Price (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 923, 929, 176 Cal. Rptr. 791, 633 P.2d 987 , disapproving State Comp. Ins. Fund v. Williams (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 218, 112 Cal. Rptr. 226 , and Board of Admin. v. Ames (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 215, 29 Cal. Rptr. 917

In negligence action against workers compensation insurer, workers' compensation law does not impose duty on carrier to pursue subrogation rights. New Plumbing Contractors, Inc. v. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 1088, 1094, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 469

When employee is injured by third party's tortious act, employer is indirectly injured to extent employer must pay out workers' compensation benefits; by statute employer is entitled to recoup its damages from third party through subrogation, and by definition workers' compensation insurance carrier that has paid benefits has all rights of employer (see Lab. Code § 3850); carrier is able to recover its damages by (1) suing third party in its own name (see Lab. Code § 3852), (2) intervening in action filed by employee (see Lab. Code § 3853), or (3) filing lien claim in suit by employee (see Lab. Code § 3856(b)); should employee and carrier file independent suits, suits must be consolidated under Lab. Code § 3853. San Diego Unified Port Dist. v. Superior Court (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 843, 846, 243 Cal. Rptr. 163

Lab. Code § 3852, mandating that respective rights of employee's heirs seeking wrongful death damages and of employer seeking recoupment of payment made pursuant to workers' compensation laws against third-party tortfeasor be determined by court, also mandates that court determine apportionment of damage award. Eli v. Travelers Indem. Co. (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 901, 905, 235 Cal. Rptr. 704

Lab. Code § 3852, authorizing actions against third party tortfeasors who injure employees, is more than a subrogation statute and includes actions under equitable doctrine of indemnity. Associated Indem. Corp. v. Pacific Sw. Airlines (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 898, 905-906, 180 Cal. Rptr. 685

Third party tortfeasor is liable, under doctrine of comparative negligence, to injured employee's employer only to extent of tortfeasor's proportional share of responsibility, regardless of amount employer has paid in compensation benefits. Finney v. Manpower, Inc. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 1066, 1071, 177 Cal. Rptr. 74

Under Lab. Code § 3853, relating to workers' compensation, when action is brought against third party tortfeasor by either employer or employee, the other is permitted at any time before trial on facts to join as party plaintiff, even though statute of limitations may have run on other's claim since complaint was filed. Jordan v. Superior Court

Scope

Practice Tip: A complaint in subrogation must both allege and prove (1) the elements establishing the plaintiff subrogee's right to subrogation and (2) the subrogor's cause of action against the obligor [see Breese v. Price (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 923, 926-927, 930-931, 176 Cal. Rptr. 791, 633 P.2d 987 ; Knight v. Alefosio (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 716, 725, 205 Cal. Rptr. 42 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 590 (manners in which issues of fact are raised); Evid. Code §§ 500, 521 (burden of proof)]. These allegations need not be separately grouped but should be integrated so that the complaint sets forth the facts in a logical fashion [see, e.g., § 536.100].

47-536 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 536.60

§ 536.60 Plaintiff's Right to Be Subrogated to Subrogor's Cause of Action Against Defendant Obligor

A complaint in subrogation must plead the facts showing the plaintiff's right to subrogation. While the facts giving rise to the right may vary, depending on the particular obligation discharged by the plaintiff, a complaint in subrogation generally should show the following:

1. Payment of an obligation by the plaintiff subrogee [see Iusi v. City Title Ins. Co. (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 582, 587-588, 28 Cal. Rptr. 893] ; or, if the subrogee is a state or county retirement system or a workers' compensation carrier, the payment of a liability, or an obligation to pay a liability, or both past payment and an obligation for future payments of a liability, because of injury to or death of a member or employee [see Gov. Code §§ 21451, 31820; Lab. Code § 3852].

2. Plaintiff, in paying the obligation, was not acting as a mere volunteer [see Caito v. United Cal. Bank (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 694, 704, 144 Cal. Rptr. 751, 576 P.2d 466 ; Stein v. Simpson (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 79, 84, 230 P.2d 816 ; McMillan v. O'Brien (1934) 219 Cal. 775, 779-782, 29 P.2d 183] .

3. The debt paid was one for which the subrogee was not primarily liable [see Caito v. United Cal. Bank (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 694, 704, 144 Cal. Rptr. 751, 576 P.2d 466] .

4. An underlying cause of action or statutory basis for subrogation by alleging either:

a. The subrogor had an assignable cause of action to which the subrogee was subrogated [see, e.g., Offer v. Superior Court (1924) 194 Cal. 114, 121, 228 P. 11 ; Royal Indem. Co. v. Security Truck Lines (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 61, 64-65, 27 Cal. Rptr. 858] , or

b. The facts showing that plaintiff comes within the operation of a statute that provides for subrogation to an otherwise nonassignable cause of action for personal injury [see Gov. Code §§ 21451, 31820 (for benefits paid by state and county retirement associations); Lab. Code § 3852 (for benefits paid by workers' compensation carriers); Ins. Code § 11580.2(g) (for claims paid by an insurer under the uninsured motorist coverage)].

5. Subrogation will not work any injustice to the rights of others [see Caito v. United Cal. Bank (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 694, 704, 144 Cal. Rptr. 751, 576 P.2d 466 ; Federal Ins. Co. v. Allen (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 648, 650, 92 Cal. Rptr. 125].

6. When the action is against a person other than the actual wrongdoer who was the primary cause of the loss, plaintiff's equities are superior to those of the defendant [see Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Morse Signal Devices (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 681, 687, 198 Cal. Rptr. 756 ; Continental Ins. Co. v. Morgan, Olmstead, Kennedy & Gardner, Inc. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 593, 602, 148 Cal. Rptr. 57].

PART IV PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

§ 536.61 Subrogor's Cause of Action Against Defendant Obligor

A complaint in subrogation must also allege the subrogor's cause of action against the obligor, since it is this cause of action to which the plaintiff is subrogated. The cause of action will, of course, vary, depending on the nature of the obligation discharged by the; plaintiff subrogee. The most common forms of subrogated actions appear to be actions arising from tort and actions arising from contract The elements of these causes of action are set forth below.

1. Subrogated Action in Tort. The complaint in a subrogated tort action (for example, negligence) should plead facts showing the following [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282, 3333; Breese v. Price (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 923, 926-927, 176 Cal. Rptr. 791, 633 P.2d 987]:

a. A duty on the part of the defendant (obligor) to the subrogor.

b. A breach of that duty.

c. Detriment or loss to the subrogor (or a detriment or loss that would have been sustained had it not been paid by plaintiff subrogee).

d. The detriment or loss was proximately caused by the defendant's breach.

e. The measure of damages (amount of money) required to compensate for the detriment sustained. (However, if the action is for personal injuries or wrongful death, the amount of the subrogor's claim must not be stated [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].)

2. Subrogated Action in Contract. The complaint in a subrogated action for breach of contract should allege facts showing the following [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282, 3300, 3302]:

a. A duty on the part of the defendant to plaintiff's subrogor (the execution of the contract).

b. A breach of the contract by defendant (nonperformance of a contract provision).

c. The breach proximately caused detriment or loss to plaintiff's subrogor (or a detriment or loss would have been sustained had plaintiff not discharged the obligation or paid the loss).

d. The measure of the detriment in terms of money (damages), that is, the amount paid by plaintiff plus interest [Civ. Code § 3287 (recovery of interest authorized)].

§ 536.80 Allegation--Capacity of Plaintiff Insurer Suing as Subrogee of Insured and Authority to Transact Insurance Business--Multiple Line Insurer Including Particular Class Involved in Action

[1] FORM Allegation--Capacity of Plaintiff Insurer Suing as Subrogee of Insured and Authority to Transact Insurance Business--Multiple Line Insurer Including Particular Class Involved in Action
Plaintiff is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of _____ and authorized to transact, and transacting, a multiple line, including_____ [surety or fire or liability or specify other as appropriate to the action], insurance business in California.

[2] Use of Form

This allegation is for use in a complaint on a subrogated claim to allege the capacity of the plaintiff insurer-subrogee as a corporation and its authority to transact a multiple line or, as it is frequently called, a general, insurance business, including the class of insurance involved in the particular case. Many subrogees are insurance companies subrogated to claims of their insureds. Insurers are prohibited from transacting any class of insurance which is not authorized by their charters [Ins. Code §§ 16, 680]. The complaint should, therefore, allege the particular class or combination of classes of insurance that the plaintiff is authorized to transact.

[3] Classes of Insurance

No person shall transact any class of insurance business in this state without first being admitted for such class [Ins. Code § 700(a)]. There are 22 separate classes of insurance in California [Ins. Code § 100] and a large number of possible combinations. Each class is separately defined in Ins. Code §§ 100 et seq.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a casualty insurer as the subrogee of its insured (subrogor) to recover from the defendant obligor (tortfeasor) the amount that plaintiff paid to its insured under an insurance policy covering property damage or loss, which damage or loss was tortiously caused by the defendant obligor. For alternative forms of allegations of the capacity of an insurer, see §§ 536.80 and 536.81.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- The plaintiff's legal capacity and its authority to engage in the insurance business as a particular class of insurer (Paragraph 1);

- The identity of the subrogor (Paragraph 2);

- The existence of insurance covering the loss (Paragraph 3);

- The identity of the defendant obligor (Paragraph 4);

- The venue of the action (Paragraphs 2, 7) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392(1)(a), 395(a), 395.2, 395.5; see also Ch. 571, Venue];

- The defendants sued by fictitious names (Paragraph 5) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 474; see also Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used];

- Any agency relationship of defendants (Paragraph 6) [see generally Ch. 427, Principal and Agent];

- The defendant's duty to the subrogor, that is, the relationship between the parties giving rise to defendant's duty to exercise due care (Paragraphs 2, 4) [see Civ. Code § 1714(a)];

- The defendant's breach of that duty (Paragraph 7) [see Civ. Code § 3333];

- Proximate causation and detriment (Paragraphs 8, 9) [see Civ. Code §§ 3282, 3333];

- Damages (the measure of the subrogor's loss in terms of money) (Paragraph 9) [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3333];

- The plaintiff's payment of the subrogor's claim against defendant obligor (Paragraph 10); and

- The plaintiff's notice to and demand for payment from defendant obligor (Paragraph 11).

[4] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the claim is for $25,000 or less and the right to which the subrogee is subrogated is a legal, as opposed to an equitable, right, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case and must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 72055; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

2. _____ [Name of plaintiff's insured], hereinafter "the insured," is, and at all times herein mentioned was,_____ [specify, e.g., the owner and operator of a service station, hereinafter "the service station property,"] located at_____ [street or highway address and city or county], California.
3. At all times herein mentioned, the insured was insured by plaintiff under an insurance policy by the terms of which plaintiff was obligated to indemnify the insured against loss or damage to the_____ [specify, e.g., service station property], including a certain_____ [specify, e.g., pole sign] standing thereon and owned by the insured. [A copy of the policy is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.]
[4. Defendants Doe 1 through Doe _____, inclusive, are sued herein under fictitious names. Their true names and capacities are unknown to plaintiff. When their true names and capacities are ascertained, plaintiff will amend this complaint by inserting their true names and capacitiesherein. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges, that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those defendants.)]
5. Defendant,_____ [name], is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [state capacity and residence of defendant or other basis of venue, e.g., a resident of or a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of _____ with its principal place of business in] _____ County, California.
[6. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that) (A)t all times mentioned in this complaint, defendant, _____ (name), was the agent of the defendant _____ (name), and (in doing the things hereinafter alleged) was acting within the course and scope of that agency and with the permission and consent of his/her/its codefendant.]
7. _____ [Allege damage to or destruction of property, e.g., On or about_____ [date], _____ (defendant or name of defendant's employee) was operating a certain truck on _____ (name of highway or street) at or near the location of the _____ (specify, e.g., service station property). At that time and place, _____ (defendant or name of defendant's employee) so negligently operated, maintained, and controlled the truck that as a proximate result it was caused to, and did, leave the highway and collide violently with the _____ (specify, e.g., pole sign) standing on _____ (specify, e.g., the service station property)].
8. As a proximate result of the negligence of_____ [defendant or name of defendant's employee] and the collision hereinabove alleged, the_____ [specify, e.g., pole sign] was_____ [specify, e.g., damaged beyond repair].
9. The cost of replacing the_____ [specify, e.g., pole sign] was $_____. On or about_____ [date], plaintiff under the terms of its policy paid the insured the sum of $_____, and plaintiff is therefore subrogated to all rights of the insured against defendant for the damage.
10. On or about_____ [date], plaintiff notified defendant_____ [name] of the payment and of plaintiff's right to subrogation, and demanded payment in the sum of $_____ [amount paid], but defendant_____ [name] failed and refused and continues to fail and refuse to pay plaintiff the whole or any part thereof].

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by an insurer as the subrogee of its insured (subrogor) to recover from the obligor (tortfeasor) the amount plaintiff paid to its insured under a policy providing indemnity insurance for a loss tortiously caused by the defendant and which was covered by the policy [see Royal Indem. Co. v. Security Truck Lines (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 61, 65, 27 Cal. Rptr. 858].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- The plaintiff's legal capacity and its authority to engage in the insurance business as a particular class of insurer (Paragraph 1);

- The identity of the subrogor (Paragraph 2);

- The existence of an insurance policy providing indemnity for damaged or destroyed personal property (Paragraph 3);

- The defendants, if any, sued by fictitious names (Paragraph 4) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 474; see also Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used];

- The residence or capacity of the defendant if other than a natural person acting in an individual capacity and the identity of its employee who committed the tort if liability is founded on respondeat superior (Paragraphs 5, 6);

- The tortious act (Paragraph 7);

- Damage (Paragraph 8);

- The cost of repairing the damage and plaintiff's payment of the subrogor's claim against defendant obligor (Paragraph 9); and

- The plaintiff's demand for payment from the obligor and the obligor's failure to pay (Paragraph 10).

Paragraphs 2, 7, and 8, and alternatively Paragraph 5, lay venue [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392, 395(a), 395.2, 395.5; see also Ch. 571, Venue].

2. Defendant,_____ [name], is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____ County, California.

3. _____ [Name of plaintiff's insured], hereinafter "the insured," is, and at all times herein mentioned was,_____ [specify capacity if other than a natural person, e.g., a corporation organized and existing under the laws of California and] engaged in business as a_____ [specify, e.g., manufacturer of television sets], with its principal place of business in this state located in _____ County, California.

4. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff was surety on a fidelity bond issued to the insured by the terms of which plaintiff agreed to indemnify the insured against any loss which the insured might sustain through any fraudulent or dishonest act by any one or more employees of the insured, of money or other property, real or personal, belonging to the insured, or in which the insured might have a pecuniary interest, or for which the insured might be legally liable, or which might be held by the insured in any capacity. [A copy of the bond is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof].
5. During the period beginning on or about _____ and continuing until on or about _____, defendant was employed as a_____ [specify, e.g., bookkeeper] by the insured.
6. During the period of employment, defendant stole, embezzled, misappropriated, wrongfully abstracted and willfuly misapplied, and converted to his/her own use_____ [money or specify other property as appropriate] belonging to the insured_____ [in the sum or having a reasonable value] of $_____.
7. On or about _____, the insured executed and submitted to plaintiff its sworn proof of loss in the above stated sum of $_____ by reason of the acts of defendant as hereinabove alleged and made demand on plaintiff for indemnification in that sum. On or about _____, plaintiff paid to the insured the sum of $_____ under its bond to indemnify for such loss and thereupon became subrogated to all rights, and entitled to enforce all remedies, of the insured against defendant.
8. Plaintiff has made demand on defendant for payment of the sum of $_____, but defendant has failed and refused to pay either all or any part of it.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by an insurer as the subrogee of its insured (subrogor) to recover from the obligor (the insured's former employee) the amount plaintiff paid its insured under a fidelity bond for a loss resulting from the employee's theft or embezzlement of the insured's property or money. For a form of complaint by an insurer against a third party whose acts facilitated the defalcations of a dishonest employee, see § 536.107.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- The plaintiff's legal capacity and its authority to engage in the insurance business as a particular class of insurer (Paragraph 1);

- The residence of the defendant (Paragraph 2) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a); see also Ch. 571, Venue];

- The identity of the subrogor (Paragraph 3);

- The existence of an insurance policy providing indemnity for the fraudulent or dishonest act of any employee (Paragraph 4);

- The employment period of the employee (Paragraph 5);

- The tortious act of the employee (Paragraph 6);

- The filing by the insured of a proof of loss and payment by plaintiff (Paragraph 7); and
- The plaintiff's demand of defendant for payment and defendant's failure to pay (Paragraph 8).

Plaintiff alleges:
1. Plaintiff is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of _____ and authorized to transact, and transacting, business in this state as, among other classes, a miscellaneous insurer.
2. _____ [Name of plaintiff's insured], hereinafter "the insured," is, and at all times herein mentioned was, the owner of certain real property, hereinafter "the property," known as_____ [street address], _____ [city or county], California, and more particulary described as follows:_____ [legal description].

3. At all times herein mentioned, the insured was insured by plaintiff under a policy of property insurance, hereinafter "the policy," by the terms of which plaintiff insured the insured against, among other risks, any loss or damage resulting from any improper construction of a building on the property. [A copy of the policy is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.]
4. Defendant_____ [name], hereafter "defendant contractor," is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [specify capacity, e.g., a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of _____, with its principal place of business in _____ County, and engaged in business as a general contractor.
5. Defendants_____ [names], hereinafter "defendant subcontractors," are, and at all times herein mentioned were, [specify capacity, e.g., associated together under the assumed name of _____, with their principal place of business in this state located _____ in _____ County], and engaged in business as a specialty contractor performing_____ [e.g., cement and concrete work].

[6. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 536.100[1], Paragraph 5.]
7. On or about_____ [date], the insured entered into a written contract with defendant contractor by the terms of which defendant contractor agreed to construct a_____ [e.g., residence], hereinafter "the building," on the property. [A copy of the contract is attached hereto as Exhibit B and made a part hereof.]
8. On or about_____ [date], defendant contractor employed defendant subcontractors [, and defendants Does 1 to _____, inclusive,] to perform the_____ [e.g., cement and concrete work for the foundation and caissons] for the building.
9. Defendants, and each of them, so negligently performed the work under the contract that_____ [describe injury, e.g., immediately on its completion, the building was caused to and did settle] and was thereby damaged.
10. As a proximate result of the negligence of defendants and each of them and the damage to the building as herein alleged, the insured was required to, and did, have repairs made to the building to put it in proper condition; the cost of the repairs was the sum of $_____, which is the reasonable value thereof and which was paid by the insured.
11. On or about_____ [date], plaintiff, pursuant to the terms of its policy, reimbursed its insured in the sum of $_____ in full payment of the costs of the repairs and thereby became subrogated to all of the insured's rights, and is entitled to enforce all of the insured's remedies, against defendants.
12. On or about_____ [date], plaintiff notified defendants, and each of them, of the payment made and of plaintiff's right to subrogation, and demanded reimbursement in the sum of $_____ [amount paid], but defendants, and each of them, failed and refused and continue to fail and refuse to reimburse plaintiff the whole or any part thereof.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by an insurer as the subrogee of its insured (subrogor, property owner) to recover from the obligors (contractor and subcontractors) the amount the insurer paid its insured under an insurance policy in reimbursement of the amount paid by its insured to repair the damage caused by the negligence of the defendants in constructing the building [see Firemen's Ins. Co. v. Indermill (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 339, 341-342, 6 Cal. Rptr. 469] .

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- The plaintiff's legal capacity and its authority to engage in the insurance business as a miscellaneous insurer (Paragraph 1);

- The identity of plaintiff's subrogor, a property owner, and if venue is based on the county in which the contract was to be performed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a); see also Ch. 571, Venue], the county in which the property is situated (Paragraph 2);

- The fact that the subrogor was insured by plaintiff against the loss alleged in the complaint (Paragraph 3);

- The legal capacity of the defendant contractor (obligor) and, if venue is based on the contractor's residence or place of business [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a), 395.2, 395.5; see also Ch. 571, Venue], the county of its principal place of business (Paragraph 4);

- The legal capacity of the defendant subcontractors (obligors) and, if venue is based on their residence or place of business [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a), 395.2, 395.5; see also Ch. 571, Venue], the county of their residence or principal place of business (Paragraph 5);

- The defendants, if any, sued by fictitious names (Paragraph 6) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 474; see also Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used];

- The duty of defendants to use reasonable care in constructing the building, that is, the execution of the contract with defendant contractor and its employment of the subcontractors (Paragraphs 7, 8);

- Breach of duty (Paragraph 9);

- Proximate causation, detriment, and damages (Paragraph 10);

- Payment by the insured of the cost of the repairs (Paragraph 10);

- The plaintiff's reimbursement of the amount paid as required by the terms of its insurance policy (Paragraph 11); and

- The plaintiff's demand for payment and defendants' failure to pay (Paragraph 12).

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Plaintiff is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of _____ and authorized to transact, and transacting, business in this state as a liability insurer.
2. _____ [Name], hereinafter "the insured," is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a_____ [specify capacity, e.g., a corporation organized and existing under the laws of State of California and] engaged in business as a general contractor.

3. At all times herein mentioned, the insured was insured by plaintiff under a policy of liability insurance by the terms of which plaintiff was obligated to assume and discharge any liability which the insured might incur for any injuries to any person in the course and scope of its business as a general building con tractor. [A copy of the policy is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.]
4. Defendant_____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was,_____ [specify capacity, e.g., a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of California and] engaged in business as a specialty contractor concerned with _____ [e.g., furring, lathing, and plastering] [, with its principal place of business in this state _____] [situated in _____ County].
5. Defendant,_____ [name], is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of _____ with its principal place of business in _____ County, and engaged in business as a specialty contractor concerned with_____ [e.g., installation of floor covering].
6. On or about_____ [date], the insured was awarded a contract for the construction of a building, hereinafter "the building," on the premises known as_____ [street address, or other common description as appropriate, city, county, and state], hereinafter "the construction site." [A copy of the contract is attached hereto as Exhibit B and made a part hereof.]
7. On or about_____ [date], defendant_____ [name of, e.g., furring, lathing, and plastering contractor] entered into a written contract with plaintiff's insured by the terms of which it promised and agreed, for a consideration, to furnish all necessary labor, materials, tools, and equipment required for_____ [e.g., metal furring, lathing, and plastering] in the construction of the building. [A copy of the contract is attached hereto as Exhibit C and made a part hereof.]
8. As part of its terms, the contract contains the following indemnity and hold harmless agreement by defendant_____ [name of, e.g., furring, lathing, and plastering contractor]: _____ [quote provisions].
9. On or about_____ [date], defendant_____ [name of, e.g., terrazzo contractor] entered into a written contract with plaintiff's insured by the terms of which it promised and agreed, for a consideration, to furnish all necessary labor, materials, tools, and equipment required to_____ [e.g., install terrazzo work] in the construction of the building. [A copy of the contract is attached hereto as Exhibit D and made a part hereof.]
10. As part of its terms, the contract contains the following indemnity and save harmless agreement by defendant_____ [name of, e.g., terrazzo contractor]:_____ [quote provisions].
11. On or about_____ [date], plaintiff's insured, and defendants, and each of them, were engaged in the construction of the building at the construction site. At this time and place, while one_____ [name], hereinafter "the injured party," was lawfully present at the construction site, defendants, and each of them, so negligently_____ [specify acts, e.g., operated, maintained, and controlled a certain hoist] that as a proximate result thereof_____ [specify accident, e.g., a board was caused to fall from the hoist and strike] the injured party causing serious personal injuries to his/her_____ [specify, e.g., head and body].
12. By reason of the negligence of defendants and the injuries thereby caused, the injured person instituted an action for damages for personalinjuries against plaintiff's insured and against defendants, and each of them, in the Superior Court of California, [City and] County of _____, entitled_____ [name], Plaintiff, vs._____ [names], Defendants, No. _____, hereinafter "the action."
13. On or about_____ [date], after being served with summons, plaintiff's insured [in writing] tendered defense of the action as to it to defendants, and each of them, in accordance with their respective indemnity and hold harmless agreements, but defendants, and each of them, refused the tender, as a result of which plaintiff's insured was required to undertake its own defense to the action.

14. Concurrently therewith, plaintiff's insured demanded [in writing] of defendants, and each of them, that, in accordance with their respective indemnity and hold harmless agreements, they do all acts necessary to indemnify plaintiff's insured and hold it harmless from all liability, costs, losses, and claims resulting from the action, but defendants, and each of them, failed and refused to do so.
15. Thereafter defendants, and each of them, entered into negotiations with the injured party, who demanded the sum of $_____ [specify amount, e.g., $30,000] as the minimum amount he/she would accept in full settlement of the action, and, on or about_____ [date], severally entered into agreements with the injured party providing for the payment to him/her of the sum of $_____ [specify amount, e.g., $10,000] from each of them in exchange for the execution by the injured party of covenants not to levy execution against them.
16. As a proximate result of the failure and refusal of defendants, and each of them, to so honor their respective indemnity and hold harmless agreements and the making by them of the settlement agreements in partial satisfaction only of the minimum demand of the injured party, plaintiff, as insurer of plaintiff's insured, was required to, and on or about _____, did pay the balance of $_____ [specify amount, e.g., $10,000] of the injured party's minimum demand in full settlement of his/her claim in order to avoid the expense of further defense of the action and the risk of a judgment in a larger sum being assessed against plaintiff's insured. As a further proximate result thereof, plaintiff, as such insurer, was required to, and on or about _____, did, pay to_____ [name], the attorney for plaintiff's insured, the sum of $_____ for his/her services in the defense of the action and in effecting the full settlement thereof. The sum so paid was the reasonable value of the services rendered by the attorney in the action.

17. By reason of the foregoing, plaintiff has become subrogated to the rights of plaintiff's insured against defendants, and each of them, to the extent of the sums so paid by it. [Prior to the commencement of this action, plaintiff's insured assigned to plaintiff all of its rights against defendants, and each of them.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendants, and each of them, as follows:
1. For the sum of $_____ [specify amount, e.g., $10,000] together with interest thereon at the legal rate from and after_____ [date of payment].
2. For attorney fees in the sum of $_____ incurred and paid in defense of the action from and after_____ [date of payment].

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by an insurer as the subrogee of its insured (subrogor, a general contractor) to recover from the obligors (two subcontractors) the amount the insurer paid in settlement of a portion of a cause of action which had been brought against its insured and the obligors on a liability of the obligors arising out of their negligence. The action is founded on a written agreement by the obligors to indemnify and hold harmless plaintiff's insured from any liability, claims, demands, or costs arising out of their negligence in the construction of a building.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- The plaintiff's legal capacity and its authority to engage in the insurance business as a liability insurer (Paragraph 1);

- The identity of plaintiff's subrogor, a general contractor (Paragraph 2);

- The existence of insurance issued by plaintiff covering its insured (Paragraph 3);

- The legal capacities of the defendants (Paragraphs 4, 5);

- The execution of the general contract (Paragraph 6);

- The execution of the subcontracts and of the indemnity and hold harmless agreements (establishing defendants' duty to plaintiff's insured) (Paragraphs 7-10);

- The injury to the third party, including the allegations of defendants' duty to that party (third party was lawfully on premises [see Civ. Code § 1714]) and their breach of that duty (negligence), as well as proximate causation and injury [see Civ. Code § 3333] (Paragraph 11);

- The filing of a lawsuit by the injured party against plaintiff and defendants (Paragraph 12);

- The defendants' breach of their indemnity and hold harmless agreements (Paragraphs 13-15);

- The plaintiff's payment on behalf of its insured as a proximate result of defendants' breach of their indemnity and hold harmless agreements (Paragraph 16); and

- The plaintiff's subrogation to the rights of its insured under the indemnity and hold harmless agreements (Paragraph 17).

On or about_____ [date], plaintiff's insured entered into a written contract, hereinafter "the contract," with_____ [name of owner] for the construction of_____ [specify, e.g., houses], hereinafter"the construction project," in_____ [city], _____ County, California. [A copy of the contract is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.]
6. Pursuant to the provisions of the contract, plaintiff, as surety, executed and delivered to_____ [name of owner], as obligee, a performance bond conditioned on the faithful performance by plaintiff's insured of all work agreed to be performed under the contract and for the payment of all labor and materials furnished to the construction project, including all labor and materials furnished by the subcontractors and suppliers of plaintiff's insured. [A copy of the bond is attached hereto as Exhibit B and made a part hereof.]
7. On or about_____ [date], defendant subcontractor entered into a written subcontract, hereinafter "the subcontract," with plaintiff's insured by the terms of which defendant agreed to perform certain_____ [e.g., plumbing] work in connection with the construction project and to provide all labor, materials, and supplies necessary to complete the work under the subcontract. [A copy of the subcontract is attached hereto as exhibit C and made a part hereof.]

8. On or about the date the subcontract was executed, defendant insurer, as surety, executed and delivered to plaintiff's insured, as obligee, a bond, incorporating the subcontract, and conditioned on the faithful performance by defendant subcontractor, as principal, of all terms and conditions of the subcontract and the payment in full of all persons supplying labor and materials in connection with the performance of the subcontract. [A copy of the bond is attached hereto as Exhibit D and made a part hereof.]

9. Defendant subcontractor failed to perform the subcontract in that it did not pay and discharge debts incurred by it for materials furnished to it by certain material suppliers and incorporated into the construction project[; defendant subcontractor further failed to perform its subcontract in that it allowed mechanics' liens to be filed against the construction project for the unpaid debts].
10. The indebtednesses incurred by defendant subcontractor to the suppliers of materials to the construction project which defendant subcontractor failed to pay and which plaintiff was obligated to and did pay consist of the following:_____ [set forth list, identifying each supplier, the materials supplied, and the amount of the supplier's charges].
11. As a proximate result of defendant subcontractor's failure to pay for materials and supplies, plaintiff[, in order to avoid foreclosure of the mechanics' liens on the construction project,] was obligated under the terms of its bond to, and on or about _____ did, pay and discharge the indebtedness to each of the suppliers in the amounts hereinabove alleged in the total sum of $_____.
12. By reason of the payment of the claims in the total sum of $_____, as herein alleged, plaintiff became subrogated to all of the rights, and is entitled to enforce all of the remedies, of its insured against defendants, and each of them, to the extent of the payment made.

13. Plaintiff has demanded reimbursement from defendants of the amounts paid as herein alleged, but defendants have failed and refused, and continue to fail and refuse to reimburse plaintiff the amounts paid or any portion thereof.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendants, and each of them, as follows:
1. For the total sum of $_____ which plaintiff paid to defendant subcontractor's suppliers, with interest thereon as provided by law from the date of payment;

2. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by the surety (subrogee) of a general contractor (subrogor) against a subcontractor and its surety (obligors) to recover the amounts plaintiff was required to pay under its bond to the subcontractor's suppliers on the failure of the subcontractor (or its surety) to pay them as it was required to do by the terms of the subcontract which was incorporated by reference in the performance bond executed by defendant surety [see Continental Cas. Co. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 565, 570-571, 52 Cal. Rptr. 533] .

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- The plaintiff's legal capacity and its authority to engage in a surety insurance business (Paragraph 1);

- The legal capacity (identity) of plaintiff's subrogor, a general contractor (Paragraph 2);

- The legal capacity and business of the defendant subcontractor (obligor) and its principal place of business [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395(a), 395.2, 395.5; see also Ch. 571, Venue] (Paragraph 3);

- The legal capacity of defendant surety (obligor), its authority to engage in a surety insurance business, and its principal place of business (Paragraph 4) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5; see also Ch. 571, Venue];

- The execution by plaintiff's subrogor of the construction contract (Paragraph 5);

- The execution of the bond by plaintiff on behalf of its principal obligating it, among other things, to pay for materials and supplies furnished to the construction project on the failure of any of the contractor's subcontractors to do so (Paragraph 6);

- The execution of the subcontract by defendant subcontractor imposing on it the duty, among others, to pay for materials and supplies furnished to it for incorporation in the construction project (Paragraph 7);

- The execution of the bond by defendant surety imposing on defendant surety the duty, among others, to perform the subcontract on the subcontractor's failure to do so (Paragraph 8);

- The breach of the subcontract by defendant subcontractor (Paragraph 9);

- The names of the suppliers who were not paid by defendant subcontractor and the amounts owing to each (Paragraph 10);

- Payment of the suppliers by plaintiff (Paragraph 11);

- The plaintiff's right to be subrogated to the claim of its subrogor under the subcontract and defendant surety's bond against defendants (Paragraph 12); and

- The plaintiff's demand for payment and the failure of defendants to pay (Paragraph 13).

Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [names],	)	COMPLAINT IN SUBROGATION TO ENFORCE Defendants.	)	LIEN ON REAL PROPERTY

Plaintiff alleges:
1. Plaintiff is, and at all times herein mentioned was, the owner of the remainder interest after the life estate in real property, hereinafter "the property," known as_____ [street address], _____ [city and/or county], California, and more particularly described as follows:_____ [legal description].

2. Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, the owner of an estate for life in the property.
3. At all times herein mentioned, defendant, as such the life tenant, had the duty to pay all taxes assessed on the property, but failed to pay the following taxes:_____ [specify taxing agency, year, and amount].
4. On or about_____ [date], as a proximate result of defendant's failure to have paid the taxes as hereinabove alleged, the property was sold to the State of California for delinquent taxes.

5. On or about_____ [date], and before expiration of the period for redeeming the property from the tax sale, plaintiff made demand in writing on defendant to pay the taxes and penalties on the property, but defendant failed to do so.
6. On or about_____ [date], plaintiff, to prevent a final forfeiture of the property, including plaintiff's remainder interest in it, and to redeem the property from the tax sale, paid the taxes and penalties as follows:_____ [specify date and amount paid, separately stating amount paid for taxes and amount paid for penalties and total amount of payment, and agency to which paid].
7. By reason of the payment of the taxes and penalties as hereinabove alleged, plaintiff thereby became subrogated to the rights and remedies of_____ [name of tax agency] against defendant to the extent of the payment.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:
1. For sale of the property, apportioning the proceeds between the parties according to the value of their respective estates, and recovery of the sum of $_____ out of defendant's share of the proceeds to reimburse plaintiff for the taxes and penalties paid;

2. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by the remainderman, after payment of delinquent taxes and penalties to redeem the property from the lien, as subrogee of the taxing authority, against the life tenant who was obligated but failed to pay the taxes and penalties [see Riley v. Turpin (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 152, 154-157, 301 P.2d 834].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- The identity of the real property involved and its location, thereby laying venue in the county in which the real property is situated [see Code Civ. Proc. § 392; see also Ch. 571, Venue] (Paragraph 1);

- The respective interests of the parties in the property (Paragraphs 1, 2);

- The defendant's duty to pay the taxes [see Civ. Code § 840] and defendant's breach of that duty by failing to do so (Paragraph 3);

- The sale of the property to the state for delinquent taxes as a proximate result of defendant's failure to have paid the taxes (Paragraph 4);

- The plaintiff's demand that defendant pay the taxes and penalties and defendant's failure to do so (Paragraph 5);

- The plaintiff's payment of the taxes and penalties to redeem the property and prevent a forfeiture [see Civ. Code § 2903] (Paragraph 6); and

- The plaintiff's subrogation to the rights of the taxing authority against the life tenant [see Civ. Code § 2903] (Paragraph 7).

[4] Subrogation of Person Redeeming Property from Lien

Every person, having an interest in property subject to a lien has the right to redeem it from the lien, at any time after the claim is due and before his or her right of redemption is foreclosed, and, by such redemption, becomes subrogated to all the benefits of the lien as against all owners of other interests in the property, except insofar as he or she was bound to make the redemption for their benefit [Civ. Code § 2903; see Jones v. Gore (1956) 141 Cal. App. 2d 667, 674, 297 P.2d 474].

Moreover, one who has a lien inferior to another on the same property has a right (1) to redeem the property in the same manner as its owner might from the superior lien and (2) to be subrogated to all the benefits of the superior lien, when necessary for the protection of his or her interests, on satisfying the claim secured by it [Civ. Code § 2904].

This form of complaint is for use by an insurer as the subrogee of its insured (subrogor) to recover the amount the subrogee was required to pay to its insured under its bond or bonds because of the defalcations of the insured's employee. The action is not against the defaulting employee (obligor) but rather against the insured's accountants whose negligence in performing audits permitted the defalcations to occur. For a form of complaint for use by a subrogee against a defaulting employee, see § 536.102. For a discussion of the doctrine of superior equities, which is applied to determine whether or not a subrogee may recover against a party other than the actual wrongdoer who caused the loss (primary obligor), see § 536.42[9].

If the loss was in excess of the penalty amount of the bond or bonds and the insured assigned to plaintiff its right to recover the excess amount from the accountants, optional Paragraph 12 should be used [see Civ. Code §§ 953, 954]. In the absence of an assignment, both the insurer and insured should join as plaintiffs in the same action, the insurer to recover the amount it paid and the insured to recover the unpaid amount of its loss, to avoid the defense of res judicata based on a splitting of a cause of action [see Ferraro v. Southern Cal. Gas Co. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 33, 41, 162 Cal. Rptr. 238 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Goodman v. Lozano (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1327, 1336-1338, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 219, 223 P.3d 77 ; Phillips v. Western Pac. R.R. Co. (1971), 22 Cal. App. 3d 441, 444, 99 Cal. Rptr. 451].

[3] Allegations

This complaint sets forth in separate counts alternative theories of liability and alleges the following:

- The plaintiff's legal capacity and its authority to engage in a surety insurance business (Paragraph 1);

- The capacity of defendants and their business as certified public accountants, and the place of their principal place of business in California (Paragraph 2) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.2; see also Ch. 571, Venue];

- The legal capacity (identity) of plaintiff's subrogor and the insurance coverage (Paragraph 3);

- The terms of the bonds (Paragraph 4);

- The facts surrounding the discovery of the defalcations, prompt notice to the insurer, and the insured's justifiable reliance on the defendants' audits to discover any dishonesty of its employee (Paragraphs 5-8) (to negate any implication that the loss was caused by the insured's negligence which is imputed to the insurer) [see Continental Ins. Co. v. Morgan, Olmstead, Kennedy & Gardner, Inc. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 593, 602, 148 Cal. Rptr. 57];

- The defendants' duty (established by contract) to audit the insured's books during the periods in question (Paragraph 7);

- The defendants' breach of duty (negligence) and failure to discover the defalcations (Paragraph 9) [see Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v. Harris, Kerr, Forster & Co. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 1100, 1102, 89 Cal. Rptr. 437];

- The loss to the insured as a proximate result of defendants' breach of duty (Paragraph 10);

- The plaintiff's payment to its insured in the penalty amount(s) of the bond(s) (Paragraph 11);

- The insured's assigment to plaintiff of its right to recover from defendants the excess of the amount embezzled over the amount covered by the bond(s) (Paragraph 12);

- The plaintiff's demand for reimbursement and defendants' failure to pay (Paragraph 13);

- The incorporation of pertinent paragraphs into the second cause of action (Paragraph 14);

- The breach of contract by the defendants (Paragraph 15); and (14) proximate causation and damage to the insured (Paragraph 16).

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity of plaintiff as admitted surety insurer. See § 536.102[1], Paragraph 1.]
2. Defendant_____ [name of principal], hereinafter "the insured," is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [specify capacity, e.g., a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of _____, with its principal place of business in _____ County.
3. The insured is, and at all times herein mentioned was insured by plaintiff under a fidelity bond, hereinafter "the bond," insuring against loss through the dishonest act of any of the insured's employees to a liability limit of $_____ [specify amount, e.g., $15,000]. A copy of the bond is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.
4. Defendant_____ [name of bank], hereinafter "the bank," is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [a national banking association organized and existing under the laws of the United States of Americaand authorized to transact, and transacting, a banking business in California or a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of California and authorized to do business as a bank by the Superintendent of the State Banking Department of California], with its principal place of business [in this State] situated in _____ County].
5. At all times herein mentioned, the insured maintained a checking account with defendant_____ [name of bank].
6. On or about_____ [date], the insured presented plaintiff with a written claim under the bond for loss in the sum of $_____ [specify amount, e.g., $15,000], asserting that a certain employee of the insured had forged a check, hereinafter "the check," on the insured's account in the amount of $_____ [specify amount, e.g., $35,000], that the bank had paid the forged check and charged the full amount to the insured's account, that the bank subsequently credited the insured's account in the amount of $_____ [specify amount, e.g., $20,000], leaving a loss in the amount of $_____ [specify amount, e.g., $15,000], that the amount of $_____ [specify amount, e.g., $15,000] was a loss occasioned though a dishonest act of an employee, and that the insured looked to plaintiff for payment of the loss under the terms of the bond. A copy of the claim is attached hereto as Exhibit B and made a part hereof.

7. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that the check was drawn by an unauthorized person and that the signature of the purported drawer thereon was forged.
8. Plaintiff is further informed and believes and thereon alleges that the bank failed to obtain any identification from the person presenting the check for payment, that it did not examine the purported signature of the payor on the check, that it did not compare the signature with copies of the signatures of those persons authorized to sign checks on the insured's behalf on file with the bank, and that it did not phone or attempt to phone the insured to verify the check, all in direct violation of the customs and practices of the banking industry in the _____ [e.g., County of _____] and in violation of its express instructions to its own employees in force at that time, that the bank was thereby negligent, and that as a proximate result of its negligence it failed to discover the forgery and honored the check, to the insured's damage in the entire amount of the check charged against the insured's account.
8. On or about_____ [date], plaintiff demanded of the insured in writing that the insured proceed against the bank to recover the claimed loss in the amount of $_____ [specify amount, e.g., $15,000], but the insured failed and refused and continues to fail and refuse to do so. A copy of the demand is attached hereto as Exhibit C and made a part hereof.
9. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that the bank has refused and continues to refuse to credit the insured's account for the full amount of the check and that the difference between the amount of the check and the amount credited is $_____ [specify amount, e.g., $15,000].

10. By reason of the existence of the bond, the claim of loss made by the insured thereunder, the failure and refusal of the insured to proceed against the bank to recover the loss, and the refusal of the bank to credit the insured's account in the amount of the claimed loss, an actual controversy exists relating to the rights and duties of the respective parties.

11. More specifically, the controversy consists of the following opposing contentions:
a. Plaintiff contends that the bank, by reason of its negligence in having honored a forged check as alleged above, is liable to the insured for the full amount of the check, to wit, $_____ [specify amount, e.g., $35,000], and not just for the amount of the check minus the liability limit of the bond, that the insured has a duty to proceed against the bank to recover the loss, as demanded by plaintiff, and that plaintiff has no present duty under its bond to pay the claimed loss.

b. The insured contends that it has no duty to proceed against the bank and that it is entitled to the penal limit of plaintiff's bond.
c. The bank contends that it has no duty to credit the insured's account with the full amount of the check, that $_____ [specify amount, e.g., $15,000] of the loss was covered by the bond, and that it is the duty of plaintiff to pay the insured this sum under the terms of the bond.
d. Plaintiff contends that if it is obligated to pay the amount of $_____ [specify amount, e.g., $15,000] to the insured it is thereby subrogated to all rights of the insured against the bank and entitled to recover such amount from the bank.

e. The bank contends that the insured has no rights against the bank to which plaintiff may be subrogated and that plaintiff is not entitled to recover the claimed loss from it.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment:
1. Declaring the rights and duties of the parties herein, and specifically declaring that the bank is liable to the insured for the full amount of the forged check, that if plaintiff is required to pay the insured the amount of $_____ [specify amount, e.g., $15,000] under the bond, the plaintiff may recover this amount from the bank under the doctrine of subrogation.

2. For costs of suit herein incurred.

3. For such other and further relief as the court deems proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a fidelity--that is, a surety (see Ins. Code § 105)--insurer against its insured and a drawee bank to secure adeclaration of the respective rights and duties of the parties with respect to a loss arising out of a forged check, including any right plaintiff may have in the event it is required to pay its insured the bond to be subrogated to the insured's right against the bank [see Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. v. Bank of Am. (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 545, 550, 34 Cal. Rptr. 23]. For a discussion of the doctrine of superior equities, see § 536.42[9].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- The plaintiff's legal capacity and its authority to engage in business as a surety insurer (Paragraph 1) [see Ins. Code § 105];

- The name and capacity of plaintiff's princi- pal and its status in the action as a defendant (Paragraph 2);

- The insurance contract (bond) between plaintiff and its principal (Paragraph 3);

- The capacity of defendant bank and its authority to transact a banking business in California (Paragraph 4);

- The venue of the action (Paragraph 2 or 4) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5; see also Ch. 571, Venue];

- The contractual relationship between the principal and the bank (Paragraph 5);

- The making of a claim by the principal against plaintiff for a loss covered by the bond based on defendant bank's cashing a check drawn on the principal's account that was forged by a dishonest employee of the principal and the bank's crediting the principal's account only with the amount of the check in excess of the amount of plaintiff's bond (Paragraphs 6, 7);

- The plaintiff's demand on the principal that the principal take steps to recover the full amount of the check from the bank, and the principal's refusal to do so (Paragraph 8) [see Civ. Code § 2845; Com. Code §§ 3419(1)(c), 4406];

- The bank's refusal to credit the principal's account with the full amount of the check (Paragraph 9);

- The existence of an actual controversy among the parties as to their respective duties and liabilities (Paragraph 10) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]; and

- The contentions of the parties with respect to their duties and liabilities, showing that a justiciable controversy exists (Paragraph 11) [see Alturas v. Gloster (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 46, 48, 104 P.2d 810 (complaint insufficient)].

§ 536.121 Affirmative Defense--Accident Caused by Subrogor's Negligence

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense--Accident Caused by Subrogor's Negligence
AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that _____ [specify, e.g., at the alleged time and place in question, plaintiff's subrogor, _____ (name), so negligently drove, operated, maintained, and controlled his/her vehicle as to proximately cause and contribute to the collision complained of and to whatever injury or damage, if any, plaintiff's subrogor claims to have sustained therefrom].

[2] Use of Form

This form of affirmative defense is for use in an answer by the alleged obligor in an action by a subrogee (insurer, workers' compensation carrier, or state or county retirement system) who paid its insured's, employee's, or member's claim for injuries sustained as a proximate result of defendant's alleged negligence. It raises the defense that the subrogor (plaintiff's insured, the injured employee, or the retirement system member) was contributorily negligent in the accident that caused the loss. The defense of comparative negligence may, however, be raised in any action based on negligence [see Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 828-829, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226]; hence, the defense may be raised in a subrogated action based on negligence for loss or damage to property as well.

This chapter discusses summary judgment proceedings in state trial courts in the following sections:

- An overview of summary judgment proceedings. [see § 537.10 et seq.]
- The procedural requirements for summary proceedings. [see § 537.20 et seq.]
- Issues relating to the ruling on a summary motion. [see § 537.31 et seq.]
- Post-ruling matters. [see § 537.39 et seq.]

The chapter includes the following forms:

- Notices of motion for summary judgment and summary adjudication [see §§ 537.70, 537.71].
- Covers for supporting [see § 537.72] and opposing [see § 537.79] evidence.
- Supporting [see § 537.73] and opposing [see § 537.76] declarations.

- Supporting [see §§ 537.74, 537.75] and opposing [see §§ 537.77, 537.78] statements of facts claimed to be undisputed or disputed.

- Orders granting [see §§ 537.81, 537.84] or denying [see § 537.85] a motion for summary judgment or for summary adjudication.

- Judgment combined with an order granting a motion for summary judgment [see § 537.82], and a separate form of judgment [see § 537.83].

- Notice of motion and supporting declaration to seek sanctions against another party who has filed a summary judgment affidavit or declaration in bad faith or solely for purposes of delay [see § 537.80].

- Form of written objections to evidence in support of or in opposition to a motion for summary judgment, along with the required proposed order for ruling on the objections [see §§ 537.86, 537.87].

This chapter includes a Research Guide [see § 537.50 et seq.]

This chapter also includes Procedural Checklists for moving [see § 537.60] and opposing [see § 537.61] parties and for a hearing on motion [see § 537.62].

§ 537.10 Governing Law

Summary judgment in state trial courts is governed generally by Code Civ. Proc. § 437c and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350. In addition, objections to evidence in the papers in a summary judgment proceeding are governed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1352 and 3.1354. Local court rules may also affect summary judgment proceedings [see, e.g., San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule § 8.11] although any local rule or policy in conflict with the statute, rule of law, or Judicial Counsel rule is invalid [Lokeijak v. City of Irvine (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 341, 344, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 429], and all local rules relating to motions and the form and format of papers are preempted by the Judicial Council unless otherwise permitted or required by statute or Judicial Council Rule [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.20].

Statutes applicable to specific cases include the following:

- Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.7, providing for expedited summary judgment procedure in unlawful detainer or forcible entry proceedings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(q), (r)].

- Civ. Code § 1781(c), providing for a hearing similar to and in lieu of summary judgment procedure in consumer class actions brought under that section.

- Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.6(e), (f), under which a motion to require the plaintiff in a medical malpractice action to file an undertaking and motions for summary judgment are mutually exclusive.

- Code Civ. Proc. § 1038, allowing recovery of defense costs when granting summary judgment in certain actions.

For further discussion of these sections, see § 537.18[1].

§ 537.11 Types of Summary Proceedings

[1] Summary Judgment

Summary judgment is a procedure by which a plaintiff or defendant in an action or proceeding may obtain a judgment without a trial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c]. A summary judgment is a final judgment disposing of an entire action or proceeding as to the parties to the motion, granted on the ground that the action has no merit or there is no defense [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a)].

For further discussion, see § 537.14.

[2] Summary Adjudication

A motion for summary adjudication seeks an order disposing of one or more ofthe following without trial, when they comprise less than the entire action [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f)(1)]:

- One or more causes of action within an action.
- An affirmative defense to a cause of action.

- A claim for punitive damages under Civ. Code § 3294.
- The issue of whether one or more defendants owed, or did not owe, a duty to one or more plaintiffs.

For further discussion, see § 537.17[1].

§ 537.12 Purpose and Nature of Summary Proceedings

Summary judgment is intended to expedite litigation by preventing unnecessary trials and protect and promote the administration of justice [Campanano v. California Medical Center (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1322, 1326-1327, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 606 ; Ferrell v. Southern Nevada Off-Road Enthusiasts, Ltd. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 309, 313, 195 Cal. Rptr. 90].

Two basic aims underlie summary proceedings:

- To penetrate adept pleadings and discover, through the media of affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) whether the parties actually possess evidence requiring the weighing procedures of a trial [Chern v. Bank of America (1976) 15 Cal. 3d 866, 873, 127 Cal. Rptr. 110, 544 P.2d 1310 ; Corwin v. Los Angeles Newspaper Service Bureau, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 842, 851, 94 Cal. Rptr. 785, 484 P.2d 953 ; see Frank and Freedus v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 461, 468, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 678].

- To summarily determine whether the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law, if no triable issues of material fact are found to exist [see Miller v. Bechtel Corp. (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 868, 874, 191 Cal. Rptr. 619, 663 P.2d 177 ; Stationers Corp. v. Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 412, 417, 42 Cal. Rptr. 449, 398 P.2d 785].

The purpose of summary judgment is to separate those cases in which there are material issues of fact meriting a trial from those in which there are no such issues [Sangster v. Paetkau (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 151, 162, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 66].

In ruling on a summary judgment motion the court merely determines if triable issues of material fact exist. The court does not decide the merits of the issues [Molko v. Holy Spirit Assn. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1092, 1107, 252 Cal. Rptr. 122, 762 P.2d 46] (in light of 1992 and 1993 amendments of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c, Molko held to be no longer vital on the issue of the showing required by a moving defendant in Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 853, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493); accord Hayward Area Planning Assn. v. Alameda County Transportation Auth. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 95, 110, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 744 .

Notwithstanding the economic benefits of summary judgment, courts generally view it with caution as a drastic procedure that should not beallowed to supplant the open-trial method of determining facts unless clearly appropriate [see, e.g., Molko v. Holy Spirit Assn. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1092, 1107, 252 Cal. Rptr. 122, 762 P.2d 46 ; Security Pacific Nat'l Bank v. Bradley (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 89, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 220 ; cf. Alszeh v. Home Box Office (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1456, 1460, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16 (summary judgment favored remedy in defamation and invasion of privacy cases)]. Moreover, because it is a drastic remedy it is important that all procedural requirements be satisfied before a trial court grants the remedy. Thus, local rules may not provide a shortcut for these requirements [Sierra Craft, Inc. v. Magnum Enterprises, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1252, 1256, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 681 (local rule not consistent with Code Civ. Proc. § 437c invalid and judgment resulting from invocation of its procedures reversed)]. Parties must comply with the summary judgment procedures mandated by statute and court rules, and it is improper for parties to enter into a stipulated judgment that the trial court would have granted summary judgment in a matter for purposes of expediting an appeal; it is not the place of the parties, even if assigned to the complex litigation court, to rewrite the Code of Civil Procedure for their own convenience and economic interests [Magana Cathcart McCarthy v. CB Richard Ellis, Inc. (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 106, 118, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 109] .

CAUTION:

Highly technical procedure. Code Civ. Proc. § 437c is a complicated statute, and there is little flexibility in its procedural imperatives. Courts have held that a trial court has discretion to forgive such procedural imperfections such as an opposing party's failure to dispute a fact set forth in the separate statement where the other evidence as a whole warrants it. This is based, in large part, on the discretionary language of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b). However, a court may not overlook defects in a party's moving or opposing papers when the evidence and other material submitted do not "alleviate the problems created by the parties' omissions and concessions" [Zimmerman, Rosenfeld, Gersh & Leeds v. Larson (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 1466, 1475, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 111].

§ 537.13 Summary Proceedings Compared to Other Proceedings

[1] Demurrer or Motion for Judgment on the Pleadings

A motion for judgment on the pleadings has the purpose and effect of a general demurrer. It may be used after the time to demur has expired to challenge an adversary's pleading on the ground that the pleading fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action or defense [compare Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a) (demurrer available when ground for objection to complaint, cross complaint, or answer appears on face thereof) with Code Civ. Proc. § 438 (motion for judgment on the pleadings)].

While a party moving for summary judgment is required to present extrinsic evidence, such as affidavits, declarations, admissions, and the like [see discussion in § 537.24[1][a] et seq., below], a party seeking judgment on the pleadings is confined to presenting defects fully disclosed on the face of the pleadings under attack or matters for which the court may take judicial notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 438(d)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Test of the Pleadings. Unlike a motion for judgment on the pleadings, a summary judgment motion presupposes that the pleadings are adequate to put in issue a cause of action or a defense to a cause of action. Nevertheless, a pleading may be defective in failing to allege an element of a cause of action or in failing intelligibly to identify a defense to it. In such a case, the moving party need not address a missing element or, obviously, respond to assertions that are unintelligible or make out no recognizable legal claim. The summary judgment proceeding is thereby necessarily transmuted into a test of the pleadings and the summary judgment motion into a motion for judgment on the pleadings. A defendant's motion for summary judgment then necessarily includes a test of the complaint's sufficiency and, as such, is in legal effect a motion for judgment on the pleadings. Similarly, a plaintiff's motion for summary judgment necessarily includes a test of the sufficiency of the answer [FPI Development, Inc. v. Nakashima (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 367, 382, 282 Cal. Rptr. 508 ; see also American Airlines, Inc. v. County of San Mateo (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 1110, 1117-1118, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 251, 912 P.2d 1198 (defendants' summary judgment motion used to test whether complaint stated cause of action treated as motion for judgment on the pleadings because time for demurrer had passed); Crouse v. Brobeck, Phleger & Harrison (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1509, 1532, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 94 (motion for summary judgment that argues pleadings do not support claim evaluated as motion for judgment on the pleadings, and tests whether complaint sufficient to state cause of action); Columbia Casualty Co. v. Northwestern Nat. Ins. Co. (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 457, 463, 468-470, 282 Cal. Rptr. 389 (distinguishing motions for summary judgment and motions for judgment on pleadings)].

PRACTICE TIP: Test Sufficiency of Pleadings Before Determining Triable Issues. To avoid unnecessary confusion or delay, the parties and the court, on a motion for summary judgment, should first consider the sufficiency of the pleadings. If the pleadings are not defective, the court may then determine from the evidence supporting and opposing the motion whether the triable issues apparently raised by them are real or merely the product of adept pleadings. If, however, the pleadings are defective, the court has discretion to grant the opposing party leave to amend. In the latter situation, on a subsequent motion the court may rule in favor of the moving party if it determines that (a) the opposing party simply cannot state a cause of action on the theory relied on (in effect a judgment on the pleadings without leave to amend), or (b) there are no triable issues of material fact that would permit recovery on that theory [Hejmadi v. AMFAC, Inc. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 525, 536, 249 Cal. Rptr. 5 ; see also Taylor v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 472, 479, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 873 (when motion for summary judgment is treated as motion for judgment on pleadings, trial court may give plaintiff opportunity to amend complaint even when no motion to amend has been filed)].

When a motion for summary judgment is in effect a motion for judgment on the pleadings, it is better practice to grant the motion with leave toamend and, after the issues have been properly plead, to renew the motion for summary judgment [Wood v. Riverside General Hospital (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1113, 1120, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 8 (dicta; affirming summary judgment without returning the case to the trial court to follow the two-step procedure because result would be the same)].

A motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication may revisit issues that were the subject of an earlier demurrer which was overruled. The Code Civ. Proc. § 1008 restrictions on motions for reconsideration do not apply [Community Memorial Hospital v. County of Ventura (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 199, 205, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 732].

For discussion relating to motions for judgment on the pleadings, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

[2] Trial of Special Issues

The court may, on its own motion or on a party's motion, proceed to the trial of a defense before the trial of any other issue in the case when the answer to a complaint or cross complaint pleads any of the following defenses [see Code Civ. Proc. § 597]:

- The action is barred by the statute of limitations [see also Code Civ. Proc. § 597.5 (separate trial of limitations defense in medical malpractice action)].

- The action is barred by a prior judgment.
- Another action is pending on the same cause.
- Another defense exists not involving the merits of the action but constituting a bar or ground of abatement to its prosecution.

For discussion and forms relating to separate trial of defenses, see Ch. 3, Abatement, § 3.110 et seq.

[3] Motion to Strike

Any party may serve and file a notice of motion to strike the whole or any part of the following pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 435(a)(2), (b)(1)]:

- Demurrers.
- Answers.
- Complaints.
- Cross complaints.

A motion to strike must be made within the time allowed to respond to the challenged pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 435(b)(1)].

Contrasted with a motion for summary judgment, the function of a motion to strike is to raise objections to pleadings on grounds that appear on the face of the pleading or from matters of which the court is required to take judicial notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437(a)].

For discussion and forms relating to motions to strike, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

[4] Motion to Enforce Settlement

If the parties stipulate to a settlement, either in writing signed by the parties outside the presence of the court or orally on the record before the court, the court may entertain a motion to enter judgment pursuant to the terms of the settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6]. The motion may be made only in the action that the agreement is purported to settle [Viejo Bancorp, Inc. v. Wood (1989) 217 Cal. App. 3d 200, 206-208, 265 Cal. Rptr. 620 .] Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 makes it unnecessary to file a motion for summary judgment to enforce an oral settlement agreement. For further discussion of motions to enforce settlement, see Ch. 318, Judgments, § 318.40 et seq.

An oral, out-of-court settlement may be enforced by a motion for summary judgment. The motion may be granted only if there is no dispute of material fact [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(c); Kilpatrick v. Beebe (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1527, 1529-30, 269 Cal. Rptr. 52].

§ 537.14 Summary Judgment Is Available When Action Has No Merit or No Defense

Any party may move for summary judgment in any action or proceeding if it is contended that the action has no merit or that there is no defense thereto [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a)]. Such a contention is well taken when all the papers submitted in connection with the motion show that there is no triable issue as to any material fact and the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(c); see discussion in § 537.33[1]].

A cause of action has no merit if either of the following is true [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(o)]:

- One or more of the elements of the cause of action cannot be separately established, even if the element is separately pleaded.

- If a defendant establishes an affirmative defense to the cause of action.

Parties who agree as to the facts and seek merely to resolve disputed issues of law may also move for summary judgment [see T.M. Cobb Co. v. County of Los Angeles (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 606, 612, 128 Cal. Rptr. 655, 547 P.2d 431 ; Dixon v. Salvation Army (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 463, 464, 191 Cal. Rptr. 111]. Nevertheless, the mere fact that both sides move for summary judgment does not establish that there is no triable issue of material fact; the trial court may make an independent determination on this point before proceeding to decide any questions of law [Coast

Elevator Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 576, 583-584, 118 Cal. Rptr. 818 (disapproved on another ground in Culligan Water Conditioning v. State Bd. of Equalization (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 86, 93 n.4, 130 Cal. Rptr. 321, 550 P.2d 593)].

Summary judgment is available only on motion. Thus, it cannot be granted in favor of a nonmoving party who successfully opposes a motion for summary judgment [Dvorin v. Appellate Dep't of Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 648, 650-651, 125 Cal. Rptr. 771, 542 P.2d 1363 ; see also Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London v. Superior Court (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 952, 958, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 821 (as amended, Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a) expressly precludes California trial judges from entering a summary judgment sua sponte); but see Conley v. Matthes (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1453, 1459 n.7, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 518 (power of reviewing court under Code Civ. Proc. § 43 to direct trial court to enter summary judgment, when it appears from the record as a matter of law that there is only one proper judgment on undisputed facts)]. Similarly, a trial court cannot grant summary judgment in favor of a party that sought only summary adjudication of certain claims and that had conceded that another claim should go to trial [Denney v. Universal City Studios, Inc. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1226, 1232, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 170].

Summary judgment may not be available if there was an earlier motion for summary adjudication [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f)(2); see § 537.34[3]].

§ 537.15 No Summary Judgment as to Liability When Damages Must Be Determined

Code Civ. Proc. § 437c does not provide for partial summary judgment as to liability when issues as to the calculation of damages remain. A decision on the issue of liability against a party on whom liability is sought to be imposed does not result in a judgment until the issue of damages is resolved [see Department of Industrial Relations v. UI Video Stores, Inc. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1084, 1097, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 457]. In Department of Industrial Relations the court of appeal, after finding that the defendant was liable to the plaintiff, denied the plaintiff's request to order the trial court to enter summary judgment in the plaintiff's favor. The trial court had apparently ordered the plaintiff to move for summary judgment on the issue of defendant's liability, with damages to be determined in a later accounting proceeding. The correct trial court procedure would have been a motion to bifurcate the issue of liability under Code Civ. Proc, § 598, which the parties could have tried on the undisputed facts [Department of Industrial Relations v. UI Video Stores, Inc. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1084, 1097, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 457]. Thus, summary judgment should not be granted unless there is no triable issue of material fact as to both the issues of liability and damages [see, e.g., Kurinij v. Hanna & Morton (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 853, 870-871, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324 (when summary judgment in legal malpractice action was granted in defendant's favor, additional summary judgment granted in defendant's favor on its cross complaint for unpaid attorney fees was also proper because issue of malpractice had been disposed of on other summary judgment motion and plaintiff was bound by judicial admissions that were binding without further evidence as to the reasonableness of the fees and plaintiff's obligation to pay them)].

§ 537.16 No Comment When Summary Judgment Granted on Basis That Defendant Was Without Fault

In actions that arise out of an injury to the person or to property, when a motion for summary judgment has been granted on the basis that the defendant was without fault, no other defendant during trial, over plaintiff's objection, may attempt to attribute fault to or comment on the absence or involvement of the defendant who was granted the motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(l)]. Violation of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(l), however, is not reversible error per se [Knowles v. Tehachapi Valley Hospital Dist. (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1083, 1094-1094, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 192 (Cal. Const., art. VI, § 13, prohibits reversible error per se in civil cases; miscarriage of justice is required to reverse civil judgment)].

§ 537.17 Summary Adjudication

[1] Available to Dispose of Cause of Action, Affirmative Defense, Claim for Punitive Damages, or Issue of Duty

Summary adjudication is available only on a motion for such relief, either by itself or as an alternative to summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f)(2); see Travelers Indemnity Co. v. Maryland Casualty Co. (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1538, 1542, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 271].

PRACTICE TIP:

Alternative Notice For Summary Adjudication. If counsel only gives notice of a summary judgment, the court cannot grant a summary adjudication [see Jimenez v. Protective Life Ins. Co. (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 528, 534-535, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 326]. Consequently, it is usually a good idea to give alternative notice for summary judgment or summary adjudication.

Any party may move for summary adjudication when he or she contends one of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f)(1)]:

- That one or more causes of action within an action has no merit.

- That there is no defense to one or more causes of action within an action.
- That there is no merit to an affirmative defense as to any cause of action.
- That there is no merit to a claim for punitive damages under Civ. Code § 3294.
- That one or more defendants either owed or did not owe a duty to the plaintiff or plaintiffs.

A cause of action has no merit if either of the following is true [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(o)]:

- One or more of the elements of the cause of action cannot be separately established, even if the element is separately pleaded.
- A defendant establishes an affirmative defense to the cause of action.

Summary adjudication can be used only to adjudicate facts or issues that completely dispose of a cause of action, affirmative defense, claim for damages, or issue of duty [see Code Civ. Proc. 437c(f)(1); Rooz v. Kimmel (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 573, 593-594, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 177 (judge had no authority to find no triable issues of fact remained with respect to delineated issues of fact without drawing legal conclusion from those facts that conclusively disposed of a cause of action or an issue of duty); Exxon Corp. v. Superior Court (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1672, 1688 n.11, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 195 (when plaintiffs pleaded their case by combining causes of action, defendant nonetheless entitled to move for summary adjudication to dispose of allegations that would have formed a single cause of action if properly pleaded)]. As a result of a 1990 amendment to the statute, "facts" of any kind, whether undisputed, underlying, supporting, or subsidiary, are not subject to summary adjudication [Raghavan v. The Boeing Co. (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1120, 1136, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 397]. The aim of the procedure is to discover whether the parties possess evidence requiring the weighing procedures of a trial [Federal Deposit Ins. Corp. v. Superior Court (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 337, 344, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 713]. If a motion for summary adjudication is granted, any cause of action, defense, claim, or issue of duty as to which the motion was granted is deemed to be established at the trial of the action. The action proceeds to trial only with regard to any remaining cause of action, defense, claim, or issue of duty [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(n)(1)]. At trial, the grant of summary adjudication will not operate to bar any cause of action, affirmative defense, claim for damages, or issue of duty as to which summary adjudication was not sought or was denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(n)(2)].

A motion for summary adjudication is not a reconsideration of a motion overruling a demurrer. The requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1008, dealing with reconsideration motions, do not apply to such a motion. Accordingly, a motion for summary adjudication may revisit issues of law raised on a demurrer [Community Memorial Hospital v. County of Ventura (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 199, 205, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 732 (refusing to follow Gilberd v. AC Transit (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1494, 1502, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 626 , to the extent it may be read to the contrary)].

Summary judgment, not summary adjudication, is the appropriate remedy when a defendant establishes an affirmative defense to all the claims against that defendant [24 Hour Fitness, Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1199, 1216 n.12, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 533].

[2] Cause of Action

A party may move for summary adjudication challenging a separate and distinct wrongful act, even if that act is combined with other wrongful acts alleged in the same cause of action [Lilienthal & Fowler v. Superior Court (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 1848, 1854-1855, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 458 ; Exxon Corp. v. Superior Court (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1672, 1688 n.11, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 195]. Although Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f) does not specifically define "cause of action," allegations relating to two separate matters involving acts performed at different times, with different and distinct obligations, involve two separate and distinct causes of action, regardless of how pled in the complaint [Lilienthal & Fowler v. Superior Court (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 1848, 1854, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 458 (claim of professional negligence in two transactions pled in same cause of action); see also Catalano v. Superior Court (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 91, 96, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 842 (liability based on separate theory as constituting cause of action)].

A party cannot select issues (other than duty and punitive damages) implicated in one or more causes of action, amend its pleading to add a cause of action for declaratory relief as to those issues, and then obtain a summary adjudication of the declaratory relief cause of action [Nazir v. United Airlines, Inc. (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 243, 251, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 296 (defendant's motion improperly sought adjudication of 44 "issues," none of which, taken individually, would dispose of an entire cause of action)]. This would subvert Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f)(1), which restricts the summary adjudication remedy to motions that would adjudicate an entire cause of action or affirmative defense, or the issues of duty or punitive damages [Hood v. Superior Court (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 319, 321, 323, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 296]. When the adjudication of a declaratory relief action does not adjudicate the entirety of any cause of action, it is prohibited by the statute. Failure to deny the motion is an abuse of discretion [Hood v. Superior Court (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 319, 324, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 296 (declaratory relief cause of action unnecessary and superfluous as issues invoked in that cause of action already fully engaged by other causes of action)]. However, summary adjudication of a properly pled cause of action for declaratory relief is not precluded merely because the issues subject to declaratory relief are present in other causes of action [Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Superior Court (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 839, 845-846, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 227]. In Southern Cal. Edison Co., the court distinguished Hood v. Superior Court as a case in which the court had recognized that what the party had done was to pluck certain issues out of an existing complaint and cross complaint and put them in a purported declaratory relief cause of action solely for the purpose of moving for summary adjudication on that cause of action and thus making an end run around the restrictions of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f). The lesson of Hood is that parties will not be permitted to misuse a declaratory relief cause of action in an attempt to subvert the requirement that a summary adjudication must completely dispose of a cause of action [Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Superior Court (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 839, 846, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 227].

[3] Issue of Duty

An "issue of duty" for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f) is not statutorily defined. It has been held, however, that the phrase "an issue of duty" in Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f) is not limited to negligence causes of action. If, under the facts and circumstances of a given case, a court finds it appropriate to determine the existence or nonexistence of a duty in the nature of a contractual obligation, it may properly do so by ruling on that issue presented by a motion for summary adjudication [Linden Partners v. Wilshire Linden Associates (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 508, 518-519, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 708].

There are conflicting opinions on whether summary adjudication is available under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f) when a ruling on an issue of duty would not dispose of an entire cause of action or affirmative defense, or terminate some portion of an action. There is authority that has held that to be consonant with the legislative purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f), a ruling on a summary adjudication which determines an issue of duty must dispose of an entire cause of action or affirmative defense, or terminate some portion of an action [Regan Roofing Co. v. Superior Court (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 425, 436, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 413 (Fourth Dist., Div. One)]. This authority, however, has been rejected by another court [see Linden Partners v. Wilshire Linden Associates (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 508, 517-518, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 708 (Second Dist., Div. Seven; rejecting Regan as controlling precedent)]. In Linden, the court noted that the substantive areas which may be challenged under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f) are stated in the disjunctive, that is, "a cause of action, an affirmative defense, a claim for damages or an issue of duty." The Linden court believed that the plain meaning of this language is that a motion for summary adjudication may be granted or denied as to any of these substantive areas, standing alone, and without reference to the dispositive effect of such ruling on any of the companion substantive issues. A ruling that completely disposes of an issue of duty as required by the last sentence of the section, but which has no dispositive impact on other issues would appear to conform with legislative intent and the straight-forward, unambiguous language of the Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f). Thus, on a motion for summary adjudication, the court may rule whether a defendant owes or does not owe a duty to plaintiff without regard for the dispositive effect of such ruling on other issues in the litigation, except that the ruling must completely dispose of the issue of duty [Linden Partners v. Wilshire Linden Associates (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 508, 519-522, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 708].

[4] Punitive Damages

A claim for punitive damages is one of the substantive areas which is properly the subject of a motion for summary adjudication. Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f), however, does not allow piecemeal disposition of some of the asserted facts within a claim for punitive damages, but may only be granted when the entire claim for punitive damages is eliminated. Accordingly, when a claim for punitive damages is based on an interrelated set of facts and circumstances, if any one or more of the facts would support a claim for punitive damages, then summary judgment is not available to eliminate from trial other facts relating to the claim for punitive damages [Catalano v. Superior Court (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 91, 92, 95, 97-98, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 842]. The Catalano court, however, did not decide if summary adjudication must eliminate all claims for punitive damages in one action when there are separate and distinct claims for punitive damages, having nothing to do with one another, although contained within one complaint [Catalano v. Superior Court (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 91, 98 n.5, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 842].

[5] No Comment on Summary Adjudication

At trial, neither a party, nor a witness, nor the court may comment on the grant or denial of a motion for summary adjudication to the jury [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(m)(3)]. It is also error for a court, after summary adjudication of certain causes of action, to instruct the jury considering the remaining cause of action that certain facts were established despite the fact that the court did not use the term "summary adjudication" [Raghavan v. The Boeing Co. (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1120, 1136, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 397]. For discussion of the Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(l) prohibition of comment on a defendant whose summary judgment motion was granted in a personal injury or property damage action, see § 537.16.

§ 537.18 Particular Actions in Which Summary Proceedings Are Limited or Unavailable

[1] Action for Unlawful Detainer, Forcible Entry, or Forcible Detainer

Although summary judgment generally is available in actions for unlawful detainer and forcible entry or detainer on the same basis as a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.7] the following special rules apply:

- Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a) and (b) are expressly inapplicable [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(r)].

- Notice of a motion for summary judgment must be given in compliance with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1013 and 1170.7 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1351(a)].

- Opposition to the motion and any reply to that opposition may be made orally at the time of the hearing. Alternatively, if a party seeks to have a written opposition considered in advance of the hearing, the written opposition must be filed and served on or before the court day before the hearing and must be by personal delivery, facsimile transmission, express mail, or other means consistent with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010, 1011, 1012 and 1013, and reasonably calculated to ensure delivery to the other party or parties no later than the close of business on the court day before the hearing. The court, in its discretion, may consider written opposition filed later [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1351(b), (c)].

- No provision in Code Civ. Proc. § 437c may be construed to extend the period for trial otherwise provided for the proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5 [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(q)].

- A motion for summary judgment may be made at any time after the answer is filed on giving five days' notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.7; compare CodeCiv. Proc. § 437c(a) (requiring at least 75 days' notice)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Good Cause for Shortening Time. While Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(q) excludes application of the time requirements for service and filing of any opposition or reply under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b), Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.7 provides no time requirements in their place. In the absence of any other provision, the time for service and filing would normally be nine court days for opposition papers and five court days for a reply [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1177 (unless otherwise provided, general rules of civil practice apply in unlawful detainer and forcible entry actions)]. But in this instance compliance with the normal rules is impractical, if not impossible, in light of the five-day notice of motion period permitted by Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.7. Parties seeking to submit an opposition or reply in such cases, including those seeking to submit written objections to evidence under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1352 and 3.1354, should therefore cite the five-day notice period of Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.7 as good cause for an order permitting the service and filing of the opposition or reply within less time than that normally required.

For discussion of unlawful detainer proceedings, see Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions .

[2] Consumer Class Action

A motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c will not be granted in any class action under Civ. Code § 1781(a) of the Consumers Legal Remedies Act (Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.). Nonetheless, any party in such an action may move for a hearing to determine whether the action is without merit or there is no defense to the action. The moving party must give at least 10 days' notice to the other parties to the action and submits supporting affidavits or declarations by any persons having knowledge of the facts [Civ. Code § 1781(c); see, e.g., Kagan v. Gibraltar Sav. & Loan Assn. (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 582, 589 n.2, 200 Cal. Rptr. 38, 676 P.2d 1060 (motion under Code Civ. Proc. 437c treated as motion under Civ. Code § 1781(c)(3))]. For discussion of these actions, see Ch. 504, Sales: Consumers Legal Remedies Act .

[3] Medical Malpractice Action in Which Defendant Seeks Security for Defense Costs

Any defendant in an action for medical malpractice who moves for an order requiring the plaintiff to post security for defense costs as provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.6(a) cannot afterwards move for summary judgment. Similarly, any defendant moving for summary judgment is precluded from subsequently moving for security under Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.6(a) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.6(e), (f)]. For discussion of Section 1029.6, see Ch. 295, Hospitals .

[4] Action to Terminate Parental Custody

Summary judgment procedure is inappropriate in a proceeding to terminate a parent's rights of custody and control over his or her child [Fam. Code § 7800 et seq.], because these proceedings must be set for trial prior to the time that a motion for summary judgment may be brought [see Fam. Code § 7870; In re Mark K. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 94, 101-104, 205 Cal. Rptr. 393 (applying former Civ. Code § 232 et seq.)].

[5] Election Contest

Summary judgment is unavailable in election contests due to incompatibility with time requirements imposed under

Elec. Code § 20020 et seq. [Anderson v. County of Santa Barbara (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 780, 786-787, 128 Cal. Rptr. 707].

Pre-election review of a proposed ballot initiative, however, was appropriately carried out and trial court properly granted summary judgment to city and baseball team on their requests for declaratory relief that the proposed initiative was invalid [City of San Diego v. Dunkl (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 384, 389, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 269].

§ 537.19 Strategic Planning for Bringing Motion

[1] Pre-discovery Planning

Preparation for a motion for summary judgment should be a major part of the initial evaluation of the case. It can begin before the first responsive pleadings are filed.

Some issues, however, may be best resolved early by demurrer, motion to strike, motion for separate trial of special defenses, motion for judgment on the pleadings, or other grounds for abatement [see discussion in § 537.13[1] et seq.]. Other issues, even if they are evident on the face of the complaint might better be resolved after limited discovery.

ILLUSTRATION:

Summary Judgment vs. Demurrer. Defendant identifies an issue that appears on the face of the pleadings but that is not waived if raised later. Strategic considerations regarding demurring include:

- Demurrer sustained without leave to amend: case resolved favorably.
- Demurrer sustained with leave to amend:

- Advantage: limits issues, thus limiting discovery and other costs.

- Disadvantage: strengthens plaintiff's complaint, provides plaintiffwith a preview of expected motion for summary judgment.

Strategic considerations in merely answering the defective pleading, conducting discovery, possibly focused primarily on this issue, include:

- Summary judgment granted:

  - Advantages: final judgment, more time to understand case fully, focuses opponent's attention on his or her case's weaknesses, which may lead to settlement.

  - Disadvantage: costs of discovery incurred.

- Summary judgment denied:

  - Disadvantages: opponent given preview of movant's evidence and legal theories, parties or witnesses will be barred by statements in affidavits or declarations and may be impeached by these statements at trial, expensive, parties assume same risk as going to trial.

A discovery plan is a key part of case strategy and management. Any discovery plan should be developed with an eye toward using discovery in a summary judgment motion as well as in trial preparation. For further discussion of discovery plans, see DeMeo, California Deposition and Discovery Practice, Ch. 2 (Matthew Bender).

[2] Effect of "Fast Track" and Other Local Rules

All courts are required to have "fast-track" procedures to implement the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act [see Gov. Code §§ 68605.5, 68620]. These procedures may affect the prospective movant's timing and strategy. For example, some courts may require discussion early in the litigation of issues as to which early resolution may be possible [see Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.6(c), (d) (court to consider at first status conference nature and extent of law and motion proceedings anticipated and whether some or all issues can be arbitrated or should be referred to another form of Alternative Dispute Resolution)].

Some counties have other programs designed to foster early resolution of cases that provide opportunities for testing summary judgment issues [see, e.g., San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 4.2 (Voluntary Civil Mediation)]; such programs provide an added incentive for parties to prepare to argue summary judgment issues early in the litigation.

Although the court may for good cause modify the periods within which papers supporting and opposing a motion for summary judgment may be filed, local court rules may not restrict the availability of summary judgment [see Wells Fargo Bank v. Superior Court (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 918, 923, 254 Cal. Rptr. 68]. Local rules and practices may not be applied so as to prevent the filing and hearing of a summary judgment motion filed within the time limits of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c [Sentry Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 526, 529, 255 Cal. Rptr. 13]. Mandamus proceedings may be used to challenge local rules in conflict with Code Civ. Proc. § 437c [see Wells Fargo Bank v. Superior Court (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 918, 923, 254 Cal. Rptr. 68].

In complex litigation, a case management order cannot preclude a party from filing a motion under Code Civ. Proc. §

437c, for example, by setting up a procedure for resolving choice of law issues involved in dispositive motions before the motions themselves may be filed [First State Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 324, 330-331, 336, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 104]. The First State court also held, however, that once a Code Civ. Proc. § 437c motion has been filed, the trial court has inherent power to defer hearing Code Civ. Proc. § 437c motions in order to first decide the myriad choice of law issues potentially involved in the case. The court specifically said that it was not stating that the trial court may establish a procedure for deferred hearing of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c motions in every complex case. Each case must be examined individually to determine the propriety of the case management order issued in that case [First State Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 324, 331-336, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 104] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Conflicting Local Court Rule. A local court rule requires that "extensive" or "complicated" motions for summary judgment be filed six months before trial. This increases the time period by which a motion must be heard before trial, well exceeding the 58-day period provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 437c. Is the local rule enforceable? No. The rule conflicts with Code Civ. Proc. § 437c and is unenforceable and void [Wells Fargo Bank v. Superior Court (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 918, 923, 254 Cal. Rptr. 68].

[3] Use of Discovery

Discovery should be conducted keeping in mind, among other things, how the discovery can be used in a summary judgment motion [see also discussion in § 537.24[2], and 537.24[3]].

ILLUSTRATION:

Refuting the Complaint's Allegations. In an action in which the complaint alleges that certain statements were made and heard, defendant propounds interrogatories requesting identification of all persons, including third parties, who heard the statements. Plaintiff identifies two nonparties. Defendant informally interviews the nonparties to determine whether their depositions are necessary, and obtains favorable testimony that the allegation does not accuratelyreflect what the nonparties heard. The nonparties are not deposed. Defendant incorporates the testimony into declarations supporting a motion for summary judgment. Proof of plaintiff's allegation is undermined. Moreover, plaintiff is precluded from producing contradicting declarations of persons who were not previously identified in the interrogatory response.

PRACTICE TIP: Requests for Admission. Requests for admission are an effective way of generating evidence sufficient to support a motion for summary judgment. This is especially true if counsel has reason to expect that the opposing party (e.g., a plaintiff acting in propria persona) will not respond to the requests and that they are consequently likely to be deemed admitted. Requests should be formulated so that, if admitted, they establish a complete cause of action or defense. For example, in an action in which plaintiff sues on a promissory note, plaintiff may serve requests for admissions asking the defendant to admit defendant signed the promissory note, that no payments have been made on the note, etc. [see, e.g., Union Bank v. Superior Court (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 573, 576, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 653 (defendant relied on plaintiff's factually insufficient interrogatory answers and admissions as evidentiary basis for its separate statement supporting summary judgment motion, shifting burden to plaintiff to prove existence of triable issue of material fact)].

Counsel for the moving party should be cautious, however, about not tipping the party's hand as to the fact that a summary judgment motion is planned or as to the basis for the motion. In addition to simply denying the admission, the nonmoving party may take the opportunity to make declarations showing how the requested admission is untrue.

[4] Collecting Evidence for Motion

[a] Advance Preparation

Supporting declarations should be drafted well in advance of the service deadline for a motion for summary judgment to accommodate witnesses who may become unavailable. Also, certified copies of documents and any matters to be judicially noticed should be collected with time to spare for unforeseen difficulties in obtaining the material.

Since document assembly for a summary judgment or summary adjudication motion can be extremely time-consuming, as much of the process should be completed in advance as possible. Early preparation also makes drafting of the separate statement of undisputed (or disputed) material facts proceed smoothly. For discussion of the separate statement, see § 537.21[3].

[b] Stipulation to Facts

Depending on the complexity of the case, it may be clear that summary judgment motions by both sides are required. In that case, the parties may wish to stipulate to certain foundational facts, such as the citizenship of a party or the authenticity of documentary evidence.

§ 537.20 Timing Requirements for Making Motion for Summary Judgment

[1] Motion Permitted If 60 Days Have Lapsed Since Opposing Party's General Appearance

A motion for summary judgment may be made [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005.5]:

- At any time after 60 days have elapsed since the general appearance [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1014 (discussed below)] in the action or proceeding of each party against whom the motion is directed.

- At an earlier time after such general appearance as the court, with or without notice and on good cause shown, may direct.

A court cannot shorten the 75-day notice period required for a motion for summary judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a)], but the statute does gives trial courts authority to shorten the 60-day period after the opposing party's general appearance to file the motion [McMahon v. Superior Court (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 112, 115-118, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 407 ; Urshan v. Musicians' Credit Union (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 758, 765, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 839 (court's setting of motion for summary judgment 10 days before trial violated notice requirement; two days to prepare motion denied due process)].

A party has generally appeared if he or she has filed a complaint [Brown v. Swickard (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 820, 826-827 & n.10] or done any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1014]:

- Answered.
- Demurred.
- Filed a notice of motion to strike.
- Filed a notice of motion to transfer under Code Civ. Proc. § 396b.
- Moved for jurisdictional reclassification under Code Civ. Proc. § 403.040.
- Given the plaintiff written notice of appearance.

The acts listed above constituting a general appearance under Code Civ. Proc. § 1014 are not exclusive [Creed v. Schultz (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 733, 739, 196 Cal. Rptr. 252]. Any act of a defendant is equivalent to a general appearance when, by that act, the defendant intentionally submits him or herself to thejurisdiction of the court for the purpose of obtaining any ruling or order of the court going to the merits of the case, and the act may reasonably be construed to imply that the court has acquired jurisdiction of the person of the defendant [Davenport v. Superior Court (1920) 183 Cal. 506, 511, 191 P. 911].

A motion is deemed "made" on the service and filing of the notice of motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005.5]. Thus, a party seeking summary judgment generally must wait until 60 days after the opponent's general appearance to file or serve the notice of motion. One court, however, upheld a plaintiff's filing of a motion for summary adjudication of the issues less than 60 days after the defendant's general appearance when the hearing on the motion occurred after the 60-day period. The court stated that Code Civ. Proc. § 1005.5 was not intended to deprive a party of a right to a hearing on a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c if either the filing or hearing at which the motion is made occurs after the 60-day period [see Sadlier v. Superior Court (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1050, 1053-1054, 229 Cal. Rptr. 374 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1005.5 (providing that its provisions "shall not deprive a party of a hearing of the motion to which he is otherwise entitled") and discussion in § 537.29, below]. If the moving party is the defendant, the 60-day waiting period is computed from the time the action was filed [see St. Mary Medical Center v. Superior Court (1997) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1531, 1537, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182].

PRACTICE TIP:

Early Motion Continued for Discovery. If the motion is made within a short time after commencement of the action, the trial court, on request, may grant a continuance to the opposing party giving a reasonable time in which to conduct discovery before deciding the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(h)].

For discussion of an exception to the 60-day rule applicable in actions for unlawful detainer and forcible detainer or entry, see § 537.18[1].

[2] Cutoff for Hearing 30 Days Before Trial

A motion for summary judgment must be heard no later than 30 days before the date of trial, unless the court for good cause orders otherwise [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a)].

The 30-day limit is necessary to permit the completion of discovery and to provide the trial court with sufficient time to consider the motion and any supplemental papers that may be filed. It is calculated based on the trial date in existence when the motion is noticed [Green v. Bristol Myers Co. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 604, 609, 609 n.4, 253 Cal. Rptr. 745 ; see also Sentry Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 526, 529, 255 Cal. Rptr. 13].

A court cannot shorten the 75-day notice period required for a motion for summary judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a)], but the statute does gives trial courts authority to shorten the 30-day period before the trial date for hearing on the motion [Robinson v. Woods (2009) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1258, 1268, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 241 ; McMahon v. Superior Court (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 112, 115-118, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 407].

PRACTICE TIP:

Scheduling Hearing. When selecting a date for the hearing, try to avoid a Friday hearing date. Friday tends to be the day on which most motions are heard, because cases normally are assigned a Monday trial date, and the last possible day for the hearing in such cases is the Friday four weeks earlier. Similarly, it can be risky to schedule the hearing for the last possible day; if it turns out that anything is wrong with the motion, there is no time for a continuance to rectify the problem.

[3] Motion Does Not Extend Time for Filing Responsive Pleading

The filing of a motion for summary judgment does not extend the time within which a party must otherwise file a responsive pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a)].

§ 537.21 Preparing Notice of Motion for Summary Judgment and Accompanying Papers

[1] Notice of Motion

A party seeking summary judgment must request the order by written notice of motion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a)]. The notice of motion must be accompanied by the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(1)]:

- Supporting declarations or other evidence [see [2], below].
- A separate statement of material facts [see [3], below].
- A supporting memorandum [see [4], below].
- Any additional papers as required by local court rule [see [5], below].

For forms of notice of motion for summary judgment and summary adjudication, see §§ 537.70 and 537.71.

[2] Declarations and Other Supporting Evidence

A motion for summary judgment is a "speaking motion" in that it goes outside the pleadings and must be supported by extrinsic evidence. Evidence may be presented in the following form [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(1), (2)]:

- Affidavits or declarations [see discussion in § 537.24[1][a] et seq.].
- Admissions [see discussion in § 537.24[2]].
- Answers to interrogatories and deposition testimony [see 537.24[3]].
- Matters of which the trial court must or may take judicial notice [see 537.24[4][a] et seq.].

Neither the moving party nor the opposing party can rely on allegations in their own pleadings in lieu of or in support of these authorized forms of evidence, although each may use, as admissions, allegations pleaded by the other [Parker v. Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 176, 181, 89 Cal. Rptr. 737, 474 P.2d 689 ; see Billmeyer v. Plaza Bank of Commerce (1995) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1086, 1099]. This rule applies to verified as well as unverified pleadings [Vesely v. Sager (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 153, 169, 95 Cal. Rptr. 623, 486 P.2d 151 , disapproved on other grounds in Strangv. Cabrol (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 720, 724, 209 Cal. Rptr. 347, 691 P.2d 1013 ; Cornelius v. Los Angeles County Etc. Authority (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1761, 1768, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 618].

A motion for summary judgment must be directed to the issues raised by the pleadings [Laabs v. City of Victorville (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1242, 1253, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 372 ; Tsemetzin v. Coast Federal Savings & Loan Assn. (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 1334, 1342, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726]. The complaint limits the issues to be addressed in defendant's motion for summary judgment [Alvis v. County of Ventura (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 536, 548, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 494 ; Laabs v. City of Victorville (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1242, 1258, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 372] . If plaintiff wishes to expand the issues to be considered, plaintiff must seek leave to amend the complaint [Alvis v. County of Ventura (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 536, 548, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 494 ; Laabs v. City of Victorville (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1242, 1258, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 372] .

The function of supporting and opposing evidence is to establish whether there is any triable issue of fact within the issues delimited by the pleadings. In a properly pleaded case, the pleadings allege the ultimate facts constituting the cause of action or defense, and the evidence in support or opposition to the motion for summary judgment tracks these pleadings by providing evidence of the alleged ultimate facts. Absent an appropriate objection, however, the evidence produced in a summary judgment proceeding may cure some defects in pleading ultimate facts; the pleadings may be read together with that evidence for the purpose of discerning what is in issue [FPI Development, Inc. v. Nakashima (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 367, 381-382, 282 Cal. Rptr. 508 ; see People ex rel. Dep't of Transportation v. Ad Way Signs, Inc. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 187, 196, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 496].

For further discussion regarding preparation and evaluation of the supporting and opposing evidence, see § 537.24[1][a] et seq., §§ 537.25[3], and 537.25[4].

[3] Statement of Material Facts

A motion for summary judgment puts in issue the existence of material facts. To assist the court in determining the motion, the supporting papers must include a separate statement setting forth plainly and concisely all material facts which the moving party contends are undisputed. Each of the material facts stated must be followed by a reference to the supporting evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(1)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Which Facts Are "Material." Materiality goes to issues [Monastra v. Konica Business Machines, U.S.A., Inc. (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 1628, 1635, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d. 528 ; Billmeyer v. Plaza Bank of Commerce (1995) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1086, 1099]. Whether a fact is material will depend on the issues involved as determined from the pleadings and applicable law [see Billmeyer v. Plaza Bank of Commerce (1995) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1086, 1099 ; see also Addy v. Bliss & Glennon (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 205, 215, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 642 (pleadings define issues to which summary judgment motion must be directed)]. Materiality is measured by the law applicable to the legal theories put in issue by the complaint [Teselle v. McLoughlin (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 156, 161, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 696 ; Anderson v. Heart Federal Sav. & Loan Assn. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 202, 210, 256 Cal. Rptr. 180 ; see also Kelly v. First Astri Corp. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 462, 470, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810 (fact to be material must relate to a claim or defense that is in issue and must also be necessary to judgment somehow); cf.; accord Eisenberg v. Alameda Newspapers, Inc. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1359, 1375, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 802 , Sangster v. Paetkau (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 151, 162, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 66 (both stating that for practical purposes, issue of material fact is one which in context and circumstances of case warrants time and cost of factfinding by trial)]. Local superior court rules formerly defined the term "material fact" as a fact that is "necessary for the proof of an essential element," to be distinguished from "a fact which, while explanatory, does not tend directly or by inference to prove an essential element." Counsel should use this definition as a guide in assessing which facts to include in a separate statement.

The references to supporting evidence must be specific and supported by citation to exhibit, title, page and line numbers [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(d), (f)].

The statement must be prepared as a separate document [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(c), (e)] with a two-column format, stating in numerical sequence the undisputed material facts in the first column followed by the evidence that establishes those undisputed facts in that same column [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(d), (f), (h)]. The requirement for separately identified issues is required only for supporting and opposing separate statements in a motion for summary adjudication [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(h); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(b), Truong v. Glasser (2009) 181 Cal. App. 4th 102, 118, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 811 (because defendant's motion sought summary judgment, rather than summary adjudication of subissue, his statement, using format contained in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(h) met requirements of Rule 3.1350 without necessity of separately listing subissues as to which summary adjudication was sought)]. The court's power to deny summary judgment on the basis of failure to comply with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350 is discretionary, not mandatory [Truong v. Glasser (2009) 181 Cal. App. 4th 102, 118, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 811] .

Effective January 1, 2002, a party must provide an electronic version of its separate statement to any other party or the court within 3 days of a request to do so [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(i)]. The electronic version may be provided in any form on which the parties agree; however, if the parties are unable to agree on the form, the responding party must provide the electronic version of the separate statement that it used to prepare the document filed with the court. Pursuant to this rule, a party is not required to create an electronic version or any new version of any document for the purpose of transmission to the requesting party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(i)].

The court has discretion to deny a motion for summary judgment if the moving party fails to supply a separate statement, or to grant the motion if the opposing party fails to supply its separate statement [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(1), (3)].The prevailing view, however, is that it is only in the truly exceptional case involving a single, simple issue with minimal evidentiary support that a court will consider the merits of a motion unaccompanied by a separate statement [United Community Church v. Garcin (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 327, 335, 282 Cal. Rptr. 368]. Usually failure to file a separate statement with the motion will result in a denial of the motionwithout prejudice, a continuance, or an order taking the motion off the calendar.

It has been held to be an abuse of discretion to grant the motion solely on the ground of failure to file a separate statement without affording an opportunity for a pro per party to submit a proper response [see Security Pacific Nat'l Bank v. Bradley (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 89, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 220 . Similarly, one court holds it is an abuse of discretion for a court to grant summary judgment based on deficiency in opposing separate statement where the opposing party's separate statement plainly indicated which proposed material facts were disputed and included general references to supporting evidence but did not set forth the nature of the dispute or specific citations to the evidence [Parkview Villas Ass'n, Inc. v. State Farm Fire and Cas. Co. (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1197, 1210-1216, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 411]. The trial court has discretion to overlook procedural errors in the moving and opposition papers, but only if the evidence presented warrants it [Zimmerman, Rosenfeld, Gersh & Leeds v. Larson (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 1466, 1478, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 111 (glaring omissions and concessions could not be overlooked)]. However, it was not an abuse of discretion for a court to grant summary judgment based on deficiencies in plaintiffs' amended opposing separate statement when the trial court identified deficiencies in the initial opposing separate statement, identified the precise manner in which the deficiencies could be rectified, and provided plaintiffs ample time to prepare new, compliant papers, yet plaintiffs' opposing separate statement was still not compliant with the applicable rules [Collins v. Hertz Corp. (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 64, 74-75, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 149] .

For forms of statement of undisputed material facts supporting motions for summary judgment or summary adjudication, see §§ 537.74 and 537.75.

ILLUSTRATION:

Late Separate Statement. A party serves a motion for summary judgment on October 9, 1984. The motion, originally set for hearing on November 16, 1984, is continued, first to January 14, 1985, and then to January 28, 1985. The motion is actually heard on the latter date. Movant's separate statement is served by mail on December 21, 1984, 38 days before the actual hearing date. Rejecting the opposing party's objection based on this procedural irregularity, the trial court hears and grants the motion. Did the trial court commit an abuse of discretion when it refused to deny the summary judgment motion due to the late separate statement? No. Inasmuch as movant's statement was served 38 days before January 28, 1985, when the motion was actually heard, it cannot be said that the opposing parties were prejudiced or that the trial court abused its discretion by refusing to deny the summary judgment motion on the ground the statement was filed late [see Michael H. v. Gerald D. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 995, 1004, 236 Cal. Rptr. 810 , aff'd, 491 U.S. 110, 109 S. Ct. 91, 105 L. Ed. 2d 91 (1987)].

[4] Supporting Memorandum

A supporting memorandum must accompany a notice of motion for summary judgment [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1113(a), 3.1350(c), (e)]. As a general rule, the opening memorandum in support of a summary judgment motion may not exceed 20 pages in length, exclusive of exhibits, declarations, attachments, and a table of contents [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d) (also permitting longer memorandum with court approval)]. The 20-page limit applies even when there are multiple plaintiffs opposing a summary judgment motion [Collins v. Hertz Corp. (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 64, 71, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 149 (court held plaintiffs were not entitled to 60 pages of opposition papers despite the fact there were three opponents)]. It is not required that the memorandum cites to the evidence in the record. It is sufficient that the statement of undisputed facts cites to the record [Basich v. Allstate Insurance Co. (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 1112, 1118, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 153].

There is no requirement in the rules of court that a memorandum in support of a motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication be organized by cause of action [Hope Int'l Univ. v. Superior Court (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 719, 723, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 643].

PRACTICE TIP:

Circumvention of Page Limitation Impermissible. Do not attempt to avoid page limitations by using unusually small typewriter print or by inappropriately using single-spacing in the body of the memo. Papers filed with the court must be in type not smaller than 12 points. Lines on each page must be one and one-half spaced or double spaced, with exceptions for the description of real property, footnotes, and quotations [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.104, 2.108].

The memorandum need not repeat citations to the record in support of the motion when the moving papers include the statement of undisputed material facts as required by Code Civ. Proc § 437c(b)(1) and California Rules of Court, Rule 3.1350(c) and (d) [see Basich v. Allstate Ins. Co. (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 1112, 1118, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 153].

For discussion of the format and content requirements for memoranda of points and authorities, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[5] Proposed Order

If counsel submits a proposed order in addition to the usual supporting papers, the proposed order must be lodged and served with the moving papers, but is not to be attached to them [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(m)]. In any case, the prevailing party will be required to submit a proposed order after the ruling on the motion [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1312]. Preparation of a proposed order ahead of time may facilitate timely compliance with this requirement.

PRACTICE TIP:

Forms of Proposed Order. The form of proposed order set out in § 537.81 is for use when the court grants a motion for summary judgment and requires counsel to prepare and submit a proposed order. If the court permits the order and judgment to be combined in the same paper, the form set out in § 537.82 may be used. Otherwise, if the order granting the motion terminates the action as between at least two parties, a separate proposed judgment, such as that set out in the form in § 537.83, maybe prepared and submitted to the judge for signature.

For forms of proposed orders, see § 537.81 et seq.

§ 537.22 Service Requirements

Effective January 1, 2003, notice of the motion and supporting papers must be served on all other parties to the action at least 75 days before the time appointed for hearing. [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a)]. This marks a significant change in the notice period required for summary judgment motions. Prior to this most recent amendment, the notice period was 28 days.

If the notice is served by mail, this 75-day notice period is increased by [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a)]:

- Five days if the place of address is within California.
- Ten days if it is outside the state but within the United States.
- Twenty days if it is outside the United States.

If the notice is served by facsimile transmission, Express Mail, or another method of overnight delivery, the 75-day notice period is increased by two court days [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a)]. When increasing the 75 days' notice required by two court days for overnight delivery, the two court days are added on at the end of the 75-day period [Barefield v. Washington Mutual Bank (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 299, 303, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 858].

For discussion of an exception to these requirements, applicable in actions for unlawful detainer or forcible detainer or entry, see § 537.18[1].

If the notice is served by electronic service, the period of notice or any right to respond within any period or on a date certain after the service is extended by two court days under Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6). This extension applies absent a specific exception provided for by another statute or rule of court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6)]. Although Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(6) excludes extensions under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005 and 1013, as of the enactment of section 1010.6, it does not exclude extensions under 1010.6. For discussion of section 1010.6, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

A court cannot shorten the 75-day notice period required for a motion for summary judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a)], but the statute does gives trial courts authority to shorten the 60-day period after the opposing party's general appearance to file the motion, and to shorten the 30-day period before the trial date for the hearing on the motion [McMahon v. Superior Court (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 112, 115-118, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 407]. A court also cannot shorten the 75-day notice period required for a motion for summary judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a) by issuing a general order providing for an expedited summary judgment on 60 days' notice [Boyle v. CertainTeed Corp. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 645, 655-656, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 501 (general order providing for expedited summary judgment procedure applicable to asbestos cases)].

Proof of service of the notice of motion must be filed no later than five calendar days before the appointed hearing date [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(c)]. For discussion of the manner of service and forms for proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

§ 537.23 Filing Requirements

The notice of motion and supporting papers must be filed 16 court days before the appointed hearing date [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(a)]. The latest a paper may be filed is at the close of business of the clerk's office on the day the paper is due [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(e)].

Papers submitted for filing after the time set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300, will be filed, but the court, in its discretion, may refuse to consider these papers in ruling on the motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(d)]. If the court refuses to consider the papers, the minutes or order are required to so indicate [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(d)].

§ 537.24 Preparing the Supporting Evidence

[1] Supporting Affidavits or Declarations

[a] Sufficiency Requirements

The most common method for providing the requisite evidence in support of amotion for summary judgment is by a sworn statement, that is, by affidavit or declaration [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 437c(b)(1), 2009, 2015.5; Shultz Steel Co. v. Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 513, 518, 231 Cal. Rptr. 715 ; see also discussion in § 537.21[2]]. A supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration must do all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(d)]:

- Be based on the affiant's or declarant's personal knowledge, and show affirmatively that the affiant or declarant is competent to testify to the facts stated in the affidavit or declaration [see discussion in § 537.24[1][b]].

- Set forth admissible evidence [see discussion in § 537.24[1][c]]. In this respect, the rules governing the admission of evidence apply [see, e.g., Evid. Code §§ 1100 et seq., 1200 et seq.].

For discussion of sanctions for filing affidavits or declarations in bad faith, see § 537.38. For a form of supporting declaration, see § 537.73.

For a declaration to comply with the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 in support of or to oppose a summary judgment motion, thedeclaration must either state on its face that it was executed in California or state that it is declared under the laws of the state of California [Kulshrestha v. First Union Commercial Corp. (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 601, 618, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 793, 93 P.3d 386 (declaration stricken; summary judgment for defendant affirmed)].

The moving party's papers are strictly construed, accepting as fact only those portions that are not contradicted by opposing papers, while the opposing party's papers are liberally construed, all facts therein being accepted as true [Salazar v. Southern Cal. Gas Co. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1370, 1376, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 522 ; for discussion, see § 537.33[2][a]].

[b] Showing Declarant's Competency

An affidavit or declaration must affirmatively show that the affiant or declarant is competent to testify to the matters stated within it [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 437c(d); Regents of University of California v. Superior Court (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1040, 1044, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 922]. The affidavit or declaration need not contain a conclusory statement that the affiant or declarant can competently testify; all that is required is that the affiant or declarant allege facts showing his or her competence [see Roy Brothers Drilling Co. v. Jones (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 175, 181-182, 176 Cal. Rptr. 449 ; see also Gatton v. A.P. Green Services, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 688, 696, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 523 (affiant must show that if sworn as witness he or she can testify competently to evidentiary facts contained in affidavit)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 437c expressly requires that a supporting or opposing affidavit and declaration be based on personal knowledge [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(d); Regents of University of California v. Superior Court (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1040, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 922 ; see Maltby v. Shook (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 349, 352-354, 280 P.2d 541 (personal knowledge requirement applies even when affiant or declarant is a party's attorney)]. Personal knowledge is essentially an element of the affiant's or declarant's competency to testify [see Evid. Code § 702] and therefore must be affirmatively shown. Thus, a conclusory allegation of personal knowledge is by itself insufficient; the affiant or declarant must state facts showing how he or she came to know personally the facts stated [see Snider v. Snider (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 741, 753, 19 Cal. Rptr. 709].

For example, a declarant's statement made "to the best of my knowledge" is inadmissible for failure to meet the required showing of personal knowledge [Bowden v. Robinson (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 705, 719-720, 136 Cal. Rptr. 871 ; see also Lopez v. University Partners (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1117, 1124, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359 (declarations based on information and belief insufficient to satisfy burden of either moving or opposing party on motion for summary judgment or adjudication)]. Conversely, statements indicating a declarant's inability to recall facts exactly merely affects the weight of such evidence, and not its admissibility on the basis of personal knowledge [Buehler v. Oregon-Washington Plywood Corp. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 520, 528-529, 131 Cal. Rptr. 394, 551 P.2d 1226].

If the affiant or declarant is stating expert opinion, the affidavit or declaration should establish competency by stating the affiant's or declarant's qualifications to give expert opinion testimony [see Evid. Code §§ 720, 801, 802; Mann v. Cracchiolo (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 18, 37-39, 210 Cal. Rptr. 762, 694 P.2d 1134 ; see also Tibor v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1359, 1364 n.1, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 326 (declaration contained no foundational facts showing that declarant had the training, experience or skill that would qualify declarant to render an opinion on the particular matters in controversy)]. An expert's opinion also must lay the foundation for an exception to the hearsay rule if hearsay evidence is used to form the basis of the expert's opinion [Garibay v. Hemmatt (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 735, 743].

[c] Stating Evidentiary Facts

A supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration must set forth admissible evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(d); Regents of University of California v. Superior Court (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1040, 1044, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 922 ; see Franklin v. Benevolent etc. Order of Elks (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 915, 930, 159 Cal. Rptr. 131 and discussion in § 537.24[1][a]]. Nonetheless, the mere presence in a supporting declaration of inadmissible evidence concerning an immaterial fact is not a valid ground to deny a motion otherwise well taken [Overland Plumbing, Inc. v. Transamerica Ins. Co. (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 476, 481, 174 Cal. Rptr. 1].

The admissible evidence must be stated in the form of evidentiary facts, specifically, all necessary evidentiary facts including those establishing personal knowledge and competency (discussed in § 537.24[1][b]). Affidavits and declarations may not simply state ultimate facts or conclusions [Krantz v. BT Visual Images (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 164, 173-174, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 109 ; Hayman v. Block (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 629, 638-639, 222 Cal. Rptr. 293 ; Rodes v. Shannon (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 743, 748, 15 Cal. Rptr. 349]. These are insufficient when not supported by evidentiary facts based on personal knowledge [see Colby v. Schwartz (1978) 78 Cal. App. 3d 885, 889, 144 Cal. Rptr. 624].

ILLUSTRATION:

Insufficient Conclusionary Statements. Plaintiffs bring an action for wrongful death and emotional distress based on the death at birth of their infant child. Defendant physician moves for summary judgment against both parents, on the theory that there is no cause of action for wrongful death because the baby was stillborn. In his declaration submitted in support of the motions, defendant claims that the child was "a stillborn fetus." Does this statement meet the requirement for evidentiary facts? No. Facts set forth to support a grant of summary judgment must be evidentiary in quality. Conclusionary affidavits are insufficient for this purpose. The doctor's conclusionary statement in this situation did not enlighten the court as to the child's vital signs, such as breathing, heartbeat, signs of cerebration, muscular activities, or lack thereof [see Sesma v. Cueto (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 108, 113-114, 181 Cal. Rptr. 12].

Hearsay evidence is not sufficient to raise an issue of fact when the party relying on it fails to lay a proper foundation for it [Garibay v. Hemmatt (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 735, 743 (failure to lay foundation for business records exception to the hearsay rule rendered expert doctor's opinion inadmissible); Rochlis v. Walt Disney Co. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 201, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 793 (regarding admission, party failed to show declarant was authorized to speak on behalf of party against whom the statement was offered), disapproved on other grounds, Turner v. Anheuser-Busch, Inc. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1238, 1251, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 223, 876 P.2d 1022].

[d] Incorporating Documentary Evidence

Documentary evidence should be incorporated by reference into an affidavit or declaration. Such documents must satisfy applicable rules of evidence [Dugar v. Happy Tiger Records, Inc. (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 811, 815, 116 Cal. Rptr. 412], which would include authentication [Evid. Code § 1400 et seq.] and the Secondary Evidence Rule [Evid. Code § 1520 et seq.]. Any incorporation by reference of matter in the court's file must set forth with specificity the exact matter to which reference is being made and may not incorporate the entire file [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(7)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Use of Authenticated Copies. Parties should file authenticated copies of documentary evidence in lieu of originals. Secondary evidence is admissible; however, the Secondary Evidence Rule expressly provides that nothing in the Rule excuses compliance with authentication requirements [Evid. Code § 1521(a), (c)]. Be prepared to produce originals of the documents at the hearing on the motion if there is a genuine dispute concerning material terms of the writing or admission of secondary evidence would be unfair [see Evid. Code § 1521(a) (grounds for court to exclude secondary evidence)].

[e] Contradicting or Repudiating Prior Testimony or Statements

In reviewing motions for summary judgment or adjudication, courts treat affidavits or declarations repudiating previous testimony as not constituting substantial evidence of the existence of a triable issue of fact [Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. v. Great American Surplus Lines Ins. Co. (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 791, 800, 245 Cal. Rptr. 44 ; Jacobs v. Fire Ins. Exchange (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1258, 1270, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 906 (rejecting expert's declaration contradicting deposition testimony)]. Courts also will not accept as substantial evidence of a triable issue of fact a declaration that directly contradicts the declarant's prior statement, even when the prior statement was not under oath, when the contradiction is unexplained [Alvis v. County of Ventura (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 536, 548-549, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 494] .

[2] Admissions

Admissions may be used to support or oppose a motion for summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(1), (2); see also discussion in § 537.21[2] and in § 537.19[3]].

Admissions are derived primarily through the use of requests for admissions, in either of the following ways:

- Matters admitted in an answer to a request for admission [Code Civ. Proc. § 2033(f) (Code Civ. Proc. § 2033.220 operative July 1, 2005)]; see, e.g., Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 748, 753, 9 Cal. Rptr. 896 (decided under prior law)].

- Matters deemed admitted on the motion of the party who served a request for admissions, when the party served with the request has failed to provide a timely response [Code Civ. Proc. § 2033(k) (Code Civ. Proc. § 2033.280 operative July 1, 2005)] see, e.g., Swedberg v. Christiana Community Builders (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 138, 144, 220 Cal. Rptr. 544 (affirming summary judgment based on deemed admissions; decided under prior law)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Use of Deemed Admissions. Requests for admissions are a useful and relatively inexpensive means of obtaining the supporting evidence necessary to obtain summary judgment or summary adjudication. They are particularly effective when it is reasonable to expect that the opposing party may not respond, and the matters in the request may thereafter be deemed admitted. In this situation the requests for admission should be framed to elicit admissions that, if admitted, establish all the facts necessary for the cause of action or defense. For example, a personal injury plaintiff appearing in propria persona may well fail to provide timely response to requests for admissions served by the defendant, and defense counsel may thereafter obtain a summary judgment in defendant's favor so long as the matters deemed admitted are sufficient to establish a complete defense.

For discussion of discovery by requests for admissions under Code Civ. Proc. § 2033 [Code Civ. Proc. § 2033.010-2033.420 operative July 1, 2005], see Ch. 196, Discovery: Requests for Admissions .

Admissions may also derived from the following:

- Deposition testimony [see Visueta v. General Motors Corp. (1991) 234Cal. App. 3d 1609, 1613, 286 Cal. Rptr. 402 and discussion in § 537.24[3]].

- Answers to interrogatories [see Mason v. Marriage & Family Center (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 537, 545, 279 Cal. Rptr. 51 , and discussion in § 537.24[3]].

- Pleadings of the opposing party. In this situation the admissions may be either expressly pleaded [see, e.g., Aim Insurance Co. v. Culcasi (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 209, 213 n.1, 280 Cal. Rptr. 766 (allegations in cross complaint)], or they may result from an ineffective denial [see, e.g., Oliver v. Swiss Club Tell (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 528, 539, 35 Cal. Rptr. 324 (ineffective denial based on information and belief)].

- Factual stipulations entered into by the opposing party [see Smith v. Walter E. Heller & Co. (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 259, 269, 147 Cal. Rptr. 1].

For further discussion of the effect of admissions, see § 537.33[2][g].

[3] Depositions and Answers to Interrogatories

Depositions and answers to interrogatories may be used to support or oppose a motion for summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(1), (2); see also discussion in § 537.21[2], and in § 537.19[3]], subject to admissibility objections that may be made and sustained [see L&B Real Estate v. Superior Court (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1342, 1346-1348, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 759 ; Gatton v. A.P. Green Services, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 688, 692, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 523]. A party responding to interrogatories may not use those responses in support of its own motion or opposition to a motion for summary judgment [Great American Ins. Companies v. Gordon Trucking, Inc. (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 445, 450, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 65].

With regard to deposition testimony, it may in some instances be appropriate simply to recite small portions of relevant testimony within a declaration [see discussion in § 537.24[1]]. Usually, however, the party relying on deposition testimony should copy the relevant pages of the deposition transcript and submit these as an exhibit. When deposition testimony is submitted as an exhibit, the following requirements apply [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1116]:

- Other than the title page, the exhibit must contain only the relevant pages of the transcript. The original deposition transcript page number must be clearly visible at the bottom of each page.

- The relevant portions of any testimony in the deposition must be highlighted or marked in a manner that calls attention to that testimony.

Interrogatories and their answers should be similarly prepared as exhibits.

[4] Matters Subject to Judicial Notice

[a] Supporting or Opposing Motion for Summary Judgment

Matters of which judicial notice shall or may be taken may be used to support or oppose a motion for summary judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(1), (2) and discussion in § 537.21[2]]. Among the more significant matters subject to judicial notice are the following:

- Statutes, case law, and court rules of the United States and California [see Evid. Code §§ 451(a), (d), 452(a), (e)].

- Court records [see Evid. Code § 452(d)].

- Facts and propositions:

  - Of generalized knowledge that are so universally known that they cannot reasonably be the subject of dispute [Evid. Code § 451(f)].

  - That are of such common knowledge within the territorial jurisdiction of the court that they cannot reasonably the subject of dispute [Evid. Code § 452(g)].

- That are not reasonably subject to dispute and are capable of immediate and accurate determination by resort to sources of reasonable indisputable accuracy [see Evid. Code § 452(h)].

Any request for judicial notice must be made in a separate document listing the specific items for which notice is requested and must comply with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1306(c) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(l)]. A party requesting judicial notice of material under Evid. Code § 452 or § 453 must provide the court and each party with a copy of the material.

If the material is part of a file in the court in which the motion is being heard, the party must specify in writing the part of the court file sought to be judicially noticed and make arrangements with the clerk to have that file in the courtroom at the time of the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1306(b)]. Local rules may impose additional requirements. For example, in Los Angeles County Superior Court, the party requesting notice must file a request at least five days before the hearing. The request must be filed with the clerk of the department in which the matter is noticed and must include the case name and number. Moreover, the file must be delivered at least two court days before the hearing to give the judge an opportunity to review the file in preparation for the hearing [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 9.2; see also San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 8.9 (similar requirement)]. A copy of the relevant portions of the file should be included with the supporting or opposing papers for the following reasons:

- The court may consider the copy if the file cannot be located in time for the hearing [see Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 9.2(b)].

- The requesting party may not incorporate the entire court file by reference and must set out with specificity the exact matter in the file that is soughtto be incorporated by reference [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(7)].

If the matter subject to permissive notice is contained in another court's file, the party requesting notice must obtain the file for the date of the hearing or, alternatively provide a certified copy of relevant portions of the file with his or her moving or opposing papers [see Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 9.2(c) (also providing that this procedure applies when file is in another district of the same court); see also § 537.24[4][c]].

For discussion of judicial notice, see Ch. 321, Judicial Notice .

[b] Mandatory Judicial Notice

Matters subject to mandatory judicial notice under Evid. Code § 451 need not be specifically requested, but should be drawn to the court's attention by appropriate reference, as, for example, in the separate statement of material facts and memorandum [see § 537.21[3] and § 537.21[4]]. Any failure by the court to notice matters under Evid. Code § 451 may be deemed harmless or invited error if the matter was not brought to the court's attention [see Assembly Committee on Judiciary comment to Evid. Code § 451; Stafford v. Ware (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 227, 231-232, 9 Cal. Rptr. 706].

[c] Permissive Judicial Notice

Any request for judicial notice of matters subject to permissive notice under Evid. Code § 452, as required by Evid. Code § 453, should be filed with the papers supporting or opposing the motion for summary judgment. This will satisfy the requirement that "sufficient notice" be given to the adverse parties to enable them to prepare to meet the request [Evid. Code § 453(a); see Law Revision Commission comment to Evid. Code § 453]. For example, the request may take the form of a reference to the matter sought to be noticed in a declaration filed in support of a motion for summary judgment [see Stepan v. Garcia (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 497, 500, 117 Cal. Rptr. 919 (reference to contents of court records)].

A request for permissive judicial notice must be accompanied with information sufficient to enable the court to take the notice requested, i.e., a copy of the material to be noticed [Evid. Code § 453(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1306(c)].

§ 537.25 Opposing Motion for Summary Judgment

[1] Opposing Memorandum

A memorandum is essential to effective opposition; it not only states the opposing points and authorities, but, in presenting opposing argument, serves to coordinate the other opposing papers. Any objections to notice, evidentiary objections, and objections to the sufficiency of supporting declarations should also be discussed fully in the opposing memorandum whenever possible. These objections are waived if not raised at the hearing, and evidentiary objections must be in writing unless arrangements have been made to have a reporter transcribe the hearing [see discussion in § 537.25[4]].

As a general rule, the opposing memorandum in a proceeding for summary judgment may not exceed 20 pages in length, exclusive of exhibits, declarations, attachments, and a table of contents [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d) (also permitting longer memorandum with court approval)]. For discussion of the required format and content requirements for memoranda, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[2] Opposing Statement of Material Facts

The opposing papers must include a separate statement of material facts that does both of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(3)]:

- Responds to each of the material facts contended by the moving party to be undisputed (see discussion in § 537.21[3]) and indicates whether the opposing party agrees or disagrees that those facts are undisputed.

- Sets forth plainly and concisely any other material facts that the opposing party contends are disputed.

If the opposing party admits any of the facts set out in the moving party's separate statement, the admission should be clearly stated [Blackman v. Burrows (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 889, 895, 238 Cal. Rptr. 642]. If the opposing party contends that any of those facts are disputed, this contention must be followed by a reference to the evidence establishing that the facts are disputed [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(3); see § 537.25[3]].

Specific format requirements for preparing the opposing statement are provided in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(f) [see also § 537.21[3]]:

- The opposing statement of facts must be prepared as separate document.

- The opposing statement must quote each of the facts in the moving party's statement in the same order in which they appear in the moving party's statement.

- The opposing statement must state whether or not he or she disputes each such fact. If the opposing party disputes a fact set out in the moving party's statement, he or she must cite to the page and paragraph of the exhibit where evidence establishing the dispute can be located.

- After responding to each of the moving party's facts, the opposing party may set out any additional facts claimed to be disputed, with appropriate evidentiary support and references thereto.

- The facts must be listed in a left-hand column, with a correspondingright-hand column that states whether that fact is undisputed or disputed, and, if disputed, sets out specific references to the paragraph and page of each identified exhibit where the supporting evidence can be found.

Effective January 1, 2007, written objections to the moving party's evidence must follow a specific format [see discussion in § 537.25[4]; for forms, see §§ 537.86 and 537.87]. Objections to specific evidence may be referenced by the objection number in the right column of the separate statement, but the objections must not be restated or reargued in the separate statement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1354(b)].

A party must provide an electronic version of its separate statement to any other party or the court within 3 days of a request to do so [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(i)]. The electronic version may be provided in any form on which the parties agree; however, if the parties are unable to agree on the form, the responding party must provide the electronic version of the separate statement that it used to prepare the document filed with the court. Pursuant to this rule, a party is not required to create an electronic version or any new version of any document for the purpose of transmission to the requesting party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(i)].

The court has discretion to grant the motion for summary judgment if the opposing party fails to comply with this requirement [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(3)]. Some cases have held, however, that unless the moving party has met its initial burden of proof, the court does not have discretion under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(3) to grant summary judgment based on the opposing party's failure to file a proper separate statement [Teselle v. McLoughlin (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 156, 168-173, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 696 ; Thatcher v. Lucky Stores, Inc. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1086, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 575 ; see Kulesa v. Castleberry (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 103, 111-112 (discretion to grant motion under section 437c(b) does not override court's Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(c) duty to review all papers filed in conjunction with motion); see also Rubenstein v. Rubenstein (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1131, 1151-1152, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 707 (moving defendant not entitled to summary judgment despite plaintiff's failure to file proper opposing separate statement and untimeliness of opposition papers because defendant did not meet burden in first instance of establishing right to relief defendant sought); Pepperell v. Scottsdale Ins. Co. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1045, 1055 n.7, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 164 (although trial court has discretion under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b) to grant summary judgment when opposing party fails to comply with statutory requirement of separate statement, appellate court will not affirm granting of summary judgment solely on that basis)].

Other cases have upheld the granting of summary judgment based on the opposing party's failure to file a separate statement as required under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(3) without specifying any requirement that the moving party first satisfy its burden of proof [see, e.g., Whitehead v. Habig (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 896, 900-903, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 679 (trial court granted motion for summary adjudication both on substantive grounds and on basis that opposing party failed to file separate statement but court of appeals upheld ruling based solely on failure to file separate statement); Kaplan v. LaBarbera (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 175, 179, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 903 (failure to submit separate statement in opposition to motion alone is sufficient to uphold trial court's grant of motion; summary judgment for defendant upheld on that and other grounds); Blackman v. Burrows (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 889, 893, 238 Cal. Rptr. 642 (trial court did not abuse its discretion in granting summary judgment motion based on opposing party's failure to submit separate statement); see also Gilbertson v. Osman (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 308, 315-316 (trial courts may grant motion if opposing party fails to submit separate statement of material facts if failure significantly interferes with court's mission of seeking truth and justice; under facts of case, however, plaintiff's failure to submit separate statement of disputed facts did not justify order granting summary judgment; disapproved on other grounds in Woods v. Young (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 315, 328 n.4, 279 Cal. Rptr. 613, 807 P.2d 455)].

In any event, usually an opposing party's failure to file a responsive separate statement will result in a continuance of the motion to permit the filing of proper papers and an award of fees and costs as a condition of the continuance [see United Community Church v. Garcin (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 327, 335, 282 Cal. Rptr. 368 ; Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 9.21(f)].

A summary judgment motion cannot be defeated by attempting to generate a factual dispute as to an immaterial issue. The presence of a factual dispute will not defeat a summary judgment motion unless the fact in dispute is material [Romero v. American President Lines, Ltd. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1199, 1203, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 421] that is, it relates to a claim or defense in issue which could make a difference in the outcome [Los Angeles Nat. Bank v. Bank of Canton (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1267, 1274, 280 Cal. Rptr 831].

If the opposing party's evidence would show some factual assertion, legal theory, defense or claim not yet pleaded, that party should seek leave to amend the pleadings before the hearing on the summary judgment motion [Distefano v. Forester (2001) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1249, 1264-1265, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 813]. The papers filed in response to the defendant's motion for summary judgment may not create an issue outside the pleadings and are not a substitute for an amendment to the pleadings [Sutherland v. Barclays American/Mortgage Corp. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 299, 317, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 614 ; Nash v. Fifth Amendment (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1106, 1116, 279 Cal. Rptr. 465 ; see also Hobson v. Raychem Corp. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 614, 629, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 497 (plaintiff cannot successfully resist summary judgment on theory which is not pleaded in complaint); Allyson v. Department of Transportation (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 1304, 1318-1321, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 490 , and discussion in § 537.33[2][c]].

For further discussion of what constitutes material facts, see § 537.21[3]. For a form of opposing statement of disputed and/or undisputed material facts, see § 537.77.

ILLUSTRATION:

Failure to File Response. Plaintiff moves for summary judgment. Defendant, appearing in pro per, does not file a separate responsive statement. Defendant mistakenly believes that a separate responsive statement he filed to a prior summary judgment motion by plaintiff also applied to the present motion. At the hearing, the trial court points out that Code Civ. Proc. 437c(b) requires a separate responsive statement and that none has been filed. It grants the motion based on defendant's failure to file a separate responsive statement. Defendant tells the court, "I don't understand the summary judgment," and the court responds, "Well, I don't give advice, sir. I just rule on cases as they are brought to me." The trial court enters judgment for plaintiff. Has the court abused its discretion in granting the plaintiff's motion? Yes. The court abused its discretion in failing to give defendant a further opportunity to file a separate responsive statement. Defendant's failure to file a separate responsive statement was not a refusal to comply with Code Civ. Proc. § 437c, but was rather based on a mistaken belief that the statement was unnecessary. Unless the trial court has reason to believe no responsive statement would be filed even if the respondent was afforded a reasonable opportunity to file one, the respondent should be afforded that opportunity rather than suffer a judgment not supported by a decision on the merits [see Security Pacific Nat'l Bank v. Bradley (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 89, 94, 98-99, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 220]

ILLUSTRATION: Failure to Include Stipulation in Separate Statement. As litigation progresses plaintiff and defendant enter into a stipulation whereby plaintiff waives punitive damages and all other causes of action except negligence and defendant stipulates to negligence, but expressly reserves the right to dispute the issues relating to causation and damages. Thereafter defendant moves for summary judgment without mentioning the stipulation or even that defendant has conceded negligence. The theory of defendant's motion is that the firefighter's rule is applicable and defeats an element of plaintiff's negligence cause of action. Plaintiff responds by contending that the firefighter's rule does not apply because at the time of plaintiff's injury plaintiff was neither a firefighter nor a policeman. In plaintiff's opposition, plaintiff sets forth the stipulation in full, but makes no argument with respect to it. The trial court grants summary judgment in favor of the defendant based on the defendant having proffered evidence establishing as a matter of law that the firefighter's rule bars plaintiff's claim and that plaintiff in opposition proffered no evidence that raised a substantial controversy as to the applicability of the firefighter's rule. Has the trial court erred in determining by summary judgment that the firefighter's rule barred plaintiff's action for negligence against defendant. Yes. Plaintiff's response in opposition to the motion called the court's attention to the stipulation on the first page and defendant made no objection to the exhibit. The only issues reserved for dispute under the stipulation were the issues relating to damage causation and damages. The applicability of the firefighter's rule, as an issue relevant to the element of duty, was not an issue that defendant expressly reserved to dispute. Moreover, plaintiff as the opposing party complied with plaintiff's obligations under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b). Although Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b) required plaintiff as the opposing party to "include a separate statement which responds to each of the material facts contended by the moving party to be undisputed ... ," because defendant as the moving party had not listed the stipulation as an undisputed fact, plaintiff had no obligation to respond with any mention of the stipulation. Plaintiff, however, did respond to defendant's statement of undisputed facts, and thus complied with the first obligation under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b). In addition, although Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b) required plaintiff to list in a separate statement any facts that plaintiff thought to be disputed, because the existence of the stipulation was not in dispute, plaintiff had no obligation to include the stipulation in plaintiff's separate statement and waived nothing by not including it in the statement. Furthermore, the stipulation did not contain facts that were relevant to the theory of defendant's motion for summary judgment. Under the stipulation defendant conceded the elements of duty and breach (or negligence) as a matter of law and only retained the right to raise material factual issues on the elements of causation and damage. Thus, nothing in Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b) required plaintiff to set forth the stipulation in plaintiff's separate statement of material facts. Plaintiff was only required to place the stipulation in evidence in opposition to the motion which plaintiff did by attaching the stipulation [Assad v. Southern Pacific Transportation Co. (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1609, 1614-1616, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 443] .

[3] Opposing Evidence

[a] Requirement

When appropriate, the opposition to a motion for summary judgment must include opposing evidence. This evidence may be presented in any of the following forms [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(2)]:

- Affidavits or declarations.
- Admissions.
- Answers to interrogatories and deposition testimony.
- Matters of which the trial court must or may take judicial notice.

It is impossible to raise a triable issue of material fact in opposing a motion for summary judgment unless evidentiary items are filed as part of the opposition [Arciniega v. Bank of San Bernardino (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 213, 224, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 495 (criticized on another point in Rice v. Crow (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 725, 726, 737-741, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 110); see also Tibor v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1359, 1364 n.1, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 326 (policy reasons requiring opposing expert declarations in medical malpractice cases appear equally applicable in cases involving alleged malpractice of criminal defense attorney)].

If no affidavits or declarations are filed in opposition to a motion for summaryjudgment, the court is entitled to accept as true the facts alleged in the movant's affidavits and declarations, provided they are within the personal knowledge of the affiant or declarant and are facts to which he or she could competently testify [Lyons v. Security Pacific Nat. Bank (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1001, 1014, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 174 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (use of declarations)].

[b] Sufficiency

Counter affidavits and declarations need not prove the opposition's case. They suffice if they disclose the existence of a triable issue [McManis v. San Diego Postal Credit Union (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 547, 555, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617].

The sole declaration of a party opposing a summary judgment motion which raises a triable issue of fact is sufficient to deny the motion [Estate of Housley (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 342, 359, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 628]. Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(e) does not allow a trial court to weigh the credibility of a declaration submitted by the party opposing a summary judgment motion and then grant the motion, except where the declaration is facially so incredible as a matter of law that the moving party otherwise would be entitled to summary judgment [Estate of Housley (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 342, 359-360, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 628].

An opposing party may not avoid summary judgment based on mere speculation or conjecture [Frank and Freedus v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 461, 468-469, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 678 ; see Padgett v. Phariss (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1270, 1284, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 373 ; see also Sangster v. Paetkau (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 151, 163, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 66 (responsive evidence that gives rise to no more than mere speculation cannot be regarded as substantial and is insufficient to establish triable issue of material fact); Andrews v. Foster Wheeler, LLC (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 96, 113, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229 (speculative expert declarations lacking factual basis and consisting of merely general statements were not sufficient to create a triable issue of material fact)]. An issue of fact cannot be created by speculation, conjecture, imagination or guess-work nor can it be raised by cryptic, broadly phrased, and conclusory assertions, or by mere possibilities. Only a conflict of evidence can create an issue of fact [accord Myricks v. Lynwood Unified School Dist. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 231, 237, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 734 ; Lyons v. Security Pacific Nat. Bank (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1001, 1014, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 174 ; see also American Golf Corp. v. Superior Court (2000) 79

Cal. App. 4th 30, 39, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 683 (expert testimony that sports injury would not have occurred if recreation provider had done something differently is not sufficient to establish that provider increased inherent risks of sport, and does not create triable issue of fact on motion for summary judgment based on primary assumption of risk defense); Benavidez v. San Jose Police Dept. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 853, 865, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 157 (expert's declaration rejected to extent it drew legal conclusions); Travelers Casualty & Surety Co. v. Superior Court (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1440, 1462, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 54 (expert declarations cannot createtriable question of fact if expert's opinion is based on factors that are remote, speculative, or conjectural); Garibay v. Hemmatt (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 735, 743 (expert's opinion inadmissible to establish material fact if opinion based on hearsay with no foundation made to establish an exception to the hearsay rule)]. Thus, the opposing party must produce admissible evidence that raises a triable issue of fact [Frank and Freedus v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 461, 468-469, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 678]. For example, a mere assertion in the complaint of the party that opposes the motion that such evidence exists is not sufficient to raise a triable issue of material fact that merits a trial [Frank and Freedus v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 461, 475-476, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 678 ; see Lyons v. Security Pacific Nat. Bank (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1001, 1014, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 174] (issue of fact notraised by allegations in complaint); see also § 537.33[2][c], although the party opposing the motion may rely on allegations pleaded by the moving party to establish facts that are not contained in his or her declarations or affidavits [Parker v. Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 176, 181, 89 Cal. Rptr. 737, 474 P.2d 689 ; 24 Hour Fitness, Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1199, 1211, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 533); Troche v. Daley (1990) 266 Cal. Rptr. 34 (in summary judgment motions, law allows reliance on adversary's pleadings; judicial admission in pleading conclusively establishes truth of matter); see also Uram v. Abex Corp. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1425, 1433, 266 Cal. Rptr. 695 (defendant moving for summary judgment may rely on allegations contained in plaintiff's complaint which constitutes judicial admission)].

When the plaintiff carries a clear and convincing burden of proof, the evidence and all inferences that can reasonably be drawn from it must meet that standard [Rowe v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1711, 1724, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 625 ; see also Reader's Digest Assn. v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 244, 252, 690 P.2d 610]

[c] Preparation

The requirements governing the preparation of supporting evidence also apply to the preparation of opposing evidence. For further discussion, see § 537.21[2] and § 537.24[1][a] et seq. For a form of a declaration in opposition to a motion for summary judgment, see § 537.76. For discussion of when deposition of an opposing party's expert may be permitted, see § 537.30, below.

[d] Defamation and Invasion of Privacy Actions

Summary judgment is a favored remedy in defamation and invasion of privacy cases due to the chilling effect of protracted litigation on First Amendment rights. The courts impose more stringent burdens on one who opposes the motion and require a showing of high probability that the plaintiff will ultimately prevail in the case. Absent such a showing, the courts are inclined to grant the motion and do not permit the case to proceed beyond the summary judgment stage [Alszeh v. Home Box Office (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1456, 1460, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16].

[4] Procedural and Evidentiary Objections

[a] Nature and Purpose of Objections

When evidentiary objections are in a proper form, a trial court must rule on the objections; it is imperative that a trial court rule on evidentiary objections regardless of whether the motion is denied or granted, and failure to rule on the objections is reversible error [Vineyard Springs Estates, LLC v. Superior Court (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 633, 642, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 587].

Objections to defects in the moving papers are generally waived if the opposing party fails to make a proper objection in the opposing papers or at the hearing. Specifically, the following rules regarding waiver of objections apply:

- Any objections to a moving party's failure to give proper notice of a motion for summary judgment as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a) (for discussion of service requirements, see § 537.22) are waived if the responding party appears at the hearing and argues the motion on the merits with no reference to the failure to provide adequate notice or with reference to the failure, but without requesting a continuance or contending that he or she was prejudiced by the inadequate notice or service [Carlton v. Quint (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 690, 696-698, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844 (failure to request continuance or claim prejudice); Pichon v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 488, 499, 260 Cal. Rptr. 677 (failure to mention)].

- Any objection based on the failure to comply with the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(d) regarding the forms and content of a supporting declaration (discussed in § 537.24) must be made at the hearing or will be deemed waived [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(d)].

- Evidentiary objections not made at the hearing will be deemed waived [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(5)]. This provision abrogates a former rule that there could be no waiver of the right to object to inadmissible evidence in summary judgment proceedings [see, e.g., Dugar v. Happy Tiger Records, Inc. (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 811, 817, 116 Cal. Rptr. 412].

- A party opposing a summary judgment motion has the right to waive evidentiary objections. It is therefore error for a trial court to interpose and sustain its own hearsay objection [Andrews v. Mobile Aire Estates (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 578, 587 n.6, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 832].

Any party who desires to make an evidentiary objection must either submit written objections or arrange for a court reporter to be present at the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1352; see Mediterranean Construction Co. v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 257, 263-264, 265, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 781]. Whenever possible, it is preferable to provide written objections. This assists the court's review of the objections and preserves a clear record for appeal.

[b] Time for Filing Objections

Unless otherwise excused by the court on a showing of good cause, all written objections to evidence in support of a motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication must be served and filed at the same time as the objecting party's opposition papers [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1354(a)].

[c] Required Format for Written Objections

Effective January 1, 2007, the California Rules of Court contain specific format requirements for written objections to evidence in support of or in opposition to summary judgment and summary adjudication motions. All written objections to evidence must be served and filed separately from the other papers in support of or in opposition to the motion. Each written objection must be numbered consecutively and must [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1354(b)]:

- Identify the name of the document in which the specific material objected to is located;

- State the exhibit, title, page, and line number of the material objected to;

- Quote or set forth the objectionable statement or material; and

- State the grounds for each objection to that statement or material.

Additionally, written objections must follow one of two formats provided in Rule 3.1354(b). For a form of written objections to evidence in support of or in opposition to a motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication, see § 537.86.

[d] Proposed Order and Court's Ruling on Objections

Effective January 1, 2007, a party submitting written objections to evidence must submit with the objections a proposed order. The order must include places for the court to indicate whether it has sustained or overruled each objection and must include a place for the judge's signature. Additionally, the order must follow one of two formats provided [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1354(c)]. For a form of proposed order on evidentiary objections, see § 537.87.

The court cannot consider evidence to which objections have been made and sustained [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(c)]. Thus, the trial court is required to rule on objections made orally or in writing. If, however, the trial judge does not rule specifically on the objections, but nevertheless considers only legally admissible evidence in making his or her ruling on the summary judgment motion, an appellant has the burden of pointing out any evidentiary errors that prejudiced hisor her position. Failure to do so constitutes a waiver on appeal of any possible error in this respect [Hayman v. Block (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 629, 640, 222 Cal. Rptr. 293 ; cf. Knight v. City of Capitola (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 918, 924 n.2, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 874 (record reflected no rulings in trial court on any objections; because neither party appeared to have insisted on ruling, objections were waived and appellate court will consider all evidence set forth in papers); see also Demps v. San Francisco Housing Authority (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 564, 578-579, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 204 (trial court presented with timely evidentiary objections in proper form must rule on the objections or they are deemed waived and the objected-to evidence will be included in the record; where counsel expressly requests ruling on objections and court fails to do so, objections may not be waived); City of Long Beach v. Farmers & Merchants Bank (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 780, 783-785, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 140 (evidentiary objections deemed waived on appeal if trial judge failed to rule on them; however, issues preserved for review if it would be fruitless or idle act for attorney to object; to have made third oral request for ruling after filing written objections and having requested judge to rule on them on two separate hearing dates would have been fruitless or idle act); PMC, Inc. v. Kadisha (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1368, 1378, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 663 (parties waived objections by not securing rulings on them and appellate court treats all evidence as having been properly admitted); Benavidez v. San Jose Police Dept. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 853, 865, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 157 (record did not show trial court ever formally ruled on defendants' evidentiary objections to declaration; thus, all evidence submitted was available for trial court's consideration; nevertheless, presumed on appeal that judge did not rely on irrelevant or incompetent evidence)].

A party's mere reference to evidence in a statement of undisputed facts does not waive an objection, contemporaneously raised in the accompanying points and authorities, that the evidence is inadmissible [Rio Linda Unified School Dist. v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 732, 734, 740, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 710 (distinguishing Hurley Construction Co. v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 533, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 629 , in which one party had admitted all the facts in the other party's separate statement of undisputed facts)].

[5] Proposed Order

While local court rules often require a proposed order to be submitted by the moving party, there is no similar requirement of the nonmoving party. Counsel for the opposing party may, however, wish to prepare a proposed order to submit at the hearing on the motion, especially if the tentative ruling is in the opposing party's favor. Opposing counsel must prepare and submit a proposed order in any case if the opposing party ultimately prevails on the motion [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1312]. Preparation of a proposed order ahead of time may facilitate timely compliance with this requirement.

[6] Motion for Sanctions for Bad-Faith Affidavits

If counsel determines that any of the affidavits or declarations submitted in support of the motion were presented in bad faith or solely for the purpose of delay, he or she may wish to include with the opposition a motion to recover reasonable expenses incurred as a result [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(j); see also § 537.38].

[7] Motion to Continue

Opposing counsel may wish to seek an order denying or continuing the motion on the basis of a declaration or affidavit that shows that facts essential to justify opposition may exist, but cannot be then presented for reasons stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(h)]. For further discussion, see § 537.36.

[8] Cross Motion for Affirmative Relief

A cross motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication of issues is necessary before the court may grant such affirmative relief in favor of the opposing party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a), (f); Dvorin v. Appellate Dep't of Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 648, 650-651, 125 Cal. Rptr. 771, 542 P.2d 1363]. If the moving party has filed its motion on the last day possible before the cutoff, it may be too late for the opposing party to move for affirmative relief.

PRACTICE TIP:

Hearing Cross Motions Simultaneously. In a case involving cross motions for summary judgment, counsel should seek to have the motions heard simultaneously on a mutually convenient date. If such motions are set for different dates, a court will likely order on its own that they be moved to the same date.

PRACTICE TIP: Opposing Papers as Cross Motion. If only one party, defendant, for example, has moved for summary judgment, and if desirable to expedite presenting issues for appellate review, the parties may elect to stipulate that the papers opposing defendant's motion be deemed plaintiff's cross motion for summary judgment, and that defendant's moving papers be deemed opposition to plaintiff's cross motion. If the court accepts this characterization, then a ruling in favor of either party would permit the other to file an appeal [see, e.g., Jimenez v. Protective Life Ins. Co. (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 528, 534-535, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 326].

[9] Limitation Concerning Voluntary Dismissal

A plaintiff who waits until a motion for summary judgment has been filed, and the time for opposition has passed, to attempt to dismiss his or her complaint, is subject to the trial court's continuing jurisdiction to hear and rule on the pendingmotion. A plaintiff may not frustrate the summary judgment statute by interposing a voluntary dismissal without prejudice in lieu of opposition to a defendant's motion [Cravens v. State Bd. of Equalization (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 253, 255, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436]. Thus, a trial court has been held to have the power to grant an unopposed defense motion for summary judgment when the defendants'moving papers met their burden of negating the plaintiff's claims, entitling them to judgment as a matter of law if no issues of disputed fact were raised, and plaintiff, rather than filing opposition papers within the requisite time, filed a request for dismissal without prejudice one day before the scheduled hearing date. At the point that the plaintiff failed to file opposition papers within the requisite time, entry of summary judgment in favor of defendants' became a formality which plaintiff could not avoid by the stratagem of filing a last minute request for dismissal without prejudice [Cravens v. State Bd. of Equalization (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 253, 255, 257, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b) (discretion of court to grant motion if opposition papers including separate statement of disputed fact is not filed)].

§ 537.26 Serving and Filing the Opposing Papers

Any opposition to the motion must be served and filed no less than 14 days before the noticed or continued hearing date, unless the court for good cause orders otherwise [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(1)]. Case law has been strict requiring good cause to be shown before late filed papers will be accepted [Hobson v. Raychem Corp. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 614, 625, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 497 (trial court has broad discretion to regulate submission of materials in connection with pending motions)]. As distinguished from the service of a notice of motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a) (see § 537.22), there is no provision extending the time period for service by mail [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Expedient Service. Effective January 1, 2003, Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(c) expressly applies to method of service for opposition and reply papers under the amended Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(6). Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(c) provides that all papers opposing a motion and all reply papers shall be served by personal delivery, facsimile transmission, express mail or other means reasonably calculated to ensure delivery to the other party or parties not later than the close of the next business day after the time the opposing papers or reply papers are filed.

§ 537.27 Reply to Opposition to Motion for Summary Judgment

[1] Reply Memorandum of Points and Authorities

A reply or closing memorandum may not exceed 10 pages in length, excluding exhibits, declarations, attachments, and a table of contents when required [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d) (also providing procedure for obtaining permission to file longer memorandum)]. For discussion of the format and content requirements for memoranda, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

In addition to any rebuttal argument, e.g., pointing out any inaccurate points or authorities raised in the opposing memorandum, the reply memorandum should also include any objections to the following:

- The timeliness of filing or service of the opposing papers.
- The form and content of the opposing papers, including objections based on the following defects:
  - A failure to file a responsive statement of facts, or any insufficiency in this responsive statement [for discussion of the requirements for the responsive statement and the effect of failure to file, see § 537.25[2]].

- Any insufficiency in the opposing declarations or other opposing evidentiary papers, including objections to the evidence produced by the opposing party based on the rules of evidence [for discussion of the requirements regarding evidentiary papers, see § 537.24[1][a] et seq.]. Effective January 1, 2007, a moving party's objections to the opposing party's evidence in opposition to the motion must follow the new format for objections provided in the Rules of Court and must be filed and served at the same time as the reply papers [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1354(a), (b)]. The objections must also include a proposed order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1354(c)]. For further discussion regarding format requirements for objections and objections in general, see § 537.25[4]. For forms of written objections to evidence and proposed order on objections, see §§ 537.86 and 537.87.

PRACTICE TIP:

Substantive vs. Procedural Objections. Because of the drastic nature of a summary judgment or summary adjudication, trial courts are generally reluctant to grant a motion simply because of a technical defect in the opposing party's papers, e.g., a deficiency in the opposing party's separate statement of facts. This is particularly true if there appear to be triable issues of fact. Counsel for the moving party should therefore avoid placing too much reliance on such objections, and focus instead on substantive objections, e.g., the inadmissibility of evidence produced in opposition to the motion.

If the party opposing summary judgment includes facts in its papers that the moving party had failed to address in its moving papers, the moving party may address the point in its reply papers and if appropriate, may adopt the opposing party's own evidence to demonstrate that no triable issue of material fact exists [see 216 Sutter Bay Associates v. County of Sutter (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 860, 879-881, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 492].

[2] Supplementary Evidence

The court has inherent power to request or consider supplemental or additional declarations submitted by the moving party in reply to the opposing declarations [Weiss v. Chevron, U.S.A., Inc. (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1094, 1098-1099, 251 Cal. Rptr. 727]. Any supplemental evidentiary papers should include facts that establish the reasons that such papers are necessary, in view of the fact that supplementary evidentiary papers may be filed only in the discretion of the court [see Johnson v. Banducci (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 254, 259-260, 27 Cal. Rptr. 764].

PRACTICE TIP:

Supplementary Statement of Material Facts. When submitting supplemental evidentiary papers, it would also be advisable to prepare a supplementary statement of undisputed facts to accompany such evidence, in the same manner as the statement of material facts in support of the motion [see § 537.21[3]].

[3] Motion for Sanctions for Bad-Faith Affidavits

If counsel determines that any of the affidavits or declarations submitted in support of the opposition were presented in bad faith or solely for the purpose of delay, he or she may wish to include with the reply a motion to recover reasonable expenses incurred as a result [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(j); see also § 537.38[1]].

§ 537.29 Procedure on Motion for Summary Adjudication

A motion for summary adjudication must proceed in all procedural respects as a motion for summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f)(2); see Maria D.v. Westec Residential Security, Inc. (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 125, 133, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 326 ; Toigo v. Town of Ross (1998) 70 Cal. App. 4th 309, 324, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 649]. In other words, the procedural requirements governing summary judgment motions discussed above in this chapter apply equally to motions for summary adjudication [see, e.g., Haskell v. Carli (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 124, 130, 240 Cal. Rptr. 439 (applying Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b) and (c) in motion for summary adjudication)].

§ 537.30 Obtaining Deposition of Expert Witness

While it is true that motions for summary judgment are heard on affidavits or declarations, contradictions raised by discovery may require the trial court to disregard the declarations or affidavits. This applies equally to party and nonparty deponents. For that reason, even though there has been no exchange of experts pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 2034 [Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.010-2034.730 operative July 1, 2005] under the proper circumstances the parties should be allowed to depose an expert who supplies a declaration or affidavit in support of or in opposition to summary judgment or summary adjudication when there is a legitimate question regarding the foundation of the expert's opinion. Whether to grant discovery falls within the sound discretion of the trial court based on all the facts presented. There must be objective facts presented that create a significant question regarding the validity of the affidavit or declaration which, if successfully pursued, will impeach the foundational basis of the affidavit or declaration in question [St. Mary Medical Center v. Superior Court (1997) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1531, 1540-1541 (cautioning that this process should not be used to turn summary proceedings into mini-trials)]. For discussion of continuances, see § 537.36.

An expert's opinion must be based on admissible evidence [Garibay v. Hemmatt (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 735, 743 (expert's opinion inadmissible to establish material fact if opinion based on hearsay with no foundation made to establish an exception to the hearsay rule)]. For additional discussion of the requirements for an expert opinion as evidence in a summary judgment motion, see §§ 537.24[1][b], 537.24[1][c], 537.25[3][b],

§ 537.31 Hearing Requirement

Code Civ. Proc. § 437c has been interpreted to require an oral hearing at which time counsel has the opportunity to persuade the court and respond to inquires. This means more than posting a ruling on a locked courtroom door or telephoning litigants with a decision. A "hearing" on summary judgment involves the contemporaneous presence (whether in person or electronically) of the parties and the judge. While judges retain considerable discretion regarding how the hearing is to be conducted, including imposing time limits and adopting tentative ruling procedures [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1308], they cannot do away with oral argument altogether [Brannon v. Superior Court (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 1203,1208-1212, 8 Cal Rptr. 3d 491 ; Mediterranean Construction Co. v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 257, 259-260, 265, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 781 . Various court rules regarding hearings, such as Cal Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1304, 3.1310, also show an intent to allow for oral hearings. While litigants are not given the right to present testimony at such hearings, there are no restrictions against oral argument [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1306; Mediterranean Construction Co. v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 257, 263, 265, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 781].

Despite the appearance of a fairness issue when the trial court fails to allow oral argument, the court of appeal may decline to reverse on that ground when it decides on the merits of the parties arguments that the trial court correctly entered judgment, as the reversal would serve no useful purpose [Victor v. Hedges (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 229, 244-245, 245 n.18, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 466]. It is questionable whether Victor is still good law on this point after Brannon v. Superior Court (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 1203, 1208-1212, 8 Cal Rptr. 3d 491 . Brannon did not specifically address whether a court of appeal may decline to reverse based on the failure to allow oral argument, but the Brannon court did appear to hold that there is an absolute right to oral argument in summary judgment motions. Until the California Supreme Court rules on this issue, it can still be considered an open question.

§ 537.32 Trial Court Cannot Delegate Responsibility to Rule on Motion Absent Consent

Parties on each side of a dispositive motion are entitled to have the issues fully considered and resolved by the trial court and, in the absence of a proper stipulation, the responsibility to decide cannot be delegated irrespective of the burdens imposed by the court's pending caseload [Jovine v. FHP, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1506, 1509, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 322]. The court does not have authority to order a nonconsensual reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 639 for the purpose of hearing and determining summary judgment motions [Jovine v. FHP, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1506, 1522-1525, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 322]. § 537.33 Standard for Granting Summary Judgment

[1] No Triable Issue and Moving Party Entitled to Judgment

A plaintiff may move for summary judgment if he or she contends that there is no defense to the action; a defendant may move for summary judgment if he or she contends that the plaintiff's action has no merit [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a)]. A cause of action has no merit if either of the following exists [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(o)]:

- One or more of the elements of the cause of action cannot be separately established, even if that element is separately pleaded.
- A defendant establishes an affirmative defense to that cause of action.

A court shall grant a motion for summary judgment if all the papers submitted show both of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(c)]:

- There is no triable issue as to any material fact.
- The moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.

Whether there is a triable issue of material fact does not turn on the trial court's discretion [Fretland v. County of Humboldt (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1478, 1490, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359]. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(c), a trial court is required to grant summary judgment if all the papers and affidavits submitted, together with all inferences reasonably deducible from the evidence and uncontradicted by other inferences or evidence, show that there is no triable issue as to any material fact and that the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law [Sangster v. Paetkau (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 151, 161, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 66 ; see Fretland v. County of Humboldt (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1478, 1490, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359]. There is a triable issue of material fact only if the evidence would allow a reasonable trier of fact to find the underlying fact in favor of the party opposing the motion [Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 850, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493].

The trial court's function in ruling on the motion is merely to determine whether such issues of fact exist, not to decide the merits of the issues themselves [Furla v. Jon Douglas Co. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1069, 1076-1077, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 911 ; see City of Santa Cruz v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 1167, 1188, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 198 ; see also Binder v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 832, 839, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 540 (only when inferences are indisputable may court decide issues as matter of law)]. The court must consider the bare evidence and reasonable inferences deducible from the evidence and determine whether the evidence is sufficient to support a potential judgment in favor of the opposing party [Binder v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 832, 840]. The court seeks to find contradictions in the evidence, or in inferences reasonably deducible from the evidence, that raise a triable issue of material fact [Oliver v. County of Los Angeles (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1403, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 641].

Whether or not a disputed fact is "material" is determined by the law applicable to the legal theories put in issue by the complaint [see Anderson v. Heart Federal Sav. & Loan Assn. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 202, 210, 256 Cal. Rptr. 180 ; see also Kelly v. First Astri Corp. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 462, 470, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810 (fact to be material must relate to a claim or defense that is in issue and must alsobe somehow necessary to judgment)]. For further discussion of what constitutes a material fact, see §§ 537.21[3] and 537.25[2].

If the trial court determines that no triable issue of fact exists but only one of law, it is the trial court's duty to determine the issue of law [Monteleone v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 509, 514 ; accord Aloha Pacific, Inc. v. California Ins. Guarantee Assn. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 297, 307, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148 ; Armato v. Baden (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 885, 893, 84 Cal. Rptr 2d 294].

If a defendant's declarations in support of a motion for summary judgment demonstrate the absence of an essential element of plaintiff's case, and plaintiff's declarations submitted in reply do not show that a triable issue of fact exists with respect to that essential element, no amount of factual conflicts on other aspects of the case will affect the result, and the motion for summary judgment should be granted [see Armato v. Baden (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 885, 893, 84 Cal. Rptr 2d 294].

The trial courts and appellate courts use the same three-step analysis to determine if summary judgment is warranted [see, e.g., Padgett v. Phariss (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1270, 1278-1279, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 373 ; Ojavan Investors, Inc. v. California Coastal Com. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 373, 385, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 803 ; Allyson v. Department of Transportation (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 1304, 1317, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 490 ; for a statement of this three-step analysis, see § 537.43[2][b]].

For forms of order granting summary judgment, see §§ 537.81 -537.83.

[2] Evaluation of Evidence to Determine if Triable Issues Exist

[a] All Evidence in Papers Generally Considered

In determining whether a triable issue of material fact exists, the court is required to consider all the evidence set forth in the papers, except that to which objections have been made and sustained by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(c); Tchorbadjian v. Western Home Ins. Co. (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 1211, 1217, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370 ; see also § 537.25[4]]. The court is also required to consider all inferences reasonably deducible from that evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(c); Assad v. Southern Pacific Transportation Co. (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1609, 1612, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 443 ; Tchorbadjian v. Western Home Ins. Co. (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 1211, 1217, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370 ; Sanchez v. Swinerton & Walberg (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 1465, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 415 (court must consider presumptions and draw inferences from facts adduced when an inference is the only reasonable one that may be drawn); accord Murillo v. Rite Stuff Foods, Inc. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 833, 841, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12 but see § 537.34[4][a], below]. The court must therefore consider what inferences favoring the opposing party a factfinder could reasonably draw from the evidence [Binder v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 832, 839, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 540]. However, in the antitrust context an inference that implies conduct equally favoring either party's contentions, without more, is not enough to amount to a triable issue of fact [Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 852, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493].

On the other hand, the trial court may not weigh the evidence in the manner of a factfinder to determine whose version is more likely true. Nor may the trial court grant summary judgment based on the court's evaluation of credibility. Moreover, a trial court may not grant summary judgment for a defendant simply on its opinion that plaintiff's claims are "implausible," if a reasonable factfinder could find for plaintiff on the evidence presented [Binder v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 832, 840, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 540]. The court has no power in a summary proceeding to weigh one inference against another or against other evidence [Murillo v. Rite Stuff Foods, Inc. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 833, 841, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12 ; Sanchez v. Swinerton & Walberg Co. (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 1465-1466, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 415]. Moreover, an assertion based solely on conjecture or speculation is insufficient to avoid summary judgment [Sanchez v. Swinerton & Walberg Co. (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 1466, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 415].

The court strictly construes the moving party's evidence and liberally construes the opposing party's evidence [Swat-Fame, Inc. v. Goldstein (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 613, 622, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 556 ; City of Vista v. Robert Thomas Securities, Inc. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 882, 886, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 237 ; accord Binder v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 832, 838, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 540 ; see also discussion in § 537.33[2][f]].

The court accepts as undisputed facts only those portions of the moving party's evidence that are not contradicted by the opposing party's evidence, that is, the facts alleged in the opposing party's evidence and the reasonable inferences therefrom must be accepted as true [Kelsey v. Waste Management of Alameda County (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 590, 594, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 510 ; accord Depew v. Crocodile Enterprises, Inc. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 480, 485, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 673 ; see City of Santa Cruz v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 1167, 1176, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 198]. Any doubts concerning the propriety of granting the motion must be resolved in favor of the party opposing the motion [PMC, Inc. v. Saban Entertainment, Inc. (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 579, 590, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 877 ; Tchorbadjian v. Western Home Ins. Co. (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 1211, 1217, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370 ; City of Santa Cruz v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 1167, 1176, 1188, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 198].

When a motion for summary judgment is made in a case in which the plaintiff's claim carries a clear and convincing burden of proof, the evidence and all inferences that can reasonably be drawn therefrom must meet the higher standard [Rowe v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1711, 1724, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d625]; see also Reader's Digest Assn. v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 244, 252, 208 Cal. Rptr. 137, 690 P.2d 610 .

CAUTION:

Waived Objections. Objections to the evidence cannot be made for the first time on appeal [see discussion in § 537.43[3][c]]. Preferably objections to the evidence should be made in writing before the hearing [see § 537.25[4], and § 537.27[1]]. Any objections not already made in the opposing or reply papers must, however, be made at the hearing itself.

If the moving party is otherwise entitled to summary judgment, the court may generally not deny the motion on grounds of credibility or for want of cross-examination of witnesses who furnish affidavits or declarations in support of the motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(e); for discussion of exceptions to this rule, see § 537.34[1]].

[b] Moving Party's Initial Burden of Persuasion and/or Production

[i] Plaintiff or Cross Complainant

When the moving party is a plaintiff or cross complainant, he or she has the burden of proving each element of the cause of action entitling him or her to judgment on that cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(p)(1); see San Diego Unified Port Dist. v. Gallagher (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 501, 503, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 30 (plaintiff must produce admissible evidence of each element of the cause of action entitling the party to judgment on that cause); see also Federal Deposit Ins. Corp. v. Superior Court (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 337, 345, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 713 (on summary adjudication motion, plaintiff or cross complainant must show there is no material factual dispute with respect to one or more causes of action to prevail)]. In other words, that moving party must show, on the basis of his or her own affidavits and the admissions of the opposing party, every legal element necessary to sustain judgment in his or her favor [Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 111, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561 (decided under prior law); Harman v. Mono General Hospital (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 607, 613, 182 Cal. Rptr. 570 (decided under prior law; unopposed motion must still meet initial burden); see Union Bank v. Superior Court (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 573, 585, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 653 (dicta in discussion of legislative history in case involving defendant's burden of proof)].

The Supreme Court has characterized the moving party's burden on summary judgment as more properly one of persuasion rather than of proof, since he or she must persuade the court that there is no material fact for a reasonable trier of fact to find, and not prove any such fact to the satisfaction of the court itself as though it were sitting as the trier of fact [Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 850, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493]. The party moving for summary judgment bears an initial burden of production to make a prima facie showing of the nonexistence of any triable issue of material fact; if he or she carries this burden of production, the moving party causes a shift, and the opposing party is then subjected to a burden of production to make a prima facie showing of the existence of a triable issue of material fact [Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 850-851, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493].

ILLUSTRATION:

Burden Despite Lack of Opposition. The opposing party fails to file a counter affidavit. Does this relieve the moving party of the burden of establishing evidentiary facts of every element necessary to entitle him or her to judgment? No [see Vesely v. Sager (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 153, 169, 95 Cal. Rptr. 623, 486 P.2d 151 , disapproved on other grounds in Strang v. Cabrol (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 720, 724, 209 Cal. Rptr. 347, 691 P.2d 1013 ; see also Rubenstein v. Rubenstein (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1131, 1151-1152, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 707 (moving defendant not entitled to summary judgment despite plaintiff's failure to file proper opposing separate statement and untimeliness of opposition papers because defendant did not meet burden of establishing right to relief defendant sought; until defendant met burden, plaintiff had no burden to produce opposing evidence)]. When no affidavits or declarations are filed in opposition to a motion for summary judgment, however, the court is entitled to accept as true the facts alleged in the movant's affidavits and declarations, provided they are within the personal knowledge of the affiant or declarant and are facts to which he or she could competently testify [Lyons v. Security Pacific Nat. Bank (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1001, 1014, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 174 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (use of declarations)].

[ii] Defendant or Cross Defendant

When the moving party is a defendant or cross defendant, he or she has the burden of showing either of the following [

Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(p)(2)]:

- That one or more elements of the cause of action, even if not separately pleaded, cannot be established.

- There is a complete defense to that cause of action or a defense to it.

The defendant by establishing either of the above has met his or her burden of showing that a cause of action has no merit [Green v. Ralee Engineering Co. (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 66, 72, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16, 960 P.2d 1046].

The defendant must show that under no possible hypothesis within the reasonable purview of the allegations contained in the complaint is there a material question of fact that requires examination by trial. The moving defendant bears the burden of proving the absence of any triable issue of material fact even though the plaintiff has the burden of proof as to that particular issue at trial. Thedefendant, however, need only demonstrate the absence of a triable issue of material fact as to those bases of liability the plaintiff has pleaded [Sanchez v. Swinerton & Walberg Co. (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 1465, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 415 ; see Jacobs v. Universal Development Corp. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 692, 697-698 ; 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 446 ; see also Binder v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 832, 839, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 540 (even though plaintiff bears burden of proof at trial, moving defendant bears initial burden of showing lack of any triable factual issue); Government Employees Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 95, 98 n.4, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 820 (defendant moving for summary judgment need address only issues raised by complaint; plaintiff cannot bring up new, unpleaded issues in his or her opposition papers); Tsemetzin v. Coast Federal Savings & Loan Assn. (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 1334, 1342, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726 (moving defendant need not refute liability on some theoretical possibility not included in pleadings)].

If a plaintiff pleads several theories, the defendant has the burden of demonstrating there are no material facts requiring trial on any of them. The moving defendant whose declarations omit facts as to any theory permits that portion of the complaint to be unchallenged. Even if no opposition is presented, the moving party still has the burden of eliminating all triable issues of fact [Wright v. Stang Manufacturing Co. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1218, 1228, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 422 ; see also Juarez v. Boy Scouts of America, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 377, 397, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12 (defendant is not entitled to summary judgment unless defendant negates all theories of liability pleaded by plaintiff); Campbell v. Derylo (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 823, 826, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 519 (moving party bears burden of proving that claims of adverse party are entirely without merit on any legal theory)]. A responding plaintiff has no evidentiary burden unless the moving defendant has first met its initial burden [Binder v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 832, 840, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 540 ; see also Rubenstein v. Rubenstein (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1131, 1151-1152, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 707 (until moving defendant met its initial burden, plaintiff had no burden to produce opposing evidence); Thatcher v. Lucky Stores, Inc. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1085-1086, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 575 (moving party must meet its initial burden of proof before court grants summary judgment, even in absence of opposition)]. Only if the defendant makes the requisite showing does the court need to examine plaintiff's opposing papers to determine if they demonstrate the existence of a triable issue of material fact [Salazar v. Southern Cal. Gas Co. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1370, 1376, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 522 ; Binder v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 832, 840, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 540].

When a defendant moves for summary judgment based on the plaintiff's inability to establish one or more elements of the cause of action, the defendant does not need to conclusively negate an element of the plaintiff's cause of action. It is enough for the defendant to show that one or more elements of the cause of action cannot be established [Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 853-854, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493 ; Saelzler v. Advanced Group 400 (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 763, 767-769, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617, 23 P.3d 1143]. For discussion, see § 537.33[2][d] et seq.

The burden on a defendant moving for summary judgment based on the assertion of an affirmative defense is heavier than the burden to show that one or more elements of plaintiff's action cannot be established [Anderson v. Metalclad

Insulation Corp. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 284, 289-290, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 331]. Instead of merely submitting evidence to negate a single element of plaintiff's cause of action, or offering evidence, such as vague or insufficient discovery responses, that the plaintiff does not have evidence to create an issue of fact as to one or more elements of his or her case, the defendant has the initial burden to show that undisputed facts support each element of the affirmative defense [Anderson v. Metalclad Insulation Corp. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 284, 289-290, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 331 ; see Bacon v. Southern Edison Co. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 854, 858, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16] . If the defendant does not meet this burden, the motion must be denied. Only if the defendant meets this burden does the burden shift to plaintiff to show an issue of fact concerning at least one element of the defense [Anderson v. Metalclad Insulation Corp. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 284, 289-290, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 331 ; see Huynh v. Ingersoll-Rand (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 825, 830, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 296]. Moreover, if, in anticipation of an affirmative defense, the complaint alleges facts to refute it, the pleadings themselves create a material issue that defendant would have to refute to obtain summary judgment [Bacon v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 854, 858, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16].

[c] Shift of Burden to Opposing Party

Once the moving party presents evidence sufficient to sustain judgment in his or her favor, the burden then shifts to the opposing party to show that a triable issue of one or more material facts exists as to the cause of action or a defense to it [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(p)(1), (2); see Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 850, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493 (burden on opposing party best described as a burden of production of evidence to make a prima facie showing of the existence of a triable issue of material fact); Green v. Ralee Engineering Co. (1998) 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16, 960 P.2d 1046 (once defendant meets its burden, burden shifts to plaintiff to show that a triable issue of one or more material facts exists as to cause of action or a defense to it); Weseloh Family Ltd. Partnership v. K.L. Wessel Const. Co. (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 152, 162, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 660 (in professional negligence case, defendants met burden of showing they owed no duty of care to plaintiff; burden then shifted to plaintiff to show either that such a duty existed or that there wasa triable issue of material fact relevant to the determination of the duty issue); Wagner v. City of South Pasadena (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 943, 947, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 91 (once defendant's burden is met, burden shifts to plaintiff to show triable issue of fact exists; plaintiff must set forth specific facts showing triable issue of material facts exist); Shapiro v. Sutherland (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1534, 1543, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101 (when defendant meets its burden, burden of proof shifts to plaintiff to show by responsive separate statement and admissible evidence that triable issues of fact exists)].

The opposing party has no burden to present opposing evidence when the moving party fails to meet the initial burden [see Weber v. John Crane, Inc. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1433, 1442, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 71 ; Scheiding v. Dinwiddie Construction Co. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 64, 83-84, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360 ; Pepperell v. Scottsdale Ins. Co. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1045, 1054, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 164 ; Quintilliani v. Mannerino (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 54, 59-60, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359 ; Bacon v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 854, 858, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16 ; Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 111, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561 (decided under prior law)]. Although Code Civ. Proc. § 437c was substantively amended in 1992 and 1993, the initial burden of proof remains with moving party. Prior to adoption of the 1992 amendment, there was no obligation on the opposing party to show that a triable issue of material fact existed unless and until the moving party had met its burden, and nothing in language of 1992 adoption of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(n)(2) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(p)(2)) abrogates this well established summary judgment requirement that initial burden rests with moving party [Quintilliani v. Mannerino (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 54, 59-60, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359 ; see Scheiding v. Dinwiddie Construction Co. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 64, 70-71, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360 (amendments did not change fundamental requirement that moving party prove its right to summary judgment; amended section 437c, like Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 56, now places initial burden on moving party)]. Thus, for example, if a moving defendant's showing does not support judgment in the defendant's favor, the burden does not shift to the plaintiff and the motion must be denied without regard to the plaintiff's showing [Crouse v. Brobeck, Phleger & Harrison (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1509, 1534-1535, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 94 (in legal malpractice action, when defendants produced no expert testimony negating duty of care or breach of duty elements of plaintiff's cause of action, defendants' motion for summary judgment should have been denied even though plaintiff did not produce expert testimony)].

In meeting its burden of proof, the opposing party may not rely on the mere allegations or denials of his or her pleadings to show that a triable issue of fact exists but, instead, must set forth the specific facts showing that a triable issue of material fact exists as to that cause of action or a defense to it [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(p)(1), (2); see Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 850, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493 ; Eisenberg v. Alameda Newspapers, Inc. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1359, 1375, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 802 ; Regents of University of California v. Superior Court (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1040, 1044, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 922 ; see also Scheiding v. Dinwiddie Construction Co. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 64, 69, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360 ; Sangster v. Paetkau (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 151, 162, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 66 ; Bacon v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 854, 858, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16].

The opposing party is only required to show the existence of a triable issue of fact, not demonstrate its ability to prevail at trial [Del E. Webb Corp. v. Structural Materials Co. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 593, 608, 176 Cal. Rptr. 824 ; see Padgett v. Phariss (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1270, 1279, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 373 ; Carleton v. Tortosa (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 745, 752-753, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 734]. On the other hand, he or she cannot rely on contradictions in his or her own opposing evidence to create a triable issue [State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Eastman (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 562, 573, 204 Cal. Rptr. 827 .]

The opposing party cannot defeat summary judgment by attempting to raise a factual dispute as to immaterial issues [Ramero v. American President Lines, Ltd. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1199, 1202-1203, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 421]. A summary judgment motion will not be defeated by the presence of a factual dispute unless the fact in dispute is material [Romero v. American President Lines, Ltd. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1199, 1202-1203, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 421], that is, it relates to a claim or defense in issue which could make a difference in the outcome [Los Angeles Nat. Bank v. Bank of Canton (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1267, 1274, 280 Cal. Rptr 831 ; see also § 537.21[3], for what constitutes material facts]. Thus, papers filed in response to the defendant's motion for summary judgment may not create an issue outside the pleadings and are not a substitute for an amendment to the pleadings [Laabs v. City of Victorville (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1242, 1253, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 372 ; Sutherland v. Barclays American/Mortgage Corp. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 299, 317, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 614 ; Nash v. Fifth Amendment (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1106, 1116, 279 Cal. Rptr. 465 ; see also Government Employees Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 95, 98 n.4, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 820 (plaintiff cannot bring up new, unpleaded issues in his or her opposition papers); Hobson v. Raychem Corp. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 614, 629, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 497 (plaintiff cannot successfully resist summary judgment on theory which is not pleaded in complaint); Allyson v. Department of Transportation (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 1304, 1318-1321, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 490 (summary judgment granted in defendant's favor when none of plaintiff's extensive filings in opposition even remotely addressed the dispositive issue framed by the pleadings; plaintiff's filings all addressed nonissues)].

[d] Showing Required to Shift Burden of Production

[i] Move Toward Federal Standard

The addition of subdivision (n) to Code Civ. Proc. § 437c, effective January 1,1993, codified the burden of persuasion and production in summary proceedings [see Stats. 1992, ch. 1348]. Now relettered as Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(p), it appears to abrogate inconsistent prior case law, for example, requiring a moving party plaintiff to negate any applicable affirmative defenses before the burden shifted to the defendant to raise a triable issue of material fact [Oldcastle Precast, Inc. v. Lumbermens Mut. Cas. Co. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 554, 564-565, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 363 ; see Nymark v. Heart Fed. Savings & Loan Assn. (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1089, 1095, 283 Cal. Rptr. 53]. Counsel should exercise caution in citing cases decided under prior law, especially those that hold the moving party to a more stringent initial showing than that now required under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(p).

Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(p) moves California summary judgment law closer to the federal standard under Fed. R. Civ. Proc., Rule 56, as interpreted by the United States Supreme Court in Celotex Corp. v. Catrett (1986) 477 U.S. 317, 325, 106 S. Ct. 2548, 91 L. Ed. 2d 265 [Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 847-848, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493].

Under the federal standard governing burden of proof on summary judgment motions, although a moving party always initially bears the burden of establishing there is an absence of genuine issue of material fact, when the nonmoving party bears the burden of proof on an issue at trial the moving party need not support its summary judgment motion with evidence negating an essential element of the nonmoving party's case to satisfy its burden. Rather, the moving party may simply point to the absence of evidence to support the nonmoving party's case. The nonmoving party must then set forth specific facts by affidavits, declarations, or admissible discovery material showing that there is a genuine issue for trial [Hunter v. Pacific Mechanical Corp. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1282, 1286, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 335 (citing federal authority); but cf. Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 855, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493 (disapproving Hunter language to effect that moving defendant could satisfy burden simply by pointing out absence of evidence to support an element of plaintiff's action); see also Scheiding v. Dinwiddie Construction Co. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 64, 71-72, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360 (under federal law, moving party has been permitted to simply assert absence of evidence to support claim in order to shift burden to opposing party)].

Although the 1993 amendment was not a "wholesale adoption" of the federal system, as in the federal the parties' burden of persuasion and/or production on summary judgment is dependent on their burden of proofat trial [Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 851 n.15, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493 ; see also Scheiding v. Dinwiddie Construction Co. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 64, 71, 75, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360 (1992 and 1993 amendments did not change fundamental requirement that moving party prove its right to summary judgment, but did adopt federal mechanism of burden shifting; unlike federal rule, however, California procedure requires moving party to support motion with evidence)].

For discussion of differences between the federal and state standards, see § 537.33[2][d][ii].

[ii] Showing Required on Defendant's Motion

[A] When Element of Plaintiff's Cause of Action Lacking

The burden-shifting characteristics of the federal procedure are to be applied to California summary judgment motions so that a moving defendant may rely on factually devoid discovery responses to shift the burden of production pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(p)(2) [Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 853-854, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493 ; see also Union Bank v. Superior Court (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 573, 590, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 653 ; Andrews v. Foster Wheeler, LLC (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 96, 101, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229]. Once the burden shifts as a result of the factually devoid discovery responses, the plaintiff must set forth specific facts which prove the existence of a triable issue of material fact [Hunter v. Pacific Mechanical Corp. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1282, 1287-1289, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 335 ; Union Bank v. Superior Court (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 573, 590, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 653)]. Thus, the burden to show that there is a triable issue of material fact is placed on the party that bears the burden of proof for that fact at trial [Hunter v. Pacific Mechanical Corp. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1282, 1287, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 335].

Under this view, a moving defendant has two ways to shift the burden of proof under Civ. Proc. § 437c(p)(2) to the plaintiff to produce a triable issue of fact [Brantley v. Pisaro (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1591, 1597-1598, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 431]:

- In accordance with the holding in Union Bank, a defendant may rely on a plaintiff's factually insufficient discovery responses to show that a plaintiff cannot establish an essential element of the plaintiff's cause of action.

- Alternatively, the defendant may use the tried and true technique of negating an essential element in the plaintiff's cause of action.

The California Supreme Court has rejected the view that a moving defendant may shift the burden simply by suggesting the possibility that the plaintiff cannot prove his or her case [Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493 ,]. The Court has held that Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(p)(2) requires a defendant to show by evidence and not mere argument that one or more elements ofthe cause of action cannot be established. A defendant must make an affirmative showing. A defendant, although not required to conclusively negate an element in the plaintiff's case, must produce direct or circumstantial evidence that the plaintiff does not possess, and cannot reasonably expect to obtain, a prima facie case. When the defendant makes such a showing, the burden of production to make a prima facie case shifts to the plaintiff [Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 853-855, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493].

A defendant must do more than merely point out that there is an absence of evidence and must produce affirmative evidence to show that the plaintiff cannot establish a prima facie case [Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 854, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493 ; see Scheiding v. Dinwiddie Construction Co. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 64, 81, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360]. The defendant may achieve this by, for example, pointing to admissions by the plaintiff following extensive discovery to the effect that the plaintiff has discovered nothing [Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001)25 Cal. 4th 826, 854-855, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493 ; see Golden Eagle Refinery Co., Inc. v. Associated Intern. Ins. Co. (2001) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1300 (defense granted summary adjudication on cause of action for clean up costs of groundwater contamination where lack of evidence on damages shown by plaintiff's interrogatory responses admitting it was unable to attribute damages to any particular cause, event, or time)]. The defendant may also produce affirmative evidence that an element of a cause of action cannot be established by showing after extensive discovery that one of the plaintiff's elements is based on mere speculation Saelzler v. Advanced Group 400 (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 763, 780-781 (plaintiff sued the owners of an apartment complex after she was criminally assaulted on the premises and claimed that defendant's failure to take proper security precautions was the proximate cause of her damages; motion for summary judgment granted because plaintiff was unable to provide evidence of causation since she had no evidence showing the identity of her assailants, whether they were trespassers or tenants, whether the security gate was broken, or whether defendant could reasonably have warned the public of unspecified dangers from unknown assailants; declaration of plaintiff's security expert based on same evidence was equally speculative since he equally unaware of assailants' identities and his opinion regarding causation was too tenuous to create a triable issue)].

Unlike the federal rule, California procedure requires the moving party to support the motion with evidence. Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(c), (p)(2) implies a need for concrete evidence from the moving party and expressly requires the moving party to supply more than bare assertions, whether alleged in a pleading or by way of argument, that the opposing party has no evidence to support a particular claim [Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 854, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493 , approving Union Bank v. Superior Court (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 573, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 653]. The court in Scheiding v. Dinwiddie Construction Co. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 64, 81, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360 attempted to reconcile cases that addressed the required showing prior to Aguilar. The Scheiding court pointed out that Union Bank v. Superior Court (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 573, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 653 declined to describe the extent to which the Legislature in its amendments may have adopted (or even understood) the test in Celotex Corp v. Catrett (1986) 477 U.S. 317, 106 S. Ct. 2548, 91 L. Ed. 2d 265 . How, then, was the Union Bank opinion able to characterize the plaintiff's interrogatory answers which contained no facts supporting the existence of misrepresentations or a fraudulent conspiracy, as the affirmative evidence required by the statute to shift the burden of proof in connection with the summary judgment? The court concluded it could do so by inferring from the plaintiffs' discovery answers that there was no further evidence to oppose the motion. Because the Civil Discovery Act of 1986 [Code Civ. Proc. § 2016 et seq.; see now Civil Discovery Act (Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.010 et seq. operative July 1, 2005)] imposed on the Union Bank plaintiffs a duty to answer interrogatories as completely as possible, given the information available to them, the Union Bank court could presume that the plaintiffs had answered "fully and truthfully," and could infer that they had no other evidence to support their claims. The plaintiffs had not asked for a continuance to obtain further evidence.

Plaintiffs in that case responded to discovery in two ways: by making an admission damaging to their case and also by stating their "belief" that evidence supporting their claims would be later revealed. Later cases, including Hunter v. Pacific Mechanical Corp. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1282, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 335 (First Dist., Div. Two) , have concluded that the later category of "empty" discovery response can be enough by themselves to support summary judgment. Hunter upheld summary judgment granted in an asbestos case on the issue of causation because the plaintiff's deposition responses failed to tie the defendant to any jobsite where alleged asbestos exposure occurred. The inference drawn by the Hunter court was an extension of the one which supported the court's conclusion in the Union Bank case: since the plaintiff had a statutory duty to respond fully, plaintiff's "factually devoid" answers showed plaintiff had no facts [Scheiding v. Dinwiddie Construction Co. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 64, 71-80, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360 .]

Scheiding noted that both Union Bank and Hunter spoke of a defendant no longer needing to affirmatively negate an element of the plaintiff's case and both relied on the Civil Discovery Act of 1986 to infer an absence of evidence. Neither case, however, held that a moving party can simply argue or allege that the opposing party has no evidence and no California case has concluded that a party moving for summary judgment can simply argue there is an absence of facts to support the opposing party's case. The cases that have read the statutory amendments much less expansively than did the Union Bank and Hunter opinions generally look beyond themere absence of evidence and ask whether, given the particular circumstances of the case, "factually devoid" discovery responses should be held against the plaintiff. Noting that it may not be fair to say there is an opposing minority view contrary to the logic of Union Bank as extended by Hunter, the court stated that Hagen v. Hickenbottom (1995) 41 Cal. App. 4th 168,186 , which is often cited for its criticism of the expansive boundary delineated by Hunter actually argues caution more than disagreement. The Hagen court noted in part that (1) a defendant must make an affirmative showing in support of plaintiff's motion which showing connotes something significantly more than simply pointing out to the court that there is an absence of evidence, and (2) before the burden of producing even a prima facie case should be shifted to the plaintiff in advance of trial, a defendant who cannot negate an element of the plaintiff's case should be required to produce direct or circumstantial evidence that the plaintiff not only does not have but cannot reasonably expect to obtain a prima facie case. The Scheiding court concluded that it agreed with Hunter that the circumstantial evidence which would be required by Hagen can consist of "factually devoid" discovery responses from which an absence of evidence can be inferred. The court also agreed with the view in Hagen that the burden should not shift without stringent review of the direct, circumstantial and inferential evidence. Reconciliation of the two views is not difficult once the inferential reasoning expressly permitted by Code Civ. Proc. § 437c is considered. However, the court did not decide whether the more cautious view is the better one for the trial court's ruling was incorrect even under the more circumspect approach. In Scheiding, the motion was supported by a declaration of counsel stating that plaintiff's responses to discovery did not mention the defendant. However, the defendant conducted no discovery. In plaintiff's deposition, plaintiff was not asked a single question concerning the defendant. The duty to answer completely only extended so far as the reasonable ambit of the questions asked. The plaintiff had no duty to volunteer information that was not requested. Although summary judgment is more obtainable under the amended statute, the initial burden of producing evidence expressly resides with the moving party and cannot be shifted without the "evidence and inferences" described in the statute. Defendant's motion, unlike the motions in Union Bank and Hunter, relied on argument rather than on evidence. This was insufficient to support a reasonable inference that plaintiffs could not produce further evidence to support an element crucial to their claims [Scheiding v. Dinwiddie Construction Co. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 64, 67, 80-84, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360 ; see also Weber v. John Crane, Inc. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1433, 1442, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 71 (in asbestos exposure case, plaintiff's deposition testimony to the effect that he was unable to recall working with defendant's products did not permit an inference that plaintiff neither possessed, nor reasonably could obtain, evidence that plaintiff was exposed to defendant's products and therefore burden did not shift to plaintiff); Gulf Ins. Co. v. Berger, Kahn, Shafton, Moss, Figler, Simon & Gladstone (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 114, 133-136, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534 (following Scheiding plaintiff's nonresponsive answer to interrogatory did not constitute "factually devoid" discovery to shift burden to plaintiff on question of causation of plaintiff's damages, since discovery did not call for information on that subject, or for other information from which information on that subject could be deduced)].

In any event, the method for establishing a prima facie entitlement to summary judgment requires the moving party to demonstrate a negative, that is, that there is no evidence to support an element of the opponent'scase [Rio Linda Unified School Dist. v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 732, 735, 735 n.1, 739-740, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 710 (citing Union Bank v. Superior Court (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 573, 590, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 653 , for how prima facie case may be proved, and declining to reach the issue of whether the strict standard of Addy v. Bliss & Glennon (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 205, 214, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 642 , is correct)]. This is akin to the burden of an appellant in proving there is no substantial evidence in support of a judgment. It is incumbent on an appellant who claims evidentiary insufficiency to set forth the evidence supporting the judgment and indicate wherein it is insufficient. If a party contends some particular issue of fact has no support in the record, it must set forth all the material evidence on the point and not merely the evidence favorable to it [Rio Linda Unified School Dist. v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 732, 739-740, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 710]. Thus, on a summary judgment motion in a personal injury action, the defendant was required to include portions of depositions in which parents recounted the purported identification by the real party of the cause of his injury. To have omitted these facts would have put defendant at risk of the accusation of an attempt to mislead the trial court as to the state of the discovery record. Moreover, a moving party's reference to inadmissible evidence in its statement of undisputed facts does not waive a contemporaneously raised objection to that evidence in the accompanying points and authorities [Rio Linda Unified School Dist. v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 732, 735, 740, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 710 (opposing party never asserted in trial court that moving party waived its objection to the evidence and appellate court found no factual basis for imposing doctrine of waiver under circumstances)].

Also, although a plaintiff who has pleaded several causes of action based on the same set of facts need only sustain its burden on one theory to prevail at trial, a defendant who seeks summary judgment must define all of the theories alleged in the complaint and challenge each factually. A defendant as the moving party has the burden to show it is entitled to judgment on all theories of liability asserted by the plaintiff [see Lopez v. Superior Court (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 705, 713-714, 717, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 821].

If the defendant claims that the plaintiff cannot establish the cause of action pled because the defendant's affirmative evidence discloses facts that negate the existence of an essential element of the plaintiff's claim by proving the contrary is true, the court should evaluate the defendant's evidence under the same strictstandards which were held to apply to a defendant's attempt to disprove an element of the plaintiff's cause of action before the 1992 and 1993 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 437c, in order to avoid unjustly depriving the plaintiff of a trial [Tibor v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1359, 1368, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 326].

[B] For Affirmative Defense

The burden on a defendant moving for summary judgment based on the assertion of an affirmative defense is heavier than the burden to show oneor more elements of plaintiff's action cannot be established. Instead of merely submitting evidence to negate a single element of plaintiff's cause of action, or offering evidence, such as vague or insufficient discovery responses, that the plaintiff does not have evidence to create an issue of fact as to one or more elements of his or her case, the defendant has the initial burden to show that undisputed facts support each element of the affirmative defense. The defendant must demonstrate that under no hypothesis is there a material factual issue requiring trial. If the defendant does not meet this burden, the motion must be denied. Only if the defendant meets this burden does the burden shift to plaintiff to show an issue of fact concerning at least one element of the defense [Anderson v. Metalclad Insulation Corp. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 284, 289-290, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 331]. Even if the plaintiff admits during discovery that it has no evidence to dispute the applicability of an affirmative defense, the moving defendant has the initial burden to show that undisputed facts support each element of the affirmative defense [Consumer Cause, Inc. v. SmileCare (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 454, 467-468, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 627 (order granting defendant's motion reversed since based on plaintiff's statement and defendant did not prove undisputed facts for each element)].

The submission of evidence which is equivocal, or from which conflicting inferences may be drawn is insufficient to meet the movant's burden [Anderson v. Metalclad Insulation Corp. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 284, 297, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 331].

[e] Effect of Heightened Burden of Proof

When a motion for summary judgment is made in a case in which the plaintiff's claim carries a clear and convincing burden of proof, the evidence and all inferences that can reasonably be drawn therefrom must meet the higher standard [Rowe v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1711, 1724, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 625 ; see also Basich v. Allstate Insurance Co. (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 1112, 1121, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 153 ; Reader's Digest Assn. v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 244, 252, 208 Cal. Rptr. 137, 690 P.2d 610].

[f] Construction of Affidavits and Declarations

In determining whether the parties have met their respective burdens of proof, courts construe the affidavits or declarations of the moving party strictly, resolving any doubts in the opposing party's favor [Miller v. Bechtel Corp. (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 868, 874, 191 Cal. Rptr. 619, 663 P.2d 177 ; Pender v. Radin (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1807, 1813, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36 ; see Cortez v. Vogt (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 917, 925-926, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841 ; see also Salazar v. Southern Cal. Gas Co. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1370, 1376, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 522 (moving party's papers strictly construed, accepting as fact only those portions not contradicted by opposing papers)]. By contrast, they construe the affidavits or declarations of the opposing partyliberally, resolving any doubts in favor of the party opposing the motion [Miller v. Bechtel Corp. (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 868, 874, 191 Cal. Rptr. 619, 663 P.2d 177 ; Pender v. Radin (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1807, 1813, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36 ; see Cortez v. Vogt (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 917, 925-926, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841 ; see also Brown v. FSR Brokerage, Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 766, 773, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 828 (papers in opposition construed more liberally; doubts resolved against granting motion); Salazar v. Southern Cal. Gas Co. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1370, 1376, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 522 (opposing papers liberally construed, all facts therein being accepted as true); but see § 537.33[2][g]]. Nonetheless, despite the construction of affidavits in its favor, the opposing party has the burden of showing the existence of a triable issue of material fact [Chern v. Bank of America (1976) 15 Cal. 3d 866, 873, 127 Cal. Rptr. 110, 544 P.2d 1310 ; Murillo v. Rite Stuff Foods, Inc. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 833, 841, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12 ; see § 537.33[2][c]].

The sole declaration of a party opposing a summary judgment motion which raises a triable issue of fact is sufficient to deny the motion [Estate of Housley (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 342, 359, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 628]. Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(e) does not allow a trial court to weigh the credibility of a declaration submitted by the party opposing a summary judgment motion and then grant the motion, except where the declaration is facially so incredible as a matter of law that the moving party otherwise would be entitled to summary judgment [Estate of Housley (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 342, 359-360, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 628].

Courts have been highly critical and must be cautious when an expert offers legal conclusions as to ultimate facts in the guise of an expert opinion [Benavidez v. San Jose Police Dept. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 853, 865, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 157 (court rejected retired field training police office's declaration to extent it drew legal conclusions)]. Moreover, expert declarations cannot create a triable question of fact if the expert's opinion is based on factors that are remote, speculative, or conjectural [Travelers Casualty & Surety Co. v. Superior Court (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1440, 1462, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 54], or it if lacks foundation or is stated without sufficient certainty [see Sanchez v. Hillerich & Bradsby Co. (2002) 104Cal. App. 4th 703 (expert affidavit sufficient because it established matters relied upon in expressing the opinion, opinion rested on matters of type reasonably relied upon, and it established bases for opinion)].

If no affidavits or declarations are filed in opposition to a motion for summary judgment the court is entitled to accept as true the facts alleged in the movant's affidavits and declarations, provided they are within the personal knowledge of the affiant or declarant and are facts to which he or she could competently testify [Lyons v. Security Pacific Nat. Bank (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1001, 1014, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 174 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (use of declarations)].

[g] Weight of Admissions

[i] Admissions Obtained Through Discovery

Admissions against interest obtained through discovery are entitled to greater weight than evidentiary allegations in affidavits or declarations [D'Amico v. Board of Medical Examiners (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 1, 21-22, 112 Cal. Rptr. 786, 520 P.2d 10]. Thus, admissions made in the course of a party's deposition cannot be contradicted solely by that party's declaration in opposition to summary judgment [Roth v. Rhodes (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 530, 545, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 706 ; see Benavidez v. San Jose Police Dept. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 853, 860, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 157 (party cannot create issue of fact by declaration that contradicts his or her prior discovery responses); Barton v. Elexsys Internat., Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1182, 1191-1192, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 212 (to extent descriptions in plaintiff's declaration submitted in opposition to defendant's motion for summary judgment contradicted plaintiff's discovery responses, they must be disregarded)]. A party is bound by admissions made in the course of discovery, and on motion for summary judgment, no further evidence of the matters so admitted is required [Hejmadi v. AMFAC, Inc. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 525, 552-553, 249 Cal. Rptr. 5].

All admissions elicited in the course of discovery are not created equal under the D'Amico rule; and deposition answers are simply evidence and do not constitute incontrovertible judicial admissions as do concessions in a pleading or answers to requests for admissions [Scalf v. D.B. Log Homes, Inc. (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1510, 1522, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 826]. An opposing party's deposition testimony that he found "nothing wrong" and had no criticisms of moving party's product were not the equivalent of judicial admissions and did not carry the moving party's burden of demonstrating the absence of a factual dispute on express indemnity claim [Scalf v. D.B. Log Homes, Inc. (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1510, 1523, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 826].

Notwithstanding the above, the extent to which discovery-related admissions are conclusive in a summary judgment proceeding, in the face of contradictory affidavits or declarations by the admitting party, is somewhat unclear. The court of appeal in Leasman v. Beech Aircraft Corp. (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 376, 121 Cal. Rptr. 768 (First Dist., Div. One) , relying on D'Amico v. Board of Medical Examiners (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 1, 112 Cal. Rptr. 786, 520 P.2d 10 , stated that when a defendant can establish his or her defense with the plaintiff's admissions sufficient to pass the strict construction test imposed on the moving party (for discussion, see § 537.33[2][f]), the credibility of the admissions are valued so highly that controverting affidavits may be disregarded entirely as irrelevant, inadmissible, or evasive [see Leasman v. Beech Aircraft Corp. (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 376, 382, 121 Cal. Rptr. 768] . Several courts adopted this view [see Niederer v. Ferreira (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1485, 1503, 234 Cal. Rptr.779 (Second District, Div. One) ; Shapero v. Fliegel (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 842, 849, 236 Cal. Rptr. 696 (Second District, Division Two) ; see also Benavidez v. San Jose Police Dept. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 853, 860, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 157 (Sixth Dist.) ; Wilkins v. National Broadcasting Co. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1066, 1082, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329 (Second Dist., Div. Three)].

The same district and division of the court that decided Leasman, however, subsequently stated that the broad language in Leasman should be accepted with caution [Price v. Wells Fargo Bank (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 465, 482, 261 Cal. Rptr. 735]. The Price court did not interpret D'Amico as saying that admissions should be shielded from careful examination in light of the entire record and stated that a summary judgment should not be based on tacit admissions or fragmentary and equivocal concessions that are contradicted by other evidence [Price v. Wells Fargo Bank (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 465, 482, 261 Cal. Rptr. 735 (First Dist., Div. One; trial court's reliance on admissions upheld only because appellate court found nothing in record that was materially inconsistent with the admissions); accord Kirby v. Albert D. Seeno Construction Co. (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 1059, 1066-1067 (First Dist., Div. One; Price approved of reliance on admissions made in course of discovery when they are uncontradicted or contradicted by self-serving declarations of party); see also Scheiding v. Dinwiddie Construction Co. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 64, 77-78, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360 (First Dist., Div. One; court discussed D'Amico, noting Supreme Court has consistently refused to allow triable issue of fact to be conjured by submission of affidavit contradicting declarant's prior deposition testimony; however, court, discussing Price, viewed record before it with caution); Wright v. Stang Manufacturing Co. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1218, 1224 n.2, 1227 n.3, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 422 (plaintiffs mistaken response as "Undisputed" to one of defendants' separate statement of facts held not to be a judicial admission, or an admission, or concession on issues of liability and causation when such response was not under oath or part of any pleading, and when the response was inconsistent with other responses and evidence submitted in opposition to summary judgment motion); FPI Development, Inc. v. Nakashima (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 367, 396, 282 Cal. Rptr. 508 (stating that "admission is binding unless there is a credible explanation for inconsistent positions taken by a party")]. If an admission is susceptible ofdifferent meanings, trial court must use its discretion to determine admission's scope and effect [Jackson v. County of Los Angeles (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 171, 192 n.15, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 96 (citing Fredericks v. Kontos Industries, Inc. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 272, 277, 234 Cal. Rptr. 395 ; involving requests for admissions)].

A defendant may provide affirmative evidence that the plaintiff lacks any factual support for the plaintiff's claims through an admission by the plaintiff that extensive discovery has yielded nothing [Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 854-855, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493 ; Tran v. Farmers Group, Inc. (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 1202, 1215, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 728] .

The court may disregard admissions that are ambiguous, irrelevant, or incomplete [see Jackson v. County of Los Angeles (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 171, 192 n.15, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 96].

[ii] Judicial Admissions

Although, as indicated above, a line of cases has developed the rule that when a party has made an admission in discovery that justifies summary judgment in favor of the opponent, that party cannot attempt to defeat a summary judgment motion by submitting a declaration contradicting the admission, the related principle of judicial admission has not been accorded as broad an application [Prilliman v. United Air Lines, Inc. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 935, 961, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 142 (judicial admission not involved); see Kirby v. Albert D. Seeno Construction Co. (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 1059, 1066-1067, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 604 (court refused to give conclusive effect to ambiguous statement in an unverified complaint when statement was explained in deposition testimony under oath; summary judgment should not be entered based on mistaken legal conclusions in complaint when facts submitted in opposition indicate existence of material factual issue); see also 24 Hour Fitness, Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1199, 1211, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 533 (admission in complaint will not bind plaintiff on summary judgment if plaintiff offers countervailing evidence in opposition to motion)]. Nevertheless, in an appropriate case, a judicial admission may be deemed binding and dispositive without further evidence [see, e.g., Kurinij v. Hanna & Morton (1997) 55 Cal. App.4th 853, 870-871, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324 (judicial admissions in underlying case and related indemnity action were binding and dispositive without further evidence on motion for summary judgment concerning cross complaint). According to Kurinij, such admissions are proper on summary judgment and overcome evidence even when the opposing party seeks to contradict the prior admission. The trial court, however, has discretion to disregard the admissions [Kurinij v. Hanna & Morton (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 853, 871, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324 (no abuse of discretion when trial court chose not to disregard admissions)]. There is also authority, however, that has held that such admissions are conclusive and limit contradictory evidence [see Barr v. ACandS, Inc. (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 1038, 1055-1056, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 494 (defendant moving for summary judgment may rely on allegations in plaintiff's complaint which are judicial admissions; as such, they are conclusive concessions of truth of a matter and remove it from issues; contradictory evidence is limited to that which collaterally attacks the prior judicial admission on the basis of mistake, inadvertence, or lack of authority)].

[3] Power of Court to Grant Motion on Issue Party Did Not Raise

A trial court has discretion to grant summary judgment on an issue that the moving party has not raised if the court notifies the opposing party of its intent to do so and provides an opportunity to respond to the new issue [Gomez v. Acquistapace (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 740, 744, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 821 ; see Bacon v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 854, 860, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16 ; cf. Scheiding v. Dinwiddie Construction Co. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 64, 75, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360 (Code Civ. Proc. § 473c, unlike Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 56, does not permit court to enter summary judgment on its own); Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London v. Superior Court (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 952, 958, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 821 (stating that, under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a), which provides that any "party" may move for summary judgment, California state judges, unlike federal judges, do not have the power to enter summary judgment sua sponte, subject only to giving the losing party notice of a need to come forward with its evidence)].

Notice and providing the opposing party a meaningful opportunity to respond are essential. Thus, for example, when a moving party raised additional facts in a supplemental statement of undisputed material facts, not accompanied by additional legal argument, filed two days before the hearing and after the opposition had been filed, and the plaintiff did not respond to it before the hearing, the trial court erred in granting the motion, not because it relied on a new issue, but because it did so without notice and opportunity to respond [Gomez v. Acquistapace (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 740, 744, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 821]. Where a defendants' summary judgment motion was based solely on the statute of limitations, and they did not assert that plaintiffs had failed to state a cause of action due to the absence of allegations of physical injury to their buildings, and plaintiffs were given no opportunity to respond to defendants' motion on that unstated ground, it was reversible error for the trial court to grant the motion [County of Santa Clara v. Atlantic Richfield (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 292, 326, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 313

Chapter 537 SUMMARY JUDGMENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

47-537 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 537.34

AUTHOR: Hon. Patti S. Kitching Barbara A. Reeves Charles Pereyra-Suarez Contributing Editors Justice Kitching, an Associate Justice of the California Court of Appeal, Second Appellate District, Division Three, was formerly a Judge of the Los Angeles Superior Court, where her assignments included the law and motion department. Barbara A. Reeves is a partner with Morrison & Foerster, Los Angeles, California. Her areas of litigation expertise include intellectual property, securities, fraud, contract, international trade, antitrust, environmental coverage, and white-collar criminal defense. Charles Pereyra-Suarez is a partner in McKenna & Cuneo and heads the Litigation Department in the Los Angeles office. He also has served as a judge pro tem of the Los Angeles County Municipal and Superior Courts since 1986. § 537.34 Standards for Denying Summary Judgment

[1] Triable Issues Exist or Moving Party Is Not Entitled to Judgment

Denial is, by implication, required when a triable issue of material fact has been shown to exist, or when the moving party is nonetheless not entitled to judgmentas a matter of law [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(c); see Bigbee v. Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 49, 56, 192 Cal. Rptr. 857, 665 P.2d 947]. The latter situation arguably includes cases in which the moving party has not met its initial burden of proof [see Vesely v. Sager (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 153, 169-170, 95 Cal. Rptr. 623, 486 P.2d 151 , disapproved on other grounds in Strang v. Cabrol (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 720, 724, 209 Cal. Rptr. 347, 691 P.2d 1013 ; see also § 537.33[2][c]].

For a form of order denying motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication, see § 537.85.

[2] Contradicted Inferences of Fact

A court is expressly prohibited from granting summary judgment on the basis of inferences reasonably deducible from the evidence if those inferences are contradicted by other inferences or evidence which raise a triable issue as to any material fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(c); see also § 537.33[2][a]].

The court may not grant defendant's motion based on any evidence from which such inferences are drawn, if so contradicted. That means that, if the court concludes that plaintiff's evidence or inferences raise a triable issue of material fact, it must conclude its consideration and deny the defendants' motion. If there is a conflict in the inferences such that a triable issue exists, the summary judgment motion must be denied [Kids' Universe v. In2Labs (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 870, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 158]

Absent new facts, summary judgment is not to be granted based on issues raised in a previously denied motion for summary adjudication [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f)(2); see also § 537.34[3]].

[3] Motion Based on Issues Asserted in Prior Unsuccessful Motion for Summary Adjudication

A party may not move for summary judgment based on issues asserted in a prior motion for summary adjudication and denied by the court, unless that party establishes to the satisfaction of the court the existence of newly discovered facts or circumstances or a change of law supporting the issues reasserted in the summary judgment motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f)(2); see Bagley v. TRW, Inc. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1092, 1096-1098, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 909 (second motion prohibited)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f)(2) does not apply when the prior motion was for summary judgment, not summary adjudication [see Nieto v. Blue Shield of California Life & Health Ins. (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 60, 72, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 906 (defendant's motion for summary judgment fell outside scope of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f)(2), where prior motion was one for summary judgment rather than summary adjudication)].

For the purposes of this requirement, "change of law" does not include a later enacted statute without retroactive application [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(s)], nor does it include published decisions not cited in connection with the earlier summary adjudication motion that are raised for the first time in connection with the later summary judgment motion [Bagley v. TRW, Inc. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1092, 1097, 1097 n.4, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 909] or a nonpublished Superior Court opinion [Schachter v. Citigroup, Inc. (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 726, 738, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 920]. The trial court is not required to outline the newly discovered facts or circumstances in its order when it allows a party to renew a motion for summary judgment/summary adjudication [Pender v. Radin (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1807, 1812, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36 (applying former version of subsection (f)(2))].

As an exception, because of the nature of litigation over insurance coverage, an insurer may be able to move for summary adjudication on the duty to defend despite an earlier summary adjudication that an insurer had a duty to defend [see Liberty Mutual Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 617, 620-623, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 219].

[4] Discretionary Denial

[a] Material Fact Depends on Sole Witness

A court has discretion to deny a motion in the following situations [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(e); see Meighan v. Shore (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1025, 1046, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 744 (mental process); Times-Mirror Co. v. Superior Court (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 1420, 1430, 244 Cal. Rptr. 556 (sole witness); Allen v. McMillion (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 211, 215-216, 147 Cal. Rptr. 77 (state of mind)]:

- When the only proof of a material fact offered in support of the motion is an affidavit or declaration made by an individual who was the sole witness to the fact.

- When a material fact is an individual's state of mind, or lack thereof, and the fact is sought to be established solely by that individual's affirmation.

These situations are exceptions to the general rule that a court cannot deny the motion merely on grounds of credibility or for want of cross-examination of witnesses who furnish affidavits or declarations in support of the motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(e); see discussion in § 537.33[2][b][i] et seq.].

PRACTICE TIP:

Who Is "Sole Witness." The phrase "sole witness" is not expressly defined by statute. It is arguable that it includes not only the sole witness of a fact, but also the sole witness of a fact who is available to testify under Evid. Code § 240.

[b] Failure to State Legal Ground for Motion

Code Civ. Proc. § 437c requires the party seeking summary judgment to state with specificity in its moving papers each of the grounds of law on which the moving party is relying in contending the action has no merit or there is no defense to it [Juge v. County of Sacramento (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 59, 68, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 598]. If the parties' separate statements of material facts include an undisputed material fact that is dispositive of the action, but the moving party has overlooked its legal significance, the trial court may deny the motion even if the court recognizes the legal significance of the fact and knows it would entitle the party to summary judgment if it had been explicitly raised in the moving papers [Juge v. County of Sacramento (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 59, 68, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 598 (granting summary judgment when undisputed facts showed no causation)].

The court does, however, have power under these circumstances to grant the motion on a ground not explicitly tendered by the moving party. Before granting the motion, the court must provide the opposing party an opportunity to respond to the ground of law identified by the court and a chance to show the existence of a triable issue of material fact as to that ground of law [Juge v. County of Sacramento (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 59, 70, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 598].

[c] Absence of Statement of Undisputed Facts or Unavailablity of Facts

The court may deny a motion in the following additional circumstances:

- It is not supported by the required separate statement of undisputed facts [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(1); see discussion in § 537.21[3]].

- It is shown that facts justifying opposition may exist but cannot be then presented [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(h); see discussion in § 537.36]. While a mere continuance is the more likely result in this case, denial may be necessary, for example, when the continued date is less than thirty days before the date set for trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a)].

Despite the court's discretion under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(1) to deny a motion based on an inadequate separate statement, the court must first consider all the submitted papers as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(c) to determine whether there are triable issues of fact and whether the moving party is entitled to summary judgment as a matter of law. However, this requirement does not require the court to grope its way through a maze of arguments and reams of documents, searching for obscure traces of triable issues of material fact [Kulesa v. Castleberry (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 103, 113, 116-117, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669 (reversing trial court's denial of motion where the most cursory review of the papers showed the motion to be utterly without factual or legal merit)].

[5] Denial With Opportunity to Amend Complaint

If summary judgment is granted on the ground that the complaint is legally insufficient, but it appears from the materials submitted in opposition to the motion that the plaintiff could state a cause of action, the trial court should give the plaintiff an opportunity to amend the complaint before entry of judgment [College Hospital, Inc. v. Superior Court (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 704, 719 n.5, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 882 P.2d 894 ; Bostrom v. County of San Bernardino (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 1654, 1663, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669].

However, absent a request to amend, there is no occasion for the court to inquire about possible issues not raised by the pleadings [Metromedia, Inc. v. City of San Diego (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 848, 885, 164 Cal. Rptr. 510, 610 P.2d 407].

[6] Denial of Motion to Allow Discovery

Under appropriate circumstances, Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(h) authorizes the court to deny a motion for summary judgment or make any other order it deems just. For example, in People v. $4,503 United States Currency (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1743, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467 , a forfeiture proceeding, the defendant, who repeatedly failed to appear for scheduled depositions, moved for summary judgment. The trial court concluded that because defendant was a fugitive from justice it had been impossible for the People to conduct discovery and denied defendant's motion for summary judgment without prejudice to renew the motion after discovery took place. The trial court was held to have authority under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(h) to fashion the order that it did [People v. $4,503 United States Currency (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1743, 1746-1749, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467].

For discussion of continuances, as opposed to denial of the motion, under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(h), see § 537.36.

[7] Denial Based on Issues Raised Outside of Pleadings

A plaintiff's motion for summary judgment is limited to the causes of action pled in the complaint [Distefano v. Forester (2001) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1249, 1264-1265, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 813]. In Distefano, the plaintiff sought recovery for injuries suffered while "off-roading." Defendant contended that plaintiff's action was barred by the doctrine of primary assumption of the risk, in that collisions were an inherent risk in the sport of "off-roading." Plaintiff's complaint pled only that defendant was negligent; it did not allege recklessness. On appeal, plaintiff argued that the evidence supported a claim of recklessness, which would avoid the defense of primary assumption of the risk. The court of appeal held that the trial court was correct in deciding the case based on the pleadings, and held that the plaintiff should have sought leave to amend the complaint prior to the hearing on the summary judgment motion [Distefano v. Forester (2001) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1249, 1264-1265, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 813].

[8] Special Rule in Cases of Public Design Immunity

The normal rules requiring denial of summary judgment if any triable issue of fact appears are not fully applicable in the case of a claim of design immunity under Gov. Code § 830.6 [Wyckoff v. State of California (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 45, 50-51, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 198]. In a claim of design immunity, the defendant public entity is not required to prove that the design was a reasonable one. Instead, the defendant must only show some substantial evidence that a reasonable public employee or legislative body could have approved the design. Therefore, on a motion for summary judgment, the existence of a possible conflict in the evidence regarding the reasonableness of the design will not defeat summary judgment, as long as there is substantial evidence of reasonableness, even if contradicted [Wyckoff v. State of California (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 45, 50-51, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 198 (affirming order granting State's motion for summary judgment)].

§ 537.35 Standard for Granting or Denying Summary Adjudication

The court is not to grant a motion for summary adjudication unless it completely disposes of a cause of action, an affirmative defense, a claim for damages, or an issue of duty [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f)(2)]. Other than this, Section 437c(f) does not expressly provide a standard for granting a motion for summary adjudication, but provides merely that a motion for summary adjudication "shall proceed in all procedural respects as a motion for summary judgment" [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f); see § 537.29]. It therefore appears the standard for determining a motion for summary judgment [see § 537.33[1] (no triable issue) and § 537.34[1] (triable issues exist)] also applies in determining whether to grant a motion for summary adjudication with respect to a cause of action, affirmative defense, claim for punitive damages, or issue of duty owed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f); Lazar v. Hertz Corp. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1494, 1507 ; Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London v. Superior Court (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 952, 956-960, 65 Cal. App. 4th 867, 881, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 830 (same burden of proof as for summary judgment applied)].

§ 537.36 Continuance When Opposing Facts Cannot Be Presented

If it appears from the affidavits or declarations submitted in opposition to the motion that facts essential to justify opposition may exist but cannot, for reasons stated, then be presented, the court shall deny the motion, or order a continuance to permit affidavits or declarations to be obtained or discovery to be had, or may make such other order as may be just [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(h); see People v. $4,503 United States Currency (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1743, 1746-1749, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467 (court had authority to deny motion without prejudice when moving defendant had repeatedly failed appear for depositions); see also § 537.34[6]]. An application to continue the motion to obtain necessary discovery may also be made by ex parte motion at any time on or before the date the opposition is due [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(h)].

The purpose of the Code Civ. Proc. § 473c(h) affidavit requirement is to inform the court of the outstanding discovery that is necessary to resist the summary judgment motion [Bahl v. Bank of America (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 389, 396, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 270 ; Scott v. CIBA Vision Corp. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 307, 325-326, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 902].

There is an added provision in Code Civ. Proc. § 437c providing that if, after granting a continuance to allow specified additional discovery, the court determines that the party seeking summary judgment has unreasonably failed to allow the discovery to be conducted, the court shall grant a continuance to permit the discovery to go forward or deny the motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(i)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Required Showing for Continuance. If a continuance is sought by the opposing party on the ground that facts justifying opposition may exist but cannot then be presented, this request must be supported by an affidavit or declaration stating the reasons why the opposing party cannot then present that evidence, as well as the estimated time required and the steps proposed to obtain the evidence [see, e.g., Davis v. Nadrich (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1, 8, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 414 ; Cooksey v. Alexakis (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 246, 254, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 810 ; Wachs v. Curry (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 616, 622-624, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 496 ; see also American Continental Ins. Co. v. C & Z Timber Co. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1271, 1280, 241 Cal. Rptr. 466]. The affidavit or declaration is essential; it is not enough merely to raise the issue in the opposing memorandum [Hill v. Physicians & Surgeons Exchange (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1, 7-8, 274 Cal. Rptr. 702].

An attorney's declaration in support of a request for a continuance that merely states that the attorney has not yet deposed the parties is not sufficient to support a continuance. The declaration needs to explain what efforts were made to take the necessary depositions and why they could not have been taken earlier [see, e.g., Cooksey v. Alexakis (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 246, 254, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 810 (continuance for stated purpose of taking depositions was not warranted when declaration did not explain what efforts had been made to take depositions or why they had not been taken sooner); Desaigoudar v. Meyercord (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 173, 191, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 408 (showing of discovery diligence is required for continuance); A & B Painting & Drywall, Inc. v. Superior Court (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 349, 356-357, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 418]. Moreover, it is incumbent on the party opposing the summary judgment motion to show by affidavit or declaration that the proposed discovery could reasonably lead to facts essential to justify opposition to the motion [Scott v. CIBA Vision Corp. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 307, 326, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 902]. Thus, if the party opposing the motion seeks a continuance, but fails to submit a supporting affidavit or declaration, the conditions of Code Civ. Proc. § 473c(h) have not been met and a continuance is not mandatory [Scott v. CIBA Vision Corp. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 307, 313-314, 326, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 902 ; see also Thatcher v. Lucky Stores, Inc. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1083, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 575 (trial court was not required to continue summary judgment motion because request was not included in timely opposition to summary judgment motion and plaintiffs failed to establish that facts essential to justifying opposition might exist but could not be presented before hearing); Waisbren v. Peppercorn Productions, Inc. (1995) 41 Cal. App. 4th 246, 263, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 437 (trial court did not abuse discretion in denying plaintiff's request for continuance when plaintiff in opposing motion did not explain how outstanding discovery was related to issues raised by motion and motion was based on issue solely within plaintiff's knowledge so that plaintiff did not need discovery from defendants to dispute or address that issue)].

One court has questioned whether the lack of diligence alone should make or break a continuance request under Code Civ. Proc § 437c(h), while noting that the trial judge may deny the request for continuance of the motion when lack of diligence results in a party's having insufficient information to know if facts essential to justify opposition may exist, and the party is therefore unable to provide the requisite affidavit [Bahl v. Bank of America (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 389, 396, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 270 (denial of plaintiff's request for continuance abused court's limited discretion where plaintiff provided affidavit informing court of outstanding discovery matters and why essential facts could not be presented at that time, transcripts of depositions essential to justify opposition had not yet been received from court reporter, defendant produced over 600 pages of documentation after plaintiff filed her opposition to motion, defendant did not suggest that it suffered any prejudice on account of plaintiff's due diligence deficit, and parties had provided no indication that there was special reason to protect trial date)].

It has been held that a continuance is not necessarily required simply because the opposing party claims that to file substantive opposition might violate his right against self incrimination; rather, the opposing party must show that his fifth amendment rights would in fact be violated and that he was unable to present any other substantive opposition to the motion [Fisher v. Gibson (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 275, 283-284, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 145].

It has been held improper for the trial court to consider as a factor in denying a continuance to a plaintiff opposing a motion for summary judgment that granting the continuance would permit a disgruntled plaintiff to take a voluntary dismissal in the hope of drawing a more sympathetic judge upon refiling the complaint, since this concern would militate against summary judgment continuances under any circumstances. Moreover this concern has been deemed unfounded because were a plaintiff to dismiss his or her complaint after a Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(h) continuance had been granted, the court would retain jurisdiction to rule on the summary judgment motion [Bahl v. Bank of America (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 389, 396, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 270] .

At least one court has held that the inquiry does not end once the court determines that a continuance is not mandatory under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(h). The court must then determine whether the party requesting the continuance has nonetheless established good cause therefor. This determination is within the court's discretion [Lerma v. County of Orange (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 709, 714, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 609 (court held continuance was clearly necessary when plaintiff's attorney was served with a summary judgment motion on the day he was admitted to the hospital for bladder cancer surgery and was unaware that he had been served with motion until he was released from the hospital, two business days before the response was due)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(h) has no comparable provision for the moving party. The moving party, however, controls when the motion is brought and, except for expert witnesses, will have had a chance to depose the necessary witnesses prior to noticing the motion [see St. Mary Medical Center v. Superior Court (1997) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1531, 1539-1540 (case decided in context of defendants noticing the deposition of plaintiff's expert and at same time taking their motion for summary judgment off calendar; see also § 537.30)].

For a form of order with optional language granting a continuance, see § 537.85.

When the moving party raises new arguments in its reply papers, given these 12th-hour circumstances, the opposing party has been held entitled to move orally at the hearing for a postponement to give it sufficient time to respond [Mediterranean Construction Co. v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 257, 264, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 781 (new arguments in moving party's papers regarding various coverage exclusions)]. Similarly, the court in Mediterranean noted that an oral motion for a continuance can be made at the hearing to allow sufficient time to amend a pleading when it becomes apparent at that time that defects in the pleading can be remedied [Mediterranean Construction Co. v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 257, 264, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 781].

When an adverse tentative ruling has been announced, hearing commenced, and a continuance has been granted under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(h) for the express and exclusive purpose of permitting the plaintiff an opportunity to produce opposition evidence, the plaintiff cannot voluntarily dismiss the action without prejudice [Mary Morgan, Inc. v. Melzark (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 765, 768-769, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 4].

§ 537.37 Statement of Reasons for Ruling

[1] Denying Motion

If the court denies the motion on the ground that there is a triable issue as to one or more material facts, it must, by written or oral order, specify one or more material facts raised by the motion as to which it has determined that a triable controversy exists [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(g); see Payless Drug Store v. Superior Court (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 277, 279, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 506 (judge orally referred to the opposition papers when asked what facts were in dispute; writ of mandate issued directing trial court to make appropriate order); Exxon Corp. v. Superior Court (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1672, 1679, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 195 (order held to suffice procedurally despite objection that it insufficiently specified what evidence was in conflict given failure to demand greater specificity in the trial court)]. The determination that a triable controversy exists must specifically refer to the evidence in the supporting or opposing papers which indicates the existence of such triable controversy [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(g)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Specific Reference to Evidence. An order denying a summary judgment motion merely recites the existence of a factual issue and lists evidentiary documents submitted in support and in opposition to the motion. Is the order sufficient under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(g)? No. The order must refer to specific items of supporting and opposing evidence that show the existence of a factual issue [see Continental Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 1071-1072, 212 Cal. Rptr. 140].

ILLUSTRATION: General Statement Insufficient. In its written order denying summary judgment, a court makes a general statement that the liability of the moving party is at issue. Is the order sufficient under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(g)? No. The order fails to comply with Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(g) because it does not adequately specify the material facts as to which there is a triable issue and does not in any manner specify the evidence which indicates that such triable controversy exists as required by statute [Beatrice Cos. v. Superior Court (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 525, 527-528, 227 Cal. Rptr. 316].

[2] Granting Motion

If the court grants the motion on the ground that there is no triable issue of material fact, the court must [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(g)]:

- Specify the reasons for its determination.

- Specifically refer in the order to the evidence proffered in support of and, if applicable, in opposition to, the motion that indicates that no triable issue exists.

The court must also state its reasons for any other determination. The court must record its determination by court reporter or written order [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(g)]. A key objective for the statement of reasons under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(g) is to allow for meaningful appellate review [Wedeck v. Unocal Corp. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 848, 864, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 501]. Although a court's failure to provide a sufficient statement of reasons is not automatic grounds for reversal, since it is the validity of the ruling which is reviewable and not the reasons for it, the trial court's failure to provide a statement of reasons was not harmless error where the issues litigated through the summary judgment motion were complex, and the appellate court was precluded from undertaking a meaningful review of the issues, including a decision of the trial court on credibility issues [Santa Barbara Pistachio Ranch v. Chowchilla Water Dist. (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 439, 448-449, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 856 (court granted summary judgment to defendant as to cause of action of one plaintiff, and denied it as to another plaintiff; there were facts supporting position of both plaintiffs and defendant, and, at original hearing on motion, court identified contradictions in declarations prepared for motion as compared to testimony given in deposition)]. However, the trial court's statement that it was relying on all the evidence has been treated as harmless error when the appellate court's independent review establishes the validity of the judgment [see Goldrich v. Natural Y Surgical Specialties, Inc. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 772, 782, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 162 ; see also Carnes v. Superior Court (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 688, 692, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 915 (in granting defendant's motion for summary judgment, judge merely signed order prepared by defense counsel without stating his own reasons for ruling; although appellate court disapproved of judge's actions, judge technically complied with Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(g) in adopting counsel's order as his own and therefore no reversal was required); Tahoe Vista Concerned Citizens v. Counter of Placer (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 577, 594 n.7, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 880 (because appellate court reviews grant of summary judgment de novo, plaintiff's arguments citing Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(g) to fault trial court's decision for failing to distinguish it was ruling on affirmative defense and not on merits of cause of action, and for failing to specify reasons for its ruling and refer to evidence showing no triable issue of fact exist, were of no moment)].

[3] Correcting Erroneous Ruling on Motion for Clarification

Until judgment is entered, the trial court has the power to change its decision as it may determine. On its own motion, or on motion of a party, it may correct an erroneous ruling [Bernstein v. Consolidated American Ins. Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 763, 774, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 817]. Thus, for example, when a trial court in initially denying a motion for summary adjudication failed to articulate the basis for its ruling in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(g) and the opposing party's proposed order did not rectify these deficiencies, it was held appropriate for the party who had brought the motion to object to the proposed order and move for clarification of the court's minute order. The trial court in attempting to identify disputed factual issues requiring a trial as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(g) was unable to do so. Consequently, it corrected its prior erroneous ruling denying the summary adjudication ruling by granting the motion for clarification and motion for summary adjudication and in so doing met the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c. The court in taking this action was not entertaining a motion for reconsideration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1008, but was correcting an erroneous ruling on its own motion [Bernstein v. Consolidated American Ins. Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 763, 773-774, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 817].

§ 537.38 Sanctions for Bad Faith or Delay

[1] In Presentation of Affidavits

If, at any time, the court determines that any of the affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) are presented in bad faith or solely for purposes of delay, the court must order the party presenting such affidavits to pay the other party the amount of the reasonable expenses which the filing of the affidavits cau sed the other party to incur [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(j); see Winick Corp. v. County Sanitation Dist. No. 2 (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 1170, 1176, 230 Cal. Rptr. 289]. "Reasonable expenses" within the meaning of this subsection does not include attorney's fees; rather, it includes recovery of expenses such as expert fees and service fees [Collins v. State Dept. of Transportation (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 859, 870, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 132].

Sanctions may not be imposed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(j) except on notice contained in a party's papers, or on the court's own noticed motion, and after an opportunity to be heard [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(j)]. A separate noticed motion for sanctions is not required so long as notice is contained in other papers [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(j)].

For a form of motion for order imposing sanctions, see § 537.80.

[2] In Making or Opposing Motion

Parties may also seek to recover reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, on the more general ground that the motion for summary judgment or opposition to the motion was made in bad faith in that it was frivolous or solely intended to cause unnecessary delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(a); see Winick Corp. v. County Sanitation Dist. No. 2 (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 1170, 1176, 230 Cal. Rptr. 289]. If so, notice must be given in the moving or responding papers [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(c)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 applies only to actions filed prior to January 1, 1995. For actions filed thereafter, Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 imposes sanctions for improper motions, as defined by that section [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(i), (j) (providing sanctions for frivolous tactics in actions commenced after January 1, 1995)].

For discussion of sanctions based on these sections, see Ch. 510, Sanctions .

[3] In Action for Indemnity or Contribution or Under California Tort Claims Act

In any civil action for indemnity or contribution, or in any civil proceeding under the California Tort Claims Act (Gov. Code § 810 et seq.), at the time that a defendant's motion for summary judgment is granted, and that defendant's motion made prior to the entry of judgment, the court, as fact finder, shall determine whether the complaint defended against was brought with reasonable cause and in good faith. If the court finds in favor of the moving defendant on this issue, it shall further determine and award all reasonable and necessary defense costs incurred [Code Civ. Proc. § 1038(a), (c), (d)].

An award of defense costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1038 can only be made on notice contained in a party's papers and following an opportunity to be heard [Code Civ. Proc. § 1038(a)]. Defense costs include [Code Civ. Proc. § 1038(b)]:

- Attorney's fees.
- Expert witness fees.
- Other fees for expert services or consultation.

A motion on this ground waives any right to seek damages for malicious prosecution [Code Civ. Proc. § 1038(c)].

[4] Review of Order Imposing Sanctions

Other than in a limited civil case, an appeal may be taken from a superior court's interlocutory judgment or order directing payment of monetary sanctions by a party or attorney if the amount exceeds $5000 [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1(a)(11), (12)]. Sanction orders or judgments imposing lesser sanctions against a party or an attorney for a party may be reviewed on an appeal by that party after entry of final judgment in the main action, or, at the discretion of the court of appeal, may be reviewed on petition for extraordinary writ [see Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(b)].

§ 537.39 Motion for Reconsideration

Prior to the entry of judgment, a party may move for reconsideration of the order or make a renewed motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication, so long as the motion is supported by new or different facts, circumstances, or law [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 437c(f)(2), (s), 1008; see Schulze v. Schulze (1953) 121 Cal. App. 2d 75, 83, 262 P.2d 646 ; cf. Liberty Mutual Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 617, 619-623, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 219 (second motion based on insurer's duty to defend was not motion for reconsideration)]. The court may properly deny a motion for reconsideration that is based on a witness's second declaration that contradicts the witness's previous deposition testimony [Nunez v. R'Bibo (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 559, 564, 260 Cal. Rptr. 1] .

The specific requirements of Cal. Civ. Proc. § 437c(f)(2), rather than the general provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1008, govern a motion for summary judgment based on issues asserted in an earlier summary adjudication motion that was denied [Le Francois v. Goel (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 1094, 1099, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 249 ; Schachter v. Citigroup, Inc. (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 726, 739, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 920 ; Bagley v. TRW, Inc. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1092, 1096 n.3, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 909] . For discussion, see § 537.34[3]. CCP § 437c(f)(2) does not, however, restrict the court's ability to reconsider its prior interim rulings on its own motion [Le Francois v. Goel (2005) 35 Cal 4th 1094, 1105, 29 Cal Rptr. 3d 249] .

In contrast to the independent review on appeal of the summary judgment motion itself [see § 537.43, below], appellate courts review a trial court's decision to allow a party to file a renewed or subsequent motion for summary judgment for an abuse of discretion [Nieto v. Blue Shield of California Life & Health Ins. (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 60, 72, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 906] .

For further discussion and forms relating to Code Civ. Proc. § 1008, see Ch. 374, Motions to Reconsider and Renewed Motions . For the distinction concerning a motion for clarification, see § 537.37[3].

§ 537.40 Motion for New Trial

A party may also seek relief from summary judgment in the trial court by moving for a new trial in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 659 [see, e.g., Wall Street Network, Ltd. v. New York Times Co. (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 1171, 1192, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 6 (order denying motion for new trial affirmed); Kohan v. Cohan (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 915 (order granting motion for new trial affirmed); Jacobs v. Retail Clerks Union, Local 1222 (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 959 (summary judgment affirmed after denial of motion for new trial); see also Doe v. United Airlines (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1500, 1513, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 541 (motion for new trial denied; plaintiff failed to show newly discovered evidence material to her case); Tortorella v. Castro (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 1, 10, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 853 (order granting new trial after grant of summary judgment upheld if it should have been granted based on any ground raised in motion); Victor v. Hedges (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 229, 245, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 466 (noting authority for motion for new trial following grant of summary judgment, but finding reversal based on trial judge's ruling that motion would not lie after summary judgment would serve no purpose under circumstances); Zavala v. Arce (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 915, 924, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 571 (appeal from order denying new trial treated as appeal from the summary judgment)]. Technically, since there was no trial, there can be no motion for a new trial, and the net result of granting the motion is simply denial of the motion for summary judgment. Nonetheless, in these circumstances, appellate courts have either construed the trial court's order as an appealable order granting new trial or treated the appeal as a petition for mandate [Waschek v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 640, 643 n.4, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 296].

§ 537.41 Motion to Vacate Judgment

There may be circumstances that enable a party to move to vacate a summary judgment on the grounds of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see, e.g., Uriate v. United States Pipe & Foundry Co. (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 780, 791, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 332 ; cf. Garcia v. Hejmadi (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 674, 681-685, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 228 (type of mistake, inadvertence, surprise or excusable neglect that might have permitted order granting summary judgment to have been vacated was not present in record)]. However, the mandatory provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) that requires a court to vacate a default, default judgment, or dismissal resulting from attorney mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect does not apply to summary judgments because a summary judgment is neither a "default," a "default judgment," nor a "dismissal" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [English v. IKON Business Solutions, Inc. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 130, 143-149, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 93]. § 537.42 Entry of Judgment

A judgment is entered in the court's judgment book or as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 668.5 [Code Civ. Proc. § 668]. The time for entry of judgment by the clerk is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 664. While Code Civ. Proc. § 664 does not expressly apply to a judgment rendered without a trial, it could be applied if a summary judgment proceeding were to be treated as analogous to a trial by the court. In that case, the clerk is required to enter judgment immediately after the court's decision or formal judgment is filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 664; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 635; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(f)].

In any contested action or special proceeding, the party submitting an order or judgment for entry is required to serve notice of entry of judgment on all parties and file the original of the notice with proof of service. This requirement does not apply in proceedings for dissolution of marriage, annulment, or legal separation, small claims actions, or any action or proceeding in which the prevailing party is not represented by counsel [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5(a)].

"Judgment," as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5, is defined as including any judgment, decree, or signed order from which an appeal lies [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5(c)]. "Contested" is not defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5 or in any related statute, but appears to be intended to exclude default cases and not cases that are terminated without trial pursuant to a pretrial proceeding such as summary judgment, which is opposed by the adverse party.

§ 537.43 Review of Summary Proceeding on Appeal

[1] Availability of Appeal

[a] When Summary Judgment Is Granted

A summary judgment entered under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c is an appealable judgment as in other cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(m)]. That is, it is appealable when it constitutes a final judgment [see De Grandchamp v. Texaco, Inc. (1979) 100 Cal. App. 3d 424, 431, 160 Cal. Rptr. 899 Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1(a)(1), 904.2(a)].

A summary judgment cannot be entered as a final judgment unless it terminates the action, except when "a separate judgment may properly be awarded in the action" [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(k)]. A separate judgment may properly be awarded, and an appeal may lie from an otherwise interlocutory summary judgment, when, for example, the summary judgment disposes of all issues to be determined between at least two parties [see Morehart v. County of Santa Barbara (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 725, 740-741, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 804, 872 P.2d 143 (dicta; holding that appeal may not be taken from a judgment that fails to complete the dispostion of all causes of action pending between parties even if the causes of action have been ordered to be tried separately or may be characterized as "separate and independent" from those remaining, and disapproving cases that had allowed appeal in that situation)].

In the interest of justice and to prevent unnecessary delay, a reviewing court may choose to treat an appeal from the order granting summary judgment as anappeal from a final judgment when a judgment has been entered, although such an order is technically nonappealable [Zavala v. Arce (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 915, 924 n.7, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 571 (Fourth Dist., Div. One) ; Allabach v. Santa Clara County Fair Assn. (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1007, 1010-1011, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 330 (Sixth Dist.) Demyer v. Costa Mesa Mobile Home Estates (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 393, 399 n.14, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 260 (Fourth Dist., Div. Three) ; Knight v. City of Capitola (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 918, 923 n.1, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 874 (Sixth Dist.) ; Rivera v. Southern Pacific Transportation Co. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 294, 297, 266 Cal. Rptr. 11 (First Dist., Div. One)]. Moreover, in the interest of justice and judicial economy to obviate possible multiple trials, a reviewing court may exercise its discretion to treat a plaintiff's technically nonappealable notice of appeal from a minute order granting the defendant summary judgment as a petition for writ of mandate when entry of a final appealable judgment against the defendant is prevented because plaintiff's main action is still proceeding against a codefendant and the defendant in whose favor summary judgment was granted has a cross complaint pending against that codefendant [Johnson v. Superior Court (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 297, 304, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 52 ; Lopez v. Superior Court (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 705, 710 n.1, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 821 (Second Dist., Div. Seven)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Nonappealable Order Deemed Appealable. The trial court issues an "Order Granting Defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment and Denying Plaintiffs' Motion for Summary Judgment." May such an order be appealable? Yes. The order may be construed as a judgment. The better practice, however, is to title a judgment as such and to use language specifically stating that judgment "is" entered [see Rogness v. English Moss Joint Ventures (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 190, 192 n.2, 239 Cal. Rptr. 387 (First Dist., Div. 4) ; see also San Francisco Unified School Dist. v. W.R. Grace & Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1318, 1322 n.1, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305 (First Dist., Div. Four; order granting summary judgment not appealable order; however, ordergranting summary judgment purporting to constitute judgment construed as appealable judgment)].

PRACTICE TIP: Trend Toward Requiring Perfected Appeal. Courts have been increasingly reluctant to treat a nonappealable order as appealable or to amend a nonappealable order to make it an appealable judgment of dismissal [see, e.g., Jordan v. Malone (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 18, 22-23, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 454 (Fifth District panel dismissed purported appeal from tentative written decision) ; Modica v. Merin (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1072, 1074, 285 Cal. Rptr. 673 (Third District panel dismissed appeal from order granting summary judgment after plaintiff failed to take opportunity to have judgment entered)]. In the case of an unperfected appeal from an order sustaining a demurrer, the Second District Court of Appeal, Division Seven agreed to "save" the appeal, but served notice that it would not "bail out" careless attorneys in the future [Cohen v. Equitable Life Assurance Society (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 669, 671, 242 Cal. Rptr. 84 ; see also Hill v. City of Long Beach (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1684, 1695-1696, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 125 (Second Dist., Div. Five)]. This is not a universal development, however, and counsel should be aware of practice in the relevant appellate district. For example, the Fourth District, Division Four, rejected Modica on the basis that sending the appellant back to the trial court to have a judgment entered and then to appeal from the judgment was a waste of time [Francis v. Dun & Bradstreet Inc. (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 535, 539, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 361].

The ultimate responsibility for perfecting an appeal rests with the appealing party [Jordan v. Malone (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 18, 21, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 454].

An opposing party that does not file any opposition to a motion for summary judgment may, under the right circumstances, be deemed to waive a right to appeal [Schumacher v. Worcester (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 376, 379 n.4, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1 (waiver not found under circumstances of case)].

[b] When Summary Adjudication Is Granted

The one final judgment rule applies in California. Parties will not be allowed to employ the artifice of trying to create an appealable order from an otherwise nonappealable grant of summary adjudication by dismissing the remaining causes of action without prejudice but with a waiver of applicable time bars [Don Jose's Restaurant, Inc. v. Truck Ins. Exchange (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 115, 116 (summary adjudication disposed of two of eleven cause of action); see Jackson v. Wells Fargo Bank (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 240, 244, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 679 (following Don Jose's Restaurant, Inc.); see also Four Point Entertainment, Inc. v. New World Entertainment, Ltd. (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 79, 83, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 82 (following Don Jose's Restaurant, Inc. and Jackson)].

Under the proper factual circumstances, however, an order granting summary adjudication may be appealable. When a trial court's order granting summary adjudication as to one cause of action effectively disposes of the case, appeal is proper [Belio v. Panorama Optics, Inc. (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1096, 1101-1102, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 737 ; see California Ass'n of Psychology Providers v. Rank (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 1, 9, 270 Cal. Rptr. 796, 793 P.2d 2]. For discussion of review by mandate, see § 537.44[2]. It is not the form of the decree but the substance and effect of the adjudication that determines whether a decree is interlocutory and nonappealable, or final and appealable [Belio v. Panorama Optics, Inc. (1995) 33 Cal. App.4th 1096, 1101, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 737 ; see Lyon v. Goss (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 659, 669-670, 123 P.2d 11].

Thus, it was held to be appropriate to allow plaintiff to appeal an order granting summary adjudication for defendant on one cause of action, for involuntary dissolution of a corporation, when the other two causes of action, for an accounting and to preserve corporate assets, were ancillary to the first one [Belio v. Panorama Optics, Inc. (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1096, 1099, 1102, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 737].

[c] When Summary Judgment or Summary Adjudication Is Denied

Orders denying a motion for summary judgment or denying a motion for summary adjudication are not appealable [see Federal Deposit Inc. Corpt. v. Dintino (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 333, 343, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 38 ; Gaillard v. Natomas Co. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1250, 1255 n.1, 256 Cal. Rptr. 702 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f), which permitted summary adjudication of "issues"); Mesnick v. Caton (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1248, 1255, 228 Cal. Rptr. 779 ; Holmes v. California State Auto. Assn. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 635, 640, 185 Cal. Rptr. 521]. For discussion concerning review of these orders, see § 537.44[1].

[2] Standard of Review

[a] Limited Use of Abuse of Discretion Standard

The correct standard for reviewing a summary judgment is independent review [Johnson v. City of Loma Linda (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 61, 65-68, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 316 ; Angell v. Peterson Tractor, Inc. (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 981, 985-986, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 541 ; Saldana v. Globe-Weis Systems Co. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1505, 1512-1514, 285 Cal. Rptr. 385 (noting that many cases continued to use abuse of discretion standard after Legislature amended Section 437c in 1973 to preclude the use of discretion in most situations, but that the appropriate standard was not a contested issue in those cases); see also Lindstrom v. Hertz Corp. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 644, 648, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 874 (de novo review; standard of review of grant of summary adjudication of issues is same as that applied to summary judgments); Lazar v. Hertz Corp. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1494, 1507 (on appeal from judgment after order granting summary adjudication, appellate court independently reviews trial court record)].

Review of a summary judgment has been held to be de novo even when based on a trial court ruling that is normally sustained if supported by substantial evidence [see Johnson v. Cityof Loma Linda (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 61, 67-68, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 316]. For example, the Supreme Court has held that a court of appeal erred by reviewing a trial court ruling on laches by the abuse of discretion standard when the finding of laches was the basis for an order granting summary judgment [Johnson v. City of Loma Linda (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 61, 67-68, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 316].

There are very limited circumstances in which the trial court has discretion in ruling on a Section 437c motion. These include granting additional time for discovery under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(h) and on the sole witness and mental state provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(e) [Krieger v. Nick Alexander Imports, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 212 n.3, 285 Cal. Rptr. 717 ; Saldana v. Globe-Weis Systems Co. (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1505, 1512 n.3, 285 Cal. Rptr. 385 ; see Scott v. CIBA Vision Corp. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 307, 313-314, 326, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 902 (when continuance not mandatory because conditions of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(h) not met, appellate court reviews trial court's denial of continuance under abuse of discretion standard); see also Fretland v. County of Humboldt (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1478, 1490, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359 (only rulings under Section 437c(e) are discretionary); Angell v. Peterson Tractor, Inc. (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 981, 985-986, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 541 (only rulings under Section 437c(e) discretionary); for discussion, see § 537.34[4][a] et seq.]. Evidentiary rulings on summary judgment are also reviewed for abuse of discretion [Jackson v. County of Los Angeles (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 171, 192 n.15, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 96 (citing Aguimatang v. California State Lottery (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 769, 798, 286 Cal. Rptr. 57); but see Nazir v. United Airlines (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 243, 251, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 296 (recognizing split of authority as to the issue and holding that trial court's sustaining of all but one of defendant's 764 objections, without explanation, was abuse of discretion); Gatton v. A.P. Green Services, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 688, 692, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 523 (when trial court sustains objection to deposition transcript based on inadmissible hearsay in connection with summary judgment motion, appellate court independently reviews deposition's admissibility and legal effect of facts properly presented)]. Furthermore, in the limited and exceptional circumstances where a trial court is required to exercise its discretion in passing on a motion for summary judgment, and grants or denies such a motion on the basis of its equitable determination of a question as to which the exercise of judicial discretion is proper, the standard of review on appeal necessarily is whether the trial court's decision amounted to an abuse of discretion [Dieden v. Schmidt (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 645, 654, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 365 (abuse of discretion standard applicable in motions for summary judgment involving determination by trial court of equitable subrogation); CentennialIns. Co. v. United States Fire Ins. Co. (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 105, 111, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 559 (abuse of discretion standard applicable in motions for summary adjudication involving determination by trial court of appropriate method of allocating defense costs among multiple liability insurance carriers, each insuring same insured); Prata v. Superior Court (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1135, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 296 (abuse of discretion standard applicable on review of motion for summary adjudication involving determination by trial court that the cause of action was not suitable as a class action under California Unfair Competition Law pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq.)]. In all other circumstances, it is legally and procedurally incorrect to apply an abuse of discretion standard [Angell v. Peterson Tractor, Inc. (1994) 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 541 ; Schrader v. Scott (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1679, 1683, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 433] .

[b] Independent Review Standard

The appellate court conducts a de novo review to determine whether any triable issues exist [Republic Indemnity Co. v. Schofield (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 220, 225, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 637 ; Union Bank v. Superior Court (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 573, 579, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 653 ; Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Maryland Casualty Co. (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1586, 1595, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 762 ; see Guz v. Bechtel Nat., Inc. (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 317, 334, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 352, 8 P.3d 1089] . In so doing, the appellate court considers all of the evidence set forth in the supporting and opposing papers, except that to which objections have been made and sustained by the trial court [Artiglio v. Corning Inc. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 604, 612, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 479, 957 P.2d 1313 ; see also Wilkins v. National Broadcasting Co. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1066, 1074, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329 (in conducting de novo review, appellate court considers only facts properly before trial court at time it ruled on motion)]. Because a summary judgment motion raises only questions of law regarding the construction and effect of the supporting and opposing papers, the appellate court independently reviews them on appeal, applying the same analysis required of the trial court [Barisich v. Lewis (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 12, 15-16, 275 Cal. Rptr. 331 ; Royster v. Cushman (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 65, 68, 261 Cal. Rptr. 458 ; see also Aetna Health Plans of Cal., Inc. v. Yucaipa-Calimesa Joint Unified School Dist. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1175, 1187, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672 (appellate court reviews issues of law de novo); accord Suidan v. County of San Diego (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 916, 921, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 535] . Conversely stated, although the appellate court must review a summary judgment motion by the same standards as the trial court, the appellate court independently determines as a matter of law the construction and effect of the facts presented [Sellery v. Cressey (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 538, 543, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 706 ; see also Sangster v. Paetkau (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 151, 163, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 66 (appellate court reviews evidence before trial court and independently determine its effect as matter of law); Quigley v. First Church of Christ Scientist (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1027, 1036, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 792 (appellate court examines facts presented to trial court and determines their effect as matter of law)].

Thus, the appellate court in practical effect assumes the role of the trial court and redetermines the merits of the motion [Martin Marietta Corp. v. Insurance Co. of North America (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1113, 1121, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 670 ; see Wolf v. Mitchell, Silberberg & Knupp (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1030, 1035, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 792 (appellate review follows same analysis required of trial court); Oliver v. County of Los Angeles (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1403, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 641 (appellate court applies same rules that trial court required to apply)]. The appellate court is notbound by the trial court's stated reasons. The appellate court reviews the trial court's ruling, not its rationale [Bernstein v. Consolidated American Ins. Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 763, 769, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 817 ; see Harris v. Mothers Against Drunk Driving (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 16, 20, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 833 (court considers validity of judgment, not reasons for which it was granted); see also 537.43[3][a]]. Moreover, in reviewing the matter de novo, the appellate court grants no particular deference to the trial court's ruling in order to independently determine whether the party was entitled to judgment as a matter of law [Romero v. American President Lines, Ltd. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1199, 1203, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 421 ; see Marshak v. Ballesteros (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1514, 1517, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1 ; Estate of Brenzikofer (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 1466, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 401] .

Examining evidence in light of summary judgment standards is far different from applying the substantial evidence test that often governs an appeal. In the context of judgment after trial, the evidence need only be sufficient to support the judgment for the winning party, even though the evidence might, in another reasonable mind, also have supported the judgment for the losing party. In the context of summary judgment, by contrast, the evidence must by incapable of supporting a judgment for the losing party to validate the summary judgment. Thus, even though it may appear that a trial court took a reasonable view of the evidence, a summary judgment cannot properly be affirmed unless a contrary view would be unreasonable as a matter of law in the circumstances presented [Binder v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 832, 838, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 540].

In determining the propriety of a summary judgment, the appellate court is limited to those facts shown by the evidentiary materials submitted, aswell as those admitted and uncontested in the pleadings [Spray, Gould & Bowers v. Associated Internat. Ins. Co. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1260, 1266, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 552 ; Aloha Pacific, Inc. v. California Ins. Guarantee Assn. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 297, 307, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148 (appellate review of summary judgment is limited to facts contained in documents presented to trial court); see also Rubenstein v. Rubenstein (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1131, 1151 n.10, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 707 (validity of summary judgment is to be determined solely by sufficiency of affidavits before court when motion was heard, and appellate court will consider only facts before trial court at time it ruled on motion)].

The court must reassess the legal significance and effect of the papers that the parties submitted in connection with the motion [Martin Marietta Corp. v. Insurance Co. of North America (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1113, 1121, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 670]. The moving party's affidavits and declarations are strictly construed whereas the opposing party's affidavits and declarations are liberally construed. All doubts are resolved against the moving party [Bernstein v. Consolidated American Ins. Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 763, 769, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 817 ; see Kelly v. First Astri Corp. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 462, 471, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810 (same rules with regard to moving and opposing party's evidence generally); Pieper v. Commercial Underwriters Ins., Co. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1008, 1015, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 551 (construction of papers); Van Dyke v. Dunker & Aced (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 446, 451, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 862 ; Campanano v. California Medical Center (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1322, 1327, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 606 (doubts about propriety of granting motion resolved in opposing party's favor); see also § 537.33[2][f]]. Conversely stated, all doubts whether any triable issues of fact exist are to be resolved in favor of the party opposing summary judgment [Martinez

v. County of Los Angeles (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 334, 341, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 772 ; see also Jang v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1291, 1295, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 917 (any doubts regarding propriety of awarding summary judgment are resolved in favor of party opposing summary judgment)].

The court seeks to find contradictions in the evidence or in inferences reasonably deducible from the evidence, which raise a triable issue of material fact [Assilzadeh v. California Federal Bank (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 399, 409, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 176 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)]. The court must consider the bare evidence and the reasonable inferences deducible from the evidence, and determine whether the evidence is sufficient to support a potential judgment in favor of the opposing party. The court therefore must consider what inferences favoring the opposing party a factfinder could reasonably draw from the evidence [Binder v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 832, 839-840, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 540].

The court considers uncontradicted inferences reasonably deducible from the evidence. If, however, the record can support competing inferences, or if the facts are not yet sufficiently developed, an ultimate finding cannot be made prior to a hearing on the merits and summary judgment is precluded [Artiglio v. Corning Inc. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 604, 612, 615, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 479, 957 P.2d 1313]. Thus, the court must consider presumptions and draw inferences from the facts adduced if the inference is the only one that may be drawn. The court, however, has no power in a summary proceeding to weigh one inference against another or against other evidence [Murillo v. Rite Stuff Foods, Inc. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 833, 841, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12 ; Pieper v. Commercial Underwriters Ins., Co. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1008, 1015, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 551].

The court accepts as undisputed facts only those portions of the moving party's evidence that are not contradicted by the opposing party's evidence. In other words, the facts alleged in the evidence by the party opposing summary judgment, and the reasonable inferences drawn therefrom, must be accepted as true [Sutherland v. Barclays American/Mortgage Corp. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 299, 309, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 614 ; accord Kelsey v. Waste Management of Alameda County (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 590, 594, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 510 ; Cross v. Bonded Adjustment Bureau (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 266, 278, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 801 ; see City of Santa Cruz v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 1167, 1176, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 198 (court regards facts as undisputed if not contradicted by opposing party's evidence)]. The court, however, does not decide the merits of the factual issue themselves [Marquez v. Enterprise Rent-A-Car (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 319, 322, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 557 ; see City of Santa Cruz v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 1167, 1188, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 198 (court's function is limited to issue finding not issue determination)].

The appellate court applies the same three-step analysis required of the trial court [Tahoe Vista Concerned Citizens v. Counter of Placer (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 577, 587-588, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 880 ; Monteleone v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 509, 515 ; Sweat v. Hollister (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 603, 607, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 399 ; Katz v. Chevron Corp. (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1352, 1364, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 681 ; see also Ojavan Investors, Inc. v. California Coastal Com. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 373, 385, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 803 (same three step analysis for appeal of summary adjudication of issue)]:

- The court identifies the issues framed by the pleadings.

- It determines whether the moving party has established facts sufficient to negate the opponent's claim and justify a judgment in the moving party's favor.

- If so, it determines whether the opposition demonstrates that a triable issue of material fact exists.

Some recent cases have stated the second step in the above analysis to be that the appellate court determines whether:

- The moving party has met its statutory burden of proof [see, e.g., Renna v. County of Fresno (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1, 5, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 586 ; Zavala v. Arce (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 915, 926, 68 Cal.

Rptr. 2d 571 ; see also Miscione v. Barton Development Co. (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1320, 1324-1325, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 280] .

- The moving party's showing has established facts which justify a judgment in the movant's favor [see, e.g., FNB Mortgage Corp. v. Pacific General Group (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1116, 1126, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841 ; Oliver v. AT&T Wireless Services (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 521, 528, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491] .

- Whether the moving party's showing has satisfied the moving party's burden of proof and justifies a judgment in the moving party's favor [see, e.g., Tibor v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1359, 1369, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 326 ; Brantley v. Pisaro (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1591, 1602, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 431] .

Although the opinions in these cases did not address the reason for this divergence from the language used in earlier cases, it appears to take into account the unsettled issue of the moving party's burden of proof under the 1992 and 1993 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 437c [but see Arciniega v. Bank of San Bernardino (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 213, 225, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 495 (second step calls for evaluation of the moving defendant's effort to meet its burden of showing that plaintiff's cause of action has no merit or that there is a complete defense to it; this phase has not changed, in practical effect, as a result of the 1992 and 1993 amendments to § 437c); criticized on another point in Rice v. Crow (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 725, 726, 737-741, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 110] . For discussion of moving party's burden of proof, see § 537.33[2][d]. Other recent appellate decisions, however, continue to state the second step in the analysis as indicated above, that is, the appellate court determines whether the moving party has established facts sufficient to negate the opponent's claim and justify a judgment in the moving party's favor [see, e.g., Victor v. Hedges (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 229, 234, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 466 ; City of San Jose v. Department of Health Services (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 35, 40, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 609 ; Ojavan Investors, Inc. v. California Coastal Com. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 373, 385, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 803 ; ; Bashi v. Wodarz (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1314, 1318, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 635] . The Supreme Court has not directly considered the issue (of what sort of evidence is sufficient to shift the burden under California's summary judgment statute) and has persisted in its use of the terminology of the older cases, thus perpetuating the doubts of the courts still contending that the historic requirement of "proving the negative" continues to burden the moving party [Scheiding v. Dinwiddie Construction Co. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 64, 81-82, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360]. Not all recent cases, however, are relevant to this question, because summary judgment motions filed and ruled on by a trial court prior to the effective date of the 1992 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 437c (January 1, 1993) are subjectto the standard of review according to the statute as it stood in 1992, prior to amendment [see Truck Ins. Exchange v. Bennett (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 75, 80, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 497].

In any event, if the defendant claims that the plaintiff cannot establish the cause of action pled because the defendant's affirmative evidence discloses facts that negate the existence of an essential element of the plaintiff's claim by proving the contrary is true, the court should evaluate defendant's evidence under the same strict standards which were held to apply to a defendant's attempt to disprove an element of the plaintiff's cause of action before the 1992 and 1993 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 437c, in order to avoid unjustly depriving the plaintiff of a trial [Tibor v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1359, 1368, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 326].

Moreover, the standard of independent review on appeal is applicable regardless of which rule for shifting burdens of production of evidence governs at trial. Of course, once a party bears the initial burden of demonstrating entitlement to a judgment as a matter of law, the opposing party cannot defeat summary judgment by attempting to raise a factual dispute as to immaterial issues [Romero v. American President Lines, Ltd. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1199, 1202-1203, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 421]. A summary judgment motion will not be defeated by the presence of a factual dispute unless the fact in dispute is material [Romero v. American President Lines, Ltd. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1199, 1202-1203, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 421], that is, it relates to a claim or defense in issue which could make a difference in the outcome [Los Angeles Nat. Bank v. Bank of Canton (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1267, 1274, 280 Cal. Rptr 831 ; see also Allyson v.

Department of Transportation (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 1304, 1317-1321, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 490 (summary judgment in favor of defendant granted when defendant's filings in support of its motion were sufficient to provide factual basis to make its affirmative defense available and thereby shift burden to plaintiff to demonstrate a triable issue of material fact concerning it and although plaintiff's filings in an effort to carry plaintiff's burden were extensive, none of plaintiff's filings were even remotely addressed to the dispositive issue framed by the pleadings; plaintiff's filings were all addressed to nonissues); Sutherland v. Barclays American/Mortgage Corp. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 299, 317, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 614 (papers filed in response to defendant's motion for summary judgment may not create issue outside the pleadings and are not a substitute for an amendment to the pleadings)].

Furthermore, the appellate court may bypass the three step analysis described above if the appellant does not contend that there are any disputed issues of material fact. When the sole issue raised on appeal is whether the trial court's ruling on an issue on law was erroneous, the appellate court need not address the issue of whether any triable issues of material fact exist [Henriksen v. City of Rialto (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1612, 1617 n.2, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 308 (over dissent)]. The analysis is also unnecessaryif the court need decide de novo only the question of the legal significance of the facts adduced by one party because the trial court sustained an objection to the other party's evidence [Beane v. Paulsen (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 89, 92-93, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 486 (objection to plaintiff's opposing affidavit sustained by trial court; also holding plaintiff cannot challenge this evidentiary ruling for first time in reply brief on appeal)].

[3] Scope of Review

[a] Affirmance on Any Legal Basis

The appellate court should affirm the trial court's judgment if it is correct on any theory of law applicable to the case, including but not limited to the theory the trial court adopted, provided the facts are undisputed [Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Maryland Casualty Co. (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1586, 1595, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 762 ; see Fretland v. County of Humboldt (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1478, 1490, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359]. The court must affirm so long as any of the grounds urged either on appeal or in the trial court, entitle the moving party to summary judgment [Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Maryland Casualty Co. (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1586, 1595, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 762 ; Ochoa v. California State University (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1304, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 768 (appellate court may affirm grant of summary judgment on any ground properly raised below, whether or not addressed by trial court); Oliver v. County of Los Angeles (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1403, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 641 (if appellate court finds there is no triable issue of material fact, court affirms summary judgment if it is correct on any legal theory whether on not trial court adopted that theory, and whether it was raised in trial court or first addressed on appeal); cf. Kramer v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 332, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 301 (appellate court may affirm on any legally correct theory provided plaintiffs had adequate opportunity to address theory in lower court)]. Even if the trial court granted summary judgment on an incorrect basis, the appellate court must affirm if it would have been proper on another ground [Salazar v. Southern Cal. Gas Co. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1370, 1376, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 522 ; Barkley v. City of Blue Lake (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 309, 313, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 679 ; see also Oliver v. AT&T Wireless Services (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 521, 528, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491 (if summary judgment was properly granted on any ground, appellate court must affirm regardless of whether trial court's reasoning correct); Barton v. Elexsys Internat., Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1182, 1187-1188, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 212 (if summary judgment is proper on grounds other those articulated by trial court, appellate court must nevertheless affirm)].

[b] Consideration of Legal Arguments Not Presented Below

An appellate court may consider a matter involving an issue of law on undisputed facts for the first time on appeal even if a party did not raise or argue the issue in the trial court. It makes no difference that the issue was first raised on appeal by the court rather than the parties, so long as the parties have been given a reasonable opportunity to address it [Tsemetzin v. Coast Federal Savings & Loan Assn. (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 1334, 1341 n.6, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726 ; see McManis v. San Diego Postal Credit Union (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 547, 559, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617 (rule that Court of Appeal will not consider points not raised in appellate brief largely for appellate court's convenience); Barczewski v. Commonwealth Land Title Ins. Co. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 406, 410, 258 Cal. Rptr. 386 (matters of law that will support trial court's ruling may be considered on appeal even if they were not presented in trial court); see also Neverkovec v. Fredericks (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 337, 347 n.6, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 856 (defendant's objection to plaintiff's reliance on theory that was not raised in plaintiff's summary judgment papers was proper and court had discretion to deem argument waived, but under circumstances choose to address issue, noting that defendant had opportunity to respond to it below); cf. Renna v. County of Fresno (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1, 6 n.1, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 586 (issues raised for first time in reply brief will not be considered on appeal); Kramer v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 332, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 301 (appellate court may affirm on any legally correct theory provided plaintiffs had adequate opportunity to address theory in lower court); Fretland v. County of Humboldt (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1478, 1489, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359 (as general rule, party cannot raise new theory of liability on appeal); Ochoa v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1480, 1488 n.3, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 232 (arguments not asserted below are waived and will not be considered for first time on appeal; moreover, if issue is not supported by pertinent or cognizable legal argument it may be deemed abandoned and discussion by reviewing court is unnecessary); 216 Sutter Bay Associates v. County of Sutter (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 860, 876, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 492 (issue waived for failure to brief it under a separate heading); Locke v. Warner Bros., Inc. (1997) 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 921 (ordinarily, appellants' failure to raise an issue in their opening brief waives issue on appeal)]. That is, the appellate court examines the facts presented to the trial court and independently determines their effect as a matter of law [Stratton v. First Nat. Life Ins. Co. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1071, 1083, 258 Cal. Rptr. 721 (reversing summary judgment)]. Nonetheless, review is limited to issues that have been adequately raised and supported in plaintiffs' brief; issues not raised in appellant's brief are deemed waived or abandoned [Reyes v. Kosha (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 451, 466 n.6, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 457 ; see also ML Direct, Inc. v. TIG Specialty Ins. Co. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 137, 146, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 846 (appellate court declined to reach two arguments raised for first time by appellants in their reply brief)].

In contrast, the appellate court, however, must consider only those facts before the trial court, disregarding any new factual allegations made forthe first time on appeal. Thus, possible theories that were not fully developed, factually presented and argued to the trial court cannot create a triable issue of material fact that may be raised or considered on appeal [Ashdown v. Ameron Internat. Corp. (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 868, 874, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20 ; Sangster v. Paetkau (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 151, 163, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 66 ; Havstad v. Fidelity National Title Ins. Co. (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 654, 661, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 487 ; see Barczewski v. Commonwealth Land Title Ins. Co. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 406, 410 (decisions resting on factual matters must first be addressed in trial court)].

[c] No Consideration of Evidence or Objections Not Raised Below

An appellate court may not consider evidentiary objections not raised in the trial court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(5), (d); Weil v. Federal Kemper Life Assurance Co. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 125, 149 n.9, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 316, 866 P.2d 774 ; see also § 537.25[4]]. All objections to the form and substance of the moving and opposing papers must first be made in the trial court and not on appeal by the parties or by the appellate court [Stats. 1990, ch. 1561, § 1]. However, in reviewing summary judgment, as in any other appeal, if a party's position depends on patently inadmissible evidence admitted over a proper objection, a reviewing court is empowered, and indeed obliged, to acknowledge the error and disregard the evidence [Mamou v. Trendwest Resorts, Inc. (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 686, 711, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 406] .

A reviewing court will not consider either additional facts not presented below or issues of law unsupported by the existing evidence [City of Oakland v. Hassey (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1477, 1489 n.5, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 621 (appellate court may properly decline to take judicial notice under Evid Code §§ 452 and 459 of a matter that should have been presented to the trial court for its consideration in the first instance); Green v. Green (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 37, 46, 30 Cal. Rptr. 23]. The reviewing court is limited to facts shown by the evidentiary material submitted, as well as those admitted and uncontested in the pleadings [Sanchez v. Swinerton & Walberg Co. (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 1466, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 415 ; see Monteleone v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 509, 514 (appellate court limited to facts presented in documents submitted to trial court); Della Zoppa v. Della Zoppa (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1144, 1149, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 901]. It can consider only those facts before the trial court disregarding any new allegations on appeal [Uriarte v. United States Pipe & Foundry Co. (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 780, 790, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 332]. Thus, possible theories that were not fully developed or factually presented to the trial court cannot create a triable issue on appeal [Zubia v. Farmers Ins. Exchange (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 790, 799, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 65 ; American Continental Ins. Co. v. C & Z Timber Co. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1271, 1281, 241 Cal. Rptr. 466 ; see Waisbren v. Peppercorn Productions, Inc. (1995) 41 Cal. App. 4th 246, 263, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 437 (plaintiff whose opposition papers in trial court did not make legal argument and whose separate statement did not set forth facts in support of that argument waived it as basis for opposing defendants summary judgment motion); see also Sanchez v. Swinerton & Walberg Co. (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 1465, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 415 (opposing party may not raise issue for first time on appeal); Crow v. State of California (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 192, 207, 271 Cal. Rptr. 349 (issues raised and then abandoned in the trial court cannot be considered on appeal)].

[4] When Reviewing Court May Direct Trial Court to Enter Judgment

When it appears from the record as a matter of law that there is only one proper judgment on undisputed facts, the reviewing court may direct the trial court to enter that judgment [Conley v. Matthes (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1453, 1459 n.7, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 518 (trial court directed to enter summary judgment in favor of appellant although they had not brought summary judgment motion in trial court, but only opposed it)].

[5] Lack of Statement of Reasons in Trial Court Opinion

While a trial court's failure to provide a sufficient statement of reasons is not automatic grounds for reversal, an appellate court may reverse a trial court's granting of summary adjudication where the court makes no oral of written statement for the reasons for its decision and the appellate court is prevented from undertaking a meaningful review of the issues [Santa Barbara Pistachio Ranch v. Chowchilla Water District (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 439, 449, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 856 (defendant's successful motion for summary adjudication reversed)].

§ 537.44 Review of Summary Proceeding by Peremptory Writ

[1] When Summary Judgment or Summary Adjudication Has Been Denied

Any order entered under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c, except the entry of summary judgment, may be reviewed by petition to an appropriate reviewing court for a peremptory writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(m)(l)]. Thus, a petition for a peremptory writ of mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(m)(l) is the appropriate means to obtain immediate review of otherwise nonappealable orders denying motions for summary judgment or summary adjudication [see, e.g., West Shield Investigations & Security Consultants v. Superior Court (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 935, 946, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 612 ; Travelers Casualty & Surety Co. v. Superior Court (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1440, 1450, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 54 ; see also Sierra Craft, Inc. v. Magnum Enterprises, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1252, 1256, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 681 (order denying summary judgment not appealable under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1; reviewable only by petition for extraordinary writ); but see Federal Deposit Ins. Corp. v. Dintino (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 333, 343, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 38 (holding order denying summary judgment or summary adjudication may be reviewed on direct appeal from a final judgment entered after trial); Exxon Corp. v. Superior Court (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1672, 1679-1680, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 195 (pretrial writ review of denial of defendant's motion for summary adjudication on various causes of action was appropriate when issues ruled on by trial court contain heart of plaintiffs' case and trial might well be simplified if it is found that trial court erred)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Mandate When Motion Denied. A movant for summaryjudgment submits supporting affidavits that are sufficient to sustain judgment. The opposing party does not by counter-affidavit show facts sufficient to present a triable issue of fact. The trial court denies the motion. Is mandate proper to compel the trial court to grant the motion? Yes [see Rose v. Fife (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 760, 764-765 n.4, 255 Cal. Rptr. 440].

Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(m)(l) codifies prior decisional law, but does not otherwise change the standards employed by appellate courts in deciding whether or not to entertain a writ of mandate on its merits [Parsons Manufacturing Corp. v. Superior Court (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 1151, 1156 n.1, 203 Cal. Rptr. 419]. The standard of review on a peremptory writ is the same as that applicable on appeal [see § 537.43[2][a] (abuse of discretion standard of review); Parsons Manufacturing Corp. v. Superior Court (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 1151, 1156-1157, 203 Cal. Rptr. 419].

On review of a denial of a motion for summary judgment, the appellate court may compel the trial court to issue an order granting the motion if it determines that such an order is proper [Reader's Digest Assn. v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 244, 690 P. 2d 610 ,; see Travelers Casualty & Surety Co. v. Superior Court (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1440, 1450, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 54 (directing trial court to vacate order denying defendants summary adjudication motion and to enter new and different order granting motion as to particular causes of action); accord Exxon Corp. v. Superior Court (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1672, 1679-1680, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 195]. When the superior court's ruling on summary judgment will result in a trial on nonactionable claims, a writ of mandate will lie to preserve the resources of the court and parties [Feminist Women's Health Center v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1234, 1238, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 187 ; see West Shield Investigations & Security Consultants v. Superior Court (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 935, 946, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 612]. Similarly, a writ of mandate may issue to prevent trial of nonactionable claims after the erroneous denial of a motion for summary adjudication [Travelers Casualty & Surety Co. v. Superior Court (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1440, 1450, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 54].

Before issuing a peremptory writ in the first instance, the petitioner or the appellate court must notify the party adversely affected that the issuance of the writ is being sought or considered. In addition, the appellate court, absent exceptional circumstances, should not issue the peremptory without having received or solicited opposition from the party adversely affected [Palma v. U.S. Industrial Fasteners, Inc. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 171, 180, 203 Cal. Rptr. 626, 681 P.2d 893 .]

[2] When Summary Adjudication Has Been Granted

An order granting a summary adjudication is not an appealable order, but it may be reviewed by mandate [City of Oakland v. Superior Court(1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 740, 750, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 120 ; see, e.g., Kendall-Jackson Winery, Ltd. v. Superior Court (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 970, 974, 989, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 743 ; Southern Cal. Edison Co. v Superior Court (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 839, 843, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 227]. Review is limited to the facts contained in the documents presented to the trial court [Federal Deposit Ins. Corp. v. Superior Court (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 337, 345, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 713]. Usually an interim order must await review on appeal from a final judgment. In cases of significant legal impact, however, an appellate court may consider a petition for an extraordinary writ, with the appellate court having broad discretion to grant or deny the writ [City of Oakland v. Superior Court (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 740, 750, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 120].

A trial court has no discretion on a motion for summary adjudication and must either grant the motion if no triable issue of material fact exists, or deny the motion if a triable issue of material fact exists. A trial court that errs has made an error in law which automatically constitutes an abuse of discretion. Under these circumstance it may be proper to obtain relief by means of mandate. If it appears that the trial court has erred, the appellate court may exercise its discretion to entertain the writ to avoid unnecessary trial court proceedings [City of Oakland v. Superior Court (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 740, 751, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 120].

If the order granting summary adjudication effectively disposes of the entire case, it may be appealable [see California Ass'n of Psychology Providers v. Rank (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 1, 9, 270 Cal. Rptr. 796, 793 P.2d 2]. For discussion of when an appeal may be appropriate, see § 537.43[1][b].

If a case is dismissed for failure to diligently prosecute, the plaintiff cannot, on appeal of the order of dismissal, obtain review of an earlier, nonappealable summary adjudication order that would otherwise have been reviewed on an appeal from a final judgment on the merits [Vernon v. Great Western Bank (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1007, 1013-1015, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 350 (noting that if the dismissal is reversed, the summary adjudication order would be reviewable later in an appeal from the final judgment)].

[3] Time Limits for Seeking Review

On entry of any order under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c except the entry of summary judgment, a party may, within 20 days after service on him or her of a written notice of entry of the order, petition an appropriate reviewing court for a peremptory writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(m)(l)]. This 20-day period is extended as follows [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(m)(l)]:

- When service is by mail, by five days if the place of address is in California, by 10 days if the place of address is outside California, and by 20 days if outside the United States.

- When service is by facsimile transmission, Express Mail, or another method of overnight delivery, by two court days.

The limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(m)(l) is mandatory and jurisdictional [see Eldridge v. Superior Court (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1350, 1353, 256 Cal. Rptr. 724 ; see also Sentry Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 526, 529-530, 255 Cal. Rptr. 13 (express statutory time limit does not apply to petition for review of related motions to shorten time for hearing summary judgment motion and to continue trial date to allow for summary judgment hearing; such petition is subject to the defense of laches)].

Ordinarily, counsel for the prevailing party will serve a copy of the notice of entry of the trial court's order on counsel for the adverse party or on the party if he or she has no attorney [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1015, 1019.5(a)]. However, the mailing of a copy of the court's minute order by the court clerk constitutes written notice of entry of the order and is sufficient to commence the running of the 20-day period under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(m)(l). When this is done, an additional notice by counsel is unnecessary to commence the running of the 20-day period [see Schmidt v. Superior Court (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 56, 60, 254 Cal. Rptr. 827 (decided under prior version of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(m)(l) that provided for 10-day, instead of 20-day, initial notice period); see also Woo v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 169, 173, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20 (date of service by mail by regular trial clerk on all parties of the final signed ruling held to be date of written notice of order denying motion for purpose of computing time under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(m)(l) despite earlier service by mail by substitute trial clerk of draft ruling not signed by trial judge together with original proof of service)].

The same is true when the clerk mails a file-stamped copy of an order denying a motion for summary adjudication. Notice by counsel under such circumstances is unnecessary to provide notice of entry of the order under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(m)(l). Notice by counsel would, however, be necessary under Code Civ. Proc. § 1019.5, unless waived by the parties [Eldridge v. Superior Court (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1350, 1353 n.1, 256 Cal. Rptr. 724].

If the clerk serves on a party an unfiled copy of the order, or any order that does not indicate that it has been entered, that order does not constitute notice of entry of the order under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(l) [Eldridge v. Superior Court (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1350, 1353, 256 Cal. Rptr. 724].

The superior court may, for good cause, and prior to the expiration of the initial period, extend the time for one additional period not to exceed 10 days [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(m)(l)]. An order granting an extension of time to file is timely if it is issued within the initial period [Schmidt v. Superior Court (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 56, 61, 254 Cal. Rptr. 827].

The filing in the trial court of a motion for reconsideration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1008 does not automatically extend the time limit for filing the writ petition [see Schmidt v. Superior Court (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 56, 61, 254 Cal. Rptr. 827].

Thus, in light of the above, when a superior court case is transferred to municipal court after a plaintiff's surviving causes of action fall below the superior court's jurisdictional amount, a plaintiff may seek writ of review of any summary adjudication and transfer order within the period specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(m)(l) in an attempt to retain the matter in superior court. If the plaintiff does not seek a writ, or a writ is denied, and the plaintiff elects to appeal from the superior court's final disposition of the matter, the plaintiff may move the superior court to enter a final judgment as to the summarily adjudicated causes of action if the court has not already entered its final judgment sua sponte. The plaintiff must then timely appeal from that final superior court judgment without waiting for the municipal court's disposition of the remaining causes of action since the courts of appeal ordinarily do not have jurisdiction over municipal court judgments, and thus, there would be no purpose in delay [Eckhart v. Genuine Parts Distributors (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 1340, 1345, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 487 (rejecting Uptain v. Duarte (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1258, 254 Cal. Rptr. 150 , which held that a party may file a notice of appeal from a superior court's partial dismissal order when a case is transferred to municipal court despite the absence of an actual final judgment by the superior court, as being and inconsistent with efficient working of judicial system and contrary to the rule that a partial dismissal order is nonappealable and as unecessary given other adequate procedures for appellate review)].

[4] Reviewing Court to Permit Supplemental Briefs in Certain Situations

Effective January 1, 2003, Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(m)(2) provides that before a reviewing court affirms an order granting summary judgment or summary adjudication on a ground not relied upon by the trial court, the reviewing court shall afford the parties an opportunity to present their views on the issue by submitting supplemental briefs. The statute provides that the supplemental briefing may include an argument that additional evidence relating to the ground exists, but that the party has not had an adequate opportunity to present the evidence or to conduct discovery on the issue. The new code subsection further provides that the court may reverse or remand based upon the supplemental briefing to allow the parties to present additional evidence or to conduct discovery on the issue. If the court fails to allow supplemental briefing, a rehearing shall be ordered upon timely petition of any party.

§ 537.54 Decisions

[1] Amendment of Pleadings

If either party finds, on hearing of summary judgment motion, that his or her pleading is not adequate, either by way of allegation or denial, court as permitted to, and should, permit party to amend; but absent some request for amendment, no occasion exists to inquire about possible issues not raised by pleadings. College Hospital, Inc. v. Superior Court (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 704, 719, n.5, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 898, 882 P.2d 894 ; Bostrom v. County of San Bernardino (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 1654, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669 ; Woodland Hills Homeowners Organization v. Los Angeles Community College Dist. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 79, 89 n.4, 266 Cal. Rptr. 767

To create triable issue of material fact, opposition evidence must be directed to issues raised by pleadings; in negligence action arising from off-road accident, court rejected plaintiff's implied contention that he could seek leave to amend his pleading for first time on appeal and that trial court erred by not considering his allegations outside his complaint that defendant's conduct was reckless, where plaintiff did not assert on appeal, nor did record show, that he sought leave to amend his complaint before hearing on defendant's summary judgment motion; likewise, plaintiff's contention that primary assumption of risk doctrine did not bar his action because dune buggy driver owed him statutory duties of care under Veh. Code §§ 38305 and 38316 was procedurally defective because he failed to allege in complaint that driver's conduct violated any statutory duties owed to him; although motorcyclist argued in written opposition to summary judgment motion that driver breached legal duties imposed by Veh. Code §§ 38305 and 38316, he made no showing on appeal that he sought leave of court, before summary judgment motion hearing, to amend his complaint to allege such claims. Distefanov. Forester (2001) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1249, 1264-1266, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 813 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Motion for summary judgment must be directed to issues raised by the pleadings; papers filed in response to defendant's motion for summary judgment may not create issues outside pleadings and are not substitute for amendment to pleadings. Tsemetzin v. Coast Federal Savings & Loan Assn. (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 1334, 1342, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726

[2] Availability of Summary Judgment

[a] On Motion Only

On appeal from summary judgment, reviewing court as lacking jurisdiction to reverse with instruction to enter judgment for opposing party if latter failed to move for summary judgment. Dvorin v. Appellate Dep't of Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 648, 650-651, 125 Cal. Rptr. 771, 542 P.2d 1363

[b] On Stipulation

Proceeding for summary judgment as proper when parties agree on facts and merely seek resolution of issues of law. T.M. Cobb Co. v. County of Los Angeles (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 606, 612, 128 Cal. Rptr. 655, 547 P.2d 431 ; Dixon v. Salvation Army (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 463, 464, 191 Cal. Rptr. 111 ; County of Riverside v. Idyllwild County Water Dist. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 655, 657, 148 Cal. Rptr. 650

Mere fact that both sides move for summary judgment as not establishing that there is no triable issue of material fact; trial court as empowered to make an independent determination on this point before proceeding to decide any questions of law. Coast Elevator Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 576, 583-584, 118 Cal. Rptr. 818 (disapproved on another ground in Culligan Water Conditioning v. State Bd. of Equalization (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 86, 93 n.4, 130 Cal. Rptr. 321, 550 P.2d 593)

[c] Procedural Limitations

Case management order in complex litigation case was invalid to extent it precluded party from filing Code Civ. Proc. § 437c motion by setting up procedure for resolving choice of law issues involved in dispositive motions before motions themselves could be filed, contravened section 437c; once party has filed motion, however, under facts presented, court had inherent power to defer hearing of motion until it first decided myriad choice of law issues potentially involved in case; trial court may not establish procedure for deferred hearing of section 437c motions in every complex case; each case must be examined individually to determine propriety of case management order issued in that case. First State Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 324, 330-336, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 104

When court of appeal decided, on the merits of the parties arguments, that trial court correctly entered judgment, held that it would serve no useful purpose at that point for court of appeal to reverse on basis of trial court denial of oral argument at hearing. Victor v. Hedges (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 229, 244-245, 245 n.18, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 466 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Local court policy forcing party wishing to make Code Civ. Proc. § 437c motion for summary judgment to consult first with trial judge and other party and agree on procedure different from that provided by statute improperly interferes with party's right to move for summary judgment or summary adjudication of issue at any time pursuant to established procedures, and is invalid. Lokeijak v. City of Irvine (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 341, 344, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 429

Because summary judgment is drastic remedy, it is important that all procedural requirements be satisfied before trial court grants it; thus, local rules may not provide shortcut for these requirements; local court rule allowing court to grant summary judgment to party opposing motion without having made cross motion was inconsistent with Code Civ. Proc. § 437c and thus, invalid. Sierra Craft, Inc. v. Magnum Enterprises, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1252, 1256, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 681

Amended complaint as superseding original complaint; therefore, grant of summary judgment on first complaint after amended complaint had been filed as error and order as void. Perry v. Atkinson (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 14, 18, 240 Cal. Rptr. 402

Hearing on motion for summary judgment less than 45 days before trial as not violating statutory time frame of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c when scheduled pursuant to court order based on good cause shown. Mann v. Columbia Pictures, Inc. (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 628, 632-633, 180 Cal. Rptr. 522 (construing Code Civ. Proc. § 437c prior to 1983 amendment changing time period to 30 days)

Summary judgment is available before defendant has filed answer, so long as defendant has otherwise made general appearance. Snider v. Snider (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 741, 746-747, 19 Cal. Rptr. 709

[d] Antitrust Cases

While summary judgment should be used sparingly in complex antitrust cases, caution does not equal prohibition, and summary judgment remains available to defendants in antitrust cases in appropriate instances. Fisherman's Wharf Bay Cruise Corp. v. Superior Court (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 309, 321, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 628

[e] Mandamus Proceedings

Summary adjudication is not available in mandamus proceedings in which court's review is limited to the evidence contained in the administrative record; court must review all evidence already in record in disposing of claim that agency's decision is not supported by the record. Dunn v. County of Santa Barbara (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 1281, 1292, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 316

[3] Burden of Proof

Burden of persuasion remains with the party moving for summary judgment. When the defendant moves for summary judgment, in those circumstances in which the plaintiff would have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence, thedefendant must present evidence that would preclude a reasonable trier of fact from finding that it was more likely than not that the material fact was true or the defendant must establish that an elementof the claim cannot be established, by presenting evidence that the plaintiff does not possess and cannot reasonably obtain, needed evidence. Kahn v. East Side Union High School Dist. (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 990, 1003, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 103, 75 P.3d 30

Defendant meets burden of persuasion by showing that one or more elements of plaintiff's cause of action cannot be established or that there is complete defense to that cause of action; although defense is no longer required to conclusively negate an element of cause of action, defendant must show through evidence and not merely point out, that plaintiff does not possess and cannot reasonably obtain needed evidence; if burden is met, burden shifts to plaintiff to present evidence making out prima facie showing of existence of a triable issue of material fact. Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 850-855, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493

Applicable burden of proof for a summary judgment motion is same as it would be at trial. Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 851, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493

Moving plaintiff meets burden if he or she proves each element of the cause of action; moving plaintiff need not disprove any defense asserted by defendant. Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 853, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493 (dicta)

Plaintiff sued the owners of an apartment complex after she was criminally assaulted on the premises and claimed that defendant's failure to take proper security precautions was the proximate cause of her damages; motion for summary judgment granted because plaintiff was unable to provide evidence of causation since she had no evidence showing the identity of her assailants, whether they were trespassers or tenants, whether the security gate was broken, or whether defendant could reasonably have warned the public of unspecified dangers from unknown assailants; declaration of plaintiff's security expert based on same evidence was equally speculative since he equally unaware of assailants' identities and his opinion regarding causation was too tenuous to create a triable issue. Saelzler v. Advanced Group 400 (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 763, 780-781, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617

Amended language of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c like its federal counterpart, now places initial burden on moving party, and shifts it to opposing party on showing that one or more elements of cause of action cannot be established. Saelzler v. Advanced Group 400 (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 763, 767-768, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d. 617, 23 P.3d 1143 , quoting with approval Scheiding v. Dinwiddie Construction Co. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 64, 71-72, 83-84, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360 (reversing judgment of court of appeal with directions to affirm award of summary judgment for defendants)

Defendant adduced, in support of its motion for summary judgment, affirmative evidence which, unless materially contradicted or rebutted, would establish that each of plaintiff's causes of action lacked merit; burden then shifted to plaintiff to show existence of one or more triable issues of material fact and as to each cause of action plaintiff submitted or pointed to evidence which, in plaintiff's view, indicated such triable issues; thus, as to each count of plaintiff's complaint, issue on appellate review is simply whether, and to what extent, evidence submitted for and against motion for summaryjudgment discloses issues warranting trial. Guz v. Bechtel Nat., Inc. (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 317, 335 n.7, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 352, 8 P.3d 1089 (summary judgment for defendant proper except as to one claim; remanded to court of appeal)

Under 1992 and 1993 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 437c, defendant moving for summary judgment has met burden of showing that cause of action has no merit if that party has shown that one or more elements of plaintiff's cause of action cannot be established; once defendant satisfies this obligation, burden shifts to plaintiff to show that a triable issue of one or more material facts exist to that cause of action or a defense thereto; both trial court and appellate apply these principles in resolving summary judgment motions. Green v. Ralee Engineering Co. (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 66, 72, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16, 960 P.2d 1046 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Moving defendant meets burden of showing lack of merit of plaintiff's claim by negating one of the elements of plaintiff's cause of action. Dekens v. Underwriters Laboratories, Inc. (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 1177, 1185, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 699

For summary judgment purposes, a deposition objection and instruction not to answer are not the equivalent of a factually devoid response, and therefore cannot be used to shift the burden from the moving defendant to the plaintiff. Gaggero v. Yura (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 884, 892-893, 134 Cal. Rptr.2d 313 .

Moving party's "simply pointing to" absence of evidence supporting plaintiff's position is not in itself enough to obtain summary judgment in its favor and there must be some "affirmative showing" by moving defendant that plaintiff could not obtain such evidence, before summary judgment would be proper; in cases in which opposing party (usually plaintiff) has been thwarted in attempt to obtain evidence that might create issue of material fact, or discovery is incomplete, motion for summary judgment should not be granted; thus conclusory statements in declarations from three attorneys and company executive stating that alter ego and agency allegations of complaint were untrue were insufficient to furnish basis for granting summary judgment to defendants, nor did they shift burden of proof to plaintiff. Krantz v. BT Visual Images, L.L.C. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 164, 170-175, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 209 (reversing partial summary judgment/summary adjudication for defendants)

Defendant seeking summary judgment bears initial burden of proving cause of action has no merit by showing that one or more elements of plaintiff's cause of action cannot be established or there is complete defense; once defendant's burden is met, burden shifts to plaintiff to show that triable issue of fact exists as to that cause of action; in employment discrimination action each of decision makers who decided not to rehire former employee explained in declaration under penalty of perjury specific job-related reasons why he was not qualified for position at issue and why candidate selected for position was better qualified--at this point, to avoid summary judgment, plaintiff had to offer substantial evidence that employer's stated nondiscriminatory reason for adverse action was untrue or pretextual, or evidence employer acted with discriminatory animus, or combination of two,such that reasonable trier of fact could conclude employer engaged in intentional discrimination; employee in this situation cannot simply show employer's decisionwas wrong, mistaken, or unwise but must demonstrate such weaknesses, implausibilities, inconsistencies, incoherencies, or contradictions in employer's proffered legitimate reasons for its action that reasonable factfinder could rationally find them unworthy of credence and, therefore, infer that employer did not act for asserted nondiscriminatory reasons. Morgan v. Regents of University of California (2000) 88 Cal. App. 4th 52, 74-80, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d. 652 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

If defendant's moving papers establish prima facie showing that justifies judgment, burden then shifts to plaintiff to demonstrate existence of material factual issue; defendant's papers are strictly construed, while plaintiff's papers are liberally construed, and court must be convinced that under no possible hypothesis within reasonable purview of complaint's allegations is there material question of fact that requires examination by trial; if defendant fails to meet this burden, it is unnecessary to examine plaintiff's opposing evidence; motion must be denied. City of Santa Cruz v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 1167, 1175-1176, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 198 (summary judgment for defendants reversed as to some defendants and affirmed as to other defendants)

Defendant moving for summary judgment may disprove at least one essential element of plaintiff's cause of action or show that plaintiff cannot establish an element of cause of action; once moving party has met that burden, opposing party bears burden of presenting evidence that there is triable issue of fact as to any essential element of cause of action. Martinez v. Bank of America (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 883, 887-888, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 576 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Moving party bears burden of establishing by declarations and evidence, complete defense to plaintiff's action or absence of essential element of plaintiff's case; moving party must demonstrate that under no hypothesis is there material factual issue requiring trial; when defendant, as moving party, makes that showing, burden of proof shifts to plaintiff, as opposing party, to show, by responsive separate statement and admissible evidence, that triable issues of fact exist. Assilzadeh v. California Federal Bank (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 399, 408, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 176 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Summary judgment motions are granted if all papers submitted show there is no triable issue as to any material fact and moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law; moving defendant meets this burden by negating essential element of plaintiff's case, by establishing complete defense, or by demonstrating absence of evidence to support plaintiff's case; once moving defendant has met this initial burden, burden shifts to plaintiff to show that triable issue of one or more material facts exists; thus, until defendant in first instance establishes right to relief defendant sought, plaintiff has no burden to produce evidence or to disprove anything at all. Rubenstein v. Rubenstein (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1131, 1142, 1152, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 707 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Defendant must show that under no possible hypothesis within reasonable purview of complaint's allegations is there material fact that requires examination by trial; if defendant makes that showing, court must look at plaintiff's papers to determine whether they demonstrate existence of triable, material factual issue. Dimock v. Emerald Properties (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 868, 873-874, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 255 (summary judgments for defendants reversed)

Moving defendant is not entitled to summary judgment unless he or she negates all theories of liability pleaded by plaintiff. Juarez v. Boy Scouts of America, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 377, 393, 397, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed except for one cause of action against two defendants that was reversed)

Defendant moving for summary judgment meets its burden of proof when it shows there is complete defense to action; once defendant does so, burden shifts to plaintiff to show existence of triable issue of fact with respect to that defense; moving party's affidavits are strictly construed and opposing party's are liberally construed. Alvarez v. State of California (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 720, 727, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 719 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

In legal malpractice action, plaintiff's nonresponsive answer to interrogatory did not constitute "factually devoid" discovery to shift burden to plaintiff on question of causation of plaintiff's damages, since discovery did not call for information on that subject, or for other information from which information on that subject could be deduced; to extent nonresponsive information was provided which might have born on question of causation, since it was not called for by interrogatory, it would be speculation to determine what response would have been provided to question squarely asking about plaintiff's damages; court cannot assume that all information was provided to an interrogatory that was not propounded. Gulf Ins. Co. v. Berger, Kahn,Shafton, Moss, Figler, Simon & Gladstone (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 114, 125, 133-136, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Defendant seeking summary judgment must prove either affirmative defense, disprove at least one element of plaintiff's cause of action, or show that some such element cannot be established; opposing party need not prove his or her case; it is enough to show that a triable issue of material exists. Government Employees Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 95, 100, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 820 (review by writ proceeding; trial court should have granted summary judgment for defendant)

Pleadings define issues to be considered on motion for summary judgment; as to each claim framed by complaint, defendant must present facts to negate essential element or establish defense; only then will burden shift to plaintiff to demonstrate existence of triable, material issue of fact. American Golf Corp. v. Superior Court (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 30, 35, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 683 (review by writ proceeding; trial court directed to enter new and different order granting summary judgment for defendant)

Moving defendant must demonstrate through admissible evidence that one or more essential elements of the cause of action cannot be established; once defendant has made such a showing, burden shifts to plaintiff to produce evidence that a triable issue of fact exists as to an essential element of cause of action. Renna v. County of Fresno (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1, 5, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 586 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Moving party bears burden of establishing, by declarations and evidence, complete defense to plaintiff's action or absence of essential element of plaintiff's case; moving party must demonstrate that under no hypothesis is there material factual issue requiring trial; when moving party makes that showing, burden shifts to opposing party to show, by responsive separate statement and admissible evidence, that triable issues of fact exist. Ostayan v. Serrano Reconveyance Co. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1411, 1418, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 577 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

To prevail on summary judgment motion, defendant must show that one or more elements of plaintiff's cause of action cannot be established or that there is complete defense to that cause of action. Pardee Construction Co. v. Insurance Co. of the West (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1340, 1349 n.3, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 443 (judgment for three defendants whose motions for judgment on pleadings were granted after summary adjudication in their favor reversed as to two of them with directions that trial court grant plaintiff's motions for summary adjudication; judgment for remaining defendant affirmed)

When plaintiff is moving party, appellate court determines whether plaintiff has met its burden under former Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(o)(1) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 437(p)) of showing there is no defense to cause of action because admissible evidence produced by plaintiff proves each element of cause of action entitling party to judgment on that cause of action; if moving party has met its statutory burden of proof and summary judgment motion prima facie justifies a judgment, burden shifts to opposing party and appellate court determines whether that party has met its burden under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c; when defendants are opposing parties, appellate court determines whether they have met their burden under former Code Civ. Proc.§ 437c(o)(1)(2) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(p)), of producing admissible evidence showing that a triable issue of one or more material facts exists as to that cause of action or a defense to it. Riverside County Community Facilities Dist. v. Bainbridge 17 (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 644, 653, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29 (summary judgment for plaintiff affirmed)

Defendant moving for summary judgment must demonstrate that one or more elements of cause of action cannot be established or that there is complete defense to that cause of action; it is then up to plaintiff to show that triable issue of material fact exists as to that cause of action or defense; defendants did not meet their burden on their summary judgment motion with regard to element of duty while plaintiff in plaintiff's motion for summary adjudication met its burden of completely disposing of issue of duty. Novak v. Low, Ball & Lynch (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 278, 281, 285, 285 n.5, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 453 (summary judgment for defendants reversed and trial court directed to grant summary adjudication of issue of duty for plaintiff)

When defendant attorneys' summary judgment motion attempted to show complete defense because plaintiff trust beneficiary was not real party in interest and burden shifted to plaintiff to set forth specific facts showing that triable issue of material fact existed to defense relied on, plaintiff did not have to offer evidence proving claims to establish standing, but rather to establish facts showing that plaintiff was real party in interest for purposes of asserting those claims and seeking those damages. Wolf v. Mitchell, Silberberg & Knupp (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1030, 1041, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 792 (summary judgment for defendants reversed)

With regard to summary adjudication motion, moving party plaintiff had to show there was no evidence to support defendant's unclean hands affirmative defense; once plaintiff met this burden, burden shifted to defendant to set forth specific facts showing triable issue of material fact existed as to defense. Kendall-Jackson Winery, Ltd. v. Superior Court (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 970, 978, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 743 (summary adjudication in plaintiff's favor overturned on writ of mandate)

In medical malpractice cases, when defendant doctor moves for summary judgment and supports motion with expert declaration that his or her conduct fell within community standard of care, he or she is entitled to summary judgment unless plaintiff comes forward with conflicting expert evidence. Hanson v. Grode (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 601, 603-604, 607, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 396 (summary judgment for defendants reversed)

To prevail on motion for summary judgment, defendant must demonstrate plaintiff's cause of action has no merit; this requirement can be satisfied by showing either one or more of its elements cannot be established or that complete defense exists to it; once defendant meets this requirement, burden shifts to plaintiff to demonstrate a triable issue of material fact exists. Brinton v. Bankers Pension Services, Inc. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 550, 555, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 469 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Even though plaintiff bears burden of proof at trial, moving defendant bears initial burden of showing lack of any triable factual issue; responding plaintiff has no evidentiary burden unless moving defendant has first met its initial burden; only after moving defendant meets its initial burden does burden shift to plaintiff to demonstrate existence of triable issue. Binder v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 832, 839-840, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 540 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Moving party bears burden of proving that claims of adverse party are entirely without merit on any legal theory; opposition must demonstrate only existence of at least one triable issue of fact and all doubts as to propriety of granting motion must be resolved in favor of party opposing motion. Campbell v. Derylo (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 823, 826, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 519 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Defendant moving for summary judgment may establish that an essential element of cause of action is absent by reliance on pleadings, competent declarations, binding judicial admission contained in allegations of plaintiff's complaint, responses or failure to respond to discovery, and testimony of witnesses at noticed depositions; plaintiff may not rely on his or her pleadings alone, but must file opposition to motion, with affidavits setting forth specific facts demonstrating that triable issue of material fact exists as to cause of action or defense; thus, when parties have had sufficient opportunity adequately to develop their factual cases through discovery and defendant has made a sufficient showing that plaintiff's action has no merit, to avert summary judgment plaintiff must produce substantial responsive evidence sufficient to establish existence of triable issue of material fact on issues raised by plaintiff's cause of action. Eisenberg v. Alameda Newspapers, Inc. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1359, 1375-1376, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 802 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

To obtain summary judgment on ground that general release has discharged third party from liability, third party must affirmatively show parties intended to release him or her; burden of proof is on third party under both contract law and summary judgment statute; when defendant moved for summary judgment contending general release relieved defendant from liability and plaintiff responded that extrinsic evidence showed parties never intended to release defendant, even if release was sufficient to shift burden of proof to plaintiff, extrinsic evidence before court raised triable issue regarding parties' intent to release defendant. Neverkovec v. Fredericks (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 337, 341-344, 349, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 856 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Under the 1992-1993 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 437c, defendant seeking summary judgment need only demonstrate plaintiff's case has no merit to shift burden to plaintiff to demonstrate existence of triable issue of material fact. Myricks v. Lynwood Unified School Dist. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 231, 238, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 734 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Moving defendant's burden does not shift until defendant carries initial burden to show essential element of cause of action cannot be established; if moving defendant argues that it has complete defense to plaintiff's cause of action, defendant has initial burden to show undisputed facts support each element of affirmative defense; once it does so, burden shifts to plaintiff to show issue of fact concerning at least one element of defense; in employment discrimination action, once employer makes sufficient showing of legitimate reason for discharge, then discharged employee seeking to avert summary judgment must demonstrate by additional facts or legal argument that defendant's showing was in fact insufficient or by competent evidentiary materialsthat there was triable issue of fact material to defendant's showing; with respect to latter choice, employee must produce substantial responsive evidence that employer's showing was untrue or pretextual; speculation cannot be regarded as substantial responsive evidence. Hanson v. Lucky Stores, Inc. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 215, 223-225, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 487 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

If motion for summary judgment is supported by affidavits sufficient to sustain motion, burden shifts to party opposing motion to show triable issue of material fact exists; party cannot avoid summary judgment based on mere speculation and conjecture, but must produce admissible evidence raising a triable issue of material fact. Vournas v. Fidelity Nat. Tit. Ins. Co. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 668, 672 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 490 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Moving defendant may meet burden of showing cause of action has no merit by proving either (1) one or more elements of cause of action cannot be established, or (2) there is complete defense to cause of action; once that burden has been met, burden shifts to plaintiff to show existence of triable issue of one or more material facts concerning that cause of action or defense; because summary judgment drastic procedure that deprives losing party of trial on merits, defendant moving for summary judgment must conclusively negate the necessary elements of plaintiff's case or demonstrate that under no hypothesis is there material issue of fact. Smith v. Maldonado (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 637, 644, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 397 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Burden on defendant moving for summary judgment based on assertion of affirmative defense is heavier than burden to show one or more elements of plaintiff's action cannot be established; instead of merely submitting evidence to negate single element of plaintiff's cause of action, or offering evidence that plaintiff does not have evidence to create issue of fact as to one or more elements of case, defendant has initial burden to show undisputed facts support each element of affirmative defense; defendant must demonstrate that under no hypothesis is there material factual issue requiring trial; if defendant does not meet this burden, motion must be denied; only if defendant meets this burden does burden shift to plaintiff to show issue of fact concerning at least one element of defense; moreover, submission of evidence that is equivocal, or from which conflicting inferences may be drawn is insufficient to meet movant's burden. Anderson v. Metalclad Insulation Corp. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 284, 289-290, 297, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 331 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Defendant seeking summary judgment bears initial burden of showing that one or more elements of plaintiff's cause of action cannot be established or there is complete defense; once defendant's burden has been met, burden shifts to plaintiff to show triable issue of fact exists as to that cause of action; plaintiff alleging discriminatory termination under California's antidiscrimination statutory scheme must be able to survive burden-shifting analysis set forth in McDonnell Douglas Corp. v. Green (1973) 411 U.S. 792, 802-804, 93 S. Ct. 1817, 36 L. Ed.2d 668 , under which employee must first establish prima facie case of age discrimination, and if successful, employer must offer legitimate non-age-based reason for adverse employment action; if employer does not, employee prevails, but if employer does, burden shifts back to employee to meet ultimate obligation to prove reason for action was age discrimination; California courts have disagreed on exact showing required by employee to avoid summary judgment in face of employer's evidence of non-age-based reason for adverse action; under predominant view, followed by court, to avoid summary judgment, employee must produce substantial evidence that employer's stated nondiscriminatory reason for adverse action was untrue or pretextual or that employer acted with discriminatory animus, or a combination of both, such that reasonable trier of fact could conclude employer engaged in intentional discrimination; to avoid summary judgment, plaintiff had to do more than establish prima facie case and deny credibility of defendant's witnesses; plaintiff needed to produce specific, substantial evidence of pretext, which plaintiff failed to do. Horn v. Cushman & Wakefield Western, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 798, 805-807, 817 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Defendant who relies on contract terms in moving for summary judgment need not establish contract is not unconscionable, unless plaintiff's complaint alleged facts suggesting unconscionability; thus, when complaint alleged defendant's interpretation of its own contract would violate public policy, but complaint contained no factual allegations of unconscionability, plaintiffs in opposing summary judgment had burden to show unconscionability. Williams v. California Physicians' Service (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 722, 742, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 497 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

In action for negligence, premises liability, and negligent infliction of emotional distress, when defendant's only evidence offered in support of motion for summary adjudication was that injury occurred on public street over which defendant had no control and not on defendant's property, defendant did not satisfy its burden to negate duty of care; defendant did not offer any evidence to show injury was not foreseeable, injury was not actually suffered, or slope of driveway and configuration of sidewalk, play area and driveway was not closely connected to injury, or to negate any of other Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 113, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561 factors. Barnes v. Black (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1473, 1477, 1479, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 634 (summary adjudication for defendant reversed)

Under current version of summary judgment statute, moving defendant need not support motion with affirmative evidence negating essential element of responding party's case; moving defendant may, through factually vague discovery responses or otherwise, point to absence of evidence to support plaintiff's case; when that is done, burden shifts to plaintiff to present evidence showing there is triable issue of material fact; if plaintiff is unable to meet his or her burden of proof regarding essential element of case, all other facts are rendered immaterial. Wilkins v. National Broadcasting Co. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1066, 1074, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Defendant has met burden of showing cause of action has no merit if defendant has shown one or more elements of cause of action, even if not separately stated, cannot be established, or that there is complete defense to that cause of action. Armato v. Baden (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 885, 893, 84 Cal. Rptr 2d 294 (summary judgments for defendants affirmed)

Defendant may rely on plaintiff's factually inadequate discovery answers to seek summary adjudication of particular cause of action; if plaintiff fails toadduce evidence during discovery to support factual allegations of complaint, burden shifts to plaintiff and motion may be granted if plaintiff does not set forth specific facts to show triable issue of material fact. Lazar v. Hertz Corp. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1494, 1506-1508 (summary adjudication for defendants affirmed)

On summary judgment, moving defendant may rely on factually devoid discovery responses to shift burden of proof pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(o)(2); once burden shifts as result of factually devoid discovery responses, plaintiff must set forth specific facts that prove existence of triable issue of material fact; if plaintiff fails to do so, summary judgment must be granted; distinguishing cases in which factually devoid discovery responses were not sufficient to shift burden of proof; in this case, by reference to plaintiffs' factually devoid discovery responses, defendant showed plaintiffs could not establish at least one element of their case; plaintiffs failed to present evidence in response sufficient to create triable issue of material fact regarding plaintiff's deceased husband's exposure to asbestos-containing products related to defendant. Chaknova v. Wilbur-Ellis Co (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 962, 974-978, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 871 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Defendant meets its burden if it negates essential element of plaintiff's case, or establishes complete defense, or if it demonstrates absence of evidence to support plaintiff's case; once moving defendant has met its initial burden, burden shifts to plaintiff to show triable issue of one or more material facts exists. Berry v. Society of Saint Pius X (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 354, 365, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 574 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

What quantum of evidence is needed to trigger the evidentiary burden shifting concerning summary judgment procedure in California is issue of law. Scheiding v. Dinwiddie Construction Co. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 64, 70, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Question of what sort of evidence is sufficient to shift burden under California's summary judgment statute said to be unsettled; apparent majority of appellate courts accept proposition that defendant can meet burden of proof by showing plaintiff has no evidence to support case; minority view suggests defendant must do more than merely argue there is absence of evidence and must produce affirmative evidence to show that plaintiff cannot establish prima facie case; cases reviewed and reconciled; court did not decide whether more cautious view is better one because trial court's ruling was incorrect under either approach; moving defendant had conducted no discovery, and in deposition by other defendants, plaintiff was not asked any question concerning moving defendant, so that, since plaintiff's duty to answer completely only extended so far as reasonable ambit of questions asked, it was possble plaintiff had more information concerning the moving defendant and unlike other cases, the court could not infer from incomplete or evasive responses to discovery that plaintiffs had no other facts to support the case. Scheiding v. Dinwiddie Construction Co. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 64, 80-84, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Defendant who is moving party bears burden of showing one or more elements of cause of action cannot be established or there is complete defense; unless defendant meets its burden, plaintiff has no obligation to demonstrate there is triable issue of fact. LeVine v. Weis (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 758, 763, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 439 (summary adjudication for defendant reversed, but in all other respects judgment affirmed)

When parties had sufficient opportunity adequately to develop their factual cases through discovery and defendant has made sufficient showing to establish prima facie case in defendant's favor, plaintiff, to avert summary judgment, must produce substantial responsive evidence sufficient to establish triable issue of material fact on merits of defendant's showing; for this purpose, responsive evidence that gives rise to no more than mere speculation cannot be regarded as substantial and is insufficient to establish triable issue of material fact. Sangster v. Paetkau (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 151, 162-163, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 66 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

When motion for summary judgment is supported by affidavits sufficient to sustain motion, burden of showing triable issue of fact shifts to party opposing motion; under 1992 and 1993 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 437c, defendant moving for summary judgment meets burden of showing cause of action has no merit if defendant shows one or more elements of plaintiff's cause of action can not be established; once moving defendant satisfies this obligation, burden shifts to plaintiff to demonstrate triable issue of material fact as to existence of element or elements challenged by defendants; to do so, plaintiff may not rely on mere allegations of its pleadings, but must show by specific facts that requisite triable issue of material fact is present; under former Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(o)(2) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(p)) defendant seeking summary judgment has two means to shift burden of proof to plaintiff to produce evidence creating triable issue of fact, i.e., defendant may rely on factually insufficient discovery responses by plaintiff to show plaintiff cannot establish essential element of cause of action, or defendant may use tried and true technique of negating (i.e., disproving) essential element of plaintiff's cause of action; if showing by defendant does not support judgment in defendant's favor, however, burden does not shift and motion must be denied without regard to plaintiff's showing. Crouse v. Brobeck, Phleger & Harrison (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1509, 1524, 1533-1535, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 94 (summary judgments for defendants both affirmed and reversed)

Courts impose more stringent burdens on one opposing motion in defamation and invasion of privacy cases and require showing of high probability that plaintiff will ultimately prevail in case; absent such showing, courts are inclined to grant motion and do not permit case to proceed beyond summary judgment stage. Alszeh v. Home Box Office (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1456, 1460, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Moving party bears burden of establishing, by declarations and evidence, a complete defense to plaintiff's action or the absence of an essential element of plaintiff's case. Old Republic Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 128, 141-142, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 642 (peremptory writ issued directing trial court to grant defendants' motions for summary judgment)

Defendant meets burden on motion if that party proved there is complete defense to cause of action; once defendant met that burden, burden shifts to plaintiff to show that triable issue of one or more material facts exists. Crookall v. Davis, Punelli, Keathley & Willard (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1048, 1057, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 250 (summary judgment for defendants reversed)

To secure summary judgment, moving defendant may prove an affirmative defense, disprove at least one essential element of plaintiff's cause of action, or show element of cause of action cannot be established; defendant must show that under no possible hypothesis within reasonable purview of allegations of complaint is there a material question of fact that requires examination by trial. Murillo v. Rite Stuff Foods, Inc. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 833, 840, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Case governed by 1993 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 437c, under which defendant's burden could be met only by showing that one or more elements of cause of action cannot be established, or there is complete defense to cause of action; once defendant has met burden, burden shifts to plaintiff to show triable issue of one or more material facts exists as to cause of action. First Street Plaza Partners v. City of Los Angeles (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 650, 659, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 626 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

When party subject to claim of collateral estoppel is party moving for summary judgment, it has burden of showing opponent cannot establish prerequisites for collateral estoppel. Schaefer/Karpf Productions v. CNA Ins. Companies (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1306, 1314 n.2, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 42 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Moving party bears burden of establishing, by declarations and evidence, a complete defense to plaintiff's action or absence of essential element of plaintiff's case; moving party must demonstrate that under no hypothesis is there a material factual issue requiring a trial; when defendant, as moving party, makes that showing, burden of proof shifts to plaintiff, as opposing party, to show by responsive separate statement and admissible evidence, that triable issues of fact exist. Shapiro v. Sutherland (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1534, 1543, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101 (summary judgment in favor of defendant's reversed)

Clear from 1992 amendment that a defendant have "shown that one or more elements of the cause of action ... cannot be established" (§ 437c, former subd. (n)(2), Stats. 1992, ch. 1348, § 1, now subd. (o)), that defendant must make affirmative showing in support of defendants' motion; such a showing connotes something significantly more than simply pointing out to court that there is absence of evidence; before burden of producing even prima facie case should shift to plaintiff in advance of trial, defendant who cannot negate an element of plaintiff's case should be required to produce direct or circumstantial evidence that plaintiff not only does not have but cannot reasonably expect to obtain prima facie case; but when such showing can be made it is both fair to defendant and consistent with efficient administration of justice that plaintiff be called upon, on risk of summary judgment, to make prima facie case. Travelers Casualty & Surety Co. v. Superior Court (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1440, 1452, 1453, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 54

Defendant seeking summary judgment has met burden of showing that cause of action has no merit if that party has shown that one or more elements of the cause of action cannot be established or that there is complete defense to cause of action; once defendant's burden met, burden shifts to plaintiff to show that a triable issue of fact exists as to that cause of action. Depew v. Crocodile Enterprises, Inc. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 480, 485, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 673 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

To be entitled to judgment as matter of law, moving party must show by admissible evidence that action has no merit or there is no defense to it; defendant meets this burden by showing that one or more elements of cause of action cannot be established or that there is complete defense to action; once defendant meets this showing, burden shifts to plaintiff to show that a triable issue of material fact exists as to that cause of action. Barton v. Elexsys Internat., Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1182, 1187, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 212 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Moving defendant bears burden of establishing, by declaration and evidence, complete defense to plaintiff's action or absence of essential element of plaintiff's case; moving party must demonstrate that under no hypothesis is there a material factual issue requiring trial; when moving party makes that showing, burden of proof shifts to opposing party to show, by responsive separate statement and admissible evidence, that triable issues of fact exist. Nissel v. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1103, 1110, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 174 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

If moving defendant does not meet burden, plaintiff need not make any showing at all. Pepperell v. Scottsdale Ins. Co. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1045, 1054, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 164 (summary judgment for defendant reversed; remanded for further proceedings)

Defendant is entitled to summary judgment if record establishes as matter of law that none of plaintiff's asserted causes of action can prevail; to succeed, defendant must present facts to negate essential element of each claim as framed by complaint or to establish defense; only then must plaintiff demonstrate existence of triable, material issue of fact. City of South Lake Tahoe v. Superior Court (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 971, 975, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 146 (summary judgment for plaintiffs overturned by writ of mandate); Federico v. Superior Court (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1207, 1210, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370 (denial of defendant's motion for summary judgment overturned by writ of mandate)

Moving plaintiff, must meet its statutory obligation under former Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(o)(1) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(p)) by producing admissible evidence of each element of cause of action entitling party to judgment on that cause. San Diego Unified Port Dist. v. Gallagher (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 501, 503, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 30 (summary judgment for plaintiff reversed; remanded for further proceedings)

To secure summary judgment, moving defendant may prove affirmative defense, disprove at least one essential element of plaintiff's cause of action, or show that element of cause of action cannot be established; defendant must show that under no possible hypothesis within reasonable purview of allegations of complaint is there material question of fact which requires examination by trial; moving defendant bears burden of proving absence of any triable issue of material fact, even though burden of proof as to a particular issue may be on plaintiff at trial; once moving party has met itsburden, opposing party bears burden of presenting evidence that there is triable issue of fact as to any essential element of cause of action. Ochoa v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1480, 1485, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 232 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Although appellate court must strictly construe moving party's papers and liberally construe those of the opposing party, latter bears burden of showing triable issues of fact exist. Leon v. Family Fitness Center (#107), Inc. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1227, 1231 (summary judgment for defendant reversed; remanded for further proceedings)

To secure summary judgment, moving defendant may prove affirmative defense, disprove at least one essential element of plaintiff's cause of action, or show that element of cause of action cannot be established; notwithstanding strict construction given moving party's evidence and liberal construction given to that of opposing party, opponent has burden of showing triable issues of material fact exist; he or she may not rely on pleadings; complete failure of proof concerning essential element of nonmoving party's case necessarily renders all other facts immaterial. Montgomery v. Cal. Accountants Mutual Ins. Co. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 854, 858, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 39 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

For purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c, moving defendant is statutorily treated as plaintiff and hence must present sufficient facts to make out prima facie case of nonliability; moving defendant must prove affirmative defense, disprove at least one essential element of plaintiff's cause of action or show that element of cause of action cannot be established; defendant must show that under no possible hypothesis within reasonable purview of allegations of the complaint is there material question of fact which requires examination by trial; if defendant makes that showing, court must look to plaintiff's papers to determine whether they demonstrate existence of triable, material issue of fact; counter affidavits and declarations need not prove opposition case; they suffice if they disclose triable issue. McManis v. San Diego Postal Credit Union (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 547, 554, 558-559, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617 (summary judgment for multiple defendants reversed as to one of them)

Defendant is entitled to summary judgment if record establishes as matter of law that none of plaintiff's asserted causes of action can prevail; when defendant demonstrates that cause of action has no merit because one or more elements of that cause of action cannot be established, burden shifts to plaintiff to show with specific facts that triable issue of one or more material facts exist as to that cause of action. Maxwell v. Fire Ins. Exchange (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1446, 1448-1449, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 866 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Defendant may meet its burden of establishing plaintiff's cause of action has no merit in one of two ways; by showing that one or more elements of cause of action, even if not separately pleaded, cannot be established, or that there is complete defense to cause of action. Pensinger v. Bowsmith, Inc. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 709, 718, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 531 (summary adjudication for defendant affirmed in part and reversed as to other causes of action)

To defeat defendant's summary judgment motion, when burden shifts to plaintiff to establish existence of genuine issue of material fact as to existence of element challenged by defendant, plaintiff must show specific facts and cannot rely on pleadings. Snyder v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 561, 565, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 498 (summary adjudication for defendant reversed in part and affirmed as to other causes of action)

Moving defendant bears burden of proving absence of any triable issue of material fact, even though burden of proof as to particular issue may be on plaintiff at trial; once moving party has met its burden, opposing party bears burden of presenting evidence that there is no triable issue of fact as to any essential element of cause of action. Pieper v. Commercial Underwriters Ins., Co. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1008, 1015, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 551 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Moving party's burden on motion for summary judgment is only to negate existence of triable issues of fact in fashion that entitles that party to judgment on issues raised by pleadings; he or she is not required to refute liability on some theoretical possibility not included in pleadings; what issues are material is determined mainly by pleadings, rules of pleading, and substantive law relating to particular kind of case. Waschek v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 640, 644, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 296 (remanded to trial court for order granting summary judgment to defendant)

Defendant moving party meets its burden of showing that cause of action has no merit if it shows that one or more elements of cause of action cannot be established; to do this, party may note that discovery has disclosed no evidence to support one or more of elements of cause of action; although defendant does not address a point in its moving papers, it may in its reply papers adopt the plaintiff's own evidence to demonstrate that no triable issue of material fact exists and defendant is entitled to summary adjudication. 216 Sutter Bay Associates v. County of Sutter (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 860, 875-881, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 492 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Moving defendant bears burden of establishing, by declaration and evidence, complete defense to plaintiff's action or absence of essential element of plaintiff's case; moving party must demonstrate that under no hypothesis is there material factual issue requiring trial; when moving party makes that showing, burden of proof shifts to opposing party to show, by responsive separate statement and admissible evidence, that triable issues of fact exist; burden of defendant moving for summary judgment only requires that defendant negate plaintiff's theories of liability as alleged in complaint; moving party need not refute liability on some theoretical possibility not included in pleading. Tsemetzin v. Coast Federal Savings & Loan Assn. (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 1334, 1342, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Defendant meets its burden on summary judgment motion if it negates essential element of plaintiff's cause of action, or establishes complete defense, or demonstrates absence of evidence to support plaintiff's case; once moving defendant has met its initial burden, burden shifts to plaintiff to show triable issue of one or more material facts exist. Locke v. Warner Bros., Inc. (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 354, 361, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 921 (summary judgment for defendant reversed in part and affirmed as to other causes)

Defendant moving for summary judgment has burden of negating necessary element of plaintiff's case, and demonstrating that under no hypothesis is there material issue of fact that requires process of trial; to do that, defendant may rely either on affirmative evidence or discovery responses of plaintiff showing absence of evidence necessary to establish at least one essential element of plaintiff's case; once defendant carries this substantive burden, burden shifts back to plaintiff to show triable issue of one or more material facts exists as to plaintiff's case; all doubts as to whether there is any triable issue of fact are to be resolved in favor of party opposing summary judgment. Zelda, Inc. v. Northland Ins. Co. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1252, 1258-1259, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 356 (summary judgment for plaintiff affirmed)

Moving defendant may rely on factually devoid discovery responses to shift burden of proof pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(o)(2); once burden shifts as result of factually devoid discovery responses, plaintiff must set forth specific facts which prove existence of triable issue of material fact. Department of Industrial Relations v. UI Video Stores, Inc. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1084, 1090, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 457 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

For defendant to prevail, it must show that one or more elements of plaintiff's cause of action cannot be established or that defendant has complete defense to plaintiff's cause of action; if defendant meets that burden, burden of proof shifts to plaintiff to show that a triable issue of one or more material facts exist. Kurinij v. Hanna & Morton (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 853, 863, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324 (summary judgment for defendant on complaint and cross complaint affirmed)

Summary judgment on defendant's motion is proper if defendant either proves affirmative defense or disproves at least one essential element of plaintiff's cause of action or if defendant shows that an element of cause of action cannot be established; defendant must show that under no possible hypothesis within reasonable purview of complaint's allegations is there material question of fact that requires examination by trial. Salazar v. Southern Cal. Gas Co. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1370, 1376, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 522 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Defendants have initial burden on summary judgment to show that one or more elements of cause of action cannot be established, or there is complete defense to that cause of action; once defendant has met that burden, burden shifts to plaintiff to show that triable issue of one or more material facts exists as to that cause of action; nothing in language of 1992 amendments of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(n)(2) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(p)) abrogates this well-established summary judgment requirement that initial burden rests with moving party. Prilliman v. United Air Lines, Inc. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 935, 956, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 142 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed as to one plaintiff and reversed as to another)

Even on motion for summary judgment by insurer, burden remains on insured to prove that its claim falls within scope of basic coverage of policy. Golden Security Thrift & Loan Assn. v. First American Title Ins. Co. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 250, 255, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 442 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Legislature has given federal flavor to nature of moving party's prima facie case; previously, moving party could establish its prima facie entitlement to judgment only by demonstrating existence of facts which negated element of opponent's case; now moving party may also establish its prima facie entitlement to judgment by demonstrating its opponent's discovery responses are devoid of evidence to support an element of opponent's case. Rio Linda Unified School Dist. v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 732, 735, 740, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 710 (denial of defendant's summary judgment motion overturned on writ of mandate)

Under new method for establishing prima facie entitlement to judgment, moving party must demonstrate a negative, i.e., that there is no evidence to support an element of opponent's case; this is akin to burden of appellant in proving there is no substantial evidence to support judgment; it is incumbent on appellant who claims evidentiary insufficiency to set forth evidence supporting judgment and indicate why it is insufficient; if party contends some particular issue of fact has no support in record, it must set forth all material evidence on point and not merely evidence favorable to it; mere reference in statement of undisputed facts to existence of inadmissible discovery responses does not waive contemporaneously raised objection to that evidence in accompanying points and authorities. Rio Linda Unified School Dist. v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 732, 735, 739-740, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 710 (denial of defendant's summary judgment motion overturned on writ of mandate)

Summary judgment is appropriate if all papers submitted show there is no triable issue of any material fact and that moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law; a defendant seeking summary judgment has met its burden of showing that a cause of action has merit if defendant demonstrates that one or more elements of the cause of action cannot be established; once defendant seeking summary judgment meets this burden, the burden shifts to the plaintiff to show that a triable issue of material exists as to that cause of action; plaintiff may not rely on mere allegations or denials of its pleading, but must set forth the specific facts that demonstrate existence of the triable issue of material fact; issue of fact cannot be created by speculation, imagination, conjecture, or guess work but can only be created by a conflict of evidence. Lee v. Crusader Ins. Co. (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1750, 1756, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Defendant who meets initial burden of establishing that action has no merit is entitled to summary judgment unless plaintiff demonstrates existence of triable issue of material fact; plaintiff generally cannot defeat well-founded summary judgment motion without setting forth specific facts controverting motion. Mary Morgan, Inc. v. Melzark (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 765, 770, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 4 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Moving defendant bears burden of proving absence of any triable issue of material fact even though plaintiff has burden of proof as to that issue at trial; defendant, however, need only demonstrate absence of triable issue of material fact as to those bases of liability plaintiff has pleaded; once moving party has met its burden, opposing party bears burden of presenting evidence that there is triable issue of fact as to any essential element of causeof action. Sanchez v. Swinerton & Walberg Co. (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 1465, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 415 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Defendant must conclusively negate necessary element in plaintiff's case or establish complete defense; when evidence presented by defendant does not support judgment in defendant's favor, motion must be denied without looking at opposing evidence, if any, submitted by plaintiff. Bashi v. Wodarz (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1314, 1318, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 635 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

1992 and 1993 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 437c were not intended to abrogate defendant's burden on summary judgment motion to respond to all of plaintiff's theories of liability reflected in complaint even if not separately pleaded; although plaintiff who has pleaded several causes of action based on same set of facts need only sustain its burden on one theory to prevail at trial, defendant who seeks summary judgment must define all theories alleged in complaint and challenge each factually; defendant as the moving party has burden to show it is entitled to judgment on all theories of liability asserted by plaintiff. Lopez v. Superior Court (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 705, 713-714, 717, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 821 (grant of defendant's summary judgment motion overturned on writ of mandate; although holding in Hunter v. Pacific Mechanical Corp. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1282, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 335 , restated as law, court held Union Bank v. Superior Court (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 573, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 653 , line of cases, including Hunter, inapplicable because defendant failed to meet its initial burden on summary judgment of addressing plaintiff's primary theory of premises liability)

Defendant moving for summary judgment must conclusively negate element in plaintiff's case or establish complete defense and thereby demonstrate that under no hypothesis is there material factual issue requiring trial. Frank and Freedus v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 461, 468, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 678 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed); Brown v. California Pension Administrators & Consultants, Inc. (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 333, 339, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 788 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Under former Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(o)(2) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(p)(2)) requirement that a defendant "has shown that one or more elements of the cause of action ... cannot be established," defendant must make affirmative showing to support his or her motion, which showing connotes something significantly more than pointing out to court that there is an absence of evidence; defendant who cannot negate element in plaintiff's case should be required to produce direct or circumstantial evidence that plaintiff not only does not have but cannot reasonably expect to obtain a prima facie case; when defendant makes such showing, burden to make prima facie case shifts to plaintiff. Addy v. Bliss & Glennon (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 205, 214, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 642 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed; court disagreed with and did not follow Hunter v. Pacific Mechanical Corp. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1282, 1287-1289, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 335); Hagen v. Hickenbottom (1995) 41 Cal. App. 4th 168, 183-184, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 197 (summary judgment for defendant reversed; questioning conclusion in Hunter)

Under former Civ. Proc. § 437c(o)(2) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(p)(2)), moving defendant has two means by which to shift the burden of proof to plaintiff to produce a triable issue of fact: (1) defendant may rely on plaintiff's factually insufficient discovery responses to show that plaintiff cannot establish an essential element of plaintiff's cause of action, or (2) defendant may negate, that is, disprove, essential element in plaintiff's cause of action. Brantley v. Pisaro (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1591, 1598, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 431 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Defendants who moves for summary judgment must prove either that affirmative defense bars every cause of action pleaded in complaint or disprove at least one essential element of each cause of action; moving party must show that under no possible hypothesis within reasonable purview of allegations in complaint is there material question of fact that requires examination at trial; motion must be denied if defendant as moving party fails to satisfy its burden. Martin Marietta Corp. v. Insurance Co. of North America (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1113, 1121, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 670 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Recent statutory amendments adopted burden-shifting characteristics of federal law for California summary judgment motions; although moving party always initially bears burden of establishing absence of genuine issue of material fact, when nonmoving party bears burden of proof on an issue at trial the moving party need not support its summary judgment motion with evidence negating an essential element of the nonmoving party's case to satisfy its burden; moving party may simply point to absence of evidence to support nonmoving party's case; nonmoving party must then set forth specific facts by affidavits (or declarations) or admissible discovery material showing there is genuine issue for trial; in action for asbestos-related injury enough for defendant to show through factually vague discovery responses that plaintiff lacked any probative evidence on critical element of causation, that is, defendant could effectively show that element of causation could not be established by pointing to an absence of evidence to support that element; burden than shifted to plaintiff to come forward with evidence necessary to prove triable issue of material fact existed with regard to element of causation which plaintiff did not do; summary judgment in defendant's favor affirmed. Hunter v. Pacific Mechanical Corp. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1282, 1284, 1286-1288, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 335 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed); but see Addy v. Bliss & Glennon (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 205, 214, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 642 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed); Hagen v. Hickenbottom (1995) 41 Cal. App. 4th 168, 183-184, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 197 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Close examination of legislative history as suggesting intent was to apply the burden shifting characteristics of Fed. R. Civ. Proc., Rule 56, as interpreted in Celotex Corp. v. Catrett (1986) 477 U.S. 317, 322-328, 106 S. Ct. 2548 , to California summary judgment motions. Union Bank v. Superior Court (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 573, 590, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 653 (denial of defendant's summary judgment motion overturned on writ of mandate)

Moving defendant may rely on plaintiff's factually devoid discovery responses to shift burden of proof to plaintiff to set forth specific facts proving existence of triable issue of material fact. Union Bank v. Superior Court (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 573, 590, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 653 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Fact that prior case law held a moving defendant had duty to negate an essential element of an adversary's cause of action and that Legislature chose not to utilize the term "negate" in amending summary judgment statute reflects intention to change the long-standing duty of a moving defendant. Union Bank v. Superior Court (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 573, 586, n.8, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 653 (dicta; summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Judicial notice or evidentiary admission or concession by pleader/adversary as able to support motion and thrust burden on pleader to come forward with facts in rebuttal. Columbia Casualty Co. v. Northwestern Nat. Ins. Co. (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 457, 468, 282 Cal. Rptr. 389 (prior law; summary judgment for cross defendant reversed)

Only if it can be determined that moving party's declaration, considered in light of issues raised by pleadings, would, standing alone, support summary judgment does court look to any counteraffidavits and counterdeclarations; if court finds that there are no triable issues of fact, determination of motion for summary judgment as then becoming question of law; whenever court must rule on motion for summary judgment, factual issue guidelines for motion as fixed by reference solely to pleadings. Danieley v. Goldmine Ski Associates, Inc. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 111, 118-119, 266 Cal. Rptr. 749 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed); see also People v. Van Horn (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1378, 1397, 267 Cal. Rptr. 804 (summary judgment in favor of plaintiffs affirmed)

Opposing party as required to show only existence of triable issue of fact, not ability to prevail at trial. Del E. Webb Corp. v. Structural Materials Co. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 593, 608, 176 Cal. Rptr. 824 (prior law; summary judgment for defendant affirmed as to some causes of action and reversed as to others)

[b] Effect of Admissions on Burden of Proof

A defendant may provide affirmative evidence that the plaintiff lacks any factual support for the plaintiff's claims through an admission by the plaintiff that extensive discovery has yielded nothing. Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 854-855, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493 ; Tran v. Farmers Group, Inc. (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 1202, 1215, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 728

Admission against interest as entitled to greater weight than evidentiary allegations in affidavits or declarations. D'Amico v. Board of Medical Examiners (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 1, 21-22, 112 Cal. Rptr. 786, 520 P.2d 10 ; Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. v. Great American Surplus Lines Ins. Co. (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 791, 800, 245 Cal. Rptr. 44

D'Amico rule is limited to situations where credible discovery admissions are contradicted only by self-serving declarations of a party; there is a vast difference between written discovery admissions and responses given by a lay opponent in a deposition; court erred in granting summary judgment based on statements made by plaintiff in deposition testimony in that court refused to consider evidence that contradicted or shed light on plaintiff's testimony. Scalf v. D.B. Log Homes, Inc. (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1510, 1523, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 826

Defense granted summary adjudication on cause of action for clean up costs of groundwater contamination where lack of evidence on damages shown by plaintiff's interrogatory responses admitting it was unable to attribute damages to any particular cause, event, or time. Golden Eagle Refinery Co. v. Associated Internat. Ins. Co. (2001) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1311-1312, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834

California courts do not permit party to defeat summary judgment by declaration contradicting that party's previous deposition testimony; credibility of deposition admissions valued so highly that controverting affidavits may be disregarded as irrelevant, inadmissible or evasive. Wilkins v. National Broadcasting Co. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1066, 1082, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Party cannot create issue of fact by declaration that contradicts his or her prior discovery responses; in determining whether any triable issue of material facts exists, trial court may, in its discretion, give great weight to admissions made in deposition and disregard contradictory and self-serving affidavits of party; admissions against interest have very high credibility value; this is especially true when admission was obtained not in normal course of human activities and affairs but in context of established pretrial procedure whose purpose is to elicit facts; distinguishing cases that held declarations that contradict earlier discovery responses may sometimes be considered; trial court did not abuse discretion in ruling contradictory statements in plaintiff's declaration must be disregarded, and therefore those statements failed to raise triable issue of fact. Benavidez v. San Jose Police Dept. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 853, 860-863, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 157 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

D'Amico v. Board of Medical Examiners (1994) 11 Cal. 3d 1, 22, 520 P.2d 10 , recognized admissions against interest have very high credibility value; Supreme Court has consistently refused to allow triable issue of fact to be conjured by submission of affidavit contradicting declarant's prior deposition testimony; Price v. Wells Fargo Bank (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 465, 482 , however, was first of several cases pointing out that D'Amico should be viewed with caution; Price court refused to concede that admissions should be shielded from careful examination in light of entire record and held summary judgment should not be based on tacit admissions or fragmentary and equivocal concessions; court viewed record before it with equal caution. Scheiding v. Dinwiddie Construction Co. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 64, 77-78, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Admission in complaint that party acted within course and scope of employment will not bind plaintiff on summary judgment if plaintiff offers countervailing evidence in opposition to summary judgment motion; when broad arbitration clause with limited nonpertinent exceptions extended to every type of dispute arising from plaintiff's employment, and defendant employees relied on allegations in plaintiff's complaint that they were acting within course and scope of their employment at all relevant times, employee defendants met their initial burden of showing a defense to plaintiff's claims against them, causing burden to shift back to plaintiff to show that triable issue of material fact existed whether arbitration agreement applied. 24 Hour Fitness, Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1199, 1211, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 533 (trial court directed to vacate order denying summary judgment and to grant summary judgment to all but one defendant)

A party cannot evade summary judgment by submitting declaration contradicting that party's prior deposition testimony. Guthrey v. State of California (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1108, 1120, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 27

To extent descriptions in plaintiff's declaration submitted in opposition to motion for summary judgment are contradicted plaintiff's discovery responses, they must be disregarded; admissions or concessions made duringcourse of discovery govern and control over contrary declarations lodged at hearing on motion for summary judgment. Barton v. Elexsys Internat., Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1182, 1191-1192, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 212

Declaration on summary judgment that is inconsistent with prior deposition testimony can be disregarded. First Fid. Thrift & Loan Assn. v. Alliance Bank (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1433, 1437 n.2, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295 (finding declaration was not inconsistent)

Defendant moving for summary judgment may rely on allegations in plaintiff's complaint that are judicial admissions; as such, they are conclusive concessions of truth of a matter and have effect of removing it from issues; contradictory evidence is limited to that which collaterally attacks the prior judicial admission on basis of mistake, inadvertence, or lack of authority. Barr v. ACandS, Inc. (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 1038, 1055-1056, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 494

Judicial admission is binding and dispositive without further evidence; consideration of such admissions is proper on summary judgment and may overcome evidence even when opposing party seeks to contradict prior admission; trial court, however, has discretion to disregard admissions. Kurinij v. Hanna & Morton (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 853, 871, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324 (summary judgment for defendants on complaint and its cross complaint affirmed)

When party in discovery has made admission that justifies summary judgment in opponent's favor, that party cannot attempt to defeat summary judgment motion by submitting declaration contradicting the admission; judicial admission not accorded as broad an application as admission made in course of discovery. Prilliman v. United Air Lines, Inc. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 935, 961-962, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 142

Defendant permitted to rely on plaintiff's form interrogatory answers and admissions, which contained no evidence to support a theory of defendant's liability, as evidentiary basis for its separate statement supporting summary judgment motion, thus shifting burden to plaintiff to prove existence of triable issue of material fact. Union Bank v. Superior Court (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 573, 576, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 653

Admission of party as receiving unusual deference in summary judgment proceedings and as binding absent credible explanation of inconsistent position taken by party. People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation v. Ad Way Signs, Inc. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 187, 200, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 496 ; FPI Development, Inc. v. Nakashima (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 367, 396, 282 Cal. Rptr. 508

Summary judgment as not based on tacit admissions or ambiguous allegation in unverified complaint that are contradicted by other credible evidence, such as in deposition testimony. Kirby v. Albert D. Seeno Construction Co. (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 1059, 1066-1067, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 604

Statement taken from allegations in party's pleading as constituting admission that may be considered on motion for summary judgment. Aim Insurance Co. v. Culcasi (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 209, 213 n.1, 280 Cal. Rptr. 766

Admissions against interest as having very high credibility value, especially when admission is obtained not in normal course of human activities and affairs but in context of an established pretrial procedure whose purpose is to elicit facts; thus, on motion for summary judgment, such admission as entitled to deference not normally accorded evidentiary allegations in affidavits. Sandoval v. Mercury Ins. Group (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1, 10, 278 Cal. Rptr. 533

In summary judgment motions, law allows reliance on adversaries' pleadings; defendant may rely on allegation of complaint in addition to his or her declarations, there being no need that defendant's declaration repeat matters already asserted in complaint; judicial admission in pleading, either by affirmative allegation or by failure to deny an allegation, is different from evidentiary admission; judicial admission is not merely evidence of fact, but is conclusive concession of truth of matter that has effect of removing it from issues. Troche v. Daley (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 403, 409, 266 Cal. Rptr. 34

Plaintiff who made admission in deposition that defeated cause of action, but who made contrary statement in subsequent answers to interrogatories, as not entitled to rely on contradictions in his own testimony to create triable issue of fact. Rivera v. Southern Pacific Transportation Co. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 294, 299-300, 266 Cal. Rptr. 11

When defendant can establish his or her defense with plaintiff's admission sufficient to pass strict construction test imposed on party moving for summary judgment, credibility of admission as valued so highly that any contradicting affidavits may be disregarded as irrelevant, inadmissible, or evasive; no reason as existing to draw distinction between attempt to counter admission by affidavit and attempt to counter admission by changing content of answer given by party directly in deposition, especially when there is no assertion original answer was incorrectly transcribed or question was misleading or ambiguous; in both changed affidavit and changed deposition cases, credibility of parties as held up for examination by contradicting statements, first of which constitutes reliable admission against interest; trial court as permitted to accept first and reject latter of these contrary positions. Wagner v. Glendale Adventist Medical Center (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1379, 1391, 265 Cal. Rptr. 412

[c] Effect of Presumption Affecting Burden of Proof

Absent contradictory evidence by nonmoving party, Evid. Code § 604 presumption establishing fact in favor of moving party as justifying summary judgment. Security Pac. Nat. Bank v. Associated Motor Sales (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 171, 178-180

[4] Collateral Estoppel

Summary judgment is appropriate remedy when doctrine of collateral estoppel refutes all triable issues of fact suggested by pleadings and supporting documents. Kelly v. Vons Companies, Inc. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1329, 1335, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

When plaintiff's declaration in support of plaintiff's claim contained statements regarding matters which had been adjudicated administratively against plaintiff collateral estoppel principles applied. Guthrey v. State of California (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1108, 1120, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 27

Summary judgment as appropriate remedy when principle of collateral estoppel refutes all triable issues of fact suggested by pleadings and supporting documents. Lewis v. County of Sacramento (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 214, 217, 266 Cal. Rptr. 678

[5] Constitutionality

Summary judgment procedure under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c as not violating constitutional rights to trial by jury, to subpoena witnesses, and to cross examine witnesses. Scott v. Farrar (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 462, 467, 188 Cal. Rptr. 823 ; Bank of America, etc. v. Oil Well S. Co. (1936) 12 Cal. App. 2d 265, 268, 270, 55 P.2d 885

[6] Conduct of Hearing

Where party opposing summary judgment attempted to argue, at hearing, that deposition testimony created a triable issue of fact, trial court did not abuse its discretion in failing to consider the testimony; deposition had taken place before opposition was due but opposing party failed to include testimony with opposition. Wall Street Network, Ltd. v. New York Times Co. (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 1171, 1188-1189, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 6

When trial court refused to allow counsel to present oral argument at hearing and court of appeal decided, on the merits of the parties arguments, that trial court correctly entered judgment, held that it would serve no useful purpose at that point for court of appeal to reverse on basis of such a claimed deficiency in trial court's handling of motion. Victor v. Hedges (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 229, 244-245, 245 n.18, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 466 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

On summary judgment motion oral hearing required at which counsel has opportunity to persuade court and respond to inquires; judges have discretion regarding how hearing is to be conducted, but cannot do away with oral argument altogether; although litigants are not given right to present testimony at hearing, there are no restrictions against oral argument (see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1306 (formerly Rule 323). Mediterranean Construction Co. v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 257, 259-260, 263-265, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 781 ; see Gwartz v. Superior Court (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 480, 482, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 865 (following Mediterranean Construction Co.)

[7] Continuance

A continuance is not necessarily required simply because the opposing party claims that to file substantive opposition might violate his right against self incrimination; rather, the opposing party must show that his fifth amendment rights would in fact be violated and that he was unable to present any other substantive opposition to the motion. Fisher v. Gibson (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 275, 283-284, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 145

Trial court was not required to continue summary judgment motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(h) because plaintiff's continuance was not included in timely opposition to summary judgment motion and plaintiffs failed to establish that facts essential to justifying opposition might exist but could not be presented before hearing. Thatcher v. Lucky Stores, Inc. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1083, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 575 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

When moving party raises new arguments in its reply papers, opposing party entitled to move orally at hearing for postponement to give it sufficient time to respond; similarly, oral motion for continuance can be made at hearing to allow sufficient time to amend pleading when it becomes apparent at that time that defects in pleading can be remedied. Mediterranean Construction Co. v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 257, 264, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 781

Code Civ. Proc. § 437c requirement that hearing be continued if necessary to obtain facts essential to opposition as not applicable when party presents opposition they consider complete, but in improper format; continuance as in court's discretion, which was not abused by denying motion made at hearing seven weeks after reply papers had objected to form of opposition, and effect of denial was not to terminate party's action on purely procedural grounds. Lucas v. George T. R. Murai Farms, Inc. (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1578, 1586-1587, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436

Code Civ. Proc. § 437c as mandating continuance of summary judgment hearing on good faith showing by affidavit that continuance is needed to obtain facts essential to justify opposition to motion. O'Laskey v. Sortino (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 241, 251, 273 Cal. Rptr. 674

Plaintiff's request for continuance under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(h) as properly denied for purpose of obtaining contract on which complaint was based, when plaintiff should have attached contract to complaint two years prior, and when plaintiff could easily have obtained contract within that two years' time. Hartenstine v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 206, 221, 241 Cal. Rptr. 756 ; cf. Frazee v. Seely (2001) 95 Cal. App. 4th 627, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 780 (request for continuance under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(h) timely filed, court noting that even if the plaintiff had two years from the time she filed her first amended complaint to the filing of defendant's motion for summary judgment, she was given less than one month to oppose the motion)

[8] Cross Complaints

Cross defendant seeking summary adjudication as required only to offer evidence to disprove allegations of cross complaint; cross complainant who wishes to offer a different factual assertion from that alleged in cross complaint as required to move to amend cross complaint prior to hearing on summary adjudication motion. 580 Folsom Associates v. Prometheus Development Co. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1, 18, 272 Cal. Rptr. 227

[9] Discovery Products and Matters Subject to Judicial Notice

Prior judgment subject to judicial notice as sufficient to support motion for summary judgment on ground of collateral estoppel or res judicata. Comora v. Comprehensive Care Corp. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 369, 373, 189 Cal. Rptr. 538 ; Columbus Line, Inc. v. Gray Line Sight-Seeing Companies Associated, Inc. (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 622, 630-631, 174 Cal. Rptr. 527

Reliance on answers to interrogatories and on regulations subject to judicial notice as proper on motion for summary judgment. Stevens v. Cessna Aircraft Co. (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 431, 434, 170 Cal. Rptr. 925

[10] Duty of Court

Trial court is not required to accept parties' characterization as to what matters constitute issues of fact or law in summary judgment proceeding. GoodGovernment Group of Seal Beach, Inc. v. Superior Court (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 672, 679 n.3, 150 Cal. Rptr. 258, 586 P.2d 572

Matter to be determined by trial court in considering motion for summary judgment is whether parties have presented any facts that give rise to triable issue of fact; trial court is not authorized to determine that fact issue itself. Corwin v. Los Angeles Newspaper Service Bureau, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 842, 851-852, 94 Cal. Rptr. 785, 484 P.2d 953 ; Stationers Corp. v. Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 412, 417, 42 Cal. Rptr. 449, 398 P.2d 785 ; Crocker Nat. Bank v. Emerald (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 852, 858, 270 Cal. Rptr. 699

Trial court's primary duty in deciding motion for summary judgment is to determine whether triable issue of fact exists; fact issue finding rather than fact issue determination is pivot on which summary judgment law turns. Walsh v. Walsh (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 439, 441-442, 116 P.2d 62 ; Torres v. County of Los Angeles (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 325, 329, 257 Cal. Rptr. 211 ; Spradlin v. Cox (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 799, 805, 247 Cal. Rptr. 347 ; Bartlett v. State of California (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 392, 397, 245 Cal. Rptr. 32

In declaratory relief action to obtain judicial interpretation of rights under insurance policy, trial court must decide if triable issue of fact exists; if none does and sole remaining issue is one of law, it is trial court's duty to determine issue of law. Northland Ins. Co. v. Briones (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 796, 800, 802, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 127 (summary judgment for plaintiff affirmed)

Trial court must decide if triable issue of fact exists; if none does, and sole remaining issue is one of law, it is duty of trial court to determine issue of law. Aloha Pacific, Inc. v. California Ins. Guarantee Assn. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 297, 307, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148 (judgment for defendant entered pursuant to stipulation following denial of plaintiff's motion for summary judgment affirmed)

Court's sole function on motion for summary judgment is to determine from submitted evidence whether there is triable issue as to any material fact. Riverside County Community Facilities Dist. v. Bainbridge 17 (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 644, 653, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29 (summary judgment for plaintiff affirmed)

Defendant's summary judgment motion asks court to determine, based on papers submitted by parties, whether there remains triable issue of material fact or whether undisputed facts warrant judgment as matter of law, either because at least one element of each alleged cause of action cannot be established or because complete defense exists. Nicole M. v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1238, 1242, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 922 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Trial judge determines whether triable issues exist by examining affidavits and evidence, including any reasonable inferences that may be drawn from facts. Vournas v. Fidelity Nat. Tit. Ins. Co. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 668, 672 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 490 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Court's sole function on motion for summary judgment is to determine from submitted evidence whether there is triable issue of any material fact. Kelly v. First Astri Corp., (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 462, 470, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Trial court's function in ruling on summary judgment motion is merely to determine whether issues of fact exist and not to decide merits of issues themselves. Hayward Area Planning Assn. v. Alameda County Transportation Auth. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 95, 110, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 744 (summary judgment for defendants reversed)

When there is no material issue of fact to be tried and sole question before court is one of law, it is duty of trial court to hear and determine issue of law. Armato v. Baden (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 885, 893, 84 Cal. Rptr 2d 294 (summary judgments for defendants affirmed)

Whether triable issue of material fact exists does not turn on trial court's discretion; motion for summary judgment shall be granted if all papers submitted show there is no triable issue as to any material fact and moving party entitled to judgment as matter of law. Fretland v. County of Humboldt (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1478, 1490, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Court focuses on issue finding; it does not resolve fact issues; court seeks to find contradictions in evidence, or in inferences reasonably deducible from evidence, that raise triable issue of material fact. Oliver v. County of Los Angeles (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1403, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 641 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Trial court in ruling on motion for summary judgment is merely to determine whether evidence requiring fact-weighing procedures of trial exist, not to decide the merits of the issues themselves. Kovatch v. California Casualty Management Co. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1256, 1266, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 217

Summary judgment is granted if all papers submitted show that there is no triable issue of any material fact and moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law; trial court's function in ruling on motion is merely to determine whether triable issues of fact exist, not to decide merits of issues themselves. Furla v. Jon Douglas Co. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1069, 1076-1077, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 911

Referral to commissioner for report and recommendation on pending motion for summary judgment as inappropriate; commissioner's authority under Code Civ. Proc. § 259 to take proof and report findings exceeds court's role in summary judgment, which is limited to determining whether factual issues exist. International Jet Ski Boating Assn., Inc. v. Superior Court (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 112, 116, 283 Cal. Rptr. 33

When there is no factual dispute, function of appellate court in reviewing summary judgment as same as that of trial court: to determine whether moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law. Mounts v. Uyeda (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 111, 115, 277 Cal. Rptr. 730

In ruling on motion for summary judgment, trial court, although it seeks to identify triable issues without engaging in any determinations of fact, as required to some extent to weigh evidence in determining whether factual issues asserted relate to material fact, and as required to determine what inferences are reasonably deducible from evidence. Price v. Wells Fargo Bank (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 465, 474, 261 Cal. Rptr. 735

[11] Evidence

[a] Affiant's Credibility

Expert's affidavit directly conflicting with expert's prior report did not constitute substantial evidence of the existence of a triable issue of fact. Alvis v. County of Ventura (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 536, 549, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 494

A party may not submit a declaration that contradicts a previous statement made under oath in order to create a triable issue of material fact. Tesco Controls, Inc. v. Monterey Mechanical Co. (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 780, 798 n.6, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 751

Trial court may not weigh evidence in manner of factfinder to determine whose version is more likely true; nor may trial court grant summary judgment based on court's evaluation of credibility. Binder v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 832, 840, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 540 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Court as generally unable to resolve questions about declarant's credibility in summary judgment proceeding, unless admissions against interest have been made that justify disregard of any dissimulation. Magnolia Square Homeowners Assn. v. Safeco Ins. Co. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1049, 1056, 271 Cal. Rptr. 1

Declarant's statement, credibility of which is destroyed by prior admission or other conclusive evidence, as not effective to raise triable issue of fact. Hoover Community Hotel Development Corp. v. Thomson (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1130, 1137, 213 Cal. Rptr. 750

Summary judgment as proper, despite question as to credibility of declarant, because denial of motion on such ground was within trial court's discretion under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(e) and opposing party failed to show abuse of discretion. Allen v. McMillion (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 211, 215-216, 147 Cal. Rptr. 77

[b] Admissible Evidence Required

A declaration that does not comply with Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 is not admissible in support of or to oppose a summary judgment motion; the declaration must either state on its face that it was executed in California or state that it is declared under the laws of the state of California. Kulshrestha v. First Union Commercial Corp. (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 601, 618, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 793, 93 P.3d 386 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Expert doctor's opinion based solely on his review of medical records had no evidentiary value where records were not authenticated and placed before the court; as a result, defendant's summary judgment motion had no evidentiary basis and was reversed. Garibay v. Hemmatt (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 735

Transcripts do not qualify as declarations sufficient to defeat summary judgment because they contain no statement that the information contained therein is based upon personal knowledge [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(d)]. That the transcripts show statements by the interviewees, responding affirmatively to the question whether their statements were true under penalty of perjury, does not convert the statements into admissible affidavits or declarations. Evidence containing hearsay is not admissible evidence and will not raise a triable issue defeating summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(d); Evid. Code § 1200]. An investigator's declaration cannot convert inadmissible hearsay into admissible evidence. Stockinger v. Feather River Community College (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1014, 1026-1027, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 385

Cases dismissing expert declarations in connection with summary judgment motions do so on basis that declarations established that opinions were either speculative, lacked foundation, or were stated without sufficient certainty; not so in this case, however, because expert affidavit established matters relied upon in expressing opinion, opinion rested on matters of type reasonably relied upon, and it established bases for opinion. Sanchez v. Hillerich & Bradsby Co. (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 703, 718, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 529

Expert opinion is worth no more than reasons on which it rests; opinion unsupported by reasons or explanations does not establish absence of material fact issue for trial, as required for summary judgment. Golden Eagle Refinery Co. v. Associated International Ins. Co (2001) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1315, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834 (summary adjudication for defendant affirmed)

Moving party bears burden of establishing by declarations and evidence, complete defense to plaintiff's action or absence of essential element of plaintiff's case; moving party must demonstrate that under no hypothesis is there material factual issue requiring trial; when moving defendant makes that showing, burden of proof shifts to plaintiff to show, by responsive separate statement and admissible evidence, that triable issues of fact exist. Assilzadeh v. California Federal Bank (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 399, 408, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 176 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Moving party bears burden of establishing, by declarations and evidence, complete defense to plaintiff's action or absence of essential element of plaintiff's case; when moving party makes that showing, burden shifts to opposing party to show, by responsive separate statement and admissible evidence, that triable issues of fact exist. Ostayan v. Serrano Reconveyance Co. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1411, 1418, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 577 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Kelley v. Trunk (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 519, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 122 , which suggests that even on summary judgment, expert's declaration must set forth excruciating detail of factual basis for opinion stated therein, is unsupported; court declined to follow it. Hanson v. Grode (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 601, 608 n.6, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 396 (summary judgment for defendants reversed)

Trial court committed error in admitting over objection expert's declaration in support of plaintiffs' motion for summary judgment that was conclusory in that it provided no factual data to support expert's opinion; under facts, error deemed harmless. Jordan v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 449, 469-470, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 333 (summary judgment for plaintiffs affirmed except as to two orders that exceeded trial court's jurisdiction)

Party cannot avoid summary judgment based on mere speculation and conjecture, but must produce admissible evidence raising triable issue of material fact. Vournas v. Fidelity Nat. Tit. Ins. Co. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 668, 672 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 490 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed); Crouse v. Brobeck, Phleger & Harrison (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1509, 1524, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 94 (summary judgments for defendants both affirmed and reversed)

Courts are highly critical and cautious when expert offers legal conclusions as to ultimate facts in guise of expert opinion; retired field training policeoffice's declaration to extent it drew legal conclusions rejected. Benavidez v. San Jose Police Dept. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 853, 865, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 157 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Regarding motion for summary adjudication concerning taking claim, critical portions of declaration submitted on plaintiff's behalf constituted little more than unsupported conclusions and opinions and did not constitute competent factual proof required to raise issue material fact. Toigo v. Town of Ross (1998) 70 Cal. App. 4th 309, 324, 329, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 649 (summary adjudication for defendants affirmed)

Motion for summary judgment must be decided on admissible evidence in form of affidavits, declarations, admissions, answers to interrogatories, depositions and matters of which judicial notice can be taken; supporting and opposing affidavits and declarations must show personal knowledge and competency; affidavits and declarations must recite evidentiary facts, not ultimate facts or legal conclusions. Guthrey v. State of California (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1108, 1119-1120, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 27

Declarations based on information and belief are insufficient to satisfy burden of either moving or opposing party on motion for summary judgment or adjudication. Lopez v. University Partners (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1117, 1124, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359

Issue of fact cannot be created by speculation, imagination, conjecture, or guess work but can only be created by conflict of evidence. Lee v. Crusader Ins. Co. (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1750, 1756, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550

Issue of fact cannot be created by speculation, conjecture, imagination or guess-work nor can it be raised by cryptic, broadly phrased, and conclusory assertions, or by mere possibilities, or by allegations in complaint; only conflict of evidence can create issue of fact; moreover when no affidavits or declarations are filed in opposition to motion for summary judgment court is entitled to accept as true facts alleged in movant's affidavits and declarations, provided they are within personal knowledge of affiant or declarant and are facts to which he or she could competently testify. Lyons v. Security Pacific Nat. Bank (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1001, 1014, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 174

Issue of fact as created only by conflict of evidence and as not created by speculation, conjecture, imagination, or guess work; further, issue of fact as not raised by cryptic, broadly phrased, and conclusory assertions, or mere possibilities; thus, although court, in determining motion for summary judgment, does not try case, court as bound to consider competency of evidence presented. Sinai Memorial Chapel v. Dudler (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 190, 196-197, 282 Cal. Rptr. 263

Opinions or conclusions in opposing party's declaration as not sufficient to create triable issue of fact so as to defeat motion for summary judgment; opposing party's burden as being to set forth evidentiary facts that disclose existence of triable factual issue. Barisich v. Lewis (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 12, 22, 275 Cal. Rptr. 331

Opposition to summary judgment as deemed insufficient when it is essentially conclusionary, argumentative, or based on conjecture and speculation. Buehler v. Alpha Beta Co. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 729, 733, 274 Cal. Rptr. 14

Although issues are framed by pleadings, motion as required to be decided on admissible evidence in form of affidavits, declarations, admissions, answers to interrogatories, depositions, and matters subject to judicial notice. Spradlin v. Cox (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 799, 805, 247 Cal. Rptr. 347

Factually disembodied and hypothetical legal proposition as inappropriate for summary judgment or summary adjudication. Jones v. Los Angeles Community College Dist. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 794, 810, 244 Cal. Rptr. 37

Even though not pleaded by plaintiff, evidence of fraud and undue influence could have been offered at trial to prove vitiation from affirmative defense of release; therefore, to prevail on those issues at summary judgment, plaintiff was required to present by declarations, or reference to other available probative evidence, sufficient factual recitations to make prima facie case on those issues. Hoffman v. Sports Car Club of America (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 119, 126, 225 Cal. Rptr. 359

[c] Inferences From Evidence

In legal malpractice action, defendant moving for summary judgment had to show that in underlying premises liability case, plaintiff could not have established the element of causation; court held that plaintiff did present sufficient evidence to create a triable issue of fact with respect to causation based on the fact that the inferences from the circumstantial evidence that were favorable to plaintiff were more reasonable than those against her. Ambriz v. Kelegian (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1519, 1536, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 700 In antitrust context, inferences drawn from ambiguous evidence implying conduct that is as consistent with permissible competition as with illegal conspiracy does not, without more, meet opposing party's burden. Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 852, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493

In determining whether papers show that no triable issue exists as to any material fact, court must consider all evidence and all inferences reasonably deducible from evidence, except that summary judgment shall not be granted on inferences reasonably deducible from evidence if contradicted by other inferences or evidence that raise triable issue as to any material fact. Martinez v. Bank of America (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 883, 887, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 576 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

In determining whether moving papers show there is no triable issue as to any material fact, court must consider all evidence set forth in papers and all inferences reasonably deducible from evidence. Culligan v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 429, 433-434, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 656 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Appellate court considers all evidence set forth in supporting and opposition papers, except that to which objections have been made and sustained by court, and all uncontradicted inferences reasonably deducible from evidence. Victor v. Hedges (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 229, 234, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 466 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Facts alleged in evidence of party opposing summary judgment and reasonableinferences therefrom must be accepted as true; plaintiff opposing summary judgment is entitled to all favorable inferences that may reasonably be derived from plaintiff's expert declaration. Hanson v. Grode (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 601, 603-604, 607, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 396 (summary judgment for defendants reversed)

Facts alleged in evidence of party opposing summary judgment and reasonable inferences therefrom must be accepted as true. Kelsey v. Waste Management of Alameda County (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 590, 594, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 510 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Court must consider bare evidence and reasonable inferences deducible from evidence and determine whether evidence is sufficient to support potential judgment in favor of opposing party; court must therefore consider what inferences favoring opposing party factfinder could reasonably draw from evidence; while viewing evidence in this manner court must bear in mind that its primary function is to identity issues rather than to determine issues; only when inferences are indisputable may court decide issues as matter of law; if evidence is in conflict, factual issues must be resolved by trial. Binder v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 832, 839-840, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 540

Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(c) requires trial court to grant summary judgment if all papers and affidavits submitted, together with all inferences reasonably deducible from evidence and uncontradicted by other inferences or evidence, show there is no triable issue as to any material fact and that moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law; in action for breach of implied-in-fact employment contract, plaintiff's allegations of unspecified representations or understandings about plaintiff's tenure were all conclusory, in that they purported to establish ultimate conclusion by inference without alleging the evidentiary facts necessary actually to demonstrate that conclusion; because conclusory assertions failed to provide factual evidence necessary to overcome presumption of at-will employment, they were insufficient as matter of law either to controvert that presumption, or to support cause of action for breach of implied-in-fact contract. Eisenberg v. Alameda Newspapers, Inc. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1359, 1374-1375, 1390, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 802 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

In determining whether papers show there is no triable issue as to any material fact court must consider all of evidence set forth in papers and all inferences reasonably deducible from evidence. Aetna Health Plans of Cal., Inc. v. Yucaipa-Calimesa Joint Unified School Dist. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1175, 1186, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672 (summary judgment for cross-defendant affirmed)

Submission of evidence that is equivocal, or from which conflicting inferences may be drawn is insufficient to meet movant's burden. Anderson v. Metalclad Insulation Corp. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 284, 297, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 331 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

In determining whether moving papers show there is no triable issue of any material fact court must consider all the evidence and all inferences reasonably deducible from evidence, except summary judgment cannot be granted on inferences reasonably deducible from evidence, if contradicted by other inferences or evidence, which raise triable issue as to any material fact. Bardin v. Lockheed Aeronautical Systems Co. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 494, 499, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Trial judge determines whether triable issues exist by examining affidavits and evidence, including any reasonable inferences that may be drawn from the facts. Crouse v. Brobeck, Phleger & Harrison (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1509, 1524, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 94 (summary judgments for defendants both affirmed and reversed)

On appeal from grant of summary judgment, appellate court states facts and draws inferences most favorable to party against whom trial court grantedjudgment. See Van Dyke v. S.K.I. Ltd. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1310, 1313 n.2, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 775 (summary judgment for defendants reversed)

Court focuses on issue finding; it does not resolve fact issues; court seeks to find contradictions in evidence, or in inferences reasonably deducible from evidence, that raise triable issue of material fact. Oliver v. County of Los Angeles (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1403, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 641 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Trial judge determines whether triable issues of fact exist by reviewing affidavits and evidence before him or her and reasonable inferences that may be drawn from those facts; facts alleged in evidence of party opposing summary judgment and reasonable inferences therefrom must be accepted as true. Kovatch v. California Casualty Management Co. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1256, 1266, 1268, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 217 (disapproved in Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 853 n.19, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493 , to extent language suggests that the defendant is required to conclusively negate an element of plaintiff's cause of action to meet burden)

Court must consider presumptions and draw inferences from facts adduced where the inference is only reasonable one which may be drawn; court has no power in summary judgment proceeding, however, to weigh one inference against another or against other evidence. Murillo v. Rite Stuff Foods, Inc. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 833, 841, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12

Court must consider presumptions and draw inferences from facts adduced if inference is the only one that may be drawn; court, however, has no power in a summary proceeding to weigh one inference against another or against other evidence. Pieper v. Commercial Underwriters Ins., Co. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1008, 1015, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 551

When opposition to motion for summary judgment is based on inferences, those inferences must be reasonably deducible from the evidence, and not derived from speculation, conjecture, imagination, or guesswork. Waschek v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 640, 647, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 296 ; O'Neil v. Dake (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1044, 215 Cal. Rptr. 732

In determining whether papers show there is no triable issue as to a material fact, court must consider all evidence and all inferences reasonably deducible from the evidence, except summary judgment cannot be granted on inferences reasonably deducible from the evidence, if contradicted by other inferences or evidence, which raise a triable issue as to any material fact. Brundage v. Hahn (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 228, 234, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 830

Mere conclusions of law or fact are insufficient to satisfy evidentiary requirements forsummary judgment, and summary judgment based on inferences which are contradicted by other inferences as improper. Bryant v. Bakshandeh (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1241, 1245, 277 Cal. Rptr. 379

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1856(d) (parol evidence rule), court's determination whether writing is intended by parties as final expression of their agreement is not necessarily one of fact precluding grant of summary judgment; intent is not subjective mental state of contracting party and question of fact as presented only when there are conflicting inferences about actions of parties. FPI Development, Inc. v. Nakashima (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 367, 391, 282 Cal. Rptr. 508

In ruling on motion for summary judgment, trial court is to some extent required to weigh evidence in determining whether factual issues asserted relate to material fact, and as required to determine what inferences are reasonably deducible from evidence. Woodland Hills Homeowners Organization v. Los Angeles Community College Dist. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 79, 88, 266 Cal. Rptr. 767

In ruling on motion for summary judgment, trial court is not limited to a search for facts on particular issue, but may draw inferences regarding that issue from relevant facts set forth in affidavits; trial court is to consider all inferences reasonably deducible from evidence, and lack of triable issue of fact may be established by inference if inference is only reasonable one that can be drawn from evidence for and against motion. Fidelity National Title Ins. Co. v. Miller (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1163, 1172, 264 Cal. Rptr. 17

Trial court lacks power to weigh one inference against another or against other evidence in proceeding for summary judgment. Saylin v. California Ins. Guarantee Assn. (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 256, 261, 224 Cal. Rptr. 493 ; Hooks v. Southern Cal. Permanente Medical Group (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 435, 441-442, 165 Cal. Rptr. 741

Summary judgment is proper when moving party has made prima facie showing of entitlement thereto, and only triable issues of fact raised by opposition to motion are based on inferences not reasonably deducible from evidence before court. O'Neil v. Dake (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1044-1045, 215 Cal. Rptr. 732

Summary judgment is improper when supporting inference contradicted by another inference raising triable issue of fact. Hepp v. Lockheed-California Co. (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 714, 717-718, 150 Cal. Rptr. 408

[d] No Reliance on Party's Own Pleadings

Opposing party may not rely on mere allegations or denials of pleadings, but must set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue for trial. Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 849, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493

Moving party cannot rely on unsupported allegations in his or her own pleadings to prove case, if evidence accompanying the summary judgment motion is otherwise deficient. Lipson v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 362, 374, 182 Cal. Rptr. 629, 644 P.2d 822 ; Joslin v. Marin Mun. Water Dist. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 132, 147, 60 Cal. Rptr. 377, 429 P.2d 889

Plaintiff cannot rely on allegations in verified complaint to controvert defendant's affidavits. Vesely v. Sager (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 153, 169, 95 Cal. Rptr. 623, 486 P.2d 151 , disapproved on other grounds in Strong v. Cabrol (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 720, 724, 209 Cal. Rptr. 347, 691 P.2d 1013

Parties cannot rely on own pleadings in lieu of or to cure deficient affidavits, but as able to rely on adverse party's pleaded allegations to establish facts not contained in their own affidavits. Parker v. Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 176, 181, 89 Cal. Rptr. 737, 474 P.2d 689 ; Slobojanv. Western Travelers Life Ins. Co. (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 432, 437, 74 Cal. Rptr. 895, 450 P.2d 271

Plaintiff may not rely on mere allegations or denials of its pleadings to show triable issue of material facts exists. Culligan v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 429, 434, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 656 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Under former Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(o)(2) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(p)(2)) plaintiff may not rely on mere allegations or denials of its pleadings to show that a triable issue of material fact exists but, instead, must set forth specific facts showing that a triable issue of material fact exists as to cause of action or defense to it. Juarez v. Boy Scouts of America, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 377, 393, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed except for one cause of action against two defendants that was reversed); City of Oceanside v. Superior Court (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 269, 274, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 621 (denial of defendants' motion for summary judgment overturned by writ of mandate)

Once moving defendant has met his or her burden of showing plaintiff's cause of action has no merit by showing one or more elements of cause of action cannot be established, plaintiff, to demonstrate triable issue of material fact as to existence of element or elements challenged by defendant may not rely on mere allegations of its pleadings and instead must show by specific facts that requisite triable issue of material fact is present. Carlton v. Quint (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 690, 698-699, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Plaintiff opposing summary judgment motion may not rely on his or her pleadings alone, but must file opposition to motion, with affidavits setting forth specific facts demonstrating that triable issue of material fact exists as to cause of action or defense. Eisenberg v. Alameda Newspapers, Inc. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1359, 1375, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 802 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

To defeat motion for summary judgment, plaintiff must show specific facts and cannot rely on allegations of the pleadings. Horn v. Cushman & Wakefield Western, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 798, 805 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Plaintiff may not rely on mere allegations or denials of its pleadings to show triable issue of material fact exists, but must instead set forth specific facts showing that triable issue of material fact exists. Scheiding v. Dinwiddie Construction Co. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 64, 69, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Although party cannot rely on its pleadings on summary judgment, party seeking or opposing summary judgment can rely on admissions of material fact in opposing party's pleading. 24 Hour Fitness, Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1199, 1211, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 533 (trial court directed to vacate order denyingsummary judgment and to grant summary judgment to all but one defendant)

Party cannot rely on allegations in his or her own pleadings, even if verified, to make or supplement required evidentiary showing within summary judgment context. Cornelius v. Los Angeles County Etc. Authority (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1761, 1768, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 618

Party opposing summary judgment as unable to rely on its pleadings but must make independent showing by proper declaration or by reference to deposition or other discovery product that there is sufficient proof of matters alleged to raise triable question of fact if moving party's evidence, standing alone, is sufficient to entitle party to judgment. Buehler v. Alpha Beta Co. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 729, 733, 274 Cal. Rptr. 14

[e] Objections to Evidence

A trial court presented with timely evidentiary objections in proper form must expressly rule on each individual objection or else objections are deemed waived and objected-to evidence is included in record. Demps v. San Francisco Housing Authority (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 564, 578, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 204

Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(5) and (d) give the parties the right to waive evidentiary objections; therefore, the trial court erred in interposing and sustaining its own hearsay objection to the moving party's evidence and on appeal the court considered all of the evidence. Andrews v. Mobile Aire Estates (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 578, 587 n.6, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 832

A trial court must rule on properly made evidentiary objections regardless of whether the motion for summary judgment is granted or denied. Vineyard Springs Estates, LLC v. Superior Court (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 633, 642, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 587 (order denying defendant's summary judgment motion vacated and trial court ordered to rule on evidentiary objections proffered by defendant and reconsider motion for summary judgment)

Summary judgment or adjudication evidentiary objections on which trial judge fails to rule are deemed waived on appeal; however, issues are preserved for review when it would be fruitless or idle act for attorney to object; when, after filing written evidentiary objections, counsel on two separate hearing dates requested judge to rule on them, it would have been fruitless or idle act to have interposed third oral request for ruling, so written objections were preserved for appellate review. City of Long Beach v. Farmers & Merchants Bank (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 780, 783-785, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 140 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Parties did not secure rulings to evidentiary objections raised in trial court, and as result, objections waived and appellate court treats all evidence as having been properly admitted. PMC, Inc. v. Kadisha (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1368, 1378, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 663 (summary judgment for defendants reversed)

Litigants who raise evidentiary objections at hearing, as opposed to written objections in advance, must arrange for court reporter to attend hearing to record objections for record (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 343, 345) (re-numbered Rules 3.1350, 3.1354). Mediterranean Construction Co. v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 257, 263-264, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 781

Assuming that trial court, on defendant's motion for summary judgment, should have stricken supporting declaration of defendant's president based on lack of personal knowledge, court's grant of summary judgment was proper based on other relevant evidence, consisting of plaintiff's deposition and parties' written agreement, which was before court and showed plaintiffs had no cause of action. Korens v. R. W. Zukin Corp. (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1054, 1062, 261 Cal. Rptr. 137

Plaintiff opposing motion for summary judgment waives any claim of error relating to trial court's failure to consider its written objections to admissibility of evidence submitted in support of motion, when plaintiff did not specifyany objection that should have been, but was not, sustained, to plaintiff's prejudice. Hoover Community Hotel Development Corp. v. Thomson (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1130, 1133-1134, 213 Cal. Rptr. 750

Party appealing from summary judgment was precluded from claiming that trial court erred in considering certain evidence submitted in support of motion when appellant raised no objection to that evidence in trial court and had himself relied on that evidence in opposing motion. O'Connor v. Bloomer (1981) 116 Cal. App. 3d 385, 390 n.2, 172 Cal. Rptr. 128

[f] Statements in Memorandum

It is not required that the memorandum of points and authorities cites to the evidence in the record; it is sufficient that the statement of undisputed facts cites to the record. Basich v. Allstate Insurance Co. (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 1112, 1118, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 153

On hearing of motion for summary judgment, counsel's representations of fact in memorandum of points and authorities as not constituting evidence, even if opposing party makes no objection to them; party as having no obligation to object either in writing or orally until actual evidence is submitted, and failure to object as not converting statements into evidence. Vaughn v. Dame Construction Co. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 144, 146-147 n.2, 272 Cal. Rptr. 261

[g] Testimony From Other Cases

Although defendants interposed evidentiary objections to expert's declaration, record did not show trial court ever formally ruled on any objections; accordingly, all evidence submitted was available for trial court's consideration; nevertheless, presumed on appeal from summary judgment that judge has not relied on irrelevant or incompetent evidence; courts highly critical and must be cautious when expert offers legal conclusions as to ultimate facts in guise of expert opinion; to extent declaration drew legal conclusions, court rejected declaration. Benavidez v. San Jose Police Dept. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 853, 864-865, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 157 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Testimony from criminal trial (transcript testimony of individual and deposition transcript of investigator) may not be used to support motion for summary judgment when testimony subject Evid. Code § 1292 objection; following Gatton v. A.P. Green Services, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 688, 694, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 523 . L&B Real Estate v. Superior Court (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1342, 1346-1348, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 759 (writ proceeding seeking to set aside order denying defendants' summary judgment motion denied)

Summary judgment contemplates use of deposition transcripts, subject to admissibility objections made and sustained by the court; deposition excerpt from another case offered by plaintiff in opposition to summary judgment motion held inadmissible under Evid. Code 1292(a), governing admissibility of testimony from another case; such deposition testimony can not be treated as a declaration to avoid requirement of Section 1292(a). Gatton v. A.P. Green Services, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 688, 692-697, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 523 (criticizing Williams v. Saga Enterprises, Inc. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 142, 149, 274 Cal. Rptr. 901)

Trial court, in ruling on defendant's motion for summary judgment in action based on automobile accident, did not err in considering partial reporter's transcript, presented by plaintiff, of testimony of witness in criminal prosecution of third party based on same accident. Williams v. Saga Enterprises, Inc. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 142, 148-152, 274 Cal. Rptr. 901

[h] Written Documents

Written documents incorporated by reference into affidavit or declaration as required to conform to rules of evidence, including those relating to authentication (Evid. Code § 1400 et seq.) and to best-evidence rule (Evid. Code § 1500 et seq.). Dugar v. Happy Tiger Records, Inc. (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 811, 815, 116 Cal. Rptr. 412

Averments in affidavits or declaration that depend on written documents as incompetent evidence without attachment of original document, or certified or authenticated copy of original, unless good cause for nonproduction is shown. Miller & Lux, Inc. v. Bank of America (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 719, 725, 28 Cal. Rptr. 401

[i] Contradiction or Repudiation of Prior Statements

In action against county as result of massive landslide after heavy rains, alleging causes of action for a dangerous condition of public property, nuisance, and inverse condemnation, although trial court admitted plaintiff's expert's declaration into evidence over county's objection that opinions expressed in his declaration were without foundation and some of them contradicted his prior statements, trial court properly found declaration did not constitute substantial evidence so as to raise triable issue of fact, where declaration asserted that slide started at bottom of cliff when wall erected by county failed, which directly contradicted his prior statement in report to insurance company that failure started as landslide in upper reaches and then flowed at rapid rate down to developed area below, and earlier statement that slide started in upper reaches of cliff directly undercut premise on which his entire declaration was based without explanation, and where, although prior statement was not in form of testimony under oath, court could not accept as substantial evidence of triable issue of fact declaration that directly contradicted declarant's prior statement, when contradiction was unexplained. Alvis v. County of Ventura (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 536, 548-549, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 494

[12] Federal Rule Compared

1992 and 1993 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 437c moved California summary judgment law closer to federal law, and California law nowconforms largely, but not completely, to federal counterpart; California has adopted burden-shifting characteristics of federal law; however, unlike federal law, California moving defendant must present evidence, not merely point out, that plaintiff does not possess, and cannot reasonable obtain needed evidence; parties' burden of persuasion and/or production on summary judgment is dependent on burden of proof at trial. Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 848-849, 851, 853-854, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493

Code Civ. Proc. § 437c, unlike Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 56, does not permit court to enter summary judgment on its own motion and requires moving party to support motion with evidence; former Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(c), (o)(2) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(p)) implies need for concrete evidence from moving party and expressly requires moving party to supply more than bare assertions, whether alleged in pleading or by way of argument, that opposing party has no evidence to support particular claim; no California case has concluded that party moving for summary judgment can simply argue there is absence of facts to support opposing party's case. Scheiding v. Dinwiddie Construction Co. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 64, 71-76, 80-81, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Recent statutory amendments adopted burden-shifting characteristics of federal law for California summary judgment motions. Hunter v. Pacific Mechanical Corp. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1282, 1284-1288, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 335 ; but see Addy v. Bliss & Glennon (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 205, 214, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 642 (court disagreed with and did not follow Hunter v. Pacific Mechanical Corp.)

Close examination of legislative history as suggesting intent was to apply the burden shifting characteristics of Fed. R. Civ. Proc., Rule 56, as interpreted in Celotex Corp. v. Catrett (1986) 477 U.S. 317, 322-328, 106 S. Ct. 2548 , to California summary judgment motions. Union Bank v. Superior Court (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 573, 590-591, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 653 (declining to address other issues concerning how federal rule or Celotex analysis may apply to California summary judgments motions)

Standards for summary judgment as basically same under California and federal law; for purposes of summary judgment, California court as required to consider all inferences reasonably deducible from evidence submitted, strictly construe moving party's affidavits, and liberally construe counteraffidavits; similarly, federal court as reading record in light most favorable to nonmoving party. Buenavista v. City and County of San Francisco (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1168, 1172-1173 n.2, 255 Cal. Rptr. 329

[12A] Issues Raised in Prior Motion for Summary Adjudication

Trial court properly exercised its discretion in determining that Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f)(2) did not bar summary judgment because operative motion addressed issue not raised by prior motion, where in its order denying prior motion trial court expressly stated that motion's failure to address elements of fraud was basis for its denial and operative summary judgment motion addressed previously omitted issue, asserting that defendant was entitled to judgment because plaintiff committed fraud on application for health insurance and specifically identified elements of fraud established by undisputed evidence. Even assuming operative summary judgment motion did not assert a new issue, trial court had inherent authority to reconsider sua sponte its prior order denying defendant's second motion for summary judgment, and record supported conclusion that trial court effectively sua sponte reconsidered its prior order denying defendant's second motion for summary judgment, where at time it denied second summary judgment motion, trial court had already determined that it would reconsider its order if defendant could demonstrate that there was no triable issue of fact as to each element of fraud, and where that reconsideration may have been prompted by motion filed in violation of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f)(2) did not alter trial court's inherent authority to reconsider its prior order denying summary judgment. Nieto v. Blue Shield of California Life & Health Ins. (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 60, 71-75, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 906

[13] Local Court Rules

Order issued by San Francisco Superior Court providing for expedited summary judgment for asbestos cases was invalid due to conflict with Code Civ. Proc. § 437c; court's order permitted summary judgment on 60 days' notice when statute mandates 75 days' notice; order also impermissibly shifted the burden of producing evidence to the nonmoving party. Boyle v. CertainTeed Corp. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 645, 653-655, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 501

Local rules are valid only if not inconsistent with higher authority such as statutes, state rules of court, or case law; local rule that authorized court to grant summary judgment based solely on absence of opposition, without a preliminary finding that moving party has met its initial burden of proof conflicted with statutory and case law construing Code Civ. Proc. § 437c and was invalid as applied to motions for summary judgment. Thatcher v. Lucky Stores, Inc. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1084-1087, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 575 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Local rule or policy in conflict with statewide statute, rule of law, or Judicial Counsel rule is invalid; Orange County Superior Court Department 17's policy of forcing party wishing to make summary judgment motion to consult first with trial judge and other party and agree on procedure different from that provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 437c improperly interfered with party's right to move for summary judgment or summary adjudication of issue at any time pursuant to established procedures, and thus policy is invalid. Lokeijak v. City of Irvine (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 341, 344, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 429

Because summary judgment is drastic remedy important that all procedural requirements be satisfied before trial court grants it; thus, local rules may not provide shortcut for these requirements; local court rule not consistent with Code Civ. Proc. § 437c is invalid and judgment resulting from invocation of its procedures reversed. Sierra Craft, Inc. v. Magnum Enterprises, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1252, 1256, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 681

[14] Materiality of Disputed Facts

To be material for purposes of summary judgment proceeding, fact must relate to some claim or defense in issue under pleadings and must also be essential to judgment in some way. Riverside County Community Facilities Dist. v. Bainbridge 17 (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 644, 653, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29 (summary judgment for plaintiff affirmed)

For practical proposes, issue of material fact is one which, in context of circumstances of case, warrants time and cost of factfinding by trial. Eisenberg v. Alameda Newspapers, Inc. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1359, 1375, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 802 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Plaintiff cannot defeat summary judgment motion by producing evidence to support claims outside issues framed by pleadings. Vournas v. Fidelity Nat. Tit. Ins. Co. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 668, 674 n.6, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 490 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Party cannot successfully resist summary judgment on theory which is not pleaded in complaint. Hobson v. Raychem Corp. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 614, 629, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 497 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

In conducting appellate review, complaint measures materiality of facts tendered in defendant's challenge to plaintiff's cause of action. Marshak v. Ballesteros (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1514, 1517, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

It is complaint that measures scope of issues material to summary judgment proceeding. Williams v. California Physicians' Service (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 722, 728, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 497 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Fact to be material must relate to a claim or defense that is in issue and must also be necessary to judgment somehow. Kelly v. First Astri Corp. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 462, 470, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

For practical purposes, issue of material fact is one which in context and circumstances of case warrants time and cost of factfinding by trial; in other words, not every issue of fact is worth submission to jury; purpose of summary judgment is to separate cases in which there are material issues of fact meriting trial from those in which there are no such issues. Sangster v. Paetkau (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 151, 162, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 66 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Material facts are those that relate to issues in case as framed by pleadings. Barton v. Elexsys Internat., Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1182, 1187, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 212 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Complete failure of proof concerning an essential element of nonmoving party's case necessarily renders all other facts immaterial. Montgomery v. Cal. Accountants Mutual Ins. Co. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 854, 858, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 39 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

What issues are material is determined mainly by the pleadings, rules of pleading, and substantive law relating to particular kind of case. Waschek v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 640, 644, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 296 (remanded to trial court for order granting summary judgment to defendant)

To prevent summary judgment, disputed facts must be material, that is, to relate to claim or defense in issue that could make a difference in outcome. Los Angeles Nat. Bank v. Bank of Canton (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1267, 1274, 280 Cal. Rptr. 831

Defendant's motion for summary judgment addresses legal question whether there are undisputed material facts that foreclose plaintiff's right to relief; materiality is measured by law applicable to legal theories put in issue by complaint. Anderson v. Heart Federal Sav. & Loan Assn. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 202, 210, 256 Cal. Rptr. 180

Summary judgment is proper when opposing party shows existence of conflict only as to facts not material to moving party's showing. LaRosa v. Superior Court (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 741, 745, 176 Cal. Rptr. 224

Mere presence of inadmissible evidence concerning immaterial fact in declaration supporting motion for summary judgment is not valid ground to deny motion otherwise well taken. Overland Plumbing, Inc. v. Transamerica Ins. Co. (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 476, 481, 174 Cal. Rptr. 1

[15] Motion for Judgment on the Pleadings

Defendants' summary judgment motion used to test whether complaint stated cause of action treated as motion for judgment on the pleadings when time for demurrer had passed. American Airlines, Inc. v. County of San Mateo (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 1110, 1117-1118, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 251, 912 P.2d 1198

When motion for summary judgment challenges sufficiency of pleadings rather than evidence supporting allegations, it is tantamount to motion for judgment on pleadings and may be treated as such by trial court; practical effect is that in granting judgment on pleadings, trial court may give plaintiff opportunity to amend complaint even when no motion to amend has been filed. Taylor v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 472, 479, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 873 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed in part and reversed in part)

Court may treat hearing on motion for summary judgment as motion for judgment on the pleadings when complaint on its face shows defect and may grant opposing party leave to file amended complaint correcting defect. Hobson v. Raychem Corp. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 614, 625, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 497 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Motion for summary judgment that argues pleadings do not support claim is evaluated as motion for judgment on the pleadings, and tests whether complaint is sufficient to state cause of action. Crouse v. Brobeck, Phleger & Harrison (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1509, 1532, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 94 (summary judgments for defendants both affirmed and reversed)

Motion for summary judgment as treated as motion for judgment on the pleadings when defendant fails to establish facts supporting grant of summary judgment as uncontroverted; defendant's motion as necessarily testing sufficiency of complaint. Coca-Cola Bottling Co. v. Superior Court (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1273, 1291-1292, 286 Cal. Rptr. 855

[16] Motion for New Trial

Motion for new trial is available in cases in which no issue of fact actually tried. Carney v. Simmonds (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 84, 88-91, 315 P.2d 305

There is authority for proposition that motion for new trial will lie following a grant of summary judgment. Victor v. Hedges (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 229, 245, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 466

[17] Nature of Summary Judgment

Summary judgment is drastic measure that deprives losing party trial on merits; it should therefore be used with caution, so that it does not become a substitute fortrial. Molko v. Holy Spirit Assn. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1092, 1107, 252 Cal. Rptr. 122, 762 P.2d 46 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed); Cortez v. Vogt (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 917, 925-926, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841 (summary judgment for defendant reversed); see Salazar v. Southern Cal. Gas Co. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1370, 1376, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 522 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed); cf. Alszeh v. Home Box Office (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1456, 1460, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16 (summary judgment favored remedy in defamation and invasion of privacy cases)

Because summary judgment denies adverse party trial, it should be granted with caution. Assilzadeh v. California Federal Bank (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 399, 409, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 176 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Summary judgment is drastic procedure and should be used with caution. Jang v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1291, 1295, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 917 (summary judgment for cross-defendant affirmed)

Summary judgment process should be used with caution because it is drastic measure depriving losing party of trial on merits. Campbell v. Scripps Bank (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1328, 1333 n.2, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 635 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed except as to improperly awarded attorney fees)

Because summary judgment denies adverse party a trial, it should be granted with caution. Oliver v. County of Los Angeles (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1403, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 641 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Although summary judgment is drastic procedure, should be used with caution, and should be granted only if there is no issue of triable fact, justice requires that a defendant be as much entitled to be rid of unmeritorious lawsuit as plaintiff is entitled to maintain good one. Leon v. Family Fitness Center (#107), Inc. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1227, 1232 (summary judgment for plaintiff reversed); Aronson v. Kinsella (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 254, 269-270, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed); Appalachian Ins. Co. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1, 11, 262 Cal. Rptr. 716 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed; denial of summary judgment for defendants on specified grounds also affirmed)

Summary judgment is drastic procedure and should be used with caution. Murillo v. Rite Stuff Foods, Inc. (1998) 65

Cal. App. 4th 833, 840, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12 (summary judgment for defendant reversed); Pieper v. Commercial Underwriters Ins., Co. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1008, 1015, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 551 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Summary judgment motion is directed to issues framed by pleadings; moving party must establish he or she is entitled to entry of judgment as matter of law. Harper v. Wausau Ins. Co. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1079, 1084, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 64 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Summary judgment as determination that there is no factual dispute and that one party is entitled to judgment as matter of law; such judgment as being as final and conclusive a determination of merits of lawsuit as a judgment after trial and hence as res judicata once final. Stuart v. Lilves (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1215, 1219, 258 Cal. Rptr. 780 (reversing denial of motion to vacate foreign judgment based on prior summary judgment in California court on same issue)

Despite enactment of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(c) imposing affirmative duty on trial court to grant motion for summary judgment under certain circumstances, Supreme Court as continuing to admonish that summary judgment is "drastic" remedy "to be used with caution." Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. v. Great American Surplus Lines Ins. Co. (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 791, 795, 245 Cal. Rptr. 44 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

[18] Purpose of Summary Judgment

Purpose of summary judgment is to provide courts with mechanism to cut through parties' pleadings in order to determine whether, despite their allegations, trial is in fact necessary to resolve their dispute. Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 843, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493 (order granting new trial, which effectively operated as denial of defendants' motion for summary judgment reversed and court ordered to enter summary judgment in defendants' favor)

Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f) (summary adjudication) was enacted to stop piecemeal adjudication of facts that did not completely dispose of substantive area. Catalano v. Superior Court (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 91, 97, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 842 (partial granting of summary adjudication for cross-defendants overturned by writ of mandate)

Summary judgment motions are to expedite litigation and eliminate needless trials. Rubenstein v. Rubenstein (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1131, 1142, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 707 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Purpose of summary judgment motion is to discover whether parties possess evidence requiring fact-weighing procedures of a trial. City of Oceanside v. Superior Court (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 269, 273, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 621 (denial of defendants' motion for summary judgment overturned by writ of mandate)

Summary judgment process undertakes to expedite litigation and eliminate needless trials. Campbell v. Scripps Bank (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1328, 1333 n.2, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 635 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed except as to improperly awarded attorney fees)

Summary judgment process undertakes to expedite litigation and eliminate needless trials; process, however, should be used with caution because it is drastic measure depriving losing party of trial on merits. Pardee Construction Co. v. Insurance Co. of the West (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1340, 1349 n.3, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 443 (judgment for three defendants whose motions for judgment on pleadings were granted after summary adjudication in their favor reversed as to two of them with directions that trial court grant plaintiff's motions for summary adjudication; judgment for remaining defendant affirmed)

Purpose of summary judgment is to separate those cases in which there are material issues of fact meriting trial from those in which there are no such issues. Eisenberg v. Alameda Newspapers, Inc. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1359, 1375, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 802 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Purpose of summary judgment is to penetrate through pleadings to ascertain, by means of affidavits, presence or absence of triable issues of material fact. Vournas v. Fidelity Nat. Tit. Ins. Co. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 668, 672 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 490 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed); Crouse v. Brobeck, Phleger & Harrison (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1509, 1524, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 94 (summary judgments for defendants both affirmed and reversed)

Summary judgment motions are to expedite litigation and eliminate needless trials. Berry v. Society of Saint Pius X (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 354, 365, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 574 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Purpose of summary judgment is to separate cases in which there are material issues of fact meriting trial from those in which there are no such issues. Sangster v. Paetkau (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 151, 162, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 66 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Policy behind summary judgment scheme is to promote and protect administration of justice, and expedite litigation by elimination of needless trials; summary judgment statute plainly contemplates circumstances in which one is defendant entitled to judgment even though others are not. 24 Hour Fitness, Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1199, 1208, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 533 (writ proceeding; trial court directed to vacate order denying summary judgment in defendants' favor and to grant summary judgment to all but one defendant)

Summary judgment procedure aims to discover whether there is evidence requiring fact-weighing procedures of trial. Kovatch v. California Casualty Management Co. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1256, 1266, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 217

Summary judgment motions are to expedite litigation and eliminate needless trials. Locke v. Warner Bros., Inc. (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 354, 361, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 921 (summary judgment for defendant reversed in part and affirmed as to other causes)

Policy underlying motions for summary judgment and summary adjudication of issues is to promote and protect administration of justice and expedite litigation by elimination of needless trials. Brundage v. Hahn (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 228, 234, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 830 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Purpose of summary judgment is to permit party to show that material factual claims arising from pleadings are not in dispute and need not be tried; function of pleadings is to delimit scope of issues; function of affidavits and declarations is to disclose whether triable issue of fact exists within the issues as delimited by pleadings. Fortier v. Los Rios Community College Dist. (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 430, 433, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 812 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Purpose of summary judgment procedure as being to penetrate evasive language and adept pleading and ascertain the existence or absence of triable issues of fact, not to determine merits of issues themselves. Molko v. Holy Spirit Assn. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1092, 1107, 252 Cal. Rptr. 122, 762 P.2d 46 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed); Chern v. Bank of America (1976) 15 Cal. 3d 866, 873, 127 Cal. Rptr. 110, 544 P.2d 1310 (summary judgment affirmed as to one cause of action and reversed as to another); St. Mary Medical Center v. Superior Court (1997) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1531, 1538, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182 (writ of mandate ordering court to allow expert testimony limited to foundational issues in motion for summary judgment)

Purpose of motion for summary judgment as being to determine if there are any triable issues of material fact or whether moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law. Miller v. Bechtel Corp. (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 868, 874, 191 Cal. Rptr. 619, 663 P.2d 177 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed); see also Starkman v. Mann Theatres Corp. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1491, 1495, 278 Cal. Rptr. 543 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed); Petersen

v. Securities Settlement Corp. (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1445, 1451, 277 Cal. Rptr. 468 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed); Violette v. Shoup (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 611, 619, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 358 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Aim of summary judgment procedure is to discover, through media of affidavits, whether parties possess evidence requiring weighing procedures of trial. Corwin v. Los Angeles Newspaper Service Bureau, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 842, 851, 94 Cal. Rptr. 785, 484 P.2d 953 (summary judgment for defendant reversed); Stationers Corp. v. Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 412, 417, 42 Cal. Rptr. 449, 398 P.2d 785 (summary judgment for defendants reversed); Life v. County of Los Angeles (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 894, 898, 278 Cal. Rptr. 196 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed); Spradlin v. Cox (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 799, 805, 247 Cal. Rptr. 347 (summary judgment for defendants reversed); Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum, Inc. v. Oakland Raiders, Ltd. (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1049, 1055, 243 Cal. Rptr. 300 (summary judgment for plaintiff affirmed)

Purpose of summary judgment as expediting litigation by avoiding needless trials. Troche v. Daley (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 403, 407, 266 Cal. Rptr. 34 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed); Ferrell v. Southern Nevada Off-Road Enthusiasts, Ltd. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 309, 313, 195 Cal. Rptr. 90 (summary judgment for defendants reversed); see also Los Angeles Nat. Bank v. Bank of Canton (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1267, 1274, 280 Cal. Rptr. 831 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

[19] Questions of Law

Plaintiff's negligence claims involved initial issue of whether defendants owed plaintiff duty of care--question of law for court. Paz v. State of California (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 550, 557, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 703, 994 P.2d 975 (summary judgment for defendants upheld)

In action for negligence, while precise nature and extent of duty is question of law, it depends on nature and extent of act undertaken, a question of fact, so if record can support competing inferences or if facts are not yet sufficiently developed, ultimate finding on existence of duty cannot be made prior to hearing on merits and summary judgment is precluded; record in case would not support finding of duty. Artiglio v. Corning Inc. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 604, 615, 617, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 479, 957 P.2d 1313 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

In a negligence action where an unlicensed roofer sued the homeowner who employed him, the only issue in defendant's summary judgment motion was whether a particular section of the Labor Code excluded plaintiff as an employee for purposes of worker's compensation law; because a different Labor Code section operated to allow the tort action, the evidentiary burden never shifted to plaintiff and the trial court erred in granting defendant's motion. Mendoza v. Brodeur (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 72, 81, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 310 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

In secondary assumption of risk case, comparing relative fault of plaintiff and defendants is question of fact that must be resolved by trier of fact and cannot be resolved by way of summary judgment motion. Sanchez v. Hillerich & Bradsby Co. (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 703, 715, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 529

Generally, statute of limitations issues raise questions of fact that must be tried; however, when uncontradicted facts are susceptible of only one legitimate inference, summary judgment is proper. Kline v. Turner (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 1369, 1374, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 699 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Where trial court grants summary judgment solely on basis of its interpretation of statutory and case law, it is well settled that interpretation and application of statutory scheme to undisputed set of facts is question of law that is subject to de novo review on appeal; in such case, appellate court is not bound by trial court's interpretation of statutory scheme. City of San Diego v. Dunkl (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 384, 395, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 269 (summary judgment for plaintiffs affirmed)

Summary judgment is properly granted if there is no triable issue of material fact and issues raised by pleadings may be decided as matter of law; challenge to subject matter jurisdiction of court may properly be brought on summary judgment; likewise, interpretation of statute, including its preemptive effect, is question of law that may be considered on summary judgment. Garofalo v. Princess Cruises, Inc. (2001) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1060, 1068, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 754 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Construing and applying language of insurance policy presents pure issue of law. Peerless Lighting Corp. v. American Motorists Ins. Co. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 995, 1005-1006, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 753 (summary judgment for plaintiff reversed)

Concerning alleged misrepresentations and fraudulent concealment, question of materiality and justifiable reliance constitutes questions of fact that cannot be resolved by summary adjudication, unless undisputed facts leave no room for reasonable difference of opinion. West Shield Investigations & Security Consultants v. Superior Court (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 935, 957, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 612 (denial of defendants' motions for summary adjudication overturned by writ of mandate)

Court determines whether duty of care exists as matter of law. Martinez v. Bank of America (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 883, 894, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 576 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Operative facts were undisputed and dispositive issue was purely legal issue involving statutory interpretation and application of statute to undisputed facts which appellate court reviews de novo. Manibog v. MediaOne of Los Angeles, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1366, 1369, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 297 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Interpretation of insurance policy is question of law. Northland Ins. Co. v. Briones (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 796, 802, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 127 (summary judgment for plaintiff affirmed); Pardee Construction Co. v. Insurance Co. of the West (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1340, 1351, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 443 (judgment on pleadings for defendants granted after summary adjudication in their favor reversed as to two defendants with directions to grant plaintiff's motions for summary adjudication; judgment for remaining defendant affirmed); Williams v. California Physicians' Service (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 722, 728, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 497 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed; citing Waller v. Truck Ins. Exchange, Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 1, 18, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370, 900 P.2d 619); Old Republic Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 128, 142, 156, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 642 (denial of defendants' motions for summary judgment overturned by writ of mandate); Nissel v. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1103, 1110, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 174 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed); Lebas Fashion Imports of USA, Inc. v. ITT Hartford Ins. Group (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 548, 555, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Whether legal duty is present in particular case is question of law for court; in general, issue of defendant's negligence presents question of fact for jury; defendant's negligence may be determined as matter of law if reasonable jurors following law could draw only one conclusion from evidence presented; in appropriate case, defendant's lack of negligence may be determined as matter of law. Lindstrom v. Hertz Corp. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 644, 648, 652, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 874 (summary adjudication for defendant affirmed)

While it is province of jury, as trier of fact, to determine whether unreasonable risk of harm was foreseeable under particular facts of given case, trial court must still decide as matter of law whether there was duty in first place, even if that determination includes consideration of foreseeability. Juarez v. Boy Scouts of America, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 377, 402, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed except for one cause of action against two defendants that was reversed)

In action for damages based on dangerous condition of public property, whether each element of design immunity exists is question of law. Alvarez v. State of California (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 720, 727-728, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 719 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Summary judgment motion raises only questions of law regarding construction and effect of supporting and opposing papers. Hernandez v. California Hospital Medical Center (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 498, 502, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 97 (summary judgment for defendant reversed); Barisich v. Lewis (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 12, 15, 275 Cal. Rptr. 331 (summary judgment for plaintiff affirmed)

Whether duty of care exists is question of law for court. Butcher v. Truck Ins. Exchange (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1442, 1451, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 521 (summary judgment for defendants reversed)

Issue of fact becomes one of law and loses its triable character if undisputed facts leave no room for reasonable difference of opinion. Ostayan v. Serrano Reconveyance Co. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1411, 1418, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 577 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed); Old Republic Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 128, 142, 156, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 642 (denial of defendants' motions for summary judgment overturned by writ of mandate); Nissel v. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1103, 1110, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 174 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed); Shapiro v. Sutherland (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1534, 1543, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101 (summary judgment for defendants reversed)

Whether defense of res judicata applies under facts of case poses question of law which court considers de novo on appeal. Allstate Ins. Co. v. Mel Rapton, Inc. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 901, 907, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

With regard to Evid. Code § 669(a)(3), (4), whether death or injury involved in action resulted from occurrence of nature statute was designed to prevent and whether plaintiff was one of class of persons for whose protection statute was adopted are questions of law. Victor v. Hedges (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 229, 235, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 466 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Duty, being question of law, is particularly amenable to resolution by summary judgment. Nicole M. v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1238, 1243, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 922 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed); Quigley v. First Church of Christ Scientist (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1027, 1036, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 792 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Resolution of statute of limitations defense normally is factual question for trier of fact; summary judgment is proper, however, if court can draw only one legitimate inference from uncontradicted evidence regarding the limitation question. FNB Mortgage Corp. v. Pacific General Group (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1116, 1126, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841 (summary judgment for cross-defendant affirmed)

If facts are undisputed and admit only one conclusion, summary judgment may be entered on issues that otherwise would be submitted to the jury; thus, issue of existence of implied-in-fact contract not to terminate except for good cause may appropriately be resolved as matter of law given undisputed facts of particular case. Eisenberg v. Alameda Newspapers, Inc. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1359, 1386-1387, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 802 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

As matter of constitutional law, media statements on matters of public interest, including statements of opinions which reasonably imply knowledge of facts, must be provable as false before there can be liability under state defamation law; whether statement contains provable false factual assertions is question of law for trial court to decide; it is essential element of defamation that publication be of false statement of fact rather than opinion; issue whether communication was statement of fact or opinion is question of law to be decided by court. Eisenberg v. Alameda Newspapers,Inc. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1359, 1382-1383, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 802 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

When facts are undisputed, issue is one of law and appellate court is free to draw its own conclusions of law from undisputed facts. Ziman v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1382, 1387, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 397 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

In negligence action, existence of duty of care owed by defendant to plaintiff is legal issue that is particularly amenable to resolution by summary judgment. Vournas v. Fidelity Nat. Tit. Ins. Co. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 668, 672 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 490 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Because determining whether primary assumption of risk doctrine applies resolves question of whether duty of care exists, it is legal question for court to decide. Record v. Reason (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 472, 479, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 547

When facts are undisputed, determination whether activity is "hazardous recreational activity" under Gov. Code § 831.7 is question of law for court. Ochoa v. California State University (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1306-1307, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 768 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Question whether statement is reasonably susceptible to defamatory interpretation is question of law for trial court; only once court has determined statement is reasonably susceptible to defamatory interpretation does it become question for trier of fact whether or not it was so understood. Smith v. Maldonado (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 637, 644, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 397 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Question of existence of legal duty of care in given factual situation presents question of law to be determined by court alone. Armato v. Baden (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 885, 893, 84 Cal. Rptr 2d 294 (summary judgments for defendants affirmed)

Existence of duty is question of law; whether police owed duty to plaintiffs was question of law for trial court. Benavidez v. San Jose Police Dept. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 853, 859, 865, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 157 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Whether or not to apply judicial estoppel is question of law for trial court that can be made in context of summary judgment motion when none of facts material to court's decision to apply judicial estoppel disputed. Drain v. Betz Laboratories, Inc. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 950, 959 n.8, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 864 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Whether an enactment is intended to impose mandatory duty within meaning of Gov. Code § 815.6 is question of law for court. Becerra v. County of Santa Cruz (1999) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1450, 1458, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Probable cause element of malicious prosecution action requires objective judicial determination of reasonableness of defendant's prior lawsuit and existence or absence of probable cause is question of law to be determined by court from facts; question for trial court is whether on basis of facts known to defendant prosecution of prior action was tenable. Sangster v. Paetkau (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 151, 164, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 66 (summary judgment defendants favor affirmed)

Whether published material is reasonably susceptible of interpretation that implies a provable false assertion of fact, which is dispositive question in defamation action, is a question of law for court. Alszeh v. Home Box Office (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1456, 1461, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16 (summary judgment for defendant favor affirmed)

In context of primary assumption of risk, determination of what constitutes inherent risk is legal question for court. Van Dyke v. S.K.I. Ltd. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1310, 1315, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 775 (summary judgment for defendants reversed)

Insurance policy interpretation is generally question of law; duty to defend is contractual in nature and determination of duty is matter of law appropriate for summary adjudication. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Charter Oak Fire Ins. Co. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1080, 1086-1087, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 429 (summary judgment for defendant favor affirmed)

Application of manager's privilege is most amenable to resolution by summary judgment. Halvorsen v. Aramark Uniform Services, Inc. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1383, 1392, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 383 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Formulation of standard of care is question of law for court; once court has formulated standard, its application to facts of case is task for trier of fact if reasonable minds might differ as to whether defendants' conduct conformed to standard; only if circumstances permit no reasonable doubt about whether attorney's conduct did or did not violate standard of care, may court as matter of law resolve question whether attorney breached duty to clients. Crookall v. Davis, Punelli, Keathley & Willard (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1048, 1067, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 250 (summary judgment for defendants reversed)

With regard to causes of action based on negligence or negligent misrepresentation, trial court erroneously resolved disputed issues instead of merely spotting them when it concluded that defendant had reasonable grounds to believe house was 5,500 square feet, defendant breached no duty to plaintiff in failing to discover house was not that size, and plaintiff did not justifiably rely on defendants' representations. Furla v. Jon Douglas Co. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1069, 1077, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 911 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

With regard to negligence per se, whether injury resulted from occurrence of nature statute was designed to prevent and whether plaintiff was one of persons for whose protection statute was adopted are questions of law; whether party to action violated statute is generally question of fact; similarly, question whether violation proximately caused or contributed to plaintiff's injury usually matter for jury decision. Reyes v. Kosha (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 451, 462-463, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 457

Interpretation of statutes and administrative regulations presents question of law which is subject to independent review on appeal. Farm Sanctuary, Inc. v. Department of Food & Agriculture (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 495, 501, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 75 (denial of plaintiff's summary judgment motion, and based on parties' stipulation entry of judgment in defendant's favor, affirmed)

Ordinarily, determination whether employee acted within scope of employment presents question of fact; it becomes question of law, however, when facts are undisputed and no conflicting inferences are possible. Depew v. Crocodile Enterprises, Inc. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 480, 489, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 673 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Existence of dangerous condition usually is question of fact, but may be resolved as question of law if reasonable minds can come to but one conclusion. City of South Lake Tahoe v. Superior Court (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 971, 979, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 146 (summary judgment for plaintiffs overturned by writ of mandate)

Existence and scope of duty is question of law for court. Linden Partners v. Wilshire Linden Associates (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 508, 518, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 708 (summary adjudication for plaintiffs affirmed)

Interpretation and application of statutory scheme to undisputed set of facts is question of law that is subject to de novo review on appeal; accordingly, appellate court is not bound by trial court's interpretation. Lenane v. Continental Maritime of San Diego, Inc. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1073, 1079, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 121 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Generally, whether defendant was negligent constitutes fact for jury to decide; however, when reasonable jurors could draw only one conclusion from evidence presented, lack of negligence may be determined as matter of law, and summary judgment granted. Federico v. Superior Court (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1207, 1214, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370 (denial of defendant's motion for summary judgment overturned by writ of mandate)

Question of whether agreement has been integrated, and thus whether parol evidence doctrine applies, is whether parties intended their writing to serve as exclusive embodiment of their agreement; question is one of law. Wedeck v. Unocal Corp. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 848, 862-863, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 501 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Issue of fact becomes one of law and loses its triable character if the undisputed facts leave no room for a reasonable difference of opinion. Tsemetzin v. Coast Federal Savings & Loan Assn. (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 1334, 1342, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Whether duty of care exists is question of law for courts; question of whether person reasonably relied on another's representations normally question of fact, although in some instances it can be decided as matter of law; when insured alleged agent mislead him regarding extent of coverage for losses of business personal property provided by insurance policy he purchased, genuine issues of triable fact existed whether agent made representations, and if so, whether they were sufficient to impose special duty on insurer. Paper Savers, Inc. v. Nacsa (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1090, 1092, 1095, 1103, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 547

In first party claim alleging bad faith of insurer, reasonableness of insurer's claims handling conduct while ordinarily question of fact becomes question of law when evidence is undisputed and only one inference can be drawn from evidence. Lee v. Crusader Ins. Co. (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1750, 1757, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550

While resolution of statute of limitation issue normally question of fact, when uncontradicted facts established through discovery are susceptible of only one legitimate inference, summary judgment proper. Romano v. Rockwell Internat., Inc. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 479, 487, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20, 926 P. 2d 1114

It is pure question of law when only dispute is over legal effect and significance of undisputed facts. Schaefer Dixon Associates v. Santa Ana Watershed Project Authority (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 524, 531, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 698

On motion for summary judgment concerning libel action, issue whether communication was a statement of fact or opinion and whether plaintiff was a public figure were questions of law to be determined by court. Copp v. Paxton (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 829, 837, 845, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 831

When facts are undisputed, court can resolve question of law in accordance with general summary judgment principles; absent factual dispute as to meaning of policy language, the interpretation, construction and application of insurance contract is strictly issue of law. Homestead Ins. Co. v. American Empire Surplus Lines Ins. Co. (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 1297, 1300-1301, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 268

Since interpretation of statutes is a matter of law, usual rules of summary judgment on appeal do not apply. Massa v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 1217, 1220, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 164

Because existence of primary assumption of risk is dependent on existence of legal duty, and because duty is issue of law to be decided by court, applicability of that defense is amenable to resolution by summary judgment. Bushnell v. Japanese-American Religious & Cultural Center (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 525, 528, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671

Trial court's determination of whether ambiguity exists in contract is question of law subject to independent review on appeal; trial court's resolution of ambiguity is also question of law if no parol evidence admitted or if parol evidence not in conflict; if, however, parol evidence is in conflict, trial court's resolution of conflict is question of fact that must be upheld if supported by substantial evidence; if parol evidence contradictory, factual question arises that should not be decided by summary judgment. WYDA Associates v. Merner (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1702, 1710, 1713, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 323

When material facts are not in dispute in summary judgment motion, but parties simply disputed legal significance of material facts, that is, whether defendant's conduct came within meaning of phrase "causes to be sold, any alcoholic beverage, to any obviously intoxicated minor" as used in Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602.1, liability turned on question of statutory interpretation which was question of law to be decided in summary judgment motion. Hernandez v. Modesto Portuguese Pentecost Assn. (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1274, 1279, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 229 ; see Monastra v. Konica Business Machines, U.S.A., Inc. (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 1628, 1635, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d. 528 (when facts undisputed, whether, and how, bulk sales and fraudulent transfer statutes applies to facts is question of law which court reviews independently)

Motions for summary judgment raise only questions of law; construction of Unruh Civil Rights Act (Civ. Code § 51), that is, whether Mothers Against Drunk Driving is a business entity under the act, raised question of law for court to decide. Harris v. Mothers Against Drunk Driving (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 16, 20, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 833

Trial court must decide if triable issue of fact exists; if none exists and sole remaining issue is one of law, it is trial court's duty to determine issue of law. City of South El Monte v. Southern Cal. Joint Powers Ins. Authority (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1629, 1645, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 729

When operative facts are undisputed, question of application of statute of limitations as matter of law, and summary judgment as proper if facts show that action is time barred as matter of law. Love v. Fire Ins. Exchange (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1136, 1142-1143, 271 Cal. Rptr. 246

Whether duty exists is legal question. City of El Segundo v. Bright (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1372, 1376, 269 Cal. Rptr. 1

Since construction of statute and question of whether it applies present solely question of law, that question is appropriately determined on motion for summary judgment. Neighbours v. Buzz Oates Enterprises (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 325, 329, 265 Cal. Rptr. 788

[20] Review by Appeal

[a] Affirmance on Any Legal Basis

Trial court's stated reasons supporting its ruling do not bind appellate court as appellate court reviews ruling, not its rationale; consequently, if summary judgment was properly granted on any ground, appellate court must affirm regardless of whether trial court's reasoning correct. Oliver v. AT&T Wireless Services (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 521, 528, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Because appellate review is de novo, if summary judgment was proper, even if granted for incorrect reasons, appellate court affirms. Deschene v. Pinole Point Steel Co. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 33, 39, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 15 (summary judgment for defendant reversed as to two causes of action and otherwise affirmed)

Appellate court is not bound by trial court's stated reasons, if any, supporting its ruling; appellate court reviews ruling, not the rationale. Hanson v. Lucky Stores, Inc. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 215, 223, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 487 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed); Prilliman v. United Air Lines, Inc. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 935, 951, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 142 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed as to one plaintiff and reversed as to other)

Appellate court reviews trial court's ruling, not its rationale; accordingly, if trial court's decision is correct on any legal theory, judgment will be affirmed. Marshak v. Ballesteros (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1514, 1517, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Appellate court may affirm grant of summary judgment on any ground properly raised below, whether or not addressed by trial court. Ochoa v. California State University (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1304, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 768 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

When there is sufficient legal ground to support granting of motion, order will be upheld regardless of grounds relied on by trial court Benavidez v. San Jose Police Dept. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 853, 859, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 157 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed); Becerra v. County of Santa Cruz (1999) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1450, 1457, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

When there is no genuine issue of material fact, appellate court should affirm trial court's judgment if it is correct on any theory of law applicable to case. Fretland v. County of Humboldt (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1478, 1490, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Appellate court may affirm summary judgment for reasons different from trial court's reasons. Bunnell v. Department of Corrections (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1360, 1367, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 58

If summary judgment is proper on grounds other those articulated by trial court, appellate court must nevertheless affirm. Barton v. Elexsys Internat., Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1182, 1187-1188, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 212 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

On appeal, reviewing court examines facts and independently determines their effect as matter of law; although trial court may grant summary judgment on one basis, appellate court may affirm judgment under another; appellate court is not bound by trial court's stated reasons, if any, supporting its ruling; it reviews ruling, not rationale; only if defendant makes requisite showing does the appellate court need to examine plaintiff's opposing papers to determine if they demonstrate existence of triable issue of material fact. Salazar v. Southern Cal. Gas Co. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1370, 1376, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 522

Summary judgment is affirmed on appeal if there was any legal basis on which trial court may have granted it, even if trial court used incorrect ground for its decision. Hine v. Dittrich (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 59, 62, 278 Cal. Rptr. 330 ; Perez v. 222 Sutter St. Partners (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 938, 943 n.4, 272 Cal. Rptr. 119 ; Troche v. Daley (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 403, 407-408, 266 Cal. Rptr. 34 ; Mosher v. Mayacamas Corp. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1, 4, 263 Cal. Rptr. 373

Summary judgment based on erroneous determination that issue was moot as nonetheless upheld if correct on any theory of law applicable to case. Farron v. City and County of San Francisco (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1071, 1074, 265 Cal. Rptr. 317

[b] Arguments Not Raised in Trial Court

Appellate court will only consider those facts that were before the trial court when it ruled on the motion; this in turn means the facts contained in the parties separate statement. If the fact is not set forth in the separate statement, it does not exist. Mills v. Forestex Co. (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 625, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 273

A judgment granting or denying summary judgment may be affirmed on any correct legal theory provided opposing party had opportunity to address it below. Vallely Investments, L.P. v. BancAmerica Commercial Corp. (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 816, 821, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 689 (reversing summary judgment for assignee of lease with directions that judgment for lessor be entered in action by lessor seeking declaratory judgment as to terms of lease)

Plaintiff sought recovery for injuries suffered while "off-roading;" defendant contended that plaintiff's action was barred by the doctrine of primary assumption of the risk, in that collisions were an inherent risk in the sport of "off-roading;" plaintiff's complaint pled only that defendant was negligent; it did not allege recklessness; on appeal, plaintiff argued that the evidence supported a claim of recklessness, which would avoid the defense of primary assumption of the risk; court of appeal held that the trial court was correct in deciding the case based on the pleadings, and held that the plaintiff should have sought leave to amend the complaint prior to the hearing on the summary judgment motion. Distefano v. Forester (2001) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1249, 1264-1265, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 813

If, in deciding appeal, court finds there is no issue of material fact, court affirms summary judgment if it is correct on any legal theory applicable to case, whether or not that theory was adopted by trial court, and whether it was raised by defendant in trial court or first addressed on appeal. Assilzadeh v. California Federal Bank (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 399, 409, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 176 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Appellate court declined to reach two arguments raised for first time by appellants because they were not raised until appellants filed their reply brief. ML Direct, Inc. v. TIG Specialty Ins. Co. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 137, 146, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 846

Issues raised for first time in reply brief will not be considered on appeal. Renna v. County of Fresno (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1, 6 n.1, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 586 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Appellate court may affirm on any legally correct theory provided plaintiffs had adequate opportunity to address theory in lower court. Kramer v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 332, 336, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 301 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Defendant's objection to plaintiff's reliance on theory that was not raised in plaintiff's summary judgment papers was proper, and court had discretion to deem argument waived, but under circumstances choose to address issue, which had been raised in two principal authorities cited by defendant on appeal and issue had also been briefed in motion papers of another plaintiff, not party to appeal, which had given plaintiff opportunity to respond to it below. Neverkovec v. Fredericks (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 337, 347 n.6, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 856 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

As general rule, party cannot raise new theory of liability on appeal; further, on appeal, plaintiff cannot properly raise new theory in reply brief. Fretland v. County of Humboldt (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1478, 1489, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Appellate court may consider only those facts that were before trial court, and disregard any new factual allegations made for first time on appeal; potential theories that could theoretically create triable issues of material fact may not be raised or considered on appeal unless they were factually presented, fully developed and argued to trial court. Sangster v. Paetkau (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 151, 163, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 66 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Although review of summary judgment is de novo, it is limited to issues that have been adequately raised and supported in plaintiffs' brief; issues not raised in appellant's brief are deemed waived or abandoned. Reyes v. Kosha (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 451, 466 n.6, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 457

Appellate court may consider matter involving issue of law on undisputed facts for first time on appeal notwithstanding party did not raise or argue issue in trial court; it makes no difference that issue was first raised on appeal by court rather than parties, so long as parties given reasonable opportunity to address it. Tsemetzin v. Coast Federal Savings & Loan

Assn. (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 1334, 1341 n.6, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Appellate court declined to address plaintiff's contention concerning recognition of new cause of action raised for first time on appeal; complaint did not plead such theory of liability, and issue was not addressed during summary judgment proceedings; motion for summary judgment must be directed to issues raised by pleadings; papers filed in response to defendant's motion for summary judgment may not create issue outside pleadings and are not substitute for amendment of pleadings; defendant is not required to refute liability on some theoretical possibility not included in pleadings. Sutherland v. Barclays American/Mortgage Corp. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 299, 317, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 614

When trial court granted defendant's motion for summary judgment based on statute of limitations in case turning on when plaintiff became aware of construction defect involving drainage, plaintiff as unable to switch on appeal to rely on different defect; precluded by waiver, theory of trial, and failure to mention that different defect in separate statement of disputed fact. North Coast Business Park v. Nielsen Construction Co. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 22, 28-32, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 104

Because moving party's burden on motion for summary judgment is only to negate existence of triable issues of fact in fashion that entitles it to judgment on issues raised by pleadings, rule forbidding raising new issue for first time on appeal as taking on added significance in summary judgment proceedings; moving party as not required to refute liability on some theoretical possibility not included in pleadings; accordingly, it would be unfair to party who successfully moved for summary judgment to permit opposing party on appeal to raise new theory not included in pleadings. Munro v. Regents of University of California (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 977, 989, 263 Cal. Rptr. 878

[c] Denial if Triable Issue Exists

Task of reviewing court as being to determine, in light of general rules governing summary judgment procedure in trial court, whether evidence discloses triable issue. Corwin v. Los Angeles Newspaper Service Bureau, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 842, 852, 94 Cal. Rptr. 785, 484 P.2d 953

In reviewing summary judgment, appellate court as determining whether facts shown by parties give rise to triable issue of fact; in making this determination, court as strictly construing moving party's papers, while liberally construing those of opposing party. Jacobs v. Fire Ins. Exchange (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 584, 589, 278 Cal. Rptr. 52 ; see also Farley v. El Tejon Unified School Dist. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 371, 375, 274 Cal. Rptr. 780

On appeal from summary judgment, reviewing court as required to liberally construe facts in light most favorable to party who opposed motion; in examining evidence, appellate court as not determining if evidence is strong or weak, but only if sufficient evidence has been presented to raise triable issues of fact. Ralph Andrews Productions, Inc. v. Paramount Pictures Corp. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 676, 679, 682, 271 Cal. Rptr. 797

Function of appellate court on review of summary judgment ruling as essentially same as that of trial court, whose function is merely to determine whether triable issues of fact exist, and not to decide merits of issues themselves. Guardianship of Ethan S. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1403, 1415, 271 Cal. Rptr. 121

Possible theories not fully developed or factually presented to trial court as not creating triable issue of fact on appeal from summary judgment. City of Oceanside v. McKenna (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1420, 1432, 264 Cal. Rptr. 275

[d] Order Denying Summary Judgment

Order denying summary judgment not appealable under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1; reviewable only by petition for extraordinary writ. Sierra Craft, Inc. v. Magnum Enterprises, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1252, 1256, 75 Cal. Rptr.

2d 681

Order denying motion for summary judgment as nonappealable. Los Angeles Nat. Bank v. Bank of Canton (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1267, 1269 n.2, 280 Cal. Rptr. 831

Rule as axiomatic that, to review order on motion for summary judgment, reviewing court must have copy of actual order and not proposed order; having copy as particularly important in connection with review of denial of motion, because trial court is required to state basis for denial and evidence that shows facts are controverted. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1455, 1464, 264 Cal. Rptr. 512

[e] Order Granting Summary Judgment

While a trial court's failure to provide a sufficient statement of reasons is not automatic grounds for reversal, an appellate court may reverse a trial court's granting of summary adjudication where the court makes no oral of written statement for the reasons for its decision and the appellate court is prevented from undertaking a meaningful review of the issues. Santa Barbara Pistachio Ranch v. Chowchilla Water District (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 439, 449, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 856

Order granting summary judgment is not appealable order or judgment; in interest of justice and to avoid delay, court construed plaintiff's appeal as having been taken from summary judgment rather than from order. Zavala v. Arce (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 915, 924 n.7, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 571 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Order granting summary judgment is not itself appealable; appeal lies only from ensuing judgment of dismissal; thus, order granting Code Civ. Proc. § 473 motion to vacate order granting summary judgment was reviewable on appeal from posttrial judgment. Garcia v. Hejmadi (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 674, 680, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 228 (reversing judgment on basis that order granting summary judgment was improperly vacated)

Order granting summary judgment is nonappealable; however, in interests of justice and to avoid delay, court treated order as summary judgment in favor of defendant. United Fidelity Life Ins. Co. v. Emert (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 941, 944-947, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 14

On appeal from summary judgment when no formal judgment was entered but order granting motion for summary judgment was obviously intended as final disposition, and matter has been fully briefed on appeal, appellate court may, in interest of judicial economy, treat order as incorporating final judgment. Amstone v. Peninsular Fire Ins. Co. (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1019, 1022, n.2, 277 Cal. Rptr. 260

Appeal from order granting motion for summary judgment, rather than from judgment itself, as improper. Buehler v. Alpha Beta Co. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 729, 731 n.1, 274 Cal. Rptr. 14 ("generously" treating appeal from order as appeal from subsequently filed judgment)

Order granting motion for summary judgment as nonappealable, but when judgment has in fact been entered, appellate court as empowered to honor appeal as one taken from judgment itself. Rivera v. Southern Pacific Transportation Co. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 294, 297, 266 Cal. Rptr. 11

Order granting or denying motion for summary judgment as not appealable; appeal as lying only from judgment entered following such order. Rogness v. English Moss Joint Venturers (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 190, 192 n.2, 239 Cal. Rptr. 387

Order granting summary judgment as not appealable when judgment never entered; however, plaintiff's appeal treated as petition for writ of mandate because Code Civ. Proc. § 473c provides that decision is reviewable by mandate, issues were fully briefed and argued, and no protest to appeal was made by defendants. Witchell v. De Korne (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 965, 969 n.1, 225 Cal. Rptr. 176

Order granting motion for partial summary judgment as appealable when one of several parties seeks review of disposition that as to him or her leaves no issue to be determined. Etienne v. DKM Enterprises, Inc. (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 487, 489, 186 Cal. Rptr. 321

[f] Standard of Review

On appeal after motion for summary judgment is granted, appellate court reviews record de novo, considering all evidence set forth in moving and opposing papers except that to which objections have been made and sustained; defendant adduced, in support of its motion for summary judgment, affirmative evidence which, unless materially contradicted or rebutted, would establish that each of plaintiff's causes of action lacked merit; burden then shifted to plaintiff to show existence of one or more triable issues of material fact and as to each cause of action plaintiff submitted or pointed to evidence which, in plaintiff's view, indicated such triable issues; thus, as to each count of plaintiff's complaint, issue on appellate review is simply whether, and to what extent, evidence submitted for and against motion for summary judgment discloses issues warranting a trial. Guz v. Bechtel Nat., Inc. (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 317, 334, 335 n.7, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 352, 8 P.3d 1089 (summary judgment for defendant proper except as to one claim; remanded to court of appeal)

Appellate court reviews moving papers independently to determine whether there is triable issue as to any material fact and whether moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law. Galanty v. Paul Revere Life Ins. Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 368, 374, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 67, 1 P.3d 658 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Appellate court reviews trial court's decision de novo, considering all evidence parties offered in support or against motion, and uncontradicted inferences reasonably deducible from evidence, except that to which court sustained objections. Paz v. State of California (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 550, 557, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 703, 994 P.2d 975 (summary judgment for defendants upheld)

Rulings on summary judgments motions are examined de novo, including rulings granting such motions. Peatros v. Bank of America (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 147, 176, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 659, 990 P.2d 539 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Rulings on summary judgments motions are examined de novo, including rulings granting such motions; thus, court of appeal did not err when it reviewed superior court's order granting defendant's summary judgment motion independently. Norgart v. Upjohn Co. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 383, 404, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 453, 981 P.2d 79 (summary judgment for defendant reversed on statute of limitation issue; remanded for proceedings consistent with Supreme Court's opinion)

On appeal appellate court conducts independent review of trial court's resolution of questions of law. Green v. Ralee Engineering Co. (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 66, 72, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16, 960 P.2d 1046 (summary judgment for defendant reversed; remanded for proceedings consistent with Supreme Court's decision)

Appellate court reviews trial court's decision de novo, considering all the evidence set forth in supporting and opposing papers, except that to which objections have been made and sustained, and all uncontradicted inferences reasonably deducible from evidence. Artiglio v. Corning Inc. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 604, 612, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 479, 957 P.2d 1313 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

On appeal, reviewing court exercises independent judgment deciding whether moving party established undisputed facts that negate opposing party's claim or state complete defense. Romano v. Rockwell Internat., Inc. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 479, 487, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20, 926 P. 2d 1114 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Abuse of discretion standard is applicable in motions for summary judgment involving determination by trial court of equitable subrogation. Dieden v. Schmidt (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 645, 654, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 365

Trial court ruling on motion for summary judgment is subject to de no review; appellate court review is limited to facts shown in affidavits supporting and opposing motion and uncontested factual affidavits set forth in pleadings; moving party's affidavits are strictly construed, and opponent's affidavits are liberally construed; due to drastic nature of summary judgment, any doubts about granting propriety of motion must be resolved in favor of party opposing motion; appellate court independently determines construction and effect of facts presented to trial court as matter of law. Kolodge v. Boyd (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 349, 355-356, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 749 (reversing summary judgment for defendant)

On appeal, appellate court reviews trial court's decision to grant or deny summary judgment motion de novo, on basis of examination of evidence before trial court and by independent determination of its effect as matter of law; appellate court is not bound by trial court's stated reasons or rationale, but reviews summary judgment without deference to trial court'sdetermination of questions of law; appellate court must consider all evidence properly identified in papers submitted, except that to which objections have been made and sustained by court. Jennifer M. v. Redwood Women's Health Center (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 81, 86-86, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 544 (summary adjudication for defendant affirmed)

Trial court order granting summary judgment is subject to de novo review, and appellate court was not bound by trial court's ruling that statute of limitations was tolled in attorney malpractice action. Carlson v. Blatt (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 646, 649, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 42 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed on grounds that action was barred by statute of limitations; trial court had granted summary judgment on alternate collateral estoppel grounds)

Rulings on motions for summary judgment are reviewed de novo. Grover v. Bay View Bank (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 452, 455, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 677 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Trial court ruling on summary judgment is subject to de novo review, and appellate court must strictly construe moving papers and liberally construe materials offered in opposition; evidence in support of and in opposition to motion must be viewed in light most favorable to party against whom summary judgment was entered; due to drastic nature of procedure, all doubts about propriety of granting motion must be resolved in favor of its denial. Asplund v. Selected Investments in Financial Equities, Inc. (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 26, 36-37, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 34 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

As summary judgment motion raises only questions of law regarding construction and effect of supporting and opposing papers, appellate court independently applies same three-step analysis required of trial court, thus appellate court: (1) identifies issues framed by pleadings; (2) determines whether moving party's showing established facts that negate opponent's claim and justifies judgment in moving party's favor; and (3) if it does, determines whether opposition demonstrates existence of triable, material factual issue. Garofalo v. Princess Cruises, Inc. (2001) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1060, 1068, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 754 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Summary judgment motion is appealable under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 437c and 904; because summary judgment raises only questions of law, appellate court exercises de novo review to determine whether defendant has negated necessary element of plaintiff's case or demonstrated that there is no triable issue of material fact; in doing so, appellate court views evidence in light most favorable to opposing party and resolves any doubts as to granting motion in opposing party's favor. Schooler v. State of California. (2001) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1004, 1008-1009, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 343 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

On appeal, reviewing court exercises its independent judgment; appellate court's function in summary proceeding is limited to issue finding, not issue determination. City of Santa Cruz v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 1167, 1175-1176, 1188, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 198 (summary judgment for defendants reversed as to some defendants and affirmed as to other defendants)

Appellate court reviews grant of summary judgment de novo by examining pleadings parties presented to trial court in support of, and in opposition to, motion; because there was no dispute as to relevant facts, appellate court exercises its independent judgment as to their legal effect; thus, appellate court's sole task in case before it was to construe and apply language of insurance policy, which presents pure question of law. Peerless Lighting Corp. v. American Motorists Ins. Co. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 995, 1005, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 753 (summary judgment for plaintiff reversed)

Because motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication involves only questions of law, standard of review is de novo; first, appellate court reviews motion to determine whether defendant has met its initial burden to establish that one or more causes of action in complaint has no merit, by showing that one or more elements of cause of action cannot be established, or that there is complete defense to it; second, if defendant has met this initial burden, court examines whether plaintiff has shown, by setting forth specific facts, that triable issue of facts exists as to that cause of action or defense; in making its review, appellate court need not defer to trial court's decision; appellate court not bound by trial court's stated reasons, if any, supporting its reasons; court reviews ruling, not its rationale. West Shield Investigations & Security Consultants v. Superior Court (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 935, 946, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 612 (peremptory writ of mandate issued directing trial court to vacate order denying defendants' motions for summary adjudication and to issue new order granting summary adjudication as to various causes of action; in all other respects, petitions for relief denied)

In reviewing propriety of summary judgment, appellate court independently reviews record that was before trial court; appellate court must determine whether facts as shown by parties give rise to triable issue of material fact; in making this determination, moving party's affidavits are strictly construed while those of opposing party are liberally construed; court accepts as undisputed facts only those portions of moving party's evidence that are not contradicted by opposing party's evidence; in other words, facts alleged in evidence of party opposing summary judgment and reasonable inferences therefrom must be accepted as true. ECC Construction, Inc. v. Ganson (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 572, 575, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 292 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

After examining documents supporting summary judgment motion in trial court, appellate court independently determines their effect as matter of law; as summary judgment motion raises only questions of law regarding construction and effect of supporting and opposing papers, appellate court independently applies same three-step analysis as required of trial court; appellate court identifies issues framed by pleadings, determines whether moving party's showing establishes facts that negate opponent's claim and justify judgment in moving party's favor, and, if it does, court finally determines whether opposition demonstrates existence of triable, material factual issue; declarations of moving party are strictly construed, those of opposing party are liberally construed, and doubts as to whether summary judgment should be granted must be resolved in opposing party's favor; court focuses on issue finding; it does not resolve issues of fact; court seeks to find contradictions in evidence or in inferences reasonable deducible from evidence, which raise triable issue of material fact; if, in deciding appeal, court finds there is no issue of material fact, court affirms summary judgment if it is correct on any legal theory applicable to case, whether ornot that theory was adopted by trial court, and whether it was raised by defendant in trial court or first addressed on appeal. Assilzadeh v. California Federal Bank (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 399, 408-409, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 176 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Appellate court reviews motion for summary judgment de novo, applying same standard as trial court. Manibog v. MediaOne of Los Angeles, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1366, 1369, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 297 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Trial Court's stated reasons for its ruling do not bind appellate court, appellate court reviews ruling, not its rationale; after examining facts before trial judge on summary judgment motion, appellate court independently determines their effect as matter of law; validity of summary judgment is to be determined solely by sufficiency of affidavits before court when motion was heard, and appellate court will consider only facts before trial court at time it ruled on motion. Rubenstein v. Rubenstein (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1131, 1143, 1151 n.10, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 707 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Appellate court reviews record de novo. Dimock v. Emerald Properties (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 868, 874, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 255 (summary judgments for defendants reversed)

On appeal from summary judgment, reviewing court is not bound by trial court's construction of contract when that construction was not based on credibility of conflicting extrinsic evidence as to which trial court was in better position to form a judgment; thus, when there is no extrinsic evidence, when the extrinsic evidence is not conflicting or when conflicting evidence is of a written nature only, reviewing court is not bound by rulings of trial court but rather must make its own independent interpretation of written contract; on appeal, appellate court must conduct de novo review to determine whether there are any triable factual issues; likewise, because interpretation of insurance policy is question of law, appellate court must make independent determination of language used in contract under consideration. Northland Ins. Co. v. Briones (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 796, 802, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 127 (summary judgment for plaintiff affirmed)

Trial court's ruling on motion for summary judgment is subject to de novo review. Rice v. Crow (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 725, 732, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 110 (summary judgment for defendants reversed); Gulf Ins. Co. v. Berger, Kahn, Shafton, Moss, Figler, Simon & Gladstone (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 114, 125, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Standard of review of grant of summary adjudication of issues is same as that applied to summary judgments; because defendant obtained summary adjudication in its favor, appellate court reviews record de novo to determine if defendant conclusively negated a necessary element of plaintiff's case or demonstrated that under no hypothesis is there a material fact that requires process of trial. Lindstrom v. Hertz Corp. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 644, 648, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 874 (summary adjudication for defendant affirmed)

On review of summary judgment in defendant's favor, appellate court reviews record de novo to determine whether defendant has conclusively negated necessary element of plaintiff's case or demonstrated that under no hypothesis is there material issue that requires process of trial; because trial court's determination is one of law based on papers submitted, appellate court must make its own independent determination regarding construction and effect of supporting and opposing papers; appellate court applies same three-step analysis required of trial court; court begins by identifying issues framed by pleadings, then determines whether moving party's showing has established facts that justify judgment in movant's favor; when motion prima facie justifies judgment, final step is to determine whether opposition demonstrates existence of triable, material factual issue; because appellate court reviews trial court's grant of summary judgment de novo, plaintiff's arguments citing Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(g) to fault trial court's decision for failing to distinguish it was ruling on an affirmative defense and not merits of first cause of action, and for failing to specify reasons for its ruling and refer to evidence showing no triable issue of fact exist, were of no moment. Tahoe Vista Concerned Citizens v. Counter of Placer (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 577, 587-588, 594 n.7, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 880 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Summary judgment rulings are reviewed de novo including those granting motion; appellate court independently interprets written contract when no extrinsic evidence and related credibility questions were presented below; interpretation of written instrument is essentially judicial function to be exercised according to generally accepted canons of interpretation so that purposes of instrument may be given effect; possibility that conflicting inferences can be drawn from uncontroverted evidence does not relieve appellate court of its duty independently to interpret instrument.

Culligan v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 429, 434, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 656 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Appellate court reviews trial court's ruling on defendant's motion for summary judgment under independent review standard; appellate court must independently determine construction and effect of facts presented to trial judge as matter of law. Juarez v. Boy Scouts of America, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 377, 393, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed except for one cause of action against two defendants that was reversed)

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(c), motion for summary judgment must be granted if all papers submitted show there is no triable issue as to any material fact and moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law; appellate court conducts de novo review to determine if there are any genuine issues of material fact; appellate court makes its own independent determination of construction and effect of papers submitted, and validity of ruling is reviewable irrespective of reasons stated; court strictly construes moving party's papers and liberally construes opposing party's papers; doubts as to propriety of summary judgment should be resolved against moving party. City of Oceanside v. Superior Court (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 269, 273, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 621 (petition for peremptory writ of mandate seeking reversal of order denying defendants' motion for summary judgment granted)

Appellate court reviews de novo trial court's award of summary judgment; any doubts regarding propriety of awarding summary judgment are resolved in favor of party opposing summary judgment. Jang v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1291, 1295, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 917 (summary judgment for cross-defendant affirmed)

Appellate court reviews de novo trial court's decision to grant summary judgment. Alvarez v. State of California (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 720, 727, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 719 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed); Carlton v. Quint (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 690, 699, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed); Hanson v. Lucky Stores, Inc. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 215, 223, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 487 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Appellate review of summary judgment is limited to facts contained in documents presented to trial court; appellate court exercises independent judgment as to legal effect of undisputed facts disclosed by parties' papers. Aloha Pacific, Inc. v. California Ins. Guarantee Assn. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 297, 307, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148 (judgment for defendant entered pursuant to stipulation following denial of plaintiff's motion for summary judgment affirmed)

In reviewing order granting summary judgment, appellate court must assume role of trial court and redetermine merits of motion; while appellate court must review summary judgment motion by same standards as trial court, it must independently determine as matter of law construction and effect of facts presented. ML Direct, Inc. v. TIG Specialty Ins. Co. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 137, 141, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 846 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Appellate court reviews orders granting or denying summary judgment motion de novo; appellate court exercises independent assessment of trial court's ruling, applying same legal standard as trial court in determining whether there are any genuine issues of material fact or whether moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law. American Golf Corp. v. Superior Court (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 30, 35, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 683 (denial of defendant's motion for summary judgment overturned on writ of mandate)

In determining whether defendant has satisfied his or her initial burden of proof under former Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(o)(2) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(p)(2)), appellate court decides de novo whether issue of material fact exists and whether moving party was entitled to summary judgment as matter of law; in other words, appellate court must assume role of trial court and reassess merits of motion; in doing so, appellate court will consider only facts properly before trial court at time it ruled on motion; court carries out its appellate function by applying same three-step analysis required of trial court; first, appellate court identities issues framed by pleadings; second, appellate court determines whether moving party's showing has satisfied his or her burden of proof and justifies judgment in movant's favor; when summary judgment motion prima facie justifies judgment, third and final step is to determine whether opposition demonstrates existence of triable issue of material fact. Inter Mountain Mortgage, Inc. v. Sulimen (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1434, 1439, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 790 (summary judgment for defendants reversed)

On review of motion for summary judgment in defendant's favor, appellate court reviews record de novo to determine if defendant has conclusively negated necessary element of plaintiff's case or demonstrated that under no hypothesis is there material issue of fact that requires process of trial; evidence of moving party is strictly construed and that of opponent is liberally construed, and any doubts as to propriety of granting motion are resolved in favor of party opposing motion; mindful that summary judgment motion raises on questions of law, appellate court independently reviews parties supporting and opposing papers and applies same standard as trial court in determining whether triable issue of material fact exists. Campbell v. Scripps Bank (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1328, 1333 n.2, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 635 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed except as to improperly awarded attorney fees)

In reviewing propriety of summary judgment, appellate court independently reviews record that was before trial court; court must determine whether facts shown by parties give rise to triable issue of material fact. Wagner v. City of South Pasadena (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 943, 947, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 91 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

On appeal from summary judgment, appellate court conducts independent review, applying same three-step process as trial court; appellate court first looks to pleadings to identify elements of cause of action for which relief is sought; court then examines moving party's motion to see whether it shows that one or more elements of cause of action cannot be established or that there is complete defense to that cause of action; if moving party has made requisite showing, burden shifts to party opposing motion to set forth specific facts to show that a triable issue of one or more material facts exists as to that cause of action or defense thereto; if opposing party fails to sustain this burden, summary judgment is proper. Burroughs v. Precision Airmotive Corp. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 681, 688, 93 Cal. Rptr.2d 124 (judgment for defendant, entered after summary adjudication motion granted, affirmed)

On appeal from grant of summary judgment, appellate court reviews record de novo and independently determines if motion was properly granted; appellate court uses same standards and rules as trial court in deciding propriety of motion; three-step analysis is used in reviewing motion for summary judgment; first, appellate court must identity issues framed by pleadings; second, court determines whether moving party has met its statutory burden of proof; third step is to determine if opposing party has demonstrated that triable issue of fact exists as to cause of action. Renna v. County of Fresno (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1, 5, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 586 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

After examining documents supporting summary judgment motion in trial court, appellate court independently determines their effect as matter of law. Ostayan v. Serrano Reconveyance Co. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1411, 1418, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 577 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

On review of summary judgment in favor of defendant, appellate court reviews record de novo to determine if defendant has conclusively negated a necessary element of plaintiff's case or demonstrated that under no hypothesis is there material issue of fact that requires process of trial; appellate court independently reviews parties's supporting and opposing papers and applies same standard as does trial court to determine if a triable issue of material fact exists; first step in reviewing summary judgment in favor of defendant is to identify issues framed by pleadings since it is those allegations to which motion must respond by establishing complete defense or otherwise showing there is no factual basis for relief on any theory reasonably contemplatedby complaint. Pardee Construction Co. v. Insurance Co. of the West (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1340, 1349 n.3, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 443 (judgment for three defendants whose motions for judgment on pleadings were granted after summary adjudication in their favor reversed as to two of them with directions that trial court grant plaintiff's motions for summary adjudication; judgment for remaining defendant affirmed)

In reviewing grant of summary judgment appellate review is de novo, and appellate court independently reviews record before trial court; in practical effect, appellate court assumes role of trial court and applies same rules and standards that govern trial court's determination of motion for summary judgment; because granting of summary judgment motion involves pure questions of law, appellate court is required to reassess legal significance and effect of papers presented by parties in connection with motion; appellate court applies same three-step analysis required of trial court in ruling on motion for summary judgment; first, court identities issues framed by pleadings; second, court determines whether moving party has met its statutory burden of proof; finally, if moving party has met its statutory burden of proof and summary judgment motion prima facie justifies judgment, burden shifts to opposing party and court determines whether that party has met its burden under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c. Riverside County Community Facilities Dist. v. Bainbridge 17 (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 644, 653, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29 (summary judgment for plaintiff affirmed); Kelly v. First Astri Corp. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 462, 470-471, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Granting of summary judgment motion by superior court is subject to independent review; appellate court considers all evidence set forth in supporting and opposition papers, except that to which objections have been made and sustained by court, and all uncontradicted inferences reasonable deducible from evidence; appellate court applies same three-step analysis required of trial court; first, court identifies issues framed by pleadings; second, court determines whether moving party's showing has established facts that negate the opponent's claim and justify judgment in movant's favor; when a summary judgment motion prima facie justifies a judgment, third step is to determine whether the opposition demonstrates existence of triable, material factual issue. Victor v. Hedges (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 229, 234, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 466 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Because trial court's determination is one of law based on papers submitted, appellate court must make its own independent determination regarding construction and effect of supporting and opposing papers; appellate court applies same three-step analysis required of trial court; court begins by identifying issues framed by pleadings; court then determines if moving party's showing has established facts that justify judgment in movant's favor; when summary judgment motion prima facie justifies judgment, final step is to determine if opposition demonstrates existence of a triable, material factual issue. FNB Mortgage Corp. v. Pacific General Group (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1116, 1125-1126, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841 (summary judgment for cross-defendant affirmed); Oliver v. AT&T Wireless Services (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 521, 528, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Trial court's determination of summary judgment motion is reviewed do novo; this review follows same analysis required of trial court under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c. Wolf v. Mitchell, Silberberg & Knupp (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1030, 1035, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 792 (summary judgment for defendants reversed)

In reviewing propriety of summary judgment, appellate court independently reviews record that was before trial court; appellate court must determine whether facts as shown by parties gives rise to triable issue of fact. Hanson v. Grode (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 601, 603-604, 606-607, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 396 (summary judgment for defendants reversed)

In reviewing propriety of a summary judgment, appellate court independently reviews record that was before trial court. Kelsey v. Waste Management of Alameda County (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 590, 594, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 510 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Appellate court reviews trial court's decision de novo, independently examining both the evidence and its legal effect. Brinton v. Bankers Pension Services, Inc. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 550, 555, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 469 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Appellate court independently reviews lower court's determinations that no triable issue of fact existed and that defendant was entitled to judgment as matter of law. Kramer v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 332, 336, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 301 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Examining evidence in light of summary judgment standards is far different from applying substantial evidence test that often governs appeal; in context of judgment after trial evidence need only be sufficient to support judgment for winning party, even though evidence might, in another reasonable mind, also have supported judgment for losing party; in context of summary judgment, by contrast, evidence must by incapable of supporting judgment for losing party in order to validate summary judgment; thus, even though it may appear that trial court took reasonable view of evidence, summary judgment cannot properly be affirmed unless contrary view would be unreasonable as matter of law in circumstances presented. Binder v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 832, 838-840, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 540 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

On appeal from order granting summary judgment, appellate court conducts de novo examination of record to determine whether moving party was entitled to summary judgment as matter of law or whether genuine issues of material fact remain; appellate court independently reviews party's papers supporting and opposing motion, using same method of analysis as trial court. Campbell v. Derylo (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 823, 826, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 519 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

On appeal, appellate court exercises its independent judgment in determining whether there are no triable issues of material fact and moving party thus is entitled to judgment as matter of law. Bennett v. Shahhal (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 384, 388, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 272 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

On appeal, appellate court reviews trial court's decision to grant or deny summary judgment de novo, on basis of examination of evidence before trialcourt and appellate court's independent determination of its effect as matter of law; appellate court also independently reviews trial court's determinationof questions of law. Eisenberg v. Alameda Newspapers, Inc. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1359, 1376, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 802 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Appellate court reviews trial court's ruling de novo, assuming role of trial court and redetermining merits of motion. Neverkovec v. Fredericks (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 337, 344, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 856 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

In reviewing propriety of summary judgment, appellate court independently reviews record that was before trial court to determine whether the facts as shown by parties give rise to triable issue of material fact. DiLoreto v. Board of Education (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 267, 275, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 791 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

After examining facts before trial judge on a summary judgment motion, appellate court independently determines their effect as matter of law. Myricks v. Lynwood Unified School Dist. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 231, 237, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 734 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

After examining facts before trial judge on summary judgment motion, appellate court independently determines their effect as matter of law; when facts are undisputed, issue is one of law and appellate court is free to draw its own conclusions of law from undisputed facts. Ziman v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1382, 1387, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 397 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Appellate court, in reviewing trial court's grant of summary judgment motion, makes de novo determination of whether there is triable issue of fact and whether moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law. Westoil Terminals Co. v. Harbor Ins. Co. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 634, 638, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 636 (summary judgment for defendants reversed)

On review of summary judgment in defendant's favor, appellate court reviews record de novo to determine whether there is material issue of fact that requires trial; court examines record and determines appeal according to rules of appellate review for grant of summary judgment; because determining whether primary assumption of risk doctrine applies resolves question of whether duty of care exists, it is legal question for court to decide; appellate court determines de novo scope of duty. Record v. Reason (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 472, 479, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 547

In reviewing grant of summary judgment, appellate court determines de novo whether there is genuine issue of material fact and whether moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law; trial court's determination is accorded no deference; in conducting review, complaint measures materiality of facts tendered in defendant's challenge to plaintiff's cause of action. Marshak v. Ballesteros (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1514, 1517, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Appellate court reviews trial court's ruling on motion for summary judgment de novo; appellate court reviews trial court's ruling and not its reasoning. Mitroff v. United Services Automobile Assn. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1230, 1237, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 759 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Appellate court exercises independent judgment as to legal effect of undisputed facts disclosed by parties' papers; in so doing, appellate court applies same three-step analysis required by trial court; first appellate court identifies issues framed by pleadings; second, court determines whether moving party has established facts that negate opponent's claim and justify judgment in movant's favor; finally, if summary judgment motion prima facie justifies judgment, court determines whether opposition demonstrates existence of a triable, material factual issue; appellate court reviews issues of law de novo. Aetna Health Plans of Cal., Inc. v. Yucaipa-Calimesa Joint Unified School Dist. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1175, 1186-1187, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672 (summary judgment for cross-defendant affirmed)

Appellate court reviews trial judge's decision to grant summary judgment de novo; trial judge's stated reason for granting summary judgment is not binding on appellate court because appellate court reviews its ruling, not its rationale; moreover, appellate court reviews unambiguous terms of insurance agreement de novo. Reliance Nat. Indemnity Co. v. General Star Indemnity Co. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1063, 1073-1075, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 627 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Appellate court examines facts presented on superior court's summary judgment/summary adjudication motion and independently determines their effect as matter of law; appellate court also conducts independent review of trial court's determination of questions of law; court not bound by trial court's stated reasons, if any supporting ruling; court reviews ruling, not its rationale. Suidan v. County of San Diego (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 916, 921, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 535 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Appellate court reviews de novo trial court's decision to grant summary judgment and is not bound by trial court's stated reasons or rationales; appellate court reviews determination of trial court, not its rationale. Horn v. Cushman & Wakefield Western, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 798, 805, 807 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

On appeal, court reviews trial court's decision to grant summary judgment de novo, on basis of court's independent examination of evidence and determination of its effect as matter of law; appellate court not bound by trial court's stated reasons or rationale, and reviews summary judgment without deference to its determinations of questions of law. Smith v. Maldonado (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 637, 644, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 397 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Appellate court reviews summary judgment de novo; appellate court reviews ruling, not rationale, and is not bound by trial court's reasons supporting ruling; review in appellate court, however, limited to issues raised on appeal. City of Burbank v. Burbank-Glendale-Pasadena Airport Authority (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 366, 373, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 28 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

On appeal of grant of summary adjudication, appellate court examines facts presented to trial court and determine their effect as matter of law; court independently assesses correctness of trial court's ruling, applying same legal standard as trial court; court construes moving party's affidavits strictly and opponent's affidavits liberally, and resolve any doubts as to propriety of granting motion in favor of opponent. Barnes v. Black (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1473, 1477, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 634 (summary adjudication for defendant reversed)

In determining propriety of summary judgment, appellate court is limited to facts shown by evidentiary materials submitted, as well as those admittedand uncontested in pleadings; appellate court exercises independent judgment in determining whether there are no triable issues of material fact and moving party thus entitled to judgment as matter of law. Spray, Gould & Bowers v. Associated Internat. Ins. Co. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1260, 1266, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 552 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

When reviewing trial court's decision to grant summary judgment, appellate court must identify issues framed by pleadings and determine if moving party established facts that negate opposing party's facts and justify judgment in moving party's favor; when moving party's facts justify judgment, appellate court determine's if opposing party demonstrated existence of triable issue of material fact. City of Morgan Hill. v. Brown (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1121, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 361 (summary judgment for plaintiff affirmed)

Review of summary judgment involves pure matters of law which appellate court reviews independently; in conducting this de novo review, appellate court considers only facts properly before trial court at time it ruled on motion; because summary judgment motion raises only issues of law regarding construction and effect of supporting and opposing papers, court of appeal independently applies same three-step analysis required by trial court; appellate court identifies issues framed by pleadings, determines whether moving party's showing established facts that negate opponent's claim and justify judgment in moving party's favor, and if it does, appellate court finally determines whether opposition demonstrates existence of a triable, material factual issue; basic question raised on defense motion for summary judgment and on review of such judgment is same in privacy action against media defendants as in other cases; does motion record demonstrate existence of triable issue of facts, or was defense entitled to judgment as matter of law. Wilkins v. National Broadcasting Co. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1066, 1074, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Since summary judgment motions raise only questions of law regarding construction and effect of supporting and opposing papers, appellate court independently reviews them on appeal, applying same three-step analysis required by trial court; first, appellate court identifies issues framed by pleadings; second, court determines whether moving party's showing has negated opponent's claim, justifying judgment in movant's favor; if so, third and final step is to determine whether opposition has demonstrated existence of triable, material factual issue. Langer v. Redevelopment Agency (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 998, 1002, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 19 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed); City of San Jose v. Department of Health Services (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 35, 40, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 609 (summary judgment for plaintiff affirmed); Pepperell v. Scottsdale Ins. Co. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1045, 1054, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 164 (summary judgment for defendant reversed); Waschek v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 640, 644, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 296 (remanded to trial court for order granting summary judgment to defendant)

In reviewing grant of summary judgment, appellate court must make its own independent determination of construction and effect of papers submitted. Armato v. Baden (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 885, 893, 84 Cal. Rptr 2d 294 (summary judgments for defendants affirmed)

Because summary judgment motion raises only questions of law, appellate court reviews supporting and opposing papers independently to determine whether there is triable issue of fact as to any material fact; in so doing, appellate court applies same analysis required of trial court; first, appellate court identifies issues framed by pleadings; second, court determines whether moving party's showing has established facts that negate opponents' claim and justify judgment in movant's favor; third and final step is to determine whether opposition demonstrates existence of triable, material factual issue; when there is sufficient legal ground to support granting motion, order will be upheld regardless of grounds relied on by trial court. Benavidez v. San Jose Police Dept. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 853, 859, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 157 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed); Becerra v. County of Santa Cruz (1999) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1450, 1457, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Appellate court applies de novo standard of review to summary judgment by analyzing construction and effect of supporting papers in same manner as does trial court. California Pacific Homes, Inc. v. Scottsdale Ins. Co. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1187, 1191, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 328 (summary adjudication for plaintiff affirmed)

When construction of statute at issue on review of summary judgment, appellate court independently reviews statute to determine validity of judgment. Wilson, McCall & Daoro v. American Qualified Plans, Inc. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1030, 1035, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 192 (summary judgment on defendants' cross complaints for cross-defendant affirmed; summary judgment on cross complainant's cross complaint for cross defendant reversed)

On appeal from judgment after order granting summary adjudication, appellate court independently reviews trial court's record to determine if triable issue of material fact exists; court accepts as fact only those portions of defendants's evidence that is not contradicted by plaintiff's evidence; thus, court deems facts alleged by plaintiff, the party opposing summary judgment, and reasonable inferences court can make from those facts to be true; court reviews those facts and independently determines their effect as matter of law; appellate court's task is to determine whether alleged facts provide any basis for liability on defendant's part, regardless of nature of cause of action; defendant entitled to summary adjudication if record establishes plaintiff's cause of action cannot succeed as matter of law.

Lazar v. Hertz Corp. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1494, 1506-1508, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 368 (summary adjudication for defendants affirmed)

On appeal, appellate court independently assesses correctness of trial court's ruling; appellate court construes moving party's affidavits strictly, opponents affidavit's liberally, and resolve doubts about propriety of granting motion in favor of party opposing it. Bardin v. Lockheed Aeronautical Systems Co. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 494, 500, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Motion for summary adjudication proceeds in all respects as motion for summary judgment; on appeal, appellate court review is de novo. Toigo v. Town of Ross (1998) 70 Cal. App. 4th 309, 324, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 649 (summary adjudication for defendants affirmed)

Trial court's summary judgment ruling is subject to independent review; only exception to independent review standard applies when appellate courtreviews trial court's exercise of discretion as allowed under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(e). Fretland v. County of Humboldt (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1478, 1490, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

In determining whether defendant satisfied burden of proof under former Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(o)(2) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(p)(2)), appellate court assumes role of trial court and reassesses merits of motion; in so doing, appellate court considers only facts properly before trial court at time it ruled on motion; appellate court independently reviews admissibility of testimony. L&B Real Estate v. Superior Court (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1342, 1346, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 759 (writ proceeding seeking to set aside order denying defendants' summary judgment motion denied)

Appellate court independently reviews trial court's judgment when all relevant facts are undisputed. Martell v. Antelope Valley Hospital Medical Center (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 978, 980-981, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

In reviewing propriety of summary judgment, appellate court independently reviews record before trial court; appellate court must determine whether facts as shown by parties give rise to triable issue of material fact. Cheyanna M. v. A.C. Nielsen Co. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 855, 861, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 335 (summary judgment for defendant reversed); Depew v. Crocodile Enterprises, Inc. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 480, 485, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 673 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

After examining documents supporting summary judgment motion in trial court, appellate court independently determines their effect as matter of law. Old Republic Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 128, 141, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 642 (denial of defendants' motions for summary judgment overturned by writ of mandate)

Whether papers raise triable issue of material fact reviewed de novo by appellate court, unbound by trial court's decision; trial court erroneously resolved issues instead of spotting them. Furla v. Jon Douglas Co. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1069, 1076-1077, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 911 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Appellate court reviews trial court's decision to grant defendant summary judgment de novo; appellate court reviews the ruling, not rationale; appellate court applies same three-step analysis used by superior court; court identifies the issues framed by pleadings, determines whether moving party has negated opponent's claim, and determines whether opposition has demonstrated existence of triable, material factual issue. Silva v. Lucky Stores, Inc. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 256, 261, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 382 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

After examining documents supporting summary judgment motion in trial court, appellate court independently determines their effect as matter of law; as summary judgment motion raises only questions of law regarding construction and effect of supporting and opposing papers, appellate court independently applies the same three-step analysis required by trial court; court identifies issues framed by pleadings, determines whether moving party's showing establishes facts that negate opponent's claim and justify judgment in moving party's favor, and, if it does, appellate court finally determines whether opposition demonstrated existence of triable, material factual issue. Shapiro v. Sutherland (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1534, 1543, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101 (summary judgment for defendants reversed)

When trial court sustains hearsay objection to deposition transcript in connection with summary judgment motion, appellate court independently reviews deposition's admissibility and legal effect of facts properly presented. Gatton v. A.P. Green Services, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 688, 692, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 523

When reviewing trial court's decision to grant summary judgment, appellate court must identify issues framed by pleadings, and determine whether moving party has established facts which negate opposing party's facts and justify judgment in moving party's favor; when moving party's facts prima facie justify judgment, appellate court determines whether opposing party has demonstrated the existence of triable issue of material fact. Odello Brothers v. County of Monterey (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 778, 785, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 903 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed as to one cause of action and reversed as to another)

Because summary judgment involves pure matters of law, appellate court reviews summary judgment ruling de novo; if summary judgment is proper on grounds other those articulated by trial court, appellate court must affirm. Barton v. Elexsys Internat., Inc. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1182, 1187-1188, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 212 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

On review of summary judgment in defendant's favor, appellate court reviews record de novo to determine whether defendant has conclusively negated necessary element of plaintiff's case or demonstrated that under no hypothesis is there material issue of fact that requires process of trial; review begins with pleadings that define issues to be considered; as to each claim as framed by complaint, defendant must present facts to negate essential element or to establish defense; only then does burden shift to plaintiff to demonstrate existence of triable, material issue of fact; if burden has shifted, final step in appellate court's review is to determine if filings in opposition raise triable issue of material fact; if they do, motion must be denied and if they do not, motion must be granted. Quintilliani v. Mannerino (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 54, 59-60, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359 (summary judgment for defendant reversed in part and affirmed as to other causes of action)

On review of summary judgment in defendant's favor, appellate court reviews record de novo to determine whether defendant has conclusively negated necessary element of plaintiff's case or demonstrated that under no hypothesis is there material issue of fact that requires process of trial; although appellate court must strictly construe moving party's papers and liberally construe those of opposing party, latter bears burden of showing triable issues of fact exist; all doubts resolved in favor of party opposing judgment. Leon v. Family Fitness Center (#107), Inc. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1227, 1231-1232 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

In evaluating propriety of grant of summary judgment, appellate court review is de novo and appellate court independently reviews record before trial court; in practical effect, appellate court assumes role of trial court and applies same rules and standards which govern trial court's determination of summary judgment motion; interpretation and application of statutoryscheme to undisputed set of facts is question of law which is subject to de novo review on appeal; accordingly, appellate court is not bound by trial court's interpretation. Lenane v. Continental Maritime of San Diego, Inc. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1073, 1079, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 121 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

In determining propriety of summary judgment, reviewing court is limited to facts shown by evidentiary materials submitted, as well as those admitted and uncontested in the pleadings; reviewing court exercises its independent judgment in determining whether there are no triable issues of material fact and moving party thus is entitled to judgment as matter of law; reviewing court must uphold judgment if it is correct on any ground, regardless of reason trial court gave. Montgomery v. Cal. Accountants Mutual Ins. Co. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 854, 858-859, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 39 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Appellate court is not bound by trial court's reasons for its judgment; appellate court is required to consider de novo all papers submitted as it reviews ruling. Maxwell v. Fire Ins. Exchange (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1446, 1450, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 866 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

When reviewing motion for summary judgment on appeal, appellate court determines de novo whether issue of material fact exists and whether moving party was entitled to summary judgment as matter of law; in other words, appellate court must assume role of trial court and redetermine merits of motion; in so doing, court must strictly scrutinize moving party's papers; declarations of party opposing summary judgment, however, are liberally construed to determine existence of triable issues of fact; all doubt whether any material, triable issues of fact exist are resolved in favor of party opposing summary judgment; appellate review is limited to determine if there is evidence requiring fact weighing procedures of trial; court does not decide merits of issues themselves; review is limited to facts contained in documents presented to trial court; court exercises independent judgment as to legal effect of undisputed facts disclosed by parties' papers; in so doing court applies same three-step analysis required in trial court; first, court identifies issues framed by pleadings; second, court determines whether moving party's showing establishes facts that negate opponent's claim and justify judgment in moving party's favor; finally, if motion prima facia justifies judgment, court determines whether opposition demonstrates existence of triable, material factual issue. Pensinger v. Bowsmith, Inc. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 709, 717-718, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 531 (summary adjudication for defendant affirmed in part and reversed as to other causes)

Typically, plaintiff's theory of liability determines analysis to be applied on summary judgment motion. Jackson v. County of Los Angeles (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 171, 180, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 96 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

In reviewing propriety of summary judgment, appellate court independently reviews record that was before trial court; court must determine if facts as shown by parties give rise to triable issue of material fact. Jackson v. County of Los Angeles (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 171, 178-179, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 96 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed); Mercury Casualty Co. v. Hertz Corp. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 414, 418-419, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 9 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed); A-H Plating, Inc. v. American National Fire Ins. Co. (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 427, 434-435, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 113 (summary judgment for defendants reversed); Derderian v. Dietrick (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 892, 897, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 800 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

In determining propriety of summary judgment, reviewing court is limited to facts shown by evidentiary materials submitted, as well as those admitted and uncontested in pleadings; trial court must consider all evidence set forth in parties' papers, and summary judgment granted if all papers submitted show there is no triable issue of material fact in action, thereby entitling moving party to judgment as matter of law; appellate court exercises independent judgment in determining whether there are no triable issues of material fact and moving party thus is entitled to judgment as matter of law. Pieper v. Commercial Underwriters Ins., Co. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1008, 1016, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 551 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Review of grant of summary judgment is de novo and appellate court independently reviews record before the trial court; because granting of summary judgment motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c involves pure question of law, appellate court is required to reassess legal significance and effect of papers parties presented in connection with motion; court applies same three-step analysis required by trial court in ruling on motion for summary judgment; first, court identifies issues framed by pleadings because court's sole function on motion for summary judgment is to determine from submitted evidence whether there is a triable issue as to any material fact; fact to be material must relate to a claim or defense that is in issue; second, court determines whether moving party met its statutory burden of proof (1) under former Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(o)(1) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(p)) if plaintiff or cross complainant is the moving party, in which case he or she must produce admissible evidence of each element of the cause of action entitling the party to judgment on that cause of action, or (2) under former Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(o)(2) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(p)) if defendant or cross-defendant is the moving party, in which case he or she must produce admissible evidence showing that one or more elements of the cause of action, even if not separately pleaded, cannot be established, or that there is a complete defense to that cause of action; finally, if moving party has met its statutory burden of proof and summary judgment motion prima facie justifies judgment, appellate court determines whether opposing party has met its burden of demonstrating existence of triable issue of one or more material facts as to that cause of action or defense thereto; in making this determination, appellate court strictly construes evidence of moving party and liberally construes that of opponent, and any doubts as to propriety of granting motion should be resolved in favor of party opposing motion. Zavala v. Arce (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 915, 925-926, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 571 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

In reviewing order granting summary judgment, reviewing court must assume role of trial court and redetermine merits of motion; although appellate court must review summary judgment motion by same standard as trial court, it must independently determine as matter of law construction and effect of facts presented. Rosen v. Nations Title Ins. Co. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1489, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 714 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed); Podolsky v. First Healthcare Corp. (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 632, 642, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 89 (summary judgment for defendant reversed); Sellery v. Cressey (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 538, 543, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 706

Trial court's grant of summary judgment is reviewed de novo for error; although trial court is required to specify reasons for its ruling, appellate court will treat trial court's failure to specify reasons for its ruling as harmless error because appellate court reviews trial court's ruling, not its rationale. Conley v. Matthes (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1453, 1459-1460, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 518 (summary judgment for plaintiff reversed and remanded to enter judgment in defendant's favor)

Appellate court reviews trial judge's decision to grant summary judgment de novo; trial judge's stated reason for granting summary judgment not binding on appellate court because appellate court reviews its ruling, not its rationale. Harper v. Wausau Ins. Co. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1079, 1085, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 64 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Appellate court makes its own independent determination of the construction and effect of papers submitted; court guided by traditional rules of summary judgment which direct that court construe evidence of moving party strictly and that of opposing party liberally. Kurinij v. Hanna & Morton (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 853, 863-864, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324

Review of order granting summary adjudication is limited to facts contained in documents presented to trial court; reviewing court accepts as true facts alleged in affidavits against whom summary adjudication was ordered and exercises independent judgment as to legal effect of undisputed facts disclosed by parties' papers. Federal Deposit Ins. Corp. v. Superior Court (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 337, 344-345, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 713

In appellate court, first step is an analysis of pleadings, i.e., complaint and answer, including affirmative defenses it may contain; next step calls for evaluation of defendant's effort to meet burden of showing that plaintiff's cause of action has no merit or that there is complete defense to it; this showing can rely on filings by plaintiff in opposition; once prima facie showing is made and hence burden has been met, it shifts to plaintiff to show that triable issue of material fact exists within framework fixed by pleadings; once burden has shifted, it must next be determined if filings in opposition succeeded in raising a triable issue of material fact; if they did, motion must be denied; if they did not, motion must be granted; appellate court's review precisely mirrors what occurs in trial court, i.e., court makes a de novo evaluation which, after it be shown that there are no disputed issues of material facts, requires legal determination of moving party's entitlement to judgment. Allyson v. Department of Transportation (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 1304, 1316-1318, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 490

On appeal from trial court's grant of defendant's motion for summary judgment, appellate court reviews trial court's decision de novo, applying rule that defendant is entitled to summary judgment if record establishes as matter of law that none of plaintiff's asserted causes of action can prevail; first step of review begins with appellate court's analysis of pleadings; court next evaluates defendant's effort to meet its burden of showing that plaintiff's cause of action has no merit or that there is a complete defense to it; once defendant has met that burden, burden shifts to plaintiff to show that triable issue of material fact exist as to its complaint; if filings in opposition raise triable issues of fact motion must be denied; if they do not, motion must be granted. Miscione v. Barton Development Co. (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1320, 1324-1325, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 280

Appellate review of motion for summary adjudication is de novo and appellate court reviews only ruling, not its rationale; on appeal from motion for summary judgment, appellate court conducts its own independent review of the moving and opposition papers and applies same standard as trial court in determining whether motion was properly granted. Bed, Bath & Beyond of La Jolla, Inc. v. La Jolla Village Square Venture Partners (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 867, 873, 881, 884, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 830

Standard of review has been variously recited in literally hundreds of cases before 1992 and 1993 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 437c; these amendments did not change certain aspects of standard of review; review is same as that prescribed by trial court, i.e., appellate court determines de novo whether moving party was entitled to summary judgment as matter of law; first step in review begins with analysis of pleadings, next step calls for evaluation of moving defendant's effort to meet its burden of showing that plaintiff's cause of action has no merit, or that there is complete defense to it; once defendant has met that burden, it shifts to plaintiff to show that triable issue of material fact exists as to its cause of action or defense to it; final step if burden has shifted is to determine if filings in opposition raise triable issue of material fact; if they do, motion must be denied and if they do not, motion must be granted. Arciniega v Bank of San Bernardino (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 213, 224, 225, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 495 (criticized on another point in Rice v. Crow (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 725, 726, 737-741, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 110)

When construction of statute at issue, appellate court independently reviews statute to determine validity of judgment. County of Alameda v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1691, 1698, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 187

When trial court concluded that because defendant was fugitive from justice it had been impossible for the People to conduct discovery and under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(h) denied defendant's motion for summary judgment without prejudice allowing defendant to renew his motion after discovery took place, appellate court must evaluate validity of order denying summary judgment on basis of record as it existed at time trial court considered motion. People v.

$4,503 United States Currency (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1743, 1746-1749, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467

In evaluating correctness of ruling under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c, appellate court must independently review record before trial court; because grant or denial of motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c involves pure questions of law, appellate court is required to reassess legal significance and effect of papers that parties submitted in connection with motion; appellate court applies same three-step analysis required by trial court; first, court determines issues framed by the pleadings; second, court determines if moving party's showing has established facts that negate opponent's claim and justify judgment in movant's favor; third, if summary judgment motion prima facie justifies judgment, court determines if opposition demonstratesexistence of triable material factual issue; court in practical effect assumes trial court's role and redetermines motion's merits; in doing that, court must rigidly scrutinize moving parties' papers. Ranchwood Communities Limited Partnership v. Jim Beat Construction Co. (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1408, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 386

Parties arguments and evidence considered de novo on appeal; no deference given to trial court's ruling. Estate of Brenzikofer (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 1466-1468, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 401 (summary judgment for respondent estate reversed in proceedings under Prob. Code § 9860 seeking specific performance of agreement to convey property)

Although moving party has burden of proving its right to summary judgment in trial court, on appeal from summary judgment, appellant bears burden of showing error; absent such showing, appellate court presumes judgment is correct; moreover, under Cal. Const., art. VI, § 13, to obtain reversal, appellant must establish error resulted in miscarriage of justice. Frank and Freedus v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 461, 474, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 678

Appellate court will only reverse superior court judgment if it is based on erroneous conclusion of law; when facts do not conflict and issues involve proper application of statute or administrative regulation, reviewing court is not bound by trial court's determination. Suzuki v. City of Los Angeles (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 263, 269, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 880

Appellate court in reviewing order granting summary judgment de novo gives no particular deference to trial court's ruling in order to independently determine if defendants are entitled to judgment as matter of law; standard of independent review applies despite shifting burdens of production of evidence that govern at trial; of course, once party bears initial burden of demonstrating entitlement to judgment as matter of law, opposing party cannot defeat summary judgment by attempting to raise factual dispute as to immaterial issues; summary judgment motion will not be defeated by factual dispute unless fact in dispute is material one. Romero v. American President Lines, Ltd. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1199, 1202-1203, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 421

When continuance is not mandatory because conditions of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(h) not met, appellate court reviews trial court's denial of continuance under abuse of discretion standard. Scott v. CIBA Vision Corp. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 307, 313-314, 326, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 902

Motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication involves no form of discretion; if trial court errs in ruling on motion, error is one of law; to claim that court has abused its discretion under those circumstances is procedurally and legally incorrect. Street v. Superior Court (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1397, 1402, 274 Cal. Rptr. 595

To extent appellate court (1) reviews judgment granting summary adjudication of issues as a matter of law, review is de novo; and (2) reviews decision of trial court as to disputed question of fact, decision must be sustained on appeal if there is any substantive evidence to support decision. Lough v. Coal Oil, Inc. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1518, 1525, 266 Cal. Rptr. 611

[21] Review by Mandate

Before issuing peremptory writ in first instance after review of order denying summary judgment, petitioner or appellate court must notify party adversely affected that issuance of writ is being sought or considered, and appellate court, absent exceptional circumstances, is required to receive or solicit opposition to petition for writ. Palma v. U.S. Industrial Fasteners, Inc. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 171, 180, 203 Cal. Rptr. 626, 681 P.2d 893 ; Homestead Savings v. Superior Court (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 494, 499, 224 Cal. Rptr. 554

Order denying motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication may be reviewed by petition for writ of mandate; when trial court's erroneous denial of motion will result in trial on nonactionable claims, writ of mandate will issue. West Shield Investigations & Security Consultants v. Superior Court (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 935, 946, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 612 (denial of defendants' motions for summary judgment overturned by writ of mandate)

Order denying summary judgment is not appealable under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1; reviewable only by petition for extraordinary writ. Sierra Craft, Inc. v. Magnum Enterprises, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1252, 1256, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 681

When trial court's denial of motion for summary judgment will result in trial of nonactionable claims, writ of mandate will issue; similarly, writ of mandate may issue to prevent trial of nonactionable claims after erroneous denial of motion for summary adjudication. Travelers Casualty & Surety Co. v. Superior Court (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1440, 1450, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 54

Pretrial writ review of denial of defendant's motion for summary adjudication on various causes of action held appropriate, even though some causes will remain and trial will go forward even if writ granted by appellate court, when issues ruled on by trial court contain heart of plaintiffs' case and trial might well be simplified if it is found that trial court erred. Exxon Corp. v. Superior Court (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1672, 1679-1680, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 195

Mandate is available to review denial of summary judgment recommended by commissioner to whom motion was referred; commissioner is authorized under Code Civ. Proc. § 259 to take proof and report findings on matters of fact, but court's function on summary judgment motion is limited to determining whether triable issues exist, which is question of law; thus, referral of motion to commissioner for that purpose, absent stipulation of parties, is inappropriate. International Jet Ski Boating Assn., Inc. v. Superior Court (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 112, 116, 283 Cal. Rptr. 33

When plaintiff does not file pleadings or exhibits in opposition to defendant's motion for summary judgment, does not appear at hearing on motion, does not file preliminary opposition to petition for writ of mandate arising from denial of motion, and, when notified that appellate court was considering issuing peremptory writ in first instance, does not take advantage of court's invitation to file opposition, appellate court takes as undisputed facts set forth in defendant's summary judgment motion and supporting documents. Gilmore v. Superior Court (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 416, 418, 281 Cal. Rptr. 343

When trial court grants summary adjudication, reviewing court views supporting affidavits narrowly and opposing affidavits broadly; doubts as to propriety of granting motion are resolved in favor of party opposing motion; toextent reviewing court reviews judgment granting summary adjudication as matter of law, review is de novo. Monte Vista Development Corp. v. Superior Court (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1681, 1684-1685, 277 Cal. Rptr. 608

Argument requiring resolution of factual issues must be raised in trial court first, but former Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(l) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(m)(1)) does not require motion for reconsideration to be made before seeking mandate review, and making motion as not tolling time prescribed by former Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(l) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(m)(1)) for seeking writ review. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 604, 610-611, 258 Cal. Rptr. 413 ; Schmidt v. Superior Court (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 56, 61, 254 Cal. Rptr. 827

Service by court clerk of copy of order on motion for summary adjudication of issues constitutes written notice of entry of order within meaning of former Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(l) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(m)(1)) and commences period in which to petition for writ review under that statute; additional service of notice of entry of order by counsel is unnecessary in that case to start running of section 437c(l) limitation period. Eldridge v. Superior Court (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1350, 1353, 1353 n.2, 256 Cal. Rptr. 724 (service of file-stamped copy of order); Schmidt v. Superior Court (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 56, 60, 254 Cal. Rptr. 827 (service of copy of minute order; both cases decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f))

Trial court's order extending time for petitioning for writ review that states that it appears to court that good cause exists to extend time for filing petition for peremptory writ to court of appeal, absent any contrary evidence, is sufficient against contention that order was invalid because petitioner failed to make showing of good cause on the record. Schmidt v. Superior Court (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 56, 62, 254 Cal. Rptr. 827

Petition for writ of mandate to review order granting summary judgment not subject to time limitations of former Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(l) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(m)(1)). City of Fresno v. Superior Court (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 1137, 1142, 202 Cal. Rptr. 313

[22] Ruling on Motion

While resolution of statute of limitation issue normally question of fact, when uncontradicted facts established through discovery are susceptible of only one legitimate inference, summary judgment is proper. Romano v. Rockwell Internat., Inc. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 479, 487, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20, 926 P. 2d 1114

In ruling on motion for summary judgment, any doubts as to propriety of granting motion are resolved in favor of party opposing motion. Molko v. Holy Spirit Assn. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1092, 1107, 252 Cal. Rptr. 122, 762 P.2d 46 ; Pender v. Radin (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1807, 1813, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36 ; Violette v. Shoup (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 611, 619, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 358 ; Hohe v. San Diego Unified Sch. Dist. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1559, 1568, 274 Cal. Rptr. 647 ; Ralph Andrews Productions, Inc. v. Paramount Pictures Corp. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 676, 682, 271 Cal. Rptr. 797

Court did not improperly rule on defendant's second motion for summary judgment where court denied first motion for summary judgment on grounds that defendant had a duty to plaintiff; second motion was based on separate legal theory relating to assumption of risk to negate claim of duty; additionally, there was a change of law following the ruling on the first motion. Patterson v. Sacramento City Unified School Dist. (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 821, 827, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 337

Wording of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(c) imposes mandatory duty on trial court to grant motion for summary judgment if there is no triable issue of material fact and moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law; although former statute gave trial court discretion to deny motion, this discretion is now abrogated. Jennifer M. v. Redwood Women's Health Center (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 81, 86-86, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 544 (summary adjudication for defendant affirmed)

Trial court may properly grant summary judgment when evidence in support of moving party establishes there is no issue of fact to be tried and that party is entitled to judgment as matter of law; if trial court determines there is no triable issue of fact, it determines legal issues in case. Peerless Lighting Corp. v. American Motorists Ins. Co. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 995, 1005, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 753 (summary judgment for plaintiff reversed)

Trial court must grant summary judgment motion if all papers submitted show no triable issue as to any material facts exist and moving party is entitled to judgment as matter law; in determining whether papers show that no triable issue exists as to any material fact, court must consider all evidence and all inferences reasonably deducible from evidence, except that summary judgment will not be granted on inferences reasonably deducible from evidence, if contradicted by other inferences or evidence, that raise triable issue as to any material fact. Martinez v. Bank of America (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 883, 887, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 576 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Summary judgment must be granted if all papers submitted show there is no triable as to any material fact and moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law; defendant must show that under no possible hypothesis within reasonable purview of complaint's allegations is there material fact that requires examination by trial; if defendant makes such showing, court must look at plaintiff's papers to determine whether they demonstrate existence of triable, material factual issue. Dimock v. Emerald Properties (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 868, 873-874, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 255 (summary judgments for defendants reversed)

Summary judgment motion must be granted if all papers submitted show there is no triable issue as to any material fact and moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law; defendant is entitled to summary judgment if necessary element of plaintiff's case cannot be established or there is complete defense to cause of action. Tahoe Vista Concerned Citizens v. Counter of Placer (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 577, 587, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 880 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Motion for summary judgment must be granted if all papers submitted show there is no triable issue as to any material fact and moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law; in determining whether moving papers show there is no triable issue as to any material fact court must consider all evidence set forth in papers and all inferences reasonably deducible from evidence. Culligan v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 429, 433-434, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 656 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Defendant is not entitled to summary judgment unless that moving party negates all theories of liability pleaded by plaintiff. Juarez v. Boy Scouts of America, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 377, 397, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed except for one cause of action against two defendants that was reversed)

Summary judgment is proper only where there is no triable issue as to any material fact and moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law; moving papers are strictly construed while opposing papers are liberally construed; any doubts regarding propriety of awarding summary judgment are resolved in favor of party opposing summary judgment. Jang v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1291, 1295, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 917 (summary judgment for cross-defendant affirmed)

Summary judgment is properly granted when papers show there is no triable issue as to any material fact and moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law. Alvarez v. State of California (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 720, 727, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 719 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Summary judgment is granted when all papers submitted show there is no triable issue as to any material fact and that moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law. PMC, Inc. v. Kadisha (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1368, 1372, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 663 (summary judgment for defendants reversed)

Summary judgment should be granted only when moving party entitled to judgment as matter of law. Campbell v. Scripps Bank (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1328, 1333 n.2, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 635 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed except as to improperly awarded attorney fees)

Summary judgment may only be granted when no triable issue exists as to any material fact and moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law. Ostayan v. Serrano Reconveyance Co. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1411, 1417-1418, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 577 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

To prevail on summary judgment motion, defendant must show that one or more elements of plaintiff's cause of action cannot be established or that there is complete defense to that cause of action; summary judgment should only be granted when moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law; moving party's evidence is strictly construed and opponent's evidence is liberally construed, and any doubts as to propriety of granting motion are to be resolved in favor of party opposing motion. Pardee Construction Co. v. Insurance Co. of the West (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1340, 1349 n.3, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 443 (judgment for three defendants whose motions for judgment on pleadings were granted after summary adjudication in their favor reversed as to two of them with directions that trial court grant plaintiff's motions for summary adjudication; judgment for remaining defendant affirmed)

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(c), motion for summary judgment shall be granted if all papers submitted show there is no triable issue as to any material fact and that moving is entitled to judgment as matter of law; court strictly construes evidence of moving party and liberally construes that of opponents, and any doubts as to propriety of granting motion should be resolved in favor of party opposing motion. Riverside County Community Facilities Dist. v. Bainbridge 17 (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 644, 653, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29 (summary judgment for plaintiff affirmed)

Motion for summary judgment properly granted if papers submitted show there is no triable issue as to any material fact and that moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law; defendant entitled to summary judgment if necessary element of plaintiff's cause of action cannot be established or if complete defense to cause of action exists. FNB Mortgage Corp. v. Pacific General Group (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1116, 1125, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841 (summary judgment for cross-defendant affirmed)

Motion for summary judgment properly granted if papers show there is no triable issue as to any material fact and moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law; defendant is entitled to summary judgment if a necessary element of plaintiff's cause of action cannot be established or if complete defense to the cause of action exists; summary judgment appropriate when discovery has produced admission or concession on part of party opposing summary judgment that demonstrates there is no factual issue to be tried. Oliver v. AT&T Wireless Services (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 521, 528, 536, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Court must consider bare evidence and reasonable inferences deducible from evidence and determine whether evidence is sufficient to support potential judgment in favor of opposing party; court must consider what inferences favoring opposing party factfinder could reasonably draw from evidence; while viewing evidence in this manner court must bear in mind that its primary function is to identity issues rather than to determine issues; only when inferences are indisputable may court decide issues as matter of law; if evidence is in conflict, factual issue must be resolved by trial; trial court may not weigh evidence in manner of factfinder to determine whose version is more likely true; nor may trial court grant summary judgment based on court's evaluation of credibility; moreover, trial court may not grant summary judgment for defendant simply on its opinion that plaintiff's claims are "implausible," if reasonable factfinder could find for plaintiff on evidence presented Binder v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 832, 839-840, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 540 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(c) requires trial court to grant summary judgment if all papers and affidavits submitted, together with all inferences reasonably deducible from evidence and uncontradicted by other inferences or evidence, show there is no triable issue as to any material fact and that moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law. Eisenberg v. Alameda Newspapers, Inc. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1359, 1374-1375, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 802 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Summary judgment appropriate only when no material issue of fact exists or when record establishes as matter of law that cause of action asserted against party cannot prevail. Myricks v. Lynwood Unified School Dist. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 231, 237, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 734 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Summary judgment is appropriate only when no material issue of fact exists or when record establishes as matter of law that cause of action asserted against party cannot prevail. Ziman v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1382, 1387, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 397 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Motion for summary judgment must be granted if all papers submitted show there is no triable issue as to any material fact and moving party entitled to judgment as matter of law; in determining whether moving papers show there is no triable issue of any material fact court must consider all evidence set forth in papers and all inferences reasonably deducible from evidence. Hobson v. Raychem Corp. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 614, 622, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 497 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Cause of action cannot be established if undisputed facts presented by defendant prove the contrary of plaintiff's allegations as matter of law. Marshak v. Ballesteros (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1514, 1518, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1 (summary judgment for defendant affirmed)

Trial court must grant summary judgment when all papers and affidavits submitted, together with all inferences reasonable from evidence that are not contradicted by other inferences or evidence, show there is no triable issue as to any material fact and moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law. Smith v. Maldonado (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 637, 644, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 397 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

If defendant's declarations in support of motion for summary judgment demonstrate absence of essential element of plaintiff's case, and plaintiff's declarations submitted in reply do not show triable issue of fact as to that element, no amount of factual conflicts on other aspects of case will affect result and motion for summary judgment should be granted. See Armato v. Baden (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 885, 893, 84 Cal. Rptr 2d 294 (summary judgments for defendants favor affirmed)

Motion for summary judgment must be granted if all papers submitted show there is no triable issue as to any material fact and moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law; in determining whether moving papers show there is no triable issue of any material fact court must consider all the evidence and all inferences reasonably deducible from evidence, except summary judgment cannot be granted on inferences reasonably deducible from evidence, if contradicted by other inferences or evidence, which raise triable issue as to any material fact. Bardin v. Lockheed Aeronautical Systems Co. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 494, 499, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Whether triable issue of material fact exists does not turn on trial courts discretion; motion for summary judgment must be granted if all papers submitted show there is no triable issue as to any material fact and moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law. Fretland v. County of Humboldt (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1478, 1490, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359 (summary judgment for defendant reversed)

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(c), trial court required to grant summary judgment if all papers and affidavits submitted, together with all inferences reasonable deducible from evidence and uncontradicted by other inferences or evidence, show there is no triable issue as to any material fact and that moving party entitled to judgment as matter of law. Sangster v. Paetkau (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 151, 163, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 66 (summary judgment for defendants affirmed)

Trial judge determines whether triable issues exist by examining affidavits and evidence, including any reasonable inferences that may be drawn from facts; evidence of moving party is strictly construed and evidence of opposing party is liberally construed; doubts as to propriety of granting motion must be resolved in favor of party opposing motion. Crouse v. Brobeck, Phleger & Harrison (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1509, 1524, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 94 (summary judgments for defendants both affirmed and reversed)

Trial court in ruling on motion for summary judgment is merely to determine issues of fact exist, not to decide the merits of issues themselves; trial judge determines whether triable issues of fact exist by reviewing affidavits and evidence before him or her and reasonable inferences that may be drawn from those facts; facts alleged in evidence of party opposing summary judgment and reasonable inferences therefrom must be accepted as true. Kovatch v.

California Casualty Management Co. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1256, 1266, 1268, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 217

Summary judgment must be granted if all papers submitted show that there is no triable issue of any material fact and the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law; trial court's function in ruling on motion for summary judgment is merely to determine existence of such issues of fact, not to decide the merits of the issues themselves. Furla v. Jon Douglas Co. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1069, 1076-1077, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 911

Motion for summary judgment must be granted if all papers submitted show there is no triable issue as to any material fact and moving party entitled to judgment as matter of law; moving party's affidavits are strictly construed, opponents affidavits are liberally construed, and doubts about propriety of granting motion are resolved in favor of party opposing it. Crookall v. Davis, Punelli, Keathley & Willard (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1048, 1057, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 250

Defendant is entitled to summary judgment if record establishes as matter of law that none of plaintiff's asserted causes of action can prevail; to succeed, defendant must conclusively establish complete defense or negate necessary element of plaintiff's case and demonstrate that under no hypothesis is there material issue of fact that requires process of trial. Molko v. Holy Spirit Assn. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1092, 1107, 252 Cal. Rptr. 122, 762 P.2d 46 ; Johnson v. Stratlaw, Inc. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1156, 1160, 274 Cal. Rptr. 363 ; McGough v. University of San Francisco (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1577, 1581, 263 Cal. Rptr. 404

Granting motion for summary judgment is error if any triable issue of fact exists. Bigbee v. Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 49, 56, 192 Cal. Rptr. 857, 665 P.2d 947

Trial court must consider all evidence set forth in parties' papers, and summary judgment granted if all papers submitted show there is no triable issue of material fact in the action, thereby entitling moving party to judgment as matter of law. Pieper v. Commercial Underwriters Ins., Co. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1008, 1016, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 551

Court has inherent power to grant summary judgment on ground not explicitly tendered by moving party when parties' separate statements of material facts and supporting evidence demonstrate absence of triable issue of fact, and opposing party has had chance to respond to legal ground and show there is triable issue of material fact. 216 Sutter Bay Associates v. County of Sutter (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 860, 875-881, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 492

In determining whether papers show there is no triable issue as to material fact, court must consider all evidence and all inferences reasonably deducible from evidence, except summary judgment may not be granted on inferences reasonably deducible from evidence, if contradicted by otherinferences or evidence, that raise triable issue as to any material fact. Brundage v. Hahn (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 228, 234, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 830

All doubts as to whether there is any triable issue of fact are to be resolved in favor of party opposing summary judgment. Zelda, Inc. v. Northland Ins. Co. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1252, 1259, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 356

Sole declaration of party opposing summary judgment motion which raises triable issue of fact is sufficient to deny motion; Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(e) does not allow trial court to weigh credibility of declaration submitted by party opposing summary judgment motion and then grant motion, except where declaration is facially so incredible as matter of law that moving party otherwise would be entitled to summary judgment. Estate of Housley (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 342, 359-360, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 628

Although defendant initially complained that trial court order did not meet requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(g) in that it insufficiently specified what evidence was in conflict, reviewing court believed that absent demand for greater specificity in trial court, offer sufficed procedurally. Exxon Corp. v. Superior Court (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1672, 1679, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 195

Appellate court in reviewing summary judgment must consider only facts before court disregarding any new allegations on appeal; possible theories not fully developed or factually presented to trial court cannot create triable issue on appeal. Uriarte v. United States Pipe & Foundry Co. (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 780, 790, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 332

If trial court determines that no triable issue of fact exists, but only one of law exists, it is trial court's duty to determine the issue of law. Monteleone v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 509, 514

Because summary judgment is drastic procedure and should be used with caution, moving party's papers strictly construed, while opposing party's papers liberally construed; court must consider presumptions and draw inferences from facts adduced when inference only reasonable one that may be drawn; court, however, has no power in summary proceeding to weigh one inference against another or against other evidence; moreover, assertion based solely on conjecture or speculation is insufficient to avoid summary judgment. Sanchez v. Swinerton & Walberg Co. (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 1465-1466, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 415

Court views evidence on sham guaranty defense in light most favorable to party opposing motion for summary adjudication; factual question whether person is true guarantor or principal obligor in guarantor's guise. River Bank America v. Diller (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1400, 1420-1424, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 790

Whenever court must rule on motion for summary judgment, factual issue guidelines for motion as precisely fixed by reference solely to pleadings. Kishida v. State of California (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 329, 334, 280 Cal. Rptr. 62

Denying or granting motion for summary judgment as not involving exercise of discretion; if pleadings and evidence before court demonstrate that there is no triable issue of fact, denial of motion as error in law. Marriage & Family Center v. Superior Court (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1647, 1649, 279 Cal. Rptr. 475

Trial court's obligation in ruling on summary judgment motion as being to determine whether issues of fact exist, not to decide merits of issues; when making that determination, trial court as required to strictly construe affidavits of moving party, and liberally construe those of opponent. Jackson v. Deft, Inc. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1305, 1313, 273 Cal. Rptr. 214 ; see also Buehler v. Alpha Beta Co. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 729, 733, 274 Cal. Rptr. 14

Issue that is abstractly one of fact as resolved by summary judgment if moving party's declarations fully establish claim or defense and opponent's declarations fail to rebut it; otherwise stated, issue of fact as becoming one of law and losing its triable character if undisputed facts leave no room for reasonable difference of opinion. People v. Van Horn (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1378, 1397, 267 Cal. Rptr. 804

Trial court as erring in granting summary judgment on ground some facts underlying allegations in complaint did not exist when complaint was filed if they did exist when motion was heard; defect in pleading as disregarded if it no longer exists when summary judgment motion is made. Virgin v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1372, 1375-1376, 267 Cal. Rptr. 704

In ruling on motion for summary judgment, trial court as not required to limit its decision to analysis of specific argument presented; if another valid and legal reason to support summary judgment motion exists, trial court as permitted to rely on it when it can do so without depriving responding party of fair hearing. Barczewski v. Commonwealth Land Title Ins. Co. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 406, 413, 258 Cal. Rptr. 386

[22A] Service of Motion

A court cannot shorten the 75-day notice period required for a motion for summary judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a) by issuing a general order providing for an expedited summary judgment on 60 days' notice. Boyle v.

CertainTeed Corp. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 645, 653-655, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 501

When increasing the 75 days' notice required for a summary judgment motion by two court days for overnight delivery, the two court days are added on at the end of the 75-day period. Barefield v. Washington Mutual Bank (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 299, 303, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 858

A court cannot shorten the 75-day notice requirement for summary judgment motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a), but the statute does give the court the authority to shorten the 60-day period after the opposing party's general appearance to file the motion, and to shorten the 30-day period before the trial date for hearing on the motion. McMahon v. Superior Court (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 112, 115-118, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 407

[22B] Setting Aside Summary Judgment

The court may not set aside summary judgment under the authority of the mandatory portion of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), which requires that the court set aside a default if the attorney files an affidavit stating the default was the result of the attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise or neglect; mandatory provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) only empowers a court to set aside a default judgment or a dismissal and not a summary judgment. Prieto v. Loyola Marymount University (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 290, 295, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 639

[23] Speaking Motion to Dismiss or Strike Superseded

Nonstatutory "speaking motion," based on trial court's inherent right to strike or dismiss a complaint made to appear by extraneous evidence as sham or based on false allegations, as wholly superseded by summary judgment procedure under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c. Vesely v. Sager (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 153, 167-168, 95 Cal. Rptr. 623, 486 P.2d 151 , disapproved on other grounds, Strang v. Cabrol (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 720, 724, 209 Cal. Rptr. 347, 691 P.2d 1013

[23A] Separate Statement of Material Facts

Trial court did not abuse its discretion by declining to reject defendant's summary judgment motion based on absence of headings within separate statement of material facts on ground that separate statement of material facts did not separately identify each cause of action, claim, issue of duty, or affirmative defense, and each supporting material fact claimed to be without dispute with respect to the cause of action, claim, issue of duty, or affirmative defense, where defendant used format contained in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(h) and requirement for separately identified issues was required only for supporting and opposing separate statements in a motion for summary adjudication and defendant's motion sought summary judgment, rather than summary adjudication of subissue. Even if some additional headings had been required, court's power to deny summary judgment on basis of failure to comply with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350 was discretionary, not mandatory, and facts critical to ruling were adequately identified, and plaintiffs did not explain how any alleged deficiency in defendant's separate statement of material facts impaired their ability to marshal evidence to show that material facts were in dispute as to proper application of statute of limitations. Truong v. Glasser (2009) 181 Cal. App. 4th 102, 118, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 811

[24] Sufficiency of Pleadings

Purpose of summary procedure as not being to test sufficiency of pleadings, but to determine if triable issues raised by them are real or merely the product of adept pleading. Cornelison v. Kornbluth (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 590, 595-597, 125 Cal. Rptr. 557, 542 P.2d 981 ; Coyne v. Krempels (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 257, 262, 223 P.2d 244

Defendant's motion for summary judgment as necessarily including test of sufficiency of complaint; when motion is used to test whether complaint states cause of action, court as applying rule applicable to demurrers and accepting allegations of complaint as true. Valdez v. City of Los Angeles (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1043, 1055, 282 Cal. Rptr. 726

Motion by defendant for summary judgment as necessarily including test of sufficiency of pleadings; when pure issue of law is raised, motion aseffectively one for judgment on pleadings. Taylor v. California State Auto Assn. Inter-Ins. Bureau (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1214, 1223, 240 Cal. Rptr. 107

[25] Summary Adjudication

Ruling that denies or grants summary adjudication is subject to independent review by appellate court; such order resolves pure question of law: whether there is any triable issue as to any material fact and, if not, whether moving party is entitled to adjudication in his or her favor as matter of law. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's of London v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 945, 972, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672 (appellate court judgment directing trial court to vacate its order denying insurers' motion for summary adjudication on issue of duty to indemnify and make new order granting summary adjudication for insurers affirmed)

Summary adjudication in malicious prosecution action was improper under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f) where defendant sought summary adjudication of the issue of whether it had probable cause to bring one of two claims in the underlying lawsuit. Although there were two causes of action in the underlying lawsuit, the malicious prosecution action involved only one "primary right" for purposes of summary adjudication. Hindin v. Rust (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1247, 1258, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 668 (appellate court reversed trial court's order of summary adjudication of malicious prosecution action as to one of two causes of action in underlying lawsuit).

Summary adjudication motion is subject to same rules and procedures as summary judgment motion, and both are reviewed de novo; specifically, appellate court independently reviews order granting summary adjudication of insurer's duty to defend and resulting judgment; interpretation of insurance policy as applied to undisputed facts is question of law for appellate court, which is not bound by trial court's construction. Lomes v. Hartford Financial Services Group, Inc. (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 127, 131, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 471 (order granting plaintiff summary adjudication of declaratory relief claim regarding defendant insurer's duty to defend reversed and remanded for entry of judgment for insurer)

Insurer's motion for summary adjudication of issue of punitive damages was not procedurally defective due to failure to repeat citations to record in support of its motion in its memorandum of points and authorities, where insurer submitted comprehensive statement of undisputed material facts, which separately identified punitive damages claim and each supporting material fact claimed to be without dispute with respect to that claim, and separate statement of undisputed material facts specifically identified evidence in support of each undisputed fact with appropriate citation to record; if, in fact, trial court viewed evidence submitted by insured in opposition to motion for summary adjudication with clear-and-convincing standard in mind, it did so properly; if plaintiff is going to prevail on punitive damage claim, he or she can only do so by establishing malice, oppression or fraud by clear and convincing evidence, and thus, any evidence submitted in response to motion for summary adjudication must necessarily meet that standard. Basich v. Allstate Ins. Co. (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 1112, 1118-1121, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 153 (order granting insurer's motion for summary adjudication of issues concerning punitive damages affirmed, judgment of nonsuit reversed and remanded on other grounds)

Summary adjudication motion is subject to same rules and procedures as summary judgment motion and both are reviewed de novo; summary adjudication is properly granted when evidence in support of moving party establishes that there is no issue of fact to be tried as to particular cause of action, affirmative defense, claim for damages or issue of duty; aim of procedure is to discover whether parties possess evidence requiring weighing procedures of trial; for plaintiff or cross-complainant to prevail, such party must show there is no material factual dispute with respect to one or more causes of action; trial court must decide if triable issue of fact exists--if none does, and sole remaining issue is one of law, it is trial court's duty to determine issue of law. 6 Angels, Inc. v. Stuart-Wright Mortgage, Inc. (2001) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1279, 1283, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 711 (summary adjudication for plaintiff affirmed)

Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f) does not allow piecemeal adjudication of claim for punitive damages; basic concept of summary adjudication is meant to dispose of entire substantive area; summary adjudication is not properly granted as a piecemeal disposition of some of asserted facts within claim for punitive damages, but may only be granted when entire claim for punitive damages is eliminated; court, however, did not decide if summary adjudication must eliminate all claims for punitive damages in one action when there are separate and distinct claims for punitive damages, having nothing to do with one another, yet contained within one complaint. Catalano v. Superior Court (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 91, 92, 95, 97-98 & n.5, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 842 (partial granting of summary adjudication for cross-defendants overturned on writ of mandate)

Summary adjudication of affirmative defense is properly granted when there is no triable issue of material fact as to defense and moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law; moving party plaintiff had to show there was no evidence to support defendant's unclean hands affirmative defense; once plaintiff met this burden, burden shifted to defendant to set forth specific facts showing triable issue of material fact existed as to defense; on review, appellate court independently assesses correctness of trial court's ruling applying same legal standards as trial court; appellate court construes moving plaintiff's papers strictly and defendant's liberally and resolves any doubt as to propriety of granting motion in favor of defendant. Kendall-Jackson Winery, Ltd. v. Superior Court (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 970, 977-978, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 743 (summary judgment in plaintiff's favor overturned on writ of mandate)

Grant of summary adjudication is reviewed de novo; appellate review guided by Code Civ. Proc. § 437c which provides in Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b) and (f) that a motion for summary adjudication of a cause of action may only be granted when, considering all the evidence set forth in papers and inferences reasonably deducible therefrom, it has been demonstrated that there is no triable issue as to any material fact as to that cause of action; appellate court first looks to pleadings and decides whether defendant has presented facts to negate essential element of, or to establish a defense to, each cause of action sought to be adjudicated; if so, appellate court then determines whether plaintiff has demonstrated existence of triable, material issue offact. Casey v. Overhead Door Corp. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 112, 118, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 603 (summary adjudication for defendant affirmed but judgment for defendant after nonsuit reversed concerning dismissal of cross complaint for indemnity)

Summary adjudication properly granted when there is no triable issue of material fact as to cause of action and moving party is entitled to judgment as matter of law; defendant entitled to summary adjudication when it shows one or more elements of plaintiff's cause of action cannot be established. Barnes v. Black (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1473, 1477, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 634 (summary adjudication for defendant reversed)

Oral argument required on summary adjudication motions. Gwartz v. Superior Court (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 480, 482, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 865 (following Mediterranean Construction Co. v State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 257, 265, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 781 ; writ of mandate issued commanding trial court to vacate order denying defendants' motion for summary adjudication and to hear and decide motion)

To establish entitlement to summary adjudication, moving party must establish that cause of action is without merit by negating essential element or by establishing complete defense; motion for summary adjudication proceeds in all respects as motion for summary judgment. Toigo v. Town of Ross (1998) 70 Cal. App. 4th 309, 324, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 649 (summary adjudication for defendants affirmed)

Defendant is entitled to summary adjudication if defendant meets burden of showing cause of action is meritless because one or more elements of cause of action cannot be established; once defendant has met burden, burden shifts to plaintiff to show that triable issue of material fact actually exists about cause of action; on motion for summary adjudication, defendant may rely on plaintiff's factually inadequate discovery answers to seek summary adjudication of particular cause of action; if plaintiff fails to adduce evidence during discovery to support factual allegations of complaint, burden shifts to plaintiff and motion may be granted if plaintiff does not set forth specific facts to show a triable issue of material fact; defendant is entitled to summary adjudication if record establishes plaintiff's cause of action cannot succeed as matter of law. Lazar v. Hertz Corp. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1494, 1506-1507 (summary adjudication for defendants affirmed)

Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(g) requires statement of triable issues of fact when court denies motion for summary judgment and statement of reasons when motion granted; subdivision, however, does not purport to apply to motions for summary adjudication (but see Bernstein v. Consolidated American Ins. Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 763, 774, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 817 , applying section to denial of summary adjudication). Van Dyke v. S.K.I. Ltd. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1310, 1319 n.12, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 775 (summary judgment for defendants reversed with direction to hear motion for summary adjudication)

Summary judgment, not summary adjudication, is appropriate remedy when defendant establishes affirmative defense to all claims against defendant. 24 Hour Fitness, Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1199, 1216 n.12, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 533 (writ proceeding; trial court directed to vacate order denying summary judgment in defendants' favor and to grant summary judgment to all but one defendant)

On motion for summary adjudication under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f), court may rule whether defendant owes or does not owe duty to plaintiff without regard for dispositive effect of that ruling on other issues in the litigation, except that ruling must completely dispose of issue of duty. Linden Partners v. Wilshire Linden Associates (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 508, 519-522, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 708

Law and motion judge had no authority under new statute to find no triable issues of fact remained with respect to delineated issues of fact without drawing legal conclusion from those facts that conclusively disposed of cause of action or issue of duty; moreover under former versions of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c, courts have held that when summary of issues granted by one judge and remaining issues are tried by different judge, second judge is bound by first judge's determination, and losing party may not seek relitigation of decided issues before second judge; assuming without deciding this is still law, however, this rule does not relieve appellant of his or her usual duty to raise issue at trial to preserve if for appeal. Rooz v. Kimmel (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 573, 592-594, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 177

On motion for summary adjudication trial court must decide if triable issue of fact exists; if none does, and sole remaining issue is one of law, it is trial court's duty to determine issue of law. Federal Deposit Ins. Corp. v. Superior Court (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 337, 344-345, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 713

When plaintiffs pleaded their case by combining causes of action, defendant remained entitled to present summary adjudication motions that disposed of allegations that would have formed single cause of action if properly pleaded. Exxon Corp. v. Superior Court (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1672, 1688 n.11, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 195

Trial court must grant summary adjudication when moving party establishes right to entry of judgment as matter of law; summary judgment mandatory when no triable issue as to material fact exists and if documentation submitted on motion entitles moving party to judgment as matter of law; when defendants seek summary judgment, their supporting documentation must either establish complete defense to plaintiff's action or demonstrate absence of essential element of plaintiff's case; if defendants do so, and plaintiffs opposing documentation does not show either a triable issue of fact with respect to defense or that essential element exists, summary judgment should be granted; these principles apply to appellate court's review of summary judgment ruling, which is conducted de novo; for summary judgment to be granted, moving party must show that under no possible hypothesis within the reasonable purview of the complaint's allegations is there material fact that requires examination by trial. Exxon Corp. v. Superior Court (1997) 51 Cal. App.

4th 1672, 1679, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 195

Ordinarily, order granting summary adjudication is reviewable on appeal from judgment entered after trial; however, on appeal from order dismissing case for failure to diligently prosecute, there can be no review of earlier, nonappealable summary adjudication orders that would otherwise be reviewed on appeal from final judgment on merits. Vernon v. Great Western Bank (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1007, 1013-1015, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 350

Appeal is proper when order granting summary adjudication as to one cause of action effectively disposes of entire case. Belio v. Panorama Optics, Inc. (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1096, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 737 ; see California Ass'n of Psychology Providers v. Rank (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 1, 9, 270 Cal. Rptr. 796, 793 P.2d 2

Abuse of discretion to grant summary adjudication of declaratory relief action that consisted of issues selected from other causes of action and that did not adjudicate the entirety of any cause of action. Hood v. Superior Court (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 319, 324, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 296

Review of order granting summary adjudication of issues as bound by rules applicable to review of summary judgments. McDaniel v. Gile (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 363, 371, 281 Cal. Rptr. 242

Matters summarily adjudicated as utilizing same procedural rules as summary judgment motions. Starkman v. Mann Theatres Corp. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1491, 1495, 278 Cal. Rptr. 543

Requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b) and (c) regarding evidentiary objections as applicable to motions for summary adjudication under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f). Haskell v. Carli (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 124, 130, 240 Cal. Rptr. 439 (decided under prior law)

Summary adjudication as improperly granted when notice of motion was for summary judgment only. Gonzales v. Superior Court (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1542, 1546, 235 Cal. Rptr. 106 (decided under prior law)

Trial court as permitted to adjudicate only those issues specified by motion for summary adjudication. Homestead Savings v. Superior Court (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 494, 498-499, 224 Cal. Rptr. 554 (decided under prior law)

Trial court judge subsequently assigned to action as precluded from reviewing issues already determined by summary adjudication. Conway v. Bughouse, Inc. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 194, 202-203, 164 Cal. Rptr. 585 (decided under prior law)

§ 537.60 Moving Party

[1] Preliminary Determinations

☐ Evaluate sufficiency of the pleadings and determine whether alternatives to summary judgment or adjudication might be more appropriate, e.g.:

- ☐ Demurrer.
- ☐ Motion to strike all or part of a pleading.
- ☐ Motion for judgment on the pleadings.
- ☐ Motion for separate trial of special defenses.

☐ Determine whether any issue of law is susceptible of resolution on summary judgment.

☐ Evaluate discovery to date to determine whether further evidence is needed.

☐ Determine that no genuine issue of material fact remains disputed.

☐ Evaluate strategic advantages and disadvantages, chances of success, timing, and costs of moving for summary judgment.

☐ Attempt to obtain a stipulation of undisputed facts pertinent to the motion.

[2] Motion Procedure

☐ Papers to be prepared:

☐ Notice of motion and motion [FORMS: §§ 537.70, 537.71].§ 537.72

☐ Evidence in support of motion [FORM: § 537.72]:

☐ Supporting affidavits or declarations [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(1); FORM: § 537.73].

☐ Include all necessary facts for summary judgment or summary adjudication, stated as evidentiary facts, not ultimate facts or conclusions. Attach as exhibits copies of any additional documentary evidence or discovery.

☐ Include facts showing declarant's personal knowledge of and competency to testify to the evidentiary facts stated.

☐ Separate statement of undisputed material facts [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(1); FORMS: §§ 537.74, 537.75].

☐ Request for judicial notice, if appropriate [for a form, see, Ch. 321, § 321.60]:

☐ Include a copy of the material. If it is part of the court's file, include a statement specifying the part of the file to be judicially noticed, and arrange with the clerk to have the file in the courtroom at the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1306(b)].

☐ Include a copy of the material. If it is part of the court's file, include a statement specifying the part of the file to be judicially noticed, and arrange with the clerk to have the file in the courtroom at the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1306(c)].

☐ Supporting memorandum.

☐ Proposed order, if required by local rule [FORMS: §§ 537.81, 637.84].

☐ Declaration or certificate re proof of service of moving papers [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a].

☐ Copies of papers to be prepared:

☐ Original to be filed with court.

☐ One office copy.

☐ One copy for service on each party who has appeared in case.

☐ Additional copies as required by local court rule.

☐ Service:

☐ Select hearing date for motion, allowing sufficient time for service. Hearing date must be no later than 30 days before date of trial, unless court for good cause orders otherwise [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a)]. Some courts require that the hearing date be cleared with the calendar or law and motion clerk.

☐ Attach declaration or certificate re proof of service to each copy of papers served.

☐ Do not serve notice and other papers until 60 days have elapsed since opposing party's general appearance, unless court issues order allowing earlier service [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 437c(a), 1005.5].

☐ Serve copies of notice of motion and supporting papers at least 75calendar days before scheduled hearing, unless otherwise ordered [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a)];

☐ Service may be by regular mail [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1012, 1013(a), (b)], Express Mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(c), (d)], by delivery in person or substituted personal service [Code Civ. Proc. § 1011], or in some instances by Fax [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010.5, 1012.5, 1013(e), (f); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.304(b); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010]. or electronic service [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6)].

☐ The 75-day notice period is increased when service is mail, by five days if address is within California, by 10 days if address is within U.S., or by 20 days if address is outside U.S. [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a)].

☐ The 75-day notice period is increased by two court days when service is by Fax, express mail, or overnight delivery [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a)] or electronic service [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6)].

☐ Filing:

☐ Submit original of notice of motion and supporting papers to court clerk for filing.

☐ File notice of motion and supporting papers at least 16 court days before hearing, unless otherwise ordered [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b)].

☐ Submit office copy to clerk to be stamped together with the original. Office copy may thus serve as check on the contents of the papers, if any filed originals are lost; it may also provide ready resolution of any dispute over the file date.

☐ Pay motion filing fee [see Gov. Code § 26830].

☐ File proof of service of the moving papers no later than five calendar days before the hearing date [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(c)].

☐ Reply papers:

☐ If opposition papers are served and filed, moving party determines whether to submit reply papers, e.g.:

☐ Reply memorandum and,

☐ If appropriate, supplemental evidence and statement of material facts.

☐ If reply is desirable, prepare reply papers in as many copies as original papers.

☐ Include any objections to opposing papers or opposing party's evidence.

☐ File original papers directly with clerk of appropriate department at least five days before hearing date [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(4)]. Have office copy stamped together with original to serve as check of contents and file date.

☐ Reply papers must be served by personal delivery, facsimile transmission, express mail or other means reasonably calculated to ensure delivery to the other party or parties not later than the close of the next business day after the time the opposing papers or reply papers are filed [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 437c(b)(4), 1005(c)].

§ 537.61 Opposing Party

[1] Preliminary Determinations

☐ Evaluate moving papers to determine whether it may be desirable to submit opposing papers, e.g., opposing memoranda of points and authorities and opposing declarations or other evidence.

☐ Determine whether moving papers were timely filed and served.

☐ Check sufficiency of supporting papers, e.g., statement of material facts, as possible ground for continuance.

☐ Determine whether any material fact is in dispute.

☐ Evaluate whether further discovery is needed to oppose motion; if so, consider request for continuance.

[2] Opposition Procedure

☐ If opposition is not desirable, consider serving and filing a Notice of Nonopposition. This may be required in some local courts.

☐ If opposition is desirable, prepare opposing papers in as many copies as original papers.

☐ Opposing memorandum.

☐ Include any objections to moving papers or moving party's evidence [see § 537.25[4]; Forms: §§ 537.86, 537.87].

☐ Separate statement of disputed and undisputed material facts [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(3); FORMS: §§ 537.77, 537.78].

☐ Evidence in opposition to motion, if appropriate [FORM: § 537.79]:

☐ Declarations or other evidence [see § 537.60[2] and FORM: § 537.76].

☐ Request for judicial notice, if notice is to be requested [for a form, see Ch. 321, Judicial Notice].

☐ Include a copy of the material. If it is part of the court's file, include a statement specifying the part of the file to be judicially noticed, and arrange with the clerk to have the file in the courtroom at the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1306(c)].

☐ File original papers directly with clerk of appropriate department not less than 14 days before scheduled or continued hearing date [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(2)]. Have office copy stamped together with original to serve as check of contents and file date.

☐ Serve copies not less than 14 days before scheduled or continued hearing date [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(2)]. Opposition papers must be served by personal delivery, facsimile transmission, express mail or other means reasonably calculated to ensure delivery to the other party or parties not later than the close of the next business day after the time the opposing papers or reply papers are filed. [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 437c(b)(2), (6), 1005(c)].

☐ Evaluate reply papers, if any, for timeliness, sufficiency, etc. Prepare to argue in rebuttal to any points raised in reply.

§ 537.62 Hearing on Motion

☐ If a party desires to submit motion without an appearance, prepare, serve, and file a notice of nonappearance in same number of copies as notice of motion [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1304(c)].

☐ If possible, obtain any tentative ruling [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1308], ☐ Consult local rules for procedure, if any, for appearing at hearing and stipulating to or contesting the tentative ruling.

☐ If a party desires to appear by telephone, arrange for telephone appearance [see Code Civ. Proc. § 367.5; Cal. Rules of Ct., Stds. Jud. Admin., Std. 3.1 see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.670].

☐ If appropriate, attend hearing.

☐ After the ruling:

☐ Unless the parties waive notice or court orders otherwise, the prevailing party must mail or deliver the proposed order to the other party for approval as conforming to the court's order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1312(a)].

☐ Within five days after the mailing or delivery of proposed order, the other party must notify prevailing party as to whether the proposed order is approved, stating any reasons for disapproval. Failure to provide timely notification to the prevailing party constitutes approval. Code Civ. Proc. § 1013, extending time requirements when service is by mail, does not apply [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1312(a)].

☐ On expiration of the 5-day approval period, the prevailing party must "promptly" transmit the proposed order to the court, together with a summary of any responses of other parties or a statement that no responses were received [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1312(b)]. Any other party may prepare and submit a proposed order if the prevailing party fails to do so as required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1312(a) and (b) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1312(c)].

☐ After the order is signed, unless court orders otherwise, request conformed copies of original order, and serve these copies, with proof of service, on all parties or their attorneys, unless each party has waived such notice of order and waiver was noted in court's minutes [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1019.5(a)].

☐ File proof of service of notice.

[2] Use of Form

The notice of motion and motion in [1], above, is for use by a party to give notice and move for summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a)]. The form includes optional language for use to move in the alternative for summary adjudication of one or more causes of action within an action, an affirmative defense, a claim for punitive damages, or the issue of whether one or more defendants owed a duty to one or more plaintiffs [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f)(1)].

[3] Summary Adjudication

A party moving for and giving notice of a motion for summary judgment should consider whether summary adjudication of some part of the action would be desirable if the summary judgment motion is denied. The court may grant such alternative relief only when it has been specifically sought by the moving party [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f); see Motevalli v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist.(2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 97, 114, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 562 ; Gonzales v. Superior Court (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1542, 1545-1546, 235 Cal. Rptr. 106 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f))].

Summary adjudication may be requested in the alternative with respect to one or more causes of action within an action, an affirmative defense, a claim for punitive damages, or the issue of whether one or more defendants owed a duty to one or more plaintiffs [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f)]. For further discussion and a form of notice ofmotion for summary adjudication alone, see § 537.71.

[4] Caption

The title of the paper in the caption includes an optional phrase to be included if the motion seeks summary adjudication in the alternative to summary judgment.

If other documents are attached to the notice of motion and motion, the title in the caption must list the nature or title of all of the attached papers [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1110(b)]. Thus, the caption also includes optional language to use if other papers that must accompany the motion are combined in the same document [see § [5][a], below]. If the supporting evidence exceeds 25 pages, it must be separately bound [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(g) (documents supporting motion)].

[5] Supporting Papers

[a] Papers Required

Except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 537c(r) and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1351, the papers required on a motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication, or both, are as follows [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(c)]:

- Separate statement of undisputed material fact [for forms, see §§ 537.74 and 537.75].
- Memorandum in support of the the motion [for forms, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 221, Summary Judgments (Matthew Bender)].
- Evidence in support of the motion [for a form, see § 537.72].
- Request for judicial notice, if appropriate [for forms, see Ch. 321, Judicial Notice].

[b] Statement of Undisputed Material Facts

The supporting papers must include a separate statement setting forth plainly and concisely all material facts which the moving party contends are undisputed, with a reference following each fact to the supporting evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(1)]. For further discussion and a form of statement of undisputed fact, see § 537.21[3] and §§ 537.74 and 537.75.

[c] Evidence in Support of Motion

In addition to the memorandum, the notice of motion and motion must be accompanied by and based on supporting evidence in the form of declarations, affidavits, admissions, depositions, answers to interrogatories or matters subject to judicial notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(1); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b)]. For a form of supporting declaration, see § 537.73. For a form of cover sheet for the evidence, see § 537.72.

For further discussion as to evidentiary requirements in general, see § 537.24[1][a] et seq., and § 537.25[3].

[d] Judicial Notice

If judicial notice is sought of any matter under Evid. Code § 452, a separate request for judicial notice in support of the motion must be included in the moving papers [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(c); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(l)]. Copies of any matter subject to judicial notice under Evid. Code § 452 must accompany the notice of motion and motion, unless the matter is part of a file in the court in which the motion will be heard. In the latter instance, the moving party should attach a writing specifying the part of the court file sought to be judicially noticed, and arrange with the clerk to have the file in the courtroom when the motion is heard [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1306(c); see Evid. Code § 453(b)(1)].

Any incorporation by reference of matter in the court's file must set forth with specificity the exact matter to which reference is being made and may not incorporate the entire file [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(7)].

For discussion and forms of request for judicial notice, see Ch. 321, Judicial Notice .

[6] Filing and Service of Notice

A motion for summary judgment may be made, i.e., filed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005.5], at any time after 60 days have elapsed since the general appearance in the action or proceeding of each party against whom the motion is directed, or at such earlier time after such general appearance as the court, with or without notice and on good cause shown, may direct [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a)]. For further discussion, see § 537.23.

The notice and motion and supporting papers must be served on all other parties to the action at least 75 days before the appointed hearing date, which must be no later than 30 days before the date of trial, unless the court for good cause orders otherwise. When service is by mail, the 75-day notice period is increased by five days if the place of address is within California, 10 days if outside California but within the United States, or 20 days if outside the United States. If service is by facsimile transmission, Express Mail, or other overnight delivery, the 75-day period is extended by two days [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a)]. For further discussion, see § 537.22.

For discussion and forms relating to manner and proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

Different time requirements apply if the underlying action is for unlawful detainer or forcible entry, or for consumer-class relief under Civ. Code § 1781(a) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 437c(q), (r), 1170.7; Civ. Code § 1781(c)]. For further discussion see § 537.18[1].

[7] Time for Filing Responsive Pleading Not Affected

Filing of the notice of motion and motion does not extend the time within which a party must otherwise file a responsive pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a)].

For discussion of required supporting papers and of service and filing requirements, see § 537.70[5] et seq.

[4] Summary Adjudication

If any party contends that one or more causes of action within an action has no merit or that there is no defense thereto or that there is no merit to an affirmative defense as to any cause of action, or both, or that there is no merit to a claim for damages under Civ. Code § 3294 (that is, a claim for punitive damages), or that one or more defendants either owed or did not owe a duty to the plaintiff or plaintiffs, then he or she may move for summary adjudication as to that cause or causes of action, that affirmative defense, that claim for damages, or that issue of duty [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f)(1)].

For discussion of availability of summary adjudication, see § 537.17[1].

A motion for summary adjudication proceeds in all procedural respects as a motion for summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f)(2)]. For discussion of that procedure, see § 537.20 et seq.

A number of trial courts have adapted recommendations and requirements regarding motions for summary adjudication. Local rules should therefore be consulted in all cases.

[5] Proposed Order

In addition to the usual supporting papers, local rules may require or recommend that any motion for summary adjudication be accompanied by a proposed order [see, e.g., San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 8.11]. For further discussion and a form of such order, see § 537.84.

2. _____ [Here and in subsequent paragraphs state evidentiary facts with particularity, to establish in whole or in part each element necessary to support an order for summary judgment and/or summary adjudication, as desired].

3. _____ [Here state evidentiary facts with particularity, to establish that the declarant has personal knowledge of the foregoing facts and is competent to testify to such facts under oath].

[4. I have personal knowledge of the foregoing facts, and if called as a witness can and will competently testify to them under oath.]

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]
_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

The form of declaration in [1], above, is for use to support a notice of motion and motion for summary judgment, summary adjudication, or summary judgment or adjudication in the alternative [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 437c(b)(1), (f), 2015.5; for forms of notice of motion and motion, see §§ 537.70 and 537.71]. Evidence must be presented in support of the motion. In addition to presenting evidence by means of declarations, it may be presented by affidavits, answers to interrogatories, depositions, admissions, and matters subject to judicial notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(1)].

One of the required documents on a motion for summary judgment is the "Evidence in support of [moving party's] motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication or both" [Cal. Rules Ct., Rule 3.1350(c)(4)]. In that a declaration supporting the motion is evidence, the declaration should be included under the evidence cover sheet [for a form of cover sheet for the evidence, see § 537.72].

[3] Sufficiency Requirements

Declarations must be based on personal knowledge, set forth admissible evidence, and affirmatively show that the declarant is competent to testify to the facts stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(d)]. They must state evidentiary facts; unsupported ultimate facts or conclusions are insufficient [Guthrey v. State of California (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1108, 1120, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 27 ; Colby v. Schwartz (1978) 78 Cal. App. 3d 885, 889, 144 Cal. Rptr. 624] . Evidentiary facts showing the declarant's personal knowledge and competency must be stated [Roy Brothers Drilling Co. v. Jones (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 175, 181-182, 176 Cal. Rptr. 449 ; Dixon v. Grace Lines, Inc. (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 278, 289, 103 Cal. Rptr. 595 ; see Guthrey v. State of California (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1108, 1120, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 27]. The conclusion that the declarant has personal knowledge and is competent to testify need not be stated [Roy Brothers Drilling Co. v. Jones (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 175, 182, 176 Cal. Rptr. 449]. If desired, Optional

Paragraph 4 in the form provides such a statement. If, however, it appears from the declaration that it is unlikely the declarant has personal knowledge of the statements he or she avers to be true, the declaration may not be salvaged by a conclusionary statement that the declarant has personal knowledge of the statements. For further discussion, see § 537.24[1][a] et seq.

[4] Incorporation of Documentary Evidence

Documentary evidence should be incorporated by reference into a declaration, and must otherwise conform to the rules of evidence [Dugar v. Happy Tiger Records, Inc. (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 811, 815, 116 Cal. Rptr. 412 ; Miller & Lux, Inc. v. Bank of America (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 719, 725, 28 Cal. Rptr. 401]. Any incorporation by reference of matter in the court's file must set forth with specificity the exact matter to which reference is being made and may not incorporate the entire file [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(7)].

For further discussion, see § 537.24[1][d].

[5] Sanctions

If at any time the court determines that an affidavit (or declaration) has been presented in bad faith or solely for the purpose of delay, the court shall order the party presenting such affidavit to pay the other party the amount of reasonable expenses which the filing of the affidavit caused such other party to incur [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(j)]. For further discussion, see § 537.38[1].

Sanctions will not be imposed under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(j) except on notice contained in a party's papers, or on the court's own noticed motion, and after an opportunity to be heard [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(j)]. The form in § 537.80 may be used to provide the notice required for recovery of reasonable expenses under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(j). Alternatively, this form of declaration may be modified to incorporate such notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(j) (separate noticed motion not expressly required)].

[If the motion involves more than one cause of action or affirmative defense, organize the material facts into sections accordingly, identifying the source of each section, e.g.:]

I. As to the First Cause of Action, alleged in plaintiff's First Amended Complaint and denied by defendant's Amended Answer thereto:

Moving Party's Undisputed Material Facts and Supporting Evidence:	Opposing Party's Response and Supporting Evidence:
1. _____ [Give reference to the evidence submitted in support of the motion which supports the contention that such fact is undisputed, e.g., Defendant Smith answer at 2:3-4. Jones declaration, 2:1-13; contract, Ex. A to Jones declaration.]

[3. Set forth any additional material facts contended to be undisputed in this and succeeding numbered paragraphs].	[3]

_____ [signature]
_____ [name/title]

The form in [1], above, outlines the format for a statement of undisputed facts for use by a party moving for summary judgment. It must set forth these facts plainly and concisely, followed in each case by a clear reference to the evidence supporting the motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(1); Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(c), (d), (h)]. For a form to use if the motion is for summary adjudication, see § 537.75.

The "separate statement" requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(1) does not expressly require that the statement be prepared as a separate document or paper, as distinguished from a statement that is merely separate from and in addition to the supporting evidence. Nevertheless, one court of appeal has held that this requirement is not satisfied by a memorandum, and that the statement must be a totally discrete section separate and apart from the memorandum itself. Ideally, it should be in a separately bound or filed document not physically attached to the memorandum [Blackman v. Burrows (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 889, 894-895, 238 Cal. Rptr. 642 ; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(c)].

A simple notice of joinder in a motion for summary judgment is insufficient to satisfy the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(1); each moving party must support their motion for summary judgment with a separate statement responding to each of the material facts contended by the moving party to be undisputed, and indicating whether the opposing party agrees or disagrees that those facts areundisputed [Frazee v. Seely (2001) 95 Cal. App. 4th 627, 636, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 780].

[3] Format of Papers

This form reflects the specific guidelines regarding the format of separate statements that are found in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(d), (h). The statement must separately identify each cause of action, claim, issue of duty or affirmative defense, and each supporting material fact claimed to be without dispute with respect to the cause of action, claim, issue of duty, or affirmative defense [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(d)]. Effective January 1, 2008, Cal. Rule of Ct., Rule 3.1350(d) still requires a two-column format, but now requires the moving party to state in numerical sequence the undisputed material facts in the first column followed by the evidence that establishes those undisputed facts in that same column. Citation to the evidence in support of each fact must include reference to the exhibit, title, and page, and line numbers [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(d)]. Rule 3.1350(h) provides an example of this format.

[4] Providing Electronic Version

A party must provide an electronic version of its separate statement to any other party or the court within 3 days of a request to do so [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(i)]. The electronic version may be provided in any form on which the parties agree; however, if the parties are unable to agree on the form, the responding party must provide the electronic version of the separate statement that it used to prepare the document filed with the court. Pursuant to this rule, a party is not required to create an electronic version or any new version of any document for the purpose of transmission to the requesting party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(i)].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.
Dated: _____

_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]

CAUTION:
Sanctions may be imposed for filing a declaration in bad faith or solely for purposes of delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(j)].

[2] Use of Form

The form of declaration in [1], above, is for use to oppose a notice of motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 437c(b), 2015.5]. The opposition may also, when appropriate, consist of evidence set forth in affidavits, answers to interrogatories, depositions, admissions, and matters subject to judicial notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(2)].

One of the required documents on a motion for summary judgment is the "[Opposing party's] evidence in opposition to [moving party's] motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication or both" [Cal. Rules Ct., Rule 3.1350(e)(3)]. In that a declaration opposing the motion is evidence, the declaration should be included under the evidence cover sheet [for a form of cover sheet for the evidence, see § 537.79].

[3] Other Opposing Papers

Except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 537c(r) and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1351, the opposition must include a separate statement which responds to the moving party's statement of facts claimed to be undisputed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(e)]. For further discussion and a form of such statement, see §§ 537.77 and 537.78.

A memorandum opposing the motion must also be included [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1113, 3.1350(e)].

[4] Cross Motion for Affirmative Relief

The form relates only to opposition on the ground that a triable issue of fact exists. Opposing counsel should be aware that a cross motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication of issues is necessary before the court may grant such affirmative relief in favor of the opposing party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a), (f); Dvorin v. Appellate Dep't of Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 648, 650-651, 125 Cal. Rptr. 771, 542 P.2d 1363]. The forms in §§ 537.70 -537.74 may be adapted for this purpose.

[5] Opposition on Grounds of Unavailable Evidence

Opposing counsel may wish to seek an order denying or continuing the motion on the basis of a declaration or affidavit that shows that facts essential to justify opposition may exist, but cannot then be presented for reasons stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(h)]. For discussion of the required showing, see § 537.36].

[6] Service and Filing

The opposition must be filed and copies served at least 14 days before the time appointed for the hearing unless the court for good cause orders otherwise. Effective January 1, 2003, opposition papers must be served by personal delivery, facsimile transmission, express mail or other means reasonably calculated to ensure delivery to the other party or parties not later than the close of the next business day after the time the opposing papers or reply papers are filed [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 437c(b)(2), 1005(c)]. Exceptions to these time requirements, applicable in some actions for unlawful detainer or forcible entry, are discussed in § 537.18[1].

1. _____ [Set forth plainly and concisely additional material facts not mentioned by moving party, if any, that opposing party contends are disputed].	_____ [Refer to admissible evidence that shows existence of triable dispute regarding that fact].

[2. Set forth any additional disputed facts in this and succeeding numbered paragraphs].

_____ [signature]
_____ [name/title]

The form in [1], above, outlines a format for a statement of disputed and undisputed material facts for use by a party opposing a motion for summary judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(3); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(e), (h)]. The opposing party must respond to every fact in the moving party's separate statement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(f)]. For a form to use if the motion is for summary adjudication, see § 537.78.

In accordance with the prescribed two column format, the opposing separate statement must set out the moving party's alleged undisputed facts and evidence and state whether the fact is disputed or undisputed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(f)]. Any disputed facts must be followed by a reference to supporting evidence that indicates the existence of a triable dispute as to that fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(3); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(f)]. For example, if one of the material facts stated by the moving party is supported by an inference reasonably deducible from the supporting evidence, opposing counsel might dispute that fact if reference can be made to a contradictory inference [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(c)]. Alternative means of expressing disagreement reflected in this form are discussed in [4], below.

In addition to the response, the opposing party must include any additional material facts that he or she contends are disputed, stating each one plainly and concisely, followed by a reference to supporting evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(3)].

The opposing party preferably should quote each of the facts set forth in the moving papers. If the opposing party admits any of the statements set forth in the moving separate statement, the admission should be clearly stated [Blackman v. Burrows (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 889, 895, 238 Cal. Rptr. 642].

For discussion of the court's discretion under former Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(3)] to grant summary judgment based on opposing party's failure to file a proper separate statement [see Thatcher v. Lucky Stores, Inc. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1086, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 575], see § 537.25[2].

[3] Format of Papers

The two column format must be used and the opposing party must respond to every fact claimed to be undisputed by the moving party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(f), (h)]. The opposing separate statement must set out each of the moving party's alleged undisputed facts verbatim on the left side of the page, with the evidence said by the moving party to establish that fact, complete with moving party's references to exhibits set out below each fact. On the right side of the page directly opposite the moving party's facts and evidence, the opposing party's response must state whether the fact is disputed or undisputed and, if disputed, state the nature of the dispute and describe the evidence that supports the position that the fact is controverted. That evidence must be supported by citation to exhibit, title, and page, and line numbers in the evidence submitted [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(3), Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(f)]. Counsel is required to follow that format in filling out this form.

[4] Objections to Evidence in Support of the Motion

[a] Manner of Objecting

The requirement of a responding statement appears to be designed to provide the court with a summary, with references, of evidence that shows the existence of a triable dispute. Objections to the sufficiency of the moving party's evidence, as distinguished from objections to the contention that it is undisputed, should be fully discussed in the memorandum [see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 221, Summary Judgments]. However, counsel may also wish to include a brief reference to the following types of objections in the responding statement, particularly when these objections apply to a material fact that is asserted as undisputed by the moving party and as to which no disputing evidence exists.

[b] As Inadmissible

The court cannot consider evidence to which objections have been made and sustained [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(c)]. Objections to the admissibility of supporting evidence will be deemed waived if not made in the opposing papers or orally at the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(5)]. The better practice is to submit written objections. Effective January 1, 2007, the Rules of Court contain specific format requirements for written objections. The written objections must be served and filed separately from other papers in opposition to the motion. Objections on specific evidence may be referenced by the objection number in the right column of a separate statement in opposition to a motion, but the objections must not be restated or reargued in the separate statement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1354(b)]. For further discussion, see § 537.25[3]. For further discussion, see § 537.25[3].

[c] As Declaration by Sole Witness or Affirming Declarant's State of Mind

The court has discretion to deny a motion when the only proof of a material fact offered in support of the motion is an affidavit or declaration made by an individual who was the sole witness to the fact, or when a material fact is an individual's state of mind, or lack thereof, and the fact is sought to be established solely by that individual's affirmation [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(e)]. This form includes optional language that disputes a given fact on the ground that it is based solely on such proof. For further discussion, see § 537.34[4][a].

[d] As Disputed by Evidence Not Then Available

The court may deny or continue a motion if opposing declarations or affidavits show that disputing evidence may exist but cannot be then presented [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(h)]. An opposing party's statement of disputed facts asserting lack of knowledge and claiming that fact is "disputed" is insufficient when opposing party hasnot requested continuance to conduct further discovery or otherwise explained its ignorance [City of Hope Nat. Medical Center v. Superior Court (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 633, 636 n.1, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 465]. This form includes optional language that disputes a given fact on the ground that it may be disputed by evidence that cannot be presently submitted. For further discussion, see § 537.76[5].

[5] Providing Electronic Version

Effective January 1, 2002, a party must provide an electronic version of its separate statement to any other party or the court within 3 days of a request to do so [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(i)]. The electronic version may be provided in any form on which the parties agree; however, if the parties are unable to agree on the form, the responding party must provide the electronic version of the separate statement that it used to prepare the document filed with the court. Pursuant to this rule, a party is not required to create an electronic version or any new version of any document for the purpose of transmission to the requesting party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1350(i)].

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion, motion, and supporting declaration in [1], above, is for use by a party seeking an order imposing monetary sanctions against another party for expenses incurred as a result of that other party's presentation, in bad faith or solely for purposes of delay, of an affidavit or declaration in connection with a motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(j)].

A separate noticed motion for sanctions is not required so long as notice is contained in other papers [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(j)]. This form may therefore be modified for inclusion in other papers.

A memorandum must be filed and a copy served with the foregoing notice of motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)].

For further discussion, see § 537.38[1].

§ 537.81 Order Granting Motion for Summary Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c]

[1] FORM Order Granting Motion for Summary Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	ORDER GRANTING _____'S
vs.	)	[moving party] MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDG-
_____ [name],	)	MENT
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	Judge: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		Trial Date: _____

The motion(s) of _____ [specify prevailing party, e.g., plaintiff] [and _____ (specify opposing party making cross-motion, e.g., defendant)] for summary judgment was/were heard by the court on _____ [date]. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____ [name]; defendant appeared by counsel _____ [name].

Having considered all the evidence set forth in the papers submitted, and the inferences reasonably deducible therefrom, except that to which objection was sustained, the Court determines that there is no triable issue as to any material fact and that _____ (specify prevailing party, e.g., plaintiff) is entitled to judgment as a matter of law, for the following reasons:

1. _____ [Plaintiff or Defendant], in support of his/her/its motion, proffered evidence that _____ [established each element necessary to sustain judgment in his/her/its favor or (refuted a necessary element of plaintiff's cause of action and/or established an affirmative defense to plaintiff's cause of action)], as follows: _____ [specify material facts claimed by moving party with reference to their location in the supporting papers].

2. _____ [Plaintiff or Defendant], in opposition to _____ [defendant's or plaintiff's] motion, _____ [proffered no evidence or proffered evidence as follows: _____ (specify facts claimed by opposing party with reference to their location in the opposing papers)]. [This evidence proffered in opposition to _____ (defendant's or plaintiff's) motion, is not sufficient to raise a triable issue of fact in that _____ (specify, e.g., it constitutes inadmissible hearsay, to which objection at the hearing was duly made and sustained).]

[ADD, if the court is also denying the opposing party's cross motion(s) for summary judgment and/or adjudication]

The Court further determines that the cross motion of _____ [specify opposing party making cross motion, e.g., defendant] for an order granting _____ [summary judgment and/or summary adjudication] should be denied for the following reasons: _____ [state reasons for denial as required under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(g); for examples of reasons, see the form in § 537.85].

[The Court further determines that the _____ (declaration(s) and/or affidavit(s)) of _____ (name(s)) presented by _____ (specify opposing party, e.g., defendant) _____ was/were presented _____ (in bad faith and/or solely for the purpose of delay).]

Accordingly,

IT IS ORDERED that the motion of _____ [specify prevailing party, e.g., plaintiff] for summary judgment be, and hereby is, granted and that judgment be entered providing that _____ [specify prevailing party, e.g., plaintiff] _____ [specify judgment, e.g., recover from defendant the sum of $_____, with (interest thereon _____ (specify rate, e.g., at the legal rate) from and after _____ (date), and) his/her costs in the sum of $ _____].

[ADD, if the court is also denying an alternative motion for summary adjudication by the prevailing party, and/or is denying the opposing party's cross motion(s) for summary judgment and/or adjudication]

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that _____ [the alternative motion of _____ (specify moving party, e.g., plaintiff) for an order granting summary adjudication and/or the cross-motion of _____ (specify opposing party making cross-motion, e.g., defendant) for an order granting _____ (summary judgment and/or summary adjudication)] be, and hereby is, denied.

[IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that _____ (specify opposing party, e.g., defendant) pay _____ (specify moving party, e.g., plaintiff) the sum of $ _____ as the amount of reasonable expenses incurred by _____ (specify moving party, e.g., plaintiff) as a result of the filing of the _____ (declaration(s) and/or affidavit(s)) referred to above.]

The form of order in [1], above, is for use when the court grants a motion for summary judgment and requires counsel to prepare and submit aproposed order. If the court permits the order and judgment to be combined in the same paper, the form in § 537.82 should be used. Otherwise, if the order granting the motion terminates the action as between at least two parties, as illustrated in this form, a formal judgment should be prepared and submitted to the judge for signature [for a form of formal judgment, see § 537.83; see also § 537.82[2] et seq.].

The form includes optional language for use when the court denies an alternative motion by the prevailing party, a cross motion by the opposing party, or both. It also includes optional language for use when the court imposes sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(j) [see discussion in § 537.38[1].

For a form for use when the motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication is denied, see § 537.85.

[3] Specification of Reasons

On granting a motion for summary judgment, on the ground that there is no triable issue of material fact, the court is required, by written or oral order, to specify the reasons for its determination. The order must specifically refer to the evidence proffered in support of, and if applicable in opposition to, the motion that indicates that no triable issue exists [Code Civ. Proc. 473c(g); see § 537.37[2]].

[4] Notice of Order

The prevailing party must give notice of the court's order granting or denying the motion to all other parties or their attorneys in the manner provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 et seq., unless notice is waived by all parties in open court and is entered in the minutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 1019.5(a)]. For further discussion and forms of notice and proof of service, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders , and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

§ 537.82 Order Granting Motion for Summary Judgment and Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c]

[1] FORM Order Granting Motion for Summary Judgment and Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	ORDER GRANTING MOTION FOR SUMMARY
Defendant.	)	JUDGMENT AND JUDGMENT

The motion(s) of _____ [specify prevailing party, e.g., plaintiff] [and _____ (specify opposing party making cross motion, e.g., defendant)] for summary judgment was/were heard by the court on _____ [date]. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____ [name]; defendant appeared by counsel _____ [name].

Having considered all the evidence set forth in the papers submitted, and the inferences reasonably deducible therefrom, except that to which objection was sustained, the Court determines that there is no triable issue as to any material fact and that _____ [specify prevailing party, e.g., plaintiff] is entitled to judgm ent as a matter of law, for the following reasons:

1. _____ [Plaintiff or Defendant], in support of his/her/its motion, proffered evidence that _____ [established each element necessary to sustain judgment in his/her/its favor or (refuted a necessary element of plaintiff's cause of action and/or established an affirmative defense to plaintiff's cause of action)], as follows: _____ [specify material facts claimed by moving party with reference to their location in the supporting papers].

2. _____ [Plaintiff or Defendant], in opposition to _____ [defendant's or plaintiff's] motion, _____ [proffered no evidence or proffered evidence as follows: _____ (specify facts claimed by opposing party with reference to their location in the opposing papers)]. [This evidence proffered in opposition to _____ (defendant's or plaintiff's) motion is not sufficient to raise a triable issue of fact in that _____ (specify, e.g., it constitutes inadmissible hearsay, to which objection at the hearing was duly made and sustained).]

[ADD, if the court is also denying the opposing party's cross motion(s) for summary judgment and/or adjudication]

The Court further determines that the cross motion of _____ [specify opposing party making cross motion, e.g., defendant] for an order granting _____ [summary judgment and/or summary adjudication] should be denied for the following reasons: _____ [state reasons for denial as required under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(g); for examples of reasons, see the form in § 537.85].

[The Court further determines that the _____ (declaration(s) and/or affidavit(s)) of _____ (name(s)) presented by _____ (specify opposing party, e.g., defendant) _____ was/were presented _____ (in bad faith and/or solely for the purpose of delay).]

Accordingly,

[ADD, if the court is denying an alternative motion for summary adjudication by the prevailing party, and/or is denying the opposing party's cross motion(s) for summary judgment and/or adjudication :]

IT IS ORDERED that _____ [the alternative motion of _____ (specify moving party, e.g., plaintiff) for an order granting summary judgment and/or the cross motion of _____ (specify opposing party making cross motion, e.g., defendant) for an order granting _____ (summary judgment and/or summary adjudication)] be, and hereby is, denied.

IT IS [FURTHER] ORDERED, ADJUDGED, AND DECREED that the motion of _____ [specify prevailing party, e.g., plaintiff] be, and hereby is, granted [and, further, that _____ (specify opposing party, e.g., defendant) pay _____ (specify moving party, e.g., plaintiff) the sum of $_____ as the amount of reasonable expenses incurred by _____ (specify moving party, e.g., plaintiff) as a result of the filing of the hereinabove referred to _____ (declaration(s) and/or affidavit(s))].

IT IS [FURTHER] ORDERED, ADJUDGED, AND DECREED that _____ [specify judgment rendered, e.g., plaintiff _____ (plaintiff's full name) shall recover from defendant _____ (defendant's full name) the principal sum of $ _____, plus interest at the rate of _____ (specify, e.g., eight percent) from _____ (date) to date hereof in the sum of $_____, for a total sum of $ _____].
Dated: _____.

Judge of the _____ Court

[2] Use of Form

The combined form of order and judgment in [1], above, is for use when the trial court grants a motion for summary judgment, requires the preparation of a formal order granting the motion, and does not require that the order and judgment be set forth in separate papers [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(k), and discussion in [3], below]. In this event, it would appear that the better practice would be to use the combined form to avoid unnecessary duplication and to avoid any possibility of conflict between the order and the judgment. If the order and judgment are combined, the paper should, as in the caption of the form, be clearly identified as a judgment [see Rogness v. English Moss Joint Venturers (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 190, 192 n.2, 239 Cal. Rptr. 387].

If the court requires presentation of a formal order granting the motion separate from the judgment, use the forms in §§ 537.81 and 537.83.

The form includes optional language for use when the court denies an alternative motion by the prevailing party, a cross motion by the opposing party, or both. It also includes optional language for use when the court imposes sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(j) [see discussion in § 537.38[1]].

[3] Entry of Judgment and Notice of Entry

Except when a separate judgment may be awarded properly in the action, no final judgment can be entered on a motion for summary judgment prior to the termination of the action, but the final judgment must, in addition to any matters determined in the action, award judgment as established by the summary judgment proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(k)]. For situations in which a separate judgment may properly be awarded, see discussion in § 537.43[1]. In most contested actions or special proceedings, the party submitting a judgment for entry must prepare and mail a copy of the notice of entry of judgment to all parties who have appeared in the action or proceeding and must file with the court the original notice of entry of judgment together with the proof of service by mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5(a)].

For further discussion of entry of judgment and notice of entry of judgment, see § 537.42.

[4] Review After Entry of Judgment

A summary judgment, once entered, is appealable [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 437c(m), 904.1(a)(1), 904.2]. For further discussion relating to appeal, see § 537.43[1] et seq. For discussion of post-judgment challenges in the trial court, see § 537.40.

§ 537.84 Order Granting Motion for Summary Adjudication of Cause of Action, Defense, Claim for Punitive Damages, or Issue of Duty [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c]

[1] FORM Order Granting Motion for Summary Adjudication of Cause of Action, Defense, Claim for Punitive Damages, or Issue of Duty [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	ORDER
Defendant.	)

The motion of _____ [specify moving party, e.g., plaintiff] for an order granting summary adjudication

[and, alternatively, for an order granting summary judgment], [and the motion of _____ (specify opposing party making cross motion, e.g., defendant) for an order granting _____ (summary judgment and/or summary adjudication)] was/were heard by the court on _____ [date]. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____ [name]; defendant appeared by counsel _____ [name].

On consideration of all the evidence set forth in the papers submitted, and the inferences reasonably deducible therefrom, except that to which objection was sustained, the Court makes the following determinations for the reasons specified:

1. There is no triable issue as to any material fact and _____ [specify prevailing party, e.g., plaintiff] is entitled as a matter of law to summary adjudication in his/her/its favor and against _____ [identify opposing party, e.g., defendant] on _____ [specify first matter on which summary adjudication is granted, e.g., the First Cause of Action of plaintiff's First Amended Complaint] for the following reasons:

a. _____ [Plaintiff or Defendant], in support of his/her/its motion for summary adjudication on this _____ [cause of action or affirmative defense or claim for punitive damages or issue of duty], proffered evidence that established each necessary element of this _____ [cause of action or affirmative defense or claim for punitive damages or issue of duty] as follows: _____ [specify material facts claimed by moving party with reference to their location in the supporting papers].

b. _____ [Plaintiff or Defendant], in opposition to _____ [defendant's or plaintiff's] motion, _____ [proffered no evidence or proffered evidence as follows: _____ (specify facts claimed by opposing party with reference to their location in the opposing papers)]. [Theforegoing evidence proffered in opposition to _____ (defendant's or plaintiff's) motion is not sufficient to raise a triable issue of fact in that _____ (specify, e.g., it constitutes inadmissible hearsay, to which objection at the hearing was duly made and sustained).]

[2. Set out any additional matters on which summary adjudication is granted, if any, in this and succeeding numbered paragraphs.]

[ADD, if the court is also denying summary adjudication of additional matters that were included in the prevailing party's motion, and/or is denying an alternative motion for summary judgment by the prevailing party, and/or is denying the opposing party's cross motion(s) for summary judgment and/or adjudication]

The Court further determines that _____ [the motion of _____ (specify moving party, e.g., plaintiff) for an order granting summary adjudication with respect to _____ (specify additional matter included in the motion, e.g., the claim for punitive damages set out in the Fourth Cause of Action of plaintiff's First Amended Complaint) and/or the alternative motion of _____ (specify moving party, e.g., plaintiff) for an order granting summary judgment and/or the cross motion of _____ (specify opposing party making cross motion, e.g., defendant) for an order granting _____ (summary judgment and/or summary adjudication)] should be denied for the following reasons: _____ [state reasons for denial as required under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(g); for examples of reasons, see the form in § 537.85[1]].

[The Court further determines that the _____ (declaration(s) and/or affidavit(s)) of _____ (name(s)) presented by _____ (specify opposing party, e.g., defendant) _____ was/were presented _____ (in bad faith and/or solely for the purpose of delay).]

Accordingly,

IT IS ORDERED that the motion for an order granting summary adjudication be, and hereby is, granted in favor of _____ [specify moving party, e.g., plaintiff] and against _____ [specify opposing party, e.g., defendant _____ (name)] with respect to _____ [specify matter(s) on which summary adjudication is granted, e.g., the First and Fifth Causes of Action of plaintiff's First Amended Complaint], and that this adjudication shall be carried into any final judgment subsequently entered in this _____ [action or proceeding].

[ADD, if the court is also denying summary adjudication of additional matters that were included in the prevailing party's motion, and/or is denying an alternative motion for summary judgment by the prevailing party, and/or is denying the opposing party's cross motion(s) for summary judgment and/or adjudication]

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that _____ [the motion of _____ (specify moving party, e.g., plaintiff) for an order granting summary adjudication with respect to _____ (specify additional matter included in the motion, e.g., the claim for punitive damages set out in the Fourth Cause of Action of plaintiff's First Amended Complaint) and/or the alternative motion of _____ (specify moving party, e.g., plaintiff) for an order granting summary judgment and/or the cross motion of _____ (specify opposing party making cross motion, e.g., defendant) for an order granting _____ (summary judgment and/or summary adjudication)] be, and hereby is, denied.

[IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that _____ (specify opposing party, e.g., defendant) pay _____ (specify moving party, e.g., plaintiff) the sum of $ _____ as the amount of reasonable expenses incurred by _____ (specify moving party, e.g., plaintiff) as a result of the filing of the _____ (declaration(s) and/or affidavit(s)) referred to above.]
Dated: _____.

Judge of the _____ Court

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use when the court grants a motion for summary adjudication under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f) [for forms of notice of motion and motion, see §§ 537.70 and 537.71] and directs counsel to prepare and submit a proposed order.

The form includes optional language for use when the court denies the motion for summary adjudication with respect to certain matters, or denies the prevailing party's alternative motion for summary judgment, or denies cross motions by the opposing party. It also includes optional language for use when the court imposes sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(j) [see discussion in § 537.38[1]].

Some trial courts require or recommend that a proposed order be submitted with any motion for summary adjudication [see, e.g., San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 8.11]. A proposed order should be framed as if the motion were granted with respect to all causes of actions, defenses, claims for punitive damages, or issues of duty sought to be adjudicated.

[3] Specification of Reasons

On the grant of a motion for summary judgment, on the ground that there is no triable issue of material fact, the court is required, by written or oral order, to specify the reasons for its determination. The order must specifically refer to the evidence proffered in support of, and if applicable in opposition to, the motion that indicates that no triable issue exists [Code Civ. Proc. 473c(g); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f)(2) (motion for summary adjudication to proceed in all procedural respects as a motion for summary judgment); see § 537.37[2]].

§ 537.85 Order Denying Motion for Summary Judgment and/or Summary Adjudication of Cause of Action, Defense, Claim for Punitive Damages, or Issue of Duty [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c]

[1] FORM Order Denying Motion for Summary Judgment and/or Summary Adjudication of Cause of Action, Defense, Claim for Punitive Damages, or Issue of Duty [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	ORDER

The motion of _____ [specify moving party, e.g., plaintiff] for an order granting _____ [summary judgment or summary adjudication or summary judgment or, in the alternative, summary adjudication] was heard by the court on _____ [date]. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____ [name]; defendant appeared by counsel _____ [name].

On consideration of all the evidence set forth in the papers submitted, and the inferences reasonably deducible therefrom, except that to which objection has been sustained, the Court determines that the motion should be denied for the reason(s) that:

[EITHER]

A triable controversy exists with respect to the following material fact(s), as indicated:

1. _____ [Specify all material fact(s) presenting a triable controversy and refer specifically to supporting and opposing evidence that indicates the existence of such controversy, e.g., That the defendant knew, or had reason to know, of defective condition of furnace when she rented the premises to plaintiff. (Declaration of _____ (name), pp 13:23-19:7; Declaration of _____ (name), pp 2:15-8:4)].

[2. Specify additional triable controversies in this and succeeding numbered paragraphs; if denying motion for summary adjudication of cause of action, defendant's duty, punitive damages claim, or affirmative defense in its entirety, specify the matter for which summary adjudication is sought (i.e., cause of action, affirmative defense, claim for punitive damages, or issue of duty) as to which the controversy exists.]

[OR]

The evidence submitted by _____ [specify moving party, e.g., plaintiff] in support of the motion is insufficient to show that he/she is entitled tojudgment as a matter of law, in that: _____ [specify insufficiency, e.g., The supporting Declaration of _____ (name) includes no admissible evidence, and the remaining Declaration of Plaintiff alone fails to establish that the defendant proximately caused the injury suffered by plaintiff].

[OR]

_____ [Specify moving party, e.g., Plaintiff] failed to comply with the requirement of a separate statement, and the Court exercises its discretion to deny the motion on this ground.

[OR]

It appears from the declaration(s) of _____ [name(s)], submitted in opposition to the motion, that facts essential to justify opposition may exist but could not, for good cause shown, be presented at the hearing. The Court exercises its discretion to deny the motion on this ground.

[OR]

_____ [Specify any other reasons for the determination, e.g., One of the material facts contended to be undisputed by _____ (specify moving party, e.g., plaintiff) is the negligent conduct of defendant estate's decedent, and the only evidence of this fact is stated in the declaration of plaintiff, the sole remaining witness to that fact. The Court exercises its discretion to deny the motion on this ground.

[CONTINUE]

Accordingly,

IT IS ORDERED that the motion of _____ [specify moving party, e.g., plaintiff] for an order granting _____ [summary judgment or summary adjudication or summary judgment or, in the alternative, summary adjudication] be denied.

[OPTIONAL]

The Court further determines that the _____ [declaration(s) or affidavit(s)] of _____ [name(s)] presented by _____ [specify moving party, e.g., plaintiff] _____ was/were presented _____ [in bad faith or solely for the purpose of delay].

Accordingly,

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that _____ [specify moving party, e.g., plaintiff] pay _____ [specify opposing party, e.g., defendant] the sum of $ _____ as the amount of reasonable expenses incurred as a result.
Dated:_____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the _____ Court

[2] Use of Form

The form of proposed order in [1], above, is for use by the party opposing summary judgment or summary adjudication if the motion is denied. Local rules should be consulted, insofar as some courts require the prevailing party to submit a proposed order, while others may not [see, e.g., San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 8.11]. It is recommended that opposing counsel prepare and submit a proposed order of denial in any case, to assist the court in stating the reasons for its decision on denial of a motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication, as required under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(g) [see Weir and Brown, Braces for the Old Tiger's New Teeth, 4(7) Calif. Law. 20, 22 (1984)]. Optional language is included for use when the court, on its own or the opposing party's motion, imposes sanctions for filing a declaration in bad faith [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(j)]. For further discussion of sanctions, including additional statutory grounds to recover costs, fees, and expenses, see § 537.38[1].

[3] Statement of Grounds for Denial

On the denial of a motion for summary judgment on the ground that there is a triable issue with respect to one or more material facts, the court is required to state each issue determined to be triable and refer specifically to the evidence supporting and opposing the motion that indicates the existence of the controversy [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(g); see § 537.37[1], above; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f)(2) (motion for summary adjudication shall proceed in all procedural respects as a motion for summary judgment)].

The court must also state its reasons for any other determination [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(g)]. Thus, this form includes alternate language suggesting other, less common grounds for denial. For example, the court has discretion to deny a motion not supported by the required separate statement of undisputed facts [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)(1)]. It may also deny a motion when the only proof of a material fact is the declaration of a sole witness, or an affirmation by a person as to his or her own mental state [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(e)]. A third discretionary ground for denial is a showing that facts justifying opposition may exist but cannot be then presented [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(h)]. While a mere continuance is the more likely result in this case, denial may be necessary, for example, when the continued date is less than thirty days before the date set for trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a)]. Another suggested ground for denial is simply the moving party's failure to meet his or her burden of proof [see Vesely v. Sager (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 153, 170, 95 Cal. Rptr. 623, 486 P.2d 151 , disapproved on other grounds in Strang v. Cabrol (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 720, 724, 209 Cal. Rptr. 347, 691 P.2d 1013]. For further discussion concerning the various grounds for denial, see § 537.34[1] et seq.

[4] Notice of Order

The prevailing party must serve notice of the order on all other parties, unless the court orders otherwise or notice is waived by all parties in open court and is entered in the minutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 1019.5(a)]. For further discussion and forms of such notice and proof of service, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders , and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[5] Review

An order denying a motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication of issues is not appealable, but may be reviewed by petition for writ of mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(m)(l)]. A motion for reconsideration is also available in the trial court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1008]. For further discussion, see § 537.39 et seq.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, outlines the required format for written objections to the moving or opposing party's evidence in support of or in opposition to a motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication. Effective January 1, 2007, written objections to evidence must follow one of the above formats and must [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1354(b)]:

- Identify the name of the document in which the specific material objected to is located;
- State the exhibit, title, page, and line number of the material objected to;
- Quote or set forth the objectionable statement or material; and
- State the grounds for each objection to that statement or material.

The objections also must be numbered consecutively [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1354(b)]. A party submitting written objections to evidence must submit with the objections a proposed order. For additional discussion of the format requirements for written evidentiary objections, see § 537.25[4][b]. For a form of proposed order on written objections, see § 537.87.

[3] Time for Filing and Service

Unless otherwise excused by the court on a showing of good cause, all written objections to evidence in support of or in opposition to a motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication must be and filed at the same time as the objecting party's opposition or reply papers are served and filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1354(a)].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use when a party submits written objections to another party's evidence. Effective January 1, 2007, a party submitting written objections to evidence must submit with the objections a proposed order following one of the above formats [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1354(c)]. The ordermust include places for the court to indicate whether it has sustained or overruled each objection and it must include a place for the judge's signature.

For additional discussion of the format requirements for proposed orders on evidentiary objections, see § 537.25[4][d]. For a form of written objections, see § 537.86.

Chapter 538 SURETYSHIP, BONDS, AND UNDERTAKINGS

PART I. SCOPE

47-538 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 538.01

§ 538.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses suretyship contracts generally, addressing the rights and duties of all three parties involved [see § 538.10 et seq.]. It includes forms to be used by the surety to provide notices to the creditor revoking a continuing guaranty [see § 538.160] and demanding that the creditor proceed against the principal [see § 538.161]. A form of notice by the surety to the principal of an action of the principal's obligation is also included [see § 538.172]. In addition, this chapter includes forms of complaints for the surety to compel performance or reimbursement by the principal [see §§ 538.162 and 538.163] and to seek contribution from cosureties [see § 538.165]. Also included are forms of notice of motion, supporting declaration, and order to determine the liability of a joint judgment debtor [see §§ 538.166 -538.168]. This chapter also contains forms of complaints against the surety by the creditor on a continuing guaranty [see § 538.169] and on a guaranty of collectibility [see § 538.170], and allegations for use in a complaint based on a guaranty of accounts receivable [see § 538.171]. In addition, there are forms to be used by the surety as affirmative defenses based on material alteration of the principal obligation [see §§ 538.173, 538.174], failure to proceed against principal on demand [see § 538.175], and nonreliance on the guaranty [see § 538.176].

For discussions and forms relating to surety insurance, see Ch. 308, Insurance . For discussion, procedures, and forms relating to indemnity based on express agreements and contribution, see Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution . For discussion and forms concerning contractors and their sureties, see Ch. 104, Building Contracts . For discussion of promissory notes and endorsements and accommodation parties to them, see Ch. 385, Negotiable Instruments .

This chapter also discusses the procedural rules relating to executing and objecting to statutory bonds and undertakings, and to substituting sureties and releasing sureties, as well as to deposits in lieu of bond [see § 538.40 et seq.]. These rules are generally applicable to all statutory bonds and undertakings. Additional procedural requirements of statutes that provide for bonds or undertakings in particular proceedings are discussed in the chapters relating to those proceedings (see, e.g., Ch. 43, Appeal: Stay of Proceedings , Ch. 283, Guardianship and Conservatorship: Bonds , and Ch. 446, Probate: Bonds--Increase and Decrease During Administration).

This analysis includes the following forms:

- Statutory bond or undertaking [see § 538.190].

- Declaration of personal surety's qualifications [see § 538.191].

- Notice of motion objecting to the sufficiency of a bond or undertaking [see § 538.192] and supporting declaration [see § 538.193].

- Order determining the sufficiency of a bond or undertaking [see § 538.194].

- Notice of motion for order determining that a bond or undertaking has become insufficient or is excessive [see § 538.195], and supporting declaration [see § 538.196].

- Order to show cause why an order for a new, additional, or supplemental bond should not issue [see § 538.197], and order for a new, additional, or supplemental bond or reducing bond [see § 538.198].

- Application [see § 538.199] and notice of hearing on an application [see § 538.200] to release a surety from a bond.

- Application [see § 538.201] and notice of hearing on an application [see § 538.202] for an order substituting sureties.

- Orders for releasing and substituting sureties [§§ 538.203, 538.204].

- Notice of cancellation or withdrawal of surety from a bond [see § 538.205].

This chapter also deals with the enforcement of liability on statutory bonds [see § 538.80 et seq.]. It includes a notice of motion [see § 538.220] and order [see § 538.221] directing sale of bearer bonds or notes that were deposited in lieu of bond, and a notice of motion, supporting declaration, and judgment to enforce liability on a bond that was given in an action or proceeding [see §§ 538.222 -538.224]. It also includes forms of complaints and allegations to enforce the liability of a surety on an official bond [see § 538.225], on a fidelity bond [see §§ 538.226 and 538.227], on an executor's or administrator's bond [see §§ 538.228 -538.230], and on a bond given to support a preliminary injunction for damages that might be suffered by the person who was enjoined [see § 538.231]. It includes a complaint by a surety for declaratory relief against claimants on a statutory bond and against the principal's indemnitor [see § 538.232] and a form of cross complaint by a surety to compel an agency to exhaust security in an action on a licensee's bond [see § 538.233]. It also includes a declaration for an enforcement lien [see § 538.234].

Suretyship is governed by Civ. Code §§ 2787-2856. The statute of limitations for an action against a surety is contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 359.5. Code Civ. Proc. § 1050 allows an action by a surety to compel the principal to perform. The effect of a judgment against an officer or other person who has received a bond or covenant of indemnity against liablity for an act on the persons who executed a bond or covenant is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1055. The binding effect of a judgment against a surety on the principal is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1912. Procedures for requiring contribution from joint judgment debtors are contained in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 881-883. The rights and obligations of accommodation parties to negotiable instruments are governed by Com. Code § 3419 and, depending on whether the accommodation party signs as a maker or endorser, *Com. § 538.11 Definitions

[1] Surety and Guarantor Interchangeable

The terms "surety" and "guarantor" are used interchangeably in this part. Any former distinctions between the terms were abolished by the statute that now defines them [Morgan Creek Residential v. Kemp (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 675, 685, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 232 ; Wiener v. Van Winkle (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 774, 786, 78 Cal. Rptr. 761] . They are defined as one who promises to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another or who hypothecates property as security therefor [Civ. Code § 2787; but see Com. Code § 3419(d) (with respect to negotiable instruments, rights of "guarantor," who guarantees collection rather than payment, as different from those of ordinary accommodation party)].

[2] Surety, Creditor, and Principal

The tripartite relationship in suretyship involves parties known as "surety," "creditor," and "principal." The creditor is the one to whom the obligation is owed. The surety agrees to answer for the debt of the "principal" or "principal debtor" who is the person that owes the original debt [First National Insurance Co. v. Cam Painting, Inc. (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 1355, 1364-1365, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 808 ; Josephian v. Lion (1924) 66 Cal. App. 650, 661, 227 P. 204 ; cf. Com. Code § 3419(a) (negotiable instrument terminology: "accommodation party" and "party accommodated")].

Volume 47: Subrogation thru Telephone and Telegraph Communication-Chs. 536-546
Chapter 538 SURETYSHIP, BONDS, AND UNDERTAKINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Suretyship

47-538 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 538.12

§ 538.12 Nature of Suretyship

[1] In General

Suretyship contracts are collateral to the original contract binding the principal debtor and creditor and give rise to a separate and independent obligation [Palm Springs S. & S. Inc. v. Bering (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 177, 181, 28 Cal. Rptr. 526] . The suretyship relation arises when two persons are under an obligation to the same creditor, but one of them bears the ultimate burden of the obligation. The obligor ultimately responsible for the debt is the principal and the other is the surety. Whether one is the surety depends not on the relation with the creditor so much as his or her relation with the principal debtor. If asked to pay, the surety may bring an action against the principal for indemnification. The creditor views them both as primarily liable [Matthews v. Hinton (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 736, 740-741, 44 Cal. Rptr. 692] .

When a principal obligor purports to take on additional liability as guarantor, nothing is added to the primary obligation [Torrey Pines Bank v. Hoffman (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 308, 319-320, 282 Cal. Rptr. 354] . For example, when individual trustees purported to guarantee a note payable by the trust, the court found substantial identity between the individual guarantors and the debtor trust. There was in fact no guarantee, and the trustees were deemed primary obligors [Torrey Pines Bank v. Hoffman (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 308, 320-321, 282 Cal. Rptr. 354 (case decided prior to enactment of Prob. Code § 18000 and governed by prior case law under which trustees are personally liable on a contract unless the contract stipulated otherwise)]. The correct inquiry is whether the purported debtor is anything other than an instrumentality used by the purported guarantor and whether that instrumentality actually removed the individuals from their status as obligors under another name [Torrey Pines Bank v. Hoffman (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 308, 320, 282 Cal. Rptr. 354] .

[2] Guaranty of Promissory Note

A guarantor of a negotiable instrument is a type of accommodation party, defined as one who signs as maker, drawer, acceptor, or endorser for the benefit of another, although a guarantor may become one by signing an instrument that includes language indicating that the signer is acting as guarantor or surety. An accommodation party is obligated to pay the instrument in the capacity in which he or she signs [Com. Code § 3419(a)-(c)]. For further discussion and forms relating to accommodation parties to negotiable instruments, see Ch. 385, Negotiable Instruments .

If the guarantor's signature on a negotiable instrument is accompanied by language indicating unambiguously that he or she is guaranteeing collection rather than payment of the obligation of another party to the instrument, the guarantor is obliged to pay the amount due on the instrument to a person entitled to enforce the instrument only if (1) execution of judgment against the principal has been returned unsatisfied, (2) the principal is insolvent or is in an insolvency proceeding, (3) the principal cannot be served with process, or (4) it is otherwise apparent that payment cannot be obtained from the principal [Com. Code § 3419(d)].

A guarantor or accommodation party who pays the instrument is entitled to reimbursement from the principal ("accommodated party") and is entitled to enforce the instrument against the principal [Com. Code § 3419(e)].

[3] Distinguished From Endorsement of Negotiable Instruments

Suretyships differ from endorsements of negotiable instruments. Endorsement is primarily a means of transferring or negotiating an instrument [see Com. Code §§ 3201(b), 3204, 3205(a), (b)]. If the maker or drawer does not pay the instrument when due, the endorser is liable to the person entitled to enforce the instrument [see Com. Code § 3415(a)]. Unlike sureties, endorsers must be given notice of dishonor (or notice must be waived or excused) before they are liable to pay the instrument [Com. Code §§ 3415(c), 3503(a)].

The obligation of one who endorses a negotiable instrument for purposes of becoming an accommodation party (surety) is the same as that of one who endorses the instrument simply to transfer or negotiate it [Com. Code § 3419(b)]. For further discussion and forms relating to negotiable instruments, see Ch. 385, Negotiable Instruments .

[4] Distinguished From Indemnity

California law recognizes a distinction between an agreement to indemnify and a guaranty. Indemnity is a contract by which one engages to save another from a legal consequence of the conduct of one of the parties, or of some other person [Civ. Code § 2772]. A surety or guarantor is one who promises to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another, or hypothecates property as security therefor [Civ. Code § 2787]. A guarantor makes a direct promise to perform the principal's obligation in the event that the principal fails to perform. An indemnitor does not make a direct promise to perform the principal's obligation; the indemnitor promises to reimburse the indemnitee for losses suffered or to hold the indemnitee harmless [Trust One Mortgage Corp. v. Invest America Mortgage Corp. (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1302, 1309, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 83] .

Another distinction is that the promise in an indemnity contract is an original and not a collateral undertaking, whereas a surety contract is secondary and can only exist if there is some principal liability to which it is collateral [Somers v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (1923) 191 Cal. 542, 547, 217 P. 746] . For further discussion and forms relating to indemnity, see Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution .

[5] Distinguished From Letter of Credit

A letter of credit [see Com. Code § 5103(a) (definition)] is not a form of suretyship obligation [Civ. Code § 2787]. Generally, a surety's liability for an obligation is secondary to, and derivative of, the liability of the principal for that obligation. By contrast, the liability of the issuer of a letter of credit to the letter's beneficiary is direct and independent of the underlying transaction between the beneficiary and the issuer's customer [see Western Security Bank v. Superior Court (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 232, 246-247, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 243, 933 P. 2d 507 ; Morgan Creek Residential v. Kemp (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 675, 685-686, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 232 ; DBJJJ, Inc. v. National City Bank (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 530, 534, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 904] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Suretyship

47-538 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 538.13

§ 538.13 Types of Suretyship Obligation

[1] Unconditional

A suretyship obligation is to be deemed unconditional unless its terms import some condition precedent to the liability of the surety [Civ. Code § 2806]. If there is nothing in the terms of the guaranty or in the facts and circumstances of the case to import any condition precedent to the liability of the surety, the surety's obligations are unconditional [Cooke v. Mesmer (1912) 164 Cal. 332, 342, 128 P. 917] . In an unconditional suretyship, the surety's liability is coextensive with that of the principal [Standard Oil Co. v. Houser (1950) 101 Cal. App. 2d 480, 488, 225 P.2d 539] .

[2] Conditional

Any matter can be made a condition precedent to the surety's liability [see Schwab v. Bridge (1915) 27 Cal. App. 204, 206-207, 149 P. 603] . For example, a guaranty for payment "provided that the amount may be due and presented" by a specified date is a conditional guaranty [Schwab v. Bridge (1915) 27 Cal. App. 204, 205, 207, 149 P. 603] .

Conditions precedent are not favored by the law and are strictly construed against one seeking to rely on them. If the terms employed in the contract are clear and certain, however, and there is nothing to show a contrary intention, the liability of a surety cannot be extended by implication beyond the terms of the contract [Schwab v. Bridge (1915) 27 Cal. App. 204, 207, 149 P. 603] .

Although conditions precedent will not be implied, when they are present, they are adhered to strictly. Any conditions must be precisely fulfilled without regard to whether or not prejudice results. Thus, a surety who was entitled by contract to immediate notice of any act or omission that might cause liability was not liable when notice was not received for five weeks [Union Indemnity Co. v. Lang (9th Cir. 1934) 71 F.2d 901, 906] .

[3] Limited

The suretyship contract defines the obligation of the surety. A surety may limit the amount for which he or she will be liable, or the time for which the guaranty will run, or may limit liability to a single transaction between the principal debtor and the creditor, as distinguished from a continuing guaranty [Berg Metals Corp. v. Wilson (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 559, 569, 339 P.2d 869] . The limitations in the contract will be upheld. For example, a clause in which the surety agreed to pay an amount not exceeding $75,000 was interpreted by the court to mean that the liability of the surety was limited to that amount under any circumstance [Bank of America National Trust and Savings Ass'n v. Sage (1936) 13 Cal. App. 2d 171, 175, 56 P.2d 565] .

A continuing guaranty may be limited as to the amount guaranteed [Berg Metals Corp. v. Wilson (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 559, 569-570, 339 P.2d 869 ; see also § 538.13[5][b]].

[4] Guaranty of Collectibility

A guaranty to the effect that an obligation is good or collectible imports that the debtor is solvent and that the demand is collectible by the usual legal proceedings [Civ. Code § 2800]. This type of guaranty is distinct because the liability of the surety does not arise at the same time as that of the principal debtor. A guarantor of collectibility does not become liable until after the creditor, by the use of due and reasonable diligence, has become unable to collect the debt from the principal debtor [Ohio Electric Car Co. v. LeSage (1920) 182 Cal. 450, 455, 188 P. 982 ; see § 538.143[2][c]].

[5] Continuing

[a] Defined

A guaranty relating to a future liability of the principal under successive transactions that either continue his or her liability or from time to time renew it after it has been satisfied is a continuing guaranty [Civ. Code § 2814]. A continuing guaranty contemplates a succession of liabilities for which, as they accrue, the guarantor becomes liable. It is prospective in operation and is generally intended to provide security in respect to future transactions, within certain limits [Goldman v. Dangerfield (1929) 101 Cal. App. 67, 75, 281 P. 400] .

Whether or not a guaranty is continuing is determined from the surrounding circumstances. When the suretyship agreement provides a standing credit to the principal, to be used either indefinitely or for a given period, it is deemed a continuing guaranty. Unless the terms fairly imply that the guarantor's liability is to be limited, the guaranty is seen as continuing until it is revoked. A continuing guaranty need not be a guaranty of a specific contract, but can arise when the surety guarantees all the principal's charges incurred through a succession of transactions with the creditor [Standard Oil Co. v. Houser (1950) 101 Cal. App. 2d 480, 487, 225 P.2d 539] . For example, when the principals of a corporation executed personal guarantees of payment on the corporation's commercial lease, the guaranty agreements were continuing guaranties of performance under the lease that also applied to lease amendments [Central Building, LLC v. Cooper (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1053, 1055, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 212] .

[b] Unconditional or Limited

Civ. Code § 2814 contains no restriction concerning the conditional or unconditional nature of a continuing guaranty. A continuing guaranty for all the charges made by the principal without regard to the terms of the sales, is a continuing unconditional guaranty [see Standard Oil Co. v. Houser (1950) 101 Cal. App. 2d 480, 487-488, 225 P.2d 539 ; see also Central Building, LLC v. Cooper (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1053, 1059-1060, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 212 (principals' personal guarantees of payment on corporation's commercial lease held to be continuing guaranties that applied to lease amendments in absence of limiting language in agreements)].

A continuing guaranty subject to a dollar limitation is not conditional so as to limit the amount of credit to be given to the debtor and to relieve the surety of liability in the event the limit is exceeded. Rather, it limits only the amount of the surety's liability, and the surety may still be liable for that amount even though the principal debtor has at various times contracted and paid debts equal to or greater than the amount of the guaranty [Berg Metals Corp. v. Wilson (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 559, 569-571, 339 P.2d 869] .

[c] Revocation by Surety

A continuing guaranty may be revoked at any time by the guarantor, in respect to future transactions, unless there is a continuing consideration as to such transactions that he or she does not renounce [Civ. Code § 2815; see § 538.160]. The guarantor cannot revoke the guaranty once it has been acted on and benefited the principal [Nielsen v. Davidson (1924) 66 Cal. App. 442, 444, 226 P. 835] . A continuing guaranty does not cover renewals, after revocation, of obligations that were covered by the guaranty at the time of revocation [Southern Cal. First Nat. Bank v. Olsen (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 234, 240, 116 Cal. Rptr. 4] .

The legislative intent implicitly underlying Civ. Code § 2815 was to protect guarantors from seemingly unending continuing guarantees of loans to debtors that were frequently beyond the control of the guarantors. Civ. Code § 2815 allows a guarantor to effectively limit his or her losses by "freezing" his or her liability for only those advances made up to the time of the revocation. Thus, a guarantor who learns that the debtor's financial condition has drastically changed for the worse, can exercise the right to revoke his or her continuing guaranty under Civ. Code § 2815 [Pearl v. General Motors Acceptance Corp. (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1023, 1030, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 805] .

A guarantor may waive the protections of Civ. Code § 2815, but the waiver must be specific and clear, so that a guarantor knows on execution of the document that he or she will not have any right to revoke the guaranty as to any future advances, and thus, that the guarantor may essentially have no control over his or her ultimate responsibility for the debtor's borrowings [Pearl v. General Motors Acceptance Corp. (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1023, 1031, 1032, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 805] . The language that Pearl held insufficient to waive the guarantor's right of revocation was in the pledge agreement that secured the guaranty and stated that the agreement "shall remain in full force and effect until all obligations owing to Pledgee by Borrowers have been satisfied" and that the agreement would terminate on satisfaction of all such obligations. The court found the quoted language unclear as to whether it was intended to preclude other means of termination or revocation of the agreement. It could mean that the pledge (and guaranty) would remain effective as to all advances made to the borrower prior to any termination under Civ. Code § 2815 [Pearl v. General Motors Acceptance Corp. (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1023, 1032, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 805] .

§ 538.14 Creation of Suretyship

[1] By Contract

Unless notice of acceptance is expressly required, an offer to become a surety may be accepted by acting on it or by acceptance on other consideration. An unconditional suretyship obligation is binding on the surety without notice of acceptance [Civ. Code § 2795]. The creation of a suretyship does not require the knowledge or consent of the principal debtor [Civ. Code § 2788].

[2] Consideration

The requirement of consideration can be satisfied in either of two ways. If a suretyship is created at the same time as the original obligation or with the acceptance of the creditor and forms a part of the consideration of the original obligation, no separate consideration is needed. In all other suretyships, there must be a consideration distinct from that of the original contract [Civ. Code § 2792].

[3] Statute of Frauds

Civ. Code § 2794 lists cases in which the promise to answer for the obligation of another is deemed an original obligation and does not require a writing. All other suretyship obligations must be in writing and signed by the surety. Although suretyships require consideration, the writing need not express the consideration [Civ. Code §§ 1624(a)(2), 2793; see Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds].

§ 538.15 Consumer Contract Awareness Act of 1990

[1] Guarantor Must Be Provided With Copy of Guaranty

Except as otherwise provided in Civ. Code § 1799.206(b) (multiple guarantors), a seller must deliver a copy of a consumer contract guaranty to the guarantor at the time the consumer contract guaranty is signed by the guarantor at the seller's place of business. If the consumer contract guaranty is not signed by the guarantor at the seller's place of business and the seller has not provided a copy of the consumer contract guaranty for the guarantor that the guarantor is able to keep, the seller must mail or deliver a copy of the consumer contract guaranty to the guarantor within 10 calendar days after the seller receives the signed consumer contract guaranty. In any case, the copy of the contract provided to the guarantor must not contain any blank spaces to be completed after the guarantor signs the guaranty, must contain the signature of the seller if it provides for such signature, and may also contain the signature of the guarantor [Civ. Code § 1799.206(a); see also Civ. Code § 1799.201(a), (b), (g) (defining "consumer," "consumer contract," and "guarantor")].

If more than one guarantor has signed the consumer contract guaranty, the seller may comply with Civ. Code § 1799.206(a) by mailing or delivering the copy to any one of the guarantors who reside at the same address. A copy must also be mailed or delivered to any other guarantor who has signed the consumer contract guaranty and who does not reside at the same address [Civ. Code § 1799.206(b)].

[2] Liability; Evidence for Rescission

A seller who fails to comply with Civ. Code § 1799.206 is liable to the guarantor for any actual damages suffered by the guarantor as a result of that failure. This remedy is nonexclusive and is in addition to any other remedies or penalties available under other California laws [Civ. Code § 1799.206(c)]. Failure to comply with Civ. Code § 1799.206 does not create a new basis for rescission, but is admissible to establish a basis for the rescission of the consumer contract guaranty otherwise authorized by law [Civ. Code § 1799.206(d)].

[3] Definitions

A "consumer contract guaranty" within the meaning of the Consumer Contract Awareness Act of 1990 is a writing prepared by the seller and signed, or to be signed, by a guarantor that guarantees the obligation of a natural person under a consumer contract [Civ. Code § 1799.201(c); see also Civ. Code § 1799.201(a), (h) (defining "consumer" and "seller")].

A "consumer contract" within the meaning of the Act is a writing prepared by a seller and, except as provided in Civ. Code § 1799.202(c) (signature cards and safe deposit or safekeeping agreements), signed, or to be signed, by a consumer that provides (1) for the sale or lease of goods or services that are purchased or leased primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, or (2) for extension of credit, the proceeds of which are used primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, except that a consumer credit application is not considered a consumer contract for purposes of this provision [Civ. Code § 1799.201(b)].

"Services" within the meaning of the Act means work, labor, and services, including depository services and other banking services [Civ. Code § 1799.201(i)].

§ 538.16 Interpretation of Suretyship Contracts

[1] In General

In interpreting the terms of a contract of suretyship, the same rules are to be observed as in the case of other contracts. Except as provided in Civ. Code § 2794 (promises to answer for obligation of another that are deemed original obligations of promisor), the position of a surety to whom consideration moves is the same as that of one who is gratuitous [Civ. Code § 2837]. For a discussion of Civ. Code § 2794, see Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds .

If the terms of the assumption of liability are not settled, it will be implied that the surety has assumed no greater risk than other sureties in similar contracts in the same locale [Civ. Code § 2799; see Schmitt v. Insurance Co. of North America (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 245, 255-262, 281 Cal. Rptr. 261 (differentiating insurance contract and suretyship agreement in context of statutory bond)].

[2] "Principal" May Prove to Be Surety

One who appears to be a principal, whether by the terms of a written instrument or otherwise, may show that he or she is in fact a surety, except as against persons who have acted on the faith of his or her apparent character of principal [Civ. Code § 2832; see Caito v. United California Bank (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 694, 701, 144 Cal. Rptr. 751, 576 P.2d 466 ; Quality Wash Group V LTD. v. Hallak (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1687, 1700-1701, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 592] . It is not necessary for the surety to show that the creditor accepted him or her as surety [Civ. Code § 2832]. For example, property owners who executed a deed of trust in favor of a developer's construction lender sufficiently pleaded that they were sureties rather than principal obligors when their allegations included the fact that the bank's officer considered them third parties, the construction loan agreement and note were signed by the developer alone, and the deed of trust identified the secured obligation as that of the developer and expressly provided that the owners had no personal liability for debt [Mead v. Sanwa Bank California (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 561, 570-572, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 625 (declining to follow Matthews v. Hinton (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 736, 44 Cal. Rptr. 692 due to Matthews reliance on cases abrogated by 1939 legislation)]. This doctrine has been applied in cases in which there was evidence that, to the knowledge of the creditor, the third party (claimed to be the principal in fact) had agreed with the maker of the promissory note to pay the obligation to the creditor [Beverly Hills Nat. Bank v. Glynn (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 859,

869, 73 Cal. Rptr. 808] .

Even though the apparent principal may establish an equitable lien against the actual principal, however, a purchaser or encumbrance in good faith for value and without actual or constructive notice will take priority over such an undisclosed lien [see Caito v. United California Bank (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 694, 701-702, 144 Cal. Rptr. 751, 576 P.2d 466] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Suretyship

47-538 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 538.17

§ 538.17 Liability of Surety

[1] When Liability Arises

[a] Unconditional Obligation

A surety who has assumed liability for payment or performance is liable to the creditor immediately on the default of the principal and without demand or notice [Civ. Code § 2807; but see Com. Code §§ 3415(c), 3503(a) (contra rule for accommodation endorser of negotiable instrument)]. Thus, if the guaranty is absolute and unconditional, the liability of the guarantor is fixed when the principal obligation matures. It is not predicated on exhaustion by the creditor of his or her remedies against the debtor or on the exhaustion of other security for the debt; it is immaterial whether the debtor can or cannot pay the debt [Bank of America National Trust & Savings Assn. (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d, 1, 7, 81 Cal. App. 2d 1, 183 P.2d 385] . Notice of the default is not a condition precedent to the liability of the surety, and the bringing of an action against the surety, with its attendant process, consititutes sufficient notice of the default [Bloom v. Bender (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 793, 799-800, 313 P.2d 568] . However, notice may be made a condition precedent to a surety's liability [see Schwab v. Bridge (1915) 27 Cal. App. 204, 206-207, 149 P. 603 (guaranty for payment "provided that the amount may be due and presented" by a specified date is a conditional guaranty)]. Otherwise, Civ. Code § 2807 (and Civ. Code § 2808) places the primary burden on the surety to discover whether a default has occurred [Baralat Development Co. v. Lichter (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 933, 936, 236 Cal. Rptr. 701] .

[b] Conditional Obligation

When one assumes liability as surety on a conditional obligation, his or her liability is commensurate with that of the principal [Civ. Code § 2808; see, e.g., First National Insurance Co. v. Cam Painting, Inc. (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 1355, 1367, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 808 (surety liable for fees for which principal would have been liable); National Technical Systems v. Superior Court (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 415, 423-424, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 465 (finding that surety's liability on stop notice release bond extended to attorney fees to which subcontractor was entitled under subcontract)].

A surety on a conditional obligation is not entitled to notice of the principal's default unless the surety is unable, through reasonable diligence, to acquire information of the default and the creditor has actual notice thereof [Civ. Code § 2808].

[c] Principal's Obligation on Installment Plan

If the payment guaranteed is to be paid on an installment plan, the surety's liability for each monthly payment becomes fixed and unconditional as each payment becomes due. For example, a surety of payment of alimony and child support obligations became liable as each payment became due, without regard to the creditor's remedies against the principal debtor [Glickman v. Collins (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 852, 862, 120 Cal. Rptr. 76] .

[d] Guaranty of Collectibility

A guaranty to the effect that an obligation is good or is collectible imports that the debtor is solvent and that the demand is collectible by the usual legal proceedings, if taken with reasonable diligence [Civ. Code § 2800]. A guaranty of collectibility is unlike other suretyships because it requires that the creditor must first proceed against the principal and provide notice to the surety. It is equivalent to a guaranty that the obligation is collectible by due course of law, and the surety is bound only on condition that the creditor uses due diligence to collect the debt from the principal debtor and gives the surety notice of the principal's default [see Citizens' Nat'l Trust & Sav. Bank v. Seaboard Surety Corp. (1935) 4 Cal. App. 2d 766, 768-769, 41 P.2d 956 ; cf. Com. Code § 3419(d) (guaranty of collection of negotiable instrument)].

A guaranty that an obligation is good or collectible is not discharged by failure to proceed against the principal debt or any collateral security for its payment, however, if no part of the debt could have been collected by these means [Civ. Code § 2801; see Com. Code § 3419(d)(4) (guaranty of collection of negotiable instrument)]. The removal of the principal from California, leaving no property in the state from which the obligation may be satisfied, is equivalent to the insolvency of the principal in its effect on the rights and obligations of the guarantor [Civ. Code § 2802; cf. Com. Code § 3419(d)(1), (3) (guaranty of collection of negotiable instrument)]. Thus, if the usual legal proceedings are not taken, the surety is discharged unless no part of the debt could have been collected thereby or unless the principal debtor has moved from the state leaving no property therein from which the obligation may be satisfied [Ohio Electric Car Co. v. LeSage (1920) 182 Cal. 450, 454, 188 P. 982] . For a complaint by a creditor against a surety on a guaranty of collectibility, see § 538.170.

[2] Extent of Surety's Obligation

[a] Determined by Contract

The surety will be held liable on the terms of the surety contract, and not the principal contract. The courts cannot impose on the sureties another or different contract from that which the parties made [De Luca v. Budke (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 565, 568, 292 P.2d 298] . Although the express terms of the surety contract control, they are tempered by the rules of contract law, which will be applied in construing the suretyship agreement [Southern Cal. First Nat. Bank v. Olsen (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 234, 241, 116 Cal. Rptr. 4] . However, if the surety so elects and is permitted, either by the contract itself or by permission of the creditor, to step into the place of the principal and perform on the contract after breach by the principal, the surety will be subject to the principal's liabilities [Caron v. Andrew (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 402, 411, 284 P.2d 544] . For complaints and allegations for use by the creditor against the surety, see §§ 538.169 -538.171. The obligation of a surety must be neither larger in amount nor in other respects more burdensome than that of the principal; if, in its terms, it exceeds it, it is reducible in proportion to the principal obligation [Civ. Code § 2809]. Because the liability of the surety is commensurate with that of the principal, if the principal is not liable on the obligation, neither is the surety [U. S. Leasing Corp. v. DuPont (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 275, 290, 70 Cal. Rptr. 393, 444 P.2d 65 (surety that guaranteed lessee's performance under equipment lease held not liable for lessor's losses in buying equipment pursuant to lease commitment letter because principal's liability under the lease itself never accrued)].

A surety contract is not a contract of indemnity (or a liability insurance policy), since the undertaking of a contract of indemnity against loss is not to answer for the debt, default, or misconduct of another, as is the undertaking of a surety contract, but rather to make good the loss resulting to the indemnitee from that debt. The two types of contracts are conceptually and legally distinct [Washington International Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 981, 989, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 282 ; Airlines Reporting v. U.S. Fidelity (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1458, 1463-1465, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 563] .

[b] Attorney's Fees and Costs as Obligations

Attorneys' fees are not recoverable as costs, damages, or otherwise unless there is express statutory or contractual authority for them [Ralston-Purina Co. v. Carter (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 372, 379, 26 Cal. Rptr. 690] . A provision in a guaranty calling for the surety to pay reasonable attorney's fees and all other costs and expenses incurred in the enforcement of the guaranty will be enforced [Guild Wineries & Distilleries v. Land Dynamics (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 966, 979, 163 Cal. Rptr. 348] . A surety cannot be held liable for attorney's fees, however, on the basis of an attorney's fees clause contained in an agreement that is ancillary to the contract that is guaranteed [see Chinn v. Penn (1918) 179 Cal. 153, 155-156, 175 P. 687 ; Ralston-Purina Co. v. Carter (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 372, 379-380, 26 Cal. Rptr. 690] . For example, a guaranty of a promissory note cannot be extended by implication to cover an obligation for attorney's fees that is contained only in the mortgage that secures the note [Chinn v. Penn (1918) 179 Cal. 153, 155-156, 175 P. 687 ; but cf. McConnell v. Herbert (1934) 2 Cal. 2d 66, 70-71, 38 P.2d 781 (finding that guaranty was made in relation to both note and deed of trust)]. Furthermore, a surety cannot be liable for an award of attorney's fees in addition to the fixed penal sum of its bond unless the contract provision in the undertaking specifically so provides [Lawrence Tractor Co., Inc. v. Carlisle Ins. Co. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 949, 953-954, 249 Cal. Rptr. 150] .

[c] Interest as Obligation

A surety may be held liable for interest, even if it increases the surety's total liability to an amount in excess of the bond [Burns v. Massachusetts etc. Ins. Co. (1944) 62 Cal. App. 2d 972, 975, 146 P.2d 29] . A fundamental distinction is made, however, in the computation of interest when the total amount will exceed the amount of the bond. For interest that does not bring the total liability beyond the penalty of the bond, the surety is liable under the bond obligation for the principal's debt. In that case, the interest runs the same as it does against the principal, usually from the date the principal violates the obligation that the surety is securing [Burns v. Massachusetts etc. Ins. Co. (1944) 62 Cal. App. 2d 972, 975, 146 P.2d 29] . For interest in excess of the penalty of the bond, the surety is liable only for its own default and not for the default of the principal. Thus, in that case, the surety may be liable for the full amount of the bond plus interest from the time performance became due from the surety itself, as damages for its own failure to pay the penalty when payment was due [Burns v. Massachusetts etc. Ins. Co. (1944) 62 Cal. App. 2d 972, 975-976, 146 P.2d 29] .

[d] Liability for Deficiency After Nonjudicial Foreclosure of Security Interest in Debtor's Real Property

If the creditor first resorts to nonjudicial foreclosure of a security interest in the debtor's real property, then ordinarily the creditor is estopped from suing the surety to recover a deficiency [Union Bank v. Gradsky (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 40, 46-47, 71 Cal. Rptr. 64 ; see § 538.21[4]]. However, the surety may explicitly waive, or could be found to have waived, this estoppel defense against an action by the creditor to recover a deficiency [Union Bank v. Gradsky (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 40, 48, 71 Cal. Rptr. 64].

When the surety can be liable for a deficiency after nonjudicial foreclosure of a security interest in the debtor's real property, California's antideficiency statutes [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 580a et seq., 726] do not protect the surety. Those statutes are concerned solely with actions for recovery of deficiency judgments on the principal obligation [Bank of Am. v. Hunter (1937) 8 Cal. 2d 592, 598, 67 P.2d 99 ; Mariners Sav. Loan Assn. v. Neil (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 232, 234, 99 Cal. Rptr. 238], and have no application in an action against a surety [Talbott v. Hustwit (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 148, 151-152, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 703 (surety who provided loan guaranty could not complain when, in lender's suit against surety for deficiency after lender's nonjudicial foreclosure sale of debtor's real property collateral, trial court refused to apply Code Civ. Proc. § 580a for surety's benefit)].

[3] Security Held by Surety

A creditor is entitled to the benefit of everything that a surety has received from the debtor by way of security for the performance of the obligation and may, on the maturity of the obligation, compel the application of such security to its satisfaction [Civ. Code § 2854].

[4] Effect of Disability of Principal

A surety is liable, notwithstanding any mere personal disability of the principal, even though the disability is such as to make the contract void against the principal. The surety is not liable if for any other reason there is no liability on the part of the principal at the time of the execution of the contract or if the liability of the principal thereafter ceases, unless the surety has assumed liability with knowledge of the existence of the defense [Civ. Code § 2810; see, e.g., WRI Opportunity Loans II, LLC v. Cooper (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 525, 542-544, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 205 (insofar as guaranteed debt for interest is unenforceable on ground of usury, guarantor's contract cannot be construed or enforced so as to waive guarantor's right to raise that defense, since promise to pay usurious interest is illegal and therefore cannot be enforced on any theory)].

To avoid double recovery by the creditor, Civ. Code § 2810 further provides that, if the principal is not liable because of mere personal disability, recovery back by the creditor of any res that formed all or part of the consideration for the contract shall have the effect on the liability of the surety that is attributed to the recovery back of such a res under the law of sales generally.

[5] Effect of Discharge of Principal by Operation of Law

A surety is not exonerated by the discharge of his or her principal by operation of law, without the intervention or omission of the creditor [Civ. Code § 2825]. The expiration of the statute of limitations on the principal's obligation, however, may also exonerate the surety [see Code Civ. Proc. § 359.5; see also § 538.19[5]].

[6] Effect of Delay by Creditor

Mere delay by the creditor to proceed against the principal, or to enforce any other remedy, does not exonerate a surety [Civ. Code § 2823]. For example, under Civ. Code § 2823, a creditor holding a note with an optional acceleration clause is not required to bring an action to have the entire amount declared due, because forbearance alone does not release a surety [Oleson v. Tellson (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 671, 674, 98 Cal. Rptr. 668] .

[7] Effect of Indemnification by Principal

A surety who has been indemnified by the principal is liable to the creditor to the extent of the indemnity, notwithstanding that the creditor, without the assent of the surety, may have modified the contract or released the principal [Civ. Code § 2824].

Civ. Code § 2819, relating to exoneration of the surety by modification of the principal obligation, also provides that the surety is not exonerated to the extent that the surety has been indemnified by the principal. In construing Civ. Code § 2819, a federal court has held that, for the surety to be indemnified and thus still bound after a modification, the surety must have received the indemnified amount, physical collateral, or a lien on property [Texaco Refining & Marketing v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. (9th Cir. 1990) 895 F.2d 637, 640] . A mere promise that the principal will indemnify the surety is not sufficient. That promise is already imposed by law by Civ. Code § 2847 [see § 538.163]. Any other interpretation would create an exception that swallows the rule and thus would make every suretyship relation one in which the surety was indemnified [Texaco Refining & Marketing v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. (9th Cir. 1990) 895 F.2d 637, 640] .

§ 538.18 Creditor's Judgment Against Principal Alone Is Not Conclusive Against Surety

Code Civ. Proc. § 1912 articulates the way in which the principal on a suretyship contract may be bound by a judgment against the surety; it says nothing about binding the surety when the principal has alone been sued on the contract for the faithful performance of which the surety has executed and given the bond. This is due to the intrinsic characteristic of a suretyship undertaking. The surety is bound only by the terms of the contract and is entitled to stand on the letter of the undertaking [Mahana v. Alexander (1927) 88 Cal. App. 111, 119-123, 263 P. 260] . A judgment against the principal is not conclusive in a separate action against the surety [Kane v. Mendenhall (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 749, 751, 56 P.2d 498 ; see National Technical Systems v. Superior Court (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 415, 421-422, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 465 (concluding that surety was not bound by judgment subcontractor obtained against general contractor)].

Similarly, if the principal and the surety are sued in the same action and the principal allows a default judgment to be entered against it, the surety still has the opportunity to be heard in defense, at least when the particular terms of the undertaking do not bind the surety to any judgment entered against the principal or permit the principal to conduct the defense [All Bay Mill & Lumber Co. v. Surety Co. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 11, 17-18, 255 Cal. Rptr. 790] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Suretyship

47-538 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 538.19

§ 538.19 Termination of Surety's Liability

[1] Affirmative Defense

Termination of liability is an affirmative defense that must be pleaded by the surety [Standard Oil Co. v. Houser (1950) 101 Cal. App. 2d 480, 488, 225 P.2d 539 ; see §§ 538.173, 538.175, and 22 for affirmative defense allegations that the surety has been exonerated from liability].

[2] Change in Contract

A surety is exonerated, except as provided in Civ. Code § 2822(b) (discussed, under § 538.19[3]) and except insofar as he or she may be indemnified by the principal, if, by any act of the creditor, without the consent of the surety, the original obligation of the principal is altered in any respect or the remedies or rights of the creditor against the principal, in respect thereto, are in any way impaired or suspended [Civ. Code § 2819; see §§ 538.173, 538.175]. A change or minor alteration unrelated to the original obligation or the creditor's remedies or rights will not dictate exoneration; it is an alteration of the obligation or of the remedies that controls [Newhouse v. Getz (1935) 8 Cal. App. 2d 113, 114, 47 P.2d 306 ; see FM Conner v. Conner (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 646, 650-652, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 687 (nothing creditor did or failed to do in bankruptcy proceeding rose to level of prejudicing surety or exonerating surety on guarantee)]. Any alteration of these elements will exonerate the surety, even if they are to the surety's advantage [Ralston-Purina Co. v. Carter (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 372, 378, 26 Cal. Rptr. 690] . It follows that the surety need not be prejudiced by material changes in the principal's obligation to be exonerated [Texaco Refining & Marketing v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. (9th Cir. 1990) 895 F.2d 637, 639-640 (applying California law; relying on First Congregational Church of Christ v. Lowrey (1917) 175 Cal. 124, 126, 165 P. 440 ; distinguishing Roberts v. Security Trust & Sav. Bank (1925) 196 Cal. 557, 565, 238 P. 673 , as only applicable to guarantees of construction contracts that allow for modification or changes in the work as it progresses; and distinguishing United States v. Reliance Ins. Co. (9th Cir. 1986) 799 F.2d 1382, 1385 , as based not on California law but on federal common law)].

The surety is exonerated under Com. Code § 2819 by "cessation of the principal's liability" when some act of the creditor impairs or bars a remedy [see R.P. Richards, Inc. v. Chartered Construction Corporation (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 146, 154-155, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 425 (subcontractor's negotiated release of general contractor from claim for payment under bonded obligation and acceptance of unbonded obligation under settlement agreement, without surety's consent, fully extinguished general's bonded obligation to subcontractor which constituted impairment of subcontractor's rights and remedies against surety; under Com. Code § 2819, this had legal consequence of exonerating surety on bonded obligation)].

The surety is not exonerated by an alteration of the principal's original obligation or by the impairment or suspension of any of the creditor's rights or remedies against the principal, if the surety agrees to the alteration. The surety's consent may be given before, at the time of, or after the alteration [Bloom v. Bender (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 793, 801, 313 P.2d 568 ; State Bd. of Equalization v. Carleton (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1607, 1610-1611, 273 Cal. Rptr. 436] . The surety is not obligated to inform the creditor that it will not consent to a proposed modification of the principal obligation, nor can it be estopped from relying on its failure to consent to a modification unless the creditor reasonably relied on some act or misrepresentation by the surety [Texaco Refining & Marketing v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. (9th Cir. 1990) 895 F.2d 637, 640-641 (applying California law; surety specifically warned creditor not to rely on continued guarantee if proposed modification was executed)].

That a promise by a creditor is for any cause void or voidable at his or her option will not prevent it from altering the obligation or suspending or impairing the remedy within the meaning of Civ. Code § 2819 [Civ. Code § 2820].

Civ. Code §§ 2819 and 2820 must be read together. Decisions in California have followed the common law rule and held that an agreement to extend time does not exonerate a surety unless the extension is for a definite period. Thus, before an extension can be deemed a material alteration that, without a showing of detriment or prejudice, operates to discharge the surety as a matter of law, the agreement to extend time, though void or voidable at the option of the creditor, must be for a definite period [Wise v. Clapper (1968) 257 Cal. App. 2d 770, 775-776, 65 Cal. Rptr. 231] .

Rescission of an agreement altering the original obligation of a debtor or impairing the remedy of a creditor does not restore the liability of a surety who has been exonerated by the agreement [Civ. Code § 2821].

[3] Acceptance of Part Performance

The creditor's acceptance of anything in partial satisfaction of an obligation reduces the obligation of the surety in the same measure as that of the principal, but does not otherwise effect it [Civ. Code § 2822(a)].

Similarly, for purposes of Civ. Code §§ 2819 and 2822, if the creditor agrees to accept from the principal debtor a sum less than the balance owed on the original obligation, without the surety's prior consent and without any other change in the underlying agreement between the creditor and the principal debtor, the surety remains obligated for the lesser sum agreed on by the principal and the creditor [Civ. Code § 2822(b)]. Civ. Code § 2822(b), enacted as an urgency measure effective July 19, 1993, is declaratory of existing law [Stats. 1993, ch. 149, §§ 3, 4].

[4] Performance or Offer of Performance

Performance of the principal obligation, or an offer of such performance duly made as provided in the Civil Code, exonerates a surety [Civ. Code § 2839; see also Civ. Code §§ 1473-1505 (extinction of obligations by performance or offer of performance)]. The surety has the legal right to pay the debt and then proceed against the principal. Thus, if the creditor refuses a tender of money by the surety, the surety is exonerated from liability [O'Conor v. Morse (1896) 112 Cal. 31, 35-36, 44 P. 305] .

The Restatement of Security notes that the tender of performance can be by either the principal or the surety. However, if, at the time of the tender, the creditor reasonably believes that the surety is a principal, there is no discharge [Restatement of Security § 116]. The offer must be made to the creditor or to a person authorized by the creditor to receive what is due under the obligation [Civ. Code § 1488]. If the offer of performance is accepted and performance occurs, the obligation of all persons liable is extinguished [Civ. Code § 1474]. If the offer is not accepted, only the surety is discharged. The principal is not discharged by tender [Restatement of Security § 116, comment a; for a further discussion of offer of performance, see Ch. 140, Contracts].

[5] Expiration of Statute of Limitations

If the obligations under a surety bond are conditioned on performance of the principal, the expiration of the statute of limitations with respect to the obligations of the principal, other than the obligations of the principal under the bond, will also bar an action against the principal or surety under the bond, unless the terms of the bond provide otherwise [Code Civ. Proc. § 359.5; note that Regents of University of Cal. v. Hartford Acci. & Indem. Co. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 624, 639, 147 Cal. Rptr. 486, 581 P.2d 197 , which held that the running of the statute of limitations on the principal obligation did not exonerate the surety under Civ. Code § 2825, was decided prior to the enactment of Code Civ. Proc. § 359.5]. Nevertheless, a written waiver of the limitation period executed by the surety before the expiration of the applicable limitation period will extend the limitation period for four years from the date it would ordinarily expire [Code Civ. Proc. § 360.5; California First Bank v. Braden (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 672, 676-677, 264 Cal. Rptr. 820] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

47-538 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 538.20

§ 538.20 Rights of Surety Against Creditor

[1] In General

The law governing suretyships is statutory in nature, reflecting common law rules or a reaction to the common law. The protections afforded the surety against the creditor are the enactment of rules developed in equity to give relief from the common law doctrine that permitted the creditor to enforce remedies against the surety without reference to his or her rights against the principal [State Ath. Com. v. Mass. Bonding etc. Co. (1941) 46 Cal. App. 2d 823, 829, 117 P.2d 75] .

A surety may also hold the creditor to the requirement of Com. Code § 1309, which provides that acceleration under and agreement that allows the creditor to accelerate payment or performance "at will" or "when it deems itself insecure" is only proper when the creditor in good faith believes that the prospect of payment or performance is impaired [United States v. Grayson (9th Cir. 1989) 879 F.2d 620, 623 (interpreting California law for guidance and finding that, even though collection officer received bonus for collection, debtor's failure to make installment payments for over one year and projection of substantial losses required finding of reasonable belief that prospect of repayment was impaired)]. The burden of establishing lack of good faith is on the party against whom the power has been exercised, usually the debtor [Com. Code § 1309].

[2] Requiring Proceedings Against Principal

A surety may require the creditor, subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440 (enforcement of liability on bond given in action or proceeding by motion without independent action), to proceed against the principal or to pursue any other remedy in the creditor's power that the surety cannot pursue and that would lighten the surety's burden; if the creditor neglects to do so, the surety is exonerated to the extent to which the surety is thereby prejudiced [Civ. Code § 2845; see § 538.161]. For a discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440, see § 538.84[4].

As a prerequisite to exoneration under [Code Civ. Proc. § 2845], the surety must make a demand that the creditor proceed against the principal. In the absence of such demand, the creditor may maintain an action against the surety [see United California Bank v. Maltzman (1974) 44 Cal. App. 3d 41, 54, 118 Cal. Rptr. 299] . A surety who demands that the creditor foreclose on security for the debt may, however, not be exonerated under Civ. Code § 2845 if the surety has ample resources to satisfy the obligation to the creditor and pursue foreclosure directly against the principal [see Katz v. Haskell (1961) 196 Cal. App. 2d 144, 152, 16 Cal. Rptr. 453] .

A knowing waiver of the protection of this enforcement statute is not against public policy and is allowed [American Guaranty Corp. v. Stoody (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 390, 395, 41 Cal. Rptr. 69] .

[3] Benefit of Security Given by Principal

[a] In General

A surety is entitled to the benefit of every security for the performance of the principal obligation held by the creditor or by a cosurety at the time of entering into the contract of suretyship or acquired by him or her afterwards, whether or not the surety was aware of the security [Civ. Code § 2849]. Thus, after noting the provisions of Civ. Code § 2809 (surety's obligation commensurate with principal's), the primary liability of the principal, and Civ. Code § 2849, a surety company was held entitled to have a cash deposit made by the principal applied in reduction of its liability on the bond [State Ath. Com. v. Mass. Bonding etc. Co. (1941) 46 Cal. App. 2d 823, 828-829, 117 P.2d 75] .

Civ. Code § 2849 is frequently linked with Civ. Code § 2845 and the protections of both may be waived, frequently using the same language [Brunswick Corp. v. Hays (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 134, 138, 93 Cal. Rptr. 635 ; see also § 538.20[2]].

If a surety has waived Civ. Code §§ 2845 and 2849 in a limited guaranty contract, the proceeds from the sale of property that is repossessed on default only exonerates the surety to the extent that the proceeds of the sale exceed that amount of the original debt that was not covered by the limited guaranty [Brunswick Corp. v. Hays (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 134, 139, 93 Cal. Rptr. 635] .

[b] On Limited Continuing Guaranty

In the case of a limited continuing guaranty, the surety is not relieved of liability when the creditor receives more than the amount of the limited guaranty from the sale of securities, because a continuing guaranty limited as to amount is not exhausted even though the prinicpal contracts and pays debts equal to or greater than the sum stipulated in the guaranty [Bank of America Nat'l Trust & Savings Asso. v. Hunter (1937) 8 Cal. 2d 592, 596-597, 67 P.2d 99] .

[c] Principal's Security Applied Before Surety's Security

Whenever property of a surety is hypothecated with property of the principal, the surety is entitled to have the property of the principal first applied to the discharge of the obligation [Civ. Code § 2850].

[d] Effect of Creditor's Failure to Preserve Security

The Restatement of Security provides that, if the creditor has security from the principal and knows of the surety's obligation, the surety's obligation is reduced pro tanto if the creditor surrenders or releases the security, willfully or negligently harms it, or fails to take reasonable action to preserve its value at a time when the surety does not have an opportunity to take such action [Restatement of Security § 132]. Restatement of Security § 132 may provide some guidance in California, but no reported opinion in California has applied this rule, and its relevance may be tempered by Restatement of Security § 131, which provides that a creditor with a security interest in principal's property may compel performance by the surety before resorting to that security, except under narrowly prescribed circumstances [Restatement of Security § 131]. This is a very different rule from California law, which allows the surety to compel the creditor proceed against the principal's security first [Civ. Code §§ 2849 (surety entitled to benefit of securities held), 2850 (property of surety applied first); see also § 538.20[3]]. On the other hand, the California rule does not seem to be incompatible with Restatement of Security § 132.

[e] Demand Made of Creditor

A demand is required to compel a creditor to enforce the obligation against security given by the principal before pursuing the surety [Sukut-Coulson, Inc. v. Allied Canon Co. (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 648, 655, 149 Cal. Rptr. 711 ; see Garrett v. Bomash (1935) 10 Cal. App. 2d 288, 291, 51 P.2d 1100 (dicta)].

§ 538.21 Rights of Surety Against Principal

[1] Compel Performance

A surety may compel his or her principal to perform the obligation when due [Civ. Code § 2846]. Once the obligation becomes payable, the surety, before paying the obligation and whether or not he or she has been sued by the creditor, may maintain an action against the principal debtor to compel performance or payment, the creditor being made a codefendant, provided the creditor can himself or herself enforce performance and neglects or refuses to do so [Eastin v. Roberts, Carpenter & Co. (1937) 19 Cal. App. 2d 567, 571, 66 P.2d 224] .

If the creditor sues the surety to recover the obligation, the surety may cross complain against the principal to compel the principal to perform [Eastin v. Roberts, Carpenter & Co. (1937) 19 Cal. App. 2d 567, 571, 66 P.2d 224 ; Code Civ. Proc. § 1050 (surety's action to compel principal's performance)]. For a form for a complaint for use by the surety against the principal to compel performance, see § 538.162.

[2] Quia Timet

The common law prejudgment remedy of quia timet (literally, "because he fears") is still available to a surety. It is an action for equitable relief in the nature of a writ of prevention [Archbishop of S.F. v. Shipman (1886) 69 Cal. 586, 589, 11 P. 343 ; Escrow Agents' Fidelity Corp. v. Superior Court(1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 491, 493-494, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 698] . Statutory remedies such as injunction, lis pendens, attachment, and claim and delivery have replaced quia timet in most areas except the fidelity and insurance industry. After the debt for which it is liable has become due, without paying or being called on to pay it, the surety may file a bill in the nature of quia timet to compel the principal to exonerate it from liability by payment or performance, provided no rights of the creditor are prejudiced thereby [see Civ. Code § 2846; Code Civ. Proc. § 1050; Escrow Agents' Fidelity Corp. v. Superior Court (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 491, 495, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 698 ; see also Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. v. S.E.K. Construction Co. (10th Cir. 1971) 436 F.2d 1345, 1349 (denying relief because principal was not in default under completion bond)]. The action allows the surety to prevent the principal from dissipating the funds necessary to pay or perform the bonded obligation if the surety knows it will be called on to pay the debt or to perform the obligation on bond, suspects that the principal has some or all of the necessary funds to do so, and fears that the principal may abscond with those funds [Escrow Agents' Fidelity

Corp. v. Superior Court (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 491, 495-496, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 698] .

Code Civ. Proc. § 1050 incorporates some aspects of quia timet, but not all of them [see Gagossian v. Arakelian (1908) 9 Cal. App. 571, 573, 99 P. 1113 (dealing with portion of section relating to adverse claim on property, quia timet did not lie without allegation that plaintiff apprehended danger to property)]. Similarly, a guarantor who has a contract with the principal may obtain a writ of attachment in an action to compel the principal to perform its obligation to the creditor [see Karn v. Wills (1942) 50 Cal. App. 2d 604, 606-609, 123 P.2d 640 (attachment in action under Civ. Code § 2846)], but a surety whose bond does not take the form of a contract with the principal may not.

[3] Reimbursement

If a surety satisfies the principal obligation, or any part of it, whether with or without legal proceedings, the principal is bound to reimburse what he or she has disbursed, including necessary costs and expenses. However, the surety has no claim for reimbursement against other persons, though they may have been benefited by his or her act, except as prescribed by Civ. Code § 2848 (contribution by cosureties) [Civ. Code § 2847; Top Cat Productions, Inc. v. Michael's Los Feliz (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 474, 478, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 553 ; see § 538.22].

The principal will not be required to reimburse the surety for costs and expenses in defending an unsuccessful suit by the creditor on a bond in the absence of an agreement between the surety and the principal for those costs and expenses. Civ. Code § 2847 presupposes the existence of a legal obligation against the principal, and the subsequent satisfaction or discharge of some part of that obligation by the surety before necessary costs and expenses of the latter may be recovered [Pacific Indemnity Co. v. Harper (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 379, 386, 94 P.2d 586] .

Reimbursement is not dependent on legal proceedings, but it will only be allowed if it can be shown that liability was clearly established and that a suit would have been a mere formality [Ragghianti v. Sherwin (1961) 196 Cal. App. 2d 345, 351, 16 Cal. Rptr. 583] . The payments must have been made under a legal obligation and not on a mere voluntary basis [Schlitz v. Thomas (1923) 61 Cal. App. 635, 638, 216 P. 51] .

Full payment and performance by the surety extinguishes the primary obligation. The parties involved then have new rights and liabilities. The principal is to reimburse the surety for the moneys expended, with legal interest, though not according to the terms of the primary obligation. The surety then has the right to an action in assumpsit on the implied promise of the principal to make him or her whole [Berrington v. Williams (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 130, 134, 52 Cal. Rptr. 772] .

For a complaint by a surety seeking reimbursement from the principal, see § 538.163.

[4] Subrogation

A surety, on satisfying the obligation of the principal, is entitled to enforce every remedy that the creditor then has against the principal to the extent of reimbursing what he or she has expended [Civ. Code § 2848].

The principle on which this right of subrogation is founded applies when one person, not a volunteer, pays a debt for which another is primarily answerable and that, in equity and good conscience, should have been discharged by the latter. This doctrine is applied liberally to promote justice [Meyer Koulish Co. v. Cannon (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 419, 423-424, 28 Cal. Rptr. 757] . The right to subrogation is not prospective and will not require assets to be held in reserve pending subrogation. A person is not entitled to be subrogated to the rights of the creditor until the claim of the creditor has been paid [Hausmann v. Farmers Ins. Exchange (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 611, 615, 29 Cal. Rptr. 75] . For further discussion and forms relating to subrogation, see Ch. 536, Subrogation .

One of the creditor's rights, which the surety can acquire through subrogation by paying the debt, is the right to pursue judicial foreclosure of a security interest in the debtor's real property that stands as collateral for the debt. In a judicial foreclosure action, the surety can obtain a deficiency judgment against the debtor [Code Civ. Proc. § 726(b)]; thus, the surety will have an opportunity to be made whole. However, if the creditor first resorts to nonjudicial foreclosure of a security interest in the debtor's real property, without allowing the surety to pay the debt and become subrogated to the creditor's rights, the surety becomes unable to acquire any rights by subrogation from the creditor, because the nonjudicial sale both eliminates the security interest (leaving nothing to support a judicial foreclosure action) and, under Code of Civ. Proc. § 580d, precludes the possibility of a deficiency judgment against the debtor [Union Bank v. Gradsky (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 40, 45, 71 Cal. Rptr. 64 ; see generally Western Sec. Bank v. Superior Court (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 232, 248, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 243, 933 P.2d 507 (explaining Gradsky holding)]. Because the creditor has an implicit duty not to impair the surety's remedies against the debtor, the creditor is estopped from suing the surety for a deficiency after electing nonjudicial foreclosure [Union Bank v. Gradsky (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 40, 46-47, 71 Cal. Rptr. 64]. The estoppel is raised as a matter of law, to prevent the creditor from recovering from the surety after the creditor has exercised an election of remedies that destroys the surety's subrogation rights against the principal debtor [Union Bank v. Gradsky (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 40, 41, 71 Cal. Rptr. 64]. However, the surety may explicitly waive, or can be found to have waived, this estoppel defense against an action by the creditor to recover a deficiency from the surety [Union Bank v. Gradsky (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 40, 48, 71 Cal. Rptr. 64 ; see Civ. Code § 2856 (waivers by sureties); California Legal Forms, Ch. 79, Suretyship, Guaranty, and Indemnity (Matthew Bender), § 79.20].

[5] Conclusiveness on Principal of Judgment Against Surety

Whenever, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1908-1911, a party is bound by a record and that party stands in the relation of a surety for another, the latter is also bound from the time that he or she has notice of the action or proceeding and an opportunity at the surety's request to join in the defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 1912 (referring to "the last four sections," which would literally be Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1908.5-1911; however, when Code Civ. Proc. § 1912 was enacted, "the last four sections" were Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1908-1911 and, when Code Civ. Proc. § 1908.5 was subsequently added, Code Civ. Proc. § 1912 was not amended, so it appears that the reference refers back to Code Civ. Proc. § 1908)]. For a form for giving notice, see § 538.172.

[6] Payment of Attorney's Fees

Attorney's fees are not recoverable as costs, damages, or otherwise unless there is express statutory or contractual authority for them [Ralston-Purina Co. v. Carter (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 372, 379, 26 Cal. Rptr. 690] . A surety will be entitled to recover attorney's fees and expenses incurred in defending its liability, as well as in an action against the principal to collect them, if these costs are specified in the contract between the surety and principal. This provision will be upheld even if the principal is discharged from liability to the creditor [Maurice Merc. Co. v. American Emp. Ins. Co. (1934) 140 Cal. App. 354, 359-360, 35 P.2d 1047] .

§ 538.22 Contribution Among Cosureties

A surety, on satisfying the principal obligation, is entitled to require all his or her cosureties to contribute thereto, without regard to the order of time in which they became cosureties [Civ. Code § 2848].

When one of several joint judgment debtors pays more than his or her proportionate share of the judgment, he or she is entitled to obtain a proportionate contribution from those jointly liable and may bring suit against one or more of his or her codefendants on the implied contract of each obligor to the other so that they will share the burden equally. This basic principle of contribution applies to cosureties who are jointly and severally liable to pay the principal obligation. The right to contribution against cosureties is an obligation implied by law and is governed by equitable principles [Overholser v. Glynn (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 800, 807, 73 Cal. Rptr. 628] . The right to contribution is acquired as soon as a surety pays more than his or her share but not until then [Jackson v. Lacy (1940) 37 Cal. App. 2d 551, 559, 100 P.2d 313] .

Equitable contribution between sureties allows for loss sharing among co-obligors that share the same level of liability on the same risk as to the same principal. The principle of equity on which the right of contribution is founded applies only when the parties are under a common burden of liability. Under fundamental principles of equity, a person who has paid no more than his or her just proportion of a debt cannot obtain contribution from a co-debtor, even if the co-debtor has paid nothing. A corrollary to this rule is that equality of liability among persons whose respective situations are not equal is inequitable [Morgan Creek Residential v. Kemp (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 675, 684-685, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 232] . For example, a party that provided an unconditional letter of credit as security and then paid the promised amount could not then compel contribution from sureties that provided guaranties, because liabilities inherent in those two kinds of security are markedly different. In order to recover, "plaintiff has to be able to allege it shared the same level of liability with defendants ... in order to sue them for contribution" [Morgan Creek Residential v. Kemp (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 675, 689, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 232] .

Persons may be cosureties for the same debt and may be required to share the loss, even if their liabilities originate in separate contracts. Their obligations will be controlled by contract law. However, if equity demands that one should bear the ultimate burden rather than the other, they stand in the position of successive sureties. Their exact relationship will depend on the inferences to be drawn from their contracts and the circumstances of the case [Continental Casualty Co. v. Hartford Acci. & Indem. Co. (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 565, 570, 52 Cal. Rptr. 533] . For a form of complaint by a surety against a cosurety for contribution, see § 538.165. For forms for use in a proceeding seeking an order for repayment from joint judgment debtors, see §§ 538.166 -538.168.

§ 538.23 Procedure for Seeking Rights After Judgment

[1] Statutory Authority for Repayment

If two or more judgment debtors are jointly liable on a money judgment and if the judgment is based on an obligation of one judgment debtor as surety for another and the surety satisfies all or any part of the judgment, whether voluntarily or through enforcement procedures, the surety may compel repayment from the principal [Code Civ. Proc. § 882(b)].

[2] Statutory Authority for Contribution

If two or more judgment debtors are jointly liable on a money judgment, a judgment debtor who has satisfied more than his or her due proportion of the judgment, whether voluntarily or through enforcement procedures, may compel contribution from another judgment debtor who has satisfied less than his or her due proportion of the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 882(a)].

[3] Noticed Motion After Judgment

A judgment debtor entitled to compel repayment or contribution may apply on noticed motion to the court that entered the judgment for an order determining liability for contribution or repayment. The application shall be made at any time before judgment is satisfied in full or within 30 days thereafter [Code Civ. Proc. § 883(a)]. The proper interpretation of the phrase "the judgment is satisfied in full" means complete satisfaction of the entire judgment [Borba Farms, Inc. v. Acheson (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 597, 604, 606, 242 Cal. Rptr. 880] . Thus, a motion for contribution made by a joint judgment debtor more than 30 days after his or her partial satisfaction of the judgment is considered timely filed, absent a showing that partial satisfaction of the judgment is accepted by the plaintiff as full payment of the judgment [see Borba Farms, Inc. v. Acheson (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 597, 604, 606, 242 Cal. Rptr. 880 (decided before 1998 amendment of section 883(a) to increase 10 day period to 30 days)].

The order determining liability for repayment or contribution entitles the judgment debtor to the benefit of the judgment to enforce the liability, including every remedy that the judgment creditor has against the persons liable, to the extent of the liability [Code Civ. Proc. § 883(b)]. Nothing in Code Civ. Proc. § 883(a) or (b) limits any other remedy that a judgment debtor entitled to repayment or contribution may have [Code Civ. Proc. § 883(c)].

In the notice of motion for an order determining liability, the judgment debtor seeking relief should allege payment of more than his or her proportionate share, what his or her proportion is, and what the proportion of the joint codebtor is. The defendant should then have an opportunity to meet this issue of fact by affidavit or evidence, and, after a hearing in which the evidence is heard, the court should determine from the evidence how much more than his or her proportion one judgment debtor has paid, issue an order so determining, and order execution issued thereon [Stowers v. Fletcher (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 845, 190 P.2d 338] . This remedy afforded a joint judgment debtor is not exclusive, but cumulative, and the joint judgment debtor may instead choose to take an assignment from the judgment creditor [Tucker v. Nicholson (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 427, 430, 84 P.2d 1045] . The cases cited above involved former Code Civ. Proc. § 709, which has been replaced by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 881-883. Because no substantive changes were made in this area, the results should be the same under the new statutes. For forms for use in seeking an order against a joint judgment debtor, see §§ 538.166 -538.168.

§ 538.44 Procedural Requirements Under Bond and Undertaking Law

[1] Contents

The bond must be written, signed by the sureties under oath, and must include all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.320(a)]:

- A statement that the sureties are jointly and severally liable on the obligations of the statute providing for the bond.

- The address at which the principal and sureties may be served with notices, papers, and other documents under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.010-996.560.

- If the amount of the bond is based on the value of property or an interest in property, a description of the property or interest, and the principal's estimate of the value of the property or interest, (or if given pursuant to the estimate of the beneficiary or court, the value as so estimated).

The sureties on the bond or undertaking are liable to the extent provided by statute. Nonessential language in a statutory bond is surplusage and without effect. Conditions in the bond that exceed the statutory requirements may be disregarded and the bond otherwise sustained [Lewin v. Anselmo (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 694, 699, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 682 (relying in part on Code Civ. Proc. § 995.380(a), discussed under § 538.49].

For a form for a statutory bond or undertaking, see § 538.190.

[2] Number of Sureties; Execution

Unless the statute providing for the bond requires execution by an admitted surety insurer, a bond must be executed by two or more sufficient personal sureties or by one sufficient admitted surety insurer or by any combination of sufficient personal sureties and admitted surety insurers [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.310]. The bond must be signed by the sureties under oath [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.320(a)].

A bond executed by personal sureties must be accompanied by an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) of qualifications of each surety [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.520(a); for a discussion of those qualifications, see § 538.51; for form of declaration of qualifications of personal surety, see § 538.191].

[3] Filing

A bond given in an action or proceeding must be filed with the court unless the statute providing for the bond requires that the bond be given to another person [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.340(a)]. If the statute providing for the bond requires that the bond be given to an officer, the officer must file the bond with the court unless the statute provides otherwise [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.340(b)]. A bond filed with the court is preserved in the office of the clerk of the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.340(c)].

[4] Service on Beneficiary

At the time a bond is given, the principal must serve a copy of the bond on the beneficiary. An affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) of service must be given and filed with the bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.370]. Service must be made in the same manner as service of process in civil actions generally [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.030; see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

[5] Registration

When a bond given in an action or proceeding is filed with the court, the clerk must enter the date and amount of the bond and the names of the sureties on the bond in the register of actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.350(a)].

[6] Approval

Approval of a bond is not necessary for the bond to become effective unless the statute providing for the bond requires that the bond be approved by the court or officer [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.410(a)]. If approval of the bond is required by statute, the court or officer may approve or disapprove the bond on the basis of the affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) or certificate of the sureties or may require the attendance of witnesses and the production of evidence and may examine the sureties under oath regarding their qualifications [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.410(b)]. If court approval of a bond is required in a superior court case, the judge, at chambers, may approve a bond or undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 166(a)(5)]. A court commissioner may also take and approve, subject to supervision of the court, bonds and undertakings in actions or proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 259(c)]. A bond in an amount greater than that required by statute may be approved [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.410(c)].

§ 538.45 When Bond Becomes Effective

Unless the statute providing for a bond provides that the bond becomes effective at a different time, a bond is effective at the time it is given, or if the statute requires that the bond be approved, at the time it is approved [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.420(a)].

The surety can not add surplusage to the bond language that would give them time to rescind the bond unilaterally [Lewin v. Anselmo (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 694, 700, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 682 (language handwritten on appeal bond purported to give sureties 15 days to rescind was ineffective and sureties were bound)].

If the statute providing for a bond states that the bond becomes effective at a time other than the time it is given or approved, the bond is effective at the time provided unless an objection is made to the bond before that time, in which case the bond becomes effective when the court makes an order determining that the bond is sufficient [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.420(b); for discussion of objection and court determination of sufficiency of bonds, see § 538.123[4][i]].

Proc. § 995.360*]. If the bond or undertaking is the original one, it may be withdrawn from the files and delivered to the party by whom it was filed on order of the court only if all parties interested in the obligation so stipulate, or on a showing that the purpose for which it was filed has been abandoned without any liability having been incurred [*Cal. § 538.47 Term of Bond

[1] In General

A bond remains in force and effect until the earliest of the following events [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.430]:

- The sureties withdraw from or cancel the bond or a new bond is given in place of the original bond.
- The purpose for which the bond was given is satisfied or the purpose is abandoned without any liability having been incurred.
- A judgment of liability on the bond that exhausts the amount of the bond is satisfied.
- The term of the bond expires.

Unless the statute providing for a bond prescribes a fixed term, the bond is continuous [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.430(d)].

[2] For License or Permit

The term of a bond given as a condition of a license or permit is continuous. The bond remains in full force and effect and runs concurrently with the license or permit period and any and all renewals, or until cancellation or withdrawal of the surety from the bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.440].

If a bond does not contain the substantial matter or conditions required by the Bond and Undertaking Law (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.010-996.560) or by the statute providing for the bond, or if there are any defects in the giving or filing of the bond, the bond is not void so as to release the principal and sureties from liability [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.380(a)].

The beneficiary, in proceedings to enforce the liability on the bond, may suggest the defect in the bond, or its giving or filing, and enforce the liability against the principal and the persons who intended to become and were included as sureties on the bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.380(b)]. For discussion and forms relating to liability of principals and sureties on bond and enforcement of that liability, see § 538.80 et seq. (discussion) and § 538.220 et seq. § 538.51 Sufficiency of Personal Sureties

A personal surety on a bond is sufficient if all of the following conditions are satisfied [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.510(a)]:

- The surety is a person other than the principal, and is not an officer of the court nor a member of the State Bar.

- The surety is a resident, and either an owner of real property or householder, within California.

- The surety is worth the amount of the bond in real or personal property, or both, situated in California, over and above all debts and liabilities, exclusive of property exempt from enforcement of a money judgment.

If the amount of the bond exceeds $10,000 and is executed by more than two personal sureties, the worth of a personal surety may be less than the amount of the bond, as long as the aggregate worth of all sureties executing the bond is twice the amount of the bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.510(b)].

A bond executed by personal sureties must be accompanied by an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) of qualifications of each surety [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.520(a); for form of declaration of qualifications of personal surety, see § 538.191].

Nothing in the Bond and Undertaking Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.010 et seq.] prohibits a transfer of property to create a personal surety [see Buzgheia v. Leasco Sierra Grove (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 766, 771, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144 (husband's nonfraudulent transfer of his separate property to wife as her separate property so wife would have sufficient assets to act as surety did not violate Bond and Undertaking Law)].

§ 538.52 Admitted Surety Insurers

[1] In Lieu of Personal Surety

If a statute provides for a bond with any number of sureties, one sufficient admitted surety insurer may become and must be accepted as sole surety on the bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.610(a)]. The admitted surety insurer is subject to all the liabilities and entitled to all the rights of personal sureties [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.610(b)].

[2] Two or More Sureties for Aggregate Amount of Bond

Two or more admitted surety insurers may be sureties on a bond by executing the same or separate bonds for amounts aggregating the required amount of the bond, and each admitted surety insurer is jointly and severally liable to the extent of the amount of the liability assumed by it [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.620; for statutory form of bond or undertaking, see § 538.190].

[3] Conditions for Acceptance or Approval of Admitted Surety Insurer

An admitted surety insurer will be accepted or approved by the court or officer as surety on a bond without further acknowledgment if the bond is executed in the name of the surety insurer under penalty of perjury or the fact of the bond's execution is duly acknowledged before an officer authorized to take and certify acknowledgments, and either one of the following conditions, at the surety insurer's option, is satisfied [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.630]:

- A copy of the transcript or record of the unrevoked appointment, power of attorney, bylaws, or other instrument that entitles or authorizes the person who executed the bond to do so for and in behalf of the insurer, is filed in the office of the clerk of the county in which the court or officer is located. The entitling instrument must be duly certified by the proper authority and attested by the seal of the insurer.

- A copy of a power of attorney is attached to the bond. For form of statutory bond, see § 538.190.

There is no requirement that the officer taking the acknowledgment be an officer of California. An acknowledgment taken outside of California is sufficient in California as long as it was taken in accordance with the laws of the place where the acknowledegment was made [see Civ. Code § 1189(b)].

[4] Issuance of Certificate of Authority by County Clerk

On request by any person, the county clerk of any county must issue any of the following certificates, based on the clerk's review of the Department of Insurance web site (www.insurance.ca.gov) [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.640]:

- A certificate stating whether a surety is admitted or if the certificate of authority of an admitted surety insurer, issued by the Insurance Commissioner and authorizing the insurer to transact surety insurance has been surrendered, revoked, canceled, annulled, or suspended, and in the event that it has, whether or not renewed authority has been granted. In issuing the certificate, the county clerk must rely solely on the information furnished by the Insurance Commissioner pursuant to Ins. Code §§ 12070-12073 (requirement that Insurance Commissioner provide clerk with information regarding identity and status of all admitted surety insurers in state and that clerk maintain index of such information).

- A certificate stating whether a copy of the transcript or record of the unrevoked appointment, power of attorney, bylaws, or other instrument, duly certified by the proper authority and attested by the seal of an admitted surety insurer, entitling or authorizing the person who executed a bond to do so for and on behalf of the insurer, is on file in the office of the clerk.

A corporation will not be accepted or approved as surety on a bond or undertaking unless the following conditions are met [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1130(a)]:

- The Insurance Commissioner has certified the corporation as being admitted to do business in California as a surety insurer;

- There is filed in the office of the clerk a copy, duly certified by the proper authority, of the transcript or record of appointment entitling or authorizing the person or persons purporting to execute the bond or undertaking for and in behalf of the corporation to act in the premises; and

- The bond or undertaking has been executed under penalty of perjury as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 995.630, or the fact of execution of the bond or undertaking by the officer or agent of the corporation purporting to become surety has been duly acknowledged before an officer of California authorized to take and certify acknowledgements. § 538.54 Deposit in Lieu of Bond

[1] Authorized

A principal, instead of giving a bond, may deposit money or certain property with the officer except to the extent the statute providing for the bond precludes a deposit in lieu of bond or limits the form of deposit [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.710(a); for a listing of the property that may be used, see § 538.54[4]]. Deposit in lieu of bond is not available for deposits with the Secretary of State [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.710(a), (e)]. Any principal who made a deposit with the Secretary of State pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 995.710 prior to January 1, 1999, may continue to utilize that deposit in lieu of a bond pursuant to section 995.710 and the statute that prescribes a bond; however, the deposit will not be renewable pursuant to Code Civ. Proc.§ 995.710 [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.710(e)].

[2] Amount of Deposit

The deposit must be in an amount or have a face value, or in the case of bearer bonds or bearer notes have a market value, equal to or in excess of the amount that would be required to be secured by the bond if the bond were given by an admitted surety insurer. Notwithstanding any other provision of the Bond and Undertaking Law, in the case of a deposit of bearer bonds or bearer notes other than in an action or proceeding, the officer may, in the officer's discretion, require that the amount of the deposit be determined not by the market value of the bonds or notes but by a formula based on the principal amount of the bonds or notes [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.710(b)].

[3] Terms of Deposit

The deposit must be accompanied by an agreement executed by the principal authorizing the officer to collect, sell, or otherwise apply the deposit to enforce the principal's liability on the deposit. The agreement shall include the address at which the principal may be served with notices, papers, and other documents under this chapter [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.710(c)].

The officer may prescribe terms and conditions to implement section 995.710 [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.710(d)].

[4] Property That May Be Used for Deposit

The principal may use any of the following property for a deposit in lieu of a bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.710(a)]:

- Lawful money of the United States. The money must be maintained by the officer in an interest-bearing trust account.

- Bearer bonds or bearer notes of the United States or the State of California.

- Certificates of deposit payable to the officer, not exceeding the federally insured amount, issued by banks or savings associations authorized to do business in this state and insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

- Savings accounts assigned to the officer, not exceeding the federally insured amount, together with evidence of the deposit in the savings accounts with banks authorized to do business in this state and insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

- Investment certificates or share accounts assigned to the officer, not exceeding the federally insured amount, issued by savings associations authorized to do business in this state and insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

- Certificates for funds or share accounts assigned to the officer, not exceeding the guaranteed amount, issued by a credit union, as defined in Fin. Code § 14002, whose share deposits are guaranteed by the National Credit Union Administration or guaranteed by any other agency approved by the Department of Financial Institutions.

[5] Interest Paid on Deposit

If no proceedings are pending to enforce the liability of the principal on the deposit, the officer must do the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.740]:

- Pay quarterly to the principal, on demand, any interest on the deposit, when earned in accordance with the terms of the account or certificate.

- Deliver to the principal, on demand, any interest coupons attached to bearer bonds or bearer notes as the interest coupons become due and payable, or pay annually any interest payable on the bonds or notes.

[6] Return of Deposit

A deposit given in lieu of a bond must be returned to the principal at the earliest of the following times [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.770]:

- On substitution of a sufficient bond for the deposit. The bond will be in full force and effect for all liabilities incurred, and for acts, omissions, or causes existing or which arose during the period the deposit was in effect.

- The time provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 995.360 for return of a bond.

- The time provided by statute for return of the deposit.

[7] Payment of Amount of Liability on Deposit

The principal must pay the amount of the liability on the deposit within 30 days after the date on which the judgment of liability becomes final [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.750(a)].

If the deposit was given to stay enforcement of a judgment on appeal, the principal must pay the amount of the liability on the deposit, including damages and costs awarded against the principal on appeal, within 30 days after the filing of the remittitur from the appellate court in the court from which the appeal is taken [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.750(b)].

§ 538.55 Bonds to the State of California

[1] In General

Bonds to the State of California are bonds executed to, in favor of, in the name of, or payable to the State of California or the people of the state, including but not limited to official bonds [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.810]. A bond given in an action or proceeding to the State of California must be approved by the court and any party for whose benefit the bond is given may object to the bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.840].

[2] Official Bonds

Except as otherwise provided by statute, a bond given by an officer of the court for the faithful discharge of the officer's duties and for obedience to the orders of the court must be given to the State of California [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.820].

[3] Beneficiary Not Specified

If a statute providing for a bond or a court order pursuant to the statute does not specify the beneficiary of the bond, the bond must be to the State of California [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.830].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Bonds And Undertakings
1. Statutory Bonds And Undertakings

47-538 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 538.56

§ 538.56 Objections to Bonds

[1] In General

The procedure for objecting to bonds is limited to bonds given in an action or proceeding, in which there are adversary parties and a court to resolve disputes. In other situations the officer required to approve a bond or undertaking must do so without the objection procedure [see Law Revision Commission comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 995.910].

If the amount of the bond is increased voluntarily or by agreement of the parties to satisfy an objection to the bond made in an action or proceeding, and the bond is given in an amount greater than the amount required by statute or by order of the court or officer pursuant to statute, the liability of the surety on the bond will not be limited, as it otherwise would be, to the amount required by statute or by order of the court or officer [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.470(b)].

[2] Grounds

The beneficiary may object to a bond on the grounds that the sureties are insufficient, the amount of the bond is insufficient, or the bond, from any other cause, is insufficient [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.920; for forms for noticed motion and declaration in support of motion objecting to sufficiency of bond, see §§ 538.192 and 538.193].

[3] Objection to Sufficiency of Bond Based on Market Value

If a ground for objection is that the value of property or an interest in property on which the amount of the bond is based exceeds the value estimated in the bond, the objection must state the beneficiary's estimate of the market value of the property or interest in property [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.940(a); see § 538.192]. If the principal accepts the beneficiary's estimate of the market value and immediately files an increased bond based on the estimate, no hearing will be held on that ground for the objection, and the beneficiary will be bound by the estimate of the market value of the property or interest in property [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.940(b)].

[4] Procedure for Making Objection

The objection must be made within 10 days after service of a copy of the bond on the beneficiary or such other time as is required by the statute providing for the bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.930(b)]. Service on the principal of the notice of motion and proof of service are made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1013a [see Recommendation Relating to Statutory Bonds and Undertakings, 16 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports 501, 537 (1982)]. The amount of notice required is less than that for notices of motion in general [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 1005]. Unless the parties otherwise agree, the hearing on an objection must be held not less than two or more than five days after service of the notice of motion on the principal [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.950(a)].

[5] Waiver of Objection

If no objection is made within the time required by statute, the beneficiary is deemed to have waived all objections to the bond except on a showing of good cause for failure to make the objection within the time required by statute or of changed circumstances [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.930(c)].

[6] Hearing on Objection

The hearing must be conducted in the manner that the court determines is proper. The court may permit witnesses to attend and testify and evidence to be procured and introduced as in the trial of a civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.950(b)]. If the value of property or an interest in property is a ground for the objection, the court will estimate its value. The court may appoint one or more disinterested persons to appraise property or an interest in property for the purpose of estimating its value [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.950(c)]. A court commissioner is also empowered to determine any objections to a bond or undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 259(c)].

[7] Determination of Sufficiency of Bond by Court

After the hearing on the objection, the court will make an order determining the sufficiency or insufficiency of the bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.960(a); for a form for an order determining the sufficiency of a bond, see § 538.194].

If the court determines that the bond is insufficient, it must specify in what respect the bond is insufficient, and order that a bond with sufficient sureties and in a sufficient amount be given within five days. If a sufficient bond is not given within the required time, the court will on ex parte motion order that all rights obtained by giving the original bond immediately cease [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.960(b)(1)]. If a bond is in effect, and the court determines that the bond is insufficient, the bond remains in effect until a sufficient bond is given in its place, or until the time in which to give a sufficient bond expires, whichever occurs first. If the time in which to give a sufficient bond expires, the original bond remains in full force and effect for (1) all liabilities incurred before expiration, and (2) acts, omissions, or causes existing or that arose before expiration [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.960(b)(2)]. In the case of a bond that becomes effective at a time other than the time it is given or approved (see, e.g., Civ. Code § 3449, Code Civ. Proc. § 720.610 et seq.), the bond will not become effective if objection is made to it before the effective date, and will become effective only at the time following the hearing on the objection when the court makes an order determining that the bond is sufficient [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.420(b)]. If the court determines that such a bond is insufficient, there is no bond in effect until a sufficient bond is given in its place.

If the court determines that a bond is sufficient, no future objection to the bond may be made except on a showing of changed circumstances [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.960(c)].

[8] Objection to Sufficiency of Admitted Surety Insurer

A person who objects to the sufficiency of an admitted surety insurer must attach to and incorporate in the objection one or both of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.650]:

- The certificate of the clerk of the county in which the court is located stating that the insurer is not listed as an admitted surety insurer on the web site of the Department of Insurance or that the insurer's certificate of authority has been surrendered, revoked, canceled, annulled, or suspended and has not been renewed.

- An affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) stating facts that establish the insufficiency of the insurer. For a declaration in support of the motion objecting to the sufficiency of a bond, see § 538.193.

If an objection is made to the sufficiency of an admitted surety insurer on a bond or if the bond of an admitted surety insurer is required to be approved, the insurer must submit to the court or officer the following documents [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.660(a)]:

- The original, or a certified copy, of the unrevoked appointment, power of attorney, bylaws, or other instrument entitling or authorizing the person who executed the bond to do so, within 10 calendar days of the insurer's receipt of a request to submit the instrument.

- A certified copy of the certificate of authority of the insurer issued by the Insurance Commissioner, within 10 calendar days of the insurer's receipt of a request to submit the copy.

- A certificate from the clerk of the county in which the court or officer is located stating that the certificate of authority of the insurer has not been surrendered, revoked, canceled, annulled, or suspended, or, in the event that it has, that renewed authority has been granted, within 10 calendar days of the insurer's receipt of the certificate.

- Copies of the insurer's most recent annual statement and quarterly statement filed with the Department of Insurance pursuant to Ins. Code § 900 et seq., within 10 calendar days of the insurer's receipt of a request to submit the statements.

If the above documents are submitted in compliance with Code Civ. Proc. § 995.660(a), and if it appears that the bond was duly executed, that the insurer is authorized to transact surety insurance in California, and that its assets exceed its liabilities in an amount equal to or in excess of the amount of the bond, the insurer is sufficient and shall be accepted or approved as surety on the bond. The approval or acceptance is subject to the limitation set forth in Ins. Code § 12090 (admitted surety insurer may not become surety on undertaking when its liability amounts to more than 10 percent of its capital) [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.660(b)].

No public agency may require an admitted surety insurer to comply with any requirements other than those in Code Civ. Proc. § 995.660, described above, whenever an objection is made to the sufficiency of the admitted surety insurer on the bond or if the bond is required to be approved [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.670(a) (applicable to bond executed, filed, posted, furnished, or otherwise given as security pursuant to California statute or any law or ordinance of a public agency)]. "Public agency," for these purposes, refers to the state, any agency or authority, city, county, city and county, district, municipal or public corporation, or any instrumentality of them [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.670(b)].

Notwithstanding Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.660 and 995.970, however, the California Integrated Waste Management Board, the State Water Resources Control Board, and the Department of Toxic Substances Control may require, in order to comply with Subtitle C or D of the federal Resource Conservation and Recovery Act of 1976 [see 42 U.S.C. § 6901 et seq.], an admitted surety insurer to be listed in Circular 570 issued by the United States Treasury [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.675].

§ 538.57 Subsequent Insufficiency of Bond or Sureties

[1] Given in Action or Proceeding

If a bond is given in an action or proceeding, the court may determine that the bond is or has from any cause become insufficient because the sureties are insufficient or because the amount of the bond is insufficient [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.010(a)]. The court determination is made on motion supported by affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) or on the court's own motion. The motion is deemed to be an objection to the bond, and notice of motion is given and the motion is heard in the same manner as an objection to the bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.010(b); for form of noticed motion for order determining bond has become insufficient, see § 538.195; for discussion of the procedure for determining an objection to bond, see § 538.123[4][i]].

If the court determines that the bond is insufficient, the court shall order that a sufficient new, additional, or supplemental bond be given within a reasonable time but not less than five days after the hearing. The court order is subject to any limitations in the statute providing for the bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.010(c); for form of order for sufficient new, additional, or supplemental bond, see § 538.198].

If a sufficient bond is not given within the time required by court order, all rights obtained by giving the original bond immediately cease and the court on ex parte motion will so order [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.010(d)].

[2] Given Other Than in Action or Proceeding

If a bond is given other than in an action or proceeding and it is shown by affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) of a credible witness or it otherwise comes to the attention of the officer that the bond is or has from any cause become insufficient because the sureties are insufficient or because the amount of the bond is insufficient, the officer may serve an order on the principal to appear and show cause why the officer should not make a determination that the bond is insufficient. The hearing on the order to show cause must be not less than three or more than 10 days after service of the order on the principal [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.020(a); for form of declaration showing bond has become insufficient, see § 538.196; for form of order to appear and show cause why a determination that the bond is insufficient should not be made, see § 538.197].

If the principal fails to appear or show good cause on the date of the hearing, the officer may determine that the bond is insufficient and order a sufficient new, additional, or supplemental bond to be given [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.020(b); for form of order for sufficient new, additional, or supplemental bond, see § 538.198].

If a sufficient bond is not given within 10 days after the order, the officer shall make an order vacating the rights obtained by giving the original bond, including declaring vacant any office and suspending or revoking any license or certificate for which the bond was given. Any office vacated, license suspended or revoked, or any other rights lost will not be reinstated until a new, additional, or supplemental bond is given [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.020(c)].

§ 538.58 Reduction of Excessive Bond

The court, if a bond is given or ordered in an action or proceeding, or the officer, if a bond is given or ordered other than in an action or proceeding, may determine that the amount of the bond is excessive. If so, the court or officer may order the amount reduced to an amount that in the discretion of the court or officer appears proper under the circumstances. The order is subject to any limitations in the statute providing for the bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.030(a); for form of order determing bond is excessive and reducing bond, see § 538.198].

The determination as to whether or not a bond is excessive is made on motion or affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) of the principal in the same manner as a motion or affidavit or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 996.010 or Code Civ. Proc. § 996.020 that a bond is insufficient [for discussion of procedure under Code Civ. Proc. § 996.010, see Subsequent Insufficiency of Bond or Sureties--Given in Action or Proceeding, above; for discussion of procedure under Code Civ. Proc. § 996.020,--Given in Other Than Action or Proceeding, above]. The notice of motion or the order to show cause made pursuant to affidavit or declaration must be served on the beneficiary [for declaration showing bond is excessive, see § 538.196; for form of notice of motion for order determining bond is excessive and reducing bond, see § 538.195]. The determination of the court or officer is made in the same manner and pursuant to the same procedures as a determination under Code Civ. Proc. § 996.010 or Code Civ. Proc. § 996.020 that a bond is insufficient [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.030(b); for form of order reducing bond on determination of excessiveness, see § 538.198; for procedure for determination of subsequent insufficiency of bond, see § 538.123[4][i]].

If the court or officer determines that the bond is excessive, the principal may give a new bond for the reduced amount. The sureties may be the same sureties as on the original bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.030(c)].

1. Statutory Bonds And Undertakings

47-538 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 538.59

§ 538.59 New, Additional, and Supplemental Bonds

[1] When Given

The principal must give a new, additional, or supplemental bond if the court or officer orders that a new, additional, or supplemental bond be given [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.210(a); for form of order for sufficient new, additional, or supplemental bond, see § 538.198].

The principal may give a new bond if a surety withdraws from or cancels the original bond or to obtain the release of sureties from liability on the original bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.210(b)].

[2] Form and Contents

A new, additional, or supplemental bond must be in the same form and have the same obligation as the original bond. It must be in all other respects the same as the original bond, and be in the amount necessary for the purpose for which the new, additional, or supplemental bond is given [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.220(a); for statutory form of bond or undertaking, see § 538.190].

In addition to any other requirements, a supplemental bond must recite the names of the remaining original sureties, the name of the new surety, and the amount for which the new surety is liable. The supplemental bond must be for the amount for which the original surety was liable on the original bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.220(b)].

[3] Applicable Provisions

A new, additional, or supplemental bond is subject to all the provisions applicable to the original bond, and to the provisions of the Bond and Undertaking Law (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.010-996.560) including, but not limited to, the provisions governing giving and objecting to a bond and liabilities and enforcement procedures [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.230; for discussion of objecting to bond, see discussion under Objections to Bond,].

[4] Effect of New Bond

If a new bond is given in place of the original bond, the original bond remains in full force and effect for liabilities incurred before, and for acts, omissions, or causes existing or which arose before, the new bond became effective [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.240(a)].

The sureties on the original bond are not liable for any act, default, or misconduct of the principal or other breach of the condition of the bond that occurs after, or for any liabilities on the bond that arise after, the new bond becomes effective [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.240(b)].

[5] Effect of Additional or Supplemental Bond

An additional or supplemental bond does not discharge or affect the original bond. The original bond remains in full force and effect as if the additional or supplemental bond had not been given [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.250(a)].

After an additional or supplemental bond is given, the principal and sureties are liable on either or both bonds for injury caused by breach of any condition of the bonds. Subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 996.250(c), the beneficiary may enforce the liability on either bond or may enforce the liability separately on both bonds and recover separate judgments of liability on both [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.250(b)].

If the beneficiary recovers separate judgments of liability on both bonds for the same cause of action, the beneficiary may enforce both judgments. The beneficiary may collect, by execution or otherwise, the costs of both proceedings to enforce the liability on the bonds and the amount actually awarded to the beneficiary on the same cause of action in only one of the proceedings. No double recovery is allowed [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.250(c)].

If the sureties on either bond have been compelled to pay any sum of money on account of the principal, they are entitled to recover from the sureties on the remaining bond a distributive part of the sum paid in the proportion that the amounts of the bonds bear one to the other and to the sums paid [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.250(d)].

47-538 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 538.60

§ 538.60 Release and Substitution of Sureties on Bond Given in Action or Proceeding

[1] Application

A surety on a bond given in an action or proceeding may at any time apply to the court for an order to be released from liability on the bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.110(a); for form of application for release, see § 538.199].

If a surety applies for release from liability on a bond, the principal on the bond may then apply to the court for an order that another surety be substituted for the original surety [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.110(b); for forms of application and notice of hearing on application for substitution of sureties, see §§ 538.201 and 538.202].

The applicant must serve on the principal or surety (other than the applicant) and on the beneficiary a copy of the application and a notice of hearing on the application [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.110(c)]. Service is made in the same manner as service of process in civil actions generally (see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 413.10-417.40) [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.030]. Service must be made not less than 15 days before the date set for hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.110(c)].

[2] Hearing on Application

On the hearing of the application, the court will determine whether or not injury to the beneficiary would result from substitution or release of the surety. If the court determines that release would not reduce the amount of the bond or the number of sureties below the minimum required by the statute providing for the bond, substitution of a sufficient surety is not necessary and the court must order the release of the surety. If the court determines that no injury would result from substitution of the surety, the court must order the substitution of a sufficient surety within a reasonable time [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.120].

At the time of substitution of a sufficient surety, the court must order the release of the original surety from liability on the bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.130(b)].

[3] Effect of Release and Substitution

[a] Liability of Substitute Surety

If a substitute surety is given, the substitute surety is subject to all the provisions of the Bond and Undertaking Law (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.010-996.560), including but not limited to the provisions governing insufficient and excessive bonds [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.130(a)].

[b] Liability of Released Surety
