§ 555.188 Additional Orders

[1] FORM

[Following are examples of additional orders that could be stated in (or attached to) Paragraph 27 of form in § 555.185[1] or Paragraph 29 of form in § 555.186[1].]

A. Preservation of Property. The receiver is authorized to care for, preserve, and maintain property in the receivership estate and, for that purpose, to make decisions or take action not specifically authorized by this order, provided that with regard to such authority:

(1) The receiver shall first attempt to obtain a stipulated agreement from the adversarial parties relating to a contemplated action. If the stipulation is obtained, it shall then be submitted to the court, ex parte, with an order for signature.

(2) If unable to obtain a stipulation, the receiver shall circulate a notice, with details of the recommended course of action, and give the parties an opportunity to object and request an ex parte hearing. The notice shall expressly state the necessity for the contemplated action and shall advise the parties that any objection must be written, must be specific, and must be served on the receiver and other parties, and filed with the court within seven days from being mailed or five days from being faxed.

(3) If the contemplated action is not an emergency, the receiver or the objecting party shall move for an order on a regularly noticed motion.

B. Contracts. If, in the receiver's judgment, a contract is necessary to administer the receivership estate, and if the contract has a de minimis effect on the estate, no prior notice need be given, but the circumstances of entering into the contract shall be included in the receiver's next monthly report.

C. Notification of Tenants. The receiver shall inform all tenants of the telephone number and address of the receiver and notify tenants of the requirement that rents be paid to the receiver.

D. New Leases (or Renewals) in Excess of One Year. The receiver shall negotiate leases in excess of one year so as to obtain the best possible lease for the estate. Before execution of a lease, the receiver shall submit the lease to the plaintiff and the defendant (owner), for review, and give each party an opportunity to object by a date certain. If there is objection, the lease shall be submitted to the court for approval.

[2] Use of Form

This form sets forth examples of additional orders that, depending on the circumstances, could be stated in (or attached to) the JudicialCouncil forms in § 555.185[1] (see Paragraph 27 of that form) and § 555.186[1] (see Paragraph 29 of that form). These orders are adapted from orders sanctioned in local rules of the Los Angeles County Superior Court [see Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rule 9.51 et seq.], now largely superseded by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175 et seq.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a statutory demand for a turnover of rents, issues, and profits. It may be used to enforce an assignment of an interest in leases, rents, issues, or profits of real property made in connection with an obligation secured by the property. Civ. Code § 2938 governs these assignments and sets forth alternative methods of enforcing them. One method permits enforcement by delivering to any one or more of the tenants a written demand (this form) for turnover of rents, issues, and profits [see Civ. Code § 2938(c); see also [3], below].

The demand must be in the form specified in Civ. Code § 2938(j) and must be signed under penalty of perjury by the assignee or the assignee's authorized agent [Civ. Code § 2938(d)].

For additional discussion of Civ. Code § 2938, see § 555.81[1].

[3] Delivery and Effectiveness

In addition to being delivered to any one or more of the tenants, a copy of this demand must be delivered to the assignor. A copy must be mailedto each other assignee of record of the leases, rents, issues, and profits of the real property at the address for notices provided in the assignment or, if there is none, the address to which the recorded assignment was to be mailed after recording [Civ. Code § 2938(c)].

The demand will be effective against the tenant when it is actually received by the tenant at the address for notices provided in the lease or other contractual agreement under which the tenant occupies the property or, if no address for notices is provided, at the property [Civ. Code § 2938(d)].

For discussion of the tenant's obligations on receipt of this demand, see § 555.81[4].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use by a beneficiary under a trust deed to sue for damages for waste that impaired the security and was committed by the trustor in possession [Civ. Code §§ 2929, 3333]. The form may be modified to state a cause of action against any other person in possession, because the duty not to commit waste applies not only to the trustor and successors but also to any other person whose interest is subject to the trust deed [Civ. Code § 2929]. For further discussion, see § 555.90[1].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following essential facts [see § 555.90[5][a]]:

- The defendant's status as a person in possession of property subject to the trust deed of which the plaintiff is the beneficiary (Paragraphs 4 and 5).

- The defendant's wasteful acts and omissions (Paragraphs 6 and 7).

- The proximate result that the plaintiff's security was rendered inadequate (Paragraphs 8-10) [see Hickman v. Mulder (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 900, 902-903, 130 Cal. Rptr. 304] .

An additional allegation of bad faith waste is required (Paragraph 7, alleging willful mismanagement) to recover damages when a deficiency judgment would otherwise be barred, such as after foreclosure by a private sale (Paragraph 8) [Code Civ. Proc. § 581d; see Cornelison v. Kornbluth (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 590, 603, 605, 125 Cal. Rptr. 557, 542 P.2d 981 ; Hickman v. Mulder (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 900, 903, 908-909, 130 Cal. Rptr. 304] . For further discussion, see § 555.90[5][b].

[4] Verification

Verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a) (unless otherwise required by law, pleadings not required to be verified)]. However, if the complaint is verified, the defendant is required to file a verified answer in a superior court action other than a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446(a)] and is precluded from making a general denial in superior court actions that are not limited civil cases and in some limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] Jurisdiction and Venue

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8)]. When title or right to possession is to be tried, or permanent injunctive relief is sought, the case will be classified as an unlimited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 88].

In an action for injuries to real property, the superior court in the county in which the real property is located is the proper court for trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use by the beneficiary under a trust deed to sue for temporary and permanent injunctions restraining the trustor in possession from committing actual or threatened waste to impair the beneficiary's security interest [Civ. Code §§ 2929, 3422; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 526, 527]. The form may be modified to state a cause of action against any other person in possession, because the duty not to commit waste applies not only to the trustor and successors but also to any other person whose interest is subject to the trust deed [Civ. Code § 2929]. For further discussion, see § 555.90[1]. The form may also be modified to include or state a cause of action restraining a third party's injury to the property that impairs the security [see § 555.91].

The beneficiary is entitled to obtain injunctive relief before foreclosure in cases in which the waste threatens to render the security inadequate [see Civ. Code § 2929; Miller v. Waddingham (1891) 91 Cal. 377, 382, 27 P. 750] . If foreclosure proceedings are pending, this form may be modified to enjoin any person in possession of the property from performing any act that injures the property, regardless of whether the acts would render the security inadequate [Code Civ. Proc. § 745(a); see § 555.90[4]]. Appointment of a receiver may also be sought in a foreclosure action when acts of waste endanger the security [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2)]. For further discussion and forms, see Ch. 486, Receivers .

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following essential facts:

- The defendant's status as a person in possession of property subject to the trust deed of which the plaintiff is the beneficiary (Paragraph 5).

- The defendant's wasteful conduct or threatened conduct (Paragraphs 6-8).

- The likelihood that the plaintiff will suffer irreparable injury unless this conduct is enjoined (Paragraphs 9-11) [see Miller v. Waddingham (1891) 91 Cal. 377, 382, 27 P. 750 ; Robinson v. Russell (1864) 24 Cal. 467, 473] .

For further discussion, see § 555.90[4].

Verification [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446] is required if the plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction on the complaint instead of on an affidavit (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a); see generally Ch. 303, Injunctions]. Otherwise, verification is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a) (unless otherwise required by law, pleadings not required to be verified)]. However, if the complaint is verified, the defendant is required to file a verified answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 446(a)] and is precluded from making a general denial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

If relying on a verified complaint instead of an affidavit (or declaration), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle the plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; San Juan G. Co. v. San Juan R. etc. Assn. (1939) 34 Cal. App. 2d 159, 174, 93 P.2d 582] . In addition, counsel must append to this form a declaration relating to notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204(b)]. For discussion, a procedural checklist, and additional forms necessary to obtain a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[5] Jurisdiction and Venue

An action seeking permanent injunctive relief is in the jursdiction of the superior court and is not a limited civil action [

Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86]. When title or right to possession is to be tried, or permanent injunctive relief is sought, the case will be classified as an unlimited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 88].

In an action for injuries to real property, the superior court in the county in which the real property is located is the proper court for trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use by a mortgagee or trust deed beneficiary [see Civ. Code § 891(b) (authorizing action by mortgagee or beneficiary)] who has been injured by rent-skimming [see Civ. Code § 890(a) (definition)]. Although this complaint has named as defendant only the owner who collected the rents, the complaint may be modified to sue any person, including officers and directors of a business organization, that authorized rent-skimming or, being in a position of control, failed to prevent another from rent skimming [see Civ. Code § 890(c)]. The complaint also may be modified for use by a vendor as lienholder or by a tenant, either of whom could be injured by rent skimming. For further discussion, see § 555.94.

For a related affirmative defense allegation, see § 555.193.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following essential facts:

- The rent skimming, that is, the failure to apply rents from residential real property, or an equivalent amount, at any time during the first year after acquiring the property, to payments due on all mortgages and trust deeds encumbering the property (Paragraphs 5 and 6) [see Civ. Code § 890(a) (defining rent skimming)].

- The plaintiff's damages (Paragraph 7) [see Civ. Code § 891(b) (mortgagee or beneficiary is entitled to actual damages to extent of rents collected on property, attorney's fees, and costs)].

[4] Other Relief

The rights and remedies provided by Civ. Code § 891 are in addition to any other rights and remedies provided by law [Civ. Code § 891(e)]. In the case of a vendor or another mortgagee or beneficiary, an order for any appropriate equitable relief is specifically authorized [see Civ. Code § 891(a), (c)]. For instance, if the mortgage or trust deed contains an assignment of rents as additional security, the beneficiary or mortgagee may seek to have the assignment specifically performed, often by appointment of a receiver, and sometimes in addition to an accounting.

[5] Verification

Verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a) (unless otherwise required by law, pleadings not required to be verified)]. However, if the complaint is verified, the defendant is required to file a verified answer in a superior court action other than a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446(a)] and is precluded from making a general denial in superior court actions that are not limited civil cases and in some limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[6] Jurisdiction and Venue

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8)]. When title or right to possession is to be tried, or permanent injunctive relief is sought, the case will be classified as an unlimited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 88].

Generally, the proper county for trial is the county in which a defendant resides [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]. In an action by the vendor or other lienholder, in which the actual damages are essentially the deficiency or the outstanding debt following foreclosure or loss of the security, the proper county for trial is the county in which the obligation was entered into or is to be performed [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]. In an action by a tenant, in which the actual damages are essentially out-of-pocket losses, the proper county for trial is the county in which injury occurs [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]. If the defendant is a corporation or association, the county in which its principal place of business is located is a proper county for trial [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395.2, 395.5].

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense Allegation--Rental Revenue Used for Emergency Medical Treatment or Necessary Repairs [Civ. Code § 893]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges:

1. Within 30 days of receipt of each and every rent payment that is the subject of the complaint, defendant used the [unapplied portion of the] revenue to pay _____ [health care providers, as defined in Business and Professions Code Section 6146(c)(2), for unforeseen and necessary medical treatment for _____ (defendant or defendant's spouse or defendant's parent or defendant's child) or _____ (licensed contractors or material suppliers) for _____ (specify expenditure to correct violation of statute, ordinance, or regulation relating to habitability of premises, e.g., repairs to the heating and plumbing systems at the property, without which the property could not have complied with the city housing code)].

2. At the time of each and every expenditure described in Paragraph 1, defendant had no other source of funds from which to make the expenditure.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a form of affirmative defense for use by a defendant in an action for damages for rent skimming, when the revenue not applied to debts secured by liens on the property were used for unforeseen medical expenses [Civ. Code § 893(a)(1)(A)] or to correct violations relating to the habitability of the premises [Civ. Code §

893(a)(1)(B)]. In either case, the payment must have been made within 30 days of the defendant's receipt of the rents that were diverted [Civ. Code § 893(a)(2)], and the defendant must not have had any other source of funds from which to make the payments [Civ. Code § 893(a)(2)].

For a complaint for damages for rent skimming, see § 555.192.

[3] Burden of Proof

The defendant has the burden of proof of each element of the defense [Civ. Code § 893(b)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a notice of motion for use by a vendor of an interest in residential real property who has reacquired the interest in the property from a person who engaged in rent skimming with respect to that property, or by a law enforcement agency, to request an order declaring that the reacquired interest is not encumbered by a lien that is or has the effect of a judgment lien against the property of the person who engaged in the rent skimming. This relief cannot be granted if the lien is related to any improvement of the property or if it represents security for a loan made by a good faith lender without knowledge of facts constituting a violation of Civ. Code § 890 et seq. [Civ. Code § 891(b)]. The requirement that the lien be incurred by a person engaged in rent skimming implies that only liens incurred during the period in which rent was being skimmed can be avoided [see Civ. Code § 891(b)].

A supporting memorandum must be served and filed with this notice of motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[3] Notice to Interested Parties

The motion pursuant to Civ. Code § 891(b) must be made on at least 30 days' written notice to all persons who may be affected by the order, including lienholders [Civ. Code § 891(b)].

[4] Order Granting Motion

If the requirements for relief are met, the court must issue an order granting the requested relief unless the court determines that the interests of justice would not be served by the order [Civ. Code § 891(b)].

[5] Jurisdiction and Venue

For coverage of jurisdiction and venue, see § 555.192[6].

§ 560.11 Definition of Express Trust

A trust is a legal device by which one person, the trustee, holds title to property for the benefit of another, the beneficiary. The creation of a trust divides title to the trust property, placing legal title in the trustee and equitable title in the beneficiary [Raczynski v. Judge (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 504, 511, 230 Cal. Rptr. 741 ; Askew v. Resources Funding, Ltd. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 402, 407, 156 Cal. Rptr. 208] . Consequently, a trust establishes a fiduciary relationship between the trustee and the beneficiary, as opposed to an arms-length transaction between parties to a contract [see Gonsalves v. Hodgson (1951) 38 Cal. 2d 91, 98, 99, 237 P.2d 656 (finding a contract instead of a trust); California-Nevada Annual Conf. of the United Methodist Church v. St. Luke's United Methodist Church (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 754, 767, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 442 (trust is fiduciary relationship with respect to property, subjecting person by whom title to property is held to equitable duties to deal with property for benefit of another person), overruled in part by Episcopal Church Cases (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 467, 491, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 275, 198 P.3d 66 (Corp. Code § 9142(c)(2) does give general church the authority to impress trust on local church when local church agrees and is member of governing instruments of general church, which provide any property held by local church is held in trust for general church; local church did not have the right to take church property with it when it disaffiliated from general church even though deeds to property had long been in name of local church)].

A trust is created by the settlor's manifestation of intention to create a trust, trust property, a lawful trust purpose, and an identifiable beneficiary [California-Nevada Annual Conf. of the United Methodist Church v. St. Luke's United Methodist Church (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 754, 767, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 442] , overruled in part by Episcopal Church Cases (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 467, 491, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 275, 198 P.3d 66 . An express trust is generally created in one of two ways: (1) by a declaration of trust in which the owner of property declares that he or she holds it as trustee for some beneficiary; or (2) by a transfer in trust, by which the owner transfers to another as trustee for some beneficiary, either by deed or other inter vivos transfer, or by will [California-Nevada Annual Conf. of the United Methodist Church v. St. Luke's United Methodist Church (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 754, 767, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 442] .

A "living" (or "inter vivos") trust is a trust that is created during the lifetime of the settlor. A "testamentary" trust, in contrast, is created by a will and comes into being only on the death of the settlor (also called the "testator") [see Prob. Code § 7000 (title to person's property transferred when person dies); see also Estate of Lefranc (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 289, 297, 239 P.2d 617 and Estate of Wellings (1923) 192 Cal. 506, 510, 221 P. 628 (judgment of distribution merely confirms title in trustee)]. Both living and testamentary trusts are subject to the Trust Law [Prob. Code § 15000 et seq.], and are generally administered according to the same rules. Some testamentary trusts are "subject to continuing court jurisdiction" and thus governed by additional Probate Code rules [see Prob. Code § 17300 et seq.]. However, the only trusts subject to these additional rules are trusts created by wills executed before July 1, 1977 (and not incorporated by reference in a will executed on or after that date), and trusts created by wills that explicitly provide that they are subject to the continuing jurisdiction of the superior court [Prob. Code § 17300].

§ 560.12 Private and Charitable Trusts Distinguished

A charitable trust is actually a donation that is held in trust to promote the welfare of mankind at large, of a community, or of some class within a community. The beneficiaries of a charitable trust are indefinite in number and identity [Estate of Schloss (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 248, 256, 14 Cal. Rptr. 643, 363 P.2d 875] . Since the beneficiaries of a private trust must be either ascertained or ascertainable in accordance with the time limits set forth in the Rule Against Perpetuities, private and charitable trusts are subject to different standards for determination of validity [§ 560.13[3]]. Moreover, charitable trusts are primarily supervised and enforced by the Attorney General pursuant to Corp. Code §§ 5250, 7240, and 10200, which govern nonprofit corporations. For further discussion of the establishment and enforcement of public charitable trusts, see § 560.270 et seq.

§ 560.13 Parties to Express Trust

[1] Settlor

A settlor is the person who creates a trust, whether by a will or living trust [see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 3; California-Nevada Annual Conf. of the United Methodist Church v. St. Luke's United Methodist Church (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 754, 768, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 442 ; see also Prob. Code § 15201 (trust created only if settlor manifests intention to do so)]. The term "trustor," previously used to denote a person who creates a living trust, was abolished with the enactment of the Trust Law (Prob. Code § 15000 et seq.) in 1986 [see LegislativeCounsel's Digest comments to Stats. 1986, ch. 820, paragraph (2)].

A settlor must have the capacity to make an ordinary transfer of property, and must possess the mental competence to comprehend the subject matter and to understand his or her rights. A person may lack the capacity to declare a trust if a temporary condition, such as intoxication, deprives that person of his or her reason and understanding [Walton v. Bank of California (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 527, 541, 32 Cal. Rptr. 856 (decided under former Civ. Code § 39, repealed eff. Jan. 1, 1994)].

[2] Trustee

The person holding property in trust is the trustee [see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 3]. A trustee includes an original, additional, or successor trustee, whether or not appointed or confirmed by a court [Prob. Code § 84]. Any person, including a beneficiary, may serve as trustee [Crocker-Citizens National Bank v. Younger (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 202, 212, 93 Cal. Rptr. 214, 481 P.2d 222] . However, a sole beneficiary usually may not be the sole trustee, because the legal and equitable titles of the trust property would be merged in one person [Hill v. Conover (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 171, 179, 180, 12 Cal. Rptr. 522 ; see §§ 560.11, § 560.48]. Generally, the trustee named by the settlor will be an existing person or legal entity of full capacity who has agreed to accept the trust [see Bogert, The Law of Trusts and Trustees, Ch. 8, The Trustee--Selection: Capacity, § 121 (2d ed.)]. For discussion of a trustee's acceptance of the trust, see § 560.71. For discussion of a trustee's duties and liabilities with regard to the beneficiary, see § 560.76 et seq.. For discussion of a trustee's liabilities to a third party to the trust, see § 560.360 et seq.

[3] Beneficiary

A "beneficiary" is a person to whom a donative transfer of property is made, or that person's successor in interest [Prob. Code § 24]. As it relates to a trust, "beneficiary" means a person who has any present or future interest, vested or contingent [Prob. Code § 24(c)]. As it relates to a charitable trust, it includes any person entitled to enforce the trust [Prob. Code § 24(d)]. A beneficiary in a trust other than a charitable trust must be ascertained or ascertainable [Reagh v. Kelley (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 1082, 1092, 1098, 89 Cal. Rptr. 425] . For discussion of beneficiaries of a charitable trust, see § 560.270 et seq.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.14

§ 560.14 Attorney as Beneficiary

[1] Statutory Limitations

When an attorney who drafts a trust instrument is named as a beneficiary in the agreement, there is an obvious potential for fraud, undue influence, and similar concerns. The same potential may exist when certain relatives, partners, or employees of such an attorney are beneficiaries [see Prob. Code § 21350]. To reduce the potential for these problems, Prob. Code §§ 21350-21356 establish limitations on donative transfers to drafters and other parties. These provisions determine whether an attorney or a relative, partner, or employee of an attorney is entitled to benefits from a trust when the attorney has drafted the instrument. The term "disqualified person" is used in the statutes to refer to a person to whom a valid transfer cannot be made under these statutes [Prob. Code § 21350.5].

These provisions apply to all instruments that become irrevocable on or after September 1, 1993 [Prob. Code § 21355]. If an instrument was revocable or amendable on that date, but the transferor by reason of incapacity was unable to change the disposition of his or her property and did not regain capacity before the date of his or her death, the instrument is deemed to be irrevocable for this purpose [Prob. Code § 21355].

[2] General Rule Invalidating Transfers to Specified Persons

Prob. Code § 21350 generally invalidates transfers made to any of the following [Prob. Code § 21350]:

- The person who drafted the instrument;

- A person who is related by blood or marriage to, or is a cohabitant with or employee of, the person who drafted the instrument;

- Any partner or shareholder of any law partnership or law corporation in which the person who drafted the instrument has an ownership interest, and any employee of any such law partnership or law corporation;

- Any person who has a fiduciary relationship with the transferor, including, but not limited to, a conservator or trustee, and who transcribes the instrument or causes it to be transcribed;

- A person who is related by blood or marriage to, or is a cohabitant with or employee of, a person described in the immediately preceding category; and

- A care custodian of a dependent adult.

For purposes of Prob. Code § 21350, "a person who is related by blood or marriage" to a person means all of the following [Prob. Code § 21350(b)]:

- The person's spouse or predeceased spouse;

- Relatives within the third degree of the person and of the person's spouse; and

- The spouse of any relative within the third degree of the person or of the person's spouse.

In determining relationships for this purpose, Prob. Code § 6406, which governs the inheritance rights of relatives of the half blood, Prob. Code § 6407, which governs the inheritance rights of afterborn heirs, and Prob. Code §§ 6450-6455, which govern the relationship of parent and child for purposes of intestate succession, are applicable [Prob. Code § 21350(b)].

For purposes of Prob. Code § 21350, the term "care custodian" means an administrator or employee of a public or private care facility or agency (including a member of the support or maintenance staff), or any other person providing care or services for elders or dependent adults, except persons who do not work directly with elders or dependent adults as part of their official duties [Prob. Code § 21350(c); see Welf. & Inst. Code § 15610.17 (list of covered care facilities and agencies)].

"Dependent adult" means any of the following [Prob. Code § 21350(c); see Welf. & Inst. Code § 15610.23(a)]:

- Any person residing in California, between the ages of 18 and 64 years, who has physical or mental limitations that restrict his or her ability to carry out normal activities or to protect his or her rights including, but not limited to, persons who have physical or developmental disabilities or whose physical or mental abilities have diminished because of age [Prob. Code § 21350(c)].

- Any person between the ages of 18 and 64 who is admitted as an inpatient to a 24-hour health facility as defined in Health & Safety Code §§ 1250, 1250.2, and 1250.3.

- Any person older than age 64 who would be a "dependent adult" under the above definitions if he or she were between the ages of 18 and 64.

A trust instrument executed by an elderly woman who resided in a skilled nursing facility in which the woman made a donative transfer of property to the long-term care ombudsman for the facility was held invalid under Prob. Code § 21350(a)(6), because the ombudsman was a "care custodian" within the meaning of the statute and therefore disqualified from benefiting from the trust [Estate of Shinkle (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 990, 992-993, 1005-1007, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 42 ; disapproved in part on other grounds in Bernard v. Foley (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 794, 816, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 248, 139 P.3d 1196] . A long-term care ombudsman is a "care custodian" for purposes of the statute during the time he or she serves as ombudsman for a particular "dependent adult" [Estate of Shinkle (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 990, 1007, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 42 . An ombudsman remains a "care custodian" within the meaning of the statute even after his or her formal ombudsman relationship with a particular resident has ended, due either to a change in the ombudsman's facility assignment or the fact that the resident has left the facility, when the ombudsman, as a result of his or her fiduciary relationship with the resident, develops a personal relationship with the resident and thereby acquires personal and financial information about the resident [Estate of Shinkle (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 990, 993, 1007, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 42 ; disapproved in part on other grounds in Bernard v. Foley (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 794, 816, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 248, 139 P.3d 1196] .

Prob. Code § 21350(a)(4), which includes in the category of presumptively disqualified persons any fiduciary who transcribes the trust instrument or causes it to be transcribed, does not apply to a person who provides information needed in the preparation of the trust instrument (e.g., a list of the trustor's assets) and who encourages the trustor to execute it, but who does not direct or otherwise participate in the transcription of the instrument to final written form [Rice v. Clark (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 89, 101-105, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 522, 47 P.3d 300] .

Prob. Code § 21350 implicitly requires a person whose interest in a trust is threatened by a transfer to a disqualified person to invoke the protection of the statute affirmatively by seeking a court order establishing the invalidity of the transfer [Estate of Shinkle (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 990, 1004, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 42 ; disapproved in part on other grounds in Bernard v. Foley (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 794, 816, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 248, 139 P.3d 1196] . The burden then shifts to the transferee to justify the transfer under Prob. Code § 21351 [Estate of Shinkle (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 990, 1004, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 42 ; disapproved in part on other grounds in Bernard v. Foley (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 794, 816, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 248, 139 P.3d 1196] .

[3] Exceptions to General Rule Invalidating Transfers

Under Prob. Code § 21351, a transfer is not invalidated under Prob. Code § 21350 if any of the following conditions are met [Prob. Code § 21351(a), (b), (c), (f)]:

- The transferor is related by blood or marriage to, is a cohabitant with, or is the registered domestic partner of, the transferee or the person who drafted the instrument. "Related by blood or marriage" includes persons within the fifth degree or heirs of the transferor [Prob. Code § 21351(g)]. A "cohabitant" means two unrelated adult persons living together for a substantial period of time, resulting in some permanency of relationship [Prob. Code § 21351(a); see Pen. Code § 13700(b)]. This provision applies retroactively to an instrument that becomes irrevocable on or after July 1, 1993 [Prob. Code § 21351(a)]. This exception applies to a spouse who was care custodian of the transferee prior to marriage [Estate of Pryor (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1466, 1468, 1476, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 895 (decedent's spouse could invoke the spousal exception to the presumption in Prob. Code § 21351(a) despite her prior status as a care custodian before her marriage to decedent)].

- The instrument is reviewed by an independent attorney who counsels the transferor about the nature and consequences of the intended transfer, attempts to determine if the intended consequence is the result of fraud, menace, duress, or undue influence, and signs and delivers a "Certificate of Independent Review" in substantially the form set forth in Prob. Code § 21351(b).

- After full disclosure of the relationships of the persons involved, the court approves the instrument by order under Prob. Code § 2580 et seq. (substituted judgment).

- The transferee is a federal, state, or local public entity, an entity thatqualifies for a charitable exemption from taxation under I.R.C. § 501(c)(3) or I.R.C. § 501(c)(19), or a trust holding an interest for this entity, but only to the extent of the interest of the entity, or the trustee of this trust.

A transfer also is not invalidated under Prob. Code § 21350 if the court determines, on clear and convincing evidence (but not based solely on the testimony of any person described in Prob. Code § 23150(a)), that the transfer was not the product of fraud, menace, duress, or undue influence [Prob. Code § 21351(d)]. If the court finds that the transfer was the product of fraud, menace, duress, or undue influence, the disqualified person must bear all costs of the proceeding, including reasonable attorney's fees [Prob. Code § 21351(d)]. This provision only applies to the following instruments:

- Any instrument other than one making a transfer to a person who drafted the instrument [Prob. Code §§ 21350(a)(1), 21351(e)(1)].

- Any instrument executed on or before July 1, 1993, by a person who was a California resident at the time the instrument was executed [Prob. Code § 23151(e)(2)].

- Any instrument executed by a California resident who was not a resident at the time the instrument was executed [Prob. Code § 21351(e)(3)].

For example, an attorney who drafts a client's trust so as to benefit himself or herself is conclusively disqualified under Prob. Code § 21351(e)(1); an attorney who drafts a client's trust so as to benefit one of the attorney's relatives or law partners is presumed to be disqualified, but this presumption is rebuttable under Prob. Code § 21351(d) by clear and convincing evidence other than the attorney's testimony that the client freely chose this disposition [Rice v. Clark (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 89, 98, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 522, 47 P.3d 300] .

Finally, a transfer is not invalidated under Prob. Code § 21350 if

- The transfer does not exceed $3,000 [Prob. Code § 21351(h)]. This provision is inapplicable if the total value of the property in the transferor's estate does not exceed the amount prescribed by Prob. Code § 13100, i.e., $100,000 [Prob. Code § 21351(h)].

- The transfer is made by an instrument executed by a nonresident of California who was not a resident at the time the instrument was executed, and that was not signed in California [Prob. Code § 21351(i); see also Estate of Clementi (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 375, 383, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 685 (Prob. Code § 21351(i) exempted testator's will from prohibition in Prob. Code § 21350 against donative transfers to the drafter of the will, since testator was nonresident of California when he signed will, even though he was a resident of California at time of his death)].

[4] Time for Commencement of Action to Establish Invalidity of Transfer

An action to establish the invalidity of a transfer under Prob. Code § 21350 can only be commenced within statutory time limits. If the transfer was by will, the action must be commenced after letters are first issued to a general representative and before an order for final distribution is made [Prob. Code § 21356(a)]. If the transfer is made by some instrument other than a will, it must be commenced within the later of three years after the transfer becomes irrevocable or three years from the date the person bringing the action discovers, or reasonably should have discovered, the facts material to the transfer [Prob. Code § 21356(b)].

[5] Professional Discipline

Any violation of Prob. Code §§ 21350-21356 by an attorney is grounds for professional discipline if the violation occurred on or after January 1, 1994, and the attorney knew or should have known of the facts leading to the violation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6103.6].

§ 560.15 Action to Contest Trust

[1] Contrasted with Will Contest

The comparative ease with which a will contest may be mounted traditionally has been cited as one of the advantages of choosing the inter vivos (or "living" trust) rather than a will as the primary vehicle of an estate plan. The Probate Code requires that when a petition is filed to probate a will, the testator's heirs be formally notified that if they object to the granting of the petition they should make their objections known to the court by either filing them in writing or personally appearing at the hearing to state them [Prob. Code § 8100]. An heir may initiate a will contest before or after probate, and the Probate Code contains special rules governing the pleadings, trial, evidence, and judgment in the contest proceeding [see Prob. Code §§ 8250-8272].

While a trust also may be contested, the specific procedures for doing so are not defined by statute. The mechanism for contesting a trust is an independent civil action, which is subject to the same rules as any other civil action. However, the procedural requirements have largely blunted the former differences between wills and inter vivos trusts in this regard, and made it somewhat easier to mount a contest of a trust. More importantly, perhaps, these requirements have made it more likely that an inter vivos trust will be contested after the settlor's death.

Before January 1, 1998, there was no requirement that after a settlor died, the settlor's heirs be notified of the existence or terms of the trust or of their right to bring an action to contest the trust. With the adoption of Prob. Code §§ 16051.5 and 16061.7, effective on that date, the trustee must provide a copy of the terms of the trust to any heir who requests it and serve a special notice, called "notification by trustee," on all of the heirs [for discussion of this requirements, see § 560.81].

If the notification by the trustee is served because a revocable trust or any portion of it has become irrevocable because of the death of one or more settlors of the trust, or because, by the express terms of the trust, the trust becomes irrevocable within oneyear of the death of a settlor because of a contingency related to the death of one or more of the settlors of the trust, the notification must include, among other things, a warning specifically referring to the heirs' right to bring an action to contest the trust [see Prob. Code § 16061.7(h)].

[2] Time Limits for Commencement

No person upon whom a notification by the trustee [see § 560.81] is served may bring an action to contest the trust more than 120 days from the date the notification by the trustee is served on him or her, or 60 days from the day on which a copy of the terms of the trust is mailed or personally delivered to him or her during that 120-day period, whichever is later [Prob. Code § 16061.8].

§ 560.16 No-Contest Clauses in Trust Instruments

[1] Nature and Validity

Trust instruments, like wills, frequently contain "no contest clauses" [see Colburn v. Northern Trust Co. (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 439, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 828 ; McIndoe v. Olivos (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 483, 485, 487-490, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 689 ; Nairne v. Jessop-Humblet (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 1124, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726]. A no contest clause in an instrument creates a condition on the gifts and dispositions provided for in the instrument [Burch v. George (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 246, 254, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165, 866 P.2d 92 ; Estate of Lindstrom (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 375, 381, 236 Cal. Rptr. 376]. In essence, a no contest clause conditions the rights of the devisees named in the instrument to take the devises provided for in the instrument on their acquiescence in its terms. To the extent that a particular devisee acquiesces in those terms, the devisee is entitled to take the devise; to the extent that the devisee does not acquiesce, the devisee cannot take [see Burch v. George (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 246, 254, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165, 866 P.2d 92].

The purpose of a no contest clause is to discourage will (or trust) contests by imposing a penalty of forfeiture against any beneficiary who challenges the will (or trust) [Estate of Gonzalez (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th, 1296, 1302, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 332]. A no contest clause also is known as an "in terrorem" clause. Although the rules governing no contest clauses originally were developed in connection with wills, they have been held applicable to no contest clauses in inter vivos trusts as well [see Scharlin v. Superior Court (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 162, 168-169, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 448].

No contest clauses are valid and enforceable in California [Burch v. George (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 246, 254, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165, 866 P.2d 92] to the extent permitted under the governing law [see [2], [3], below]. Rules relating to the enforcement of no contest clauses are codified in the Probate Code [see Prob. Code § 21310-21315]. For additional detailed discussion of the enforceability of no contest clauses, see Ch. 444, Probate: Will Contests, § 444.14.

[2] Enforcement of No Contest Clause Under Probate Code

[a] Applicable Law and Enforceability

The rules governing no contest clauses were significantly revised effective January 1, 2010 [Prob. Code § 21315; see

Prob. Code §§ 21310-21315]. The revised statute governs the enforcement of no contest clauses in "protected instruments" [see [c], below] that are filed on or after January 1, 2010, whenever executed, provided that the protected instrument became irrevocable on or after January 1, 2001 [Prob. Code § 21315]. Common law continues to govern no contest clauses in all other instruments [Prob. Code § 21315; see [3], below].

Under the revised rules, a no contest clause is enforceable only in three specific circumstances [Prob. Code § 21311(a)]:

- A direct contest brought without probable cause.
- A challenge to the transfer of property (provided the no contest clause provides).
- The filing of a creditor's claim (provided the no contest clause provides).

There is no opt-out provision in this statute. The provisions of Prob. Code §§ 21310-21315 apply notwithstanding any contrary provisions in an instrument [Prob. Code § 21314].

[b] No Contest Clause Defined

Under the Probate Code revision, a no contest clause is a provision in a valid instrument which, if enforced, would penalize a beneficiary for filing a pleading in any court [Prob. Code § 21310(c)]. A pleading is a petition, complaint, cross-complaint, objection, answer, response, or claim [Prob. Code § 21310(d)].

[c] Protected Instrument

The Probate Code allows the enforcement of a no contest clause only with respect to a "protected instrument" [see Prob. Code §§ 21310, 21311]. "Protected instrument" means the following [Prob. Code § 21310(e)]:

- The instrument containing the no contest clause; or
- An instrument that is in existence on the date the instrument containing the no contest clause is executed and is expressly identified in the no contest clause, either individually or as part of an identifiable class of instruments, as being governed by the no contest clause.

Since a no contest clause cannot apply to future instruments [see Prob. Code § 21310(e)(2)], each amendment of existing instruments should contain its own no contest clause if one is desired. A commonly used statement in amendments that the settlor confirms and ratifies the original trust agreement is inadequate to incorporate the no contest clause into the amendment [see Prob. Code § 21310(e), see also Perrin v. Lee (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 1239, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 885 (no contest clause did not apply to amendment when amendment stated that grantor and trustee confirmed and ratified original trust agreement because former Prob. Code § 21305(a) required that no contest clause must explicitly state that challenging validity of amendment is a violation of the clause)].

It is also important to clarify whether or not a testamentary trust created under a will that contains a no contest clause is subject to a no contest provision. Any no contest clause applicable to the trust should be separately contained in the trust terms as recited in the order for distribution entered in the probate proceeding [Meyer v. Meyer (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 983, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 546 (no contest clause had not been incorporated by reference into the testamentary trust because the decrees of distribution specifying the terms of the testamentary trust did not include the will's no contest clause as one of those terms)].

[d] Direct Contest

A no contest clause is enforceable in a direct contest that is brought without probable cause [Prob. Code § 21311(a)(1)]. A direct contest is one that alleges the invalidity of a protected instrument or one or more of its terms based on any of the following [Prob. Code §21310(b)]:

- Forgery.
- Lack of due execution.
- Lack of capacity.
- Menace, duress, fraud, or undue influence.
- Revocation of a will pursuant to Prob. Code § 6120, revocation of a trust pursuant to Prob. Code § 15401, or revocation of an instrument other than a will or trust pursuant to the procedure for revocation that is provided by statute or by the instrument.
- Disqualification of a beneficiary under Prob. Code §§ 6112, 21350.

Probable cause exists if, at the time of filing a contest, the facts known to the contestant would cause a reasonable person to believe that there is a reasonable opportunity for further investigation or discovery [Prob. Code § 21311(b)].

[e] Challenge to Transfer of Property

A no contest clause also is enforceable against a pleading challenging the transfer of property on the grounds that it was not the transferor's property at the time of the transfer (a "forced election"), as long as the no contest clause expressly so provides [Prob. Code § 21311(a)(2)]. In this type of contest, probable cause is irrelevant, and the forced election may be applicable to anyone [see Prob. Code § 21311(a)(2)].

[f] Creditor's Claim

A no contest clause also is enforceable against the filing of a creditor's claim or prosecution of an action based on it, as long as the no contest clause expressly provides for such an application of the clause [Prob. Code § 21311(a)(3)]. In this type of contest, probable cause is also irrelevant [see Prob. Code § 21311(a)(3)].

[g] Declaratory Relief Unavailable

Under former law, declaratory relief was available to determine whether a proposed challenge to an instrument violated a no contest clause [see former Prob. Code §21320]. Such relief is no longer available under the revised statutes effective January 1, 2010 [see Prob. Code §§ 21310-21315].

[3] Enforcement of No Contest Clauses Under Common Law

[a] In General

For contests of a will or trust that contain a no contest clause, but are not governed by the revisions of Prob. Code § 21310 et seq. [see [2][a], above], common law continues to apply. Whether there has been a "contest" within the meaning of the language of a no contest clause is to be determined according to the circumstances of each case and the language used [Estate of Strader (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 996, 1003, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 649 ; Nairne v. Jessop-Humblet (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 1124, 1128, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726].

Factors relevant to determining whether a claim involving the characterization, inclusion, or distribution of a certain item of property in a testamentary instrument is a contest include [Nairne v. Jessop-Humblet (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 1124, 1129, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726]:

- The particular language of the no contest clause.
- Whether the instrument specifies the property and its distribution.
- Whether the instrument specifically characterizes the property, e.g., as separate versus community property.
- Whether the challenge, if successful, would thwart the testator's intent.

[b] Indirect Attack

Under common law, an indirect attack in a separate proceeding that nullifies or thwarts the express wishes of the creator of the instrument may constitute a "contest" for purposes of a no contest clause; for example:

- A proposed federal complaint by a surviving spouse against pension plan administrators to assert community property rights to plan benefits that had been transferred to a trust [see Burch v. George (1994) 7 Cal. 4th, 246, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165, 866 P.2d 92].
- A no contest clause in a trust instrument that applied to any attempt to "impair" the trust extended to a trust beneficiary's adjustment petition under the California Uniform Principal and Income Act to reallocate principal and income, when reallocation would have resulted in more income to beneficiary than allowed by trust and invasion of trust principal reserved to other beneficiaries [Mc Kenzie v. Vanderpoel (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1442, 1454, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 129].
- A beneficiary's petition to recharacterize property that had been specifically characterized by settlors [Estate of Pittman (1997) 63 Cal. App. 4th, 290, 298-305, 73 Cal Rptr. 2d 622].
- A proposed challenge by a surviving spouse to a corporate stock redemption agreement that was a "cornerstone" of the decedent's integrated estate plan [Genger v. Delsol (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1410, 1428-1429, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 527 ; but see Jacobs-Zorne v. Superior Court (1966) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1064, 1075, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 385 (thwarting of testator's intent not appropriate test in determining whether no contest clause has been triggered)].

[c] Oral Contract

Although some older cases suggest that actions seeking to enforce an oral contract independent of a testamentary instrument do not constitute "contests" [see Estate of Watson (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 569, 573-574, 223 Cal. Rptr. 14 ; Estate of Black (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 582, 591, 206 Cal. Rptr. 663], the California Supreme Court has clearly indicated that there is no "categorical proposition that any proceeding based upon a claim of right independent of a will or trust instrument is never a contest for purposes of the no contest law" [Burch v. George (1994) 7 Cal. 4th, 246, 261, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165, 866 P.2d 92] . As a result, more recent cases have held that a complaint seeking to establish and enforce an oral contract based on a right independent of a testamentary instrument may constitute a contest within the meaning of a no contest provision in that instrument [Nairne v. Jessop-Humblet (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 1124, 1129-1131, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726 (complaint alleging that settlors had orally agreed to give specified property to plaintiff and therefore that property should not have been included in trust violated no contest clause in trust because it directly attacked provision of trust that identified and disposed of this property)].

[d] Interpretation

A judicial action seeking an interpretation of a will or other dispositive instrument is not an attack on the instrument and does not constitute a contest of the instrument. It is merely an effort to ascertain the true intentions of the author of the instrument [Graham v. Lenzi (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th, 248, 258, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 407]. A petition seeking to interpret a will generally does not violate a no contest clause because, rather than thwarting the testator's dispositive intent, the proceeding serves to ascertain and enforce that intent [Estate of Strader (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 996, 1004, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 649].

[e] Challenge on Grounds of Duress or Undue Influence Is Not Contest

A proposed challenge to the validity of a trust amendment on the ground of duress or undue influence does not constitute a contest within the meaning of a no contest clause because it is an attack on the circumstances under which the trust amendment was created, not on the settlor's power to amend the instrument [Scharlin v. Superior Court (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 162, 169-170, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 448].

[f] Contest of One Subtrust May Not Invalidate Other Subtrusts

In a typical multi-trust estate plan, the contest of one of the trusts or subtrusts does not automatically trigger a no contest clause as to other subtrusts. In one case involving a typical living trust arrangement under which the trusts was divided into two trusts on the death of the first settlor, the court held that a petition contesting an amendment that the surviving settlor made to Trust A (the survivor's trust) after the first settlor's death did not constitute a contest of Trust B for purposes of the no contest clause in the trust instrument [Scharlin v. Superior Court (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 162, 170, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 448].

[4] Strict Construction

The strict statutory rules regarding no contest clauses reflect the general doctrine that no contest clauses are disfavored by the public policy against forfeiture [McIndoe v. Olivos (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 483, 487, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 689 ; Estate of Richter (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 1361, 1367, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108 ; Scharlin v. Superior Court (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 162, 168-169, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 448]. Accordingly, under both the Probate Code and common law, no contest clauses must be strictly construed and cannot be extended beyond what the settler or testator (as the case may be) clearly intended by the wording of the governing document [see Prob. Code 21312; see also Meyer v. Meyer (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 983, 998, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 546 ; Zwirn v. Schweizer (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1153, 1159, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 527 ; Nairne v. Jessop-Humblet (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 1124, 1128, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726 ; see also Scharlin v. Superior Court (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 162, 168-69, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 448 (rule of strict construction applies to no contest clauses in inter vivos trusts as well as in wills)]. Under the common law, a beneficiary will be found to have violated a no contest clause only if the beneficiary's action clearly falls within the terms of the clause, and the penalty will be imposed only if it is found that the beneficiary's act clearly was intended by the settlor or testator to require the imposition of the penalty [Estate of Rossi (2006) 138 Cal. App. 1325, 1338, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 244 ; McIndoe v. Olivos (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 483, 487, 489, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 689 ; Estate of Richter (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 1361, 1367, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108 ; Scharlin v. Superior Court (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 162, 168-169, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 448] . Although these basic rules were developed in connection with no contest clauses in wills, they have been held applicable to no contest clauses in inter vivos trusts as well [see Scharlin v. Superior Court (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 162, 168-169, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 448].

Thus, for example, a testator could permissively provide that three of his five children would all lose their testamentary gifts under a trust if any one of them contested it [Tunstall v. Wells (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th, 554, 557-558, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 468]. The court concluded that the no contest clause did not violate public policy, and reasoned that the decedent's intentions to impose conditions on the gifts of the three children were within his rights as a testator [Tunstall

v. Wells (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th, 554, 557-558, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 468]. Similarly, a no contest clause in a testamentary trust was upheld although it forced the settlor's former wife and their children to choose between enforcing their rights under an existing martial dissolution judgment by filing creditor's claims, or relinquishing those rights and taking the gifts provided for them in the settlor's trust [Colburn v. Northern Trust Co. (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 439, 447, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 828]. Also upheld was a clause in a trust instrument that applied to any attempt to "impair" the trust, which was held applicable to the trust beneficiary's adjustment petition under the California Uniform Principal and Income Act to reallocate principal and income, when the reallocation would have resulted in more income to the beneficiary than was allowed by the trust and the invasion of trust principal reserved to other beneficiaries [McKenzie v. Vanderpoel (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1442, 1454, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 129].

Extrinsic evidence on the testator's intended meaning of the no contest clause is admissible if it is relevant to show a meaning to which the language is reasonably susceptible [Estate of Kaila (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 1122, 1132, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 865]. However, consideration of extrinsic evidence does not necessarily require a determination of an action on the merits that would preclude relief [Estate of Kaila (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 1122, 1136, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 865].

[5] Review of Determination

A court order determining whether a particular motion, petition, or other act by the beneficiary would constitute a contest within the terms of the no contest clause is appealable [Prob. Code § 1303(j), see Estate of Hoffman (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 1436, 1438 n.1, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 248].

Cases have held that, given the short filing times in many probate matters and the need for timely and orderly administration of estates, appeal may constitute an inadequate legal remedy. Under these circumstances, a writ of mandate would be the appropriate remedy for reviewing the court's order [see Varney v. Superior Court (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1092, 1098, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 865 ; Scharlin v. Superior Court (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 162, 167, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 448].

§ 560.17 Applicability of Trust Law

A comprehensive body of statutes governing trusts was adopted in California in 1987 on the recommendation of the California Law Revision Commission. These statutes, collectively referred to as the Trust Law, prescribe detailed rules for the creation, validity, modification, and termination of trusts. Unless otherwise provided by statute, the Trust Law applies to the following:

- All trusts, regardless of when they were created [Prob. Code § 15001(a)].

- All proceedings concerning trusts commenced on or after July 1, 1987 [Prob. Code § 15001(b)].

- All proceedings concerning trusts commenced before July 1, 1987, unless in the opinion of the court application of a particular provision of the Trust Law would substantially interfere with the effective conduct of the proceedings or the rights of the parties and other interested persons, in which case the particular provision of the Trust Law does not apply and law applicable before July 1, 1987, applies [Prob. Code § 15001(c)].

- Charitable trusts subject to the jurisdiction of the Attorney General, to the extent that the application of the provision is not in conflict with the Uniform Supervision of Trustees for Charitable Purposes Act [Prob. Code§ 15004; see Gov. Code § 12580 et seq. (Uniform Supervision of Trustees for Charitable Purposes Act)].

Except to the extent that the common law rules governing trusts are modified by statute, the common law regarding trusts is the law of California [Prob. Code § 15002].

The Trust Law does not apply to the following:

- Constructive trusts, other than those described in Prob. Code § 82(a)(2), and resulting trusts [Prob. Code §§ 82(b)(1), 15003(a); see Ch. 561, Trusts: Constructive Trusts and Ch. 502, Trusts: Resulting Trusts , respectively].

- Guardianships, conservatorships, or personal representatives [*Prob. - Totten trust accounts [see Prob. Code § 82(b)(4); see § 560.340 et seq.].

- Custodial arrangements pursuant to the Uniform Gifts to Minors Act or the Uniform Transfers to Minors Act of any state [Prob. Code § 82(b)(5); see, e.g., Prob. Code §§ 3900-3925 (California Uniform Transfers to Minors Act, incorporating former California Uniform Gifts to Minors Act)].

- Business trusts that are taxed as partnerships or corporations [Prob. Code § 82(b)(6)].

- Investment trusts subject to regulation under the laws of California or any other jurisdiction [Prob. Code § 82(b)(7)].

- Common trust funds [Prob. Code § 82(b)(8)].

- Voting trusts or security arrangements [Prob. Code § 82(b)(9), (10); see Corp. Code § 703; see also Ch. 166, Corporations : Shareholders' Meetings and Voting].

- Transfers in trust for the purpose of suit or enforcement of a claim or right [Prob. Code § 82(b)(11)].

- Liquidation trusts [Prob. Code § 82(b)(12)].

- Trusts for the primary purpose of paying debts, dividends, interest, salaries, wages, profits, pensions, or employee benefits of any kind [Prob. Code § 82(b)(13)].

- Any arrangement under which a person is nominee or escrowee for another [Prob. Code § 82(b)(14)].

In addition, nothing in the Trust Law affects the substantive law relating to constructive or resulting trusts [Prob. Code § 15003(a)].

The 1986 repeal of Civ. Code §§ 2215-2290.12 was not intended to alter the rules applied by the courts to fiduciary and confidential relationships, except as to express trusts governed by the Trust Law [Prob. Code § 15003(b)].

Nothing in the Trust Law or in *Prob. [1] Revocation

The manner of revocation of a trust revocable by the settlor that was created by an instrument executed before July 1, 1987, is governed by prior law and not by Prob. Code § 15401 [Prob. Code § 15401(e); see § 560.111[3]].

[2] Trustee's Duty to Account Annually

A trustee of a living trust created by an instrument executed before July 1, 1987, or of a trust created by a will executed before July 1, 1987, is not subject to the duty to account provided in Prob. Code § 16061, but the requirement of an account pursuant to former Prob. Code § 1120.1a (regarding trusts created by wills executed prior to July 1, 1977) may be satisfied by furnishing an account that satisfies the requirement of Prob. Code § 16063 [Prob. Code § 16062(b); see § 560.80].

[3] Trustee's Liability

The liability of a trustee for acts or omissions of agents that occurred before July 1, 1987, is governed by prior law and not by Prob. Code § 16401 [Prob. Code § 16401(c)]. Moreover, the personal liability of a trustee on a contract entered into before July 1, 1987, is governed by prior law and not by Prob. Code § 18000 [Prob. Code § 18000(b)]. A trust may be created by any of the following methods, subject to other provisions of Prob. Code §§ 15200-15212 [Prob. Code § 15200]:

- A declaration by the owner of property that the owner holds the property as trustee [see Prob. Code §§ 15206 (Statute of Frauds), 15207 (oral trust of personal property)].

- A transfer of property by the owner during the owner's lifetime to another person as trustee.

- A transfer of property by the owner, by will or by other instrument taking effect on the death of the owner, to another person as trustee.

- An exercise of a power of appointment to another person as trustee.

- An enforceable promise to create a trust [see Prob. Code §§ 15206 (Statute of Frauds), 15207 (oral trust of personal property)].

A trust created under Prob. Code §§ 15200-15210 that relates to real property may be recorded in the county where all or part of the real property is located [Prob. Code § 15210].

1. Creation And Validity Of Express Trust

49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.42

§ 560.42 Requirements for Valid Trust

[1] Intention to Create Trust

A trust is created only if the settlor properly manifests an intention to create a trust [Prob. Code § 15201; see Prob. Code §§ 15206 (Statute of Frauds), 15207 (oral trust of personal property)].

[2] Trust Property

A trust is created only if there is trust property [Prob. Code § 15202].

A declaration by the settlors that they hold property in trust for another is sufficient to transfer real property to a trust. It is not necessary to record a deed from real property owners to a trust or to the trustees, or to record the trust [Estate of Powell (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1434, 1443, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 501] .

The following are examples of interests that can be held in trust:

- Any property that can be voluntarily transferred by the owner [see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 78].

- Property that is not transferable for a reason applicable only to the transfer of the legal title to the property [see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 80].

- An interest that is of the character that a person holding it for his or her own benefit could not transfer it, if it is created in trust, or it accrues to a trustee of a trust already created [see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 81].

- Interests in intangible things, if transferable [see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 82].

- An equitable interest, if transferable [see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 83].

- An interest that is subject to divestment, if transferable [see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 84].

- A contingent interest, if transferable [see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 85].

- An interest in a thing, although the interest is not the complete property in the thing [see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 77].

The following are examples of interests that cannot be held in trust:

- An interest that has not come into existence or that has ceased to exist [see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 75].

- Subject matter that is not definite or definitely ascertainable [see Reagh v. Kelley (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 1082, 1089, 89 Cal. Rptr. 425 (property must be described with certainty)].

- Property that the owner cannot transfer, except as enumerated under items (2) and (3) of the preceding paragraph [see Strauss v. Summerhays (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 806, 816, 204 Cal. Rptr. 227 (property generally mustbe transferable); Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 79].

- An expectation or hope of receiving property in the future [see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 86].

For discussion of contingent interests, see § 560.49.

[3] Ascertainable Beneficiary

A trust, other than a charitable trust, is created only if there is a beneficiary. The instrument therefore must provide either (1) a beneficiary or class of beneficiaries that is ascertainable with reasonable certainty or that is sufficiently described so it can be determined that some person meets the description or is within the class; or (2) a grant of a power to the trustee or some other person to select the beneficiaries based on a standard or in the discretion of the trustee or other person [Prob. Code § 15205]. For a definition of a beneficiary, see § 560.13[3].

[4] Resulting Trust Created on Failure of Express Trust

An attempt to create an express trust that fails to satisfy all the requirements may nevertheless establish an enforceable resulting trust [see Sears v. Rule (1941) 45 Cal. App. 2d 374, 379, 114 P.2d 57] . For further discussion, see Ch. 562, Trusts: Resulting Trusts .

§ 560.43 Action by Settlor

A settlor who seeks court determination regarding the internal affairs or existence of the trust may bring a petition pursuant to Prob. Code § 17200 if the trust is revocable and the settlor holds the present power to revoke [see Prob. Code §§ 15800 (person holding power to revoke has rights of beneficiary), 17200(a) (standing afforded to beneficiary and trustee generally)]. However, if the trust is not revocable, or it is revocable but the settlor does not hold the present power to revoke, a settlor must bring a plenary action under the Civil Code and Code of Civil Procedure [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10 (civil complaint) and see § 560.520].

A settlor unable to bring a petition in the probate court can bring a plenary action in the superior court, because the superior court traditionally has jurisdiction over matters regarding a trust [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10 (superior court jurisdiction over all causes not given to other courts); see also St. James Church v. Superior Court (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 352, 358, 287 P.2d 387 (superior court jurisdiction to hear equitable actions); but see Prob. Code § 17000 (exclusive jurisdiction of probate court regarding Prob. Code § 17000 et seq.). Inasmuch as suits in equity do not afford a right to jury trial, actions to determine the nature of the trust, or the interpretation or effect of its terms, are within the sole province of the court sitting without a jury [Hillman v. Stults (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 848, 877, 70 Cal. Rptr. 295] . For discussion of venue provisions generally, see Ch. 571, Venue, §§ 571.10 et seq.

§ 560.45 Purpose of Trust

A trust may be created for any purpose that is not illegal or against public policy [Prob. Code § 15203].

A trust created for an indefinite or general purpose is not invalid for that reason if it can be determined with reasonable certainty that a particular use of the trust property comes within that purpose [Prob. Code § 15204]. The intent of the legislature in enacting Prob. Code § 15204 was to harmonize the law of trusts and powers in order to effectuate the settlor's intent, because failures at attempts to establish trusts under previous law were often nevertheless upheld as valid powers of appointment [see Recommendation Proposing the Trust Law, 18 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports 527 (1986); see, e.g., Estate of Davis (1936) 13 Cal. App. 2d 64, 69, 56 P.2d 584 (testamentary trust for distribution to certain issue at discretion of son as trustee upheld as power of appointment)].

A trust in relation to real property is not valid unless evidenced by one of the following methods [Prob. Code § 15206]:

- A written instrument signed by the trustee, or by the trustee's agent if authorized in writing to do so.
- A written instrument conveying the trust property signed by the settlor, or by the settlor's agent if authorized in writing to do so.
- Operation of law.

All of the conditions and terms of a trust in real property need not be expressed in a single document [Reagh v. Kelley (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 1082, 1090, 89 Cal. Rptr. 425] . A trust in real property that violates the Statute of Frauds may subsequently become valid and binding if possession is taken or the transfer of property has been fully executed. A person who complies with its provisions cannot later attack its validity on the ground that it was an orally executed trust proved by parol evidence [Casa Colina Convalescent Home v. Wiest (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 161, 165, 166, 29 Cal. Rptr. 407] . For a form for a petition for useby a beneficiary to enforce an oral trust in real property, see § 560.550.

§ 560.47 Oral Trust of Personal Property

The existence and terms of an oral trust of personal property may be established only by clear and convincing evidence. The oral declaration of the settlor, standing alone, is not sufficient evidence of the creation of a trust of personal property. In the case of an oral trust, a reference in Prob. Code § 15000 et seq. or elsewhere to a trust instrument of declaration means the terms of the trust as established pursuant to Prob. Code § 15207(a) [Prob. Code § 15207]. Required proof of the existence of an oral trust may be indirect, consisting of acts, conduct, and circumstances, and no particular terminology is needed [Fahrney v. Wilson (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 694, 697, 4 Cal. Rptr. 670] . However, the clear and convincing evidence rule applies only at the trial level. On review, it is assumed that the trial court applied the proper standard, and the judgment will not be upset if there is substantial evidence to support it [California Pac. Title Co. v. Moore (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 114, 117, 40 Cal. Rptr. 61] .

Nothing under Prob. Code § 15207 (or in the entire Trust Law) affects the substantive law concerning constructive trusts [see Prob. Code § 15003(a)].

[1] In General

When the legal and equitable title to trust property are vested in the same person, the doctrine of merger operates to terminate the trust [Estate of Washburn (1909) 11 Cal. App. 735, 746, 106 P. 415 ; see General Introduction under § 560.11].

[2] Exception

If a trust provides for one or more successor beneficiaries after the death of the settlor, the trust is not invalid, merged, or terminated in either of the following circumstances [Prob. Code § 15209]:

- When there is one settlor who is the sole trustee and the sole beneficiary during the settlor's lifetime.

- When there are two or more settlors, one or more of whom are trustees, and the beneficial interest in the trust is in one or more of the settlors during the lifetime of the settlors.

1. Creation And Validity Of Express Trust

49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.49

§ 560.49 Rule Against Perpetuities

[1] General Application to Trusts

A contingent interest or an expectancy based on an existing contract may be the subject of a trust [Bank of California v. Connolly (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 350, 373, 111 Cal. Rptr. 468] . If a trust involves a contingent interest or an expectancy based on an existing contract, the interest must vest within the time limits set forth in the rule against perpetuities [see Civ. Code § 711 (when restraint of alienation is void); Prob. Code §§ 15211, 15212, 15413, 15414, 21200 et seq. (Rule Against Perpetuities and related provisions governing trusts)].

In 1991, the Legislature adopted the Uniform Statutory Rule Against Perpetuities [see Prob. Code § 21200 et seq.]. Prob. Code § 21200 et seq. apply to nonvested property interests and unexercised powers of appointment regardless of when they were created, and supersede former Civ. Code § 715.2, the common law rule against perpetuities [Prob. Code §§ 21201, 21202(a)]. Prob. Code § 21200 et seq. do not apply however, to any property interest or power of appointment the validity of which has been determined in a judicial proceeding or by a settlement among interested persons [Prob. Code § 21202(b)]. It must be emphasized that the rule against perpetuities applies only to the vesting of future estates, and not to vested estates. If the rule does apply to a trust, that is, if a trust involves the vesting of a future estate, both the legal title in the trustee and the equitable title in the beneficiary must vest within the time limits of the rule [Reagh v. Kelley (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 1082, 1097, 89 Cal. Rptr. 425] .

[2] Period Within Which Interest Must Vest

The rule against perpetuities states that a nonvested property interest is invalid unless one of the following conditions is satisfied [Prob. Code § 21205]:

- When the interst is created, it is certain to vest or terminate no later than 21 years after the death of an individual then alive; or

- The interest either vests or terminates within 90 years after its creation.

In determining whether a nonvested property interest is valid under the rule against perpetuities, the possibility that a child will be born to an individual after the individual's death is disregarded [Prob. Code § 21208]. In addition, an individual described as the spouse of an individual alive at the commencement of the perpetuities period will be deemed to be an individual alive when the interest is created, whether or not the individual so described was then alive [Prob. Code § 21231]. The lives of individuals selected to govern the time of vesting may not be so numerous or so situated that evidence of their deaths is likely to be unreasonably difficult to obtain [Prob. Code § 21230].

With respect to governing instruments executed on or after January 1, 1992, in measuring a period from the creation of a trust, if language in a governing instrument seeks to disallow the vesting or termination of any interest or trust beyond, to postpone the vesting or termination of any interest or trust until, or to operate in effect in any similar fashion on the later of (1) the expiration of a periodof time not exceeding 21 years after the death of the survivor of specified lives in being at the creation of the trust or (2) the expiration of a period of time that exceeds or might exceed 21 years after the death of the survivor of lives in being at the creation of the trust, that language is inoperative to the extent it produces a period that exceeds 21 years after the death of the survivor of the specified lives [Prob. Code § 21209].

[3] Time of Creation of Interest

In general, the time of creation of a nonvested property interest is determined by other applicable statutes or, if none, under general principles of property law [Prob. Code § 21210].

If there is a person who alone can exercise a power created by a governing instrument to become the unqualified beneficial owner of a nonvested property interest or a property interest subject to a power of appointment, the nonvested property interest or power of appointment is created when the power to become the unqualified beneficial owner terminates [Prob. Code § 21211(a)]. A joint power with respect to community property held by individuals married to each other is a power exercisable by one person alone [Prob. Code § 21211(b)].

A nonvested property interest or power of appointment arising from a transfer of property to a previously funded trust is created when the nonvested property interest or power of appointment in the original contribution was created [Prob. Code § 21212].

[4] Honorary Trusts

A trust for a noncharitable corporation or unincorporated society or for a lawful noncharitable purpose may be performed by the trustee for only 21 years, whether or not there is a beneficiary who can seek enforcement or termination of the trust and whether or not the terms of the trust contemplate a longer duration [Prob. Code § 15211].

[5] Trust for Care of Designated Animal

A trust for the care of a designated domestic or pet animal may be performed by the trustee for the life of the animal, whether or not there is a beneficiary who can seek enforcement or termination of the trust and whether or not the terms of the trust contemplate a longer duration [Prob. Code § 15212].

[6] Accumulation of Trust Income

A direction for the accumulation of the income of property is subject to the rule against perpetuities [see Prob. Code § 12200 et seq. (Rule Against Perpetuities); see also Civ. Code § 723 (accumulations otherwise void)]. An accumulation of income of property directed by any will, trust, or transfer in writing sufficient to pass the property or create the trust out of which the fund is to arise, for the benefit of one or more persons, is valid if it does not extend beyond the time permitted for the vesting of future interests [Civ. Code § 724(a)]. Nevertheless, the income arising from real or personal property held in a trust forming part of a profit-sharing plan of an employer for the exclusive benefit of its employees or their beneficiaries or forming part of a retirement plan formed primarily for the purpose of providing benefits for employees on or after retirement may be permitted to accumulate until the fund is sufficient, in the opinion of the trustee or trustees, to accomplish the purposes of the trust [Civ. Code § 724(b)].

When one or more persons for whose benefit an accumulation of income has been directed is or are destitute of other sufficient means of support or education, the proper court, on application, may direct a suitable sum to be applied thereto out of the fund directed to be accumulated for the benefit of that person or persons [Civ. Code § 726]. For a form for a petition to modify the trust to allow distribution of accumulated trust income from trust property, see § 560.580.

[7] Interests Excluded From Rule

Some interests are specifically excluded from the scope of the rule against perpetuities [see Prob. Code § 21225]. Among the interests excluded are nonvested property interests in certain trusts forming part of pension, profit-sharing, stock bonus, health, disability, death benefit, income deferral, or other benefit plans [see Prob. Code § 21225(f)]. Also excluded are trusts created for the purpose of providing for the beneficiaries under hospital service contracts, group life insurance, group disability insurance, group annuities, or any combination of such insurance [Prob. Code § 21225(h)].

[8] Termination of Trust After Expiration of Perpetuity Period

Notwithstanding the general rules of trust termination [see Prob. Code § 15400 et seq.; see also discussion in § 560.110 et seq.], if a trust continues in existence after expiration of the longer of the periods provided by the rule against perpetuities, the trust may be terminated on petition by a majority of the beneficiaries, or on petition by the Attorney General or any person who would be affected by the termination, if the court finds that the termination would be in the public interest or in the best interest of a majority of the persons who would be affected by the termination [Prob. Code § 15414; see also Prob. Code § 21200 et seq. (rule against perpetuities; discussed in § 560.49[2])]. A trust provision, express or implied, that the trust may not be terminated is ineffective insofar as it purports to be applicable after the expiration of the longer of the periods provided by the rule against perpetuities [Prob. Code § 15413].

[9] Reformation

On petition of an interested person, a court will reform a disposition in themanner that most closely approximates the transferor's manifested plan of distribution and is within the 90 years allowed by the rule against perpetuities, if any of the following conditions is satisfied [Prob. Code § 21220; see also Prob. Code § 21200 et seq., discussed in § 560.49[2])]:

- A nonvested property interest or a power of appointment becomes invalid under the rule against perpetuities;

- A class gift is not, but might become, invalid under the rule against perpetuities and the time has arrived when the share of any class member is to take effect in possession or enjoyment; or

- A nonvested property interest that is not validated by Prob. Code § 21205(a) (no later than 21 years after death of individual alive at creation of interest; for discussion, see § 560.49[2]) can vest, but not within 90 years after its creation.

§ 560.73 Trustee's Bond and Certificate

A trustee is not required to give a bond to secure performance of the trustee's duties, unless any of the following circumstances occurs [Prob. Code § 15602(a)]:

- A bond is required by the trust instrument.

- Notwithstanding a waiver of a bond in the trust instrument, the court finds a bond to be necessary to protect the interests of beneficiaries or other persons having an interest in the trust.

- An individual who is not named as a trustee in the trust instrument is appointed as a trustee by the court.

Notwithstanding Prob. Code § 15602(a)(1) and (3), the court may excuse a bond requirement, reduce or increase the amount of a bond, release a surety, or permit the substitution of another bond with the same or different sureties [Prob. Code § 15602(b)]. However, the court may not excuse the requirement of a bondfor an individual who is not named as a trustee in the trust instrument that the court appoints as trustee, except under compelling circumstances. A request by all of the adult beneficiaries of a trust that the bond be waived for this individual constitutes a compelling circumstance [Prob. Code § 15602(b)].

If a bond is required, it must be filed or served and must be in the amount and with sureties and liabilities ordered by the court [Prob. Code § 15602(c)]. Except as otherwise provided in the trust instrument or ordered by the court, the cost of the bond will be charged against the trust [Prob. Code § 15602(d)]. A trust company may not be required to give a bond, even if the trust instrument requires one [Prob. Code § 15602(e)].

On application by the trustee, the court clerk must issue a certificate that the trustee is a duly appointed and acting trustee under the trust if the court file shows the incumbency of the trustee [Prob. Code § 15603].

§ 560.74 Professional Fiduciaries Act

[1] Professional Fiduciary

Trustees who are professional fiduciaries are required to comply with the Professional Fiduciaries Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6500 et seq.; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6530(a), Prob. Code § 60.1]. In the context of trustees, a "professional fiduciary" is anyone who acts as a trustee, agent under a durable power of attorney for health care, or agent under a durable power of attorney for finances, for more than three people or more than three families or a combination of people and families that totals more than three, at the same time, who are not related to the professional fiduciary by blood, adoption, marriage, or registered domestic partnership [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6501(f); for discussion of the definition of "professional fiduciary" in the context of guardians and conservators, see Ch. 281, Guardianship and Conservatorship: Appointment of Conservators, § 281.66].

The following are specifically exempted from the licensing requirements [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6501(f)(4), 6530(b)-(d)]:

- Trust companies [see Prob. Code § 83 (definition)].

- FDIC-insured institutions, or their holding companies, subsidiaries or affiliates.

Code § 25000 et seq.*], the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 [15 U.S.C. 80b-1 et seq.], or the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 [15 U.S.C. 78a et seq.], or involves serving as a trustee to a company regulated by the Securities and Exchange Commission under the Investment Company Act of 1940 [15 U.S.C. 80a-1 et seq.].

- Any licensed attorney.

- Any licensed certified public accountant;

- Any Internal Revenue Service agent acting within the scope of practice.

[2] Licensing Requirements

No person may act or hold himself or herself out to the public as a professional fiduciary unless he or she is licensed as a professional fiduciary under the Act [Prob. Code § 60.1(b)]. Persons previously required to register with the statewide registry under Prob. Code § 2850 et seq. (inoperative 7/1/2008, repealed eff. 1/1/2009), and persons required to file information with the clerk of the court under the former version of Prob. Code § 2340 et seq. (inoperative 7/1/2008; repealed eff. 1/1/2009) are required to obtain a professional fiduciary license [Bus & Prof. Code § 6502].

The Professional Fiduciaries Bureau is responsible for administering the licensing and regulatory program established under the Act, approving classes for prelicense and continuing education, and preparing and administering licensing exams [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6518; see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6510, 6511 (creation of Bureau)]. Applications for a professional fiduciary license can be obtained online, through the California Department of Consumer Affairs, at http://www.fiduciary.ca.gov/. The Bureau may investigate an applicant's qualifications, and must approve applicants who meet the required qualifications [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6536].

[4] License Renewal

A professional fiduciary license is valid for one year [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6541(a)]. To renew the license, a professional fiduciary must file a renewal application, continuing education compliance, and the renewal fee [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6561, 6538(b), 6541(b)]. Conduct that would result in a refusal of a license renewal is similar to the conduct that would result in a license denial, and includes the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6541(b)]:

A professional fiduciary also must submit a statement, initially and annually thereafter [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6561(a)]. - The fiduciary's business address, phone, and fax number.

- Whether or not the fiduciary has been removed as conservator, guardian, trustee or personal representative for cause.

- Any licenses or professional certificates held.

- Any ownership or beneficial interests in any businesses or other enterprises held by the fiduciary or by a family member who receives or has received payment from a client of the fiduciary.

- Whether the fiduciary has ever filed for bankruptcy or held a controlling financial interest in a business that filed for bankruptcy.

- The name of any persons or entities that have an interest in the fiduciary's professional fiduciary business.

- Whether the fiduciary has been convicted of a crime.

[6] Suspension, Revocation, Denial, and Disciplinary Action

The Bureau has the authority to investigate the actions of any professional fiduciary [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6580(a)]. Sanctions may include administrative citations and fines, license suspension or probation, or license revocation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6580(b)]. A license may be suspended, revoked, or denied, or other disciplinary action may be imposed for one or more of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6584]:

- Conviction of any felony or misdemeanor, if the misdemeanor is substantially related to the functions and duties of a professional fiduciary.

- Failure to notify the bureau of a conviction [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6561(a)(10)].

- Fraud or misrepresentation in obtaining a license.

- Fraud, dishonesty, corruption, willful violation of duty, gross negligence or incompetence in practice, or unprofessional conduct in, or related to, the practice of a professional fiduciary.

- Failure to comply with, or to pay a monetary sanction imposed by a court for failure to provide timely reports.

- Failure to pay a civil penalty relating to the licensee's professional fiduciary duties.

- The revocation of, suspension of, or other disciplinary action against, any other professional license by the State of California or by another state; Violation of this Bus. Prof. Code § 6500 et seq., Probate Code § 4000 et seq., Probate Code § 4600 et seq., Probate Code § 5000 et seq., or any of the statutes, rules, or regulations pertaining to the duties or functions of a professional fiduciary.

The Bureau has adopted a Professional Fiduciaries Code of Ethics that is available on the bureau's Internet website and is provided to all applicants [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6520; www.fiduciary.ca.gov].

[1] Unanimous Action Required

Unless otherwise provided in the trust instrument, a power vested in two or more trustees may only be exercised by their unanimous action [Prob. Code § 15620].

[2] Vacancy or Unavailability

Unless otherwise provided in the trust instrument, if a vacancy occurs in the office of a cotrustee, the remaining cotrustee or cotrustees may act for the trust as if they are the only trustees [Prob. Code § 15621].

Unless otherwise provided in the trust instrument, if a cotrustee is unavailable to perform the duties of the cotrustee because of absence, illness, or other temporary incapacity, the remaining cotrustee or cotrustees may act for the trust as if they were the only trustees, when necessary to accomplish the purposes of the trust or to avoid irreparable injury to the trust property [*Prob. [3] Duties of Cotrustees

If a trust has more than one trustee, each trustee has a duty to participate in the administration of the trust [Prob. Code § 16013(a)]. Each trustee must also take reasonable steps to prevent a cotrustee from committing a breach of trust or to compel a cotrustee to redress a breach of trust [Prob. Code § 16013(b)]. However, if a cotrustee is also a settlor under a revocable trust, a nonsettlor-cotrustee must follow the directions of the settlor-cotrustee [see Prob. Code § 16001].

For discussion of a trustee's liability to a beneficiary for acts of a cotrustee, see Prob. Code § 16402 and § 560.84[3].

49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.76

§ 560.76 Duties of Trustee

[1] Generally

On acceptance of the trust, the trustee has a duty to administer the trust according to the trust instrument and, except to the extent the trust instrument provides otherwise, according to the Trust Law [Prob. Code § 16000]. For discussion of the methods of accepting a trust, see § 560.71. For discussion of the procedure when petitioning the court with respect to administration of a trust under the Trust Law, see § 560.130 et seq.

[2] In Revocable Trust

Except as provided in Prob. Code § 16001(b), the trustee of a revocable trust must follow any written direction acceptable to the trustee given from time to time by (1) the person then having the power to revoke the trust or the part of the trust withrespect to which the direction is given, or (2) the person to whom the settlor delegates the right to direct the trustee [Prob. Code § 16001(a)]. If a written direction given under Prob. Code § 16001(a) would have the effect of modifying the trust, the trustee has no duty to follow the direction unless it complies with the requirements for modifying the trust [Prob. Code § 16001(b)]. For discussion of modification and termination of trusts, see § 560.110 et seq.

[3] Loyalty

The trustee has a duty to administer the trust solely in the interest of the beneficiaries [Prob. Code § 16002(a)]. It is not a violation of the duty under Prob. Code § 16002(a) for a trustee who administers two trusts to sell, exchange, or participate in the sale or exchange of trust property between the trusts, if both of the following requirements are met [Prob. Code § 16002(b)]:

- The sale or exchange is fair and reasonable with respect to the beneficiaries of both trusts.
- The trustee gives to the beneficiaries of both trusts notice of all material facts related to the sale or exchange that the trustee knows or should know.

If a trust has two or more beneficiaries, the trustee has a duty to deal impartially with them and must act impartially in investing and managing the trust property, taking into account any differing interests of the beneficiaries [Prob. Code § 16003].

[4] Conflict of Interest and Adverse Interests

The trustee has a duty not to use or deal with trust property for the trustee's own profit or for any other purpose unconnected with the trust, nor to take part in any transaction in which the trustee has an interest adverse to the beneficiary [Prob. Code § 16004(a); but see Prob. Code § 16463 (beneficiary's consent relieving trustee from liability)]. The trustee may not enforce any claim against the trust property that the trustee purchased after or in contemplation of appointment as trustee, but the court may allow the trustee to be reimbursed from trust property the amount that the trustee paid in good faith for the claim [Prob. Code § 16004(b)].

A transaction between the trustee and a beneficiary that occurs during the existence of the trust or while the trustee's influence with the beneficiary remains and by which the trustee obtains an advantage from the beneficiary is presumed to be a violation of the trustee's fiduciary duties. This presumption affects the burden of proof [Prob. Code § 16004(c); see Evid. Code §§ 605, 606 (definition of presumption affecting burden of proof)].

Prob. Code § 16004(c) does not apply to the provisions of an agreement between a trustee and a beneficiary relating to the hiring or compensation of the trustee [Prob. Code § 16004(c)].

The provision of services for compensation by a regulated financial institution or its affiliates in the ordinary course of business either to a trust of which it acts as trustee or to a person dealing with the trust is not a violation of the duty provided in Prob. Code § 16002 or 16004. For the purposes of Prob. Code § 16015, "affiliate" means a corporation that directly or indirectly through one or more intermediaries controls, is controlled by, or is under common control with another domestic or foreign corporation [Prob. Code § 16015].

Similarly, the duty of loyalty is not violated if the trustee deposits trust funds in a financial institution operated by or affiliated with the trustee [Prob. Code § 16225(b)]. However, depositing funds in such an institution is permissible only because it is specifically authorized by statute; without the statute, it would be a clear violation of the duty of loyalty for the trustee to deposit trust funds with itself [Van de Kamp v. Bank of America (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 819, 835, 251 Cal. Rptr. 530] .

The trustee of one trust has a duty not to knowingly become a trustee of another trust adverse in its nature to the interest of the beneficiary of the first trust, and a duty to eliminate the conflict or resign as trustee when the conflict is discovered [Prob. Code § 16005; but see Prob. Code § 16463 (beneficiary's consent relieving trustee from liability)].

[5] Preservation, Use, and Disposal of Trust Property

The trustee has a duty to take reasonable steps, under the circumstances, to take and keep control of and to preserve the trust property [Prob. Code § 16006]. Moreover, the trustee has a duty to make the trust property productive under the circumstances and in furtherance of the purposes of the trust [Prob. Code § 16007; see Prob. Code § 16000 (trust instrument controls)].

[6] Commingling Trust Property

The trustee has a duty to keep the trust property separate from other property not subject to the trust [Prob. Code § 16009(a)]. There are, however, exceptions, to the general duty to avoid commingling [see, e.g., Fin. Code §§ 1563

(registration of trust securities in name of nominee), 1564 (common trust funds)]. The trustee must also see that the trust property is designated as property of the trust [Prob. Code 16009(b)].

For discussion of a beneficiary's consent to a trustee's acts that relieve the trustee from liability for breach of trust, see Prob. Code § 16463 and § 560.87. For discussion of a trustee's standard of care, see § 560.78.

[7] Delegation of Performance and Transfer of Office

The duties of the trustee with respect to the delegation of investment andmanagement responsibilities are subject to special rules set forth in the Uniform Prudent Investor Act [Prob. Code §§ 16045-16054] [see Prob. Code § 16012(c)]. With respect to all other responsibilities, the authority of the trustee to delegate duties or functions is governed by the general rule stated in Prob. Code § 16012. Under that rule, the trustee has a duty not to delegate to others the performance of acts that the trustee can reasonably be required personally to perform, and may not transfer the office of trustee to another person nor delegate the entire administration of the trust to a cotrustee or other person [Prob. Code § 16012(a)]. In a case in which a trustee has properly delegated a matter to an agent, cotrustee, or other person, the trustee has a duty to exercise general supervision over the person performing the delegated matter [Prob. Code § 16012(b); see Prob. Code § 16247 (power to hire agent)]. For discussion of cotrustees, see Prob. Code §§ 15620-15622 and § 560.75. For discussion of a trustee's liability for acts of an agent, see § 560.84 and Ch. 427, Principal and Agent .

§ 560.77 Trustee's Compliance With Internal Revenue Code Provisions

[1] Marital Deduction Gifts

The federal estate and gift tax laws provide for "marital deductions," under which property passing from one spouse to another is deductible from the gross estate [see I.R.C. §§ 2056, 2523]. California law provides that if an instrument contains a marital deduction gift, the provisions of the instrument, including any power, duty, or discretionary authority given to a fiduciary, must be construed to comply with these marital deduction provisions [Prob. Code § 21522(a); see Prob. Code §§ 39 ("fiduciary" defined), 45 ("instrument" defined); see also Prob. Code §§ 21500 (reference is to Internal Revenue Code of 1986 as amended), 21501 (applies to distribution made on or after January 1, 1988; prior distributions governed by prior law), 21520(a) ("marital deduction" means deduction under I.R.C. § 2056 or 2523), 21520(b) ("marital deduction gift" means a transfer intended to qualify for the marital deduction)].

The trustee may not take any action or have any power that impairs the deduction as applied to the marital deduction gift [Prob. Code § 21522(b)]. The marital deduction gift may be satisfied only with property that qualifies for the marital deduction [Prob. Code § 21522(c)].

If a marital deduction gift is made in trust, the transferor's spouse has the right to require that the trustee make unproductive marital deduction property productive, or to convert it into productive property within a reasonable time [Prob. Code § 21524(c)].

However, the provisions of Prob. Code §§ 21500-21541 do not apply to an instrument whose terms expressly or by necessary implication make them inapplicable [Prob. Code § 21502(a)]. Moreover, Prob. Code §§ 21520-21526 do not apply to a trust that qualifies for the marital deduction under Treas. Reg. § 20.2056(e)-2(b), commonly referred to as the "estate trust" [Prob. Code § 21521]. An "estate trust" is a trust that ultimately pays the entire trust estate, including an accumulated income, to the surviving spouse, or to the surviving spouse's estate or executors.

For discussion of marital deduction trusts and their use in estate planning, see California Wills & Trusts, Ch. 112, The Marital Deduction and Marital Deduction Trusts (Matthew Bender); California Legal Forms, Ch. 71, Marital Deduction Trust Provisions (Matthew Bender).

[2] Charitable Remainder Unitrusts and Charitable Remainder Annuity Trusts

If an instrument indicates the transferor's intention to comply with the Internal Revenue Code requirements for a charitable remainder unitrust or for a charitable remainder annuity trust as each is defined in I.R.C. § 664, the provisions of the instrument, including any power, duty, or discretionary authority given to a fiduciary, is construed to comply with the charitable deduction provisions of I.R.C. § 2055 or 2522, and with the charitable remainder trust provisions of I.R.C. § 664 in order to conform to that intent. In no event may the fiduciary take an action or have a power that impairs the charitable deduction [Prob. Code § 21540; see Prob. Code §§ 39 ("fiduciary" includes trustee), 21500 (Internal Revenue Code references include subsequent amendments)]. Whether an instrument contains a gift under Prob. Code § 21540 depends on the intention of the transferor at the time the instrument is executed [see Cal. Law Revision Comm'n Comment to Prob. Code § 21540, 20 Cal. L. Rev. Com. Reports 1988 (1990)].

The provisions of the instrument may be augmented in any manner consistent with I.R.C. § 2055(e) or 2522(c) on a petition provided for in Prob. Code § 17200 [Prob. Code § 21540]. For discussion of petition proceedings under Prob. Code § 17200, see § 560.270 et seq.

The provisions of Prob. Code §§ 21500-21541 apply to a distribution made on or after January 1, 1988; prior distributions are governed by prior law [Prob. Code § 21501]. However, they do not apply to an instrument whose terms expressly or by necessary implication make them inapplicable [Prob. Code § 21502(a)].

For discussion and forms relating to charitable remainder annuity trusts and unitrusts with regard to estate planning, see California Wills & Trusts, vol. 3, Ch. 116, Charitable Remainder Trusts (Mathhew Bender); California Wills & Trusts Forms, Civ. I, Complete Inter Vivos Trusts, Trusts 50, 51 (Matthew Bender); California Legal Forms, Ch. 74, Split-Interest Charitable Trusts (Matthew Bender).

[3] Charitable Lead Trusts

If an instrument indicates the transferor's intention to comply with the requirements for a charitable lead trust as described in I.R.C. §§ 170(f)(2)(B) and 2055(e)(2) or 2522(c)(2), the provisions of the instrument, including any power, duty, or discretionary authority given to a fiduciary, is construed to comply with the provisions of the relevant federal statute in order to conform to that intent. In no event may the fiduciary take any action or have any power that impairs the charitable deduction. The provisions of the instrument may be augmented in any manner consistent with that intent on a petition under Prob. Code § 17200 [Prob. Code § 21541; see Prob. Code §§ 39 ("fiduciary" includes trustee), 21500 (Internal Revenue Code references include subsequent amendments); but see Prob. Code §§ 21501 (applicable only to distribution made on or after January 1, 1988; prior distribution governed by prior law), 21502(a) (inapplicable to trust that provides or implies otherwise)]. For discussion of petition proceedings under Prob. Code § 17200, see § 560.270 et seq. For discussion and forms relating to charitable lead trusts with regard to estate planning, see California Wills & Trusts, Ch. 117, Charitable Lead Trusts (Matthew Bender); California Wills & Trust Forms, Div. I, Complete Inter Vivos Trusts, Trusts 55, 56 (Matthew Bender); California Legal Forms, Ch. 74, Split-Interest Charitable Trusts (Matthew Bender).

2. Rights, Liabilities, And Duties Of Trustees

49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.78

§ 560.78 Standard of Care

[1] Generally

The trustee has a duty to apply the full extent of the trustee's skills [Prob. Code § 16014(a)]. If the settlor, in selecting the trustee, has relied on the trustee's representation of having special skills, the trustee is held to the standard of the skills represented [Prob. Code § 16014(b)].

The standard of care that must be exercised by the trustee in investing and managing trust assets is specified in the Uniform Prudent Investor Act [Prob. Code §§ 16045-16054] [see Prob. Code § 16040(c)]. In exercising its other responsibilities, the trustee is subject to the general rule stated in Prob. Code § 16040, which requires the trustee to administer the trust with reasonable care, skill, and caution under the circumstances then prevailing that a prudent person acting in a like capacity would use in the conduct of an enterprise of like character and with like aims to accomplish the purposes of the trust as determined from the trust instrument [Prob. Code § 16040(a)]. However, Prob. Code § 16040 authorizes the settlor to expand or restrict the standard set forth in the section by express provisions in the trust instrument [Prob. Code § 16040(b)]. When the settlor does this, the trustee is entitled to rely on those express provisions and is not liable to a beneficiary for doing so [Prob. Code § 16040(b)].

A trustee's standard of care and performance in administering the trust is not affected by whether or not the trustee receives any compensation [Prob. Code § 16041].

[2] Investment

The trustee's duties with respect to investment are specified in the Uniform Prudent Investor Act [see Prob. Code §§ 16054-16054], which applies to all trusts existing on and created after its effective date of January 1, 1996 [Prob. Code § 16054]. Under this Act, a trustee who invests and manages trusts assets owes a duty to the beneficiaries to comply with the "prudent investor rule," except to the extent that the settlor has expanded or restricted the rule by express provisions in the trust instrument [Prob. Code § 16046]. If the settlor has expanded or restricted the rule by express provisions in the trust instrument, the trustee is entitled to rely in good faith on those provisions and cannot be held liable to a beneficiary for doing so [Prob. Code § 16046(b)].

The "prudent investor rule" requires the trustee to invest and manage trust assets as a prudent investor would, by considering the purposes, terms, distribution requirements, and other circumstances of the trust [Prob. Code § 16407(a)]. In satisfying this standard, the trustee must exercise reasonable care, skill, and caution [Prob. Code § 16407(a)].

The prudent investor rule also provides that a trustee's investment and management decisions respecting individual assets and courses of action must be evaluated not in isolation, but in the context of the trust portfolio as a whole and as a part of an overall investment strategy having risk and return objectives reasonably suited to the trust [Prob. Code § 16047(b); for circumstances that are appropriate to consider, see Prob. Code § 16047(c)]. Under the rule, a trustee may invest in any kind of property or type of investment, or engage in any course of action or investment strategy, that is consistent with the Uniform Prudent Investor Act [Prob. Code § 16407(d)]. However, the trustee has a duty to diversify the investments of the trust unless, under the circumstances, it is prudent not to do so [Prob. Code § 16408].

Within a reasonable time after accepting a trusteeship or receiving trust assets, a trustee must review the trust assets and make and implement decisions concerning the retention and disposition of assets, in order to bring the trust portfolio into compliance with the purposes, terms, distribution requirements, and other circumstances of the trust, and with the requirements of the Uniform Prudent Investor Act [Prob. Code § 16049]. In investing and managing trust assets, a trustee may only incur costs that are appropriate and reasonable in relation to the assets, overall investment strategy, purposes, and other circumstances of the trust [Prob. Code § 16050].

[3] Delegation of Investment and Management Functions

A trustee may delegate investment and management functions as prudent under the circumstances. However, the trustee must exercise prudence in selecting an agent, establishing the scope and terms of the delegation, consistent with the purposes and terms of the trust, and periodically reviewing the agent's overall performance and compliance with the terms of the delegation [Prob. Code § 16052; see Prob. Code § 16401 (liability of trustee for acts or omissions of agent)]. See § 560.547 for discussion of the extent of a trustee's liability for acts of an agent.

[4] Exercise of Discretionary Powers

[a] General Standard

Except as provided in Prob. Code § 16081 [see discussion below], a trustee must exercise any discretionary powers reasonably, and not arbitrarily [Prob. Code § 16080].

[b] "Absolute," "Sole," or "Uncontrolled" Discretion

Subject to the additional requirements of Prob. Code § 16081(b), (c), and (d) discussed below, if a trust instrument confers "absolute," "sole," or "uncontrolled" discretion on a trustee, the trustee must act in accordance with fiduciary principles and may not act in bad faith or in disregard of the purposes of the trust [Prob. Code § 16081(a)]. Notwithstanding the use of terms like "absolute," "sole," or "uncontrolled" by a settlor or testator, a person who is a beneficiary of a trust that permits the person, either individually or as trustee or cotrustee, to make discretionary distributions of income or principal to or for the benefit of himself or herself pursuant to a standard, must exercise that power reasonably and in accordance with the standard [Prob. Code § 16081(b)].

[c] Discretionary Distributions for Benefit of Trustee

Unless a settlor or a testator clearly indicates that a broader power is intended by express reference to Prob. Code § 16081(c), a person who is a beneficiary of a trust that permits the person, as trustee or cotrustee, to make discretionary distributions of income or principal to or for the benefit of himself or herself may exercise that power in his or her favor only for his or her health, education, support, or maintenance within the meaning of I.R.C. §§ 2041 and 2514. Notwithstanding the foregoing and the provisions of Prob. Code § 15620 (which requires unanimous action when a power is vested in two or more trustees unless the trust instrument provides otherwise), however, if a power to make discretionary distributions of income or principal is conferred on two or more trustees, the power may be exercised by any trustee who is not a current permissible beneficiary of the power.

If there is no trustee who is not a current permissible beneficiary of the power, any party in interest may apply to the court to appoint a trustee who is not a current permissible beneficiary of the power, and the power may be exercised by the trustee appointed by the court [Prob. Code § 16081(c)].

Prob. Code § 16081(c) does not apply to any of the following:

- Any power held by the settlor of a revocable or amendable trust.

- Any power held by a settlor's or testator's spouse who is the trustee of a trust for which a marital deduction as defined in Prob. Code § 21520 has been allowed.

Prob. Code § 16081(c) does apply to any of the following:

- Any trust executed on or after January 1, 1997.

- Any testamentary trust created under a will executed on or after January 1, 1997.

- Any irrevocable trust created under a document executed before January 1, 1997, or any revocable trust executed before that date if the settlor was incapacitated as of that date, unless all parties in interest elect affirmatively not to be subject to Prob. Code § 16081(c) through a written instrument delivered to the trustee. That election must be made on or before the latest of January 1, 1998, three years after the date on which the trust became irrevocable, or, in the case of a revocable trust in which the settlor was incapacitated, three years after the date on which the settlor became incapacitated.

Prob. Code § 16081(c) neither creates a new cause of action nor impairs an existing cause of action that, in either case, relates to any power limited by Prob. Code § 16081(c) that was exercised before January 1, 1997.

[d] Definition of "Party In Interest"

For purposes of Prob. Code § 16081, the term "party in interest" means any of the following persons [Prob. Code § 16081(g)]:

- If the trust is revocable and the settlor is incapacitated, the settlor's legal representative under applicable law, or the settlor's attorney-in-fact under a durable power of attorney that is sufficient to grant the authority required under Prob. Code § 16081(c) or (e), as applicable.

- If the trust is irrevocable, each trustee, each beneficiary then entitled or authorized to receive income distributions from the trust, or each remainder beneficiary who would be entitled to receive notice of a trust proceeding under Prob. Code § 15084. Any beneficiary who lacks legalcapacity may be represented by the beneficiary's legal representative, attorney-in-fact under a durable power of attorney that is sufficient to grant the authority required under Prob. Code § 16081(c) or (e), as applicable, or in the absence of a legal representative or attorney-in-fact, a guardian ad litem appointed for that purpose.

49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.80

§ 560.80 Duty to Report or Account

[1] Generally

The trustee has a duty to keep the beneficiaries of the trust reasonably informed of the trust and its administration [Prob. Code § 16060]. Ordinarily, the trustee is not under a duty to the beneficiary to furnish information in the absence of a request for it. However, if the trustee enters into a transaction with the beneficiary on the trustee's own account, the trustee has a duty to communicate material facts in connection with the transaction that the trustee knows or should know. The trustee also has a duty to communicate material facts affecting the beneficiary's interest that the trustee knows the beneficiary does not know but needs to know for protection against a third person [see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 173]. Moreover, during the time that the trust is revocable, the trustee owes the duty under Prob. Code § 16060 to the settlor or other person who has the power to revoke the trust, and not to the beneficiary [see Prob. Code § 15800]. Thus, when the settlor of a revocable trust was under the care and custody of a court-appointed conservator, the beneficiaries had no right to an accounting because the trust remained revocable despite the conservatorship [Johnson v. Kotyck (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 83, 88, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 99] .

[2] On Request by Beneficiary

Except as provided in Prob. Code § 16064, on reasonable request by a beneficiary, the trustee must provide the beneficiary with a report of information about the assets, liabilities, receipts, and disbursements of the trust, the acts of the trustee, and the particulars relating to the administration of the trust relevant to the beneficiary's interest, including the terms of the trust as defined under Prob. Code § 16061 [§ 560.80[3]]. This duty to report does not, however, require disclosure of communications protected by the attorney-client privilege [Wells Fargo Bank v. Superior Court (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 201, 207, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716, 990 P.2d 591] .

If the trustee does not comply with a reasonable request under Prob. Code § 16061, the beneficiary may petition for a report or account [see Prob. Code § 17200(b)(7) and see § 560.548]. Moreover, the availability of information on request under Prob. Code § 16061 does not negate the affirmative duty of the trustee to provide information under Prob. Code § 16060 [see § 560.80]].

During the time that the trust is revocable, the trustee owes the duty under Prob. Code § 16061 to the settlor or other person who has the power to revoke the trust, and not to the beneficiary [see Prob. Code § 15800].

[3] Copy of Terms of Trust

If a trust is wholly or partially revocable during the settlor's lifetime, the settlor's death may trigger a duty on the part of the trustee to provide copies of the trust instrument to the beneficiaries or the settlor's heirs. Under Prob. Code § 16061.5, the trustee of a revocable trust is required to provide a true and complete copy of the "terms of the trust" to any beneficiary or heir of the settlor who requests if the trust becomes irrevocable because of the death of one or more of the settlors, or because, by the express terms of the trust, the trust becomes irrevocable within one year of the settlor's death because of a contingency related to the death of one or more of the settlors of the trust [Prob. Code § 16061.5(a)]. If only a portion of the trust has become irrevocable, the trustee is required only to provide a copy of the terms of the "irrevocable portion of the trust" [Prob. Code § 16061.5]. The trustee must rely on any final judicial determination of heirship. However, the trustee has discretion to make a good faith determination by any reasonable means of the heirs of a deceased settlor in the absence of a final judicial determination of heirship known to the trustee [Prob. Code § 16061.5(b)].

For purposes of this rule, "terms of the trust" has a specific meaning. It means the written trust instrument of an irrevocable trust or those provisions of a written trust instrument in effect at the settlor's death that describe or affect that portion of a trust that has become irrevocable at the death of the settlor [Prob. Code § 16060.5]. The phrase "terms of the trust" also includes, but is not limited to, signatures, amendments, disclaimers, and any directions or instructions to the trustee that affect the disposition of the trust. However, the phrase does not include documents that were intended to affect disposition only while the trust was revocable [Prob. Code § 16060.5]. If a trust has been completely restated, "terms of the trust" does not include trust instruments or amendments that are superseded by the last restatement before the settlor's death, but it does include amendments executed after the restatement. "Terms of the trust" also includes any document irrevocably exercising a power of appointment over the trust or over any portion of the trust which has become irrevocable [Prob. Code § 16060.5].

The Probate Code does not specify a time limit within which the trustee must comply with the requirements applicable to providing a copy of the terms of the trust. However, it does set time limits for bringing an action to contest the trust,and those time limits are at least partially determined by reference to the time that the trustee mails or delivered a copy of the "terms of the trust." Under Prob. Code § 16061.8, no person upon whom a "notification by trustee" [see Prob. Code § 16061.7] is served may bring an action to contest the trust more than 120 days from the date the notification by trustee is served on him or her, or 60 days from the date on which a copy of the terms of the trust is mailed or personally delivered to him or her, whichever is later [Prob. Code § 16061.8].

[4] Annual Account

The trustee must account at least annually, at the termination of the trust, and on a change of trustees, to each beneficiary to whom income or principal is required or authorized in the trustee's discretion to be currently distributed, except as otherwise provided in Prob. Code §§ 16062 and 16064 [Prob. Code § 16062(a); for a form of account, see § 560.559]. The general duty to provide information is not necessarily satisfied by compliance with Prob. Code § 16062 [see Prob. Code § 16060].

A trustee of a living trust created by an instrument executed before July 1, 1987, is not subject to the duty to account provided by Prob. Code § 16062(a) [Prob. Code § 16062(b)]. A trustee of a trust created by a will executed before July 1, 1987, is not subject to the duty to account provided by Prob. Code § 16062(a), except that if the trust is removed from continuing court jurisdiction pursuant to Prob. Code §§ 17350-17354, the duty to account provided by Prob. Code § 16062(a) applies to the trustee [Prob. Code § 16062(c)]. The duty of a trustee to account pursuant to former Prob.

Code § 1120.1a (repealed in 1986), under a trust created by a will executed before July 1, 1977, which has been removed from continuing court jurisdiction pursuant to former Prob. Code § 1120.1a, continues to apply after July 1, 1987, except as provided in Prob. Code § 16064. The duty to account under former Prob. Code § 1120.1a may be satisfied by furnishing an account that satisfies the requirement of Prob. Code § 16063 [Prob. Code § 16062(d); for a form of account, see § 560.559]. Moreover, Prob. Code § 16062 does not affect any requirement for an account that may exist under prior law, whether pursuant to statute or court order [see, e.g., former Prob. Code § 1121.1a(b) (requirement to furnish statement of income and principal report to income beneficiaries)]. For discussion of removal of a testamentary trust from continuing court jurisdiction, see § 560.146.

[5] Exceptions to Accounting Requirements

The trustee is not required to report information or account to a beneficiary in any of the following circumstances [Prob. Code § 16064(b)-(d)]:

- In the case of a beneficiary of a revocable trust, as provided in Prob. Code § 15800 for the period during which the trust may be revoked.

- As to a beneficiary who has waived in writing the right to a report or account. A waiver of rights under Prob. Code § 16064(c) may be withdrawn in writing at any time as to the most recent account and future accounts. A waiver has no effect on the beneficiary's right to petition for a report or account pursuant to Prob. Code § 17200.

- If the beneficiary and the trustee are the same person.

The trustee generally will be relieved of the duty to account if the trust instrument waives accounts [Prob. Code § 16064(a)]. However, a waiver of the duty to account in a trust instrument is void and unenforceable if there is only one trustee and that trustee is a "disqualified person" as defined in Prob. Code § 21350.5 [Prob. Code §§ 16062(e), 16064(a); see Prob. Code §§ 21350, 21351]. A "disqualified person" is a person to whom a valid transfer cannot be made under Prob. Code §§ 21350 or 21351 [Prob. Code § 21350.5]. A typical example of a "disqualified person" is an attorney who drafted a trust instrument in which the attorney was named as beneficiary [see Prob. Code § 21350(a)(1)]. For more detailed discussion of transfers that are invalidated under these statutes, and circumstances under which a person will be deemed a "disqualified person," see § 560.14.

A waiver of accounts is also unenforceable if it is reasonably likely that a material breach of the trust has occurred. If that is the case, the court may always compel the trustee to account [Prob. Code § 16064(a)].

Notwithstanding the absence of duty to account under Prob. Code § 16064, the trustee may wish to provide information in order to start the running of the statute of limitations under Prob. Code § 16460 [see § 560.86].

§ 560.81 Duty to Give Notice When Trust Becomes Irrevocable or On Change of Trustees of Irrevocable Trust

[1] Statutory Notice Requirement

The trustee of a revocable inter vivos (or "living") trust must serve a statutory notice on the beneficiaries and the settlor's heirs whenever the trust becomes irrevocable by reason of the death of the settlor (or one of the settlors), or because, by the express terms of the trust, the trust becomes irrevocable within one year of the death of a settlor because of a contingency related to the death of one or more of the settlors of the trust [Prob. Code § 16061.7(a)(1)]. This statutory notice is referred to in the statute as a "notification by trustee" [see Prob. Code § 16061.7(a)]. This form must also be served on the beneficiaries and heirs when there is a change of trustees of an irrevocable trust. In that case, the duty to serve the notification is the duty of the continuing or successor trustee, and any one cotrustee may serve the notification [Prob. Code § 16061.7(a)(2)].

The trustee is not required to serve a notification by the trustee if the event thatotherwise requires service of the notification by trustee occurred before January 1, 1998 [Prob. Code § 16061.7(j)].

[2] Limiting Effect on Actions to Contest Trust

When the notification by trustee has been served as required, the time within which a served person may bring an action to contest the trust is limited to 120 days from the date of service, or 60 days from the day on which a copy of the "terms of the trust" is mailed or personally delivered to the person during the 120-day period, whichever is later [Prob. Code § 16061.8; for definition of "terms of trust," see Prob. Code § 16060.5; for discussion, see § 560.80[3]].

[3] Persons Who Must Be Notified

The notification by trustee must be served on each of the following [Prob. Code § 16061.7(b)]:

- Each beneficiary with a present interest in the irrevocable trust, or irrevocable portion of the trust. If there are beneficiaries who only have future interests in the trust, they are entitled to receive the notification only as specified in Prob. Code § 15804 [for discussion of Prob. Code § 15804, see § 560.137[4]].

- Each heir of the deceased settlor, if the event that requires trustee notification is the death of the settlor or irrevocability within one year of the death of the trust's settlor by the express terms of the trust because of a contingency related to the death of a settlor.

- The Attorney General of California, if the trust is a charitable trust subject to the supervision of the Attorney General.

There is no duty to serve a notification by trustee on any beneficiary or heir who is unknown to the trustee [Prob. Code § 16061.7(d)(2)]. Similarly, if the trustee knows of a beneficiary or heir but cannot locate him or her after reasonable diligence, the notification need not be served on that beneficiary or heir [Prob. Code § 16061.7(d)(1)]. However, the trustee may serve the notification by trustee on any person or persons in addition to those on whom the notification is required to be served [Prob. Code § 16061.7(j)].

In providing notification by the trustee, a trustee must rely on any final judicial determination of heirship known to the trustee. However, the trustee has discretion to make a good faith determination by any reasonable means of the heirs of a deceased settlor in the absence of a final judicial determination of heirship known to the trustee [Prob. Code § 16061.7(c)].

[4] Method of Service

The notification by trustee must be served by personal delivery or by mailing it to the last known address of the beneficiary or heir as prescribed in Prob. Code § 1215 [Prob. Code § 16061.7(e)]. It must be served not later than 60 days after the occurrence of the event requiring service, or 60 days after the trustee becomes aware of the existence of a person entitled to receive the notification, if that person was not known to the trustee on the occurrence of the event requiring service [Prob. Code § 16061.7(f)]. If the office of trustee is vacant on the date of the occurrence of the event requiring service of the notification by trustee, or if that event causes a vacancy, the 60-day period for service of the notification commences on the date the new trustee commenced to serve as trustee [Prob. Code § 16061.7(f)].

[5] Contents of Notification

The notification by trustee must contain the following information [Prob. Code § 16061.7(g)]:

- The identity of the settlor or settlors of the trust.

- The date of execution of the trust instrument.

- The name, mailing address, and telephone number of each trustee of the trust.

- The address of the physical location where the principal place of administration of the trust is located as determined under Prob. Code § 17002 [see § 560.520].

- Any additional information that may be expressly required by the terms of the trust instrument.

- A notification that the recipient is entitled, on reasonable request to the trustee, to receive from the trustee a true and complete copy of the "terms of the trust" [see Prob. Code §§ 16060.5 and 16061.5 and discussion in § 560.80[3]].

The statute does not specify any particular terms or a particular format that must be used for giving this information [Germino v. Hillyer (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 951, 956, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 478] . Thus, the trustee's failure to strictly comply with the notice requirements of Prob. Code § 16061.7(g) does not render the notice a nullity, and does not make the 120-day statute inapplicable [Germino v. Hillyer (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 951, 955-957, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 478] . For example, the notice is not rendered a nullity by the fact that the notice failed to specify that the beneficiary on whom notice was served was entitled to a copy of the trust terms, when before service of the notice, but after the settlor's death, thetrustee provided a copy of the trust instrument to the beneficiary [Germino v. Hillyer (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 951, 956-957, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 478] .

If the notification by the trustee is served because a revocable trust or any portion of it has become irrevocable because of the death of one or more settlors of the trust, or because, by the trust's express terms, the trust becomes irrevocable within one year of the death of a settlor because of a contingency related to the death of one or more of the trust's settlors, the notification by the trustee must also include a warning, set out in a separate paragraph in not less than 10-point boldface type, or a reasonable equivalent, that states as follows: "You may not bring an action to contest the trust more than 120 days from the date this notification by the trustee is served upon you or 60 days from the date on which a copy of the terms of the trust is mailed or personally delivered to you during that 120-day period, whichever is later" [Prob. Code § 16061.7(h)]. When the notification required in Prob. Code § 16061.7(h) (former Prob. Code § 16061.7(g)) was not boldfaced, but was in 12-point type like the rest of the document, the notice was not a reasonable equivalent of 10-point boldface type as required by the statute. As a result, the appellants' petition contesting the trust was not untimely [Harustak v. Wilkins (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 208, 216-218, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 718] .

[6] Trustee's Liability for Failure to Serve Notification

A trustee who fails to serve the notification by trustee as required by Prob. Code § 16061.7 on a beneficiary will be responsible for all damages, including attorney's fees and costs, caused by the failure unless the trustee makes a reasonably diligent effort to comply with the requirements of Prob. Code § 16061.7 [Prob. Code § 16061.9(a)]. A trustee who fails to serve the notification by trustee as required by Prob. Code § 16061.7 on an heir who is not a beneficiary and whose identity is known to the trustee will be responsible for all damages caused to the heir by the failure, unless the trustee shows that the trustee made a reasonably diligent effort to comply with the requirements of Prob. Code § 16061.7. For this purpose, "reasonably diligent effort" means that the trustee has sent notice by first-class mail to the heir at the heir's last mailing address actually known to the trustee [Prob. Code § 16061.9(b)]. A trustee, in exercising discretion with regard to the timing and nature of distributions of trust assets, may consider the fact that the period in which a beneficiary or heir could bring an action to contest the trust has not expired [Prob. Code § 16061.9(c)].

A trustee is not liable to any person for serving or not serving the notification by trustee on any person in addition to those on whom the notification is required to be served [Prob. Code § 16061.7(j); see Prob. Code § 16061.7(a)].

There is no liability for failure to serve the notification by trustee if the event that otherwise requires service of the notification occurred before January 1, 1998 [see Prob. Code § 16061.7(j)].

[7] Waiver Against Public Policy

Any waiver by a settlor of the requirement of serving the notification by trustee required by Prob. Code § 16061.7(h) is against public policy and will be void [Prob. Code § 16061.7(i)].

§ 560.82 Powers

[1] In General

A trustee has the following powers without the need to obtain court authorization [Prob. Code § 16200]:

- The powers conferred by the trust instrument.
- Except as limited in the trust instrument, the powers conferred by statute.
- Except as limited in the trust instrument, the power to perform any act that a trustee would perform for the purposes of the trust under the standard of care provided in Prob. Code §§ 16040 or 16047.

However, a trustee may wish to obtain court instructions regarding an anticipated exercise of power, or approval of a completed act [see Prob. Code § 17200(b)(6) (petition for instructions) and see § 560.555].

The grant of a power to a trustee, whether by the trust instrument, by statute, or by the court, does not in itself require or permit the exercise of the power. The exercise of a power by a trustee is subject to the trustee's fiduciary duties [Prob. Code § 16202; see Prob. Code §§ 16000 (duty to administer trust according to instrument), 16001 (revocable trust)]. A trustee's exercise of power is also subject to other limiting provisions [see, e.g., Prob. Code § 21524(c) (spouse's right to require that trustee make unproductive marital deduction property productive)].

A court may relieve a trustee from restrictions on the exercise of powers under the trust instrument, notwithstanding the provisions of Prob. Code §§ 16200-16249 [Prob. Code § 16201; see, e.g., Prob. Code § 15409 (modification of trust after material change of circumstances)]. For a form to petition for a grant of powers, see § 560.554.

An instrument that incorporates the powers provided in former Prob. Code § 1120.2 (repealed by 1986 Stats., ch. 820) is deemed to refer to the powers provided in Prob. Code §§ 16220-16249. For this purpose, the trustee's powers under former Prob. Code § 1120.2 are not diminished and the trustee is not required to obtain court approval for exercise of a power for which court approval was not required by former law [Prob. Code § 16203].

For discussion of the powers of a trustee with regard to a trust that relates to Internal Revenue Code provisions governing marital deductions and charitable gifts, see § 560.77.

[2] Management of Trust Property

The trustee has the power to do any of the following:

- Collect, hold, and retain trust property received from a settlor or any other person until, in the trustee's judgment, the property should be disposed of. The property may be retained even though it includes property in which the trustee is personally interested [Prob. Code § 16220; see Prob. Code § 62 (definition of property)].

- Continue or participate in the operation of any business or other enterprise that is part of the trust property and may effect incorporation, dissolution, or other change in the form of the organization of the business or enterprise, subject to Prob. Code § 16222(b) [Prob. Code § 16222(a)].

- Continue the operation of a business or other enterprise only as authorized by the trust instrument or by the court, except as provided in Prob. Code § 16222(c) [Prob. Code § 16222(b)]. For the purpose of Prob. Code § 16222(b), the lease of four or fewer residential units is not considered to be the operation of a business or other enterprise [Prob. Code § 16222(b); see Prob. Code § 16222(d) (inapplicability to trust created by instrument executed before July 1, 1987)].

- Continue the operation of a business or other enterprise for a reasonable time pending a court hearing on the matter or pending a sale of the business or other enterprise [Prob. Code § 16222(c)].

- Manage, control, divide, develop, improve, exchange, partition, change the character of, or abandon trust property or any interest therein [Prob. Code § 16227].

- Encumber, mortgage, or pledge trust property for a term within or extending beyond the term of the trust in connection with the exercise of any power vested in the trustee [Prob. Code § 16228].

- Make ordinary or extraordinary repairs, alterations, improvements in buildings or other trust property [Prob. Code § 16229(a)].

- Demolish any improvements [Prob. Code § 16229(b)].

- Raze existing or erect new party walls or buildings [Prob. Code § 16229(c)].

- Insure the property of the trust against damage or loss and insure the trustee against liability with respect to third persons [Prob. Code § 16240].

- Borrow money for any trust purpose to be repaid from trust property; the lender may include, but is not limited to, a bank holding company, affiliate, or subsidiary of the trustee [Prob. Code § 16241].

- Accept additions to the property of the trust from a settlor or any other person [Prob. Code § 16221; see Prob. Code §§ 62 (definition of property), 16202 (powers subject to fiduciary duties)].

- Acquire or dispose of property, for cash or on credit, at public or private sale, or by exchange [Prob. Code § 16226].

- Grant an option involving disposition of trust property or take an option for the acquisition of any property. An option may be granted or taken that is exercisable beyond the term of the trust [Prob. Code § 16233].

- Subdivide or develop land [Prob. Code § 16230(a)].

- Dedicate land to public use [Prob. Code § 16230(b)].

- Make or obtain the vacation of plats and adjust boundaries [Prob. Code § 16230(c)].

- Adjust differences in valuation on exchange or partition by giving or receiving consideration [Prob. Code § 16230(d)].

- Dedicate easements to public use without consideration [Prob. Code § 16230(e)].

- Enter into a lease for any purpose as lessor or lessee with or without the option to purchase or renew and for a term within or extending beyond the term of the trust [Prob. Code § 16231].

- Enter into a lease or arrangement for exploration and removal of gas, oil, or other minerals or geothermal energy, and enter into a community oil lease or a pooling or unitization agreement, and for a term within or extending beyond the term of the trust [Prob. Code § 16232].

- Pay taxes, assessments, reasonable compensation of the trustee and of employees and agents of the trust, and other expenses incurred in the collection, care, administration, and protection of the trust [Prob. Code § 16243; see Prob. Code §§ 15680-15688 (compensation of trustees)].

- Hire persons, including accountants, attorneys, auditors, investment advisers, or other agents, even if they are associated or affiliated with the trustee, to advise or assist the trustee in the performance of administrative duties [Prob. Code § 16247; but see Prob. Code § 16063(a)(1) (duty to account regarding agents)].

- Execute and deliver all instruments that are needed to accomplish orfacilitate the exercise of the powers vested in the trustee [Prob. Code § 16248].

For requirements regarding allocation of income and principal, see the Uniform Principal and Income Act, Prob. Code § 16320 et seq. (generally), and Prob. Code § 21524 (regarding marital deduction gift in trust [Prob. Code § 21501], but not applicable to "estate trust" [Prob. Code § 21521], or to a trust that provides or implies otherwise [Prob. Code § 21502(a)]).

[3] Corporate Transactions

With respect to any shares of stock of a domestic or foreign corporation, any membership in a nonprofit corporation, or any other property, a trustee has the power to do any of the following [Prob. Code § 16234]:

- Vote in person, and give proxies to exercise, any voting rights with respect to the shares, memberships, or property.

- Waive notice of a meeting or give consent to the holding of a meeting.

- Authorize, ratify, approve, or confirm any action that could be taken by shareholders, members, or property owners.

The trustee also has the power to do any of the following:

- Pay calls, assessments, and any other sums chargeable or accruing against or on account of securities [Prob. Code § 16235].

- Sell or exercise stock subscription or conversion rights [Prob. Code § 16236].

- Consent, directly or through a committee or other agent, to the reorganization, consolidation, merger, dissolution, or liquidation of a corporation or other business enterprise, and to participate in voting trusts, pooling arrangements, and foreclosures, and in connection therewith, to deposit securities with and transfer title and delegate discretions to any protective or other committee as the trustee may deem advisable [Prob. Code § 16237].

- Hold a security in the name of a nominee or in other form without disclosure of the trust so that title to the security may pass by delivery [Prob. Code § 16238].

- Deposit securities in a securities depository, as defined in Fin. Code § 30004, which is licensed under Fin. Code § 30200 or is exempt from licensing by Fin. Code § 30005 or 30006. The securities may be held by the securities depository in the manner authorized by Fin. Code § 1592 [Prob. Code § 16239].

For discussion of voting trusts and shares held by a trustee, see Corp. Code § 703 and Ch. 166, Corporations: Shareholders' Meetings and Voting.

[4] Deposits

The trustee also has the power to deposit trust funds at reasonable interest in an insured account in a financial institution or, to the extent the account is collateralized, in an account in a bank, insured savings and loan association, or insured credit union [Prob. Code § 16225(a); see Prob. Code §§ 16225(b) (institution affiliated with trustee), 16225(c) (conditions regarding withdrawals); see also Fin. Code §§ 1592, 1593 (banks), 7000-7002 (savings accounts)].

The court may authorize the deposit of trust funds in an account under Prob. Code § 16225(a) in an amount greater than the maximum insured or collateralized amount [Prob. Code § 16225(d); see Prob. Code § 17200(b)(2), (5), (6) (petition proceedings)]. Prob. Code § 16225 does not prevent the trustee from holding an amount of trust property reasonably necessary for the orderly administration of the trust in the form of cash or in a checking account without interest [Prob. Code § 16225(e)].

[5] Deposits in Financial Institution Controlled by Trustee

Under Prob. Code § 16225(b), a financial institution that is a trustee has the right to deposit trust funds in itself or an affiliate ("self-depositing"). This right to self-deposit is contrary to the general law of trusts, specifically the duty of loyalty, because it creates a conflict of interest. It is also contrary to the trustee's duty under Prob. Code § 16002 not to use the trust property for its own benefit [Van de Kamp v. Bank of America (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 819, 836, 251 Cal. Rptr. 530] . A balance must be struck between the trustee's duty of loyalty and right to self-deposit trust funds. The right to self-deposit does not overcome the duty to maximize returns on investment of trust funds [Van de Kamp v. Bank of America (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 819, 837, 251 Cal. Rptr. 530 ; see Prob. Code § 16007 (trustee's duty to invest trust funds)]. Although noting that the case did not hinge on burden of proof issues for its resolution, one court of appeal has stated that the self-deposit statutes bar the imposition of the usual burden of proof on a defendant-trustee [Van de Kamp v. Bank of America (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 819, 853-854, 251 Cal. Rptr. 530 (usual burden of justifying its actions as shifting to trustee once beneficiary has established existence of fiduciary duty and trustee's failure to perform it)].

The duties of loyalty and maximizing returns have been held not to prevent a bank-trustee from pooling small trust cash balances and investing them for its own benefit. "Small trust cash balances" are funds necessary for the administration of the trust and those awaiting investment or distribution. The court reasoned that because Prob. Code § 16225(e) allows self-depositing, without payment of interest, of funds necessary for the administration of the trust, and Fin. Code§ 1562 allows self-deposit of funds awaiting investment or distribution, the trustee is not required to pay interest on those funds; nor is the trustee's right to profit from the use or investment of those funds limited. The trustee is not required to account to the trust beneficiaries for the profit made on the use of self-deposited funds [Van de Kamp v. Bank of America (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 819, 839-840, 251 Cal. Rptr. 530] . That holding may be limited, however, because it was based on a finding that during the period at issue, there was no higher yielding short term investment for small amounts of cash [Van de Kamp v. Bank of America (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 819, 842-848, 251 Cal. Rptr. 530] .

Applying this reasoning, a bank-trustee's use of various types of "float" created by processing trust transactions through suspense accounts of which the bank has use, is proper when the float and suspense accounts (1) pertained to balances needed for administration or awaiting investment or disbursement, (2) were created pursuant to standardized or computerized operating procedures that were reasonable in terms of their cost compared to the cost of manual posting on the actual transaction dates involved and thus were reasonably necessary to the orderly administration of the trust accounts, (3) were consistent with generally accepted accounting principles, and (4) did not produce any hidden profit for the bank [Van de Kamp v. Bank of America (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 819, 851-853, 251 Cal. Rptr. 530] . Moreover, the bank gave the beneficiaries the option to avoid the creation of one type of float by authorizing direct deposit of disbursements [Van de Kamp v. Bank of America (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 819, 853, 251 Cal. Rptr. 530] .

The practices described also did not constitute fraud or unfair competition within the meaning of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200, nor did they result in any unjust enrichment on the part of the bank-trustee [Van de Kamp v. Bank of America (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 819, 854-855, 251 Cal. Rptr. 530] .

A bank-trustee does not have to disclose the use and investment of small cash balances to the trust beneficiaries when the practice is proper and the bank's use of trust account funds is apparent from the account statements it does send [Van de Kamp v. Bank of America (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 819, 848-849, 251 Cal. Rptr. 530] . A bank-trustee is not required to disclose the profit earned through self-depositing [Van de Kamp v. Bank of America (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 819, 849, 251 Cal. Rptr. 530] . Nor is a bank-trustee required to disclose the alternative uses for the trust funds if those alternatives are unworkable or imprudent [Van de Kamp v. Bank of America (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 819, 850, 251 Cal. Rptr. 530] .

[6] Actions and Claims

The trustee has the power to do the following:

- Pay or contest any claim [Prob. Code § 16242(a); see also Prob. Code §§ 16010 (duty to enforce claims), 16011 (duty to defend actions)].

- Settle a claim by or against the trust by compromise, arbitration, or otherwise [Prob. Code § 16242(b)].

- Release, in whole or in part, any claim belonging to the trust [Prob. Code § 16242(c)].

- Prosecute or defend actions, claims, or proceedings for the protection of trust property and of the trustee in the performance of the trustee's duties [Prob. Code § 16249].

- Take reasonable steps to enforce claims that are part of the trust property [Prob. Code § 16010].

- Take reasonable steps to defend actions that may result in a loss to the trust [Prob. Code § 16011].

- In an action for the benefit of the trust, recover from the responsible person twice the value of any trust property that is wrongfully taken, concealed, or disposed of [Prob. Code § 859].

Actions not relevant to the internal affairs or existence of the trust are not within the scope of the Trust Law, and therefore may not be the subject of petition proceedings under Prob. Code §§ 17200-17210 [see Prob. Code § 17200(a) (subject matter jurisdiction) and § 560.130 et seq.]. Consequently, a trustee must bring an action seeking protection of trust property and of the trustee, pursuant to Prob. Code § 16249, under the appropriate provision of the relevant code [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10 (civil complaint)]. For discussion of actions involving third persons, see § 560.160 et seq.

[7] Loans to Beneficiary

The trustee has the power to make loans out of trust property to the beneficiary on terms and conditions that the trustee determines are fair and reasonable under the circumstances [Prob. Code § 16244(a)]. If the trustee makes an advance or loan of trust money to a beneficiary, the beneficiary's interest is subject to a charge for the repayment of the amount advanced or lent [see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 255]. A trustee also has the power to guarantee loans to the beneficiary by encumbrances on trust property [Prob. Code § 16244(b)]. However, a beneficiary's interest subject to a spendthrift restraint may not be used to secure a loan [see Prob. Code §§ 15300-15309 (restraints on transfer of trust property)].

[8] Distribution to Beneficiaries

The trustee has the power to pay any sum of principal or income distributable to a beneficiary, without regard to whether the beneficiary is under a legal disability, by paying the sum to the beneficiary or by paying the sum to another person for the use or benefit of the beneficiary [Prob. Code § 16245; but see Prob.Code § 21524 (providing limitations for marital deduction gifts made in trust with distribution on or after January 1, 1988 [Prob. Code § 21501], but not applicable to "estate trusts" [Prob. Code § 21521], or to any trust that provides or implies otherwise [Prob. Code § 21502(a))].

A sum distributable to a minor may be distributed to a custodian for the minor under the California Uniform Transfers to Minors Act [Prob. Code §§ 3900 et seq.]. The custodian may be an adult or a trust company [Prob. Code § 3906(a)]. However, the trustee may distribute a sum to such a custodian only if the trustee considers the transfer to be in the minor's best interests and the transfer it not prohibited by or inconsistent with the governing instrument. The transfer must be authorized by the court if it exceeds $10,000 in value [Prob. Code § 3906(c); see Prob. Code § 16245].

The trustee has the power to effect distribution of property and money in divided or undivided interests and to adjust resulting differences in valuation [Prob. Code § 16246]. The trustee also has the power to sell the property in order to make the distribution [see Recommendation Proposing the Trust Law, 18 Cal. Law Revision Comm'n Reports 692 (1986)]. A distribution in kind may be made pro rata or non-pro rata [Prob. Code § 16246; see Recommendation Proposing the Trust Law, 18 Cal. Law Revision Comm'n Reports 692 (1986) (tax considerations regarding distributions)].

If an instrument authorizes a fiduciary to satisfy a pecuniary gift wholly or in part by distribution of property other than money, property selected for that purpose must be valued at its fair market value on the date of distribution, unless the instrument expressly provides otherwise. If the instrument permits the fiduciary to value property selected for distribution as of a date other than the date of distribution, then, unless the instrument expressly provides otherwise, the property selected by the fiduciary for that purpose must fairly reflect net appreciation and depreciation (occurring between the valuation date and the date of distribution) in all assets from which the distribution could have been made [Prob. Code § 21118(a); see Prob. Code § 39 ("fiduciary" includes trustee); but see Prob. Code § 21102(b) (rule applicable only when intention of transferor not indicated by instrument)]. For this purpose, a "pecuniary gift" is a transfer of property that is expressly stated as a fixed dollar amount or is a dollar amount determinable by the provisions of the instrument [Prob. Code § 21118(b)].

§ 560.83 Notice of Proposed Action by Trustee

[1] In General

A trustee may give notice of proposed action regarding a matter governed by Prob. Code §§ 16200-16249. For purpose of the notice provisions, a proposed action includes a course of action or a decision not to take action [Prob. Code § 16500]. A trustee is not required, however, to use the notice procedures set forth in Prob. Code §§ 16500-16504 before taking any action [Prob. Code § 16504]. Moreover, these notice provisions do not preclude the application or assertion of any other rights or remedies available to an interested party regarding an action to be taken or not to be taken by the trustee [Prob. Code § 16500].

[2] Persons to Whom Notice Must Be Given

A trustee who elects to provide notice of a proposed action must mail notice to each of the following [Prob. Code § 16501(a)]:

- A beneficiary who is receiving, or is entitled to receive, income under the trust, including a beneficiary who is entitled to receive income at the trustee's discretion.

- A beneficiary who would receive a distribution of principal if the trust were terminated at the time the notice is given.

If the beneficiary is a minor or an incompetent adult, the notice must be served on the guardian or conservator of the beneficiary's estate [see Prob. Code § 16503(b)].

The trustee is not required to give notice to:

- A person who consents in writing to the proposed action; the consent may be executed at any time before or after the proposed action is taken [Prob. Code § 16501(b)].

- A beneficiary who is known to the trustee but who cannot be located after reasonable diligence, or who is unknown to the trustee [Prob. Code § 16501(c)].

[3] When Notice May Not Be Given

The trustee may not use a notice of proposed action with respect to any of the following actions [Prob. Code § 16501(d)]:

- Allowance of the trustee's compensation.
- Allowance of compensation for the trustee's attorney.
- Settlement of accounts.
- Preliminary and final distributions and discharge.
- Sale of trust property to the trustee or the trustee's attorney.
- Exchange of trust property for property of the trustee or the trustee's attorney.
- Grant to the trustee or the trustee's attorney of an option to purchase trustproperty.
- Allowance, payment, or compromise of a claim of the trustee or the trustee's attorney against the trust.
- Compromise or settlement of a claim, action, or proceeding by the trust against the trustee or the attorney for the trust.
- Extension, renewal, or modification of the terms of a debt or other obligation of the trustee or the trustee's attorney, owing to or in favor of the trust.

[4] Contents of Notice

The notice of proposed action must state that it is given under Prob. Code § 16502, and must include all of the following [Prob. Code § 16502]:

- The trustee's name and mailing address.
- The name and telephone number of a person who may be contacted for additional information.
- A description of the proposed action and an explanation of the reasons for the action.
- The time within which objections to the proposed action can be made, which must be at least 45 days from the ate the notice is mailed.
- The date on or after which the proposed action may be taken or is effective.

[5] Objections to Proposed Action

A beneficiary may object to a proposed action by mailing a written objection to the trustee at the address, and within the time, specified in the notice [Prob. Code § 16503(a)]. A trustee is not liable to a beneficiary for a proposed action if the trustee does not receive a timely, written objection from the beneficiary. If no beneficiary entitled to notice objects, the trustee is not liable to any current or future beneficiary with respect to the proposed action [Prob. Code § 16503(b)].

If the trustee receives a timely, written objection, the trustee or a beneficiary may petition the court to have the proposed action taken as proposed, taken with modifications, or denied. In the proceeding, a beneficiary who objects to the proposed action has the burden of proving that the action should not be taken. A beneficiary who has not objected to the proposed action is not estopped from opposing the action in the proceeding [Prob. Code § 16503(c)].

[6] Decision Not to Take Action

If the trustee decides not to implement the proposed action, the trustee must give the beneficiaries notice of this decision and the reasons for it. The trustee's decision not to implement a proposed action does not itself give rise to liability to any current or future beneficiary. A beneficiary may petition the court to have the action taken, and has the burden of proving that the trustee should take the action [Prob. Code § 16503(d)].

49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.84

§ 560.84 Liability to Beneficiaries

[1] Breach of Trust

A violation by the trustee of any duty that the trustee owes the beneficiary is a breach of trust [Prob. Code § 16400]. However, if a trust is revocable, the trustee owes the duty to the person holding the power to revoke, and not to the beneficiaries [see Prob. Code § 15800]. Moreover, the holder of a presently exercisable general power of appointment has the rights of a person holding the power to revoke the trust that are provided by Prob. Code §§ 15800-15802, to the extent of the holder's power over the trust property [Prob. Code § 15803].

[2] Acts of Agent

Except as provided in Prob. Code § 16401(b), the trustee is not liable to the beneficiary for the acts or omissions of an agent [Prob. Code § 16401(a)].

The trustee is liable to the beneficiary for an act or omission of an agent employed by the trustee in the administration of the trust that would be a breach of the trust if committed by the trustee under any of the following circumstances [Prob. Code § 16401(b)]:

- The trustee directs the act of the agent.

- The trustee delegates to the agent the authority to perform an act that the trustee is under a duty not to delegate.

- The trustee does not use reasonable prudence in the selection of the agent or the retention of the agent selected by the trustee [see § 560.78[1], [3]].

- The trustee does not periodically review the agent's overall performance and compliance with the terms of the delegation [see Prob. Code § 16012(b) (duty to exercise general supervision over agent performing delegated matter)].

- The trustee conceals the act of the agent.

- The trustee neglects to take reasonable steps to compel the agent to redress the wrong when the trustee knows of the agent's acts or omissions [§ 560.78[3]].

For limitations on a trustee's liability to a beneficiary, see Prob. Code §§ 15800 (rights regarding revocable trust inure to settlor, not beneficiary), 15803 (rights inure to holder of presently exercisable general power of appointment or power to withdraw property), 16000 (trust instrument controls), 16462 (acts performed or omitted pursuant to written directions of revocable trust), and § 560.87.

The liability of a trustee for acts or omissions of agents that occurred before July 1, 1987, is governed by prior law and not by Prob. Code § 16401 [Prob. Code § 16401(c)]. Under prior law, a trustee who employs third persons as agents must select the third persons, and supervise their acts, with reasonable care [Gaver v. Early (1923) 58 Cal. App. 736, 737, 209 P. 394] . Moreover, the trustee is not liable to the beneficiary for the acts of agents employed in the administration of the trust unless the trustee does one of the following acts [see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 225]:

- Directs or permits the act of the agent.

- Delegates to the agent the performance of acts that he was under a duty not to delegate.

- Does not use reasonable care in the selection or retention of the agent.

- Does not exercise proper supervision over the conduct of the agent.

- Approves or acquiesces in or conceals the act of the agent.

- Neglects to take proper steps to compel the agent to redress the wrong.

For discussion of a principal's liability for acts of an agent generally, see Ch. 427, Principal and Agent .

[a] Acts Committed on or After July 1, 1987

The liability of a trustee for a breach of trust committed by a cotrustee on or after July 1, 1987, is governed by Prob. Code § 16402(b). Except as provided in Prob. Code § 16402(b), a trustee is not liable for a breach of duty committed by a cotrustee. Prob Code § 16402(b) provides that a trustee is liable for a breach of trust committed by a cotrustee if the trustee commits any of the following acts:

- Participates in a breach of trust committed by the cotrustee.

- Improperly delegates the administration of the trust to the cotrustee.

- Approves, knowingly acquiesces in, or conceals a breach of trust committed by the cotrustee.

- Negligently enables the cotrustee to commit a breach of trust [see Prob. Code § 16012(b) (duty to exercise general supervision over cotrustee performing delegated matter)].

- Neglects to take reasonable steps to compel the cotrustee to redress a breach of trust when the trustee knows or has information from which the trustee reasonably should have known of the breach.

For discussion of a dissenting cotrustee's liability to a third person under Prob. Code § 18003, see § 560.160 et seq.

[b] Acts Committed Before July 1, 1987

The liability of a trustee for acts or omissions of a cotrustee that occurred before July 1, 1987, is governed by prior law [Prob. Code § 16402(c)]. Under that law, a trustee is responsible only for the wrongful acts of a cotrustee to which the trustee consented, or that the trustee negligently enabled the cotrustee to commit [see former Civ. Code § 2239]. Consequently, a trustee was not strictly liable for the wrongful acts of a cotrustee, but nevertheless had to exercise reasonable supervision over the conduct of the cotrustee in relation to the trust [see Blackmon v. Hale (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 548, 559, 83 Cal. Rptr. 194, 463 P.2d 418] .

[c] Joint and Several Liability

When a breach of trust results in liability to more than one trustee, the liability of the affected trustees is joint and several [Gbur v. Cohen (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 296, 300, 155 Cal. Rptr. 507 (interpreting former Civ. Code § 2239, now see Prob. Code § 16402; see Cagnolatti v. Guinn (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 42, 49, 189 Cal. Rptr. 151 (applying former Civ. Code § 2239 (now see Prob. Code § 16402) to partners)].

When more than one trustee is liable to a beneficiary for a breach of trust, each trustee ordinarily is entitled to contribution from the other trustees except when their respective degrees of fault substantially differ [Gbur v. Cohen (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 296, 301, 155 Cal. Rptr. 507 ; see § 560.544].

If a trustee is liable to beneficiaries under a trust for damages resulting from the acts and omissions of the trustee and the trust's attorney, the trustee and attorney may be held liable as joint tortfeasors [see Gackstetter v. Frawley (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 1257, 1275, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 333] .

For a discussion of duties, see § 560.75[3].

[4] Acts of Predecessor

Except as provided in Prob. Code § 16403(b), a successor trustee is not liable to the beneficiary for a breach of trust that the predecessor trustee committed on or after July 1, 1987 [Prob. Code § 16403(a); see Prob. Code § 16403(c) (breach committed before July 1, 1987)].

Prob. Code § 16503(b) provides that a successor trustee is liable to the beneficiary for breach of trust involving acts or omissions of a predecessor trustee in any of the following circumstances:

- If the successor trustee knows or has information from which the successor trustee reasonably should have known of a situation constituting a breach of trust committed by the predecessor trustee and thesuccessor trustee improperly permits it to continue.

- If the successor trustee neglects to take reasonable steps to compel the predecessor trustee to deliver the trust property to the successor trustee.

- If the successor trustee neglects to take reasonable steps to redress a breach of trust committed by the predecessor trustee when the successor trustee knows or has information from which the successor trustee reasonably should have known of the predecessor trustee's breach.

The liability of a trustee for acts or omissions of a predecessor trustee that occurred before July 1, 1987, is governed by prior law [Prob. Code § 16403(c)]. There does not appear to be any statutory or decisional California precedent governing a trustee's liability for acts committed by a predecessor prior to July 1, 1987. Under Rest. 2d Trusts § 223, a trustee is not liable to the beneficiary for a breach of trust committed by a predecessor trustee. However, there is authority that a trustee is liable for the predecessor's acts if the trustee is also guilty of a violation of duty to the beneficiary, which is essentially the same as the liability under Prob. Code § 16403(c) [see, e.g., City of Fairview, Oklahoma v. Norris (10th Cir. [Okla.] 1956) 234 F.2d 199, 203 (successor trustee not liable for breach by predecessor)].

[5] Remedies for Breach of Trust

If a trustee commits a breach of trust, or threatens to commit a breach of trust, a beneficiary or cotrustee may commence a proceeding to obtain the following relief [Prob. Code § 16420(a)]:

- Compel the trustee to perform the trustee's duties [see § 560.547].

- Enjoin the trustee from committing a breach of trust [see St. James Church v. Superior Court (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 352, 359-362, 287 P.2d 387 (action seeking to enjoin trustee from committing breach of trust)].

- Compel the trustee to redress a breach of trust by payment of money or otherwise [see Prob. Code §§ 16440-16442 (measure of liability)].

- Appoint a receiver or temporary trustee to take possession of the trust property and administer the trust [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1) (appointment of receiver when property in danger); Prob. Code §§ 15660 (appointment of trustee to fill vacancy), 17206 (appointment of temporary trustee); see also Bowles v. Superior Court (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 574, 583-584, 283 P.2d 704 (appointment of receiver to act as temporary trustee on vacancy of office of trustee)].

- Remove the trustee [see Prob. Code § 15642 (grounds for removal)].

- Set aside acts of the trustee, subject to Prob. Code § 18100 (rights of bona fide purchaser); see § 560.200 et seq.

- Reduce or deny compensation of the trustee [see § 560.548.5].

- Impose an equitable lien or a constructive trust on trust property, subject to Prob. Code § 18100 (rights of bona fide purchaser) [see § 560.547 and § 560.200 et seq.].

- Trace trust property that has been wrongfully disposed of and recover the property or its proceeds, subject to Prob. Code § 18100 (rights of bona fide purchaser) [see § 560.200 et seq.].

The remedies of a beneficiary against the trustee are exclusively in equity [Prob. Code § 16421].

The provision of remedies for breach of trust in Prob. Code § 16420(a) does not prevent resort to any other appropriate remedy provided by statute or the common law [Prob. Code § 16420(b)]. For example, the beneficiary may seek criminal charges against the trustee [see Penal Code §§ 487 (grand theft), 506 (embezzlement); see also People v. Stanford (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 247, 105 P.2d 969 (prosecution of trustee for grand theft)]. A court may also use less extreme remedies to remedy a breach of trust [see Schwartz v. Labow (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 417, 428, 78 Cal. Rptr.

3d 838 (court had jurisdiction to suspend some of trustee's powers for perceived breaches of trust since court had express statutory authority to remove trustee)].

[6] Measure of Liability for Breach of Trust

If the trustee commits a breach of trust, the trustee is chargeable with any of the following that is appropriate under the circumstances [Prob. Code § 16440(a)]:

- Any loss or depreciation in value of the trust estate resulting from the breach of trust, with interest.
- Any profit made by the trustee through the breach of trust, with interest.
- Any profit that would have accrued to the trust estate if the loss of profit is the result of the breach of trust.

If the trustee is liable for interest pursuant to Prob. Code § 16440, the trustee is liable for the greater of either the amount of interest that accrues at the legal rate on judgments in effect during the period when the interest accrued, or the amount of interest actually received [Prob. Code § 16441; see Code Civ. Proc. § 685.010 (rate of interest on judgments)].

If the trustee has acted reasonably and in good faith under the circumstances as known to the trustee, the court, in its discretion, may excuse the trustee in whole or in part from liability under Prob. Code §§ 16440(a) and 16441(a) if it would be equitable to do so [Prob. Code §§ 16440(b), 16441(b); see § 560.78].

The provisions of Prob. Code §§ 16440-16442 for liability of a trustee for breach of trust do not prevent resort to any other remedy available under the statutory or common law [Prob. Code § 16442]. For example, exemplarydamages may be awarded against a trustee who breaches a fiduciary duty if there is evidence of oppression, fraud, or malice [Vale v. Union Bank (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 330, 339, 151 Cal. Rptr. 784] . Interest under the Trust Law is not compounded as it was under former Civ. Code § 2262, notwithstanding Prob. Code § 16442 [see Communication From the Cal. Law Revision Comm'n Concerning AB 362 (1987) (p. 3)].

§ 560.85 Release From Liability

A trustee may not require a beneficiary to relieve the trustee of liability as a condition for making a distribution or payment to, or for the benefit of, the beneficiary, if the trust instrument requires the distribution or payment [Prob. Code § 16004.5(a)]. This provision, however, does not affect the trustee's right to maintain a reserve for reasonably anticipated expenses, to seek a voluntary release or discharge of the trustee's liability from the beneficiary, to require indemnification against a claim by a person or entity (other than a beneficiary) that may reasonably arise as a result of the distribution, to withhold any portion of an otherwise required distribution that is reasonably in dispute, or to seek court or beneficiary approval of an accounting of trust activities [Prob. Code § 16004.5(b)].

§ 560.86 Limitations on Proceedings Against Trustee

Unless a claim is previously barred by adjudication, consent, limitation, or otherwise, if a beneficiary has received an interim or final account in writing, or other written report, that adequately discloses the existence of a claim against the trustee for breach of trust, the claim is barred as to that beneficiary unless a proceeding to assert the claim is commenced within three years after receipt of the account or report. An account or report adequately discloses existence of a claim if it provides sufficient information so that the beneficiary knows of the claim or reasonably should have inquired into the existence of the claim [Prob. Code § 16460(a)(1); Di Grazia v. Anderlini (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1337, 1346, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 37] .

If an interim or final account in writing or other written report does not adequately disclose the existence of a claim against the trustee for breach of trust, or if a beneficiary does not receive any written account or report, the claim is barred as to that beneficiary unless a proceeding to assert the claim is commenced within three years after the beneficiary discovered, or reasonably should have discovered, the subject of the claim [Prob. Code § 16460(a)(2); Di Grazia v. Anderlini (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1337, 1346, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 37] .

For the purpose of Prob. Code § 16460(a), a beneficiary is deemed to have received an account or report as follows [Prob. Code § 16460(b)]:

- In the case of an adult who is reasonably capable of understanding the account or report, if it is received by the adult personally.

- In the case of an adult who is not reasonably capable of understanding the account or report, if it is received by the person's legal representative, including a guardian ad litem or other person appointed for this purpose.

- In the case of a minor, if it is received by the minor's guardian or, if the minor does not have a guardian, if it is received by the minor's parent so long as the parent does not have a conflict of interest.

The trustee's written account or report may meet the requirements for formal accounts and reports set forth in Prob. Code § 16061 or 16063. However, it is not required to meet those requirements [Prob. Code § 16460(c)].

During the time that a trust is revocable, the person holding the power to revoke is the one who must receive the account or report in order to commence the running of the limitations period [see Prob Code §§ 15800 (rights regarding revocable trust inure to settlor, not beneficiary), 15803 (rights inuring to holder of presently exercisable general power of appointment or power to withdraw property)]. Thus, when the settlor of a revocable trust was under the care and custody of a court-appointed conservator, the beneficiaries had no right to an accounting because the trust remained revocable despite the conservatorship [Johnson v. Kotyck (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 83, 88, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 99] .

49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.87

§ 560.87 Limitations on Liability

[1] Provision in Trust Instrument

Except as provided in Prob. Code § 16461(b)-(d), the trustee can be relieved of liability for breach of trust by provisions in the trust instrument [Prob. Code § 16461(a)]. A provision in the trust instrument is not effective to relieve the trustee of liability for either of the following [Prob. Code § 16461(b)]:

- Breach of trust committed intentionally, with gross negligence, in bad faith, or with reckless indifference to the interest of the beneficiary.

- Any profit that the trustee derives from a breach of trust.

[2] Beneficiary's Failure to Object to Account or Report

A provision in a trust instrument that releases the trustee from liability if a beneficiary fails to object to an item in an interim or final account or other written report within a specified time period is effective only if all of the following conditions are met [Prob. Code § 16461(c)]:

- The account or report sets forth the item.

- The period specified in the trust instrument for the beneficiary to object isnot less than 180 days.

- Written notice in 12-point boldface type is provided to the beneficiary with the account or report in the following form:

NOTICE TO BENEFICIARIES

YOU HAVE (180 days or the period specified in the trust instrument, whichever is longer) FROM

THE RECEIPT OF THIS ACCOUNT OR REPORT TO MAKE AN OBJECTION TO ANY ITEM SET FORTH IN THIS ACCOUNT OR REPORT. ANY OBJECTION YOU MAKE MUST BE IN WRITING, IT MUST BE DELIVERED TO THE TRUSTEE WITHIN THE PERIOD STATED ABOVE, AND IT MUST STATE YOUR OBJECTION. YOUR FAILURE TO DELIVER A WRITTEN OBJECTION TO THE TRUSTEE WITHIN THE PERIOD STATED ABOVE WILL PERMANENTLY PREVENT YOU FROM LATER ASSERTING THIS OBJECTION AGAINST THE TRUSTEE. IF YOU DO MAKE AN OBJECTION TO THE TRUSTEE, THE THREE-YEAR PERIOD PROVIDED IN SECTION 16460 OF THE PROBATE CODE FOR COMMENCEMENT OF LITIGATION WILL APPLY TO CLAIMS BASED ON YOUR OBJECTION AND WILL BEGIN TO RUN ON THE DATE THAT YOU RECEIVE THIS ACCOUNT OR REPORT.

A provision in a trust instrument that provides for a period of less than 180 days to object to an item in an account or report is ineffective to release the trustee from liability. However, a trustee of a trust created by an instrument with an ineffective period may elect to be governed by Prob. Code § 16461(c), except that "180 days" must be substituted in the notice form for the ineffective period [Prob. Code § 16461(d)].

A beneficiary who fails to object in writing to an account or report that complies with the requirements of Prob. Code § 16461(c) within the specified, valid period, is barred from asserting any claim against the trustee regarding an item that is adequately disclosed in the account or report. An item is adequately disclosed if the disclosure meets the requirements of Prob. Code § 16460(a)(1) [Prob. Code § 16461(e); see § 560.86].

The trustee is not released from liability as to any claim based on a written objection made by a beneficiary, if the objection is delivered to the trustee within the specified effective period. If a beneficiary files a written objection to an account or report that complies with the requirements of Prob. Code § 16461(c) within the specified, valid period that concerns an item that affects any other beneficiary of the trust, any affected beneficiary may join in the objection anytime within the specified, valid period or while resolution of the objection is pending, whichever is later [Prob. Code § 16461(f)]. This provision is not intended to establish a class of beneficiaries for actions on an account and report, or to provide that the action of one beneficiary is for the benefit of all beneficiaries. It does not create a duty for any trustee to notify beneficiaries of objections or resolution of objections [Prob. Code § 16461(f)].

When a beneficiary has filed a written objection to an account or report that complies with the requirements of Prob. Code § 16461(c) within the specified, valid period, a supplemental written objection may be delivered in the same manner as the objection not later than 180 days after receipt of the account or report, or no later than the period specified in the trust instrument, whichever is longer [Prob. Code § 16461(g)].

If proper notice has been given and a beneficiary has not made a timely objection, the trustee is not liable for any other claims adequately disclosed by any item in the account or report [Prob. Code § 16461(i)].

[3] Revocable Trust

Notwithstanding Prob. Code § 16461, a trustee of a revocable trust is not liable to a beneficiary for any act performed or omitted pursuant to written directions from the person holding the power to revoke, including a person to whom the power to direct the trustee is delegated [Prob. Code § 16462(a) see Prob. Code § 16001 (trustee's duty to follow written directions regarding revocable trust)]. Prob. Code § 16462(a) applies to a trust that is revocable in part with respect to the interest of the beneficiary in that part of the trust property [Prob. Code § 16462(b)].

[4] Consent of Beneficiary

Except as provided in Prob. Code § 16463(b) and (c), a beneficiary may not hold the trustee liable for an act or omission of the trustee as a breach of trust if the beneficiary consented to the act or omission before or at the time of the act or omission [Prob. Code § 16463(a)]. The consent of the beneficiary does not preclude the beneficiary from holding the trustee liable for a breach of trust in any of the following circumstances [Prob. Code § 16463(b)]:

- If the beneficiary was under an incapacity at the time of the consent or of the act or omission.

- If the beneficiary at the time consent was given did not know of his or her rights and of the material facts (1) that the trustee knew or should have known, and (2) that the trustee did not reasonably believe that the beneficiary knew.

- The consent of the beneficiary was induced by improper conduct of the trustee.

If the trustee has an interest in the transaction adverse to the interest of the beneficiary, the consent of the beneficiary does not preclude the beneficiary from holding the trustee liable for a breach of trust under any of the circumstances described in Prob. Code § 16463(b) or if the transaction to which the beneficiary consented was not fair and reasonable to the beneficiary [Prob. Code § 16463(c)].

[5] Release or Contract

Except as provided in Prob. Code § 16464(b), a beneficiary may be precluded from holding the trustee liable for a breach of trust by the beneficiary's release or contract effective to discharge the trustee's liability to the beneficiary for that breach [Prob. Code § 16464(a)].

A release or contract is not effective to discharge the trustee's liability for a breach of trust in any of the following circumstances [Prob. Code § 16464(b)]:

- The beneficiary was under an incapacity at the time of making the release or contract.

- The beneficiary did not know of his or her rights and of the material facts that the trustee knew or reasonably should have known, and that the trustee did not reasonably believe that the beneficiary knew.

- The release or contract of the beneficiary was induced by improper conduct of the trustee.

- The transaction involved a bargain with the trustee that was not fair and reasonable.

[6] Affirmance of Transaction by Beneficiary

Except as provided in Prob. Code § 16465(b), if the trustee, in breach of trust, enters into a transaction that the beneficiary may reject or affirm, and the beneficiary affirms the transaction, the beneficiary is not able subsequently to reject it and hold the trustee liable for any loss occurring after the trustee entered into the transaction [Prob. Code § 16465(a)].

The affirmance of a transaction by the beneficiary does not preclude the beneficiary from holding a trustee liable for a breach of trust if, at the time of the affirmance, circumstances existed comparable to those enumerated under Prob. Code § 16464(b), discussed in § 560.87[5] [see Prob. Code § 16465(b)].

[7] Marital Deduction QTIP Trusts

A fiduciary is not liable for a good faith decision to make any election, or not to make any election, referred to in I.R.C. §§ 2056(b)(7) or 2523(f), which govern qualified terminable interest property (QTIP) trusts regarding federal estate and gift tax deductions, respectively [Prob. Code § 21526; see Prob. Code §§ 39 ("fiduciary" includes trustee), 21500

(Internal Revenue Code references include subsequent amendments)]. This limitation provides protection for both partial and full elections [see Cal. Law Revision Comm'n Comment to Prob. Code § 21526]. The provisions of Prob. Code §§ 21500-21541 apply to a distribution made on or after January 1, 1988; prior distributions are governed by prior law [Prob. Code § 21501]. Nevertheless, they do not apply to a trust whose terms expressly or by necessary implication make them inapplicable [Prob. Code § 21502(a)]. Moreover, Prob. Code § 21526 does not apply to a trust that qualifies for the marital deduction under Treas. Reg. § 20.2056(e)-2(b) ("estate trust") [Prob. Code § 21521; see discussion in § 560.77[1]].

A QTIP trust is a particular type of marital deduction trust [see California Legal Forms, Ch. 71, Marital Deduction Trust Provisions (Matthew Bender); California Wills & Trusts, Ch. 112, Marital Deduction Trusts (Matthew Bender)]. Under I.R.C. § 2056(b)(7)(B)(i), qualified terminable interest property is property that passes from the decedent in which the surviving spouse has a qualifying income interest for life, and to which an election under that paragraph applies. Under I.R.C. § 2523(f)(2), it is property that is transferred by the donor spouse in which the donee spouse has a qualifying income interest for life, and to which an election under that subsection applies. For forms for QTIP trusts, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 70, Complete Revocable Trust Forms; Ch. 71, Marital Deduction Trust Provisions; California Wills & Trusts-- Forms, Trust 30 (Matthew Bender). For discussion of the use of QTIP trusts in estate planning, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 71, Marital Deduction Trust Provisions (Matthew Bender); California Wills & Trusts, Ch. 112, Marital Deduction Trusts (Matthew Bender).

§ 560.88 Elder Abuse Action Against Trustee

A trustee may be liable under the Elder Abuse and Dependent Adult Civil Protection Act [Welf. & Inst. Code § 15600 et seq.] if the court finds that the trustee abused and neglected a decedent who was entitled to the protection of the Act [Estate of Lowrie (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 220, 224, 226-231, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 828 (trustee allegedly exploited his relationship with decedent and through manipulation, fraud, and undue influence enticed decedent to give property to him and to change her estate plan so he would receive substantially all of her assets; trustee also allegedly abused decedent physically and financially, and intentionally isolated decedent from her family]. After the decedent's death, the right to bring an action under the Act is conferred on the decedent's personal representative or, if none, on the person or persons entitled to succeed to the decedent's estate [Welf. & Inst. Code § 15657.3(d)]. A broad definition of standing applies in elder abuse cases [Estate of Lowrie (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 220, 227, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 828] .

A decision as to whether a person has standing in an elder abuse case may be intertwined with other issues [Estate of Lowrie (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 220, 230, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 828] . For example, a decedent's granddaughter had standing to bring an elder abuse action against the trustee of the decedent's estate based on the granddaughter's contingent interest in the estate; that is, the fact that she would become the successor trustee and the successor beneficiary to the remainder if the trustee predeceased the decedent [Estate of Lowrie (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 220, 229-231, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 828] . By virtue of Prob. Code § 259, if the trustee isshown to have abused or neglected the decedent, the trustee is deemed to have predeceased the decedent and, therefore, is not entitled to inherit the remainder of the decedent's estate [Estate of Lowrie (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 220, 228-231, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 828] .

The Act permits recovery of damages for pain and suffering even after the abused elder has died, as well as recovery of punitive damages and attorney's fees if the plaintiff shows by clear and convincing evidence that the defendant is liable for elder abuse and is guilty of recklessness, oppression, fraud, or malice in the commission of the abuse [Welf. & Inst. Code § 15657; Estate of Lowrie (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 220, 226-227, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 828] .

For additional coverage of actions for elder abuse, see Ch. 5, Abuse of Minors and Elderly .

49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.89

§ 560.89 Compensation of Trustee

[1] Under Trust Instrument

Subject to Prob. Code § 15680(b), and except as provided in Prob. Code § 15688 (public guardian compensation), if the trust instrument provides for the trustee's compensation, the trustee is entitled to be compensated in accordance with the trust instrument [Prob. Code § 15680(a)].

On proper showing, the court may fix or allow greater or lesser compensation than could be allowed under the terms of the trust in any of the following circumstances [Prob. Code § 15680(b); see § 560.558]:

- If the duties of the trustee are substantially different from those contemplated when the trust was created.

- If the compensation in accordance with the terms of the trust would be inequitable or unreasonably low or high.

- In extraordinary circumstances calling for equitable relief.

An order fixing or allowing greater or lesser compensation under Prob. Code § 15680(b) applies only prospectively to actions taken in administration of the trust after the order is made [Prob. Code § 15680(c)].

[2] Reasonable Compensation

If the trust instrument does not specify the trustee's compensation, the trustee is entitled to reasonable compensation under the circumstances [Prob. Code § 15681; see Prob. Code § 16243 (power to pay reasonable compensation)]. Moreover, the court may fix an amount of periodic compensation under Prob. Code §§ 15680 and 15681. This compensation may continue for as long as the court determines is proper [Prob. Code § 15682].

In determining or approving a trustee's compensation, the court may consider, among other factors, the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.776]:

- The gross income of the trust estate.
- The success or failure of the trustee's administration.
- Any unusual skill, expertise, or experience brought to the trustee's work.
- The fidelity or disloyalty shown by the trustee.
- The amount of risk and responsibility the trustee assumed.
- The time spent in the performance of the trustee's duties.
- The custom in the community where the court is located as to compensation authorized by settlers, as to compensation allowed by the court, or as to charges of corporate trustees for trusts of similar size and complexity.
- Whether the work the trustee performed was routine or required more than ordinary skill or judgment.

[3] Apportionment Among Trustees

Unless the trust instrument otherwise provides or the trustees otherwise agree, if the trust has two or more trustees, the compensation must be apportioned among the cotrustees according to the services rendered by them [Prob. Code § 15683].

[4] When Attorney Is Trustee

A trustee who is an attorney generally may not receive compensation both for serving as trustee and for performing legal services for the trustee. This rule applies to any services rendered after January 1, 1994, regardless of any contrary provision in the trust instrument [Prob. Code § 15687(a), (f)]. The rules limiting the right to dual compensation also apply when the attorney is a parent, child, sibling, or spouse of the trustee, or when a partner, shareholder, or employee of the attorney's law firm is serving as a trustee. If any of these persons is a trustee, the attorney cannot receive any compensation for legal services performed for the trustee unless the trustee waives his or her compensation or follows the procedures discussed below to obtain approval of dual compensation [Prob. Code § 15687(b)]. This rule is inapplicable if the trustee is related by blood or marriage to, or is cohabiting with, the settlor [Prob. Code § 15687(c)]. Note that there is no exception based solely on the relationship between the attorney and the settlor. Thus, if the attorney is related to the settlor, but the trustee is not, there are circumstances under which the restrictions on dual compensation would still apply. For example, if the settlor's child serves as attorney for the trust and another member of the same law firm serves as trustee, the exception for related persons is inapplicable and the restrictions on dual compensation apply. Conversely, however, if the settlor's child is a member or employee of a law firm and serves as trustee, another member or employee of the law firm may serve as attorney for the trust and the dual compensation rules are inapplicable [see Prob. Code § 15687(b), (c)].

Violation of the dual compensation rules may subject the offending attorney to professional discipline if the attorney knew or should have known of the facts leading to the violation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6103.6]. The rules thus constitute a real danger to attorneys and law firms, even when they agree not to charge for work performed in the capacity of trustee. If some of the work for which legal fees are charged, such as fiduciary accountings or the preparation of income tax returns, can arguably be characterized as fees for trustee work, not legal work, the statute is violated and professional discipline can result.

An attorney-trustee may receive dual compensation if, after the nature of the compensation and the relationship of the trustee to all persons receiving compensation from the attorney-trustee is fully disclosed to the court, the court makes an order determining that dual compensation would be reasonable [Prob. Code §§ 15687(d)(1), 17200(b)(20)]. An attorney-trustee may also receive dual compensation after giving 30 days' advance notice to all the beneficiaries (and to the attorney general, if the trust is a charitable trust subject to the attorney general's jurisdiction) if no objection to the dual compensation is received within the 30 days [Prob. Code § 15687(d)(2); for trusts subject to attorney general's jurisdiction, see Gov. Code §§ 12580-12599.5 (Uniform Supervision of Trustees for Charitable Purposes Act)]. Any of the persons entitled to notice may object within the 30-day period. If an objection is made, the attorney-trustee must obtain court approval of the dual compensation [Prob. Code § 15687(d)(2)]. The rule governing dual compensation for an attorney-trustee is based on public policy, and any attempt to waive it is void [Prob. Code § 15687(e)].

A trustee may not charge an increased trustee's fee for administration of a particular trust unless the trustee first gives at least 60 days' written notice of that increased fee to all of the following persons [Prob. Code § 15686(b)]:

- Each beneficiary entitled to an account under Prob. Code § 16062.
- Each beneficiary who was given the last preceding account.
- Each beneficiary who has made a written request to the trustee for notice of an increased trustee's fee and has given an address for receiving notice by mail.

"Trustee's fee" includes, but is not limited to, the trustee's periodic base fee, rate of percentage compensation, minimum fee, hourly rate, and transaction charge, but does not include fees for extraordinary services [Prob. Code § 15686(a)].

If a beneficiary files a petition under Prob. Code § 17200 for review of the increased trustee's fee or for removal of the trustee and serves a copy of the petition on the trustee before the expiration of the 60-day period, the increased trustee's fee does not take effect as to that trust until otherwise ordered by the court or the petition is dismissed [Prob. Code § 15686(c); see § 560.540 (petition to remove trustee), § 560.549 (petition to review reasonableness of compensation, including review of increased fee)].

§ 560.91 Indemnification of Trustee

A trustee is entitled to the repayment out of the trust property for the following [Prob. Code § 15684]:

- Expenditures that were properly incurred in the administration of the trust.

- Expenditures that were not properly incurred in the administration of the trust, to the extent that they benefitted the trust.

Consequently, a trustee is not entitled to attorney's fees and expenses in a proceeding in which the trustee is found to have breached the trust, unless otherwise ordered by the court pursuant to Prob. Code § 15684(b) [see, e.g., Estate of Gilmaker (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 658, 665, 38 Cal. Rptr. 270] .

If litigation is necessary to preserve the trust, the trustee is entitled to reimbursement for his or her expenditures from the trust. However, if the litigation is specifically for the trustee's benefit, the trustee must bear his or her own costs, and is not entitled to reimbursement [Terry v. Conlan (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 1445, 1461, 1464, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 603 (trustee who did not participate in litigation as neutral trustee to defend trust and protect its assets, but rather to pursue her own interests and those of her siblings to detriment of other beneficiary, was required to bear her own costs)]. If the litigation does not involve a challenge to the existence of the trust, but is a dispute over who will control and benefit from it, the trustee is not entitled to reimbursement because no matter who prevails in the litigation, the trust will remain intact, and the trustee's only participation in the litigation should be that of a neutral party [Terry v. Conlan (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 1445, 1461, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 603] .

The trustee has an equitable lien on the trust property as against the beneficiary in the amount of advances, with any interest, made for the protection of the trust, and for expenses, losses, and liabilities sustained in the administration of the trust or because of ownership or control of any trust property [Prob. Code § 15685; see Prob. Code § 18001 (personal liability of trustee); Kasperbauer v. Fairfield (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 785, 795 (trustee had right to indemnification for expenses reasonably incurred in defending accounting when court ordered beneficiaries to pay attorney fees incurred by the trustee in completing and defending an accounting)]. However, a trustee does not have an equitable lien against a transferee of the property who gives fair consideration without knowledge of the lien [see Recommendation Proposing the Trust Law, 18 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports 656 (1986)].

[1] Methods

A trustee who has accepted the trust may resign only by one of the following methods [Prob. Code § 15640]:

- As provided in the trust instrument.
- In the case of a revocable trust, with the consent of the person holding the power to revoke the trust.
- In the case of an irrevocable trust, with the consent of all adult beneficiaries who are receiving or are entitled to receive income under the trust or to receive a distribution of principal if the trust were terminated at the time consent is sought [see Prob. Code § 15403].
- Pursuant to a court order accepting the trustee's resignation [see Prob. Code § 17200(b)(11)].

If a beneficiary of an irrevocable trust has a conservator, the conservator may consent to the trustee's resignation on behalf of the conservatee without obtaining court approval [Prob. Code § 15640(c)]. Without limiting the power of the beneficiary to consent to the trustee's resignation, if the beneficiary has designated an attorney infact who has the power under the power of attorney to consent to the trustee's resignation, the attorney in fact may consent to the resignation [Prob. Code § 15640(c)].

When a petition is filed for a court order accepting the trustee's resignation [see Prob. Code § 17200(b)(11)], the court must accept the trustee's resignation and may make any orders necessary for the preservation of the trust property, including the appointment of a receiver or a temporary trustee [see §§ 560.557 (petition for resignation), 560.560 (order)].

For discussion of acceptance of the trust, see § 560.71.

[2] Liability of Resigning Trustee

The liability for acts or omissions of a resigning trustee or of the sureties on the trustee's bond, if any, is not released or affected in any manner by the trustee's resignation [Prob. Code § 15641].

§ 560.93 Removal of Trustee

[1] General Grounds for Removal

A trustee may be removed in accordance with the trust instrument, by the court on its own motion, or on petition of a settlor, cotrustee, or beneficiary under Prob. Code § 17200 [Prob. Code § 15642(a); see § 560.540].

The grounds for removal of a trustee by the court include the following [Prob. Code § 15642(b)]:

- The trustee has committed a breach of the trust.
- The trustee is insolvent or otherwise unfit to administer the trust.
- Hostility or lack of cooperation among cotrustees impairs the administration of the trust.
- The trustee fails or declines to act.
- The trustee's compensation is excessive under the circumstances.
- The trustee is substantially unable to manage the trust's financial resources.
- The trustee is substantially unable to resist fraud or undue influence.
- For other good cause.

[2] Special Rule When Trustee Is Attorney Who Drafted Instrument or Attorney's Relative, Associate, or Employee

[a] Persons Covered by Rule

A special rule governs the removal of the trustee when there is only one trustee, the trust became irrevocable after January 1, 1994, and the trustee is any of the following [Prob. Code § 15642(b)(6); see Prob. Code § 21350(a)]:

- The person who drafted the instrument.

- A person who is related by blood or marriage to, or is a cohabitant with or employee of, the person who drafted the instrument.

- Any partner or shareholder of any law partnership or law corporation in which the person who drafted the instrument has an ownership interest, and any employee of any such law partnership or law corporation.

- Any person who has a fiduciary relationship with the transferor, including, but not limited to, a conservator or trustee, and who transcribes the instrument or causes it to be transcribed.

- A person who is related by blood or marriage to, or is a cohabitant with or employee of, a person described in the category immediately above.

- A care custodian of a dependent adult.

For purposes of Prob. Code § 21350, "a person who is related by blood or marriage" to a person means all of the following [Prob. Code § 21350(b)]:

- The person's spouse or predeceased spouse;

- Relatives within the third degree of the person and of the person's spouse;

- The spouse of any relative within the third degree of the person or of the person's spouse.

In determining relationships for purposes of this rule, Prob. Code § 6406, which governs the inheritance rights of relatives of the half blood, Prob. Code § 6407, which covers the inheritance rights of afterborn heirs, and Prob. Code §§ 6450-6455, which prescribe rules for determining the relationship of parent and child for purposes of intestate succession, are all applicable [Prob. Code § 21350(b)].

For purposes of Prob. Code § 21350, the term "care" custodian means an administrator or employee of a public or private care facility or agency (including a member of the support or maintenance staff), or any other person providing care or services for elders or dependent adults, except persons who do not work directly with elders or dependent adults as part of their official duties [Prob. Code § 21350(c); see Welf. & Inst. Code § 15610.17 for list of covered care facilities and agencies)]. A long-term care ombudsman for a skilled nursing facility remains a care custodian even after his or her formal ombudsman relationship with a resident has ended, due either to a change in the ombudsman's facility assignment or the fact that the resident has left the facility when the ombudsman, as a result of his or her fiduciary relationship with the resident, develops a personal relationship with the resident and thereby acquires personal and financial information regarding the resident [Estate of Shinkle (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 990, 993, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 42 ; disapproved in part on other grounds in Bernard v. Foley (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 794, 816, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 248, 139 P.3d 1196] .

"Dependent adult" means any of the following [Prob. Code § 21350(c); see Welf. & Inst. Code § 15610.23(a)]:

- Any person residing in California, between the ages of 18 and 64 years, who has physical or mental limitations that restrict his or her ability to carry out normal activities or to protect his or her rights including, but not limited to, persons who have physical or developmental disabilities or whose physical or mental abilities have diminished because of age [Prob. Code § 21350(c)].

- Any person between the ages of 18 and 64 who is admitted as an inpatient to a 24-hour health facility as defined in Health & Safety Code §§ 1250, 1250.2, and 1250.3.

- Any person older than age 64 who would be a "dependent adult" under the above definitions if he or she were between the ages of 18 and 64.

[b] Removal of Trustee

A trustee who is any one of the persons described above may be removed by the court, on its own motion, or on petition of a settlor or beneficiary under Prob. Code § 17200, regardless of whether the trustee has received or is entitled to receive a donative transfer under the trust [Prob. Code § 15642(a), (b)(6)]. However, a trustee may not be removed under this rule if any of the following conditions are met [Prob. Code § 15642(b)(6)]:

- The settlor is related by blood or marriage to, or is a cohabitant with, any one or more of the trustees, the person who drafted or transcribed the instrument, or the person who caused the instrument to be transcribed.

- The instrument is reviewed by an independent attorney who counsels the settlor about the nature of his or her intended trustee designation and signs and delivers to the settlor and the designated trustee a "Certificate of Independent Review" in substantially the form prescribed by Prob. Code § 15642(b)(6), or if, after full disclosure of the relationships of the persons involved, the court approves the instrument by an order under Prob. Code §§ 2580 et seq. [Prob. Code § 15642(b)(6)]. This rule is based on public policy, and any attempt to waive it is void [Prob. Code § 15642(b)(6)].

The court may refuse to remove the trustee under this rule if, after considering all of the facts and circumstances, including any evidence of the settlor's intent, it determines that it is consistent with the settlor's intent for the trustee to continue to serve and that this intent was not the product of fraud, menace, duress, or undue influence [Prob. Code § 15642(b)(6)]. However, if the court finds that the designation of the trustee was not consistent with the settlor's intent or was the product of fraud, menace, duress, or undue influence, the person removed as trustee must bear all costs of the proceeding, including reasonable attorney's fees [Prob. Code § 15642(c)].

[3] Surrender of Trust Property Pending Disposition of Petition Seeking Renewal

If it appears to the court that trust property or the interest of a beneficiary may suffer loss or injury pending a decision on a petition for removal of a trustee and any appellate review, the court, on its own motion or on petition of a cotrustee or beneficiary, may compel the trustee whose removal is sought to surrender trust property to a cotrustee or a receiver or temporary trustee. The court may suspend the trustee's powers to the extent that it deems this necessary [Prob. Code § 15642(e)].

[4] Award of Costs and Fees

If the trustee of a trust that is not revocable has refused to transfer administration of the trust to a successor trust company on request of the beneficiaries described in Prob. Code § 15640(c) [see § 560.92[1]] and the court in subsequent proceedings under Prob. Code § 17200 makes an order removing the existingtrustee and appointing a trust company as successor trustee, the court may, in its discretion, award costs and reasonable attorney's fees incurred by the petitioner in the proceeding to be paid by the trustee or from the trust as ordered by the court [Prob. Code § 15645].

If the court finds that a petition for the removal of a trustee was filed in bad faith and that removal would be contrary to the settlor's intent, it may order that the person or persons seeking the trustee's removal bear all or part of the costs of the proceeding, including reasonable attorney's fees [Prob. Code § 15642(d)].

§ 560.94 Vacancy in Office of Trustee

[1] Manners in Which Vacancy Arises

There is a vacancy in the office of trustee in any of the following circumstances [Prob. Code § 15643]:

- The person named as trustee rejects the trust [see Prob. Code § 15601].
- The person named as trustee cannot be identified or does not exist.
- The trustee resigns or is removed [see Prob. Code §§ 15640 (resignation), 15642 (removal)].
- The trustee dies.
- A conservator or guardian of the person or estate of an individual trustee is appointed.
- The trustee is the subject of an order for relief in bankruptcy.
- A trust company's charter is revoked or powers are suspended, if the revocation or suspension is to be in effect for a period of 30 days or more [see Prob. Code § 83 (definition of trust company)].
- A receiver is appointed for a trust company if the appointment is not vacated within a period of 30 days.

[2] Delivery of Property by Former Trustee

When a vacancy has occurred in the office of trustee, the former trustee who holds property of the trust must deliver the trust property to the successor trustee or a person appointed by the court to receive the property and remains responsible for the trust property until it is delivered. A trustee who has resigned or is removed has the powers reasonably necessary under the circumstances to preserve the trust property until it is delivered to the successor trustee and to perform actions necessary to complete the resigning or removed trustee's administration of the trust [Prob. Code § 15644; see Prob. Code § 16420(a)(4) (appointment of receiver and protection of property after breach of trust)].

[3] Appointment of Trustee to Fill Vacancy

[a] In General

If the trust has no trustee or if the trust instrument requires a vacancy in the office of a cotrustee to be filled, the vacancy must be filled as provided in Prob. Code § 15660 [Prob. Code § 15660(a); see Prob. Code § 15621 (remaining cotrustees may act for trust in absence of provision to contrary)]. If the trust instrument provides a practical method of appointing a trustee or names the person to fill the vacancy, the vacancy must be filled as provided in the trust instrument [Prob. Code § 15660(b)].

If the vacancy in the office of trustee is not filled as provided in Prob. Code § 15660(b), the vacancy may be filled by a trust company that has agreed to accept the trust on agreement of all adult beneficiaries who are receiving or are entitled to receive income under the trust or to receive a distribution of principal if the trust were terminated at the time the agreement is made. If a beneficiary has a conservator, the conservator may agree to the successor trustee on behalf of the conservatee without obtaining court approval. Without limiting the power of the beneficiary to agree to the successor trustee, if the beneficiary has designated an attorney in fact who has the power under the power of attorney to agree to the successor trustee, the attorney in fact may agree to the successor trustee [Prob. Code § 15660(c)].

If the vacancy in the office of trustee is not filled as provided in Prob. Code § 15660(b) or (c), on petition of any interested person or any person named as trustee in the trust instrument, the court may, in its discretion, appoint a trustee to fill the vacancy. If the trust provides for more than one trustee, the court may, in its discretion, appoint the original number or any lesser number of trustees. In selecting a trustee, the court shall give consideration to any nomination by the beneficiaries who are 14 years of age or older [Prob. Code § 15660(d); but see Prob. Code §§ 15800 (rights regarding revocable trust inure to settlor, not beneficiary), 15803 (rights inuring to holder of presently exercisable general power of appointment or power to withdraw property)].

[b] Appointment of Trustee Ad Litem

Just as the probate court may entirely remove a trustee and appoint a replacement, the court may also suspend a trustee's powers relative to specified trust litigation and appoint a trustee ad litem with limited powers to conduct that litigation [see Getty v. Getty (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 134, 142, 252 Cal. Rptr. 342] . For example, if the interests of the trustee in the conduct of third-partylitigation involving the trust assets are similar to those of the third-party litigants and inimical to those of the trust beneficiaries, suspension of the trustee's powers relative to that litigation and appointment of a trustee ad litem to conduct the litigation is appropriate. In deciding whether to partially suspend the trustee's powers and appoint a trustee ad litem, the court will consider whether doing so will lead to confusion and dispute between the trustee and the trustee ad litem relative to their respective powers and duties. The fact that the division of powers between the two is clear and that the trustee ad litem's powers are appropriately defined will militate in favor of the partial suspension and appointment [see Getty v. Getty (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 134, 141, 252 Cal. Rptr. 342] .

The appointment of a trustee ad litem is a proper exercise of the probate court's general equity jurisdiction, and is intrinsically included in the court's greater power to remove and replace the trustee. Because the court, in the exercise of its general equity jurisdiction, has the power to remove a trustee entirely, the removal of the existing trustee's power to conduct certain lawsuits and the appointment of a trustee ad litem, when there is a conflict of interest, are also an exercise of that general equity jurisdiction [Getty v. Getty (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 134, 141-142, 252 Cal. Rptr. 342] . Indeed, the appointment of a trustee ad litem is viewed as a modification of a trust necessary to preserve the trust's assets, and California courts have long had the equity power to modify a trust's terms when necessary to preserve the trust's assets [Getty v. Getty (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 134, 142, 252 Cal. Rptr. 342 ; see Stewart v. Towse (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 425, 428-429, 249 Cal. Rptr 622] .

§ 560.111 Revocation

[1] Generally

Unless a trust is expressly made irrevocable by the trust instrument, the trust is revocable by the settlor under any one of the following circumstances [Prob. Code § 15400]:

- The settlor is domiciled in California when the trust is created.
- The trust instrument is executed in California.
- The trust instrument provides that the law of California governs the trust.

The California rule that a trust is presumed to be revocable differs from the rule in many other states in which trusts are presumed to be irrevocable unless the settlor reserves the right to revoke [California-Nevada Annual Conf. of the United Methodist Church v. St. Luke's United Methodist Church (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 754, 768, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 442 (presumption of revocability has been rule in California since 1931 and applies to trusts created since then); see Scott, The Law of Trusts (3th ed.), Vol. VA, Ch. 14, Trusts and the Conflict of Laws, § 581].

[2] Method if Trust Created on or After July 1, 1987

A trust that is revocable by the settlor may be revoked in whole or in part by either of the following methods [Prob. Code § 15401(a); Huscher v. Wells Fargo Bank (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 956, 960, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 27] :

- By compliance with any method of revocation provided in the trust instrument.
- By a writing (other than a will) signed by the settlor and delivered to the trustee during the settlor's lifetime, unless the trust instrument explicitly makes the method of revocation provided in the trust instrument the exclusive method of revocation. A settlor may, however, revoke a trust by a will if the trust provides, pursuant to Prob. Code § 15401(a)(1) [see Rest. 2d Trusts § 330, Comment (j)].

When a trust expressly permits revocation during the settlor's lifetime by written notice signed by the settlor and delivered to the trustee, and the settlor does not limit or qualify the term "written notice," the settlor is deemed to have authorized revocation by any writing that unambiguously manifests the settlor's intention to revoke the trust, including a will [Gardenhire v. Superior Court (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 882, 888, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 143] . The power to revoke a trust by will need not be specifically and expressly stated in the trust [Gardenhire v. Superior Court (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 882, 893-895, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 143] . If a settlor reserves a power to revoke the trust only in a particular manner or under specified circumstances, then the trust can be revoked only in that manner orunder those circumstances [Gardenhire v. Superior Court (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 882, 890, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 143] . Additionally, if a revocation provision is not explicitly exclusive, a trust may be revoked by compliance with the revocation statute [Prob. Code § 15401(a)(2); see Masry v. Masry (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 738, 740, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 915 (family trust specified settlor's power to revoke by writing delivered to other settlor; however, since revocation provision was not explicitly exclusive, revocation by delivering notice of revocation to oneself as trustee was held valid and in compliance with Prob. Code § 15401(a)(2))].

Unless otherwise provided in the instrument, if a trust is created by more than one settlor, each settlor may revoke the trust as to the portion of the trust contributed by that settlor, except as provided in Fam. Code § 761 (community property in certain revocable trusts) [Prob. Code § 15401(b)]. This means that one spouse may revoke a joint trust as to all community property in the trust [see Fam. Code § 761(b)], but as to other property in the trust, one spouse may only revoke the trust as to his or her share [Prob. Code § 15401(b)]. In the case of a trust that was revocable at any time during the life of either spouse and that contained community property, revocation by the surviving spouse after his spouse's death resulted in one-half of the trust assets being returned to him and the other half being disposed of according to his wife's will. Under Prob. Code § 100, the community property in the trust was transmuted at the wife's death to separate property. Therefore, the husband's revocation was effective only as to his half of the trust corpus [Estate of Powell (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1434, 1441, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 501] .

A trust created on or after July 1, 1987, may not be revoked by an attorney in fact under a power of attorney unless the power to do so is expressly granted by the trust instrument [Prob. Code § 15401(c)]. Although the Uniform Statutory Form Power of Attorney grants the attorney in fact broad authority to act for the principal with respect to trusts [see Prob. Code §§ 4401 (statutory form), 4458 (powers granted in statutory form with respect to estate, trust, and other beneficiary transactions)], the statutory form will not be effective to empower an attorney in fact to revoke a trust created by the principal unless that power is expressly granted by the power of attorney [Prob. Code § 4465]. Even when the power to revoke is granted by the power of attorney, it may not be exercised by the attorney in fact unless the trust instrument grants the attorney in fact the same power [Prob. Code § 4465].

Nothing in Prob. Code § 15401 limits the authority of the settlor to modify a revocable trust pursuant to Prob. Code § 15403 or of the beneficiaries to modify or terminate an irrevocable trust pursuant to Prob. Code § 15404 in an appropriate case [Prob. Code § 15401(d)].

[3] Method if Trust Created Prior to July 1, 1987

The manner of revocation of a trust revocable by the settlor that was created by an instrument executed before July 1, 1987, is governed by prior law and not by Prob. Code § 15401 [Prob. Code § 15401(e); Huscher v. Wells Fargo Bank (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 956, 961, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 27] . Under prior law, every voluntary trust is revocable by the settlor by a writing filed with the trustee, unless expressly made irrevocable by the instrument creating the trust. When a voluntary trust is revoked by the settlor, the trustee must transfer to the settlor its full title to the trust estate [see former Civ. Code § 2280]. Under prior law, a voluntary trust is defined as an obligation arising out of a personal confidence reposed in, and voluntarily accepted by, one for the benefit of another [see former Civ. Code § 2216].

The cases discussed below interpreted the law in effect before the 1986 enactment of the Trust Law.

Under former Civ. Code § 2280, a trust's modification procedures must be followed if they are explicitly exclusive or if the provisions are so specific and detailed that they implicitly preclude resort to any other method. If not, the trust may be modified in the manner provided by former Civ. Code § 2280, i.e., by delivering a signed modification to the trustee even if the trustee does not sign the amendment [Huscher v. Wells Fargo Bank (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 956, 961, 967-970, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 27 (purpose behind former Civ. Code § 2280 was to protect revocability of trusts that were silent on subject and was not intended to create exclusive method of revocation when trust instrument contains one that is quite specific)]. If the trust's revocation or amendment procedure is not explicitly exclusive and is not sufficiently detailed or specific to be considered implicitly exclusive, either method of modification may be used [Huscher v. Wells Fargo Bank (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 956, 961, 970-971, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 27 (modification provision stating that trustor may at any time amend any of the trust terms by an instrument in writing signed by the trustor and the trustee is not explicitly or implicitly exclusive and thus trust can be modified under former Civ. Code § 2280)]. Moreover, a trust, though expressly declared irrevocable, can be terminated by the process of eliminating beneficiaries through amendments until those left are able to terminate the trust of their own right, and join in a notice of revocation and demand for delivery of the property [Heifetz v. Bank of America (1957) 147 Cal. App. 2d 776, 777, 305 P.2d 979 ; now see Prob. Code § 15403 (modification or termination of irrevocable trust by all beneficiaries)].

Beneficiaries of a trust are not necessary parties to an action by a settlor to rescind a trust under former Civ. Code § 2280, particularly when they have no present interest in the trust property and would not have any interest in it until the death of the trustor [Title Ins. & Trust Co. v. McGraw (1945) 72 Cal. App. 2d 390, 400, 164 P.2d 846 ; now see Prob. Code § 15800(a) (person holding power to revoke has rights afforded beneficiaries under the Trust Law)].

[4] Validity of Revocable Trust

The reservation of power to revoke does not destroy the trust or change its character, and the trust remains operative and absolute until the settlor exercises that right [Kinney's Estate v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue (9th Cir. [Cal.] 1935) 80 F.2d 568, 571 ; Nichols v. Emery (1895) 109 Cal. 323, 331, 41 P. 1089 (decided prior to enactment of the Trust Law)].

49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.112

§ 560.112 Modification

A trust may be modified under the following circumstances [see Prob. Code §§ 15403, 15404, 15408, 15409, respectively; see § 560.584]:

- By all the beneficiaries of an irrevocable trust, unless continuation is neededto effectuate a material purpose;
- By the settlor and all beneficiaries;
- Pursuant to a petition by the trustee or beneficiary, on the ground of uneconomically low principal; or
- Pursuant to a petition by the trustee or beneficiary, on the ground of changed circumstances.

Unless the trust instrument provides otherwise, if a trust is revocable by the settlor, the settlor may modify the trust by the procedure for revocation [Prob. Code § 15402]. Moreover, an unrestricted power to modify may also include the power to revoke a trust [see Heifetz v. Bank of America (1957) 147 Cal. App. 2d 776, 781-782, 305 P.2d 979] . However, if a joint inter vivos trust becomes irrevocable at the death of the first spouse, the trust becomes irrevocable in its entirety and the surviving settlor does not have the right to modify the trust instrument or withdraw trust property without consent from the other beneficiaries of the joint trust [see Aguilar v. Aguilar (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 35, 40, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 193].

The settlor may bind himself or herself to a specific method of modifying or amending a trust. If the trust instrument prescribes the method for amendment or modification, the instrument controls and the settlor must follow that method. Conservatorship of Irvine (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1334, 1344-1345, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 587] .

A trust created on or after July 1, 1987, may not be modified by an attorney in fact under a power of attorney unless the power to modify is expressly granted to the attorney in fact in the trust instrument [Prob. Code § 15401(c)]. Although the Uniform Statutory Form Power of Attorney grants the attorney in fact broad authority to act for the principal with respect to trusts [see Prob. Code §§ 4401 (statutory form), 4458 (powers granted in statutory form with respect to estate, trust, and other beneficiary transactions)], the statutory form will not be effective to empower an attorney in fact to modify a trust created by the principal unless that power is expressly granted by the power of attorney [Prob. Code § 4465]. Even when the power to modify is granted by the power of attorney, it may be exercised by the attorney in fact only if the trust instrument grants the attorney in fact the same power [Prob. Code § 4465].

3. Modification And Termination Of Trusts

49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.113

§ 560.113 Grounds for Modification or Termination

[1] Uneconomically Low Trust Principal

On petition by a trustee or beneficiary, if the court determines that the fair market value of the principal of a trust has become so low in relation to the cost of administration that continuation of the trust under its existing terms will defeat or substantially impair the accomplishment of its purposes, the court may, in its discretion and in a manner that conforms as nearly as possible to the intention of the settlor, order termination of the trust, modification of the trust, or appointment of a new trustee [Prob. Code § 15408(a)].

If the trust principal does not exceed $20,000 in value, the trustee has the power to terminate the trust, notwithstanding Prob. Code § 15408(a) [Prob. Code § 15408(b)]. Although not required to do so under Prob. Code § 15408(b), the trustee may wish to obtain court approval pursuant to petition proceedings [see, e.g., Prob. Code § 17200(b)(6) (instructions), 17200(b)(5) (accounts), 17200(b)(13) (termination)].

The existence of a trust provision restraining transfer of the beneficiary's interest does not prevent application of Prob. Code § 15408 [Prob. Code § 15408(c)].

[2] Changed Circumstances

On petition by a trustee or beneficiary, the court may modify the administrative or dispositive provisions of the trust or terminate the trust if, owing to circumstances not known to the settlor and not anticipated by the settlor, the continuation of the trust under its terms would defeat or substantially impair the accomplishment of the purposes of the trust. In this case, if necessary to carry out the purposes of the trust, the court may order the trustee to do acts that are not authorized or are forbidden by the trust instrument [Prob. Code § 15409(a); see Bilafer v. Bilafer (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 363, 370, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 880 ; see also § 560.584].

The court must consider a trust provision restraining transfer of the beneficiary's interest as a factor in making its decision whether to modify or terminate the trust, but the court is not precluded from exercising its discretion to modify or terminate the trust solely because of a restraint on transfer [Prob. Code § 15409(b)]. For example, when one or more persons for whose benefit an accumulation of income has been directed is or are destitute of other sufficient means of support or education, the proper court, on application, may direct a suitable sum to be applied for those purposes out of the accumulated income [Civ. Code § 726; see § 560.580].

[3] Combination of Similar Trusts

If the terms of two or more trusts are substantially similar, on petition by a trustee or beneficiary, the court, for good cause shown, may combine the trusts if the court determines that administration as a single trust will not defeat or substantially impair the accomplishment of the trust purposes or the interests of the beneficiaries [Prob. Code § 15411; see Prob. Code § 17200(b)(14) (petition); see also § 560.581].

[4] Division of Trusts

On petition by a trustee or beneficiary, the court, for good cause shown, may divide a trust into two or more separate trusts, if the court determines that dividing the trust will not defeat or substantially impair the accomplishment of the trust purposes or the interests of the beneficiaries [Prob. Code § 15412; see Prob. Code § 17200(b)(14) (petition)]. For example, division of a trust may be appropriate when different members of a family desire their own separate trusts because of a disagreement, or when a beneficiary has moved to a different part of the country [see Recommendation Proposing the Trust Law, 18 Cal. Law Revision Comm'n Reports 644 (1986)].

3. Modification And Termination Of Trusts

49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.114

§ 560.114 Compelling Modification or Termination

[1] By All Beneficiaries

If all beneficiaries of an irrevocable trust consent, they may compel modification or termination of the trust on petition to the court, except as provided in Prob. Code § 15403(b) [Prob. Code § 15403(a); for a petition to modify or terminate an irrevocable trust, see § 560.584]. Prob. Code § 15403(a) permits termination of an irrevocable trust with the consent of all beneficiaries when the trust provides for successive beneficiaries or postpones enjoyment of a beneficiary's interest. It is intended to provide some flexibility in the application of the Material Purposes Doctrine when transfer of the beneficiary's interest is not restricted [see Recommendation Proposing the Trust Law, 18 Cal. Law Revision Comm'n Reports 637 (1986)]. For example, if a trust gives discretion to the trustees to add charitable organizations, and the beneficiaries enter into a settlement agreement that defines the additional beneficiaries and provide for trust modifications, the court has authority to order modification of the trust [Boys and Girls Club of Petaluma v. Walsh (2009) 169 Cal. App. 4th 1049, 1060, 1062, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 413].

If the continuance of the trust is necessary to carry out a material purpose of the trust, the trust cannot be modified or terminated unless the court, in its discretion, determines that the reason for doing so under the circumstances outweighs the interest in accomplishing a material purpose of the trust [see Boys and Girls Club of Petaluma v. Walsh (2009) 169 Cal. App. 4th 1049, 1060, 1062, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 413 (reasons for modification outweighed interest in preserving trustees' discretion)]. The court does not have discretion under Prob. Code § 15403 to permit termination of a trust that is subject to a valid restraint on transfer of the beneficiary's interest as provided in Prob. Code §§ 15300-15309 [Prob. Code § 15403(b)].

[2] By Settlor and All Beneficiaries

If the settlor and all beneficiaries of a trust consent, they may compel the modification or termination of the trust [Prob. Code § 15404(a); see § 560.584]. Although modification or termination does not require court approval, the beneficiaries may bring a petition for that relief [see Prob. Code § 17200(b)(13)]. For example, a revocable trust may be modified or terminated pursuant to Prob. Code § 15404 if the trust instrument specifies an overly restrictive method of modification or revocation [see Recommendation Proposing the Trust Law, 18 Cal. Law Revision Comm'n Reports 638 (1986)].

If any beneficiary does not consent to the modification or termination of the trust, on petition to the court, the other beneficiaries, with the consent of the settlor, may compel a modification or a partial termination of the trust if the interests of the beneficiaries who do not consent are not substantially impaired [Prob. Code § 15404(b)].

If the trust provides for the disposition of principal to a class of persons described only as "heirs" or "next of kin" of the settlor, or using other words that describe the class of all persons who would take under the rules of intestacy, the court may limit the class of beneficiaries whose consent is needed to compel the modification or termination of the trust to the beneficiaries who are reasonably likely to take under the circumstances [Prob. Code § 15404(c)]. Prob. Code § 15404(c) reinstates a form of the doctrine of worthier title by providing that the need for consent of persons constituting the settlor's heirs or next of kin may be excused as to beneficiaries (typically unborn or remote beneficiaries) who are not reasonably likely to take principal under the trust. The limitation protects the interests of beneficiaries who are likely to take while permitting modification or termination of an otherwise irrevocable trust in line with the probable intent of the settlor [see Recommendation Proposing the Trust Law, 18 Cal. Law Revision Comm'n Reports 639 (1986); see also Prob. Code § 21108 (common-law doctrine of worthier title abolished in California); see also Witkin, Summary of California Law (8th ed.), vol. 3, Real Property, § 181].

Nothing under Prob. Code § 15404 affects the settlor's power to revoke or modify a revocable trust [see Prob. Code § 15401]. Moreover, a trust may be modified or terminated under Prob. Code § 15401 regardless of a trust provision restraining transfer of the beneficiary's interest and regardless of whether the trust purposes have been achieved [see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 338, Comments (b)-(d)].

[3] No Conclusive Presumption of Fertility

In determining the class of beneficiaries whose consent is necessary to modify or terminate a trust pursuant to Prob. Code § 15403 or 15404, the presumption of fertility is rebuttable [Prob. Code § 15406; see Scott, The Law of Trusts (3rd ed.), vol. IV, ch. 10, The Termination and Modification of the Trust, § 340.1 (rejection of "fertile octogenarian" doctrine)].

[4] Appointment of Guardian Ad Litem

For the purposes of Prob. Code §§ 15403 and 15404, the consent of a beneficiary who lacks legal capacity, including a minor, or who is an unascertained or unborn person may be given in proceedings before the court by a guardian ad litem, if it would be appropriate to do so. In determining whether to give consent, the guardian ad litem may rely on general family benefit accruing to living members of the beneficiary's family as a basis for approving a modification or termination of the trust [Prob. Code § 15405; see Recommenda tion Proposing the Trust Law, 18 Cal. Law Revision Comm'n Reports 639 (1986) (provision is a nonpecuniary quid pro quo rule on assumption that benefit to parents will benefit future child)].

3. Modification And Termination Of Trusts

49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.115

§ 560.115 Termination

[1] Methods

A trust terminates when any of the following occurs [Prob. Code § 15407(a)]:

- The term of the trust expires.
- The trust purpose is fulfilled.
- The trust purpose becomes unlawful.
- The trust purpose becomes impossible to fulfill.
- The trust is revoked.

Moreover, there can be no trust if the legal and equitable title to the property is merged in the trustees [Commissioner of Internal Revenue v. Goodan (9th Cir. 1952) 195 F.2d 498, 505] . When the legal and equitable title to trust property are vested in the same person, the doctrine of merger operates to terminate the trust. To effect a merger, however, the estates must unite in one and the same person, having a coextensive interest in each, with no intervening interest in another. A legal estate in fee in one who has only a partial equitable interest, or vice versa, would not merge [Estate of Washburn (1909) 11 Cal. App. 735, 746, 106 P. 415] .

However, if a trust provides for one or more successor beneficiaries after the death of the settlor, the trust is not invalid, merged, or terminated in either of the following circumstances [Prob. Code § 15209]:

- When there is one settlor who is the sole trustee and the sole beneficiary during the settlor's lifetime.

- When there are two or more settlors, one or more of whom are trustees, and the beneficial interest in the trust is in one or more of the settlors during the lifetime of the settlors.

[2] Trustee's Powers

On termination of the trust, the trustee continues to have the powers reasonably necessary under the circumstances to wind up the affairs of the trust [Prob. Code § 15407(b)].

[3] Disposition of Property

At the termination of a trust, the trust property must be disposed of as follows [Prob. Code § 15410]:

- In the case of a trust that is revoked by the settlor, as directed by the settlor.

- In the case of a trust that is terminated by the consent of the settlor and all beneficiaries, as agreed by the settlor and all beneficiaries.

- In any other case, as provided in the trust instrument or in a manner directed by the court that conforms as nearly as possible to the intention of the settlor as expressed in the trust instrument.

- If a trust is terminated by the trustee pursuant to Prob. Code § 15408(b) (uneconomically low principal), the trust property may be distributed as determined by the trustee pursuant to the standard provided in Prob. Code § 15410(c) without the need for a court order. When the trust instrument does not provide a manner of distribution at termination and the settlor's intent is not adequately expressed in the trust instrument, the trustee may distribute the trust property to the living beneficiaries on an actuarial basis.

When appropriate, distribution on termination of a trust may be made to a custodian for a minor under the Uniform Transfers to Minors Act (Prob. Code §§ 3900-3925) [see Prob. Code §§ 3905 (transfer authorized in trust), 3906 (unauthorized transfer)]. For discussion of the Uniform Transfers to Minors Act, see Ch. 278, Gifts .

Any trustee or beneficiary of a trust may petition the court concerning the internal affairs of the trust or to determine the existence of the trust [Prob. Code § 17200(a)]. Under appropriate circumstances, the following persons have the same right to petition the court as beneficiaries:

- The person holding the power to revoke [see Prob. Code § 15800(a); Johnson v. Tate (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1282, 1286, 264 Cal. Rptr. 68 (person having, at most, rights of contingent beneficiary lacks standing)].

- The holder of a presently exercisable general power of appointment, to the extent of the holder's power over the trust property [see Prob. Code § 15803].

- The holder of a presently exercisable power to withdraw property from the trust, to the extent of the holder's power over the trust property [see Prob. Code § 15803].

The Attorney General may petition in a case involving a charitable trust subject to the jurisdiction of the Attorney General [see Prob. Code § 17210]. However, notwithstanding any other provisions of law, the Attorney General is subject to the limitations on the rights of beneficiaries of revocable trusts provided by *Prob. § 560.135 Commencement of Proceeding

A proceeding under Prob. Code § 17200 et seq. is commenced by filing a petition stating facts showing that the petition is authorized under Prob. Code § 17200 et seq. and the grounds of the petition [Prob. Code § 17201]. The petition must also state the grounds of the petition and the names and addresses of each person entitled to notice of the petition [Prob. Code § 17201]. The petition must be in writing, signed by all of the petitioners, and filed with the court clerk, except as provided in Prob. Code § 1023 [Prob. Code § 1020]. If a petitioner, objector, or respondent is absent from the county or for some other cause is unable to sign or verify the petition, the person's attorney may sign or verify the petition unless the person is a fiduciary appointed in the proceeding [*Prob. § 560.137 Notice

[1] In General

Notice in proceedings commenced pursuant to the Trust Law (Prob. Code § 15000 et seq.), or notice otherwise required by the Trust Law is governed by Prob. Code §§ 1200-1265, except as otherwise provided in the Trust Law [Prob. Code § 17100]. However, Prob. Code §§ 1200-1265 (as enacted by Stats. 1990, ch. 79, § 14) does not apply to the giving of a particular notice when the notice was delivered, mailed, posted, or first published before July 1, 1991, in which case the applicable law in effect before July 1, 1991, continues to apply to the giving of that notice, notwithstanding repeal [Prob. Code § 1200(c)].

[2] Notice to Trustees, Beneficiaries, and Attorney General

At least 30 days before the time set for the hearing on the petition, the petitioner must cause notice of the time and place of hearing to be mailed to all of the following persons [Prob. Code § 17203(a)]:

- All trustees.

- All beneficiaries, except that if the trust is revocable and the person holding the power to revoke it is competent notice must be given to the person holding the power to revoke and not to the beneficiary [Prob. Code § 15802].

- The Attorney General of California, if the petition relates to a charitable trust subject to the jurisdiction of the Attorney General.

The amendment of the provisions of a charitable trust regarding appointment of successor trustees was improper under the Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution because potential successor trustees under the trust as written were not notified of the proceeding to amend the trust [Estate of Sigourney v. American Psychoanalytic Ass'n (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 593, 604-605, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 274] .

At least 30 days before the time set for hearing on the petition, the petitioner must cause notice of the hearing and a copy of the petition to be served on any person (other than a trustee or beneficiary) whose right, title, or interest would be affected by the petition and who does not receive mailed notice as provided above [Prob. Code § 17203(b)]. Service must be effected in the manner required forservice of summons in civil actions [Prob. Code § 17203(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 413.10 et seq. (service of summons in civil actions)]. The court may not shorten the time for service [Prob. Code § 17203(b)].

If a person to whom notice otherwise would be given has been deceased for at least 40 days, and no personal representative has been appointed for that person's estate, and if the deceased person's right, title, or interest has not passed to any other person pursuant to the Probate Code rules for disposition of estates without administration [see Prob. Code § 13000 et seq.], notice may instead be given to the following persons [Prob. Code § 17203(c)]:

- Each heir and devisee of the decedent, and all persons named as executors of the will of the decedent, so far as known to the petitioner.

- Each person serving as guardian or conservator of the decedent at the time of the decedent's death, so far as known to the petitioner.

[3] Special Notice on Written Request of Beneficiary or Creditor

If proceedings involving a trust are pending, a beneficiary of the trust may, in person or by attorney, file with the court clerk where the proceedings are pending a written request stating that the beneficiary desires special notice of the filing of petitions in the proceeding relating to any or all of the purposes described in Prob. Code § 17200 and giving an address for receiving notice by mail. A copy of the request must be personally delivered or mailed to the trustee or the trustee's attorney. If personally delivered, the request is effective when it is delivered. If mailed, the request is effective when it is received. When the original of the request is filed with the court clerk, it must be accompanied by a written admission or proof of service. A request for special notice may be modified or withdrawn in the same manner as provided for the making of the initial request [Prob. Code § 17204(a)].

A creditor of the trust, or a creditor of the trustor if the trust has become irrevocable on the trustor's death, may request special notice in the same manner as a trust beneficiary of any proceeding fixing or allowing payment of the trustee's compensation or reviewing the reasonableness of that compensation [Prob. Code § 17204(b)(1), (3); see Prob. Code § 17200(b)(9)]. The request must be accompanied by a verified statement of the creditor's interest [Prob. Code § 17204(b)(1)]. A creditor may also petition the court for an order for special notice of certain other specified proceedings involving the trust. The petition may be made by ex parte application, and must include a verified statement of the creditor's interest. It may be served on the trustee or the trustee's attorney by personal delivery or by mail under Prob. Code § 1215 [Prob. Code § 17204(b)(2)].

After serving and filing a request and proof of service pursuant to Prob. Code § 17204(a) or (b)(1), the beneficiary or Creditor is entitled to notice pursuant to Prob. Code § 17203, except as provided in Prob. Code § 17204(d) [Prob. Code § 17204(c)]. A creditor whose petition for special notice is granted is also entitled to notice pursuant to Prob. Code § 17203 [Prob. Code § 17204(c)].

A request for special notice made by a beneficiary whose right to notice is restricted by Prob. Code § 15802 is not effective [Prob. Code § 17204(d)].

[4] Special Notice Regarding Future Interests

Notice must be given to a beneficiary, or to a person interested in the trust, with regard to future interests, as follows [

Prob. Code § 15804(a)]:

- When an interest has been limited on any future contingency to persons who will compose a certain class on the happening of a certain event without further limitation, notice must be given to the persons in being who would constitute the class if the event had happened immediately before the commencement of the proceeding or, if there is no proceeding, if the event had happened immediately before notice is given.

- When an interest has been limited to a living person and the same interest, or a share therein, has been further limited on the happening of a future event to the surviving spouse or to persons who are or may be the distributees, heirs, issue, or other kindred of the living person, notice must be given to the living person.

- When an interest has been limited on the happening of any future event to a person, or a class of persons, or both, and the interest, or a share of the interest, has been further limited on the happening of an additional future event to another person, or a class of persons, or both, notice must be given to the person or persons in being who would take the interest on the happening of the first of these events.

If a conflict of interest involving the subject matter of the trust proceeding exists between a person to whom notice is required to be given and a person to whom notice is not otherwise required to be given under Prob. Code § 15804(a), notice must also be given to persons not otherwise entitled to notice under Prob. Code § 15804(a) with respect to whom the conflict of interest exists [Prob. Code § 15804(b)].

Nothing in Prob. Code § 15804 affects any of the following [Prob. Code § 15804(c)]:

- Requirements for notice to a person who has requested special notice, a person who has filed notice of appearance, or a particular person or entity required by statute to be given notice.

- Availability of a guardian ad litem pursuant to Prob. Code § 1003.

As used in Prob. Code § 15804, "notice" includes other papers [Prob. Code § 15804(d)].

[5] Copy of Petition on Notice of Appearance or Written Request

If a trustee or beneficiary has served and filed either a notice of appearance, in person or by counsel, directed to the petitioner or the petitioner's counsel in connection with a particular petition and proceeding or a written request for a copy of the petition, and has given an address to which notice or a copy of the petition may be mailed or delivered, the petitioner must cause a copy of the petition to be mailed to that person within five days after service of the notice of appearance or receipt of the request [Prob. Code § 17205].

[6] Notice to Other Interested Persons

A petitioner or other person required to give notice may cause notice to be given to any person interested in the trust without the need for a court order [Prob. Code § 17105].

[7] Additional Notice

If the court determines that the notice otherwise required is insufficient in the particular circumstances, the court may require that further or additional notice, including a longer period of notice, be given [Prob. Code § 1202].

[8] Lis Pendens

If a proceeding under the Probate Code affects the title to or the right to possession of real property, notice of the pendency of the proceeding may be filed in the office of the county recorder in the county in which the property is located, in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 405-405.61 [see Prob. Code § 1004]. A notice of the pendency of the proceeding will protect the interest of the petitioner in the property by giving notice to prospective purchasers and encumbrancers that the petition claims some interest in the property. For further discussion, see Ch. 348, Lis Pendens .

[9] Mailing Procedure

Unless otherwise expressly provided, notices or other papers must be mailed according to the following procedures [Prob. Code § 1215]:

- If a notice or other paper is required or permitted to be mailed to a person, the notice or other paper must be mailed as provided in Prob. Code § 1215 or personally delivered as provided in Prob. Code § 1216 [§ 560.137[10]].

- The notice or other paper must be sent by one of following methods:

  - First-class mail if the person's address is within the United States. First-class mail includes certified, registered, and express mail;

  - Airmail if the person's address is not within the United States.

- The notice or other paper must be deposited for collection in the United States mail, in a sealed envelope, with postage paid, addressed to the person to whom it is mailed.

- The notice or other paper must be addressed to the person at the person's place of business or place of residence, subject to Prob. Code § 1212 (procedure when address is unknown) [see discussion below].

- When the notice or other paper is deposited in the mail, mailing is complete and the period of notice is not extended.

Unless the court dispenses with the notice, if the address of the person to whom a notice or other paper is required to be mailed or delivered is not known, notice must be given as the court may require in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 413.30 [Prob. Code § 1212]. Pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 413.30, when no provision is made for service, the court in which the action is pending may direct that service be made in a manner that is reasonably calculated to give actual notice to the party to be served and that proof of service be made as prescribed by the court.

When notice is required to be given to the Attorney General, the notice must be mailed to the Attorney General at the office of the Attorney General at Sacramento, California [Prob. Code § 1209(b)].

[10] Personal Delivery

If a notice or other paper is required or permitted to be mailed to a person, it may be delivered personally to that person. Personal delivery as provided in Prob. Code § 1216 satisfies a provision that requires or permits a notice or other paper to be mailed [Prob. Code § 1216(a)]. Personal delivery pursuant to Prob. Code § 1216 is complete when the notice or other paper is delivered personally to the person who is to receive it [Prob. Code § 1216(b)].

[11] Proof of Notice

Proof of mailing may be made in the manner prescribed in Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a [Prob. Code § 1261]. Pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a, proof of service by mail may be made by one of the following methods [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a]:

- An affidavit setting forth the exact title of the document served and filed in the cause, showing the name and residence or business address of the person making the service, showing that he or she is a resident of or employed in the county where the mailing occurs, that he or she is overthe age of 18 years and not a party to the cause, and showing the date and place of deposit in the mail, the name and address of the person served as shown on the envelope, and also showing that the envelope was sealed and deposited in the mail with the postage on it fully prepaid.

- A certificate setting forth the exact title of the document served and filed in the cause, showing the name and business address of the person making the service, showing that he or she is an active member of the State Bar of California and is not a party to the cause, and showing the date and place of deposit in the mail, the name and address of the person served as shown on the envelope, and also showing that the envelope was sealed and deposited in the mail with the postage on it fully prepaid.

- An affidavit setting forth the exact title of the document served and filed in the cause, showing the name and residence or business address of the person making the service, that he or she is a resident of, or employed in, the county where the mailing occurs, that he or she is over the age of 18 years and not a party to the cause, that he or she is readily familiar with the business' practice for collection and processing of correspondence for mailing with the United States Postal Service, that the correspondence would be deposited with the United States Postal Service that same day in the ordinary course of business, the name and address of the person served as shown on the envelope, and the date and place of business where the correspondence was placed for deposit in the United States Postal Service, and that the envelope was sealed and placed for collection and mailing on that date following ordinary business practices. Service made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a(3), on motion of a party served, is presumed invalid if the postal cancellation date or postage meter date on the envelope is more than one day after the date of deposit for mailing contained in the affidavit.

- In case of service by the clerk of a court of record, a certificate by that clerk setting forth the exact title of the document served and filed in the cause, showing the name of the clerk and the name of the court of which he or she is the clerk, and that he or she is not a party to the cause, and showing the date and place of deposit in the mail, the name and address of the person served as shown on the envelope, and also showing that the envelope was sealed and deposited in the mail with the postage on it fully prepaid. This form of proof is sufficient for service of process when the clerk or deputy clerk signing the certificate places the document for collection and mailing on the date shown on the document so as to cause it to be mailed following standard court practices in an envelope sealed and addressed on that date. If the date of postage cancellation or postage meter imprint shown on the envelope is more than one day after the date of deposit for mailing contained in the certificate, any party served may move the court for an order that the service is deemed to have been made on the date following the date of postage cancellation or postage meter imprint [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a(4)].

For discussion and forms regarding Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

Proof of notice by personal delivery may be made by the affidavit of the person making the delivery showing the time and place of delivery and the name of the person to whom delivery was made [Prob. Code § 1264].

Proof of notice, however given, may be made by evidence presented at the hearing [Prob. Code § 1265]. If notice of a hearing is required, proof of giving notice of the hearing must be made to the satisfaction of the court at or before the hearing [Prob. Code § 1260(a)]. If it appears to the satisfaction of the court that notice has been regularly given or that the party entitled to notice has waived it, the court shall so find in its order [Prob. Code § 1260(b)]. That finding, when the order becomes final, is conclusive on all persons [Prob. Code § 1260(c)].

[12] Shortening Time

Unless the particular provision governing the notice of hearing provides that the time for giving notice may not be shortened, the court may, for good cause, shorten the time for giving notice of hearing [Prob. Code § 1203(a)]. Unless the particular provision governing the publication of notice of hearing otherwise provides, the court may not shorten the time for publication of notice [Prob. Code § 1203(b)].

[13] Continued or Postponed Hearings

If a hearing is continued or postponed, no further notice of the continued or postponed hearing is required unless ordered by the court [Prob. Code § 1205].

[14] Waiver of Notice

A person, including a guardian ad litem, guardian, conservator, trustee, or other fiduciary, may waive notice by a writing signed by the person or the person's attorney and filed in the proceeding [Prob. Code § 1204].

Code § 1003(a)*; see §§ 560.602]:

- A minor [see Fam. Code § 6500 et seq. (minors)];
- An incapacitated person;
- An unborn person;

- A designated class of persons who are not ascertained or are not in being.

§ 560.142 Subject Matter Jurisdiction

The superior court that has jurisdiction over the trust pursuant to Prob. Code §§ 17000-17006 has exclusive jurisdiction of proceedings concerning the internal affairs of trusts [Prob. Code § 17000(a); David v. Hermann (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 672, 680-683, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 622 (superior court of county in which trustee resides had exclusive jurisdiction over proceedings challenging validity of trust)]. The department of the superior court that customarily deals with probate matters is intended to exercise the exclusive jurisdiction relating to internal trust affairs provided by Prob. Code § 17000(a) [see Recommendation Proposing the Trust Law, 18 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports 717 (1986)]. However, in a superior court that has a probate department, a nonprobate department does not lack subject matter jurisdiction over a probate matter. A probate department has "primary" jurisdiction, and a nonprobate department has "secondary" jurisdiction of probate-related proceedings [Harnedy v. Whitty (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 1333, 1344-1346, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 798 (rejecting challenge to subject matter jurisdiction of nonprobate department to determine claim against trustee)].

The superior court that has jurisdiction over the trust pursuant to Prob. Code §§ 17000-17457 has concurrent jurisdiction of the following [Prob. Code § 17000(b)]:

- Actions and proceedings to determine the existence of trusts [see § 560.547].
- Actions and proceedings by or against creditors or debtors of trusts [see § 560.160 et seq. and §§ 560.630, 560.631].
- Other actions and proceedings involving trustees and third persons [see § 560.160 et seq.].

In proceedings commenced under the Trust Law, the court is a court of general jurisdiction and has all the powers of the superior court [Prob. Code § 17001].

§ 560.143 In Personam Jurisdiction

[1] Trustee

By accepting the trusteeship of a trust having its principal place of administration in California the trustee submits personally to the jurisdiction of the court under the Trust Law [Prob. Code § 17003(a)].

[2] Beneficiaries

To the extent of their interests in the trust, all beneficiaries of a trust having its principal place of administration in California are subject to the jurisdiction of the court under the Trust Law [Prob. Code § 17003(b)].

[3] Basis Not Inconsistent With Constitutions

The court may exercise jurisdiction in proceedings under the Trust Law on anybasis permitted by Code Civ. Proc. § 410.10 [Prob. Code § 17004]. Code Civ. Proc. § 410.10 states that a court may exercise jurisdiction on any basis not inconsistent with the California or United States Constitution [see 1969 Judicial Council Report to the Governor and the Legislature (1969), Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 410.10 (pp 33-34), Appendix II, Bases of Judicial Jurisdiction (pp 68-96), reprinted in West's Annotated California Codes, Judicial Council comments to Code Civ. Proc. § 410.10]. § 560.144 Venue

[1] Generally

The proper county for commencement of a proceeding pursuant to the Trust Law is either [Prob. Code § 17005(a)]:

- In the case of a living trust, the county where the principal place of administration of the trust is located.

- In the case of a testamentary trust not subject to the continuing jurisdiction of the court, either the county where the decedent's estate is administered or where the principal place of administration of the trust is located.

The principal place of administration of the trust is the usual place where the day-to-day activity of the trust is carried on by the trustee or its representative who is primarily responsible for the administration of the trust [Prob. Code § 17002(a)]. If the principal place of administration of the trust cannot be determined under Prob. Code § 17002(a), it is determined as follows [Prob. Code § 17002(b)]:

- If the trust has a single trustee, the principal place of administration of the trust is the trustee's residence or usual place of business.

- If the trust has more than one trustee, the principal place of administration of the trust is the residence or usual place of business of any of the cotrustees as agreed on by them or, if not, the residence or usual place of business of any of the cotrustees.

[2] Appointment of Trustee of Living Trust

If a living trust has no trustee, the proper county for commencement of a proceeding for appointing a trustee is the county where the trust property, or some portion of the trust property, is located [Prob. Code § 17005(b)].

[3] Application of Code of Civil Procedure

Except as otherwise provided in Prob. Code § 17005(a) and (b), the proper county for commencement of a proceeding pursuant to Prob. Code § 15000 et seq. is determined by the rules applicable to civil actions generally [Prob. Code § 17005(c)]. For example, rules generally governing civil actions would apply if the principal place of administration of a trust is a foreign state, but jurisdiction is proper in California [see Recommendation Proposing the Trust Law, 18 Cal. Law Revision Comm'n Reports 721 (1986)].

In civil actions, the venue for a claim against a trustee in the trustee's official capacity, for the payment of money or for the recovery of personal property, is the county that has jurisdiction of the estate that the defendant represents [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.1; see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392 (real property generally), 395 (defendant's residence generally), and § 560.160 et seq.].

[4] Testamentary Trust Subject to Continuing Jurisdiction of Court

If a trust described in Prob. Code § 17300 continues after distribution of the decedent's estate, the court in which the decedent's estate was administered retains jurisdiction over the trust for any of the purposes specified in Prob. Code § 17200 [Prob. Code § 17301; for discussion of Prob. Code § 17300, see § 560.145[1]]. Consequently, venue for testamentary trusts subject to the continuing jurisdiction of the court is only in the county in which the decedent's estate was administered, whereas venue for other testamentary trusts may be established in the county of either the principal place of administration or the estate administration [compare Prob. Code § 17005].

§ 560.145 Trusts Subject to Continuing Court Jurisdiction

[1] Definition

If a trust created by a will continues after distribution of the decedent's estate, the court in which the decedent's estate was administered retains jurisdiction over the trust for the purposes specified in Prob. Code § 17200 in the following circumstances [Prob. Code § 17300]:

- When the will was executed before July 1, 1977, and not incorporated by reference in a will on or after July 1, 1977.

- When the will provides that the trust is subject to the continuing jurisdiction of the superior court. This includes a trust created by will executed before July 1, 1977, that is incorporated by reference in a will thereafter, but that contains a provision making it subject to the continuing jurisdiction of the court [see Recommendation Proposing the Trust Law, 18 Cal. Law Revision Comm'n Reports 732 (1986)].

[2] Transfer Between Counties

At any time after final distribution of the decedent's estate, a trust described in Prob. Code § 17300 may be transferred to a different county in California if the transfer will be in the best interests of the estate, or if economical and convenient administration of the trust will be facilitated by the transfer [see Prob. Code § 17304(a), (c); for discussion of the procedure and a form for a petition for transfer, see § 560.608].

§ 560.146 Removal From Continuing Court Jurisdiction

Trusts created by will executed before July 1, 1977, and not incorporated by reference in a will on or after July 1, 1987, may be removed from continuing jurisdiction of the court [Prob. Code § 17350].

If the trustee is a trust company, the trust company is required to remove the trust from continuing court jurisdiction within six months after the trust is initially funded by giving notice to the beneficiaries. Proof of giving the notice is filed with the court that had jurisdiction over the administration of the decedent's estate, but court approval is not required [see Prob. Code §§ 17351(a), (c) (removal when trustee is trust company), 17353 (removal when trust company is successor trustee); see also Prob. Code §§ 83 (trust company defined), 15804 (notice regarding future interests) and § 560.137[4]].

If the trustee is not a trust company, the trust may be removed from continuing court jurisdiction only with approval of the court on the trustee's petition. The court may receive testimony from any interested person at the hearing. If the petition is granted, the trustee must give notice to each beneficiary and file proof of service pursuant to Prob. Code § 17351. If it is denied, the trust continues to be administered under Prob. Code §§ 17300-17304 [see Prob. Code § 17352 and §§ 560.609, 560.610].

After a trust is removed from continuing court jurisdiction pursuant to Prob. Code §§ 17350-17354, neither a change in trustees nor any other event causes the trust to be subject to continuing court jurisdiction under Prob. Code §§ 17300-17304 [Prob. Code § 17354].

§ 560.147 Transfer of Trust to Another Jurisdiction

[1] Applicable Law

The court may make an order for the transfer of the place of administration of a trust or the transfer of some or all of the trust property to a jurisdiction outside California as provided in Prob. Code §§ 17400-17405 [Prob. Code § 17401(a)]. Except as otherwise provided in Prob. Code §§ 17400-17405, proceedings under Prob. Code §§ 17400-17405 are governed by Prob. Code §§ 17000-17457 (judicial proceedings concerning trusts) [Prob. Code § 17401(b)].

[2] Trusts Subject to Transfer

The procedure to transfer a trust to another jurisdiction under Prob. Code §§ 17400-17405 applies to all of the following [Prob. Code § 17400(a)]:

- A trust that is subject to the Trust Law [see Prob. Code § 82 (definition of trust)].
- A trust subject to Prob. Code §§ 6320-6330 (insurance or employee benefit trusts).
- Any other trust to which the provisions of Prob. Code §§ 17400-17405 apply.

Prob. Code §§ 17400-17405 does not prevent the transfer of the place of administration of a trust or of trust property to another jurisdiction by any other available means [Prob. Code § 17400(b)].

[3] Procedure

The court may order the trustee to transfer the trust property, or to transfer the place of administration of the trust to the other jurisdiction if, after hearing on petition [see Prob. Code § 17404]:

- The transfer will promote the best interests of the trust and those interested in it;

- The transfer will not violate the trust instrument;

- Any new trustee is qualified, willing, and able to administer the trust or trust property under the trust instrument.

For forms for use to transfer a trust to a jurisdiction outside California, see §§ 560.605 -560.606.

[4] Discharge of Trustee

If a transfer is ordered under Prob. Code §§ 17400-17405, the court may direct the manner of transfer and impose terms and conditions as may be just, including, but not limited to, a requirement for the substitution of a successor trustee in any pending litigation in California. The delivery of property in accordance with the order of the court is a full discharge of the trustee in relation to all property embraced in the order [Prob. Code § 17405].

49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.148

§ 560.148 Transfer of Trust From Foreign Jurisdiction

[1] In General

The place of administration of a trust that is, or a portion of which is, administered in a jurisdiction outside California, may be transferred to Californiaas provided in Prob. Code §§ 17450-17457. The same procedure may be used to transfer some or all of the trust property in another jurisdiction to a trustee in California [see Prob. Code §§ 17450(a), 17451(a); see also Prob. Code § 82 (definition of trust)]. Prob. Code §§ 17450-17457 does not prevent the transfer of the place of administration of a trust or of trust property to California by any other available means [see Prob. Code § 17450(b)]. Consequently, the procedure for transfer under Prob. Code §§ 17450-17457 applies to trusts administered in foreign countries as well as those administered in other states [see Recommendation Proposing the Trust Law, 18 Cal. Law Revision Comm'n Reports 741 (1986)]. For a petition to transfer administration or property of a trust from a foreign jurisdiction to California, see § 560.607.

[2] Grounds for Transfer

The court may, in its discretion, grant the petition and issue an order accepting transfer of trust property or the place of administration of the trust to California and appoint a trustee to administer the trust in California, if, after hearing, all of the following appear to the court [Prob. Code § 17455(a)]:

- The transfer of the trust property to a trustee in California, or the transfer of the place of administration of the trust to California, will promote the best interests of the trust and those interested in it, taking into account the interest in the economical and convenient administration of the trust.

- The transfer will not violate the trust instrument.

- The trustee appointed by the court to administer the trust in California, and to whom the trust property is to be transferred, is qualified, willing, and able to administer the trust or trust property under the trust instrument.

- The proper court in the other jurisdiction has approved the transfer if approval is necessary under the law of the other jurisdiction.

[3] Venue to Transfer Trust

If the petition requests that a resident of California be appointed trustee, the petition must be filed in the court of the county where the proposed principal place of administration of the trust pursuant to Prob. Code § 17002 is located [Prob. Code § 17452(a); see § 560.144].

If the petition requests that only a nonresident of California be appointed trustee, the petition must be filed in the court of the county where either (1) any beneficiary resides or (2) a substantial portion of the trust property to be transferred is located or will be located [Prob. Code § 17452(b)].

[4] Notice and Hearing of Transfer

At least 30 days before the time set for the hearing on the petition, the petitioner must cause notice of the time and place of the hearing to be mailed to each of the persons named in the petition at their respective addresses as stated in the petition [Prob. Code § 17454(a)]. Any person interested in the trust, as trustee, beneficiary, or otherwise, may appear and file written grounds in opposition to the petition [Prob. Code § 17454(b); see, e.g., Prob. Code §§ 15802 (notice to beneficiary of revocable trust), 1215 (manner of mailing), 1216 (personal delivery instead of mailing), 17203(c) (notice to Attorney General)].

[5] Orders Regarding Transfer

The court may make an order accepting the transfer of the place of administration of a trust from another jurisdiction to California or the transfer of some or all of the trust property in another jurisdiction to a trustee in California as provided in Prob. Code §§ 17450-17457 [Prob. Code § 17451(a)].

Except as otherwise provided in Prob. Code §§ 17450-17457, proceedings under Prob. Code §§ 17450-17457 are governed by Prob. Code §§ 17000-17457 (judicial proceedings concerning trusts) [Prob. Code § 17451(b)].

If the court grants the petition under Prob. Code § 17455(a), the court must require the trustee to give a bond, if necessary under the law of the other jurisdiction or of California, and may require bond as provided in Prob. Code § 15602 [Prob. Code § 17455(b); see § 560.73].

[6] Conditional Order Accepting Transfer

If appropriate to facilitate transfer of the trust property or the place of administration of a trust to California, the court may issue a conditional order appointing a trustee to administer the trust in California and indicating that transfer to California will be accepted if transfer is approved by the proper court of the other jurisdiction [Prob. Code § 17456]. Therefore, a California court can indicate its willingness to accept jurisdiction over a trust administered in another jurisdiction if the law of the other jurisdiction requires appointment of a trustee in the proposed new place of administration before approving transfer [see Recommendation Proposing the Trust Law, 18 Cal. Law Revision Comm'n Reports 745 (1986)].

[7] Administration of Transferred Trust

A trust transferred to California pursuant to Prob. Code §§ 17450-17457 must be administered in the same manner as a trust of that type created in California. This provision, however, does not affect the validity of a trust or the construction of the beneficial provisions of a trust transferred to California [Prob. Code § 17457; see, e.g., Gov. Code § 12580 et seq., Prob. Code § 15004 (charitable trusts)]. It should be noted that Prob. Code § 17457 is not intended to provide choice of law rules. A trust that was subject to judicial supervision in another statewill not be subject to continuing court jurisdiction under Prob. Code §§ 17300-17304 unless the trust instrument so provides and the court so determines in the order accepting transfer to California [see Recommendation Proposing the Trust Law, 18 Cal. Law Revision Comm'n Reports 745 (1986)].

49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.180

§ 560.180 Personal Liability of Trustee to Third Persons

[1] Contract

A trustee is not personally liable on a contract properly entered into on or after July 1, 1987, in the trustee's fiduciary capacity in the course of administration of the trust, unless the trustee fails to reveal the trustee's representative capacity or identify the trust in the contract, except as otherwise provided in the contract or in Prob. Code §§ 18000-18005 [Prob. Code § 18000].

The personal liability of a trustee on a contract entered into before July 1, 1987, is governed by prior law and not by Prob. Code § 18000 [Prob. Code § 18000(b)]. Former law is the reverse of the law under Prob. Code § 18000 [see Recommendation Proposing the Trust Law, 18 Cal. Law Revision Comm'n Reports 746 (1986)]. Under former law, a trustee is personally liable on a contract unless the contract expressly states that the trustee is not liable [Goldwater v. Oltman (1930) 210 Cal. 408, 426, 292 P. 624] . This is the rule even if the terms of the trust exempt the trustee from personal liability [see Zimmer Constr. Co. v. White (1935) 8 Cal. App. 2d 672, 674, 47 P.2d 1087].

[2] Obligations Arising From Ownership or Control of Property

A trustee is personally liable for obligations arising from ownership or control of trust property only if the trustee is personally at fault [Prob. Code § 18001]. A trustee incurs personal liability by either intentionally or negligently acting or failing to act [Haskett v. The Villas at Desert Falls (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 864, 877-878, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 888 ; see Recommendation Proposing the Trust Law, 18 Cal. Law Revision Comm'n Reports 747 (1986)].

[3] Torts

A trustee is personally liable for torts committed in the course of administration of the trust only if the trustee is personally at fault [Prob. Code § 18002]. A trustee incurs personal liability by committing a tort either intentionally or negligently [Haskett v. The Villas at Desert Falls (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 864, 877-878, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 888 ; see Recommendation Proposing the Trust Law, 18 Cal. Law Revision Comm'n Reports 747 (1986)]. For discussion of general principles of negligence, see the Ch. 380, Negligence.

[4] Negotiable Instruments

A trustee who signs his or her own name to a negotiable instrument may incur personal liability on the instrument [Com. Code § 1201(b)(33) (representative includes trustee); Com. Code § 3402(b)(2) (liability of representative)]. If the form of the signature does not show unambiguously that the signature is made in a representative capacity, or if the trust (or other represented person) is not identified in the instrument, the trustee is liable on the instrument to a holder in due course that took the instrument without notice that the trustee was not intended to be liable on the instrument [Com. Code § 3402(b)(2)]. With respect to any other person, the trustee is liable on the instrument unless the trustee proves that the original parties did not intend the trustee to be liable on the instrument[Com. Code § 3402(b)(2)]. The trustee is not liable, however, for signing his or her name as drawer of a check that is payable from a trust account if the account is identified as a trust account on the check and if the trustee's signature is an authorized signature on the account [Com. Code § 3402(c)].

§ 560.181 Personal Liability of Dissenting Cotrustee

A cotrustee who does not join in exercising a power held by three or more cotrustees is not liable to third persons for the consequences of the exercise of the power [Prob. Code § 18003(a)].

A dissenting cotrustee who joins in an action at the direction of the majority cotrustees is not liable to third persons for the action if the dissenting cotrustee expresses the dissent in writing to any other cotrustee at or before the time the action is taken [Prob. Code § 18003(b)].

Prob. Code § 18003 does not excuse a cotrustee from liability for failure to discharge the cotrustee's duties as a trustee [Prob. Code § 18003(c)].

§ 560.182 Liability of Trust; Naming Trustee as Defendant in Representative Capacity

The trust is liable for authorized actions of the trustee [see Prob. Code § 18004]. A claim based on a contract entered into by a trustee in the trustee's representative capacity, on an obligation arising from ownership or control of trust property, or on a tort committed in the course of administration of the trust may be asserted against the trust by proceeding against the trustee in the trustee's representative capacity, whether or not the trustee is personally liable on the claim [Prob. Code § 18004]. However, third parties may proceed against the trustee's personal assets only if the trustee is personally liable on the claim [Haskett v. The Villas at Desert Falls (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 864, 880, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 888] .

§ 560.183 Determining Liability of Trustee Versus Liability of Estate

The question of liability between the trust estate and the trustee personally may be determined in a proceeding under Prob. Code § 17200 [Prob. Code § 18005]. Under Prob. Code § 18005, ultimate assessment of liability between a trustee and the estate need not be determined before the third person's claim can be satisfied. It is permissible, and possibly preferable, for judgment to be entered against the trust without determining the trustee's ultimate liability until later. If judgment is entered against the trustee individually, the trustee's right to reimbursement may be settled informally with the beneficiaries or in a separate proceeding in the probate court [see Prob. Code § 15684 (indemnity)].

49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.184

§ 560.184 Actions Involving Third Persons

[1] Concurrent Jurisdiction of Probate Court

The superior court that has jurisdiction over the trust pursuant to Prob. Code §§ 17000-17457 has concurrent jurisdiction of actions and proceedings by or against creditors or debtors of trusts, and other actions and proceedings involving trustees and third persons [Prob. Code § 17000(b)]. Moreover, in proceedings commenced pursuant to the Trust Law, the court is a court of general jurisdiction and has all the powers of the superior court [Prob. Code § 17001]. Prob. Code § 17001 rejects and supersedes the holding in Copley v. Copley (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 97, 104-109, 145 Cal. Rptr. 437 , which confined probate court power to in rem jurisdiction over the trust, thereby precluding jurisdiction over third parties, regardless whether the issues concerned the affairs of the trust [see Recommendation Proposing the Trust Law, 18 Cal. Law Revision Comm'n Reports 718 (1986); for discussion of jurisdiction and other procedural matters, see § 560.130 et seq.].

However, a third party does not have standing to file a petition under the Trust Law, and therefore, the manner in which third-party matters might be brought before a court that has jurisdiction over petition proceedings under Prob. Code § 17200 is unclear [see Prob. Code §§ 15800 (standing of person having power to revoke), 17200 (standing generally of trustee and beneficiary); see also Estate of Bowles (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 684, 695, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 122 (court had concurrent jurisdiction over civil complaint as it was related to beneficiary's petition under Prob. Code § 17000)]. It is possible that a petitioner, for example, a trustee or beneficiary, may file papers in the nature of a civil interpleader on the theory that adjudication of third-party issues would avoid multiplicity of litigation [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a) and Ch. 314, Interpleader]. It is further feasible that a third party having an interest regarding the internal affairs of the trust or a claim against the trustee, may file papers in a pending petition proceeding, requesting the court to determine the appropriate matters. In any case, counsel should contact the local court for preferred procedure and guidance in this area.

[2] Third Person's Plenary Action Regarding Trust or Trustee

One method by which a third person may obtain adjudication of an action involving a trust or a trustee is by filing a plenary action under the relevant provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10 (complaint)]. The action must name the trustee as defendant. An action naming the trust itself as the defendant is demurrable, because an ordinary express trust is not an entity separate from its trustees [Lazar v. Estate of Lazar (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 554, 557 25 Cal. Rptr. 354 (allowing amendment of the complaint naming decedent's estate as defendant); see Prob. Code § 18004 (claims against trust asserted by suing trustee in trustee's representative capacity)].

A third person who obtains a money judgment against a beneficiary may petition the probate court for enforcement against the trust property [see Code Civ.Proc. § 709.010; see also § 560.220[3]].

When the trustee is sued in the trustee's representative capacity on a claim for the payment of money or for the recovery of personal property, the county that has jurisdiction of the trust estate is the proper county for the trial of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.1]. For discussion of general venue provisions that apply under other circumstances, see Ch. 571, Venue .

For discussion of subject matter jurisdiction generally, see Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter . For complaint forms that may be adapted for use against a trust and/or its trustee, see the articles relating to the underlying cause of action, such as Ch. 140, Contracts, Ch. 380, Negligence, or Ch. 421, Premises Liability.

[3] Trustee's Plenary Action Against Third Person

The trustee is the real party in interest for purposes of bringing a claim on the trust's behalf [O'Flaherty v. Belgum (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 1044, 1062, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 286] . The trustee may bring suit on these claims without joining as parties the beneficiaries of the trust [see Code Civ. Proc. § 369(a)(2)]. This general rule of standing, however, is subject to exceptions.

For example, the beneficiaries of a trust have standing to bring a claim of misfeasance by the trustee and third parties who participated in or benefited from the trustee's breach of trust. The action may be filed against the trustee alone, the third parties alone, or both the trustee and the third parties [Harnedy v. Whitty (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 1333, 1339, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 798] . A beneficiary lacks standing to sue only if the beneficiary is not asserting misfeasance or breach of trust by the trustee, but is, in effect, attempting to step into the trustee's shoes and enforce the trust agreement directly [Harnedy v. Whitty (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 1333, 1342, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 798] .

Individuals who are both trustees and beneficiaries of a trust may sue in their own names without mentioning the trust [Hassoldt v. Patrick Media Group, Inc. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 153, 170-171, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 662] .

Although a trustee generally is the proper party to bring an action to protect the trust, the trustee cannot appear in pro per in that action, but may only appear through counsel [Hansen v. Hansen (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 618, 621-622, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 688] .

A successor trustee has standing to assert a professional negligence claim against attorneys retained by a prior trustee to provide tax assistance for the benefit of the trust [Borissoff v. Taylor & Faust (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 523, 529-535, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 735, 93 P.3d 337] .

[4] Beneficiary's Remedies for Acts of Third Person

Because beneficiaries have no legal title to the trust assets, they are not the real parties in interest, and in the usual case they may not sue third parties in the name of the trust [Saks v. Daimon Raike & Co. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 419, 427, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 869] . This is not the case, however, if the trustee wrongfully refuses to bring an action against a third person. Under those circumstances, the beneficiary may have a right of action, but only if the beneficiary proves that the trustee should have brought suit against the third party but unreasonably or negligently failed to do so [Pillsbury v. Karmgard (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 743, 756-758, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491] . When a beneficiary sues a third party under these circumstances, both the third party and the trustee must be named as defendants [Pillsbury v. Karmgard (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 743, 756-758 ; Saks v. Daimon Raike & Co. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 419, 427-428, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 869 ; Triplett v. Williams (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 135, 137-138, 74 Cal. Rptr. 594] .

The beneficiary also may bring an action against a third party when the action is for breach of trust and the third party participated with the trustee in the breach. In these circumstances, both the trustee and the third party should be named as defendants in the action [Pierce v. Lyman (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1098-1106, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 236 ; Saks v. Daimon Raike & Co. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 419, 428, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 869 ; City of Atascadero v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 445, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329] . However, a trust beneficiary was held to have standing to bring an action against attorneys who actively participated in the trustee's breach of trust even though the then-deceased trustee's estate was not also named as a defendant in the action. It was enough to allege that the successor cotrustee had controlled and directed the trustee to make improper investments on behalf of the trust, and that the attorneys had actively participated in the breaches of trust [Wolf v. Mitchell, Silverberg & Knupp (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1030, 1038-1040, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 792] . In addition, a third party must be shown to have knowledge of the unauthorized nature of the trustee's actions to be liable for breach of trust [Vournas v. Fidelity Nat'l Title Ins. Co. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 668, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 490 ; see Prob. Code §§ 18100, 18101].

A trust beneficiary has standing to sue a fellow beneficiary, under either a third-party participant theory or a constructive trustee theory, despite appointment of a successor trustee, if the fellow beneficiary aided the trustee in transferring property out of the trust in breach of the trustee's duties [King v. Johnston (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1488, 1502, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 269] .

Before commencing any suit against a third party, the beneficiary should carefully consider the effect that the Probate Code rules defining the rights, duties, and powers of beneficiaries and trustees could have on the suit [Saks v. Daimon Raike & Co. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 419, 428, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 869] . Prob. Code § 16401, for example, provides that the trustee generally is not liable to beneficiaries for the acts or omissions of agents [Prob. Code § 16401(a)]. However, the trustee may be liable for an agent's acts or omissions in specified circumstances. For example, the trustee may be liable if the trustee directs the agent's acts, if the trustee delegates to the agent authority that the trustee is under a duty not to delegate, if the trustee does not use reasonable prudence in the selection or retention of the agent, if the trustee does not periodically review the agent's overall performance and compliance with the terms of the delegation, ifthe trustee conceals the agent's acts, or if the trustee knows of a wrongful act or omission by the agent and does not take reasonable steps to compel the agent to redress the wrong [Prob. Code § 16401(b)]. Further, the Probate Code provides remedies for a trustee's breach of trust [see Prob. Code §§ 16420, 16421]. To the extent that the Probate Code provides remedies for the actions of a trustee or an agent of the trustee, the Probate Code remedies must be followed, and civil suits are not appropriate [see Saks v. Damon Raike & Co. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 419, 428-430, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 869] . For discussion of the liability of trustees for acts of agents, see § 560.78.

[5] Double Damages for Wrongfully Taking, Concealing, or Disposing of Trust Property

A person who, in bad faith, has wrongfully taken, concealed, or disposed of property in or belonging to the trust is liable for twice the value of the property. Damages may be recovered in an action by the trustee for the benefit of the trust [Prob. Code § 16249(b)].

With respect to a third person dealing with a trustee or assisting a trustee in the conduct of a transaction, if the third person acts in good faith and for a valuable consideration and without actual knowledge that the trustee is exceeding the trustee's powers or improperly exercising them [Prob. Code § 18100]:

- The third person is not bound to inquire whether the trustee has power to act or is properly exercising a power and may assume without inquiry the existence of a trust power and its proper exercise; and

- The third person is fully protected in dealing with or assisting the trustee, just as if the trustee has and is properly exercising the power the trustee purports to exercise.

The protection afforded by Prob. Code § 18100 is limited by Com. Code § 3307 in the case of persons taking negotiable instruments from fiduciaries, which includes trustees. Com. Code § 3307, which is discussed in Ch. 385, Negotiable Instruments , and is the basis for a complaint form in Ch. 95, Banks, Deposits, and Checks [see Ch. 95, Banks, Deposits, and Checks , see § 560.650], specifies certain actions, such as taking an instrument in payment of a debt the taker knows to be the personal debt of the fiduciary, that impart notice of breach of fiduciary duty [see Com. Code § 3307(b)(2)(A)].

A third person who acts in good faith is not bound to ensure the proper application of trust property paid or delivered to the trustee [Prob. Code § 18101].

§ 560.201 Certification of Trust

A trustee may satisfy third persons who wish to deal with the trustee that the trustee has power to act in behalf of the trust by executing a certification of trust pursuant to Prob. Code § 18100.5. Such a certification may be used to establish the existence and terms of the trust without the necessity of providing a copy of the trust instrument. A certification of trust may be issued on the trustees own initiative, or on request of any person with whom the trustee is dealing [Prob. Code § 18100.5(a)].

A certification issued pursuant to Prob. Code § 18100.5 must be in the form of an acknowledged declaration signed by the trustee or, if there are co-trustees, by all of the acting co-trustees [Prob. Code § 18100.5(c)]. It may contain the following information [Prob. Code § 18100.5(b)]:

- The existence of the trust and date of execution of the trust instrument.
- The identity of the settlor or settlors and the currently acting trustee or trustees of the trust.
- The powers of the trustee.
- The revocability or irrevocability of the trust and the identity of any person holding any power to revoke the trust.
- When there are multiple trustees, the signature authority of the trustees, indicating whether all or less than all of the currently acting trustees are required to sign in order to exercise various powers of the trustee.
- The trust identification number, whether a social security number or an employer identification number.

- The manner in which title to trust assets should be taken.
- The legal description of any real property interest held in the trust.

The certification must contain a statement that the trust has not been revoked,modified, or amended in any way that would cause the representations contained in it to be incorrect. It may be recorded in the office of the county recorder in the county where all or a portion of the real property held in the trust is located [Prob. Code § 18100.5(c)].

A person whose interest is, or may be, affected by the certification of trust may require the trustee offering or recording the certification of trust to provide copies of excerpts from the original trust documents, any amendments to these documents, and any other documents that designate, evidence, or pertain to the succession of the trustee or confer on the trustee the power to act in the pending transaction, or both. The trustee need not, however, provide the dispositive provisions of the trust or the entire trust and amendments to the trust [Prob. Code § 18100.5(e)]. The certification of trust may, but is not required to, include excerpts from the original trust documents, any amendments to these documents, and any other documents that evidence or pertain to the succession of successor trustees. The certification of trust is not required to contain the dispositive provisions of the trust that set forth the distribution of the trust estate [Prob. Code § 18100.5(d)].

A certification of trust provides some protection to persons who deal with trustees. For example, a person who acts in reliance upon a certification of trust without actual knowledge that it contains incorrect representations cannot be held liable to any other person for doing so. Further, a person dealing with a trust is entitled to rely on the information contained in a certification of trust without the necessity of inquiring as to its truth or accuracy. Finally, any transaction (and any lien created by a transaction) entered into by a trustee and a person acting in reliance on a certification of trust will be enforceable against the trust assets [Prob. Code § 18100.5(f)].

Failure to demand a certification of trust under Prob. Code § 18100.5 will not affect the protection provided by Prob. Code § 18100 [see discussion in § 560.202], and no inference as to whether a person has acted in good faith may be drawn from the failure to demand such a certification [Prob. Code § 18100.5(g)].

A certification of trust will provide no protection from liability if the person dealing with the trustee has actual knowledge that information contained in the certification is not correct. However, actual knowledge will not be inferred solely from the fact that a copy of all or part of the trust instrument is held by the person relying on the trust certification [Prob. Code § 18100.5(f)].

Except when requested by a beneficiary or in the context of litigation concerning the trust, any person who makes a demand for the trust documents, in addition to a certification of trust, to prove facts set forth in the certification acceptable to the third party is liable for damages including attorney's fees incurred as a result of the refusal to accept the certification of trust in place of the requested documents, if the court determines that the person acted in bad faith in requesting the documents [Prob. Code § 18100.5(h)].

Any person may record a certification of trust that relates to an interest in real property in the office of the county recorder in the county where all or a portion of the property is located. The recorded certification is a public record of the real property. A certification of trust need not be recorded in conjunction with the recordation of a transfer of title of real property involving a trust [Prob. Code § 18100.5(i)].

For a certification of trust that meets the requirements of Prob. Code § 18100.5, see California Wills and Trusts Forms, Div. VIII, MISC 17 (Matthew Bender).

§ 560.202 Third Person Transacting With Former Trustee

If a third person acting in good faith and for a valuable consideration enters into a transaction with a former trustee without knowledge that the person is no longer a trustee, the third person is fully protected just as if the former trustee were still a trustee [Prob. Code § 18102]. Prob. Code § 18102 is intended to restate former Civ. Code § 2281 ("bona fide transaction" with former trustee binding on all parties) without substantive change, and was written to conform with the language of Prob. Code § 18100 [see Recommendation Proposing the Trust Law, 18 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports 749 (1986)].

A bona fide transaction is one in which the parties operate in good faith, honesty, openness, and sincerity, without deceit or fraud. Therefore, the statute makes binding any transaction entered into without fraud, bad faith, or collusion, between a discharged trustee and a purchaser without actual knowledge of the fact of discharge. Consequently, "bona fide transaction" within the meaning of the statute is not synonymous with "bona fide purchaser," and the parties to a bona fide transaction are not held to both actual and constructive notice, as is a bona fide purchaser [Leach v. Home Savings & Loan Assn. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 1295, 1301-1302 , 230 Cal. Rtpr. 553 (interpreting former Civ. Code § 2281; now see Prob. Code § 18102)].

§ 560.204 Presumption Regarding Undisclosed Beneficiary

If an interest, lien, or encumbrance on real property is conveyed, created, or affected by an instrument in favor of a person in trust, but no beneficiary is indicated in the instrument, it is presumed that the person holds the interest, lien, or encumbrance absolutely and free of the trust. This is a presumption affecting the burden of proof. In an action or proceeding involving the interest, lien, or encumbrance instituted against the person, the person is deemed the only necessary representative of the undisclosed beneficiary, the original grantor or settlor, and anyone claiming under them. A judgment is binding on and conclusive against these persons as to all matters finally adjudicated in the judgment [Prob. Code § 18104(a)].

An instrument executed by the person holding an interest, lien, or encumbrance described in Prob. Code § 18104(a), whether purporting to be the act of that person in his or her own right or in the capacity of a trustee, is presumed to affect the interest, lien, or encumbrance according to the tenor of the instrument. This is a presumption affecting the burden of proof. After the instrument is recorded in the county where the land affected by the instrument is located, the presumption is conclusive in favor of a person acting in good faith and for valuable consideration [Prob. Code § 18104(b)].

The presumption of holding the title free from the trust is rebuttable, not conclusive [Hansen v. G & G Trucking Co. (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 481, 491-494, 46 Cal. Rptr. 186] .

§ 560.205 Recordation of Affidavit of Change of Trustee

When title to an interest in real property is affected by a change of trustee, the successor trustee may execute and record in the county where the property is located an affidavit of change of trustee. The affidavit must include the legal description of the property, the name of the former trustee(s), and the name of the successor trustee(s). It may also include excerpts from the original trust documents, any amendments to these documents, and any other documents that evidence or pertain to the succession of the successor trustee(s) [Prob. Code § 18105]. The affidavit is subject to all statutory requirements for recorded documents [Prob. Code § 18106(a)].

The recorded affidavit must be indexed in the index of grantors and grantees. For purposes of the index entry, the person who has been succeeded as trustee is deemed the grantor [Prob. Code § 18106(b)]. The recorded affidavit is prima facie evidence of the change of trustee insofar as it identifies an interest in real property located in the county, title to which is affected by the change. This presumption is a presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence [Prob. Code § 18107].

Any person whose interest is, or may be, affected by the recordation of an affidavit of change of trustee may require the successor trustee to provide copies of excerpts from the original trust documents, any amendments to these documents, and any other documents that evidence or pertain to the succession of the successor trustee(s). The entire trust, any amendments to the trust, or the dispositive provisions of the trust need not be provided [Prob. Code § 18108].

§ 560.220 Enforcement of Judgment Against Judgment Debtor's Interest in Trust

[1] Writ of Execution Not Available

The interest of a trust beneficiary is not subject to levy under a writ of execution [Code Civ. Proc. § 699.720(a)(8)]. For discussion of executions generally, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments .

[2] Extent of Liability

An interest in a trust is subject to enforcement of a money judgment to the extent provided by law [Code Civ. Proc. § 695.030(b)(1); see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 709.010; §§ 560.220[3]]. A trust that does not restrain transfer of a beneficiary's interest is subject in its entirety to satisfaction of a money judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 709.010 [see Recommendation Proposing the Trust Law, 18 Cal. Law Revision Comm'n Reports 633-634 (1986)]. However, property of a judgment debtor that is not assignable or transferable is not subject to enforcement, except as otherwise provided by statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 695.030(a); see Prob. Code §§ 15300-15309 (restrictions on transfers)].

[3] Petition Proceedings

The judgment debtor's interest as a beneficiary of a trust is subject to enforcement of a money judgment only on petition under Code Civ. Proc. § 709.010 by a judgment creditor to a court having jurisdiction over administration of the trust under Prob. Code §§ 17000-17457 [Code Civ. Proc. § 709.010(b); for discussion of jurisdiction, see § 560.130 et seq.]. The judgment debtor's interest in the trust may be applied to the satisfaction of the money judgment by such means that the court, in its discretion, determines are proper, including but not limited to imposition of a lien on or sale of the judgment debtor's interest, collection of the judgment debtor's interest, collection of trust income, and liquidation and transfer of trust property by the trustee [Code Civ. Proc. § 709.010(b)].

The definition of a trust for the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 709.010 is that of Prob. Code § 82 [Code Civ. Proc. § 709.010(a); see § 560.17].

Nothing in Code Civ. Proc. § 709.010 affects the limitations on the enforcement of a money judgment against the judgment debtor's interest in a trust under Prob. Code §§ 15300-15309 (restrictions on transfers), and the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 709.010 are subject to the limitations of Prob. Code §§ 15300-15309 [Code Civ. Proc. § 709.010(c)].

49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.221

§ 560.221 Restrictions on Voluntary and Involuntary Transfer of Interest in Trust

[1] Spendthrift Trust

A spendthrift trust is one in which the settlor declares that the trust property is inalienable, and may not be reached by the creditors of the beneficiary [DiMaria v. Bank of California (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 254, 258, 46 Cal. Rptr. 924] . The validity of spendthrift trusts are recognized by the Trust Law [see Prob. Code §§ 15300 (restrictions on transfer of income) and 15301 (restrictions on transfer of principal); De Mille v. Ramsey (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 116, 126, 254 Cal. Rptr. 573 . If the trust instrument provides that a beneficiary's interest in income or principal is not subject to voluntary or involuntary transfer, it may not be transferred and is not subject to enforcement of a money judgment until paid to the beneficiary, except as provided in Prob. Code §§ 15304 (settlor is beneficiary), 15305 (child or spousal support), 15305.5 (restitution judgments), 15306 (public support), 15306.5 (general creditors), and 15307 (excess of amount for education or support) [Prob. Code §§ 15300, 15301]. In addition to these exceptions, a creditor may also reach principal that has become due and payable to the beneficiary under the trust instrument by petitioning the court under Code Civ. Proc. § 709.010 for an order that the trustee satisfy all or part of the money judgment out of that principal amount [Prob. Code § 15301(b)].

Once a beneficiary has received the trust property, the creditors may reach it and the beneficiary may dispose of it at will [Kelly v. Kelly (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 356, 362, 79 P.2d 1059 ; Estate of Schneider (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 710, 717, 296 P.2d 45 , appeal dismissed sub nom. Seibert v. Brownell 352 U.S. 938, 77 S. Ct. 263, 1 L. Ed. 2d 235] .

A disclaimer or renunciation by a beneficiary of all or part of the beneficiary's interest under a trust is not considered a transfer under Prob. Code § 15300 or 15301 [Prob. Code § 15309].

For discussion of spendthrift trusts of which the settlor is beneficiary, see § 560.225[2].

[2] Trust for Education or Support of Beneficiary

If the trust instrument provides that the trustee must pay income or principal or both for the education or support of a beneficiary, the beneficiary's interest in income or principal or both under the trust, to the extent that either one or both is necessary for the education or support of the beneficiary, may not be transferred and is not subject to the enforcement of a money judgment until paid to the beneficiary, except as provided in Prob. Code §§ 15304 (settlor is beneficiary), 15305 (child or spousal support), 15305.5 (restitution judgments), 15306 (public support), 15306.5 (general creditors), and 15307 (excess of amount for education or support) [Prob. Code § 15302].

Any amount to which the beneficiary is entitled under the trust instrument or that the trustee, in the exercise of discretion, has determined to pay to the beneficiary in excess of the amount that is or will be necessary for the education and support of the beneficiary may be applied to the satisfaction of a money judgment against the beneficiary. On the judgment creditor's petition under Code Civ. Proc. § 709.010, the court may make an order directing the trustee to satisfy all or part of the judgment out of the beneficiary's interest in the trust. The order is proper notwithstanding a restraint on transfer of a beneficiary's interest in the trust under Prob. Code § 15300 or 15301 [Prob. Code § 15307; § 560.220[3]]. Any order entered by a court under Prob. Code § 15307 is subject to modification on petition of an interested person filed in the court where the order was made [Prob. Code § 15308].

Under the "station-in-life" rule, a creditor can reach surplus of income not required for the judgment debtor, taking into account the beneficiary's condition in life, health, and other circumstances, and the condition of a beneficiary's family, if any [Canfield v. Security-First Nat. Bank (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 1, 23, 87 P.2d 830] . Relevant factors include the cost of housing, medical care, the manner in which the beneficiary has been reared, the beneficiary's health, and the health of any dependents [Canfield v. Security-First Nat. Bank (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 1, 24, 87 P.2d 830] . However, a beneficiary's standard of living is not properly determined by the beneficiary's extravagance [Howard v. Adams (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 253, 259, 105 P.2d 971] .

For discussion of trusts for education or support of which the settlor is beneficiary, see § 560.225[2].

[3] Trust Property Payable to Beneficiary at Trustee's Discretion

If the trust instrument provides that the trustee must pay to or for the benefit of a beneficiary so much of the income or principal or both as the trustee in the trustee's discretion sees fit to pay, a transferee or creditor of the beneficiary may not compel the trustee to pay any amount that may be paid only in the exercise of the trustee's discretion [Prob. Code § 15303(a)].

If the trustee has knowledge of the transfer of the beneficiary's interest or has been served with process in a proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 709.010 by a judgment creditor seeking to reach the beneficiary's interest, and the trustee pays to or for the benefit of the beneficiary any part of the income or principal that may be paid only in the exercise of the trustee's discretion, the trustee is liable to the transferee or creditor to the extent that the payment to or for the benefit of the beneficiary impairs the right of the transferee or creditor [Prob. Code § 15303(b)]. Prob. Code § 15303(b) does not apply if the beneficiary's interest in the trust is subject to a restraint on transfer that is valid under Prob. Code § 15300 or 15301 (spendthrift trusts) [Prob. Code § 15303(b)].

Prob. Code § 15303 applies regardless whether or not the trust instrument provides a standard for the exercise of the trustee's discretion [Prob. Code § 15303(c)]. Nothing in Prob. Code § 15303 limits any right the beneficiary may have to compel the trustee to pay to or for the benefit of the beneficiary all or part of the income or principal [Prob. Code § 15303(d)]. Consequently, the beneficiary, but not the transferee or creditor, can compel the trustee to make a payment pursuant to a standard set out in the trust instrument [see Recommendation Proposing the Trust Law, 18 Cal. Law Revision Comm'n Reports 628 (1986)]. For a form for use by a beneficiary to compel a trustee to invade the corpus of a discretionary trust, see § 560.551.

49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.222

§ 560.222 Rights of General Creditors Regarding Transfer Restrictions

[1] Property Generally Subject to Enforcement

On a judgment creditor's petition under Code Civ. Proc. § 709.010, the court may make an order directing the trustee to satisfy all or part of the judgment out of the payments to which the beneficiary is entitled under the trust instrument or that the trustee, in the exercise of the trustee's discretion, has determined or determines in the future to pay to the beneficiary. The order is proper notwithstanding a restraint on transfer of the beneficiary's interest in the trust under Prob. Code § 15300 or 15301 (spendthrift trust) but is subject to the limitations of Prob. Code § 15306.5 [Prob. Code § 15306.5(a); § 560.220[3]].

[2] Percentage Limitations

An order under Prob. Code § 15306.5 may not require that the trustee pay in satisfaction of the judgment either of the following:

- An amount exceeding 25 percent of the payment that otherwise would be made to, or for the benefit of, the beneficiary [Prob. Code § 15306.5(b)].

- Any amount that the court determines is necessary for the support of the beneficiary and all the persons the beneficiary is required to support [Prob. Code § 15306.5(c)].

Further, the aggregate of all orders for satisfaction of money judgments against the beneficiary's interest in the trust may not exceed 25 percent of the payment that otherwise would be made to or for the benefit of the beneficiary, subject to the provisions of Prob. Code § 15306.5(d) (child or spousal support) [Prob. Code § 15306.5(f); see § 560.223[1]].

[3] Subordination to Child or Spousal Support Claims

An order for satisfaction of a support judgment under Prob. Code § 15305 (child or spousal support) has priority over an order to satisfy a judgment of a general creditor under Prob. Code § 15306.5. Any amount ordered to be applied to the satisfaction of a judgment under Prob. Code § 15306.5 must be reduced by the amount of an order for satisfaction of a support judgment under Prob. Code § 15305, regardless of whether the order for satisfaction of the support judgment was made before or after the order under Prob. Code § 15306.5 [Prob. Code § 15306.5(d); see § 560.223].

[4] No Right to Affect Trustee Discretion

If the trust gives the trustee discretion over the payment of either principal or income of a trust, or both, nothing in Prob. Code § 15306.5 affects or limits that discretion in any manner [Prob. Code § 15306.5(e)].

[5] Limitations on Liability and Duty of Trustee Regarding Creditor

The trustee has no duty to oppose a petition to satisfy a judgment under Prob. Code § 15306.5 or to make any claim for exemption on behalf of the beneficiary. The trustee is not liable for any action taken, or omitted to be taken, in compliance with any court order made under Prob. Code § 15306.5 [Prob. Code § 15306.5(e)].

[6] Modifiability of Order

Any order entered by a court under Prob. Code § 15306.5 is subject to modification on petition of an interested person filed in the court where the order was made [Prob. Code § 15308].

§ 560.223 Rights of Support Creditors Regarding Transfer Restrictions

[1] Child or Spousal Support

Under Prob. Code § 15305, a claimant for delinquent child or spousal support may reach a beneficiary's interest in a trust [Ventura County Dep't of Child Support Servs. v. Brown (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 144, 151, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 489 (support claimants are preferred creditors and have rights unavailable to general creditors)].

If the beneficiary has the right under the trust to compel the trustee to payincome or principal or both to or for the benefit of the beneficiary, the court, to the extent that the court determines it is equitable and reasonable under the circumstances, may order the trustee to satisfy all or part of a support judgment out of all or part of those payments as they become due and payable, presently or in the future [Prob. Code § 15305(b)]. A support judgment is a money judgment for support of beneficiary's spouse, former spouse, or minor child [Prob. Code § 15305(a)].

Whether or not the beneficiary has the right under the trust to compel the trustee to pay income or principal or both to or for the benefit of the beneficiary, the court, to the extent that the court determines it is equitable and reasonable under the circumstances, may order the trustee to satisfy all or part of the support judgment out of all or part of future payments that the trustee, pursuant to the exercise of the trustee's discretion, determines to make to or for the benefit of the beneficiary [Prob. Code § 15305(c)].

Prob. Code § 15305 applies to a support judgment notwithstanding any provision in the trust instrument [Prob. Code § 15305(d)]. Thus, a minor's right to support is not defeated by a spendthrift provision in a trust instrument [Ventura County Dep't of Child Support Servs. v. Brown (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 144, 152, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 489 (legislative history behind Prob. Code § 15305 establishes that support creditor may reach beneficiary's interest in spendthrift trust)].

A court may order a trustee to satisfy a beneficiary's past due and ongoing child support obligations directly from the trust [Ventura County Dep't of Child Support Servs. v. Brown (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 144, 155, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 489] .

To obtain relief under Prob. Code § 15305, a judgment creditor must file a petition with the court under Code Civ. Proc. § 709.010 [see Recommendation Proposing the Trust Law, 18 Cal. Law Revision Comm'n Reports 630 (1986); see also § 560.220[3]].

Any order entered by a court under Prob. Code § 15305 is subject to modification on petition of an interested person filed in the court where the order was made [Prob. Code § 15308].

[2] Public Support

If the beneficiary is liable under a California statute for reimbursement to California or a local public entity for public support furnished to the beneficiary or the beneficiary's spouse or minor child, on petition to the court under Code Civ. Proc. § 709.010 by the appropriate entity or official, the court may subject the trust property to satisfaction of that claim under certain circumstances, notwithstanding any provision in the trust instrument [see Prob. Code § 15306]. If the beneficiary is also the settlor (or the settlor's spouse or minor child), the court may order reimbursement without regard to whether the trustee has then exercised or may thereafter exercise its discretion in the beneficiary's favor [Prob. Code § 15306(a)(3)].

Any order entered by a court under Prob. Code § 15306 is subject to modification on petition of an interested person filed in the court where the order was made [see Prob. Code § 15308].

§ 560.224 Rights of Restitution Judgment Creditors Regarding Transfer Restrictions

If the beneficiary has the right under the trust to compel the trustee to pay income or principal or both to or for the benefit of the beneficiary, the court to the extent that the court determines it is equitable and reasonable under the circumstances, may order the trustee to satisfy all or part of a restitution judgment out of all or part of those payments as they become due and payable, presently or in the future [Prob. Code § 15305.5(b)]. The term "restitution judgment" means a judgment awarding restitution for the commission of a felony or a money judgment for damages incurred as a result of conduct for which the defendant was convicted of a felony [Prob. Code § 15305.5(a)].

Whether or not the beneficiary has the right under the trust to compel the trustee to pay income or principal or both to or for the benefit of the beneficiary, the court, to the extent that it determines it is equitable and reasonable under the circumstances, may order the trustee to satisfy all or part of the restitution judgment out of all or part of future payments that the trustee, pursuant to the exercise of the trustee's discretion, determines to make to or for the benefit of the beneficiary [Prob. Code § 15305.5(c); see Chatard v. Oveross (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 1098, 1114, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 883 (surcharge order upheld notwithstanding existence of spendthrift provision, when trust beneficiary was also trustee and committed a breach causing fiduciary harm to trust); see also Young v. McCoy (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 1078, 1087 ; 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 847 (trustee reasonably exercised discretion in refusing payment of trust assets to judgment creditor when there is no abuse of trustee's discretion)].

Prob. Code § 15303.5 applies to a restitution judgment notwithstanding any provision in the trust instrument [Prob. Code § 15303.3(d)].

§ 560.225 Claims Against Settlor

[1] Revocable Trust

If the settlor retains the power to revoke the trust in whole or in part, the trust property is subject to the claims of creditors of the settlor to the extent of the power of revocation during the lifetime of the settlor [Prob. Code § 18200].

Under former law, on the death of a settlor who had retained the power to revoke the trust in whole or in part, the property that was subject to the power of revocation at the time of the settlor's death was subject to the claims of creditors of the decedent settlor's estate and to the expenses of administration of the estate to the extent that the decedent settlor's estate was inadequate to satisfy those claims and expenses [see former Prob. Code § 18201].

The former law has been replaced with provisions governing the payment of claims, debts, and expenses from the revocable trust of a deceased settlor [see Prob. Code § 19000 et seq.]. For discussion and forms relating to these provisions, see § 560.240 et seq.

[2] Settlor as Beneficiary

If the settlor is a beneficiary of a trust created by the settlor and the settlor's interest is subject to a provision restraining the voluntary or involuntary transfer of the settlor's interest, the restraint is invalid against transferees or creditors of the settlor. The invalidity of the restraint on transfer does not affect the validity of the trust [Prob. Code § 15304(a)]. Consequently, a person cannot create a spendthrift trust for his or her own benefit as a device to shield property from creditors [Ventura County Dep't of Child Support Servs. v. Brown (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 144, 156, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 489] . However, Code Prob. Code § 15304 does not affect the protection of certain pension trusts under Civ. Proc. § 704.115 [see Prob. Code § 82(c) (definition of trust excludes pensions)].

If the settlor is the beneficiary of a trust created by the settlor and the trust instrument provides that the trustee must pay income or principal or both for the education or support of the beneficiary, or gives the trustee discretion to determine the amount of income or principal or both to be paid to or for the benefit of the settlor, a transferee or creditor of the settlor may reach the maximum amount that the trustee could pay to or for the benefit of the settlor under the trust instrument, not exceeding the amount of the settlor's proportionate contribution to the trust [Prob. Code § 15304(b)].

A settlor who is a beneficiary of a revocable trust has the power, under the doctrine of equitable conversion, to convey property to which the trust holds title and over which the beneficiary has complete control [Walgren v. Dolan (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 572, 576-579, 276 Cal. Rptr. 554] .

§ 560.241 Payment of Claims From Trust Authorized

[1] In General

On the death of a settlor of a trust, property of the settlor that was subject to the power of revocation at the time of his or her death is subject both to claims of creditors of the estate and to expenses of administration of the estate, to the extent that the estate is inadequate to satisfy those claims and expenses [Prob. Code § 19001(a); former Prob. Code § 18201; see also Prob. Code §§ 18200, 19000(d) ("trust" defined)].

Judgment creditors of a decedent's estate are not required to file suit against trustees of the decedent's revocable inter vivos trust in order for the judgment to be satisfied from trust assets [Dobler v. Arluk Med. Ctr. Indus. Group (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 530, 539-540, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 478] . Instead, any judgment creditor that seeks to satisfy its money judgment with property of the decedent must file a timely claim [see § 560.246[1][a]]. The judgment then is paid to the judgment creditor in the ordinary course of administration of the estate or trust [Embree v. Embree (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 487, 493-494, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 782] . If the estate and trust are insufficient to satisfy the judgment, a judgment creditor that has preserved its claim by filing a timely claim may pursue trust property distributed to the beneficiaries of the decedent's revocable living trust to the same extent that the property would have been available to satisfy the judgment during the settlor's lifetime [Embree v. Embree (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 487, 494, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 782] . A failure to file a timely claim bars the creditor from recovering against the property of the decedent whether or not the property is distributed [Prob. Code § 19004; Embree v. Embree (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 487, 494, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 782] .

A trustee does not have a duty to withhold otherwise authorized distributions to beneficiaries to preserve trust assets for the benefit of creditors who have pending against the estate [Arluk Med. Ctr. Indus. Group v. Dobler (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1324, 1328, 1335, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 194] . The only duty the trustee owes to creditors is to refrain from affirmative misconduct that defeats the creditors' reasonable expectation for a recovery from trust assets [Arluk Med. Ctr. Indus. Group v. Dobler (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1324, 1328, 1335, 1341, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 194] . For example, a creditor may seek to hold a trustee personally liable for improperly distributing assets to a trust beneficiary knowing that an order in the creditor's favor has been entered and judgment is imminent, and the assets will be expended or otherwise unavailable to the creditor once distributed [Arluk Med. Ctr. Indus. Group v. Dobler (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1324, 1340, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 194] .

By appropriate direction in the trust instrument, the settlor may direct the priority of sources of payment of debts among subtrusts or other gifts establishedby the trust at the deceased settlor's death. No direction by the settlor, however, may alter the priority of payment of the debts of the decedent and decedent's estate as set forth in Prob. Code § 11420, which is applied to a trust as it is applied to a probate estate [Prob. Code § 19001(b); see also Prob. Code § 19000(f) ("debts" defined)]. For further discussion of the priority for payment of claims against a decedent's estate, see Ch. 454, Probate: Claims Against the Estate .

Prob. Code § 19000 et seq. does not permit or require disclosure of the existence of the trust or the contents of any of its provisions to any creditor or beneficiary except as that creditor or beneficiary may otherwise be entitled to that information [Prob. Code § 19009].

[2] "Claim" Defined

The term "claim" means a demand for payment, whether due, not due, accrued or not accrued, or contingent, and whether liquidated or unliquidated, for any of the following [Prob. Code § 19000(a)]:

- Liability of the deceased settlor, whether arising in contract, tort, or otherwise.

- Liability for taxes incurred before the deceased settlor's death, whether assessed before or after death, other than property taxes and assessments secured by real property liens.

- Liability for the deceased settlor's funeral expenses.

The term "claim" does not include a dispute regarding title to specific property alleged to be included in the trust estate [Prob. Code § 19000(b)].

If proceedings are commenced under Prob. Code § 19000 et seq. for the settlement of claims against the trust and the time for filing claims has commenced, any action on the liability of the surviving spouse under Prob. Code § 13550 et seq. is barred to the same extent as provided for other claims against the trust, except as to the following [Prob. Code § 19330]:

- Any creditor who commences judicial proceedings to enforce a claim and serves the surviving spouse with the complaint prior to the expiration of the time for filing claims.

- Any creditor who has or who secures the surviving spouse's acknowledgment in writing of the liability of the surviving spouse for the claim.

- Any creditor who files a timely claim in the proceedings for the administration of the estate of the deceased spouse.

For discussion of allocation of debts between the trust and the deceased settlor's surviving spouse, see § 560.256. For discussion of the personal liability of the surviving spouse for debts of the deceased, see Ch. 441, Probate: Disposition Without Administration .

§ 560.243 Liability of Distributees

[1] When Trustee Does Not Give Notice to Creditors

Subject to the statute of limitations on actions that survive the defendant's death [Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2], if there is no proceeding to administer the estate of the deceased settlor and if the trustee does not file a proposed notice to creditors and publish notice to creditors, a beneficiary of the trust to whom payment, delivery, or transfer of the deceased settlor's property is made pursuant to the terms of the trust is personally liable for the unsecured claims of the creditors of the deceased settlor's estate [Prob. Code § 19400]. This liability does not arise if trust assets are sufficient to cover the claim [see Prob. Code § 19402(b)].

If the creditor fails to bring a claim against the beneficiaries of the trust within one year of the decedent's death, as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2, property distributed to the beneficiaries under the terms of the trust is protected and cannot be used to satisfy the creditor's claim [Embree v. Embree (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 487, 494-497, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 782 (property distributed to trust beneficiaries could not be used to satisfy judgment against decedent when judgment creditor did not file claim until 19 months after decedent's death)].

[2] When Trustee Gives Notice to Creditors

If the trustee filed a proposed notice to creditors and published notice to creditors, and if the identity of the creditor was known to, or was reasonably ascertainable by, the trustee within four months of the first publication of notice, a person to whom property is distributed is personally liable for the claim of the creditor, without a claim first having been filed, if all of the following conditions are satisfied [Prob. Code § 19401]:

- The creditor's claim was not merely conjectural;

- Notice to the creditor was not given to the creditor under Prob. Code § 19050 et seq. [see § 560.245[7]] and neither the creditor nor the attorney representing the creditor in the matter had actual knowledge of the administration of the trust estate sooner than one year after the date of first publication of notice; and

- The statute of limitations applicable to the claim under Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2 has not expired at the time of commencement of the action. That section requires any action on the claim to be commenced within one year of the decedent's death.

Any property distributed by the trustee under the terms of the trust after 120 days from the later of the time a notice of rejection is given or the claim is due, and before a notice of pendency of action or referral or arbitration is filed and given (excluding any time during which there is a vacancy in the office of trustee), is not subject to claims. The distributee is not liable on account of the distribution [Prob. Code § 19255(d)].

In any event, liability does not arise if trust assets are sufficient to cover the claim [see Prob. Code § 19402(b)].

[3] Defenses

In any action under Prob. Code § 19400 et seq., subject to the statute of limitations on causes of action by and against persons who have died [Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2], the distributee may assert any defenses, cross complaints, or setoffs that would have been available to the deceased settlor if the settlor had not died [Prob. Code § 19402(a)].

[4] Extent of Liability

A distributee is personally liable only to the extent the claim of the creditor cannot be satisfied out of the trust estate of the deceased settlor. Further, a distributee's personal liability is limited to a pro rata portion of the claim of the creditor, based on the proportion that the value of the property distributed to the person out of the trust estate bears to the total value of all property distributed to all persons out of the trust estate. The distributee's personal liability for all claims of all creditors may not exceed the value of the property distributed to the person out of the trust estate. The term "the value of the property" means the fair market value of the property on the date of its distribution, less the amount of any liens and encumbrances on the property at that time [Prob. Code § 19402(b)].

The provisions governing liability of distributees do not affect the rights of a purchaser or encumbrancer of property in good faith and for value from a distributee who is personally liable [Prob. Code § 19403].

[5] No Constructive Trust

A distributee cannot be held liable to the creditors on a constructive trust theory merely because he or she received a distribution from the trust [Valentine v. Read (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 787, 795, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836] . Under the constructive trust theory, one who wrongfully acquires the property of another holds it as an involuntary trustee for the benefit of the person to whom it rightfully belongs [see Civ. Code §§ 2223 (one who wrongfully detains thing is involuntary trustee for benefit of owner), 2224 (one who gains thing by fraud, accident, mistake, undue influence, violation of trust, or other wrongful act is involuntary trustee for person who would otherwise have had it)]. However, a person who receives a distribution from a trust does not do so wrongfully, even if the distribution is made during litigation and to make it more difficult to collect a potential judgment. The Probate Code clearly contemplates that distributions will be made from trusts, and it provides the exclusive remedy of the creditors when distributions are made [Valentine v. Read (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 787, 795, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836] .

Prob. 49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.245

§ 560.245 Notice to Creditors

[1] Trustee Under No Duty to Initiate Notice Proceedings

Prob. Code § 19000 et seq. does not impose any duty on the trustee to initiate the notice proceeding set forth in Prob. Code § 19003 [§ 560.245[5]], and the trustee is not liable for failure to initiate the proceeding [Prob. Code § 19010]. Further, the trustee may not be held personally liable to the creditors merely for making a distribution from the trust. If creditors of the deceased settlor are successful in prosecuting a claim against trust assets, a judgment may properly be rendered against the trustee as trustee; but there is no basis for rendering a judgment against the trustee personally [Valentine v. Read (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 787, 793, 794, 796, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836] .

[2] Effect of Filing Notice

If the trustee elects to file, publish, and serve notice pursuant to Prob. Code § 19003, all claims against the trust must be filed in the manner and within the time provided in Prob. Code § 19000 et seq. Claims that are not filed in accordance with those provisions are barred from collection from trust assets [Prob. Code § 19004(a), (b); see Prob. Code § 19010]. Further, the holder of a claim may not maintain an action on the claim against the trust unless the claim is first filed as provided by Prob. Code § 19000 et seq. [Prob. Code § 19004(c)]. For discussion of claim procedure, see § 560.246.

If there is no proceeding to administer the estate of the deceased settlor (§ 560.245[4]) and if the trustee does not file a proposed notice to creditors and publish notice to creditors, the liability of the trust to any creditor of the deceased settlor is as otherwise provided by law [Prob. Code § 19008].

[3] Multiple Trusts

If the trustee files, publishes, and serves notice as provided in Prob. Code § 19003, the protection from creditors afforded that trustee and trust will also be afforded to any other trusts established by the deceased settlor and the trustees and beneficiaries of those trusts [Prob. Code § 19006(a)].

[4] Relationship to Decedent's Estate and Other Probate Proceedings

If the personal representative of the deceased settlor's estate has published notice under Prob. Code § 8120 (notice of petition to administer decedent's estate) and has given notice of administration of the estate of the deceased settlor under Prob. Code § 9050 et seq. (notice to known creditor's of decedent), the protection from creditors afforded the personal representative of the deceased settlor's estate will be afforded to the trustee and to the beneficiaries of the trust [Prob. Code § 19006(b)]. For discussion of the notice and publication requirements of Prob. Code §§ 8120, 9050, see Ch. 442, Probate: Initiating Probate Administration .

If, following the filing and publication of the notice set forth in Prob. Code § 19003, a proceeding requiring publication of a notice pursuant to Prob. Code § 8120 is commenced [see Prob. Code § 8003 (administration of decedent's estate requires notice under Prob. Code § 8120)], the trustee has a right of collection against the estate to recover the amount of any debts paid from trust assets that would otherwise have been satisfied by law or by direction in the deceased settlor's will or trust by the property subject to probate proceedings [Prob. Code § 19006(c)].

[5] Proposed Notice

[a] Time for Filing

At any time following the settlor's death, and during the time that there has been no filing of a petition to administer the estate of the deceased settlor in California of which the trustee has actual knowledge, the trustee may file with the court a proposed notice to creditors. After the court assigns a proceeding number to the proposed notice, the trustee must publish and serve the notice to creditors of the deceased settlor [Prob. Code § 19003(a); see Prob. Code § 19003(c) (requirements of Prob. Code § 19003(a) do not affect notice or request to a public entity pursuant to Prob. Code § 19200 et seq., discussed in § 560.250); Prob. Code §§ 19040 et seq., § 19050 et seq. (publication and notice requirements, discussed in § 560.245[6])].

[b] Place of Filing

If the trustee elects to file a proposed notice [see Prob. Code § 19010; § 560.245[5]], the filing must be made with the superior court for the county where the deceased settlor resided at the time of death or, if none, in any county in which trust property was located at the time of the settlor's death or, if none, in the county that was the principal place of administration of the trust at the time of the settlor's death [Prob. Code § 19003(b)].

[6] Notice by Publication

[a] Requirements

If the trustee has elected to initiate notice proceedings [see Prob. Code § 19010], publication of notice must be for at least 15 days. Three publications in a newspaper published at least once a week, with at least five days intervening between the first and last publication dates, not including the first and last publication dates, are sufficient. Notice must be published in a newspaper of general circulation in the California city, county, or city and county where the deceased settlor resided at the time of death or, if none, in the California city, county, or city and county where trust property was located at the time of the settlor's death or, if none, in the California city, county, or city and county where the principal place of administration of the trust was located at the time of the settlor's death [Prob. Code § 19040(a)].

If there is no newspaper of general circulation published in the applicable city, county, or city and county, notice must be published in a newspaper of general circulation published in California nearest to the applicable city, county, or city and county seat, and that is circulated within the applicable city, county, or city and county. If there is no such newspaper, notice must be given in written or printed form, posted at three of the most public places within the community. The term "city" means a charter city as defined in Gov. Code § 34101 or a general law city as defined in

Gov. Code § 34102 [Prob. Code § 19040(a)].

For a form of notice, see § 560.650.

[b] Good Faith Substantial Compliance Sufficient

To prevent a minor error in publication from invalidating what would otherwise be a proper proceeding, the Legislature has found and declared that notice published in a good faith attempt to comply with Prob. Code § 19040 is sufficient to provide notice to creditors and establish jurisdiction if the court expressly finds that the notice was published in a newspaper of general circulation published within the city, county, or city and county and widely circulated within a true cross section of the community in which the deceased settlor resided or wherein the principal place of administration of the trust was located or the property was located, in substantial compliance with section 19040 [Prob. Code § 19041].

[c] Affidavit of Publication

An affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc.§ 2015.5] showing due publication of the notice must be filed with the clerk on completion of publication. The affidavit or declaration must contain copy of the notice and state the date of its first publication [Prob. Code § 19040(c)].

[7] Actual Notice

[a] Required for Known Creditors

If the trustee has elected to initiate notice proceedings [see Prob. Code § 19010] and has knowledge of a creditor of the deceased settlor, the trustee must give the creditor actual notice. A trustee has knowledge of a creditor of the deceased settlor when the trustee is aware that the creditor has demanded payment from the deceased settlor or the trust estate [Prob. Code 19050]. The trustee has no duty, however, to make a search for creditors of the deceased settlor [see Prob. Code § 19053(d)]. The actual notice requirement is in addition to the requirement of publication of notice under Prob. Code § 19040 [Prob. Code § 19050(b); for discussion of the publication requirement, see § 560.245[6]].

For a form for use in providing actual notice to creditors of the deceased settlor of a revocable trust, see § 560.651.

[b] Not Required for Creditor Who Filed Claim

The trustee need not give notice to a creditor, even though the trustee has knowledge of the creditor, if the creditor has filed a claim pursuant to Prob. Code § 19000 et seq. or the creditor has demanded payment and the trustee elects to treat the demand as a claim under Prob. Code § 19154 [Prob. Code § 19054; for discussion of treating a demand as a claim, see § 560.248].

[c] Methods of Notice

Notice must be given as provided in Prob. Code § 1215 for mailing of notices [Prob. Code 19050]. Alternatively, notice may be given by personal delivery because, under Prob. Code § 1216, personal delivery of a notice or other paper required or permitted to be mailed satisfies any statutory provision under the Probate Code, requiring or permitting the mailing of the notice or paper [see Prob. Code 1216]. For discussion of Prob. Code § 1215 and other general provisions relating to notice under the Probate Code, see Ch. 447, Probate: Statutory Notice Requirements .

[d] Time for Giving Notice

Notice must be given before the expiration of the later of (1) four months after the first publication of notice under Prob. Code § 19040, or (2) 30 days after the trustee first had knowledge of the creditor [Prob. Code § 19051].

[e] Extent of Trustee's Immunity for Providing or Failing to Provide Notice

If the trustee believes that notice to a particular creditor is or may be required and gives notice based on that belief, the trustee is not liable to any person for giving the notice, whether or not the notice was required [Prob. Code § 19053(a)].

If the trustee fails to give notice, the trustee is not liable to any person for that failure, unless a creditor establishes all of the following [Prob. Code 19053(b); see also Prob. Code § 19010 (no duty to initiate notice proceeding, discussed under)]:

- The failure was in bad faith [Prob. Code § 19053(b)(1)];

- The creditors had actual knowledge of the proceedings under Prob. Code § 19000 et seq. sooner than one year after publication of notice to creditors and payment would have been made on the creditor's claim if the claim had been properly filed [Prob. Code § 19053(b)(2)];

- Within 16 months after the first publication of notice, the creditor filed a petition requesting that the court in which the proceedings under Prob. Code § 19000 et seq. were initiated make an order determining the liability of the trustee under this subdivision [Prob. Code § 19053(b)(3)(A)]; and

- Within 16 months after the first publication of notice, and at least 30 days before the hearing on the petition, the creditor caused notice of the hearing and a copy of the petition to be served on the trustee in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 413.10 et seq. [Prob. Code § 19053(b)(3)(B)].

Probate Code § 19053 does not affect the liability of the trust estate, if any, for the claim of a creditor, and the trustee is not liable to the extent the claim is paid out of the trust estate [Prob. Code § 19053(c)].

§ 560.246 Filing Claims

[1] Time Limitations

[a] Basic Time for Filing Claim

A creditor must file a claim before expiration of the later of four months after the first publication of notice to creditors under Prob. Code § 19040 [§ 560.245[6]] or 60 days after the date actual notice is mailed or personally delivered to the creditor, if notice is given within the time provided in Prob. Code § 19051(a) or (b) [Prob. Code § 19100(a)]. A reference in another statute to the time for filing a claim means the four-month period after the first publication of notice to creditors, unless the provision or context requires otherwise [Prob. Code § 19100(b)].

[b] Effect of Vacancy in Office of Trustee

A vacancy in the office of the trustee that occurs before expiration of the time for filing a claim does not extend the time [Prob. Code § 19101]. Nevertheless, a claim that is filed before expiration of the time for filing the claim is timely even if acted on by the trustee or the court after expiration of the time for filing claims [Prob. Code § 19102].

[c] Statute of Limitations

A claim barred by the statute of limitations may not be allowed by the trustee. Nevertheless, the filing of a claim tolls the statute of limitations otherwise applicable to the claim until the trustee gives notice of allowance or rejection. Allowance or rejection of the claim further tolls the statute of limitations as to the part of the claim allowed until that portion of the claim is paid [Prob. Code § 19253; for discussion of allowance and rejection of claims by the trustee, see § 560.253].

[2] Filing of Late Claims

[a] When Late Claim Allowed

Except as provided in Prob. Code § 19103(b) [see below], on a creditor's petition and after giving notice of hearing as set forth in Prob. Code § 19024 (see discussion in § 560.252[2]), the court may allow a claim to be filed after expiration of the time limitation if either [Prob. Code § 19103(a)]:

- The trustee failed to send proper and timely notice to the creditor and the petition is filed within 60 days after the creditor has actual knowledge of the administration of the trust; or

- The creditor did not have knowledge of the facts giving rise to the existence of the claim more than 30 days prior to the time for filing a claim, and the petition is filed within 60 days after the creditor has actual knowledge of both the existence of facts reasonably giving rise to the existence of a claim, and the administration of the trust.

The court, however, will not allow a late claim to be filed more than one year after the date of first publication of notice to creditors under Prob. Code § 19040, and Prob. Code § 19103 does not authorize the allowance or approval of a claim barred by, or extend the time provided in, Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2 (statute of limitations on cause of action against a person who dies) [Prob. Code § 19103(b)].

The court may condition a late claim on terms that are just and equitable, and may deny the claimant's petition if a distribution to trust beneficiaries or payment to general creditors has been made and it appears that filing or establishment of the claim would cause or tend to cause unequal treatment among beneficiaries or creditors [Prob. Code § 19103(c)].

[b] Property and Payments Not Subject to Late Claim

Regardless of whether a late claim is later established in whole or in part, property distributed under the terms of the trust subsequent to an order settling claims [see Prob. Code § 19020] and payments otherwise properly made before a late claim is filed are not subject to the late claim. Except as provided in Prob. Code § 19400 et seq. [see § 560.243], and subject to Prob. Code § 19053 (trustee's immunity; § 560.245[7][e]], the trustee, distributee, or payee is not liable on account of the prior distribution or payment [Prob. Code § 19103(d)].

§ 560.247 Procedure for Filing Claims

[1] In General

A claim may be filed by the creditor or a person acting on behalf of the creditor [Prob. Code § 19150(a)]. The claim must be filed with the court and a copy mailed to the trustee. Failure to mail a copy to the trustee does not invalidate a properly filed claim, but any loss that results from the failure must be borne by the claimant [Prob. Code § 19150(b); see Prob. Code § 19153 (Judicial Council authorized to adopt official claim form)]. For an illustration of the Judicial Council form of creditor's claim against the decedent's estate, see Ch. 454, Probate: Claims Against the Estate .

The claim must be supported by the affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury of the creditor or the person on behalf of the creditor stating all of the following [Prob. Code § 19151; see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (use of declaration in lieu of affidavit)]:

- The claim is a just claim;
- If the claim is due, the facts supporting the claim, the amount of the claim, and that all payments on and offsets to the claim have been credited;
- If the claim is not due or contingent or the amount is not yet ascertainable, the facts supporting the claim; and
- If the affidavit is made by a person other than the creditor, the reason it is not made by the creditor.

The trustee may require satisfactory vouchers or proof to be produced to support the claim. An original voucher may be withdrawn after a copy is provided. If a copy is provided, the copy shall be attached to the claim [Prob. Code § 19151(b)].

[2] Claim Based on Written Instrument

If a claim is based on a written instrument, either the original or a copy of the original with all endorsements must be attached to the claim. If a copy is attached, the original instrument must be exhibited to the trustee on demand unless it is lost or destroyed, in which case the fact that it is lost or destroyed must be stated in the claim [Prob. Code § 19152(a)].

If the claim or a part of the claim is secured by a mortgage, deed of trust, or other lien that is recorded in the office of the recorder of the county in which the property subject to the lien is located, it is sufficient to describe the mortgage, deed of trust, or lien and the recording reference for the instrument that created the mortgage, deed of trust, or other lien [Prob. Code § 19152(b)].

If a creditor makes a timely written demand for payment, the trustee may waive formal defects and elect to treat the demand as a claim that is properly filed and established by paying the amount demanded [Prob. Code § 19154(a)]. This power does not, however, limit application of the doctrines of waiver, estoppel, laches, or detrimental reliance or any other equitable principle [Prob. Code § 19154(b)].

§ 560.249 Amendment and Revision of Claims

If a claim is timely filed, the creditor may later amend or revise the claim. The amendment or revision must be filed in the same manner as the claim [Prob. Code § 19104(a)].

An amendment or revision may not be made to increase the amount of a claim after the time for filing a claim has expired. An amendment or revision to specify the amount of a claim that, at the time of filing, was not due, was contingent, or was not yet ascertainable is not an "increase in the amount of the claim" [Prob. Code § 19104(b)].

A claim may not be amended or revised for any purpose after the earlier of the date the court makes an order approving settlement of the claim against the deceased settlor or one year after the date of the first publication of notice to creditors [Prob. Code § 19104(b)].

49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.250

§ 560.250 Claims by Public Entities

[1] In General

A claim by a public entity must generally be filed within the same time as any other claims against the trust [see Prob. Code § 19200(a)]. A claim not so filed is barred, including any lien imposed for the claim [Prob. Code § 19200(a)].

As used in the provisions governing claims against the decedent's trust by public entities, the term "public entity" has the meaning provided in Gov. Code § 811.2, and includes an officer authorized to act on behalf of the public entity. Gov. Code § 811.2 defines "public entity" to include the state, the Regents of the University of California, a county, city, district, public authority, public agency, and any other political subdivision or public corporation in the state [see Gov. Code § 811.2].

The provisions governing claims against the decedent's trust by public entities do not affect the order of priority of debts provided for under other provisions of law, and do not apply to liability for the restitution of amounts illegally acquired through the means of a fraudulent, false, or incorrect representation or a forged or unauthorized endorsement [Prob. Code §§ 19204, 19205].

[2] Claims Governed by Special Statutes

Notwithstanding any other statute, a claim of a public entity that arises under the statutes listed in Prob. Code § 19201(b) is barred only after written notice or request to the public entity and expiration of the period provided in the applicable section. If no written notice or request is made, the claim is enforceable by the remedies, and is barred at the time, otherwise provided in the law, act, or code [Prob. Code § 19201(a)(2)]. A comparable list of statutes is given in Prob. Code § 9201(b) (claims by public entities against decedent's estate) and is set out in Ch. 454, Probate: Claims Against the Estate .

The public entity may provide a form to be used for the written notice or request to the public entity. When appropriate, the form may require the decedent's social security number, if known [Prob. Code § 19201(a)(1)].

If the trustee knows or has reason to believe that the deceased settlor received health care under the Medi-Cal Act (Welf. & Inst. Code § 14000 et seq.) or the Waxman-Duffy Prepaid Health Plan Act (Welf. & Inst. Code § 14200 et seq.), or was the surviving spouse of a person who received health care, the trustee must give the Director of Health Services notice of the settlor's death in the manner provided in Prob. Code § 215 [Prob. Code § 19202(a); for discussion of notice under Prob. Code § 215, see Ch. 454, Probate: Claims Against the Estate]. Notice must also be given if the deceased settlor was the surviving spouse of a person who received health care under either of those acts [Prob. Code § 9202]. If a person who received that health care dies leaving a surviving spouse, no claim for reimbursement can be made against the person's estate [Welf. & Inst. Code § 14009.5(b)(2)(A)]. When the surviving spouse dies, however, the State Department of Health Services is required to make a claim against the estate of the surviving spouse (or against any person who has obtained property from the surviving spouse by distribution or survival) for the amount paid for the medical assistance given to the deceased spouse, or the value of any of the deceased spouse's property received by the surviving spouse through distribution or survival, whichever is less [Welf. & Inst. Code § 14009.5(b)(2)(A)]. The Probate Code gives the State Director of Health Services four months after the trustee has given the Director notice of the recipient's death to file a claim [Prob. Code § 19202(b)]. Notwithstanding the Probate Code provision, however, the Welfare & Institutions Code provides that any statute of limitations that purports to limit the ability to recover for medical assistance granted under these circumstances "shall not apply to any claim for reimbursement" [Welf. & Inst. Code § 14009.5(b)(2)(A)].

[3] Liability of Distributees

If property in the trust is distributed before expiration of the time allowed a public entity to file a claim, the public entity has a claim against the distributees to the full extent of the public entity's claim or each distributee's share of the distributed property, as set forth in Prob. Code § 19402 [see § 560.250[3]], whichever is less. The public entity's claim against distributees includes interest at a rate equal to that specified in Rev. & Tax. Code § 19521, from the date of distribution or the date of filing the claim by the public entity, whichever is later, plus other accruing costs as in the case of enforcement of a money judgment [Prob. Code § 19203].

§ 560.252 Petition for Approval of Allowance, Compromise, or Settlement of Claims Against Deceased Settlor

[1] In General

At any time after the filing and first publication of notice pursuant to Prob. Code § 19040 et seq., and after expiration of the time to file claims, a trustee or beneficiary may petition the court to approve either of the following [Prob. Code § 19020]:

- An allowance, compromise, or settlement of any claims that have not been rejected by the trustee under Prob. Code § 19000 et seq. for which trust property may be liable; or

- An allocation to two or more trusts that may be liable for the claims of any amounts due by reason of allowance, compromise, or settlement of any claims.

A proceeding to approve and settle a claim is commenced by the filing of a verified petition stating facts showing that the petition is authorized under Prob. Code § 19020 et seq. and the grounds of the petition [Prob. Code 19022(a)].

In cases involving charitable trusts subject to the jurisdiction of the Attorney General, the Attorney General may petition under Prob. Code § 19000 et seq. [Prob. Code § 19030].

For a form of petition for approval of allowance, compromise, or settlement of claims, see § 560.652.

[2] Notice of Hearing on Petition for Approval

The clerk will set a hearing date for the petition, and, at least 30 days before the time set for the hearing, the petitioner must cause notice of the time and place of the hearing and a copy of the petition to be served on each of the creditors whose interests in the estate may be affected by the petition. Service must be effected in the manner provided in Code of Civ. Proc. § 413.10 et seq. [Prob. Code §§ 19022(c), 19023].

In addition, at least 30 days before the time set for the hearing on the petition, the petitioner must cause notice of the time and place of the hearing, together with a copy of the petition, to be mailed to each of the following persons who is not a petitioner [Prob. Code § 19024]:

- All trustees of the trust and of any other trusts to which an allocation of liability may be approved by the court pursuant to the petition;

- All affected beneficiaries;

- The personal representative of the deceased settlor's estate if any is known to the trustee; and

- The Attorney General if the petition relates to a charitable trust subject to the jurisdiction of the Attorney General, unless the Attorney General waives notice.

Except as otherwise provided, notice in proceedings under the Trust Law, which includes Prob. Code § 19000 et seq., is governed by Prob. Code § 1200 et seq. [see Prob. Code § 17100]. For further discussion of the general notice provisions under the Probate Code, see Ch. 447, Probate: Statutory Notice Requirements .

[3] Response or Objection

Any interested person may appear to respond or object to the petition [see Prob. Code §§ 1040, 1043]. For discussion of the procedure for responding or objecting with regard to claims against an estate, see Ch. 454, Probate: Claims Against the Estate .

If any creditor beneficiary, or trustee fails to file a timely written pleading after notice, the case is at issue, notwithstanding the failure. The case may proceed on the petition and written statements filed by the time of the hearing, and no further pleadings by other persons are necessary. The creditor, beneficiary, or trustee who failed to file a timely written pleading may not participate further in the proceeding and will be bound by the decision in the proceeding [Prob. Code § 19025(a)].

[4] Discretion of Court

[a] Appointment of Guardian Ad Litem

The court may, on its own motion or on the request of a trustee or other person interested in the trust, appoint a guardian ad litem in accordance with Prob. Code § 1003 [Prob. Code § 19029; for discussion, see § 560.140].

[b] Ruling on Petition

The court in its discretion may make any orders and take any other action necessary or proper to dispose of the matters presented by the petition [Prob. Code § 19027(a)]. The court may dismiss the petition if the proceeding does not appear to be reasonably necessary for the protection of the interests of the trustee or any beneficiary of the trust [Prob. Code § 19026].

If the court determines that the assets of the trust estate are insufficient to pay all debts, the court shall order payment in the manner set forth in Prob. Code § 11420 (priority of payment) [Prob. Code § 19027(b); for discussion, see Ch. 454, Probate: Claims Against the Estate].

For a form for an order granting petition for approval of allowance, compromise, or settlement of claims, see § 560.653.

[5] Conclusiveness of Order

The court's order, when final, is conclusive as to the liability of the trust property with respect to the claims at issue in the petition. In the event of a subsequent administration of the estate of the deceased settlor, the order is binding on the personal representative of the estate of the deceased settlor as well as on all creditors and beneficiaries who had notice of the petition [Prob. Code § 19025(b)].

[6] Appeal

An final order approving (or refusing to approve) an allowance, compromise, or settlement of a claim against the revocable trust of a deceased settlor is appealable [Prob. Code § 1304(b); see Prob. Code §§ 19020-19030 (petition for approval and settlement of claims against deceased settlor)].

§ 560.253 Allowance and Rejection of Claims

[1] In General

When a claim is filed, the trustee may allow or reject the claim in whole or in part [Prob. Code § 19250]. The allowance or rejection must be in writing, and must be filed by the trustee with the court clerk. The trustee must also mail notice to the claimant, together with a copy of the allowance or rejection [Prob. Code § 19251(a); see Prob. Code § 1215 (manner of mailing notice)]. For discussion of mailing notice, see Ch. 447, Probate: Statutory Notice Requirements .

[2] Contents of Allowance or Rejection

The allowance or rejection must contain the following information [Prob. Code § 19251(b); see also Prob. Code § 19251(c) (Judicial Council to promulgate official form of allowance or rejection)]:

- The name of the creditor;
- The date of the settlor's death;
- The total amount of the claim;
- The amount allowed or rejected by the trustee; and
- A statement that the creditor has 90 days from the time the notice of rejection is given or 90 days after the claim becomes due, whichever is later, in which to bring an action on a claim rejected in whole or in part.

Prob. Code § 19251 does not apply to demands a trustee elects to treat as claims pursuant to Prob. Code § 19154 [Prob. Code § 19251(d); for discussion of Prob. Code § 19154, see § 560.248].

[3] Allowance of Claim

The trustee has the power to pay any claim or portion of a claim, and payment constitutes allowance of the claim to the extent of the payment. The trustee also has the power to compromise any claim or portion of a claim. If the trustee or the attorney for the trustee is a creditor of the deceased settlor, the trustee has the same powers regarding allowance, rejection, payment, or compromise as he or she would if he or she were not a creditor [see Prob. Code § 19252].

Claims barred by the statute of limitations may not be allowed by the trustee [Prob. Code § 19253(a); for discussion of time limitations applicable to claims, see § 560.246[1]].

The trustee may petition the court to approve any claims allowed [see Prob. Code § 19020 et seq.]. For discussion of petitioning for approval of claims, see § 560.252.

[4] Rejection of Claim

If within 30 days after a claim is filed the trustee has refused or neglected to act on the claim, the refusal or neglect may, at the option of the claimant, be deemed equivalent to the giving of a notice of rejection on the 30th day [Prob. Code § 19254].

§ 560.254 Creditor's Action on Rejected Claim

[1] In General

A rejected claim is barred as to the part rejected unless the creditor brings an action on the claim or the matter is referred to a referee or to arbitration within 90 days after notice is given if the claim is due at the time of giving notice of rejection or, if the claim is not due at the time of giving notice of rejection, 90 days after the claim becomes due. Neither 90-day period includes time during which there is a vacancy in the office of the trustee [Prob. Code § 19255(a)]. Notwithstanding the statute of limitations otherwise applicable to a claim, if an action on a rejected claim is not timely commenced or the matter is not timely referred to a referee or arbitration, it is forever barred [Prob. Code § 19253(d)].

For a form for a complaint in an action on a rejected claim, see § 560.654.1.

[2] Notice of Pendency of Action

The creditor must file a notice of the pendency of the action or the referral to a referee or to arbitration with the court clerk in the trust proceeding, together with proof of giving a copy of the notice to the trustee as provided in Prob. Code § 1215. Personal service of a copy of the summons and complaint on the trustee is equivalent to the filing and giving of the notice [Prob. Code § 19255(c); for discussion of Prob. Code § 1215, see Ch. 447, Probate: Statutory Notice Requirements]. For a form for this notice, see § 560.654.

Any property distributed by the trustee under the terms of the trust after 120 days from the later of the time the notice of rejection is given or the claim is due and before the notice of pendency of action or referral or arbitration is filed and given (excluding any time during which there is a vacancy in the office of trustee) is not subject to the claim. Neither the trustee nor the distributee is liable on account of the distribution [Prob. Code § 19255(d)].

[3] Costs and Attorney's Fees

The prevailing party in the action is entitled to court costs, and, if the court determines that the prosecution or defense of the action against the prevailing party was unreasonable, the prevailing party is to be awarded reasonable litigation expenses, including attorney's fees. In this context, the creditor is the prevailing party if the creditor recovers an amount greater than the amount of the claim allowed by the trustee. The trustee is the prevailing party if the creditor recovers an amount equal to or less than the amount of the claim allowed by the trustee [Prob. Code § 19255(e)].

49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.255

§ 560.255 Claims Established by Judgment

[1] Money Judgments

After the death of the settlor, a creditor cannot enforce either a money judgment against the deceased settlor on a claim against the deceased settlor or a money judgment against the trustee on a claim against the decedent or the trust estate against property in the trust estate under the Enforcement of Judgments Law (Code Civ. Proc. § 680.010 et seq.), except property that was subject to an execution lien at the time of the settlor's death [Prob. Code §§ 19300(a), 19303; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 686.020].

All money judgments against the deceased settlor or trustee are payable in the course of administration and must be filed in the same manner as other claims [Prob. Code § 19300; see also Prob. Code § 19301]. For discussion of claim filing requirements and procedures, see § 560.246.

When a money judgment against a trustee in a representative capacity becomes final, it conclusively establishes the validity of the claim for the amount of the judgment. The judgment must provide that it is payable out of property in the deceased settlor's trust estate in the course of administration. In addition, an abstract of the judgment must be filed in the trust administration proceedings [Prob. Code § 19301].

[2] Nonmoney Judgments

Notwithstanding the death of the settlor, a judgment for possession of trust property or a judgment for sale of trust property may be enforced under the Enforcement of Judgments Law (Code Civ. Proc. § 680.010 et seq.). This does not, however, authorize enforcement under the Enforcement of Judgments Law against any property in the trust estate of the deceased settlor other than the property described in the judgment for possession or sale [Prob. Code § 19302(a)]. For discussion and forms relating to enforcement of nonmoney judgments, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments .

After the settlor's death, a demand for money that is not satisfied from the trust property described in a judgment for sale of property must be filed as a claim in the same manner as other claims and is payable in the course of administration [Prob. Code § 19302(b)].

[3] Property Subject to Execution Lien

If trust property of the deceased settlor is subject to an execution lien at the timeof the settlor's death, enforcement against the property may proceed under the Enforcement of Judgments Law (Code Civ. Proc. § 680.010 et seq.) to satisfy the judgment. The levying officer must account to the trustee for any surplus. If the judgment is not satisfied, the balance of the judgment remaining unsatisfied is payable in the course of administration [Prob. Code § 19303; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 680.260 (definition of "levying officer")].

[4] Conversion of Attachment Lien to Judgment Lien

[a] Converting Lien

An attachment lien may be converted into a judgment lien on property in the trust estate subject to the attachment lien, with the same priority as the attachment lien, if the judgment debtor dies after entry of judgment in an action in which the property was attached or if a judgment is entered after the death of the defendant in an action in which the property was attached [Prob. Code § 19304(a)].

To convert the attachment lien into a judgment lien, the levying officer must, after entry of judgment in the action in which the property was attached and before the expiration of the attachment lien, do one of the following [Prob. Code § 19304(b)]:

- Serve an abstract of the judgment, and a notice that the attachment lien has become a judgment lien, on the trustee or other person holding property subject to the attachment lien.

- Record or file in any office where the writ of attachment and notice of attachment are recorded or filed an abstract of the judgment and a notice that the attachment lien has become a judgment lien. If the attached property is real property, the plaintiff or the plaintiff's attorney may record the required abstract and notice with the same effect as if recorded by the levying officer.

[b] Exemptions From Lien

After the death of the settlor, any members of the deceased settlor's family who were supported in whole or in part by the deceased settlor may claim an exemption provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 487.020 for property levied on under the writ of attachment if the right to the exemption exists at the time the exemption is claimed [Prob. Code § 19304(c)]. The exemptions allowed under that provision are the following:

- All property exempt from enforcement of a money judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 703.010 et seq.];

- Property necessary for support;

- "Earnings" as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 706.011 (Wage Garnishment Law); and

- Property not subject to attachment under Code Civ. Proc. § 487.010.

The trustee may claim the exemption on behalf of members of the deceased settlor's family. The claim of exemption may be made at any time before the time the abstract and notice are served, recorded, or filed with respect to the property claimed to be exempt. The claim of exemption must be made in the same manner as an exemption is claimed under Code Civ. Proc. § 485.610 [Prob. Code § 19304(c)]. For further discussion and forms relating to claims of exemption, Ch. 62, Attachment.

§ 560.256 Allocation of Debts Between Trust and Surviving Spouse

[1] Allocation of Debt Authorized

If a debt of the deceased settlor appears to have been paid or to be payable in whole or in part from property in the deceased settlor's trust, the trustee, the surviving spouse, the personal representative, if any, or a deceased settlor's probate estate, or a beneficiary may petition for an order to allocate the debt [Prob. Code § 19320]. For a form of petition for allocation of debt, see § 560.654.2.

Absent an agreement, each debt of the deceased settlor must be characterized as separate or community. Then the debts will be allocated as follows [Prob. Code § 11444(b)]:

- Separate debts of either spouse are allocated to that spouse's separate property assets, and community debts are allocated to the spouses' community property assets.

- If a separate property asset of either spouse is subject to a secured debt that is characterized as that spouse's separate debt, and the net equity in that asset available to satisfy the secured debt is less than the secured debt, the unsatisfied portion of the secured debt is treated as an unsecured separate debt of that spouse and allocated to the net value of that spouse's other separate property assets.

- If the net value of either spouse's separate property assets is less than that spouse's unsecured separate debt or debts, the unsatisfied portion of the debt or debts is allocated to the net value of that spouse's one-half share of the community property assets. If the net value of that spouse's one-half share of the community property assets is less than that spouse's unsatisfied unsecured separate debt or debts, the remaining unsatisfied portion of the debt or debts is allocated to the net value of the other spouse's one-half share of the community property assets.

- If a community property asset is subject to a secured debt that ischaracterized as a community debt, and the net equity in that asset available to satisfy the secured debt is less than the secured debt, the unsatisfied portion of the secured debt is treated as an unsecured community debt and allocated to the net value of the other community property assets.

- If the net value of the community property assets is less than the unsecured community debt or debts, the unsatisfied portion of the debt or debts is allocated equally between the separate property assets of the decedent and the surviving spouse. If the net value of either spouse's separate property assets is less than that spouse's share of the unsatisfied portion of the unsecured community debt or debts, the remaining unsatisfied portion of the debt or debts is allocated to the net value of the other spouse's separate property assets.

The net value of separate property is its fair market value as of the date of the decedent's death, minus the date-of-death balance of any liens and encumbrances that are characterized as debts of the owner spouse [Prob. Code § 11444(c)(1)]. The net value of community property is its fair market value as of the date of the decedent's death, minus the date-of-death balance of any liens and encumbrances that are characterized as community debts [Prob. Code § 11444(c)(2)]. For allocation purposes, a nonrecourse debt is defined as a debt for which the debtor's obligation to repay is limited to the collateral securing the debt and for which a deficiency judgment against the debtor is not permitted, and would limit the amount of a nonrecourse debt to the net equity in the collateral [Prob. Code § 11444(c)(3)]. A court may order a different allocation of debts if it finds that allocation to be equitable under the circumstances [Prob. Code § 11444(d)].

If a trustee, personal representative or the surviving spouse incurs any damages or expense, including attorney's fees, on account of the nonpayment of a debt that was allocated to the other party, or as the result of a debt being misallocated due to fraud or intentional misrepresentation by the other party, the party incurring damages may recover from the other party for reasonable damages or expense [Prob. Code § 11444(e)].

[2] Funeral Expenses and Expenses of Last Illness

Notwithstanding any other statute, funeral expenses and expenses of last illness, in the absence of specific provisions in a will or trust to the contrary, must be charged against the deceased settlor's probate estate and, thereafter, against the deceased settlor's share of the trust, and may not be allocated to or charged against the community share of the surviving spouse, whether or not the surviving spouse is financially able to pay the expenses and whether or not the surviving spouse or any other person is also liable for the expenses [Prob. Code § 19326].

[3] Allocation Affected by Value of Surviving Spouse's Property

If it appears from the petition that allocation would be affected by the value of the separate property of the surviving spouse and any community property and quasi-community property not administered in the trust and if an inventory and appraisal of the property has not been provided by the surviving spouse, the court will make an order to show cause why the information should not be provided [Prob. Code § 19322.] For a form of order to show cause, see § 560.654.3.

[4] Allocation by Agreement

The trustee, the personal representative, if any, of a deceased settlor's probate estate, and the surviving spouse may provide for allocation of debts by agreement if the agreement substantially protects the rights of other interested persons. The trustee, the personal representative, or the spouse may request and obtain court approval of the allocation provided in the agreement [Prob. Code § 19324(a)].

[5] Notice of Hearing on Petition for Allocation of Debts

At least 30 days before the time set for the hearing on the petition, the petitioner must cause notice of the time and place of the hearing and a copy of the petition to be served on the surviving spouse in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 413.10 et seq. for service of a summons [Prob. Code § 19323(a)].

At least 30 days before the time set for the hearing on the petition, the petitioner must also cause notice of the time and place of hearing, together with a copy of the petition, to be mailed to each of the following persons who is not a petitioner [Prob. Code § 19323(b)]:

- All trustees of the trust and of any trusts to which an allocation of liability may be approved by the court pursuant to the petition [Prob. Code § 19323(b)];

- All beneficiaries affected;

- The personal representative of the deceased settlor's estate if any is known to the trustee; and

- The Attorney General if the petition relates to a charitable trust subject to the jurisdiction of the Attorney General, unless the Attorney General waives notice.

Mailing notice is governed by Prob. Code § 1200 et seq. [see Prob. Code § 17100]. For discussion and general forms, see Ch. 447, Probate: Statutory Notice Requirements .

[6] Order Allocating Debts

On making a determination allocating debts, the court is required to make anorder that does the following [Prob. Code § 19325]:

- Directs the trustee to make payment of the amounts allocated to the trust by payment to the surviving spouse or creditors.

- Directs the trustee to charge amounts allocated to the surviving spouse against any property or interests of the surviving spouse that are in the possession or control of the trustee. To the extent that property or interests of the surviving spouse in the possession or control of the trustee are insufficient to satisfy the allocation, the court order must summarily direct the surviving spouse to pay the allocation to the trustee.

For a form of order allocating debts, see § 560.654.4.

§ 560.270 Governing Statutes

Administration of charitable trusts (as well as certain express private trusts) is governed generally by the Trust Law (Prob. Code §§ 15000 et seq.) to the extent that application is not in conflict with the Uniform Supervision of Trustees for Charitable Purposes Act (Gov. Code § 12580 et seq.), which otherwise governs. Duties of trustees of private foundations, charitable trusts, and split-interest trusts are governed by Prob. Code § 16100 et seq. However, when the assets of a charitable trust are administered by a nonprofit corporation, the Nonprofit Corporation Law (Corp. Code § 5000 et seq.) applies as follows:

- General provisions and definitions [see Corp. Code §§ 5002-5080].

- The Nonprofit Public Benefit Corporation Law (Corp. Code § 5110 et seq.), which relates to nonprofit corporations formed for any public or charitable purposes [see Corp. Code § 5111].

- The Nonprofit Mutual Benefit Corporation Law (Corp. Code § 7110 et seq.), which relates to nonprofit corporations formed for any lawful purpose, except corporations all of whose assets are irrevocably dedicated to charitable, religious, or public purposes if, on dissolution, the assets will be distributed to a person or persons carrying on a charitable, religious, or public purpose [see Corp. Code § 7111].

- The Nonprofit Religious Corporation Law (Corp. Code § 9110 et seq.), which relates to nonprofit corporations formed primarily or exclusively for religious purposes [see Corp. Code § 9111; see also Ch. 110, Churches and Religious Organizations].

- Transitional provisions (Corp. Code §§ 9910-9927), which govern the application of the Nonprofit Corporation Law to corporations organized or existing under prior nonprofit corporation law (see former Corp. Code §§ 9000-9802) [see Corp. Code §§ 9910(a), 10200 (references to prior law)].

A nonprofit health care service plan holding assets in charitable trust is not subject to the Uniform Supervision of Trustees for Charitable Purposes Act (Gov. Code § 12580 et seq.), and thus does not have to register with the Attorney General or meet the other requirements of the Uniform Act [Gov. Code § 12583; Van de Kamp v. Gumbiner (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1260, 1270, 270 Cal. Rptr. 907] . Instead, nonprofit health care service plans are governed by the Knox-Keene Health Care Service Plan Act of 1975 (Health & Safety Code § 1340 et seq.) and the Nonprofit Corporations Law [see Corp. Code §§ 5142, 5233, 5250, 6510, 6511, 10820, 10821].

Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17510.9 and 17510.85 govern fiduciary obligations of, and disclosures by, persons soliciting charitable contributions for compensation.

§ 560.271 Commercial Fundraisers for Charitable Purposes

[1] Defined

The Attorney General has responsibility for supervising "commercial fundraisers for charitable purposes," who must register with the Attorney General, account annually to the Attorney General for all funds collected pursuant to any solicitation for charitable purposes during the preceding calendar year, and who are constructive trustees of all funds so collected [Gov. Code § 12599]. A "commercial fundraiser for charitable purposes" is any individual, corporation, or other legal entity who for compensation either (1) solicits funds, assets, or property in California for charitable purposes, (2) as a result of a solicitation of funds, assets, or property in California for charitable purposes, receives or controls the funds, assets, or property solicited for charitable purposes, or (3) employs, procures, or engages any compensated person to solicit, receive or control funds, assets or property for charitable purposes. Charitable fundraisers also include any person or entity that obtains a majority of its inventory for resale from an organization qualified to solicit donations pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 148.3 [Gov. Code § 12599(a)]. Any commercial fundraiser that obtains a majority of its inventory for resale from an organization qualified to solicit donations pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 148.3 must file special reports with the Attorney General, which differ from the reports other commercial fundraisers file [Gov. Code § 12599(e), (k)].

"Commercial fundraisers for charitable purposes" do not include trustees as defined in Gov. Code § 12582 or 12583, charitable corporations as defined in Gov. Code § 12582.1, or any employee of either, or employees of any person registered with the Attorney General as a commercial fundraiser for charitable purposes. Also excluded are federally insured financial institutions that hold funds received as a result of a solicitation for charitable purposes [Gov. Code § 12599(a)].

[2] Disclosures Required

Persons who solicit charitable donations for compensation must disclose that fact at the time of each solicitation, stating the name by which they or their employer is registered with the Attorney General as a commercial fundraiser [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17510.85]. Similarly, it is unlawful for a commercial fundraiser to fail to disclose on request (written or oral) its percentage of total fundraising expenses. "Percentage of total fundraising expenses" means the ratio of total expenses of the fundraiser to the total revenues received by the fundraiser for the charitable purpose for which the funds are being solicited as reported on the most recent report filed with the Attorney General. If the request and response are oral, a written follow-up disclosure must still be made within five working days. Failure to make this disclosure is grounds for an injunction prohibiting further solicitation [Gov. Code § 12599(j)].

There is a fiduciary relationship between a charity or any person soliciting on the charity's behalf and a person from whom a charitable contribution is being solicited. The acceptance of a charitable contribution by a charity or any person soliciting on behalf of a charity establishes a charitable trust and a duty on the part of the person soliciting on behalf of the charity to use the contributions for the declared charitable purpose for which they are sought [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17510.9]. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17510.9 is declarative of existing law.

§ 560.290 Charitable Trust Defined

A charitable trust or a charity is a donation in trust to promote the welfare of the public at large, or a particular class of persons, indefinite with regard to numbers and individuals [Estate of Schloss (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 248, 256, 14 Cal. Rptr. 643, 363 P.2d 875 ; Estate of Breeden (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 981, 985-986, 256 Cal. Rptr. 813 ; People v. Cogswell (1896) 113 Cal. 129, 138, 45 P. 270] . For the purposes of Prob. Code §§ 16100-16105 (duties of trustees of charitable trusts, private foundations and split-interest trusts), charitable trusts are defined as those described in I.R.C. § 4947(a)(1), private foundations as those defined in I.R.C. § 509, and split interest trusts as those defined in I.R.C. § 4947(a)(2) [Prob. Code § 16100].

To create a charitable trust, the following must exist [L.B. Research & Educ. Found. v. UCLA Found. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 171, 177, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 710] :

- A proper manifestation by the settlor of an intention to create a trust;
- A charitable purpose; and
- Trust property.

When a charitable gift is made for a specified purpose, a question may arise as to whether the gift creates a trust or a gift subject to a condition subsequent For example, the owner of property, instead of expressly creating a trust, may transfer property to another on the condition that if the transferee fails to perform a specified act, the transferee's interest will be forfeited either to the transferor or to a designated third party. In such a case, the transferee's interest is subject to a condition subsequent and is not held in trust [L.B. Research & Educ. Found. v. UCLA Found. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 171, 177, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 710] . Whether a trust or a condition is created depends on the transferor's manifested intention. The fact that the word "condition" is used does not necessarily indicate that a condition and not a trust is intended, because trusts can be created by words of condition. Property given on condition that it will be applied to specified charitable purposes is particularly likely to be construed as having been given in a charitable trust [L.B.

Research & Educ. Found. v. UCLA Found. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 171, 177-178, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 710] . The question to be decided in such cases is whether the donor intended to provide that if the property were not used for the designated charitable purpose it should revert either to the donor's estate or to a contingent donee, or the donor intended to impose an enforceable obligation on the donees to devote it to those purposes [L.B. Research & Educ. Found. v. UCLA Found. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 171, 178-180, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 710 (conditional contract, not charitable trust, was created by instrument giving contribution of $1 million to university but also providing that if this money is not used as directed, fund must be transferred to another institution)].

§ 560.292 Beneficiaries

The beneficiaries of a charitable trust are indefinite in number and identity [Estate of Schloss (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 248, 256, 14 Cal. Rptr. 643, 363 P.2d 875] . A charitable trust differs significantly from an express private trust in this respect, because the beneficiaries of an express private trust must be ascertained or ascertainable [see Reagh v. Kelley (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 1082, 1092, 1098, 89 Cal. Rptr. 425] . For further discussion, see § 560.40 et seq.

§ 560.293 Application of Cy Pres Doctrine

The law favors gifts for charitable purposes, and instruments providing for such gifts will be liberally construed to accomplish the donor's intent [Estate of Tarrant (1951) 38 Cal. 2d 42, 46, 237 P.2d 505] . If a donor has expressed a general charitable purpose that for some reason cannot be accomplished in the manner specified, the court may apply the equitable doctrine of cy pres to substitute another charitable object that approximates the original purposes as closely as possible [see Estate of Tarrant (1951) 38 Cal. 2d 42, 49, 237 P.2d 505 ; In re Veterans' Industries, Inc. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 902, 918, 88 Cal. Rptr. 303] . The doctrine has been applied in various situations, including the following:

- To determine the disposition of assets on dissolution of a charitable corporation [see In re Veterans' Industries, Inc. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 902, 917-918, 88 Cal. Rptr. 303] .

- To uphold gifts when the testator has failed to specify the precise charitable purpose or to name a trustee to administer the gift [see Estate of Quinn, (1958) 156 Cal. App. 2d 684, 687, 320 P.2d 219] .

- To uphold gifts made to charitable institutions that do not accept them [see Estate of Faulkner (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 575, 275 P.2d 818] .

- To uphold gifts made to charitable institutions that cannot be identified with certainty [see Estate of Gatlin (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 644, 650, 94 Cal. Rptr. 295] .

§ 560.295 Duties of Trustee

[1] Prohibited Acts

During any period when a trust is deemed to be a charitable trust, a private foundation, or a split-interest trust, the trustee shall not do any of the following [Prob. Code § 16102; see Prob. Code § 16000 (definition of trusts)]:

- Engage in any act of self-dealing as defined in I.R.C. § 4941(d).
- Retain any excess business holdings as defined in I.R.C. § 4943(c).
- Make any investments in a manner that subjects the property of the trust to tax under I.R.C. § 4944.
- Make any taxable expenditure as defined in I.R.C. § 4945(d).

Exceptions to Prob. Code § 16102 with regard to split-interest trusts are set forth in Prob. Code § 16103.

[2] Distribution of Income

During any period when a trust is deemed to be a charitable trust or a private foundation, the trustee must distribute its income for each taxable year (and principal if necessary) at a time and in a manner that will not subject the property of the trust to tax under I.R.C. § 4942 [Prob. Code § 16101].

[3] Incorporation of Provisions in Trust Instrument

The provisions of Prob. Code §§ 16101, 16102, and 16103 are deemed to be contained in the instrument creating every trust to which Prob. Code §§ 16100-16105 applies. Any provision of the instrument inconsistent with or contrary to Prob. Code §§ 16100-16105 is without effect [Prob. Code § 16104].

[4] Applicability of Petition Procedure

A proceeding contemplated by the federal Tax Reform Act of 1969 (Pub. L. No. 91-172 § 101(l)(3)) may be commenced pursuant to Prob. Code § 17200 (petition in probate court) by the organization involved. All specifically named beneficiaries of the organization and the Attorney General must be parties to the proceedings. Probate court jurisdiction is not exclusive and does not limit any jurisdiction that otherwise exists, notwithstanding Prob. Code § 17200 [Prob. Code § 16105(a); for recording requirements, see Prob. Code § 16105(b)]. For discussion regarding petition procedure under Prob. Code § 17200 and related provisions, see § 560.130 et seq.

§ 560.296 Enforcement of Charitable Trusts

[1] By Attorney General

The Attorney General is responsible for the supervision of charitable trusts, and is empowered to institute proceedings to ensure compliance pursuant to the Uniform Supervision of Trustees for Charitable Purposes Act (Gov. Code § 12580 et seq.) and other statutory provisions listed in Gov. Code § 12598, theNonprofit Public Benefit Corporation Law (Corp. Code § 5110 et seq.), and the Nonprofit Mutual Benefit Corporation Law (Corp. Code §§ 7110-8910) [see Gov. Code §§ 12591, 12598 and Corp. Code §§ 5250, 7240, respectively]. Gov. Code § 12580 et seq. primarily set forth registering and reporting requirements regarding certain charitable trusts [see Gov. Code §§ 12582 (trustee includes any individual, or corporation, or other entity holding property for any charitable trust), 12582 (exclusions, e.g., religious corporations)]. Forms for complying with the reporting requirements may be obtained from the Office of the Attorney General. For further discussion of corporate trusts, see § 560.310 et seq.

The Attorney General is empowered to oversee charities as the representative of the public, and of beneficiaries who, unlike beneficiaries of a private trust, are ordinarily indefinite and therefore unable to enforce the trust in their own behalf [see Holt v. College of Osteopathic Physicians & Surgeons (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 750, 754, 40 Cal. Rptr. 244, 394 P.2d 932 ; People v. Cogswell (1896) 113 Cal. 129, 136-137, 45 P. 270] .

[2] By Parties Other Than Attorney General

Although the Attorney General has the primary responsibility for the enforcement of charitable trusts, the courts have recognized that others with sufficient interest in the trust as donor, trustee, cestui, or holder of a reversionary right have the right to bring actions for enforcement [see Holt v. College of Osteopathic Physicians & Surgeons (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 750, 753-754, 40 Cal. Rptr. 244, 394 P.2d 932 (minority trustees of charitable trust have capacity to sue to enforce trust); L.B. Research & Educ. Found. v. UCLA Found. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 171, 180-181, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 710 (donor has standing to enforce terms of trust it created)]. However, other than the Attorney General, only parties who have a special and definite interest in a charitable trust have standing to institute legal action to enforce or protect the assets of the trust [Hardman v. Feinstein (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 157, 161-162, 240 Cal. Rptr. 483 (taxpayers lack standing even when trust is administered by city officials pursuant to city charter; Code Civ. Proc. § 526a, authorizing taxpayer's actions to restrain illegal expenditure of public funds or property does not apply to officials' dealings in their capacity as trustees)].

In addition, a statutory exception is provided in the case of nonprofit health care service plans holding assets in charitable trust. Those plans are not subject to the filing, registration, or reporting provisions of the Uniform Supervision of Trustees for Charitable Purposes Act (Gov. Code § 12580 et seq.) [see Gov. Code § 12583], but are subject to the Knox-Keene Health Care Service Plan Act of 1975 (Health & Safety Code § 1340 et seq.) and the Nonprofit Corporations Law. Responsibility for their regulation and authority to oversee their compliance with the enforcement of charitable trusts pursuant to Corp. Code §§ 5142 and 5250 is vested in the Department of Corporations [see Van de Kamp v. Gumbiner (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1260, 1281-1282, 270 Cal. Rptr. 907] .

For discussion of standing with regard to charitable corporations, see §§ 560.314, § 560.315.

§ 560.297 Proceedings Regarding Internal Affairs or Existence of Trust

The Trust Law (Prob. Code § 15000 et seq.) applies to charitable trusts subject to the jurisdiction of the Attorney General to the extent that application is not in conflict with the Uniform Supervision of Trustees for Charitable Purposes Act (Gov. Code § 12580 et seq.) [Prob. Code § 15004; see also Prob. Code § 82 (definition of trust includes express charitable trust)]. Consequently, a trustee or beneficiary may initiate petition proceedings regarding the internal affairs or existence of the trust, if to do so would not conflict with Gov. Code § 12580 et seq. [Prob. Code § 17200(a); see Prob. Code §§ 24 (definition of beneficiary), 15801-15803 (limitations on rights of beneficiaries of revocable trust)]. The Attorney General may also petition under Prob. Code § 17200 [Prob. Code § 17210]. The Attorney General is subject to the limitations on the rights of beneficiaries of revocable trusts provided by Prob. Code §§ 15800-15802 (rights of beneficiary of revocable trust inure to person holding power to revoke), notwithstanding any other provision of law [Prob. Code § 15805].

The Nonprofit Mutual Benefit Corporation Law includes several special provisions applicable only to those mutual benefit corporations [*see Corp. § 560.312 Directors' Standard of Conduct

[1] General Standard

The standards of conduct imposed on directors of public benefit corporations as set forth in Corp. Code §§ 5230-5238, are made applicable to directors of mutual benefit corporations that hold assets in charitable trust by Corp. Code § 7238.

The general standard of conduct to which the directors are held is the same as that which is applicable to directors of commercial corporations. They must perform their duties in good faith, in a manner the director believes to be in the best interests of the corporation and its shareholders, and are subject to the same standard of care that an ordinarily prudent person in a like position would use under similar circumstances, including the requirement of reasonable inquiry [Corp. Code §§ 309(a) (commercial corporations), 5231 (public benefit corporation), 7231 (mutual benefit corporation); see also Corp. Code §§ 5239, 7231.5, 9247 (liability of volunteer directors and volunteer executive officers)].

[2] Standards for Investment of Corporate Assets

Standards of investment applicable to directors of public benefit corporations are set forth in Corp. Code § 5240, and essentially require the directors to avoid speculation, and to act in accordance with the general good faith standard embodied in Corp. Code § 5231 [Corp. Code § 5240(b)(1), (d)]. The directors must also comply with investment standards imposed by the articles, bylaws, or express terms of an instrument or agreement pursuant to which the assets were contributed to the corporation [Corp. Code § 5240(b)(2)]. The directors are insulated from liability for making investments authorized or required in an instrument or agreement pursuant to which the assets were contributed to the corporation [Corp. Code § 5240(c)]. In proper cases a court may direct or permit the corporation to deviate from the terms of a trust or agreement regarding the making or retention of investments. Notice of such an action or proceeding must be given to the Attorney General, who has the right to intervene [Corp. Code § 5241].

Nothing in Corp. Code § 5240 is to be construed to preclude application of the Uniform Prudent Management of Institutional Funds Act [Prob. Code § 18501 et seq.], if it would otherwise be applicable, but nothing in the Uniform

Management of Institutional Funds Act alters the status of governing boards, or the duties and liabilities of directors under the Nonprofit Public Benefit Corporation Law (Corp. Code § 5110 et seq.) [Corp. Code § 5240(e)].

Directors of mutual benefit corporations are not under any specific statutory standard for the investment of assets beyond the general standard of care set forth in Corp. Code §§ 7230-7238.

[3] Duties and Obligations of Private Trustees Not Applicable

The provisions in Prob. Code §§ 16000-16082, which govern the duties and obligations of a trustee of a private trust, are not applicable to the directors of nonprofit public benefit and mutual benefit corporations [Corp. Code §§ 5230, 7230]. Some of the concepts embodied in these provisions are, however, reflected in the Nonprofit Corporation Law applicable to public benefit corporations and to mutual benefit corporations holding charitable assets in trust. For example, the proscriptions against self-dealing by directors reflect the proscriptions against the trustee of a private trust from profiting from his or her position [compare Corp. Code §§ 5233, 7238 with Prob. Code §§ 16002, 16004].

In the case of a mutual benefit corporation that not only owns the assets of a charitable trust but is named as the trustee, the provisions governing trustees of private trusts may be applicable to the corporation, although not to its directors [see generally Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Ch. 19, Nonprofit Corporations and Organizations (Matthew Bender)].

An action to enjoin, correct, obtain damages for, or otherwise remedy a breach of charitable trust held by a public benefit or mutual benefit corporation may be brought by any of the following [see Corp. Code §§ 5142(a), 7142(a)]:

- The corporation, or a member in the name of the corporation pursuant to Corp. Code § 5710 (derivative actions by members of public benefit corporations) or 7710 (derivative actions by members of mutual benefitcorporations).

- An officer of the corporation.

- A director of the corporation.

- A person with a reversionary, contractual, or property interest in the assets subject to the charitable trust.

- The Attorney General, or any person granted relator status by the Attorney General.

If the action seeks to have the court rescind or enjoin the performance of a contract entered into in breach of the charitable trust, all of the parties to the contract must be parties to the action [Corp. Code §§ 5142(b)(1), 7142(b)(1)]. The contract will not be rescinded or its performance enjoined if a party to the contract has, in good faith and without actual notice of the trust restriction, parted with value under the contract or in reliance on it [Corp. Code §§ 5142(b)(2), 7142(b)(2)].

§ 560.315 Actions Challenging Self-Dealing Transactions

[1] In General

If a director of a nonprofit public benefit corporation has a material financial interest in a transaction to which the corporation is a party and that does not meet the requirements of Corp. Code § 5233(d), an action may be brought for the remedies provided in Corp. Code § 5233(h), except for transactions excepted by Corp. Code § 5233(b) [Corp. Code § 5233(a), (c); for discussion of remedies, see Comments to see § 560.671]. Corp. Code § 5233 also applies to directors of nonprofit mutual benefit corporations holding assets in trust [see Corp. Code § 7238].

The Attorney General or, if the Attorney General is joined as an indispensible party, any of the following may bring the action [Corp. Code § 5233(c)]:

- The corporation or a member asserting the right in the name of the corporation in a derivative action under Corp. Code § 5710.
- A director of the corporation.
- An officer of the corporation.
- Any person granted relator status by the Attorney General.

[2] Excepted Transactions

Corp. Code § 5233 does not apply to any of the following [Corp. Code § 5233(b)]:

- An action of the board fixing the compensation of a director or officer of the corporation.
- A transaction that is part of a public or charitable program of the corporation, if it has been authorized by the corporation in good faith and without unjustified favoritism, and results in a benefit to one or more directors or their families because they are in the class of persons intended to be benefited by the public or charitable program.

- A transaction of which the interested director has no knowledge, and that does not exceed the lesser of 1 percent of the corporation's gross receipts for the preceding fiscal year or $100,000.

[3] Effect of Prior Approval of Transaction

In an action under Corp. Code § 5233(c), the remedies specified in Corp. Code § 5233(h) shall not be granted if prior approval has been granted by a majority of the directors of the board pursuant to the standards set forth in Corp. Code § 5233(d)(2), or by a committee or person authorized by the board under the circumstances set forth in Corp. Code § 5233(d)(3). In addition, relief will not be granted if the Attorney General, or the court in an action in which the Attorney General is an indispensable party, has approved the transaction before or after it was consummated [Corp. Code § 5233(d)(1)]. For a form raising prior approval by the board or a committee of the board as an affirmative defense, see § 560.543.

Generally, a derivative action is only appropriate if the corporation unjustifiably fails to enforce a cause of action it has against a third party [see Jones v. H.F. Ahmanson & Co. (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 93, 106, 107, 81 Cal. Rptr. 592, 460 P.2d 464] . For a complaint for breach of trust brought as a derivative action, see § 560.670.

The derivative action provisions of the Nonprofit Public Benefit and Mutual Benefit Corporation Laws are similar to those set forth in the General Corporation Law (see Corp. Code § 800]. For a discussion and forms for derivative actions under the General Corporation Law, see Ch. 168, Corporations: Derivative Actions .

§ 560.318 Limited Immunity of Volunteer Director or Officer of Nonprofit Corporations

If the charitable trust is organized as a nonprofit corporation, a volunteer office or director may be protected from liability for any act or omission done within the scope of his or her duties as a board member or officer based on one of several statutes [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.15; Corp. Code §§ 5047.5, 5239, 7231.5, 9247], as discussed below.

If (1) the charitable trust is administered by a nonprofit corporation, whether organized under Corp. Code § 5110 et seq. (nonprofit public benefit corporations), 7110 et seq. (nonprofit mutual benefit corporations), or 9110 et seq. (nonprofit religious corporations)), (2) the corporation bases its federal income tax exemption on I.R.C. § 501(c)(3) or 501(c)(6), (3) the claim against the director or officer may also be made directly against the corporation, and (4) the corporation maintains a general liability insurance policy in the requisite amounts, Corp. Code § 5047.5 governs [see Ch. 388, Nonprofit Corporations].

Regardless of the basis of the corporation's federal income tax exemption, no monetary damages may be obtained from a volunteer officer or director of a public benefit corporation if the corporation has insurance to cover the claim or made a good faith attempt to obtain insurance [see Corp. Code § 5239, discussed in Ch. 388, Nonprofit Corporations]. A similar provision, Corp. Code § 9247, applies if the charitable trust is organized as a nonprofit religious corporation. This provision is discussed in Ch. 110, Churches and Religious Organizations .

If the charitable trust is organized as a trade, professional, or labor organization incorporated pursuant to the nonprofit mutual benefit corporation law (Corp. Code § 7110 et seq.) exclusively for fraternal, educational, or other nonprofit purposes, and bases its federal income tax exemption on I.R.C. § 501(c), immunity is granted to volunteer officers and directors by Corp. Code § 7231.5, regardless of insurance coverage. For discussion of Corp. Code § 7231.5, see Ch. 388, Nonprofit Corporations .

Finally, if the charitable trust is administered by a nonprofit corporation, whether organized under Corp. Code § 5110 et seq. (nonprofit public benefit corporations), 7110 et seq. (nonprofit mutual benefit corporations), or 9110 et seq. (nonprofit religious corporations), and the corporation bases its federal income tax exemption on I.R.C. § 501(c)(1)

(except a credit union), 501(c)(4) (civic league), 501(c)(7) (club, recreational association), or 501(c)(19) (veterans organization), Code Civ. Proc. § 425.15 provides immunity to the volunteer officer or director and requires the person intending to sue the volunteer officer or director to first obtain leave from the court to do so. For discussion and a related form, see Ch. 388, Nonprofit Corporations .

§ 560.319 Dissolution and Winding Up

[1] Involuntary Proceedings

The law governing involuntary dissolution and winding up of nonprofit public benefit and mutual benefit corporations is set forth in Corp. Code §§ 6510-6519 and 8510-8519, respectively.

Interested parties [defined in Corp. Code §§ 6510(a) and 8510(a)] may bring an action for involuntary dissolution on several grounds, including inactivity, factionalization of the board or membership, fraud or mismanagement, mandatory termination under the provisions of the articles of incorporation, and, in the case of a public benefit corporation, failure to carry out the corporation's public or charitable purposes [see Corp. Code §§ 6510(b), 8510(b)]. In addition, the Attorney General, on his or her own information or on the complaint of a private party, may bring an action for dissolution for violations of laws governing charitable organizations or corporations generally, for failure to pay taxes, or for other fraudulent or unlawful activities [see Corp. Code §§ 6511(a), 8511(a)].

In an action under Corp. Code § 6510(a), the Attorney General is an indispensible party, and creditors and the authorized number of members may intervene [Corp. Code § 6510(c), (d); see Corp. Code § 5036 (authorized number defined)]. In an action under Corp. Code § 8510(a), any member or creditor may intervene, and when the mutual benefit trust holds assets in charitable trust, a copy of the complaint must be served on the Attorney General, who may intervene [Corp. Code § 8510(c), (e)].

For further discussion of involuntary dissolution, see Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Law, Ch. 19, Nonprofit Corporations and Organizations, § 415.03 (Matthew Bender).

[2] Voluntary Proceedings

The law governing voluntary dissolution and winding up of nonprofit public benefit and mutual benefit corporations is set forth in Corp. Code §§ 6610-6617 and 8610-8617, respectively.

A corporation may elect voluntarily to wind up and dissolve by approval of a majority of all members (defined in Corp. Code § 5033); or by approval of the board and membership (defined in Corp. Code § 5034) [see Corp. Code §§ 6610(a), 8610(a)].

Board approval alone is sufficient to elect voluntary dissolution, if thecorporation has been adjudicated a bankrupt, has disposed of all assets and been inactive for five years, has no members, or is required to dissolve pursuant to a provision in its articles of incorporation calling for a subordinate corporation to dissolve when its charter is surrendered to, taken away, or revoked by the head organization granting it [Corp. Code §§ 6610(b), 8610(b); see Corp. Code §§ 5132(a)(2)(A), 7132(a)(4)(A)]. For discussion of the procedure for voluntary dissolution, see Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Law, Ch. 19, Nonprofit Corporations and Organizations, § 415.02 (Matthew Bender).

When a corporation is in the process of voluntarily winding up, the corporation, the authorized number of members defined in Corp. Code § 5036, the Attorney General, or three or more creditors may petition the superior court to take jurisdiction over the proceeding [Corp. Code §§ 6614, 8614; see § 560.673]. The court will take jurisdiction if it appears necessary to protect any parties in interest, or in the case of a public benefit corporation, to protect the purposes served by the corporation, or in the case of a mutual benefit corporation holding charitable assets in trust, to protect the assets. Once the court assumes jurisdiction over voluntary dissolution proceedings, Corp. Code §§ 6512-6519 or 8512-8519, governing court procedures in proceedings for involuntary dissolution, are applicable [Corp. Code §§ 6614, 8614].

Court supervision over the winding up process of a public benefit corporation, or a mutual benefit corporation holding assets in charitable trust, is particularly appropriate when the assets of a charitable trust must be transferred to another organization [see, e.g., In re Veterans' Industries, Inc. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 902, 88 Cal. Rptr. 303 (application of cy pres doctrine in disposing of assets of charitable corporation under petition for court supervision over voluntary winding up proceedings)].

[3] Distribution of Assets

After determining that all known debts and liabilities of the corporation have been paid or adequately provided for, all the assets of a public benefit corporation, and all the assets held in charitable trust by a mutual benefit corporation, must be distributed in conformity with the corporation's articles or bylaws, subject to compliance with the provisions of any trust under which the assets are held [Corp. Code §§ 6716(a), 8716(a)].

The disposition must be made by decree of the superior court in proceedings to which the Attorney General is a party. The decree must be made on the petition of the Attorney General or, on 30 days notice to the Attorney General, by any person concerned in the dissolution [Corp. Code §§ 6716(b), 8716(b)]. The disposition may be made without the decree, subject to the rights of persons concerned in the dissolution, if the Attorney General makes a written waiver of objections to the disposition [Corp. Code §§ 6716(c), 8716(c)].

D. Totten Trusts

49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.340

§ 560.340 Governing Statutes

The definition of a Totten trust, also known as a tentative trust, is governed by Prob. Code § 80. The creation and implementation of Totten trust accounts is governed by the Multiple-Party Accounts Law (Prob. Code §§ 5100-5407) and other provisions applicable generally to deposit accounts, such as Fin. Code §§ 6850-6855 and Fin. Code §§ 952, 953 [see Ch. 95, Banks, Deposits, and Checks].

The Multiple-Party Accounts Law applies to accounts in existence on July 1, 1990, and accounts established thereafter [Stats. 1989, ch. 397, § 41]. "Account" within the meaning of that law means a contract of deposit of funds between a depositor and a financial institution, and includes a checking account, savings account, certificate of deposit, share account, and other like arrangement [Prob. Code § 5122(a)]. Joint accounts, "P.O.D. accounts," and Totten trust accounts are "multiple-party accounts" within the meaning of the California Multiple-Party Accounts Law [Prob. Code § 5132]. Most business and true fiduciary accounts, for example, regular fiduciary or trust accounts maintained in connection with relationships established other than by the deposit agreement and accounts for the estate of a ward, conservatee, or decedent, are excluded from the coverage of the Multiple-Party Accounts Law [see Prob. Code § 5122(b) (also excluding accounts of unincorporated associations or charitable or civic organizations)].

The provisions of the Multiple-Party Accounts Law that apply to the payment of a Totten trust apply to an account in the name of one or more parties as trustee for one or more other persons if the financial institution has no other or further notice in writing that the account is not a Totten trust account as defined in Prob. Code § 80 [Prob. Code § 5406].

Accounts that are governed by the Multiple-Party Accounts Law may be used with a special power of attorney authorized by Prob. Code § 5204 [see Ch. 95, Banks, Deposits, and Checks].

Prob. Code §§ 5301-5307, concerning beneficial ownership as between parties, or as between parties and P.O.D. payees or beneficiaries of multiple-party accounts, govern controversies between those persons and their creditors and other successors, but have no bearing on the power of withdrawal of those persons as determined by the terms of account contracts [Prob. Code § 5201(a)].

Prob. Code §§ 5401-5407 govern the liability of financial institutions who make payments pursuant to those provisions and are discussed in more detail in Ch. 95, Banks, Deposits, and Checks [Prob. Code § 5201(b)].

A financial institution has no duty to inform (1) a depositor holding an account on July 1, 1990, (2) a beneficiary named in a Totten trust account on July 1, 1990, (3) a P.O.D. payee designated on a P.O.D. account on July 1, 1990, or (4) an agent designated on an agency account on July 1, 1990 of the enactment of the revised Multiple Party Accounts as effective July 1, 1990; and no liability may be imposed on a financial institution for failing to do so [Stats. 1989, ch. 397, § 40 as amended by Stats. 1990, ch. 324, § 3].

§ 560.341 Definitions

[1] "Totten Trust Account"

A "Totten trust account" is an account in the name of one or more parties as trustee for one or more beneficiaries when the relationship is established by the form of the account and the deposit agreement with the financial institution and there is no subject of the trust other than the sums on deposit in the account. It is not essential that payment to the beneficiary be mentioned in the deposit agreement [Prob. Code § 80]. A Totten trust account does not include (1) a regular trust account under a testamentary trust or a trust agreement that has significance apart from the account, or (2) a fiduciary account arising from a fiduciary relation such as attorney-client [Prob. Code § 80].

A person may create a tentative trust, or Totten trust account, by depositing money as trustee for another [Brucks v. Home Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n. (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 845, 850, 228 P.2d 545 . A Totten trust account is not in fact a trust, but is rather a recognized exception to the law of testamentary disposition in that it obviates the need to comply with statutory elements of executing a will [see Prob. Code § 5304; Estate of Collins (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 928, 932, 149 Cal. Rptr. 65] . The trust is tentative in that it remains revocable until the depositor dies or unequivocally creates an irrevocable trust, for example, by delivering the pass book to the beneficiary [Brucks v. Home Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n. (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 845, 850, 228 P.2d 545 ; Kuck v. Raftery (1931) 117 Cal. App. 755, 758-760, 4 P.2d 552] . Giving a power of attorney to a third person with instructions to with draw the sums on deposit evidences sufficient intent to revoke a tentative or Totten trust, even if the named beneficiary was able to frustrate the withdrawal [Roberts v. Goetz (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 364, 368-369, 85 Cal. Rptr. 84] .

The statutory provisions and the term Totten trust derive from the case of In re Totten (1904) 179 N.Y. 112, 71 N.E. 748 , which defined a Totten trust as an account opened by a depositor in his or her own name as trustee for another person, but reserving the power to withdraw the funds during his or her lifetime. If the depositor has not revoked the trust by then, on his or her death any balance left in the account is payable to the beneficiary [Estate of Fisher (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 418, 424, 244 Cal. Rptr. 5] . Like any other trust, a Totten trust requires a trustor, a trustee (in a Totten trust they are usually the same person), a trust res, a trust beneficiary, and a trust intent [Estate of Fisher (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 418, 424-425, 244 Cal. Rptr. 5 (decided under prior law, holding that person who claims to be cotrustee, but who did not sign signature card, cannot use account title as evidence of his or her intent to create trust)].

For a form to establish and enforce a Totten trust account after the death of the trustee, see § 560.690.

[2] "Beneficiary" and "Party"

A "beneficiary" means a person named in a Totten trust account as one for whom a party to the account is named as trustee [Prob. Code § 5126].

"Party" means a person who, by the terms of the account, has a present right, subject to request, to payment from a multiple-party account other than as an agent [Prob. Code § 5136(a)] A beneficiary of a Totten trust account is a party to an account, by reason of being a beneficiary, only after the account becomes payable to that beneficiary by reason of surviving all persons named as trustees [Prob. Code § 5136(c)].

49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.342

§ 560.342 Ownership While All Parties Are Living

During the lifetime of all parties, a Totten trust account belongs to the parties in proportion to the net contributions by each to the sums on deposit, unless there is clear and convincing evidence of a different intent [Prob. Code § 5301(a); see Prob. Code § 5150 (sums on deposit defined)]. The net contribution of a party to an account as of any given time is the sum of all of the following [Prob. Code § 5134(a)]:

- All deposits to the account made by or for the party, less all withdrawals made by or for the party that have not been paid to or applied to the use of any other party;

- A pro rata share of any interest or dividends earned, whether or not included in the current balance; and

- Any proceeds of deposit life insurance added to the account by reason of the death of the party whose net contribution is in question.

In the absence of proof otherwise, only parties who have a present right of withdrawal are considered as having a net contribution [Prob. Code § 5134(b)(1)], and the net contribution of each of the parties having a present right of withdrawal is deemed to be an equal amount [Prob. Code § 5134(b)(2)]. This definition is for use in determining ownership interests in an account as between the parties to an account and not as between the parties and the financial institution [Prob. Code § 5134(c)(2)].

Notwithstanding Fam. Code §§ 2581 and 2640, if parties to an account are married to each other, whether or not they are so described in the deposit agreement, their net contribution to the account is presumed to be and remain their community property [Prob. Code § 5305(a); see also Ch. 95, Banks, Deposits, and Checks].

§ 560.343 Changes in Account Terms

During the lifetime of a party, the terms of the account may be changed as provided in Prob. Code § 5303(b) to eliminate or add rights of survivorship. Withdrawal of funds from the account by a party with a present right of withdrawal during the lifetime of a party also eliminates rights of survivorship on the death of that party with respect to the funds withdrawn [Prob. Code § 5303(c)].

Once established, the terms of a multiple party account may be changed only by any of the following methods [Prob. Code § 5303(b)]:

- Closing the account and reopening it under different terms;

- Presenting to the financial institution a modification agreement that is signed by all parties with a present right of withdrawal (if the financial institution has a form for this purpose, it may require use of the form);

- If the provisions of the terms of the account or deposit agreement provide a method of modification of the terms of the account, complying with those provisions; or

- As provided in Prob. Code § 5405(c), discussed in § 560.345[6].

Unless the Totten trust account is described as a community property account, a beneficiary designation in a Totten trust account may not be changed by will [Prob. Code § 5305(c); see Prob. Code § 5307 (community property account)].

If the Totten Trust account has joint trustees who have rights of survivorship with respect to each others interests, a party who has a unilateral right of withdrawal can eliminate survivorship rights by closing out the account having survivorship rights and opening a new account without survivorship rights [see Law Rev. Comm. Comment to Prob. Code § 5303]. Prob. Code § 5303 permits a decedent unilaterally to sever joint tenancy accounts if the decedent had the unilateral right of withdrawal from those accounts. Withdrawal of the funds from the accounts will not, however, change the other rights of the parties to the moneys withdrawn, for instance the rights accruing pursuant to Prob. Code §§ 5301 and 5305 [see Law Rev. Comm. Comment to Prob. Code § 5303].

49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.344

§ 560.344 Ownership After Death of Party

The provisions of Prob. Code § 5302 regarding rights of survivorship are determined by the form of the account at the death of a party [Prob. Code § 5303(a)]. A beneficiary designation in a Totten trust account cannot be changed by will [Prob. Code § 5302(e)]. Prob. Code § 5302(e) was intended to strengthen the position of Totten trust beneficiaries as against heirs of the depositor [Estate of Fisher (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 418, 429, 244 Cal. Rptr. 5] .

A separate property Totten trust account is not part of the decedent/trustee's estate. Thus, the amount of such an account is not included for purposes of calculating an omitted spouse's share of the estate [Estate of Allen (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 1762, 1767-1771, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 352 (decided under former Prob. Code § 6560(c); now see Prob. Code § 21610(c); compare Prob. Code §§ 5305(b), 5307 (surviving spouse may recover his or her interest in community funds in preference to beneficiary)].

On the death of one of two or more trustees to a Totten trust account, sums remaining on deposit belong to the surviving party or parties, not the estate of the decedent, unless there is clear and convincing evidence of a different intent. If there are two or more surviving parties, their respective ownerships during lifetime are in proportion to their previous ownership interests un der Prob. Code § 5301, augmented by an equal share for each survivor of any interest the decedent may have owned in the account immediately before the decedent's death. The right of survivorship continues between the surviving parties [Prob. Code § 5302(a), (c)(1); see Prob. Code § 5130 ("joint account" as one which is payable on request to one or more of two or more parties whether or not mention is made of any right of survivorship)].

On the death of the sole or surviving trustee of a Totten trust account, any sums remaining on deposit belong to the person or persons named as beneficiaries, if surviving, or to the survivor of them if one or more die before the trustee, unless there is clear and convincing evidence of a different intent [Prob. Code § 5302(c)(2)(A)]. If two or more beneficiaries survive, any sums remaining on deposit belong to them in equal and undivided shares unless the terms of the account or deposit agreement expressly provide for different shares [Prob. Code § 5302(c)(2)(B)]. If two or more beneficiaries survive, there is no right of survivorship in event of death of any beneficiary thereafter unless the terms of the account or deposit agreement expressly provide for survivorship between them [Prob. Code § 5302(c)(2)(C)].

[1] In General

Financial institutions rights and duties are discussed in more detail in Ch. 95, Banks, Deposits, and Checks . In general, the financial institution at which the account is maintained must honor withdrawal requests that are made in accor dance with the terms of the account agreement and may do so without regard to whether any other party is incapacitated or deceased at the time the payment is demanded; but payment may not be made to the personal representative or heirs of a deceased party unless proof of death is presented to the financial institution showing that the decedent was the last surviving party or unless there is no right of survivorship under Prob. Code § 5302 [Prob. Code §§ 5401(b), 5402]. Proof of death includes an original, attested, or certified copy of a death certificate, a record or report that is prima facie evidence of death under Health & Safety Code § 103550, Evid. Code §§ 1530-1532, or another California statute [Prob. Code § 5144].

The financial institution has no obligation to inquire regarding the source of funds received for deposit to a multiple-party account or the proposed application of funds withdrawn [Prob. Code § 5401(c)(1)]. A financial institution is not required to determine any party's net contribution or to limit withdrawals based on a party's net contribution [Prob. Code § 5401(c)(2), (3)]. Unless the financial institution has received a court order restraining payment, payment made pursuant to Prob. Code § 5401 discharges the financial institution from all claims for amounts so paid whether or not the payment is consistent with the beneficial ownership of the account as between parties, P.O.D. payees, or beneficiaries, or their successors [Prob. Code § 5405(a), (b)].

[2] Payments to Trustee

The financial institution may pay any sums in a Totten trust account, on request and according to its terms, to any trustee [Prob. Code § 5404].

[3] Payment to Heirs or Personal Representative of Deceased Trustee

Unless the financial institution has received written notice that the beneficiary has a vested interest not dependent on surviving the trustee, payment may be made to the personal representative or heirs of a deceased trustee if proof of death is presented to the financial institution showing that the deceased trustee was the survivor of all other persons named on the account either as trustee or beneficiary [Prob. Code § 5404; see Prob. Code § 5144 (defining proof of death)].

[4] Payments to Beneficiary

A Totten trust account may be paid to a beneficiary or beneficiaries or the personal representative or heirs of a beneficiary or beneficiaries if proof of death is presented to the financial institution showing that the beneficiary or beneficiaries survived all persons named as trustees [Prob. Code § 5404; see Prob. Code § 5144 (defining proof of death)].

[5] Levies and Setoffs

All funds in an account, unless otherwise agreed in writing by the financial institution and the parties to the account, remain subject to liens, security interests, rights of setoff, and charges, notwithstanding the determination or allocation of net contributions with respect to the parties [Prob. Code § 5401(d)].

[6] Notice From Party Restraining Payment of Account

A party to an account may give written notice to the financial institution, at the branch or office at which the account is carried, not to permit withdrawals in accordance with the terms of the account, other than a checking account, share draft account, or other similar third-party payment instrument, except with the signatures of more than one of the parties during their lifetimes or of more than one of the survivors after the death of any one of the parties. Unless the notice is withdrawn by a subsequent writing, after receipt of such a notice, the financial institution may only pay the sums on deposit in accordance with the written instructions pending determination of the rights of the parties or their successors [Prob. Code § 5405(c); see Prob. Code § 5146 (absent account terms to contrary, receipt of notice as receipt at branch or office where account is carried)]. No liability attaches to the financial institution for complying with the terms of any written notice provided pursuant to Prob. Code § 5405(c) [Prob. Code § 5405(c); see also Prob. Code § 5405(b) (court order restraining payments by financial institution, discussed in Ch. 95, Banks, Deposits, and Checks)].

[1] Trusts

[a] In General

When two individuals entered into a real estate partnership acting in their capacity as trustee of their family trust, the partners were the individuals and not the trust; the trust was not a separate entity from its trustee. Presta v. Tepper (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 909, 918-919, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 12

Trust for illegal purpose unenforceable in California. In re Marriage of Dick (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 144, 161-162, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 743

Trust created by husband for purpose of concealing marital assets from wife illegal and thus unenforceable. In re Marriage of Dick (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 144, 161-162, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 743

Interpretation of declaration of trust presents question of law unless interpretation turns on competence or credibility of extrinsic evidence; accordingly, reviewing court not bound by lower court's interpretation, but required to construe declaration independently. Poag v. Winston (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1161, 1173, 241 Cal. Rptr. 330

Attempted residuary provision in will leaving property to named person for distribution according to settlor's wishes, absent explanatory provision, is invalid for uncertainty. Estate of Feldman (1947) 78 Cal. App. 2d 778, 780, 787-790, 178 P.2d 498

Express trust may be properly created for any purpose for which persons may lawfully contract; trust to convey property to another as trustee for benefit of settlor is valid. Reiss v. Reiss (1941) 45 Cal. App. 2d 740, 746, 114 P.2d 718

Trust as device to sell real property and dispose of the proceeds of the sale. Craven v. Dominguez Estate Co (1925) 72 Cal. App. 713, 717, 237 P. 821

[b] Beneficiaries

Contingent beneficiaries described as lawful issue of other beneficiaries include children adopted when they were minors. Wells Fargo Bank v. Huse (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 927, 933-934, 129 Cal. Rptr. 522

Members of definite class of persons are able to be beneficiaries of trust, but identity of all individuals comprising membership of class must be ascertainable in order to satisfy requirement of definiteness. Reagh v. Kelley (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 1082, 1092, 1097-1098, 89 Cal. Rptr. 425

Beneficiary of testamentary trust providing stipend until remarriage was unable to be reinstated as beneficiary after annulment of subsequent marriage. Stoner v. Nethercutt (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 667, 669-672, 87 Cal. Rptr. 659

[c] Creation

Whether trust has been established is determined by law of state that is situs of trust fund. In re California Trade Technical Schools, Inc. (9th Cir. 1991) 923 F.2d 641, 646 (express trust of student loan funds paid by government to bankrupt, as trustee for student beneficiaries)

Testamentary trust comes into existence and legal title to property vests in trustee at death of testator. Title Ins. & Trust Co. v. Duffill (1923) 191 Cal. 629, 647, 218 P. 14

Declaration by settlors that they hold property in trust for another is sufficient to transfer real property to a trust; it is not necessary to record deed from real property owners to trust or trustees, or to record trust. Estate of Powell (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1434, 1443, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 501

Intention to create trust in real property is subject to proof by parol evidence. Jose v. Pacific Tile & Porcelain Co. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 141, 144, 58 Cal. Rptr. 880

Requirement that trust property be delivered is satisfied by actual or symbolic delivery; for example, delivery of written instrument such as stock certificate may possibly constitute delivery of underlying property. Lawson v. Lowengart (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 98, 109-110, 59 Cal. Rptr. 186

[d] Vesting

Period within which interest appointed under special power of appointment must vest is measured from time power created; perpetuities issue under Civ. Code § 715.2 properly raised for first time on appeal. United California Bank v. Bottler (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 610, 616-617, 94 Cal. Rptr. 227

[2] No Contest Clauses

CAUTION:

Effective Jan. 1, 2010, revisions to Prob. Code § 21310-21315 significantly changed the law governing enforcement of no contest clauses [Prob. Code § 21315]. Cases decided under pre-2010 law should be reviewed carefully to determine their applicability under the current law. For discussion of the enforcement of no contest clauses under both the current Probate Code provisions and the common law, see § 560.16.

Prob. Code § 15409 modification petition to delete a special needs provision because the settler misunderstood the circumstances did not violate a no contest clause as a matter of public policy, and the safe harbor petition was properly granted. Balian v. Balian (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th, 1505, 1513, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 470

Challenge to surviving spouse's mental capacity to transfer assets and appoint a successor trustee did not violate a no-contest clause in family trust since trustee did not propose to void, nullify, or set aside trust or any of its provisions, or to change provisions that were clearly and unambiguously expressed. Johnson v. Greenelsh (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 598, 599 Cal. Rptr. 3d 622, 217 P.3d 1194

When testators instructed that beneficiary's debt to them be offset against beneficiary's distribution, beneficiary's assertion that his debt was not enforceable was indirect contest that violated no contest provision. Cook v. Cook (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1436, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 913

Petition by contingent remainder beneficiaries, seeking information with regard to how trustee was spending trust funds, which was necessary to enable beneficiaries to enforce their rights under the trust pursuant to Prob. Code § 16060, was not a contest within the meaning of trust's no contest clause. Salter v. Lerner (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1184, 1189, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1

Beneficiary's challenge to validity of handwritten notations made by settlor on trust after it was executed, which qualified as an instrument other than the instrument containing the no contest clause, was determined not to be a contest under Prob. Code § 21305(a)(3). Cory v. Toscano (2009) 174, Cal. App. 4th 1039, 1046, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 841

Proposed petition challenging exercise of a fiduciary power by trustee did not constitute a contest as a matter of public policy. Bradley v. Gilbert (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 1058, 1071, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 680

Language in trust documents establishing three methods of exercising a limited power of appointment was ambiguous, allowing reformation in accordance with grantors' intent not to violate trust's no contest clause. Giammarrusco v. Simon (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 1586, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 50

Proposed challenge to trust amendment did no violate trust's no contest clause, because no contest clause in trust did not specifically provide that it applied to trust amendments. Townsend v. Townsend (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 389, 402-403, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 760

Beneficiary who filed petition outside of safe harbor provisions of Prob. Code § 21320, and whose clear purpose was to defeat surviving settlor's testamentary and donative intent, violated no contest clause. Schwartz v. Schwartz (2008) Cal. App. 4th 733, 745, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 387

Proposed challenge to two trust amendments did not trigger no-contest clause because no-contest clause in trust did not specifically state that it applied to trust amendments and the amendments did not contain a no contest clause as required by Prob. Code § 21305(a)(3). Perrin v. Lee (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 1239, 1244, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 885

Minor's claims, brought under Prob. Code § 21320 safe harbor provision through a guardian ad litem, did not violate a trust's no contest clause since minor's written consent to appointment of mother as guardian ad litem does not constitute voluntary participation in trust contest. Safai v. Safai (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 233, 244, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 759

After appellate decision that settlor's daughter had triggered no contest clause in irrevocable trust, trial court acted within its authority when it reconsidered on its own motion its earlier grant of Prob. Code § 21320 relief and held that daughter lacked standing because she was no longer a beneficiary; and since a related revocable trust contained same no contest language as the irrevocable trust, trial court did not err in ruling that daughter lacked standing as to both trusts. Montegani v. Johnson (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1231, 1239, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 621

No contest clause in will was not incorporated by reference into testamentary trust when decrees of distribution contained some language that referred to the will, but clear statement in distributing clause of trust, stating that trust was completely set forth in the decree, established that no trust provisions were omitted and there was no room to supplement trust provisions by incorporating provisions contained in will. Meyer v. Meyer (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 983, 998, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 546

Beneficiary's filing of second proposed petition did not violate trust's no contest clause because it sought to impose liability on trustees for alleged breach of fiduciary duty for improper disbursements and did not seek an accounting or seek to void, nullify, or set aside portion of trust limiting liability of successor trustees; doctrine of conclusiveness did not apply as it applies to filed pleadings but has no application to pleadings proposed to be filed under Prob. Code § 21320. Betts v. City Nat'l Bank (2007) 156 Cal App 4th 222, 67 Cal Rptr 3d 152, 162

No contest clause in trust instrument which applied to any attempt to "impair" the trust extended to trust beneficiary's adjustment petition under California Uniform Principal and Income Act to reallocate principal and income, when reallocation would have resulted in more income to beneficiary than allowed by trust and invasion of trust principal reserved to other beneficiaries. McKenzie v. Vanderpoel (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1442, 1454, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 129

No contest clause in testamentary trust upheld as valid although it forced settlor's former wife and their children to choose between enforcing their rights under an existing martial dissolution judgment by filing creditor's claims, or relinquishing those rights and taking gifts provided for them in settlor's trust. Colburn v. Northern Trust Co. (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 439, 447, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 828

No contest clause in testamentary trust providing that contest by one beneficiary would avoid devises to other noncontesting beneficiaries' bequests along with the contestant's does not, in itself, violate public policy. Tunstall v. Wells (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 554, 558 ; 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 468

When trust amendment was separate from instrument containing no contest clause, within meaning of Prob. Code § 21305(a)(3), because it did not contain a no contest clause, it could be challenged without violating no contest clause of instrument that did contain such a clause, because such an action was not expressly identified as a violation. Estate of Rossi (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 1325, 1338, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 244

Petition proposed by trust beneficiaries to remove trustees for malfeasance violated trust's no contest clause, despite the exception afforded by Prob. Code § 21305(b) for challenges to the exercise of fiduciary power or seeking the removal of a fiduciary, when the trust became irrevocable in December 2000; statutory exceptions only apply to trust instruments that become irrevocable before January 1, 2001. Hermanson v. Hermanson (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 441, 444-446, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 486

No contest clauses in inter vivos trusts must be strictly construed; they are not to be extended beyond what was plainly testator's intent. Scharlin v. Superior Court (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 162, 168-169, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 448

Proposed challenge to validity of amendment to inter vivos trust on ground that amendment was result of duress or undue influence constituted attack on how amendment occurred, not on settlor's power to amend, and therefore did not amount to a "contest" for purposes of no contest clause in trust. Scharlin v. Superior Court (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 162, 169-170, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 448

When settlors created typical living trust arrangement under which trust was divided into two trusts on death of first settlor, petition contesting an amendment that surviving settlor made to Trust A (the survivor's trust) after first settlor's death did not constitute contest of Trust B for purpose of no-contest clause in trust instrument. Scharlin v. Superior Court (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 162, 170, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 448

No contest clause in trust must be strictly construed because clause may work forfeiture. Poag v. Winston (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1161, 1173, 1181, 241 Cal. Rptr. 330

No contest clause not violated by actions that assert no claim to assets of, and pose no threat to, trust; clause not applicable to beneficiary's action to impose personal liability on trustee, among other things. Poag v. Winston (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1161, 1175-1181, 241 Cal. Rptr. 330

Generally, no contest clause in declaration of trust is valid and must be given effect according to settlor's intent as intent appears from terms of trust and surrounding circumstances. Poag v. Winston (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1161, 1173, 241 Cal. Rptr. 330

[3] Restorative Payments to Trust

"Restorative" payments made by trustee of express trust to replace improperly diverted trust funds become part of trust without need for tracing that would arise in constructive trust. In re California Trade Technical Schools, Inc. (9th Cir. 1991) 923 F.2d 641, 646 (applying California law; except that restorative payments made within 90 days of filing bankruptcy did not become part of express trust)

[4] Taking Property Out of Trust

Provision in living trust, stating that title to trust property could be held in any way, necessarily meant that selling trust asset and taking title in name other than that of trust would not, by itself, take property out of trust; ostensible purpose of provision--to make it easy and convenient for trust to hold property--by providing that title could be taken in name of trustors, as distinct from trust itself, and property would still be in trust, necessarily required that there be some affirmative action by trustors beyond merely change in form of title to take property out of trust. Heaps v. Heaps (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 286, 291-292, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 239

49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.381

§ 560.381 Decisions

[1] Accounting

When there has been negligent failure to keep true accounts, or refusal to account, all presumptions are against trustee on settlement. Blackmon v. Hale (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 548, 560, 83 Cal. Rptr. 194, 463 P.2d 418

Trustee under duty to support every item of account; unsupported items properly disallowed. Neel v. Barnard (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 406, 420, 150 P.2d 177

Court has authority to order beneficiaries to pay attorney fees incurred by trustee in completing and defending accounting; trustee's right to indemnification for expenses reasonably incurred in defending accounting is conferred by Prob. Code § 15685. Kasperbauer v. Fairfield (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 785, 795

When settlor of revocable trust was under care and custody of court-appointed conservator, beneficiaries had no right to accounting because trust remained revocable despite settlor's conservatorship. Johnson v. Kotyck (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 83, 88, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 99

Amendment of Prob. Code § 16460 in 1996 was intended to reject holding in Di Grazia v. Anderlini (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1337, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 37 (discussed below) with regard to the content of account required to put a beneficiary on notice; amendment was not intended to change existing law but rather to clarify it by correcting Di Grazia's misinterpretation of the statute; thus 1996 amendment was applicable to claims accruing prior to 1990, and if beneficiaries had the required information at that time, their claims based on breaches that occurred more than three years before they filed their petitions were barred by statute of limitations. Noggle v. Bank of America (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 853, 858, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 829

In case involving 20 separate trusts created by husband wife--two trusts each for each of their 10 siblings--statute of limitations applied separately to each remainder beneficiary's claims vis-a-vis the two trusts in which he or she had a per capita interest, not to all 20 trusts as a whole; each remainder beneficiary's cause of action accrued when he or she had the required knowledge concerning the trusts in which he or she had an interest, and his or her knowledge about the other trusts' assets was legally irrelevant; contention that each reminder beneficiary had to examine the accountings for all of the trusts before it was possible to determine that trustee had failed to invest trust corpus for benefit of remainder beneficiaries rejected. Noggle v. Bank of America (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 853, 860, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 829

Accountings and letters bank provided to the remainder beneficiaries provided more than enough factual information as a matter of law to trigger Prob. Code § 16460 prior to1990. Noggle v. Bank of America (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 853, 860, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 829

Doctrine of res judicata barred claims of remainder beneficiaries based on breaches of duty by trustee that occurred during years 1969 to 1980 in which probate court had approved the annual reports. Noggle v. Bank of America (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 853, 862, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 829

Court may order trustee's accounting to include transactions related to accounts held in joint tenancy by trustee and settlor. Evangelho v. Presoto (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 615, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 146

Mere schedule of sales and expenses, which does not provide other information regarding administration of trust, is not sufficient accounting to start running of three-year statute of limitations for actions against trustee for breach of trust under Prob. Code § 16460. Di Grazia v. Anderlini (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1337, 1346, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 37 ; but see Noggle v. Bank of America (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 853, 858-859, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 829 , above, in which the court held that the 1996 amendment of Prob. Code § 16460 was intended to reject the Di Grazia holding with regard to the content of the account required to put a beneficiary on notice

When beneficiary filed frivolous objections to one of trustee's accounts, court properly ordered beneficiary under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 to pay sanctions in form of reasonable attorney's fees and expenses incurred by trustee in responding to objections. Wells Fargo Bank v. DiLeonardo (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 873, 878-879, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16

Consent to delay of accounting does not waive right to ultimate account. Welsh v. Griffin (1960) 179 Cal. App. 2d 207, 214, 3 Cal. Rptr. 729

[2] Actions and Claims

Surcharge order upheld notwithstanding existence of spendthrift provision, when trust beneficiary was also trustee and committed a breach causing fiduciary harm to the trust. Chatard v. Oveross (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th, 1098, 1114, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 883

Successor trustee acted reasonably and did not have to be represented by counsel when appearing in court to petition to modify and terminate trust, as she was simply fulfilling her duties as trustee, and not engaged in unauthorized practice of law. Finkbeiner v. Gavid (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1417, 1421, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 871

Nonattorney trustee may not represent trust in propria persona in action to protect trust property because in that capacity trustee would be representing interests of beneficiaries and would therefore be engaged in unauthorized practice of law. Ziegler v. Nickel (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 545, 548-549, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 312

[3] Attorney's Fees

Provisions of Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1702, providing that in civil cases a notice of motion for attorney's fees must be filed and served within 60 days of entry of judgment, do not apply to probate court proceedings. Hollaway v.

Edwards (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 94, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 166

Trustee not entitled to attorney's fees in justified removal action. Estate of Miller (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 536, 546-549, 66 Cal. Rptr. 756

Beneficiaries not entitled to recover attorney's fees under theory that fees are damages proximately resulting from trustee's negligence. Estate of Gump (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 111, 118, 180 Cal. Rptr. 219

Beneficiaries not entitled to recover attorney's fees on common fund theory when increase in assets resulting from action did not substantially benefit any other parties. Estate of Gump (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 111, 118, 180 Cal. Rptr. 219

[4] Compensation

If litigation is necessary to preserve trust, trustee is entitled to reimbursement for his or her expenditures from trust; however, if litigation is specifically for trustee's benefit, trustee must bear his or her own costs, and is not entitled to reimbursement. Terry v. Conlan (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 1445, 1461, 1464, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 603

Appellate court affirmed denial of compensation for services and costs arising from negligent and intentional misconduct in administration of lease property, but remanding denial of ordinary fees for services unconnected with administration of lease property that were reasonable and compensable. Estate of Gump (1992) 1 Cal. App. 4th 582, 610-611, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 269

Trial court's refusal to award trustee compensation and attorney's fees in proceeding brought by beneficiary for alleged malfeasance was abuse of discretion when trustee successfully defended against majority of charges. Estate of Cassity (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 569, 574 , 165 Cal. Rtpr. 88

Proper standard regarding reasonableness of compensation of trustee managing corporation is not corporate standard prescribed by Corp. Code § 310, which requires reasonableness only at time transaction authorized; reasonableness of testamentary trustee's compensation is continuing responsibility of trustee throughout entire tenure. Estate of Feraud (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 717, 722-723, 154 Cal. Rptr. 889

When beneficial owners of corporation's stock were also beneficiaries of trusts and trustee was president and chief operating officer of corporation, trustee's compensation was required to be fair and reasonable as to beneficiaries and not as to corporation. Estate of Feraud (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 717, 723, 154 Cal. Rptr. 889

Trustee's compensation was unfair and unreasonable when it was based on gross sales of corporation that trustee managed and stock value rather than on corporation's net profits. Estate of Feraud (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 717, 723, 154 Cal. Rptr. 889

In determining reasonable compensation of testamentary trustee and attorney, trial court properly reduced amounts requested. Estate of Nazro (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 218, 221-223, 93 Cal. Rptr. 116 (interpreting former Prob. Code § 1122, now see Prob. Code § 15681)

Court permitted to increase compensation of testamentary trustee when compensation provided by will would be so unreasonably low that competent trustee would not undertake to administer trust. Estate of Taylor (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 16, 20-22, 85 Cal. Rptr. 474 (interpreting former Prob. Code § 1122, now see Prob. Code § 15681)

[5] Duties

Trustee's duty to report to beneficiaries in Prob. Code § 16061 does not require disclosure of communications protected by attorney-client privilege. Wells Fargo Bank v. Superior Court (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 201, 207, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716, 990 P.2d 591

Duties of testamentary trustee commence on death of testator. Estate of Wellings (1923) 192 Cal. 506, 510, 221 P. 628

If a trustee is liable to beneficiaries for damages resulting from acts and omissions of trustee and attorney, trustee and attorney may be held liable as joint tortfeasors. Gackstetter v. Frawley (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 1257, 1275, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 333

Trustee's failure to strictly comply with notice requirements of Prob. Code § 16061.7(g) does not render notice a nullity, and does not make inapplicable the 120-day statute of limitations for bringing an action to contest the trust. Germino v. Hillyer (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 951, 955-957, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 478

Interest on general pecuniary gift distributable under trust is not payable when trust was created before effective date of prior version of Prob. Code § 16340(b). Remsen v. Lavacot (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 421, 429, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 612

Use of 12-point type is not reasonable equivalent of 10-point boldface type as required in notice of trust becoming irrevocable [Prob. Code § 16061.7(h) (former Prob. Code § 16061.7(g))]; appellants' petition contesting trust was not untimely. Harustak v. Wilkins (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 208, 216-218, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 718

Trust beneficiaries stated cause of action against attorneys for former trustees for active participation in breaches of fiduciary duty by former trustees. Pierce v. Lyman (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1106, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 236

Trustee breached duty to beneficiaries by realizing profit from lending purchase price to purchaser of trust property. Estate of Pitzer (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 979, 991-992, 202 Cal. Rptr. 855

Bank-trustee that places trust funds on deposit with itself at rate of interest less than that possible in a higher-yielding account bears burden of proving that circumstances reasonably known to it at time of investment justified lower interest account. Conservatorship of Pelton (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 496, 502, 183 Cal. Rptr. 188 (interpreting former Civ. Code § 2261, now see Prob. Code § 16225)

Cotrustee who was public accountant has duty to know that incentive compensation of corporate manager of business and trustee of trust that was totally unrelated to net income of corporation was unfair and unreasonable to beneficial owners of corporation's stock. Estate of Feraud (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 717, 724, 154 Cal. Rptr. 889

Trustee's execution of quitclaim deed to son was not inconsistent with terms of trust, and was permissible delegation of duties rather than repudiation of trust. Welsh v. Griffin (1960) 179 Cal. App. 2d 207, 215, 3 Cal. Rptr. 729

Provision in trust empowering trustees to appoint someone in their place if necessary to carry out terms of trust was construed as method for appointment of successor trustee rather than authorization to delegate discretion to agents. Estate of Kessler (1953) 120 Cal. App. 2d 383, 388, 261 P.2d 27

[6] Liability

Transaction that would otherwise constitute wrongful use of trust property held proper when consistent with instructions in main trust instrument. Estate of Thompson (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 613, 616-617, 328 P.2d 1 ; Copley v.

Copley (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 248, 279, 178 Cal. Rptr. 842

Managing officer-director of corporate trustee found individually liable to beneficiary for conversion of trust property for corporation's use when he knew or should have known of conversion. Middlesex Ins. Co. v. Mann (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 558, 572, 177 Cal. Rptr. 495

[7] Measure of Liability

If trustee wrongfully sells trust property, interest is awarded from date of sale, on proceeds of profits from sale; interest is awarded only on money judgment. Redke v. Silvertrust (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 94, 106-107, 98 Cal. Rptr. 293, 490 P.2d 805 , cert. denied, 405 U.S. 1041, 92 S. Ct. 1316, 31 L. Ed. 2d 583 (1972)

In cases involving breach of fiduciary relationship, proof of actual damages is not an important factor in award of exemplary damages. Werschkull v. United California Bank (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 981, 1004, 149 Cal. Rptr. 829 (large exemplary damages award against trustee)

[8] Removal

Removal of trustee is proper whenever ill-feeling, growing out of trustee's behavior, exists between trustees, or between trustee and beneficiaries, and continuance in office would prevent harmonious administration of trust, even in absence of misconduct. May v. May (1896) 167 U.S. 310, 320-321, 17 S. Ct. 824 ; Brown v. Memorial Nat. Home Foundation (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 513, 534, 329 P.2d 118 , cert. denied, 358 U.S. 943, 79 S. Ct. 353, 3 L. Ed. 2d 352 (1959)

When trustee's duties are solely ministerial, and cotrustee exists who has equal power and must concur in all trust matters, removal was not justified on ground of hostility between trustee and beneficiary. McPherson v. Cox (1877) 96 U.S. 404, 419, 24 L. Ed. 746

Trustee held subject to removal for appropriating trust property for personal use, even if trustee mistakenly claimed entitlement to property and subsequently returned it, because purpose of removal is not to penalize past behavior, but to preserve trust property. Moore v. Bowes (1937) 8 Cal. 2d 162, 165

Trustee is unable to purchase or deal with subject of trust, purchase debts due and repay them out of trust estate, or be in position antagonistic to trust. Page v. Naglee (1856) 6 Cal. 241, 245

Probate court has jurisdiction under Prob. Code § 17206 to suspend trustee's powers for perceived breaches of trust; since court has express statutory authority to remove a trustee, court has inherent equitable power to use the less extreme remedy of suspending most of trustee's powers, appoint a separate interim trustee, and order trustee to turn over all trust documents and books to interim trustee. Schwartz v. Labow (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 417, 428, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 838

Long-term care ombudsman for skilled nursing facility remains care custodian even after formal ombudsman relationship with resident has ended, due either to change in ombudsman's facility assignment or fact that resident has left facility when ombudsman, as result of fiduciary relationship with resident, develops personal relationship with resident and thereby acquires personal and financial information regarding resident. Estate of Shinkle (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 990, 993, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 42 ; disapproved in part on other grounds in Bernard v. Foley (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 794, 816, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 248, 139 P.3d 1196

Removal of trustee for conflict of interest is unwarranted when trustee is appointed by settlor who is aware of conflicts of interest inherent in appointment and there is no actual breach of trust. Claypool v. Wilson (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th

646, 676-677 (applied to Legislature's appointment of actuary for PERS trust)

Assuming existence of legally proper ground for removal, evidence of actual past wrongdoing by trustee is not required to justify removal, because purpose of removing trustee is not to inflict penalty for past action, but to preserve trust assets; question in each case is whether circumstances are such that continuance of trustee in office would be detrimental to trust. Getty v. Getty (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 134, 139-140, 252 Cal. Rptr. 342

Trustee's hostility in response to beneficiary's demand for resignation is not ground for removal absent additional showing that administration of trust consequentially suffered. IFS Industries, Inc. v. Stephens (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 740, 754, 205 Cal. Rptr. 915

If settlor has named trustee while fully aware of potential conflict of interest, trustee is not subject to removal on that ground absent demonstrated abuse of power detrimental to trust. Estate of Gilliland (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 515, 528, 140 Cal. Rptr. 795

Charitable trustee may be removed on same grounds as trustee of private trust. Brown v. Memorial Nat. Home Foundation (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 513, 533, 329 P.2d 118 , cert. denied, 358 U.S. 943 (1959)

Concealment, threat, or adverse pressure of any kind is unlawful as long as confidential relation exists, and constitutes grounds for removal. Estate of Vokal (1953) 121 Cal. App. 2d 252, 257, 263 P.2d 64

Trustee who controls company in which trustee holds shares both individually and in trust for beneficiary may be properly removed, because dual relationships conflict. Overell v. Overell (1926) 78 Cal. App. 251, 259, 248 P. 310

[9] Rights

Cotrustee had right under trust instrument to exercise power vested in two co-trustees when other cotrustee was unable to serve and trust instrument provided that on death, resignation, or inability of one cotrustee, remaining cotrustee serves as successor, notwithstanding Prob. Code § 15620 (power vested in two or more trustees may only be exercised by their unanimous action). La Jolla Mesa Vista Improvement Assn. v. La Jolla Mesa Vista Homeowners Assn. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1187, 1197-1198, 269 Cal. Rptr. 825

[10] Successor Trustees

Trustee who requested predecessor to prepare audit is not liable for payment of audit because request was made prior to his succession as trustee and audit was done for benefit of predecessor trustee and not for benefit of trust. Boyle v. Superior Court (1934) 137 Cal. App. 672, 674, 31 P.2d 828

[11] Temporary Trustee or Receiver

Appointment of receiver is proper when it does not adversely affect any interest of beneficiaries in trust property, but rather is necessary to protect property that would have been otherwise lost. Bowles v. Superior Court (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 574, 583, 283 P.2d 704 (now see Prob. Code § 15640(b) (appointment of receiver or temporary trustee))

[12] Trustee Ad Litem

When trustee's interests in conduct of third-party litigation involving trust assets are similar to those of third-party litigants and inimical to those of trust beneficiaries, suspension of trustee's powers relative to that litigation and appointment of trustee ad litem to conduct litigation is proper exercise of probate court's general equity jurisdiction, and as intrinsically included in court's greater power to remove and replace trustee. Getty v. Getty (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 134, 141-142, 252 Cal. Rptr. 342

§ 560.401 Decisions

In action to compel distribution of portion of corpus, to which beneficiary had exclusive rights, court has power to order distribution on ground of change in circumstances. Whittingham v. California Trust Co. (1931) 214 Cal. 128, 129-130, 134, 4 P.2d 142

Trust beneficiaries could modify irrevocable trust when trust gave discretion to add organizations as beneficiaries, beneficiaries entered into a settlement agreement, transferor's intent was clear, and ascertaining beneficiaries was not necessary under Prob. Code § 17202. Boys and Girls Club of Petaluma v. Walsh (2009) 169 Cal. App. 4th 1049, 1060, 1062, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 413 .

Wife breached terms of joint inter vivos trust by executing deed purporting to withdraw property from trust after husband's death; even though property was her share of community property, trust had become irrevocable in its entirety on husband's death. Aguilar v. Aguilar (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 35, 40, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 193

Revocation of trust by trustor delivering notice of revocation to himself as trustee was held valid and in compliance with Prob. Code § 15401(a)(2) when trust's revocation provision was not explicitly exclusive. Masry v. Masry (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 738, 740, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 915

Settlor of two irrevocable trusts had standing to petition for reformation, even though he was not a beneficiary and did not have a pecuniary interest, under the trial court's common law equitable power on grounds that drafting errors defeated settlor's dispositive intent. Bilafer v. Bilafer (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 363, 370, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 880 .

Revocation by surviving spouse of trust funded with community property results in one-half of trust assets being returned to him and other half being disposed of according to wife's will because property was transmuted to separate property at wife's death under Prob. Code § 100; surviving spouse's revocation was effective as to his half of corpus. Estate of Powell (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1434, 1441, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 501

Court has equitable power to modify trust to remedy drafting error. Ike v. Doolittle (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 51, 80-85, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 887

Trust instrument controls method of modification or amendment of trust when itspecifies method; settlor required to comply with method of modification or amendment specified in trust instrument. Conservatorship of Irvine (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1334, 1344-1345, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 587

Prob. Code § 15409, relating to modification of trust in changed circumstances, and Prob. Code § 17200, stating grounds for petition concerning internal affairs of trust, codify long-held equity powers of California courts to modify trust's terms when modification is necessary to preserve trust or serve settlor's original intentions. Stewart v. Towse (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 425, 428, 249 Cal. Rptr. 622 ; see Getty v. Getty (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 134, 142, 252 Cal. Rptr. 342

Prob. Code § 15409, relating to modification of trust in changed circumstances, and Prob. Code § 17200, stating grounds for petition concerning internal affairs of trust, is basis for probate court jurisdiction over petition to modify terms of trusts or authorize petition to make modifications otherwise forbidden by trust instrument, including change in designated successor trustee. Stewart v. Towse (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 425, 429, 249 Cal. Rptr. 622

Prob. Code §§ 17001 and 17004 refute notion that declaratory relief is beyond jurisdiction of superior court sitting in probate; when statute confers jurisdiction on probate department, that department is empowered to apply legal and equitable principles in aid of its functions, including modifying trust terms. Stewart v. Towse (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 425, 430, 249 Cal. Rptr. 622

Petition to modify terms of trust, including modification changing designated successor trustee, is ripe for resolution when trust assets consist largely of interests in same real property and lend themselves to administration by single trustee, and when current state of trust instruments make it likely that settlor's death or incapacity will trigger undesirable division of trustee duties. Stewart v. Towse (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 425, 430-431, 249 Cal. Rptr. 622

When settlor reserves power to revoke trust only in particular manner or under particular circumstances, settlor is capable of revoking trust only in that manner or under those circumstances; inability of settlor who reserves power to revoke trust by inter vivos transaction to revoke trust by will. Estate of Lindstrom (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 375, 386, 236 Cal. Rptr. 376

Right to revoke trust does not affect legal title to real property held by trust, since title passes to trustee and remains vested for purposes of trust; if trust is never revoked, validity of trust is unaffected. Estate of Lindstrom (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 375, 388, 236 Cal. Rptr. 376

Court properly instructed trustee that church named as beneficiary had ceased to exist for purposes of distribution of trust property following termination of trust, when church, although still existing as legal entity, had ceased to exist as canonical entity. Estate of Klinkner (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 942, 947-951, 151 Cal. Rptr. 20

When purpose of trust ceases, estate of trustee also ceases, and legal and equitable title vests in beneficial owner unless settlor clearly intended otherwise. Estate of Downing (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 256, 271, 184 Cal. Rptr. 511 , citing Ball v. Mann (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 695, 699, 199 P.2d 706

Trust established for use and benefit of beneficiary terminates on beneficiary's death. Cutrera v. McClallen (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 604, 608, 30 Cal. Rptr. 444

Trust for support of minor terminates when beneficiary attains age of majority. Ball v. Mann (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d

695, 699, 199 P.2d 706

Trust as properly terminated for impossibility when money of trust that was established to invest in high-interest loans was invested in mortgages, and trustee purchased foreclosed property, so the trust property consisted of realty instead of funds that could be invested, and investment opportunities did not appear to exist Ellis v. Ellis (1937) 20 Cal. App. 2d 293, 294-295, 66 P.2d 738

When all beneficiaries are competent and join in request that trust be terminated, and no factual or equitable consideration interposed by trustees weighs against beneficiaries' rights, court is under duty to terminate trust despite general rule that termination is discretionary with trial court. Moor v. Vawter (1927) 84 Cal. App. 678, 684-685, 258 P. 622

When trustees' only duty was to hold stock for heirs of settlor, stock as becoming property of heirs on trustor's death. Yoakum v. Grimes (1925) 73 Cal. App. 204, 207, 238 P. 727

49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.424

§ 560.424 Decisions

It was error to dismiss complaint for lack of standing because a trust beneficiary can pursue a cause of action against a third party who actively participates in or knowingly benefits from a trustee's breach of trust; even though the civil complaint was not a probate matter under Prob. Code § 17200, it was related to the beneficiary's petition and the probate court had concurrent jurisdiction of the civil complaint under Prob. Code § 17000. Estate of Bowles (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 684, 695, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 122

Amendment of charitable trust regarding appointment of successor trustees was improper under Fourteenth Amendment to U.S. Constitution because potential successor trustees under trust as written were not notified of proceeding to amend trust. Estate of Sigourney v. American Psychoanalytic Ass'n (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 593, 604-605, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 274

Prob. Code § 17200, which empowers court to make orders concerning internal affairs of trust, or to determine existence of trust, is applicable to inter vivos as well as testamentary trusts; fact that settlor is still alive does not prevent court from making such an order. Conservatorship of Irvine (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1334, 1341, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 587

Prob. Code § 369 provides that trustee is real party in interest in suit on behalf of trust; beneficiary is without standing to sue third parties on behalf of trust and is limited to action against trustee or trustee and third parties. Saks v. Damon Raike & Co. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 419, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 869

Period for winding up trust subject to continuing court jurisdiction is period after time for termination has arrived and before trust is terminated by distribution of trust property; trustee of trust that continues under court jurisdiction for purpose of winding up has powers and duties that are appropriate for winding up of trust. Estate of Nicholas (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 1071, 1082, 1082 , 223 Cal. Rtpr 410 (interpreting former Prob. Code § 1120)

Petition and written objections (verified by declarations under Civ. Code § 2015.5) are properly considered evidence

absent objection to contrary. Estate of Nicholas (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 1071, 1088, 223 Cal. Rptr. 410 (proceedings under former Prob. Code § 1120)

Provision in will permitting trustee to receive reasonable compensation to be fixed by courts is insufficient to require continuing mandatory court supervision of testamentary trust. Estate of Goddard (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 340, 343-344, 203 Cal. Rptr. 623 (interpreting former Prob. Code § 1120(a), now see Prob. Code § 17300(b)

Appointment of income beneficiary of trust as guardian ad litem of her children who were minor remainder beneficiaries was improper because, however well-intentioned, income beneficiary is in position adverse to remainder beneficiaries. Estate of Lacy (1975) 54 Cal. App. 3d 172, 185, 126 Cal. Rptr. 432

Appointment of guardian ad litem is advisable and proper when minor enjoys beneficial interest in trust and litigation involves potential destruction of trust. Estate of High (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 561, 567, 58 Cal. Rptr. 694

Guardian has no power to consent to act hostile to the interests of its ward, absent some showing that invasion of wards' rights might be beneficial to them. Leonardini v. Wells Fargo Bank (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 9, 17, 280 P.2d 81

When there is conflict of interest between beneficiaries, all beneficiaries are entitled to individual representation, and guardian ad litem of minor beneficiary is necessary and not duplication of work of cotrustee or executor. Estate of Corotto (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 314, 324, 325, 270 P.2d 498

Trial court's decree depriving unborn and unascertained heirs from ultimately obtaining trust corpus requires reversal on showing from record that, although guardian ad litem was appointed, there was no true representation of those persons. Wogman v. Wells Fargo Bank (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 657, 667, 267 P.2d 423

Appointment of guardian ad litem for minor beneficiary of a trust is necessary when trust provides for minor's support and education, purpose of action is to dissolve trust, and minor's general guardian, in his or her individual capacity, seeks to revoke trust. Loock v. Pioneer Title Ins. etc. Co. (1935) 4 Cal. App. 2d 245, 249, 40 P.2d 526

§ 560.444 Decisions

[1] Action by Beneficiary Regarding Internal Affairs of Trust

Court had equitable power to charge reasonable and necessary fees incurred by trustee in opposing unfounded proceeding brought by trust beneficiary against that beneficiary's share of trust estate. Rudnick v. Rudnick (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 1328, 1335, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 493

Trust beneficiary had standing to sue a fellow beneficiary, under either a third-party participant theory or a constructive trustee theory, despite a successor trustee being appointed, when the fellow beneficiary aided the trustee in transferring property out of the trust in breach of trustee's duties. King v. Johnston (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1488, 1502, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 269

Beneficiary required to bring action regarding internal affairs of trust against trustee or trustee and third persons; action must be brought in probate department or, if there is no separate probate department, in superior court that has jurisdiction over trust; Civ. Code § 1559, which allows third party beneficiaries to enforce contract, does not apply to trust beneficiaries. Saks v. Damon Raike & Co. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 419, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 869

[2] Alter Ego

Guarantors of construction loan to revocable family living trust who were also trustors, trustees, and beneficiaries of trust were alter ego of primary obligor trustees; guarantees therefore unenforceable under antideficiency laws after nonjudicial foreclosure. Torrey Pines Bank v. Hoffman (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 308, 320-323, 282 Cal. Rptr. 354

[3] Attorney's Fees

Attorney who represented trustee in litigation over validity of trust amendment changing primary beneficiary was not entitled to attorney's fees because litigation was not for benefit of trust; moreover, attorney's defense of trust was unsuccessful. Whittlesey v. Aiello (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 1221, 1227-1231, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 742

[4] Bona Fide Transaction

Prob. Code § 18100 protects corporation in bona fide purchase of easement from trustee acting outside its authority without knowledge of corporation; recording requirements of Prob. Code § 18103 do not alter protection provided by Prob. Code § 18100. Adler v. Manor Healthcare Corp. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 1110, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 732

Former trustee's encumbrance of trust property constitutes bona fide transaction, which is valid under former Civ. Code § 2267 (now see Prob. Code § 18102), when lenders, having knowledge that trustee was not named in trust instrument, satisfied reasonable inquiry into trustee's authority to encumber trust assets at time of loan. Leach v. Home Savings & Loan Ass'n. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 1295, 1304 , 230 Cal. Rtpr 553

[5] Liability of Trust Estate

Trust estate liable for trustee's tortious acts to extent that estate benefitted from those acts. Alphonzo E. Bell Corp. v. Bell View Oil Syndicate (1941) 46 Cal. App. 2d 684, 689 , 116 P.2d 786

[6] Liability of Trustee

Trustee liable under theory of respondeat superior for agent's tortious acts committed in administration of trust. Longway v. Newbery (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 603, 616-619, 91 P.2d 110

Trustee that insured trust property premises, and was answerable for premises defects, was potentially liable to third parties for tort liability under doctrine of respondeat superior, and was unable to avoid responsibility therefor on ground that trustee merely held legal title. Bianchi v. Western Title Ins. & Guar. Co. (1970) 14 Cal. App. 3d 235, 239-240, 92 Cal. Rptr. 745

In action for rescission of contracts to purchase real property on grounds of fraud, trustee corporation held personally liable because contracts represented it to be owner of properties. Curtis v. Title Guarantee etc. Co (1935) 3 Cal. App. 2d 612, 619-620, 40 P.2d 562

In action for failure to prosecute, trustee was not personally liable for judgment against him in his representative capacity because it was not demonstrated that he acted intentionally or negligently. Haskett v. The Villas at Desert Falls (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 864, 877-878, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 888

[7] Restrictions on Transfer of Trust Property

Bankruptcy estate possessed unprotected 25 percent of bankrupt's interest in spendthrift trust and only the interest above bankrupt's support requirements; determination of income necessary for support to be adjusted to bankrupt's fluctuating needs. In re Neuton (9th Cir. 1990) 922 F.2d 1379, 1384

Bankrupt beneficiary's interest in assets of California spendthrift trust was immune from judicial process and did not pass to trustee of bankrupt estate. In re Ahlswede (9th Cir. 1975) 516 F.2d 784, 786

Voluntary assignment executed before payment to beneficiary conferred on assignee no right to demand payment or delivery from trustee as it becomes due to beneficiary. Schalk Chemical Company v. C.I.R. (9th Cir. 1962) 304 F.2d 48, 50-51 ; Kelly v. Kelly (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 356, 362-363, 79 P.2d 1059

Spendthrift trusts as effective means to prevent indigent beneficiaries from becoming financially dependent on state. Canfield v. Security-First Nat. Bank (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 1, 13, 87 P.2d 830

Sisters' written agreement to share equally any inheritance received from their mother, despite any unequal disposition that mother's will might provide, was enforceable against ostensible testamentary spendthrift trust in which bulk of estate was left to one sister, when court determined that trust was not truly spendthrift despite boilerplate spendthrift trust provisions in will. De Mille v. Ramsey (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 116, 125, 254 Cal. Rptr. 573 (distinguishing Kelly v. Kelly (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 356, 362-363, 79 P.2d 1059 on ground that trust in De Mille was not truly spendthrift)

Despite boilerplate provisions characterizing trust as spendthrift, trust was not spendthrift when trustor's intent, as expressed in language creating trust, was not to keep money out of beneficiary's hands, but to keep trust assets away from creditors of beneficiary's husband. De Mille v. Ramsey (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 116, 125, 254 Cal. Rptr. 573

Enforcement of agreement, executed prior to creation of ostensible spendthrift trust, requiring beneficiary to pay to her sister half of any trust funds distributed to beneficiary did not violate Prob. Code §§ 15300 (restrictions on transfer of income) and 15301 (restrictions on transfer of principal) when spendthrift provisions of trust were not aimed at beneficiary and when beneficiary never technically transferred to her sister any present interest in trust by executing pre-trust agreement. De Mille v. Ramsey (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 116, 126, 254 Cal. Rptr. 573

Employee's mandatory contributions to welfare fund with spendthrift provision, pursuant to collective bargaining agreement, was subject to execution for child support. Parscal v. Parscal (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 1098, 1100-1104, 196 Cal. Rptr. 462

[8] Standing

Compliance officer of restitutionary fund set up by California state court judgment to remedy statutory violations by corporation was trustee of express trust with right to intervene in class action arising out of corporate activity, citing Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 17(a) (trustee of express trust as real party in interest). Piambino v. Bailey (5th Cir. 1980) 610 F.2d 1306, 1322-1323

Trustee's delay in bringing action against third-party wrongdoer, when trustee is not in collusion with wrongdoer, bars beneficiaries from subsequently maintaining action. DeTarr v. Texaco Inc. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 872, 875, 73 Cal. Rptr. 511

[9] Venue

Venue provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 395.1 is applicable to all actions brought against trustee to recover money or personal property, and not merely to suits brought on rejected creditors' claims. Metzger v. Silverman (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 30, 36-37 , 133 Cal. Rptr. 355

Venue provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 395 based on residence of trustee are applicable to transitory actions against trustee that are not covered by Code Civ. Proc. § 395.1. Haines v. Lamb (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 322, 326, 24 Cal. Rptr. 146

Venue provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 395.1 is applicable only to actions brought against trustee to recover money or personal property, and not to actions for declaratory relief. Ramos v. Cypher (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 648, 290 P.2d 585

[1] Characteristics of Charitable Trust or Organization

Charitable trust defined. Estate of Schloss (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 248, 256, 14 Cal. Rptr. 643, 363 P.2d 875

Prob. Code § 24 (d) permits settlor of charitable trust to object to an accounting when settlor has reserved that power in the trust instrument. Patton v. Sherwood (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 339, 347, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 289

To establish charitable trust, bequest must limit use of funds to charitable purposes; if noncharitable purposes are also permitted, bequest will not be deemed charitable trust, but rules of construction should be applied to accomplish trustor's intent. Estate of Breeden (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 981, 985, 256 Cal. Rptr. 813

Trust designed to peacefully promote political purposes and change is charitable; promotion of socialistic principles through education and support of those whose activities advance those principles is proper charitable purpose. Estate of Breeden (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 981, 986, 987-990, 256 Cal. Rptr. 813

Charitable nature of trust is not determined by tax status of organizations that may benefit from trust; as long as purpose of gift remains charitable, valid charitable trust does not lose its character because it is not tax-exempt; Prob. Code § 16100(a) defines charitable trust in context of duties placed on trustees of tax exempt trusts to maintain that status. Estate of Breeden (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 981, 989-992, 991, 256 Cal. Rptr. 813

Charitable trust is fiduciary relationship with respect to property arising from manifestation of intention to create it and subjecting person by whom property is held to equitable duties to deal with property for charitable purpose. Hardman v. Feinstein (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 157, 161, 240 Cal. Rptr. 483

Nonprofit educational society is charitable corporation within meaning of Gov. Code § 12582.1 and therefore subject to statutory reporting and other regulations applicable to charitable corporation; particular section under which corporation formed is not conclusive on issue of whether corporation is charitable or not. Younger v. Wisdom Society (1981) 121

Cal. App. 3d 683, 690, 175 Cal. Rptr. 542

Gifts to charitable corporations deemed to be impressed with charitable trust. American Center for Education, Inc. v. Cavnar (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 476, 486, 145 Cal. Rptr. 736

Organization can be charitable in nature even if some activities are noncharitable, as long as main purposes are charitable. Lynch v. Surprise Valley Lodge No. 235(1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 265, 270-271, 103 Cal. Rptr. 1

[2] Charitable Immunity

Charitable corporations are liable for their torts. Malloy v. Fong (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 356, 364-367, 232 P.2d 241

[3] Cy Pres Doctrine

Trial court's refusal to apply cy pres doctrine based on unsubstantiated conclusion that racial qualification in bequest to "all-white" school was sine qua non of testator's intent was reversible error. Estate of Vanderhoofven (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 940, 943-946, 96 Cal. Rptr. 260

Application of cy pres doctrine was appropriate to preserve gifts bequeathed in trust to establish music and rest homes by directing that they be located at suitable sites rather than using sites designated by testator which were not suitable under applicable zoning ordinance. Estate of Zahn (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 106, 113-116, 93 Cal. Rptr. 810 , cert. denied, 404 U.S. 938

Doctrine of cy pres was applicable to prevent lapse of testamentary gifts to insufficiently identified "homes" for blind and crippled children, when testator's underlying motivation was to aid that class of children rather than particular institutions. Estate of Gatlin (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 644, 649-650, 94 Cal. Rptr. 295

Doctrine of cy pres applicable in determining disposition of assets of charitable corporation being dissolved. In re Veterans' Industries, Inc. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 902, 917-918, 88 Cal. Rptr. 303

[4] Enforcement Powers of Attorney General

Attorney general has no veto power over compromise reached by individual life beneficiary and charitable beneficiaries of testamentary trust regarding disposition of assets and is not a necessary party to compromise contract. Estate of Horton (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 680, 685-686, 90 Cal. Rptr. 66

Participation in will contest to protect gift for charitable purposes is right and duty of Attorney General. Estate of Ventura (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 50, 394 P.2d 832

[5] Enforcement Powers of Parties Other Than Attorney General

Others besides Attorney General have right to enforce charitable trusts. Holt v. College of Osteopathic Physicians & Surgeons (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 750, 755-756, 40 Cal. Rptr. 244, 394 P.2d 932 ; Hardman v. Feinstein (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 157, 161-162, 240 Cal. Rptr. 483

Code Civ. Proc. § 526a (taxpayer's action to restrain illegal expenditure of public funds) does not create right of action, based on alleged breach of charitable trust, by resident taxpayer against city officials acting in capacity as trustees of charitable trust. Hardman v. Feinstein (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 157, 163, 240 Cal. Rptr. 483

Public trust doctrine unavailable to confer standing on member of general public to enforce charitable trust to protect art museum assets, because doctrine applies onlyto abstract trusts, such as tidelands and waterways protected by public trust, and not to formal trusts created by transfer by trustor to trustee of specific trust res. Hardman v. Feinstein (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 157, 162-163 n.3, 240 Cal. Rptr. 483

Resident and taxpayer of city who has no special interest in charitable trust lacks standing to bring action seeking to enjoin mismanagement of trust, even though trust is administered pursuant to city charter and trustees are city officials. Hardman v. Feinstein (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 157, 159-160, 240 Cal. Rptr. 483

Donors not entitled to compel hospital district to use funds for purpose for which they were donated or to recover donations. Marin Hospital Dist. v. State Department of Health (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 442, 448, 154 Cal. Rptr. 838 ; but see Prob. Code § 24(d); Patton v. Sherwood (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 339, 346-347, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 289

Boy scout council has standing to sue to enforce charitable trust in favor of all boy scouts and girl scouts of region. San Diego etc. Boy Scouts of America v. City of Escondido (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 189, 195, 92 Cal. Rptr. 186

[6] Nonprofit Corporation Law

Corp. Code § 9142(c)(2) provides a general church with authority to impress a trust on a local church when the local church agrees and subscribes to governing instruments of general church, and governing instruments provide that any property held by local church is held in trust for general church; local church did not have right to take church property with it when it disaffiliated from general church even though deeds to the property had long been in the name of the local church. Episcopal Church Cases (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 467, 491, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 275, 198 P.3d 66

Corporation's right to prior inspection of materials to be mailed by member to other members on membership list is improper condition for providing membership list to dissident members pursuant to Corp. Code §§ 6330-6338. KQED, Inc. v. Hall (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 951, 956-957, 185 Cal. Rptr. 630

Court is able to limit use of proxies but not preclude all use of them in framing remedy for unfairness in election procedures for directors of nonprofit corporation. Braude v. Automobile Club of Southern Cal. (1978) 78 Cal. App. 3d 178, 186, 144 Cal. Rptr. 169

[7] Standard of Conduct Regarding Management of Charitable Assets

Good faith is no defense when directors of charitable trust negligently managed trust funds by placing them in noninterest-bearing account trust. Lynch v. John M. Redfield Foundation (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 293, 302, 88 Cal. Rptr. 86

[8] Nonprofit Health Care Service Plans

Nonprofit health care service plans holding assets in charitable trust are not subject to Uniform Supervision of Trustees for Charitable Purposes Act (Gov. Code § 12580 et seq.), but to Knox-Keene Health Care Service Plan Act of 1975 (Health & Safety Code § 1340 et seq.) and Nonprofit Corporations Law; responsibility for their regulation and authority to oversee their compliance with enforcement of charitable trusts pursuant to Corp. Code §§ 5142, 5250 is vested in Department of Corporations. Van de Kamp v. Gumbiner (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1260, 1281-1282, 270 Cal. Rptr. 907

Attorney General is without authority, either common law, statutory, as parens patriae, or pursuant to specific grant in 1977 settlement agreement, to contest conversion of nonprofit health care service plan to for-profit status because intervening legislation abrogated that authority in favor of Department of Corporations as single oversight authority. Van de Kamp v. Gumbiner (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1260, 1282-1290, 270 Cal. Rptr. 907

Nonprofit health care service plan is subject to self-dealing provisions of Corp. Code § 5233, dissolution provisions of Corp. Code §§ 6510, 6511, and Corp. Code §§ 5813.5, 10821; Health & Safety Code § 1352(b), relating to requirement of approval for conversions from nonprofit to for-profit status. Van de Kamp v. Gumbiner (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1260, 1281-1282, 270 Cal. Rptr. 907

C. Totten Trusts

49-560 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 560.501

§ 560.501 Decisions

[1] Totten Trust Established

Deposit of money in depositor's own name as trustee for another establishes trust revocable at will until trustee dies or completes gift during lifetime by some unequivocal act or declaration. Evinger v. MacDougall (1938) 28 Cal. App. 2d 175, 179, 82 P.2d 194

[2] Totten Trust Not Established

Formation of valid Totten trust requires trustor, trustee, trust res, beneficiary, and trust intent; person named in account title as joint trustee of Totten trust who did not sign account card containing declaration of trust and did not deposit any funds in account is not entitled to funds, except possibly as trustee for named beneficiaries, on death of other trustee, because existence of trust res was not established. Estate of Fisher (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 418, 424-426, 244 Cal. Rptr. 5 (decided under former Fin. Code §§ 6850, 6852, which required express statement of survivorship to create presumption of intent to establish joint account)

Irrevocable trust, not Totten trust, is created by deposit of beneficiary's funds. Miller v. Miller (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 538, 544, 31 Cal. Rptr. 618

Totten trust account theory inapplicable when evidence showed that parents used money belonging to child to open account for child and that subsequently more of child's property and gifts of community property were deposited in the account and there were unequivocal acts recognizing irrevocable nature of trust. Miller v. Miller (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 538, 544, 31 Cal. Rptr. 618

CAUTION:
The petition must be verified [Prob. Code § 1021(a)(1)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a petition for use by a person who claims to be the beneficiary of an irrevocable inter vivos trust and who seeks a court order determining the existence of the trust and defining the duties of the trustee to make payments of principal and income under terms of the trust instrument [see Prob. Code § 17200].

A petition to determine the existence of a trust may be filed by a trustee or beneficiary [Prob. Code § 17200(a)]. A person who claims to be the settlor of a trust cannot file such a petition as settlor. However, if a person is both a settlor and a beneficiary or trustee, the petition may be brought in the person's capacity as beneficiary or trustee [Prob. Code § 17200(a)].

It was formerly possible for a person who was interested under a will or trust to seek a judicial declaration of his or her rights or duties under the trust. If an actual controversy existed as to the existence of the trust, or as to the rights of two or more persons under terms of the trust, the court could resolve the controversy by granting declaratory relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 1060. Operative January 1, 1995, however, an action for declaratory relief may no longer be maintained by a person who seeks a declaration of his or her rights or duties under a will or a trust [see Stats. 1994, ch. 806, § 2, amending Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]. The only remedy available is a petition under Prob. Code § 17200, and that remedy may be pursued only by a trustee or beneficiary [Prob. Code § 17200(a)].

If a trust is revocable, the person holding the right to revoke the trust (generally the settlor) has all of the rights that would otherwise devolve on the beneficiaries under the Trust Law. Unless the trust instrument provides otherwise, or unless the joint action of the settlor and all of the beneficiaries is required, during the time that a trust is revocable and the person holding the power to revoke the trust is competent, the person holding the power to revoke, and not the beneficiary, has the rights afforded beneficiaries under the Trust Law, and the trustee's duties are owed to the person holding the power to revoke [Prob. Code § 15800].

[3] Statement of Grounds and Persons Entitled to Notice

The petition must state facts showing that it is authorized under Prob. Code § 17200 et seq. [Prob. Code § 17201]. It must also state the name and address of each person entitled to notice of the petition (Paragraph 8) [Prob. Code § 17201]. Notice of a petition regarding a trust must be given to the following persons [Prob. Code § 17203(a)]:

- All trustees.

- All beneficiaries, except that if the trust is revocable and the person holding the power to revoke it is competent, notice must be given to the person holding the power to revoke and not to the beneficiary [Prob. Code § 15802].

- The Attorney General of California, if the petition relates to a charitable trust subject to the jurisdiction of the Attorney General.

Personal service may be required if there are persons (other than a trustee or beneficiary) whose right, title, or interest would be affected by the petition and if they do not receive notice by mail [Prob. Code § 17203(b)]. If the person to whom notice would otherwise be given as been deceased for at least 40 days, notice may be given to the person's executor, heirs, or devisees in specific circumstances [Prob. Code § 17203(c)]. For detailed discussion of notice, see § 560.137[2]. For a notice form, see § 560.600.

[4] List of Beneficiaries

The petition must state the names and last known addresses of all vested or contingent beneficiaries, including all persons in being who may or will receive trust income or corpus. However, during the time that a trust is revocable and the person holding the power to revoke the trust is competent, the names and last known addresses of beneficiaries who do not hold the power to revoke do not need to be stated. Additionally, the petition does not need to state the name and last known address of any beneficiary who, under Prob. Code § 15804 (beneficiaries with a future interest in the trust), need not be given notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.902].

[5] Allegations

This form assumes that the petitioner claims to be a beneficiary under the terms of an irrevocable, express trust, and that the alleged trustee denies the existence of the trust, or denies that there property is being held in the trust. It includes allegations as to the principal place of business of the trust (Paragraph 4) and the location of the alleged trust property (Paragraph 6), which will be useful to establish the correct venue for the petition [see Prob. Code § 17005(a); see also § 560.520[7]].

[6] Verification

This petition must be verified [Prob. Code § 1021(a)(1)]. If the proceeding is uncontested, the verified petition must be received as evidence by the court [Prob. Code § 1022].

[7] Venue

The proper county for commencement of a judicial proceeding concerning an inter vivos (living) trust is the county in which the principal place of the administration of the trust is located [Prob. Code § 17005(a)]. The principal place of administration of the trust is the usual place where the day-to-day activity of the trust is carried on by the trustee, or any representative of the trustee who is primarily responsible for the administration of the trust [Prob. Code § 17002(a)].

If the principal place of administration of the trust cannot be determined on the basis of the trust's activity, and if the trust has only one trustee, the principal place of administration will be the trustee's residence or usual place of business [Prob. Code § 17002(b)(1)]. If the trust has more than one trustee and the principal place of administration cannot be determined on the basis of the trust's activity, the principal place of administration may be the residence or usual place of business of one of the trustees, as determined by agreement of the trustees; or, if they have not agreed on the question, the residence or usual place of business of any of the them [Prob. Code § 17002(b)(2)].

If the trust is a testamentary trust not subject to the continuing jurisdiction of the court [see Prob. Code §§ 17300-17354 (testamentary trusts subject to continuing court jurisdiction)], the proper county for commencement of the proceeding is the county in which the deceased settlor's estate is being administered or in which the principal place of administration of the trust is located [Prob. Code § 17005].

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the petitioner in the above-entitled proceeding. I have read the foregoing petition and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

CAUTION:
The petition must be verified [Prob. Code § 1021(a)(1)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a petition for use by a beneficiary who is seeking a determination of the validity of a trust provision [see Prob. Code § 17200(b)(3)].

[3] Allegations

This petition alleges:

- The capacity and standing of the petitioner (Paragraphs 1, 2) [see Prob. Code §§ 17200(a) (standing of beneficiary generally), 15800 (person holding right to revoke has rights otherwise afforded to beneficiary)];

- The identity of trustee (Paragraph 3);

- The basis for venue (Paragraph 4) [see Prob. Code §§ 17002 (principal place of administration), 17005 (venue for living trust or testamentary trust generally), 17301 (venue for testamentary trust subject to continuing jurisdiction of court); see also Prob. Code § 17004 (basis for venue based on Code Civ. Proc. § 410.10)];

- Creation of the trust (Paragraph 5) [see Prob. Code §§ 15200 (creation of trust), 15206 (Statute of Frauds), 15207 (oral trust in personal property)]; (5) a description of the disputed provision of the trust (Paragraph 7) [see Burns v. Grable (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 280, 288, 291 P.2d 969] ; and

- A statement of grounds supporting the validity of the disputed provision (Paragraph 8) [see Burns v. Grable (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 280, 288-290, 291 P.2d 969] .

Optional Paragraph 6 is for use if the trust contains a provision that is indisputably invalid, but that does not render the entire trust invalid [see Burns v. Grable (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 280, 287-288, 291 P.2d 969]

[4] Contents of Petition

A proceeding under Prob. Code §§ 17200-17210 is commenced by filing a verified petition stating facts showing that the petition is authorized under Prob. Code §§ 17200-17210, and the grounds of the petition [Prob. Code § 17201(a)].

[5] Statement of Grounds and Persons Entitled to Notice

The petition must state facts showing that it is authorized under Prob. Code §§ 17200 et seq. [Prob. Code § 17201]. It must also state the name and address of each person entitled to notice of the petition (Paragraph 9) [Prob. Code § 17201]. For a more detailed discussion of notice requirements, see § 560.137[2]. For a notice form, see § 560.600.

[6] List of Beneficiaries

The petition must state the names and last known addresses of all vested or contingent beneficiaries, including all persons in being who may or will receive trust income or corpus. However, during the time that a trust is revocable and the person holding the power to revoke the trust is competent, the names and last known addresses of beneficiaries who do not hold the power to revoke do not need to be stated. Additionally, the petition does not need to state the name and last known address of any beneficiary who, under Prob. Code § 15804 (beneficiaries with a future interest in the trust), need not be given notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.902].

[7] Standing

[a] Irrevocable Trust

Except as provided in Prob. Code § 15800 (revocable trust), a trustee or beneficiary of a trust may petition the court under Prob. Code §§ 17200-17210 concerning the internal affairs of the trust or to determine the existence of the trust [Prob. Code § 17200(a)]. A "beneficiary" of a trust includes a person who has any present or future interest, vested or contingent [Prob. Code § 24(c)]. As it relates to a charitable trust, it includes any person entitled to enforce the trust [Prob. Code § 24(d)].

[b] Revocable Trust

Under Prob. Code § 15800, during the time that a trust is revocable and the person holding the power to revoke the trust is competent, the person holding the power to revoke, and not the beneficiary, has the rights afforded beneficiaries under Prob. Code § 15000 et seq., and the duties of the trustee are owed to the person holding the power to revoke. However, these provisions do not apply to the extent that the trust instrument otherwise provides, or if the joint action of the settlor and all beneficiaries is required [Prob. Code § 15800]. This form therefore may be adapted for use by the person holding the power to revoke a revocable trust.

[8] Jurisdiction

The superior court that has jurisdiction over the trust pursuant to Prob. Code §§ 17000-17006 has exclusive jurisdiction of proceedings concerning the internal affairs of trusts [Prob. Code § 17000(a)]. In proceedings commenced under the Trust Law, the court is a court of general jurisdiction and has all the powers of the superior court [Prob. Code § 17001]. For discussion of in personam jurisdiction, see § 560.143.

[9] Venue

[a] Generally

The proper county for commencement of a proceeding pursuant to Prob. Code §§ 15000-18201 is either [Prob. Code § 17005(a)]:

- In the case of a living trust, the county where the principal place of administration of the trust is located [see Prob. Code § 17002 (principal place of administration); but see Prob. Code § 17005(b) (proceeding to appoint trustee if living trust has no trustee)].

- In the case of a testamentary trust not subject to the continuing jurisdiction of the court, either the county where the decedent's estate is administered or where the principal place of administration of the trust is located [but see Prob. Code § 17301; see also § 560.521[9][b]].

[b] Testamentary Trust Subject to Continuing Jurisdiction of Court

If a trust described in Prob. Code § 17300 continues after distribution of the decedent's estate, the court in which the decedent's estate was administered retains jurisdiction over the trust for any of the purposes specified in Prob. Code § 17200 [Prob. Code § 17301]. Trusts described in Prob. Code § 17300 are a trust created by a will executed before July 1, 1977, and not incorporated by reference in a will on or after July 1, 1977; and a trust created by a will that provides that the trust is subject to the continuing jurisdiction of the superior court. Consequently, venue for testamentary trusts subject to the continuing jurisdiction of the court may not be established in the county in which the principal place of administration of the trust is located (unless, of course, it is the same county). Venue for other testamentary trusts may be established in the county of either the principal place of administration or the estate administration [cf. Prob. Code §§ 17005, 17301].

[c] Applicability of Civil Code Provisions

Except as otherwise provided in Prob. Code § 17005(a) and (b), the proper county for commencement of a proceeding pursuant to Prob. Code § 15000 et seq. is determined by the rules applicable to civil actions generally [Prob. Code § 17005(c); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392 (real property), 395 (defendant's residence)]. For example, rules generally governing civil actions would apply if the principal place of administration of a trust is a foreign state, but jurisdiction is proper in California [see Recommendation Proposing the Trust Law, 18 Cal. Law Revision Comm'n Reports 721 (1986)].

[10] No Right to Jury Trial

There is no right to a jury trial in proceedings under Prob. Code § 15000 et seq. concerning the internal affairs of trusts [Prob. Code § 17006].

[Verification. See § 560.521.]

CAUTION:
The petition must be verified [Prob. Code § 1021(a)(1)].

[2] Use of Form

This petition is for use by a beneficiary to seek removal of a trustee, an accounting, appointment of a new trustee, and redress for the breach, after the trustee has violated a duty owed to the beneficiary [see Prob. Code §§ 15660 (appointment of successor), 16400 (breach of trust), 16420 (remedies for breach of trust), 17200(b)(5) (petition to settle account), 17200(b)(7) (petition to compel trustee to account), 17200(b)(10) (petition to remove and appoint trustee)]. The examples set forth in this form were based on the breach of a trustee's duties to administer the trust according to its terms and to make the trust property productive, and a duty not to use the trust property for the trustee's own benefit [see Prob. Code §§ 16000, 16007, 16004, respectively; see also Prob. Code §§ 16000-16015]. For an allegation that the trustee breached a duty not to take part in a transaction in which the trustee has an interest adverse to the beneficiary, pursuant to Prob. Code § 16004(a), see § 560.541]. For a form to compel the trustee to report information or to account after making a written request [Prob. Code § 17200(b)(7)], see § 560.548. For a form containing a separate nomination by a beneficiary of a successor trustee, see § 560.553.

If all the adult beneficiaries of an irrevocable trust with certain rights under the trust have requested the trustee to transfer administration of the trust to a successor trust company, and the trustee has refused to do so, in subsequent petition proceedings for removal and appointment of a successor, the petitioner may recover costs and reasonable attorney's fees from the removed trustee or the trust property [see Prob. Code § 15645]. In such a case, this form may be adapted to seek removal based on the trustee's refusal to comply with the beneficiaries' agreement, and to recover costs and attorneys' fees. In that case, Paragraphs 7 and 8 should be used to set forth the agreement between the beneficiaries and the trustee's refusal to comply with it. Paragraph 9 should be included, and Paragraphs 10-11 deleted. The prayer should include a request for attorney's fees as well as costs.

[3] Allegations

This petition alleges a statement of facts describing the breach of trust (Paragraphs 6-8) [see Prob. Code § 16000 (duty to administer trust according to its terms), 16004 (duty not to use trust property for own profit), 16007 (duty to make trust property productive), 16400 (violation of duty is breach of trust)]. Optional Paragraph 6 is for use to describe a particular provision of the trust that was violated [see Prob. Code § 16000]. Optional Paragraphs 9-11 are for use by the petitioner, as beneficiary, to nominate a successor trustee. Paragraph 9 states that on removal of the trustee named in the petition, there will be either no trustee of the trust, or a vacancy in the office of cotrustee, which the trust instrument requires to be filled [see Prob. Code § 15660(a)]; and that the trust instrument neither provides a practical method of appointing a trustee nor names the person to fill the vacancy [Prob. Code § 15660(b)]. Paragraph 10 states that there has been no agreement between all adult beneficiaries entitled to enter into such an agreement, to provide a successor trustee pursuant to Prob. Code § 15660(c) (vacancy filled by trust company under agreement by all adult beneficiaries with certain rights under trust or by specified persons of their behalf). Paragraph 11 states that the beneficiary is over the age of 14 [see Prob. Code § 15660(d)].

[4] Statement of Grounds and Persons Entitled to Notice

The petition must state facts showing that it is authorized under Prob. Code § 17200 et seq. [Prob. Code § 17201]. It must also state the name and address of each person entitled to notice of the petition (Paragraph 12) [Prob. Code § 17201]. Notice of a petition regarding a trust must be given to the following persons [Prob. Code § 17203(a)]:

- All trustees.

- All beneficiaries, except that if the trust is revocable and the person holding the power to revoke it is competent notice must be given to the person holding the power to revoke and not to the beneficiary [Prob. Code § 15802].

- The Attorney General of California, if the petition relates to a charitable trust subject to the jurisdiction of the Attorney General.

- Personal service may be required if there are persons (other than a trustee or beneficiary) whose right, title, or interest would be affected by the petition and if they do not receive notice by mail [Prob. Code § 17203(b)].

For detailed discussion, see § 560.137[2]. For a notice form, see § 560.600.

[5] List of Beneficiaries

The petition must state the names and last known addresses of all vested or contingent beneficiaries, including all persons in being who may or will receive trust income or corpus. However, during the time that a trust is revocable and the person holding the power to revoke the trust is competent, the names and last known addresses of beneficiaries who do not hold the power to revoke do not need to be stated. Additionally, the petition does not need to state the name and last known address of any beneficiary who, under Prob. Code § 15804 (beneficiaries with a future interest in the trust), need not be given notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.902].

§ 560.541 Allegations for Petition by Beneficiary Against Trustee--Trustee Took Part in Transaction in Which Trustee Had Interest Adverse to the Beneficiary [Prob. Code § 16004(a)]

[1] FORM Allegations for Petition by Beneficiary Against Trustee--Trustee Took Part in Transaction in Which Trustee Had Interest Adverse to the Beneficiary [Prob. Code § 16004(a)]

1. The defendant trustee, _____ [name], has breached his/her/its duty not to take part in a transaction in which he/she/it has an interest adverse to the plaintiff, as beneficiary, in that on or about _____ [date], he/she/it _____ [describe action of trustee, e.g., purchased trust property consisting of diamond jewelry without informing plaintiff, and without plaintiff's consent. Further, defendant trustee defrauded plaintiff and concealed his/her/its true actions by supplying the purchase funds to one _____ (name of third party), who purported to purchase the property in his/her name alone, and for his/her sole benefit and enjoyment, but who in fact purchased the property as an agent for defendant. Moreover, the appraised price of $250,000 greatly exceeded the purchase price of $60,000, which sum plaintiff was induced to accept by defendant].

2. The defendant trustee, _____ [name], has failed to return the trust property to the trust, and to account for profits acquired therefrom.

[2] Use of Form

These allegations are for use in a petition by a beneficiary to seek remedies against a trustee for breach of trust, on the ground that the trustee breached the trust by taking part in a transaction in which the trustee had an interest adverse to the beneficiary [see Prob. Code § 16004(a)]. These allegations may be inserted in addition to or in place of Paragraphs 6-8 in § 560.540 if the beneficiary seeks removal of a trustee, an accounting, appointment of a new trustee, and redress for the breach [see Prob. Code §§ 16400 (breach of trust), 16420 (remedies for breach of trust), 17200(b)(5) (petition to settle account), 17200(b)(10) (petition to remove and appoint trustee)].

[3] Trustee's Limitation of Liability

With limited exceptions relating to gross negligence, bad faith, and wrongful profits, a trustee can be relieved of liability for breach of trust provisions in the trust instrument [Prob. Code § 16461(a); see Prob. Code § 16461(b) (exceptions that do not allow limitation of liability)]. A provision in a trust instrument that releases the trustee from liability if a beneficiary fails to object to an item in an interim or final account or other written report within a specified time period is effective only if specified conditions are met, and if a statutory notice to beneficiaries is included with an accounting or report [Prob. Code § 16461(c)]. For detailed discussion, see § 560.87.

[4] Allegations

This form alleges that the trustee breached the duty not to take part in a transaction in which the trustee had an interest adverse to the beneficiary, and describes that transaction [see Prob. Code § 16004(a); see also Estate of Howard (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 535, 284 P.2d 966 (trustee's sham sale of jewelry to another party as agent for himself deemed grounds for removal)].

§ 560.542 Prayer for Partial and Temporary Removal and Suspension of Powers of Trustee and Appointment of Trustee Ad Litem [Prob. Code §§ 15642, 16420, 17000, 17200(b)(8), (10), 17206]

[1] FORM Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] for Partial and Temporary Removal and Suspension of Powers of Trustee and Appointment of Trustee Ad Litem [Prob. Code §§ 15642, 16420, 17000, 17200(b)(8), (10), 17206]

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays for an order:

1. Suspending the powers of _____ [name of trustee], as trustee, to _____ [state powers sought to be suspended, e.g., make compromises or settlements, and prosecute or defend actions or proceedings involving the trust assets] in the above-described litigation.

2. Removing _____ [name of trustee] as trustee with respect to the above-described litigation.

3. Appointing _____ [name of proposed trustee ad litem] as trustee ad litem to represent the trust and the beneficiaries in the above-described litigation, and vesting him/her with the powers to _____ [state powers to be vested in trustee ad litem, e.g., make compromises or settlements, and prosecute or defend actions or proceedings involving the trust assets] in that litigation, until such time as the litigation is completed.

4. Awarding petitioner costs herein; and

5. For such other orders as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This prayer is for use in a petition to partially and temporarily remove and suspend specified powers of a trustee and appoint a trustee ad litem to exercise those powers. Typically, these powers relate to litigation involving the trust, such as the power to make compromises or settlements [see Getty v. Getty (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 134, 138-139, 252 Cal. Rptr. 342] . A trustee ad litem may be appointed to conduct certain litigation relating to a trust when, for example, the trustee has a conflict of interest such that his or her interests and those of third-party litigants are similar and inimical to those of the beneficiaries [see Getty v. Getty (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 134, 141, 252 Cal. Rptr. 342] .

To avoid confusion and disputes between the trustee and the trustee ad litem relative to their respective powers and duties, the prayer should specifically and carefully list those powers of the trustee that are to be suspended, and those powers that are to be vested in the trustee ad litem [see Getty v. Getty (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 134, 141, 252 Cal. Rptr. 342] .

For a petition adaptable for use in seeking the appointment of a trustee ad litem, see § 560.540. For a form of order adaptable for use in ordering the appointment of a trustee ad litem, see § 560.552. For further discussion of this type of appointment, see § 560.94[3][b].

CAUTION:

The Trust Law is silent with respect to the filing of papers in response to a petition to administer a trust. Moreover, there do not appear to be any California Rules of Court or local court rules to provide guidance in this area, nor any uniformity with regard to the procedures presently used throughout California that would warrant the recommendation of one procedure for all jurisdictions. Counsel should therefore contact the appropriate court to ascertain whether any particular form of responsive pleading is preferred by the local commissioner or judge; for example, a response, an answer, or objections, with or without points and authorities [see Prob. Code § 1000 (applicability of rules of civil practice in probate proceedings)]. An objection or response filed pursuant to the Probate Code must be verified [Prob. Code § 1021(a)(2)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use by a trustee to respond to a petition by a beneficiary seeking removal of the trustee, an accounting, appointment of a new trustee, and redress of a breach of trust [see Prob. Code § 17200(b)(5) (petition to settle account), 17200(b)(10) (petition to remove and appoint trustee)].

If the disputed issues are legal in nature, counsel should consider filing a memorandum of points and authorities with the responsive pleading, and, if factual, relevant declarations. In questionable matters, counsel should contact the local court for guidance as to whether points and authorities and declarations are appropriate.

For a form of account for submission to the court, see § 560.559.

[3] Service

The Trust Law does not include any provisions specifying on whom responsive pleadings to petitions to administer a trust should be served. However, counsel may obtain guidance from Prob. Code § 17203, governing notice of the time and hearing for the petition, and may wish to serve the response on the persons named in that section as well as on the petitioner. Prob. Code § 17203(a) provides that a petitioner must cause notice to be mailed to all of the following persons:

- All trustees.

- All beneficiaries, except that if the trust is revocable and the person holding the power to revoke it is competent notice must be given to the person holding the power to revoke and not to the beneficiary [Prob. Code § 15802].

- The Attorney General of California, if the petition relates to a charitable trust subject to the jurisdiction of the Attorney General.

- Prob. Code § 17203(b) provides that a petitioner must cause notice to be served (in the manner provided for service of summons in civil cases) on any person, other than a trustee or beneficiary, whose right, title, or interest would be affected by the petition and who does not receive notice pursuant to Prob. Code § 17203(a) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 413.10 et seq. (summons in civil cases)].

For detailed discussion, see § 560.137[2]. For a notice form, see § 560.600.

[4] Dismissal of Petition

The court may dismiss a petition if it appears that the proceeding is not reasonably necessary for the protection of the interests of the trustee or beneficiary [Prob. Code § 17202].

§ 560.544 Allegation for Response by Trustee--Trustee Entitled to Contribution From Cotrustee [Prob. Code § 16402]

[1] FORM Allegation for Response by Trustee--Trustee Entitled to Contribution From Cotrustee [Prob. Code § 16402]

If the acts of respondent as described in the petition are found to be a breach of trust, _____ [name of cotrustee], as cotrustee, is equally responsible therefor, because he/she/it _____ [describe basis for liability, e.g., approved and knowingly acquiesced in the acts]. Therefore, if respondent is liable, he/she/it is liable also, with damages to be apportioned between respondent and the cotrustee.

[2] Use of Form

This allegation is for use in a response by a trustee to a petition brought by a beneficiary alleging breach of trust, to seek contribution from a cotrustee who is jointly responsible with the respondent for the breach [see Prob. Code § 16402]. The allegation may be inserted in see § 560.543 if the trustee denies liability but affirmatively asserts that if the trustee is found liable, the cotrustee is equally liable [see Gbur v. Cohen (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 296, 300-303, 155 Cal. Rptr. 507 (cross-complaint for contribution regarding charitable trust)].

The ground for contribution used as an example in this form is that the cotrustee approved and knowingly acquiesced in the breach of trust. Additional grounds for contribution, which may be used in lieu of or in addition to that ground, are the other situations in which a trustee is liable to the beneficiary for a breach committed by a cotrustee. Those situations are when the cotrustee [see Prob. Code § 10402(b)]:

- Participated in the breach;
- Improperly delegated the administration of the trust to the respondent;
- Concealed a breach of trust committed by the respondent;

- Negligently enabled the respondent to commit a breach of trust; or

- Neglected to take reasonable steps to compel the respondent to redress a breach of trust in a case in which the cotrustee knew or had information from which he or she reasonably should have known of the breach.

[3] State Statutes

Trustee's liability to beneficiary for acts of cotrustee. Prob. Code § 16402

[4] Decisions

When breach of trust results in liability to more than one trustee, liability of affected trustees is joint and several, and suit for contribution may be brought between trustees. Gbur v. Cohen (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 296, 300, 155 Cal. Rptr. 507 (interpreting Civ. Code § 2239 (principal's liability for authorized or ratified acts of agent) in plenary action for declaratory relief and indemnity regarding charitable trust)

Duties of trustee of charitable trust resemble those of trustee of private trust. Gbur v. Cohen (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 296, 301, 155 Cal. Rptr. 507 (interpreting Civ. Code § 2239 (principal's liability for authorized or ratified acts of agent) in plenary action for declaratory relief and indemnity regarding charitable trust)

[2] Use of Form

This allegation is for use by a trustee to respond to a petition brought by a beneficiary alleging breach of trust, to raise the issue that the petition was filed in the wrong county [see Prob. Code §§ 17005 (venue for living trust and trust not subject to continuing jurisdiction of court), 17301 (trust subject to continuing jurisdiction of court)]. For further discussion of venue, see Comments to § 560.521; see also § 560.144.

§ 560.546 Allegation for Response by Trustee--Petitioner's Lack of Standing [Prob. Code §§ 15800, 15803]

[1] FORM Allegation for Response by Trustee--Petitioner's Lack of Standing [Prob. Code §§ 15800, 15803]

The petitioner does not have standing to bring the petition because _____ [specify, e.g., the petitioner is the beneficiary of a revocable trust, and the power to revoke is in the settlor of the trust].

[2] Use of Form

This form may be used by a trustee to allege that a beneficiary who has filed a petition against the trustee lacks standing to bring the petition [see Prob. Code §§ 15800 (rights regarding revocable trust inure to settlor and not beneficiaries), 17200(a) (rights of beneficiaries generally)]. The allegation may be inserted in § 560.543 if the trustee wishes to assert the beneficiary's lack of standing as an affirmative defense.

The Trust Law, the California Rules of Court, and local court rules are silent with respect to the filing of papers in response to a petition to administer a trust. However, the rules of practice applicable to civil actions constitute the rules of practice in proceedings under the Probate Code, except to the extent that the Probate Code provides applicable rules [Prob. Code § 1000]. In a civil action, lack of standing is normally raised by demurrer to a complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e) (failure to state cause of action) and 430.30(a) (demurrer proper when ground for objection appears on face of complaint); but see In re Fred J. (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 168, 176, 152 Cal. Rptr. 327 (use of demurrer inconsistent with legislative purpose under Welfare & Institutions Code provisions otherwise incorporating Code Civ. Proc. §§ 307-1062.10)]. Counsel should therefore contact the appropriate court to ascertain whether the issue of lack of standing should be raised in any particular form of responsive pleading, for example, a demurrer, and whether the filing of supporting memorandum and other documents is required or preferred [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005; Cal Rules of Ct, Rules 3.1113(a), 3.1320 (points and authorities and notice of hearing regarding demurrers)]. For discussion of demurrers, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment of the Pleadings .

[3] Standing of Beneficiary

A beneficiary has standing to bring a petition under Prob. Code § 17000, except as provided in Prob. Code § 15800 [Prob. Code § 17200(a)]. Under Prob. Code § 15800, during the time that a trust is revocable and the person holding the power to revoke the trust is competent, the person holding the power to revoke, and not the beneficiary, has the rights afforded beneficiaries under the Trust Law. The trustee then owes its duties to the person holding the power to revoke. These rules apply unless the trust instrument provides otherwise, or if the joint action ofthe settlor and all beneficiaries is required [Prob. Code § 15800].

Moreover, the holder of a presently exercisable general power of appointment, or power to withdraw property from the trust, has the rights of a person holding the power to revoke the trust that are provided by Prob. Code § 15800 to the extent of the holder's power over the trust property [Prob. Code § 15803]. For discussion of standing under the Trust Law generally, see § 560.130 et seq.

For forms and discussion of memoranda of points and authorities, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

The petition must be verified [Prob. Code § 1021(a)(1)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a petition for use by a beneficiary who is seeking the hold the trustee liable for wrongful acts committed by an agent of the trustee. The petition seeks orders compelling the trustee to account fully for all trust property [see Prob. Code § 17200(b)(7)] and to redress a breach of trust by returning to the trust all property wrongfully misappropriated from it as a result of the agent's actions [see Prob. Code § 17200(b)(12)]. It includes optional language requesting the imposition of a constructive trust on property wrongfully purchased with trust funds [see Prob. Code § 16420(a)(9)].

[3] Statement of Grounds and Persons Entitled to Notice

The petition must state facts showing that it is authorized under Prob. Code §§ 17200 et seq. [Prob. Code § 17201]. It must also state the name and address of each person entitled to notice of the petition (Paragraph 10) [Prob. Code § 17201]. Notice of a petition regarding a trust is governed by Prob. Code § 17203(a). For detailed discussion, see § 560.137[2]. For a notice form, see § 560.600.

[4] List of Beneficiaries

The petition must state the names and last known addresses of all vested or contingent beneficiaries, including all persons in being who may or will receive trust income or corpus. However, during the time that a trust is revocable and the person holding the power to revoke the trust is competent, the names and last known addresses of beneficiaries who do not hold the power to revoke do not need to be stated. Additionally, the petition does not need to state the name and last known address of any beneficiary who, under Prob. Code § 15804 (beneficiaries with a future interest in the trust), need not be given notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.902].

[5] Trustee's Liability For Acts of Agent

[a] General Rule of Nonliability

It is a relatively common practice for trustees to delegate specific trust functions to agents. Preparation of accountings and tax returns, and management of investment portfolios and real property, are typical examples of acts that may be delegated to some extent to agents.

In general, the trustee is not liable to the trust beneficiaries for the acts or omissions of agents [Prob. Code § 16401(a); see Prob. Code § 16052(c) (investment and management functions of trust)]. Under this rule, the only recourse of the beneficiary is against the agent directly. An agent has a duty to perform the delegated function with reasonable care to comply with the terms of the delegation [Prob. Code § 16052(b)] and, by accepting a delegation from the trustee of a trust that is subject to California law, submits to the jurisdiction of California courts [Prob. Code § 16052(d)].

[b] When Trustee May Be Personally Liable for Agent's Acts

There are several important exceptions to the general rule of a trustee's nonliability for acts of agents [see Prob. Code §§ 16052(a), (c), 16401(b)]. Under these exceptions, with respects to acts of omissions of agents occurring on or after July 1, 1987, the trustee is liable to the beneficiary for an act or omission of an agent employed by the trustee in the administration of the trust that would be a breach of the trust if the committed by the trustee, if any of the following circumstances exist [Prob. Code § 16401(b)]:

- The trustee directs the acts of the agent.

- The trustee delegates to the agent the authority to perform an act that the trustee is under a duty not to delegate. In general, the trustee has a duty not to delegate to others the performance of acts that the trustee can reasonably be required personally to perform, and may not transfer the office of trustee or delegate the entire administration of the trust to a cotrustee or other person [Prob. Code § 16012(a)]. The provisions of the governing trust instrument or will may also affect the extent to which the trustee may delegate trust functions to agents [see Prob. Code § 16000 (duty to administer trust according to provisions of trust instrument)].

- The trustee does not use reasonable prudence in the selection or retention of the agent [see also Prob. Code § 16052(a)(1) (delegation of investment and management functions)].

- The trustee does not periodically review the agent's overall performanceand compliance with the terms of the delegation [see also Prob. Code § 16052(a)(2) (delegation of investment and management functions)].

- The trustee conceals the act of the agent.

- The trustee neglects to take reasonable steps to compel the agent to redress the wrong in a case in which the trustee knows of the agent's acts and omissions.

In addition to these exceptions, when delegating investment or management functions of the trust the trustee has a duty to exercise prudence in establishing the scope and terms of the delegation, consistent with the purposes and terms of the trust [Prob. Code § 16052(a)(2)].

This form contains optional allegations for each of the seven exceptions discussed above. The drafter should select one or more of these options as appropriate to the facts of the case. The appropriate allegation(s) should be inserted into the form as Paragraph 8.

[6] Liability for Acts of Agent Prior to July 1, 1987

The rules discussed above apply to liability of a trustee for acts or omissions of agents that occur on or after July 1, 1987. Liability for acts occurring prior to that time are governed by pre-1987 law.

A trustee is not liable for the acts of an agent occurring on or after July 1, 1987, except as provided in Prob. Code § 16401(b) [Prob. Code § 16401(a)]. With regard to acts of an agent occurring before July 1, 1987, former law controls [Prob. Code § 16401(c); see, e.g., Gaver v. Early (1923) 58 Cal. App. 736, 737, 209 P. 394 , and Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 225]. For further discussion, see § 560.84[2].

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use by a beneficiary to determine the beneficiary's rights with respect to an oral trust in real property [see Prob. Code §§ 15206 (statute of frauds), 17200(a) (petition to determine existence of trust), 17200(b) (petition to determine existence or nonexistence of any right), 17200(b)(12) (petition to compel redress of breach of trust)]. Any interested person may petition the court for an appropriate order when it appears that the trustee is in possession of, or holds title to, real or personal property, and the property, or some interest in the property, is claimed to belong to another [Prob. Code § 850(a)(3)(A)]. The petition prays for an order compelling the trustee to transfer the property to the beneficiary [see Mulli v. Mulli (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 68, 73, 232 P.2d 556] .

In lieu of this petition, the beneficiary may initiate a civil action to enforce a trust. Although the superior court having jurisdiction over the trust pursuant to Prob. Code § 17000 et seq. has exclusive jurisdiction of proceedings concerning the internal affairs of the trust [Prob. Code § 17000(a)], it has concurrent jurisdiction of actions and proceedings to determine the existence of trusts [Prob. Code § 17000(b)(1)]. The probate court must not grant a petition under Prob. Code § 17200 et seq. if it determines that the matter should be determined by a civil action [Prob. Code § 853].

[3] Allegations

This petition alleges:

- The creation of an oral trust in real property and the basis for venue (Paragraphs 3, 4) [see Prob. Code § 15206(c) (trust in real property by operation of law); see also Mulli v. Mulli (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 68, 73, 232 P.2d 556 (oral trust in real property); see also Prob. Code § 17005(c) (venue determined by rules applicable to civil actions generally, except as otherwise provided in Prob. Code § 17005(a), (b)) and Code Civ. Proc. § 392 (venue regarding real property)];

- Petitioner's performance of acts in reliance on trust (Paragraph 5) [see Mulli v. Mulli (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 68, 73, 232 P.2d 556] ;

- Breach of the terms of the trust by the trustee (Paragraph 7); and

- Facts establishing that the defendant is estopped from pleading the Statute of Frauds as a defense (Paragraph 8) [see Prob. Code § 15206(c) (trust in real property by operation of law); see also Porporato v. Devincenzi (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 670, 678-679, 68 Cal. Rptr. 210] .

Optional Paragraph 6 is for use to allege that the beneficiary complied with any conditions necessary to establish the trust.

[4] Statement of Grounds and Persons Entitled to Notice

The petition must state facts showing that it is authorized under Prob. Code § 17200 et seq. [Prob. Code § 17201]. It must also state the name and address of each person entitled to notice of the petition (Paragraph 9) [Prob. Code § 17201]. Notice of a petition regarding a trust is governed by Prob. Code § 17203(a). For detailed discussion, see § 560.137[2]. For a notice form, see § 560.600.

[5] List of Beneficiaries

The petition must state the names and last known addresses of all vested or contingent beneficiaries, including all persons in being who may or will receive trust income or corpus. However, during the time that a trust is revocable and the person holding the power to revoke the trust is competent, the names and last known addresses of beneficiaries who do not hold the power to revoke do not need to be stated. Additionally, the petition does not need to state the name and last known address of any beneficiary who, under Prob. Code § 15804 (beneficiaries with a future interest in the trust), need not be given notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.902].

[6] Statute of Frauds

A trust in relation to real property is not valid unless evidenced by certain methods, including by operation of law [see Prob. Code § 15206(c)]. A trust in real property that violates the Statute of Frauds may subsequently become valid and binding if possession is taken or the transfer of property has been fully executed [Casa Colina Convalescent Home v. Wiest (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 161, 165, 166, 29 Cal. Rptr. 407] .

[7] Jurisdiction and Venue

Jurisdiction and venue regarding petition proceedings under the Trust Law are discussed in § 560.142 et seq. If in lieu of filing this petition, the beneficiary brings a plenary action to enforce an oral trust pursuant to the Code of Civil Procedure the superior court will have jurisdiction over the action [see Prob. Code§ 17000(b)(1) (probate court's jurisdiction to determine existence of trust is concurrent); Hillman v. Stults (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 848, 877, 70 Cal. Rptr. 295 (action to establish and enforce trusts are equitable); St. James Church v. Superior Court (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 352, 358, 287 P.2d 387 (superior court jurisdiction over actions that are substantially equitable in nature)]. An action is substantially equitable in nature if it primarily seeks equitable relief, even if it also requests a money judgment [Hillman v. Stults (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 848, 877, 70 Cal. Rptr. 295] . Because suits in equity do not afford a right to jury trial, actions to determine the nature of the trust, the meaning or interpretation of its terms, or the effect of its terms are within the sole province of the court sitting without a jury [Hillman v. Stults (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 848, 877, 70 Cal. Rptr. 295] .

With respect to a plenary action to enforce a trust, if the subject of the trust is real property, and the cause of action is "local" (that is, concerns rights to real property), the county in which the real property, or part of it, is located determines the venue of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 392; see Massae v. Superior Court (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 527, 530-531, 173 Cal. Rptr. 527] . If the subject of the trust is personal property, the general venue provisions for actions not specifically set forth apply, and the trustee's residence determines the venue [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395, 395.5; see Massae v. Superior Court (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 527, 530-531, 173 Cal. Rptr. 527] .

[8] Lis Pendens

If a proceeding under the Probate Code affects the title to or the right to possession of real property, notice of the pendency of the proceeding may be filed in the office of the county recorder in the county in which the property is located, in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 405-405.61 [see Prob. Code § 1004]. A notice of the pendency of the proceeding will protect the interest of the petitioner in the property by giving notice to prospective purchasers and encumbrancers that the petition claims some interest in the property. [Verification. See § 560.521.]

CAUTION:
The petition must be verified [Prob. Code § 1021(a)(1)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use by a beneficiary to petition the court for instructions to the trustee to invade the principal of a trust under which the trustee determines payments from income or principal according to the trustee's discretion [see Prob. Code §§ 15303(d) (beneficiary may compel trustee to pay income or principal of discretionary trust), 17200(b)(6) (petition for instructions to trustee)].

[3] Allegations

This petition alleges:

- The relevant trust provisions regarding distribution of income andprincipal for support of the beneficiary (Paragraph 6) [see Prob. Code § 15303]; and

- Facts describing the petitioner's need for invasion of the trust principal (Paragraph 7) [see Prob. Code § 15303; see also Estate of Ferrall (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 166, 168-169, 173-174, 258 P.2d 1009 (denying invasion of corpus)].

If the trust instrument provides that the trustee must pay to or for the benefit of a beneficiary so much of the income or principal or both as the trustee in its discretion sees fit to pay, a transferee or creditor of the beneficiary may not compel the trustee to pay any amount that may be paid only in the exercise of the trustee's discretion [*Prob. This petition alleges:

- The capacity of the petitioner and the creation of the trust (Paragraph 1) [see Prob. Code §§ 15200 (creation of trust), 17200(a) (standing to bring petition)];

- A description of the powers authorized by the trust (Paragraph 3) [see Estate of Keet (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 328, 330-331, 100 P.2d 1045 (interpreting former Prob. Code § 1120, now see Prob. Code § 17200(b)(6))]; and

- Facts requiring a grant of powers (Paragraphs 4-5) [see Prob. Code § 17200(b)(8)].

[4] Statement of Grounds and Persons Entitled to Notice

The petition must state facts showing that it is authorized under Prob. Code § 17200 et seq. [Prob. Code § 17201]. It must also state the name and address of each person entitled to notice of the petition (Paragraph 8) [Prob. Code § 17201]. Notice of a petition regarding a trust is governed by Prob. Code § 17203(a). For detailed discussion, see § 560.137[2]. For a notice form, see § 560.600.

[5] List of Beneficiaries

The petition must state the names and last known addresses of all vested or contingent beneficiaries, including all persons in being who may or will receive trust income or corpus. However, during the time that a trust is revocable and the person holding the power to revoke the trust is competent, the names and last known addresses of beneficiaries who do not hold the power to revoke do not need to be stated. Additionally, the petition does not need to state the name and last known address of any beneficiary who, under Prob. Code § 15804 (beneficiaries with a future interest in the trust), need not be given notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.902].

[6] Limitation on Exercise of Power

The grant of a power to a trustee, whether by the trust instrument, by statute, or by the court, does not in itself require or permit the exer cise of the power. The exercise of a power by a trustee is subject to the trustee's fiduciary duties [Prob. Code § 16202; see Prob. Code §§ 16000-16015 (fiduciary duties)]. Consequently, counsel may wish to obtain instructions prior to the exercise of a power that may possibly constitute a breach of a fiduciary duty [see Prob. Code § 17200(b)(6) (petition for instructions)].

[7] State Statutes

Fiduciary duties owed to beneficiaries. Prob. Code §§ 16000-16015

Relief by court of restrictions on power. Prob. Code § 16201

Exercise of powers subject to duties. Prob. Code § 16202

[8] Decisions

Petition by testamentary trustee for authorization to sell trust property as request to grant trustee powers not conferred in trust instrument. Estate of Keet (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 328, 100 P.2d 1045 (interpreting former Prob. Code § 1120, now see Prob. Code § 17200(b)(6))

[Verification. See § 560.521.]

CAUTION:
The petition must be verified [Prob. Code § 1021(a)(1)].

[2] Use of Form

This petition is for use by a trustee to tender the trustee's resignation from office[see Prob. Code §§ 15640(d) (resignation by court order), 17200(b)(11) (petition for resignation)]. It also contains optional allegations for the nomination of a successor trustee for use if (1) the resigning trustee seeks to nominate a successor or (2) an interested person or a person named as trustee in the trust instrument is petitioning to appoint a successor [see Prob. Code § 15660 (appointment of trustee to fill vacancy)]. In the prayer, the alternatives set forth in optional Paragraphs 2 are for use if the resigning trustee seeks to nominate a successor [see Prob. Code § 15660(d)] or there is no proceeding pending to appoint a successor trustee, and the resigning trustee wishes the court to appoint a temporary trustee [see Prob. Code § 15640(d)]. For a form for appointment of a successor trustee by a beneficiary or a cotrustee, see §§ 560.540 and 560.553, respectively.

[3] Allegations

This petition alleges the reason for the trustee's resignation (Paragraph 3) [see Prob. Code §§ 15640 (resignation of trustee), 17200(b)(11) (petition for resignation)]. The alternatives set forth in optional Paragraphs 4 are for use if the resigning trustee seeks to appoint a successor or the trustee is aware that an interested person or a person named as trustee in the trust instrument has initiated proceedings for the appointment of a successor [see Prob. Code § 15660 (appointment of successor)].

[4] Statement of Grounds and Persons Entitled to Notice

The petition must state facts showing that it is authorized under Prob. Code § 17200 et seq. [Prob. Code § 17201]. It must also state the name and address of each person entitled to notice of the petition (Paragraph 6) [Prob. Code § 17201]. Notice of a petition regarding a trust is governed by Prob. Code § 17203(a). For detailed discussion, see § 560.137[2]. For a notice form, see § 560.600.

[5] List of Beneficiaries

The petition must state the names and last known addresses of all vested or contingent beneficiaries, including all persons in being who may or will receive trust income or corpus. However, during the time that a trust is revocable and the person holding the power to revoke the trust is competent, the names and last known addresses of beneficiaries who do not hold the power to revoke do not need to be stated. Additionally, the petition does not need to state the name and last known address of any beneficiary who, under Prob. Code § 15804 (beneficiaries with a future interest in the trust), need not be given notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.902].

[6] Resignation of Trustee

A trustee who has accepted the trust may resign without a court order only as provided in the trust instrument or with consent of the person holding the power to revoke the trust, or if the trust is not revocable, the consent of all adult beneficiaries with certain rights under the trust or the consent of specified persons of their behalf [see Prob. Code § 15640(c); for discussion, see § 560.92]. Otherwise, the trustee must obtain a court order under Prob. Code § 15640(d), which provides that on the trustee's petition, the court must accept the trustee's resignation [Prob. Code § 15640(d); cf. former Prob. Code § 1138.8, which required that the trust be silent with respect to resignation]. The court may also make any orders necessary for the preservation of the trust property, including the appointment of a receiver or a temporary trustee [Prob. Code § 15640(d)].

[7] Appointment of Successor Trustee

If certain conditions are satisfied, including the failure of the trust instrument to name a successor trustee, any person named as trustee in the trust instrument may petition for appointing a successor [see Prob. Code § 15660(d)]. In addition, Prob. Code § 17200(a) states generally that a trustee or beneficiary of a trust may petition the court concerning the internal affairs of the trust; the appointment of a trustee is an enumerated purpose for a petition [see Prob. Code § 17200(b)(10)]. Consequently, this form includes an optional provision in which the resigning trustee either wishes to nominate a successor or makes known to the court that he or she is aware of a pending proceeding to appoint a successor trustee [see Prob. Code § 15660]. Whether a resigning trustee seeks to nominate a successor will depend largely on the circumstances surrounding the resignation. For example, a trustee who resigns for reasons that are not antagonistic to the trust may have specific reasons for seeking the appointment of a successor.

If the resigning trustee fails to nominate a successor and there is no proceeding pending to nominate a successor, the court in the petition for resignation may make any order necessary for the preservation of the trust property, including appointing a temporary trustee [Prob. Code § 15640(d)]. For further discussion of appointment procedures generally, see § 560.94[3].

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays for an order:

1. _____ [Fixing or Allowing] compensation to petitioner, as trustee, _____ [specify compensation being sought, e.g., in the amount of $_____ per year];

2. For costs herein; and

3. For such other orders as the court may deem proper.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[Verification. See § 560.521.]

CAUTION:
The petition must be verified [Prob. Code § 1021(a)(1)].

[2] Use of Form

This petition is for use by a trustee to obtain a court order fixing compensation if the trust is silent in that regard, or allowing compensation greater than that provided for in the trust instrument [see Prob. Code § 15680(b), (court allowance of greater compensation), 17200(b)(9) (petition to fix, allow, or review compensation)].

[3] Allegations

This petition alleges:

- The existence or nonexistence of trust provisions regarding compensation(Paragraph 3) [see Prob. Code § 15680 (trust provision for compensation), 15681 (no trust provision for compensation)];

- Facts explaining the need for the court to fix compensation or allow compensation greater than that provided for in the instrument (Paragraph 4) [see Prob. Code §§ 15680(b)(1) (change in compensation based on change in duties), 17200(b)(9) (petition to fix or allow compensation)]; and

- The amount of compensation requested (Paragraph 5) [see Prob. Code §§ 15680(b)(1) (change in compensation based on change in duties), 15682 (periodic prospective payments)].

[4] Statement of Grounds and Persons Entitled to Notice

The petition must state facts showing that it is authorized under Prob. Code § 17200 et seq. [Prob. Code § 17201]. It must also state the name and address of each person entitled to notice of the petition (Paragraph 6) [Prob. Code § 17201]. Notice of a petition regarding a trust is governed by Prob. Code § 17203(a). For detailed discussion, see § 560.137[2]. For a notice form, see § 560.600.

[5] List of Beneficiaries

The petition must state the names and last known addresses of all vested or contingent beneficiaries, including all persons in being who may or will receive trust income or corpus. However, during the time that a trust is revocable and the person holding the power to revoke the trust is competent, the names and last known addresses of beneficiaries who do not hold the power to revoke do not need to be stated. Additionally, the petition does not need to state the name and last known address of any beneficiary who, under Prob. Code § 15804 (beneficiaries with a future interest in the trust), need not be given notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.902].

[6] Compensation of Trustee

If the trust instrument provides for the trustee's compensation, the trustee is entitled to be compensated in accordance with the trust instrument, subject to Prob. Code § 15680(b) and except as provided in Prob. Code § 15688 (public guardian compensation) [Prob. Code § 15680(a)]. On proper showing, the court may fix or allow greater or lesser compensation than could be allowed under the terms of the trust in any of the following circumstances [Prob. Code § 15680(b)]:

- If the duties of the trustee are substantially different from those contemplated when the trust was created.

- If the compensation in accordance with the terms of the trust would be inequitable or unreasonably low or high.

- In extraordinary circumstances calling for equitable relief.

An order fixing or allowing greater or lesser compensation under Prob. Code § 15680(b) applies only prospectively to actions taken in administration of the trust after the order is made [Prob. Code § 15680(c)].

In determining or approving a trustee's compensation, the court may consider, among other factors, the following:

- The gross income of the trust estate;
- The success or failure of the trustee's administration;
- Any unusual skill, expertise, or experience brought to the trustee's work;
- The fidelity or disloyalty shown by the trustee;
- The amount of risk and responsibility the trustee assumed;
- The time spent in the performance of the trustee's duties;
- The custom in the community where the court is located as to compensation authorized by settlers, as to compensation allowed by the court, or as to charges of corporate trustees for trusts of similar size and complexity; and
- Whether the work the trustee performed was routine or required more than ordinary skill or judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.776].

For further discussion, see § 560.89.

CAUTION:

The petition, report, and account must be verified [Prob. Code § 1021(a)(1)].

[2] Use of Form

This petition is for use by a trustee to submit an account to the court [see Prob. Code § 17200(b)(5)].

The exhibits in this form may be adapted for use as an account and report submitted directly to the person entitled to it under Prob. Code §§ 16060, 16062, or former Prob. Code § 1120.1a (regarding trust removed from continuing jurisdiction under former law).

[3] When Account Required to be Filed With Court

The trustee is generally required to submit an account only to the person entitled to an accounting, rather than to file it with the court [see Prob. Code §§ 16060 (general duty to keep beneficiaries informed), 16061 (request by beneficiary), 16062 (duty to account annually, at termination of trust, and on change of trustees), 16064 (exceptions); see also Prob. Code § 15800 (person holding power to revoke trust entitled to rights otherwise afforded beneficiary); for further discussion, see § 560.80]. One circumstance under which a trustee would file an account with the court is pursuant to a court order compelling an account [see, e.g., Prob. Code § 17200(b)(7); see also §§ 560.540, 560.547, 17]. Moreover, a trustee may file an account with the court on the trustee's own petition, in order to obtain court supervision and approval of the account [see Prob. Code § 17200(b)(5)]. The trustee therefore might combine a petition rendering an account with request for other relief [see, e.g., Prob. Code § 17200(b)(4) (determination of distribution on termination of trust), 17200(b)(6) (instructions), 17200(b)(11) (resignation); see §§ 560.582, 560.554, and 24, respectively].

[4] Contents of Petition

The petition for approval of the account must include all of the following [Prob. Code § 1064(a); see Prob. Code § 39 ("fiduciary" means trustee)]:

- A description of all sales, purchases, changes in the form of assets, or other transactions occurring during the period of the account that are not otherwise readily understandable from the schedules;

- An explanation of any unusual items appearing in the account;

- A statement of all compensation paid from the assets subject to the account to the trustee or to the attorneys for the trustee other than pursuant to a prior court order (Paragraphs 9 and 10);

- A statement disclosing any family or affiliate relationship between the trustee and any agent hired by the trustee during the accounting period (Paragraph 8). For this purpose, "family" means a relationship created by blood or marriage, and "affiliate" means an entity that directly or indirectly through one or more intermediaries controls, is controlled by, or is under common control with, the trustee [Prob. Code § 1064(c)]; and

- An allegation disclosing whether all of the cash has been invested and maintained in interest bearing accounts or in investments authorized by law or the governing instrument, except for an amount of cash that is reasonably necessary for the orderly administration of the estate (Paragraph 12).

The trustee's account must include the following information [Prob. Code § 16063(a)]:

- A statement of receipts and disbursements of principal and income that have occurred during the last complete fiscal year of the trust or since the last account.

- A statement of the assets and liabilities of the trust as of the end of the last complete fiscal year of the trust or as of the end of the period covered by the account.

- The trustee's compensation for the last complete fiscal year of the trust or since the law account.

- The agents hired by the trustee, their relationship to the trustee, if any, and their compensation, for the last complete fiscal year of the trust or since the last account.

- A statement that the recipient of the account may petition the court pursuant to Prob. Code § 17200 to obtain a court review of the account and of the acts of the trustee.

- A statement that claims against the trustee for breach of trust may not be made after the expiration of three years from the date the beneficiary receives an account or report disclosing facts giving rise to the claim.

[5] Contents of Account

[a] In General

All accounts filed under the Probate Code are subject to the requirements of Prob. Code §§ 1060-1064, which became operative on July 1, 1997 [Prob. Code § 1060.5]. Accounts rendered by trustees must be presented in the manner provided in these sections [Prob. Code § 16062(a)]. In addition, Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.901 prescribes rules for trustee's accounts.

Every account filed under the Probate Code must include a financial statement and a report of administration as provided in Prob. Code §§ 1060-1064 [Prob. Code § 10900(a)]. Every account must also state the period that it covers, and contain a summary showing all of the following, to the extent applicable [Prob. Code § 1061(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.901(a)]:

- The property on hand at the beginning of the account period. If the account is the first account, this will be the value of the property initially received by the trustee [see Prob. Code § 39 ("fiduciary" includes trustee)]. If it is a subsequent account, it will be the property on hand at the end of the prior account [Prob. Code § 1061(a)(1)].

- The value of any assets received during the account period that are not assets on hand as of the commencement of the administration of an estate.

- The amount of any receipts of income or principal, excluding items listed under the first two categories immediately above (Schedules A and B) or receipts from a trade or business.

- Net income from a trade or business (Schedule D).

- Gains on sales (Schedule F).

- The amount of disbursements, excluding disbursements for a trade or business or distributions (Schedules C and D).

- Loss on sales (Schedule G).

- Net loss from trade or business (Schedule E).

- Distributions to beneficiaries (Schedule H).

- Property on hand at the end of the account period, stated at its carry value (Schedule I).

[b] Statutory Format

Prob. Code § 1061(b) establishes a statutory format for the account summary. The format prescribes specific categories of items that must be included, unless they are inapplicable [Prob. Code § 1061(b)]. These categories are as follows [Prob. Code § 1061(b)]:

CHARGES:
Property on hand at beginning of account (or Inventories) Additional property received (or supplemental inventories)
Receipts (Schedule _____)
Gains on Sale or Other Disposition (Schedule
_____)
Net income from trade or business (Schedule
_____)
Total Charges:
CREDITS:

Disbursements (Schedule _____)
Losses on Sale or Other Disposition (Schedule
_____)
Net loss from trade or business (Schedule
_____)
Distributions (Schedule _____)
Property on hand at close of account (Schedule
_____)
Total Credits:

Amounts must be shown for each of the categories in dollars [Prob. Code § 1061(b)]. "Net income" and "net loss" must be determined in accordance with general accounting principles and need not be the same as the "net income" and "net loss" reported on the tax returns for the account period [Prob. Code § 1061(d)]. The total charges must equal the total credits [Prob. Code § 1061(c)].

[c] Schedules of Receipts, Disbursements, Income or Loss, etc.

The summary of account [see Prob. Code § 1061] must be supported by detailed schedules showing the following [Prob. Code § 1062]:

- Receipts, showing the nature or purpose of each item, the source of the receipt, and the date (Schedules A and B).
- Disbursements, including the nature or purpose of each item, the name of the payee, and the date (Schedules C and D).
- Net income or loss from a trade or business. It will be sufficient if the summary provides the information disclosed on Schedule C or Schedule F of the federal income tax return (Schedule E).
- Calculation of gains or losses on sales or other dispositions (Schedules F and G).
- Distributions of cash or property to beneficiaries, showing the date and amount of each, with the distribution of property shown at its carry value (Schedule H).
- An itemized list of property on hand, describing each item at its carry value (Schedule I).

[d] Market Value of Assets

All accounts must also include an additional schedule showing the estimated market value of the assets on hand as of the end of the account period (Schedule J) [Prob. Code § 1063(a)]. If the account is not the first account, there must also be a schedule of the estimated market value of the assets on hand as of the beginning of the accounting period (Schedule K) [Prob. Code § 1063(a)]. The requirement of an estimated value of real estate, a closely held business, or other assets without a ready market may be satisfied by a good faith estimate by the trustee [Prob. Code § 1063(a)].

Additionally, if the guardian or conservator has knowledge of any real property of the conservatee or ward located in a foreign jurisdiction, the guardian or conservator must include an additional schedule that identifies the real property, provides a good faith estimate of the fair market value of the real property, and states what action, if any, will or has been taken to preserve and protect the real property, including a recommendation whether an ancillary proceeding is necessary to preserve and protect the real property [Prob. Code § 1063(h)].

[e] Purchases or Other Changes in Form of Assets

If there were purchases or other changes in the form of assets occurring during the account period, there must be a schedule showing these transactions [Prob. Code § 1063(b)]. However, no reporting is required for transfers between cash or accounts in a financial institution or money market mutual funds [Prob. Code § 1063(b); see Prob. Code § 8901(d) (appraisal of cash deposits and money market mutual funds)].

[f] Allocation of Receipts Between Principal and Income

If a trust will be distributed to an income beneficiary, there must be a schedule showing an allocation of receipts and disbursements between principal and income [Prob. Code § 1063(c); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.901(c)].

[g] Specifically Devised Property

If there is specifically devised property, there must be an additional schedule accounting for income, disbursements, and proceeds of sale pursuant to Prob. Code §§ 12002 and 16340(a) [Prob. Code § 1063(d)]. Prob. Code § 12002 prescribes rules for allocating income and expense to specific devises, and Prob. Code § 16340 prescribes rules for paying income and interest after death or end of income interest, including specific gifts, general pecuniary gifts, annuities, and gifts for maintenance.

[h] Interest on Pecuniary Devises and Annuities

If any interest has been paid or is to be paid to general pecuniary devises, annuities, or devises for maintenance, there must be a schedule showing the calculation of the interest [Prob. Code § 1063(e); see Prob. Code §§ 12003 (interest on general pecuniary devise), 12004 (interest on annuity), 12005 (interest on devise for maintenance), 16340(b) (interest after death or end of income interest)]. Interest on a general pecuniary gift distributable under a trust is not payable when the trust was created before the effective date of a prior version of Prob. Code § 16340(b) [Remsen v. Lavacot (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 421, 429, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 612 .

[i] Proposed Distributions

If the accounting contemplates a proposed distribution, there must be a schedule setting forth the proposed distribution, including the allocation of income required under Prob. Code § 12006 (Schedule M) [Prob. Code § 1063(f)]. Prob. Code § 12006 prescribes rules for distribution of net income received during administration and not otherwise devised. If the distributionrequires an allocation between trusts, the allocation must be set forth on the schedule, unless the allocation is to be made by a trustee after receipt of the assets. If the distribution requires valuation of assets as of the date of distribution, the schedule must set forth the fair market value of those assets [Prob. Code § 1063(f)].

[j] Liabilities

If at the end of the accounting period there are liabilities of the trust, except current or future periodic payments, including rent, salaries, utilities, or other recurring expenses, there must be a schedule showing the following (Schedule Q) [Prob. Code § 1063(g)]:

- All liabilities that are a lien on assets.
- Taxes due but unpaid as shown on filed returns or assessments received after the filing of returns.
- All notes payable.
- Any judgments for which the trust is liable.

- Any other material liability.

Monthly payments, including rent, utilities, salaries, or other recurring expenses need not be separately scheduled [Prob. Code § 1063(g)].

[k] Trustee Entitled to Rely on Account of Conservator or Guardian

When a trustee receives assets from the conservator of a deceased conservatee or the guardian of a deceased ward, the trustee may incorporate by reference any accounting provided by the conservator or guardian for the decedent for the period subsequent to the date of death [Prob. Code § 10902]. The trustee is entitled to rely on such an accounting and has no duty to independently investigate or verify the transactions report in it [Prob. Code § 10902].

[l] No Requirement for Other Information

Before the operative date of Prob. Code §§ 1060-1064 (January 1, 1997), some information in addition to that required by statute was required by local court rules. However, Prob. Code § 1060 explicitly states that Prob. Code §§ 1060-1064 govern all accounts to be filed with the court and that, except as specifically provided elsewhere in the code, or unless good cause is shown therefore, no information in addition to that required in Prob. Code §§ 1060-1064 need be in an account.

[m] Verification

All accounts must be verified [Prob. Code § 1021(a)(1)]. An account must be verified by the person who has the duty to make it or, if there are two or more parties with that duty, by any of them [Prob. Code § 1021(b)(2)].

[Verification. See § 560.521.]

CAUTION:
The petition must be verified [Prob. Code § 1021(a)(1)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use by a beneficiary to petition for modification of a trust to allow the trustee to accelerate distribution of the accumulated income prior to the time specified for distribution under the terms of the trust, on the ground that thebeneficiary requires the income for support or education [see Civ. Code § 726 (application of beneficiary to accelerate accumulated income for support or education), Prob. Code § 17200(b)(13) (petition for modification)].

Prior to the 1986 enactment of the Trust Law, relief under Civ. Code § 726 was probably initiated most commonly as an ordinary civil action by complaint. However, Prob. Code § 17200(a) now provides that a beneficiary or trustee may petition the court concerning the internal affairs of the trust. Although relief under Civ. Code § 726 is not specifically enumerated under Prob. Code § 17200, the list provided therein is not exclusive [see Prob. Code § 17200(b)].

[3] Allegations

This petition alleges (1) the trust terms regarding accumulated income (Paragraph 6) [see Civ. Code § 726] and (2) facts describing the beneficiary's need to accelerate distribution of the accumulated income (Paragraph 7) [see Civ. Code § 726 (acceleration of accumulated income); Prob. Code § 17200(b)(13) (petition for modification)].

[4] Statement of Grounds and Persons Entitled to Notice

The petition must state facts showing that it is authorized under Prob. Code §§ 17200 et seq. [Prob. Code § 17201]. It must also state the name and address of each person entitled to notice of the petition (Paragraph 8) [Prob. Code § 17201]. Notice of a petition regarding a trust is governed by Prob. Code § 17203(a). For detailed discussion, see § 560.137[2]. For a notice form, see § 560.600.

[5] List of Beneficiaries

The petition must state the names and last known addresses of all vested or contingent beneficiaries, including all persons in being who may or will receive trust income or corpus. However, during the time that a trust is revocable and the person holding the power to revoke the trust is competent, the names and last known addresses of beneficiaries who do not hold the power to revoke do not need to be stated. Additionally, the petition does not need to state the name and last known address of any beneficiary who, under Prob. Code § 15804 (beneficiaries with a future interest in the trust), need not be given notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.902].

5. _____ [Set forth further reasons, if any, for combination of trusts, e.g., Since the death of John Doe, petitioner, as trustee, has been directed to administer the trust described in Paragraph 2, above, in addition to the trust described in Paragraph 1, above, which petitioner has continually administered since _____ (date). Petitioner is presently administering the above-described trusts separately, and is subject to accounting requirements for different fiscal years for each trust. Petitioner's administrative duties would be simplified, and therefore less costly to the respective trusts, if petitioner were allowed to combine the trusts and administer them as one].

6. The names and last known addresses of all vested or contingent beneficiaries are as follows:

Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[Verification. See § 560.521.]

CAUTION:
The petition must be verified [Prob. Code § 1021(a)(1)].

[2] Use of Form

This petition is for use by a trustee to seek combination of two or more trusts [see Prob. Code §§ 15411 (grounds), 17200(b)(14) (petition)].

If the terms of two or more trusts are substantially similar, on petition by a trustee or beneficiary, the court, for good cause shown, may combine the trusts if the court determines that administration as a single trust will not defeat or substantially impair the accomplishment of the trust purposes or the interests of the beneficiaries [Prob. Code § 15411]. A living trust and testamentary trust may be combined [see Recommendation Proposing the Trust Law, 18 Cal. Law Revision Comm'n Reports 643 (1986)].

[3] Statement of Grounds and Persons Entitled to Notice

The petition must state facts showing that it is authorized under Prob. Code §§ 17200 et seq. [Prob. Code § 17201]. It must also state the name and address of each person entitled to notice of the petition (Paragraph 6) [Prob. Code § 17201]. Notice of a petition regarding a trust is governed by Prob. Code § 17203(a). For detailed discussion, see § 560.137[2]. For a notice form, see § 560.600.

[4] List of Beneficiaries

The petition must state the names and last known addresses of all vested or contingent beneficiaries, including all persons in being who may or will receive trust income or corpus. However, during the time that a trust is revocable and the person holding the power to revoke the trust is competent, the names and last known addresses of beneficiaries who do not hold the power to revoke do not need to be stated. Additionally, the petition does not need to state the name and last known address of any beneficiary who, under Prob. Code § 15804 (beneficiaries with a future interest in the trust), need not be given notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.902].

[5] Allegations

This petition alleges:

- The creation of the respective trusts, and the identity of the petitioner (Paragraphs 1-2) [see Prob.

Code § 17200(a) (standing), 17200(b)(14) (petition to combine trusts)];

- The basis for venue (Paragraph 3) [see Prob. Code §§ 17002 (principal place of administration), 17005 (venue for living trust or testamentary trust generally), 17301 (venue for testamentary trust subject to continuing jurisdiction of court); see also Prob. Code § 17004 (basis for venue based on Code Civ. Proc. § 410.10) and Comments to see § 560.521]; and

- Facts explaining the need for combination of the trusts (Paragraphs 4-5) [see Prob. Code § 15411].

_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[Verification. See § 560.521.]

CAUTION:
The petition must be verified [Prob. Code § 1021(a)(1)].

[2] Use of Form

This form of petition is for use by a trustee to obtain an ascertainment of beneficiaries and determination of the persons to whom property should pass or be delivered on final or partial termination of the trust, to the extent that the determination is not made by the trust instrument [see Prob. Code § 17200(b)(4); see also Lombardi v. Blois (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 191, 198, 40 Cal. Rptr. 899] .

[3] Statement of Grounds and Persons Entitled to Notice

The petition must state facts showing that it is authorized under Prob. Code § 17200 et seq. [Prob. Code § 17201]. It must also state the name and address of each person entitled to notice of the petition (Paragraph 6) [Prob. Code § 17201]. Notice of a petition regarding a trust is governed by Prob. Code § 17203(a). For detailed discussion, see § 560.137[2]. For a notice form, see § 560.600.

[4] List of Beneficiaries

The petition must state the names and last known addresses of all vested or contingent beneficiaries, including all persons in being who may or will receive trust income or corpus. However, during the time that a trust is revocable and the person holding the power to revoke the trust is competent, the names and last known addresses of beneficiaries who do not hold the power to revoke do not need to be stated. Additionally, the petition does not need to state the name and last known address of any beneficiary who, under Prob. Code § 15804 (beneficiaries with a future interest in the trust), need not be given notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.902].

[5] Allegations

This petition alleges:

- A description of the trust provision that requires interpretation (Paragraph 3) [see Lombardi v. Blois (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 191, 198, 40 Cal. Rptr. 899] ;

- A description of the termination of the trust (Paragraph 4); and

- A statement of the determination requested by the trustee (Paragraph 5) [see Prob. Code § 17200(b)(4)].

[6] Decisions

Distribution of trust property by right of representation (per stirpes) is antithesis of distribution to individual (per capita); per stirpes as meaning by or according to stock or root. Lombardi v. Blois (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 191, 198, 40 Cal. Rptr. 899

For return and response to the petition filed by the trustee for ascertainment of beneficiaries and distribution of property, _____ [name], as beneficiary under the _____ [written declaration of trust of _____ (name of settlor) or the will of _____ (name of settlor and testator), deceased or other as appropriate], admits, denies, and alleges:

1. Admits the allegations of Paragraphs _____ [specify, e.g., 1-7] of the petition.

2. _____ [Set forth here and in subsequent paragraphs, other general and specific admissions, denials, contravening allegations, and affirmative defenses as appropriate, e.g., Responding to Paragraph 8, denies that there is any merit or validity to the trustee's requested direction that trustee distribute a one-half share to the issue of Gregory Jones, and a one-half share to the issue of Betsy Jones Roe, to-wit: a one-eighth share to each of the following: Sarah Jones Doe, Grant Jones, Mary Jones, and the issue of James Jones, to-wit: Nora Jones and John Jones; and a one-half share divided equally between Howard Roe, Amy Roe Green, and Steven Roe].

[3. Alleges that the great-grandchildren of the settlor, to wit: Sarah Jones Doe, Grant Jones, Mary Jones, Howard Roe, Amy Roe Green, and Steven Roe are entitled to share in a per capita distribution of the described trust property and are each therefore entitled to a one-seventh share of the trust property, and that the issue of James Jones, to-wit: Nora Jones and John Jones, are each entitled to a one-half share in the portion to which James Jones would have been entitled, to-wit: a one-fourteenth share of the trust property.]

[Verification. See § 560.543.]

CAUTION:

The Trust Law is silent with respect to the filing of papers in response to a petition to administer a trust. Moreover, there do not appear to be any California Rules of Court or local court rules to provide guidance in this area, nor any uniformity with regard to the procedures presently used throughout California that would warrant the recommendation of one procedure for all jurisdictions. Counsel should therefore contact the appropriate court to ascertain whether any particular form of responsive papers is preferred by the local commissioner or judge, for example, a response, answer, or objection, with or without a memorandum of points and authorities [see Prob. Code § 1000 (applicability of rules of civil practice in probate proceedings)]. An objection or response filed pursuant to the Probate Code must be verified [Prob. Code § 1021(a)(2)].

[2] Use of Form

This response is for use by a beneficiary of a trust in response to a petition by a trustee seeking ascertainment of beneficiaries and distribution of property on final or partial termination of the trust [see Prob. Code § 17200(b)(4); see also Lombardi v. Blois (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 191, 198, 40 Cal. Rptr. 899] .

An irrevocable trust may also be modified or partially terminated on consent of the settlor and some beneficiaries if the proposed modification or partial termination does not substantially impair the interests of the nonconsenting beneficiaries [see Prob. Code § 15404(b)]. Further, a trust may be modified or terminated on petition of a trustee or beneficiary, based on circumstances not known to or anticipated by the settlor, if continuation of the trust under its terms would defeat or substantially impair accomplishment of the purposes of the trust [*Prob. [2] Use of Form

This is a filled-in reproduction of the approved Judicial Council Form of Petition and Order for Appointment of Guardian Ad Litem [Cal. Judicial Council Form DE-350, GC-100; see Prob. Code § 1003]. Use of the form is mandatory Cal. Rules of Court, Rules 1.31, 7.101]. The form is for use by a trustee or other person interested in the trust to seek appointment of a guardian ad litem to represent the interest of, for example, a minor, an incapacitated person, or an unborn person [see Prob. Code § 1003(a)]. This form may be obtained from any superior court county clerk. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The Judicial Council form includes not only the petition seeking the appointment of a guardian ad litem, but also a consent to act as a guardian ad litem (to be signed by the proposed guardian), an optional consent of the minor 12 years of age or older (to be signed by the minor), and the court's order.

[3] Appointment of Guardian ad Litem at Request of Trustee

At any stage of a proceeding under the Probate Code, the court may appoint a guardian ad litem to represent the interest of any of the following persons, if it determines that representation of the interest would otherwise be inadequate [Prob. Code § 1003(a)]:

- A minor.
- An incapacitated person.
- An unborn person.
- An unascertained person.
- A person whose identity or address is unknown.
- A designated class of persons who are not ascertained or are not in being.

The appointment may be made by the court on its own motion or on request of a personal representative, guardian, conservator, trustee, or other interested person [Prob. Code § 1003(a)]. If not precluded by a conflict of interest, a guardian ad litem may be appointed to represent several persons or interests [Prob. Code § 1003(b)].

The reasonable expenses of the guardian ad litem, including compensation and attorneys' fees, must be determined by the court and paid as the court orders, either out of the property of the estate involved or by the petitioner or from such other source as the court orders [Prob. Code § 1003(c)].

[4] Statement of Grounds and Persons Entitled to Notice

Proceedings concerning trusts are governed by Prob. Code §§ 17200-17211. The petition must state facts showing that it is authorized under these sections [Prob. Code § 17201]. It must also state the name and address of each person entitled to notice of the petition (see Paragraph 9) [Prob. Code § 17201]. The various grounds for the petition are set out in Prob. Code § 17200(b).

Notice of a petition regarding a trust is governed by Prob. Code § 17203(a). The court's order portion of the Judicial Council Form requires that the court find (1) that all notices required by law have been given, or (2) that notice has been dispensed with. For detailed discussion, see § 560.137[2].

[Verification. See § 560.521.]

CAUTION:
The petition must be verified [Prob. Code § 1021(a)(1)].

[2] Use of Form

This petition is for use by a trustee to seek to transfer the jurisdiction over a testamentary trust that is subject to continuing jurisdiction of the court to another county in California [see Prob. Code §§ 17200(b)(17), 17304; see also Prob. Code § 17300 (description of trusts subject to continuing jurisdiction)].

[3] Allegations

This petition alleges:

- The identity of the petitioner and the creation of the trust (Paragraph 1) [see Prob. Code §§ 15200 (creation of trust), 17200(a) (standing to bring petition)];
- The basis for venue (Paragraph 2) [see Prob. Code § 17301];
- The basis for continuing court jurisdiction (Paragraph 3) [see Prob. Code § 17300];
- A statement that final distribution of the estate has occurred (Paragraph 4) [see Prob. Code § 17304(a)];
- The county to which jurisdiction is sought to be transferred (Paragraph 5) [see Prob. Code § 17304(b)(1)];
- The names, ages, and residences of all trustees and all beneficiaries known to the petitioner (Paragraphs 6, 7) [see Prob. Code § 17304(b)(2)];
- A statement of the character, condition, and value of the trust property subject to transfer (Paragraph 8) [see Prob. Code § 17304(b)(3)]; and
- A statement of the reasons for the transfer (Paragraph 9) [see Prob. Code § 17304(b)(4) (requirement of statement), 17304(c) (grounds for transfer)].

[4] Statement of Grounds and Persons Entitled to Notice

The petition must state facts showing that it is authorized under Prob. Code § 17200 et seq. [Prob. Code § 17201]. It must also state the name and address of each person entitled to notice of the petition (Paragraph 8) [Prob. Code § 17201]. Notice of a petition regarding a trust is governed by Prob. Code § 17203(a). For detailed discussion, see § 560.137[2].

[5] List of Beneficiaries

The petition must state the names and last known addresses of all vested or contingent beneficiaries, including all persons in being who may or will receive trust income or corpus. However, during the time that a trust is revocable and the person holding the power to revoke the trust is competent, the names and last known addresses of beneficiaries who do not hold the power to revoke do not need to be stated. Additionally, the petition does not need to state the name and last known address of any beneficiary who, under Prob. Code § 15804 (beneficiaries with a future interest in the trust), need not be given notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.902].

[6] Granting of Order

If, after hearing, it appears to the court that the transfer of jurisdiction to the county designated in the petition or to any other county in California will be in the best interests of the estate, or that economical and convenient administration of the trust will be facilitated by the transfer, the court will make an order transferring jurisdiction over the trust [Prob. Code § 17304(c)].

[7] Transfer of Documents

After the order transferring jurisdiction is made, the court clerk will certify a copy of the order of transfer to the clerk of the court to which jurisdiction is transferred, together with copies of the instrument creating the trust, the decree of distribution, and any other documents or matters of record the court determines by order to be necessary to define the powers and duties of the trustee, or otherwise to be necessary in connection with further administration of the trust [Prob. Code § 17304(c)].

The court to which jurisdiction is transferred may from time to time require by order the filing of certified copies of additional papers or matters of record from the court in which the decedent's estate was administered as are required [Prob. Code § 17304(d)].

[8] Jurisdiction of Court To Which Trust Is Transferred

On the filing of a certified copy of the order of transfer, together with supporting documents, the court to which jurisdiction is transferred has the same jurisdiction over the trust as the court in which the decedent's estate was administered but for the transfer [Prob. Code § 17304(e)].

[9] Venue

If a trust described in Prob. Code § 17300 continues after distribution of the decedent's estate, the court in which the decedent's estate was administered retains jurisdiction over the trust and is the court in which to file the petition to transfer jurisdiction [see Prob. Code §§ 17200(b)(17), 17301].

[2] Use of Form

This petition is for use by a trustee to seek removal of a testamentary trust from the continuing jurisdiction of the court [see Prob. Code §§ 17200(b)(18), 17352]. It is for use only if no trustee of a trust described in Prob. Code § 17350 is a trust company, in which case approval of the court is required [Prob. Code § 17352(a); see Prob. Code § 17351 (notice procedure if trustee is trust company)]. Trusts described in Prob. Code § 17350 are those created by will executed before July 1, 1977, and not incorporated by reference in a will on or after July 1, 1977. The trustee may petition for court approval at any time, and from time to time, in the trustee's discretion [Prob. Code § 17352(a)].

A copy of the trust instrument must be attached to the petition [Prob. Code § 17352(b)].

[3] Allegations

This petition alleges:

- A statement that no trustee is a trust company (Paragraph 2) [see Prob. Code § 17352(a)]; and

[6] List of Beneficiaries

The petition must state the names and last known addresses of all vested or contingent beneficiaries, including all persons in being who may or will receive trust income or corpus. However, during the time that a trust is revocable and the person holding the power to revoke the trust is competent, the names and last known addresses of beneficiaries who do not hold the power to revoke do not need to be stated. Additionally, the petition does not need to state the name and last known address of any beneficiary who, under *Prob. [2] Use of Form

This petition is for use by a judgment creditor to seek an order to enforce a money judgment against the judgment debtor's interest as beneficiary of a trust by ordering the trustee to pay to the petitioner an amount from trust property otherwise payable to the beneficiary, to the extent allowable by the provisions for transfer restrictions under Prob. Code §§ 15300-15309 [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 695.030(b)(1) (interest in trust subject to enforcement of money judgment to extent provided by law), 709.010 (petition proceeding); see also Prob. Code §§ 15306.5 (satisfaction of judgment from payments to which beneficiary otherwise entitled), 15307 (excess of amount necessary for education and support subject to enforcement of judgment)]. This form provides examples for use to obtain the beneficiary's interest in income or in principal for distribution to the petitioner instead of the beneficiary. The form may also be adapted to seek imposition of a lien on the trust property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 709.010(b)].

[3] Allegations

The petition alleges:

- The petitioner's status as a judgment creditor (Paragraph 1) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 709.010(b)].

- The identity of respondents and a description of the trust (Paragraphs 2, 3) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 709.010].

- A description of the underlying judgment and the amount due thereon (Paragraphs 5, 6) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 709.010(b)].

- The terms of the trust agreement controlling the amount of income to which the beneficiary is entitled (Paragraph 7) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 695.030(b)(1) (interest in trust subject to enforcement of money judgment to extent provided by law), 709.010(b) (means of satisfying judgment by sale of beneficiary's interest, collection of trust income, and liquidation and transfer of trust, among others), Prob. Code §§ 15306.5 (beneficiary's interest subject to judgment creditor's petition), 15307 (excess of amount for education and support subject to judgment creditor's petition)].

Optional Paragraph 8 is for use to allege the amount required for the beneficiary's education and support [see Prob. Code § 15307 (excess of amount required for education and support subject to judgment creditor's petition)].

[4] Verification

Code Civ. Proc. § 709.010 does not require that the petition be verified.

[5] List of Beneficiaries

The petition must state the names and last known addresses of all vested or contingent beneficiaries, including all persons in being who may or will receive trust income or corpus. However, during the time that a trust is revocable and the person holding the power to revoke the trust is competent, the names and last known addresses of beneficiaries who do not hold the power to revoke do not need to be stated. Additionally, the petition does not need to state the name and last known address of any beneficiary who, under Prob. Code § 15804 (beneficiaries with a future interest in the trust), need not be given notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.902].

[6] Filing of Petition

This petition is filed in the court having jurisdiction over administration of the trust, as prescribed in Prob. Code §§ 17000-17457; that is, the appropriate probate court. For discussion of jurisdiction and venue under Prob. Code §§

17000-17457, see Subpart D, of this chapter.

[7] Trust Property Subject to Enforcement of Money Judgment Generally

Generally, an interest in a trust is subject to enforcement of a money judgment to the extent provided by law [Code Civ. Proc. § 695.030(b)(1)]. With the exception of a trust in which transfer of the beneficiary's interest is restrained, the entire interest of a beneficiary may be applied to the satisfaction of a money judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 709.010 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 695.030(a); see also Recommendation Proposing the Trust Law, 18 Cal. Law Revision Comm'n Reports 633-634 (1986); see also § 560.255]].

of claims against the deceased settlor of a revocable trust [see Prob. Code § 19020]. It is not necessary to file a copy of the trust with the petition or that the petition disclose the beneficial interests of the trust [Prob. Code § 19022(b)].

However, during the time that a trust is revocable and the person holding the power to revoke the trust is competent, the names and last known addresses of beneficiaries who do not hold the power to revoke do not need to be stated. The petition also does not need to state the name and last known address of any beneficiary who, under *Prob. [2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by a creditor to bring an action on a claim against the revocable trust of a deceased settlor when the claim has been rejected, in whole or in part, by the trustee [see Prob. Code § 19255].

For further discussion relating to actions on a rejected claim, including the prevailing party's right to recover costs and potential for recovery of litigation expenses including attorney's fees under Prob. Code § 19255(e), see § 560.254.

[3] Allegations

This complaint contains the following allegations:

- Description of the trust (Paragraphs 1-3);
- A claim was filed by the claimant (Paragraph 4);
- The claim was rejected by the trustee (Alternate Paragraphs 5); and
- The creditor has suffered damages (Paragraphs 6 and 7).

[4] Notice of Pendency of Action

The creditor must file a notice of pendency of the action with the court together proof of giving notice to the trustee [see Prob. Code § 19255(c)]. For a notice, see § 560.654.

[5] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is in the superior court and is not a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification also will preclude a general denial except in a limited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

[6] Venue

In addition to any other county in which an action on a rejected claim may be commenced, the action may be commenced in the county or city and county in which the principal place of administration of the trust is located [Prob. Code § 19255(b)].

[2] Use of Form

This form of petition is for use in obtaining an order allocating responsibility for debts between a decedent's revocable trust and his or her surviving spouse [see Prob. Code § 19320].

[3] Contents

This form includes the following:

- The petitioner's capacity and standing (Alternate Paragraphs 1);

- A statement of all debts of the decedent and surviving spouse known to the petitioner that are alleged to be subject to allocation and whether those debts have been paid in whole, paid in part, or have not been paid(Paragraph 2) [Prob. Code § 19321(a)];

- The reason why the debts should be allocated (Paragraph 3) [Prob. Code § 19321(b)]; and

- The proposed allocation and the basis for the allocation alleged by the petitioner (Paragraphs 4-6) [Prob. Code § 19321(c)], including an optional statement that the trustee, the personal representative, if any, of the decedent's estate, and the surviving spouse have agreed to the proposed allocation [Prob. Code § 19324].

The petition also includes an optional allegation to use when the petitioner is seeking an order to show cause why the surviving spouse should not file an inventory and appraisal of his or her own property (Optional Paragraph 7) [see Prob. Code § 19322].

[4] Verification

The petition must be verified [see Prob. Code § 1021; see also Prob. Code § 12 ("shall" is mandatory)]. If a verified petition is not opposed, it will be accepted as evidence [see Prob. Code § 1022].

[5] Venue

The petition is required to be filed in the superior court in the principal place of administration of the trust [see Prob. Code § 17000(a), 17002, 17005(a)(1)], unless there is no trustee, in which case it is filed in the county where the trust property, or some of it, is located [see Prob. Code § 17000(a), 17002, 17005(a)(2)].

[6] Notice of Hearing

At least 30 days before the time set for the hearing on the petition, the petitioner must cause notice of the time and place of the hearing and a copy of the petition to be served on the surviving spouse in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 413.10 et seq. for service of a summons, and mailed to specified other persons who are not petitioners [Prob. Code § 19323; see § 560.256[5]].

[7] List of Beneficiaries

The petition must state the names and last known addresses of all vested or contingent beneficiaries, including all persons in being who may or will receive trust income or corpus. However, during the time that a trust is revocable and the person holding the power to revoke the trust is competent, the names and last known addresses of beneficiaries who do not hold the power to revoke do not need to be stated. Additionally, the petition does not need to state the name and last known address of any beneficiary who, under Prob. Code § 15804 (beneficiaries with a future interest in the trust), need not be given notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.902].

[Verification, if desired. See § 560.520.]

CAUTION:
A complaint seeking preliminary injunction must either be verified or accompanied by affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5). The court may not grant a preliminary injunction unless the complaint or affidavits show that there are sufficient grounds for such an injunction [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; San Juan G. Co. v. San Juan R. etc. Assn. (1939) 34 Cal. App. 2d 159, 174, 93 P.2d 582] . For discussion, a procedural checklist, and additional forms necessary in order to obtain a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by a member of a nonprofit corporation administering the assets of a charitable trust to seek preliminary and permanent injunctions against breach of the trust [see Corp. Code §§ 5142(a)(1), 7142(a)(1); see also Civ. Code § 3422 (grounds for final injunction); Code Civ. Proc. § 526 (injunctive relief when obligation arises from a trust)]. Inasmuch as the action is derivative in nature, because it is brought on behalf of the corporation acting as trustee, the plaintiff must comply with the requirements for bringing a derivative suit [see Corp. Code §§ 5710, 7710]. For further discussion and forms for use in derivative actions under the analogous General Corporation Law, see Ch. 168, Corporations: Derivative Actions .

This form may be adapted for use by plaintiffs other than a member of the corporation [see Corp. Code §§ 5142(a), 7142(a) (standing of corporation, officer or director, person with reversionary, contractual or property interest in assets of trust, Attorney General or person granted relator status)].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges:

- The plaintiff's standing (Paragraph 1) [see Corp. Code §§ 5710(b)(2), 7710(b)(2)];
- The capacity and principal place of business of defendant corporation (Paragraph 2);
- The identities of additional defendants, such as directors or officers of the corporation, and their residences (Paragraphs 3 and 4);

- The nature and value of property held in trust (Paragraph 6);

- The provisions of the articles of incorporation or trust instrument relating to the corporation's charitable purposes (Paragraph 7);

- The charitable purposes of the corporation (Paragraphs 8 and 9);

- The facts concerning the transaction resulting in breach of the charitable trust (Paragraph 10);

- The efforts made by plaintiff to secure action by the directors, or the reasons why such efforts would be futile (Paragraph 12) [see Corp. Code §§ 5710(b)(2), 7710(b)(2)]; and

- Notice to the board of directors by the plaintiff concerning the facts of this cause of action (Paragraph 13) [see Corp. Code §§ 5710(b)(2), 7710(b)(2)].

Optional allegations are included for use if the action seeks to rescind or enjoin the performance of a contract (Paragraphs 5 and 11) [see Corp. Code §§ 5142(b)(1), 7142(b)(1); see § 560.679.[4]].

[4] Rescission or Injunction Against Performance of Contract

In an action under Corp. Code § 5142 or 7142 for breach of a charitable trust the court may not rescind or enjoin the performance of a contract unless (1) all of the contracting parties are parties to the action, (2) no party to the contract has, in good faith and without actual notice of the trust restriction, parted with value under or in reliance on the contract, and (3) it is equitable to do so [see Corp. Code §§ 5142(b), 7142(b)]. For discussion and forms relating to rescission of contracts in general, see Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution .

[5] Necessity for Alleging Capacity

Nonprofit public benefit corporations and municipal benefit corporations have the capacity to sue and be sued [see Corp. Code §§ 5004 (applicability of Code of Civil Procedure), 5140 (powers of public benefit corporation), 7140 (powers ofmunicipal benefit corporation)]. Technically, legal capacity need not be specifically alleged in a pleading, because lack of capacity, if apparent on the face of the complaint, should ordinarily be raised by an answer or demurrer [Los Angeles Railway Co. v. Davis (1905) 146 Cal. 179, 180-181, 79 P. 865] . However, the general practice appears to be to include allegations of capacity.

Allegations of the principal place of business of the corporate parties to an action are customarily included, although they are not necessary unless venue is based on location of the corporation's principal place of business [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 (corporate defendant); Corp. Code § 5068 (defining "proper county" regarding certain actions involving nonprofit corporations)].

[6] Jurisdiction

A derivative suit is an equitable action [see Gaillard v. Natomas Co. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 410, 419, 219 Cal. Rptr. 74] . Thus, the action is in the jurisdiction of the superior court and is not a limited civil case [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(b)].

[7] Notice to Attorney General

In an action brought to enjoin, correct, obtain damages for, or to otherwise remedy a breach of a charitable trust, the Attorney General must be given notice, and may intervene [Corp. Code §§ 5142(a), 7142(a)].

Relevant factors are any benefit received by the corporation and whether the interested director or directors acted in good faith and with intent to further the best interest of the corporation [Corp. Code § 5233(h)]. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, the court may order the director to do any or all of the following [Corp. Code § 5233(h)]:

Moreover, the court has discretion to grant exemplary damages for a fraudulent or malicious violation of Corp. Code § 5233.

[6] Venue

An action for damages based on the self-dealing of a director of a nonprofit corporation must be brought in the superior court of the county in which the corporation's principal office in California is located, or, if the corporation has no such office, in Sacramento County [Corp. Code § 5068, 5233(c)].

[8] Statute of Limitations

When brought by a party other than the Attorney General, the action must be filed within two years after written notice has been filed with the Attorney General setting forth the material facts of the transaction and the director's interest in it or, if no such notice is filed, within three years after the transaction occurred. The Attorney General may file the action within 10 years after the transaction occurred [Corp. Code § 5233(e)].

49-561 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 561.10

§ 561.10 Governing Law

The creation of constructive trusts is principally governed by Civ. Code §§ 2223 and 2224 [American Airlines, Inc. v. Sheppard, Mullin, Richter & Hampton (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1017, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 685 ; Burlesci v. Petersen (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1062, 1067, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 704 ; Communist Party v. 522 Valencia, Inc. (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 980, 990, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 618] . The imposition of constructive trusts is governed by a variety of common and statutory law, including the law of fraud, undue influence, mistake, accident, and breach of trust. Both the creation and imposition of constructive trusts are governed by the equitable principles of restitution and unjust enrichment [see Burlesci v. Petersen (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1062, 1067, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 704 ; Communist Party v. 522 Valencia, Inc. (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 980, 990, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 618] . Statutory law governing express trusts does not affect the substantive law relating to imposition of constructive trusts [Prob. Code § 15003(a); see Prob. Code § 82(b)(1) (term "trust" as used in Probate Code generally excludes constructive trusts)].

The imposition of a constructive trust in favor of a crime victim on the profits derived from the sale or transfer of anything that has enhanced value because of the notoriety gained from commission of the felony, is governed by Civ. Code § 2225. The Supreme Court of California has held that Civ. Code § 2225 is facially invalid under both the free speech clause of the First Amendment to the federal Constitution as applied to the states through the Fourteenth Amendment, and the liberty of speech clause of the California Constitution [Keenan v. Superior Court (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 413, 415-416, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 40 P.3d 718 ; see Cal. Const. art. I, § 2, subd. (a)].

Chapter 561 TRUSTS: CONSTRUCTIVE TRUSTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

49-561 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 561.11

§ 561.11 Constructive Trust as Equitable Remedy

A constructive trust is an involuntary equitable trust created by operation of law as a remedy to compel the transfer of property from a person who is wrongfully holding it to its rightful owner [Burlesci v. Petersen (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1062, 1067, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 704 ; Communist Party v. 522 Valencia, Inc. (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 980, 990, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 618] . The purpose of a constructive trust is to prevent unjust enrichment and to prevent a person from taking advantage of his or her own wrongdoing [Burlesci v. Petersen (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1062, 1067, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 704 ; Communist Party v. 522 Valencia, Inc. (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 980, 990, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 618] .

A plaintiff's claim for a constructive trust is, in effect, an action for possession of property [Olson v. Toy (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 818, 823, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29] . A constructive trust is not a true trust, but is an equitable remedy available to a plaintiff seeking to recover specific property in a number of different situations [Olson v. Toy (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 818, 823, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29] . A constructive trust may be imposed in practically any case in which there has been a wrongful acquisition or detention of property to which another is entitled [American Airlines, Inc. v. Sheppard, Mullin, Richter & Hampton (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1017, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 685 ; Burlesci v. Petersen (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1062, 1067, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 704] . A plaintiff's cause of action for a constructive trust is not based on the establishment of a trust, but consists of the fraud, breach of fiduciary duty, or other act of the defendant that entitles the plaintiff to some relief. This relief may be to make the defendant a constructive trustee with the duty to transfer the property to the plaintiff [Olson v. Toy (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 818, 823, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29] .

The equitable principles that one who wrongfully acquires or detains property of another holds the property as an involuntary constructive trustee for the owner are codified in Civ. Code §§ 2223 and 2224 [American Airlines, Inc. v. Sheppard, Mullin, Richter & Hampton (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1017, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 685 ; Burlesci v. Petersen (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1062, 1067, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 704 ; Communist Party v. 522 Valencia, Inc. (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 980, 990, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 618] .

49-561 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 561.12

§ 561.12 Involuntary Trust Created by Operation of Law

A constructive trust is an involuntary trust created by operation of law [Communist Party v. 522 Valencia, Inc. (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 980, 990, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 618] . Under the principles of constructive trusts, one who gains a thing by fraud, accident, mistake, undue influence, violation of a trust, or other wrongful act is, unless he or she has some other and better right thereto, an involuntary trustee of the thing gained, for the benefit of the person who would otherwise have had it [Civ. Code § 2224]. Also, one who wrongfully detains a thing is an involuntary trustee thereof for the benefit of the owner [Civ. Code § 2223].

In order to provide the necessary flexibility to apply an equitable doctrine to individual cases, Civ. Code §§ 2223 and 2224 state general principles for a court's guidance rather than restrictive rules [Martin v. Kehl (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 228, 237, 193 Cal. Rptr. 312] .

Chapter 561 TRUSTS: CONSTRUCTIVE TRUSTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

49-561 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 561.13

§ 561.13 Express and Resulting Trusts Distinguished

Because the concept of constructive trust is one of equitable remedy, the incidents of a constructive trust differ from those of an express or resulting trust [Haskel Eng'g & Supply Co. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1978) 78 Cal. App. 3d 371, 375, 144 Cal. Rptr. 189 ; see also Restatement of Restitution § 1, cmt. e, §§ 3 and 4, and § 160, cmts. a-c)].

Express or resulting trusts create substantive rights enforceable by various remedies [Haskel Eng'g & Supply Co. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1978) 78 Cal. App. 3d 371, 378, 144 Cal. Rptr. 189] .

Express and resulting trusts arise from the intention of the parties (express or implied) to set aside property under the stewardship of a trustee for the benefit of the beneficiary. An express trust establishes a fiduciary relationship, while a constructive trust does not. A constructive trust is imposed by a court of equity, independent of the intention of the parties, to prevent a party in possession of property from being unjustly enriched [see Del Costello v. State of California (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 887, 892, 185 Cal. Rptr. 582] . For discussion of the nature of express trusts and resulting trusts, see Ch. 560, Trusts: Express, Public, Charitable, and Totten Trusts , and Ch. 562, Trusts, Resulting Trusts ,, respectively.

§ 561.14 Obligations of Trustee

A constructive trust is a passive trust, and it has been held that the trustee's only duty is to convey the property to its rightful owner [Calistoga Civic Club v. City of Calistoga (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 111, 117, 191 Cal. Rptr. 571] . However, it has also been held that a constructive trustee has a duty to preserve the trust property because a constructive trust would lose its efficacy as a remedial device if a trustee were permitted to defeat recovery by wrongfully permitting the property to become valueless [Elliott v. Elliott (1964) 231 Cal. App. 2d 205, 209, 41 Cal. Rptr. 686] .

§ 561.16 Establishing Constructive Trust

[1] Summary of Elements

Under Civ. Code §§ 2223 and 2224 and the case law applying them, a constructive trust may only be imposed when the following three conditions are met: (1) the existence of property or some interest in property; (2) the plaintiff's right to that property; and (3) the defendant's wrongful acquisition or detention of the property [Burlesci v. Petersen (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1062, 1067, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 704 ; Communist Party v. 522 Valencia, Inc. (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 980, 990-991, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 618] .

[2] Existence of Trust Res

In establishing the existence of a trust res, a plaintiff must plead specifically identifiable trust property [In re Marriage of Buford (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 74, 79, 202 Cal. Rptr. 20 ; but see Douglas v. Superior Court (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 155, 160, 263 Cal. Rptr. 473 (pleading held sufficient although plaintiff did not identify specific property but only particular automobile and other specific categories of property acquired with funds due to plaintiff); see § 561.17]. A note evidencing indebtedness satisfies any technical requirement of Civ. Code §§ 2223 and 2224 that a thing, or a res, exist as an element of a constructive trust [see Elliott v. Elliott (1964) 231 Cal. App. 2d 205, 209, 41 Cal. Rptr. 686 (after note was held to be community property in divorce proceedings, husband, who allowed statute of limitations to run on the note, held constructive trustee of half the value of the debt evidenced by the note)].

[3] Adequacy of Legal Remedy

An action to establish a constructive trust does not depend on, and therefore a plaintiff need not plead, the absence of an adequate remedy at law [Bacon v. Grosse (1913) 165 Cal. 481, 493, 132 P. 1027 (court sitting in equity as acquiring jurisdiction of action not because damages at law would be inadequate, but because action is one to enforce constructive trust); GHK Assocs. v. Mayer Group, Inc. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 856, 878, 274 Cal. Rptr. 168 (noting that dictum in Allen v. Powell (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 502, 509, 56 Cal. Rptr. 715 , requiring inadequacy of legal remedy was rejected in Heckmann); Heckmann v. Ahmanson (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 119, 134, 214 Cal. Rptr. 177 (action in equity to establish constructive trust as not depending on absence of adequate legal remedy); see also Juranek v. Juranek (1938) 29 Cal. App. 2d 276, 280, 84 P.2d 195 (plaintiff as not required to plead absence of adequate legal remedy in equitable actions to establish constructive and resulting trusts)].

[4] Defendant's Gain

[a] By Fraud

In an action to impose a constructive trust on property acquired by another through fraud, a plaintiff must plead and prove a cause of action for fraud [Lazar v. Hertz Corp. (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 128, 139, 191 Cal. Rptr. 849 ; see Civ. Code § 2224]. The fraud may be actual or constructive [Briggs v. Nilson (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 342, 345-346, 38 Cal. Rptr. 68 ; see also Civ. Code § 1571]. Actual fraud is defined in Civ. Code § 1572, and constructive fraud is defined in Civ. Code § 1573 [see Civ. Code §§ 1572, 1573]. Thus, a constructive trust may be imposed on property acquired either through actual fraud in inducing a conveyance of real property, or through constructive fraud arising from a breach of an oral promise to reconvey real property, by a grantee who is in a confidential relationship with a grantor [Briggs v. Nilson (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 342, 345-346, 38 Cal. Rptr. 68] . A constructive trust may be imposed on aninterest in property acquired by a party's promise to convey without any intention of performing the promise [see Civ. Code § 1572(4); Helfrich v. Kerley (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 726, 728-729, 192 Cal. App. 2d 726, 13 Cal. Rptr. 753] . A constructive trust may also be imposed on funds paid to an automobile rental agency by its customers as a result of allegedly fraudulent overcharging of gasoline prices by the agency [Lazar v. Hertz Corp. (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 128, 139, 191 Cal. Rptr. 849] .

Equity will relieve an injured party from the effect of a judgment or decree procured by extrinsic fraud, that was not the result of negligence or laches on the part of the complainant [see Clavey v. Loney (1926) 80 Cal. App. 20, 24, 251 P. 232 (using term "resulting trust", but relying on cases that merely referred to "involutary trust"). For example, when, through extrinsic fraud practiced in probate proceedings, distributees have obtained property to which they are not entitled, equity will do justice, not by overthrowing the decree of distribution, but by declaring that the distributees hold the property in trust for the rightful owners [Sears v. Rule (1941) 45 Cal. App. 2d 374, 384, 114 P.2d 57] .

For a form of complaint to impose a constructive trust on real property acquired by fraud, see § 561.60. For a complete discussion and forms for use in pleading a cause of action for fraud, see Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit .

[b] By Mistake

In an action to impose a constructive trust on property acquired by another by mistake, a plaintiff must establish the existence of some interest in the property, the plaintiff's right to the interest in the property, and defendant's gain of the property by mistake [Kraus v. Willow Park Pub. Golf Course (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 354, 373, 140 Cal. Rptr. 744 ; see Civ. Code § 2224]. The mistake may be either of fact or of law [see Civ. Code § 1576]. Mistake of fact is defined in Civ. Code §§ 1577 and 1579, and mistake of law is defined in Civ. Code § 1578 [Civ. Code §§ 1577-1579].

Actions to impose constructive trusts on property acquired through mistake arise in a variety of contexts. For example, when a grantor, through a mistake of fact in drafting a deed, conveys real property to plaintiff and defendant as joint tenants, rather than solely to plaintiff, defendant holds his or her interest in the property as a constructive trustee for the plaintiff's benefit [Abbott v. Miller (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 595, 596, 220 P.2d 570] . A mistake of law that causes the erroneous computation of sales tax reimbursements and payments gives rise to an involuntary trust under Civ. Code § 2224, so that when a seller mistakenly collects from its customers and pays to the State Board of Equalization more sales taxes than it should have, both the seller and the Board become constructive trustees of the overage collected for the benefit of the seller's customers [Decorative Carpets, Inc. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 252, 254-255, 23 Cal. Rptr. 589, 373 P.2d 637 ; Javor v. State Bd. of Equalization (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 790, 798, 117 Cal. Rptr. 305, 527 P.2d 1153] . In addition, when the proceeds from a sale of property that is collateral for a loan are mistakenly paid to the debtor, the debtor holds the proceeds on a constructive trust for the benefit of the lender, who is the rightful owner of the collateral [People v. Newman (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 426, 430-431, 122 Cal. Rptr. 455] .

For a form of complaint to impose a constructive trust on property acquired by a mistake of fact, see § 561.62. For a complete discussion of and forms for use in pleading a cause of action for damages based on mistake, see Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake .

[c] By Accident

Accident appears to be rarely mentioned in case law as a basis for imposition of a constructive trust. When it is mentioned, it arises in connection with mistake. For example, if through accident, fraud, or mistake, distributees under a will hold property to which they are not entitled, equity will do justice, not by overthrowing the decree of distribution, but by declaring the distributees to be involuntary trustees, under Civ. Code § 2224, of the rightful owner of the property [Estate of Walker (1911) 160 Cal. 547, 549, 117 P. 510] .

[d] By Undue Influence

Undue influence consists of any of the following [Civ. Code § 1575]:

- The use, by a person in whom a confidence is reposed by another, or by a person who holds a real or apparent authority over another, of the confidence or authority for the purpose of obtaining an unfair advantage over the other person;
- Taking an unfair advantage of another person's weakness of mind; or
- Taking a grossly oppressive and unfair advantage of another person's necessities or distress.

Not all constructive trusts in property acquired through the exertion of undue influence require the existence of a confiden tial relationship [see Clark v. Pullins (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 703, 341 P.2d 73] . However, when undue influence is alleged to be the result of a confidential relationship between parties to a transaction, and the relationship is not presumptively confidential, a plaintiff must plead facts showing the existence of a confidential relationship [see Johnson v. Clark (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 529, 534, 61 P.2d 767] .

A constructive trust in favor of the beneficiaries of a decedent's will may also be sought under Prob. Code § 850 et seq. (petition by personal representative or interested person, to claim property for estate when another claims title to or possesses the property) against property acquired by undue influence and which another possesses or claims title to [see Estate of Aiello (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 669, 672-673, 676-677, 165 Cal.Rptr. 207 ; see generally Ch. 440, Probate : Is Probate Necessary? et seq. regarding forms of petition and order].

For a form of complaint to impose a constructive trust on property acquired by undue influence, see § 561.63. For a complete discussion of and forms for use in pleading a cause of action for damages based on undue influence, see Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake .

[e] By Violation of Trust

Confidential and fiduciary relations are synonymous in law, and may be said to exist whenever trust and confidence are reposed by one person in the integrity and fidelity of another. Thus, the breach of trust contemplated by Civ. Code § 2224 need not be a breach of an express or oral trust, but may arise from breach of a confidential relationship [see South v. Wishard (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 276, 284, 303 P.2d 805] .

For example, a constructive trust will be imposed on property acquired in violation of a confidential relationship between stepfather and daughter by virtue of the stepfather's failure to perform his agreement with his wife to bequeath certain of her separate property to the daughter [Redke v. Silvertrust (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 94, 106, 98 Cal. Rptr. 293, 490 P.2d 805] . A constructive trust will also be imposed on property acquired by a bank loan officer in violation of his fiduciary relationship with the bank when the property acquired consists of gratuities and commissions received from customers in exchange for approving their loans [Bank of Am. v. Ryan (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 698, 706, 24 Cal. Rptr. 739] .

Similarly, when partners or joint venturers have agreed to buy a specific parcel of real property, and one partner or joint venturer, in breach of a fiduciary duty, wrongfully acquires the property in his or her own name, the other partner or joint venturer may bring an action to impose a constructive trust and requiring the wrongdoing partner or joint venturer to convey the appropriate share of the legal title [BGJ Assocs. v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 952, 970, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693] .

An action to impose a constructive trust may also be based on a breach of fiduciary duty by a trustee of an express trust [Ehret v. Ichioka (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d 637, 643, 55 Cal. Rptr. 869 ; see Prob. Code §§ 16002 (duty of loyalty to beneficiary), 16004 (duty to avoid conflict of interest with beneficiary); see generally Ch. 560, Trusts: Express, Public, Charitable and Totten Trusts , regarding the duty of a trustee of an express trust]. A beneficiary of an express trust must use petition proceedings under the Trust Law to compel redress of a breach of trust concerning the internal affairs of the trust by any available remedy [Prob. Code §§ 17000, 17200(a), (b)(12); see Ch. 560, Trusts: Express, Public, Charitable and Totten Trusts, § 560.545].

For a form of complaint to impose a constructive trust on funds acquired through the violation of a trust, see § 561.64. For further discussion of which relationships are confidential and the elements of a confidential relationship, together with forms of allegations for use in establishing theexistence of confidential relationships, see Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake .

[f] By Violation of Secret Trust

A constructive trust may be imposed when property is unconditionally willed to a person based on that person's promise to the testator to hold the property in trust for another [Estate of Everts (1912) 163 Cal. 449, 454, 125 P. 1058 ; Prior v. Andrews (1927) 83 Cal. App. 782, 790, 257 P. 560] . Thus, if a testator is induced to make a will, or not change a will after it has been made, by a promise on the part of a legatee that he or she will devote the legacy to an agreed purpose, a secret trust is created, the terms of of which may be enforced by the mechanism of a constructive trust [Sears v. Rule (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 131, 139, 163 P.2d 443 ; Prior v. Andrews (1927) 83 Cal. App. 782, 790, 257 P. 560] . The promise on the part of the legatee that he or she will perform the secret trust may be express or implied and may be proved by extrinsic evidence [Estate of Sargavak (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 314, 321, 259 P.2d 897 ; Prior v. Andrews (1927) 83 Cal. App. 782, 790, 257 P. 560] .

For a form of complaint for imposing a constructive trust on property gained by violation of a secret trust, see § 561.65.

[g] By Other Wrongful Acts

A constructive trust may be imposed in practically any case when there is a wrongful acquisition or detention of property to which another is entitled [Weiss v. Marcus (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 590, 600, 124 Cal. Rptr. 297 ; see, e.g., Douglas v. Superior Court (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 155, 160, 263 Cal. Rptr. 473 (cause of action for constructive trust that incorporated allegations of causes of action for fraud, conspiracy, and racketeering was sufficient)]. For example, property obtained through duress or menace, defined in Civ. Code § 1569 and Civ. Code § 1570 respectively, may be subject to a constructive trust [see Clark v. Pullins (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 703, 708-709, 341 P.2d 73] . A constructive trust may be imposed on profits held by one who deprived another of contract rights, whether by breach of contract, tortious interference with the contract, or conspiracy inducing breach of the contract [GHK Assocs. v. Mayer Group, Inc. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 856, 878, 274 Cal. Rptr. 168] . The wrongful act giving rise to a constructive trust need not amount to fraud or intentional misrepresentation. All that must be shown is that the acquisition of the property was wrongful and that the keeping of the property by the defendant would constitute unjust enrichment [Nguyen v. Scott (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 725, 737-740, 253 Cal. Rptr. 800 (breach by seller's broker of duty of honesty and fair dealing owed to potential purchasers arising from broker's failure to communicate their offer to seller and eventual purchase of the property for less than amount of that offer as "other wrongful act" within meaning of Civ. Code § 2224); Calistoga Civic Club v. City of Calistoga (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 111, 116, 191 Cal. Rptr. 571] .

Thus, in a case giving rise to a resulting trust, the court also found the imposition of a constructive trust proper against property wrongfully detained by defendant in violation of her promise to convey it (and transfer half of the proceeds to plaintiff) after vacating the premises. The court based its finding on the fact that defendant would be unjustly enriched if she were allowed to retain the property [Martin v. Kehl (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 228, 238, 193 Cal. Rptr. 312] .

Usually, however, constructive trusts based on property acquired through "other wrongful acts" under Civ. Code § 2224 are imposed on property acquired through criminal acts. For example, if a defendant embezzles money from his or her employer, the employer may impose a constructive trust on the proceeds acquired with the funds [Church v. Bailey (1949) 90 Cal. App. 2d 501, 503-504, 203 P.2d 547] . Additionally, if a beneficiary of a life insurance policy murders the insured, the murderer will be deemed the constructive trustee of the proceeds of the policy either for an alternative beneficiary or for the estate of the insured [Beck v. West Coast Life Ins. Co. (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 643, 645-646, 241 P.2d 544] . For a form of complaint to impose a constructive trust on the proceeds of embezzled funds, see § 561.61.

§ 561.17 Proceeds of Trust Property

A constructive trust extends to property acquired in exchange for the wrongfully acquired property [Coppinger v. Superior Court (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 883, 891, 185 Cal. Rptr. 24] .

A constructive trust also extends to the profit on and enhancement in value of the property traced into the trust [Haskel Eng'g & Supply Co. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1978) 78 Cal. App. 3d 371, 375, 144 Cal. Rptr. 189 (citing Restatement Restitution § 160, com. h; § 205)]. The beneficiary of the constructive trust is entitled to the enhancement in the value of the trust property not because he or she has a substantive right to it but rather to prevent unjust enrichment of the wrongdoer/constructive trustee [Haskel Eng'g & Supply Co. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1978) 78 Cal. App. 3d 371, 378, 144 Cal. Rptr. 189] .

§ 561.18 Rights of Bona Fide Purchasers for Value

Former Civ. Code §§ 856 and 2243, which provided in essence that any trust could not prejudice the rights of transferees of the trust property who purchased their interest for value and without notice of the trust, were repealed in 1986. However, the result remains the same because under the common law, as well as other statutory provisions, bona fide purchasers and mortagees of property subject to a constructive trust take the property free of the trust [see Murphy v. Clayton (1896) 113 Cal. 153, 158, 45 P. 267 ; see also Civ. Code § 1214 (real property; priority to good faith purchasers or mortgagees for value who record first); Com. Code § 2403 (bona fide purchasers of personal property may take good title); see also Prob. Code § 18100 (bona fide purchaser fully protected in dealing withtrustee under express trust); 18 Cal. Law Rev Comm'n Reports 501, 793 (1986)]. The grant of protection to bona fide purchasers is in accord with the position of the Restatement [see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 408].

As against a bona fide purchaser for value, a beneficiary of a constructive trust has no remedy, but instead must seek a personal remedy against the trustee [see § 561.26[6]].

A transferee of constructive trust property who is not a bona fide purchaser for value is chargeable as the trustee and may, like the trustee, be either compelled by the beneficiary to reconvey the property or sued by the beneficiary for the value of the property if the transferee conveys it to a bona fide purchaser. A transferee who takes with knowledge of the trust is liable even though he or she acted in good faith or without the intention of perpetrating a wrong [Lucas v. Associacao Protectora Uniao MadeirenseDo Estado Da Cal. (1943) 61 Cal. App. 2d 344, 351-352, 143 P.2d 53] .

§ 561.19 Jurisdiction

[1] Real Property

Actions to impose constructive trusts on real property are within the equity jurisdiction of the superior court and cannot be brought as limited civil cases [see Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(b), 580(b)(3)].

[2] Personal Property

Actions to impose constructive trusts on personal property are limited civil cases if the amount, or value of the property, in controversy does not exceed $25,000, exclusive of interest [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1), 86(b); see Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 580(a) (court may impose liability on legal or equitable principles)].

If the amount of personal property involved exceeds $25,000, the superior court has jurisdiction of an action to impose a constructive trust, and it can not be brought as a limited civil case [see Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1), 86(b)].

[3] Probate Proceedings

In addition, the superior court sitting in probate has jurisdiction over an heir's action to impose a constructive trust on property held individually by the executor of the estate while probate proceedings are pending [Bauer v. Bauer (1927) 201 Cal. 267, 271-272, 256 P. 820 ; see Estate of Aiello (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 669, 165 Cal. Rptr. 207] .

49-561 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 561.20

§ 561.20 Venue

Venue in an action to impose a constructive trust turns on whether the action is a local action, a transitory action, or a "mixed" action. If the action is primarily one for the determination of a right and interest in real property, the action is essentially local, and venue is properly laid in the county in which the real property, or part of it, is located [see Franco Western Oil Co. v. Cameron (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 37, 40, 19 Cal. Rptr. 304 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. 392(a)]. If the action does not primarily involve the determination of a right and interest in real property, it is essentially transitory, and venue is properly laid in the county of the defendant's residence [see Neet v. Holmes (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 605, 611, 122 P.2d 557 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]. If one cause of action requests two distinct types of relief, one local and one transitory, the principal relief sought will be determinative of the nature of the action and hence its venue [see Neet v. Holmes (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 605, 611, 122 P.2d 557 (principal relief sought was accounting, and determination of interest in real property was incidental); Franco W. Oil Co. v. Cameron (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 37, 40, 19 Cal. Rptr. 304 (principal relief sought was imposition of constructive trust on interest in real property, even though accounting was sought incidentally thereto)]. For a discussion of the nature of actions as either local or transitory, see Ch. 571, Venue .

When a defendant is sued in an official capacity as executor, administrator, guardian, conservator, or trustee on a claim for the payment of money or for the recovery of personal property, the county that has jurisdiction of the estate which the defendant represents is the proper county for trial of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.1].

§ 561.21 Lis Pendens

The purpose of a lis pendens is to give constructive notice of an action affecting real property to persons who subsequently acquire an interest in the property, so that any judgment in the action will be binding on those persons, even if they acquire their interest before judgment is rendered [Kirkeby v. Superior Court (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 642, 647, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 805, 93 P.3d 395] . A party may not file a notice of lis pendens unless the party pleads a cause of action that affects title to specific real property [Gale v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1388, 1395, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 554] , and a party is not entitled to a lis pendens in an action in which the only relief sought is money damages [Palmer v. Zaklama (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1367, 1381, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116] . A fraudulent conveyance action seeking avoidance of a transfer of title of specific real property under Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(1) is a real property claim for purposes of the lis pendens statute [Kirkeby v. Superior Court (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 642, 652, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 805, 93 P.3d 395] .

If a pleading combines theories of liability for monetary damages and for a constructive trust, the plaintiff is not entitled to a lis pendens, because that might provide an unscrupulous plaintiff with a powerful lever to force the settlement of a groundless or malicious suit [BGJ Assocs. v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 952, 972, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693] . A lis pendens is a provisional remedy that must be applied narrowly [BGJ Assocs. v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 952, 967, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693] . For example, a lis pendens is not available in an action by a trustee requesting the imposition of a constructive trust and an equitable lien on the defendant's house for the amount of money that the defendant used to make improvements to the house, which the defendant allegedly obtained by exercising undue influence over the deceased trustor [Campbell v. Superior Court (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 904, 916-922, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 68] .

A motion to expunge a lis pendens may be filed on any of the following grounds: (1) invalid service of the notice of recordation [see Code Civ. Proc. § 405.22]; (2) failure to plead a real property claim [see Code Civ. Proc. § 405.31]; (3) failure to establish the probable validity of the real property claim [see Code Civ. Proc. § 405.32]; or (4) a showing that adequate relief can be secured to the claimant by giving an undertaking [see Code Civ. Proc. § 405.33]. If a motion to expunge is filed, the plaintiff has the burden of showing that the complaint sets forth a real property claim [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 405.30, 405.31]. The plaintiff's purpose in filing the lis pendens is irrelevant [Kirkeby v. Superior Court (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 642, 649-650, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 805, 93 P.3d 395] . A showing of good faith and a proper purpose are insufficient to defeat a motion to expunge if the claim does not allege a real property claim [Palmer v. Zaklama (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1367, 1378, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116] . The plaintiff must also establish, by a preponderance of the evidence, the probable validity of the real property claim [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 405.30, 405.31, 481.190]. This requires the court to consider the merits of the plaintiff's claim [Kirkeby v. Superior Court (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 642, 651, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 805, 93 P.3d 395] . Even if the plaintiff shows a probably valid claim, the court may still order expungement of the lis pendens if adequate relief for the plaintiff can be secured by giving an undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.33].

If the court finds that the plaintiff has not met this burden, the court must grant the motion to expunge. It may not refuse to grant the motion pending the outcome of the plaintiff's appeal, unless it finds that this ruling will "probably" be overturned on appeal [Mix v. Superior Court (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 987, 994-996, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 826] .

§ 561.22 Burden of Proof

One who claims the ownership of property the legal title to which is in the name of another, and who asserts that the property is held by that person in trust for the claimant, must establish the claim by clear, satisfactory, and convincing evidence. This burden of proof applies in an action to impose a constructive trust. Whether the claimant meets the burden is primarily a question for the trial court to determine. If there is substantial evidence to support its conclusion, the determination is not open to review on appeal. Similarly, the credibility and weight of the evidence are questions exclusively for determination by the trial court [Taylor v. Polackwich (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 1014, 1022, 194 Cal. Rptr. 8 ; *but see Liodas v. Sahadi (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 278, 287, 292, 137 Cal. § 561.23 Statute of Frauds

The statute of frauds does not apply to a constructive trust, because the trust is created by operation of law and is therefore exempt from the provisions of the statute. Thus, a constructive trust relating to real property need not be created, granted, assigned, surrendered, or declared in writing in order to be valid [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1972(b); see also South v. Wishard (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 276, 285, 303 P.2d 805 (based on former Civ. Code § 852 (now see Prob. Code § 15206))].

§ 561.24 Parol Evidence

Trusts in personal property may be proved by parol evidence [In re Kellogg (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 833, 841, 107 P.2d 964] .

Generally, in an action to impose a constructive trust on real property, parol evidence is admissible not for the purpose of contradicting the deed conveying the property, but for the purpose of explaining the transactionsout of which the equity supporting imposition of the constructive trust arises [Brison v. Brison (1888) 75 Cal. 525, 533, 17 P. 689] .

Parol evidence is thus admissible to prove that real property is held by a grantee in constructive trust and to prove the terms of the trust, even though the conveyance of the property is in writing, absolute in its terms, and purports, on its face, to convey an estate in fee. However, in order that the property may be impressed with a constructive trust, the trust must be created and its terms agreed on prior to or at the time of execution of the conveyance [Kingsley v. Carroll (1951) 106 Cal. App. 2d 358, 362-363, 234 P.2d 1039] .

Parol evidence is also admissible to establish an oral employment contract for the purpose of showing a relationship between parties to a transaction for the sale of real property, the fiduciary duty arising therefrom, and to establish a constructive trust based on violation of that fiduciary duty [Walter H. Leimert Co. v. Woodson (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 186, 190-191, 270 P.2d 95] .

§ 561.25 Statute of Limitations

Because a constructive trust is a remedy, rather than a trust, a cause of action seeking the remedy is based on some act other than the imposition of the trust. Therefore, in an action for the imposition of a constructive trust, the statute of limitations to be applied is determined by the nature of the right sued on, not by the form of the action or the relief sought [Davies v. Krasna (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 502, 515-516, 121 Cal. Rptr. 705, 535 P.2d 1161 ; Day v. Greene (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 404, 411, 29 Cal. Rptr. 785, 380 P.2d 385] .

An action to impose a constructive trust on real property has been held to be an action for the recovery of real property within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 318, prescribing a five-year period of limitation [Coppinger v. Superior Court (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 883, 891, 185 Cal. Rptr. 24 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 318].

However, when the gist of an action is fraud, regardless of the form, the three-year period of limitation prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d) applies, and this limitation period applies in an action, based on fraud, to establish a constructive trust in real property [Security First Nat'l Bank v. Ross (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 424, 429-430, 29 Cal. Rptr. 538 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)]. The period does not commence to run until the aggrieved party knows or should know of the fraud [Security First Nat'l Bank v. Ross (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 424, 429-430, 29 Cal. Rptr. 538 ; Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)]. However, a cause of action to declare a constructive trust in favor of the rightful owner of property acquired by another through fraud arises at the time of acquisition by the latter if, for example,there is no concealment of facts surrounding the fraud and the facts are known or should have been known to the aggrieved party at the time the property was acquired by the constructive trustee [Bell v. Bayly Bros. (1942) 53 Cal. App. 2d 149, 159, 127 P.2d 662 ; see Security First Nat'l Bank v. Ross (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 424, 430-431, 29 Cal. Rptr. 538] .

Similarly, an action to impose a constructive trust that is based on mistake is governed by the three-year limitation period in Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d). The action is commenced in time if the complaint is filed within three years after discovery of the facts constituting the mistake [Nevarez v. Nevarez (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 596, 602, 21 Cal. Rptr. 70 ; Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)].

The imposition of a constructive trust in an action in which the limitation period is not otherwise provided for by statute is governed by the four-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 343 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 343]. This limitation period applies in all suits in equity not strictly of concurrent cognizance in law and equity [Nelson v. Nevel (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 132, 140, 201 Cal. Rptr. 93] . Thus, in an action by one partner to a nonmarital relationship to impose a constructive trust on, and thereby obtain her interest in, real property acquired through the mutual efforts of both partners during their cohabitation, but to which legal title was recorded in the other partner's name only, the court applied the four-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 343 [Nelson v. Nevel (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 132, 138, 140, 201 Cal. Rptr. 93] .

No repudiation of the law-imposed constructive trust is necessary to set the appropriate statute of limitations in motion [Security First Nat'l Bank v. Ross (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 424, 431, 29 Cal. Rptr. 538] .

For a discussion of and forms for use in raising the bar of the statute of limitations, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions .

49-561 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 561.26

§ 561.26 Relief Available

[1] Generally

The matter of determining the appropriate equitable relief to be granted to a beneficiary of a constructive trust is generally left to the good judgment of the trial court. From the very nature of equity, a wide play is left to the court in formulating its decree, so that justice may be effectually carried out [Rivero v. Thomas (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 225, 238, 194 P.2d 533] .

[2] Election of Remedies

A plaintiff seeking restitutionary relief through the imposition of a constructive trust generally cannot also obtain a remedy at law for damages. Damages and restitution are alternative remedies, and an election to pursue one is a bar to invoking the other [Weightman v. Hadley (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 598, 607, 248 P.2d 801] .

[3] Conveyance of Trust Property

The theory of a constructive trust was adopted by equity as a remedy to compel one party to restore property to which he or she is not justlyentitled, to another [Fowler v. Fowler (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 741, 744, 39 Cal. Rptr. 101] . Thus, one type of relief usually granted in establishing and enforcing a constructive trust is a court order of conveyance of the trust property to the person entitled to it [Calistoga Civic Club v. City of Calistoga (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 111, 117, 191 Cal. Rptr. 571 ; see Michaelian v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1114, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 133 (dicta)].

[4] Equitable Lien

A court may impose a lien on the trust property to secure payment of a judgment, including interest and costs of suit. However, punitive damages, even though properly awarded in an action to impose a constructive trust, may not be secured by a lien without special statutory provision therefor [Rivero v. Thomas (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 225, 239, 194 P.2d 533 ; see also Calistoga Civic Club v. City of Calistoga (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 111, 117, 191 Cal. Rptr. 571] .

[5] Charitable Trust

A court may also achieve an equitable result by imposing a charitable trust on the trust property [Calistoga Civic Club v. City of Calistoga (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 111, 117, 191 Cal. Rptr. 571 (imposition of constructive charitable trust on title to property of private civic club as justified to prevent club's unjust enrichment in club's action to discontinue city's use of building on property as public library)].

[6] Money Judgments

The constructive trustee is usually personally liable in damages for his or her acts, although the one whose property has been taken is not relegated to a personal claim against the wrongdoer. However, the beneficiary of the constructive trust cannot have both a judgment declaring the defendant to be a constructive trustee and a personal judgment for money invested in the subject property [Fowler v. Fowler (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 741, 744-745, 39 Cal. Rptr. 101] .

Courts have also recognized the rights of a constructive trust beneficiary to obtain a money judgment in lieu of destroyed trust property, and to recover the value of trust property commingled by a constructive trustee with the trustee's own property, so that the identity of the trust property could no longer be traced [Elliott v. Elliott (1964) 231 Cal. App. 2d 205, 209-210, 41 Cal. Rptr. 686] .

When the trust property has been sold to a bona fide purchaser for value, the constructive trust beneficiary may either hold the trustee for the proceeds of the sale or sue for the reasonable value of the trust property [Johnson v. Clark (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 529, 536, 61 P.2d 767] . On the other hand, if the purchaser had knowledge of the plaintiff's interest in the property and purchased it anyway, a constructive trust may be imposed on rents and profits derived from the property [GHK Assocs. v. Mayer Group, Inc. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 856, 878-880, 274 Cal. Rptr. 168 (property transferred in breach of development agreement)].

The beneficiary of the constructive trust is also entitled to the profit on and enhancement in the value of the trust property [Haskel Eng'g & Supply Co. v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1978) 78 Cal. App. 3d 371, 375, 144 Cal. Rptr. 189 ; see also § 561.17].

[7] Injunctive Relief

Preliminary injunctive relief is available to prevent destruction of a plaintiff's equitable remedy of constructive trust [Heckmann v. Ahmanson (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 119, 135-136, 168 Cal. App. 3d 119, 214 Cal. Rptr. 177 (preliminary relief as proper to prevent dissipation of trust res and to preserve res to enable plaintiffs to trace its proceeds); see Cramer v. Biddison (1968) 257 Cal. App. 2d 720, 727, 65 Cal. Rptr. 624 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 526 (grounds for preliminary injunctive relief)].

For further discussion of and forms for use in obtaining preliminary and permanent injunctive relief, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[8] Punitive Damages

A court may award punitive damages in an action to impose a constructive trust when under all the circumstances of the case such an award is not unjust and unreasonable. As a general rule, courts of equity will not award exemplary damages, although this rule is not without exception [Rivero v. Thomas (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 225, 239, 194 P.2d 533 ; see Civ. Code § 3294].

§ 561.27 Defenses

[1] Laches

Laches may bar relief in equity whether or not the statute of limitations has run on the action at law [Martin v. Kehl (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 228, 241, 193 Cal. Rptr. 312] .

The defense of laches requires unreasonable delay in bringing suit, coupled with either acquiescence in the act about which plaintiff complains or prejudice to the defendant resulting from the delay. The prejudice is never presumed, but rather must be affirmatively demonstrated by the defendant to sustain his or her burdens of proof and production of the evidence on the issue. The beneficiary of a constructive trust will not be barred by laches even though he or she knows of the circumstances giving rise to the trust when he or she has no reason to believe that the constructive trustee is holding the property adversely [Martin v. Kehl (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 228, 241, 193 Cal. Rptr. 312] .

[2] Bona Fide Purchaser for Value

That one is a bona fide purchaser for value and without notice is a defense in an action by a beneficiary against a transferee of trust property [see § 561.18].

[3] Unclean Hands

Given the equitable nature of the constructive trust doctrine, a constructive trust will not be imposed if the claimant has unclean hands [Taylor v. Fields (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 653, 666, 224 Cal. Rptr. 186] . Any unconscionable conduct may give rise to the unclean hands defense [Taylor v. Fields (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 653, 666, 224 Cal. Rptr. 186 (claimant in adulterous relationship with person through whom she claimed right to property)].

49-561 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 561.28

§ 561.28 Sale of Felon's Item Enhanced by Notoriety of Crime

[1] Profits Subject to Involuntary Trust

NOTE:

The Supreme Court of California has held that Civ. Code § 2225 is facially invalid under both the free speech clause of the First Amendment to the federal Constitution as applied to the states through the Fourteenth Amendment, and the liberty of speech clause of the California Constitution [Keenan v. Superior Court (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 413, 415-416, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 40 P.3d 718 ; see Cal. Const. art. I, § 2, subd. (a)].

All "profits" derived from the sale or transfer of certain items by a convicted felon, as defined in Civ. Code § 2225(a)(10) [see § 561.28[3][f]], are subject to an involuntary trust for the benefit of the beneficiaries described in Civ. Code § 2225(a)(4) [Civ. Code § 2225(b)(2); see § 561.28[3][i]]. However, in the case of a sale or a transfer by a profiteer of a felony [see Civ. Code § 2225(a)(3)(B) ("profiteer of the felony" defined); for discussion, § 561.28[3][h]], the portion of the profits that represents the inherent value of the memorabilia, property, or thing sold or transferred, exclusive of the enhancement to the value due to the notoriety of the convicted felon, may be excluded from the involuntary trust [Civ. Code § 2225(b)(3)].

This statutory scheme also provides that all proceeds from the preparation for the purpose of sale, the sale of rights to, or the sale of materials that include or are based on the depiction, portrayal, or reenactment of a felony for which a felon was convicted, are subject to an involuntary trust for the benefit of such beneficiaries [Civ. Code § 2225(b)(1); see also Civ. Code § 2225(a)(9) ("proceeds" defined)]. However, the California Supreme Court in 2002 ruled that this part of the statute is unconstitutional on its face. Because this provision imposes content-based financial penalties on protected speech, it must be narrowly tailored to meet a compelling state interest. The Court held that the provision is overinclusive in attempting to further the compelling state interest in preventing criminals from profiting from their crimes, and in compensating crime victims from those profits, because the provision confiscates all income from all expressive materials, whatever their general themes or subjects, that include significant discussion of their creators' past crimes [Keenan v. Superior Court (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 413, 417-418, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 40 P.3d 718] .

The Supreme Court's ruling does not prevent the victim of a felon, as a judgment creditor, from reaching a convicted felon's assets, including those derived from expressive materials that describe the crime, by generally applicable remedies for the enforcement and satisfaction of judgments [see Keenan v. Superior Court (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 413, 436 n.21, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 40 P.3d 718 ; see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 481.010 et seq.; Code Civ. Proc. § 680.010 et seq.].

For a form of complaint to recover profits from the sale or transfer of items, the value of which was enhanced by the notoriety gained from commission of a crime, see § 561.66.

[2] Duration of Trust; Escheat of Remaining Funds

The involuntary trust imposed by Civ. Code § 2225 continues until five years after the time of payment of the profits to the felon, or five years after the date of conviction, whichever is later. If an action is filed by a beneficiary to recover his or her interest in a trust within the five-year period, the trust character of the property continues until the conclusion of the action [Civ. Code § 2225(b)(2)].

At the end of the five-year trust period, any profits that have not been claimed by a beneficiary are transferred to the Controller, to be allocated to the Restitution Fund for the payment of claims under Gov. Code § 13969 (state restitution payments to crime victims) [Civ. Code § 2225(b)(2)]. For discussion of procedures for restitution claims by crime victims, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

[3] Definitions

[a] Convicted Felon

"Convicted felon" means any person convicted of a felony, or found not guilty by reason of insanity of a felony committed in California, either by a court or jury trial, or by entry of a plea in court [Civ. Code § 2225(a)(1)].

[b] Felony

"Felony" means a felony defined by any California or United States statute [Civ. Code § 2225(a)(2)].

[c] Materials

"Materials" means books, magazine or newspaper articles, movies, films, videotapes, sound recordings, interviews or appearances on television and radio stations, and live presentations of any kind [Civ. Code § 2225(a)(6)].

[d] Story

"Story" means a depiction, portrayal, or reenactment of a felony, and does not mean a passsing mention of the felony, as in a footnote or bibliography [Civ. Code § 2225(a)(7)].

[e] Sale

"Sale" includes lease, license, or any other transfer or alienation taking place in California or elsewhere [Civ. Code § 2225(a)(8)].

[f] Profits

"Profits" means all income from anything sold or transferred, by the felon, a representative of the felon, or a profiteer of the felony, including any right, the value of which is enhanced by the notoriety gained from the commission of a felony for which a convicted felon was convicted [Civ. Code § 2225(a)(10)]. The income may have been accrued, earned, or paid before or after the conviction. However, voluntary donations or contributions to a defendant to assist in the defense of criminal charges are not deemed "profits," provided the donation or contribution is not given in exchange for some material of value [Civ. Code § 2225(a)(10)].

[g] Representative of Felon

"Representative of the felon" means any person or entity receiving proceeds by designation, on behalf, or instead of that felon, whether by the felon's designation or by operation of law [Civ. Code § 2225(a)(3)(A)].

[h] Profiteer of Felony

"Profiteer of the felony" means any person who sells or transfers for profit any memorabilia or other property or thing of the felon, the value of which is enhanced by the notoriety gained from the commission of the felony for which the felon was convicted [Civ. Code § 2225(a)(3)(B)]. However, this definition does not apply to the following:

- Any media entity reporting on the felon's story or on the sale of the materials, memorabilia, or other property or thing of the felon [Civ. Code § 2225(a)(3)(B)].

- The sale of books, magazine or newspaper articles, movies, films, videotapes, sound recordings, interviews or television or radio appearances, or live presentations of any kind when the seller is exercising his or her First Amendment Rights [Civ. Code § 2225(a)(3)(B), (6)].

- The sale or transfer by a profiteer of any other expressive work protected by the First Amendment unless the sale or transfer is primarily for a commercial or speculative purpose [Civ. Code § 2225(a)(3)(B)].

[i] Beneficiary

"Beneficiary" means a person who, under applicable law, other than the provisions of Civ. Code § 2225, has or had a right to recover damages from the convicted felon for physical, mental, or emotional injury, or pecuniary loss proximately caused by the convicted felon as a result of the crime for which the felon was convicted [Civ. Code § 2225(a)(4)(A)].

If a beneficiary has died, "beneficiary" also includes a person or estate entitled to recover damages pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 377.10 et seq. (survival actions) [Civ. Code § 2225(a)(4)(B)].

If a person has died and the death was proximately caused by the convicted felon as a result of the crime for which the felon was convicted,"beneficary" also includes a person described in Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60 (actions for wrongful death) and any beneficiary of a will of the decedent who had a right under that will to receive more than 25 percent of the value of the decedent's estate [Civ. Code § 2225(a)(4)(C)].

[j] Beneficiary's Interest

"Beneficiary's interest or profits" means that portion of the proceeds necessary to pay the following:

- In the case of a beneficiary described in Civ. Code § 2225(a)(4)(A) or (B), those damages which, under applicable law other than Civ. Code § 2225, the beneficiary has or had a right to recover from the convicted felon for injuries proximately caused by the convicted felon as a result of the crime for which the felon was convicted [Civ. Code § 2225(a)(5)(A)].

- In the case of a beneficiary described in Civ. Code § 2225(a)(4)(C), those damages which under all the circumstances of the case may be just [Civ. Code § 2225(a)(5)(B)].

A beneficiary's interest is reduced by the following amounts:

- Money paid to the beneficiary from the Restitution Fund because of the crime for which the felon was convicted [Civ. Code § 2225(a)(5)(C)(i)].

- Money paid to the beneficiary by the convicted felon because of a requirement of restitution imposed by a court in connection with the crime for which the felon was convicted [Civ. Code § 2225(a)(5)(C)(ii)].

- Money paid to the beneficary because of a judgment against the convicted felon based on the crime for which the felon was convicted [Civ. Code § 2225(a)(5)(C)(iii)].

In the case of an unsatisfied existing judgment or order of restitution against the convicted felon and in favor of a beneficary, any money paid to the beneficary under Civ. Code § 2225 must be applied to reduce the amount of the unsatisfied judgment or order [Civ. Code § 2225(a)(5)(D)].

[4] Procedure

[a] Action by Beneficiary

Any beneficiary may bring an action against a convicted felon, representative of the felon, or profiteer of the felony to recover his or her interest in the trust established by Civ. Code § 2225 [Civ. Code § 2225(c)(1)].

[b] Jurisdiction and Venue

The beneficiary may bring the action in the superior court of the county in which the beneficiary resides, in which the convicted felon resides, or in which the proceeds or profits are located [Civ. Code § 2225(c)(2)].

[c] Statute of Limitations

Although the statutory language is not entirely clear, it appears that an action by a beneficiary to recover his or her interest in an involuntary trust under Civ. Code § 2225 must be brought within the five-year trust period described in Civ. Code § 2225(b) [see § 561.28[2]]. The right of recovery under Civ. Code § 2225 is not limited by any period of limitations except those provided by Civ. Code § 2225 [Civ. Code § 2225(h)].

[d] Order for Payment From Profits

If the court determines that a beneficiary is entitled to profits pursuant to Civ. Code § 2225, the court must order the payment from profits that have been received, and, if that is insufficient, from profits that may be received in the future [Civ. Code § 2225(c)(3)].

[e] Apportionment of Profits Among Beneficiaries

If there are two or more beneficiaries and if the available profits are insufficient to pay all beneficiaries, the profits must be equitably apportioned among the beneficiaries, taking into account the effect of the crime on them [Civ. Code § 2225(d)].

[f] Priority of Payment of Profits

Before any distribution of any profits to a beneficiary, the court must determine whether the convicted felon has failed to pay any portion of a restitution fine or penalty fine imposed by a court, or any restitution imposed as a condition of probation. The court must also determine whether the felon is obligated to reimburse a governmental entity for the costs of his or her defense and whether a portion of the proceeds is needed to cover his or her reasonable attorney's fees incurred in the criminal proceeding related to the felony, in any appeal or other related proceeding, or in the defense of the action brought under Civ. Code § 2225 [Civ. Code § 2225(d)].

The court must order payment of the foregoing obligations prior to any payment to a beneficiary, except that 60 percent of the profits must be reserved for payment to the beneficiaries [Civ. Code § 2225(d)].

[5] Action by Attorney General

The Attorney General may bring an action to require profits received by a convicted felon to be held in an express trust in a bank authorized to act as a trustee [Civ. Code § 2225(e)(1)]. If the Attorney General prevails in the action, the court will order that all profits be deposited in a bank and held by the bank as trustee of the trust until an order of disposition is made by a court pursuant to Civ. Code § 2225(d), or until the expiration of the period specified in Civ. Code § 2225(b) [see Civ. Code § 2225(e)(3)]. If the Attorney General prevails, the court must also order the payment of reasonable costs and attorney's fees to the Attorney General from the profits [Civ. Code § 2225(e)(4)].

An action by the Attorney General under Civ. Code § 2225(e) must be brought within one year after the receipt of the profits by the convicted felon, or one year after the date of conviction, whichever is later [Civ. Code § 2225(e)(2)].

[6] Preliminary Injunctive Relief

On motion of any party in an action brought to obtain payment from the involuntary trust, the court must grant a preliminary injunction to prevent any waste of profits if it appears that they are subject to the trust and that they may be subject to waste [Civ. Code § 2225(f)(1); see Civ. Code § 2225(a)(10) ("profits" defined); see also § 561.28[3][f]]. On motion of the Attorney General or any potential beneficiary, the court must grant a preliminary injunction against a person against whom an indictment or information for a felony has been filed in superior court to prevent any waste of profits if there is probable cause to believe that the profits would be subject to an involuntary trust on conviction of the person and that they may be subject to waste [Civ. Code § 2225(f)(2)].

[7] Violation of Court Order as Contempt

Any violation of a court order made under Civ. Code § 2225 is punishable as contempt [Civ. Code § 2225(g)].

[8] Remedies Cumulative

The remedies available under Civ. Code § 2225 are in addition to other remedies provided by law [Civ. Code § 2225(h)].

49-561 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 561.41

§ 561.41 Decisions

[1] Accrual of Cause of Action

Accrual of cause of action to impose constructive trust based on fraud and mistake; knowledge of facts constituting breach of trust. Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 559, 305 P.2d 20 (fraud and mistake); Marshall v. Marshall (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 232, 250-251, 42 Cal. Rptr. 686 (constructive fraud)

[2] Attorney's Fees

Award of attorney's fees from constructive trust property is not unreasonable in action by plaintiff for benefit of himself and defendant investors, rather than for plaintiff's own right or exclusive benefit, and when plaintiff as well as defendant investors benefited as result of action. Churchill v. Peters (1943) 57 Cal. App. 2d 521, 531-532, 134 P.2d 841

[3] Burden of Proof

Degree of proof required in action to impose constructive trust is clear and convincing evidence; mere preponderance of evidence is not sufficient. Cameron v. Crocker-Citizens Nat'l Bank (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 940, 943-944, 97 Cal. Rptr. 269

[4] Jurisdiction

In action to impress constructive trust on sums received by defendants from estate, court as properly retaining jurisdiction to amend judgment to include further damages. Day v. Sharp (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 904, 912, 123 Cal. Rptr. 918

[5] Limitation of Actions

Three-year period of limitation prescribed by former Code Civ. Proc. § 338(4) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)) as applicable when constructive fraudis gravamen of action, even though breach of contract is involved. Day v. Greene (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 404, 411, 29 Cal. Rptr. 785, 380 P.2d 385

Nature of right sued on, rather than form of action or relief demanded, as determining applicability of particular statute of limitations. Jefferson v. J.E. French Co. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 717, 718-719, 7 Cal. Rptr. 899, 355 P.2d 643

Repudiation as not necessary to start running of statute of limitations against constructive trustee; statute as running from time beneficiaries knew or should have known of trustee's wrongful act. Bainbridge v. Stoner (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 423, 429, 106 P.2d 423

Statute of limitations ordinarily commences to run on right to enforce constructive trust from time beneficiary has knowledge of wrongful holding of property. Martin v. Kehl (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 228, 240, 193 Cal. Rptr. 312

Proc. § 338(d). Triplett v. Williams (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 135, 137, 74 Cal. Rptr. 594*

[6] Lis Pendens

Fraudulent conveyance action seeking avoidance of a transfer of title of specific real property under Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(1) is real property claim for purposes of lis pendens statute. Kirkeby v. Superior Court (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 642, 652, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 805, 93 P.3d 395

Lis pendens is not available in trustee's action requesting imposition of constructive trust and equitable lien on defendant's house for amount of money defendant used to make improvements to house, which defendant allegedly obtained by exercising undue influence over deceased trustor. Campbell v. Superior Court (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 904, 916-922, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 68

Plaintiff may not file notice of lis pendens unless plaintiff pleads cause of action that affects title to specific real property. Gale v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1388, 1395, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 554

Plaintiff is not entitled to lis pendens in action in which only relief sought is money damages. Palmer v. Zaklama (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1367, 1381, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116

Plaintiff's entitlement to constructive trust is not determinative of whether plaintiff may maintain a lis pendends. BGJ Assocs. v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 952, 970, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693

When pleading combines theories of liability for money damages and for constructive trust, plaintiff should not be allowed to maintain lis pendens. BGJ Assocs. v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 952, 972, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693

Constructive trust claim does not support a lis pendends. Lewis v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1850, 1862-1863, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 63 (rejecting contention that plaintiff was entitled to lis pendens in action to impose constructive trust on property purchased with stolen funds)

Expungement of lis pendens proper when purpose of constructive trust on real property is only to secure payment of debt. LaPaglia v. Superior Court (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1322, 1329, 264 Cal. Rptr. 63 ; Urez v. Superior Court (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1141, 1149, 235 Cal. Rptr. 837 ; Deane v. Superior Court (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 292, 297, 210 Cal. Rptr. 406 ; Burger v. Superior Court (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 1013, 1017-1019, 199 Cal. Rptr. 227 (all criticizing Coppinger v. Superior Court (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 883, 891, 185 Cal. Rptr. 24 , which held action to impose constructive trust on real property as action affecting title to or possession of real property in which lis pendens may properly be filed).

[7] Other Wrongful Acts

Triable issues of fact as presented whether property was wrongfully acquired by law firm that previously represented partners and used confidentialinformation regarding partnership's negotiations for purchase of property, which was obtained by firm member who was limited partner. Tri-Growth Ctr. City, Ltd. v. Silldorf, Burdman, Duignan & Eisenberg (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1139, 1154, 265 Cal. Rptr. 330

[8] Preemption by Federal Law

Mere fact that Federal Employees' Group Life Insurance Act (5 U.S.C. §§ 8701-8716) contains no anti-attachment provision is insufficient to support conclusion that constructive trust may be imposed on proceeds of insurance policy issued under act, under California law consistently with act's provisions; imposition of constructive trust under California law on proceeds of policy is preempted by 5 C.F.R. § 870.902, providing for change of beneficiary at any time and without knowledge or consent of previous beneficary, and prohibiting waiver or restriction of right. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. McShan (N.D. Cal. 1983) 577 F. Supp. 165, 167, 169

Imposition of constructive trust under California law (former Civ. Code § 2224) on proceeds of check cashed and wrongfully retained by debtor's lessor is unenforceable in bankruptcy proceeding if imposition of trust conflicts with distribution of funds contemplated by Bankruptcy Act in case at bar. In re Esgro, Inc. (9th Cir. 1981) 645 F.2d 794, 797-798

[9] Proceeds or Profits Subject to Involuntary Trust

Supreme Court of California has held that Civ. Code § 2225 is facially invalid under both free speech clause of First Amendment to federal Constitution as applied to states through Fourteenth Amendment, and liberty of speech clause of California Constitution [Keenan v. Superior Court (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 413, 415-416, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 40 P.3d 718] .

[10] Purpose of Remedy

[11] Resulting Trust Distinguished

Purpose of constructive trust is to prevent unjust enrichment and to prevent a person from taking advantage of his or her own wrongdoing. Burlesci v. Petersen (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1062, 1067, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 704 ; Communist Party v. 522 Valencia, Inc. (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 980, 990, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 618

Constructive trust is not a true trust, but is an equitable remedy available to a plaintiff seeking to recover specific property in a number of different situations. Olson v. Toy (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 818, 823, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29

[12] When Imposition Improper

When A agrees to sell property to B and B agrees to sell it to C, and both sales are executed through single escrow, property is subject to judgment liens against B, even though B put up no money for property which was paid for entirely by C, and neither resulting trust nor constructive trust arises in favor of C. Majewsky v. Empire Constr. Co., Ltd. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 478, 483-486, 85 Cal. Rptr. 819, 467 P.2d 547

Shareholder does not own any part of specific property of corporation, and thus, did not meet "entitlement to res" criteria for imposition of constructive trust on real property transferred by corporation in allegedly fraudulent merger. Pacific Lumber Co. v. Superior Court (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 371, 377-378, 276 Cal. Rptr. 425

Imposition of constructive trust on real property transferred by corporation in allegedly fraudulent merger/exchange of shares was improper when subsidiary that got title to property was not wrongdoer; corporate veil would not be pierced to impute parent corporation's alleged wrongdoing to subsidiary; even if merger was rescinded, constructive trust could only be imposed on shares held by parent corporation. Pacific Lumber Co. v. Superior Court (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 371, 377-378, 276 Cal. Rptr. 425

[13] When Imposition Proper

Constructive trust is appropriate remedy for business partner's breach of fiduciary duty in failing to inform other partner of offer for partnership property considerably greater than value placed on property during dissolution negotiations. Lund v. Albrecht (9th Cir. 1991) 936 F.2d 459, 464

When partners or joint venturers have agreed to buy specific parcel of real property, and one partner or joint venturer, in breach of fiduciary duty, wrongfully acquires property in his or her own name, the other partner or joint venturer may bring an action to impose a constructive trust and requiring the wrongdoing partner or joint venturer to convey the appropriate share of legal title. BGJ Assocs. v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 952, 970, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693

Under Civ. Code §§ 2223 and 2224 and case law applying them, a constructive trust may only be imposed when the following three conditions are met: (1) the existence of property or some interest in property; (2) the plaintiff's right to that property; and (3) the defendant's wrongful acquisition or detention of the property. Burlesci v. Petersen (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1062, 1067, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 704 ; Communist Party v. 522 Valencia, Inc. (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 980, 990-991, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 618

Court may impose constructive trust on gains resulting from attorney's breach of fiduciary duty to client. David Welch Co. v. Erskine & Tulley (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 884, 894, 250 Cal. Rptr. 339

Although judgment affirmed on resulting trust theory, trial court findings supported imposition of constructive trust in plaintiff's favor for one-half interest in real property when each party supplied half of down payment, defendant to take title and make payments in lieu of rent, and plaintiff to receive one-half proceeds when defendant vacated premises. Martin v. Kehl (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 228, 238, 193 Cal. Rptr. 312

State of California (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 887, 895, 185 Cal. Rptr. 582*

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use to bring an action to impose a constructive trust on and to compel reconveyance of real property acquired through fraud based on a promise made without the intention of performing it [see Civ. Code §§ 1710(4), 2224]. The form is adapted from the facts in Helfrich v. Kerley (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 726, 13 Cal. Rptr. 753 .

CAUTION:

A complaint seeking preliminary injunctive relief must be either verified or accompanied by affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc.§ 2015.5) in support of the allegations of the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E. H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; San Juan Gold Co. v. San Juan Ridge Mut. Water Ass'n (1939) 34 Cal. App. 2d 159, 174, 93 P.2d 582] . For discussion, a procedural checklist, and additional forms necessary in order to obtain a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[3] Pleading Requirements

The pleading requirements for a constructive trust are [Michaelian v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1114, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 133] :

- Facts constituting the underlying cause of action, and
- Specific identifiable property to which the defendant has title.

[4] Allegations

[a] Subject Matter of and Parties to Action

This form of complaint identifies the property that is the subject of the action (Paragraph 1), and includes optional paragraphs to allege the existence of fictitiously named defendants (Paragraph 2) [Code Civ. Proc. § 474] and an agency relationship between and among defendants (Paragraph 3).

[b] Fraud

The form alleges elements of a cause of action for fraud based on a promise made without any intention of performing it: (1) defendant's promises to plaintiff (Paragraph 5), (2) plaintiff's actions in justifiable reliance on the promises (Paragraphs 6 and 12), (3) defendant's lack of any intent to perform the promises (Paragraph 10), (4) defendant's intent to induce plaintiff to rely on the promises (Paragraph 11), (5) defendant's refusal to perform the promises (Paragraph 9), and (6) damage to plaintiff (Paragraph 7) [see Fowler v. Fowler (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 741, 747-748, 39 Cal. Rptr. 101] .

[c] Constructive Trust

The form also includes allegations necessary for the imposition of a constructive trust on the property wrongfully acquired by defendant: (1) the existence of property or some interest therein (Paragraphs 1, 4, and 5), (2) the plaintiff's right to it (Paragraphs 4-12), and (3) the defendant's gain of the property by fraud (Paragraphs 5-7 and 10-12) [Lazar v. Hertz Corp. (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 128, 139, 191 Cal. Rptr. 849] .

[5] Preliminary Injunctive Relief

The complaint includes optional allegations of waste as grounds for preliminary injunctive relief (Paragraphs 14-16) [Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(2), (5)]. The doctrineof waste applies, by definition, only to real property. Proof of conduct that has resulted in substantial depreciation of the market value of land establishes waste (Paragraph 15) [see Smith v. Cap Concrete, Inc. (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 769, 775-776, 184 Cal. Rptr. 308] . For further discussion of and forms for use in alleging waste, see Ch. 316, Joint Tenancy and Tenancy in Common , Ch. 332, Landlord and Tenant: The Tenancy , and Ch. 344, Life Estates and Remainders .

[6] Prayer

Paragraph 2 of the prayer requests an order compelling defendant to convey the real property in issue to the plaintiff [see Civ. Code § 3375; Murphy v. Hopcroft (1904) 142 Cal. 43, 46, 75 P. 567] . Optional Paragraph 3 of the prayer requests an order granting plaintiff possession of the real property in issue to the plaintiff, which is also a proper form of relief when a plaintiff is entitled to specific real property [see Civ. Code § 3375; Smith v. Smith (1941) 47 Cal. App. 2d 574, 576, 118 P.2d 487] .

[7] Accounting

Because the form involves real property that may have generated rental income, an optional allegation of plaintiff's demand for and defendant's refusal of an accounting of profits acquired by defendant is included (Paragraphs 17-19). A complaint in an action for an accounting must normally allege either a fiduciary relationship between plaintiff and defendant or an unknown balance due when the accounts are so complicated in nature that an ordinary legal action demanding a fixed sum is impractible and cannot be determined without an accounting (Paragraph 19) [San Pedro Lumber Co. v. Reynolds (1896) 111 Cal. 588, 596, 44 P. 309 ; Civic W. Corp. v. Zila Indus., Inc. (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 1, 14, 135 Cal. Rptr. 915 ; see Raymond v. Independent Growers, Inc. (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 154, 160, 284 P.2d 57 ; St. James Church v. Superior Court (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 352, 359, 287 P.2d 387] . Generally, the complaint must also allege plaintiff's demand for and defendant's refusal to provide an accounting (Paragraphs 17-18) [see Wooster v. Nevills (1887) 73 Cal. 58, 60, 14 P. 390] . For a discussion and forms for use in an accounting action, see Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for.

[8] Verification

Verification [Code Civ. Proc. § 446] is required if plaintiff seeks a preliminary injunction on a complaint instead of on affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] . For discussion, a procedural checklist, and additional forms necessary to obtain a preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

Otherwise, verification is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446] and precludes use of a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[9] Lis Pendens

A plaintiff may not file a notice of lis pendens unless the plaintiff pleads a cause of action that affects title to specific real property [Gale v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1388, 1395, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 554] , and a plaintiff is not entitled to a lis pendens in an action in which the only relief sought is money damages [Palmer v. Zaklama (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1367, 1381, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116] .

If a pleading combines theories of liability for monetary damages and for a constructive trust, the plaintiff is not entitled to a lis pendens, because that might provide an unscrupulous plaintiff with a powerful lever to force the settlement of a groundless or malicious suit [BGJ Assocs. v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 952, 972, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693] . A lis pendens is a provisional remedy that must be applied narrowly [BGJ Assocs. v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal.

App. 4th 952, 967, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693] . For example, a lis pendens is not available in an action by a trustee requesting the imposition of a constructive trust and an equitable lien on the defendant's house for the amount of money that the defendant used to make improvements to the house, which the defendant allegedly obtained by exercising undue influence over the deceased trustor [Campbell v. Superior Court (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 904, 916-922, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 68] .

However, a fraudulent conveyance action seeking avoidance of a transfer of title of specific real property under Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(1) is a real property claim for purposes of the lis pendens statute [Kirkeby v. Superior Court (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 642, 652, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 805, 93 P.3d 395] .

For a complete discussion of the lis pendens procedure and forms, see Ch. 348, Lis Pendens .

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a person from whom funds have been embezzled to bring an action for damages for conversion and for imposition of a constructive trust on the funds converted and on real property acquired with the converted funds [Civ. Code §§ 2224, 3336]. The form is adapted from the facts in Church v. Bailey (1949) 90 Cal. App. 2d 501, 203 P.2d 547 .

[3] Allegations

[a] Conversion

This form of complaint alleges the capacity and residence of the defendant (Paragraph 1) [see Neet v. Holmes (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 605, 611, 122 P.2d 557 (action primarily involving determination of interest in personal property as essentially transitory, and venue as properly laid in county of defendant's residence); see also § 561.20].

The conversion cause of action contains the following allegations: (1) plaintiff's interest in and right to possession of the converted funds (Paragraph 2); (2) the value of the funds (Paragraph 3); and (3) defendant's conversion of the funds, including the acquisition of real property as proceeds of the converted funds (Paragraphs 4-6). For a complete discussion of and forms of for use in actions for conversion, see Ch. 150, Conversion .

[b] Constructive Trust

The form also includes allegations necessary to impose a constructive trust on the converted funds and on the real property acquired with a portion of those funds: (1) the existence of property or some interest in that property (Paragraphs 4-6), (2) the plaintiff's right to it (Paragraphs 3 and 7), and (3) the defendant's gain of the property by the wrongful act of conversion (Paragraphs 2-6) [see Lazar v. Hertz Corp. (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 128, 139, 191 Cal. Rptr. 849 ; see also Church v. Bailey (1949) 90 Cal. App. 2d 501, 504, 203 P.2d 547 (one who wrongfully detains funds of another as involuntary trustee thereof for benefit of owner)].

[4] Imposition of Constructive Trust on Proceeds of Funds Wrongfully Acquired

A person who embezzles funds and deposits them in his or her personal bank account becomes a constructive trustee of the funds deposited. Furthermore, a trust will be imposed on property acquired with the funds unless the property is held by a bona fide purchaser for value, without notice, and in good faith [Church v. Bailey (1949) 90 Cal. App. 2d 501, 504, 203 P.2d 547 ; see §§ 561.17, 561.18].

[5] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is an unlimited civil case in the superior court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[6] Lis Pendens

A plaintiff may not file a notice of lis pendens unless the plaintiff pleads a cause of action that affects title to specific real property [Gale v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1388, 1395, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 554] , and a plaintiff is not entitled to a lis pendens in an action in which the only relief sought is money damages [Palmer v. Zaklama (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1367, 1381, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116] .

If a pleading combines theories of liability for monetary damages and for a constructive trust, the plaintiff is not entitled to a lis pendens, because that might provide an unscrupulous plaintiff with a powerful lever to force the settlement of a groundless or malicious suit [BGJ Assocs. v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 952, 972, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693] . A lis pendens is a provisional remedy that must be applied narrowly [BGJ Assocs. v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 952, 967, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693] . For example, a lis pendens is not available in an action by a trustee requesting the imposition of a constructive trust and an equitable lien on the defendant's house for the amount of money that the defendant used to make improvements to the house, which the defendant allegedly obtained by exercising undue influence over the deceased trustor [Campbell v. Superior Court (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 904, 916-922, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 68] .

However, a fraudulent conveyance action seeking avoidance of a transfer of title of specific real property under Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(1) is a real property claim for purposes of the lis pendens statute [Kirkeby v. Superior Court (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 642, 652, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 805, 93 P.3d 395] .

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use to bring an action to impose a constructive trust on, and to obtain an order conveying to plaintiff, an interest in property that was conveyed by mistake of fact to plaintiff and defendant as joint tenants, rather than to plaintiff alone [see Civ. Code §§ 1577, 2224]. The form is adapted from the facts in Abbott v. Miller (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 595, 220 P.2d 570 .

A grantor's mistake in drafting a deed furnishes grounds for relief under Civ. Code § 2224, if a person thereby gains an apparent interest in property to which he or she is not entitled. The person thus holds his or her interest as an involuntary trustee for the benefit of the rightful owner [Abbott v. Miller (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 595, 596, 220 P.2d 570] .

CAUTION:

A complaint seeking preliminary injunctive relief must be either verified or accompanied by affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) in support of the allegations of the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitleplaintiff to the relief sought [see E. H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] . For discussion, a procedural checklist, and additional forms necessary to obtain a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[3] Allegations

[a] Mistake of Fact

This form of complaint alleges a cause of action for mistake of fact: (1) the facts giving rise to the mistake (Paragraphs 2-6); (2) the mistake of fact, not caused by the neglect of a legal duty on the part of the person making the mistake, but consisting of an unconscious ignorance or forgetfulness of a fact material to the contract (Paragraphs 7 and 8) [Civ. Code § 1577(1)]; and (3) damage to plaintiff (Paragraph 9).

Because the mistake involves the ownership of real property, the form includes optional allegations for use in seeking preliminary injunctive relief to prevent waste to the property (Paragraphs 10-12).

For a discussion and forms for use in actions involving mistakes of fact and law, see Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake .

[b] Constructive Trust

The form also includes allegations necessary for the imposition of a constructive trust on the property: (1) the existence of property or some interest in that property(Paragraph 1), (2) the plaintiff's right to it (Paragraphs 5 and 13), and (3) the defendant's gain of the property by a mistake of fact (Paragraph 8) [see Abbott v. Miller (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 595, 596, 220 P.2d 570] .

[4] Lis Pendens

A plaintiff may not file a notice of lis pendens unless the plaintiff pleads a cause of action that affects title to specific real property [Gale v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1388, 1395, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 554] , and a plaintiff is not entitled to a lis pendens in an action in which the only relief sought is money damages [Palmer v. Zaklama (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1367, 1381, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116] .

If a pleading combines theories of liability for monetary damages and for a constructive trust, the plaintiff is not entitled to a lis pendens, because that might provide an unscrupulous plaintiff with a powerful lever to force the settlement of a groundless or malicious suit [BGJ Assocs. v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 952, 972, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693] . A lis pendens is a provisional remedy that must be applied narrowly [BGJ Assocs. v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 952, 967, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693] . For example, a lis pendens is not available in an action by a trustee requesting the imposition of a constructive trust and an equitable lien on the defendant's house for the amount of money that the defendant used to make improvements to the house, which the defendant allegedly obtained by exercising undue influence over the deceased trustor [Campbell v. Superior Court (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 904, 916-922, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 68] .

However, a fraudulent conveyance action seeking avoidance of a transfer of title of specific real property under Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(1) is a real property claim for purposes of the lis pendens statute [Kirkeby v. Superior Court (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 642, 652, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 805, 93 P.3d 395] .

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use to bring an action to impose a constructive trust on real property acquired by the exercise of undue influence by the defendant over the plaintiff, for an order compelling defendant to convey the property to the plaintiff, and for an accounting of any sums received by the defendant during his or her constructive trusteeship of the property, for the use and benefit of the plaintiff [Civ. Code §§ 2224, 2237]. The form is adapted from the facts in Clark v. Pullins (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 703, 341 P.2d 73 .

[3] Allegations

[a] Undue Influence

This form of complaint alleges the location of the real property that is the subject matter of the action (Paragraph 1) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)] and the relationship between plaintiff and defendant (Paragraph 2).

The form then alleges a cause of action for imposition of a constructive trust on property acquired by the defendant through the exertion of undue influence over the plaintiff: (1) the nature of the influence exerted (Paragraph 3) [see Civ. Code §§ 1570, 1575(2), (3)], and (2) defendant's wrongful acquisition of property as a result of influence unduly exerted (Paragraphs 4-6) [see Civ. Code § 2224; see Clark v. Pullins (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 703, 708-709, 341 P.2d 73] .

[b] Constructive Trust

The form also includes allegations necessary for the imposition of a constructive trust on the property: (1) The existence of property or some interest therein (Paragraph 1); (2) the plaintiff's right thereto (Paragraphs 5 and 8); and (3) the defendant's gain of the property by the exercise of undue influence over the plaintiff (Paragraphs 5 and 6) [see Civ. Code § 2224].

[4] Lis Pendens

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a plaintiff who is in a confidential relationship with defendant to bring an action to impose a constructive trust on and obtain an accounting of funds acquired by the defendant in violation of the confidential relationship [see Civ. Code § 2224]. The complaint is adapted from the facts in South v. Wishard (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 276, 303 P.2d 805 .

[3] Allegations

[a] Breach of Confidential Relationship

The cause of action for breach of a confidential relationship contains the following allegations: (1) the existence of a confidential relationship between plaintiff anddefendant (Paragraphs 2 and 3); (2) an agreement entered into between the parties pursuant to that relationship (Paragraph 4); (3) defendant's violation of the relationship by violating the agreement (Paragraph 5); and (4) defendant's wrongful acquisition of property in violation of the relationship (Paragraph 6) [see Civ. Code § 2224; South v. Wishard (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 276, 281, 285, 303 P.2d 805] .

[b] Constructive Trust

The form also includes allegations necessary for the imposition of a constructive trust on the property: (1) the existence of property or some interest in that property (Paragraphs 4 and 5), (2) the plaintiff's right to it (Paragraph 7), and (3) the defendant's gain of the property by the breach of the confidential relationship between plaintiff and defendant (Paragraph 6) [see Civ. Code § 2224].

For discussion and additional forms for use in actions involving misuse of confidential relationships, see Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake .

[4] Lis Pendens

A plaintiff may not file a notice of lis pendens unless the plaintiff pleads a cause of action that affects title to specific real property [Gale v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1388, 1395, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 554] , and a plaintiff is not entitled to a lis pendens in an action in which the only relief sought is money damages [Palmer v. Zaklama (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1367, 1381, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116] .

If a pleading combines theories of liability for monetary damages and for a constructive trust, the plaintiff is not entitled to a lis pendens, because that might provide an unscrupulous plaintiff with a powerful lever to force the settlement of a groundless or malicious suit [BGJ Assocs. v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 952, 972, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693] . A lis pendens is a provisional remedy that must be applied narrowly [BGJ Assocs. v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 952, 967, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693] . For example, a lis pendens is not available in an action by a trustee requesting the imposition of a constructive trust and an equitable lien on the defendant's house for the amount of money that the defendant used to make improvements to the house, which the defendant allegedly obtained by exercising undue influence over the deceased trustor [Campbell v. Superior Court (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 904, 916-922, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 68] .

However, a fraudulent conveyance action seeking avoidance of a transfer of title of specific real property under Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(1) is a real property claim for purposes of the lis pendens statute [Kirkeby v. Superior Court (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 642, 652, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 805, 93 P.3d 395] .

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use to bring an action for imposition of a constructive trust on and conveyance of real property when a decedent, without creating a valid testamentary trust, has devised real property to another with the understanding, express or implied, that the person to whom the property was devised will hold the property in trust for the beneficiary [see Estate of Everts (1912) 163 Cal. 449, 454, 125 P. 1058] . For a discussion of the law relating to such "secret trusts," see § 561.16[4][f].

The form may be modified for use to establish a constructive trust in personal property when a party in possession of the property refuses to comply with the terms of secret trust.

Forms for imposing a constructive trust in situations in which a decedent has violated an agreement to devise or bequeath property in an agreed manner can be found in Ch. 528, Specific Performance .

[3] Allegations

This form alleges the essential elements of a cause of action to establish a constructive trust based on the violation of a secret trust. It states the elements of a secret trust by alleging decedent's devise of property to defendant on defendant's promise to hold the property in trust for plaintiff (Paragraphs 2 and 3) [see Estate of Everts (1912) 163 Cal. 449, 454, 125 P. 1058 ; Prior v. Andrews (1927) 83 Cal. App. 782, 790, 257 P. 560] . It states requirements for a constructive trust by alleging defendant's breach of a secret trust agreement and wrongful retention of the property subject to the secret trust (Paragraph 4) [see Estate of Everts (1912) 163 Cal. 449, 454, 125 P. 1058 ; Prior v. Andrews (1927) 83 Cal. App. 782, 790, 257 P. 560] .

App. 4th 952, 967, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693]* . [2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a beneficiary against a convicted felon, the felon's representative, or a profiteer of the felony, to bring an action to recover the beneficiary's interest in any profits [see § 561.28[3][f]] from the felon's sale or transfer of anything that has enhanced value as a result of the notoriety gained from the felon's commission of the crime for which he or she was convicted [see Civ. Code § 2225(b)(2), (c), (f)]. In the case of a sale or transfer by a profiteer of the felony, the court must, on an adequate showing by the profiteer of the felony, exclude from the involuntary trust that portion of the profits that represents the inherent value of the memorabilia, property, or thing sold or transferred and exclusive of the amount of the enhancement of the value due to the notoriety of the convicted felon [Civ. Code § 2225(b)(3)].

This statutory scheme also provides that all proceeds from the preparation for the purpose of sale, the sale of rights to,

or the sale of materials that include or are based on the depiction, portrayal, or reenactment of a felony for which a felon was convicted, are subject to an involuntary trust for the benefit of such beneficiaries [Civ. Code § 2225(b)(1)]. However, the California Supreme Court in 2002 ruled that this part of the statute is unconstitutional on its face [Keenan v. Superior Court (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 413, 417-418, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 40 P.3d 718 ; see § 561.28[1].

NOTE:

The Supreme Court of California has held that Civ. Code § 2225 is facially invalid under both the free speech clause of the First Amendment to the federal Constitution as applied to the states through the Fourteenth Amendment, and the liberty of speech clause of the California Constitution [Keenan v. Superior Court (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 413, 415-416, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 40 P.3d 718 ; see Cal. Const. art. I, § 2, subd. (a)].

CAUTION:

A complaint seeking preliminary injunctive relief must be either verified or accompanied by affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) in support of the allegations of the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E. H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; San Juan Gold Co. v. San Juan Ridge Mut. Water Ass'n (1939) 34 Cal. App. 2d 159, 174, 93 P.2d 582] . For discussion, a procedural checklist, and additional forms necessary in order to obtain a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[3] Defendants

The action may be brought against a convicted felon who has proximately caused physical, mental, or emotional injury, or pecuniary loss to, or the death of, a person as a result of the felony for which the felon was convicted [Civ. Code § 2225(a)(1), (4), (c)(1)]. The action may also be brought against the felon's representative, who is any person or entity receiving proceeds by designation, on behalf, or instead of the felon, whether by the felon's designation or by operation of law. The action may also be brought against a profiteer of a felony [Civ. Code § 2225(a)(3)(B), (c)(1); see § 561.28[3][h]].

[4] Alleging Civil Cause of Action Against Felon

Plaintiff should allege facts establishing his or her status as a "beneficiary" within the meaning of Civ. Code § 2225(a)(4) [see § 561.28[3][i]], thus establishing his or her right to bring an action under Civ. Code § 2225(c) to recover his or her interest in the involuntary trust. Therefore, if plaintiff was the direct victim of the crime, it appears that he or she should plead facts showing his or her right to recover damages for physical, mental, or emotional injury or pecuniary loss against the convicted felon under one or more tort causes of action, as part of his or her cause of action under Civ. Code § 2225 [see Civ. Code § 2225(a)(4)(A)]. Alternatively, plaintiff may join his or her tort cause(s) of action with his or her cause of action under Civ. Code § 2225(c) to recover his or her interest in the trust [see Code Civ. Proc. § 427.10(a)]. If the causes of action are joined, plaintiff could allege the tort causes of action separately, and incorporate by reference the allegations of his or her tort causes of action into the cause of action under Civ. Code § 2225(c). For discussion of joinder of causes of action, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

If the direct victim of the crime has died, plaintiff should allege facts showing one or more of the following:

- The plaintiff's standing under Code Civ. Proc. § 377.10 et seq. as the decedent's personal representative or successor in interest to bring anaction for damages sustained by the decedent before his or her death [see Civ. Code § 2225(a)(4)(B)]; or

- If the victim's death was proximately caused by the crime of which the felon was convicted, the plaintiff's status as (1) a person entitled to bring anaction for wrongful death under Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60, or (2) a beneficiary of the decedent's will who has a right under the will to receive more than 25 percent of the value of the decedent's estate [see Civ. Code § 2225(a)(4)(C)].

This form, for example, alleges plaintiff's right to recover from the felon on a theory of wrongful death (Paragraphs 5-7) [see Civ. Code § 2225(a)(4)(C); Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60; see also Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions]. For other tort allegations, refer to the appropriate chapters in this publication, such as Ch. 58, Assault and Battery, Ch. 150, Conversion, Ch. 257, False Imprisonment, Ch. 362, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress, Ch. 380, Negligence, and Ch. 429, Privacy.

[5] Alleging Previous Civil Recovery Against Convicted Felon

Although plaintiff must establish his or her right to recover damages against the convicted felon under applicable law other than Civ. Code § 2225, the statute does not, by its terms, require plaintiff to obtain a civil judgment against the convicted felon establishing that right of recovery as a prerequisite to bringing an action to impose an involuntary trust [see Civ. Code § 2225(a)(4) (defining "beneficiary" as person who has or had right to recover)]. If, however, the plaintiff has already obtained such a judgment, it may collaterally estop the defendant from relitigating the issue of his or her responsibility for the plaintiff's damages [see Ch. 491, Res Judicata]. Thus, plaintiff should allege the facts concerning the prior civil action in the complaint under Civ. Code § 2225.

If the plaintiff has recovered a prior judgment against the felon based on the crime for which the felon was convicted, the plaintiff's interest in the trust will be reduced by the amount of the judgment that was previously satisfied by the felon [see Civ. Code § 2225(a)(5)(C)(iii); see also § 561.28[3][j]].

This form contains optional paragraphs for use when the plaintiff has recovered a judgment against the felon in a prior civil action for personal injury, pecuniary loss, or wrongful death, based on the crime for which the felon was convicted (Optional Paragraphs 11, 12) [see Civ. Code § 2225(a)(4)]. It also includes an allegation regarding the amount of the judgment entered in the prior civil action and the amount, if any, that has been satisfied (Optional Paragraph 13) [see Civ. Code § 2225(a)(5)(C)(iii), (D)].

[6] Allegations

This form of complaint alleges all of the following:

- The felon's conviction (Paragraphs 8-10) [see Civ. Code § 2225(a)(1), (2)];

- The plaintiff's standing to bring the action (Paragraphs 1, 5-7) [see Civ. Code § 2225(a)(4); see also § 561.28[3][i] regarding definitions of beneficiaries and their interests in the trust proceeds];

- The plaintiff's recovery against the felon in a previous civil action (Optional Paragraphs 11-13) [see § 561.66[5]];

- The amount of money, if any, plaintiff received from either the restitution fund or the felon pursuant to a court order (Paragraph 14) [see Civ. Code § 2225(a)(5)(C)(i), (ii)];

- The convicted felon's sale or transfer of a thing, including a right, that has enhanced value because of the notoriety gained from the commission of the crime for which the felon was convicted (Paragraph 15) [see Civ. Code § 2225(a)(1)];

- The existence of current and future profits from the sale or transfer (Paragraph 16 and Optional Paragraph 17) [see Civ. Code § 2225(a)(10), (c)(3)]; and

- The fact that the profits are subject to an involuntary trust for the plaintiff's benefit (Paragraph 18) [see Civ. Code § 2225(b)(2)].

[7] Jurisdiction and Venue

An action by a beneficiary to recover his or her interest in a trust created by Civ. Code § 2225(b) may be brought in the superior court of the county in which the beneficiary resides (First Alternative Paragraph 1), in which the convicted felon resides, or in which the proceeds are located (see Paragraph 2) [Civ. Code § 2225(c)(2)].

[8] Preliminary Injunction

On motion of any party in an action brought under Civ. Code § 2225, the court must grant a preliminary injunction to prevent any waste of profits if it appears that they are subject to the trust and that they may be subject to waste [Civ. Code § 2225(f)(1); see Civ. Code § 2225(a)(10) ("profits" defined); see also § 561.28[3][f]].

Inasmuch as this complaint seeks both preliminary injunctive relief and recovery of an interest in the proceeds, it assumes that the defendant has already been convicted of the felony that forms the basis for the plaintiff's claims. However, it is also possible to obtain preliminary injunctive relief prior to the defendant's actual conviction. Upon motion of the Attorney General or any potential beneficiary, the court must grant a preliminary injunction against a person against whom an indictment or information for a felony has been filed in superior court, to prevent any waste of profits if there is probable cause to believe that the profits would be subject to an involuntary trust upon conviction of the person and that they may be subject to waste [Civ. Code § 2225(f)(2)]. When such relief is sought, the statute appears to require the plaintiff to allege that:

- Plaintiff is a "beneficiary" within the meaning of Civ. Code § 2225(a)(4) [see § 561.28[3][i]];

- A felony indictment or information has been filed against the defendant in a superior court;

- There is probable cause to believe that any profits would be subject to an involuntary trust if the defendant is ultimately convicted; and

- There is probable cause to believe that any profits may be subject to waste if preliminary injunctive relief is not granted.

For discussion of the law and procedures relating to preliminary injunctions generally, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[9] Lis Pendens

A plaintiff may not file a notice of lis pendens unless the plaintiff pleads a cause of action that affects title to specific real property [Gale v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1388, 1395, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 554] , and a plaintiff is not entitled to a lis pendens in an action in which the only relief sought is money damages [Palmer v. Zaklama (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1367, 1381, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116] .

If a pleading combines theories of liability for monetary damages and for a constructive trust, the plaintiff is not entitled to a lis pendens, because that might provide an unscrupulous plaintiff with a powerful lever to force the settlement of a groundless or malicious suit [BGJ Assocs. v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 952, 972, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693] . A lis pendens is a provisional remedy that must be applied narrowly [BGJ Assocs. v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 952, 967, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693] . For example, a lis pendens is not available in an action by a trustee requesting the imposition of a constructive trust and an equitable lien on the defendant's house for the amount of money that the defendant used to make improvements to the house, which the defendant allegedly obtained by exercising undue influence over the deceased trustor [Campbell v. Superior Court (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 904, 916-922, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 68] .

However, a fraudulent conveyance action seeking avoidance of a transfer of title of specific real property under Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(1) is a real property claim for purposes of the lis pendens statute [Kirkeby v. Superior Court (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 642, 652, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 805, 93 P.3d 395] .

For a complete discussion of the lis pendens procedure and forms, see Ch. 348, Lis Pendens .

This chapter discusses and provides forms for use in establishing and enforcing resulting trusts [see § 562.10 et seq.]. It primarily focuses on purchase-money resulting trusts, and the forms are for use in enforcing and establishing purchase-money resulting trusts. The forms include a complaint to establish and enforce a resulting trust in a full or partial interest in real property or the proceeds thereof [see § 562.60]; a complaint to establish and enforce a resulting trust in real property when the consideration provided for the transfer was other than money [see § 562.61]; a complaint to establish and enforce a resulting trust in real property when the consideration provided took the form of a loan from the trustee to the beneficiary [see § 562.62]; an allegation, for use in a complaint to establish and enforce a resulting trust in real or personal property, when the transfer of property was not a gift [see § 562.63]; and an affirmative defense when the property was transferred as a gift [see § 562.64].

§ 562.10 Governing Law

Civ. Code §§ 2223 and 2224 provide generally for the creation of an involuntary trust when a person wrongfully detains property. However, excepting these general provisions, the common law governs the establishment and enforcement of resulting trusts [see Prob. Code §§ 82, 15002, 15003(b); see, e.g., Bainbridge v. Stoner (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 423, 428, 106 P.2d 423] . It should be noted that although purchase money resulting trusts involving real property were formerly governed by Civ. Code § 853, repealed in 1986, that section was declared to be a statement of the common law and therefore cases decided under that provision are presumably still persuasive [see Estate of Schechtman (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 365, 370, 328 P.2d 478] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

49-562 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 562.11

§ 562.11 Nature of Resulting Trust

[1] In General

A resulting trust arises from the transer of property under circumstances showing that the transferee was not intended to take the beneficial interest in the property [Lloyds Bank Cal. v. Wells Fargo Bank (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1042, 232 Cal. Rptr. 339 ; see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 404; see also 15 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 250, 254 (1950)] . A resulting trust thus arises when one person furnishes the money or other thing of value with which property is acquired and title is taken in the name of another, absent the intention to create a gift [In re Marriage of Becker (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 65, 75, 207 Cal. Rptr. 392 (former wife's interest in deceased ex-husband's retirement benefits being received by surviving spouse held by surviving spouse subject to resulting trust in favor of former wife)]. A resulting trust may be established in personal as well as real property [Norman v. Burks (1949) 93 Cal. App. 2d 687, 691, 209 P.2d 815] .

A resulting trust is not merely a method of repaying a person for money or value furnished, and thus the beneficiary of a resulting trust is entitled to the whole property that is subject to the trust, including interest it has earned [see In re Marriage of Becker (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 65, 77, 207 Cal. Rptr. 392] .

[2] Created by Operation of Law

A resulting trust is one created by operation of law [see Lloyds Bank Cal. v. Wells Fargo Bank (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1042, 232 Cal. Rptr. 339] . It is a creature of equity [Calistoga Civic Club v. City of Calistoga (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 111, 117, 191 Cal. Rptr. 571] .

[3] Involuntary Trust

A resulting trust is an involuntary trust, implied by law, when the intention of the parties to create a trust is not expressed [Wells Fargo Bank v. Greuner (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 454, 460, 38 Cal. Rptr. 132] . A resulting trust therefore enforces the inferred intent of the parties [Lloyds Bank Cal. v. Wells Fargo Bank (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1042, 232 Cal. Rptr. 339] .

[4] Constructive Trust Distinguished

The terms "constructive trust" and "resulting trust" have often been confused by attorneys, as well as by some courts. Both are involuntary trusts implied by law and exempt from the statute of frauds [see § 562.19]. However, a resulting trust arises from a transfer of property under circumstances showing that the transferee was not intended to take the beneficial interest in the property. A resulting trust has been termed an "intention-enforcing" trust, to distinguish it from the other type of implied trust, the constructive or "fraud-rectifying" trust. While the resulting trust carries out the inferred intent ofthe parties, the constructive trust defeats or prevents the wrongful act of one of the parties [Martin v. Kehl (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 228, 238, 193 Cal. Rptr. 312] . For a complete discussion of and forms for use in establishing and enforcing constructive trusts, see Ch. 561, Trusts: Constructive Trusts .

§ 562.13 Liability to Third Parties

When the beneficiary controls the operation and maintenance of the trust property, the beneficiary is liable for injury to third parties arising out of the beneficiary's operation and maintenance of the trust property [Richman v. Green (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 470, 473, 299 P.2d 890] . Richman does not hold, however, that a trustee who is only a nominal owner is not liable, but only that any such liability is not primary [Bianchi v. Western Title Ins. & Guaranty Co. (1970) 14 Cal. App. 3d 235, 238, 92 Cal. Rptr. 745] .

When the operation and maintenance of trust property is under the control of the trustee of a passive, express trust, the trustee is liable for injuries of third parties when the injuries arise out of the trustee's operation and maintenance of the property [Bianchi v. Western Title Ins. & Guaranty Co. (1970) 14 Cal. App. 3d 235, 238-242, 92 Cal. Rptr. 745 (defendant held title under an express trust, not a resulting trust, for about 13 owners who could internally exchange shares while defendant held title; elevator permit was in defendant's name, however)]. 49-562 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 562.14

§ 562.14 Situations Giving Rise to Resulting Trust

[1] When Real Property Seller Does Not Convey to Buyer Who Has Paid

Under a contract for the purchase of real property, a seller who does not execute a conveyance to a buyer who has fully paid holds the property as trustee on a resulting trust for the buyer [Scadden Flat Gold Mining Co. v. Scadden (1898) 121 Cal. 33, 39, 53 P. 440] . For a form of complaint by a purchaser for specific performance of a contract to convey real property, see Ch. 569, Vendor and Purchaser .

[2] When Express Trust Fails

A resulting trust is created when, because of some invalidity such as lack of a definite purpose or legality, an express trust fails [Bainbridge v. Stoner (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 423, 428, 106 P.2d 423] .

To the extent that an express trust fails because of an invalid restraint on alienation, the trustee holds legal title to the trust property on a resulting trust for the trustor and the trustor's heirs [see Davenport v. Davenport Found. (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 67, 75, 222 P.2d 11] .

To the extent that an express trust fails on the death of the settlor, the trustee holds the trust estate on a resulting trust for the estate of the settlor [see Hansen v. Bear Film Co., Inc. (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 154, 173, 168 P.2d 946] .

To the extent that a testamentary trust fails because it does not adequately designate the subject, purpose, and beneficiary, leaving the residue of an estate undisposed of, the distributee holds the residue on a resulting trust for the benefit of the testator's heirs pursuant to the rules of succession [Sears v. Rule (1941) 45 Cal. App. 2d 374, 379-384, 114 P.2d 57 ; see Restatement of Trusts § 411, cmt. c; Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 411, cmt. c].

[3] Express Trust Does Not Exhaust Trust Estate

A resulting trust is created when, after a trust is fully performed, there is property remaining in the hands of the trustee [Bainbridge v. Stoner (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 423, 428, 106 P.2d 423] .

[4] Purchase-Money Resulting Trust

[a] In General

Ordinarily, a purchase-money resulting trust arises in favor of the payor of the purchase price of the property when the purchase price, or a part thereof, is paid by one person and the title is taken in the name of another. The trust arises because it is the natural presumption in such a case that it was the intention of the parties that the ostensible purchaser should acquire and hold the property for the one with whose means it was acquired [Martin v. Kehl (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 228, 238-239, 193 Cal. Rptr. 312] .

However, a resulting trust is not founded on the simple fact that money or property of one has been used by another to purchase property. It is founded on a relationship between the two, and on the fact that as between them, consciously and intentionally, one has advanced the consideration wherewith to make a purchase in the name of the other [Majewsky v. Empire Constr. Co. Ltd. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 478, 485, 85 Cal. Rptr. 819, 467 P.2d 547] .

This rule applies not only when a person other than the transferee pays the purchase price directly to the vendor, but also when transferee pays the purchase price to the vendor with money or other property belonging to another person with the consent of the other person. Thus, when property is transferred to one person who pays the purchase price with money or other property belonging to another person, with the consent of the latter, a resulting trust arises in that other person's favor. If, on the other hand, the other person did not consent to the use of his or her money or other property in making the purchase, or did not consent that the property purchased should be transferred to the transferee, a constructive trust and not a resulting trust arises [Majewsky v. Empire Constr. Co. Ltd. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 478, 485-486, 85 Cal. Rptr. 819, 467 P.2d 547 ; see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 440, cmt. h].

The doctrine of purchase-money resulting trusts applies to personal property as well as to real property [Keene v. Keene (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 657, 665, 21 Cal. Rptr. 593, 371 P.2d 329 ; Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 440, cmt. b].

[b] Full Payment of Purchase Price

Full payment of the purchase price of the property gives rise to a resulting trust in the whole of the trust property [see Martin v. Kehl (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 228, 238, 193 Cal. Rptr. 312] .

[c] Partial Payment of Purchase Price

Part payment of the purchase price gives rise to a resulting trust to the extent thereof. When one person pays part of the purchase price and title is taken in another's name, the payor cannot secure a greater interest in the property by way of a resulting trust than the proportion of the amount he or she paid bears to the total purchase price [Martin v. Kehl (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 228, 243, 193 Cal. Rptr. 312 ; Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 454]. However, a party seeking to impose a resulting trust based on partial payment has the burden of establishing with definiteness and specificity the proportional amount contributed [Lloyds BankCal. v. Wells Fargo Bank (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1044-1045, 232 Cal. Rptr. 339] .

[d] Nature of Consideration

Consideration for the transfer of property can be in the form of money, property, the performance of services, or the discharge of preexisting indebtedness [Laing v. Laubach (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 511, 515, 43 Cal. Rptr. 537] . In addition, a promise to repay a loan used to purchase property is sufficient consideration to support a resulting trust. For example, when the transferee has purchased property for another party under an agreement that the other party will repay the purchase price, a resulting trust is appropriate [Viner v. Untrecht (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 261, 269, 158 P.2d 3 ; Novak v. Novak (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 438, 442, 57 Cal. Rptr. 564] .

[e] Time of Payment of Consideration

Normally, a purchase-money resulting trust arises when the claimant has paid the purchase price of the property at the time it was acquired. However, contemporaneous payment is not an essential requirement for establishing a resulting trust. In situations in which the transferee has paid the purchase price with the understanding that the claimant will repay the transferee, a resulting trust may arise [Viner v. Untrecht (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 261, 270, 158 P.2d 3 ; Stone v. Lobsien (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 750, 755, 247 P.2d 357 ; see § 562.14[f]].

When a claimant seeks to impose a resulting trust on a proportional interest in property, proportional payment of consideration at the time of conveyance must be distinguished from subsequent monetary contributions to make improvements on property or for installment payments after the title has been acquired, which do not secure an interest by way of a resulting trust [Martin v. Kehl (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 228, 243, 193 Cal. Rptr. 312] . It is clear that payments made for improvements on property after it has been purchased will not support imposition of a resulting trust [Keene v. Keene (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 657, 667, 21 Cal. Rptr. 593, 371 P.2d 329] . However, when a claimant has made installment payments, after title has been acquired, based on an implied promise to make those payments made prior to the acquisition, it appears that a resulting trust establishing a proportionate interest would be appropriate [see Stone v. Lobsien (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 750, 755, 247 P.2d 357] .

[f] Transferee Pays Purchase Price as Loan to Person Claiming Beneficial Interest in Property

The payment of the purchase price that gives rise to a beneficial interest in the property may be made in the form of a loan from the transferee to the person claiming the beneficial interest. For example, when defendant (transferee) loans plaintiff (beneficial owner) money to buy residential property and defendant takes title to the property as security for the loan, defendant holds title as a resulting trustee for plaintiff until plaintiff repays the loan [Viner v. Untrecht (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 261, 269, 158 P.2d 3 ; see Restatement of Trusts § 448; Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 448; see generally Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages , regarding actions to establish a deed absolute as a mortgage].

A resulting trust can also arise through the transferee's assumption of an obligation to the vendor or transferor to pay the purchase price, when the person claiming the beneficial interest in the property is obligated to reimburse the transferee. In this case, there is a loan of credit by the transferee to the claimant [Viner v. Untrecht (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 261, 269, 158 P.2d 3 ; see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 456, cmt. d].

In the case of either a loan of cash or a loan of credit, it is not necessary that there be an express agreement by the claimant to repay the loan. An agreement to repay may be implied [Viner v. Untrecht (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 261, 270, 158 P.2d 3] . However, before a resulting trust in the claimant's favor will arise, there must be evidence of claimant's obligation to repay the loan [Stone v. Lobsien (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 750, 755, 247 P.2d 357 (dicta)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

49-562 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 562.15

§ 562.15 Situtations Not Giving Rise to Resulting Trust

[1] Gift to Transferee--Rebuts Presumption of Resulting Trust

A resulting trust will not arise if the intention of the parties was that the person receiving title to the property received it as a gift [In re Marriage of Becker (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 65, 75, 207 Cal. Rptr. 392 ; Knouse v. Shubert (1941) 48 Cal. App. 2d 685, 689, 121 P.2d 74] . The presumption in favor of finding a purchase-money resulting trust when the party claiming the property supplied the purchase money for it may be rebutted, and incertain circumstances a presumption of a gift may arise [see Lloyds Bank Cal. v. Wells Fargo Bank (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1043, 232 Cal. Rptr. 339 ; Quinn v. Reilly (1926) 198 Cal. 465, 467-468, 245 P. 1091 ; see § 562.15[2] ; see also Ch. 278, Gifts]. For a form raising the defense that the transfer was a gift, see § 562.64.

[2] Presumptions in Favor of Gift

Even when it is satisfactorily established that all or part of the purchase price was furnished by one other than the grantee, if it appears in addition that the grantee was the natural object of bounty of the person who made the payment, it will be presumed that a gift was intended [Lloyds Bank Cal. v. Wells Fargo Bank (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1043, 232 Cal. Rptr. 339 ; Gomez v. Cecena (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 363, 367, 101 P.2d 477 ; see Restatement of Trusts § 442; Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 442]. Thus, when a parent pays for a conveyance of property to his or her child, or otherwise transfers property to a child, there is a presumption that a gift is intended and no presumption of a resulting trust arises [Oyama v. State of California (1948) 332 U.S. 633, 68 S. Ct. 269, 92 L. Ed. 249, 256 ; Lloyds Bank Cal. v. Wells Fargo Bank (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1043, 232 Cal. Rptr. 339] . In transactions between spouses, the rule is that a gift is presumed if the wife is the transferee but is not presumed if the husband is the transferee [compare Altramano v. Swan (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 622, 628, 128 P.2d 353 (presumption of gift arises if wife is transferee and husband is claimant); with Socol v. King (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 342, 348, 223 P.2d 627 (resulting trust presumed if husband takes title and wife furnishes consideration); see Restatement of Trusts § 442; Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 442]. This rule appears to raise equal protection issues.

When a presumption of gift arises, the burden shifts to the payor to prove that he or she did not intend to make a gift to the transferee [Altramano v. Swan (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 622, 628, 128 P.2d 353 ; see Restatement of Trusts § 442, cmt. b]. The presumption of a gift may be rebutted by adequate proof that the grantee was not intended to have the beneficial interest [Gomez v. Cecena (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 363, 367, 101 P.2d 477 ; see Restatement of Trusts § 442; Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 442].

[3] Person Claiming Beneficial Interest in Property Pays Purchase Price as Loan to Transferee

When the transferee, that is, the grantee of a deed, borrows funds with which to purchase property, no resulting trust arises in favor of the lender on account of the loan and the use of its proceeds to pay for the property. For example, when parents lend their son funds with which to purchase property, and the son, in repayment of the loan, subsequently conveys a life interest to his parents in property purchased with proceeds of the loan, the son does not hold the property as resulting trustee for the parents [Haskell v. Wood (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 799, 805, 64 Cal. Rptr. 459 ; see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 445]. Similarly, when a transfer of property is made to one person and the purchase price is advanced by another as a loan to the transferee, the lender is not entitled to an equitable lien on the property in the absence of an agreement between the lender and the transferee that the lender is to have such a lien [Reid v. Gillespie (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 769, 771-772, 197 P.2d 566 ; see Restatement of Trusts § 445; see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 445, cmt. b; see generally Ch. 348, Liens and Wage Preferences , regarding equitable liens].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

49-562 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 562.16

§ 562.16 Rights of Bona Fide Purchasers for Value and Creditors

Although former Civ. Code §§ 856 and 2243, which provided in essence that a resulting trust could not prejudice the rights of transferees of the trust property who purchased their interest for value and without notice of the trust, were repealed in 1986, the common law as well as other statutory provisions grant this same protection to bona fide purchasers and mortagees [Murphy v. Clayton (1896) 113 Cal. 153, 158, 45 P. 267 ; see Civ. Code § 1214 (real property; priority to good faith purchasers or morgagees for value who record first); Com. Code § 2403 (bona fide purchasers of personal property may take good title); see also Prob. Code § 18100 (bona fide purchaser fully protected in dealing with trustee under express trust); 18 Cal. Law Rev Comm'n Reports 501, 793 (1986)]. The grant of protection to bona fide purchasers is in accord with the position of the Restatement [see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 408].

An attachment or judgment creditor is not a bona fide purchaser for value. A trustee in bankruptcy has the status of an attachment or judgment creditor and is thus not a purchaser for value without notice [In re Rogal (S.D. Cal. 1953) 112 F. Supp.712, 717-718 (applying California law); Owings v. Laugharn (1942) 53 Cal. App. 2d 789, 791] .

General creditors of the trustee of a resulting trust may not normally subject the trust property to the debts of the trustee even though the trustee gained credit based in part on the fact that the trust property was in his or her name [Murphy v. Clayton (1896) 113 Cal. 153, 159-162, 45 P. 267] . The creditors of the trustee of a resulting trust cannot subject the property to the payment of the trustee's debts merely because the title stands in the trustee's name, and a beneficiary's knowledge, after the transfer of property to the trustee, that the trustee is claiming the property to be his or her own in order to obtain credit cannot be implied from mere recordation or representation by the trustee [In re Rogal (S.D. Cal. 1953) 112 F. Supp. 712, 719] . However, the trustee's creditors can subject the property to their claims by showing (1) record title in the trustee's name, (2) knowledge on the part of the beneficiary that the trustee is claiming the property as his or her own, and (3) that a creditor relied on the trustee's claim of title and was induced thereby to extend credit [In re Rogal (S.D. Cal. 1953) 112 F. Supp. 712, 719 ; see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 459]. In addition, the beneficiary may be estopped from asserting the resulting trust over the rights of the creditors of the trustee if the beneficiary had knowledge that the trustee was obtaining credit based on the trust property, or otherwise by an affirmative act other than allowing title to stand in the name of the trustee, induced the creditors to extend credit to the trustee [Breeze v. Brooks (1886) 71 Cal. 169, 182, 11 P. 885] .

49-562 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 562.17

§ 562.17 Statute of Limitations

The four-year period of limitations provided for in Code Civ. Proc. § 343 applies to an action to establish a resulting trust and for an accounting incidental thereto [McCosker v. McCosker (1954) 122 Cal. App. 2d 498, 501, 265 P.2d 21 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 343].

The statute of limitations does not run on a beneficiary of a resulting trust until he or she has actual knowledge of repudiation or breach of trust [Martin v. Kehl (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 228, 240, 193 Cal. Rptr. 312 ; see Davenport v. Davenport Found. (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 67, 75, 222 P.2d 11 (statute of limitations as not running in favor of trustee until time of repudiation of trust in case of failure of express trust as well as in case of purchase-money resulting trust)].

When a beneficiary requests conveyance of the legal title and the trustee gives various excuses for delaying, these excuses cannot be deemed to be an unequivocal repudiation of the trust [Laing v. Laubach (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 511, 519, 43 Cal. Rptr. 537] . For forms for use in raising the bar of the statute of limitations, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions .

§ 562.18 Laches

Laches may bar relief in equity irrespective of whether the statute of limitations has run on the action at law. However, the affirmative defense of laches requires both unreasonable delay in bringing suit, and either acquiescence in the act about which plaintiff complains or prejudice to the defendant resulting from the delay. Moreover, prejudice to the defendant is never presumed; rather it must be affirmatively demonstrated by the defendant in order to sustain his or her burden of proof and production of evidence on the issue. The beneficiary of a resulting trust will not be barred from enforcing the trust merely because of the lapse of time if the trustee has not, to the beneficiary's knowledge, repudiated the trust [Martin v. Kehl (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 228, 241, 193 Cal. Rptr. 312] . For a form that may be used to raise the defense of laches, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

49-562 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 562.19

§ 562.19 Statute of Frauds and Parol Evidence

Aa a general rule, the statute of frauds has no application in an action for a resulting trust [Jones v. Gore (1956) 141 Cal. App. 2d 667, 673, 297 P.2d 474 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1972(b)]. A resulting trust is a creature of equity and need not be evidenced by writing or even by an express declaration [Calistoga Civic Club v. City of Calistoga (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 111, 117-118, 191 Cal. Rptr. 571] .

When the elements of a resulting trust are present, the fact that the transferee and the payor of the purchase price make an oral agreement, which is unenforceable under the statute of frauds, that the former is to hold the property in trust for the latter does not prevent a resulting trust from arising. In fact, such an agreement supports the inference or presumption that the payor does not intend the transferee to have the beneficial interest [Martin v. Kehl (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 228, 239, 193 Cal. Rptr. 312] .

Parol evidence is admissible to prove the existence of a resulting trust [Jones v. Gore (1956) 141 Cal. App. 2d 667, 673, 297 P.2d 474] .

§ 562.20 Burden of Proof

One who claims a resulting trust in property has the burden of proving the facts establishing his or her beneficial interest by clear and convincing evidence [Gomez v. Cecena (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 363, 366-367, 101 P.2d 477 ; see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 458].

Whether the evidence to prove the existence of a resulting trust is clear, satisfactory, and convincing is primarily a question for the trial court to determine. If there is substantial evidence to support its conclusion, the determination is not open to review on appeal. Likewise, the credibility and weight of the evidence are exclusively for the trial court's determination [Viner v. Untrecht (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 261, 267, 158 P.2d 3] .

§ 562.21 Termination of Resulting Trust by Merger

[1] Transfer of Trust Property to Beneficiary

If a trustee of a resulting trust transfers the trust property to the beneficiary or transfers the trust property at the direction of the beneficiary, the resulting trust terminates. This result is a necessary consequence of the vesting of both legal and equitable titles in the beneficiary, because there is no longer any purpose in keeping the trust relationship alive [Zakaessian v. Zakaessian (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 721, 724, 161 P.2d 677 (purchase money resulting trust); see Restatement of Trusts § 410, cmt. b; Restatement (Second) of Trusts, § 410, cmt. b].

[2] Conveyance or Surrender of Trust Property to Trustee

Similarly, the resulting trust that arises in favor of the payor in a purchase-money resulting trust can be extinguished by an oral conveyance or surrender of his or her interest by the beneficiary of the resulting trust to the trustee. The resulting trust in this situation arises from the fact of the payment of the purchase price and without any writing. Just as the inference that a resulting trust arises from the payment of the purchase price can be rebutted without a writing (see § 562.19), it can be extinguished without a writing [Johnson v. Altman (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 467, 469, 215 P.2d 768 ; see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 460 and cmt. a].

§ 562.22 Relief Available

The usual type of relief contemplated in an action to establish and enforce a resulting trust is a conveyance of the trust property from the trustee to the beneficiary. However, relief is also available in the form of actions to quiet title, and for ejectment [see Seabury v. Costello (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 640, 642, 26 Cal. Rptr. 248] .

When the trust property has been disposed of, relief is available in the form of a judgment for the proceeds thereof or for its value [see Martin v. Kehl (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 228, 244, 193 Cal. Rptr. 312 (proceeds); Penziner v. West Am. Fin. Co. (1933) 133 Cal. App. 578, 586, 24 P.2d 501 (value)]. If the trustee has made subsequent monetary contributions for items such as improvements, utility bills, or loan payments on the property, and the beneficiary recovers judgment for the proceeds of the property, the judgment is for the net proceeds after reimbursing the trustee for the subsequent contributions [see Martin v. Kehl (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 228, 243-244, 193 Cal. Rptr. 312] .

49-562 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 562.41

§ 562.41 Decisions

[1] Constructive Trust Distinguished

Resulting trust as "intention-enforcing" trust, and as distinguished from constructive trust, which is "fraud-rectifying" trust. Martin v. Kehl (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 228, 238-239, 193 Cal. Rptr. 312 ; see also Johnson v. Johnson (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 551, 556, 237 Cal. Rptr. 644

[2] Defenses

Defense of illegality to action to establish resulting trust exists for benefit of public and is permitted to be raised even though party raising defense is not inequitably injured by illegality. In re Torrez (9th Cir. 1987) 827 F.2d 1299, 1301, 1301 n.4

[3] Intent Requirement

Resulting trust, like express trust, as based on manifestation of intention of person creating it. Majewsky v. Empire Constr. Co., Ltd. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 478, 485, 85 Cal. Rptr. 819, 467 P.2d 547

Resulting trust as often called "intention-enforcing" trust, and as arising by implication of law to enforce inferred intention of parties to transaction. Calistoga Civic Club v. City of Calistoga (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 111, 117, 191 Cal. Rptr. 571

[4] Liability of Beneficiary

When trustee of resulting trust has no duties to perform or trust to administer, except to hold and convey title according to beneficiary's demand, and beneficiary controls operation and maintenance of trust property, beneficiary liable as master for torts of servants committed in scope and course of servants' employment. Richman v. Green (1956) 143

Cal. App. 2d 470, 473, 299 P.2d 890

[5] Period of Limitation

Applicable statute of limitations in action to establish resulting trust and for accounting incidental thereto as Code Civ. Proc. § 343, four-year statute. McCosker v. McCosker (1954) 122 Cal. App. 2d 498, 501, 265 P.2d 21

Statute of limitations as not commencing to run on beneficiary of resulting trust until he or she has actual knowledge of repudiation or breach of trust. Martin v. Kehl (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d, 228, 240 , 193 Cal. Rptr. 312

[6] Pro Tanto Resulting Trust

Imposition of simple, rather than pro tanto, resulting trust as proper when (1) substantial evidence exists to support trial court's finding that defendant-trustee made no contribution to purchase price of property subject to trust, (2) court was not provided with argument or authority to convert defendant-trustee's arrangement of loan for purchasing property into pro tanto resulting trust, and (3) it would be unjust, under facts of case, to allow defendant to retain any share of title to property. Johnson v. Johnson (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 551, 558-559, 237 Cal. Rptr. 644

[7] Resulting Trust Defined

Resulting trust as not founded on simple fact that money or property of one has been used by another to purchase property, but on relationship betweenparties, that as between them consciously and intentionally, one has advanced consideration to make purchase in other's name; trust as arising because it is natural presumption that it was parties intention that ostensible purchaser should acquire and hold property for one with whose means it was acquired. Majewsky v. Empire Constr. Co., Ltd. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 478, 485, 85 Cal. Rptr. 819, 467 P.2d 547

When resulting trust arises. Lehmann v. Kamp (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 701, 706, 77 Cal. Rptr. 910

[8] When Imposition of Resulting Trust Improper

Resulting trust in favor of purchasers of land who placed legal title in their children's names to circumvent federal reclamation law was established and not voided by illegal purpose because (1) agreement was completed, rather than executory, and thus invocation of rule against illegality would benefit public only by way of example; (2) purchasers' conduct did not involve serious moral turpitude; and (3) children would be unjustly enriched if trust were voided. In re Torrez (9th Cir. 1987) 827 F.2d 1299, 1301-1303 (distinguishing Hainey v. Narigon (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 528, 55 Cal. Rptr. 638)

Illegality of loan agreement used to obtain funds to purchase property subject to resulting trust as not barring enforcement of trust when (1) loan transaction is completed and public is not harmed by it, (2) defendant-trustee, rather than plaintiff-beneficiary, is guilty of great moral fault, and (3) nonenforcement of trust would unjustly enrich defendant. Johnson v. Johnson (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 551, 557, 237 Cal. Rptr. 644

Settlement paid by insurer to injured party prior to judicial determination that insured's policy did not cover injury as

Petition to determine ownership of a real property interest pursuant to *Prob. Resulting trust, as well as constructive trust, in plaintiff's favor for one-half interest in real property as proper when each party supplied half of down payment, defendant to take title and make payments in lieu of rent, and plaintiff to receive one-half proceeds when defendant vacated premises. Martin v. Kehl (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 228, 238-239, 193 Cal. Rptr. 312

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use to establish and enforce a purchase-money resulting trust in a full or partial interest in real property. Actions to establish resulting trusts are governed by the common law [Prob. Code §§ 15002, 15003(b); see § 562.10].

The form of complaint is adapted from the facts in Martin v. Kehl (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 228, 193 Cal. Rptr. 312 .

[3] Allegations

This form alleges the location and full legal description of the real property that is the subject matter of the action (Paragraph 1). The form then alleges elements of a cause of action for establishment and enforcement of a purchase-money resulting trust under the common law: (1) payment of either full or partial consideration by the plaintiff-beneficiary (Paragraph 3); (2) transfer of the property to the defendant-trustee (Paragraph 4); and (3) the intent of the parties in relation to the property (Paragraph 5); and (4) breach of the resulting trust by the defendant-trustee (Paragraph 6) [see Martin v. Kehl (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 228, 238-239, 193 Cal. Rptr. 312 ; Juranek v. Juranek (1938) 29 Cal. App. 2d 276, 279-280, 84 P.2d 195] .

The form includes optional paragraphs for use if a sale of the property is pending, alleging that defendant has opened an escrow for receipt of funds from sale of the property (Paragraph 7) and that the buyers have paid a portion of the purchase price to defendant (Paragraph 8) [see Livernois v. Brandt (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 301, 303, 304, 309, 37 Cal. Rptr. 279 (trust declared in property or its proceeds or equivalent amount should property and proceeds be disposed of prior to finality of judgment)].

The form also includes an optional paragraph alleging the responsibility of fictitiously named defendants sued pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 474 (Paragraph 2).

[4] Part Payment of Purchase Price

When a plaintiff pays only a portion of the purchase price for the trust property, the precise amount or proportion of the consideration furnished must be established clearly, convincingly, and unambiguously [see Martin v. Kehl (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 228, 239, 193 Cal. Rptr. 312] .

[5] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is in the superior court and is not a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial except in a limited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[6] Demand on Trustee

It is not necessary that the plaintiff-beneficiary tender a demand to the defendant-trustee, before commencing an action to establish and enforce a resulting trust, to convey the property if the facts show that such a demand would not be complied with [Crozier v. Soquel (1929) 101 Cal. App. 402, 407, 281 P. 698] .

[7] Pleading Lack of an Adequate Remedy at Law

In an action to establish and enforce a resulting trust, plaintiff-beneficiary need not plead the lack of an adequate remedy at law because the action is one in equity to establish a trust [Juranek v. Juranek (1938) 29 Cal. App. 2d 276, 280, 84 P.2d 195] .

[8] Jurisdiction

The superior court, exercising general equity powers, has subject matter jurisdiction over actions to establish and enforce resulting trusts in real property. The action would not be a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 580(b)(3); see Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10].

If the action involves personal property in an amount not exceeding $25,000, the matter could be considered as a limited civil case [see Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. § 85, 86(b)(1), 580(a)].

[9] Venue

In an action to establish and enforce a resulting trust in real property, venue is laid in the county in which the property is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1); Booker v. Aitken (1903) 140 Cal. 471, 476, 74 P. 11] . In an action to establish and enforce a resulting trust in personal property, venue is laid in the county in which the defendant resides [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]. When a defendant is sued in an official capacity as executor, administrator, guardian, conservator, or trustee on a claim for the payment of money or the recovery of personal property, venue is laid in the county that has jurisdiction of the estate that the defendant represents [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.1].

[10] Quiet Title and Ejectment

An action to quiet title and for ejectment may give rise to a finding by an appellate court of a resulting trust, and relief may subsequently be afforded on the resulting trust theory of liability [see Seabury v. Costello (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 640, 646, 26 Cal. Rptr. 248] . For a discussion of and forms for use in quiet title and ejectment actions, see Ch. 482, Quieting Title , and Ch. 241, Ejectment .

[11] Recovery of Money Judgment

An action to establish and enforce a resulting trust may be combined with an action to recover a money judgment instead of the trust property [see Penziner v. West Am. Fin. Co. (1933) 133 Cal. App. 578, 586, 24 P.2d 501] .

[12] No Right to Jury Trial

When a judgment is sought requiring the declaration of a trust, even though the judgment will be one for money, the action is in equity, without right of jury trial [Hillman v. Stults (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 848, 877, 70 Cal. Rptr. 295] .

[13] Lis Pendens

If an action to establish a resulting trust on real property is seeking title to or possession of real property, recordation of a lis pendens is proper to put third parties on notice of plaintiff's claim [Code Civ. Proc. § 405 et seq.]. A plaintiff may not file a notice of lis pendens unless the plaintiff pleads a cause of action that affects title to specific real property [Gale v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1388, 1395, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 554] , and a plaintiff is not entitled to a lis pendens in an action in which the only relief sought is money damages [Palmer v. Zaklama (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1367, 1381, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116] .

If a pleading combines theories of liability for monetary damages and for a constructive trust, the plaintiff is not entitled to a lis pendens, because that might provide an unscrupulous plaintiff with a powerful lever to force the settlement of a groundless or malicious suit [BGJ Assocs. v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 952, 972, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693] . A lis pendens is a provisional remedy that must be applied narrowly [BGJ Assocs. v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 952, 967, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693] . For example, a lis pendens is not available in an action by a trustee requesting the imposition of a constructive trust and an equitable lien on the defendant's house for the amount of money that the defendant used to make improvements to the house, which the defendant allegedly obtained by exercising undue influence over the deceased trustor [Campbell v. Superior Court (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 904, 916-922, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 68] .

However, a fraudulent conveyance action seeking avoidance of a transfer of title of specific real property under Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(1) is a real property claim for purposes of the lis pendens statute [Kirkeby v. Superior Court (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 642, 652, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 805, 93 P.3d 395] .

For a detailed discussion of the lis pendens procedure and forms, see Ch. 348, Lis Pendens .

[14] State Statutes

Statute of frauds inapplicable to trusts regarding real property arising by implication of law. Code Civ. Proc. § 1972(b)

[15] Decisions

Party claiming resulting trust as bearing burden of proof by clear and convincing evidence. Gomez v. Cecena (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 363, 366-367, 101 P.2d 477 ; Johnson v. Johnson (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 551, 556, 237 Cal. Rptr. 644

Party claiming resulting trust as required to establish clearly, convincingly, and unambiguously precise amount or proportion of consideration furnished. Laing v. Laubach (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 511, 517, 43 Cal. Rptr. 537

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use to establish and enforce a resulting trust in real property when consideration is provided in a form other than money. Actions to establish resulting trusts aregoverned by the common law [Prob. Code §§ 15002, 15003(b); see § 562.10].

The form of complaint is adapted from the facts in Laing v. Laubach (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 511, 43 Cal. Rptr. 537 .

[3] Allegations

This form alleges: (1) facts showing payment of full consideration, in the form of discharge of a preexisting debt, by the plaintiff-beneficiary (Paragraph 3) [see Laing v. Laubach (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 511, 518, 43 Cal. Rptr. 537] ; (2) facts showing transfer of the property to the defendant-trustee (Paragraph 4); (3) the intent of the parties in relation to the property (Paragraph 5); and (4) facts showing breach of the resulting trust by the defendant-trustee (Paragraph 6).

[4] Lis Pendens

A plaintiff may not file a notice of lis pendens unless the plaintiff pleads a cause of action that affects title to specific real property [Gale v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1388, 1395, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 554] , and a plaintiff is not entitled to a lis pendens in an action in which the only relief sought is money damages [Palmer v. Zaklama (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1367, 1381, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116] .

If a pleading combines theories of liability for monetary damages and for a constructive trust, the plaintiff is not entitled to a lis pendens, because that might provide an unscrupulous plaintiff with a powerful lever to force the settlement of a groundless or malicious suit [BGJ Assocs. v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 952, 972, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693] . A lis pendens is a provisional remedy that must be applied narrowly [BGJ Assocs. v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 952, 967, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693] . For example, a lis pendens is not available in an action by a trustee requesting the imposition of a constructive trust and an equitable lien on the defendant's house for the amount of money that the defendant used to make improvements to the house, which the defendant allegedly obtained by exercising undue influence over the deceased trustor [Campbell v. Superior Court (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 904, 916-922, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 68] .

However, a fraudulent conveyance action seeking avoidance of a transfer of title of specific real property under Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(1) is a real property claim for purposes of the lis pendens statute [Kirkeby v. Superior Court (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 642, 652, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 805, 93 P.3d 395] .

[5] Decisions

Money, property, performance of services, or discharge of preexisting debt as permissible consideration for transfer of property subject to resulting trust. Laing v. Laubach (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 511, 515, 43 Cal. Rptr. 537

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant _____ [name] is the duly appointed, qualified, and acting _____ [specify, e.g., administrator of the estate (with will annexed) or executor of the will] of _____ [name], hereinafter referred to as the deceased[, and is the sole heir of the deceased]. [Defendant is sued herein in his/her representative capacity and individually.]

[2. Fictitious defendant allegation. See § 562.60, Paragraph 2.]

3. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff purchased from _____ [name of seller] real property situated at _____ [street address and if any, city] _____ County, California, more particularly described as follows: _____ [set forth legal description].

4. The purchase price of the property was $_____, and was paid [specify any consideration paid in addition to loan from defendant, e.g., by the assumption of an indebtedness secured by a first deed of trust in the sum of $_____, plaintiff's funds on hand in the sum of $_____, and] by $_____, [borrowed by plaintiff from the deceased on or about _____ (date), or paid to the seller by the deceased as a loan to plaintiff].

5. Title to the property was taken in the name of the deceased solely as security for repayment by plaintiff of the above-mentioned loan [together with interest thereon at the rate of _____ percent per annum]. At the time of the transaction, plaintiff and the deceased orally agreed that the deceased would hold title to the property until the loan, together with interest thereon, was fully repaid, whereon the deceased would convey title to plaintiff.

6. At the time of the transaction, plaintiff and the deceased further orally agreed that, _____ [specify terms of repayment, e.g., commencing on _____ (date), plaintiff would make monthly payments to the deceased in the the sum of $_____, $_____ of which the deceased would apply to the payment due on the indebtedness secured by the first deed of trust and the remainder of which the deceased would apply to the principal and interest due on the loan from the deceased to plaintiff].

7. On conclusion of the transaction, plaintiff took charge of the real property, occupied it, and has continually, ever since, occupied the property.

8. In accordance with the agreement alleged above, from _____, until _____ [dates], the date of the deceased's death, plaintiff paid to the deceased the total sum of $_____ for application by him/her pursuant to their agreement.

9. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff requested, in writing, that defendant provide plaintiff with a statement of the application by the deceased of the sums paid by plaintiff, and a statement of any balance due on the loan from the deceased. [Coincident with this request, plaintiff offered to pay any balance due and requested defendant to then convey title to the property to plaintiff.] A copy of the request [and offer to pay] is attached hereto, marked Exhibit _____, and incorporated by reference herein.

10. In response to plaintiff's request and offer, defendant refused, and continues to refuse, to recognize the transaction between plaintiff and the deceased as a loan transaction, to provide plaintiff with either a statement of how the deceased applied the sums paid to him/her by plaintiff or a statement of any balance due on the loan from the deceased, to accept any payment on the balance, and to convey title of the property to plaintiff.

11. Plaintiff does not know the amount, if any, owing on the loan from the deceased for the reason that _____ [specify reason why accounting is necessary, e.g., plaintiff does not know the respective amounts that the deceased in fact applied to payments on the indebtedness secured by the first deed of trust and to payments on the loan from the deceased].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant[s, and each of them,] as follows:

1. Declaring that defendant[s, and each of them,] holds title to the above-described real property as trustee of a resulting trust for the benefit ofplaintiff, and that defendant[s, and each of them,] has no right, title, or interest in the property;

2. Ordering defendant _____ [name] to account for all sums paid by plaintiff and applied by the deceased, pursuant to the agreement between plaintiff and the deceased;

3. Determining the balance, if any, owing by plaintiff on the loan from the deceased;

4. Ordering defendant, on payment by plaintiff of any balance found to be due, to execute and deliver any deeds or other instruments as shall be necessary to convey title to the property to plaintiff;

5. Awarding to plaintiff costs of suit herein incurred; and

6. Awarding to plaintiff such other and further relief as the court deems necessary.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a beneficiary to establish and enforce a purchase-money resulting trust in real property against the estate of a deceased person who loaned funds to the beneficiary to enable the beneficiary to buy the property and who took title to the property to secure the loan. The complaint also seeks an accounting for amounts paid to the lender [see Viner v. Untrecht (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 261, 269, 158 P.2d 3 (citing Restatement of Trusts § 448)].

In this type of transaction, the lender typically takes title to the property as security for repayment of the loan and as resulting trustee for the borrower-beneficiary until the beneficiary repays the loan. On repayment, the lender is under a duty to convey title to the borrower-beneficiary, and if the lender fails to so convey, thereby repudiating the trust, a cause of action arises in favor of the beneficiary for enforcement of the resulting trust [Viner v. Untrecht (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 261, 269, 158 P.2d 3 (citing Restatement of Trusts § 448); see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 448].

The form of complaint is adapted from that in Markgraf v. Koschmieder, San Francisco Superior Court No. 423370.

[3] Allegations

This form alleges: (1) defendant's capacity (Paragraph 1), and (2) a description of the property that is the subject matter of the action (Paragraph 3) [Code Civ. Proc. § 455]. The complaint then alleges elements of a cause of action for enforcement of a purchase-money resulting trust under the common law: (1) plaintiff's purchase of real property (Paragraph 3); (2) payment for the property in whole or in part with consideration borrowed by the plaintiff from the deceased (Paragraph 4) [see Viner v. Untrecht (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 261, 269, 158 P.2d 3] ; plaintiff's obligation to repay the loan (Paragraph 6) [see Viner v. Untrecht (1945)26 Cal. 2d 261, 270, 158 P.2d 3] ; the intention of the parties that to secure the loan, the deceased take title to the property as trustee until plaintiff's repayment of the loan and that plaintiff remain the beneficial owner of the property (Paragraphs 5-7); and plaintiff's payments on the loan (Paragraph 8).

[4] Accounting Action

A complaint in an action for an accounting must allege the existence of both a relationship between plaintiff and defendant, and an unknown balance due that cannot be determined without an accounting (Paragraphs 3-6, and 11) [Raymond v. Independent Growers, Inc. (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 154, 160, 284 P.2d 57 ; see St. James Church v. Superior Court (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 352, 359, 287 P.2d 387] . Generally, the complaint must also allege plaintiff's demand for and defendant's refusal to provide an accounting (Paragraphs 9 and 10) [see Wooster v. Nevills (1887) 73 Cal. 58, 60, 14 P. 390] .

For a complete discussion of and forms for use in pleading the elements of an accounting action, see Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for.

[5] Lis Pendens

A plaintiff may not file a notice of lis pendens unless the plaintiff pleads a cause of action that affects title to specific real property [Gale v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1388, 1395, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 554] , and a plaintiff is not entitled to a lis pendens in an action in which the only relief sought is money damages [Palmer v. Zaklama (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1367, 1381, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116] .

If a pleading combines theories of liability for monetary damages and for a constructive trust, the plaintiff is not entitled to a lis pendens, because that might provide an unscrupulous plaintiff with a powerful lever to force the settlement of a groundless or malicious suit [BGJ Assocs. v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 952, 972, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693] . A lis pendens is a provisional remedy that must be applied narrowly [BGJ Assocs. v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 952, 967, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693] . For example, a lis pendens is not available in an action by a trustee requesting the imposition of a constructive trust and an equitable lien on the defendant's house for the amount of money that the defendant used to make improvements to the house, which the defendant allegedly obtained by exercising undue influence over the deceased trustor [Campbell v. Superior Court (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 904, 916-922, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 68] .

However, a fraudulent conveyance action seeking avoidance of a transfer of title of specific real property under Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(1) is a real property claim for purposes of the lis pendens statute [Kirkeby v. Superior Court (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 642, 652, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 805, 93 P.3d 395] .

§ 562.63 Allegation--Property Was Not Transferred as Gift

[1] FORM Allegation--Property Was Not Transferred as Gift

1. At all times mentioned herein, the above-described property was neither conveyed with any intent or purpose that the conveyance be, nor was the conveyance, a gift, advancement, or bounty to _____ [name of defendant] from _____ [name of plaintiff]. At all times mentioned, _____ defendant has held interest and title in such property in trust and as trustee, as alleged herein, for _____ plaintiff and not otherwise.

[2] Use of Form

This form of allegation is for use in a complaint to establish and enforce a purchase-money resulting trust in real or personal property. It should be used when the defendant is a natural object of the bounty of the plaintiff to allege that the payment for the property was not a gift [see Quinn v. Reilly (1926) 198 Cal. 465, 467-468, 245 P. 1091 (daughter as trustee)].

If it appears that the grantee is a child or other natural object of bounty of the person who makes the payment, it will be presumed that a gift is intended [Gomez v. Cecena (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 363, 367, 101 P.2d 477 , see Restatement (Second) of Trusts § 442]. The presumption of gift is sufficient to rebut the presumption of the existence of a resulting trust [Oyama v. State of California (1948) 332 U.S. 633, 68 S. Ct. 269, 92 L. Ed. 249, 256] . The burden of proof then shifts to the payor to prove that he or she did not intend to make a gift to the transferee [Altramano v. Swan (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 622, 628, 128 P.2d 353 (citing Restatement of Trusts § 442, comment b)].

To rebut the presumption of gift in cases of property transfers between and among family members, a plaintiff must be allowed to allege facts showing that a gift is not intended. In so doing, plaintiff need only allege ultimate facts and not, for example, acts or agreements tending to prove those ultimate facts [Quinn v. Reilly (1926) 198 Cal. 465, 468, 245 P. 1091] .

This allegation is adapted from the facts in Quinn v. Reilly (1926) 198 Cal. 465, 467, 245 P. 1091 .

[3] Decisions

When parent pays for conveyance of property to child, presumption of gift arises, rather than presumption of resulting trust. Oyama v. State of California (1948) 332 U.S. 633, 641, 68 S. Ct. 269, 92 L. Ed. 249

When title to property taken in husband's name and consideration for transfer furnished by wife, presumption of resulting trust arises. Socol v. King (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 342, 348, 223 P.2d 627 .

When title to property taken in wife's name and consideration for transfer furnished by husband, presumption of gift arises, and burden as shifts to payor to prove that gift not intended. Altramano v. Swan (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 622, 628, 128 P.2d 353

Presumption of gift is rebutted by adequate proof that grantee was not intended to have beneficial interest. Gomez v. Cecena (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 363, 367, 101 P.2d 477

§ 562.64 Affirmative Defense--Consideration or Transfer of Property Was Gift

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense--Consideration or Transfer of Property Was Gift

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of actionalleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that

plaintiff's advance to defendant of consideration for the purchase of property described in plaintiff's complaint was intended by plaintiff to be and was a gift to defendant of money to enable defendant to purchase the above-mentioned property for defendant's own benefit.

[OR]

plaintiff's transfer to defendant of the property described in plaintiff's complaint was a gift from plaintiff to defendant. Defendant does not hold, nor has he/she ever held, the above-mentioned property in trust for plaintiff.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense is for use in an answer to a complaint seeking to establish and enforce a resulting trust in real or personal property. It may be used by a defendant to rebut the presumption that when a transfer of property is made to one person and the consideration therefor is paid by or for another, a trust results in favor of the person by or for whom the payment is made [see Martin v. Kehl (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 228, 238-239, 193 Cal. Rptr. 312 ; see also Estate of Raphael (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 525, 531, 252 P.2d 979] .

A statement of any new matter constituting a defense must be contained in an answer to a complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]. If more than one affirmative defense is set forth in the answer, each defense must be separately stated [

Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(g)] and numbered [Cal. Rule of Ct., Rule 2.112(1)]. If the complaint sets forth more than one cause of action, the affirmative defense must refer to the cause of action it is intended to answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(g)].

§ 564.10 Governing Law

Unemployment insurance is governed by the federal Unemployment Tax Act (I.R.C. § 3301 et seq.), the federal Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. §§ 501-504, 1101-1109), the California Unemployment Insurance Code, and 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 125.1 et seq.

Federal disability insurance is governed by 42 U.S.C. § 401 et seq. [see, e.g., Brawner v. Secretary of Health and Human Services (9th Cir. 1988) 839 F.2d 432, 433-434] .

The Unemployment Insurance Code consists of General Provisions (Unemp. Ins. Code § 1 et seq.) and seven divisions. Division 1 (Unemp. Ins. Code § 100 et seq.) covers unemployment and disability compensation.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

49-564 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 564.11

§ 564.11 Federal-State System

The unemployment insurance program was initiated by Congress in the Social Security Act of 1935 [see City of Sacramento v. State of California (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 182, 187, 203 Cal. Rptr. 258] . The act provides for a federal-state system of unemployment compensation by imposing a federal tax on an affected employer in specified percentages of the total wages paid in a given calendar year [see I.R.C. § 3301]. A partial credit against the tax is allowed for contributions paid by the employer pursuant to a state unemployment compensation program which is approved by the United States Secretary of Labor on review in conformity with qualifying criteria established by federal law [see I.R.C. §§ 3302-3304]. State programs approved by the Secretary of Labor are subsidized with federal grants paid to the conforming states pursuant to the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. §§ 501-503) [see City of Sacramento v. State of California (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 182, 187, 203 Cal. Rptr. 258 ; Russ v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 834, 842, 178 Cal. Rptr. 421] . Thus, the act imposes a tax on employers that each state can mitigate by establishing its own unemployment insurance program meeting federal guidelines [Campos v. Employment Development Dept. (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 961, 966-967, 183 Cal. Rptr. 637] .

The California law is contained in the Unemployment Insurance Code of 1953 (discussed under § 564.100), which consolidated and revised the prior law (originally enacted in 1935) relating to unemployment and disability insurance [see Pacific Legal Foundation v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 101, 114, 172 Cal. Rptr. 194, 624 P.2d 244] . Provisions governing interstate and federal cooperation are set forth in Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 451-456.

§ 564.12 Purposes of Law

The purposes of the unemployment insurance law are to provide benefits for persons unemployed through no fault of their own and to reduce involuntary unemployment and the suffering caused by it to a minimum. Unemployed persons claiming unemployment insurance benefits are required to make all reasonable effort to secure employment on their own behalf [Unemp. Ins. Code § 100; *see Gilles v. Under both the federal and state acts, administrative boards are empowered to promulgate rules, regulations, and administrative interpretations [Manchester Avenue Co. v. Stewart (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 307, 310, 325 P.2d 457 ; see California Emp. Com. v. Kovacevich (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 546, 554, 165 P.2d 917] . The administrative board in California charged with the responsibility of carrying out the duties imposed by the Unemployment Insurance Code is the Employment Development Department in the Health and Welfare Agency [see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 301-301.7]. The department is administered by the Director of Employment Development [Unemp. Ins. Code § 301], whose duties and powers are set forth in *Unemp. Ins. PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

49-564 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 564.15

§ 564.15 Use of Information Obtained

[1] Confidentiality

Information obtained by the department in the administration of the code is for the exclusive use and information of the director and is not open to the public, except as otherwise specifically provided in the Unemployment Insurance Code [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1094(a)]. Any information released to authorized entities pursuant to other provisions of the Unemployment Insurance Code is not admissible in evidence in any action or special proceeding, other than one arising out of the Code [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1094(b); see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1095].

The information may, however, be tabulated and published in statistical form, but the name of the employing unit or of any worker must never be divulged in the course of the tabulation or publication [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1094(c)].

The confidentiality of medical records obtained under Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 2601-3272 (relating to disability compensation) and exceptions are covered by Unemp. Ins. Code § 2714.

Thus, except as otherwise provided in the Unemployment Insurance Code, and except with respect to information furnished by the department in connection with its participation as a party or as a lien claimant in a judicial or administrative proceeding, information obtained in the course of administration of the unemployment and disability compensation laws is confidential. It is not to be published or open to public inspection in any manner [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2111; see also Unemp. Ins. Code § 2122 (penalty for violation of nondisclosure provisions)]. Disclosure of amounts of wages paid and amounts of California personal income tax withheld from those wages is not permitted, except as provided by Rev. & Tax. Code § 19542 et seq., which govern disclosure of information by the Franchise Tax Board [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1094(d); see, e.g., Rev. & Tax. Code § 19545 (disclosure in judicial or adminstrative proceeding)].

[2] Exceptions

There are several exceptions to the foregoing provisions. Information regarding a recipient of unemployment compensation that must be made available to a federal agency charged with the administration of public works or assistance through public employment is covered by Unemp. Ins. Code § 321. The exchange of information between the department and other state or federal agencies is covered by Unemp. Ins. Code § 322. Disclosures required to be made by the department to law enforcement agencies are covered by Unemp. Ins. Code § 1095. Disclosures required to be made by the department regarding entitlement of benefits and regarding employers' obligations and rights are set forth in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1095(b) and (c) and Unemp. Ins. Code § 1095(d) and (e), respectively. Disclosures required to be made by the department regarding public social services and local relief assistance are set forth in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1095(f) and (g), respectively.

Additional disclosures required to be made by the department are set forth in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1095. For example, information may be disclosed to enable an employer to fully discharge its obligations or safeguard its rights under the Unemployment Insurance Code or the Employment Development Act [see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1 et seq, § 9000 et seq.]; to enable federal, state, or local government departments or agencies to verify or determine the eligibility or entitlement of applicant for public social services; and to enable state or local governmental departments or agencies to pursue criminal, civil; or administrative remedies in connection with the unlawful application or receipt of relief under the Welfare and Institutions Code or to enable the collection of expenditures for medical assistance services under the Welfare and Institutions Code) [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1095(d), (f), (h)]. Disclosures required to be made by the department to public employee retirement systems are set forth in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1095(j). Disclosures required to be made to the Division of Labor Standards Enforcement in the Department of Industrial Relations to enable it to seek criminal, civil, or administrative remedies in connection with the failure to pay, or the unlawful payment of, wages pursuant to Lab. Code § 200 et seq. (payment of wages) and Lab. Code § 1720 et seq. (relating to public works) are set forth in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1095(k). Disclosures required to be made to federal, state, or local governmental departments or agencies relating to child support enforcement are set forth in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1095(l). Disclosures required to be made by the department to provide an authorized governmental agency, such as a county district attorney or office of the Attorney General, with relevant information that relates to any specific workers' compensation insurance fraud investigation are set forth in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1095(o). Disclosures required to enablecity and county planning agencies to develop economicforecasts are set forth in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1095(r). Disclosure of wage and employer information to the State Department of Developmental Services to assist that department in the collection of moneys owed by the recipient, parent, or any other legally liable person for services and support provided by the department under specified programs is authorized by Unemp. Ins. Code § 1095(s). Any counsel or agent representing a claimant must not charge or receive for his or her services more than an amount approved by the appeals board; a violation of this provision is punishable by fine, imprisonment, or both [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1957]. If a fee is charged by an agent for representing a claimant before an administrative law judge and an issue as to the amount is raised by the claimant, the agent, or the judge, the agent must receive no more than an amount approved by the judge. The approved fee may be reviewed by the appeals board [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 5011]. If a fee is charged in a proceeding before the appeals board and an issue is raised as to the amount, the agent must receive no more than an amount approved by the board [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 5011].

[3] Authorization for Representation and Service of Notices

A form is provided by the department without charge for the use of an individual claiming benefits to authorize a counsel or an agent to represent the claimant in any proceedings before the appeals board or its administrative law judges or authorized representatives. If an authorization is filed, the appeals board or its administrative law judges must, on request by the claimant, serve copies of all notices and transcript pertinent to the proceedings on the claimant and his or her counsel or agent [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1957.5].

In any proceeding, hearing, investigation, or in the discharge of any duties imposed by law, any member of the appeals board, an administrative law judge, and any authorized employee designated by the board may administer oaths, take depositions, certify to official acts, and issue subpoenas to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of books, papers, correspondence, memoranda, and other records [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1953; see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 5058 (witnesses and subpoenas); see also Hill v. Brisbane (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 15, 17-18, 151 P.2d 578] .

Obedience to subpoenas may be enforced by application to the superior court as set forth in Gov. Code §§ 11180-11191 (relating to investigations and hearings by state agencies) [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1954]. However, the only duty of the court is to assist the department in the performance of its functions, and the court may not in the proceeding usurp the functions of the department [Hill v. Brisbane (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 15, 20, 151 P.2d 578 (involving predecessor statute)].

A party, or a party's representative, must be allowed to participate in a hearing by telephone on the party's or representative's request and a showing of good cause [*Unemp. Ins. However, no individual shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter, or thing concerning which he or she is compelled to testify or produce evidence, documentary or otherwise, after having claimed the privilege against self-incrimination. § 564.41 Rules of Evidence and Official or Judicial Notice

The appeals board and its representatives and administrative law judges are not bound by common law or statutory rules of evidence or by technical or formal rules of procedure. Rather, they may conduct the hearings and appeals in such manner as to ascertain the substantial rights of the parties [Unemp Ins. Code § 1952]. Thus, any relevant evidence must be admitted if it is the sort of evidence on which responsible persons are accustomed to rely in the conduct of serious affairs, regardless of the existence of any common law or statutory rule that might make improper the admission of the evidence over objection in civil actions [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 5062(e)]. Under this standard, affidavits by persons as to facts within their personal knowledge would qualify as competent evidence provided the opposing party's right to cross-examine is fully protected [Windigo Mills v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 586, 598, 155 Cal. Rptr. 63] .

The taking of official or judicial notice by an administrative law judge or the board is authorized by 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 5009.

In this latter event, the board may order the taking of additional evidence and may affirm, reverse, modify, or set aside any findings or actions of the Employment Development Department from which the appeal or petition to the administrative law judge was taken. The board must promptly notify the department and the parties of its order or decision [Unemp. Ins. Code § 412(b)].

[2] After Decision of Administrative Law Judge

The appeals board acting as a whole may, on its own motion, by notice mailed to the Director of Employment Development and to the parties not later than 30 days after the mailing of an administrative law judge's decision, either (1) set aside the decision and remand the proceedings to another administrative law judge for review and decision, or (2) remove the proceedings to itself for review and decision [*Unemp. All decisions and orders of the board must be in writing [Unemp. Ins. Code § 408]. Each decision must contain a statement of the facts on which it is based and a statement of the decision itself and the reasons for it. Anything incorporated in a decision, other than a precedent decision (discussed below), must be physically attached to and made a part of the decision [Unemp. Ins. Code § 409]. If a request for review may be taken, the board must attach to its decision an explanation of the party's right to seek such review [Unemp. Ins. Code § 410].

Except for action taken by a judicial tribunal as permitted or required by law, a decision of the appeals board is final and binding on the Director of Employment Development with respect to the parties involved in the particular appeal [Unemp. Ins. Code § 410]. However, the director has the right to seek judicial review from an appeals board decision regardless of whether or not he or she appeared or participated in the appeal to the administrative law judge or to the appeals board [*Unemp. Costs are not awarded in hearings on appeal by the appeals board. However, if the claimant or an employer acted in bad faith and without reasonable basis for appeal, a penalty not exceeding 10 percent of the amount finally awarded on the appeal may be taxed against and deducted from the award by the appeals board and placed in the Unemployment Fund. If a penalty is assessed against an employer, his or her account is debited with the amount of the penalty [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1958]. A claimant is not entitled to recover interest on unemployment insurance benefits previously denied by the Employment Development Department but ordered by an administrative law judge. Interest may only be awarded by a superior court in a judicial action reviewing the administrative denial of benefits [In re Kalem (1993) Cal. Unemp. Ins. Appeals Bd. Prec. Dec. PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Appeals Division

49-564 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 564.51

§ 564.51 Precedent Decision

[1] Designation

The appeals board acting as a whole may designate certain of its decisions as precedents and may on its own motion reconsider a previously issued decision solely to determine whether it shall be designated as a precedent decision [Unemp. Ins. Code § 409; see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 5108(d) (discussed under § 564.163)]. Any decision so designated must be identified in such a manner as to clearly show that it is a precedent and must be published in a manner to make it available for public use, although a charge to defray the cost of publication and distribution may be made [Unemp. Ins. Code § 409; see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 5109].

The director and the administrative law judges are controlled by precedent decisions except as modified by judicial review [Unemp. Ins. Code § 409; see, e.g., Gilles v. Department of Human Resources Development (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 313, 320-321, 113 Cal. Rptr. 374, 521 P.2d 110] .

The designation of a decision or part of a decision, or failure to designate a decision or part of a decision, as a precedent decision is not subject to judicial review [Gov. Code § 11425.60; Unemp. Ins. Code § 409].

[2] Declaratory Relief Action to Challenge Validity

Precedent decisions are akin to agency rulemaking because they announce how governing law will be applied in future cases and, for all practical purposes, are regulations [Pacific Legal Foundation v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 101, 109, 172 Cal. Rptr. 194, 624 P.2d 244] . Thus, any interested person or organization may bring a declaratory relief action in the superior court to obtain a judicial declaration as to the validity of a precedent decision [Unemp. Ins. Code § 409.2; see § 564.260]. Like Gov. Code § 11350, which gives interested persons the right to obtain a judicial declaration as to the validity of any regulation and allows those affected by a regulation to test its legality before risking violation, Unemp. Ins. Code § 409.2 confers standing on nonparties to seek a declaration as to the validity of a precedent decision [Pacific Legal Foundation v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 101, 108-109, 172 Cal. Rptr. 194, 624 P.2d 244] .

In a declaratory relief action brought under Unemp. Ins. Code § 409.2 by a nonparty to the board's precedential decision, the court may determine only whether the board decision accords with the law that would govern if the rule announced in the board decision had been articulated as a regulation. There should be no review of the underlying record or new evidence to discover whether the board correctly resolved factual disputes. The board's version of those facts may not be disturbed unless it lacks substantial support on the face of the decision [Pacific Legal Found. v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 101, 111, 172 Cal. Rptr. 194, 624 P.2d 244 ; Messenger Courier Assn. of Americas v. California Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1074, 1086, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 797].

[3] Procedure on Reversal or Declaration of Invalidity

If a final judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction reverses a precedent decision or declares it invalid, the board, acting as a whole, must promptly modify the decision to conform in all respects to the court's judgment. The modified precedent decision supersedes the prior precedent decision for all purposes, and the board must promptly notify the director, the administrative law judges, and all other subscribers to the precedent decisions of the modified precedent decision [Unemp. Ins. Code § 409.1].

By referring separately to reversals and declarations of invalidity, Unemp. Ins. Code § 409.1 reflects the distinction between the review rights accorded the original parties on the one hand and interested third persons on the other. In actions brought by the former, the court may review the administrative record and "reverse" the board decision, altering the outcome between the parties. The board's conforming modifications take account of that effect, and the decision is superseded to the full extent the reversal may require. However, a judicial declaration of invalidity (see § 564.51[2]) in an action brought by a third person does not alter the operative impact of the decision between claimants and employers. In such an action, the court may determine only whether the board decision accords with the law that would govern were the rule announced articulated as a regulation [Pacific Legal Foundation v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 101, 110-111, 172 Cal. Rptr. 194, 624 P.2d 244] .

Code Reg. § 701-1-710-1. Alternative methods of financing the liability for unemployment compensation benefits, extended duration benefits, and federal state extended benefits of nonprofit organizations and public entities which have made the election are authorized by Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 801-806 and 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 803-1-803-4 [see also Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 702.1(f) (nonprofit organizations), 710(c) (public entities)]. The financing of unemployment insurance coverage for public school employees is covered by Unemp. Ins.

Code §§ 821-832.

Worker contributions to the Disability Fund [see Unemp. Ins. Code § 3001] are covered by Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 984-990 and 2901-2903.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Reports, Contributions, and Assessments

49-564 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 564.71

§ 564.71 Definitions

[1] "Employer"

"Employer" means any "employing unit" that employs one or more persons in the current or preceding year and pays "wages" exceeding $100 in any calendar quarter [Unemp. Ins. Code § 675; see also Unemp. Ins. Code § 676 et seq., and Unemp. Ins. Code § 10200 et seq.].

Whether an individual or entity is the employer of specific employees is determined under common law rules applicable in determining the employer-employee relationship [Unemp. Ins. Code § 606.5(a)]. However, specific statutory rules govern this determination for individuals or entities that are considered temporary services employers or leasing employers because they contract with clients or customers to supply workers to perform services for the client or customers [Unemp. Ins. Code § 606.5(b)-(d); see also Unemp. Ins. Code § 606; 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 606-1 (who is employer of individual employed to perform work of or assist employee)].

[2] "Employing Unit"

"Employing unit" is any individual or type of organization which has in its employ one or more individuals performing services for it within California [Unemp. Ins. Code § 135(a)].

An acquisition or change in the form or organization of an existing business enterprise does not create a new employing unit if there is continuity of control [Unemp. Ins. Code § 135.1(a)]. Also, if two or more business enterprises are united by factors of control, operation, and use, the Employment Development Director may determine that the business enterprises are one employing unit [Unemp. Ins. Code § 135.2(a)].

[3] "Calendar Quarter"

"Calendar quarter" is the three consecutive calendar months periods ending on March 31st, June 30th, September 30th, or December 31st, or the equivalent thereof as may be prescribed by "authorized regulations" (defined below) [Unemp. Ins. Code § 129].

[4] "Employment"

"Employment" is defined generally as meaning any service, including service in interstate commerce, performed for "wages" under a written or oral, express or implied contract of hire [Unemp. Ins. Code § 601]. Specific kinds of service included in the term employment are set forth in Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 601.5-611; see also 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 606-1 (specifying when employer has constructive knowledge of assistant and substitute employees) and 607-1 (relating to segregation of exempt services and subject employment). Services excluded from the term "employment" are set forth in Unemp. Ins. Code § 629 et seq. and 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 629-1 et seq. "Employment" for the purposes of disability insurance is defined in Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 2606, 2606.4, and 2606.5.

[5] "Employee"

The term "employee" includes the following: (1) any corporate officer [Unemp. Ins. Code § 621(a)]; (2) any individual who has the status of an employee under the usual common law rules applicable in determining the employer-employee relationship [Unemp. Ins. Code § 621(b); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 621(b)-1; see also Messenger Courier Assn. of Americas v. California Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1074, 1089-1092, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 797 (common-law rules for this purpose include complementary criteria developed in case law and factors identified in Restatement Second of Agency)]; and (3) certain agent or commission drivers engaged in distributing specified food products or laundry or drycleaning services, specified traveling or city salespersons, and certain home workers [Unemp. Ins. Code § 621(c)(1); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 621(c)-1(a)]. However, a person is not an "employee" under the provisions of Unemp. Ins. Code § 621(c)(1) if he or she has a substantial investment in facilities used in connection with the performance of the services, other than in facilities for transportation, or if the services are in the nature of a single transaction not part of a continuing relationship with the employing unit for which the services are performed [Unemp. Ins. Code § 621(c)(2); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 621(c)-1(b)].

"Employee" also includes any individual [Unemp. Ins. Code § 621.5]:

- who is an employee pursuant to Unemp. Ins. Code § 601.5 (service in artistic or literary capacity performed pursuant to collective bargaining agreement between employer and labor organization in motion picture, radio, or television industry) or Unemp. Ins. Code § 686 (contract for creation of specially ordered or commissioned work of authorship) [Unemp. Ins. Code § 621(d)];

- whose services are in subject employment pursuant to an election for coverage under any provision of Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 701-713 (relating to elective coverage) [Unemp. Ins. Code § 621(e)]; and

- who is an employee, pursuant to Lab. Code § 2750.5 (relating to disability insurance and raising rebuttable presumption that worker is employee rather than independent contractor), of a person who holds, or does not hold but is required to obtain, a valid state contractor's license pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 7000 et seq. (Contractors License Law) [see Hunt Bldg. Corp. v. Bernick (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 213, 219-220, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 883 (unlicensed subcontractors and their employees are deemed statutory employees of general contractor for purposes of Unemployment Insurance Code)].

The term "employee" does not include a director of a corporation or association performing services in his or her capacity as a director, but this does not apply to service included in "employment" (discussed above) pursuant to Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 605, 608, 709, and 710 [Unemp. Ins. Code § 622(a)]. Services included and excluded from the term "services in his or her capacity as a director" are set forth in Unemp. Ins. Code § 622(b) and (c).

For the meaning of "employee," as used in Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 13000-13101, relating to the withholding of state taxes on wages, see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 13004, 13004.1.

[6] "Wages"

The term "wages" is variously defined throughout the Unemployment Insurance Code and its meaning depends on the context in which it is used. For the purposes of Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 901-1243 (relating to contributions and reports), and except as otherwise provided by Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 926-940 (relating to wages as the basis of the contribution), "wages" means all remuneration payable to an employee for personal services, whether by private agreement or consent or by force of statute, including commissions and bonuses and the reasonable cash value of all remuneration payable to an employee in any medium other than cash [Unemp. Ins. Code § 926; see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 926-1-926-7]. In this context, the term also means all remuneration payable for personal services, as specified in Unemp. Ins. Code § 926, above, when the legal obligation for the payment of the wages is assumed by an employer specified in Unemp. Ins. Code § 678 (relating to motion picture, radio, and television industry), and the first or prior employer for whom the personal services were originally performed is relieved of the legal obligation for the payment of the remuneration [Unemp. Ins. Code § 926.5]. The term includes all tips which are received while performing services which constitute employment and included in a written statement furnished to the employer pursuant to I.R.C. § 6053(a) [Unemp. Ins. Code § 927]. For the purposes of specified code sections, "wages" means taxable wages as well as wages that would be taxable except for the limitations on taxable wages provided under Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 930 ($7,000 during calendar year) and 985 (relating to employee contributions) [Unemp. Ins. Code § 940].

For the meaning of "wages," as used in Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 13000-13101, relating to the withholding of state taxes, see Unemp. Ins. Code § 13009.

[7] "Authorized Regulations"

"Authorized regulations" are regulations promulgated pursuant to the provisions of Gov. Code § 11340 et seq. [Unemp. Ins. Code § 127].

[8] Other Terms

Other terms, as used in Unemp. Ins. Code § 901 et seq. (relating to employer and employee contributions and reports), defined by statute are:

- "computation date" [Unemp. Ins. Code § 902],
- "rating period" [Unemp. Ins. Code § 903],
- "net balance of reserve" [Unemp. Ins. Code § 904],
- "average base pay roll" [Unemp. Ins. Code § 905], and
- "contributions paid on his own behalf" [Unemp. Ins. Code § 906].

§ 564.72 Registration With Employment Development Department (EDD)

Within 15 days after becoming an employer, an employing unit must register with the Employment Development Department (EDD) on the prescribed form [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1086]. Any employing unit that fails to register with the EDD because of intentional disregard or intent to evade Unemp. Ins. Code § 100 et seq. or authorized regulations is subject to a penalty of $100 for each nonreported employee [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1126.1(a)]. This penalty is in addition to the penalty for failure to make a reconciliation return [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1126.1(a); see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1126; see § 564.73[4]]. The number of unreported employees is the highest number of employees determined by the EDD to have been engaged by the employer during any single calendar quarter included in the assessment issued under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1126 [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1126.1(b)].

§ 564.73 Reports, Returns, and Work Records

[1] Requirements

Each employer must file with the Employment Development Director within the time required for payment of employer contributions a report of contributions and a report of wages paid to its workers [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1088(a); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1088-1(a)]. The report of contributions must be filed within the time required by Unemp. Ins. Code § 1110(b) for payment of worker contributions and must contain the employer's business name, address, and account number, the total amount of worker contributions due, and such other information as the director prescribes [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1088(b); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1088-1(b)]. Special procedures apply if the Director determines that an employer reporting wages is not the correct employer of the employees whose wages are reported [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1127.5]. Employers and self-employed individuals who have elected under Unemp. Ins. Code § 708(a) to be covered by unemployment and disability insurance must file a separate report of contributions to report wages subject to contributions for disability insurance [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1088(c)].

Under the Make it Easy on the Family and Small Business Act, employers who employ individuals to perform domestic service (as described in Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 682 and 684) are authorized to file the report required by Unemp. Ins. Code § 1088 by telephone [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1118 (operative July 1, 1997; establishing specific procedures and content for reporting by telephone)].

In addition to information in the report of contributions and report of wages under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1088, employers are required to file with the EDD specified information on new employees [see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1088.5(a)]. An employer generally must submit the report within 20 days of hiring any new employee who works in California and to whom the employer anticipates paying wages [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1088.5(b), (d)(1); see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1088.5(d)(2) (semimonthly reporting schedule for employers reporting magnetically or electronically)]. The report must include the employee's name, address, social security number, and starting work date; the employer's name, address, state employer identification number (if one has been issued), and federal taxpayer identification number [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1088.5(d)(4)]. The failure to timely report the hiring of an employee, unless the failure is due to good cause, will be subject to the assessment of a penalty by the EDD [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1088.5(e)]. The information reported may be used [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1088.5(f)]:

- By the EDD to perform its duties under the Unemployment Insurance Code;

- To locate individuals for purposes of establishing paternity and establishing, modifying, and enforcing child support obligations [see also Welf. & Inst. code § 11478.51];

- To administer employment security and workers' compensation programs;

- To provide employer or employee information to the Franchise Tax Board for the purpose of tax enforcement; and

- To verify eligibility of applicants for, or recipients of, public assistance programs.

For purposes of this reporting requirement, an "employer" includes a labor union hiring hall [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1088.5(g)]. The federal government and its departments, agencies, and instrumentalities are not subject to the reporting requirement [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1088.5(c)(1)]. A state agency employer is not required to report an employee performing intelligence or counterintelligence functions, if the head of the agency has determined that reporting the employee would endanger the safety of the employee or compromise an ongoing investigation or intelligence mission [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1088.5(c)(2)].

Every employing unit must keep an accurate work record of all its workers and their status (employed, on layoff, or on leave of absence) and the other matters specified in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1085. The employing unit must furnish to the Employment Development Director, administrative law judge, or deputy, on demand, a sworn statement of the matters contained in the work records. If the records are kept pursuant to contract with a financial institution as defined in Gov. Code § 7465, the employing unit must also furnish to the director or to the director's authorized representative an authorization for disclosure of the account or accounts. The records must be open to inspection and subject to being copied by the director or his or her authorized representative at any time during the employing unit's business hours. Any claimant or his or her authorized representative at a hearing before a deputy or administrative law judge or the appeals board must be supplied with information from the records to the extent necessary for the proper presentation of the claim [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1092].

Employers that have employees who receive tips must furnish each employee with a written statement showing the excess of contributions required for the tips included in the employee's federal income tax tip report over contributions withheld with regard to the employee's wages generally. Employers must also file a copy of this statement with the Employment Development Director [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1088.6].

[2] Consequences of Failure to Provide

If an employer fails to provide any records or reports necessary for the proper disposition of a claim for benefits, it is presumed that the claimant is entitled to the maximum total amount of benefits payable, unless the employer establishes by other evidence that a lesser amount is properly due. Special rules apply to any claimant who has earned wages for more than one employer during his or her base period [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1093].

In addition, an employer that fails to timely provide the report of contributions and wage report required by Unemp. Ins. Code § 1088(a)) [see § 564.73[1]] must pay a penalty equal to 10 percent of the amount of worker contributions required by the return [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1112.5(a)]. The penalty is in addition to the penalties required by Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1112 and 1126 [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1112.5(a)].

Employers who fail to provide the statement showing the excess of contributions required for the tips included in an employee's federal income tax tip report over contributions withheld with regard to the employee's wages generally [see § 564.73[1]] are liable for the excess contributions [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1088.6].

[3] Use of Agent for Workers Employed by Several Employers

If a number of workers are normally employed during the year by several employers, those employers may, with the approval of the Employment Development Director, appoint an agent to prepare and file the required reports for those workers [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1096; see also Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1097, 1098].

[4] Annual Reconciliation Return

In addition to the reports of wages and worker contributions [see § 564.73], each employer must file with the director an annual reconciliation return showing the total amount of wages [see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 976, 976.6], employer contributions [see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 976, 976.6], and worker contributions [see Unemp. Ins. Code § 984], as well as amounts withheld as California personal income tax [see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 13020, 13028], and any other information required by the director [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1088(e)]. This return is due the first day of January following the close of the prior calendar year; it is delinquent if not filed by the last day of January [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1088(e)]. The penalty for failure to file this return is set forth in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1117.

§ 564.74 Employer Contributions

Employer contributions accrue and become payable to the Employment Development Department for the Unemployment Fund [see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1521] by every employer, except an employer defined in Unemp. Ins. Code § 676 (employer for which services are performed that are included in "employment" solely for purposes of Unemp. Ins. Code § 2601 et seq., relating to disability compensation) for each calendar year with respect to wages paid for employment. The contributions must not be deducted in whole or in part from the employees' wages [Unemp. Ins. Code § 976].

The United States Supreme Court has held that, for purposes of employer taxes under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act and the Federal Unemployment Tax Act [see I.R.C. §§ 3111, 3301 et seq.], back wages are allocated to the year in which the wages are actually paid, rather than the year in which they should have been paid [United States v. Cleveland Indians Baseball Co. (2001) 532 U.S. 200, 205-220, 121 S. Ct. 1433, 149 L. Ed. 2d 401, 411-418] .

§ 564.75 Reserve Accounts

[1] Charges and Credits

The Employment Development Director is required to keep separate records of the amounts paid into the Unemployment Fund by each employer or chargeable to the employer as benefits and to maintain a separate reserve account for each employer in which contributions paid on the employer's own behalf are credited [Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1025, 1026(a); see Altaville Drug Store, Inc. v. Employment Development Department (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 231, 234, 242 Cal. Rptr. 732, 746 P.2d 871] . The director also credits the interest earned by the Unemployment Fund to each positive reserve employer account in proportion to the amount the account bears to the total of all positive reserve accounts [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1026(c)]. Credits and charges are governed by Unemp. Ins. Code § 1026(d), (e).

[2] Annual Statements

At least once each year, every employer is furnished with an itemized statement of the charges to the reserve account, and with a statement of the reserve accounts showing credits and charges, the net balance of the reserve account, and the contribution rate for the applicable rating period [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1033].

[3] Protest of Charge or Credit

Except as to corrections made by the director as provided in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1036, the contribution rate and other items shown on the statement are final unless a protest is filed [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1034; see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1034-1].

A written protest on any item shown may be filed by the employer within 60 days or any extension thereof after the date the statement of charges or credits and charges was mailed [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1034; 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1034-1(a)]. The protest must include the matter set forth in 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1034-1(b). The protest must also set forth the specific grounds on which it is made [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1034]. However, no protest may be made on the grounds that a claimant was ineligible for a benefit payment if (1) the employer was notified of the filing of the claim or of a determination of the claimant's eligibility and failed to file a timely appeal on the benefit claim, or (2) a final decision of an administrative law judge or of the appeals board affirmed the payment of benefits [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1034(a)]. An employer may file a protest on the grounds that the director did not allow voluntary unemployment insurance contributions to the reserve account in accordance with Unemp. Ins. Code § 976.5. The protest must be filed within 30 days after the last working day of March [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1034(b)].

The director is required to give the employer notice of his or her action on the protest [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1035].

§ 564.78 Administrative Appellate Review

[1] Levels of Appellate Review

There are two levels of administrative appellate review of (1) the denial of a protest of charges to an employer's reserve account, (2) the denial or granting of an application for transfer of a reserve account, (3) a notice of assessment, (4) the denial of a claim for refund or credit, and (5) any notice under specified code sections made or given by the Director of Employment Development [see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1034 (denial of protest), 1051-1055, 1243 (denying or granting transfer of reserve accounts), 1221 (notice of jeopardy assessment), 1222 (notice of assessment, denial of claim for refund or credit, or notice under specified code sections)]. The first consists of a review by an administrative law judge and the second consists of a review by the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board.

[2] Review by Administrative Law Judge

The first of the two levels of appellate review is a review by an administrative law judge on petition for review or reassessment, as the case may be [see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1221, 1222]. The petition must include the name of the petitioner; the employer account number, if any, of the petitioner; the mailing address of the petitioner; the name and mailing address of any representative filing the petition; and the name and social security number of any claimant who is a party [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 5008(b)]. The petition may also include a telephone number for the petitioner; an electronic address of the petitioner; the date or case number of the underlying department action, decision, or order; a concise statement of reasons for the petition; any request for language assistance or special accommodation; and a dated signature of the petitioner [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 5008(c)]. The duty of the administrative law judge to review the matter and, if requested by petitioner, to grant a hearing is set forth in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1223.

[3] Review by Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board

The second level of appellate review is by appeal from the administrative law judge's decision or order to the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board [see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1034 (review of decision on denial of protest of charges to employer's reserve account), 1224 (review of decision on assessment, denial of claim for refund or credit, or specified notices), 1243 (review of decision on denial of protest under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1034 or denial or granting of application for transfer of reserve account)].

Within 30 days after service of notice of the administrative law judge's decision, or any extension of that period, the petitioner or director may file an appeal with the appeals board. If the administrative law judge fails to serve notice of the decision on a petition for review of the denial of a claim for refund or credit within 60 days after the petition is filed, the petitioner may consider the petition denied and file the appeal [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1224(a)].

The appeal must include the name of the appellant; the employer account number, if any, of the appellant; the mailing address of the appellant; the name and mailing address of any representative filing the appeal; and the name and social security number of any claimant who is a party [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 5008(b)]. The appeal may also include a telephone number for the appellant; an electronic address of the appellant; the date or case number of the underlying department action, decision, or order; a concise statement of reasons for the appellant; any request for language assistance or special accommodation; and a dated signature of the appellant [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 5008(c)].

If an appeal is not filed within the time allowed, the decision of the administrative law judge is final at the expiration of that time. Any assessment involved is also final at the same time except when the administrative law judge's decision requires the adjustment of an assessment by granting a portion of a petition or by increasing an assessment; in this event, the assessment is final 30 days after service on the petitioner by the director of a statement of amounts due setting forth the adjusted liability pursuant to the decision [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1224(a)].

If an appeal is taken to the appeals board, the board may decrease or increase the amount of the assessment involved. If the appeals board's order or decision requires an adjustment of an assessment by granting a portion of the petition or by increasing an assessment, the order or decision and assessment become final 30 days after service on the petitioner by the director of a statement of amounts due setting forth the adjusted liability pursuant to the appeals board's decision or order. In all other cases, the appeals board's order or decision and any assessment become final 30 days after service on the petitioner of notice of the order or decision [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1224(b)].

[4] Effect of Decision and Explanation of Right to Judicial Review

A decision of the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board is final, except for such action as may be taken by a judicial tribunal as permitted or required by law [Unemp. Ins. Code § 410]. If a request for review may be taken, the appeals board must attach to its decisions an explanation of the party's right to seek such review [Unemp. Ins. Code § 410].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Reports, Contributions, and Assessments

49-564 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 564.79

§ 564.79 Judicial Review

[1] Claim for Refund or Credit as Prerequisite

No suit or proceeding shall be maintained in any court for the recovery of contributions, interest, or penalties alleged to have been erroneously or illegally assessed or collected unless a claim for refund or credit has been filed [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1241(a)].

[2] When Action May Be Filed

[a] Generally

Except as provided by Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1241 (discussed under § 564.79[2][b]), 1243 (discussed under § 564.79[2][d]), and 5313 (relating to work incentive programs), a party's right to seek judicial review from an appeals board decision must be exercised not later than six months after the date of the board's decision or the date on which the decision is designated as a precedent decision, whichever is later [Unemp. Ins. Code § 410; see Tarkington v. California Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 1494, 1502-1508, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 131 (six-month period under Unemp. Ins. Code § 410 is subject to equitable tolling while plaintiff pursues alternative remedy reasonably and in good faith)]. For discussion of precedent decisions, see § 564.51.

[b] On Denial of Claim for Refund or Credit

Within 90 days after service of the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board's notice of decision on an appeal, the claimant may bring an action against the Employment Development Director on the grounds set forth in the claim for refund or credit in a court of competent jurisdiction in the County of Sacramento (or in any city or city and county in which the Attorney General has an office [Code Civ. Proc. § 401]) for the recovery of the whole or any part of the amount with respect to which the claim has been denied [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1241(a); see § 564.280].

The director may, in writing, extend the time within which the action may be instituted for a period not exceeding two years if a written request for an extension is filed with the director within the 90-day period. Failure to bring an action within the time specified constitutes a waiver of any demand against the state on account of alleged overpayments. If the appeals board fails to serve notice of its decision on the appeal within 90 days after an appeal is filed, the claimant may consider the claim denied and bring an action against the director [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1241(a)].

If judgment is for the plaintiff, the amount of the judgment is first credited on any contributions, interest, and penalties due from the plaintiff and the balance is refunded to the plaintiff. Interest at the rate of 12 percent per annum on the amount of contributions found to have been illegally collected from the date the contributions were paid to the date of the judgment shall be allowed and paid only to the extent that interest and penalties collected are available [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1242].

[c] On Denial of Claim of Exemption by Religious Organization

To the extent permitted by federal law, an entity or organization that has made a bona fide claim that it is a church, a convention or association of churches, or an organization operated primarily for religious purposes and which is operated, supervised, controlled, or principally supported by a church or convention or association of churches, may bring suit to challenge a decision of the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board denying an exemption as a church or religious organization. However, it must first pay the amount of the last quarter assessed immediately preceding the initial appeals board decision denying the exemption and then make a claim for refund or credit pursuant to Unemp. Ins. Code § 1241 [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1241(b)].

An entity or organization is deemed to have made a bona fide claim that it is a church or religious entity if (1) it has been recognized as a church or religious organization by any entity of state or federal government, or (2) the appeals board found that the department failed to show by a preponderance of the evidence admitted at the proceedings to determine tax liability that the petitioner had not made a bona fide claim for coverage under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1241(a) as a church or religious entity [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1241(b)].

A decision denying eligibility under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1241(b) may be challenged by a petition for writ of mandate and shall not be deemed an action proscribed by or within the meaning of Cal. Const., art. XIII, § 32 (prohibiting legal or equitable process to prevent or enjoin collection of tax), or Unemp. Ins. Code § 1851 (prohibiting actions or proceedings to prevent or enjoin collection of contributions). The time within which to file any claim or action under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1241(a), discussed under § 564.79[2][b], is extended during the pendency of the mandate proceeding [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1241(c)].

[d] On Denial of Protest or Denial or Grant of Application for Transfer of Reserve Account

A decision of the appeals board on an appeal from a denial of a protest under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1034 or an appeal from the denial or granting of an application for transfer of reserve account under Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1051-1055 is subject to judicial review if an appropriate proceeding is filed by the employer within 90 days of the service of the notice of decision. The director may, in writing, extend for a period not exceeding two years the time within which the proceeding may be instituted if written request for the extension is filed with the director within the 90 day period [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1243]._____

2. Unemployment Compensation Benefits

49-564 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 564.120

§ 564.120 Summary of Procedure for Claiming Unemployment Compensation Benefits and Administrative Appeal

Normally, there are five steps for handling a typical unemployment insurance claim: (1) the claimant files a claim for unemployment insurance; (2) in two weeks, or as directed by the Employment Development Department, the claimant reports in person to the department field office to file a continued claim and is interviewed as to eligibility and benefit rights; if the claimant is found to be eligible, he or she is credited for the one week waiting period and is thereafter paid for one week; (3) in the fifth week, the claimant, to be paid for the third and fourth weeks, files by mail a "continued claim" form certifying that he or she meets the eligibility requirements; (4) periodic eligibility reviews; and (5) determinations of eligibility [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1326-1; see § 564.16].

Thus, the initial determination of a claimant's eligibility for unemployment compensation benefits is rendered by a claims interviewer, who examines documents submitted by the claimant and by the claimant's former employer and discusses the matter with the claimaint in a non-adversarial setting. A party dissatisfied with the determination of the claims interviewer may appeal to an administrative law judge [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1328]. (An appeal may also be taken to an administrative law judge from a ruling on a computation or recomputation of benefits made under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1329 [see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1030(c), 1031, 1032.5, 1330, 1331].) Following a hearing at which the parties may be represented by counsel and may present testimonial and documentary evidence, the administrative law judge decides the issue of eligibility de novo [see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1957, 1334; 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 5000 et seq. ; § 564.37; and Gilles v. Department of Human Resources Development (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 313, 317, 113 Cal. Rptr. 374, 521 P.2d 110] . The parties may further appeal the decision of the administrative law judge to the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board [see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1336]. The board may decide the case on the record of the administrative law judge's hearing or take additional evidence [see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1336; 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 5102]. If it requires the taking of additional evidence, the hearing must be commenced within 60 days after the submission of the appeal and the board's decision must be mailed within 60 days after completion of the hearing; if the taking of further evidence is not required, it must render its decision within 60 days after the submission of the appeal [Unemp. Ins.Code § 1337; see Gilles v. Department of Human Resources Development (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 313, 316-317, 113 Cal. Rptr. 374, 521 P.2d 110] .

Unemployment compensation benefits are payable from the Unemployment Fund to unemployed individuals who are eligible [Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1251, 1521; see § 564.127]. Independent contractors, as that term is traditionally used, are not within the coverage of the code [*Empire Star Mines Co. v. Cal. Emp. Com. The amount payable depends on the amount of wages received by the worker during his or her base period, up to a maximum specified by statute [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1280].

The amount of benefits during partial employment is covered by Unemp. Ins. Code § 1279.

§ 564.124 "Base Period" Defined

[1] Base Period

"Base period" means the following [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1275(a)]:

(1) For benefit years beginning in October, November, or December, the four calendar quarters ended in the next preceding month of June;

(2) For benefit years beginning in January, February, or March, the four calendar quarters ended in the next preceding month of September;

(3) For benefit years beginning in April, May, or June, the four calendar quarters ended in the next preceding month of December;

(4) For benefit years beginning in July, August, or September, the four calendar quarters ended with the next preceding month of March.

Wages used in the determination of benefits payable to an individual during any benefit year must not be used in determining the individual's benefits in any subsequent benefit year [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1275(a)].

[2] Alternate Base Period

An alternate base period may be available for new claims filed on or after April 3, 2011, or earlier if the Employment Development implements the technical changes necessary to establish claims under the alternate base period [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1275(b),(c); see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1329.5 (special rules for computation of benefits under alternate base period)]. Under the provisions for an alternate base period, if an individual cannot establish a claim under the regular base period [see [1], above], that individual may use a base period defined as follows [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1275(b)]:

(1) For benefit years beginning in October, November, or December, the four calendar quarters ended in the next preceding month of September;

(2) For benefit years beginning in January, February, or March, the four calendar quarters ended in the next preceding month of December;

(3) For benefit years beginning in April, May, or June, the four calendar quarters ended in the next preceding month of March;

(4) For benefit years beginning in July, August, or September, the four calendar quarters ended in the next preceding month of June.

Under the alternate base period, the quarter with the highest wages must be used to determine the individual's weekly benefit amount [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1275(b)]. Wages used in the determination of benefits payable to an individual during any benefit year may not be used in determining that individual's benefits in any subsequent benefit year [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1275(b)].

§ 564.125 "Unemployed" Defined

[1] General Conditions

With certain exceptions [see § 564.125[2]], an individual is unemployed in any week in which he or she meets any of the following conditions [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1252(a)]:

(1) Any week during which the individual performs no services and with respect to which no wages are payable to him or her.

(2) Any week of less than full-time work, if the wages payable to the individual with respect to the week, when reduced by $25 or 25 percent of the wages payable, whichever is greater, do not equal or exceed his or her weekly benefit amount.

(3) Any week for which, except for the requirements of Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253(d), requiring a one-week waiting period, the individual would be eligible for benefits under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253.5, relating to physical or mental illness or injury for one or more days during a week (§ 564.132[1][e]).

(4) Any week during which the individual performs full-time work for five days as a juror, or as a witness under subpoena.

For the purpose of the foregoing provisions only, "wages" includes any and all compensation for personal services whether performed as an employee or as an independent contractor or as a juror or as a witness, but does not include any payment received by a member of the National Guard or reserve component of the armed forces for inactive duty training, annual training, or emergency state active duty [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1252(c)].

[2] Commercial Fishing

The general definition of "unemployed" [see § 564.125] does not apply to commercial fishermen. For definitions applicable to both unemployed and partially employed commercial fishermen, see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1252.1, 1252 and 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1252.1-1, 1252.2-1.

[3] Shared Work Arrangements

The general definition of "unemployed" [see § 564.125] does not apply to individuals working under a shared work arrangement. For a definition of "unemployed" applicable to those individuals, see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1279.5(a).

§ 564.126 "Week" Defined

The term "week" for benefit purposes means the seven consecutive days commencing at 12:01 a.m. Sunday, and ending 12 midnight the following Saturday [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1253-1; see Unemp. Ins. Code § 143]. For the various meanings of the term "week of unemployment," see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1253-2-1253-11.

§ 564.127 Eligible Individuals

[1] Conditions of Eligibility

An employee qualified for unemployment compensation benefits is eligible for benefits with respect to any week [see "Week" Defined, above] if the director finds as follows [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253]:

- A claim for benefits with respect to that week was made in accordance with authorized regulations [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253(a); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1253(a)-1; see also 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1326-1 for general description of claims filing procedures for unemployment compensation benefits; and discussion under § 564.132[1]].

- The individual has registered for work, and thereafter has continued to report, at a public employment office or such other place as the director may approve. Either or both of these requirements may be waived or altered by authorized regulation as to partially employed individuals attached to regular jobs [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253(b); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1253(b)-1].

- The individual was able to work and was available for work for that week [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253(c); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1253(c)-2; see also § 564.127[3]].

- The individual has been unemployed for a waiting period of one week as defined in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1254, unless the Governor has waived the waiting period due to war or a state of emergency pursuant to Gov. Code § 8571 [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253(d); see § 564.127[2]].

- The individual conducted a search for suitable work in accordance with specific and reasonable instructions of a public employment office [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253(e); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1253(e)-1, 1253(e)-2; see also §§ 564.127[4] -[6]].

- If the individual has been identified by an automated profiling system as likely to exhaust regular unemployment benefits, the individual participated as required in reemployment activities, such as orientation and assessment, unless the individual has shown good cause for failure to participate [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253(f)].

Notwithstanding Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253(c), above, if an individual is, in all other respects, eligible for benefits and becomes unable to work due to a physical or mental illness or injury for one or more days during the week, he or she shall be paid unemployment compensation benefits at the rate of one-seventh the weekly benefit amount payable for that week for each day which he or she was available for and able to work, but is not entitled to benefits for any day during the week in which he or she was unable to work due to the physical or mental illness or injury [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253.5].

[2] "Week of Unemployment"

No week is counted as a "week of unemployment" [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1253-2, defining phrase] under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253(d), discussed under § 564.127[1] [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1254]:

- Unless it occurs within the benefit year which includes the week with respect to which the person claims payment of unemployment compensation benefits, but this requirement does not interrupt the payment of benefits for consecutive weeks of unemployment. Moreover, the week immediately preceding a benefit year, if part of one uninterrupted period of unemployment which continues into that benefit year, is deemed, for the purposes of Unemp. Ins. Code § 1254 only, to be within the benefit year as well as within the preceding benefit year [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1254(a)].

- If unemployment compensation benefits have been paid with respect to that week [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1254(b)].

- Unless the individual was eligible for unemployment compensation benefits with respect thereto in all respects, except for the requirements of Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1253(d), above and 1281 (relating to minimum earnings requirement) [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1254(c)].

[3] "Available for Work" Requirement

With respect to the requirement that the individual be "available for work" [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253(c), discussed under § 564.127[1]], the term requires no more than that an individual claimant (1) be willing to accept suitable work that he or she has no good cause for refusing and (2) thereby make himself or herself available to a substantial field of employment [Sanchez v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 55, 67, 141 Cal. Rptr. 146, 569 P.2d 740 ; see Pacific Legal Foundation v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 101, 113-114, 172 Cal. Rptr. 194, 624 P.2d 244 ; Glick v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 493, 499, 153 Cal. Rptr. 1, 591 P.2d 24] . Thus, a person may for good cause refuse otherwise suitable employment without losing his or her right to unemployment compensation benefits, provided the person remains available to a substantial field of employment. For example, a parent or guardian of a minor has good cause for refusing employment that conflicts with parental activities reasonably necessary for the care or education of the minor if no reasonable alternative means of discharging those responsibilities exist, provided the claimant remains available to a substantial field of employment [Sanchez v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 55, 70, 141 Cal. Rptr. 146, 569 P.2d 740 (holding claim for unemployment compensation benefits of mother seeking employment in restaurants or factories, days or nights, Mondays through Friday, was improperly denied because she was unable to accept weekend work that would conflict with her responsibilities to care for her minor child)]. In other words, the requirement of availability does not preclude claimants for unemployment insurance benefits from placing some restrictions on their availability to accept employment, as long as they remain available for employment by a more than a minimal number of employers in the community [Rios v. Employment Development Dept. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 489, 493-494, 231 Cal. Rptr. 732] .

Student status, alone, may not disqualify an individual for unemployment compensation benefits. An unemployed individual may be considered "able and available for work" if school attendance does not eliminate a substantial portion of the individual's full-time labor market availability [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253.9].

Moreover, once the claimant for unemployment compensation benefits has shown that he or she is available for suitable work that he or she has no good cause for refusing, the burden of proof on the issue of whether he or she is available to a substantial field of employment lies with the Employment Development Department; if the department believes a given claimant, despite his or her availability for such suitable work, is nevertheless not attached to a labor market of sufficient dimension, it may be expected to explain its position and support it with appropriate evidence [Sanchez v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 55, 71, 141 Cal. Rptr. 146, 569 P.2d 740 ; see Glick v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 493, 500-505, 153 Cal. Rptr. 1, 591 P.2d 24 (holding claim for unemployment compensation benefits of law student seeking part-time employment that would not conflict with requirements of her full-time schooling was properly granted)].

In addition, to deny an unemployed school teacher, otherwise qualified for and receiving unemployment compensation, benefits for a whole week instead of five sevenths of a week on the ground the teacher was unavailable for work within the meaning of Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253(c) for two of the days due to his or her observance of religious holidays in accordance with the dictates of his or her faith violated the teacher's right to free exercise of religion as guaranteed by the First Amendment to the United States Constitution and by Cal. Const., art. I, § 4 and was erroneous when a market for the teacher's services remained [Jaffe v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 719, 721-724, 202 Cal. Rptr. 812] .

However, availability for work includes being legally, as well as physically, available to accept employment. Therefore, an alien who has no work authorization from the federal Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) is not available for work as required by Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253(c) and the Employment Development Department may deny benefits on this basis. An alien's eligibility for benefits generally under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1264, which restricts benefits to aliens based on their status at the time services were performed, is not relevant to the determination of whether an alien is legally available for work at the time he or she applies for benefits [Gutierrez v. Employment Development Dept. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1791, 1799, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 705 ; see also Alonso v. State of California (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 242, 249-250, 123 Cal. Rptr. 536 ; for discussion of the eligibility of aliens generally, § 564.128[4]].

[4] "Seek Work" Requirement

The "seek-work" statute (now Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253(e), discussed under § 564.127[1]), as adopted in 1947, provided that the claimant must comply with seek-work "regulations" (Stats. 1953, ch. 308). In 1961, the statute was amended to charge the Department of Employment (now Employment Development Department) with directing claimants' work-search efforts in detail. The Legislature apparently believed it was unfair to make each claimant guess what seek-work effort was necessary to maintain eligibility in his or her case. It therefore eliminated the open-ended "regulations" requirement and substituted a mandate that the Employment Development Department give each claimant "specific" instructions, that is, the guidance appropriate for his or her particular circumstances. Under the present statute the claimant must adopt a course of action reasonably designed to result in his or her prompt employment in suitable work, considering the customary methods of obtaining work and the current condition of the labor market [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1253(c)-2, (e)-1(a)]. But the claimant's duty is circumscribed by the department's responsibility under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253(e) to design a proper "course of action" for each case. When the department is better situated than the claimant to know customary methods of obtaining work and the current condition of the labor market, the claimant may rely on its advice or that of another state agency to which the department has referred the claimant. Thus, an applicant for benefits fulfills his or her duty to seek work if he or she follows with reasonable diligence the specific and reasonable seek-work instructions of a public employment office [Pacific Legal Foundation v. Unemployment

Ins. Appeals Bd. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 101, 111-112, 117, 172 Cal. Rptr. 194, 624 P.2d 244] .

For the history and interrelation of the seek-work requirement of Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253(e) and the availability for work requirement of Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253(c), discussed under § 564.127[3], and the provision that "unemployed persons claiming unemployment insurance benefits shall be required to make all reasonable effort to secure employment on their own behalf," set forth in Unemp. Ins. Code § 100, see Pacific Legal Foundation v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 101, 113-117, 172 Cal. Rptr. 194, 624 P.2d 244 .

[5] What Constitutes "Suitable Employment" and Factors Considered

The term "suitable employment" means work in the individual's usual occupation or for which the individual is reasonably fitted [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1258].

In determining whether the work is work for which the individual is reasonably fitted, the Director of Employment Development must consider the following:

- The degree of risk involved to the individual's health, safety, and morals;

- The individual's physical fitness and prior training, experience and prior earnings, and length of unemployment and prospects for securing local work in his or her customary occupation;

- The distance of the available work from the individual's residence; and

- Such other factors as would influence a reasonably prudent person in the individual's circumstances [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1258; see Sanchez v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 55, 63, 141 Cal. Rptr. 146, 569 P.2d 740] .

[6] Unsuitable Employment and Effect of Refusal to Accept

The term "suitable employment" does not include employment with an employer who does not: (1) possess an appropriate state license to engage in his or her business, trade, or profession; or (2) withhold or hold in trust the employee contributions required by Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 2601-3272 for unemployment compensation disability benefits and does not transmit all such employee contributions to the department for the Disability Fund as required by Unemp. Ins. Code § 986; or (3) carry either workers' compensation insurance or possess a certificate of self-insurance as required by Lab. Code § 3201 et seq. [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1258.5].

No work or employment shall be deemed suitable and benefits must not be denied to any otherwise eligible and qualified person for refusing new work under any of the following conditions [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1259]:

- If the position offered is vacant due directly to a strike, lockout, or other labor dispute [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1259(a); see Campos v. Employment Development Dept. (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 961, 967, 183 Cal. Rptr. 637] .

- If the wages, hours, or other conditions of the work offered are substantially less favorable to the individual than those prevailing for similar work in the locality [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1259(b)].

- If, as a condition of being employed, the individual would be required to join a company union or to resign from or refrain from joining any bona fide labor organization [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1259(c)].

- If the offer of employment is from an employer who does not possess an appropriate state license to engage in his or her business, trade, or profession if required by state law [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1259(d)].

- If the offer of employment is from an employer who does not carry either workers' compensation insurance or possess a certificate of self-insurance as required by Lab. Code §§ 3201-6002 [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1259(e)].

- If the offer of employment is from an employer who does not withhold or hold in trust the employee contributions required by Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 2601-3272 for unemployment compensation disability benefits and does not transmit all such employee contributions to the Employment Development Department for the Disability Fund as required by Unemp. Ins. Code § 986 [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1259(f)].

[7] Factors Not Affecting Eligibility

An unemployed person who is otherwise eligible for unemployment compensation benefits is not to be deemed ineligible for any week in which:

- for not exceeding two working days, he or she cannot reasonably be expected to work because (a) he or she is unlawfully detained [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253.1(a); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1253.1-1]; (b) he or she is lawfully detained or arrested, but the charge is subsequently dismissed [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253.1(b)]; or (c) there has been a death in his or her immediate family in the state in which he or she resides [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253.12(a); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1253.12-1];

- for not exceeding four working days, he or she cannot reasonably be expected to work because there has been a death in his or her immediate family outside the state in which he or she resides [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253.12(b); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1253.12-1]; or

- pursuant to the provisions of a collective bargaining agreement, he or she is allowed not more than one uncompensated day off in that week or is allowed not more than one uncompensated holiday in that week if (a) he or she is employed in longshoring operations; (b) his or her employer regularly offers employment to individuals employed in such operations seven days a week; and (c) he or she is able to work and available for work for six days of the week except as provided in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253.1 or 1253.12, above [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253.2].

An unemployed person who has been discharged from any branch of the United States armed services and who is otherwise eligible for unemployment compensation benefits is not to be deemed ineligible in any week for which the person has unexpired leave time for which he or she was compensated on discharge [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253.15].

An unemployed person otherwise eligible for unemployment compensation benefits is not to be deemed not able to work or unavailable for work for any week in which he or she is unable to work or unavailable for work solely because he or she is serving on a grand or petit jury or is responding to a subpoena [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253.6].

An unemployed individual is disqualified for eligibility for unemployment compensation benefits solely on the basis that he or she is available for part-time work, only. If an individual restricts his or her availability to part-time work, he or she may be considered to be able to work and available for work [see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253(c)] if it is determined that all of following conditions exist [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253.8]:

(1) The claim is based on the part-time employment.

(2) The claimant is actively seeking and is willing to accept work under essentially the same conditions that existed while the wage credits were accrued.

(3) The claimant imposes no other restrictions and is in a labor market in which a reasonable demand exists for the part-time services he or she offers.

An unemployed individual who meets the foregoing criteria will be considered "able and available" for work, despite having restricted availability for part-time work, only, due to school attendance [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253.9].

Finally, a person is not disqualified for any week solely because he or she is (1) before any court of the United States or any state pursuant to a lawfully issued summons to appear for jury duty, or (2) hospitalized for treatment of an emergency or life-threatening condition [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253.7].

49-564 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 564.128

§ 564.128 Ineligible Persons

[1] School and Seasonal Employees

Unemployment compensation benefits are generally not payable to school employees in the service of a nonprofit organization, a public entity as defined by Unemp. Ins. Code § 605, for holiday recesses, between term breaks, vacations, and paid sabbaticals when there is a contract or reasonable assurance that the employee will perform services for the educational institution after the break or vacation [see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253.3(b)-(i); Russ v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 834, 840-848, 178 Cal. Rptr. 421 ; Winters v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 41, 45, 133 Cal. Rptr. 567 ; for exceptions applicable to nonprofessional employees of specified state special schools, see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1451-1454]. The exclusion of benefits under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253.3 applies to instructional educational employees regardless of whether their employment status is vested or nonvested or the employee is tenured or nontenured. Thus, if there is a contract or a reasonable assurance that a teacher, who has taught during the prerecess period, will perform teaching services for the employer in the academic year or term during the postrecess period, the teacher must be denied unemployment benefits during the summer recess [Board of Education v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 674, 682-683, 206 Cal. Rptr. 788] . On the other hand, assignments given to part-time, hourly instructors of a community college district that depended on their ability to attract a sufficient number of students to justify offering the classes, and for which the standard faculty assignment forms stated that the employment was contingent on adequate class enrollment, do not constitute reasonable assurances of continued employment within the meaning of Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253.3 [Cervisi v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 635, 639, 256 Cal. Rptr. 142 (affirming trial court's judgments granting writs of mandate requiring that instructors be paid unemployment benefits for period between fall and spring semesters)].

The same rules apply to between season periods of unemployment of persons employed in seasonal sports and athletic events [see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253.4].

[2] Person Applying to Another Jurisdiction for Benefits

A person is not eligible for unemployment compensation benefits for any week or part of any week with respect to which he or she has received or is seeking unemployment benefits under an unemployment compensation law of another state or the United States unless the other state or United States finally determines the person is not entitled to unemployment compensation benefits [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1255].

[3] Strikers

A person who left his or her work because of a trade dispute is not eligible for unemployment compensation benefits. The ineligibility continues for the period the person remains out of work because of the continuation of the dispute in the establishment in which he or she is employed [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1262; 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1262-1, 1262-2]. The disqualification imposed by Unemp. Ins. Code § 1262 is not contingent on the merits of the controversy [Acuff v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1044, 256 Cal. Rptr. 513] . For a definition of when locked-out employees in the course of a selective strike are ineligible for benefits, see Interstate Brands v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 770, 774 n.2, 782, 163 Cal. Rptr. 619, 608 P.2d 707 . On the duty of the Employment Development Department to investigate a trade dispute, see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1262.5.

Unemp. Ins. Code § 1262 manifests the state's desire to maintain neutrality in labor disputes and not to require the employer to subsidize, through its contributions to the unemployment compensation fund, the use of the strike as an economic weapon against it [Acuff v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1044, 256 Cal. Rptr. 513 ; Martinez v. California Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1385, 1393, 254 Cal. Rptr. 461 ; Brotherhood of Teamsters & Auto Truck Drivers v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1515, 1525, 236 Cal. Rptr. 78 ; National Broadcasting Co. v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 550, 555, 157 Cal. Rptr. 207] . However, an employee is ineligible under the statute for unemployment compensation benefits only if he or she left work because of the dispute; an employee is not ineligible if he or she left work in the course of, and not because of, a trade dispute for another reason constituting good cause [Bunny's Waffle Shop v. Cal. Emp. Com. (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 735, 738-742, 151 P.2d 224] . In determining ineligibility under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1262, the courts have recognized a two-part test: (1) the worker must voluntarily leave or remain away from his or her employment (a volitional test), and (2) the worker must leave or remain away from his or her employment because of a trade dispute (causational test) [Campos v. Employment Development Dept. (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 961, 966, 183 Cal. Rptr. 637 ; see Acuff v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1045, 256 Cal. Rptr. 513 (trade dispute resulted because of employer's requirement that employees accept a 7.8 percent wage reduction and a total wage and benefit reduction of 14.8 percent); Martinez v. California Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1385, 1390, 254 Cal. Rptr. 461 (trade dispute resulted because of 27 to 33 percent reduction in earnings for employees and in combination with reduced benefits comprised a 34 to 41 percent earnings reduction); Brotherhood of Teamsters & Auto Truck Drivers v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1515, 1525, 236 Cal. Rptr. 78 ; Pacific Maritime Assn. v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 568, 575-579, 215 Cal. Rptr. 408 (neither test metwhen claimants for benefits worked out of union hall on rotational dispatch system and werenot scheduled to work during period in question and did not walk off job or refuse work, even though they did not actively repudiate their union's selective work stoppage policy or seek employment from struck employers)]. The form of cessation of employment is not controlling; what matters is what precedes it in terms of causation and volitional conduct [Acuff v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1048, 256 Cal. Rptr. 513] . When an independent, intervening act of another so disrupts the chain of causation as to render the leaving involuntary, the causation and volitional tests tend to overlap [Acuff v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1045, 256 Cal. Rptr. 513] .

[4] Aliens

Unemployment compensation benefits, extended duration benefits, and federal-state extended benefits are not payable on the basis of services performed by an alien unless the alien was lawfully admitted for permanent residence at the time the services were performed, was lawfully present for purposes of performing them, or was permanently residing in the United States under color of law at the time they were performed, including an alien who was lawfully present in the United States as a result of the application of the provisions of Section 212(d)(5) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. § 1182(d)(5)) [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1264(a)].

In 1988 the Legislature amended Unemp. Ins. Code § 1264 to prescribe various procedures to be followed by the Employment Development Department respecting aliens who have applied for temporary resident status under the federal Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 (Pub. L. No. 99-603) and whose unemployment insurance benefits are at issue. These provisions are set out in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1264(d)-(f), which, however, cease to be operative if the United States Secretary of Labor determines that they do not comply with the federal Unemployment Tax Act [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1264(g)] or on September 30, 1990, whichever is earlier, unless the Legislature deletes or extends that date [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1264(h)].

However, even an alien who falls into one of the three categories discussed above (lawfully admitted for permanent residence, lawfully present for purposes of performing services, or permanently residing in the United States under color of law) at the time services were performed may not be eligible for benefits. If an alien has no work authorization from the federal Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) when he or she applies for benefits, he or she is not legally available for work as required by Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253(c) and the EDD may deny benefits on this basis [Gutierrez v. Employment Development Dept. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1791, 1799, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 705 ; see also Alonso v. State of California (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 242, 249-250, 123 Cal. Rptr. 536 ; for discussion of the requirement of availability for work, § 564.127[3]].

§ 564.129 Reductions and Deductions for Other Payments

The weekly amount of any unemployment compensation otherwise due is, subject to specified exceptions, reduced by the amount of any payments received as pension, retirement pay, annuity, or other similar periodic payment based on the person's previous work or for any temporary total disability under any workers' compensation or employer's liability law [Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1255.3(a), 1255.5]. The legislative intent in enacting Unemp. Ins. Code § 1255.3 was to comply with the letter of I.R.C. § 3304(a)(15), mandating the states to enact such provisions, and nothing more [Evans v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 398, 408-410, 216 Cal. Rptr. 782, 703 P.2d 122 ; see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1255.3(b); and Stats. 1985, ch. 1217, §§ 1, 11, 16 (the McAlister-Duffy-Greene Unemployment Benefit Pension Offset Refund Act)].

However, payments to an individual for vacation pay that was earned but not paid for services performed prior to termination of employment are not construed to be wages or compensation for personal services, and benefits payable under Unemp. Ins. Code § 100 et seq. may not be denied or reduced because of the receipt of those payments [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1265.5; see Evans v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 398, 410, 216 Cal. Rptr. 782, 703 P.2d 122 (construing former version of statute)]. This provision applies notwithstanding any other provision of Unemp. Ins. Code § 100 et seq. [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1265.5].

Similarly, payments for holiday pay that were earned but not paid prior to an indefinite layoff, termination of employment, or commencement of unemployment caused by disability are not to be construed to be wages or compensation for personal services, and benefits payable must not be denied or reduced because of the receipt of these payments [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1265.6].

On deductions from benefits payable for support obligations, see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1255.7.

2. Unemployment Compensation Benefits

49-564 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 564.130

§ 564.130 Disqualified Persons

[1] Grounds

A person is disqualified for unemployment compensation benefits if he or she (1) left his or her most recent work voluntarily without good cause or (2) was discharged for misconduct connected with his or her most recent work [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1256; see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1256-1-1256-43; see also Morrison v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 245, 250, 134 Cal. Rptr. 916 ; Evenson v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 1005, 1015, 133 Cal. Rptr. 488] .

[2] "Most Recent Work" Defined

The term "most recent work," as used in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1256, above, Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1256.1, 1256.2, or 1256.5, discussed under § 564.130[7], is that work in which a claimant for unemployment compensation benefits last performed compensated services (1) prior to and nearest the date of filing a valid new, reopened, or additional claim for unemployment compensation benefits, a valid primary, reopened, or additional claim for extended duration benefits, or a valid application or reopened or additional claim for federal-state extended benefits (2) during the calendar week for which a continued claim is filed [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1256.3].

[3] What Constitutes Voluntary Leaving

The determination of whether an employee voluntarily quit his or her position, rather than being discharged, hinges on who was the "moving party" in the termination [Morgan v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 762, 767, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 34] . If an employer refuses to permit an able and willing employee to continue working or is unable to provide continuing work, the employer is the moving party and the employee is deemed to have been involuntarily unemployed because of a discharge or layoff [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1256-1(c), (d)]. If the employee left employment while continued work was available, the employee is the moving party [Morgan v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 762, 767, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 34] . Therefore, a voluntary leaving occurs only when work is available and the employee leaves work of his or her own free will [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1256-1(d) (also providing examples of "voluntary" leaving)].

[4] "Good Cause"

[a] Defined

The term "good cause" means an adequate cause that comports with the purposes of the Unemployment Insurance Code and with other laws. The concept of good cause cannot be arbitrarily limited; it must take account of real circumstances, substantial reasons, objective conditions, palpable forces that operate to produce correlative results, adequate excuses that will bear the test of reason, just grounds for action, and always the element of good faith. Accordingly, good cause for leaving work means such a cause as justifies an employee's voluntarily leaving the ranks of the employed and joining the ranks of the unemployed; the quitting must be for such a cause as would reasonably motivate in a similar situation the average able-bodied and qualified worker to give up his or her employment with its certain wage rewards in order to enter the ranks of the compensated unemployed [Sanchez v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 575, 584, 205 Cal. Rptr. 501, 685 P.2d 61] . Hence, good cause may exist for reasons that are personal and not connected to the employment situation, but those reasons must be imperative and compelling in nature [MacGregor v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 205, 209, 207 Cal. Rptr. 823, 689 P.2d 453] .

For example, the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board found that good cause did not exist in a case in which an employee, whose job was not in jeopardy from his employer's restructuring process, accepted the employer's offer of a bonus to retire 6 months early. The employee chose early retirement for two reasons: his concern that his job might be subject to restructuring sometime in the future, and his desire to prevent the reassignment, downgrading, or potential layoff of an employee with lesser seniority. The first reason was not good cause because it was purely speculative rather than imperative and compelling. The second reason was not good cause because the restructuring process included protection against layoffs, and there was no evidence that the employee would have displaced any other employee had he remained at his job [In re Mitchell (1994) Cal. Unemp. Ins. Appeals Bd. Prec. Dec. No. P-B-479].

[b] Determination as Question of Law

Whether an applicant for unemployment insurance benefits left his or her employment for "good cause," as this term is used in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1256, discussed under § 564.130[1] above, is a question of law that must be answered in relation to the particular facts of each case [MacGregor v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 205, 209, 207 Cal. Rptr. 823, 689 P.2d 453 ; see Sanchez v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 575, 585, 205 Cal. Rptr. 501, 685 P.2d 61 ; Norman v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 1, 6, 192 Cal. Rptr. 134, 663 P.2d 904] .

[c] Examples

[i] Harassment

It has been held that an employee who quit her employment in the face of continuing harassment and threatened dismissal in retaliation for her union activities and "whistle blowing" to public authorities, rather than waiting to be fired, had good cause for leaving her employment [Sanchez v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 575, 578, 205 Cal. Rptr. 501, 685 P.2d 61] .

A person who left work because of sexual harassment is deemed to have left the employment with good cause if the person took reasonable steps to preserve the working relationship, unless such steps would have been futile [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1256.5].

[ii] Reduction in Earnings

A substantial reduction in earnings (25-percent wage cut) constitutes good cause for leaving employment [Bunny's Waffle Shop v. Cal. Emp. Com. (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 735, 743, 151 P.2d 224] . Conversely, an insubstantial reduction (72/3-percent reduction in salary) does not constitute good cause, particularly if the employee would not have quit but for the belief that he or she was eligible for unemployment compensation benefits [Maitland v. Employment Development Dept. (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 331, 334-335, 181 Cal. Rptr. 587] . Workers who leave their jobs because of a trade dispute are ineligible for unemployment insurance benefits under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1262 (discussed under § 564.128[3]), notwithstanding the fact that the trade dispute was precipitated by substantial wage cuts [Martinez v. California Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1385, 1390-1394, 254 Cal. Rptr. 461 (wage cuts constituting 27-percent to 33-percent reduction in earnings for employees and in combination with reduced benefits comprised 34-percent to 41-percent earnings reduction); see also Acuff v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1045, 256 Cal. Rptr. 513 (trade dispute resulted because of employer's requirement that employees accept 7.8-percent wage reduction and total wage and benefit reduction of 14.8 percent)]. In such cases, Unemp. Ins. Code § 1256, which expressly incorporates a "good cause" standard, does not come into play [see Acuff v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1049-1050, 256 Cal. Rptr. 513] .

[iii] To Preserve Family Relationship

A person may be deemed to have left his or her most recent work with good cause if he or she left employment to accompany his or her spouse or domestic partner to a place from which it is impractical to commute to the employment [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1256]. For the purposes of Unemp. Ins. Code § 1256, the word "spouse" includes a person to whom marriage is imminent [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1256; see also Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1032, 3701, 3702(c), 4701(a), 4702 (relating to employers' reserve accounts); 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1256-12; Altaville Drug Store, Inc. v. Employment Development Department (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 231, 236, 242 Cal. Rptr. 732, 746 P.2d 871] . However, this does not apply to nonmarried persons, even though they may be engaged to be married, if no marriage is imminent and there are no children of their nonformalized relationship [Norman v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 1, 9-10, 192 Cal. Rptr. 134, 663 P.2d 904 ; but see MacGregor v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 205]. Conversely, a worker who leaves his or her employment to accompany his or her nonmarital partner to another state in order to maintain the familial relationship they have established with their child constitutes leaving voluntarily with good cause within the meaning of the statute governing eligibility for unemployment insurance benefits [MacGregor v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 205, 212, 207 Cal. Rptr. 823, 689 P.2d 453] . The precise scope of the word "spouse" in this context has become less important with the enactment of legislation, effective January 1, 2002, under which unmarried domestic partners are treated the same as spouses for the purpose of determining whether a claimant left employment to preserve a family relationship [Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1030(a), 1032, 1056; see Fam. Code § 297 (definition of "domestic partner"); see also 2001 Stats., ch. 893].

[iv] Pursuant to Collective Bargaining Agreement

A person whose employment was terminated under the compulsory retirement provisions of a collective bargaining agreement to which the employer is a party is not deemed to have left his or her work without good cause [Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1030(e), 1256]. Also, a person is deemed to have left his or her most recent work with good cause if he or she elected to be laid off in place of an employee with less seniority pursuant to a provision in a collective bargaining agreement permitting an employee with more seniority to elect to be laid off in place of an employee with less seniority if the employer has decided to lay off employees [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1256].

[v] Deprivation of Equal Opportunity or Discrimination

Subject to specified exceptions, termination of employment by a person whose employer operated so as to deprive the person of equal employment opportunities on the basis of race, religious creed, color, national origin, ancestry, physical disability, mental disability, medical condition, marital status, sex, age, or sexual orientation is not deemed to be "having left the most recent work without good cause" [see Gov. Code § 12940(a) (prohibited bases of discrimination); see also Gov. Code §§ 12926, 12926.1 (definitions)]. However, this does not apply to a deprivation based on a bona fide occupational qualification or on applicable security regulations established by the United States or California, nor does it apply if the person fails to make reasonable efforts to provide the employer with an opportunity to remove any unintentional deprivation of the person's equal employment opportunities [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1256.2; see Prescod v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 29, 41, n.19, 127 Cal. Rptr. 540 (Unemp. Ins. Code § 1256.2 as declaratory of existing law)]. Thus, if one's work is made intolerable over a period of time by the discriminatory acts of the employer, such as a refusal to reinstate, a demotion in grade, and loss of promotional opportunity, there is good cause for leaving employment and seeking unemployment compensation benefits [Prescod v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 29, 41, 127 Cal. Rptr. 540 (sex discrimination against woman rehired after maternity leave at same pay but in lower grade, resulting in loss of promotional opportunity; see Sanchez v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 575, 586-587, 205 Cal. Rptr. 501, 685 P.2d 61 , approving Prescod and disapproving Warringer)].

The term "employment opportunities," as used in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1256.2, includes, but is not limited to, assignments to jobs, work atmosphere, compensation, including fringe benefits, promotions, transfer, upgrading, rights and duties of employees under work rules, and the terms, conditions, or privileges of employment [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1256.2-1].

Employers are prohibited from discriminating on the basis of sex in the payment of wages [Lab. Code § 1197.5(a)]. Hence, it has been held that an employee who had been discriminated against as to wages due to sex, who had made appropriate protest and request for equalization of compensation, and who had been refused adjustment after the employer had had an opportunity to do so had good cause for leaving the employment [Morrison v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 245, 250-253, 134 Cal. Rptr. 916 (pointing out, however, that existence of a claim based on past discrimination which has ceased should not afford good cause to leave employment voluntarily, since methods are available for enforcing the claim by legal process)].

[vi] To Escape Domestic Violence

An individual may be deemed to have left his or her most recent work with good cause if he or she leaves employment to protect his or her children, or himself or herself, from domestic violence abuse [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1256].

[vii] Absence From Work

A person whose employment is terminated due to his or her absence from work for a period in excess of 24 hours because of his or her incarceration and who is convicted of the offense for which he or she was incarcerated or of any lesser included offense is deemed to have left his or her work voluntarily without good cause for the purposes of determining eligibility for benefits under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1256 [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1256.1(a); see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1030.1(1); see also Jefferson v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 72, 76-79, 130 Cal. Rptr. 405 (upholding constitutionality of Unemp. Ins. Code § 1256.1(a) against procedural due process and equal protection challenges)].

[5] What Constitutes Misconduct

The term "misconduct," as used in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1256 (discussed under § 564.130[1]), is limited to conduct evincing such wilful or wanton disregard of an employer's interests as is found in deliberate violations or disregard of standards of behavior that the employer has the right to expect of an employee, or in carelessness or negligence of such degree or recurrence as to manifest equal culpability, wrongful intent, or evil design, or to show an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer. Mere inefficiency, unsatisfactory conduct, failure in good performance as the result of inability or incapacity, inadvertencies or ordinary negligence in isolated instances, or good faith errors in judgment or discretion are not misconduct. The policy of the law as expressed in Unemp. Ins. Code § 100 is to provide benefits to persons unemployed through no fault of their own. Accordingly, fault is the basic element to be considered in interpreting and applying the law governing unemployment compensation. The determination of fault is not concluded by a finding that the discharge was justified. The employee's conduct must evince culpability or bad faith. Hence, a claimant may not be denied benefits solely on the basis of a good faith error in judgment [Amador v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 671, 678-679, 200 Cal. Rptr. 298, 677 P.2d 224 (worker not disqualified from collecting unemployment insurance benefits if discharged for wilfully refusing to perform work that worker reasonably and in good faith believed would jeopardize health of others); see Moore v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 235, 242, 215 Cal. Rptr. 316 (if claimant's reasons for refusing work assignment by employer would constitute good cause sufficient to justify resignation, such refusal resulting in employee's discharge as not constituting misconduct); Rowe v. Hansen (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 512, 520, 116 Cal. Rptr. 16] . The test is essentially volitional: although conduct may be harmful to an employer's interest and justify the employee's discharge, it will not disqualify the employee for unemployment insurance benefits unless it is willful, wanton, or equally culpable [Jacobs v. California Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1037, 102 Cal. Rptr. 364] .

Failure to abide by an employer's reasonable and job-related rule or policy amounts to misconduct. For example, an employee who refuses to submit to a drug test while working in a hazardous environment, albeit in a job that would not be considered safety-sensitive in another location, has committed misconduct and is ineligible for unemployment compensation benefits [American Federation of Labor v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 51, 61-62, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210] .

The employer has the burden of establishing misconduct to protect its reserve fund [Cerberonics, Inc. v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 172, 176, 199 Cal. Rptr. 292] .

[6] Presumption Favoring Employee Absent Contrary Notice From Employer

A person is presumed to have been discharged for reasons other than misconduct and not to have voluntarily left his or her work without good cause unless the employer has given written notice to the contrary to the Employment Development Department, as provided in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1327, setting forth facts sufficient to overcome the presumption. The presumption is rebuttable [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1256]. The presumption is one that affects the burden of proof and controls the burden of proof at each level of appeal; that is, from the Employment Development Department, to the administrative law judge, to the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board, through the superior court, regardless of whether it was deemed rebutted at a lower level [O'Connell v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 54, 56-59, 196 Cal. Rptr. 505] .

[7] Other Grounds of Disqualification

An individual is also disqualified for unemployment compensation benefits if he or she:

> (1) Was discharged from his or her most recent work for chronic absenteeism due to intoxication, reporting to work while intoxicated, using intoxicants on the job, or gross neglect of duty while intoxicated, if any of these incidents is caused by an irresistible compulsion to use or consume intoxicants, including alcoholic beverages, or otherwise left the employment for reasons caused by an irresistible compulsion to use or consume intoxicants, including alcoholic beverages [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1256.4(a); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1256-37];
> (2) Willfully, for the purposes of obtaining unemployment compensation benefits, either made a false statement or representation, including using a false name, false social security number or other false identification, with actual knowledge of its falsity or withheld a material fact in order to obtain unemployment compensation benefits [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1257(a)]; or

(3) Without good cause refused to accept suitable employment when offered or failed to apply for suitable employment when notified by a public employment office [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1257(b); see § 564.127[5]]. "Good cause," as used in this provision, means an adequate cause, a cause that comports with the purposes of the Unemployment Insurance Code and with other laws [Syrek v. California Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 519, 529, 7 Cal. Rptr. 97, 354 P.2d 625 (holding that "good cause" for refusing suitable employment includes conscientious objection to subscribing to a loyalty oath required by a public agency employer as a condition of the position refused)].

§ 564.131 Duration of Disqualification

[1] Person Voluntarily Quit or Was Fired for Misconduct

A person disqualified under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1256 (quitting without good cause or fired for misconduct connected with work, discussed under § 564.130[1]) is ineligible to receive unemployment compensation benefits for the week in which the act that causes the disqualification occurs, and continuing until he or she has, subsequent to the act that caused disqualification and his or her registration for work, performed service in bona fide employment for which remuneration is received equal to or in excess of five times his or her weekly benefit amount [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1260(a); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1260(a)-1].

[2] Refusal to Accept Suitable Employment

A person disqualified under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1257(b) (refusal without good cause to accept suitable employment, discussed under § 564.130[7]) is ineligible to receive unemployment compensation benefits for not less than two or more than 10 consecutive weeks beginning with (1) the week in which the cause of disqualification occurs, if he or she registers for work in that week; or (2) the week subsequent to the occurrence of the cause of disqualification in which he or she first registers for work if he or she does not register for work in the week in which the cause of disqualification occurs [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1260(b)].

[3] False Statement

A person disqualified under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1257(a) (false statement or representation to obtain unemployment compensation benefits, discussed under § 564.130[7]) under a determination transmitted to him or her from the department, and who was not paid any benefit amount as a result of his or her false statement or representation, is ineligible to receive unemployment compensation benefits for two weeks, beginning with the week in which the determination is mailed to or personally served on him or her, or any subsequent week for which he or she is first otherwise in all respects eligible for unemployment compensation benefits, and for not more than 13 subsequent weeks for which he or she is otherwise in all respects eligible for unemployment compensation benefits [Unemp. Ins. Code §

1260(c)]. If the individual was paid any benefit amount as a result of his or her false statement or representation, he or she is ineligible to receive unemployment compensation benefits for five weeks beginning with the week in which the determination is mailed to or personally served on him or her, or any subsequent week, for which he or she is first otherwise in all respects eligible for unemployment compensation benefits and for not more than 10 subsequent weeks for which he or she is otherwise in all respect eligible for unemployment compensation benefits [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1260(d)]. However, no disqualification under this provision may be applied to any week if all or any portion of the week is beyond the three-year period next succeeding the date of the mailing or personal service of the determination [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1260(c), (d)].

Unemp. Ins. Code § 1260(c), (d) does not apply to a person convicted under Unemp. Ins. Code § 2101, relating to willful misrepresentation or concealment of a material fact [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1260(c), (d); on duration of forfeiture of rights on conviction under Unemp. Ins. Code § 2101, see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1263].

[4] Serving Multiple Disqualification Periods Concurrently

Notwithstanding the provisions of Unemp. Ins. Code § 1260(c), discussed under § 564.131[3], an individual who is subject to a disqualification imposed under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1257(b) (discussed under § 564.131[2]) may, if he or she is otherwise eligible for unemployment compensation benefits, concurrently serve a disqualification imposed under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1257(a) (discussed under § 564.131[3]) [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1260(d)].

[5] Extension of Ineligibility Period on Successive Disqualifications

When successive disqualifications under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1257 occur, the director may extend the period of ineligibility provided for in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1260 for an additional period not to exceed eight additional weeks [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1261].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

2. Unemployment Compensation Benefits

49-564 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 564.132

§ 564.132 Claims for Benefits

[1] Kinds of Claims

[a] "New Claim"

A "new claim" for unemployment compensation benefits means an application for the establishment of a benefit year and a computation of the maximum benefits payable and the weekly rate [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1326-2(a)]. The filing and contents of a new claim are covered by 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1326-2(b).

[b] "Additional Claim"

An "additional claim" for unemployment compensation benefits means an application that certifies to the beginning date of a period of unemployment (1) that falls within a previously established benefit year, extended duration period, or extended benefit period; and (2) when a break of one or more weeks has occurred in the claim series with intervening employment [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1326-4(a)]. What constitutes a break in the claim series with intervening employment is set forth in 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1326-4(a)(2)(A)-(C). The filing of an additional claim, when an additional claim may not be filed, and the notice required to be given by the department to the employer of the filing of an additional claim are covered in 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1326-4(b)-(d), respectively.

[c] "Reopened Claim"

A "reopened claim" for unemployment compensation benefits means an application that certifies to the beginning date of a period of unemployment (1) that falls within a previously established benefit year, extended duration period, or extended benefit period; and (2) that follows either of the following: (a) a period of one or more weeks for which the claimant failed to file a continued claim or partial claim [see § 564.132[1][e]] and during which the claimant did not perform services in employment; or (b) a period of one or more weeks for which the claimant was ineligible for benefits for a definite period and for which continued claims or partial claims were filed, unless with respect to any week during such period, the claimant was ineligible for benefits pursuant to Unemp. Ins. Code § 1252 (discussed under § 564.125) or pursuant to Unemp. Ins. Code § 1279 (relating to unemployment compenation benefits during partial employment, discussed under § 564.122) due to excessive earnings from services performed in employment that week (if the latter condition is met, an additional claim would be filed following the end of the period of ineligibility [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1326-4, discussed under § 564.132[1][b]]) [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1326-5(a)]. The filing of a reopened claim is covered in 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1326-5(b) and (c), and a definition of when a reopened claim may not be filed is covered in 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1326-5(d).

A "continued claim" for unemployment compensation benefits means an application to serve a waiting period or for the receipt of benefits that certifies to a week of unemployment [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1326-6(a)]. The procedure for filing the claims, the matters to which the claimant must certify, and extensions of time to file are covered in 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1326-6(b)-(e). The notice required to be given to the claimant by the department relating to any right of appeal is set forth in 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1326-6(f).

[e] "Partial Claims"

A "partial claim" for unemployment compensaton benefits is a claim for partial benefits by a partially unemployed individual. "First partial claim" and "subsequent partial claim" for partial unemployment compensation benefits mean an application for a determination of eligibility for partial benefits that certifies to the completion of a week of partial unemployment either to satisfy a week of the waiting period requirement or to claim partial benefits for a compensable week or two compensable weeks [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1326-8(a)].

A partially unemployed individual is a person who during a week (1) was employed by a regular employer, (2) worked less than his or her normal customary full-time hours for his or her regular employer because of lack of full-time work, and (3) was continuously attached to his or her regular employer in that no severance of the employer-employee relationship occurred [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1252-1(a); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1326-7]. A person receiving benefits under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1279.5 (relating to shared work) during a benefit year may not receive benefits as a partially unemployed individual with respect to any week in such benefit year while in employment status with the regular employer who initiated the shared work program [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1252-1(b)(1)]. A person may not claim benefits as a partially unemployed individual if the Department determines that the individual has been laid off for a period in excess of two consecutive weeks [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1252-1(b)(2)].

The employer of a partially unemployed individual is required, within five days after the termination of any payroll week to give the individual a notice of reduced earnings on a form supplied by the department which must set forth the matters listed in 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1326-7 [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1326-7]. The filing and content of a first or subsequent partial claim for partial unemployment compensation benefits are covered by 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1326-8(b). When a claimant has filed partial claims for two consecutive weeks during which he or she performed no services for the regular employer, he or she may not file a partial claim for a subsequent week of unemployment until he or she again performs services for the regular employer. For any subsequent weeks in which the claimant is ineligible to file partial claims, he or she may, if unemployed, filed continued claims in accordance with 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1326.6 [see § 564.132[1][d]] [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1326.8(c)].

[2] Filing Claim

[a] Requirements

Claims for unemployment compensation benefits must be made in accordance with authorized regulations of the Director of Employment Development [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1326; see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1326-1-1326-11 (discussed in § 564.132[1])].

[b] Delayed Filing

Regulations permit delayed filing of a claim for good cause. 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1253-8 provides that a week of unemployment of an individual who for good cause delays filing his or her new claim is the week in which he or she first becomes unemployed. Thereafter, his or her week consists of seven consecutive day periods, pursuant to 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1253-1, commencing immediately after the initial week [Wang v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 412, 417, 275 Cal. Rptr. 237] . Good cause for late filing includes, but is not limited to, the examples set forth in 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1326-10(a) (for example, an employer's failure to comply with regulations regarding partial unemployment benefits, under 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1326-10(a)(1)) [Wang v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 412, 418, 275 Cal. Rptr. 237] . Accordingly, good cause for a delayed claim is defined broadly. Although good cause might include the employee's unawareness of the right to seek unemployment benefits if he or she files a claim within a reasonable period of time under the circumstances, unawareness does not constitute good cause when coupled with an unreasonable delay in filing a claim [Wang v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 412, 420, 275 Cal. Rptr. 237] .

[3] Payment or Denial of Claim

Except as otherwise provided in Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1326-1342 (relating to the filing, determination, and payment of unemployment compensation claims), the Employment Development Department must promptly pay benefits if it finds the claimant is eligible, or must promptly deny benefits if it finds the claimant ineligible [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1326; see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1326-1-1326-11]. Benefits are paid through public employment offices or through such other agency as may be prescribed by authorized regulations of the director [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1339(a)]. Payment of benefits due a deceased or legally declared incompetent person is covered by Unemp. Ins. Code § 1341 and 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1341-1.

[4] Payment of Interest on Wrongful Denial of Claim

Prejudgment interest is properly awarded on unemployment insurance benefits payable under a wrongfully denied claim [Aguilar v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 239, 245-246, 272 Cal. Rptr. 696] . This interest is properly awarded by a superior court in an action arising from administrative denial of benefits [Aguilar v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 239, 241, 246 n.4, 272 Cal. Rptr. 696 (noting EDD's assertion that administrative law judge has no power to award interest, but not necessarily accepting it, and emphasizing that in instant case, interest was awarded by superior court judgment)].

Neither the Board nor an administrative law judge has the authority to award interest on a retroactive lump-sum payment that the Board or judge determines is owed to the claimant. The retroactive amount, covering the period from the first day of eligibility to the date the claimant is administratively determined to be eligible for disability benefits, is not equivalent to "damages" assessed in a civil action, and so Civ. Code § 3287(a), which authorizes a trial court to award prejudgment interest, is inapplicable [see Weber v. Board of Retirement (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1440, 1444-1452, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 769] . On the other hand, if the Board denies disability benefits and the claimant brings a mandamus action to recover the benefits, the court may award prejudgment interest under Civ. Code § 3287(a) on the amount of benefits wrongfully denied by the Board [see American Federation of Labor v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 1017, 1033-1042, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 109, 920 P.2d 1314] . Under Civ. Code § 3287(a), a claimant must satisfy three conditions for the recovery of interest in a mandamus action against the state: (1) there must be an underlying monetary obligation, (2) the recovery must be certain or capable of being made certain by calculation, and (3) the right to recovery must vest on a particular day Aguilar v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 239, 242-245, 272 Cal. Rptr. 696 (citing Tripp v. Swoap (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 671, 681-682, 131 Cal. Rptr. 789, 552 P.2d 749)]. These criteria are satisfied with respect to unemployment insurance benefits because (1) unemployment benefits are a monetary obligation that can be enforced by a claimant in a mandamus proceeding, (2) the amount to which a particular claimant is entitled can be calculated with certainty by reference to fixed schedules, and (3) the right to payment of benefits vests when the claimant has established the facts that entitle the claimant to the benefits [Aguilar v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 239, 245, 272 Cal. Rptr. 696] .

49-564 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 564.133

§ 564.133 Notice to Employer and Employer's Right to Submit Facts

[1] On Employee's Claim

The Employment Development Department must give notice of the filing of a new or additional claim [see §§ 564.132[1][a], [b]] to the employing unit by which the claimant was last employed immediately preceding the filing of the claim unless the additional claim is the result of the filing of a partial claim as defined by the department, there has not been a subsequent employing unit which is designated as the last employer, and there is no separation issue [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1327].

Within 10 days after the notice is mailed or within any extension of that period for good cause, the employing unit so notified is required to submit any known facts that may affect the claimant's eligibility for benefits, including but not limited to any facts pertaining to eligibility under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1256 (discussed under § 564.130[1]) [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1327; see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1333-1]. If after the 10-day period the employing unit acquires knowledge of facts that may affect the claimant's eligibility and the facts could not reasonably have been known within the period, the employing unit is required, within 10 days of acquiring the knowledge or any extension of that period for good cause, to submit the facts to the department [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1327; see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1333-1].

Because of the reference in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1327 to Unemp. Ins. Code § 1256 (voluntary quitting or discharge for misconduct), the mandatory provisions of Unemp. Ins. Code § 1327 overlap the permissive provisions of Unemp. Ins. Code § 1030, relating to contributions and reports. Unemp. Ins. Code § 1030 provides that an employer entitled under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1327 to receive notice of the filing of a new or additional claim may, within 10 days after the mailing of the notice or any extension of that period for good cause, submit to the department any facts disclosing whether the claimant (1) left the employing unit's employ voluntarily and without good cause; (2) was discharged for misconduct connected with his or her work; (3) was discharged from or quit his or her most recent employment as the result of an irresistible compulsion to use or consume intoxicants including alcoholic beverages; (4) was a student employed on a temporary basis, whose employment began with the vacation period and ended with return to school at the close of that period; (5) left the job to accompany his or her spouse or domestic partner to, or join him or her at, a place (a) from which it is impractical to commute to the employment, and (b) to which a transfer of the claimant by the employer is not available; or (6) left the job to protect his or her children or himself or herself from domestic violence abuse [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1030(a); see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1032]. As used in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1030, the word "spouse" includes a person to whom marriage is imminent [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1032; see also Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 3701(a), 4701(a) (relating to extended duration benefits and federal-state extended benefits, respectively)]. The precise scope of the word "spouse" in this context has become less important with the enactment of legislation, effective January 1, 2002, under which unmarried domestic partners are treated the same as spouses for the purpose of determining whether a claimant left employment to preserve a family relationship [Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1030(a), 1032, 1056; see Fam. Code § 297 (definition of "domestic partner"); see also 2001 Stats., ch. 893].

For the purposes of Unemp. Ins. Code § 1030 only, if the claimant voluntarily left the employment without notification to the employer of the reasons and the employer submits all of the facts within its possession concerning the leaving, the leaving is presumed to be without good cause [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1030(d)]. On the other hand, an individual whose employment is terminated under the compulsory retirement provisions of a collective bargaining agreement to which the employer is a party shall not be deemed to have voluntarily left his or her employment without good cause [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1030(e)].

[2] On Computation of Claim

An employer who is not entitled to receive notice of the filing of the claim under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1327 (base period employer who was not the last previous employer) but is entitled to receive notice of computation under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1329 (all base period employers) may, within 15 days after the mailing of the notice of computation or any extension of that period for good cause, submit to the department facts disclosing the matters set forth in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1030(a) (discussed under § 564.133[1]) [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1030(b); 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1030-1(b); see also Unemp. Ins. Code § 1032.5 (less than full-time work rendered for base period employer)]. A notice of computation or recomputation given to a base period employer under Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1329 and 1330 shall not identify wages paid to the claimant by other employers [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1329-1].

The claimant and any base period employer to whom a notice of computation or recomputation is given may, within 20 days after the mailing or personal service of the notice or any extension of that period for good cause, protest the accuracy of the computation or recomputation [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1330; see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1333-2]. The department must consider any protest and must promptly notify the claimant and the base period employer submitting it of the recomputation or denial of recomputation. An appeal may be taken from a notice of denial in the manner prescribed in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1328 (discussed under § 564.134), and the director shall be an interested party to any appeal [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1330].

Any base period employer shall, within 15 days after a notice of computation was mailed or within any extension of that period for good cause, submit to the department any facts then known which he or she was not previously required to submit to the department under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1327 that could affect the claimant's eligibility for benefits. If after the 15-day period the employer acquires knowlege of facts that may affect the claimant's eligibility and the facts could not reasonably have been known within the period, the employer shall, within 10 days of acquiring the knowledge or within any extension of that period for good cause, submit the facts to the department [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1331; see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1333-1]. The department is required to make a determination or reconsidered determination and promptly notify the claimant and the base period employer of the determination or reconsidered determination and the reasons for it. An appeal may be taken in the manner prescribed in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1328, and the director shall be an interested party to any appeal [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1331; see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1328-1].

49-564 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 564.134

§ 564.134 Department's Determination or Ruling

The department will consider the facts submitted by an employer pursuant to Unemp. Ins. Code § 1327 (discussed under § 564.133[1]) and, if benefits are claimed subsequent to the filing of the new or additional claim [see § 564.132[1][a], [b]], make a determination of the claimant's eligibility for benefits. The department must promptly notify the claimant and any employer who prior to the determination submitted any facts or gave any notice pursuant to Unemp. Ins. Code § 1327 or 1328 and authorized regulations of the determination or reconsidered determination and the reasons for it. Within 20 days from the mailing or personal service of the notice of the determination or reconsidered determination or within any extension of the period, the claimant and employer may appeal to an administrative law judge, and the director shall be an interested party to any appeal [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1328; see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1328-1(b)].

If the employer is entitled to a ruling under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1030(b) (discussed under § 564.133[2]), or to a determination under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1328, the department shall consider the facts submitted by the employer together with other information it has, and rule as to the cause of termination of the claimant's employment [see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1030(c), 1328]. Within 20 days after mailing or personal service of the notice of the ruling or reconsidered ruling, or within any extension of that period, the employer may appeal to an administrative law judge. The ruling may be reconsidered for good cause within five days an appeal is filed or, if no appeal is filed, within 20 days after mailing or personal service of the notice of the ruling, except that any ruling or reconsidered ruling relating to a determination which is reconsidered pursuant to Unemp. Ins. Code § 1332(b) may be reconsidered by the department for good cause within 15 days after an appeal is filed or, if no appeal is filed, within 20 days after mailing or personal service of the notice of determination [Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1030(c), 1332(b)].

No ruling made under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1030 may constitute a basis for the disqualification of any claimant, but a determination by the department made under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1328 (determination of eligibility for unemployment compensation benefits) may constitute a ruling under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1030 [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1031].

3. Disability Insurance Benefits

49-564 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 564.150

§ 564.150 Generally

Disability compensation is covered by Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 2601-3272, 3300-3305, and 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 2601-1-3271-1. Workers' contributions to the Disability Fund are covered by Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 984 and 985 [see Unemp. Ins. Code § 2901]. Disability payments are made to eligible individuals from the Disability Fund or from a voluntary plan [see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 2625, 2712, 2712.5; on voluntary plans, see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 3251-3272]. Eligible minors may be paid and may receive disability benefits in their own right and a receipt signed by a minor is valid and binding [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2702]. Benefits are payable by the Employment Development Department through public employment offices or other agencies approved by the Director of Employment Development [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2701]. Initial payment for disability benefits to a monetarily eligible claimant who is otherwise determined eligible by the department under applicable law and regulation must be issued by the department within 14 days of receipt of the claimant's properly completed first disability claim [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2701.5].

The benefit rights of industrially disabled persons are covered by Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 2775-2778 and 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 2777-1. Nonindustrial disability insurance for state employees is covered by Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 2781-2783. The exemption of individuals on religious grounds from making contributions to the Disability Fund and their ineligibility for benefits are covered by Unemp. Ins. Code § 2902.

The statutory provisions governing disability compensation (Unemp. Ins. Code § 2601 et seq.) thus set out the provisions of three separate disability plans: (1) the state disability insurance program, which adopts to some extent the provisions governing unemployment insurance; (2) the nonindustrial disability insurance program, which incorporates some of the provisions of the state disability insurance program but is largely set forth in Gov. Code § 8000 et seq.; and (3) voluntary plans, which are adopted by some employers in place of the state disability and nonindustrial disability insurance programs. The state disability insurance program and the nonindustrial disability insurance program for state employees are two entirely separate and quite different systems. They differ in terms of eligibility, benefits, and funding, and there is no overlap between them. Because of the separateness of the two programs and the lack of any mechanism for transferring funds between them, a worker who made no employee contributions to the state disability insurance fund during his or her base period has no cognizable wages from employment for purposes of Unemp. Ins.

Code § 2652 [Simpson v. Unemployment Ins. Comp. Appeals Bd. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 342, 352, 231 Cal. Rptr. 690] .

The liability of persons who are overpaid any amount as benefits is covered by Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 2735-2742.

§ 564.151 Nature of Disability Insurance Law

The Unemployment Compensation Disability Act provides benefits, either through the State Disability Fund or under voluntary plans approved and monitored by the Director of Employment Development, for persons who are unable to work because of nonoccupational illness or injury, and is financed by a tax on wages of employees themselves. The act thus fills the gap between workers' compensation, which provides benefits for disability incurred during employment, and unemployment insurance, which affords benefits for involuntary unemployment suffered by persons who are physically able to work [Safeway Stores, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 713, 716-717, 235 Cal. Rptr. 636] .

49-564 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 564.152

§ 564.152 Family Temporary Disability Insurance

The Legislature has added Family Temporary Disability Insurance (FTDI), also called "Paid Family Leave," to the California Disability Insurance program. Beginning in July, 2004, an eligible worker can receive up to six weeks of FTDI benefits per year for family care leave [Unemp. Ins. Code § 3302(e); see 2002 Stats., ch. 901, § 7; Unemp. Ins. Code § 2613(c)]. The purpose of the FTDI program is to provide wage-replacement benefits to workers who exercise their rights under the federal Family and Medical Leave Act [see 29 U.S.C. § 2601 et seq.] and California's Family Rights Act [see Gov. Code §§ 12945.1, 12945.2 (Moore-Brown-Roberti Family Rights Act)] to take unpaid, job-protected leave to care for a seriously ill child, spouse, parent, domestic partner, or to bond with a minor child within one year of the birth or placement of the child in connection with foster care or adoption [see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 3300, 3301(a)].

Specifically, an employee will be eligible for FTDI benefits equal to one-seventh of his or her weekly benefit amount on any day in which he or she is unable to perform his or her regular or customary work because he or she is bonding with a minor child during the first year after the birth or placement of the child in connection with foster care or adoption, or caring for a seriously ill child, parent, spouse, or domestic if all of the following conditions are satisfied [Unemp. Ins. Code § 3303; see Unemp. Ins. Code § 3302(e) (defining "family care leave," although that term is not expressly made part of eligibility criteria)]:

(1) The employee has made a claim for temporary disability benefits as required by authorized regulations.

(2) The employee has been unable to perform his or her regular or customary work for a seven-day waiting period during each disability benefit period, with respect to which waiting period no FTDI benefits are payable.

(3) The employee has filed a certificate documenting the reason for taking leave [see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 2708, 2709; see also Unemp. Ins. Code § 3306 (employee may be required to submit additional medical evidence if it can be procured without additional cost to care recipient)].

For FTDI purposes, "child" means an employee's biological, adopted, or foster son or daughter; an employee's stepson, stepdaughter, or legal ward; a son or daughter of an employee's domestic partner; or a person to whom the employee who stands in loco parentis [Unemp. Ins. Code § 3302(c)]. "Parent" means a biological, foster, or adoptive parent, a stepparent, a legal guardian, or other person who stood in loco parentis to the employee when the employee was a child [Unemp. Ins. Code § 3302(g)]. A "domestic partner" has the same meaning as under the Family Code [Unemp. Ins. Code § 3302(d); see Fam. Code § 297(b) (domestic partnership established by filing Declaration of Domestic Partnership with Secretary of State)]. The term "seriously ill" is not defined in the statute, but "serious health condition" is defined as an illness, injury, impairment, or physical or mental condition that involves inpatient care in a hospital, hospice, or residential health care facility, or continuing treatment or continuing supervision by a health care provider [Unemp. Ins. Code § 3302(h); see Gov. Code § 12945.2 (similar definition under California Family Rights Act)].

The employee's weekly FTDI benefit is computed in the same manner as the weekly benefit under the state disability insurance program [Unemp. Ins. Code § 3301(b); see Unemp. Ins. Code § 2655; see also "Amount of Benefits," below]. An individual is eligible to receive FTDI benefits equal to one-seventh of his or her weekly benefit amount for each full day during which he or she is unable to work due to caring for a seriously ill or injured family member or bonding with a minor child within one year of the birth or placement of the child in connection with foster care or adoption [Unemp. Ins. Code § 3301(b)]. The maximum benefit during any disability period is six times the employee's weekly benefit, and no more than six weeks of FDTI benefits may be paid in any 12-month period [Unemp. Ins. Code § 3301(c), (d)].

FTDI benefits will not be paid if the employee is already receiving unemployment compensation, benefits from the state disability insurance program, or other temporary disability benefits under federal or state law [see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 2629(b), 3303.1(a)(1)-(3)]. Benefits are also not payable for any day in which another family member is ready, willing, and able and available for the same period of time in a day that the employee is providing the required care [Unemp. Ins. Code § 3303.1(a)(4); see Unemp. Ins. Code § 3302(f) ("family member" is child, parent, spouse, or domestic partner of employee)]. An employee who is entitled to leave under the federal Family and Medical Leave Act of 1993 (FMLA) [29 U.S.C. § 2601 et seq.] or California's Moore-Brown-Roberti Family Rights Act (CFRA) [Gov. Code §§ 12945.1, 12945.2] must take FTDI leave concurrent with leave taken under the FMLA and the CFRA [Unemp. Ins. Code § 3303.1(b)]. Finally, an employer may require the employee to take up to two weeks of earned vacation time before receiving FTDI benefits [Unemp. Ins. Code § 3303.1(c) (vacation time to be applied against seven-day waiting period for benefits)].

FTDI benefits are funded entirely by employee contributions to the Unemployment Compensation Disability Fund. Employee contributions begin on January 1, 2004 [Unemp. Ins. Code § 984(a)(2)(B)], and benefit payments are available beginning on July 1, 2004 [2002 Stats., ch. 901, § 7; see Unemp. Ins. Code § 2613(c)].

Except as specifically provided by statute, the FTDI program is administered in accordance with the policies of the state disability insurance program [see Unemp. Ins. Code § 3300(g)].

49-564 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 564.153

§ 564.153 Definitions

[1] "Employment"

"Employment," for the purposes of disability insurance, is defined generally as meaning service included in the term "employment" as defined by Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 100-2116, relating to unemployment compensation benefits [see § 564.71[4]] [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2606(a)]. The term is further specially defined with respect to service for a public entity, service perfomed in the employ of certain nonprofit corporations, community chests, funds, and foundations in connection with the operation of certain health facilities, and domestic service in Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 2606(a) and (b) and 2606.5, respectively.

The services performed for a public entity (defined in Unemp. Ins. Code § 605(b)), within the definition of "employment," are limited to four types [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2606(a)]. The third is service performed by a state employee to the extent provided by Unemp. Ins. Code § 2781 (relating to nonindustrial disability insurance for state employees) [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2606(a)(3)]. Unemp. Ins. Code § 2781 must, however, be read together with Gov. Code §§ 19878-19885 (formerly, Gov. Code §§ 18135-18142), relating to nonindustrial disability leave. Taken together, Unemp. Ins. Code § 2781 and Gov. Code § 19878 provide disability insurance for state employees who are members of the Public Employees' Retirement System (PERS), members of the State Teachers' Retirement System (STRS), or employees of the Legislature. Members of the University of California Retirement System (UCRS) are not included, but are covered by the university's own nonindustrial disability insurance plan, which is not legislatively mandated [Simpson v. Unemployment Ins. Comp. Appeals Bd. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 342, 348-349, 231 Cal. Rptr. 690] . Note, however, that in 1988, the Government Code provisions relating to industrial disability leave and nonindustrial disability leave for employees of the California State University were transferred to the Education Code. This was accomplished by repealing former Educ. Code § 89526 and Gov. Code §§ 19869.1 and 19878.1, adding Educ. Code §§ 89529-89529.11 and Educ. Code §§ 89529.15-89529.25, and amending Gov. Code §§ 19875-19878 and 19885 [Stats. 1988, ch. 670]. These changes do not constitute a change in, but, rather, are declaratory of, the existing law [see Stats. 1988, ch. 670, § 11].

[2] "Disability Benefit Period"

"Disability benefit period," with respect to any individual, means the continuous period of unemployment and disability beginning with the first day with respect to which the individual files a valid claim for unemployment compensation disability benefits (for the meaning of "valid claim," see § 564.153[4]). Two consecutive periods of disability due to the same or related cause or condition and separated by a period of not more than 14 days is considered as one disability benefit period [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2608; see Bilyeu v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 657, 663, 181 Cal. Rptr. 837] .

[3] "Disability Base Period"

"Disability base period," with respect to an individual who does not have an unexpired benefit year for unemployment compensation benefits, means the following [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2610]:

(1) For disability benefit periods beginning in October, November, or December, the four calendar quarters ended in the next preceding month of June;

(2) For disability benefit periods beginning January, February, or March, the four calendar quarters ended in the next preceding month of September;

(3) For disability benefit periods beginning in April, May, or June, the four calendar quarters ended in the next preceding month of December;

(4) For disability benefit periods beginning in July, August, or September, the four calendar quarters ended with the next preceding month of March.

The "disability base period," with respect to an individual who has an unexpired benefit year for unemployment compensation benefits, is as follows [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2611]:

(1) The same as the disability base period in Unemp. Ins. Code § 2610, above, if the individual has sufficient qualifying earnings in that disability base period;

(2) The same as the base period used to establish the benefit year for unemployment compensation benefits [see § 564.124[1]] if the individual does not have sufficient qualifying earnings in the disability base period in Unemp. Ins. Code § 2610, above.

For when quarters during which the worker was unemployed, or unemployed because of his or her involvement in a trade dispute, are excluded from the disability base period and preceding quarters substituted, see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 2612 and 2658, respectively. For exclusions from the disability base period applicable to military trainees and to industrially disabled persons, see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 2770 and 2777, respectively.

[4] "Valid Claim"

"Valid claim" means any claim for disability benefits made in accordance with the provisions of the Unemployment Insurance Code and regulations if the individual is unemployed and disabled and has been paid wages in employment for employers necessary to qualify for benefits under Unemp. Ins. Code § 2652, below [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2609]. An individual cannot establish a valid claim unless he or she has been paid wages for employment by employers of not less than $300 during his or her disability base period [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2652].

The earnings during the base period used for determining eligibility for state disability insurance (see Unemp. Ins. Code § 2652) must be subject to the state disability insurance tax in order to qualify as state disability "base period wages" [

Simpson v. Unemployment Ins. Comp. Appeals Bd. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 342, 348, 350-354, 231 Cal. Rptr. 690 (holding that employee working in private sector when disabled was ineligible for state disability insurance when employer during base period was University of California, because base period employment was not subject to state disability insurance tax, and pointing out that worker was also ineligible for benefits under university's plan under which no benefits were payable for any day on and after separation from state service)].

[5] "Disability" and "Disabled"

The terms "disability" and "disabled" include (1) physical or mental illness or injury, including any illness or injury resulting from pregnancy, childbirth, or related medical condition; (2) inability to work because of a written order from a state or local health officer to an individual infected with, or suspected of being infected with, a communicable disease; (3) acute alcoholism being medically treated or, to the extent specified in Unemp. Ins. Code § 2626.1, resident status in an alcoholic recovery home; and (4) acute drug-induced illness being medically treated or, to the extent specified in Unemp. Ins. Code § 2626.2, resident status in a drug-free residential facility [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2626]. An individual who is a resident in an alcohol recovery home, or a drug-free residential facility, outside California pursuant to referral or recommendation by a physician is eligible for disability benefits to the extent provided in Unemp. Ins. Code § 2626.1(c) (alcohol recovery home) or Unemp. Ins. Code § 2626.2(c) (drug-free residential facility) if an authorized representative of the home or facility certifies that the individual is a resident participating in an alcoholic recovery program or a drug-free residential program, licensed by or satisfying a program review by the state in which the facility is located [Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 2626.1(c), 2626.2(c)].

An individual is deemed disabled on any day in which, because of his or her physical or mental condition, he or she is unable to perform his or her regular or customary work [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2626].

§ 564.155 Eligibility for Benefits

Eligibility for disability benefits is covered in Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 2625-2629.1. However, the purpose of the unemployment compensation disability benefit system is to compensate in part for the wage loss sustained by any individual who is unable to work due to his or her own sickness or injury, the sickness or injury of a family member, or the birth, adoption, or foster care placement of a new child, and to reduce to a minimum the suffering caused by unemployment resulting from those circumstances [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2601]. Thus, as a minimum, to be eligible for disability insurance benefits one must be a part of the covered labor force, that is, a wage earner, at the time of disability [see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 140.5, 2601]. Persons who are self-employed and who earn "profits" as distinguished from "wages" are not a part of the system and are not covered, unless they elect coverage and make contributions as provided in Unemp. Ins. Code § 708.5, and this is so notwithstanding the fact that they were wage earners and made contributions during the disability base period as defined in Unemp. Ins. Code § 2610 [Simon v. Unemployment Insurance Appeals Bd. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1076, 1078, 238 Cal. Rptr. 589] .

A disabled individual is eligible to receive disability benefits equal to one-seventh of his or her weekly benefit amount for each full day during which he or she is unemployed due to a disability and the Employment Development Director finds as follows [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2627]:

> (1) The person has made a claim for disability benefits as required by authorized regulations [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2627(a)];
> (2) The person has been unemployed and disabled for a waiting period of seven consecutive days during each disability benefit period with respect to which waiting period no disability benefits are payable [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2627(b)];
> (3) Except as provided in Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 2626.1 (resident of alcoholic recovery home), 2626.2 (resident of drug-free facility), and 2709 (certificate of disability or serious health condition of family member by authorized religious practitioners), the person has submitted to such reasonable examinations as the director may require for the purpose of determining his or her disability [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2627(c)]; and

(4) Except as provided in Unemp. Ins. Code § 2708.1 (person receiving temporary workers' compensation), the person has filed a certificate of disability as required by Unemp. Ins. Code § 2708 (certificate of physician, dentist, podiatrist, or, with respect to normal pregnancy or childbirth, nurse-midwife or nurse-practitioner) or 2709 (certificate of authorized religious practitioner) [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2627(d)].

Effective January 1, 2004, eligibility for benefits extends not just to individuals who are unable to work because of their own disabilities, but also to those who are unable to work because of family circumstances. The family temporary disability insurance program, which has been established within the state disability insurance program, provides up to six weeks of wage-replacement benefits to workers who take time off work to care for a seriously ill child, spouse, parent, domestic partner, or to bond with a new child [Unemp. Ins. Code § 3300 et seq.]. The weekly benefit under the family temporary disability insurance program is the same as the weekly benefit calculated for the individual's own disability, but it is limited to six weeks during any disability benefit period [Unemp. Ins. Code § 3301].

49-564 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 564.156

§ 564.156 Ineligibility for Benefits

An individual is not eligible for disability benefits with respect to any period for which the director finds that he or she has received or is entitled to receive unemployment compensation benefits under the laws of this or any other state or the federal government [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2628]. Nor is an individual eligible for any day of unemployment and disability for which he or she has received or is entitled to receive "other benefits" in the form of cash payments, except as noted below [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2629(a)]. "Other benefits" means temporary disability indemnity under a state or federal workers' compensation law, permanent disability benefits for the same injury or illness under a state or federal workers' compensation law, or temporary disability benefits under a state or federal employer's liability law [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2629(b)]. However, if the "other benefits" are less than the amount the person would otherwise receive as disability benefits, the person is entitled to receive the difference [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2629(c); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 2708.1-1].

Nothing in Unemp. Ins. Code § 2629 is to be construed to authorize a delay in the payment of disability benefits unless the claimant is currently in receipt of other benefits or the department has received notice that the claimant's employer or insurer has agreed to commence the payment of other benefits [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2929.1(a)].

§ 564.157 Amount of Benefits

The weekly benefit amount depends on the amount of wages earned in the highest quarter of the individual's disability base period and ranges from a low of $50 to a high of $343 for periods of disability beginning after 1990 [see Unemp. Ins. Code § 2655]. Effective January 1, 2000, the maximum weekly benefit is equal to the maximum workers' compensation temporary disability indemnity weekly benefit amount [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2655(d); see Lab. Code § 4453, 4653]. Except for individuals who elect coverage under Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 708 and 708.5, the maximum amount of benefits payable to an individual during any one disability benefit period is 52 times his or her weekly benefit amount, but in no case more than the total wages paid to the individual during his or her disability base period [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2653].

An individual eligible to receive disability benefits who receives wages or regular wages from his or her employer during the period of his or her disability or period of family care leave must be paid disability benefits for any seven-day week or partial week in an amount that does not exceed his or her maximum weekly amount and that, together with the wages or regular wages, does not exceed his or her weekly wage, exclusive of wages paid for overtime work, immediately prior to the commencement of his or her disability or period of family care leave [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2656(a)]. To determine the wages or regular wages received by the eligible individual, the amount as stated by the individual is presumed to be accurate, and this presumption affects the burden of producing evidence [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2565(b)]. For purposes of periods of disability beginning after 1991, vacation pay is not considered wages for determining eligibility for disability benefits [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2656(c)]. The term "regular wages," as used in Unemp. Ins. Code § 2656, includes sick-leave benefits paid entirely by the employer directly to an employee during the period of the employee's disability [Cooper v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 166, 168-171, 173 Cal. Rptr. 255 (holding inapplicable provisions of Unemp. Ins. Code § 1265, prohibiting any denial or reduction of benefits because of supplemental unemployment compensation benefits paid by the employer pursuant to an employer plan, on the grounds that Unemp. Ins. Code § 1265 is in a part of the code that deals with unemployment compensation benefits and does not apply to part dealing with disability benefits)].

For the determination of weekly wages when wages are paid at irregular intervals or in such a manner as not to extend regularly over the period of employment, see Unemp. Ins. Code § 2657 and 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 2657-1.

49-564 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 564.158

§ 564.158 Disqualification

[1] Fraud

A person is disqualified from receiving benefits for the period prescribed in Unemp. Ins. Code § 2675(b), if he or she willfully made a false statement or representation with actual knowledge of its falsity or withheld a material fact for the purpose of obtaining benefits [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2675(a)]. Persons receiving benefits who are suspected of fraud are entitled to an eligibility review before the department determines whether they are entitled to continue receiving benefits [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 2675-1; see § 564.162].

[2] Confined as Dipsomaniac, Drug Addict, or Sex Offender

A person is also disqualified from receiving benefits while confined pursuant to a commitment, court order, or certification in an institution or other place as a dipsomaniac, drug addict, or "sexual psychopath" [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2678; the statutory provisions for commitment of sexual psychopaths (later referred to as mentally disordered sex offenders) [former Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 6300-6330 have been repealed]].

[3] Incarcerated

A person who is incarcerated because of a criminal violation of a state, federal, or municipal law or ordinance is not eligible for disability benefits. Incarceration includes any time spent in the custody of law enforcement authorities upon adjudication or conviction by a court of competent jurisdiction. This rule applies only to periods of incarceration beginning after 1993 [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2680].

[4] Disabled Due to Commission of Crime

A person who commits a crime is not eligible for disability benefits if the person's disability was caused by or arose out of the commission of, arrest for, investigation of, or prosecution of any crime that results in a felony conviction. This rule applies only to convictions rendered after 1993, regardless of when the disability commenced [Unemp. Ins. Code §

2681(a), (c)].

[5] Disqualified From Receiving Unemployment Compensation

A person disqualified from receiving unemployment compensation benefits under Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1256 (quitting work without good cause or fired for misconduct connected with work), 1257 (false statement or representation or failure to report material fact, or who without good cause refused to accept suitable employment), 1260 (duration of disqualification), 1261 (successive disqualifications), and 1263 (conviction for false statement or concealment) is presumed to be ineligible to receive disability benefits for the same period or periods unless he or she establishes that he or she is suffering a bona fide illness or injury or claiming a period of family care leave and the director finds there is good cause for paying disability benefits [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2676]. However, a person disqualified from receiving unemployment compensation benefits under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1262 (person who left work because of trade dispute) is not disqualified from receiving disability benefits if otherwise eligible [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2677]. Nor is a person, if otherwise eligible, disqualified for benefits for the day he or she (or a family member for whom the person was providing care) died [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2679].

§ 564.159 Filing Claim for Benefits

Claims for disability benefits must be made in accordance with authorized regulations [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2706; see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 2706-1, 2706-4]. A claim is made by filing a claim on a form furnished by the department not later than the 41st consecutive day following the first compensable day of unemployment and disability. The time may be extended by the department on a showing of good cause [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2706.1]. "Good cause" includes, but is not limited to, mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [Gruschka v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 789, 791-793, 215 Cal. Rptr. 484] . For the procedure for filing a claim for benefits by a person legally entitled to them under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1341 when the person eligible to receive disability benefits dies before making a claim, see Unemp. Ins. Code § 2705 and 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 2705-1. For the procedure for filing a claim on behalf of an eligible person who is mentally unable to do so and for payment, see Unemp. Ins. Code § 2705.1 and 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 2705.1-1.

A claim for family temporary disability insurance benefits must be filed not later than the 41st consecutive day following the first compensable day with respect to which the claim is made for benefits, and the time must be extended by the department on a showing of good cause. If a first claim is not complete, the claim form must be returned to the claimant for completion, and it must be completed and returned not later than the tenth consecutive day after the date it was mailed by the department to the claimant; this time must be extended by the department on a showing of good cause [Unemp. Ins. Code § 3301(e)].

§ 564.160 Procedure on Claim and Appeal

The department must give notice of the filing of the claim to the claimant's last employer [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2707]. Within two working days after receipt of the notice or, if the claimant's service has been terminated, five days after the termination, whichever is later, the last employer must notify the department of any information it knows which may bear on the claimant's eligibility [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2707.1]. The department shall consider the facts submitted by the employer, make a determination as to the claimant's eligibility, and promptly notify the claimant of the determination and its reasons. Within 20 days from the mailing or personal service of the notice of determination, or within any extension of that period, the claimant may appeal to an administrative law judge; the Employment Development Director shall be an interested party to any appeal [*Unemp. Except as provided in Unemp. Ins. Ins. Code § 2707.3(a)]. However, no computation is made on a worker's claim for disability benefits under an approved self-insured plan if the uninterrupted period of disability does not exceed the waiting period prescribed for benefits from the Disability Fund under Unemp. Ins. Code § 2627(b), discussed under § 564.155 [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2707.3(b)]. The claimant may file a protest within 20 days, or within any extension thereof, after the mailing or personal service of the notice of computation and appeal from a notice of denial of recomputation in the manner prescribed in *Unemp. Any person who is receiving benefits but whom the department suspects of having made a fraudulent claim is entitled to an in-office eligibility review before the department decides whether that person is entitled to continue receiving benefits. The purpose of the review is to give the person a fair and equitable opportunity to be heard in person [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 2675-1(a)]. For purposes of this review, fraud includes, but is not limited to, a claim filed by a person other than the individual named on the claim form, a medical certificate that cannot be substantiated, a willful false statement or representation, the withholding of a material fact concerning eligibility for benefits, or an organized scheme to defraud the department [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 2675-1(b)(1)]. For details of the procedures applicable to this review, see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 2675-1.

The Director of Employment Development shall be an interested party to any appeal [Unemp. Ins. Code § 2707.5(a)].

49-564 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 564.164

§ 564.164 Levels of Administrative Appeal

As in the case of a claim for unemployment compensation benefits (see § 564.120), there are two levels of administrative appeal available to an employee aggrieved by an order or decision of the Director of Employment Development relating to disability benefits. The first is by appeal to an administrative law judge [see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 2707.2, 2707.4, 2707.5, 2712, 2712.5, 2737]. The second is by appeal to the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board [see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 2712, 2712.5, 2737].

Neither the Board nor an administrative law judge has the authority to award interest on a retroactive lump-sum payment that the Board or judge determines is owed to the claimant. The retroactive amount, covering the period from the first day of eligibility to the date the claimant is administratively determined to be eligible for disability benefits, is not equivalent to "damages" assessed in a civil action, and so Civil Code § 3287(a), which authorizes a trial court to award prejudgment interest, is inapplicable [see Weber v. Board of Retirement (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1440, 1444-1452, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 769] . On the other hand, if the Board denies disability benefits and the claimant brings a mandamus action to recover the benefits, the court may award prejudgment interest under Civil Code § 3287(a) on the amount of benefits wrongfully denied by the Board [see American Federation of Labor v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 1017, 1033-1042, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 109, 920 P.2d 1314.] .

For rules governing payment of disability benefits pending a claimant's appeal in situations where the department initially determines a claimant to be eligible for benefits, the department subsequently determines that the claimant is ineligible or disqualified for benefits, and the claimant files an appeal from the subsequent determination, see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 2706-5.

49-564 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 564.183

§ 564.183 Standard and Scope of Review

[1] By Superior Court

In reviewing a decision of the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board on a petition for writ of mandate, the superior court must exercise its independent judgment on the evidence in the administrative record [MacGregor v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 205, 211-212, 207 Cal. Rptr. 823, 689 P.2d 453 (review on employee's petition of decision denying unemployment insurance benefits); Interstate Brands v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 770, 774-782, 163 Cal. Rptr. 619, 608 P.2d 707 (review on employer's petition of grant of unemployment insurance benefits); Bilyeu v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 657, 661, 668, 181 Cal. Rptr. 837 (review on employee's petition of decision denying disability benefits)]. That is, the independent judgment standard, and not the substantial evidence test, applies [Windigo Mills v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 586, 599, 155 Cal. Rptr. 63] .

[2] By Appellate Court

On review of the trial court's judgment in an administrative mandate proceeding, the substantial evidence test applies. That is, except when the trial court admits relevant evidence which, in the exercise of reasonable diligence, could not have been produced or which was improperly excluded at the hearing before respondent (see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(e)), the scope of appellate review is limited to a determination of whether the trial court's decision is supported by substantial evidence [Windigo Mills v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 586, 599, 155 Cal. Rptr. 63 ; see Cervisi v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 635, 638, 256 Cal. Rptr. 142] . Thus, the appellate court is ordinarily confined to an inquiry as to whether the findings and judgment of the trial court are supported by substantial, credible, and competent evidence [Sanchez v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 575, 585, 205 Cal. Rptr. 501, 685 P.2d 61] . All conflicts in the evidence must be resolved in favor of the respondent and all legitimate and reasonable inferences must be made to uphold the superior court's finding [Amador v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 671, 685, 200 Cal. Rptr. 298, 677 P.2d 224 ; see Cervisi v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 635, 638, 256 Cal. Rptr. 142] . If there is any credible evidence in support of the superior court's findings, contrary evidence must be disregarded, and the judgment upheld [

Windigo Mills v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 586, 599, 155 Cal. Rptr. 63] . Even when the trial court's findings are contrary to those of the board, they cannot be overturned for evidentiary insufficiency if they are substantially supported [Pacific Legal Foundation v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 101, 108, 172 Cal. Rptr. 194, 624 P.2d 244] .

However, if the facts are undisputed and opposing inferences may not reasonably be drawn from those facts, the question of whether or not an employee had, for example, good cause for refusing to perform certain work or for leaving his or her work is an issue of law [Amador v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 671, 685, 200 Cal. Rptr. 298, 677 P.2d 224 ; Sanchez v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 575, 585, 205 Cal. Rptr. 501, 685 P.2d 61] . Thus, if the probative facts are not in dispute, and those facts clearly require a conclusion different from that reached by the trial court, the latter's conclusions may be disregarded by the appellate court [Sanchez v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 575, 585, 205 Cal. Rptr. 501, 685 P.2d 61]

§ 564.222 Decisions

[1] Actions to Recover Erroneously or Illegally Assessed Contributions

Actions to recover contributions, penalties, and interest. Manchester Avenue Co. v. Stewart (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 307, 325 P.2d 457 (action by golf course operator to recover unemployment insurance taxes paid under protest on behalf of golf course caddies); Bell-Brook Dairies, Inc. v. Bryant (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 404, 218 P.2d 1 (action involving erroneous charge of unemployment benefits against reserve account, plaintiff having failed to receive any notice of filing of applications for unemployment benefits); Empire Star Mines Co. v. Cal. Emp. Com. (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 33, 168 P.2d 686 , overruled on another point, People v. Sims (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 468, 479-480 n.8, 186 Cal. Rptr. 77, 651 P.2d 321 (action to recover unemployment insurance taxes paid under protest arising out of question whether mine operators were employees or independent contractors); California Emp. Com. v. Kovacevich (1946) 27 C2d 546, 165 P.2d 917 (action to recover unemployment insurance contributions claimed to be due involving agricultural labor); Andrews v. California Emp. Com. (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 568, 165 P.2d 929 (action to recover unemployment insurance contributions paid under protest and involving agricultural labor); Zuckerman-Mandeville, Inc. v. Sheffield (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 793, 88 Cal. Rptr. 57 (action to recover unemployment insurance taxes paid under protest by farming corporation; judgment for plaintiff reversed); Aladdin Oil Corp. v. Perluss (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 603, 41 Cal. Rptr. 239 (action to recover unemployment insurance contributions, interest, and penalties paid under protest following an assessment; judgment for defendant affirmed); California Emp. etc. Com. v. Lund (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 567, 173 P.2d 379 (consolidated actions to collect unemployment insurance contributions from garage owner and to recover taxes on contributions paid by him under protest; judgment for garage owner affirmed)

Employer who paid under protest Employment Development Department's levy of assessment for unemployment tax contributions on unreported wages of musicians made pursuant to former Unemp. Ins. Code § 681 (making certain musicians under prescribed conditions statutory employees of person utilizing their services) were not entitled to refund on ground statute was repealed before assessment had become "due and payable" as defined in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1703(b), because Unemp. Ins. Code § 1703 relates to perfection and enforcement of state tax lien on unpaid contributions, that is, to collection of contributions, and not to employer's liability to pay them, which liability was established prior to repeal, and Legislature, in repealing former Unemp. Ins. Code § 681, did not provide for forgiveness of all earlier tax liability or elimination of department's earlier assessments. Hotel Del Coronado Corp. v. Employment Development Dept. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 59, 61-62, 255 Cal. Rptr. 804

When essential facts of unemployment taxation case are not in conflict, nor reasonably susceptible of conflicting inferences, question of legal relationship arising from those facts is one of law. Avchen v. Kiddoo (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 532, 535, 246 Cal. Rptr. 152 (relationship between nurses and nurses' registry was question of law on undisputed facts in action for refund of taxes paid)

[2] Burden of Proof

Burden of proof in action for refund as on taxpayer-plaintiff. Aladdin Oil Corp. v. Perluss (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 603, 610, 41 Cal. Rptr. 239

[3] Contributions

Under Unemp. Ins. Code § 977, rate of employer's contribution to Unemployment Fund (pooled fund contributed to by all employers) is based on ratio between its average base payroll and net balance in its reserve account; decision awarding unemployment insurance benefits to claimant that are chargeable to reserve account of claimant's employer has effect of increasing employer's rate of contributions to Unemployment Fund. Altaville Drug Store, Inc. v. Employment Development Department (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 231, 234, 242 Cal. Rptr. 732, 746 P.2d 871

Employer as required to make unemployment insurance contributions in favor of writers of television shows. Tieberg v. Unemployment Ins. App. Bd. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 943, 946, 88 Cal. Rptr. 175, 471 P.2d 975

Adjustment of contribution rates for periods elapsing pending appeal in prior action for refund. Manning's, Inc. v. Burkett (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 43, 44-46, 286 P.2d 13

[4] Employee vs. Agent

Legislature has enacted numerous statutes in Business & Professions Code explicitly defining nature of relation between nurses and nurses' registries as one of agency [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 2732.05 and former Bus. & Prof. Code § 9958 et seq. (repealed by Stats. 1989, ch. 704, § 1; now see Civ. Code §§ 1812.524-1812.533)] and, hence, in action by nurses' registry to recover unemployment taxes paid under protest, trial court properly found that registry was not nurses' employer when agreement signed by nurses at time they enrolled with registry was nonexclusive and appointed registry as their agent to assist them in securing employment, registry's role was to alert nurses to openings after which nurses themselves negotiated time, pay rate, assignments, and working conditions directly with their prospective employers, and registry's role was that of commercial matchmaker. Avchen v. Kiddoo (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 532, 535-537, 246 Cal. Rptr. 152 (noting that holding was in accord with Unemp. Ins. Code § 606.5, which was effective after trial of case)

[5] Employee vs. Independent Contractor

Determination of whether services are those of employee or independent contractor. Empire Star Mines Co. v. Cal. Emp. Com. (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 33, 43-44, 168 P.2d 686 , overruled on another point, People v. Sims (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 468, 479-480 n.8, 186 Cal. Rptr. 77, 651 P.2d 321 ; Santa Cruz Transportation, Inc. v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1363, 1371, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 64 ; Sudduth v. California Emp. Stab. Com. (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 304, 313-314, 278 P.2d 946

[6] Experience Rating Formula

Contributions resulting from improper charges for unemployment claims against employer's account as not to be considered in experience rating formula (cumulated contributions minus cumu lated charges for unemployment claims divided by one-third of wages paid by employer over three-yearperiod). John Breuner Co. v. Perluss (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 163, 167-170, 33 Cal. Rptr. 580

[7] Jurisdiction

Original jurisdiction of action involving legality of tax as in superior court. Cal. Emp. etc. Com. v. Citizens etc. Bk. (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 915, 916, 167 P.2d 752 ; Cal. Emp. etc. Com. v. Municipal Ct. (1944) 62 Cal. App. 2d 781, 784-786, 145 P.2d 361 ; Unemp. etc. Com. v. St. Francis etc. Assn. (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d 271, 280, 137 P.2d 64

[8] Limitations on Judicial Actions

Mandate as unavailable to compel department to transfer its former unemployment insurance reserve account to its current account because contributions are in effect taxes, and judicial process to prevent or enjoin collection of taxes is prohibited by Cal. Const., art. XIII, § 32 and Unemp. Ins. Code § 1851. Lorco Properties, Inc. v. Department of Benefit Payments (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 809, 815, 129 Cal. Rptr. 312

[9] Penalties

Intent to deceive as not required to merit imposition of penalty against employer pursuant to Unemp. Ins. Code § 1030.5 for misrepresenting that claimant's employment was voluntarily terminated. Diagnostic Data, Inc. v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 556, 558, 110 Cal. Rptr. 157

[10] Reserve Accounts

Unemployment insurance benefits paid to claimant and, pursuant to Unemp. Ins. Code § 1032, not charged to employer's reserve account are paid out of pooled fund, and charge is allocated to account of every employer. Altaville Drug Store, Inc. v. Employment Development Department (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 231, 234-235, 242 Cal. Rptr. 732, 746 P.2d 871

Unemp. Ins. Code § 1032, setting forth circumstances in which unemployment insurance benefits awarded to claimant are not charged to employer's reserve account, is intended by Legislature to operate in connection with Unemp. Ins. Code § 1256 (eligibility for benefits) so that later expansion of word "spouse" in section 1256 to include imminent spouse (claimant who leaves employment to join imminent spouse at distant location has quit for good cause) (see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1256-12(b)(1)) mandates use of same expanded definition applying section 1032. Altaville Drug Store, Inc. v. Employment Development Department (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 231, 233-238, 242 Cal. Rptr. 732, 746 P.2d 871

[11] Statutory Interpretation

Uncodified provision of 1982 amendment of Unemp. Ins. Code § 1256 (eligibility for unemployment compensation benefits) states that amendment to section 1256 is intended to endorse Employment Development Department policy, as expressed in its regulations (see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 1256-12(b)(1)). Altaville Drug Store, Inc. v. Employment Development Department (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 231, 236, 242 Cal. Rptr. 732, 746 P.2d 871

C. Eligibility And Claims For Benefits

49-564 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 564.242

§ 564.242 Decisions

[1] Administrative Appeal

Administrative construction of term "good cause" as used in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1328, relating to extensions of time within which to appeal decision of department as to eligibility for employment benefits to referee (now administrative law judge), so as to exclude cases in which delay was attributable to applicant or his or her counsel, no matter how reasonable or excusable, as subverting remedial purpose of statute and defeating legislative objective of providing prompt administrative adjudication of claims for unemployment benefits without recourse to technical and formal requirements. Gibson v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 494, 496-497, 501, 108 Cal. Rptr. 1, 509 P.2d 945

Good cause, as used in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1328, providing that time to appeal decision of department relating to eligibility for unemployment insurance benefits to administrative law judge may be extended for good cause, as applying whether claimant or employer seeks to attack determination; meaning of good cause. United States Postal Service v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 506, 514-515, 134 Cal. Rptr. 19

Good cause for extending period for filing appeal from administrative decision denying unemployment compensation benefits to referee (now administrative law judge) as shown by facts that one day after claimant had been informed of decision denying benefits he placed matter of appeal in hands of legal aid attorney and, due to attorney's large case load and backlog of secretarial work, appeal was received at proper office one business day after 10 days allowed by Unemp. Ins. Code § 1328. Flores v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 681, 683-685, 106 Cal. Rptr. 543

Applicant for unemployment insurance benefits as not denied due process of law by fact that after his application had been denied he had not been accorded hearing on merits by referee (now administrative law judge) of his eligibility when he failed to file timely appeal to referee and when he had been given opportunity (albeit unsuccessfully), with assistance of counsel, to show good cause for late appeal. Hicks v. Sheffield (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 441, 442-443, 100 Cal. Rptr. 274

Writ of mandate to review administrative decision that petitioner had been untimely in appealing withholding of unemployment benefits by Director of Employment as properly denied where no good cause for late appeal was shown. Perez v. Unemployment Ins. App. Bd. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 62, 65-66, 83 Cal. Rptr. 871

[2] Attorney Fees

In mandate proceeding to compel Employment Development Department and Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board to set aside determination and decision that petitioner was ineligible for unemployment insurance benefits because of her refusal to answer questions with respect to her pregnancy, though she later provided administrative law judge with certificate from her physician stating she was in good health and could work, petitioner as entitled to award of attorney fees both for services rendered at trial and on appeal under private attorney general theory codified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5, since significant nonpecuniary benefit was conferred by case on large class of persons, namely, working women who become pregnant and unemployed. Gunn v. Employment Development Dep't (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 658, 665-666, 156 Cal. Rptr. 584

[3] Availability for Work

Denial of unemployment compensation benefits to nondenominational Christian who refused temporary position offered him by employment agency, which would have required him to work on Sunday, based on his sincerely held religious belief that, as a Christian, he could not work on "the Lord's day," violated free exercise clause of U.S. Const., amend. I, as applied to states through U.S. Const., amend. XIV, when state presents no interest that is sufficiently compelling to override individual's free exercise claim. Frazee v. Illinois Dep't of Employment Sec. (1989) 489 U.S. 829, 109 S. Ct. 1514, 103 L. Ed. 2d 914, 917-921

"Availability for work" within meaning of Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253(c), as requiring no more than that claimant (1) be willing to accept suitable work which he or she has no good cause for refusing, and (2) thereby make himself or herself available to substantial field of employment. Glick v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 493, 499, 153 Cal. Rptr. 1, 591 P.2d 24 ; Rios v. Employment Development Dept. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 489, 493-494, 231 Cal. Rptr. 732

Migrant farm workers, who annually came to California to perform seasonable agricultural work and then returned home to Texas, and who applied for California unemployment insurance benefits when they failed to obtain work in Texas, presented substantial evidence of good cause for restricting their labor market by making themselves unavailable for work in California; evidence of simultaneous loss of work and affordable housing was sufficient to support trial court's finding that farmworkers had good cause to return to homes in Texas. Rios v. Employment Development Dept. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 489, 494, 231 Cal. Rptr. 732

Denial of full week's benefits based on claimant's declaration that he was unavailable for work for two days due to his observance of religious holidays as unconstitutional; interpretation of Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253(c) permitting apportionment of benefits on daily, rather than weekly, basis as constitutionally compelled. Jaffe v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 719, 721-725, 202 Cal. Rptr. 812

Peripheral First Amendment or other right applicant for unemployment insurance may have to retain his selected hair styling (hair 13 inches in length tied behind head in pony tail and mustache and full beard which extended 3 or 4 inches below his chin), as yielding to dictate of Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253(c), requiring person seeking unemployment benefits to keep himself available for work. Chambers v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 923, 926-928, 109 Cal. Rptr. 413 (dictum, court holding that trial court erred in finding applicant ineligible for unemployment insurance benefits after determining there were no jobs available in his job market; person seeking unemployment relief as under no duty to keep himself available for work that did not appear to exist)

Unemployment benefits as improperly denied on ground that applicant voluntarily made himself unavailable for work (Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253(c)) by his beard and other slovenly dress when there was no showing pursuant to Unemp. Ins. Code § 1258 that there was any potential employer to interview applicant. Spangler v. California Unemp. Ins. App. Bd. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 284, 288, 92 Cal. Rptr. 266

[4] Base Period

Earnings during base period used for determining eligibility for state disability insurance [see Unemp. Ins. Code § 2652] must be subject to state disability insurance tax in order to qualify as state disability "base period wages." Simpson v. Unemployment Ins. Comp. Appeals Bd. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 342, 348, 350-354, 231 Cal. Rptr. 690

[5] Benefits Generally

Unemp. Ins. Code § 1335 (prior to its 1971 amendment), permitting automatic termination of unemployment compensation benefits pending employer's appeal, as inconsistent with 42 U.S.C. § 503(a)(1), which requires payment of benefits when due. California Dep't of Human Resources Development v. Java (1971) 402 U.S. 121, 122-124, 91 S. Ct. 1347, 28 L. Ed. 2d 666

Unemp. Ins. Code § 1255.3, providing for pension offset against unemployment compensation benefits received as enacted to comply with mandate of I.R.C. § 3304(a)(15), requiring states to enact such provisions, and nothing more. Evans v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 398, 408-410, 216 Cal. Rptr. 782, 703 P.2d 122

Statutory requirements for prompt payment of benefits after determination of eligibility by referee as prohibiting withholding of payments pending employer's appeal of the determination. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. v. Livingston (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 942, 946-947, 178 Cal. Rptr. 680

Claimant's rights to payment of unemployment compensation when due (42 U.S.C. § 503(a)(1)) and procedural due process (Cal. Const., art. I, § 7) as violated by practice of Employment Development Department in suspending payment of unemployment insurance benefits pending appeal to any continuing claim recipients determined by department clerk to be ineligible for further payments. American Federation of Labor v. Employment Dev. Dept. (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 811, 817-821, 152 Cal. Rptr. 193

Discharged employee as not entitled to unemployment insurance benefits for period between determination by supervisor of Department of Human Resources Development (now Employment Development Department) on reconsideration under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1332(a) [now see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1332(b)] of original interviewer's finding of eligibility that employee was not eligible and decision of referee (now administrative law judge) on appeal upholding that determination. Miranda v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 213, 218-221, 111 Cal. Rptr. 419

Recovery of both unemployment disability benefits and worker's compensation for same period of unemployment as not permitted. Martin v. California Dept. of Employment (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 804, 806-808, 105 Cal. Rptr. 111

[6] Burden of Proof and Prima Facie Case

[23] School Employees

Under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253.3(g) (providing that teacher assignment that is contingent on enrollment, funding, or program changes is not "reasonable assurance" of employment), assignments given to part-time, hourly community college instructors that depended on their ability to attract sufficient number of students to justify offering classes is contingent employment not constituting reasonable assurances of continued employment within meaning of Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253.3, and instructors are entitled to be paid unemployment benefits for period between fall and spring semesters. Cervisi v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 635, 639, 256 Cal. Rptr. 142

Substitute secondary school teacher as not entitled to unemployment compensation benefits during summer recess when he had worked as substitute teacher for school district during prior academic year and had been offered and accepted continued employment by district during next academic year, even though he had written on his acceptance that he did not accept district's offer as reasonable assurance of employment, but rather as opportunity for such, and district in its subsequent notice to substitute teachers contained statement that substitute teachers were given no assurance of employment, since by district's offer and his acceptance he had reasonable assurance, within meaning of Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253.3, of employment by district for next academic year. Board of Education v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 674, 680-690, 206 Cal. Rptr. 788

Denial of unemployment insurance to elementary school teacher's aide as proper when based on finding that aide had been given reasonable assurance within meaning of Unemp. Ins. Code § 1253.3 that she would be reemployed after school recess. Russ v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 834, 845, 847, 178 Cal. Rptr. 421

[24] Seek-Work Requirement

Trial court's finding that unemployed truck driver satisfied his union's seek-work requirements as supported by substantial evidence. Rubino v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 405, 408-409, 105 Cal. Rptr. 158, 503 P.2d 614

[25] Strikes and Lockouts

National Labor Relations Act (29 U.S.C. §§ 151-187) as not precluding state (New York) from authorizing unemployment compensation for workers while on strike. N.Y. Tel. Co. v. N.Y. State DOL (1978) 440 U.S. 519, 540, 99 S. Ct. 1328, 59 L. Ed. 2d 553, 569, 571-572

Locked out union members' unemployment as regarded as voluntary and bar to unemployment compensation benefits when it was reasonably foreseeable that selective strike by union against certain members of multiemployer bargaining group might result in retailiatory lockout by other members of the group. Interstate Brands v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 770, 773, 782, 163 Cal. Rptr. 619, 608 P.2d 707

Employee who left work in course of, and not because of, trade dispute for another reason constituting good cause as not ineligible for unemployment compensation benefits under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1262, making person who left work because of trade dispute ineligible for unemployment compensation benefits. Bunny's Waffle Shop v. Cal. Emp. Com. (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 735, 738-742, 151 P.2d 224

Disqualification of striking employees from receiving unemployment benefits imposed by Unemp. Ins. Code § 1262 is not contingent on merits of controversy; section 1262 expresses two-pronged and balanced purpose of state to maintain its neutrality in trade dispute and not to use payment or withholding of benefits to aid either party to dispute; although dynamics and economic realities of situation leading to unemployment require examination, motive or justification underlying conduct of parties involved is immaterial. Acuff v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1045, 256 Cal. Rptr. 513

After negotiations for new collective bargaining between employer and labor union had reached impasse, employer's unilateral implementation of its last proposal, effecting wage and benefit reduction that resulted in strike when former collective bargaining agreement expired, was neither drastic economic weapon severing causal connection between existing trade dispute and employees' leaving work, nor constructive lockout rendering unemployment involuntary, when wages and benefits were essence of dispute and union had already voted overwhelmingly to strike rather than accept reduction. Acuff v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1045-1046, 1048, 1052-1053, 256 Cal. Rptr. 513

Trade dispute disqualification of Unemp. Ins. Code § 1262 does not unconstitutionally discriminate against strikers because they join together in work stoppage as result of reduction in wages and benefits even though if they had not done so, but individually quit work because of reduction, there may have been good cause for leaving work under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1256. Acuff v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1051, 256 Cal. Rptr. 513

Disqualification for unemployment insurance benefits under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1262 depends on fact of voluntary action and not on motives that led to it; eligibility for unemployment insurance benefits is determined not by looking at employer's economic problems, but by determining worker's conduct. Martinez v. California Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1385, 1391, 1392, 254 Cal. Rptr. 461

Picket line or strike is economic weapon directed against employer by union, and recognition of it by employee amounts to participation by employee in trade dispute it represents; decision to participate in union picket line or strike is never deemed involuntary in eyes of law. Martinez v. California Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1385, 1391, 254 Cal. Rptr. 461

Workers who leave jobs because of trade dispute were ineligible for unemployment insurance benefits under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1262, even though dispute was precipitated by wage cuts constituting 27 to 33 percent reduction in earnings for employees and wage cuts in combination with reduced benefits comprised 34 to 41 percent earnings reduction. Martinez v. California Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1385, 1390-1394, 254 Cal. Rptr. 461

Two-part test applies for determining whether claimant is ineligible to receive unemployment benefits pursuant to Unemp. Ins. Code § 1262 (denying benefits to persons who left work because of trade dispute): (1) employee must voluntarily leave or remain away from employment (volitional test); and (2) employee must leave or remain away from employment because of trade dispute (causation test); criteria for denial or awarding of benefits being personal responsibility of claimant for his or her unemployment in former case, or fault of employer in latter case. Brotherhood of Teamsters & Auto Truck Drivers v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1515, 1525-1526, 236 Cal. Rptr. 78

Unemp. Ins. Code § 1262, denying benefits to persons who left work because of trade dispute, as inapplicable to longshoremen who applied for benefits for period when their union was engaged in selective work stoppages, where, under rotational dispatch system, longshoremen were not scheduled to work during period in question, and where none of them walked off job or expressly refused work, even though they failed to actively repudiate their union's work stoppage policy or to seek employment, which became available as result of work stoppages, from struck employers. Pacific Maritime Assn. v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 568, 574-576, 215 Cal. Rptr. 408

Courts as having recognized two-part test in determining ineligibility under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1262, making person who left work because of trade dispute ineligible for unemployment compensation benefits: (1) leaving work or remaining away must be volun tary (volitional test); and (2) leaving work or remaining away must be because of trade dispute (causational test). Acuff v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1045, 256 Cal. Rptr. 513 ; Martinez v. California Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1385, 1390, 254 Cal. Rptr. 461 ; Campos v. Employment Development Dept. (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 961, 966, 183 Cal. Rptr. 637

Unemp. Ins. Code § 1262, making person who left work because of trade dispute ineligible for unemployment compensation benefits, as manifesting state's desire to maintain neutrality in labor disputes and not to require employer to subsidize, through its contributions to Unemployment Fund, use of strike as economic weapon against it. National Broadcasting Co. v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 550, 555, 157 Cal. Rptr. 207

[26] Unemployment Insurance Act as Remedial and Liberally Construed

Provisions of Unemployment Insurance Code as required to be liberally construed to further legislative objective of reducing hardship of unemployment. Sanchez v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 33, 43, 168 P.2d 686 , overruled on another point, People v. Sims (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 468, 479-480 n.8, 186 Cal. Rptr. 77, 651 P.2d 321)

Unemployment Insurance Act as not purely economic but as also remedial. Prescod v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 29, 40, 127 Cal. Rptr. 540

Unemployment insurance legislation as remedial in character, subject to a liberal construction, to effectuate its purpose and to coincide with its reflection of public policy. Zuckerman-Mandeville, Inc. v. Sheffield (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 793, 799, 88 Cal. Rptr. 57

[27] Violations and Penalties

Violation of Unemp. Ins. Code § 2101 (willfully making false statement or knowingly concealing material fact including, but not limited to, using a false name, false social security number, or other false identification) is punishable under Unemp. Ins. Code § 2122 as either misdemeanor or felony, not under Unemp. Ins. Code § 2117 as only misdemeanor. People v. Booker (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1517, 1523, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 715

Unemp. Ins. Code § 2113, requiring Employment Development Department to give 10 days' notice to individual of overpayment of benefits prior to filing criminal complaint applies only to misdemeanor prosecutions and not to felony prosecutions under Unemp. Ins. Code § 2114 (relating to report or registration with department, with intent defraud, of fictitious employer or fictitious employee and fictitious wages in order to obtain unemployment insurance benefits). People v. Belnick (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1449, 1450-1455, 229 Cal. Rptr. 414

Intent to deceive is not required for imposition of penalty against employer under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1030.5 (*now see Unemp. Ins. [28] Voluntary Disability Insurance Plans

Unemp. Ins. Code § 3264 provides exclusive remedy to disabled worker whose employer or its insurer wholly or partially denies liability on worker's claim for disability benefits under approved voluntary disability insurance plan and bars employee's common law claims against employer for alleged breach of insurance contract, breach of covenant of good faith and fair dealing, fraud, intentional infliction of emotional distress, and sexual discrimination in violation of Title VII of Civil Rights Act of 1964 (42 U.S.C. §§ 2000e et seq.). Safeway Stores, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 713, 717-720, 235 Cal. Rptr. 636

[29] Wages

Amount equal to former employee's back pay paid by former employer in settlement of NLRB claim for unlawful discharge as constituting wages involving work, as those terms are used in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1277, for purposes of determining amount of unemployment insurance payable. Oliver v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 215, 217, 191 Cal. Rptr. 694

Unemp. Ins. Code § 1265, which excludes payments by employer under plan established for purpose of supplementing unemploy ment compensation benefits from definition of wages, as applicable only when employer's payments supplement benefits payable under unemployment compensation provisions and not when benefits are payable under disability benefits provisions. Cooper v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 166, 170, 173 Cal. Rptr. 255

Severance pay paid to employees after company terminated its operations in accordance with plan adopted and implemented by company as not wages but payments within scope of *Unemp. Ins. SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)

BOARD,	)
Defendant.	)

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Plaintiff is [and at all times herein mentioned was] _____ [specify capacity, e.g., a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of California with its principal place of business in _____ County, California].

2. Defendant is the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board of the State of California.

3. On or about _____, [date] defendant issued _____ [identify precedent decision, e.g., Precedent Benefit Decision No. _____], _____ [specify effect, e.g., (a) reversing the ruling of the administrative law judge that denied an applicant unemployment insurance benefits for a _____ week period on the grounds that he/she did not seek work and was not available for work within the meaning of Section 1253(c) and (e) of the Unemployment Insurance Code, and (b) holding the applicant had satisified the "seek work" and "availability" requirements of the code and was qualified for unemployment benefits]. A copy of the decision is attached as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.

4. Plaintiff _____ [is affected by or could be subject to] the foregoing decision for the following reasons: _____ [specify, e.g., plaintiff employs _____ (number) workers covered by the Unemployment Insurance Code and is required to contribute to the unemployment insurance fund. [2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by an interested person or organization to challenge the validity of a precedent decision issued by the California Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board [see Unemp. Ins. Code § 409.2; see also § 564.51].

[3] Scope and Effect of Court's Determination

In a declaratory-relief action brought under Unemp. Ins. Code § 409.2 by a nonparty to the board's precedential decision, the court may determine only whether the board decision accords with the law that would govern if the rule announced in the board decision had been articulated as a regulation. There is no review of the underlying record or introduction of new evidence to discover whether the board correctly resolved disputes on adjudicative facts. The board's version of those facts may not be disturbed unless it lacks substantial support on the face of the decision. A judicial declaration of invalidity does not alter or affect the operative impact of the decision as between the original parties; that is, whatever result the court reaches on the merits, the declaratory judgment may not alter the result between the parties who were the subject of the precedent decision [Pacific Legal Found. v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 101, 111, 172 Cal. Rptr. 194, 624 P.2d 244 ; Messenger Courier Assn. of Americas v. California Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1074, 1086, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 797].

[4] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- Plaintiff's capacity (Paragraph 1);

- Defendant's identity (Paragraph 2);

- Defendant's issuance of the subject precedent decision (Paragraph 3) [see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 409, 409.1];

- Plaintiff's standing to challenge the validity of the precedent decision (Paragraph 4) [see Unemp. Ins. Code § 409.2]; and

- Plaintiff's contention as to why the precedent decision is invalid (Paragraph 5) [see Unemp. Ins. Code § 409.2, Code Civ. Proc. § 1060].

[5] Standing to Sue

To maintain the action, plaintiff must be an interested person or organization [Unemp. Ins. Code § 409.2]. That is, plaintiff must be a person or organization who is subject to the precedent decision or affected by it, or who is or could be subject to its effects. A plaintiff who is such a person has standing to sue for declaratory relief [Pacific Legal Foundation v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 150, 154, 156, 141 Cal. Rptr. 474 ; see Pacific Legal Foundation v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 101, 109, 172 Cal. Rptr. 194, 624 P.2d 244 (term interested persons includes those who, though not directly involved in a benefit case, may be subject to a precedent decision)].

[6] Actual Controversy Implied

Unemp. Ins. Code § 409.2 authorizes a declaratory relief action "in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure" to challenge the validity of a precedent decision. Normally, a complaint for declaratory relief must allege the existence of an actual controversy relating to the legal rights and duties of the respective parties and their respective contentions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060; and Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief, and Ch. 472B, Review of Agency Rulemaking]. However, this rule apparently does not apply to a declaratory relief action to challenge the validity of a precedent decision rendered by the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board; rather, it appears that the mere possibility that an actual controversy might arise in the future is sufficient if the plaintiff has standing to sue as an interested person or organization [see Pacific Legal Foundation v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 150, 160, 141 Cal. Rptr. 474 (dissenting opinion)].

[7] State Statutes

Designation by appeals board of certain of its decisions as precedents. Unemp. Ins. Code § 409, 3rd paragraph

Modification of precedent decision to conform to court judgment. Unemp. Ins. Code § 409.1

Declaratory relief action to obtain judicial declaration of validity of precedent decision. Unemp. Ins. Code § 409.2

Time limit on when judicial review of precedent decision may be sought by Employment Development Director or any other party. Unemp. Ins. Code § 410, 4th paragraph

[8] Decisions

Trial court properly declared invalid five decisions of Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board concerning precedent benefit, in each of which appeals board denied unemployment compensation benefits solely on claimant's reduction of his or her labor market (e.g., by moving to another geographical locale), as in conflict with Glick v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 493, 499, 153 Cal. Rptr. 1, 591 P.2d 24 , and Sanchez v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 55, 67, 141 Cal. Rptr. 146, 569 P.2d 740 (holding that claimants may reduce their labor markets for good cause and remain eligible for benefits, as long as they are available to a substantial field of employment). Rios v. Employment Development Dept. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 489, 497, 231 Cal. Rptr. 732

3. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff delivered his/her wood carvings to various persons for sale to the general public; in all such transactions, it was orally agreed between plaintiff and each of the persons that wood carvings not sold would be returned to plaintiff, and that for each carving sold the person would pay to plaintiff _____ percent of the sale price, but in no event less than a minimum price established for each carving. Plaintiff neither had nor attempted to exert control of any kind over the persons as to how the carvings were to be sold, where or when they were to be sold, to whom they were to be sold, or in any other way. Plaintiff was in no way obligated to provide the persons, or any of them, with a minimum number of carvings, or any at all, and the persons were in no way required to sell the carvings or to exert any efforts on plaintiff's behalf. The sole power retained by plaintiff was to require return of the unsold carvings, which power was to be exercised by him/her in his/her sole discretion and for any reason].

[A copy of the decision is attached hereto as Exhibit B and made a part hereof.]

6. On or about _____ [date within 30 days, or any extended period, after service of notice of administrative law judge's decision], plaintiff filed an appeal from the administrative law judge's decision with the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board, which rendered its decision on _____ [date], _____ [either affirming the decision of the ad ministrative law judge or _____ (increasing or decreasing) the amount of the assessment to $_____]. [2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a person or entity to recover erroneously or illegally assessed employer contributions after its claim for refund or credit was denied or deemed denied [see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1241(a); see also Patane v. Kiddoo (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1207, 1209-1214, 214 Cal. Rptr. 9] .

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- The status of the Employment Development Department as a state department and the defendant as the Director of Employment Development (Paragraph 1) [see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1241(a); Patane v. Kiddoo (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1207, 1209 n.1, 214 Cal. Rptr. 9] .

- Plaintiff's capacity (Paragraph 2).

- Facts negating the propriety or legality of the assessment (Paragraph 3).

- The receipt of notice of the assessment (Paragraph 4).

- Plaintiff's filing of a petition for reassessment with an administrative law judge who upheld the director's assessment with or without increasing or decreasing the amount (Paragraph 5) [see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1223].

- Plaintiff's filing of an appeal with the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board, which upheld the administrative law judge's decision, with or without decreasing the amount of the assessment (Paragraph 6) [see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1224].

- Plaintiff's payment of the assessment (Paragraph 7).

- Plaintiff's filing of a claim for refund (Paragraph 8) [see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1222, 1241(a)].

- Defendant director's express or implied denial of the claim for refund (alternative Paragraphs 9) [see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1180, 1222].

- Plaintiff's filing of a petition for review with an administrative law judge (Paragraph 10) [see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1222, 1223].

- The administrative law judge's express or implied denial of the claim for refund (alternative Paragraphs 11) [see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1224(a)].

- Plaintiff's appeal to the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board which affirmed the denial (Paragraph 12) [see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1224].

- The reason collection of the assessment was illegal (Paragraph 13).

- That, as shown by the complaint, plaintiff has exhausted the administrative remedies prescribed by law (Paragraph 14) [see Patane v. Kiddoo (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1207, 1214, 214 Cal. Rptr. 9] .

Payment of the amount of assessment is a precondition to further administrative or judicial review [Masi v. Nagle (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 608, 615, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 423] . Even cases of severe financial hardship do not permit judicial intervention [see Masi v. Nagle (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 608, 615, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 423 (citing Modern Barber Co. v. Cal. Emp. Stab. Com. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 720, 730, 192 P.2d 916)].

[4] When Refund Is Not Permitted

Employer contributions paid pursuant to Unemp. Ins. Code § 976.5 (relating to voluntary contribution for purpose of redetermining contribution rate) may not be refunded except under certain circumstances defined by statute [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1178(e)].

[5] Necessity of Filing Claim for Refund or Credit

No suit or proceeding shall be maintained in any court for the recovery of any amount of contributions, interest, or penalties alleged to have been erroneously or illegally assessed or collected until a claim for refund or credit has been filed [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1241(a)].

[6] Effect on Claim for Refund of Payment Pending Administrative Appeal of Assessment

The petition for reassessment and review of a denial of the claim for refund or credit, set forth separately in the foregoing form (see Paragraphs 5 and 8), may be consolidated when payment of the contributions assessed is made during the administrative appeal. That is, if the employing unit pays the amount of contributions, penalties, and interest assessed before the administrative law judge issues his or her decision on the petition for reassessment, the payment constitutes the filing of a claim for refund, the claim for refund is deemed denied by the director, and the petition for reassessment automatically becomes a petition to review a denial of the claim for refund [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1179.5(a)]. Also, if payment is not made before that time but is made before the appeals board issues its decision on an appeal from the administrative law judge's decision on a petition for reassessment, the payment constitutes the filing of a claim for refund, the claim is deemed denied by the director, the denial is deemed affirmed by the administrative law judge, and the appeal automatically becomes an appeal from an administrative law judge's decision upholding the director's denial of the claim for refund [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1179.5(b)].

[7] Venue of Action

The action is required to be filed in a court of competent jurisdiction in the County of Sacramento [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1241(a)]. However, it may be filed in any city or city and county in which the Attorney General has an office [Code Civ. Proc. § 401].

[8] Subject Matter Jurisdiction

An action involving the legality of a tax must be brought in superior court and cannot be classified as a limited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 85, 86(a)(1)]. If the legality of a tax is not involved in an action to recover taxes, the case is treated as an ordinary action to recover money due and unpaid and should be filed as a limited civil case or otherwise based on the amount in dispute [see Cal. Emp. etc. Com. v. Citizens etc. Bk. (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 915, 916, 167 P.2d 752] .

The legality of a tax is involved whenever the taxpayer contends that the tax was illegally assessed or levied [see Cal. Emp. etc. Com. v. Citizens etc. Bk. (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 915, 916, 167 P.2d 752] . "Contributions," as used in the Unemployment Insurance Code, is a euphemistic expression meaning tax exactions [Empire Star Mines Co. v. Cal. Emp. Com. (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 33, 47, 168 P.2d 686 , overruled on another point, People v. Sims (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 468, 479-480 n.8, 186 Cal. Rptr. 77, 651 P.2d 321] . Hence, the foregoing rule applies to employer's contributions under the Unemployment Insurance Code [see Cal. Emp. etc. Com. v. Citizens etc. Bk. (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 915, 916, 167 P.2d 752] . Thus, when the person against whom contributions have been assessed denies that he or she is an employer, the legality of a tax is involved and jurisdiction of the case is in the superior court as an unlimited civil case [see Cal. Emp. etc. Com. v. Municipal Ct. (1944) 62 Cal. App. 2d 781, 784-786, 145 P.2d 361 (municipal court lacked jurisdiction of action to collect employer contributions where defendants denied they were employers)].

Petitioner alleges:

1. Petitioner is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [specify capacity, e.g., an individual engaged as a sole proprietor in the business of owning and operating _____ (e.g., an automotive parts supply retail store) in _____ County, California], in the course of which he/she employs _____ persons.

2. Respondent Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board (hereinafter, the appeals board) and its employees constitute the Appeals Division of the Employment Development Department.

3. Respondent Employment Development Department (hereinafter, the department) is a department in the Health and Welfare Agency of the State of California.

4. Respondent _____ [name] (hereinafter, the director) is the Director of Employment Development and is charged by law with the administration of the unemployment compensation program of the State of California.

5. Real party in interest _____ [name] (hereinafter the claimant) was employed by petitioner from _____ [date] to _____ [date], as _____ [title of job, e.g., a shipping clerk]. The last-mentioned date was the last day on which the claimant worked for petitioner. On or about _____ [date], petitioner received written notice from the department that a claim for unemployment compensation benefits had been filed by the claimant. Pursuant to the provisions of Section 1327 of the Unemployment Insurance Code, petitioner submitted to the Department a written statement setting forth facts showing that the claimant _____ [(is deemed to have) voluntarily left his/her employment without good cause or was discharged for misconduct in connection with his/her work]. A copy of the statement is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.

[ALLEGE each step of administrative proceeding, including any reconsiderations, e.g.]

6. Thereafter, on _____ [date], the department issued a determination and ruling that the claimant _____ [voluntarily left his/her work with good cause or was not discharged for misconduct in connection with his/her work], and was eligible for unemployment compensation benefits, and notified petitioner accordingly. A copy of the notice is attached hereto as Exhibit B and made a part hereof.

7. [As authorized by Section 1328 of the Unemployment Insurance Code,] [P]etitioner thereafter duly filed an appeal with an administrative law judge who, by written decision dated _____, affirmed the determination and ruling of the department, and notified petitioner accordingly. A copy of the decision with its reasons is attached hereto as Exhibit C and made a part hereof.

8. In affirming the determination and ruling of the director, the administrative law judge _____ [specify, e.g., abused his/her discretion and acted in excess of his/her jurisdiction in concluding that the claimant _____ (voluntarily left his/her work with good cause or was not discharged for misconduct in connection with his/her work) in that the conclusion is contrary to the (weight of the) evidence and is against the law].

9. [As authorized by Section 1336 of the Unemployment Insurance Code,] [P]etitioner duly filed an appeal with the appeals board, which, on _____ [date], affirmed the decision of the administrative law judge, and notified petitioner accordingly. A copy of the decision is attached hereto as Exhibit D and made a part hereof.

10. The appeals board _____ [specify, e.g., abused its discretion and acted in excess of its jurisdiction in the same manner as did the administrative law judge] in that _____ [specify, e.g., the evidence and the law indisputably establish that the claimant _____ ([is deemed to have] voluntarily left his/her employment with petitioner without good cause or was discharged for misconduct in connection with his/her work) in that the claimant, as shown by the evidence before the administrative law judge and the appeals board, _____ (summarize, e.g., on the evening of the last day he/she reported for work and worked for petitioner was arrested for the commission of a criminal offense, to wit, _____ (specify), and was subsequently convicted and sentenced to jail for a term of _____ (days or months). Subsequent to his/her release from jail, the claimant sought to return to his/her former position, but petitioner was unable to reemploy him/her because the position had been filled)].

[CONTINUE]

11. Pursuant to the decision of the appeals board, the department has charged, and will charge, petitioner's reserve account with the amount of benefits paid, and to be paid, to the claimant.

12. Petitioner has exhausted his/her administrative remedies in that, under the provisions of Section 410 of the Unemployment Insurance Code, the decision of the appeals board is final, except for such action as may be taken by a judicial tribunal as permitted or required by law.

13. Petitioner has no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law to compel the appeals board to reverse its decision or to compel the department and director to credit petitioner's reserve account with the amount charged against it on account of the compensation benefits paid to the claimant, and no remedy at all unless this petition is granted.

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays as follows:

1. That this court issue an alternative writ of mandate ordering respondent Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board

a. to set aside its decision _____ [specify, e.g., affirming the decision of the administrative law judge affirming the determination of the Director of Employment Development] that the claimant _____ [voluntarily left his/her work with good cause or was not discharged for misconduct in connection with his/her work], and was eligible for unemployment compensation benefits, and to deny such benefits, or

b. in the alternative, to show cause before this court at a time and place to be fixed by the court why it has not done so and directing it to file with this court the record of all proceedings in this matter before the respondent and the administrative law judge;

2. That, after hearing on the order to show cause, this court issue a peremptory writ of mandate to the same effect as the alternative writ except for the order to show cause;

3. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the petitioner in the above-entitled proceeding. I have read the foregoing petition and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

CAUTION:

A petition for a writ of mandate must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086]. Proof of service on each respondent and real party in interest of a copy of a petition that seeks an alternative writ must accompany the petition when it is offered for filing except when, in its discretion and for good cause, the court has granted the application for the writ ex parte [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; for a discussion of serving the petition, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition]. Points and authorities also customarily accompany a petition filed in a superior court, although they do not appear to be expressly required by statute. When no alternative writ is sought, proof of service of a copy of the petition need not accompany the application, but proof of service of a copy of the filed petition must be lodged with the court prior to a hearing or any action by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5].

[2] Use of Form

This form of petition for writ of mandate is for use by an employer to seek judicial review of the decision of the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board affirming the decision of an administrative law judge that a claimant was eligible for unemployment compensation [see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1328, 1334, 1336]. The illustrative grounds set forth for issuance of the writ are (1) prejudicial abuse of discretion in that the decision is not supported by the evidence, and (2) excess of jurisdiction in that the decision is against the law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b), (d)]. The bracketed references in Paragraphs 7 and 9 cite the statutory authority for the particular proceeding referred to. These references may be included, but their inclusion is not required since under Evid. Code § 451(a) the court is mandatorily required to take judicial notice of the public statutory law of California.

With appropriate modifications, the form may be used by an employer (1) when the writ is sought on the grounds that the respondent proceeded without jurisdiction or that petitioner was denied a fair hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b)]; and (2) to seek judicial review of a decision of the appeals board (a) reversing the decision of the administrative law judge denying unemployment compensation benefits, or (b) affirming or reversing the decision of an administrative law judge reviewing the director's (i) computation or recomputation of the benefit amount after protest by the employer, or (ii) reconsidered determination [see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1329-1336].

[3] Administrative Record

All or part of the administrative record of the proceedings may be filed with the petition or with respondent's points and authorities or pursuant to court order. Except when otherwise prescribed by statute, the cost of preparing the record is borne by the petitioner [Code Civ. Prov. § 1094.5(a)]. If the petitioner's court fees have been waived because he or she is proceeding in forma pauperis [see Gov. Code § 68630 et seq.], and the transcript is necessary to a proper review of the administrative proceedings, the cost of preparing the transcript is borne by the respondent [Code Civ. Prov. §

1094.5(a)]. For discussion of waiving court fees because of a person's financial condition, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.110 et seq.

If the petitioner has proceeded pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5 (no alternative writ is sought), the administrative record must be filed as expeditiously as possible, and may be filed with the petition, or by the respondent after payment of the costs by the petitioner, when required, or as otherwise directed by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a)].

[4] Parties

The decision to be reviewed by the court is that of the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board, which would normally be the only respondent. However, this form seeks to have the Director of Employment Development credit the employer's reserve account with the amounts charged against it for benefits (see Unemp. Ins. Code § 1338). Consequently, both the director and the Employment Development Department are named as respondents, although the court, if it grants the writ, need not order that the reserve account be credited with the amounts erroneously charged, since this will follow as a matter of law [see Windigo Mills v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 586, 602-603, 155 Cal. Rptr. 63] .

[5] Allegations

This petition alleges:

- The capacity of petitioner as an employing unit (Paragraph 1) [see Unemp. Ins. Code § 135(a)];
- The names and capacities of the respondents (Paragraphs 2-4).
- The identity of the real party in interest, that is, the claimant for unemployment insurance benefits (Paragraph 5).
- The administrative determinations that the claimant was entitled to unemployment compensation benefits (Paragraphs 6, 7, 9).
- The grounds justifying issuance of a writ of mandate (Paragraphs 8, 10, 13) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1086, 1094.5(b)].
- The fact showing that petitioner is a party beneficially interested, that is, the charging of the benefits paid against petitioner's reserve account (Paragraph 11) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086; Cal. Portland Cement Co. v. Cal. Unemp. Ins. Appeals Board (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 263, 269, 3 Cal. Rptr. 37] .
- The exhaustion of administrative remedies (Paragraphs 5, 6, 7, 9, 12) [see Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 291-296, 109 P.2d 942] .
- Absence of plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in ordinary course of law (Paragraph 13) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086].

[ALLEGE each step of administrative proceeding, including any reconsiderations, e.g.]

6. The claim was denied by an examiner of the California Employment Development Department on _____ [date], on the ground petitioner was disqualified from receiving unemployment benefits for the reason(s) that _____ [specify], and, on _____ [date], petitioner received a written notice of this determination. A copy of the determination is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.

7. [Pursuant to the provisions of Section 1328 of the Unemployment Insurance Code], [P]etitioner duly filed an appeal with an administrative law judge who, by a written decision dated _____, affirmed the examiner's determination. A copy of the decision is attached hereto as Exhibit B and made a part hereof.

8. In affirming the examiner's determination and ruling, the administrative law judge _____ [specify, e.g., abused his/her discretion and acted in excess of his/her jurisdiction in concluding that the claimant _____ (voluntarily left his/her work without good cause or was discharged for misconduct in connection with his/her work). The conclusion is contrary to the (weight of the) evidence that the claimant _____ (left his/her employment to accompany his/her nonmarital partner to _____ (city and state), to which the nonmarital partner had been transferred by her/his employer, and which is a place from which it is impracticable to commute to the employer's place of employment, in order to maintain the familial relationship he/she and his/her nonmarital partner have established with their children, and is against the law].

9. [As authorized by Section 1336 of the Unemployment Insurance Code], [P]etitioner thereafter duly filed an appeal with the appeals board, which on _____ [date] affirmed the administrative law judge's decision and notified petitioner accordingly. A copy of the decision is attached hereto as Exhibit C and made a part hereof.

10. In affirming the decision of the administrative law judge, the appeals board _____ [specify, e.g., abused its discretion and acted in excess of its jurisdiction in the same manner as did the administrative law judge, as alleged in paragraph 8].

[CONTINUE]

11. [Exhaustion of administrative remedies. See § 564.300, Paragraph 12].

12. Petitioner has no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law to compel the appeals board to reverse its decision and to grant petitioner's claim for unemployment compensation benefits, and no remedy at all unless this petition is granted.

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays as follows:

1. That this court issue an alternative writ of mandate ordering respondent Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board

(a) To set aside its decision _____ [specify, e.g., affirming the decision of the administrative law judge affirming the determination of the Director of Employment Development] that the claimant _____ [voluntarily left his/her work without good cause or was discharged for misconduct in connection with his/her work], and is ineligible for unemployment compensation benefits, and to grant such benefits, or

(b) In the alternative, to show cause before this court at a time and place to be fixed by the court why it has not done so and directing it to file with this court the record of all proceedings in this matter before the respondent and the administrative law judge;

2. That, after hearing on the order to show cause, this court issue a peremptory writ of mandate to the same effect as the alternative writ except for the order to show cause;

3. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.
Dated: _____

_____ [Signature]

Attorney for Petitioner

[Verification. See § 564.300.]

CAUTION:

A petition for a writ of mandate must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086]. Proof of service on each respondent and real party in interest of a copy of a petition that seeks an alternative writ must accompany the petition when it is offered for filing except when, in its discretion and for good cause, the court has granted the application for the writ ex parte [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; for a discussion of serving the petition, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition]. Points and authorities also customarily accompany a petition filed in a superior court, although they do not appear to be expressly required by statute. When no alternative writ is sought, proof of service of a copy of the petition need not accompany the application, but proof of service of a copy of the filed petition must be lodged with the court prior to a hearing or any action by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5].

[2] Use of Form

This form of petition for writ of mandate is for use by an unemployed worker to seek judicial review of the decision of the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board affirming the decision of an administrative law judge that a claimant is ineligible for unemployment compensation [see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1328, 1334, 1336]. The illustrative grounds for the writ set forth in the form are (1) prejudicial abuse of discretion in that the decision is not supported by the evidence, and (2) excess of jurisdiction in that the decision is against the law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b), (d)]. The optional phrases at the beginning of Paragraphs 7 and 9 cite the statutory authority for the particular proceeding referred to. These references may be included, but their inclusion is not required since under Evid. Code § 451(a) the court must take judicial notice of the public statutory law of California.

With appropriate modifications, the form may be used by a claimant for unemployment compensation benefits (1) when the writ is sought on the ground that the respondent proceeded without jurisdiction or on the ground that petitioner was denied a fair hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b)]; and (2) to seek judicial review of a decision of the appeals board (a) reversing the decision of the administrative law judge granting unemployment compensation benefits, or (b) affirming or reversing the decision of an administrative law judge reviewing the director's (i) computation or recomputation of the benefit amount after protest by the claimant, or (ii) reconsidered determination [see Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1329-1336].

With appropriate modifications, the form may also be used by a claimant to seek review of the decision of the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board denying, or affirming a decision denying, a claim for disability benefits.

[3] Allegations

The form of petition alleges:

(1) Respondent's name and capacity (Paragraph 1);

(2) The name and capacity of the real party in interest as an employing unit (Paragraph 2) [see Unemp. Ins. Code § 135(a)];

(3) The facts establishing petitioner's eligibility for unemployment compensation benefits (Paragraphs 3, 4);

(4) Petitioner's filing of a claim for benefits (Paragraph 5); the administrative determinations that the claimant was ineligible for unemployment compensation benefits (Paragraphs 6, 7, 9);

(5) The grounds justifying issuance of a writ of mandate (Paragraphs 8, 10) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1086, 1094.5(b)];

(6) The exhaustion of administrative remedies (Paragraphs 6, 7, 9, 11) [see Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 291-296, 109 P.2d 942] ; and

(7) The absence of plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in ordinary course of law (Paragraph 12) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086].

[4] Decisions

Chapter 565 UNFAIR COMPETITION
PART I. SCOPE

49-565 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 565.01

§ 565.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses actions based on statutory unfair competition (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq.; see § 565.30 et seq.) and actions under the Unfair Practices Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17000 et seq. [see § 565.50 et seq.]. It includes a form of complaint for use by a plaintiff to obtain injunctive relief and damages against a defendant for violation of the Unfair Practices Act [see § 565.230].

For discussion and forms concerning related actions (other than those discussed in*§ 565.70* et seq.,§ 565.100 et seq., and§ 565.130 et seq.) that are based on false advertising [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq.], common law trade libel, and trademark infringement [see 15 U.S.C.S. § 1051 et seq.; Bus. & Prof. Code § 14200 et seq.], or common law confusion of source, see Ch. 14, Advertising , Ch. 340, Libel and Slander , and Ch. 549, Trademarks and Trade Names .

Causes of action based on federal law, particularly the Robinson-Patman Act [15 U.S.C.S. § 13 et seq.] and the Federal Trade Commission Act [15 U.S.C.S. § 41 et seq.], are frequently combined with causes of action discussed in this part. For full discussion of related federal legislative schemes governing unfair business practices, see Von Kalinowski, Antitrust Laws and Trade Regulation(Matthew Bender).

This chapter also discusses contracts not to compete and other restraints of trade, business, and practice of one's profession prohibited under California law [see § 565.70 et seq.]. It contains a form of complaint by a consumer plaintiff against various defendants for restraint of trade [see § 565.250].

Contracts between former partners or between a former partner and a partnership not to compete are discussed in Ch. 403, Partnerships: Actions by and Against Dissociated Partners, § 403.14. For in-depth coverage of antitrust law, see Von Kalinowski, Antitrust Laws and Trade Regulation(Matthew Bender).

This chapter also discusses trade secrets generally, including both the common law and the Uniform Trade Secret Act (UTSA), (Civ. Code § 3426 et seq.[see § 565.100 et seq.]). It includes a form of complaint for damages for and injunctive relief against misappropriation of a trade secret [see § 565.270]. Also included are forms of allegations for use by a plaintiff when the misappropriation is by a former employee [see § 565.271] and when the trade secret is in the form of a customer list [see § 565.272]. This part also includes forms of affirmative defense based on product disclosure of the trade secret [see § 565.273] and the statute of limitations [see § 565.274].

This chapter also discusses tort actions for intentional and negligent interference with economic relations [see § 565.130 et seq.]. It includes forms of complaint alleging intentional [see § 565.290] or negligent [see § 565.291] interference with a contract or other economic relationship. Also included are forms of affirmative defenses to an action for interference [see §§ 565.292, 565.293] and a form of judgment granting monetary and injunctive relief in such an action [see § 565.294].

Actions for unfair competition are generally governed by Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. Particular unfair business practices are also actionable under the Unfair Practices Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17000 et seq.), which prohibits locality discrimination, sales and services below cost, secret rebates, and other specified practices.

Civ. Code § 3345 trebles a discretionary civil penalty in any other statute in an action brought by, on behalf of, or for the benefit of, senior citizens or disabled persons to redress unfair or deceptive acts or practices or unfair methods of competition.

49-565 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 565.30

§ 565.30 Unfair Competition

[1] Statutory Definition

California's unfair competition law, Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. (sometimes called, although not officially, the Unfair Competition Act), defines unfair competition to mean and include three types of business-related activities [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200]:

- Any unlawful, unfair, or fraudulent business act or practice [see § 565.31];
- Unfair, deceptive, untrue, or misleading advertising; and
- Any act prohibited by Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq., a chapter that governs a broad range of advertising.

For discussion of unfair, deceptive, untrue, or misleading advertising as well as activities governed by Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq., and related forms, see Ch. 14, Advertising .

[2] Common Law Concept

Common law unfair competition is limited to fact situations involving confusion of source. Former Civ. Code § 3369, which was supplanted by Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq., encompassed only common law unfair competition [see Barquis v. Merchants Collection Assn. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 94, 111, 101 Cal. Rptr. 745, 496 P.2d 817 ; Motors, Inc. v. Times Mirror Co. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 735, 740 n. 2, 162 Cal. Rptr. 543 ; Plotkin v. Tanner's Vacuums (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 454, 459, 125 Cal. Rptr. 697 ; Note, Former Civil Code Section 3369: A Study in Judicial Interpretation, 30 Hastings L.J. 705 (1979)]. The common law concept is partly subsumed in the statutory definition in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 but for the most part is covered by the law of trademarks and trade names [see Ch. 549, Trademarks and Trade Names] and, to some extent, patent and copyright law [see Ch. 349, Literary Property and Copyright , and Ch. 411, Patents and Inventions ; see also § 565.37].

49-565 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 565.31

§ 565.31 Unlawful, Unfair, or Fraudulent Business Act or Practice

[1] In General

Actions for relief under the unfair competition law may be based on any business act or practice that is within the broad definition of unfair competition under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 [Consumers Union of United States, Inc. v. Fisher Dev., Inc. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1433, 1438-1439, 257 Cal. Rptr. 151 ; cf. People ex rel. Mosk v. Nat'l Research Co. of Cal. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 765, 770-771, 20 Cal. Rptr. 516 (decided under former Civ. Code § 3369)].

[2] Causal Connection Required

In an action under the unfair competition statute, a plaintiff is required to provide evidence of a causal connection between a defendant's business practices and the alleged harm--that is, evidence that the defendant's conduct caused or was likely to cause substantial injury. It is insufficient for a plaintiff to show merely that the defendant's conduct created a risk of harm [In re Firearm Cases (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 959, 982-982, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 659 (no evidence that conduct of gun manufacturers or distributors actually caused harm attributed to gun dealers and users)].

[3] "Act or Practice"

The "act or practice" aspect of the statutory definition of unfair competition covers any single act of misconduct, as well as ongoing misconduct [see Klein v. Earth Elements, Inc. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 965, 969 n.3, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 623 ; Podolsky v. First Healthcare Corp. (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 632, 654-655] . Until the words "any ... act or" were added in 1992, Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 specified unlawful, unfair, or fraudulent "business practice" and was construed as being directed at ongoing wrongful business conduct, something beyond a single transaction [State of California ex rel. Van de Kamp v. Texaco, Inc. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1147, 1169-1170, 252 Cal. Rptr. 221, 762 P.2d 385] .

[4] "Unlawful" Acts and Practices

[a] In General

An unlawful business act or practice is an act or practice that is both undertaken pursuant to business activity and also forbidden by law [Farmers Ins. Exch. v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 377, 383, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 487, 826 P.2d 730] . Any business act or practice that is unlawful, in the sense that it violates a specific statute, may be enjoined under the unfair competition law [Comm. on Children's Television, Inc. v. Gen. Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 197, 209-210, 197 Cal. Rptr. 783, 673 P.2d 660 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Gartin v. S&M NuTec LLC, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 38050 (C.D. Cal.) ; Consumers Union of United States, Inc. v. Fisher Dev., Inc. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1433, 1438-1439, 257 Cal. Rptr. 151] .

Virtually any law can serve as the predicate for an unfair competition action [State Farm Fire & Cas. Co. v. Superior Court (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1102-1103, 53 Cal. Rptr.2d 229] . The "unlawful" practices prohibited by Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 are any practices forbidden by law, be it civil or criminal, federal, state, or municipal, statutory, regulatory, or court-made. It is not necessary that the predicate law provide for private civil enforcement [Saunders v. Superior Court (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 832, 838-839, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 438 ; see Californians for Population Stabilization v. Hewlett-Packard Co. (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 273, 287, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 621 (unfair competition cases have cited anti-discrimination laws, antitrust laws, criminal laws, environmental protection laws, fish and game laws, housing laws, labor laws, and vehicle laws)].

In one case, a court of appeal held that violations of a conditional use permit, as well as violations of a temporary restraining order, could be challenged as unlawful business practices [Hewlett v. Squaw Valley Ski Corp. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 499, 532, 535, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 118] .

However, the underlying statute might create an exclusive jurisdictional prerequisite that must be met before any subsequent action may be brought, including an action under the unfair competition statute. For example, the Talent Agencies Act vests exclusive original jurisdiction in the Labor Commissioner for all claims arguably coming under its provisions [see Lab. Code § 1700.44], and failure to meet this jurisdictional hurdle will bar an action under the unfair competition statute for violation of the Act [Blanks v. Seyfarth Shaw LLP (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 336, 364-365, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 710].

Federal law generally does not preempt use of the unfair competition statute to remedy a violation of federal law. To the extent that the action is based on a violation of federal requirements, the plaintiff is not seeking to impose different or additional requirements beyond those imposed under federal law. Therefore, the action does not run afoul of federal preemption concerns [see McKell v. Washington Mut., Inc. (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1457, 1485-1486, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 227] .

[b] Unfair Practices Act Violations

A violation of the Unfair Practices Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17000 et seq.; see § 565.50 et seq.] can be the basis for relief under the unfair competition law [see People v. Thomas Shelton Powers, M.D., Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 330, 338-339, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 34 (sale of condominium unit, designated as low- and moderate-income housing, at price exceeding established ceiling, in violation of city code, was unfair practice under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17000 et seq., andplaintiff entitled to relief under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203)].

[c] Cartwright Act Violations

Violations of the Cartwright Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16700 et seq.], which governs activities in restraint of trade [see § 565.70 et seq.], would constitute unlawful acts or practices under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. [see, e.g., BILJAC Assocs. v. First Interstate Bank (1990) 218 Cal. App.3d 1410, 1422-1423, 267 Cal. Rptr. 819 ; see Quelimane Co. v. Stewart Title Guar. Co. (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 26, 43-51, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 709, 960 P.2d 513 ; B.W.I. Custom Kitchen v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1341, 1345, 1348, 1348 n. 6, 235 Cal. Rptr. 228] . This subject is further discussed in*§ 565.31[5][a]*.

[d] Uniform Trade Secrets Act Violations

Misappropriation of trade secrets in violation of the Uniform Trade Secrets Act [Civ. Code § 3426 et seq.; see § 565.100 et seq.] would constitute unfair competition [see Courtesy Temporary Serv., Inc. v. Camacho (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1278, 1292, 272 Cal. Rptr. 352 ("cases are legion" holding that former employee's use of confidential information obtained from employer to compete with employer and solicit business from employer's customers is regarded as unfair competition)].

[e] Choice of Remedies

An act or practice that violates a specific statute may be redressed under that statute instead of under the unfair competition law. For example, sales that violated provisions of the Unfair Practices Act governing below-cost sales and loss leaders (namely, sales made with the purpose of injuring competitors and destroying competition) were subject to the greater remedies afforded by the Unfair Practices Act [Cel-Tech Commc'ns, Inc. v. Los Angeles Cellular Tel. Co. (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 163, 174-175, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548, 973 P.2d 527 ; see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17043, 17044].

[f] Mere Cause of Action Not "Unlawful" Act or Practice

Although any violation of virtually any law, including court-made law, can serve as the predicate for an unfair competition action based on an unlawful business act or practice [see § 565.31[4]], such an action is not warranted for a mere cause of action. For instance, mere liability under the doctrines of strict products liability and breach of the implied warranty of fitness was insufficient to support an independent unfair competition action for an unlawful business act or practice [Klein v. Earth Elements, Inc. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 965, 969, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 623 (manufacturer's unintentional distribution of contaminated pet food was beyond scope and policy of unfair competition law's proscription of unlawful business act or practice)]. In another case, the inclusion of unenforceable liquidated-damages provisions in an employment contract did not constitute an unlawful business practice [Californians for Population Stabilization v. Hewlett-Packard Co. (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 273, 287, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 621] .

[5] "Unfair" Acts and Practices

[a] Business Rivals

If a plaintiff claims to have suffered injury from a direct competitor's "unfair" act or practice, as that term is used in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200, conduct is "unfair" if it threatens an incipient violation of an antitrust law, or violates the policy or spirit of such a law because its effects are comparable to or the same as a violation of the law, or otherwise significantly threatens or harms competition [Cel-Tech Commc'ns, Inc. v. Los Angeles Cellular Tel. Co. (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 163, 187, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548, 973 P.2d 527] . Thus, below-cost sales were unfair under the provisions of the unfair competition law because they were neither protected under a specific statute [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17026.1; see also § 565.32[1]] nor yet in violation of the Unfair Practices Act's provisions on below-cost sales and loss leaders [Cel-Tech Commc'ns, Inc. v. Los Angeles Cellular Tel. Co. (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 163, 188, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548, 973 P.2d 527] .

This standard is patterned after the test used to determine "unfair methods of competition" under Section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act [see Cel-Tech Commc'ns, Inc. v. Los Angeles Cellular Tel. Co. (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 163, 185-186, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548, 973 P.2d 527 ; see also 15 U.S.C.S. § 45(a)]. For example, unfair price discrimination between customers may be enjoined under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203 [see Motors, Inc. v. Times Mirror Co. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 735, 739-741, 162 Cal. Rptr. 543] .

Under this standard, an injury to a competitor is not the same as an injury to competition, and only the latter is actionable. For example, a supplier's refusal to deal on favorable terms with a competitor, although perhaps injurious to the competitor, is not necessarily actionable as an injury to competition [see People's Choice Wireless, Inc. v. Verizon Wireless (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 656, 666-668, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 819] .

Unless there is a law that provides otherwise, a private party generally may choose to refuse to do business with whomever he or she pleases without violating the spirit of antitrust laws [Drum v. San Fernando Valley Bar Assn. (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 247, 254, 106 Cal. Rptr. 3d 46] .

[b] Other Contexts

The standard discussed in*§ 565.31[5][a]* is limited to claims of unfair acts and practices between business rivals. It does not apply to actions brought by consumers [see § 565.33] or actions between competitors alleging other kinds of violations of the unfair competition law, such as actions alleging fraudulent or unlawful business practices or unfair, deceptive, untrue, or misleading advertising [Cel-Tech Commc'ns, Inc. v. Los Angeles Cellular Tel. Co. (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 163, 187 n.12, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548, 973 P.2d 527] .

The standard for determining what constitutes unfair conduct in these othercontexts is not entirely clear. In one line of cases determining whether a business practice or act is unfair within the meaning of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 entails examination of the effect of the practice or act on thevictim, balanced against the reasons, justifications, and motives of the alleged wrongdoer. The court must weigh the utility of the alleged wrongdoer's conduct against the gravity of the harm to the alleged victim [Progressive West Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 263, 285-286, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434 ; Pastoria v. Nationwide Ins. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1490, 1498, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 148] . For example, a pet food distributor unintentionally distributed contaminated pet food, but then acted promptly to recall the contaminated products, advertised the recall effort, and afforded restitution to customers. The pet food distributor's conduct was not unfair within the meaning of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200. The court reasoned that: (1) although dogs did get sick, the distributor's act was accidental; (2) after discovering what had happened, the distributor moved quickly to abate the harm; and (3) setting the standard at perfection or zero mistakes was too high a price to pay for eliminating the potential harm to the dogs from the unwitting distribution of contaminated food [Klein v. Earth Elements, Inc. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 965, 970, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 623] .

However, other court of appeal opinions have questioned whether the earlier formulations for determining what constitutes unfair conduct in an action brought by a party who is not a competitor are now too broad in light of the Supreme Court's more restrictive definition of what constitutes an unfair practice in an action brought by a competitor [see § 565.31[5][a]]. Some of these court opinions have suggested that to ensure that a court will not merely apply its own subjective conception of fairness, the conduct alleged to be unfair must be tethered to a specific constitutional, statutory, or regulatory provision, at least if the claim of unfairness is predicated on an alleged violation of public policy [see, e.g., Scripps Clinic v. Superior Court (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 917, 939-940, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101] .

Other court of appeal opinions have adopted a test in consumer actions that is patterned after the test applicable in similar cases brought under the Federal Trade Commission Act. Under this test, a consumer must show that the injury: (1) is substantial; (2) is not outweighed by any countervailing benefits to consumers or competition, and (3) is not one that consumers themselves could reasonably have avoided [Davis v. Ford Motor Credit Co. LLC (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 581, 597-598, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 697 ; Camacho v. Automobile Club of S. Cal. (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1394, 1403, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 770] . The first court opinion to adopt this test concluded that tethering a finding of unfairness in consumer cases to a violation of specific provisions was too restrictive, given the broad scope of the unfair competition statute and the fact that separate provision is made in the statute for "unlawful" conduct. The court also concluded that although it makes sense to tie unfair, anti-competitive conduct among competitors to antitrust laws, the same cannot be said if the action is brought by a consumer, because the range of potentially unfair, harmful conduct is broader [Camacho v. Automobile Club of S. Cal. (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1394, 1402-1403, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 770] .

[6] "Fraudulent" Acts and Practices

Although Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 specifies any "fraudulent" business act or practice [see § 565.30[1]], courts often speak of "deceptive" acts and practices when applying the unfair competition law. Proving a fraudulent or deceptive business practice only requires a showing that members of the public are likely to be deceived, and unlike common law fraud, it does not require allegations of actual deception, reasonable reliance, and damages [Blakemore v. Superior Court (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 36, 49, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 877 ; see, e.g., Morgan v. AT&T Wireless Services, Inc. (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1235, 1255-1257, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 768 (plaintiffs sufficiently alleged UCL action based on deceptive conduct by wireless telephone carrier when marketing phone and accompanying network services)].

In one case, a nursing home's proposed third-party guarantee agreement for private-pay residents provided that the guarantor's signature was optional, but if the guarantor did sign, he or she was personally guaranteeing payment to the home for all care, supplies, or services provided to the resident. Because the agreement offered family members little or no additional protection under federal and state law, the absence of any information regarding those protections rendered the guarantee agreement deceptive. The manner in which the original guarantee agreements were presented and explained to potential guarantors may have been deceptive as well. During the admissions process, numerous documents were hurriedly presented to family members, with little or no explanation. The court held that the procedure was likely to deceive consumers, who would not be made aware of the provisions of the proposed guarantee, or who might be misled into believing that signature was required [Podolsky v. First Healthcare Corp. (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 632, 651, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 89] .

On the other hand, the inclusion of unenforceable terms in an employment contract was not considered a deceptive business practice under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200. The court reasoned that the employment contract was legal under the laws of India and that the mere fact that certain provisions were unenforceable in California did not render the use of the documents a deceptive business practice [Californians for Population Stabilization v. Hewlett-Packard Co. (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 273, 293, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 621] .

Chapter 565 UNFAIR COMPETITION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Unfair Business Practices
2 Unfair Competition Law: Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200

49-565 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 565.32

§ 565.32 Exempt Acts and Practices

[1] Specifically Permitted Business Activity

An action based on unlawful business practice may be maintained unless the defendant's conduct is privileged or is immunized by another statute, or unless the underlying statute expressly bars its enforcement under the unfair competition law [Stevens v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 594, 603-604, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370 (plaintiff could base action on violation of Insurance Code requirementthat agents, brokers, and automobile dealers be licensed to transact insurance business)].

In a case brought by cellular telephone retailers alleging injury caused by below-cost sales of cellular telephones by a cellular telephone service provider, the Supreme Court held that cellular telephone sales that were specifically permitted by Bus. & Prof. Code § 17026.1, which is part of the Unfair Practices Act, could not be "unfair" under the unfair competition law [Cel-Tech Commc'ns, Inc. v. Los Angeles Cellular Tel. Co. (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 163, 187-188, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548, 973 P.2d 527] .

The rule that an action under the unfair competition statute cannot be based on conduct that is specifically permitted by law has been applied even though the statute authorizing the conduct was subsequently held to be preempted by federal law [Olszewski v. Scripps Health (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 798, 829, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 69 P.3d 927] .

[2] No Claim for Conduct Within Litigation Privilege

Conduct that would otherwise amount to unfair competition may be protected by the "litigation privilege" of Civ. Code § 47(b), so that the party against whom the litigation is threatened or maintained cannot state a claim for relief under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203 [Rubin v. Green (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1187, 1196-1204, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 828, 847 P.2d 1044 ; see, e.g., People ex rel. Gallegos v. The Pacific Lumber Co. (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 950, 958-963, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 501 (litigation privilege provided complete defense to action brought by State under unfair competition statute against lumber company that allegedly provided false information in administrative proceedings)]. That was the eventual outcome for a retaliatory unfair competition action filed by the owner of a mobile home park after he received a notice from a tenant stating that she intended to commence an action against him for 23 alleged defects in the operation of the park. The tenant and over 120 other residents of the park eventually did file suit, but not until after the park owner had filed a suit against the tenant who sent the notice and her attorneys for damages and injunctive relief based on meetings that the tenant and her attorneys had with other residents of the park. Those meetings were alleged to have interfered with the park owner's contractual relations with the other tenants and to constitute unfair competition under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 because they violated Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6152 and 6153, which make it unlawful to act as an agent in soliciting business on behalf of attorneys.

The entire Supreme Court agreed that the conduct alleged was sufficiently communicative and sufficiently related to the threatened judicial proceeding that Civ. Code § 47(b) and the policy interest it is designed to protect--namely, assuring free access to the courts--barred any action for damages [Rubin v. Green (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1187, 1196, 1204, 1212, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 828, 847 P.2d 1044] .

Regarding the availability of injunctive relief, however, the court was closely divided. The majority reasoned that it would undermine the privilege to permit the same communicative acts that would not support a claim for damages to provide the basis for injunctive relief, and that the privilege should not evaporate merely because there is a conveniently different label for pleading what is in substance an identical grievance arising from identical conduct as that protected by Civ. Code § 47(b). Permitting injunctive relief would upset the balance between a plaintiff's freedom to seek redress in the courts and a potential defendant's interest in being free from unjustified litigation [Rubin v. Green (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1187, 1203, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 828, 847 P.2d 1044] . The majority emphasized that their result was in part due to the precise circumstances involved, noting that apart from spawning another layer of litigation, allowing injunction relief in the derivative action would promote all the evils that accompany retaliatory suits based on litigation-related communications, such as disruption, intimidation, distractions of requiring counsel to defend the personal countersuit, and the dampening effect on presentation of the underlying claim [Rubin v. Green (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1187, 1198, 1203-1204, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 828, 847 P.2d 1044] .

The minority distinguished between adequate access to the judicial system and illegal access, and thought that allowing injunctive relief would not restrict legal access because it was quick and easy and because even if the underlying action had no merit, it would be allowed to proceed despite any injunction against the unlawful solicitation. The minority believed that allowing injunctive relief would not deprive anyone of access to the courts because there are enough competent, ethical attorneys that any person with any even remotely meritorious claim can find an attorney [Rubin v. Green (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1187, 1212, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 828, 847 P.2d 1044] . The minority also found it inappropriate that under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17204, district attorneys, city attorneys, members of the public, and everyone but the victim will be empowered to bring suit to have the unlawful solicitation enjoined [Rubin v. Green (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1187, 1204-1206, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 828, 847 P.2d 1044] . The minority did not agree that there was any apparent conflict between Civ. Code § 47(b), Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17203 and 17204, and Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6152 and 6153, but believed that the legislature, in enacting the Business and Professions Code sections after the privilege was already in place, intended injunctive relief to be available against unlawful solicitation [Rubin v. Green (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1187, 1207-1208, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 828, 847 P.2d 1044] .

Relying on a distinction drawn by the Supreme Court [see Rubin v. Green (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1187, 1202-1204, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 828, 847 P.2d 1044] , however, the court of appeal has subsequently held that the litigation privilege is not a defense in an unfair competition action brought against an attorney if the plaintiff was not a party to the earlier litigation in which the allegedly protected conduct occurred [American Prods. Co., Inc. v. Law Offices of Geller, Stewart & Foley, LLP (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1332, 1346, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 93 ; Kashian v. Harriman (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 892, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 576] . In one case, for example, the manufacturer of after-market automotive accessories, alleged to be illegal for use on California roads, brought suit for unfair competition and related claims against a law firm that had sent demand letters to retailers who sold the goods. The demand letters, and subsequent lawsuits that were brought against these retailers, were allegedly an attempt to force settlements from those retailers and create income for the law firm. When the manufacturer sued the law firm for its litigation-related tactics against the retailers, the court of appeal held that the litigation privilege did not protect the firm because the manufacturer wasnot a party to the underlying litigation and the Supreme Court's analysis described above was specifically limited to unfair competition actions brought by plaintiffs who were parties to the underlying litigation [American Prods. Co., Inc. v. Law Offices of Geller, Stewart & Foley, LLP (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1332, 1346, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 93] . The continued vitality of this holding is suspect, however, as the California Supreme Court, while not mentioning the case just described, has subsequently rejected a broad exception to the litigation privilege for parties who did not participate in the underlying litigation [Action Apartment Assn., Inc. v. City of Santa Monica (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 1232, 1248, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 398, 163 P.3d 89 ; see People ex rel. Gallegos v. The Pacific Lumber Co. (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 950, 961 & n.5, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 501].

[3] Political Election Campaigns

The practices of political election campaigns [see Ch. 242, Election Campaigns] are not subject to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. [O'Connor v. Superior Court (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 1013, 1014, 1019-1020, 223 Cal. Rptr. 357] .

[4] Title Insurance Ratemaking

The practices of title insurers [see Ch. 548, Title Insurance] are subject to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. [Quelimane Co. v. Stewart Title Guar. Co. (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 26, 43-46, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 709, 960 P.2d 513] , except with respect to ratemaking [see Walker v. Allstate Indem. Co. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 750, 754-760, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 132 (Insurance Code provides immunity to claims under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. challenging rates charged by insurance companies, because rates were approved through appropriate administrative procedures); cf. Donabedian v. Mercury Ins. Co. (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 968, 992-994, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 45 (because insurance commissioner approved only general use of "persistency" as rating factor, claim against insurer for improperly applying lack of prior insurance in determining rates for individual policyholders did not involve "ratemaking")].

[5] Securities Transactions

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. is inapplicable to securities transactions [Bowen v. Ziasun Techs., Inc. (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 777, 788-790, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 522] .

49-565 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 565.33

§ 565.33 Customers as Victims or Perpetrators of Unfair Competition

In broadly defining unfair competition without limiting its scope to acts and practices between business competitors, the legislature has extended protection to the customers, as well as the rivals, of individuals and entities that engage in prohibited acts and practices [see, e.g., Barquis v. Merchants Collection Assn. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 94, 109-113, 101 Cal. Rptr. 745, 496 P.2d 817 (collection agency's practice of filing actions in inconvenient forums to obtain default judgments); Consumers Union of United States, Inc. v. Fisher Dev., Inc. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1433, 1439, 257 Cal. Rptr. 151 ; Pines v. Tomson (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 370, 379-381, 206 Cal. Rptr. 866 (publisher's discrimination against advertisers on basis of religious belief)].

Moreover, customers can be sued for engaging in prohibited acts and practices [see, e.g., Allied Grape Growers v. Bronco Wine Co. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 432, 449-450, 249 Cal. Rptr. 872 (buyer refused delivery of part of crop and downgraded other part, thus undercutting price in violation of statute)].

§ 565.34 Remedies and Relief

[1] In General

Any person who engages, has engaged, or proposes to engage in unfair competition may be enjoined in any court of competent jurisdiction [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203; see also Madrid v. Perot Sys. Corp. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 440, 465, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 210 (injunction only appropriate if threat of misconduct's being repeated in future)]. The court may make such orders or judgments, including the appointment of a receiver [see Ch. 486, Receivers], as may be necessary to prevent the use or employment by a person of any practice that constitutes unfair competition under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200, or as may be necessary to restore to any person in interest any money or property, real or personal, that may have been acquired by means of such unfair competition [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203].

For a form of complaint to enjoin unfair competition and recover restitution under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq., see § 565.231. For a form stating a cause of action brought under that statute, based on the deceptive use of a confusingly similar name or mark, see Ch. 549, Trademarks and Trade Names .

[2] Restitution and Disgorgement

[a] In General

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203 expressly authorizes a court to take whatever action is necessary to restore to any person in interest any property acquired by means of unfair competition. There is little question that the broad range of remedies provided for in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203 includes restitution and disgorgement of profits [People v. Thomas Shelton Powers, M.D., Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 330, 339-341, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 34 (action by district attorney, not private litigant); see Bronco Wine Co. v. Frank A. Logoluso Farms (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 699, 704, 721, 262 Cal. Rptr. 899 (no challenge to private litigant's recovery of so-called restitutionary damages pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203)]. However, in exercising its discretion to fashion an appropriate equitable remedy, the court may also consider any equitable defenses pleaded by the defendant [Cortez v. Purolator Air Filtration Prods. Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 163, 179-180, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 518, 999 P.2d 706] .

Restitution may be ordered even without the issuance of an injunction. The Supreme Court has rejected the contention that restitution is available only when ancillary to an injunction [ABC Int'l Traders, Inc. v. Matsushita Elec. Corp. (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1247, 1268-1271, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 112, 931 P.2d 290] .

Although restitution and disgorgement of profits are appropriate to prevent a defendant from profiting from unfair competition, disgorgement into a fluid recovery fund is authorized only in a class action suit and may not be used in a representative action that has not been certified as a class action [Kraus v. Trinity Mgmt. Servs., Inc. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 116, 137, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 485, 999 P.2d 718 ; see also Corbett v. Superior Court (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 649, 654-655, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 46 (UCLaction may be prosecuted as class action, and class remedy may include disgorgement into fluid recovery fund)]. Moreover, even in a class action, disgorgement into a fluid recovery fund is limited to disgorgementof restitutionary funds and does not extend to amounts that are nonrestitutionary in nature [Feitelberg v. Credit Suisse First Boston, LLC (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 997, 1016-1020, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 592 ; Madrid v. Perot Sys. Corp. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 440, 460, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 210] .

A defendant cannot be ordered to disgorge profits to an individual plaintiff if those profits were not taken from the plaintiff or if the plaintiff does not otherwise have an ownership interest in those profits, because disgorgement of profits in the absence of an ownership interest by the plaintiff goes beyond the restitution that is authorized by the statute [Korea Supply Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1134, 1144-1148, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29, 63 P.3d 937 ; see also Reid v. Google, Inc. (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 1342, 1351, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 744 (plaintiff unable to recover stock options that had not vested at time of actionable conduct as restitution)]. However, a plaintiff who purchases a product because of false or misleading advertisements or product packaging statements is entitled to recover from the product manufacturer as restitution the revenue obtained from the sale of the product, even if the plaintiff purchased the product from a retailer rather than directly from the manufacturer. A plaintiff in such cases is effectively seeking the return of money in which plaintiff had an interest prior to the purchase [Shersher v. Superior Court (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 1491, 1494, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 634] .

Under the appropriate circumstances, a defendant may be ordered to pay restitution even if plaintiff did not pay the money directly to that defendant, as for example, when the money was paid to an agent for the defendant or otherwise was paid to an enterprise of which defendant was an integral part and defendant directly benefited financially from the payments [Troyk v. Farmers Group, Inc. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 1305, 1340-1342, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 589] .

[b] Award to Nonparties in Class Action

An action under the unfair competition statute may be prosecuted as a class action [Corbett v. Superior Court (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 649, 654-655, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 46] . However, in a case that involved a challenge to a $50 termination fee that an investment firm assessed on individual retirement accounts, the court held that it was error to certify the action as a class action without any showing that class treatment was demonstrably superior to an individual, representative action [Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. v. Superior Court (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 758, 772-773, 259 Cal. Rptr. 789] . The court in another case reversed a restitution award to 27 nonparty wine-grape growers on several grounds: each grower's damages required complicated proof of such things as sugar content, tonnages delivered, and delivery dates; serious fundamental due process questions were raised; and administrative proceedings available through the Department of Agriculture provided the growers with an inexpensive and effective remedy [Bronco Wine Co. v. Frank A. Logoluso Farms (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 699, 717-721, 262 Cal. Rptr. 899] . Similarly, a defendant cannot be ordered to disgorge profits to an individual plaintiff if those profits were not taken from the plaintiff or if the plaintiff does not otherwise have an ownership interest in those profits, because disgorgement of profits in the absence of an ownership interest by the plaintiff goes beyond the restitution that is authorized by the statute [Korea Supply Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1134, 1144-1148, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29, 63 P.3d 937] .

[3] Damages

[a] No Private Recovery

A private plaintiff cannot recover damages under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203 [Heller v. Norcal Mut. Ins. Co. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 30, 45, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 200, 876 P.2d 999 ; Bank of W. v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1254, 1266, 1272-1273 & n.7 (disgorgement of wrongfully obtained money does not constitute damages covered by insurance policy), disapproving United Farm Workers of Am. v. Superior Court (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 334, 120 Cal. Rptr. 904 ; Industrial Indem. Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1093, 1096-1097, 257 Cal. Rptr. 655 ; see E.W. French & Sons, Inc. v. General Portland Inc. (9th Cir. 1989) 885 F.2d 1392, 1401-1402 ; Little Oil Co., Inc. v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (9th Cir. 1988) 852 F.2d 441, 445 (determining pendent state claims)]. The Supreme Court has held that the substantially similar provision of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17535 [see Ch. 14, Advertising] does not support the award of compensatory damages to private individuals, but instead limits their relief to equitable remedies--namely, injunction and restitution [Bank of W. v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1254, 1272-1273, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 538, 833 P.2d 545 ; Fletcher v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 442, 452, 153 Cal. Rptr. 28, 591 P.2d 51 ; Chern v. Bank of Am. (1976) 15 Cal. 3d 866, 875, 127 Cal. Rptr. 110, 544 P.2d 1310] .

Because a plaintiff is not entitled to damages under the statute, the proper measure of restitution is the amount received by the defendant as a result of the improper conduct, even if the amount of monetary damage suffered by the plaintiff as a consequence of the conduct is greater [Inline, Inc. v. Apace Moving Sys., Inc. (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 895, 903-904, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 216] .

[b] In-Lieu Recovery

Although damages are not recoverable under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203, a remedy that could constitute "damages" if recovered on a different cause of action may still be available under the unfair competition statute. For example, under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203, a defendant may be compelled to pay back wages that were unlawfully withheld from employees, even though back wages may constitute damages in another action [Cortez v. Purolator Air Filtration Prods. Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 163, 176-178, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 518, 999 P.2d 706] . Restitution under the unfair competition lawis not limited to the return of money or property that was once in possession of the person entitled to restitution; it may include wages that were earned in exchange for labor given, because the right to the wages had already vested in the plaintiff [Cortez v. Purolator Air Filtration Prods. Co. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 163, 178, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 518, 999 P.2d 706 ; see also Korea Supply Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1134, 1149, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29, 63 P.3d 937] .

However, while wages may be recovered from the actual employer, wages may notbe recovered as restitution from the employer's owners, officers, or managers, unless the labor was performed for such persons personally or those persons appropriated funds from the employer that would otherwise have been used to pay the unpaid wages [Bradstreet v. Wong (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 1440, 1460-1461, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 253]. In addition, a penalty imposed on an employer under Lab. Code § 203 for failure to pay earned wages on time are not wages for labor provided and may not be recovered as restitution under the unfair competition statute [Pineda v. Bank of America, N.A. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 388, 393-394, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 864 , review granted, depublished, Pineda v. Bank of America, N.A. (2009) 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 536, 207 P.3d 1, 2009 Cal. LEXIS 4599].

[4] Cumulative Remedies

The remedies of the unfair competition law are cumulative to each other and to the remedies or penalties available under all other state laws [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17205]. Thus, counsel might consider seeking damages under some other law and injunctive relief under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203. For instance, a growers cooperative, faced with a buyer's refusal to take delivery of part of the crop and the buyer's downgrading of the portions it did accept, recovered damages under Com. Code § 2706, and an injunction under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203 was not barred by the award of damages, especially because the buyer had perpetrated the same unfair practice on others [see Allied Grape Growers v. Bronco

Wine Co. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 432, 452-453, 249 Cal. Rptr. 872] .

[5] Attorney's Fees

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203 does not authorize an award of attorney's fees to a successful plaintiff. Attorney's fees may not be recovered under this statute even if the violation of another statute serves as a predicate for the unfair competition action and that underlying statute has a provision for the recovery of attorney's fees, at least when the plaintiff brings the action solely under the unfair competition statute rather than directly under the underlying statute [Davis v. Ford Motor Credit Co. LLC (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 581, 601, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 697] .

However, if a provision in a contract that provides for attorney's fees is challenged in an action that is in fact one to enforce or avoid enforcement of that particular contract, attorney's fees may be awarded to the prevailing party in accordance with Civ. Code § 1717 [Shadoan v. World Sav. & Loan Assn. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 97, 107-109, 268 Cal. Rptr. 207 (fees to successful defendant, however, were apportioned because plaintiffs sued in individual capacity for restitution and in representative capacity to enjoin application of challenged provision in other contracts; plaintiffs could not be charged with attorney's fees relating to injunction or to issues pursued in representative capacity)].

[6] Subsequent Administrative Actions

The filing of a civil action under the unfair competition law does not preclude the subsequent commencement, by an administrative agency, of an administrative proceeding based on the same facts. There is no fundamental unfairness because the statutory remedies under the unfair competition law are cumulative, and the relief sought in an administrative proceeding is unavailable in a civil action under the unfair competition law [Setliff Bros. Serv. v. Bureau of Auto. Repair (1997) 53 Cal App. 4th 1491, 1495-1496, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25] .

49-565 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 565.35

§ 565.35 Action for Relief

[1] Standing to Sue

A private person may bring an action under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. only if the person has suffered injury in fact and has lost money or property as a result of unfair competition [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17204]; R & B Auto Ctr., Inc. v. Farmers Group, Inc. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 327, 360, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 426 (plaintiff's payment of insurance premiums for liability coverage not provided, despite contrary representations, and payment on claim against plaintiff due to lack of coverage, constituted loss sufficient to confer standing). A private plaintiff may file a representative action on behalf of others only if the plaintiff meets this actual injury requirement and meets the requirements for class actions under Code Civ. Proc. § 382 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203; Arias v. Superior Court (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 969, 980, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 588, 209 P.3d 923]. However, so long as a class is otherwise properly certified, only the named class representatives must specifically show standing to bring the action and unnamed class members need not do so [In re Tobacco II Cases (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 298, 321, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 559, 207 P.3d 20] .

Only a person who meets the requirements for standing may bring an action under the unfair competition statute. Thus, an injured party who would have standing cannot assign the right to sue under the unfair competition statute to another party who does not otherwise meet the requirements for standing to sue [Amalgamated Transit Union, Local 1756, AFL-CIO v. Superior Court (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 993, 1002, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 605, 209 P.3d 937]. Moreover, an association, such as a labor union, does not have standing to sue on behalf of its individual members when the association itself cannot meet the requirements for standing [Amalgamated Transit Union, Local 1756, AFL-CIO v. Superior Court (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 993, 1003-1004, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 605, 209 P.3d 937]. A private plaintiff must also show a causal connection between the alleged wrongful conduct and the actual injury sustained [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17204; Hall v. Time Inc. (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 847, 855, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 466 ; Daro v. Superior Court (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1079, 1098, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 716] . For example, if the unfair competition claim is based on fraud stemming from alleged false advertising and misrepresentations made to consumers, the plaintiff must plead and prove actual reliance to satisfy the standing requirement [In re Tobacco II Cases (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 298, 328, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 559, 207 P.3d 20 ; see, e.g., Princess Cruise Lines, Ltd. v. Superior Court (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 36, 43-44, 101

Cal. Rptr. 3d 323 (plaintiff's own discovery responses demonstrated that she did not rely on any representations made by defendant cruise line when electing to purchase shore excursions as part of cruise package)]. However, while a plaintiff in those circumstances must allege that the defendant's misrepresentations were an immediate cause of the injury, the plaintiff need not show that those misrepresentations were the sole or even decisive cause. Moreover, the plaintiff is not required to necessarily plead and prove individualized reliance on specific misrepresentations or false statements when those misrepresentations and false statements were part of an extensive and long-term advertising campaign. Finally, an allegation of reliance is not defeated merely because there was alternative information available to the plaintiff that might have countered the defendant's alleged misrepresentations [In re Tobacco II Cases (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 298, 328, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 559, 207 P.3d 20] .

If the cause of action is based on an unlawful business practice, plaintiff cannot predicate standing to sue on an injury caused by lawful conduct of the defendant that is somehow connected to defendant's unlawful conduct, if that unlawful conduct does not itself cause actionable injury to plaintiff [Daro v. Superior Court (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1079, 1099, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 716] .

Prior to the passage of Proposition 64 in 2004, the standing requirements for a private plaintiff were much more liberal, and a private person or entity could sue for that person's or entity's interest, the interest of its members, or the interest of the general public [see former Bus. & Prof. Code § 17204]. Under that standard, a private person or entity could sue on behalf of the general public without having suffered actual injury [see Stop Youth Addiction, Inc. v. Lucky Stores, Inc. (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 553, 561, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 731, 950 P.2d 1086] .

A plaintiff may not effectively avoid the changes made by Proposition 64 by claiming as "injury in fact" the expenses incurred in pursuing litigation against the defendant. Similarly, an individual consumer cannot create the requisite injury by purchasing a defendant's product if the purchase was made solely to facilitate a subsequent lawsuit [Buckland v. Threshold Enterprises, Ltd. (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 798, 815-816, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 543] . Moreover, a plaintiff who purchases a product merely to facilitate future litigation cannot establish that he or she lost money or property "as a result of the unfair competition" [Buckland v. Threshold Enterprises, Ltd. (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 798, 818, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 543] . In addition, alleged damage to the goodwill of a business, for which no restitution could be recovered under the unfair competition statute, is not a loss of "money or property" sufficient to confer standing to sue [Citizens of Humanity, LLC v. Costco Wholesale Corp. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 1, 22, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 455]. Similarly, a consumer cannot show standing by arguing that he or she would not have purchased the defendant's product had defendant not advertised the product falsely, at least when the product purchased is worth the purchase price, not defective, and priced comparably to competing products [see, e.g., Kwikset Corp. v. Superior Court (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 645, 654-655, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 123 , review granted, depublished, Kwikset Corporation v. Superior Court (2009) 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 271, 211 P.3d 1060, 2009 Cal. LEXIS 6403 (consumers had no standing to sue padlock manufacturer for falsely representing that locks were made in America, as no restitution would be available for purchases of non-defective locks)].

The California Supreme Court has held that the changes to the requirements for standing enacted by Proposition 64 apply to actions that were pending when Proposition 64 was passed [Californians for Disability Rights v. Mervyn's, LLC (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 223, 232-233, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 57, 138 P.3d 207] . However, the ordinary rules governing the amendment of complaints and their relation back to the original complaint apply to these pending lawsuits [Branick v. Downey Savings & Loan Assn. (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 235, 239, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 66, 138 P.3d 214] . Therefore, a complaint brought by a plaintiff who no longer has standing under Proposition 64 may be amended to name a new plaintiff who does meet the standing requirements, so long as the proposed new plaintiff is not stating facts that give rise to a wholly distinct and different cause of action against the defendant [Branick v. Downey Savings & Loan Assn. (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 235, 243, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 66, 138 P.3d 214 ; see, e.g., Foundation For Taxpayer & Consumer Rights v. Nextel Commc'ns, Inc. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 131, 136, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 836 (abuse of discretion for trial court to refuse to allow amendment)]. For purposes of meeting the applicable statute of limitations, any amendment would relate back to the original complaint if the amended complaint rests on the same general set of facts, involves the same injury, and refers to the same instrumentality as the original complaint [Branick v. Downey Savings & Loan Assn. (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 235, 244, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 66, 138 P.3d 214] .

A plaintiff who has been given an opportunity to amend but cannot meet the requirements for standing, and who has not identified a substitute plaintiff who does meet the requirements for standing, may not have a right to precertification discovery in an attempt to locate an appropriate representative to continue the original plaintiff's action as a class action [see, e.g., Cryoport Systems v. CNA Ins. Companies (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 627, 633-634, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 358] . However, when a class action is brought, a plaintiff who is not a class member or is otherwise unqualified to serve as a class representative may, in appropriate cases, move for precertification discovery for the purposes of identifying a proper class representative [Safeco Ins. Co. of America v. Superior Court (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 814, 828, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 814] . The absence of a reasonable, good-faith belief that the plaintiff had standing under the law in effect at the time the plaintiff was first named as a plaintiff will ordinarily compel denial of a motion for precertification discovery. In other circumstances, however, a trial court should exercise its sound discretion to determine whether the potential for abuse in allowing precertification discovery outweighs the rights of the parties in the particular circumstances of the case [Safeco Ins. Co. of America v. Superior Court (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 814, 833, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 814] .

If a plaintiff suffered actual injury sufficient to meet the requirements for standing under Proposition 64, but prior to the passage of Proposition 64 entered into a settlement agreement under which plaintiff released all claims for that injury at least partly in exchange for the right to pursue a claim for injunctive relief, the general rule applying the changes made by Proposition 64 to actions pending at the time of its passage in November 2004 does not bar such a plaintiff from prosecuting the action for injunctive relief [Zermeno v. Precis, Inc. (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 773, 780, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 360] .

Collateral estoppel may not bar an unfair competition action seeking class certification under California law just because a court in a previous action alleging the same actionable conduct denied class certification, if the class certification in the previous action was denied because the proposed class included all plaintiffs eligible to bring suit under the more liberal pre-Proposition 64 standing requirements and class certification in the subsequent action is limited to only those plaintiffs who can meet the more stringent standing requirements imposed by Proposition 64 [Johnson v. GlaxoSmithKline, Inc. (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1497, 1514-1515, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 607].

When certifying a plaintiff class under the current requirements imposed by Proposition 64, even though only the named plaintiff must meet the requirements to establish standing, the class certification process still necessarily includes an inquiry into whether the material questions of law or fact common to the members of the class are substantially similar and predominate over questions affecting the individual class members [Steroid Hormone Product Cases (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 145, 158, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 329 ; see also McAdams v. Monier, Inc. (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 174, 190-191, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 704] . However, class certification should not be denied on the grounds that factual issues surrounding actual injury and causation are not substantially similar among the unnamed class members if those inquiries are not necessary to establishing a right to the remedy sought. In one case, for example, a plaintiff sought class certification in a lawsuit seeking the disgorgement of money received by a defendant by selling over-the-counter nutritional supplements that contained steroids that were illegal to sell or possess without a prescription. The trial court denied class certification because of individualized factual inquiries for each class member as to whether the illegality of the product was material to the decision to purchase. The court of appeal reversed, holding that class certification was improperly denied because establishing a right to restitution under the facts required only proof that the defendant's conduct in selling the product was unlawful and evidence of how much money the defendant received through the sale of the unlawful product [Steroid Hormone Product Cases (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 145, 154-155, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 329] .

As individualized proof of reliance and injury are not generally required for nonrepresentative class members when a class action seeks restitution for alleged misrepresentations in extensive, long-term advertising campaigns, as noted above, issues concerning reliance by and injury to unnamed class members will not foreclose a class action in that context [McAdams v. Monier, Inc. (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 174, 192, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 704] . However, in advertising campaigns of shorter duration, for example a campaign lasting only six months, evidence that many or most of the proposed class members were never actually exposed to alleged misrepresentations can defeat an attempt to certify a class by showing that there was no class-wide injury [Pfizer Inc. v. Superior Court (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 622, 631-633, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 795] .

[2] Suit by Public Attorney

An action for any relief under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203 may also be prosecuted in the name of the people of California by the Attorney General, by any district attorney, by any county counsel authorized by agreement of the district attorney in actions involving violation of a county ordinance, by a city attorney of a city having a population in excess of 750,000, by a city attorney in any city and county, or by a city prosecutor in any city or county having a full-time city prosecutor who has the consent of the either on his or her own complaint or on that of any board, officer, person, corporation, or association [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17204]. As the remedies and penalties provided by the unfair competition statute are cumulative to each other and to remedies and penalties available under all other laws of California, a public prosecutor's authority to pursue a remedy under the unfair competition statute is curtailed only as expressly provided by some other law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17205; see, e.g., Blue Cross of California, Inc. v. Superior Court (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 1237, 1249-1255, -- Cal. Rptr. 3d -- (city prosecutor was not barred from pursuing unfair competition claims against health care service plan for violations of Knox-Keene Health Care Service Plan Act, Health & Safety Code § 1340 et seq.)].

A city attorney or other public official is not limited to seeking injunctive relief and civil penalties, but may obtain restitution and disgorgement of illicit profits [see People v. Thomas Shelton Powers, M.D., Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 330, 339, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 34] .

Because an unfair competition action brought by a prosecutor is a law enforcement action primarily for the benefit of the public, res judicata principles do not prevent a person who has been defrauded from seeking restitution in a separate unfair competition suit brought subsequent to the action brought by the public prosecutor, at least if the private plaintiff did not receive restitution from the earlier action brought by the prosecutor [Payne v. National Collection Sys., Inc. (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 1037, 1047, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 260] .

[3] Defendants

[a] Nonresidents

Nonresident as well as resident businesses can be held to account for wrongful business conduct affecting California employers and employees. Thus, a Maryland corporation's use of covenants not to compete in its employment agreements with employees who were not California residents, to prevent them from obtaining employment in California, violated the unfair competition law [Application Group, Inc. v. Hunter Group, Inc. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 881, 908, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73] . However, in that case, an injury was produced in California to California employers. To meet due process concerns, the California unfair competition law may not be applied to defendants whose headquarters and principal places of operation are outside California, if the injuries are suffered by non-California residents and are caused by conduct occurring outside California [Norwest Mortgage, Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 214, 222-227, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 18 (reversing nationwide class certification)].

[b] Government Entity Immunity

Government entities do not meet the definition of "person" applicable to statutory unfair competition actions and thus are not subject to suit brought under the statutory provisions [California Med. Assn. v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 542, 551, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 194 ; Janis v. California State Lottery Comm'n (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 824, 831, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 549 ; see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17201, 17506]. However, the State Compensation Insurance Fund, although a type of state entity, is statutorily excepted from most protections provided to government entities and may be liable under the unfair competition statute [Notrica v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 911, 939-944, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 89] . Similarly, a charter school run by a nongovernmental entity is subject to suit under the unfair competition statute, even if the charter school is subject to some degree of oversight by a public school district [Wells v. One2One Learning Foundation (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 1164].

[4] Time for Bringing Action

An action based on unfair competition must be commenced within four years after the cause of action accrued [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17208; see Mangini v. Aerojet-Gen. Corp. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1125, 1156, 281 Cal. Rptr. 827 (continuing nuisance isdifferent from "continuing misconduct"; unfair competition suit required to be commenced within four years after end of lease term during which defendant failed to remove hazardous waste)]. Court of appeal opinions are in disagreement as to whether a delayed discovery rule, under which the limitations period does not begin to run until a reasonable person would have discovered the factual basis for the claim, may be applied in an unfair competition action [compare Broberg v. The Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 912, 920-921, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 225 (discovery rule applied to complaint alleging deceptive insurance marketing and sales practices) with Snapp & Associates Ins. Services, Inc. v. Robertson (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 884, 891, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 331 (delayed discovery rule held inapplicable)].

[5] Notification Requirement

If a cause of action under the unfair competition law is alleged or the application or construction of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. is in issue in any proceeding in the Supreme Court, a court of appeal, or the appellate department of a superior court, the person who commenced the proceeding must serve notice of it. The notice, plus a copy of the brief or petition and brief, must be served on the Attorney General (directed to the attention of the Consumer Law Section) and on the district attorney of the county in which the lower court action or proceeding was originally filed. The notice, brief, and petition, if any, must be served within three days aftercommencement of the appellate proceeding, provided that the time may be extended by the chief justice or presiding judge or justice for good cause shown. No judgment or relief, temporary or permanent, can be granted until proof of service of this notice is filed with the court [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17209]. In addition, at the request of the Attorney General or a district attorney, any person who has filed any other document with the court, including all or a portion of the appellate record, must provide a copy of that document without charge to the Attorney General or district attorney within five days after the request [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17209].

The phrase "within three days after commencement of the appellate proceeding" in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17209 has been held by one court of appeal to mean that the Attorney General and local district attorney must be served with the appellant's opening brief within three days after its being filed, because it is not until this point that the issues on appeal are specifically set forth and a determination may be made whether to file an amicus curiae brief [Californians for Population Stabilization v. Hewlett-Packard Co. (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 273, 284-285, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 621 (rejecting contention that statute establishes jurisdictional requirement for all appellate actions involving unfair competition)].

[6] No Right to Jury Trial

There is no right to a jury trial in an action that is brought solely under the unfair competition statute, even if a jury trial would be available in an action to enforce directly a statute the violation of which forms the basis for the unfair competition action [Hodge v. Superior Court (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 278, 284, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 519] . An action brought under the unfair competition statute is a separate cause of action providing equitable, rather than legal, remedies. As such, no right to a jury trial exists [Hodge v. Superior Court (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 278, 284, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 519 ; see § 565.34]. This does not change merely because the defendant asserts an affirmative defense requiring resolution of disputed factual issues related to statutory or contractual duties that are otherwise legal in nature [Hodge v. Superior Court (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 278, 285-287, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 519] .

49-565 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 565.36

§ 565.36 Suit for Civil Penalty

[1] In General

Any person who engages, has engaged, or proposes to engage in unfair competition is liable for a civil penalty not to exceed $2,500 for each violation. The penalty is assessed and recovered in a civil action brought in the name of the people of California by the Attorney General, by any district attorney, by any county counsel authorized by agreement with the district attorney in actions involving violation of a county ordinance, by a city attorney of a city with a population exceeding 750,000, by a city attorney in any city and county, and, with the consent of the district attorney, by a city prosecutor in any city having a full time city prosecutor [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206(a); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206(c)-(f) (distribution of recovered penalty among public treasurers); People v. Dollar Rent-A-Car Sys., Inc. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 119, 132, 259 Cal. Rptr. 191 ($100,000 penalty justified by evidence of 500,000 misleading and deceptive contracts over four-year period and 1,500 false repair invoices)].

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206(a) has been interpreted to require imposition of a civil penalty for any act that constitutes unfair competition, although the court has discretion to set the amount imposed after considering mitigating and aggravating factors [People v. Custom Craft Carpets, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 676, 686, 206 Cal. Rptr. 12 (false advertising under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq.); People v. National Ass'n of Realtors (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 578, 584-588, 202 Cal. Rptr. 243 (violation of Cartwright Act, Bus. & Prof. Code § 16700 et seq.)].

[2] Determination of Penalty

In assessing a civil penalty, a court is directed to consider any and all of the following factors [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206(b); see generally Stats. 1992, ch. 430, § 6 (1992 amendment not intended to change decisional law regarding methods of determining number of violations on which award of civil penalties is based)]:

- The nature and seriousness of the misconduct;
- The number of violations;

- The persistence of the misconduct;
- The length of time over which the misconduct occurred;
- The willfulness of the defendant's misconduct; and
- The defendant's assets, liabilities, and net worth.

A court is authorized to impose a civil penalty based on any of these factors, or any combination of these factors, but it is up to the parties to present evidence of the factor each party wants to be considered. For example, the prosecuting party is not required to present evidence of a defendant's financial condition, and if neither the prosecuting party nor the defendant present that evidence, a court may impose a civil penalty without it [People v. First Fed. Credit Corp. (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 721, 728-729, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 542] .

A finding that the defendant's conduct was "reprehensible" is not required to impose a civil penalty [People ex rel. Bill Lockyer v. Fremont Life Ins. Co. (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 508, 524-527, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 463] .

[3] Penalty for Violation of Injunction

Any person who intentionally violates any injunction prohibiting unfair competition, which was issued under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203, is liable for a civil penalty not to exceed $6,000 for each violation. If the conduct constituting the violation is of a continuing nature, each day of the conduct is a separate and distinct violation. In determining the amount of the civil penalty, the court must consider all relevant circumstances, including [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17207(a)]:

- The extent of the harm caused by the conduct in question;
- The nature and persistence of this conduct;
- The length of time over which the conduct has occurred;
- The assets, liabilities, and net worth of the defendant, whether corporate or individual; and
- Any corrective action taken by the defendant.

This penalty must be assessed and recovered in a civil action brought in the name of the people of California by the Attorney General, by any district attorney, or by any city attorney [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17207(b); see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 17207(c),(d) (distribution of recovered penalty among public treasurers)].

[4] Penalty for Violation Against Senior Citizen or Disabled Person

[a] In General

In addition to any liability for a civil penalty pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206, any person who violates Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. by perpetrating an act or acts of unfair competition against one or more senior citizens or disabled persons is liable for a civil penalty not to exceed $2,500 for each violation, which may be assessed and recovered in a civil action as prescribed in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206.1]. Civ. Code § 3345(b) provides that this penalty, or any other discretionary civil penalty for unfair or deceptive acts or practices or unfair methods of competition perpetrated against senior citizens or disabled persons, may be trebled if one or more affirmative findings are made. The factors with respect to which an affirmative finding or findings are required under Civ. Code § 3345(b) are the same as those required to be considered by the trier of fact under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206.1(c) [see Civ. Code § 3345(b); see also § 565.36[4][c]].

For a form of allegations relating to the factors to be considered under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206.1, see Ch. 504, Sales: Consumers Legal Remedies Act . For discussion and forms regarding findings and requests for findings generally, see Ch. 529, Statement of Decision .

[b] Senior Citizen and Disabled Person Defined

As used in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206.1, a senior citizen is a person who is 65 years of age or older [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206.1(b)(1)].

As used in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206.1, a disabled person is any person who has a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more major life activities [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206.1(b)(2)]. Major life activities are functions such as caring for one's self, performing manual tasks, walking, seeing, hearing, speaking, breathing, learning, and working [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206.1(b)(2)(B)]. Physical or mental impairment means any of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206.1(b)(2)(A)]:

- Any physiological disorder or condition, cosmetic disfigurement, or anatomical loss substantially affecting one or more of the following body systems: neurological; musculoskeletal; special sense organs; respiratory, including speech organs; cardiovascular; reproductive; digestive; genitourinary; hemic and lymphatic; skin; or endocrine; and

- Any mental or psychological disorder, such as mental retardation, organic brain syndrome, emotional or mental illness, and specific learning disabilities.

The term "physical or mental impairment" includes, but is not limited to, such diseases and conditions as orthopedic, vision, speech, or hearing impairment, cerebral palsy, epilepsy, muscular dystrophy, multiple sclerosis, cancer, heart disease, diabetes, mental retardation, and emotional illness [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206.1(b)(2)(A)].

[c] Factors Considered by Court for Imposition of Penalty

In determining whether to impose a civil penalty pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206.1(a), the trier of fact must consider, in addition to other appropriate factors, the extent to which any or all of the following factors are present [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206.1(c)]:

- The defendant knew or should have known that his or her conduct was directed to one or more senior citizens or disabled persons.

- The defendant's conduct caused one or more senior citizens or disabled persons to suffer: loss or encumbrance of a primary residence, principal employment, or source of income; substantial loss of property set aside for retirement, or for personal or family care and maintenance; or substantial loss of payments received under pension or retirement plan or a government benefits program, or assets essential to the health or welfare of the senior citizen or disabled person.

- One or more senior citizens or disabled persons are substantially more vulnerable than other members of the public to the defendant's conduct because of age, poor health or infirmity, impaired understanding, restricted mobility, or disability, and actually suffered substantial physical, emotional, or economic damages resulting from the defendant's conduct.

An affirmative finding on one or more of these issues is required to treble the penalty pursuant to Civ. Code § 3345(b) [Civ. Code § 3345(b)].

[d] Restitution

Any court of competent jurisdiction hearing an action pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206.1 may make such orders and judgments as may be necessary to restore to any senior citizen or disabled person any money or property, real or personal, that may have been acquired by means of a violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 1720 et seq. [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206.1(d)]. Restitution ordered pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206.1(d) must be given priority over recovery of any civil penalty designated by the court as imposed pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206(a). If the court determines that full restitution cannot be made to the senior citizens or disabled persons, either at the time of judgment or by a future date determined by the court, then restitution under Bus.& Prof. Code § 17206.1(d) must be made on a pro rata basis depending on the amount of the loss [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206.1(d)].

49-565 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 565.37

§ 565.37 Patent and Copyright Cases

[1] Federal Preemption Generally

The U.S. Supreme Court has held that if anything is within the purview of federal patent or copyright law, but is not protected by that law, the Supremacy Clause [see U.S. Const. art. VI] precludes the states from applying unfair competition law to prohibit copying or to award damages for copying [see Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. Stiffel Co. (1964) 376 U.S. 225, 231-233, 84 S. Ct. 784, 11 L. Ed. 2d 661 ; Compco Corp. v. Day-Brite Lighting, Inc. (1964) 376 U.S. 234, 237-239, 84 S. Ct. 779, 11 L. Ed. 2d 669] . A state law that substantially interferes with the enjoyment of an unpatented utilitarian or design concept that has been freely disclosed by its author to the public at large impermissibly contravenes the ultimate goal of public disclosure and use that is the centerpiece of federal patent policy [Bonito Boats v. Thunder Craft Boats (1989) 489 U.S. 141, 156-157, 109 S. Ct. 971, 103 L. Ed. 2d 118] . Such state statutes threaten the national uniformity promoted by the patent law and raise the specter of state-created monopolies in a host of useful shapes and processes for which patent protection has been denied or is otherwise unobtainable [Bonito Boats v. Thunder Craft Boats (1989) 489 U.S. 141, 167, 109 S. Ct. 971, 103 L. Ed. 2d 118] .

A federal decision to forgo regulation in a given area may imply an authoritative federal decision that the area is best left unregulated, and in that event would have as much preemptive force as a decision to regulate [Bonito Boats v. Thunder Craft Boats (1989) 489 U.S. 141, 151-152, 109 S. Ct. 971, 103 L. Ed. 2d 118] . To determine whether federal patent or copyright law preempts a state-law unfair competition claim, the court must analyze whether the state-law claim contains an element not shared by the federal law--that is, an extra element that changes the nature of the action so that it is qualitatively different from a copyright or patent infringement claim. If copying the plaintiff's product in itself infringes the state-created right, then the state-created right is preempted [Summit Mach. Tool Mfg. v. Victor CNC Sys. (9th Cir. 1993) 7 F.3d 1434, 1439-1440, 1442] .

[2] Limited State Regulation Allowed

The holdings in Bonito Boats, Sears, and Compco [see § 565.37[1]] do not preclude all state restriction of unfair competition and trade secrets. Indeed, Section 43(a) of the Lanham Act [15 U.S.C.S. § 1125(a)], discussed in Ch. 549, Trademarks and Trade Names , is an affirmative indication from Congress that both the law of unfair competition and the law of trade secret protection are consistent with the balance struck by the patent laws [Bonito Boats v. Thunder Craft Boats (1989) 489 U.S. 141, 166, 109 S. Ct. 971, 103 L. Ed. 2d 118] .

The states remain free to place limited regulations on the circumstances in which unpatentable designs are used to prevent consumer confusion as to source and to prohibit the tortious appropriation of private information [Bonito Boats v. Thunder Craft Boats (1989) 489 U.S. 141, 165-166, 109 S. Ct. 971, 103 L. Ed. 2d 118] . The law of unfair competition has its roots in the common law tort of deceit: its general concern is with protecting consumers from confusion as to source. The common law of unfair competition is limited, however, to protection against copying nonfunctional aspects of consumer products that have acquired secondary meaning so that they operate as a designation of source [Bonito Boats v. Thunder Craft Boats (1989) 489 U.S. 141, 157, 158, 109 S. Ct. 971, 103 L. Ed. 2d 118] . Judge Learned Hand phrased the distinction as follows: "[T]he plaintiff has the right not to lose [his or her] customers through false representations that those are [the plaintiff's] wares which in fact are not, but [the plaintiff] may not monopolize any design or pattern, however trifling. The defendant, on the other hand, may copy [the] plaintiff's goods slavishly down to the minutest detail: but [the defendant] may not represent [himself or herself] as the plaintiff in their sale" [Crescent Tool Co. v. Kilborn & Bishop Co. (2d Cir. 1917) 247 F. 299, 301] .

State unfair competition law may still require that a person take precautionary steps, such as labeling, to prevent customers from being misled as to the source of goods or services, and the state may enforce that requirement through injunctions and awards of damages [Tomlin v. Walt Disney Prods. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 226, 234-235, 96 Cal. Rptr. 118 ; see Compco Corp. v. Day-Brite Lighting, Inc. (1964) 376 U.S. 234, 238, 84 S. Ct. 779, 11 L. Ed. 2d 669 ; Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. Stiffel Co. (1964) 376 U.S. 225, 232, 84 S. Ct. 784, 11 L. Ed. 2d 661] . Thus, a state court may enjoin a defendant to take adequate precautions to avoid public confusion [see Allied Artists Pictures Corp. v. Friedman (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 127, 133-137, 137 Cal. Rptr. 94 ; see also Sammons & Sons v. Ladd-Fab, Inc. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 306, 313, 187 Cal. Rptr. 874 (complaint insufficient because allegations indicated adequate precaution to identify source of goods); Capitol Records, Inc. v. Erickson (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 526, 537, 82 Cal. Rptr. 798 (preliminary injunction upheld because there was question of fact concerning adequacy of precautions taken by defendant)]. Damages may be imposed if a defendant imitates a name or design with the intent to deceive the public by palming off copies of goods as original or otherwise deliberately creating a likelihood of confusion of source [see Gordon v. Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 31, 39-40, 74 Cal. Rptr. 499 ; see also Summit Mach. Tool Mfg. v. Victor CNC Sys. (9th Cir. 1993) 7 F.3d 1434, 1441 (state unfair competition laws that seek to prevent reverse palming off are not preempted by federal law)].

3 Unfair Practices Act: Bus. & Prof. Code § 17000

49-565 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 565.50

§ 565.50 Purposes of Act

The Unfair Practices Act (Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17000-17101) prohibits specified practices, which the legislature has determined to be unfair, in order to safeguard against monopolies and to foster and encourage competition [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17001; Uneedus v. California Shoppers, Inc. (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 932, 940-941, 150 Cal. Rptr. 596] . Its provisions must be liberally construed toward that end [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17002].

The Act is directed at ongoing wrongful business conduct. The "practice" requirement envisions something more than a single transaction; it contemplates a pattern of conduct. A merger is not ongoing conduct, and hence cannot be enjoined under the Unfair Practices Act [State of California ex rel. Van de Kamp v. Texaco, Inc. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1147, 1169-1170, 252 Cal. Rptr. 221, 762 P.2d 385] .

The Act is similar to the federal Robinson-Patman Act (15 U.S.C.S. §§ 13, 13a-13c, 21a), in that both proscribe three basic types of business practices: (1) price discrimination, (2) sales below cost, and (3) the granting of rebates and discounts not made available to all buyers on like terms or conditions [Uneedus v. California Shoppers, Inc. (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 932, 937, 150 Cal. Rptr. 596] . For a full discussion of the Robinson-Patman Act, see Von Kalinowski, Antitrust Laws and Trade Regulation, Ch. 4 (Matthew Bender).

The Unfair Practices Act reflects a "horizontal" concept of trade regulation: it protects first-line competition against predatory practices, but does not prohibit price discriminations that only affect second-line or third-line competition at the buyer level or lower. Thus, a seller may discriminate in favor of one purchaser if he or she has no intent to prevent or destroy competition of other sellers at his or her own level [Plotkin v. Tanner's Vacuums (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 454, 458-459, 125 Cal. Rptr. 697] .

49-565 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 565.51

§ 565.51 Liability for Violation of Act

[1] Civil and Criminal

A civil action for injunctive relief and damages may be brought against a person who violates the act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17070]. For discussion of the elements of a cause of action as to each type of violation, see*§ 565.71[2]. For further discussion relating to remedies, discovery, and proof in such actions, see§ 565.54[1]. For a form of complaint for use in a civil action brought under the act, see§ 565.230*.

Each violation of the act also constitutes a misdemeanor [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17100].

[2] Liability of Agents

Any person who is a director, officer, or agent of any principal violating the act, and who assists or aids the principal, directly or indirectly, in that violation, is equally responsible with the principal [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17095]. Moreover, when an injunction proceeding or criminal action is brought against any person for his or her conduct as director, officer, or agent, it is sufficient to allege and prove the unlawful intent of the principal for which he or she acts [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17096, 17101].

49-565 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 565.52

§ 565.52 Prohibited Practices

[1] Locality Discrimination

It is unlawful for any person engaged in the production, manufacture, distribution, or sale of any article or product of general use or consumption to create locality discriminations with intent to destroy the competition of any regular established dealer in that article or product or to prevent the competition of any person who in good faith intends and attempts to become such a dealer [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17040]. This prohibition embraces any scheme of special rebates, collateral contracts, or any device of any nature whereby locality discrimination is in substance or fact effected in violation of the spirit and intent of the Unfair Practices Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17049]. For discussion of what constitutes an "article or product," see*§ 565.52[2]*].

The essential elements of a cause of action based on locality discrimination are the following [see Harris v. Capitol Records Distrib. Corp. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 454, 460-461, 50 Cal. Rptr. 539, 413 P.2d 139] :

- A person with two or more places of business makes a sale of an article or product at a lower price in one place than in another.

- The person acts with the intent to destroy his or her competition.

For further discussion concerning proof of intent, see*§ 565.54[3][a]*.

A locality discrimination is permissible when it is not intended to destroy or prevent competition, but reflects legitimate differences in costs of manufacture, sale, delivery, or transportation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17041]. This exception is to be a matter of defense; it need not be negatived by the plaintiff in order to state a cause of action for locality discrimination [see G.H.I.I. v. MTS, Inc. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 256, 273-274, 195 Cal. Rptr. 211 (distinguishing contrary holding in Green v. Grimes-Stassforth Stationery Co. (1940) 39 Cal. App. 2d 52, 55-56, 102 P.2d 452 , as based on prior law)]. For further discussion of situations in which the prohibition against locality discrimination does not apply, see*§ 565.53*.

[2] Sales or Service Below Cost

It is unlawful for any person engaged in business within California to sell any article or product at less than its cost to the vendor, or to give awayany article or product, for the purpose of injuring competitors or destroying competition [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17043]. "Sell" and "give" include offering to sell or give, or advertising to sell or give, as well as actual selling or giving [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17022, 17023]. "Article or product" includes services, the output of a service trade, and any thing of value, as well as articles, products, and commodities (with specified exceptions relating to public utility services) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17024; Paramount Gen. Hosp. Co. v. National Med. Enters., Inc. (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 496, 501-502, 117 Cal. Rptr. 42 ; see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 17048.5 (special prohibition against provision of warranty or repair service below cost)]. The prohibition against sales below cost embraces any scheme of special rebates, collateral contracts, or any device of any nature whereby the sale below cost is in substance or fact effected in violation of the spirit and intent of the Unfair Practices Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17049; see, e.g., Paramount Gen. Hosp. Co. v. National Med. Enters., Inc. (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 496, 500-504, 117 Cal. Rptr. 42 (cause of action for sales below cost stated when plaintiff alleged that the defendant was offering incidental services below cost in connection with lease of medical offices)].

In order to demonstrate a violation of these provisions, a plaintiff must show that a defendant acted purposely--that is, with a desire to injure a competitor or destroy competition. It is not enough that the defendant may have acted with knowledge that competitors may be injured by its actions in selling below cost [Cel-Tech Commc'ns, Inc. v. Los Angeles Cellular Tel. Co. (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 163, 174-175, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548, 973 P.2d 527 (distinguishing "purpose" from "intent")]. The Supreme Court opinion so holding did not address the statutory, rebuttable presumption of intent or purpose that is created upon proof of one or more acts of selling or giving away any article or product below cost or at discriminatory prices, along with proof of injurious effect [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17071; see also § 565.54[3][a]]. Arguably, the Supreme Court's holding is inconsistent with these evidentiary presumptions, and at very least it appears likely that, despite the Supreme Court's holding, a defendant may still be forced to bear the burden of rebutting a statutory presumption of the requisite purpose by proving the applicability of a statutory exception to the prohibition on selling below cost [see Cel-Tech Commc'ns, Inc. v. Los Angeles Cellular Tel. Co. (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 163, 212-219, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548, 973 P.2d 527 (Baxter, J., concurring and dissenting); Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17071, 17050; see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 17026.1].

"Cost" as applied to production includes cost of raw materials, labor, and all overhead expenses of the producer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17026; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17029 ("overhead expenses" defined as all costs of doing business incurred in conduct of business)].

As applied to distribution, "cost" means the distributor's invoice or replacement cost, whichever is lower, plus the cost of doing business, which in the absence of proof constitutes a six percent markup of the invoice or replacement cost [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17026; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17029 ("cost of doing business" defined as all costs of doing business incurred in conduct of business)]. Thus, in alleging a distributor's cost, a plaintiff must normally state the sale price, the defendant's cost in the product, and his or her cost of doing business [see G.H.I.I. v. MTS, Inc. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 256, 275, 195 Cal. Rptr. 211] . Furthermore, in establishing a distributor's cost, the invoice cost of an article or product purchased at a forced, bankruptcy, closeout, or other sale outside the ordinary channels of trade may not be used to justify a price lower than one based on the cost of replacement, through ordinary channels of trade as of the date of sale, unless the article or product is kept separate from goods purchased in the ordinary channels of trade and is advertised and sold as merchandise purchased at a forced, bankruptcy, closeout, sale, or by means other than through the ordinary channels of trade [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17027 (also requiring that advertising must state conditions under which goods were purchased, and quantity to be sold or offered for sale); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17028 (definition of "ordinary channels of trade"); see also § 565.53[2]].

As applied to warranty service agreements, "cost" includes the cost of parts, transporting the parts, labor, and all overhead expenses of the service agency [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17026].
