Discounts granted for cash payments may not be used to reduce cost [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17026; but see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17026.5 (exception for nondiscriminatory discounts offered to cigarette distributors), overruling E & H Wholesale, Inc. v. Glaser Bros. (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 728, 733-735, 204 Cal. Rptr. 838] .

Because Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17026 and 17029 define cost to include all variable and fixed costs, the Unfair Practices Act apparently employs a fully allocated cost or fully distributed cost standard to determine whether a sale violates Bus. & Prof. Code § 17043 [Turnbull & Turnbull v. ARA Transp., Inc. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 811, 820, 268 Cal. Rptr. 856 (variable costs are costs that vary with changes in output, whereas fixed costs are those that do not vary with changes in output)]. The concept of fully allocated cost has been equated with average total cost [Turnbull & Turnbull v. ARA Transp., Inc. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 811, 819-820, 268 Cal. Rptr. 856] . The fully allocated cost method was challenged as arbitrary and irrational and thus in violation of the due process clause of the California and United States Constitutions for favoring small, less efficient, single-product competitors. The fully allocated cost method survived the challenge, however, with the court of appeal holding that, although not perfect, the fully allocated cost method, when viewed in conjunction with the injurious intent requirement of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17043, is rationally related to the valid legislative purpose enunciated in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17001, which is to guard against the creation or perpetuation of monopolies and of fostering and encouraging competition [Turnbull & Turnbull v. ARA Transp., Inc. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 811, 823, 826, 268 Cal. Rptr. 856] . A defendant is free to demonstrate to the trier of fact that its fully allocated cost, using another reasonable allocation method other than that used by plaintiff, is actually lower than plaintiff alleges and lower than defendant's sales or bid price [Turnbull & Turnbull v. ARA Transp., Inc. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 811, 822-823, 268 Cal. Rptr. 856 ; see also Pan Asia Venture Capital Corp. v. Hearst Corp. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 424, 439, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 118 (error for trial court to refuse to allow defendant to present its cost allocation method to jury)]. To be legally acceptable, the allocation of indirect and fixed overhead costs to a particular product or service must be reasonably related to the burden the product or service imposes on the overall cost of doing business [Turnbull & Turnbull v. ARA Transp., Inc. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 811, 822, 268 Cal. Rptr. 856] .

The rationale underlying the challenge proceeds as follows. Under another method, such as the variable cost method, a multi-product competitor could allocate major indirect or fixed costs disproportionately among its products and thus, for one or more products, claim a cost of manufacture far below that of a single-product competitor. After having driven the single-product competitor from the market, the multi-product competitor could reallocate its fixed costs to attack some other product line or market. Thus, the appellant in Turnbull contended, application of the fully allocated cost method improperly favors smaller, less efficient, single-product competitors [Turnbull & Turnbull v. ARA Transp., Inc. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 811, 822-823, 268 Cal. Rptr. 856] .

The fully allocated cost method was also challenged as preempted by the Sherman Act (15 U.S.C.S. § 1 et seq.) on the ground that its application prohibits procompetitive conduct that is not injurious to competition, specifically that it makes rational, profitable, and nonpredatory pricing above long-run incremental cost presumptively unlawful [Turnbull & Turnbull v. ARA Transp., Inc. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 811, 823-824, 268 Cal. Rptr. 856] . Application of the fully allocated cost method, however, is not preempted by federal antitrust law [Turnbull & Turnbull v. ARA Transp., Inc. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 811, 826, 268 Cal. Rptr. 856] . One reason is that there is no clear federal standard with which the Unfair Practices Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17000 et seq.) may be said to conflict for determining whether pricing is predatory. The federal circuit courts disagree on the appropriate cost method, and the United States Supreme Court has not made a determination that any particular formula or cost method should be used in determining whether pricing is predatory [Turnbull & Turnbull v. ARA Transp., Inc. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 811, 825, 268 Cal. Rptr. 856] . The difference between the approaches taken by California courts and the Ninth Circuit has also been described as only a matter of allocation of evidentiary burdens. Assuming proof of injury to a competitor has been made, California allows plaintiffs to establish a prima facie case with proof of prices below average total cost. The defendant then has the burden of negating the inference of illegal intent or establishing an affirmative defense. Under federal law, the plaintiff who relies on prices below average total cost, but above average variable cost, has not created a presumption of illegal intent. To establish such a presumption under federal law, the plaintiff must show that no legitimate business reason for the below-cost price exists. Therefore, a price below average total cost but above average variable cost does not always violate California law, nor is such a price a guarantee of immunity under federal law [William Inglis & Sons Baking Co. v. ITT Cont'l Baking Co. (9th Cir. 1981) 668 F.2d 1014, 1049-1050 ; Turnbull & Turnbull v. ARA Transp., Inc. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 811, 824-825, 268 Cal. Rptr. 856] .

Of course, in determining whether defendant's sales of a product were below cost, it is necessary to define the relevant "product." The defendant and the trial court are not necessarily bound by the plaintiff's characterization of the relevant product for purposes of cost allocation [see Western Union Fin. Servs., Inc. v. First Data Corp. (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1530, 1535-1538, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341 (trial court was not bound to accept plaintiff's characterization of domestic money transfers as a separate "product" from international transfers and allocate only costs and revenues attributable to that "product" in determining whether defendant sold money transfer services below cost); but see Fisherman's Wharf Bay Cruise Corp. v. Superior Court (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 309, 322-330, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 628 (bay cruise ship line could not avoid claim of selling wholesale tickets to tourist agencies below cost by arguing that relevant product was all cruise tickets sold, both wholesale and retail to walkup ticket buyers)].

For further discussion concerning proof of cost, see § 565.54[3][b]. For discussion of permissible sales below cost, see*§ 565.53*.

[3] "Loss Leader" Practices

It is unlawful for any person engaged in business within California to sell or use any article or product as a "loss leader" [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17044]. For the purpose of this prohibition, "loss leader" is defined as any article or product sold at less than cost if: (1) the purpose is to induce, promote, or encourage the purchase of other merchandise; (2) the effect is a tendency or capacity to mislead or deceive purchasers or prospective purchasers; or (3) the effect is to divert trade from or otherwise injure competitors [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17030, 17044; for definition of "article or product," see § 565.52[2]].

Despite statutory language that might suggest otherwise, the California Supreme Court has held that proving a violation of these provisions requires proof that the defendant acted purposely--that is, with a desire to injure a competitor or destroy competition [Cel-Tech Commc'ns, Inc. v. Los Angeles Cellular Tel. Co. (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 163, 178, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548, 973 P.2d 527] . However, the Supreme Court opinion so holdingdid not address the statutory, rebuttable presumption of intent or purpose that may be used to shift to a defendant the burden of proving that the requisite purpose was absent [see § 565.52[2]]. The evidentiary presumptions are discussed further in § 565.54[3][a].

For discussion of situations in which the prohibition against loss leaders does not apply, see*§ 565.53*.

[4] Secret Rebates or Unearned Discounts

It is unlawful to make secret payments to allow rebates, refunds, commissions, or unearned discounts, whether in the form of money or otherwise; or to secretly extend to certain purchasers special services or privileges not extended to all purchasers on like terms and conditions, when the practice injures a competitor and tends to destroy competition [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17045]. It is not necessary to purchase "on like terms and conditions" to state a claim that a competitor received a secret rebate or unearned discount, because that phrase only attaches to "special services or privileges not extended to all purchasers" [Eddins v. Redstone (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 290, 332, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 863] .

The primary function of this prohibition is to prevent distributors from discriminating between purchasers. However, a purchaser who accepts a prohibited rebate or discount, as well as the distributor who offers it, is deemed to violate this prohibition [Diesel Elec. Sales & Serv., Inc. v. Marco Marine San Diego, Inc. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 202, 214-215, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62 ; G.H.I.I. v. MTS, Inc. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 256, 271] . Unlike the Robinson-Patman Antidiscrimination Act [see 15 U.S.C.S. § 13(f)], a buyer can violate Bus. & Prof. Code § 17045 without "knowingly receiving" the illegal discount [Diesel Elec. Sales & Serv., Inc. v. Marco Marine San Diego, Inc. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 202, 214 n.4, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62 (dicta; defendant knew it received discounts other distributors did not)]. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17045 applies to secret payments from a seller to a purchaser, but it does not apply to secret payments from a purchaser to a seller [Kunert v. Mission Fin. Servs. Corp. (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 242, 260-261, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 589] .

However, Bus. & Prof. Code § 17045 as applied to trailer-on-flatcar service has been preempted by exemptions granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission pursuant to its authority under the Staggers Rail Act of 1980 [see 49 U.S.C.S. § 10505], although antitrust remedies for a combination or conspiracy that injures competition, as opposed to a single competitor, survive [Alliance Shippers v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (9th Cir. 1988) 858 F.2d 567, 569-570] .

The elements of a cause of action based on violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17045 are: (1) a secret payment or rebate, or the a secret allowance of an unearned discount; (2) the injury of a competitor; and (3) the tendency of the payment, allowance, or rebate to destroy competition [see, e.g., Harris v. Capitol Records Distrib. Corp. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 454, 463, 50 Cal. Rptr. 539, 413 P.2d 139 (cause of action not established when "advertising allowance" was not secret and was extended to all purchasers); Diesel Elec. Sales & Serv., Inc. v. Marco Marine San Diego, Inc. (1993) 16 Cal. App.4th 202, 212, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62 (distributor versus distributor; nonsuit reversed); E & H Wholesale, Inc. v. Glaser Bros. (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 728, 738-739, 204 Cal. Rptr. 838 (cause of action not established when rebates were made to meet, rather than to destroy competition)].

The first element, allowance of a "secret unearned discount," is established by the supplier's or competitor's failure to disclose to the plaintiff that a competitor is receiving a discount or allowance that the plaintiff is not receiving [see Diesel Elec. Sales & Serv., Inc. v. Marco Marine San Diego, Inc. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 202, 212-213, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62 (defendant reached maximum volume discount without buying volume to qualify for that discount)].

Prima facie "injury to a competitor" is established by evidence of a decline in plaintiff's gross revenues over a three-year period during which it competed with defendant and during which defendant's revenues increased and plaintiff eventually stopped serving that market. The fact that all or part of the increase in defendant's revenues during that period could be attributable to factors other than secret unearned discounts was matter of weighing evidence and not relevant to determining whether nonsuit was proper [Diesel Elec. Sales & Serv., Inc. v. Marco Marine San Diego, Inc. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 202, 213-214, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62] .

The term "competition" includes competition among retailers, wholesalers, or producers; violation does not require competitive damage to competitors of the person allowing an unearned discount (the "primary" line of commerce), but can be based on competitive damage to competitors of the person receiving it (the "secondary" line of commerce). Thus, an action by a purchaser who had not received the secret discount was permitted to go forward based on its allegation that it had been injured in its competition with those purchasers who had received the discounts, even without alleging any competitive injury among suppliers [ABC Int'l Traders, Inc. v. Matsushita Elec. Corp. (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1247, 1254, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 112, 931 P.2d 290] .

The fact that a competitor in a "primary" line of commerce may have taken a business action to remain competitive, such as entering into a revenue-sharing agreement or participating in a secret rebate or discount, is not necessarily a defense to an action under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17045. This so-called "meeting competition" defense does not establish as a matter of law that the conduct does not tend to destroy competition in a "secondary" line of commerce, and harm to this type of competition would be sufficient to overcome the defense [Eddins v. Redstone (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 290, 339, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 863] . In one case, for example, movie studios that had entered into revenue-sharingagreements with a large video rental retailer argued that the agreements were necessary to meet the competition posed to them by other studios that had already reached the same agreements, and that this necessity provided a defense to the claim that their actions tended to destroy competition. However, the court of appeal concluded that the trial court erred by not considering whether the revenue-sharing agreements tended to destroy competition in a secondary line of commerce--in this case, the competition between the large video rental retailer and smaller, independently owned rental outlets who were not doing business with the studios under the same revenue-sharing agreements [Eddins v. Redstone (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 290, 338-339, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 863] .

Liability cannot be imposed under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17045 for price discrimination if that liability is premised on agreements made between two companies that are part of the same corporate family, because these companies form part of a single economic enterprise with a complete unity of financial interest [Eddins v. Redstone (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 290, 341, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 863] .

[5] Coercion, Solicitation, or Collusion to Effectuate Prohibited Practice

It is unlawful for any person to use any threat, intimidation, or boycott to effectuate any violation of the Unfair Practices Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17046; see, e.g., Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Great W. Fin. Corp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 305, 324, 70 Cal. Rptr. 849, 444 P.2d 481 (boycott not established in absence of showing of concerted attempt to coerce third parties not to deal with plaintiff)]. It is also unlawful for any manufacturer, wholesaler, distributor, jobber, contractor, broker, retailer, or other vendor, or any agent of any such person, to solicit any violation of the act or to participate or collude jointly with any other such person in violation of the act [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17047 (solicitation), 17048 (participation or collusion); see, e.g., Harris v. Capitol Records Distrib. Corp. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 454, 462, 50 Cal. Rptr. 539, 413 P.2d 139 (collusion or conspiracy not shown when wholesaler merely "had reason to know" that purchaser intended to resell below cost)].

§ 565.53 Defenses

[1] Applicable in General

Nothing in the Unfair Practices Act precludes a person from selecting the customers with whom he or she will deal [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17042; Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Great W. Fin. Corp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 305, 324, 70 Cal. Rptr. 849, 444 P.2d 481] . For example, a manufacturer does not violate the act simply by designating one distributor as the only one with whom he or she will deal with directly [see Plotkin v. Tanner's Vacuums (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 454, 458-459, 125 Cal. Rptr. 697] .

Similarly, nothing in the act precludes a person from establishing a price differential for any article or product as between customers that he or she has classified in different functions, such as broker, jobber, wholesaler, or retailer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17042; Harris v. Capitol Records Distrib. Corp. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 454, 463, 50 Cal. Rptr. 539, 413 P.2d 139 ; see also Motors, Inc. v. Times Mirror Co. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 735, 742-743, 162 Cal. Rptr. 543 (Stevens, J., concurring; suggesting that price discrimination based on classification of customers as wholesaler or retailer is not justified when customers are merely wholesaler or retailer in relation to third parties)].

The practices excepted under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17042 appear to be matters of defense that need not be negatived or disproved by the plaintiff, by analogy to case law relating to other express exceptions [see § 565.53[2]].

The equitable defense of "unclean hands" does not apply to actions under the act [Page v. Bakersfield Unif. & Towel Supply Co. (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 762, 770, 49 Cal. Rptr. 46] .

[2] Applicable Only to Locality Discrimination, Sales Below Cost, or Loss Leaders

The prohibitions against locality discrimination, sales below cost, and loss leaders do not apply to certain closeout sales: (1) in closing out in good faith the owner's stock or any part thereof for the purpose of discontinuing his or her trade in any article or product, or in the case of seasonal or perishable goods, to prevent loss to the vendor by spoilage or depreciation; or (2) when the goods are damaged or deteriorated in quality. In either case, notice to the public is required [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17050(a),(b)]. The required notice is not sufficient unless the subject of the sale is kept separate from the other stocks and is clearly and legibly marked with the reason for the sale. Also, any advertisement of the goods must indicate the same facts and the number of items to be sold [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17050].

The prohibitions against locality discrimination, sales below cost, and loss leaders also do not apply to sales made: (1) in an endeavor made in good faith to meet the legal prices of a competitor selling the same article or product in the same locality or trade area and in the ordinary channels of trade; or (2) in an endeavor made in good faith by a manufacturer, selling an article or product of his or her own manufacture, in a transaction and sale to a wholesaler or retailer for resale to meet the legal prices of a competitor selling the same or a similar or comparable article or product in the same locality or trade area and in the ordinary channels of trade [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17050(d),(e)]. "Ordinary channels of trade" means those ordinary, regular, and daily transactions in the mercantile tradewhereby title to an article or product, in no way damaged or deteriorated, is transferred from one person or another. This excludes, for example, bankruptcy sales of stocks, closeout goods, fire sales, and sales of goods that, for any reason, are damaged or deteriorated [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17028]. Because the exception applies only to meeting the "legal price" of a competitor, it does not apply to one who is attempting to meet competing prices of goods or services that are themselves below cost in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17043 [Page v. Bakersfield Unif. & Towel Supply Co. (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 762, 770, 49 Cal. Rptr. 46 ; People v. Gordon (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 711, 724, 234 P.2d 287] .

Finally, the prohibitions against locality discrimination, sales below cost, and loss leaders do not apply to sales made by an officer acting under the orders of any court [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17050(c)].

The practices excepted under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17050 are matters of defense and need not be negatived or disproved by the plaintiff [see People v. Gordon (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 711, 724, 234 P.2d 287 (meeting competition exception of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17050(d) as defense); see also G.H.I.I. v. MTS, Inc. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 256, 273-274, 195 Cal. Rptr. 211 (exception under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17041 also not required to be negatived in initial pleading)].

§ 565.54 Contract Violating Act as Illegal

[1] Civil Action

[a] Illegal Contract

Any contract, express or implied, made by any person, firm, or corporation in violation of the Unfair Practices Act is an illegal contract on which there can be no recovery [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17051].

[b] Remedies; Injunctive Relief

In an action under the Unfair Practices Act, it is not necessary to allege or prove actual damages or the threat thereof, or actual injury or the threat thereof, to the plaintiff [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17082]. In other words, a plaintiff may obtain injunctive relief for a violation of the act without showing damages or injury to himself or herself [see Uneedus v. California Shoppers, Inc. (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 932, 943, 150 Cal. Rptr. 596] .

If it appears to the court on an application for a temporary restraining order, on hearing of an order to show cause why a preliminary injunction should not be issued, or on hearing of a motion for preliminary injunction, that any defendant is violating, or has violated, the Unfair Practices Act, or if the court so finds in any action under that act, it shall enjoin that defendant from doing all acts prohibited by the section or sections that he or she is violating or has violated [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17078; see People v. Gordon (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 711, 725, 234 P.2d 287 (acts prohibited must be restricted to those done with requisite intent to injure competitors or destroy competition)]. The grant of injunctive relief under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17078 is mandatory, but only on demonstration of a clear violation of the act [E & H Wholesale, Inc. v. Glaser Bros. (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 728, 733, 204 Cal. Rptr. 838] .

The court may, in its discretion, include in any injunction against a violation of the act such other restraint as it may deem expedient to deter the defendant from, and to insure against, his or her committing a future violation of the act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17079].

Any injunction against a violation of the act, whether interim or final, must cover every article or product and not merely the particular article or product involved in the action [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17080].

It is not necessary for the plaintiff, in any action under act, to provide or file any undertaking or bond for the issuance of any interim or final injunction [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17081].

For comparative discussion relating to Civ. Code § 3422 and Code Civ. Proc. §§ 526 and 527, governing injunctive relief in general, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[c] Treble Damages and Attorney's Fees

In any action under the Unfair Practices Act, it is not necessary to allege or prove actual damages or the threat thereof, or actual injury or the threat thereof, to the plaintiff. However, a plaintiff is entitled, in addition to injunctive relief, to recover three times the amount of his or her actual damages, if any, as well as three times the actual damages, if any, suffered by any person who has assigned his or her claim of damages to the plaintiff [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17082; see Page v. Bakersfield Unif. & Towel Supply Co. (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 762, 773, 49 Cal. Rptr. 46 (recovery denied when damages were uncertain, speculative, and based in part on net losses attributable to that party's sales below cost in violation of the act)]. The provision for treble damages is mandatory, so that if actual damages are shown, the court must award three times that amount without regard to the defendant's malice or any other judicially imposed qualifying condition [Uneedus v. California Shoppers, Inc. (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 932, 941-944, 150 Cal. Rptr. 596 ; for further discussion relating to damages in general, see Ch. 177, Damages]. Because Bus. & Prof. Code § 17082 is mandatory and because punitive damages under Civ. Code § 3294 and treble damages under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17082 serve substantially the same purpose, a plaintiff who pursues a single cause of action under the Unfair Practices Act and establishes a malicious or oppressive violation of that Act is not entitled to elect whether to take punitive damages under Civ. Code § 3294 or treble damages under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17082, but is only entitled to treble damages [Turnbull & Turnbull v. ARA Transp., Inc. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 811, 826-827, 268 Cal. Rptr. 856] . However, a plaintiff who prevails on a common law tort claim as well as the violation of the Unfair Practices Act and proves malice or oppression under Civ. Code § 3294 may elect between trebled and punitive damages [see Turnbull & Turnbull v. ARA Transp., Inc. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 811, 826-827, 268 Cal. Rptr. 856 ; Marshall v. Brown (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 408, 419, 190 Cal. Rptr. 392 (upheld right to election by plaintiff who prevailed on causes of action for slander and one authorized by Lab. Code §§ 1050, 1054); see also Sandler v. Gordon (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 254, 259, 210 P.2d 314 (decided prior to 1959 amendment to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17082 adding trebling provision and allowing punitive damages pursuant to Civ. Code § 3294)].

In any action under the act in which judgment is entered against the defendant, the plaintiff is also entitled to an award of reasonable attorney's fees together with the costs of suit [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17082; see Page v. Bakersfield Unif. & Towel Supply Co. (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 762, 774-775, 49 Cal. Rptr. 46 (failure to award fees not reversible error when both parties prevailed and had incurred fees and costs of approximately equal value); for further discussion relating to attorney's fees and costs in general, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.10 et seq. and § 174.50 et seq.].

[2] Limitation Period

The limitation period applicable to a cause of action for injunctive relief and actual damages under the Unfair Practices Act is generally the three-year period of Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a), which is the period limiting actions based on statutory liability. However, actual damages may not be trebled under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17082 unless the action is brought within one year after they accrue, because treble damages are penal in nature and the one-year period of Code Civ. Proc. § 340(a) limits statutory actions based on a penalty [G.H.I.I. v. MTS, Inc. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 256, 276-279, 195 Cal. Rptr. 211] .

[3] Evidentiary Provisions

[a] Relating to Intent

On proof of one or more acts of selling or giving away any article or product below cost or at discriminatory prices, together with proof of injurious effect, the requisite intent to injure competitors or to destroy competition must be presumed [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17071; E & H Wholesale, Inc. v. Glaser Bros. (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 728, 735, 204 Cal. Rptr. 838 ; see Dooley's Hardware Mart v. Food Giant Mkts., Inc. (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 513, 517, 98 Cal. Rptr. 543 (presumption not applicable absent evidence of injurious effect)]. A similar presumption arises on proof of sale below invoice or replacement cost, whichever is lower, of less than the entire supply of an article or product to any one customer of a retailer engaged primarily in resale [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17071.5].

Whether these presumptions affect the burden of persuasion or merely the burden of producing evidence is not clear under California law [see Evid. Code §§ 604, 606 (effect of presumptions affecting burden of producing evidence and of persuasion)]. One court of appeal, with little discussion, has held that the presumption in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17071.5 is a presumption affecting the burden of persuasion [see Dooley's Hardware Mart v. Food Giant Mkts., Inc. (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 513, 517-518, 98 Cal. Rptr. 543] . Without expressly addressing the issue, some later cases appear to have also treated the presumption of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17071 as a presumption affecting the burden of persuasion [see William Inglis & Sons, Inc. v. Continental Baking (9th Cir. 1991) 942 F.2d 1332, 1338-1339 ; E & H Wholesale, Inc. v. Glaser Bros. (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 728, 737, 204 Cal. Rptr. 838] . However, in a more recent case, another court, again without expressly addressing the issue, appeared to treat the presumption under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17071 as a presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence. The court stated that the only effect of the presumption is "to require ... [the defendant] to go forward with proof to negate the presumption of wrongful intent"; and that once the defendant has done that, the burden of proof regarding intent shifts back to the plaintiff [Western Union Fin. Servs., Inc. v. First Data Corp. (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1530, 1540, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341 ; see also People v. Pay Less Drug Store (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 108, 114, 153 P.2d 9 (identically worded predecessor statute interpreted as requiring that defendant "go forward with evidence to rebut a prima facie showing")]. The language in the latter case appears more consistent with a presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence than a burden affecting the burden of persuasion.

In an action in which it is alleged and shown that the person complained against is selling below his or her cost of doing business, and the person is including labor at less than the prevailing wage scale in the trade in which he or she is engaged for the locality or vicinity in which he or she is doing business, evidence of the prevailing wage scale is admissible toprove the intent or purpose of that person to violate the Unfair Practices Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17075].

For discussion relating to proof of intent with respect to agents who assist or aid their principal in violating the act, see*§ 565.51[2]*.

[b] Relating to Costs

When a person complained against is a member of a particular trade or industry that has an established cost survey for the locality and vicinity in which the offense is committed, that survey may be used to prove the costs of that person [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17072].

Proof of average overall cost of doing business for any particular inventory period when added to (1) the cost of production of each article or product, as to a producer, or (2) the invoice or replacement cost, whichever is lower, as to a distributor, is presumptive evidence of the cost of an article or product [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17073].

Proof of transportation tariffs fixed and approved by the Public Utilities Commission is presumptive evidence of delivery cost [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17074].

When an action is brought against a person for unfair business practices that involve the employment or services of others, and these others are not compensated or are compensated below the wage prevailing for such services at the time and place of the service, their services must be charged as an expense of the business in which rendered and at the prevailing wage [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17076].

In an action for sales below cost, if the defendant acquires his or her raw materials for a consideration not wholly or definitely computable in money, the cost of the raw materials must be presumed to be the prevailing market price for similar raw materials in the ordinary channels of trade in the locality or vicinity in which such raw materials were acquired, at the time of the acquisition [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17077].

[4] Discovery

Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17083 and 17084, relating to discovery under the Unfair Practices Act, have been unchanged since their enactment in 1941, and should be viewed in light of the subsequently enacted Discovery Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.010 et seq.]. Provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17083 and 17084, relating to the production or inspection of books and records, are similar to, but are not entirely consistent with, the general provisions of the Discovery Act that now govern this type of discovery. For further discussion and forms relating to the general provisions of the Discovery Act, see Ch. 190, Depositions and Discovery .

[5] Reference Proceeding

If, during the pendency of an action under the Unfair Practices Act, it appears to the court that an extensive examination of books, papers, records, or documents is or may become material or relevant to the issues in the action, the court may, in its discretion, on the application of any party or on its own motion, order a reference to be had under Code Civ. Proc. § 638 et seq. [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17085]. For further discussion and forms relating to reference proceedings, see Ch. 38, Reference .

[6] Immunity From Prosecution

Information obtained under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17070 et seq. or the general discovery provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.010 et seq. (see § 565.54[4]) may not be used against any party or witness as a basis for misdemeanor or felony prosecution in any California state court [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17086; see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 17087 (privilege against self-incrimination and immunity from prosecution in proceeding brought by the Attorney General or a district attorney)].

§ 565.70 Governing Law

Contracts restraining trade, business, or the practice of a profession are governed by Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 16600-16607. Combinations in restraint of trade are governed by the Cartwright Act, Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 16700-16770. Federal decisions interpreting the Sherman Act and 15 U.S.C.S. § 14 may be applicable to interpret California law [Corwin v. Los Angeles Newspaper Serv. Bureau, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 842, 852-853, 94 Cal. Rptr. 785, 484 P.2d 953 ; Reynolds v. California Dental Serv. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 590, 596 n.9, 246 Cal. Rptr. 331 ; see § 565.71].

A Cartwright Act violation may also be subject to the unfair competition provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200-17208 [see B. W. I. Custom Kitchen v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1341, 1345, 1348, 1348 n.6, 235 Cal. Rptr. 228] . For discussion and forms relating to these provisions, see*§ 565.10* et seq. and§ 565.230 et seq.

§ 565.71 History and Interpretation of the Cartwright Act

[1] In General

Several decisions have stated that the Cartwright Act is patterned after the Sherman Act, or after a bill that was proposed, but rejected, as an alternative to what became the Sherman Act [see, e.g., Cianci v. SuperiorCourt (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 903, 919, 221 Cal. Rptr. 575, 710 P.2d 375 ; Marin County Bd. of Realtors, Inc. v. Palsson (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 920, 925-926, 130 Cal. Rptr. 1, 549 P.2d 833 ; Roth v. Rhodes (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 530, 542, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 706] . Although those statements are adequate for some analyses, and judicial interpretation of the Sherman Act is often helpful, if not directly probative of the intent of the drafters of the Cartwright Act, more precise analysis of the history of the Cartwright Act is necessary in some situations [State of California ex rel. Van de Kamp v. Texaco, Inc. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1147, 1153-1154, 1168-1169, 252 Cal. Rptr. 221, 762 P.2d 385 ; see § 565.75]. Enacted in 1907, the Cartwright Act is patterned after the 1889 Texas act governing restraints of trade and after its progeny, most notably the 1899 Michigan act. Those laws used the term "combination" in a narrower sense than did other laws in effect in 1907 [State of California ex rel. Van de Kamp v. Texaco, Inc. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1147, 1160-1163, 1168, 252 Cal. Rptr. 221, 762 P.2d 385] . Dicta that the Cartwright Act "is broader in range and deeper in reach than the Sherman Act" [see Cianci v. Superior Court (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 903, 920, 221 Cal. Rptr. 575, 710 P.2d 375] and that it "reaches beyond the Sherman Act to threats to competition in their incipiency--much like section 7 of the Clayton Act ... and thereby goes beyond clear-cut menaces to competition in order to deal with merely ephemeral possibilities" [see Cianci v. Superior Court (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 903, 918, 221 Cal. Rptr. 575, 710 P.2d 375] has been criticized as conclusionary and substantially suspect [State of California ex rel. Van de Kamp v. Texaco, Inc. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1147, 1169, 1169 n.20, 252 Cal. Rptr. 221, 762 P.2d 385] .

The Cartwright Act is not a codification of the common law of restraint of trade. Although the public policy underlying the Cartwright Act is rooted in common law, the Act is neither confined by, nor as broad as, the common law [State of California ex rel. Van de Kamp v. Texaco, Inc. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1147, 1166, 252 Cal. Rptr. 221, 762 P.2d 385 , noting dicta to the contrary in Corwin v. Los Angeles Newspaper Serv. Bureau, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 842, 852, 94 Cal. Rptr. 785, 484 P.2d 953] .

Bus. & Prof. Code § 16727, which was added to the Cartwright Act in 1961, is patterned after Section 3 of the Clayton Act (15 U.S.C.S. § 14), which deals with exclusive dealing arrangements [State of California ex rel. Van de Kamp v. Texaco, Inc. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1147, 1163 n.15, 1168, 252 Cal. Rptr. 221, 762 P.2d 385 ; Corwin v. Los Angeles Newspaper Serv. Bureau, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 842,852-853, 94 Cal. Rptr. 785, 484 P. 2d 953] . Thus, federal decisions interpreting Section 3 of the Clayton Act are applicable to Bus. & Prof. Code § 16727 [Corwin v. Los Angeles Newspaper Serv. Bureau, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 842, 852-853, 94 Cal. Rptr. 785, 484 P. 2d 953] .

[2] Prohibited Conduct

[a] Contracts Restraining Trade or Practice of Profession; Void as General Rule

Except as expressly provided in Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 16601-16607, every contract that restrains anyone from engaging in a lawful profession, trade, or business of any kind is, to that extent, void [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600].

A contract is void under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600 only to the extent it constitutes an unlawful restraint [Frame v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 668, 673, 97 Cal. Rptr. 811 (arbitration provisions enforced)].

[b] Agreement Conferring Exclusive Privilege

An agreement conferring an exclusive privilege on one person or a group of persons, which may thereby exclude others from some aspect of the practice of their trade or profession, is not per se illegal under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600. Among the factors to be considered in determining whether or not the restraint is valid are the appropriateness of the defendant's conduct as a means of advancing its interests and the availability of less harmful means to achieve those interests [see Blank v. Palo Alto-Stanford Hosp. Ctr. (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 377, 384-386, 44 Cal. Rptr. 572 (upholding agreement giving certain staff members exclusive right to use hospital's radiology facilities)].

[c] Restraints on Former Employees

Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600 invalidates employment contracts that prohibit an employee from working for a competitor after the employment terminates, except to the extent necessary to protect the employer's trade secrets [Muggill v. Reuben H. Donnelley Corp. (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 239, 242, 42 Cal. Rptr. 107, 398 P.2d 147 ; Metro Traffic Control, Inc. v. Shadow Traffic Network (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 853, 859, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 573] . The exception for protection of trade secrets means that, even if a blanket covenant not to compete may be void, restrictions may be placed on a former employee's ability to solicit the employer's customers when confidential information is employed to do so [see Smith v. CMTA-IAM Pension Trust (9th Cir. 1981) 654 F.2d 650, 660-661 (applying California law)]. However, only the use of confidential trade secrets may be enjoined under this exception, and an employer may not prohibit former employees from soliciting its customers through use of information obtained independently of the employer's protected customer lists [The Retirement Group v. Galante (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1226, 1238-1239, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 585]. For discussion and forms pertaining to liability for misappropriation of trade secrets, see § 565.100 et seq.

There is a split of authority concerning whether covenants not to compete may restrict future employment to a greater degree than would otherwise be permitted under the law of trade secrets or unfair competition [compare Metro Traffic Control, Inc. v. Shadow Traffic Network (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 853, 860-861, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 573 (contract may restrict conduct by former employee only to extent permissible under law of unfair competition in absence of contract); Moss, Adams & Co. v. Shilling (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 124, 130, 224 Cal. Rptr. 456 (same); with Loral Corp. v. Moyes (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 268, 276-279, 219 Cal. Rptr. 836 (contract may impose greater restraints on former employer than law of unfair competition would otherwise allow)]. For further discussion of this issue and of an employee's liability for unfair competition with his or her former employer, see Wilcox, California Employment Law, ch. 70 (Matthew Bender).

Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600 also prohibits contractual provisions that impose a penalty on an employee for working for a competitor after termination of employment [Muggill v. Reuben H. Donnelley Corp. (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 239, 242, 42 Cal. Rptr. 107, 398 P.2d 147] . For example, provisions terminating all pension benefits or all profit-sharing benefits of a former employee who goes to work for a competitor are void [see Muggill v. Reuben H. Donnelley Corp. (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 239, 242-243, 42 Cal. Rptr. 107, 398 P.2d 147 (pension rights); Frame v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 668, 672-674, 97 Cal. Rptr. 811 (profit-sharing)]. In another case, by contrast, the court held that Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600 did not prohibit a provision of a multi-employer pension plan (negotiated as part of a collective bargaining agreement) under which an otherwise eligible member's benefits are suspended if he or she is employed by another participating employer. The court distinguished Muggill and Frame because the suspension of benefits in the case before it was not intended to inhibit business competition, was limited in nature, furthered the interests of fairness in allocating retirement benefits, and served other important public policies [see Smith v. CMTA-IAM Pension Trust (9th Cir. 1981) 654 F.2d 650, 660-661] .

A broad provision in a contract with a customer prohibiting that customer from hiring the employees of the other contracting party for a specified term, and imposing a penalty on the customer if doing so, also violates Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600 [VL Systems, Inc. v. Unisen, Inc. (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 708, 710-714, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 818] . Such a contract limits the ability of the affected employees to change employment, and even more damaging that non-competition clauses in employment contracts, it does so without extracting a prior agreement from the employees or ensuring that the employees even have advance notice of the restriction being placed on their employment opportunities [VL Systems, Inc. v. Unisen, Inc. (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 708, 717-718, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 818] . It is unclear whether a narrower provision that only prevents a customer from soliciting the employees of the other contracting employer would be enforceable, as such an agreement would leave employees free to pursue other job opportunities on their own initiative [see VL Systems, Inc. v. Unisen, Inc. (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 708, 713 n.4, 718, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 818] .

As discussed in § 565.73[1], Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600 does not bar certain covenants not to compete within a geographic area that are part of an agreementfor sale of a business [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 16601]. In one case, the former employee was also an officer and director of the corporate employer, and had been an officer of the firm that sold its accounts to the corporate employer and a signatory of the buy-sell agreement. The court held that the employee was bound by a noncompetition clause in the buy-sell agreement [see Matull & Assocs. v. Cloutier (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1049, 1054-1056, 240 Cal. Rptr. 211 (clause was valid as means of protecting former employer's confidential information)]. However, an employer may not use a stock purchase agreement with its employees as a sham to avoid the prohibition of Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600 against noncompetition clauses [see Bosley Med. Group v. Abramson (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 284, 290-292, 207 Cal. Rptr. 477 (Bus. & Prof. Code § 16601 exception permits noncompetition clause only if substantially all of assets of corporate subsidiary or division are sold; did not apply because employee was required to buy stock in corporation and received only small minority interest)].

When a covenant not to compete is void and unenforceable under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600, a trial court may not rewrite the covenant more narrowly to make it enforceable, since giving the court such discretion would create an incentive for business owners to write broad covenants knowing that, if challenged in court, the court could be asked to write a narrower, enforceable covenant [Kolani v. Gluska (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 402, 407-408, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257 (trial court properly declined to rewrite broad covenant not to compete into narrow bar on theft of confidential information)].

Although some federal courts have approved an exception to Section 16600 for restrictions on trade that are narrowly drawn, as, for example, when the restriction does not place a substantial segment of the market off limits to the restricted party [see, e.g., Latona v. Aetna U.S. Healthcare Inc. (C.D. Cal. 1999) 82 F. Supp. 2d 1089, 1091-1096] , the California Supreme Court has specifically rejected this "narrow-restraint" exception and reaffirmed that Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600 is unambiguous in invalidating all restraints of trade that do not fall under a specific statutory exception [Edwards v. Arthur Andersen LLP (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 937, 949-950, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 282, 189 P.3d 285]. It is unclear whether this holding by the Supreme Court effectively eliminates the common-law trade secret exception as well, and the Court specifically stated that it had no occasion in that opinion to decide that issue [Edwards v. Arthur Andersen LLP (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 937, 946 n.4, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 282, 189 P.3d 285 ; see Dowell v. Biosense Webster, Inc. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 564, 576-577, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1] . Even if still valid, however, the trade secret exception would apply only if the noncompete or nonsolicitation clause at issue is narrowly tailored or carefully limited to the protection of trade secrets, and not so broadly worded as to restrain competition [see Dowell v. Biosense Webster, Inc. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 564, 577, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 (broadly worded noncompetition and nonsolicitation clauses were void and did not trigger trade secret exception)].

A commercial tenant with substantial leverage may be able to negotiate for the right to operate a certain type of business exclusively within a certain development, building, or center. Although contractual restraints on trade competition are generally invalid under the provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600, that section does not invalidate express restrictive covenants regarding the use of retained premises, which are frequently incorporated in leases [Stockton Dry Goods Co. v. Girsh (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 677, 680, 227 P.2d 1 ; see Keating v. Preston (1940) 42 Cal. App. 2d 110, 123, 108 P.2d 479] . Express covenants by a landlord to refrain from engaging in a competing business or leasing other portions of the same premises or adjoining premises owned by the landlord for a competing purpose are generally enforceable [see Kulawitz v. Pacific Woodenware & Paper Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 664, 669, 155 P.2d 24 ; Medico-Dental Bldg. Co. of L.A. v. Horton & Converse (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 411, 419-420, 132 P.2d 457] .

If a tenant wants a restrictive covenant for property retained by the landlord, the lease must clearly express this intention [Stockton Dry Goods Co. v. Girsh (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 677, 680-681, 227 P.2d 1] , although that covenant may be implied if language indicating the restrictive intent is used [Keating v. Preston (1940) 42 Cal. App. 2d 110, 122, 108 P.2d 479] . However, an implied covenant cannot rest solely on an inference from facts surrounding the lease's execution, but must have a basis in the contract itself [Stockton Dry Goods Co. v. Girsh (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 677, 680-681, 227 P.2d 1] .

Breach of a restrictive noncompetition covenant by a landlord does not entitle the tenant to escape the obligation to pay rent accrued to the date of the breach [Kulawitz v. Pacific Woodenware & Paper Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 664, 669, 155 P.2d 24] . However, if the exclusive right to conduct the tenant's business on the premises is the essence of the consideration for that tenant's payment of rent, breach of the restrictive covenant is so substantive that it goes to the whole of the consideration and supports a rescission of the contract, terminating the obligation to pay rent [Kulawitz v. Pacific Woodenware & Paper Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 664, 670, 155 P.2d 24 ; see Medico-Dental Bldg. Co. of L.A. v. Horton & Converse (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 411, 433-434, 132 P.2d 457] . Coversely, default by the tenant in the payment of rent does not waive the landlord's performance of the restrictive covenant unless the lease provides expressly or by necessary implication that performance depends on the payment of rent [Kulawitz v. Pacific Woodenware & Paper Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 664, 670, 155 P.2d 24] .

Covenants by a landlord in a lease to do any act, or not to use or permit to be used any real property owned by the landlord that is contiguous to premises leased to a tenant, run with the land and are binding on successive owners of the land, if statutory requirements are satisfied [see Civ. Code §§ 1469, 1470]. For these covenants, the lease must describe the contiguous real property, must expressly state that successive owners and persons having an interest in the lease are bound by the covenant, and must be recorded in the county in which all or part of the contiguous real property is located [Civ. Code §§ 1469, 1470]. A covenant that runs with the land not only binds the covenantor and vests in the covenantee, but also binds the assignees of the covenantor and vests in the assignees of the covenantee in the same manner as if they had personally entered into the covenant [Civ. Code § 1460]. Even if a restrictive covenant in a lease is unenforceable because it does not comply with these statutory requirements, it may still be enforceable as an equitable servitude if the restriction is in writing in the lease and the person against whom it runs has actual notice of the covenant [Civ. Code § 1217; Hudson Oil Co. v. Shortstop (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 488, 493-496, 168 Cal. Rptr. 801] .

For discussion of the legal issues applicable to protective and restrictive covenants, see California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 153, Drafting Commercial Leases , and Ch. 474, Shopping Centers (Matthew Bender).

[e] Public Policy Overrides Choice of Foreign Law

Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600 is such a strong statement of California public policy that it voids the parties' choice of another state's law if that law would uphold the anticompetition provision [Frame v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 668, 672-674, 97 Cal. Rptr. 811 ; accord, Scott v. Snelling and Snelling, Inc. (N.D. Cal. 1990) 732 F. Supp. 1034, 1039-1041 (applying Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600 to determine validity of noncompetition clause in franchise agreement despite provision that it be governed by Pennsylvania law)].

[3] Combinations in Restraint of Trade

The Cartwright Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 16700 et seq.) prohibits trusts or combinations of capital, skill, or acts by two or more persons for any of the following purposes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16720]:

- To create or carry out restrictions in trade or commerce;
- To limit or reduce the production, or increase the price of merchandise or of any commodity;
- To prevent competition in manufacturing, making, transportation, sale or purchase of merchandise, produce or any commodity;
- To fix at any standard or figure, whereby its price to the public or consumer shall be in any manner controlled or established, any article or commodity of merchandise, produce or commerce intended for sale, barter, use or consumption in California;
- To make or enter into or execute or carry out any contracts, obligations, or agreements of any kind or description, by which they do all or any combination of any of the following:
    - Bind themselves not to sell, dispose of, or transport any article or commodity or any article of trade, use, merchandise, commerce, or consumption below a common standard figure or fixed value;
    - Agree in any manner to keep the price of such article, commodity, or transportation at a fixed or graduated figure;
    - Establish or settle the price of any article, commodity or transportation between them or themselves and others, so as directly or indirectly to preclude a free and unrestricted competition among themselves, or any purchasers or consumers in the sale or transportation of any such article or commodity; or
    - Agree to pool, combine, or directly or indirectly unite any interests that they may have connected with the sale or transportation of any such article or commodity, that its price might in any manner be affected.

A "combination" under the Cartwright Act means a concert of action by individuals or entities maintaining separate and independent interests. An individual acting alone through his or her agent or a corporation acting alone through its officers is not a combination in restraint of trade proscribed by the statute [Roth v. Rhodes (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th

530, 543, 544, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 706 ; see also Bondi v. Jewels by Edwar, Ltd. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 672, 678, 73 Cal. Rptr. 494 ; cf. Williams v. I.B. Fischer Nev. (9th Cir. 1993) 999 F.2d 445, 447 (violation of Sherman Act § 1 requires proof of conspiracy to restrain trade; to be capable of conspiring, corporate entities must be sufficiently independent of each other; no conspiracy established when defendant entities comprise "common enterprise")]. Thus, for example, an allegation that joint owners and operators of an office building "conspired" with each other to restrict competition by plaintiff by refusing to rent office space to him did not sufficiently allege a combination in restraint of trade in violation of the Cartwright Act because the owners were jointly engaged in the single enterprise of managing the building and each owner was the agent of the other [see Roth v. Rhodes (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 530, 544, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 706] . In the absence of proof of a conspiracy or agreement among independent parties, there can be no liability for a combination in restraint of trade under the Cartwright Act [see Roth v. Rhodes (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 530, 544-545, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 706 (upholding summary adjudication of Cartwright Act cause of action in favor of defendant because of lack of proof of conspiracy or agreement)].

A combination in restraint of trade may be found even though the actions that form the basis of the combination might be legal when performed by one defendant individually and in isolation. For example, recognition that a single insurer in a market might refuse to insure tax deed titles for a legitimate business reason has been held insufficient to demonstrate "a purpose unrelated to elimination or reduction of competition" for an agreement by a combination of insurers to refuse such policies [Quelimane Co. v. Stewart Title Guar. Co. (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 26, 49-50, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 709, 960 P.2d 513] .

In an action alleging an unlawful conspiracy between competitors to limit output or increase price, a defendant moving for summary judgment must carry an initial burden of producing evidence that makes a prima facie showing that no conspiracy existed [see Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 861, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493] . To defeat the motion, the plaintiff mustthen present evidence that would allow a reasonable finder of fact to rule in the plaintiff's favor on the unlawful conspiracy issue by a preponderance of the evidence, which means that the plaintiff's evidence must allow the finder of fact to conclude that an unlawful conspiracy was more likely than not [Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 852, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493] . However, speculative inferences or ambiguous evidence showing conduct that is as consistent with permissible competition by independent actors as with unlawful collusion is insufficient to carry the plaintiff's burden to defeat a summary judgment motion [Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 852, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 24 P.3d 493] .

[4] Lease or Agreement for Nonuse of Competitor's Product

No one may condition a lease, sale, or contract of sale for goods, merchandise, machinery, supplies, or commodities for use in California or fix the price thereof, or any discount from or rebate on the price, on the agreement that the lessee or purchaser not use or deal in the goods, merchandise, machinery, supplies, commodities, or services of the seller's or lessor's competitor or competitors if the effect may be to substantially lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly in any line of trade or commerce in any section of California [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16727]. Bus. & Prof. Code § 16727 is based on Section 3 of the Clayton Act, 15 U.S.C.S. § 14, so federal cases interpreting Section 3 of the Clayton Act are applicable to cases under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16727. Bus. & Prof. Code § 16727 has been described as going "beyond common law and the Sherman Act to inhibit trade restraints at their inception" [Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Great W. Fin. Corp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 305, 315, 70 Cal. Rptr. 849, 444 P.2d 481] . Tie-ins are an example of a practice that is illegal under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16727 [Mailand v. Burckle (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 367, 382, 143 Cal. Rptr. 1, 572 P.2d 1142 ; see § 565.77[4]].

Consistent with the interpretation given to Section 3 of the Clayton Act, Bus. & Prof. Code § 16727 does not apply when the tying item is a service [Morrison v. Viacom, Inc. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 534, 546-548, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 133 (cable television was service and providers were not subject to Bus. & Prof. Code § 16727)].

§ 565.72 Professions as Within Cartwright Act

Trade and commerce within the meaning of the Cartwright Act includes professions [Cianci v. Superior Court (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 903, 916-925, 221 Cal. Rptr. 575, 710 P.2d 375 (overruling Willis v. Santa Ana Cmty. Hosp. Ass'n (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 806, 809-810, 26 Cal. Rptr. 640, 376 P.2d 568); Roth v. Rhodes (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 530, 540, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 706] . Prior to Cianci, the only redress available to a professional whose practice was restrained was an action under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600 or under a common law theory of intentional interference with the right to pursue a lawful calling or profession when the interference was by unlawful means or by means otherwise lawful when there was lack of sufficient justification [see Willis v. Santa Ana Cmty. Hosp. Ass'n (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 806, 809-810, 26 Cal. Rptr. 640, 376 P.2d 568 ; Blank v. Palo Alto-Stanford Hosp. Ctr. (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 377, 384, 44 Cal. Rptr. 572] . If, however, the basis for the Cartwright Act claim is a quasi-judicial decision, such as the decision of a review committee to deny hospital privileges, the state antitrust action is barred unless and until the quasi-judicial decision has been overturned by the grant of a writ of mandate [Mir v. Little Co. of Mary Hosp. (9th Cir. 1988) 844 F.2d 646, 651 (considering pendent state claim and relying on Westlake Cmty. Hosp. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 465, 484, 131 Cal. Rptr. 90, 551 P.2d 410)]. Interference with contractual and prospective economic relations is discussed in*§ 565.130* et seq.

[1] Sale of Business

Bus. & Prof. Code § 16601 provides an exception to the general prohibition against restraints on trade or profession set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600. Under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16601, any of the following persons who sell an interest in a business may agree with the buyer to refrain from carrying on a similar business within a specified geographical area in which the business sold has been carried on for so long as the buyer (or any person deriving title to the goodwill or shares from the buyer) carries on a like business in that area:

- Any person who sells the goodwill of a business.

- An owner of a business entity selling or otherwise disposing of all of his or her ownership interest in the business entity.

- Any owner of a business entity that sells: (1) all or substantially all of its operating assets together with the goodwill of the business entity; (2) all or substantially all of the operating assets of a division or a subsidiary of the business entity together with the goodwill of that division or subsidiary; or (3) all of the ownership interest of any subsidiary.

Bus. & Prof. Code § 16601 has been interpreted by some courts to apply only to the sale of all or substantially all the stock of a business [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 16601(b); Bosley Med. Group v. Abramson (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 284, 290-292, 207 Cal. Rptr. 477 (agreement not to compete held unenforceable under any interpretation because forced sale of stock to employee and redemption ontermination of employment was sham for purposes of bringing noncompetition agreement within exception of Bus. & Prof. Code § 16601); Radiant Indus., Inc. v. Skirvin (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 401, 109 Cal. Rptr. 96 (Bus. & Prof. Code § 16601 not applicable when seller retained 18 percent of stock)].

Other courts have held that a covenant not to compete is enforceable if the selling shareholder had a substantial share of the business or was a substantial contributor to goodwill so that without his or her shares, the purpose of the sale would be frustrated [Vacco Indus., Inc. v. Van Den Berg (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 34, 48-49, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602 (seller was 9th largest shareholder, owning 3 percent of shares, and officer of corporation)].

To uphold a covenant not to compete on the basis of the buyback of corporate stock from an employee leaving the company, there must be a clear indication that, in the sales transaction, the parties valued or considered goodwill as a component of the sales price. A sales price that is significantly below market value is evidence that goodwill was not a component [Hill Med. Corp. v. Wycoff (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 895, 906-907, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 779 (covenant unenforceable because repurchase price of employee's shares was substantially below fair market value and employee owned only 7 percent of total shares in corporation)]. Retention by the seller of an insubstantial amount of nonoperating or unrelated assets will not defeat the noncompetition covenant [Fleming v. Ray-Suzuki, Inc. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 574, 583, 275 Cal. Rptr. 150 (sale of mail order business in United States; retained assets were nonoperating assets related to activities outside United States)].

The exception of Bus. & Prof. Code § 16601 applies when one corporation is acquired and merged with another corporation, if under the terms of the merger all shares in the first corporation are surrendered in return for shares in the second corporation [Hilb, Rogal & Hamilton Ins. v. Robb (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1812, 1824-1825, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 887] . Thus, a covenant not to compete executed as part of the merger agreement by a party surrendering his or her shares in the acquired business is valid under that statute [Hilb, Rogal & Hamilton Ins. v. Robb (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1812, 1825, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 887] . Moreover, under those circumstances, the covenant is valid regardless of whether it is found in the merger agreement or a separate employment contract, so long as the evidence demonstrates that the non-competition agreement was executed as part of the sale or disposition of the shareholder's stock in the acquired corporation [Hilb, Rogal & Hamilton Ins. v. Robb (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1812, 1826, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 887] .

When a covenant not to compete is executed as an adjunct to a sale of a business, there is an inference that the business had a "goodwill" and that it was transferred. An injunction implementing a covenant not to compete and extending to the territory specified in the agreement, is not overbroad because it exceeds the county or physical location of the buildings, plants, warehouses, or the area in which actual sales were made. Appropriate territorial limits are coextensive with the entire area in which the parties conducted all phases of their business including production, promotion, and marketing activities as well as sales [Alliant Ins. Services, Inc. v. Gaddy (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 1292, 1302-1306, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 259 (upholding restriction covering all 58 counties of California); Monogram Indus., Inc. v. Sar Indus., Inc. (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 692, 701-703, 134 Cal. Rptr. 714 (nationwide injunction)].

The language in Bus. & Prof. Code § 16601 limiting the scope of covenants not to compete to "counties and cities" is not limited to California. If the market, goodwill, and area intended by the parties to be encompassed by the covenant not to compete extend outside California, the covenant encompasses areas outside California [Fleming v. Ray-Suzuki, Inc. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 574, 583, 275 Cal. Rptr. 150 (injunction not to compete in mail-order business of selling tennis products in United States)].

Bus. & Prof. Code § 16601 has been held inapplicable to a noncompetition clause pertaining to termination of a franchise agreement because of the dissimilarity between termination of a franchise and the sale of a business. Therefore, the noncompetition clause was held to be void and unenforceable against former franchisees who began competing businesses [see Scott v. Snelling & Snelling, Inc. (N.D. Cal. 1990) 732 F. Supp. 1034, 1041 (describing franchise as more like a lease of goodwill)].

Concluding that Bus. & Prof. Code § 16601 is intended to protect the value of the business that is sold, the court of appeal has held that an agreement prohibiting the seller from soliciting the employees and customers of the buying company is not enforceable under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16601. Although an agreement prohibiting the seller from soliciting the former employees and customers of the sold company would be protected, the assets of the buying company that were not part of the acquired company are not so protected [Strategix, Ltd. v. Infocrossing W., Inc.

(2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1068, 1073-1074, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614] . However, if the seller goes to work for the buyer as an employee after selling the company, a covenant prohibiting that employee from soliciting the buying company's customers in the event of termination of employment may be enforceable if necessary to protect the buyer's trade secrets, which may include confidential client information [Alliant Ins. Services, Inc. v. Gaddy (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 1292, 1306-1307, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 259].

If a noncompetition covenant is valid under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16601, any injunction implementing the covenant must be limited to those types of activities with respect to which the parties can and do actually compete. For example, an injunction against a former attorney-employee-director of a labor relations consulting firm was was held to be overbroad to the extent that it prohibited the attorney from providing legal services to clients of the firm because the firm was not licensed to provide those services [see Matull & Assocs. v. Cloutier (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1049, 1055-1056, 240 Cal. Rptr. 211] .

[2] Dissolution of Partnership

Another exception to the general prohibition against restraints on trade or profession set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600 pertains to the dissolution of a partnership [see Howard v. Babcock (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 409, 416, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 80, 863 P.2d 150] . Bus. & Prof. Code § 16602 provides that a partner, on dissolution of a partnership or in anticipation of dissolution, may agree not to carry on a similar business within a specified geographical area where the partnership business has been transacted, so longas any other member of the partnership (or any person deriving title to the business or goodwill of the partnership from another member of the partnership) is carrying on a like business in that area [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16602; see Alliance Payment Systems, Inc. v. Walczer (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 620, 637, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 789 (provision unenforceable when lacking requirement that former partner remain engaged in like business in order to benefit from terms of provision)]. A ban on soliciting specified clients is sufficient to meet the requirement that the agreement be limited to the specified geographic area in which the former partnership conducted business, so long as the clients had places of business known to the parties to be located in that specified area [Alliance Payment Systems, Inc. v. Walczer (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 620, 642-643, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 789] .

The requirement of a transfer of goodwill found in Bus. & Prof. Code § 16601 is not read into Bus. & Prof. Code § 16602. Thus, a partnership agreement that prevents a departing partner whose interest is bought by the continuing partners from competing with them is valid even though it does not expressly provide for the transfer of a portion of the goodwill of the partnership or take goodwill into account in valuing the departing partner's interest [South Bay Radiology Med. Assoc. v. Asher (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1092, 220 Cal. App. 3d 1074, 1082-1084, 269 Cal. Rptr. 15] . For discussion relating to enforcement of a noncompetition clause against a partner who is dissociated from a partnership, see Ch. 403, Partnerships: Actions by and Against Dissociated Partners, § 403.14.

Bus. & Prof. Code § 16602, on its face, applies to law partnerships [Howard v. Babcock (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 409, 417-418, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 80, 863 P.2d 150] . However, special considerations apply to covenants not to compete involving withdrawing law partners because of Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 1-500(A), which prohibits a State Bar member from making an agreement that restricts his or her right to practice law on termination of an employment, shareholder, or partnership relationship. Nevertheless, the Supreme Court has held that Rule 1-500 does not prohibit an agreement that does restrict an attorney's practice of law, but merely assesses a reasonable cost against a withdrawing partner who chooses to compete with his or her former partners (e.g., a provision forfeiting a competing partner's withdrawal benefits other than his or her capital interest) [Howard v. Babcock (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 409, 418-419, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 80, 863 P.2d 150 ; see also Haight, Brown & Bonesteel v. Superior Court (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 963, 969-972, 285 Cal. Rptr. 845 (reaching same conclusion)].

[3] Sale of Interest in Limited Liability Company

Another exception to Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600 applies to members of limited liability companies. Any member may, on or in anticipation of the dissolution of a limited liability company or a sale of his or her interest in a limited liability company, agree that he or she will not carry on a similar business within a specified geographical area where the limitedliability company's business has been transacted for so long as any other member of the company (or any person deriving title to the company's business or goodwill from another member) carries on a like business in the specified area [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16602.5].

[4] Labor and Labor Activities

Bus. & Prof. Code § 16703 specifies that labor is not a "commodity" within the meaning of the Cartwright Act. The "labor" exemption of Bus. & Prof. Code § 16703 is not limited to agreements to set the price of labor. It extends to combinations of laborers for purposes of furthering their interests by collective bargaining, when not otherwise unlawful. A labor union, acting alone, violates the Cartwright Act only when its primary purpose is to accomplish a restraint of trade, not when its purpose is to obtain a valid labor objective [Messner v. Journeymen Barbers, Hairdressers & Cosmetologists, Int'l Union of Am. (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 873, 886, 4 Cal. Rptr. 179, 351 P.2d 347] . Therefore, peaceful picketing, if directed to a proper objective, is not enjoinable under the Cartwright Act even if the employees of the establishment being picketed do not wish to join the union and even if the employer loses business on account of the picketing [Messner v. Journeymen Barbers, Hairdressers & Cosmetologists, Int'l Union of Am. (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 873, 877-883, 4 Cal. Rptr. 179, 351 P.2d 347] .

The labor exemption is broad enough to protect more than employees or wage earners. It protects activities by independent contractors whose economic function is the same as that of employees if the activities serve the legitimate labor objective of increasing the amount they are paid or improving their working conditions [California Dental Assn. v. California Dental Hygienists' Assn. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 49, 64-65, 271 Cal. Rptr. 410 (exchange of fee information, refusal to refer hygienists to dentists for less than minimum rate); Los Angeles Pie Bakers Asso. v. Bakery Drivers Local No. 276 (1953) 122 Cal. App. 2d 237, 239, 243 (independent drivers paid percentage of resale prices)]. Thus, the workers need not be part of a union or collective bargaining unit for their activities to be exempted [California Dental Assn. v. California Dental Hygienists' Assn. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 49, 67-70, 271 Cal. Rptr. 410] . Similarly, the exemption extends to employment agencies working with the labor groups to raise and maintain compensation levels [California Dental Assn. v. California Dental Hygienists' Assn. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 49, 70-71, 271 Cal. Rptr. 410 ; see also H.A. Artists & Assocs. v. Actors' Equity Ass'n (1981) 451 U.S. 704, 707-708, 717-721, 101 S. Ct. 2102, 68 L. Ed. 2d 558] . However, the exemption does not apply if the independent contractors are "entrepreneur service providers" and the challenged activity is designed to advance their interests as entrepreneurs rather than as employees [Marin County Bd. of Realtors, Inc. v. Palsson (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 920, 927-928, 130 Cal. Rptr. 1, 549 P.2d 833 (real estate broker); California Dental Ass'nv. California Dental Hygienists' Ass'n (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 49, 65-66, 271 Cal. Rptr. 410] .

The labor exemption of Bus. & Prof. Code § 16703 will not protect all union activity or all collective bargaining agreements. For example, provisions of an agreement prohibiting the sale of prepackaged meats at all and after 6:00 p.m. have been held void as restraining trade [Alpha Beta Mkts. v. Amalgamated Meat Cutters (1956) 147 Cal. App. 2d 343, 346-350, 305 P.2d 163 ; Kold Kist v. Amalgamated Meat Cutters (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 191, 197-201, 221 P.2d 724] .

Apart from the labor exemption set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code § 16703, application of the Cartwright Act to activities that are within the jurisdiction of the National Labor Relations Board may potentially be preempted by federal labor law [see Guss v. Utah Labor Relations Bd. (1957) 353 U.S. 1, 9-11, 77 S. Ct. 598, 1 L. Ed. 2d 601 ; San Diego Bldg. Trades Council v. Garmon (1957) 353 U.S. 26, 28-29, 77 S. Ct. 607, 1 L. Ed. 2d 618] . For full discussion of federal labor law preemption, see NLRA Law and Practice, Ch. 22 (Matthew Bender).

[5] Petitioning Government for Redress of Grievance (Noerr-Pennington Doctrine)

[a] General Rule

The Noerr-Pennington doctrine provides that there is no antitrust liability under the Sherman Act for efforts to influence government that are protected by the First Amendment right to petition for redress of grievances, even when the motive behind such actions is anticompetitive [Professional Real Estate Investors v. Columbia Pictures Indus. Inc. (1993) 508 U.S. 49, 113 S. Ct. 1920, 123 L. Ed. 2d 611, 621-622 ; see Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 320, 216 Cal. Rptr. 718, 703 P.2d 58 ; Hi-Top Steel Corp. v. Lehrer (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 570, 574, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 646] . The doctrine originated in the U.S. Supreme Court's decision in Eastern R. Presidents Conference v. Noerr Motor Freight, Inc. (1961) 365 U.S. 127, 81 S. Ct. 523, 5 L. Ed. 2d 464 , in which the Court held that alleged lobbying efforts by the railroad industry to foster legislation that would be adverse to the trucking industry could not form the basis for liability under the Sherman Act, even if the defendants' motive was to injure competition [see Eastern R. Presidents Conference v. Noerr Motor Freight, Inc. (1961) 365 U.S. 127, 136-140, 81 S. Ct. 523, 5 L. Ed. 2d 464 ; see also United Mine Workers v. Pennington (1965) 381 U.S. 657, 669-670, 85 S. Ct. 1585, 14 L. Ed. 2d 626 ; Sessions Tank Liners, Inc. v. Joor Mfg., Inc. (9th Cir. 1994) 17 F.3d 295, 299-300 (defendant shielded from antitrust liability for false statements made to induce influential standard-setting body to set new standard that was unfavorable to plaintiff competitor because direct cause of plaintiff's damages was governmental action, i.e., denial of permits by local officials who enforce those standards)]. In a later decision, the Court made clearthat the Noerr-Pennington doctrine applies to judicial and administrative, as well as legislative, proceedings [California Transp. v. Trucking Unlimited (1972) 404 U.S. 508, 510-511, 92 S. Ct. 609, 30 L. Ed. 2d 642 ; see Professional Real Estate Investors v. Columbia Pictures Indus. Inc. (1993) 508 U.S. 49, 113 S. Ct. 1920, 123 L. Ed. 2d 611, 621-622] .

Although the Noerr-Pennington doctrine originated in the context of federal antitrust litigation, the California Supreme Court has applied the doctrine to actions under the Cartwright Act [see Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 320-322, 216 Cal. Rptr. 718, 703 P.2d 58 (defendants' actions aimed at influencing city to license defendants' poker club were protected by Noerr-Pennington doctrine from Cartwright Act claim)].

[b] "Sham" Exception

Efforts to influence government that are merely a "sham" are not protected by the Noerr-Pennington doctrine and are subject to antitrust liability [see California Transp. v. Trucking Unlimited (1972) 404 U.S. 508, 512-513, 92 S. Ct. 609, 30 L. Ed. 2d 642 ; Eastern R. Presidents Conference v. Noerr Motor Freight, Inc. (1961) 365 U.S. 127, 144, 81 S. Ct. 523, 5 L. Ed. 2d 464 ; Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 321-322 ; Hi-Top Steel Corp. v. Lehrer (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 570, 575]. The sham exception encompasses situations in which persons use the governmental process, as opposed to the outcome of that process, as an anticompetitive weapon [Columbia v. Omni Outdoor Adver. (1991) 499 U.S. 365, 380, 111 S. Ct. 1344, 113 L. Ed. 2d 382] . The sham exception has been applied to California actions for unfair competition [see Hi-Top Steel Corp. v. Lehrer (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 570, 579, 581-583, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 646 (defendants' alleged false and baseless statements to city officials about plaintiffs' plans for automobile body shredder made for purpose of causing regulatory delays constituted sufficient facts to support application of sham exception); see also Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 321-322, 325-326, 216 Cal. Rptr. 718, 703 P.2d 58 (recognizing doctrine in action under Cartwright Act, but finding it inapplicable under facts of case)].

Litigation will not be deemed a sham unless the lawsuit is so objectively baseless that no reasonable litigant could realistically expect success on the merits [Professional Professional Real Estate Investors v. Columbia Pictures Indus. Inc. (1993) 508 U.S. 49, 113 S. Ct. 1920, 123 L. Ed. 2d 611, 624, 625 ; see, e.g., Liberty Lake Invs. v. Magnuson (9th Cir. 1993) 12 F.3d 155, 157-158 (environmental litigation instituted by competitor in attempt to prevent plaintiff from developing competing shopping center was not objectively baseless and therefore not a sham under Real Estate Investors test)]. The existence of probable cause to institute the legal proceedings thus precludes a finding that the defendant has engaged in sham litigation [Professional Real Estate Investors v. Columbia PicturesIndus. Inc. (1993) 508 U.S. 49, 113 S. Ct. 1920, 123 L. Ed. 2d 611, 625-626] . If an objective litigant could reasonably conclude that the suit is reasonably calculated to elicit a favorable outcome, then the suit is immunized from antitrust liability under the Noerr-Pennington doctrine, regardless of the defendant's subjective intent in bringing the suit [Professional Real Estate Investors v. Columbia Pictures Indus. Inc. (1993) 508 U.S. 49, 113 S. Ct. 1920, 123 L. Ed. 2d 611, 621-622, 624 ; see Liberty Lake Invs. v. Magnuson (9th Cir. 1993) 12 F.3d 155, 157, 159] .

[6] Interstate League Sports

Because the player-team-league relationships in professional baseball and football involve interstate commerce and require national uniformity, application of state antitrust laws is either preempted or prohibited as an undue burden on interstate commerce [see Flood v. Kuhn (2d Cir. 1971) 443 F.2d 264, 267-268 , aff'd, 407 U.S. 258, 92 S. Ct. 2099, 32 L. Ed. 2d 728 (baseball); Partee v. San Diego Chargers Football Co. (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 378, 380, 385, 194 Cal. Rptr. 367, 668 P.2d 674 (football); Hebert v. Los Angeles Raiders, Ltd. (1991) 23 Cal. App. 4th 414, 422-425, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 540 (football; following Partee)].

[7] Trade Associations

Agreements and associations whose purpose and effect is to promote competition in any trade or industry or that are in furtherance of trade are not prohibited under the Cartwright Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16725]. In general, trade association activities tend to promote competition and are lawful. Gathering and compiling industry information and disseminating it among members does not offend antitrust policy, even though it may naturally tend to stabilize that trade or business and to produce uniformity of price and trade practice [BILJAC Assocs. v. First Interstate Bank (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1410, 1430, 267 Cal. Rptr. 819] . Disseminating competitive information, even pricing information, through trade associations is condoned by antitrust law. Members may use that information in management and control of their individual businesses. Only if they take concerted action to restrain trade based on that information is the law violated [BILJAC Assocs. v. First Interstate Bank (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1410, 1430, 1432-1433, 267 Cal. Rptr. 819 (no conspiracy established among bankers associations to set and manipulate variable interest rates on loans to "middle market" commercial borrowers)].

For example, agreements by which a cooperative marketing association that requires its members to sell all their production to it are not prohibited restraints of trade [Poultry Producers of S. Cal. v. Barlow (1922) 189 Cal. 278, 283-285, 208 P. 93 (decided under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16723, which was repealed in 1961)]. Although a federal court stated as dicta that an eligibility rule of bowling proprietors' associations, which limited tournament participation to persons who did all their league bowling inestablishments owned by association members, was protected under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16725, the California court of appeal, without mentioning Bus. & Prof. Code § 16725, held the rules to be an unreasonable restraint of trade and therefore enjoinable [Monument Bowl, Inc. v. Northern Cal. Bowling Proprietors' Ass'n (N.D. Cal. 1961) 197 F. Supp. 208, 210 (dismissal for failure to allege interstate impact reversed sub nom. Breier v. Northern Cal. Bowling Proprietors' Ass'n. (9th Cir. 1963) 316 F.2d 787, 789 , requiring allowance of amendment); People v. Santa Clara Valley Bowling Proprietors' Ass'n (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 225, 236-241, 47 Cal. Rptr. 570 (group boycott as per se restraint)]. Similarly, a trade association that fixes prices and agrees that members will raise their prices to customers who seek to change contractors has gone too far, and such conduct is enjoinable [People v. Building Maint. Contractors' Ass'n, Inc. (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 719, 726-728, 264 P.2d 31] .

The practice of limiting membership in a county board of realtors to those who are engaged full time in the real estate business is an unreasonable restraint of trade, as is denying nonmembers access to the board's multiple listing service [Marin County Bd. of Realtors, Inc. v. Palsson (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 920, 935-940, 130 Cal. Rptr. 1, 549 P.2d 833] . The court in Marin applied the rule of reason standard, rejecting the contention that the practice was a per se unlawful group boycott, and characterizing it as a trade association agreement not directly aimed at coercing third parties and eliminating competitors [Marin County Bd. of Realtors, Inc. v. Palsson (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 920, 930-934, 130 Cal. Rptr. 1, 549 P.2d 833] . In later cases, however, a board's exclusion of nonmembers from its residential multiple listing service was found illegal per se as a group boycott, and its exclusion of nonmembers from its investment multiple listing service was found illegal per se as a tying arrangement [People v. National Ass'n of Realtors (1984) 155 Cal.

App. 3d 578, 583-584, 589, 202 Cal. Rptr. 243 (investment multiple listing service); People v. National Ass'n of Realtors (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 459, 467-469, 174 Cal. Rptr. 728 (residential multiple listing service); see § 565.77[4]].

[8] Insurance

In 1945, Congress passed the McCarran-Ferguson Act (15 U.S.C.S. §§ 1011-1015, hereinafter "the McCarran Act"), exempting insurance from federal antitrust laws to the extent that state law regulated insurance. The federal exemption does not extend, and the Sherman Act therefore applies, to agreements to boycott or coerce and acts of boycott and coercion [15 U.S.C.S. § 1013(b)]. This exception applies to acts of boycott and coercion among insurance companies and agents and was intended to protect agents from insurance company black lists [Addrisi v. Equitable Life Assurance Soc'y of U.S. (9th Cir. 1974) 503 F.2d 725, 728-729] . States were given until June 30, 1948, to pass laws in the field [15 U.S.C.S. § 1012(b)]. In 1947, California enacted Ins. Code §§ 1850-1860.3 (hereinafter "the McBride Act"), which superseded the Cartwright Act with respect to casualty insurance ratemaking [Karlin v. Zalta (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 953, 966-972, 201 Cal. Rptr. 379 ; but see Ins. Code § 1851 (types of insurance not within McBride Act as including title insurance, reinsurance, life insurance, marine insurance, disability insurance, workers' compensation insurance, mortage insurance, and insurance transaction by county fire marshal insurers or reinsurers)]. Substantial amendments to the McBride Act (now see Ins. Code §§ 1850.4-1861.14) were made by Proposition 103, adopted in 1988. The business of insurance is now subject to the laws of California applicable to any other business, including, but not limited to, Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 16600-17101, which encompasses both the Cartwright Act and the Unfair Practices Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17000 et seq.) [Ins. Code § 1861.03(a); see also Industrial Indem. Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1093, 1096-1097, 257 Cal. Rptr. 655 (only injunctive relief is available to third party in action under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203]. Proposition 103 left some minor exemptions for concerted action intact, such as Ins. Code § 1853.5, relating to commonly owned insurers; Ins. Code § 1853.8, governing agreements, which must be approved by the Insurance Commissioner, to apportion risks to provide insurance to applicants who would not otherwise be able to obtain insurance; and Ins. Code § 1855, which allows advisory organizations. Proposition 103 provided for other types of permissible concerted action, such as agreements to collect, compile, and disseminate historical data on paid claims and reserves for reported claims and participation in joint arrangements established by statute or by the Insurance Commissioner to ensure the availability of insurance, and exchange of premium, rate, and underwriting information between agents or brokers and the insurers they represent [Ins. Code § 1861.03(b)].

The procedure for administrative challenges to rates for lines of insurance governed by Ins. Code §§ 1850.4-1861.14 and for judicial review of administrative orders relating to those challenges [see, e.g., Ins. Code §§ 1858-1858.7] were not displaced by Proposition 103, which added new provisions requiring public hearings for approval of rate changes [Ins. Code §§ 1861.05-1861.09]. Any person may initiate or intervene in any proceeding permitted or established by Ins. Code §§ 1850.4-1861.14, challenge any action of the Insurance Commissioner under the new procedures (Ins. Code §§ 1861.01-1861.14), and enforce any provision of Ins. Code §§ 1861.01-1861.14 [Ins. Code § 1861.10(a); but see Karlin v. Zalta (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 953, 975, 983-987, 201 Cal. Rptr. 379 (decided before passage of Proposition 103, requiring exhaustion of administrative remedies provided by Ins. Code §§ 1858-1858.7 prior to initiating action regarding rates)].

The doctrine of primary jurisdiction may be applied to require courts to refrain from proceeding with a case until the Insurance Commissioner has determined the issue even when the applicable statutes do not require it and do not require exhaustion of administrative remedies. Application ofthe doctrine of primary jurisdiction rests on the administrative agency's special competence with respect to a specific statutory scheme or issue and is determined on a case by case basis. Thus, because of the factual complexities of automobile insurance ratemaking, application of the doctrine was appropriate to stay an action under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17204-17206 seeking redress for an insurer's failure to offer good driver discounts mandated by Ins. Code §§ 1861.02, 1861.05 pending administrative proceedings by the Insurance Commissioner [Farmers Ins. Exch. v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 377, 390-401, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 487, 826 P.2d 730] .

In addition, in 1959, California passed Ins. Code §§ 790 et seq. (hereinafter "the Unfair Practices Act" or "UPA"), establishing unfair practices in insurance. Ins. Code § 790.03(c) mirrors the Cartwright Act by prohibiting any act of boycott, coercion, or intimidation resulting in or tending to result in unreasonable restraint of, or monopoly in, the business of insurance. Coercion prohibited by this section is coercion in the antitrust sense, conduct that constitutes the improper use of economic power to compel another to submit to the wishes of the one who wields it [Greenberg v. Equitable Life Assurance Soc'y (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 994, 999, 110 Cal. Rptr. 470 (tying); see Bodenhamer v. Superior Court (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 180, 183-185, 223 Cal. Rptr. 486 (Ins. Code § 790.03(h), unfair settlement practices, as applicable to independent insurance adjusters); but see Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 297-305, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58 (prospectively abrogating private third-party standing under Ins. Code § 790.03(h)); Love v. Fire Ins. Exch. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1136, 1144 n.4, 271 Cal. Rptr. 246 (Moradi-Shalal abrogated first-party right of action under Ins. Code § 790.03); Smith v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 1104, 1116, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 131 (same); Maler v. Superior Court (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1592, 1597-1601, 270 Cal. Rptr. 222 (same, and Proposition 103 did not establish or revive any right of action under Ins. Code § 1861.03); Zephyr Park v. Superior Court (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 833, 836-838, 262 Cal. Rptr. 106 (same re first-party right of action, but refusing to apply rule retroactively)]. For discussion and forms relating to unfair settlement practices, including rights of both insureds and third parties under the Unfair Practices Act (Ins. Code § 790 et seq.), see Ch. 308, Insurance .

Thus, when an insurance company doing business both within California and nationwide required borrowers of loans on single family properties to obtain from it a whole life policy and to pledge the policy as additional security for the loan, no federal antitrust cause of action could be stated because state law had regulated insurance, but a cause of action for illegal tie-in could be stated under California law if the insurance company enjoyed a dominant position in the home loan market [Addrisi v. Equitable Life Assurance Soc'y of U.S. (9th Cir. 1974) 503 F.2d 725, 728-729 ; Greenberg v. Equitable Life Assurance Soc'y (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 994, 998-1000, 110 Cal. Rptr. 470] .

Although Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58 , which abrogated private third-party standing to recover for unfair settlement practices that violate Ins. Code § 790.03(h), distinguished Shernoff v. Superior Court (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 406, 409-410, 118 Cal. Rptr. 680 (class action alleging conspiracy to fix price of title insurance), and Greenberg v. Equitable Life Assurance Soc'y (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 994, 1001, 110 Cal. Rptr. 470 (class action challenging illegal tying), as not involving either third parties or Ins. Code § 790.03(h) [see Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 295, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58] , the language of that decision to the effect that Ins. Code § 790.09 does not support private civil remedies is so broad that it may also be applied to foreclose private remedies for anticompetitive violations of Ins. Code § 790.03(c) [see Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 304-305, 320, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58] .

[9] Bargaining Units for Health Care Coverage

There are several statutory schemes under which price fixing of health care costs are authorized, such as Health & Safety Code § 1340 et seq. (health care service plans), Ins. Code § 10133 et seq. (fixed-price contracts between doctors, hospitals, other health care providers and insurers), and Ins. Code § 11512 et seq. (hospital service plans). The California Legislature recognized that State of Arizona v. Maricopa Med. Soc'y (1982) 457 U.S. 332, 352-357, 102 S. Ct. 2466, 73 L. Ed. 2d 48 , which held that medical society fee ceilings constitute per se violations of federal antitrust law, served as a disincentive for medical societies and other health care providers to bargain in groups regarding the types of fixed-price contracts mentioned above. Thus, in 1985, the legislature enacted Bus. & Prof. Code § 16770, Health & Safety Code § 1342.6, and Ins. Code § 10133.6 to provide an antitrust exemption for groups and combinations of providers and purchasers formed to create efficient-sized bargaining units for those types of health care coverage. Antitrust law still applies to other aspects of the contracts and combinations, including agreements or arrangements to exclude any person who is lawfully qualified to perform the service because he or she does not have the same license or certification as the members of the group or combination [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16770(g),(h)].

For several reasons, alleged anticompetitive effects of health care plans provisions are to be tested by the rule of reason. A plan that is an integrated plan within the definition set forth by the Federal Trade Commission should, as stated by the Commission, generally be judged under the rule of reason standard. Practices that are designed to increase economic efficiency and render markets more, rather than less, competitive should be judged by the rule of reason standard [Reynolds v. California Dental Serv. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 590, 597, 246 Cal. Rptr. 331] . The fact that the legislature enacted Bus. & Prof. Code § 16770(g) and*(h)* indicates thatit intended to permit provider-controlled medical plans despite their potential for competitive harm. Thus, the legislature may have mandated that the rule of reason be used to test the practices of those plans [Reynolds v. California Dental Serv. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 590, 596-597, 599-600, 246 Cal. Rptr. 331] . Also, the per se standard is usually not applied until the courts have considerable experience with the business relationship involved. Neither the California nor the federal courts have much exposure to the antitrust implications of prepaid medical plans [Reynolds v. California Dental Serv. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 590, 597-598, 246 Cal. Rptr. 331] . The usual fee requirement of most plans does not fix prices at a specific level, and thus is not plainly anticompetitive [Reynolds v. California Dental Serv. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 590, 598, 246 Cal. Rptr. 331] .

The California court of appeal has rejected antitrust and unfair competition claims stemming from an exclusive provider contract between Blue Cross and a physical therapy provider group brought by competing physical therapy providers. Under the contract between Blue Cross and the defendant provider group, the provider group would accept reduced rates from Blue Cross for its services but would be the exclusive preferred provider of physical therapy services for Blue Cross members. The court in that case concluded that such agreement was expressly authorized by these statutes, notwithstanding the fact that it inhibited the ability of competing providers to compete on the basis of price [Lori Rubinstein Physical Therapy, Inc. v. PTPN, Inc. (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 1130, 1139, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 351] . In addition, the fact that the defendant provider group restricted the number of its providers by geographic location did not constitute an antitrust violation, as these restrictions helped the group sustain an efficient-sized contracting unit by guaranteeing a certain volume of patients to its member providers [Lori Rubinstein Physical Therapy, Inc. v. PTPN, Inc. (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 1130, 1141, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 351 ; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 16770(g)]. The court did recognize, however, that an antitrust violation might be found if one or more providers or provider groups used coercion, threats, or intimidation to convince an insurer to refuse to negotiate with other providers or provider groups [Lori Rubinstein Physical Therapy, Inc. v. PTPN, Inc. (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 1130, 1140, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 351] .

[10] Municipal Activities

Municipal governments, although they can sue as plaintiffs under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16750(b), cannot be sued as defendants under the Cartwright Act. This immunity extends to individual members of a city's governing body. This municipal immunity under Cartwright is broader than state action immunity under federal antitrust law that would apply only if the state compelled the activity in question [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16702; People ex rel. Freitas v. City & County of San Francisco (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 913, 917-921, 925-926, 155 Cal. Rptr. 319] . Not only is the municipal activity protected, but so are private citizens' attempts to influence municipal activity. This is true even though pleaded as a conspiracy between public officials and private citizens and even when there are anticompetitive effects, such as the private citizen's being given a monopoly in a business requiring a city license [Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 322-327, 216 Cal. Rptr. 718, 703 P.2d 58] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Restraints Of Trade

49-565 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 565.74

§ 565.74 Determination of Validity and Effect of Conduct or Agreement

[1] Interpretation and Application

A contract that appears by its terms to be in restraint of trade is not necessarily so, for example, when the offending provision has never in fact been enforced. It is not the combination or particular means used but the result to be achieved that antitrust law condemns [Corwin v. Los Angeles Newspaper Serv. Bureau, Inc. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 302, 312-315, 148 Cal. Rptr. 918, 583 P.2d 777] .

[2] Rule of Reason

Although the Sherman Act and the Cartwright Act by their express terms forbid all restraints on trade, each has been interpreted to permit by implication those restraints found to be reasonable [Standard Oil Co. v. United States (1911) 221 U.S. 1, 60, 31 S. Ct. 502, 55 L. Ed. 619 ; People v. Building Maint. Contractors' Ass'n (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 719, 727, 264 P.2d 31] . Factors to be considered in determining whether or not a particular restraint is unreasonable include the facts peculiar to the business to which the restraint is applied; the condition of the particular business or market before and after the restraint is imposed; the nature of the restraint, and its effect, actual or probable; the history of the restraint; the evil the restraint was implemented to curb and other reasons for adopting it [Board of Trade v. United States (1918) 246 U.S. 231, 238, 38 S. Ct. 242, 62 L. Ed. 683 ; Corwin v. Los Angeles Newspaper Serv. Bureau, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 842, 854, 94 Cal. Rptr. 785, 484 P.2d 953 ; Kolling v. Dow Jones & Co. (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 709, 727, 187 Cal. Rptr. 797] . The court should consider the percentage of business controlled, the strength of the remaining competition, and whether the action springs from requirements of business or from a purpose to monopolize [United States v. Columbia Steel Co. (1948) 334 U.S. 495, 527, 68 S. Ct. 1107, 92 L. Ed. 1533 ; Corwin v. Los Angeles Newspaper Serv. Bureau, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 842, 854, 94 Cal. Rptr. 785, 484 P.2d 953] . Whether a restraint of trade is unreasonable or not is a question of fact to be determined at trial [Corwin v. Los Angeles Newspaper Serv. Bureau, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 842, 855, 94 Cal. Rptr. 785, 484 P.2d 953] .

For additional discussion, see*§ 565.73[9]*.

[3] Relevant Market

Federal courts applying the rule of reason to vertical restraints of trade (thoseimposed by persons or firms further up the chain of distribution of a specific product than the enterprise restrained), have required a threshold inquiry into the defendant's market power, which is usually equated with market share. To meet the initial burden in establishing that the practice is an unreasonable restraint of trade, plaintiff must show that the activity is of the type that restrains trade, and that the restraint is likely to be of significant magnitude. Ordinarily, plaintiff must delineate a relevant market, and show that defendant plays enough of a role in that market to impair competition significantly. The relevant market may be a question of fact, although the issue becomes one of law if the undisputed facts leave no room for a reasonable difference of opinion [Exxon Corp. v. Superior Court (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1672, 1682 (in Cartright Act action by Exxon franchisee gasoline service station dealers, relevant market for assessing anticompetitive behavior was question of law and was all gasoline, not wholesale market for Exxon fuel); see also Roth v. Rhodes (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 530, 542, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 706] .

[4] Per Se

The per se doctrine is applied if a particular practice and the setting in which it occurs are sufficient to compel the conclusion that competitionis unreasonably restrained. Consequently the practice is illegal without any inquiry as to the precise harm caused or the business excuse for its use [B. W. I. Custom Kitchen v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1341, 1348-1350, 235 Cal. Rptr. 228 ; Marin County Bd. of Realtors, Inc. v. Palsson (1976) 130 Cal. Rptr. 1, 549 P.2d 833] . When conduct is to be tested by the per se standard, most defenses are irrelevant, and the pleading and proof requirements of the specific harm element are relaxed because these practices are deemed so harmful to competition as to amount to public harms [Klor's v. Broadway-Hale Stores (1959) 359 U.S. 207, 210-214, 79 S. Ct. 705, 3 L. Ed. 2d 741 ; B. W. I. Custom Kitchen v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1341, 1348-1350, 235 Cal. Rptr. 228 ; but see ARCO v. USA Petroleum (1990) 495 U.S. 328, 335-340, 110 S. Ct. 1884, 109 L. Ed. 2d 333 (vertical conspiracy to maintain low prices is illegal per se, but, unless pricing is predatory, competitor has no actionable injury, and effects may actually be procompetitive for consumers); Mozart Co. v. Mercedes-Benz of N. Am., Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 833 F.2d 1342, 1348-1349 (federal law allows business justification defense in action on per se illegal tying arrangement)]. Among the practices that the courts have heretofore deemed to be unlawful in and of themselves are price fixing, division of markets, group boycotts, and tying arrangements [Northern Pac. Ry. Co. v. United States (1958) 356 U.S. 1, 5, 78 S. Ct. 514, 2 L. Ed. 2d 545 ; Corwin v. Los Angeles Newspaper Serv. Bureau, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 842, 853, 94 Cal. Rptr. 785, 484 P.2d 953 (tying); B. W. I. Custom Kitchen v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1341, 1348, 235 Cal. Rptr. 228 (price fixing); Kolling v. Dow Jones & Co. (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 709, 721, 187 Cal. Rptr. 797 (price fixing); but see ARCO v. USA Petroleum (1990) 495 U.S. 328, 335-346, 110 S. Ct. 1884, 109 L. Ed. 2d 333 (exception for vertical nonpredatory "maximum price fixing conspiracy," which may have procompetitive effect); Mozart Co. v. Mercedes-Benz of N. Am., Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 833 F.2d 1342, 1348-1349 (allowing business justification defense to tying arrangement that is illegal per se)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Restraints Of Trade

§ 565.75 Mergers

The Cartwright Act does not regulate mergers--that is, the bona fide purchase and sale of one firm by another [State of California ex rel. Van de Kamp v. Texaco, Inc. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1147, 1151, 1164-1166, 252 Cal. Rptr. 221, 762 P.2d 385] . The Act applies only to situations in which the parties improperly collude and continue as separate, independent entities. It does not apply to situations in which, by virtue of purchase and sale, or merger, one or more of the entities ceases to exist [State of California ex rel. Van de Kamp v. Texaco, Inc. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1147, 1151, 1164-1166, 252 Cal. Rptr. 221, 762 P.2d 385] .

Several decisions have stated that the Cartwright Act is patterned after the Sherman Act, or after a bill that was proposed, but rejected as an alternative to what became the Sherman Act. Although those statements are adequate for some analyses, and judicial interpretation of the Sherman Act is often helpful if not directly probative of the intent of the drafters of the Cartwright Act, more precise analysis of the history of the Cartwright Act is necessary to determine whether it was intended to regulate mergers [State of California ex rel. Van de Kamp v. Texaco, Inc. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1147, 1153-1154, 1168-1169, 252 Cal. Rptr. 221, 762 P.2d 385] . In 1907, when Cartwright was enacted, many state laws, including the 1903 version of the Texas law, contained antimerger provisions. However, the Cartwright Act uses language identical to the 1889 version of the Texas act, under which the term "combination" had been held not to include a merger, and to the 1899 Michigan act. Neither of those two laws contained antimerger provisions. Also, the Cartwright Act uses the term "combination" without any modification to avoid the then-prevailing narrow construction of that term [State of California ex rel. Van de Kamp v. Texaco, Inc. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1147, 1160-1163, 1168-1169, 252 Cal. Rptr. 221, 762 P.2d 385] . Additionally, the Cartwright Act has been amended 26 times between 1909 and 1988, including the 1961 addition of Bus. & Prof. Code § 16727, which is essentially Section 3 of the Clayton Act (15 U.S.C.S. § 14). Thus, the California Legislature was certainly well aware of the Clayton Act, and, if it intended the Cartwright Act to apply to mergers, it could have adopted the language of Section 7 of the Clayton Act (15 U.S.C.S. § 18) [State of California ex rel. Van de Kamp v. Texaco, Inc. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1147, 1162-1163, 1163 n.15, 252 Cal. Rptr. 221, 762 P.2d 385] .

The Cartwright Act is not a codification of the common law of restraint of trade [State of California ex rel. Van de Kamp v. Texaco, Inc. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1147, 1166, 252 Cal. Rptr. 221, 762 P.2d 385] . The majority view at common law was that a merger or acquisition was illegal if it involved a clear, actual threat to competition, but not if it only involved an incipient threat to competition. It may be that a common law remedy has survived for a merger that is illegal by common law standards. The common law remedy made the merger agreement void and unenforceable or subject to prosecution by the state by quo warranto [State of California ex rel. Van de Kamp v. Texaco, Inc. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1147, 1167-1168, 252 Cal. Rptr. 221, 762 P.2d 385 (dicta because no challenge on common law grounds was made)].

Under federal law, a merger may be attacked under Section 1 or 2 of the Sherman Act (15 U.S.C.S. §§ 1, 2) or under Section 7 of the Clayton Act (15 U.S.C.S. § 18). A merger is illegal under Section 1 of the Sherman Act (15 U.S.C.S. § 1) if it effects an unreasonable restraint of trade. Section 2 of the Sherman Act (15 U.S.C.S. § 2) prohibits monopolies. A merger may be attacked under Section 7 of the Clayton Act (15 U.S.C.S. § 18) if it might substantially lessen competition [State of California v. American Stores (9th Cir. 1989) 872 F.2d 837, 841 , rev'd on other grounds, 495 U.S. 271, 110 S. Ct. 1853, 109 L. Ed. 2d 240 (1990) ; State of California ex rel. Van de Kamp v. Texaco, Inc. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1147, 1164-1165, 252 Cal. Rptr. 221, 762 P.2d 385] . Thus, a merger may be subject to attack under the Clayton Act even if it would be proper under Sherman Act standards [State of California ex rel. Van de Kamp v. Texaco, Inc. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1147, 1164 n.14, 252 Cal. Rptr. 221, 762 P.2d 385] . A merger may substantially lessen competition by permitting one firm to control an undue share of the relevant market and by significantly increasing the concentration of firms in that market [State of California v. American Stores (9th Cir. 1989) 872 F.2d 837, 841 , rev'd on other grounds, 495 U.S. 271, 110 S. Ct. 1853, 109 L. Ed. 2d 240 (1990)] . Relevant indicia of competitive effects are (1) the market shares of the merging firms, (2) the degree of concentration in the market, and (3) the degree to which that concentration will be increased by the merger. Statistics that indicate excessive postmerger market share and market concentration create a presumption that the merger violates the Clayton Act [State of California v. American Stores (9th Cir. 1989) 872 F.2d 837, 842 , rev'd on other grounds, 495 U.S. 271 (1990)]. However, the absence of barriers to entry into a market constrains anticompetitive conduct, regardless of the market's degree of concentration [United States v. Syufy Enters. (9th Cir. 1990) 903 F.2d 659, 664-667 ; State of California v. American Stores (9th Cir. 1989) 872 F.2d 837, 842-843 , rev'd on other grounds, 495 U.S. 271, 110 S. Ct. 1853, 109 L. Ed. 2d 240 (1990) (factors relevant to analysis of existence of entry barriers)].

When a merger threatens to cause irreparable harm by substantially lessening competition, or when the merger has been completed and has substantially lessened competition, an injunction under 15 U.S.C.S. § 26 restraining the merger or requiring divestiture is available [State of California v. American Stores Co. (1990) 495 U.S. 271, 279-285, 110 S. Ct. 1853, 109 L. Ed. 2d 240] . Divestiture is available under 15 U.S.C.S. § 26 in actions initiated by private parties whose own interests are threatened with loss or damage, as well as under 15 U.S.C.S. § 25 in actions initiated by the Federal Trade Commission or the United States [State of California v. American Stores Co. (1990) 495 U.S. 271, 279-285, 295-296, 110 S. Ct. 1853, 109 L. Ed. 2d 240 (however, laches may protect consummated transactions from belated attacks by private parties if it would not be too late for government to vindicate public interest)]. A preliminary injunction requiring the merged entities to be operated separately is considered a way of maintaining the status quo in the event that a permanent injunction requiring divestiture is granted [see State of California v. American Stores Co. (1990) 495 U.S. 271, 274, 296, 110 S. Ct. 1853, 109 L. Ed. 2d 240, 262] .

To the extent that the Cartwright Act could be said to be patterned after the Sherman Act, a merger challenge under the Cartwright Act would require the same showing, namely that the merger effected an unreasonable restraint of trade [State of California ex rel. Van de Kamp v. Texaco, Inc. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1147, 1165, 252 Cal. Rptr. 221, 762 P.2d 385] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Restraints Of Trade

§ 565.76 Monopoly

Under federal law, a single entity may violate antitrust law by creating or being a monopoly [15 U.S.C.S. § 2]. There is no similar provision in California law, though Bus. & Prof. Code § 16727 prohibits specified acts by one entity that may tend to create a monopoly. For discussion of Bus. & Prof. Code § 16727, see*§ 565.71[4]*. Still, a least one case has said that monopoly, though not specifically listed, is a prohibited restraint of trade in California and has adopted the federal definition: that the offense of monopoly involves the willful acquisition of the power to control prices or exclude competition from commerce in a particular geographic area with respect to a specific product [Lowell v. Mother's Cake & Cookie Co. (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 13, 23, 144 Cal. Rptr. 664 ; see United States v. Grinnell Corp. (1966) 384 U.S. 563, 86 S. Ct. 1698, 16 L. Ed. 2d 778 ; United States v. Aluminum Co. of Am. (2d Cir. 1945) 148 F.2d 416); see also Cowan, California's Single-Firm Monopoly Loophole, 18 Cal. W. L. Rev. 240 (1982)].

Even if the "offense" charged is not monopoly, monopoly power is relevant in several contexts in California. An entity with monopoly power may not use its refusal to deal with others to restrain trade [R.E. Spriggs Co. v. Adolph Coors Co. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 419, 425-426, 156 Cal. Rptr. 738 ; see § 565.105]. A monopoly position in the tying product market determines whether other elements are also necessary to establish an illegal tying arrangement [Corwin v. Los Angeles Newspaper Serv. Bureau, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 842, 858, 94 Cal. Rptr. 785, 484 P.2d 953 ; People v. National Ass'n of Realtors (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 459, 472-473, 174 Cal. Rptr. 728 ; see § 565.77[4]].

A federal court applying California law in a diversity action has held that, although combinations to monopolize would appear to fall within the general prohibition of Bus. & Prof. Code § 16720, that statute does not address unilateral conduct [Dimidowich v. Bell & Howell (9th Cir. 1986) 803 F.2d 1473, 1478 ; G.H.I.I. v. MTS, Inc. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 256, 266, 268, 195 Cal. Rptr. 211 ; Bondi v. Jewels by Edwar, Ltd. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 672, 678, 73 Cal. Rptr. 494 ; see also Roth v. Rhodes (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 530, 543, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 706 ("combination" requires concerted action by parties with independent interests)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Restraints Of Trade

49-565 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 565.77

§ 565.77 Particular Situations

[1] Single Entity's Refusal to Deal

In general, absent a monopolistic purpose and unless prohibited by other statutes such as the civil rights laws, a person may exercise his or her own discretion as to parties with whom he or she will deal, and may announce in advance the circumstances under which he or she will refuse to sell [United States v. Colgate & Co. (1919) 250 U.S. 300, 307, 39 S. Ct. 465, 63 L. Ed. 992 ; A.B.C. Distrib. Co. v. Distillers Distrib. Corp. (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 175, 188-190 ; Rolley, Inc. v. Merle Norman Cosmetics (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 844, 846-852, 278 P.2d 63] . However, a supplier's refusal to deal with a potential customer may constitute a "vertical restraint," the legality of which will be judged by a rule-of-reason analysis [see § 565.74[2]], if the supplier has sufficient market power in the relevant market to impair competition [see Roth v. Rhodes (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 530, 542, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 706 (relying on Redwood Theatres, Inc. v. Festival Enters., Inc. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 687, 703-704, 248 Cal. Rptr. 189 ; Bhan v. NME Hosps., Inc. (9th Cir. 1991) 929 F.2d 1404, 1413)] . If, however, the defendant lacks market power in the relevant market, his or her unilateral refusal to deal cannot violate the Cartwright Act [see Roth v. Rhodes (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 530, 542-543, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 706 (refusal of medical doctors who owned office building to rent office space to podiatrist, allegedly to interfere with competition by podiatrists, was not a violation of Cartwright Act because doctors controlled less than 10 percent share of relevant market for office space and therefore possessed insufficient market power to affect competition)].

If an entity with substantial economic clout, such as a manufacturer with 2000 applicants for 167 distributorships whose existing distributorship agreements are terminable without cause on 30 days' notice, maintains prices through "suggestions that distributors cannot refuse," the manufacturer has gone beyond simple announcement of policy and refusal to deal and "has put together a combination in violation of the Sherman Act" [R.E. Spriggs Co. v. Adolph Coors Co. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 419, 425-426, 156 Cal. Rptr. 738 (citing United States v. Parke, Davis & Co. (1960) 362 U.S. 29, 44, 80 S. Ct. 503, 4 L. Ed. 2d 505)]. Similarly, if a "single trader" pressures customers or dealers into adhering to resale price maintenance, territorial restrictions, exclusive dealing arrangements, or illegal tie-ins, an unlawful combination is established, irrespective of any monopoly or conspiracy, and despite the recognized right of a producer to deal with whom it will [Kolling v. Dow Jones & Co. (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 709, 720, 187 Cal. Rptr. 797

; see G.H.I.I. v. MTS, Inc. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 256, 268-269, 195 Cal. Rptr. 211 (description of retail sole trader's activities amounting to combination)].

[2] Price Fixing

Price fixing often involves distributorships through which the manufacturer coerces its dealers to maintain certain price levels [see § 565.77[1]]. Price fixing is considered illegal per se under both California and federal law [Kolling v. Dow Jones & Co. (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 709, 721, 187 Cal. Rptr. 797] . The test to determine whether a particular restraint is illegal is whether the agreement or conduct interferes with the freedom of sellers or traders so as to preclude or restrain their ability to sell in accordance with their own judgment, not what effect the agreement or conduct has on actual prices [Kolling v. Dow Jones & Co. (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 709, 722, 187 Cal. Rptr. 797] .

Parallel movement of prices by itself is not enough to establish a price-fixing violation under either the Cartwright Act or the Sherman Act. Plaintiff must prove that the parallel pricing is the result of an agreement, conspiracy, or contract [BILJAC Assocs. v. First Interstate Bank (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1410, 1427-1429, 267 Cal. Rptr. 819 ; see also Freeman v. San Diego Assn. of Realtors (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 171, 200, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534 (unilateral action by monopolist in charging allegedly excessive prices, by itself, does not violate antitrust laws)].

To recover for an alleged price-fixing conspiracy, the plaintiff must prove that the defendants conspired, or at least acted in conscious parallel, to fix and maintain prices and that both the plaintiff and the competition in general were injured by the artificial price established by the conspiracy or parallel conduct. The plaintiff may prove its case by either direct or circumstantial evidence [City of Long Beach v. Standard Oil Co. of Cal. (9th Cir. 1989) 872 F.2d 1401, 1405-1406 (considering claims under both California and federal law)]. If plaintiffs offer no direct evidence of conspiracy, but only ambiguous evidence, such as evidence that defendants met and exchanged ideas, inferences are required to conclude that any agreement or consensus came out of defendants' discussions [BILJAC Assocs. v. First Interstate Bank (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1410, 1430-1433, 267 Cal. Rptr. 819 (plaintiffs' evidence was insufficient to raise triable issue of fact that conspiracy existed)]. If only circumstantial evidence is offered, the defendants are entitled to summary judgment if they provide a plausible and justifiable alternative interpretation of their conduct that rebuts the alleged conspiracy [City of Long Beach v. Standard Oil Co. of Cal. (9th Cir. 1989) 872 F.2d 1401, 1406 (considering claims under both California and federal law)]. Under the doctrine of conscious parallelism, an agreement may be inferred if each participant knew that concerted action was contemplated and invited, gave its adherence to, and participated in the scheme, and understood that cooperation was essential to the plan. Alleged conspirators that dominate the relevant market may be deemed to understand the necessity of cooperation [City of Long Beach v. Standard Oil Co. of Cal. (9th Cir. 1989) 872 F.2d 1401, 1407 (considering claims under both California and federal law)].

A conspiracy to illegally fix prices is not shown merely because separate entities have combined to provide a unified product or service, if the product or service is one that the entities had not or could not have provided individually in competition with one another. Under these circumstances, the entities' interests in providing the new product or service are interdependent, because they share the common purpose of creating and marketing the new product or service [Freeman v. San Diego Assn. of Realtors (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 171, 192-193, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534] .

If the price fixing is illegal per se, the following defenses are precluded: (1) the price was reasonable, (2) the conduct complained of had legitimate business purposes other than the stabilization of prices, and (3) the partiesdid not intend to impact prices by their conduct [People v. National Ass'n of Realtors (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 459, 481, 174 Cal. Rptr. 728] . However, not all conduct by which prices are allegedly fixed is illegal per se. For example, in considering an alleged conspiracy by a consortium of petroleum purchasers to fix prices under a contract that used weighed averages of prices posted or paid to establish the contract price, a type of barter system between the purchasers that removed a substantial portion of their volume from the base used for the contract calculations had to be examined under the rule of reason because those barter exchanges were not only justifiable, but necessary to their operations [City of Long Beach

v. Standard Oil Co. of Cal. (9th Cir. 1989) 872 F.2d 1401, 1405-1406 (considering claims under both California and federal law)].

A cause of action for conspiracy to fix prices may be maintained even when price controls are imposed by some regulatory agency. Especially when the regulatory price was set after the alleged conspiracy began, the fact of price controls does not in itself mean that the conspirators' conduct could not have caused the injury. If the prices imposed by the regulatory agency would have been different in the absence of the conspiracy, or were based on artificial price levels that resulted from the conspiracy, the plaintiff may recover [City of Long Beach v. Standard Oil Co. of Cal. (9th Cir. 1989) 872 F.2d 1401, 1408-1409 (considering claims under both California and federal law)]. A regulatory price control program will not displace antitrust liability unless the relief desired is available from the regulatory agency [City of Long Beach v. Standard Oil Co. of Cal. (9th Cir. 1989) 872 F.2d 1401, 1409 (considering claims under both California and federal law); accord Cellular Plus, Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1224, 1247-1249, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 308 (courts, not PUC, have primary, if not exclusive, jurisdiction over Cartwright action charging price fixing of cellular phone service rates)]. Similarly, no exemption to antitrust liability will be found unless the challenged activity is within the scope of the regulation and the conflict between the regulatory decision and antitrust liability is obvious [City of Long Beach v. Standard Oil Co. of Cal. (9th Cir. 1989) 872 F.2d 1401, 1409 (considering claims under both California and federal law)].

Price fixing is not only a violation of the Cartwright Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 16700 et seq.), but is also an unlawful business practice under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. [see B. W. I. Custom Kitchen v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1341, 1345, 1348, 1348 n.6, 235 Cal. Rptr. 228 ; BILJAC Assocs. v. First Interstate Bank (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1410, 1422-1423, 267 Cal. Rptr. 819 ; for discussion and forms relating to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq., see § 565.30 et seq.,§ 565.231]. The same conduct that constitutes anticompetitive price fixing may also constitute a breach of the duty of good faith imposed by Com. Code § 1304, although a plaintiff would not be permitted double recovery for what are essentially two different claims for the same injury [State of California v. ChevronCorp. (9th Cir. 1989) 872 F.2d 1410, 1413-1414 (considering both federal antitrust and Cartwright claims and California bad faith claim); for further discussion of breach of the duty of good faith, see Ch. 140, Contracts]. In addition, other types of price discrimination are prohibited by California's Unfair Practices Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17000 et seq.) [see § 565.10 et seq.].

Exclusive dealing arrangements, in which one is prohibited from distributing products other than those of the supplier or in which one entity agrees to deal exclusively with another, are not illegal per se. For instance, the fact that savings and loan and escrow subsidiaries of a holding company use the title insurance services of a company in which the parent has an interest does not amount to an illegal boycott. Such vertical integration is proper so long as there is no intent to coerce third parties to deal with them [Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Great W. Fin. Corp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 305, 324, 70 Cal. Rptr. 849, 444 P.2d 481] .

Exclusive dealing arrangements are tested by the "rule of reason" standard and are unlawful only if the arrangement was intended to, or actually did, unreasonably restrain trade [Kolling v. Dow Jones & Co. (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 709, 726-727, 187 Cal. Rptr. 797 ; for discussion of a supplier's right to refuse to deal with a specific entity, see § 565.77[1], and*§ 565.77[2]*]. A determination of illegality under the "rule of reason" requires knowledge and analysis of the line of commerce, the market area, and the affected share of the relevant market [Fisherman's Wharf Bay Cruise Corp. v. Superior Court (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 309, 335, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 628] . To be actionable under this rule, an exclusive dealing arrangement must foreclose competition in a substantial share of the affected market [Fisherman's Wharf Bay Cruise Corp. v. Superior Court (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 309, 335-339, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 628 (plaintiff allowed to proceed with claim because 20 percent of relevant market was effectively foreclosed by defendant's exclusive dealership agreements)].

A dealership or distributorship agreement may relate not only to the product itself, but also to replacement parts and service and repairs of the product. The requirement that a dealer or distributor only use authorized replacement parts supplied by the manufacturer has been attacked by independent parts distributors as a boycott, a conspiracy between the manufacturer and its franchised distributors to impose a monopoly, and as an illegal tying arrangement [see Mozart Co. v. Mercedes-Benz of N. Am., Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 833 F.2d 1342, 1344, 1348-1351 (restriction as justified for quality control)]. Between the manufacturer and the distributors, this type of restriction is generally considered a vertical nonprice restraint and is evaluated under the rule of reason standard [Dimidowich v. Bell & Howell (9th Cir. 1986) 803 F.2d 1473, 1480 (diversity case applying Californialaw)]. If there is sufficient business justification, amanufacturer, even one that is also a distributor, may refuse to sell replacement parts and do all repair work itself, or may authorize only some of its other distributors to service its product or to sell replacement parts [Dimidowich v. Bell & Howell (9th Cir. 1986) 803 F.2d 1473, 1483-1484] . There may be benefits to competition in the product market, referred to as interbrand competition, that result from this type of intrabrand restriction [Dimidowich v. Bell & Howell (9th Cir. 1986) 803 F.2d 1473, 1483-1484] . Still, if it can be established that the manufacturer and one or more of its distributors agreed to exclude other distributors from the service and replacement market in order to eliminate competition in those markets, rather than to compete more effectively in the product market, the restraint will be illegal. The question is whether the anticompetitive effects in the service market outweigh the procompetitive effects in the product market. In most situations, the service market for that manufacturer's product will be much smaller than the product market. If this is the case, a nontrivial procompetitive effect in the product market will outweigh the anticompeti tive effect in the service market, and the restraint will be legal [Dimidowich v. Bell & Howell (9th Cir. 1986) 803 F.2d 1473, 1484] .

The termination of a dealership or distributorship arrangement is not prohibited, either as a breach of contract or as an antitrust violation, unless the cancellation is for anticompetitive reasons [Kolling v. Dow Jones & Co. (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 709, 718-719, 187 Cal. Rptr. 797 ; but see Gianelli Distrib. Co. v. Beck & Co. (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 1020, 1026-1042, 219 Cal. Rptr. 203 (summary judgment improper; question of fact whether custom and usage requires implied condition to terminate only for cause); for discussion of contracts, including interpretation to include a requirement of good cause in order to terminate, see Ch. 140, Contracts]. For discussion of additional considerations relevant to termination of franchises in general, of those for petroleum products or motor vehicle dealerships, and of discriminatory terminations, see Ch. 515, Securities and Franchise Regulation .

If the termination of an exclusive distributorship was wrongful and done for purposes of restraining trade, the withholding of approval of sale is part of the antitrust injury [Kolling v. Dow Jones & Co. (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 709, 723-724, 187 Cal. Rptr. 797] .

An agreement between distributors to divide territories or customers is referred to as a horizontal restraint, because it is between competitors at the same level of distribution, and is a per se antitrust violation [Guild Wineries & Distilleries v. J. Sosnick & Son (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 627, 633, 162 Cal. Rptr. 87 ; see Dimidowich v. Bell & Howell (9th Cir. 1986) 803 F.2d 1473, 1480 (diversity case applying California law under stipulation that it be interpreted in accordance with Sherman Act)]. A relationship between entities at different levels of the same distribution chain is referred to as vertical and is tested under the rule of reason standard [Dimidowich v. Bell & Howell (9th Cir. 1986) 803 F.2d 1473, 1480] . A manufacturer that operates at two distinct levels of the distribution chain in the same market by acting as both a supplier and a distributor of its own products is called a dual distributor [Dimidowich v. Bell & Howell (9th Cir. 1986) 803 F.2d 1473, 1480] . Without characterizing the restraint as vertical or horizontal, a California court held that, if a dual distributor's termination of a distributorship is primarily motivated by a desire to sell directly to customers of the terminated distributor, there is a per se violation [Guild Wineries & Distilleries v. J. Sosnick & Son (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 627, 633-636, 162 Cal. Rptr. 87 ; but see Dimidowich v. Bell & Howell (9th Cir. 1986) 803 F.2d 1473, 1482-1483 (diversity case applying California law and refusing to apply per se standard of Guild in situation not involving termination on ground that California Supreme Court would not apply per se approach to arrangement, such as dual distributorship, with which it is unfamiliar)].

It is not clear how far a manufacturer can go in enforcing a termination of a distributor. In sustaining summary judgment for defendants on a Cartwright cause of action, the court said that the manufacturer did not have to allow its wholesalers to continue to supply the terminated distributors to avoid antitrust liability. However, summary judgment for defendants on a cause of action for interference with prospective economic advantage was reversed, with the same court saying there were questions of fact whether the manufacturer was privileged to have its agents request its wholesalers to stop supplying the terminated distributors and to terminate one of those wholesalers [Gianelli Distrib. Co. v. Beck & Co. (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 1020, 1049, 1052-1058, 219 Cal. Rptr. 203 ; see § 565.130 et seq.].

In one example of an insufficient pleading for wrongful termination of a distributorship and Cartwright violations, a distributor alleged that the termination was motivated by his sale of products of other suppliers. However, the termination was not wrongful because the distributorship agreement had been allowed to expire by its own terms. Because no damages for the alleged Cartwright violations were claimed to have been suffered during the term of the agreement, none were available on account of the proper termination [Witt v. Union Oil Co. (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 435, 441, 160 Cal. Rptr. 285] .

[4] Tie-Ins

A tie-in or tying arrangement involves one party's conditioning a sale of one item (the tying product) to the sale of another (the tied product). Tie-ins in California are prohibited under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16727 (patterned on § 3 of the Clayton Act, 15 U.S.C.S. § 14) and under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 16720 and 16726 (patterned on the Sherman Act). Decisions under those federal antitrust statutes are therefore applicable to interpret California law [Corwin v. Los Angeles Newspaper Serv. Bureau, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 842, 852-853, 94 Cal. Rptr. 785, 484 P.2d 953] . The purpose of the prohibition against the use of ties is to prevent a seller from using a dominant, desired product to compel the purchase of a second distinctcommodity. When a seller has the economic power to coerce buyers to forego exercise of their independent judgment as to the merits of the tied product, thus shielding it from competitive market forces, there is a restraint on competition [People v. National Ass'n of Realtors (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 459, 470, 174 Cal. Rptr. 728] .

Under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16727 (and the Clayton Act), a tie-in is illegal if either (1) the seller enjoys a monopolistic position in the market for the "tying" product, or (2) if a substantial volume of commerce in the tied product is restrained [see, e.g., UAS Management, Inc. v. Mater Misericordiae Hospital (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 357, 370-371, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 81 (monopoly hospital's tying of inpatient hospital services with outpatient services, contractually preventing insurers from contracting with competing outpatient service provider, foreclosed sufficient business to constitute illegal tie-in)]. Under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 16720 and 16726 (and the Sherman Act) tyings are not illegal unless both of these conditions exist [People v. National Ass'n of Realtors (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 459, 472, 174 Cal. Rptr. 728] . A tying arrangement is illegal per se under the Clayton Act and Bus. & Prof. Code § 16727 when either of the two elements exist and under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 16720 and 16726 when both exist [People v. National Ass'n of Realtors (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 578, 583, 202 Cal. Rptr. 243] . The tying product must in fact be a product, and not a service, to constitute an illegal tying arrangement under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16727, although the tied product may be a service [Fisherman's Wharf Bay Cruise Corp. v. Superior Court (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 309, 340-341, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 628 (bay cruise was service, even though tangible ticket had to be purchased to facilitate sale of service)].

Proof of requisite economic power is usually inferred from other, more easily proven, facts. Domination of the market in the tying product is sufficient to infer that competition in the tied product has been or probably will be lessened by the agreement. Thus, evidence of market dominance is sufficient to support a finding of the requisite economic power. The "monopolistic" condition is satisfied when the seller has a dominant, as opposed to absolute, monopoly position in the tying product market and even though this power exists only with respect to some of the buyers in the market [Corwin v. Los Angeles Newspaper Serv. Bureau, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 842, 858, 94 Cal. Rptr. 785, 484 P.2d 953 ; People v. National Ass'n of Realtors (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 459, 472, 174 Cal. Rptr. 728 (multiple listing service as tying product, real estate association memberships as tied product)]. Neither California courts nor the ninth circuit require a finding of actual restraint of competition before a tie-in can be found illegal [Roberts v. Elaine Powers

An illegal tying arrangement requires the existence of two products, and sometimes there is a question of fact as to whether there actually is more than a single, unitary service [see, e.g., Freeman v. San Diego Assn. of Realtors (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 171, 184-187, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534] . There may be a legitimate business reason for selling items in a combined form. Though not exhaustive, the following factors are to be taken into account: (1) whether competitors offer to sell the products or services separately or only as a unit, (2) whether the combined product or service is composed of varying assortments of component parts, (3) whether buyers are or can be charged separately for the allegedly separate products or service, and (4) whether defendant sells or offers to sell the products or services separately [Corwin v. Los Angeles Newspaper Serv. Bureau, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 842, 858-859, 94 Cal. Rptr. 785, 484 P.2d 953] .

It is not clear whether a tying arrangement is illegal per se if the seller will sell the tying product without the tied product, but will only do so at a higher price [see Corwin v. Los Angeles Newspaper Serv. Bureau, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 842, 857 n.13, 94 Cal. Rptr. 785, 484 P.2d 953].

Necessary allegations to state a cause of action for an illegal tying arrangement include a definition of the market by subject matter, total volume, proportion controlled by defendant, availability to plaintiff of the subject matter or a competing subject matter, and availability to the public of the subject matter or competing subject matter. Facts must be set forth from which it can be inferred that the defendant controls the market as geographically and otherwise defined and can substantially exclude plaintiff or others from that market or limit the availability of the product to the public [Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Great W. Fin. Corp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 305, 325-326, 70 Cal. Rptr. 849, 444 P.2d 481] .

Failure to show that the defendant has any competitors in the tied product market or that the tie-in has any effect on competition in that market will defeat an action brought under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16720 [Morrison v. Viacom, Inc. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 534, 543, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 133] . For example, an action under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16727 brought against a cable television provider that tied the purchase of satellite and premium channels to the purchase of local broadcast channels failed when the plaintiff consumers were unable to show that the cable company had any competitors in the market for local broadcast television channels. Since the only other source of local broadcast television channels in the area was free reception over the airwaves, the plaintiffs failed to show that the tying practice had any effect on competition for the product [Morrison v. Viacom, Inc. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 534, 543, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 133] . Similarly, a cable company did not engage in an illegal tying arrangement when requiring customers to purchase basic cable television in order to receive FM or audio-only music channels. As the plaintiffs admitted they had no interest in purchasing basic cable, the tying arrangement did not injure competition in that market [Belton v. Comcast Cable Holdings, LLC (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1224, 1235-1236, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 631] .

The prohibition on illegal tying arrangements may not be used to support a claim that a defendant is illegally evading price controls on the tying product by charging higher prices on the tied product [Freeman v. San Diego Assn. of Realtors (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 171, 187-188, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534 & n.18].

[5] Group Boycott

In contrast to the single entity's refusal to deal and the exclusive dealing arrangement between two entities, both of which are permissible if no intent to restrain trade or abuse of monopoly power is involved, is the group boycott in which two or more traders refuse to deal with a third [see Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Great W. Fin. Corp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 305, 324, 70 Cal. Rptr. 849, 444 P.2d 481] . Group boycott allegations often involve trade or professional associations, exclusive dealing arrangements, or distributorships [see People v. Santa Clara Valley Bowling Proprietors' Ass'n (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 225, 236-241, 47 Cal. Rptr. 570 ; see Marin County Bd. of Realtors, Inc. v. Palsson (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 920, 935-940, 130 Cal. Rptr. 1, 549 P.2d 833 ; see Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Great W. Fin.

Corp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 305, 324, 70 Cal. Rptr. 849, 444 P.2d 481 (exclusive dealing arrangements)]. It is not clear when group boycotts are illegal per se and when they are to be tested under the rule of reason. Generally the distinctions arose between group boycotts involving anticompetitive business motivations and those involving trade or professional associations where services or activities were open only to members. Still, this distinction is not absolute [see People v. Santa Clara Valley Bowling Proprietors' Ass'n (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 225, 236-241, 47 Cal. Rptr. 570 (applying per se standard)]. The landmark federal case enunciating the per se rule involved a retail department store which had exacted promises from all major electrical appliance manufacturers to refuse to sell to a neighboring retail competitor. That conduct was deemed illegal per se. As such, no defenses of reasonableness or mitigation were relevant, and no individual injury had to be shown. Injury to commerce or a tendency to monopoly was presumed to flow from the nature of the combination [Klor's v. Broadway-Hale Stores (1959) 359 U.S. 207, 210-214, 79 S. Ct. 705, 3 L. Ed. 2d 741] . In 1976, the California Supreme Court in considering the membership limitations of a local real estate association and the anticompetitive consequences of its allowing only member realtors to use its multiple listing service, distinguished an alleged group boycott by a trade association which is not aimed directly at coercing third parties or eliminating competitors, and tested the restraint by the rule of reason. Application of the rule of reason criteria had precedent in federal trade association cases [see Associated Press v. United States (1945) 326 U.S. 1, 14-22, 65 S. Ct. 1416, 89 L. Ed. 2013 ; Marin County Bd. of Realtors, Inc. v. Palsson (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 920, 935-940, 130 Cal. Rptr. 1, 549 P.2d 833] .

When only competitive business motives are involved, presumably California courts will still consider a group boycott illegal per se [see Oakland-Alameda County Builders' Exch. v. F. P. Lathrop Constr. Co. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 354, 368, 93 Cal. Rptr. 602, 482 P.2d 226 (builders' exchange bid rules and exclusion of nonmember subcontractors as price tampering and group boycott considered illegal per se); Jomicra, Inc. v. California Mobile Home Dealers Assn. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 396, 401-402, 90 Cal. Rptr. 696 (association formed to boycott mobile home park and dealer to whom it gave exclusive sales' rights as boycott; unclean hands as not applicable to conduct which is illegal per se)].

Boycotts, threats, and coercion are also prohibited by California's Unfair Practices Act, Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17000-17208 [see § 565.10 et seq.].

Chapter 565 UNFAIR COMPETITION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Restraints Of Trade

49-565 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 565.78

§ 565.78 Preemption of State Court Jurisdiction

[1] By Interstate Activity or Impact

State court jurisdiction is not preempted in matters that have interstate aspects if there is a significant affect on state interests [Younger v. Jensen (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 397, 405-406 ; Union Oil Co. v. Chandler (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 716, 726, 84 Cal. Rptr. 756] . Unless there is actual conflict due to the exercise of concurrent state and federal power, there is no federal preemption. When application of the Cartwright Act on interstate commerce is to facilitate competition and not to place a restraint on it, state courts retain subject matter jurisdiction. For instance, if an exclusive distributor whose territory is entirely within California, sues other California distributors and the manufacturer, a foreign corporation, both interstate and intrastate commerce are involved: the purchases and agreement between plaintiff and the manufacturer are in interstate commerce, and the restraint of the unfair distributorship practices has an impact on intrastate commerce [R.E. Spriggs Co. v. Adolph Coors Co. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 653, 659-666, 112 Cal. Rptr. 585] . If the same facts give rise to both state and federal antitrust remedies, the plaintiff is free to ignore the federal question and pursue only the state claim [Salveson v. Western States Bankcard Ass'n (9th Cir. 1984) 731 F.2d 1423, 1427 ; see also Moore's Federal Practice, § 107.14[4][b][i] (3d ed. Matthew Bender)].

However, the Commerce Clause does not necessarily prevent the application of state antitrust and unfair competition laws to out-of-state conduct causing damage in California, but determining whether a particular claim under state law would be preempted by federal law requires a factual analysis of the burden that would be imposed on interstate commerce [RLH Indus., Inc. v. SBC Communications, Inc. (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1277, 1290-1291, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 469] .

[2] By Exclusive Federal Agency Jurisdiction

There are instances in which a California court's exercise of its jurisdiction is preempted by a federal agency. For example, the National Labor Relations Board (hereinafter NLRB) has exclusive primary jurisdiction over matters that affect interstate commerce and may constitute violations of the Taft-Hartley Act [Garmon v. San Diego Bldg. Trades Council (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 657, 661-664, 291 P.2d 1 (NLRB declined jurisdiction); California Kitchens v. United Bhd. of Carpenters & Joiners of Am. (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 597, 606, 294 P.2d 468] . In one case for example, union workers refused to handle cabinets manufactured out of state in a nonunion shop and caused cancellation of contracts for approximately8,000 cabinets. Although factual findings were made that the union activity was a combination restraining trade, an injunction prohibiting continuation of the activity was set aside because the California court could not assert jurisdiction until the NLRB had determined whether the activity complained of was an illegal boycott, enjoinable under Taft-Hartley, or was protected union activity. State court abstention is required even though injustices might result prior to the NLRB's decision to assume or decline jurisdiction [California Kitchens v. United Bhd. of Carpenters & Joiners of Am. (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 597, 599-607, 294 P.2d 468] .

[3] By Federal Statute

If a practice amounting to an unlawful restraint of trade is expressly required by federal law, a state antitrust claim based on that practice may be preempted. For example, a cable television company's practice of requiring customers to subscribe to its basic service tier in order to access other tiers of service, a practice that is expressly required by the Cable Television Consumer Protection and Competition Act of 1992, would be preempted if the cable company was regulated under the Act [see Morrison v. Viacom, Inc. (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1514, 1520-1522, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 544] .

§ 565.79 Jurisdiction and Venue

[1] State Courts

State courts of any county where the defendant resides or is found, or any agent resides or is found, or where service may be obtained, without regard to the amount in controversy, have jurisdiction under the Cartwright Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16750(a)]. In addition, once an action is pending, the court may join other parties if the ends of justice so require, whether or not those other parties reside in the county where the action is pending [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16751; see Union Carbide Corp. v. Superior Court (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 15, 19-22, 201 Cal. Rptr. 580, 679 P.2d 14 (1978 amendment to Bus. & Prof. Code § 16750 as establishing legislative intent that mandatory joinder procedures of Code Civ. Proc. § 389 not thwart antitrust relief for indirect purchasers)]. State courts have no jurisdiction to construe or enforce federal antitrust laws [Blumenstock Bros. Adver. Agency v. Curtis Publ'g Co. (1920) 252 U.S. 436, 440, 40 S. Ct. 385, 64 L. Ed. 649 ; see Younger v. Jensen (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 397, 405-406 ; Von Kalinowski, Antitrust Laws and Trade Regulation, Ch. 6].

[2] Federal District Courts

Federal district courts in any district in which the defendant resides or is found or has an agent, without respect to the amount in controversy, have jurisdiction to determine federal antitrust claims [15 U.S.C.S. §§ 15 (treble damages), 26 (injunction); 28 U.S.C.S. § 1337 (civil actions under laws against restraints and monopolies)]. To state a federal claim, interstate commerce must be involved. The interstate commerce requirement can be met under either the "in commerce" theory or the "effect on commerce" theory [McLain v. Real Estate Bd. of New Orleans, Inc. (1980) 444 U.S. 232, 242, 100 S. Ct. 502, 62 L. Ed. 2d 441] . Under the "effect on commerce" theory, only the local activity, not the alleged illegal conduct, need have a substantial effect on interstate commerce. There must be a sufficient nexus between the local activity and interstate commerce so that it can be said as a practical matter of economics that there is not an insubstantial effect on the line of commerce involved. For instance a dispute over allocation of racing days at a race track where 50 percent of the owners and trainers, 40 percent of the horses, 40 percent of the patrons, and 66 percent of the jockeys were from out of state was found to have sufficient effect on interstate commerce to give the federal district court jurisdiction [Turf Paradise, Inc. v. Arizona Downs (9th Cir. 1982) 670 F.2d 813, 818-819] . For full treatment of federal court jurisdiction over antitrust claims, see Von Kalinowski, Antitrust Laws and Trade Regulation, Ch. 6.

Federal courts, in addition to having jurisdiction over antitrust claims involving interstate commerce, have pendent jurisdiction over state claims arising from the same facts [Ford Motor Co. v. Superior Court (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 676, 679-680, 110 Cal. Rptr. 59 ; see § 565.79[3]].

[3] Concurrent Jurisdiction; Res Judicata

Although one could simultaneously bring a suit in state court for the Cartwright violations and a suit in federal district court for the federal violations, that procedure involves the risk of the first judgment barring the second on the basis of res judicata [Derish v. San Mateo-Burlingame Bd. of Realtors (9th Cir. 1983) 724 F.2d 1347, 1352 (prior state action bars federal action); Boccardo v. Safeway Stores, Inc. (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 1037, 1053-1054, 184 Cal. Rptr. 903 ; Ford Motor Co. v. Superior Court (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 676, 678, 680, 110 Cal. Rptr. 59 (prior federal action bars state action)]. A federal district court cannot abstain from hearing the matter if only federal claims are set forth in the complaint [Selma-Kingsburg-Fowler County Sanitation Dist. v. United States Dist. Court (9th Cir. 1979) 604 F.2d 643, 644-645 (commenting also that simultaneous state and federal actions are not in the interests of judicial economy)]. If the facts indicate there has been but one violation of a primary right that will support both state and federal claims and the federal claim is substantial, the federal court will have pendent jurisdiction to determine the state claim [Sun Valley Disposal Co. v. Silver State Disposal Co. (9th Cir. 1969) 420 F.2d 341, 343-344 (local activity's impact on interstate commerce must be more than incidental); Ford Motor Co. v. Superior Court (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 676, 679-680, 110 Cal. Rptr. 59] .

[4] Removal to Federal Court

A state action can be removed to federal court if the claim arises under federal law. When this is done, the federal court acquires jurisdiction over pendent state claims, whether or not the plaintiff recovers on the federal claim [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1441(b); Salveson v. Western States Bankcard Ass'n (9th Cir. 1984) 731 F.2d 1423, 1426, 1430-1431] . Removal jurisdiction is derivative of the state court's jurisdiction. Thus, if the state court never actually had jurisdiction, as when an alleged state claim was merely an artfully pleaded federal claim, the federal court will have no removaljurisdiction [Salveson v. Western States Bankcard Ass'n (9th Cir. 1984) 731 F.2d 1423, 1426, 1430-1431] . The doctrine of artful pleading is also used to allow removal of a state claim filed to avoid the res judicata effect of a federal judgment. The federal court's jurisdiction is considered necessary to protect the earlier federal judgment [State of California v. Chevron Corp. (9th Cir. 1989) 872 F.2d 1410, 1415 ; Salveson v. Western States Bankcard Ass'n (9th Cir. 1984) 731 F.2d 1423, 1427-1429] . However, the doctrine of artful pleading will not be applied in this context to prevent remand when the state claim relates to a later time period than that involved in the earlier federal action [State of California v. Chevron Corp. (9th Cir. 1989) 872 F.2d 1410, 1414-1416] . For discussion of removal, see Ch. 265, Federal Courts: Jurisdiction and Removal .

[5] Arbitration of Cartwright Act Claims

One court of appeal decision has held that parties cannot agree privately to arbitrate antitrust claims under the Cartwright Act [see Bos Material Handling, Inc. v. Crown Controls Corp. (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 99, 109-111, 186 Cal. Rptr. 740] . However, in a more recent case, another court of appeal concluded that Cartwright Act claims are subject to private agreements to arbitrate [Crown Homes, Inc. v. Landes (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1273, 1276-1283, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 827] . The court in Crown Homes relied on federal cases, decided after Bos, which held that federal antitrust claims are subject to private arbitration agreements [see, e.g., Mitsubishi Motors v. Soler Chrysler-Plymouth (1985) 473 U.S. 614, 628-640, 105 S. Ct. 3346, 87 L. Ed. 2d 444 (antitrust claims arising out of international transaction); Nghiem v. NEC Elec., Inc. (9th Cir. 1994) 25 F.3d 1437, 1441-1442 (applying Mitsubishi rule to antitrust claims arising out of domestic transaction); Kowalski v. Chicago Tribune Co. (7th Cir. 1988) 854 F.2d 168, 173 (same)].

For full discussion of contractual arbitration, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration , through Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review .

Chapter 565 UNFAIR COMPETITION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Restraints Of Trade

49-565 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 565.80

§ 565.80 Standing to Sue

[1] Individual Consumers

Although both the federal statute and the Cartwright Act are phrased in terms of authorizing recovery by persons who have been injured in their "business or property," a consumer plaintiff who has been damaged by the anticompetitive conduct has standing to sue [Reiter v. Sonotone Corp. (1979) 442 U.S. 330, 337-343, 99 S. Ct. 2326, 60 L. Ed. 2d 931 ; Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Great W. Fin. Corp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 305, 322, 70 Cal. Rptr. 849, 444 P.2d 481 ; 15 U.S.C.S. § 15; Bus. & Prof. Code § 16750(a)]. The California statute further specifies that a plaintiff may recover whether he or she has dealt directly or indirectly with the defendant [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16750(a); Union Carbide Corp. v. Superior Court (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 15, 21-22, 201 Cal. Rptr. 580, 679 P.2d 14] . Although federal antitrust law does not usually allow recovery to those who dealt only indirectly with the defendant, such as indirect purchasers, recovery by indirect purchasers under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16750(a) is not preempted by federal law because Congress did not express an intent to occupy the field or to preempt state law, and because there is no actual conflict [State of California v. ARC Am. Corp. (1989) 490 U.S. 93, 109 S. Ct. 1661, 104 L. Ed. 2d 86 ; B. W. I. Custom Kitchen v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1341, 1346, 235 Cal. Rptr. 228 ; Crown Oil Corp. v. Superior Court (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 604, 610-612, 223 Cal. Rptr. 164 ; see Kansas v. Utilcorp United, Inc. (1990) 497 U.S. 199, 110 S. Ct. 2807, 111 L. Ed. 2d 169, 179-186 (describing direct purchaser rule and reasons therefor)].

[2] Competitors

Sometimes standing will be a question of the relevant market, that is, whether plaintiff and defendant compete in the same market. Federal cases hold that the boundaries of a product market are determined by the reasonable interchangeability of use or crosselasticity of demand between the product itself and substitutes for it. If an increase in the price of one product leads to an increase in demand for another, both products should be included in the relevant product market [State of California v. American Stores (9th Cir. 1989) 872 F.2d 837, 841 (affirming finding that supermarkets are separate market from other retailers of grocery products)]. A federal court has ignored California statutes restricting nurse anesthetists' work and found standing for a nurse anesthetist to challenge an alleged conspiracy to eliminate competition by hiring only M.D. anesthesiologists. The court found that doctors and nurses compete in the same market because of interchangeability of use or cross elasticity of demand between the two professions [Bhan v.

NME Hospitals, Inc. (9th Cir. 1985) 772 F.2d 1467, 1470-1471 ; but see Bhan v. NME Hosps., Inc. (9th Cir. 1991) 929 F.2d 1404, 1413-1414 (plaintiff failed to prove town in which hospital was located was relevant market or that firing of one nurse anesthetist injured competition)].

[3] Associations

Whether an association has standing to bring an action under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16750(a) on behalf of its members depends in substantial measure on the nature of the relief sought. If the association seeks a declaration, injunction, or some other kind of prospective relief, it is reasonable to suppose that the remedy, if granted, will inure to the benefit of those members of the association actually injured [California Dental Assn. v. California Dental Hygienists' Assn. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 49, 62, 271 Cal. Rptr. 410] . Although noting that the federal criteria may differfrom the California criteria, a court of appeal analysed the issue under the general (as opposed to antitrust) federal rule, which states that an association has standing to bring suit on behalf of its members when (1) its members would otherwise have standing to sue in their own right; (2) the interests it seeks to protect are germane to the organization's purpose; and (3) neither the claim asserted nor the relief requested requires the participation of individual members in the lawsuit [California Dental Assn. v. California Dental Hygienists' Assn. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 49, 62, 271 Cal. Rptr. 410 ; see Hunt v. Washington Apple Adver. Comm'n (1977) 432 U.S. 333, 343, 97 S. Ct. 2434, 53 L. Ed. 2d 383] . The court of appeal held a complaint by an incorporated association of dentists, as limited to the claim for injunctive relief, sufficient to withstand a demurrer because the complaint alleged injuries to the association's members and facts showing the association to be an appropriate representative for purposes of injunctive redress [California Dental Assn. v. California Dental Hygienists' Assn. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 49, 62, 271 Cal. Rptr. 410 ; see also Residents of Beverly Glen, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 117, 128-129, 109 Cal. Rptr. 724 (general California rule regarding standing of association)].

[a] Certification

Class actions are authorized under the Cartwright Act, both with the Attorney General as class representative and with an individual as class representative [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16750(c); Bruno v. Superior Court (1981) 127 Cal. App. 3d 120, 130-133, 179 Cal. Rptr. 342] . Although the Act authorizes the Attorney General to bring state antitrust actions on behalf of the state's political subdivisions; it does not prevent a county or other local public entity from bringing an action on its own behalf. [Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. County of Stanislaus (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 1143, 1152, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329, 947 P.2d 291] . Counties that have been injured by price-fixing are no different from other persons or other businesses that have been injured by such conduct. The Cartwright Act authorizes a county to bring an action in federal court for violations of federal antitrust law even when the alleged illegal acts and their effects occur primarily outside the county's boundaries. A county, which is a political subdivision of the state with the right to sue and be sued, may bring a civil action for a violation of the Cartwright Act under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16750(a), which provides that any person injured by a violation of the Cartwright Act may bring a civil action, and Bus. & Prof. Code § 16750(b), which defines "person" as including the state and "any of its political subdivisions and public agencies" [Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. County of Stanislaus (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 1143, 1150, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329, 947 P.2d 291] .

Certification requires that both illegal activity and resultant injury, sometimes referred to as "impact," can be proved predominantly with facts applicable to the class as a whole, rather than by a series of facts relevant to only individual or small groups of plaintiffs. A class impact is most easily established when the violations charged are illegal per se, like price-fixing. When a conspiracy to fix prices has been established and plaintiffs have established that they purchased the affected goods or services, impact or injury can be inferred. In addition, it is not necessary that each member of the purported class prove that he or she absorbed at least some part of the overcharges. The fact that certain members of the class may be injured to a lesser extent or not at all does not defeat certification; nor will local variations in marketing practices defeat certification [B. W. I. Custom Kitchen v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1341, 1348-1355, 235 Cal. Rptr. 228 ; Rosack v. Volvo of Am. Corp. (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 741, 752-760, 182 Cal. Rptr. 800] .

When the issue involves the construction and coercive effect of standardized provisions in the defendant's contracts, the fact that there were many transactions with different individual plaintiffs, and that each plaintiff may have had a different understanding of the contract provision, does not prohibit certification. Unlike vindication of private rights through individual breach of contract or fraud causes of action, the purpose of unfair trade laws is to thwart unfair practices and to require the wrongdoer to disgorge the profits obtained in violation of the statute [MacManus v. A.E. Realty Partners (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1106, 1115-1116, 241 Cal. Rptr. 315] . Requisite community of interest for certification exists if every member of the class would not be required to litigate numerous and substantial questions to determine his or her right to recover subsequent to the rendering of any class judgment that determines in the plaintiffs' favor those issues common to the class [Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 809, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964 ; MacManus v. A.E. Realty Partners (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1106, 1116-1117, 241 Cal. Rptr. 315] . A variance in purchase prices paid by class members is not an obstacle to certification. The court can divide the class into subclasses [Occidental Land, Inc. v. Superior Court (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 355, 360 n.3, 134 Cal. Rptr. 388, 556 P.2d 750 ; MacManus v. A.E. Realty Partners (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1106, 1117, 241 Cal. Rptr. 315] .

[b] Fluid Class Recovery

If recovery exceeds the claims filed and proved by individual class members, fluid class recovery may be allowed, often by requiring defendants to lower prices for a period of time or by giving the residue of damages to the state to be used to benefit class members [Bruno v. Superior Court (1981) 127 Cal. App. 3d 120, 123-124, 130-135, 179 Cal. Rptr. 342] . Fluid class recovery implements the policies of disgorgement and deterrence, and prevents defendants from retaining ill-gotten gains simply because their conduct harmed large numbers of people in small amounts rather than small numbers of people in large amounts [State of California v. Levi Strauss & Co. (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 460, 472, 224 Cal. Rptr. 605, 715 P.2d 564] .

There are three steps in implementing fluid class recovery. First, the defendant's total damages liability is paid over to the class fund. Second, individual class members claim their shares by proving damages, often according to a lowered standard of proof. Some safeguards against fraud, such as verification of all claims or large claims, is usually required [State of California v. Levi Strauss & Co. (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 460, 472-473, 476-477, 224 Cal. Rptr. 605, 715 P.2d 564] . Lastly, the remainder of the fund is distributed by one of several methods.

The appropriateness of a particular method depends on its usefulness in fulfilling the purposes of the underlying action. In determining which particular method to employ, the court must consider: (1) the amount of compensation provided to class members, including nonclaiming members; (2) the proportion of class members sharing in recovery; (3) the extent to which the benefits will "spill over" to nonclass members and the degree to which the spillover benefits will effectuate the purposes of the underlying substantive law; and (4) costs of administration [State of California v. Levi Strauss & Co. (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 460, 472-473, 224 Cal. Rptr. 605, 715 P.2d 564] .

Under the price rollback method, the unclaimed portion of the fund is distributed through the market by lowering prices of the defendant's product for a specified time. This method is appropriate when the product is repeatedly purchased by the same individuals. It is not appropriate in a nonmonopoly market or when defendant is a manufacturer and retailers set the price of defendant's product [State of California v. Levi Strauss & Co. (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 460, 473-474, 224 Cal. Rptr. 605, 715 P.2d 564] .

Under the "earmarked escheat" method, the unclaimed funds are disbursed to a responsible government organization for use on projects that benefit the noncollecting class members and promote the purposes of the underlying action [State of California v. Levi Strauss & Co. (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 460, 474, 224 Cal. Rptr. 605, 715 P.2d 564 , citing Market St. Ry. Co. v. Railroad Comm'n (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 363, 171 P.2d 875 (not a class action; unclaimed fare overcharges awarded to city to improve street car services)]. Earmarked escheat indirectly benefits silent class members and has the advantage of minimizing administrative costs to the extent already extant agencies administer the fund. This method should not be used if the relevant governmental body opposes its use [State of California v. Levi Strauss & Co. (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 460, 474-475, 224 Cal. Rptr. 605, 715 P.2d 564] .

General escheat (payment of the recovery to the general fund of a governed body) may be used as a last resort when a more precise remedy cannot be found. Its only advantage is ease of administration [State of California v. Levi Strauss & Co. (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 460, 475, 224 Cal. Rptr. 605, 715 P.2d 564] .

Under the "consumer trust fund" approach, the court appoints a board of directors to administer recovery in the interest of the class for indirect compensation to class members and to further the purposes of substantive law involved. To minimize expenses of administration, the funds can be allocated directly to responsible private organizations. This method has the advantage of ensuring that the recovery will not be submerged in the state's general fund [State of California v. Levi Strauss & Co. (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 460, 475, 224 Cal. Rptr. 605, 715 P.2d 564] .

Under the "claimant fund sharing" approach, the residue is divided among the individual claimants. The disadvantage of the claimant fund sharing method is that it provides no benefit to silent class members. Further, if there is a windfall, it goes not to further the purposes of substantive law, but to overcompensate legitimate claims or to pay erroneous or fraudulent claims. This method is appropriate only if a large proportion of the class members participate and submit accurate claims [State of California v. Levi Strauss & Co. (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 460, 475-476, 224 Cal. Rptr. 605, 715 P.2d 564] . This determination is not a function of the absolute number of persons recovering, but of the correlation or overlap between the injured class of persons and the class to be benefitted. Such a correlation cannot be found if there is a high incidence of erroneous or fraudulent claims [see State of California v. Levi Strauss & Co. (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 460, 479, 224 Cal. Rptr. 605, 715 P.2d 564] .

§ 565.81 Damages, Prejudgment Interest, and Injunctive Relief

Treble damages are recoverable under both the Cartwright Act and federal antitrust law. It has never been determined in California whether, like federal law, the Cartwright Act makes treble damages mandatory once actual damages or injury are shown, but it seems likely that they would be [see Uneedus v. California Shoppers, Inc. (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 932, 936-942, 150 Cal. Rptr. 596 (treble damages under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17043, 17082 of California's Unfair Practices Act, discussed in*§ 565.10* et seq. as mandatory because they would be under 15 U.S.C.S. §§ 13, 15)]. In addition, a plaintiff may recover interest on his or her actual (before trebling) damages from the date of service of the complaint, reasonable attorney's fees, and costs of suit [15 U.S.C.S. § 15(a); Bus. & Prof. Code § 16750(a); see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 16761 (10 percent interest)]. A prevailing defendant, by contrast, does not have a right to attorney's fees under these provisions [Carver v. Chevron U.S.A., Inc. (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 132, 147, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 569] . Moreover, a prevailing defendant cannot overcome this prohibition under an alternative contractual attorney fee provision if the legal work that was performed to defend against the claims under the Cartwright Act overlapped with work to defend against other claims that would otherwise be covered by the contractual provision [Carver v. Chevron U.S.A., Inc. (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 498, 505, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 467] .

15 U.S.C.S. § 26 authorizes injunctive relief in federal antitrust actions, and Bus. & Prof. Code § 16754.5 authorizes injunctive relief in civil Cartwright actions brought by the California Attorney General or a district attorney. In the case of private actions under Cartwright, injunctive relief, both preliminary and permanent, is available when, and under the same conditions and principles as, injunctive relief is granted by courts generally under California law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16750(a); see also Stats. 1987, ch. 865, § 1 (declaring 1987 amendment to Bus. & Prof. Code § 16750(a) to be declarative of existing law)]. It is also available under general equitable principles [Kold Kist v. Amalgamated Meat Cutters (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 191, 203-204, 221 P.2d 724 ; O'Shea v. Tile Layers Union (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 373, 375, 318 P.2d 102 ; see Civ. Code § 3422; for complete discussion of the requirements for injunctive relief, see Ch. 303, Injunctions]. If the conduct complained of is illegal per se, a plaintiff seeking injunctive relief will not be denied that relief because he or she has unclean hands. The unclean hands doctrine is not applicable when conduct that is against public policy is involved [Jomicra, Inc. v. California Mobile Home Dealers Assn. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 396, 401-402, 90 Cal. Rptr. 696] .

In addition to the penalties in the Cartwright Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 16700 et seq.), violations of the Cartwright Act subject a defendant to the civil penalties of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206. Those penalties are fixed in the discretion of the court up to $2500 per violation established in any action brought in the name of the people of California by any of the following officials [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206; see People v. National Ass'n of Realtors (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 459, 473-476, 174 Cal. Rptr. 728] :

- The Attorney General.
- Any district attorney or county counsel authorized by agreement with the district attorney in actions involving violation of a county ordinance.
- Any city attorney of a city with a population in excess of 750,000 with the district attorney's consent.
- A city prosecutor in any city having a full-time city prosecutor.
- A city attorney in any city and county (that, is San Francisco), with the district attorney's consent.

The Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206 penalty is mandatory, and must be imposed for each violation, not for each category of violation. Factors relevant to the amount of the penalty include the number of persons directly affected by each act of unfair competition, the degree of harm, harassment, and unfair competition caused, whether the acts were malicious and predatory, and the nature and extent of public injury to do so the trial court must make a factual assessment of the number of people injured by the violations [*People v. Anyone other than the attorney general or a district attorney who, by writ or appeal, commences any proceeding under the Cartwright Act in the California Supreme Court or a state court of appeal must notify the attorney general within three days of the commencement of the action. No relief, temporary or permanent, may be granted until proof of service of the required notice is filed with the court. On a showing of good cause, the Chief Justice or presiding justice may extend the time for filing the notice [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16750.2].

§ 565.100 Governing Law

The Uniform Trade Secret Act, Civ. Code §§ 3426-3426.10, governs trade secret protection and has been effective since January 1, 1985. Special discovery rules pertaining to misappropriation actions under the UTSA are contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.210. Evid. Code §§ 915(b) and 1060-1063 set forth the evidentiary privilege against disclosure of trade secret information. Common law, which adopted the Restatement of Torts § 757 and comments thereto, controls actions for misappropriations occurring prior to January 1, 1985 [see Sinclair v. Aquarius Elecs., Inc. (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 216, 221, 116 Cal. Rptr. 654 ; Civ. Code 3426.10].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Trade Secrets

§ 565.101 Relationship to Patent and Copyright Law

Although a trade secret may be a device or process that is patentable, patentability is not a condition precedent to the classification of a trade secret. Novelty and invention are not requisite for a trade secret as they are for patentability [Rigging Int'l Maint. Co. v. Gwin (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 594, 613, 180 Cal. Rptr. 451] . Whereas patent law is based on a policy of rewarding or otherwise encouraging the development of secret processes or devices, trade secret protection merely guards against breach of faith and reprehensible means of learning another's secret [Futurecraft Corp. v. Clary Corp. (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 279, 290, 23 Cal. Rptr. 198] .

Trade secret law also protects items that would not be proper subjects for consideration for patent protection. Since the patent laws require adequate and full disclosure and require a full and clear description of the invention and of the manner and process of making and using it, a patentcannot be a trade secret [Kewanee Oil Co. v. Bicron Corp. (1974) 416 U.S. 470, 481-482, 94 S. Ct. 1879, 40 L. Ed. 2d 315 ; see CytoDyn of New Mexico, Inc. v. Amerimmune Pharmaceuticals, Inc. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 288, 298, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 600 (patents and trademarks could not constitute trade secrets)].

Unlike a patent, a trade secret does not give its owner any monopoly and once contracted away is subject to being copied, but the inventor is entirely free to keep the idea secret and not to divulge it to the general public [Sinclair v. Aquarius Elecs., Inc. (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 216, 223, 116 Cal. Rptr. 654] .

Another distinction between trade secrets and patents is the proof required in an action against misuse. To sustain a charge of infringement all of the elements of an invention must have been present in an accused device. But to sustain a claim of trade secret misappropriation, it is only necessary that some secret information relating to one or more essentials of the method or apparatus have been misappropriated [Engelhard Indus., Inc. v. Research Instrumental Corp. (9th Cir. 1963) 324 F.2d 347, 353 ; for discussion and forms relating to patent law matters in state court actions, see Ch. 411, Patents and Inventions].

Similarly, states may regulate trade secrets only to the extent that the regulation does not conflict with federal copyright law [S. O. S., Inc. v. Payday, Inc. (9th Cir. 1989) 886 F.2d 1081, 1090 n.13 ; Religious Tech. Ctr. v. Wollersheim (9th Cir. 1986) 796 F.2d 1076, 1089] . Federal copyright law, however, does not preempt a state trade-secret cause of action that involves a legal or equitable right that is in addition to, or qualitatively different from, a claim based on copyright infringement [S.O.S., Inc. v. Payday, Inc. (9th Cir. 1989) 886 F.2d 1081, 1089-1090 ; Balboa Ins. Co. v. Trans Global Equities (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1327, 1340, 1346-1350, 267 Cal. Rptr. 787 (referred to as "extra element" test)]. This rule leaves areas in which state trade-secret laws may properly apply to copyrighted material. For example, the owner of copyrighted computer software programs could state a cause of action against its licensee for surreptitiously obtaining an "unprotected" copy of the program because the California statute pleaded, Civ. Code § 3426.1(a),(b), did not involve a legal or equitable right equivalent to an exclusive right of a copyright owner under the Copyright Act, but only prohibited certain means of obtaining confidential information. Thus, application of the UTSA would not conflict with federal copyright law [S.O.S., Inc. v. Payday, Inc. (9th Cir. 1989) 886 F.2d 1081, 1089-1090 (reversing summary judgment on pendent state claim and holding triable issue of fact existed regarding whether licensing contract allowed licensee to have copy of program that was not protected by source codes)]. For discussion and forms relating to copyright protection, see Ch. 349, Literary Property and Copyright .

§ 565.102 UTSA Construed to Promote Uniformity

California has adopted the Uniform Trade Secrets Act (UTSA), codified at Civ. Code § 3426 et seq.. The purpose of the UTSA is to make uniform the law regarding trade secrets among the states enacting similar acts and it is to be applied and construed to further that purpose [Civ. Code § 3426.8].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Trade Secrets

49-565 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 565.103

§ 565.103 Application of UTSA

[1] Date of Misappropriation

The UTSA does not apply to misappropriation occurring prior to January 1, 1985. If a continuing misappropriation otherwise covered by the UTSA began before January 1, 1985, the UTSA does not apply to the part of the misappropriation occurring before that date, but does apply to that part of the misappropriation occurring on or after January 1, 1985, unless the appropriation was not a misappropriation under the law in effect before the operative date of the UTSA [Civ. Code § 3426.10]. Thus, pursuant to Civ. Code § 3426.10, damages for a misappropriation that began before January 1, 1985, and continued thereafter are limited to those that occurred after that date. Further, recovery under the UTSA for the part of a continuing misappropriation occurring on or after January 1, 1985, can only be had if the appropriation was a misappropriation under the law in effect before January 1, 1985 [Ralph Andrews Prods., Inc. v. Paramount Pictures Corp. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 676, 685-686, 271 Cal. Rptr. 797 ; see § 565.104].

[2] Relationship to Other Statutes

The UTSA does not supersede any statute relating to the misappropriation of a trade secret, or any statute otherwise regulating trade secrets [Civ. Code § 3426.7(a); see Research Guide for list of other statutes pertaining to trade secrets]. Thus, unfair and deceptive practices of former employees in stealing customers of their former employer can be enjoined under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. (discussed in§ 565.20 et seq.), whether or not the customer list is a trade secret [Courtesy Temp. Serv., Inc. v. Camacho (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1278, 1291, 272 Cal. Rptr. 352] .

The UTSA does not affect contractual remedies or criminal remedies, whether or not based on misappropriation of a trade secret, or other civil remedies that are not based on misappropriation of a trade secret [Civ. Code § 3426.7(b)].

Nor does the UTSA affect the disclosure of a record by a state or local agency under the California Public Records Act (Gov. Code § 6250 et seq.). The determination of whether the disclosure of a record under the California Public Records Act constitutes a misappropriation of a trade secret and the resulting rights and remedies is made pursuant to the common law in effect prior to January 1, 1985 [Civ. Code § 3426.7(c); for discussion of the California Public Records Act, see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act].

[3] Relationship to Common Law

Knowledge of the common law pertaining to trade secrets is important not only for those misappropriations occurring prior to January 1, 1985, but because it may clarify and provide guidance even for those acts to which the UTSA applies. For example, Civ. Code § 3426.1(b) provides descriptions of various acts of misappropriation, two of which revolve around a duty to maintain the secrecy or limit the use of a trade secret. Since the UTSA does not define under what circumstances such a duty would arise, the common law rule applicable to the duty attaching to confidential information should be relevant [see § 565.104]. Additionally, the UTSA makes specific reference to the common law, and both Civ. Code §§ 3426.7(c) (disclosure of public records) and 3426.10 (application of the UTSA) declare the common law to be determinative in specified instances. Moreover, the UTSA is very similar to the common law in some instances [compare Civ. Code § 3426.1(b) with Restatement of Torts § 757 (definitions of misappropriation)].

[4] Action Under UTSA; Definitions

[a] "Trade Secret"

"Trade secret" means information, including a formula, pattern, compilation, program, device, method, technique, or process, that

- Derives independent economic value, actual or potential, from not being generally known to the public or to other persons who can obtain economic value from its disclosure or use; and

- Is the subject of efforts that are reasonable under the circumstances to maintain its secrecy [Civ. Code § 3426.1(d)].

This California definition differs from the Uniform Trade Secrets Act proposed by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws in that it does not include the phrase "and not being readily ascertainable by proper means," after "generally known to" in Civ. Code § 3426.1(d)(1). The deletion apparently resulted from arguments that conditioning the scope of a trade secret on the extent to which the information was not readily ascertainable would muddy the meaning of the term trade secret and invite the various parties to speculate on the time needed to discover a secret [ABBA Rubber Co. v. Seaquist (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1, 21, 286 Cal. Rptr. 518 (declining to follow American Paper & Packaging Prods., Inc. v. Kirgan (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1318, 1326, 228 Cal. Rptr. 713 , to extent it suggests that information is not protectable as trade secret if it is "known or readily ascertainable")]. While the ease of ascertainability is irrelevant to the definition of a trade secret, the assertion that a matter is readily ascertainable by proper means remains available as a defense to a claim of misappropriation if the defendant can establish that its knowledge of the information resulted from its own efforts or some other proper means[ABBA Rubber Co. v. Seaquist (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1, 21-22 n.9, 286 Cal. Rptr. 518] .

The failure of the UTSA to include customer lists in its definition of a trade secret does not mean that the legislature intentionally excluded such lists. Rather, the language of Civ. Code § 3426.1(d) is inclusive, not exclusive, and customer lists can be protectable trade secrets under the Act [Morlife, Inc. v. Perry (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1514, 1523, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 731 ; ABBA Rubber Co. v. Seaquist (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1, 18, 286 Cal. Rptr. 518 ; American Paper & Packaging Prods., Inc. v. Kirgan (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1318, 1324, 228 Cal. Rptr. 713] .

The word "compilation," as used in Civ. Code § 3426.1(d), is not to be given the dictionary meanings ascribed to the verb "to compile." A compilation of data, as common usage of this term indicates, may come from any source and is as readily storable in one's memory as in some written form [American Paper & Packaging Prods., Inc. v. Kirgan (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1318, 1324, 228 Cal. Rptr. 713] .

Information may lose its status as a trade secret through widespread distribution to a large group of potential competitors or other persons to whom the information would have some economic value [DVD Copy Control Assn., Inc.. v. Bunner (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 241, 251, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 185] . In one case, for example, the court of appeal held that DVD decryption software, while originally the plaintiff's trade secret, lost its status as a trade secret when it was posted on dozens of Internet web sites within a short time and it was widely publicized through the community of computer programmers that the software was available for download by any interested party [DVD Copy Control Assn., Inc. v. Bunner (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 241, 251253, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 185 (preliminary injunction improperly granted given loss of secrecy of information at time injunction was sought)].

[b] "Improper Means"

"Improper means" includes theft, bribery, misrepresentation, breach or inducement of a breach of a duty to maintain secrecy, or espionage through electronic or other means. Reverse engineering or independent derivation alone shall not be considered improper means [Civ. Code § 3426.1(a)].

The plaintiff bears the burden of proof at trial on the issue of improper means, including the burden of proving that the defendant's use resulted from independent derivation or reverse engineering [Sargent Fletcher, Inc. v. Able Corp. (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 1658, 1669, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 279] . However, the failure of a defendant to produce evidence to rebut a prima facie showing made by the plaintiff can support a judgment for the plaintiff [Sargent Fletcher, Inc. v. Able Corp. (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 1658, 1669, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 279] .

"Misappropriation" means [Civ. Code § 3426.1(b)]:

- Acquisition of another's trade secret by a person who knows or has reason to know that the trade secret was acquired by improper means; or

- Disclosure or use of another's trade secret without express or implied consent by a person who:

  - Used improper means to acquire knowledge of the trade secret; or

  - At the time of disclosure or use, knew or had reason to know that his or her knowledge of the trade secret was (i) derived through a person who used improper means to acquire it; (ii) acquired under circumstances giving rise to a duty to maintain its secrecy or limit its use; or (iii) derived through a person who owed a duty to the person seeking relief to maintain its secrecy or limit its use [see, e.g., Vacco Indus., Inc. v. Van Den Berg (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 34, 51, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602 (emphasizing, with respect to engineering drawings that were taken before effective date of UTSA, that their continued use after effective date to market products derived therefrom was misappropriation under UTSA definition)]; or

  - Before a material change of his or her position, knew or had reason to know that it was a trade secret and that knowledge of it had been acquired by accident or mistake.

A person "has reason to know" if he or she is on constructive notice and should make further inquiry regarding the ownership of the secret. Constructive notice is codified in Civ. Code § 19: every person who has actual notice of circumstances sufficient to put a prudent person on inquiry as to a particular fact has constructive notice of the fact itself in all cases in which, by prosecuting the inquiry, he or she might have learned the fact [Ralph Andrews Prods., Inc. v. Paramount Pictures Corp. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 676, 681-682, 271 Cal. Rptr. 797] . If no duty is imposed by law on a person to make inquiry and the circumstances are such that a prudent person would not be put on inquiry, the fact that the means of obtaining the true facts are open to a person and he or she does not pursue those means is not sufficient to impose liability. No definite rule can be formulated to specify what, in a particular instance, is sufficient to arouse suspicion. The better rule is that even information regarding collateral facts, which, if pursued, would have led to the discovery of the ultimate facts, is sufficient to charge the person failing to pursue [Ralph Andrews Prods., Inc. v. Paramount Pictures Corp. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 676, 682, 271 Cal. Rptr. 797] .

General business practices and one's own actions are considered in determining if there is constructive notice [Ralph Andrews Prods., Inc. v. Paramount Pictures Corp. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 676, 683, 271 Cal. Rptr. 797] . In one case, for example, the defendant had acquired a concept for a television show from plaintiff's employee. The employee allegedly misrepresented to defendant that he owned the rights to the concept. Defendant claimed it had a right to rely on the representation, but plaintiff argued that the reliance was not reasonable and that defendant had a duty to investigate. In reversing summary judgment for defendant, the court of appeal noted that the record did not disclose whether defendant ever received the written verification it requested from the employee that the employee owned the concept and that another studio had decided not to exercise its option on it [Ralph Andrews Prods., Inc. v. Paramount Pictures Corp. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 676, 683-685, 684 n.5, 271 Cal. Rptr. 797] . Although defendant's usual practice was to have its legal department handle "clearances" for shows, there was no indication whether those normal business practices were followed. Nor did the record contain any evidence regarding the industry standards for obtaining clearances [Ralph Andrews Prods., Inc. v. Paramount Pictures Corp. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 676, 684-685, 271 Cal. Rptr. 797] .

A defendant's continuing improper use or disclosure of a trade secret after the defendant's initial misappropriation is considered part of a single claim of continuing misappropriation accruing at the time of the initial misappropriation [Cadence Design Sys., Inc. v. Avant! Corp. (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 215, 218, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 169, 57 P.3d 647] . Each new use or wrongful disclosure by that defendant augments a single claim for misappropriation, rather than giving rise to a separate claim [Cadence Design Sys., Inc. v. Avant! Corp. (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 215, 223, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 169, 57 P.3d 647] . This does not preclude the existence of separate claims against different defendants, however. For example, some defendants may be liable for the initial misappropriation of the trade secret, while others are liable only for a later continuing use [Cadence Design Sys., Inc. v. Avant! Corp. (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 215, 225, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 169, 57 P.3d 647] .

[d] Definitions Not Exhaustive

In addition to not defining every term used in the UTSA, the definitions given may be subject to different meanings, as the statutory definitions are prefaced with the limitation, "unless the context requires otherwise" [Civ. Code § 3426.1; see also § 565.103[2]].

[5] Statute of Limitations

An action for misappropriation under the UTSA must be brought within three years after the misappropriation is discovered or by the exercise of reasonable diligence should have been discovered. A continuing misappropriation constitutes a single claim for the purpose of determining the accrual of the statute of limitations [Civ. Code § 3426.6].

The first discovered, or discoverable, misappropriation of a trade secret commences the limitations period [see Glue-Fold, Inc. v. Slautterback Corp. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 1018, 1026, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 661] . Therefore, even if there are two distinct periods of misappropriation, separated by a period during which the plaintiff erroneously believes that the defendant has ceased the misappropriation, the statute of limitations begins to run on the entire claim when the plaintiff first discovers or should have discovered the initial misappropriation [Glue-Fold, Inc. v. Slautterback Corp. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 1018, 1023-1028, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 661] .

Despite the rule that a continuing misappropriation constitutes a single claim, a plaintiff may have more than one claim for misappropriation, each with its own limitations period, when there is more than one defendant and at least one defendant obtained the trade secret at a later date from the original misappropriation [Cypress Semiconductor Corp. v. Superior Court (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 575, 583-584, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 685]. Thus, if a third party subsequently obtains misappropriated trade secrets from the original misappropriating party, a plaintiff's claim against that third party accrues only when the plaintiff discovers that third party's misappropriation. As to that third party, consistent with the single-claim rule, any continuing misappropriation constitutes a single claim [Cypress Semiconductor Corp. v. Superior Court (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 575, 583-585, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 685]. Although knowledge or lack of knowledge of the tainted nature of a trade secret by such a third-party defendant will be relevant to establishing the merits of a misappropriation claim against that third party, it is the plaintiff's knowledge of misappropriation by that third party, rather than the third party's knowledge, that triggers the running of the statute of limitations [Cypress Semiconductor Corp. v. Superior Court (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 575, 586-587, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 685].

For a form of affirmative defense based on the statute of limitations, see § 565.274.

Actual or threatened misappropriation of a trade secret may be enjoined. On application to the court, an injunction will be terminated when the trade secret has ceased to exist, but the injunction may be continued for an additional period of time in order to eliminate commercial advantage that would otherwise be derived from the misappropriation [Civ. Code § 3426.2(a); see also Morlife, Inc. v. Perry (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1514, 1528, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 731 (upholding injunction that did not have specified time span, but which permitted enjoined party to seek termination of injunction pursuant to statute)]. For discussion and forms relating to injunctive relief generally, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

If the court determines that it would be unreasonable to prohibit future use, an injunction may condition future use on payment of a reasonable royalty for no longer than the period of time the use could have been prohibited [Civ. Code § 3426.2(b)].

In appropriate circumstances, affirmative acts to protect a trade secret may be compelled by court order [Civ. Code § 3426.2(c)]. The UTSA neither defines appropriate circumstances nor elaborates on the court order.

Even before a UTSA action is decided on its merits, a plaintiff may obtain a preliminary injunction prohibiting the publication of a trade secret, assuming that the trial court determines that the plaintiff is likely to prevail on the merits of the claim and will suffer irreparable harm without the injunction [see DVD Copy Control Assn., Inc. v. Bunner (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 864, 875, 889, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 69, 75 P.3d 1 ; see, e.g., ReadyLink Healthcare v. Cotton (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1006, 1016-1026, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 720 (upholding preliminary injunction)]. A preliminary injunction enjoining the publication of a trade secret does not necessarily violate free speech rights under the federal and California constitutions, so long as the injunction at issue meets the appropriate constitutional standards and is narrowly tailored to enjoin no more speech than is necessary to protect the plaintiff's legitimate property right [see DVD Copy Control Assn., Inc. v. Bunner (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 864, 876-889, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 69 (upholding preliminary injunction prohibiting publication of DVD decryption software code on Internet web site)].

If a preliminary injunction is issued, the plaintiff must furnish an undertaking equal to the damages the defendant may sustain as a result of the injunction. That estimate is an exercise of the trial court's discretion and will not be disturbed on appeal unless there is a clear abuse of discretion or the amount is arbitrary, capricious, or beyond the bounds of reason [see ABBA Rubber Co. v. Seaquist (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1, 14, 22, 286 Cal. Rptr. 518 (dissolving preliminary injunction because $1,000 was insufficient bond in view of evidence that 87.7 percent of defendant's invoices or $315,000 per year came from customers on plaintiff's customer list)]. Although lost profits will be offset by savings resulting from reduced sales expenses or costs of goods sold, the trial court cannot usually assume that the losses a defendant is likely to suffer will be easily compensated by new customers for its product. The amount of the undertaking must factor in reasonable attorney's fees and expenses that the defendant will have to expend to procure a final decision dissolving the injunction [ABBA Rubber Co. v. Seaquist (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1, 14-15, 286 Cal. Rptr. 518] .

Also, the California court of appeal has rejected the so-called "inevitable disclosure" doctrine that has been accepted in some other jurisdictions. Under this doctrine, an employer, without proof of actual or threatened trade secret misappropriation, may seek to enjoin a former employee from working for a competitor on the theory that the former employee's new employment will inevitably lead him or her to rely on the former employer's trade secrets. Noting that California public policy strongly favors employee mobility, the court of appeal concluded that adoption of this doctrine would effectively impose a covenant not to compete on the employee without the employee's express agreement, possibly through use of a confidentiality agreement signed after the employment contract with the former employer was already in place [Whyte v. Schlage Lock Co. (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 1443, 1462-1463, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 277] .

[a] Damages

Damages for the actual loss caused by misappropriation may be recovered and any unjust enrichment caused by misappropriation that is not taken into account in computing damages for actual loss may also be recovered [Civ. Code § 3426.3(a); seealso Morlife, Inc. v. Perry (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1514, 1528, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 731 (upholding award characterized as "reasonable approximation" of enrichment)]. For a form of complaint for damages for trade secret misappropriation, see § 565.270.

[b] Royalties

If neither damages nor unjust enrichment caused by misappropriation are provable, the court may order payment of a reasonable royalty for no longer than the period of time the use could have been prohibited [Civ. Code § 3426.3(b); see § 565.103[6]]. A royalty as damages may only be awarded under the conditions specified by statute. Thus, for example, a royalty may not be awarded as damages when damages or unjust enrichment are otherwise proven or provable [Robert L. Cloud & Assocs., Inc. v. Mikesell (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1141, 1149-1150, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 143 (also rejecting authority of trial court to order royalties from future business under general civil authority to fashion injunctive relief)].

[c] Exemplary Damages

If the misappropriation was willful and malicious, the court may award exemplary damages in an amount not exceeding twice any award made under Civ. Code § 3426.3(a) (damages) or Civ. Code § 3426.3(b) (royalties) [Civ. Code § 3426.3(c)]. This cap on exemplary damages of twice the compensatory damages does not relieve a plaintiff from the burden of providing meaningful evidence of the defendant's financial condition in order to support an award of punitive damages [Robert L. Cloud & Assocs., Inc. v. Mikesell (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1141, 1151-1152, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 143] .

[d] Attorney's Fees and Costs

The court may award reasonable attorney's fees and costs to the prevailing party if a claim of misappropriation is made in bad faith, a motion to terminate an injunction is made or resisted in bad faith, or the misappropriation was willful and malicious [Civ. Code § 3426.4; see Computer Prepared Accounts, Inc. v. Katz (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 428, 431, 439-440, 286 Cal. Rptr. 556 (awarding sanctions and attorney's fees under Civ. Code § 3426.4 and Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 for seeking injunction based on forged documents)].

Costs that may be recovered by the prevailing party include a reasonable sum for the services of expert witnesses actually incurred and reasonably necessary in preparation for or during trial or arbitration. Costs may only be recovered for expert witnesses who are not regular employees of any party [Civ. Code § 3426.4].

Although the statute does not define "bad faith," the court of appeal has held that, for these purposes, bad faith requires not only that the claim be objectively specious (not viable despite some apparent superficial merit), but also that the plaintiff brought or maintained the claim in subjective bad faith--that is, with an improper motive [FLIR Systems, Inc. v. Parrish (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1270, 1275-1278, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 307 ; Gemini Aluminum Corp. v. California Custom Shapes, Inc. (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1249, 1261-1263, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 358] . Evidence that plaintiffs had an anticompetitive motive in filing the lawsuit will also support a finding that the lawsuit was objectively specious, at least when there is no evidence of actual damages, misappropriation or threatened misappropriation, and no threat of imminent harm [FLIR Systems, Inc. v. Parrish (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1270, 1276-1277, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 307]. In addition, the fact that the trial court may have denied a defendant's motion for summary judgment will not preclude a later finding that the plaintiff's action was brought or maintained in bad faith [FLIR Systems, Inc. v. Parrish (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1270, 1283, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 307].

The statute also does not define "willful" or "malicious." One appellate court has held that willfulness and maliciousness are established by a jury's determination, on clear and convincing evidence, to award punitive damages, because such a determination necessitates a finding that defendants' acts of misappropriation were done with malice [Vacco Indus., Inc. v. Van Den Berg (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 34, 54, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602] .

Because attorney's fees for a prevailing plaintiff when defendant's misappropriation is willful and malicious are authorized by statute, they are awarded pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(a)(10), and the amount of the award is fixed by the court in a posttrial noticed motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(c)(5); Vacco Indus., Inc. v. Van Den Berg (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 34, 55, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602] . The amount of the award to a successful plaintiff need not reflect the monetary relief awarded when the most significant relief awarded the plaintiff is injunctive [Vacco Indus., Inc. v. Van Den Berg (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 34, 55, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602 (relatively minor monetary award only reflected fact that defendant has not yet been successful in financially injuring plaintiffs)]. If the misappropriation began before the effective date of the UTSA (January 1, 1985) [Civ. Code § 3426.10], any attorney's fee award must be apportioned so that it is only attributable to misappropriations occurring after January 1, 1985 [Vacco Indus., Inc. v. Van Den Berg (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 34, 55-56, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602] . If one defendant steals the trade secrets and joins with others in using them, that does not mean that attorney's fees may be awarded under the third party tortfeasor doctrine [see Prentice v. North Am. Title Guar. Corp. (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 618, 30 Cal. Rptr. 821, 381 P. 2d 645 (first enunciating doctrine, sometime referred to as "Prentice" award)]. Plaintiff's damages in that situation do not flow from the "first" defendant's initial misappropriation, but from the continuing misconduct of the tortfeasors whose misappropriation was later in time [Vacco Indus., Inc. v. Van Den Berg (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 34, 56-57, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602] .

An award of attorney's fees is not authorized under the UTSA when the complaint does not actually allege a cause of action for misappropriation of a trade secret, even if the plaintiff mistakenly includes a prayer for relief under the UTSA. In one case, for example, the complaint alleged only misappropriation of patents and trademarks. However, because patents and trademarks, by their very nature, are not trade secrets, defendant was not entitled to attorney's fees under the UTSA, even though the complaint sought double damages under Civ. Code § 3426.3 [CytoDyn of New Mexico, Inc. v. Amerimmune Pharmaceuticals, Inc. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 288, 296-300, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 600].

[8] Description of Trade Secret for Discovery Purposes

In any action alleging the misappropriation of a trade secret under the UTSA, before commencing discovery relating to the trade secret, the party alleging the misappropriation must identify the trade secret with reasonable particularity subject to any orders that may be appropriate under Civ. Code § 3426.5 (protective discovery orders) [Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.210; see § 565.103[9]].

The statute does not clearly indicate whether the plaintiff must identify the trade secret with reasonable particularity in the complaint or by some other means. However this identification is made, the "reasonable particularity" mandated by the statute does not require the party alleging misappropriation to define every minute detail of the claimed trade secret at the outset of the litigation. Instead, the plaintiff must make a showing that is reasonable under the circumstances to identify the alleged trade secret in a manner that will allow the trial court to control the scope of discovery, protect the parties' proprietary information, and allow them a fair opportunity to prepare and present their best case or defense [Advanced Modular Sputtering, Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 826, 835-836, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 901] . Although not always required, if the nature of the alleged trade secret or the technical field in which it arises makes a detailed description alone inadequate to permit a defendant to learn the limits of the secret and develop defenses or permit the court to understand the secret and fashion discovery, the court may require, as necessary to satisfy those needs, an explanation of how the alleged trade secret differs from matters known to skilled persons in the field [see Brescia v. Angelin (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 133, 150, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 842] .

However, a plaintiff cannot be required at this stage of the proceedings to convince the court that the purported trade secrets are actually secret. While this is an essential element of the plaintiff's case that must be proven at trial, it is not a required showing at the prediscovery stage of the action [Perlan Therapeutics, Inc. v. Superior Court (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1333, 1351, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 211] .

A trial court has the authority to reject a trade secret statement if the statement does not clearly identify all of the trade secrets at issue, or if it includes broad, catchall language, extensive extraneous material, or voluminous attachments as a tactic to preserve an unrestricted, unilateral right to subsequently amend the statement to include trade secrets that were not envisioned when the initial statement was filed [Perlan Therapeutics, Inc. v. Superior Court (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1333, 1350-1352, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 211] .

[9] Preservation of Secrecy Ordered by Court

In an action under the UTSA, a court shall preserve the secrecy of an alleged trade secret by reasonable means, which may include granting protective orders in connection with discovery proceedings, holding in-camera hearings, sealing the records of the action, and ordering any person involved in the litigation not to disclose an alleged trade secret without prior court approval [Civ. Code § 3426.5].

During discovery a party responding to a discovery device or any other affectednatural person or organization may make a motion for a protectiveorder after making a reasonable and good faith attempt at informal resolution. The court, for good cause shown, may make any order that justice requires to protect that party and may order that a trade secret or other confidential research not be disclosed or be disclosed only in a certain way [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2025.420(b)(13) (depositions), Code Civ. Proc. § 2030.090(b)(6) (interrogatories), Code Civ. Proc. § 2031.060(b)(5) (inspection of documents), and Code Civ. Proc. § 2033.080(b)(4) (requests for admissions)]. For discussion of discovery procedures generally, see Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing .

If a protective order is issued to protect trade secrets that are the subject of litigation, a willful violation of the protective order by an attorney or client may result in the imposition of sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7, or under former Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 if the suit was brought prior to 1995 [see Wallis v. PHL Associates, Inc. (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 882, 900, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 297 (sanctions issued under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5)].

[10] Current Ownership of Trade Secret Not Required

A plaintiff is not required to prove current ownership of the relevant trade secret in order to prosecute an action for misappropriation of a trade secret. It is sufficient that the plaintiff had an ownership interest in the secret during the time period for which damages are being sought [Jasmine Networks, Inc. v. Superior Court (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 980, 986, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 426] . Thus, for example, if a plaintiff files suit for trade secret misappropriation, then sells the trade secret but retains the right to sue for the past misappropriation, plaintiff does not lose the right to pursue remedies for the misappropriation that occurred prior to selling the rights to the trade secret [Jasmine Networks, Inc. v. Superior Court (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 980, 986, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 426] .

If suit brought by a former owner raises concerns about the rights of an absent party, such as the current owner of the trade secret, or there is a danger of multiple or inconsistent liabilities on the part of the parties before the court, the rules governing permissive or compulsory joinder of parties may be used to seek to join the absent party [Jasmine Networks, Inc. v. Superior Court (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 980, 986, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 426 ; see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 389].

Chapter 565 UNFAIR COMPETITION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Trade Secrets

49-565 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 565.104

§ 565.104 Common Law Action for Misappropriation

[1] Elements

The California common law position on liability for misappropriation of trade secrets is based on the Restatement definition of a trade secret. Liability requires proof of the existence of subject matter capable of protection as a trade secret and disclosure of the secret under circumstances giving rise to a contractual or other legally imposed obligation on the part of the disclosee not to use or disclose the secret to the detriment of the discloser [Cal Francisco Inv. Corp. v. Vrionis (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 318, 321-322, 92 Cal. Rptr. 201 ; Restatement of Torts § 757, cmt. b]. A more recent federal appellate opinion, however, states that the elements of cause of action for common law misappropriation are (1) plaintiff's investment of substantial time and money in developing its "property," (2) defendant's appropriation of that property at little or no cost, and (3) plaintiff's injury by defendant's conduct [Self-Directed Placement Corp. v. Control Data Corp. (9th Cir. 1990) 908 F.2d 462, 467] .

A complaint alleging trade secret misappropriation must allege all three elements: (1) the existence of a trade secret; (2) disclosure under circumstances imposing an obligation to maintain its secrecy; and (3) use or disclosure to the owner's detriment [see Cal Francisco Inv. Corp. v. Vrionis (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 318, 321-322, 92 Cal. Rptr. 201 ; see § 565.270]. If the defendant is an employee or former employee of the plaintiff, the facts alleged must also show that the public policy in favor of the protection of the complainant's interest in maintaining the secret outweighs the interest of the employee in using his or her knowledge to support himself or herself in other employment [Cal Francisco Inv. Corp. v. Vrionis (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 318, 321-322, 92 Cal. Rptr. 201 ; see § 565.105[1]]. For discussion of privileges specific to trade secrets, see § 565.107.

[2] Protectable Secret

California adopted the Restatement of Torts definition of trade secret, which provides that a trade secret may consist of any formula, pattern, device, or compilation of information which is used in one's business, and which gives the owner an opportunity to obtain an advantage over competitors who do not know or use it. Although the nature of a trade secret is somewhat nebulous, a characteristic common to those secrets which have found protection from disclosure and use by the courts is the need for their continued use by the owner in order to maintain a competitive advantage over others [

Rigging Int'l Maint. Co. v. Gwin (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 594, 606-607, 180 Cal. Rptr. 451 ; see Restatement of Torts § 757, cmt. b]. A trade secret differs from other secret information in a business because it is not simply information as to single or ephemeral events in the conduct of the business; it is a process or device for continuous use in the operation of the business [Cal Francisco Inv. Corp. v. Vrionis (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 318, 322, 92 Cal. Rptr. 201] .

Some factors to be considered in determining whether given information is one's trade secret are: the extent to which the information is known outside of the business, the extent to which it is known by employees and others involved in the business, the extent of measures taken to guard the secrecy of the information, the value of the information to the owner and competitors, the amount of effort or money expended in developing the information, and the ease or difficulty with which the information could be properly acquired or duplicated by others [Futurecraft Corp. v. Clary Corp. (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 279, 289, 23 Cal. Rptr. 198] .

Although the specific character of the trade secret is not important, its secrecy is, and matters which are completely disclosed by the goods marketed cannot be trade secrets [Futurecraft Corp. v. Clary Corp. (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 279, 289, 23 Cal. Rptr. 198 ; for discussion of reverse engineering, see § 565.104[3]].

A trade secret protects only during the period when others working in the same field do not, in the ordinary course of their work, make the same discovery [Sarkes Tarzian, Inc. v. Audio Devices, Inc. (S.D. Cal. 1958) 166 F. Supp. 250, 279] . An invention may be placed in public use or on sale without losing its secret character, but, by definition, a trade secret is something which has not been placed in the public domain [Sinclair v. Aquarius Elecs., Inc. (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 216, 226, 116 Cal. Rptr. 654 ; for an affirmative defense based on product disclosure of a trade secret, see § 565.273]. Even when a product utilizing misappropriated trade secret information is not built until after the information is made public, if the misappropriation occurred while the information was secret, an action for trade secret misappropriation will still exist and damages may be available for profits resulting from the acceleration of the date when production was possible [Engelhard Indus., Inc. v. Research Instrumental Corp. (9th Cir. 1963) 324 F.2d 347, 353] .

[3] Improper Disclosure

Trade secrets are protected only when they are disclosed or used through improper means. The significant difference between trade secretinformation and information that is not secret is that knowledge of the latter is available without use of improper means, while trade secret knowledge is usually available only by improper means [Knudsen Corp. v. Ever-Fresh Foods, Inc. (C.D. Cal. 1971) 336 F. Supp. 241, 244] . Trade secrets do not enjoy absolute monopoly protection and will lose their character as private property when the owner divulges them or when they are discovered through proper means [Chicago Lock Co. v. Fanberg (9th Cir. 1982) 676 F.2d 400, 404 (defendants did not use improper means in soliciting lock combinations from locksmiths, using reverse engineering to deduce pattern, and publishing combination codes)]. "Improper means" connotes the existence of a duty to the trade secret owner not to disclose the secret to others [Chicago Lock Co. v. Fanberg (9th Cir. 1982) 676 F.2d 400, 404-405 ; for discussion of employment and confidential information imposing duty of nondisclosure, see § 565.105[1],[2]]. A trade secret does not protect against discovery by fair and honest means such as independent invention, accidental disclosure, or reverse engineering (starting with the known product and working backward to divine the process) [Sinclair v. Aquarius Elecs., Inc. (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 216, 226, 116 Cal. Rptr. 654 ; see also Restatement of Torts § 758 (1939); Ralph Andrews Prods., Inc. v. Paramount Pictures Corp. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 676, 686, 271 Cal. Rptr. 797 (issues to be determined on remand were whether defendant paid value in good faith to acquire concept for television show from plaintiff's employee, and whether defendant changed its position such that to subject it to liability would be inequitable)].

[a] Damages

In an action under the common law, damages are recoverable for the pecuniary loss suffered by the defendant's wrongful use of the trade secret [Klamath-Orleans Lumber, Inc. v. Miller (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 458, 466, 151 Cal. Rptr. 118] . Loss of profits through a reduction of sales and price are the usual way to prove damages when the trade secret is production oriented [Sarkes Tarzian, Inc. v. Audio Devices, Inc. (S.D. Cal. 1958) 166 F. Supp. 250, 269] . When the trade secret misappropriated is a customer list, this may be shown by the loss of profits resulting from sales actually diverted from plaintiff's business [Klamath-Orleans Lumber, Inc. v. Miller (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 458, 466, 151 Cal. Rptr. 118] . Another method of assessing damages combines the losses sustained by the plaintiff and the benefits enjoyed by the misappropriator [Tri-Tron Int'l v. Velto (9th Cir. 1975) 525 F.2d 432, 437 (discussing California law)].

[b] Injunctive Relief

Although injunctive relief under the common law has no paramount control over new cases because they are governed by UTSA, the common law principles may serve as important guidelines in deciding when injunctive relief is appropriate [see § 565.103[1] and*§ 565.103[3]*]. Moreover, even though UTSA provides for injunctive relief, it does not specify when that relief is warranted [see Civ. Code § 3426.2].

While the authority for injunctive relief is not stated in many cases, trade secret misappropriation under the common law could be enjoined under the purview of "unfair competition" and "unlawful" or "unfair business practice" under former Civ. Code § 3369 (now Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200-17203) [Chicago Lock Co. v. Fanberg (9th Cir. 1982) 676 F.2d 400, 404 ; see Barquis v. Merchants Collection Assn.(1972) 7 Cal. 3d 94, 108-113, 101 Cal. Rptr. 745, 496 P.2d 817 ; see also § 565.10 et seq.].

The owner of a trade secret is entitled to protection of its trade secret for as long as it remains a secret. If it is determined that information would not remain secret forever, but would be fully disclosed as a result of public announcements, demonstrations, sales of products, or other disclosures, that may be reflected in any injunctive relief ordered by the court [[Winston Research Corp. v. Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co. (9th Cir. 1965) 350 F.2d 134, 141] . Injunctive relief has been granted for the approximate period it would require a legitimate competitor to develop a successful product after public disclosure of the previously secret information [Winston Research Corp. v. Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co. (9th Cir. 1965) 350 F.2d 134, 142 ; Knudsen Corp. v. Ever-Fresh Foods, Inc. (C.D. Cal. 1971) 336 F. Supp. 241, 244] .

[c] Statute of Limitations

No case definitively states what statute of limitations was applicable to trade secret misappropriation cases. While some cases theorized that trade secret protection was based on a property right [see, e.g., California Intelligence Bureau v. Cunningham (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 197, 203, 188 P.2d 303] , others reasoned that it arose out of a personal relationship requiring good faith actions [see, e.g., Monolith Portland Midwest Co. v. Kaiser Aluminum & Chem. Corp. (9th Cir. 1969) 407 F.2d 288, 293 ; see also § 565.105[1]]. The period of limitation for an action for breach of good faith confidence is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1), which imposes a two year limitation on actions on a contract, obligation, or liability not founded on an instrument of writing [see Davies v. Krasna (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 502, 509-510, 121 Cal. Rptr. 705, 535 P.2d 1161 (case analyzed from fiduciary duty viewpoint rather than misappropriation of trade secret, but implies that two year limitation applies to trade secrets)]. For discussion of the elements and requirements of a confidential relationship, see Ch. 427, Principal and Agent .

A cause of action for violation of a trade secret accrues at the first moment of adverse use or disclosure of a trade secret in violation of the confidential relationship. Once the relationship is violated, it is not violatedanew with each added use or disclosure, although the damages suffered may thereby be aggravated. The cause of action arises only once [Monolith Portland Midwest Co. v. Kaiser Aluminum & Chem. Corp. (9th Cir. 1969) 407 F.2d 288, 292-293] . For a form of affirmative defense based on the statute of limitations, see § 565.274.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Trade Secrets

49-565 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 565.105

§ 565.105 Particular Situations

[1] Employment Relationships

[a] In General

Although Lab. Code § 2860, which provides that everything which an employee acquires by virtue of employment, except compensation due from the employer, belongs to the employer, whether acquired lawfully or unlawfully, or during or after the expiration of the terms of employment, has been cited as authority for protection of the employer's secrets [see Reid v. Mass Co., Inc. (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 293, 300, 318 P.2d 54] , it is not necessary, because the employer's right to protection of trade secrets derives from the fact that the information was secret, not from the fact that it came to the employee in the course of employment [see King v. Pacific Vitamin Corp. (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 841, 849, 64 Cal. Rptr. 486] . While there is an older line of cases referring to trade secret as an absolute property right of the employer [see, e.g., California Intelligence Bureau v. Cunningham (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 197, 203, 188 P.2d 303] , more recent cases focus on relationship between the parties at the time the secret is disclosed [see, e.g., Futurecraft Corp. v. Clary Corp. (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 279, 288, 23 Cal. Rptr. 198] . The protected relationship, although not a confidential relationship, is one to which some rudimentary requirements of good faith attach [see Monolith Portland Midwest Co. v. Kaiser Aluminum & Chem. Corp. (9th Cir. 1969) 407 F.2d 288, 293 (action based on supplier-customer relationship)]. For discussion of the elements and requirements of a confidential relationship, see Ch. 427, Principal and Agent .

Regardless of the underlying theory, the employer does not have a monopoly in the use of a trade secret, but merely a proprietary right against usurpation by unfair means. The employer has the burden of showing two things in an action for trade secret misappropriation against an employee or former employee: a legally protectable trade secret and a legal basis, either a covenant or a confidential relationship, on which to predicate relief [Futurecraft Corp. v. Clary Corp. (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 279, 283, 23 Cal. Rptr. 198 ; see § 565.271 for an allegation of trade secret misappropriation by a former employee].

[b] Implied Obligation of Confidentiality

In the employment relationship, the employee's obligation not to disclose trade secrets exists in the absence of any stipulation to the contrary [By-Buk Co. v. Printed Cellophane Tape Co. (1958) 163 Cal. App. 2d 157, 164, 329 P.2d 147] . The implied obligation not to make use of or disclose trade secrets is one of trust and encompasses the use of the information to the employers's prejudice [American Loan Corp. v. California Commercial Corp. (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 515, 521, 27 Cal. Rptr. 243] . As in other circumstances, if the information is not known to be secret or confidential, it will not be protected as such. For example, if an employer does not in any manner inform or indicate to employees that particular information is secret or to be treated in confidence, a warning that nonspecific information is secret after an employee terminates his or her employment is, in effect, ex post facto, and not effective [see Architectural Models, Inc. v. Neklason (N.D. Cal. 1967) 264 F. Supp. 312, 321 , aff'd, (9th Cir. 1968) 397 F.2d 405] . The implied obligation not to disclose the employer's trade secrets does not extend to create an obligation not to disclose trade secrets developed by the employee. Unless the employer can demonstrate another reason for the implication of confidence, an employee is privileged to disclose and use trade secrets which he or she developed--they being a part of the technical knowledge and skill acquired by virtue of employment [Futurecraft Corp. v. Clary Corp. (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 279, 285-287, 23 Cal. Rptr. 198] .

An employment agreement may contain various provisions, and in that contract an employee may limit his or her right to compete with the employer or restrict his or her right to use trade secret information [Cal Francisco Inv. Corp. v. Vrionis (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 318, 323, 92 Cal. Rptr. 201] . An agreement not to use trade secrets is not an unlawful restraint of trade unless it is more extensive than is reasonably required to protect the employer's interests [By-Buk Co. v. Printed Cellophane Tape Co. (1958) 163 Cal. App. 2d 157, 164, 329 P.2d 147 ; for discussion of contracts not to compete generally, see § 565.70 et seq.]. However, merely labeling something as confidential or a trade secret in an employment agreement will not make matters generally known in the trade or readily discernible by those in the trade a secret [see Sarkes Tarzian, Inc. v. Audio Devices, Inc. (S.D. Cal. 1958) 166 F. Supp. 250, 264-265] .

Whether or not a duty not to divulge trade secret information is expressed in an employment contract is a question of fact [Ungar Elec. Tools, Inc. v. Sid Ungar Co., Inc. (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 398, 403, 13 Cal. Rptr. 268] . A promise in an employment contract not to use confidential information regarding customers for one year after termination of employment is enforceable [Gordon v. Landau (1958) 49 Cal. 2d 690, 694, 321 P.2d 456 (damages awarded for period promise was effective, injunctive relief not available past the effective time of promise)].

[c] Information Particular to Employer

The cases reflect the accommodation of competing policies in the law: the right of a business to be protected against unfair competition stemmingfrom the usurpation of its trade secret and the right of an individual to the unhampered pursuit of the livelihood for which he or she is best suited [Futurecraft Corp. v. Clary Corp. (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 279, 285-286, 23 Cal. Rptr. 198] . Trade secret protection is available only when the information has value through affording the employer a competitive advantage over competitors who do not know of it, and when the granting of protection will not unduly hamstring the former employee in the practice of his or her occupation [Futurecraft Corp. v. Clary Corp. (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 279, 288, 23 Cal. Rptr. 198]. Thus, trade secrets must be the particular secrets of the employer as distinguished from the general secrets of the trade. Secrets acquired and developed as a result of long employment in the particular trade may be carried over and put to use by the former employee and the new employer [Sarkes Tarzian, Inc. v. Audio Devices, Inc. (S.D. Cal. 1958) 166 F. Supp. 250, 264-265] . An employee's skill and knowledge of a particular business constitute the means by which he or she earns a living, and the courts will not readily label them confidential when that will deprive the employee of employment opportunities. If no confidential information is used, a former employee is free to compete with his or her former employer, to advise the former employer's customers of his or her new activities, and to solicit their business [Rigging Int'l Maint. Co. v. Gwin (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 594, 612, 180 Cal. Rptr. 451] .

[d] Customer Lists

[i] Statutory Analysis in Determining Trade Secret Status

The failure to include customer lists in its statutory definition of a trade secret [Civ. Code § 3426.1(d)] in the Uniform Trade Secrets Act does not mean that the legislature intentionally excluded them. Rather, the language of the statute is inclusive, not exclusive, and customer lists can be protectable trade secrets under the Act [ABBA Rubber Co. v. Seaquist (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1, 18, 286 Cal. Rptr. 518 ; American Paper & Packaging Prods., Inc. v. Kirgan (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1318, 1323-1324, 228 Cal. Rptr. 713] .

Whether or not a particular customer list is a trade secret is determined by an analysis that had five components in the pre-UTSA cases (before January 1, 1985) [Civ. Code § 3426.10; see Aetna Bldg. Maint. Co. v. West (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 198, 204-205, 246 P.2d 11 ; see also § 565.105[2][c][iii]]. The analysis now has only three components, although two or three of the five seem to have been subsumed in the "value" component of the most recent articulation of the criteria [compare Aetna Bldg. Maint. Co. v. West (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 198, 204-205, 246 P.2d 11 ; with ABBA Rubber Co. v. Seaquist (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1, 18-19, 286 Cal. Rptr. 518] .

The statutory definition of trade secret analyzed in the context of a customer list requires (1) information (2) that is valuable because it is unknown to others, and (3) which the owner has attempted to keep secret [Civ. Code § 3426.1(d); ABBA Rubber Co. v. Seaquist (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1, 18, 286 Cal. Rptr. 518 ; American Credit Indem. Co. v. Sacks (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 622, 630, 262 Cal. Rptr. 92 ; see MAI Sys. Corp. v. Peak Computer, Inc. (9th Cir. 1993) 991 F.2d 511, 521 (computer company's confidential customer database constituted trade secret under California UTSA); see also Courtesy Temp. Serv., Inc. v. Camacho (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1278, 1287-1291, 272 Cal. Rptr. 352 ; American Credit Indem. Co. v. Sacks (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 622, 630, 262 Cal. Rptr. 92 (describing test as consisting only of second and third elements)]. For example, in one case the court reiterated the above factors, and determined that a customer list fell within the definition of a trade secret under the Uniform Trade Secret Act (Civ. Code § 3426 et seq.) because: (1) plaintiff company provided a relatively unusual roofing service, commercial roof repair and maintenance; (2) its customer list was a compilation developed over a period of years, consisting of names, addresses, and contact persons, containing pricing information and knowledge about particular roofs and roofing needs of customers using its services; (3) the identities of those particular commercial buildings using these services were not generally known to the roofing industry; and (4) the company made reasonable efforts to maintain the secrecy of its customers' identities by limiting circulation of its customer lists, and by advising its employees, through an employment agreement and an employee handbook, that the company considered the information valuable and confidential [Morlife, Inc. v. Perry (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1514, 1520-1521, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 731] .

A customer list, otherwise a trade secret, remains a trade secret belonging to the employer, even if prepared in part by the former employee [Empire Steam Laundry v. Lozier (1913) 165 Cal. 95, 99, 130 P. 1180 ; Reid v. Mass Co., Inc. (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 293, 302, 318 P.2d 54]. A customer list may exist in the memory of the employee as well as in writing [George v. Burdusis (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 153, 160, 130 P.2d 399 ; Whitted v. Williams (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 52, 56, 37 Cal. Rptr. 692] .

[ii] Misappropriation

Once an employer proves a customer list is entitled to trade secret protection, it must then prove that the former employee misappropriated the information to attain an unfair competitive advantage. Under the Uniform Trade Secret Act (Civ. Code § 3426 et seq.), the term "misappropriation" is defined to include the nonconsensual disclosure or use of a trade secret [Civ. Code § 3426.1(b)(2)]. Acts of solicitation may constitute use or misappropriation of protected information [Morlife, Inc. v. Perry (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1514, 1520-1521, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 731 (commercial roof repair business's former employees' use of customer list to solicit customers for their new commercial roof repair business constituted misappropriation)]. However, merely announcing a job change, or impending job change, to clients of a former employer is not by itself solicitation of thebusiness of those clients and is not actionable [Hilb, Rogal & Hamilton Ins. v. Robb (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1812, 1821-1822, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 887 (clients initiated transfer of accounts on learning of employee's job change)].

[iii] Common Law Analysis

Under common law, to assure protection of a customer list, the former employer had to show that [Aetna Bldg. Maint. Co. v. West (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 198, 204-205, 246 P.2d 11] :

- The customer information was confidential and not readily accessible to competitors;
- The former employee solicited those customers with intent to injure the former employer;
- The former employee sought out certain preferred customers whose trade is particularly profitable and whose identities are not generally known to the trade;
- The business is such that a customer will ordinarily patronize only one concern; and
- The established business relationship between the customer and the former employer would normally continue unless interfered with.

The fundamental test for judicial protection of employer information was whether the knowledge gained by an employee is secret and confidential, and although all five factors were present in most instances of trade-secret protection, not all five had to be present for a plaintiff to prevail [Hollingsworth Solderless Terminal Co. v. Turley (9th Cir. 1980) 622 F.2d 1324, 1331 ; see Greenly v. Cooper (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 382, 391 n.2, 143 Cal. Rptr. 514 (possibility that other courts may have inadvertently interpreted five factors conjunctively rather than disjunctively)].

[iv] "Value" Element

The "value" element requires the information to have value to other businesses that are unaware of the information and that could put that information, if known, to valuable use [see, e.g., GAB Business Servs., Inc. v. Lindsey & Newsom Claim Servs., Inc. (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 409, 428, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 665 (secrecy of employee salaries did not prove that knowledge of salaries had independent economic value)].

To illustrate, suppose the hypothetical widget industry consists of five sellers and there are 1,000,000 businesses engaged in industries that have been known to use widgets in their operations, but there is no way for the sellers to know for sure which of those 1,000,000 use widgets and which do not. Seller A's customer list of 500 would therefore have value to its competitors because it would allow them to distinguish the proven customers from those that are only potential customers and thus allow them to focus their sales efforts. However, if each of Seller A's competitors already knows that the businesses on A's customer list are proven widget consumers (even though they do not know that those businesses buy their widgets from A), A's customer list has no independent value because the identities of its customers are already known to its competitors. In the first situation, A's customer list would be a protectable trade secret, but in the second it would not [ABBA Rubber Co. v. Seaquist (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1, 19, 286 Cal. Rptr. 518] .

A case that fits within the first hypothetical involved a customer list of a company selling credit insurance. Credit insurance would be purchased by an entity selling receivables and would insure against defaults. Of the potential purchasers of credit insurance at the time of the case, when credit insurance was new and there was resistance to it, only 6.5 percent were actually purchasing it. Therefore, knowledge of the customer list would have great value to a competitor [American Credit Indem. Co. v. Sacks (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 622, 630-631, 638, 262 Cal. Rptr. 92] . Temporary employees is another example of a product market in which a customer list is likely to have value to competitors because without it, a competing seller will have to expend quite a bit of effort to determine which potential purchasers are actual purchasers [Courtesy Temp. Serv., Inc. v. Camacho (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1278, 1282, 272

Cal. Rptr. 352] .

[v] "Secrecy" Element

The "secrecy" prong of the test is satisfied if an employer requires employees to sign a confidentiality agreement respecting its client list, expiration dates of customer contracts, lists of business leads, history of customer relationships, and related client information [American Credit Indem. Co. v. Sacks (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 622, 631, 262 Cal. Rptr. 92] .

The secrecy prong can be satisfied even if the employee is not required to sign an agreement regarding confidentiality, for example, if the information is not divulged to anyone outside the business, is only divulged to employees when necessary for them to effectively carry out their functions, and the employees are told the information is confidential [Courtesy Temp. Serv., Inc. v. Camacho (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1278, 1288, 272 Cal. Rptr. 352] .

[vi] Customers' Special Characteristics or Peculiar Requirements

Even when the customer list is not protected as a trade secret, if the former employment is one by which the former employee obtained information regarding the customers that would enable him or her to secure or retain their business, the list may be protected as a trade secret, and the former employee restrained from using or disclosing that information in a competing business [Whitted v. Williams (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 52, 57, 37 Cal. Rptr. 692] . A finding of confidentiality may be proper, even if thecustomers' names are well known, if their special characteristics are important to the seller and not obvious. For example, a customer list of home loan investors that contained other valuable information such as areas in which a customer would or would not invest, the maximum amount of investment, and loan expiration dates (enabling one to solicit the customer for additional business when the loan expires) warranted protection as a trade secret [Hollingsworth Solderless Terminal Co. v. Turley (9th Cir. 1980) 622 F.2d 1324, 1333] .

Salespersons must know the particular requirements of customers; that knowledge is not always protected as confidential [American Alloy Steel Corp. v. Ross (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 215, 218-219, 308 P.2d 494] . A former employee's subsequent use of knowledge of the "peculiar likes and fancies and other characteristics" of the former employer's customers is not allowed when that knowledge aids in securing and retaining their business [Courtesy Temp. Serv., Inc. v. Camacho (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1278, 1288-1291, 272 Cal. Rptr. 352] . This knowledge is critical when friendly contact with customers is important to solicitors, a circumstance typical of the "trade route" cases, and when knowledge of the customer's desires for specialized information, preference for certain products, and buying habits are important to the sale. When superiority of product or service, rather than personal relationships or a secret specialty, is the basis for patronage, knowledge of the customer's requirements is not critical and usually does not warrant protection [Aetna Bldg. Maint. Co. v. West (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 198, 205-206, 246 P.2d 11 ; Klamath-Orleans Lumber, Inc. v. Miller (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 458, 465, 151 Cal. Rptr. 118] .

[vii] Announcement of Change of Employment

Before the effective date of the UTSA, the announcement rule permitted a former employee to announce a change of employment to individuals or firms he or she had serviced for the former employer, whether or not those individuals or firms were on a protected trade-secret customer list [American Credit Indem. Co. v. Sacks (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 622, 636, 262 Cal. Rptr. 92 ; Theodore v. Williams (1919) 44 Cal. App. 34, 39, 185 P. 1014 ; see Moss, Adams & Co. v. Shilling (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 124, 127-130, 224 Cal. Rptr. 456 (applying pre-UTSA announcement rule but holding customers serviced and remembered by former employees without resort to list were not trade secrets)]. Under UTSA, the fact that an employee personally rendered service to a customer of the former employer is not determinative of the trade-secret issue. The announcement rule retains its validity, however, and permits a former employee to announce a change of employment to individuals or firms he or she had serviced for the former employer even if those individuals or firms were on a protected trade-secret customer list because the right to announce a new affiliation is basic to an individual's right to engage in fair competition [American Credit Indem. Co. v. Sacks (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 622, 636, 262 Cal. Rptr. 92 ; MAI Sys. Corp. v. Peak Computer, Inc. (9th Cir. 1993) 991 F.2d 511, 521 (applying California law)].

If the customer list is a trade secret, the former employee must stop at announcing his or her change of employment and cannot solicit the customer of the former employer. Providing personal service to a customer whose identity is a trade secret does not thereafter render that customer fair game for solicitation [American Credit Indem. Co. v. Sacks (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 622, 636, 262 Cal. Rptr. 92 ; see, e.g., MAI Sys. Corp. v. Peak Computer, Inc. (9th Cir. 1993) 991 F.2d 511, 521-522 (applying California law; former employee's use of former employer's customer database to contact former employer's customers and try to induce them to switch over to his new employer constituted improper solicitation)]. An "announcement" of new employment that informs the former employer's customers of the interesting competitive alternatives available from the former employee's new employer and invites inquiries goes beyond announcing new employment and is a solicitation [American Credit Indem. Co. v. Sacks (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 622, 636-637, 262 Cal. Rptr. 92] .

[viii] Certain Customer Lists Deemed Trade Secrets by Statute

Certain customer lists have been deemed trade secrets by statute. For example, the customer list (including the names, addresses, and identities of customers) of a telephone answering service constitutes a trade secret and confidential information of the owner of the telephone answering service [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16606].

Likewise, the customer list of an employment agency (including the names, addresses, and identities of (1) all employer customers who have listed job orders with the agency within 180 days before separation of an employee from the agency, and (2) all job applicant customers) constitutes a trade secret and confidential information of the employment agency [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16607(a)]. However, no liability arises from, and no cause of action attaches to, the use of an employment agency's customer list by a former employee who enters into business as an employment agency more than one year immediately following termination of his or her employment [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16607(b)].

Bus. & Prof. Code § 16607 has been construed to apply only to employer-employee relationships. A federal district court refused to apply Bus. & Prof. Code § 16607 in the context of a franchise agreement regarding temporary personnel agencies, in part because former Bus. & Prof. Code § 9902, which was applicable to the acts complained of, excluded temporary personnel agencies from its definition of employment agency (now see Civ. Code § 1812.501(a), which has no such exclusion). Thus, the court did not extend trade secret protection to the customer list or the temporary employee lists and would not enforce a noncompetition clause against former franchisees who established competing businesses [Scott v. Snelling & Snelling, Inc. (N.D. Cal. 1990) 732 F. Supp. 1034, 1043-1044 (evidence showed former franchisees developed customer lists through their own efforts, personal knowledge, and business contacts; temporary employee lists were not so nonexclusive, given fact that employees often listed themselves with several agencies, as to be trade secret under Civ. Code § 3426.1(d))].

[e] Corporate Director

Even in the absence of an express agreement against revelation of trade secrets, a director is under a fiduciary duty not to use or reveal them to the detriment of the corporation of which he or she is a director [Components for Research, Inc. v. Isolation Prods., Inc. (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 726, 729, 50 Cal. Rptr. 829 ; for discussion and forms relating to corporate directors, see Ch. 167, Corporations: Directors and Management].

While a person is a director of a corporation, he or she may not undertake or participate in activities adverse to the interest of the corporation. A director is free to engage in competition with the corporation after termination of employment, but may plan and develop a competitive enterprise during the course of the directorship only when the particular activity engaged in is not against the best interests of the corporation [see Sequoia Vacuum Sys. v. Stransky

(1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 281, 287, 40 Cal. Rptr. 203 (likening director to agent and finding him guilty of unfair competition)]. If a director violates this fiduciary duty, the corporation is entitled to recover all the profits of the transaction [American Loan Corp. v. California Commercial Corp. (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 515, 524, 27 Cal. Rptr. 243] .

[f] Injunctive Relief Against Employee

Within an employment relationship, injunctive relief should be granted only on convincing proof of a harmful violation of the plaintiff's rights, and the instances in which those rights are violated by an employee's misuse of information given during employment constitute an exceedingly small proportion of the whole [Mathews Paint Co. v. Seaside Paint Co. (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 168, 175, 306 P.2d 113] . The doctrine under which injunctive relief is granted should not be given application that would overemphasize the employer's right to the detriment of the employee by treating as confidential and secret all knowledge and information gained by the employee that might be of assistance to the employee and a later and competing employer. Whether or not injunctive relief will be granted is determined by whether the knowledge gained by an employee is secret and confidential. Only if the information is secret and confidential will its use by a former employee be enjoined. Some knowledge gained by an employee is of such a general character that equity will not restrict its later use [American Alloy Steel Corp. v. Ross (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 215, 218-219, 308 P.2d 494 ; see, e.g., Electro Optical Indus., Inc. v. White (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 653, 661-662, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 680 (plaintiff's customer lists, sales prices, production costs, and marketing plans were not trade secrets because they were common knowledge or readily available)].

One court of appeal opinion has held that if an employer seeks an injunction preventing a former employee from working for a direct competitor, the former employer must demonstrate either that the disclosure of trade secrets is likely to result from the subsequent employment or that it would be impossible for the employee to perform his or her new job without disclosing those trade secrets [Electro Optical Indus., Inc. v. White (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 653, 660, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 680 (former employer failed to show that disclosure would likely result from new employment)].

A salesperson necessarily becomes somewhat acquainted with the particular requirements of customers, but that knowledge is not in and of itself confidential information that is the property of the employer. Trade and business secrets and confidential information are the property of the employer and cannot be used by the employee for his or her own benefit [American Alloy Steel Corp. v. Ross (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 215, 218-219, 308 P.2d 494 ; see Lab. Code § 2860].

When the trade secrets obtained by a former employee are not used by him or her, or that employee's subsequent employer, no ground for any injunction exists. The receipt or acceptance of further business by the new employer from former customers of the former employer who were not solicited or are not retained through the use of the former employer's trade secret may not be enjoined [Whitted v. Williams (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 52, 59, 37 Cal. Rptr. 692] .

The fact that the employer that owns the trade secret wrongfully terminated the employment of the person who misappropriated the trade secret does not usually amount to "unclean hands" to bar injunctive relief. Unclean hands is determined by the impact the conduct has on the equitable relations between the parties. The firing of an employee on a pretextual basis does not implicate the equities between the parties arising out of the employee's tortious misconduct or obligation to refrain from a tortious invasion of the employer's proprietary rights [Vacco Indus., Inc. v. Van Den Berg (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 34, 52-54, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602 (wrongful termination occurred after employee had stolen engineering plans, drawings, and parts comprising trade secrets but before employee started using them to solicit plaintiff's customers or manufacture competing products)]. To conclude otherwise would invite every disgruntled terminated employee to defend charges of theft and misappropriation by establishing breach or wrongful termination of employment contract [Vacco Indus., Inc. v. Van Den Berg (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 34, 53, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602] .

For general considerations involved in granting or denying injunctive relief, see*§ 565.103[6]*.

[g] Employee's Wrongful Termination No Defense

The fact that employment of the employee who misappropriated the trade secret was wrongfully terminated does not provide defense or bar to prevent the employer from recovering compensatory relief [Vacco Indus., Inc. v. Van Den Berg (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 34, 53, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602 (to conclude otherwise would invite every disgruntled terminated employee to defend charges of theft and misappropriation by establishing breach or wrongful termination of employment contract)]. Nor does it bar injunctive relief [see § 565.105[1][f]].

[2] Disclosure of Information in Confidence

Trade-secret misappropriation is not based on a trade secret as a physical object of property, but on abuse of confidence or impropriety in learning the secret, and that abuse or impropriety may exist when the information is not a trade secret [see Ojala v. Bohlin (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 292, 301, 2 Cal. Rptr. 919 (action for unfair competition by plaintiff against a manufacturer who made goods of plaintiff's design for plaintiff under a contract including a covenant not to compete, but who used plaintiff's design to manufacture a competing product); Thompson v. California Brewing Co. (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 469, 476, 310 P.2d 436 (disclosure of marketing idea); but see American Alloy Steel Corp. v. Ross (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 215, 218-219, 308 P.2d 494 (information must be secret)]. An obligation not to disclose confidential information may arise from express or implied agreement [Plant Indus., Inc. v. Coleman (C.D. Cal. 1968) 287 F. Supp. 636, 644 (involving employee)]. Because trade-secret law protects against breach of faith and reprehensible means of learning another's secret, a specific and judicially recognized relationship need not have been established. The circumstances surrounding the acquisition and disclosure of secret information may indicate that an implied relationship of trust and confidence exists with respect to that information. For example, a trial court's finding of a breach of faith and confidence was upheld when the defendant, a manufacturer, solicited a breakdown of the physical properties and characteristics of a part from the part supplier without revealing that the information would be used to allow the defendant to copy the part and transfer the information to other potential suppliers [Pachmayr Gun Works, Inc. v. Olin Mathieson Chem. Corp., Winchester W. Div. (9th Cir. 1974) 502 F.2d 802, 807-808] .

Other circumstances in which secret information may be disclosed include in the course of contract negotiations. However, confidence cannot be imposed on a person without that person's consent or if that person has no knowledge of the confidential nature of the information being disclosed [Thompson v. California Brewing Co. (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 469, 475-476, 310 P.2d 436 (disclosure of marketing idea); see Restatement of Torts § 757, cmts. b, j].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Trade Secrets

§ 565.107 Trade Secret Evidentiary Privilege

The owner of a trade secret has a privilege to refuse to disclose a trade secret and to prevent another from disclosing it, if allowing that privilege will not work an injustice [Evid. Code § 1060]. In cases involving a trade secret privilege, the burden of proof is on the party claiming the privilege; that party should be prepared to prove the existence of the trade secret and the business injury caused by disclosure. The claimant may also be required to furnish the court with sufficient information for the court to balance whether the interest involved in the secret's value to its owner outweighs the need of the adverse party for that information, as well as to show why a protective order would not solve the problems caused by the requested disclosure [Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. v. Richard A. Glass Co. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 703, 715, 221 Cal. Rptr. 63 (disclosure allowed); see also Hofmann Corp. v. Superior Court (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 357, 362, 218 Cal. Rptr. 355 (no disclosure allowed)].

The court may not require disclosure of the trade secret in order to rule on the claim of privilege except as provided in Evid. Code § 915(b) [Evid. Code § 915(a)]. Under Evid. Code § 915(b), if a claim of privilege under Evid. Code § 1060 is made and the court is unable to rule without requiring disclosure of the information claimed to be secret, the court may require the person from whom disclosure is sought or the person authorized to claim the privilege, or both, to disclose the information in chambers out of the presence and hearing of all persons except the person authorized to claim the privilege and any other person that person is willing to have present. If the judge determines that the information is privileged, neither the judge nor any other person may ever disclose the information so disclosed without the consent of a person authorized to permit the disclosure [Evid. Code § 915(b)].

In a criminal proceeding, the privilege is asserted by the owner of the trade secret, or by the People on the owner's behalf and with the owner's permission, making a motion for a protective order. The protective order shall be granted if a preponderance of evidence demonstrates that a trade secret might be disclosed during the proceeding unless a protective order is issued and that issuance of a protective order would not conceal a fraud or work an injustice [Evid. Code § 1061]. In addition in a criminal case, the court may exclude the public from any portion of the proceeding duringwhich it is likely that the trade secret would otherwise be disclosed to the public if there is a substantial probability that the disclosure would cause serious harm to the owner of the trade secret and there is no overriding public interest in an open proceeding. A hearing on a motion to exclude the public is conducted in camera [Evid. Code §

1062; see also Evid. Code § 1063 (procedure for sealing articles protected by protective order in criminal proceeding)].

§ 565.108 Judicial Proceedings Privilege Inapplicable

Notwithstanding Civ. Code § 47(b), referred to as the judicial proceedings privilege, there is no privilege for the voluntary, intentional disclosure of trade secret information, unauthorized by its owner, to a competitor or potential competitor of the owner of the trade secret information or the agent or representative of that competitor or potential competitor in any legislative or judicial proceeding, or in any other official proceeding authorized by law, or in the initiation or course of any other proceeding authorized by law and reviewable by writ of mandate [Civ. Code § 3426.11]. Such disclosure is not privileged and is not a privileged communication for purposes of Part 2 of Division 1 of the Civil Code (Civ. Code § 43 et seq.) [Civ. Code § 3426.11].

Civ. Code § 3426.11 does not in any manner limit, restrict, impair, or otherwise modify either the application of the other subdivisions of Civ. Code § 47 to the conduct to which Civ. Code § 3426.11 applies or the court's authority to control, order, or permit access to evidence in any case before it [Civ. Code § 3426.11]. Nor may Civ. Code § 3426.11 be construed to limit, restrict, or otherwise impair, the capacity of persons employed by public entities to report improper government activity, as defined in Gov. Code § 8457.2(b), or the capacity of private persons to report improper activities of a private business [Civ. Code § 3426.11].

Civ. Code § 3426.11 was enacted by Stats. 1992, ch. 165, and abrogates the privilege enunciated in ITT Telecom Prods. Corp. v. Dooley (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 307, 314-317, 262 Cal. Rptr. 773 . The court in ITT Telecom held that a voluntary disclosure of a trade secret or other information in aid of a judicial proceeding that is also a breach of an express agreement is not privileged [ITT Telecom Prods. Corp. v. Dooley (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 307, 320, 262 Cal. Rptr. 773] .

D. Interference With Economic Relations

§ 565.130 Governing Law

An action based on intentional interference with economic relations is governed by case law principles that have their roots in the common law tort of inducing breach of contract [see Della Penna v. Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 376, 387-391, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436, 902 P.2d 740 ; Buckaloo v. Johnson (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 815, 822-823, 122 Cal. Rptr. 745, 537 P.2d 865 , overruled on other grounds, Della Penna v. Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 376, 393 n.5, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436, 902 P.2d 740 ; see also Restatement (Second) of Torts §§ 766-766B]. However, the California Supreme Court has emphasized the distinctions between interference with a contract and interference with prospective economic relations. The law grants greater solicitude to relationships that have ripened into agreements, while recognizing that relationships short of that "subsist in a zone where the risks and rewards of competition are dominant" [Della Penna v. Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 376, 392, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436, 902 P.2d 740] .

An action based on negligent interference with economic relations is governed by case law that begins with the Supreme Court's decision in J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 803-808, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60 .

D. Interference With Economic Relations

§ 565.131 Terminology Used in This Analysis

"Interference with economic relations" is used by some courts, and is so used in this analysis, to describe all types of actionable interference short of interference with a contractual relationship, that is, wrongful interference with a person's general right to establish a lawful contractual, business, or other advantageous economic relationship [see Della Penna v. Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 376, 381 n.2, 387-392, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436, 902 P.2d 740 (setting forth preferred terminology, based on discussion of conceptual distinctions between interference with contract and interference with prospective economic relationships)]."Interference with contract" refers to the narrower cause of action, which provides for greater protection from interference by a stranger to the agreement [see Quelimane Co. v. Stewart Title Guar. Co. (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 26, 55, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 709, 960 P.2d 513 ; Della Penna v. Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 376, 381 n.2, 392, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436, 902 P.2d 740] .

In the past, courts had stated that the two causes of action were conceptually similar, even that interference with contract was one type of the broader tort of interference with prospective economic advantage [see, e.g., Environmental Planning & Info. Council v. Superior Court (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 188, 193, 203 Cal. Rptr. 127, 680 P.2d 1086] . The California Supreme Court has clearly repudiated this view of the actions [see Della Penna v. Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 376, 381 n.2, 392, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436, 902 P.2d 740] .

Several other terms are commonly used to describe specific types of interference (for example, "inducing breach of contract" and "interference with business relations") [see Manor Inv. Co. v. F.W. Woolworth, Co. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 586, 592-594, 206 Cal. Rptr. 37 , overruled on other grounds, Applied Equip.t Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 521 n.10, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454] . Counsel may prefer to use these terms in pleadings or other papers in accordance with local practice or personal preference.

D. Interference With Economic Relations

49-565 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 565.132

§ 565.132 Intentional Interference

[1] General Rule

A cause of action will lie for intentional interference with a contractual relationship, or with some other economic relationship containing a probability of future benefits accruing to plaintiff, when the interference is accomplished either by wrongful means or, in the case of interference with contract, by means that are lawful but lack sufficient justification [Della Penna v. Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 376, 381 n.2, 392-393, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436, 902 P.2d 740 (plaintiff alleging interference with economic relations must plead and prove that interference was wrongful by some measure beyond fact of interference itself); Herron v. State Farm Mutual Ins. Co. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 202, 205, 14 Cal. Rptr. 294, 363 P.2d 310 (interference with contractual relationship); A-Mark Coin Co. v. General Mills, Inc. (1983) 195 Cal. Rptr. 859 (same); A.F. Arnold & Co. v. Pacific Prof'l Ins., Inc. (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 710, 716, 104 Cal. Rptr. 96 (interference with noncontractual relationship)].

Interference by unlawful means is actionable because of the defendant's use of improper methods, whereas interference by lawful but unjustified means is actionable because of the defendant's improper purpose or motive [see Lowell v. Mother's Cake & Cookie Co. (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 13, 18,144 Cal. Rptr. 664] . Accordingly, "justification" for interference by lawful means generally depends on whether the defendant's purpose or motive is proper in the sense that it advances an interest with greater social significance than the interest with which it interferes [Imperial Ice Co. v. Rossier (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 33, 35, 112 P.2d 631 ; see Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 200, 228, 194 Cal. Rptr. 180 , overruled on other grounds, Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 521 n.10, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454 (justification based on defendant's confidential relationship with third party is lost when defendant acts from improper motive rather than to protect welfare of third party)]. Although intentional interference with contract by lawful means is not actionable when it is justified, lack of justification is not an element of plaintiff's cause of action; justification must be affirmatively shown by the defendant [see Savage v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 434, 449, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305 ; Rickel v. Schwinn Bicycle Co. (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 648, 657-658, 192 Cal. Rptr. 732] . For further discussion of this defense, see*§ 565.137[4]*. If the means of interference are unlawful, the interference cannot be justified and is beyond the reach of that affirmative defense. Unlawful means include defamation and other forms of tortious conduct [Savage v. Pacific

For a form of complaint for use in an action for intentional interference with economic relations, see*§ 565.290*.

[2] With Contractual Relationship

[a] Inducing Breach by Third Party

The first type of intentional interference held to be actionable was that involving a contractual relationship, specifically, a defendant's inducement of a third party to breach his or her contract with the plaintiff. Initially, this interference was actionable only if the means used were themselves unlawful. In 1941 the Supreme Court expressly recognized that interference by lawful but unjustified means was also actionable [Imperial Ice Co. v. Rossier (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 33, 35, 37-39, 112 P.2d 631 (repudiating contrary statements in Boyson v. Thorn (1893) 98 Cal. 578, 33 P. 492); see Restatement (Second) of Torts § 766; see also § 565.132[1]].

[b] Rendering Plaintiff's Performance More Difficult

The original tort of intentional interference by inducing a breach of contract [see § 565.132[2][a]] now extends to impose liability, not only when a defendant causes a third party to breach a contract with the plaintiff, but also when a defendant causes the plaintiff to breach a contract with a third party, or otherwise causes the plaintiff's own contract performance to be more difficult or burdensome [Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Bear Stearns & Co. (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1118, 1126-1127, 1129-1130, 270 Cal. Rptr. 1, 791 P.2d 587 (but holding defendant's conduct not actionable on public policy grounds, as discussed in*§ 565.137[4][h]*); Lipman v. Brisbane Elementary Sch. Dist. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 224, 232, 234, 11 Cal. Rptr. 97, 359 P.2d 465 ; see Seaman's Direct Buying Serv., Inc. v. Standard Oil Co. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 752, 766, 206 Cal. Rptr. 354, 686 P.2d 1158 ; Restatement (Second) of Torts § 766A; see also § 565.132[1]].

However, one court of appeal rejected a claim involving interference that made plaintiff's contract obligations to third parties more expensive, when the claim was made by a public entity with respect to payments to employees for additional public services required by defendant's conduct, that is, a county's increased payments to sheriffs for services required to break up defendants' blockade of a nuclear power facility. In that case the court held, without further discussion, that defendant's conduct was not the kind of "disruption" required to state a claim [County of San Luis Obispo v. Abalone Alliance (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 848, 861, 223 Cal. Rptr. 846 (upholding general demurrer)].

[3] With Noncontractual Economic Relationship

Interference with a prospective economic relationship that is short of a contractual relationship can be the basis of liability, even though the law will protect contractual relationships to a greater extent [see Della Penna v. Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 376, 392-393, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436, 902 P.2d 740] .

Interference with noncontractual economic relationships, includes, most commonly, interference with a specific prospective contract [Buckaloo v. Johnson (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 815, 828-830, 827, 122 Cal. Rptr. 745, 537 P.2d 865 , overruled on other grounds, Della Penna v. Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 376, 393 n.5, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436, 902 P.2d 740 (interference with broker's prospective contract for commission fees)], but also includes interference with the operation or pursuit of any lawful business, calling, trade, or occupation [Willis v. Santa Ana Cmty. Hosp. Ass'n (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 806, 810, 26 Cal. Rptr. 640, 376 P.2d 568 (interference with physician's pursuit of medical practice); for further discussion and a form of complaint for use in an action for interference with a physician's practice, see Ch. 416, Physicians: Membership on Hospital Staffs or in Professional Associations].

Many cases have discussed in*§ 565.172[1][a]*.

[4] First Amendment Limitations

First Amendment doctrines analogous to those that limit defamation claims apply to interference claims based on the alleged injurious falsehood of a statement [see Blatty v. New York Times Co. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 1033, 1045, 232 Cal. Rptr. 542, 728 P.2d 1177 ; Morningstar, Inc. v. Superior Court (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 676, 696, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 547] . Thus, for example, expressions of opinion may not form the basis of an action for interference with contract or with prospective economic advantage unless they contain false and defamatory statements of fact [see Morningstar, Inc. v. Superior Court (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 676, 696, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 547 ; see also Savage v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 434, 450, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305 (action for interference with economic relations may not be based on alleged unfounded opinion)]. For detailed discussion of what constitutes a defamatory statement as well as First Amendment limitations on defamation actions, see Ch. 340, Libel and Slander , and Levy, Golden & Sacks, California Torts, Ch. 45 (Matthew Bender).

For discussion of the defense of justification based on constitutional or statutory protection for the defendant's conduct, see*§ 565.137[e]*.

The following elements are necessary to state a cause of action for intentional interference with contract [Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 330, 216 Cal. Rptr. 718, 703 P.2d 58 ; Savage v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 434, 448, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305 ; Settimo Assocs. v. Environ Sys., Inc. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 842, 845, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 757 ; Wanland v. Los Gatos Lodge, Inc. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1507, 1522, 281 Cal. Rptr. 890 ; see Summit Mach. Tool Mfg. v. Victor CNC Sys. (9th Cir. 1993) 7 F.3d 1434, 1442] :

- The existence of a valid contract or some other economic relationship between the plaintiff and a third party containing a probability of future economic benefits to the plaintiff;
- The defendant's knowledge of the existence of the relationship;
- Intentional acts on the part of the defendant designed to disrupt the relationship;
- Actual disruption of the relationship; and
- Damages to the plaintiff proximately caused by the defendant's acts.

In a case involving interference with prospective economic relationship that is short of contractual, the plaintiff must plead and prove as part of its case-in-chief that the defendant not only knowingly interfered with the plaintiff's expectancy, but engaged in conduct that was wrongful by some legal measure other than the fact of interference itself [Della Penna v. Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 376, 393, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436, 902 P.2d 740] . An act is independently wrongful if it is unlawful, which means that it must be conduct proscribed by some constitutional, statutory, regulatory, common law, or other determinable legal standard [Korea Supply Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1134, 1159, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29, 63 P.3d 937] . Although the defendant must know of the plaintiff's prospective economic advantage is required, a plaintiff isnot required to allege that the defendant acted with the specific intent or purpose of disrupting the plaintiff's prospective economic advantage. It is sufficient that the plaintiff plead that the defendant knew that the interference was certain or substantially certain to occur as a result of the defendant's action [Korea Supply Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1134, 1153, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29, 63 P.3d 937] .

A plaintiff seeking to recover for intentional interference with existing as opposed to prospective contractual relations need not plead and prove that the defendant's interference was wrongful by some measure beyond the fact of the interference itself [Quelimane Co. v. Stewart Title Guar. Co. (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 26, 55, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 709, 960 P.2d 513 ; LiMandri v. Judkins (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 326, 343, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 539] . Pecuniary or economic benefit to the defendant is not an element of the action [McCalden v. California Library Ass'n (9th Cir. 1990) 955 F.2d 1214, 1220] .

For a general form of complaint for intentional interference with economic relations, see § 565.290. For discussion of elements necessary to plead an additional cause of action for conspiracy to interfere with economic relations, see*§ 565.134[1]. For discussion of elements necessary to state cause of action for negligent interference with economic relations, see§ 565.135[3]*.

[2] Existence of Economic Relationship

[a] Contractual

In an action for interference with a contractual relationship, the plaintiff must show an existing contract between the plaintiff and a third party [Shamblin v. Berge (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 118, 122-123, 212 Cal. Rptr. 313]]. Thus, there is no cause of action if, for example, the plaintiff is not a party to the alleged contract [see Beckjord v. Slusher (1937) 22 Cal. App. 2d 559, 567-568, 71 P.2d 820 (contract between defendant and third party)], or if the alleged contract was no longer in force at the time of the alleged interference [see Dryden v. Tri-Valley Growers (1977) 65 Cal. App. 3d 990, 997-998, 135 Cal. Rptr. 720 (third party cancelled contract before defendant's alleged interference)]. Only a "stranger to the contract" may be liable for interference with that contract, and an agent for a contracting principal, including a corporate agent or employee, cannot be liable for interfering with the principal's contract with the plaintiff if the alleged interference was committed when the agent was acting in the scope of the agency [Mintz v. Blue Cross of California (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 1594, 1603-1604, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 422] .

The contract must also be valid [Shamblin v. Berge (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 118, 122-123, 212 Cal. Rptr. 313 ; Freed v. Manchester Serv., Inc. (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 186, 189, 331 P.2d 689] . For purposes of this requirement, a contract is valid if it is not illegal, opposed to public policy, or otherwise void [Shamblin v. Berge (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 118, 124, 212 Cal. Rptr. 313] . A contract that is entirely void ab initio is not a basis for an action for interference with contract and, further, it is not a basis for an action for interference with a noncontractual economic relationship because it cannot provide any probable future economic benefit [see A-Mark Coin Co. v. General Mills, Inc. (1982) 148 Cal. App. 3d 312, 320-322 (contract void as one subject to vacated order of probate court); see also § 565.133[b] and*§ 565.137[1]*]. A contract that is illegal or contrary to public policy is not a basis for an action for intentional interference [Renaissance Realty, Inc. v. Soriano (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 13, 17-18 (fraudulently conceived real estate agreement)].

It is sometimes stated that an existing contract that is voidable, not void, because of the statute of frauds, lack of consideration, uncertainty of terms, or other formal defect, nonetheless satisfies the validity requirement [Shamblin v. Berge (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 118, 124, 212 Cal. Rptr. 313 ; see Zimmerman v. Bank of Am. (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 55, 58, 12 Cal. Rptr. 319] . Such a contract is said to be valid as to the defendant, because its voidability constitutes an affirmative defense that may only be asserted by a party to the contract [see Golden v. Anderson (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 714, 719, 64 Cal. Rptr. 404] . However, other courts, including the Supreme Court, have indicated that an action for intentional interference may be based on a voidable contract, not so much because it is valid but because the action may also be based on interference with noncontractual economic relationship [see Buckaloo v. Johnson (1975) 14 Cal. 3d

815, 822-823, 827-830, 122 Cal. Rptr. 745, 537 P.2d 865 (overruled on other grounds in Della Penna v. Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 376, 393 n.5, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436, 902 P.2d 740); Zimmerman v. Bank of Am. (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 55, 57-58, 12 Cal. Rptr. 319] . Still other courts have held that an unenforceable contract cannot form the basis of a cause of action for intentional interference with contractual relations [Bed, Bath & Beyond of La Jolla, Inc. v. La Jolla Vill. Square Venture Partners (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 867, 879, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 830] .

If a valid, existing contract is shown, the fact that it is terminable at will does not preclude recovery [Savage v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 434, 448, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305 ; see Speegle v. Board of Fire Underwriters (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 34, 39-41, 172 P.2d 867 ; see also § 565.137[4][b]]. However, if a party terminates a contract that the party was free to terminate, there is no breach of contract, and an issue arises as to whether a third party should be held liable for inducing a party to terminate such a contract. The California Supreme Court has noted that interference with an at-will contract is properly viewed as an interference with prospective economic advantage, rather than as interference with an existing contract, because the expectation of an at-will contract is that of a future relationship between the parties to the contract [Reeves v. Hanlon (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 1140, 1151-1152, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 289, 95 P.3d 513] .

For example, the Supreme Court has held that a plaintiff may recover for interference with an at-will employment relationship, although the plaintiff must plead and prove the elements of a cause of action for interference with prospective economic advantage. In accordance with the elements of that cause of action, the plaintiff must show that the defendant engaged in conduct that is independently wrongful--that is, conduct that is proscribed by some constitutional, statutory, regulatory, common law, or other determinable legal standard [Reeves v. Hanlon (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 1140, 1152-1153, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 289, 95 P.3d 513 ; see § 565.133[1]]. Therefore, an employer may pursue an action against a competing employer for interfering with the plaintiff's at-will employment relationships, although the plaintiff must show that the competing employer engaged in wrongful conduct that consisted of something more than just hiring away the plaintiff's employees [Reeves v. Hanlon (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 1140, 1154-1155, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 289, 95 P.3d 513] .

A plaintiff seeking to recover for intentional interference with existing as opposed to prospective contractual relations need not plead and prove that the defendant's interference was wrongful by some measure beyond the fact of the interference itself [Quelimane Co. v. Stewart Title Guar. Co. (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 26, 55, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 709, 960 P.2d 513 ; LiMandri v. Judkins (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 326, 343, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 539] .

In an action for interference with noncontractual economic relations, the plaintiff must show the existence of an economic relationship, between himself or herself and a third party, that contains a probability of future economic benefit to the plaintiff [see Buckaloo v. Johnson (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 815, 827, 122 Cal. Rptr. 745, 537 P.2d 865 (overruled on other grounds in Della Penna v. Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 376, 393 n.5, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436, 902 P.2d 740); Savage v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 434, 448, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305 ; see also Roth v. Rhodes (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 530, 546, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 706 (existence of business relationship is essential element of tort of intentional interference with prospective business advantage; element not satisfied by allegation that defendant's conduct resulted in loss of potential future referrals and patient contacts)]. The "future economic benefit" refers to an expectancy in ordinary commercial dealings, not, for example, an expectancy in obtaining a license to do business [Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 330, 216 Cal. Rptr. 718, 703 P.2d 58] .

This expectancy must be "probable" in the sense that it is more than a mere hope or desire for an economic relationship or future benefit. Thus, an expected economic relationship with potential patrons was held to lack sufficient probability when it was contingent on plaintiff's first obtaining a business license from a government agency vested with broad discretion to grant or deny the license [Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 330-331, 216 Cal. Rptr. 718, 703 P.2d 58] . Similarly, the outcome of a sporting event is normally too uncertain to support an allegation that a plaintiff had a reasonable expectancy of winning prize money but for the defendant's wrongful interference [see Youst v. Longo (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 64, 74-79, 233 Cal. Rptr. 294, 729 P.2d 728 (public policy prohibited recovery based on interference with opportunity to win prize in sporting event)]. A plaintiff's expectation of winning a judgment for punitive damages or one that will be nondischargeable in bankruptcy also lacks sufficient probability [see Hepe v. Paknad (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 412, 420-421, 244 Cal. Rptr. 823 (defendant concealed driver who injured plaintiff while allegedly driving under the influence of alcohol, preventing police or plaintiff from establishing driver's intoxication)].

By contrast, allegations that defendant's conduct caused a newspaper to cease accepting articles written by plaintiff (a freelance reporter) for publication sufficiently alleged interference with an economic relationship offering a probability of future economic benefit because plaintiff could expect payment for articles that might otherwise have been accepted for publication [Savage v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 434, 449, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305] .

Not every business relationship will support an action for intentional interference with economic advantage. For example, the possibility of obtaining a discount on a loan by threatening default is not a protected economic interest for purposes of the tort [AB Group v. Wertin (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1022, 1034, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 652] . Whether the business relationship between the plaintiff and the third party is sufficient to support the tort of interference with noncontractual economic advantage is a question of fact [Buckaloo v. Johnson (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 815, 830 n.7, 122 Cal. Rptr. 745, 537 P.2d 865 , overruled on other grounds, Della Penna v. Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 376, 393 n.5, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436, 902 P.2d 740 ; Tri-Growth Ctr. City, Ltd. v. Silldorf, Burdman, Duignan & Eisenberg (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1139, 1153-1154, 265 Cal. Rptr. 330] .

[3] Defendant's Knowledge of Relationship

The second essential element to a cause of action for intentional interference with contract or economic relations is that the defendant had knowledge of the existence of the relationship interfered with [Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 330, 216 Cal. Rptr. 718, 703 P.2d 58 ; Freed v. Manchester Serv., Inc. (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 186, 189, 331 P.2d 689] . Showing the defendant's actual knowledge is, in effect, the first step in establishing the fact that he or she acted with the necessary intent. If the defendant had no knowledge, he or she cannot be liable for intentional interference [Seaman's Direct Buying Serv., Inc. v. Standard Oil Co. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 752, 765-766, 206 Cal. Rptr. 354, 686 P.2d 1158 ; see Summit Mach. Tool Mfg. v. Victor CNC Sys. (9th Cir. 1993) 7 F.3d 1434, 1442 ; for discussion concerning intent, see*§ 565.133[4]*]. Thus, it is not enough to show that the defendant learned of the economic relationship after he or she performed the interfering action [Dryden v. Tri-Valley Growers (1977) 65 Cal. App. 3d 990, 995, 135 Cal. Rptr. 720 ; Springer v. Singleton (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 184, 189, 63 Cal. Rptr. 770] .

When the claim involves interference with the economic relations of plaintiff and a third party, it is not necessary that the defendant's knowledge include an awareness of the plaintiff's specific identity or name, so long as plaintiff is identified in some manner. For example, the defendant's knowledge is sufficient when he or she knows that the third party was negotiating a lease with a particular, but unnamed, lessee [Ramona Manor Convalescent Hosp. v. Care Enters. (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 1120, 1130-1132, 225 Cal. Rptr. 120] .

[4] Intentional Acts by Defendant

The third essential element to a cause of action for intentional interference with contract or economic relations is an intentional act by the defendant designed to disrupt the economic relationship [Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 330, 216 Cal. Rptr. 718, 703 P.2d 58 ; Savage v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 434, 448, 449, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305 ; Freed v. Manchester Serv., Inc. (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 186, 189, 331 P.2d 689] . This act may be pleaded as an ultimate fact, such as a defendant's advising, counseling, or persuading a third party to terminate his or her contract with the plaintiff [see Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 200, 221, 194 Cal. Rptr. 180 ; but see Fisher v. San Pedro Peninsula Hosp. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 590, 619, 262 Cal. Rptr. 842 (conclusionary pleading that defendant "embarked on course of intentional conduct designed to disrupt plaintiff's

In an action for intentional interference with prospective economic advantage that has not ripened into a contract, a plaintiff is not required to allege that the defendant acted with the specific intent or purpose of disrupting the plaintiff's prospective economic advantage. It is sufficient that the plaintiff plead that the defendant knew that the interference was certain or substantially certain to occur as a result of its action [Korea Supply Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1134, 1153, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29, 63 P.3d 937] . However, as part of its burden of pleading and proof, the plaintiff must also show that the defendant's conduct was wrongful by some measure other than the fact of the interference. This requires a showing that the conduct was independently unlawful--that is, that it violated some constitutional, statutory, regulatory, common law, or other determinable legal standard [Korea Supply Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1134, 1159, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29, 63 P.3d 937] . Therefore, the defendant's intent may in some cases be relevant to showing that the conduct was unlawful by some independent legal standard [see Korea Supply Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1134, 1161, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29, 63 P.3d 937] .

A plaintiff seeking to recover for intentional interference with existing as opposed to prospective contractual relations need not plead and prove that the defendant's interference was wrongful by some measure beyond the fact of the interference itself [Quelimane Co. v. Stewart Title Guar. Co. (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 26, 55, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 709, 960 P.2d 513 ; LiMandri v. Judkins (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 326, 343, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 539] . The defendant's act need not be wrongful in itself, but the plaintiff must nevertheless show facts that take the act out of the realm of legitimate business transactions [Rickel v. Schwinn Bicycle Co. (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 648, 657-658, 192 Cal. Rptr. 732 ; see Tri-Growth Ctr. City, Ltd. v. Silldorf, Burdman, Duignan & Eisenberg (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1139, 1153-1154, 265 Cal. Rptr. 330 (defendant's acts must be somehow wrongful, but showing is met by facts taking defendant's acts out of realm of legitimate business transactions)]. Thus, in proving this element, particularly when the act is itself lawful, it is crucial to show the defendant's intent in acting. General intent to perform the act is not enough; the defendant must have intended specifically to interfere with the plaintiff's economic relationship [Seaman's Direct Buying Serv., Inc. v. Standard Oil Co. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 752, 765-766, 206 Cal. Rptr. 354, 686 P.2d 1158 ; Ramona Manor Convalescent Hosp. v. Care Enters. (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 1120, 1130-1131, 225 Cal. Rptr. 120] . An attorney's payment of fees recovered from a third party to his or her client rather than to the insurance company lienor cannot be construed as an act designed to induce breach or disruption of a contractual relationship [Farmers Ins. Exch. v. Zerin (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 445, 458, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 707] .

In a claim of intentional interference with contractual relations, the actor's primary purpose need not be the disruption of the contract; actionable conduct may include interfering conduct taken not only with the desire to interfere, but for some other purpose as well [see Quelimane Co. v. Stewart Title Guar. Co. (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 26, 56, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 709, 960 P.2d 513 ; see also Restatement (Second) of Torts § 766, cmt. j]. Moreover, intent to interfere may be inferred from a defendant's intentional performance of an act substantially certain to result in interference [Savage v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 434, 449, 450, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305] , assuming, of course, that he or she also had the prerequisite awareness of the existence of the relationship [see § 565.133[3]].

[5] Actual Interference

The fourth essential element to a cause of action for intentional interference with contract or economic relations is that defendant's intentional act caused interference resulting in injury to the plaintiff [Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 330, 216 Cal. Rptr. 718, 703 P.2d 58 ; Freed v. Manchester Serv., Inc. (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 186, 189, 331 P.2d 689] . In other words, there must be some showing that injurious interference did, in fact, occur [see Davis v. Nadrich (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1, 10, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 414 ; Short v. Nevada Joint Union High Sch. Dist. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1087, 1101, 210 Cal. Rptr. 297 (both cases; no actual interference when conduct by third parties that was allegedly induced by defendants did not actually constitute breach of contract terms); see also § 565.132[2], [3]]. An interference is an action designed to induce breach or disruption of a contractual relationship [Farmers Ins. Exch. v. Zerin (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 445, 458, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 707 (attorney's payment of fees recovered from third party, to client rather than to insurance company lienor, insufficient act of interference)]. Also, there must be some showing that the defendant's intentional act was a cause in fact of this interference [see Dryden v. Tri-Valley Growers (1977) 65 Cal App. 3d 990, 995-996, 997, 135 Cal. Rptr. 720 (no allegation that alleged breach was result of defendant's alleged conduct); see also Springer v. Singleton (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 184, 189, 63 Cal. Rptr. 770 (defendant not liable because evidence supported finding that alleged breach of contract with plaintiff was initiated by third parties and occurred before defendant's alleged acts); for discussion concerning proximate causation, as distinguished from cause in fact, see § 565.133[7]].

In one case, for example, a physician was unable to state a cause of action against another physician at the same hospital who allegedly refused to examine plaintiff's patients in retaliation for plaintiff's having reported instances of a third physician's misconduct to the hospital. Although the complaint alleged that plaintiff's relationship with the hospital was actually disrupted because plaintiff had to seek other physicians and the welfare of plaintiff's patients was actually threatened, there was no allegation that plaintiff lost patients [Fisher v. San Pedro Peninsula Hosp. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 590, 619-620, 262 Cal. Rptr. 842] . In addition, having to seek other physicians or threats to patient welfare are not the kind of economic interest that this tort is designed to protect [Fisher v. San Pedro Peninsula Hosp. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 590, 620, 262 Cal. Rptr. 842] .

[6] Wrongfulness of Interference With Prospective Economic Relations

A plaintiff seeking to recover for an alleged interference with prospective contractual or economic relations must plead and prove as part of its case-in-chief that the defendant engaged in conduct that was wrongful by some measure other than the fact of interference itself [Della Penna v. Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 376, 393, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436, 902 P.2d 740] . An act is independently wrongful for these purposes if it is unlawful, which means that it must be conduct proscribed by some constitutional, statutory, regulatory, common law, or other determinable legal standard [Korea Supply Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1134, 1159, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29, 63 P.3d 937] .

Actions that are contractually permissible are not wrongful for these purposes [see, e.g., Lange v. TIG Ins. Co. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1179, 1187-1188, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 39 ; Arntz Contracting Co. v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 464, 476-480, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 888] .

It is also insufficient to allege that the defendant engaged in tortious conduct distinct from or only tangentially related to the conduct that constituted the alleged interference [LiMandri v. Judkins (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 326, 342, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 539] . One court of appeal opinion held that allegations that the defendant's conduct was unethical, or violated vague industry standards, was insufficient to meet the test of wrongfulness [Gemini Aluminum Corp. v. California Custom Shapes, Inc. (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1249, 1259, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 358] . However, the result may be different if the industry standards are more defined, such as with written industry standards. In a subsequent case, the court of appeal held that in an action between competitors who are bound by well-defined, established rules or standards of a trade, association, or profession, a violation of those rules or standards may constitute wrongful conduct under the Korea Supply standard [Stevenson Real Estate Servs., Inc. v. CB Richard Ellis Real Estate Servs., Inc. (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 1215, 1223, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 235] . The rule or standard allegedly violated must be independently actionable, however, which necessarily requires that the rule or standard provide for, or give rise to, a sanction or means of enforcement for a violation. A right to arbitration between aggrieved members of the trade or association would be sufficient to meet this requirement [Stevenson Real Estate Servs., Inc. v. CB Richard Ellis Real Estate Servs., Inc. (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 1215, 1223-1224, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 235] . If a particular rule or standard unduly restricts free competition, that particular rule may not be an appropriate basis for an interference action [Stevenson Real Estate Servs., Inc. v. CB Richard Ellis Real Estate Servs., Inc. (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 1215, 1223, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 235] .

[7] Proximately Caused Damages

The final element of a cause of action for intentional interference with contract or economic relations is that the defendant's intentional act proximately caused plaintiff's damages [Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 330, 216 Cal. Rptr. 718, 703 P.2d 58 ; Freed v. Manchester Serv., Inc. (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 186, 189, 331 P.2d 689] . To meet this burden, plaintiff must prove that defendant's conduct was a substantial factor in causing the harm alleged [Bank of New York v. Fremont Gen. Corp. (9th Cir. 2008) 523 F.3d 902, 909-910 ; CACI No. 2201]. The plaintiff must also show that the injury to his or her economic interests resulted in actual damages or economic loss [see Baldwin v. Marina City Props., Inc. (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 393, 407, 145 Cal. Rptr. 406 (no cause of action for interference with security agreement stated when there was no allegation of any loss or impairment of value of security); see also § 565.136[1]].

In an action for inducing breach of contract, one court of appeal held that the complaint was defective because it included no allegation that the contract would otherwise have been performed but for the alleged interference [Augustine v. Trucco (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d 229, 246-247, 268 P.2d 780] . Other courts of appeal, however, have held that this allegation is sufficiently, if impliedly, stated by the more general allegation of proximately caused damages [Freed v. Manchester Serv., Inc. (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 186, 189 n.2, 331 P.2d 689 ; see also Allen v. Powell (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 502, 508, 56 Cal. Rptr. 715] .

The necessity of showing damages is particularly important in actions for interference with noncontractual economic relationships, and in such a case this showing is related to the probability of economic benenfit in the relationship interfered with [see § 565.133[2][b]]. For example, when a plaintiff brought an action on the basis of adefendant's alleged inducement of third parties not to rent him business space, his complaint was held to be defective because it failed to allege that he would otherwise have consummated a rental agreement, and also because it failed to allege any facts tending to show the nature or amount of any resulting damage [Campbell v. Rayburn (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 232, 234-235, 276 P.2d 671 ; see also Eichman v. Fotomat Corp. (9th Cir. 1989) 880 F.2d 149, 167-168 (applying California law; no cause of action established when there was no evidence that would support inference that decline in franchisee's sales was caused by franchisor's company stores in same area); Wilson v. Loew's Inc. (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 183, 190-195, 298 P.2d 152 (no cause of action stated for interference with prospective contractual relationship when plaintiffs failed to show actual damages in that they otherwise would have entered into contract)].

[1] Elements

A cause of action for civil conspiracy will lie against third persons who pursuant to a conspiracy have interfered with a contractual or other economic relationship resulting in damages [Wise v. Southern Pac. Co. (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 50, 65, 35 Cal. Rptr. 652 , (disapproved by Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 521 n.10, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454 , to extent that it held that party can be liable in tort for conspiracy to interfere with its own contract)].

A conspiracy is not actionable unless a civil wrong has been committed resulting in damage. The general elements of a cause of action for conspiracy are therefore stated to be [Olivet v. Frischling (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 831, 837, 164 Cal. Rptr. 87 , disapproved on other grounds, Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 521 n.10, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454 ; Wise v. Southern Pac. Co. (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 50, 64, 35 Cal. Rptr. 652] :

- The formation and operation of the conspiracy,
- The wrongful act done pursuant thereto, and
- The damage resulting from such act.

In other words, there is no actionable conspiracy when acts done pursuant to the conspiracy are not themselves actionable. For example, in a case involving interference with contract, a jury verdict finding defendants liable for conspiracy was inconsistent with another verdict finding in their favor on the underlying cause of action for interference [Manor Inv. Co. v. F.W. Woolworth, Co. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 586, 594-596, 206 Cal. Rptr. 37 (retrial required)]. For further discussion relating to civil conspiracy in general, including forms of complaint based on conspiracy to interfere with a contract or other economic relation, see Ch. 126, Conspiracy .

[2] Contracting Party Not Liable for Conspiracy to Interfere With Own Contract

A contracting party cannot be held liable in tort for conspiracy to interfere with its own contract [Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 507-508 & n.10 (disapproving prior court of appeal decisions holding to contrary)]. Because a party to a contract owes no tort duty to refrain from interference with its own contract [see § 565.137[2]], a contracting party cannot be bootstrapped into tort liability by allegations of conspiracy [Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 514, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454] . To hold otherwise would circumvent limitations on the damages recoverable for breach of contract and obliterate the distinction between tort and contract recovery [see Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 516-518, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454] .

Similarly, because a corporate officer or employee acting within the scope of his or her authority cannot be held liable for inducing a corporation's breach of contract [see § 565.137[2]], such a corporate officer or agent cannot be held liable for conspiring to induce the corporation's breach of a contract [Grosvenor Props., Ltd. v. Southmark Corp. (9th Cir. 1990) 896 F.2d 1149, 1153-1154 (applying California law)].

Prior to the Supreme Court's decision in Applied Equip. Corp., courts of appeal had held that parents, subsidiaries, and other affiliates may be liable for conspiring to induce breach of the affiliate's contract [see GHK Assocs. v. Mayer Group, Inc. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 856, 881, 274 Cal. Rptr. 168] . Whether these holdings remain good law after Applied Equip. is unclear. To the extent that the parent or subsidiary is considered to be in privity of contract with its affiliate, such holdings would appear to conflict with the reasoning of the Applied Equip. decision. In some cases, the parent or subsidiary may be able to successfully assert the manager's or financial interest privileges [see §§ 565.137[4][c][ii], 565.137[4][d]].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Interference With Economic Relations

49-565 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 565.135

§ 565.135 Negligent Interference

[1] No Action Under Prior Law

There is no cause of action for negligent interference with economic relations under the majority rule of common law jurisdictions [see Restatement (Second) of Torts, § 766C, cmt. a].

The Supreme Court has cited the majority rule with approval and held that a plaintiff who had contracted to provide lifetime health care to a third party could not recover the increased expenses incurred after the defendant negligently injured the third party [Fifield Manor v. Finston (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 632, 636-637, 7 Cal. Rptr. 377, 354 P.2d 1073] . This decision was interpreted by lower courts to bar recovery for negligent interferenceunder any circumstances [see Rodrigues v. Campbell Indus. (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 494, 499, 151 Cal. Rptr. 90 ; Adams v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 37, 39-41, 123 Cal. Rptr. 216 ; Costello v. Wells Fargo Bank (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 90, 94-96, 65 Cal. Rptr. 612 ; Stromer v. City of Yuba City (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 286, 288-291, 37 Cal. Rptr. 240] .

[2] Cause of Action Recognized

In J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory [J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60] , the Supreme Court changed its earlier position and recognized a cause of action for negligent interference with economic relations. The court in J'Aire held that the plaintiff, a restaurant operator leasing its business premises, had stated a cause of action against defendant for business losses resulting from the latter's negligent delay in completing a contract with the owner of the premises to construct certain improvements [J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 804-808, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60] .

The key issue considered by the court in J'Aire was whether, under the circumstances, the defendant owed a duty of care to the plaintiff. Unlike its earlier decision in Fifield Manor v. Finston (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 632, 636, 7 Cal. Rptr. 377, 354 P.2d 1073 , the court disregarded the majority common law rule that there is no duty. Instead, the court analysed the issue of duty under general negligence principles under which a person is generally liable for negligent injury of another, and any exception to this rule on the ground that no duty of care exists is determined on a case-by-case basis, primarily by focusing on the foreseeability of the risk of harm [J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24

Cal. 3d 799, 803-806, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60 (also citing Civ. Code § 1714(a))]. The court distinguished the Fifield decision, noting that the facts of the latter case did not show enough foreseeability of injury to justify imposing a duty of care [J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 806-807, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60 , disapproving Adams v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 37, 47, 123 Cal. Rptr. 216 (Fifield decision did not entirely foreclose recovery for negligent interference)].

To determine whether a specific duty of care existed in an action involving negligent interference with economic relations, the court relied on another line of negligence cases, beginning with Biakanja v. Irving (1958) 49 Cal. 2d 647, 320 P.2d 16 . Under this line of cases, when a special relationship exists between the parties, a plaintiff may recover for the loss of expected economic advantage occasioned by a defendant's negligent performance of a contract even though the parties were not in contractual privity [J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 804, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60 ; see, e.g., Biakanja v. Irving (1958) 49 Cal. 2d 647, 648-651, 320 P.2d 16 (plaintiff beneficiary allowed to recover value of bequest lost due to defendant's negligent preparation of third party's will); for further discussion of this line of cases, see Ch. 380, Negligence].

The precise scope of a cause of action for negligent interference with economic relations, as defined by the court in J'Aire, is somewhat unclear. At one point the Court indicated that such a cause of action would merely be limited to cases in which the risk of harm is foreseeable and closely connected with the defendant's conduct, and in which damages are not wholly speculative and the injury is not part of the plaintiff's ordinary business risk [J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 808, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60] . However, it also appears, under the criteria that govern such a cause of action, that recovery may be more specifically limited to cases in which the defendant's negligent conduct relates to some specific "transaction," relationship, or activity that, to some extent, is intended or known to have an effect on plaintiff's economic relations [see J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 804-805, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60] . In fact, those cases that have so far upheld a cause of action for negligent interference have specifically involved a defendant's negligent performance of a contract with a third party, when that performance had a more or less direct affect on plaintiff's economic relations [see J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 804, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60 ; Chameleon Eng'g Corp. v. Air Dynamics Inc. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 418, 420-423, 161 Cal. Rptr. 463] . For further discussion, see*§ 565.135[4][b]*.

There is, on the other hand, no apparent reason to limit recovery for negligent interference to the type of interference discussed in J'Aire--that is, negligent interference with noncontractual or prospective economic relationships. The court in J'Aire itself described the cause of action as one for negligent interference with "prospective economic advantage" [see J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 808, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60] , and it has used this same term in intentional interference cases to include contractual as well as noncontractual interference [Buckaloo v. Johnson (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 815, 822-823, 122 Cal. Rptr. 745, 537 P.2d 865 ; see discussion under Terminology Used in This Part]. Moreoever, one court of appeal, applying the criteria set forth in J'Aire, held that a complaint was sufficient to state a cause of action for negligent interference with economic relations when the facts involved interference with a contract. In that case the plaintiff, a general contractor, alleged that its own performance of a contract was rendered more burdensome, in that it was forced to pay liquidated damages, due to the defendant's negligent delay in performing a separate contract to furnish supplies to one of plaintiff's subcontractors [Chameleon Eng'g Corp. v. Air Dynamics Inc. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 418, 420-423, 161 Cal. Rptr. 463] .

Conversely, one court of appeal case in 2009 held that there is no cause of action for negligent interference with an existing contract. In that opinion, the court noted that the California Supreme Court had rejected such a cause of action in the 1960 case of Fifield Manor v. Finston [see Fifield Manor v. Finston (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 632, 636, 7 Cal. Rptr. 377, 354 P.2d 1073] . Because that case has never been overruled, by J'Aire or any subsequent Supreme Court case, the court of appeal concluded that it was still bound by its holding [Davis v. Nadrich (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1, 9-10, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 414] .

For a form of complaint for use in an action for negligent interference with economic relations, see § 565.291.

[3] Elements of Action--In General

As discussed in*§ 565.135[2]*, the leading Supreme Court opinion in J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory [J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60] indicates that a cause of action for negligent interference with economic relations is elementally similar to negligence actions in general, and in particular to actions to recover for economic losses resulting from negligence in performing a contract to which the plaintiff was a third party beneficiary [J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 804-808, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60 ; see also Chameleon Eng'g Corp. v. Air Dynamics Inc. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 418, 420-423, 161 Cal. Rptr. 463] .

The elements of a general cause of action for negligence are: (1) a legal duty to use due care (2) breach of that duty, (3) and the breach as proximate cause of resulting injury and damages [see United States Liab. Ins. Co. v. Haidinger-Hayes, Inc. (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 586, 594, 83 Cal. Rptr. 418, 463 P.2d 770 (general elements of actionable negligence); see also Hoyem v. Manhattan Beach City Sch. Dist. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 508, 513-514, 150 Cal. Rptr. 1, 585 P.2d 851 ; for further discussion relating to the elements of a cause of action for negligence generally, see Ch. 380, Negligence].

The court of appeal subsequent to the Supreme Court's opinion in the Della Penna case [see Della Penna v. Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 376, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436, 902 P.2d 740 ; see § 565.133], held that the Supreme Court's requirement that plaintiff prove that defendant's conduct was wrongful by some measure beyond the fact of the interference applies regardless whether the alleged interference was intentional or merely negligent [National Med. Transp. Network v. Deloitte & Touche (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 412, 440, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 720] . However, it seems likely that the breach of a negligence duty of care would satisfy the requirement of independently wrongful conduct. In fact, one court of appeal opinion agreeing that wrongfulness is an element of an action for negligent interference cited with seeming approval language from another court opinion suggesting that wrongful conduct is subsumed within a finding that a legal duty of care was owed [see Lange v. TIG Ins. Co. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1179, 1187-1189, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 39] . It is clear, in any event, that when negligent interference is alleged, plaintiff is not required to prove that defendant's conduct was intentional or willful. Negligent conduct is sufficient [Venhaus v. Schultz (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 1072, 1079, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 432 ; see CACI No. 2204].

[4] Duty of Care

[a] Factors Considered

The Supreme Court in J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799 adopted the following criteria for determining the existence of a duty of care [J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 804, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60 ; see Biakanja v. Irving (1958) 49 Cal. 2d 647, 648-651, 320 P.2d 16 ; see also § 565.135[2]]:

- The extent to which the transaction was intended to affect the plaintiff,
- The foreseeability of harm to the plaintiff,
- The degree of certainty that the plaintiff suffered injury,
- The closeness of the connection between the defendant's conduct and the injury suffered,
- The moral blame attached to the defendant's conduct, and
- The policy of preventing future harm.

The court concluded that these criteria should be applied, together with ordinary tort principles such as proximate cause, to determine recovery for negligent interference [J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 808, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60] .

[b] Extent to Which Transaction Intended to Affect Plaintiff

The first criterion is the extent to which the "transaction" is intended to affect the plaintiff [J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 804-805, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60] . This appears to require some showing that the defendant entered into or engaged in a contract, relationship, activity, or other "transaction" that did not involve the plaintiff as a party but which was nonetheless intended or known to affect an economic relation that contained a probability of future economic benefit to the plaintiff [see, e.g., J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 804, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60 (defendant contracted with owner to improve business premises leased by plaintiff); Chameleon Eng'g Corp. v. Air Dynamics Inc. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 418, 420-423, 161 Cal. Rptr. 463 (defendant contracted with one of plaintiff's subcontractors to furnish supplies); see also Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 330-331, 216 Cal. Rptr. 718, 703 P.2d 58 (intentional injury to economic interest not actionable when that interest contained no probable economic benefit to plaintiff)]. For further discussion of the possible limitations imposed by this "transaction" criterion, see*§ 565.135[2]*.

[c] Foreseeability of Harm to Plaintiff

The second criterion is the foreseeability of harm to the plaintiff [J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 804, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60] . The court in J'Aire frequently emphasized this requirement, so it would appear to be essential for the plaintiff to show that there was a foreseeable risk of harm to his or her economic relationship if defendant failed to use ordinary care in performing the alleged transaction [see J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 804-805, 808, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60 (plaintiff repeatedly told defendant that his prolonged construction disruption was adversely affecting operation of plaintiff's business)].

[d] Certainty of Injury and Nexus of Defendant's Conduct to Injury

The third and fourth criteria are the degree of certainty that the plaintiff suffered injury and the closeness of the connection between the defendant's conduct and the plaintiff's injury [J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 804, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60] . The court in J'Aire emphasized the latter criterion, the nexus between the negligent conduct and injury, together with foreseeability [J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 806-808, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60] . Thus, it appears to be essential that the plaintiff show a close connection between thedefendant's negligence in performing the transaction and the plaintiff's injury. Moreover, the plaintiff must also show that the injury was not a part of his or her ordinary business risk, and that it resulted in relatively certain, or at least not wholly speculative, damages [see J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 805, 808, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60 (plaintiff could not operate business as direct result of defendant's unreasonable delays in performance); cf. Worldvision Enters., Inc. v. American Broad. Cos., Inc. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 589, 596, 191 Cal. Rptr. 148 (no cause of action when injury was ordinary business risk known to plaintiffs)]. This showing appears to be identical to that necessary to establish the third element of a general cause of action for negligence--that is, proximately caused damages [cf. United States Liab. Ins. Co. v. Haidinger-Hayes, Inc. (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 586, 594, 83 Cal. Rptr. 418, 463 P.2d 770] .

[e] Moral Blame

The fifth criterion is the moral blame attached to the defendant's conduct [J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 804, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60] . In this sense it is at least helpful if a plaintiff can show some particular blameworthiness in the defendant's conduct [see J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 805, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60 (defendant's delay continued after his attention was drawn to its adverse effect on plaintiff's business)]. However, simple negligence may be enough if the other criteria support a finding of duty [see Chameleon Eng'g Corp.v. Air Dynamics Inc. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 418, 423, 161 Cal. Rptr. 463 (cause of action stated although blameworthiness of defendant's conduct not significant either way)].

[f] Public Policy to Prevent Future Harm

The last criterion is the public policy of preventing future harm [J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 805, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60] . In this sense it may be helpful if there is some expression of public policy that is specifically directed against the defendant's conduct [see J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 805, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60 (defendant's negligent delay also constituted grounds for disciplinary action under Bus. & Prof. Code § 7119)]. One court of appeal has indicated that Civ. Code § 1714(a), holding persons liable for negligence generally, is a sufficient expression of public policy when the other criteria support a finding of duty [Chameleon Eng'g Corp. v. Air Dynamics Inc. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 418, 423, 161 Cal. Rptr. 463] . On the other hand, in considering this criterion, other, countervailing public policies may also be considered to prevent a finding of duty even though other criteria support such a finding. For example, a defendant was held not liable on this ground for offering an opinion in good faith on a matter of public interest, in view of the countervailing public policy that strongly favors this conduct [Worldvision Enters., Inc. v. American Broad. Cos., Inc. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 589, 596, 598, 191 Cal. Rptr. 148] .

§ 565.136 Remedies

[1] Damages--In General

Damages for intentional interference with economic relations are recoverable by analogy to other intentional torts, and recovery is allowed for all resulting harm, including expenses, mental distress, and damage to business reputation [Duff v. Engelberg (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 505, 508, 47 Cal. Rptr. 114 ; see Civ. Code § 3333; Guillory v. Godfrey (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 628, 632-634, 286 P.2d 474 (upholding award of damages for mental distress and medical expenses incurred for aggravation of existing condition)]. The measure of tort damages for economic loss is reflected by loss of profits, expenses incurred, or similar concrete evidences of injury [Elsbach v. Mulligan (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d 354, 366-367, 136 P.2d 651 (upholding capitalization of past profits as method of measuring damage to value of business in action for interference); see also Mayes v. Sturdy N. Sales, Inc. (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 69, 84, 154 Cal. Rptr. 43 (upholding recovery of loss of net profits); Crummer v. Zalk (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 794, 797-798, 57 Cal. Rptr. 185 (upholding recovery of difference between contract price and value of what plaintiff parted with); Restatement (Second) of Torts § 774A(1) (recovery allowed for pecuniary loss, proximately caused consequential losses, and for mental suffering or damage to reputation that may reasonably be expected to result from interference)].

Punitive damages may also be recovered for intentional interference if the defendant acted with malice, fraud, or oppression [Duff v. Engelberg (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 505, 509, 47 Cal. Rptr. 114 ; see Civ. Code § 3294(a); Guillory v. Godfrey (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 628, 633, 286 P.2d 474 (upholding award of punitive damages)].

In cases involving negligent interference with economic relations, recovery is limited by ordinary principles of proximate cause governing other negligence actions. In addition, damages may not be wholly speculative nor based on injuries that are merely a part of the plaintiff's ordinary business risks [see J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 808, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60] .

For discussion concerning the effect of alternate contract remedies in a case involving interference with contract relations, see*§ 565.136[2]. For forms of complaint for intentional or negligent interference with economic relations including causes of action for monetary relief, see§§ 565.290* and 565.291. For discussion and forms relating to tort damages generally, see Ch. 177, Damages .

[2] Effect of Available Contract Remedies

A defendant's liability in tort for intentional interference with contract is not affected by the fact that the plaintiff may also have a cause of action in contract against the defaulting party to the contract, even if the plaintiff has reduced the latter claim toan unsatisfied judgment. A plaintiff may even recover from both wrongdoers, as long as there is no double recovery of compensatory damages. For example, he or she may obtain specific performance and contract damages from the defaulting party, but may still recover any additional, noncontractual damages and punitive damages from the defendant tortfeasor [Duff v. Engelberg (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 505, 507-508, 47 Cal. Rptr. 114 ; see also Owens v. Palos Verdes Monaco (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 855, 872, 191 Cal. Rptr. 381 (cause of action for damages for conspiracy to interfere with contractual relations not barred by cause of action for specific performance of contract); Restatement (Second) of Torts § 774A(2)].

[3] Injunctive Relief

Injunctive relief is available to restrain the threat of future interference with economic relations [Uptown Enters. v. Strand (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 45, 51, 15 Cal. Rptr. 486 ; California Grape Control Bd., Ltd. v. California Produce Corp., Ltd. (1935) 4 Cal. App. 2d 242, 244, 40 P.2d 846] . For example, it may be available to restrain continued harassment of a business operator and his or her patrons [see Uptown Enters. v. Strand (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 45, 50, 15 Cal. Rptr. 486 (harassment of drive-in theater operator and patrons)], or to restrain a competitor's continuing inducement of suppliers to breach their contracts with plaintiff [California Grape Control Bd., Ltd. v. California Produce Corp., Ltd. (1935) 4 Cal. App. 2d 242, 243, 40 P.2d 846 (inducement by produce marketer of individual growers to breach their contracts with plaintiff competitor)]. Relief is afforded on the same basis as in other suits for injunctive relief, such as when damages are not sufficiently ascertainable or are otherwise inadequate relief [see Huong Que, Inc. v. Luu (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 400, 418, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 527 ; Uptown Enters. v. Strand (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 45, 50, 15 Cal. Rptr. 486 ; see also Civ. Code § 3422 (grounds for permanent injunction)].

For a form of complaint for intentional interference with economic relations including a cause of action for injunctive relief, see*§ 565.290*. For discussion and forms governing injunctive relief generally, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[1] Controverting Matter

A defendant in an action for interference may, in addition to other general defenses, simply rebut one or more of the essential elements that the plaintiff must prove. For example, in an action for interference with contract, a defendant may show that he or she was not the "moving" or proximate cause of the breach in issue [see Eltolad Music, Inc. v. April Music, Inc. (1975) 139 Cal. App. 3d 697, 703, 706, 708, 188 Cal. Rptr. 858 (breach of contract be tween plaintiff and third party was at instigation of third party)], or that the contract was entirely void or illegal at the time of the alleged interference [see A-Mark Coin Co. v. General Mills, Inc. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 312, 320-322, 195 Cal. Rptr. 859 (contract was void as one made pursuant to vacated probate order); cf. § 565.133[a]]. Similarly, a defendant may rely on his or her lack of any knowledge of the existence of the economic relationship in issue [see Contemporary Invs., Inc. v. Safeco Title Ins. Co. (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 999, 1002-1003, 193 Cal. Rptr. 822] .

For further discussion relating to each essential element, see*§ 565.135[3]* and*§ 565.135[4]*. For general forms denying allegations of a complaint, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[2] Defendant as Party to Contractual Relationship

[a] In General

Relief based on tort liability for intentional interference with contractual relations may be sought only against those who are not themselves parties to the contractual relationship. This is because contract remedies may be pursued against the parties thereto, and allowance of tort recovery against parties to a contract would circumvent limitations applicable to recovery of damages in contract actions, such as those preventing an award of punitive damages or damages for emotional distress [Shoemaker v. Myers (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 1, 24, 276 Cal. Rptr. 303, 801 P.2d 1054 ; Dryden v. Tri-Valley Growers (1977) 65 Cal. App. 3d 990, 998-999, 135 Cal. Rptr. 720 ; see also Deeter v. Angus (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 241, 252-253, 224 Cal. Rptr. 801 ; Kelly v. General Tel. Co. (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 278, 288, 186 Cal. Rptr. 184] . This is the rule even if the theory of recovery is interference with prospective economic advantage and even if the conduct constituting the breach of contract also happens to violate an independent statutory duty [JRS Prods.,

Inc. v. Matsushita Elec. Corp. of Am. (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 168, 181-183, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 840 (defendant's conduct also violated franchise and unfair competition laws)].

It is also well established that corporate agents and employees acting for and on behalf of a corporation cannot be held liable for inducing breach of the corporation's contract [Shoemaker v. Myers (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 1, 24, 276 Cal. Rptr. 303, 801 P.2d 1054 ; Gruenberg v. Aetna Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 566, 576, 108 Cal. Rptr. 480, 510 P.2d 1032] . Thus, an officer or employee of a corporation has no independent duty to parties with whom the corporation contracts and cannot be liable for inducing breach of the corporation's contract or conspiring to breach it [Grosvenor Props., Ltd. v. Southmark Corp. (9th Cir. 1990) 896 F.2d 1149, 1153-1154 (analysis under California law; choice-of-law issue was never reached because officer would not have been liable under Canadian law)]. Similarly, neither a party to a contract nor agents of that party may be liable for interference with related subcontracts that would require the performance of the party to the primary contract [PM Group, Inc. v. Stewart (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 55, 65, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 227] .

On the other hand, a claim for interference with contract may be brought against an owner, officer, or director of a company whose contract was the subject of the litigation. Although these defendants may defend on the grounds that their conduct was privileged or justified, that defense must be pleaded and proved [Woods v. Fox Broad. Sub., Inc. (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 344, 356, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 463] . For example, a director of an entity that is a party to a contract may be liable for interfering with that contract if the acts constituting interference are not undertaken in the scope of the director's duties as agent of the corporation [Mouchette v. Board of Educ. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 303, 312, 266 Cal. Rptr. 1 (director of school board who, motivated by political alliances, influenced board to terminate plaintiff's contract); see also Plate v. Sun-Diamond Growers (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1115, 1126, 275 Cal. Rptr. 667 (director liable but not entitled to indemnification from corporate party to terminated contract)]. The immunity for officers, directors, and shareholders of corporations appears to be based not on the fact that they are the same entity as the corporation, but on the fact that, when acting in the corporation's interest, that is to say, within the scope of their office, their actions are privileged [see § 565.137[4][c],[d]].

[b] Liability Imposed by Alter Ego Doctrine

If the "manager's privilege" defense [see § 565.137[4][c]] is not raised or if the alter ego does not prevail on that defense, the alter ego doctrine cannot be used as a shield to prevent imposition of tort liability on the alter ego who caused the corporation to breach its contract [Shapoff v. Scull (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1457, 1466, 1471-1473, 272 Cal. Rptr. 480 (manager's privilege was not tendered by either argument or requested jury instructions; however, evidence suggested that manager's privilege would not have applied because, in causing corporation to breach contract, alter ego was acting to recoup losses on investments unrelated to corporation or in retaliation for unrelated project)]. The manager's privilege and the alter ego doctrine serve different purposes. Imposition of liability under the alter ego doctrine does not depend on whether the owner or manager was acting in the corporation's interest. The alter ego doctrine imposes liability to avoid inequitable results that would otherwise be suffered by the party who dealt with the corporation [Shapoff v. Scull (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1457, 1466, 1469-1471, 272 Cal. Rptr. 480] . In arguing that the alter ego doctrine should be applied to limit the alter ego's liability to the contract claim, the court of appeal said the alter ego was attempting to obtain relief that would be denied to similarly situated defendants under the "manager's privilege" criteria (that is, immunity without regard to motive), and rejected such an application of the alter ego doctrine [Shapoff v. Scull (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1457, 1472, 272 Cal. Rptr. 480] .

The original judgment in Shapoff v. Scull was against the corporation and its two principals, awarding plaintiff $55,000 for breach of a development agreement with the corporation, $55,000 for intentional interference with contractual relations, and $300,000 in punitive damages. The judgment was based in part on findings that the individual defendants were the alter egos of the corporate defendant and that the breach was caused by the tortious interference of one of them. The individual defendant found to have tortiously interfered with the contractual relations moved for judgment notwithstanding the verdict, asking the court to limit his liability to the contract claim on the ground that it was inconsistent to impose liability on both the contract claim and the tort claim. The trial court agreed that it was inconsistent, and gave plaintiff the election to enforce one or the other. Not surprisingly, plaintiff chose to proceed on the tort claim. The trial court amended the judgment to delete its determination that the individual was an alter ego of the corporation [Shapoff v. Scull (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1457, 1462, 272 Cal. Rptr. 480] . Plaintiff did not contest that election on appeal, so the related issue of whether one person can be held liable both in tort for interference and on the contract as an alter ego was not addressed [Shapoff v. Scull (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1457, 1473, 272 Cal. Rptr. 480] .

A similar result occurred in another case in which the court of appeal upheld a jury finding that both an individual defendant and corporatedefendants were liable for conspiring to interfere with the plaintiff's contractual security interest, despite the fact that the individual defendant was arguably the alter ego of both the corporate defendants and the corporation that had the contract with the plaintiff [Webber v. Inland Empire Invs., Inc., (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 884, 898-901, 88 Cal. Rptr 2d 594] . The court concluded that the case before it was virtually indistinguishable from Shapoff [Webber v. Inland Empire Invs., Inc., (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 884, 899-900, 88 Cal. Rptr 2d 594 (Supreme Court's subsequent disapproval of Shapoff extended only to Shapoff court's holding that party to contract can be liable in tort for conspiring to interfere with own contract)].

[3] Lapse of Limitation Period

No limitation period is specifically provided for an action for interference with economic relations. Thus, as a general rule, the applicable limitation period is the two-year period set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1), which governs tort actions that involve intangible interests for which no limitation period is specifically provided [McWilliams v. Holton (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 447, 454, 56 Cal. Rptr. 574 (dictum); see, e.g., Kenworthy v. Brown (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 298, 301, 56 Cal. Rptr. 461 (Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1) applied to action for conspiracy to interfere with contract); Kiang v. Strycula (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 809, 811-812, 42 Cal. Rptr. 338 (Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1) applied to action for intentional interference with contract)].

Other limitation periods may apply to an interference action when the alleged wrongful conduct is tortious in itself. For example, the three-year period set forth in former Code Civ. Proc. § 338(4) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)) was held to apply to an action for intentional interference with contract that was based on allegations of fraud [Romano v. Wilbur Ellis & Co. (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 670, 673-674, 186 P.2d 1012] .

Similarly, dictum in a court of appeal decision indicated that an action for interference by means of libel, slander, or physical violence would fall within the one-year limitations period of former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) (now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 335.1, 340(c) (beginning in 2003, two-year limitations period for actions for personal injury or death caused by negligence or wrongful act of another, and one-year limitations period for actions for libel or slander)) [see Romano v. Wilbur Ellis & Co. (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 670, 674, 186 P.2d 1012 ; see also Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.14].

The applicable statute of limitations may be pleaded affirmatively as a bar to an action not brought within the prescribed period [see McFaddin v. H.S. Crocker Co. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 585, 591, 33 Cal. Rptr. 389 ; see also Union Sugar Co. v. Hollister Estate Co. (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 740, 744, 47 P.2d 273 (bar of statute of limitations as affirmative defense required to be raised in appropriate pleading)]. For a form of affirmative defense allegation raising the bar of Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1), see § 565.292. For discussion and forms relating to limitations periods generally, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions .

[4] Justification or Privilege

[a] General Balancing Test

One defense to actions for interference with economic relations is that of justification or privilege. The terms

"justification" and "privilege" are essentially synonymous, signifying that the defendant's conduct was not improper under the particular circumstances [see Environmental Planning & Info. Council v. Superior Court (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 188, 193-194, 194 n.3, 203 Cal. Rptr. 127, 680 P.2d 1086] . This general defense is based on the rule that intentional interference with economic relations is only actionable if the method of interference was itself unlawful, or if the method was lawful but there was a lack of sufficient justification or privilege [Lowell v. Mother's Cake & Cookie Co. (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 13, 17-18, 144 Cal. Rptr. 664] .

A plaintiff must now plead and prove that a defendant's conduct was wrongful by some measure other than the act of the interference itself in order to recover for intentional interference with prospective economic advantage. Therefore, the burden is now on the plaintiff in those actions to prove the element of "wrongfulness" by pleading and proving that the defendant's interference was unlawful, which means that it must be conduct proscribed by some constitutional, statutory, regulatory, common law, or other determinable legal standard [Korea Supply Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1134, 1159, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29, 63 P.3d 937] . Therefore, if the plaintiff is required to prove that the defendant's conduct was unlawful as an element of the cause of action for intentional interference with prospective economic advantage that has not yet ripened into a contract, it would seem that the defendant's only real remaining burden in these actions on what was in the past considered the defense of justification is to counter the plaintiff's evidence and argument with the defendant's own showing that the conduct was not unlawful.

For other types of interference claims, however, the defense of justification or privilege is an affirmative defense that is waived if not raised [GHK Assocs. v. Mayer Group, Inc. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 856, 882, 274 Cal. Rptr. 168 ; Mayes v. Sturdy N. Sales, Inc. (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 69, 80, 154 Cal. Rptr. 43 ; see also Buckaloo v. Johnson (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 815, 827-828, 122 Cal. Rptr. 745, 537 P.2d 865] . Moreover, it cannot be considered as a ground for sustaining a general demurrer unless the facts giving rise to the defense appear on the face of the complaint [Herron v. State Farm Mut. Ins. Co. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 202, 206-207, 14 Cal. Rptr. 294, 363 P.2d 310 ; Lowell v. Mother's Cake & Cookie Co. (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 13, 18-19, 144 Cal. Rptr. 664] .

There are a number of general fact situations in which the defense of justification or privilege is typically recognized [see, e.g., § 565.137[4][b]]. As a general rule, however, the contours of justification or privilege are not precisely defined, and establishing the defense requires a balancing of the importance, social and private, of the objective advanced by the interference against the importance of the interest interfered with, considering all the circumstances including the nature of the defendant's conduct and the relationship between the parties [Environmental Planning & Info. Council v. Superior Court (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 188, 193-194, 203 Cal. Rptr. 127, 680 P.2d 1086] .

In other words, the issue is essentially whether the defendant's conduct was fair and reasonable under all the circumstances. Existence of justification or privilege is therefore a question of fact usually decided by proof of facts rather than by the pleadings [Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 200, 228-229, 194 Cal. Rptr. 180 ; Lowell v. Mother's Cake & Cookie Co. (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 13, 17-21, 144 Cal. Rptr. 664] . One of the most significant considerations is the purpose or motive underlying the defendant's intentional acts [see Seaman's Direct Buying Serv., Inc. v. Standard Oil Co. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 752, 766, 206 Cal. Rptr. 354, 686 P.2d 1158 (defendant's motive becomes relevant issue only as defense once intent is shown)]. If the motive is improper, that is, solely to harm the plaintiff, this will defeat any apparent defense of justification or privilege that might otherwise apply due to the existence of a relationship or interest that typically gives rise to the defense [Bridges v. Cal-Pac. Leasing Co. (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 118, 132, 93 Cal. Rptr. 796] .

Some courts, in determining whether justification or privilege exists, have adopted a balancing test that includes consideration of the following specific factors [see, e.g., Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 200, 230, 194 Cal. Rptr. 180 ; Lowell v. Mother's Cake & Cookie Co. (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 13, 21, 144 Cal. Rptr. 664 ; Restatement (Second) of Torts § 767]:

- The nature of the defendant's conduct;

- The defendant's motive;
- The interests of the plaintiff that are interfered with;
- The interests sought to be advanced by the defendant;
- The social interests in protecting the freedom of the action of the defendant and the contractual or other economic interests of the plaintiff;
- The proximity or remoteness of the defendant's conduct to the interference; and
- The relationship between the parties.

For a form of affirmative defense based on justification or privilege, see § 565.293.

[b] Fair Competition

The interest in competitive freedom is important enough to justify fair and lawful efforts to obtain the business of a third person by inducing him or her to forsake a competitor, when there is no existing contractual relation between the third person and the competitor [Imperial Ice Co. v. Rossier (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 33, 36, 112 P.2d 631] . As a general rule, this defense arises if [Los Angeles Land Co. v. Brunswick Corp. (9th Cir. 1993) 6 F.3d 1422, 1430-1431 ; A-Mark Coin Co. v. General Mills, Inc. (1981) 148 Cal. App. 3d 312, 323 ; Charles C. Chapman Bldg. Co. v. California Mart (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 846, 855-856, 82 Cal. Rptr. 830 ; see Restatement (Second) of Torts § 768(1)]:

- The relation concerns a matter involved in the competition between the defendant and the plaintiff;
- The defendant does not employ means wrongful in themselves;
- The defendant's action does not create or continue an unlawful restraint of trade; and
- The defendant's purpose is at least in part to advance the defendant's interest in competing with the plaintiff.

However, the interest in contractual stability is deemed to be more important than the interest in competitive freedom. Therefore, the mere fact that one is in competition with another for the business of a third person does not justify inducing the third person to breach an existing contract with the other [Imperial Ice Co. v. Rossier (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 33, 36-37, 112 P.2d 631] . This is true even though the contract is terminable at the will of the parties [Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Bear Stearns & Co. (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1118, 1127, 1129, 270 Cal. Rptr. 1, 791 P.2d 587 (however, defendant's conduct not actionable on public policy grounds; see § 565.137[h]); Speegle v. Board of Fire Underwriters (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 34, 39-41, 172 P.2d 867 (fact that contract is terminable at will of parties does not mean that it is terminable at will of others); Freed v. Manchester Serv., Inc. (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 186, 188-189, 191, 331 P.2d 689 ; but see A-Mark Coin Co. v. General Mills, Inc. (1981) 148 Cal. App. 3d 312, 323 (citing with approval Restatement (Second) of Torts § 768(1), under which fair competition justifies interference with existing contract that is terminable at will)]. For example, an insurer may be liable for inducing an attorney's client to breach his or her contingent fee contract with the attorney in order to settle with the client for lesser sum, notwithstanding the fact that a contingent fee contract may be terminated at will by a client with or without cause [Herron v. State Farm Mut. Ins. Co. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 202, 205, 207, 14 Cal. Rptr. 294, 363 P.2d 310] . The reason for making it actionable to induce a party to terminate a contract according to its terms is that, if protection from outside interference is accorded to an economic relationship that is wholly prospective, protection must also be accorded to contractual relationships that are subject to

Although fair competition does not justify active and affirmative efforts to interfere with or induce a breach of contract, a person is free to compete by lawful means even though an incidental result may be to induce a third party to breach a contract with a competitor. Similarly, if two parties have separate contracts with a third party, each may resort to lawful means to secure performance even though the necessary result is a breach of the other's contract [Imperial Ice Co. v. Rossier (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 33, 36-37, 112 P.2d 631 (dictum); see also § 565.137[4][g]].

[c] Confidential Relationship

[i] Protecting Welfare of Third Party

A defendant who induces a third party to sever an existing contract or not to enter some other economic relation may justify doing so if he or she had a confidential relationship with the third party. The general rule may be stated as follows: a defendant who is charged with the responsibility or welfare of a third party is not liable for intentionally causing that party to breach his or her contract or not to enter into a prospective contractual relation with the plaintiff, when the defendant uses lawful means and acts to protect the welfare of the third party [Restatement (Second) of Torts § 770]. For example, an attorney may not be held liable for advising a client to breach a contract with a third party. Public policy dictates that attorneys must remain free to counsel their clients without fear of subjecting themselves to liability as a result of the proper discharge of their professional obligations. Clients also must feel free to seek out an attorney's advice on any issue at any time. Any rule to the contrary would constitute a serious impairment of the confidential attorney-client relationship and would have a resulting deleterious effect on the administration of justice [Schick v. Lerner (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1321, 1329, 238 Cal. Rptr. 902] .

[ii] Manager's Privilege

Under the "manager's privilege," a corporate agent or employee acting for and on behalf of his or her corporation is privileged to induce the corporation to breach a contract, by virtue of his or her confidential relationship with the corporation [Mayes v. Sturdy N. Sales, Inc. (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 69, 77-78, 154 Cal. Rptr. 43 ; Wise v. Southern Pac. Co. (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 50, 72-73, 35 Cal. Rptr. 652 ; see also Mallard v. Boring (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 390, 393, 6 Cal. Rptr. 171 (same privilege applied to employee of partnership)].

The manager's privilege may not be sufficient to insulate an officer or director from liability if imposition of liability is otherwise appropriate under the alter ego doctrine [see Shapoff v. Scull (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1457, 1469-1473 (manager's privilege defense was not raised, but court noted that alter ego liability does not depend on whether owner or manager was acting in corporation's interest); see also § 565.137[2][b]].

The manager's privilege is not limited to cases in which a manager has allegedly induced an entity principal to breach a contract, but may apply to a manager or agent who acts on behalf of a natural person [Huynh v. Vu (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1183, 1195, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 595 (husband could assert privilege as agent for wife)].

California court opinions have not entirely established whether the manager's privilege is an absolute privilege, or whether it is a qualified privilege that may be defeated by a showing that the manager's motive was improper [see Halvorsen v. Aramark Unif. Servs., Inc. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1383, 1391-1393, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 383] . For these purposes, an improper motive would be one in which the manager acted in his or her best interests, rather than in the principal's best interests [see Wanland v. Los Gatos Lodge, Inc. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1507, 1522-1523, 281 Cal. Rptr. 890].

However, at least one court of appeal opinion has specifically held that the privilege is absolute regardless of the manager's motivations, at least in the context of employment decisions made by a managing agent of the employer [Halvorsen v. Aramark Unif. Servs., Inc. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1383, 1392-1396, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 383 (in interference with contract action based on termination from employment, manager's privilege was absolute when employment was terminable at-will)].

Other opinions have considered the propriety of the manager's motives in determining whether to apply the privilege [see, e.g., Aalgaard v. Merchants Nat'l Bank, Inc. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 674, 684-686, 274 Cal. Rptr. 81 (privilege protected defendants when evidence established that officers did not act in their own interests)], and the privilege has been denied in instances when the manager acted primarily out of self-interest [see, e.g., Olivet v. Frischling (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 831, 840-841, 164 Cal. Rptr. 87 , disapproved on other grounds, Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 521 n.10, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454] .

Even when motive has been considered, however, the privilege has applied when the predominant motive of the manager was proper [see Halvorsen v. Aramark Unif. Servs., Inc. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1383, 1392-1393, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 383 (discussing earlier cases)]. Under this predominant motive test, if the manager has some personal financial interest in the transaction, so that it is reasonably possible that the manager acted at least in part out of self-interest, a manager's desire to advance his or her personal interests does not vitiate the privilege as long as the manager's predominant motive is advancing the principal's interests [Huynh v. Vu (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1183, 1198-1200, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 595] .

[d] Financial Interest

A defendant who has a financial interest in the business of a third party, and who intentionally causes that person not to enter into a prospective contractual relation with the plaintiff, is justified in so doing if he or she does not employ wrongful means and acts to protect his or her interest from being prejudiced by the relation [Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Great W. Fin. Corp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 305, 319, 70 Cal. Rptr. 849, 444 P.2d 481 ; Culcal Stylco, Inc. v. Vornado, Inc. (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 879, 882, 103 Cal. Rptr. 419 ; see Restatement (Second) of Torts § 769]. "Financial interest" refers to an investment or ownership interest. For example, a parent corporation has a financial interest in its subsidiary, although the opposite is not true [Culcal Stylco, Inc. v. Vornado, Inc. (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 879, 882-883, 103 Cal. Rptr. 419] .

The privilege based on financial interest is qualified, in the sense that a defendant must show not only that the existence of the financial interest, but also that he or she acted with the proper purpose, that is, to protect his or her interest or the interest of the entity he or she owns [Wanland v. Los Gatos Lodge, Inc. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1507, 1522, 281 Cal. Rptr. 890 ; see also Culcal Stylco, Inc. v. Vornado, Inc. (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 879, 882-883, 103 Cal. Rptr. 419 (existence of privilege normally determined on basis of proof rather than pleadings)].

Financial interest, like fair competition, does not justify intentional interference with an existing contract, as distinguished from a noncontractual relationship. For example, one court held that the defense was not available when defendants, who were controlling shareholders, induced their corporation to breach an existing contract [Winn v. McCulloch Corp. (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 663, 673-674, 131 Cal. Rptr. 597] .

[e] Conduct Protected by Constitution or Statute

[i] In General

In certain instances, a defendant's interference with economic relations has been held to be justified or privileged because the interfering conduct was protected by public policy expressed in a constitutional or statutory provision, which outweighed any detriment resulting to the economic interest interfered with. Specific applications of this principle are discussed in the subheadings below.

[ii] Petitioning Government for Redress of Grievance (Noerr-Pennington Doctrine)

The Noerr-Pennington doctrine provides that there is no antitrust liability under the Sherman Act for efforts to influence government that are protected by the First Amendment right to petition for redress of grievances, even when the motive behind such actions is anticompetitive [ProfessionalReal Estate Investors v. Columbia Pictures Indus. Inc. (1993) 508 U.S. 49, 56-58, 113 S. Ct. 1920, 123 L. Ed. 2d 611 ; see Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Bear Stearns & Co. (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1118, 1133, 270 Cal. Rptr. 1, 791 P.2d 587 ; Hi-Top Steel Corp. v. Lehrer (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 570, 574, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 646] . The doctrine originated in the U.S. Supreme Court's decision in Eastern R. Presidents Conference v. Noerr Motor Freight, Inc. (1961) 365 U.S. 127, 81 S. Ct. 523, 5 L. Ed. 2d 464 , in which the Court held that alleged lobbying efforts by the railroad industry to foster legislation that would be adverse to the trucking industry could not form the basis for liability under the Sherman Act, even if the defendants' motive was to injure competition [see Eastern R. Presidents Conference v. Noerr Motor Freight, Inc. (1961) 365 U.S. 127, 136-140, 81 S. Ct. 523, 5 L. Ed. 2d 464 ; see also United Mine Workers v. Pennington (1965) 381 U.S. 657, 85 S. Ct. 1585, 14 L. Ed. 2d 626] . In a later decision, the Court made clear that the Noerr-Pennington doctrine applies to judicial and administrative, as well as legislative, proceedings [California Transp. v. Trucking Unlimited (1972) 404 U.S. 508, 510-511, 92 S. Ct. 609, 30 L. Ed. 2d 642 ; see Professional Real Estate Investors v. Columbia Pictures Indus. Inc. (1993) 508 U.S. 49, 56-58, 113 S. Ct. 1920, 123 L. Ed. 2d 611] .

Although the Noerr-Pennington doctrine originated in the context of federal antitrust litigation, courts have also applied the doctrine to actions for intentional interference with economic relations under California law. Thus, the scope of interference claims is limited by the constitutional right to petition for redress of grievances [see Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Bear Stearns & Co. (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1118, 1133-1137, 270 Cal. Rptr. 1, 791 P.2d 587 ; Hi-Top Steel Corp. v. Lehrer (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 570, 577-578, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 646 ; Matossian v. Fahmie (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 128, 138-139, 161 Cal. Rptr. 532 ; Sierra Club v. Butz (N.D. Cal. 1972) 349 F. Supp. 934, 937-938] . In one case, for example, a court held that the Noerr-Pennington doctrine barred a timber company that had a logging contract with the United States from bringing an action for intentional interference with contract against an environmental group seeking to enjoin the company from logging in an area under consideration for wilderness status [see Sierra Club v. Butz (N.D. Cal. 1972) 349 F. Supp. 934, 938-939] . In another case, the doctrine was applied to bar an action for interference with business relations brought by alcoholic beverage licenseholders against competitors who had unsuccessfully protested the granting of the plaintiffs' liquor license [see Matossian v. Fahmie (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 128, 138-139, 161 Cal. Rptr. 532] .

Efforts to influence government that are merely a "sham" are not protected by the Noerr-Pennington doctrine and are subject to antitrust liability [see California Transp. v. Trucking Unlimited (1972) 404 U.S. 508, 512-513, 92 S. Ct. 609, 30 L. Ed. 2d 642 ; Eastern R. Presidents Conference v. Noerr Motor Freight, Inc. (1961) 365 U.S. 127, 144, 81 S. Ct. 523, 5 L. Ed. 2d 464 ; Hi-Top Steel Corp. v. Lehrer (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 570, 575, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 646] . The sham exception encompasses situations in which persons use the governmental process, as opposed to the outcome of that process, as an anticompetitive weapon [Columbia v. Omni Outdoor Adver. (1991) 499 U.S. 365, 380, 111 S. Ct. 1344, 113 L. Ed. 2d 382] . The sham exception has been applied to California tort actions for intentional interference with economic relations [see Hi-Top Steel Corp. v. Lehrer (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 570, 579, 581-583, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 646 (defendants' alleged false and baseless statements to city officials about plaintiffs' plans for automobile body shredder made for purpose of causing regulatory delays constituted sufficient facts to support application of sham exception)].

Litigation will not be deemed a sham unless the lawsuit is so objectively baseless that no reasonable litigant could realistically expect success on the merits [Professional Real Estate Investors v. Columbia Pictures Indus. Inc. (1993) 508 U.S. 49, 60-63, 113 S. Ct. 1920, 123 L. Ed. 2d 611] . The existence of probable cause to institute the legal proceedings thus precludes a finding that the defendant has engaged in sham litigation [Professional Real Estate Investors v. Columbia Pictures Indus. Inc. (1993) 508 U.S. 49, 61-64, 113 S. Ct. 1920, 123 L. Ed. 2d 611 ; see also Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Bear Stearns & Co. (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1118, 1137, 270 Cal. Rptr. 1, 791 P.2d 587 (plaintiff seeking to state claim for intentional interference with economic relations based on defendant's inducing another party to undertake litigation must allege that litigation was brought without probable cause and was concluded in plaintiff's favor)]. If an objective litigant could reasonably conclude that the suit is reasonably calculated to elicit a favorable outcome, then the suit is immunized under the Noerr-Pennington doctrine, regardless of the defendant's subjective intent in bringing the suit [Professional Real Estate Investors v. Columbia Pictures Indus. Inc. (1993) 508 U.S. 49, 56-58, 60-61, 113 S. Ct. 1920, 123 L. Ed. 2d 611] .

[iii] Privilege for Statements Made in Course of Legislative, Judicial, or Other Official Proceedings

Under Civ. Code § 47(b), a statement is generally privileged if made in the course of a legislative, judicial, or other official proceeding. Although this provision is most often invoked in defamation actions, it has also been applied to actions for intentional interference with economic relations [see Rubin v. Green (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1187, 1196, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 828, 847 P.2d 1044 (acts alleged amounted to unlawful attorney solicitation); 1-800-Contacts, Inc. v. Steinberg (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 568, 586-588 (statements in anticipation of legislative activity were shielded from action for interference with contract); Rosenthal v. Irell & Manella (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 121, 125-128, 185 Cal. Rptr. 92 (statements connected with judicial proceeding); Asia Inv. Co. v. Borowski (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 832, 841-842, 184 Cal. Rptr. 317 (filing of petition for writ of mandate)]. However, the privilege has been held inapplicable, despite the fact that the defendant was involved in a judicial proceeding, when the defendant's conduct had no connection with the issues raised in the litigation [see Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 200, 231-234, 194 Cal. Rptr. 180] . The privilege is also inapplicable where the conduct is largely noncommunicative and unrelated to any anticipated litigation [see LiMandri v. Judkins (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 326, 348, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 539 (attorney's conduct in securing trust company's lien rights not privileged under Civ. Code § 47(b) because unrelated to subsequent interpleader action)].

For further discussion of the scope of the privilege under Civ. Code § 47(b), see Ch. 340, Libel and Slander .

[iv] Other Examples

In one case, an attorney contracted with members of a city council to contest a recall election seeking the removal of these members. Proponents of the election persuaded the city treasurer to refuse to disburse any public funds pursuant to this contract, and the attorney sued the proponents for interference. In this situation, it was held that the interference was privileged, notwithstanding any detriment to the attorney's contract interest, in view of the strong public interest in allowing free challenges to public expenditures, as expressed by Code Civ. Proc. § 526a [Bledsoe v. Watson (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 105, 108-111, 106 Cal. Rptr. 197 (also citing U.S. Const. amends. I, XIV; Cal. Const. art. I, § 1); see also Gold v. Los Angeles Democratic League (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 365, 376, 122 Cal. Rptr. 732 (freedom of speech may be raised as defense in action based on defendant's alleged misrepresentations interfering with plaintiff's prospective opportunity to be elected as city treasurer)].

In another case, a plaintiff publishing company brought an action against defendants based on their intentional efforts to dissuade third parties from advertising in plaintiff's newspaper. The California Supreme Court noted that a politically motivated boycott designed to force governmental or economic change was a constitutionally protected activity. The Court held that defendants' conduct was similarly motivated to force a change in plaintiff's editorial policy, and as such it was justified as a matter of public policy expressed in U.S. Const. amend. I, as well as common law principles [Environmental Planning & Info. Council v. Superior Court (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 188, 195-198, 203 Cal. Rptr. 127, 680 P.2d 1086] .

[v] Motion to Strike Claims Against Constitutionally Privileged Conduct (SLAPP Suits)

The legislature has declared that there is a disturbing increase in lawsuits brought primarily to chill the valid exercise of the constitutional rights of freedom of speech and petition for the redress of grievances (Strategic Litigation Against Public Participation or "SLAPP suits"). In orderto protect the public interest to encourage continued participation in matters of public significance, and to prevent this participation from being chilled through abuse of the judicial process, the legislature enacted Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(a)], which authorizes a special motion to strike in order to determine the validity of such actions.

The motion to strike is based on the ground that the actions complained of arise from acts of the defendant in furtherance of his or her right of petition or free speech under the United States or California Constitution in connection with a public issue. In response to the motion, the plaintiff has the burden to establish that there is a probability that plaintiff will prevail on the claim [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(b)]. In making its determination, the court considers the pleadings, and supporting and opposing affidavits stating the facts on which the liability or defense is based [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(b); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(c),(g) (costs and fees, stay of discovery during pendency of motion)].

These special motion provisions are not applicable to any enforcement action brought in the name of the people of the State of California by the Attorney General, district attorney, or city attorney, acting as a public prosecutor [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(d)].

For detailed discussion and a form of motion and supporting declaration, see Ch. 376, Motions to Strike: Anti-SLAPP .

[f] Truthful Information or Honest Advice

A defendant who intentionally causes a third party not to perform a contract or not to enter into a prospective contractual relation with the plaintiff is justified in doing so if he or she has merely given the third party truthful information or honest advice within the scope of a request for the advice [Restatement (Second) of Torts § 772; see Savage v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 434, 449-450, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305 (applying privilege for providing truthful information); Lowell v. Mother's Cake & Cookie Co. (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 13, 20 n.1, 144 Cal. Rptr. 664 (privilege based on honest advice does not apply unless advice is requested); Walsh v. Glendale Fed. Sav. & Loan Assn. (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 578, 588-589, 81 Cal. Rptr. 804 , disapproved on other grounds, Garrett v. Coast & Southern Fed. Sav. & Loan Assn. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 731, 737-738, 108 Cal. Rptr. 845, 511 P.2d 1197 (privilege based on honest advice not apparent on face of complaint when defendant gave advice on request and within scope of request but allegedly gave false and fraudulent information)].

[g] Bona Fide Claim

A defendant who intentionally interferes with a contract or other economic relationship by asserting in good faith a legally protected interest of his or her own or by threatening in good faith to protect that interest by appropriate means is justified in doing so if he or she believes that his or her interest may otherwise be impaired or destroyed by the performance of the contract or other transaction interfered with [Restatement (Second) of Torts § 773]. This privilege refers generally to a defendant's assertion of an honest claim by bringing or threatening to bring a suit in good faith, to protect a present, existing, economic interest, such as an ownership interest in property or a contractual interest. For example, if the defendant has a prior contract with a third party, he or she may prevent that third party from performing another contract with the plaintiff that threatens the prior contract [Richardson v. La Rancherita (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 73, 81, 159 Cal. Rptr. 285 ; see also Imperial Ice Co. v. Rossier (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 33, 37, 112 P.2d 631 ; Lawless v. Brotherhood of Painters (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 474, 478, 300 P.2d 159 (if two parties have separate contracts with third party, each may resort by lawful means to secure performance of his or her own contract even though the necessary result is a breach of the other's contract)].

As with all recognized situations in which justification or privilege may apply, a showing of proper motive is crucial [cf. § 565.137[4][c], [d]]. The defendant must not only show the existence of a legally protected interest, but must act in good faith to preserve that interest. To establish "good faith," the defendant must show some objective basis for his or her belief, something more than mere reliance on counsel or mere sincerity and honest conviction with regard to the validity of the claim. For example, in one case, a defendant lessor interfered with a lessee's sale of corporate stock on the ground that it constituted a lease assignment requiring the lessor's consent. However, justification on the basis of a bona fide claim was held not to apply, because the evidence supported findings that the lessor's predominant motive was to use its consent to negotiate an increase in the financial return on the leased property, and there was insufficient objective basis for its claim that the sale of stock amounted to a lease assignment in violation of the terms of the lease [Richardson v. La Rancherita (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 73, 82, 159 Cal. Rptr. 285 ; cf. Bridges v. Cal-Pac. Leasing Co. (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 118, 131-132, 93 Cal. Rptr. 796 (evidence supported finding of good faith claim to protect property interest)].

[h] Right to Induce Litigation on Contract

No cause of action for intentional interference with economic relations can be stated based on the defendant's inducing another to undertake litigation relating to the contract unless that litigation was brought without probable cause and was concluded in plaintiff's favor [Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Bear Stearns & Co. (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1118, 1137, 270 Cal. Rptr. 1, 791 P.2d 587 (issue raised on demurrer)]. To allow a cause of action to be stated for interference with a contract or a prospective advantage when the only interference alleged is that defendant induced the bringing of potentially meritorious litigation would be an unwarranted expansion of thescope of these torts and a pernicious barrier to free access to the courts [Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Bear Stearns & Co. (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1118, 1123, 270 Cal. Rptr. 1, 791 P.2d 587] .

In one case, the defendant induced a county water agency to seek a declaratory judgment that it could terminate its contract with plaintiff early by retiring related project bonds. That action resulted in a trial court judgment for the agency, which was reversed on appeal and still pending when the action for damages and injunctive relief based on intentional interference with contract and with prospective economic advantage reached the Supreme Court [Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Bear Stearns & Co. (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1118, 1124-1125, 270 Cal. Rptr. 1, 791 P.2d 587] .

In reaching its conclusion, the Court considered the public policy to allow free access to the courts to provide for peaceful, judicial resolution of differences [Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Bear Stearns & Co. (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1118, 1131-1133, 270 Cal. Rptr. 1, 791 P.2d 587 ; see Civ. Code § 47(b); see also § 565.137[4][e][iii]], the constitutional right to petition for redress of grievances [Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Bear Stearns & Co. (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1118, 1133-1135, 270 Cal. Rptr. 1, 791 P.2d 587 ; see § 565.137[4][e][ii]], and the fact that the interference torts themselves have been criticized as favoring secure enjoyment of contractual and economic relations at the expense of a freely competitive economy, and have been limited accordingly [Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Bear Stearns & Co. (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1118, 1136-1137, 270 Cal. Rptr. 1, 791 P.2d 587 ; see, e.g., Youst v. Longo (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 64, 74-75, 233 Cal. Rptr. 294, 729 P.2d 728 (tort not extended to context of sporting event)]. The Court concluded that the appropriate balance between the right to free access to the courts and the interest in being free from the financial and emotional cost of defending litigation is already struck by the tort of malicious prosecution [Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Bear Stearns & Co. (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1118, 1131-1133, 1137, 270 Cal. Rptr. 1, 791 P.2d 587] . The Court acknowledged that the right to petition for redress of grievances has previously been applied only to protect the litigants, but held that, in order to assure free access to the courts and to prevent a flood of oppressive derivative litigation, third parties should be similarly protected [Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Bear Stearns & Co. (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1118, 1135-1136, 270 Cal. Rptr. 1, 791 P.2d 587] . For discussion of tort actions for malicious prosecution, see Ch. 357, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process .

Likewise, an action for intentional interference with contractual relations may not be brought against a defendant whose conduct induces the plaintiff to institute litigation to determine its rights under a contract with a third party, at least when the plaintiff's position on the contractual dispute is not indisputably correct. A business relationship with a party to a contract that merely brings to head the contracting parties' good faith dispute about the interpretation of the contract is not tortious [Golden W.Baseball Co. v. City of Anaheim (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 11, 51, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 378] .

[1] Common Law Unfair Competition

Advertisements by producers of turfgrass seed and sod claiming that advertised turfgrass was better than competition in certain key characteristics does not support claim for common law unfair competition; allegations do not amount to "passing off one's goods as those of another." Southland Sod Farms v. Stover Seed Co. (1997) 108 F.3d 1134, 1147

Unauthorized use of computer software enhancements and support system, confidential information, and customer lists involves four species of unfair competition: breach of confidence, breach of fiduciary duty, trade secrets, and common law misappropriation, only last of which is preempted by federal copyright law because it does not require extra element of relationship between unauthorized user and owner of information. Balboa Ins. Co. v. Trans Global Equities (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1327, 1344-1345, 1350-1353, 267 Cal. Rptr. 787

[2] Federal Preemption

Class action under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. against tobacco companies for advertising allegedly targeted at minors preempted by Federal Cigarette Labeling and Advertising Act, 15 U.S.C.S. § 1331 et seq., because claim was necessarily and inherently based on concerns about smoking and health. In re Tobacco Cases II (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 1257, 1272-1276, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 418, 163 P.3d 106 (overruling Mangini v. R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1057, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 358, 875 P.2d 73)

Federal regulations did not preempt causes of action against lenders, including some claims brought under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq., alleging that lenders used deceptive and misleading statements to convince consumers that tax refund anticipation loans were merely accelerated tax refunds, rather than loans, and that they failed to clarify to applicants that tax refunds could be seized to pay existing debts from prior, similar loans; actions were brought in part to enforce federal law and had only incidental effect on lender's deposit-taking and non-real-estate-lending powers. Hood v. Santa Barbara Bank & Trust (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 526, 542-548, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 369

Class action brought under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. and based on violation of federal Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA), 29 U.S.C.S. § 207, not preempted by FLSAmerely because state statute allows traditional opt-out class actions while FLSA requires that class members specifically opt in. Harris v. Investor's Bus. Daily, Inc. (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 28, 32-36, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 108

State court lacked subject matter jurisdiction over claims for unfair competition and violation of Cartwright Act because claims presented questions of invalidity or enforceability of patents, resulting in exclusive federal jurisdiction under federal patent law. Holiday Matinee, Inc. v. Rambus, Inc. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1413, 1426-1427, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 766

Statutory unfair competition claims brought against savings association for charging borrowers more for replacement hazard insurance than cost of insurance were not preempted by federal law limiting application of state laws to lending activities, because claims were based on violation of generally applicable contractual duties and only incidentally affected lending activities. Gibson v. World Sav. & Loan Assn. (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 1291, 1301-1302, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 19

Action based on false advertising under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq., brought against makers of over-the-counter dietary supplements, was not preempted by either Federal Trade Commission Act, 15 U.S.C.S. § 41 et seq., or Federal Food, Drug & Cosmetic Act, 21 U.S.C.S. § 301 et seq. Consumer Justice Ctr. v. Olympian Labs, Inc. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1056, 1059-1066, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 749

Claims brought against federally chartered savings and loan association under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq., based on defendant's charging preclosing interest on loan proceeds once proceeds were made available to borrower through escrow by wire or electronic transfer, were preempted by federal Home Owners' Loan Act, 12 U.S.C.S. § 1461 et seq. Washington Mut. Bank v. Superior Court (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 606, 621, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 765

Action brought under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. against hospital alleging that hospital had included anti-union expenses in annual Medicare cost reports in violation of federal law was preempted by federal law, which thoroughly occupies field with pervasive and complex regulatory scheme governing provider cost reporting and reimbursement. Congress of Cal. Seniors v. Catholic Healthcare W. (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 491, 508-509, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 655

Federal law did not preempt class action for violations of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. based on allegations that stock brokerage firm breached duty to customers by not executing their sell orders in fair and timely manner, but instead executing its own sell orders first in violation of federal law. Roskind v. Morgan Stanley Dean Witter (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 345, 352-354, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258

Action brought under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200 and 17500 by consumers of pre-paid phone cards against providers of phone services for alleged failure to disclose in advertising and packaging that charges would be rounded up to nearest full minute, were not barred by filed rate doctrine, which would bar suit for damages arising out of claims involving rates filed with FCC, because consumers' action challenged improper advertising practices, not rates; plaintiffs' remedies limited to injunctive relief, however, because disgorgement of profits from use of cards would constitute illegal rebate prohibited by filed rate doctrine. Day v. AT & T Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 325, 334-339, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 55

Neither 12 U.S.C.S. § 1461 et seq. (Home Owners Loan Act) nor related regulations (12 C.F.R. §§ 545.1, 545.2) preempts cause of action against savings association and its officers for unfair competition based on making loans to unqualified strawmen to maximize income and perpetuate slum conditions; however, allegation with regard to "points" charged in conflict with 12 U.S.C.S. § 1463(g), and portion of prayer seeking foreclosure in conflict with 12 C.F.R. § 545.34, requiring that both be stricken. People v. Highland Fed. Sav. & Loan (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1692,

1708-1713, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 555

Action for injunctive relief to prevent violations of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200, 17500 and Civ. Code § 1770 (state unfair trade practices laws) in HMO's marketing of subscriptions and Medicare supplemental plans to Medicare-eligible individuals (elderly and disabled) not preempted by 42 U.S.C.S. § 1395mm or 42 C.F.R. § 417.223 (federal regulation of HMO activities in that area). Solorzano v. Superior Court (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1135, 1139-1149, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 161

Fact that one defendant was foreign government did not implicate any issue of federal supremacy, preclusion, or preemption on basis of foreign relations or foreign commerce sufficient to bar California action when anticompetitive conduct in question has direct, substantial, and reasonably foreseeable effect in California; California unfair competition and unfair trade practice laws neutral in their application. Amarel v. Connell (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 137, 144-150, 248 Cal. Rptr. 276

[3] Unfair Competition (Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200-17208)

Under "reasonable consumer" standard, plaintiffs stated cause of action for deceptive advertising under California unfair competition statute, Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq., when alleging that defendant's packaging implied that "fruit juice snacks" contained juice of those fruits shown on box, in light of box statements that product was made with "fruit juice and other all natural ingredients" and were "nutritious." Williams v. Gerber Products Co. (9th Cir. 2008) 523 F.3d 934, 939-940

Likelihood of confusion is applicable test both for California trademark infringement (Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 14320, 14330, 14335) and for whether use of similar business name constitutes unfair competition (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq.). Century 21 Real Estate Corp. v. Sandlin (9th Cir. 1988) 846 F.2d 1175, 1180 ; see In re Marriage of Shelton (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 811, 814-815, 173 Cal. Rptr. 629 (unfair competition)

General practice of "blind bidding" (bidding for right to exhibit movie without first viewing it) not prohibited in California; "blind bidding" of movie that was in stage of production unsuitable for screening did not constitute unfair trade practice under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200. Orion Pictures Distribution v. Syufy Enters. (9th Cir. 1987) 829 F.2d 946, 949

Plaintiff may not recover under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq., if some other provision of law specifically legalizes challenged conduct, while court is not precluded from finding that challenged conduct is unfair under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 merely because Legislature has failed to make conduct illegal. Cel-Tech Commc'ns, Inc. v. Los Angeles Cellular Tel. Co. (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 163, 184, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548, 973 P.2d 527

When plaintiff claims to have suffered injury from direct competitor's "unfair" act or practice, as that term is defined for purposes of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200, conduct is "unfair" if threatening incipient violation of antitrust law, or violating policy or spirit of antitrust law because effects are comparable to or same as violation of antitrust law, or otherwise significantly threatening or harming competition. Cel-Tech Commc'ns, Inc. v. Los Angeles Cellular Tel. Co. (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 163, 187, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548, 973 P.2d 527

Medical center did not engage in fraudulent conduct actionable under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 when billing insured patients at full amount for health care not covered by patient's insurance, without notifying patient of discount voluntarily offered by medical provider if bill was paid within 30 to 60 days. Buller v. Sutter Health (2008)160 Cal. App. 4th 981, 988, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 47

Although de minimus injury might occur to some consumers, mortgage lender's calculation of interest payments based on average 30.4 day month was not actionable as unfair under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 when consistent with national lender practices designed to foster consumer loan availability. Puentes v. Wells Fargo Home Mortgage, Inc. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 638, 648-651, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 903

Cell phone purchasers suffered no actual injury and thus had no standing to sue phone vendor under unfair competition law for selling cell phone insurance without license, even when vendor collected commission on sales from insurer; plaintiffs did not allege they paid more for insurance due to commission, or that insurance could have been obtained for lower price from licensed agent. Peterson v. Cellco Partnership (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 1583, 1590-1591, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 316

Although seller of wheel and tire service coverage was unlicensed as insurer in California, plaintiff consumer suffered no injury caused by unlicensed status for purposes of prosecuting unfair competition action when contract was still enforceable by plaintiff, he had not had claim denied, and he did not pay more for contract than it was worth. Medina v. Safe-Guard Products, Internat., Inc. (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 105, 112-115, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 672

Plaintiffs asserting that defendant's failure to provide complete tenant screening reports resulted in denial of residential tenant applications lacked standing to bring action under unfair competition statute when evidence indicated that applications would have been denied even if reports had been complete; as such, plaintiffs had suffered no actual injury. Trujillo v. First American Registry, Inc. (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 628, 639, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 732

Automobile manufacturer's failure to warn consumers about engine defect that did not cause malfunctions until after expiration of three-year express warranty period was not deceptive or unfair practice actionable under unfair competition statute. Daugherty v. American Honda Motor Co., Inc. (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 824, 838-839, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 118

Customer had alleged sufficient facts to support cause of action for unfair competition against truck rental company when alleging that company charged $20 "refueling fee," plus $2 per gallon, when customer returned truck with less gasoline than when rented, even though company did not actually refuel trucks when they were returned, but merely rented them to next customer with whatever amount was left in tank by previous customer, and customer effectively had to return truck with more fuel than when rented to ensure avoidance of fees. Aron v. U-Haul Co. of California (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 796, 804-807, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 555

California Milk Producers Advisory Board is public entity not susceptible to suit under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. People for Ethical Treatmentof Animals, Inc. v. California Milk Producers Advisory Bd. (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 871, 878-879, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 900

Representations that satellite television signal would deliver "crystal clear video" and "CD quality sound" were not factual representations that would, if false, support liability under False Advertising Act or unfair competition statute. Consumer Advocates v. Echostar Satellite Corp. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1351, 1361, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 22

Unfair competition statute, Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq., may apply if employer is guilty of age discrimination under Fair Employment and Housing Act, Gov. Code § 12900 et seq., at least if only injunctive relief is sought under unfair competition statute. Herr v. Nestl'e U.S.A., Inc. (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 779, 782, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 477

Failure of law firm to register as corporation with State Bar, even though it holds itself out as "law corporation," does not in and of itself warrant private remedies, such as disgorgement of legal fees under unfair competition statute, in action brought by clients who have not shown reliance on corporate status in seeking legal services or any other injury by virtue of firm's failure to register. Olson v. Cohen (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 1209, 1214-1216, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 620

Hospital adequately pleaded action under unfair competition statute against health care service plan for withholding payment for services rendered to plan members in alleged violation of Knox-Keene Health Care Service Plan Act (Health & Saf. Code § 1340 et seq.). Coast Plaza Doctors Hosp. v. UHP Healthcare (2002) 105 Cal. App. 4th 693, 703-705, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 650

Decision of large supermarket chain to keep former store empty to prevent competitors from leasing space and competing with newer store nearby was not actionable as unfair business conduct under unfair competition statute, even though keeping former site empty may have been contributing to urban blight at shopping mall in which former store was located. Gregory v. Albertson's, Inc. (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 845, 854-857, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 389

Hotel's practice of charging mandatory service charge for room service, but not telling patrons that charge went to servers, was neither unfair nor deceptive under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. Searle v. Wyndham Int'l, Inc. (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 1327, 1334-1335, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 231

Mortgage loan servicing company's practice of passing modest cost of performing property inspections to delinquent borrowers was not unlawful, unfair, or deceptive under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. Walker v. Countrywide Home Loans, Inc. (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 1158, 1170-1178, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 79

Conduct determined not to be unreasonable restraint of trade under Cartwright Act could not support cause of action under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. Chavez v. Whirlpool Corp. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 363, 374-375, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 175

Appellants stated cause of action under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. by alleging that insurance company violated Civ. Code § 1457 by transferring contractual obligations under insurance policies to another insurance company without obtaining policyholders' consent. AICCO, Inc. v. Ins. Co. of N. Am. (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 579, 588-589, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359

Statutory action for unfair competition is not barred by pending action brought under False Claims Act (Gov. Code § 12650 et seq.); provision of False Claims Act barring "related action based on the facts underlying the pending action" applies only to subsequent qui tam actions brought under False Claims Act. Rothschild v. Tyco Int'l (US), Inc. (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 488, 499-500, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 721

Former Civ. Code § 1936(m)(2) (now see Civ. Code § 1936(n)(2)), which permits rental car companies to impose charges for optional services if car renter knows that charge may be avoided, provided rental car company with "safe harbor" from claims under unfair competition statute based on imposition of refueling surcharge and amount of surcharge; however, Civ. Code § 1936 did not protect company from claim under unfair competition statute that company unfairly or fraudulently advised customers of fuel service surcharge. Schnall v. Hertz Corp. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1144, 1156, 1162, 1170, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 439 ; see also Shvarts v. Budget Group, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1153, 1159-1160, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 722 (agreeing with Schnall analysis, but rejecting fraud claim because amount of refueling surcharge was clearly printed on first page of rental agreement)

Plaintiff car dealership was not entitled to recover against wholesale floor plan lender under Unfair Competition statute for defendant's use of interest calculation method that was based on 360-day year, because evidence of plaintiff's course of dealings with defendant and widespread industry use of practice demonstrated that plaintiff knew of and expected defendant to use that interest calculation method. South Bay Chevrolet v. General Motors Acceptance Corp. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 861, 878-890, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 301

Practice of clinical medical laboratory in negotiating discounts for physicians' private-pay patients did not constitute unfair competition, because practice was not injurious to consumers, there was no serious risk that physicians would choose laboratory for reasons other than quality of its work, and under state regulations, Medi-Cal controlled amount it would pay and was not at disadvantage by not being offered similar discounts. People v. Duz-Mor Diagnostic Lab., Inc. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 654, 662-663, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 419

Trial court injunction ordering bank to lower its service fee for deposited items returned constituted abuse of court's discretion to enjoin unfair competition under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq., because regulation of fees charged by federally chartered banks is more appropriately left to Comptroller of Currency. California Grocers Ass'n v. Bank of Am. (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 205, 218-219, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 396

Injunction under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 against enforcement of health maintenance organization (HMO) plan provision requiring member to reimburse HMO for cost of medical services provided to member from judgment or settlement recovered by member against third party not properly based on alleged violations of provisions of Health & Safety Code § 1340 et seq. (Knox-Keene Health Care Service Plan Act), because Act's provisions did not define unlawful acts but merely constituted guidelines governing the exercise of Department of Corporation's regulatory power over HMO's. Samura v. Kaiser Found. Health Plan, Inc. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1284, 1300-1302, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20

No cause of action for damages and injunctive relief could be stated under Civ. Code § 1670.5 based on unconscionability of contract term; but if term was unconscionable, injunctive relief could be awarded under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203 on ground that imposition of offending term constituted unfair business practice. Shadoan v. World Sav. & Loan Assn. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 97, 101, 268 Cal. Rptr. 207

Demurrer properly sustained to complaint challenging prepayment penalty as unconscionable and unfair business practice when lack of availability of financing without offending term, and thus lack of bargaining power, was pleaded as conclusion and without facts; nor was prepayment penalty oppressive or unreasonably favorable to defendant. Shadoan v. World Sav. & Loan Assn. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 97, 103-106, 268 Cal. Rptr. 207

Since Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Cos. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 305-313 , abolished third party's private right of action for unfair claims settlement practices under Ins. Code § 790.03(h), third party has no cause of action under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200. Safeco Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1990) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1491, 1493-1494, 265 Cal. Rptr. 585

Eviction service that cloaked itself with aura of expertise and provided more than clerical services by assisting clients in advancing their legal rights, engaged in unauthorized practice of law (Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6125, 6126), and thus was guilty of unfair competition and subject to penalty under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17206. People v. Landlords Prof'l Servs., Inc. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1599, 1608-1610, 264 Cal. Rptr. 548

Employer's practice of conditioning acceptance of offers of employment on prospective employee's successful completion of physical examination that includes drug and alcohol testing not violative of Cal. Const. art. I, § 1, or 2 Cal. Code Reg. § 7294.0(b)(3), and thus not unfair business practice. Wilkinson v. Times Mirror Corp. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1034, 1052-1053, 264 Cal. Rptr. 194

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 designed to protect consumers as well as competitors. People v. Dollar Rent-A-Car Sys., Inc. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 119, 129, 259 Cal. Rptr. 191

Practice of charging "retail repair rate" to renter when rental company only paid wholesale repair rate, without explanation or substantiation, was deceptive business practice within meaning of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200. People v. Dollar Rent-A-Car Sys., Inc. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 119, 129-130, 259 Cal. Rptr. 191

Fact that consumer did not read contract not relevant when ambiguous written contracts and deceptive oral misrepresentations of sales representatives constituted deceptive business practice within meaning of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200. People v. Dollar Rent-A-Car Sys., Inc. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 119, 131, 259 Cal. Rptr. 191

Ambiguous written contracts and misleading oral sales presentations that failed to inform renter that collision damage waiver was not insurance and was voided by renter's negligence, was deceptive business practice. People v. Dollar Rent-A-Car Sys., Inc. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 119, 130-131, 259 Cal. Rptr. 191

Majority stockholder and chief executive officer who was responsible for ambiguous written contracts and misleading presentations of selling agents was personally liable for violations of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200, 17500. People v. Dollar Rent-A-Car Sys., Inc. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 119, 132, 259 Cal. Rptr. 191

Hospital's change from "open staff" to exclusive contract with one bypass surgeon not unfair competition within meaning of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200; no fraud or unfair business practice was involved when change was not made for anticompetitive purposes. Redding v. St. Francis Med. Ctr. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 98, 107, 255 Cal. Rptr. 806

Because borrower has no duty to disclose known defects at trustee's sale, lender acquiring property at foreclosure does not have cause of action against builder/borrower under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 (unfair and deceptive practices) based on known construction defects. Sumitomo Bank v. Taurus Developers, Inc. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 211, 222-223, 229 Cal. Rptr. 719

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. (unfair competition) and Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq. (false advertising) not applicable to political election campaign practices. O'Connor v. Superior Court (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 1013, 1019-1020, 223 Cal. Rptr. 357

Use of similar alphanumeric telephone number that is likely to confuse potential customers as to source of services was possible basis of unfair competition claim. Cytanovich Reading Ctr. v. Reading Game (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 107, 114, 208 Cal. Rptr. 412

Laches available defense in action to enjoin unfair competition based on confusion of source of goods or services. Tustin Cmty. Hosp., Inc. v. Santa Ana Cmty. Hosp. Ass'n (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 889, 894, 153 Cal. Rptr. 76 ; McCord Co. v. Plotnick (1951) 108 Cal. App. 2d 392, 395-396, 239 P.2d 32

[4] Unfair Practices Act (Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17000-17101)

Presumption of unlawful purpose created by evidence of sales below average total cost plus proof of injury to competition; presumption allows fact-finder to infer unlawful intent without regard to particular market conditions. William Inglis & Sons, Inc. v. Continental Baking (9th Cir. 1991) 942 F.2d 1332, 1338

In order to demonstrate violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17043 (sales below cost) or Bus. & Prof. Code § 17044 (low cost leader), plaintiff must show that defendant acted purposely, that is, with desire to injure competitor or destroy competition; it is insufficient that defendant may have acted with knowledge that competitors may be injured by its actions. Cel-Tech Commc'ns, Inc. v. Los Angeles Cellular Tel. Co. (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 163, 174-178, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548, 973 P.2d 527

Catholic hospital's failure voluntarily to offer information concerning pregnancy prevention, including fact that "morning after pill" would have to be administered within 72 hours after intercourse to be effective, to rape victim treated in its emergency room did not constitute to unfair, dishonest, deceptive, destructive, fraudulent, or discriminatory practice. Brownfield v. Daniel Freeman Marina Hosp. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 405, 411, 256 Cal. Rptr. 240

When third party brought action against insured for violations of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17043 (sales below cost) and later obtained judgment of treble damages under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17082, insured's liability for judgment covered under insurer's business liability policy when insured's conduct was intentional but without malice; award of treble damages under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17082 covered under policy because it is not exemplary but constitutes additional compensation. California Shoppers, Inc. v. Royal Globe Ins. Co. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 1, 31-34, 221 Cal. Rptr. 171 ; but see Turnbull & Turnbull v. ARA Transp., Inc. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 811, 827, 268 Cal. Rptr. 856 (barring plaintiff's election between punitive damages and trebled damages in part because Bus. & Prof. Code § 17082 and Civ. Code § 3294 both serve punitive purpose)

Evidentiary presumption under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17071 on proof of certain facts did not prevent sustaining of general demurrer. Hladek v. City of Merced (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 585, 591 n.3, 138 Cal. Rptr. 194

Waiver of bond requirement for preliminary injunction under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17081 proper only in action based on violation of Unfair Practices Act. Federal Automotive Servs. v. Lane Buick Co. (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 689, 693-695

People are proper party plaintiff in action based on violation of Unfair Practices Act. People v. Part (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 653, 654

Lender practice of designating those foreclosure trustees who agree to charge trustee fee only in amount that federal government will reimburse lender for foreclosure sale on FHA or VA secured loans, and allowing trustee to charge maximum fee allowed by state law on other loan foreclosures, violates Unfair Business Practices Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17000 et seq.). *71 Ops. B. Restraints Of Trade

[1] Boycotts

Vertical restraint and boycott are labels for different forms of antitrust analysis, one focusing on practices and other on broader question of market structure. Redwood Theaters, Inc. v. Festival Enters., Inc. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 687, 703, 248 Cal. Rptr. 189

In testing alleged exclusive-dealing agreements of competing exhibitor with each of three distributors as boycotts that tended to cut off plaintiff's access to first-run films of those distributors, evidence of predatory intent is necessary for boycott to be illegal per se. Redwood Theaters, Inc. v. Festival Enters., Inc. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 687, 702-703, 248 Cal. Rptr. 189

[2] Class Actions

Variance in purchase prices paid by class members is not obstacle to certification; court is empowered to divide class into subclasses. Occidental Land, Inc. v. Superior Court (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 355, 360 n.3, 134 Cal. Rptr. 388, 556 P.2d 750 ; MacManus v. A. E. Realty Partners (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1106, 1117, 241 Cal. Rptr. 315

Requisite community of interest for certification is established if every member of class would not be required to litigate numerous and substantial questions to determine his or her right to recover subsequent to rendering of any class judgment in plaintiffs' favor on common issues. Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 809, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964 ; MacManus v. A. E. Realty Partners (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1106, 1116-1117, 241 Cal. Rptr. 315

Certification is not to be denied because case involves construction or coercive effect of standardized provisions in defendant's contracts, there were many individual transactions, and each plaintiff may have had different understanding of contract provisions; individual understanding is not as important as vindication of purpose of unfair trade laws. MacManus v. A. E. Realty Partners (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1106, 1115-1116, 241 Cal. Rptr. 315

For certification of class of indirect purchasers in action alleging price fixing conspiracy, damages are presumed to flow from per se nature of offense; each class member is not required to have purchased every product fixed in price. B. W. I. Custom Kitchen v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1341, 1348-1355, 235 Cal. Rptr. 228

[3] Conspiracy

Under Cartwright Act, when conduct is tested by rule of reason, plaintiff must show that either purpose or effect of conspiracy is illegal restraint. Dimidowich v. Bell & Howell (9th Cir. 1986) 803 F.2d 1473, 1483

Simultaneous refusals to deal are consistent with independent action even when each refusing party is aware of the other's refusal. Dimidowich v. Bell & Howell (9th Cir. 1986) 803 F.2d 1473, 1479

Concerted refusals to deal are tested by rule of reason when economic impact of challenged practice is not obvious. Dimidowich v. Bell & Howell (9th Cir. 1986) 803 F.2d 1473, 1480-1483

Conspiracy in violation of Cartwright Act not alleged if manufacturer announced minimum resale prices for its products and that it would refuse to sell to retailers who did not comply, and manufacturer took steps to monitor which retailers were in compliance with pricing policy. Chavez v. Whirlpool Corp. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 363, 373, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 175

[4] Contractual Restraints on Former Employees

Former employer may restrain by contract only that conduct of former employee which would have been subject to judicial restraint absent contract. Hollingsworth Solderless Terminal Co. v. Turley (9th Cir. 1980) 622 F.2d 1324, 1338

Injunction was overbroad in prohibiting former attorney employee of consulting firm from rendering legal services, which firm was not licensed to do, to clients of firm. Matull & Assocs. v. Cloutier (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1049, 1055-1056, 240 Cal. Rptr. 211

Former employee who was officer and director of corporate employer, and was officer of firm that sold its accounts to corporate employer and signatory of buy-sell agreement, was bound by broad noncompetition clause in buy-sell agreement. Matull & Assocs. v. Cloutier (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1049, 1054-1055, 240 Cal. Rptr. 211

Contract prohibiting solicitation of employer's customers may permissibly prohibit more than law of marketplace otherwise would prohibit. Loral Corp. v. Moyes (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 268, 276-280, 219 Cal. Rptr. 836

[5] Covenants Not to Compete

Covenant not to compete, even one with temporal and geographic limitations, after termination of franchise term is unenforceable under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600, which applies even though franchise agreement that provides it will be governed by law of another state. Scott v. Snelling and Snelling, Inc. (N.D. Cal. 1990) 732 F. Supp. 1034, 1045-1046

Covenant not to compete contained in warehouse management partnership agreement was void under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600; covenant sought to prevent partner from designing or building any other warehouse, but partnership agreement also specified that partnership was limited in scope to listed warehouse, that partners could engage separately in competing real estate activities, and that partners had no obligation to refer any business opportunity to partnership. Kelton v. Stravinski (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 941, 946-947, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 877

Jury instruction requested by plaintiff was not erroneous because it failed to define competition; plaintiff is not required to educate jury regarding defenses. Fleming v. Ray-Suzuki, Inc. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 574, 583, 275 Cal. Rptr. 150

[6] Distributorships

Agreement between manufacturer and distributor to establish exclusive distributorship is not, of itself, violation of antitrust laws, and in most circumstances, does not adversely affect competition in market; no antitrust violation occurs unless agreement is intended to or actually does harmcompetition in relevant market. Rutman Wine Co. v. E. & J. Gallo Winery (9th Cir. 1987) 829 F.2d 729, 735

Agreement between distributors to divide territories or customers is horizontal restraint and per se violation. Guild Wineries & Distilleries v. J. Sosnick & Son (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 627, 633, 162 Cal. Rptr. 87 ; but see Dimidowich v. Bell & Howell (9th Cir. 1986) 803 F.2d 1473, 1480-1483 (refusing to follow Guild Wineries & Distilleries v. J. Sosnick & Son (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 627, 162 Cal. Rptr. 87 , on ground that California Supreme court would apply rule of reason standard)

[7] Exclusive Dealing Arrangements

Contract exclusively entitling franchisor of employees' cafeteria operation to provide coffee sold in cafeteria, under which employer foreclosed franchisee operator of cafeteria from providing coffee, had de minimis impact on relevant market and was not unreasonable restraint on trade. Kim v. Servosnax, Inc. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1346, 1361, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 422

Vertical restraints on customers and territory are tested by rule of reason and require threshold inquiry into defendants' market power (share); 16 percent market share is below threshold for scrutiny; market shares of separate distributors cannot be aggregated for threshold determination unless there is evidence or allegation of collusion between them. Redwood Theatres, Inc. v. Festival Enterprises, Inc. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 687, 704-705, 248 Cal. Rptr. 189 (citing Department of Justice's Vertical Restraint Guidelines, as published January 23, 1985)

[8] Exhaustion of Administrative Review

If basis of Cartwright claim is quasi-judicial decision, such as decision of review committee to deny physician hospital privileges, state antitrust action is barred unless and until quasi-judicial decision has been overturned by grant of writ of mandate. Mir v. Little Co. of Mary Hosp. (9th Cir. 1988) 844 F.2d 646, 651 (considering pendent state claim); Westlake Community Hosp. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 465, 484, 131 Cal. Rptr. 90, 551 P.2d 410

[9] Governmental Immunity

Cities are not "persons" within meaning of Bus. & Prof. Code § 16702 and are not subject to suit under Cartwright Act. Penn v. City of San Diego (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 636, 642-643, 233 Cal. Rptr. 514 ; People ex rel. Freitas v. City and County of San Francisco (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 913, 921, 155 Cal. Rptr. 319

[10] Multiple Listing Services

Multiple listing service is not required to be open to members of public who do not hold real estate licenses. Derish v. San Mateo-Burlingame Bd. of Realtors (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 534, 540-542, 186 Cal. Rptr. 390

Multiple listing service's refusal to accept exclusive agency listings and open listings is impermissible restraint. People v. National Ass'n of Realtors (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 459, 477-479, 174 Cal. Rptr. 728

Rule of reason test applied to claim that listing service must be available on reasonable fee basis; injury to plaintiff broker was insufficient, impaired market or monopoly is required. Feldman v. Sacramento Bd. of Realtors, Inc. (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 739, 742-745, 747-748, 174 Cal. Rptr. 231

[11] Medical and Dental Plans

Question of fact was presented regarding whether plan provision requiring provider to charge same price to plan member as to patient who is not plan member was restraint of trade, but summary judgment in favor of plan was proper because plan members were unable to show any injury. Reynolds v. California Dental Serv. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 590, 604-605, 246 Cal. Rptr. 331

Provision in dental plan prohibiting dentist from waiving patient's copayment did not constitute price fixing, nor create any anticompetitive effect. Reynolds v. California Dental Serv. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 590, 601-603, 246 Cal. Rptr. 331

Usual fee requirement of most plans is not fixing prices at specific level, and thus, is not plainly anticompetitive. Reynolds v. California Dental Serv. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 590, 598, 246 Cal. Rptr. 331

Alleged anticompetitive affects of health care plans provisions are to be tested by the rule of reason. Reynolds v. California Dental Serv. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 590, 596-600, 246 Cal. Rptr. 331

[12] Preemption

No conflict exists between Pub. Util. Code § 21690.8 grant of authority to fix prices and Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act (15 U.S.C.S. §§ 751-760) as long as price fixed under authority of Pub. Util. Code § 21690.8 does not exceed federal guideline. California Aviation, Inc. v. City of Santa Monica (9th Cir. 1986) 806 F.2d 905, 908-909

Fact that one defendant-buyer was foreign government did not implicate any issue of federal supremacy, preclusion, or preemption on basis of foreign relations or foreign commerce sufficient to bar California action when anticompetitive conduct in question has direct, substantial, and reasonably foreseeable effect in California; California antitrust and unfair trade laws neutral in their application. Amarel v. Connell (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 137, 144-150, 248 Cal. Rptr. 276

[13] Price Fixing

Under Cartwright Act, economic reasonableness of prices not determinative; issue is whether prices are artificially maintained at uniform level, whether "reasonable" or not. Cellular Plus, Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1224, 1246, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 308

[14] Prohibited Combinations

Plaintiffs sufficiently pleaded combination in restraint of trade when alleging that title to property conveyed by tax deed had become unmarketable incounty as result of efforts of defendants to convince public that title insurance is necessity whenever real property is purchased, and conspiracy among only three title insurers in county to refuse to insure title to tax-defaulted property. Quelimane Co. v. Stewart Title Guaranty Co. (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 26, 48-51, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 709, 960 P.2d 513

Two entities necessary for prohibited combination under 15 U.S.C.S. § 1; Bus. & Prof. Code § 16720 are defendant and plaintiff/victim; cause of action stated against real estate developer and escrow subsidiary for developer-seller's allegedly requiring plaintiff-buyers to use escrow services of its subsidiary. MacManus v. A. E. Realty Partners (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1106, 1110-1112, 241 Cal. Rptr. 315 (distinguishing Copperweld Corp. v. Independence Tube Corp. (1984) 467 U.S. 752, 759-768, 104 S. Ct. 2731, 81 L. Ed. 2d 628)

[15] Proof of Injury

No injury shown under either federal or California law by alleged conspiracy to fix electrical construction contract prices when price paid by plaintiff was fixed by arbitrator as fair in contract litigation between parties. Kaiser Cement Corp. v. Fischbach and Moore, Inc. (9th Cir. 1986) 793 F.2d 1100, 1104-1105

Poll taken by expert economist sufficient to establish that plaintiff's share of market would be greater but for defendant's activities. Dolphin Tours, Inc. v. Pacifico Creative Serv., Inc. (9th Cir. 1985) 773 F.2d 1506, 1510

Antitrust laws designed to provide competitors just and equal opportunity to compete, and to prohibit unreasonable restraints on entrepreneurs' freedom to enter new markets or to expand market share. Redwood Theatres, Inc. v. Festival Enterprises, Inc. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 687, 708-710, 248 Cal. Rptr. 189

Question of fact presented regarding whether plan provision requiring provider to charge same price to plan member as to patient who is not plan member was restraint of trade, but summary judgment in favor of plan proper because plan members unable to show any injury. Reynolds v. California Dental Serv. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 590, 604-605, 246 Cal. Rptr. 331

[16] Relevant Market

Although interchangeability of products is usually considered in defining market, some products, such as popular first-run movies, are not substitutable. Redwood Theatres, Inc. v. Festival Enterprises, Inc. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 687, 705-707, 248 Cal. Rptr. 189

Definition of relevant market is question of law and fact often necessary to resolution of antitrust claim. Corwin v. Los Angeles Newspaper Serv. Bureau, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 842, 855, 94 Cal. Rptr. 785, 484 P.2d 953

Test under rule of reason standard is whether anticompetitive effects of challenged restraint outweigh procompetitive ones. Dimidowich v. Bell & Howell (9th Cir. 1986) 803 F.2d 1473, 1484 (diversity case applying California law, and citing Gianelli Distributing Co. v. Beck & Co. (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 1020, 1048, 219 Cal. Rptr. 203)

Per se standard usually not applied until courts have considerable experience with business relationship involved. Reynolds v. California Dental Serv. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 590, 597-598, 246 Cal. Rptr. 331

Alleged anticompetitive affects of health care plans provisions tested by rule of reason; integrated plan (as defined by Federal Trade Commission) judged under rule of reason standard. Reynolds v. California Dental Serv. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 590, 597, 246 Cal. Rptr. 331

Practices that are designed to increase economic efficiency and render markets more, rather than less, competitive are judged by rule of reason standard. Reynolds v. California Dental Serv. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 590, 597, 246 Cal. Rptr. 331

Fact that California Legislature enacted Bus. & Prof. Code § 16770(g) and (h) indicates intention to permit provider-controlled medical plans despite their potential for competitive harm; thus, rule of reason applicable to test practices of those plans. Reynolds v. California Dental Serv. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 590, 596-597, 599-600, 246 Cal. Rptr. 331

[17] Summary Judgment Rarely Proper

Summary judgment for defendant disfavored in antitrust matters, in which motive and intent play leading roles and proof is largely in hands of alleged conspirators and hostile witnesses, credibility and weight of whose testimony can be properly determined only when opportunity to cross-examine is present. Poller v. Columbia Broadcasting System (1962) 368 U.S. 464, 473, 82 S. Ct. 486, 7 L. Ed. 2d 458 ; Corwin v. Los Angeles Newspaper Serv. Bureau, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 842, 852, 94 Cal. Rptr. 785, 484 P.2d 953

Whether or not particular restraint of trade is reasonable is question of fact to be determined at trial. Corwin v. Los Angeles Newspaper Serv. Bureau, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 842, 855, 94 Cal. Rptr. 785, 484 P.2d 953

Summary judgment disfavored in complex antitrust litigation if extensive factual determinations must be made concerning intent and motive; however, summary judgment is appropriate in absence of any significant probative evidence tending to support complaint. Three Movies of Tarzana v. Pacific Theatres, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 828 F.2d 1395, 1398

When defendants' explanations for refusal to deal are not entirely convincing and both defendants' admit agreement to refuse to deal with plaintiff was discussed, summary judgment for defendants improper. Dimidowich v. Bell & Howell (9th Cir. 1986) 803 F.2d 1473, 1479-1480, 1483-1484

Summary judgment for defendants was error after trial court denied plaintiff's motion to compel discovery of evidence that was necessary to establish existence of alleged exclusive dealing agreements; whether agreements resulted in unreasonable restraint of trade was question of fact. Redwood Theatres, Inc. v. Festival Enterprises, Inc. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 687, 713-714, 248 Cal. Rptr. 189

[18] Tying Arrangements

Plaintiff manufactured homes dealer did not state cause of action for illegal tying arrangement between mobilehome park operator and other mobilehome dealers when evidence did not support allegations that potential tenants of park could only rent space in park if they purchased mobilehome from specified dealers. SC Manufactured Homes, Inc. v. Liebert (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 68, 87-89, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 73

Decision of automobile distributor to package custom floor mats with automobiles as standard equipment before sending vehicles to dealerships was notillegal tying arrangement under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16727. Lloyd Design Corp. v. Mercedes-Benz of North America, Inc. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 716, 725, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 185

Allegation that cable television company illegally tied sale of satellite channels to sale of broadcast channels and sale of premium channels to sale of both broadcast and satellite channels not preempted by Cable Television Consumer Protection and Competition Act of 1992 provision prohibiting states from regulating rates. Morrison v. Viacom, Inc. (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1514, 1527, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 544

Defendant's influence in market sufficient to establish illegal tying arrangement; elements to establish tying arrangement. MacManus v. A. E. Realty Partners (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 275, 285-286, 194 Cal. Rptr. 567

Privilege of nondisclosure attaches to trade secret. Evid. Code §§ 915, 1060-1063

[6] Protection of Trade Secrets Disclosed to Government Agency

Trade secret protection related to investigation of health effects of pesticides. Food & Agric. Code § 14022

Trade secret acquired through compliance with health emergency situation must be kept confidential by health officer. Health & Safety Code § 473

Information distributed by officials concerning treatment, recycling, and disposal of hazardous waste is required to protect trade secrets. Health & Safety Code §§ 25170, 25175

"Trade secret" defined and protected in Underground Storage of Hazardous Substances Chapter (Health & Safety Code § 25280 et seq.). Health & Safety Code § 25290

"Trade secret" defined and protected in Carpenter-Presley-Tanner Hazardous Substance Account Act (Health & Safety Code § 25300 et seq.). Health & Safety Code § 25358.2

Disclosure of trade secret acquired by state agent during inspection under food, drug, and cosmetic law is prohibited. Health & Safety Code § 110165

Disclosure of trade secret acquired by state agent under authority of California Hazardous Substances Act (Health & Safety Code § 108100 et seq.) is prohibited. Health & Safety Code § 108290

Trade secret protection is related to clean air standards and reports. Health & Safety Code §§ 39660, 43206

Disclosure of trade secrets revealed during employment safety inspections is prohibited. Lab. Code §§ 6322, 6396

Trade secret submitted as required by California Environmental Quality Act (Pub. Res. Code § 21000 et seq.) to public agency to apply for lease, permit, or other entitlements for use for proposed project, may not be disclosed by public agency. Pub. Res. Code § 21160

Trade secret presented by gas and electric utilities to Public Utilities Commission for forecasting purposes is protected. Pub. Res. Code § 25321

Trade secrets are not required to be presented at open meetings of county board of equalization. Rev. & Tax. Code § 1605.4

49-565 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 565.193

§ 565.193 Decisions

[1] Customer Lists

In context of particular terminated franchise relationship regarding temporary employment service agency, customer list was not trade secret under Civ. Code § 3426.1(d) because it was developed by franchisees through their own efforts, personal knowledge, and business contacts. Scott v. Snelling & Snelling, Inc. (N.D. Cal. 1990) 732 F. Supp. 1034, 1044-1045

Triable issue existed as to whether construction project binders generated by defendant while employed by plaintiff constituted protectable trade secrets; binders were more than just subcontractor contact lists and contained correspondences, descriptions, measurements, and detailed cost estimates for upcoming projects. San Jose Construction, Inc. v. S.B.C.C., Inc. (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 1528, 1538-1543, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 54

Civ. Code § 3426.1(d), defining trade secret, is inclusive and not exclusive, and hence does not exclude customer lists by its failure to include them. American Paper & Packaging Prods., Inc. v. Kirgan (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1318, 1323-1324, 228 Cal. Rptr. 713

[2] Determining Existence of Trade Secret

[a] Generally

Fact that product might disclose so-called secret is not determinative when there was sufficient evidence to support conclusion implied by verdict that plans and designs taken by employee/defendant were trade secrets under both common law and UTSA because plaintiff treated them as secrets and took reasonable steps to protect them. Vacco Indus., Inc. v. Van Den Berg (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 34, 50, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602

[b] Effect of Employment Agreement

Agreement between employer and employee defining trade secret is not decisive in determining whether court will so regard it. American Paper & Packaging Prods., Inc. v. Kirgan (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1318, 1325, 228 Cal. Rptr. 713

Employer-employee agreement defining "trade secret" was not necessarily binding on court; contractual restrictions on customer solicitation are more likely to be binding on former employee than contractual restrictions on nondisclosure. Loral Corp. v. Moyes (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 268, 275, 219 Cal. Rptr. 836

[c] No Trade Secret Found

Elements of employment counseling program are obvious to anyone who enrolled in program, generally known to public or other persons who can obtain economic value from them, and thus not trade secret. Self-Directed Placement Corp. v. Control Data Corp. (9th Cir. 1990) 908 F.2d 462, 465-466 (applying California law)

Scriptural materials of church are not trade secret because church alleged no competitive market advantage from maintaining their secrecy, but only religious harm; materials are spiritual, not commercial, and thus do not have independent economic value necessary under definition of Civ. Code § 3426.1(d). Religious Tech. Ctr. v. Wollersheim (9th Cir. 1986) 796 F.2d 1076, 1089-1091 (applying California law); but see Religious Tech. Ctr., Church of Scientology Int'l, Inc. v. Scott (9th Cir. 1989) 869 F.2d 1306, 1309-1310 (same case; second application for temporary restraining order on amended complaint alleging materials had economic value was not res judicata but had to be considered on merits)

Computer software "routines" were not trade secrets when software company failed to prove that these routines had independent economic value by showing how helpful these routines were when crafting competing software or demonstrating how much of defendant's software consisted of these routines. Yield Dynamics, Inc. v. TEA Systems Corp. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 547, 564-572, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1

Fact that former employees (traffic reporters) possessed characteristics specified by former employer's customer (a radio station) did not support enforcement of noncompetition clause against former employees because personal characteristics of employees are not "trade secrets" of former employer. Metro Traffic Control, Inc. v. Shadow Traffic Network (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 853, 861-862, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 573

Information regarding radio station's preferences and requirements regarding traffic reporters was not trade secret of traffic reporting service that formerly employed reporters because information was available directly from radio station to anyone contracting with station. Metro Traffic Control, Inc. v. Shadow Traffic Network (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 853, 863, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 573

[3] Federal Preemption

Defense of federal preemption by copyright law is jurisdictional and may be raised for first time on appeal. Balboa Ins. Co. v. Trans Global Equities (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1327, 1338-1339, 1344-1345, 267 Cal. Rptr. 787 ; see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1338(a)

Unauthorized use of computer software enhancements and support system, confidential information, and customer lists involves four species of unfair competition: breach of confidence, breach of fiduciary duty, trade secrets, and common law misappropriation, only last of which is preempted by federal copyright law because it does not require extra element of relationship between unauthorized user and owner of information. Balboa Ins. Co. v. Trans Global Equities (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1327, 1344-1345, 1350-1353, 267 Cal. Rptr. 787

[4] Injunctive Relief

Preliminary injunction against former employee is appropriate if former employee has already solicited customers on protected customer list and persuaded largest customer to contract with new employer, former employer is likely to prevail on merits, and likelihood of continuing harm to former employer in interim is strong. American Credit Indem. Co. v. Sacks (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 622, 637-638, 262 Cal. Rptr. 92

Under Civ. Code § 3426.2(a), injunction lasts only as long as is necessary to eliminate commercial advantage that person would obtain through misappropriation of trade secret and terminates when what once might have been trade secret becomes known to good faith competitors; information generally known in trade and already used by good faith competitors is not protectable trade secret and injunction does not issue to restrain its use. AmericanPaper & Packaging Prods., Inc. v. Kirgan (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1318, 1326, 228 Cal. Rptr. 713

[5] Uniform Trade Secrets Act

Legislative intent in enacting Uniform Trade Secrets Act (UTSA), Civ. Code §§ 3426, 3426.10, was to codify better-reasoned cases concerning remedies for trade secret misappropriation and thus provide for more uniform application in area of misappropriation through improper means of trade secrets. American Paper & Packaging Prods., Inc. v. Kirgan (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1318, 1324, 228 Cal. Rptr. 713

[1] Conspiracy to Interfere

Contracting party is not liable in tort for conspiracy to interfere with its own contract. Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 507-508, 521 & n.10 (disapproving prior court of appeal cases to contrary)

[2] Defenses

Defense of justification, or privilege, depends on balancing of importance, social and private, of objective advanced by interference against importance of interest interfered with, considering all circumstances including nature of actor's conduct and relationship of parties. Environmental Planning & Inf. Council v. Superior Court (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 188, 193-194, 203 Cal. Rptr. 127, 680 P.2d 1086 ; Greenberg v. Hollywood Turf Club (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 968, 977, 86 Cal. Rptr. 885

City was not liable for intentional or negligent interference with economic relationships based on misrepresentations of city's employees because immunity under Gov. Code § 818.8 applied. Los Angeles Equestrian Ctr., Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 432, 449-450, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 313

Fact that utility merger required regulatory approval did not entitle competitor to interfere other than by making its objections in context of regulatory process; regulatory approvals are merely condition precedent like any other. SCEcorp v. Superior Court (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 673, 678-683, 681, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 372

Even if credit report causes harm, truth of report is complete defense to causes of action for defamation, interference with prospective economic advantage, injurious falsehood, or intentional infliction of emotional distress. Francis v. Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 535, 539-541, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 361

First Amendment protection is defense to injunction against signs and picketing and claim of intentional interference with economic advantage where there is no claim of untrue statements Paradise Hills Assocs. v. Procel (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1528, 1542-1545, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 514 (signs, pickets regarding construction defects in home defendant purchased from plaintiff)

Summary judgment for defendant was proper when there was no factual question presented that directors' actions were undertaken in best interest of bank. Aalgaard v. Merchants Nat'l Bank, Inc. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 674, 683-686, 274 Cal. Rptr. 81

Defense of confidential relationship extends to attorney in rendering advice to client to breach contract. Schick v. Bach (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1321, 1329, 238 Cal. Rptr. 902

Service station operator's claims of violation of covenant of good faith, fraud, and interference with prospective advantage arising from oil company's failure to maintain underlying ground lease was preempted by federal Petroleum Marketing Practices Act (15 U.S.C.S. § 2806(a)). Mobil Oil Corp. v. Superior Court (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 485, 488-490, 234 Cal. Rptr. 482

Existence of privilege is question of fact. Gianelli Distrib. Co. v. Beck & Co. (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 1020, 1054-1057, 219 Cal. Rptr. 203

Landlord's refusal to consent to tenant's sublease and subsequent negotiation of new lease on terms identical to that of sublease does not constitute cause of action for interference with contract relationship, when tenant's execution of sublease without landlord's written consent broke lease and entitled landlord to unilaterally sever landlord-tenant relationship. Hamilton v. Dixon (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 1004, 1011-1013, 214 Cal. Rptr. 639

[3] Intentional Interference

[a] With Contractual Relationship

To state cause of action, plaintiff need not allege that some pecuniary or economic benefit accrued to defendant that formerly was plaintiff's. McCalden v. California Library Ass'n (9th Cir. 1991) 919 F.2d 538, 543 (applying California law)

Airline could validly enforce tariff with holders of frequent flyer coupons and refuse to accept "brokered" coupons, but evidence of damages was insufficient to sustain summary judgment or injunction against broker of frequent flyer coupons. Transworld Airlines v. American Coupon Exch. (9th Cir. 1991) 913 F.2d 676, 691-693, 698

Jury instruction that culpable intent is deemed to exist if defendant knew that interference with plaintiff's contract with third party was substantially certain to result from its conduct was erroneous; proper instruction was that jury might infer culpable intent from conduct substantially certain to interfere with contract. Seaman's Direct Buying Serv., Inc. v. Standard Oil Co. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 752, 767, 206 Cal. Rptr. 354, 686 P.2d 1158

Plaintiff is entitled to bring action for inducing breach of contract by third party, or for rendering plaintiff's own performance more difficult, when interference is by unlawful means or by means lawful but without sufficient justification. Lipman v. Brisbane Elementary Sch. Dist. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 224, 232, 11 Cal. Rptr. 97, 359 P.2d 465 ; Imperial Ice Co. v. Rossier (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 33, 35-36, 112 P.2d 631

Injury to plaintiff's business employee by drunk driver was insufficient basis for cause of action for intentional interference with contractual relations because defendant's conduct was not "calculated to disrupt" employer-employee relationship. Herrick v. Superior Court (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 787, 790-792, 233 Cal. Rptr. 675

Question whether defendant's conduct caused third party to break contract with plaintiff was one of fact. Gianelli Distrib. Co. v. Beck & Co. (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 1020, 1054 n. 12, 1057, 219 Cal. Rptr. 203

Failure to instruct jury that proof of valid and existing contract was necessary to establish interference with contractual relations was harmless error due to overwhelming evidence of existence of contract; recovery for interference with contractual relations is not barred because contract is voidable. Shamblin v. Berge (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 118, 123-125, 212 Cal. Rptr. 313

[b] With Noncontractual Economic Relationship

Plaintiff is entitled to bring action for interference with relationship involving prospective economic advantage, whether or not relationship is contractual. Buckaloo v. Johnson (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 815, 822-823, 122 Cal. Rptr. 745, 537 P.2d 865 ; Zimmerman v. Bank of Am. (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 55, 57-58, 12 Cal. Rptr. 319

Public policy dictates against allowing cause of action for interference with prospective economic advantage based on interference with opportunity towin prize in sporting event. Youst v. Longo (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 64, 77-79, 233 Cal. Rptr. 294, 729 P.2d 728

In action for intentional interference with prospective economic advantage based on landlord's failure to disclose to tenant that its subtenant had signed a sublease with another tenant, allegedly causing the subtenant to default on and not renew its sublease with the plaintiff tenant, plaintiff failed to establish loss of economic advantage because plaintiff failed to show that it would have been better off had defendant landlord disclosed the other sublease. Girard v. Delta Towers Joint Venture (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1741, 1750, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 102

Factual contentions that law firm, which had previously represented partners and other of their ventures, used confidential information regarding partnership's negotiations for purchase of property, which was obtained by firm member who was limited partner, to allow firm to make more favorable offer, which was accepted, supported cause of action for intentional interference and presented triable issues of fact. Tri-Growth Centre City, Ltd. v. Silldorf, Burdman, Duignan & Eisenberg (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1139, 1153-1154, 265 Cal. Rptr. 330

References to plaintiff's medical practice, and right of employment with individual patients plaintiff had evaluated and treated and might evaluate and treat in future, was insufficient pleading of economic relationship with third parties to support cause of action for interference with prospective business advantage. Amid v. Hawthorne Cmty. Med. Group, Inc. (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1383, 1392, 261 Cal. Rptr. 240

Individual shareholder's claim that bank interfered with relationship between shareholder and corporation by denying corporation's loan request and liquidating corporation to pay other loans was nothing more than indirect attempt to recover damages to corporation, which shareholder lacked standing to do. Kruse v. Bank of Am. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 38, 65-66, 248 Cal. Rptr. 217

Tort of interference with prospective economic advantage does not protect against interference with plaintiff's expectation of winning judgment for punitive damages or one that will be nondischargeable in bankruptcy. Hepe v. Paknad (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 412, 420-421, 244 Cal. Rptr. 823

Existence of legally binding agreement is not required to maintain action for intentional interference with prospective economic advantage. Rader Co. v. Stone (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 10, 28, 223 Cal. Rptr. 806

Cause of action for interference with prospective economic advantage was stated against defendant, who owned premises leased to corporate business which plaintiff had contracted to purchase, when complaint alleged that defendant unreasonably and for improper motive refused to consent to assignment of lease, even though lease authorized defendant arbitrarily to withhold consent to assignment. Sade Shoe Co. v. Oschin & Snyder (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 1174, 1179-1181, 209 Cal. Rptr. 124

[4] Negligent Interference

Cause of action for negligent interference with economic relations is stated when plaintiff suffers damages from injury to economic relationship due to defendant's negligent performance of contract with third party and such injury is foreseeable. J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 808, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60 ; Chameleon Eng'g Corp. v. Air Dynamics Inc. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 418, 420-423, 161 Cal. Rptr. 463

No cause of action for negligent interference with prospective economic advantage stated where doctor and assistant who administered neurological examination to boxer owed no duty to boxer's manager. Colome v. State Athletic Comm'n (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 1444, 1460, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 300

No cause of action for negligent interference with economic relations was stated when plaintiff's injury was part of its ordinary business risk and when defendant merely gave opinion on matter of public interest. Worldvision Enters., Inc. v. American Broad. Cos., Inc. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 589, 596-598, 191 Cal. Rptr. 148

[5] No Cause of Action Stated

Employee who cannot identify any "prospective economic advantage" other than continuation of his or her employment relationship in action against employer does not state cause of action because party cannot induce breach of its own contract. Shoemaker v. Myers (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 1, 24, 276 Cal. Rptr. 303, 801 P.2d 1054

Motion to strike cause of action for intentional interference with prospective economic advantage brought under anti-SLAPP statute, Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16, failed for lack of evidence of economic detriment; plaintiff provided no evidence to support allegations that value of plaintiff's real property was diminished by defendant's conduct. Salma v. Capon (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 1275, 1292-1293, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 873

Bidding without necessary license, although intended to disrupt prospective business relationships of competitors, is essential to free-market system; thus, licensed competitor that was outbid by entity licensed to do only part of work bid was unable to state cause of action for interference with prospective advantage. Settimo Assocs. v. Environ Sys., Inc. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 842, 845-846, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 757

Subcontractor was not able to state cause of action for interference with contract or with prospective business advantage against department of power and water based on termination of primary contract after one unit of multiple-unit contract because claims were barred by governmental immunity and subcontractor was not intended beneficiary of primary contract. Lundeen Coatings Corp. v. Department of Water & Power (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 816, 834, 283 Cal. Rptr. 551

[6] Preemption

State claims for interference are preempted by*§ 301(a) of Labor* Management Relations Act (29 U.S.C.S. § 185(a)) when their determination requires interpretation of collective bargaining agreement. Milne Employees Ass'n v. Sun Carriers (9th Cir. 1991) 960 F.2d 1401, 1412

Fact that one defendant, buyer, was foreign government did not implicate any issue of federal supremacy, preclusion, or preemption on basis of foreign relations or foreign commerce sufficient to bar California action for interference with contract and prospective economic advantage when anticompetitive conduct in question has direct, substantial, and reasonably foreseeableeffect in California; California antitrust and unfair trade laws are neutral in their application.

This form of complaint is for use by a plaintiff to state a cause of action for injunctive relief and trebled damages based on conduct in violation of the Unfair Practices Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17000 et seq.) [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17070, 17078-17082].

[3] Allegations

The complaint includes initial, optional paragraphs that allege the capacity of a nonnatural plaintiff (Paragraph 1), the capacity of a nonnatural defendant and a basis for venue (Paragraph 2), and fictitiously named defendants (Paragraph 3). It then alleges the essential elements of a cause of action based on a violation of the Unfair Practices Act: defendant's commission of an act or acts prohibited by the Unfair Practices Act (Paragraph 4), with the requisite wrongful intent (Paragraph 5) [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17040-17050; G.H.I.I. v. MTS, Inc. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 256, 275, 195 Cal. Rptr. 211 (sales below cost); see also § 565.52].

As a basis for injunctive relief, it alleges defendant's continuing commission or threat of commission of the alleged prohibited acts (Paragraph 6) [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17070, 17078-17082; see also § 565.54[1][b]; see generally Ch. 303, Injunctions].

As a basis for trebled damages, it alleges actual damages proximately caused by defendant's conduct (Paragraph 7) [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17070, 17082; see also § 565.54[1][c]; see generally Ch. 177, § 177.70 et seq.].

[4] Injunction Not Necessary for Recovery of Restitution

Restitution pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203 may be recovered even without the issuance of an injunction; the California Supreme Court has rejected the contention that restitution is available as relief only when ancillary to an injunction. Thus, the failure to allege entitlement to injunctive relief does not preclude the recovery of restitution [ABC Int'l Traders, Inc. v. Matsushita Elec. Corp. (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1247, 1268-1271, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 112, 931 P.2d 290] .

[5] Punitive Damages

The form contains no allegation for punitive damages because courts have held that a plaintiff who pursues a single cause of action under the Unfair Practices Act and establishes a malicious or oppressive violation of that Act is not entitled to elect whether to take punitive damages under Civ. Code § 3294 or treble damages under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17082, but is only entitled to treble damages [Turnbull & Turnbull v. ARA Transp., Inc. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 811, 826-827, 268 Cal. Rptr. 856 ; see § 565.54[1][b]].

[6] Attorney's Fees and Costs

The form includes a prayer for reasonable attorney's fees, which are expressly authorized under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17082. For further discussion, see*§ 565.54[1][b]*.

[7] Verification

Verification [Code Civ. Proc. § 446] is required if plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction on a complaint instead of on affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] . For discussion, a procedural checklist, and additional forms necessary in order to obtain a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

Otherwise, verification is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446] and precludes use of a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

For alternative forms of verification for use when the plaintiff is an individual or other noncorporate entity, see § 565.250 and Ch. 572, Verification .

[8] Jurisdiction and Venue

An action seeking permanent injunctive relief is in the jurisdiction of the superior court and is not a limited civil case [see Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8), 580(b)(2)].

If permanent injunctive relief is not sought, the superior court has jurisdiction of the action [Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)]. In limited civil cases (amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less) the caption must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000. The caption must also identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9),(10)].

If treble damages are sought, the proper county for trial of the action appears to be the county in which all or part of the cause of action arose [Code Civ. Proc. § 393(a) (action for recovery of penalty imposed by statute); G.H.I.I. v. MTS, Inc. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 256, 276-279, 195 Cal. Rptr. 211 (treble damages under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17082 as penal in nature)]. Otherwise, the proper county for trial of the action is the county in which at least one defendant resided at the commencement of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)] or, if a defendant is a corporation, the county in which its principal place of business is located or, if a defendant is a partnership or other unincorporated association, the county in which its principal office is located (Paragraph 2) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395.2, 395.5].

"Competition" includes competition among retailers, wholesalers, or producers; Bus. & Prof. Code § 17045 does not require competitive damage to competitors of person allowing unearned discount ("primary" line of commerce); violation can be based on competitive damage to competitors of person receiving it ("secondary" line of commerce). *ABC Int'l Traders, Inc. v. Plaintiff alleges:

4. The plaintiff brings this action on his/her own behalf and on behalf of all persons similarly situated. The class that the plaintiff represents is composed of all persons who, at any time since the date four years before the filing of this complaint, [specify facts common to class members on which injunction and restitution are based, e.g., have had their vehicle towed by the defendant and been charged an unconscionable fee to retrieve the vehicle]. The persons in the class are so numerous [consisting of approximately_____ individuals,] that the joinder of all such persons is impracticable and that the disposition of their claims in a class action is a benefit to the parties and to the court.

5. There is a well-defined community of interest in the questions of law and fact involved affecting the parties to be represented in that each member of the class is or has been in the same factual circumstances, hereinafter alleged, as the plaintiff. Proof of a common or single state of facts will establish the right of each member of the class to recover. The claims of the plaintiff are typical of those of the class and the plaintiff will fairly and adequately represent the interests of the class.

[6. There is no plain, speedy, or adequate remedy other than by maintenance of this class action because the plaintiff is informed and believes that each class member is entitled to restitution of a relatively small amount of money, amounting at most to $_____ each, making it economically infeasible to pursue remedies other than a class action. Consequently,there would be a failure of justice but for the maintenance of the present class action.]

7._____ [Set forth factual allegations that the defendant's acts or practices occurred while doing business, e.g., The defendant_____ (name) is a business incorporated in the state of California and at all times herein mentioned owned and operated a vehicle towing service in_____ (city), California].

8._____ [Set forth factual allegations of the defendant's acts that are the basis of the claim, e.g., Beginning on or about July 1, 1998, and continuing to the present time, the defendant_____ (name) was awarded a vehicle towing service license in_____ (city), California, and has towed and impounded vehicles at both the request of city officials and public persons. On June 1, 2004, the defendant_____ (name) towed the vehicle of the plaintiff_____ (name), a 1995 Ford Probe, License Plate No. 1234567, from_____ (street address),_____ (city), California].

9._____ [Set forth allegations that show that defendant's acts are unfair, e.g, The defendant_____ (name) towed and impounded the vehicle of the plaintiff_____ (name) on June 1, 2004, without sufficient warning. The defendant_____ (name) charged an unconscionable fee to retrieve the car, would not relinquish the vehicle from the defendant's impound lot unless the plaintiff signed a waiver of damage claims, and informed the plaintiff that the defendant would take title of the vehicle to pay for the towing and impound fees when the plaintiff refused to sign the damage waiver. On information and belief, the defendant_____ (name) has charged other members of the plaintiff class unconscionable fees to retrieve cars, forced owners to waive damage claims in order to retrieve vehicles from the defendant's impound lot, and forced owners to relinquish title to the vehicles when damage waivers were not signed and the unconscionable fees not paid].

10._____ [Set forth causation and injury, e.g., As a direct, proximate, and foreseeable result of the defendant's wrongful conduct, as alleged above, the plaintiff_____ (name) and other members of the plaintiff class, who are unknown to the plaintiff but can be identified through inspection of the defendant's towing and impound records and by other means, were subjected to unlawful vehicle tows due to insufficient warning, were forced to pay unconscionable towing and storage fees in order to retrieve their vehicles, were not compensated for damage inflicted on their vehicles by improper towing procedures, and lost title to their vehicles if they refused to sign the defendant's damage waiver and pay the unconscionable fees. The plaintiff is entitled to relief, including full restitution and/or disgorgement of all revenues, earnings, profits, compensation, and benefits that may have been obtained by the defendant_____ (name) as a result of such unfair business acts or practices].

[11._____ (Set forth allegations of attempts to notify the defendant of conduct and requests for non judicial remedies, if appropriate, e.g., The defendant_____ (name) has failed and refused to accede to the plaintiff's request for a refund of the unconscionable fees obtained by the defendant. The plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that the defendant has likewise failed and refused, and in the future will fail and refuse, to accede to other drivers' requests for refunds. The defendant_____ (name) has also refused to accede to the plaintiff's request for return of the title to the plaintiff's vehicle after the plaintiff refused to sign a damage waiver and pay the unconscionable fees, and the plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that the defendant has likewise failed and refused, and in the future will fail and refuse, to accede to other drivers' requests for return of title to their vehicles).]

12. The defendant's acts hereinabove alleged are acts of unfair competition within the meaning of Business and Professions Code Section 17203. The plaintiff is informed and believes that the defendant will continue to do those acts unless the court orders the defendant to cease and desist.

13. The plaintiff has incurred and, during the pendency of this action, will incur expenses for attorney's fees and costs herein. Such attorney's fees and costs are necessary for the prosecution of this action and will result in a benefit to each of the members of the class. The sum of $_____ is a reasonable amount for attorney's fees herein.

WHEREFORE, the plaintiff prays for judgment as follows:

1. For restitution to the plaintiff and each other member of the class, as his or her interest may appear, of all sums unlawfully collected by the defendant from the plaintiff and other members of the class since_____ [date];

2. For interest on these sums at the legal rate from the date of each unlawful collection [or other prayer for interest];

3. For a permanent injunction enjoining the defendant, and the defendant's agents, servants, and employees, and all persons acting under or in concert with them, to cease and desist from the following acts:

a._____ [Specify according to allegations, e.g., Towing any vehicles in_____ (city) without adequate warning];

b._____ [Continue as appropriate];

[4. For_____ (Specify if return or refund sought, e.g., an order requiring the defendant to return title to the plaintiff's 1995 Ford Probe, License Plate No. 1234567).]

5. For_____ [Specify actions required to provide relief for class, e.g., an order requiring the defendant to compile a list identifying, as far as possible, all other persons who have had their vehicle towed by the defendant, and to send each such person a written offer to return any vehicle whose title was improperly transferred and to refund the unconscionable towing fees].

6. For the payment of the plaintiff's attorney's fees out of the moneys recovered for the joint benefit of the members of the class;

7. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

8. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges:

- The factual predicates necessary to prosecute the action as a class action lawsuit (Paragraphs 4, 5, and 6);
- The defendant's business status (Paragraph 7);
- The factual basis for the claim and the conduct of defendant that constituted unfair competition (Paragraphs 8, 9);
- The injury suffered by the plaintiff and members of the plaintiff class, and that this injury was caused by defendant's unfair competition (Paragraph 10);
- The defendant's refusal to cooperate with attempts to resolve the dispute through nonjudicial means (Paragraph 11);
- That defendant's conduct violates the unfair competition statute and will continue to do so absent judicial relief (Paragraph 12); and
- The attorney's fees incurred by the plaintiff in prosecuting the claim as a class action (Paragraph 13).

[4] Standing

In 2004, the voters approved Proposition 64, which imposed standing requirements on private plaintiffs seeking relief under the unfaircompetition statute. Proposition 64's stated intent was to prohibit private attorneys from filing lawsuits for unfair competition if they do not have clients who have been injured in fact under the standing requirements of the United States Constitution [Proposition 64, § 1(h) (2004)]. As a result, a private person may bring an action under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. only if that person has suffered injury in fact and has lost money or property as a result of unfair competition [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17204]. A private plaintiff may file a representative action on behalf of others only if the plaintiff meets this actual injury requirement and meets the requirements for class actions under Code Civ. Proc. § 382 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203; Arias v. Superior Court (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 969, 980, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 588,

209 P.3d 923]. However, so long as a class is otherwise properly certified, only the named class representatives must specifically show standing to bring the action and unnamed class members need not do so [In re Tobacco II Cases (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 298, 321, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 559, 207 P.3d 20] .

Only a person who meets the requirements for standing may bring an action under the unfair competition statute. Thus, an injured party who would have standing cannot assign the right to sue under the unfair competition statute to another party who does not otherwise meet the requirements for standing to sue [Amalgamated Transit Union, Local 1756, AFL-CIO v. Superior Court (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 993, 1002, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 605, 209 P.3d 937]. Moreover, an association, such as a labor union, does not have standing to sue on behalf of its individual members when the association itself cannot meet the requirements for standing [Amalgamated Transit Union, Local 1756, AFL-CIO v. Superior Court (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 993, 1003-1004, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 605, 209 P.3d 937].The changes to the requirements for standing enacted by Proposition 64 apply to actions that were pending when Proposition 64 was passed [Californians for Disability Rights v. Mervyn's, LLC (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 223, 232-233, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 57, 138 P.3d 207] . However, the ordinary rules governing the amendment of complaints and their relation back to the original complaint apply to these pending lawsuits [Branick v. Downey Savings & Loan Assn. (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 235, 239, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 66, 138 P.3d 214 ; see § 565.35[1]].

[5] Statute of Limitations

An action brought to enforce any cause of action for unfair competition under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. must be brought within four years after the cause of action accrued [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17208].

[6] Remedies

Any person who engages, has engaged, or proposes to engage in unfair competition may be enjoined in any court of competent jurisdiction [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203]. The court may make such orders or judgments, including the appointment of a receiver [see Ch. 486, Receivers], as may be necessary to prevent the use or employment by a person of any practice that constitutes unfair competition under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200, or as may be necessary to restore to any person in interest any money or property, real or personal, that may have been acquired by means of such unfair competition [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203]. However, a private plaintiff cannot recover damages under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203 [Heller v. Norcal Mut. Ins. Co. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 30, 45, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 200, 876 P.2d 999] .

For further discussion of the remedies available in an action brought under the unfair competition statute, see § 565.34.

[7] Attorneys' Fees

This form includes a prayer for reasonable attorney's fees. Although the unfair competition statute does not contain any provision for the recovery of attorney's fees by a successful plaintiff, a plaintiff may recover those fees in a successful class action suit under the common fund principle. Under that principle, a party who incurs attorney's fees in bringing a cause of action that creates or preserves a fund for the benefit of nonlitigants as well as the prevailing litigants, is entitled to recover attorney's fees from the fund itself [see D'Amico v. Board of Med. Examiners (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 1, 25, 112 Cal. Rptr. 786, 520 P.2d 10] .

[8] Verification

Verification [Code Civ. Proc. § 446] is required if the plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction on a complaint instead of on affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits or declarations, counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle the plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] . For discussion, a procedural checklist, and additional forms necessary to obtain a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

Otherwise, verification is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446], and precludes use of a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

For alternate forms of verification for use when the plaintiff is an individual or other noncorporate entity, see § 565.250 and Ch. 572, Verification .

2. Defendant_____ [name] is a local professional real estate association operating in_____ County.

3. Defendant_____ [name] is a state professional real estate association.

4. Defendant_____ [name] is a nation-wide incorporated trade association of real estate professionals.

5. Defendants_____ [names] are real estate brokers licensed as such under the laws of the State of California and doing business in_____County; all are members and officers of one or more of defendant real estate associations.

[7. Plaintiffs bring this action on their own behalf and on behalf of all persons similarly situated. The class which plaintiffs represent is composed of all_____ (describe class, e.g., individuals, firms, partnerships, associations, and corporations who have listed for sale and/or sold residential properties in_____ County within the four years immediately preceding the filing of this complaint). The persons in the class are so numerous, consisting of approximately_____ (specify number and nature of class members, e.g., 55,000 individuals, firms, partnerships, associations, and corporations), that joinder of all such persons is impracticable and that the disposition of their claims in a class action is a benefit to the parties and to the court.]

[8. There is a well-defined community of interest in the questions of law and fact involved affecting the parties to be represented in that_____ (specify common issues, e.g., defendants carried out the combination and conspiracy hereinafter alleged by using standardized agreements and negotiating practices so that individualized negotiations with plaintiffs as to commission rates never occurred and all commission negotiations and agreements were carried out in accordance with defendants' common practices). Proof of a common or single set of facts will establish the right of each member of the class to recover. The claims of plaintiffs are typical of those of the class and plaintiffs will fairly and adequately represent the interests of the class.]

[9. There is no plain, speedy, or adequate remedy other than by maintenance of this class action since plaintiffs are informed and believe that the damage to each plaintiff, approximating between $_____ and $_____, is relatively small compared to the expenses of litigation, making it economically unfeasible to pursue the remedies other than as a class action. In addition, some members of the class no longer reside in_____ County. Consequently, there would be a failure of justice but for the maintenance of the present class action.]

[DESCRIBE, in as many paragraphs as necessary, the relevant market, in terms of both product/service and geography, and the portion of that market controlled by the defendants. The market description should be broad enough to set forth any frequently substituted product or service or a statement that there is no comparably priced substitute.]

10. Eleven hundred twenty three of the 1221 real estate brokers handling residential properties in_____ County, constituting 92 percent of such brokers, are members of defendant_____ [name of local association], and 534 of the real estate brokers handling residentialproperties in_____ County are members of more than one defendant association. Defendant_____ [name of local association] operates the only multiple listing service for residential properties in_____ County. In each of the four years prior to the filing of this complaint, 98 or 99 percent of the dollar volume of residential properties sold in_____ County had been listed in defendant's multiple listing service. There is no alternative service available in_____ County to disseminate information regarding price, availability, and particularized terms of offers of sale of residential properties. A person seeking to sell residential real property in_____ County must list the property with a broker member of the multiple listing service. There is no alternative which will expose the property to as broad a market or invite comparable cooperation from brokers representing purchasers.

[DESCRIBE, in as many paragraphs as necessary, the formation of the agreement, combination, or conspiracy and identify specific acts in furtherance thereof.]

11. Since 1955 and up to the present time, defendants, and each of them, combined, conspired, and agreed together and continue to combine, conspire, and agree to fix and maintain the commission rates, terms, and conditions of residential real estate broker commissions. In 1974, defendants, and each of them, agreed at joint meetings to establish a standard commission rate of 6 percent for all residential listings and sales and to accept only "exclusive right to sell" listings for residential properties. The 6 percent commission rate was formalized in policy statements of defendant associations and in advisory schedules, both of which were, at all times relevant herein, published and dis seminated on a regular basis to all members of defendant associations. Defendant associations drafted, printed, and supplied to their members a standardized form of "exclusive right to sell" listings for residential property.

12. In furtherance of this unlawful combination, conspiracy, and agreement, defendant_____ [name of local association] refused to accept for inclusion in its multiple listing service any listing agreement other than those evidenced by the terms contained in its standardized "exclusive right to sell" agreement. Defendant_____ [name of local association] required the commission rate to be included in each listing published by the multiple listing service. By means of the regular publication of listings, commission information was continually collected, monitored, and disseminated.

13. In furtherance of this unlawful combination, conspiracy, and agreement, defendants, and each of them, encouraged individual members to refuse to cooperate with or share commissions with real estate brokers who entered into residential listing agreements for less than the agreed 6 percent. Individual defendants adhered to the 6 percent commission rate and refused to cooperate with brokers who entered into listing agreements at less than a 6 percent commission.

[DESCRIBE, in as many paragraphs as necessary, the harm to, and damages sustained by, the plaintiffs and the public at large]

14. As a direct consequence of the acts of defendants, and each of them, competition in both prices of real estate broker commissions on the sale and terms of listing agreements for residential real property in_____ County have been restrained, suppressed, and eliminated; the commission rate has been raised, fixed, and maintained at a high and artificial level; plaintiffs and other sellers of residential property in_____ County have been deprived of the benefit of free, competitive negotiations for real property listings and brokers' commission rates and have been forced to enter into "exclusive right to sell" listings and to pay artificially high commission rates.

15. As a direct consequence of the agreement, acts, and course of conduct of defendants, and each of them, plaintiffs were deprived of the benefit of free, competitive negotiations for real property listings and brokers' commission rates._____ [Each plaintiff suffered damages of $_____ per $100,000 of sales or listing price or Plaintiffs are unable to state their damages with precision at this time, since that determination will require discovery and accounting analysis of defendants' books and records]. Under Section 16750(a) of the Business and Professions Code, plaintiffs are entitled to interest on the aforementioned sum from the date of service of this complaint until entry of judgment thereon, to their reasonable attorney's fees, and to treble damages.

[CONTINUE]

[16. Defendants' continuing wrongful conduct as alleged above, unless and until restrained by order of this court, will cause great and irreparable harm to_____ (describe injury to all or some of plaintiffs, e.g., those plaintiffs who have been forced to enter into listing agreements without benefit of competitive negotiations but who have not yet completed performance under those agreements and to the public at large which is deprived of a free market as set forth in Paragraph 14., above).]

[17. Plaintiffs (and the public at large) have no adequate remedy at law for the injuries currently being suffered or which will result in the future from defendants' continued wrongful conduct in that_____ (specify grounds for permanent injunctive relief, e.g., most individual injuries are too small to warrant the expenditures necessary in litigation. In addition, damages flowing from the artificial restraint of the free market as set forth in Paragraph 14, above, are difficult if not impossible to ascertain. Unless this court restrains defendants, some plaintiffs and other members of the public will be forced to institute a multiplicity of suits to obtain compensation.)]

WHEREFORE, plaintiffs pray judgment against defendants, and each of them, as follows:

[2. For (a temporary restraining order, a preliminary injunction, and) a permanent injunction, all enjoining defendants, and each of them, their agents, servants, and employees, and all persons acting under, in concert with, or for them from directly or indirectly or in any manner_____ (specify acts to be en joined, e.g., adopting, advertising, participating in, adhering to, applying or enforcing any by-law, rule, regulation, agreement, contract, understanding, practice, procedure, or arrangement of any kind or nature whatsoever which has the purpose or effect, directly or indirectly, of requiring as a condition of eligibility for participation in, or listing by, any multiple listing service directly or indirectly controlled or sponsored by defendants, or any of them, that a commission of a specified percentage rate be paid by the seller to the listing broker or that the agency agreement between the broker and the seller be an exclusive right to sell listing);]

3. For damages according to proof, and that said sum be trebled; [that said sum be paid on the basis of individual claims presented, and to the extent that class members do not present such claims, on whatever basis the court deems proper, such as by lowering of the brokerage commission rate on residential real properties sold in_____ County or by depositing said sum with the State of California or a unit thereof for the limited purpose of being applied to eleemosynary purposes benefiting the consuming public in_____ County;]

4. For interest from and after the date of service of this complaint at the legal rate;

5. For payment of plaintiffs' reasonable attorney's fees;

6. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

7. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a consumer to bring an action in state court to seek treble damages and injunctive relief under the Cartwright Act when the defendants have conspired to restrain trade [Civ. Code § 3422; Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 16720, 16727, 16750; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 526, 527(a)]. It may be used by the consumer as an individual or as the representative of a class of similarly situated consumers. This form is based in part on the fact situation in People v. National Ass'n of Realtors (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 578, 202 Cal. Rptr. 243 [see § 565.77[4]], and in People v. National Ass'n of Realtors (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 459, 477-479, 174 Cal. Rptr. 728 .

[3] Allegations

The form alleges:

- Plaintiffs' capacity, residence, and facts which establish standing by showing the way plaintiff participates in the market claimed to be affected by the restraint (Paragraph 1);

- Defendants' capacity and residence (Paragraphs 2-5)

- A detailed description of the market claimed to be affected by the restraints, including some factual showing of the percentage of the market controlled or affected by defendants (Paragraph 10) [see Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Great W. Fin. Corp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 305, 325-326, 70 Cal. Rptr. 849, 444 P.2d 481 (allegation of market insufficient); Bhan v. NME Hospitals, Inc. (9th Cir. 1985) 772 F.2d 1467, 1470-1471]

- The formation of the specific agreement or combination and specific acts done in furtherance of the conspiracy or agreement (Paragraphs 11-13) [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 16756, 16757; Jones v. H.F. Ahmanson & Co. (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 93, 118-119, 81 Cal. Rptr. 592, 460 P.2d 464 ; Bartley v. California Ass'n of Realtors (1980) 115 Cal. App. 3d 930, 934-935, 173 Cal. Rptr. 284]

- The harmful impact on the relevant market caused by defendants' conduct (Paragraph 14) [Kolling v. Dow Jones & Co. (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 709, 721-722, 187 Cal. Rptr. 797 ; Feldman v. Sacramento Bd. of Realtors, Inc. (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 739, 747-748, 174 Cal. Rptr. 231] ;

- The damages caused to plaintiffs by defendants' conduct (Paragraph 15) [Saxer v. Philip Morris, Inc. (1975) 54 Cal. App. 3d 7, 20-23, 126 Cal. Rptr. 327] .

The form includes optional paragraphs to allege the basis for injunctive relief (Paragraphs 16, 17; Paragraphs 1 and 2 of prayer).

The form also includes optional paragraphs for use to bring the suit as a class action:

- The description of the class, including an estimate of its size and the way in which its members participate in the relevant market (Paragraph 7);

- The specific ways in which common questions of law and fact predominate (Paragraph 8);

- A statement why the class action is the most appropriate method of relief (Paragraph 9). Paragraph 3 of the prayer includes an optional provision seeking fluid class recovery [see Bruno v. Superior Court (1981) 127 Cal. App. 3d 120, 123-124, 130-135, 179 Cal. Rptr. 342] .

[4] Specificity in Pleading Cartwright Cases Required

Antitrust complaints, more than others, require detailed specific factual allegations. Conclusionary pleadings are insufficient. To maintain a cause of action for combination in restraint of trade one must allege:

- The formation and operation of a conspiracy whose purpose is to restrain trade in a particular market, including, in most cases, the intent of all parties to the conspiracy to restrain trade;

- The illegal acts done pursuant thereto;

- The damage caused by the acts.

Specific facts must be alleged indicating all elements of the cause of action--the creation of the conspiracy, its objectives and impact, the specific acts in furtherance of the conspiracy, and specific damage to plaintiff's business or property [Jones v. H.F. Ahmanson & Co. (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 93, 118-119, 81 Cal. Rptr. 592, 460 P.2d 464 ; Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Great W. Fin. Corp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 305, 325-326, 70 Cal. Rptr. 849, 444 P.2d 481 ; Truta v. Avis Rent A Car Sys. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 802, 822, 238 Cal. Rptr. 806 ; G.H.I.I. v. MTS, Inc. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 256, 264-270, 195 Cal. Rptr. 211] . The market should be described in terms of geography, subject matter, total volume, proportion controlled by defendants, availability to plaintiffs and to the public of the subject matter or competing subject matter (interchangeable products or services) [Ralph C. Wilson Indus. v. Chronicle Broadcast. (9th Cir. 1986) 794 F.2d 1359, 1363-1364 ; Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Great W. Fin. Corp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 305, 325-326, 70 Cal. Rptr. 849, 444 P.2d 481 ; Bhan v. NME Hospitals, Inc. (9th Cir. 1985) 772 F.2d 1467, 1470-1471 ; see also § 565.80[2]].

[5] Pleading Conspiracy: When Inferences Are Sufficient

Although this complaint alleges an actual agreement, often a conspiracy will provide the basis for the action. The formation and operation of the conspiracy must be shown by facts which establish the intent or purpose of the defendants to restrain trade. Although in some cases it may be sufficient to allege solely the effect of a combination from which a purpose to eliminate competition may be inferred, no inference will be made when the alleged conduct is consistent with a lawful purpose. For instance, no inference was made when the allegations showed defendants' primary motive to be personal financial gain but did not show any acts which would be consistent with a separate purpose to eliminate the market for minority shares [Jones v. H.F. Ahmanson & Co. (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 93, 118-119, 81 Cal. Rptr. 592, 460 P.2d 464] .

On the other hand, in a court of appeal case, a cause of action was stated against a "passive" parent that merely acquiesced in a conspiracy. For a party's participation in the conspiracy to be inferred, the acts done, the relationship of the alleged conspirators, the interests of the parties, and the individual circumstances must support the inference [Saxer v. Philip Morris, Inc. (1975) 54 Cal. App. 3d 7, 19, 24-26, 126 Cal. Rptr. 327] . In this case, the active defendants were all owned by the passive parent corporation, many officers of the parent corporation were also officers of the more active defendants, there were numerous communications between the officers of the parent and those of the more active subsidiaries, and the parent was aware of the subsidiaries' plans and operations and supported them [Saxer v. Philip Morris, Inc. (1975) 54 Cal. App. 3d 7, 19, 24-26, 126 Cal. Rptr. 327] .

[6] Pleading Acts in Furtherance of Conspiracy: Coercion or Leverage?

Although general allegations of agreement have been held sufficient and a conspiracy allegation has been held unnecessary, the unlawful acts in furtherance of the conspiracy must be specifically alleged [Bartley v. California Ass'n of Realtors (1980) 115 Cal. App. 3d 930, 934-935, 173 Cal. Rptr. 284] . An allegation that two defendant retailers, which were among the largest record retailers, used their economic leverage to convince record distributors to grant them price discounts and other beneficial terms was insufficient. Allegations as to a third retailer defendant that it obtained favorable treatment from distributors by threats, coercion, intimidation, and boycott were sufficient when coupled with specific descriptions of the threats and boycott [G.H.I.I. v. MTS, Inc. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 256, 268-269, 195 Cal. Rptr. 211 (boycott by single trader that uses coercion, threats or intimidation to exact unwilling cooperation from another as combination in restraint of trade); see also § 565.77[1]].

[7] Pleading Damages

The alleged antitrust violation need not be the sole cause of plaintiff's injury, but it must be a substantial factor in bringing about the injury [Saxer v. Philip Morris, Inc. (1975) 54 Cal. App. 3d 7, 23, 126 Cal. Rptr. 327] . Moreover, individual injury to plaintiff's business is not enough. A plaintiff must show that there is some public injury to the market inquestion that does public harm, for instance by creating a monopoly, or that plaintiff is a competitor or a consumer in a market in which defendant's conduct has impaired competition [Feldman v. Sacramento Bd. of Realtors, Inc. (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 739, 747-748, 174 Cal. Rptr. 231] . The individual injury pleading and proof requirements are less stringent if the conduct complained of is illegal per se rather than to be evaluated under the rule of reason [Klor's v. Broadway-Hale Stores (1959) 359 U.S. 207, 210-214, 79 S. Ct. 705, 3 L. Ed. 2d 741 ; B. W. I. Custom Kitchen v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1341, 1348, 235 Cal. Rptr. 228 ; see also §§ 565.74[2],[4], 565.77[1]].

[8] Interest and Attorney's Fees

Prejudgment interest on actual damages in Cartwright actions is allowed from the date of service of the complaint [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 16750(a), 16761]]. Attorney's fees are authorized in Cartwright actions [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16750(a)].

[9] Verification

Verification [Code Civ. Proc. § 446] is required if plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction on a complaint instead of on affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) [see Code Civ. Proc. §

527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] . For discussion, a procedural checklist, and additional forms necessary in order to obtain a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

Otherwise, verification is not required, but verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is in the superior court and is not a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial except in a limited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

This notice of motion is for use in obtaining prejudgment interest after a judgment for damages for unfair competition is recovered pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 16750. An award of prejudgment interest is authorized by Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 16750(a), and 16761. For a general form of declaration in support of a motion and a form of an order granting a motion, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

A memorandum of points and authorities must be filed and a copy served with this notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[3] Prejudgment Interest

Prejudgment interest may be allowed on a motion by the person recovering damages pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 16750. Interest is calculated on the actual damages at the rate of 10 percent per annum for the period beginning on the date of service of the complaint and ending on the date of judgment, or for any shorter period therein, if the court finds that the award of interest for that period is just in the circumstances. In determining whether or not an award of interest for any period is just, the court may consider only the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16761]:

- Whether the person or opposing party, or the representative of any of these people, made motions or asserted claims or defenses so lacking in merit as to show that the party or representative acted intentionally for delay, or otherwise acted in bad faith;

- Whether, in the course of the action involved, the person or opposing party, or the representative of any of these people, violated any applicable rule, statute, or court order providing for sanctions for dilatory behavior or otherwise providing for expeditious proceedings; and

- Whether the person or opposing party, or the representative of any of these people, engaged in conduct primarily for the purpose of delaying the litigation or increasing the cost thereof.

Plaintiff alleges:

FIRST COUNT
(Misappropriation of Trade Secret--Statutory)

[1. Identity and capacity of plaintiff. See§ 565.230, Paragraph 1.]

[2. _____ (Name of plaintiff corporation) is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation organized and existing under the_____ (governing law, e.g., General Corporation Law of California)(if foreign corporation, add : and subject to Section 2115 of the Corporations Code).]

[3. Identity and capacity of defendant. See§ 565.230, Paragraph 2.]

[4. At all times herein mentioned defendant(s),_____ (name(s))_____ (was a director or were directors) of_____ (name of plaintiff corporation).]

[5. Fictitious name allegation. See§ 565.230, Paragraph 3.]

[6. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that) (A)t all times herein mentioned, each of the defendants was the agent of each of the remaining defendants, and in doing the things hereinafter alleged, wasacting within the course and scope of such agency and with the permission and consent of his/her codefendants.]

7. Plaintiff was in possession of a trade secret_____ [identify trade secret with reasonable particularity, e.g., which consisted of a secret recipe for plaintiff's gourmet cheesecake].

8. Plaintiff's_____ [specify trade secret, e.g., recipe] had economic value in that_____ [specify its economic value, either actual or potential, e.g., its use resulted in the creation of cheesecakes with a unique taste for considerably less overhead expenses than the usual mass produced cheesecake]. Plaintiff made reasonable efforts to insure that the_____ [specify trade secret] remained a secret by_____ [specify measures used by plaintiff to maintain secrecy, e.g., keeping the recipe in a safe and disclosing it only to employees who had acheived the position of assistant chef].

9. On or about_____ [specify date of January 1, 1985 or thereafter], [and continuing to the present time], defendant[s, and each of them,] misappropriated the above-described trade secret of plaintiff by_____ [specify the act of misappropriation meeting the definition of Civ. Code § 3426.1(b), e.g., using plaintiff's recipe to make cheesecakes to be sold under defendant's name after paying a large sum of money to one of plaintiff's employees for unauthorized disclosure of the secret recipe].

[EITHER, if alleging general damages]

10. As a proximate result of the_____ [specify the misappropriation of plaintiff's trade secret, e.g., use by defendant of plaintiff's cheesecake recipe], plaintiff has suffered actual damages. [As a further proximate result of the misappropriation, defendant was unjustly enriched_____ [specify any unjust enrichment enjoyed by defendant, e.g., by obtaining the dessert catering contract for the county fair.]

[OR, if alleging royalties]

10. Because neither plaintiff's actual damages nor defendant's unjust enrichment are subject to proof, plaintiff is entitled to a reasonable royalty_____ [specify nature and amount of royalty, e.g., in the amount of 55 percent of the revenue received by defendant from cheesecake sales].

[11. The (plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that the) aforementioned acts of the defendant were willful and malicious in that_____ (allege facts indicating presence of willfulness and malice, e.g., defendant misappropriated plaintiff's recipe with the deliberate intent to injure plaintiff's business and improve its own).

Plaintiff is therefore entitled to punitive damages. Plaintiff is also entitled to reasonable attorney's fees.]

[12. Defendant's wrongful conduct_____ (describe conduct, e.g, in misappropriating plaintiff's recipe), unless and until enjoined and restrained by order of this court, will_____ (specify particular facts establishing grounds for preliminary injunctive relief, e.g., cause great and irreparable injury to plaintiff's business in that plaintiff has lost several of its most profitable catering accounts and is continuing to lose accounts, plaintiff has been forced to lay off workers and will be forced to lay off more, and is operating at such a loss that it may be forced out of business before this action can be brought to trial).]

[13. Plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law for the injuries_____ (currently being suffered or which are threatened) in that_____ (specify any additional facts tending to show grounds for permanent injunctive relief, e.g., defendant will continue to misappropriate the trade secret and plaintiff would be required to maintain a multiplicity of judicial proceedings to protect its interests).]

SECOND COUNT
(Misappropriation of Trade Secret--Common Law)

14. Plaintiff refers to and herein incorporates Paragraphs 1-8 of the First Count.

15. On or about_____ [specify date prior to January 1, 1985], [and continuing until January 1, 1985], defendant[s, and each of them,] misappropriated the above-described trade secret of plaintiff by_____ [specify the act of misappropriation meeting the definition of Restatement of Torts § 757, e.g., using plaintiff's recipe to make cheesecakes to be sold under defen dant's name after paying a large sum of money to one of plaintiff's employees for unauthorized disclosure of the secret recipe].

16. As a proximate result of the_____ [specify the misappropriation of plaintiff's trade secret, e.g., use by defendant of plaintiff's cheesecake recipe], plaintiff has suffered actual damages_____ [specify compensatory damages, e.g., in the nature of lost profits resulting from decreased sales].

[17. The (plaintiff is informed and believes and alleges thereon that the) acts of defendant alleged above were_____ (malicious and/or oppressive and/or fraudulent) in that_____ (state facts showing malice, oppression, or fraud within meaning of Civ. Code § 3294). Plaintiff is therefore entitled to an award of punitive damages.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant[s, and each of them,] as follows:

On the FIRST COUNT:

[1. For an order requiring defendants to show cause, if any they have, why they should not be enjoined as hereinafter set forth, during the pendancy of this action;

[2. For a temporary restraining order, a preliminary injunction, and a permanent injunction, all requiring defendant and his/her agents, servants, and employees, and all persons, acting under, in concert with, or for him/her:

a. To refrain from_____ (specify each of the acts and courses of conduct defendants are to be prohibited from doing, commencing, or continuing, e.g., continuing the misappropriation of plaintiff's trade secret by ongoing use of plaintiff's recipe);

b. To_____ (specify each of the acts and courses of conduct defendants are to be commanded to do or undertake, e.g., return all copies of the recipe to plaintiff);]

[EITHER, if general damages are alleged]

3. For general damages [and the amount necessary to prevent the unjust enrichment of defendant];

[OR, if alleging royalties]

3. For reasonable royalties_____ [specify nature and amount];

[4. For punitive damages;]

[5. For reasonable attorney's fees;]

On the SECOND COUNT:

6. For general damages;

[7. For punitive damages;]

On all COUNTS:

8. For all costs of suit herein incurred; and

9. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a plaintiff to bring an action based on misappropriation of a trade secret. The First Count is based on the UTSA, which governs misappropriations occurring after January 1, 1985, and seeks both damages and injunctive relief [see Civ. Code §§ 3426.3 (remedies), 3426.10 (effective date of UTSA)]. The Second Count is based on common law, which governs misappropriations occurring prior to January 1, 1985, and seeks only damages (injunctive relief was available under the common law; however, any injunctive relief is now governed by UTSA) [see Diodes, Inc. v. Franzen (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 244, 250-251, 67 Cal. Rptr. 19 ; Restatement of Torts § 757]. Because a misappropriation may have begun prior to January 1, 1985, and continued after that date, situations may arise in which both counts may be used for the same act of misappropriation [see Civ. Code § 3426.10].

[3] Allegations

[a] First Count

The First Count of the complaint alleges:

- The existence and possession by plaintiff of a trade secret (Paragraph 7) [for first count see Civ. Code § 3426.1(d), for second count see Restatement of Torts § 757, cmt. b]

- The economic value of the trade secret and the measures taken by plaintiff to insure its secrecy (Paragraph 8) [see Civ. Code § 3426.1(d)]

- The nature of defendant's wrongful act (Paragraph 9) [see Civ. Code § 3426.1(b)].

It includes alternate allegations for the measure of damages (Paragraphs 10) [see Civ. Code § 3426.3(a),(b)].

The form also includes optional paragraphs alleging the breach of a defendant corporate director's fiduciary duty (Paragraphs 2 and 4) [see Ch. 167, Corporations: Directors and Management], the agency relationship of defendants (Paragraph 6) [see Ch. 427, Principal and Agent], facts showing that punitive damages are appropriate (Paragraph 11) [see Civ. Code § 3426.3(c)], facts to support preliminary injunctive relief (Paragraph 12) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 526; E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1] , and any additional facts necessary to support permanent injunctive relief (Paragraph 13) [see Civ. Code § 3422; see Ch. 303, Injunctions].

[b] Second Count

The Second Count of the complaint incorporates by reference Paragraphs 1-13 of the First Count (Paragraph 14). It then alleges the nature of defendant's wrongful act (Paragraph 15) [see Restatement of Torts § 757], and damages proximately caused by defendant's misappropriation (Paragraph 16) [see Klamath-Orleans Lumber, Inc. v. Miller (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 458, 466, 151 Cal. Rptr. 118] . It also includes an optional paragraph alleging a factual basis for an award of punitive damages (Paragraph 17) [see Civ. Code § 3294].

Verification [Code Civ. Proc. § 446] is required if plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction on a complaint instead of on affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] . For discussion, a proceduralchecklist, and additional forms necessary in order to obtain a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

Otherwise, verification is not required. but verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is in the superior court and is not a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 467]. Verification will also preclude a general denial except in a limited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] Pleading

In a trade secret action the facts pleaded must show the existence of subject matter which is capable of protection as a trade secret and disclosure of the secret under circumstances giving rise to a contractual or other legally imposed obligation not to use or disclose the secret to the detriment of the discloser [Cal Francisco Inv. Corp. v. Vrionis (1971)

14 Cal. App. 3d 318, 321-322, 92 Cal. Rptr. 201] . A complaint which fails to allege that the information claimed to be a trade secret was, in fact a secret and unknown by others, may be dismissed [American Alloy Steel Corp. v. Ross (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 215, 219-220, 308 P.2d 494] . If the defendant is an employee or former employee of the plaintiff the facts alleged must also show that the public policy in favor of protection of the complainant's interest in maintaining the secret outweighs the interest of the employee in using his or her knowledge to support himself or herself in other employment [Cal Francisco Inv. Corp. v. Vrionis (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 318, 321-322, 92 Cal. Rptr. 201 ; see § 565.105[1]].

In order to avoid the destruction of the very thing for which protection is sought, the details of the trade secret need not be spelled out to avoid a demurrer to a complaint. However, the ultimate facts showing the existence of a trade secret or other confidential data must be alleged to state a cause of action. The complaint should describe the subject matter of the trade secret with sufficient particularity to separate it from matters of general knowledge in the trade or of special knowledge of those skilled in the trade, and to permit the defendant to ascertain at least the boundaries within which the secret lies. If the subject matter of the claimed trade secret is a manufacturing process, the plaintiff must identify the end product manufactured, and supply sufficient data concerning the process, without revealing the details of it, to provide reasonable notice of the issues and reasonable guidance in ascertaining the scope of appropriate discovery [Diodes, Inc. v. Franzen (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 244, 252-253, 67 Cal. Rptr. 19] . For discussion of privileges specific to trade secrets, see*§ 565.107*.

[6] Former Employee as Defendant

When the plaintiff is alleging that a former employee misappropriated trade secrets acquired through employment with the plaintiff and then implemented those secrets for a new employer, the plaintiff may name both the former employee and the new employer as defendants in the same action [see, e.g., King v. Pacific Vitamin Corp. (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 841, 843, 64 Cal. Rptr. 486] .

[7] Director of Corporate Plaintiff as Defendant

Optional Paragraphs 2 and 4 may be included when the plaintiff is a corporation bringing an action against a director or former director. Corp. Code § 309 requires that corporate director actions be actions which the director believes in good faith are in the best interests of the corporation. When the plaintiff is a corporation bringing an action for misappropriation of trade secrets against a director or former director, counsel should be cognizant of the time limitations imposed by Code Civ. Proc. § 359. Code Civ. Proc. § 359 provides that an action must be brought within three years after discovery or the liability was created. Thus, both Code Civ. Proc. § 359 and Civ. Code § 3426.6 indicate that a misappropriation action under the UTSA must be brought within three years. However, in a similar action brought under the common law, the two year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1) rather than Code Civ. Proc. § 359 appears to control [see Southern Counties Thrift Co. v. Rairdon (1941) 47 Cal. App. 2d 770, 771-772, 118 P.2d 828 ; for discussion and forms pertaining to corporate directors and additional causes of action against them for breach of duty which may be joined with this action, see Ch. 167, Corporations: Directors and Management ; for discussion and forms concerning the limitation of actions generally, see Ch. 345, Limitations of Actions].

[8] Injunction Broadly Written

When the subject matter of the injunction is a matter within the peculiar knowledge of the defendant, and the spelling out of the nature of the trade secret involved would, in and of itself, destroy the existence of that very secret, the injunction restraining misappropriation of a trade secret may be more broadly worded than usual [Ungar Elec. Tools, Inc. v. Sid Ungar Co., Inc. (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 398, 404, 13 Cal. Rptr. 268] .

Code § 3426.1(d) or Restatement of Torts § 757, cmt. b, or both, e.g.*, for casting metal electrical energy conductors within epoxy resin].

2. Plaintiff's_____ [specify trade secret] had economic value in that_____ [specify its economic value, either actual or potential, e.g., its use resulted in the casting of metal electrical energy conductors in a commercially feasible manner]. Plaintiff made reasonable efforts to insure that the secret manufacturing process remained a secret by_____ [specify measures used by plaintiff to maintain secrecy, e.g., disclosing the casting process only to persons directly involved in the casting itself].

3. Defendant was employed by plaintiff as_____ [specify defendant's position with plaintiff, e.g., supervisor of the casting division] and while employed in that capacity was informed of the above-described trade secret_____ [specify reason for disclosure to defendant, e.g., in order that he might perform his job effectively].

4. On or about_____ [date], defendant[s, and each of them,] misappropriated the above-described trade secret of plaintiff by_____ [specify the act of misappropriation, e.g., leaving the employment of plaintiff in which he had gained knowledge of the manufacturing process, forming his own corporation, and commencing production of conductors using the manufacturing process which had been developed and maintained by plaintiff as a trade secret].

These allegations are for use by a plaintiff in a complaint for misappropriation of a trade secret against a former employee when the trade secret is in the form of a manufacturing process [see § 565.105[1]]. When using these allegations, Paragraphs 1 through 3 should replace Paragraphs 7 and 8 in the First Count, which are incorporated in the Second Count by Paragraph 14, and Paragraph 4 should replace Paragraph 9 in the First Count and Paragraph 15 in the Second Count of § 565.270.

With appropriate modifications these allegations may be used when the defendant was never an employee of the plaintiff, but obtained the trade secret under different circumstances of confidentiality imposing the duty to not disclose or use the information [see Civ. Code § 3426.1(b)(2)(B); Restatement of Torts § 757(b), (c); for discussion of other circumstances imposing a duty of nondisclosure, see § 565.105[2]]. These allegations use a manufacturing process as an example of a trade secret, but may be modified to be used when the trade secret is in another form, such as a formula, pattern, compilation, device, program, method, or technique [see Civ. Code § 3426.1(d); Restatement of Torts § 757, cmt. b].

These allegations are adapted from the fact situation in Components for Research, Inc. v. Isolation Prods., Inc. (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 726, 50 Cal. Rptr. 829 .

49-565 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 565.272

§ 565.272 Allegations--Misappropriation of Trade Secret--Customer List

[1] FORM Allegations--Misappropriation of Trade Secret--Customer List

1. Plaintiff was in possession of a customer list_____ [identify customer list as trade secret, e.g., of nationwide purchasers of its load binders. The list was the result of a substantial amount of time, energy, and money on the part of plaintiff and included special financial arrangements made based on the credit status of each customer].

2. Plaintiff's customer list had economic value in that_____ [specify its economic value through its confidential nature, e.g., it contained information not generally known within the trade and represented many years of research and client communications]. Plaintiff made reasonable efforts to insure that the customer list remained a secret by_____ [specify measures used by plaintiff to maintain secrecy, e.g., disclosing the list only to those employees who needed the information to perform their jobs].

3. Plaintiff's customer list was a trade secret which merited legal protection from defendant's misappropriation in that_____ [set forth as many of the following additional factors as are present : (1) defendant solicited the customers of plaintiff with intent to injure plaintiff; (2) plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that defendant sought out certain preferred customers whose trade is particularly profitable and whose identities are not generally known to the trade; (3) in the_____ (specify nature of business, e.g., load binding business) a customer ordinarily patronizes only one concern; (4) established business relationships between customers and the plaintiff normally continue unless interfered with].

4. On or about_____ [date], defendant[s, and each of them,] misappropriated the above-described customer list of plaintiff by_____ [specify the act of misappropriation, e.g., copying plaintiff's customer list, leaving the employment of plaintiff, establishing a company engaging in the same type of business, and soliciting business primarily from those customers on the list].

These allegations are for use by a plaintiff in a complaint for misappropriation of a trade secret when the trade secret is in the form of a customer list. When using these allegations, Paragraphs 1 through 3 should replace Paragraphs 7 and 8 in the First Count, which are incorporated in the Second Count by Paragraph 14, and Paragraph 4 should replace Paragraph 9 in the First Count and Paragraph 15 in the Second Count of § 565.270.

These allegations are adapted from the fact situation in Klamath-Orleans Lumber, Inc. v. Miller (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 458, 151 Cal. Rptr. 118 .

[3] Factors Considered in Determining Whether Customer List Is Trade Secret

The courts consider five factors in awarding relief: the four factors articulated in Paragraph 3 and the confidentiality factor of Paragraph 2 [Klamath-Orleans Lumber, Inc. v. Miller (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 458, 463-464, 151 Cal. Rptr. 118 ; see § 565.192[3]]. Although in most cases meriting protection of information as a trade secret, all five factors will be present, a plaintiff is not required to prove all five to prevail, and the confidential nature of the list is seen as the most important [Hollingsworth Solderless Terminal Co. v. Turley (9th Cir. 1980) 622 F.2d 1324, 1329-1331 ; American Credit Indem. Co. v. Sacks (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 622, 630, 262 Cal. Rptr. 92 (distinguishing cases involving use of lists before January 1, 1985; since that date, only two elements of Civ. Code § 3426.2(d) as necessary for customer list to be trade secret); see Greenly v. Cooper (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 382, 391 n.2, 143 Cal. Rptr. 514 (noting possibility that five factors may have been inadvertently interpreted conjunctively rather than disjunctively)].

[4] Misappropriation

Once an employer proves a customer list is entitled to trade secret protection, it must then prove that the former employee misappropriated the information to attain an unfair competitive advantage. Under the Uniform Trade Secret Act (Civ. Code § 3426 et seq.), the term "misappropriation" is defined to include the nonconsensual disclosure or use of a trade secret [Civ. Code § 3426.1(b)(2)]. Acts of solicitation may constitute use or misappropriation of protected information [Morlife, Inc. v. Perry (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1514, 1520-1521, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 731 (commercial roof repair business's former employees' use of customer list to solicit customers for their new commercial roof repair business constituted misappropriation)].

[5] Decisions

[a] Customer List as Trade Secret

Factual considerations helpful in determining whether customer list warrants protection as trade secret as including whether there was competition with other businesses for customer's patronage; whether customer's name appears in extensive listings in public directories along with names of many other businesses which are not even potential customers and whether reasonably diligent salesperson could perceive narrowing classification to reduce costs of identifying potential customers; percentage of businesses serviced by plaintiff which salesperson contacted for new employer; whether customer identities and locations are numerous and scattered and require substantial amount of time, effort, and expense to obtain; whether customer's decision to purchase is influenced primarily by considerations such asprice, quality, reliable delivery, and efficient service, or by considerations such as special needs or susceptibilities; and whether former employer and customer had stable and continuous relationship. Hollingsworth Solderless Terminal Co. v. Turley (9th Cir. 1980) 622 F.2d 1324, 1333-1334

To be trade secret, customer list must (1) derive independent economic value, actual or potential, from not being generally known to public or to other persons who can obtain economic value from its disclosure; and (2) be subject of efforts that are reasonable under circumstances to maintain its secrecy. Courtesy Temp. Serv., Inc. v. Camacho (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1278, 1287-1291, 272 Cal. Rptr. 352 ; American Credit Indem. Co. v. Sacks (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 622, 630, 262 Cal. Rptr. 92 (construing Civ. Code § 3426.2(d))

Second prong of Civ. Code § 3426.2(d) test as satisfied if employer requires employees to sign confidentiality agreement respecting its client list and related client information. American Credit Indem. Co. v. Sacks (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 622, 631, 262 Cal. Rptr. 92

Second prong of Civ. Code § 3426.2(d) test as satisfied when product is unique and product resistance has to be overcome before anyone will purchase it. American Credit Indem. Co. v. Sacks (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 622, 630-631, 638, 262 Cal. Rptr. 92 (credit insurance purchased by seller covering defaults of its receivables; resistance indicated by fact that only 6.5 percent of potential market purchases product)

Former employee of consulting firm who was also attorney as entitled to render legal services to firm's clients, which firm was not licensed to do; attorney as entitled to use firm's customer list to inform legal clients of change of employment and whether or not representation would continue. Matull & Assocs. v. Cloutier (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1049, 1055-1056, 240 Cal. Rptr. 211 (involving noncompetition clause in buy-sell agreement)

Former employee as not allowed to use trade secrets to announce change of employment to former employer's clients; names of clients personally serviced by former employee as not trade secret; antisolicitation covenants as unlawful business restraint except when enforcement is necessary to protect trade secrets. Moss, Adams & Co. v. Shilling (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 124, 130, 224 Cal. Rptr. 456 (applying pre-UTSA announcement rule)

[b] Intent to Injure Plaintiff

Failing to illustrate exclusivity in business relationship between plaintiff and customers or that customers' names were not commonly known in trade, combined with failure to contend that defendant was only competitor or that plaintiff would have made sale had defendant not done so as fatal to plaintiff's case. Continental Car-Na-Var Corp. v. Moseley (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 104, 108-109, 111-113, 148 P.2d 9

Threat to quit employment followed by deliberate acts of leaving employment, using information acquired through employment, and working for competitor as example of intent to injure. Gloria Ice Cream & Milk Co. v. Cowan (1935) 2 Cal. 2d 460, 464-465, 41 P.2d 340

Intention to take away some business when action is in good faith and without malice as insufficient to show deliberate intent to injure. King v. Pacific Vitamin Corp. (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 841, 850, 64 Cal. Rptr. 486

Intent to injure as reasonably inferred from defendant's admissions of deliberately soliciting only plaintiff's customers at time most disadvantageous to plaintiff and from evidence concerning defendant's methods of obtaining subscribers. Reid v. Mass Co., Inc. (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 293, 303, 318 P.2d 54

[c] Damages

Damages for misappropriation of customer list trade secret as able to be shown by loss of profits on sales actually diverted from plaintiff's business. Klamath-Orleans Lumber, Inc. v. Miller (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 458, 466, 151 Cal. Rptr. 118

§ 565.273 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--No Trade Secret--Information Disclosed by Product

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--No Trade Secret--Information Disclosed by Product

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE_____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES that any information concerning_____ (specify the nature of the alleged trade secret, e.g., the design features of the specified valve) was not a trade secret in that the essence of the alleged secret was completely disclosed by_____ (specify the manufactured product which discloses the alleged secret information, e.g., the manufactured valve itself).

This form of affirmative defense is for use by a defendant in an answer to a complaint for trade secret misappropriation when the alleged secret information was completely disclosed by the product marketed. Although a trade secret need not be of a specific character, it must be kept secret by the owner and not disclosed by the product [Futurecraft Corp. v. Clary Corp. (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 279, 289, 23 Cal. Rptr. 198 ; Restatement of Tort § 757, cmt. b; for discussion of the concept of reverse engineering, see § 565.104[3]]. This affirmative defense is adapted from the fact situation in Futurecraft Corp. v. Clary Corp. (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 279, 23 Cal. Rptr. 198 .

If more than one affirmative defense is set forth in the answer, each defense must be separately stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(g)] and numbered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.112(1)]. If the complaint sets forth more than one cause of action, the affirmative defense must refer to the cause of action it is intended to answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(g)].

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Action Barred by Statute of Limitation [Civ. Code § 3426.6; Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1)]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE_____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES that the cause of action set forth in the complaint is barred by the_____ [two or three] year provision of_____ [Section 339(1) of the Code of Civil Procedure or Section 3426.6 of the Civil Code].

This form of affirmative defense is for use by a defendant in an answer to a complaint for trade secret misappropriation when the statute of limitation has run on the misappropriation. When it appears on the face of the complaint that the statute has run, the objection may be raised by demurrer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30]. The form has alternatives which reflect the different statutes depending on the type of action brought. The time for bringing an action for misappropriation of a trade secret in an action under the UTSA is three years [Civ. Code § 3426.6; for further discussion, see § 565.103[5]]. The time for bringing an action for misappropriation of a trade secret in a common law action appears to be two years [Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1); *see Davies v. [2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a plaintiff to state a cause of action for damages and injunctive relief based on intentional interference with a contract or other advantageous economic relationship. For discussion of damages and injunctive relief in an action for interference, see*§ 565.136*. For a form of judgment awarding damages and injunctive relief in an action for interference, see*§ 565.294*.

For discussion of effect of the availability of a cause of action based on a third party's breach of contract, see*§ 565.136[2]. For discussion concerning an alternate or separate cause of action for conspiracy to interfere with economic relations, see§ 565.134*.

[3] Allegations

This complaint consists of a cause of action for damages and injunctive relief [Civ. Code §§ 3294, 3333, 3422; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 526, 527]. It alleges:

- The existence a valid contract or other economic relationship containing a probability of future economic benefits accruing to the plaintiff (Paragraph 4).

- Defendant's knowledge of the relationship (Paragraph 5).

- Defendant's intentional acts designed to disrupt the relationship (Paragraph 6) [see Korea Supply Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1134, 1153, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29, 63 P.3d 937 (in action for intentional interference with prospective economic advantage, plaintiff need not allege defendant's specific intent to interfere, and knowledge of certainty or substantial certainty of interference will suffice); but see Quelimane Co. v. Stewart Title Guar. Co. (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 26, 57, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 709, 960 P.2d 513 (in pleading defendant's intent, general allegations of deliberate, willful, and intentional interference with contractual relations were sufficient to withstand demurrer; proof of defendant's intent was matter for trial)].

- The unlawfulness of the conduct by some measure other than the fact of interference itself, for use in an action for interference with prospective contractual or economic relations (Paragraph 7) [Della Penna v. Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 376, 393, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436, 902 P.2d 740] .

- Actual disruption of the relationship (Paragraph 8); damages proximately caused by defendant's disruption of the relationship (Paragraph 9) [Blank v. Kirwan (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 311, 330, 216 Cal. Rptr. 718, 703 P.2d 58 ; see also §§ 565.133, 565.213[3]].

- A basis for preliminary and permanent injunctive relief to enjoin defendant's continuing interference (Paragraph 11) [Civ. Code § 3422; Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(2),(4); see generally Ch. 303, Injunctions].

An optional paragraph alleges a basis for punitive damages (Paragraph 10) [Civ. Code § 3294(a); see generally Ch. 174, Damages].

[4] Jurisdiction

An action seeking permanent injunctive relief is in the jurisdiction of the superior court and is not a limited civil case [see Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8), 580(b)(2)]. However, in a limited civil case, the court may issue temporary restraining orders and preliminary injunctions [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8)].

An action for damages is in the jurisdiction of the superior court [see Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)]. In limited civil cases (amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less) the caption must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000. The caption must also identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9),(10)].

[5] Venue

An action for interference with economic relations is based on nonphysical injury to intangible interests and is transitory in nature. Thus, theproper county for trial is that in which the defendants or some of them reside at the commencement of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a); Johnson v. Superior Court (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 212, 218-220, 42 Cal. Rptr. 645 (interference with operation of business)]. If a defendant is a corporation or association, the county in which its principal place of business is located is also a proper county for trial (Paragraph 2) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395.2, 395.5].

Verification [Code Civ. Proc. § 446] is required if plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction on a complaint instead of on affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] . For discussion, a procedural checklist, and additional forms necessary in order to obtain a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

Otherwise, verification is not required, but verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is in the superior court and is not a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial except in a limited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

Pecuniary or economic benefit to defendant is not element of tort of intereference with contractual relationship. McCalden v. California Library Ass'n (9th Cir. 1990) 955 F.2d 1214, 1220

In action for intentional interference with prospective economic advantage, plaintiff need not allege defendant's specific intent to interfere, and knowledge of certainty or substantial certainty of interference will suffice; in pleading conduct was wrongful, plaintiff must plead that conduct was unlawful by some independent legal standard. Korea Supply Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1134, 1153, 1159, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29, 63 P.3d 937

Plaintiff in intentional interference with existing contractual relations action is not required to plead "wrongfulness" independent of the inducement to breach the contract; in pleading defendant's intent, general allegations of deliberate, willful, and intentional interference with contractual relations were sufficient to withstand demurrer; proof of defendant's intent was matter for trial. Quelimane Co. v. Stewart Title Guar. Co. (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 26, 55-57, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 709, 960 P.2d 513

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a plaintiff to state a cause of action for damages based on negligent interference with a contract or other advantageous economic relationship. This form may be modified to state an additional cause of action for injunctive relief in an appropriate case [see § 565.290].

[3] Allegations

This complaint consists of a cause of action for damages [Civ. Code § 3333]. It alleges [see United States Liab. Ins. Co. v. Haidinger-Hayes, Inc. (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 586, 594, 83 Cal. Rptr. 418, 463 P.2d 770 (general elements of actionable negligence); see also Hoyem v. Manhattan Beach City Sch. Dist. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 508, 513-514, 150 Cal. Rptr. 1, 585 P.2d 851] :

- A legal duty to use due care owed by the defendant to the plaintiff (Paragraphs 4-6, 8);
- The defendant's breach of that duty (Paragraph 7); and
- The breach as proximate cause of resulting injury and damages (Paragraph 8).

The allegations showing a duty of care are based on the criteria that are to be considered in determining the existence of such a duty in any action for negligent interference [see J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 804-805, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60 ; Chameleon Eng'g Corp. v. Air Dynamics Inc. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 418, 420-423, 161 Cal. Rptr. 463 ; see also § 565.135[3]]:

- The defendant entered into or engaged in a contract, relationship, activity, or other "transaction" that was intended or known to affect an economic relationship of plaintiff (Paragraph 4);
- There was a foreseeable risk of harm to plaintiff's economic relationship if defendant failed to use ordinary care in performing the transaction (Paragraph 5);
- There was a close connection between the defendant's negligence and the plaintiff's injury (Paragraph 8)
- The plaintiff's injury resulted in certain damages (Paragraphs 4, 8); and
- The defendant's conduct was blameworthy (Paragraphs 5-8).

A final criterion, the public policy of preventing future harm, appears to be a matter of judicial notice of the policy applicable to the particular facts [see J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 804-805, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60 ; *Chameleon Eng'g Corp. v. Air Dynamics Inc. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 418, 420-423, 161 Cal. PART IV. FORMS
D. Interference With Economic Relations

§ 565.292 Interference With Economic Relations--Affirmative Defense Allegation [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Bar of Statute of Limitations [Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1)]

[1] FORM Interference With Economic Relations--Affirmative Defense Allegation [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Bar of Statute of Limitations [Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1)]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE_____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES that the action is barred by the provisions of_____ [specify applicable section, e.g., Section 339, subdivision 1, of the Code of Civil Procedure].

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use by a defendant in an action for interference with economic relations to raise the bar of the statute of limitations by way of an affirmative defense allegation in his or her answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]. The limitation period is usually the two-year period set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1), although another period may apply when the defendant's conduct constitutes a separate tort [see Kiang v. Strycula (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 809, 811-812, 42 Cal. Rptr. 338 (Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1) applied); Romano v. Wilbur Ellis & Co. (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 670, 673-674, 186 P.2d 1012 (three-year period of former Code Civ. Proc. § 338(4) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)) applied when complaint alleged fraudulent conduct); see also § 565.137[3]]. For discussion relating to limitations periods generally, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions . For discussion relating to answers generally, including general forms into which this affirmative defense allegation may be inserted, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[3] Alternative Use of Demurrer

If the defense of the statute of limitations is apparent from the face of the complaint or from matter of which the court may take judicial notice, the objection may be raised by general demurrer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a); see Evid. Code §§ 451, 452 (judicial notice)]. The specific grounds must be pleaded (an exception to the general rule that general demurrers need only state that the complaint fails to state a cause of action). However, the defense of the statute of limitations is not waived for failure to demur, and may nonetheless be asserted as an affirmative defense in the answer [California Safe Deposit & Trust Co. v. Sierra Valleys Ry. Co. (1910) 158 Cal. 690, 697-698, 112 P. 274] . For further discussion and forms relating to demurrers generally, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

[4] State Statutes

Action based on liability not founded on written instrument must be brought within two years. Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1)

In pleading statute of limitations, facts showing defense are not required to be stated; pleading is permitted to state generally that action is barred by specified statutory provision that is relied on. Code Civ. Proc. § 458

[5] Decisons

Action for interference with business was barred when it was not commenced within two-year period embodied in Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1). McFaddin v. H.S. Crocker Co. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 585, 591, 33 Cal. Rptr. 389

49-565 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 565.293

§ 565.293 Interference With Economic Relations--Affirmative Defense Allegation [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Justification or Privilege

[1] FORM Interference With Economic Relations--Affirmative Defense Allegation [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Justification or Privilege

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE_____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that his/her conduct was_____ [justified or privileged] under the circumstances, in that_____ [allege facts showing justification or privilege, e.g., he/she was a corporate officer of_____ (name of third part y), acting within that corporate capacity with the sole purpose of protecting the interests of_____ (name of third party)].

This form is for use by a defendant as an affirmative defense allegation in his or her answer in an action based on intentional or negligent interference with a contract or other economic relationship [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]. The affirmative defense alleged is that the defendant's alleged conduct was justified or privileged under the particular circumstances.

In an action for interference with prospective economic relations, an element of the plaintiff's cause of action is that defendant's conduct was wrongful by some legal measure beyond the fact of interference itself [Della Penna v. Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 376, 393, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436, 902 P.2d 740] . For these purposes, conduct is independently wrongful if it is unlawful, which means that it must be conduct proscribed by some constitutional, statutory, regulatory, common law, or other determinable legal standard [Korea Supply Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1134, 1159, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29, 63 P.3d 937] . Because a plaintiff is required to prove that the defendant's conduct was unlawful as an element of the cause of action for intentional interference with prospective economic advantage that has not yet ripened into a contract, it would seem that the defendant's only real remaining burden in these actions on what was in the past considered the defense of justification is to counter the plaintiff's evidence and argument with the defendant's own showing that the conduct was not unlawful.

For further discussion relating to answers generally, including general forms into which this affirmative defense allegation may be inserted, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[3] Justification or Privilege

Whether a defendant's conduct is justified or privileged is a question of fact usually established by proof of facts rather than pleadings, whichturns essentially on whether the defendant's conduct was fair and reasonable under all the circumstances [Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 200, 228-229, 194 Cal. Rptr. 180 (overruled on other grounds in Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 521 n.10, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454); Lowell v. Mother's Cake & Cookie Co. (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 13, 17-21, 144 Cal. Rptr. 664] . There are, however, several general fact situations in which the defense is typically recognized. For example, this form alleges illustrative facts showing a "manager's privilege" to induce his or her principal to breach its contract or to otherwise sever its economic relationship with plaintiff, so long as his or her purpose was to protect the principal's interests [see Mayes v. Sturdy N. Sales, Inc. (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 69, 77-78, 154 Cal. Rptr. 43 ; Olivet v. Frischling (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 831, 840-841, 164 Cal. Rptr. 87 , disapproved on other grounds, Applied Equip. Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 521 n.10, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454] . For further discussion, including discussion of other situations in which the defense commonly arises, see*§ 565.137[4]*.

[4] Alternative Use of Demurrer

Justification or privilege is an affirmative defense that usually must be raised by way of allegation in the answer. It may be considered as a ground for demurrer only when it is apparent on the face of the complaint [see Lowell v. Mother's Cake & Cookie Co. (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 13, 18-19, 144 Cal. Rptr. 664 ; see, e.g., Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Bear Stearns & Co. (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 1118, 1125, 1137, 270 Cal. Rptr. 1, 791 P.2d 587 (right to induce litigation on contract held privileged on demurrer)]. In an action for interference with prospective economic relations, an element of the plaintiff's cause of action is that defendant's conduct was wrongful by some legal measure beyond the fact of interference itself [Della Penna v. Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 376, 393, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436, 902 P.2d 740 ; see § 565.290]. A demurrer would be used if the complaint did not allege wrongfulness. For further discussion and forms relating to demurrers generally, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

Volume 50: Usury thru Verification-Chs. 568-572
Chapter 568 USURY
PART I. SCOPE

§ 568.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses and provides forms relating to actions to recover usurious interest payments that have been made to a lender or other person on a loan or forbearance. The chapter examines the general usury provisions contained in the state constitution, as well as general statutory provisions and considerations for determining whether or not a given transaction is usurious. In addition, it discusses various federal preemptions of state law, and the numerous state statutory exceptions to the state constitutional provision.

The chapter includes forms of complaints for use in the following actions:

- To recover treble damages under the California constitutional and general statutory usury provisions [see § 568.120].

- To recover double damages under the federal provisions [see § 568.123].

- To recover actual, double, or treble damages under California real estate broker provisions [Forms 5, 6, and 7].

The chapter includes affirmative defense allegations for use in actions for breach of contract to assert the following defenses:

- Violation of the California constitutional usury provisions [Forms 2, 3].

- Violation of state laws regulating loans made by industrial loan companies, personal property brokers, or consumer finance lenders [Forms 8, 9].

Retail installment contracts, strictly speaking, are sales rather than loans [see Civ. Code § 1801.6 (establishing standards for determining whether transaction is loan or installment sale); Boerner v. Colwell Co. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 37, 43-46, 145 Cal. Rptr. 380, 577 P.2d 200] . A bona fide credit sale is not subject to usury laws because it does not involve a loan, although the contract of sale calls for interest to accrue at a rate that would be usurious [see Boerner v. Colwell

Co. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 37, 43-46, 145 Cal. Rptr. 380, 577 P.2d 200 ; Verbeck v. Clymer (1927) 202 Cal. 557, 562-563, 261 P. 1017] . Thus, retail installment contracts and the amounts of interest that may be charged in such a contract [see Civ. Code §§ 1803.1-1809.1; see also Civ. Code § 1810.1 et seq. (retail installment accounts)], do not involve usury and are discussed in Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales . For detailed discussion and forms relating to automobile sales contracts, which are governed separately from retail installment contracts in general [see Civ. Code § 2981 et seq. (Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act)], see Ch. 89, Automobiles: Sales and Financing Under the Rees-Levering Act .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

50-568 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 568.10

§ 568.10 Governing Law

[1] In General

The law governing maximum interest rates that may be charged on loans or forbearances is set forth generally in Cal. Const., art. XV § 1, the Usury Law, Stats. 1919, p. lxxxiii, as amended by Stats. 1970, ch. 784, § 1 (Deering's Annot. Uncod. Measures 1919-1; West's Annot. Civ. Code §§ 1916-1-1916-3; throughout the article, this provision will be cited as Deering's Annot. Uncod. Measures 1919-1; West's Annot. Civ. Code § 1916-1-1916-3), and Civ. Code §§ 1916.1-1916.12. Federal preemption of state usury laws is governed by 12 U.S.C.A. § 86a, Note (Pub. L. No. 96-221, § 512), 12 U.S.C. § 1735f-7, 12 U.S.C.A. § 1735f-7, Note (Pub. L. No. 96-221, § 501, as amended, and Pub. L. No. 96-221, §§ 528, 529), and 15 U.S.C. § 687(i)(3). The interest rates permitted by federal law, and the loans to which they apply, are governed by 12 U.S.C. §§ 86a, 1785, and 1831d, and 15 U.S.C. § 687. State statutory exemptions from the state constitutional usury laws are set forth generally in Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1. Specific exemptions are also set forth with respect to banks, associations, trust companies, and other fiduciaries in Fin. Code §§ 1504, 3707, 6515(c), and 7675. Additional statutes governing various specific types of loans and lenders may be found at Fin. Code § 14000 et seq. (credit unions); Fin. Code § 18000 et seq. (industrial loan companies); Fin. Code § 21000 et seq. (pawnbrokers); Fin. Code § 22000 et seq. (personal property brokers); Fin. Code § 24000 et seq. (consumer finance lenders); Fin. Code § 26000 et seq. (commercial finance lenders); Civ. Code § 1916.1 and Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10131 and 10240-10248.3 (real estate brokers); Civ. Code §§ 1803.1-1809.1(retail installment contracts); Civ. Code §§ 2981 et seq. (automobile sales contracts); Civ. Code § 1366(f) (common interest development associations); Ins. Code § 1100.1 (insurers); Corp. Code §§ 25110-25117, 25211, and 25211.5 (sales of securities); Gov. Code § 7509 (state or local public retirement systems); and Harb. & Nav. Code §§ 450, 455 (bottomry contracts).

Under the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.] and similar California law [see Mil. & Vet. Code § 400 et seq.], no obligation or liability bearing interest at a rate in excess of 6 percent per year incurred by a service member [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 511(1) (member of uniformed services); Mil. & Vet. Code § 400(a) (member of national guard or military reserve called to active duty)] before his or her entry into service can, during any part of the period of military service [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 511(2), (3); Mil. & Vet. Code § 400(b) (active service or active duty)], bear interest at a rate in excess of 6 percent per year unless, in the opinion of the court, on application by the obligee, the ability of the service member to pay interest on that obligation or liability at a rate in excess of 6 percent per year is not materially affected by reason of that service, in which case the court may make whatever order is in its opinion just. "Interest" includes service charges, renewal charges, fees, or any other charges, except bona fide charges for insurance, in respect of any obligation or liability [50 U.S.C. App. § 527(d); Mil. & Vet. Code § 405].

Unconscionability is governed by Civ. Code § 1670.5, which may be applied to bar enforcement of an interest rate otherwise within an exemption from the usury law [see Carboni v. Arrospide (1991) 2 Cal. App. 4th 76, 81-85, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 845] . For discussion of unconscionability and a form for an affirmative defense seeking to have an onerous term declared unconscionable, see Ch. 140, Contracts .

[2] Historical Background

California's first usury law was passed by initiative in 1918, setting the ceiling on permissible interest rates that may be charged on a loan or forbearance, and providing for civil and criminal remedies if those rates are exceeded [see Deering's Annot. Uncod. Measures 1919-1; West's Annot. Civ. Code § 1916-1-1916-3]. That law provided in part that the interest rate may not exceed seven percent, except that parties may contract in writing for an interest rate not exceeding twelve percent [Deering's Annot. Uncod. Measures 1919-1 § 1; West's Annot. Civ. Code § 1916-1].

In 1934, a state constitutional amendment was passed that lowered the contractual rate from 12 to 10 percent, and provided for various exemptions from the usury law [see former Cal. Const, art. XX, § 22]. The passage of the constitutional amendment did not supersede all of the provisions of the 1918 initiative, but did supersede the 1918 provisions to the extent that they conflicted with the constitutional amendment. Thus, the courts held that the constitutional amendment was to be read into the initiative provisions [see, e.g., Heald v. Friis-Hansen (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 834, 838, 345 P.2d 457 (state constitutional usury provisions read into statute)].

The civil and criminal penalties portion of the initiative [Deering's Annot. Uncod. Measures 1919-1, § 1; West's Annot. Civ. Code § 1916-3] was amended in 1970 [Stats. 1970, ch. 784, § 1]. Six years later, former Cal. Const, art. XX, § 22 was repealed and reenacted with changes as Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1. Subsequent amendments were made to Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1 in 1978 and 1979, including the addition of a different ceiling for a contractual interest rate if the loan or forbearance is for use other than primarily for personal, family, or household purposes. Even with the reenactment and various amendments, however, the courts have continued to hold that the constitutional amendment must be read into the initiative provisions [see, e.g., Arneill Ranch v. Petit (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 277, 280 n. 1, 134 Cal. Rptr. 456] . Both the constitutional and initiative provisions are discussed in detail in §§ 568.30, 568.31.

The Legislature has also enacted numerous statutes to exempt or to specially regulate certain types of interest rates, as discussed in § 568.30 et seq. However, these statutes, as well as the constitutional and initiative provisions, are subject to preemption by federal regulation, as discussed in § 568.50 et seq.

Any changes in the usury laws are retroactively applied to a transaction, unless a cause of action for usury regarding that transaction has been reduced to final judgment [Chapman v. Farr (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 1021, 1023, 183 Cal. Rptr. 606 ; Orden v. Crawshaw Mortgage & Inv. Co. (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 141, 144-146, 167 Cal. Rptr. 62 ; see Penziner v. West American Finance Co. (1937) 10 Cal. 2d 160, 170-171, 74 P.2d 252 (usury law provides recovery as statutory remedy and penalty, which may be repealed); Garcia v. Wetzel (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 1093, 1097-1098, 206 Cal. Rptr. 251 (1979 amendment to Civ. Code § 1916.1 applied retroactively)].

Chapter 568 USURY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

50-568 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 568.11

§ 568.11 Definitions and General Principles

Usury laws are enacted to limit the amount of interest that may be charged on a loan or forbearance of money [see, e.g., Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1]. A "loan of money" means a contract by which one delivers a sum of money to another, and the latter agrees to return at a future time a sum equivalent to that which he or she borrowed [Civ. Code § 1912]. A "forbearance of money" is the giving of further time for the payment of a debt or an agreement not to enforce a claim at its due date [Boerner v. Colwell Co. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 37, 44 n.7, 145 Cal. Rptr. 380, 577 P.2d 200 ; see Sheehy v. Franchise Tax Board (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 280, 283-284, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 760 (Franchise Tax Board's six-year delay in informing taxpayers of amount due was not "forbearance" and constitutional prohibition against usurious interest did not apply; true purpose of 10 percent interest rate on delinquent taxes was penalty assessment)]. "Interest" means the compensation allowed by law or fixed by the parties for the use, forbearance, or detention of money [Civ. Code § 1915].

A loan of money is presumed to be made on interest, unless otherwise expressly stipulated at the time in writing [Civ. Code § 1914; see Civ. Code § 1912 ("loan of money" defined)].

When a law or contract prescribes an interest rate but does not specify the period of time by which the rate is to be calculated, the rate is deemed to be an annual rate [Civ. Code § 1916].

In the case of joint venturers, one of whom holds a note made by the other to effectuate their venture, the usury law does not prevent enforcement of the note even though its terms would violate the usury law if the note had been made to memorialize a loan. Since the note is part of a transaction that is not a "loan or forbearance of any money, goods or things in action" [see Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1], the usury law does not apply. Whether a transaction is a joint venture or a loan is a question of fact [Junkin v. Golden West Foreclosure Serv., Inc. (2010) 180 Cal. App. 4th 1150, 1155-1158, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 582 (review of facts supported conclusion that parties to promissory note were joint venturers, not lender and borrower)]. This rule, which comes from case law, is sometimes called the "joint venture exception" to the usury law.

§ 568.12 Establishing That Transaction Is Usurious

[1] Credit Sale Versus Loan

Bona fide credit sales are exempt from the usury law on the theory that in a sale there is no loan or forbearance, and therefore no interest is involved at all [Fox v. Federated Department Stores, Inc. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 867, 876, 156 Cal. Rptr. 893] . In determining whether a transaction, disguised as a sale, actually constitutes a loan or forbearance, the court will look to the substance rather than the form of the transaction [Southwest Concrete Products v. Gosh Construction Corp. (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 701, 705, 274 Cal. Rptr. 404, 798 P.2d 1247 ; Boerner v. Colwell Co. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 37, 44, 145 Cal. Rptr. 380, 577 P.2d 200 ; see Ghirardo v. Antonioli (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 791, 802, 883 P.2d 960] . The issue is whether or not the bargain of the parties, assessed in light of all the circumstances and with a view to substance rather than form, has as its true object the hire of money at an excessive rate of interest [Southwest Concrete Products v. Gosh Construction Corp. (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 701, 705, 274 Cal. Rptr. 404, 798 P.2d 1247 ; Boerner v. Colwell Co. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 37, 44, 145 Cal. Rptr. 380, 577 P.2d 200] . For example, a lease-back arrangement may be found to be a loan merely disguised as lease-back [see, e.g., Rochester Capital Leasing Corp. v. K & L Litho Corp. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 697, 701, 91 Cal. Rptr. 827] . On the other hand, an interest-bearing promissory note may be found to be part of a sale if it is included as part of the purchase price in the legitimate sale of a going business [see, e.g., La France Enterprises v. Van Der Linden (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 375, 381, 138 Cal. Rptr. 690 ; Lenes v. Dean (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 845, 848, 135 Cal. Rptr. 14] . Similarly, the purchase of a note at a discount may be found to be a sale rather than a loan [see, e.g., Moe v. Transamerica Title Ins. Co. (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 289, 300, 98 Cal. Rptr. 547] .

An agreement imposing a monthly "late charge" on a buyer's past due account is typically characterized as a credit sale rather than a forbearance because the parties did not intend that the buyer could forbear from making full payment ad infinitum or that the creditor could never recover the principal as long as the late charges were being paid [see Southwest Concrete Products v. Gosh Construction Corp. (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 701, 708, 274 Cal. Rptr. 404, 798 P.2d 1247 ; O'Connor v. Televideo System, Inc. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 709, 717, 267 Cal. Rptr. 237] .

Under the "time-price" doctrine, a transaction is exempt from the usury law if the seller finances the purchase of property by extending payments over time and charging a higher price for carrying the financing [Southwest Concrete Products v. Gosh Construction Corp. (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 701, 705, 274 Cal. Rptr. 404, 798 P.2d 1247 ; see Ghirardo v. Antonioli (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 791, 802-803, 883 P.2d 960] . When a seller offers to sell at a designated price for cash or at a much higher price on credit, the credit sale does not constitute usury, however great the difference between the two prices, unless the "sale" was a mere pretense [Verbeck v. Clymer (1927) 202 Cal. 557, 563, 261 P. 1017] . A retailer's "finance charges" have been held valid under the time-price doctrine when they were charged to a consumer holding a revolving charge account in the form of a credit card [Fox v. Federated Department Stores, Inc. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 867, 874, 880, 156 Cal. Rptr. 893 (upholding otherwise usurious charges authorized by Unruh Act; for discussion of the Unruh Act, see Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales]. Commercial sellers also may legally impose such finance charges in connection with revolving charge accounts [see Fox v. Federated Department Stores, Inc. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 867, 873, 156 Cal. Rptr. 893] . "Late charges," which a seller bills to the buyer if full payment is not made within a certain number of days after delivery of goods, have also been held valid under the time-price doctrine [Southwest Concrete Products v. Gosh Construction Corp. (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 701, 707, 709, 274 Cal. Rptr. 404, 798 P.2d 1247 ; see Fox v. Federated Department Stores, Inc. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 867, 884-885, 156 Cal. Rptr. 893 (upholding finance charges on credit card account requiring full payment every month)]. It appears, however, that even when "late charges" do not run afoul of the usury laws, they may still be challenged as illegal liquidated damages provisions [see Beasley v. Wells Fargo Bank (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1383, 1398-1401, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 446 (exempt credit card issuer's late-payment and over-limit fees held invalid under Civ. Code § 1671(d)), disapproved on other grounds, Olson v. Automobile Club of So. Cal. (2008) 42 Cal. 4th 1142, 1153 n.6]. For further discussion of liquidated damages, see Ch. 177, Damages .

The legal distinction between a credit sale and a loan has become increasingly blurred, and some courts are now admitting that the decision to label a transaction usurious turns more on policy than on the mechanics of the transaction. For example, in DCM Partners v. Smith (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 729, 278 Cal. Rptr. 778 , the court held that a private seller who financed a buyer's purchase of real estate could legally raise the interest rate on the secured loan to 15 percent as a condition for extending the loan's maturity date. The court reasoned that to invalidate such transactions would chill the willingness of nonexempt lenders to extend credit, thereby harming consumers. In addition, the court argued, the lender could have legally achieved the same practical result by the more convoluted process of obtaining the property through foreclosure and reselling it to the buyer with financing at the higher 15 percent rate, thereby transacting a bona fide credit sale permissible under the "time-price" doctrine [see DCM Partners v. Smith (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 729, 733-736, 734 n.1, 278 Cal. Rptr. 778] . This rationale was subsequently adopted by the Ghirardo v. Antonioli (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 791, 883 P.2d 960 , in which the Court held that the restructuring of an arrangement under which one party transferred an interest in real property to another in exchange for a promissory note and deed of trust was exempt from the usury laws. The original transaction was characterized as a sale rather than a loan, and therefore was found to be exempt under the "time-price" doctrine [Ghirardo v. Antonioli (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 791, 802-803, 883 P.2d 960] . The contention was that the terms of new notes, executed as a result of the restructuring of the transaction to avoid foreclosure, were usurious. However, the Court concluded that since the original transaction was exempt from the usury laws, a modification of that transaction was similarly exempt [Ghirardo v. Antonioli (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 791, 804, 883 P.2d 960] , even though the interest rate on the modification was greater than that on the original transaction [Ghirardo v. Antonioli (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 791, 806, 883 P.2d 960] . The court reasoned that it would be impractical and unfair to both buyer and seller if the only alternative to foreclosure for a seller who had suffered a default was the extension of credit to the buyer on new terms favorable only to the buyer [Ghirardo v. Antonioli (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 791, 804-806, 883 P.2d 960] . The fact that that the original purchaser had sold the property to another party at the time the restructuring had occurred did not alter this result [Ghirardo v. Antonioli (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 791, 804-805, 883 P.2d 960] .

The transfer of structured settlement payments under the Structured Settlement Transfer Act [Ins. Code § 10136 et seq.] does not implicate the prohibition against usury in Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1 because a structured settlement transfer is not a loan or forbearance but is instead a sale, as indicated in Ins. Code § 10136(b) [321 Henderson Receivables Origination LLC v. Sioteco (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 1059, 1077, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 321] .

[2] Variable Interest Rate

An agreement may contain a variable interest rate that exceeds the constitutional limit if a specific contingency occurs. This type of interest rate is not deemed usurious if the transaction is consummated in good faith without intent to avoid the usury laws [see, e.g., McConnell v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 365, 377-378, 146 Cal. Rptr. 371, 578 P.2d 1375 ; Arneill Ranch v. Petit (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 277, 289, 134 Cal. Rptr. 456] . For further discussion of loans secured by real property that provide for variable interest rates, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 25, Real Property Security Estate Loans (Matthew Bender).

50-568 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 568.30

§ 568.30 Maximum Rate of Interest Under State Constitutional Provisions

Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1 provides that the interest rate on a loan or forbearance of any money, goods, or things in action, or on accounts after demand, is seven percent per annum, but it is competent for the parties to any loan or forbearance of any money, goods, or things in action to contract for a higher rate of interest as specified [Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1].

Parties to any loan or forbearance of any money, goods, or things in action for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes may nevertheless contract in writing for an interest rate not exceeding 10 percent per annum. In this context, however, a loan or forbearance is not deemed for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes if its proceeds are used primarily for the purchase, construction, or improvement of real property [Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1(1)].

Parties to any loan or forbearance of any money, goods, or things in action for use other than primarily for personal, family, or household purposes may also contract in writing for an interest rate other than the seven percent rate, if the rate does not exceed the higher of (a) 10 percent per annum or (b) five percent per annum plus the rate established by the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco on advances to member banks, or if the rate is not determinable, the closest counterpart of the rate as designated by the California Superintendent of Banks or another person or agency delegated the authority by the California Legislature. For the purposes of determining the maximum rate permitted under (b), the rate used in the computation is that which prevails on the 25th day of the month preceding the earlier of (1) the date of execution of the contract to make the loan or forbearance, or (2) the date of making the loan or forbearance [Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1(2)].

In general, no person, association, partnership, or corporation may, by charging a fee, bonus, commission, discount, or other compensation, receive from a borrower more than these authorized interest rates on any loan or forbearance of any money, goods, or things in action [Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1]. However, numerous classes of persons are specifically exempted from these rate restrictions, including savings associations, industrial loan companies, credit unions, licensed pawnbrokers, licensed personal property brokers, licensed real estate brokers, banks, certain nonprofit cooperative associations, and any other class of persons authorized by statute, as well as any successor in interest to any loan or forbearance exempted from the rate restrictions [see Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1]. Instead, the Legislature may prescribe the maximum rate per annum of these exempted persons [Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1]. For further discussion of exempted classes, see § 568.70 et seq.

The California Constitution requires the Legislature to set the interest rate on a court judgment at not more than 10 percent per annum. Otherwise, the rate will be deemed to be seven percent per annum. The rate may be variable and based on interest rates charged by federal agencies or economic indicators, or both [Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1]. Currently, the Legislature has set the rate at 10 percent per annum on the principal amount of a money judgment remaining unsatisfied; however, the Legislature has reserved the right to change this rate to one less than 10 percent per annum for future interest that accrues [Code Civ. Proc. § 685.010].

The provisions of Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1 supersede any previously adopted constitutional provision or enacted statute to the contrary [Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1; see discussion in § 568.10[2]]. However, Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1, is preempted by any federal law to the contrary. For example, prejudgment interest at the market rate in an inverse condemnation case is proper even if the rate exceeds the legal rate set by Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1, and Code Civ. Proc. § 685.010, because the right to prejudgment interest in an inverse condemnation suit derives from U.S. Const., amend. V, which has supremacy under U.S. Const., art. VI, cl. 2, over any state constitutional provision or statute to the contrary [see, e.g., Aetna Life & Casualty Co. v. City of Los Angeles (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 865, 879, 216 Cal. Rptr. 831] .

§ 568.32 Remedies Available When Transaction Shown to Be Usurious Under General Provisions

[1] Interest Provision Null and Void

Any agreement or contract of any nature that provides for an interest rate greater than the maximum rate allowed under Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1, or that provides for compounded interest or interest on interest but is not in a writing that is signed by the party to be charged, is null and void as to any agreement or stipulation to pay interest [Deering's Annot. Uncod. Measures 1919-1 § 2; West's Annot. Civ. Code § 1916-2; see Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1; Gibbo v. Berger (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 396, 403, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 829 ; Winnett v. Roberts (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 909, 921, 225 Cal. Rptr. 82 ; see also Heald v. Friis-Hansen (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 834, 838, 345 P.2d 457 (state constitutional usury provisions read into statute); Arneill Ranch v. Petit (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 277, 280 n. 1, 134 Cal. Rptr. 456 (same)]. When a loan is usurious the creditor is entitled to repayment of principal only [Gibbo v. Berger (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 396, 403, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 829 ; Winnett v. Roberts (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 909, 921, 225 Cal. Rptr. 82] .

[2] Action at Law

[a] Treble Damages

Any person, company, association, or corporation who has paid any greater sum or value than is allowed may recover treble the violative amount paid, in an action at law against the person, company, association, or corporation to whom the interest was paid [Deering's Annot. Uncod. Measures 1919-1 § 3(a); West's Annot. Civ. Code § 1916-3(a); Gibbo v. Berger (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 396, 404, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 829] . Treble the entire amount of interest may be recovered, not merely treble the excess permissible amount [Haines v. Commercial Mortgage Co. (1927) 200 Cal. 609, 617, 254 P. 956, 255 P. 805 (overruled on other grounds in Heald v. Friis-Hansen (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 834, 840, 345 P.2d 457)].

The action must be brought within one year after any payment in order to recover treble the amount of that payment [Deering's Annot. Uncod. Measures 1919-1 § 3(a); West's Annot. Civ. Code § 1916-3(a)]. It is immaterial whether or not any principal remains unpaid at the time the interest is paid [Arneill Ranch v. Petit (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 277, 296, 134 Cal. Rptr. 456] .

The court has wide discretion in determining whether treble damages should be awarded [Burr v. Capital Reserve Corp. (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 983, 994, 80 Cal. Rptr. 345, 458 P.2d 185 (usurer's unjustifiable claim on title to property is not conduct so shocking as to require treble damages as matter of law); Gibbo v. Berger (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 396, 404, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 829 (treble damages award is at trial court's discretion)]. However, because public policy favors subjecting a usurious lender to a treble damage penalty, a court might exercise its discretion to deny the penalty only if the borrower rather than the lender was the moving force in the usurious loan [see, e.g., Buck v. Dahlgren (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 779, 787-789, 100 Cal. Rptr. 462 (borrower suggested and initiated usurious method of payment and induced method through fraudulent representations)].

[b] Money Had and Received

In addition to or in lieu of a cause of action for treble damages, the party who has paid any greater sum or value than is allowed may bring a cause of action against the person to whom the sum was paid to recover money had and received [Stock v. Meek (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 809, 816-817, 221 P.2d 15] . Interest paid within two years of the bringing of the action may be recovered [Stock v. Meek (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 809, 816-817, 221 P.2d 15 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1) (two-year statute of limitations for money had and received)]. Thus, any amount paid more than one year but less than two years from the date of the bringing of the action, for which treble damage recovery is barred as being untimely, may still be recoverable if the action is brought within the two-year period [see, e.g., Stock v. Meek (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 809, 817, 221 P.2d 15 (borrowers not barred from counterclaiming to recover usurious interest paid 14 months before complaint was filed); cf. G.H.I.I. v. MTS, Inc. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 256, 278-279, 195 Cal. Rptr. 211 (plaintiffs entitled to actual damages from antitrust violations that accrued within three years of filing of complaint and to treble damages from antitrust violations that accrued within one year of filing of complaint)]. However, the statute of limitations on recovery of usurious interest does not apply if the lender has initiated foreclosure proceedings based on the usurious note; in that case the borrower may cross-complain for recovery of all interest actually paid [Gibbo v. Berger (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 396, 404, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 829 (in foreclosure action, cross-complaint for unjust enrichment not barred by statute of limitations)].

Although in many cases a plaintiff may recover the amount of interest paid even though treble damages are not awarded, a court may refuse to allow any recovery when the circumstances justify a finding that no award is appropriate [see Buck v. Dahlgren (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 779, 788, 100 Cal. Rptr. 462 (plaintiff held to be estopped from any recovery)].

[3] Action in Equity

The party who has paid or agreed to pay any greater sum or value than is allowed may bring an action in equity for declaratory relief to declare the interest provisions of the contract void [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060; see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1061 (necessity of declaration), 1062 (declaration not exclusive remedy)]. For discussion and forms relating to declaratory relief actions, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief . An action for reformation of the contract to eliminate its interest provisions may also be brought under certain circumstances [see Civ. Code §§ 3399-3402]. For discussion and forms relating to the reformation of contracts, see Ch. 488, Reformation of Instruments .

[4] Rights of Usurer to Recover Debt but Not Interest

The party to whom the interest is to be paid under the terms of the agreement may not maintain an action at law to recover that interest in any sum [Deering's Annot. Uncod. Measures 1919-1 § 2; West's Civ. Code § 1916-2; Gibbo v. Berger (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 396, 403, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 829 ; Winnett v. Roberts (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 909, 921, 225 Cal. Rptr. 82] , and cannot declare the debt to be due until the full period of time for which it was contracted has elapsed [Deering's Annot. Uncod. Measures 1919-1 § 2; West's Annot. Civ. Code § 1916-2].

When the debt matures, the payee is entitled to payment of the principal sum in full. If the payor fails to make timely payment of the principal at the date of maturity, the payee is entitled to payment of interest on the principal at the legal rate from the date the note matures until the time at which the payee obtains a judgment, as would the payee of any other noninterest-bearing note [Epstein v. Frank (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 111, 123, 177 Cal. Rptr. 831] .

[5] Defense and Cross Complaint to Complaint by Usurer to Recover Debt

In an action to recover a debt, the payor may assert usury as a defense to the payment of interest. The defendant must affirmatively plead the defense of usury, or it will be deemed waived [Willcox v. Edwards (1912) 162 Cal. 455, 462, 123 P. 276] . However, if the contract is usurious on its face, the court may deny interest on its motion, regardless of whether the defense has been affirmatively pleaded [Curtis v. Thaxter (1928) 204 Cal. 439, 440, 268 P. 630] .

Insofar as a guaranteed debt for interest is unenforceable on the ground of usury, the guarantor's contract cannot be construed or enforced so as to waive the guarantor's right to raise that defense, since a promise to pay usurious interest is illegal and therefore cannot be enforced on any theory [WRI Opportunity Loans II, LLC v. Cooper (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 525, 542-544, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 205].

The payor may file a cross complaint for treble damages [Rice v. Dunlap (1928) 205 Cal. 133, 137 ; Gibbo v. Berger (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 396, 404, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 829 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10]. The amount to be recovered by the payor may be offset from the principal amount owing on the debt [Rice v. Dunlap (1928) 205 Cal. 133, 137 ; see District Bond Co. v. Haley (1935) 2 Cal. 2d 308, 311, 41 P.2d 319] .

[6] Criminal Liability

A person who willfully makes or negotiates a usurious interest rate and who is neither specially licensed to make or to negotiate loans nor exempted from the licensing or usury laws is guilty of the felony of loan-sharking [Deering's Annot. Uncod. Measures 1919-1 § 3(b); West's Annot. Civ. Code § 1916-3(b)].

Congress has enacted legislation that preempts certain state constitutional and statutory usury provisions [see 12 U.S.C.A. § 86a, Note (Pub. L. No. 96-221, § 512, as amended (certain business and agricultural loans)); 12 U.S.C. § 1735f-7 (certain insured loans, mortgages, or advances); 12 U.S.C.A. § 1735f-7, Note (Pub. L. C. Federal Preemption of State Laws

§ 568.51 Depository Institutions

[1] General Preemption of Laws Restricting Interest Rates

Any state constitutional and statutory provision that expressly limits the rate or amount of interest that may be charged, taken, received, or reserved is preempted by federal law and does not apply to any deposit or account held by, or other obligation of, a depository institution [12 U.S.C.A. § 1735f-7, Note (Pub. L. No. 96-221, § 501(a)(2), as amended)].

For purposes of this preemption, a depository institution includes [12 U.S.C.A. § 1735f-7, Note (Pub. L. No. 96-221, § 501(a)(2), as amended)]:

- Any insured depository institution, any mutual savings bank, and any savings bank, as defined in the Federal Deposit Insurance Act, § 3 (12 U.S.C. § 1813); and

- Any insured credit union as defined in the Federal Credit Union Act, § 101 (12 U.S.C. § 1752).

[2] Federal Rate Restrictions for State-Chartered Insured Depository Institutions, Insured Branches of Foreign Banks, and Insured Credit Unions

A state-chartered insured depository institution, including an insured savings bank and insured branch of a foreign bank, and any credit union whose member accounts are insured in accordance with 12 U.S.C. § 1781 et seq. may take, receive, reserve, and charge on any loan, discount, note, bill of exchange, or other evidence of debt, interest at a rate of not more than 1 percent in excess of the discount rate on 90-day commercial paper in effect at the Federal Reserve Bank in the Federal Reserve District where the bank is located, or at the rate allowed by the laws of the state, territory, or district where the bank is located, whichever is greater. This maximum rate applies notwithstanding any state constitution or statute to the contrary [12 U.S.C. §§ 1785(g)(1), 1831d(a); see 12 U.S.C. § 1752(7) (powers of federal credit union)]. California law currently does not reject the preemption; in fact, California law specifically exempts these institutions from the state constitutional usury provisions [see Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1 (exemption for credit union); Fin. Code §§ 1504 (exemption for state bank authorized to engage in trust business, when acting in its fiduciary capacity, or national bank authorized to engage in trust business, when acting in its fiduciary capacity, if it maintains main or branch office in California, or foreign (other state) state bank authorized to engage in a trust business, when acting in its fiduciary capacity, if it maintains branch office in California), 1716 (exemption for foreign (other nation) bank), 3707 (exemption for bank holding company), 3805 (exemption for foreign (other state) state bank), 6515(c) (exemption for association, federal association, or service corporation, when acting in fiduciary capacity as trustee), 7675 (exemption for association, federal association, qualified foreign savings association, savings and loan holding company, and service corporation); see also discussion of these exemptions in § 568.71].

If a state bank or insured branch of a foreign bank knowingly takes, receives, reserves, or charges a greater rate of interest than allowed when state law is preempted pursuant to 12 U.S.C. § 1785(g)(1) or 1831d(a), the entire interest is deemed forfeited. Furthermore, the person who paid any amount of the interest may recover twice that amount in a civil action commenced in a court of appropriate jurisdiction within two years after the date of the payment [12 U.S.C. §§ 1785(g)(2), 1831d(b)]. Either federal or state court may be a court of appropriate jurisdiction [see 28 U.S.C. § 1331; Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 86, 116.220].

§ 568.52 Federally Related Mortgage Loans

Any state constitutional and statutory provision that expressly limits the rate or amount of interest, discount points, finance charges, or other charges that may be charged, taken, received, or reserved is preempted and does not apply to any federally related mortgage loan made in California on or after April 1, 1980, that is secured by a first lien on residential real property, on a residential manufactured home, or on all stock allocated to a dwelling unit in a residential cooperative housing corporation [12 U.S.C. §§ 1735f-5(b), 1735f-7; 12 U.S.C.A. § 1735f-7, Note (Pub. L. No. 96-221, § 501(a)(1), (b), as amended)]. "Federally related mortgage loan" refers to certain federally insured, sponsored, or otherwise associated loans that are secured by residential real property designed principally for the occupancy of from one to four families [see 12 U.S.C. § 1735f-5(b) ("federally related mortgage loan" defined)]. Since neither the California Legislature nor the voters of California adopted a law or provision before April 1, 1983, that stated explicitly and by its terms that California does not want the preemption to apply, the federal provisions will continue to apply and preempt state law on the subject, now and in the future [see 12 U.S.C.A. § 1735f-7, Note (Pub. L. No. 96-221, § 501(b))].

§ 568.53 Credit Card Interest and Late Payment Fees

The National Bank Act of 1864 provides that a national bank may charge its loan customers interest at the rate allowed by the laws of the state where the bank is located [12 U.S.C. § 85; see Beneficial National Bank v. Anderson (2003) 539 U.S. 1, 123 S.Ct. 2058, 2060, 156 L.Ed. 2d 1 (National Bank Act provides exclusive cause of action for usury claims against national banks; thus usury action against national bank filed in state court could be removed to federal court because it actually arose under federal law)]. This provision authorizes a national bank to charge out-of-state credit card customers an interest rate allowed by the bank's home state, even when that rate is higher than what is permitted by the states in which the cardholders reside [Marquette Nat. Bank of Minneapolisv. First of Omaha Service Corp. (1978) 439 U.S. 299, 318, 99 S. Ct. 540, 58 L. Ed. 2d 534] . That provision of the Act also authorizes a national bank to charge late payment fees that are lawful in the bank's home state but prohibited in the states where the cardholders reside. In other words, the statutory term "interest" encompasses late payment fees [Smiley v. Citibank (1996) 517 U.S. 735, 116 S. Ct. 1730, 1736, 135 L. Ed. 2d 25 ; see 12 C.F.R. § 7.4001(a) (term "interest" in 12 U.S.C. § 85 includes late payment fees)].

§ 568.54 Small Business Investment Company

A small business investment company may charge interest on a business loan at a rate that does not exceed the maximum rate prescribed by regulation by the Small Business Administration for loans made by any licensee [15 U.S.C. § 687(i)(2)]. That rate is determined without regard to any state rate incorporated by the regulation [15 U.S.C. § 687(i)(2)]. A state law or constitutional provision is preempted for these purposes if the loan is made on or after April 1, 1980, and before either the state adopts a law or certifies that the voters of that state have voted to adopt a law or provision that explicitly rejects the preemption [15 U.S.C. § 687(i)(3)]. No such law or provision has been adopted in California.

If the maximum rate so authorized exceeds the rate that would be authorized by applicable state law if that state law were not preempted for computation purposes, any charging of an interest rate in excess of the authorized rate is deemed a forfeiture of the greater of (1) all interest carried with the loan, or (2) all interest agreed to be paid on the loan [15 U.S.C. § 687(i)(4)(A)]. If the interest is forfeited, the person who paid the interest may recover from the company an amount equal to twice the amount of interest paid on the loan. The interest may be recovered in a civil action commenced in a court of appropriate jurisdiction within two years after the most recent payment of interest [15 U.S.C. § 687(i)(4)(B)].

Numerous classes of persons are specifically exempted from the interest rate restrictions of Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1. In addition, the Legislature is authorized to enact statutes designating classes of persons to be exempted from these usury provisions [Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1].

Nevertheless, even an interest rate exempted from the usury law may be unenforceable on the ground of unconscionability [see Civ. Code § 1670.5; Carboni v. Arrospide (1991) 2 Cal. App. 4th 76, 81-85, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 845 (affirming finding of unconscionability of secured note providing 200 percent annual interest rate over one and one-half year term)]. For discussion of unconscionability and a form of affirmative defense seeking to have an onerous term declared unconscionable, see Ch. 140, Contracts .

§ 568.71 Banks, Associations, Trust Companies, and Other Fiduciaries

The restrictions on interest rates contained in Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1 do not apply to any obligations of, loans made or arranged by, or forbearances of any of the following:

- Any California state bank authorized to engage in a trust business, when acting in its fiduciary capacity [Fin. Code § 1504(a)].

- Any national bank authorized to engage in a trust business, when acting in its fiduciary capacity, if it maintains its main office or a branch office in California [Fin. Code § 1504(b); see Jones v. Wells Fargo Bank (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1527, 1534-1535, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 835 (because loan and forbearance agreement made by national bank both fell squarely within Fin. Code § 1504 exemption, they were not illegal under California usury law)].

- Any foreign (other state) state bank authorized to engage in a trust business, when acting in its fiduciary capacity, if it maintains a branch office in California [Fin. Code § 1504(c)].

- Any association [Fin. Code § 7565; see Fin. Code § 5102(a) (defining "association"); see also Fin. Code § 6515(c) (exemption for association acting in fiduciary capacity as trustee)].

- Any federal association [Fin. Code § 7675(a); see Fin. Code § 6515(c) (exemption for federal association acting in fiduciary capacity as trustee)].

- A qualified foreign savings association [Fin. Code § 7675(a); see Fin. Code §§ 10000(c) (defining foreign savings association), 10002, 10003 (qualification)].

- Any savings and loan holding company [Fin. Code § 7675(a)].

- Any subsidiary of a savings and loan holding company that is not an association [Fin. Code §

7675(a)],

- Any service corporation that is a subsidiary of an association, federal association, or qualified foreign association [Fin. Code § 7675(a)].

- Any service corporation that is authorized to exercise trust powers and is acting in its fiduciary capacity as trustee [Fin. Code § 6515(c)].

- A bank holding company or subsidiary of a bank holding company that is not a bank [Fin. Code § 3707].

Any foreign bank from another state is exempted from the restrictions on interest rates contained in Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1 [Fin. Code § 3805(a)].

Any foreign bank from another nation is similarly exempted if, at the time it makes a loan or forbearance, or executes a contract for a loan or forbearance, the bank has assets equal to at least $100 million and is licensed to maintain an office in California or in another state or to maintain a federal branch in any state [Fin. Code § 1716].

The obligations of, loans made by, or forbearances of any credit union governed by Fin. Code § 14000 et seq. are exempted from the restrictions on interest rates contained in Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1 [see Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1 (specifying exemption for former act governing credit unions, repealed and now replaced by Fin. Code § 14000 et seq.)].

A credit union may assess charges as approved by the board of directors for failure to meet punctually obligations to the credit union. Any late charge may be made only once for each delinquent payment and is subject to Civ. Code § 2954.5 (requiring notice to the borrower before imposition of the late charge), Division 1.1 of the Financial Code [see Fin. Code § 4000 et seq.], and any other applicable law [*Fin. State law places certain restrictions on certain charges that may be levied in connection with a loan by an industrial loan company [see, e.g., Fin. Code §§ 18212, 18212.1, 18300, 18625-18631]. If any amount in excess of permitted charges, including interest, is charged, contracted for, or received in the making or collection of a contract of such a loan except as a result of accidental or bona fide error in computation, the contract is void and the company may not collect or receive the principal, interest, or charges [Fin. Code § 18439]. Furthermore, a director, officer, or employee of an industrial loan company, its holding company, or its affiliate, who concurs in any vote or act by which it is intended to make a loan or purchase such a contract is guilty of a misdemeanor [*Fin. § 568.75 Pawnbroker

[1] In General

The obligations of, loans made by, or forbearances of any licensed pawnbroker are exempt from the restrictions on interest rates contained in Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1 [see Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1; Fin. Code § 21000 et seq.]. This exemption, however, applies only to pawn transactions within the scope of the pawnbroker license [Agapitov v. Lerner (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 830, 832, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 837 (pawnbroker could not claim benefit of pawnbroker exemption from usury law with respect to loan that was not pawn transaction, did not comply with statutory requirements, and was not made within scope of pawnbroker's license)]. Except as otherwise provided in Fin. Code §§ 21200-21209, no pawnbroker may charge or receive compensation, for a loan of a bona fide principal amount of less than $2,500, at a rate exceeding the sum of the following [Fin. Code §§ 21051, 21200(a)] after the first 90 days [Fin. Code § 21201.4]:

- Two and one-half percent per month on the unpaid principal balance of the loan that is equal to or less than $225;
- Two percent per month on the unpaid principal balance between $225.01-$900;
- One and one-half percent per month on the unpaid principal balance between $900.01-$1,650;
- One percent per month on any remainder of the unpaid principal balance in excess of $1,650; and
- A charge not exceeding $3 a month on any loan when the monthly permitted charge would otherwise be less than $3.

One month's interest may be charged for any part of the month in which pawned property is redeemed [Fin. Code § 21200(b)].

A loan setup fee not to exceed $5 or 2 percent, whichever is greater, may be charged for each loan. However, the maximum loan setup fee may not exceed $10. Loan setup fees are in addition to any other allowed charges [Fin. Code § 21200.1].

If the principal amount of the loan is less than $2,500, then for the first 90 days of a loan having a term longer than 90 days [Fin. Code § 21201.4], or for the term of a loan having a term of up to 90 days, a licensed pawnbroker may charge for a loan as follows [Fin. Code § 21200.5; see also Fin. Code § 21051(a)]:

- $1 or less for a 30-day loan of no more than $14.99.
- $3 or less for a 90-day loan of $15-$19.99.
- $4 or less for a 90-day loan of $20-$24.99.
- $5 or less for a 90-day loan of $25-$39.99.
- $6 or less for a 90-day loan of $40-$49.99.
- $7.50 or less for a 90-day loan of $50-$64.99.
- $8.50 or less for a 90-day loan of $65-$74.99.
- $10 or less for a 90-day loan of $75-$99.99.
- $12.50 or less for a 90-day loan of $100-$124.99.
- $13.50 or less for a 90-day loan of $125-$149.99.
- $15 or less for a 90-day loan of $150-$224.99.
- $20 or less for a 90-day loan of $225-$324.99.
- $25 or less for a 90-day loan of $325-$449.99.
- $35 or less for a 90-day loan of $450-$599.99.
- $45 or less for a 90-day loan of $600-$799.99.
- $55 or less for a 90-day loan of $800-$999.99.
- $70 or less for a 90-day loan of $1,000-$1,199.99.
- $85 or less for a 90-day loan of $1,200-$1,499.99.
- $100 or less for a 90-day loan of $1,500-$1,799.99.
- $120 or less for a 90-day loan of $1,800-$2,099.99.
- $140 or less for a 90-day loan of $2,100-$2,499.99.

The charge for any extension or renewal of a loan must be computed in accordance with the provisions of Fin. Code § 21200 [Fin. Code § 21200.5(v)].

In addition to other charges allowed, and irrespective of the duration of the time the article is in pledge, a pawnbroker may collect at the time the property is redeemed handling and storage charges based on the size of each article pawned as follows [Fin. Code § 21200.6(a); see Fin. Code § 21200.6(c) (measurements taken at widest, deepest, and highest points)]:

- $5 for any article that cannot be contained within one cubic foot.
- $10 for any article that cannot be contained within three cubic feet.
- $20 for any article that cannot be contained within six cubic feet.
- $1 for each additional cubic foot, in excess of six cubic feet.

Whenever a pledger, or his or her assignee, loses a pawn ticket, a fee not to exceed $10 may be charged for services of verifying the identification of the claimant, fingerprinting the claimant, and having the claimant execute a declaration under penalty of perjury [Fin. Code § 21201.1]. If the pledger fails to redeem any pawned item during the loan period, thereby obliging the pawnbroker to mail the notice required under Fin. Code § 21201, the pawnbroker may charge a fee of up to $3 for services and costs pertaining to the preparation of the notice, in addition to any other allowed charges [Fin. Code § 21201.2].

No additional charge is allowed for any article that can be contained within one cubic foot [Fin. Code § 21200.6(b)].

In addition to other charges allowed, a pawnbroker may also collect a $4 processing charge for each firearm pawned [Fin. Code § 21200.8].

A pawnbroker who knowingly charges, or should know that he or she is charging, more than the permitted amount is guilty of a misdemeanor [see Fin. Code § 21209]. However, the Financial Code does not specify a particular civil remedy against a pawnbroker for charging excessive fees.

[2] Licensure

The chief of police, the sheriff, or when appropriate, the police commissioner, must accept an application for and grant a license permitting the licensee to engage in the business of pawnbroker, at the address indicated on the application, to an applicant who has complied with the statutory requirements and has not been convicted of an attempt to receive stolen property or any other offense involving stolen property [Fin. Code § 21300(a); see Fin. Code §§ 21000 ("pawnbroker" defined), 21303-21305 (statutory requirements); see also Fin. Code § 21300(b) ("convicted" defined)]. No person may be denied a pawnbroker's license solely on the grounds that he or she violated any provision of Fin. Code §§ 21000-21209 (definitions and pawnbroker regulations) or Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21625-21653 (tangible personal property or resale of goods) unless the violation demonstrates a pattern of conduct [Fin. Code § 21300(c)].

The statutory requirements require a pawnbroker licensee to file a two-year nonrevocable surety bond in the sum of $20,000 [Fin. Code § 21303(a)]. The applicant must also file a financial statement confirming that the applicant has at least $100,000 in liquid assets, not including real property, readily available for use in the business for which the application is made, or in the absence of $100,000, an applicant may post a nonrevocable surety bond for $100,000. In lieu of posting a surety bond, the applicant may deposit money, certificates, accounts, bonds, or notes as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 995.710 (the Bond and Undertaking Law) [Fin. Code § 21304(a)]. The financial statement must be filed by the applicant under penalty of perjury and signed by a California Certified Public Accountant verifying that he or she has reviewed the financial statement [Fin. Code § 21304(a)]. However, the requirement of filing a financial statement does not apply to any person holding a secondhand dealers license [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21641, 21642] and who is actively engaged as a pawnbroker on January 1, 1994 [Fin. Code § 21304(b)]. In addition, a pawnbroker licensed under Fin. Code § 21300 is exempt from the licensing requirements under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21641 and 21642 and may engage in any transaction involving tangible personal property for which a secondhand dealers license is required. Pawnbrokers operating under this license exemption are required to conform to all other requirements of secondhand dealers for which a license is required under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21641 and 21642 [Fin. Code § 21306].

The licensure provisions also provide for renewing a license [see Fin. Code § 21301(a)], grounds for forfeiting the license [see Fin. Code § 21301(b)], and grounds for bringing an injunction for violating Fin. Code §§ 21000-21209 (definitions and pawnbroker regulations) or Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 21625-21653 (tangible personal property or resale of goods) [see Fin. Code § 21302].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Exemptions From State Constitutional Provisions

50-568 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 568.76

§ 568.76 Personal Property Brokers and Consumer Finance Lenders

The obligations of, loans made by, or forbearances of any licensed personal property broker are exempt from the restrictions on interest rates contained in Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1 [see Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1; Fin. Code §§ 22000-22654]. The exemption also applies to obligations of, loans made by, or forbearances of any licensed consumer finance lender [see Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1 (permitting Legislature to exempt classes of persons from usury provisions); Fin. Code §§ 24000-24654; Stats. 1982, ch. 1082, § 28 (set forth as note in annotation to Fin. Code § 22000)]. In addition, a loan made by, or forbearance of, a licensed personal property broker or consumer finance lender is exempted from certain statutory regulations if the bona fide principal amount of the loan exceeds a specified amount and if the broker or lender has not taken advantage of the exemptions for the purpose of evading the statutory usury laws [see Fin. Code §§ 22053, 22053.1, 24053, 24053.1; see, e.g., Draper v. American Funding Ltd. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 345, 350, 285 Cal. Rptr. 640 (Civ. Code § 2954.9, governing prepayment penalties, does not apply to loans made by personal property brokers)].

A licensed personal property broker may not charge, contract for, or receive any interest or charge of any nature for a commercial loan of less than $5,000 or a noncommercial loan of any amount, unless the loan is actually made, except that a charge may be imposed for a noncommercial loan of $5,000 or more if the loan is not consummated because of the borrower's failure to disclose essential information [Fin. Code §§ 22053.1, 22450, 22450.1]. A licensed consumer finance lender similarly may not charge, contract for, or receive any interest or charge of any nature for a loan of less than $5,000 unless the loan is actually made; however, the charge may be made for a loan of $5,000 or more if the loan is not consummated because of the borrower's failure to disclose essential information [Fin. Code §§ 24053.1, 24450, 24450.1].

In general, a loan contract by a licensed personal property broker or consumer finance lender may not be unconscionable [see Civ. Code § 1670.5; Fin. Code §§ 22450.5, 24450.5]. In addition, when a licensed personal property broker or consumer finance lender lends less than $2,500, the loan contract may only provide for payment of charges if the rate meets the criteria of either of two alternative schedules of charges. In the case of personal property brokers, however, neither of the schedules applies to any commercial loan made to a person engaged in the business of selling goods for the purpose of financing the purchaser of goods for resale as determined in accordance with Fin. Code

§ 22054 [Fin. Code §§ 22451, 22451.1]. Under the first schedule, the contract may provide for payment of charges if the rate does not exceed the sum of the following [Fin. Code §§ 22451 (maximum charges by personal property brokers), 24451 (maximum charges by consumer finance lenders); see also Fin. Code §§ 22452, 24452 (open end credit program)]:

- Two and one-half percent per month on the unpaid principal balance of the loan that is equal to or less than $225; plus
- Two percent per month on the unpaid principal balance between $225.01-$900; plus
- One and one-half percent per month on the unpaid principal balance between $900.01-$1,650; plus
- One percent per month on any remainder of the unpaid principal balance in excess of $1,650.

Under the alternative to Fin. Code § 22451 or 24451, a licensed personal property broker or consumer finance lender lending less than $2,500 may contract for payment of charges at the greater of the following [Fin. Code §§ 22451.1 (alternative charges by personal property brokers), 24451.1 (alternative charges by consumer finance lenders)]:

- A rate not exceeding one and three-fifths percent per month on the unpaid principal balance; or
- A rate, calculated on the unpaid principal balance, not exceeding five-sixths of one percent per month plus a percentage per month equal to one-twelfth of the annual rate prevailing on the 25th day of the second month of the quarter preceding the quarter in which the loan is made as established by the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco on advances to members, or if not determinable, the closest counterpart of this rate as determined by the Superintendent of Banks of the State of California.

In addition to the charge, a licensed personal property broker or consumer finance lender may charge an administrative fee for a loan of no more than $2,500, at a rate not in excess of five percent of the principal amount or $50, whichever is less [Fin. Code §§ 22451.3, 24451.3].

Other fees charged by a licensed personal property broker in connection with commercial loans of less than $5,000 or noncommercial loans of less than $10,000 are regulated by statute [see Fin. Code §§ 22053, 22458.3-22458.7, 22472]. Other fees charged by a consumer finance lender are also regulated by statute [see Fin. Code §§ 24458.3-24458.7, 24472].

Precomputation and payment of charges on a loan by a licensed personal property broker are governed by Fin. Code §§ 22480-22482 [see Draper v. American Funding Ltd. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 345, 350-354, 285 Cal. Rptr. 640 (Fin. Code §§ 22480, 22482, not Civ. Code § 2954.9, governs prepayment penalties charged by personal property brokers)], whereas precomputation and payment of charges on a loan by a consumer finance lender are governed by Fin. Code §§ 24480-24482.

If any unpermitted amount is charged, contracted for, or received, for any reason other than a willful act of the licensed personal property broker or consumer finance lender, the broker or lender must forfeit all interest and charges on the loan and may collect or receive only the principal amount of the loan [Fin. Code §§ 22651(a), 24651(a); see also § 568.127 (affirmative defense to action on loan if violation is nonwillful)]. Nevertheless, the broker or lender may collect or receive the interest and charges if the broker or lender shows by a preponderance of the evidence that the violation was unintentional and due to a bona fide error in computation notwithstanding the maintenance of procedures reasonably adapted to avoid such errors, and if, within 60 days of discovering the error, the broker or lender notifies the borrower of the error, and makes all necessary corrections to the account [Fin. Code §§ 22651(b), 24651(b)].

If any unpermitted amount is willfully charged, contracted for, or received, the contract of loan is void, and the personal property broker or consumer finance lender has no right to collect or receive any principal, charges, or recompense in connection with the transaction [Fin. Code §§ 22650(a), 24650(a); see also § 568.128 (affirmative defense to action on loan if violation is willful)]. Additionally, any willful violation is punishable by a fine or imprisonment, or both [Fin. Code §§ 22653, 24653].

An open-end credit program by a personal property broker or a consumer finance lender is also regulated by statute [see Fin. Code §§ 22500-22517 (personal property brokers), 24500-24517 (consumer finance lenders)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Exemptions From State Constitutional Provisions

50-568 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 568.77

§ 568.77 Real Estate Brokers

[1] In General

The usury provisions of Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1, do not apply to any loan or forbearance made or arranged by any person licensed as a real estate broker by the State of California if the loan or forbearance is secured, directly or collaterally, in whole or in part, by liens on real property [Civ. Code § 1916.1; Gibbo v. Berger (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 396, 404, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 829] . This exemption should be construed broadly to effectuate the Legislature's purpose, which was to increase the availability of money of nonconsumer loans while ensuring protection of the public through existing licensing requirements and regulatory control over real estate brokers [Park Terrace Ltd. v. Teasdale (2002) (100 Cal. App. 4th 802, 805-806, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 797 (finding exemption for loans arranged by licensed real estate broker applicable); Del Mar v. Caspe (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1316, 1326, 272 Cal. Rptr. 446 ; but see Gibbo v. Berger (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 396, 401-402, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 829 (criticizing broad interpretation of "arranged" in Del Mar v. Caspe)].

For the purposes of Civ. Code § 1916.1, a loan or forbearance is arranged by a person licensed as a real estate broker when the broker does any of the following [Civ. Code § 1916.1]:

- Acts for compensation or in expectation of compensation for soliciting, negotiating, or arranging the loan for another;

- Acts for compensation or in expectation of compensation for selling, buying, leasing, exchanging, or negotiating the sale, purchase, lease, or exchange of real property or a business for another and either (1) arranges a loan to pay all or any portion of the purchase price of, or of an improvement to, that property or business, or (2) arranges a forbearance, extension, or refinancing of any loan in connection with that sale, purchase, lease, exchange of, or an improvement to, real property or a business; or

- Arranges or negotiates for another a forbearance, extension, or refinancing of any loan secured by real property in connection with a past transaction in which the broker had acted for compensation or in expectation of compensation for selling, buying, leasing, exchanging, or negotiating the sale, purchase, lease, or exchange of real property or a business.

"Made or arranged" includes any loan made by a person licensed as a real estate broker as a principal or as an agent for others, and whether or not the person is acting within the course and scope of that license [Civ. Code § 1916.1].

A broker has "arranged" a loan for another within the terms of Civ. Code § 1916.1(1) if he or she was essential to the preparation, execution, and completion of the loan documents and transaction, unless the broker's services were nominal or pretextual [Park Terrace Ltd. v. Teasdale (2002) (100 Cal. App. 4th 802, 806-808, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 797 (finding that licensed real estate broker "arranged" obligation; notes also provided conclusive presumption of arrangement); Del Mar v. Caspe (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1316, 1329, 272 Cal. Rptr. 446 ; but see Gibbo v. Berger (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 396, 401-402, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 829 (criticizing broad interpretation of "arranged" in Del Mar v. Caspe)].

Although one court has stated that the term "arranged" should be broadly construed [Del Mar v. Caspe (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1316, 1328, 272 Cal. Rptr. 446] , that approach has been criticized as dicta that would lead to absurd results [Gibbo v. Berger (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 396, 401-402, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 829 (broad interpretation in Del Mar unnecessary because broker acted within meaning of statute, even under narrowest interpretation)]. The real estate broker must do more than photocopy and collate pages of a loan document for a nominal fee, and instead must engage in some conduct as a third-party intermediary that causes the loan to be obtained or procured [Gibbo v. Berger (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 396, 403-404, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 829 (real estate broker who merely prepared documentation of loan already agreed upon by lender and borrower did not act within meaning of usury exemption)]. Specific conduct that has been found to fall within the usury exemption for loans "arranged" by real estate brokers includes:

- Structuring the loan as agent for the lender [Chapman v. Farr (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 1021, 1026, 183 Cal. Rptr. 606] .

- Setting the interest rate, points and terms of a forbearance agreement [Gibbo v. Berger (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 396, 401-402, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 829 ; Jones v. Kallman (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 131, 135, 244 Cal. Rptr. 609] .

- Conducting title searches, drafting terms of the loan, and reviewing loan and forbearance documents [Gibbo v. Berger (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 396, 401-402, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 829 ; Jones v. Kallman (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 131, 135, 244 Cal. Rptr. 609] .

A broker who negotiates a loan on behalf of the lender, and who is an officer and employee of an affiliate of the lender but is not employed by the lender itself, negotiates the loan "for another" within the meaning of Civ. Code § 1916.1 [Stoneridge Parkway Partners, LLC v. MW Housing Partners III, L.P. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1373, 1379-1380, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 61] .

[2] Maximum Charges on Original Loans

The costs and expenses of a loan secured by a dwelling that is made or arranged by a real estate broker pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10240-10248.3, other than a loan for $20,000 or more if secured by a first trust deed or $10,000 or more if secured by any lien junior to a trust deed (referred to as a "regulated dwelling loan"), are subject to certain maximum limits [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10240.1 (provisions apply only to loans secured by dwelling), 10242(a) (maximum charges), 10245 (certain provisions do not apply to loan of $30,000 or more secured by first trust deed or to loan of $20,000 or more secured by lien junior to first trust deed)]. Specifically, the maximum amount of all costs and expenses to be paid by a borrower for appraisal fees, escrow fees, notary fees, and credit investigation fees may not exceed the greater of five percent of the principal amount of the loan up to $390, or $700. In no event may the maximum amount exceed actual costs and expenses paid, incurred, or reasonably earned [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242(a)

The maximum amount of charges to be paid by the borrower on a regulated dwelling loan to the real estate broker for the brokerage or commissions if the broker arranged the loan, or for the loan origination fees, points, bonuses, and other charges in lieu of interest if the broker acted as a lender rather than agent, may not exceed the following amounts [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242(b)]:

- Five percent of the principal amount of the loan, if the loan was secured directly or collaterally, in whole or in part by a first trust deed, and is for a term of less than three years.

- Ten percent of the principal amount of the loan, if the loan was secured directly or collaterally, in whole or in part by a first trust deed, and is for a term of three years or more.

- Five percent of the principal amount of the loan, if the loan was secured directly or collaterally by a trust deed other than a first trust deed, and is for a term of less than two years.

- Ten percent of the principal amount of the loan, if the loan was secured directly or collaterally by a trust deed other than a first trust deed, and is for a term of at least two years but less than three years.

- Fifteen percent of the principal amount of the loan, if the loan was secured directly or collaterally by a trust deed other than a first trust deed, and is for a term of three years of more.

- With respect to a further advance on a note, the charges may not exceed the charges for an original loan in the same amount as the further advance and made for a term equal to the remaining term of the note on which the further advance is being made, including any extension thereof.

No interest may be charged on a regulated dwelling loan with respect to any period prior to the date that the proceeds of the loan are made available to the borrower or are deposited in escrow [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242(c)].

[3] Maximum Charges on Refinanced Loans

If a regulated dwelling loan has an original maturity period of less than three years and is renewed or refinanced, the total amount of charges to be paid on both the original obligation and the balance of the obligation, as renewed or refinanced, may not in the aggregate exceed the amount of charges as provided in Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242. If the loan is renewed or refinanced through the person who negotiated the original loan, the total amount of costs and expenses to be paid on both the original obligation and the renewed or refinanced obligation may not exceed in the aggregate the amount of costs and expenses authorized in Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242(a) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10244]. However, neither of these restrictions applies if the loan is secured by a first trust deed on real property and is made in connection with the financing of the usual costs of the development of a residential, commercial, or industrial building or buildings on the property under a written agreement that provides for the disbursement of the loan funds as costs are incurred or in relation to the progress of the work and that provides for certain title insurance or final disbursement [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10244].

[4] Maximum Charge for Late Payment

A charge for a late payment of an installment due on a regulated dwelling loan that is secured by a mortgage or deed of trust on real property may not exceed 10 percent of the principal and interest part of the installment due or $5, whichever is greater [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242.5(a)]. The charge may not be imposed more than once for the same late payment, and may not be imposed on any installment that is paid or tendered in full within 10 days of its due date [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242.5(b)].

A late payment charge may be imposed under Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242.5 for the payment of any balloon payment more than 10 days after the due date. The charge must not exceed an amount equal to the maximum late charge that could have been assessed with respect to the largest single monthly installment previously due, other than the balloon payment, multiplied by the sum of one plus the number of months occurring since the late payment charge began to accrue [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242.5(c)].

[5] Effect of Prepayment by Borrower

With respect to any loan secured by a single-family, owner-occupied dwelling, that is made or arranged by a real estate broker pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10240-10248.3, the borrower may prepay, at any time and in whole or in part, the principal and accrued interest on the loan, if the loan is secured by a mortgage or deed of trust on real property containing only a single-family, owner-occupied dwelling. However, a prepayment charge may be levied on any amount prepaid in any 12-month period within seven years of the date of execution of the mortgage or deed of trust, if the prepaid amount exceeds 20 percent of the unpaid balance. The prepayment charge may not exceed an amount equal to the payment of six months' advance interest on the amount prepaid in excess of 20 percent of the unpaid balance [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242.6].

[6] Remedies for Excess Charges

If any amount prohibited by Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10242, 10242.5, 10242.6, or 10248.1 [see § 568.77[2] -[5]] is received by any person, the borrower may recover from that person three times the amount of the prohibited amount. However, if the prohibited amount is the result of a bona fide error, the borrower may only recover the prohibited amount [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10246]. In addition, the borrower is entitled to costs and reasonable attorney's fees. The borrower must bring the recovery action within two years from the date on which the prohibited amount was received [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10246].

If the loan is negotiated in violation of any provision of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10240-10248.3, the borrower may seek relief in a demand procedure. However, if the demand procedure is pursued, the borrower may not additionally seek relief under Bus. & Prof. Code § 10246 for the same breach. Under the demand procedure, the borrower may demand that the broker return to the borrower any bonus, brokerage, or commission paid or payable under Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242 for negotiation of the loan. If the demand is not satisfied within 20 days from the date on which the written demand is personally delivered or mailed to the broker, the borrower may commence an action and recover actual damages or twice the bonus, brokerage or commission, whichever is greater. The borrower may also recover costs and reasonable attorney's fees in the action [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10248.2(b)]. The action must be commenced within two years after the maturity of the loan [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10248.2(d)]. The broker will not be held liable in the action if the broker shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the violation was unintentional and resulted from a bona fide error [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10248.2(b)]. (Although Bus. & Prof. Code § 10248.2(b) does not explicitly remove mistakes of law from the scope of the "bona fide error" defense--whereas some other statutes allowing the same defense do exclude mistakes of law--the defense probably does not cover a violation that arose from the defendant's mistaken interpretation of statutory requirements [*cf. Jerman v. Carlisle, McNellie, Rini, Kramer & Ulrich LPA (2010) -- U.S. --, 130 S. Ct. 1605, 176 L. Ed. 2d 519, 2010 U.S. LEXIS 3480, at *15-59 (such defense allowed by Fair Debt Collection Practices Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1692k(c), in same language as Bus. & Prof. Code § 10248.2(b), did not cover debt-collecting attorney's mistake of law as to Act's requirements)].)

For a form for use in drafting a demand letter, see § 568.125. For a form for use in drafting a complaint if the demand is not met, see § 568.126. For a form for use in drafting a complaint if the demand procedure has not been employed, see § 568.124.

§ 568.79 Common Interest Development Association

A common interest development association is exempt from the interest-rate limitations imposed by Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1 [Civ. Code § 1366(f)]. Instead, the association is permitted to levy a late charge on an owner of a separate interest in the development for an assessment of that interest that is delinquent, as long as the late charge does not exceed 10 percent of the delinquent assessment or $10, whichever is greater. However, if the declaration governing the development specifies a late charge in a smaller amount, the late charge actually levied may not exceed that specified amount [Civ. Code § 1366(e)(2)]. The association may recover interest on all sums imposed in accordance with Civ. Code § 1366, including the delinquent assessments, reasonable fees and costs of collection, and reasonable attorney's fees, at an annual interest rate not to exceed 12 percent, commencing 30 days after the assessment becomes due, unless the declaration specifies the recovery of interest at a rate of a lesser amount, in which case the lesser rate of interest applies [Civ. Code § 1366(e)(3)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 579, Zoning and Planning .

§ 568.81 Sales of Securities

Five classes of persons created under the state corporate securities laws [Corp. Code § 25000 et seq.] in regard to the sale of securities are exempt from the restrictions on interest rates contained in Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1 [see Corp. Code §§ 25116-25118, 25211.5], as follows:

First, an evidence of indebtedness issued pursuant to a qualification of a sale of a security under Corp. Code § 25110 or Corp. Code § 25120 et seq., and its purchaser, are exempt from the usury provisions of Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1. However, the exemption is subject to compliance by the issuer of the security and by the purchaser with the terms and requirements that may be imposed by the Commissioner of Corporations as a condition of the qualification [Corp. Code § 25116].

Second, an evidence of indebtedness and its purchasers or holders are exempt from the usury provisions of Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1 if either of the following criteria are met [Corp. Code § 25117(a)]:

- The evidence of indebtedness is rated or provisionally rated by Standard & Poor's Corporation as AAA, AA, A, BBB, or investment grade commercial paper, or by Moody's Investors Service, Inc. as Aaa, Aa, A, Baa, or investment grade commercial paper, including any such ratings with "+" or "-" designation or other variations that occur within these ratings, or has a rating or a provisional rating by another nationally recognized rating agency or system, which rating and agency or system have been certified by rule or order of the Commissioner of Corporations; or

- The issuer of the security either (1) has any security listed or approved for listing on notice of issuance on a national securities exchange, if the exchange has been certified by the Commissioner of Corporations, pursuant to Corp. Code § 25100(o), or (2) is a corporation subject to Section 13 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, has total shareholders' equity of at least $1 million, and has consolidated net income of at least $500,000. Any evidence of indebtedness issued in compliance with the above criteria will be entitled to the benefits of the usury exemption, regardless of whether, after its issuance, the evidence of indebtedness is determined by a court to be a "security" [Corp. Code §

Third and fourth, the following evidences of indebtedness, and the purchasers or holders, are exempt from the usury provisions of the Constitution (provided the transaction is not disqualified as specified below and meets either of two criteria specified below):

- An evidence of indebtedness issued by an entity or guaranteed by an entity that is an affiliate [see Corp. Code § 150 (definition)] of the borrower if, on the day the evidence of indebtedness or guaranty is first issued or entered into, the entity has total assets of at least $2 million according to its then most-recent financial statements [Corp. Code § 25118(a)].

- Any one or more evidences of indebtedness if either of the following applies [Corp. Code § 25118(b)]:

  - The evidences of indebtedness aggregate at the time of issuance at least $300,000 in original face amount, or, if the evidences of indebtedness are purchased with original issue discount, they are purchased for an aggregate purchase price at the time of issuance of at least $300,000.

  - The evidences of indebtedness are issued pursuant to a bona fide written commitment for the lending to the issuer of at least $300,000, or the provision of a line of credit to the issuer in a principal amount of at least $300,000. The exemption provided by this paragraph will not be affected by a subsequent event of default or other event not in the lender's control that has relieved or may relieve the lender from its commitment.

These exemptions are not available, however, if the issuer or guarantor is an individual (whether directly or through a controlled trust or partnership) or the transaction is for personal, family, or household purposes [Corp. Code § 25118(e)]. Moreover, these exemptions are available only in a transaction that meets either of the following criteria [Corp. Code § 25118(f)]:

- The lender and either the issuer of the indebtedness or the guarantor, as the case may be, or any of their respective officers, directors, or controlling persons, or, if any party is a limited liability company, the managers as appointed or elected by the members, have a preexisting personal or business relationship [see Corp. Code § 25118(g) (definition)].

- The lender and the issuer, or the lender and the guarantor, by reason of their own business and financial experience or that of their professional advisers, could reasonably be assumed to have the capacity to protect their own interests in connection with the transaction.

The evidences of indebtedness described above, and the purchasers or holders, are entitled to the benefits of the usury exemption regardless of whether, at any time after the evidence of indebtedness or guaranty is first issued or entered into, the evidence of indebtedness or guaranty is determined by a court of competent jurisdiction not to be a "security" [Corp. Code § 25118(c)].

Finally, a broker-dealer of securities, acting pursuant to a certificate that is then in effect and that is issued pursuant to Corp. Code § 25211, is exempt from the usury provisions of Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1 [Corp. Code § 25211.5].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Exemptions From State Constitutional Provisions

50-568 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 568.82

§ 568.82 Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA)

Civ. Code § 1917.220 provides that the restrictions on interest rates contained in Cal. Const., art XV, § 1 do not apply to any obligation of, loan made by, or forbearance of, any pension fund or retirement system that is subject to the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA) [29 U.S.C. § 1001 et seq.]. However, a California appellate court has held that Civ. Code § 1917.220 is itself preempted by ERISA [Varr v. Olimpia (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 675, 680-682, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 106] . Civ. Code § 1917.220 specifically refers to ERISA and singles out ERISA-governed pension plans for special treatment. Furthermore, Civ. Code § 1917.220 is specifically designed to affect employee pension plans [Varr v. Olimpia (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 675, 682, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 106] .

The court also held that although Civ. Code § 1917.220 is preempted, ERISA does not preempt California's general usury law itself. The court noted that there was no indication that when Congress enacted ERISA, it intended to displace state usury laws. ERISA does not dictate rates of interest that plans can charge on loans to third parties, and gives plan administrators broad discretion to choose among investments for the benefit of plan participants and beneficiaries [Varr v. Olimpia (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 675, 686-687, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 106] .

Since this case holds that ERISA preempts the statutory exemption for ERISA plans, but not the general California usury laws, the net result under this decision is that ERISA plans are subject to the state usury laws notwithstanding the statutory exemption [see Varr v. Olimpia (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 675, 687, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 106 (Civ. Code § 1917.220 could not form basis for lower court's denial of preliminary injunction against foreclosure of allegedly usurious obligations)].

§ 568.83 State or Local Public Retirement System

The restrictions on interest rates contained in Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1 do not apply to any loans made by, or forbearances of, any state or local public retirement system [Gov. Code § 7509]. They also do not apply to any loans made by, or forbearances of, a public retirement or pension system created, authorized, and regulated by the laws of a state or of a local agency of a state other than California [*Civ. 50-568 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 568.84

§ 568.84 Mortgage Loans for Residential Property

Because most mortgage loans are arranged by parties such as financial institutions and real estate brokers, most mortgage loans for residential property will be exempt from the usury provisions of Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1 under a specific exemption for those parties [see Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1; see also Banks, Associations, Trust Companies, and Other Fiduciaries, and Real Estate Brokers, above]. However, if a mortgage loan is not made or arranged by an exempt party, the general constitutional and statutory usury provisions [see § 568.30 et seq.] will apply to the loan.

A mortgage contract, deed of trust, real estate sales contract, or any note or negotiable instrument issued in connection with that contract or trust deed, for residential real property, may contain a provision for a variable interest rate [see Civ. Code §§ 1916.5-1916.12, 1918-1921]. For further discussion of loans secured by real property that provide for variable interest rates, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 25, Real Estate Loans (Matthew Bender).

For regulation of the interest rates of federally related mortgage loans for residential property, see the discussion in § 568.52.

§ 568.85 Bottomry Contract

The Harbors and Navigation Code provides that a higher rate of interest than that allowed by law on other contracts may be stipulated by the parties in a contract of bottomry, which is a contract by which a vessel or its freightage is hypothecated as security for a loan to be repaid only if the vessel survives a particular risk, voyage, or period [see Harb. & Nav. Code §§ 450, 455]. Under that the provision, the court may reduce any stipulated rate that is unjustifiable and exorbitant [Harb. & Nav. Code § 455].

Although it is questionable whether this provision survived the passage of Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1, its validity has not yet been challenged in the courts.

D. Exemptions From State Constitutional Provisions

50-568 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 568.86

§ 568.86 Shared Appreciation Loans

Lenders are exempt from the usury provisions of Cal. Const., art. XV, with respect to shared appreciation loan transactions [Civ. Code § 1917.005]. A "shared appreciation loan" is any loan made on the security of an interest in real property and obligating the borrower to pay to the lender contingent deferred interest pursuant to the loan documentation, but not including a loan made on the security of an interest in real property containing one to four residential units at least one of which, at the time the loan is made, is or is to be occupied by the borrower [Civ. Code § 1917(b); see Civ. Code § 1917.006(a) (additional definition, applicable when lender is local public entity providing low-income-housing financial assistance)]. "Contingent deferred interest" means the sum that a borrower is obligated to pay to a lender pursuant to the documentation of a shared appreciation loan as a share of the appreciation in the value of the security property and/or a share of rents and profits attributable to the subject property [Civ. Code § 1917(a)].

The Legislature's apparent intent in creating the foregoing exemption was to clarify the application of the so-called interest contingency rule in a defined set of circumstances. Under the rule, a lender may obtain payments on a loan that exceed the maximum allowed by the usury law, provided those payments are subject to risk. Accordingly, the statutory definition of a shared appreciation loan must be understood to permit a lender to obtain fixed-sum interest payments up to the maximum amount permitted under the usury law and, additionally, to obtain further payments of contingent deferred interest that are subject to risk. In other words, the legislative intent behind Civ. Code § 1917.005 was to establish that if (1) a loan permits the lender to obtain payments over and above the maximum permitted by the usury law, and (2) the loan documents disclose on their face that these payments constitute a share of appreciation, rents, or profits in a secured property, then the statutory exemption will apply [WRI Opportunity Loans II, LLC v. Cooper (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 525, 539-540, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 205].

Chapter 568 USURY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

50-568 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 568.105

§ 568.105 Decisions

[1] Agricultural Labor

ALRB order is not subject to constitutional interest rate until ALRB obtains superior court enforcement order under Lab. Code § 1160.8. Sandrini Brothers v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 878, 888-889, 203 Cal. Rptr. 304

[2] Assignee of Usurious Note

Assignee of lender exempt from usury laws is able to collect interest on note although assignee is not exempt. Strike v. Trans-West Discount Corp. (1979)92 Cal. App. 3d 735, 745, 155 Cal. Rptr. 132 , appeal dismissed, 444 U.S. 948, 100 S. Ct. 417, 62 L. Ed. 2d 317)

[3] Attorney's Fees

Mortgage lender who prevailed in action by borrower is not entitled to attorney's fees as costs when usurious contract did not contain attorney's fees provision. Orden v. Crawshaw Mortgage & Inv. Co. (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 141, 146-147, 167 Cal. Rptr. 62

[4] Choice of Law Determination

In action for usury, when promissory notes did not contain any choice-of-law clauses but recited that each note was to be repaid in Nevada, Civ. Code § 1646 required that Nevada law should be applied since Nevada was place of performance of loan contract; Restatement (Second) of Conflicts analysis reaches same result. Shannon-Vail Five Inc. v. Bunch (9th Cir. 2001) 270 F.3d 1207, 1210

Parties' incorporation in promissory note of Colorado interest rate, usurious under California law, would be permitted only on factual examination of reasonable relationship of contract to Colorado, substantial contacts of parties with Colorado, and consideration of California's fundamental policy with respect to usury. Mencor Enterprises, Inc. v. Hets Equities Corp. (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 432, 441, 235 Cal. Rptr. 464

[5] Credit Sales

Usury law has no place in field of bona fide credit sale financing, unless parties intend to effect hire of money at excessive interest rate rather than to finance bona fide sale of property. Boerner v. Colwell Co. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 37, 54, 145 Cal. Rptr. 380, 577 P.2d 200

Participation by nonexempt financing institution in credit sale contract for construction of residence does not convert otherwise bona fide credit sale into "loan" subject to usury laws. Boerner v. Colwell Co. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 37, 54, 145 Cal. Rptr. 380, 577 P.2d 200

"Finance charge" (time-price differential) on credit sales by various department stores and oil companies is not interest for purpose of applying Usury Law. Fox v. Federated Department Stores, Inc. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 867, 872, 156 Cal. Rptr. 893

[6] Defense

Pleading usury is unnecessary when contract is usurious on its face; court is entitled to deny interest sua sponte. Curtis v. Thaxter (1928) 204 Cal. 439, 440, 268 P. 630

Defense of usury is waived if not affirmatively pleaded. Willcox v. Edwards (1912) 162 Cal. 455, 462, 123 P. 276

Usury is defense personal to borrower that may not be asserted by person not party to contract. Moe v. Transamerica Title Ins. Co. (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 289, 300, 98 Cal. Rptr. 547

[7] Effect of Change in Usury Laws

Civ. Code § 1916.1 (real estate brokers' usury exemption) applies retroactively although enacted after decisions of lower courts. In re Lara (9th Cir. [Cal.] 1984) 731 F.2d 1455, 1459

State constitutional usury provisions are read into existing statutes. Heald v. Friis-Hansen (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 834, 838, 345 P.2d 457

Usury law providing recovery is statutory remedy and penalty which may be repealed. Penziner v. West American Finance Co. (1937) 10 Cal. 2d 160, 170-171, 74 P.2d 252

1979 amendment to Civ. Code § 1916.1 applies retroactively. Garcia v. Wetzel (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 1093, 1097-1098, 206 Cal. Rptr. 251

Statutes that repeal or modify usury laws are given retrospective effect to determine scope of liability with respect to transactions entered into prior to the repeal or modification. Chapman v. Farr (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 1021, 1023, 183 Cal. Rptr. 606

Change in usury law is applicable retroactively, precluding recovery of penalty for usurious interest charged prior to change in law. Orden v. Crawshaw Mortgage & Inv. Co. (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 141, 144-146, 167 Cal. Rptr. 62

Maximum interest rate established by former Cal. Const, art. XX, § 22 (now Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1) is required to be read into Deering's Annot. Uncod. Measures 1919-1 §§ 2, 3; West's Annot. Civ. Code §§ 1916-2, 1916-3. Arneill Ranch v. Petit (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 277, 280 n. 1, 134 Cal. Rptr. 456

[8] Effect of Subsequent Events

Contract not usurious in inception does not become usurious by subsequent events (contract assigned by exempt lender to nonexempt party). Strike v. Trans-West Discount Corp. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 735, 745, 155 Cal. Rptr. 132 , appeal dismissed, 444 U.S. 948, 100 S. Ct. 417, 62 L. Ed. 2d 317)

Loan not usurious in its inception is not subject to claim of usury because of subsequent events (contract assigned by exempt lender to nonexempt party). Cambridge Dev. Co. v. U. S. Financial (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 1025, 1031, 90 Cal. Rptr. 333

[9] Effect of Usurious Provision

If a loan is usurious the creditor is entitled to no interest whatsoever, and to repayment of principal only. Gibbo v. Berger (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 396, 403, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 829 ; Winnett v. Roberts (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 909, 921, 225 Cal. Rptr. 82

Unenforceability of usurious agreement does not affect preexisting lawful agreements between same parties. Strike v. Trans-West Discount Corp. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 735, 744, 155 Cal. Rptr. 132 , appeal dismissed, 444 U.S. 948, 100 S. Ct. 417, 62 L. Ed. 2d 317)

Usurious provisions do not affect right of payee to recover principal amount of note when due; payee entitled to interest at legal rate from date note matures until date of judgment. Epstein v. Frank (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 111, 123, 177 Cal. Rptr. 831

[10] ERISA

Civ. Code § 1917.220, which provides that Cal. Const. art. XV § 1 restrictions on interest rates do not apply to loans made by pension fund or retirement system subject to ERISA [29 U.S.C. § 1001 et seq.], was itself preempted by ERISA; ERISA, however, does not preempt California's general usury laws. Varr v. Olimpia (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 675, 680-682, 686, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 106

[11] Estoppel

Conduct of borrower's agent creates estoppel against borrower to claim usury. Lakeview Meadows Ranch v. Bintliff (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 418, 424-425, 111 Cal. Rptr. 414

Payor is estopped from recovering interest paid as well as treble damages. Buck v. Dahlgren (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 779, 789, 100 Cal. Rptr. 462

Borrower estopped from asserting usury due to his fraudulent representations and inducements, even though interest rate exceeded that allowable and one month postponement of foreclosure for $500 constituted usurious forbearance. Buck v. Dahlgren (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 779, 784-791, 100 Cal. Rptr. 462

[12] Evidence and Procedure

Civ. Code § 1916.3 limits treble damages for usury to period commencing one year prior to filing of complaint but does not cut off damages accruing after filing of complaint. Handi Inv. Co. v. Mobil Oil Corp. (9th Cir.1981) 653 F.2d 391, 393

Parol evidence is not available to explain meaning of written agreement that does not, on its face, clearly provide for compounding of interest by securities broker on customer debit-balance accounts. McConnell v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 816, 822-823, 191 Cal. Rptr. 458, 662 P.2d 916

Contract subject to two constructions, one usurious and the other lawful, is required to be construed as lawful in absence of evidence requiring it to be construed as usurious. Lakeview Meadows Ranch v. Bintliff (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 418, 423, 111 Cal. Rptr. 414

Class action is proper to recover monies wrongfully collected from plaintiff borrowers as late charges; late charge "service fee" is liquidated damages; need for proof of payment by each class member does not bar class action. Clermont v. Secured Investment Corp. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 766, 768-771, 102 Cal. Rptr. 340

Whether transaction is usurious is question of fact; nevertheless, court is able to decide as matter of law if interest rate easily determinable. Domarad v. Fisher & Burke, Inc. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 543, 560, 76 Cal. Rptr. 529

Evidence tending to prove usury is proper even though such evidence is something other than written loan documents. Mission Hills Dev. Corp. v. Western Small Business Inv. Co. (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 923, 926-928, 67 Cal. Rptr. 505

Time in which to bring action based on usury. Baruch Inv. Co. v. Huntoon (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 485, 490, 65 Cal. Rptr. 131

[13] Examples

[a] Usurious Loans

Interest provisions of note are void when interest rate is usurious. Gibbo v. Berger (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 396, 403, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 829 ; Winnett v. Roberts (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 909, 921, 225 Cal. Rptr. 82 ; Epstein v. Frank (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 111, 122, 177 Cal. Rptr. 831

Bad faith delay in paying over loan proceeds to borrower results in borrower paying excessive interest and renders loan usurious, even though loan terms provide for maximum rate. First American Title Ins. & Trust Co. v. Cook (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 592, 597, 90 Cal. Rptr. 645

Note is usurious when unpaid monthly payment of maximum interest rate is to be added to principal and bear like interest as principal. First American Title Ins. & Trust Co. v. Cook (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 592, 597, 90 Cal. Rptr. 645

Loan is usurious when borrower is to pay six percent per annum but, to secure to lender a 30 percent per annum return, also takes option to purchase real property of lender for a price which, added to six percent figure, equals 30 percent. McClung v. Saito (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 143, 148-149, 84 Cal. Rptr. 44

[b] Nonusurious Loans

Promissory note held not usurious because it was not absolutely repayable; when plain language of promissory note limited repayment to promisor's interests in royalty payments, limitations served as hazard or contingency on loan because if there were no royalties, there would be no repayment. D-Beam Ltd. P'ship v. Roller Derby Skates, Inc. (9th Cir. 2004) 366 F.3d 972, 975

Loan is not usurious, although it would be usurious if commission charged by trustee for loan were treated as interest, when trust was not aware of commission and did not receive any portion of it. Hobbs v. Buck (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 176, 179-184, 171 Cal. Rptr. 258

Clauses in residential real estate contracts for penalty amount per day for failure to close transaction on certain date protect seller from having to support two residences and are reasonable in light of anticipated harm, despite excessive legal interest rate. Angell v. Rowlands (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 536, 543, 149 Cal. Rptr. 574

Late charge provisions of note do not make it usurious. First American Title Ins. & Trust Co. v. Cook (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 592, 597, 90 Cal. Rptr. 645

Lender charging fee in addition to interest in connection with making loan is not necessarily violating usury laws even if combined charges exceed prescribed limit; usury law does not purport to fix or limit legitimate expense or service charge that may properly be borne by borrower. Cambridge Dev. Co. v. U. S. Financial (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 1025, 1028, 90 Cal. Rptr. 333

[14] Exemption and Common Law Remedies

Exemption of enumerated classes from restrictions of usury law immunizes them from actions grounded on common law remedies existing prior to usury law. West Pico Furniture Co. v. Pacific Finance Loans (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 594, 615, 86 Cal. Rptr. 793, 469 P.2d 665

[15] Extension of Time for Payment

Extension of time for payment of debt due constitutes forbearance on part of creditor within meaning of usury law rather than part of credit sale, since interest becomes due only in event of default on part of purchaser to pay amount due. Crestwood Lumber Co. v. Citizens Sav. & Loan Assn. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 819, 825, 148 Cal. Rptr. 129

[16] Intent as Element of Usury

Variable interest rate exceeding constitutional maximum is upheld when contracted for in good faith and without intent to avoid usury laws. McConnell v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 365, 376-378, 146 Cal. Rptr. 371, 578 P.2d 1375

When bank's note and forbearance agreement fit within legally authorized exception to general usury law (Fin. Code § 1504), interest provisions did not exceed statutory maximum and defendant's intent was irrelevant. Jones v. Wells Fargo Bank (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1527, 1538, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 835

Interest contingently payable at rate that may be less than or in excess of maximum of legal rate is usurious when parties contract in bad faith and with intent to avoid usury statute. Arneill Ranch v. Petit (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 277, 283, 134 Cal. Rptr. 456

Intent to charge more than legal rate of interest is element of usury; that element is not found when borrower requests attorney to draft agreement modifying original note. Lakeview Meadows Ranch v. Bintliff (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 418, 424-425, 111 Cal. Rptr. 414

Court correctly admitted evidence of parties' lack of intent to violate usury law in action to reform note by deleting usurious provision. First American Title Ins. & Trust Co. v. Cook (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 592, 597-598, 90 Cal. Rptr. 645

Conscious and voluntary taking of more than legal rate of interest constitutes usury; taking of amount of interest is only intent necessary by lender. McClung v. Saito (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 143, 153, 84 Cal. Rptr. 44

[17] Interest Assessed on Unpaid Taxes

Franchise Tax Board's six-year delay in informing taxpayers of amount due was not "forbearance" under Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1; true purpose of interest on delinquent taxes was penalty assessment. Sheehy v. Franchise Tax Board (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 280, 283-284, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 760

[18] Judgment Interest

Neither the 1918 Usury Law nor Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1 prohibit the compounding of interest under the renewal provisions of the Enforcement of Judgments Law. OCM Principal Opportunities Fund, L.P. v. CIBC World Markets Corp. (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 185, 203, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 350

Defendant payee of usurious note is entitled to interest at legal rate from date of maturity to date of judgment; because note was not judgment and did not specify interest rate, constitutional rate of 7 percent a year applied. Green v. Future Two (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 738, 744, 225 Cal. Rptr. 3

Prejudgment interest at market rate in inverse condemnation case is proper even though rate exceeded legal rate set by Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1, and Code Civ. Proc. § 685.010, because right to prejudgment interest in inverse condemnation suit derives from U.S. Const., amend. V, which has supremacy under U.S. Const., art. VI, cl. 2, over any state constitutional provision or statute to contrary. Aetna Life & Casualty Co. v. City of Los Angeles (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 865, 879, 216 Cal. Rptr. 831

Civ. Code § 3291 (judgment bears 10 percent interest from date of first rejected settlement offer under Code Civ. Proc. § 998) and Code Civ. Proc. § 685.010(a) (judgment bears 10 percent interest from date judgment rendered) do not violate Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1, because sections are not applied cumulatively to give 20 percent interest but are applied separately or conjunctively to permit recovery of no more than 10 percent interest. Mendez v. Kurten (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 481, 487, 215 Cal. Rptr. 924

[19] Pawnbrokers

Article XV of California Constitution exempts from usury law only those pawn transactions made within scope of pawnbroker license; pawnbroker could not claim benefit of exemption with respect to loan that was not pawn transaction, did not comply with statutory requirements, and was not made within scope of pawnbroker's license. Agapitov v. Lerner (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 830, 832, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 837

[20] Personal Property Broker or Finance Lender

On precomputed noncommercial loan over $10,000 made by personal property broker in 1981 and secured by borrower's residence and personal property, prepayment penalty is computed by Rule of 78's under Fin. Code § 22053. Draper v. American Funding Ltd. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 345, 350-354, 285 Cal. Rptr. 640

Finance company, licensed as personal property broker, that lends money to furniture dealer secured by pledge of conditional sale contract is exempted by Fin. Code § 22053 from maximum rates and is exempted from state constitutional usury provisions. West Pico Furniture Co. v. Pacific Finance Loans (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 594, 606-615, 86 Cal. Rptr. 793, 469 P.2d 665

Fin. Code § 22053 and Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1, exempt licensed personal property brokers from compliance with laws fixing maximum interest chargeable on loans despite gross disparity between values of realty and personalty taken as security. Hall v. Beneficial Finance Co. (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 652, 653-655, 173 Cal. Rptr. 450

Personal property broker loan exceeding $10,000, not inflated to make face amount of note appear to be greater than actual unpaid purchase price to avoid usury laws, are exempt from usury laws. Lenes v. Dean (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 845, 849-850, 135 Cal. Rptr. 14

Bona fide loan by personal property broker of $30,000 at 18 percent yearly interest secured in part by real property and in part by qualified security under Fin. Code § 22009 is exempt from interest rate restrictions of Fin. Code § 22053.

Raysinger v. Peoples Inv. & Loan Assn (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 248, 250, 112 Cal. Rptr. 163

[21] Rate Assigned by Court on Implied Loan Agreement

Seven percent is maximum interest rate to be assigned by court on implied loan agreement, even if court hearing case sits as court of equity. Armstrong v. Picquelle (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 122, 128-129, 203 Cal. Rptr. 552

[22] Real Estate Broker

Trial court did not err in ruling that a secured loan was exempt from the constitutional usury prohibition on the ground that it was negotiated and arranged by a licensed real estate broker where the broker, although an employee of an affiliate of the lender, acted as a third party intermediary and did not negotiate the loan on his own behalf because the lender was a legal entity separate and distinct from the broker and the broker's employer. It was of no moment that the broker indirectly benefitted from the transaction; as long as he was not negotiating solely on his own behalf, he fit squarely within the Civ. Code § 1916.1 exemption of a licensed broker who negotiated and arranged a loan for another. Stoneridge Parkway Partners, LLC v. MW Housing Partners III, LP (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1373, 1381, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 61

Usury exemption of Cal. Const., art XV, § 1 and Civ. Code § 1916.1 for loans "arranged" by real estate brokers not applicable if lender and borrower had already agreed upon terms of loan and broker's involvement was limited to following parties' instructions in preparing loan documents, ordering title insurance and disbursing funds. Gibbo v. Berger (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 396, 401-403, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 829

Usury exemption was applicable to loan arranged by general partner who was licensed real estate broker; broker "arranged" obligation, and provision in each note also provided conclusive presumption of that arrangement; exemption is not limited to brokers who act in capacity requiring license. Park Terrace Ltd. v. Teasdale (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 802, 806-808, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 797

Fact that nonbroker arranging loan was licensed attorney and thus authorized to perform certain acts for which real estate broker's license would otherwise be required did not constitute substantial compliance with licensing requirement of Civ. Code § 1916.1. Del Mar v. Caspe (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1316, 1330, 1334, 272 Cal. Rptr. 446

Real estate broker was "arranging" loan for purposes of exemption under Civ. Code § 1916.1(1) when services performed for compensation included title searches, document reviews, consultation and advisement, computation of principal and interest, preparation of loan documents, discussion of documents and terms with lender and borrower, and securing execution of documents. Del Mar v. Caspe (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1316, 1328-1329, 272 Cal. Rptr. 446

For purposes of exemption for broker-arranged loan, compensation encompasses receipt of almost any form of monetary or tangible benefit that is not self-bestowed. Jones v. Kallman (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 131, 136, 244 Cal. Rptr. 609 ; Stickel v. Harris (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 575, 584, 242 Cal. Rptr. 88

Broker compensation was essential element of exemption for broker-arranged loan; fact that salesman-partner rather than broker-partner received all of commission was not disqualifying because firm's practice of applying portion of each commission to firm's expenses provided sufficient compensation to broker. Jones v. Kallman (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d

Even though salesman-partner did most of work, participation of broker-partner in arranging loan, though minimal, was sufficient when broker determined rates and points at lender's request, transmitted those terms to borrower's broker, and reviewed loan documents drafted by salesman. Jones v. Kallman (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 131, 134-135, 244 Cal. Rptr. 609

When broker arranged loan to joint venture of which broker was member, broker's anticipated share of joint venture's future profits was sufficient compensation to bring loan within exemption of Civ. Code § 1916.1. Stickel v. Harris (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 575, 585, 242 Cal. Rptr. 88

Real estate broker neither makes nor arranges loan when broker acts only as borrower and has not otherwise acted to make or arrange loan for another or others, and has not acted to receive or expect compensation; thus, broker was not exempt from usury provisions of Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1, under that section's exemptions or under Civ. Code § 1916.1. Green v. Future Two (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 738, 742-743, 225 Cal. Rptr. 3

Loan is not made or arranged by real estate broker within meaning of Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1, when broker acts only as borrower, transaction is only between broker and lender who each act on own behalf, and no third-party licensed broker acts for compensation as intermediary. Winnett v. Roberts (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 909, 921, 225 Cal. Rptr. 82

Licensed real estate broker is exempt from usury provisions, even if not acting in his or her licensed capacity. Garcia v. Wetzel (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 1093, 1097-1098, 206 Cal. Rptr. 251

Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242(a) requires some method of cost accounting by real estate broker to protect borrowers. Pacific Plan v. Fox (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 215, 219, 148 Cal. Rptr. 510

[23] Reformation of Contract

Reformation of usurious contract under Civ. Code § 3399 was proper when all parties intended not to bear interest that exceeds maximum permissible rate and separate compound interest provision resulted in mutual mistake; compound interest provision was deleted while 10 percent rate provision left intact. First American Title Ins. & Trust Co. v. Cook (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 592, 597-598, 90 Cal. Rptr. 645

[24] Sale Versus Loan

"Late charges" on buyer's past due account were not subject to usury law because transaction did not involve forbearance; parties did not intend that buyer could forbear from making full payment ad infinitum in exchange for buyer's payment of late charges. Southwest Concrete Products v. Gosh Construction Corp. (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 701, 708, 274 Cal. Rptr. 404, 798 P.2d 1247 ; O'Connor v. Televideo System, Inc. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 709, 717, 267 Cal. Rptr. 237

"Late charges" on buyer's past-due account were exempt from usury law under "time-price" doctrine. Southwest Concrete Products v. Gosh ConstructionCorp. (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 701, 707, 709, 274 Cal. Rptr. 404, 798 P.2d 1247 ;

Fox v. Federated Department Stores, Inc. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 867, 884-885, 156 Cal. Rptr. 893

The transfer of structured settlement payments under the Structured Settlement Transfer Act (Ins. Code § 10136 et seq.) does not implicate the prohibition against usury in Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1 because a structured settlement transfer is not a loan or forbearance but is instead a sale, as indicated in Ins. Code § 10136(b). 321 Henderson Receivables Origination LLC v. Sioteco (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 1059, 1077, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 321

Operating agreement requiring defendant to pay interest at the rate of 18 percent on any amount due but not paid within 30 days of a triggering event does not violate usury provision as no forbearance was involved within the meaning of Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1 and there was no agreement between the parties to extend payment of a debt. Roodenburg v. Pavestone Co., L.P. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 185, 194, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 558

"Finance charges" billed to revolving charge account were exempt from usury law under "time-price" doctrine. Fox v. Federated Department Stores, Inc. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 867, 873-874, 880, 156 Cal. Rptr. 893

Court looks to substance rather than form of transaction to assess whether usurious arrangement made; issue is whether bargain of parties, in light of all circumstances and with view to substance rather than form, has hire of money at excessive interest rate as true object. Boerner v. Colwell Co. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 37, 44, 145 Cal. Rptr. 380, 577 P.2d 200

Consideration of whether transaction constitutes loan is substance for transaction rather than its form or terminology used by parties. Burr v. Capital Reserve Corp. (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 983, 989, 80 Cal. Rptr. 345, 458 P.2d 185

Usury laws do not apply when essence of transaction is sale, since no loan or forbearance of money made, and hence no interest charged. Fox v. Federated Department Stores, Inc. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 867, 877, 156 Cal. Rptr. 893

Usury laws apply to loan disguised as sale. Fox v. Federated Department Stores, Inc. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 867, 877, 156 Cal. Rptr. 893

Court looks to substance of transaction rather than form to determine whether transaction is sale or loan. Fox v. Federated Department Stores, Inc. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 867, 877, 156 Cal. Rptr. 893

Buyer's execution of $3,200 note and assumption of seller's obligation secured by business at 10 percent interest was part of purchase price of business in transaction for sale of business, not subject to usury law. La France Enterprises v. Van Der Linden (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 375, 380-381, 138 Cal. Rptr. 690

Usury laws are inapplicable to legitimate sale of going business. Lenes v. Dean (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 845, 848-849, 135 Cal. Rptr. 14

Mere purchase of note at discount is not affected by usury law. Moe v. Transamerica Title Ins. Co. (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 289, 300, 98 Cal. Rptr. 547

Sale and lease back of equipment is loan transaction subject to usury laws. Rochester Capital Leasing Corp. v. K & L Litho Corp. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 697, 702-703, 91 Cal. Rptr. 827

[25] Standing to Challenge Usury

Under California law, right of action against usury and right to assert defense of usury are personal to borrower; junior lienholder who made its loan with knowledge of usurious senior loan had no standing (in adversary proceeding in borrower's bankruptcy) to challenge payment of usurious interest on senior loan. In re Dominelli (9th Cir. 1987) 820 F.2d 313, 318 , citing Moe v. Transamerica Title Insurance Co. (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 289, 300, 98 Cal. Rptr. 547 ; Domarad v. Fisher & Burke, Inc. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 543, 560, 76 Cal. Rptr. 529

Exception to rule that defense of usury is personal to borrower is that defense may be asserted by one who stands in borrower's shoes and is damaged by usury; it is not applicable to junior lienholder who made its loan with knowledge of usurious senior loan. In re Dominelli (9th Cir. 1987) 820 F.2d 313, 318 , citing Western States Acceptance Corp. v. Frank D. Tuttle, Inc. (1930) 210 Cal. 51, 54, 290 P. 574 ; Sosin v. Richardson (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 258, 266, 26 Cal. Rptr. 610

[26] Treble Damages

Court has discretion to award treble damages. Burr v. Capital Reserve Corp. (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 983, 994, 80 Cal. Rptr. 345, 458 P.2d 185 ; Gibbo v. Berger (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 396, 404, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 829

Treble damages provision does not abrogate common law rights of borrowers, but as adding statutory remedy to aid borrower and penalize lender; borrower is also permitted to bring action for money had and received to recover usurious interest paid within two years of suit. Stock v. Meek (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 809, 816-817, 221 P.2d 15

Treble damage recovery is statutory remedy and penalty, which may be repealed. Penziner v. West American Finance Co. (1937) 10 Cal. 2d 160, 170-171, 74 P.2d 252

Treble damages are prayed for in cross complaint; amount is properly offset from principal. Rice v. Dunlap (1928) 205 Cal. 133, 137

Borrower recovers treble entire amount of interest paid rather than merely three times excess amount. Haines v. Commercial Mortgage Co. (1927) 200 Cal. 609, 617, 254 P. 956, 255 P. 805 (overruled on other grounds in Heald v. Friis-Hansen (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 834, 840, 345 P.2d 457)

Court has wide discretion in determining whether treble damages under Usury Act should be awarded. Buck v. Dahlgren (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 779, 788, 100 Cal. Rptr. 462

Granting of treble damages on a finding of usury is discretionary with court. McClung v. Saito (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 143, 152, 84 Cal. Rptr. 44

These payments were in excess of the maximum rate of interest allowed by the California Constitution, Article XV, Section 1, and plaintiff is entitled to recover the amount paid as money had and received.]

12. An actual controversy has arisen and now exists between plaintiff and defendant _____ [name] concerning their respective rights and duties in that plaintiff contends that he/she/it is only obligated to pay defendant _____ [name] the principal amount of the loan without interest, and that the interest rate specified in the _____ [contract or promissory note] is usurious and should be declared null and void, whereas defendant _____ [name] disputes this contention and contends that plaintiff must continue paying both the principal amount and the specified interest rate.

13. Plaintiff desires a judicial determination of his/her/its rights and duties, and a declaration that the interest rate provisions of the _____ [contract or promissory note] are null and void, pursuant to the California Constitution, Article XV, Section 1 and Section 2 of the Statutes of 1919, page lxxxiii.

14. A judicial declaration is necessary and appropriate at this time under the circumstances in order that plaintiff may ascertain his/her/its rights and duties under the _____ [contract or promissory note].

[15. Plaintiff is entitled to recover attorney's fees against defendant _____ (name) in this action

_____ (under paragraph _____ of the _____ (contract or promissory note) or because defendant _____ (name) has been convicted of the felony of loan-sharking).]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant(s) as follows:

1. For the assessment of treble damages against defendant _____ [name] in the sum of $_____ [specify treble the amount of all interest paid to this defendant within the year previous to the filing of the complaint];

[2. For the assessment of treble damages against defendant _____ (other defendant's name, to whom payment also made) in the sum of $_____ (specify treble the amount of all interest paid to this defendant within the year previous to the filing of the complaint);]

[3. For the assessment of damages against defendant _____ [name] in the sum of $_____ [specify the amount of all interest paid to this defendant between one and two years of the date of the filing of the complaint;]

[4. For the assessment of damages against defendant _____ (other defendant's name, to whom payment also made) in the sum of $_____ (specify the amount of all interest paid to this defendant between one and two years of the date of the filing of the complaint;)]

5. For a declaration that the interest rate provisions of the _____ [contract or promissory note] are null and void and of no force or effect;

[6. For reasonable attorney's fees against defendant _____ (name) _____ (in the amount of $_____ or according to proof);]

7. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

8. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

This complaint is for use by a borrower to recover treble the amount of interest paid within the one-year period preceding the filing of the complaint, and to obtain a judgment declaring the interest provisions null and void, on the ground that the amount of interest paid under the contract was usurious [Stats. 1919, p. lxxxiii, § 3, as amended by Stats. 1970, Ch 784, § 1 (Deering's Annot. Uncod. Measures 1919-1 § 3; West's Annot. Civ. Code § 1916-3); see Cal. Const., art. XV § 1 (maximum permissible interest rate); Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 (declaratory relief)]. If interest was also paid between one and two years of the filing of the complaint, this form may also be used to recover that interest as money had and received [see Stock v. Meek (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 809, 816-817, 221 P.2d 15 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1) (two-year statute of limitations)]. For alternative forms for complaints for use in actions seeking a declaratory judgment, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief .

This form may be adapted for use as an action for reformation of the contract under Civ. Code § 3399 based on unilateral or mutual mistake, to delete all or part of the usurious provisions. However, this type of request is more likely to be used by the lender, who might request the court to reform the contract to reduce the usurious interest rate to a legal rate of interest, rather than declare the debt to be interest-free [see, e.g., First American Title Ins. & Trust Co. v. Cook (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 592, 597-598, 90 Cal. Rptr. 645 (reformation of usurious contract proper when all parties intended to include interest rate that did not exceed maximum permissible rate and inclusion of separate compound interest provision resulted in mutual mistake; compound interest provision deleted while 10 percent rate provision left intact)]. For forms and further discussion, see Ch. 488, Reformation of Instruments .

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- The residence and capacity of the parties (Paragraphs 1 and 2) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395(a), (b) (venue based on residence of defendant), 395.2 (venue for unincorporated association), 395.5 (venue for corporation or association)].

- The existence of an agency relationship among the parties (Paragraph 3).

- Information regarding the assignment of the right to receive payment under the promissory note, if any (Paragraphs 4 and 9).

- The terms and execution of the loan, including the date and place of the signing of the contract, the amount loaned under the contract, whether the loan was to be used by the borrower primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, and the terms of the interest provisions of the contract (Paragraphs 5 and 6) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) (venue when loan not primarily for personal, family, or household purposes), Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) (venue when loan primarily for personal, family, or household purposes); see also Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1(1) (maximum rate when loan is primarily for personal, family, or household purposes), Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1(2) (maximum rate when loan is not primarily for personal, family, or household purposes)].

- That a copy of the contract or promissory note is attached to the complaint as an exhibit (Paragraphs 7).

- That the interest provisions are usurious (first alternative Paragraph 8 if loan was to be primarily used for personal, family, or household purposes [see Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1(1)], or second alternative Paragraph 8 if loan was not to be used primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [see Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1(2)].

- The details of all interest payments made during the one-year period prior to the date of the filing of the complaint, including the amount paid, the date on which the payment was made, and the name of the person to whom the payment was made (Paragraph 10) [see Deering's Annot. Uncod. Measures 1919-1 § 3(a); West's Annot. Civ. Code § 1916-3(a)].

- The details of any additional interest payments made between one and two years of the date of the filing of the complaint, including the amount of each payment, date of that payment, and payee (Paragraph 11) [see Stock v. Meek (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 809, 816-817, 221 P.2d 15 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1) (two-year statute of limitations)].

- Optional allegations that will support a judgment declaring the interest rate provisions as null and void (Paragraphs 12 through 14) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060].

- That plaintiff is entitled to attorney's fees, if applicable (Paragraph 15) [see § 568.120[4]].

[4] Costs and Attorney's Fees

If the plaintiff prevails in the action, he or she is entitled to costs [Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(b)].

A prevailing plaintiff ordinarily may not recover attorney's fees unless the contract expressly or impliedly provides for attorney's fees [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1021]. However, if the defendant has been convicted of the felony of loan sharking, the plaintiff may recover reasonable attorney's fees regardless of the terms of the contract [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.4; see also Deering's Annot. Uncod. Measures 1919-1 § 3(b); West's Annot. Civ. Code § 1916-3(b) (loan sharking is felony)]. The attorney's fees are fixed by the court, on notice and motion by a party, and are an element of the costs of suit [see Civ. Code § 1717]. For further discussion of attorney's fees, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees .

[5] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case in the superior court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

[6] Jurisdiction

If the language in the form seeking declaratory relief is used, the superior court has jurisdiction of the action, and it cannot be a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(7), 589(b)(5), 1060]. Otherwise, the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)], and the first page of the paper must state whether or not the demand exceeds $10,000 [Gov. Code § 72055; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9) (statement regarding amount of demand must appear "below the character of the action or proceeding")].

[7] Venue

If the loan was to be used primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, proper county for the trial of the action can be, at the plaintiff's option, either the county in which the borrower in fact signed the contract, or the county in which the borrower resided at the time the contract was entered into, or the county in which the borrower resides at the commencement of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b); see Fontaine v. Superior Court (CashCall, Inc.) (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 830, 838-840, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 607 (statute applies to action by or against consumer, and if any defendant in consumer's action is individual, that is irrelevant to application of statute)]. In any other case--or additionally, in the case of a consumer loan, if the borrower is a plaintiff--the proper county for trial is the county where the defendants or some of them reside at the commencement of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]; and furthermore, a corporation, association, or unincorporated association may be sued in the county in which the contract is made or is to be performed, the obligation arises, the breach occurs, or its principal place of business is situated [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395.2, 395.5]. For further discussion, see Ch. 571, Venue .

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES:

[EITHER, if loan was not for personal, family, or household purpose]

1. Defendant entered into the subject _____ [contract or promissory note] with plaintiff to obtain a loan in the sum of $_____, to be used by defendant primarily _____ [specify purpose, e.g., to purchase a computer for business use] and not for a personal, family, or household purpose.

[OR, if loan was for personal, family, or household purpose]

1. Defendant entered into the subject _____ [contract or promissory note] with plaintiff to obtain a loan in the sum of $_____, to be used by defendant primarily _____ [specify purpose, e.g., to purchase a refrigerator] for a _____ [personal, family, and/or household] purpose.

2. The interest rate provisions for the debt in the subject _____ [contract or promissory note] provide for an annual interest rate of _____ percent to be paid on the principal[, calculated as follows: _____ (specify)].

[EITHER]

3. This annual interest rate exceeds the 10 percent maximum rate allowed under the California Constitution, Article XV, Section 1(1) for a contractual loan used primarily for personal, family, or household purposes.

[OR]

3. This annual interest rate exceeds the maximum rate allowed under California Constitution, Article XV, Section 1(2) for a loan for any use other than primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, which permits a maximum interest rate of _____ [specify interest rate obtained by calculation, e.g., 16.5 percent], which represents the sum of five percent per annum plus the Federal Reserve rate of _____ percent that prevailed on _____ [set out date that is the 25th day of the month preceding the earlier of the date of execution of contract to make loan or the date of making the loan], for a loan _____ [made or contracted for] on _____ [date].

[CONTINUE]

4. The interest rate provisions for the debt in the subject _____ [contract or promissory note] are usurious and, by violating the California Constitution, Article XV, Section 1, are null and void under Section 2 of the Statutes of 1919, page lxxxiii. Plaintiff is barred under Section 2 of the Statutes of 1919, page lxxxiii from maintaining this action to recover that interest in any sum.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense may be used in an answer to a breach of contract or specific performance action initiated by a lender of a usurious loan [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(b)]. The form may also be adapted for use as a demurrer to the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a); see also Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings].

[3] Allegations

This affirmative defense alleges the amount of the usurious loan, the interest rate on the loan, the purpose for which it was to be used, and whether that purpose was a personal, family, or household purpose (Paragraphs 1 and 2) [see Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1(1) (maximum rate when loan is primarily for personal, family, or household purposes), (2) (maximum rate when loan is not primarily for personal, family, or household purposes)]. Alternative paragraphs are provided to state that the interest rate on a loan primarily for a personal, family, or household purpose, or on a loan not primarily for such a purpose, is usurious (Paragraphs 3, respectively) [see Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1(1) (maximum rate when loan primarily for personal, family, or household purposes), (2) (maximum rate when loan not primarily for personal, family, or household purposes)]. Finally, the form provides a statement that the interest provisions are null and void, and that the plaintiff may not maintain the action to recover the interest (Paragraph 4) [see Stats. 1919, p. lxxxiii, § 2 (Deering's Annot. Uncod. Measures 1919-1 § 2; West's Annot. Civ. Code § 1916-2)].

For an affirmative defense based on an allegation that the debt does not become due until the full contractual period elapses [see Deering's Annot. Uncod. Measures 1919-1 § 2; West's Annot. Civ. Code § 1916-2], see § 568.122. In an appropriate case, this form and the form in § 568.122 may be combined.

[4] California Statutes

Borrower obligated to pay principal of loan, even though lender may not maintain action to recover interest. Deering's Annot. Uncod. Measures 1919-1 § 2; West's Annot. Civ. Code § 1916-2

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Allege plaintiff's residence and capacity. See § 568.120, Paragraph 1.]

2. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a federally insured _____ [state-chartered depository institution or branch of a foreign bank or credit union] governed by Title 12 of the United States Code, Section _____[1785(g) or 1831d], whose _____ [principal place of business or branch office] is located at _____ [specify address].

3. On or about _____ [date], at _____ [city], California, plaintiff and defendant entered into a contract in which defendant promised to loan plaintiff the sum of $_____.

4. [Allege interest terms of contract. See § 568.120, Paragraph 6.]

5. [State that copy of contract is attached as exhibit. See § 568.120, alternative Paragraphs 7.]

6. The interest payment terms of the _____ [contract or promissory note] equal an annual rate of _____ percent. These terms are usurious because they violate Title 12 of the United States Code, Section _____ [1785(g)(1) or 1831d(a)], because they provide for an interest rate that is more than 1 percent in excess of _____ [specify amount of rate], which is the discount rate _____ [on 90-day commercial paper in effect at the Federal Reserve Bank of _____ (specify district in which lender is located) or, if greater, provided under _____ (specify state law allowing rate greater than allowed by Federal Reserve Bank district)].

7. On and after _____ [specify date two years prior to filing complaint], plaintiff made the following interest payments to defendant on the _____ [contract or promissory note]: _____ [specify]. Plaintiff is entitled to recover double the amount of these payments, pursuant to Title 12 of the United States Code, Section _____ [1785(g)(2) or 1831d(b)].

8. An actual controversy has arisen and now exists between plaintiff and defendant concerning their respective rights and duties in that plaintiff contends that he/she/it is only obligated to pay defendant the principal amount of the loan without interest, and that the interest rate specified in the _____ [contract or promissory note] is usurious and should be declared forfeited, whereas defendant disputes this contention and contends that plaintiff must continue paying both the principal amount and the specified interest rate.

9. Plaintiff desires a judicial determination of his/her/its rights and duties, and a declaration that the interest rate provisions of the _____ [contract or promissory note] are forfeited, pursuant to Title 12 of the United States Code, Section _____ [1785(g)(2) or 1831d(b)].

10. A judicial declaration is necessary and appropriate at this time under the circumstances in order that plaintiff may ascertain his/her/its rights and duties under the _____ [contract or promissory note].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For damages equal to double the amount of interest paid, in the sum of $_____ [specify double the amount of all interest paid to this defendant within the two-year period prior to the filing of the complaint];

2. For a declaration that the interest rate provisions of the _____ [contract or promissory note] are forfeited and no longer of any force or effect;

[3. For reasonable attorney's fees _____ (of $_____ or according to proof);]

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use to recover double the amount of interest that has been paid to a federally insured state-chartered depository institution (including a savings bank), a foreign bank branch, or a credit union pursuant to a contract or promissory note for a loan containing interest rate provisions that violate 12 U.S.C. §§ 1785(g) or 1831d, and for a judgment declaring the interest rate provisions to be forfeited [see 12 U.S.C. §§ 1785(g)(2), 1831d(b); Code Civ. Proc. § 1060].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges:

- The status of the defendant as a financial institution covered by the federal law limits on interest rates (Paragraph 2) [see 12 U.S.C. §§ 1785(g), 1831d (usury provisions for certain federal institutions); Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 (venue for corporations or associations)].

- The date and place of execution of the contract, and the amount of the loan (Paragraph 3) [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 (venue for corporations or associations)].

- The usurious nature of the contract (Paragraph 6) [see 12 U.S.C. §§ 1785(g), 1831d].

- An accounting of all interest payments made within the two-year period prior to the filing of the complaint (Paragraph 7) [see 12 U.S.C. §§ 1785(g)(2), 1831d(b) (double recovery of payments)].

- The necessary statements for obtaining a declaratory judgment that the interest rate provisions are forfeited (Paragraphs 8 through 10) [see 12 U.S.C. §§ 1785(g)(2), 1831d(b) (forfeiture of usurious provisions); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 (declaratory relief); see also Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief].

[4] Jurisdiction

The civil action must be brought in a court of appropriate jurisdiction, within two years after the date of the payment [12 U.S.C. §§ 1785(g)(2), 1831d(b)]. Either federal or state court may be a court of appropriate jurisdiction [see 28 U.S.C. § 1331; Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86, 116.220]. This complaint must be adapted for use if the plaintiff wishes to proceed in federal court.

Declaratory relief actions must be brought in superior court, and may not be filed as limited civil cases [Code Civ. Proc §§ 86(a)(7), 580(b)(5), 1060]. Thus this form, when used in its entirety, may not be filed as a limited civil case, regardless of the amount of damages requested. In order to use this form in a limited civil case (amount in controversy less than $25,000), the declaratory relief allegations in this form must be deleted [see Code Civ. Proc §§ 85, 86(a)(1), 580(b)(5), 1060]. However, a declaratory relief action may be filed as a limited civil case when filed by way of cross complaint as to a right of indemnity with respect to the relief demanded in the complaint or a cross complaint in an action or proceeding that is otherwise a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc § 86(a)(7)(B)].

[Verification, if desired. See § 568.120.]

CAUTION:

This form may not be used if the alternative demand procedure prescribed by Bus. & Prof. Code § 10248.2 has been or will be employed. Use § 568.125 to initiate the demand procedure, and § 568.126 to institute an action at law if the demand is unsatisfied within 20 days of service [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10248.2].

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use to recover treble the amount of usurious charges paid with respect to a loan secured by a dwelling that is made or arranged by a real estate broker pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 10240 et seq., other than a loan for $30,000 or more if secured by a first trust deed or $10,000 or more if secured by any lien junior to a trust deed [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10240.1, 10245, 10246].

If the usurious charges were levied as the result of a bona fide error, only the amount actually paid may be recovered [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10246].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges:

- The nature of the relationship between the plaintiff and the real estate broker, including the terms of any usurious contract between them (Paragraphs 6 and 7) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242(c)].

- The terms of the loan contract (Paragraph 8) [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10242-10242.6].

- The usurious nature of the loan charges (Paragraph 10) [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10242-10242.6, 10246].

- The assignment of the loan, if any (Paragraph 11).

- A listing of all usurious charges that were paid within the two-year period preceding the filing of the complaint (Paragraph 12).

- That the plaintiff is entitled to receive treble the amount of the charges paid as damages, as well as costs and reasonable attorney's fees (Paragraph 13) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10246].

- That relief has not been sought under the alternative demand procedure [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10248.2].

[4] Costs and Attorney's Fees

The prevailing plaintiff is entitled to recover both costs and reasonable attorney's fees [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10246].

_____ [Name and address of borrower's attorney]

_____ [Name and address of lender]

Re: _____ [Give short identification of contract with lender]

Dear _____ [Lender's name]:

On _____ [date], you and my client, _____ [borrower's name], entered into a contract under which my client became obligated to pay you $_____ as a _____ [bonus or brokerage or commission] for negotiating a loan in the amount of $_____ and secured _____ [directly or collaterally] _____ [in whole or in part by a first trust deed or by a trust deed other than a first trust deed] and for a term of _____ [specify, e.g., less than three years].

The _____ [bonus or brokerage or commission] exceeds [five or 10 or 15] percent of the principal amount of the loan, and as such exceeds the maximum amount that may be charged for such a fee as prescribed by Section 10242(b) of the Business and Professions Code.

To date, my client has paid you the sum of $_____, as payment for your _____ [bonus or brokerage or commission] pursuant to the contract. [As a result of this payment, my client has suffered actual damages in the amount of $_____.]

My client hereby demands that you return this $_____. If this amount is not returned to my client within 20 days of the _____ [personal delivery or date of the mailing] of this letter, my client will be forced to commence an action at law pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 10248.2(b) to recover either the amount of actual damages or twice the excessive fees, whichever is greater.

Sincerely,

Attorney for _____ [borrower's name]

CAUTION:

This procedure may not be employed if the borrower has already commenced an action for treble damages under Bus. & Prof. Code § 10246 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10248.2(b)]. If such an action is preferred, use § 568.124 rather than this form; see also § 568.126.

This demand letter is for use by a borrower to demand the return of a real estate broker's bonus, brokerage, or commission for negotiation of a loan secured by a dwelling [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10248.2(b)]. The form may only be used if the loan was other than a loan for $30,000 or more if secured by a first trust deed or $10,000 or more if secured by any lien junior to a trust deed [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10245].

If the demanded amount is not returned to the borrower within 20 days of service of the letter, the borrower may commence an action at law to recover actual damages or twice the amount paid, whichever is greater [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10248.2(b)]. In this case, use the form in § 568.126 to draft an appropriate complaint.

[3] Contents

This demand letter describes the bonus, brokerage, or commission contract, the loan contract, whether the loan was se cured directly or collaterally, in whole or in part by a first trust deed or by a trust deed other than a first trust deed, and the length of the term of the loan [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242(b)]. The demand letter then alleges that the bonus, brokerage, or commission exceeds the maximum amount that may be charged by the real estate broker [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242(b)]. Finally, the letter sets forth the amount paid by the borrower, the amount of actual damages suffered by the borrower if greater, and a demand for the return of the bonus, brokerage, or commission within 20 days of service of the letter [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10248.2(b)].

The bonus, brokerage, or commission may not exceed five percent of the principal amount of the loan if the loan is secured by a first trust deed and its term is less than three years [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242(b)(1)], or if the loan is secured by a trust deed other than a first trust deed and its term is less than two years [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242(b)(2)]. The bonus, brokerage, or commission may not exceed 10 percent of the principal amount of the loan if the loan is secured by a first trust deed and its term is three years or more [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242(b)(1)], or if the loan is secured by a trust deed other than a first trust deed and its term is between two and three years [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242(b)(2)]. The bonus, brokerage, or commission may not exceed 15 percent of the principal amount of the loan if the loan is secured by a trust deed other than a first trust deed and its term is three years or more [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242(b)(2)].

Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 568.120.]

CAUTION:
This procedure may not be employed if the borrower has already commenced an action for treble damages under Bus. & Prof. Code § 10246 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10248.2(b)]. If such an action is preferred, use § 568.124 to draft the appropriate complaint.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use by a borrower to recover the greater of actual damages or double the amount of a bonus, brokerage, or commission paid to a real estate broker for negotiation of a loan secured by a dwelling, after the broker has failed to return the fee within 20 days of the service of a demand letter [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10248.2(b)]. The form may only be used if the loan was other than a loan for $30,000 or more if secured by a first trust deed or $20,000 or more if secured by any lien junior to a trust deed [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10245]. For a form for a demand letter, see § 568.125.

The action must be commenced within two years after the loan has matured [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10248.2(d)].

The real estate broker will not be held liable if he or she shows by a preponderance of evidence that the usurious charge was unintentional and the result of a bona fide error [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10248.2(b)].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges:

- The identity and capacity of the real estate broker, and his or her residence if venue is so based (Paragraph 2) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395(a), (b) (venue based on residence of defendant)].

- The nature of the relationship between the plaintiff and the real estate broker, and the terms of the usurious contract between them (Paragraphs 3 and 4) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242(c)].

- A description of the loan contract (Paragraph 5) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242(c)].

- The usurious nature of the bonus, brokerage, or commission (Paragraph 7) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10242(c)].

- The amount paid for the usurious charge, and the amount of actual damages if appropriate (Paragraphs 8 and 9) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10248.2(b)].

- The delivery or mailing of a demand letter to defendant, and the failure of the defendant to comply with the demand (Paragraphs 10 and 11) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10248.2(b)].

- A statement that plaintiff has not sought relief pursuant to Section 10246 (Paragraph 12) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10248.2(b)].

[4] Costs and Attorney's Fees

The prevailing plaintiff is entitled to recover both costs and reasonable attorney's fees [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10248.2(b)].

4. Since the terms of the loan violate Section(s) _____[specify] of the Financial Code, pursuant to Section [22651(a) if personal property broker or 24651(a) for consumer finance lender] of the Financial Code plaintiff must forfeit all interest and charges on the loan.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an affirmative defense that may be used in an answer to a breach of contract or specific performance action initiated by a usurious lender who is a personal property broker or consumer finance lender if the lender seeks to recover interest and/or charges on the loan, and the violation is not willful [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2); Fin. Code §§ 22651(a) (personal property brokers), 24651(a) (consumer finance lenders)].

The defense is not available if the broker or lender shows by a preponderance of the evidence that the violation was unintentional and due to a bona fide error in computation, notwithstanding the maintenance of procedures reasonably adapted to avoid such error, and if, within 60 days of discovering the error, the lender notified the borrower of the error, and made all necessary corrections to the account [Fin. Code §§ 22651(b), 24651(b)].

For an affirmative defense to an action based on a willful violation, see § 568.128 (lender unable to collect or receive principal, interest, or charges).

[3] Allegations

This form alleges:

- The amount of the loan (Paragraph 1).
- The fact that the plaintiff is a personal property broker or consumer finance lender governed by Fin. Code §§ 22000-22654 or 24000-24654 (Paragraph 2).
- The usurious nature of the loan (alternative Paragraphs 3) [see Fin. Code §§ 22053, 22053.1, 22450-22482, 24053, 24053.1, 24450-24482].
- The requirement that the plaintiff forfeit all interest and charges on the loan (Paragraph 4) [see Fin. Code §§ 22651(a), 24651(a)].

_____ [interest rate or fees] is/are in excess of the rate allowed by Section(s) _____ [specify] of the Financial Code.

[CONTINUE]

[4. If plaintiff is personal property broker or consumer finance lender, allege: In violating Section(s) _____ (specify) of the Financial Code, plaintiff did so willfully.]

[EITHER, if plaintiff is industrial loan company]

5. Since the terms of the loan violate Section(s) _____[specify] of the Financial Code, pursuant to Section 18439 of the Financial Code the entire contract of loan is void, and plaintiff has no right to collect or receive any principal, interest, or charges in connection with the transaction.

[OR, if plaintiff is personal property broker or consumer finance lender]

5. Since plaintiff has willfully violated Section(s) _____[specify] of the Financial Code pursuant to Section _____ [22650(a) if personal property broker or 24650(a) if consumer finance lender] of the Financial Code, the entire contract is void, and plaintiff has no right to collect or receive any principal, charges, or recompense in connection with the transaction.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an affirmative defense that may be used in an answer to a breach of contract or specific performance action initiated by a usurious lender who is an industrial loan company, personal property broker, or consumer finance lender [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2); Fin. Code §§ 18439 (industrial loan companies), 22650(a) (personal property brokers), 24650(a) (consumer finance lenders)]. The form may also be adapted for use as a demurrer to the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)].

If the plaintiff is a personal property broker or consumer finance lender, the defense is available only when the violation is willful [see Fin. Code §§ 22650(a) (personal property brokers), 24650(a) (consumer finance lenders)]. If the violation is not willful, the lender must forfeit all interest and charges, but may collect or receive the principal amount of the loan [see Fin. Code §§ 22651(a) (personal property brokers), 24651(a) (consumer finance lenders)]. For an affirmative defense to an action based on a usurious contract when the violation is not willful, see § 568.127.

[3] Allegations

This form alleges:

- The amount of the loan (Paragraph 1).

- The fact that the plaintiff is an industrial loan company, personal property broker, or consumer finance lender governed by Fin. Code §§ 18000-18643, 22000-22654, or 24000-24654 (Paragraph 2).

- The usurious nature of the loan (alternative Paragraphs 3) [see Fin. Code §§ 18212, 18212.1, 18300, 18625-18631, 18702, 22053, 22053.1, 22450-22482, 24053, 24053.1, 24450-24482].

- The fact that the violation by the plaintiff was willful, as required if the plaintiff is a personal property broker or consumer finance lender (Paragraph 4).

- The void nature of the contract, and the bar to plaintiff to collect or receive any principal, interest, charges, or recompense in connection with the transaction (Paragraph 5) [see Fin. Code §§ 18439, 22650(a), 24650(a)].

Chapter 569 VENDOR AND PURCHASER OF REAL PROPERTY
PART I. SCOPE

§ 569.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses provisions relating to transfers of real property, including vendor's and purchaser's liens, options, installment sales contracts, and the expiration of rights under unperformed recorded contracts for the transfer of real property. It includes coverage of disclosure requirements and damage provisions unique to real property transactions, provides forms of complaints by which buyers and sellers of real property may enforce their rights, and discusses the most common alternative remedies available to vendors and purchasers. It contains the following forms:

- Complaints by a vendor to enforce a statutory lien to obtain unpaid purchase money, for damages for breach of contract or fraud, or for rescission and cancellation [see §§ 569.160 -569.162].

- Complaints by a purchaser to obtain unrefunded amounts paid under a contract, for damages for breach of contract or failure to comply with statutory disclosure or notice requirements, for specific performance, for rescission and cancellation, or for declaratory relief to establish that a contract or option remains in force [see §§ 569.163 -569.169].

This chapter also discusses special remedies, rights, and duties of vendors and purchasers peculiar to real property installment sales contracts. The remedies, rights, and duties, with few exceptions such as Civ. Code §§ 1675-1681 relating to liquidated damages, are of a general nature and also apply to vendors and purchasers using installment sales contracts. The chapter also contains forms for use by vendors and purchasers under installment contracts [see §§ 569.190 -569.195].

50-569 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 569.10

§ 569.10 Governing Law and Definitions

Various statutes govern the rights and obligations of vendors and purchasers, that is, sellers and buyers of real property. For a list of the principal statutes, see § 569.122.

This chapter uses the terms "vendor" and "seller" synonymously. The person who transfers property by sale, particularly real estate, has traditionally been termed a "vendor," and "seller" has been the more commonly used term for one who sells personal property. However, a "seller" may, with entire propriety, be termed a "vendor" [Black Law's Dictionary, p. 1395 (Fifth Ed.)]. Similarly, this chapter uses the terms "purchaser" and "buyer" synonymously as well.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Actions Between Vendors and Purchasers Generally

50-569 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 569.11

§ 569.11 Residential Seller's Duty of Disclosure

[1] When Required; Legislative Intent

A seller of residential property is required, except in certain cases (see § 569.11[2]), to make specified disclosures about the property to the buyer [see Civ. Code § 1102 et seq.]. The requirement applies generally to any transfer by sale, exchange, installment land sale contract (as defined by Civ. Code § 2985(a)), lease with an option to purchase, any other option to purchase, or ground lease coupled with improvements, of real property, or a residential stock cooperative, improved with or consisting of not less than one nor more than four dwelling units [Civ. Code § 1102(a); see Civ. Code § 1102(b) (requirements also apply to resale of manufactured home or mobilehome that is classified as personal property and intended for use as residence)].

The required disclosures must be made, and each required act relating to the disclosure statement must be performed, in good faith, that is, with honesty in fact in the conduct of the transaction [Civ. Code § 1102.7].

The required disclosure is not a warranty of any kind by the seller and is not a substitute for any inspections or warranties that the buyer may wish to obtain [Civ. Code § 1102.6 (first paragraph of prescribed disclosure statement)]; however, the purchaser may rely on the information in the disclosure statement when deciding whether to purchase the property and on what terms to purchase it [Civ. Code § 1102.6 (Part II of prescribed statement)].

Other disclosure requirements may be applicable as well; for example, depending on the facts of the transaction, disclosures may be required concerning the property's inclusion in a special study zone or concerning purchase-money liens on the property [see Civ. Code § 1102.6 (Part I of prescribed disclosure form)]; see also discussion of other disclosure requirements in §§ 569.12-569.16. Any other applicable disclosure requirements are not limited or abridged by the requirements being discussed here [Civ. Code § 1102.8].

In enacting the disclosures requirements in Civ. Code § 1102 et seq., the California Legislature intended to clarify and facilitate the use of the real estate transfer disclosure statement specified in Civ. Code § 1102.6 [see § 569.11[3]]. The Legislature intended the statement to be used by (1) transferors making disclosures required under Civ. Code § 1102 et seq., and (2) agents making disclosures required by Civ. Code § 2079 on the agent's portion (Paragraphs III and IV) of the real estate transfer disclosure statement. In transfers not subject to Civ. Code § 1102 et seq., agents may make required disclosures in a separate writing. The Legislature did not intend to affect the existing obligations of the parties to a real estate contract, or their agents, to disclose any fact materially affecting the value and desirability of the property. In transfers not subject to these provisions, agents may make required disclosures in a separate writing [Civ. Code § 1102.1(a)]. Further, nothing in Civ. Code § 1102 et seq. is to be construed to change the duty of a real estate broker or salesperson pursuant to Civ. Code § 2079. It was also the intent of the Legislature that the delivery of a real estate transfer disclosure statement may not be waived in an "as is" sale, as held in Loughrin v. Superior Court [Civ. Code § 1102.1(a); see Loughrin v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1188, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 161 ; see also § 569.11[6][g]].

[2] Exempt Transactions

The seller's duty of disclosure does not arise in any of the following transactions:

- A transfer that is required to be preceded by the furnishing to the transferee of a copy of a public report pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 11018.1 (concerning subdivided lands) [Civ. Code § 1102.2(a)].

- A transfer that can be made without a public report pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 11010.4 (concerning subdivided lands) [Civ. Code § 1102.2(a)].

- A transfer pursuant to a court order [Civ. Code § 1102.2(b)].

- A transfer to a secured creditor that effects a foreclosure of the debtor's interest [see Civ. Code § 1102.2(c)].

- A transfer in the course of administering an estate or trust or guardianship or conservatorship, unless (1) the transfer involves a sole trustee of a revocable trust, (2) this trustee is a natural person, and (3) he or she is aformer owner of the property or was an occupant in possession of the property within the preceding year [Civ. Code § 1102.2(d)].

- A transfer between co-owners [Civ. Code § 1102.2(e)] or between spouses or ancestor and descendant [Civ. Code § 1102.2(f)].

- A transfer between the parties to a marriage dissolution or legal separation proceeding or parties to a property settlement agreement incidental to such a proceeding [Civ. Code § 1102.2(g)].

- A transfer by the Controller of the State of California in the course of administering the Unclaimed Property Law [Civ. Code § 1102.2(h); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1500 et seq.].

- A transfer of tax-deeded property [Civ. Code § 1102.2(i); see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 3691 et seq., 3771 et seq.].

- A transfer to or from any governmental entity [Civ. Code § 1102.2(j)].

[3] Disclosure Form

[a] Statutory "Real Estate Transfer Disclosure Statement"

The required disclosures must be made on a prescribed form called a "Real Estate Transfer Disclosure Statement." The seller must make specified disclosures, regarding (1) appliances, fixtures, and features, including whether there are significant defects or malfunctions, and (2) environmental hazards, noncompliance with building codes and permit requirements, and structure and site problems [Civ. Code § 1102.6]. The prescribed form includes disclosure statements to be signed by the vendor's listing and selling brokers, if any. For discussion of brokers' disclosure duties and liabilities, see Ch. 103, Brokers .

If other disclosure forms have been completed in connection with the transaction, the prescribed form referred to here need not be completed with respect to matters that are covered in the other forms, if those other forms are identified on the prescribed form [Civ. Code § 1102.6 (Part I of prescribed form)].

[b] City or County Requirements

Cities and counties may elect to require additional disclosures [Civ. Code § 1102.6a(a)]. These must be made on an additional prescribed form called a "Local Option Real Estate Transfer Disclosure Statement" [Civ. Code § 1102.6a(b)], which may be supplemented with addenda to facilitate making the required disclosures. The city or county may use the local-option disclosure form for other purposes [Civ. Code § 1102.6a(c)].

After 2004, if a city or county adopts a different or additional disclosure form pursuant to Civ. Code § 1102.6a regarding the proximity or effects of an airport, the statement in that form must contain, at a minimum, the information in the "Notice of Airport in Vicinity" found in the following statutes [Civ. Code § 1102.6a(d)(1)]:

- Bus. & Prof. Code § 11010(b)(13)(A), relating to the contents of a filed notice of intention to offer subdivided land [see California Legal Forms, Ch. 30, Subdivision Regulation (Matthew Bender)];

- Civ. Code § 1103.4(c), relating to natural hazards disclosures in an expert's report provided at the transferee's request [see § 569.12[4]]; or

- Civ. Code § 1353(a)(1), relating to the contents of the declaration that is recorded with regard to the creation of a common-interest development [for sample declarations of different common interest developments, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 33C, Stock Cooperatives, § 33C.201; Ch. 33D, Planned Developments, § 33D.200; and Ch. 34, Condominiums, § 34.202 (Matthew Bender)].

After 2005, if a city or county does not adopt a different or additional disclosure form pursuant to Civ. Code § 1102.6a, then the provision of an "airport influence area" disclosure under one of the statutes listed above [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11010(b)(13); Civ. Code §§ 1103.4(c), 1353(a)] or, if there is not a current airport influence map, a written disclosure of an airport within two statute miles, will be deemed to satisfy any city or county requirements for the disclosure of airports in connection with transfers of real property [Civ. Code § 1102.6a(d)(2)].

A local-option disclosure is not a warranty of any kind by the vendor and is not a substitute for any inspections or warranties that the purchaser may wish to obtain [Civ. Code § 1102.6a(b) (first paragraph of prescribed form)]; however, the purchaser may rely on the information in the disclosure statement when deciding whether to purchase the property and on what terms to purchase it [Civ. Code § 1102.6a(b) (Part I of prescribed form)].

Certain natural hazard disclosures required by Civ. Code § 1103 and related statutes may be made in the local option real estate disclosure statement if that statement includes substantially the same information and substantially the same warnings that are in the statutory natural hazard disclosure statement [Civ. Code § 1103.2(e); see Civ. Code § 1103 et seq.]. For further discussion of natural hazard disclosures, see § 569.12.

[c] Approximate Disclosures

If the seller does not know or does not have access to particular information that is required to be disclosed, and the seller has made a reasonable effort to obtain the information, the seller may "use an approximation of the information," provided the approximation (1) is clearly identified as such, (2) is reasonable, (3)is based on the best information available to the seller or the seller's agent, and (4) is not used for the purpose of circumventing or evading the disclosure requirement [Civ. Code § 1102.5].

[4] Delivery of Disclosure Statement

The disclosure statement must be delivered personally or by mail to the buyer. It may be delivered instead to the purchaser's spouse, with the same effect as delivery to the purchaser, unless the contract provides otherwise [Civ. Code § 1102.10].

In the case of an ordinary sale or exchange, the statement must be delivered as soon as practicable before the transfer of title [Civ. Code § 1102.3(a)]. In the case of transfer by a real property sales contract, as defined in Civ. Code § 2985(a), or by a lease together with an option to purchase, or a ground lease coupled with improvements, the statement must be delivered as soon as practicable before execution of the contract. For these purposes, "execution" means the making or acceptance of an offer [Civ. Code § 1102.3(b)]. The seller must indicate compliance with Civ. Code § 1102 et seq. on the receipt for deposit, the real property sales contract, the lease, or any addendum attached to these documents, or on a separate document [Civ. Code § 1102.3].

If any disclosure, or any material amendment of any disclosure required by Civ. Code § 1102 et seq., is delivered after the execution of an offer to purchase, the buyer may, within three days following personal delivery or five days following delivery by mail, revoke the offer. Revocation must be made by delivery of a written notice of termination to the seller or the seller's agent [Civ. Code § 1102.3].

The transferor of any manufactured home or mobilehome subject to the disclosure requirements [see § 569.11[1]] must deliver the required written disclosure statement to prospective transferees, at the times and in the manner specified by statute [see Civ. Code § 1102.3a]. In addition, the management of a mobilehome park must provided a prospective homeowner with a completed written disclosure form at least three days before execution of a rental agreement [Civ. Code § 798.75.5]. For complete coverage of these and related requirements, see Ch. 369, Mobilehomes and Mobilehome Parks .

[5] Amendment After Delivery

The disclosure statement may be amended in writing, provided the amendment is delivered in compliance with delivery requirements for the original statement [Civ. Code § 1102.9]. See the discussion in § 569.11[4].

[6] Noncompliance

[a] Seller's Liability Generally

A seller who willfully or negligently fails to perform any duty with regard to the disclosure requirements is liable in damages for any actual harm resulting to the buyer [Civ. Code § 1102.13]. For a form of complaint by the buyer, see § 569.166. However, this provision is applicable only when the buyer has gone through with the transaction despite the seller's failure to comply with the statutory disclosure requirements. If no transfer has taken place, Civ. Code § 1102.13 does not apply. Prior to transfer, the failure to provide a disclosure statement gives rise to a right to rescission in the buyer [Realmuto v. Gagnard (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 193, 202, 204, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 569 ; for a form of complaint for use by a purchaser seeking rescission, see § 569.168].

[b] Validity of Transfer

The sale, exchange, or other transfer that is subject to the disclosure requirements is not invalidated by any failure of any person to comply with those requirements [Civ. Code § 1102.13]. However, this provision is applicable only when the buyer has gone through with the transaction despite the seller's failure to comply with the statutory disclosure requirements. If no transfer has taken place, Civ. Code § 1102.13 does not apply. Prior to transfer, the failure to provide a disclosure statement gives rise to a right to rescission in the buyer [Realmuto v. Gagnard (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 193, 202, 204, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 569 ; for a form of complaint for use by a buyer seeking rescission, see § 569.168].

[c] Errors and Omissions

The seller is not liable on account of any error, inaccuracy, or omission in the disclosure statement if (1) the seller had no personal knowledge of the matter in question, (2) the defect resulted from information timely provided by a public agency or any of specified contractors (see § 569.11[6][d]), and (3) the seller exercised ordinary care in obtaining and transmitting that information [Civ. Code § 1102.4(a)].

[d] Professional Reports and Opinions in Lieu of Disclosure

The seller may avoid liability on account of an error, inaccuracy, or omission in the disclosure statement by properly relying on a professional report or opinion in meeting the disclosure requirement (see § 569.11[6][c]). The report or opinion must be prepared by a licensed engineer, land surveyor, geologist, structural pest control operator, or contractor, or some other expert, and must deal with matters within the scope of the author's license or expertise. The report or opinion must be delivered to the purchaser pursuant to a written or oral request for it. If the author of the report or opinion indicates in writing that the information in it willbe used to meet the general disclosure requirements of Civ. Code § 1102 et seq., the report or opinion must indicate also the parts of the required disclosure form to which the information pertains [Civ. Code § 1102.4(c)].

[e] Public Agency's or Other Person's Information in Lieu of Disclosure

If a public agency or any other person delivers to the purchaser any informationthat is required to be disclosed to the purchaser, that delivery of information is deemed to be compliance by the seller with the disclosure requirement as to that information, and the seller is relieved of any further duty of disclosure with respect to that information [Civ. Code § 1102.4(b)].

[f] Subsequent Inaccuracy of Information

Information disclosed in accordance with the disclosure requirement may be rendered inaccurate as a result of an act, occurrence, or agreement after the disclosure. In that event, however, no violation of the disclosure requirement arises [Civ. Code § 1102.5].

[g] Waiver by Purchaser

Any waiver of the disclosure requirements of Civ. Code § 1102 et seq. is void as against public policy [Civ. Code § 1102(c)]. This provision, enacted in 1994 [see 1994 Stats., ch. 817, § 1], appears to controvert in part the decision in Loughrin v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1188, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 161 . That decision held that the benefits of the statutory disclosure requirements may be waived by a knowing waiver because the disclosure requirements are imposed to facilitate private transactions, not for the general public benefit [Loughrin v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1188, 1194-1194, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 161] .

Loughrin also held that an "as is" clause does not waive the benefits of the disclosure requirements if disclosure is made. The "as is" clause alerts the buyer to the deteriorated nature of the property, gives notice that the seller is not making an inspection, and advises that the buyer is taking the property with its obvious and patent defects. It does not preclude the possibility of a claim for misrepresentation for failure to reveal concealed defects not apparent from an inspection of the property, including intentional and negligent misrepresentations [Loughrin v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1188, 1193-1196, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 161] . The ongoing validity of this portion of the Loughrin decision was affirmed by the Legislature in 1994 when it expressly provided that "the delivery of a real estate transfer disclosure statement may not be waived in an 'as is' sale, as was held in Loughrin v. Superior Court" [1994 Stats., ch. 817, § 3].

§ 569.12 Natural Hazard Disclosures

[1] Natural Hazard Disclosure Statement

When property is located in a specified natural hazard area, the seller or other transferor and his or her agent must make certain disclosures in a statutory natural hazard disclosure statement form [see Civ. Code § 1103.2(b)] or in the local option real estate disclosure statement [see § 569.11[3][b]] if that statement includes substantially the same information and substantially the same warnings that are in the statutory natural hazard disclosure statement [Civ. Code § 1103.2(e); see Civ. Code § 1103 et seq.]. These disclosures must be made with regard to the same types of transfers subject to Civ. Code § 1102 et seq. [s ee Civ. Code § 1103(a)].

This requirement applies only if the transferor or his or her agent is required to make one of the following disclosures [Civ. Code § 1103(b), (c)]:

- A person who is acting as an agent for a transferor of real property that is located within a special flood hazard area (any type Zone "A" or "V") designated by the Federal Emergency Management Agency, or the transferor if he or she is acting without an agent, must disclose to any prospective transferee the fact that the property is located within a special flood hazard area, if either (1) the transferor, or the transferor's agent, has actual knowledge that the property is within a special flood hazard area; or (2) the local jurisdiction has compiled a list, by parcel, of properties that are within the special flood hazard area and a notice has been posted at the offices of the county recorder, county assessor, and county planning agency that identifies the location of the parcel list [Gov. Code § 8589.3; see § 569.12[11]].

- A person who is acting as an agent for a transferor of real property that is located within an area of potential flooding shown on a dam failure inundation map pursuant to Gov. Code § 8589.5, or the transferor if he or she is acting without an agent, must disclose to any prospective transferee the fact that the property is located within an area of potential flooding, if either (1) the transferor, or the transferor's agent, has actual knowledge that the property is within an inundation area; or (2) the local jurisdiction has compiled a list, by parcel, of properties that are within the inundation area and a notice has been posted at the offices of the county recorder, county assessor, and county planning agency that identifies the location of the parcel list [see § 569.12[12]].

- A transferor of real property that is located within a very high fire hazard severity zone [see Gov. Code § 51178] must disclose to any prospective transferee the fact that the property is located within a very high fire hazard severity zone and is subject to the maintenance requirements of Gov. Code § 51182, if either (1) the transferor, or the transferor's agent, has actual knowledge that the property is within a very high fire hazard severity zone; or (2) a map that includes the property has been provided to the local agency as provided in Gov. Code § 51178 and a notice has been posted at the offices of the county recorder, county assessor, and county planning agency that identifies the location of the map and any information regarding changes to the map received by the local agency [Gov. Code § 51183.5; see § 569.12[13]].

- A person who is acting as an agent for a transferor of real property that islocated within an earthquake fault zone [see Pub. Res. Code § 2622], or the transferor if he or she is acting without an agent, must disclose to any prospective transferee the fact that the property is located within a delineated earthquake fault zone, if either (1) the transferor, or the transferor's agent, has actual knowledge that the property is within a delineated earthquake fault zone; or (2) a map that includes the property has been provided to the city or county as provided in Pub. Res. Code § 2622 and a notice has been posted at the offices of the county recorder, county assessor, and county planning agency that identifies the location of the map and any information regarding changes to the map received by the county [Pub. Res. Code § 2621.9; see § 569.12[14]].

- A person who is acting as an agent for a transferor of real property that is located within a seismic hazard zone [see Pub. Res. Code § 2696], or the transferor if he or she is acting without an agent, must disclose to any prospective transferee the fact that the property is located within a seismic hazard zone, if either (1) the transferor, or the transferor's agent, has actual knowledge that the property is within a seismic hazard zone; or (2) a map that includes the property has been provided to the city or county as provided in Pub. Res. Code § 2696 and a notice has been posted at the offices of the county recorder, county assessor, and county planning agency that identifies the location of the map and any information regarding changes to the map received by the county [Pub. Res. Code § 2694; see § 569.12[15]].

- A transferor of real property that is located within a state responsibility area [see Pub. Res. Code § 4125] must disclose to any prospective transferee the fact that the property is located within a wildland area that may contain substantial forest fire risks and hazards and is subject to the maintenance requirements of Pub. Res. Code § 4291, if either (1) the transferor, or the transferor's agent, has actual knowledge that the property is within a wildland fire zone; or (2) a map that includes the property has been provided to the city or county as provided in Pub. Res. Code § 4125 and a notice has been posted at the offices of the county recorder, county assessor, and county planning agency that identifies the location of the map and any information regarding changes to the map received by the county [Pub. Res. Code § 4136]. The transferor must also disclose to any prospective transferee that it is not the state's responsibility to provide fire protection services to any building or structure located within the wildlands unless the Department of Forestry and Fire Protection has entered into a cooperative agreement with a local agency for those purposes in accordance with Pub. Res. Code § 4142 [Pub. Res. Code § 4136(b); see § 569.12[16]].

A person or entity acting as an escrow agent for the transfer of the property is not deemed the agent of the transferor or transferee for purposes of the natural hazard disclosure requirements, unless the person or entity is empowered to so act by an express written agreement to that effect. In that case, the extent of that agency is governed by the written agreement [Civ. Code § 1103.11].

In any transaction in which a transferor accepted, before June 1, 1998, an offer to purchase, the transferor, or his or her agent, is deemed to have complied with the natural hazard disclosure requirement if the transferor or agent delivered to the prospective transferee a statement that included substantially the same information and warning as the Natural Hazard Disclosure Statement [Civ. Code § 1103.2(h)].

Any waiver of the disclosure requirement is void as against public policy [Civ. Code § 1103(d)].

[2] Exempted Transactions

The following transactions are exempt from the natural hazard disclosure requirement [Civ. Code § 1103.1(a)]:

- Transfers ordered by the court, including, but not limited to, transfers ordered by a probate court in administration of an estate, transfers under a writ of execution, transfers by any foreclosure sale, transfers by a trustee in bankruptcy, transfers by eminent domain, and transfers resulting from a decree for specific performance.

- Transfers to a mortgagee by a mortgagor or successor in interest who is in default, transfers to a beneficiary of a deed of trust by a trustor or successor in interest who is in default, transfers by any foreclosure sale after default, transfers by any foreclosure sale after default in an obligation secured by a mortgage, transfers by a sale under a power of sale or any foreclosure sale under a decree of foreclosure after default in an obligation secured by a deed of trust or secured by any other instrument containing a power of sale, or transfers by a mortgagee or a beneficiary under a deed of trust who has acquired the real property at a sale conducted under a power of sale in a mortgage or deed of trust or a sale under a decree of foreclosure or has acquired the real property by a deed in lieu of foreclosure.

- Transfers by a fiduciary in the course of the administration of a decedent's estate, guardianship, conservatorship, or trust.

- Transfers from one co-owner to one or more other co-owners.

- Transfers made to a spouse, or to a person or persons in the lineal line of consanguinity of one or more of the transferors.

- Transfers between spouses resulting from a judgment of dissolution of marriage or of legal separation of the parties or from a property settlement agreement incidental to that judgment.

- Transfers by the Controller under the Unclaimed Property Law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1500 et seq.].

- Transfers under the statutory provisions providing for the sale of tax-defaulted property [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 3691 et seq., 3771 et seq.].

- Transfers or exchanges to or from any governmental entity.

However, these exempted transactions may be subject to other disclosure requirements, including those under Gov. Code §§ 8589.3, 8589.4 (special flood hazard areas), 51183.5 (fire hazard severity zones), and Pub. Res. Code §§ 2621.9 (earthquake fault zones), 2694 (seismic hazard zones), and 4136 (state responsibility areas for substantial forest fire risks) [Civ. Code § 1103.1(b)].

[3] Delivery and Confirmation of Disclosure Statement

The transferor must deliver to the prospective transferee the Natural Hazard Disclosure Statement, as follows [Civ. Code § 1103.3(a)]:

- In the case of a sale, as soon as practicable before transfer of title; or

- In the case of transfer by a real property sales contract [see Civ. Code § 2985], or by a lease together with an option to purchase, or a ground lease coupled with improvements, as soon as practicable before execution of the contract.

Delivery of natural hazard disclosures must be made by personal delivery or mail to the prospective transferee. Delivery to the spouse of a transferee is deemed delivery to the transferee, unless provided otherwise by contract [Civ. Code § 1103.10].

If more than one licensed real estate broker is acting as an agent in a transaction, the broker who has obtained the offer made by the transferee must, except as otherwise provided below, deliver the required disclosure to the transferee, unless the transferor has given other written instructions for delivery [Civ. Code § 1103.12(a)].

The transferor must indicate compliance with the natural hazard disclosure requirements either on the receipt for deposit, the real property sales contract, the lease, any addendum attached to the lease, or on a separate document [Civ. Code § 1103.3(b)].

If a licensed real estate broker responsible for delivering the disclosures (see discussion above) cannot obtain the disclosure document required and does not have written assurance from the transferee that the disclosure has been received, the broker must advise the transferee in writing of his or her rights to the disclosure. A licensed real estate broker responsible for delivering the disclosures must maintain a record of the action taken to effect compliance [Civ. Code § 1103.12(b); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 10148].

[4] Delivery of Information By Public Agency, Other Person, or Expert

The delivery of any information required to be disclosed under Civ. Code § 1103 et seq. to a prospective transferee by a public agency or other person providing the information is deemed to comply with the disclosure requirements and will relieve the transferor or any listing or selling agent of any further duty with regard to that item of information [Civ. Code § 1103.4(b)].

The delivery of a report or opinion prepared by a licensed engineer, land surveyor, geologist, or expert in natural hazard discovery dealing with matters within the scope of the professional's license or expertise, is sufficient compliance for application of the exemption discussed in the preceding paragraph if the information is provided to the prospective transferee under a written or oral request. In responding to that request, an expert may indicate, in writing, an understanding that the information provided will be used in fulfilling the requirements of Civ. Code § 1103.2 and, if so, must indicate the required disclosures, or parts of disclosures, to which the information being furnished is applicable. When that statement is furnished, the expert is not responsible for any items of information, or parts of information, other than those expressly set forth in the statement [Civ. Code § 1103.4(c)].

Further, in responding to the transferee's request, the expert is required to make the following determinations and include the following statements, as appropriate, in the report [Civ. Code § 1103.4(c)]:

- If the property is determined to be within an "airport influence area" [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11010(b)(13)(B) (definition)], the report must include this statement [Civ. Code § 1103.4(c)(1)]:

"NOTICE OF AIRPORT IN VICINITY. This property is presently located in the vicinity of an airport, within what is known as an airport influence area. For that reason, the property may be subject to some of the annoyances or inconveniences associated with proximity to airport operations (for example: noise, vibration, or odors). Individual sensitivities to those annoyances can vary from person to person. You may wish to consider what airport annoyances, if any, are associated with the property before you complete your purchase and determine whether they are acceptable to you."

- If the property is determined to be within the jurisdiction of the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission [see Gov. Code § 66620 et seq.], the report must include this statement [Civ. Code § 1103.4(c)(2)]: "NOTICE OF SAN FRANCISCO BAY CONSERVATION AND DEVELOPMENT COMMISSION JURISDICTION. This property is located within the jurisdiction of the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission. Use and development of property within the commission's jurisdiction may be subject to special regulations, restrictions, and permit requirements. You may wish to investigate and determine whether they are acceptable to you and your intended use of the property before you complete your transaction."

- If the property is determined to be within one mile of a parcel of real property designated as "Prime Farmland," "Farmland of Statewide Importance," "Unique Farmland," "Farmland of Local Importance," or "Grazing Land" onthe most current "Important Farmland Map" issued by the California Department of Conservation, Division of Land Resource Protection, using solely the county-level GIS map data, if any, available on the Farmland Mapping and Monitoring Program web site, the report must include this statement [Civ. Code § 1103.4(c)(3)]: "NOTICE OF RIGHT TO FARM. This property is located within one mile of a farm or ranch land designated on the current county-level GIS 'Important Farmland Map,' issued by the California Department of Conservation, Division of Land Resource Protection. Accordingly, the property may be subject to inconveniences or discomforts resulting from agricultural operations that are a normal and necessary aspect of living in a community with a strong rural character and a healthy agricultural sector. Customary agricultural practices in farm operations may include, but are not limited to, noise, odors, dust, light, insects, the operation of pumps and machinery, the storage and disposal of manure, bee pollination, and the ground or aerial application of fertilizers, pesticides, and herbicides. These agricultural practices may occur at any time during the 24-hour day. Individual sensitivities to those practices can vary from person to person. You may wish to consider the impacts of such agricultural practices before you complete your purchase. Please be advised that you may be barred from obtaining legal remedies against agricultural practices conducted in a manner consistent with proper and accepted customs and standards pursuant to Section 3482.5 of the Civil Code or any pertinent local ordinance."

The legal effect of a consultant's report delivered to satisfy the exemption provided by Civ. Code § 1103.4 is not changed when it is accompanied by a natural hazard disclosure statement [Civ. Code § 1103.2(f)(1)]. A consultant's report must always be accompanied by a completed and signed natural hazard disclosure statement [Civ. Code § 1103.2(f)(2)].

[5] Transferee's Right to Rescind Transaction

If any disclosure, or any material amendment of any disclosure, required to be made under Civ. Code § 1103 et seq., is delivered after the execution of an offer to purchase, the transferee has three days after delivery in person or five days after delivery by deposit in the mail to terminate his or her offer by delivery of a written notice of termination to the transferor or the transferor's agent [Civ. Code § 1103.3(c)].

[6] Amendment to Disclosure Statement; Subsequent Changes in Information

Any natural hazard disclosure statement may be amended in writing by the transferor or his or her agent, subject to the requirements of Civ. Code § 1103.3 [Civ. Code § 1103.9; see § 569.12[3], [5]].

If information disclosed is subsequently rendered inaccurate as a result of any governmental action, map revision, changed information, or other act or occurrence after the delivery of the required disclosures, the resulting inaccuracy does not constitute a violation of the natural hazard disclosure requirements [Civ. Code § 1103.5(b); see § 569.12[7]].

[7] Liability of Transferor and Real Estate Agents; Third Party Reliance on Statement

Neither the transferor nor any listing or selling agent will be liable for any error, inaccuracy, or omission of any information delivered by public agencies or other persons if (1) the error, inaccuracy, or omission was not within the personal knowledge of the transferor or the listing or selling agent, and was based on information timely provided by public agencies or by other persons providing information as specified in § 569.12[4], and (2) ordinary care was exercised in obtaining and transmitting the information [Civ. Code § 1103.4(a)].

After a transferor and his or her agent comply with the disclosure requirements of Civ. Code § 1103.2, they are relieved of further duty with regard to those items of information. The transferor and his or her agent are not required to provide notice to the transferee if the information provided subsequently becomes inaccurate as a result of any governmental action, map revision, changed information, or other act or occurrence, unless the transferor or agent has actual knowledge that the information has become inaccurate [Civ. Code § 1103.5(a); see § 569.12[6]].

The natural hazard disclosures required under Civ. Code § 1103 et seq. are disclosures only between the transferor, the transferor's agents, and the transferee, and may not be used by any other party, including, but not limited to, insurance companies, lenders, or governmental agencies, for any purpose [Civ. Code § 1103.2(g)].

[8] Effect of Noncompliance; Good Faith Requirement

A transfer will not be invalidated solely because of the failure of any person to comply with the natural hazard disclosure requirements. However, any person who willfully or negligently violates or fails to perform any duty prescribed by the provisions of Civ. Code § 1103 et seq. is liable in the amount of actual damages suffered by a transferee [Civ. Code § 1103.13].

Each disclosure and each act that may be performed in making the disclosure must be made in good faith. "Good faith" means honesty in fact in the conduct of the transaction [Civ. Code § 1103.7].

[9] Relationship to Other Disclosure Requirements

The specification of items for disclosure in the statutory form does not limit or abridge any obligation for disclosure created by any other provision of law or that may exist to avoid fraud, misrepresentation, or deceit in the transfer transaction. In enacting this disclosure legislation, the Legislature did not intend to affect the existing obligations of the parties to a real estate contract, or their agents, to disclose any fact materially affecting the value and desirability of the property, including, but not limited to, the physical condition of the property and previously received reports of physical inspection noted on the disclosure form provided under Civ. Code § 1102.6 or 1102.6a [Civ. Code § 1103.8(a)]. Likewise, the natural hazard disclosure requirements do not change the inspection and disclosure duties of a real estate broker or salesperson under Civ. Code § 2079 [Civ. Code § 1103.8(b)].

[10] Special Instructions for Completing Form

If an earthquake fault zone, seismic hazard zone, very high fire hazard severityzone, or wildland fire area map or accompanying information is not of sufficient accuracy or scale that a reasonable person can determine if the property is included in a natural hazard area, the transferor or transferor's agent must mark "Yes" on the Natural Hazard Disclosure

Statement. The transferor or transferor's agent may mark "No" on the Natural Hazard Disclosure Statement if he or she attaches a report prepared by an expert [see § 569.12[4]] that verifies the property is not in the hazard zone. Nothing in this paragraph is intended to limit or abridge any existing duty of the transferor or the transferor's agents to exercise reasonable care in making a determination of the existence of the natural hazard areas [Civ. Code § 1103.2(b)].

If the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) has issued a Letter of Map Revision confirming that a property is no longer within a special flood hazard area, then the transferor or transferor's agent may mark "No" on the Natural Hazard Disclosure Statement, even if the map has not yet been updated. In that case, the transferor or transferor's agent must attach a copy of the Letter of Map Revision to the disclosure statement [Civ. Code § 1103.2(c)].

If FEMA has issued a Letter of Map Revision confirming that a property is within a special flood hazard area and the location of the letter has been posted in accordance with Gov. Code § 8589.3(g), then the transferor or transferor's agent must mark "Yes" on the Natural Hazard Disclosure Statement, even if the map has not yet been updated. In that case, the transferor or transferor's agent must attach a copy of the Letter of Map Revision to the disclosure statement [Civ. Code § 1103.2(d)].

[11] Special Flood Hazard Area

An agent for a seller or real property that is located within a special flood hazard area (any type Zone "A" or "V") designated by the FEMA or the seller if he or she is acting without any agent, must disclose to any prospective buyer the fact that the property is located within a special flood hazard area [Gov. Code § 8589.3(a)]. This disclosure is required only when one of the following conditions is met [Civ. Code § 1103(c)(1); Gov. Code § 8589.3(b)]:

- The transferor, or the transferor's agent, has actual knowledge that the property is within a special flood hazard area.

- The local jurisdiction has compiled a list, by parcel, of properties that are within the special flood hazard area and a notice has been posted at the offices of the county recorder, county assessor, and county planning agency that identifies the location of the parcel list.

For these purposes, the following persons will not be deemed agents of the transferor: (1) persons specified in Civ. Code § 1103.11 (i.e., escrow agents); and (2) persons acting under a power of sale regulated by Civ. Code § 2924 [Gov. Code § 8589.3(d)].

In all transactions that are subject to Civ. Code § 1103 [see § 569.12[1]], the special flood hazard area disclosure must be provided by either of the following means [Gov. Code § 8589.3(b)]:

- The local option real estate transfer disclosure statement [see Civ. Code § 1102.6a; § 569.11[3][b]].

- The natural hazard disclosure statement [see Civ. Code § 1103.2; § 569.12[1]].

The specification of items for disclosure in § 8589.3 does not limit or abridge any obligation for disclosure created by any other provision or law or that may exist to avoid fraud, misrepresentation, or deceit in the transfer transaction [Gov. Code § 8589.3(f)].

A notice must be posted at the offices of the county recorder, county assessor, and county planning agency that identifies the location of the special flood hazard area map, any relevant Letters of Map Revision from FEMA, and of any parcel list compiled by the local jurisdiction [Gov. Code § 8589.3(g)].

No transfer subject to Civ. Code § 1103 et seq. will be invalidated solely because of the failure of any person to comply with the provisions, including § 8589.3. However, any person who willfully or negligently violates or fails to perform any duty prescribed by these provisions will be liable in the amount of actual damages suffered by a transferee [see Gov. Code § 8589.3(e); see also Civ. Code § 1103.13].

[12] Area of Potential Flooding

An agent for a seller of real property that is located within an area of potential flooding shown on an inundation map, or the seller if he or she is acting without an agent, must disclose to any prospective buyer the fact that the property is located within an area of potential flooding [Gov. Code § 8589.4(a)]. This disclosure is required only when one of the following conditions is met [Gov. Code § 8589.4(b)]:

- The transferor, or the transferor's agent, has actual knowledge that the property is within an inundation area.

- The local jurisdiction has compiled a list, by parcel, of properties that are within the inundation area and a notice has been posted at the offices of the county recorder, county assessor, and county planning agency that identifies the location of the parcel list.

For these purposes, the following persons will not be deemed agents of the transferor: (1) persons specified in Civ. Code § 1103.11 (i.e., escrow agents); and (2) persons acting under a power of sale regulated by Civ. Code § 2924 [Gov. Code § 8589.4(d)].

In all transactions that are subject to Civ. Code § 1103 [see § 569.12[1]], this disclosure must be provided by either of the following means [Gov. Code § 8589.4(c)]:

- The local option real estate transfer disclosure statement [see Civ. Code § 1102.6a; § 569.11[3][b]].

- The natural hazard disclosure statement [Civ. Code § 1103.2; see § 569.12[1]].

The specification of items for disclosure in § 8589.4 does not limit or abridge any obligation for disclosure created by any other provision or law or that may exist to avoid fraud, misrepresentation, or deceit in the transfer transaction [Gov. Code § 8589.4(f)].

No transfer subject to Civ. Code § 1103 et seq. will be invalidated solely because of the failure of any person to comply with those provisions or with Gov. Code § 8589.4. However, any person who willfully or negligently violates or fails to perform any duty prescribed by these provisions will be liable in the amount of actual damages suffered by a transferee [see Gov. Code § 8589.4(e); see also Civ. Code § 1103.13].

[13] Very High Fire Hazard Severity Zone

A seller of real property that is located within a very high fire hazard severity zone designated pursuant to Gov. Code § 51175 et seq. must disclose to any prospective buyer the fact that the property is located within a very high fire hazard severity zone, and is subject to the requirements of Gov. Code § 51182 [Gov. Code § 51183.5(a); see Gov. Code § 51182 (imposing maintenance obligations on any person who owns, leases, controls, operates, or maintains occupied dwelling or occupied structure in, on, or adjoining any area or land that is covered with flammable materials and is within very high fire hazard severity zone designated by a local agency pursuant to Gov. Code § 51179)]. This disclosure is required only when one of the following conditions is met [Gov. Code § 51183.5(b)]:

- The transferor, or the transferor's agent, has actual knowledge that the property is within a very high fire hazard severity zone.

- A map that includes the property has been provided to the local agency pursuant to Gov. Code § 51178, and a notice is posted at the offices of the county recorder, county assessor, and county planning agency that identifies the location of the map and any information regarding changes to the map received by the local agency.

In all transactions that are subject to Civ. Code § 1103 [see § 569.12[1]], the very high fire hazard severity zone disclosure must be provided by either of the following means [Gov. Code § 51183.5(c)]:

- The local option real estate transfer disclosure statement [see Civ. Code § 1102.6a; § 569.11[3][b]].

- The natural hazard disclosure statement [see Civ. Code § 1103.2; § 569.12[1]].

If the map or accompanying information is not of sufficient accuracy or scale that a reasonable person can determine if the subject real property is included in a very high fire hazard zone, the transferor normally must mark "Yes" on the natural hazard disclosure statement. The transferor may mark "No" on the natural hazard disclosure statement, however, if he or she attaches a report prepared pursuant to Civ. Code § 1103.4(c) [see § 569.12[4] that verifies the property is not in the hazard zone. These provisions are not intended to limit or abridge any existing duty of the transferor or the transferor's agents to exercise reasonable care in making the above determination [Gov. Code § 51183.5(d)].

The specification of items for disclosure in § 51183.5 does not limit or abridge any obligation for disclosure created by any other provision or law or that may exist to avoid fraud, misrepresentation, or deceit in the transfer transaction [Gov. Code § 51183.5(f)].

No transfer subject to Civ. Code § 1103 et seq. will be invalidated solely because of the failure of any person to comply with those provisions or with Gov. Code § 51183.5. However, any person who willfully or negligently violates or fails to perform any duty prescribed by these provisions will be liable in the amount of actual damages suffered by a transferee [see Gov. Code § 51183.5(e); see also Civ. Code § 1103.13].

[14] Delineated Earthquake Fault Zone

An agent for a transferor of real property that is located within a delineated earthquake fault zone, or the transferor if he or she is acting without any agent, must disclose to any prospective transferee the fact that the property is located within a delineated earthquake fault zone [Pub. Res. Code § 2621.9(a)]. This disclosure is required only when one of the following conditions is met [Pub. Res. Code § 2621.9(b)]:

- The transferor, or the transferor's agent, has actual knowledge that the property is within a delineated earthquake fault zone.

- A map that includes the property has been provided to the city or county pursuant to Pub. Res. Code § 2622, and a notice has been posted at the offices of the county recorder, county assessor, and county planning agency that identifies the location of the map and any information regarding changes to the map received by the county.

For these purposes, the following persons will not be deemed agents of the transferor: (1) persons specified in Civ. Code § 1103.11 (i.e., escrow agents); and (2) persons acting under a power of sale regulated by Civ. Code § 2924 [Pub. Res. Code § 2621.9(e)].

In all transactions that are subject to Civ. Code § 1103 [see § 569.2[1]], the delineated earthquake fault zone disclosure must be provided by either of the following means [Pub. Res. Code § 2621.9(c)]:

- The local option real estate transfer disclosure statement [see Civ. Code § 1102.6a; § 569.11[3][b]].

- The natural hazard disclosure statement [see Civ. Code § 1103.2; § 569.12[1]].

If the map or accompanying information is not of sufficient accuracy or scale that a reasonable person can determine if the subject real property is included in a delineated earthquake fault hazard zone, the agent normally must mark "Yes" on the natural hazard disclosure statement. The agent may mark "No" on the natural hazard disclosure statement, however, if he or she attaches a report prepared pursuant to Civ. Code § 1103.4(c) [see § 569.12[4]] that verifies the property is not in the hazard zone. These provisions are not intended to limit or abridge any existing duty of the transferor or the transferor's agents to exercise reasonable care in making the above determination [Pub. Res. Code § 2621.9(d)].

The specification of items for disclosure in § 2621.9 does not limit or abridge any obligation for disclosure created by any other provision or law or that may exist to avoid fraud, misrepresentation, or deceit in the transfer transaction [Pub. Res. Code § 2621.9(g)].

No transfer subject to Civ. Code § 1103 et seq. will be invalidated solely because of the failure of any person to comply with those provisions or with Pub. Res. Code § 2621.9. However, any person who willfully or negligently violates or fails to perform any duty prescribed by these provisions will be liable in the amount of actual damages suffered by a transferee [see Pub. Res. Code § 2621.9(f); see also Civ. Code § 1103.13].

For additional earthquake-related disclosure obligations, see §§ 569.12[15] and 569.15.

[15] Seismic Hazard Zone

An agent for a transferor of real property that is located within a seismic hazard zone as designated under Pub. Res. Code § 2690 et seq., or the transferor if he or she is acting without any agent, must disclose to any prospective purchaser the fact that the property is located within a seismic hazard zone [Pub. Res. Code § 2694(a)]. This disclosure is required only when one of the following conditions is met [Pub. Res. Code § 2694(b)]:

- The transferor, or the transferor's agent, has actual knowledge that the property is within a seismic hazard zone.

- A map that includes the property has been provided to the city or county pursuant to Pub. Res. Code § 2622, and a notice has been posted at the offices of the county recorder, county assessor, and county planning agency that identifies the location of the map and any information regarding changes to the map received by the county.

For these purposes, the following persons will not be deemed agents of the transferor: (1) persons specified in Civ. Code § 1103.11 (i.e., escrow agents); and (2) persons acting under a power of sale regulated by Civ. Code § 2924 [Pub. Res. Code § 2694(e)].

In all transactions that are subject to Civ. Code § 1103 [see § 569.12[1]], the delineated earthquake fault zone disclosure must be provided by either of the following means [Pub. Res. Code § 2694(c)]:

- The local option real estate transfer disclosure statement [see Civ. Code § 1102.6a; § 569.11[3][b]].

- The natural hazard disclosure statement [see Civ. Code § 1103.2; § 569.12[1]].

If the map or accompanying information is not of sufficient accuracy or scale that a reasonable person can determine if the subject real property is included in a seismic hazard zone, the agent normally must mark "Yes" on the natural hazard disclosure statement. The agent may mark "No" on the natural hazard disclosure statement, however, if he or she attaches a report prepared pursuant to Civ. Code § 1103.4(c) [see § 569.12[4]] that verifies the property is not in the hazard zone. These provisions are not intended to limit or abridge any existing duty of the transferor or the transferor's agents to exercise reasonable care in making the above determination [Pub. Res. Code § 2694(d)].

The specification of items for disclosure in § 2694 does not limit or abridge any obligation for disclosure created by any other provision or law or that may exist to avoid fraud, misrepresentation, or deceit in the transfer transaction [Pub. Res. Code § 2694(g)].

No transfer subject to Civ. Code § 1103 et seq. will be invalidated solely because of the failure of any person to comply with those provisions or with Pub. Res. Code § 2694. However, any person who willfully or negligently violates or fails to perform any duty prescribed by these provisions will be liable in the amount of actual damages suffered by a transferee [see Pub. Res. Code § 2694(f); see also Civ. Code § 1103.13].

For additional earthquake-related disclosure obligations, see §§ 569.12[14] and 569.15.

[16] Wildland Fire Zone

A transferor of real property that is located within a state responsibility area determined by the State Board of Forestry (Board) pursuant to Pub. Res. Code § 4125 must disclose to any prospective purchaser the fact that the property is located within a wildland area that may contain substantial forest fire risks and hazards and is subject to the requirements of Pub. Res. Code § 4291 [Pub. Res. Code § 4136(a); see Pub. Res. Code § 4291 (requiring any person that owns, leases, controls, operates, or maintains any building or structure in, on, or adjoining any mountainous area or forest-covered lands, brush-covered lands, or grass-covered lands, or any land that is covered with flammable material, to maintain a firebreak and take other specified fire prevention steps)]. Except for property located within a county that has assumed responsibility for prevention and suppression of all fires pursuant to Pub. Res. Code § 4129, the transferor must also disclose to any prospective buyer that it is not the state's responsibility to provide fire protection services to any building or structure located within the wildlands unless the Department of Forestry and Fire Protection has entered into a cooperative agreement with a local agency for those purposes pursuant to Pub. Res. Code § 4142 [Pub. Res. Code § 4136(b)].

This disclosure is required only when one of the following conditions is met [Pub. Res. Code § 4136(c)]:

- The transferor, or the transferor's agent, has actual knowledge that the property is within a wildland fire zone.

- A map that includes the property has been provided to the city or county pursuant to Pub. Res. Code § 4125, and a notice has been posted at the offices of the county recorder, county assessor, and county planning agency that identifies the location of the map and any information regarding changes to the map received by the county.

In all transactions that are subject to Civ. Code § 1103 [see § 569.12[1]], the state responsibility area disclosure must be provided by either of the following means [Pub. Res. Code § 4136(d)]:

- The local option real estate transfer disclosure statement [see Civ. Code § 1102.6a; § 569.11[3][b]].

- The natural hazard disclosure statement [see Civ. Code § 1103.2; § 569.12[1]].

If the map or accompanying information is not of sufficient accuracy or scale that a reasonable person can determine if the subject real property is included in a wildland fire zone, the transferor normally must mark "Yes" on the natural hazard disclosure statement. The transferor may mark "No" on the natural hazard disclosure statement, however, if he or she attaches a report prepared pursuant to Civ. Code § 1103.4(c) [see § 569.12[4]] that verifies the property is not in the hazard zone. These provisions are not intended to limit or abridge any existing duty of the transferor or the transferor's agents to exercise reasonable care in making the above determination [Pub. Res. Code § 4136(e)].

The specification of items for disclosure in § 4136 does not limit or abridge any obligation for disclosure created by any other provision or law or that may exist in order to avoid fraud, misrepresentation, or deceit in the transfer transaction [Pub. Res. Code § 4136(g)].

No transfer subject to Civ. Code § 1103 et seq. will be invalidated solely because of the failure of any person to comply with those provisions or with Pub. Res. Code § 4136. However, any person who willfully or negligently violates or fails to perform any duty prescribed by these provisions will be liable in the amount of actual damages suffered by a transferee [see Pub. Res. Code § 4136(f); see also Civ. Code § 1103.13].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Actions Between Vendors and Purchasers Generally

50-569 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 569.13

§ 569.13 Residential Vendor's Special Duties of Disclosure

[1] Mello-Roos Community Facilities Act and Assessment Installments Under Improvement Bond Act of 1915

The seller of any real property subject to the disclosure requirements of Civ. Code § 1102 et seq. [see § 569.11] must make disclosures if the property being transferred is subject to a continuing lien securing the levy of special taxes under the Mello-Roos Community Facilities Act [Gov. Code 53111 et seq.] or to a fixed lien assessment collected in installments to secure bonds issued in accordance with the Improvement Bond Act of 1915 [Sts. & Hy. Code § 8500 et seq.] which are generally used for street improvements [Civ. Code § 1102.6b(a)]. The seller must make a good faith effort to obtain and deliver to the transferee a disclosure notice concerning the special Mello-Roos tax provided in Gov. Code § 53340.2, and an assessment installment provided in Gov. Code § 53754 from each local agency that levies the special tax or that collects the assessment installments [Civ. Code § 1102.6b(b)]. Special provisions require the legislative body collecting assessment installments under the Improvement Bond Act of 1915 to designate an office, department, or bureau in the local agency to handle annual assessment installment obligation information, reports, and dissemination, among other related activities [Gov. Code § 53754(a)]. For purposes of enabling sellers of real property to satisfy notice requirements concerning these assessment, the agency must furnish a Notice of Assessment on request within five working days, at a charge not to exceed $10 [Gov. Code § 53754(b); see Gov. Code § 53754(c) (prescribed form of Notice of Assessment)].

A seller may satisfy the disclosure notice requirements by delivering a disclosure notice obtained from a non-governmental source that satisfies thespecified requirements [Civ. Code § 1102.6b(d)(1); see Civ. Code § 1102.6b(d)(3) (provision does not change ability to make disclosures under Civ. Code § 1102.4)]. With regard to each type of required disclosure, a notice provided by a private entity other than a designated office, department, or bureau of the levying entity may be modified as needed to clearly and accurately describe either of the following [Civ. Code § 1102.6b(d)(2)]:

- A special tax pursuant to the Mello-Roos Community Facilities Act levied against the property, or to clearly and accurately consolidate information about two or more districts that levy or are authorized to levy a special tax pursuant to the Mello-Roos Community Facilities Act against the property. This notice must include the name of the Mello-Roos levying taxes against the property, the annual tax due for the Mello-Roos for the current tax year, the maximum tax that may be levied against the property in any year, the percentage by which the maximum tax for the Mello-Roos may increase per year, and the date until the tax may be levied against the property for the Mello-Roos and a contact telephone number, if available, for further information about the Mello-Roos.

- Special assessments and bonds pursuant to the Improvement Bond Act of 1915 levied against the property, or to clearly and accurately consolidate information about two or more districts that levy or are authorized to levy special assessments and bonds pursuant to the Improvement Bond Act of 1915 against the property. This notice must include the name of the special assessments and bonds issued pursuant to the Improvement Bond Act of 1915, the current annual tax on the property for the special assessments and bonds issued pursuant to the Improvement Bond Act of 1915, and a contact telephone number, if available, for further information about the special assessments and bonds issued pursuant to the Improvement Bond Act of 1915.

If these required disclosures have been delivered to the transferee, the seller or the seller's agent is not required to provide additional information concerning the special tax or assessment installments, and the disclosure information is deemed to satisfy the responsibility of the seller or the seller's agent to provide this information to the transferee. In any case, these disclosure requirements do not impose a duty agent to discover a special tax or assessment installments or the existence of any levying district not actually known to the agents [Civ. Code § 1102.6b(e)]. For additional discussion of the requirements of this type of disclosure, see Ch. 103, Brokers . For discussion of disclosure requirements in general, see § 569.11[1].

[2] Supplemental Property Tax Bills

It is the sole responsibility of the seller of any residential real property in a transfer that is subject to Civ. Code § 1102 et seq., or the seller's agent, to deliver to the prospective purchaser a prescribed disclosure notice concerning supplemental property tax bills, in addition to any other disclosure required by Civ. Code § 1102 et seq. [Civ. Code § 1102.6c(a)].

[3] Former Ordnance Location

The seller of any residential property who has actual knowledge of any former federal or state ordnance locations within one mile (that is, in the "neighborhood area") of the property must give written notice of that knowledge to the buyer as soon as practicable before the transfer of title, if the transfer is subject to the general disclosure requirements imposed on residential sellers [Civ. Code § 1102.15; see Civ. Code § 1102 et seq. (general disclosure requirements)]. A former federal or state ordnance location is an area identified by an agency or instrumentality of the federal government or state government as an area that was used for military training purposes and so may contain potentially explosive munitions [Civ. Code § 1102.15].

[4] Industrial Use Zoning

The seller of residential real property who has actual knowledge that the property is adjacent to, or zoned to allow, an industrial use described in Code Civ. Proc. § 731a, or affected by a nuisance created by such a use, must give written notice of that knowledge to the purchaser as soon as practicable before transfer of title [Civ. Code § 1102.17]. For coverage of § 731a, which places limits on nuisance actions with respect to manufacturing, commercial, or airport uses in certain designated zones or districts, see Ch. 391, Nuisance .

[5] Registered Sex Offenders Data Base

In response to the passage of "Megan's Law" requiring law enforcement authorities to maintain a data base of the locations of registered sex offenders and to provide that information to the public [see Penal Code §§ 290, 290.4, 290.46], certain written real estate contracts must contain a notice related to that data base [see Civ. Code § 2079.10a]. The notice requirement applies to every contract of sale for residential real property comprising one to four dwelling units, including installment land sales contracts [Civ. Code § 2079.10a(a); see Civ. Code § 2985(a) (definition of real property sales contract)].

The contract must contain the following notice, printed in not less than eight-point type [Civ. Code § 2079.10a(a)(3) (applicable on and after April 1, 2006); see Civ. Code § 2079.10a(a)(1), (2) (this notice may be used in contracts before April 1, 2006, in lieu of notice that formerly was required; contract forms containing notice that formerly was required may be used until April 1, 2006)]:

> Notice:
> Pursuant to Section 290.46 of the Penal Code, information about specified registered sex offenders is made available to the public via an Internet Web site maintained by the Department of Justice at www.meganslaw.ca.gov. Depending on an offender's criminal history, this information will include either the address at which the offender resides or the community of residence and ZIP Code in which he or she resides.

The information in the notice is deemed adequate to inform the buyer about the existence of the statewide data base and information from the data base regarding the locations of registered sex offenders [Civ. Code § 2079.10a(b)]. On delivery of this notice, the seller is not required to provide any further information in addition to that contained in the notice regarding the proximity of registered sex offenders, and making those disclosures cannot give rise to any cause of action against the seller by a registered sex offender [Civ. Code § 2079.10a(b)]. However, providing the statutory notice does not alter any other existing duty that a seller has to make disclosures [Civ. Code § 2079.10a(c)].

[6] Arranged Credit

Every person who is an arranger of credit must make specific disclosures to the vendor and the purchaser. The vendor must join in the disclosures to the purchaser and the purchaser in the disclosures to the vendor to the extent the purchaser and vendor have knowledge of the information. The conditions in which the disclosures must be made are as follows:

- The purchase is of a dwelling for not more than four families and the vendor extends credit [Civ. Code § 2956].

- There is an arranger of credit involved [Civ. Code § 2956].

- The credit involved is subject to a finance charge or payable by written agreement in more than four installments, whether providing for payment of principal and interest or interest only, not including a down payment [Civ. Code § 2957(d)].

- The vendor or purchaser is not entitled to disclosure of similar facts under other specified statutes [Civ. Code § 2958].

"Arranger of credit" includes [Civ. Code § 2957(a)(1), (2)]:

- A person, other than a party to the credit transaction and other than an attorney representing one of the parties to the credit transaction, who is involved in developing or negotiating credit terms, participates in the completion of the credit documents, and directly or indirectly receives compensation for arrangement of the credit or from any transaction or transfer of the real property that is facilitated by that extension of credit; and

- A party to the transaction who is either a real estate licensee or a licensed attorney, if neither party to the transaction is represented by an agent who is a real estate licensee (but in this case, the obligations apply only to the licensee or attorney who is a party to the transaction, and not to any other party).

"Arranger of credit" does not include a person acting as an escrow agent in the transaction, except that a person described in the second bulleted item, above, who acts as escrow agent will be deemed an arranger of credit if he or she acts on behalf of a party to the transaction, or an agent of the party, in negotiating or developing the credit terms. Neither completing credit documents in accordance with instructions of a party or his or her agent nor furnishing information regarding credit terms to a party or his or her agent is considered developing or negotiating credit terms [Civ. Code § 2957(a)(3), (4)].

The facts required to be disclosed about the credit transaction are set forth by statute [see Civ. Code § 2963]. The disclosures must be made as soon as practicable and before execution of any note or security documents [Civ. Code § 2959].

Any credit document or any security document subject to Civ. Code § 2956 et seq. is not invalidated solely because of the failure of any person to comply with Civ. Code § 2956 et seq. However, any person who willfully violates any provision of Civ. Code § 2956 et seq. will be liable in the amount of actual damages suffered by the vendor or purchaser as the proximate result of the violation. No person may be held liable in any action under this article if it is shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the violation was not intentional and resulted from a bona fide error, notwithstanding the maintenance of procedures reasonably adopted to avoid any such error [Civ. Code § 2965].

If a balloon payment is involved, there are special provisions requiring notice to the payor not less than 90 or more than 150 days before the payment is due [Civ. Code § 2966(a)].

[7] Noncompliant Plumbing Fixtures (Pre-1994 Residential Property)

On and after January 1, 2017 [Civ. Code § 1102.155(b)], the seller of residential real property subject to Civ. Code § 1102 et seq. [see § 569.11[1]] must disclose, in writing, that Civ. Code § 1101.4 requires that California singe-lfamily residences, if built and available for use before January 1, 1994 [Civ. Code § 1101.2], must be equipped with water-conserving plumbing fixtures on or before January 1, 2017, and the seller must further disclose whether the property includes any noncompliant plumbing fixtures [Civ. Code § 1102.155(a)(1); see Civ. Code § 1101.3(c), (e) (noncompliant and water-conserving plumbing fixtures listed)]. The seller must affirm that the representation is by the seller and not a representation of an agent, and that the disclosure is not intended to be part of any contract between the buyer and the seller. The seller must further affirm that the disclosure is not a warranty of any kind by the seller or an agent representing a principal in the transaction and is not a substitute for an inspection that or warranties a principal may want to obtain [Civ. Code § 1102.155(a)(2)]. For a disclosure form that can be used to meet this requirement, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements, § 23.315 (Matthew Bender).

Civ. Code § 1101.4(b) provides that on or before January 1, 2017, noncompliant plumbing fixtures in a single-family residential property must be replaced by the property owner with water-conserving plumbing fixtures. On and after January 1, 2017, a seller or transferor of a single-family residential property must disclose in writing to the prospective purchaser or transferee the requirements of Civ. Code § 1101.4(b) and whether the property includes any noncompliant plumbing fixtures [Civ. Code § 1101.4(c)]. These requirements apply only to residential and commercial real property built and available for use on or before January 1, 1994 [Civ. Code § 1101.2]. For discussion of these requirements and definitions of terms, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements, § 23.20B (Matthew Bender).

§ 569.14 Liability for Failure to Disclose Presence of Hazardous Substance

Owners of nonresidential real property who know or have reasonable cause to believe that a release of hazardous substance has come to be located on or beneath that property must give written notice of that condition to each buyer, lessee, or renter prior to the sale or lease. Failure of the owner to provide this notice subjects the owner to actual damages and to any other remedies provided by law. Additionally, if the owner has actual knowledge of the presence of a hazardous substance and knowingly fails to provide written notice to the buyer, lessee, or renter, the owner is liable for a civil penalty, not to exceed $5,000, for each separate violation [Health & Safety Code § 25359.7]. § 569.15 Disclosures Regarding Environmental and Earthquake Hazards

[1] Environmental Hazards

[a] Consumer Information Booklet

If a consumer information book described in Bus. & Prof. Code § 10084.1 is delivered to a transferee in connection with a transfer of real property, the seller or broker is not required to provide additional information concerning, and the information provided is deemed to be adequate to inform the transferee regarding, common environmental hazards that can affect the real property [Civ. Code § 2079.7(a)]. This does not increase the duties of sellers or brokers or alter the duty of a seller or broker to disclose the existence of known hazards on or affecting the real property [Civ. Code § 2079.7(b)].

[b] Toxic Mold Protection Act

The Toxic Mold Protection Act of 2001 [Health & Safety Code § 26100 et seq.] requires the Department of Health Services to convene a task force of various experts and interested parties to advise the Department on the development of permissible exposure limits to molds, standards for assessment of molds in indoor environments, standards for identification of molds, and remediation of mold. The Act will eventually require any person who sells, transfers, or rents specified types of residential, commercial, or industrial real property to provide written disclosures to potential buyers, prospective tenants, renters, and landlords concerning mold problems in the real property [see Health & Safety Code § 26140 et seq.]. However, these disclosure duties and requirements would not apply until the January 1 or July 1 that occurs at least six months after the Department adopts the requisite standards and guidelines [see Health & Safety Code § 26154]. Adding additional uncertainty concerning these requirements, the Act will be implemented only to the extent the Department determines that funds are available for its implementation [Health & Safety Code § 26156].

[c] Local Health Officer's Order Prohibiting Use or Occupancy

A local health officer has power to issue and serve an order prohibiting the use or occupancy of particular property after determining that the property is polluted by a hazardous chemical related to methamphetamine-laboratory activities [

Health & Safety Code § 25400.22(a)]. The property owner and any other person occupying the property must immediately vacate, and the owner must promptly engage a contractor to clean up the property [Health & Safety Code § 25400.25]. Thereafter, until the owner has received a notice from the local health officer that the property requires no further action, the owner must notify a prospective buyer in writing of the pending order, and provide the prospective buyer with a copy of the pending order, except as otherwise required in Civ. Code § 1102.3 [see § 569.11[4]]. The prospective buyer must acknowledge, in writing, the receipt of a copy of the pending order [Health & Safety Code § 25400.28(a)]. The owner is subject to a civil penalty for failing to provide the required notice to a prospective buyer [Health & Safety Code § 25400.45(a)].

[2] Earthquake Hazards Generally

If a Homeowner's Guide to Earthquake Safety described in Bus. & Prof. Code § 10149 or a Commercial Property Owner's Guide described in Bus. & Prof. Code § 10147 is delivered to a transferee in connection with a transfer of real property, the seller or broker is not required to provide additional information concerning, and the information provided is deemed to be adequate to inform the transferee regarding, geologic and seismic hazards that can affect the real property [Civ. Code §§ 2079.8(a), 2079.9(a); but see Gov. Code § 8897.1 (discussed in § 569.15[3])]. This does not increase the duties of sellers or brokers or alter the duty of a seller or broker to disclose the existence of known hazards on or affecting the real property [Civ. Code §§ 2079.8(b), 2079.9(b); but see Gov. Code § 8897.1].

[3] Earthquake Hazards of Certain Residential Property

[a] Disclosure Requirement

The seller of real property containing any residential dwelling built before January 1, 1960, with one to four living units of conventional light-frame construction must, as soon as practicable before the transfer, deliver to the buyer a copy of the Homeowner's Guide to Earthquake Safety published pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 10149 and complete the earthquake hazards disclosure regarding the property, clearly indicating whether the seller has actual knowledge that the dwelling has any of the deficiencies listed in Gov. Code § 8897.2 [Gov. Code § 8897.1(a)].

The transferor of property described in Gov. Code § 8897.1(a) must make the earthquake hazards disclosure as soon as practicable before the transfer of title in the case of a sale or exchange or prior to execution of the contract when the transfer is by a real property sales contract, and the disclosure must be made in person or by mail to the transferee, to any person authorized to act for the transferee in the transaction, or to additional transferees who have requested delivery from the transferor in writing [Gov. Code § 8897.1(b)].

The duty of a real estate licensee under Gov. Code § 8897.1 et seq. is limited to providing the seller with a copy of the Homeowner's Guide to Earthquake Preparedness for delivery to the transferee pursuant to Civ. Code § 2079.8 [Gov. Code § 8897.5].

No transfer of title may be invalidated on the basis of a failure to comply with*Gov. Code § 8897.1 et seq.* [Gov. Code § 8897.4].

[b] Contents of Disclosure

The seller must disclose any of the following deficiencies that are within the seller's actual knowledge and material to the transaction and that may increase a dwelling's vulnerability to earthquake damage [Gov. Code § 8897.2(a)]:

- The absence of anchor bolts securing the sill plate to the foundation;

- The existence of perimeter cripple walls that are not braced with plywood, blocking, or diagonal metal or wood braces;

- The existence of a first-story wall or walls that are not braced with plywood, blocking, or diagonal metal or wood braces;

- The existence of a perimeter foundation composed of unreinforced masonry;

- The existence of unreinforced masonry dwelling walls;

- The existence of a habitable room or rooms above a garage; and

- The existence of a water heater that is not anchored, strapped, or braced.

[c] Exempt Transfers

The disclosure required by Gov. Code § 8897.1(a) does not apply to any of the following transfers [Gov. Code § 8897.1(c)]:

- Transfers that are required to be preceded by the furnishing to a prospective transferee of a copy of a public report pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 11018.1;

- Transfers pursuant to court order, including, but not limited to, transfers ordered by a probate court in the administration of an estate, transfers pursuant to a writ of execution, transfers by a trustee in bankruptcy, transfers by eminent domain, or transfers resulting from a decree for specific performance;

- Transfers to a mortgagee by a mortgagor in default, transfers to a beneficiary of a deed of trust by a trustor in default, transfers by any foreclosure sale after default, transfers by any foreclosure sale after default in any obligation secured by a mortgage, or transfers by a sale under a power of sale after a default in an obligation secured by a deed of trust or secured by any other instrument containing a power of sale, and any subsequent transfer by a mortgagor or beneficiary of a deed of trust who accepts a deed in lieu of foreclosure or purchases the property at a foreclosure sale;

- Transfers by a fiduciary in the course of the administration of a decedent's estate, guardianship, conservatorship, or trust;

- Transfers from one co-owner to one or more co-owners;

- Transfers made to a spouse or to a person or persons in the lineal line of consanguinity of one or more of the transferors;

- Transfers between spouses resulting from a decree of dissolution of a marriage, from a decree of legal separation, or from a property settlement agreement incidental to either of those decrees;

- Transfers by the Controller in the course of administering the Unclaimed Property Law provided for in Code Civ. Proc. § 1500 et seq.;

- Transfers under the provisions of Rev. & Tax. Code § 3771 et seq.; and

- Transfers for which the transferee has agreed in writing that the dwelling will be demolished within one year of the date of transfer.

[d] Retrofit Standards

Gov. Code § 8897.3 provides the standards to be used if it is determined that retrofit work is appropriate to address potential deficiencies listed in Gov. Code § 8897.2 [Gov. Code § 8897.3(a)] and provides that any qualified historical building or structure, as defined pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 18955, may use retrofit alternatives [Gov. Code § 8897.3(b)].

§ 569.16 Private Transfer-Fee Requirement

If property being transferred after 2007 is subject to a private transfer fee, the transferor must provide, at the time the transfer disclosure statement required pursuant to Civ. Code § 1102.6 is provided, an additional disclosure statement containing all of the following [Civ. Code § 1102.6e]:

- Notice that payment of a transfer fee is required on transfer of the property;
- The amount of the fee required for the asking price of the real property, and a description of how the fee is calculated;
- Notice that the final amount of the fee may be different if the fee is based on a percentage of the final sale price;
- The entity to which funds from the fee will be paid;
- The purposes for which funds from the fee will be used; and
- The date or circumstances under which the obligation to pay the transfer fee expires, if it could expire.

A "private transfer fee", for this purpose, is any fee-payment requirement imposed in a covenant, restriction, or condition contained in any deed, contract, security instrument, or other document affecting the transfer or sale of, or any interest in, real property, which requires a fee be paid on transfer of the real property [Civ. Code § 1098; but see Civ. Code § 1098(a)-(i) (exceptions)].

In addition, the recipient of any such fee imposed before 2008, or the person or entity imposing any such fee after 2007, must record a document, entitled "Payment of Transfer Fee Required," in which pertinent facts about the fee-payment requirement are disclosed [Civ. Code § 1098.5].

For forms of these disclosure statements, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 23, Real Property Sales Agreements, § 23.314 (Matthew Bender).

§ 569.16A Sale Cannot Be Conditioned on Purchase of Title Insurance

Under the Buyer's Choice Act [Civ. Code § 1103.20] from October 11, 2009, through January 1, 2015 [Civ. Code § 1103.23], a seller of residential real property with four or fewer dwelling units may not require directly or indirectly, as a condition of selling the property, that title insurance covering the property or escrow service provided in connection with the sale be purchased by the buyer from a particular title insurer or escrow agent. However, this does not prohibit a buyer from agreeing to accept the services of a title insurer or an escrow agent recommended by the seller if written notice of the right to make an independent selection of those services is first provided by the seller [Civ. Code § 1103.22(a)].

"Escrow service" means service provided by a person licensed pursuant to Division 6 (commencing with Section 17000) of the Financial Code, or exempt from licensing pursuant to Section 17006 of the Financial Code. "Seller" means a mortgagee or beneficiary under a deed of trust who acquired title to residential real property improved by four or fewer dwelling units at a foreclosure sale, including a trustee, agent, officer, or other employee of any such mortgagee or beneficiary. "Title insurance" means insurance offered by an insurer admitted in this state to transact title insurance pursuant to Chapter 1 (commencing with Section 12340) of Part 6 of the Insurance Code [Civ. Code § 1103.22(b)].

A seller who violates Civ. Code § 1103.22 is liable to the buyer for three times all charges made for the title insurance or escrow service. In addition, a person who violates Civ. Code § 1103.22 will be deemed to have violated his or her license law and subject to discipline by his or her licensing entity [Civ. Code § 1103.22(c)]. A transaction subject to this provision will not be invalidated solely because of the failure of any person to comply with any provision of it [Civ. Code § 1103.22(c)].

§ 569.17 Expiration of Rights Under Unperformed Recorded Contract of Sale

As used in Civ. Code § 886.010 et seq., a "contract for sale of real property" means an agreement wherein one party agrees to convey title to real property to another party on the satisfaction of specified conditions set forth in the contract and that requires conveyance of title within one year from the date of formation of the contract, whether the agreement is designated as a contract for sale of real property, land sale contract, deposit receipt, agreement for sale, agreement to convey, or otherwise [Civ. Code § 886.010(a)].

A recorded contract for sale of real property expires of record at the later of the following times [Civ. Code § 886.030(a)]:

(1) Five years after the date for conveyance of title provided in the contract or, if no date for conveyance of title is provided in the contract, five years after thelast date provided in the contract for satisfaction of the specified conditions set forth in the contract; or

(2) If there is a recorded extension of the contract within the time prescribed in (1), above, five years after the date for conveyance of title provided in the extension or, if no date for conveyance of title is provided in the extension, five years after the last date provided in the extension for satisfaction of the specified conditions set forth in the contract.

The statutory expiration period can be extended or waived only by an instrument recorded before the expiration of the otherwise applicable five-year period [Civ. Code § 886.030(b)].

When the unperformed contract has expired of record, the recorded contract has no effect and does not constitute a cloud or encumbrance on the property except as against a party to the contract [Civ. Code § 886.040].

Civ. Code §§ 886.010-886.050 apply to all contracts for sale of real property, whether recorded before or after the effective date, which is January 1, 1983. However, no contract for sale of real property will expire until December 31, 1985 [Civ. Code § 886.050].

§ 569.18 Duty to Execute Release

If the party to whom title to real property is to be conveyed pursuant to a recorded contract for the sale of real property (defined in § 569.17) fails to satisfy the specified conditions set forth in the contract and does not seek performance of the contract or restitution of amounts paid under the contract, the party must, on demand therefor, execute a release of the contract, duly acknowledged for record, to the party who agreed to convey title. Willful violation of the above duty by the party to whom title is to be conveyed without good cause makes the party liable for the damages the party who agreed to convey title sustains by reason of the violation, including, but not limited to, court costs and reasonable attorney's fees in an action to clear title to real property. This does not make a release or a demand therefor a condition precedent to an action to clear title [Civ. Code § 886.020].

If a recorded instrument creates or gives constructive notice of an option to purchase real property, the option expires of record if no conveyance, contract, or other instrument that gives notice of exercise or extends the option is recorded within the following times [Civ. Code § 884.010]:

(1) Six months after the option expires by its terms; or

(2) If the option provides no expiration date, six months after the date the instrument that creates or gives constructive notice of the option is recorded.

When the option has expired of record due to the expiration of the applicable six-month period, the recorded option or instrument giving notice of option does not give notice to anyone or put anyone on inquiry as to the exercise or extension of the option [Civ. Code § 884.020].

Civ. Code §§ 884.010-884.030 apply on their operative date (January 1, 1983) to all options executed or recorded before, on, or after the operative date. However, an option that expires according to its terms before January 1, 1984, will not expire until that date, and an option that has no expiration date and was recorded before January 1, 1983, will not expire of record until December 31, 1987 [*Civ. Under the Uniform Vendor and Purchaser Risk Act (Civ. Code § 1662), risk follows title and possession. Unless the contract provides otherwise, if all or a material part of the property is destroyed, without fault of the purchaser, or taken by eminent domain, before transfer of either title or possession, the vendor cannot enforce the contract and is excused from performance, and the purchaser is entitled to recover any payments made [*Civ. Conversely, unless the contract provides otherwise, if all or a material part of the property is destoyed, without fault of the vendor, or taken by eminent domain, after either title or possession has been transferred, the purchaser is not relieved of the duty to pay the purchase price, nor is he or she entitled to recover any portion of payments made [*Civ. 50-569 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 569.21

§ 569.21 Formation and Breach of Contract

[1] In General

Both buyers and sellers considering suit for damages for breach of contract must first determine (1) that a contract has indeed been formed, rather than just a series of offers and counteroffers; (2) that there has been a breach of contract as opposed to a "no fault" failure of condition; and (3) that all conditions precedent to the other party's obligation have been satisfied or waived [see, e.g., Krasley v. Superior Court (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 425, 430, 161 Cal. Rptr. 629 (only counteroffers); Doryon v. Salant (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 706, 711, 142 Cal. Rptr. 378 (contract found); Spangler v. Castello (1956) 147 Cal. App. 2d 49, 53, 304 P.2d 752 (requirement for FHA, VA approval is not waivable by purchaser alone)]. In regard to the second consideration, if a buyer's qualification for certain financing is a condition, the law implies a promise by the purchaser to diligently seek that financing. The burden of proving lack of diligence is on the seller asserting breach of contract [Abrams v. Motter (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 828, 837-839, 83 Cal. Rptr. 855] . When a seller invites bids as counteroffers and abuyer's bid is in terms of a specified amount more than the highest bid, that incremental bid is fraudulent unless the seller solicited relative bids or such bids are customary in the trade or industry [Carver v. Teitsworth (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 845, 854-855, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 446] .

[2] Performance or Excuse of Conditions

Because the seller's conveyance and the buyer's payment are considered concurrent conditions, a seller is not in default until the buyer has paid or tendered the full purchase price and demanded conveyance; although a seller's repudiation or inability to perform or failure to fulfill a condition precedent will excuse a buyer's tender [Rubin v. Fuchs (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 50, 54-55, 81 Cal. Rptr. 373, 459 P.2d 925 ; Kossler v. Palm Springs Developments, Ltd. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 88, 99-101, 161 Cal. Rptr. 423] . A purchaser may make a conditional tender, that is, conditioned on a vendor's conveyance [Groobman v. Kirk (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 117, 118-126, 323 P.2d 867] . Similarly, unless the purchaser's breach takes the form of repudiation, the vendor will have to tender his or her own performance and, if a time provision is involved, demand strict performance in order to put the purchaser in default [Baird v. Barton (1958) 163 Cal. App. 2d 502, 505, 329 P.2d 492] .

When conditions are concurrent and time is of the essence in the contract, both parties' failure to perform by the closing date discharges the contract, and one party cannot tender after the closing date and make the contract enforceable [Pittman v. Canham (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 556, 559-560, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 340] . However, an agreement for the purchase and sale of property was not automatically discharged when neither party performed concurrent obligations by the date specified in the escrow instructions, even though the sales agreement provided that time was of the essence. The seller waived the time provisions by continuing to deal with the buyer after the date specified in the contract, and the buyer was prevented from tendering the loan funds by the seller's failure to provide a termite report as required by the agreement [Galdjie v. Darwish (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1331, 1342-1343, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 178] . Similarly, a buyer was entitled to specific performance of two purchase and sales contracts when it was ready, willing, and able to perform the transactions and the seller prevented the buyer from performing by failing to comply with its escrow obligations, even though the escrow instructions contained "time is of the essence" clauses [Ninety Nine Investments, Ltd. v. Overseas Courier Service (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1118, 1134, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 891] .

A party whose performance is subject to a condition precedent to be performed by the other party which has not been fulfilled or waived, need not perform. This excuse for performance or tender is somewhat vitiated by the rule of construction that conditions are to be construed as concurrent rather than precedent unless a contrary intent is plain from the contract language or the condition must in reality be fulfilled before the other performances can be accomplished. For instance, a seller's recording of a final subdivision map was a condition precedent to the buyer's duty to pay because neither the deed nor the deed of trust to secure purchase money financing could be executed until the final map was recorded to provide the official recording data [Rubin v. Fuchs (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 50, 53-55, 81 Cal. Rptr. 373, 459 P.2d 925] .

Chapter 569 VENDOR AND PURCHASER OF REAL PROPERTY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Actions Between Vendors and Purchasers Generally

50-569 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 569.22

§ 569.22 Purchaser's Remedies

[1] In General

A purchaser's choice of remedy will be affected by market conditions and the magnitude of the purchaser's desire to own the property, possibly with defects of which the purchaser was not aware at the time of contracting, and very probably after long and expensive litigation. The buyer's remedies include (1) damages for breach of the contract, (2) specific performance, even if there is some defect in title or if the seller does not own the entire estate promised, in which case the buyer is entitled to compensation for the defect, (3) damages for fraud, (4) rescission, and (5) cancellation [Civ. Code §§ 1689, 1690-1693 (rescission), 3306 (damages for breach of contract to convey), 3343 (damages for fraud), 3384-3395 (specific performance), 3412-3415 (cancellation); see Miller v. Dyer (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 526, 529, 127 P.2d 901 (buyer is entitled to compel conveyance of defective title with compensation for defect)]. Declaratory relief and reformation are available to purchasers on the same basis as they are to vendors, as discussed in §§ 569.25 and 569.26. Also, a reformed contract may be specifically enforced [Civ. Code § 3402]. Purchasers may also enforce liquidated damage provisions for their benefit, though such provisions are rare [Civ. Code §§ 1671, 1679].

A defaulting buyer is entitled to restitution of the excess of sums paid under the contract over the amount of actual damages sustained by the seller, if there is no valid liquidated damages provision in the seller's favor [Freedman v. St. Matthias Parish (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 16, 20-23, 230 P.2d 629 ; see §§ 569.24[4] (seller's damages for breach), 569.100[2] (restitution for installment purchaser), 569.104[3] (limitations on installment seller's damages); see also § 569.195 (complaint for restitution under installment sales contract), which can be modified for use under a non-installment contract].

A purchaser may plead inconsistent remedies and does not have to elect between them until after trial [Williams v. Marshall (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 445, 457, 235 P.2d 372 ; Walters v. Marler (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 1, 16, 147 Cal. Rptr. 655 ; see § 569.24[7][b]].

[2] Purchaser's Remedies to Gain Possession

It would seem that a provision for delivery of possession would be proper asincidental relief in a specific performance action [see Michaelian v. Elba Land Co. (1926) 76 Cal. App. 541, 557] . If the seller does not deliver possession after conveyance of title as provided in the contract, the buyer's remedy is an unlawful detainer action pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(b)(4), which applies also to anyone claiming through the seller [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(b)(4); Moss v. Williams (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 830, 839, 191 P.2d 804 ; Kessler v. Bridge (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 837, 838, 841 , 327 P.2d 241 ; for discussion and forms of notice and complaint for eviction of a seller holding over, see Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions].

[3] Purchaser's Damages for Breach of Contract

A purchaser intending to sue for damages for breach of contract should take note of the considerations discussed in § 569.21 (formation and breach of contract). In determining the measure of damages to be applied, the distinction must be made whether the promise to convey is the promise breached, in which case Civ. Code § 3306 governs the measure of damages, or whether some collateral promise has been breached, in which case Civ. Code § 3300 governs the measure of damages [see Coughlin v. Blair (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 587, 600, 262 P.2d 305 (collateral promise to connect road, water, electricity); Christensen v. Slawter (1959) 173 Cal. App. 2d 325, 330-334, 343 P.2d 341 (delay)]. In some cases both measures will produce the same result [see Crocker v. Grandi (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 431, 437-438, 11 Cal. Rptr. 330 (specific performance under option with damages for lots to which seller did not have clear title)].

The measure of damages under Civ. Code § 3306 for a seller's breach of the promise to convey is (1) the amount paid and expenses properly incurred in examining title and preparing the necessary papers, (2) the difference between the contract price and the value of the estate agreed to be conveyed at the time of the breach, (3) the expenses properly incurred in preparing to enter on the land, (4) consequential damages, and (5) interest [Civ. Code § 3306]. Before 1984, Civ. Code § 3306 did not provide for consequential damages or interest, though interest was allowed under case law, and any difference between the contract price and the value on the date of breach was recoverable only if the seller's bad faith was proved [see Caplan v. Schroeder (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 515, 521-522, 15 Cal. Rptr. 145, 364 P.2d 321 (allowing interest on bad faith damages from date difference could be determined); for a form of complaint by a purchaser seeking damages for breach of contract to convey, see § 569.164]. The seller may not recover consequential damages because of loss of rental income if the evidence of capitalized income value of the property included rental income [Stevens Group Fund IV v. Sobrato Development Co. (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 886, 890-892, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 460] . Because there is little case law on a buyer's consequential damages, some guidance may be found in the cases establishing the seller's consequential damages, discussed in § 569.24[4].

The measure of damages under Civ. Code § 3300 for a vendor's breach of a collateral promise is the amount that will compensate the purchaser for all the detriment caused, or which in the ordinary course of things would be likely to result from the breach [Civ. Code § 3300]. For particular applications of the Civ. Code § 3300 measure, see the decisions in § 569.164[7].

[4] Purchaser's Right to Specific Performance

To obtain specific performance, a purchaser must establish (1) the formation of a contract the terms of which are sufficiently definite to be enforced, (2) the adequacy of the consideration to be received by the vendor, (3) that the contract is just and reasonable as to the vendor, (4) that the purchaser's legal remedy is inadequate, and (5) that the purchaser remains willing and able to perform [Civ. Code § 3391(1), (2); Henderson v. Fisher (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 468, 473, 46 Cal. Rptr. 173 ; see Doryon v. Salant (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 706, 714-715, 142 Cal. Rptr. 378 (failure to allege willingness and ability to perform is not fatal if defendant fails to object to sufficiency of complaint and evidence shows willingness and ability)]. The legal remedy is presumed to be inadequate. If the property with regard to which specific performance is being sought is a single-family residence to be occupied by the purchaser, the presumption is conclusive. In other cases the presumption shifts the burden of proof, so that the vendor is required to show that money damages would be adequate [Civ. Code § 3387; see Evid. Code §§ 601, 606]. The just and reasonable requirement and the adequacy of consideration requirement are closely linked, as are the certainty requirement and the just and reasonable requirement [see Handy v. Gordon (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 578, 581, 55 Cal. Rptr. 769, 422 P.2d 329 (uncertain as unjust and unreasonable); Henderson v. Fisher (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 468, 474, 46 Cal. Rptr. 173 (just, reasonable, and adequate)]. A purchaser may waive an indefinite provision solely for his or her benefit and thereby obtain specific performance of an agreement that would otherwise be too uncertain to be enforced specifically [Reeder v. Longo (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 291, 296-297, 182 Cal. Rptr. 287] . Adequacy of consideration is tested at the time of formation of the contract or, in the case of an option, at the time it was made, not at the time it was exercised [O'Connell v. Lampe (1929) 206 Cal. 282, 285, 274 P. 336 (option); see Schwartz v. Shapiro (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 238, 255, 40 Cal. Rptr. 189 (error to admit evidence of increased value at time of trial)]. Adequacy of consideration does not require that the vendor receive the highest possible price for the property, but only that considering all the circumstances as they existed at the time of the contract, the price was fair and reasonable. Circumstances to be considered include the relation of the parties; their friendship, love, and affection; the object to be obtained by the contact; and the vendor's desire for a quick sale [Meyer v. Benko (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 937, 945, 127 Cal. Rptr. 846 ; Henderson v. Fisher (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 468, 474-475, 46 Cal. Rptr. 173] .

Specific performance is proper if a party did not have the ability to perform when the contract was executed but has the ability when the trial is held. For example, when a property could not be conveyed free and clear when the contract was made because a secured note on the property could not be prepaid, but the note is due when the trial is held, the seller is able to convey title free and clear at the time of trial, and, thus, specific performance is available [Stevens Group Fund IV v. Sobrato Development Co. (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 886, 893-897, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 460] .

A defense of impossibility with regard to specific performance was rejected by the court in a case in which a foreclosure sale resulted in the property being conveyed to bona fide third-party purchasers after the plaintiffs had entered into an oral contract for the purchase of the property. The court reasoned that a decree of specific performance need not be absolute in form, and the performance that it requires need not be identical with that promised in the contract; it may be so drawn as to best effectuate the purposes for which the contract was made, and it may be granted on such terms and conditions as justice requires [Rogers v. Davis (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1215, 1221-1222, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716 , citing Restatement of Contracts § 359(2)]. The court held that, as the equitable owners of the property at the time of the foreclosure sale, the plaintiffs were entitled in equity to the proceeds of the sale under the doctrine of equitable conversion [Rogers v. Davis (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1215, 1223, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716] .

A purchaser who is successful in an action for specific performance is entitled to recover incidentals to compensate for the delay. These include the rents and profits from or rental value of the property from the date the purchaser was entitled to possession. These amounts will be reduced by the amount of interest on so much of the purchase price as has not been set aside by the purchaser, with notice to the vendor, so the purchaser does not derive any benefit from it [Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 206, 220-222, 32 Cal. Rptr. 415, 384 P.2d 7] . Increased financing costs are another example of incidentals [Stratton v. Tejani (1982) 139 Cal. App. 3d 204, 208-209, 214-215, 187 Cal. Rptr. 231] . The court may enter an interlocutory judgment, order an accounting to determine the amount of the incidentals involved, and retain jurisdiction for further supervision of the closing [Wesley N. Taylor Co. v. Russell (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 816, 817-819, 15 Cal. Rptr. 357 .

For a form of complaint by a purchaser seeking specific performance of a contract to convey real property, see § 569.165.

[5] Purchaser's Enforcement of Liquidated Damage Clause

A clause providing for liquidated damages payable to the buyer in the event of breach by the seller would be tested under Civ. Code § 1671 and would be valid unless it was proved to be unreasonable under the circumstances existing at the time the contract was made [Civ. Code §§ 1671(a), (b), 1679].

If a clause providing for liquidated damages payable to the buyer in the event of breach by the buyer is being used defensively by the buyer to limit his or her liability to the seller, the validity of the provision will be tested under Civ. Code § 1671 if commercial property is involved and under Civ. Code §§ 1675-1681 if residential property is involved. Both are discussed in § 569.24[6][a]. A provision liquidating a seller's damages in the event of the buyer's default may be enforced by the purchaser even if it does not strictly comply with the provisions of Civ. Code §§ 1675-1677, for example, when sellers had not initialed the clause as required by Civ. Code § 1677(a). In such a case, the election to void the clause rests solely with the purchaser because purchasers, not vendors, are the class to be protected [Guthman v. Moss (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 501, 506-512, 198 Cal. Rptr. 54] .

[6] Purchaser's Damages for Fraud

A buyer's damages for fraud can be based on either affirmative misrepresentations or nondisclosure of material facts. In an action for damages for fraud based on affirmative misrepresentations, a buyer is required to prove that (1) the seller made a false representation respecting a material fact; (2) the seller knew the representation was false or made it without any reasonable ground for believing it to be true; (3) the seller intended to induce the buyer's reliance; (4) the buyer did rely on the representation; and (5) the buyer was damaged as a result of his or her reliance [Reed v. King (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 261, 264, 193 Cal. Rptr. 130 ; Roland v. Hubenka (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 215, 220, 90 Cal. Rptr. 490] .

A subsequent purchaser may bring an action for damages against the original seller based on fraudulent misrepresentations made to the original buyer if the seller (1) had reason to expect that the misrepresentations would be repeated and (2) the misrepresentations were repeated to the subsequent buyer [Geernaert v. Mitchell (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 601, 607-608, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 483] . Whether a seller of real property had "reason to expect" transmission to the plaintiff depends on (1) the extent of the seller's knowledge of resale to a particular person or class of persons and (2) the likelihood that the particular misrepresentation (or concealment) would be passed on to them [Geernaert v. Mitchell (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th. 601, 608, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 483] .

In a case involving a relocation intermediary, the Court of Appeal held that the sellers were subject to common law liability to the eventual purchaser for intentional and/or negligent misrepresentation as well as statutory liability under Civ. Code § 1102 et seq. The sellers had sold their home to a relocation intermediary, executed a grant deed with the name of the grantee left blank, and indicated on the statutory transfer disclosure statement that they were not awareof any neighborhood noise problems. This representation was not true as they had had an ongoing dispute with a neighbor over noise. The court found that the sellers had a common law and statutory obligation to make a full disclosure as to the noise disturbances. The sellers had to know and realize that the intermediary intended to sell the property. Further, because the intermediary had no knowledge of the property or its problems, other than as disclosed by the sellers, the sellers had every reason to expect that their disclosure statement would be delivered to the eventual purchaser. These circumstances were sufficient to satisfy the principles of the indirect deception doctrine [Shapiro v. Sutherland (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1534, 1546, 1550, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101] .

If damages are based on nondisclosure and no confidential relationship is involved (that is, the fraud is not perpetrated by the purchaser's own agent) in addition to the last three elements set forth above, the purchaser must prove (1) the nondisclosure by the vendor of facts materially affecting value or desirability of property and (2) that the undisclosed facts are known or accessible only to the vendor and not known or within reach of the diligent attention and observation of the purchaser [Reed v. King (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 261, 265, 193 Cal. Rptr. 130 ; Driver v. Melone (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 746, 753, 90 Cal. Rptr. 98] . When these elements exist, a purchaser has an election between rescission and damages for fraud [Snelson v. Ondulando Highlands Corp. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 243, 251, 84 Cal. Rptr. 800] . The materiality of the undisclosed fact is determined from consideration of (1) the gravity of the harm inflicted by nondisclosure; (2) the fairness of imposing a duty of discovery on the purchaser as an alternative to compelling disclosure by the vendor; and (3) the impact on the stability of the contract if rescission is allowed [Reed v. King (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 261, 265-267, 193 Cal. Rptr. 130] . Some defects or conditions, such as the fact that a lot is all or part fill, are considered by case law to be so material that their nondisclosure is considered an inducement [see, e.g., Snelson v. Ondulando Highlands Corp. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 243, 251, 84 Cal. Rptr. 800 ; Buist v. C. Dudley De

Velbiss Corp. (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 325, 331, 6 Cal. Rptr. 259] . In addition, if a vendor has knowledge of the existence of a past or present progressive destruction or substantial impairment, he or she is under a duty to disclose even if he or she believes the progression has been halted [Barnhouse v. City of Pinole (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 171, 190, 183 Cal. Rptr. 881] . If a buyer cannot establish all of these elements, damages may still be recoverable for omissions in the various statutory disclosures [see, e.g., § 569.11].

For a form of complaint for damages for a seller's failure to comply with statutory disclosure requirements, see § 569.166. For a form of complaint for rescission based on a seller's fraud, see § 569.168. For more detailed discussion of fraud and for forms specifically for use by defrauded buyer's of real property, see Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit . For discussion of the purchaser's rights if his or her own agent perpetrated the fraud, see Ch. 103, Brokers .

If the seller's agent's misrepresentations were made within the actual or apparent scope of his or her authority, both the agent and the seller are jointly liable for damages for fraud, even though the seller may be innocent of personally participating in the fraud, on the theory that he or she has accepted and retained the benefits of the transaction [Ach v. Finkelstein (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 667, 677, 70 Cal. Rptr. 472] . On the other hand, if there is an "as is" provision in the contract, or one stating that no representations or understandings are to be relied on except those written in the contract, an innocent seller will be liable for rescission and restoration, but not for damages for fraud [Herzog v. Capital Co. (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 349, 353, 164 P.2d 8 ; London v. Guberman (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 215, 218, 29 Cal. Rptr. 279] .

The measure of damages for fraud in the sale of real property is the difference between the actual value of what the purchaser parted with and the actual value of what he or she received, referred to as "out-of-pocket" damages [Civ. Code § 3343(a)]. The purchaser may not recover based on the former "benefit-of-the-bargain" rule which allowed recovery of the difference between the actual value of the property and the value as represented [Civ. Code § 3343(b)(1)]. Even when no out-of-pocket damages have been sustained, additional damages can be recovered under Civ. Code § 3343 (a)(1), (4), which allow recovery of amounts actually and reasonably expended in reliance on the fraud and to compensate for any loss of profits or other gains that were reasonably anticipated and would have been earned by the purchaser from the use or sale of the property had it possessed the characteristics fraudulently attributed to it. Because damages for lost profits from the use or sale of the property are only allowed if (1) the property was acquired for use or resale at a profit; (2) the purchaser reasonably relied on the fraud in entering the transaction and anticipating profits; and (3) the damages were actually caused by the fraud and the purchaser's reliance thereon, they are not usually available to a purchaser of a residence [Civ. Code § 3343(a)(1), (4); Stout v. Turney (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 718, 723-730, 150 Cal. Rptr. 637, 586 P.2d 1228 (mobilehome park); see also Hartman v. Shell Oil Co. (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 240, 247-250, 137 Cal. Rptr. 244 (purchase of gas station, upholding punitive damages)]. A buyer's damages will not be reduced by the amount of any collateral source which might have mitigated his or her damages. The seller may not recover consequential damages because of loss of rental income if the evidence of capitalized income value of the property included rental income [Stevens Group Fund IV v. Sobrato Development Co. (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 886, 890-892, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 460] . For instance, in an action for damages based on the seller's failure to disclose roof leakage, the fact that FHA regulations would allow the buyer of a low-income apartment complex to increase rents to cover the cost of roof repairs was inadmissible [Philip Chang & Sons Associates v. La Casa Novato (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 159, 165-173, 222 Cal. Rptr. 800] .

The requisite grounds and procedures for rescission of the contract and restitution of any consideration paid, including the requirement that anything of value received by the plaintiff be returned to the defendant, and their comparison to cancellation are discussed in § 569.24[7]. If the grounds for rescission are fraud, a purchaser can elect fraud damages or rescission [Kent v. Clark (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 779, 783, 128 P.2d 868] . The election can occur unintentionally. For instance, purchasers who demolished a house after learning that the foundation was so defective that the house could not be occupied and believing that there was no other way to correct the defect, were foreclosed from restitution [

Prichard v. Reitz (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 465, 467-469, 223 Cal. Rptr. 734] . A purchaser who is in default is still entitled to rescission and restitution of the excess of the payments made under the contract, plus the value of any improvements made to the property, over the fair rental value of the property during the time he or she was in possession [Kent v. Clark (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 779, 784-785, 128 P.2d 868 ; but see Lesny Development Co. v. Kendall (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 1010, 1020-1024, 210 Cal. Rptr. 890 (defaulting purchaser denied specific performance is only entitled to restitution of lesser of enhanced value of property due to, or reasonable cost of obtaining, subdivision map); Utemark v. Samuel (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 313, 316, 257 P.2d 656 (restitution of costs, which exceeded increased value, to purchaser granted rescission on vendor's refusal to convey)]. If the fraud occurred in the sale of income property or a business, however, the seller's offset is the lesser of the profits made by the buyer before rescission or the reasonable rental value [McCoy v. West (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 295, 302-303, 138 Cal. Rptr. 660] . The rental value offset is comprised only of the reasonable rental value of the property sold and does not include the rental value of any improvements made on it by the purchaser. Interest is allowed to the purchaser on the amounts paid towards the purchase price [Utemark v. Samuel (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 313, 317-318, 257 P.2d 656] . For a form of complaint for use by a buyer seeking rescission, see § 569.168.

For mutual mistake to provide the basis for rescission there must be some fact that is believed by both parties. Mutual ignorance of a fact, or a failure to contemplate the fact that later became known, for instance, that the holder of the existing deed of trust would require financial information from the purchaser to allow him or her to assume the loan, is not sufficient [Civ. Code § 1577; Spurgeon v. Drumheller (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 659, 663-664, 220 Cal. Rptr. 195] . When mutual mistake does provide the grounds for rescission, the buyer has an election whether to rescind or to enforce the contract and have damages caused by the mistake [see Levy v. Wolff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 367, 368-369, 294 P.2d 945 (belief that property was subject to valid lease)]. For more detailed discussion of the general requirements applicable to rescission and for additional forms, including a form of judgment for restitution based on rescission, see Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution .

§ 569.23 Protection From Foreclosure for Active Duty Service Members Under California and Federal Law

[1] Purpose and Application of Protections

In 2002, the State Legislature enacted special protections for officers and enlisted members of the National Guard called or ordered into active state or federal service and reservists of the United States Military Reserve who have been called to full-time active service or duty [see 2002 Stats., ch. 60, § 1; Mil. & Vet. Code § 400 et seq.]. This legislation establishes special protection from foreclosure and other civil liabilities for active service members and reservists who are found by a court to need assistance because of the demands of their military service [Mil. & Vet. Code § 408]. The legislation includes many provisions that are similar to those included in the federal Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (SCRA) [50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.], which is also discussed below. However, the SCRA has many more provisions than the California law, covering a greater variety of topics.

The California provisions apply to service members on active service or duty since September 11, 2001. However, the protections apply prospectively from June 20, 2002 (date bill was signed into law) [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.11]. Dependents of service members are also entitled to these benefits unless the court finds that the dependents' ability to comply with the terms of the obligation has not been materially impaired by the military service of the person on whom the applicants are dependent [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.5].

[2] Actions for Foreclose on Mortgage or Deed of Trust

These protections apply to obligations secured by a mortgage, trust deed, or other security in the nature of a mortgage on real or personal property owned by a service member at the commencement of the period of the military service and still owned by the service member [Mil. & Vet. Code § 408(a)]. In any proceeding commenced in any court during the period of military service to enforce that obligation, arising out of nonpayment of any sum due or out of any other breach of the terms of the mortgage, trust deed, or other security occurring before or during the period of service, the court may, after hearing and in its discretion on its own motion, and must, on application by the service member or some person on the defendant's behalf (1) stay the proceedings for any period as the court deems just, and (2) make any other disposition of the case as may be equitable to conserve the interests of all parties [Mil. & Vet. Code § 408(b)]. The court may deny the stay if it finds that the ability of the defendant to comply withthe terms of the obligation is not materially affected by the military service [Mil. & Vet. Code § 408(b)].

No sale, foreclosure, or seizure of property for nonpayment of any sum due under any obligation described above will be valid if made during the period of military service or within three months thereafter, except pursuant to an agreement between the parties or on an order previously granted by the court and a return thereto made and approved by the court [Mil. & Vet. Code § 408(c)]. Any person who knowingly makes or causes to be made a sale, foreclosure, or seizure of property in violation of these provisions is guilty of a misdemeanor [Mil. & Vet. Code § 408(d)].

[3] Actions to Rescind or Terminate Contract for Purchase

A person may not exercise any right or option to rescind or terminate a contract for the purchase of real or personal property, if the person or the person's assignor has received a deposit or purchase price installment from a person who has entered military service after the date of payment of the deposit or installment. Additionally, the person who holds the contract may not exercise any right or option under that contract to resume possession of the property for nonpayment of any installment due. This prohibition is applicable to any breach of the contract's terms occurring before or during the period of that military service. The only exercise may be action in a court of competent jurisdiction [Mil. & Vet. Code § 407(a)]. Violation of these provisions subjects the violator to a fine and potential imprisonment [Mil. & Vet. Code § 407(c)].

A court, on the hearing of the action, may order the repayment of prior installments or deposits or any part of these, as a condition of terminating the contract and resuming possession of the property. The court must take this action on application to it by the service member or some person on the service member's behalf. Otherwise, the court may take this action on its own motion and discretion [Mil. & Vet. Code § 407(b)]. Alernatively, the court may order a stay of proceedings as the court deems just, unless in the court's opinion, the ability of the defendant to comply with the terms of the contract is not materially affected by reason of the service; or it may make any other disposition of the case as may be equitable to conserve the interests of all parties [Mil. & Vet. Code § 407(b)].

The Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (SCRA) [50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.] suspends the enforcement of certain civil liabilities of active service members so that they can devote their entire energy to national defense [50 U.S.C. App. § 502]. Among the SCRA's protections are many similar to those afforded by the 2002 California legislation, discussed above.

With regard to mortgages and similar instruments, many provisions of the SCRA are substantively the same as provisions in the Military and Veterans Code. These laws give a court authority to allow an eligible service member to postpone making payments on mortgages that were entered before the member began active duty, on property that was owned before that time, and that is still owned by the member, if the member's ability to pay the mortgage is affected by his or her service [see 50 U.S.C. App. §§ 532, 533, 591; Mil. & Vet. Code §§ 407, 408]. Active service members are allowed to apply to a court for a stay of proceedings to collect real property taxes or assessments [see 50 U.S.C. App. §§ 561, 591; Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.2], and the court is empowered to cap interest rates at 6 percent on all obligations of active service members (including mortgages) incurred before active duty [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 527; Mil. & Vet. Code § 405].

The SCRA allows for the stay of many civil legal proceedings if the service member demonstrates that his or her military service has materially affected the member's ability to appear for the court proceedings, including proceedings concerning mortgage foreclosures [see 50 U.S.C. App. §§ 522, 533]. The length of the stay is at the court's discretion based on the service member's showing. The SCRA also offers protections against eviction from residential property rented by a service member, as well as lawful termination of leases for members entering active duty [see 50 U.S.C. App. §§ 531, 535; see also Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions].

Forms for relief under the provisions of these Acts are set forth in Chapter 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property

Mortgages . These forms include a petition for relief from a mortgage or installment contract for the purchase of real property [see § 555.138], an application for a stay of proceedings to collect real property taxes or assessments [see § 555.139], and an order staying an action on an obligation secured by a mortgage, trust deed, or similar security [see § 555.139A].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Actions Between Vendors and Purchasers Generally

50-569 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 569.24

§ 569.24 Vendor's Remedies

[1] Consideration; Election of Remedies

In selecting among available remedies, the seller will consider market conditions, the stance of the parties, and other unique aspects of the transaction, such as special conditions or covenants that are uncertain or otherwise difficult to establish in monetary terms or unenforceable in equity. Generally the choices include damages for breach of contract, declaratory relief, damages for fraud, rescission, or cancellation [Abrams v. Motter (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 828, 847, 83 Cal. Rptr. 855 ; see Evans v. Rancho Royale Hotel Co. (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 503, 507, 250 P.2d 283] . Specific performance may be available to a seller in a unique situation [see § 569.24[5].

Although inconsistent remedies may be pleaded, the seller should beware of actions that amount to an election [see Williams v. Marshall (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 445, 457, 235 P.2d 372 (rescission and breach of contract)]. For instance, resaleof the property to a third party who has no knowledge of the first contract and pays value, forecloses the possibility of specific performance; and a mutual rescission agreement forecloses an action for damages for fraud [see Civ. Code § 3395; Abrams v. Motter (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 828, 836, 847-848, 83 Cal. Rptr. 855 ; Evans v. Rancho Royale Hotel Co. (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 503, 507, 250 P.2d 283] .

[2] To Remove Clouds on Title Created by Purchaser's Claims

If the contract has been recorded and the buyer refuses to execute a release in recordable form, the seller will probably have to sue for declaratory relief, cancellation, or quiet title to be able to convey clear title to anyone else [see Civ. Code §§ 886.020 (duty to execute release), 886.030(a) (expiration of rights under recorded contract) discussed in § 569.18 and § 569.17, respectively; see also § 569.24[7][c]]. Each of those three remedies has disadvantages and is discussed in more detail in Ch. 107, Cancellation of Instruments , Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief , and Ch. 482, Quieting Title , respectively. Cancellation operates only on a void or voidable instrument, and is thus inconsistent with damages for breach of contract [Millar v. James (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 530, 532-534, 62 Cal. Rptr. 335] . While quiet title may be used to establish plaintiff's superior title as against only one adverse claim, to be successful a plaintiff cannot establish merely the weakness in defendant's title, but must prove his or her own title, even if the defendant's default has been taken [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 761.020(c), 762.010, 762.060(c), 764.010; see Winter v. Rice (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d

679, 683, 222 Cal. Rptr. 340 (complaint disclosing defect in plaintiff's title stated cause of action for cancellation, but not for quiet title)]. In addition, quiet title is not technically available to a plaintiff who does not have legal title but only equitable title; nevertheless, the technicalities are occasionally overlooked to provide rescission, cancellation and quiet title to an injured seller in the same action [see Nevarez v. Nevarez (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 596, 600, 21 Cal. Rptr. 70 (quiet title is not available to plaintiff who does not have legal title; proper remedy is declaration that defendant holds title as constructive trustee for plaintiff); Millar v. James (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 530, 531-532, 62 Cal. Rptr. 335 (transaction rescinded, deed cancelled, and title quieted against holders of deed of trust)]. Declaratory relief could be sought along with damages for breach of contract to establish that the purchaser no longer has any rights under the contract, but reliance on such a judgment to make plaintiff's title marketable seems prudent only if one knows title insurance will be available on that basis.

Thus, if the contract has been recorded and the purchaser refuses to execute a release, a vendor seeking damages for breach of contract will also seek to quiet title, whereas if the underlying transaction is rescinded, the vendor will seek cancellation. Similarly, if rescission of the contract is sought after the deed has been recorded, cancellation or a judgment requiring reconveyance will be necessary.

[3] To Regain Possession

If a buyer has taken possession and refuses to vacate after default or rescission, the seller can regain possession in a quiet title action or by an action for ejectment [Civ. Code § 3375 (ejectment); Code Civ. Proc. §§ 760.020, 761.020 (quiet title); South Shore Land Co. v. Petersen (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 725, 741, 38 Cal. Rptr. 392 (quiet title); see Paap v. Von Helmholt (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 823, 828-829, 8 Cal. Rptr. 568 (both)]. The primary difference between the two is that ejectment is based on the right to possession, while quiet title requires plaintiff to have and prove his or her legal title [Code Civ. Proc. § 764.010]. Nevertheless, title may become relevant in an ejectment action if necessary to determine the right to possession [Whittaker v. Otto (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 619, 626, 10 Cal. Rptr. 689 (ejectment); see § 569.24[2]]. For more detailed discussion and forms for seeking these remedies, see Ch. 241, Ejectment , and Ch. 482, Quieting Title , respectively.

[4] Vendor's Damages for Breach of Contract

A seller considering suit for damages for breach of contract should first take note of the considerations discussed in § 569.21. Because the statutory measure of damages for breach of a contract to purchase real property is the difference, if any, between the contract price and the value of the property to the seller, which is generally the market value, on the date of breach, plus consequential damages and interest, the seller won't have any actual damages for breach of contract in a stable or rising market [Civ. Code § 3307; Royer v. Carter (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 544, 550, 233 P.2d 539] . In addition, to obtain consequential damages incurred after breach, resale must be made with reasonable diligence [Spurgeon v. Drumheller (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 659, 665-666, 220 Cal. Rptr. 195 (seller took property off market because personal reasons no longer necessitated sale); Sutter v. Madrin (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 161, 169, 74 Cal. Rptr. 627] . If the contract called for the seller to take back a note and deed of trust, the contract price will have to be discounted to reflect its cash equivalent. That discounting will erode, and may eliminate, any difference between the contract price and market value at the time of breach [Abrams v. Motter (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 828, 841, 83 Cal. Rptr. 855] . Furthermore, a seller who has actual damages based on market value at the time of breach but resells at a profit before trial, cannot recover damages for breach of contract [Freedman v. St. Matthias Parish (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 16, 19-20, 23, 230 P.2d 629 ; Smith v. Mady (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 129, 133, 194 Cal. Rptr. 42)]. Thus, absent significant consequential damages, a seller can recover damages for breach of contract only in a falling market. Even then, the purchaser's liability is fixed as of the date of breach, and losses after that time due to continuing market erosion are not recoverable [Royer v. Carter (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 544, 548-550, 233 P.2d 539]. For a form of complaint for use by a seller seeking damages for breach of contract, see § 569.161.

[5] Vendor's Right to Specific Performance

There is a presumption that the breach of an agreement to transfer real property cannot be adequately relieved by monetary damages. In the case of a single-family dwelling that the buyer intends to occupy, the presumption is conclusive. In all other cases, the presumption affects the burden of proof [Civ. Code § 3387]. Thus, if a single-family dwelling is not involved, the buyer will have the burden of proving that monetary damages provide adequate relief [see Civ. Code § 3387; Evid. Code §§ 601, 606; see also Henderson v. Fisher (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 468, 473, 46 Cal. Rptr. 173 (seller's burden of proof)].

Civ. Code § 3307, which specifies the detriment caused by breach of a real property contract and allows a seller to recover consequential damages and interest, does not eliminate the seller's ability to seek specific performance. The seller has a choice of remedies, and may pursue damages or specific performance [BD Inns v. Pooley (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 289, 295-296, 266 Cal. Rptr. 815] .

Adequacy of consideration and the justness and reasonableness of the contract price, elements not required to be proven in an action for damages, must be shown in a specific performance action [Civ. Code § 3391(1), (2)]. Adequacy of consideration is determined as of the inception of the contract, or, in the case of an option, at the time the option was given [O'Connell v. Lampe (1929) 206 Cal. 282, 285, 274 P. 336 (option; purchaser plaintiff); Schwartz v. Shapiro (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 238, 255, 40 Cal. Rptr. 189 ; but see Pasteur Realty Corp. v. La Fleur (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 5, 7, 315 P.2d 374 (dicta, trial court denied specific performance because of lapse of time and decreased value at time of trial)]. A vendor seeking specific performance must have performed all conditions precedent to be performed on his or her part and will have to hold the property off the market during the pendency of the action to be ready to perform [Civ. Code §§ 3392, 3394; Abrams v. Motter (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 828, 847, 83 Cal. Rptr. 855] . Any defect in title will prevent a vendor from obtaining specific performance [Schmidt v. Callero (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 582, 589, 218 P.2d 80] . Specific performance also requires more certainty of contract than does an action for damages [Store Properties, Inc. v. Neal (1945) 72 Cal. App. 2d 112, 116, 164 P.2d 38 , disapproved on other grounds, Sterling v. Taylor (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 757, 770 ; but see Schomaker v. Osborne (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 887, 893, 58 Cal. Rptr. 827 (court fixed remaining terms since principal terms were defined)].

A vendor's right to specific performance is not foreclosed by a liquidated damage provision [Civ. Code § 1680].

[6] Vendor's Retention of Deposit

[a] Under Liquidated Damages Clause

[i] Residential Property

A valid liquidated damage clause will prevent a seller from seeking damages for breach of contract but will not prevent a specific performance action [Civ. Code § 1680]. The rules governing the validity of a liquidated damages clause depend on the nature of the property that is the subject of the contract. If the contract involves a dwelling containing one to four residential units, that (or a unit in which) the buyer intends to occupy as his or her residence, a liquidated damages clause that provides that all or any part of a payment made by the buyer shall constitute liquidated damages if the buyer does not complete the purchase of the property, may be valid to the extent that payment is actually made in the form of cash or check, including a postdated check [Civ. Code § 1675(a), (b)]. The buyer's intent to reside on the premises is determined as of the time the contract was made [Civ. Code § 1675(a)(2)].

To be valid, the liquidated damages provision must be separately signed or initialed by each party to the contract. If it is included in a printed contract, it must also be set out either in at least 10-point bold type or in contrasting red print in at least 8-point bold type [Civ. Code §§ 1675(b), 1677]. If the amount actually paid pursuant to the liquidated damages provision does not exceed 3 percent of the purchase price, the provision is valid to the extent that payment is actually made unless the buyer establishes that the amount is unreasonable as liquidated damages [Civ. Code § 1675(b), (c)].

Conversely, if the amount actually paid pursuant to the liquidated damages provision exceeds 3 percent of the purchase price, the provision is invalid unless the party seeking to uphold the provision establishes that the amount actually paid is reasonable as liquidated damages [Civ. Code § 1675(b), (d)]. For these purposes, reasonableness of the amount paid is determined by taking into account (1) the circumstances existing at the time the contract was made, and (2) the price and other terms and circumstances of any subsequent sale or contract to sell the same property if the sale or contract is made within six months of the buyer's default [Civ. Code § 1675(e)].

Special provisions apply to the initial sale of newly constructed attached residential condominium units [see Civ. Code § 783] located within a structure of 10 or more residential condominium units [Civ. Code § 1675(f)(1); see Civ. Code § 1675(f)(6) ("structure" defined)]. If the amount actually paid to the seller in accordance with the liquidated damages provision exceeds 3 percent of the purchase price of the residential condominium unit, and the buyer then defaults, the seller must perform an accounting of its costs and revenues related to and fairly allocable to the construction and sale of the unit within 60 calendar days after the final close of escrow of the sale of the unit [Civ. Code § 1675(f)(1)(A)].The accounting must include any and all costs and revenues related to the construction and sale of the residential property and any delay caused by buyer's default. The seller must make reasonable efforts to mitigate any damages arising from the default, and the seller must refund to the buyer any amounts previously retained as liquidated damages in excess of the greater of either 3 percent of the originally agreed-on purchase price or the amount of the seller's losses resulting from the buyer's default, as calculated by the accounting [Civ. Code § 1675(f)(1)(B)]. The refund must be sent to the buyer's last known address within 90 days after the final close of escrow of the sale or lease of all the residential condominium units within the structure [Civ. Code § 1675(f)(2)]. If the amount retained by the seller after the accounting does not exceed 3 percent of the purchase price, the amount is valid unless the buyer establishes that the amount is unreasonable as liquidated damages pursuant to Civ. Code § 1675(e) [Civ. Code § 1675(f)(3); see Civ. Code § 1675(f)(4) (Civ. Code § 1675(d) does not apply regarding reasonableness)]. If a "new qualified buyer" has entered into a contract to purchase the residential property, the seller must perform the accounting within 60 calendar days after the new buyer entered the contract to purchase the unit [Civ. Code § 1675(f)(5); see Civ. Code § 1675(f)(7) ("new qualified buyer" defined)].

Until July 1, 2014, special provision is made for enhanced liquidated damages to be allowed to sellers in cases involving pre-completion sales of units in a structure of 20 or more residential condominium units, standing over eight stories high, that is high-density infill development as defined in Pub. Res. Code § 21159.24(a)(10) and is located in a city, county, or city and county with a population density of 1,900 residents per square mile or greater as evidenced by the 2000 federal census. When the sale price of a unit exceeds $1 million and the buyer defaults, liquidated damages of 6 percent of the purchase price will be presumed valid [Civ. Code § 1675(g), (h)]. Except regarding the amount of liquidated damages and the conditions prescribed for this case, the rules in this case are essentially the same as in a case subject to Civ. Code § 1675(f), described above.

If more than one payment made by the buyer is to constitute liquidated damages, the amount of any payment after the first is valid as liquidated damages only if (1) the total of all payments is valid under the requirements of Civ. Code § 1675, and (2) a separate liquidated damages provision satisfying the requirements of Civ. Code § 1677 is separately signed or initialed by each party for each subsequent payment [Civ. Code §§ 1675(b), 1678].

These requirements do not apply to installment contracts as defined in Civ. Code § 2985(a) (contracts that do not require conveyance within one year from date contract was formed), which are discussed in § 569.60 et seq. [Civ. Code § 1681].

[ii] Nonresidential Property

If a contract for the sale of real property does not involve owner-occupied residential property as defined by Civ. Code § 1675(a), discussed in § 569.24[6][a][i], a provision liquidating the damages to the seller if the buyer fails to complete the purchase of the property is valid, subject to the following two conditions [Civ. Code § 1676]:

- The liquidated damages provision is valid unless the party seeking to invalidate the provision establishes that the provision was unreasonable under the circumstances existing at the time the contract was made [Civ. Code § 1671(b); for further discussion of Civ. Code § 1671(b), see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.190 et seq.].

- The liquidated damages provision is invalid unless it is separately signed or initialed by each party to the contract and, if it is included in a printed contract, unless it is set out in at least 10-point bold type or in contrasting red print in at least 8-point bold type [Civ. Code § 1677].

[b] Absent Liquidated Damages Clause

Although most standard form deposit receipts contain liquidated damage provisions, in some cases a deposit will be made pursuant to some other provision or pursuant to a provision that fails as a liquidated damage provision. If the deposit is actually consideration for part of the agreement, such as an option, the seller may, of course, retain it. However, mere recitation in the agreement that the deposit is consideration for the execution of the agreement is insufficient to establish that the deposit is actually meaningful separate consideration [Caplan v. Schroeder (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 515, 519, 15 Cal. Rptr. 145, 364 P.2d 321 ; Rodriguez v. Barnett (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 154, 160, 338 P.2d 907 ; see Eddy v. Gallaway (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 185, 190-191, 89 Cal. Rptr. 491 (deposit treated as separate consideration for execution of agreement because parties treated it as option)]. Even if the deposit is not separate consideration for execution of the agreement, the seller is entitled to retain it on the buyer's breach to apply to his or her actual damages [Royer v. Carter (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 544, 547, 233 P.2d 539] .

If the contract fails or is rescinded due to a failure of condition, such as the buyer's good faith dissatisfaction with a subdivision map, the seller is not entitled to keep any portion of the deposit [Rodriguez v. Barnett (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 154, 160-161, 338 P.2d 907] . The seller is liable to return to the defaulting purchaser any excess of the deposit over actual damages, even if the purchaser's breach is willful [Freedman v. St. Matthias Parish (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 16, 20-23, 230 P.2d 629] .

[a] Grounds

The major grounds for rescission are [Civ. Code § 1689(b)(1)-(5)]:

- That consent to the contract was given by mistake or obtained through fraud, duress, or undue influence [see Civ. Code §§ 1569 (defining "duress"), 1571-1574 (defining "fraud"), 1575 (defining "undue influence"), 1576, 1577 (defining "mistake"); Conlan v. Sullivan (1895) 110 Cal. 624, 626-627, 42 P. 1081 (vendor's mistake, purchaser's fraud)];

- That the consideration for the obligation of the rescinding party failed, in whole or in part, through the fault of the other party;

- That the consideration for the obligation of the rescinding party became entirely void from any cause, or failed in a material respect from anycause before it was rendered; or

- That the contract is unlawful for causes which do not appear in its terms or conditions, and the parties are not equally at fault.

For further discussion of these and other grounds for rescission, see Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake , and Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution .

Failure of a condition precedent to be performed by the buyer is a failure of consideration providing the seller with grounds for rescission. If the condition is to be performed by a specified date, strict performance is not required, but a seller's notice of rescission given after a reasonable time will be upheld [Fowler v. Ross (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 472, 478-480, 191 Cal. Rptr. 183 (no time essence clause; notice of rescission given 52 days after date verification of financing was required); see Williams Plumbing Co. v. Sinsley (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 1027, 1031-1035, 126 Cal. Rptr. 345 (time essence clause; purchaser who tendered portion of deposit three days late still entitled to specific performance)].

A seller may have a right to rescind if he or she has been misled as to the value of his or her property by the buyer. This right will arise if (1) the purchaser makes a positive statement about the value of the property with intent to deceive, (2) circumstances indicate that the vendor relies on the purchaser's statement and superior knowledge, and (3) the vendor is either pursuaded not to make an independent investigation or is not reasonably situated so as to be able to do so [Palm v. Smither (1942) 52 Cal. App. 2d 500, 505, 126 P.2d 428] . A vendor has grounds for rescission if a managing partner or co-owner misrepresents to the vendor of a commercial property that there are operating losses, or if a purchaser misrepresents the value of the collateral, other than the property sold, taken as consideration by the vendor or fails to provide the promised collateral [see Zeller v. Milligan (1925) 71 Cal. App. 617, 623-625, 236 P. 349 (sale of one-half interest in hotel after co-owner misrepresented operating losses; misrepresentation as to value of note and deed of trust given is consideration); Frankish v. Federal Mortg. Co. (1939) 30 Cal. App. 2d 700, 713-714, 87 P.2d 90 (promised security never given)]. Other examples of grounds for rescission are discussed in § 569.24[8].

In addition, a vendor can rescind a sale to the broker who was employed to find a buyer for the property and who purchased the property without disclosing to the vendor that he or she was the purchaser. Because the broker is a fiduciary, such a sale is presumed to be without sufficient consideration, and the burden is on the broker to show otherwise [Smith v. Zak (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 785, 792-793, 98 Cal. Rptr. 242 ; Slusher v. Buckley (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 324, 331, 344 P.2d 905 (rule applied when agent's spouse was purchaser)]. If the broker, or a person or entity related to or affiliated with the broker, purchases the property, as an alternative to rescission, the vendor can recover any secret profits made by the broker [Adams v. Herman (1951) 106 Cal. App. 2d 92, 99-102, 234 P.2d 695] . For more detailed discussion of broker liability and forms of complaint for accounting and to compel reconveyance, see Ch. 103, Brokers . Other examples of broker fraud are discussed in § 569.24[8].

Under Civ. Code § 1692, consequential damages may be awarded in incident to rescission. In the context of real estate contracts, this will commonly include the value of the use of the property during the time it was in defendant's possession [Millar v. James (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 530, 532-533, 62 Cal. Rptr. 335] . Punitive damages may be awarded incident to rescission based on tortious conduct [Mahon v. Berg (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 588, 589-590, 73 Cal. Rptr. 356 ; Millar v. James (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 530, 533, 62 Cal. Rptr. 335] .

[b] Procedure

Rescission requires the return to the other party of any consideration he or she has paid [Civ. Code § 1691]. A seller of real property has to return payments and the value of any improvements made by the purchaser, less credit for the fair rental value for any time the purchaser was in possession [Kent v. Clark (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 779, 784-786, 128 P.2d 868] . Rescission should be instituted as soon as grounds are discovered because it is subject to laches and cannot be granted if the delay has prejudiced the other party [Civ. Code §§ 1691, 1693; Leeper v. Beltrami (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 195, 214-215, 1 Cal. Rptr. 12, 347 P.2d 12 (complaint demurrable for failure to allege prompt rescission)]. If rescission is sought after the deed has been given, it should be coupled with an action to cancel the deed [see Civ. Code § 3412 (cancellation of void or voidable instrument) and Ch. 107, Cancellation of Instruments; see also § 569.162]. In addition, if a business or rental property is involved, or for some other reason counsel anticipates difficulty in determining the exact amount of restitution required, a cause of action for an accounting should be added to determine the amount of profits due from the purchaser to the vendor [see Zeller v. Milligan (1925) 71 Cal. App. 617, 623-625, 236 P. 349 (rescission of sale of half interest in hotel); for discussion of the procedural aspects of accounting and for forms relating to accounting, see Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for].

Rescission is inconsistent with an action for damages for fraud or for breach of contract, both of which rest on the continuance of the contract. Thus, a completed or effective rescission bars an action for damages for fraud or for breach of contract [Civ. Code § 1688; Sharabianlou v. Karp (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 1133, 1146, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 300 (award of damages in action for rescission improperly compensated sellers for benefit of bargain that full performance would have brought); Paularena v. Superior Court (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 906, 915, 42 Cal. Rptr. 366 ; Evans v. Rancho Royale Hotel Co. (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 503, 507, 250 P.2d 283] . A party seeking damages based on rescission may alternatively seek damages based on breach of contract in the event rescission has not been effected. When such inconsistent remedies are pleaded, the plaintiff cannot be forced to an election until after trial [Williams v. Marshall(1951) 37 Cal. 2d 445, 457, 235 P.2d 372] . Nevertheless, because a complaint for rescission is a continuing offer of rescission, the other party may accept the offer at any time [see Paularena v. Superior Court (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 906, 910, 915, 42 Cal. Rptr. 366] . If the court in a rescission action finds the contract has not been rescinded, other relief may be granted [Civ. Code § 1692]. A vendor's quiet title action does not indicate an election to rescind the contract [Honey v. Henry's Franchise Leasing Corp. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 801, 803, 52 Cal. Rptr. 18, 415 P.2d 833] . However, quiet title and rescission are not inconsistent remedies and may be sought in the same action [see Seeger v. Odell (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 409, 412-414, 115 P.2d 977] .

Because a rescission action seeking to recover something other than the consideration paid was an equitable action before the 1961 amendments to the statutes governing rescission, it is an equitable action today. Thus, a vendor was not entitled to a jury trial on a cause of action for rescission against the buyer where the recovery sought by the vendor (money judgment) consisted entirely of something other than the consideration originally paid by vendor (the parcel of land). The 1961 changes to the law of rescission did not give a rescinding plaintiff the right to a jury trial whenever that plaintiff seeks only a monetary recovery [NMSBPCSLDHB v. County of Fresno (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 954, 962-963, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 425] .

[c] Cancellation and Rescission Distinguished

Rescission terminates the contract or obligation while cancellation operates on the instrument. Rescission assumes the existence of a valid contract, while cancellation is only available as to an instrument that is void or voidable [Civ. Code §§ 1688 (rescission), 3412 (cancellation); Chas. Brown & Sons v. White Lunch Co. (1928) 92 Cal. App. 457, 461-462, 268 P. 490] . Cancellation is subject to the additional requirement that there be a reasonable basis for apprehension that if the instrument is left outstanding, it may cause serious injury to a person against whom it is void or voidable. Thus, an instrument that is void on its face, or on the face of another instrument which is necessary to its use in evidence, cannot be the subject of an action for cancellation [Civ. Code § 3413]. A deed or a recorded contract for the transfer of property can first be rescinded and then cancelled [Millar v. James (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 530, 532-534, 62 Cal. Rptr. 335 (deed); Kejr v. Construction Engineers, Inc. (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 817, 819, 245 P.2d 21 (recorded timber sale contract)]. Cancellation terminates so much of the contract as remains unperformed and operates as of the time of cancellation; rescission operates to restore the parties to the status quo as of the time the contract was formed [Mamula v. McCulloch (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 184, 197, 79 Cal. Rptr. 571] . Still, damages may be awarded incident to both cancellation and rescission [Oswald v. City of El Centro (1930) 211 Cal. 45, 52, 292 P. 1073 (cancellation of lease); Millar v. James (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 530, 532-533, 62 Cal. Rptr. 335 (both)].

Both rescission of contracts and cancellation of voidable instruments require restoration by plaintiff of anything of value he or she has received from the defendant; cancellation of a void instrument, such as a deed of trust one was tricked into signing, does not [Fleming v. Kagan (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 791, 796-799, 11 Cal. Rptr. 737] . Partial cancellation is available, but, absent a showing that certain provisions are severable, partial rescission is not [Civ. Code § 3414; IMO Development Corp. v. Dow Corning Corp. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 451, 457-458, 185 Cal. Rptr. 341 ; Pitts v.

Highland Construction Co. (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 206, 212-213, 252 P.2d 14 (amount of note reduced in action to cancel note and deed of trust)]. Both rescission and cancellation are subject to laches [Leeper v. Beltrami (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 195, 214-215, 1 Cal. Rptr. 12, 347 P.2d 12] .

[8] Vendor's Damages for Fraud

If a vendor has sufficient grounds to recover damages for fraud, he or she will also have grounds for rescission, so counsel will want to carefully evaluate whether rescission or damages for fraud will be more advantageous under the facts of the case [Civ. Code § 1689(b)(1)]. For discussion of the relief available in a rescission action as well as examples of fraud allowing rescission, see § 569.24[7]. Vendor's damages for fraud generally arise out of four types of misrepresentations:

- Misrepresentations as to the value of the vendor's property or the extent of the vendor's interest in the property [see Palm v. Smither (1942) 52 Cal. App. 2d 500, 505, 126 P.2d 428 , discussed in § 569.24[7][a] (value of property); Seeger v. Odell (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 409, 414-417, 115 P.2d 977 (extent of interest)];

- Misrepresentations as to the value of the consideration given in exchange by the purchaser [see Schoenberg v. Romike Properties (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 154, 156-157, 59 Cal. Rptr. 359 ; Salvati v. Cusolito (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 582, 584-585, 220 P.2d 800] ;

- Trickery in obtaining the vendor's signature on the deed [see Channell v. Anthony (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 290, 298-299, 129 Cal. Rptr. 704] ; and

- Misrepresentations in connection with the vendor's agreement to subordinate a deed of trust taken back as partial payment. This often involves the contention that the purchaser promised to use the proceeds of the senior loan solely for improvement of the property without any intention of performing that promise. Such a contention is very difficult to prove [see Tenzer v. Superscope, Inc. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 18, 30-31, 216Cal. Rptr. 130, 702 P.2d 212 (something more than nonperformance is required to prove defendant's intent not to perform the promise); Rambo v. Blain (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 158, 163-165, 69 Cal. Rptr. 132 (senior lender joined as conspirator)].

A purchaser has a duty to disclose material facts only under certain limited circumstances, including (1) situations in which a fiduciary or confidential relationship exists, (2) situations in which a partial or misleading disclosure is made, and (3) situations in which the purchaser knows that the vendor would reasonably expect a disclosure to be made [Nussbaum v. Weeks (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1589, 1600-1601, 263 Cal. Rptr. 360] .

The primary measure of a defrauded seller's damages is the difference between actual value of what he or she parted with and actual value of what he or she received, referred to as "out-of-pocket" damages [Civ. Code § 3343(a)]. The seller may not base his or her damages on the former "benefit-of-the-bargain"rule, which allowed recovery of the difference between the actual value of the property and the value as represented [Civ. Code § 3343(b)(1)].

Even if no out-of-pocket damages have been sustained, a seller may recover damages (1) for amounts actually and reasonably expended in reliance on the fraud, (2) to compensate the seller for loss of use and enjoyment of the property proximately caused by the fraud, and (3) to compensate the seller for profits or other gains that might reasonably have been earned by use of the property had it been retained [Civ. Code § 3343(a)(1)-(3); Stout v. Turney (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 718, 723-725, 727-730, 150 Cal. Rptr. 637, 586 P.2d 1228 (purchaser plaintiff)]. Damages of the types numbered (2) and (3) are only available if, under the terms of the particular transaction, the seller retained some right to use the property or participate in profits from the property after conveyance to the defendant. Otherwise, once the seller has parted with title and waived the right to rescission, he or she no longer has any right to use the property or to claim profits from it [Channell v. Anthony (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 290, 315-318, 129 Cal. Rptr. 704] . If the transaction was not structured so as to entitle the vendor to damages for lost use and profits under Civ. Code § 3343(a)(2), (3), rescission may provide a better remedy for the particular vendor. The Civ. Code § 3343 measure of damages is discussed in more detail in Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit .

A seller of real property may also be the victim of fraud practiced by his or her broker, as well as the purchaser, for instance if the broker failed to disclose a higher offer, and after a sale based on a lower offer, acted as broker for the purchaser to resell to the offeror of the undisclosed higher offer. In such a case, because of the broker's fiduciary duty, the seller's damages are not governed by Civ. Code § 3343, but by the broader measures of Civ. Code §§ 1709 and 3333 [Lewis v. Upton (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 232, 234-237, 198 Cal. Rptr. 494 (punitive damages also recoverable); Simone v. McKee (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 307, 315, 298 P.2d 667 (damages awarded equal to difference between the first and second sale prices)]. For a form of complaint against the broker and the purchaser for damages for fraud by taking secret profits on resale, see Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit . Broker fraud might take the form of misrepresentations concerning the type or value of consideration or negligent misrepresentations by passing on the purchaser's misrepresentations without adequate investigation [see, e.g., Hartzell v. Myall (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 670, 676-677, 252 P.2d 676 (transaction netted seller less consideration for equity than promised; note not worth face value; punitive damages awarded); Schoenberg v. Romike Properties (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 154, 162, 59 Cal. Rptr. 359 (in addition to purchasers' liability, broker who failed to investigate purchasers' misrepresentation as to value of security is liable for constructive fraud); Banville v. Schmidt (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 92, 95, 98-99, 112 Cal. Rptr. 126 (in addition to liability of purchaser for fraud, broker is liable for negligent misrepresentations to vendor that property securing note and deed of trust taken by vendors was worth much more than amount due on note and that maker of note was financially stable)].

For more detailed discussion of broker liability and forms of complaint for accounting and to compel reconveyance, see Ch. 103, Brokers .

[9] Action for Unlawful "Rent Skimming"

Civ. Code § 890 et seq. establishes civil and criminal liability for rent skimming, which is essentially a purchasing landlord's use of rent revenue from residential property during the first year after acquiring that property without first applying the revenue or an equivalent amount to payments due on all encumbrances on that property [see Civ. Code § 890(a)].

The seller of residential real property who holds a lien on the property securing all or part of the purchase price may bring an action against any person who has engaged in rent skimming with respect to that property, in which he or she is entitled to recover actual damages, any appropriate equitable relief, attorney's fees, and costs. The court may also award exemplary damages in an amount not less than three times the actual damages under specified circumstances [Civ. Code § 891(a)]. If the seller reacquires the property, he or she may request the court for an order declaring that the property is not encumbered by any lien that is or has the effect of being a judgment lien against the person who engaged in rent skimming, as long as the lien in question is not related to improvement of the property and does not represent security for a loan in good faith without knowledge of facts constituting a violation of Civ. Code § 890 et seq. [Civ. Code § 891(b)]. For further discussion and forms relating to this type of action, see Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages .

Declaratory relief is available to both vendors and purchasers to determine their respective rights under a contract [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]. Questions relating to the formation of a contract, its validity, its construction and effect, excuses for nonperformance, and termination are proper subjects for declaratory relief [Fowler v. Ross (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 472, 478, 191 Cal. Rptr. 183 (vendor seeking declaration that contract has been rescinded); see Holiday Inns of America v. Knight (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 327, 328, 74 Cal. Rptr. 722, 450 P.2d 42 (purchaser/optionee seeking declaration that contract is still in force despite late tender); Roberts v. Parker (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 140, 141, 331 P.2d 447 (determining proration of taxes and assessments, date for performance); see § 569.169]. A declaratory relief action has the advantage of being entitled to priority in trial setting; however priority is not available, absent a showing that a speedy trial is necessary, if other relief is sought in addition to declaratory relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1062.3]. For detailed discussion and forms of declaratory relief, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief .

§ 569.26 Reformation

Both vendors and purchasers can have a contract or other instrument reformed, on grounds of fraud, mutual or unilateral mistake, to conform to the true intention of the parties. In the case of unilateral mistake, reformation is available only if the defendant knew of or suspected the plaintiff's mistake at the time it was made. In all cases relief is limited in that it can only be granted without prejudice to rights acquired by third parties in good faith and for value [Civ. Code §§ 3399-3401]. A contract may first be reformed and then specifically enforced [Civ. Code § 3402]. Because the purpose of reformation is to conform the contract or instrument to the intention of the parties, it is only available when there is in fact a common intention shared by both parties [Lemoge Electric v. County of San Mateo (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 659, 663-664, 297 P.2d 638] . Thus, reformation may be based on misrepresentations that a writing conforms to the intention of the parties, but may not be based on misrepresentations that induced the contract, because in the latter case the parties would not have had a common intention [Lane v. Davis (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 302, 307-308, 342 P.2d 267 ; California Pac. Title Co. v. Moore (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 114, 116, 40 Cal. Rptr. 61 (error in drafting deed)]. For discussion and forms relating to reformation, see Ch. 488, Reformation of Instruments .

§ 569.27 Options and Preemptive Rights

An option, when supported by consideration, is a contract by which an owner gives another the exclusive right to accept or reject a present offer for the sale of his or her property for a stipulated price within a specified time. An option contract is irrevocable by the optionor (owner), and unless the agreement provides to the contrary, it is generally assignable by the optionee [County of San Diego v. Miller (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 684, 688, 119 Cal. Rptr. 491, 532 P.2d 139] . The option becomes a contract of sale binding on both parties only on acceptance, or exercise, of the option by the optionee [Rollins v. Stokes (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 701, 709, 176 Cal. Rptr. 835] . For cases involving disputes over whether an option has been effectively exercised, see § 569.165[8][c].

Once the option is exercised, it relates back to the time the option was given, and cuts off intervening interests if the holders of those interests had notice of the existence of the option. Notice can be provided either by recording of the option or from the optionee's possession of the premises [Claremont Terrace Homeowners' Assn. v. United States (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 398, 407-409, 194 Cal. Rptr. 216 (intervening federal tax lien defeated)]. However, evidence that an optionee has obtained title to property that is the subject of the option is not sufficient to extinguish an intervening lien when there is no evidence that the optionee's title was obtained pursuant to the option. For an optionee to have the benefit of the relation back rule, the optionee must have been able to compel specific performance of the option. If an optionee did not have the right to specific performance of the option, but nevertheless obtains title to the property outside the purview of the option, the optionee has no greater priority among competing claims to the property than any other purchaser of the property [Wachovia Bank v. Lifetime Industries, Inc. (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 1039, 1042, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 168] .

The California Supreme Court concluded that, although an agreement was titled "Real Estate Purchase Contract," the label was not dispositive. Rather, the Court looked through the agreement's form to its substance, and determined that the agreement contained the classic features of an option. First, the agreement obliged the property owner to hold open an offer to sell the parcel at a fixed price for three years. Second, the optionee had the power to accept the offer by satisfying or waiving the contingencies and paying the balance of the purchase price; however, because of an escape clause, the optionee was not obligated to do anything. The relevant term provided, "It is expressly understood that [optionee] may, at [his] absolute and sole discretion during this period, elect not to continue in this transaction and this purchase contract will become null and void" [Steiner v. Thexton (2010) 48 Cal. 4th 411, 418, 106 Cal. Rptr. 3d 252, 226 P.3d 359] . Further, it appeared that the term's broad and express language permitted the optionee to terminate the agreement even if all contingencies had been satisfied. For that reason, the Court rejected the contention that the agreement should instead have been construed as a bilateral contract subject to a contingency [Steiner v. Thexton (2010) 48 Cal. 4th 411, 418-419, 106 Cal. Rptr. 3d 252, 226 P.3d 359] .

A preemptive right requires the owner, if and when he or she decides to sell the property, to offer it first to the preemptioner, at the stipulated price. If the preemptioner decides not to buy at that price, the owner is free to sell the property to someone else. Thus, unlike an option, a premeptive right does not give the preemptioner the power to compel an unwilling owner to sell the property subject to the right [Nelson v. Reisner (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 161, 166, 331 P.2d 17] . In a sense, however, a preemptive right becomes an option when the property owner decides to sell [Mercer v. Lemmens (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 167, 171, 40 Cal. Rptr. 803] . Similarly, the granting of an option to a third party is considered a decision to sell so as to trigger a preemptive right, even if the option provides that it cannot be exercised until expiration of the preemptive right [Rollins v. Stokes (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 701, 705-706, 710-712, 176 Cal. Rptr. 835] .

Options and preemptive rights given to tenants are discussed in Ch. 331, Landlord and Tenant: Creating the Tenancy , Ch. 334, Landlord and Tenant: Claims for Damages , and Ch. 335, Landlord and Tenant: Rent Control .

§ 569.61 Installment Sales Contract--Definition

In this chapter, "installment sales contract" is used to refer to the type of contract defined in Civ. Code § 2985 as a real property sales contract: an agreement in which one party agrees to convey title to real property to another party on the satisfaction of specified conditions set forth in the contract and whichdoes not require conveyance of title within one year from the date of formation of the contract [Civ. Code § 2985(a); see Petersen v. Hartell (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 102, 106, 219 Cal. Rptr. 170, 707 P.2d 232 (right of redemption is applicable to contracts that on their face do not require conveyance within one year); In re Marriage of Tucker (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 128, 133-134, 190 Cal. Rptr. 127 (deposit receipt stating "Buyers will purchase house on contract of sale," providing for transfer of title in six to 12 months with no requirement of specific time, and evidencing intent that title be conveyed when FHA financing became available one year after completion of construction is contract of sale)].

Because developers could have difficulty financing large-scale residential condominium developments that comprise attached units, if the Civil Code provisions governing installment land sale contracts [Civ. Code § 2985 et seq.] were applied to a pre-sale agreement for a unit in such a project, those provisions do not apply to such an agreement that was made in consequence of a conditional public report for the condominium project issued by the Department of Real Estate pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 11018.12 [Civ. Code § 2985(b); see generally Assem. Comm. on Judiciary, Analysis of Sen. Bill No. 504 (2005-2006 Reg. It is a public offense for a seller of improved or unimproved real property under an installment sales contract, or any seller's assignee, to knowingly receive an installment payment from the buyer at a time when any payment by the seller or seller's assignee is then due on an obligation secured by an encumbrance on the property subject to the contract and to use that payment, or so much of it as equals the seller's or assignee's obligation, other than for payment of the amount then due on the seller's or assignee's obligation. No civil remedy is set forth, but the offense is punishable by a fine not exceeding $10,000 or by imprisonment in a state prison or county jail not exceeding one year, or by both the fine and imprisonment [*Civ. Similarly, a seller who receives pro rata payments for insurance and taxes holds them in trust for the purpose designated and cannot disburse them for any other purpose without the consent of the payor and any entity holding an encumbrance on the property [Civ. Code § 2985.4]. Civ. Code § 2985.4 does not apply to a state- or federal-supervised assignee of a seller who collects and disburses the payments as agent of the seller [*Civ. § 569.67 California Veteran Loans

Cal Vet loans are not actually loans; the Department of Veterans Affairs purchases the farm or home and sells it to the veteran on an installment contract [Mil. & Vet. Code §§ 986.9, 987.69]. To the extent that the Legislature has not created any specific provision governing Cal Vet loans, they are subject to the same law and equities as regular installment sales contracts [see, e.g., Brown v. Dep't of Veterans Affairs (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 392, 400-403, 224 Cal. Rptr. 149 (no statutory requirement that department provide insurance)]. If the Legislature has created a specific provision governing Cal Vet loans, the specific provision overrides general rules of law and equity. For instance, under Mil. & Vet. Code § 987.77, when a Cal Vet contract is cancelled on account of the veteran's default, the veteran is not entitled to restitution of excess of payments made to the department over the fair rental value during the time he or she was in possession. Mil. & Vet. Code § 987.77 provides for a forfeiture which is not allowed under regular installment sales contracts [Department of Veterans Affairs v. Duerksen (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 149, 156-158, 187 Cal. Rptr. 832 ; but see Mil. & Vet. Code § 987.78 (department may pay veteran gain on resale)].

If the installment sales contract involved gives the vendor a power of sale to be exercised after breach of the obligation, the purchaser has the same rights of notice of default, reinstatement, notice of sale, and all other rights mortgagors have under Civ. Code §§ 2924-2924h [Civ. Code § 2920]. Similarly, when the installment sales contract involved gives the vendor a power of sale, the vendor's remedy for default is limited to nonjudicial foreclosure of the purchaser's interest. 3. Contract Without Power of Sale

§ 569.100 Installment Purchaser's Remedies

[1] In General

A purchaser under an installment sales contract that does not grant the vendor a power of sale has all the remedies available to a purchaser using any other type of option or contractual arrangement. These are discussed in § 569.22 and include a statutory lien on the property pursuant to Civ. Code § 3050 for payments made, declaratory relief, damages for breach of contract, fraud, rescission, reformation, restitution of any excess of payments made over the vendor's actual damages, and specific performance [see §§ 569.163 -569.169 (sample complaints)]. As a preventative measure, a purchaser should record the installment sales contract [see McLane v. Van Eaton (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 612, 615, 141 P.2d 783 (recording of contract gives constructive notice to vendor's grantees so they are not bona fide purchasers); Resh v. Pillsbury (1936) 12 Cal. App. 2d 226, 230, 55 P.2d 264 (dicta that provision prohibiting recordation is void as against public policy); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1062.10 (suit to enforce terms of installment sales contract entered into after January 1, 1986, cannot be maintained without prior recordation of contract or filing of change in ownership statement as required by Rev. & Tax. Code § 480)].

[2] Restitution

Even a willfully defaulting purchaser under an installment contract without a power of sale is entitled to restitution of any excess of payments made to the vendor over the vendor's actual damages, though the purchaser has the burden of proving that payments exceed the vendor's actual damages [Petersen v. Hartell (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 102, 113, 219 Cal. Rptr. 170, 707 P.2d 232 ; Honey v. Henry's Franchise Leasing Corp. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 801, 805, 52 Cal. Rptr. 18, 415 P.2d 833 ; see § 569.104[3]]. Restitution is also available to a defaulting purchaser under any other arrangement, so the discussion in § 569.24[4], and the cases in the Research Guide (§ 569.120 et seq.), would also apply under an installment sales contract. A provision in an installment sales contract that provides that in the event of purchaser's default, the vendor may retain all sums paid as rent is unenforceable as an attempt to specify potentially excessive damages unless it otherwise qualifies as a liquidated damages provision, although a vendor who elects rescission may recover the reasonable rental value [Honey v. Henry's Franchise Leasing Corp. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 801, 804, 52 Cal. Rptr. 18, 415 P.2d 833 (election is vendor's, not purchaser's); Behrendt v. Abraham (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 182, 186-188,

49 Cal. Rptr. 292, 410 P.2d 828 ; Greene v. Municipal Court (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 446, 450-451, 124 Cal. Rptr. 139] .

[3] Redemption or Specific Performance

[a] Judicial Recognition of Right

A purchaser under an installment contract without a power of sale, even a willfully defaulting purchaser whose defaults consist solely of failure to pay amounts due, who has made substantial payments on the contract or substantial improvements to the property, has an unconditional right to redeem the property by paying the entire remaining balance, plus interest and damages, before judgment or within a reasonable time thereafter set by the court. The right of redemption is exercisable as soon as the vendor gives notice of election to terminate the contract on account of default [Petersen v. Hartell (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 102, 106, 111-114, 116-117, 219 Cal. Rptr. 170, 707 P.2d 232 (payments of $2,900 of $9,162 purchase price is substantial)].

Before Petersen, which was in fact a purchaser's suit for specific performance, this right of redemption was referred to as specific performance [see, e.g., MacFadden v. Walker (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 809, 812-814, 97 Cal. Rptr. 537, 488 P.2d 1353] . The court in Petersen said that a complaint by a purchaser seeking to enforce the right might more properly be called one to redeem the purchaser's equity, implying that the purchaser would not be required to prove that the contract was fair and reasonable and the consideration adequate [Petersen v. Hartell (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 102, 110-111, 116-117, 219 Cal. Rptr. 170, 707 P.2d 232 (noting at pp. 110-111 that adequacy of consideration is tested at time contract is made and considers not only value of property but also relationship of parties and object to be obtained by contract); but see Archer v. Miller (1925) 73 Cal. App. 678, 684, 239 P. 92 (purchaser defending against vendor's quiet title action on basis of lease and option to purchase is required to allege value of land, that contract was just and reasonable)].

[b] Procedure for Asserting Right

The right of redemption can be asserted either affirmatively in an action for redemption by the purchaser or in response to the vendor's action. No vendor is entitled to a judgment quieting title until the purchaser has been given a chance to redeem the property, either before judgment or within a reasonable time set by the court [Petersen v. Hartell (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 102, 106, 111-114, 116-117, 219 Cal. Rptr. 170, 707 P.2d 232 ; see § 569.194 (complaint for declaratory relief, redemption)]. If the right of redemption is raised in response to the vendor's quiet title action, it is not clear whether it constitutes such affirmative relief as to require a cross complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 761.040(a) (affirmative relief available by cross complaint in quiet title action); Furnivall v. Groves (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 846, 847-848, 317 P.2d 117 (quiet title unique in allowing affirmative relief on basis of defendant's title without need of cross complaint)]. At any rate, it will have to be set forth in the answer because answers in quiet title actions must give the basis of any claim the defendant has and a statement of any new matter constituting a defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.030(a)(1), (3)].

[c] Time for Asserting Right

There does not seem to be any statute of limitations on the purchaser's right of redemption. The plaintiff in Petersen did not commence the action until after a four-year hiatus in payments under the contract. Additionally, the court said that because of Civ. Code § 2985.1 (discussed in § 569.63), a vendor cannot sell the property subject to the contract to anyone else until the purchaser's interest has been terminated by foreclosure sale (discussed in § 569.103) or by quieting title against the purchaser's equity of redemption [Petersen v. Hartell (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 102, 116, 219 Cal. Rptr. 170, 707 P.2d 232] . Still, a purchaser who had led the vendor to believe that he or she intended to abandon the contract or was willing to agree to mutual rescission of the contract might be barred by laches.

[4] Reinstatement

By virtue of Civ. Code § 3275, providing relief from forfeitures, a purchaser who has made substantial payments on the contract or substantial improvements to the property and whose default is not willful or grossly negligent has an absolute right to reinstate the contract by payment of arrearages [Barkis v. Scott (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 116, 117-118, 122-123, 208 P.2d 367 ($3,114 of improvements, $700 downpayment, and 57 timely monthly payments compared to purchaser price of $6,150; innocent mistake regarding checks drawn on insufficient funds for two installments)]. Lack of funds alone is not sufficient to meet the burden of Civ. Code § 3275. There must be some additional showing that the lack is not itself attributable to willful or grossly negligent conduct, for example, that the earning capacity of the purchaser has been unexpectedly impaired by illness or accident [Bartley v. Karas (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 336, 342-343, 197 Cal. Rptr. 749 , disapproved on other grounds, Petersen v. Hartell (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 102, 117, 219 Cal. Rptr. 170, 707 P.2d 232 , citing Scarbery v. Bill Patch Land & Water Co. (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 87, 94, 104-105, 7 Cal. Rptr. 408 (fire on adjacent property and illness of purchaser delayed subdivision work and sales necessary to raise cash); Major-Blakeney Corp. v. Jenkins (1953) 263 P.2d655 (not an installment sale case, unexpected withdrawal of financial commitment)].

§ 569.101 Money Judgment Prohibited as Deficiency

Code Civ. Proc. § 580b prevents a vendor under an installment sales contract of a 1-to-4-family dwelling, who retains title, from obtaining a personal judgment of any type against the purchaser. A vendor cannot recover a money judgment against the purchaser for past due installments, for the unpaid balance, or for damages for breach of the contract [*Venable v. Harmon (1965) 233 Cal. § 569.103 Judicial Sale

A judicial sale, sometimes called foreclosure by sale, may be ordered if an installment sales vendor sues for specific performance and the purchaser does not wish to complete the purchase or cannot pay the balance due. Then any sale proceeds exceeding the balance due under the contract are turned over to the purchaser [Longmaid v. Coulter (1898) 123 Cal. 208, 213-218, 55 P. 791 ; Sparks v. Hess (1860) 15 Cal. 186, 193-195 ; see Laske v. Lampasona (1948) 89 Cal. App. 2d 284, 288, 200 P.2d 871 ; Petersen v. Hartell (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 102, 115 n.5, 219 Cal. Rptr. 170, 707 P.2d 232] . It has been suggested that an installment sale purchaser should also be able to initiate judicial sale, thus keeping any proceeds representing any increase in value [MacFadden v. Walker (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 809, 816, 97 Cal. Rptr. 537, 488 P.2d 1353 ; see 1 Ward v. Union Bond & Trust Company (9th Cir. 1957) 243 F.2d 476, 480-481 ; *Petersen v. § 569.104 Installment Vendor's Remedies

[1] In General

A seller's remedies are subject to the purchaser's rights of reinstatement, redemption, and restitution [Petersen v. Hartell (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 102, 111-114, 116-117, 219 Cal. Rptr. 170, 707 P.2d 232 (redemption); Honey v. Henry's Franchise Leasing Corp. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 801, 805, 52 Cal. Rptr. 18, 415 P.2d 833 (restitution); Barkis v. Scott (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 116, 117-118, 122-123, 208 P.2d 367 (reinstatement); see §§ 569.100[4], 569.100[3], and 569.100[2], respectively].

[2] Quiet Title

For a vendor who wishes to retain the benefits of any increase in the value of the property since the execution of the installment sales contract, the only remedy is an action to quiet title pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 760.010-764.070. Further, in establishing the purchaser's right of redemption, the court said that because of Civ. Code § 2985.1 (discussed in § 569.63) a vendor cannot sell the property subject to the contract to anyone else until the purchaser's interest has been terminated by foreclosure sale (discussed in § 569.103) or quieting title against the purchaser's equity of redemption [Petersen v. Hartell (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 102, 116, 219 Cal. Rptr. 170, 707 P.2d 232] . Recovery of possession, damages for withholding, and a declaration of the forfeiture of the purchaser's rights under the installment sales contract are all incidental relief that may be granted in the vendor's quiet title action [Keele v. Clouser (1928) 92 Cal. App. 526, 529-530, 268 P. 682] .

[3] Limitations on Installment Vendor's Damages

[a] Election of Measure

The deficiency prohibition of Code Civ. Proc. § 580b prevents a vendor from being awarded a personal judgment against the purchaser under an installment sales contract covering a 1-to-4-unit dwelling. Therefore, a vendor can only recoup damages to the extent of purchaser's payments under the contract [Venable v. Harmon (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 297, 301-302, 43 Cal. Rptr. 490] . In addition, the purchaser is entitled to restitution of the excess of payments made to the vendor over the vendor's actual damages. The purchaser has the burden of proving that excess [Honey v. Henry's Franchise Leasing Corp. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 801, 805, 52 Cal. Rptr. 18, 415 P.2d 833] . Earlier cases held the measure of vendor's damages to be the rental value of the property during the time the purchaser was in possession [Behrendt v. Abraham (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 182, 186-188, 49 Cal. Rptr. 292, 410 P.2d 828] . More recently, however, the vendor has been said to have an election to proceed (1) on a rescission theory, terminating the contract and recovering damages for the purpose of putting the parties in the position they were in before the contract, which essentially would give the vendor the rental value measure of damages, or (2) on a contract theory to recover damages under Civ. Code § 3307 of the difference, if any, between the contract price and the market value of the property at the time of the breach. The latter measure will only be beneficial to the vendor if the value of the property at the time of breach is less than the contract price. Seeking to quiet title does not amount to an election to rescind the contract [Honey v. Henry's Franchise Leasing Corp. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 801, 803-805, 52 Cal. Rptr. 18, 415 P.2d 833] .

[b] Rental Value Measure

Under the rental value measure, the purchaser is entitled to offset against the rental value of the property during the time he or she was in possession the amount of both principal and interest payments made to the vendor and/or to third parties on the theory that those are not the obligations of a renter, but of an owner. Similarly, whether the purchaser is entitled to credit for taxes paid when applying the rental value measure of damages depends on whether the rental rate used to establish the vendor's credits was the rental rate payable by a tenant who assumed the obligation of taxes or the rental rate payable by a tenant under an arrangement in which the owner paid the taxes [Behrendt v. Abraham (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 182, 186, 188, 49 Cal. Rptr. 292, 410 P.2d 828 (purchaser also credited for value of improvements)].

A vendor desiring the rental value measure of damages will have to give notice of rescission fairly soon after default, or have the complaint serve as notice of rescission and restore, or offer to restore, excess payments to the purchaser [Civ. Code § 1691; Kudokas v. Balkus (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 744, 753-754, 103 Cal. Rptr. 318 ; see § 569.24[7][a], [b]].

[c] Contract Measure

In addition to the difference between the contract price and the value of the property at the time of purchaser's breach, other elements of damage available to the vendor under the contract measure include (1) expenses of resale over and above the expenses assumed by the vendor in connection with the breached contract, (2) real estate taxes and assessments assumed by the purchaser under the contract, but not paid by the purchaser, (3) fees and penalties paid to rescue trust deeds from foreclosure on account of the purchaser's failure to keep payments current, and (4) in the case of income producing property, expenses of a receivership necessary to maintain the property's productivity [Kudokas v. Balkus (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 744, 755, 103 Cal. Rptr. 318] . Under the contract measure of damages, the purchaser is entitled to credit for principal payments made to the vendor or to third parties, but not to credit for interest payments. Loss of interest payments imposes no forfeiture on the purchaser, nor does it enrich the vendor. Interest paid to the vendor is consideration for the purchaser's use of deferredprincipal, and interest paid to a third party is part of the burden of the purchaser's equitable ownership and consideration for the purchaser's use of the third party's money [Kudokas v. Balkus (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 744, 756-757, 103 Cal. Rptr. 318] .

[d] Incidental Damages

If the purchaser refuses to vacate the property or asserts an interest in the property, the vendor's damages include amounts necessary to regain possession and expunge the purchaser's claim whether the vendor proceeds under the rental value or contract measure of damages. In addition, if the purchaser has remained in possession, the vendor may recover the rental value of the premises for the period after the breach or effective date of rescission [Honey v. Henry's Franchise Leasing Corp. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 801, 805, 52 Cal. Rptr. 18, 415 P.2d 833 (contract measure); Kudokas v. Balkus (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 744, 754-755, 103 Cal. Rptr. 318 (contract measure); Millar v. James (1967) 254 Cal.

App. 2d 530, 532-534, 62 Cal. Rptr. 335 (rescission, but not an installment sales contract case); see Civ. Code § 1692 (damages incident to rescission)]. The vendor can also recover costs expended to restore the property to the condition it was in before the transaction, less normal wear and tear [Bensinger v. Davidson (SD Cal, 1956) 147 F. Supp. 240, 248] .

§ 569.123 Decisions

[1] In General

Purchasers under "back-up" contract for sale of land, which was subject to condition precedent of failure, termination, cancellation, or novation of existing contract between seller and another party, had heavy burden in attempting to set aside contract relationship between seller and other party; trial court's finding that sale was consummated under modification of original contract and that no condition precedent had occurred was supported by substantial evidence. Meadows v. Lee (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 475, 483-484, 221 Cal. Rptr. 22

If offer is accepted after it expired by its terms, person making offer is able to waive expiration of offer and create contract by proceeding with purchase. Sabo v. Fasano (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 502, 506-509, 201 Cal. Rptr. 270

Whether purchaser contracting on behalf of himself or herself and nominee is entitled to maintain action on contract of sale is matter of intention of parties as to whether buyer assigned his or her rights to nominee. McCown v. Spencer (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 216, 225-226, 87 Cal. Rptr. 213

Agreement to extend time of closing of escrow is independent agreement; consideration paid to vendor for extension is not recoverable by purchaser. Morrison v. Frazier (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 386, 389-390, 68 Cal. Rptr. 690

Equitable relief was available to buyers under oral real property sales agreement after foreclosure on the property by bona fide third party lenders; relief properly took form of award of part of proceeds of foreclosure sale. *Rogers v. Seller's delivery of real estate transfer disclosure statement is nonwaivable condition precedent to buyer's duty of performance under contract for sale and purchase of real property. Realmuto v. Gagnard (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 193, 201-202, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 569

When buyer failed to request opening of escrow and escrow did not close by date required in contract, buyer was not entitled to recover for breach of contract because buyer could not prove that condition precedent was performed. Consolidated World Investments, Inc. v. Lido Preferred Ltd. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 373, 380-382, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 524

When buyer expressly disapproved condition, contract was terminated and buyer wasnot later able to enforce it by offering to waive condition. Beverly Way Associates v. Barham (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 49, 55-56, 276 Cal. Rptr. 240

When condition does not occur because of party's failure to cooperate, burden of proof is on that party to establish that condition would not have been met even if party had cooperated. Jacobs v. Tenneco West Inc. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1413, 1417-1418, 231 Cal. Rptr. 351

Discovery, after real estate sale contract had been performed, of breach of condition precedent was proper basis for cause of action for breach of contract. Louison v. Yohanan (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 258, 266, 172 Cal. Rptr. 602

[4] Damages

[a] Measure

Language of Civ. Code § 3306 makes clear that proper measure of damages for breach of contract to convey real property is difference between contract price and fair market value at time of breach, not difference between contract price and value of property at time of trial. Further, "consequential damages" recoverable under Civ. Code § 3306 for breach of contract to convey real property does not include appreciation in value of property from time of breach to time of trial. Reese v. Wong (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 51, 59-61, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669

[b] Recoverable by Defaulting Purchaser

Willfully defaulting vendee was entitled to recover excess of payments made under contract over vendor's damages caused by breach. Freedman v. St. Matthias Parish (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 16, 20-23, 230 P.2d 629 ; Q.S.W. Corp. v. Malick (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 277, 281, 64 Cal. Rptr. 722

Defaulting purchaser who was denied specific performance of contract for sale of real property was entitled to restitution of reasonable value of services rendered by it that benefitted landowner, but not to enhanced value of property attributable to those services because that would have amounted to windfall. Lesny Development Co. v. Kendall (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 1010, 1020-1024, 210 Cal. Rptr. 890

Defaulting vendee was not, because of default alone, to be denied right to recover damages for fraud. Holder v. Home Sav. & Loan Asso. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 91, 108-109, 72 Cal. Rptr. 704

[c] Damages Recoverable by Vendor for Breach of Contract

In action arising from buyer's default (after failure to procure financing, and refusal to cancel escrow), vendor was not entitled to recover amount of taxes paid because property was not sold until following year (reflecting change in law increasing tax liability), because buyer's failure to close in August of previous year did not actually cause adverse tax consequences effective in January. Nielsen v. Farrington (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1582, 1588-1589, 273 Cal. Rptr. 312

In action by vendor for contract breach against defaulting buyer, buyer is not entitled to offset for "savings" resulting from absence of broker's commission in resale when there is no evidence of value of property at time of breach; court in those circumstances is not required to determine whether benefit-of-bargain damages should be based simply on difference between contract price and value of property, or whether broker's commission should be deducted from contract price before measuring difference. Nielsen v. Farrington (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1582, 1586-1588, 273 Cal. Rptr. 312

[5] Duty of Disclosure

Triable issue whether seller of property had common-law duty to disclose existence of prior litigation concerning water intrusion as a material fact affecting the desirability and value of property. Calemine v. Samuelson (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 153, 166, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 495

Real estate vendor's failure to comply with statutory disclosure requirements gives right to rescission in buyer if transfer has not taken place. Realmuto v. Gagnard (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 193, 202, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 569

[6] Fraud

Sellers who used relocation intermediary and failed to disclose neighborhood noise problems to intermediary were subject to eventual purchaser for intentional and/or negligent misrepresentation as well as statutory liability under Civ. Code § 1102 et seq. Shapiro v. Sutherland (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1534, 1546, 1550, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101

Subsequent purchaser may bring action for damages against original seller based on fraudulent misrepresentations made to original buyer if seller had reason to expect that misrepresentations would be repeated and they actually were repeated to subsequent purchaser. Geernaert v. Mitchell (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 601, 608, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 483

Damages for lost profits do not encompass profits expected from resale of property that never was acquired because of fraud. Kenly v. Ukegawa (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 49, 54-56, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 771

Subdivider was liable in fraud for failure to disclose that units sold were not in maintenance district and thus at risk of losing water and sewer services. County of Mariposa v. Yosemite West Associates (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 791, 812-813, 248 Cal. Rptr. 778

Vendor's attorney who is not acting as broker does not have same duty of disclosure to purchaser as broker; attorney would be liable for fraud only if (1) fiduciary relationship existed, (2) attorney had exclusive knowledge of materials facts not known to purchaser, (3) attorney actively concealed material facts, or (4) attorney made partial representation while suppressing some material facts. Heliotis v. Schuman (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 646, 650-651, 226 Cal. Rptr. 509

Vendor's assertion to purchaser of amount of acreage constituted actionable misrepresentation to seller who did not survey property until one year after purchase; because purchaser acquired property to subdivide and develop it, fact that actual value of land was more than price paid did not deprive purchaser of right to damages for loss of anticipated profits pursuant to Civ. Code § 3343(a)(4). Cory v. Villa Properties (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 592, 597-598, 601-603, 225 Cal. Rptr. 628

Real estate agent is liable for damages resulting from false representation in sale of real property; foreclosure of property is circumstance that may be considered in determining out-of-pocket loss of defrauded purchaser. Burkhouse v. Phillips (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 661, 665-666, 96 Cal. Rptr. 197

Buyer learning one representation by seller is false is not entitled to assume that other representations by seller were true. Roland v. Hubenka (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 215, 225, 90 Cal. Rptr. 490

[7] Implied Covenants

Contract conditioned on approval of inspections is binding because purchaser has implied duty of good faith with regard to approving inspections; contract is subject to specific performance because strict mutuality of remedy is not required. Converse v. Fong (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 86, 90, 205 Cal. Rptr. 242

Contract is not necessarily illusory when conditioned on approval of board of directors of one party because party and party's agent are bound by implied covenant of good faith to submit contract and recommend sale to board for its good-faith consideration. Moreland Development Co. v. Gladstone Holmes, Inc. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 973, 977-978, 186 Cal. Rptr. 6 ; Jacobs v. Freeman (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 177, 180-187, 163 Cal. Rptr. 680

[8] Liquidated Damage Clause

In $1.3 million commercial transaction, $26,000 or 2 percent was reasonable in event of purchaser's breach; purchaser had burden under Civ. Code § 1671 to prove unreasonableness. Hong v. Somerset Associates (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 111, 115-116, 207 Cal. Rptr. 597

[9] Options

Option lying outside safe harbor of Civ. Code § 2906 because it is dependent on borrower's default will not necessarily be declared void or lose priority; option may be treated as disguised mortgage or facts and circumstances might indicate that option should be enforced according to its terms. Wachovia Bank v. Lifetime Industries, Inc. (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 1039, 1058-1059, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 168

Covenant not to compete given in option takes effect on execution of option contract, not on exercise of option. Hoover Community Hotel Development Corp. v. Thomson (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1130, 1135-1140, 213 Cal. Rptr. 750

Agreement failing as bilateral contract because it gave purchaser unilateral and unconditional right to rescind within 45 days after close of escrow, was revived as option contract by purchaser's delivery and vendors' acceptance of automobile; this part performance was sufficient for 45-day option making promise to sell irrevocable. Kowal v. Day (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 720, 724-728, 98 Cal. Rptr. 118

[10] Preemptive Rights

Contract susceptible to different interpretations must be given construction that will make it lawful, operative, definite, reasonable, capable of being carried into effect, and equitable; thus, contract for option and preemptive right confers rights only on parties, not their successors, so as to avoid violating rule against perpetuities. Strong v. Theis (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 913, 919-921, 232 Cal. Rptr. 272

[11] Right of First Refusal

Right of first refusal to purchase property in commercial lease was not triggered when family partnership transferred interest in the property to grandchildren in the family, because transfer was not made pursuant to a "bona fide offer from any third party for the purchase" of the property as required by the parties' agreement. Hartzheim v. Valley Land and Cattle Co. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 383, 394, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 815

When exercise of right of first refusal offered different security than original offer, seller had reasonable time to determine whether security was adequate based on reasonableness standard. McCulloch v. M & C Beauty Colleges (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1338, 1346-1347, 240 Cal. Rptr. 189

[12] Subdivision Map Act

Buyers who purchased lots from developer who had not yet obtained subdivision approval from Department of Real Estate were entitled to specific performance of purchase agreements; extrinsic evidence is admissible to render description of lots conveyed by purchase agreements sufficiently definite for enforcement. Blackburn v. Charnley (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 758, 766-767, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 885

Gov. Code § 66499.32(b), which denies buyer the option of voiding the contract when there is a certificate of compliance filed pursuant to Gov. Code § 66499.35, parcel map, or final map, does not preclude buyer from voiding sale when seller has violated Act and, by doing so, has also violated certificate of compliance, parcel map, or final map. Le Gault v. Erickson (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 369, 374, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 692

[13] Subordination of Seller's Purchase Money Lien

If vendor's security interest in development property under subordinated purchase money deed of trust is lost by foreclosure of senior lien, Code Civ. Proc. § 580b is not applicable to bar recovery by vendor of unpaid balance of purchase price. Spangler v. Memel (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 603, 608-615, 102 Cal. Rptr. 807, 498 P.2d 1055 ; Roffinella v. Sherinian (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 230, 236-241, 224 Cal. Rptr. 502

Subordination agreement that does not specify principal amount of lien but requires reasonable amount is not specific enough to be found to be fair to seller. Roskamp Manley Associates, Inc. v. Davis Development & Investment Corp. (1987) 184 Cal. App. 3d 513, 517-520, 229 Cal. Rptr. 186

Agreement of vendor to subordinate purchase money deed of trust to institutional purchase money first deed of trust is enforceable even though no interest rate or maximum rate on senior note was specified; vendor is adequately protected because agreement provided senior note would not exceed 60 percent of purchase price and no construction was contemplated. Thomas v. Fox (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 361, 365-368, 180 Cal. Rptr. 253

[14] Risk of Loss

Absent agreement so providing, purchaser has no rights in proceeds of insurance policy held by seller on premises destroyed prior to transfer of title. Long v. Keller (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 312, 318-320, 163 Cal. Rptr. 532

[15] Time Essence; Delays Not Amounting to Breach

Vendor was estopped pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 1962(3), now Evid. Code § 623, from asserting purchaser's delayed performance if purchaser was misled by vendor's representation. McCown v. Spencer (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 216, 222-225, 87 Cal. Rptr. 213

[16] Vendor's Election of Remedies

Vendor, but not purchaser, has election to rescind or enforce contract of sale when purchaser has materially breached it. Sweet v. Relis (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 257, 263, 79 Cal. Rptr. 829

[17] Warranties

Implied warranty of merchantability is not applicable to individual seller of property who had it constructed by independent contractor. Siders v. Schloo (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 1217, 1220-1221, 233 Cal. Rptr. 906

Implied warranties were not made in sale of commercial real property that was not new; sale "as is" precluded liability for undisclosed defects in absence of fraud. Shapiro v. Hu (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 324, 332-334, 233 Cal. Rptr. 470

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a vendor of real property to establish and foreclose the vendor's lien provided by Civ. Code § 3046 for the amount of the unpaid portion of the purchase price that is unsecured and payment of which is in default [Civ. Code § 3046]. The lien is not an absolute charge on the property, only an equitable right that must be established by action before it can be asserted [Brown v. Johnson (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 844, 850-851, 159 Cal. Rptr. 675] . The lien arises only after title has been transferred to the purchaser. Before then the vendor is said to have an express lien in the form of the contract and retention of title [Avery v. Clark (1891) 87 Cal. 619, 625, 25 P. 919 ; Barron-Gray Packing Co. v. Tapley (1947) 78 Cal. App. 2d 432, 437-439, 177 P.2d 776] . A vendor's lien must be based on an obligation to pay money. A promise to perform personal services will not give rise to a vendor's lien [Womble v. Womble (1910) 14 Cal. App. 739, 745, 113 P. 353] .

If the real property is in another state and the purchasers are subject to personal jurisdiction in California, this form can be modified to state a cause of action for declaratory relief to establish the lien and that purchasers hold the property as constructive trustees of the vendor [Mills v. Mills (1956) 147 Cal. App. 2d 107, 116-118, 305 P.2d 61] .

[3] Establishing Lien Without Foreclosing

A vendor may bring an action for declaratory relief to establish, but not foreclose, the lien before default in order to preserve the lien as against subsequent purchasers [LaHue v. Dougherty (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 1, 4, 206 P.2d 640] .

[4] Allegations

This complaint sets forth the allegations necessary to establish a vendor's lien: the formation of a contract for the sale of real property (Paragraph 4); the vendor's performance of the contract by transfer of title (Paragraph 5); and default by the purchaser in unsecured cash payments for the purchase price (Paragraphs 5, 6) [LaHue v. Dougherty (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 1, 5, 206 P.2d 640] . Because venue rests on the location of the real property [see § 569.160[7]], the residence of the parties is not a necessary allegation, although allegations regarding capacity and/or residence of the parties may be included (Paragraph 1). Other optional allegations include those for fictitious defendants (Paragraph 2) and agency (Paragraph 3).

[5] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[6] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8)]. When title or right to possession is to be tried, or permanent injunctive relief is sought, the case will be classified as an unlimited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 88].

In limited civil cases, the first page of the first paper filed must identify the case as a limited civil case and must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

[7] Venue

In an action for the foreclosure of a lien on real property, the proper court for the trial of the action is the superior court in the county in which the real property (or some part of it) is situated [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(2)].

[8] Statute of Limitations

The limitation period for an action to establish a vendor's lien is the limitation period applicable to an action to recover the purchase money. If, as in most cases, a note was given for the balance of the purchase price, the limitation would be four years from the date of default [Finnell v. Finnell (1909) 156 Cal. 589, 599, 105 P. 740 ; Code Civ. Proc. § 337(1)].

[9] Waiver of Lien

A vendor's lien can be waived by any action of the vendor evidencing an intent not to rely on the lien, including in some cases the characteristics of the transaction itself. For instance, when the property was first to be conveyed free of all encumbrances to an agent who would hold title until a corporation was formedand then convey to the corporation free of all encumbrances, the vendor was found to have waived any right to a lien [Royal Con. Min. Co. v. Royal Con. Mines (1910) 157 Cal. 737, 746-749, 110 P. 123] . Neither consideration nor a writing is necessary to waive the lien [Royal Con. Min. Co. v. Royal Con. Mines (1910) 157 Cal. 737, 746, 110 P. 123 ; Claiborne v. Castle (1893) 98 Cal. 30, 33-34, 32 P. 807] . The burden of proof of waiver rests on the party resisting the lien [Selna v. Selna (1899) 125 Cal. 357, 362, 58 P. 16 ; Edwards-Town, Inc v. Dimin (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 87, 92, 87 Cal. Rptr. 726] . The vendor waives the lien by taking a mortgage for the balance of the purchase price [Wells v. Harter (1880) 56 Cal. 342, 344] , or by taking a note from a third party as security [Jones v. Allert (1911) 161 Cal. 234, 237, 118 P. 794] . The vendor's lien is not necessarily waived by his or her obtaining a money judgment for the balance of the purchase price, even if he or she has levied execution against the property. For the vendor's lien to be extinguished by execution on the money judgment, without satisfaction or sale of the property, the purchaser must show that there is property to which the judgment lien of the money judgment can attach, and which can thus serve as security for the debt [Brown v. Kahn (1917) 176 Cal. 159, 160-164, 167 P. 869] . Similarly, approval of a creditor's claim against the purchaser's estate for the balance of the purchase price does not extinguish the lien [Selna v. Selna (1899) 125 Cal. 357, 362-364, 58 P. 16] .

[10] Statutes

Absolute transfer (as opposed to transfer in trust to pay debts) of contract for all or part of payment of purchase price is waiver of lien to extent of sum payable under contract. Civ. Code § 3047

Vendor's lien is valid against everyone claiming under debtor except purchaser or encumbrancer in good faith and for value. Civ. Code § 3048

Recording lis pendens in connection with action concerning real property. Code Civ. Proc. § 405 et seq.

[11] Decisions

[a] In General

Types of estate sold that give rise to vendor's lien. Rogers Etc. Co. v. S. California Etc. Co. (1911) 159 Cal. 735, 740-741, 115 P. 934 (equitable interest under purchase contract); Grossman v. Lippson (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 554, 562, 146 Cal. Rptr. 741 (sublease at premium exceeding rent payable under lease); McGreevy v. Constitution Life Ins. Co. (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 364, 368-369 (oil and gas lease)

Transfer of note for collection does not waive vendor's lien. Nolan v. Nolan (1909) 155 Cal. 476, 479, 482, 101 P. 520

Vendor's lien passes to and may be established by personal representative or heirs of deceased vendor and is enforceable against estate or heirs of deceased purchaser. Selna v. Selna (1899) 125 Cal. 357, 361, 58 P. 16 ; Mills v. Mills (1956) 147 Cal. App. 2d 107, 118-120, 305 P.2d 61

Vendor's lien is not assignable. Williams v. Young (1862) 21 Cal. 227, 228

Vendor's lien is not extinguished by extension of time for payment of purchase money. Mills v. Mills (1956) 147 Cal. App. 2d 107, 118, 305 P.2d 61

One-action provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 726 are not applicable to vendors' liens. Schwartz v. Mead (1931) 116 Cal. App. 606, 611-614, 3 P.2d 48

Deficiency provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 726 do not apply to vendors' liens. Ocean Shore Dev. Co., Inc. v. Hammond (1918) 38 Cal. App. 102, 108, 175 P. 706

[b] Priorities

When purchaser had given mortgage on property subject to vendor's lien and on adjoining parcel and had declared homestead on adjoining parcel, mortgage has priority over vendor's lien, but foreclosing vendor is entitled to require homestead parcel to be sold first. Nolan v. Nolan (1909) 155 Cal. 476, 487-488, 101 P. 520

Vendor's lien is superior to homestead. Williams v. Young (1861) 17 Cal. 403, 406

Subsequent purchaser who has no notice of unpaid balance of purchase price takes free of vendor's lien even though notice of vendor's lien had been recorded; recordation of lien before lien has been established by action does not impart constructive notice. Brown v. Johnson (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 844, 849-851, 159 Cal. Rptr. 675

Vendor's lien continues after sale of property to subsequent purchaser who had notice of unpaid balance of purchase price. Edwards-Town, Inc. v. Dimin (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 87, 93-94, 87 Cal. Rptr. 726

Judgment lien does not have priority over vendor's lien unless judgment creditor extended credit believing purchaser owned property free and clear or parted with value so as to become good faith encumbrancer. Schut v. Doyle (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 698, 702-704, 336 P.2d 567

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a vendor under a contract for the sale and purchase of real property to recover damages resulting from purchaser's breach of the contract [Civ. Code § 3307]. For discussions of circumstances to be considered in electing a remedy, see §§ 569.21, 569.24[1], [4]. For an illustration of the Judicial Council breach of contract pleading form, see Ch. 140, Contracts .

[3] Allegations.

This complaint sets forth:

- The formation of a written contract for the sale of real property (Paragraph 5) [Civ. Code § 1624(c); Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(g)].

- The vendor's performance of the contract or excuses for nonperformance of any obligations under the contract plaintiff did not perform (Paragraph 7).

- The satisfaction or waiver of any conditions precedent to defendant's performance (Paragraph 8); defendant's breach of the contract (Paragraph 9).

- The value of the property to plaintiffs on the date of breach, which isgenerally the fair market value of the property, and a calculation of general damages (Paragraph 11) [see Jensen v. Dalton (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 654, 657-658, 88 Cal. Rptr. 426 (value of property to vendor on date of breach is decreased by amount of taxes, utilities, and assessments coming due between date of contract and date of breach)].

- Any special damages suffered by plaintiffs (Paragraph 12) [Lortz v. Connell (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 286, 290-291, 78 Cal. Rptr. 6 (breach of contract elements); Caspar Lumber Co. v. Stowell (1940) 37 Cal. App. 2d 58, 61, 98 P.2d 744 (market value date of breach); Employees' Participating Asso. v.

Pine (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 299, 301, 204 P.2d 965 (market value date of breach)].

Unless the breach was repudiation, plaintiff's tender and demand must be alleged (Paragraphs 7 and 10). The allegation of demand is especially important if plaintiff/vendor had allowed the time specified for performance to pass without objection [McKinley v. Lagae (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 284, 291, 293-294, 24 Cal. Rptr. 454 (repudiation); Baird v. Barton (1958) 163 Cal. App. 2d 502, 505-506, 329 P.2d 492 (demand to reinstate time provision)].

While no case has held that the cash equivalent of the contract price must be pleaded, in a transaction that calls for the vendor to take back a note and deed of trust, damages are measured as if the contract provided for all cash to the seller [Abrams v. Motter (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 828, 841, 83 Cal. Rptr. 855] . Because contract price is an element of damage, and damages are required to be pleaded, it would seem prudent to add Paragraph 6 if the contract called for vendor financing.

[4] Jurisdiction and Venue

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8)]. When title or right to possession is to be tried, or permanent injunctive relief is sought, the case will be classified as an unlimited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 88].

In limited civil cases, the first page of the first paper filed must identify the case as a limited civil case and must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

An action for damages for breach of contract may be brought in the county in which the contract was formed or is to be performed or in which any defendant resides [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) (county in which contract formed as county of performance unless contract provides otherwise)]. Venue will be the same if this form is used in a complaint that also seeks declaratory relief based on the contract [Mission Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 921, 930-931, 184 Cal. Rptr. 296, 647 P.2d 1075] . If this form is used in a complaint that also seeks to quiet title, only the superior court has jurisdiction, regardless of the amount of any incidental damages sought, and venue is in the county in which the real property is located, although that court may transfer it [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 760.040(a), 760.050(a)].

[5] State Statutes

Contract for sale of real property must be in writing. Civ. Code § 1624(c)

Nonapplicability of Unruh Act (Civ. Code § 1810 et seq.) to contract for sale of entire residence or lot. Civ. Code § 1801.4(a), (b)

Resale by personal representative of deceased vendor if purchaser defaults after sale is confirmed. Prob. Code § 10350

[6] Decisions

[a] Vendor's Performance or Excuse

Purchaser's unconditional repudiation excuses vendor's performance if vendor has acted in reliance on repudiation prior to attempted retraction. Freedman v. St. Matthias Parish (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 16, 19, 230 P.2d 629

Purchaser's offer to perform if granted demands to which he or she is not entitled does not amount to retraction of repudiation. Freedman v. St. Matthias Parish (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 16, 19, 230 P.2d 629

Purchasers' failure to make timely deposit of funds in escrow was not breach because seller/builder had not completed home according to specifications and tender by each party was concurrent condition. Kossler v. Palm Springs Developments, Ltd. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 88, 99-101, 161 Cal. Rptr. 423

[b] Consequential Damages

[i] In General

Vendor is entitled to recover costs of clearing title or regaining possession. Honey v. Henry's Franchise Leasing Corp. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 801, 805, 52 Cal. Rptr. 18, 415 P.2d 833 ; Yackey v. Pacific Development Co. (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 776, 786-787, 160 Cal. Rptr. 430 (costs of removing lis pendens of third party that purchaser had agreed to assume)

Vendor is not entitled to recover expenses would have been incurred if sale was completed, but is entitled to recover expenses of actual or hypothetical resale that exceed expenses assumed under breached contract. Royer v. Carter (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 544, 550-551, 233 P.2d 539 (actual resale); Jensen v. Dalton (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 654, 657-658, 88 Cal. Rptr. 426 (hypothetical resale)

To sustain award to vendor of mortgage interest and taxes paid between breach andtrial, trial court must find that these expenses were reasonably foreseeable, thatvendor diligently attempted resale or that defaulting purchaser's lis pendens made property unmarketable, and that awarded expenses exceeded value of vendor's use of property during period. Askari v. R. & R. Land Co. (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 1101, 1108, 225 Cal. Rptr. 285

If vendor diligently attempted resale or defaulting purchaser's lis pendens made property unmarketable, vendor was entitled to consequential damages equal to interest that would have been earned on down payment between date of breach and time of trial and interest that would have been earned on vendor-assisted financing during that period. Askari v. R. & R. Land Co. (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 1101, 1108-1110, 225 Cal. Rptr. 285

Vendor who could not resell property because of defaulting purchaser's lis pendens was entitled to consequential damages for decrease in value of property attributable to lis pendens; increase or decrease in value was to be calculated as of date lis pendens is lifted. Askari v. R. & R. Land Co. (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 1101, 1110-1112, 225 Cal. Rptr. 285

Defaulting purchaser was entitled to offset for difference between contract price and higher market value at time of trial; if defaulting purchaser's lis pendens hindered vendor's resale efforts, offset was to be calculated as of date of breach; in both cases, burden of proof of greater value was on defaulting purchaser. Askari v. R. & R. Land Co. (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 1101, 1112, 225 Cal. Rptr. 285

Vendor is entitled to recover taxes, utilities, and assessments that came due between date of contract and date of breach on theory they decreased net value of property to vendor on date of breach. Jensen v. Dalton (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 654, 657-658, 88 Cal. Rptr. 426

Vendor whose purchase of replacement home is reasonably foreseeable at time of contracting and who, as a consequence of purchaser's breach, is required to maintain two residences until resale of contract property is entitled to recover commuting expenses related to contract property. Jensen v. Dalton (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 654, 658, 88 Cal. Rptr. 426

Vendor is not entitled to recover expenses of normal occupation, only those necessary for resale. Abrams v. Motter (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 828, 850, 83 Cal. Rptr. 855

Although Civ. Code § 3353 relates only to resale of personal property and not to resale of real property, vendor must show that resale was made with reasonable diligence to recover any consequential damages. Sutter v. Madrin (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 161, 169-170, 74 Cal. Rptr. 627 (hotel operating expenses)

If resale is made in shortest possible time, vendor's out-of-pocket expenses for fire insurance, mortgage interest, and real property taxes are consequential damages. Allen v. Enomoto (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 798, 803-804, 39 Cal. Rptr. 815

When property that is vendor's residence remains unoccupied between date of breach and resale, vendor is not entitled to recover rental value. Allen v. Enomoto (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 798, 804, 39 Cal. Rptr. 815

When other property is taken as partial payment on resale, vendor is entitled to recover expenses incurred in refinancing other property, but neither loss nor expenses on resale of other property is recoverable. Allen v. Enomoto (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 798, 804, 39 Cal. Rptr. 815

[ii] Broker's Fees

Amount of broker's commission on resale recoverable by vendor must be required to be decreased by amount of commission saved (i.e., difference between commission agreed to be paid and actually paid or enforceable by broker) on breached sale. Royer v. Carter (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 544, 551, 233 P.2d 539

Vendor is entitled to recover broker's commission necessary to resell even though breached sale did not involve broker. Jensen v. Dalton (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 654, 657-658, 88 Cal. Rptr. 426

Vendor's recovery of damages for breach of contract is not in itself sufficient to establish vendor's liability for brokerage commission. Barton v. White Oak Realty, Inc. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 579, 585-587, 76 Cal. Rptr. 587

Vendor is entitled to recover amount of broker's judgment against him or her for fee on breached sale plus interest on that judgment from date thereof. McKinley v. Lagae (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 284, 295, 24 Cal. Rptr. 454

[iii] Loss of Income

Vendor of agricultural property who has refrained from planting crops in reliance on contract is entitled to recover net income crops would have produced. Wade v. Lake County Title Co. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 824, 831, 86 Cal. Rptr. 182 ; Yocum v. Taylor (1920) 50 Cal. App. 294, 295, 195 P. 62

Vendor who evicts tenant in reliance on contract is entitled to recover lost rentals from time of eviction until date of resale. McKinley v. Lagae (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 284, 295, 24 Cal. Rptr. 454

[iv] Purchase of Other Residence

If vendor's purchase of another residence is foreseeable and expenses connected with purchase are caused by purchaser's breach, those expenses are recoverable by vendor. Angell v. Rowlands (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 536, 542-543, 149 Cal. Rptr. 574 (penalty paid for delay in closing purchase of replacement home); Jensen v Dalton (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 654, 658, 88 Cal. Rptr. 426 (refinance because of lower downpayment, commuting between two residences)

Whether purchase of replacement residence was foreseeable and reasonable is question of fact; vendor's purchase of replacement home before purchaser qualified for financing may not be reasonable; expenses of two residences are recoverable by vendor only if purchase was both foreseeable and reasonable and resale was in shortest possible time. Abrams v. Motter (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 828, 850-851, 83 Cal. Rptr. 855

[c] Difference in Value Damages

Traditional measure of damages assumes vendor is able to resell property; when purchaser had agreed to remove lis pendens filed by third party, vendor was properly awarded costs to remove lis pendens plus interest on contract price fromdate escrow should have closed until lis pendens was removed. Yackey v. Pacific Development Co. (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 776, 786-787, 160 Cal. Rptr. 430

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION
(Damages for Fraud in _____ [Purchase or Exchange] of Real Property)

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant(s). See § 569.161, Paragraph 2.]

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 569.161, Paragraph 3.]

[3. Agency allegation, if appropriate. See § 569.160, Paragraph 3.]

4. At all times herein mentioned prior to _____ [date], plaintiff(s) was/were [husband and wife and] fee owner(s) of that certain real property situated in the County of _____, State of California, [commonly known as _____ (common designation or street address),] and more particularly described as follows: _____ [set forth legal description].

[EITHER, if purchase contract]

5. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff(s) and defendant(s) entered into a written contract, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof, whereby plaintiff(s) agreed to sell to defendant(s) and defendant(s) agreed to purchase from plaintiff(s) for the sum of $_____ the real property described in Paragraph 4. On or about _____ [date], pursuant to that agreement, plaintiff(s) conveyed the property described in Paragraph 4 to defendant(s).

[OR, if exchange of property]

5. At all times herein mentioned prior to _____[date], defendant(s) was/were fee owners of that certain real property situated in the County of _____, State of California, [commonly known as _____ (common designation or street address),] and more particularly described as follows: _____ [set forth legal description].

6. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff(s) and defendant(s) entered into a written contract, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof, whereby plaintiff(s) agreed to convey to defendant(s) the real property described in Paragraph 4, above, and defendant(s) agreed to convey to plaintiff(s) the real property described in Paragraph 5, above. On or about _____[date], pursuant to that contract, plaintiff(s) conveyed the property described in Paragraph 4, above, to defendant(s), and defendant(s) conveyed the property described in Paragraph 5, above, to plaintiff(s).

[CONTINUE]

[7. The deed from plaintiff(s) to defendant(s) was recorded on _____ (date), in _____(Book or Reel) _____, at _____ (Page or Image) _____ of the Official Records in the Office of the County Recorder of _____ County, California. A copy of that deed is attached hereto, marked Exhibit "B" and made a part hereof.]

[8. The deed from defendant(s) to plaintiff(s) was recorded on _____ (date), in _____(Book or Reel) _____, at _____ (Page or Image) _____ of the Official Records in the Office of the County Recorder of _____ County, California. A copy of that deed is attached hereto, marked Exhibit "C" and made a part hereof.]

[9. _____ (Describe any provisions of the agreement which are relevant to the relief sought, such as notes or deed of trust taken by plaintiff and performance of those provisions, e.g., The purchase price was to be paid $_____ as a cash down payment prior to close of escrow and $_____ in the form of a note payable to plaintiff(s) secured by a deed of trust on the subject property. Plaintiff(s) agreed to subordinate this deed of trust to a development loan of not more than $_____ which defendant(s) represented to plaintiff(s) that he/she/it/they intended to obtain. Defendant(s) agreed that the proceeds of the development loan would be used exclusively to install roads, water, sewage, and electrical systems on the subject property and to subdivide it into parcels of no less than four acres each. The down payment, note, and deed of trust were received by plaintiff(s) on or about _____(date), at which time plaintiff(s) executed the subordination agreement (if cancellation of the subordination agreement will be sought, add recording data:, which was recorded on _____ (date), in _____ (Book or Reel) _____, at _____ (Page or Image) _____ of the Official Records in the Office of the County Recorder of _____County, California, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit "D" and made a hereof)].

10. On or about _____ [date], and during the negotiations for the above-described contract for the _____ [sale and purchase or exchange] of property defendant(s) falsely represented to plaintiff(s) _____ [state the substance of the misrepresentation, e.g., that plaintiff's(s') property described in Paragraph 4, above, had a fair market value of $_____ (the contract price) and that it's highest and best use was as vacation parcels].

11. In fact, _____ [state the true facts, e.g., plaintiff's(s') property described in Paragraph 4, above, was within an area which the State of California intended to take by eminent domain for use as in the state water project's canal system].

12. These representations were made by defendant(s) with the intent to deceive and defraud plaintiff(s) and to induce him/her/them to enter into the above-described contract of _____ [sale and purchase or exchange].

13. The representations made by defendant(s) were in fact false, and defendant(s) knew them to be false at the time he/she/they made them [and at all times herein mentioned].

14. Plaintiff(s) relied on the representations by defendant(s) in entering into the above-described contract of _____ [sale and purchase or exchange]. Plaintiff's(s') reliance on these representations was justified because _____ [set forth facts showing justifiable reliance, e.g., plaintiffs live in _____ County, California, some _____ miles from their property described in Paragraph 4. Plaintiffs are 87 and 89 years old respectively and have never visited that property, which they acquired in satisfaction of a debt in 1972. Until defendant(s) approached them, plaintiffs had no intention of selling that property, and had not investigated the real estate market in that area].

15. The representations defendant(s) made to plaintiff(s) were a material inducement to plaintiff(s) to enter into the contract. Plaintiff(s) would not have entered into the contract but for those representations.

16. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff(s) _____ [allege discovery of true facts, e.g., were informed by their grandson that the state of California intended to acquire land in _____ County for expansion of its water project's canal system and asked plaintiffs if their land was within the area targeted for acquisition. Plaintiffs immediately contacted the Department of Water Resources and were informed that the property described in Paragraph 4, above, was targeted for acquisition at an offering price of $_____].

17. As a proximate result of defendant's(s') fraud and deceit plaintiff(s)has/have sustained damages of $_____, which is the difference between the actual value of the property described in Paragraph 4, above, and the actual value of the consideration received by plaintiff(s) in exchange for that property.

[18. As a (further) proximate result of the defendant's(s') fraud and deceit, plaintiff(s) has/have _____ (describe other items of allowable damages, such as income from property after sale, if plaintiff(s) would have been entitled to it or if rescission is pleaded as an alternative, e.g., been deprived of the use and value of the use of the property described in Paragraph 4, which is worth $_____ per month, since the time defendant(s) have taken possession thereof).]

[19. At all times herein mentioned, _____ (allege facts showing that defendant(s) acted with oppression, fraud, and malice, e.g., and even before he/she/they approached plaintiff(s), defendant(s) knew that plaintiff's(s') property was targeted for acquisition by emiment domain. Each and every act of defendant(s) and statement of defendant(s) to plaintiff(s) was part of a scheme to intentionally and maliciously deceive plaintiff(s) and take unfair advantage of his/her/their advanced years, lack of familiarity with the property, and lack of ability to travel).]

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION
(Rescission)

20. Plaintiff(s) reallege(s) and incorporate(s) herein Paragraphs 1-19 of the First Cause of Action.

[21. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ (name), hereinafter referred to as "Title Company," was, and now is, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the law of the State of California, with its principal office for the transaction of business in _____ County, California, and trustee of the deed of trust described in Paragraph 9, above, given by defendant(s) to plaintiff(s) to secure the note for $_____ of the purchase.]

22. Plaintiff(s) intend(s) that service of summons of this action and of this complaint serve as notice of rescission of the aforementioned contract of _____ [sale and purchase or exchange] [including the loan transaction evidenced by the note, deed of trust, and subordination agreement referred to in Paragraph 9] and hereby offer(s) to restore all consideration furnished by defendant(s) under the contract [, note, and deed of trust], on condition that defendant(s) restore to plaintiff(s) the consideration furnished by plaintiff(s).

THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION
(Cancellation)

23. Plaintiff(s) reallege(s) and incorporate(s) herein Paragraphs 1-19 of the First Cause of Action [and Paragraph 21 of the Second Cause of Action].

24. Plaintiff(s) intend(s) that service of summons of this action and of this complaint serve as notice of cancellation of the _____ [deed referred to in Paragraphs 5 and 7 or deeds referred to in Paragraphs 5, 6, 7, and 8] [and of the note, and deed of trust referred to in Paragraph 9] and hereby offer(s) to restore all consideration furnished by defendant(s), on condition that defendant(s) restore to plaintiff(s) the consideration furnished by plaintiff(s).

WHEREFORE, plaintiff(s) pray(s) judgment against defendant(s) as follows:

On the FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION:

1. For general damages _____ [in the sum of $_____ or according to proof];

[2. For special damages _____ (in the sum of $_____ or according to proof);]

On the SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION:

3. For a determination by the Court that the contract has been rescinded and ordering defendant(s) to convey the real property described in Paragraph 4, above, to plaintiff(s) [as husband and wife] on condition that plaintiff(s) _____ [(surrender the note and deed of trust executed by defendant(s) to the Court for cancellation and) pay to defendant(s) such sums as ordered by the judgment of this Court and/or convey to defendant(s) the real property described in Paragraph 5, above];

[4. That there be deducted from any sum found owing by plaintiff(s) to defendant(s) on rescission of the contract, the sum of $_____, together with interest thereon at the legal rate from _____ (date);]

On the THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION:

5. That the deed _____ [describe with specificity, e.g., given by plaintiff(s) conveying the property described in Paragraph 4 to defendant(s), which was recorded on _____ (date), in _____ (Book or Reel) _____, at _____ (Page or Image) _____ of the Official Records in the Office of the County Recorder of _____ County, California] [and the note and deed of trust described in Paragraph 9, above,] be declared void;

On all CAUSES OF ACTION:

[6. For exemplary damages;]

7. For costs of suit herein incurred [if rescission is sought and the contract provided for attorney's fees, including attorney's fees as provided by the contract here at issue];

8. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a vendor who has been defrauded in the sale or exchange of real property to recover damages resulting from the purchaser's fraud [Civ. Code § 3343]. The form also includes causes of action for rescission of the contract and any subsidiary agreements [Civ. Code § 1692] and cancellation of the deed and any other instruments involved, such as notes, deeds of trust, or subordination agreements [see Civ. Code § 3412]. The form may be modified to seek only damages or only rescission and cancellation. For discussion of these remedies and the circumstances in which each is appropriate, see § 569.24[2], [7], [8]. An illustration of the Judicial Council pleading form for damages for fraud can be found in Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit .

[3] Parties

All parties to any instrument sought to be cancelled or rescinded must be made parties to the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 389; see Cooke v. Darnell (1929) 100 Cal. App. 482, 490, 280 P. 383 (holder of encumbrance not bound by judgment, though named as defendant, because not served)].

[4] Allegations

The essential allegations to establish fraud in a real estate transaction are (1) that defendants made a false representation respecting a material fact (Paragraphs 10 and 11 (false representation) and 15 (materiality)); (2) knowing the representation to be false or without having any reasonable basis for believing it to be true (Paragraph 13); (3) with the intent that plaintiffs rely thereon (Paragraph 12); (4) that plaintiffs relied on the representation (Paragraph 14) [see also Palm v. Smither (1942) 52 Cal. App. 2d 500, 505, 126 P.2d 428 (special elements to establish fraud on vendor relating to value of his or her own land), discussed in § 569.24[7][a]]; and (5) to their damage (Paragraphs 17 (general fraud damages under Civ. Code § 3343) and 18 (special fraud damages under Civ. Code § 3343(a)(1)-(3) or damages incident to rescission) [Roland v. Hubenka (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 215, 220, 90 Cal. Rptr. 490 ; Simone v. McKee (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 307, 312, 298 P.2d 667] . Paragraph 16 provides the basis to establish that the cause of action was brought within the applicable three-year limitation period, commencing on discovery of the fraud, or, in the case of rescission or cancellation that laches do not apply [Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d); see Leeper v. Beltrami (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 195, 214-215, 1 Cal. Rptr. 12, 347 P.2d 12 (complaint for rescission, cancellation as subject to demurrer for failure to show prompt action to rescind or excuse)]. Optional Paragraph 19 seeks punitive damages.

If rescission is sought, Paragraphs 1-19 establish the grounds; Paragraph 21 sets forth the capacity of another party to a subsidiary contract sought to be rescinded; and Paragraph 22 alleges notice of rescission and offer to restore consideration. Consecutively numbered additional paragraphs should be added after Paragraph 21 to allege the capacity of each other party to all of the contracts sought to be rescinded. If notice of rescission was given prior to commencement of the action, Paragraph 19 will not be appropriate. Instead use the allegation in § 569.168, second alternative Paragraph 21.

If cancellation is sought, Paragraphs 1-19 establish the grounds; Paragraph 21 and as many other paragraphs as are necessary set forth the capacity of each other party to all of the instruments sought to be cancelled; and Paragraph 24 alleges notice of cancellation and offer to restore consideration. If notice of intent to cancel was given prior to commencement of the action, Paragraph 19 will not be appropriate. Instead use the allegation in § 569.168, second alternative Paragraph 21.

[5] Jurisdiction and Venue

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8)]. When title or right to possession is to be tried, or permanent injunctive relief is sought, the case will be classified as an unlimited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 88].

In limited civil cases, the first page of the first paper filed must identify the case as a limited civil case and must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

Venue for an action to recover damages for fraud is the county of defendant's residence, so if only damages for fraud are sought (Paragraphs 1-19), it is clear that the proper venue is the county or judicial district where defendant resides [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]. If only rescission and cancellation are sought, venue is in the county in which the real property is located [Eckstrand v. Wilshusen (1933) 217 Cal. 380, 382-383, 18 P.2d 931 ; see Etter v. Vollmer (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 718, 720, 294 P.2d 55 (vendor's action for declaration that deed is void and for reconveyance; restoration of benefits considered incidental)]. If both damages and rescission are pleaded as alternative remedies, it is not clear whether venue will lie in the county of defendant's residence on the basis of the rule that in mixed actions, defendant is entitled to have the action tried in the county of hisor her residence [see Massae v. Superior Court (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 527 , 530-531, 173 Cal. Rptr. 527 (discussing rules); see also Ch. 571, Venue].

[7] Decisions

[a] Attorney's Fees

Action for rescission is one "on contract" so as to allow recovery of attorney's fees to successful party if contract contains attorney's fee clause that does not limit recovery to particular form of action on contract. Hastings v. Matlock (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 826, 840-841, 217 Cal. Rptr. 856

[b] Cancellation

Instead of pleading in general terms that defendant claims adverse interest, to state cause of action under Civ. Code § 3412 plaintiff is required to allege facts showing invalidity of apparently valid instrument. Wolfe v. Lipsy (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 633, 638, 209 Cal. Rptr. 801 (disapproved on another point in Droeger v. Friedman, Sloan & Ross (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 26, 36-39, 283 Cal. Rptr. 584, 812 P.2d 931)

[c] Misrepresentations as to Value of Consideration Given by Purchaser

Vendor who took 24 overvalued or worthless second deeds of trust in exchange for real property is entitled to recover under former Bus. & Prof. Code § 10239.4 (renumbered Bus. & Prof. Code § 10238.7) providing for interest and attorney's fees. Harvey v. Davis (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 362, 367-369, 71 Cal. Rptr. 129, 444 P.2d 705

Purchasers were liable for damages for fraud equal to difference between unpaid balance of note secured by chattel mortgage on restaurant equipment given in partial payment for purchase of home and amount realized by vendor on foreclosure of note and resale of equipment. Metz v. Malley (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 848, 849-852, 318 P.2d 843

[d] Subordination of Purchase Money Deed of Trust

Purchaser has breached subordination agreement, and if promise to use proceeds of loan secured by senior deed of trust for improvements to property that was security for note payable to vendor was made without intent to perform, purchaser has committed fraud by using senior loan proceeds for other purposes. Joanaco Projects, Inc. v. Nixon & Tierney Constr. Co. (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 821, 830-831, 57 Cal. Rptr. 48 (senior foreclosed)

[e] Right to Rescission

Vendor is entitled to rescind when offer is subject to conditions as to appraisal and termite reports and is accompanied by post-dated deposit check and vendor is not informed of either postdating or conditions by broker who is agent for both parties. Wilson v. Lewis (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 802, 806-809, 165 Cal. Rptr. 396

Vendor whose mistake is based on purchaser's agent's fraud is entitled to rescission. Wright v. Lowe (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 891, 897-898, 296 P.2d 34

This form of complaint is for use by a purchaser of real property who is not in default under the contract to establish and foreclose the purchaser's lien provided by Civ. Code § 3050 for so much of the purchase price as has been paid, together with expenditures made on the property including taxes, insurance, and the value of improvements, less the reasonable rental value for any period during which the purchaser had possession of the property [Civ. Code § 3050; see Kent v.

Clark (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 779, 784-786, 128 P.2d 868 (value of improvements less reasonable rental value during purchaser's occupancy); Montgomery v. Meyerstein (1921) 186 Cal. 459, 462, 464, 199 P. 800 (taxes, insurance, improvements); Benson v. Shotwell (1890) 87 Cal. 49, 54-55, 60, 25 P. 249 (purchaser who is in default first is not entitled to lien)]. The purchaser's lien arises on the vendor's failure, refusal, or inability to convey, or if the purchaser is entitled to avoid the contract because of the vendor's misrepresentations or for another reason. It is not necessary for the purchaser to give notice of rescission or to ground the action on the theory of rescission [Moresco v. Foppiano (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 242, 247, 60 P.2d 430 ; Montgomery v. Meyerstein (1921) 186 Cal. 459, 464-465, 199 P. 800] .

[3] Priority of Lien

The priority of the purchaser's lien over preexisting encumbrances on the property is determined as of the date of the contract of sale. Thus, the purchaser can have a declaration of the actual amounts owing under the prior encumbrances as of the date of the contract, and will be entitled to priority over optional additional advances made after the contract date by the holder of an encumbrance who knew of contract of sale [Civ. Code § 3048; Garcia v. Atmajian (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 516, 520-521, 169 Cal. Rptr. 845] .

[4] Allegations

This form of complaint alleges:

- The formation and terms of a contract for the sale and purchase of real property (Paragraphs 4 and 5).

- The extent of purchaser's payments under the contract (Paragraph 7).

- If purchaser's performance was excused, the performance of all unexcused obligations required to be performed by purchaser and the excuse for nonperformance of the remainder (first alternative Paragraphs 10 and 11), or, if purchaser's performance or tender was not excused, purchaser's performance or tender and demand, and vendor's failure or refusal to perform (second alternative Paragraphs 10 and 11).

- Plaintiff's demand for return of moneys paid and sums expended, including the value of any improvements made to the property (Paragraph 13), and the assertion that plaintiff has a lien on the property for those sums (Paragraph 14).

Optional allegations allege the capacity or residence of the defendants (Paragraph 1) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(2) (venue for lien foreclosure is superior court in county in which property is located)]; fictitious defendants (Paragraph 2); and agency (Paragraph 3). In addition, if plaintiff has taken possession, that must be alleged (Paragraph 8), as well as surrender of possession and value of occupancy to determine the amount of the offset to which defendant/vendor is entitled (Paragraph 12) [Montgomery v. Meyerstein (1921) 186 Cal. 459, 465, 199 P. 800] . If plaintiff has made improvements or expenditures, a description of the improvements and their value and/or the description and amount of the expenditures should be alleged (Paragraph 8) [Montgomery v. Meyerstein (1921) 186 Cal. 459, 464-465, 199 P. 800] .

If either party's performance was subject to a condition precedent, additional paragraphs should be added setting forth the condition or conditions (Paragraph 6) and alleging the satisfaction of the condition, or, its waiver by the party for whose benefit the condition existed (Paragraph 9) [see Doryon v. Salant (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 706, 712-713, 142 Cal. Rptr. 378 (party may waive condition solely for his or her benefit)].

[5] State Statutes

Person entitled to recover damages certain or capable of being made certain by calculation, if right to recover is vested on particular day, is entitled to recover interest thereon from that day. Civ. Code § 3287

[6] Decisions

Lien is applicable on vendor's abandonment of executory contract without need of rescission. Lockie v. Cooperative Land Co. (1929) 207 Cal. 624, 629-630, 279 P. 428

Purchaser's lien is enforceable against subsequent purchaser with notice. S. San Bernardino Co. v. S. B. Nat. Bk. (1899) 127 Cal. 245, 247, 59 P. 699

Purchaser is entitled to recover interest on his or her deposit in event of vendor's breach of agreement. Rasmussen v. Moe (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 499, 504, 292 P.2d 226

Lien is applicable in case of fraud and rescission. Newcomb v. Title Guar. & Trust Co. (1933) 131 Cal. App. 329, 333, 21 P.2d 456

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a purchaser of real property who is not in default under the contract to recover damages for the vendor's failure or refusal to convey [Civ. Code § 3306].

[3] Breach of Collateral Promise

The form may be modified to set forth a cause of action for damages for delay in conveyance or for breach of some collateral promise in the agreement of the parties, such as a promise by the vendor to construct improvements on the property or to build a road on other property belonging to the vendor to connect the parcel conveyed with the public road. Damages for breach of some collateral promises are governed by Civ. Code § 3300, not Civ. Code § 3306 [Coughlin v. Blair (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 587, 600, 262 P.2d 305 (connecting road, water, electricity); Christensen v. Slawter (1959) 173 Cal. App. 2d 325, 330-334, 343 P.2d 341 (delay)].

[4] Allegations

This complaint alleges:

- The capacity of the parties, and, if suit is brought in the county of defendant's residence rather than in the county in which the contract was formed or was to be performed, the residence of defendant(s) (Paragraphs 1-4) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) (venue of contract action as county in which contract was formed or is to be performed or in which any defendant resides)].

- The formation of a written contract for the sale of real property (Paragraph 5) [Civ. Code § 1624(c); Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(g)] and any conditions precedent to the performance of either party or terms of the contract relevant to the breach at issue (Paragraph 6).

- Satisfaction or waiver of any conditions precedent to the performance of either party (Paragraph 8).

- Plaintiff's partial performance and the excuse for further performance (first alternative Paragraph 9) or plaintiff's performance or tender and demand for defendant's performance (second alternative Paragraph 9) [see Fogarty v. Saathoff (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 780, 785, 180 Cal. Rptr. 484 (generally offer, tender, or ability to perform as required to place other party in default)].

- Defendant's nonperformance (Paragraph 10).

- The total of payments made by plaintiff to defendant under the contract (Paragraph 11).

- Special damages incurred by plaintiff (Paragraph 12) [see Moore v. Fredericks (1914) 24 Cal. App. 536, 538-539, 141 P. 1049 (special damages, which are those not necessarily following from breach, as must be specially pleaded)]; and the difference in value damages (Paragraph 13) [see Employees' Participating Asso. v. Pine (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 299, 301, 204 P.2d 965 (market value on date of breach as required to be pleaded)].

[5] Allegations Regarding Vendor Financing

While no case has held that the cash equivalent of the contract price must be pleaded, in a transaction that calls for the vendor to take back a note and deed of trust, damages are measured as if the contract provided for all cash to seller [Abrams v. Motter (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 828, 841, 83 Cal. Rptr. 855] . Because contract price is an element of damage, and damages are required to be pleaded, it would seem prudent to include the discounted value allegations in optional Paragraph 7 if the contract called for vendor financing [see Lortz v. Connell (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 286, 290-291, 78 Cal. Rptr. 6 (elements are formation of contract, plaintiff's performance or excuse, defendant's breach, and damages)].

[6] State Statutes

Recovery of attorney's fees when provided by contract. Civ. Code § 1717

Legal rate of interest specified in contract remains chargeable after breach until superseded by verdict or other obligation; 10 percent per annum is rate if contract does not specify legal rate chargeable after breach. Civ. Code § 3289

[7] Decisions

[a] Damages for Breach of Collateral Promise

Measure of damages for breach of promise to build improvement on plaintiff's land is reasonable cost to complete work; measure of damages if improvements were to be constructed on property not owned by plaintiff is difference in value of plaintiff's land; plaintiff's easement is not considered to be plaintiff's land for application of these rules. Coughlin v. Blair (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 587, 600, 262 P.2d 305 ; Glendale Fed. Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Marina View Heights Dev. Co. (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 101, 123-124, 135 Cal. Rptr. 802

[b] Damages for Failure to Convey

Purchaser is entitled to interest from date damages could be calculated, which would be date of breach if value of land was then known. Caplan v. Schroeder (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 515, 521-522, 15 Cal. Rptr. 145, 364 P.2d 321 (finding value was not certain until date of stipulation by parties)

[c] When Performance or Tender Necessary

Vendor who had placed deed in escrow was not in default for failure to provide termite clearance or title insurance because purchaser's nonperformance made both impossible. Fogarty v. Saathoff (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 780, 784-787, 180 Cal. Rptr. 484

When vendor had leased property to another and purchaser was able to perform,purchaser's offer to deposit balance of purchase price conditioned on conveyance was sufficient tender of performance to put vendor in breach. Groobman v. Kirk (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 117, 118-126, 323 P.2d 867

Statements by purchaser's banker that purchaser was ready, willing, and able to perform and bank would forward funds to escrow when called for was sufficient tender when vendor had not completed construction and did not have marketable title; purchaser's tender was excused by vendor's inability to perform or notification that vendor won't perform. Hunt v. Mahoney (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 540, 546-549, 187 P.2d 43

[d] Who May Waive Particular Conditions

Contract provision that vendor subordinate purchase money deed of trust was solely for purchaser's benefit and was subject to waiver by purchaser so long as waiver was not conditional or ambiguous. Reeder v. Longo (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 291, 296-297, 182 Cal. Rptr. 287 (absolute waiver); Spellman v. Dixon (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 1, 4-5, 63 Cal. Rptr. 668 (ambiguous waiver); Magna Development Co. v. Reed (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 230, 236-243, 39 Cal. Rptr. 284 (conditional waiver)

Conditions regarding availability of construction loan and number of houses that could be built per lot was solely for benefit of, and waivable by, purchaser. Pease v. Brown (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 425, 429, 8 Cal. Rptr. 917

Condition that planning commission approve subdivision of property to be sold under contract was solely for purchaser's benefit and therefore waivable by purchaser. Johnson v. Lehtonen (1957) 151 Cal. App. 2d 579, 582, 312 P.2d 35

When vendor was providing financing, FHA, VA approval was for benefit of both parties and was not waivable by purchaser alone. Spangler v. Castello (1956) 147 Cal. App. 2d 49, 53, 304 P.2d 752

Plaintiff(s) allege(s):

[1. Capacity of plaintiff(s), if appropriate. See § 569.164, Paragraph 1.]

2. Defendant(s) _____ [name(s)], sometimes hereinafter referred to as "Seller(s)," is/are, and at all times herein mentioned, was/were, [husband and wife and] fee simple owner(s) of the real property described in Paragraph 5.

[3. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 569.161, Paragraph 3.]

[4. Agency allegation, if appropriate. See § 569.160, Paragraph 3.]

5. [Formation of contract. See § 569.163, Paragraph 4.]

[6. Relevant terms, including conditions precedent to the performance of either party. See § 569.164, Paragraph 6.]

[7. Vendor financing, if applicable. See § 569.164, Paragraph 7.]

[8. Satisfaction of any conditions precedent or waiver of condition precedent by the party for whose benefit the particular condition was inserted. See § 569.164, Paragraph 8.]

9. [Plaintiff's part performance and excuse for remainder of performance, or plaintiff's performance or tender or and demand. See § 569.164, alternate Paragraphs 9.]

10. [Defendant's failure, refusal, or inability to perform. See § 569.164, Paragraph 10.]

11. The consideration named in the contract to be received by defendant(s) is adequate when compared to the value of the real property [and considering allcircumstances including the relationship of the parties and the objects to be accomplished by the contract].

12. The agreement is fair, just, and reasonable in all respects as to defendant(s).

13. Plaintiff(s) is/are still ready, willing, and able to consummate the purchase of the real property and to pay to defendant(s) the purchase price as set forth in the written contract.

14. Plaintiff(s) is/are informed and believe(s) and thereon allege(s) that from and after _____ [date when plaintiff(s) would have been entitled to possession under the contract], the reasonable rental value and the reasonable value of the use and occupancy of the real property is the sum of $_____ per month.

[15. Plaintiff(s) has/have been further damaged by the increase in financing costs since the time required by the contract for defendant's(s') conveyance. If defendant(s) had conveyed the property at the time required by the agreement, plaintiff(s) would have financed the purchase with _____ [the loan described in Paragraph 7 which required or a _____-year loan of $_____ bearing interest at _____ percent per annum requiring] monthly payments of interest and principal of $_____; whereas interest rates have now risen to _____ percent per annum and a similar loan would now require monthly payments of $_____. Plaintiff(s) is/are informed and believe(s) and thereon allege(s) that interest rates will increase even more by the time defendant(s) are required by decree of this Court to convey the property to plaintiff(s).]

16. Plaintiff(s) has/have no adequate remedy at law because _____ [the real property which is the subject of the contract is a single-family dwelling which plaintiff(s) intend(s) to occupy or specify other reason for inadequacy of remedy at law, e.g., plaintiff's contract remedy will not provide compensation to plaintiff for the increase in value of the property since defendant's refusal to perform].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff(s) pray(s) judgment against defendant(s) as follows:

1. For a decree that on the payment to him/her/it/them by plaintiff(s) of the sum of $_____ and the performance by plaintiff(s) of all conditions of the written contract to be performed by him/her/it/them, defendant(s) be ordered and directed to convey the real [and personal] property described in Paragraph 5 to plaintiff(s) and to perform all other conditions of the written contract to be performed by him/her/it/them;

2. That plaintiff(s) have and recover from defendant(s) or that there be deducted from the purchase price required to be paid by plaintiff(s) to defendant(s) the sum equal to plaintiff's(s') damages for the wrongful withholding of the real property from plaintiff computed at the rate of $_____ per month commencing as of _____ [date];

3. That plaintiff(s) have and recover from defendant(s) or that there be deducted from the purchase price required to be paid by plaintiff(s) to defendant(s) the sum equal to plaintiff's(s') increased financing costs on account of the failure of defendant(s) to convey the property on _____ [date];

4. For costs of suit herein[, including reasonable attorney's fees as provided by the contract]; and

5. For such other relief as the Court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a purchaser under a written contract for the purchase and sale of real property to bring an action to compel specific performance [Civ. Code § 3384]. To use the form, the purchaser must not be materially in default under the contract [see Civ. Code § 3392 (specific performance may be granted in favor of party whose failure to perform is partial and either immaterial or fully compensable)].

This form of complaint may be modified for use when the vendor does not have all the interest promised to be conveyed. Unless the defect relates to the community property interest of a spouse, the purchaser can compel conveyance of whatever interest the vendor has with an abatement in the purchase price to compensate for the defect [see Fam. Code § 1102 (both spouses must join in conveyance of community property); Andrade Development Co. v. Martin (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 330, 333-339, 187 Cal. Rptr. 863 (purchaser knew it was community property and was not even entitled to breach of contract damages from signatory spouse); Johnson v. Lehtonen (1957) 151 Cal. App. 2d 579, 581-582, 312 P.2d 35 (specific performance affirmed as to one spouse's interest; property held in joint tenancy and purchased with community funds was not shown to be community property)].

Paragraphs 2 and 11-16 of this form may be added as a second count to § 569.164 to seek specific performance or, as an alternative if specific performance is not available, damages for breach of contract. If that is done, the first paragraph of the specific performance cause of action must reallege by incorporation all paragraphs of § 569.164.

This form may be modified to seek specific performance of a contract based on exercise of an option by substituting Paragraphs 1-4 of § 569.169 for Paragraphs 1-2 and 5-6 of this form and adding a Paragraph alleging exercise of the option.

[3] Allegations

In addition to the contract allegations set forth and discussed in § 569.164, this form of complaint alleges:

- That the consideration is adequate (Paragraph 11).

- That the contract is fair and reasonable as to defendant (Paragraph 12) [Civ. Code § 3391(1), (2); see Meyer v. Benko (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 937, 945, 127 Cal. Rptr. 846 (adequacy as tested was of formation of contract in light of all circumstances then existing; $23,500 sale price to vendor who had duty to build new roof on property worth $29,000-$30,000 was adequate when vendor had dropped asking price to get quick sale); Weneda Corp. v. Dispalatro (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 187, 190-191, 37 Cal. Rptr. 267 (both allegations were necessary)].

- That plaintiff is still ready, willing, and able to purchase (Paragraph 13) [but see Hunt v. Mahoney (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 540, 547-549, 187 P.2d 43 (purchaser need not keep good tender or deposit money in vendor's name when vendor does not have marketable title or has notified purchaser he/she does not intend to perform)].

- The reasonable rental value of the property from the time purchaser was entitled to conveyance under the contract (Paragraph 14) [see Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 206, 219-220, 32 Cal. Rptr. 415, 384 P.2d 7 (rents and profits from time property should have been conveyed as not really damages but incidental compensation for delay); Meyer v. Benko (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 937, 946, 127 Cal. Rptr. 846 (entitlement to rents and profits was not conditioned on property's being income-producing)].

- That the plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law [see Civ. Code § 3387 (conclusive presumption that pecuniary compensation is inadequate in case of single-family dwelling that plaintiff intends to occupy; presumption affects burden of proof in case of other real property); see also Evid. Code §§ 601, 606].

The form includes an optional allegation that plaintiff has been damaged by the delay because financing costs have increased (Paragraph 15) [see Stratton v. Tejani (1982) 139 Cal. App. 3d 204, 208-209, 214-215, 187 Cal. Rptr. 231 (present value of difference in loan payments at different rates only over length of time purchasers were likely to possess property or until they were likely to refinance if evidence showed rates likely to decrease after close of escrow); Hutton v. Gliksberg (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 240, 247-252, 180 Cal. Rptr. 141 (present value of difference of 30 years' payments at different loan rates)]. The fact that the property is unimproved, zoned commercial, and being purchased for development and resale, or lease, does not mean that it is not unique. The size of the parcel and its proximity to such things as thoroughfares and a post office may contribute to its uniqueness [Stewart Development Co. v. Superior Court (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 266, 272-275, 166 Cal. Rptr. 450] .

[4] Jurisdiction and Venue

The superior court has jurisdiction of an action for specific performance [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10]. An action for specific performance of a contract to convey real property is not a limited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 86(b)]. When title or right to possession is to be tried, or permanent injunctive relief is sought, the case will be classified as an unlimited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 88].

Venue lies in the superior court in the county in which the property, or any part of it, is located, even if the cause of action for specific performance is pleaded as an alternative to damages for breach of contract [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1); Santa Barbara Lodge No. 605 v. Penzner (1951) 104 Cal. App. 2d 494, 231 P.2d 595] .

[5] Laches and Limitations

An action for specific performance of a written contract to convey real property is subject to the four-year limitation of Code Civ. Proc. § 337(1) [Reiner v. Hermann (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 543, 545, 548, 180 P.2d 385] . However, if the purchaser has fully performed, the vendor is trustee of the legal title for the benefit of purchaser, and the limitation period will not begin to run until the vendor has made a specific repudiation of the trust. Similarly, if the purchaser is in possession, the vendor's repudiation will not commence the running of the period unless it includes an actual taking of possession [Kidd v. Kidd (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 479, 481, 39 Cal. Rptr. 203, 393 P.2d 403] .

Laches, which requires not only the passage of time, but also prejudice to the adverse party, applies to actions for specific performance [see Stafford v. Ballinger (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 289, 296, 18 Cal. Rptr. 568 (17 years and intervening transfers; specific performance pleaded as alternative to quiet title)].

[6] Lis Pendens

Plaintiff will probably wish to record a notice of pendency of the specific performance action [Code Civ. Proc. § 405 et seq.; see Stewart Development Co. v. Superior Court (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 266, 276-277, 166 Cal. Rptr. 450 ; see also Ch. 348, Lis Pendens].

[7] State Statutes

Specific performance is available against any successor of vendor except purchaser in good faith. Civ. Code § 3395

[8] Decisions

[a] In General

Fact that contract precluded seller's remedy of specific performance did not preclude buyer's right to specific performance; buyer's promise to use best efforts to obtain development permits was sufficient mutuality of obligation to make binding contract. Bleecher v. Conte (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 345, 350-355, 173 Cal. Rptr. 278, 626 P.2d 1051

Law favors carrying out parties' intentions through enforcement of contracts and disfavors holding them unenforceable for uncertainty; in real property transaction, material terms are price, time and manner of performance, property to be transferred, and description sufficient to identify that property. Hennefer v. Butcher (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 492, 500, 501, 227 Cal. Rptr. 318

By litigating entitlement to premium, vendor waived contract provision for arbitration by panel of three appraisers to determine premium payment, if any, payable to vendor for increased value on rezoning; submission of evidence of value went beyond that necessary to establish fairness and reasonableness of contract price. Hennefer v. Butcher (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 492, 503-505, 227 Cal. Rptr. 318

"Fair market value" is certain enough price term to allow specific performance. Goodwest Rubber Corp. v. Munoz (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 919, 921, 216 Cal. Rptr. 604 (option)

Purchaser's failure to allege willingness and ability to perform is not fatal if defendant fails to object to sufficiency of complaint and evidence shows willingness and ability. Doryon v. Salant (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 706, 714-715, 142 Cal. Rptr. 378

Purchaser who is willing to accept defective title with adjustment is required to indicate that willingness within reasonable time. Weneda Corp. v. Dispalatro (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 187, 192, 37 Cal. Rptr. 267

Vendor who has accepted payment is unable to complain that payment was late or that consideration was inadequate. Crocker v. Grandi (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 431, 436-437, 11 Cal. Rptr. 330

[b] Decree and Incidental Adjustments

Vendee entitled to specific performance and the rents and profits of the land from the time the conveyance should have been made. Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 206, 219, 32 Cal. Rptr. 415, 384 P.2d 7

Vendor is entitled to offset against rents and profits allowed to purchaser interest on purchase price during period of delay, except interest is not to be allowed on sums purchaser has set aside, with notice to vendor, so as not to derive benefit therefrom; funds placed in escrow by purchaser are not subject to interest credit in favor of vendor. Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 206, 220-222, 32 Cal. Rptr. 415, 384 P.2d 7

Purchaser was entitled to compensation for carrying costs during period of delay and for costs of having to reobtain governmental approvals that expired during delay wrongfully caused by vendor; vendor who did not raise issue in trial court was not entitled to offset for lost interest on purchase price; question of entitlement to offset was not pure question of law but required equitable accounting, which involved factual and legal issues. Hennefer v. Butcher (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 492, 499, 505-506, 227 Cal. Rptr. 318

Appellate court may correct judgment containing obvious clerical error by modifying judgment; in specific performance action, when findings of fact set forth in statement of decision clearly show amount of purchase price payable and amount of and reasons for several offsets, mathematical error in judgment is clerical error. Hennefer v. Butcher (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 492, 506-508, 227 Cal. Rptr. 318

Party awarded specific performance is also entitled to compensation for increased costs resulting from breaching party's delay; such compensation is not limited by foreseeability but is required to be reasonable and based on equitable principles. Bravo v. Buelow (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 208, 213-215, 214 Cal. Rptr. 65 (increased construction costs); Housing Authority v. Monterey Senior Citizen Park (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 348, 356-357, 210 Cal. Rptr. 497 (increased financing costs)

Attorney's fee award was not proper incident of decree of specific performance against defendant who was third party to whom vendor had sold property after making contract with plaintiff because third party wasn't party to contract with plaintiff providing for attorney's fees as between them; plaintiff had cause of action against vendor for attorney's fees incurred in action against third party. Glynn v. Marquette (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 277, 280-282, 199 Cal. Rptr. 306

Preliminary injunction was proper to keep second purchaser from moving into new house pending outcome of first purchaser's action for specific performance. Grey v. Webb (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 232, 236-238, 158 Cal. Rptr. 595

Court properly retains jurisdiction in interlocutory decree to determine amounts owed. Wesley N. Taylor Co. v. Russell (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 816, 817-819, 15 Cal. Rptr. 357

Specific performance decree conditioned conveyance on payment. Greenstone v. Claretian Theo. Seminary (1959) 173 Cal. App. 2d 21, 37, 343 P.2d 161 (overruled on other grounds in Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 206, 221, 32 Cal. Rptr. 415, 384 P.2d 7)

[c] Options

Option that was required to be exercised "within 30 days prior to the expiration date" could be exercised at any time in 30-day period preceding expiration date; language did not require exercise at least 30 days before expiration date. Wilson v. Gentile (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 759, 762-768, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 713

Exercise of option by ordinary mail is adequate; such exercise is not required to include tender of purchase price in absence of clause in option regarding time andmode of payment of pur chase price. Erich v. Granoff (1980) 109 Cal.

App. 3d 920, 927-929, 167 Cal. Rptr. 538

Acceptance of exercise of option waives any objection to form of exercise (oral exercise accepted when written acceptance specified in contract). Collins v. Marvel Land Co. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 34, 40, 91 Cal. Rptr. 291

Rejection by buyer-optionee of nonconforming escrow instructions does not affect validity of land sales contract that becomes in esse on exercise of option. Collins v. Marvel Land Co. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 34, 41, 91 Cal. Rptr. 291

Exercise of option or tender of performance is ineffective if it includes conditions that optionee is not entitled to demand; nevertheless, defects are waived unless optionor/vendor specifically points out alleged defects at time of exercise/tender. Layton v. West (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 508, 511-512, 76 Cal. Rptr. 507

[d] Specific Performance Properly Denied

Document signed only by husband was not contract, but only counteroffer, and because never accepted, was not specifically enforceable; even though no contract existed, vendors were entitled to attorney's fees under provision in document claimed to by contract. Manier v. Anaheim Business Center Co. (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 503, 505-508, 207 Cal. Rptr. 508

Specific performance of alleged contract for purchase and sale of portion of real property was abuse of discretion; specific performance is required to be refused when written contract of parties is ambiguous and parol evidence of transaction between parties fails to remove ambiguity as to material term. White Point Co. v. Herrington (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 458, 461, 467-468, 73 Cal. Rptr. 885

[e] Description

Description of property without street address or legal description is inadequate for specific performance. Gorges v. Johnson (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 349, 352, 334 P.2d 621 .

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use by a purchaser of a one-to-four unit residential property to recover damages sustained as the result of the vendor's willful or negligent failure to comply with the disclosure requirements imposed generally on residential vendors. The broker(s) for the vendor and the purchaser may also be potential defendants.

For discussion and forms relating to a cause of action against a broker for the failure to disclose, see Ch. 103, Brokers . For a form seeking rescission and cancellation based on fraudulent misrepresentations, see § 569.168.

[3] Allegations

The complaint includes allegations regarding the formation of the sales contract and the close of escrow (Paragraph 4), and the type of residential property involved (Paragraph 5).

The first cause of action is based on the vendor's failure to comply with the disclosure requirements of Civ. Code § 1102 et seq. Any person who willfully or negligently violates or fails to perform any duty prescribed by any provision of this statutory scheme will be liable in the amount of actual damages suffered by a transferee [Civ. Code § 1102.13]. For a discussion of the statutory disclosure requirements, see § 569.11.

Paragraph 6 alleges either that the defendant was aware or should have been aware of certain facts required to be disclosed. Paragraph 7 alleges that the defendant either willfully or negligently failed to provide the statutory Transfer Disclosure Statement to the plaintiff or failed to include certain facts on the statement provided to the plaintiff. Paragraph 8 alleges the damages suffered by the plaintiff as a result of the defendant's violation of the statutory duty to disclose.

The second cause of action is based on the vendor's common law duty to disclose material facts. When the seller knows of facts materially affecting the value or desirability of the property that are known or accessible only to him or her, and also knows that these facts are not known to, or within the reach of the diligent attention and observation of, the buyer, the seller is under a duty to disclose the facts to the buyer. Whether information is of sufficient materiality to affect the value or desirability of the property depends on the facts of the particular case [Reed v. King (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 261, 265, 193 Cal. Rptr. 130 (buyer stated cause of action for seller's failure to disclose material fact based on nondisclosure of 10-year-old multiple murders in the residence)]. For further discussion of this common law duty, see Ch. 103, Brokers .

Paragraph 9 alleges the defendant's knowledge of and failure to disclose certain facts that were unknown to the plaintiff or not within the diligent attention and observation of the plaintiff. Paragraph 10 alleges that the facts materially affect the value and the desirability of the property. Paragraph 11 alleges the damages suffered by the plaintiff as the result of the defendant's failure to disclose material facts.

The third cause of action is based on the vendor's fraudulent nondisclosure of material facts. In addition to the allegations included in the second cause of action, Paragraph 13 alleges the vendor's intent to induce the plaintiff to purchase the property. For coverage of fraud in this context, see Ch. 103, Brokers .

[4] Statute of Limitations

It appears that an action under Civ. Code § 1102.13 is subject to the three-year limitation period for actions based on a liability created by statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a)]. Unlike the three-year limitation period applicable to common law fraud actions, the limitation period specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a) commences on accrual of the cause of action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 312], even though the plaintiff may not have discovered the facts constituting the cause of action. In contrast, the cause of action for fraud is not deemed to have accrued until the plaintiff's discovery of the facts constituting the fraud [Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)].

[5] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case in the superior court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a purchaser or tenant of nonresidential real property who has suffered harm because of the vendor's or landlord's failure to give written notice of the presence of a hazardous substance. The vendor or landlord is required to give this notice when he or she knows or has reasonable cause to believe that a release of hazardous substance has come to be located on or beneath the property. The vendor or lessor is liable for actual damages resulting from a failure to give the required notice before the transfer of title or making of the lease. In addition, the vendor or lessor is liable for a civil penalty if he or she had actual knowledge of the situation and knowingly and willfully failed to give notice as required by law [Health & Safety Code § 25359.7(a)].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges:

- The nonresidential nature of the real property (Paragraph 5).

- The vendor's or lessor's knowledge or reasonable cause to believe that a hazardous substance was located on or beneath the property (Paragraph 6).

- The transfer of title to, or lease of, the property without the notice required by law (Paragraph 7).

- The harm that the purchaser or lessee suffered as a result of the vendor's or lessor's failure to give the notice (Paragraph 8). The complaint contains an optional allegation of actual knowledge and willful failure to give thenotice, as a basis for claiming a civil penalty (Paragraph 9) [Health & Safety Code § 25359.7(a)].

[OR]

21. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff(s) notified defendants, and each of them, in writing that he/she/it/they had rescinded the contract [and _____ (specify subsidiary agreement(s), e.g., assumption agreement)] and intended to seek cancellation of the deed [, _____ (specify other instruments to be cancelled, e.g., note(s) and deed(s) of trust in favor of _____)] described above on the ground of _____ [specify, e.g., fraud] and offered to restore to Seller(s) all consideration given by him/her/it/them on condition that Seller(s) restore to plaintiff(s) the consideration advanced by him/her/it/them and the value of plaintiffs' (plaintiff's(s') improvements. Defendants, and each of them, refused, and continue to refuse, to return the consideration or to pay the value of the improvements, or to recognize that the contract [and assumption agreement] has/have been rescinded and that the deed, note(s), and deed(s) of trust have been cancelled.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff(s) pray(s) judgment as follows:

1. That defendant Seller[s, and each of them,] be ordered to pay to plaintiff(s) the following sums:

[(a) The down payment made by plaintiff(s) to Seller(s) in the sum of $_____;]

[(b) The reasonable value of the improvements made by plaintiffs to said real property in the sum of $_____;]

[(c) The sums paid, or which will be paid, by plaintiff(s), for closing costs, title insurance, moving expenses, casualty and liability insurance, principal and interest on outstanding obligations, taxes, fees for engineers, and miscellaneous costs, in an amount which will be set forth by amendment to this complaint when it has been ascertained;]

[(d) Exemplary damages; and]

(e) The costs of suit herein incurred[, including reasonable attorney's fees as authorized by Civil Code Section 1717].

2. That the _____ [specify, e.g., contract of the parties and the assumption agreement] has/have been rescinded [; that plaintiff(s) be relieved of any liability on the _____ (specify, e.g., note and deed(s) of trust _____ (given and/or assumed) by them)] [; that Seller(s) be required to assume the obligations of plaintiff(s) to _____(specify third party lenders)] [; and that plaintiff(s) be indemnified and held harmless by defendant Sellers from any actions or claims thereunder by _____ (specify, e.g., Bank or Security Company)].

[3. That the note and second deed of trust executed by plaintiff(s) be ordered surrendered up by their holders and cancelled by this Court.]

4. That plaintiff(s) be ordered to convey the real property to Seller(s) by quitclaim deed on condition that Seller(s) pay to plaintiff(s) the sums as ordered by the judgment of this Court.

5. That any sums which this Court finds to be due to plaintiff(s) from defendant Seller(s) be declared a lien on the real property.

6. For such other relief as the Court deems just.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a purchaser of real property to bring anaction for rescission of the contract and any collateral agreements, such as agreements assuming preexisting encumbrances. To provide complete relief, the complaint also seeks cancellation of the deed and any notes and deeds of trust in favor of the vendor, restitution, and that vendor's indemnify, and hold purchasers harmless from any claims on the preexisting encumbrances or assume purchase money obligations to third party lenders.

The ground for rescission used in the form is either nondisclosure of a material fact required to be disclosed or affirmative misrepresentation. The form may be modified for use if material mistake or some other ground is the basis for rescission [see Civ. Code § 1689 and discussion in § 569.22[7]].

This form may be used to seek alternative relief to damages for fraud or for failure to make statutory disclosures [Civ. Code §§ 1102-1102.14, 1134.5, 3343; see § 569.166].

If any of the lenders has commenced foreclosure proceedings, plaintiff may wish to seek an injunction to restrain the sale to preclude a purchaser at the foreclosure sale from establishing rights superior to plaintiff's rights. For a form of complaint that includes allegations to enjoin a sale that may be combined with this form, see Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages .

[3] Parties

All parties to a contract or instrument sought to be rescinded or cancelled must be named in an action for relief based on rescission or cancellation [Holder v. Home Sav. & Loan Asso. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 91, 107, 72 Cal. Rptr. 704] . In this complaint, Paragraphs 3 through 5 set forth the capacity of the lenders and trustees on loans which are original obligations of plaintiffs and those assumed by plaintiffs. While the court cannot require full payoff of a loan made by a third party, it can compel vendors to assume those obligations [see Snelson v. Ondulando Highlands Corp. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 243, 254-258, 84 Cal. Rptr. 800 (party extending financing is not indispensible to rescission so long as decree can be made that does not infringe lender's rights)]. The trustee of the assumed loan has been named in this complaint in order that it will be bound by any judgment rescinding the assumption agreement (Paragraph 5) [see Cooke v. Darnell (1920) 100 Cal. App. 482, 490, 280 P. 383 (holder of encumbrance not bound by judgment, though named as defendant, because not served)].

[4] Allegations

In addition to the capacities of all the parties, this form of complaint sets forth the formation and performance of the contract (Paragraphs 8 and 9) and describes each subsidiary agreement and instrument to be affected (Paragraphs 10 through 13). Additional paragraphs should be added as necessary to describe other terms of the transaction and agreements and instruments affected.

Other allegations set forth in this form are:

- Plaintiff's discovery of the defect and its impact on the property's market value (Paragraph 15) [see Hefferan v. Freebairn (1950) 34 Cal. 2d 715, 721-722, 214 P.2d 386 ; Reed v. King (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 261, 267-268, 193 Cal. Rptr. 130 (purchaser not required to prove pecuniary loss, property need not be worth less than purchaser paid to entitle purchaser to rescission)].

- Defendant's knowledge of the defect not disclosed or falsity of the affirmative misrepresentation and intent to induce reliance, plaintiff's lack of knowledge of the defect or falsity, the materiality or the defect or misrepresentation, and purchaser's reliance on the nonexistence of the defect or misrepresentation (Paragraph 16) [see Snelson v. Ondulando Highlands Corp. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 243, 251, 84 Cal. Rptr. 800 ; Buist v. C. Dudley DeVelbiss Corp (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 325, 331, 6 Cal. Rptr. 259 (misrepresentation or concealment of known fact of fill in lot is material inducement and fraud if purchaser does not know)].

- That the defect would not have been apparent to purchasers from a reasonably diligent inspection of the property (Paragraph 17) [see Snelson v. Ondulando Highlands Corp. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 243, 252, 84 Cal. Rptr. 800 (independent investigation does not preclude reliance if falsity would not be apparent from inspection, if defendant had superior knowledge, or if plaintiff is not competent to judge facts within expert assistance)].

- Consequential expenditures (Paragraph 19).

- Notice of rescission and cancellation and offer to restore consideration or that service of summons and complaint should constitute notice and offer to restore (alternative Paragraph 21).

Optional allegations regarding improvements made by plaintiffs (Paragraph 14) and punitive damages (Paragraph 20) are also included [Civ. Code §§ 1692, 3294(a); see Kent v. Clark (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 779, 784-786, 128 P.2d 868 (value of improvements)].

[5] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless it qualifies as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)]. An action to cancel or rescind a contract is a limited civil case when the relief is sought in connection with an action to recover money not exceeding $25,000 or property of a value not exceeding $25,000, paid or delivered under, or in consideration of, the contract [Code Civ.Proc. § 86(a)(3)]. When title or right to possession is to be tried, or permanent injunctive relief is sought, the case will be classified as an unlimited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 88].

In limited civil cases, the first page of the first paper filed must identify the case as a limited civil case and must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

[6] Venue

A purchaser's action for rescission of a contract for purchase and sale of real property is considered transitory if the gravamen of the action is fraud despite the fact that transfer of title to real property will be required if plaintiff is successful; therefore, venue is in the county of defendant's residence [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a); Coe v. Kessler (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 536, 540-542, 294 P.2d 83 ; Postin v. Griggs (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 147, 149-150, 151 P.2d 887] . When individual and corporate defendants are named, the residence of the individual defendant is entitled to have the action removed to the county of his or her residence [Rosen v. Kessler (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 676, 681-683, 303 P.2d 110] .

[8] Decisions

[a] Grounds for Fraud or Rescission

Purchaser is not prevented by "as is" provision from rescission and restitution from honest vendor on account of vendor's agent's misrepresentations; honest vendor is not liable for other damages. Herzog v. Capital Co. (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 349, 353, 164 P.2d 8

Misrepresentations as to acreage, susceptibility of property to flooding, and suitability of property for cultivation; purchaser's replacement and repair of culverts does not preclude reliance; numerous visits to property by purchaser as not precluding reliance when purchaser was not knowledgable as to soil or land conditions as they related to cultivation. Shearer v. Cooper (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 695, 697-702, 134 P.2d 764

Cause of action was stated for fraud when purchasers bought house without knowing or being told that foundation was so defective that house could not be occupied because broker who was also vendor had duty to disclose defects; purchasers' demolition of house, even in belief that was only way to correct defect, precluded restitution. Prichard v. Reitz (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 465, 467-469, 223 Cal. Rptr. 734

Purchaser was entitled to rescission if fact that murders occurred in home 10 years earlier was material; market value assumes purchaser has knowledge of all issues and purposes to which property is adapted. Reed v. King (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 261, 267-268, 193 Cal. Rptr. 130 (murders in home)

Every contract is subject to rescission for material misrepresentation whether innocent or fraudulent within reasonable time after discovery of falsity; rescission was proper within 60 days after date of contract when property was represented to net $19,000 but in fact it was operating at substantial loss and even though contract provided purchaser seven days to verify income and expenses. Osborne v. Cal-Am Financial Corp. (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 259, 266-268, 145 Cal. Rptr. 584

Purchaser was not entitled to unilateral rescission for mutual mistake or innocent misrepresentation regarding gas leak when leak was discovered after representation was made, and was repaired, tested, and passed city inspection, before close of escrow; gas leaks were too common and repaired leak was too immaterial to allow rescission because purchaser's unusual susceptibility to concern over gas leaks was not communicated. Wood v. Kalbaugh (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 926, 929-932, 114 Cal. Rptr. 673

Purchaser was entitled to rescission for broker's misrepresentation that dwellings had been constructed in compliance with local building codes and ordinances and pursuant to valid permit. Thompson v. Guyer-Hays (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 366, 369-371, 374, 24 Cal. Rptr. 461

[b] Particular Relief

Quitclaim deed is generally preferable to grant deed in rescission judgment. Snelson v. Ondulando Highlands Corp. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 243, 256, 84 Cal. Rptr. 800

Court was not permitted to require immediate full payoff of purchase money loan made by third party lender; court as properly required vendors to assume obligation of third party purchase money note and deed of trust and to hold purchasers harmless from demands, and claims of lender. Snelson v. Ondulando Highlands Corp. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 243, 257-258, 84 Cal. Rptr. 800

Brokers were properly held liable with vendors for restitution of downpayment, closing costs, incidental consequential damages, and payments made by purchasers on note. Snelson v. Ondulando Highlands Corp. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 243, 258, 84 Cal. Rptr. 800 .

§ 569.169 Complaint by Purchaser or Optionee--For Declaratory Relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060] Seeking Declaration That Contract or Option to Purchase Real Property Is in Full Force and Effect

[1] FORM Complaint by Purchaser or Optionee--For Declaratory Relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060] Seeking Declaration That Contract or Option to Purchase Real Property Is in Full Force and Effect

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name(s)],	)
Plaintiff(s),	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name(s)],	)	COMPLAINT FOR DECLARATORY RELIEF
[and DOES I through _____],	)
Defendant(s).	)

Plaintiff(s) alleges(s):

1. At all times herein mentioned plaintiff(s), sometimes hereinafter referred to as _____ ["Buyer(s)" or "Optionee(s)"], was/were, and is/are, _____ [plaintiff's capacity, e.g., a corporation organized and existing under the laws of California].

2. At all times herein mentioned defendant(s), sometimes hereinafter referred to as _____ ["Seller(s)" or "Optionor(s)"], was, and is, _____ [state capacity and if used as basis of venue, residence of defendant(s), e.g., husband and wife, residents of _____ County, California, and the fee owner(s) of the following described real property(, hereinafter referred to as the option property), situated in the County of _____, State of California, (commonly known as _____ (common designation or street address),) and more particularly described as follows: _____ [set forth legal description].

3. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff(s) and defendant(s) entered into a written agreement, [hereinafter referred to as the option agreement,] a copy of which is attached hereto, marked Exhibit "A," and made a part hereof, whereby plaintiff(s) was/were _____ [granted the exclusive option to purchase the option property on or before _____ (date), or to purchase from defendant(s) and defendant(s) was/were to sell to plaintiff(s) for the sum of $_____ the real property described above]. The [option] agreement provided for an initial payment of $_____, which was paid on or about _____ [date], and for _____ [specify number, or an] additional [_____ (regular interval, if applicable, e.g., quarterly)] payment(s) of $_____ [each] to be paid to _____ [Seller(s) or Optionor(s) or name of escrow or other agent] on _____ [specify date(s) or other, e.g., the last business day of March, June, September, and December of each year, commencing on _____ (date),], [unless the option was exercised or canceled before the next payment became due]. The payment(s) was/were [not] to be applied to the purchase price [but was/were to be made as consideration for the _____ (execution of the agreement or option)]. _____ [Specify other relevant conditions, e.g., Plaintiff's obligation to purchase the property was conditioned on its obtaining, on or before _____ (date), tentative subdivision map approval from the City and/or County of _____]. The agreement further provided that time was of the essence and that failure to make a payment on or before the prescribed date would automatically _____ [cancel or terminate] the _____ [option or contract] without further notice.

[4. From and after _____ (date), plaintiff(s) has/have expended in excess of $_____ on _____ (specify expenditures on subject property or adjacent property, and if applicable, any increase in value of the subject property on account of the expenditures, e.g., planning, building, and developing a major residential and commercial center consisting of shopping centers, office buildings, apartments, and parking garages on approximately _____ acres of land in _____ County, California, located adjacent to the option property. A portion of the adjacent property was purchased by plaintiff(s) from defendant(s). The planning, building, and developing of adjacent property has caused the option property to increase substantially in value since _____ (date), the date of the option agreement).]

[5. Pursuant to the terms and conditions of the (option) agreement, plaintiff(s) paid defendant(s) the sum of $_____ on or about _____ (date), and, in addition, plaintiff(s) paid _____ (defendant(s) or name of escrow or other agent) the _____ (date), and _____ (date), installment payments of $_____ each.]

6. Plaintiff(s) made the _____ [specify payment that was not timely made, e.g., 2005 fourth quarter payment] installment of $_____ by depositing, on or about _____, a check dated _____ [date], in the sum of $_____ in the regular mail addressed to defendant(s). A copy of the check is attached hereto, marked Exhibit "B," and made a part hereof.

7. On or about _____ [date], defendant(s) advised plaintiff(s) in writing that he/she/it/they considered the [option] agreement _____ [cancelled or terminated] on the ground that the _____ [specify payment that was not timely made, e.g., 2005 fourth quarter payment] installment payment was not received by him/her/it/them until _____ [date]. On or about _____ [date], defendant(s) returned the check to plaintiff(s).

8. On _____ [date], plaintiff(s) again tendered the $_____ due as the _____ [date], installment and notified defendant(s) that he/she/it/they considered the _____ [option or contract] to be and remain in full force and effect, but defendant(s) refused, and still refuses, to accept the same.

9. An actual controversy has arisen and now exists between plaintiff(s) and defendant(s) concerning their respective rights and duties under the [option] agreement in that plaintiff(s) contend(s), and defendant(s) denies/deny, that plaintiff(s) has/have performed and that the [option] agreement is now in full force and effect and that defendant's(s') purported _____ [termination or cancellation] thereof is of no legal force or effect.

10. Plaintiff(s) desire(s) a judicial determination of his/her/its/their rights and duties, and a declaration as to which party's interpretation of the [option] contract is correct.

11. [Necessity and appropriateness of judicial declaration. See § 569.193[1], Paragraph 17.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff(s) pray(s) judgment as follows:

1. For a declaration that the [option] contract described above is now in full force and effect and that the purported _____ [termination or cancellation] of it is of no legal force or effect;

2. For costs of suit herein incurred[, including reasonable attorney's fees as provided by the agreement]; and

3. For such other and further relief as the Court deems just.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a purchaser or optionee of real property to seek a declaration that the late payment of an installment has not terminated the entire agreement or option. This complaint is adapted in part from the facts in Holiday Inns of America v. Knight (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 327, 74 Cal. Rptr. 722, 450 P.2d 42 , involving an option contract. Relief is based on Civ. Code § 3275, prohibiting forfeitures for nonwillful defaults when the payee can be made whole. This basis for relief also applies to installment sales contracts [see § 569.193]. If the option has been exercised or the final payment under the contract is at issue, plaintiff's relief would be specific performance [see § 569.165] instead of declaratory relief.

If payments were to be made to an escrow rather than to the vendor directly, the allegations should be modified accordingly.

[3] Allegations

This form of complaint alleges the following:

- The capacity of the parties, and residence of defendant if used as the basis of venue (Paragraphs 1-2) [see also Mission Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 921, 930-931, 184 Cal. Rptr. 296, 647 P.2d 1075 (venue for declaratory relief regarding contract is same as for contract); see also §§ 569.164 and 569.193].

- The formation of the contract or option and the particular terms relevant to the dispute (Paragraph 3).

- Expenditures made by plaintiff in reliance on the contract or option, and any benefit therefrom that accrues to defendant (Paragraph 4).

- The extent of plaintiff's performance under the contract or option (Paragraph 5).

- Plaintiff's late tender (Paragraph 6).

- Defendant's refusal to accept the late tender and insistence that the contract or option is terminated (Paragraph 7).

- Plaintiff's retender and demand that the contract or option be honored as still in force (Paragraph 8).

- A description of the actual controversy that exists (Paragraph 9), and statements that plaintiff desires a judicial determination (Paragraph 10), and that a judicial determination is necessary and appropriate (Paragraph 11).

[4] Jurisdiction

Actions for declaratory relief are in the jurisdiction of the superior court as cases of unlimited jurisdiction. An action for declaratory relief is in the jurisdiction of the superior court as a limited civil case only when brought as a cross complaint for indemnity in an action or proceeding that is otherwise a limited civil case or in cases following nonbinding arbitration between an attorney and client when the amount in controversy is $25,000 or less [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(7)(A), 580(b)(4), 1060]. When title or right to possession is to be tried, or permanent injunctive relief is sought, the case willbe classified as an unlimited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 88].

[5] Decisions

Purchaser/optionee who makes payment within reasonable time after it is due is entitled to relief from forfeiture under Civ. Code § 3275 and declaration that option/agreement remains in force. Holiday Inns of America v. Knight (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 327, 329, 74 Cal. Rptr. 722, 450 P.2d 42

Purchaser entitled to specific performance of contract despite three day late tender of second installment. Williams Plumbing Co. v. Sinsley (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 1027, 1031-1035, 126 Cal. Rptr. 345

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name(s)],	)
Plaintiff(s),	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name(s)],	)	COMPLAINT TO QUIET TITLE

Plaintiff(s) allege(s):

1. _____ [Plaintiff is the sole owner or Plaintiffs are the owners concurrently, as _____ (joint tenants or tenants in common or partners or husband and wife or husband and wife as joint tenants),] of the fee simple title to certain real (and personal) property, namely _____ [give both street address or common designation and legal description of real property; the description of any personal property must include its usual location].

2. Defendant(s) _____ [name(s)], sometimes hereinafter referred to as "Purchaser(s)," is/are, and at all times herein mentioned, was/were, [husband and wife and] Purchaser(s) of the real [and personal] property described above pursuant to a written contract of sale executed by him/her/it/them and by plaintiff(s) on _____ [date], a copy of which is attached hereto marked Exhibit "A" and incorporated herein by reference. By the terms of that contract plaintiff(s) agreed to sell to defendant(s) and defendant(s) agreed to purchase from plaintiff(s) the above-described real property for a total purchase price of $_____, payable as follows: _____ [set forth payment terms, e.g., the sum of $_____ on execution of the contract, receipt of which is therein acknowledged, and the balance in equal monthly installments of $_____ or more, including interest at the rate of _____ percent per annum, on the _____ day of each and every month, commencing _____ [date].

[3. On execution of the contract, Purchaser(s) entered into and assumed possession of the property. Since _____ (date of forfeiture or by which demand set forth in Paragraph 7 was to have been performed), Purchaser(s)has/have been, and is/are now, unlawfully withholding possession thereof from plaintiff(s).]

4. The basis of plaintiff's (plaintiffs') title is _____ [specify, e.g., a deed from _____ (name of grantor) granting the above-described property in fee simple to plaintiff(s) dated _____ and recorded in the Official Records of the County of _____ at _____(Book or Reel) No. _____ at _____ (Page or Image) _____ (number)].

5. _____ [Plaintiff(s) or Plaintiff's(s') _____ (ancestor or predecessor or grantor)] was _____ [seized or possessed] of the above-described property within five years of the commencement of this action.

6. Plaintiff(s) admit(s) the following claims against the property described above:

[LIST, in consecutively lettered subparagraphs, all admitted claims, for example:]

a. The lien of [defendant] _____ County, California for taxes for the fiscal year(s) _____ [through _____];

b. The utility easement of [defendant] Pacific Gas and Electric Company as shown on the map of the _____ [name of subdivision or survey] filed in Book _____, Page _____ of Parcel Maps in the Office of the County Recorder of _____ County, California; and

c. The deed of trust dated _____, to [defendant] _____ [name of trustee] as trustee, in favor of [defendant] _____ [name of beneficiary] as beneficiary, securing the original principal sum of $_____ recorded _____ [date], in _____ [Book or Reel] _____, at _____[Page or Image] _____ in the Official records of County Recorder of _____ County, California.

[CONTINUE]

7. Plaintiff(s) seek(s) to quiet title against the claim of defendant Purchaser(s) under the written contract which is Exhibit "A." The claim of defendant Purchaser(s) is without any right whatever and defendant Purchaser(s) has/have no right, title, estate, lien, or interest whatever in the property described above for the reasons described below.

8. _____ [Set forth any terms of contract relating to breach, but not described in Paragraph 2, and contract terms providing for forfeiture, e.g., Paragraph _____ of the contract provides that Purchasers will pay all taxes on the property as they come due. Paragraph _____ of the contract provides that in the event of the failure of the purchasers to comply with any of the terms and conditions of said contract, or any part thereof, on their part to be performed, plaintiff(s) may elect to (if proceeding on rescission theory rescind the contract and) terminate Purchasers' interest thereunder; on such election, Purchasers shall forfeit all rights under the contract, and plaintiff(s) shall be entitled to immediate possession of the premises; Paragraph _____ of the contract provides that "time is of the essence of this agreement"].

9. Purchasers have defaulted in _____ [set forth facts constituting breach, e.g., payments of $_____ per month due to plaintiff according to the terms of said contract _____ (set forth default in detail, e.g., for each month from June, 1998, to the present and have failed to pay county property tax installments of $_____ due December 10, 1998, and April 10, 1999, and installments of $_____ due December 10, 2000, and April 10, 1986, together with delinquent interest now due therefor).]

10. On _____ [date], plaintiff served written notice on defendants notifying them of the defaults and of plaintiff's(s') election to (if proceeding on rescission theory rescind the contract and) declare all right of Purchaser(s) under the contract forfeited and to seek immediate possession of the property unless payment in full of the amount then due under the contract, the sum of $_____, was made to plaintiff(s) and a receipt for payment of the delinquent county tax installments, and interest accrued thereon, was delivered to plaintiff on or before _____ [date]. The notice specified that the total remaining unpaid balance under the contract was $_____, which sum would accrue interest at the rate of $_____ per day after _____ (date of notice)). A copy of the notice (if proceeding on rescission theory, which also offered to restore to Purchaser(s) the excess of his/her/its/their payments under the contract over the reasonable rental value of the property since the execution of the contract on receipt of his/her/its/their quitclaim deed, in recordable form, reconveying the property to plaintiff(s),) is attached hereto marked Exhibit "B," and made a part hereof.

11. Purchaser(s) has/have failed and refused to pay the taxes or the sum specified in the notice, or any part thereof, the time specified in the notice has expired, and plaintiff has declared [the contract rescinded and] all rights of Purchaser(s) under the contract forfeited.

[EITHER, if proceeding on breach of contract theory]

12. As a proximate result of the failure of Purchaser(s) to perform under the contract, plaintiff(s) has/have suffered damages of $_____, _____ [specify element(s) of damage, e.g., the excess of the contract price over the fair market value of the property on the date of Purchaser's(s') default, plus $_____ which will be necessary expenses on resale]. [This amount is in excess of the $_____ received in payments from Purchaser(s).]

[OR, if proceeding on rescission theory]

12. As a result of the failure of Purchaser(s) to perform under the contract, plaintiff(s) has/have sustained damages equal to the excess of the value of the use of the property since the date of execution of the contract of $_____ per month, over the $_____ received in payments from Purchaser(s).

[CONTINUE]

13. As a proximate result of the failure of Purchaser(s) to perform under the contract, plaintiff(s) has/have sustained damages of $_____, reflecting _____ [specify any consequential damages, e,g., taxes and delinquent interest thereon which were assumed by Purchasers under the contract but were not paid by them.

Plaintiff(s) has/have incurred expenses, including attorney's fees, in addition to those alleged above, which expenses were, and are, necessary to (regain possession and) remove the cloud of Purchaser's(s') claim from his/her/its/their title. Plaintiff(s) will continue to incur these expenses in an amount unknown to him/her/it/them at this time. Plaintiff(s) pray(s) leave of court to amend this complaint to insert herein the true amount of said expenses when they are ascertained. In addition, the reasonable value of the property to Plaintiff(s) since _____, (date of rescission or forfeiture) has been and still is, the sum of $_____ per day, and by reason of defendant's (defendants') unlawful detention of the premises plaintiff(s) is/are deprived of the reasonable value of the use and occupancy thereof, and will continue to be so deprived until possession is restored to Plaintiff(s)].

14. Plaintiff(s) seek(s) to quiet title as of _____ [the date of the filing of this complaint or specify other date and reason why determination is sought as of the other date].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff(s) pray(s) judgment against said defendant(s) as follows:

1. For a decree declaring that certain Contract for Sale of Real Property between plaintiff(s) and defendant(s) dated _____ is _____ [terminated or rescinded] and all rights of defendant(s) thereunder forfeited;

2. For a decree declaring that all moneys heretofore paid by defendant(s) to plaintiff(s) under and by virtue of the contract shall be retained by plaintiff(s) as payment of _____ [the fair value for the use and occupancy of the property since the execution of the contract and/or plaintiff's(s') damages];

3. For restitution of the premises;

4. For damages at the rate of $_____ per day for the wrongful detention of the premises by defendant from _____ [date], until such time as possession of the premises is restored to plaintiff;

5. For a judgment that plaintiff(s) is/are the fee simple owners of the property and that defendant(s) has/have no interest in the property adverse to plaintiff(s);

6. For costs of court herein, including reasonable attorney's fees;

7. For such other and further relief as the Court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a vendor under an installment sales contract to terminate the purchaser's interest and to quiet title [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 760.020, 761.020]. For more detailed discussion of quiet title procedures, see Ch. 482, Quieting Title .

[3] Purchaser's Rights of Redemption, Reinstatement; Notice of Election

Before a vendor is allowed to quiet title, a purchaser, even a willfully defaulting purchaser, who has made substantial payments on the contract or substantial improvements on the property has an unconditional right to redeem the property by paying the entire remaining balance, plus interest and damages, within a reasonable time. This right of redemption is exercisable as soon as the vendor gives notice of election to terminate the contract on account of default [Petersen v. Hartell (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 102, 111-114, 219 Cal. Rptr. 170, 707 P.2d 232 (payment of $2,900 of $9,162 purchase price was substantial)]. For this reason, Paragraph 10 contains the optional allegation that the notice of election to terminate the contract set forth the payoff balance.

Also, a purchaser who has made substantial payments on the contract or substantial improvements on the property and whose default is not willful or grossly negligent has an absolute right to reinstate the contract on payment of arrearages, hence the allegations in Paragraph 10 that the notice contained a statement of arrearages [Barkis v. Scott (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 116, 117-118, 122-123, 208 P.2d 367 ($3,114 of improvements, $700 downpayment, and 57 timely monthly payments compared to purchaser price of $6,150; innocent mistake regarding checks drawn on insufficient funds for two installments)].

[4] Allegations

This form alleges:

- Plaintiff's capacity and interest and the description of the property with the specificity required by Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020(a) (Paragraph 1) [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.010(a), (b)].

- The identity of defendant purchasers and the basis of their claim (Paragraph 2) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 761.020(c), 762.010].

- The basis of plaintiff's title (Paragraph 4) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 761.010(b), 764.010; see Winter v. Rice (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 679, 683, 222 Cal. Rptr. 340 (plaintiff in quiet title action is required to prove his or her title, even if defendant defaults)].

- That plaintiff or plaintiff's predecessor was seized or possessed of the property within five years before commencement of the action (Paragraph 5) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 318; Safwenberg v. Marquez (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 301, 311, 123 Cal. Rptr. 405 (seizing or possession within five years before commencement of action is necessary to recover possessory interest in real property)].

- The claims against the property which are admitted by plaintiff (Paragraph 6) [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.060(c); see Code Civ. Proc. § 764.045 (holders of known or recorded claims who are not parties to action are not bound by judgment)].

- That the purchasers have no interest in the property (Paragraph 7).

- The contract terms, in addition to those set forth in Paragraph 2, that are the basis for the default and the election to require forfeiture of the purchaser's interest (Paragraph 8).

- The facts constituting purchaser's default (Paragraph 9).

- Plaintiff's notice of election to rescind or to terminate the contract, which gave defendant an opportunity to reinstate the contract and/or redeem the property (Paragraph 10) [see Petersen v. Hartell (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 102, 111-114, 219 Cal. Rptr. 170, 707 P.2d 232 ; Barkis v. Scott (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 116, 117-118, 122-123, 208 P.2d 367 , discussed in § 569.190[3]].

- That no reinstatement or redemption has been made at the time the complaint is filed (Paragraph 11).

- Damages under a breach of contract measure or under the rescission/rental measure (alternative Paragraphs 12) [see Honey v. Henry's Franchise Leasing Corp. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 801, 803-805, 52 Cal. Rptr. 18, 415 P.2d 833 (Civ. Code § 3307 measure, not rental value, is appropriate when rescission is not sought); Behrendt v. Abraham (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 182, 186-188, 49 Cal. Rptr. 292, 410 P.2d 828 (allowing rental measure without rescission but after purchasers' abandonment so long as purchasers given credit for interest payments); for more detailed treatment of vendor's damages, see § 569.104[3]].

- Consequential damages likely to be applicable under either measure of damages (Paragraph 13) [see South Shore Land Co. v. Petersen (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 725, 741, 38 Cal. Rptr. 392 (return of possession and damages for withholding is proper relief incident to quiet title)].

- The statement required by Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020(d) regarding the date as of which the determination is sought (Paragraph 14).

Optional Paragraph 3, alleging defendant's possession of the premises, is included for use when a judgment restoring plaintiff to possession is sought [South Shore Land Co. v. Petersen (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 725, 741, 38 Cal. Rptr. 392 (return of possession and damages for withholding is proper relief incident to quiet title)].

It is not clear whether this action is one to enforce the terms of a contract within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1062.10, which provides that no action can be maintained to enforce the terms of a real property installment sales contract providing for a change in ownership until the agreement has been recorded or the change of ownership statement required by Rev. & Tax. Code § 480 has been filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1062.10]. Because a redemption action by the purchaser would require compliance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1062.10, and because redemption may be part of a conditional judgment in the vendor's quiet title action, it would seem that Code Civ. Proc. § 1062.10 should be complied with. Compliance would require an additional allegation either that the contract was recorded or that the change of ownership statement has been filed.

[5] Additional Defendants

There are four classes of potential defendants not named as defendants in this form:

- Additional known defendants claiming adverse interests that plaintiff contests, such as an assignee of defendant's interest under the contract.

- Holders of known or recorded adverse claims that plaintiff admits, such as utility easements or deeds of trust [see Code Civ. Proc. § 762.060(b), (c)].

- Unknown adverse claimants [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 762.010, 762.020, 762.060(a)].

- Unknown successors of a deceased person required to be named as a defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 762.030].

If there are other known entities whose claims are contested, the capacity ofeach claimant and basis of his/her/its claim should be set forth in separate consecutively numbered paragraphs after Paragraph 2. Each of those claims must also be mentioned in Paragraph 7 as a claim against which determination is sought and that is without merit [Code Civ. Proc. § 760.020(c)].

If unknown defendants are named under Code Civ. Proc. § 762.060(a), holders of known or recorded claims must be made defendants [see Code Civ. Proc. § 762.060(b)]. Holders of known or recorded claims who are not made parties to the action will not be bound by the judgment, but because, with the exception of an assignee of defendant's interest, those claims will be admitted in most situations, they have been omitted from this form for clarity [Code Civ. Proc. § 764.045; see Code Civ. Proc. § 762.010 (only holders of claims against which determination is sought must be named defendants)].

For allegations, more detailed discussion of their use, and special requirements for the caption and service when unknown defendants are named, see Ch. 482, Quieting Title .

[6] Verification

A complaint to quiet title must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 760.020].

[7] Jurisdiction and Venue

The superior court has jurisdiction of a quiet title action, including jurisdiction to grant whatever equitable relief is proper under the circumstances [Code Civ. Proc. § 760.040]. The action is not a limited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(b), 580(b)(3)]. When title or right to possession is to be tried, or permanent injunctive relief is sought, the case will be classified as an unlimited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 88]. The court has complete jurisdiction over the parties to the action and the property described in the complaint and is deemed to have obtained possession and control of the property for the purposes of the action with complete jurisdiction to render the quiet title judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 760.040(b)].

Subject to the power of the court to transfer actions, the proper county for a quiet title action of real, or real and personal, property is the county in which the real property, or some part of it, is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 760.050(a)].

[8] Lis Pendens

Immediately on commencement of a quiet title action by filing of the complaint, the plaintiff must file a lis pendens in the office of the county recorder of each county in which any real property described in the complaint is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.010]. For a form of lis pendens, see Ch. 348, Lis Pendens .

[9] Decisions

Vendor who has waived time provisions by accepting late payment may revive requirement of strict compliance with time provision by giving proper notice to that effect. Gonzalez v. Hirose (1948) 33 Cal. 2d 213, 216-217, 200 P.2d 793 ; Bishop v. Barndt (1919) 43 Cal. App. 149, 154-157, 184 P. 901

When final installment has come due, vendor is required to tender deed in order to put purchaser in default. Boone v. Templeman (1910) 158 Cal. 290, 297, 110 P. 947

Recovery of possession, damages for withholding, and declaration of forfeiture of purchaser's rights under installment sales contract are proper incidental relief in vendor's quiet title action. Keele v. Clouser (1928) 92 Cal. App. 526, 529-530, 268 P. 682

This cause came on regularly for trial on _____ [date], in Department _____ of the above-entitled Court, the Honorable _____, Judge, presiding, sitting without a jury. Plaintiff(s) appeared by his/her/its/their attorney _____ and defendant(s) appeared by his/her/its/their attorney _____ and evidence both oral and documentary having been presented by both parties, the cause having been argued and submitted for decision, [and the Court having made and caused to be filed herein its written Statement of Decision,]

IT IS ORDERED, ADJUDGED, AND DECREED AS FOLLOWS:

1. As of _____ [date], plaintiff(s) herein _____ [was the sole owners or were the owners concurrently, as _____ (joint tenants or tenants in common or partners or husband and wife or husband and wife as joint tenants),] of the fee simple title to certain real [and personal] property, namely _____ (give legal description of real property as in deed for real property and bill of sale for personal property)].

2. Plaintiff's(s') title to that real property is subject to the right of defendant(s) arising from the contract for the purchase and sale of that property executed by the parties and dated _____ to _____ [reinstate or redeem his/her/its/their interest under] the contract by payment to _____ [plaintiff(s) or the clerk of this Court for the benefit of plaintiff(s) or (name of third party escrow) for the benefit of plaintiff(s)] _____ [on or before _____ [date], or within _____ days from the _____ (entry of this judgment or from service on him/her/it/them of written notice of the entry of this judgment)] of the sum of $_____ together with interest thereon at the rate of _____ percent per annum which is $_____ per day, from and after _____ [date].

3. If it is made to appear to this Court that the payment set forth in Paragraph 2, above, has not been made by the appointed date, this Court shall make and enter a final judgment cancelling the contract for the purchase and sale of the real property herein described; providing that plaintiff(s) shall have and recover possession of the real [and personal] property and that a writ of execution shall be issued to the sheriff of _____ County, California, directing the sheriff to remove defendant(s) and all those claiming by, through, or under defendant(s), and to place plaintiff(s) in possession of the premises; and terminating all rights of defendant(s) under the contract, except the right to receive from plaintiff(s) the excess of defendant's(s') payments under the contract [plus the value of improvements made to the property by defendant(s)] over plaintiff's(s') actual damages on account of defendant's(s') failure to fully perform the contract, including the reasonable rental value of the premises for the period after breach of the contract during which defendant(s) retained possession of the premises. Said excess amounts to $_____, with interest thereon at the rate of _____ percent per annum [which is $_____ per day] from and after _____ [date]. For each day after _____ [date], that defendant(s) retain(s) possession of the premises, there shall be deducted from the amount owed by plaintiff(s) to defendant(s) the sum of $_____. If it is made to appear to this Court that the payment from plaintiff(s) to defendant(s) has been made, judgment shall further provide that plaintiff's(s') title to the real [and personal] property be quieted against any and all claims of defendant(s) and any person or persons claiming by, through, or under defendant(s).

[EITHER, if reinstatement]

4. On payment being made as provided in Paragraph 2, above, this Court shall make and enter a final judgment declaring the contract in full force and effect and all rights of defendant(s) thereunder reinstated, and ordering plaintiff(s), so long as defendant(s) shall thereafter not default on the contract, to perform all conditions thereof on his/her/its/their part to be performed.

[OR, if redemption]

4. On payment being made by defendant(s) as provided in Paragraph 2, above, plaintiff(s) shall execute and deliver to _____ [defendant(s) or the clerk of this Court for the benefit of defendant(s) or (name of third party escrow) for the benefit of defendant(s)] a good and sufficient _____ [grant or warranty] deed conveying to defendant(s) good and marketable title to the property as described in Paragraph 1, above, and evidenced by a standard policy of title insurance in the full amount of the purchase price [procured and paid for by plaintiff];

[CONTINUE]

5. Each party to bear his/her/its/their own costs [and attorney's fees], except that plaintiff(s) shall recover from defendant(s) any costs and reasonable attorney's fees expended after the date of this judgment to recover possession of the premises.

[6. That this Court reserves and continues its jurisdiction over the parties and the subject matter of this action to supervise, compel compliance with, and enforcement of this judgment and decree until it has been fully discharged and satisfied.]
Dated: _____.

Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

This form of judgment is for use in a vendor's quiet title action in which the purchaser has established a right to reinstatement or redemption, and if reinstatement or redemption cannot be made within the time allowed, a right to restitution. If purchaser has established only the right to restitution, the form in § 569.192 should be used rather than this form.

This form has been framed as an interlocutory judgment on the assumption that each party will want a final judgment for his or her protection. It could be modified to be a conditional judgment by deleting references to the final judgment.

[3] Contents of Judgment

Judgment in a vendor's action foreclosing a purchaser's rights under a contract of sale must be qualified or conditional; it must set forth (1) the amount due, (2) that it be paid on or before a certain date, (3) that on failure of payment, the purchaser's equity is foreclosed, or (4) that if payment is made, vendor must give a deed [Gonzalez v. Hirose (1948) 33 Cal. 2d 213, 216-217, 200 P.2d 793 ; Petersen v. Ridenour (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 720, 728-730, 287 P.2d 848] . The judgment should also provide for the amount of restitution to be made from the vendor to the purchaser in order to quiet the vendor's title [see Bartley v. Karas (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 336, 345 n.5, 197 Cal. Rptr. 749 , disapproved on other grounds, Petersen v. Hartell (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 102, 117, 219 Cal. Rptr. 170, 707 P.2d 232 ; Crofoot v. Weger (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 839, 843, 241 P.2d 1017] .

[4] Notice of Judgment

In a contested action or special proceeding, the party submitting a judgment for entry must prepare and mail a copy of the notice of entry of judgment to all appearing parties and file with the court the original notice of entry of judgment together with the proof of service by mail, unless the court orders the clerk to mail notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5].

[5] Effect of Judgment

The judgment, whether framed as interlocutory or conditional, is final when it establishes all the rights and liabilities of the parties, even though the question of whether redemption has been effected is necessarily left open for future determination [Newhouse v. Upchurch (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 204, 211, 99 Cal. Rptr. 436 ; Perry v. West Coast Bond etc. Co. (1934) 136 Cal. App. 557, 559, 29 P.2d 279 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(8) (appealability of interlocutory judgment regarding redemption)]. The vendor's payment of the sums required as restitution is merely a condition of quieting his or her title. Failure to make the payment will not divest the vendor of title [Stein v. Simpson

[6] Procedure for Obtaining Final Judgment

The usual procedure is for the party who has satisfied his or her part of the judgment, that is, a purchaser who has paid the reinstatement or redemption amount or a vendor who has paid the restitution amount, to move for final judgment or to compel compliance by the other party on the basis of a satisfaction of judgment given by the other party or on the basis of declarations and documentary evidence [see Newhouse v. Upchurch (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 204, 206-210, 99 Cal. Rptr. 436 ; Scarbery v. Bill Patch Land & Water Co. (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 87, 96-98, 7 Cal. Rptr. 408 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1 (appealability of orders after judgment)]. Acceptance of amounts owing as restitution and giving of a satisfaction of judgment therefor will not foreclose the purchaser's right to appeal based on a claim that a greater amount is owed as restitution [Stein v. Simpson (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 79, 87, 230 P.2d 816] .

[7] State Statutes

Contents and manner of execution of writ of possession of real property. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 715.010-715.040

Judgment not otherwise enforceable may be enforced by service of certified copy of judgment on party required to perform under it and invocation of court's contempt power. Code Civ. Proc. § 717.010

[8] Decisions

Vendor's quiet title judgment is required to be qualified so as to provide for delivery of deed conveying title to purchaser on payment of amounts due vendor within such time as court deems reasonable. Gonzalez v. Hirose (1948) 33 Cal. 2d 213, 217, 200 P.2d 793

Judgment requiring conveyance is authorized to appoint clerk of court as receiver, though sometimes called commissioner, pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(3), (4) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(3), (4)) to execute deed if difficulty is anticipated in compelling party to make conveyance; receiver's powersand duties to be fixed by decree. Scadden Flat G. M. Co. v. Scadden (1898) 121 Cal. 33, 41, 53 P. 440

Willful refusal of party to comply with judgment requiring him or her to execute conveyance is punishable by contempt of court.' 76 L. & W. Co. v. Superior Court (1892) 93 Cal. 139, 143, 28 P. 813 ; see Addiego v. Hill (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 453, 460, 95 Cal. Rptr. 151 (dicta)

When vendor seeks to foreclose purchaser's equity in quiet title action, decree should fix time within which purchaser may pay balance due on contract or be foreclosed. Keller v. Lewis (1878) 53 Cal. 113, 118

On stipulated judgment for reinstatement, when one of two checks tendered one week late was not covered by sufficient funds through innocent mistake, but was made good within four days, equities were with purchaser and reinstatement was affected, especially because stipulated judgment should not have included two payments coming due between date of oral stipulation and date for performance under stipulated judgment and should have given credit to purchaser for rents collected by vendor during interim. Newhouse v. Upchurch (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 204, 208-212, 99 Cal. Rptr. 436

Quiet title action brought to terminate contract of sale of realty is strict foreclosure; court is required to find amount due and decree that it be paid on or before certain date and that on failure of payment, purchaser's equity is foreclosed. Petersen v. Ridenour (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 720, 728, 287 P.2d 848

Equities require qualified judgment providing for delivery of deed to purchaser on payment of sums owed to vendor within reasonable time. Petersen v. Ridenour (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 720, 730, 287 P.2d 848

[2] Use of Form

This form of conditional judgment is for use in a quiet title action by a vendor under an installment sales contract who has been awarded judgment conditioned on restitution to the purchaser of the excess of payments under the contract over vendor's actual damages. It may be modified for use as an interlocutory judgment by changing Order 2 to state that a final judgment quieting vendor's title must be entered when it is made to appear to the court that the amounts specified as restitution have been paid.

2. Defendant(s) _____ [name(s)], sometimes hereinafter referred to as "Seller(s)," is/are, and at all times herein mentioned, was/were, _____ [state capacity, and if used as basis of venue, residence of defendant(s), e.g., husband and wife and residents of _____ County, California, residing at _____ (street address and city)].

5. On _____ [date], at _____ [city], _____ County, California, plaintiff(s) and defendant(s) entered into a written contract, a copy of which is attached hereto, marked Exhibit "A," and made a part hereof. The contract was recorded in the office of the County Recorder of _____ County on _____ [date]. By the terms of the contract, defendant(s) agreed to sell to plaintiff(s) and plaintiff(s) agreed to purchase from defendant(s) the real property situated in the County of _____, State of California, described as follows: _____ [legal description and/or street name or common designation; if modified for use as cross complaint to vendor's quiet title action, legal description is required].

6. The contract provides that the total purchase price of $_____ ispayable as follows: _____ [set forth terms of contract, e.g., the sum of $_____ on execution of the contract, receipt of which is therein acknowledged, and the balance in equal monthly installments of $_____ or more on the _____ day of each and every month, commencing _____ [date], and continuing until the entire amount of the purchase price together with interest thereon at the rate of _____ percent per annum has been paid].

7. Paragraph _____ of the contract provides that _____ [set forth provision of contract that vendor claims allows acceleration and/or forfeiture for default, e.g., "if default be made in the payment of any of the said sums of principal or interest when due, all moneys theretofore paid on the premises by the Purchaser shall, at the option of the Seller, become absolutely forfeited to and be retained by the Seller as and for liquidated and agreed damages for breach of this agreement; and this agreement shall then become and be absolutely void and of no effect. It being expressly agreed that time is of the essence of this contract."]

[8. Immediately on execution of the contract plaintiff(s) entered into and assumed possession of the property and constructed on it _____ [describe improvements, e.g., a house, two-car garage, and driveway, together with landscaping,] of the aggregate value of $_____.]

9. Plaintiff(s) fully and duly performed all terms, conditions, and covenants of the contract on his/her/its/their part required to be performed prior to _____ [date], and paid to _____ [defendant(s) or _____ (name), as agent for defendant(s)] all sums of money becoming due under the contract to and including the installment becoming due under the contract on _____ [date].

10. The total amount of money paid by plaintiff(s), pursuant to the contract, on the purchase price of the property is the sum of $_____.

11. Plaintiff(s) is/are currently in default in payment of installments due on the contract in that _____ [allege default, e.g., the check delivered by plaintiff(s) to _____ (defendant(s) or _____ (name), as agent for defendant(s)) as and for the payment becoming due under the contract on _____ (date), was not honored by the bank on which it was drawn but was marked by the bank "Refer to Maker" and returned, unpaid to defendant(s)].

12. _____ [Allege facts showing default was not grossly negligent, willful or fraudulent, e.g., Plaintiffs had miscalculated the balance on deposit in their checking account and had no knowledge of the default until _____ (date), when defendant served written notice of default on them, notifying them of the default, of defendant's election, pursuant to Paragraph _____ of the contract, to declare all interests (and payments) of plaintiffs under the contract forfeited (and demanding immediate possession of the property and/or immediate payment, in full, of the remainder of the purchase price).]

13. _____ [On _____ (date), or specify very short period, e.g., Within two days of receiving notice of the default], plaintiff(s) _____ [specify act curing default, e.g., tendered the full amount then due under the contract to defendant(s)] but defendant(s) refused, and still refuse(s), to accept the same.

14. Plaintiff(s) is/are ready, willing, and able to pay to defendant(s) or to deposit with this Court all sums now due, owing, and unpaid on the contract and all sums necessary to fully compensate the defendant(s) for any damages suffered by him/her/it/them by reason of the default.

15. An actual controversy has arisen between plaintiff(s) and defendant(s) concerning their respective rights and duties under the contract in that plaintiff(s) contend(s) he/she/it/they is/are entitled as a matter of law to reinstate the contract by paying arrearages [and/or to a reasonable amount of time within which to redeem his/her/its/their interest by paying the full remaining balance of the purchase price, with interest,] and any other damages suffered by defendant(s) on account of the _____ [specify, e.g., late payments], whereas defendant(s) claim(s) that he/she/it/they can enforce Paragraph _____ of the contract as written and cause forfeiture of all plaintiff's(s') rights under the contract and all sums heretofor paid by plaintiff(s) under the contract [and expended for improvements to the property].

16. Plaintiff(s) desire(s) a judicial determination of his/her/its/their rights and duties, and a declaration as to which party's interpretation of the contract is correct.

17. A judicial declaration is necessary and appropriate at this time under the circumstances in order that plaintiff may ascertain his/her/its/their rights and duties under the contract. _____ [Allege any other burden being caused by the unsettled state of affairs, e.g., Plaintiffs would ordinarily have begun construction of an addition on the residence. Postponement for the resolution of this issue may cause expiration of plaintiffs' building permit, and due to a moratorium on new construction in the City of _____, plaintiff's could not obtain another permit.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff(s) pray(s) judgment against defendant(s) as follows:

1. For a declaration by the Court that Paragraph _____ of the contract is void and not enforceable, that plaintiff(s) is/are relieved from forfeiture of the contract, and that [on payment by plaintiff(s) to defendant(s) within such reasonable time as the Court may fix, of all sums the Court finds are now due under the contract, together with such further sums as the Court may find are necessary tocompensate defendant(s) fully for any damages which the Court may find to have been caused by the default, (less a reasonable sum fixed by the Court as plaintiff's(s') costs and attorney's fees),] the contract _____ [is or be] fully reinstated and remain(s) in full force and effect;

[2. In the alternative, for a declaration by the Court that Paragraph _____ of the contract is void and not enforceable, that plaintiff(s) may be relieved from forfeiture of the contract, and that on payment by plaintiff(s) to _____ [defendant(s) or the clerk of the Court or specify third party escrow] within such reasonable time as the Court may fix, of all sums the Court finds due as the full remaining balance of the purchase price, with interest, together with such further sums as the Court may find are necessary to compensate defendant(s) fully for any damages which the Court may find to have been caused by the default, [less a reasonable sum fixed by the Court as plaintiff's (plaintiffs' costs and attorney's fees,] the defendant(s) be required to convey the plaintiff(s) the property which is the subject of the contract;]

3. For costs of suit herein incurred [, including attorney's fees as provided by the contract here at issue]; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a purchaser under an installment sales contract to seek relief from forfeiture by way of reinstatement on the ground that the default was not willful [Civ. Code § 3275; Barkis v. Scott (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 116, 117-118, 122-123, 208 P.2d 367 ; see § 569.100[4]]. This form is set forth as a complaint for declaratory relief in order to gain the trial setting priority accorded declaratory relief actions, but it may be modified by deleting Paragraphs 15-17 to be merely a complaint for relief from forfeiture by allowing reinstatment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1062.3 (trial setting priority for declaratory relief actions)]. If it is so modified, the word "declaration" should be replaced in the prayer with the word "decree" and the title of the paper in the caption should be changed to: " Complaint for Relief From Forfeiture (Installment Sales Contract)."

This form may also be modified for use as a cross complaint in response to a vendor's action foreclosing the purchaser's interest by changing the word "plaintiff(s)" to "cross-complainant(s)" wherever it appears and by adding "cross" before the word "defendant(s)" each time it appears. If modified for use as a cross complaint in a quiet title action, see Ch. 482, Quieting Title , for particular requirements and procedures applicable to quiet title actions.

If counsel is not sure of prevailing on the issue that the default is nonwillful and therefore qualifies the purchaser for reinstatement, or if for some other reason the purchaser would like to pay off the entire balance instead of just reinstating delinquencies, a second cause of action for redemption may be joined seeking redemption as alternative relief [see § 569.194]. Item 2 of the prayer should be used only when redemption is sought as alternative relief.

[3] Allegations

This form alleges:

- Defendant's residence (Paragraph 2).

- The formation and terms of the contract, and that the contract was recorded (Paragraphs 5-7) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1062.10 (suit to enforce terms of installment sales contract entered into after January 1, 1986, cannot be maintained without prior recordation of contract or filing of change in ownership statement as required by Rev. & Tax. Code § 480)].

- The extent of plaintiff's performance under the contract (Paragraphs 8-10).

- Plaintiff's default (Paragraph 11).

- The facts from which the court can determine that the default was not willful, grossly negligent, or fraudulent (Paragraph 12).

- Defendant's notice of election to terminate the contract (Paragraph 12).

- Plaintiff's tender of all sums or doing of all acts necessary to cure the default or defaults (Paragraph 13) [see Civ. Code § 1504 (offer of performance stops interest accruing)].

- Defendant's refusal to accept reinstatement (Paragraph 13).
- Plaintiff's continuing willingness and ability to reinstate (Paragraph 14).

To be entitled to reinstatement one must establish substantial performance under the contract (Paragraphs 9 and 10 compared with purchase price and terms set forth in Paragraph 6) or substantial improvements to the property (Paragraph 8), and that the default was not willful, grossly negligent, or fraudulent [Civ. Code § 3275; Barkis v. Scott (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 116, 117-118, 122-123, 208 P.2d 367 ; see § 569.100[4]].

To establish the basis for declaratory relief, the form alleges an actual andimmediate controversy (Paragraph 15), plaintiff's desire for a judicial declaration (Paragraph 16), and that this is an appropriate and necessary situation for declaratory relief (Paragraph 17) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1060, 1061; see City of Alturas v. Gloster (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 46, 48, 104 P.2d 810 (mere statement that controversy exists is insufficient, facts must show controversy)]. For discussion of the procedural and other requirements applicable to declaratory relief, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief .

[4] Jurisdiction and Venue

Actions for declaratory relief are generally in the jurisdiction of the superior court as cases of unlimited jurisdiction [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(7)(A), 580(b)(4), 1060]. In addition, because an action for reinstatement is not one of the enumerated cases in equity that are limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. § 86(b)], jurisdiction is in the superior court [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10].

If the action is considered one on the contract, venue lies in the county in which the contract was formed or is to be performed or in which any defendant resides [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) (county in which contract formed is county of performance unless contract provides otherwise); see Mission Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 921, 930-931, 184 Cal. Rptr. 296, 647 P.2d 1075 (venue in declaratory relief action based on contract as contract venue)]. If the action is considered one to establish rights in land, venue lies in the superior court in the county in which the land is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1) (recovery of real property or determination of interest or right therein)].

[5] Decisions

When purchaser's breach in giving vendor check for which there was insufficient funds on deposit was not willful or grossly negligent, relief from forfeiture by reinstatement was proper. Barkis v. Scott (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 116, 117-118, 122-123, 208 P.2d 367 ($3,114 of improvements, $700 downpayment, and 57 timely monthly payments compared to purchaser price of $6,150)

Lack of funds alone is not sufficient to meet burden of Civ. Code § 3275; additional showing that lack is not itself attributable to willful or grossly negligent conduct is required, such as, earning capacity of purchaser having been unexpectedly impaired by illness or accident. Bartley v. Karas (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 336, 342-343, 197 Cal. Rptr. 749 (purchaser tendered full payoff during trial), disapproved on other grounds, Petersen v. Hartell (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 102, 117, 219 Cal. Rptr. 170, 707 P.2d 232

Even willfully defaulting purchaser is entitled to restitution of excess of payments under contract over vendor's damages. Bartley v. Karas (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 336, 345 n. 5, 197 Cal. Rptr. 749 , disapproved on other grounds, Petersen v. Hartell (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 102, 117, 219 Cal. Rptr. 170, 707 P.2d 232

Even if willfully defaulting purchaser does not pray for restitution of excess of payments over vendor's damages, court has duty to determine if unjust enrichment would result from forfeiture of purchaser's rights under contract. Crofoot v. Weger (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 839, 843, 241 P.2d 1017

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a purchaser who is in default under an installment sales contract but who has substantially performed under the contract or has made substantial improvements to the property to seek a declaratory judgment that he or she has a right to redeem the property, that is, a reasonable opportunity to tender the full remaining balance under the contract, plus interest, and any incidental damages, in return for the deed. The plaintiff may seek redemption even if the default was willful so long as the default consists solely of the failure to pay money [Petersen v. Hartell (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 102, 106, 111-114, 116-117, 219 Cal. Rptr. 170, 707 P.2d 232 ; see § 569.100[3]]. The foregoing form of complaint is set forth as one for declaratory relief in order to gain the trial setting priority accorded declaratory relief actions, but it could be modified by deletion of Paragraphs 17-19 to be merely a complaint for redemption of purchasers' interest [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1062.3 (trial setting priority for declaratory relief actions)]. If it is so modified, the word "declaration" should be replaced in the prayer with the word "decree", and the title of the paper in the caption should be changed to: "COMPLAINT FOR EQUITABLE RELIEF (Purchaser's Right of Redemption Under Installment Sales Contract)."

This form may also be modified for use as a cross complaint in response to a vendor's action foreclosing the purchaser's interest by changing the word "plaintiff" to "cross complainant" wherever it appears and by adding "cross" before the word "defendant" each time it appears.

If this form is used as a second cause of action to seek redemption as alternative relief along with reinstatement [see § 569.193], Paragraphs 1-13 and 15-17 of the form in § 569.193 may be incorporated by reference into the cause of action for redemption. If those Paragraphs are incorporated, Paragraphs 12-16 of the form may be the only additional Paragraphs necessary in the second cause of action. Paragraph 10 of the form will be unnecessary if it is clear from the facts set forth in Paragraph 11 of § 569.193 that the default consists only of the payment of money. Paragraph 11 of the form is alleged as part of Paragraph 12 in § 569.193. Paragraph 17 of the form will be unnecessary if the first bracketed phrase of Paragraph 15 of § 569.193 was included in the cause of action for reinstatement.

[3] Allegations

In addition to basic allegations relating to formation of the contract, its terms, performance, and breach, which are incorporated from the form in § 569.193, this form alleges:

- That plaintiff's default consists solely of the failure to pay money (Paragraph 10).

- Plaintiff's demand for a statement of the full remaining balance, interest, and any other sums claimed by defendant and an expression of the willingness, ability, and desire to redeem plaintiff's interest within a reasonable amount of time (Paragraph 12).

- That defendants have either refused to give a statement of the balancedemanded or have demanded sums to which they are not entitled (Paragraph 13).

- That defendants have either claimed plaintiff has no right of redemption or have demanded that it be exercised in an unreasonably short period of time (Paragraph 15).

- That plaintiff remains willing and able to pay the proper amount owing within a reasonable amount of time (Paragraph 16); and that the controversy is in regard to the right of redemption (Paragraph 17).

Optional Paragraph 14 alleges the tender of the full remaining balance, plus interest and any other applicable damages, and defendants' refusal to accept that tender [see Civ. Code § 1504 (tender of performance stops further accrual of interest)].

To establish one's right of redemption, one must show substantial payments under the contract or substantial improvement to the property and that the default consists solely of the obligation to pay money [Petersen v. Hartell (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 102, 114, 219 Cal. Rptr. 170, 707 P.2d 232] .

[4] Jurisdiction and Venue

Actions for declaratory relief are generally in the jurisdiction of the superior court as cases of unlimited jurisdiction [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(7)(A), 580(b)(4), 1060]. In addition, because an action for redemption is not one of the enumerated cases in equity that are limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. § 86(b)], jurisdiction is in the superior court [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10].

Because redemption, if successfully completed, would require the defendant to convey the property to the plaintiff, the action is one to determine an interest in real property. Venue is in the superior court in the county in which the property, or some portion of it, is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1)].

[5] State Statutes

Neither specific nor preventative relief is available to enforce penalty or forfeiture. Civ. Code § 3369

Contract as defined in Civ. Code § 2985(a) providing for change in ownership of real property is required to be recorded or change-in-ownership statement required by Rev. & Tax. Code § 480 is required to be filed before action to enforce contract can be maintained if contract was entered into after January 1, 1986. Code Civ. Proc. § 1062.10

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a purchaser under an installment sales contract to seek relief from forfeiture by way of restitution [see Civ. Code § 3369; Petersen v. Hartell (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 102, 113, 219 Cal. Rptr. 170, 707 P.2d 232 , citing Freedman v. St. Matthias Parish (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 16, 22, 230 P.2d 629 (not an installment sales case) and Honey v. Henry's Franchise Leasing Corp. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 801, 803, 52 Cal. Rptr. 18, 415 P.2d 833 ; see also §§ 569.100[2], 569.104]. Because restitution is applicable whether or not the transaction is based on an installment sales contract, the discussion in § 569.24[4], and the cases in § 569.123[4][b] also apply to restitution under an installment sales contract. This form may be modified to seek restitution under a noninstallment contract by modifying the allegations of Paragraph 6 to describe the terms of the contract at issue.

This form may be modified for use as a cross complaint in response to a vendor's action foreclosing the purchaser's interest by changing the word "plaintiff" to "cross complainant" wherever it appears and by adding "cross" before the word "defendant" each time it appears. If modified for use as a cross complaint in a quiet title action, see Ch. 482, Quieting Title , for particular requirements and procedures applicable to quiet title actions.

If this form is used to seek alternative relief in a complaint based on the forms in § 569.193 or § 569.194 for reinstatement or redemption, respectively, counsel may incorporate some of the earlier allegations by reference and can avoid redundancies, for example, by setting forth the composition of payments in the first Paragraph 10 and by omitting Paragraph 11 of the complaint if an incorporated paragraph sets forth sufficient facts about the notice of election by the vendor.

The most difficult part of a restitution action for the purchaser is that the vendor, not the purchaser, is entitled to elect which measure of damages will apply [Honey v. Henry's Franchise Leasing Corp. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 801, 804, 52 Cal. Rptr. 18 , 415 P.2d 833] . In most cases, the value of the property will have increased during the interval between the formation of the contract and the breach, making the contract measure of damages more beneficial to the purchaser. If the vendor has taken some action before the purchaser brings the action for restitution, the vendor's election may be clear. For instance, if the vendor relied on a forfeiture provision in the contract and has not offered to restore benefits, the vendor should be locked into the contract measure of damages [see Kudokas v. Balkus (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 744, 753, 756, 103 Cal. Rptr. 318] .

[3] Allegations

In addition to the introductory allegations regarding the residence and capacities of the parties, the formation, subject matter, and relevant terms of the contract, as well as the extent of plaintiff's performance, including taking of possession and construction of improvements, if applicable (Paragraphs 1-10), the form of complaint alleges the following:

- The service and content of defendant's notice of election to terminate the contract (Paragraph 11).

- The fact of and circumstances regarding plaintiff's surrender of possession, if applicable (Paragraph 12).

- The extent of the damages to which the vendor is entitled, under either the rental value measure of damages (Paragraph 13) [see Behrendt v. Abraham (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 182, 186-188, 49 Cal. Rptr. 292, 410 P.2d 828] or the breach of contract measure (Paragraph 14) [see Honey v. Henry's Franchise Leasing Corp. (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 801, 803, 805, 52 Cal. Rptr. 18, 415 P.2d 833 ; Kudokas v. Balkus (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 744, 752-758, 103 Cal. Rptr. 318 ; Petersen v. Ridenour (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 720, 726, 287 P.2d 848 (if using rental measure, rental value, and if using contract measure, fair value of property at time of breach is essential to showing excess payments over damages)].

- That the payments by plaintiff under the contract for which plaintiff is entitled to credit exceed vendor's actual damages under the appropriate measure (Paragraph 15) [see, e.g., Kudokas v. Balkus (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 744, 756-757, 103 Cal. Rptr. 318 (plaintiff cannot have credit for interest payments if the breach of contract measure of damages applies)].

- Either that demand for restitution has been made by plaintiff and refused by defendant (Paragraph 16) or that plaintiff wishes to assert the matter as a condition to defendant's quieting title (Paragraph 17).

[4] Jurisdiction

Because an action for restitution is not one of the enumerated cases in equity that are limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. § 86(b)], jurisdiction is in the superior court [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10].

[5] Venue

If the action is considered to be one on the contract, venue lies in the county in which the contract was formed or is to be performed or in which any defendant resides [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) (county in which contract formed as county of performance unless contract provides otherwise)].

[6] Decisions

Burden of proof is on purchaser to show excess of payments over vendor's damages; in absence of showing that payments by purchaser exceed vendor's damages, judgment quieting vendor's title without requiring refund of any part of purchase price was proper; proof of rental value and/or of fair value of property at time of breach was essential to such showing. Petersen v. Ridenour (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 720, 726, 287 P.2d 848

50-571 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 571.01

§ 571.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses and contains forms related to:

- Venue requirements and the proper place of trial for various actions [see § 571.10 et seq., for forms,see § 571.80 et seq.].

- Motions for change of venue for use when a party to an action seeks to transfer the action to another place for trial [see § 571.30 et seq., for forms,see § 571.100 et seq.].

The forms relating to venue are:

- Forms of allegation for use in actions dealing with personal right or obligations (transitory actions) [see §§ 571.80 -571.83].

- Forms of allegation for use in actions relating to title or interest in real property (local actions) [see §§ 571.84 -571.86].

- Forms for use in actions in which venue is determined by the party suing or being sued [see §§ 571.87 -571.89].

The forms relating to motion for change of venue are:

- A form for notice of motion for change of venue [see § 571.100] and a form for notice of countermotion to retain venue [see § 571.104].

- A form of declaration to support either the motion or countermotion [see § 571.101] and a form of declaration for action commenced in improper court [see § 571.102].

- A form of order granting a motion for change of venue [see § 571.103].

- A form of stipulation and order for use when the parties agree to a change of venue and wish to avoid the costs of the motion procedure [see § 571.105].

§ 571.10 Governing Statutes

The general statutes governing venue or the place of trial in state civil actions are contained in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392-402, and Gov. Code §§ 955, 955.2 and 955.3. There are also several statutes that govern venue in particular circumstances that are not contained in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392-402, and that are not within the scope of this chapter [see, e.g., Fam. Code §§ 8714(a) (agency adoptions), 8802(a) (independent adoptions); Prob. Code §§ 2201, 2202 (venue in conservatorship or guardianship proceedings)].

The statute governing venue in transitory actions is Code Civ. Proc. § 395. Venue in local actions is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392, 393 and 395.1. Venue in actions in which the type of party suing or being sued controls is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395.2, 395.5 and 401, and Gov. Code §§ 955, 955.2 and 955.3. Code Civ. Proc. § 394 governs the transfer of an action to a neutral county when a city, county or other government agency is suing or being sued.

§ 571.11 Venue Defined

Venue indicates the geographical location and political subdivision within which the courthouse that will hear the cause is situated. It refers to the place from which the jury is summoned [Milliken v. Gray (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 595, 600, 81 Cal. Rptr. 525] . Venue relates to and defines the particular county or city in which a court having jurisdiction may in the first instance properly hear and determine the case [Arganbright v. Good (1941) 46 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 877, 878 , 116 P.2d 186] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Place of Trial

50-571 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 571.12

§ 571.12 Jurisdiction Distinguished

The distinction between jurisdiction and venue is plainly established. Jurisdiction refers to the power of the court to decide a case on the merits [Milliken v. Gray (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 595, 600, 81 Cal. Rptr. 525] . It includes the power to inquire into facts, to apply the law, to make decisions, and to declare judgment [Arganbright v. Good (1941) 46 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 877, 878 , 116 P.2d 186] .

As venue relates only to the place where suit should be heard, it is not jurisdictional in the fundamental sense. It does not relate to whether a particular court has the power to try the action [Barquis v. Merchants Collection Assn. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 94, 121, 101 Cal. Rptr. 745, 496 P.2d 817 ; see § 571.13 regarding jurisdictional venue].

A court having subject matter jurisdiction over an action, even if not the proper venue, may try the action unless the defendant makes a timely motion for transfer to the proper court [Lipari v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 667, 672, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 246 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(a), discussed in § 571.30 et seq., relating to Change of Venue]. Thus, although the defendant may obtain a transfer by timely motion, a defendant may not obtain dismissal, and it is error for the court to dismiss the action [Lipari v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 667, 672, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 246 (reversing judgment dismissing petition for writ of mandate)].

§ 571.13 Jurisdictional Venue

When a statute makes a local place of trial a part of the grant of subject matter jurisdiction, venue is considered jurisdictional [Barquis v. Merchants Collection Assn. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 94, 121, 101 Cal. Rptr. 745, 496 P.2d 817] . For example, in proceedings for the administration of a decedent's estate, the county of the decedent's residence or the location of his or her property at the time of death establishes jurisdiction of the subject matter in the superior court of that county [see Prob. Code § 7050-7052]. Another jurisdictional venue statute is Welf. & Inst. Code § 3100, which allows the district attorney to petition the superior court for the commitment of a person when the district attorney has probable cause to believe the person is a drug addict [see Van Zanten v. Superior Court (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 510, 512-514, 29 Cal. Rptr. 625 (decided under former Penal Code § 6500, now Welf. & Inst. Code § 3100)].

§ 571.14 Subvenue, Filing, and Transfer of a Civil Case Within a Unified Court

With the complete unification of trial courts in California into only superior courts, several provisions providing for specific places of trial in municipal court are no longer applicable (a topic previously known as "subvenue" and reflecting issues of having the case heard in the county judicial district closest to the acts giving rise to the action) [see, e.g., former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392(2), 395(c)].

In recognition of unified courts, Code Civ. Proc. § 402.5 was enacted in 1998 to provide that superior courts may transfer a limited civil case to another branch or location of the superior court in the same county. Effective January 1, 2003, Code Civ. Proc. § 402.5 is repealed and the matter is addressed in Code Civ. Proc. § 402, which provides that except as otherwise provided by law:

- A superior court may specify by local rule the locations where certain types of actions or proceedings are to be filed.

- A superior court may specify by local rule the locations where certain types of actions or proceedings are to be heard or tried.

- A superior court may not dismiss a case, and the clerk may not reject a case for filing, because it is filed, or a person seeks to file it, in a court location other than the location specified by local rule. However, the court may transfer the case on its own motion to the proper court location.

- A superior court may transfer an action or proceeding filed in one location to another location of the superior court.

Code Civ. Proc. § 402 does not affect the authority of the presiding judge to apportion the business of the court as provided by the California Rules of Court.

It is always prudent to check local rules of court to determine if there is a central location for filing civil actions and if status of the action as a limited or unlimited civil case provides for different treatment. For example, Santa Clara Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 1(C) provides for the proper facility for filing a general civil case, stating:

> (1) All unlimited civil cases must be filed in the Downtown Superior Court.
> (2) All limited civil cases must be filed in the Downtown Superior Court or the South County Courthouse, subject to the following rules:
> > a. A tort case may be filed in the South County Courthouse if at least one defendant resides at a Gilroy, Morgan Hill, or San Martin address, or the injury or damage occurred in Gilroy, Morgan Hill, San Martin or a surrounding unincorporated area within Santa Clara County.
> > b. A contract case may be filed in the South County Courthouse if at least one defendant resides at a Gilroy, Morgan Hill or San Martin address, or the contract was entered into or to be performed in Gilroy, Morgan Hill, San Martin, or a surrounding unincorporated area within Santa Clara County.
> > c. Other types of cases may be filed in the South County Courthouse if at least one defendant resides at a Gilroy, Morgan Hill or San Martin address or the case requires a determination of a right in land that has a Gilroy, Morgan Hill or San Martin address.
> > d. Upon the noticed motion of a party, or the Court's own motion, for good cause shown, a limited civil case may be transferred from the Downtown Superior Court to the South County Courthouse or vice versa.

A. Place of Trial

50-571 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 571.15

§ 571.15 Classification of Actions for Venue Purposes

[1] Transitory Versus Local

The rules of venue generally require actions to be classified mainly as transitory or local [Brown v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 477, 482 n.5, 208 Cal. Rptr. 724, 691 P.2d 272 ; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392, 395]. An action is transitory if the inquiry deals primarily with financial obligations or personal relationships. It is local if title to or injury to real property is the focus of trial [Carlton v. Superior Court (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 586, 589, 49 Cal. Rptr. 759] .

[2] Determined by Complaint

The cause of action affects or determines the place of trial, and whether an action is transitory or local will be ascertained from the complaint alone [Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 603, 328 P.2d 953] . The court will inspect the complaint to determine the character of the action and the judgment that may be rendered on default [Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 603, 328 P.2d 953 ; Eckstrand v. Wilshusen (1933) 217 Cal. 380, 381-382, 18 P.2d 931 ; see discussion in [3], below].

Thus, the plaintiff's theory of the action as set forth in the complaint determines venue [Gallin v. Superior Court (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 541, 544, 281 Cal. Rptr. 304] .

[3] Main Relief Rule

When a complaint states only one cause of action, the relief sought must be characterized as local or transitory to determine venue. Consequently, venue problems arise when the complaint, although stating a single cause of action, demands both local and transitory relief. If that is the case, the characterization will be controlled by the nature of the "main relief" sought, or "principal object" of the action [Massae v. Superior Court (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 527, 535, 173 Cal. Rptr. 527] . For a discussion relating to the effect of joinder of several causes of action or defendants covered by different venue statutes, see the discussion in § 571.20[1].

To apply the "main relief rule," the main relief sought should first be identified and characterized as local or transitory.

Then, if there is other relief sought that would be characterized differently, the nature of the main relief will control. If all of the relief can be similarly characterized, the "main relief rule" is inapplicable [Massae v. Superior Court (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 527, 535-536, 173 Cal. Rptr. 527] . For example, an action to recover damages for injury to real property is local under Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a) even though the complaint is framed in various counts according to theories of negligence, negligent breach of contract, and breach of warranty. The addition of the breach of warranty theory, which is transitory, does not transform the action into a transitory one because the subject matter of the action is for injury to real property, and the "main relief" sought is for damages therefor [Stauffer Chemical Co. v. Superior Court (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 1, 4, 71 Cal. Rptr. 202 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a) (situs of subject matter controls in actions for injuries to real property)].

Chapter 571 VENUE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Place of Trial

50-571 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 571.16

§ 571.16 Transitory Actions

[1] Basic Rule of Venue

[a] Residence of Defendant

Code Civ. Proc. § 395 controls venue in transitory actions [Brown v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 477, 482, 208 Cal. Rptr. 724, 691 P.2d 272] . Section 395(a) states that, except as otherwise provided by law and subject to the power of the court to transfer actions or proceedings as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392-404.8, the superior court in the county where the defendants or some of them reside at the commencement of the action is the proper court for the trial of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]. Section 395(a) is intended to protect the defendant from the expense and inconvenience of being compelled to go to a distant county to defend himself or herself against an action commenced in that county [Turlock Theatre Co. v. Laws (1939) 12 Cal. 2d 573, 576 ; Smith v. Smith (1891) 88 Cal. 572, 575, 26 P. 356] .

The phrase "except as otherwise provided by law" is a subordinating declaration that precludes application of Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) if another venue provision applies to the cause of action [see Brown v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 477, 482-487, 208 Cal. Rptr. 724, 691 P.2d 272 ; Tharp v. Superior Court (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 496, 502-503, 186 Cal. Rptr. 335, 651 P.2d 1141 (applying Code Civ. Proc. § 393 rather than Section 395)]. For example, in Brown, the Court held that Gov. Code § 12965, the venue provision of the Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA) is a special venue provision that applies to cases involving FEHA claims joined with non-FEHA claims, so that it applied to the entire case and prevailed over Section 395 [Brown v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 477, 482-487, 208 Cal. Rptr. 724, 691 P.2d 272 (distinguishing the case from a mixed action in which different venue provisions apply to different causes of action)].

In the case of mixed actions, however, where the complaint alleges multiple causes of action subject to different venue provisions, Section 395 may prevail over the more specific provision [see Gallin v. Superior Court (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 541, 545, 281 Cal. Rptr. 304 ; see also Brown v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 477, 487-488, 208 Cal. Rptr. 724, 691 P.2d 272] . For discussion of venue in mixed actions,see § 571.20[1].

[b] Multiple Defendants

A defendant is not entitled to have a transitory action tried in the county of his or her residence when there are several defendants who reside in different counties. Code Civ. Proc. § 395 expressly provides for trial in the county in which the defendants "or some of them" reside. Thus, a plaintiff may bring a good transitory action against two or more defendants in the county of one defendant who is a proper party. The nonresident defendants cannot obtain a change of venue even if the resident defendant joins in the motion. This rule applies even though all of the causes of action do not affect all of the parties [Colusa Air Pollution Control Dist. v. Superior Court (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 880, 890, 277 Cal. Rptr. 110] . For further discussion,see § 571.20[3] regarding joinder of defendants.

[c] Residence Defined

Within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a), a person can have only one residence. Residence depends on intention as well as fact. It has ordinarily been accepted to mean the place where one remains when not called elsewhere on business, pleasure, or for other temporary purposes. For example, the mere inhabitancy of a summer home or country house at certain seasons of the year or at certain times would not make the person inhabiting the house a resident of the county in which the house is situated. The material question is the intent to establish a permanent residence. The place of residence within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) is the fixed home of a person as understood by himself or herself and his or her neighbors and friends [Burt v. Scarborough (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 817, 820-821, 17 Cal. Rptr. 146, 366 P.2d 498 ; see Gov. Code § 244(a) (residence as the place where one remains when not called elsewhere for labor or other special or temporary purpose, and to which he or she returns in seasons of repose)].

[d] Actions Subject to Basic Rule

The general rule of Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) that the residence of the defendant is the proper place for trial applies to personal torts not involving physical injury, such as conversion [Haurat v. Superior Court (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 330, 333, 50 Cal. Rptr. 520 ; Mason v. Buck (1929) 99 Cal. App. 219, 221, 278 P. 461] . Similarly, actions for libel, malicious prosecution, and false imprisonment are also triable solely at the defendant's residence [Johnson v. Superior Court (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 212, 218, 42 Cal. Rptr. 645] . This is also true of actions for abuse of process. Actions for abuse of process, like actions for malicious prosecution, are not actions for "injury to the person" that may be brought in the county in which plaintiff's injury occurred pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) [Cacciaguidi v. Superior Court (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 181, 184-186] . Further, subject to certain exceptions set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a), contract actions are also triable in the county where the defendant resides [Haurat v. Superior Court (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 330, 333, 50 Cal. Rptr. 520 ; see discussion in § 571.16[3][a] regarding alternate venues in contract actions].

[2] Rule for Actions Involving Injury to Person or Personal Property

If the action is for injury to a person or personal property or for death from wrongful act or negligence, either the county where the injury occurs or the injury causing death occurs or the county in which the defendants, or some of them, reside at the commencement of the action, shall be a proper county for the trial of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]. Thus, a defendant is entitled to have a negligence action tried either in the county of his or her residence or the county in which the tort occurred [Maxwell v. Murray (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 440, 443, 11 Cal. Rptr. 916] .

The phrase "injury to person" as it is used in Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) is limited to physical injury or incapacity or death caused by the wrongful or negligent act of another. It does not apply to nonphysical injuries resulting from false imprisonment or malicious prosecution [Monk v. Ehret (1923) 192 Cal. 186, 191-193, 219 P. 452 ; Cacciaguidi v. Superior Court (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 181, 187] . Nor does the phrase refer to injuries to character or reputation [Carruth v. Superior Court (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 215, 219, 145 Cal. Rptr. 344] . Actions sounding in tort, such as severe humiliation, anguish, emotional distress, and trauma, are also not encompassed in the phrase "injury to a person" so as to justify grounding venue on them [Cubic Corp. v. Superior Court (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 622, 625, 231 Cal. Rptr. 18] . For a discussion of proper venue in actions for torts not involving physical injury,see § 571.16[1][d].

[3] Rule for Contract Actions

[a] Alternative Venues

Subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) (venue in actions based on consumer obligations), when a defendant has contracted to perform an obligation in a particular county, the proper county for trial of an action founded on the obligation is either (1) the county in which the obligation is to be performed, (2) the county in which the contract in fact was entered into, or (3) the county in which the defendant or any defendant resides at the commencement of the action. The county in which the obligation is incurred shall be deemed to be the county in which it is to be performed unless there is a special contract in writing to the contrary [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a); see Wathen v. Superior Court (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 125, 129, 27 Cal. Rptr. 840] . This provision contains exceptions to the basic rule of residence venue [Mosby v. Superior Court (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 219, 224, 117 Cal. Rptr. 588] .

In effect, a defendant is entitled to have a contract action transferred to the county of his or her residence unless the obligation was incurred or was to be performed in another county [Braunstein v. Superior Court (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 691, 694, 37 Cal. Rptr. 666] . In fact, the plaintiff is entitled to have the action tried in the county in which it appears the contract was entered into despite the defendant's residence in another county [Richardson v. Rose (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 318, 322, 17 Cal. Rptr. 84] .

[b] Where Contract Entered Into

The place where the contract was made is the place where the last act necessary for its validity was done. This is usually the act constituting acceptance. Thus, when a contract is prepared in one county, and is forwarded to a party in another county for acceptance and signature, the latter county is the proper place for trial because that is where the contract was made [Braunstein v. Superior Court (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 691, 696-697, 37 Cal. Rptr. 666] . Similarly, when a contract is made by telephone, the contract is entered into at the place where the recipient of the telephone call is when he or she accepts the offer [Friedman Bag Co., Inc. v. Shrier (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 561, 564, 15 Cal. Rptr. 38 ; Wilson v. Scannavino (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 369, 371, 324 P.2d 350] .

[c] Where Contract Is to Be Performed

The language of the contract provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) is unclear, and at first glance seems to offer a choice of three separate places for trial: (1) the county in which the contract is to be performed, (2) the county in which the contract was entered into, or (3) the county in which the defendant resides. However, by including the language that the county in which the obligation is incurred shall be deemed to be the county in which it is to be performed, Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) effectively limits the counties in which an action may properly be tried to the county in which the defendant resides, and the county in which the contract was made. The language in Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) providing for a special contract in writing creates an exception to this limitation. If there is a special contract designating the county of performance, that county is also a proper county for the trial of an action on contract [Armstrong v. Smith (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 528, 531-532, 122 P.2d 115 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)].

A special contract is one in which particular stipulations with respect to the obligations of the parties are expressed, and which, if omitted, the law will not supply [Armstrong v. Smith (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 528, 535, 122 P.2d 115] . Thus, before an action may be brought under Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) in the county where the obligation forming the basis of the action is performable, the contract must specifically state the place of performance of the obligation [Wathen v. Superior Court (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 125, 129, 27 Cal. Rptr. 840] . The contract must specify a definite, certain place of performance, and any deficiency or lack of a specification cannot be remedied by extrinsic evidence [Fidelity Thrift & Loan Asso. v. Hall (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 895, 899 , 9 Cal. Rptr. 596] . An agreement to pay money in a particular county, or to deliver goods at a particular place, or to perform an obligation in a particular city are all sufficient [Wathen v. Superior Court (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 125, 129, 27 Cal. Rptr. 840] . Also, a geographic designation of the city or county without setting forth the address is enough to satisfy the requirement that the special contract must be specific. Thus, when a contract merely states the place of payment as the office of a trustee in a particular county, it is sufficient to give the plaintiff the right to specify that county as the proper place of trial in an action on the contract [Stute v. Burinda (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 11, 16 , 177 Cal. Rptr. 102] .

[d] Contract Actions Subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b)

[i] Consumer Transactions

Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) applies to actions arising from the offer or provision of goods, services, loans, or extensions of credit intended primarily for personal, family, or household use [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b)].

As exceptions, section 395(b) does not apply to an action described in Civ. Code § 1812.10 (Contract Actions Arising Out of Retail Installment Sales (Unruh Act), see [e], below) or 2984.4 (Contract Actions Arising Out of Motor Vehicle Sales (Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act), see [f], below) [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b)].

[ii] Unsolicited Telephone Calls and Electronic Transmissions

Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) applies to actions arising from transactions consummated as a result of an unsolicited phone call by a seller engaged in the business of consummating transactions of that kind [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b)].

[iii] Specific Venue Provision

If an action is governed by Section 395(b) the proper court for trial of the action is the superior court in the county where the buyer or lessee [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b)]:

- In fact signed the contract,
- Resided at the time the contract was entered into, or
- Resides at the commencement of the action.

This venue provision is expressly subject to the court's power to transfer actions or proceedings as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 392 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b)].

In the superior court designated in Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) as the proper court, the proper court location for trial of a case is the location where the court tries that type of case that is nearest or most accessible to where the buyer or lessee resides, where the buyer or lessee in fact signed the contract, where the buyer or lessee resided at the time the contract was entered into, or where the buyer or lessee resides at the commencement of the action. Otherwise, any location of the superior court designated as the proper court in this subdivision is a proper court location for the trial. The court may specify by local rule the nearest or most accessible court location where the court tries that type of case [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b)].

[iv] Provisions Not Subject to Waiver

Any provision of an obligation described in Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) waiving those subdivisions is void and unenforceable [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(c)].

[e] Contract Actions Arising out of Retail Installment Sales (Unruh Act)

An action on a contract or installment account under the provisions of the Unruh Act [Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.] must be tried in the superior court in the county where the contract was in fact signed by the buyer, where the buyer resided at the time the contract was entered into, where the buyer resides at the commencement of the action, or where the goods purchased pursuant to the contract have been so affixed to real property as to become a part of that real property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1812.10(a)].

In the superior court designated as the proper court in Code Civ. Proc. § 1812.10(a), the proper court location for trial of an action under the Unruh Act is the location where the court tries that type of action that is nearest or most accessible to where the contract was in fact signed by the buyer, where the buyer resided at the time the contract was entered into, where the buyer resides at the commencement of the action, or where the goods purchased pursuant to the contract have been so affixed to real property as to become a part of that real property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1812.10(b)]. Otherwise, any location of the superior court designated as the proper court in Section 1812.10(a) is the proper court location for the trial of the action. The court may specify by local rule the nearest or most accessible court location where the court tries that type of case [Code Civ. Proc. § 1812.10(b)].

In any action subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 1812.10, concurrently with the filing of the complaint, the plaintiff must file an affidavit stating facts showing that the action has been commenced in a superior court and court location described in § 1812.10 as a proper place for the trial of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1812.10(c)]. Those facts may be stated in a verified complaint and must not be stated on information or belief. When that affidavit is filed with the complaint, a copy thereof must be served with the summons. If a plaintiff fails to file the affidavit or state facts in a verified complaint required by this section, no further proceedings may occur, but the court must, upon its own motion or upon motion of any party, dismiss the action without prejudice. The court may, on terms that are just, permit the affidavit to be filed subsequent to the filing of the complaint and a copy of the affidavit must be served on the defendant. The time to answer or otherwise plead must date from that service [Code Civ. Proc. § 1812.10(c)].

For discussion and forms of the affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) regarding venue required under the Unruh Act by Civ. Code. § 1812.10,see Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales, § 502.102, and Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties, § 502.160[7].

[f] Contract Actions Arising out of Motor Vehicle Sales (Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act)

An action on a contract or purchase order under the provisions of the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act (Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.) must be tried in the county in which the contract or purchase order was in fact signed by the buyer, in the county in which the buyer resided at the commencement of the action, or in the county in which the motor vehicle purchased pursuant to the contract or purchase order is permanently garaged [Civ. Code § 2984.4, first paragraph]. In an action involving multiple claims, or causes of action, venue shall lie in the foregoing counties so long as there is at least one claim or cause of action arising from a contract subject to the provisions of the act [Civ. Code § 2984.4, second paragraph].

For discussion and a form of the affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) regarding venue required under the Rees-Levering Act by Civ. Code. § 2984.4,see Ch. 89, Automobiles: Sales and Financing Under the Rees-Levering Act, §§ 89.27, 89.61.

[4] Proceedings to Determine Parental Relationship

In a proceeding to determine parental relation under Fam. Code § 7600 et seq. (Uniform Parentage Act), the county in which the child resides is the proper county for the trial of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)].

[5] Proceedings to Enforce Support Obligation

In a proceeding to enforce an obligation of support under Fam. Code § 3900 (civil suit on behalf of child to enforce parents' obligations), or to establish and enforce a foreign judgment or court order for the support of a minor child, the county in which the child resides is the proper county for the trial of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)].

[6] Nonresident Defendant or County of Residence Unknown

If none of the defendants reside in the state, or if they reside in the state and the county in which they reside is unknown to the plaintiff, the action may be tried in any county which the plaintiff may designate in his or her complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)].

[7] Defendant About to Depart From State

If the defendant is about to depart from the state, the action may be tried in any county where either of the parties reside or service is made [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Place of Trial

50-571 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 571.17

§ 571.17 Local Actions

[1] Situs of Subject Matter of Action Controls

Subject to the power of the court to transfer actions and proceedings as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 392 et seq., the county in which the real property which is the subject of the action, or some part thereof, is situated is the proper county for trial for the recovery of real property, of an estate or interest therein, or for the determination in any form of such right or interest, and for injuries to real property [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1)].

The right of a plaintiff to have an action tried in a county other than that of the defendant's residence is exceptional. Thus, Code Civ. Proc. § 392(1)(a) is an exception to the basic rule of residence venue [Kaluzok v. Brisson (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 760, 763-764, 167 P.2d 481] .

[2] Action Local If It Turns on Title to or Possession of Real Property

An action must be wholly local in nature to be governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 392(1)(a) [Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 605, 328 P.2d 953] . An action is local when it turns on title to property as distinct from a personal obligation, and the decree operates by its own force on the title [Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 604, 328 P.2d 953 ; Thielen v. Superior Court (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 217, 219, 33 Cal. Rptr. 1] . Whether an action is local as opposed to transitory is to be determined on the basis of the relief sought [Massae v. Superior Court (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 527, 530, 173 Cal. Rptr. 527 ; see discussion in § 571.15[3]]. One example of a local action would be when a complaint has for its sole and exclusive object the cancellation of a deed or a deed of trust [Beutke v. American Securities Co. (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 354, 359, 282 P.2d 201 ; see discussion in § 571.15[2]].

[3] Action Not Local If Title or Possession Incidentally Involved

When title to or possession of real property is only incidentally involved, an action is not local [Marcacci v. Continental Baking Co. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 224, 226, 20 Cal. Rptr. 567] . This distinction is most clearly established when the main relief sought consists of a money judgment. For example, an action for the specific performance of a contract for the sale of realty is not local if it is brought by the vendor, since the vendor merely seeks the purchase price. Conversely, if the action is brought by the vendee, it is local because the vendee seeks possession of the property [Hammon v. American Etc. Mining Co. (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 306, 309, 21 Cal. Rptr. 409] . Similarly, an action for damages for deceit in inducing a vendee to purchase real property, rather than for rescission and restitution resulting in reconveyance, is not a local action [Kaluzok v. Brisson (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 760, 763-764, 167 P.2d 481 ; see Etter v. Vollmer (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 718, 720, 294 P.2d 55 (action for fraud with respect to conveyance of real property local if vendee seeks to reobtain title)]. For a discussion of how the characterization of the relief controls venue, see the discussion in § 571.15[3].

By contrast, the fact that recovery of a money judgment is sought does not necessarily mean that an action is not local if the judgment is predicated on damages to real property [Strosnider v. Pomin (1939) 32 Cal. App. 2d 103, 109, 89 P.2d 179 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1) (action for injury to real property also local action); see discussion in § 571.15[3] for main relief rule, and § 571.17[4] for an injury to real property]. Further, the local nature of an action is not changed because benefits may incidentally be ordered restored to a defendant in an action in which the main relief sought is the cancellation of a deed and corresponding contract of sale [Etter v. Vollmer (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 718, 720, 294 P.2d 55] . Also, allegations of costs and attorney's fees, and claims for punitive damages that are incidental to a claim of injury to real property does not destroy the essential character of an action as one within the scope of Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1) [Wick v. Mattison (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 608, 610, 24 Cal. Rptr. 677] .

[4] Injury to Real Property

[a] Broadly Construed

The phrase "injury to real property" as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1) is not limited to physical injury to or interference with the land. It embraces every wrong that in legal contemplation is an injury to real property. It includes not only direct and forcible injury, but consequential and threatened injuries to land. It even includes mere nonfeasance, such as permissive waste [Coley v. Hecker (1928) 206 Cal. 22, 28, 272 P. 1045 ; Strosnider v. Pomin (1939) 32 Cal. App. 2d 103, 108, 89 P.2d 179] . One example of consequential injuries would be when a plaintiff brings an action for damages because he or she was fraudulently compelled by the defendant to dismiss a prior action to quiet title to a right of way. If the defendant thereafter erected an obstruction on the right of way, any injury to the real property represented by the obstruction is a consequential injury resulting from the defendant's fraud, and plaintiff's action for damages is a local one under Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1) [Strosnider v. Pomin (1939) 32 Cal. App. 2d 103, 108, 89 P.2d 179] .

Slander of title is also considered an indirect and consequential injury to real property [Wick v. Mattison (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 608, 610, 24 Cal. Rptr. 677 ; see Coley v. Hecker (1928) 206 Cal. 22, 26, 28, 272 P. 1045 (slander of title is a local action also on the theory that the action is one in which determination of an owner's right or interest in title is properly adjudicated)]. Similarly, a malicious prosecution action for damages has been found to be an action for injury to real property when it flows from an unfounded action to set aside a trustee's sale on the false ground that there was no default under a trust deed [Wick v. Mattison (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 608, 609-610, 24 Cal. Rptr. 677] .

[b] Construction Defects

Injury to real property includes actions for damage to buildings affixed to real property based on construction defects [see Foundation Engineers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 104, 111-113, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 469] .

[5] Pleading Requirement for Unlawful Detainer Actions in Limited Civil Cases

Venue in unlawful detainer actions is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1) [Childs v. Eltinge (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 843, 851, 105 Cal. Rptr. 864] .

Complaints for unlawful detainer actions that are limited civil cases (i.e., damages claimed are $25,000 or less) must state facts, verified by the plaintiff's oath or by the oath of the plaintiff's attorney, showing that the action has been commenced in the proper court for the trial of the action or proceeding, and showing that the action is an action for an unlawful detainer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 86(a)(4), 396a; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161 (unlawful detainer defined)]. Alternatively, the facts may be stated in an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) of the plaintiff or his or her attorney filed with the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 396a(a)].

For forms and discussion relating to allegation of proper venue in unlawful detainer actions,see Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions .

[6] Foreclosure of Liens and Mortgages on Real Property

Subject to the courts' power to transfer actions and proceedings as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392-404.8, the county in which the real property, or some part thereof, which is the subject of the action is situated, is the proper county for trial for the foreclosure of all liens and mortgages on real property [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(2)]. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(2), every judicial, ministerial and executive official act necessary to effect a foreclosure may be performed in any county in which any part of real property is situated [Goldtree v. McAlister (1890) 86 Cal. 93, 106, 24 P. 801] .

A complaint in an action to foreclose a mechanic's lien on real property may also seek a personal judgment for the amount of the debt secured by the lien without removing the action from Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(2). As long as the complaint also alleges that the defendants against whom the personal judgment is sought also have an interest in the property, and as long as that the interest is subject to the lien, the action is still one to foreclose a lien; therefore it must be tried in the county in which the real property is situated [Case v. Kirkwood (1931) 119 Cal. App. 207, 211, 6 P.2d 110] .

[7] Where Cause Arose

[a] Actions for Penalty or Forfeiture

Subject to the courts' power to transfer actions and proceedings as provided by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392-404.8, the county in which the cause, or some part of the cause, arose is the proper county for the trial for the recovery of a penalty or forfeiture imposed by statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 393].

If the penalty or forfeiture is imposed for an offense committed on a lake, river, or other stream of water situated in two or more counties, the action may be tried in any county bordering on the lake, river, or stream, and opposite to the place where the offense was committed [Code Civ. Proc. § 393(a)].

[b] Actions Against Public Officers

Subject to the power of the court to transfer actions and proceedings as provided by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392-404.8, the county in which the cause, or some part of the cause, arose, is the proper county for the trial against a public officer or person especially appointed to execute his or her duties, for an act done by him or her by virtue of his or her office, or against a person who, by his or her command or in his or her aid, does anything touching the duties of an officer [Code Civ. Proc. § 393(b); Colusa Air Pollution Control Dist. v. Superior Court (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 880, 887-888, 277 Cal. Rptr. 110] .

Code Civ. Proc. § 393(b) applies to acts by a public officer that directly interfere with the personal rights or property of the person complaining [Harris v. Alcoholic Bev. Etc. Appeals Bd. (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 759, 768, 18 Cal. Rptr. 151] . For example, Code Civ. Proc. § 393(b) would apply in an action against a state agency that deprives the plaintiff of his or her right to do business, and the county where the plaintiff carries on the business and in which he or she will be hurt by the agency's action is the proper county for trial [Regents of University of California v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 529, 538, 91 Cal. Rptr. 57, 476 P.2d 457 ; see Colusa Air Pollution Control Dist. v. Superior Court

(1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 880, 888, 277 Cal. Rptr. 110] . However, Code Civ. Proc. § 393(b) only applies to affirmative acts, that is, acts done as distinguished from acts threatened. Thus, when a petitioner seeks a writ of prohibition to restrain a state board from taking further action, Code Civ. Proc. § 393(b) does not apply [Harris v. Alcoholic Bev. Etc. Appeals Bd. (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 759, 768, 18 Cal. Rptr. 151] .

[c] "Public Officer" Defined

A "public officer" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 393(1)(b) is not restricted to individuals. Absent a statutory designation of an administrative or enforcement officer, the term "public officer" also includes state agencies, departments, institutions, boards, or other public entities. This is the case even if an entity's individual members are not "public officers," as long as members collectively constitute the entity [see Regents of University of California v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 529, 537-538, 91 Cal. Rptr. 57, 476 P.2d 457 (giving as an example of an administrative or enforcement officer the Director of Agriculture, who serves as the chief executive of the Department of Agriculture under Food & Agric. Code § 102); Director has since been retitled as Secretary by 1993 Stats., ch. 42]. Thus, the governing board of a school district is a "public officer" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 393(1)(b) [Sutter Union High School Dist. v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 795, 797, 190 Cal. Rptr. 182 ; see Regents of University of California v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 529, 534-539, 91 Cal. Rptr. 57, 476 P.2d 457 (Regents of the University of California are a "public officer" under Code Civ. Proc. § 393(1)(b))].

[8] Actions Against Personal Representative or Trustee

Except as otherwise provided in Prob. Code § 17005 (venue for proceedings brought under the Trust Law), when a defendant is sued in an official or representative capacity as executor, administrator, guardian, conservator, or trustee on a claim for the payment of money or for the recovery of personal property, the county that has jurisdiction of the estate that the defendant represents shall be the proper county for the trial of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.1; see Prob. Code § 15000 et seq. (Trust Law); for discussion of proceedings under the Trust Law, including venue for those proceedings,see Ch. 560, Trusts: Express, Public, Charitable, and Totten Trusts]. The word "claim" as it is used in Code Civ. Proc. § 395.1 does not have any technical meaning. It is commonly defined to mean simply a demand for something rightfully or allegedly due. Therefore, application of Code Civ. Proc. § 395.1 is not limited only to suits on rejected creditor's claims. For example, an action against an administratix and her attorney for the value of tax services performed for an estate is properly brought in the county that has jurisdiction over the estate [Metzger v. Silverman (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 30, 36-37 , 133 Cal. Rptr. 355] .

[1] Domestic Corporations

[a] Principal Place of Business or County Where Cause of Action Arises

A corporation or association may be sued in the county where the contract is made or is to be performed, where the obligation or liability arises, where the breach occurs, or in the county where the corporation's principal place of business is situated, subject to the power of the court to change the place of trial as in other cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5].

Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 governs venue in transitory actions against corporations [Mission Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 921, 927, 184 Cal. Rptr. 296, 647 P.2d 1075 ; see discussion in § 571.16 regarding transitory actions]. Its effect is to authorize plaintiffs to sue either at the place where the cause of action arises, or at the corporation's place of business [Hale v. Bohannon (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 458, 476, 241 P.2d 4 (decided under former Cal. Const., art. XII, § 16, now see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5)]. Although Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 appears to be addressing contract actions, it also governs actions sounding in tort [Mission Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 921, 928, 184 Cal. Rptr. 296, 647 P.2d 1075] .

The object of Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 is to permit an action against a corporation to be brought in a county other than that of the corporation's principal place of business, and thus permit a wider venue than is afforded in actions against individual defendants [Hale v. Bohannon (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 458, 469, 241 P.2d 4 ; Mission Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 921, 928, 184 Cal. Rptr. 296, 647 P.2d 1075 ; Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a); see also discussion in § 571.15[1][a] regarding alternate venues in contract actions]. Further, the contract provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) is not applicable in an action commenced solely against a corporate defendant, because it would be in direct conflict with Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5. Unlike Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a), Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 allows suit to be brought in the county where the contract is to be performed without any condition that the county must be specified in writing in the contract. Thus, if Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) were applied to these types of actions, it would negate this provision [see Hale v. Bohannon (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 458, 470-473, 241 P.2d 4 (decided under former Cal. Const., art. XII, § 16, now see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5); see discussion in § 571.16[3] for rules on contract actions].

For a discussion of how Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) may govern venue in actions in which corporate and individual defendants are joined, see the discussion in § 571.20[3][b].

[b] Where Contract Is Made or to Be Performed

As in the contract provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a), the last act necessary to the validity of the contract, usually the act constituting acceptance, is the place of its making under Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5. Further, it is the defendant's performance that is determined under Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 [Jhirmack Enterprises, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 715, 723, 158 Cal. Rptr. 192] . However, unlike Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a), Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 does not contain any provision for a special contract in writing, and therefore, in an action on the contract of a corporation, where no place of performance is expressly stipulated, it will be held performable in the place where the circumstances, viewed in light of pertinent code provisions, indicate that the parties expected or intended it to be performed [Burr v. Western States Life Ins. Co. (1931) 211 Cal. 568, 574, 296 P. 273] . For example, Com. Code § 2319(1)(a) indicates that in certain f.o.b. shipments, a seller completes delivery, and no longer bears the risk, when it places goods in the possession of a carrier at the place of shipment. Thus, the place of performance is the county from which shipment is being made. It is not the county in which the shipment is to be delivered to the buyer [see Jhirmack Enterprises, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 715, 723, 158 Cal. Rptr. 192 (also holding that the place where the shipment is to be delivered to buyer is not an accurate assessment of the place of breach)]. For a discussion of venue in contract actions in other cases, see the discussion in § 571.16[3].

[c] Where Obligation or Liability Arises

The place where the contract is made generally is the place where the obligation or liability arises [Hale v. Bohannon (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 458, 479, 241 P.2d 4] . Further, Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 permits tort claims against a corporation to be tried in any county in which the liability arises. Thus, in an action for wrongful interference with contractual relations when the cause of action is based on an intimidating letter sent to persons in several counties, venue is properly laid in any of the counties in which the plaintiff suffered injury resulting from the letters [Mission Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 921, 928, 184 Cal. Rptr. 296, 647 P.2d 1075] .

[d] Where Breach Occurs

In general, the place of performance is also where the breach occurs [Hale v. Bohannon (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 458, 479, 241 P.2d 4] . However, it may also occur in the county in which a corporation has its principal place of business, as when the corporation mails a notice of repudiation to plaintiff from its office in that county [Jhirmack Enterprises, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 715, 724, 158 Cal. Rptr. 192] .

[e] Effect of Alter Ego Allegation

In an action for breach of contract, an alter ego allegation places the individual in the same position as the corporation, as a party to a contract. Venue is then proper where the action could be laid for breach of contract against either the individual or corporate defendant [Lebastchi v. Superior Court (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1465, 1467, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 787] . If there is only one cause of action alleged against the individual and corporation, the suit does not constitute a "mixed action," which could be transfered to the individual defendant's county of residence [Lebastchi v. Superior Court (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1465, 1470, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 787 (denying change of venue from San Diego County, where corporation entered, performed, and breached contract to Placer County, where individual defendant lived)].

[2] Foreign Corporations

A foreign corporation may invoke Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 in the same manner as a domestic corporation, provided the foreign corporation establishes that it has qualified to do business in California under Corp. Code § 2105 [see Easton

v. Superior Court (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 243, 246, 90 Cal. Rptr. 642 (decided under former Cal. Const., art. XII, § 16, now Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5, and former Corp. Code § 6403, now Corp. Code § 2105); for forms and discussion relating to qualification under Corp. Code § 2105, see Ch. 160, Corporations: Capacity]. The designation of the foreign corporation's principal place of business in California is contained in the statement that it must file with the Secretary of State pursuant to Corp. Code § 2105 to qualify to do business in the state [Bohn v. Better Biscuits (1938) 26 Cal. App. 2d 61, 64, 78 P.2d 1177 (decided under former Civ. Code § 405, now Corp. Code § 2105)]. However, a foreign corporation that does not establish that it has qualified to do business in California under Corp. Code § 2105 may be sued in any county in the state [Easton v. Superior Court (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 243, 246-247, 90 Cal. Rptr. 642] .

[3] Unincorporated Associations

An unincorporated association means an unincorporated group of two or more persons joined by mutual consent for a common lawful purpose, whether organized for profit or not [Corp. Code § 18035 (formerly Corp. Code § 24000); Mosby v. Superior Court (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 219, 227, 117 Cal. Rptr. 588] . Under Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 actions may be brought against unincorporated associations in the county where a contract is made, where the obligation or liability arises, or where the breach occurs [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5; Mosby v. Superior Court (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 219, 225, 117 Cal. Rptr. 588] .

In applying the "liability or obligation" language of Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 to a lawsuit seeking to enforce a statutory obligation or liability against an unincorporated association, there is no reason to try to pigeonhole the action into contract, quasi-contract, or tort categories; instead, statutory liability cases should be analyzed independently for purposes of determining proper venue. An action for declaratory relief against an insurer may be commenced in the county where a third party claimant sues, because that is where the insurer's liability arises; the same rule should be applied where the obligation is created by a statute rather than an insurance contract. The "obligation or liability" provision of section 395.5 does not require that the defendant perform any act inside the county for venue to be proper; it merely requires that the obligation arise there [Black Diamond Asphalt, Inc. v. Superior Court of San Joaquin County (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 166, 171, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 510] .

Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 also provides an alternative to lay venue in the county of the principal place of business, but this alternative applies only to corporations by its terms and does not apply to unicorporated associations [Mosby v. Superior Court (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 219, 225, 117 Cal. Rptr. 588] . However, if an unincorporated association has filed a statement with the Secretary of State pursuant to Corp. Code § 18200 (formerly Corp. Code § 24003) listing its principal office in California, the proper county for the trial of an action against the unincorporated association is the same as it would be if the unincorporated association were a corporation. Thus, if the unincorporated association has a statement on file, the county of its principal place of business is a proper county for venue. For the purpose of determining the proper county, the principal place of business of the unincorporated association will be deemed to be the principal office in California listed in the statement [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.2; see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5; see discussion in § 571.18[1] regarding venue governed by actions involving domestic corporations]. For forms and discussion relating to the effect of Corp. Code § 18200 statements on venue in actions against partnerships,see Ch. 402, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners and Partnership and Third Parties . If an unincorporated association has no principal place of business, venue is proper in the county of residence of any member of the association [Mosby v. Superior Court (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 219, 229 n.7, 117 Cal. Rptr. 588] .

As with corporations, when a plaintiff brings an action against several defendants, including both individuals and unincorporated associations, in a county that is neither the residence nor principal place of business of any defendant, the individual defendant has the right, on a proper showing, to a change of venue to the county of his or her residence even though venue as initially laid may otherwise be justifiable on one of the four alternative grounds provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 [Mosby v. Superior Court (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 219, 226, 117 Cal. Rptr. 588 ; Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a); see discussion in § 571.18[1][a] regarding principle place of business or county where action arises].

Conversely, however, when an action is brought in the county in which an individual partner resides rather than in the county specified as the principal place of business, the individual partners have no right to a change of venue to the location of the office [Buran Equipment Co. v. Superior Court (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1662, 1666-1667, 236 Cal. Rptr. 171] .

[3A] Limited Liability Companies

The statute governing venue for corporations and associations, Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5, does not expressly state that this section is applicable to limited liability companies [see Corp. Code § 17000 et seq.]. However, the term "association" may be broadly interpreted to include limited liability companies within the scope of Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 [see, e.g., Buran Equipment Co. v. Superior Court (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1662, 1665-1666, 236 Cal. Rptr. 171 (law partnership treated as "association" under related statute)]. As such, the provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 and cases interpreting it would likely apply to limited liability companies.

Note that the discussion of unincorporated associations in [3], above, highlights the language of Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 that provides for additional venue "[i]n the county where the principal place of business of such corporation is situated ...," and that one court interpreted this alternative to lay venue did not apply to unincorporated associations because the clause only states "corporation" by its own terms [see Mosby v. Superior Court (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 219, 225, 117 Cal. Rptr. 588] . However, venue for an unincorporated association is the same as a corporation if the unincorporated association has filed a statement with the Secretary of State designating its principal office in California [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.2]. Given that a limited liability company must file articles of organization with the Secretary of State [see Corp. Code § 17050], it is probable that a limited liability company will be treated like a corporation for venue purposes, but clarification of this issue awaits a judicial decision or amendments to the Code of Civil Procedure and/or Corporations Code.

[4] State or Local Government or Agency

[a] Actions Against State

Unless otherwise designated by statute, the provisions for venue that pertain to other civil actions apply to actions against the state and its agencies [Regents of University of California v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 529, 534-535, 91 Cal. Rptr. 57, 476 P.2d 457 ; see discussion in § 571.16 regarding transitory actions, and § 571.17 regarding local actions]. For example, proceedings for writs of mandate and prohibition to compel a state agency to take or refrain from taking certain action are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 393(b) [Tharp v. Superior Court (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 496, 500-503, 186 Cal. Rptr. 335, 651 P.2d 1141] .

There are several statutes covering actions against state agencies, officers, or public entities which operate to override the ordinary venue rules [Regents of University of California v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 529, 534-535, 91 Cal. Rptr. 57, 476 P.2d 457] . For example, under Code Civ. Proc. § 1060.5, declaratory actions to establish nonresident tax status can only be commenced in Sacramento, San Francisco, or Los Angeles. Similarly, Gov. Code § 955 provides that the place of trial of many actions against the state must be changed to Sacramento County on written demand by the Attorney General [Gov. Code § 955; see discussion in § 571.18[4][c] regarding an action against a state for inverse condemnation, and § 571.18[4][d] regarding an action against a state for money or damages]. However, whenever any law of California provides that an action or proceeding against the state or a department, institution, board, commission, bureau, officer or other agency thereof shall or may be commenced in, tried in, or removed to the County of Sacramento, the same may be commenced and tried in any city or city and county of California in which the Attorney General has an office, that is, in the City and County of San Francisco, Los Angeles County, or Sacramento County [Code Civ. Proc. § 401(1); Harris v. Alcoholic Bev. Etc. Appeals Bd. (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 759, 762, 18 Cal. Rptr. 151] .

[b] Actions by State

Whenever any law of California provides that the state or a department, institution, board, commission, bureau, officer, or other agency thereof shall or may commence an action or proceeding in Sacramento County, the same, on motion of the defendants or some of them, shall be removed for trial to the county or city and county in which the Attorney General has an office nearest to the county in which the defendants or some of them reside or have their principal office in California [Code Civ. Proc. § 401(2); see discussion in § 571.18[4] for discussion of actions against a state or local government agency].

[c] Action Against State for Inverse Condemnation

The proper court for trial of actions against the state for the taking or damaging of private property for public use is a court of competent jurisdiction in the county in which the property is situated [Gov. Code § 955].

[d] Action Against State for Money or Damages

Except as provided in Gov. Code §§ 955.2 and 955.3, on written demand of the Attorney General made on or before answering, the place of trial in actions other than those for for inverse condemnation shall be changed to Sacramento County [Gov. Code § 955]. Because this provision names Sacramento County, Code Civ. Proc. § 401 applies, and the proper venue is either Sacramento, San Francisco, or Los Angeles [Harris v. Alcoholic Bev. Etc. Appeals Bd. (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 759, 766, 18 Cal. Rptr. 151] .

This is the general rule of venue in many actions against the state. However, it relates only to actions on claims for money or damages forwhich the filing of a claim is a statutory prerequisite under Gov. Code §§ 905 (local public entities) and 905.2 (state), or in actions on claims for money or damages which are specifically exempted from the filing requirement, such as the specifically enumerated matters in Gov. Code §§ 905 and 905.1 [Tharp v. Superior Court (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 496, 499, 186 Cal. Rptr. 335, 651 P.2d 1141] . Thus, for example, Gov. Code § 955 will not support a change of venue in a proceeding for writs of mandate and prohibition to compel a state agency to take or refrain from taking certain action, because the proceeding is not a claim for money or damages for which the filing of a claim is a statutory prerequisite or one that is specifically exempted from the filing requirement [Tharp v. Superior Court (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 496, 500-503, 186 Cal. Rptr. 335, 651 P.2d 1141 (holding proper statute to be Code Civ. Proc. § 393(b), governing venue in actions against public officers)]. For forms and discussion relating to claims requirements against the state and local public entities,see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act, § 464.20 et seq.

[e] Action for Death or Injury to Person or Personal Property

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, when the state is named as a defendant in any action or proceeding for death or injury to person or personal property and the injury or the injury causing death occurred within the state, the proper court for the trial of the action is a court of competent jurisdiction in the county where the injury occurred or where the injury causing death occurred. The court may, on motion, change the place of the trial in the same manner and under the same circumstances as the place of trial may be changed where an action is between private parties [Gov. Code § 955.2].

For forms and discussion relating to claims for money damages against the state for an injury for which it is liable,see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act, § 464.20 et seq.

[f] Action by Local Government or Agency Against State

Notwithstanding any provision of law, when a city, county, city and county, or local agency is a plaintiff in an action or proceeding against the state, the action may be tried in any city or county, or city and county, where the city, county, city and county, or local agency is situated [Gov. Code § 955.3].

The Attorney General may, on behalf of the State of California, before answering, move to change the place of trial to Sacramento County, San Francisco County, or Los Angeles County in accordance with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 397 [Gov. Code § 955.3; see Code Civ. Proc. § 401 (when proper place of trial is Sacramento, action may be moved to either Sacramento, San Francisco, or Los Angeles)].

For the purposes of Gov. Code § 955.3, "local agency" means any governmental district, board or agency, or any other local governmental body or corporation or elected local public official, but shall not include the state or any of its agencies, departments, commissions, or boards, or elected public officials in the executive branch of the state government [Gov. Code § 955.3].

50-571 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 571.19

§ 571.19 Actions Involving City or County

[1] Transfer to Neutral County

Code Civ. Proc. § 394 is a mass of cumbersome phraseology [Kennedy/Jenks Consultants, Inc. v. Superior Court (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 948, 953 n.3, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 817 ; Fitzpatrick v. Sonoma County (1929) 97 Cal. App. 588, 590, 276 P. 113] . Generally, it provides that actions by or against a city, county, or other local government entity must be transferred to a neutral county [Code Civ. Proc. § 394; see San Francisco Foundation v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 285, 296, 208 Cal. Rptr. 31, 690 P.2d 1 (Code Civ. Proc. § 394 as mandatory)]. A neutral county is other than that in which the plaintiff is situated, and other than that in which the defendant or defendants reside [City of Stockton v. Wilson (1926) 79 Cal. App. 422, 424, 249 P. 835] . The neutral county is selected by the trial court [Central Contra Costa Sanitary Dist. v. Superior Court (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 702, 706, 148 Cal. Rptr. 801] .

Code Civ. Proc. § 394 is a removal or change of venue statute that comes into operation only when the action is filed in a county that is proper under venue rules [County of San Bernardino v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 378, 381, 388-389, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 760 ; Dorame v. Superior Court (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 70, 72, 146 Cal. Rptr. 162] . This is confirmed by the proviso "subject to the power of the court to transfer actions and proceedings as provided in this title" contained in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392, 393, and 395. Thus, these statutes, which specify the proper county for initial filing of an action, are subject to the court's power to transfer under Code Civ. Proc. § 394 [County of Riverside v. Superior Court (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 828, 831, 447 P.2d 626 ; see discussion in § 571.16 regarding transitory actions, and § 571.17 regarding local actions]. Construing Code Civ. Proc. § 394 to require the plaintiff to commence the case in a venue chosen according to the usual rules precludes the plaintiff from unilaterally choosing venue by selecting the neutral county most satisfactory to it, and allows the court to exercise its discretion not only in selecting an appropriate neutral county, but also with respect to the option of requesting appointment of a neutral judge [County of San Bernardino v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 378, 388-389, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 760] .

It has been held that Code Civ. Proc. § 394, which refers specifically only to plaintiffs and defendants, applies to cross complainants and cross defendants [Ohio Casualty Ins. Group v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 444, 451, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 771 (Third Dist.; criticizing and declining to follow City of Chico v. Superior Court (1979) 89 Cal. App.

3d 187, 152 Cal. Rptr. 380 (First Dist. Div. Four)) ; Kennedy/Jenks Consultants, Inc. v. Superior Court (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 948, 956, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 817 (First Dist., Div. Five; following Ohio Casualty)].

The residence venue provisions in Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) are subordinate to the local venue provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 394 in mixed venue cases involving both provisions [Central Contra Costa Sanitary Dist. v. Superior Court (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 702, 705, 148 Cal. Rptr. 801] . Further, Code Civ. Proc. § 394 modifies the venue rules in local actions. Thus, eminent domain proceedings properly brought in the county where the property sought to be taken is located may be transferred on a motion by the plaintiff county to a neutral county [City of Stockton v. Ellingwood (1926) 78 Cal. App. 117, 121, 248 P. 272 ; see City of Stockton v. Wilson (1926) 79 Cal. App. 422, 424, 249 P. 835 (holding that if land is situated in neutral county, no purpose would be served by transfer to another neutral county); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.020 (venue in eminent domain proceedings)].

[2] Actions by City, County, or Local Agency Against City, County, or Local Agency

An action or proceeding against a county, city and county, city, or local agency, may be tried in that county or city and county, or in the county in which the city or local agency is situated, unless the action or proceeding is brought by a county, city and county, city, or local agency, in which case it may be tried in any county, or city and county, not a party to the action and in which the city or local agency is not situated [Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a)].

Thus, a plaintiff, other than a city, county, or other government entity located in the county, is permitted to commence and proceed to trial in an action or proceeding against a city, county, or other government entity, in the defendant county [Fitzpatrick v. Sonoma County (1929) 97 Cal. App. 588, 276 P. 113] . However, an action pitting a government entity against another government entity may not be brought in the home county of the plaintiff government entity [see Westinghouse Electric Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 259, 268, 131 Cal. Rptr. 231, 551 P.2d 847] .

[3] Actions by City, County, or Local Agency Against Resident of or Corporation Doing Business in Another City, County, or Local Agency

[a] General Rule

Whenever an action or proceeding is brought by a county, city and county, city, or local agency within a certain county or city and county, against a resident of another county, city and county, or city, or against a corporation doing business in the latter, the action or proceeding must, on motion of either party, be transferred for trial to a county or city and county, other than the plaintiff, if the plaintiff is a county or city and county, and other than that in which the plaintiff is situated, if the plaintiff is a city or a local agency, and other than that in which the defendant resides, or is doing business, or is situated [Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a); see Kennedy/Jenks Consultants, Inc. v. Superior Court (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 948, 953-964, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 817 (applying this provision)].

The determination of whether an action is brought by a county agency within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 394 depends on the role of that county agency within the lawsuit [Transamerica Homefirst, Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 577, 579-580, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 705] . Thus, for example, it has been held that when a district attorney represents the People of the State of California in a red light abatement action pursuant to Pen. Code § 11226, the district attorney acts on behalf of the state rather than the county and thus the mandatory transfer provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a) do not apply, so that, red light abatement actions are exempt from the mandatory transfer provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a) [Nguyen v. Superior Court (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1781, 1784, 1786-1791, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 611 (Code Civ. Proc. § 394(c) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 394(b)) specifically excludes state action from the mandatory transfer provision; court may still transfer action on showing of prejudice under Code Civ. Proc. § 397(b))]. Similarly, when an action is brought on behalf of a conservatee by the county's public guardian against a nonresident defendant, the action is not one brought by a county agency, within the meaning of section 394, and the action need not be transferred pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a) [Transamerica Homefirst, Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 577, 579-581, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 705] .

Section 394 provides for an exception for actions initiated by the district attorney under several Welfare and Institutions Code sections relating to paternity and child support [Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a)]. These sections, however, have been repealed [see Stats. 1999, ch. 478, §§ 8, 9, 24, 33]. The new statutory scheme that replaced those statutes and moved the responsibility for enforcement from the district attorneys to local child support agencies, has a venue provision that applies notwithstanding any other law [see Fam. Code § 17400(n)]. For discussion of that provision, see Ch. 259, Family Law Enforcement: Special Remedies for Support Enforcement, § 259.153[4][d].

Where a local agency files a compulsory cross-complaint asserting a claim in the county where it resides against a nonresident of that county, the cross-defendant has the right to move for a change of venue pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 394 [Metropolitan Transit System v. Superior Court (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 293, 304, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 517] .

[b] Corporate Defendants

Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a) applies whenever an action or proceeding is brought by a county, city and county, city, or local agency within a certain county or city and county, against a corporation doing business in the latter [Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a)]. However, a defendant corporations's rights under Code Civ. Proc. § 394 may be barred because of the existence, nature, and extent of its activities within the forum county. Activities sufficient to raise this bar are referred to in Code Civ. Proc. § 394 as "doing business" within the county [San Francisco Foundation v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 285, 297-298, 208 Cal. Rptr. 31, 690 P.2d 1] . Whether a corporation is "doing business" is not determined by the minimum-contacts test used to establish jurisdiction. Nor is merely holding oneself out to others as engaged in the selling of goods or services sufficient [Westinghouse Electric Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 259, 270, 131 Cal. Rptr. 231, 551 P.2d 847] . Instead, "doing business" is defined in light of the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 394, and thus the standard turns on the extent to which the corporation is viewed as an outsider by the community [San Francisco Foundation v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 285, 298, 208 Cal. Rptr. 31, 690 P.2d 1 ; see Kennedy/Jenks Consultants, Inc. v. Superior Court (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 948, 957-958, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 817] .

The test is whether a corporation's activities are such that the corporation is reasonably likely to be viewed as an outsider, not whether it is actually so viewed. Thus, a corporation is doing business in the community for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 394 only if its activities in the county are substantial enough that the corporation can reasonably be viewed as being intimately identified with the affairs, or closely associated with the people of the community [San Francisco Foundation v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 285, 299, 208 Cal. Rptr. 31, 690 P.2d 1 ; Westinghouse Electric Corp. v. Superior Court of Alameda County (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 259, 271 n.7, 131 Cal. Rptr. 231, 551 P.2d 847] . For example, it may become intimately identified with the affairs of a community, and closely associated with the people of the community if it owns a farm in the communtiy and grows products on the farm rather than engaging in carrying on a store or conducting a mill or foundry in the same community [Westinghouse Electric Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 259, 270, 131 Cal. Rptr. 231, 551 P.2d 847] . It is the quality of the business connections, however, and not their quantity or duration, that determines whether a party is doing business locally. The qualitative analysis must focus on whether the types of contacts with the county are substantial enough for the company to be reasonably viewed as closely associated with the community [Kennedy/Jenks Consultants, Inc. v. Superior Court (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 948, 961, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 817] . If the defendant corporation is thus viewed as closely related to the communtiy, there is less likelihood of the local bias that Code Civ. Proc. § 394 is designed to prevent [San Francisco Foundation v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 285, 299, 208 Cal. Rptr. 31, 690 P.2d 1] .

Moreover, the relevant inquiry under Code Civ. Proc. § 394 includes an analysis of the nature of the litigation as well as the activities of the party seeking a change of venue. When the nature of the case poses a reasonable risk that the defendant would be viewed as an outsider, a change of venue under Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a) is proper [see San Francisco Foundation v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 285, 299-301, 208 Cal. Rptr. 31, 690 P.2d 1 ;

Kennedy/Jenks Consultants, Inc. v. Superior Court (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 948, 963-964, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 817] .

[4] Actions Against City, County, or Local Agency

Whenever an action or proceeding is brought against a county, city and county, city, or local agency, in any county or city and county, other than defendant if the defendant is a county or city and county, or, if the defendant is a city, or local agency, other than that in which defendant is situated, the action or proceeding must be, on motion of the defendant, transferred for trial to a county, or city and county, other than that in which the plaintiff, or any of the plaintiffs, resides, is doing business, or is situated, and other than the plaintiff county, city and county, or county in which the plaintiff city or local agency is situated [Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a)].

This provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a) contains a proviso that states that any action or proceeding against the city, county, city and county, or local agency for injury occurring within the city, county, or city and county, or within the county in which the local agency is situated, to person or property caused by the negligence or alleged negligence of such city, county, city and county, local agency, or its agents or employees, shall be tried in that county, or city and county, or if a city is a defendant, in that city or in the county in which the city is situated, or if a local agency is a defendant, in the county in which the local agency is situated [Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a)]. This provision is an exception to the general venue statute (Code Civ. Proc. § 395), which permits venue either in the county where the injury occurs or the injury causing death occurs or the county in which the defendants, or some of them, reside at the commencement of the action. For example, if a plaintiff sues both a county and individual defendants who reside outside the county for injuries occurring within the county, Code Civ. Proc. § 394 requires the suit to be tried in defendant county, even though the general venue rules would have permitted trial in the county where the individual defendants reside [County of Orange v. Superior Court (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1189, 1192-1193, 86 Cal. Rptr.2d 923] . Despite the mandatory language of this particular provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a), a plaintiff may nevertheless seek and obtain a change of venue to another county under the discretionary provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 397(b) [see Paesano v. Superior Court (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 17, 19-20, 250 Cal. Rptr. 842 ; see § 571.100 for form and discussion in § 571.34].

If a plaintiff sues a county or local agency for injuries occurring within the county where the public agency is located, Code Civ. Proc. § 394 requires the suit to be tried in the defendant county; and Section 394 unequivocally provides that an action brought against a county or local governmental agency for personal injuries occurring in the county must be brought in that county [Ventura Unified School District v. Superior Court (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 811, 814, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 260] . However, despite the mandatory language of Section 394, the right to transfer may be waived if there is unreasonable delay [Ventura Unified School District v. Superior Court (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 811, 814, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 260 , citing Newman v. County of Sonoma (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 625, 627-628, 15 Cal. Rptr. 914] .

[5] Stipulation as to Place of Trial

In actions referred to in Code Civ. Proc. § 394, the parties may, by stipulation in writing, or made in open court, and entered in the minutes, agree on any county, or city and county, for the place of trial thereof [Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a); Newman v. County of Sonoma (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 625, 627, 15 Cal. Rptr. 914, 364 P.2d 850] .

[6] Assignment of Disinterested Judge in Lieu of Transfer

When the action or proceeding is one in which a jury is not of right, or in case a jury is waived, then in lieu of transferring the cause the court in the original county may request the chairman of the Judicial Council to assign a disinterested judge from a neutral county to hear the cause and all proceedings in connection with it [Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a)].

This clause of Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a) applies only to actions between the governmental agencies specified in Section

394. The right of a governmental entity that lacks or waives any right to jury trial to have an action transferred or a disinterested judge assigned under Section 394 is not affected by the presence of another party plaintiff who has a right to jury trial. Section 394 does not require an action involving nongovernmental parties plaintiff to be transferred to a different county, so when plaintiffs include both a governmental entity and nongovernmental parties against another governmental entity, the court retains the option of either transferring the case to another county or requesting the assignment of a disinterested judge even though the nongovernmental plaintiff has a right to a jury trial. It is error for the court to deny the governmental entities' motion based on the presence of the nongovernmental party in the action [see Brennan v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 454, 460-462, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693] .

[7] "Local Agency" Defined

For the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 394, "local agency" shall mean any governmental district, board, or agency, or any other local governmental body or corporation, but shall not include the State of California or any of its agencies, departments, commissions or boards [Code Civ. Proc. § 394(b)].

[8] Motion to Transfer

[a] Procedure

The procedural requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(a), governing motions for change of venue generally, do not govern a motion made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 394 [Channell v. Superior Court (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 246, 252, 38 Cal. Rptr. 13] . For example, Code Civ. Proc. § 394 does not prescribe a time within which a motion for transfer to a neutral county must be made, as long as it is made within a reasonable time [Adams v. Superior Court (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 365, 367, 38 Cal. Rptr. 164] . Thus, the motion need not be made at the time of answer to a complaint or cross complaint as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(a), but may be made within a reasonable time thereafter [Marin Community College Dist. v. Superior Court (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 719, 723, 140 Cal. Rptr. 310] . Similarly, the motion to transfer may be made either before or a reasonable time after a demurrer has been heard and submitted for decision. However, if the motion is made after the demurrer has been heard and submitted to the court, the issues of law raised by the demurrer may be decided by the original court, and the moving party waives his or her right to have them transferred with the action to a neutral county [see Adams v. Superior Court (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 365, 367-369, 38 Cal. Rptr. 164] .

Although a motion to transfer under Code Civ. Proc. § 394 need only be made within a reasonable time, the right to a change of venue may be waived for lack of diligence in prosecuting the motion. Thus, the failure of a party to assert his or her right to a transfer until after a demurrer has been submitted for decision constitutes a waiver of the right as it applies to the trial of the issues of law raised by the demurrer [Adams v. Superior Court (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 365, 368-369, 38 Cal. Rptr. 164] . Generally, however, the motion will not be denied on the ground that it is untimely unless it is pursued for dilatory purposes and unless the government entity can show substantial prejudice [Marin Community College Dist. v. Superior Court (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 719, 723, 140 Cal. Rptr. 310] .

[b] Burden of Proof

The burden of proof justifying a change of venue rests on the moving party [Los Angeles v. Pac. Tel. & Tel. Co. (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 253, 260, 330 P.2d 888] . However, the moving party is not required to show possible prejudice [City of Alameda v. Superior Court (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 312, 317, 116 Cal. Rptr. 806] . Nor is a defendant in an action brought by a city, county, or other government entity required to prove which counties are residences of other individual defendants, or places of business of corporate defendants. Thus, a defendant is only required to show (1) that the proceeding was brought in the county in which plaintiff government entity was situated, and (2) that the defendant lived in another county [City of Oakland v. Darbee (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 493, 500, 227 P.2d 909] . Once the moving party has met his or her burden, change of venue to a neutral county is mandatory [see San Francisco Foundation v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 285, 296, 208 Cal. Rptr. 31, 690 P.2d 1 (noting mandatory change of venue provision in Code Civ. Proc. § 394); see Code Civ. Proc. § 394 (second and third provisions stating that action must be transferred on motion)]. One court has stated the rule as being that under Code Civ. Proc. § 394 prejudice is presumed and the granting of the motion is mandatory unless the trial court finds that the nonmoving party would suffer actual prejudice from the requested change of venue [Ohio Casualty Ins. Group v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 444, 452, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 771 (dicta)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Place of Trial

50-571 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 571.20

§ 571.20 Effect of Joinder on Venue

[1] Mixed Actions

Mixed venue actions occur when a plaintiff alleges two or more causes of action, each of which is governed by a different venue statute, or when two or more defendants are named who are subject to different venue standards [Brown v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 477, 488, 208 Cal. Rptr. 724, 691 P.2d 272 ; see also Gallin v. Superior Court (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 541, 544, 281 Cal. Rptr. 304] . These situations should be distinguished from cases in which there is only one cause of action, but different forms of relief are sought, thereby calling for application of the main relief rule [see Smith v. Smith (1891) 88 Cal. 572, 576, 26 P. 356 (holding that defendant entitled to have action tried in his or her place of residence if plaintiff either joins a cause of action covered by Code Civ. Proc. § 392 with one that is not so covered, or also seeks a remedy on matters not embraced by the statute); see also § 571.15[3] for discussion of Main Relief Rule].

A distinction must also be made in cases in which the complaint sets forth only one cause of action, but states several different legal theories labelled as separate causes of action. For example, in one case plaintiffs' complaint contained "causes of action" for breach of contract, conversion of certain structures and improvements, restoration and reinstallment of the improvements, and waste. The court, however, held that these were not separate causes of action, but alternative methods of pleading the plaintiffs' right to recover a money judgment for an alleged breach of a lease agreement. Therefore, because the plaintiffs had alleged but one wrong, the main relief rule was applied [Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 605, 328 P.2d 953 ; Foundation Engineers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 104, 109-113, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 469 (and cases cited therein)].

When two or more inconsistent venue provisions apply in same case, a defendant's motion for change of venue must be granted if that defendant is entitled to a change of venue on any one cause of action. For instance, involuntary dissolution of a corporation is a local action, for which the proper venue is the county in which the corporation maintains its principal office. Thus, in an action for involuntary dissolution of a corporation, the corporation was entitled to have venue changed to the county in which it maintained its principal office, even though venue was proper as to nine other causes of action [Capp Care, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 504, 508, 241 Cal. Rptr.

[2] Joinder of Causes of Action

When transitory and local causes of action are joined in a single complaint, the general rule is that the action will be regarded as transitory in determining the place of trial [Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 605, 328 P.2d 953 ; see discussion in § 571.16 regarding transitory actions, and § 571.17 regarding local actions]. A plaintiff cannot, by uniting in the complaint matters that form the subject of a transitory action with matters that form subject of a local action, compel the defendant to have both matters tried in a county other than that in which the defendant resides [Smith v. Smith (1891) 88 Cal. 572, 576, 26 P. 356 ; Channell v. Superior Court (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 246, 251, 38 Cal. Rptr. 13] . Thus, if an action contains both a transitory cause of action and a local cause of action, the defendant is entitled to have the proceeding transferred to the county of his or her residence [Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 605, 328 P.2d 953 ; see discussion in § 571.17[3] regarding an action is not local if the title or possession is incidentally involved]. For discussion relating to the permissive joinder of actions generally,see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

[3] Joinder of Defendants

[a] General Rule

When there are several defendants who reside in different counties, the plaintiff has the option and the right to commence the action in a county where any one of the defendants may reside [Taff v. Goodman (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 771, 776, 107 P.2d 431 ; Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]. Thus, the defendant is not entitled to have an action removed to the county of his or her residence unless it appears that none of the other defendants are residents of the county where the action was brought. Even when all of the defendants join in a demand for or consent to a change of venue, the cause will be retained if the complaint attempts, in apparent good faith, to state a cause of action against a defendant who resides in the county where the action was commenced. Further, the fact that another and principal defendant resides in another county is immaterial when the defendant who resides in the county in which the action is brought is a necessary and proper party defendant [Monogram Co. v. Kingsley (1951) 38 Cal. 2d 28, 30, 237 P.2d 265] .

The plaintiff cannot join as defendants those who are not real parties in interest merely for the purpose of obtaining trial in the county of their residence [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a); Neet v. Holmes (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 605, 612, 122 P.2d 557] .

The test to determine whether the resident defendant has been joined solely for the purpose of having the action tried in the county of his or her residence is whether the plaintiff had a cause of action against him or her [Russello v. Mori (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d 828, 830, 315 P.2d 343 ; Taff v. Goodman (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 771, 776, 107 P.2d 431] . If not, it is sufficient evidence to support the finding that the defendant was joined for the purpose of having the trial in a certain county [Taff v. Goodman (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 771, 776, 107 P.2d 431] . However, the issue is determined from examination of the pleadings before the court, and a cause of action purported to be stated against the defendant which is apparently pleaded in good faith is sufficient if it is not, prima facie, so glaringly and vitally defective as to be beyond correction by amendment [Russello v. Mori (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d 828, 830, 315 P.2d 343] .

For a discussion relating to the joinder of parties generally,see Ch. 395, Parties .

[b] Individual and Corporate Defendants Joined

The general rules governing the effect of joinder of defendants on venue applies whether the defendants are individuals or corporations. Hence, the plaintiff may fix venue at the residence of either the individual or the corporation in an action stated against both, as long as joinder is in conformity with the statutes [Dillman v. Superior Court (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 769, 772, 23 Cal. Rptr. 498 ; Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]. For example, when a corporation and an individual are properly joined as defendants, and the action is commenced in a county where the corporation has its principal place of business, but which is not the county of the individual defendant's residence, the individual defendant may not have the action moved to the county of his or her residence based on Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) [Hale v. Bohannon (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 458, 472, 241 P.2d 4] . The principal place of business of a corporation is its residence under Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a), and the preference for residence venue under Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) is satisfied when venue is laid in that county [McClung v. Watt (1922) 190 Cal. 155, 158-159, 211 P. 17 ; see discussion in § 571.16 regarding transitory actions].

However, when a plaintiff joins an individual defendant with a corporate defendant, the plaintiff waives the benefit of Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5, at least in so far as the individual defendant is concerned [Walker v. Wells Fargo Bk. & U. T. Co. (1937) 24 Cal. App. 2d 220, 222, 74 P.2d 849 (decided under former Cal. Const., art. XXI, § 16)]. Thus, if an action is commenced in a county that, although proper venue as to the corporate defendant under Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 (that is, where the contract was made or is to be performed, where the obligation or liability arises, or where the breach occurs), is not a proper place of trial for the individual defendant, the latter is entitled, under Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a), to a change of venue of the entire case to the county of his or her residence [State v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 637, 642, 60 Cal. Rptr. 653 ; for discussion of venue relating to corporate defendants generally,see § 571.18[1]].

[c] State and Corporate Defendants Joined

A plaintiff waives the procedural rights granted by Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 by joining the state and a corporation as defendants in an action for personal injuries because Gov. Code § 955.2 (venue in actions against state or state agency for death or injury to a person or personal property), by its terms, takes precedence [State v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 637, 643, 60 Cal. Rptr. 653] . For a discussion relating to venue in actions involving the state or state agencies generally, see the discussion in § 571.18[4] for actions against a state or local government agency.

§ 571.30 Governing Law

Motions for change of venue are specifically governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 396a, 396b, 397, and 398. Noticed motions in general are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1020, and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100-3.1390. Code Civ. Proc. § 399 sets forth the procedure for transmitting the pleadings and papers to other court.

§ 571.32 Action Commenced in Wrong Court

[1] Notice of Motion

Except as otherwise provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 396a, if an action or proceeding is commenced in a court other than the court designated as the proper court for the trial thereof by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392-404.8, the defendant may, at the time he or she answers, demurs, or moves to strike, or, at his or her option, without answering, demurring, or moving to strike and within the time otherwise allowed to respond to the complaint, file with the clerk a notice of motion for an order transferring the action or proceeding to the proper court, together with proof of service, on the adverse party, of a copy of such papers [Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 397(1) (court may change place of trial when court designated in complaint is not proper court); see Otsuka v. Balangue (1949) 92 Cal. App. 2d 788, 790, 208 P.2d 65 (holding that service rather than proof of service vests trial court with jurisdiction to act; technical objection to language of affidavit of proof of service disapproved); for discussion of the Code Civ. Proc. § 396a exception,see § 571.45 regarding actions involving installment or automotive sales, consumer obligations, or unlawful detainer]. Alternatively, the parties may first wish to consider entering a stipulation to change venue [see § 571.105 and discussion in § 571.32[2] regarding expenses and attorney's fees].

A defendant has an absolute right to have an action that is brought against him or her tried in the county where he or she resides, but not in the remedy that secures that right. Thus, the defendant waives the right to have the action tried in the county of his or her residence unless he or she follows the procedure in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 396b(a) and 397 [Bohn v. Bohn (1913) 164 Cal. 532, 535, 129 P. 981 ; see discussion in § 571.16 regarding transitory actions]. For forms and discussion relating to proof of service by mail,see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers . For a discussion of the required showing by defendant to support a motion for change of venue based on Code Civ. Proc. §§ 396ba and 397(a), see the discussion in § 571.40[2][b] regarding actions commenced in the wrong court.

On the hearing of a motion for an order transferring the action or proceeding to the proper court, the court shall, if it appears that the action or proceeding was not commenced in the proper court, order the action or proceeding transferred to the proper court [Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(a); see § 571.41 regarding selection of transferee court].

[2] Expenses and Attorney's Fees

In its discretion, the court may order the payment to the prevailing party of reasonable expenses and attorney's fees incurred in making or resisting the motion to transfer whether or not that party is otherwise entitled to recover his or her costs in the action. In determining whether an order for expenses and fees shall be made, the court shall take into consideration (1) whether an offer to stipulate to change of venue was reasonably made and rejected, and (2) whether the motion or selection of venue was made in good faith given the facts and law the party making the motion or selecting the venue knew or should have known. As between the party and his or her attorney, the expenses and fees shall be the personal liability of the attorney not chargeable to the party [Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(b); see also Lieppman v. Lieber (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 914, 919, 225 Cal. Rptr. 845 (imposition of sanctions as proper under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 against party who makes frivolous motion for change of venue under Code Civ. Proc. § 397(3); see discussion in § 571.33, regarding convenience of witnesses and ends of justice].

Section 396b(b) sanctions may not be imposed except on notice contained in a party's papers, or on the court's own noticed motion, and after opportunity to be heard [Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(b)].

If the motion or opposition to it is frivolous or otherwise improper, sanctions may also be available under the general provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 128.5 (sanctions for frivolous tactics for cases filed before 1995) and 128.7 (sanctions for frivolous tactics in actions commenced in 1995 through 2005 unless the legislature changes the ending date). For discussion of sanctions under these statutes,see Ch. 510, Sanctions .

The court may award attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(b) if, after reviewing the factual and legal presentation made by the losing party, it finds that no reasonable attorney would have honestly chosen the forum, and that it appears to have been selected to impair the defendant's right to defend. The attorney must carefully investigate the facts with a view to determining which court is proper. This task is complete when, following a thorough investigation, the attorney has an honest and reasonable belief that his or her client has a tenable contention, and the attorney believes that he or she can establish the existence of facts supporting the choice of venue to the satisfaction of the court. An attorney is expected to possess knowledge of those plain and elementary principles of law that are commonly known by well-informed attorneys, and to discover those additional rules of law that, although not commonly known, may be readily found by standard research techniques [Metzger v. Silverman (1976) 62 Cal. App.3d Supp. 30, 38-39 , 133 Cal. Rptr. 355 ; Cacciaguidi v. Superior Court (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 181, 276 Cal. Rptr. 465 (declining to award attorney's fees on issuing writ of mandate to compel trial court to grant motion when trial court had found real parties' arguments "inventive" and "compelling" and had denied the motion)].

[3] Pleading After Motion Denied

If the motion to transfer is denied, the court shall allow the defendant time to move to strike, demur, or otherwise plead if the defendant has not previously filed a response [Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(e)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Change of Venue

50-571 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 571.33

§ 571.33 Convenience of Witnesses and Ends of Justice

Unlike a motion to change venue based on Code Civ. Proc. § 397(a), there is no statutory procedure relating to the filing of a notice of motion to change venue under Code Civ. Proc. § 397(c) based on the ground that the convenience of witnesses and the ends of justice would be promoted [Thompson v. Superior Court (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 300, 306, 103 Cal. Rptr. 94 ; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 396b (procedure for noticed motion and hearing when action not commenced in proper court), 397(a) (on motion, court may change place of trial when the court designated in the complaint is not the proper court); see discussion in § 571.32[1] regarding notice of motion for an action commenced in a wrong court]. However, it does appear that Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 (requisites of written notice) governs notices of motion made under Code Civ. Proc. § 397(c) [see Willingham v. Pecora (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 289, 295, 112 P.2d 328 ; for form,see § 571.100].

There is no express time limit within which a notice of motion for change of venue based on Code Civ. Proc. § 397(3) must be made. However, it must be made within a reasonable time after the answer is filed [Cooney v. Cooney (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 202, 208, 153 P.2d 334 ; Thompson v. Superior Court (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 300, 306, 103 Cal. Rptr. 94] . The court cannot entertain a motion for a change of venue on the ground of convenience of witnesses when the defendant has not yet filed an answer, because until the issues are joined, the court cannot determine what testimony will be material [Johnson v. Superior Court (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 212, 214, 42 Cal. Rptr. 645] . For similar reasons, the court cannot entertain a Code Civ. Proc. § 397(3) motion when the defendant has appeared only by demurrer [Russello v. Mori (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d 828, 832, 315 P.2d 343] .

The court should not grant a Code Civ. Proc. § 397(3) motion unless both the convenience of the witnesses will be served and the ends of justice will be promoted [Lieberman v. Superior Court (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 396, 401, 239 Cal. Rptr. 450 ; Pearson v. Superior Court (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 69, 77, 18 Cal. Rptr. 578] . In ruling on the motion, the court will normally consider the convenience only of witnesses who are neither parties to the action nor the employees of a party [see Lieberman v. Superior Court (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 396, 401, 239 Cal. Rptr. 450 ; Dillman v. Superior Court (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 769, 773, 23 Cal. Rptr.498 ; Harden v. Skinner & Hammond (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 750, 754, 279 P.2d 978 ; see also Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 611, 328 P.2d 953 (convenience of expert witnesses as not considered except when they have personal knowledge of facts on which their testimony is to be based)].

An exception to the rule prohibiting consideration of convenience to a party exists when the serious illness of a party will prevent his or her traveling to attend the trial in the other county and when his or her testimony is material [Lieberman v. Superior Court (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 396, 401, 239 Cal. Rptr. 450] . Likewise, a limited exception allows the court to consider the convenience of witnesses who are employees of a party when the employees are called as witnesses by the adverse party rather than on behalf of their employer [Lieberman v. Superior Court (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 396, 401-402, 239 Cal. Rptr. 450] . In Lieberman, however, the latter exception was held to be inapplicable because the trial court had erroneously granted the cross defendant's motion to change venue of the action for the convenience of its own employees who were to be called as witnesses to establish its defense to the cross complaint. Additionally, the trial court erroneously granted the cross complainant's motion to change venue for the convenience of the same witnesses because the employees would be called to testify by the cross defendant and would be available at that time to the cross complainant [Lieberman v. Superior Court (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 396, 402-403, 239 Cal. Rptr. 450] .

The moving party will meet part of his or her burden by showing that the proposed testimony of the witnesses is admissible, relevant, and material to some issue in the case, and that it will be inconvenient for the witnesses to attend trial [Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 607, 328 P.2d 953 ; Willingham v. Pecora (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 289, 293, 112 P.2d 328] . The issue considered by the court is the convenience of witnesses in attending trial as opposed to the places of their actual residences [Willingham v. Pecora (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 289, 293, 112 P.2d 328] . The witnesses' residence is not determinative, but convenience may be shown by the fact that all the witnesses reside in the county to which the transfer is requested. Further, inconvenience may be presumed from the witnesses' distance from the county where trial is commenced [Pearson v. Superior Court (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 69, 77, 18 Cal. Rptr. 578] . For a discussion of the moving party's burden of proof under Code Civ. Proc. § 397(c), see the discussion in § 571.40[2][c].

The moving party may show that the ends of justice will be promoted by demonstrating that delay and expense in court proceedings will be avoided and savings in the witnesses' time and expenses will be affected [Pearson v. Superior Court (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 69, 77, 18 Cal. Rptr. 578 ; Harden v. Skinner & Hammond (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 750, 754, 279 P.2d 978] .

§ 571.34 Impartial Trial Cannot Be Had

Apparently, a motion based on Code Civ. Proc. § 397(b) must be made after the answer has been filed [Cook v. Pendergast (1882) 61 Cal 72, 79] . It may even be required that the motion be filed after a jury has been impaneled [see J.I. Case T. Co. v. Copren Bros. (1917) 35 Cal. App. 70, 79, 169 P. 443 (court expressly stating that it did not so hold, but that it knew of no case when there had not been one trial or when some effort had not been made to obtain a jury)]. However, one court has held that there is no necessity to hold a decision on a motion in abeyance until an attempt to secure a fair and impartial jury had been made if, at the hearing, there appears sufficient reason to believe that an impartial trial cannot be had [People v. Ocean Shore Railroad, Inc. (1938) 24 Cal. App. 2d 420, 427, 75 P.2d 560] .

The place of trial may be changed when the judges of the court in which the action is brought are disqualified to try the case [Hancock v. Burton (1882) 61 Cal. 70, 71 ; Code Civ. Proc. § 397(d)]. However, motions based on Code Civ. Proc. § 397(d) rarely occur because a qualified judge from another county may always be assigned even if all the judges are disqualified [People v. Spring Valley Co. (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 656, 672, 241 P.2d 1069] . For forms and discussion relating to disqualification of judges,see Ch. 317, Judges .

§ 571.36 Who May Make Motion

When an action is not brought in the proper county, any defendant, without joining any codefendants, may demand a transfer to the proper county [People v. Ocean Shore Railroad, Inc. (1938) 24 Cal. App. 2d 420, 424, 75 P.2d 560] . However, the moving defendant or defendants must show that none of the other defendants reside in the forum [Goossen v. Clifton (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 44, 51, 170 P.2d 104] . These rules apply to motions under any of the grounds stated in Code Civ. Proc. § 397 [see People v. Ocean Shore Railroad, Inc. (1938) 24 Cal. App. 2d 420, 424, 75 P.2d 560 (holding that right of defendant to have action tried where land situated or where some of the defendants reside is no higher nor entitled to more protection than right to have it tried where impartial trial may be had)].

A plaintiff may not move to change the place of trial on the ground that he or she has brought the action in the wrong county. However, he or she may move to change the place of trial on the grounds that the convenience of witnesses and ends of justice will be promoted. Further, a plaintiff may demand a transfer on the ground that a fair and impartial trial cannot be had in the county where the action was commenced, or when the plaintiff ascertains the disqualification of the judge [Cook v. Pendergast (1882) 61 Cal. 72, 79 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 397].

A plaintiff/cross-defendant against whom a compulsory cross-complaint has been filed is not entitled to seek a change of venue under Code Civ. Proc. § 396b based on a claim of improper venue as determined by reference to the cross-complaint. Rather, the cross-complaint is to be tried in the same county that has been established as the proper venue based on the original complaint [K.R.L. Partnership v. Superior Court (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 490, 498, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 517] .

50-571 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 571.37

§ 571.37 Costs and Fees of Transfer

When a transfer is sought on any ground specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 397(b)-(d), the costs and fees of the transfer, and of filing the papers in the court to which the transfer is ordered, shall be paid at the time the motion is filed by the party making the motion for the transfer [Code Civ. Proc. § 399].

When the transfer is sought solely, or is ordered, because the action was commenced in a court other than that designated as proper by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392-404.8, the costs and fees, including any expenses and attorney's fees awarded defendant pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 396b, shall be paid by the plaintiff before the transfer is made [Code Civ. Proc. § 399; see § 571.32[2] regarding expenses and attorney's fees]. If in any such case, the defendant has paid costs and fees at the time of filing the notice of motion, the costs and fees are to be repaid to him or her on the making of the order. If the plaintiff has not so paid the costs and fees within five days after service of notice of the order, then any other party interested therein, whether named in the complaint as a party or not, may pay the costs and fees, and the clerk shall then transmit the papers and pleadings as if the costs and fees had been originally paid by the plaintiff. In that case, the costs and fees shall be a proper item of costs of the party who paid them, recoverable by that party in the event he or she prevails in the action. Otherwise, the costs and fees shall be offset against and deducted from the amount, if any, awarded the plaintiff in the event the plaintiff prevails against that party in the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 399].

The action shall not be further prosecuted in any court until the costs and fees are paid. If they are not paid within 30 days after service of notice of the order, or if a petition for a writ of mandate pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 400 is filed in the trial court or an appeal is taken pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 904.2, then within 30 days after notice of the finality of the order of transfer, the court on a duly noticed motion by any party may dismiss the action without prejudice to the cause. The dismissal will be on the condition that no other action on the cause may be commenced in another court prior to satisfaction of the court's order for costs and fees. If a petition for a writ of mandate or appeal does not result in a stay of proceedings, the time for payment of costs shall be 60 days after service of the notice of the order [Code Civ. Proc. § 399].

The filing of motion for change of venue suspends the power of the trial court to act on any other question until the motion has been determined [Moore v. Powell (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 583, 587, 138 Cal. Rptr. 914 ; Adams v. Superior Court (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 365, 368, 38 Cal. Rptr. 164] . Aside from certain exceptions provided for in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 396b(c) and 397(e), any order of the court made prior to the determination of the motion is a nullity [Beard v. Superior Court (1940) 39 Cal. App. 2d 284, 286, 102 P.2d 1087] . For example, the court has no authority to issue a temporary restraining order relating to the main action after a notice of motion for transfer has been filed [County of Riverside v. Superior Court (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 828, 831, 73 Cal. Rptr. 386, 447 P.2d 626] . Similarly, the court may not issue an order passing on a demurrer to the complaint [*see City of Oakland v. PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Change of Venue

50-571 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 571.39

§ 571.39 Plaintiff's Opposition to Defendant's Motion for Change of Venue

[1] In General

In any case, if an answer is filed, the court may consider opposition to the motion to transfer, if any, and may retain the action in the county where commenced if it appears that the convenience of the witnesses or the ends of justice will thereby be promoted [Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(d)].

[2] By Counteraffidavit or Declaration

If the defendant's motion is made on the ground that (1) an impartial trial cannot be had, (2) that the change will promote the convenience of the witnesses and the ends of justice, or (3) that no judge of the court is qualified to act, the plaintiff may file counteraffidavits in response to the defendant's motion. However, the plaintiff may not respond with a countermotion [Cook v. Pendergast (1882) 61 Cal. 72, 76 ; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 397(b) (impartial trial), 397(c) (convenience of witnesses and ends of justice) and 394(d) (no judge qualified to act)].

[3] By Countermotion

A plaintiff has the right to oppose a defendant's motion made on the ground that the action was not brought in the county of defendant's residence by showing, on a countermotion, that the convenience of the witnesses or the ends of justice would be promoted by refusing to change [Cook v. Pendergast (1882) 61 Cal. 72, 76 ; Braunstein v. Superior Court (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 691, 697, 37 Cal. Rptr. 666] .

Like a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 397(c), a countermotion to retain a cause on the ground of convenience of the witnesses will not lie unless the answer has been filed at the time defendant's motion for change of venue is made. Until the issues of fact are settled by the answer, the court cannot determine what testimony will be material [Gilman v. Nordin (1952)112 Cal. App. 2d 788, 793, 247 P.2d 394] . Further, an attempt to retain venue as originally laid for the convenience of the witnesses cannot be made when only a demurrer has been filed [Johnson v. Superior Court (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 212, 214, 42 Cal. Rptr. 645] .

The courts of appeal are in conflict with respect to whether Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(d) requires a plaintiff who is seeking to retain the action in the county where it was commenced to show that both the convenience of the witnesses and the ends of justice will be served by retaining the action in that county, or if the plaintiff may prevail by showing that either the convenience of witnesses or the ends of justice would be promoted [see Braunstein v. Superior Court (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 691, 698 n.2, 37 Cal. Rptr. 666 (showing either factor is sufficient, in contrast to requirement that defendant show both factors to win a change of venue under Code Civ. Proc. § 397(c)); Maxwell v. Murray (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 440, 443, 11 Cal. Rptr. 916 (holding that both factors must be shown under Code Civ. Proc. § 396b)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Change of Venue

50-571 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 571.40

§ 571.40 Burden of Proof

[1] Presumption of Proper Venue

The plaintiff's choice of venue is presumptively correct [Buran Equipment Co. v. Superior Court (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1662, 1666, 236 Cal. Rptr. 171 ; Easton v. Superior Court (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 243, 246-247, 90 Cal. Rptr. 642]. Thus, the county in which the title of the action shows that it is brought is, prima facie, the proper county for the commencement and trial of the action absent an affirmative showing to the contrary [Mission Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 921, 928, 184 Cal. Rptr. 296, 647 P.2d 1075 ; Smith v. Stanford Research Institute (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 750, 753, 28 Cal. Rptr. 481].

[2] Required Showing to Meet Burden

[a] In General

The general rule is that the moving party must show (1) that the action is proper in the county to which he or she seeks a transfer, and (2) that the county in which the action was filed was improper under any applicable theory [Mosby v. Superior Court (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 219, 228, 117 Cal. Rptr. 588 ; Sequoia Pine Mills, Inc. v. Superior Court (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 65, 68, 65 Cal. Rptr. 353]. For example, a corporate defendant seeking a change of venue in a contract action brought in a county other than where it has its principal place of business must show that the contract was not made or to be performed in that county, or that the obligation or liability of the defendant did not arise there, or that any breach of obligation did not occur there [Shores v. Chip Steak Co. (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 620,623, 279 P.2d 591 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 (venue in actions against corporations and associations); see discussion in § 571.18[1]].

[b] Burden in Motion Based on Ground That Action Commenced in Wrong Court

When a motion to change venue is based on the ground that the action was "not in the proper court," the burden of showing facts to justify a change of venue is on the defendant [Massae v. Superior Court (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 527, 530, 173 Cal. Rptr. 527 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 397(a)]. For example, if the motion is based on the defendant's residence under Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a), the defendant is required to show that at the commencement of the action, he or she was not a resident of the county where the action was brought, and that he or she is a resident of the county to which he or she asks that the place of trial be moved [Sequoia Pine Mills, Inc. v. Superior Court (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 65, 67-68, 65 Cal. Rptr. 353] . If the defendant makes this showing, the burden of proof shifts back to the plaintiff [Stute v. Burinda (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 11, 15 , 177 Cal. Rptr. 102] . The plaintiff must then show that the case comes clearly within one of the statutory exceptions to the general rule that actions are triable at the place of defendant's residence [Archer v. Superior Court (1961) 202 Cal. App. 2d 417, 420, 21 Cal. Rptr. 48 ; see discussion in § 571.16[3] for rules in contract actions, and § 571.17[1] for local actions and how situs of subject matter of action controls].

[c] Burden in Motion Based on Other Grounds

If the motion is based on Code Civ. Proc. § 397(a)-(d), the burden is on the moving party, whether he or she is plaintiff or defendant [see City of Stockton v. Ellingwood (1926) 78 Cal. App. 117, 121-122, 248 P. 272 (countermotion by defendant based on convenience of witnesses); see also J.I. Case T. Co. v. Copren Bros. (1917) 35 Cal. App. 70, 75-76, 169 P. 443 (motion by plaintiff based on absence of impartial trial)].

The moving party in a Code Civ. Proc. § 397(c) motion has the burden of proving that both the convenience of the witnesses and the ends of justice will be promoted by a change of venue [Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 607, 328 P.2d 953 ; Lieberman v. Superior Court (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 396, 401, 239 Cal. Rptr. 450] . To meet this burden, he or she must first show that the witnesses' proposed testimony is admissible, relevant, and material to some issue in the case [Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 607, 328 P.2d 953 ; see discussion in § 571.33 regarding convenience of witnesses and ends of justice]. The convenience of witnesses may be shown by the fact that the residence of all the witnesses is in the county to which the transfer of the cause is requested, and the inference that the ends of justice will be served may be created by showing that by moving the trial closer to the residence of the witnesses, delay and expense in court proceedings are avoided and savings in the witnesses' time and expenses are effected [Pearson v. Superior Court (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 69, 77, 18 Cal. Rptr. 578] .

§ 571.41 Selection of Transferee Court

[1] Action Commenced in Wrong Court

If the court orders the action or proceeding transferred on the ground that it was commenced in the wrong court, it must be transferred to any proper court that the parties may agree on by stipulation in writing, or made in open court and entered in the minutes or docket. If the parties do not so agree, then the action or proceeding must be transferred to any proper court in the county in which the action or proceeding was commenced that the defendant may designate, or, if there is no proper court in that county, to any proper court, in a proper county, designated by the defendant. If the parties do not agree, and the defendant does not designate the court, or if the court orders the transfer on its own motion as provided by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392-404.8, then the action or proceeding will be transferred to a proper court as determined by the court in which the action or proceeding is pending [Code Civ. Proc. § 398; Cubic Corp. v. Superior Court (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 622, 625, 231 Cal. Rptr. 18] .

[2] Motion Based on Other Grounds

If, for any cause specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 397(b), (c), and (d), the court orders the transfer of an action or proceeding, it must be transferred to a court having jurisdiction of the subject matter of the action that the parties may agree on, by stipulation in writing, or made in open court and entered in the minutes or docket, or, if they do not so agree, then to the nearest or most accessible court, where the objection or cause for making the order does not exist [Code Civ. Proc. § 398].

§ 571.42 Transfer of Pleadings and Papers

When an order is made transferring an action or proceeding under any of the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392-404.8, the clerk shall, after expiration of the time within which a petition for writ of mandate could have been filed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 400, or if the petition is filed, after judgment denying the writ becomes final and on payment of the costs and fees, transmit the pleadings and papers therein (or if the pleadings are oral, a transcript of them) to the clerk (or to the judge when there is no clerk) of the court to which the action or proceeding is being transferred [Code Civ. Proc. § 399; see § 571.37 regarding costs and fees of transfer].

At the time of the transmittal of the papers and pleadings, the clerk shall mail notice to all parties who have appeared in the action or special proceeding, stating the date on which the transmittal occurred. Promptly on receipt of the papers and pleadings, the clerk of the court to which the action or proceeding is transferred shall mail notice to all parties who have appeared in the action or special proceeding, stating the date of the filing of the case and the number assigned to the case in the court [*Code Civ. 50-571 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 571.43

§ 571.43 Effect of Granting Order on Jurisdiction

[1] Transferee Court

The court to which an action or proceeding is transferred under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392-404.8 shall have and exercise over the action or proceeding the same jurisdiction as if it had been originally commenced therein, all prior proceedings being saved, and the court may require such amendment of the pleadings, the filing and service of the amended, additional, or supplemental pleadings, and the giving of such notice as may be necessary for the proper presentation and determination of the action or proceeding in the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 399].

[2] Transferor Court

The court granting the motion for a change of venue is without jurisdiction to make any further order or take any further steps in the action [Chase v. Superior Court (1908) 154 Cal. 789, 792, 99 P. 355 ; Moore v. Powell (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 583, 587-588, 138 Cal. Rptr. 914] . However, the transferor court may consider a motion to vacate the order made under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, which provides for relief from mistake, inadvertance, surprise, or excusable neglect [Badella v. Miller (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 81, 86, 279 P.2d 729] . Further, the court may dismiss the action if the transfer fees are not paid within 30 days of service of notice of the order transferring the action [Moore v. Powell (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 583, 587-588, 138 Cal. Rptr. 914 ; Code Civ. Proc. § 399; see § 571.37 regarding costs and fees of transfer].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Change of Venue

50-571 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 571.44

§ 571.44 Renewal of Motion

A court has jurisdiction to consider a renewal of a motion for change of venue, but as a matter of policy and practice, renewal of the same motion is discouraged, and the renewed motion will almost invariably be denied when the grounds are the same. However, when circumstances have changed, renewal of the motion may be proper. In such a case, the renewed motion must be made within reasonable time after knowledge of the changed circumstances is or should have been acquired [Thompson v. Superior Court (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 300, 306, 103 Cal. Rptr. 94] .

There are several other circumstances when a renewed motion may be considered by the court. For example, a court is able to entertain a renewed motion if the first motion was expressly denied without prejudice [Lundy v. Lettunich (1920) 50 Cal. App. 451, 454-455, 195 P. 451] . Further, successive motions may be considered if they are made by different parties [Marshall v. Dunlap (1955) 138 Cal. App. 2d 59, 60-61, 291 P.2d 538] . A renewed motion may also be proper if it is made on a different ground than the previous one [Seybert v. County of Imperial (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 221, 226-230, 293 P.2d 135] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Change of Venue

50-571 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 571.45

§ 571.45 Actions Involving Installment or Automotive Sales, Consumer Obligations, or Unlawful Detainer

[1] Pleading Must Show Proper Venue

In limited civil cases dealing with certain consumer-related subjects, the fact that the action is filed in the proper court and falls within one of those subject matter areas must appear from a verified complaint or an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) [Code Civ. Proc. § 396a].

This requirement applies to actions or proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 396a]:

- Subject to Civ. Code § 1812.10 (venue in installment contract actions under the Unruh and Rees-Levering Act).
- Subject to Civ. Code § 2984.4 (venue in contract action under the Automobile Sales Finance Act).
- Subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b), which governs venue in actions arising from:
  - The offer or provision of goods, services, loans, or extensions of credit intended primarily for personal, family, or household use.
  - Transactions consummated as proximate result of unsolicited telephone calls made by a seller engaged in the business of consummating transactions of that kind.
  - Transactions consummated as proximate result of a telephone call or electronic transmission made by the buyer or lessee in response to a solicitation by the seller.
- For an unlawful detainer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161].

[2] Transfer of Case

[a] Case Not Commenced in Proper Court

If it appears from the complaint, affidavit, or declaration, or otherwise, that the court in which the action or proceeding was commenced is not the proper court for its trial, the court in which the action or proceeding is commenced, or a judge thereof, shall, whenever that fact appears, transfer it to the proper court, on its own motion, or on motion of the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 396a]. If, however, the defendant consents in writing, or in open court (consent in open court being entered in the minutes or docket of the court) to keeping the action or proceeding in the court where it was commenced, it may continue in that court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 396a (requiring defendant to be represented by counsel at time of giving consent)].

If a case is ordered transferred under this provision and summons is served before the action or proceeding is filed in the court to which it is transferred, as to any defendant so served, who has not appeared in the action or proceeding, the time to answer or otherwise plead dates from service on that defendant of written notice of the filing [Code Civ. Proc. § 396a].

[b] Case Commenced in Proper Court

Even if it appears from the plaintiff's complaint or affidavit that the court in which the action or proceeding is commenced is a proper court for its trial, a motion for a transfer of the action or proceeding may be made as in other cases, within the time, on the grounds, and in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 392 et seq. If on that motion it appears that the action or proceeding is not pending in the proper court, or should for other cause be transferred, it is to be ordered transferred as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 392 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 396a].

[c] Procedure and Fees

When any action or proceeding is ordered transferred as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 396a, proceedings are to be had, and the costs and fees to be paid, as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 398 and 399 [Code Civ. Proc. § 396a].

For discussion,see § 571.41 regarding selection of transferee court, and § 571.37 regarding costs and fees of transfer.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Change of Venue

50-571 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 571.46

§ 571.46 Review of Court Orders Relating to Motions for Change of Venue

[1] Motions in Superior Court

When an order is made by the superior court granting or denying a motion to change the place of trial, the party aggrieved by the order may, within 20 days after service of a written notice of the order, petition the court of appeal for the district in which the court granting or denying the motion is situated for a writ of mandate requiring trial of the case in the proper court. The superior court may, for good cause, and prior to the expiration of the initial 20-day period, extend the time for one additional period not to exceed 10 days [Code Civ. Proc. § 400].

The petitioner shall file a copy of the petition in the trial court immediately after the petition is filed in the court of appeal. The court of appeal may stay all proceedings in the case, pending judgment on the petition becoming final. The clerk of the court of appeal shall file with the clerk of the trial court a copy of any final order or final judgment immediately after the order or judgment becomes final [Code Civ. Proc. § 400]. For forms and discussion relating to mandate in general,see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

[2] Standard of Review

When a change of venue is a matter of right, an appellate court will not disturb an order made on conflicting evidence unless it is clear that the order was the result of arbitrary action [see Swartz v. Cal. Olive Growers Etc. Corp. (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 168, 170-171, 133 P.2d 20 (suit commenced in wrong court); see Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(a) (framed in mandatory language and requiring action or proceeding not commenced in proper court to be transferred to proper court)].

Granting or denying a Code Civ. Proc. § 397(c) motion is discretionary with the trial court, and an appellate court will reverse an order only on a clear showing of abuse of discretion. For example, the denial of a motion to change venue would be an abuse of discretion if there was a showing that the convenience of witnesses and ends of justice would be be promoted by the change, and there was absolutely no showing whatever to contrary. Under this circumstance, there would be no evidence to sustain the decision of the trial court [Union Trust Life Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 23, 28, 66 Cal. Rptr. 270] .

Thus, the appellate court is required to determine that sufficient facts have been shown on which the trial court could base its exercise of discretion [Dillman v. Superior Court (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 769, 774, 23 Cal. Rptr. 498] . The judgment will not be disturbed when the evidence on the motion for change of venue is conflicting [Wheeler v. Moschetti (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 827, 829, 10 Cal. Rptr. 722] . All conflicts are required to be resolved in favor of the prevailing party, and all reasonable inferences which are to be drawn must be in support of the trial court's order [City of Long Beach v. Lakewood Park (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 596, 598, 258 P.2d 538] . For forms and discussion relating to the scope of review on appeal in general,see Ch. 41, Appeal: Review Standard and Appellate Rules of Law .

[3] Time to Answer After Review

If the order granting or denying a motion to transfer pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 396a or 396b is the subject of an appeal pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 904.2 in which a stay is granted, or is the subject of a mandate proceeding pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 400, the court having jurisdiction over the trial, on application or on its own motion after the appeal or mandate proceeding becomes final or on earlier termination of a stay, shall allow the defendant a reasonable time to respond to the complaint. Notice of the order allowing the defendant further time to respond to the complaint shall be promptly served by the party who obtained such order or by the clerk if the order is made on the court's own motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(6)(C)].

PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
A. Place of Trial

50-571 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 571.62

§ 571.62 Decisions

[1] Jurisdiction Distinguished

California venue requirement as not jurisdictional because proper venue may be waived if not timely asserted; challenge to state court venue as not defeating federal jurisdiction when state court venue not jurisdictional. Transure, Inc. v. Marsh & McLennan, Inc. (9th Cir. 1985) 766 F.2d 1297, 1300-1301

Venue as not jurisdictional, except in few cases in which statute makes local place of trial part of grant of subject matter jurisdiction. Barquis v. Merchants Collection Assn. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 94, 121, 101 Cal. Rptr. 745, 496 P.2d 817 ; Newman v. County of Sonoma (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 625, 627, 15 Cal. Rptr. 914, 364 P.2d 850 ; Channell v. Superior Court (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 246, 250, 38 Cal. Rptr. 13

Under state law, a venue selection clause is purely an intrastate issue involving the selection of a county in which to hold the trial. By contrast, a forum selection clause usually chooses a court from among different states or nations. Alexander v. Superior Court (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 723, 727, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 111

[2] Venue Defined

Venue provisions as prescribing where action may be tried. Channell v. Superior Court (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 246, 249, 38 Cal. Rptr. 13

[3] Classification of Actions--Determined by Complaint

Nature of cause of action in so far as it affects or determines place of trial as ascertained from complaint alone. Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 601, 328 P.2d 953

Question of transitory or local nature of causes of action as determined from allegations of complaint on file at time motion for change of venue made, and from nature of judgment which might be rendered on complaint. Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 603, 328 P.2d 953 ; Neet v. Holmes (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 605, 607, 122 P.2d 557 ; Thielen v. Superior Court (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 217, 218, 33 Cal. Rptr. 1 ; Franco Western Oil Co. v. Cameron (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 37, 38, 19 Cal. Rptr. 304

Pleader as required to frame complaint to show clearly that he or she is entitled to retain trial of action in county in which it was commenced. Neet v. Holmes (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 605, 613, 122 P.2d 557

Subject matter of action and issues involved as determinable from facts pleaded, rather than from title or prayer for relief. Standard Brands of California v. Bryce (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 718, 721, 37 P.2d 446

To the extent a venue selection clause disrupts statutory venue provisions, it is void as against the legislatively declared public policy fixing the place for trial. Alexander v. Superior Court (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 723, 731-732, 8 Cal.Rptr. 3d 111

[4] Main Relief Rule

When complaint states only one cause of action, characterization of cause of action as local or transitory as controlled by nature of "main relief" sought, or "principal object" of action. Massae v. Superior Court (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 527, 535, 173 Cal. Rptr. 527

Venue as determined by "main relief" rule when there is only one cause of action and different forms of relief are sought. Dreher v. Fidelity & Casualty Co. (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 695, 697, 307 P.2d 407

[5] Local Actions

[a] Generally

Right of plaintiff to have action tried in county other than that of defendant's residence as exceptional, and plaintiff who claims that right as required to bring himself or herself within exception. Kaluzok v. Brisson (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 760, 763, 167 P.2d 481 ; Johnson v. Superior Court (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 212, 215, 42 Cal. Rptr. 645 ; Deas v. Lido Lumber Co. (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 402, 404, 282 P.2d 90

Action as required to be tried in county where subject matter of action situated if subject matter is local and judgment sought is to operate directly on it. Smith v. Smith (1891) 88 Cal. 572, 576, 26 P. 356 ; Channell v. Superior Court (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 246, 251, 38 Cal. Rptr. 13 ; Beutke v. American Securities Co. (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 354, 359, 282 P.2d 201

Defendant as able to invoke Code Civ. Proc. § 392 only when real estate alone is subject matter of action. Smith v. Smith (1891) 88 Cal. 572, 576, 26 P.356 ; Channell v. Superior Court (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 246, 251, 38 Cal. Rptr. 13 ; All-Cool Alum. Etc. Co. v. Superior Court (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 660, 667, 36 Cal. Rptr. 769 ; Beutke v. American Securities Co. (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 354, 360, 282 P.2d 201

[b] Personal Representative or Trustee

All actions brought to recover money or personal property against executrix, executor, administrator, guardian or trustee as required to be brought in county that has jurisdiction over estate. Metzger v. Silverman (1976) 62 Cal. App.

3d Supp. 30, 37 , 133 Cal. Rptr. 355

Action against administrator or executor in his or her official capacity to recover personal property which had been entrusted to decedent as subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 395.1. Haines v. Lamb (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 322, 325-326, 24 Cal. Rptr. 146

[c] Foreclosure of Liens and Mortgages on Real Property

Action alleging that party against whom personal judgment is sought holds interest in real property and seeking foreclosure on that interest as action to foreclose lien, which must be tried in county in which land is situated. Case v. Kirkwood (1931) 119 Cal. App. 207, 211, 6 P.2d 110

[d] Injury to Real Property Defined

"Injury to real property" as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 392(1)(a) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1)) as embracing every wrong that in legal contemplation is injury to real property, including not only direct and forcible injury, but consequential injuries, threatened injuries to land, and even mere nonfeasance, as permissive waste. Coley v. Hecker (1928) 206 Cal. 22, 28, 272 P. 1045 ; Strosnider v. Pomin (1939) 32 Cal. App. 2d 103, 108, 89 P.2d 179

Construction defect actions asserting damage to buildings affixed to real property as stating claim for injury to real property, and therefore, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 392(1)(a) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1)), venue is appropriate in county where property is located. Foundation Engineers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 104, 111-113, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 469

[e] Public Officers

State agency, department, institution, board, or other public entity as "public officer," absent statutory designation of administrative or enforcement officer, in action founded on its official action. Regents of University of California v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 529, 537, 91 Cal. Rptr. 57, 476 P.2d 457

Bay Area Air Quality Management District, Colusa Air Pollution Control District, and Imperial, Santa Barbara, and Yolo-Solano County Air Pollution Control Districts, as public entities sued on claims arising from the conduct of their official action, as public officers within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 393(1)(b), relating to venue of actions against public officers. Colusa Air Pollution Control Dist. v. Superior Court (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 880, 888, 277 Cal. Rptr. 110

Venue in mandamus action brought under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 as governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 393(1)(b) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 393(b)). Sutter Union High School Dist. v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 795, 797, 190 Cal. Rptr. 182 ; Lynch v. Superior Court (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 929, 931, 86 Cal. Rptr. 925

Governing board of school district as public officer within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 393. Sutter Union High School Dist. v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 795, 797, 190 Cal. Rptr. 182

Code Civ. Proc. § 393(1)(b) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 393(b)) as applying only to affirmative acts that directly interfere with personal rights or property of person complaining, and to acts done as distinguished from acts threatened. Harris v. Alcoholic Bev. Etc. Appeals Bd. (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 759, 768, 18 Cal. Rptr. 151

Code Civ. Proc. § 393(1)(b) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 393(b)) as taking precedence over Code Civ. Proc. § 395.

Cecil v. Superior Court (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 793, 794, 140 P.2d 125

[f] Title to or Possession of Real Property

Nature of action as local, and as required to be tried in county where land is situated, when action turns on title to property as distinct from personal obligation, and decree operates by its own force on title. Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 603, 328 P.2d 953 ; Neet v. Holmes (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 605, 611-612, 122 P.2d 557 ; Thielen v. Superior Court (1963) 219 Cal. App2d 217, 219, 33 Cal. Rptr. 1 ; Ponderosa Sky Ranch v. Okay Improvement Corp. (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 227, 230, 22 Cal. Rptr. 90

Action as required to be wholly local in nature to require it to be brought in county of situs as designated in Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a). Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 605, 328 P.2d 953 ; Radio K-Dan, Inc. v. Superior Court (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 544, 548, 40 Cal. Rptr. 382 ; Hammon v. American Etc. Mining Co. (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 306, 311, 21 Cal. Rptr. 409

Action to cancel deed on ground of fraud and to compel reconveyance to or reverting of title in plaintiff as local action. Eckstrand v. Wilshusen (1933) 217 Cal. 380, 382-383, 18 P.2d 931

Slander of title as local action on theory that action is one in which determination of owner's right or interest in title is properly adjudicated, and also that slander of title is injury to real property. Coley v. Hecker (1928) 206 Cal. 22, 26, 272 P. 1045 ; Wick v. Mattison (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 608, 609, 24 Cal. Rptr. 677

Action to eliminate power of sale contained in deed of trust as having real and direct impact on right or interest in real property. Massae v. Superior Court (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 527, 538-539, 173 Cal. Rptr. 527

Landowner's or tenant's suit for damages to growing crops as real property action, with venue lying in county of land situs. Stauffer Chemical Co. v. Superior Court (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 1, 3, 71 Cal. Rptr. 202

Action for fraud with respect to conveyance of real property as transitory if vendee sues for damages and as local if vendee seeks to reobtain title. Hammon v. American Etc. Mining Co. (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 306, 310, 21 Cal. Rptr. 409

Action for specific performance of contract for sale of realty as deemed local if brought by vendee, since vendee seeks possession. Hammon v. American Etc. Mining Co. (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 306, 309, 21 Cal. Rptr. 409

Local action as not becoming partly transitory merely because it may require determination of amount of benefits received by plaintiff. Franco Western Oil Co. v. Cameron (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 37, 40, 19 Cal. Rptr. 304

Action as not rendered transitory because it may require determination of amount of benefits received by defendants. Etter v. Vollmer (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 718, 720, 294 P.2d 55

Determination of rights of homesteaders as heard in county where homestead is situated. Wood v. Emig (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d 851, 857, 137 P.2d 875

Action for specific performance of contract for sale of realty as deemed local if brought by vendee, since vendee seeks possession. Hammon v. American Etc. Mining Co. (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 306, 309, 21 Cal. Rptr. 409

Complaint having for its sole and exclusive object cancellation of deed or deed of trust for fraud as local. Beutke v. American Securities Co. (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 354, 359, 282 P.2d 201

[g] Title or Possession Incidentally Involved

Nature of action as essentially transitory, and defendants as entitled to trial in county of their residence, if determination of estate or interest in land is merely incidental to determination of cause for equitable relief in trust, fraud, or contract. Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 603, 328 P.2d 953 ; Neet v. Holmes (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 605, 611, 122 P.2d 557 ; Ponderosa Sky Ranch v. Okay Improvement Corp. (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 227, 230, 22 Cal. Rptr. 90

Action for damages for deceit in inducing plaintiffs to purchase real property, rather than for rescission and restitution resulting in reconveyance, as not within exception provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 392(1)(a) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1)). Kaluzok v. Brisson (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 760, 763-764, 167 P.2d 481

Action as transitory rather than local when right to any real property sought by plaintiffs depends on outcome of controversy concerning personal obligation of defendants, and judgment rendered thereon would be one to enforce that obligation. Radio K-Dan, Inc. v. Superior Court (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 544, 548, 40 Cal. Rptr. 382

Action for breach of mineral lease, principally seeking royalties for removed minerals, injunction against encumbrance of claims covered by agreement, and decree establishing rights and duties of parties under contract as not becoming local action merely because realty may be involved. Hammon v. American Etc. Mining Co. (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 306, 21 Cal. Rptr. 409

Action as required to be classified as transitory when plaintiff's sole and main relief consists of money judgment, and other relief is incidental to that end, even if action involves realty. Hammon v. American Etc. Mining Co. (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 306, 309, 21 Cal. Rptr. 409

Action in which lessor sues for breach of lease as transitory even though rights in property may be involved. Hammon v. American Etc. Mining Co. (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 306, 310, 21 Cal. Rptr. 409

Action for specific performance of contract for sale of realty as deemed transitory if brought by vendor, because vendor merely seeks purchase price. Hammon v. American Etc. Mining Co. (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 306, 309, 21 Cal. Rptr. 409

Action in which lessor sues for breach of lease as transitory even though rights in property may be involved. Hammon v. American Etc. Mining Co. (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 306, 310, 21 Cal. Rptr. 409

Action by vendor for purchase price of land, or action by vendor for specific performance of vendee's contract to purchase land as not within Code Civ. Proc. § 392(1)(a) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1)). Marcacci v. Continental Baking Co. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 224, 226-227, 20 Cal. Rptr. 567

Action to cancel or reform a promissory note secured by deed of trust as transitory. Beutke v. American Securities Co. (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 354, 359, 282 P.2d 201

Trespass action seeking damages as not local. Hardy v. White (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 550, 552, 279 P.2d 126

[6] Transitory Actions

[a] Generally

Action as transitory when main relief sought is personal. Brown v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 477, 482 n.5,

208 Cal. Rptr. 724, 691 P.2d 272

General spirit and policy of Code Civ. Proc. § 395 as giving defendant right of having all personal actions against him or her tried in county of his or her residence. Turlock Theatre Co. v. Laws (1939) 12 Cal. 2d 573, 576 ; Smith v. Smith (1891) 88 Cal. 572, 575, 26 P. 356 ; Enter v. Crutcher (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 841, 844 , 323 P.2d 586 ; Postin v. Griggs (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 147, 149, 151 P.2d 887

Code Civ. Proc. § 395 as intended to protect defendant from expense and inconvenience of being compelled to go to distant county to defend against action that might be commenced against him or her there. Smith v. Smith (1891) 88 Cal. 572, 576, 26 P. 356

Code Civ. Proc. § 395 as applying in absence of specific governing statute. Sutter Union High School Dist. v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 795, 798, 190 Cal. Rptr. 182

Venue of transitory action against natural person as governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 395. Mosby v. Superior Court (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 219, 223, 117 Cal. Rptr. 588

Code Civ. Proc. § 395 as prevailing unless cause of action set forth in complaint falls wholly within provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392-394. Channell v. Superior Court (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 246, 251, 38 Cal. Rptr. 13

General rule states that defendant is entitled to have actions tried in county of his or her residence. Maxwell v. Murray (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 440, 442, 11 Cal. Rptr. 916

[b] Application of Basic Rule of Residence Venue

Venue for declaratory relief action as determined by reference to nature of subject matter of action, except when complaint seeks determination of alleged liability asserted by defendant against plaintiff, in which case venue is determined by the subject matter of defendant's cause of action. Mission Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 921, 930, 184 Cal. Rptr. 296, 647 P.2d 1075 ; Standard Brands of California v. Bryce (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 718, 720-721, 37 P.2d 446

Action for accounting as essentially personal action. Bardwell v. Turner (1933) 219 Cal. 228, 230, 25 P.2d 978 ; Smith v. Smith (1891) 88 Cal. 572, 576,26 P. 356 ; Postin v. Griggs (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 147, 149, 151 P.2d 887 ; Stesel v. Santa Ana River Water Co. (1939) 35 Cal. App. 2d 117, 126-127, 94 P.2d 1052

Code Civ. Proc. § 395 as not giving person against whom alleged libel is published in newspaper right to maintain his or her action in any county in which newspaper may circulate. Graham v. Mixon (1917) 177 Cal. 88, 93, 169 P. 1003

In action arising from loan obtained primarily for personal, family, or household use, which was a consumer transaction specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b), where borrower resided in Santa Clara County at the time his action commenced, venue was proper in Santa Clara County. The court rejected the lender's argument that Section 395(b) applied only to actions against a consumer defendant, or, alternatively, does not apply where the consumer was the plaintiff and one of the defendants was an individual. Fontaine v. Superior Court (Cashcall, Inc.) (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 830, 838, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 607

Action based on injury to person or personal property which is not physical injury, such as libel, malicious prosecution, and false imprisonment, as triable solely at defendant's residence. Johnson v. Superior Court (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 212, 218, 42 Cal. Rptr. 645

Action to have judgment declared null and void based on alleged fraud and mistake, and prayer for equitable relief as personal and transitory action, and as not required to be tried in county where judgment was rendered. Deas v. Lido Lumber Co. (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 402, 404, 282 P.2d 90

Suit in equity, in personam, as transitory action. Sloan v. Court Hotel (1945) 72 Cal. App. 2d 308, 316, 164 P.2d 516

Action to cancel promissory note on ground of fraud as triable in county of defendant's residence. Postin v. Griggs (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 147, 150, 151 P.2d 887

Action for cancellation of contract for purchase and sale of realty and for money judgment based on alleged fraud as triable in county of defendant's residence. Postin v. Griggs (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 147, 150, 151 P.2d 887

Action for rescission of contract, accounting, and injunction based on fraud as personal action that defendants are entitled to have tried in county of their residence. Postin v. Griggs (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 147, 150, 151 P.2d 887

Action for conversion as required to be tried in county where defendant resides. Mason v. Buck (1929) 99 Cal. App. 219, 221, 278 P. 461

[c] Contract Actions

[i] Exception to Basic Rule of Residence Venue

Breach of contract as transitory cause of action. Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 601, 328 P.2d 953

General rule that residence of defendant is proper place for trial as applying to contract actions with certain exceptions set out in former Code Civ. Proc. § 395(1) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)). Haurat v. Superior Court (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 330, 333, 50 Cal. Rptr. 520

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 395, defendant as entitled to have action transferred to county of his or her residence unless obligation was incurred or was to be performed in another county. Braunstein v. Superior Court (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 691, 694, 37 Cal. Rptr. 666

Action as properly brought in county in which defendants or some of them reside if original cause of action was based on contract, which plaintiff sought to have interpreted or reformed and enforced. Ponderosa Sky Ranchv. Okay Improv. Corp. (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 227, 230, 22 Cal. Rptr. 90

Plaintiff as entitled to have action tried in county in which contract was entered into despite defendant's residence in another county. Richardson v. Rose (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 318, 322, 17 Cal. Rptr. 84

Action based on fraud, and in which plaintiff seeks rescission and accounting, as triable in county of defendant's residence regardless of where contract sought to be cancelled was executed, and as not "founded" on contract sought to be cancelled. Postin v. Griggs (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 147, 150, 151 P.2d 887

[ii] Where Contract Entered Into

Code Civ. Proc. § 395 as interpreted to mean that all actions arising on contract shall be tried in county in which defendant resides, or in which contract was made, unless defendant has contracted specially and in writing as to county in which his or her obligation is to be performed, in which event that county is also proper county for trial of action. Dawson v. Goff (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 310, 314, 273 P.2d 1 ; Braunstein v. Superior Court (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 691,

695, 37 Cal. Rptr. 666 ; Wilson v. Scannavino (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 369, 371, 324 P.2d 350 ; Armstrong v. Smith (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 528, 532, 122 P.2d 115

Obligation as incurred at time contract is made and obligations under it arise and are incurred in county in which it is made. Dawson v. Goff (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 310, 315, 273 P.2d 1

Obligation under option contract incurred when option contract made. Dawson v. Goff (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 310, 318, 273 P.2d 1

Contract as entered into in county in which it was signed. Braunstein v. Superior Court (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 691, 694, 37 Cal. Rptr. 666

Place at which contract bears date as prima facie place where it was made. Braunstein v. Superior Court (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 691, 696, 37 Cal. Rptr. 666 ; Archer v. Superior Court (1961) 202 Cal. App. 2d 417, 419, 21 Cal. Rptr. 48

When contract made by telephone, contract as entered into where recipient of message accepted offer. Friedman Bag Co., Inc. v. Shrier (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 561, 564, 15 Cal. Rptr. 38 ; Wilson v. Scannavino (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 369, 371, 324 P.2d 350

Place where contract actually becomes complete as place where it is made, and its consummation as place where last act necessary to complete its validity is performed. Cal-Ore Lumber Sales v. Russell (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 296, 303-304, 284 P.2d 179 ; Fitzhugh v. University Realty Co. (1920) 46 Cal. App. 198, 199, 188 P. 1023

Allegation in complaint that oral agreement was to be performed in specific county, which is not denied by defendant, as admitted, and defendant as estopped to contend that contract not entered into in that county. Gilman v. Nordin (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 788, 792, 247 P.2d 394

Limitation in former Code Civ. Proc. § 395(1) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)) stating that county in which obligation incurred shall be deemed to be county in which it is performed as effectively cutting down number of counties in which action on contract may properly be tried to two, namely, county in which defendant resides, and county in which contract was made. Armstrong v. Smith (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 528, 531, 122 P.2d 115

Absent special agreement as to place where contract is to be performed, contract as deemed performable at creditor's place of business, or absent contrary showing, contract deemed performable where it is made. Roos v. Jansen (1938) 30 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 773, 775, 78 P.2d 746

Quasi-contract as going into effect immediately on service of notice of rescission of original contract in county where notice was served. Fitzhugh v. University Realty Co. (1920) 46 Cal. App. 198, 201, 188 P. 1023

[iii] "Special Contract in Writing"

Place of performance exception in Code Civ. Proc. § 395 as referring exclusively to place where defendant's obligation under contract is to be performed. Mosby v. Superior Court (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 219, 224, 117 Cal. Rptr. 588

"Special contract in writing" as contemplated by Code Civ. Proc. § 395 as requiring express provision not dependent on implication. Mitchell v. Superior Court (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1040, 1047, 1049, 231 Cal. Rptr. 176 ; Mosby v. Superior Court (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 219, 224, 117 Cal. Rptr. 588 ; Braunstein v. Superior Court (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 691, 696, 37 Cal. Rptr. 666

Contract as required to specifically state place of performance of obligation before action may be brought under Code Civ. Proc. § 395 in county where obligation is performable. Mitchell v. Superior Court (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1040, 1047, 1049, 231 Cal. Rptr. 176 ; Wathen v. Superior Court (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 125, 129, 27 Cal. Rptr. 840 ; Armstrong v. Smith (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 528, 536, 122 P.2d 115 ; Fidelity Thrift & Loan Asso. v. Hall (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 895, 899 , 9 Cal. Rptr. 596

In contract action, venue and proper court for trial in particular judicial district as place where contractual obligation is to be performed as long as contract specifies in writing place of performance. Stute v. Burinda (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 11, 14 , 177 Cal. Rptr. 102

Mere specification of geographic location for payment in written contract as sufficient to satisfy "special contract" provision in Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a), and as giving plaintiff right to specify place of payment as place for trial of action on contract. Stute v. Burinda (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 11, 16 , 177 Cal. Rptr. 102

"Special contract" requirement as met by agreement to pay money in particular county, to deliver goods at particular place, or to perform obligation in particular city. Wathen v. Superior Court (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 125, 129, 27 Cal. Rptr. 840

Requirements of "special contract" as met if express stipulation respecting obligation in question is embodied in agreement giving rise to action. Armstrong v. Smith (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 528, 536, 122 P.2d 115

[d] Injury to Person or Personal Property

"Injury to person" as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 395 as referring only to injuries of a physical or bodily nature, and not to injuries to character or reputation. Monk v. Ehret (1923) 192 Cal. 186, 193, 219 P. 452 ; Carruth v. Superior Court (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 215, 219, 145 Cal. Rptr. 344

"Injury to person" as limited to wrongful or negligent act of another, and as not intended to extend right of place of trial to trespass based on false imprisonment. Monk v. Ehret (1923) 192 Cal. 186, 192-193, 219 P. 452

Malicious prosecution as not a Code Civ. Proc. § 395 "injury to person." Carruth v. Superior Court (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 215, 219, 145 Cal. Rptr. 344

Defendant as entitled to have negligence action tried either in county of his or her residence or in county where tort occurred. Maxwell v. Murray (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 440, 443, 11 Cal. Rptr. 916

[e] Residence Defined

Person as able to have only one residence at time. Enter v. Crutcher (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 841, 844 , 323 P.2d 586

"Residence" as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 395 as not referring to "domicile," but used in sense of place in which to live, dwell, abide, sojourn, stay, remain, or lodge. Enter v. Crutcher (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 841, 844-845 , 323 P.2d 586

Residence as established by personal presence in fixed and permanent abode, with intent of remaining there. Enter v. Crutcher (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 841, 845 , 323 P.2d 586

Elements necessary to create residence as actual bodily presence in place combined with freely exercised intention of remaining there permanently or for indefinite time. Enter v. Crutcher (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 841, 845 , 323 P.2d 586

Address as not always synonymous with "residence." Enter v. Crutcher (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 841, 846 , 323 P.2d 586

[7] Venue Governed by Party

[a] When Basic Rule of Venue Applies to Corporations

Corporation as having no standing to move for transfer to its principal place of business if venue in county other than corporation's principal place of business is proper. Mission Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 921, 928, 184 Cal. Rptr. 296, 647 P.2d 1075 ; Hale v. Bohannon (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 458, 478, 241 P.2d 4

When corporation and individual defendant are properly joined as defendants, and action is commenced in county where corporation has its principal place of business, individual defendant as not able to have action moved to county of his or her residence for trial. Hale v. Bohannon (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 458, 472, 241 P.2d 4 ; Dillman v. Superior Court (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 769, 772, 23 Cal. Rptr. 498

Principal place of business of corporation as its residence for purpose of determining venue. Hale v. Bohannon (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 458, 472, 241 P.2d 4 ; All-Cool Aluminum Awning Co. v. Superior Court of Kern County (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 660, 36 Cal. Rptr. 769 ; Beutke v. American Securities Co. (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 354, 360, 282 P.2d 201

[b] Domestic Corporations

[i] Generally

Purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 as to permit wider choice of venue in suits against corporation than is permitted in suits against individual. Mission Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 921, 928, 184 Cal. Rptr. 296, 647 P.2d 1075 ; Hale v. Bohannon (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 458, 469, 241 P.2d 4

Application of Code Civ. Proc. § 395 to actions against corporations as in direct conflict with and narrowing former Cal. Const. art. XII, § 16 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5) by materially reducing number of possible counties for trial of action. Hale v. Bohannon (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 458, 470-471, 241 P.2d 4

Effect of former Cal. Const., art. XII, § 16 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5) as authorizing plaintiffs to sue at the place where the cause of action arises, or at the corporation's place of business. Hale v. Bohannon (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 458, 476, 241 P.2d 4

Corporation as entitled to change of venue to county of its principal place of business under last clause of former Cal. Const., art. XII, § 16 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5) when plaintiff fails to bring action in any county specified therein. Hale v. Bohannon (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 458, 478, 241 P.2d 4 ; Beutke v. American Securities Co. (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 354, 361, 282 P.2d 201 ; Shores v. Chip Steak Co. (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 620, 623, 279 P.2d 591

Intention of former Cal. Const., art. XII, § 16 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5) as to benefit plaintiff, who otherwise would be obliged to travel to corporation's principal place of business to commence action. Hale v. Bohannon (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 458, 479, 241 P.2d 4

Corporation is deemed bound by designation of principal place of business in corporate documents filed with Secretary of State and cannot defeat venue in that county by showing it has no office or place of business there. Rosas v. Superior Court (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 671, 673-674, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 609

Under former Cal. Const. art. XII, § 16 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5), maintenance of action on quasi-contract against corporation as properly in county in which quasi-contract was made. Fitzhugh v. University Realty Co. (1920) 46 Cal. App. 198, 201, 188 P. 1023

[ii] Where Contract Is Made or to Be Performed

Contract of corporation as held performable in place where circumstances, viewed in light of pertinent code provisions, indicate that parties expected or intended it to be performed. Burr v. Western States Life Ins. Co. (1931) 211 Cal. 568, 574, 296 P. 273

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5, place of contract's making as determined by last act necessary to validity of contract, usually act constituting acceptance. Jhirmack Enterprises, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 715, 723, 158 Cal. Rptr. 192

[iii] Where Obligation or Liability Arises

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5, place of making contract as place where obligation arises. Jhirmack Enterprises, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 715, 723, 158 Cal. Rptr. 192

[c] Foreign Corporations

Foreign corporations that fail to comply with former Civ. Code § 405 (now see Corp. Code § 2105) as having no "residence" within California; if corporation does comply, former Cal. Const., art. XII, § 16 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5) applies. Hale v. Bohannon (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 458, 475, 241 P.2d 4

Foreign corporation that does not establish that it has qualified to do business in California under former Corp. Code § 6403 (now see Corp. Code § 2105) as subject to suit in any county in state. Easton v. Superior Court (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 243, 246-247, 90 Cal. Rptr. 642

Foreign corporation as residing at its principal place of business in this state, as designated in statement it is required to file in office of the Secretary of State pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 405 (now see Corp. Code § 2105), and as entitled to change of venue for same reasons applicable to domestic corporations. Eckles v. Justice's Court (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 269, 271, 190 P.2d 224

[d] State or Local Government or Agency

[i] Actions Against State

Provisions for venue that pertain to other civil actions apply to actions against state agencies and public entities, unless otherwise designated by statute. Regents of University of California v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 529, 534, 91 Cal. Rptr. 57, 476 P.2d 457

Board of Regents of University of California characterized as state institution, public corporation, governmental agency, and public agency, and rules of venue generally applicable to proceedings against state agencies govern actions against Regents. Regents of University of California v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 529, 534, 91 Cal. Rptr. 57, 476 P.2d 457

Statutory provisions as to venue for actions against state agencies liberally construed in favor of private litigant. Regents of University of California v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 529, 536, 91 Cal. Rptr. 57, 476 P.2d 457

Code Civ. Proc. § 401 is not limited to statutes that expressly name Sacramento County as place of trial. Harris v. Alcoholic Bev. Etc. Appeals Bd. (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 759, 764-765, 18 Cal. Rptr. 151

Ordinary venue rules apply to transitory actions against state boards, commissions, departments and agencies, and state agency or board located in Sacramento and involved in transitory action may assert venue there on basis of residence under Code Civ. Proc. § 395. Harris v. Alcoholic Bev. Etc. Appeals Bd. (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 759, 765, 18 Cal. Rptr. 151

Phrase in Code Civ. Proc. § 401 stating "whenever it is provided by any law" encompasses situation in which (1) Sacramento County is named by law as county for commencement, trial, removal of action, or proceeding; and (2) by operation of general rules of venue found in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392-402, Sacramento is county where action or proceeding is properly triable. Harris v. Alcoholic Bev. Etc. Appeals Bd. (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 759, 766, 18 Cal. Rptr. 151

Code Civ. Proc. § 401(1) is not limited to actions defended by Attorney General. Harris v. Alcoholic Bev. Etc. Appeals Bd. (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 759, 767, 18 Cal. Rptr. 151

Code Civ. Proc. § 401(1) as applicable irrespective of whether there is state or nonstate plaintiff. Harris v. Alcoholic Bev. Etc. Appeals Bd. (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 759, 767, 18 Cal. Rptr. 151

[ii] Death or Injury to Person or Personal Property

Discretion under Gov. Code § 955.2 to choose different venue than county where injury occurred is conferred solely on superior court of county where injury occurred; superior court of county where injury did not occur is required to follow statute. State of California v. Superior Court (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 328, 330, 238 Cal. Rptr. 315

Gov. Code § 955.2 is specifically limited only to certain tort actions involving death or injury to person or personal property. Hatcher v. California State University, Fresno (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 3 , 194 Cal. Rptr. 756

[iii] Inverse Condemnation, Money or Damages

Gov. Code § 955, which establishes venue in actions against State for taking or damaging property, relates only to actions on claims for money or damages for which filing of claim is statutory prerequisite, or to actions on claims for money or damages which are specifically exempted from filing requirement. Tharp v. Superior Court (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 496, 500-501, 186 Cal. Rptr. 335, 651 P.2d 1141

[e] Unincorporated Associations

In applying the "liability or obligation" language of Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 to a lawsuit seeking to enforce a statutory obligation or liability against an unincorporated association, there is no reason to try to pigeonhole the action into contract, quasi-contract, or tort categories; instead, statutory liability cases should be analyzed independently for purposes of determining proper venue. An action for declaratory relief against an insurer may be commenced in the county where a third party claimant sues, because that is where the insurer's liability arises; the same rule should be applied where the obligation is created by a statute rather than an insurance contract. The "obligation or liability" provision of section 395.5 does not require that the defendant perform any act inside the county for venue to be proper; it merely requires that the obligation arise there. Black Diamond Asphalt, Inc. v. Superior Court of San Joaquin County (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 166, 171, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 510

Alternative provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 to lay venue in county of principal place of business as applies only to corporations and not to unincorporated associations. Mosby v. Superior Court (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 219, 225, 117 Cal. Rptr. 588

Rule that when plaintiff brings action against several defendants, both individual and corporate, in county that is neither residence nor principal place of business of any defendant, individual defendant has right on proper showing to change of venue to county of his or her residence even though venue as initially laid may otherwise be justifiable on one of four alternative grounds provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 applies to unincorporated associations. Mosby v. Superior Court (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 219, 226, 117 Cal. Rptr. 588

Principal place of business of unincorporated association is county of its residence for venue purposes. Mosby v. Superior Court (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 219, 226, 117 Cal. Rptr. 588

[8] Transfer to Neutral County

[a] Generally

Code Civ. Proc. § 394 is liberally construed. San Francisco Foundation v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 285, 296, 208 Cal. Rptr. 31, 690 P.2d 1 ; Westinghouse Electric Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 259, 266, 131 Cal. Rptr. 231, 551 P.2d 847 ; Garrett v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 245, 248, 113 Cal. Rptr. 152, 520 P.2d 968 ; Finance & Construction Co. v. Sacramento (1928) 204 Cal. 491, 493, 269 P. 167

Code Civ. Proc. § 394 is based on premise that there is substantial risk of prejudice in favor of local government entity. San Francisco Foundation v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 285, 298, 208 Cal. Rptr. 31, 690 P.2d 1 ; Westinghouse Electric Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 259, 271, 131 Cal. Rptr. 231, 551 P.2d 847

Governmental entity has presumptive prejudicial advantage in action it brings in its own county. Westinghouse Electric Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 259, 272, 131 Cal. Rptr. 231, 551 P.2d 847

Person doing business in county has unfair advantage over city situated outside county in trial of action in which person and city were arrayed against each other. Finance & Construction Co. v. Sacramento (1928) 204 Cal. 491, 493, 269 P. 167

Code Civ. Proc. § 394 applies to cross-complaints; given that purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 394 is to prevent corporate defendant from suffering prejudice in favor of local governmental entity, statute should be liberally construed to promote this policy. Kennedy/Jenks Consultants, Inc. v. Superior Court (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 948, 954-957, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 817 (First Dist., Div. Five; following Ohio Casualty Ins. Group v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 444, 448-451, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 771 (Third Dist.) and declining to follow City of Chico v. Superior Court (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 187, 188-192, 152 Cal. Rptr. 380 (First Dist., Div. Four)

Where a local agency filed a compulsory cross-complaint asserting a claim in the county where it resides against a nonresident of that county, cross-defendant had the right to move for a change of venue pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §

394. Metropolitan Transit System v. Superior Court (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 293, 304, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 517

Code Civ. Proc. § 394 should receive liberal construction that will promote policy behind law; section 394 is intended to guard against possible local bias against out-of-county defendants; bias protected against is prejudice resulting from county citizens perceiving trial outcome as tied to their economic interests; statute, however, does not require that public entity have economic interest in outcome of lawsuit before nonresident defendant may seek transfer of venue, although court found it relevant that any recovery would go to conservatorship estate, not public coffers; absence of potential impact on county taxpayers' monetary interests meant protective purpose of section 394 was not thwarted by conclusion that statute was inapplicable. Transamerica Homefirst, Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 577, 581, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 705

Purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 394 is to guard against possible local prejudice against out-of-county defendants; Code Civ. Proc. § 394 is designed to protect party from prejudice resulting from citizens in county perceiving trial outcome as tied to their economic interests; court could find no case granting section 394 transfer when judgment had no potential impact on fiscal fortunes of citizens of county. Nguyen v. Superior Court (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1781, 1789-1790, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 611

Code Civ. Proc. § 394 is removal or change of venue provision, and has no application unless and until action commenced under applicable venue rules. County of San Bernardino v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 378, 381, 388-389, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 760 ; Sutter Union High School Dist. v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 795, 797, 190 Cal. Rptr. 182 ; Morrison v. Superior Court (1980) 100 Cal. App. 3d 852, 854, 161 Cal. Rptr. 169 ; Dorame v. Superior Court (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 70, 72, 146 Cal. Rptr. 162

"Plaintiff" and "defendant" as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 394 include "cross complainant" and "cross defendant." Ohio Casualty Ins. Group v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 444, 448-449, 451, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 771 (criticizing and declining to follow City of Chico v. Superior Court (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 187, 152 Cal. Rptr. 380 .

Code Civ. Proc. § 395 is subordinate to Code Civ. Proc. § 394(1) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a)) in mixed venue case involving both provisions. Central Contra Costa Sanitary Dist. v. Superior Court (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 702, 705, 148 Cal. Rptr. 801 ; Delgado v. Superior Court (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 560, 564, 141 Cal. Rptr. 528

Neutral county is selected by trial court. Central Contra Costa Sanitary Dist. v. Superior Court (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 702, 706, 148 Cal. Rptr. 801 ; Adams v. Superior Court (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 365, 369, 38 Cal. Rptr. 164 ; City of Oakland v. Darbee (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 493, 500, 227 P.2d 909

[b] Actions Against City, County, or Local Agency

Third sentence of Code Civ. Proc. § 394(1) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a)) asproviding that in action brought against local agency of any kind, change of venue is available in most circumstances. Westinghouse Electric Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 259, 268, 131 Cal. Rptr. 231, 551 P.2d 847

If a plaintiff sues a county or local agency for injuries occurring within the county where the public agency is located, Code Civ. Proc. § 394 requires the suit to be tried in the defendant county, and Section 394 statute unequivocally provides that an action brought against a county or local governmental agency for personal injuries occurring in the county must be brought in that county; however, despite the mandatory language of this statute, the right to transfer may be waived if there is unreasonable delay. Ventura Unified School Dist. v. Superior Court (2001) 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 260

Code Civ. Proc. § 394 (a) provision that any action against county for personal injury that occurred within that county caused by the negligence or alleged negligence of county or its agents or employees, shall be tried in that county is exception to general venue statute (Code Civ. Proc. § 395), which permits venue either in the county where injury occurs or injury causing death occurs or the county in which defendants, or some of them, reside at commencement of the action; if plaintiff sues both county and individual defendants who reside outside county for injuries occurring within county, Code Civ. Proc. § 394 requires suit to be tried in defendant county, even though general venue rules would have permitted trial in county where individual defendants reside. County of Orange v. Superior Court (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1189, 1192-1193, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 923

Code Civ. Proc. § 394 does not giving plaintiff right to commence and proceed to trial in action in county where no reason exists for the selection of that particular county. Fitzpatrick v. Sonoma County (1929) 97 Cal. App. 588, 276 P. 113

[c] Actions by City, County, or Local Agency Against City, County, or Local Agency

A contractual provision purporting to waive a defendant's right to transfer an action to a neutral county pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 394 is invalid. Arntz Builders v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1195, 1198, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 346

Under first sentence of Code Civ. Proc. § 394(1) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a)), when it is shown that both parties are cities within same county, transfer is required, and proceeding may be transferred to any other neutral county. City of Alameda v. Superior Court (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 312, 316, 116 Cal. Rptr. 806

[d] Actions by City, County, or Local Agency Against Resident of or Corporation Doing Business in Another City, County, or Local Agency

[i] General Rule

Only nonresident party itself may move for change of venue under Code Civ. Proc. § 394. Westinghouse Electric Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 259, 278, 131 Cal. Rptr. 231, 551 P.2d 847

Code Civ. Proc. § 394 applies when lawsuit is "brought by" public entity within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 394, and determination whether action is brought by county agency depends on county agency's role within lawsuit; when action brought on conservatee's behalf by county's public guardian against nonresident defendant, action is not one brought by county agency, within meaning of section 394, and thus action need not be transferred pursuant to section 394(a). Transamerica Homefirst, Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 577, 579-581, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 705

District attorney acts on behalf of state rather than county when district attorney represents People of the State of California in red light abatement action pursuant to Pen. Code § 11226 and thus, mandatory transfer provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a) do not apply, that is, red light abatement actions are exempt from the mandatory transfer provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a). Nguyen v. Superior Court (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1781, 1784, 1786-1791, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 611

Code Civ. Proc. § 394 applies to any action or proceeding brought by city against nonresident on any kind of claim city might have against nonresident. City of Oakland v. Darbee (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 493, 498, 227 P.2d 909

[ii] Corporate Defendants

Defendant corporation's rights under Code Civ. Proc. § 394 may be barred because of existence, nature, and extent of activities within forum county. San Francisco Foundation v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 285, 297-298, 208

Cal. Rptr. 31, 690 P.2d 1

Question of whether corporation is doing business in county within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 394 is whether corporation's activities are such that it is reasonably likely to be viewed as outsider, not whether it is actually so viewed. San Francisco Foundation v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 285, 299, 208 Cal. Rptr. 31, 690 P.2d 1 ; Westinghouse Electric Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 259, 271 n.7, 131 Cal. Rptr. 231, 551 P.2d 847

Corporation with main place of business in county in which it is sued, or with major branch office in that county is not able to invoke Code Civ. Proc. § 394. San Francisco Foundation v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 285, 299, 208 Cal. Rptr. 31, 690 P.2d 1 ; Westinghouse Electric Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 259, 271, 131 Cal. Rptr. 231, 551 P.2d 847

Corporation with principal place of business elsewhere, and with only limited contacts in county may obtain change of venue in action brought by local government entity. Westinghouse Electric Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 259, 271, 131 Cal. Rptr. 231, 551 P.2d 847

Services related to subject matter of particular litigation are not normally type of activities that constitute "doing business" within purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 394. Westinghouse Electric Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 259, 272, 131 Cal. Rptr. 231, 551 P.2d 847

Corporation's right to transfer venue is not diminished by fact that one or more of other corporate defendants may be doing business in county. Westinghouse Electric Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 259, 275, 131 Cal. Rptr. 231, 551 P.2d 847

Code Civ. Proc. § 394 does not specifically provide for treating unincorporatedassociation, such as joint venture, separately from its members, and close association of members with community mitigates presumed bias. Westinghouse Electric Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 259, 277, 131 Cal. Rptr. 231, 551 P.2d 847

Quality of business connections and not their quantity or duration determines whether party is doing business locally; qualitative analysis must focus on whether types of contacts with county are substantial enough for company to be reasonably viewed as closely associated with community; relevant inquiry under Code Civ. Proc. § 394 includes analysis of nature of litigation as well as activities of party seeking change of venue; defendant's section 394 motion to transfer under should have been granted given lack of evidence of activities by defendant to tie it to local community and nature of case, which posed reasonable risk that defendant would be viewed as outsider. Kennedy/Jenks Consultants, Inc. v. Superior Court (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 948, 957-964, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 817

[e] "Local Agency" Defined

BART is "local agency within certain county" for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 394. Westinghouse Electric Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 259, 268, 131 Cal. Rptr. 231, 551 P.2d 847

[f] Motion to Transfer

[i] Generally

Motion for change of venue under Code Civ. Proc. § 394 is required to be made only within a reasonable time. Newman v. County of Sonoma (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 625, 627, 15 Cal. Rptr. 914, 364 P.2d 850 ; Channell v. Superior Court (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 246, 252-253, 38 Cal. Rptr. 13 ; Adams v. Superior Court (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 365, 367, 38 Cal. Rptr. 164

Code Civ. Proc. § 394 motion as not required to be made at time of answer to complaint or cross complaint, but may be made within reasonable time thereafter. Marin Community College Dist. v. Superior Court (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 719, 723, 140 Cal. Rptr. 310 ; Adams v. Superior Court (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 365, 367, 38 Cal. Rptr. 164

Code Civ. Proc. § 394 motion as not required to be denied on ground that it is untimely unless it is pursued for dilatory purposes and unless public agency can show substantial prejudice. Marin Community College Dist. v. Superior Court (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 719, 723, 140 Cal. Rptr. 310

Code Civ. Proc. § 394 motion to transfer as able to be made either before or a reasonable time after a demurrer has been heard and submitted for decision. Adams v. Superior Court (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 365, 367, 38 Cal. Rptr. 164

Right to change of venue under Code Civ. Proc. § 394 as subject to waiver for lack of diligence in prosecuting motion. Adams v. Superior Court (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 365, 368-369, 38 Cal. Rptr. 164

Procedural requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 396b as not governing motion pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 394. Channell v. Superior Court (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 246, 252, 38 Cal. Rptr. 13

In passing on sufficiency of showing in support of Code Civ. Proc. § 394 motion to transfer, trial court as unable to try substantive issues. City of Long Beach v. Lakewood Park (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 596, 598, 258 P.2d 538

[ii] Burden of Proof

Change of venue because of actual prejudice as within purview of former Code Civ. Proc. § 397(2) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 397(b)), not Code Civ. Proc. § 394. San Francisco Foundation v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 285, 299, 208 Cal. Rptr. 31, 690 P.2d 1 ; Westinghouse Electric Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 259, 271 n.7, 131 Cal. Rptr. 231, 551 P.2d 847

Showing of possible prejudice as not required under Code Civ. Proc. § 394. City of Alameda v. Superior Court (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 312, 317, 116 Cal. Rptr. 806

Burden of proof justifying change of venue as resting on moving party. Los Angeles v. Pac. Tel. & Tel. Co. (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 253, 260, 330 P.2d 888

Code Civ. Proc. § 394 as not making defendant's right of transfer dependent on residence of other defendants, nor does it require moving party to select county or to make showing concerning county other than county of their residence or county in which city is situated. City of Oakland v. Darbee (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 493, 497, 227 P.2d 909

[9] Effect of Joinder on Venue

[a] Generally

Mixed action as being when two or more defendants are named who are subject to different venue standards. Brown v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 477, 488, 208 Cal. Rptr. 724, 691 P.2d 272

Identifying characteristic of "mixed actions" as being two or more inconsistent venue provisions of Code of Civil Procedure or of Constitution that appear to be concurrently applicable in same case. Brown v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 477, 488, 208 Cal. Rptr. 724, 691 P.2d 272 ; Channell v. Superior Court (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 246, 248, 38 Cal. Rptr. 13

[b] Joinder of Causes of Action

General rule as that when action is partly local and partly transitory and is stated in separate causes of action, it is to be regarded as transitory in determining place of trial. Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 605, 328 P.2d 953

Defendant as entitled to have proceeding transferred to county of his or her residence if there is personal cause of action joined with one that is local in nature. Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 605, 328 P.2d 953 ; Hammon v. American Etc. Mining Co. (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 306, 311, 21 Cal. Rptr. 409 ; Hardy v. White (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 550, 552, 279 P.2d 126

Plaintiff as not entitled to unite matters that form subject of personal action with matters that form subject of local action in one complaint so as to compel defendant to have both matters tried in county other than that in which he or she resides. Smith v. Smith (1891) 88 Cal. 572, 576, 26 P. 356 ; Channell v. Superior Court (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 246, 251, 38 Cal. Rptr. 13 ; All-Cool Alum. Etc. Co. v. Superior Court (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 660, 667, 36 Cal. Rptr. 769 ; Beutke v. American Securities Co. (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 354, 359-360, 282 P.2d 201

If defendant is entitled to change of venue as to one cause of action, entire action is transferred. Gallin v. Superior Court (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 541, 545, 281 Cal. Rptr. 304

Action as essentially transitory if personal property is involved, or if cause of action of personal nature is joined in good faith and not merely incidentally with local cause of action. Myers v. Superior Court (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 925, 929, 172 P.2d 84

Actions to quiet title to personal as well as real property, and for specific performance of contract relating to such personal and real property as essentially transitory. Myers v. Superior Court (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 925, 930, 172 P.2d 84

[c] Joinder of Defendants

[i] Generally

Defendant as not entitled to have action removed to county of his or her residence unless it appears that none of the other defendants are residents of county where action is brought. Monogram Co. v. Kingsley (1951) 38 Cal. 2d 28, 30, 237 P.2d 265 ; Hoag v. Superior Court (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 611, 616, 24 Cal. Rptr. 659

Plaintiff as not entitled to join as defendants those who are not real parties in interest merely for purpose of obtaining trial in county of their residence. Neet v. Holmes (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 605, 612, 122 P.2d 557

Residence of defendant who was not joined in good faith but simply in attempt to defeat right of other defendant to trial at his or her residence under Code Civ. Proc. § 395 as not considered in determining proper place for trial. Hoag v. Superior Court (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 611, 617, 24 Cal. Rptr. 659 ; Dreher v. Fidelity & Casualty Co. (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 695, 700, 307 P.2d 407

Party joined as defendant because he or she cannot be joined as plaintiff as exception to general rule that when one defendant has residence or principal place of business in county in which action was brought, other defendants cannot change place of trial to county of their residence. Stesel v. Santa Ana River Water Co. (1939) 35 Cal. App. 2d 117, 126-127, 94 P.2d 1052

[ii] Individual and Corporate Defendants Joined

General rules governing joinder of defendants and effect of such joinder on venue as applying whether defendants are individuals or corporations. Dillman v. Superior Court (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 769, 772, 23 Cal. Rptr. 498

Plaintiff as entitled to fix venue at residence of either individual or corporation in cause of action stated against both, and joinder in conformity with statutes. Dillman v. Superior Court (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 769, 772, 23 Cal. Rptr. 498

[iii] State and Corporate Defendants Joined

Plaintiff as waiving procedural rights granted by former Cal. Const., art. XII, § 16 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5) by joining state and corporation as defendants, because Gov. Code § 955.2, by its terms, takes precedence. State v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 637, 643, 60 Cal. Rptr. 653

[1] Motion for Change of Venue

[a] In General

Transfer of unlawful detainer or consumer actions commenced in wrong court to proper court. Code Civ. Proc. § 396a

Action commenced in wrong court that has subject matter jurisdiction as subject to trial therein absent defendant's motion for transfer. Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(a)

Court as able to consider ancillary motions during pendency of motion to transfer in proceeding for dissolution of marriage or legal separation. Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(c)

Grounds for change of venue. Code Civ. Proc. § 397

Determining transferee court. Code Civ. Proc. § 398

Costs and fees of transfer. Code Civ. Proc. § 399

Jurisdiction of court to which action is transferred. Code Civ. Proc. § 399

Transmittal of pleadings and papers to court to which action is transferred and notice of transmittal. Code Civ. Proc. § 399

Voluntary dismissal as not allowed if Code Civ. Proc. § 396b motion pending. Code Civ. Proc. § 581(a)

Transfer of action or proceeding not commenced in proper court. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 396b(a), 397(a)

Time to file response to action if motion for transfer denied, and if no response previously filed. Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(e)

Service and filing of motion as placing motion before court for all purposes. Code Civ. Proc. § 1005.5

Requisites of written notice. Code Civ. Proc. § 1010

Offer to stipulate to change of venue as considered in determining whether party to motion for change should be ordered to pay attorney's fees and cost. Code Civ. Proc. § 396b

Court to which case transferred as having same jurisdiction as if action originally commenced therein. Code Civ. Proc. § 399

[b] Action Commenced in Wrong Court

After hearing on defendant's motion, court as required to transfer action or proceeding not commenced in proper court. Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(a)

Payment of expenses and attorney's fees incurred in making or resisting motion to transfer. Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(b)

Court as required to allow defendant time to move to strike, demur, or otherwise plead if motion for transfer is denied and if no response previously filed. Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(e)

Court as able to change place of trial when court designated in complaint is not proper court. Code Civ. Proc. § 397(a)

[c] Convenience of Witnesses and Ends of Justice

Change of place of trial when convenience of witnesses and ends of justice would be promoted by change. Code Civ. Proc. § 397(c)

[d] Disqualification of Judges

Grounds for disqualification of judges. Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1

Court as able to change place of trial when no judge of court qualified to act. Code Civ. Proc. § 397(d)

B. Change of Venue

50-571 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 571.71

§ 571.71 Decisions

[1] Action Commenced in Wrong Court

Like Code Civ. Proc. § 396, Welf. & Inst. Code § 15657.3, part of the Elder Abuse Act, allows the probate court to determine that a matter should be determined in another portion of the court. Requiring a party to refile a case in the same courthouse, with possible statute of limitations issues, and additional costs to the party, is inconsistent with the legislative attempt to protect elderly Californians. Conservatorship of Kayle (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1, 6-7, n.3, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 671

Award of attorney's fees as proper under Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(b) if, after reviewing factual and legal presentation made by losing party, court finds that no reasonable attorney would have honestly chosen such forum, and that forum appears to have been selected to impair defendant's right to defend. Metzger v. Silverman (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 30, 38-39 , 133 Cal. Rptr. 355

[2] Burden of Proof

Corporate defendant moving to change venue in action involving tort as required to prove that its principal place of business is not in county in which complaint was filed, and that alleged liability did not arise in that county. Mission Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 921, 929, 184 Cal. Rptr. 296, 647 P.2d 1075

Affidavit of vice-president of defendant corporation in support of motion to change venue as to fact that none of the defendants, including nonmoving codefendant, were residents of county, which fact must depend on codefendants intent, as sufficient averment of such fact, although made on information and belief. Brown v. Happy Valley Fruit Growers (1929) 206 Cal. 515, 520, 274 P. 977 ; see also City of Santa Cruz v. Municipal Court (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 74, 87, 260 Cal. Rptr. 520, 776 P.2d 222

Burden of showing facts to justify change of venue as on moving defendant because plaintiff's choice of venue is presumptively correct. Massae v. Superior Court (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 527, 530, 173 Cal. Rptr. 527

Motion for change of venue as having two requirements: (1) it must be shown that action is proper in county to which moving party seeks transfer, and (2) it must be shown that county in which action was filed was improper under any applicable theory. Mosby v. Superior Court (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 219, 228, 117 Cal. Rptr. 588 ; Easton v. Superior Court (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 243, 245-246, 90 Cal. Rptr. 642 ; Sequoia Pine Mills, Inc. v. Superior Court (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 65, 68, 65 Cal. Rptr. 353

Presumption as that defendants are residents of county wherein action commenced, and burden of proof as cast on them to show that they were at commencement of action residents of counties other than that wherein suit is brought, to which they ask that the place of trial be removed. Sequoia Pine Mills, Inc. v. Superior Court (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 65, 67-68, 65 Cal. Rptr. 353

Burden as resting on one who seeks change of venue under former Code Civ. Proc. § 397(3) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 397(c)) to prove that both convenience of witnesses and ends of justice will be promoted. Braunstein v. Superior Court (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 691, 698-699, 37 Cal. Rptr. 666 ; Dillman v. Superior Court (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 769, 773, 23 Cal. Rptr. 498

Corporate defendant seeking change of venue as required to show not only place of residence or principal place of business, but also that contract was not made, that it was not to be performed, that obligation or liability did not arise, and that breach did not occur in venue originally determined by filing of plaintiff's complaint. Smith v. Stanford Research Institute (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 750, 754, 28 Cal. Rptr. 481

Burden as on plaintiff to show that case comes clearly within one of statutory exceptions to general rule that actions are triable at place of defendant's residence when defendant has made proper showing of nonresidence. Archer v. Superior Court (1961) 202 Cal. App. 2d 417, 420, 21 Cal. Rptr. 48

Statement by party as to his or place of residence in affidavit on motion for change of venue as constituting prima facie showing sufficient to support order directing change, if not overthrown by contrary evidence. Taff v. Goodman (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 771, 774, 107 P.2d 431

Affidavit of declaration made on information and belief by defendants on motion to change place of trial in relation to nonresidence of other defendants as sufficient. Sims v. Mains (1933) 131 Cal. App. 307, 310, 21 P.2d 447

[3] Convenience of Witnesses

Showing that proposed testimony of witnesses is admissible, relevant, and material to some issue in the case as required before witness' convenience may be considered as a ground for order granting a change of venue. Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 607, 328 P.2d 953 ; Dillman v. Superior Court (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 769, 773, 23 Cal. Rptr. 498 ; Harden v. Skinner & Hammond (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 750, 754, 755, 279 P.2d 978

Both convenience of witnesses and ends of justice as required to occur, and moving party as having burden of proving that both conditions will be met. Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 607, 328 P.2d 953 ; Pearson v. Superior Court (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 69, 77, 18 Cal. Rptr. 578 ; Harden v. Skinner & Hammond (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 750, 754, 279 P.2d 978 ; Willingham v. Pecora (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 289, 295, 112 P.2d 328

Convenience of witnesses was shown by fact that all designated witnesses lived or worked, all relevant events allegedly took place, and all relevant documents were located in county to which transfer requested. Richfield Hotel Management, Inc. v. Superior Court (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 222, 227, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 161

Cross defendants may not defeat cross complainant's proper selection of venue even if all cross defendants concur in request for transfer to another venue that would also be proper; forum non conveniens motion based on convenience of witnesses as alternative remedy for cross defendant if trial court's order granting motion for change of venue reversed. Tutor-Saliba-Perini Joint Venture v. Superior Court (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 736, 742-744, 285 Cal. Rptr. 1

Although there is no special statutory procedure governing motion based on former Code Civ. Proc. § 397(3) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 397(c)), and code expresses no time limit within which it must be made, motion must be made within reasonable time after answer is filed. Thompson v. Superior Court (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 300, 306, 103 Cal. Rptr. 94

Convenience to witnesses as only important consideration, not convenience of parties or employees of parties. Dillman v. Superior Court (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 769, 773, 23 Cal. Rptr. 498 ; Stute v. Burinda (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 11, 17 , 177 Cal. Rptr. 102

Convenience of witnesses as shown by fact that residence of all witnesses is in county to which transfer of cause is requested. Pearson v. Superior Court (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 69, 77, 18 Cal. Rptr. 578

Inconvenience as able to be presumed from distance. Pearson v. Superior Court (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 69, 78, 18 Cal. Rptr. 578

Conclusion that ends of justice are promoted as able to be drawn from fact that by moving trial closer to residence of witnesses, delay and expense in court proceedings are avoided and savings in witnesses' time and expenses are effected. Pearson v. Superior Court (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 69, 77, 18 Cal. Rptr. 578

Granting of motion based on Code Civ. Proc. § 397(3) as discretionary with trial court. Pearson v. Superior Court (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 69, 77, 18 Cal. Rptr. 578 ; Harden v. Skinner & Hammond (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 750, 754, 279 P.2d 978 ; Willingham v. Pecora (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 289, 293, 112 P.2d 328

Motion for change of venue based on former Code Civ. Proc. § 397(3) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 397(c)) as unable to be entertained when moving party has appeared only by demurrer and not by answer, as court cannot determine relevance and materiality of prospective witnesses. Russello v. Mori (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d 828, 832, 315 P.2d 343

Mere numerical majority of witnesses on one side or other as not necessarily determining merits of motion. Harden v. Skinner & Hammond (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 750, 754, 279 P.2d 978

Convenience of witnesses in attending trial, rather than places of their actual residences, as issue to be decided by trial court. Willingham v. Pecora (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 289, 293, 112 P.2d 328

Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 as governing notices of motion made under Code Civ. Proc. § 397(c). Willingham v. Pecora (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 289, 295, 112 P.2d 328

[4] Expenses and Attorney's Fees

Award of attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(b) for services of defendants' attorney in making unsuccessful motion for change of venue and in obtaining issuance of writ of mandate compelling trial court to grant motion as inappropriate when trial court had found plaintiff's arguments "inventive" and "compelling" and denied motion for change of venue. Cacciaguidi v. Superior Court (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 181, 187

[5] Mixed Action

When two or more inconsistent venue provisions apply in same case, motion for change of venue is to be granted if defendant is entitled to change of venue on any one cause of action. Capp Care, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 504, 508, 241 Cal. Rptr. 741

[6] Plaintiff's Opposition to Defendant's Motion for Change of Venue--Counteraffidavits or Countermotion

Only case in which it can ever be necessary or proper for plaintiff to ask on cross motion that action be retained for trial in county where he or she has brought it as when defendant's motion is on ground that county designated in complaint is not proper county. Cook v. Pendergast (1882) 61 Cal. 72, 76

When defendant's motion was made on ground that impartial trial could not be had, that change would promote convenience of witnesses, or that judge is disqualified, cross motion as not available to plaintiff, but plaintiff as entitled to file counter affidavits. Cook v. Pendergast (1882) 61 Cal. 72, 76

When venue originally laid in improper court, motion to retain venue there on ground of convenience of witnesses as unavailable when demurrer, but no answer, has been filed. Johnson v. Superior Court (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 212, 214, 42 Cal. Rptr. 645

Determination as to whether to retain cause on account of convenience of witnesses as resting largely within discretion of trial court. Harris v. Cannon (1941) 42 Cal. App. 2d 748, 749, 109 P.2d 961

[7] Following Compulsory Cross-Complaint

A plaintiff/cross-defendant against whom a compulsory cross-complaint has been filed is not entitled to seek a change of venue under Code Civ. Proc. § 396b based on a claim of improper venue as determined by reference to the cross-complaint. Rather, the cross-complaint is to be tried in the same county that has been established as the proper venue based on the original complaint. K.R.L. Partnership v. Superior Court (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 490, 498, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 517

[8] Review of Court Orders

[a] Motions in the Superior Court

Code Civ. Proc. § 400 as providing that order of superior court granting or denying motion to change place of trial is reviewable solely by writ of mandate. Milliken v. Gray (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 595, 599-600, 81 Cal. Rptr. 525

[b] Standard of Review

Review of motion for change of venue made and determined on allegations of verified complaint, affidavits of respective parties as requiring that all conflicts be resolved in favor of prevailing party, and all reasonable inferences that are to be drawn must be in support of trial court's order. Hale v. Bohannon (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 458, 466, 241 P.2d 4

Appellate court uses abuse of discretion standard in reviewing order denying a venue change motion; trial court abused discretion in denying defendant's motion to change venue from Los Angeles to Sacramento County when all of the alleged acts occurred in Sacramento and venue was mandatory in Sacramento County under at least two of the three enumerated criteria listed in Gov. Code § 12965(b) (Fair Employment and Housing Act venue). Ford Motor Credit

Co. v. Superior Court (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 306, 310, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 682

For denial of motion to transfer venue pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 397(b), not only is standard of review abuse of discretion, but actual prejudice must be shown. Nguyen v. Superior Court (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1781, 1791, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 611

Appellate court as able to reverse order denying motion for change of venue on ground of convenience of witnesses only on clear showing of abuse of discretion. Union Trust Life Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 23, 28, 66 Cal. Rptr. 270 ; Dillman v. Superior Court (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 769, 774, 23 Cal. Rptr. 498 ; Di Giorgio Fruit Corp. v. Zachary (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 560, 563, 141 P.2d 8

Denial of motion to change venue as abuse of discretion when there is showing that convenience of witnesses and ends of justice will be promoted by change, and when there is absolutely no showing whatever to contrary, there being no evidence to sustain decision of trial court. Union Trust Life Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 23, 28, 66 Cal. Rptr. 270

Appeals court as required to determine that sufficient facts have been shown on which trial court could base exercise of discretion. Dillman v. Superior Court (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 769, 774, 23 Cal. Rptr. 498

Judgment as not disturbed on appeal when evidence on motion for change of venue conflicting. Wheeler v. Moschetti (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 827, 829, 10 Cal. Rptr. 722

When motion made and determined on allegations of verified complaint and affidavits of defendants, all conflicts as required to be resolved in favor of prevailing party, and all reasonable inferences which are to be drawn must be in support of trial court's order. City of Long Beach v. Lakewood Park (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 596, 598, 258 P.2d 538

§ 571.80 Venue Allegation in Complaint--Transitory Action--Controlled by Residence of Defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]

[1] FORM Venue Allegation in Complaint--Transitory Action--Controlled by Residence of Defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]

At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____[name] was and is a resident of [_____ (city),] _____ County, California.

[2] Use of Form

The form of allegation in [1], above, is for use in a complaint in an action that is governed by the basic rule of venue set out in the first sentence of Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a), which provides that the superior court in the county where the defendants or some of them reside is the proper county for the trial of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]. This rule applies unless an action falls within some exception. Thus, if no other venue provision applies, venue is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 395 [Brown v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 477, 483, 208 Cal. Rptr. 724, 691 P.2d 272] . For discussion of what constitutes a residence,see § 571.16[1][c].

Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) controls venue in transitory actions, that is, actions in which the main relief sought is personal [Brown v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 477, 482 n.5, 208 Cal. Rptr. 724, 691 P.2d 272] . Transitory actions deal primarily with financial obligations or personal relationships [Carlton v. Superior Court (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 586, 589, 49 Cal. Rptr. 759] . In particular, the rule covers personal torts not involving physical injury [Haurat v. Superior Court (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 330, 333, 50 Cal. Rptr. 520] . For example, the foregoing form may be used in an action for conversion [Haurat v. Superior Court (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 330, 333, 50 Cal. Rptr. 520 ; Mason v. Buck (1929) 99 Cal. App. 219, 221, 278 P. 461] . Also, it may be used in actions for libel, malicious prosecution, and false imprisonment [Johnson v. Superior Court (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 212, 218, 42 Cal. Rptr. 645] .

§ 571.81 Venue Allegation in Complaint--Transitory Action--Place Where Tortious Conduct Occurred [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]

[1] FORM Venue Allegation in Complaint--Transitory Action--Place Where Tortious Conduct Occurred [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]

On or about _____[date], in [_____ (city),] _____ County, California, defendant _____ [specify physical injury or death to person or physical injury to personal property, e.g., assaulted and battered plaintiff by threatening to strike plaintiff and violently striking plaintiff in and about the face].

[2] Use of Form

The form of allegation in [1], above, is for use in a complaint in an action for injury to a person or personal property, or for death from a wrongful act or negligence. In such a case, either the county where the injury occurs or the injury causing death occurs, or the county where the defendants or some of them reside at the commencement of the action is the proper county for the trial of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)].

Either the form in [1], above, or the form in § 571.81 may be used in actions based on tortious conduct causing physical injury to persons or personal property because Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) allows trial of a negligence action either in the county of defendant's residence or in the county where the tort occurred [Maxwell v. Murray (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 440, 443, 11 Cal. Rptr. 916] . Generally, the facts alleged to establish the elements of a particular tort will be sufficient to establish the place of trial in the county where the tort occurred. Further, if counsel wishes to establish venue in the county where the tort occurred, an allegation setting forth the defendant's place of residence need not be included in the complaint.

The phrase "injury to person" as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) is limited to physical injury or incapacity or death caused by the wrongful or negligent act of another [Monk v. Ehret (1923) 192 Cal. 186, 191-193, 219 P. 452] . Therefore, it refers only to injuries of a physical or bodily nature, and not to injuries to character or reputation [Monk v. Ehret (1923) 192 Cal. 186, 193, 219 P. 452 ; Carruth v. Superior Court (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 215, 219, 145 Cal.

Rptr. 344] .

50-571 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 571.82

§ 571.82 Venue Allegation in Complaint--Transitory Action--Place Where Contract Entered Into [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]

[1] FORM Venue Allegation in Complaint--Transitory Action--Place Where Contract Entered Into [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]

The contract that created the obligation on which this action is based, _____ [which is set out herein or a copy of which is attached hereto, and marked Exhibit _____], was in fact entered into in [_____ (city),] _____ County, California.

[2] Use of Form

The form of allegation in [1], above, is for use in a complaint in an action founded on contract when the plaintiff wishes to bring the action in the county in which the contract was entered into [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]. The place where the contract was made is the place where the last act necessary for its validity was done. This is usually the act constituting acceptance [Braunstein v. Superior Court of Monterey County (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 691, 696-697, 37 Cal. Rptr. 666] .

[3] Alternative Places of Trial in Contract Actions

In addition to the county in which it was entered into, an action founded on contract may alternatively be tried in the county in which the defendant resides at the commencement of the action or in which the defendant has contracted specially and in writing to perform his or her obligation [Wathen v. Superior Court (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 125, 129, 27 Cal. Rptr. 840 ; for forms alleging residence and place of performance*see § 571.80* and § 571.83, respectively].

The alternatives in the contract provision in Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) are exceptions to the general rule that the defendant is entitled to trial in his or her county of residence [Mosby v. Superior Court (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 219, 224, 117 Cal. Rptr. 588] . Thus, the plaintiff is entitled to have an action founded on a contract tried in the county in which it appears that the contract was entered into despite the defendant's residence in another county [Richardson v. Rose (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 318, 322, 17 Cal. Rptr. 84] .

[1] FORM Venue Allegation in Complaint--Transitory Action--Place Where Contract to Be Performed [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]

Pursuant to _____ [specify provision in the contract that specifically states the place where defendant was to perform his or her obligation, e.g., Paragraph _____ of the contract on which this action is based(, a copy of which is attached as Exhibit _____ and made a part hereof)], defendant was to _____ [specify obligation on which action is based, e.g., tender payment at plaintiff's address] in [_____ (city),] _____ County, California.

[2] Use of Form

The form of allegation in [1], above, is for use in a complaint in an action founded on a contract obligation when the plaintiff wishes to bring the action in the county in which the obligation was to be performed. If there is a special contract in writing in which the defendant has contracted to perform an obligation in a particular county, that county is one of the proper places for trial in an action founded on the obligation. Absent a special contract in writing to the contrary, the place of performance is presumed to be the place in which the obligation was incurred [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a); Armstrong v. Smith (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 528, 531-532, 122 P.2d 115] .

[3] Special Contract in Writing Required

A "special contract in writing" must specifically state the place of performance of the obligation [Wathen v. Superior Court (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 125, 129, 27 Cal. Rptr. 840] . Any deficiency or lack of a specification cannot be remedied by extrinsic evidence [Fidelity Thrift & Loan Asso. v. Hall (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 895, 899 , 9 Cal. Rptr. 596] . However, a geographic designation of the city or county without setting forth the address is enough to satisfy the requirement [Stute v. Burinda (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 11, 16 , 177 Cal. Rptr. 102] .

[1] FORM Venue Allegation in Complaint--Local Action--Controlled by Situs of Real Property [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)]

The real property that is the subject of this action is known as _____[street address or common designation, and if any, city], located _____[partly] in _____ County[, and is more particularly described as follows: _____ (set forth legal description)].

[2] Use of Form

The form of allegation in [1], above, is for use in a complaint in an action for the recovery of real property, for the recovery or determination of an estate or interest in the property, for injuries to the property, or for the foreclosure of liens or mortgages on the property. The proper venue for the trial of the action is any county in which all or part of the property is situated [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)]. For a form of allegation based on the residence of defendant,see § 571.80.

[3] Local Actions

[a] Recovery of Real Property, Recovery or Determination of Title to Real Property, Injury to Real Property

In a local action, the situs of the real property that is the subject matter of the action controls the place of trial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 392]. An action is local when it turns on title to property as distinct from a personal obligation, and the decree operates by its own force on the title [Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 603, 328 P.2d 953 ; Thielen v. Superior Court (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 217, 219, 33 Cal. Rptr. 1] . An action is also local if it involves injury to real property, although Code Civ. Proc. § 392(1)(a) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1)) is not limited to physical injury to or interference with the property. It may include nonfeasance, such as permissive waste. It may also include threatened injuries or consequential injuries to property resulting from tortious conduct [Coley v. Hecker (1928) 206

Cal. 22, 28, 272 P. 1045 ; Strosnider v. Pomin (1939) 32 Cal. App. 2d 103, 108, 89 P.2d 179] .

[b] Foreclosure of Lien or Mortgage on Real Property

The county where all or part of the real property that is the subject of the action is located is also the proper county for trial for the foreclosure of all liens and mortgages on the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(2); see Goldtree v. McAlister (1890) 86 Cal. 93, 106, 24 P. 801 (every official act necessary to effect foreclosure can occur in any county in which all or part of the real property located)].

[c] Unlawful Detainer

In the court designated as the proper court in Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a), the proper court location for trial of a proceeding for an unlawful detainer, as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 1161, is the location where the court tries that type of proceeding that is nearest or most accessible to where the real property that is the subject of the action, or some part thereof, is situated. Otherwise any location of the superior court designated as the proper court in § 392(a) is a proper court location for the trial. The court may specify by local rule the nearest or most accessible court location where the court tries that type of case [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(b)].

[4] Description of Real Property in Quiet Title Action

The form in [1], above, contains optional language for use to provide the legal description of the property that is the subject of the action. This should be provided when the subject matter of the action involves determination of title to the property. For example, a complaint in a quiet title action must include a description of the property that is the subject of the action. In the case of real property, the description must include both its legal description and its street address or common designation, if any [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020(a)]. For forms of complaints, and a detailed discussion of quiet title actions,see Ch. 482, Quieting Title .

§ 571.85 Venue Allegation in Complaint--Local Action--Where Cause of Action Arose--For Recovery of Penalty or Forfeiture Imposed by Statute or Act Done by Public Officer by Virtue of His or Her Office [Code Civ. Proc. § 393]

[1] FORM Venue Allegation in Complaint--Local Action--Where Cause of Action Arose--For Recovery of Penalty or Forfeiture Imposed by Statute or Act Done by Public Officer by Virtue of His or Her Office [Code Civ. Proc. § 393]

The _____ [specify penalty or forfeiture or other act that is the subject of the action, e.g., action by defendant as herein described to revoke plaintiff's license to carry on his/her business] occurred in [_____ (city),] _____ County, California.

[2] Use of Form

The form of allegation in [1], above, is for use in a complaint in an action for the recovery of a penalty or forfeiture imposed by statute, or against a public officer for an act done by him or her by virtue of his or her office. The proper county for the trial of these actions is the county in which the cause, or some part thereof, arose [Code Civ. Proc. § 393].

[3] Penalty or Forfeiture

The county in which the cause, or some part thereof, arose is the proper county for the trial of an action for the recovery of a penalty or forfeiture imposed by statute. If the penalty or forfeiture was imposed for an offense committed on a lake, river, or other stream of water, situated in two or more counties, the action may be tried in any county bordering on the lake, river, or stream, and opposite to the place where the offense was committed [Code Civ. Proc. § 393(a)].

[4] Actions Against Public Officers

Code Civ. Proc. § 393(b) establishes venue in the county where an act was done by a public officer or person especially appointed to execute the public officer's duties by virtue of his or her office [Code Civ. Proc. § 393]. It applies to affirmative acts by a public officer that directly interfere with the personal rights or property of a person, such as the right to do business. Thus, it does not apply to threats of future acts [Harris v. Alcoholic Bev. Etc. Appeals Bd. (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 759, 768, 18 Cal. Rptr. 151] .

[5] State Agencies as "Public Officers"

The form in [1], above, may be used against public entities, as well as against individuals, to establish venue in the county where the cause arose. Absent a statutory designation of an administrative or enforcement officer, the term "public officer" includes state agencies, departments, institutions, boards, or other public entities [Regents of University ofCalifornia v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 529, 537-538, 91 Cal. Rptr. 57, 476 P.2d 457] .

[1] FORM Venue Allegation in Complaint--Local Action--Against Personal Representative or Trustee--County Which Has Jurisdiction of Estate [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.1]

Defendant is the _____ [executor or administrator or guardian or conservator or trustee] of _____ [specify estate, e.g., the Estate of _____ (name), Deceased], Case Number _____, which is pending in the Superior Court of _____ County, California.

[2] Use of Form

The form of allegation in [1], above, is for use in a complaint in an action against an executor, administrator, guardian, conservator, or trustee in his or her official or representative capacity on a claim for the payment of money or for the recovery of personal property. In these actions, the county that has jurisdiction of the estate that the defendant represents is the proper county for the trial of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.1]. The foregoing form is not for use in establishing venue in probate proceedings. It is for use in a collateral action against the personal representative of the estate.

[3] "Claim" Against the Estate Defined

The form in [1], above, may be used even if the plaintiff is not suing because of a rejected creditor's claim. For example, the plaintiff may sue a representative in the county having jurisdiction over an estate for services the plaintiff rendered to the estate. The word "claim" as it is used in Code Civ. Proc. § 395.1 simply means a demand for something rightfully or allegedly due [Metzger v. Silverman (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 30, 36-37 , 133 Cal. Rptr. 355] .

50-571 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 571.87

§ 571.87 Venue Allegation in Complaint--Type of Party [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5]--Transitory Action Against Corporation

[1] FORM Venue Allegation in Complaint--Type of Party [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5]--Transitory Action Against Corporation
[EITHER, if domestic corporation]

_____[Name of corporation] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of California, _____ [specify basis on which venue is established, e.g., with its principal place of business] in _____ County, California.

[OR, if foreign corporation authorized to do business in California]

_____[Name of corporation] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of _____, and authorized to transact, and transacting, intrastate business in California, _____ [specify basis on which venue is established, e.g., with its principal place of business in this state in _____ County, California].

[2] Use of Form

The forms of allegation in [1], above, are for use in a complaint in an action brought against a corporation. A corporation may be sued in the county where its principal place of business is situated. It may also be sued where a contract is made or is to be performed, or where the obligation or liability arises, or a breach occurs [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5; Hale v. Bohannon (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 458, 476, 241 P.2d 4 (decided under former Cal. Const. art. XII, § 16, now Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5)].

[3] Domestic Corporations

[a] Alternative Places of Trial in Transitory Actions

The forms in [1], above, should be used in transitory actions against corporations [Mission Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal3d 921, 927, 184 Cal. Rptr. 296, 647 P.2d 1075] . Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 governs actions sounding in both contract and tort [Mission Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 921, 928, 184 Cal. Rptr. 296, 647 P.2d 1075] . For a discussion relating to venue in actions against foreign corporations,see § 571.18[2]

[b] Where Contract Is Made or to Be Performed

The last act necessary to the validity of the contract, usually the act constituting acceptance, is the place of its making for purposes Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 [Jhirmack Enterprises, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 715, 723, 158 Cal. Rptr. 192] . In an action on the contract of a corporation, when no place of performance is expressly stipulated, it will be held performable in the place where the circumstances, viewed in light of pertinent code provisions, indicate that the parties expected or intended it to be performed. Thus, the place of performance may be implied [Burr v. Western States Life Ins. Co. (1931) 211 Cal. 568, 574, 296 P. 273 ; see discussion in § 571.18[1][a] regarding principle place of business or county where cause of action arises].

[c] Where Obligation or Liability Arises

Generally, the place where the contract is made is also the place where the obligation or liability arises [Hale v. Bohannon (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 458, 479, 241 P.2d 4] .

Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 permits tort claims against a corporation to be tried in any county in which the liability arises [Mission Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 921, 928, 184 Cal. Rptr. 296, 647 P.2d 1075] .

[d] Where the Breach Occurs

In general, the place of performance of a contract obligation is also where the breach occurs [Hale v. Bohannon (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 458, 479, 241 P.2d 4] . However, it may also occur in the county where a corporation has its principal place of business [Jhirmack Enterprises, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 715, 724, 158 Cal. Rptr. 192] .

[4] Foreign Corporations

The second alternative in the foregoing form is for use against a foreign corporation that has qualified to do business in California. Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 applies to a foreign corporation in the same manner as it does to a domestic corporation, provided that the foreign corporation establishes that it has qualified to do business in California under Corp. Code § 2105 [Easton v. Superior Court (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 243, 246, 90 Cal. Rptr. 642 (decided under former Cal. Const. art. XII, § 16, now Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5, and former Corp. Code § 6403, now Corp. Code § 2105)]. If a foreign corporation has not qualified to do business in California under Corp. Code § 2105, a plaintiff may sue it in any county in the state [Easton v. Superior Court (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 243, 246-247, 90 Cal. Rptr. 642] .

[1] FORM Venue Allegation in Complaint--Type of Party [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395.2, 395.5]--Unincorporated Associations

_____[Name of unincorporated association] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [state form of entity, e.g., a partnership], _____ [state basis on which venue is to be established, e.g., with its principal place of business] in _____ County California.

[2] Use of Form

The form of allegation in [1], above, is for use in a complaint in an action against an incorporated association. The proper county for the trial of an action against an unincorporated association is the same as for corporations if the association has filed a statement with the Secretary of State pursuant to Corp. Code § 18200 (formerly Corp. Code § 24003) listing its principal office in this state. For the purpose of determining the proper county, the association's principal place of business is deemed to be the principal office listed in the statement. If the association has not filed a statement, it may be sued in the county where the contract is made or is to be performed, where the obligation or liability arises, or where the breach occurs [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395.2, 395.5]. In addition, because an association that has not filed a statement has no principal place of business in California, venue is proper in the county of residence of any member of the association [Mosby v. Superior Court (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 219, 229 n.7, 117 Cal. Rptr. 588 ; for further discussion,see § 571.18[3] regarding unincorporated associations].

Moreover, even if the association has filed a statement, if the action is against partners as individuals as well as the association, venue may be proper in the county or counties in which those partners reside [Buran Equipment Co. v. Superior Court (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1662, 1666-1667, 236 Cal. Rptr. 171] .

[EITHER, if defendant is State of California]

Defendant State of California is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a sovereign state of the United States of America, and _____ [specify facts establishing venue, e.g., this action is brought in (_____ (city)), _____ County, California, wherein the injury herein described occurred].

[OR, if defendant is state agency]

Defendant _____[name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [specify facts showing defendant is a state agency, e.g., an Appeals Board for the Department of _____] of the State of California, and _____ [specify facts establishing venue, e.g., this action is brought in the City (and County) of _____, wherein the Attorney General has his/her office].

[2] Use of Form

The forms of allegation in [1], above, are for use in a complaint in an action against the state or a state agency. Actions against the state or its agencies may be governed by the general venue rules in some actions Regents of University of California v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 529, 534-535, 91 Cal. Rptr. 57, 476 P.2d 457] . There are a few statutes that fix venue in a particular place for specific actions (see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 2019 (legal proceedings against the Medical Board of California must be instituted in either Sacramento, Los Angeles, San Diego, or San Francisco)). Generally, however, the Attorney General may make a written demand to move the place of trial to Sacramento in actions on claims for money or damages for which the filing of a claim is a statutory prerequisite under Gov. Code §§ 905 (local public entities) and 905.2 (state), or in actions on claims for money or damages that are specifically exempted from the filing requirement, such as the enumerated matters in Gov. Code §§ 905 and 905.1 [see Gov. Code § 955 (governing actions other than those for inverse condemnation or injury to a person or personal property); for further discussion,see § 571.18[4]]. In those cases, the action may be commenced and tried in any city or city and county of the state in which the Attorney General has an office, that is, Sacramento, San Francisco, or Los Angeles [Code Civ. Proc. § 401(1)].

The examples in the forms above are based on venue provisions that are peculiar to public enties. The first alternative paragraph uses the example of Gov. Code 955.2 (proper court for trial of an action for injury to person or personal property; county where injury occurred)]. The example in the second alternative paragraph would be used when there is a specific statute establishing venue in Sacramento, or when the action is governed by Gov. Code § 955. In addition to those examples, the foregoing form may also be used in cases governed by the general venue rules in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392-402, in which case the county of the agency's residence, the situs of the subject matter of the action, or other facts establishing the proper place for trial should be alleged instead of the examples given [see §§ 571.80 581.84 for forms; see discussion in § 571.18[4] regarding actions against a state or local government agency].

[2] Use of Form

The notice of motion in [1], above, is for use by a defendant to move for a change of venue based on Code Civ. Proc. § 397(a), or for use by either party to move for a change of venue based on Code Civ. Proc. § 397(a)-(d) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 396b; *see also Cook v. The form contains optional language at the end of the first paragraph for use when the movant seeks to recover the reasonable expenses and attorney's fees incurred in making the motion for change of transfer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(b), and discussion in § 571.32[2] regarding expenses and attorney's fees].

[3] Accompanying Papers

A supporting memorandum is required to be filed and a copy served with the notice of motion in [1], above, [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010]. For discussion and forms,see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[4] Procedure for Filing Motion

[a] When Action Commenced in Wrong Court

Code Civ. Proc. § 396b sets forth specific procedures to change venue when an action has been commenced in a county that is not a proper one for trial under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392-395.5. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 396b, the defendant may file with the clerk a notice of motion for an order transferring the action or proceeding to the proper court, together with proof of service on the adverse party of a copy of such papers. The defendant may file the notice of motion at the time he or she answers, demurs, or moves to strike, or, at his or her option, without answering, demurring, or moving to strike and within the time otherwise allowed to respond to the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 397(a) (court may change place of trial when court designated in complaint is not proper court)]. Limited civil actions and proceedings governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 396a (specified consumer obligations and unlawful detainer) are excepted from the coverage of Code Civ. Proc. § 396b [Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(a)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(a) requires a notice of motion together with proof of service [Otsuka v. Balangue (1949) 92

Cal. App. 2d 788, 790, 208 P.2d 65] . Further, a Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(a) motion for change of venue is also governed by the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 [Bohn v. Bohn (1913) 164 Cal. 532, 536, 129 P. 981] . Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 provides that written notices must state when the hearing on the motion will be held, the grounds on which the motion will be made, and the papers, if any, on which the motion is to be based. If the notice fairly advises the opposing counsel of the issues to be raised, the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 396b, 397, and 1010 will be satisfied [Tarman v. Sherwin (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 49, 52, 10 Cal. Rptr. 787] . It may be sufficient if the notice contains a statement that the motion will also be based on the papers served with it [Modlin v. Walter's Fur Shop (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 384, 388, 188 P.2d 805 ; see Butterfield v. Butterfield (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 227, 228, 34 P.2d 145 (holding that former Cal. Rules of Ct, Rule XIX, now Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a), requiring a memorandum to be filed applies to motions for change of venue)]. In any event, any defect in the notice may be cured by amendment [Joe Lowe Corp. v. Rasmusson (1942) 53 Cal. App. 2d 490, 497, 127 P.2d 1002] .

[b] Convenience of Witnesses and Ends of Justice

The form of notice in [1], above, may also be used to move for change of venue on the ground that the convenience of the witnesses and the ends of justice will be promoted [see Code Civ. Proc. § 397(c)]. Although there is no express time limit within which the notice of motion must be made, it must be made within a reasonable time after the answer is filed [Thompson v. Superior Court (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 300, 306, 103 Cal. Rptr. 94] . However, the answer must be on file before the motion is made, because until the issues are joined, the court cannot determine whether the witnesses' testimony will be relevant [Johnson v. Superior Court (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 212, 214, 42 Cal. Rptr. 645] . For similar reasons, it is not enough that the defendant has appeared only by demurrer [Russello v. Mori (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d 828, 832, 315 P.2d 343] .

Counsel should ensure that the statement of grounds in the notice follows the statutory language of Code Civ. Proc. § 397(c), because both the conditions in the statute must be met before a motion can be granted [Pearson v. Superior Court (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 69, 77, 18 Cal. Rptr. 578] . Thus, the moving party has the burden of proving that both the convenience of the witnesses and the ends of justice will be promoted by a change of venue [Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 607, 328 P.2d 953] .

[c] Impartial Trial Cannot Be Had

The form in [1], above, may also be used to give notice of a motion based on Code Civ. Proc. § 397(b). The motion must be made after the answer has been filed, and possibly even after a jury has been impaneled [Cook v. Pendergast (1882) 61 Cal. 72, 79 ; see J.I. Case T. Co. v. Copren Bros. (1917) 35 Cal. App. 70, 79, 169 P. 443] . However, counsel may not have to wait until an attempt to secure a fair and impartial jury has been made if, at the hearing, there appears sufficient reason to believe that an impartial trial cannot be had [People v. Ocean Shore Railroad, Inc. (1938) 24 Cal. App. 2d 420, 427, 75 P.2d 560] .

When motion based on ground that defendant joined to defeat right of real defendant to have cause removed to proper county for trial, ground as required to be distinctly specified in notice of motion. McDonald v. California Timber Co. (1907) 151 Cal. 159, 161, 90 P. 548 .

[d] No Qualified Judge

The form of notice in [1], above, may be used for a motion to change venue based on Code Civ. Proc. § 397(d). However, it is unlikely that this type of motion will ever be required, because a qualified judge from another county may always be assigned [People v. Spring Valley Co. (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 656, 672, 241 P.2d 1069] .

[5] Costs and Fees of Transfer

When a transfer is sought on any ground specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 397(b), (c), or (d), the costs and fees of the transfer, and of filing the papers in the court to which the transfer is ordered, shall be paid by the party making the motion for the transfer at the time the motion is filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 399].

[6] Transfer of Action by or Against Local Government Entity Under Code Civ. Proc. § 394

The form in [1], above, may also be modified for use in moving for a change of venue to a neutral county in an action by or against a county or other local government agency [see Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a) (discussed in § 571.19); see also Dorame v. Superior Court (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 70, 72, 146 Cal. Rptr. 162 (holding that Code Civ. Proc. § 394 is removal or change of venue statute)]. In such a case, counsel should specify the applicable grounds for transfer to a neutral county under Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a) rather than the grounds for change of venue set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 397.

Although one provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a) states that an action against a county or other local entity "shall be tried" in that county when it involves injuries occurring in that county as a result of that county's negligence, a plaintiff in such a case may nevertheless seek a change of venue under the discretionary provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 397(b) [see Paesano v. Superior Court (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 17, 19-20, 250 Cal. Rptr. 842] .

[2] Use of Form

The general form of declaration in [1], above, is for use by either party to support a motion for change of venue. The example used in the form is based on the ground that the convenience of the witnesses and the ends of justice will be served by a change [Code Civ. Proc. § 397(c)]. However, the form may also be used to support a motion based on the grounds that there is reason to believe that an impartial trial cannot be had in the county where the action was commenced, or that there is no judge of the court qualified to act [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 397(b), (d)]. If the form is used to support a motion based on Code Civ. Proc. §§ 397(b) or (d), counsel should aver facts supporting those particular grounds.

Paragraph 5 of the form contains optional language for use when the movant seeks to recover the reasonable expenses and attorney's fees incurred in making the motion for change of transfer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(b) and discussion in § 571.32[e] regarding expenses and attorney's fees].

[3] Inconvenience of Witnesses

The moving party's burden of proving that both the convenience of the witnesses and the ends of justice will be promoted by a change of venue may be satisfied by affidavits or declarations to that effect [Corfee v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 473, 477, 20 Cal. Rptr. 870] . The affidavits or declarations must set forth the names of the witnesses, the nature of the testimony expected from each, and the reasons why the attendance of each would be inconvenient [Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 607, 328 P.2d 953 (affidavits); Stute v. Burinda

(1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 11, 17 , 177 Cal. Rptr. 102 (declarations)]. They must contain more than generalities and conclusions [Dillman v. Superior Court (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 769, 773, 23 Cal. Rptr. 498] . Thus, a bare conclusory averment that witnesses are material and necessary is insufficient [Flanagan v. Flanagan (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 641, 644, 346 P.2d 418] . The averments must reveal what the substance of the witnesses' testimony would be, and whether it would be favorable or unfavorable to the moving party. The convenience of witnesses whose testimony will be merely cumulative is entitled to little consideration [Corfee v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 473, 477, 20 Cal. Rptr. 870] .

The declaration is also required to set forth facts from which the conclusion can be drawn that the ends of justice will be promoted. However, the court may rely not only on the direct facts set forth in the affidavits or declarations, but also on any reasonable and relevant inference therefrom [Pearson v. Superior Court (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 69, 77, 18 Cal. Rptr. 578] .

[4] Impartial Trial Cannot Be Had

Affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) may be used as evidence to support a motion for change of venue based on Code Civ. Proc. § 397(b). Affidavits were held to be sufficient to establish that it would be extremely doubtful that an impartial trial could be held before a jury in a county when they tended to show, by reference to newspaper editorials and articles, reports of civic meetings, and statements made by numerous citizens of the county, a widespread feeling of prejudice extending over a long period of years [People v. Ocean Shore Railroad, Inc. (1938) 24 Cal. App. 2d 420, 427-428, 75 P.2d 560] .

[5] No Judge in Court Qualified to Act

The venue statutes provide no grounds for the disqualification of judges, nor is there any authority establishing the showing required for a motion for change of venue on this ground. However, it appears that such a motion may be supported by affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) [see Meyer v. City of San Diego (1898) 121 Cal. 102, 103-104, 53 P. 434 (affidavit to support motion for change of venue showing judge was owner of real property located in defendant city which was subject to taxes for the payment of a bonded indebtedness such as the one that was the subject of the action); see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1 (grounds for disqualification of judges for cause)]. For forms and discussion relating to disqualification for judges for cause,see Ch. 317, Judges .

[2] Use of Form

The declaration in [1], above, is for use to support a motion for change of venue when an action has been commenced in the wrong court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 396b(a), 397(a)]. Although there is no statutory requirement, it is general practice to support a motion with declarations or affidavits [see Hagan v. Gilbert (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 570, 576, 189 P.2d 548 (where contract was entered into)]. For example, a declaration of residence will normally satisfy defendant's burden of proving that neither he or she, nor any other defendant, resided in the county in which the action was commenced [see Carruth v. Superior Court (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 215, 223-224, 145 Cal. Rptr. 344] . A defendant's affidavit may contain conclusory averments as to his or her own residence, but the same averments made in an affidavit by a third person about a defendant are legal conclusions, and therefore insufficient [McKune v. McKune (1920) 48 Cal. App. 204, 205-206, 191 P. 958] .

[2] Use of Form

The notice of motion in [1], above, is for use by a plaintiff in response to a defendant's motion to change venue. The basis of the countermotion is that the convenience of the witnesses or the ends of justice or both will be promoted by retaining venue where the action was commenced [Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(d)]. The form may only be used if the defendant's motion was based on the ground that the action was not brought in the county of his or her residence. If the defendant's motion was based on other grounds, plaintiff's opposition based on convenience of the witnesses and ends of justice may only be asserted by counteraffidavits to defendant's motion [Cook v. Pendergast (1882) 61 Cal. 72, 76 ; Braunstein v. Superior Court of Monterey County (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 691, 697, 37 Cal. Rptr. 666] .

A countermotion to retain venue based on Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(d) cannot be made unless the answer is filed, because until the issues of fact are settled by the answer, the court cannot determine what testimony will be material [Gilman v. Nordin (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 788 . 793, 247 P.2d 394] . For the same reasons, filing of a demurrer alone is not sufficient [Johnson v. Superior Court (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 212, 214, 42 Cal. Rptr. 645] .

Although the courts are in conflict on the issue, it may be sufficient to establish that either the convenience of witnesses or the ends of justice would be promoted [see Braunstein v. Superior Court (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 691, 698 n.2, 37 Cal. Rptr. 666 (showing that either convenience of witnesses or ends of justice sufficient); but see Maxwell v. Murray (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 440, 443, 11 Cal. Rptr. 916 (showing that both convenience of witnesses and ends of justice required); see Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(d) (action may be retained if it appears that convenience of witnesses or ends of justice will be promoted); cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 397(c) (court may change place of trial when convenience of witnesses and ends of justice would be promoted)].

The form contains optional language at the end of the first paragraph for use when the plaintiff seeks to recover the reasonable expenses and attorney's fees incurred in opposing the defendant's motion for change of venue [see Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(b) and discussion in § 571.32[2]].

[3] Accompanying Papers

A supporting memorandum is required to be served and filed with the notice of motion in [1], above [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010]. For discussion and forms,see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

The form in [1], above, should be supported by an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) establishing facts showing that the convenience of witnesses or the ends of justice will be promoted [see § 571.101]. Affidavits or declarations supporting plaintiff's countermotion to retain venue under Code Civ. Proc. § 396b(d) are required so that the trial court can determine whether the witnesses' testimony will be material, relevant, and admissible. They must be specific as to the facts to which the witnesses will testify, and mere conclusions or indefinite statements are insufficient [Braunstein v. Superior Court (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 691, 698, 37 Cal. Rptr. 666] . The affidavit or declaration must indicate the names of the witnesses, the nature of testimony that may be expected from them, and the reasons why they would be inconvenienced by a transfer [Maxwell v. Murray (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 440, 443, 11 Cal. Rptr. 916] .

Chapter 572 VERIFICATION
PART I. SCOPE

50-572 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 572.01

§ 572.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses and contains forms for use in verifying pleadings in actions and special proceedings. It includes the following forms:

- Two alternative forms of a sworn affidavit [see §§ 572.40 and 572.41].
- A declaration by a party [see § 572.42].
- Nonparty declarations by:
  - A party's attorney [see §§ 572.43 and 572.44].
  - Other nonparties [see §§ 572.45 and 572.46].
  - A corporate officer [see § 572.47].
- A notice of motion for judgment on the pleadings for use when an unverified answer to a verified complaint is filed [see § 572.48].

Verification of pleadings is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 446.

"Affidavit" is defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 2003, and the permissible uses of affidavits are set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 2009.

Use of a declaration in lieu of a sworn affidavit is authorized by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446 and 2015.5.

The criminal consequences of a false verification, and punishment therefor, are set out in Penal Code §§ 27(b), 118, 529, and 777b.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

50-572 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 572.11

§ 572.11 Verification Defined

A "verification" is an affidavit verifying the truth of the matters covered by it [Star Motor Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 151 Cal. Rptr. 721 ; Albertson v. Raboff (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 372, 388, 8 Cal. Rptr. 398 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 2009].

The objective of a verification is to insure good faith in the averments or statements of a party to litigation [Silcox v. Lang (1889) 78 Cal. 118, 122, 20 P. 297 ; Star Motor Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 151 Cal. Rptr. 721] .

Volume 50: Usury thru Verification-Chs. 568-572
Chapter 572 VERIFICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

50-572 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 572.12

§ 572.12 Forms of Verification

[1] Affidavit and Declaration

A verification may be in the form of an affidavit [Code Civ. Proc. § 2009; see Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. It may also be in the form of a declaration under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 2015.5]. A person verifying a pleading need not swear to the truth or his or her belief in the truth of the matters stated therein but may, instead, assert the truth or his or her belief in the truth of those matters "under penalty of perjury" [Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. In addition, whenever under any state law, rule, regulation, order or requirement, any matter is required or permitted to be supported, evidenced, established, or proved by the sworn written statement, declaration, verification, certificate, oath, or affidavit (other than a deposition, or an oath of office, or an oath required to be taken before a specified official other than a notary public), the matter may with like force and effect be supported, evidenced, established or proved by the unsworn written statement, declaration, verification, or certificate which recites that it is certified or declared by him or her to be true under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5].

[2] Affidavit

An affidavit is a written declaration under oath, made without notice to the adverse party [Code Civ. Proc. § 2003]. It may be used to verify a pleading or a paper in a special proceeding, to prove the service of a summons, notice, or other paper in an action or special proceeding, to obtain a provisional remedy, the examination of a witness, or a stay of proceedings, and in uncontested proceedings to establish a record of birth, or on a motion, and in any other case expressly permitted by statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 2009].

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 446 refers to verification by affidavit, this form should be distinguished from an evidentiary affidavit used to establish the facts stated in it. When an affidavit is used as evidence, the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 446 do not apply [Toboni v. Pennington Millinery Co. (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 47, 52, 341 P.2d 845] . For a discussion of the use of affidavits to establish evidentiary facts, see Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations .

When no particular affidavit format is prescribed by statute, any format appears to be sufficient even though the affidavit does not specifically state that the affiant was first duly sworn, as long as it indicates somewhere that it was made under oath [Osborn v. City of Whittier (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 609, 619, 230 P.2d 132 (form of affidavit verifying claim for damages against municipality, which indicated that it was "subscribed" and "sworn to" by plaintiff before a notary public whose signature was affixed, as sufficient verification)]. Presumably, this rule also applies to affidavits that verify pleadings, as neither Code Civ. Proc. § 446 nor Code Civ. Proc. § 2003 prescribe any particular format to be used to indicate that an affiant was first duly sworn [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 2003].

Although no particular affidavit format is required to verify pleadings, the mere acknowledgment of execution before a notary public is not equivalent to a verification [Palm Springs Alpine Estates, Inc. v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 883, 888, 63 Cal. Rptr. 618] . There must also be a declaration that the statements in the affidavit are true of the affiant's own knowledge, except as to matters that are stated on information or belief, and as to those matters that they are believed to be true [Code Civ. Proc. § 446; Borders v. Civil Service Commission (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 678, 683, 27 Cal. Rptr. 490 ; for a more detailed discussion of the form and contents of affidavits, see Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations].

[3] Declaration

An unsworn certification or declaration made under penalty of perjury may be used in lieu of a statement under oath [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]. It should be in substantially the following forms:

If the declaration is executed within this state, it may say: "I certify (or declare) under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct." The declaration must bear the date and place of execution, and the declarant's signature [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5(a)].

If the declaration is executed at any place, within or without the state, it may say: "I certify (or declare) under penalty of perjury under the laws of the state of California that the foregoing is true and correct." The declaration need bear only the date of execution, and the declarant's signature [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5(b)].

The declaration need not appear at the end of the verified document although this is the better practice [People v. Pierce (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 53, 59, 56 Cal. Rptr. 817, 423 P.2d 969] . For a more detailed discussion of the form and contents of declarations see Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations .

Chapter 572 VERIFICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

50-572 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 572.13

§ 572.13 Verification of Pleadings

[1] Complaints

Generally, a complaint need not be verified to commence a civil action [Quick v. Corsaro (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 831, 836, 4 Cal. Rptr. 674] . Moreover, when the plaintiff is the state, or a county, city, school district, district, public agency, or public corporation, or an officer of any of these entities in his or her official capacity, the complaint need not be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. However, there are numerous actions or proceedings in which a verification is required by statute. For example, the complaint in a quiet title action must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020]. For a list of actions and proceedings in which a verification is specifically required, see § 572.31[1].

Even in cases in which verification of a complaint is not required, other purposes may be served by doing so. For example, a verified complaint may:

- Serve as an affidavit to support a preliminary injunction [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)].

- Require the defendant in an unlimited civil case to file a verified answer and preclude use of a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 431.30(d), 446]. By contrast, in a limited civil case, verification of the complaint will not require the defendant to verify the answer or preclude use of a general denial, with the exception that if the cause of action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection, verification of the complaint will require the denial of the allegations to be made positively or on information and belief [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 431.30(d)].

- Serve as a counter-affidavit on a motion for a change of venue or a motion to quash service of summons [Atkins, Kroll & Co. v. Broadway Lbr Co. (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 646, 654, 35 Cal. Rptr. 385] .

A verified complaint cannot, however, serve as a counter-affidavit to prove that there are triable issues of fact in opposition to a motion for summary judgment [People v. City of Garden Grove (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 794, 802, 332 P.2d 841] .

For a discussion of the effect of failure to verify a complaint when required by statute, see § 572.17[1].

[2] Answers

When the complaint is verified, the answer must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 446; French v. Smith Booth (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 23, 29, 131 P.2d 863] . Conversely, when the complaint is not verified, the answer need not be [Kraus v. Walt Disney Productions (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 736, 742, 34 Cal. Rptr. 702] . Answers in a limited civil case need not be verified even if the complaint or cross complaint is verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 92(b)].

When the state, or a county, city, school district, district, public agency, public corporation, or any officer of any of these entities in his or her official capacity is the plaintiff, the answer shall be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. But when these entities or officers are the defendant, their answer to a complaint or petition need not be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 446; Seckels v. Department of Indus. Relations (1929) 98 Cal. App. 647, 648, 277 P. 497] .

The requirement that an answer must be verified when a public entity or officer is the plaintiff does not apply if the admission of the truth of the complaint might subject the defendant to criminal prosecution [Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. The general requirement that answers must be verified when the complaint is verified is a separate provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 446 and is not subject to this exception. However, a verified answer required by this provision may not be used against a defendant in subsequent criminal proceedings [DeCamp v. First Kensington Corp. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 268, 276, 147 Cal. Rptr. 869] .

[3] Evidentiary Value

A verified pleading may constitute an affidavit competent to prove the facts stated in it [Atkins, Kroll, & Co. v. Broadway Lbr. Co. (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 646, 654, 35 Cal. Rptr. 385] . However, an unverified pleading cannot serve as an affidavit [Sheard v. Superior Court (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 207, 212, 114 Cal. Rptr. 743] . The circumstances under which a verified complaint may constitute an affidavit are discussed under § 572.13[1].

Although an unverified pleading has no such evidentiary value, it does not follow that it must be ignored. For example, in a motion to quash service of an unverified cross complaint, the existence of the cross complaint may be a material fact if it defines a cause of action that has some bearing on whether it is fair and reasonable for the court to assert jurisdiction [Mihlon v. Superior Court (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 703, 710, 215 Cal. Rptr. 442 ; Lundgren v. Superior Court (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 477, 485, 168 Cal. Rptr. 717] .

Volume 50: Usury thru Verification-Chs. 568-572
Chapter 572 VERIFICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

50-572 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 572.14

§ 572.14 Who May Verify

[1] Parties

Absent extenuating circumstances, a pleading shall be verified by the party litigant [Code Civ. Proc. § 446; Perlman v. Municipal Court (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 568, 573, 160 Cal. Rptr. 567] . When parties sue or are sued jointly, verification of a pleading by one coplaintiff or codefendant is sufficient [Butterfield v. Graves (1902) 138 Cal. 155, 158, 71 P. 510 ; Claiborne v. Castle (1893) 98 Cal. 30, 33, 32 P. 807] .

In all cases of verification of pleadings by a party, the affidavit shall state that the same is true of his or her own knowledge, except as to the matters that are stated on his or her information and belief, and as to those matters that he or she believes it to be true [Code Civ. Proc. § 446].

[2] Attorneys

If a party is unable to verify a pleading because he or she is absent from the county where his or her attorney has his or her office, or if the party is unable to verify for some other cause, the attorney may verify the pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 446; Cummings v. Cummings (1929) 97 Cal. App. 144, 147, 275 P. 245 ; Brown v. Sandell (1926) 79 Cal. App. 313, 315-316, 249 P. 209] . For a discussion of attorney verification when he or she has personal knowledge of the facts, see [3], below.

The attorney's affidavit of verification shall state that he or she has read the pleading and that he or she is informed and believes that the matters in it are true and on that ground alleges that they are true [Code Civ. Proc. § 446; see Bittleston Law etc. Agency v. Howard (1916) 172 Cal. 357, 361, 156 P. 515 (when party absent from county, or from some other cause is unable to verify pleading, attorney verification may be made on information or belief)]. However, in such a case the pleading will not be considered an affidavit or declaration establishing the facts alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. The effect of improper verification is discussed under § 572.17[4][a].

The practice of attorney verification is discouraged, and to that end the provisions of the code allowing it are strictly construed [Silcox v. Lang (1889) 78 Cal. 118, 122, 20 P. 297] . Thus, attorney verifications are not authorized when the absence of the party creates no inability to verify, as when the absence is only temporary and there is still time to file a verified pleading, or when the absence is contrived in order to circumvent the requirement of verification [see DeCamp v. First Kensington Corp. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 268, 275, 147 Cal. Rptr. 869] .

When a pleading is verified by an attorney, he or she shall set forth in the affidavit the reasons why it is not made by one of the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. When the averments in the affidavit of the attorney state that the facts contained in the pleading are within his or her knowledge, it is deemed a sufficient statement as to why the party did not make the verification [Oak Grove School Dist. v. City Title Ins. Co. (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 678, 707, 32 Cal. Rptr. 288] .

[3] Other Persons With Knowledge of Facts

A person other than the party may verify a pleading if the facts are within his or her knowledge without regard to whether the party is absent from the county, or from some other cause is unable to verify the pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 446; Bittleston Law etc. Agency v. Howard (1916) 172 Cal. 357, 361, 156 P. 515] . This person is not required to be the party's agent [Ware v. Stafford (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 232, 24 Cal. Rptr. 153] . As in an attorney verification, the person shall set forth in the affidavit the reasons why it is not made by one of the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 446; see the discussion under [2], above].

An attorney may also verify a pleading if the facts are within his or her knowledge [Code Civ. Proc. § 446; Bittleston Law etc. Agency v. Howard (1916) 172 Cal. 357, 361-62, 156 P. 515 ; Oak Grove School Dist. v. City Title Ins. Co. (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 678, 707, 32 Cal. Rptr. 288] . An attorney may verify a pleading based on information and belief, but a verification on information and belief is insufficient when the attorney does not also claim that the facts are within his or her knowledge [Perlman v. Municipal Court (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 568, 574, 160 Cal. Rptr. 567] . For a discussion of attorney verification when the party is out of the county, or for some other reason is unable to verify, see § 572.14[2], above.

[4] Officer of a Corporation

When a corporation is a party, a verification can be made by any of its officers. The affidavit shall state that the officer has read the pleading and that he or she is informed and believes that the matters in it are true and on that ground alleges that they are true. But the pleading shall not be considered an affidavit or declaration establishing the facts alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 446].

This provision does not mean that only an officer is authorized to verify a pleading. The clause is permissive, not exclusive, and allows an attorney or other party to verify in a proper case [Bittleston Law etc. Agency v. Howard (1916) 172 Cal. 357, 362, 156 P. 515] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

50-572 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 572.15

§ 572.15 Criminal Consequences of Improper Verification

[1] False Verification

Any person who willfully makes a false verification as to the truth of any material matter, which he or she knows to be false is guilty of perjury [PenalCode § 118(a); People v. Agnew (1947) 77 Cal. App. 2d 748, 753, 176 P.2d 724 , cert. denied, 337 U.S. 909, 69 S. Ct. 1041, 93 L. Ed. 1721 ; see also Penal Code § 118(b) (proof of falsity)]. This is true whether the false verification is made or subscribed within or without the state, and is punishable by the court in the jurisdictional territory where the related action or proceeding occurs [Penal Code §§ 27(b), 118(a), 777b].

Inconsistent theories of recovery in a pleading are permitted, but verification of inconsistent facts alleged in a complaint indicates perjury [Manti v. Gunari (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 442, 449, 85 Cal. Rptr. 366] .

Although verified complaints are not required by Code Civ. Proc. § 446, they are contemplated and given legal sanction by the statute. Therefore, it is perjury to render false statements in a verified complaint even though it could have been filed without being verified [People v. Godines (1936) 17 Cal. App. 2d 721, 724, 62 P.2d 787] . However, no charge of perjury can be maintained when an oath is not authorized or provided for by law [see Penal Code § 118]. For example, Code Civ. Proc. § 446 provides an exception to the requirement that an answer to a verified complaint must be verified, when a defendant would be subjected to criminal prosecution should he or she file a verified answer to the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. In such a case an oath is not authorized or provided for by law, and therefore is not subject to a perjury charge [People v. Millsap (1927) 85 Cal. App. 732, 744-745, 260 P. 378] .

[2] False Personation

When a person falsely personates another to make a verification, he or she is subject to a $10,000 fine, or imprisonment up to one year, or both [Penal Code § 529].

Chapter 572 VERIFICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

50-572 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 572.16

§ 572.16 Sufficiency of Verification

[1] Form and Substance

The chief test of the sufficiency of an affidavit is whether it is so clear and certain that an indictment for perjury may be sustained on it if false [Sheeley v. City of Santa Clara (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 83, 85, 30 Cal. Rptr. 121 ; Borders v. Civil Service Commission (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 678, 684, 27 Cal. Rptr. 490] . It must be made by a person authorized by law to do so, and it must comply in form and substance with statutory provisions [see French v. Smith Booth Usher Co. (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 23, 29, 131 P.2d 863 (holding that if requirements satisfied, verification sufficient to install and support pleading)]. The statutory provisions regarding the form and substance of verifications and the persons authorized to verify are discussed under §§ 572.12, and 572.14, above .

[2] Information and Belief

Code Civ. Proc. § 446 was adopted for the express purpose of permitting allegations to be verified on information and belief because parties often rely on information furnished to them by others [North v. Cecil B. De Mille Productions, Inc. (1934) 2 Cal. 2d 55, 59, 39 P.2d 199] . However, the provision in Code Civ. Proc. § 446 authorizing verification on information and belief refers to pleadings that join issues, such as complaints and answers [Star Motor Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 151 Cal. Rptr. 721] . Facts purported to be stated on information and belief are hearsay [Star Motor Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 151 Cal. Rptr. 721 ; Sheard v. Superior Court (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 207, 212, 114 Cal. Rptr. 743] . Thus, when a verification based on information and belief is to be used as evidence of facts to support a petition for a writ of mandate pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1086, it must be disregarded [Star Motor Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 151 Cal. Rptr. 721 ; see also Burger v. Superior Court (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 1013, 1019, 199 Cal. Rptr. 227 (attorney's declaration on information and belief insufficient to support opposition to motion to expunge lis pendens)]. For discussion of party, attorney, or other person verification on information or belief, see § 572.14].

Chapter 572 VERIFICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

50-572 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 572.17

§ 572.17 Effect of Failure to Verify Pleadings

[1] Complaints

The failure to verify a complaint when required by statute is only a defect in pleading and does not deprive the court of jurisdiction to hear the matter on the merits [Ware v. Stafford (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 232, 237 24 Cal. Rptr. 153 ; People v. Birch Securities Co. (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 703, 707, 196 P.2d 143 , cert. denied, 336 U.S. 936, 69 S. Ct. 745, 93 L. Ed. 1095] . At most, failure to verify a complaint when required to do so may render it fatally defective, and on a proper motion, the complaint may be stricken [Silcox v. Lang (1889) 78 Cal. 118, 121-122, 20 P. 297 ; Ware v. Stafford (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 232, 237, 24 Cal. Rptr. 153] . For a discussion of remedies available for failure to verify pleadings, see [4][a], below. For a discussion of circumstances under which a verified complaint may be required, see § 572.13[1].

[2] Answers

When a complaint is not verified, a general denial of its allegations in the answer is sufficient, but only puts in issue the material allegations of the complaint. If the complaint is verified, its allegations shall be positively denied or denied according to the information and belief of the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. Thus, a general denial to a verified complaint is insufficient to put the material allegations in the complaint in issue [Hirons v. Clare (1918) 38 Cal. App. 608, 609, 177 P. 291] . Further, anunverified answer to a verified complaint is an admission of the allegations in the complaint, and the answer may be subject to a motion for judgment on the pleadings [DeCamp v. Kensington (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 268, 283, 147 Cal. Rptr. 869 ; Patterson v. Blackburn (1920) 47 Cal. App. 362, 363, 190 P. 483] . For a general form of a notice of motion for judgment on the pleadings, see § 572.48.

[3] Omission Cured by Amendment

Generally, an omission of a verification may be cured by amendment [Ford v. Loaney (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 503, 509, 337 P.2d 527] . A defective verification in a complaint may be cured by amendment even though the statute of limitations has run on the time to file the original complaint, since verification of a complaint is not a jurisdictional requirement [United Farm Workers of America v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1985) 37 Cal. 3d 912, 915, 210 Cal. Rptr. 453, 694 P.2d 138 ; Ware v. Stafford (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 232, 237, 24 Cal. Rptr. 153] . However, this does not appear to apply when a verified claim must be filed within a statutory period as a condition precedent to maintaining an action [see Hoffman v. Palm Springs (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 645, 650-651, 337 P.2d 521 (amended claim filed against municipality after statutory period for filing had expired)].

[4] When Pleading Not Verified or Improperly Verified

[a] Remedies Available

An improper verification is not a proper ground for a demurrer [Butterfield v. Graves (1902) 138 Cal. 155, 158, 71 P. 510 ; Lapique v. Kelley (1927) 82 Cal. App. 586, 592, 256 P. 229] . However, if an answer is not sufficiently verified it may be stricken, or judgment on the pleadings may be ordered [French v. Smith Booth Usher Co. (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 23, 29, 131 P.2d 863 ; Stockton Lumber Co. v. Blodgett (1906) 3 Cal. App. 94, 95, 84 P. 441 ; see also Zavala v. Board of Trustees (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1755, 1761, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 768 (dicta; proper remedy is motion to strike)]. For a form of a notice of motion for a judgment on the pleadings on the ground that the answer was not sufficiently verified, see § 572.48.

These remedies are not available when it is necessary to inquire into the truth of the verifying affidavit to show insufficiency. For example, the court will not entertain an objection to a verified complaint when the defendant attempts to show that the affiant did not have the personal knowledge of facts he or she claimed to have in the verification [French v. Smith Booth Usher Co. (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 23, 29, 131 P.2d 863] .

[b] Waiver of Defect

A defective verification of a pleading may be waived by proceeding to trial without proper objection [Zavala v. Board of Trustees (1993) 16 Cal. App.4th 1755, 1761, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 768 ; Ware v. Stafford (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 232, 237, 24 Cal. Rptr. 153 ; People v. Birch Securities Co. (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 703, 707, 196 P.2d 143] . However, a waiver of verification does not admit the sufficiency of an answer or dispense with the necessity of specific denial of a verified complaint [Harney v. Porter (1881) 62 Cal. 511, 512] .

[1] Affidavit

Affidavits are ordinarily not allowed in evidence unless permitted by statute. Estate of Fraysher (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 131, 135, 301 P.2d 848

Affidavits do not constitute best evidence to prove issuable facts. Lacrabere v. Wise (1904) 141 Cal. 554, 556, 75 P. 185

Acknowledgment of execution of document before notary public is not equivalent of jurat or verification. Palm Springs Alpine Estates, Inc. v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 883, 888, 63 Cal. Rptr. 618

Notice of appeal to civil service commission "subscribed and sworn to" before notary public does not constitute verification. Borders v. Civil Service Commission (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 678, 683, 27 Cal. Rptr. 490

Test of sufficiency of affidavit is whether it is so clear and certain that indictment for perjury may be sustained on it if false. People v. Thompson (1935) 5 Cal. App. 2d 655, 664, 43 P.2d 600 ; Application of Behymer (1933) 130 Cal. App. 200, 203, 19 P.2d 829 ; Gee Chong Pong v. Harris (1918) 38 Cal. App. 214, 217, 175 P. 806

[2] Answer

One defendant as able to verify answer when more than one defendant sued jointly and they claim an estate or interest adverse to plaintiff. Butterfield v. Graves (1902) 138 Cal. 155, 158, 71 P. 510

When complaint is verified, Code Civ. Proc. § 446 requires answer to be verified. Benham v. Connor (1896) 113 Cal. 168, 171, 45 P. 258 ; French v. Smith Booth (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 23, 29, 131 P.2d 863 ; Johnson v. Dixon Farms Co. (1915) 29 Cal. App. 52, 55, 155 P. 134

Verification of pleading by one coplaintiff or codefendant as sufficient. Claiborne v. Castle (1893) 98 Cal. 30, 33, 32 P. 807

Complaint filed for injunctive relief by officer of state as not requiring verification. California State University, Hayward v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 533, 545, 121 Cal. Rptr. 85

When complaint is not verified, answer need not be verified. Kraus v. Walt Disney Productions (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 736, 742, 34 Cal. Rptr. 702

Answer of officer of state to complaint or petition as not requiring verification. Seckels v. Department of Indus. Relations (1929) 98 Cal. App. 647, 648, 277 P. 497

Unverified answer to verified complaint as admission of allegations in complaint. Patterson v. Blackburn (1920) 47 Cal. App. 362, 363, 190 P. 483

General denial to verified complaint as insufficient to put in issue material allegations in complaint. Hirons v. Clare (1918) 38 Cal. App. 608, 609, 177 P. 291

[3] Any Other Person

Verification by employee of party valid when employee had greater familiarity with facts than party. Conservatorship of Isaac O. (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 50, 54-55, 235 Cal. Rptr. 133

Provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 446 permitting verification by "any other person" does not require that person verifying be party's agent. Ware v. Stafford (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 232, 236, 24 Cal. Rptr. 153

[4] Attorney Verification

Complaint verified by plaintiff's attorney who has knowledge of facts is sufficient to support application for preliminary injunction. Continental Baking Co. v. Katz (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 512, 532, 67 Cal. Rptr. 761, 439 P.2d 889

Attorney's verification of proposed answer to cross complaint on motion to set aside default and default judgment is proper when party is out of state. Beard v. Beard (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 645, 649, 107 P.2d 385

Attorney may verify pleading when facts are within his or her knowledge. Bittleston Law etc. Agency v. Howard (1916) 172 Cal. 357, 362, 156 P. 515 ; Oak Grove School Dist. v. City Title Ins. Co. (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 678, 707, 32 Cal. Rptr. 288

Attorney verification is not authorized when absence of party creates no inability to verify. DeCamp v. First Kensington Corp. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 268, 275, 147 Cal. Rptr. 869

Defective averment is not fatal when verification otherwise complies with any of three Code Civ. Proc. § 446 contingencies allowing for attorney verification. Milstein v. Sartain (1943) 56 Cal. App. 2d 924, 927, 133 P.2d 836

Attorney of plaintiff is permitted under Code Civ. Proc. § 446 to verify complaint when plaintiff is absent from county where attorney has his or her office. Cummings v. Cummings (1929) 97 Cal. App. 144, 147, 275 P. 245 ; Brown v. Sandell (1926) 79 Cal. App. 313, 315-316, 249 P. 209

[5] Declaration

Declaration under penalty of perjury as not required to be at end of document, although this is better practice. People v. Pierce (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 53, 59, 56 Cal. Rptr. 817, 423 P.2d 969

Declaration under penalty of perjury is permitted by Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 for use in lieu of affidavit to support petition for writ of mandate. Hand v. Board of Examiners (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 605, 615, 136 Cal. Rptr. 187

Addition of Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 as expressly authorizing use of declaration in lieu of affidavit to establish existence of facts to support issuance of preliminary injunction. People ex rel. Savage v. L. A. Trust Deed etc. Exchange (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 66, 70, 12 Cal. Rptr. 144

Mere addition of jurat to letter, without indication that signers vouched for letter's statements, as not constituting verification. Hoffman v. City of Palm Springs (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 645, 337 P.2d 521

[6] False Verification

Oath or declarations required to be such that criminal sanctions of perjury might apply. Ancora-Citronelle Corp. v. Green (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 146, 150, 115 Cal. Rptr. 879

Verification of inconsistent facts alleged in complaint as perjury. Manti v. Gunari (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 442, 449, 85 Cal. Rptr. 366

Making false statement in pleading filed in judicial proceeding as perjury. People v. Agnew (1947) 77 Cal. App. 2d 748, 753, 176 P.2d 724 , cert. denied, 337 U.S. 909, 69 S. Ct. 1041, 93 L. Ed. 1721

False statements in verified complaint as possible perjury. People v. Godines (1936) 17 Cal. App. 2d 721, 724, 62 P.2d 787

Charge of perjury is not proper under Penal Code § 118 when oath was not authorized or provided for by law. People v. Millsap (1927) 85 Cal. App. 732, 744-745, 260 P. 378

[7] Lack of Verification

Unverified petition for reconsideration in workers' compensation action as properly accepted where state as plaintiff is excused from verificationrequirements under Code Civ. Proc. § 446. Wings West Airlines v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1047, 1055, 232 Cal. Rptr. 343

Improper verification is not proper ground for demurrer. Butterfield v. Graves (1902) 138 Cal. 155, 158, 71 P. 510 ; Lapique v. Kelley (1927) 82 Cal. App. 586, 592, 256 P. 229

Unverified complaint and answer have no effect in presenting issues to court for consideration at trial. Ponce v. Black (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 159, 164, 36 Cal. Rptr. 419

Defective verification is curable by amendment even though statute of limitations has run on time to file original complaint. Ware v. Stafford (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 232, 237, 24 Cal. Rptr. 153

Defective verification does not deprive court of jurisdiction to hear matter on merits. Ware v. Stafford (1962) 206

Cal. App. 2d 232, 237 24 Cal. Rptr. 153

Failure to verify pleading when required by statute is mere defect in pleading. People v. Birch Securities (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 703, 707, 196 P.2d 143 ; In re Staser (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 746, 751, 191 P.2d 791

Insufficiently verified answer is subject to motion to strike, or judgment on pleadings may be ordered. French v. Smith Booth Usher Co. (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 23, 29, 131 P.2d 863

Proposed unverified complaint accompanying notice of motion to set aside default and default judgment may be corrected after six month period allowed to file motion. Roseborough v. Campbell (1941) 46 Cal. App. 2d 257, 262, 115 P.2d 839

Plaintiff entitled to judgment on pleadings, and not limited to striking out answer, when unverified answer was filed to verified complaint. Stockton Lumber Co. v. Blodgett (1906) 3 Cal. App. 94, 95, 84 P. 441

[8] Nature of Verification

Verified answer is presumed to contain facts within knowledge or belief of adversary party. Lindemann v. San Joaquin Cotton Oil Co. (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 480, 500, 55 P.2d 870

Object of verification is to insure good faith in averments of party. Silcox v. Lang (1889) 78 Cal. 118, 122, 20 P. 297 ; Star Motor Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 151 Cal. Rptr. 721 ; Hoffman v. City of Palm Springs (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 645, 648, 337 P.2d 521

Verified pleading as affidavit competent to prove facts stated therein. Lundgren v. Superior Court (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 477, 485, 168 Cal. Rptr. 717 ; In re O'Brien Machinery, Inc. (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 563, 569, 36 Cal. Rptr. 782 ; Atkins, Kroll, & Co. v. Broadway Lbr. Co. (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 646, 35 Cal. Rptr. 385

Affidavit or declaration is not evidence absent statutory authorization, party stipulation, or waiver. Windigo Mills v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 586, 597, 155 Cal. Rptr. 63

Verification as affidavit verifying truth of matters covered by it. Star Motor Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 151 Cal. Rptr. 721 ; Sheeley v. City of Santa Clara (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 83, 85, 30 Cal. Rptr. 121 ; Albertson v. Raboff (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 372, 388,8 Cal. Rptr. 398 ; Hoffman v. City of Palm Springs (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 645, 648, 337 P.2d 521 ; Osborn v. City of Whittier (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 609, 619, 230 P.2d 132

[9] Objection and Waiver

Defective verification as waived by proceeding to trial without proper objection. Security T. & S. Bk. v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1920) 184 Cal. 173, 176, 193 P. 102 ; San Francisco v. Itsell (1889) 80 Cal. 57, 60, 22 P. 74 , dismissed 133 U.S. 65, 10 S. Ct. 241, 33 L. Ed. 570 ; McCullough v. Clark (1871) 41 Cal. 298, 302 ; Greenfield v. Steamer Gunnell (1856) 6 Cal. 67, 68 ; Ware v. Stafford (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 232, 237, 24 Cal. Rptr. 153 ; People v. Birch Securities Co. (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 703, 707, 196 P.2d 143 ; Hill v. Nerle (1916) 29 Cal. App. 473, 475, 156 P. 981

Waiver of verification as not admitting sufficiency of answer or dispensing with necessity of specific denial of verified complaint. Harney v. Porter (1881) 62 Cal. 511, 512

[10] Officer of Corporation

Clause in Code Civ. Proc. § 446 providing for verification of pleading by an officer when corporation is party as not exclusive but permissive, and allowing attorney or other party to verify in proper case. Bittleston Law etc. Agency v. Howard (1916) 172 Cal. 357, 362, 156 P. 515

Notwithstanding Code Civ. Proc. § 482.040, which provides that verified complaint may be used in lieu of affidavit in attachment proceedings, Code Civ. Proc. § 446 precludes cross complaint verified by corporate officer on behalf of corporation from supporting opposition for right to attach order. Lorber Industries v. Turbulence, Inc. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 532, 536, 221 Cal. Rptr. 233

Manager of corporation as officer entitled to verify. Stockton v. Blodgett (1906) 3 Cal. App. 94, 95, 84 P. 441

[11] Public Entities

Answer filed by public entity in writ proceeding, as in a civil action, need not be verified. Crowl v. Commission on Professional Competence (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 334, 342, 275 Cal. Rptr. 86 (relying on Code Civ. Proc. § 446)

Pleading by state or subdivision of state need not be verified (Code Civ. Proc. § 446), allegations are not legally incompetent on ground that they are not verified, and under Code Civ. Proc. § 1091 factual allegations in answer to petition for writ of mandate are taken as true if not countervailed by proof at trial or by replication. Elliott v. Contractors' State License Bd. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1048, 1054, 274 Cal. Rptr. 286

[12] Sufficiency of Verification

Code Civ. Proc. § 446 was adopted for express purpose of permitting allegation to be verified on information and belief. North v. Cecil B. De Mille Productions, Inc. (1934) 2 Cal. 2d 55, 59, 39 P.2d 199

Affidavit based on information and belief to support petition for mandate is hearsay and insufficient to establish facts in it. Star Motor Imports, Inc. (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 151 Cal. Rptr. 721

Allegations on information and belief do not support injunction. Ancora-Citronelle Corp. v. Green (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 146, 150, 115 Cal. Rptr. 879

Facts stated in verified complaint are hearsay when made on information and belief. Sheard v. Superior Court (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 207, 212, 114 Cal. Rptr. 743

Chief test of sufficiency of affidavit is whether it is so clear and certain that indictment for perjury may be sustained on it if false. Sheeley v. City of Santa Clara (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 83, 85, 30 Cal. Rptr. 121 ; Borders v. Civil Service Commission (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 678, 684, 27 Cal. Rptr. 490 ; Hoffman v. City of Palm Springs (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 645, 648, 337 P.2d 521 ; Osborn v. City of Whittier (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 609, 619, 230 P.2d 132

"Clear and certain" means that allegations in affidavit must show facts and circumstances from which ultimate facts sought to be proved may be deduced by court. Ware v. Stafford (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 232, 238, 24 Cal. Rptr. 153

Verification is sufficient when made by person authorized by law to do so, and in compliance in form and substance with statutory provisions. French v. Smith Booth Usher Co. (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 23, 29, 131 P.2d 863

Sufficiency of verification as not extending to cases in which inquiry into truth of verifying affidavit is necessary to show insufficiency. French v. Smith Booth Usher Co. (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 23, 29, 131 P.2d 863

[2] Use of Form

The form of verification in [1], above, is styled as an affidavit, and is for use in verifying any pleading or paper which may or must be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 2003, 2009]. It may be used to verify a pleading or a paper in a special proceeding, to prove the service of a summons, notice or other paper in an action or special proceeding, to obtain a provisional remedy, the examination of a witness, or a stay of proceedings, and in uncontested proceedings to establish a record of birth, or on a motion, and in any other case expressly permitted by statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 2009].

Although authorized by statute [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 2009], the affidavit form used in this form and in the form set out in § 572.41 has almost entirely been superseded in practice by the unsworn declaration under penalty of perjury authorized by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446 and 2015.5 [for a form of declaration, see § 572.42].

[2] Use of Form

The form of verification in [1], above, is styled as an affidavit, and is for use in verifying any pleading or paper which may or must be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2003, 2009]. It may be used in any situation in which the form in § 572.40 may be used. The only difference is that the above form uses the first person while § 572.40 uses the third person. Use of this form appears to be supplanting use of the third person form. However, both forms of affidavit are now much less used than the unsworn declaration under penalty of perjury authorized by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446 and 2015.5 [for a form of declaration, see § 572.42].

The form of verification in [1], above, is styled as a declaration, and is for use in verifying any pleading or paper which may or must be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 2003, 2009]. An unsworn declaration made under penalty of perjury may be used in lieu of a sworn affidavit [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5; for forms of affidavits, see §§ 572.40 and 572.41]. A declaration may be executed within or without California if it states the date of execution and that it is certified or declared under the laws of California [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by an attorney, acting in his or her capacity as a party's attorney, to verify a pleading or other paper for the party. An attorney may verify a pleading if the party is unable to verify because he or she is absent from the county in which the attorney has his or her office, or for some other cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 446; see Beard v. Beard (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 645, 649, 107 P.2d 385 (attorney could verify proposed answer to cross complaint on motion to set aside default and default judgment when party was out of state)].

The verification must state that the attorney has read the pleading and that he or she is informed and believes that the matters in it are true and on that ground alleges that they are true. The attorney shall set forth the reasons why verification is not made by one of the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 446; see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (form of certification or declaration in lieu of sworn statement)].

An attorney may also verify a pleading in the same manner as any nonparty if he or she has personal knowledge of the facts to be verified [for forms, see §§ 572.44 and 572.45].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by any person other than a party to verify a pleading or other paper if that person has personal knowledge of the facts alleged. Apparently, the verification may be made without regard to whether the party is absent from the county, or from some other cause is unable to verify the pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 446; Bittleston Law etc. Agency v. Howard (1916) 172 Cal. 357, 361, 156 P. 515 (verification by plaintiff's assignor)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 446 does not require that the other person verifying pleading on behalf of parties be parties' agent [Ware v. Stafford (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 232, 24 Cal. Rptr. 153] .

The person verifying must set forth the reason or reasons why the verification is not made by one of the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. When the averments in the verification state that the facts contained in the pleading are within the person's knowledge, it is deemed a sufficient statement as to why the party did not make the verification [Oak Grove School Dist. v. City Title Ins. Co. (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 678, 707-708, 32 Cal. Rptr. 288] . However, when another reason exists making verification by a nonparty preferable to verification by the party, that reason may also be stated.

For a form and discussion of the circumstances when a party's attorney or assignor may verify when he or she has knowledge of the facts, see §§ 572.45 and 572.46.

The use of a certification or declaration in lieu of a sworn statement is authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5.

[3] Information and Belief

The form in [1], above, contains optional language allowing a person with knowledge of the facts to verify a pleading or paper on information and belief. Code Civ. Proc. § 446 was adopted for the express purpose of permitting allegations to be verified on information and belief because parties often rely on information furnished to them by others [North v. Cecil B. De Mille Productions, Inc. (1934) 2 Cal. 2d 55, 59, 39 P.2d 199] . However, a verification based on information and belief is hearsay. Code Civ. Proc. § 446, insofar as it purports to permit verification on information and belief, refers to pleadings that join issues, such as a complaint or answer. When the verification is to be used as evidence of facts, Code Civ. Proc. § 446 does not apply, and such facts cannot be verified on information and belief [Star Motor Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204-205, 151 Cal. Rptr. 721] .

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by an attorney to verify a pleading or other paper on the ground that he or she has personal knowledge of the facts. An attorney may verify a pleading as within his or her own knowledge and also on information and belief [Code Civ. Proc. § 446; see Continental Baking Co. v. Katz (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 512, 532, 67 Cal. Rptr. 761, 439 P.2d 889 (complaint verified by plaintiff's attorney, having knowledge of facts, is sufficient to support application for preliminary injunction)]. The circumstances under which an attorney who has knowledge of the facts may verify are the same as for any other person who has knowledge of the facts [see § 572.44].

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 446 provides that a verification of a pleading may be made on information and belief, matters thus verified have no evidentiary value [see § 572.44[3]].

The use of a certification or declaration in lieu of a sworn statement is authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5.

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], declare:

I am the assignor of _____ [specify party, e.g., plaintiff] in the above-entitled action.

I make this verification because the facts set forth in the _____ [specify pleading or paper to be verified, e.g., complaint] are within my knowledge [and because _____ (specify facts showing cause, e.g., it was I who entered into the subject agreement with defendant)].

I have read the foregoing _____ [specify verified pleading or paper, e.g., complaint] and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge [, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true].

I _____ [declare or certify] under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a nonparty with personal knowledge of the facts to verify a complaint when the nonparty is the assignor of the party's claim [Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. A statement that the nonparty making the verification is the plaintiff's assignor, that facts are true of his or her own knowledge, and that the assignor is better informed as to the facts than is the plaintiff, is sufficient to support the nonparty verfication [Bittleston Law etc. Agency v. Howard (1916) 172 Cal. 357, 360, 156 P. 515] .

For discussion of nonparty verifications, see §§ 572.44[2] and 572.45[2].

The use of a certification or declaration in lieu of a sworn statement is authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5.

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 446 provides that a verification of a pleading may be made on information and belief, matters thus verified have no evidentiary value [see § 572.44[3]].

I, _____ [name], declare:

I am an officer, to wit: _____ [specify title, e.g., President] of _____ [specify name of corporation], a corporation organized and existing under the laws of _____ [specify state]. _____ [Name of corporation] is the _____ [specify party, e.g., plaintiff] in the above-entitled action, and I have been authorized to make this verification on its behalf.

I have read the foregoing _____ [specify verified pleading or paper, e.g., complaint] and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge [, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true].

I _____ [declare or certify] under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of Califonia that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by the officer of a corporate party to verify a pleading or other paper. When a corporation is a party to an action, a pleading may be verified by any of the corporation's officers. The affidavit must state that the officer has read the pleading and that he or she is informed and believes that the matters in it are true, and on that ground alleges that they are true [Code Civ. Proc. § 446; see Stockton v. Blodgett (1906) 3 Cal. App. 94, 95, 84 P. 441 (manager or corporation was officer entitled to verify)].

The clause in Code Civ. Proc. § 446 providing for verification of pleading by an officer of a corporate is party is not exclusive but permissive, and allows the party's attorney or other party to verify in proper case. Bittleston Law etc. Agency v. Howard (1916) 172 Cal. 357, 362, 156 P. 515

The use of a certification or declaration in lieu of a sworn statement is authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5.

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 446 provides that a verification of a pleading may be made on information and belief, matters thus verified have no evidentiary value [see § 572.44[3]].

[2] Use of Form

The notice of motion in [1], above, is for use by plaintiff to move for a judgment on the pleadings prior to trial when the defendant has filed anunverified answer to a verified complaint. When the complaint is verified, the answer must be verified in most instances [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. This requirement, however, does not apply in limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 91, 92(b)]. Even in an unlimited civil case, verification of the complaint does not require a verified answer from a defendant public agency or public officer [Code Civ. Proc. § 446].

An unverified answer to a verified complaint is an admission of the allegations in the complaint, and the answer may be subject to a motion for judgment on the pleadings [DeCamp v. First Kensington Corp. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 268, 283, 147 Cal. Rptr. 869 ; Patterson v. Blackburn (1920) 47 Cal. App. 362, 363, 190 P. 483] .

In addition, verification of a complaint in an unlimited civil case requires positive denial or denial according to information and belief of the material allegations of the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d); see Hirons v. Clare (1918) 38 Cal. App. 608, 609, 177 P. 291 (general denial to verified complaint was insufficient to put in issue material allegations in complaint)]. This requirement does not apply if the complaint is subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 90 et seq. (most limited civil cases) unless the cause of action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)].

[3] Accompanying Papers

A supporting memorandum must be filed and a copy served with the foregoing notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

51-573 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 573.10

§ 573.10 Function and Purpose of Vexatious Litigant Statutes

The vexatious litigant statutes (Code Civ. Proc. § 391 et seq.) enable a defendant who has become the target of a vexatious litigant to require the litigant to put up security for the defendant's reasonable expenses [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 391, 391.1, 391.3; for definition of vexatious litigant see § 573.13[1]].

For discussion and forms relating to this procedure, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.90 et seq.

The statutes also permit such a defendant to obtain a prefiling order requiring a vexatious litigant to obtain leave of the presiding judge prior to filing new litigation in propria persona [Code Civ. Proc. § 391.7]. The purpose of the statutory scheme is to address the problem created by the persistent and obsessive litigant who has constantly pending a number of groundless actions. Often, such actions may be against the judges and other court officers who decided or were concerned in the decision of previous actions adversely to the litigant [First Western Development Corp. v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 860, 867-868, 261 Cal. Rptr. 116] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

51-573 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 573.11

§ 573.11 Application of Vexatious Litigant Statutes to Plaintiffs Litigating In Propria Persona

The vexatious litigant statutes are aimed specifically at litigants who vexatiously bring actions in propria persona, including an attorney at law acting in propria persona [see Code Civ. Proc. § 391(b), (d)]. If an attorney files an action on a plaintiff's behalf, the plaintiff generally will not be required to post security under the vexatious litigant statutes [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 391(b),(d), 391.1]. Similarly, a prefiling order only restricts the filing of new litigation by a vexatious litigant seeking to file in propria persona [Code Civ. Proc. § 391.7].

In certain cases, however, a litigant presently represented by counsel may be deemed a vexatious litigant. Of the four defining acts that transform a plaintiff into a vexatious litigant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 391(b), discussed under § 573.13[1], each refers to acts committed while the person was in propria persona. Although the second and third acts described in the statute refer to a person acting in propria persona in the very proceeding in which a defendant attempts to obtain an order requiring the plaintiff to furnish security, the first and fourth do not. Consequently, with respect to the first and fourth described acts, Code Civ. Proc. § 391 applies to persons currently represented by counsel whose conduct was vexatious when they represented themselves in the past [Camerado Ins. Agency, Inc.v. Superior Court (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 838, 842, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 42 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 391(b)].

A represented plaintiff may be required to post security for costs under statutes other than Code Civ. Proc. § 391 et seq. [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.6 (security for costs in certain actions for personal injury against medical practitioners)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.90 et seq.

In addition, although corporations generally cannot appear in propria persona, a corporation may be subject to the vexatious litigant provisions as the alter ego of a vexatious litigant who is using the corporation to circumvent Section 391 et seq. [Say & Say, Inc. v. Ebershoff (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1759, 1770 , 25 Cal. Rtpr. 2d 703].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

51-573 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 573.12

§ 573.12 Constitutionality of Vexatious Litigant Statutes

The vexatious litigant statutes have withstood constitutional challenge on a number of grounds. Constitutionality of the statutes has been upheld under both the federal and state constitution, as well as the issue of due process and the right to counsel [In Re R.H. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 678, 700-708, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 650] . The statutes do not unlawfully discriminate against litigants too poor to afford attorneys or litigants proceeding in propria persona [Taliaferro v. Hoogs (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 521, 527, 46 Cal. Rptr. 147] . In addition, the statutes do not operate to deprive a litigant of due process of law or of the right to a jury trial [Taliaferro v. Hoogs (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 521, 528, 529, 46 Cal. Rptr. 147] . The requirement that security must be furnished by one who is found to be a vexatious litigant if there is no reasonable probability that he or she will prevail is not unconstitutionally vague or uncertain [Muller v. Tanner (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 445, 452-453, 82 Cal. Rptr. 738 ; Taliaferro v. Hoogs (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 521, 529, 46 Cal. Rptr. 147] .

Chapter 573 VEXATIOUS LITIGANTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

51-573 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 573.13

§ 573.13 Definitions

[1] Vexatious Litigant

Code Civ. Proc. § 391(b) specifies four situations that result in a person being a vexatious litigant:

(1) In the immediately preceding seven-year period, the person has commenced, prosecuted, or maintained in propria persona at least five litigations, other than in a small claims court, that have been finally determined adversely to the person or unjustifiably permitted to remain pending at least two years without having been brought to trial or hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 391(b)(1)]. The immediately preceding seven-year period is measured from the filing of a motion for security under Code Civ. Proc. § 391.1 [Stolz v. Bank of America (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 217, 221-223, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 19 ; see § 573.10]. This definition of vexatious litigant applies whether the litigant brings the action in propria persona or is represented by counsel [Camerado Ins. Agency, Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 838, 842, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 42] .

(2) After a litigation has been finally determined against the person, he or she repeatedly relitigates or attempts to relitigate in propria persona either the validity of the determination against the same defendant or defendants as to whom the litigation was finally determined or the cause of action, claim, controversy, or any of the issues of fact or law, determined or concluded by the final determination against the same defendant or defendants as to whom the litigation was finally determined [Code Civ. Proc. § 391(b)(2)].

(3) In any litigation, while acting in propria persona, the person repeatedly files unmeritorious motions, pleadings, or other papers, conducts unnecessary discovery, or engages in other tactics that are frivolous or solely intended to cause unnecessary delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 391(b)(3)].

(4) The person, whether acting in propria persona or represented by counsel, has previously been declared to be a vexatious litigant by any state or federal court of record in any action or proceeding based on the same or substantially similar facts, transactions, or occurrences [Code Civ. Proc. §

391(b)(4); see In re Shieh (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1154, 1166, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 886] .

[2] Other Definitions

For purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 391 et seq., "litigation" means any civil action or proceeding commenced, maintained, or pending in any state or federal court [Code Civ. Proc. § 391(a)]. This term has been construed to include appeals and civil writ proceedings [McColm v. Westwood Park Assn. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1211, 1216, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 288] . This term also applies to appeals and writs in dependency actions [In Re R.H. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 678, 693-700, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 650] .

"Plaintiff" means the person who commences, institutes, or maintains a litigation or causes it to be commenced, instituted, or maintained, including an attorney at law acting in propria persona [Code Civ. Proc. § 391(d); see In re Shieh (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1154, 1166, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 886 (holding that attorney-plaintiff in numerous actions was vexatious litigant); Say & Say, Inc. v. Ebershoff (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1759, 1770 , 25 Cal. Rtpr. 2d 703 (holding that corporation was alter ego of vexatious litigant attorney-plaintiff Shieh and was therefore subject to vexatious litigant statutes)]. "Defendant" means a person (including a corporation, association, partnership, firm, or governmental entity) against whom a litigation is brought or maintained or sought to be brought or maintained [Code Civ. Proc. § 391(e)].

[3] Interpreting Code Civ. Proc. § 391(b)

[a] Five Adverse or Unjustified Litigations in Seven Years

Code Civ. Proc. § 391(b)(1) applies whether the litigant is bringing the new litigation in propria persona or whether the litigant is represented by counsel [Camerado Ins. Agency, Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 838, 842, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 42] . The legislative purpose of the statute would be frustrated if a litigant could avoid the vexatious litigant label simply by obtaining counsel for any further litigations once the litigant qualifies as vexatious [Camerado Ins. Agency, Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 838, 842, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 42] . The term "litigation" is broadly defined as "any civil action or proceeding, commenced, maintained or pending in any state or federal court" [Code Civ. Proc. § 391(a); Fink v. Shemtov (2010) 180 Cal. App. 4th 1160, 1170, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 509 ; see McColm v. Westwood Park Assn. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1211, 1215, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 288] . "[A]ny civil action or proceeding" includes any appeal or writ proceeding. "[A]ny state or federal court" includes the California Court of Appeal [Fink v. Shemtov (2010) 180 Cal. App. 4th 1160, 1170, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 509 ; McColm v. Westwood Park Assn. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1211, 1215, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 288] .

Although a writ proceeding generally qualifies as a litigation within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 391(a), summary denials of writ petitions do not necessarily constitute a litigation that has been "finally determined adversely to the person" [Fink v. Shemtov (2010) 180 Cal. App. 4th 1160, 1171-1173, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 509] . The "immediately preceding seven-year period" within which a litigant must have "commenced, prosecuted, or maintained in propria persona at least five litigations" that were determined adversely or unjustifiably permitted to remain pending with being brought to trial is measured from the date of the filing of the motion to declare the plaintiff a vexatious litigant [Stolz v. Bank of America (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 217, 220, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 19] .

The fact that a litigation was "commenced" outside the seven-year period does not necessarily exclude it from consideration if it was "prosecuted" or "maintained" within that window [Stolz v. Bank of America (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 217, 225, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 19] .

A voluntary dismissal without prejudice is considered an adverse determination for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 391(b)(1) [Tokerud v. Capitolbank of Sacramento (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 775, 780, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 345] . An action dismissed voluntarily is still a burden on the target of the litigation and on the judicial system [Tokerud v. Capitolbank of Sacramento (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 775, 779, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 345] .

Where the five adverse litigation requirement is not met and the motions are not unmeritorious or frivolous, a finding of the plaintiff as a vexatious litigant under Code Civ. Proc. § 391(b)(3) will not be upheld on appeal [Morton v. Wagner (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 963, 972, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 818 (cases affirming the vexatious litigant designation involved situations where litigant filed "dozens" of motions)]. However, repeated motions on the same issue may form the basis for a vexatious litigant finding [Morton v. Wagner (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 963, 972, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 818] .

[b] Relitigation of Validity of Final Determination or of Cause of Action or Issues Finally Determined

A judgment is final within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 391(b)(2) when all avenues for direct review have been exhausted [First Western Development Corp. v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 860, 864, 261 Cal. Rptr. 116] . Thus, a plaintiff who had appeals pending in two prior cases, one in state court and one in federal court, could not be determined to be vexatious because there was not yet a final determination in those cases [Childs v. PaineWebber Inc. (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 982, 993, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 93] . Although one plaintiff attempted to relitigate matters that had been finally determined when he filed an untimely motion for reconsideration in a federal court case and then filed a similar action in state court, he did not repeatedly relitigate within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 391(b)(2) [Holcomb v. U.S. Bank (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 1494, 1505-1506, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 578] .

[c] Frivolous Motions or Tactics

Repeatedly contending that the vexatious litigant statutes are unconstitutional when the issue had been previously decided by the court of appeals in the litigant's own prior case is a frivolous tactic within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 391(b)(3) [In re Whitaker (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 54, 56, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 249] .

[d] Prior Determination as Vexatious Litigant in Action Based on Same Facts, Transaction, or Occurrence

Code Civ. Proc. § 391(b)(4) does not require the parties to be the same; it is enough that the proceedings arise from substantially similar facts. Therefore, in a series of disputes between a law firm and a paralegal formerly employed by the law firm, a replevin action by the law firm to recover documents taken by the paralegal and an indemnity action by the paralegal seeking indemnification from the firm for legal counsel were substantially similar despite having slightly different parties [Devereaux v. Latham & Watkins (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1571, 1581, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 849 (disapproved on other grounds in Moran v. Murtaugh Miller Meyer & Nelson, LLP (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 780, 785 n.7, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 112, 152 P.3d 416)]. For purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 391(b)(4), it is immaterial whether the litigant files in propria persona or is represented by counsel [In re Shieh (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1154, 1166, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 886 (plaintiff had been declared a vexatious litigant in the United States District Court for the Central District of California and by two separate superior court judges in three distinct cases, all of which were substantially similar to the instant case)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

51-573 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 573.14

§ 573.14 Prefiling Order Restricting Filing of New Litigation In Propria Persona

A court may, on its own motion or the motion of any party, enter a prefiling order that prohibits a vexatious litigant from filing any new litigation in California courts in propria persona without first obtaining leave of the presiding judge of the court where the litigation is proposed to be filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 391.7(a)]. Determination that a person is a vexatious litigant may be made during an appeal [In Re R.H. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 678, 707, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 650] . Prior to such a motion, the person must have either been declared a vexatious litigant in a prior proceeding or have been declared a vexatious litigant after a noticed hearing in the current proceeding [Andrisani v. Hoodack (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 279, 281, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 511 (plaintiff had been declared a vexatious litigant in two prior published appellate court opinions); Bravo v. Ismaj (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 211, 225, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 879 (plaintiff had not been declared vexatious by any court in the past, and therefore was entitled to a noticed motion and hearing before being declared vexatious and therefore subject to a prefiling order)]. The court issuing the prefiling order has discretion to limit the scope of the order to filings related to a specific matter [Wilmot v. Commission on Professional Competence (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1130, 1133, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 656] . For forms for use in obtaining a prefiling order, see §§ 573.40 and 573.41. Disobedience of such an order by a vexatious litigant may be punished as a contempt of court [Code Civ. Proc. § 391.7(a); In re Shieh (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1154, 1166, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 886] .

The Judicial Council is required to keep a list of persons declared by courts to be vexatious litigants subject to prefiling orders [Code Civ. Proc. § 391.7(e)]. While the Judicial Council is required to keep a list, it is not required to make the list public, and nothing in Section 391.7 requires the Judicial Council to make the list public; Section 391.7(e) provides that the list is to be disseminated annually to "clerks of the courts of this state," and one court recommends Judicial Council Form MC-700 form should not be public [Kobayashi v. Superior Court (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 536, 540, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 99] . As stated in a 2009 case where the plaintiff falsely claimed he was not the same person as the one on the vexatious litigant list: "On the one hand, it is easy for vexatious litigants to make claims of mistaken identity. But on the other hand, our judicial system must protect the rights of innocent litigants who really do have the misfortune of simply sharing the same name as a vexatious litigant, or who, perhaps because of some typo, might be mistakenly placed on the vexatious litigant list [Kobayashi v. Superior Court (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 536, 542, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 99] . Should this issue arise, consult Kobayashi for a list of suggestions for determining if the plaintiff is on the Judicial Council list and for suggestions of improving the verification process. Note: Plaintiff in this case was referred to the county district attorney's office for possible criminal prosecution for perjury.

If a vexatious litigant seeks to file new litigation in propria persona after the entry of a prefiling order, the presiding judge may only permit the filing if it appears that the litigation has merit and has not been filed for the purposes of harassment or delay. The presiding judge may condition the filing of the litigation on the furnishing of security for the benefit of the defendants as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 391.3 [Code Civ. Proc. § 391.7(b); for discussion and forms regarding security, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.90 et seq.]. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 391.3, the court must order a plaintiff to furnish security if the court determines that plaintiff is a vexatious litigant and that there is no reasonable probability that the plaintiff will prevail in the litigation. In determining whether there is a reasonable probability plaintiff will prevail, the court is permitted to weigh the evidence rather than simply assume the truth of plaintiff's alleged facts [Moran v. Murtaugh Miller Meyer & Nelson, LLP (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 780, 785, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 112, 152 P.3d 416] .

The clerk must not file any litigation presented by a vexatious litigant subject to a prefiling order unless the vexatious litigant first obtains an order from the presiding judge permitting the filing. If the clerk mistakenly files the litigation without such an order, any party may file with the clerk and serve on the plaintiff and other parties a notice stating that the plaintiff is a vexatious litigant subject to a prefiling order as set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 391.7(a) [Code Civ. Proc. § 391.7(c); see § 573.42]. The filing of the notice automatically stays the litigation, and the litigation will be automatically dismissed unless the plaintiff within 10 days of the filing of the notice obtains an order permitting the filing of the litigation [Code Civ. Proc. § 391.7(c)].

Although it was formerly held that a Section 391.7 order does not require court approval for filing actions in small claims court [Banks v. State of California (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1147, 1149-1150, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 127] , that decision was based on the construction of Code Civ. Proc. § 391(a), which defined "litigation" in terms of courts of record. As amended by 1994 Stats., ch. 587, § 391, no longer limits the definition of litigation to courts of record, so it is likely that the court approval requirement applies to actions in small claims court.

The requirements of a prefiling order under Code Civ. Proc. § 391.7 remain in effect throughout the life of a lawsuit and permit dismissal at any point when a vexatious litigant proceeds without counsel or without the permission of the presiding judge; therefore, a court may dismiss a suit under this statute when counsel withdraws representation just before trial and no new counsel is substituted [Forrest v. State of California Dept. of Corporations (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 183, 197, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 466] .

A prefiling order is, as defined by Code Civ. Proc. § 391.7, an injunction; and the order may be modified as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 533 based on a change in the facts, a change in the law, or when a change would serve the ends of justice [Luckett v. Panos (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 77, 85, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 745]. The factors for lifting the order include: 1) the litigant must show honesty in the presentation of relevant facts in his or her application for the lifting of the prefiling order, 2) the litigant must show genuine remorse for the costs of litigation inflicted on defendants in prior lawsuits, 3) the litigant must attempt restitution toward the targets of prior litigation, especially payment of cost orders made by the court, 4) the litigant must give up the "habit of suing people as a way of life," and 5) the vexatious litigant must file an application to lift a prefiling order in the same forum that originally entered the order [Luckett v. Panos (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 77, 90-97, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 745].

An appellate court may not require a defendant who has been declared a vexatious litigant to obtain leave of the presiding judge before filing an appeal of a judgment against him or her; a defendant who appeals an adverse ruling is not filing "new" litigation or "maintaining" litigation within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 391 and 391.7 [Mahdavi v. Superior Court (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 32, 42, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 121].

§ 573.31 Decisions

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 391.3, the court must order a plaintiff to furnish security if the court determines that plaintiff is a vexatious litigant and that there is no reasonable probability that the plaintiff will prevail in the litigation. In determining whether there is a reasonable probability plaintiff will prevail, the court is permitted to weigh the evidence rather than simply assume the truth of plaintiff's alleged facts. Moran v. Murtaugh Miller Meyer & Nelson, LLP (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 780, 785, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 112, 152 P.3d 416

Trial court properly declared plaintiff vexatious litigant on ground he commenced, prosecuted, or maintained at least five separate litigations that were finally determined adversely to him, where plaintiff conceded first, second, and fifth cases listed in vexatious litigant order each qualified as litigation finally determined adversely to him, matter listed as third case in the vexatious litigant order also qualified as litigation finally determined adversely to plaintiff within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 391(b)(1), because appellate court's decision showed plaintiff filed complaint in propria persona, judgment was entered in plaintiff's favor against entity defendant, but plaintiff appealed from judgment on ground judgment should have also been entered against individual defendants, and appellate court affirmed judgment, thereby finally determining appeal adversely to plaintiff; and two more litigations were determined adversely to him because his notices of appeal were untimely filed. However, record did not contain any evidence regarding nature of seven writ proceedings relied upon by trial court, other than trial court's statement that petitions had been "summarily denied," and summary denial of writ petition that merely sought relief from pretrial rulings and did not constitute exclusive means of obtaining appellate review did not qualify as litigation finally determined adversely as to plaintiff and could not count toward five litigations required for vexatious litigant status. Fink v. Shemtov (2010) 180 Cal. App. 4th 1160, 1171-1174, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 509

The vexatious litigant statutes are constitutional under both the California and federal constitution and apply to appeals and writs in dependency actions; determination that a person is a vexatious litigant may be made during an appeal. In Re R.H. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 678, 698-707, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 650

The Judicial Council is required to keep a list of persons declared by courts to be vexatious litigants subject to prefiling orders; however, this list need not be made public. Plaintiffs claiming mistaken identity for being on the list may petition the court for resolution, but falsely asserting mistaken identity may result in a referral to the district attorney's office for perjury prosecution. Kobayashi v. Superior Court (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 536, 540, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 99

An appellate court may not require a defendant who has been declared a vexatious litigant to obtain leave of the presiding judge before filing an appeal of a judgment against him or her; a defendant who appeals an adverse ruling is not filing "new" litigation or "maintaining" litigation within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 391 and 391.7. Mahdavi v. Superior Court (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 32, 42, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 121

Vexatious litigant who has had prefiling order entered against him may seek to have the order lifted based on change in circumstances under injunction statute (Code Civ. Proc. § 533). The factors for lifting the order include: 1) the litigant must show honesty in the presentation of relevant facts in his or her application for the lifting of the prefiling order, 2) the litigant must show genuine remorse for the costs of litigation inflicted on defendants in prior lawsuits, 3) the litigant must attempt restitution toward the targets of prior litigation, especially payment of cost orders made by the court, 4) the litigant must give up the "habit of suing people as a way of life," and 5) the vexatious litigant must file an application to lift a prefiling order in the same forum that originally entered the order. Prefiling order retained because plaintiff had spent the past 16 years suing people, and he presented misleading facts in application for lifting of order. Luckett v. Panos (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 77, 90-97, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 745

Where the five adverse litigation requirement is not met and the motions are not unmeritorious or frivolous, a finding of the plaintiff as a vexatious litigant under Code Civ. Proc. § 391(b)(3) will not be upheld on appeal; however, repeated motions on the same issue may form the basis for a vexatious litigant finding. Morton v. Wagner (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 963, 972, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 818

In case where vexatious litigant plaintiff's counsel withdrew prior to trial, trial court properly dismissed plaintiff's action under Code Civ. Proc. § 391.7(c); requirements of prefiling order remain in effect throughout life of lawsuit and permit dismissal at any time when plaintiff proceeds without counsel or without permission of presiding judge. Forrest v. State of California Dept. of Corporations (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 183, 197, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 466

Defendants were not entitled to attorney's fees when court dismissed vexatious litigant plaintiff's complaint for failure to post security; the vexatious litigant statutes do not authorize such an award. Luckett v. Keylee (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 919, 926, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 718

Although nonrepresentative class members cannot "commence, prosecute, or maintain" litigations within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 391(b)(1), they can engage in behavior qualifying them for vexatious litigant status under subdivisions (2) and (3). In re Natural Gas Cases (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 387, 395-396, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 909

Although court did not reach the issue of whether a vexatious litigant determination can be erased once made, the court did state that in order to remove the vexatious litigant label a court must find a change in the facts or circumstances leading to the original determination. In this case, the judge abused his discretion in undoing the vexatious litigant determination because there was no showing that the litigant changed the conduct that led to the vexatious litigant designation. PBA, LLC, v. KPOD, Ltd. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 965, 976, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 532

The prefiling order authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 391.7 may be viewed as a form of injunction reversible under Code Civ. Proc. § 533. PBA, LLC, v. KPOD, Ltd. (2003) 112 Cal. App.4th 965, 978, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 532

The form of order illustrated in [1], above, is an illustration of the Judicial Council form [Form No. MC-700] for use when the court has granted a motion to have a prefiling order entered against a vexatious litigant, restricting the litigant's filing of further litigation in propria persona [Code Civ. Proc. § 391.7(a)]. Use of the Judcial Council form is mandatory.

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

After issuing a prefiling order against a vexatious litigant, the court will send a copy of the order to the Judicial Council, so that the Council may add the vexatious litigant's name to its annually disseminated list of vexatious litigants [Code Civ. Proc. § 391.7(e)].

For a form of notice of motion and supporting declaration that may be used to apply for this order, see § 573.40.

[1] FORM Notice That Clerk Mistakenly Filed Litigation Subject to Prefiling Order [Code Civ. Proc. § 391.7(c)]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff, vs. _____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Defendant.	)	NOTICE THAT CLERK MISTAKENLY FILED
	)	LITIGATION SUBJECT TO PREFILING ORDER

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that, on _____[date], the clerk of _____ [specify court, e.g., Lincoln County Superior Court] mistakenly filed an _____ [action or proceeding] that was subject to a prefiling order pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure section 391.7. On _____[date], the _____ [specify court issuing prefiling order, e.g., Paradise County Superior Court] entered an order against _____[name of vexatious litigant] prohibiting him/her from filing any new litigation in California courts in propria persona without first obtaining leave of the presiding judge of the court where the litigation is proposed to be filed. _____[Name of vexatious litigant] did not obtain such leave before filing the above-entitled litigation in this court, and consequently, the filing of this litigation by the clerk was improper.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Defendant

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice in [1], above, is for use when a clerk has mistakenly filed litigation that is subject to a prefiling order made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 391.7 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 391.7(c); for discussion, see § 573.14]. The filing of the notice automatically stays the litigation, and the litigation will be automatically dismissed unless the plaintiff within 10 days of the filing of the notice obtains an order permitting the filing of the litigation. If the presiding judge issues an order permitting the filing, the stay of litigation will remain in effect, and the defendants need not plead, until 10 days after the defendants are served with a copy of any such order [Code Civ. Proc. § 391.7(c)].

Chapter 575 WATERS
PART I. SCOPE

51-575 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 575.01

§ 575.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the interaction between the federal and state governments regarding water. It also discusses the interaction between states when a stream system is interstate [see § 575.30 et seq.].

This chapter also discusses riparian, appropriative, and prescriptive rights to water, including the statutory procedure for acquiring appropriative water rights [see § 575.50 et seq.]. It includes forms for use before the State Water Board to apply for appropriative rights [see §§ 575.350 -575.353], to apply for changes in appropriative rights [see §§ 575.355, 575.356], to protest those applications [§§ 575.354, 575.357], to complain of a violation of a permit or license [see § 575.361], and to make a statement of water diversion [see § 575.363]. It also includes the permit [see § 575.358] and license [see § 575.360] issued by the board. This chapter includes forms for use in a petition for a writ of mandate to compel the board to issue a permit to appropriate water [see § 575.364] and to compel review of a cease and desist order issued by the board [see § 575.365].

This chapter also discusses the enforcement of appropriative water rights, including the procedures for obtaining a cease and desist order, and the effect of the procedures on private litigants [see § 575.100 et seq.].

This chapter also discusses the adjudication of water rights by the State Water Resources Control Board and the judicial determination of water rights [see § 575.120 et seq.]. It includes forms for use in statutory adjudication proceedings before the board to petition for determination of water rights [see § 575.380], to file proof of claim of water right [see § 575.381], and to object [see § 575.382] and to intervene [see §§ 575.383, 575.384] in board proceedings. For use in the judicial determination of water rights, this chapter includes a complaint for declaratory relief for determination of water rights and for injunctive relief [see § 575.385] and an order of reference to the board [see § 575.386]. It includes a form of complaint for damages by a lower riparian owner against an upper riparian owner for interference with water rights [see § 575.387] and forms of affirmative defenses to that complaint [see §§ 575.388 -575.391]. It includes forms of complaint [see § 575.392], notice of motion [see § 575.393], and preliminary injunction [see § 575.394] for a lower riparian owner seeking a temporary restraining order, injunctive relief, and damages against an upper riparian, and forms of notice of motion [see § 575.395], declaration [see § 575.396], and order [see § 575.397] for the upper riparian to seek to dissolve a preliminary injunction. Also included are a form of complaint by an overlying landowner for injunctive relief and damages for interference with underground water [see § 575.398], and a form of complaint to quiet title to an easement and for injunctive relief and damages for interference with a water right [see § 575.399], and forms of allegation for use with that complaint [see §§ 575.400 -575.402].

The unauthorized diversion or use of water is a trespass, for which civil and administrative liability may be imposed [see § 575.102[1]].

This chapter also discusses actions under agreements to supply water [see § 575.190 et seq.]. It contains a form of complaint [see § 575.420] for declaratory relief for a determination of rights under a water use agreement and for damages for its violation, a complaint [see § 575.421] for declaratory relief for a determination of rights appropriate when more than one supplier is involved, and a form of petition [see § 575.422] for writ of mandate to compel a water district to supply water. The liability of a utility in small claims court for delay of service under Civ. Code § 1722(c) is discussed in Ch. 545, Telephone and Telegraph Communication .

This chapter also discusses the formation of water districts [see § 575.210 et seq.]. It contains forms for use in forming [see § 575.440], excluding land from [see § 575.442], and including land within [see § 575.443] a water storage district. Also included is a declaration of intention by a person to withdraw his or her name from the petition for formation of a water storage district [see § 575.441]. It contains a petition for use in forming [see § 575.444], including land within [see § 575.446], and detaching territory from [see § 575.447], a county water district, and a notice of hearing [see § 575.445] on the petition to form a county water district. Also included is a form for use in petitioning for formation [see § 575.448] of a municipal water district.

The relationship between federal and state water law is generally governed by the United States Constitution, through which the federal government exercises its control, and is specifically governed by the Commerce Clause (U.S. Const., art. I, § 8, cl. 3), the Property Clause (U.S. Const., art. IV, § 3), and the General Welfare Clause (U.S. Const., art. I, § 8).

The appropriation of water rights is governed by Water Code § 1200 et seq. Enforcement of appropriative water rights is governed by Water Code § 1825 et seq. When a judicial determination of water rights is sought, and the court refers the action to the State Water Resources Control Board (State Board or Board), those procedures are governed by Water Code § 2000 et seq. Statutory adjudication of water rights by the State Board is controlled by Water Code § 2500 et seq.

§ 575.11 Flood Waters

[1] Self-Protection by Landowner

Flood waters are those that escape from a stream or other body of water and overflow the adjacent territory. They are a common enemy, and a landowner may protect his or her land even to the detriment of neighbors. The common enemy rule only applies to flood waters in the strict sense; that is, waters escaping because of their height from the confinement of a stream and running over adjacent property. Implicit in the definition of flood waters is the element of abnormality; they are flood waters because of their escape from the usual channels under conditions that do not ordinarily occur [Everett v. Davis (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 389, 393, 115 P.2d 821 ; Beckley v. Reclamation Board (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 734, 743 n. 2, 23 Cal. Rptr. 428] . Excessive storm waters that overflow the banks of a stream, but that later find their way back into the stream either by drainage or by percolation, as the stream subsides, are not flood waters, but are waters of the stream, the natural flow of which may not be interfered with to the damage of upper riparian owners of land [Costello v. Bowen (1947) 80 Cal. App. 2d 621, 631, 182 P.2d 615] .

Protection from flood waters may be used as a defense to a claim of negligence alleging damages from floodwaters [see, e.g., Linvill v. Perello (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 195, 197, 234 Cal. Rptr. 392] . It may also be an appropriate defense to an action seeking injunctive relief against the erection and continued maintenance of a fence, embankment, or levee that causes the diversion of flood waters [see, e.g., Everett v. Davis (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 389, 390, 115 P.2d 821] . For additional discussion of flood waters and a form of affirmative defense based on flood waters, see Ch. 421, Premises Liability .

[2] Protective Action by State

A public entity that undertakes construction or operation of a flood control project is liable for unreasonable conduct. Thus, when the public entity's design, construction, or maintenance of a flood control project is shown to have posed an unreasonable risk of harm to the plaintiffs, and the unreasonable design, construction, or maintenance constituted a substantial cause of the damage, plaintiffs may recover, regardless of the fact that the project's purpose was to to contain the common enemy of floodwaters [Belair v. Riverside County Flood Control Dist. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 550, 559-560,

253 Cal. Rptr. 693, 764 P.2d 1070] . The Belair reasonableness standard applies in any flood control case when the failure of publicly managed flood control facilities causes damage to property historically subject to flooding, including cases involving the diversion of water from its natural flow [Bunch v. Coachella Valley Water Dist. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 432, 447, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 89, 935 P.2d 796] . For forms and discussion relating to inverse condemantion, see Ch. 247, Eminent Domain .

[3] Protective Action Must Be Reasonable

The landowner may use every reasonable precaution to avert injury to his or her land. The reasonableness of the precautions is determined by existing conditions and not by aftereffects [The Weinberg Co. v. Bixby (1921) 185 Cal. 87, 96, 196 P. 25 ; Tahan v. Thomas (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 78, 81, 86 Cal. Rptr. 440] . Although each case is decided on its own facts, one court has articulated a balancing test that weighs the utility of the diverter's use of his or her land against the gravity of the harm resulting from the alteration of the water flow as one factor in determining reasonableness. If the balance weighs on the side of the person who diverted the floodwaters, that is a factor tending to show that he or she has acted reasonably; if the harm to other landowners is severe, that is a factor tending to show that the economic costs incident to diversion of floodwaters should be borne by the owner who diverted the waters [Linvill v. Perello (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 195, 199, 234 Cal. Rptr. 392] . The protection from liability does not extend to an obstruction of the natural river channel or the creation of an artificial channel by which the natural stream waters of the river are carried onto the lands of another that would have been protected but for the creation of that channel [Clement v. State Reclamation Board (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 628, 635-638, 220 P.2d 897] . For forms and discussion pertaining to liability of landowners regarding waters that are not flood waters, see Ch. 421, Premises Liability . For forms and discussion pertaining to irrigation waters, see Ch. 315, Irrigation .

51-575 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 575.31

§ 575.31 Control of Navigable Waters

[1] Federal Versus State Power

Under the Commerce Clause (U.S. Const., art I, § 8, cl. 3), the federal government has dominion, to the exclusion of the states, over navigable waters of the United States [Tacoma v. Taxpayers of Tacoma (1958) 357 U.S. 320, 334, 78 S. Ct. 1209, 2 L. Ed. 2d 1345] . This power has been validly exercised in a variety of ways, including the improvement of navigation and the development of power [see Tacoma v. Taxpayers of Tacoma (1958) 357 U.S. 320, 334, 78 S. Ct. 1209, 2 L. Ed. 2d 1345 ; Arizona v. California (1930) 283 U.S. 423, 452, 51 S. Ct. 522, 75 L. Ed. 1154] .

Although the federal government has a dominant servitude over the navigable waters of the United States, the preexisting private proprietary rights under state law must be recognized unless the Congress, in exercising federal servitude, clearly authorizes their abolishment [Federal Power Com. v. Niagara Mohawk P. Corp (1954) 347 U.S. 239, 241, 249-250, 74 S. Ct. 487, 98 L. Ed. 666] . Thus, the state has absolute power to control, regulate, and utilize its navigable waterways and the lands beneath them, except as limited by the paramount supervisory power of the federal government over navigable waters [Marks v. Whitney (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 251, 260, 98 Cal. Rptr. 790, 491 P.2d 374 ; see Utah Division of State Lands v. U.S. (1987) 482 U.S. 193, 208-209, 107 S. Ct. 2318, 96 L. Ed. 2d 162] .

Even when the federal government has acted to exercise its authority over navigable waters, unless the field is exclusively occupied for all purposes by the federal action, there may be a duality of control between the federal and state governments [Calif. Oregon Power Co. v. Superior Court (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 858, 868, 291 P.2d 455 , cert. denied, 352 U.S. 823, 77 S. Ct. 30, 1 L. Ed. 2d 47 (1956) (state had authority to abate nuisance created by federal public utility when federal act did not address nuisances)].

The navigable waters of the United States are subject to regulations for their use, administration, and navigation. Failure to comply with those regulations may be a misdemeanor [see 33 U.S.C. § 1]. Unless preempted by federal action, in California navigable waters and their frontages are subject to the right of public access and eminent domain [see Cal. Const., art. X, §§ 1, 4].

[2] Definitions

There are two federal definitions of navigable waters. The first, for purposes of the Commerce Clause, says that rivers which are actually used or are susceptible to being used, in their natural condition or with reasonable improvements, for purposes of trade and commerce are navigable in law. Substantially the same test is used for purposes of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction. The second definition, used to determine the respective rights of the states and the United States to the title of stream beds, is the basic Commerce Clause test, with two exceptions: it is applied to the stream in its natural condition, and it is determined as of the time of admission of the state to the United States. On the question of state versus federal rights, this test is mandatory in both the state and federal courts [Hitchings v. Del Rio Woods Recreation & Park Dist. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 560, 567, 127 Cal. Rptr. 830] .

For purposes of public use of a state's navigable waters, the state may adopt a test of navigability different from and less stringent than the federal test. For example, in determining navigability for purposes of a public navigational easement, state law may evaluate navigability as of a date later than statehood [Hitchings v. Del Rio Woods Recreation & Park Dist. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 560, 568, 127 Cal. Rptr. 830] .

In California, the test of navigability provides that rivers are regarded as public navigable rivers in law when they are navigable in fact. Rivers are navigable in fact when they are used, or are susceptible to being used, in their ordinary condition, as highways for commerce, over which trade and travel are or may be conducted in the customary modes of trade and travel on water. Navigability is determined by the character of the stream, its situation and availability as a highway of commerce, and other surrounding circumstances [Bohn v. Albertson (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 738, 741, 238 P.2d 128] .

[3] Public Trust

Through application of the public trust doctrine, the right of the public to use the navigable waters, whether federal or state, is extremely broad and encompasses the right to use rivers for all recreational purposes such as boating, swimming, fishing, and hunting. It is sufficiently flexible to encompass changing public needs, and includes preservation of those lands in their natural state, for ecological purposes. Indeed, the public's right of access to navigable waters is of great public importance and must be expansively interpreted [see Marks v. Whitney (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 251, 259-260, 98 Cal. Rptr. 790, 491 P.2d 374 ; Kern River Public Access Com. v. City of Bakersfield (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 1205, 1216 n. 4, 217 Cal. Rptr. 125] . The public trust doctrine, however, is not applicable to nonnavigable waterways in the absence of any impact on navigable waters [Golden Feather Community Assn. v. Thermalito Irrigation Dist. (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1276, 1283-1287, 257 Cal. Rptr. 836 (doctrine held inapplicable to nonnavigable waterway in action to compel continued, authorized diversion from nonnavigable stream into artificial reservoir while precluding use of diverted water to maintain reservoir for recreational purposes)]. For discussion of the public trust doctrine, see § 575.57.

If, at the time the state grants a land patent, there are navigable waters on the land, the right of navigation is reserved to the state and the landowner's rights are subject to the navigation rights of the public, even without an express reservation of the right [Bohn v. Albertson (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 738, 741-742, 238 P.2d 128] .

51-575 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 575.32

§ 575.32 Nonnavigable Water

Through the Property Clause (U.S. Const., art. IV, § 3), the federal government also has control over nonnavigable waters on public lands and reservations of the United States [Federal Power Com. v. Oregon (1955) 349 U.S. 435, 442-443, 75 S. Ct. 832, 99 L. Ed. 1215] .

When the federal government withdraws its land from the public domain and reserves it for a federal purpose, it impliedly reserves appurtenant water then unappropriated to the extent needed to accomplish the purpose of the reservation; only the amount of water necessary is reserved [Cappaert v. United States (1976) 426 U.S. 128, 138, 141, 96 S. Ct. 2062, 48 L. Ed. 2d 523] . If a federal act expands the reserved water rights of the United States, the expanded rights are subordinate to any prior appropriation of water under state law [United States v. New Mexico (1978) 438 U.S. 696, 713 n. 21, 98 S. Ct. 3012, 57 L. Ed. 2d 1052] . Thus, while the initial reservation includes a water right of the highest priority, an expansion of the reserved right is allowed only if the excess water has not already been appropriated.

[1] Federal Powers

In furthering the promotion of agriculture through the development of reclamation and irrigation projects, which is a valid public and national purpose, the federal government may expend funds and acquire property. The authority to do so arises from both the General Welfare Clause (U.S. Const., art. I, § 8) and the Property Clause (U.S. Const., art. IV, § 3)[Ivanhoe Irrig. Dist. v. McCracken (1958) 357 U.S. 275, 294, 78 S. Ct. 1174, 2 L. Ed. 2d 1313 , reh'g denied, 358 U.S. 805, 79 S. Ct. 10, 3 L. Ed. 2d 94] .

The federal government has the power to impose reasonable conditions on the use of federal funds, federal property, and federal privileges [Ivanhoe Irrig. Dist. v. McCracken (1958) 357 U.S. 275, 295, 78 S. Ct. 1174, 2 L. Ed. 2d 1313 , reh'g denied, 358 U.S. 805, 79 S. Ct. 10, 3 L. Ed. 2d 94] . Provisions of the Reclamation Act of 1902 (43 U.S.C. § 371 et seq., as codified, incorporating 1982 amendment), which generally restrict the use of reclamation water at subsidized rates on lands in excess of certain acreage in single ownership, have been upheld as accomplishing the governmental purpose of supplying water to the greatest number of individuals and preventing federal subsidy of speculation [Ivanhoe Irrig. Dist. v. McCracken (1958) 357 U.S. 275, 296-297, 78 S. Ct. 1174, 2 L. Ed. 2d 1313 , reh'g denied, 358 U.S. 805, 79 S. Ct. 10, 3 L. Ed. 2d 94] . "Large landowners" (that is, those owning land in excess of specified acreage) have been unsuccessful in their constitutional attacks on contracts between water districts and the federal government, and related recordable contracts between the large landowners and the federal government (subjecting the excess lands that do receive reclaimed water to certain government control), asserting that the excess-acreage provisions amount to a taking of vested property rights and discrimination against excess landowners, in violation of U.S. Const., amends. V and XIV [Ivanhoe Irrig. Dist. v. McCracken (1958) 357 U.S. 275, 294-297, 78 S. Ct. 1174, 2 L. Ed. 2d 1313 , reh'g denied, 358 U.S. 805, 79 S. Ct. 10, 3 L. Ed. 2d 94] .

Moreover, large landowners were unsuccessful in attempts to obtain specific enforcement of those contracts following subsequent amendment of the Reclamation Act of 1902 that provided stricter limitations on the use of reclaimed water on excess lands than the limitations under the contracts (which reflected superseded law). The landowners could not claim that the provision of the Reclamation Reform Act of 1982 (R.R.A; 43 U.S.C. §§ 373(a), 390aa-390zz-1, 422e, 425b, 485h, 502), raising the subsidized rates, and shortening to 10 years the time period for which they could use reclaimed water on excess lands at the superseded rate, violated their rights under the due process and "taking" clauses of U.S. Const., amend. V, because they had no contractual right to receive water for those lands at subsidized rates for more than 10 years [Barcellos and Wolfsen v. Westlands Water Dist. (9th Cir. 1990) 899 F.2d 814, 821-825 (construing 43 U.S.C. § 390ww(h))]. Similarly, water districts failed in a constitutional attack on provisions of the R.R.A. because they had no vested property right to the continuation of terms of their contracts with the federal government that conflicted with superseding federal statutes. The water districts sought unsuccessfully to invalidate the "hammer clause" of the R.R.A. (43 U.S.C. § 390cc(a), (b)), which essentially required that those receiving subsidized water from federal reclamation projects elect whether to (1) amend their contracts to conform to the requirements of the R.R.A., which increases the eligible single-ownership acreage from 160 to 960 acres, but increases the subsidized price and eliminates the "leasing loophole," which had exempted leased lands from the acreage limitations; or (2) continue to deliver water to leased lands in excess of 160 acres but pay the full cost rather than a subsidized price. Their claims of violation of due-process and "taking" clauses of U.S. Const., amend. V, failed because they had no vested property right to buy reclamation water for delivery to leased lands, and the statute was rationally related to the legitimate governmental purpose of promoting small farming operations, equitably distributing water under modern farming conditions, and conserving water [Peterson v. United States Dep't of Interior (9th Cir. 1990) 899 F.2d 799, 813-814] .

By contrast, when a federal act implementing a water project supplemental to the reclamation laws specifically recognizes certain landowners' vested or "presently perfected" property rights under state law to receive reclaimed water under certain conditions, those landowners are entitled to rights under the provisions of the supplemental act, rather than the reclamation laws that would otherwise apply [Bryant v. Yellen (1980) 447 U.S. 352, 355, 100 S. Ct. 2232, 65 L. Ed. 2d 184 , reh'g denied, 448 U.S. 911, 101 S. Ct. 25, 65 L. Ed. 2d 1172 (regarding Boulder Canyon Project Act, 43 U.S.C. § 617 et seq.)].

[2] State Powers

A state may impose conditions on a permit it grants to the United States to implement a federal water project so long as the conditions are not inconsistent with congressional provisions authorizing that project. Section 8 of the Reclamation Act of 1902 (43 U.S.C. §§ 372, 383), which requires compliance with state laws, requires the federal project to comply with state law in the purchase or condemnation of vested water rights, and also in the control, appropriation, use, or distribution of water. Congress intended to defer to the substance, as well as the form, of state water law [California v. United States (1978) 438 U.S. 645, 672-675, 98 S. Ct. 2985, 57 L. Ed. 2d 1018] . However, a state may not take an action that would be contrary to the congressional directive [Environmental Defense Fund, Inc. v. East Bay Mun. Utility Dist. (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 183, 193, 161 Cal. Rptr. 466, 605 P.2d 1 (state had no authority to prevent federal dam construction)].

§ 575.34 Riparian Rights on Federally Reserved Lands

In California, which recognizes riparian water rights as well as appropriative rights (see §§ 575.54, 575.55), the Supreme Court has held that the federal Constitution does not preclude the United States from acquiring riparian water rights under California law on federal reserved lands within the state [In re Water of Hallett Creek Stream System (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 448, 466-467, 243 Cal. Rptr. 887, 749 P.2d 324] . The Court stated that the underlying principle of deference to state law extends to any water right recognized under local law, including riparian rights. Furthermore, the federal government may exercise riparian rights on reserved lands for secondary purposes, such as wildlife enhancement, the same as any other ordinary proprietor, that is, the government's rights are not subordinate to rights of subsequent appropriators [In re Water of Hallett Creek Stream System (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 448, 470, 243 Cal. Rptr. 887, 749 P.2d 324] . If the riparian right is unexercised, however, that right may be subordinate to any uses of water authorized before the government attempts to exercise its right [*In re Water of Hallett Creek Stream System (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 448, 471-472, 243 Cal. § 575.36 Interstate Waters

[1] Choice of Law

In determining the relative rights of states and their citizens in the waters of an interstate stream, if both states follow the same doctrine for determining water rights, that doctrine will be applied [Wyoming v. Colorado (1921) 259 U.S. 419, 467-470, 42 S. Ct. 552, 66 L. Ed. 999] .

When the states have different water doctrines, the federal common law doctrine of equitable apportionment will be applied. It is a flexible doctrine based on consideration of many factors to secure a just and equitable allocation of the waters, and includes a weighing of the harms and benefits to the competing states [Colorado v. New Mexico (1982) 459 U.S. 176, 183-186, 103 S. Ct. 539, 74 L. Ed. 2d 348] . The doctrine of equitable apportionment is only applied in the absence of a statute resolving interstate claims [Arizona v. California (1963) 373 U.S. 546, 562, 83 S. Ct. 1468, 10 L. Ed. 2d 542] .

[2] Interstate Compacts

States may make agreements or compacts between themselves as allowed by U.S. Const., art. I, § 10(3). California has entered into compacts with both Oregon and Nevada concerning the use of water [see Water Code §§ 5900-5901, 5950-5951 and Water Code §§ 5975-5976, respectively; see also Water Code § 123]. Additionally, Civ. Code § 1410a provides that the entire flow of any natural stream carrying water from California into another state is governed by California law.

[3] Jurisdiction

The United States Supreme Court has original jurisdiction of water rights controversies between states [U.S. Const., art. III, § 2; Arizona v. California (1963) 373 U.S. 546, 564, 83 S. Ct. 1468, 10 L. Ed. 2d 542 ; see Texas v. New Mexico (1987) 482 U.S. 124, 126-128, 107 S. Ct. 2279, 96 L. Ed. 2d 105 (interpretation of compact)]. When there is a dispute concerning water rights between citizens of different states, there is concurrent jurisdiction in the two states, and whichever court first acquires jurisdiction is entitled to proceed to final determination without interference from the other [Rickey Land & C. Co. v. Miller & Lux (1910) 218 U.S. 258, 262, 31 S. Ct. 11, 54 L. Ed. 1032]

California recognizes three methods of acquiring rights to the use of water. The riparian right is acquired by owning land adjoining a watercourse [see § 575.54]. The appropriative right is acquired by following statutory procedures to obtain a license [see § 575.55]. The prescriptive right is based on a taking that is hostile to the rights of another [see § 575.80].

§ 575.52 State Water Policy

State policy requires that water resources be put to beneficial use to the fullest extent possible and that waste and unreasonable use be prevented [Cal. Const., Art X, § 2; Water Code § 100]. All water within California belongs to the people, but its use may be acquired by legal appropriation or riparian right [Water Code §§ 101, 102]. The right to use water will be regarded and protected as a real property interest, even though there is no ownership in the water itself [Fullerton v. State Water Resources Control Bd. (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 590, 598, 153 Cal. Rptr. 518] . However, no water right is inviolable, and all water rights, whether riparian or appropriative, are subject to government regulations requiring reasonable use [United States v. State Water Resources Control Bd. (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 82, 105-106, 227 Cal. Rptr. 161] .

California operates under a dual system of water rights that recognizes both the appropriation and the riparian doctrines. The riparian doctrine confers the right to the reasonable and beneficial use of water on that land on the owner of land contiguous to a watercourse. The appropriation doctrine contemplates the diversion of water and applies to any taking of water for other than riparian or overlying uses [National Audubon Society v. Superior Court (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 419, 441, 189 Cal. Rptr. 346, 658 P.2d 709] . An appropriative taking of water that is wrongful may ripen into a prescriptive right [see Civ. Code § 1007; Code Civ. Proc. § 321; California Water Service Co. v. Edward Sidebotham & Son (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 715, 726-727, 37 Cal. Rptr. 1] . However, because the statutory procedure for obtaining appropriative rights is exclusive, there is some controversy over whether prescription is a valid means of acquiring a water right [People v. Shirokow (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 301, 307-308, 162 Cal. Rptr. 30, 605 P.2d 859] . For discussion of the riparian and appropriative rights, see §§ 575.54, 575.55. For discussion of prescriptive rights, see § 575.80.

§ 575.53 Constitutional Mandate

[1] Reasonably Beneficial Use

The general welfare requires that the state's water resources be put to beneficial use to the fullest extent of which they are capable, and that waste, unreasonable use, or unreasonable method of water use be prevented. Conservation of water must be exercised with a view to reasonable and beneficial use [Cal. Const., Art. X, § 2]. When the holder of an appropriative right fails to use the water as a result of conjunctive use of surface water and ground water, the reduction in use under the appropriative right is a reasonable and beneficial use [Water Code § 1011.5].

[2] Beneficial Use Not Equivalent to Reasonable Use

Beneficial use cannot be equated with reasonable use and a use may be beneficial without being reasonable [Joslin v. Marin Mun. Water Dist. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 132, 142-143, 60 Cal. Rptr. 377, 429 P.2d 889 (use of waters as an agent to depose silt and carry away salt was obviously beneficial to owner of land, but not reasonable)]. A use that is reasonable and beneficial when water is present in excess of all needs, may not be a reasonable beneficial use in an area of great scarcity and great need. Similarly, a use that is beneficial at one time may, because of changed circumstances, become a waste of water at a later time [People ex rel. State Water Resources Control Bd. v. Forni (1976) 54 Cal. App. 3d 743, 750, 126 Cal. Rptr. 851 ; Imperial Irrigation Dist. v. State Wat. Resources Control Bd. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 548, 570, 275 Cal. Rptr. 250 (district's use of water may be beneficial but unreasonable if it does not promote water conservation)].

§ 575.54 Riparian Rights

[1] Background

No riparian proprietor owns water in a stream; riparians (owners of lands contiguous to water) have only the right to the reasonable use of the water [Williams v. Rankin (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 803, 819, 54 Cal. Rptr. 184] . The right to the water of flowing streams originally vested in the state or federal governments in their capacities as riparian owners, not in their capacities as sovereigns, and the right remains vested in them prior to any sale or disposition of lands by them. When land is disposed of by either government entity, the riparian water right pertaining to that land passes to the purchaser as a part of that realty. The riparian rights cannot be divested from the riparian owners, and have not been divested from them, except (1) by their consent, expressed, as by statute or by actual grant or contract, or implied, as by prescription, or (2) by enforced taking for public use, as by condemnation [Palmer v. Railroad Com. of California (1914) 167 Cal. 163, 173-174, 138 P. 997 ; see Miller & Lux, Inc., v. Light & Power Corp. (1932) 120 Cal. App. 589, 612, 8 P.2d 560] . For discussion of the nature of the federal government's riparian rights in reserved lands under California law, see § 575.34.

[2] Elements

A landowner asserting a riparian right must plead the following three elements: (1) the riparian character of his or her land, (2) the quantity of water or the proportion of the watercourse to which he or she claims to be entitled, and (3) the location of his or her land with respect to the land of the other party [Hudson v. West (1957) 47 Cal. 2d 823, 828, 306 P.2d 807] .

The riparian character of the land may be pleaded either (1) by alleging the existence of ultimate facts, which if proved would establish the land as riparian, or (2) by alleging generally that the land is riparian to a stream or natural watercourse. Land will be established as riparian when three things are proved: (1) some part of the land must be contiguous to a stream or natural watercourse, (2) the land for which water is claimed must be within the watershed of the stream, and (3) the land for which water is claimed must be part of the smallest tract held under one title in the chain of title leading to the present owner--the land's riparian status must not have been lost by severance [Hudson v. West

When asserting a riparian right, the quantity of water sought must be definite. A specific number of inches of water without further qualification is an indefinite quantity of running water and is an insufficient allegation of quantity that may be subject to a special demurrer for uncertainty [Hudson v. West (1957) 47 Cal. 2d 823, 828, 306 P.2d 807 (allegation stated to be sufficient in absence of special demurrer)]. When pleading a riparian right, gallons or acre-feet may be useful terms in expressing the quantity of water.

Land is only riparian at the times when it is reached by the stream [Williams v. Rankin (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 803, 814, 54 Cal. Rptr. 184] . If a tract of land has any access to the stream at all, and the other riparian elements exist, including the requirement that title to the tract is derived from a single source and has never been severed, the entire tract is riparian. It is the status of the land, not the quantity of water, and not the size of the tract, that is relevant in determining riparian status [Rancho Santa Margarita v. Vail (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 501, 529, 533-534, 81 P.2d 533] .

[3] Watercourse Defined

A watercourse consists of a stream flowing in a particular direction, though it need not flow continually, and may sometimes be dry. It must flow in a definite channel, stream, or body of water. A watercourse may exist even though it serves as a mere channel by means of which a particular watershed is drained; water runoff from usual and recurring rainfall constitutes a watercourse when it runs in a well-defined channel [Van Zyl v. Spiegelberg (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 367, 374, 82 Cal. Rptr. 689 (negligence and nuisance action)].

The riparian right to use water on adjoining land applies to the water of a running stream, lake, pond, slough, or any natural body of water. Even if a pond or lake is caused solely by an overflow, has no other source of supply, and would soon disappear due to seepage and evaporation, the riparian owners have a right to the reasonable use of the water [Turner v. The James Canal Co. (1909) 155 Cal. 82, 87, 90, 99 P. 520] .

Although riparian rights usually exist only in natural watercourses, a channel for the diversion of water may have existed for such a length of time, and may have been used under such circumstances, that the manner of its creation is not material; it then has all the attributes of a water channel wholly natural in its origin, and bordering lands are riparian in the same manner and to the same extent as lands bordering on streams which are natural in their origin [Chowchilla Farms Inc. v. Martin (1933) 219 Cal. 1, 19-20, 25 P.2d 435] .

[4] Reasonable and Beneficial Use

Riparian use must comply with the constitutional requirement of reasonable and beneficial use [In re Waters of Long Valley Creek Stream System (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 339, 351, 158 Cal. Rptr. 350, 599 P.2d 656] . Riparian rights in a watercourse attach to, but to no more than, so much of the flow as may be required or put to a reasonable and beneficial use [Cal. Const., Art. X, § 2].

What constitutes a reasonable use or method of use of water is a question of fact to be determined according to the circumstances in each particular case [Joslin v. Marin Mun. Water Dist. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 132, 139, 60 Cal. Rptr. 377, 429 P.2d 889] . The reasonableness of a riparian use cannot be determined without considering the effect of that use on all the needs of those in the stream system, nor can it be a context isolated from statewide considerations of transcendent importance such as maximum beneficial use of limited water resources, prevention of waste and unreasonable use, and conservation for the public welfare [In re Waters of Long Valley Creek Stream System (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 339, 354, 158 Cal. Rptr. 350, 599 P.2d 656] .

[5] Correlative Right

The riparian right is a correlative right, shared with other riparian owners on the same watercourse. The riparian rights of owners of land adjoining a stream, or any connected bay, inlet, or slough, are equal and coextensive with those of persons owning land bordering the main current or channel. However, when there is not enough water to supply the needs of all, factors such as quantity of land owned, the owners' respective interests, the quantity of the water in the smaller body as compared to the main one, and the quantity of water capable of being diverted naturally will be considered [Turner v. The James Canal Co. (1909) 155 Cal. 82, 90-91, 99 P. 520] .

[6] Dormant Rights

[a] Existence Without Exercise

The rights of a riparian owner are not destroyed or impaired by the fact that the water has not been used on the riparian lands, and the riparian right exists, whether exercised or not. A dormant riparian right may be qualified, but not extinguished, by active appropriative rights [In re Waters of Long Valley Creek Stream System (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 339, 357-359, 158 Cal. Rptr. 350, 599 P.2d 656 ; see In re Water of Hallett Creek Stream System (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 448, 471, 243 Cal. Rptr. 887, 749 P.2d 324] .

[b] Assertion at Any Time

Dormant riparian rights are unrecorded and their quantity is unknown. They present a major source of uncertainty in water rights law. This uncertainty fosters recurrent, costly, and piecemeal litigation. The uncertainty arises because the riparian right is not an entitlement to a specific quantity of water; it is an entitlement to make reasonable use of a correlative share of the stream flow. What a riparian's actual entitlement is at any given time varies with the circumstances of the time and place. A new riparian user, from a recent patent of riparian land, a recent activation of a previously dormant riparian right, or the expanded use of an active riparian right, is entitled to share equally with all earlier riparian users. Thus, the other riparians can never know what their share will be in the future [In re Waters of Long Valley Creek Stream System (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 339, 355, n. 10, 158 Cal. Rptr. 350, 599 P.2d 656] .

[c] Priority Over Appropriation Rights

Furthermore, as against an appropriator, a riparian owner has a fixed priority of right. But the quantity of water to which the right attaches remains unfixed. Thus, an expanded riparian use has the potential to preempt an inferior appropriative right when the supply of water originally was sufficient to satisfy both uses [In re Waters of Long Valley Creek Stream System (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 339, 355 n.10, 158 Cal. Rptr. 350, 599 P.2d 656] .

[1] Obtained by Permit Procedure

The appropriation right to water is acquired by complying with the procedures set forth in Water Code § 1000 et seq. Under this method, a person who wishes to appropriate water applies for a permit to appropriate water, a permit to construct necessary water works and divert water is granted, and on completion of the works, a license is issued. This procedure is the exclusive method of appropriating water in California, except as provided in Water Code §§ 1226-1226.4, which governs stockponds [Water Code § 1225; *Fullerton v. [2] Water Subject to Appropriation

[a] Water Available

All water flowing in any natural channel, whether surface or subterranean, unless already applied to useful and beneficial purposes on lands riparian thereto, or otherwise appropriated, is public water of the State and subject to appropriation [Water Code §§ 1200, 1201]. Whenever water in a watercourse, whether the water is foreign or part of the natural flow, is not reasonably required for beneficial use by the owners of existing rights to that water, those owners cannot prevent its beneficial use by other persons [Miller & Lux, Inc. v. Bank of America (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 719, 729, 28 Cal. Rptr. 401] .

Unappropriated water includes (1) all water that has never been appropriated, (2) all water appropriated before the effective date of the Water Commission Act (December 19, 1914) that has not been put to beneficial use or utilized for the purpose of the appropriation, (3) all water lawfully appropriated that has ceased to be put to the useful or beneficial purpose for which it was appropriated, and (4) water that flows back into a stream, lake, or other body of water after having been appropriated or used [Water Code § 1202].

If a municipality holds the right to use water in excess of existing municipal needs, anyone entitled to possession of land on which the excess water may be put to beneficial use may appropriate that excess water, but only for the time during which that water is not needed by the municipality [Water Code § 1203].

In determining the amount of water available for appropriation for other beneficial uses, the State Board is required to take into account, whenever it is in the public interest, the amounts of water required for recreation and the preservation and enhancement of fish and wildlife resources [Water Code § 1243].

[b] Fully Appropriated Stream System

Following notice and hearing, the State Board may adopt a declaration that a stream system is fully appropriated based on its finding that the stream system water is being fully applied to beneficial uses when previous water rights decisions have determined that no water remains available for appropriation [see Water Code § 1205(a), (b)].

From the date of adoption of a full appropriation declaration, and subject to Water Code § 1206(b), the Board will not accept any application for a permit to appropriate water from the stream system described in the declaration, and may cancel any application pending on that date [Water Code § 1206(a)]. Water Code § 1206(a) does not apply to applications for temporary permits made pursuant to Water Code §§ 1425-1431 or to any Water Code provision respecting change in point of diversion, place of use, or purpose of use [Water Code § 1206(c)]. For discussion of temporary permits, see § 575.67. For discussion of changes in use, see § 575.75.

Notwithstanding Water Code § 1206(a), in its declaration the Board may provide for acceptance of applications to appropriate water under specified conditions. Any such provision must specify the conditions and may contain application limitations, including, but not limited to, limitations on the purpose of use, on the instantaneous rate of diversion, on the season of diversion, and on the amount of water that may be diverted annually. The Board may make those limitations applicable to individual applications to appropriate water, or to the aggregate of the applications, or both [Water Code § 1206(b)].

The Board may, either on its own motion or on petition of any interested person, after notice and hearing, revoke or revise a declaration that a stream system is fully appropriated [Water Code § 1205(c)].

Any notice of hearing pursuant to Water Code §§ 1205-1207 must be published at least once a week for four consecutive weeks in one or more newspapers of general circulation published in each county in which any part of the stream system is situated, and publication must be complete at least 60 days prior to the date of hearing [Water Code § 1207(a)]. At least 60 days prior to the date of the hearing, the notice must be mailed to all persons known to the Board who own land that appears to be riparian to the stream system, who divert water from the stream system, or who have made written request to the Board for special notice of hearing pursuant to Water Code §§ 1205-1207 [Water Code § 1207(b)].

[3] Elements of an Appropriation

To constitute an appropriation, there must be (1) an intent to take, (2) accompanied by an open, physical demonstration of that intent, (3) for a valuable use. The outward manifestation of all three elements is most often evidenced by a diversion of the water from its natural source prior to using it, although other means are also acceptable, such as watering livestock directly from the course. There must be physical use or control of the water in some fashion, however, either by artificial means (diversion or a storage structure) or by establishing a possessory right in the land to which the water is appurtenant [Fullerton v. State Water Resources Control Bd. (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 590, 598-599, 601, 153 Cal. Rptr. 518 (Board properly denied permit to State Department of Fish and Game for "in-stream" appropriation to provide minimum flow guarantees to protect fish resources)].

Appropriation must be for some useful or beneficial purpose [Cal. Const., Art. X, § 2; Water Code § 1240].

Storing water underground, including the diversion of streams and the flowing of water on lands necessary to the accomplishment of that storage, can be a beneficial use [Water Code § 1242]. Storage of water to be released for the purpose of protecting or enhancing the quality of other waters which are put to beneficial uses may also be a beneficial use [Water Code § 1242.5].

§ 575.57 Public Trust

[1] Relation to Appropriation Decisions

The concept of the public trust is that the sovereign owns all of its navigable waterways and the lands lying beneath them as trustee of a public trust for the benefit of the people. This trust requires the state to protect navigable waters from harm caused by diversion of nonnavigable tributaries [National Audubon Society v. Superior Court (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 419, 425-427, 189 Cal. Rptr. 346, 658 P.2d 709] .

Because the prosperity and habitability of much of the state requires the diversion of great quantities of water from its streams for purposes unconnected to public trust uses at the source stream, the state has the power to grant nonvested usufructuary rights to appropriate water even if diversions harm public trust uses, but it should attempt to avoid or minimize any harm to those interests before approving water diversions. Even if one trust is preferred to another in one instance, a state agency has no power to abrogate a public trust by authorizing a use inconsistent with it [National Audubon Society v. Superior Court (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 419, 439-441, 189 Cal. Rptr. 346, 658 P.2d 709] .

[2] Continuing Supervision

The state has an affirmative duty to take the public trust into account in the planning and allocation of water resources, and to protect public trust uses whenever feasible. Once an appropriation has been approved, the public trust imposes a duty of continuing supervision over the taking and use of the appropriated water. In exercising its power to allocate water resources in the public interest, the state is not confined by past allocation decisions which may be incorrect in light of current knowledge or inconsistent with current needs; it may reconsider allocation decisions even though those decisions were made after due consideration of their effect on the public trust [National Audubon Society v. Superior Court (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 419, 446-447, 189 Cal. Rptr. 346, 658 P.2d 709] .

Members of the public as well as public interest groups have standing to bring an action to enjoin appropriation of water in violation of the public trust [National Audubon Society v. Superior Court (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 419, 431 n. 11, 189 Cal. Rptr. 346, 658 P.2d 709] . The courts have concurrent jurisdiction with the board over such cases. The public trust issue may be raised before the board by a proceeding to determine water rights in a stream system under Water Code § 2501 [National Audubon Society v. Superior Court (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 419, 448, 189 Cal. Rptr. 346, 658 P.2d 709 ; see §§ 575.140 and 575.380].

§ 575.58 Application to Appropriate Water

Any person may apply for and secure from the State Board, pursuant to statutory and regulatory provisions, a permit for any unappropriated water [Water Code § 1252; for the form of application, see § 575.350]. The Board must consider and act on all applications for permits to appropriate water and must do all things proper relating to those applications, including conducting necessary investigations [Water Code §§ 1250, 1251]. Appropriation rights and privileges may be conferred on the United States, on the State, and on any entity or organization capable of holding an interest in real property, as well as on a person [Water Code § 1252.5].

The Board will make necessary investigations of the state's water resources to secure information needed in connection with applications for appropriation of water [Water Code § 1251].

§ 575.59 Appropriation Must Be in Public Interest

The State Board will allow the appropriation of unappropriated water for beneficial purposes under any terms and conditions that it judges will best develop, conserve, and utilize in the public interest the water sought to be appropriated [Water Code § 1253]. Proposed appropriations not best conserving the public interest will be rejected [Water Code § 1255]. In determining the public interest, the Board must consider any state-authorized plan pertaining to the control, protection, development, utilization, and conservation of water resources [Water Code § 1256]. The role of the Board in acting on permit applications is a necessary balancing process requiring maximum flexibility in considering the competing demands for water [United States v. State Water Resources Control Bd. (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 82, 126, 227 Cal. Rptr. 161] .

§ 575.60 Factors Considered by State Board in Appropriation Decisions

[1] Generally

In acting on applications to appropriate water the State Board is guided by the policy that domestic use is the highest use and irrigation is the next highest use [Water Code § 1254]. The Board must also consider the relative benefit to be derived from (1) all beneficial uses of the water concerned including, but not limited to, use for domestic, irrigation, municipal, industrial, preservation and enhancement of fish and wildlife, recreational, or mining and power purposes, and from any uses specifically protected under any relevant water quality control plan; and (2) the reuse or reclamation of the water sought to be appropriated, as proposed by the applicant. The Board may subject appropriations to whatever terms and conditions it finds to be in the public interest [Water Code § 1257; see United States v. State Water Resources Control Board (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 82, 132-133, 227 Cal. Rptr. 161] . Stream flow requirements proposed for fish and wildlife purposes pursuant to Pub. Res. Code §§ 10001, 10002, and water quality control plans established pursuant to the Porter-Cologne Water Quality Control Act (Water Code § 13000 et seq.) must be considered by the Board [Water Code §§ 1257.5, 1258]. Underlying all the necessary elements for the Board to consider in its appropriation decisions is the state goal of providing a decent home and suitable living environment for its inhabitants [Water Code § 1259].

[2] Amount of Water

In determining the amount of water available for appropriation, the State Board will take into account the amounts of water needed to remain in the source for protection of beneficial uses, including any uses specifically protected under any relevant water quality control plan [Water Code § 1243.5]. The Board will similarly take into account the amounts of water required for recreation and for the preservation and enhancement of fish and wildlife resources [Water Code § 1243].

§ 575.61 Application Determines Priority

Any properly made application for appropriation gives the applicant a priority of right as of the date of the application until the application is either approved or rejected. That priority continues only so long as the applicant complies with applicable laws and regulations [Water Code § 1450]. If the permit is granted, that priority continues and gives the permittee the right to take and use the amount of water specified until the permit is revoked or until a license is issued [Water Code § 1455].

A municipality's application for a permit for water use for the municipality or for the domestic needs of its inhabitants is first in right, irrespective of whether it is first in time [Water Code § 1460]. The Water Code also provides a priority for specified situations, such as for an application by the Department of Water Resources in aid of a water plan or an application pertaining to action on certain types of hydroelectric plants that have no significant adverse environmental impact [see Water Code §§ 1480, 1490-1491, respectively].

Once the application is approved, the Board must issue a permit [Water Code § 1380; see § 575.358].

§ 575.63 Terms and Conditions of Permit

Use of water following the issuance of a permit is limited to the extent and purpose allowed in the permit [Water Code § 1381]. A permit is effective only for the time the water actually appropriated under it is used for a useful and beneficial purpose [Water Code § 1390]. Every permit must include the enumeration of its conditions (in substance the provisions of Water Code §§ 1390-1394) and the statement that any appropriator of water to whom a permit is issued takes it subject to the conditions expressed in the permit [Water Code § 1391; see United States v. State Water Resources Control Bd. (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 82, 132-133, 227 Cal. Rptr. 161] . Every permittee accepts a permit under the condition that no value in excess of the actual amount paid to the State therefor shall at any time be claimed for the permit in respect to public entity regulation of the services rendered by the permittee or in respect to any valuation for purposes of sale to or purchase by, whether through condemnation proceedings or otherwise, a public entity of the rights and property of any permittee acquired through the permit process [Water Code § 1392].

§ 575.64 Modification of Permit Terms

The State Board may reserve jurisdiction in whole or in part to amend or revise terms and conditions in a permit if the Board finds that there is insufficient information to finally determine the terms and conditions that will reasonably protect vested rights without resulting in waste of water or that will best develop, conserve, and utilize in the public interest the water sought to be appropriated, and that a period of actual operation or time for completion of studies is necessary to secure the required information. The Board may also reserve jurisdiction if (1) the application under consideration represents only part of a coordinated project and the other applications for the project are pending, and (2) the Board finds that the coordinated project requires coordinated terms and conditions that cannot reasonably be decided until a decision is reached on the other pending applications [Water Code § 1394(a)]. Jurisdiction will be reserved for no longer a period than is reasonably necessary and will not be exercised after the license is issued. Reserved jurisdiction can be exercised only after notice to the parties and a hearing [Water Code § 1394(b)]. The Board's decision or order reserving jurisdiction and its decision or order in the exercise of that reserved jurisdiction are both subject to reconsideration [Water Code §§ 1120, 1122].

Independent of its power to reserve jurisdiction under Water Code § 1394, the Board has the authority to modify a permit under its power to prevent waste or unreasonable use or methods of diversion of water. Because a determination of reasonable use depends on the totality of the circumstances presented, when the Board determines that changed circumstances reveal new information about the adverse effect of a water project, the Board may modify the permit to curtail use and diversion of the water on the ground that the project's use and diversion of the water has become unreasonable [United States v. State Water Resources Control Bd. (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 82, 129-130, 227 Cal. Rptr. 161] .

The permit will specify deadlines for commencement and completion of construction work and for application of the water to beneficial use [Water Code §§ 1395, 1398]. Although both the construction work and utilization of water for beneficial purposes must be prosecuted with due diligence, the permit-specified time periods may be extended by the State Board for good cause shown [Water Code §§ 1396, 1398]. After any hearing on a petition for extension of time, the Board may revoke the permit [Water Code §§ 1398(b), 1410; for a form of petition, see § 575.359].

§ 575.66 Revocation of Permit

[1] Failure to Comply With Deadlines

A permit may be revoked (1) if the work is not commenced, prosecuted with due diligence, and completed, or (2) if the water is not applied to beneficial use as contemplated in the permit and in accordance with statutory and regulatory requirements [Water Code § 1410(a)].

The State Board may revoke a permit if, after a hearing on a petition for an extension of time to complete a project and apply water to beneficial use, the Board finds that cause exists to revoke the permit [Water Code § 1410(b)(1)]. A permit may also be revoked if, after an investigation other than a hearing on a petition for an extension of time, it appears that cause exists to revoke a permit. The Board must give the permittee written notice of the proposed revocation. If the permittee fails to request a hearing within the required time period, the Board will revoke the permit and declare the water subject to appropriation. After any hearing requested by the permittee, the Board may, on a finding that cause exists, revoke the permit and declare the water subject to appropriation [Water Code § 1410(b)(2)].

[2] Recourse After Revocation

The State Board may act to revoke the permit without a hearing unless the permittee requests a hearing within 15 days after receiving notice of possible revocation [Water Code § 1410.1]. When a permit is revoked without a hearing, the permittee, within 90 days of the order, may file a request to set aside the revocation, and the Board, for good cause shown, may reinstate the permit [Water Code § 1410.2].

The holder of any permit that is revoked may file a petition for a writ of mandate to inquire into the revocation order's validity. The proceedings must be filed in superior court no later than 30 days from the date of final action by the Board [Water Code § 1126; see Water Code § 1412 (proceedings pending on December 31, 1996, must have been filed in county in which proposed diversion was situated)]. The time for filing is extended if the holder seeks reconsideration by the Board [Water Code § 1126]. The right to petition will not be affected by the failure to seek reconsideration before the Board [Water Code § 1126].

For all proceedings pending on December 31, 1996, the priority of right of any permittee filing a petition for a writ of mandate continues under the permit until a final judgment is rendered as to the permit revocation [Water Code § 1414]. Unless the permittee files a petition for a writ of mandate, all of his or her rights under the permit cease [Water Code § 1413]. The findings of the Board on the revocation of a permit are prima facie correct until set aside by the court [Water Code § 1411]. Until and unless the order revoking the permit is ordered to be set aside by the court, the permittee must not exercise the right to take or use any water granted by the permit [Water Code § 1415]. Legislation enacted in 1996 repealed these provisions, effective prospectively [Water Code § 1126.2].

§ 575.67 Temporary Permit

The State Board may issue a conditional, temporary permit to appropriate water to any person, whether or not that person is an applicant, permittee, or licensee, when that person has an urgent need to divert and use water. The temporary permit may be issued without requiring compliance with the regular permit procedures [Water Code § 1425(a)]. Before issuing a temporary permit, the Board must find (1) that the applicant has an urgent need for the water proposed to be diverted and used, (2) that the water may be diverted and used without injury to any lawful user of water and without unreasonable effect on fish, wildlife, or other instream beneficial uses, and (3) that the proposed diversion and use are in the public interest [Water Code § 1425(b); see Water Code § 1425(c) ("urgent need" defined)]. The application for a temporary permit must be completed in accordance with the provisions of Water Code § 1260 (contents of appropriation application), and must be accompanied by those maps, drawings, and other data required by the Board. The applicant must pay an application fee and a permit fee if a temporary permit is issued [Water Code § 1426]. Notice requirements for temporary permits are set forth in Water Code § 1428, although the Board may issue a temporary permit in advance of that notice [Water Code § 1428].

Before issuing a temporary permit the Board must review available records, files, and decisions relating to the availability of water from the source at the proposed point of diversion to serve the proposed temporary diversion and use, and relating to the rights of downstream users. The Board must consult with representatives of the Department of Fish and Game and may make a field investigation [Water Code § 1427]. The Board will supervise diversion and use of water under the temporary permit for the protection of all lawful users of waters and instream beneficial uses and to ensure compliance with permit conditions [Water Code § 1429].

No temporary permit will create a vested right, even of a temporary nature. The permit will be subject at all times to modification or revocation in the Board's discretion and will automatically expire within 180 days, unless the permittee requests a renewal of up to 180 days [Water Code §§ 1430, 1431].

If the State Board determines that the construction and condition of the works or the use of water do not conform to the law, the Board's rules and regulations, or the terms of the permit, it may revoke the permit as provided in Water Code §§ 1410-1410.2 (permit revocation). The Board may allow a reasonable time for the permittee to correct discrepancies in the works or use of water before taking action to revoke the permit [Water Code § 1611]. For discussion of permit revocation procedures, see § 575.66.

When the Board's determination as to completion is favorable to the permittee, the Board must issue a license which confirms the right to appropriate water in an amount applied to beneficial use [Water Code § 1610].

Before issuing a license for an amount of water or season of use less than that specified in the permit, the Board must either (1) obtain the permittee's consent or (2) afford the permittee an opportunity to show cause why the amount or season of use should not be reduced [Water Code § 1610.5].

A permittee to whom the State Board has issued a license for an amount of water or a season of use less than that specified in the permit may file a petition for a writ of mandate in the superior court to inquire into the order's validity [Water Code § 1126]. Unless the petition for a writ of mandate is filed within 30 days after issuance of the license, all rights of the permit holder except as specified in the license will cease [Water Code § 1616 (applicable to all proceedings pending on December 31, 1996)]. After December 31, 1996, unless a petition is filed not later than 30 days from the date of final action by the Board, the Board's decision or order will not be subject to review by any court [Water Code § 1126].

With regard to proceedings pending on December 31, 1996, the rights of the permittee filing a petition for a writ of mandate will continue under the permit until the judgment in the proceedings has been entered and becomes final [Water Code § 1617]. However, until the Board's order is set aside or modified by the court, the permittee must take or use water only as specified in the license [Water Code § 1618]. In addition, these provisions have been repealed and are applicable only to proceedings filed before December 31, 1996 [Water Code § 1126.2].

§ 575.71 Conditions of License

A license is only effective for the time the water appropriated under it is used for a beneficial purpose [Water Code § 1627]. Every licensee takes a license to appropriate water subject to the expressed conditions, including the general statutory conditions [Water Code § 1628]. Every license is accepted under the same conditions regarding valuation as is every permit [Water Code § 1629; see § 575.63].

Twenty years after a license has been granted, the state, any city or city and county, any municipal water, irrigation, or lighting district, or any political subdivision of the state, has the right to purchase the works and property occupied and used under the license and the works built or constructed for the enjoyment of the rights granted under the license [Water Code § 1630]. Valuation may be computed as in eminent domain proceedings [Water Code § 1631].

§ 575.72 License Information Filed in County Recorder's Office

The State Board must file a copy of every license issued and every order modifying or changing a license within 30 days after its issuance in the office of the recorder of the county or counties in which the points of diversion lie and in the county or counties in which the places of use lie [Water Code § 1650]. Whenever an order revoking a license in whole or in part becomes final, a copy of the order must also be recorded [Water Code § 1651].

§ 575.73 Revocation of License

[1] Result of Licensee's Actions

After a license is issued, if the State Board finds that the licensee never put the water granted under the license to a useful or beneficial purpose or has ceased to do so, or that the licensee has failed to observe any of the license conditions, the Board, after notice to the licensee, may revoke the license and declare the water to be subject to appropriation. Unless the licensee makes a written request for a hearing within 15 days of notice, the Board may act without a hearing. "Licensee" includes the heirs, successors, or assigns of the licensee [Water Code §§ 1675, 1675.1].

The findings of the Board on the revocation of a license are prima facie correct until the order revoking the license is ordered to be set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction [Water Code § 1676 (repealed as of January 1, 1997, but applicable to all proceedings pending on December 31, 1996)].

[2] Challenging Revocation Order

The notice of proposed revocation of a license must contain a statement of facts on which the proposed revocation is based and warn the licensee that the State Board may take action without a hearing unless the licensee requests a hearing within 15 days after receiving the notice [Water Code § 1675.1]. Whenever a license is revoked without a hearing, the licensee, within 90 days, may file with the Board a request to set aside the revocation, and the Board, for good cause shown, may reinstate the license [Water Code § 1675.2].

The licensee may petition for a writ of mandate to inquire into the validity of an order of the Board revoking a license. That petition must be commenced within 30 days after the service of notice of revocation. The right to petition is not affected by the failure to seek reconsideration before the Board [Water Code § 1677 (repealed as of January 1, 1997, but applicable to all proceedings pending on December 31, 1996); Water Code § 1126 (applicable thereafter)].

§ 575.74 Temporary Urgency Changes

Any permittee or licensee who has an urgent need to change a point of diversion, place of use, or purpose of use from that specified in the license or permit may petition for, and the State Board may issue, a conditional temporary change order without compliance with the procedures required in the issuance of a regular permit or license [Water Code § 1435(a)]. Before issuing a change order the Board must find (1) that the permittee or licensee has an urgent need for the proposed change, (2) that the change may be made without injury to any other lawful user of water and without unreasonable effect on fish, wildlife, or other instream beneficial uses, and (3) that the proposed change is in the public interest [Water Code § 1435(b); see Water Code § 1435(c) ("urgent need" defined)]. Before issuing a change order the Board must also review available records, files, and decisions relating to the rights of other legal users and consult with representatives of the Department of Fish and Game. The Board may make a field investigation [Water Code § 1437].

Water Code § 1438(b) sets forth notice requirements for a temporary urgency change, but the Board may issue a temporary change order in advance of the notice required [Water Code § 1438(a)]. Regardless of the rate of diversion or the amount of storage, if the change order is to be in effect less than 10 days, the Board must exercise its discretion in requiring notice, both before and after issuance of the change order, and may require whatever proof of notice it deems appropriate [Water Code § 1438(c)].

Any interested person may file an objection to the temporary change with the Board, and the Board will send a copy of that objection to the permittee or licensee [Water Code § 1438(d)]. The Board must give prompt consideration to any objections, and may hold a hearing, after notice to all interested persons [Water Code § 1438(e)].

The Board will supervise the diversion and use of water under the temporary change order for the protection of all other lawful users of water and instream beneficial uses and for compliance with change order conditions [Water Code § 1439].

A temporary change order will not create any vested right, even of a temporary nature, and it is subject at all times to modification or revocation in the Board's discretion. Any temporary change order automatically expires within 180 days, although it may be renewed for up to 180 days [Water Code §§ 1440, 1441].

If the permittee or licensee fails to comply with any requirement, the temporary change will be automatically terminated [Water Code § 1438(f)].

Water Code §§ 1435-1442, which govern the temporary urgency changes, do not apply to any permittee or licensee petitioning for a temporary change pursuant to Water Code § 1725 et seq. (change involving transfer or exchange of water or water rights) [Water Code § 1442].

§ 575.75 Change in Appropriative Use

[1] In General

Water appropriated for one specific purpose is not allowed to be appropriated for any other purpose. However, with the State Board's permission, any time after notice of an application is given, an applicant, permittee, or licensee may change the point of diversion, place of use, or purpose of use from that specified [Water Code §§ 1700, 1701]. The petitioner must give written notice of the proposed change to the Department of Fish and Game [Water Code § 1703]. Before granting permission to make a change, the petitioner must establish that the change will not operate to the injury of any legal user of the water involved [Water Code § 1702]. The Board may require the petitioner to publish or otherwise give notice of the change in a manner prescribed by the Board [Water Code § 1703].

Petitions for change must be on the form required by applicable regulations and contain specified information [Water Code §§ 1701.1 (petition for change filed after notice of application), 1701.2 (petition for change in permit or license)]. After a petition is filed, the Board may request additional information reasonably necessary to clarify, amplify, correct, or otherwise supplement the information required to be submitted in the petition [Water Code § 1701.3]. If the petitioner does not provide the requested information, the Board may cancel the petition or, on a showing of good cause, allow additional time to submit the requested information [Water Code § 1701.4]. For forms requesting changes, see §§ 575.355 and 575.356.

[2] Protests

Any interested person may file a written protest against approval of the petition. The protest must be filed within the time allowed in the notice of petition or within the time allowed by the State Board on a showing of good cause [Water Code § 1703.1]. The protest must clearly and specifically set forth the protester's objections and the bases for the objections [Water Code § 1703.2(c)]. The protest must be served on the petitioner by mail or through service undertaken in a manner determined to be adequate by the Board [Water Code § 1703.2(e)]. The Board may request additional information that is reasonably necessary to clarify, amplify, correct, or otherwise supplement the information required to be submitted in the protest. It must provide a reasonable period for submitting the information, and may allow additional time for good cause shown [Water Code § 1703.3].

The protester and the petitioner must make a good faith effort to resolve the protest not later than 180 days from the expiration date in the notice of petition. The Board may allow additional time on a showing of good cause [Water Code § 1703.4]. The Board may request additional information from the protester or the petitioner that the Board determines is reasonably necessary to attempt to resolve the protest. It must provide a reasonable period for submitting the information, and may allow additional time for good cause shown [Water Code § 1703.5].

The Board may cancel a protest or petition for failure to provide requested information within the time period provided [Water Code § 1703.6(a); see Water Code § 1703.6(c) (cancellation when protest is based on injury to legal user of water), (d) (cancellation when protest is based on allegation of injury to other than legal user of water), (e) (cancellation when protest is based on both types of allegations)]. However, the Board may not cancel a protest for failure to submit information not in the possession or under the control of the protester if the protest meets the requirements of Water Code § 1703.2 and the petitioner is or could be required to submit the information [Water Code § 1703.6(b)].

[3] Hearing

The State Board, after a hearing, may approve with conditions or deny a petition [Water Code § 1704(a)]. It must give notice of the hearing to the petitioner and any protester by registered mail not less than 20 days before the hearing date [Water Code § 1704(b)]. The Board may, but is not required to, hold a hearing before approving any unprotested petition [Water Code § 1704(c)(1)]. The Board may also hold a hearing if it determines that undisputed facts support the approval of the petition and there is no disputed issue of material fact [Water Code § 1704(c)(2)]. The Board may, but is not required to, hold a hearing before denying a petition, if, after notice, it determines that (1) the petition is defective, (2) the petition fails to provide information requested by the Board, or (3) undisputed facts support the denial of the petition and there is no disputed issue of material fact [Water Code § 1704(c)(3)]. A petition for a writ of mandate to inquire into the validity of the Board's order after a hearing must be filed within 30 days [Water Code §§ 1126, 1705].

[4] Minor Petition

A minor petition for change is one that does not involve direct diversions in excess of three cubic-feet per second or storage in excess of 200 acre-feet per year [Water Code § 1704.4]. The State Board will conduct a field investigation and prepare an analysis of all minor protested petitions for change. The Board must notify the parties not less than 20 days before conducting the field investigation, so that the parties can attend and present information to the Board [Water Code § 1704.1]. The Division of Water Rights may request that the parties submit information in support of their positions before, during, or after the field investigation. After the field investigation, the Division of Water Rights may conduct additional proceedings in accordance with the informal hearing procedure set forth in Gov. Code § 11445.10 et seq. [Water Code § 1704.2]. Based on the field investigation and any other information it has obtained, the Division of Water Rights must issue an order acting on the minor petition for change unless the Board determines that additional proceedings should be conducted [Water Code § 1704.3]. The order is subject to review as provided in Water Code § 1120 et seq. [Water Code § 1704.3].

[5] Change to Preserve or Enhance Environmental Resources or Recreational Uses

Any person entitled to use water based on an appropriative, riparian, or other right may petition the State Board for a change in use to preserve or enhance wetlands habitat, fish, and wildlife resources, or recreation in or on the water [Water Code § 1707(a)]. The petition may be filed pursuant to Water Code §§ 1700 et seq. [see § 575.75], 1435 et seq. [see § 575.74], or 1725 et seq. [Water Code § 1707(a); see § 575.76].

The Board may approve the petition subject to any terms and conditions that the Board deems will best develop, conserve, and utilize the water at issue in the public interest. The petition may be approved regardless of whether the proposed use involves a diversion of water. However, the proposed change must meet all of the following requirements: (1) it must not increase the amount of water the person is entitled to use, (2) it must not unreasonably affect any legal user of water, and (3) it must otherwise meet the requirements of Water Code § 1000 [Water Code § 1707(b)]. The water at issue may be used to satisfy any applicable federal, state, or local regulatory requirements governing water quantity, water quality, instream flows, fish and wildlife, wetlands, recreation, and other instream beneficial uses [Water Code § 1707(c), (d)].
