[1] FORM Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 86(a)(7)(B), 430.10] for Declaratory Relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]--Declaratory Relief Is Authorized

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-Plaintiff,	)	IES IN OPPOSITION TO DEMURRER TO COM-
vs.	)	PLAINT
_____ [name],	)	Date: _____
Defendant.	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

DECLARATORY RELIEF IS PROPER TO _____ [select appropriate purpose from authorities discussed below] AND IS AUTHORIZED UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION _____ [1060 or 86(a)(7)(B) and 1060].

A. Action Authorized in Superior Court. Any person _____ [insert one of following: interested under a written instrument, excluding a will or trust, or interested under a contract or who desires a declaration of his or her or its rights and duties with respect to another or who desires a declaration of his or her or its rights in respect to, in, over or on property or who desires a declaration of his or her or its rights with respect to the location of the natural channel of a watercourse] may, in the case of an actual controversy relating to the legal rights and duties of the respective parties, bring an original action or cross complaint in the superior court for declaratory relief (Code Civ. Proc. § 1060).

[Optional] B. Oral Contract. Code of Civil Procedure Section 1060, authorizing an action for declaratory relief by any person interested under a written instrument, or under a contract, authorizes declaratory relief in case of a controversy relating to oral contracts and obligations (Zimmer v. Gorelnik (1941) 42 Cal. App. 2d 440, 445, 109 P.2d 34).

[Optional] C. To Test Constitutionality of Initiative Measure. Declaratory relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 1060 is a proper remedy to test the constitutionality of an initiative measure in the case of an actual controversy existing between the parties (see Weaver v. Jordan (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 235, 237-238, 49 Cal. Rptr. 537, 411 P.2d 289).

[Optional] D. To Test Constitutionality of Statutes. Declaratory relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 1060 is a proper remedy to test the constitutionality of statutes in the case of an actual controversy existing between the parties (see Carmel-by-the-Sea v. Young (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 259, 261, 85 Cal. Rptr. 1, 466 P.2d 225).

[Optional] E. To Test Constitutionality or Validity of Ordinances. Declaratory relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 1060 is a proper remedy to test the constitutionality or validity of ordinances in the case of an actual controversy existing between the parties (see C. Dudley De Velbiss Co. v. Kraintz (1951) 101 Cal. App. 2d 612, 615, 225 P.2d 969).

[Optional] F. To Interpret Charter Provision. The interpretation of a county or city charter provision is a proper matter for declaratory relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 1060 in the case of an actual controversy existing between the parties (see Walker v. County of Los Angeles (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 626, 637, 12 Cal. Rptr. 671, 361 P.2d 247).

[Optional] G. To Interpret Statutes and Ordinances. The interpretation of statutes and ordinances is a proper matter for declaratory relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 1060 in the case of an actual controversy existing between the parties (see Walker v. County of Los Angeles (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 626, 637, 12 Cal. Rptr. 671, 361 P.2d 247).

[Optional] H. To Test Enforceability of Covenants or Servitudes Asserted Against Property. A declaratory relief action is an appropriate means to test the enforceability of covenants or servitudes asserted against property, and one need not violate the restrictions in order to have his or her or its rights ascertained (Ross v. Harootunian (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 292, 294, 64 Cal. Rptr. 537).

[Optional] I. To Test Policy of Administrative Agency. An action for declaratory relief may be maintained to challenge an administrative agency's policy of ignoring or violating applicable laws and regulations, even though no specific agency decision is challenged (Imperial County Dep't of Soc. Servs. v. J.E. (In re Claudia E.) (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 627, 634-637, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 722 ; Californians for Native Salmon etc. Assn. v. Department of Forestry (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1419, 1429-1431, 271 Cal. Rptr. 270). [In such an action, the trial court may consider evidence of the agency's policies and practices beyond the record that would have been before an administrative agency if a particular administrative action had been challenged by administrative mandamus (East Bay Mun. Utility Dist. v. Department of Forestry & Fire Protection (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 1113, 1129-1131, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 299)].

[Optional] J. Actions Against Public Entity. An action for declaratory relief may be maintained against the state or any public entity authorized to sue and be sued when governmental immunity does not exist or is waived (see Hoyt v. Board of Civil Serv. Commrs (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 399, 401-405, 132 P.2d 804).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint for declaratory relief when defendant contends that the action is not one for which declaratory relief is authorized [see generally §§ 67.20 and 67.21]. Although Paragraphs B through J are labeled as optional, one or more of them would be used if applicable. If none of them is applicable, but the case is one in which declaratory relief is nevertheless authorized, then a paragraph stating the point of law relied on and citing the authority for it would be inserted in lieu of the optional paragraphs listed.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

Note that, on and after January 1, 1995, Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 no longer authorizes a declaratory relief action to determine rights under a will or trust, and this form excludes reference to these (see Paragraph A). A declaration of rights under a will or trust may be obtained, however, in proceedings under the Probate Code [see generally Prob. Code §§ 11700 et seq. (petitions to determine heirship), 17200 et seq. (proceedings concerning trusts), 21320 et seq. (proceedings to determine if act constitutes violation of no contest clause of will); see also Prob. Code § 21101]. For related memoranda in support of a will contest, see Ch. 186 Probate of Wills, § 18.20 et seq.

[b] Related Uses

The memorandum, with appropriate modifications, may be used in opposition to any other proceeding in which it is contended that declaratory relief does not lie. These other proceedings might include a motion for judgment on the pleadings, a separate trial of the issue set forth as an affirmative defense, a motion for summary judgment, and an objection to the introduction of any evidence at trial when it is contended that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action and the pleadings have not been superseded by a pretrial order setting forth issues to be tried.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action Authorized in Superior Court

In addition to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1060, Code Civ. Proc. § 17 provides that the word person includes a corporation as well as a natural person [Code Civ. Proc. § 17]. The words "person" and "another" as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 also include any entity authorized to sue or be sued [see Code Civ. Proc. § 369.5 (actions by and against unincorporated associations); Lord v. Garland (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 840, 852, 168 P.2d 5 (action against state); Hoyt v. Board of Civil Serv. Commrs (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 399, 401, 403, 132 P.2d 804 (action available to or against state, political subdivision of state, municipal corporation)]. For points and authorities opposing a demurrer, which was supported on the ground that plaintiff had no standing to maintain a declaratory relief action, when plaintiff is an interested person under Code Civ. Proc. § 1060, Gov. Code §§ 11350, 11350.3, or Unemp. Ins. Code § 409.2, see § 67.55.

[b] Oral Contract

Zimmer v. Gorelnik (1941) 42 Cal. App. 2d 440, 109 P.2d 34 was an action for declaratory relief regarding the respective rights of plaintiff and defendant concerning the division of profits in connection with business operations of the two based on the theory that they were operating as partners or joint venturers. The controversies between the parties arose out of a written contract under which they began their business associations in 1935. The plaintiff alleged that, while operating under that contract, the parties orally agreed to continue similar business connections in accordance with some of the terms of the contract relating to the division of profits. The trial court refused to let plaintiff prove these allegations on the theory that the court was without jurisdiction to determine a controversy involving a disputed oral contract. The trial resulted in a judgment that plaintiff was not entitled to any relief and plaintiff appealed.

In reversing the judgment, the court of appeal held that a declaratory relief action in the case of a controversy relating to an oral contract is authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 1060. The court noted that the Legislature in Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 used the word "or" after the word "instrument," and again after the word "contract"; that it did not use the word "written" before the word "contract"; that the clause reading: "or who desires a declaration of his rights or duties with respect to another, or in respect to, in, over or upon property" begins with the word "or"; and also that this clause is not tied in to any reference to a written instrument, or to a contract, or to any kind of a written document. The language of the statute was plain and did not call for judicial construction or interpretation. Notwithstanding the early rulings of the common law courts limiting the right of action to written instruments, the court held that Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 clearly broadens the scope of the action to cover controversies relating to oral contracts and obligations (42 Cal. App. 2d 440, 445) .

[c] To Test Constitutionality of Initiative Measure

Weaver v. Jordan (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 235, 49 Cal. Rptr. 537, 411 P.2d 289 was a declaratory relief action by proposed incorporators of a home subscription television business against the Secretary of State to determine the validity of the "Free Television Act," an initiative measure adopted by the electorate, and to compel the Secretary of State to accept the plaintiff's articles of incorporation for filing. The act banned subscription television businesses which would make any charge on reception of home television programs. Defendant had refused to file plaintiff's articles on the ground the proposed corporation was to engage in an unlawful business and that the corporation's purpose was unlawful. Plaintiffs contended that the act violated both the state and federal Constitutions. Defendant filed an answer and moved for judgment on the pleadings. Plaintiffs countered with a motion for summary judgment. The trial court concluded that the act violated the free speech guaranties of both the state and federal Constitutions, denied defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings, granted plaintiffs' motion for summary judgment, and rendered judgment declaring the duty of defendant to accept and file the articles. On defendant's appeal, the Supreme Court concurred in the trial court's conclusion and affirmed the judgment.

NOTE:

For a case invoking the original jurisdiction of the Supreme Court to determine the validity under the state and federal Constitutions of an initiative measure amending the state Constitution relating to property taxation, see Amador Valley Joint Union High Sch. Dist. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 208, 149 Cal. Rptr. 239, 583 P.2d 1281 (validity of initiative upheld). The federal constitutionality of initiative measures may also be determined in other actions; for example, the invalidity of an initiative measure amending the state Constitution to allow discrimination in housing was declared unconstitutional under the federal Constitution in an action for damages under the Unruh Civil Rights Act in Mulkey v. Reitman (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 529, 535-543, 50 Cal. Rptr. 881, 413 P.2d 825 (Supreme Court reversed summary judgment (treated as a judgment on the pleadings) for defendant owners and managers of an apartment building).

[d] To Test Constitutionality of Statutes

Carmel-by-the-Sea v. Young (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 259, 85 Cal. Rptr. 1, 466 P.2d 225 was a declaratory relief action attacking the constitutionality of the 1969 financial disclosure law [former Gov. Code §§ 3600-3704]. The law generally required that every public officer and candidate for state or local public office, as those terms were defined in the act, file, as a public record, a statement describing the nature and extent of his or her investments and those owned by either spouse or by a minor child of the parties if such investment were in excess of $10,000 in value at the time of the statement. Certain property was exempted from the law. Violation of the law was declared to be a misdemeanor and a knowing violation a felony. The complaint alleged and defendant admitted that many of plaintiff city's officials would resign rather than make the required disclosure. The trial court declared that the law was constitutional, and plaintiff city appealed. The Supreme Court reversed, holding that the attempted regulation undertook an overbroad intrusion into the right of privacy.

NOTE:

The constitutionality of the successor act on the ground that it met the objections of Carmel-by-the-Sea and was valid on its face was declared by the Supreme Court in Nevada County v. MacMillen (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 662, 666, 677, 114 Cal. Rptr. 345, 522 P.2d 1345 (reversing trial court's judgment that successor act was unconstitutional).

[e] To Test Constitutionality or Validity of Ordinances

Dudley De Velbiss Co. v. Kraintz (1951) 101 Cal. App. 2d 612, 225 P.2d 969 was an action for declaratory relief by a building contractor against the county building inspector to determine the constitutionality of county ordinances relating to construction. Claiming that the ordinances were vague and indefinite and discriminatory in their application, plaintiff in its complaint alleged the capacities of the parties, facts showing that the ordinances applied to plaintiff's businesses, that the ordinances were written instruments, and that an actual controversy existed between the parties relating to their respective legal rights and duties. The complaint further set forth the conflicting contentions of the parties, and prayed that the court declare the ordinances void and for other relief. The defendant's demurrer to the complaint was sustained without leave to amend, and plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment. In reversing the judgment, the court of appeal said that the complaint alleges an existing actual controversy as to the ordinances attacked which entitled the plaintiff to declaratory relief (101 Cal. App. 2d 612, 615) .

[f] To Interpret Charter Provision

Walker v. County of Los Angeles (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 626, 12 Cal. Rptr. 671, 361 P.2d 247 was a representative action by five county employees seeking declaratory relief (to have the court ascertain and declare the prevailing wage rate paid employees in private industry) and for a writ of mandate (to compel the county to adopt an ordinance providing at least equal salary payments to county civil service employees as required by county charter). It was claimed that in adopting a salary ordinance, the county board of supervisors did not comply with procedural requirements in the charter. The charter provided that in fixing compensation to be paid to persons under the classified civil service, the board of supervisors must provide a salary or wage at least equal to the prevailing salary or wage for the same quality of service rendered to private persons, firms, or corporations under similar employment if the prevailing salary or wage can be ascertained. For a number of years the county had participated with other political entities in a joint survey and held hearings to determine the prevailing wage for comparable work in private industry. But in the year in question, the board had declined to apply the annual survey in fixing salaries for the next fiscal year and, as shown by the record of their proceedings, after much disagreement among the supervisors, voted three to one to continue the preceding year's wage schedule. The trial court found that the board had not complied with charter requirements, rendered a declaratory judgment setting forth the rights and duties of the parties, and granted a peremptory writ of mandate requiring the board to comply. Defendants appealed. In reply to defendants' argument that the court should not undertake to guide the board in the exercise of its legislative discretion, the Supreme Court, in modifying the judgment to delete one of the several paragraphs declaring the rights and duties of the parties and affirming the judgment as modified, said that plaintiff's action was not an attempt to interfere with a discretionary act of the board in the legislative process, but to obtain a clarification of the charter provision, regulating the board in the performance of its prescribed duty. That is, the interpretation of charter provisions is a proper matter for declaratory relief (55 Cal. 2d 626, 637) .

[g] To Interpret Statutes and Ordinances

The procedural background of Walker v. County of Los Angeles (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 626, 12 Cal. Rptr. 671, 361 P.2d 247 is set forth in § 67.50[3][f]. The court observed that the interpretation of ordinances and statutes are proper matters for declaratory relief (55 Cal. 2d 626, 637) .

[h] To Test Enforceability of Covenants or Servitudes Asserted Against Property

Ross v. Harootunian (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 292, 64 Cal. Rptr. 537 was an action to test the enforceability of a deed restriction. Defendants had originally sold one of their 700 lots in a subdivision at Lake Tahoe to the predecessor in interest, Geraldine Bull, who conveyed the lot to plaintiffs. The deed from defendants contained restrictions relating to use, but the deed from Bull to plaintiffs omitted the restrictive clause. Plaintiffs moved for summary judgment and the motion was granted. In affirming the judgment, the court of appeal said that a declaratory relief action is an appropriate means to test the enforceability of covenants or servitudes asserted against property. It added that it was unnecessary for the owner to violate the restrictions in order to ascertain his rights (257 Cal. App. 2d 292, 294) .

[i] Actions to Test Policies of Administrative Agency

Imperial County Dep't of Soc. Servs. v. J.E. (In re Claudia E.) (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 627, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 722 , was a juvenile dependency proceeding instituted by a county department of social services after it took two children into protective custody. In the proceeding, the children filed a motion seeking a declaratory judgment that the department's procedure of filing a supplemental dependency petition more than 48 hours after removal of the subject child was illegal (see Welf. & Inst. Code § 387). The trial court denied the motion for declaratory relief, reasoning that before seeking declaratory relief, the children or their counsel should have sought a writ of habeas corpus. The court of appeal reversed.

The court of appeal rejected the trial court's rationale that declaratory relief was "not necessary or proper at the time under all the circumstances" (see Code Civ. Proc. § 1061). This rationale assumed that habeas corpus was a more "effective" vehicle for the sought-after relief. But the court of appeal emphasized that the children's counsel was not seeking release of the children to parental custody as a sanction for the department's untimely filing of the supplemental dependency petitions; rather, counsel was seeking a declaration that the department had misconstrued the statutory time requirements and had an ongoing policy of filing supplemental petitions on a tardy basis. Under those circumstances, a writ of habeas corpus to release the children from protective custody would not have been a more effective remedy than declaratory relief (163 Cal. App. 4th 627, 634) .

The court of appeal also rejected the department's argument that the juvenile court is not a proper forum for declaratory relief. The court of appeal acknowledged that juvenile dependency proceedings are governed, in general, by the Welfare and Institutions Code (see Welf. & Inst. Code § 300 et seq.); however, that Code does not expressly restrict the availability of declaratory relief. Moreover, given the claim asserted in this case (that the department allegedly had a lackadaisical or laissez faire practice of ignoring the time requirements for filing supplemental petitions, to the detriment of school-age dependent children), declaratory relief by the juvenile court would not only serve the purpose of expediting the dependency proceedings, but also further the best interests of dependent children, which is of paramount concern in dependency proceedings. The court thus concluded that the application of the general declaratory-relief statute (Code Civ. Proc. § 1060) was consistent with the overall purposes of the dependency system and was not made expressly made inapplicable by the Welfare and Institutions Code (163 Cal. App. 4th 627, 635-636) . In addition, the court held that the juvenile court has inherent power to grant declaratory relief in dependency proceedings. In sum, the court of appeal found that the juvenile court may grant declaratory relief in a case such as this, in which it was alleged that the department had a policy of filing untimely supplemental petitions in contravention of statutory requirements (163 Cal. App. 4th 627, 637) .

Californians for Native Salmon etc. Assn. v. Department of Forestry (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1419, 271 Cal. Rptr. 270 was brought to test the legality of numerous timber harvest plans (THPs) approved by the California Department of Forestry (CDF) under the requirements of the Z'berg-Nejedly Forest Practice Act of 1973 (Pub. Res. Code § 4511 et seq.). The proceeding commenced when Eel River Sawmills filed THP 520, which proposed cutting old growth and second growth trees. CDF approved THP 520 and plaintiffs/appellants challenged the approval by a combined petition for administrative mandate and complaint for injunctive and declaratory relief regarding CDF policies outside the approval of THP 520. Because Eel River Sawmills withdrew THP 520 during the pendency of the motion for a preliminary injunction, CDF demurred to the complaint on the grounds of mootness and lack of justiciable controversy warranting declaratory relief. Plaintiffs declined to amend and the trial court dismissed.

The court of appeal reversed, finding that plaintiffs/appellants had alleged a justiciable controversy. The court noted that allegations of a CDF policy (1) to issue responses after the notice of THP approval and (2) to fail to assess cumulative impacts of THPs stated a controversy regarding whether CDF policies violated applicable statutes, regulations and judicial decisions. Accordingly, the court found declaratory relief to be an appropriate remedy "to obtain judicial clarification of the parties' rights and obligations under applicable law" (221 Cal. App. 3d 1419, 1427) . Although CDF disputed that a series of THPs constituted an agency policy, the court of appeal reasoned that appellants had properly alleged policies "impermissibly made in violation of statutory mandates by an administrative agency and concomitant conduct consistent with the policies, but in violation of law" (221 Cal. App. 3d 1419, 1428) . The court went on to distinguish the instant complaint from a challenge of an administrative decision, which should be made in an action for administrative mandamus, and said, "Appellants, however, challenge not a specific order or decision, or even a series thereof, but an overarching, quasi-legislative policy set by an administrative agency. Such a policy is subject to review in an action for declaratory relief" (221 Cal. App. 3d 1419, 1429) .

East Bay Mun. Utility Dist. v. Dept. of Forestry & Fire Protection (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 1113, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 299 (EBMUD) , was the first declaratory relief action challenging an administrative agency policy of ignoring or violating applicable laws and regulations brought after such actions were authorized in Californians for Native Salmon etc. Assn. v. Department of Forestry (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1419, 271 Cal. Rptr. 270 . In EBMUD, a municipal utility district's expert advised it that upstream logging had caused fish kills at a hatchery operated by the district. The district brought its action for declaratory relief alleging that the State Department of Forestry and Fire Protection (CDF) was following a pattern and practice of improperly assessing the cumulative impacts of logging and improperly approving timber harvest plans (THPs) submitted by logging companies. The district also filed an action for a writ of mandamus challenging one particular THP. At trial of the declaratory relief action, the court considered evidence of CDF's policies and practices beyond the 39 THP's submitted by the district and found that the district had not proved a pattern and practice of unlawful conduct in the assessment of cumulative impacts.

On appeal, the district challenged the admission of evidence beyond the 39 THPs and argued that all evidence outside the THP records was "post hoc rationalizations for agency action" (43 Cal. App. 4th 1113, 1123) . The court of appeal rejected this argument, reasoning that after the fact justification for an agency decision is prohibited only when an environmental impact report has been approved without essential findings or when a project has begun without adequate compliance with the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA), Pub. Res. Code § 21050 et seq. (43 Cal. App. 4th 1113, 1123) . The court found that because EBMUD was seeking a declaration that present CDF practices were violative of CEQA, it was appropriate that the trial court took evidence beyond that contained in the THPs on how CDF analyzed impacts to the watershed area, including how the agency's practices and policies as of the time of trial had changed from those it had earlier employed (43 Cal. App. 4th 1113, 1123-1124) .

[j] Actions Against Public Entity

Hoyt v. Board of Civil Serv. Comm'r (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 399, 132 P.2d 804 was an action against a city's civil service board and others for a declaration of rights under the city charter provision relating to the civil service reserve list. Judgment was for defendants and plaintiff appealed. In support of the trial court's judgment, defendants on appeal contended that an action for declaratory relief is not available against a municipal corporation in California. Although affirming the judgment on the merits, the Supreme Court rejected this contention. The Supreme Court, citing cases, pointed out that declaratory relief has been sanctioned with respect to municipal corporations and counties or their agencies (21 Cal. 2d 399, 401) . Noting that Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 uses the word "person," the Court said that the general rule of statutory construction is that the word "person" should not be held to include any political subdivision of the state in the absence of an express indication that such was the legislative intent. The Court said that this rule is founded on the principle that statutory language should not be interpreted to apply to agencies of government, in the absence of a specific expression of legislative intent, where the result of such a construction would be to infringe sovereign governmental powers. The Court said, however, that if no impairment of sovereign powers would result, the reason underlying this rule of construction ceases to exist and the Legislature may properly be held to have intended that the statute apply to governmental bodies even though it used general statutory language only. The Court held that this "latter rule was the one which applied under the facts of plaintiff's case" (21 Cal. 2d 399, 402) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Oral Contract

Columbia Pictures Corp. v. DeToth (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 753, 161 P.2d 217 was an action for declaratory relief under an oral contract employing defendant as a motion picture director. The complaint alleged an actual controversy between the parties and sought judgment fixing the rights and duties of the parties under the contract, declaring the contract to be a valid and subsisting obligation, and granting such further relief as may be just and proper. Defendant's general and special demurrers were sustained without leave to amend and plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal. In reversing the judgment, the Supreme Court said that the trial court is empowered to determine disputed questions of fact in a declaratory relief action and hence the remedy is not limited to cases involving a written instrument. A disputed oral contract may properly be the subject of a declaratory judgment. It observed that the fact that the oral contract may be one of employment, involving personal services and hence, not specifically enforceable, does not necessarily render declaratory relief improper or unnecessary. This is merely a factor to be considered by the trial court in determining what declaration would be appropriate (26 Cal. 2d 753, 760-761) .

Howard v. Howard (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 308, 280 P.2d 802 was a declaratory relief action by plaintiff husband against his wife, who had been adjudicated an incompetent some 15 years after the parties had been married, and a bank as guardian of her estate, to secure a declaration of rights under an oral contract allegedly entered into between husband and wife prior to their marriage by the terms of which wife obligated herself to support husband for life in consideration of husband's quitting his then employment and devoting his time to wife's business affairs and property which husband alleged he did. The trial court determined that declaratory relief was not available to establish the existence of a contract but only to determine the rights of the parties under an existing contract and sustained the wife's demurrer to the amended complaint without leave to amend. The bank's demurrer to the original complaint had also been sustained without leave to amend. Judgment based on the two orders sustaining the demurrers without leave to amend was entered and plaintiff appealed. In reversing as to the wife and affirming as to the bank, the court said that it is well established that in declaratory relief actions the court may determine disputed questions of fact. In the instant case, plaintiff alleged that an oral contract was executed under which he claimed some legal rights which he asked the court to determine and declare. It stated that if the court may determine disputed questions of fact, it has [quoting Zimmer v. Gorelnik, 42 Cal. App. 2d 440, 447, 109 P.2d 34] , the power to take evidence of the existence of the contract on which the asserted rights are based, and that so far as Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 is concerned, it makes no difference whether such contract be written or oral. It held, therefore, that the court was in error in deciding that it was without power to determine the existence of the claimed and disputed contract between plaintiff and defendant (131 Cal. App. 2d 308, 313) .

[b] To Test Constitutionality of Statutes

Isbell v. Sonoma County (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 61, 145 Cal. Rptr. 368, 577 P.2d 188 was an action for a declaratory judgment that California's confession of judgment statutes [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1132-1134] were unconstitutional. On the basis of stipulated facts, the trial court, without receiving additional evidence, entered a declaratory judgment holding that a confession of judgment rendered in conformity with the cited statutes did not violate due process, and plaintiffs appealed. The Supreme Court reversed and remanded the cause with directions to enter a declaratory judgment in favor of plaintiffs determining that the confession of judgment procedure of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1132(a), 1133, 1134 does not conform to the due process standards of the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution by failing to make provision for valid waiver of the debtor's due process rights.

California v. Superior Court (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 237, 115 Cal. Rptr. 497, 524 P.2d 1281 was an original proceeding in mandate in the Supreme Court to review orders of the superior court in an action brought by two California corporations and a partnership. Petitioners in that action originally had been granted a permit to develop their coastal lands by a regional commission, but the permit was subsequently denied on appeal to the California Coastal Zone Conservation Commission. Plaintiffs then filed in the superior court a petition for writ of mandate asserting six causes of action against the commission including declaratory relief determining that (1) petitioners were entitled to the permit and that they had acquired a vested right to develop their property without a permit, and (2) that the California Coastal Zone Conservation Act of 1972 was unconstitutional. The commission's demurrers were overruled and petitioners' motion to compel answer to interrogatories was granted, and it was from these orders that the commission sought relief in the Supreme Court. The holding that plaintiffs' first cause of action for administrative mandate stated a cause of action, as did the fourth for a determination of the unconstitutionality of the coastal zone act and the fifth for injunctive relief, but that the balance of the pleading did not. With respect to the fourth cause of action, the Supreme Court, although stating that the purpose of that action essentially was to review the administrative action of the commission and that such review is properly brought under the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 rather than by means of declaratory relief, nevertheless, stated that declaratory relief is an appropriate remedy to challenge the constitutionality of the act and held that the trial court properly overruled the demurrer insofar as that cause of action sought a declaration that the act was facially unconstitutional (12 Cal. 3d 237, 251) .

[c] To Test Constitutionality or Validity of Ordinances

The procedural background of California v. Superior Court (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 237, 115 Cal. Rptr. 497, 524 P.2d 1281 is set forth in § 67.50[4][b]. In support of its holding that declaratory relief is appropriate to challenge the constitutionality of state laws, the Supreme Court observed with approval that a number of cases have held that declaratory relief is available to challenge the constitutionality of ordinances (12 Cal. 3d 237, 251) .

McCarthy v. Manhattan Beach (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 879, 264 P.2d 932 was an action by landowners seeking a declaration that a zoning ordinance restricting the use of their ocean front property to beach recreational purposes was null and void as applied to them. The complaint set forth two causes of action: (1) challenging the constitutionality of the ordinance insofar as it affected their land, claiming it violated the due process and equal protection clauses of both the state and federal Constitutions and that it resulted in a taking of their property for public use without compensation, and that the restrictive use was unreasonable, arbitrary, discriminatory, and an abuse of legislative discretion; and (2) challenging the validity of the ordinance on the ground that it was not passed in good faith, but, rather, pursuant to a scheme conceived by the mayor and city councilmen to depress the value of plaintiffs' property so that it could be acquired for public park purposes at the lowest possible price. Trial resulted in judgment for the defendant, and plaintiffs appealed. On appeal the Supreme Court, holding that the judgment was supported by the evidence and that the motive of the city officials in enacting the ordinance which was found to be reasonable, was immaterial, affirmed the judgment.

Los Angeles County v. Alhambra (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 469, 151 Cal. Rptr. 395 was an action by the county against the city for a declaration that certain portions of defendant's municipal ordinance relating to penalties for overtime parking were invalid and for an injunction to enjoin enforcement of the ordinance on the ground that the ordinance attempted to regulate an area of fines, bail, and citations for parked vehicles which area was completely regulated, and therefore preempted, by state law. The county's interest in the matter arose from the provisions of former Penal Code § 1463 entitling the county to 13 percent of the fines and forfeitures, which were to be deposited with the county, arising from arrests by city officers and employees. The fees collected under the challenged ordinance were deposited with the city treasurer. After a nonjury trial based on stipulated facts, the court entered judgment for plaintiff and defendant appealed. The court of appeal held that the trial court was correct in concluding that the matter was preempted by state law and affirmed the judgment.

Carty v. Ojai (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 329, 143 Cal. Rptr. 506 was an action by landowners for a declaration that two city ordinances changing the zoning on the property owned by them were void and that the prior zoning ordinances be restored. The subject ordinances proscribed use of the property as a shopping center and their adoption had the effect of nullifying a sale of five acres to a party on condition that it could be so used. The land originally was outside the city limits and was zoned commercial under a county ordinance. Under that zoning a shopping center was a permissible use. In 1965 defendant's city council sought to annex the property and other property in the same area, but consent of plaintiffs was required. Plaintiffs' consent was provisional on the zoning of the property C-1 which would have permitted use of the land for a shopping center. The city agreed and the property was annexed with a C-1 zoning. In 1971 (six years later) the city rezoned the property, which was still undeveloped, to CPD (service commercial), thereby prohibiting its use for a shopping center. The trial court entered judgment for plaintiffs declaring the two ordinances void, on two principal grounds: (1) the rezoning was arbitrary and discriminatory; and (2) the city was estopped. The court of appeal reversed, however, on the grounds that neither of the principal grounds relied on by the trial court was supported by law or fact, that the city properly exercised its legislative power in adopting the two ordinances, and that the city was not estopped from making the zone change.

Blue Star Line, Inc. v. City & County of San Francisco (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 429, 143 Cal. Rptr. 647 was an action by several steamship lines, steamship agents, and stevedore firms for a declaration that a city tax levied on payrolls of employers who conduct business within the city's territorial limits was void as applied to them, on various constitutional grounds. The matter was submitted on the pleadings, a written stipulation of facts, and selected depositions and documentary exhibits stipulated into evidence. The trial court entered a declaratory judgment denying the constitutional claims and the judgment was affirmed on appeal. [See also Western States Bankcard Ass'n v. City & County of San Francisco (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 208, 137 Cal. Rptr. 183, 561 P.2d 273 (upholding validity and applicability of same tax ordinance to nonstock, nonprofit California corporation, formed by various state and national banks to administer credit card system, against corporation's contention that it was entitled to immunity from city's gross receipts and payroll expense taxes under bank exemption set forth in Cal. Const., Art. XIII, § 27 and Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 23181, 23182); and A.B.C. Distrib. Co. v. City & County of San Francisco (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 566, 125 Cal. Rptr. 465, 542 P.2d 625 (upholding validity and applicability of same tax ordinance against contention of wholesale liquor and beer distributors that (1) Cal. Const., Art. XX, § 22 reserved to Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control exclusive power to collect license or occupation taxes on account of manufacture, importation, or sale of alcoholic beverages in state, (2) that Rev. & Tax. Code § 32010 provided that taxes imposed under Alcoholic Beverage Tax Law were in lieu of all local taxes on sale of alcoholic beverages, and (3) Rev. & Tax. Code § 17041.5 prohibited municipal corporations from levying or collecting any income tax)]..

Subriar v. Bakersfield (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 175, 130 Cal. Rptr. 853 was an action by the operator of an ambulance service seeking a declaration that a portion of a city ordinance requiring anyone desiring to operate an ambulance business within the city obtain a certificate of convenience and necessity from the city manager or city council, and a second action by the operator's attorney of record suing in his individual capacity as a citizen and taxpayer to have the same portion of the ordinance declared unconstitutional and to enjoin its enforcement under Code Civ. Proc. § 526a.

The operator had twice filed applications to obtain the certificate but each time refused to provide any information to show that public convenience and necessity required issuance of a certificate or license to another ambulance operator in the city. At the time of the first application, there was but a single such operator. Between the first and second application, another ambulance operator applied for the permit, provided information to show that the public convenience and necessity required another operator, and was issued a certificate. The trial court entered judgment declaring the ordinance unconstitutional and issued a permanent injunction enjoining its enforcement. The city appealed. With respect to the operator's action, the court of appeal held that declaratory relief did not lie because the operator had failed to exhaust his administrative remedies [see § 67.21]. The court held, however, that the constitutionality of the ordinance was properly raised by the attorney's cause of action. The court said that the constitutional question may be properly reached by an action for declaratory relief such as plaintiffs filed. But after rejecting various of plaintiffs' contentions, the court held that plaintiffs had failed at trial to produce any evidence that the ordinance, as applied to either of them, violated either the due process clauses or the equal protection clauses of the state and federal Constitutions and reversed the judgment (59 Cal. App. 3d 175, 195) .

Floresta, Inc. v. City Council of San Leandro (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 599, 12 Cal. Rptr. 182 was a proceeding in mandate to review the decision of a city council denying a zoning use permit pursuant to a zoning ordinance prohibiting the establishment of any business where liquor is served within 200 feet of the boundary of any residential district in the city and an action for declaratory relief seeking a judicial determination that the ordinance was unconstitutional. Judgment was entered denying the writ and declaring the ordinance constitutional, and petitioner appealed. In affirming the judgment and holding that petitioner had followed the proper procedure to present the constitutional question, the court of appeal observed that while mandamus is traditionally a procedure for reviewing the action of an administrative agency as to an alleged abuse of discretion, it may also be invoked to challenge the constitutionality of ordinances and regulations and that while declaratory relief is not an appropriate method to secure judicial review of administrative decisions, it is proper to test the constitutionality of a zoning ordinance. The court said that since mandamus and declaratory relief actions can be joined, appellant has properly sought a review of the agencies' decision in its petition for a writ of mandamus and a test of the constitutionality of the ordinance in its request for declaratory relief (190 Cal. App. 2d 599, 612) .

[d] To Interpret Charter Provision

LePage v. Oakland (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 689, 91 Cal. Rptr. 806 was a class action by a city police officer individually and on behalf of others similarly situated, and by the chairman of an association representing uniformed members of defendant city's police and fire departments. Plaintiff police officer had been refused credit by defendant city of time spent in service-connected disability retirement toward his years-in-service retirement eligibility and sought a declaratory judgment that he was entitled to such credit and a writ of mandate to compel the city to grant the credit. The determination of the issue depended on the interpretation to be given applicable provisions in the city charter and particularly on the meaning of the word "compensation," defined in the charter as monthly remuneration payable in cash, by the city, without deduction. The city contended that since the word meant only amounts paid without deduction, it was limited to salary since no deductions were made from disability retirement pay and as no salary was paid to a member in work-incurred disability retired status, the time so spent could not be counted and credited towards service retirement. The trial court rejected this contention and declared that plaintiff was entitled to the credit and issued a writ of mandate requiring the city to credit such time. On the city's appeal, the court of appeal agreed with the trial court's construction of the charter and affirmed the judgment.

[e] Actions Against Public Entity

California Physicians' Service v. Garrison (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 790, 172 P.2d 4 was an action by a nonprofit physicians' service corporation against the state Insurance Commissioner for a declaratory judgment that its activities in providing health service benefits did not render it engaged in the insurance business within the meaning of the state regulatory statutes. Judgment was for plaintiff and defendant Insurance Commissioner appealed, contending, among other things, that in the absence of specific statutory authority for declaratory relief against the state or a state office, the action for declaratory relief could not be maintained. The Supreme Court in rejecting this argument and affirming the judgment, held that inasmuch as the Insurance Commissioner was authorized by statute to prosecute and defend all suits and legal proceedings, the action could be maintained. The Court stated that where a government body is subject to suit, Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 does not interfere with rights of sovereignty (28 Cal. 2d 790, 800) .

Grier v. Alameda-Contra Costa Transit Dist. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 325, 127 Cal. Rptr. 525 was an action by bus drivers on behalf of themselves and others similarly situated and their union against the district, a public entity, for declaratory relief and damages, alleging that the district's enforcement of a provision of a collective bargaining agreement requiring drivers who arrived late to work to work without pay for periods in excess of the time actually lost through tardiness, violated a state statute which did not on its face apply to public entities. The trial court ruled that the statute was not applicable to the district and entered judgment for defendant. Plaintiffs appealed. The court of appeal acknowledged the general rule that in the absence of express words to the contrary, public entities are not included within the general words of a statute. The court, however, added that this broad statement has received an application that excludes governmental agencies from the operation of general statutory provisions only if their inclusion would result in an infringement on sovereign governmental powers and that where no impairment of sovereign powers would result, the reason underlying the general rule of construction ceases to exist and the Legislature may properly be held to have intended that the statute apply to governmental bodies even though it used general statutory language only. Concluding that application of the statute in question to the transit district would not impinge on the district's sovereign powers, the court reversed the judgment.

Tehachapi-Cummings County Water Dist. v. Armstrong (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 992, 122 Cal. Rptr. 918 was an action by water district against certain landowners, including the State of California, for an adjudication of the rights of the parties in the underground waters of a particular basin and for other relief. Judgment was entered declaring the rights of the parties, but only the state appealed. The state's contention that it was exempt from suit under the doctrine of sovereign immunity was held by the court of appeal to be without merit. The court pointed out that under Cal. Const., Art. III, § 5, suits may be brought against the state in such manner and in such courts as shall be directed by law and that this provision provides for legislative consent to suit (49 Cal. App. 3d 992, 999) . The court said that general statutory provisions giving remedies to claimants but not expressly excluding governmental entities have been held to provide remedies against them, and that the declaratory relief statute comes within the rule that general statutory language is applicable to the state absent legislative intent to the contrary. The court, however, reversed the judgment in other parts and remanded with directions (49 Cal. App. 3d 992, 1000) .

Western Title Guar. Co. v. Sacramento & San Joaquin Drainage Dist. (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 815, 45 Cal. Rptr. 578 was an action by the title company to reform a deed given by its predecessor in interest to defendant district and defendant State Board of Reclamation, to remove a cloud on and quiet title to land contained in the deed, and for declaratory relief. The deed given to defendant district was for an easement and right-of-way for levee construction on the land and plaintiff's predecessor in interest was paid a specified sum in consideration. Judgment was rendered for plaintiff reforming the deed and quieting plaintiff's title. Defendants appealed. On appeal defendants contended, among other things, that the state may not be sued in declaratory relief. In rejecting this contention, the court said that the district is a state agency and as such has whatever immunity from suit the state itself has. It pointed out that by statute the district may sue and be sued, that the deed was a contract between the district and the grantor which inured to the benefit of the grantor's successors in interest, that the state when it makes a contract with an individual is liable for its breach in like manner as an individual, and that the doctrine of governmental immunity does not apply (235 Cal. App. 2d 815, 820) . The court explained that declaratory relief and quiet title are procedural devices and that if a person has entered into a contract with the state which results in the imposition of rights and duties on each side there is no reason why those rights and duties may not be enforced no matter what procedural device is selected. Quoting from Hoyt v. Board of Civil Serv. Comm'rs (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 399, 403, 132 P.2d 804 , the court of appeal said that where governmental bodies are already subject to suit, procedural statutes may apply to such bodies without causing any interference with rights of sovereignty (235 Cal. App. 2d 815, 823) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 6 Chapters 60-69 COSTS---to---DECLARATORY RELIEF
CHAPTER 67 DECLARATORY RELIEF
PART II. FORMS

6-67 California Points & Authorities § 67.51

§ 67.51 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10] for Declaratory Relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]--Facts Alleged Show That Plaintiff Comes Within Exception to Rule That Administrative Remedies Must Be Exhausted Before Seeking Judicial Relief

[1] FORM Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10] for Declaratory Relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]--Facts Alleged Show That Plaintiff Comes Within Exception to Rule That Administrative Remedies Must Be Exhausted Before Seeking Judicial Relief

[Caption. See § 67.50.]

A PLAINTIFF NEED NOT EXHAUST HIS/HER/ITS ADMINISTRATIVE REMEDIES BEFORE SEEKING JUDICIAL RELIEF IF _____ [state exception set out in Paragraph B of form, e.g., TO PURSUE THE ADMINISTRATIVE REMEDY WOULD RESULT IN IRREPARABLE HARM].

A. Exceptions to Exhaustion Doctrine. The doctrine of exhaustion of administrative remedies has not hardened into inflexible dogma but contains its own exceptions (Ogo Associates v. City of Torrance (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 830, 834, 112 Cal. Rptr. 761).

[EITHER]

B. Controversy Outside Jurisdiction of Administrative Agency. The doctrine of exhaustion of administrative remedies does not apply where the controversy lies outside the jurisdiction of the administrative agency (Ogo Associates v. City of Torrance (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 830, 834, 112 Cal. Rptr. 761).

[OR]

B. Irreparable Harm. The doctrine of exhaustion of administrative remedies does not apply where to pursue such remedies would result in irreparable harm (Ogo Associates v. City of Torrance (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 830, 834, 112

Cal. Rptr. 761).

[OR]

B. Administrative Remedy Inadequate. The doctrine of exhaustion of administrative remedies does not apply where the administrative agency cannot grant an adequate remedy (Andal v. City of Stockton (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 86, 91-94, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 34 ; see Ogo Associates v. City of Torrance (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 830, 834, 112 Cal. Rptr. 761).

[OR]

B. Administrative Decision Known. The doctrine of exhaustion of administrative remedies does not apply where the aggrieved party can positively state that the administrative agency's decision in the particular matter would be adverse to him or her or it (Ogo Associates v. City of Torrance (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 830, 834, 112 Cal. Rptr. 761).

[OR]

B. Statute (or Ordinance) Unconstitutional on Its Face. The doctrine of exhaustion of administrative remedies does not apply to an action seeking a judicial declaration that a statute (or ordinance) is unconstitutional on its face, as opposed to unconstitutional in its application (California v. Superior Court (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 237, 250-251, 115 Cal. Rptr. 497, 524 P.2d 1281).

[OR]

B. Action to Enforce Public Rights. The doctrine of exhaustion of administrative remedies does not apply to a private person who was not a party to the administrative proceeding and who seeks judicial relief from the administrative action by way of enforcing rights which he or she or it holds as a member of the affected public (Environmental Law Fund, Inc. v. Town of Corte Madera (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 105, 114, 122 Cal. Rptr. 282).

[OR]

B. No Administrative Remedy. The doctrine of exhaustion of administrative remedies does not apply where there is no administrative remedy to exhaust (Diaz v. Quitoriano (1969) 268 Cal. App. 2d 807, 812, 74 Cal. Rptr. 358), and the doctrine does not require that a party exhaust all possible alternative remedies before seeking declaratory relief (Imperial County Dep't of Soc. Servs. v. J.E. (In re Claudia E.) (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 627, 632-634, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 722).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint for declaratory relief on the ground the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that plaintiff has failed to exhaust administrative remedies § 67.22 where plaintiff's case comes within an exception to that rule or where the administrative remedy is not available to plaintiff. The alternative exceptions set out in Paragraph B of the form list the major exceptions to the general jurisdictional rule requiring a litigant to have exhausted his or her administrative remedies. For a discussion of other exceptions to this rule, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law (Matthew Bender).

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Uses

The form may also with appropriate modifications be used in opposition to a motion for judgment on the pleadings, a motion to dismiss, or a motion for summary judgment made on the ground that plaintiff has failed to exhaust administrative remedies, or in any other proceeding in which this objection is made.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exceptions to Exhaustion Doctrine

Ogo Associates v. City of Torrance (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 830, 112 Cal. Rptr. 761 was a proceeding in mandate, rather than a declaratory relief action, by which plaintiffs sought to compel defendant city to issue plaintiff Ogo Associates a permit to build a federally financed 86-unit apartment project for persons with low incomes. The property in question for eight years had been zoned R3 which would have allowed construction of the apartments. Ogo Associates obtained its financing and applied for a building permit, but before the permit could be issued the city council enacted an emergency ordinance imposing a moratorium on building permits in the area that included the proposed low income apartments. Evidence showed that the area was rezoned in order to prevent plaintiff's building project. The city council subsequently enacted a second moratorium on the issuance of building permits in that area, and shortly thereafter it adopted a permanent ordinance rezoning the area ML, a classification which limited land use to light manufacturing purposes only. From a judgment denying relief on grounds among others that plaintiff had failed to exhaust its administrative remedies by applying to the city council for a variance from the rezoning ordinance, plaintiffs appealed. In reversing the judgment on the ground the case came within an exception to the exhaustion of administrative remedies doctrine, the court of appeal said that the doctrine of exhaustion of administrative remedies has not hardened into inflexible dogma but contains its own exceptions citing prior California decisions. The court listed such exceptions as: (1) the subject matter of the controversy lies outside the administrative agency's jurisdiction; (2) when pursuit of an administrative remedy would result in irreparable harm; (3) when the administrative agency cannot grant an adequate remedy; and (4) when the aggrieved party can positively state what the administrative agency's decision in his particular case would be (37 Cal. App. 3d 830, 834) .

[b] Controversy Outside Jurisdiction of Administrative Agency

The factual background and statement of the court in Ogo Associates v. City of Torrance (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 830, 112 Cal. Rptr. 761 are set forth in § 67.51[3][a]. The statement of the court in that case applicable to this point was dictum.

[c] Irreparable Harm

The factual background and statement of the court in Ogo Associates v. City of Torrance (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 830, 112 Cal. Rptr. 761 are set forth in § 67.51[3][a]. The statement of the court in that case applicable to this point was dictum.

[d] Administrative Remedy Inadequate

Andal v. City of Stockton (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 86, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 34 , involved a municipal ordinance that imposed a fee for use of the city's 911 emergency system. The plaintiffs were cell-phone companies and customers who sought a declaratory judgment invalidating the ordinance on constitutional grounds. The plaintiffs had paid the fees but did not pursue any administrative remedies before filing suit. The trial court sustained the defendant city's demurrer, holding that the plaintiffs had failed to exhaust their administrative remedies--specifically, the ordinance's administrative procedure for claiming refunds of fees paid.

The court of appeal reversed. The court held that the plaintiffs were not required to exhaust the refund procedure set up by the ordinance, because that procedure was inadequate to address the plaintiffs' constitutional challenge and request for a declaration that the entire ordinance was invalid. The ordinance provided only a procedure for obtaining refunds of fees incorrectly or illegally paid; it did not provide a mechanism for a comprehensive constitutional challenge to the entire structure under which the ordinance operated. Under the circumstances, the court of appeal concluded that the ordinance provided an inadequate administrative remedy, and therefore the exhaustion doctrine did not apply (137 Cal. App. 4th 86, 91-94) .

The factual background and statement of the court in Ogo Associates v. City of Torrance (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 830, 112 Cal. Rptr. 761 are set forth in § 67.51[3][a]. The statement of the court in that case applicable to this point was dictum.

[e] Administrative Decision Known

The factual background of Ogo Associates v. City of Torrance (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 830, 112 Cal. Rptr. 761 is set forth in § 67.51[3][a]. In reversing the judgment denying relief, the court of appeal pointed out that an exception to the exhaustion of administrative remedies exists where the aggrieved party can positively state what the administrative agency's decision in his particular case would be. Examining plaintiff's case, the court found that they could positively state that the city council would not have granted them a variance. The evidence was overwhelming that the city council rezoned the area because plaintiffs had planned to build their project there and that it was inconceivable the city council would grant a variance for the very project whose prospective existence brought about the enactment of rezoning. Not being a situation where the possibility of relief from a general policy exists because of the unusual circumstances of a particular case but instead a situation where the particular case gave birth to the ordinance's general policy, the court concluded that plaintiffs were not required to have pursued futile administrative remedies in order to invoke the jurisdiction of the courts.

[f] Statute (or Ordinance) Unconstitutional on Its Face

California v. Superior Court (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 237, 115 Cal. Rptr. 497, 524 P.2d 1281 was an original writ proceeding in the Supreme Court arising out of a superior court action by developers against the California Coastal Zone Conservation Commission. The developers had originally been granted a permit to develop their coastal lands by a regional commission but the permit was subsequently denied by the state commission on appeal to it. The developers then filed their superior court action for a writ of mandate (both traditional and administrative), for declaratory and injunctive relief, and for damages for inverse condemnation. They also attacked the constitutionality of the California Coastal Zone Conservation Act of 1972 [Pub. Res. Code §§ 27000-27650], both on its face and as applied, pursuant to which act the state commission had been formed. The state commission's general and special demurrers were overruled and the commission filed the present proceeding in the Supreme Court. In issuing a peremptory writ of mandate directing the trial court to vacate its order and enter a new order in conformity with the Supreme Court's opinion, the Supreme Court, insofar as the constitutional attack on the act was concerned, held that declaratory relief was an appropriate remedy by which to seek a judicial declaration that the act was facially unconstitutional. Although not ruling on the constitutionality of the act itself, the Court in rejecting the argument that the challenge should have been made before the commission said that it would be heroic to compel a party to appear before an administrative body to challenge its very existence and to expect a dispassionate hearing before its preponderantly lay membership on the constitutionality of the statute establishing its status and functions. It concluded that plaintiffs should have been permitted to challenge the constitutionality of the act at the proceeding even though it had failed to make the challenge before the commission at the time it applied for a permit (12 Cal. 3d 237, 251) .

[g] Action to Enforce Public Rights

Environmental Law Fund, Inc. v. Town of Corte Madera (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 105, 122 Cal. Rptr. 282 was a combined proceeding in mandate and action for declaratory relief by a nonprofit corporation and two individual residents of defendant town against the town and real estate developers to determine the validity of both a conditional use permit issued to the developers by the town's planning commission to develop their 75 acres of land within the town limits and the commission's approval of the developers' tentative subdivision map of the area affected by the permit. The planning commission had granted the permit after at least two public hearings on the matter and after submission to it of a report of the potential impact of the proposed development prepared by a qualified firm of planning consultants employed by the town and paid for by the developers. However, plaintiffs did not take advantage of a municipal code provision authorizing appeal from the planning commission's action to the town council. The trial court in its judgment declared that the permit violated Gov. Code § 65853, establishing procedures for changes in zoning and that the municipal code provisions authorizing the permits conflicted with state law and, therefore, it ordered the town to rescind its action with respect to the permit and map. Defendants and real parties in interest appealed. In affirming the judgment the court of appeal, in answer to appellants' arguments that plaintiffs had failed to exhaust their administrative remedies by not appealing the decision of the planning commission to the town council, pointed out that plaintiffs, rather than suing to enforce privately held rights, were asserting rights they held as members of the public, or which the individual plaintiffs held as members of that substantial segment of the public which included the residents and property owners of the town, and that to apply the exhaustion doctrine would result in barring the public from redressing a public wrong in perpetuity and insulating the zoning action from judicial review. Since this result would be inconsistent with principles of waiver or res judicata and totally disserve the public interest, the court held that the failure of a private person to exhaust an administrative remedy against governmental action taken in an administrative proceeding to which he was not a party does not bar him from seeking judicial relief from such action by way of enforcing rights which he holds as a member of the affected public.

[h] No Administrative Remedy

Diaz v. Quitoriano (1969) 268 Cal. App. 2d 807, 74 Cal. Rptr. 358 was a proceeding in mandate, rather than an action for declaratory relief. Petitioners Diaz, on behalf of themselves and the class they represented, sought issuance of a writ of mandate directed to a county welfare department and its director requiring them to advise all persons who had been denied benefits of their rights to apply for benefits under the categorical aid programs administered by the State Department of Social Welfare and to advise such persons of their right to request an administrative hearing and to appeal. The county department had not been giving this advice to applicants nor petitioners in denying their application for benefits, although the county department was required to do so by state law, which also gave the state department various powers, including legal action, to compel such compliance. The superior court, without issuing an alternative writ, dismissed the petition after it ordered a special hearing to determine the question of its jurisdiction and found that it lacked such jurisdiction because petitioners had failed to exhaust their administrative remedies by taking an administrative appeal from the denial of benefits. The court of appeal, in reversing the order denying the petition, pointed out that no administrative remedy existed to secure the relief sought and that the order sought was mandated by statute. The court said that the rule that a party must exhaust his administrative remedies prior to seeking relief in the courts has no application in a situation where an administrative remedy is unavailable or inadequate (268 Cal. App. 2d 807, 812) . As to the power of the state department to compel the county department to comply with state law, the court explained that it is true that if the department determines there is a failure on the part of the county to comply with applicable provisions of the code or established regulations, Welf. & Inst. Code § 10605 gives the department discretion to withhold state and federal funds from a county, or take over administration of the county social services program, or bring an action in mandamus or such other action in court as may be appropriate to compel compliance. However, this was not an administrative remedy within the exhaustion of remedies doctrine. It reasoned that California courts have repeatedly held that an official body's mere possession of a continuing supervisory or investigatory power does not itself suffice to afford an administrative remedy unless the statute or regulation under which that power is exercised establishes clearly defined machinery for the submission, evaluation, and resolution of complaints by aggrieved parties (268 Cal. App. 2d 807, 812-813) .

Imperial County Dep't of Soc. Servs. v. J.E. (In re Claudia E.) (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 627, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 722 , was a juvenile dependency proceeding instituted by a county department of social services after it took two children into protective custody. In the proceeding, the children filed a motion seeking a declaratory judgment that the department's procedure of filing a supplemental dependency petition more than 48 hours after removal of the subject child was illegal (see Welf. & Inst. Code § 387). The trial court denied the motion for declaratory relief, reasoning that before seeking declaratory relief, the children or their counsel should have sought a writ of habeas corpus. The trial court said that to obtain declaratory relief, "you need to exhaust any possible remedies and that would have been the writ of habeas corpus" (163 Cal. App. 4th 627, 632) .

The court of appeal reversed, rejecting the trial court's holding that exhaustion of the possible remedy of habeas corpus was a prerequisite to declaratory relief. The court of appeal explained that the remedy of declarative relief is cumulative and does not restrict any other remedy (Code Civ. Proc. § 1062). Therefore, the mere circumstance that another remedy is available is an insufficient ground for refusing declaratory relief. Only when a trial court believes that more effective relief can and should be obtained by another procedure, and that for that reason declaratory relief will not serve a useful purpose, is the court justified in refusing declaratory relief because of the availability of another remedy (163 Cal. App. 4th 627, 633-634) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Exceptions to Exhaustion Doctrine

Greener v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 1028, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 539 was a declaratory and injunctive relief action that challenged the constitutionality of legislation amending the Labor Code to terminate the power of the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board to award attorneys' fees and allow attorneys' fee liens for nonattorneys. The Board moved to quash service of the summons and to dismiss the action on the ground that, under Labor Code § 5955, only the Supreme Court and the court of appeal had personal and subject matter jurisdiction. The trial court granted plaintiffs' motion on the grounds of lack of subject matter jurisdiction. The court of appeal reversed, on the grounds that the action challenged no order of the Board and did not call for the superior court to interfere with the Board's duties.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment of the court of appeal, concluding that, while Labor Code § 5955 did not preclude plaintiffs from obtaining personal jurisdiction over the Board, it did prevent the superior court from having subject matter jurisdiction over the constitutional challenge. The Supreme Court noted in dictum, however, that such challenge could be brought by plaintiffs in the court of appeal under a petition for writ of mandate pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1085, because it involved the constitutional validity of a statute (6 Cal. 4th 1028, 1045-1046) .

[b] Controversy Outside Jurisdiction of Administrative Agency

Los Angeles County v. Department of Social Welfare (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 455, 260 P.2d 41 was a proceeding in mandate, rather than an action for declaratory relief, by the county to compel the Department of Social Welfare to set aside orders with respect to the administration of county relief to indigents and to refrain from withholding state and federal funds due the county. Certain persons receiving monthly payments of old age security or needy blind aid complained to the State Social Welfare Board that the county was improperly treating such assistance as family income when computing the amount of county relief to be allowed to their indigent spouses. The board held a hearing after which it ordered the county to discontinue the practice and in the event of noncompliance directed the Department of Social Welfare to withhold from the county part of the state and federal funds to which the county would normally be entitled as reimbursement for the cost of aid to the aged and blind. The county had made a special appearance at the hearing for the sole purpose of contesting the jurisdiction of the board and did not apply for a rehearing, but commenced the mandate proceeding against the department and the board. The trial court granted the writ. In affirming the judgment, the Supreme Court said that it was not necessary for the county to apply for a rehearing before the board as a condition precedent to the maintenance of this proceeding since, as was contended by the county, the state board lacked jurisdiction over the subject matter of the proceedings (41 Cal. 2d 455, 457, 459) .

[c] Irreparable Harm

Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 109 P.2d 942 did not involve declaratory relief but was an original proceeding in prohibition sought to restrain the Court of Appeal of the Third Appellate District from enforcing a writ of mandate and temporary restraining order that court had issued against a state commission. The Supreme Court issued a writ of prohibition restraining the appellate court from taking any steps to enforce its writ of mandate and temporary restraining order on the ground that the court was acting in excess of its jurisdiction since the petitioners in that proceeding had not exhausted their administrative remedies prior to their seeking relief in the court of appeal. The Supreme Court, although acknowledging the exception to be irrelevant to the case before it, nevertheless found a right in California decisions to equitable relief to protect the property rights of a petitioner from irreparable injury immediately threatened by a void administrative act. It added that the soundness of this proposition could not be questioned (17 Cal. 2d 280, 296-297) .

Mountain View Chamber of Commerce v. Mountain View (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 82, 143 Cal. Rptr. 441 was an action by a chamber of commerce, four individual sign owners, a corporate sign owner, and a restaurant to enjoin enforcement of defendant's sign ordinance and for a declaration that the ordinance was unconstitutional as applied. The trial court denied the preliminary injunction and sustained defendant's demurrer to the complaint without leave to amend on the ground plaintiff's had failed to exhaust their administrative remedies. Although the court of appeal affirmed the judgment on the ground plaintiffs did not come within any of the exceptions to the exhaustion requirement, it nevertheless acknowledged that an exception to the exhaustion rule exists where the party would suffer irreparable injury were the administrative remedy required to be exhausted before the party could seek judicial relief. The court held plaintiffs did not, on the facts relied on, bring themselves within this exception since they had some nine and a half years in which to comply with the ordinance or pursue the administrative remedy (by applying for a variance) and had failed to do so (77 Cal. App. 3d 82, 89-91) .

Greenblatt v. Munro (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 596, 326 P.2d 929 was a proceeding in administrative mandate, rather than a declaratory relief action, to review an order suspending and revoking a liquor license. The licensee had been charged with and found by the administrative agency to have violated an administrative rule prohibiting licensees from knowingly permitting female employees to solicit alcoholic beverages and Penal Code § 303a prohibiting the loitering on the premises to beg for alcoholic drinks. The trial court denied the writ and the licensee appealed. On appeal the licensee argued, inter alia, that the evidence did not support the finding that he had violated the cited Penal Code section. Respondent contended that since the licensee had not raised this issue before the administrative agency or before the lower court, he had not exhausted his administrative remedies and was foreclosed from raising the objection in the appellate court. In rejecting this argument, the court of appeal said that the rule that questions not raised in the trial court will not be considered on appeal is subject to exception where fundamental error or gross irregularity is involved and that the exhaustion of remedies rule likewise has its exceptions. One exception it noted was where irreparable injury will result if an administrative hearing is permitted to proceed and its orders made effective without prior judicial interference (161 Cal. App. 2d 596, 605-606) . In reversing the judgment with directions as to the count revoking the license on a dual finding of violation of the rule and the code section, which was patently inapplicable to the evidence presented, the court explained that the penalty applied for the count III violation was suspension of petitioner's license for 60 days while the penalty which had been applied to the court V violation of both the rule and Penal Code section for identically the same type of violation as that in count III was revocation of petitioner's license, the severest penalty that the department could impose. Thus, not to apply the exception to the exhaustion of remedy rule would cause petitioner to suffer the extreme penalty of losing his license, when if the true situation were known to the department, he might not have to do so (161 Cal. App. 2d 596, 606-607) .

[d] Administrative Remedy Inadequate

Endler v. Schutzbank (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 162, 65 Cal. Rptr. 297, 436 P.2d 297 was an action for declaratory, injunctive, and mandatory relief against the Commissioner of Corporations for interference with plaintiff's employment opportunities. After nearly 15 years in the finance business, plaintiff found himself unable to obtain employment in his chosen field because the commissioner having labeled him a criminal on the basis of unproved accusations, threatened disciplinary action against anyone who might employ him. The commissioner did initiate license revocation proceedings against plaintiff's most recent employer, who had refused to discharge plaintiff on request, and terminated those proceedings only after plaintiff had been discharged. Shortly thereafter, the commissioner offered to conduct an "informal hearing" on the charges against plaintiff with the understanding that the informal hearing was not undertaken pursuant to any specified statute, was not to be in accordance with administrative procedures applicable to formal hearings, and would be without prejudice to the rights of the parties to it. The commissioner indicated that unless he were favorably disposed after such a hearing, he would continue to threaten disciplinary action against any licensees who employed plaintiff. Plaintiff did not agree to subject himself to this proposed hearing, and the commissioner then embarked on a policy of directing its licensees not to employ plaintiff on threat of revocation or suspension of their personal property broker's license with the result that plaintiff was unable to obtain employment anywhere in the state with such a licensed broker or any other licensee of the Commissioner of Corporations. Plaintiff alleged that he would suffer irreparable injury if the commissioner were permitted to persist in directing others not to employ him. The commissioner demurred to the complaint on the ground it failed to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. The demurrer was sustained without leave to amend and the action dismissed. On appeal, the Supreme Court held that the complaint stated a case for declaratory and injunctive relief. In answer to the argument that plaintiff had failed to exhaust administrative remedies, the court stated that administrative review does not constitute the sort of "remedy" which a party must exhaust before invoking the assistance of the courts unless the statute or regulation under which such review is offered establishes clearly defined machinery for the submission, evaluation, and resolution of complaints by aggrieved parties. The court added that the proffered hearing was a "heads-I-win, tails-you-lose procedure" in that if the hearing confirmed the commissioner's suspicions he would continue to induce brokers not to hire plaintiff and if the hearing vindicated the plaintiff the commissioner reserved the right to disregard it and proceed as though plaintiff had been found guilty. The court observed that it could not reconcile such a procedure with the Fourteenth Amendment's requirement of due process (68 Cal. 2d 162, 168) .

Eye Dog Foundation v. State Bd. of Guide Dogs for the Blind (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 536, 63 Cal. Rptr. 21, 432 P.2d 717 was an action for declaratory relief as to the constitutionality of statutes concerning guide dogs for the blind and for injunctive relief prohibiting enforcement of the statutes and interference with operation of plaintiff school which was engaged in training seeing eye dogs. It was contended that the subject statutes were unconstitutional both on their face and as applied to plaintiff school. The trial court found all the statutes constitutional, save a portion of one, and entered judgment accordingly, and both parties appealed. It appeared that an administrative investigation had been commenced into plaintiff's operations under the statutes before plaintiff filed its complaint but that no accusation had been filed against it until some two and one-half months after the action was commenced. Issues were thereafter joined in that proceeding by plaintiff's filing a notice of defense. Although defendants suggested no administrative remedy which plaintiff could have initiated, it urged nevertheless that plaintiff had no standing to initiate the instant litigation because it had not exhausted its administrative remedies. In reply the Supreme Court stated that an investigation is not the equivalent of a formal accusation compelling plaintiff to seek relief from the administrative body before recourse to the courts, that since jurisdiction had not attached to the administrative body at the time plaintiff filed its complaint, plaintiff was not required to exhaust its remedies before that body. The Court found this to be particularly true since the legislation from which the board derives its existence was challenged in the proceeding and the trial court had properly taken jurisdiction of the controversy. The Court concluded, however, that all the statutes complied with constitutional requirements and were valid and reversed that portion of the judgment declaring a part of one statute unconstitutional (67 Cal. 2d 536, 543-544) .

[e] Administrative Decision Known

The factual background of Mountain View Chamber of Commerce v. Mountain View (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 82, 143 Cal. Rptr. 441 is set forth in § 67.51[4][c]. In affirming the judgment of dismissal, the court of appeal, discussing Ogo Associates v. City of Torrance (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 830, 112 Cal. Rptr. 761 , nevertheless acknowledged that an exception to the exhaustion rule exists where the pursuit of such remedy would be futile, that is, where it can be positively shown that the administrative agency's decision would be adverse to plaintiff (77 Cal. App. 3d 82, 91-93) .

Van Gammeren v. Fresno (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 235, 124 P.2d 621 was an action for injunctive, rather than for declaratory relief, to enjoin enforcement of a milk ordinance. The ordinance made it unlawful for any person to sell or deliver pasteurized milk or cream within defendant city unless it had been pasteurized within the city. The plaintiffs sold milk and cream within an area which was to be annexed to the city, but their pasteurization plant was located outside the city limits and outside the area to be annexed. The city's chief milk inspector notified plaintiffs that as soon as the annexation proceedings became final they would be required to discontinue delivery of milk to their customers within the annexed district for the sole reason that their pasteurization plants were not within the city limits. The area was annexed after commencement of the injunction action. Judgment was for plaintiffs, and defendants appealed arguing, inter alia, that the action had been premature because plaintiffs had failed to exhaust their administrative remedies under an ordinance giving them the right to apply for a permit and to appeal to the city authorities if their applications were denied. In reply to this argument, the court of appeal pointed out that the milk ordinance was prohibitive and prevented issuance of permits to plaintiffs and that since defendants had been enforcing the terms of the ordinance, had expressed the intention of enforcing them against plaintiffs, and were bound by them, if they were constitutional, the trial court was not required to assume that they would violate the terms of the ordinance before they were held void by the court. The court explained that when confronted by that ordinance which controlled the action of the city officials, it was apparent that applications for permits and appeals from adverse decisions would have been useless acts; the law does not require useless acts from litigants as prerequisites to seeking relief from the courts (51 Cal. App. 2d 235, 239-240) .

[f] Statute (or Ordinance) Unconstitutional on Its Face

The factual background of Mountain View Chamber of Commerce v. Mountain View (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 82, 143 Cal. Rptr. 441 is set forth in § 67.51[4][c]. In affirming the judgment of dismissal, the court of appeal, although holding that the doctrine of exhaustion of administrative remedies applies to constitutional challenges of zoning ordinances, nevertheless, acknowledged the existence of an exception to this rule where the ordinance is challenged as being unconstitutional on its face as opposed to unconstitutional as applied (77 Cal. App. 3d 82, 93-96) .

[g] No Administrative Remedy

The factual background of Environmental Law Fund, Inc. v. Corte Madera (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 105, 122 Cal. Rptr. 282 is set forth in § 67.51[3][g]. With respect to plaintiffs' attack on the planning commission's approval of the tentative subdivision map, the developers on appeal argued that since the municipal code authorized appeal to the town council and plaintiffs had failed to appeal, they had failed to exhaust their administrative remedy barring judicial action as to that matter. The court of appeal responded by noting the trial courts' conclusion that respondents had done all that was required of them in pursuing their administrative remedies before attacking the subdivision map in court. It went on to hold that the municipal code authorizing the appeal by any interested party was preempted by former Gov. Code § 11552 [now see Gov. Code § 66452.5], which authorized local agencies to adopt ordinances permitting "any interested person adversely affected" to file a complaint with the governing body concerning any decision of the advisory agency, and since plaintiffs were not such persons, they had no administrative remedy available to them, and hence, the trial court properly considered the matter (49 Cal. App. 3d 105, 114) . [See also Friends of Lake Arrowhead v. Board of Supervisors (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 497, 503-508, 113 Cal. Rptr. 539 (mandate proceeding)].

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 6 Chapters 60-69 COSTS---to---DECLARATORY RELIEF
CHAPTER 67 DECLARATORY RELIEF
PART II. FORMS

6-67 California Points & Authorities § 67.52

§ 67.52 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10] for Declaratory Relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]--Complaint Sufficiently Alleges Action for Declaratory Relief

[1] FORM Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10] for Declaratory Relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]--Complaint Sufficiently Alleges Action for Declaratory Relief

[Caption. See § 67.50.]

THE COMPLAINT ALLEGES FACTS SHOWING THE EXISTENCE OF AN ACTUAL CONTROVERSY BETWEEN THE PARTIES RELATING TO THEIR RESPECTIVE LEGAL RIGHTS AND DUTIES AS AUTHORIZED BY SECTION 1060 OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE AND REQUESTS THAT THESE RIGHTS AND DUTIES BE ADJUDGED BY THE COURT. IT, THEREFORE, STATES FACTS SUFFICIENT TO CONSTITUTE A CAUSE OF ACTION FOR DECLARATORY RELIEF.

A. Sufficiency of Complaint. A complaint for declaratory relief is legally sufficient if it sets forth facts showing the existence of an actual controversy relating to the legal rights and duties of the respective parties in the situations provided in Section 1060 of the Code of Civil Procedure and requests that these rights and duties be adjudged by the court (Maguire v. Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc'y (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 719, 728, 146 P.2d 673 ; see Environmental Def. Project v. County of Sierra (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 877, 885-888, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 474). If the complaint alleges sufficient facts to constitute an actual controversy, a general demurrer is not the appropriate means of testing the merits of the controversy, since the plaintiff is entitled to a declaration of the parties' rights, even if that declaration turns out to be adverse to the plaintiff (Levi v. O'Connell (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 700, 706, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 691).

B. When Declaratory Relief Must Be Granted. Declaratory relief must be granted when the facts justifying that course are sufficiently alleged in the complaint. That is, when a complaint sets forth facts and circumstances showing that a declaratory adjudication is entirely appropriate, the trial court may not properly refuse to assume jurisdiction, and, if it does enter a dismissal, it will be directed by an appellate court to entertain the action (Columbia Pictures Corp. v. DeToth (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 753, 762, 161 P.2d 217).

[Optional] D. Applicability of Rule of Liberal Construction of Pleadings. Declaratory relief is a broad remedy and the rule that pleadings are to be liberally construed, Section 452 of the Code of Civil Procedure, is particularly applicable to one for declaratory relief (Tiburon v. Northwestern P. R. Co. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 160, 170, 84 Cal. Rptr. 469).

[Optional] E. Remedies Cumulative. The remedies provided by the declaratory relief statute are cumulative (Code Civ. Proc. § 1062).

[Optional] F. Other Relief. A complaint for declaratory relief may seek other relief in the same action in addition to a declaration of rights and duties of the parties (Code Civ. Proc. § 1060).

[Optional] G. Completed Wrong. The fact that plaintiff is entitled to other relief for a completed wrong arising out of the same facts alleged in the complaint does not deprive the court of jurisdiction to grant declaratory relief where there is a reasonable expectation that the wrong will be repeated in the future; that is, declaratory relief will not be denied where all the issues involved in the declaratory relief action cannot be equally resolved in an action on the underlying claim (Southern Counties Gas Co. v. Ventura Pipeline Constr. Co. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 372, 380-381, 96 Cal. Rptr. 825).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used to oppose a general demurrer either on the ground that the court lacks jurisdiction of the subject of the cause of action alleged in the complaint [see § 67.20] or on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see §§ 67.21 -67.26].

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Sufficiency of Complaint

Maguire v. Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc'y (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 719, 146 P.2d 673 involved four actions for declaratory relief by successors in interest to alleged members of and depositors in defendant savings and loan society. The trial court sustained general demurrers to the complaints and granted motions of some of the individual defendants to dismiss the action. Judgments were entered for defendants and plaintiffs appealed, submitting the appeal on a single set of briefs. In reversing the judgments, the Supreme Court said that complaint for declaratory relief is legally sufficient if it sets forth facts showing the existence of an actual controversy relating to the legal rights and duties of the respective parties under a written instrument and requests that these rights and duties be adjudged by the court (23 Cal. 2d 719, 728) .

The plaintiff in Environmental Def. Project v. County of Sierra (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 877, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 474 , was an environmental organization that sued a county, seeking a judicial declaration that the county's "streamlined" zoning procedure violated state law. Generally, California's Planning and Zoning Law, when a zoning ordinance or an amendment to a zoning ordinance is proposed, the local planning commission must hold a public hearing (Gov. Code § 65854). On receipt of the recommendation of the planning commission, the local legislative body must hold a public hearing (Gov. Code § 65856). Notice of the legislative body's public hearing must be given at least 10 days before the hearing (Gov. Code §§ 65856(b), 65090) and must contain a general explanation of the matter to be considered (Gov. Code § 65094). At issue in this case was whether the defendant county's so-called "streamlined" zoning process, in which the county gave notice of the legislative body's hearing before the planning commission had made its recommendation on the proposed zoning ordinance or amendment to the zoning ordinance, comported with the Planning and Zoning Law. The trial court entered summary judgment in favor of the plaintiff, holding that the Planning and Zoning Law requires a local legislative body to wait until it has received the planning commission's recommendation before issuing the 10-day notice of the legislative body's public hearing. The court of appeal affirmed (158 Cal. App. 4th 877, 883-884) .

As a threshold matter, the court of appeal considered whether declaratory relief was appropriate in this case. The defendant county contended that there was no "actual controversy" between the parties, which is a prerequisite to declaratory relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 1060, because the parties' disagreement over the specific project that prompted this suit (a landowner's application to subdivide his property) had been settled before the trial court entered summary judgment on the legality of the streamlined zoning procedure. The court of appeal rejected this argument, noting that the "actual controversy" language in Section 1060 encompasses a probable future controversy relating to the legal rights and duties of the parties, so long as that probable future controversy is ripe for adjudication. The court explained that there was an actual controversy in this case, since the parties clearly disagreed over whether the local planning commission's recommendation had to be received before the 10-day notice of the legislative body's hearing could be issued. Moreover, the defendant county made it clear that it intended to continue with the streamlined zoning procedure in the future (158 Cal. App. 4th 877, 885-886) . Further, the controversy was ripe for adjudication, because the defendant's conduct in this case clearly delineated how the defendant would interpret and apply the notice provisions of the Planning and Zoning Law in the future (158 Cal. App. 4th 877, 886-887) . Accordingly, the court of appeal concluded that the plaintiff had established an "actual controversy" as a matter of law, and the trial court did not err in considering the request for declaratory relief (158 Cal. App. 4th 877, 887-888) .

In Levi v. O'Connell (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 700, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 691 , the mother of an extremely gifted child filed suit, on behalf of herself and as guardian ad litem for the child, against the California Department of Education. The complaint sought a declaration that, pursuant to the California Constitution and the Compulsory Education Law (see Cal. Const., art. IX, § 5; Educ. Code § 48200 et seq.), the Department was obligated to pay for the child's college education until age 16. The trial court sustained the Department's demurrer without leave to amend, and the plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal held that the trial court erred in sustaining the demurrer. The court explained that the fundamental basis of declaratory relief is the existence of an actual, present controversy over a proper subject. In this case, the complaint alleged sufficient specific facts regarding the child's educational circumstances to establish an actual, current controversy over whether the Department's constitutional and statutory obligation to fund an appropriate education included a college education for an extremely gifted child. The court rejected the Department's argument that the plaintiff had not pled a cause of action for declaratory relief because the plaintiffs had no right to, and the Department had no duty to provide, the education sought. The court noted that, strictly speaking, a general demurrer is not an appropriate means of testing the merits of the controversy in a declaratory relief action, because the plaintiff is entitled to a declaration of the parties' rights "even if it be adverse" (144 Cal. App. 4th 700, 706) .

Although it concluded that the trial court had erred in sustaining the demurrer, the court of appeal did not remand the case. Instead, the appellate court found it appropriate to proceed directly to the merits of the case. The court of appeal explained that if the merits issue is purely one of law, and the appellate court agrees with the trial court's resolution of the issue against the plaintiff, the appellate court need not reverse the trial court's dismissal and remand the case for a trial. Instead, the appellate court may consider the merits, and its judgment will constitute the declaration of the parties' rights concerning the matter in controversy (144 Cal. App. 4th 700, 706) . On the merits, the court of appeal concluded that the plaintiffs in this case did not have a constitutional or statutory right to a free college education. Accordingly, the court affirmed the lower court's judgment of dismissal (144 Cal. App. 4th 700, 706-711) .

[b] When Declaratory Relief Must Be Granted

Columbia Pictures Corp. v. DeToth (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 753, 161 P.2d 217 was an action for a declaration of the rights and duties of the parties under an oral employment contract. The complaint alleged that on June 6, 1943, plaintiff orally engaged the services of the defendant as a motion picture director for a term of one year commencing June 7, 1943, at a specific salary with six successive renewal options for one year periods; that on June 7, 1943, defendant asked for a deferment of the commencement date to a date subsequent to July 19, 1943 because of certain business commitments he had and agreed that if plaintiff consented to the modification and would give him work on a temporary basis during the period of deferment, he would at any time after July 20th and after completion of the temporary employment enter a written contract with plaintiff evidencing the extension of time for commencement of his services under the oral contract; that plaintiff in reliance on defendant's representations agreed to the deferment, gave defendant temporary work of a higher caliber and at a higher rate of compensation than it would have done in the absence of a contract; and that on completion of the temporary work defendant refused to perform any further services for plaintiff or to reduce the oral contract to writing. The complaint alleged an actual controversy between the parties and sought judgment fixing the rights and duties of the parties under the contract and renewal options as modified and extended and declaring the contract to be a valid and subsisting obligation. Defendant's general and special demurrers to the complaint were sustained without leave to amend, and plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal. After holding that, as pleaded, the statute of frauds [Civ. Code § 1624(a)] did not bar the action, the Supreme Court observed that the allegations of the complaint left no doubt of the asserted existence of an actual controversy between the parties and that at the time the complaint was filed, the period of the original contract had about three months to run (26 Cal. 2d 753, 760) . The Court said that when a case is properly before the trial court under a complaint which is legally sufficient and sets forth facts and circumstances showing that a declaratory adjudication is entirely appropriate, the trial court may not properly refuse to assume jurisdiction; if it does enter a dismissal, it will be directed by an appellate court to entertain the action. It emphasized that declaratory relief must be granted when the facts justifying that course are sufficiently alleged. Holding that the complaint was sufficient and therefore not subject to a general demurrer and that it was error to sustain a special demurrer without leave to amend when the complaint is good as against a general demurrer, the Court reversed the judgment (26 Cal. 2d 753, 762) .

[c] Applicability of Rule of Liberal Construction of Pleadings

Code Civ. Proc. § 452 provides that in the construction of a pleading, for the purpose of determining its effect, its allegations must be liberally construed, with a view to substantial justice between the parties.

Tiburon v. Northwestern P. R. Co. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 160, 84 Cal. Rptr. 469 was an action for declaratory and injunctive relief by the city against the railroad and others with respect to the leasing and conveyance of a 49-acre parcel of the railroad's real property which the city alleged had been divided and subdivided in violation of state and local law. The trial court sustained defendant's demurrers without leave to amend and denied the city's motion to reconsider and for leave to file a supplementary and first amended complaint. Plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal. In reversing the judgment, the court of appeal, quoting from Burke v. City & County of San Francisco (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 32, 65 Cal. Rptr. 539 said that declaratory relief is a broad remedy, and the rule that a complaint is to be liberally construed is particularly applicable to one for declaratory relief (4 Cal. App. 3d 160, 170) .

[d] Remedies Cumulative

Code Civ. Proc. § 1062 in part provides that the remedies provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 et seq., are cumulative, and are not to be construed as restricting any remedy, provisional or otherwise, provided by law for the benefit of any party to the action.

Code Civ. Proc. § 1062 effectively carves out an exception to the bar of res judicata (claim preclusion), but this exception applies only if the plaintiff's initial action seeks purely declaratory relief. Thus, if the plaintiff decides to seek any additional, coercive relief in a declaratory relief action, the ordinary rules of res judicata apply, and the judgment will bar a subsequent action for any further coercive relief arising from the same cause of action (Mycogen Corp. v. Monsanto Co. (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 888, 897-904, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 432, 51 P.3d 297 [applying exception to res judicata principles in case involving request for coercive relief would create uncertain preclusion rules and would threaten to swallow rule against claim splitting]). Moreover, even if the initial action seeks purely declaratory relief, a judgment in that action will have res judicata effect as to issues and claims expressly and unambiguously declared in the judgment (Aerojet-General Corp. v. American Excess Ins. Co. (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 387, 401-414, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 427).

The court's ability to combine otherwise appropriate declaratory relief with other forms of relief does not justify the issuance of a "declaratory" judgment that merely specifies the amount of money the defendant owes the plaintiff, when there is no actual controversy as to the amount owed (County of San Diego v. State (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 580, 608, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 489).

[e] Other Relief

Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 provides that a plaintiff in a declaratory relief action may ask for a declaration of rights or duties, either alone or with other relief, and that the court may make a binding declaration of such rights or duties, whether or not further relief is or could be claimed at the time.

[f] Completed Wrong

Southern Counties Gas Co. v. Ventura Pipeline Constr. Co. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 372, 96 Cal. Rptr. 825 was an action by the gas company to recover $1,026.30 as the cost of repairing underground utility pipelines installed by defendant and for a declaratory judgment determining the rights and duties of the parties under a series of contracts. Pursuant to these contracts, defendant had, over a period of years, installed the underground pipelines, including the ones for which costs of repair were sought, for use by plaintiff in the transmission of natural gas. Contrary to contract specifications, defendant had in several instances failed to apply the required protective wrapping, thus hastening corrosion of the pipes. Leaks subsequently developed and were repaired by plaintiff's employees. Claiming it was entitled under the contracts to be indemnified, plaintiff demanded reimbursement of these costs, but defendant refused to pay. Each party relied on a different provision in the contracts to support its position. The trial court awarded plaintiff the claimed costs and declared the rights and duties of the parties under the contracts. Defendant appealed, contending that the trial court did not have jurisdiction of the claim for reimbursement (amount of which was within jurisdiction of lower court) and that declaratory relief should not be granted where all the issues involved can be equally resolved in the plenary action (for damages for breach of contract). In rejecting the argument as applied to the facts of the case and distinguishing Bachis v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 722, 71 Cal. Rptr. 486 , and Travers v. Louden (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 926, 62 Cal. Rptr. 654 , the court of appeal noted that a gas leak due to the causes alleged in the complaint would not become noticeable for from three to five years after installation of the pipes, at defendant had since 1961 installed thousands of feet of underground pipeline for plaintiff in connection with a multitude of jobs, that the leaks discovered through the time of trial related to installations made during the years 1962-1964, and that absent a physical examination and inspection of the underground lines, no way existed whereby it could be said that other deficiencies would not present problems in the future. The court observed that plaintiff not only had current claims for indemnification as to corrosion damage previously discovered, but also the prospect, if not the likelihood, that additional incidents would continue to reoccur and hence the matter presented a continuing controversy ripe for decision. The court concluded that where there is a reasonable expectation that the wrong, if any, will be repeated, the controversy does not present mere academic questions resulting from mootness or other considerations and that declaratory relief in such a case should not be denied (19 Cal. App. 3d 372, 381) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Sufficiency of Complaint

In Longshore v. Ventura County (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 14, 157 Cal. Rptr. 706, 598 P.2d 866 , at issue in pertinent part was not whether plaintiffs had stated a cause of action for declaratory relief but whether the trial court had erred in sustaining defendant's special demurrer to the cause of action for declaratory relief on the ground that it was fatally uncertain. In their third cause of action, plaintiffs sought declaratory relief on behalf of themselves and all other Ventura County deputy sheriffs similarly situated who allegedly had acquired overtime credits prior to July 1961. They alleged that rights to compensation for these credits arose under ordinances then applicable, and that these rights were disputed. In support of the trial court's action, defendants argued that the specific ordinances applicable to each plaintiff were not identified, and the hours of overtime worked by each deputy sheriff under each of the numerous salary laws were not described with particularity. However, the Supreme Court reversed, commenting that a complaint for declaratory relief is sufficient if it alleges facts demonstrating the existence of an actual controversy between the parties about their legal rights and duties and requests adjudication of the controversy. The complaint, the Court said, need only apprise the defendant reasonably of the nature, source, and extent of plaintiff's complaint. The Court held that the complaint satisfied this requirement and pointed out that defendants could readily determine the specific ordinances and salary laws applicable to each plaintiff by reference to their own employment records, ruling that a demurrer for uncertainty will not lie for failure to particularize matters presumptively within the knowledge of the defendant.

Wellenkamp v. Bank of America (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 943, 148 Cal. Rptr. 379, 582 P.2d 970 was an action for declaratory and injunctive relief by a vendee of real property against the bank which was the holder of the vendors' note and beneficiary under the trust deed securing the note. The vendee sought to restrain enforcement of the "due-on" clause in the trust deed and for a declaration that exercise of the clause, without any showing that the beneficiary's security had been impaired as a result of the sale of the property to plaintiff, constituted an unreasonable restraint on alienation in violation of California law. The sellers had originally financed their purchase of the property by a loan from defendant bank at eight percent interest giving back their promissory note secured by a trust deed containing the "due-on" clause. When the sellers sold the property, plaintiff paid the sellers the amount of their equity in the property and agreed to assume the balance of their loan from the bank. Properly notified, the bank returned plaintiff's check for the payment then due, notifying plaintiff of its right to accelerate on transfer of the property but offering to waive this right in return for plaintiff's agreement to assume the sellers' loan at an increased rate of interest to nine and one-quarter percent. Plaintiff failed to accede to the bank's demand, and the bank filed a notice of default and election to sell under the trust deed. Plaintiff then filed for injunctive and declaratory relief. The trial court granted plaintiff's motion for a preliminary injunction but, subsequently after hearing, sustained defendant bank's general demurrer to the complaint without leave to amend and entered a judgment dismissing plaintiff's complaint. Plaintiff appealed. In reversing the judgment, the Supreme Court said that a complaint for declaratory relief is legally sufficient if it sets forth facts showing the existence of an actual controversy relating to the legal rights and duties of the parties under a written instrument or with respect to property and requests that the rights and duties of the parties be adjudged by the court (21 Cal. 3d 943, 947) . The Court explained that the complaint alleged a controversy over the legal rights and duties of plaintiff and defendant under the deed of trust containing a "due-on" clause. Plaintiff contended that this clause was unenforceable absent a showing by the lender of impairment to its security; whereas defendant contended that it would automatically enforce the clause without any further showing. The Court found it clear that the complaint showed the existence of an actual controversy sufficient to state a cause of action for declaratory relief (21 Cal. 3d 943, 947) .

Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 305 P.2d 20 was an action by successors in interest to alleged members of defendant bank's predecessor for declaratory relief as to their rights if any in defendant bank. Defendant's general demurrer to the complaint was sustained without leave to amend, and plaintiffs appealed from the ensuing judgment. In reversing the judgment, the Supreme Court said that it is the general rule that in an action for declaratory relief, the complaint is sufficient if it sets forth facts showing the existence of an actual controversy relating to the legal rights and duties of the respective parties under a contract and requests that the rights and duties be adjudged (47 Cal. 2d 540, 549-550) . This rule is also set forth in Columbia Pictures Corp. v. DeToth (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 753, 161 P.2d 217 , the factual background of which is set forth in § 67.52[3][b].

The factual background of Southern Counties Gas Co. v. Ventura Pipeline Constr. Co. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 372, 96 Cal. Rptr. 825 is set forth in § 67.52[3][f]. In affirming the judgment for plaintiff, the court of appeal quoted the statement set forth in quotes from Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 305 P.2d 20 , above.

The procedural background of Tiburon v. Northwestern P. R. Co. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 160, 84 Cal. Rptr. 469 is set forth in § 67.52[3][c]. The court of appeal, in reversing the judgment.

Howard v. Howard (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 308, 280 P.2d 802 was a declaratory relief action by plaintiff against his wife and a bank as guardian of her estate. The bank's demurrer to the complaint was sustained without leave to amend, and the wife's demurrer was sustained with leave to amend. Plaintiff filed an amended complaint in which it was alleged, inter alia, that prior to marriage he and his wife entered into an oral contract by the terms of which she agreed that if he gave up the employment in which he was then engaged and performed such services with respect to her business affairs and property and in attendance on her as she might call on him from time to time during their marriage to perform, she would provide for his care, support, and maintenance from the time he gave up his employment until his death. The complaint alleged that on marriage, plaintiff terminated his employment and duly carried out his obligations under the oral contract, and that he was ready, willing, and able to continue to perform his obligations under it; that some 15 years after marriage wife was adjudicated an incompetent and the bank was appointed guardian of her estate; that in the guardianship proceeding, and subsequently, orders were made directing the bank to pay him specified monthly sums from his wife's estate; that these sums were insufficient; that an actual controversy existed between the parties in that plaintiff contended that the oral contract was entered into by the parties, that it still exists, that under its provisions plaintiff was entitled during the rest of his lifetime to receive from his wife or her estate reasonable care, including medical and dental care, and support and maintenance in accordance with the standard of living maintained by himself and his wife during their marriage prior to the time she became incompetent. It alleged also that his wife disputed the existence of the oral contract and denied that she had any obligation or that plaintiff had any right whatsoever thereunder, and that bank also disputed the existence of the oral contract and denied any obligation by his wife or right by him thereunder. The wife's demurrer to this complaint was sustained without leave to amend, and judgment bed on the two orders sustaining the demurrers without leave to amend was entered. Plaintiff appealed from the judgment but on appeal sought only reversal as to wife. In reversing as to wife and affirming as to bank, the court of appeal quoted the statement set forth in Columbia Pictures Corp. v. DeToth (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 753, 760, 161 P.2d 217 , in § 67.52[3][b].

Foster v. Masters Pontiac Co. (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 481, 322 P.2d 592 was an action by the buyer against the seller of a new car for declaratory relief as to the validity of the contract to purchase the car and for money had and received. The trial court sustained a special and general demurrer to the third amended complaint without leave to amend, and plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal. In concluding that the complaint stated facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action for declaratory relief and reversing the judgment with directions to the trial court to overrule the demurrer, the court of appeal said that a complaint seeking declaratory relief must allege facts which justify the declaration of rights or obligations in respect of a matter of controversy, the controversy being actual within the purview of Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 and involving justiciable rights, and that this requirement is met by allegations showing a controversy respecting the rights of the parties to a written instrument, accompanied by a request that these rights be determined and declared. The court found that the complaint presented the existence of an actual controversy as to which document ("Car Order" or "Conditional Sales Contract"), if either, was the contract, as to the validity of the alleged contract, and as to the justification of plaintiff's excuses for nonperformance (158 Cal. App. 2d 481, 488-489) .

[b] When Declaratory Relief Must Be Granted

The factual background of Wellenkamp v. Bank of America (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 943, 148 Cal. Rptr. 379, 582 P.2d 970 is set forth in § 67.52[4][a]. In that case, the Supreme Court said that if the requirements as to what must be set forth in a declaratory relief complaint are met and no basis for declining declaratory relief appears, the court should declare the rights of the parties (21 Cal. 3d 943, 947) .

Walker v. County of Los Angeles (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 626, 12 Cal. Rptr. 671, 361 P.2d 247 was a representative action by five county employees seeking declaratory relief (to have the court ascertain and declare the prevailing wage rate paid employees in private industry) and for a writ of mandate (to compel the county to adopt an ordinance providing at least equal salary payments to county civil service employees as required by the county charter). It was contended that in adopting a salary ordinance the county board of supervisors did not comply with charter procedural requirements. The charter provided that in fixing compensation to be paid to persons under the classified civil service, the Board of Supervisors must provide a salary or wage at least equal to the prevailing salary or wage for the same quality of service rendered to private persons, firms, or corporations under similar employment if the prevailing salary or wage can be ascertained. For a number of years the county had participated with other political entities in a joint survey and held hearings to determine the prevailing wage for comparable work in private industry. But in the year in question, the board had declined to apply the annual survey in fixing salaries for the next fiscal year and, as shown by the record of their proceedings, after much disagreement among the supervisors, voted three to one to continue the preceding year's wage schedule. The trial court found that the board had not complied with charter requirements, rendered a declaratory judgment setting forth the rights and duties of the parties, and granted a peremptory writ of mandate requiring the board to comply. On appeal defendants argued that the case was not a proper one for declaratory relief because there was no justiciable controversy between the parties. The Supreme Court, in modifying the judgment to delete one of several paragraphs declaring the rights and duties of the parties, and affirming the judgment as modified said that the record showed that the parties were in fundamental disagreement as to whether the charter required the "ascertainment" of a prevailing wage minimum as a fact-finding premise for the enactment of the prescribed salary ordinance for civil service employees, that declaratory relief must be granted when facts justifying that course are sufficiently alleged, and that the purpose of declaratory relief is to liquidate uncertainties and controversies which might result in future litigation (55 Cal. 2d 626, 636-637) .

The factual background of Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 305 P.2d 20 is set forth in § 67.52[4][a]. The Supreme Court said that when a complaint for declaratory relief is sufficient, the court must declare the rights of the parties (47 Cal. 2d 540, 550) .

LePage v. Oakland (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 689, 91 Cal. Rptr. 806 was a class action by a city police officer, individually and on behalf of others similarly situated, and by the chairman of an association representing uniformed members of the defendant city's police and fire departments for a declaratory judgment as to the right of such members under the city charter to have time spent in service-connected disability retirement credited towards years-in-service retirement eligibility and for a writ of mandate to compel the city to count all such time as a credit towards years-of-service retirement time. The trial court granted declaratory relief and a peremptory writ of mandate, and defendants appealed. Holding that the requirement had a justiciable controversy must be definite and concrete, and touch the legal relations of parties having adverse interests, was met and that declaratory relief must be granted when the facts justifying that course are sufficiently alleged, the court of appeal concluded that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in granting declaratory relief, and affirmed the judgment (13 Cal. App. 3d 689, 693) .

The procedural background of Tiburon v. Northwestern P. R. Co. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 160, 84 Cal. Rptr. 469 is set forth in § 67.52[3][a]. The court of appeal, quoting from Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 550, 305 P.2d 20 , above, said that when the complaint states a cause of action for declaratory relief, the court must declare the rights of the parties (4 Cal. App. 3d 160, 170) . The court quoted the rule set out in Paragraph B from Columbia Pictures Corp. v. DeToth (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 753, 762, 161 P.2d 217 , discussed in § 67.52[3][b] (4 Cal. App. 3d 160, 173) .

The procedural background of Foster v. Masters Pontiac Co. (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 481, 322 P.2d 592 is set forth in § 67.52[4][a]. In reversing the judgment of dismissal with directions to overrule the demurrer to the complaint, the court of appeal said that declaratory relief must be granted when the facts justifying that course are sufficiently alleged (158 Cal. App. 2d 481, 486) . The court quoted the rule set out in Paragraph B from Columbia Pictures Corp. v. DeToth (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 753, 762 161 P.2d 217 , quoted and discussed in § 67.52[3][b] (158 Cal. App. 2d 481, 486-487) .

[c] Applicability of Rule of Liberal Construction of Pleadings

The procedural background of Foster v. Masters Pontiac Co. (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 481, 322 P.2d 592 is set forth in § 67.52[4][a]. In reversing the judgment of dismissal with directions to the trial court to overrule the demurrer, the court of appeal said that the rule that a complaint is to be liberally construed is particularly applicable to one for declaratory relief (158 Cal. App. 2d 481, 486) .

[d] Remedies Cumulative

The factual background of Columbia Pictures Corp. v. DeToth (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 753, 161 P.2d 217 is set forth in § 67.52[3][b]. In that case, the Supreme Court pointed out that the remedies provided by the declaratory relief statute are cumulative (26 Cal. 2d 753, 761) .

[e] Other Relief

The factual background of Columbia Pictures Corp. v. DeToth (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 753, 161 P.2d 217 is set forth in § 67.52[3][b]. In that case, the Supreme Court pointed out that declaratory relief may be asked alone or with other relief (26 Cal. 2d 753, 761) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 6 Chapters 60-69 COSTS---to---DECLARATORY RELIEF
CHAPTER 67 DECLARATORY RELIEF
PART II. FORMS

6-67 California Points & Authorities § 67.53

§ 67.53 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10] for Declaratory Relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]--Complaint as Not Insufficient on Ground of Lack of Justiciable Controversy Because It Fails to Allege Breach or Violation of Obligation

[1] FORM Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10] for Declaratory Relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]--Complaint as Not Insufficient on Ground of Lack of Justiciable Controversy Because It Fails to Allege Breach or Violation of Obligation

[Caption. See § 67.50.]

A COMPLAINT FOR DECLARATORY RELIEF DOES NOT FAIL TO STATE A CAUSE OF ACTION BECAUSE IT DOES NOT ALLEGE THAT THERE HAS BEEN A BREACH OR VIOLATION OF THE OBLIGATION WITH RESPECT TO WHICH A DECLARATION OF THE RIGHTS AND DUTIES OF THE PARTIES IS SOUGHT.

A. Breach Not Required. A declaratory relief action may be maintained before there has been any breach of the obligation in respect to which the declaration is sought (Code Civ. Proc. § 1060).

[Optional] B. Nonmatured Claim. An action for declaratory relief is proper in the case of an actual controversy between the parties with respect to a claim that has not yet matured is (Mascarin Professional Pharmacy v. Hart (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 462, 465, 91 Cal. Rptr. 560).

[Optional] C. Statute. A person is not required to risk criminal prosecution by violating a statute before seeking a judicial declaration of its constitutionality, meaning, or applicability (Zeitlin v. Arnebergh (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 901, 905-906, 31 Cal. Rptr. 800, 383 P.2d 152).

[Optional] D. Ordinance. A person is not required to risk criminal prosecution by violating an ordinance before seeking a judicial declaration of its constitutionality, meaning, or applicability (Wollam v. Palm Springs (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 276, 279, 29 Cal. Rptr. 1, 379 P.2d 481).

[Optional] E. Administrative Regulation. An "interested person" within the meaning of Section 11350 of the Government Code authorizing declaratory relief to test the validity of administrative regulations, is not required to first violate the regulation in order to obtain a judicial declaration as to its validity (Chas. L. Harney, Inc. v. Contractors' Bd. (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 561, 564, 247 P.2d 913 (construing former Gov. Code § 11440).

[Optional] F. Contractual Rights and Duties. A court may issue declaratory relief to resolve an actual controversy over the parties' rights and duties under their contract, even if the declaration judgment does not resolve any particular cause of action for a coercive remedy (Supervalu, Inc. v. Wexford Underwriting Managers, Inc. (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 64, 81, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 316).

[Optional] G. Determination of Undisputed Preliminary Matter Is Proper. A trial court may properly grant declaratory relief on a question that is not in dispute when it is necessary for the court to determine the question as a preliminary matter to an issue for which declaratory relief is proper (see Application Group, Inc. v. Hunter Group (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 881, 893-894, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint for declaratory relief on the ground the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that no justiciable controversy is alleged [see § 67.24] when the alleged lack of justiciability results from plaintiff's failure to have alleged a breach or violation of the obligation by either party with respect to which the declaration is sought. Although Paragraphs B through F are labeled optional, one of them should be used if applicable. If none is applicable, then a paragraph stating the nonlisted rule and citing the authority for it should be inserted in lieu of the paragraphs listed.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Uses

This form may, with appropriate modifications, be used in opposition to a nonstatutory motion for judgment on the pleadings, a nonstatutory motion to dismiss, or a motion for summary judgment predicated on the argument that declaratory relief does not lie absent a breach of the obligation with respect to which the declaration is sought.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Breach Not Required

Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 authorizes an action for declaratory relief in cases of actual controversy between the parties and provides that the declaration of the rights and duties of the parties may be had before there has been any breach of the obligation in respect to which the declaration is sought.

[b] Nonmatured Claim

Mascarin Professional Pharmacy v. Hart (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 462, 91 Cal. Rptr. 560 was an action by a pharmacy for declaratory relief against its former employee for indemnification for a judgment taken against the pharmacy in an action by a third party to which the former employee was not a party for the negligent furnishing of a chemical compound. The pharmacy had appealed from the prior judgment and that appeal was pending. Defendant employee demurred to the pharmacy's complaint on the grounds that the pharmacy was barred from indemnity by its own negligence and that declaratory relief was improper because any cause of action the pharmacy might have against the employee had already matured. The trial court sustained the demurrer on both grounds without leave to amend and dismissed the complaint. Plaintiff appealed. In reversing the judgment the court of appeal held (1) plaintiff's action for indemnity against the employee had not matured since an appeal from the prior judgment had been taken and was pending, and (2) plaintiff was not barred from indemnity by its own negligence since that alleged negligence had not been established in the prior action (13 Cal. App. 3d 462).

[c] Statute

Zeitlin v. Arnebergh (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 901, 31 Cal. Rptr. 800, 383 P.2d 152 was an action by a bookseller and prospective reader of a book, "Tropic of Cancer" by Henry Miller, against a city attorney for a declaratory judgment that the book was not obscene within the meaning of Penal Code § 311 and that its sale would not violate Penal Code § 311.2. The trial court sustained defendant's demurrer to the complaint without leave to amend, and plaintiff appealed. In reversing the judgment, the court held that declaratory relief was proper and described: the gravamen of the plaintiffs' complaint to be that although the statute [Penal Code § 311] could not properly be interpreted to apply to "Tropic of Cancer," defendant was nevertheless contending that the book was "obscene matter" within the terms of the statute and intended to prosecute those who sold it (59 Cal. 2d 901, 904-905) .

Stating that the complaint alleged a genuine controversy involving the construction of particular legislation as to which it sought a judicial determination, and the court explained that plaintiff bookseller alleged that he was engaged in business as a bookseller and that he wished to sell "Tropic of Cancer," but that he was prevented from offering the book for fear that defendant would institute criminal proceedings against him. By denying plaintiff an opportunity for declaratory relief, the court found he was forced to choose between undesirable alternatives. If he continued to sell the book, he incurred the risk of criminal prosecution and faced the fine, jail sentence, or both, which may be imposed if he was found guilty, or he sustained the accompanying stigma which attached even though he could ultimately be found innocent. As an alternative he could have assumed the role of self-appointed censor, prodded by the city attorney, and discontinued the sale of any book which could possibly offend the latter (59 Cal. 2d 901, 905) .

The court considered plaintiff buyer's allegation that he desired to purchase a copy of "Tropic of Cancer" but was unable to do so because the bookseller, fearful of prosecution, refused to sell the publication. Reasoning that unless plaintiff was able to find a bookseller willing to face the possibility of criminal prosecution and the attendant described risks, he would be deprived of his basic constitutional right to read. The court stated that declaratory relief may offer the only method for vindication of this constitutional right and held that the complaint was legally sufficient (59 Cal. 2d 901, 907) .

[d] Ordinance

Wollam v. Palm Springs (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 276, 29 Cal. Rptr. 1, 379 P.2d 481 was an action by an individual on behalf of himself and members of a labor union to determine the constitutionality of a municipal ordinance prohibiting the stationary use of sound trucks. There was no indication that plaintiffs had violated the ordinance. The trial court declared the ordinance unconstitutional, and defendant appealed. Although the propriety of declaratory relief was apparently not in issue, the Supreme Court held that the ordinance was unconstitutional and affirmed the judgment (59 Cal. 2d 276, 279) .

[e] Administrative Regulation

Chas. L. Harney, Inc. v. Contractors' Bd. (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 561, 247 P.2d 913 was an action by a general engineering contractor against the State Contractors' License Board for a declaratory judgment as to the validity of a rule adopted by the board requiring that general contractors obtain additional licenses to undertake contracts involving specialty work alone. The board took the position that since plaintiff failed to allege that it had, in effect, violated the rule, there was no actual controversy between the parties, and its motion for judgment on the pleadings was granted. On plaintiff's appeal, the Supreme Court, in holding that the complaint was legally sufficient and reversing the judgment, said that plaintiff as an interested party was entitled under former Gov. Code § 11440 [now see Gov. Code § 11350] to obtain a judicial declaration as to the validity of rule 732 in accordance with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 which specifically authorizes a declaration of rights or duties before there has been any breach of the obligation in respect to which the declaration is sought. The Court found that plaintiff, therefore, was not required to violate the administrative regulation and thereby subject itself to possible criminal prosecution or disciplinary action in order to obtain a declaration of its rights and duties (39 Cal. 2d 561, 564) .

[f] Contractual Rights and Duties

Supervalu, Inc. v. Wexford Underwriting Managers, Inc. (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 64, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 316 , was an action between an insured and two insurers and an underwriting agent. The action included claims for declaratory relief regarding the interpretation of the insurance policies issued by the insurers. After the trial court entered judgment that included summary adjudication in favor of one of the insurers on its claim for declaratory relief, the insured appealed. The insured contended, among other things, that summary adjudication on the insurer's declaratory-relief claim was inappropriate because the insurer had not asked for declaratory relief on any particular coercive claim and, therefore, the summary adjudication did not resolve a cause of action.

The court of appeal rejected the insured's contention. The court noted that the summary adjudication in this case disposed of the entire declaratory-relief cause of action. The court emphasized that Code Civ. Proc. § 1060, which authorizes the issuance of declaratory relief, does not require that such relief resolve any particular claim, and the statute permits a declaration of the parties' rights and duties even if no other relief is requested, and even if there has been no breach of contract (175 Cal. App. 4th 64, 82) .

The court of appeal acknowledged that once the parties are engaged in litigation over claims for coercive remedies, a party cannot select issues (other than duty and punitive damages) implicated in one or more causes of action, amend its pleading to add a claim for declaratory relief as to those issues, and then obtain a summary adjudication of the declaratory-relief claim. This would subvert Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f)(1), which requires that a summary judgment dispose of an entire cause of action or affirmative defense (or the issues of duty or punitive damages) (175 Cal. App. 4th 64, 82-83 (citing Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Superior Court (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 839, 846-847, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 227 ; Hood v. Superior Court (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 319, 321-324, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 296).

The present case, however, did not involve an attempt to misuse declaratory relief or to subvert the summary-adjudication procedure; the insurer merely requested contract interpretation in its cause of action for declaratory relief. That relief was not precluded merely because other claims were asserted in the same action, or because the issues subject to declaratory relief were present in other causes of action (175 Cal. App. 4th 64, 83) .

[g] Determination of Undisputed Preliminary Matter Is Proper

Application Group, Inc. v. Hunter Group (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 881, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73 involved a declaratory judgment that covenants not to compete contained in employment contracts of a Maryland firm's consultants who do not reside in California are illegal and cannot be enforced against a competing California firm. The Maryland firm was a "virtual employer," whose employees work out of their homes and other sites scattered throughout the country to provide consulting services with respect to customers' computerized human resources systems. The Maryland firm appealed the judgment.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment, with modifications to delete portions relating to claims for relief by an individual consultant who was a party in the case. The Maryland firm contended that any controversy over the use of covenants not to compete for its employees residing in California is purely "conjectural" because, as a matter of corporate policy, the Maryland firm never has and never will include a noncompetition clause in the employment agreements of its employees who reside in California. The court stated that ordinarily, declaratory relief would be inappropriate in such a situation. "However," stated the court, "in this case, it was necessary for the trial court to determine as a preliminary matter whether the particular noncompetition clause used by Hunter would be enforceable if required of California employees. If so, there would have been no need to decide the central issue raised by [the California firm's and individual consultant's] complaint ... " (emphasis in original) (61 Cal. App. 4th 881, 893-894), . The court concluded that under the circumstances, the fact that the trial court chose to articulate a logical premise of its declaratory judgment was not error (61 Cal. App. 4th 881, 894).

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Breach Not Required

In Kessloff v. Pearson (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 609, 233 P.2d 899 , the trial court had sustained an objection to the introduction of evidence by plaintiff at trial on the ground that the complaint for declaratory relief and an accounting failed to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that an action for declaratory relief under the circumstances was not proper. The Supreme Court, in reversing the judgment on the ground that a cause of action for an accounting was properly stated, by way of dictum, said that Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1060-1062 provide for declaratory relief in advance of breach (37 Cal. 2d 609, 613) . It explained that this salutary relief is procurable so that parties may know their rights and obligations where a controversy arises before a breach or violation occurs (37 Cal. 2d 609, 613) .

[b] Nonmatured Claim

LePage v. Oakland (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 689, 91 Cal. Rptr. 806 was a class action by a city police officer, individually and on behalf of others similarly situated, and by the chairman of an association, representing uniformed members of defendant city's police and fire departments, for a declaratory judgment as to the right of such members under the city charter to have time spent in service-connected disability retirement credited towards years-in-service retirement eligibility and for a writ of mandate to compel the city to credit all such time towards years of service retirement time. The trial court granted the requested relief and defendants appealed. On appeal defendant city contended, inter alia, that the question presented by the declaratory relief action was academic or hypothetical since the complaint did not state that either plaintiff officer or any other member of the class represented had applied, or intended to apply, for inservice retirement and had been refused credit for time spent in work-incurred disability retirement. In reply, the court of appeal, in affirming the judgment, held that while respondents were not yet eligible for service retirement, they were entitled to a declaration of their rights under the charter (13 Cal. App. 3d 689, 692) .

General Ins. Co. of America v. Whitmore (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 670, 45 Cal. Rptr. 556 was a declaratory relief action by an insurer which had issued a public liability policy covering defendant Whitmores and their minor son for negligence. A passenger train had been derailed. One of the passengers sued the two carriers involved, the Whitmores' son, and two other minors for damages for personal injuries sustained in the train wreck. The theory on which liability was predicated was negligence. While that action was pending, the Whitmores' insurer brought the present declaratory relief action in which it named as defendants the Whitmores, their son, the other two boys and each member of their families and their insurance carriers, the two carriers involved in the train derailment, the tort plaintiff, and 200 (Does 1 to 200) other passengers on the train. The complaint (1) alleged that the train derailment was the sole and proximate result of the willful and intentional acts of the boys (which acts were not covered by plaintiff's policy), (2) set forth plaintiff's contentions as to its potential liability under the policy, and the contentions of the defendants, and (3) sought a declaration of its rights and liabilities under the policy with respect to its insureds, the other insurers involved, and the other passengers on the train who might reduce their claims against the Whitmores' son to judgments. The trial court sustained the Whitmores' demurrer to the complaint without leave to amend on the ground that the potential claimants had no present legal interest in the policy, that the defendants, other than the Whitmores, would have no claim against plaintiff insurer until their claim against the Whitmores was reduced to judgment, and that since the defendants, other than the Whitmores, were not proper parties to the declaratory relief action, they would not be bound by any factual determination made by the court. The court of appeal held that the other defendants had an interest in the policy immediately on the happening of the derailment and that they were proper parties and reversed the judgment. In answering the Whitmores' contention that the declaratory relief action was premature, the court of appeal said that Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 expressly provides that declaratory relief may be had before there has been any breach of the obligation in respect to which the declaration is sought (235 Cal. App. 2d 670, 676) .

[c] Ordinance

California Water & Tel. Co. v. Los Angeles (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 16, 61 Cal. Rptr. 618 was an action by private corporations which owned and operated plants and equipment for the production, transmission, and delivery of water within an unincorporated area of defendant county to determine whether a county water ordinance could constitutionally apply to them. They contended that because they were investor-owned public utilities, the state had fully occupied the field of public utilities regulation. The ordinance among other things required that all persons who supplied domestic water to more than one customer had to obtain a water utility certificate of registration or a water utility authorization as a condition precedent to the construction of any portion of a water system. The plaintiffs also sought to enjoin defendant county and its engineer from enforcing the ordinance against them. Plaintiffs had registered as required by the county engineer and at all times had complied with the provisions of the ordinance. Judgment was for plaintiffs and defendants appealed. In modifying the judgment and affirming it as modified, the court of appeal said that a person need not violate or plan to violate a penal ordinance before he can obtain a declaration construing it and deciding its application to him. To hold otherwise, the court felt, would be like telling the prospective victim that the only way to determine whether the suspect is a mushroom or a toadstool is to eat it. The court added that all that one seeking declaratory relief must demonstrate is the reality of his interest in a present adjudication of the matter (253 Cal. App. 2d 16, 24-25) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 6 Chapters 60-69 COSTS---to---DECLARATORY RELIEF
CHAPTER 67 DECLARATORY RELIEF
PART II. FORMS

6-67 California Points & Authorities § 67.54

§ 67.54 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10] for Declaratory Relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]--No Basis in Fact for Conclusion That Judicial Declaration Is Not Necessary or Proper

[1] FORM Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10] for Declaratory Relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]--No Basis in Fact for Conclusion That Judicial Declaration Is Not Necessary or Proper

[Caption. See § 67.50.]

A COURT MAY NOT PROPERLY DENY DECLARATORY RELIEF ON THE GROUND THAT ITS DETERMINATION OR DECLARATION IS NOT NECESSARY OR PROPER AT THE TIME UNDER ALL THE CIRCUMSTANCES WHEN THERE IS NO BASIS IN FACT FOR THAT CONCLUSION.

A. Limitation on Court's Discretion. The discretion of the trial court to refuse to entertain an action for declaratory relief vested in it by Section 1061 of the Code of Civil Procedure is not unlimited and such relief may not be refused when there is no basis in fact for the conclusion that the declaration is not necessary or proper (Warren v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 678, 683, 121 Cal. Rptr. 19).

B. Doubt as to Whether Judicial Declaration Is Necessary. Any doubt as to whether a judicial declaration is necessary or proper at the time under all the circumstances should be resolved in favor of granting declaratory relief (Warren v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 678, 683, 121 Cal. Rptr. 19).

[Optional] C. Alternative Remedy as Required to Be Adequate. The trial court may not exclude the action for declaratory relief on the ground an alternative remedy exists where the alternative remedy is not as speedy and adequate or as well suited to the plaintiff's needs as declaratory relief (Maguire v. Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc'y (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 719, 732, 146 P.2d 673 , leading case).

[Optional] D. Action at Law for Breach of Contract as Inadequate. An action at law for breach of contract is neither as speedy and adequate nor as well suited as declaratory relief to a plaintiff's needs where, despite the breach, a relationship between the parties continues so that a declaration may guide their future conduct or where the use of declaratory relief will avoid a multiplicity of actions that may ensue if a different remedy is pursued (Warren v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 678, 683, 121 Cal. Rptr. 19).

[Optional] E. Criminal Sanctions as Inadequate Remedy. The availability of penal sanctions against defendant does not justify a refusal by the court to grant declaratory relief where such sanctions are either not available to plaintiff, or if they are, they are not as speedy and adequate or as well suited to plaintiff's needs as declaratory relief (Tiburon v. Northwestern P. R. Co. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 160, 177, 84 Cal. Rptr. 469).

[Optional] F. Unfavorable Declaration. The court may not refuse to exercise its discretion to grant declaratory relief on the ground that any declaration would be unfavorable to the plaintiff (Maguire v. Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc'y (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 719, 728-730, 146 P.2d 673 ; Levi v. O'Connell (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 700, 706, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 691).

CAUTION:

The above rule would not necessarily prevent the sustaining of the demurrer, since the court may on sustaining the demurrer and dismissing the action declare the rights of the parties adversely to plaintiff [see, e.g., O'Sullivan v. Salvation Army (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 58, 60, 65, 147 Cal. Rptr. 729 ; Siegel v. Oakland (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 351, 359, 145 Cal. Rptr. 62 ; for further discussion and the power of the court to grant a nonstatutory motion for judgment on the pleadings or motion to dismiss, see § 67.40[2]]. Moreover, an improper judgment of dismissal following the sustaining of a general demurrer will not be reversed on appeal where the complaint shows on its face that the judgment sought must decide the controversy adversely to plaintiff and a reversal would result inevitably as a matter of law in such judgment [Pylon, Inc. v. Olympic Ins. Co. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 643, 657, 77 Cal. Rptr. 72 ; see also Jones v. Daly (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 500, 511, 176 Cal. Rptr. 130] .

[Optional] G. Plaintiff Entitled to Some Relief. A court may not refuse declaratory relief where on the facts alleged plaintiff is entitled to some relief in connection with the matter which occasioned the controversy (Lord v. Garland (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 840, 852, 168 P.2d 5).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint for declaratory relief on the ground the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that it shows on its face or appears from judicially noticed matter that a judicial declaration or determination is not necessary or proper at the time under all the circumstances [see § 67.24].

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Uses

The foregoing form may, with appropriate modifications, be used in opposition to a nonstatutory motion for judgment on the pleadings, a nonstatutory motion to dismiss, or a motion for summary judgment predicated on the argument that a judicial declaration or determination is not necessary or proper at the time under all the circumstances.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Limitation on Court's Discretion

Warren v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 678, 121 Cal. Rptr. 19 was an action for declaratory relief arising out of defendant's refusal to pay for treatment of plaintiff's wife in a facility that had not contracted with defendant. Plaintiff's wife had been badly burned in an automobile accident and was taken in an unconscious condition to the most accessible hospital equipped to render medical care to critical burn victims. The hospital was not one which had contracted with defendant. The wife's condition precluded moving her to another hospital and she died there 20 days after the accident. Plaintiff incurred medical and hospital expenses incident to the wife's treatment in excess of $19,000. Plaintiff paid $2,000 of these expenses. At the time of the accident plaintiff and his wife were covered by the Kaiser Plan which provided for care in contracting facilities by contracting physicians and, by provisions, found by the court of appeal to be ambiguous, for limited cash reimbursement for emergency expenses and payment of expenses for certain follow-up treatment incurred outside the "service area." Plaintiff demanded that defendant reimburse him for the $2,000 he had paid and that defendant pay the remainder of the expenses incurred. Kaiser denied coverage and refused payment. Plaintiff alleged that his suit to secure an interpretation of the Kaiser contract was to obtain a speedy resolution of the controversy between the parties in order to avoid a multiplicity of actions that would otherwise result, since the persons and entities that had rendered medical and hospital services to plaintiff's wife had sued plaintiff and plaintiff had cross complained against Kaiser. Kaiser demurred to the complaint, asserting it did not state a cause of action in declaratory relief because: (1) the cause of action asserted was on a matured claim which should be adjudicated in another form of action; and (2) plaintiff's claim for reimbursement was not covered by the plan. The trial court sustained the demurrer with 30 days leave to amend. Plaintiff did not amend and the action was dismissed. Plaintiff appealed. In reversing the judgment, the court of appeal concluded that the complaint adequately alleged that a declaratory judgment was appropriate to avoid multiplicity of litigation and to construe a contract creating a continuing relationship (plaintiff remained insured under the plan), despite Kaiser's alleged breach of the contract, and that the contract could, at trial, properly be construed as one of adhesion, in which case ambiguities could be resolved against the defendant (47 Cal. App. 3d 678, 680) . The court said that the discretion to refuse to entertain an action in declaratory relief vested in the trial court by Code Civ. Proc. § 1061 is not unlimited but may be exercised only when there is a basis in fact for the conclusion that the declaration is not necessary or proper (47 Cal. App. 3d 678, 683) .

[b] Doubt as to Whether Judicial Declaration Is Necessary

The factual background of Warren v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 678, 121 Cal. Rptr. 19 is set forth in § 67.54[3][a]. In holding that the trial court under the facts alleged erred in refusing to grant declaratory relief, the court of appeal said that any doubt should be resolved in favor of granting declaratory relief (47 Cal. App. 3d 678, 683) .

[c] Alternative Remedy as Required to Be Adequate

Maguire v. Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc'y (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 719, 146 P.2d 673 involved four actions for declaratory relief by successors in interest to alleged members of and depositors in defendant savings and loan society. The trial court sustained demurrers to the complaints without leave to amend on the ground that no cause of action was stated and specifically that relief was barred by the statute of limitations and laches. It also granted motions of some of the individual defendants to dismiss the actions on the ground that declaratory relief was not necessary or proper under Code Civ. Proc. § 1061. Judgments in the four actions were entered in favor of defendants, and plaintiffs appealed, submitting the appeal on a single set of briefs. In holding that the actions were barred neither by the statute of limitations nor by laches and that the complaints stated causes of action for declaratory relief, the court acknowledged that the availability of another adequate remedy may condition the necessity for declaratory relief specifically noting defendants' contention that mandamus, quo warranto, and injunctive relief were available to plaintiffs for the protection of their rights and that the trial court had discretion to deny declaratory relief on the ground that it was not necessary or proper because of the existence of other remedies. However, the court pointed out that defendants failed to show on what theory the suggested alternative remedies would have been available to plaintiffs, or, if available, that they would have been speedy or adequate or have served as well as or better than the remedy plaintiffs had involved. The court stated that while some authorities limit a trial court's discretion to refuse to make a declaration on the ground that other remedies are available, all agree that before a court may properly exercise its discretion to refuse relief on that ground, it must clearly appear that the asserted alternative remedies are available to the plaintiff and that they are speedy and adequate or as well suited to the plaintiff's needs as declaratory relief (23 Cal. 2d 719, 731) .

[d] Action at Law for Breach of Contract as Inadequate

The factual background of Warren v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 678, 121 Cal. Rptr. 19 is discussed in § 67.54[3][a]. In holding that the trial court under the facts alleged erred in refusing to grant declaratory relief on the ground that an action for breach of contract had matured, the court of appeal stated that a lawsuit for breach of contract is neither as speedy and adequate nor as well suited as declaratory relief to the plaintiff's needs where, despite the breach, a relationship between the parties continues so that a declaration may guide their future conduct, or where the use of declaratory relief will avoid a multiplicity of suits that may ensue if a different remedy is pursued (47 Cal. App. 3d 678, 683-684) . Applying the rule to the facts before it, the court said that although the complaint claimed that Kaiser breached its contract, it also showed on its fact that the relationship between plaintiff and Kaiser is a continuing one since plaintiff continued to be a member of the plan after the claimed breach. A declaration of the right of a member of the plan for reimbursement of medical expense incurred in an emergency so grave as to preclude access to Kaiser contract hospitals and physicians would guide the future conduct of the parties. It added that if nothing else, a declaration in Kaiser's favor would be the warning that the plan may not be adequate to the needs of its members, including appellant. The court also found that the remedy of declaratory relief would avoid multiplicity of litigation, noting that the substantial obligations plaintiff incurred for the care of his late wife, if reimbursed by Kaiser, would avoid threatened lawsuits against plaintiff by those who provided the medical and hospital care. The court concluded that the trial court had erred in refusing declaratory relief since plaintiff had pleaded a controversy concerning the construction of t contract creating the Kaiser plan and facts establishing the proposition that declaratory relief was faster, more adequate, and better suited than would be an action for breach of contract. The court further held that the trial court's error was prejudicial and, hence, required reversal of the judgment (47 Cal. App. 3d 678, 689) .

[e] Criminal Sanctions as Inadequate Remedy

Tiburon v. Northwestern P. R. Co. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 160, 84 Cal. Rptr. 469 was an action for declaratory and injunctive relief against the railroad and its lessee and vendee with respect to the leasing and conveyancing of a 49-acre parcel of the railroad's real property which the city alleged had been divided and subdivided in violation of state law and local ordinances. The trial court dismissed the action and plaintiff appealed. On appeal defendants urged, inter alia, that the dismissal could be upheld as an exercise of the trial court's discretionary power to refuse declaratory relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 1061, since violation of the Subdivision Map Act was made illegal by that act, the criminal sanctions were not illusory, and conspirators to violate the act could be liable to a fine of $5,000 and three years imprisonment under former Penal Code § 182. Rejecting the argument the court of appeal found it unnecessary to weigh the effect of the penalty against the costs of designing and improving a subdivision to the standards required by the local ordinances involved (4 Cal. App. 3d 160, 175) . It explained that the purpose of subdivision control is to provide for the general welfare of the purchasers of the divided lands and the community in general, and observed that to license the indiscriminate division of land by the imposition of criminal penalties would not serve to preserve the orderly development of the city (4 Cal. App. 3d 160, 176) . The court pointed out that the remedies suggested by the defendants did not justify a refusal of the trial court to exercise the power to grant declaratory relief under the discretion conferred by Code Civ. Proc. § 1061 (4 Cal. App. 3d 160, 177) . In quoting from Maguire v. Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc'y, discussed in § 67.54[3][c], it stated that it must clearly appear that the asserted alternative remedies are available to plaintiff and that they are speedy and adequate or as well suited to the plaintiff's needs as declaratory relief.

[f] Unfavorable Declaration

The factual background of Maguire v. Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc'y (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 719, 146 P.2d 673 is set forth in § 67.54[3][c]. On appeal defendants contended that a complaint fails to state a cause of action for declaratory relief unless it appears therefrom that the plaintiff is entitled to a favorable declaration. In rejecting this argument, the court pointed out that Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 provides that a party may bring an action for a declaration of his rights and duties in the premises and that the declaration may be either affirmative or negative in form and effect, but that the section contains no suggestion that the pleader must allege facts entitling him to a favorable declaration (23 Cal. 2d 719, 730) . The court added that where the plaintiff is not entitled to a favorable declaration, it has been held that the trial court should render a judgment embodying such determination and should not merely dismiss the action (23 Cal. 2d 719, 729) .

In Levi v. O'Connell (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 700, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 691 , the mother of an extremely gifted child filed suit, on behalf of herself and as guardian ad litem for the child, against the California Department of Education. The complaint sought a declaration that, pursuant to the California Constitution and the Compulsory Education Law (see Cal. Const., art. IX, § 5; Educ. Code § 48200 et seq.), the Department was obligated to pay for the child's college education until age 16. The trial court sustained the Department's demurrer without leave to amend, and the plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal held that the trial court erred in sustaining the demurrer. The court explained that the fundamental basis of declaratory relief is the existence of an actual, present controversy over a proper subject. In this case, the complaint alleged sufficient specific facts regarding the child's educational circumstances to establish an actual, current controversy over whether the Department's constitutional and statutory obligation to fund an appropriate education included a college education for an extremely gifted child. The court rejected the Department's argument that the plaintiff had not pled a cause of action for declaratory relief because the plaintiffs had no right to, and the Department had no duty to provide, the education sought. The court noted that, strictly speaking, a general demurrer is not an appropriate means of testing the merits of the controversy in a declaratory relief action, because the plaintiff is entitled to a declaration of the parties' rights "even if it be adverse" (144 Cal. App. 4th 700, 706) .

Although it concluded that the trial court had erred in sustaining the demurrer, the court of appeal did not remand the case. Instead, the appellate court found it appropriate to proceed directly to the merits of the case. The court of appeal explained that if the merits issue is purely one of law, and the appellate court agrees with the trial court's resolution of the issue against the plaintiff, the appellate court need not reverse the trial court's dismissal and remand the case for a trial. Instead, the appellate court may consider the merits, and its judgment will constitute the declaration of the parties' rights concerning the matter in controversy (144 Cal. App. 4th 700, 706) . On the merits, the court of appeal concluded that the plaintiffs in this case did not have a constitutional or statutory right to a free college education. Accordingly, the court affirmed the lower court's judgment of dismissal (144 Cal. App. 4th 700, 706-711) .

[g] Plaintiff Entitled to Some Relief

Lord v. Garland (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 840, 168 P.2d 5 was an action by an individual, engaged in the business of caravanning automobiles from eastern states into California, against the Department of Motor Vehicles and its director and officers for a determination of the constitutionality of a state law, for injunctive relief, and for recovery of a deposit. The defendants demurred to the complaint on both general and special grounds. The demurrer was sustained without leave to amend, and plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal. The Supreme Court reversed the judgment. In the course of rejecting the various theories on which the trial court might have based its order sustaining the demurrer, the Court noted that declaratory relief may under Code Civ. Proc. § 1061 be refused in the discretion of the trial court if it appears that the determination is not necessary or proper at the time under all the circumstances and that where the facts pleaded by the plaintiff would justify a trial court in applying that rule, a demurrer to the complaint may be sustained. It added however, that it is equally true that Code Civ. Proc. § 1061 does not apply if on the facts stated, plaintiff is entitled to some relief in connection with the matter which occasioned the controversy. The Court concluded that in considering all of the circumstances as they existed at the time the complaint was filed and in view of the fact that the action for declaratory relief may be invoked to test the constitutionality of a statute, the trial court would have abused its discretion if it had sustained the general demurrer on the ground that the remedy was not necessary or proper (27 Cal. 2d 840, 852) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Alternative Remedy as Required to Be Adequate

The factual and procedural background of Columbia Pictures Corp. v. DeToth (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 753, 161 P.2d 217 is discussed in § 67.52[3][c]. In reversing the judgment of the trial court, entered after it had sustained defendants' general and special demurrers to plaintiff's complaint for declaratory relief, the Supreme Court, among other things, said that the fact that a cause of action otherwise may have accrued and that other adequate relief may have been available to the plaintiff at the time are factors to be considered by the trial court in determining if declaratory relief is necessary or proper under Code Civ. Proc. § 1061. The remedies provided by the statute are cumulative, and declaratory relief may be asked alone or with other relief. Hence, a plaintiff's right to proceed is not barred by the fact that the contract sued on may have already been breached and that traditional or statutory alternative remedies are available (26 Cal. 2d 753, 761) . Noting the rule the Court had stated in Maguire, that before declaratory relief may be denied on the ground of the existence of other remedies, it must clearly appear that the asserted alternative remedies are available to the plaintiff and that they are speedy and adequate or as well suited to the plaintiff's needs as declaratory relief, the Court found plaintiff's allegations did not necessarily show that the remedy of declaratory relief may not have been better suited to plaintiff's needs than the traditional remedies otherwise disclosed (26 Cal. 2d 753, 762) . The Court added that furthermore, as stated in Ermolieff v. R.K.O. Radio Pictures (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 543, 547, 122 P.2d 3 , ordinarily, the alternative remedy, such as damages, injunctive relief, and the like would be more harsh, and if a plaintiff chooses the milder remedy, declaratory relief, the court is n required for that reason to compel the plaintiff to seek a more stringent one.

The factual background of Warren v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 678, 121 Cal. Rptr. 19 is set forth in § 67.54[3][a]. In holding that the trial court under the facts alleged erred in refusing to grant declaratory relief on the ground that an action at law for breach of contract had matured, the court of appeal said that while the court may refuse to entertain the action where the rights of the complaining party have crystallized into a cause of action for past wrongs, and all relationship between the parties has ceased to exist, it may not exclude the action where the alternative remedy of suing on the matured breach is not as speedy and adequate or as well suited to the plaintiff's needs as declaratory relief (47 Cal. App. 3d 678, 683) .

General Ins. Co. of America v. Whitmore (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 670, 45 Cal. Rptr. 556 was a declaratory relief action by an insurer which had issued a public liability policy covering defendant Whitmores and their minor son for negligence. A passenger train had been derailed. One of the passengers sued the two carriers involved, the Whitmores' son, and two other minors for damages for personal injuries sustained in the train wreck. The theory on which liability was predicated was negligence. While that action was pending, the insurer brought this declaratory relief action in which it named as defendants the Whitmores and their son, the other two boys and each member of their families and their insurance carriers, the two carriers involved in the train derailment, the tort plaintiff, and 200 (Does 1 to 200) other passengers on the train. The complaint alleged that the train derailment was the result of a carried out conspiracy among the three boys to willfully and intentionally tamper with and destroy switches and other railroad equipment to derail the train (an allegation not contained in the tort complaint), and set forth the various contentions of the parties with respect to plaintiff's rights and liabilities. The Whitmores' demurrer to the complaint was sustained without leave to amend and plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal. In reversing the judgment, the court of appeal observed that in California declaratory relief is frequently invoked to determine the question of policy coverage in light of the facts alleged (235 Cal. App. 2d 670, 673) , and in pointing out that the issues raised in the declaratory relief action were not capable of resolution in the tort action, held that any alternative remedy must be speedy and adequate or as well suited to plaintiff's needs as declaratory relief before a court may properly refuse to exercise its discretion to refuse relief on that ground. The court discussed as an example the fact that since coverage under the policy is denied by reason of the willful and intentional acts alleged in the complaint, plaintiff could not possibly advance that claim in the damage suit which would be wholly inconsistent with the interests of its assureds and render the latter liable as a matter of law (235 Cal. App. 2d 670, 675) .

It should be noted that in Allstate Ins. Co. v. Fisher (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 391, 395, 107 Cal. Rptr. 251 (affirming a judgment dismissing the insurer's declaratory relief action), the court of appeal distinguished Whitmore and other declaratory relief cases which would have been adverse to the insured's interests in the tort action. In Allstate on the other hand, the declaration sought by the insurer that its insured's employee was not driving with permission and was not acting within the course and scope of his employment at the time of the accident would have benefitted the insured in the tort action.

London Assur. Co. v. Anderson (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 418, 15 Cal. Rptr. 13 was an action by several insurance companies against a number of defendants, including one Osborn, for declaratory relief with respect to plaintiffs' liability, if any, under fire insurance policies issued to defendant Anderson with loss payable to defendants Lange and Stoll covering a stock of tires damaged or destroyed by fire. Plaintiffs alleged that the fire was willfully set by defendants. The complaint also alleged that (1) the tires, both at the time the policies were issued and at the time of the fire, were owned by defendant Osborn, (2) knowing that plaintiffs would not have issued a policy to Osborn, defendants entered into a conspiracy to conceal Osborn's ownership from them, and (3) had plaintiffs known the true facts they would not have issued the policies. Osborn's general demurrer to the complaint was sustained without leave to amend, and plaintiffs appealed from the subsequent judgment. The court of appeal reversed the judgment with directions to allow plaintiffs to file an amended complaint against Osborn for declaratory relief concerning plaintiffs' right of indemnity from Osborn, who was one of the defendants alleged to have willfully set fire to the tires. Osborn contended that if he willfully set fire to the tires, plaintiffs could sue him in an independent action and hence, plaintiffs had an adequate remedy at law. In rejecting this argument, the court of appeal, quoted from Maguire v. Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc'y (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 719, 732, 146 P.2d 673 , the statement set out in the discussion of this case in § 67.54[3][c]. The court added that if Osborn remained a defendant to the declaratory relief action, very little different or additional evidence would be required to be adduced at the trial and that if the evidence sustained plaintiffs' position, the trial court, in the declaratory relief action, could find a subrogated right and adjudge indemnification against Osborn. The court found the remedy of declaratory relief sought by plaintiffs to be a useful, speedy, and adequate remedy so fervidly desired in the processing of legal matters.

[b] Unfavorable Declaration

Wellenkamp v. Bank of America (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 943, 148 Cal. Rptr. 379, 582 P.2d 970 was an action by the purchaser of real property against the bank, which had loaned the sellers the money with which to buy the property some two years before, and had taken back their note for $19,100 at eight percent interest per annum secured by a trust deed containing a "due-on" clause, to enjoin enforcement of the due-on clause, and for a declaration that exercise of the clause without any showing that defendant's security had been impaired as a result of the sale of the property to plaintiff, constituted an unreasonable restraint on alienation. Defendant's general demurrer to the complaint was sustained without leave to amend, and a judgment dismissing the complaint was entered. Plaintiff appealed. In reversing the judgment, the Supreme Court stated that the complaint was legally sufficient for declaratory relief and that in such case where no basis for declining declaratory relief appears, the court should declare the rights of the parties whether or not the facts alleged establish that plaintiff is entitled to favorable declaration (21 Cal. 3d 943, 947) . The Court explained that since the complaint was legally sufficient, the trial court committed error when it tested the sufficiency of the complaint by a determination of the merits and sustained the demurrer on the ground that no cause of action for declaratory relief had been stated. The Court further held that automatic exercise of the due-on clause cannot be enforced on the occurrence of an outright sale unless the lender can demonstrate that enforcement is reasonably necessary to protect against impairment to its security or the risk of default (21 Cal. 3d 943, 947-948) .

Salsbery v. Ritter (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 1, 306 P.2d 897 was an action for declaratory relief, to determine conflicting claims to realty, and to nullify a judgment and an execution sale of realty pursuant to it. The action was filed against the municipal court, its clerk, the county sheriff, plaintiffs' judgment creditors, and the purchasers of the property at the execution sale. It appeared from the complaint that a judgment in the amount of $150.09 and costs had been obtained by one of the insured defendants against plaintiffs pursuant to which a writ of execution was levied on plaintiffs' interest in certain realty, which was sold by the sheriff for $51.70 to three other named defendants; that thereafter, two of the other defendants obtained judgment in the amount of $1,500 against plaintiffs and recorded their judgment; that about 10 months later plaintiffs homesteaded their interest in the realty; that about a week thereafter the judgment creditors on the second judgment redeemed the property by paying the sheriff $51.70 plus interest and costs but did not record a notice of redemption; that on the next day plaintiffs served on the sheriff and recorded a notice of redemption and paid the sheriff $61.80 which was still on deposit with him; that the second judgment creditors and the sheriff demanded that plaintiffs pay the sheriff an additional sum equal to the amount of the judgment in favor of these creditors plus interest and costs; that the sheriff refused to issue a certificate of redemption to either plaintiffs or the judgment creditors on the ground he did not know who was legally entitled to it; and that approximately four weeks later plaintiffs filed petitions in bankruptcy discharging the judgments against them. Defendants' demurrers to the complaint were sustained without leave to amend and plaintiffs appealed. The Supreme Court held that the demurrers of the municipal court and its clerk were properly sustained. In reversing the judgments as to the other defendants, the Supreme Court said that in an action for declaratory relief, when the complaint shows the existence of an actual controversy among the parties, a general demurrer to the complaint should be overruled. The Court explained that the plaintiff is entitled to a declaration of his rights whether the declaration is favorable to him or not. With respect to the judgment creditors and execution purchasers, the Court held that the complaint showed the existence of an actual controversy (48 Cal. 2d 1, 7) . With respect to the sheriff, the Court pointed out that although the remedy against him might appropriately have been a petition for mandate, an action for declaratory relief is not inappropriate, since the controversy with respect to the redemptions revolved around the meaning of a statute and that, furthermore, as against a general demurrer, a complaint may be construed as an application for mandate.

Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 305 P.2d 20 was an action for declaratory relief to determine plaintiffs' rights, if any, in defendant bank. The trial court sustained a general demurrer of the complaint without leave to amend, and dismissed the action, and plaintiffs appealed. In holding that the trial court erred in sustaining the general demurrer and reversing the judgment, the Supreme Court said that where a complaint for declaratory relief is sufficient, the court must declare the rights of the parties whether the facts alleged establish that the plaintiff is entitled to a favorable declaration (47 Cal. 2d 540, 550) .

The factual background of Columbia Pictures Corp. v. DeToth (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 753, 161 P.2d 217 is set forth in § 67.52[3][c]. In reversing the judgment of dismissal, the Supreme Court said that it is not essential, to entitle a plaintiff to seek declaratory relief, that he should establish his right to a favorable declaration. The purpose of the declaratory judgment is to serve some practical end in quieting or stabilizing an uncertain or disputed jural relation (26 Cal. 2d 753, 760) .

The factual background of Tiburon v. Northwestern P. R. Co. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 160, 84 Cal. Rptr. 469 is set forth in § 67.52[3][c]. The court of appeal pointed out that the purpose of a declaratory judgment is to serve some practical end in quieting or stabilizing an uncertain or disputed jural relation and that to hold that a plaintiff on the wrong side of a controversy is not entitled to the security and relief against uncertainty which a declaratory judgment affords would require the court to read into Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 a limitation not present there (4 Cal. App. 3d 160, 173) .

C. Dudley De Velbiss Co. v. Kraintz (1951) 101 Cal. App. 2d 612, 225 P.2d 969 was an action by a building contractor against the county building inspector for declaratory relief to determine the constitutionality of county ordinances relating to construction, which ordinances plaintiff claimed were discriminatory in their application and vague and indefinite. Defendant's demurrer to the complaint was sustained without leave to amend, and plaintiff appealed from the ensuing judgment. The court of appeal held that the trial court erred in sustaining the demurrer since the complaint stated a valid cause of action. Moreover, since it could not be said one way or the other on the basis of the record as a matter of law as to whether the ordinances were or were not constitutional, the error was prejudicial, and the court reversed the judgment. The court, quoting from Columbia Pictures Corp. v. DeToth (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 753, 760, 161 P.2d 217 , above, said that it is not essential, to entitle a plaintiff to seek declaratory relief, that he should establish his right to a favorable declaration (101 Cal. App. 2d 612, 615) .

[c] Plaintiff Entitled to Some Relief

Foster v. Masters Pontiac Co. (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 481, 322 P.2d 592 was an action by the buyer of a new car against the seller for declaratory relief as to the validity of the contract to purchase the car and for money had and received. The trial court sustained a special and general demurrer to the third amended complaint without leave to amend, and plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal. In reversing the judgment with directions to overrule the demurrer on the ground that an action for declaratory relief was sufficiently alleged (158 Cal. App. 2d 481, 486) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 6 Chapters 60-69 COSTS---to---DECLARATORY RELIEF
CHAPTER 67 DECLARATORY RELIEF
PART II. FORMS

6-67 California Points & Authorities § 67.55

§ 67.55 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10] for Declaratory Relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]--Plaintiff Has Standing to Challenge Law or Regulation

[1] FORM Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10] for Declaratory Relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]--Plaintiff Has Standing to Challenge Law or Regulation

[Caption. See § 67.50.]

ANY INTERESTED PERSON SUBJECT TO THE CHALLENGED _____ [LAW or REGULATION] OR AFFECTED BY IT HAS STANDING TO SUE FOR DECLARATORY RELIEF IF THE PERSONAL STAKE OF THE PARTY IS SUCH AS TO ASSURE THAT THE DISPUTE WILL BE PRESENTED IN AN ADVERSARY MANNER.

A. Action by Interested Person. Any interested person may sue for declaratory relief _____ (Section 1060 of the Code of Civil Procedure or Section 11350 of the Government Code or Section 11350.3 of the Government Code or Section 409.2 of the Unemployment Insurance Code).

B. What Constitutes Interest. A person is interested within the meaning of Section _____ [1060 of the Code of Civil Procedure or _____ (11350 or 11350.3) of the Government Code or 409.2 of the Unemployment Insurance Code] if he or she or it is a person who is subject to the challenged regulation or law or is affected by it (see Pacific Legal Foundation v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 150, 154, 141 Cal. Rptr. 474 (involving Unemp. Ins. Code § 409.2).

C. Criteria. An interested person has standing to sue (even though such person is not specifically authorized by statute to maintain the action) if the party has such a personal stake in the outcome of the controversy as to ensure that the dispute sought to be adjudicated will be presented in an adversary context and in a form historically viewed as capable of judicial resolution (Residents of Beverly Glen, Inc. v. Los Angeles (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 117, 123, 109 Cal. Rptr. 724 , quoting from Sierra Club v. Morton (1972) 405 U.S. 727, 732, 92 S. Ct. 1361, 31 L. Ed. 2d 636).

[Optional] D. Action by Corporation. As used in the statute, the word "person" [or "organization"] includes a corporation (_____ [if pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 Code Civ. Proc. § 17, or if action under Gov. Code § 11350 see Chas. L. Harney, Inc. v. Contractors' Bd. (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 561, 564, 247 P.2d 913 , or if action under Unemp. Ins. Code § 409.2 see Pacific Legal Foundation v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 150, 154, 141 Cal. Rptr. 474]).

NOTE:

The term "interested person" as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 and Gov. Code §§ 11350 and 1350.3 would apparently include an unincorporated association as well as a corporation since an unincorporated association has power to sue and be sued in the name it has assumed or by which it is known [Code Civ. Proc. § 369.5(a)]. The term "interested ... organization" as used in Unemp. Ins. Code § 409.2, while not defined in the code, would appear to have been used generically to include both incorporated and unincorporated associations. [See Webster's Third International Dictionary defining "organization," among other things, as a group of people that has a more or less constant membership.] It also appears that the term "interested person" would include a limited liability company, although the above cited statutes have not been amended to reflect this [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 680.280, 706.011(g) (for purposes of enforcement of judgments and wage garnishment statutes, term "person" includes limited liability company)].

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint for declaratory relief on the ground the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that plaintiff lacks standing to sue [see § 67.25].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action by Interested Person

Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 provides, in pertinent part, that any person interested under a written instrument, excluding a will or a trust, or under a contract may, in cases of actual controversy, bring an original action in the superior court for a declaration of his or her rights and duties in premises.

Gov. Code § 11350 provides, in pertinent part, that any interested person may obtain a judicial declaration as to the validity of any regulation by bringing an action for declaratory relief in the superior court in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure.

Gov. Code § 11350.3 provides, in pertinent part, that any interested person may obtain a judicial declaration as to the validity of any regulation disapproved or ordered repealed by the Office of Administrative Law by bringing an action for declaratory relief in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure.

Unemp. Ins. Code § 409.2 provides, in pertinent part, that any interested person may bring an action for declaratory relief in the superior court in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure to obtain a judicial declaration as to the validity of any precedent decision of the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board.

[b] What Constitutes Interest

Pacific Legal Foundation v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 150, 141 Cal. Rptr. 474 was an action to determine the validity of a precedent benefit decision of the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board pursuant to the provisions of Unemp. Ins. Code § 409.2. Defendant's answer denied that plaintiff was an "interested organization" under the code section and moved for judgment on the pleadings on this ground and on the ground that the complaint did not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. The motion was granted, and plaintiff appealed. In reversing the judgment after holding that plaintiff was an interested person and that the complaint did state a cause of action, the court of appeal said that the terms "interested person" or "interested organization" may be considered interchangeable and have been the subject of prior decisional interpretation under Code Civ. Proc. § 1060, the general declaratory relief statute referred to in Unemp. Ins. Code § 409.2 and former Gov. Code § 11440 [now see Gov. Code § 11350], which allow any interested person to obtain a judicial declaration as to the validity of any regulation by bringing an action for declaratory relief in the superior court (74 Cal. App. 3d 150, 154) . The court added that it has been held that the term "interested person" as used in former Gov. Code § 11440 [now see Gov. Code § 11350] and Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 are identical in use and should be so construed and that former Gov. Code § 11440 [now see Gov. Code § 11350] refers to the declaratory relief provision of the Code of Civil Procedure as does Unemp. Ins. Code § 409.2. The court acknowledged the fundamental principle that a person challenging a law must be a person or organization subject to it or affected by it and concluded that plaintiff corporation was a person both affected by the precedent decision in question ad interested in it and therefore had standing to maintain the action to determine its validity (74 Cal. App. 3d 150, 155) .

[c] Criteria

Residents of Beverly Glen, Inc. v. Los Angeles (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 117, 109 Cal. Rptr. 724 was a proceeding in mandate and action for declaratory relief to have a conditional use permit granted to a real property developer by the city set aside and to declare that a specified section of the city's municipal code was unconstitutional. Plaintiff was a nonprofit corporation whose membership consisted of families resident in the area affected by the permit. The petition for writ of mandate was denied and defendant's subsequent motion for summary judgment on the declaratory relief actions was granted on the ground that plaintiff lacked standing to maintain the action since it owned no property in the affected area. In reversing the judgment, the court of appeal pointed out that the plaintiff had standing in view of the allegations of its complaint that (1) it was a corporation whose members lived in the affected area and (2) its members would suffer injury if the challenged project (a planned residential development), to be constructed under the permit pursuant to an allegedly unconstitutional ordinance, were allowed to proceed. The court noted that in recent years there has been a marked accommodation of formerly strict procedural requirements of standing to sue where matters relating to the social and economic realities of the present-day organization of society are concerned (34 Cal. App. 3d 117, 122) , and quoting from Sierra Club v. Morton (1972) 405 U.S. 727, 732, 92 S. Ct. 1361, 31 L. Ed. 2d 636 , the court said that where the party does not rely on any specific statute authorizing invocation of the judicial process, the question of standing depends on whether the party has alleged such a personal stake in the outcome of the controversy, as to ensure that the dispute sought to be adjudicated will be presented in an adversary context and in a form historically viewed as capable of judicial resolution, and that where Congress has provided by statute for judicial review under certain circumstances, the inquiry as to standing must begin with a determination of whether the statute in question authorizes review at the behest of the plaintiff (34 Cal. App. 3d 117, 123) .

[d] Action by Corporation

As already noted, Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 authorizes any interested person to sue for declaratory relief. Code Civ. Proc. § 17, in part, provides that the word "person" as used in the code includes a corporation as well as a natural person.

Gov. Code § 11350 authorizes any interested person to obtain declaratory relief as to the validity of any regulation by bringing an action for declaratory relief in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure. The Government Code does not define the word "person" but by the reference to the Code of Civil Procedure if would appear that the definition of "person" in Code Civ. Proc. § 17 would apply. In Chas. L. Harney, Inc. v. Contractors' Bd. (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 561, 247 P.2d 913 , a corporation (a licensed general engineering contractor) sued the State Contractors' License Board under former Gov. Code § 11440 [now see Gov. Code § 11350] to obtain declaratory relief as to the validity of a regulation adopted by the board. The Supreme Court stated that the corporation, which was directly affected by the regulation, was an interested "party" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 and former Gov. Code § 11440 [now see Gov. Code § 11350] (39 Cal. 2d 561, 564) .

Unemp. Ins. Code § 409.2 authorizes a declaratory relief action by any interested person or organization in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure. The code defines neither "person" nor "organization," but it would appear that as in the case of former Gov. Code § 11440 [now see Gov Code § 11350], by the cross reference to the Code of Civil Procedure the definition of "person" set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 17 would apply to an action pursuant to Unemp. Ins. Code § 409.2 [see, e.g., Pacific Legal Foundation v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 150, 141 Cal. Rptr. 474 (action by nonprofit corporation)].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 6 Chapters 60-69 COSTS---to---DECLARATORY RELIEF
CHAPTER 67 DECLARATORY RELIEF
PART II. FORMS

6-67 California Points & Authorities § 67.56

§ 67.56 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10] for Declaratory Relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]--Complaint Not Barred by Statute of Limitations When Brought Before Any Actual Breach

[1] FORM Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10] for Declaratory Relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]--Complaint Not Barred by Statute of Limitations When Brought Before Any Actual Breach

[Caption. See § 67.50.]

A COMPLAINT FOR DECLARATORY RELIEF BROUGHT BEFORE ANY ACTUAL BREACH IS NOT BARRED BY STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS BECAUSE NO STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS HAS BEEN SET IN MOTION.

Complaint for Declaratory Relief Brought Before Any Actual Breach as Not Barred by Statute of Limitations. If declaratory relief is sought before there has been a breach of the obligation in respect to which the declaration is sought, the right to such relief is not barred by lapse of time. In the absence of any breach, no cause of action for a coercive remedy has accrued and no statute of limitations has been set in motion (United Pacific/Reliance Ins. Co. v. DiDomencio (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 673, 676-677, 219 Cal. Rptr. 119).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a complaint for declaratory relief when the demurrer is based on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that it is barred by the applicable statute of limitations [see § 67.26]. The ground for opposition is that no breach giving rise to a coercive remedy has yet occurred, and therefore no statute of limitations has yet been set in motion.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should include facts showing that there has been no actual breach of the obligation with respect to which the declaration is sought.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Complaint for Declaratory Relief Brought Before Any Actual Breach as Not Barred by Statute of Limitations

In United Pacific/Reliance Ins. Co. v. DiDomencio (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 673, 219 Cal. Rptr. 119 , defendant had been sued in a tort action and plaintiff, his insurer, undertook the defense of the tort action pursuant to a reservation of rights. Plaintiff then filed an action seeking a declaration that it had no duty under the insurance policy to defend or indemnify defendant. Because defendant was also subject to criminal charges arising from the conduct that was the basis of the tort action, the trial court stayed proceedings in both the declaratory relief action and the tort action. After the criminal charges were dropped, the declaratory relief action was dismissed without prejudice, and a second declaratory relief action was instituted two days later. Defendant demurred on the ground that the action was barred by the statute of limitations, and the trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend. Plaintiff appealed the subsequent judgment of dismissal.

The court of appeal reversed (173 Cal. App. 3d 673, 677) . The court cited the leading case of Maguire v. Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc'y (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 719, 734, 146 P.2d 673 , discussed in § 67.26[3][b] for the principle that, if declaratory relief is sought before there has been any breach of the obligation with respect to which the declaration is sought, the right to such relief is not barred by the lapse of time. Until some conventional or coercive right of action has accrued, the statute of limitations does not operate to cut off the alternative right to bring an action for declaratory relief (173 Cal. App. 3d 673, 676) . The court noted that, in the present case, plaintiff had not breached its contract obligations with defendant but had assumed defendant's defense in the tort action pending a declaration of its rights and duties. It held that, in the absence of any breach, no cause of action for coercive relief had accrued and no statute of limitations had been set in motion (173 Cal. App. 3d 673, 677) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 6 Chapters 60-69 COSTS---to---DECLARATORY RELIEF
Chapters 68through 69 RESERVED

6-68 California Points & Authorities Chapters 68through 69

RESERVED

Chapters 68RESERVED

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS

7-70 California Points & Authorities 70.syn

§ 70.syn Synopsis to Chapter 70: DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS

§ 70.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 70.02 Governing Law

§ 70.03 How to Use the Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Points and Authorities

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

§ 70.04 Related Discussion and Forms

[1] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[2] Related Points and Authorities Chapters

§§ 70.05-70.09 [Reserved]

§ 70.10 Supporting Defendant's Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Alternative Methods of Obtaining Relief

[d] Relief From Judgments, Orders and Proceedings Generally

[e] Showing of Meritorious Defense

[f] Relief From Default as Well as Default Judgment

[g] Multiple Grounds for Relief

[h] Conditions for Granting Relief

[i] Renewal of Motion

[j] Timely Filing of Motion

[k] Opposing Points and Authorities

[l] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Policy of Law Favors Trial on Merits

[b] Court Has Wide Discretion in Granting Relief

[c] Liberal Construction of Statute

[d] Timeliness of Motion

§ 70.11 Supporting Defendant's Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Slight Evidence Is Sufficient if Motion Is Timely or No Prejudice Is Shown

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Slight Evidence Sufficient if Motion Promptly Made

[b] Slight Evidence Sufficient if No Prejudice Shown

§ 70.12 Supporting Defendant's Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[b] Attorney Affidavit Procedure Available After Default Entered by Judge

[c] Attorney Affidavit Procedure Available to Remedy Procedural Equivalent of Default

§§ 70.13-70.19 [Reserved]

§ 70.20 Supporting Contention That Motion for Relief Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) in Conjunction With Motion to Quash Is Not General Appearance [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(d)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Memoranda

§§ 70.21-70.29 [Reserved]

§ 70.30 Supporting Plaintiff's Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form--Plaintiff Is Entitled to Relief From Default

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Plaintiff Entitled to Relief From Default

[b] Relief Available to Party in Whose Favor Judgment Was Rendered

[c] Liberal Construction of Statute

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Relief Available to Party in Whose Favor Judgment Was Rendered

§§ 70.31-70.39 [Reserved]

§ 70.40 Supporting Intervenor's Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 387, 473(b)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Intervention Procedure

[d] Application for Intervention

[e] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intervention to Set Aside Default

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Intervention to Set Aside Default

§ 70.41 Supporting Intervenor's Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 387, 473(b)]--Intervention Required When Interests Affected

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

§§ 70.42-70.49 [Reserved]

§ 70.50 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake of Fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mistake of Fact Defined

§ 70.51 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake of Fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Mistake Regarding Fact of Service

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mistake Regarding Fact of Service

§ 70.52 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake of Fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Mistake Regarding Date of Service

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mistake Regarding Date of Service

§ 70.53 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake of Fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Mistake Caused by Incapacity

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mistake Caused by Incapacity

§ 70.54 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake of Fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Mistake of Attorney

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[d] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mistake of Attorney

[b] Attorney May be In-House Counsel

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Mistake of Attorney

§§ 70.55-70.59 [Reserved]

§ 70.60 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake of Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[d] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mistake of Law Defined

[b] Relief for Reasonable Mistake of Law

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Relief for Reasonable Mistake of Law

§ 70.61 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake of Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Relief When Problem Is Complex and Debatable

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Relief When Problem Complex and Debatable

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Relief When Problem Complex and Debatable

§ 70.62 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake of Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Mistake of Law Regarding Validity of Summons or Complaint

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mistake of Law Regarding Validity of Summons or Complaint

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Mistake of Law Regarding Validity of Summons or Complaint

§ 70.63 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake of Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Mistake of Law Regarding Validity of Court's Jurisdiction

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mistake of Law Regarding Validity of Court's Jurisdiction

§ 70.64 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake of Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Mistake of Law Regarding Meritorious Defense

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mistake of Law Regarding Meritorious Defense

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Mistake of Law Regarding Meritorious Defense

§§ 70.65-70.69 [Reserved]

§ 70.70 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Inadvertence [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[d] Notice of Request to Enter Default

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Excusable Inadvertence

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Excusable Inadvertence

§ 70.71 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Inadvertence [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Failure to Transmit Summons and Complaint

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Transmit Summons and Complaint to Attorney

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to Transmit Summons and Complaint to Attorney

§§ 70.72-70.79 [Reserved]

§ 70.80 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Surprise [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Surprise Defined

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Surprise Defined

§ 70.81 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Surprise [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Settlement Negotiations in Progress

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Settlement Negotiations in Progress

§§ 70.82-70.89 [Reserved]

§ 70.90 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Reasonably Prudent Person Would Have Acted Similarly Under Same Circumstances

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Policy Favors Relief if Excusable Neglect Shown

[b] Excusable Neglect Defined

[c] Relief for Excusable Neglect Based on Prudent Conduct

§ 70.91 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Disability of Party--Party Unable to Arrange to Defend

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Disability of Party

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Disability of Party

§ 70.92 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Disability of Party--Moving Party Suffers From Mental Confusion or Illness

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Moving Party's Mental Confusion or Illness

§ 70.93 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Disability of Party--Inability to Comprehend Legal Proceeding

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inability to Comprehend Legal Proceeding

§ 70.94 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Disability of Party's Attorney

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Disability of Attorney

§ 70.95 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Justifiable Reliance on Codefendant's Promise to Defend

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reliance on Representation of Codefendant

§ 70.96 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Justifiable Reliance on Third Party's Promise to Defend

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reliance on Representation of Third Party

§ 70.97 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default

Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Justifiable Reliance on Statements of Court Officers

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reliance on Representations of Officers of Court

§ 70.98 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Justifiable Reliance on Representations of Opposing Counsel

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Factors Supporting Entitlement to Relief

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reliance on Representations of Opposing Counsel

[b] Conduct of Both Attorneys Evaluated

§ 70.99 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Calendaring Error by Party's Attorney

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Calendaring Errors of Attorney or Attorney's Office Staff

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Calendaring Errors of Attorney or Attorney's Office Staff

§ 70.100 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Exception for Inexcusable Neglect of Attorney That Constitutes Positive Misconduct

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney's Neglect Amounting to Positive Misconduct

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Attorney's Neglect Amounting to Positive Misconduct

§§ 70.101-70.109 [Reserved]

§ 70.110 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Fraud of Opposing Party

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Relief Based on Opposing Party's Fraud

[i] Generally

[ii] Extrinsic and Intrinsic Fraud Distinguished

[iii] Alternate Relief Available When Fraud Is Extrinsic

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statutory Relief Based on Fraud

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Statutory Relief Based on Fraud

§§ 70.111-70.119 [Reserved]

§ 70.120 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form--Relief Is Subject to Court's Sound Discretion

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Relief Pursuant to Trial Court's Discretion

[b] Court Has No Discretion to Grant Relief When Ground for Relief Not Shown

[c] Burden of Proof on Moving Party

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Relief Pursuant to Trial Court's Discretion

[b] Court Has No Discretion to Grant Relief When Ground for Relief Not Shown

§ 70.121 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form--Policy Favors Denial of Relief

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Policies Favoring Denial of Relief

§ 70.122 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form--Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect Not Reasonable

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mistake, Inadvertence, or Surprise Must Be Reasonable to Justify Relief

§ 70.123 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form--Party Failed to Exercise Reasonable Diligence in Arranging for Defense

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Relief for Lack of Reasonable Diligence

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] No Relief for Lack of Reasonable Diligence

§ 70.124 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form--Attorney's Conduct Is Imputed to Client

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney's Conduct Imputed to Client

§ 70.125 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form--Existence of Meritorious Defense Is Irrelevant

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Existence of Meritorious Defense Is Irrelevant

§ 70.126 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Attorney Affidavit of Fault--No Mandatory Relief for Failure to File Complaint Within Period of Limitation

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

§ 70.127 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Court Lacks Jurisdiction Because of Pending Appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 916(a)]--Further Proceedings Are In Excess of Court's Jurisdiction

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Trial Court's Power to Vacate Is Suspended

[b] Motion Is in Excess of Court's Jurisdiction

[c] Test to Determine Whether Stay Applies

[d] Order on Section 473 Motion Impacts Effectiveness of Pending Appeal

§ 70.128 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Motion Constitutes Inadequate Motion for Reconsideration

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Second Bite at Apple Not Permitted

[b] Sanctions for Inappropriate Motion for Reconsideration

§ 70.129 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--No Relief for Failure to Take Jurisdictional Procedural Step--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

§ 70.130 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--No Relief for Failure to Take Jurisdictional Procedural Step--No Relief for

Untimely Motion to Vacate Judgment on Erroneous Legal Basis

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

§ 70.131 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) Does Not Provide Mandatory Relief From Judgment Entered on Arbitration Award Based on Attorney Affidavit of Fault Unless Client Was Denied Hearing

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

§ 70.132 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) Does Not Provide Mandatory Relief From Failure to Timely File Opposition to and Cross-Motion to Enforce Settlement

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

§ 70.133 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Attorney Affidavit of Fault--No Mandatory Relief for Attorney Representing Self or Bringing Action in Representative Capacity

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

§§ 70.134-70.139 [Reserved]

§ 70.140 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground that Motion Is Untimely [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Relief Not Based on Attorney Affidavit of Fault--Motion Brought After Six-Month Limitation

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Timeliness of Motion

[b] Six-Month Limitation Is Jurisdictional

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Six-Month Limitation Is Jurisdictional

§ 70.141 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground that Motion Is Untimely [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Relief Not Based on Attorney Affidavit of Fault--Motion Brought After Six-Month Limitation--Six-Month Limitation Period Runs From Date of Default

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Six-Month Limitation Period Runs From Date of Default

§ 70.142 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground that Motion Is Untimely [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Relief Not Based on Attorney Affidavit of Fault--Motion Brought Within Six-Month Limitation But After

Reasonable Time

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Notice of Request to Enter Default

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Extended Delay Must Be Sufficiently Explained

[b] Showing of Diligence Required

[c] Reasonable Time Test Is Independent Consideration

§ 70.143 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground that Motion Is Untimely [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Relief Not Based on Attorney Affidavit of Fault--Motion Brought Within Six Months From Entry of Judgment But Beyond Six-Months After Entry of Default

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court Has Jurisdiction to Set Aside Default Judgment, But Not Default

§ 70.144 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground that Motion Is Untimely [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Relief Not Based on Attorney Affidavit of Fault--Attorney's Preoccupation With Other Matters Is Insufficient Reason for Delay

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney's Preoccupation With Other Matters Is Insufficient Reason for Delay

§ 70.145 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground that Motion Is Untimely [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Relief Based on Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney Affidavit of Fault Filed

§ 70.146 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground that Motion Is Untimely [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Proposed Responsive Pleading Is Untimely

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Conflict in Court of Appeal Decisions on Viability of Substantial Compliance

[d] Reply Memorandum

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Proposed Responsive Pleading Must Be Filed Within Six-Month Period

§ 70.147 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground that Motion Is Untimely [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Alleged Fraud Is Intrinsic

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Alleged Fraud Is Intrinsic Not Extrinsic

[b] Motion Based on Intrinsic Fraud Must Be Brought Within Six-Month Limitation Period

§ 70.148 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground that Motion Is Untimely [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Motion Not Filed Within Shortened Statutory Limitation Period Regarding Property Rights

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

§§ 70.149-70.159 [Reserved]

§ 70.160 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Showing That Mistake Excusable

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] No Showing That Mistake Excusable

§ 70.161 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--No Showing of Mistake of Law

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Showing of Mistake of Law

§ 70.162 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Attorney's Mistake of Law--Mistake Is Not Justifiable

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Justifiability of Mistake of Law Required for Relief

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Justifiability of Mistake of Law Required for Relief

§ 70.163 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Attorney's Mistake of Law Is Not Excusable--Ignorance and Negligence Compel Denial of Relief

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Ignorance and Negligence Compel Denial of Relief

§§ 70.164-70.169 [Reserved]

§ 70.170 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Excusable Inadvertence [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inadvertence Inexcusable

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Inadvertence Inexcusable

§ 70.171 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Excusable Inadvertence [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Inadvertence In the Abstract Is Not Ground for Relief

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inadvertence in the Abstract

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Inadvertence in the Abstract

§§ 70.172-70.179 [Reserved]

§ 70.180 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Surprise [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Showing of Surprise

§§ 70.181-70.189 [Reserved]

§ 70.190 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground of Inexcusable Neglect of Defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Deliberate Refusal to Act

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Burden of Proof on Moving Party to Show Excusable Neglect

[b] Deliberate Refusal to Act

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Burden of Proof on Moving Party to Show Excusable Neglect

[b] Deliberate Refusal to Act

§ 70.191 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground of Inexcusable Neglect of Defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Failure to Act Despite Full Knowledge of Proceedings

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Act Despite Full Knowledge of Proceedings

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to Act Despite Full Knowledge of Proceedings

§ 70.192 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground of Inexcusable Neglect of Defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--No Relief When Defendant's Conduct Is Not Reasonable

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Relief When Defendant's Conduct Not That of Reasonably Prudent Person

§ 70.193 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground of Inexcusable Neglect of Defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Unreasonable Reliance on Third Party's Agreement to Defend

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Unreasonable Reliance on Third Party's Agreement to Defend

§ 70.194 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground of Inexcusable Neglect of Defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Disregard of Process

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Disregard of Process

§ 70.195 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground of Inexcusable Neglect of Defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Press of Business Is Inadequate Excuse

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Press of Business Inadequate Excuse

§§ 70.196-70.209 [Reserved]

§ 70.210 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground of Inexcusable Neglect of Counsel [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Mere Neglect Is Not Sufficient Ground for Relief

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mere Neglect or Negligence of Counsel

[b] Required Showing That Counsel's Neglect Was Excusable

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Required Showing That Counsel's Neglect Was Excusable

§ 70.211 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground of Inexcusable Neglect of Counsel [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--No Showing of Causation Between Excusable Neglect and Default

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Causation Between Excusable Neglect and Default

§ 70.212 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground of Inexcusable Neglect of Counsel [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Attorney's Press of Business, By Itself Is Not Ground for Relief

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney's Press of Business, by Itself, Is Not Ground for Relief

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Attorney's Press of Business, by Itself, Is Not Ground for Relief

§ 70.213 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground of Inexcusable Neglect of Counsel [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Attorney's Illness When Substitute Counsel Was Obtainable

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney's Illness When Substitute Counsel Obtainable

§ 70.214 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground of Inexcusable Neglect of Counsel [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Attorney's Illness Occurred After Time for Response Expired

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney's Illness Occurring After Time For Response Has Expired

§ 70.215 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground of Inexcusable Neglect of Counsel [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Positive Misconduct Exception Does Not Apply When There Is No Abandonment of Attorney-Client Relationship

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney's Negligence Imputed to Client

[b] No Abandonment of Attorney-Client Relationship

[c] Narrow Application of Positive Misconduct Exception

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] No Abandonment of Attorney-Client Relationship

§ 70.216 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground of Inexcusable Neglect of Counsel [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Positive Misconduct Exception Does Not Apply When Moving Party Is Negligent

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Positive Misconduct Exception Inapplicable When Moving Party Also Negligent

§§ 70.217-70.229 [Reserved]

§ 70.230 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)] With Alternative Request That Terms Be Imposed or Money Awarded in Event Relief Is Granted--Relief From Default May Be Granted on Terms as May Be Just

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Court's Statutory Authority to Award Costs

[d] Written Statement Supporting Sanctions Required

[e] Award of Attorney's Fees Must Be Just Condition

[f] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[g] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Award of Attorney's Fees and Costs Allowed

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Award of Attorney's Fees and Costs Allowed

§ 70.231 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)] With Alternative Request That Terms Be Imposed or Money Awarded in Event Relief Is Granted--Award of Fees and Costs Is Mandatory on Attorney's Affidavit of Fault

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Relief Based on Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[e] Related Points and Authorities

§§ 70.232-70.235 [Reserved]

§ 70.236 Reply Memorandum Supporting Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Substantial Compliance With Requirement for Filing of Proposed Answer

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Conflict in Court of Appeal Decisions on Viability of Substantial Compliance

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Substantial Compliance When Opposing Party Has Time to Prepare

§§ 70.237-70.239 [Reserved]

§ 70.240 Supporting Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground That Service of Summons Did Not Result in Actual Notice to Defendant in Time to Defend [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Alternative Methods of Obtaining Relief

[d] Timely Filing of Motion Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5

[e] Requirement of Showing of Meritorious Defense Unconstitutional

[f] Opposing Memoranda

[g] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court May Grant Relief on Timely Motion if Defendant Not at Fault

[b] Granting of Relief Within Discretion of Trial Court

[c] Policy Favors Application for Relief

§ 70.241 Supporting Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground That Service of Summons Did Not Result in Actual Notice to Defendant in Time to Defend [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5]--Service on Attorney Whose Failure to Inform Defendant Results From Positive Misconduct

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Positive Misconduct Exception

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Service on Attorney Who Commits Positive Misconduct

§ 70.242 Supporting Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground That Service of Summons Did Not Result in Actual Notice to Defendant in Time to Defend [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5]--Defendant Unaware of Nature of Documents Served

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Defendant Unaware of Nature of Documents

§§ 70.243-70.249 [Reserved]

§ 70.250 Supporting Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground of Improper Venue in Consumer Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Alternative Methods of Obtaining Relief

[d] Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act

[e] Automobile Sales Finance Act

[f] General Consumer Provision

[g] Opposing Memoranda

[h] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

§ 70.251 Supporting Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground of Improper Venue in Consumer Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5]--Damages and Costs May Be Awarded to Moving Party

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

§§ 70.252-70.259 [Reserved]

§ 70.260 Supporting Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground That Defendant's Military Service Prejudiced Defense [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g)]--Application for Relief Is Proper

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Alternative Methods of Obtaining Relief

[d] Military Service Defined

[e] Timeliness of Application

[f] Showing of Prejudice to Defendant

[g] Showing of Meritorious or Legal Defense

[h] Opposing Memoranda

[i] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

§ 70.261 Supporting Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground That Defendant's Military Service Prejudiced Defense [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(b)]--Relief Based on Failure to Appoint Attorney

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Appoint Attorney

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to Appoint Attorney

§ 70.262 Supporting Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Judgment Entered During Period of Military Service [Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d)]--Defendant Was Prejudiced and Has Meritorious or Legal Defense

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

§§ 70.263-70.269 [Reserved]

§ 70.270 Supporting Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground of Court's Jurisdiction Over Law Practice of Defendant's Attorney [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.1]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Alternative Methods of Obtaining Relief

[d] Limitations Period

[e] No Declaration of Merits Required

§§ 70.271-70.279 [Reserved]

§ 70.280 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground That Service of Summons Did Not Result in Actual Notice to Defendant in Time to Defend [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5]--Motion Is Untimely--Notice of Motion Was Not Filed Within Statutory Period

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

§ 70.281 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground That Service of Summons Did Not Result in Actual Notice to Defendant in Time to Defend [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5]--Motion Is Untimely--Moving Party Failed to Act With Reasonable Diligence

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Diligence Required

§ 70.282 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground That Service of Summons Did Not Result in Actual Notice to Defendant in Time to Defend [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5]--Denial of Relief Is Proper Exercise of Court's Discretion

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Trial Court Has Discretion to Grant or Deny Relief

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Trial Court Has Discretion to Grant or Deny Relief

§ 70.283 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground That Service of Summons Did Not Result in Actual Notice to Defendant in Time to Defend [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5]--Moving Party Had Actual Notice in Time to Defend

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Defendant Had Actual Notice in Time to Defend

§§ 70.284-70.289 [Reserved]

§ 70.290 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground of Improper Venue in Consumer Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5]--Motion Is Untimely

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

§§ 70.291-70.299 [Reserved]

§ 70.300 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground That Defendant's Military Service Prejudiced Defense [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g)]--No Relief Absent Showing of Prejudice

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Relief Absent Showing of Prejudice

[b] No Relief Absent Showing of Material Effect on Defense

§ 70.301 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground That Defendant's Military Service Prejudiced Defense [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g)]--False Affidavit Does Not Render Judgment Void

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Filing of False Affidavit Does Not Render Judgment Void

§ 70.302 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground That Defendant's Military Service Prejudiced Defense [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g)]--Defendant Waived Rights

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Waiver of Rights

§ 70.303 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Judgment Entered During Protected Period of Military Service [Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d)]--Defendant Was Not Prejudiced by Reason of Military Service in Making Defense

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[3] Discussion of Authorities

§ 70.304 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Judgment Entered During Protected Period of Military Service [Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d)]--Defendant Has No Meritorious or Legal Defense

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

§§ 70.305-70.309 [Reserved]

§ 70.310 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--General

Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Alternative Methods of Obtaining Relief

[d] Void Judgment or Order

[i] In General

[ii] Invalidity Determined From Judgment Roll

[iii] What Constitutes the Judgment Roll

[iv] Distinguished From Judgment Valid on Its Face but Void in Fact

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[f] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[g] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Relief From Void Judgment or Order

[b] Inherent Power to Set Aside Judgment Void on Its Face

[c] Test for Establishing That Judgment Is Void on Its Face

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Inherent Power to Set Aside Judgment Void on Its Face

[b] Test for Establishing that Judgment Is Void on Its Face

§ 70.311 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Judgment Is Void for Lack of Jurisdiction

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment Void for Lack of Jurisdiction

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Judgment Void for Lack of Jurisdiction

§ 70.312 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Judgment May Be Attacked at Any Time

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment May Be Attacked at Any Time

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Judgment May Be Attacked at Any Time

§ 70.313 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Intervention to Set Aside Void Judgment

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intervention to Set Aside Void Judgment

§ 70.314 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Motion in Conjunction With Motion to Quash Is Not General Appearance

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

§ 70.315 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Pending Appeal Will Not Prevent Relief

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Pending Appeal Will Not Prevent Relief From Void Judgment or Order

§§ 70.316-70.329 [Reserved]

§ 70.330 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] Based on Defective Summons or Manner of Service--General Form--Statutory Requirement for Service of Summons

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Methods of Service of Summons

[d] Absence of Proof of Service in Judgment Roll Not Definitive

[e] Alternative Relief When Improper Service Does Not Appear From Examination of Judgment Roll

[f] Opposing Points and Authorities

[g] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statutory Requirement for Service of Summons

[b] Judgment Void on Its Face for Insufficient Service

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Statutory Requirement for Service of Summons

§ 70.331 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] Based on Defective Summons or Manner of Service--Entry of Default Is Proper Only if Defendant Was Served

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Entry of Default Proper Only if Defendant Was Served

§ 70.332 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] Based on Defective Summons or Manner of Service--Personal Jurisdiction Is Not Conferred if Summons Is Substantially Defective

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Personal Jurisdiction Not Conferred if Summons Substantially Defective

§ 70.333 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] Based on Defective Summons or Manner of Service--Personal Jurisdiction Is Not Conferred if Manner of Service Is Improper

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Personal Jurisdiction Not Conferred if Manner of Service Improper

§ 70.334 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) Based on Defective Summons or Manner of Service--Notice Without Substantial Compliance With Statute Is Inadequate

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Notice Without Substantial Compliance With Statute Inadequate

§ 70.335 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] Based on Defective Summons or Manner of Service--Failure to Provide Statutory Notice to Person Served on Behalf of Corporation, Unincorporated Association, or Partnership [Code Civ. Proc. § 412.30]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment Based on Service of Summons Lacking Corporate Notice Requirement Is Void

§ 70.336 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] Based on Defective Summons or Manner of Service--Defective Affidavit for Publication of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Motion Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 Distinguished

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Strict Construction of Service by Publication Statute

[b] Defective Affidavit for Service by Publication

§§ 70.337-70.349 [Reserved]

§ 70.350 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Default Judgment Entered on Amended Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Amended Complaint Was Not Served [Code Civ. Proc. § 471.5]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment Void if Based on Unserved Amended Complaint

§ 70.351 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Default Judgment Entered on Amended Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Substantial Amendment After Entry of Default Opens Default

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Amendment of Complaint After Entry of Default

§ 70.352 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Default Judgment Entered on Amended Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Judgment Based on Failure to Answer Void When Amended Complaint Required No Answer

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Default Judgment Void When Based on Failure to Answer Immaterial Amendments

§§ 70.353-70.359 [Reserved]

§ 70.360 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face Based on Unauthorized Entry of Default or Judgment by Clerk [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment Void in Excess of Clerk's Authority

§ 70.361 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face Based on Unauthorized Entry of Default or Judgment by Clerk [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)]--Premature Entry of Default

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Premature Entry of Default

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Premature Entry of Default

§ 70.362 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face Based on Unauthorized Entry of Default or Judgment by Clerk [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)]--Default Was Entered With Responsive Pleading on File

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Entry of Default When Responsive Pleading on File

§ 70.363 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face Based on Unauthorized Entry of Default or Judgment by Clerk [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)]--Entry of Default in Action Remanded After Motion to Dismiss Is Granted in Federal Action

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Entry of Default in Action Remanded to State Court After Motion to Dismiss Filed in Federal Action

§ 70.364 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face Based on Unauthorized Entry of Default or Judgment by Clerk [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)]--Entry of Default Judgment in Contract Action

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment in Contract Actions

§ 70.365 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face Based on Unauthorized Entry of Default or Judgment by Clerk [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)]--Entry of Default Judgment Against One of Several Defendants

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment Against One of Several Defendants

§§ 70.366-70.379 [Reserved]

§ 70.380 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Relief Awarded to Plaintiff Is in Excess of Demand of Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10, 425.11, 425.115, 580]--Complaint Must Contain Demand for Judgment

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Demand for Judgment in Complaint

[b] Judgment Void When Relief Exceeds Demand of Complaint

§ 70.381 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Relief Awarded to Plaintiff Is in Excess of Demand of Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10, 425.11, 425.115, 580--Demand for Judgment in Section 425.11 Statement of Damages

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Demand for Judgment in Section 425.11 Statement of Damages

§ 70.382 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Relief Awarded to Plaintiff Is in Excess of Demand of Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10, 425.11, 425.115, 580]--Demand for Judgment in

Complaint and Section 425.115 Statement Reserving Punitive Damages

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Demand for Judgment in Complaint and in Section 425.115 Statement Reserving Punitive Damages

§ 70.383 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Relief Awarded to Plaintiff Is in Excess of Demand of Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10, 425.11, 425.115, 580]--Default Judgment Awarding Support Is Void When Not Requested in Petition for Marital Dissolution

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Default Judgment Awarding Child Support Void When Not Requested in Petition Marital Dissolution

§ 70.384 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Relief Awarded to Plaintiff Is in Excess of Demand of Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10, 425.11, 425.115, 580]--Demand for Damages in Excess of Specified Amount or According to Proof

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Demand for Damages in Excess of Specified Amount or According to Proof

§ 70.385 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Relief Awarded to Plaintiff Is in Excess of Demand of Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10, 425.11, 425.115, 580]--Demand Expressly Remits Damages in Excess of Court's Jurisdiction

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Demand Expressly Remitting Damages in Excess of Court's Jurisdiction

§ 70.386 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Relief Awarded to Plaintiff Is in Excess of Demand of Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10, 425.11, 425.115, 580]--Plaintiff in Action for Accounting Must Give Post-Complaint and Pre-Default Notice of Amount Sought

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Plaintiff in Action for Accounting Required to Give Post-Complaint and Pre-Default Notice of Amount Sought

§ 70.387 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Relief Awarded to Plaintiff Is in Excess of Demand of Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10, 425.11, 425.115, 580]--Amount of Punitive Damages Sought Is Irrelevant to Determination of Whether Compensatory Award Is Excessive

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Amount of Punitive Damages Sought Is Irrelevant to Determination of Whether Compensatory Damages Award Is Excessive

§ 70.388 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Relief Awarded to Plaintiff Is in Excess of Demand of Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10, 425.11, 425.115, 580]--General Allegation of Entitlement to Punitive Damages Is Insufficient

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] General Allegation of Entitlement to Punitive Damages Insufficient

§ 70.389 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Relief Awarded to Plaintiff Is in Excess of Demand of Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10, 425.11, 425.115, 580]--Attorney's Fees Award Is Improper Without Prayer

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney's Fees Award Improper if Not Prayed for

§ 70.390 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Relief Awarded to Plaintiff Is in Excess of Demand of Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10, 425.11, 425.115, 580]--Limitation on Relief Applies When Answer Is Stricken as Discovery Sanction

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Limitation on Relief Applicable When Answer Stricken as Discovery Sanction

§§ 70.391-70.399 [Reserved]

§ 70.400 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Default Judgment Void on Its Face for Failure to Serve Statement of Damages on Cause of Action for Personal Injury or Wrongful Death [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Specification of Damages in Personal Injury and Wrongful Death Action

[i] Service of Statement of Damages Required

[ii] Manner of Service

[iii] Service by Publication

[iv] Time for Service

[v] Defective Proof of Service

[vi] Actual Notice of Special and General Damages Required

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Service of Statement of Damages Required in Personal Injury or Wrongful Death Action

[b] Defendant Must Be Given Actual Notice of Special and General Damages Claimed

[c] Failure to Serve Statement of Damages Renders Default Void on Its Face

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Service of Statement of Damages Required in Personal Injury or Wrongful Death Action

[b] Failure to Serve Statement of Damages Renders Default Void on Its Face

§ 70.401 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Default Judgment Void on Its Face for Failure to Serve Statement of Damages on Cause of Action for Personal Injury or Wrongful Death [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11]--Indication of Value During Settlement Conference Is Insufficient

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Indication of Value During Settlement Conference Is Insufficient

§ 70.402 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Default Judgment Void on Its Face for Failure to Serve Statement of Damages on Cause of Action for Personal Injury or Wrongful Death [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11]--Service of Statement of Damages Did Not Precede Clerk's Entry of Default

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Service of Statement of Damages to Precede Clerk's Entry of Default

§ 70.403 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Default Judgment Void on Its Face for Failure to Serve Statement of Damages on Cause of Action for Personal Injury or Wrongful Death [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11]--Unauthorized Method of Service--Defendant Has Not Appeared in Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11(d)(1)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

§ 70.404 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Default Judgment Void on Its Face for Failure to Serve Statement of Damages on Cause of Action for Personal Injury or Wrongful Death [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11]--Unauthorized Method of Service--Defendant Has Appeared in Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11(d)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

§§ 70.405-70.409 [Reserved]

§ 70.410 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Default Judgment Void on Its Face for Failure to Serve or Improper Service of Statement Reserving Right to Punitive Damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Reservation of Right to Punitive Damages

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Serve Statement Reserving Punitive Damages Renders Default Void on Its Face

§ 70.411 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Default Judgment Void on Its Face for Failure to Serve or Improper Service of Statement Reserving Right to Punitive Damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115]--Service to Precede Clerk's Entry of Default

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Service of Statement to Precede Clerk's Entry of Default

§ 70.412 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Default Judgment Void on Its Face for Failure to Serve or Improper Service of Statement Reserving Right to Punitive Damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115]--Unauthorized Method of Service--Defendant Has Not Appeared in Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115(g)(1)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

§ 70.413 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Default Judgment Void on Its Face for Failure to Serve or Improper Service of Statement Reserving Right to Punitive Damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115]--Unauthorized Method of Service--Defendant Has Appeared in Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115(g)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

§§ 70.414-70.419 [Reserved]

§ 70.420 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Default Judgment Void on Its Face When Judgment in Family Law

Proceeding Involving Children Is Void for Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Establishing That Judgment Is Void on Its Face in Family Law Proceeding Relating to Children

§ 70.421 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Default Judgment Void on Its Face When Judgment in Family Law Proceeding Involving Children Is Void for Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction--Lack of Jurisdiction Appears on Face of Domestic Relations Officer Report

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction Appears on Face of Domestic Relations Officer Report

§§ 70.422-70.429 [Reserved]

§ 70.430 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Alternative Methods of Obtaining Relief

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Presumption Favoring Validity of Judgment

§ 70.431 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Mere Erroneous Decision on Question of Law Does Not Make Judgment Void

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mere Erroneous Decision Does Not Make Judgment Void

§ 70.432 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Judgment Not Void Because of Failure of Complaint to State a Cause of Action

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure of Complaint to State Cause of Action Does Not Render Default Judgment Void

§§ 70.433-70.439 [Reserved]

§ 70.440 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] on Ground That Service on Defendant Was Properly Made--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Liberal Construction of Service of Process Statutes

[b] Defect in Return of Service of Little Importance if Service Was Proper

§ 70.441 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] on Ground That Service on Defendant Was Properly Made--Copies of Summons With Affidavits of Proof of Service Are Sufficient for Return

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Copies of Summons With Affidavits of Proof of Service Sufficient for Return

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Copies of Summons With Affidavits of Proof of Service Sufficient for Return

§ 70.442 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] on Ground That Service on Defendant Was Properly Made--Late Return of Summons Is Mere Irregularity

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Late Return of Summons Mere Irregularity

§ 70.443 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] on Ground That Service on Defendant Was Properly Made--Proof of Service May Be Amended and Filed Nunc Pro Tunc as of Date of Judgment

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Proof of Service May Be Amended and Filed Nunc Pro Tunc as of Date of Judgment

§§ 70.444-70.449 [Reserved]

§ 70.450 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] on Ground That Defendant Received Adequate Notice of Damages--Superior Court Personal Injury or Wrongful Death Action

[Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Service of Statement of Damages Complied with Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11

§ 70.451 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] on Ground That Defendant Received Adequate Notice of Damages--Action With Claim for Punitive Damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Reasonable Time Rule Pertaining to Statement of Damages May Apply by Analogy to Statement Reserving Right to Punitive Damages

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Notice Satisfies Minimum Standards of Due Process

§ 70.452 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] on Ground That Defendant Received Adequate Notice of Damages--Notice Requirement Was Satisfied by Complaint

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Notice Requirement Satisfied by Complaint

§ 70.453 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] on Ground That Defendant Received Adequate Notice of Damages--Late Return of Proof of Service of Statement of Damages Is

Mere Irregularity

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Late Return of Proof of Service of Statement of Damages Mere Irregularity

§§ 70.454-70.459 [Reserved]

§ 70.460 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Is Not Void on Its Face but Void in Fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Alternative Methods of Obtaining Relief

[d] Void Judgment or Order

[i] In General

[ii] Time Limitation for Motion to Set Aside Judgment Void in Fact

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[f] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[g] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inherent Power to Set Aside Judgment Not Void on Its Face but Void in Fact

[b] Court Has Duty to Set Aside Judgment

§ 70.461 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Is Not Void on Its Face but Void in Fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Judgment or Order Is Void for Lack of Personal Jurisdiction Because of Improper Service of Process--Evidence Admissible to Challenge Fact of Service

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Alternative Relief When Improper Service Appears on Examination of Judgment Roll

[d] Methods of Service of Summons

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[f] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Default Judgment Void in Fact Because of Improper Service

[b] Evidence Admissible to Challenge Fact of Service

§ 70.462 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Is Not Void on Its Face but Void in Fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Judgment or Order Is Void for Lack of Personal Jurisdiction Because of Improper Service of Process--Time Limitation on Default Judgment Is Void in Fact for Lack of Proper Service

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Time Limitation on Judgment Not Void on Its Face but Void in Fact for Lack of Proper Service

§ 70.463 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Is Not Void on Its Face but Void in Fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Judgment or Order Is Void for Lack of Authority of Attorney

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Void Judgment May Be Vacated if Attorney Acted Without Authorization of Client

[b] Attorney's Mistaken Dismissal With Prejudice Is Without Client's Authorization

§§ 70.464-70.469 [Reserved]

§ 70.470 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Not Void on Its Face but Void in Fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] on Ground That Motion Is Untimely--When Motion Asserts That Judgment Is Void in Fact Based on Defective Service--In General

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Alternative Methods of Obtaining Relief

[d] Time Limitation for Motion to Set Aside Judgment Void in Fact

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court's Power to Set Aside Judgment Not Void on Its Face Limited to Reasonable Time

[b] Application by Analogy of Code of Civil Procedure Section 473.5 Time Limitation

§ 70.471 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Not Void on Its Face but Void in Fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] on Ground That Motion Is Untimely--When Motion Asserts That Judgment Is Void in Fact Based on Defective Service--What Constitutes Reasonable Time

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] What Constitutes "Reasonable Time"

§ 70.472 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Not Void on Its Face but Void in Fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] on Ground That Motion Is Untimely--When Motion Asserts Reason Other Than Defective Service

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion Must Be Brought Within Six-Month Period in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)

§§ 70.473-70.479 [Reserved]

§ 70.480 Supporting Motion in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Alternative Methods of Obtaining Relief

[d] Motion for Equitable Relief From Default

[i] In General

[ii] Showing of Meritorious Defense

[iii] Motion in Probate Proceeding

[iv] Independent Suit in Equity

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inherent Equitable Power of Superior Court to Set Aside Judgment

[b] Express Equitable Power of Municipal Court to Set Aside Judgment

[c] Motion Addressed to Discretion of Court

[d] Policy of Law

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Inherent Equitable Power of Superior Court to Set Aside Judgment

§ 70.481 Supporting Motion in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Timeliness of Motion

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Timeliness of Motion

§ 70.482 Supporting Motion in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Showing of Meritorious Defense

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Showing of Meritorious Defense

§ 70.483 Supporting Motion in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Motion Based on Extrinsic Fraud

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Extrinsic Fraud Defined

[b] Broad Meaning Given to Grounds of "Extrinsic Fraud" and "Extrinsic Mistake"

§ 70.484 Supporting Motion in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Motion Based on Extrinsic Mistake

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Extrinsic Mistake Defined

§§ 70.485-70.489 [Reserved]

§ 70.490 Opposing Motion in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Motion Not Made Within Reasonable Time Is Untimely

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Alternative Methods of Obtaining Relief

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion Is Not Timely

§ 70.491 Opposing Motion in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Extrinsic Fraud Not Shown

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Extrinsic Fraud Not Shown

§§ 70.492-70.499 [Reserved]

§ 70.500 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Alleged Extrinsic Fraud or Mistake Not Pleaded With Particularity and Specificity

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[e] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Pleading of Facts

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Pleading of Facts

§ 70.501 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Plaintiff Is Not Proper Party

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[e] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Proper Parties Plaintiff

[b] Interest Necessary for Action

§ 70.502 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Lapse of Statute of Limitations

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[e] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to State Cause of Action

[b] Pleading Facts Relating to Discovery of Fraud or Mistake

[c] Plaintiff Must Affirmatively Excuse Failure to Discover Fraud or Mistake

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to State Cause of Action

[b] Three-Year Limitation Period

[c] Pleading Facts Relating to Discovery of Fraud or Mistake

[d] Plaintiff Must Affirmatively Excuse Failure to Discover Fraud or Mistake

§ 70.503 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Laches Precludes Relief

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[e] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Laches Is Bar to Action

[b] Laches Shown on Face of Complaint

[c] Pleading Excuse for Delay

§§ 70.504-70.509 [Reserved]

§ 70.510 Supporting Motion for Summary Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c] on Complaint in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Plaintiff Had Adequate Opportunity to Litigate Issues at Hearing on Prior Motion to Vacate

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[e] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Opportunity to Litigate on Motion to Vacate

§ 70.511 Supporting Motion for Summary Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c] on Complaint in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Exhaustive Adversarial Hearing or Presentation of Particular Type of Evidence Not Essential

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exhaustive Adversarial Hearing or Presentation of Particular Type of Evidence Not Essential

§§ 70.512-70.519 [Reserved]

§ 70.520 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Independent Action in Equity

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Independent Action in Equity

§ 70.521 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Municipal Court's Statutory Jurisdiction

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

§ 70.522 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside

Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Review of Probate Court Decrees

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Review of Probate Court Decrees

§ 70.523 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Action Not Barred by Statute of Limitations or Laches Due to Tolling of Three-Year Statute of Limitations Until Discovery of Facts Constituting Fraud or Mistake--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Investigation Which Would Have Revealed Facts

§ 70.524 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Action Not Barred by Statute of Limitations or Laches Due to Tolling of Three-Year Statute of Limitations Until Discovery of Facts Constituting Fraud or Mistake--Improper Concealment Causing Lack of Investigation

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Improper Concealment Causing Lack of Investigation

§ 70.525 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Action Not Barred by Statute of Limitations or Laches Due to Tolling of Three-Year Statute of Limitations Until Discovery of Facts Constituting Fraud or Mistake--Representations Dissuading Inquiry Precludes Constructive Notice of Public Records

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Representations Dissuading Inquiry Precludes Constructive Notice

§ 70.526 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Action Not Barred by Statute of Limitations or Laches Due to Aggrieved Party's Disability

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Four-Year Period of Limitation Applicable

§ 70.527 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Action Not Barred by Laches Due to Reasonable Diligence in Commencing Action--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reasonable Diligence After Discovery of Facts

§ 70.528 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Action Not Barred by Laches Due to Reasonable Diligence in Commencing Action--Minimal Prejudice to Opposing Party

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Minimal Prejudice to Opposing Party

§§ 70.529-70.539 [Reserved]

§ 70.540 Opposing Motion for Summary Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c] on Complaint in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That Prior Motion to Vacate Does Not Bar Present Action--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Summary Judgment Unless There Are No Triable Issues

[b] Attack on Judgment by Motion to Vacate and Independent Equitable Action Distinct and Cumulative

[c] Test Is Whether Issues Were Fully Presented or Full Opportunity to Develop Issues by Oral Testimony Granted

§ 70.541 Opposing Motion for Summary Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437] on Complaint in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That Prior Motion to Vacate Does Not Bar Present Action--Presentation of Issues Test Applies Whether Prior Motion Was in Equity or Under

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Presentation of Issues Test Applies Whether Prior Motion Was in Equity or Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473

§§ 70.542-70.549 [Reserved]

§ 70.550 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--General Grounds for Grant of Equitable Relief

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Absence of Fair Adversary Trial in Prior Action

[b] Judgment Taken Under Circumstances of Unfairness and Injustice

[c] Extrinsic Fraud Which Prevents Fair Adversary Trial

[d] Extrinsic Mistake in Absence of Fair Adversary Trial

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Absence of Fair Adversary Trial in Prior Action

[b] Extrinsic Fraud Which Prevents Fair Adversary Trial

[c] Extrinsic Mistake in Absence of Fair Adversary Trial

§§ 70.551-70.559 [Reserved]

§ 70.560 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Mistake of Fact--Generally

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Relief in Equity for Mistake of Fact

§ 70.561 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Mistake of Fact--Mistake Preventing Proper Notice or Appearance

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mistake Preventing Proper Notice or Appearance

§ 70.562 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Mistake of Fact--Mistake of Prevailing Party in Original Action

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Extrinsic Mistake of Prevailing Party

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Extrinsic Mistake of Prevailing Party

§ 70.563 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Mistake of Fact--Mistake of Aggrieved Party--Loss of Answer in Mail

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Extrinsic Mistake of Aggrieved Party

[b] Loss of Answer in Mail as Basis for Equitable Relief

§ 70.564 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Mistake of Fact--Mistake of Aggrieved Party--Reasonable Reliance on Representations of Opposing Party's Attorney

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Extrinsic Mistake of Aggrieved Party Induced by Prevailing Party

[b] Reliance on Representations of Opposing Counsel

[c] Deliberate Delay in Enforcing Default Judgment

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Reliance on Representations of Opposing Counsel

§ 70.565 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Mistake of Fact--Mistake of Aggrieved Party--Disability of Aggrieved Party or Party's Attorney Rendered Aggrieved Party Unable to Defend

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Relief for Incompetent Defendant

[b] Relief in Equity for Disability of Attorney

§ 70.566 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Mistake of Fact--Mistake of Aggrieved Party--Inexcusable Neglect of Aggrieved Party's Attorney Rendered Aggrieved Party Unable to Defend

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Relief for Attorney's Inexcusable Neglect

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Relief for Attorney's Inexcusable Neglect

§ 70.567 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Mistake of Fact--Mistake of Court or Referee

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Extrinsic Mistake of Court, Referee, or Commissioner

§§ 70.568-70.579 [Reserved]

§ 70.580 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud--Collusive Judgment--Generally

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Collusive Judgment

[b] Standing of Third Parties

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Collusive Judgment

§ 70.581 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud--Collusive Judgment--Pecuniary or Other Interest

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Pecuniary or Other Interest

§ 70.582 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud--Fraudulent Change in Terms of Oral Settlement

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Effect of Parol Evidence Rule

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Change in Terms of Oral Settlement

§ 70.583 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud--Concealment of Legal Disability of Aggrieved Party

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Concealment of Disability

§ 70.584 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and

Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud--Concealment or Misrepresentation by Fiduciary--Generally

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Concealment or Misrepresentation by Fiduciary

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Concealment or Misrepresentation by Fiduciary

§ 70.585 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud--Concealment or Misrepresentation by Fiduciary--Failure by Fiduciary to Make Disclosure

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure by Fiduciary to Make Disclosure

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure by Fiduciary to Make Disclosure

§ 70.586 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud--Concealment or Misrepresentation by Fiduciary--False Conclusions of Fact or Law Equally Condemned

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] False Conclusions of Fact or Law Equally Condemned

§ 70.587 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud--Concealment or Misrepresentation by Fiduciary--Lack of Intent to Defraud Immaterial

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Lack of Intent to Defraud Immaterial

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Lack of Intent to Defraud Immaterial

§ 70.588 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud--Concealment or Misrepresentation by Fiduciary--Good Faith Shields Personal Representative Only in Absence of Negligence

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Good Faith Shields Personal Representative Only in Absence of Negligence

§ 70.589 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud--Fraudulent or Negligent Failure to Give Notice of Original Action--Willful Failure to Give Required Service

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Willful Failure to Give Required Service

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Willful Failure to Give Required Service

§ 70.590 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud--Fraudulent or Negligent Failure to Give Notice of Original Action--Lack of Diligence in Effecting Personal Service

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Lack of Diligence in Effecting Personal Service

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Lack of Diligence in Effecting Personal Service

§ 70.591 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud--Fraudulent or Negligent Failure to Give Notice of Original Action--False Recitals Regarding Service

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] False Recitals Regarding Service

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] False Recitals Regarding Service

§§ 70.592-70.599 [Reserved]

§ 70.600 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Duress--Generally

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Duress Is Valid Ground to Set Aside Judgment or Order

[b] Duress Defined

[c] Determination of Duress Depends on Effect on Threatened Person's Mind

§ 70.601 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Duress--Determination of Whether Consent to Entry of Default Judgment Was Voluntary

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Determination of Whether Consent to Entry of Default Judgment Was Voluntary

§ 70.602 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Duress--Lack of Independent Advice Is a Fact to Be Weighed

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Lack of Independent Advice Is a Fact to Be Weighed

§ 70.603 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Duress--Lack of Independent Advice With Interference With Attempts to Obtain Advice Is Persuasive

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Lack of Independent Advice With Interference With Attempts to Obtain Advice Is Persuasive

§§ 70.604-70.609 [Reserved]

§ 70.610 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained When Moving Party's Negligence Does Not Prejudice Opposing Party

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mistake of Fact by Somewhat Negligent Plaintiff

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Mistake of Fact of Somewhat Negligent Plaintiff

§§ 70.611-70.619 [Reserved]

§ 70.620 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order on Ground That Requirement of Showing Meritorious Claim or Defense Is Satisfied--Meritorious Claim or Defense Sufficiently Shown--Generally

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Meritorious Claim or Defense Sufficiently Shown

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Meritorious Claim or Defense Sufficiently Shown

§ 70.621 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order on Ground That Requirement of Showing Meritorious Claim or Defense Is Satisfied--Meritorious Claim or Defense Sufficiently Shown--Difficulty of Proof Is Not Determinative of Sufficiency of Allegation in Complaint

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Difficulty of Proof Not Determinative of Sufficiency of Allegation in Complaint

§ 70.622 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order on Ground That Requirement of Showing Meritorious Claim or Defense Is Satisfied--Showing of Meritorious Defense Not Required--Relief From Decree or Order in Marital Dissolution Proceeding

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Showing of Meritorious Defense Not Required in Marital Dissolution Action

§ 70.623 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order on Ground That Requirement of Showing Meritorious Claim or Defense Is Satisfied--Meritorious Claim or Defense Sufficiently Shown--Showing of Meritorious Defense Not Required--Relief From Void Judgment or Order

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Due Process Considerations

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Showing of Meritorious Defense Not Required When Judgment Is Void

§§ 70.624-70.629 [Reserved]

§ 70.630 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress Justifying Relief--Generally

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Circumstances of Case Do Not Overcome Strong Policy Favoring Finality of Judgments

§ 70.631 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress Justifying Relief--Relief Denied if Party Had Notice and Was Not Prevented From Participating

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Relief Is Denied if Party Has Been Given Notice and Not Prevented From Participating

§ 70.632 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress Justifying Relief--Relief Only When Fraud or Mistake Is Extrinsic

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Relief Only When Fraud or Mistake Is Extrinsic

[b] Intrinsic Fraud or Mistake Defined

[c] Extrinsic Fraud or Mistake Distinguished

§ 70.633 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress Justifying Relief--Perjured Testimony or Forged Instrument Intrinsic

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Perjured Testimony or Forged Instrument Intrinsic

§ 70.634 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress Justifying Relief--Excuse for Failure to Present Defense Required

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Excuse for Failure to Present Defense Required

§ 70.635 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress Justifying Relief--Issues Previously Litigated

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Issues Previously Litigated

§ 70.636 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress Justifying Relief--Attorney's Erroneous Legal Conclusion

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney's Erroneous Legal Conclusion

§ 70.637 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress Justifying Relief--Attorney's Neglect

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney's Neglect

§ 70.638 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress Justifying Relief--Mutual Mistake

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mutual Mistake

§§ 70.639-70.649 [Reserved]

§ 70.650 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Meritorious Defense

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Ability to Present Meritorious Claim or Defense

[b] Demonstration of Meritorious Claim or Defense Required

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Ability to Present Meritorious Claim or Defense

§§ 70.651-70.659 [Reserved]

§ 70.660 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That Negligence or Fault of Party Seeking Relief Precludes Relief--Generally

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Fault on Part of Complaining Party

[b] Requirement of Diligence in Seeking Relief

[c] Pleading Diligence in Seeking Relief After Discovery

§ 70.661 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That

Negligence or Fault of Party Seeking Relief Precludes Relief--Complaining Party Contributed to Fraud or Mistake

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Complaining Party Contributed to Fraud or Mistake

§ 70.662 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That Negligence or Fault of Party Seeking Relief Precludes Relief--Complaining Party Guilty of Negligence

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Complaining Party Guilty of Negligence

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Complaining Party Guilty of Negligence

§§ 70.663-70.669 [Reserved]

§ 70.670 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That Court Should Exercise Discretion to Deny Equitable Relief Under Particular Circumstances of Case

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court Has Discretion to Deny Relief

[b] Discretion to Be Exercised With View Toward Accomplishment of Justice

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.01

§ 70.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter contains memoranda of points and authorities for use in proceedings for relief from a default and default judgment or from other judgments, dismissals, or orders generally.

Part II, Subpart A, covers the statutory relief from a valid default and default judgment or other judgment. Subpart 1, relating to relief based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, generally includes the following types of forms:

- Supporting and opposing defendant's motions to vacate and set aside default and default judgment or other judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect generally (§ 70.10 et seq., § 70.120 et seq.).

- Supporting plaintiff's motions to vacate and set aside default and default judgment or other judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect generally (§ 70.30 et seq.).

- Supporting intervenor's motions to vacate and set aside default and default judgment or other judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect generally (§ 70.40 et seq.).

- Supporting and opposing motions to vacate and set aside default and default judgment or other judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding based on mistake (§ 70.50 et seq., § 70.160 et seq.).

- Supporting and opposing motions to vacate and set aside default and default judgment or other judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding based on inadvertence (§ 70.70 et seq., § 70.170 et seq.).

- Supporting and opposing motions to vacate and set aside default and default judgment or other judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding based on surprise (§ 70.80 et seq., § 70.180 et seq.).

- Supporting and opposing motions to vacate and set aside default and default judgment or other judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding based on excusable neglect (§ 70.90 et seq., § 70.190 et seq.).

- Supporting motions to vacate and set aside default and default judgment or other judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding based on fraud (§ 70.110 et seq.).

- Opposing motion to vacate and set aside default and default judgment based on untimeliness of motion (§ 70.140 et seq.).

- Reply memorandum supporting motion to vacate and set aside default and default judgment based on substantial compliance with requirement that proposed pleading be filed with notice of motion (§ 70.236).

Subpart 2, relating to other statutory relief, generally includes the following types of forms:

- Supporting and opposing motions to vacate and set aside default and default judgment or other judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding on grounds that summons did not result in actual notice in time to defend (§ 70.240 et seq., § 70.280 et seq.).

- Supporting and opposing motions to vacate and set aside default and default judgment or other judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding on grounds of improper venue in consumer actions (§ 70.250 et seq., § 70.290 et seq.).

- Supporting and opposing motions to vacate and set aside default and default judgment or other judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding under the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (§ 70.260 et seq., § 70.300 et seq.).

- Supporting and opposing motions to vacate and set aside judgments entered during a period of military service as a member of the National Guard or reservist (§§ 70.262, 70.303).

- Supporting motions to vacate and set aside default and default judgment or other judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding on grounds of court's jurisdiction over law practice of defendant's attorney (§ 70.270 et seq.).

Part II, Subpart B, covers statutory relief from void judgments or orders under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d). Subpart 1, relating to relief from a judgment or order that is void on its face, includes the following types of forms:

- Supporting and opposing motions to vacate and set aside judgment or order void on its face generally (§ 70.310 et seq., § 70.430 et seq.).

- Supporting and opposing motions to vacate and set aside judgment or order void on its face based on defective service (§ 70.330 et seq., § 70.440 et seq.).

- Supporting motions to vacate and set aside judgment or order void on its face based on unauthorized entry of default or default judgment by clerk (§ 70.360 et seq.).

- Supporting and opposing motions to vacate and set aside judgment or order void on its face based on relief in excess of demand (§ 70.380 et seq., § 70.450 et seq.).

Subpart 2, relating to relief from a judgment or order that is void in fact, includes the following types of forms:

- Supporting and opposing motions to vacate and set aside judgment or order void in fact generally (§ 70.460 et seq., § 70.470 et seq.).

Part II, Subpart C, covers equitable relief from default judgments or other judgments or orders based on extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress. Subpart 1, relating to motions in equity, includes the following types of forms:

- Supporting and opposing motions in equity to vacate and set aside judgment or order based on extrinsic fraud, mistake or duress generally (§ 70.480 et seq., § 70.490 et seq.).

Subpart 2, relating to suits in equity, includes the following types of forms:

- Supporting and opposing demurrer to complaint (§ 70.500 et seq., § 70.520 et seq.).

- Supporting and opposing motion for summary judgment (§ 70.510 et seq., § 70.540 et seq.).

Subpart 3, relating to grounds for granting or denying equitable relief, includes the following types of forms:

- Supporting and opposing contention that equitable relief should be granted based on extrinsic mistake of fact (§ 70.560 et seq., § 70.630 et seq.).

- Supporting and opposing contention that equitable relief should be granted based on extrinsic fraud (§ 70.580 et seq., § 70.630 et seq.).

- Supporting and opposing contention that equitable relief should be granted based on duress (§ 70.600 et seq., § 70.630 et seq.).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.02

§ 70.02 Governing Law

Relief from a judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). Relief from default and default judgment based on lack of actual notice after constructive service is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5. Relief from default based on improper venue under the Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act (Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.), the Automobile Sales Finance Act (Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.), or the general consumer venue statute (Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b)) is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5. Relief from default based on court jurisdiction over the law practice of defendant's attorney, is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 473.1. Relief from default under the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act is governed by 50 U.S.C. App. § 521. Relief from a judgment entered during a period of military service as a member of the National Guard or reservist to which the defendant has a meritorious or legal defense is governed by Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d).

Relief from void judgments and orders is governed generally by Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), and case law exercising the court's inherent power to set aside void judgments and orders [see, e.g., Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1121-1122, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286 (judgment void in fact); Hendrix v. Hendrix (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 379, 383, 279 P.2d 58 (judgment void on its face)]. Note that the provision authorizing relief from void judgments and orders used to appear in the fifth paragraph of Code Civ. Proc. § 473, but 1991 amendments inserted a new paragraph immediately preceding it [see Stats. 1991, ch. 1003, operative January 1, 1992]. The contents of the "judgment roll," for purposes in determining whether a judgment is void on its face, is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 670.

Relief under the trial court's equitable powers, from a judgment or order obtained by extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress, is governed by case law [see, e.g., Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 855, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700] .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.03

§ 70.03 How to Use the Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Points and Authorities

One of the more significant drafting requirements to keep in mind are page limits: supporting memoranda of points and authorities (other than those in a summary judgment proceeding) must not exceed 15 pages in length. Exhibits, declarations, attachments, tables of contents or authorities, or the proof of service are not included in the page limitation. A reply or closing memorandum may not exceed 10 pages in length [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d)]. Any party desiring to file a longer memorandum must obtain leave of court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(e)]. These and other drafting requirements are discussed in further detail in Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs, § 1.05.

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

The forms included in this chapter are designed to be combined with other points and authorities to form a complete memorandum. For a detailed discussion on how to select and use the forms in the publication to build a draft memorandum and complete the draft, with detailed discussion of all drafting requirements and strategic or stylistic considerations, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs, §§ 1.02 -1.06.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.04

§ 70.04 Related Discussion and Forms

[1] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For detailed legal background discussion, research guides, procedural checklists, and practice forms of motions and other papers relating to direct attacks on valid and void judgments, orders, and proceedings in the trial court by various statutory motions at law and by motions and actions in equity, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders (Matthew Bender).

Other related chapters in this publication include the following:

- Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview through Ch. 54, Appeal: California Supreme Court Review (direct attack by appeal of unlimited civil case).
- Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments (entry of default and default judgment).
- Ch. 367, Minors: Disaffirmation of Judgments (relief from judgment against a minor).
- Ch. 371, Motions After Trial (direct attack in trial court).
- Ch. 372, Motions and Orders (law and motion practice generally).
- Ch. 345A, Limited Civil Cases (direct attack by appeal of limited civil case).

See also related discussion and forms in the following chapters in that publication: Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake; Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit; Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances; Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter Jurisdiction; and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers.

[2] Related Points and Authorities Chapters

For additional related memoranda and points and authorities that may be useful in proceedings for relief from a default and default judgment or other judgment or order, see:

- Ch. 92, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake.
- Ch. 105, Fraud and Deceit.
- Ch. 131, Judgments.
- Ch. 132, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction and Inconvenient Forum.
- Ch. 133, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter Jurisdiction.
- Ch. 158, Motions to Reconsider and Renewed Motions.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.05-70.09

[Reserved]

§§ 70.05[Reserved]

33 of 156 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.10

§ 70.10 Supporting Defendant's Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF DEFEND-
vs.	)	ANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE
_____ [name],	)	_____ [DEFAULT AND DE-
Defendant.	)	FAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DIS-)	MISSAL or ORDER or _____
	)	(identify other proceeding)]
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
		Location: _____
		[Judge: _____]
		Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND

DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) BECAUSE THE _____ [identify proceeding, e.g., DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT] WERE TAKEN AGAINST DEFENDANT THROUGH HIS/HER _____[MISTAKE and/or INADVERTENCE and/or SURPRISE and/or EXCUSABLE NEGLECT], AND JUSTICE REQUIRES DETERMINATION OF THE ISSUES AFTER A HEARING ON THE MERITS OF THE CASE.

A. Grounds for Relief From Judgment, Order, or Other Proceeding. On application, the court may, on any terms as may be just, relieve a party or his or her legal representative from a judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding taken against him or her through his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect (Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)).

B. Policy of Law Favors Trial on Merits. The policy of the law is that controversies should be heard and disposed of on their merits (Fasuyi v. Permatex, Inc. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 681, 694-703, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 351 ; Berman v. Klassman (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 900, 909, 95 Cal. Rptr. 417).

C. Court Has Wide Discretion in Granting Relief. A trial court has a wide discretion to grant relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473 (Berman v. Klassman (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 900, 909, 95 Cal. Rptr. 417).

D. Liberal Construction of Statute. Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b), is a remedial measure to be liberally construed, and any doubts existing as to the propriety of setting aside a default thereunder will be resolved in favor of a hearing on the merits (Berman v. Klassman (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 900, 910, 95 Cal. Rptr. 417).

[Add supporting points and authorities for each particular ground of relief asserted (see, e.g., § 70.50 et seq.). In addition, when applicable, add additional points and authorities that generally support a defendant's motion for relief (see, e.g., § 70.11 et seq.)]

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[moving party]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a motion to set aside a default and default judgment or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). It is a general form that sets out the grounds for obtaining relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); for example, the failure to file a responsive pleading within the statutory time was a result of the defendant's mistake, surprise, inadvertence, or excusable neglect.

For a memorandum supporting the contention that a section 473(b) motion for relief does not constitute general appearance when combined with a motion to quash, see § 70.20[1].

For a reply memorandum supporting motion to vacate and set aside default and default judgment based on substantial compliance with the requirement for filing of a proposed answer, see § 70.236[1].

The caption and form should be modified as necessary when relief is sought from the entry of default only, as distinguished from the entry of default and a resulting default judgment.

This form should be combined with additional points and authorities supporting a request for relief based on one or more of the specific grounds set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see, e.g., § 70.50 et seq.; see also [f], below]. In addition, when applicable, this form should be combined with additional points and authorities that support relief generally [see, e.g., § 70.11 et seq.]. This form may also be combined, in an appropriate case, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of relief based on other statutory or decisional authority [see discussion under [c], below].

Although a party typically seeks relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), from a default or default judgment, or both, a court may grant relief under that section from any "judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding." This form may used, when appropriate, for seeking relief in situations other than a default and default judgment.

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should argue that the facts of the case warrant discretion in favor of relief, or the mandatory granting of relief under the attorney affidavit of fault provision, in which case counsel should show that the default was caused by the conduct described in the affidavit.

In an appropriate case, counsel would refer to evidence set forth in:

- Declarations submitted in support of relief from the judgment, order, or dismissal [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1306(a)].

- Discovery documents, such as deposition transcripts and answers to interrogatories and requests for admission.

- The opposing party's pleadings that constitute admissions.

- Other documentary evidence generally.

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion"), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702].

When counsel cites facts in his or her argument, counsel should refer to the particular page and line number of the declaration, deposition transcript, or other document, that contains the cited facts. In addition, the relevant portion of any testimony in a deposition should be marked in a manner that calls attention to the testimony [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1116(c)].

For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice and affidavits and declaration, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Alternative Methods of Obtaining Relief

Various other statutes provide additional grounds for relief from a default judgment [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473.1, 473.5]. For memoranda supporting a grant of relief from default judgment on other statutory grounds, which may be combined with this form, see §§ 70.240 -70.242 and §§ 70.250 -70.270. A default judgment or other judgment or order may also be set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), on the ground that it is void. For memoranda supporting a grant of relief from a void default judgment or other void judgment or order, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with this form, see § 70.310 et seq. Finally, a default judgment or other judgment or order may be attacked by a motion or separate action in equity, when the judgment was obtained through extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress. For memoranda supporting a grant of relief from a default judgment or other judgment or order on such equitable grounds, which may be combined with this form, see § 70.480 et seq.

[d] Relief From Judgments, Orders and Proceedings Generally

Although a party typically seeks relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), from a default or default judgment, or both, a court may grant relief under Section 473(b) from any "judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding" [see, e.g., Brown v. Williams (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 182, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 634 (discussed in § 70.131; party sought relief from judgment entered on arbitration award); Fairfield v. Ahlstrom (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 590, 24 Cal. Rptr. 70 (discussed in § 70.212[3]; party sought relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 from an order striking untimely filed memorandum of costs)]. One court, however, has held that the mandatory provisions of § 473(b) do not apply to summary judgments [see English v. IKON Business Solutions, Inc. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 130, 136-149, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 93] , or to a judgment entered after an uncontested trial held in a defendant's absence [Vandermoon v. Sanwong (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 315, 319-321, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 772 (defendants whose attorney did not inform them of trial date were not entitled to have amended judgment issued after uncontested trial set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); reaffirming English v. IKON Business Solutions, Inc., and expressing disagreeing with In re Marriage of Hock & Gordon-Hock)]. This form may be modified, as appropriate, for use in seeking relief in situations other than a default and default judgment.

[e] Showing of Meritorious Defense

Historically, before relieving a defendant from default, courts generally required some showing that the defendant had a meritorious defense to the action [see, e.g., Beard v. Beard (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 645, 648, 107 P.2d 385 (discussed in § 70.81[3]]. In 1981, however, former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), was amended to add the sentence, "No affidavit or declaration of merits shall be required of the moving party." It is unclear what practical effect this amendment has on the showing required by the moving party. A verified pleading has traditionally been equated with an affidavit of merits, with respect to its sufficiency constituting a meritorious defense [see, e.g., First Small Business Inv. Co. v. Sistim, Inc. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 645, 649-651, 90 Cal. Rptr. 798] . Although Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), does require the moving party to file a "copy of the answer or other pleading proposed," is does, however, not expressly require that the responsive pleading be verified.

At least one commentator has suggested that the 1981 amendment abolishes the requirement of a showing of meritorious defense [see Witkin, California Procedure, vol. 8, Attack on Judgment in Trial Court, § 175 (3d ed. 1985)]. Some cases decided after that amendment have nevertheless continued to refer to the requirement of a showing of meritorious defense in conjunction with the filing of the proposed pleading [see, e.g., Puryear v. Stanley (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 291, 293-294, 218 Cal. Rptr. 196 (discussed in § 70.146[3])]. It may be arguable that such courts, in so doing, are erroneously applying the standard that still applies for obtaining equitable, as distinguished from statutory, relief [see, e.g., Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 578-579, 122 P.2d 564 (requiring a showing a meritorious defense to obtain equitable relief from default judgment); see also § 70.120 et seq.].

Until this issue is expressly decided, however, counsel may wish to verify the proposed responsive pleading filed in connection with a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), regardless of whether verification is otherwise required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446 (providing when responsive pleading must be verified generally)].

However courts construe the pleading requirements under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), a court may not require a defendant to show that he or she has a meritorious defense before setting aside a default when that defendant did not receive proper notice of the judgment and the judgment had substantial adverse consequences for the defendant; to so require would violate the due process clause of U.S. Const., amend. XIV [see Peralta v. Heights Medical Center, Inc. (1988) 485 U.S. 80, 84-87, 108 S. Ct. 896, 99 L. Ed. 2d 75, 80-82 (discussed in § 70.240[2])]; for further discussion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders (Matthew Bender).

[f] Relief From Default as Well as Default Judgment

Counsel should seek relief from the entry of default, as well as from any judgment taken based on the default, in that if only the judgment is vacated, the opposing party is entitled to obtain another judgment based on the default [see, e.g., Howard Greer etc. Originals v. Capritti (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 886, 888-889, 221 P.2d 937] . Except when the motion is accompanied by the moving party's attorney's affidavit of fault, this assumes, of course, that the motion has been filed within six months of the date of default, as distinguished from the date of the default judgment; otherwise, under the general rule, the motion would be untimely for all purposes, in that the court would lack jurisdiction to grant relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see, e.g., Weiss v. Blumencranc (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 536, 541, 131 Cal. Rptr. 298 (discussed in § 70.141[3]); see also [j], below]. If the motion for relief is accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit (declaration) of fault and is in proper form, it is timely if it is made within six months after the judgment has been entered [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); see § 70.12[3]].

[g] Multiple Grounds for Relief

Typically, relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), is sought on several, if not all, the grounds available under the statute (that is, mistake, inadvertence, surprise, and excusable neglect, as well as fraud), based on the same conduct. For example, in Dingwall v. Vangas, Inc. (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 108, 32 Cal. Rptr. 351 (discussed in § 70.54[3]), the court of appeal granted relief based on the attorney's conduct in allowing a default to be taken while he was under the impression that negotiations were ongoing, and that the opposing party would not take a default although the time had elapsed in which to file a response. In doing so, the court discussed the attorney's conduct in terms of inadvertence, excusable neglect, and mistake [see Dingwall v. Vangas, Inc. (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 108, 113, 32 Cal. Rptr. 351] . Inasmuch as it is often difficult to categorize conduct definitively into one of the enumerated grounds for relief, counsel should consider combining as many of the grounds as is reasonable under the circumstances. Counsel therefore should carefully examine all the grounds available [see § 70.50 -70.110].

[h] Conditions for Granting Relief

Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) generally permits the trial court to relieve a party from a judgment, dismissal, or order against him or her on the grounds specified and on "any terms as may be just." Courts have long construed this phrase to allow payment of costs or attorney's fees to the adverse party to compensate that party for any losses or expenses incurred because of the motion [Hearst v. Ferrante (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 234 Cal. Rptr. 385 (discussed in § 70.230[4])]. In addition, when relief from default is based on a sworn declaration of fault by the defaulting party's attorney, the court is required to order that attorney to pay reasonable compensatory legal fees and costs to opposing counsel or parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]; however, the court cannot condition such relief on the attorney's payment of compensatory legal fees or costs or monetary penalties imposed by the court or on compliance with other sanctions ordered by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(c)(2)]. Other specific penalties and sanctions are discretionary [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(c)(1)]. For a memorandum seeking the imposition of these conditions, see § 70.230 et seq.

Any other condition dictated by fairness may also be imposed [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Helsel (1988) 198 Cal. App.

3d 332, 340, 340 n.7, 243 Cal. Rptr. 657 (noting that if trial court on remand granted moving party relief from certain parts of stipulation, court could consider whether opposing party was entitled to relief from other provisions of stipulation)].

[i] Renewal of Motion

Defendant may wish to seek a reconsideration of his or her motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 if it is denied. Because there is no statutory authority for reconsideration, a motion requesting it will be treated as a renewal of the prior motion for relief and submitted to the discretion of the trial judge. The motion must be made within the six-month statutory limit and is subject to the same constraints as the original motion [see Northridge Financial Corp. v. Hamblin (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 819, 825-826, 122 Cal. Rptr. 109 (discussed in § 70.191[3])].

[j] Timely Filing of Motion

Pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), application for relief from a judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding must be made within a reasonable time, not exceeding six months, after that judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding was taken [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); Sugasawara v. Newland (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 294, 297, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 484] . In the case of a motion seeking relief from a default and default judgment, other than a motion based on the defaulting party's attorney's affidavit of fault [see § 70.12[3]], this six-month period generally runs from the date of the default and not from the judgment taken afterwards [see Weiss v. Blumencranc (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 536, 541, 131 Cal. Rptr. 298 (discussed in § 70.141[3])]. Application includes service as well as filing; thus, an application or motion that is filed but not served within the six-month limitation is not timely [Arambula v. Union Carbide Corp. (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 333, 340-342, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854] .

In the absence of extrinsic fraud, the six-month limitation is jurisdictional [Jackson v. Bank of America (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 55, 59, 190 Cal. Rptr. 78] . The court has no authority to consider an application or motion made after the six-month limit has expired [Arambula v. Union Carbide Corp. (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 333, 344-345, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854] . Thus, for example, if more than six months has lapsed from the time of default, relief may be available from the entry of the default judgment, but not the default itself, if they represent discrete events [see Rutan v. Summit Sports, Inc. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 965, 970, 219 Cal. Rptr. 381 (discussed in § 70.143[3])]. In such a case, however, relief may be available from both the default and default judgment under the court's equitable powers. For memoranda of points and authorities supporting a motion for equitable relief, see § 70.480 et seq.

The six-month period has been construed to mean a half year, or 182 days (as distinct from six "calendar" months). The first day is excluded, and the last day included, in the computation [see Davis v. Thayer (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 903, 170 Cal. Rptr. 328 (discussed in § 70.190[3][b])].

Counsel should file a motion for relief as quickly as possible after notice of the default, dismissal, or other order, since the six month period is not analogous to a limitations period [see Caldwell v. Methodist Hospital (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1521, 1524-1525, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 894 (court rejected motion for relief based on attorney's affidavit of fault filed three months after action was dismissed)]. Furthermore, the sooner the motion is filed, the less prejudice is incurred by the opposing party, and the lesser the quantum of evidence will justify the granting of relief [see, e.g., Buckert v. Briggs (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 296, 302-303, 93 Cal. Rptr. 61 (discussed in § 70.100[3]); Shamblin v. Brattain (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 474, 478, 243 Cal. Rptr. 902, 749 P.2d 339 (discussed in § 70.11[3][b])].

[k] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.120 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[l] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For further discussion and forms for use in proceedings to set aside a default, default judgment, or other judgment, dismissal, or order, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders (Matthew Bender). For further discussion and forms relating for use in motion proceedings to quash service of summons for lack of personal jurisdiction, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction and Inconvenient Forum (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Policy of Law Favors Trial on Merits

In Fasuyi v. Permatex, Inc. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 681, 694-703, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 351 , the plaintiff employee sued the defendant employer for personal injuries. The plaintiff's attorney was having trouble effecting service of the complaint, so he contacted the employer's parent corporation legal department who advised him how to serve the complaint. When the parent corporation received the complaint, it sent it to its insurance broker, who then sent it to the insurer. However, the insurer did not file a response to the complaint. Following expiration of the response period, the plaintiff sought and obtained a default judgment against the defendant. The file did not contain a proof of service on the defendant of a statement of damages. When the defendant learned of the default, it quickly filed a motion for relief from default pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). The trial court denied the motion.

The court of appeal reversed. It first held that there is no opposing party in a default proceeding. Therefore, the trial court must be the gatekeeper and ensure that the plaintiff strictly follows all the rules and procedures [167 Cal. App. 4th 681, 691] . In this case, the plaintiff failed to serve the statement of damages, as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11. The court further held that because the law strongly favors trial and disposition on the merits, any doubts in applying Code Civ. Proc. § 473 must be resolved in favor of the party seeking relief from default. Therefore, the court held, a trial court order denying relief from default is scrutinized more carefully than an order permitting a trial on the merits [167 Cal. App. 4th 681, 695] . If a defendant promptly seeks relief and there is no showing of prejudice to the plaintiff, very slight evidence is required to justify setting aside a default [167 Cal. App. 4th 681, 696] . The court noted that in this case the plaintiff's counsel had been in contact with the defendant's legal department regarding service of process. However, the plaintiff took the default without a reminder, let alone a warning, about any responsive pleading. While a warning is not legally required before seeking a default, the court held that such a warning is at the least an ethical obligation of counsel [167 Cal. App. 4th 681, 701] .

In Berman v. Klassman (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 900, 95 Cal. Rptr. 417 , two consolidated actions were set for trial. The actions arose from alleged nonpayment of monthly installments pursuant to written instruments. Defendants failed to appear for the trial, and the matter proceeded as an uncontested hearing on the same date. Therefore, no default was entered prior to entry of default judgment. Three months after one of the defendants became aware of the judgments, he filed, through substituted counsel, a motion to set aside the default judgments. The trial court granted the motion, and subsequently denied plaintiff's motion for reconsideration. Plaintiff appealed from both orders.

The court of appeal dismissed the appeal from the order denying plaintiff's motion for reconsideration, on the ground that the order is nonappealable (17 Cal. App. 3d 900, 905) . The court affirmed the granting of defendant's motion to set aside the default judgments (17 Cal. App. 3d 900, 910) . The court rejected plaintiff's contention that the trial court lacked jurisdiction to hear the motion because the application for relief was served and filed more than six months after the entry of judgment, based on the entry of a minute order in which the court directed the plaintiff to prepare a written order. The court held that the minute order is not an appealable order. Consequently, the date of entry of the judgment based on the formal written order starts the six-month period within which the defendant may seek relief pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473. Inasmuch as defendant filed the motion within six months of that date, the motion was timely (17 Cal. App. 3d 900, 908) . The court also rejected plaintiff's contention that defendant's delay in filing the motion until some three months after knowledge of the entry of judgment precluded relief as a matter of law. The court noted that the declarations submitted did not disclose whether the delay was caused by defendant or by his newly substituted counsel. The court also noted that although the written instruments on which the actions were based were arguably usurious, that issue remained for proper determination by the trier of fact (17 Cal. App. 3d 900, 909) .

The court stated that a trial court has a wide discretion to grant relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, and as a general rule, the action of the trial court in this respect will not be disturbed by an appellate court unless discretion has been manifestly abused. The policy of the law is that controversies should be heard and disposed of on their merits. Considering what is a reasonable time depends largely on the facts and circumstances of each case. The general rule is to favor, whenever possible, a hearing on the merits, and appellate courts are much more disposed to affirm an order when the result is to compel a trial on the merits than it is when a judgment by default is allowed to stand and it appears that a substantial defense could be made (17 Cal. App. 3d 900, 909) . Inasmuch as Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is a remedial measure to be liberally construed, any doubts concerning the propriety of the trial court's action will be resolved in favor of a hearing on the merits. When, as in the instant case, the trial court is faced with a strong possibility that the judgment, if allowed to stand, would affirm transactions in violation of the usury law, it cannot be said as a matter of law, that the unexplained delay by defendant in seeking relief should compel the trial court in the exercise of its discretion to deprive the defendant of a trial of the actions on their merits (17 Cal. App. 3d 900, 910) .

Note that, with respect to the issue of timely filing within the maximum time period of six months, generally the six-month period runs from the date of entry of default and not from the judgment taken afterwards [see Rutan v. Summit Sports, Inc. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 965, 970, 219 Cal. Rptr. 381 (discussed in § 70.143[3]); see also § 70.140 et seq.]. The facts of Berman are unique in that no default per se was entered; the court of appeal noted that neither the minute order of the first courtroom (ordering the matter to be heard as a default), nor the minute order of the second courtroom (ordering judgment for plaintiff) constituted entry of default [see Berman v. Klassman (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 900, 904 n.2, 95 Cal. Rptr. 417] . Therefore, Berman considered the dates of only the minute orders and the final judgment, rather than entry of any default.

[b] Court Has Wide Discretion in Granting Relief

Berman v. Klassman (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 900, 95 Cal. Rptr. 417 , is discussed in § 70.10[3][a].

[c] Liberal Construction of Statute

Berman v. Klassman (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 900, 95 Cal. Rptr. 417 , is discussed in § 70.10[3][a].

[d] Timeliness of Motion

In Arambula v. Union Carbide Corp. (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 333, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854 , plaintiff filed a complaint against defendant and others alleging wrongful death and several counts for personal injury arising from her deceased husband's alleged exposure to asbestos. She timely filed a case report providing information on her husband's exposure and medical history as required by a general order governing asbestos cases in the Los Angeles Superior Court. Defendant moved for summary judgment in on the ground that the case report did not identify any of defendant's product to which the decedent allegedly was exposed. Plaintiff filed an opposition and a supplemental case report listing several witnesses who purportedly would testify that the decedent was exposed to products containing asbestos supplied by Union Carbide. Plaintiff acknowledged that she had failed to file the supplemental case report within the time required by the general order, and requested relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) to allow consideration of the supplemental case report. The court granted the summary judgment motion, stating that the supplemental case report was filed only seven days before the hearing, rather than ten days as required by the general order, and impliedly denying the request for relief under Section 473(b). The minute order also stated that plaintiff had failed to file a separate statement of disputed facts and therefore failed to show a triable issue of material fact. Within six months of the entry of judgment, plaintiff filed an ex parte application for an order shortening time to hear a motion for relief from the summary judgment. Plaintiff and defendant, through counsel, both appeared before the court on the ex parte application. The court denied the application stating that shortened notice was unnecessary. Plaintiff filed a motion for relief from the summary judgment order and judgment again within six months of the entry of judgment. She argued that her failure to file the supplemental case report timely was due to her counsel's excusable neglect and that the court granted the summary judgment motion based solely on the absence of product identification information in her original case report. She served the motion on several parties, but did not serve the motion on defendant because defendant was no longer on her service list. Defendant first learned of the motion after the six-month period had expired on the date of the hearing, and defendant's counsel appeared at the hearing on the motion for relief and explained that defendant had not been served. The court took the motion off calendar. Plaintiff filed another motion for relief from the summary judgment order and judgment and served defendant the same day. The notice of motion stated that the motion was identical to the earlier motion except that the new motion requested additional relief under Section 473(b). Defendant opposed the motion on several grounds, including that it was untimely. The court granted the motion, stating in a minute order that relief was mandatory because the summary judgment was based on a procedural default and was not on the merits, that defendant waived any defect in the notice by appearing and contesting the motion, and that Section 473 provides that relief may not be given until after notice to the adverse party, but it does not provide that no application for the relief can be made to the court until after notice has been given and that plaintiff applied within six months.

The court of appeal reversed. The court held that plaintiff failed to apply for relief timely as required by Section 473(b) because she failed to serve the motion for relief within six months after entry of the summary judgment order or judgment; defendant did not waive the six-month limit by appearing at the hearing and contesting the motion on the merits; and the court had no authority to extend the six-month period to apply for relief (128 Cal. App. 4th 333, 340-345) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.11

§ 70.11 Supporting Defendant's Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Slight Evidence Is Sufficient if Motion Is Timely or No Prejudice Is Shown

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.10[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE ONLY VERY SLIGHT EVIDENCE IS REQUIRED TO JUSTIFY RELIEF IN THIS CASE.

[EITHER]

A. Slight Evidence Is Sufficient if Motion Promptly Made. When a party in default moves promptly to seek relief, very slight evidence is required to justify a trial court's order setting aside a default (Shamblin v. Brattain (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 474, 478, 243 Cal. Rptr. 902, 749 P.2d 339).

[AND/OR]

B. Slight Evidence Is Sufficient if No Prejudice Shown. When there is no showing that the party opposing the motion to vacate the judgment has suffered any prejudice or that injustice will result from the trial of the case on its merits, very slight evidence is required to justify a court in setting aside the default (Buckert v. Briggs (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 296, 302-303, 93 Cal. Rptr. 61).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be used in support of a motion to set aside a default and default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) on the ground that only very slight evidence is necessary for relief because the motion is timely or there is no showing that prejudice has occurred or that injustice will result if the case is permitted to proceed to a trial on the merits. These points and authorities should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.10[1]]. See also § 70.10[2][l] for related chapters in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

If the counsel is arguing that no showing has been made that the opposing party has suffered prejudice, or will suffer injustice by a permitting a trial on the merits, from a strategic standpoint counsel may not wish to raise the issue stated in Paragraph B in an initial memorandum. Rather, he or she may wish to raise this issue in a reply brief, pointing out that the opposing memorandum and attached declarations fail to show any prejudice or likelihood of injustice.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.120 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Slight Evidence Sufficient if Motion Promptly Made

In Shamblin v. Brattain (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 474, 243 Cal. Rptr. 902, 749 P.2d 339 , an action based on a real property dispute, defendants prevailed on most points following a six-week jury trial, and plaintiffs appealed. One defendant (the "defendant") filed a cross appeal contesting denial of the full amount of his requested attorney's fees, which the court of appeal eventually dismissed for failure to pay costs of preparing the transcript. On dismissal of this cross appeal, the clerk's office of the court of appeal erroneously deleted defendant (but not his codefendants) from the clerk's mailing, even though defendant was still a party to the initial appeal. After the time expired for all defendants to file their response briefs, the clerk's office sent notices to that effect to the codefendants, but not to the defendant. When no response was filed, the court of appeal issued a brief unpublished opinion in plaintiffs' favor, reversing the trial court judgment and remanding for a new trial. Copies of the opinion reversing the judgment were mailed to the codefendants, but not to the defendant. Plaintiffs filed a memorandum of costs on appeal and served it on the codefendants, and on the defendant's attorney. Shortly afterward, defendant's attorney withdrew as attorney of record, and informed the court of defendant's address. Plaintiffs reset the matter for trial, notifying all parties. Plaintiffs settled with codefendants, and obtained a default judgment against defendant, who eventually discovered the judgment against him, hired new counsel, and moved to set aside the default pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)). His declaration stated that he was misled by his former attorney to believe plaintiffs' appeal had been unsuccessful on the merits. Plaintiffs countered that defendant had probably received mail regarding the pending retrial after his former attorney withdrew, and that defendant could have received notice by other means as well. The trial court determined that defendant's failure to appear at trial was excusable, and granted the motion to set aside the default.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that the trial court abused its discretion in setting aside the judgment by failing to consider the "overwhelming evidence of defendants' own inexcusable neglect."

The California Supreme Court reversed the judgment of the court of appeal, holding that it should not have substituted its own view of the facts for that of the trial court, which did not abuse its discretion in granting relief (44 Cal. 3d 474, 479) . The Court noted that it is the policy of the law to favor, whenever possible, a hearing on the merits. Appellate courts are much more disposed to affirm an order when the result is to compel a trial on the merits than when the default judgment is allowed to stand. The court held that when a party in default moves promptly to seek relief, very slight evidence is required to justify a trial court's order setting aside a default. The court noted that in the instant case, the defendant had promptly moved to have the default judgment set aside once he learned of it. It stated that the trial court's granting of relief was within its sound discretion and, in the absence of a clear showing of abuse of discretion, should not be disturbed (44 Cal. 3d 474, 478) .

The Court held further that the appropriate test for abuse of discretion is whether the trial court exceeded the bounds of reason; and that when two or more inferences can reasonably be deduced from the facts, the reviewing court has no authority to substitute its decision for that of the trial court (44 Cal. 3d 474, 478-479) . The Court determined that substantial evidence supported the trial court's findings; for example, defendant declared that he received no notice of the new trial, and that, indisputably, his name was inadvertently removed from the clerk's mailing list through no fault of his own. Even though contrary findings could have been made, an appellate court should defer to the factual determinations made by the trial court when the evidence is in conflict (44 Cal. 3d 474, 479) .

[b] Slight Evidence Sufficient if No Prejudice Shown

Buckert v. Briggs (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 296, 93 Cal. Rptr. 61 , is discussed in § 70.100[3].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.12

§ 70.12 Supporting Defendant's Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.10[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT UNDER SECTION 473(b) BECAUSE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT WERE TAKEN AGAINST DEFENDANT THROUGH THE _____ [MISTAKE and/or INADVERTENCE and/or SURPRISE and/or EXCUSABLE NEGLECT], OF HIS/HER ATTORNEY, AND THE COURT HAS A MANDATORY DUTY TO GRANT RELIEF WHEN THE MOTION IS ACCOMPANIED BY AN ATTORNEY'S SWORN AFFIDAVIT OF FAULT, AND IS TIMELY AND IN PROPER FORM.

A. Attorney Affidavit of Fault. Whenever an application for relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b), is made no more than six months after entry of judgment, and is in proper form, and is accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect, the court is required to vacate any (1) resulting default entered by the clerk against his or her client and which will result in entry of a default judgment, or (2) resulting default judgment entered against his or her client, unless the court finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect (Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)).

[Optional] B. Attorney Affidavit Procedure Available After Default Entered by Judge. The attorney affidavit provision of Code of Civil Procedure Section 473 may be used to set aside defaults that were entered by a judge, as well as defaults entered by a clerk (Matera v. McLeod (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 44, 62-68, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 331 ; Lorenz v. Commercial Acceptance Ins. Co. (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 981, 996, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362).

[Optional] C. Attorney Affidavit Procedure Available to Remedy Procedural Equivalent of Default. The attorney affidavit provision of Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) may be used to set aside judgments entered under circumstances similar or comparable to a default (In re Marriage of Hock & Gordon-Hock (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1438, 1443-1444, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 546).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be used in support of a motion to set aside a default and default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) if the application for relief is based on an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect. These points and authorities should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.10[1]]. See also § 70.10[2][l] for related chapters in California Forms of Pleading and Practice Matthew Bender.

Optional Paragraph B is for use if the application for relief is based on the attorney affidavit provision but the judge, rather than the clerk, entered the default that is to be set aside.

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.120 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

Notwithstanding any other requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 473, and whenever an application for relief is made no more than six months after the entry of judgment, is in proper form, and is accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect, the court is required to vacate any (1) resulting default entered by the clerk against his or her client, and which will result in entry of a default judgment, or (2) resulting default judgment or dismissal entered against his or her client, unless the court finds that the default or dismissal was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)].

Thus, an application for relief based on an attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect must be:

- Made from either a default entered by the clerk, and which will result in entry of a default judgment, or resulting default judgment or dismissal;
- Filed no later than six months after entry of judgment;
- Prepared in proper form; and
- Accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ.

Proc. § 2015.5]) attesting to his or her fault [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); see also Metropolitan Service Corp. v. Casa De Palms, Ltd. (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1481, 1488, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 575 (reversing default judgment and order denying relief from default based on attorney affidavit establishing neglect due to busy schedule under mandatory provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473); Sugasawara v. Newland (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 294, 297, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 484 (same); Billings v. Health Plan of America (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 250, 256-257, 275 Cal. Rptr. 80 (decided under prior version of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b))].

Assuming the conditions of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) are otherwise met, an affidavit of fault is sufficient to entitle the client to relief if it is filed by a person licensed to practice law in any jurisdiction. Thus, for example, in Rodrigues v. Superior Court (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1027, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 194 , defendants were sued by plaintiff, who claimed an undivided half interest in real property owned by defendants. Defendants were served with process in Portugal, where they reside. When they failed to answer the complaint, plaintiff took their default and obtained a default judgment. Defendants filed a motion to set aside the defaults and default judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), on the ground that their failure to answer the complaint properly was the fault of their Portuguese attorney. In support of the motion, defendants filed a declaration of fault in which the attorney declared that he is licensed to practice law in Portugal, and when defendants were served with process in this matter they brought the summons and complaint to his office and asked him to take care of the matter, which he agreed to do. He prepared a Portuguese legal response denying the allegations of the complaint, which he mailed to the superior court. He later obtained and mailed to the court a certified English translation of the response. He assumed the matter was taken care of and he would receive further instructions from the court. When he received no further instructions, he assumed he did not have to do anything further. He declared that entry of default was the result of his mistake, inadvertence and neglect. The trial court held that the declaration was a valid and effective affidavit of fault and granted the motion to set aside the default. The appellate court affirmed (Rodrigues v. Superior Court (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1027, 1033-1037, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 194).

In addition, the court must find that the default or dismissal was actually caused by the attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); Billings v. Health Plan of America (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 250, 256, 275 Cal. Rptr. 80 (decided under prior version of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)); Beeman v. Burling (1990) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1586, 1605-1606, 265 Cal. Rptr. 719 (same)].

If it is determined that these requirements have been met, the court must vacate any (1) resulting default entered by the clerk against the attorney's client, and which would have resulted in the entry of a default judgment, or (2) resulting default judgment or dismissal entered against the client [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); but see Peltier v. McCloud River R.R. Co. (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1809, 1815, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182 and Graham v. Beers (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1656, 1661, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 765 (holding that mandatory relief provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 may not be used to reargue opposition to motion of dismissal)].

To the extent that Billings v. Health Plan of America (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 250, 275 Cal. Rptr. 80 , held that the mandatory relief based on an attorney's affidavit of fault under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)], is limited to relief from a default and default judgment and does not authorize relief from the dismissal of an action [Billings v. Health Plan of America (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 250, 253-256, 275 Cal. Rptr. 80] , it appears to have been abrogated by the 1992 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), which specifically requires the court to vacate a resulting default judgment "or dismissal" entered against the attorney's client when the relief sought is based on the attorney's affidavit of fault [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); but see Peltier v. McCloud River R.R. Co. (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1809, 1815, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182 , and Graham v. Beers (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1656, 1661, 36 Cal. Rptr. 765 (holding that mandatory relief provisions of Section 473 may not be used to reargue opposition to motion of dismissal)]. In addition, the court of appeal in Billings held that the trial court could properly deny an application for relief made within the six month period if the defaulting party failed to exercise diligence in seeking relief [Billings v. Health Plan of America (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 250, 257-258, 275 Cal. Rptr. 80 ; Caldwell v. Methodist Hospital

(1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1521, 1524-1525, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 894] .

The 1991 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 473, which replaced the word "timely" with the phrase "made no more than six months after entry of judgment" in the sentence dealing with relief based on an attorney affidavit, would appear to have nullified Billings insofar as that case held the diligence requirement applied to a motion for relief based on an attorney's affidavit of fault. Nonetheless, Caldwell relied on Billings in rejecting a motion for relief based on an attorney's affidavit of fault filed three months after the action was dismissed without discussing the change in the language of § 473.

If relief is granted, based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, the court shall direct the attorney to pay reasonable compensatory legal fees and costs to opposing counsel or parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. However, the relief from default granted cannot be made conditional on the attorney's payment of compensatory legal fees or costs or monetary penalties imposed by the court or on compliance with other sanctions ordered by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(c)(2)].

[b] Attorney Affidavit Procedure Available After Default Entered by Judge

In Matera v. McLeod (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 44, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 331 , an action on a sublease, the defendants' attorney failed to file an opposition to plaintiffs' discovery motions, failed to attend the hearing on those motions, failed to inform the defendants of the subsequent discovery order against them, failed to file an opposition to the plaintiffs' motion for a terminating sanction, and failed to attend the hearing on that motion. The trial court struck defendants' answer to the complaint and entered a default judgment against them. The trial court also denied defendants' motion for relief from the judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) on the grounds that defendants were not entitled to mandatory relief, despite the attorney's affidavit of fault (145 Cal. App. 4th 44, 49-55) .

The court of appeal reversed the judgment and the order denying the motion for relief from the defaults and default judgment with directions to the trial court to vacate the defaults and the order striking defendants' answer, reinstate defendants' answer, award reasonable compensatory legal fees and costs as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and conduct additional appropriate proceedings not inconsistent with the views expressed in its opinion. The court held that defendants were entitled under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) to mandatory relief based on their attorney's affidavit of fault, because the default judgment was a "default judgment" within meaning of the statute, and the attorney's neglect was the sole cause of defendants' failure to comply with the discovery order resulting in the terminating sanction. The court held that because of the attorney's neglect, plaintiffs or their counsel were entitled to recover from the attorney reasonable compensatory legal fees and costs necessitated by his neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and that the trial court on remand could impose sanctions and grant other relief as provided by § 473(c)(1) (145 Cal. App. 4th 44, 62-68) .

In Lorenz v. Commercial Acceptance Ins. Co. (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 981, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362 , defendant insurer's attorney failed to oppose a motion to require the defendant to post a security bond, and the trial court ordered the defendant's answer stricken until posting of the bond. The attorney obtained two extensions of time for the posting of the bond, but did nothing to obtain a bond. After the extensions expired, plaintiff requested entry of default. Defendant's attorney misplaced the notice of the request for entry of default and did not appear. Default was then entered by the trial court. After default judgment was entered, defendant changed attorneys and filed a motion to vacate the default and default judgment under the attorney affidavit procedure of Code Civ. Proc. § 473. The trial court granted the motion, and the plaintiff appealed, arguing that the attorney affidavit provision only permits defaults entered by the clerk to be vacated, and thus does not apply to a default entered by the trial court.

The court of appeal affirmed the granting of the motion to vacate (40 Cal. App. 4th 981, 1000) . The court reasoned that the reference in the affidavit procedure of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 to "the clerk" is a word of description rather than a word of limitation (40 Cal. App. 4th 981, 990) . The court noted that the legislative history of the provision confirms that the Legislature did not analyze, discuss, or even mention the fact that some defaults may be entered by the judge rather than the clerk (40 Cal. App. 4th 981, 992) . Stating that what happened in this case was a procedural fortuity, the court concluded that there was no reason in this case to distinguish between a judge-entered default and a clerk-entered default (40 Cal. App. 4th 981, 994) .

[c] Attorney Affidavit Procedure Available to Remedy Procedural Equivalent of Default

In In re Marriage of Hock & Gordon-Hock (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1438, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 546 , after granting a judgment of dissolution of marriage, the trial court reserved jurisdiction over further issues. Trial was later had on the reserved issues, at which neither the former wife nor her attorney appeared, and the trial court entered further judgment. Eleven days later, the former wife filed a motion to set aside the judgment on the reserved issues pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). In support of the motion, the wife's attorney filed an affidavit of fault, declaring that he was retained to represent the wife one week before the trial on reserved issues, and that he received the file from her former attorney the night before the trial, but was not informed by the former attorney that trial was scheduled for the next day. The trial court denied the motion to set aside the judgment.

The court of appeal reversed. The court held that § 473 applies under circumstances similar or comparable to a default, i.e., the procedural equivalent of a default, so that when there is no hearing on the merits, an attorney's neglect should not prevent the party from having his or her day in court (80 Cal. App. 4th 1438, 1443) . The court found that the circumstances of this case were more like the procedural equivalent of a default judgment than the situation in which a party has had an opportunity have his or her day in court and has contested the judgment or order. The court held further that the trial court erred in denying the motion, since her attorney's affidavit was sufficient to establish that his own conduct in failing to inquire of her former attorney as to the status of the case, as well as her former attorney's in causing the default, and there was nothing in the record to show that she contributed to the default (80 Cal. App. 4th 1438, 1446-1447) .

One appellate court has expressly disagreed with the application of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 to the procedural equivalent of a default, holding that Code Civ. Proc. § 473 did not apply to summary judgments [see English v. IKON Business Solutions, Inc. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 130, 136-149, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 93] or to judgments entered after an uncontested trial held in a defendant's absence [Vandermoon v. Sanwong (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 315, 319-321, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 772] .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.13-70.19

[Reserved]

§§ 70.13[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.20

§ 70.20 Supporting Contention That Motion for Relief Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) in Conjunction With Motion to Quash Is Not General Appearance [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(d)]

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.10[1]).]

A MOTION UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) DOES NOT CONSTITUTE A GENERAL APPEARANCE BY THE DEFENDANT WHEN JOINED WITH A MOTION TO QUASH UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 418.10.

Motion in Conjunction With Motion to Quash Does Not Constitute General Appearance. A motion under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b), when joined with a motion to quash under Code of Civil Procedure Section 418.10, does not constitute a general appearance by the defendant (Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(d)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum is for use if defendant files a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 in conjunction with a motion to quash service of summons for lack of jurisdiction [see Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10]. The memorandum supports the contention that a § 473(b) motion for relief in such a case does not constitute general appearance.

These points and authorities should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.10[1]]. See also § 70.10[2][l] for related chapters in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For further discussion and forms relating for use in motion proceedings to quash service of summons for lack of personal jurisdiction, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Memoranda

For forms of memoranda supporting a motion to quash under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10, which may in such cases be combined with this form, see Ch. 132, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction and Inconvenient Forum .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.21-70.29

[Reserved]

§§ 70.21[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.30

§ 70.30 Supporting Plaintiff's Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form--Plaintiff Is Entitled to Relief From Default

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFF'S
vs.	)	MOTION TO SET ASIDE _____
_____ [name],	)	[DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or Defendant.	)	JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or
	)	_____ (identify other proceeding)]
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
		[Judge: _____]
		Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT PLAINTIFF'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) ON THE GROUND OF HIS/HER _____ [MISTAKE and/or INADVERTENCE and/or SURPRISE and/or EXCUSABLE NEGLECT], AND JUSTICE REQUIRES DETERMINATION OF THE ISSUES AFTER A HEARING ON THE MERITS OF THE CASE.

A. Grounds for Relief From Judgment, Order, or Other Proceeding. [See § 70.10[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Plaintiff Entitled to Relief From Default. A plaintiff, as well as a defendant, may seek relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473 (Olson v. Olson (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 479, 482, 306 P.2d 1036).

C. Relief Available to Party in Whose Favor Judgment Was Rendered. A party in whose favor a judgment has been rendered, as well as the party against whom it was rendered, is entitled to relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) (Olson v. Olson (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 479, 482-483, 306 P.2d 1036).

D. Relief Subject to Discretion of Court. It is primarily a question of fact for the trial court to determine whether or not justice requires that a judgment or order be set aside, and the granting of a motion to vacate a judgment or order under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) rests largely in the discretion of the trial court (Olson v. Olson (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 479, 483, 306 P.2d 1036).

E. Liberal Construction of Statute. Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) is subject to liberal construction (Olson v. Olson (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 479, 482, 306 P.2d 1036).

[Add supporting points and authorities for each particular ground of relief asserted (see, e.g., § 70.50 et seq.). In addition, when applicable, add additional points and authorities that generally support a plaintiff's motion for relief (see, e.g., § 70.30 et seq.)]

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[moving party]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of memorandum may be used by a plaintiff in support of his or her motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 to set aside a default and default judgment or judgment, dismissal, or order entered in his or her favor against a defendant [see Olson v. Olson (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 479, 482-483, 306 P.2d 1036] . It is a general form that sets out the policy of law with respect to a prevailing plaintiff's right to seek relief from a judgment, dismissal, or order. The caption and form should be modified as necessary when relief is sought from the entry of default only, as distinguished from the entry of default and a resulting default judgment.

This form should be combined with additional points and authorities supporting a request for relief based on one or more of the specific grounds set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see, e.g., § 70.50 et seq.; see also discussion in §

70.10[2][g], relating to multiple grounds for relief].

This form may be combined with points and authorities seeking relief based on an attorney's affidavit of fault [see § 70.12[1]]. It may also be combined, in an appropriate case, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of relief based on other statutory or decisional authority [see discussion in § 70.10[2][c], relating to alternative methods of obtaining relief].

Although a party typically seeks relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), from a default or default judgment, or both, a court may grant relief under that section from any "judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding." This form may be used, when appropriate, for seeking relief in situations other than a default and default judgment.

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b).

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should argue that under the facts, the court in its proper exercise of discretion should grant relief. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.120 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Plaintiff Entitled to Relief From Default

In Olson v. Olson (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 479, 306 P.2d 1036 , the court entered an interlocutory decree of divorce in plaintiff wife's favor, incorporating in the decree a property settlement agreement. Shortly thereafter, the husband died. The wife moved to vacate the interlocutory decree on the ground that it was entered through her mistake and surprise in that she mistakenly believed that the property agreement was a necessary prerequisite to the decree, and that the agreement had divested her of property rights she had not intended to lose, all to her surprise. The trial court granted her motion to vacate the judgment and property agreement, and the executrix of husband's estate appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment with respect to vacation of the judgment, and reversed with respect to the property agreement (148 Cal. App. 2d 479, 489) . The court stated that Code Civ. Proc. § 473 has been construed to be remedial, and is therefore given a liberal construction. Even though Code Civ. Proc. § 473 provides that the party against whom a judgment or order has been taken may be relieved from it, it is well established that the statute entitles a plaintiff, as well as a defendant, to move for vacation of a judgment or order (148 Cal. App. 2d 479, 482) . A party in whose favor a judgment has been rendered, as well as the party against whom it was rendered, is entitled to relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (148 Cal. App. 2d 479, 482-483) . Inasmuch as appellant did not attack the sufficiency of the evidence, the court stated that the evidence was sufficient to support the trial court's order, noting that it is primarily a question of fact for the trial court to determine whether or not justice requires that a judgment or order be set aside. The trial court's ruling will not be disturbed on appeal absent an abuse of discretion (148 Cal. App. 2d 479, 483) . The court held that the trial court's power to rule on a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 was not curtailed by the husband's death, and that the lower court's refusal to join the executrix as a party was nonprejudicial error. It therefore affirmed that part of the order setting aside the interlocutory decree (148 Cal. App. 2d 479, 486-487) . However, the court held that the trial court did not have the power to vacate the property settlement agreement, and reversed that part of the order setting aside the agreement (148 Cal. App. 2d 479, 487-489) .

[b] Relief Available to Party in Whose Favor Judgment Was Rendered

Olson v. Olson (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 479, 306 P.2d 1036 , is discussed in § 70.30[3][a].

[c] Liberal Construction of Statute

Olson v. Olson (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 479, 306 P.2d 1036 , is discussed in § 70.30[3][a].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Relief Available to Party in Whose Favor Judgment Was Rendered

In Palace Hardware Co. v. Smith (1901) 134 Cal. 381, 66 P. 474 , plaintiff appealed from a trial court order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 setting aside a judgment of dismissal entered after plaintiff settled with defendant. Among other things, defendant argued that to qualify for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, the proceeding must be one taken against the moving party. The Supreme Court held that this contention was without merit because a party in whose favor a judgment has been rendered is entitled to relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473; that statute is remedial and is therefore subject to liberal construction (134 Cal. 381, 384) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.31-70.39

[Reserved]

§§ 70.31[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.40

§ 70.40 Supporting Intervenor's Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 387, 473(b)]--General Form

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO INTERVENE AND TO SET ASIDE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)]
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)
Defendant.	)
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	[Trial Date: _____]

_____

_____ [Name] IS ENTITLED TO INTERVENE IN THE ACTION BECAUSE HE/SHE IS A

NONPARTY WHOSE RIGHTS ARE ADVERSELY AFFECTED BY THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] THAT HE/SHE SEEKS TO SET ASIDE, AND THE _____ [identify proceeding, e.g., DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT] OCCURRED BECAUSE OF _____ [MISTAKE or INADVERTENCE or SURPRISE or EXCUSABLE NEGLECT] OF THE [LEGAL REPRESENTATIVE OF THE] INTERVENING PARTY.

A. Grounds for Relief From Judgment, Order, or Other Proceeding. [See § 70.10[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Application for Intervention. On timely application, any person who has an interest in the matter in litigation, or in the success of either of the parties, or an interest against both parties, may intervene in the action or proceeding (Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)).

C. Intervention to Set Aside Default. Intervention is allowed under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) when, because of mistake, surprise, inadvertence, or excusable neglect, a default was entered to the detriment of the rights of the person seeking leave to intervene (Morton Regent Enterprises, Inc. v. Leadtec California, Inc. (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 842, 846, 141 Cal. Rptr. 706 ; Linder v. Vogue Investments, Inc. (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 338, 343-346, 48 Cal. Rptr. 633).

[Add supporting points and authorities for each particular ground of relief asserted (see, e.g., § 70.50 et seq.). In addition, when applicable, add additional points and authorities that generally support an intervenor's motion for relief (see, e.g., § 70.41)]

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[moving party]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of memorandum may be used to support a noticed motion by a nonparty seeking to intervene in an action for the purpose of setting aside a default and default judgment or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 387].

For a form of memorandum for use when a statute confers an unconditional right to intervene, or the proposed intervenor's ability to protect his or her interest in the property or transaction at issue may be impeded or impaired by disposition of the action, see § 70.41[1].

The caption and form should be modified as necessary when relief is sought from the entry of default only, as distinguished from the entry of default and a resulting default judgment.

This form should be combined with additional points and authorities supporting a request for relief based on one or more of the specific grounds set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see, e.g., § 70.50 et seq.; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g], relating to multiple grounds for relief].

This form may be combined, in an appropriate case, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of relief based on other statutory or decisional authority [see discussion in § 70.10[2][c], relating to alternative methods of obtaining relief].

Although a party typically seeks relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), from a default or default judgment, or both, a court may grant relief under that section from any "judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding." This form may be used, when appropriate, in seeking relief in situations other than a default and default judgment.

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b).

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should demonstrate the client's standing to intervene with facts indicating the client's interest in the matter and any difficulty in protecting the client's rights with regard to the property or transaction that is the subject of the controversy. This may be done either by including particular facts in the memorandum or by reference to the accompanying declarations or complaint in intervention. For memoranda of points and authorities regarding intervention generally, see Ch. 124, Intervention .

[c] Intervention Procedure

In general, when the court grants leave to intervene, whether after hearing on a motion or on ex parte application of the proposed intervenor, counsel must file and serve a complaint in intervention setting forth the grounds for intervention [see Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]. However, when a nonparty is permitted to intervene in an action or proceeding for the purpose of setting aside a judgment, the nonparty is not required to file a complaint in intervention prior to obtaining relief from the default judgment. Thus, although the granting of a motion to intervene gives the moving party limited standing to set aside the default judgment, a complaint in intervention must then be filed, because the intervenor is not considered a party to the action until the complaint is filed [see Klinghoffer v. Barasch (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 258, 261-262, 84 Cal. Rptr. 350] .

[d] Application for Intervention

Code Civ. Proc. § 387 governs the right of nonparties to intervene in an action or proceeding for any purpose. Prior to its amendment in 1977, the statute required that a motion for intervention be made prior to trial, but by its present terms, it authorizes intervention on "timely application" of any person having an interest in the subject of litigation, or in the success of either party, or an interest against both [see Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]. Intervention takes place when a nonparty is permitted to become a party to an action or proceeding either by: joining plaintiff in claiming what is sought in the complaint; uniting with defendant in resisting plaintiff's claims; or demanding anything adverse to both parties. To accomplish intervention, the nonparty must obtain leave of the court to file a complaint that sets forth the grounds on which intervention is sought. The complaint is then served on parties to the action who have not appeared in the same manner as on commencement of the original action, on the attorneys of parties who have appeared, or on parties who have appeared without attorneys as provided by statute. The party thus served has 30 days to respond to the complaint in intervention in the same manner as to an original complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)].

[e] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion and forms related to a notice of motion, complaint in intervention, declaration, and orders for use in applying for intervention, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 395, Parties (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intervention to Set Aside Default

Morton Regent Enterprises, Inc. v. Leadtec California, Inc. (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 842, 141 Cal. Rptr. 706 , involved an attempt by a surety to intervene in a contract action after judgment was rendered. Plaintiff had recovered materials from defendant in a claim and delivery proceeding for which the intervening insurance company provided the required surety bond. Settlement negotiations between plaintiff and defendant were unsuccessful, and the matter proceeded to trial. The insurance company was notified of plaintiff's intention to default at the trial, but the notification did not reach the company's counsel until after the trial date. Following entry of judgment against plaintiff, the insurance company moved to intervene and vacate the portion of the judgment for which it would be liable as surety, on the ground that the award was void, in that it was in excess of the prayer of the complaint and was based on facts not pleaded in the complaint. The company appealed from the trial court's denial of its motion.

Based on a consideration of the substantive issues involved in the action, the court found against defendant, and remanded the matter to the lower court for modification of the judgment (74 Cal. App. 3d 842, 850-851) . The court interpreted the version of Code Civ. Proc. § 387 in effect at that time (amended in 1977 to allow intervention "on timely application"). Under that statute, the general rule was that intervention by third parties was not permitted after judgment. However, the court noted, when a default judgment is rendered due to mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, intervention is allowed after judgment (74 Cal. App. 3d 842, 846) . The court also stated that an aggrieved person may intervene after judgment for the purpose of vacating a default judgment that is void (74 Cal. App. 3d 842, 846-847) . The court noted that the merits of the insurer's motions rest on an analysis of its reasons for not intervening prior to judgment, and the vulnerability of the judgment itself (74 Cal. App. 3d 842, 847) . The court concluded that, under the facts, the trial court abused its discretion in denying the insurer's motion to intervene and vacate the judgment (74 Cal. App. 3d 842, 847-850) .

In Linder v. Vogue Investments, Inc. (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 338, 48 Cal. Rptr. 633 , plaintiff filed a complaint against a company that it designated as a limited partnership. Plaintiff alleged that a certain individual was the general partner, and that a named corporation was the limited partner. Summons was served on the individual general partner, who did nothing to cause the defendant company to appear, and a default was entered. When the corporate limited partner learned that the individual general partner would not defend the action, it immediately filed a motion to intervene and to vacate the default. That motion was denied, as was a subsequent motion for reconsideration. The limited partner appealed those rulings, as well as a subsequent ruling denying its motion to vacate a default judgment.

The court of appeal reversed (239 Cal. App. 2d 338, 346) . The court noted that the limited partner sought leave to intervene for a variety of reasons: (1) the limited partnership did not in fact owe the sum demanded by plaintiff, in that the sum was owed by the individual general partner, who had filed for bankruptcy, and failed to defend the action to the limited partner's detriment; (2) any judgment obtained against the limited partnership would be a fraud on the court; and (3) plaintiff's purpose in bringing the action against the limited partnership was fraudulent (239 Cal. App. 2d 338, 339-340) . The court also noted that plaintiff resisted the motion for leave to intervene, claiming, inter alia, that a limited partner was not a proper party in an action against a limited partnership. The trial court's minute order denying the motion for reconsideration stated that limited partners are not bound by the obligations of the partnership, and have no power to litigate or defend the partnership obligations. The court of appeal disagreed with that reasoning, stating that it was unaware of any rule that equates the right to intervene on behalf of a defendant with being a proper party that the plaintiff could have sued (239 Cal. App. 2d 338, 340-341) . The court discussed issues concerning whether the limited partner's rights were prejudiced by the default judgment, noting that the law is unclear in that respect (239 Cal. App. 2d 338, 341-342) . It therefore reversed the order denying intervention, permitting the trial court to exercise its discretion in the matter of granting leave to intervene, and setting aside the default of any of the grounds enumerated in former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)) (239 Cal. App. 2d 338, 342-343) . The court rejected plaintiff's contention that intervention must be denied because the case has proceeded to judgment, holding that if the trial court was in error in denying the motion to intervene, the later judgment cannot make that error moot; and that in any event, the court would have vacated the default judgment if it felt that the limited partner had any standing before it (239 Cal. App. 2d 338, 343) . The court interpreted the version of Code Civ. Proc. § 387 in effect at that time (amended in 1977 to allow intervention "on timely application"). It considered the propriety of seeking leave to intervene after judgment, holding that case law supported that right (239 Cal. App. 2d 338, 343-345) . The court considered the circumstances under which the default judgment was taken, concluding that the entire proceeding involving the judgment would not have taken place if the trial court had exercised discretion to permit intervention affirmatively. The court therefore set the judgment aside (239 Cal. App. 2d 338, 345-346) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Intervention to Set Aside Default

The facts and procedural background of Jade K. v. Viguri (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1459, 258 Cal. Rptr. 907 , are discussed in § 70.230[3]. In Jade K., the court of appeal held that former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), permits the court to award costs or attorney fees to the adverse party as compensation for loss or expense occasioned by granting relief under the statute (210 Cal. App. 3d 1459, 1474) . The court in Jade K. also held that the trial court properly acted within its discretion in permitting the defendant's insurer to intervene (210 Cal. App. 3d 1459, 1468) . It also held that the court improperly denied the insurer's motion under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), for relief from the default entered against the defendant, because the insurer was unaware of the plaintiff's claim against the defendant prior to entry of the default, and was therefore unable to extend a defense (210 Cal. App. 3d 1459, 1470) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.41

§ 70.41 Supporting Intervenor's Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 387, 473(b)]--Intervention Required When Interests Affected

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting an intervenor's motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.40[1]).]

[EITHER]

THE MOVING PARTY IS ENTITLED TO INTERVENE IN THE ACTION BECAUSE THE LAW CONFERS AN UNCONDITIONAL RIGHT TO INTERVENE.

[OR]

THE MOVING PARTY IS ENTITLED TO INTERVENE IN THE ACTION BECAUSE HE/SHE/IT CLAIMS AN INTEREST RELATING TO THE PROPERTY OR TRANSACTION THAT IS THE SUBJECT OF THE ACTION AND DISPOSITION OF THE ACTION MAY AS A PRACTICAL MATTER IMPAIR OR IMPEDE HIS/HER/IT ABILITY TO PROTECT THAT INTEREST AND HIS/HER/IT AND THE MOVING PARTY'S INTEREST IS NOT ADEQUATELY REPRESENTED BY EXISTING PARTIES.

[CONTINUE]

Intervention Required When Interests Affected. If any provision of law confers an unconditional right to intervene or if the intervenor claims an interest relating to the property or transaction that is the subject of the action and that person is so situated that disposition of the action may as a practical matter impair or impede that person's ability to protect that interest, unless that person's interest is adequately represented by existing parties, the court shall, on timely application, permit that person to intervene (Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of memorandum may be used to support a noticed motion by a nonparty seeking to intervene in an action for the purpose of setting aside a default and/or default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 387]. The form is for use when a statute confers an unconditional right to intervene, or the proposed intervenor's ability to protect his or her interest in the property or transaction at issue may be impeded or impaired by disposition of the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b)].

These points and authorities should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting an intervenor's application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.40[1]]. See also § 70.40[2][e] for related chapters in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.42-70.49

[Reserved]

§§ 70.42[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.50

§ 70.50 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake of Fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see, e.g., §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) ON THE GROUND OF REASONABLE MISTAKE OF FACT ON THE PART OF THE [LEGAL REPRESENTATIVE OF THE] DEFENDANT.

Mistake of Fact Defined. A mistake of fact occurs when a person understands the facts to be other than they are (Hodge Sheet Metal Products v. Palm Springs Riviera Hotel (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 653, 656, 11 Cal. Rptr. 435).

[Add supporting points and authorities for the particular ground of mistake of fact for which relief is sought (see, e.g., § 70.51 et seq.)].

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) should be set aside on the ground of mistake of fact [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)].

This form should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see, e.g., §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40].

This form may be combined with points and authorities based on mistake of fact in the following circumstances:

- The mistake regards the fact of service [see § 70.51[1]].
- The mistake regards the date of service [see § 70.52[1]].
- The mistake was caused by incapacity [see § 70.53[1]].
- The mistake was committed by the moving party's attorney [see § 70.54[1]].

It may also be combined when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief on other grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see, e.g., § 70.60 et seq.; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should indicate the nature of the mistake and why it is one that a reasonably prudent person might make. If an error regarding the date of service is claimed, counsel should include facts to indicate the true date of service and why and how the mistake arose. If relief is sought for a mistake as to the fact of service, counsel should refer to facts that demonstrate that defendant reasonably believed that he or she was not served. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

If the request for relief is based on the mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect of the moving party's attorney, the granting of the motion is mandatory if the attorney at fault files an affidavit to that effect, and certain other conditions are met. Specifically, if the application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect, the court must grant relief unless it finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. For further discussion, see § 70.12[3][a].

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.160 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mistake of Fact Defined

In Hodge Sheet Metal Products v. Palm Springs Riviera Hotel (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 653, 11 Cal. Rptr. 435 , plaintiff filed an action for foreclosure of a materialman's lien on real property against three named defendants. The only defendant who was served reasonably believed, as a result of a conversation with plaintiff's attorney, that the papers were a lien claim not requiring his immediate attention, and he put them away. When plaintiff's attorney took his default, defendant moved to set it aside on the grounds of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, and excusable neglect. The trial court granted defendant's motion and plaintiff appealed, contending that defendant's affidavit in support of his motion was insufficient to justify granting relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court noted that a party will not be relieved of his or her default unless he or she shows that he or she acted in good faith and that his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect was the actual cause of the default; and that the policy of the courts favors trial on the merits (189 Cal. App. 2d 653, 657) . The court determined that defendant's affidavit supported the trial court's finding that defendant was, in good faith, mistaken regarding the nature of the papers he received; that defendant believed them to be a lien claim; that defendant was diligent in seeking relief; and that defendant throughout acted in good faith (189 Cal. App. 2d 653, 657-658) . The court concluded that "the weighing of the veracity of the affidavit was in the province of the trial court" (189 Cal. App. 2d 653, 658) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.51

§ 70.51 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake of Fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Mistake Regarding Fact of Service

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief from default or default judgment based on mistake of fact (see, e.g.,§ 70.50).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) BECAUSE THE DEFAULT WAS TAKEN AS A RESULT OF DEFENDANT'S MISTAKEN BELIEF THAT A SUMMONS HAS NOT BEEN SERVED IN THE ACTION.

Mistake Regarding Fact of Service. When defendant's default is taken as a result of his or her mistaken belief that summons has not been served in the action, relief from default and the default judgment entered may be granted in the discretion of the trial court (Riskin v. Towers (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 274, 276-277, 148 P.2d 611).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment should be set aside on the ground of mistake of fact [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. This form is for use if the mistake concerns the fact that service was made. For a form of memorandum seeking relief based on a mistake relating to the date of service, see § 70.52[1].

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief from default or default judgment based on mistake of fact (see § 70.50).

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should indicate the nature of the mistake and why it is one that a reasonably prudent person might make. Specifically, counsel should refer to facts that demonstrate that defendant reasonably believed that he or she was not served. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.160 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mistake Regarding Fact of Service

In Riskin v. Towers (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 274, 148 P.2d 611 , defendant denied that he had been served with summons, although plaintiff filed an affidavit of service showing personal service on defendant. After entry of default, defendant specially appeared to move for an order vacating the service and the entry of default; the motion was denied. Defendant's subsequent motion under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), to vacate the default judgment entered against him was also denied.

The Supreme Court reversed, holding that a defendant who claims that he or she has not been served or that service is legally insufficient may attempt to quash service and set aside the default. A defendant who follows those procedures should be relieved from a default judgment taken in the interim. In this case defendant proceeded diligently in seeking relief (24 Cal. 2d 274, 277) . It appeared that defendant and counsel were reasonably mistaken in their beliefs as to the fact of service (24 Cal. 2d 274, 278) . The Court stated that the fact that the trial court did not believe defendant's assertion that he was not served did not require the conclusion that he did not believe the court would believe him and quash service. From these circumstances, considered in light of the liberal construction of Code Civ. Proc. § 473, the Court concluded that it was clear that the default judgment should have been set aside (24 Cal. 2d 274, 279) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.52

§ 70.52 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake of Fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Mistake Regarding Date of Service

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief from default or default judgment based on mistake of fact (see, e.g., § 70.50).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) BECAUSE THE DEFAULT WAS TAKEN AS A RESULT OF DEFENDANT'S MISTAKEN BUT GOOD FAITH BELIEF REGARDING THE DATE OF SERVICE OF PROCESS.

Mistake Regarding Date of Service. When defendant's default is taken as a result of his or her mistaken but good faith belief regarding the date of service of process, relief from default and the default judgment entered may be granted in the discretion of the trial court (Miller v. Carr (1897) 116 Cal. 378, 381, 48 P. 324 ; Gore v. Witt (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 681, 685, 308 P.2d 770).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment should be set aside on the ground of mistake of fact [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. This form is for use if the mistake concerns the date of service. For a form of memorandum seeking relief based on a mistake relating to the fact of service, see § 70.51[1].

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief from default or default judgment based on mistake of fact (see § 70.50).

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should indicate the nature of the mistake and why it is one that a reasonably prudent person might make. Specifically, counsel should include facts to indicate the true date of service and why and how the mistake arose. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.160 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mistake Regarding Date of Service

In Miller v. Carr (1897) 116 Cal. 378, 48 P. 324 , defendant moved to set aside a default and default judgment entered against him on the ground that they were taken against him through his mistake regarding the date of service, which led to his filing of a demurrer to the complaint one day late. The trial court denied the motion.

The Supreme Court reversed, noting that there was no question that defendant in good faith believed that the service was made one day later than it actually was made, and that he believed that his appearance was in time. The Court declared that the relief for the mistake was clearly within the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 and was the type of relief "which the spirit of the code requires to be granted" (116 Cal. 378, 380-381) . In support of its position, the Court cited early California cases on the subject of the policy favoring trial on the merits and the liberal construction afforded Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (116 Cal. 378, 381-382) .

In Gore v. Witt (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 681, 308 P.2d 770 , defendant's default was taken and subsequent judgment entered on plaintiff's suit for foreclosure of a mechanic's lien. In support of his motion for relief from the default and judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), defendant alleged that he had misinformed his attorney of the true date of service of the summons because he believed that service had occurred nine days later than it actually did. Defendant's motion was denied and he appealed from the order denying relief and from the judgment.

The court of appeal reversed, noting, however, that defendant's showing of excuse was not strong (149 Cal. App. 2d 681, 685) . The court found the following circumstances significant: plaintiff did not deny defendant's allegations of mistake; defendant employed an attorney within 16 days of service; default was taken by plaintiff as soon as possible; defendant requested relief within four days after learning of the entry of the default; and that defendant alleged a meritorious defense by way of a proposed answer (149 Cal. App. 2d 681, 685) . The court declared that, in addition to these factors, plaintiff's complaint was insufficient for failure to include certain allegations required by Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 7031 and 7049 (149 Cal. App. 2d 681, 685-686) . The court concluded that under all of these circumstances, it might well be held that the trial court had abused its discretion in denying defendant's motion for relief (149 Cal. App. 2d 681, 686) . The court determined that the failure to include the required allegations rendered the entry of the judgment improper and compelled the reversal of both the judgment and the order denying relief to defendant (149 Cal. App. 2d 681, 686-687) .

Note that reference in court opinions to the requirement of a showing of meritorious defense under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is arguably inaccurate. For further discussion, see § 70.10[2][e], regarding a meritorious defense showing.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.53

§ 70.53 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake of Fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Mistake Caused by Incapacity

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief from default or default judgment based on mistake of fact (see, e.g.,§ 70.50).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) BECAUSE THE DEFAULT WAS ENTERED BECAUSE OF DEFENDANT'S MISTAKE CAUSED BY HIS/HER INCAPACITY.

Mistake Caused by Incapacity. Relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) is available if the default was entered because of the moving party's mistake caused by incapacity (In re the Marriage of Kerry (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 456, 466, 204 Cal. Rptr. 660).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment should be set aside on the ground of mistake of fact [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. This form is for use if the mistake was caused by the moving party's incapacity.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief from default or default judgment based on mistake of fact (see § 70.50).

Although a party typically seeks relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), from a default or default judgment, or both, a court may grant relief under that section from any "judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding." This form may used, when appropriate, for seeking relief in situations other than a default and default judgment.

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should indicate the nature of the mistake and why it is one that a reasonably prudent person might make. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.160 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mistake Caused by Incapacity

In re the Marriage of Kerry (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 456, 204 Cal. Rptr. 660 , arose from a motion for modification of spousal support in a dissolution matter. The motion was filed by the former husband of the marriage (the husband), who sought termination of support on the grounds that his former wife (the wife) had willfully left her teaching job without justification, and was receiving money from her pension fund, which he claimed was sufficient for her support. After partial trial on the motion, the trial court ordered the wife to be examined by a psychiatrist, pursuant to stipulation by the parties. Approximately six months later, the parties and their attorneys signed a "Stipulation re Modification," which was approved and signed by the trial judge, and declared to be an order of the court. Under the stipulation, the wife agreed to sell a certain house to the husband, after warranting that no prior liens existed against the property. The stipulation also provided that the husband deliver to the wife a certain automobile and the proceeds of certain secured loans; that spousal support terminate immediately; that each party pay his or her own attorney's fees and costs; and that the husband is relieved of responsibility for any of the wife's attorney's fees and costs.

Almost two months later, the wife filed a motion under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), to vacate the stipulation order and return the case to the calendar for hearing on the merits. The supporting declaration of her attorney stated that at the time she signed the stipulation, the attorney believed that she still owned the house described in the stipulation, but later learned that she had previously conveyed title to someone else. He implied in the declaration that his client's psychiatric difficulties had probably prevented her from understanding the stipulation. A copy of the psychiatric report, resulting from the prior stipulation for her examination, was included in the moving papers. The report indicated that she suffered from certain forms of mental illness, and that her judgment and "impulse control" were poor. The report precluded her full-time employment as a teacher, and suggested that she might be capable of low-stress, part-time work. Neither party disputed that the wife was, at the time of the motion for relief, a 62-year-old woman with a history of psychiatric difficulties; nor that she had previously sold the house in question. At the hearing on the motion, the wife's attorney urged that to enforce the stipulated judgment would require her to permanently waive her right to spousal support, without the benefit of the bargained-for sale of the house to her husband at the stated (inflated) price. The trial court granted the motion to vacate the stipulated judgment on several conditions, including that she pay opposing counsel a certain sum within 10 days of the date of the order. On proof that the conditions were met, the matter was to be set for hearing. Both parties appealed. The wife asserted that the condition of payment of attorney's fees was not "just" within the meaning of conditions for granting relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473. The husband contended that the trial court abused its discretion in granting the motion.

The court of appeal affirmed, with respect to the vacation of the stipulation, and reversed with respect to the condition requiring payment of attorney's fees (158 Cal. App. 3d 456, 468) . With respect to the husband's appeal, the court noted that an order or decree incorporating a settlement agreement may properly be set aside under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), in that relief from a stipulation or a judgment pursuant to a stipulation may be granted when there is fraud, mistake of fact, or other special circumstances rendering it unjust to enforce the stipulation. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, the court noted, a mere mistake of fact on the part of a plaintiff or defendant, regarding the state of affairs beyond the court action, can support setting aside a judgment. Moreover, excusable neglect, whether or not it is the result of mistake, may also support relief under the statute; and the excusable neglect may be the result of a disability (158 Cal. App. 3d 456, 465) .

The court stated that the existence of some degree of mental confusion or illness of the party moving to set aside an order supports granting the motion, and the court may infer the existence of such problems from the whole record before it. The court held that, particularly when setting aside a judgment will compel a hearing on the merits, the trial court's determination of a motion to set aside a judgment under the statute will not be disturbed on appeal absent a clear showing of abuse of discretion. The court rejected the husband's contention that his wife wished to withdraw from the stipulation because of "seller's remorse." The court noted that that assertion implies that she merely changed her mind. However, the court stated, the facts show that she was never capable of carrying out the stipulation. Inasmuch as it was in her interest to carry out the stipulation, her entry into the impossible stipulation could only be reasonably explained by some kind or degree of mistake because of incapacity on her part. The court observed that the trial court must have inferred from the wife's behavior, and from expert opinion, that she entered into the stipulation as a result of her own mistake, excusable because of her own mental confusion (158 Cal. App. 3d 456, 466) .

With regard to the husband's appeal, the court stated that the condition requiring the wife to pay attorney's fees was not a just one within the meaning of former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)). The court noted a complete lack of evidence that the husband was in need of the award; it also observed that there is no statutory provision for an award of attorney's fees in family law proceedings, from a needy spouse to a nonneedy spouse, as a sanction or damages for inconveniencing the nonneedy party (158 Cal. App. 3d 456, 464-465) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.54

§ 70.54 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake of Fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Mistake of Attorney

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) based on mistake of fact (see, e.g., § 70.50).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) BECAUSE THE _____ [identify proceeding, e.g., DEFAULT] WAS TAKEN AS A RESULT OF A MISTAKE OF THE DEFENDANT'S ATTORNEY, AND THE MISTAKE IS OF A TYPE THAT A REASONABLY PRUDENT ATTORNEY WOULD MAKE.

A. Mistake of Attorney. Relief under Code of Civil Procedure section 473(b) based on a mistake of the moving party's attorney is available if the mistake is of a type that a reasonably prudent attorney would make (Dingwall v. Vangas, Inc. (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 108, 113, 32 Cal. Rptr. 351).

[Optional] B. Attorney May be In-House Counsel. Relief under Code of Civil Procedure section 473(b) is available even if the party's attorney is a corporate officer or in-house counsel (Gutierrez v. G & M Oil Co. (2010) 184 Cal. App. 4th 551, 557-565, 108 Cal. Rptr. 3d 864).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) should be set aside on the ground of mistake of fact [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. This form is for use if the mistake was made by the moving party's attorney.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief based on mistake of fact (see § 70.50).

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should indicate the nature of the mistake and why it is one that a reasonably prudent person might make. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

If the request for relief is based on the mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect of the moving party's attorney, the granting of the motion is mandatory if the attorney at fault files an affidavit to that effect, and certain other conditions are met. Specifically, if the application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect, the court must grant relief unless it finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. For further discussion, see § 70.12[3].

[d] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in § 70.160 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mistake of Attorney

In Dingwall v. Vangas, Inc. (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 108, 32 Cal. Rptr. 351 , an action involving a contract dispute, the defendant's default was entered and judgment taken against it as a result of a mistake by defendant's attorney. Defendant's original attorney turned the case over to his associate who, on the basis of a file copy of the summons in the action, mistakenly believed that service was defective and that no default could be taken. Following entry of the default, plaintiff's attorney did not proceed further, but apparently intended to wait for the six-month period under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 to expire. Defendant's attorney, on discovering the default some four months after its entry, promptly filed a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 for relief, which was granted by the trial court in an order setting aside the default and judgment.

The court of appeal affirmed, finding the facts of the case sufficient to establish that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in granting the relief (218 Cal. App. 2d 108, 112) . Observing that the mistake involved was primarily due to a "regrettable but understandable failure of liaison" between an attorney familiar with the case and the associate to whom it was delegated, the court reasoned that the mistake was "of that type which reasonably prudent lawyers do make" (218 Cal. App. 2d 108, 113) . The court pointed out that there were "other tranquilizing circumstances to dull [the attorney's] astuteness" and enumerated several of them, noting the "courtesy-custom" at that time among attorneys not to take defaults without prior warning to their opponent [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 587 (requiring notice to defendant or defendant's attorney, if any, on application for entry of default)] (218 Cal. App. 2d 108, 114) . Moreover, there had been protracted settlement negotiations and the action had been filed only to toll the statute of limitations, and plaintiff's attorney had remained silent when defendant's attorney informed him that service of summons was defective, which could reasonably evidence assent to his claim. In addition, plaintiff's substituted attorney had failed to give notice of his substitution to defendant's attorney, and the inadvertence of plaintiff's attorney in furnishing an incomplete summons to defendant's attorney had itself brought about the mistake (218 Cal. App. 2d 108, 114) .

See also discussion in [2][c], above.

[b] Attorney May be In-House Counsel

Gutierrez v. G & M Oil Co. (2010) 184 Cal. App. 4th 551, 557-565, 108 Cal. Rptr. 3d 864 , involved a class action suit for violation of wage and hour laws. The defendant's vice president and general counsel accepted service of the complaint, but kept the suit from the rest of the defendant's officers and directors. The defendant's counsel attended two case management conferences but did not defend the action. After many requests, the plaintiffs obtained a default judgment against the defendant for $4 million. When the defendant's CEO heard of the judgment, he immediately hired outside counsel, who filed a motion to vacate the default judgment. In the motion, the defendant's in-house counsel took full responsibility for the default. The trial court granted the motion, and the plaintiff appealed.

On appeal, the plaintiff argued that as a matter of law, the in-house counsel's conduct was his client's conduct, and therefore, the defendant was stuck with it, no matter how innocent the company was. Noting that the case was one of first impression in California, the court of appeal looked at two prior California Supreme Court decisions discussing in-house counsel. In General Dynamics Corp. v. Superior Court (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1164, 1169, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 876 P. 2d 487 , the California Supreme Court held that in-house attorneys employed as attorneys for their employer do indeed have an attorney-client relationship with their employers. In PLCM Group, Inc. v. Drexler (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 1084, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 198, 997 P. 2d 511 , the California Supreme Court held that in-house attorneys come within the rubric of the attorney's fee award provisions of Civ. Code § 1717. The court held that the defendant's in-house attorney was in an attorney-client relationship with the defendant, and that he was acting as an attorney in handling the suit. In addition, the court held that nothing in Code Civ. Proc. § 473 suggested that business entities who elect to have an in-house lawyer represent them in litigation should be at some disadvantage regarding the negligence of their attorneys that would not apply when they elect to retain outside counsel. Finally, the court held that both in-house and outside attorneys have the same duties to their clients [184 Cal. App. 4th 551, 561] .

Further, the court held that the fact that the in-house attorney was an officer of the defendant was not relevant. The court looked at the language of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 and refused to read into it a distinction between attorneys who are officers of their client and those who are not [184 Cal. App. 4th 551, 562] . The court noted that Bus. & Prof. Code § 6125 provides that only attorneys may represent clients in court. Likewise, the court noted that a corporation must be represented in court by an attorney. Therefore, the court held, a person representing a corporate client had to be acting as an attorney, even if he or she was also an officer of the client [184 Cal. App. 4th 551, 562-564] .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Mistake of Attorney

In Parker v. Dingman (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 1011, 122 Cal. Rptr. 309 , the court of appeal reversed a trial court order denying a motion under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), made by the defendant and cross complainant, seeking relief from a judgment in favor of a third-party claimant with respect to the cross complaint. The court noted that the moving party's attorney misunderstood the continuance date of the hearing on the third-party claim; and found an abuse of discretion in the trial court's resuming the trial without proper proof that all the parties had notice of the continuance date, compounded by the denial of the motion for relief (48 Cal. App. 3d 1011, 1017-1019) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.55-70.59

[Reserved]

§§ 70.55[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.60

§ 70.60 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake of Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) ON THE GROUND OF A REASONABLE MISTAKE OF LAW ON THE PART OF THE [LEGAL REPRESENTATIVE OF THE] DEFENDANT.

A. Mistake of Law Defined. A mistake of law occurs when a person knows the facts to be as they are but has a mistaken belief as to the legal consequences of those facts (Hodge Sheet Metal Products v. Palm Springs Riviera Hotel (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 653, 656, 11 Cal. Rptr. 435).

B. Relief for Reasonable Mistake of Law. An honest mistake of law is excusable and constitutes good cause for relief from default under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) when the misconception is reasonable (Viles v. State of California (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 24, 29, 56 Cal. Rptr. 666, 423 P.2d 818). The controlling factors in determining whether a mistake is excusable are: (1) the reasonableness of the misconception; and (2) the justifiability of the failure to determine the correct law (Ron Burns Construction Co. v. Moore (2010) 184 Cal. App. 4th 1406, 1414, 109 Cal. Rptr. 3d 417 ; Miller v. City of Hermosa Beach (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1118, 1136, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 408).

[Add supporting memoranda for the particular ground of mistake of law for which relief is sought (see, e.g., § 70.61 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) should be set aside on the ground of mistake of law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. These points and authorities should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40].

This form may be combined with memoranda based on mistake of law in any of the following circumstances:

- The mistake involves an issue that is complex and debatable [see § 70.61[1]].
- The mistake regards the validity of summons or complaint [see § 70.62[1]].
- The mistake regards the validity of the court's jurisdiction in connection with a federal petition for removal [see § 70.63[1]].
- The mistake regards the existence of a meritorious defense [see § 70.64[1]].

This form may also be combined with additional points and authorities supporting a request for relief based on one or more of the specific grounds set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see, e.g., § 70.50 et seq.; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g], relating to multiple grounds for relief].

See § 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief. See also § 70.40[2][e] for related chapters in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

This form may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. To support a claim that the moving party or attorney was not negligent in failing to ascertain the correct law, counsel should refer to facts that show that he or she attempted to discover the law but was unable to because, for example, there was no prior case law on point.

Counsel may prefer to set out such facts in accompanying declarations or affidavits rather than including them in the memorandum.

See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

If the request for relief is based on the mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect of the moving party's attorney, the granting of the motion is mandatory if the attorney at fault files an affidavit to that effect, and certain other conditions are met. Specifically, if the application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect, the court must grant relief unless it finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473].

For further discussion, see § 70.12[3], relating to attorney affidavit of fault.

[d] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the memoranda set out in §§ 70.161 -70.163 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mistake of Law Defined

Hodge Sheet Metal Products v. Palm Springs Riviera Hotel (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 653, 11 Cal. Rptr. 435 , is discussed in § 70.50[3].

[b] Relief for Reasonable Mistake of Law

Viles v. State of California (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 24, 56 Cal. Rptr. 666, 423 P.2d 818 , involved a petition for leave to file a late tort claim against a government entity. Petitioner's wife had died in an automobile accident, which petitioner alleged was caused by the defective condition of the public highway on which the collision occurred. Because petitioner's insurance company told him that he had one year to file a wrongful death action, petitioner did not consult an attorney for approximately nine months, long after expiration of the 100-day limitation under Gov. Code § 911.2 for filing claims against a public entity. (Note that the claim presentation period was extended to six months for actions based on acts or omissions occurring after January 1, 1988.) Petitioner's application to the State Board of Control for permission to file his claim late was denied, as was his subsequent petition to the superior court under former Gov. Code § 912 (repealed, now see Gov. Code § 946.6).

The Supreme Court reversed the superior court order denying the relief requested, noting that the showing required of petitioner under former Gov. Code § 912 [now see Gov. Code § 946.6] is the same as that required under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 for relief from default (66 Cal. 2d 24, 29) . The Court found that, although not every mistake of law is excusable, an honest mistake is excusable, the determining factor being the reasonableness of the misconception (66 Cal. 2d 24, 29) . The Court declined to state whether plaintiff's belief that he had one year to file a claim was reasonable, or that it was a belief the average prudent person in the conduct of important business affairs would have formed (66 Cal. 2d 24, 29-30) . The Court determined that petitioner's mistake was of the type foreseen by the Legislature when it amended the statutes to broaden the relief available (66 Cal. 2d 24, 31) . The Court concluded that, in light of the "well-recognized policy to liberally construe remedial statutes" and the "modern trend of judicial decisions in favor of granting relief unless absolutely forbidden by statute," the lower court's refusal to grant relief was an abuse of its discretion (66 Cal. 2d 24, 32-33) .

In Ron Burns Construction Co. v. Moore (2010) 184 Cal. App. 4th 1406, 1413-1416, 109 Cal. Rptr. 3d 417 , the parties litigated and the court found in the plaintiff's favor. The court of appeal upheld the judgment and awarded the plaintiff costs and fees on appeal. Due to settlement negotiations, the parties entered into several stipulations extending the deadline by which the plaintiff was required to file a motion for fees on appeal. The parties did not file these stipulations with the court. In addition, just before the agreed October 31 deadline for filing the motion, a wildfire threatened the plaintiff's home and office. The defendant's counsel denied extending the deadline beyond October 29. The plaintiff subsequently made a motion for attorney's fees, which the court denied as untimely. The plaintiff filed a motion for relief from default under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, which the court denied.

On appeal, the court noted that the policy of the law was to have cases decided on their merits. The court held that althoughe a mistake in law is a ground for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, the issue of which mistake in law constitutes excusable neglect presents a question of fact. The determining factors are the reasonableness of the misconception and the justifiability of lack of determination of the correct law [184 Cal. App. 4th 1406, 1414] . The court held that the plaintiff's counsel was entitled to rely on the defendant's agreement. The reliance was not inexcusable neglect, even in the face of a rule requiring a written stipulation to be filed with the court [184 Cal. App. 4th 1406, 1414] . In addition, the court held, the defendant benefited by the extensions because it gained the opportunity to try to settle the attorney's fees claim [184 Cal. App. 4th 1406, 1416] .

Miller v. City of Hermosa Beach (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1118, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 408 , involved a dispute over construction of a beach-front hotel. An environmental impact report (EIR) was prepared, certified, and filed with the city in 1985. The plans underwent changes thereafter, and the city ultimately approved them, subject to specified conditions to reduce the project's impact on surrounding properties. Miller petitioned for a writ of mandate and sought to enjoin construction, claiming that the city violated the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) by issuing a building permit for the hotel without requiring preparation of an EIR on the changed project. The trial court dismissed the petition and denied the preliminary injunction for failure to comply with the statute of limitations in Pub. Res. Code § 21167.4, which imposes a 90-day limit within which a petitioner for a writ of mandate alleging noncompliance with CEQA must request a hearing. The court then denied the petitioner's request for relief under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), and the petitioner appealed.

The court of appeal first found that the trial court had correctly dismissed the petition, because although the petitioner had requested two hearings, on a temporary restraining order and on a preliminary injunction, petitioner had not requested a hearing on the merits of the petition (13 Cal. App. 4th 1118, 1131-1135) . The court next addressed the petitioner's claim that the motion for relief under former Section 473, 3rd Paragraph should have been granted on the ground of mistake of law. The basis for the motion was that the petitioner did not understand that the requests for hearing on injunctive relief did not satisfy the requirements of Pub. Res. Code § 21167.4. The court of appeal stated that the controlling factors in determining whether a mistake is excusable are: (1) the reasonableness of the misconception; and (2) the justifiability of the failure to determine the correct law (13 Cal. App. 4th 1118, 1136) . The court then found the petitioner's mistake to be excusable because no statute or reported decision spelled out the type of hearing required to be noticed within the 90-day period. In this respect, the court distinguished McCormick v. Board of Supervisors (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 352, 243 Cal. Rptr. 617 , discussed in §§ 70.61[3] and [c], below, which also construed Pub. Res. Code § 21167.4. After finding that the petitioner's mistake of law was both justifiable and reasonable, the court noted that the petitioner had acted diligently in prosecuting the matter and concluded that the trial court abused its discretion in failing to grant relief (13 Cal. App. 4th 1118, 1136-1138) . The court ultimately reversed the dismissal of the petition and the denial of the preliminary injunctive relief (13 Cal. App. 4th 1118, 1143) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Relief for Reasonable Mistake of Law

In Brill v. Fox (1931) 211 Cal. 739, 297 P. 25 , the trial court denied defendants' motion for relief under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), from a default judgment entered against them in an action to foreclose a mortgage. Defendants ignored plaintiff's complaint because at the time copies of the summons and complaint were served on them, they: (1) believed that their successors in interest, who were also named as defendants in the action and were alleged to have assumed personal liability on the mortgage, would pay the note secured by the mortgage rather than risk a deficiency judgment entered against them; and (2) did not realize that they had a meritorious defense to the action because they were unaware of certain facts that would have given rise to the defense. In fact, defendants' successors in interest were not personally liable on the note and defendants did have a possible meritorious defense to the action based on facts that would have been revealed if a title search had been made of the property. The Supreme Court reversed, holding that although the relief was sought on grounds of inadvertence and excusable neglect, the allegations in the complaint reasonably misled the defendants in that both plaintiff and defendants were laboring under a mistake of fact and law as to the defendants' liability (211 Cal. 739, 742-743) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.61

§ 70.61 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake of Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Relief When Problem Is Complex and Debatable

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) based on mistake of law (see, e.g., § 70.60[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) ON THE GROUND OF A REASONABLE MISTAKE OF LAW ON THE PART OF THE [LEGAL REPRESENTATIVE OF THE] DEFENDANT, BECAUSE THE MISTAKE WAS AN HONEST MISTAKE OF LAW REGARDING A COMPLEX AND DEBATABLE PROBLEM.

Relief When Problem Complex and Debatable. An honest mistake of law is a valid ground for relief when a problem is complex and debatable (Miller v. City of Hermosa Beach (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1118, 1136, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 408 ; McCormick v. Board of Supervisors (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 352, 360, 243 Cal. Rptr. 617).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of mistake of law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)].

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief based on mistake of law (see § 70.60[1]).

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

For discussion regarding an attorney's affidavit of fault, see § 70.60[2][c].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. To demonstrate why the mistake was reasonable, counsel should refer to facts that illustrate that the issue involved is "complex and debatable" [see A & S Air Conditioning v. John J. Moore Co. (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 617, 620, 7 Cal. Rptr. 592] . Thus, counsel might detail the confusion surrounding the particular point of law by reference either to conflicting decisional law or to ambiguity in the wording of applicable statutes. To support a claim that the moving party or attorney was not negligent in failing to ascertain the correct law, counsel should refer to facts that show that he or she attempted to discover the law but was unable to because, for example, there was no prior case law on point or counsel reasonably misinterpreted a complex or confusing case or statute. Counsel may prefer to set out such facts in accompanying declarations or affidavits rather than including them in the memorandum.

See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.161 -70.163 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Relief When Problem Complex and Debatable

The facts and procedural background of Miller v. City of Hermosa Beach (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1118, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 408 , are discussed in § 70.60[3][b]. In reversing the order denying relief under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), the court of appeal stated that an honest mistake of law is a valid ground for relief when a problem is complex and debatable, citing McCormick v. Board of Supervisors (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 352, 360, 243 Cal. Rptr. 617 , discussed below.

In McCormick v. Board of Supervisors (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 352, 243 Cal. Rptr. 617 , a petition for a writ of mandate under the California Environmental Quality Act was dismissed based on the petitioner's failure to request a hearing within 90 days of filing the petition, pursuant to Pub. Res. Code § 21167.4. The trial court denied petitioner's motion under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), to set aside the order. Petitioners appealed.

The court of appeal reversed (198 Cal. App. 3d 352, 363) . The court held that former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), permits relief from dismissal (198 Cal. App. 3d 352, 359) . The court noted that the statute is often applied liberally when the party in default moves promptly to seek relief, and the party opposing the motion will not suffer prejudice if relief is granted (198 Cal. App. 3d 352, 360) . Moreover, the court noted, because the law strongly favors trial and disposition on the merits, any doubts in applying the statute must be resolved in favor of the party seeking relief from default. In the instant case, relief was predicated on a mistake of law by counsel for petitioners. The court stated that it is well settled that relief may be granted for a mistake of law by a party's attorney; and that an honest mistake of law is a valid ground for relief when a problem is complex and debatable. The controlling factors in determining whether an attorney's mistake was excusable are the reasonableness of the misconception, and the justifiability of the failure to determine the correct law. The court observed that at the time the 90-day period under Pub. Res. Code § 21167.4 expired, the law was unsettled in at least two significant respects, regarding the effect of failure to comply (i.e., mandatory dismissal) and construction of some of the statute's crucial terms (198 Cal. App. 3d 352, 360) . Moreover, local courts conflicted with regard to notice requirements under that statute (198 Cal. App. 3d 352, 360-361) . The court also noted that the moving party's counsel was otherwise reasonably diligent in pursuing the claim (198 Cal. App. 3d 352, 361) . It stated that although mere ignorance of the law coupled with a negligent failure to look it up does not constitute excusable neglect, reasonable errors in construing a statute should not result in the harsh sanction of depriving a party of his or her day in court. The court concluded that, in view of the lack of clear guidance in the law, the good faith though faulty attempt to comply with the statute, counsel's overall diligence in prosecuting the case and promptly moving for relief, and the absence of a clear showing of prejudice, relief from the dismissal and the subsequent judgment should be afforded (198 Cal. App. 3d 352, 362) .

Counsel should note that McCormick was decided under the version of former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), existing prior to the 1988 amendment, which mandates relief when the attorney who committed the conduct that is the basis for relief submits an affidavit to that effect. For further discussion, see § 70.60[2][c]. McCormick is consistent with the 1992 amendment of Code of Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph, which specifically provides that relief under the Section applies to dismissals in addition to other judgments and orders [Code of Civ. Proc. § 473(b)].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Relief When Problem Complex and Debatable

In Brochtrup v. INTEP (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 323, 235 Cal. Rptr. 390 , the court of appeal reversed the trial court's granting of summary judgment against defendants based on denial of defendants' motion for relief from default under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), arising from defective responses to requests for admissions, and denial of a subsequent motion for reconsideration. In support of their request for relief, defendants alleged that their former attorney misled them with respect to the need to file responses to requests for admissions, and the nature and effect of a default to request for admissions. The court of appeal held, inter alia, that it is well settled that relief may be granted for mistake of law by a party's attorney (190 Cal. App. 3d 323, 329) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.62

§ 70.62 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake of Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Mistake of Law Regarding Validity of Summons or Complaint

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) based on mistake of law (see, e.g., § 70.60[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) ON THE GROUND OF A REASONABLE MISTAKE OF LAW ON THE PART OF THE [LEGAL REPRESENTATIVE OF THE] DEFENDANT, BECAUSE THE FAILURE TO FILE A RESPONSIVE PLEADING WAS DUE TO A REASONABLE MISTAKE REGARDING THE VALIDITY OF SERVICE OF THE SUMMONS.

Mistake of Law Regarding Validity of Summons or Complaint. If a mistake of law regarding the validity of the service of summons is reasonable, the neglect to file an answer because of the mistaken belief is excusable (Roehl v. The Texas Co. (1930) 107 Cal. App. 708, 714, 291 P. 262).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment should be set aside on the ground of mistake of law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. Specifically, this form is for use if the mistake regards the validity of summons or complaint.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief from default or default judgment based on mistake of law [see § 70.60[1])].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

For discussion regarding an attorney's affidavit of fault, see § 70.60[2][c].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.160 -70.163 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mistake of Law Regarding Validity of Summons or Complaint

Roehl v. The Texas Co. (1930) 107 Cal. App. 708, 291 P. 262 , involved an appeal from denial of defendant's motion to set aside a default and default judgment entered against it after it failed to answer plaintiff's summons and complaint. Defendant believed that the service of the summons and complaint was illegal because service was made on someone other than a managing agent. Believing that the service was invalid and that the return of service could not be made the basis of the entry of a default against it, defendant believed it was unnecessary to move to set aside the default, and moved to quash the summons instead. The motion to quash was denied, and the denial was affirmed on appeal. Defendant promptly moved to set aside the default and default judgment.

The court of appeal reversed, finding that the doubtfulness of the validity of the service supports the finding that the attorney's belief in its invalidity was reasonable. The court stated that if a mistake of law is reasonable, the neglect to file an answer because of the belief is excusable. In view both of the relatively short time that had elapsed between the service of the summons and the filing of the notice of motion to vacate, and of the pendency of the proceeding to obtain an order to quash, the Court concluded that the case was one in which the trial court order could not be sustained (107 Cal. App. 708, 714) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Mistake of Law Regarding Validity of Summons or Complaint

Williams v. Thompson (1923) 60 Cal. App. 658, 213 P. 705 , was an appeal from an order granting defendants' motion to set aside the default and vacate the judgment on the grounds of mistake of law and surprise. Before the default and default judgment were entered, defendants noticed a motion to quash the service of summons because of certain alleged defects in the copies of the summons and complaint. Believing that any application for an extension of time to answer would constitute a general appearance, defendants permitted the default and default judgment to be entered before the hearing in their motion to quash, in which defendants specially appeared to argue that the copies of the summons were insufficient, and that the complaint was insufficient. The trial court denied the motion to quash and granted defendants' motion to set aside the default and default judgment based on their mistake of law. Affirming the trial court order, the court of appeal held that relief is proper based on a mistake of law that results in the defendant's default, and that the trial court did not abuse its discretionary power in granting relief (60 Cal. App. 658, 660) .

53 of 156 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.63

§ 70.63 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake of Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Mistake of Law Regarding Validity of Court's Jurisdiction

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief from default or default judgment based on mistake of law (see, e.g., § 70.60[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) ON THE GROUND OF A REASONABLE MISTAKE OF LAW ON THE PART OF THE [LEGAL REPRESENTATIVE OF THE] DEFENDANT, BECAUSE THE FAILURE TO FILE A RESPONSIVE PLEADING OCCURRED WHILE A PETITION FOR REMOVAL WAS PENDING, AND THE PETITION WAS BASED ON PLAUSIBLE GROUNDS FOR CONTENDING LACK OF STATE COURT JURISDICTION.

Mistake of Law Regarding Validity of Court's Jurisdiction. If defendant has plausible grounds for contending that the state court had no jurisdiction of the action and that the federal courts had exclusive jurisdiction, the neglect to file an answer while the federal court determines defendant's petition for removal because of the reasonable mistake of law is excusable (Waite v. Southern Pacific Co. (1923) 192 Cal. 467, 469-471, 221 P. 204).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment should be set aside on the ground of mistake of law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. Specifically, this form may be used when the mistake regards the validity of the court's jurisdiction in connection with a federal petition for removal.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief from default or default judgment based on mistake of law (see § 70.60[1]).

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.160 -70.163 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mistake of Law Regarding Validity of Court's Jurisdiction

In Waite v. Southern Pacific Co. (1923) 192 Cal. 467, 221 P. 204 , defendant's default was taken for failure to answer the complaint because of its mistaken belief that the jurisdiction of the cause was in federal, rather than state, court.

The Supreme Court reversed the trial court order denying defendant's motion for relief from the default under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), holding that defendant had plausible grounds for its belief. The Court also held that the fact that the federal court had retained the case under advisement for several months on defendant's petition for removal to federal court was sufficient indication that the question of law involved was in doubt and was one on which an attorney might well be mistaken. Thus, defendant's neglect was "at least excusable" (192 Cal. 467, 470) . The Court stated that the legal principles involved were: (1) the impartial discretion in the trial court; (2) the policy of the law favoring trial on the merits; and (3) the availability of relief from default judgment entered by reason of defendant's mistake of law (192 Cal. 467, 470-471) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.64

§ 70.64 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake of Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Mistake of Law Regarding Meritorious Defense

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief from default or default judgment based on mistake of law (see, e.g., § 70.60[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) ON THE GROUND OF A REASONABLE MISTAKE OF LAW ON THE PART OF THE DEFENDANT, BECAUSE THE DEFENDANT RELIED IN GOOD FAITH ON HIS/HER ATTORNEY'S ERRONEOUS ADVICE THAT THERE WAS NO MERITORIOUS DEFENSE TO THE ACTION.

Mistake of Law Regarding Meritorious Defense. A party who relies in good faith on his or her attorney's advice that there was no meritorious defense to the action when in fact a meritorious defense could have been alleged may, when justice requires, be relieved from the attorney's mistake of law (Douglass v. Todd (1892) 96 Cal. 655, 658-660, 31 P. 623).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of mistake of law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. Specifically, this form may be used when the mistake regards the existence of a meritorious defense.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief based on mistake of law (see § 70.60[1]).

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.160 -70.163 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mistake of Law Regarding Meritorious Defense

Douglass v. Todd (1892) 96 Cal. 655, 31 P. 623 , was a case of first impression on the issue of relief under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), from default caused by a mistake of law made by the party's attorney. Defendant contacted an attorney as soon as he was served with the summons in the action, and the attorney advised him that he had no defense. Relying on that advice, defendant failed to answer the complaint; his default was taken and judgment entered against him. His subsequent motion to vacate the judgment was granted.

The Supreme Court affirmed, stating that former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), is broad enough to justify relieving a party from a mistake of law made by his or her attorney when, by reliance on it, the party is prevented from making a defense. Although defendant might have been guilty of negligence had he relied on his own judgment of the law, no negligence was shown, because defendant consulted a practicing attorney and was justified in acting on his advice (96 Cal. 655, 658) . The Court stated that refusal to grant relief is an abuse of discretion when default is caused by defendant's good-faith reliance on the advice of his or her attorney and a meritorious defense is alleged (96 Cal. 655, 659) . The Court cautioned that relief will not be granted from all mistakes of law. Rather, "sound discretion controlled by an enlightened judgment, keeping in view public interests and the due and orderly administration of the law, is to be exercised in granting that relief which justice between the parties to the cause seems to require" (96 Cal. 655, 659-660) .

Counsel should note that Douglass discussed two issues concerning meritorious defense. The primary issue involved in the holding is the attorney's initial misleading of the defendant regarding whether he could present a defense to the action, resulting in the defendant's failure to respond to the complaint. Although that issue is still likely to arise in the context of setting aside a default on the ground of mistake, under current law, if the application for relief is accompanied by an attorney affidavit of fault, the granting of relief is mandatory if certain conditions are met [see discussion in § 70.60[2][c]. A more problematic issue discussed in Douglass, vis-a-vis current law, regards the requirement of a showing of meritorious defense under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)). For further discussion of this issue, see § 70.10[2][e].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Mistake of Law Regarding Meritorious Defense

In Tuttle v. Scott (1898) 119 Cal. 586, 51 P. 849 , defendant failed to answer plaintiff's complaint because he believed that his discharge in insolvency did not require him to respond to the complaint. After his default and a default judgment was entered, the trial court granted his motion to vacate under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)). The Supreme Court affirmed, holding that the sufficiency of defendant's excuse was well established under case law, and that discharge in insolvency or bankruptcy is a defense on the merits, rather than a technical defense (119 Cal. 586, 588-589) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.65-70.69

[Reserved]

§§ 70.65[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.70

§ 70.70 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Inadvertence [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief from under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see, e.g., §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) ON THE GROUND OF EXCUSABLE INADVERTENCE ON THE PART OF THE [LEGAL REPRESENTATIVE OF THE] DEFENDANT.

Excusable Inadvertence. Relief from default may be granted under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) on the ground of inadvertence if it was caused by a misunderstanding or a failure to follow proper procedures without any culpable carelessness, rather than by mere forgetfulness (Benjamin v. Dalmo Mfg. Co. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 523, 527, 190 P.2d 593 ; Pearson v. Continental Airlines (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 613, 618, 89 Cal. Rptr. 853).

[Add supporting points and authorities for the particular ground of inadvertence for which relief is sought (see, e.g., § 70.71[1]).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of inadvertence [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. For a form for use if the inadvertence consists of a party's excusable failure to transmit the summons and complaint to his or her attorney, see § 70.71[1].

This form should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40]. It may also be combined when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief on other grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)[see §§ 70.50 et seq., 70.60 et seq., 70.80 et seq.; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should show facts demonstrating that the moving party's inadvertence is excusable, for example, that it was due to a reasonable misunderstanding or connected with some action by the attorney or the party taking the default that reasonably misled or confused the moving party.

See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

If the request for relief is based on the mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect of the moving party's attorney, the granting of the motion is mandatory if the attorney at fault files an affidavit to that effect, and certain other conditions are met. Specifically, if the application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect, the court must grant relief unless it finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. For further discussion, see § 70.12[3].

[d] Notice of Request to Enter Default

Code Civ. Proc. § 587, enacted in 1969, requires that all applications for entry of default under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 585(a)-(c) or 586, include an affidavit (or declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) stating that a copy of the application has been mailed to defendant or his or her attorney of record, if any. Many of the cases that discuss the ground of inadvertence concern defendant's, or his or her attorney's, ignorance of any intention on the part of the plaintiff to take a default or obtain a default judgment. Some of these cases were decided prior to the enactment of Code Civ. Proc. § 587, and should be viewed in light of the current law requiring notice under that section (for example, some cases disapprovingly discuss opposing counsel's failure to give notice, or the lack of any statute requiring notice of default).

With the enactment of Code Civ. Proc. § 587, a moving party who has been given notice under that section should move promptly for relief, since with such notice it will be more difficult to justify delay in filing the motion. Even if the moving party adequately shows facts in support of a particular ground of relief, the motion will be denied if it is untimely [see Kendall v. Barker (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 625, 243 Cal. Rptr. 42 (moving party must show satisfactory excuse for default as well as diligence in making motion); § 70.140[1]].

For further discussion of requirements for entry of default (including the procedural distinction between actions in which service was made by publication and those in which service was effected by other means), see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments (Matthew Bender).

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.170[1] may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Excusable Inadvertence

In Benjamin v. Dalmo Mfg. Co. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 523, 190 P.2d 593 , plaintiff filed an action to recover the purchase price of goods sold and delivered to defendant corporation. Defendant's president, on receipt of the summons and complaint, directed his secretary to forward the papers to the corporation's attorney, but the secretary misunderstood the directions and placed the papers in the office files without sending a copy to the attorney. Her error was discovered when defendant was notified of the entry of its default. Some three months later, defendant moved for relief from the default on the ground of the mistake, inadvertence, surprise, and excusable neglect of the defendant and its officers. The trial court granted the motion and ordered the default and judgment set aside.

Although the Supreme Court reversed, it stated that the trial court had reasonable ground to excuse defendant's conduct leading to the entry of the default judgment. The Court noted that the inadvertence of defendant's officers in failing to contact the corporation's attorney rested not on mere forgetfulness, but on a misunderstanding in the execution of properly given instructions, a mistake that might easily be made without any "culpable carelessness" on their part (31 Cal. 2d 523, 527) . Despite this finding, however, the Court reversed the trial court's order and held that defendant, by delaying without explanation for more than three months before seeking relief from the default, failed to meet the requirement of former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), that application for relief be made within a reasonable time (31 Cal. 2d 523, 528-532) .

In Pearson v. Continental Airlines (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 613, 89 Cal. Rptr. 853 , defendant airline failed to answer plaintiff's complaint in a personal injury action. The default occurred as a result of the inadvertent failure of a member of defendant's clerical staff to transmit copies of the summons and complaint in the action to the company's insurance department after having been instructed to do so by her supervisor. Plaintiff's attorney obtained a default judgment, indicating at the default hearing that entry of the judgment would encourage settlement negotiations. Defendant filed a motion to vacate the default on the grounds of mistake, inadvertence, and excusable neglect. At the hearing on the motion, the judge recalled the claim of plaintiff's attorney that judgment had been sought for the purpose of prompting settlement, and ordered that the default and ensuing judgment be set aside.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that a defendant's inadvertence is excusable if it rests not on mere forgetfulness, but on a misunderstanding in the execution of properly given instructions, that is, a mistake that might be easily made without any culpable carelessness on the part of the parties concerned (11 Cal. App. 3d 613, 618) . The court noted that although defendant's erring employee did not submit a declaration that she misunderstood the orders given, or specifically failed to follow customary procedures (because the defendant could not remember which employee was involved), it was reasonably inferable that the clerk had either misunderstood her orders or specifically failed to follow customary procedures (11 Cal. App. 3d 613, 618-619) . Furthermore, there was no showing of any prejudice to plaintiff as a result of the trial court's order, because mere delay in securing satisfaction of his monetary demand was not sufficient ground for reversal of the order (11 Cal. App. 3d 613, 619) . Finally, plaintiff himself was not entirely blameless, in that he gave defendant no advance notice of his intention to enter the default and indicated to the trial judge that he sought entry of judgment on the default for settlement purposes. The court indicated that it was for the trial court to determine whether plaintiff's conduct was "advantage taking" meriting disfavor, and found no abuse of discretion by the trial court (11 Cal. App. 3d 613, 619-620) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Excusable Inadvertence

In Gorman v. California Transit Co. (1926) 199 Cal. 246, 248 P. 923 , the summons and complaint were served on the corporate defendant's secretary, who delivered them to a manager of the corporation for referral to the corporation's president on his return to the city. The file was inadvertently removed from the desk of the manager, who forgot about the matter until defendant learned that a default and default judgment had been entered against it. In affirming the trial court's order granting relief from the default and default judgment, the Supreme Court noted that in such cases it should appear that something more than mere inadvertence or neglect without reasonable excuse or justification existed, and that the inadvertence or neglect in question was not the result of mere forgetfulness on the part of the person charged with the duty of responding to the action (199 Cal. 246, 248) .

In Bernards v. Grey (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 679, 218 P.2d 597 , defendant was served while he was in court talking with his attorney regarding a related matter. Unaware of the nature of the papers, defendant placed them in his briefcase and through inadvertence failed to call them to the attention of his attorney. Defendant's motion to vacate the default entered against him was granted and the matter proceeded to trial, which resulted in judgment for defendant. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that there was no abuse of discretion in the lower court's determination that defendant's neglect was excusable (97 Cal. App. 2d 679, 684-686) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.71

§ 70.71 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Inadvertence [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Failure to Transmit Summons and Complaint

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief from default or default judgment based on inadvertence (see, e.g., § 70.70[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) ON THE GROUND OF EXCUSABLE INADVERTENCE ON THE PART OF THE DEFENDANT, BECAUSE DEFENDANT INADVERTENTLY FAILED TO TRANSMIT THE SUMMONS AND COMPLAINT TO HIS/HER ATTORNEY AND THE INADVERTENCE WAS EXCUSABLE.

Failure to Transmit Summons and Complaint to Attorney. Relief may be granted for a default and default judgment based on a party's failure to inform an attorney of the service of the summons and complaint if that failure is the result of excusable inadvertence (Benjamin v. Dalmo Mfg. Co. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 523, 527, 190 P.2d 593).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and/or default judgment should be set aside on the ground of inadvertence [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. Specifically, this form may be used when the inadvertence consists of a party's excusable failure to transmit the summons and complaint to his or her attorney.

For further discussion relating to the ground of excusable inadvertence generally, see § 70.70[2]. For discussion relating to an attorney's affidavit of fault, see §§ 70.12[2], 70.70[2][c].

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief from default or default judgment based on excusable inadvertence (see § 70.70[1]).

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.170 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Transmit Summons and Complaint to Attorney

The facts and procedural background of Benjamin v. Dalmo Mfg. Co. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 523, 190 P.2d 593 , are discussed in § 70.70[3]. The Court noted that the inadvertence of defendant's officers in failing to contact the corporation's attorney rested not on mere forgetfulness, but on a misunderstanding in the execution of properly given instructions, a mistake that might easily be made without any "culpable carelessness" on their part (31 Cal. 2d 523, 527) . The Court reversed the trial court's order setting aside the default, however, because without explanation the defendant delayed seeking relief for more than three months and therefore failed to meet the reasonable time requirement of former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)).

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to Transmit Summons and Complaint to Attorney

The facts and procedural background of Gorman v. California Transit Co. (1926) 199 Cal. 246, 248 P. 923 , are discussed in § 70.70[4]. In affirming the trial court's order granting relief from the default and default judgment, the Supreme Court noted that it should appear that something more than mere inadvertence or neglect without reasonable excuse or justification existed, and that the inadvertence or neglect in question was not the result of mere forgetfulness on the part of the person charged with the duty of responding to the action (199 Cal. 246, 248) .

The facts and procedural background of Pearson v. Continental Airlines (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 613, 89 Cal. Rptr. 853 , are discussed in § 70.70[3][a]. The court of appeal held that a defendant's inadvertence in excusable if it rests not on mere forgetfulness, but on a misunderstanding in the execution of properly given instructions, that is, a mistake that might be easily made without any culpable carelessness on the part of the parties concerned (11 Cal. App. 3d 613, 618) .

The facts and procedural background of Bernards v. Grey (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 679, 218 P.2d 597 , are discussed in § 70.70[4]. The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order vacating a motion to vacate a default, holding that there was no abuse of discretion in the lower court's determination that defendant's neglect was excusable when defendant was unaware of the nature of the papers served on him, placed them in his briefcase, and inadvertently failed to call them to his attorney's attention (97 Cal. App. 2d 679, 684-686) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.72-70.79

[Reserved]

§§ 70.72[Reserved]

59 of 156 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.80

§ 70.80 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Surprise [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see, e.g., § 70.10, 70.30, 70.40).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) ON THE GROUND OF EXCUSABLE SURPRISE ON THE PART OF THE [LEGAL REPRESENTATIVE OF THE] DEFENDANT.

Surprise Defined. Surprise, within the meaning of Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b), is defined to be some condition or situation in which a party to a cause is unexpectedly injured, when ordinary prudence could not have guarded against the injury, and that party was not negligent (Credit Managers Assn. v. National Independent Business Alliance (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 1166, 1173, 209 Cal. Rptr. 119 ; Hodge Sheet Metal Products v. Palm Springs Riviera Hotel (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 653, 656-657, 11 Cal. Rptr. 435).

[Add supporting points and authorities for the particular ground of surprise for which relief is sought (see, e.g., § 70.81).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of surprise [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. For a form of points and authorities for use when the default was taken because settlement negotiations misled the defendant to believe a responsive pleading need not be filed, see § 70.81[1].

This form should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief on other grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see, e.g., §§ 70.50 et seq., 70.90 et seq.; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

For discussion relating to an attorney's affidavit of fault, see §§ 70.12[2], 70.70[2][c].

For discussion of the Code Civ. Proc. § 587 requirement that all applications for entry of default under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 585(a)-(c) or 586 include a declaration that a copy of the application has been mailed to defendant (or defendant's attorney, if any), see § 70.70[2][d].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should describe the manner in which the moving party was surprised and how that surprise resulted in default. Counsel should also show that the moving party was not careless or negligent in his or her handling of the case.

See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.180[1] may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Surprise Defined

Credit Managers Assn. v. National Independent Business Alliance (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 1166, 209 Cal. Rptr. 119 , involved the trial court's denial of plaintiff's motion under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), for relief from a default and default judgment taken by defendant on its cross complaint against plaintiff's assignor. The assignor, a corporation, made an assignment for the benefit of creditors to plaintiff. Plaintiff-assignee brought an action for breach of contract against the defendant on one of the assets of the estate, a written agreement between the defendant and the assignor. Defendant contested the action, and filed a cross complaint against the assignor on the same agreement, naming plaintiff as one of the additional cross defendants in its capacity as assignee. Plaintiff, on its own behalf as assignee only, contested the cross complaint. Counsel for plaintiff and defendant had numerous communications concerning service of process on the assignor as a cross defendant. Defendant eventually effected service of process of its cross complaint on the assignor. Without notifying plaintiff, defendant obtained entry of the assignor's default, and took a default judgment against the assignor on the cross complaint. Defendant notified plaintiff of the default judgment a few days after its entry. Plaintiff immediately filed a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 to set aside the default and default judgment, and to be allowed to defend against the cross complaint on behalf of its assignor. Plaintiff appealed the adverse ruling on the motion.

The court of appeal reversed, ordering the trial court to set aside the entry of default and default judgment (and further ordering it to grant plaintiff's motion to be substituted in place of the assignor, and allow plaintiff to defend against the cross complaint in assignor's name for the benefit of the creditors) (162 Cal. App. 3d 1166, 1173) . With respect to the entitlement to relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, the court noted that the statute provides relief from judgment or order taken by mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect (162 Cal. App. 3d 1166, 1172) . The court stated that "surprise" within the meaning of the statute is some condition or situation in which a party to a cause is unexpectedly injured, when ordinary prudence could not have guarded against the injury, and that party was not negligent. The court held that plaintiff was not notified of the assignor's service of process or the entry of default, and was therefore taken by surprise. It observed that plaintiff sought relief immediately after receiving notice. Consequently, the court concluded that the trial court abused its discretion in denying relief (162 Cal. App. 3d 1166, 1173) .

The facts and procedural background of Hodge Sheet Metal Products v. Palm Springs Riviera Hotel (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 653, 11 Cal. Rptr. 435 , are discussed in 70.50[3]. In Hodge, the court of appeal held that defendant's motion to set aside a default under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), was proper on the ground of reasonable mistake in fact (189 Cal. App. 2d 653, 657-658) . The court in Hodge also briefly discussed the other applicable and related grounds for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, noting that "surprise," within the meaning of the statute, is defined to be some condition or situation in which a party to a cause is unexpectedly injured, when ordinary prudence could not have guarded against the injury, and that party was not negligent (189 Cal. App. 2d 653, 656-657) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Surprise Defined

Fennell v. Fennell (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 267, 18 Cal. Rptr. 743 , was a divorce action in which defendant husband's default was taken pursuant to stipulation between the parties and an interlocutory judgment granted to plaintiff wife. Defendant moved to set aside the default and judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, alleging that plaintiff's attorney had advised defendant that the matter would not be put on calendar until the parties had worked out a settlement agreement. Negotiations between the parties failed, but plaintiff did not indicate that she intended to proceed with the divorce, and defendant was not notified of the judgment against him until he later consulted an attorney. The trial judge granted defendant's motion for relief despite a finding that defendant failed to show actual mistake or inadvertence. The court of appeal affirmed, noting that the reasoning of the trial judge must be disregarded as irrelevant, and stating that a trial court may find excusable neglect or surprise if settlement negotiations are occurring between counsel and if there is an oral or implied understanding that no default will be taken without notice (199 Cal. App. 2d 267, 270) .

In Dahlin v. Moon (1956) 141 Cal. App. 2d 1, 296 P.2d 344 , the court of appeal affirmed a trial court order setting aside defendants' default. The default was taken during settlement negotiations and no showing of prejudice was made by plaintiff. The court noted that, although there was some lack of diligence by defendants, the close contact and protracted negotiations between the parties may have lulled defendants and their attorney into a sense of security, particularly because the default was taken without notice to defendants' attorney (141 Cal. App. 2d 1, 5) .

Miller v. Lee (1942) 52 Cal. App. 2d 10, 125 P.2d 627 , concerned an action for malicious prosecution in which defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings was granted because the trial court believed that the plaintiff's complaint was inadequate under certain holdings of the court of appeal. When a Supreme Court opinion, which came down after the trial court's ruling, made clear that the case relied on by the trial court was not (and never had been) the law of California, plaintiff's motion to vacate the judgment was granted. Defendant's subsequent motion to vacate the order granting relief was denied and defendants appealed. The court of appeal affirmed. The court stated that surprise, under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, is "some condition or situation in which a party to a cause is unexpectedly placed to his injury, without any default or negligence of his own, which ordinary prudence could not have guarded against." The court found that the plaintiff had clearly been placed in a situation to his injury, which was not brought about by either the negligence or the ignorance of his attorney. On the contrary, application of the Supreme Court opinion in question indicated that plaintiff's complaint was sufficient and that the motion for judgment on the pleadings should have been denied. Finally, the court observed that plaintiff's motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 was procedurally proper, in that a motion for a new trial or an appeal are not exclusive methods of obtaining relief from a judgment and they do not displace the remedy afforded by Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (52 Cal. App. 2d 10, 16) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.81

§ 70.81 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Surprise [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Settlement Negotiations in Progress

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief from default or default judgment based on excusable surprise (see, e.g., § 70.80[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) ON THE GROUND OF EXCUSABLE SURPRISE ON THE PART OF THE [LEGAL REPRESENTATIVE OF THE] DEFENDANT, BECAUSE THE DEFAULT WAS TAKEN DESPITE AN _____ [ORAL or IMPLIED] UNDERSTANDING THAT NO DEFAULT WOULD BE TAKEN WITHOUT PRIOR NOTICE WHILE THE PARTIES WERE ENGAGED IN SETTLEMENT NEGOTIATIONS.

Settlement Negotiations in Progress. Relief from default on the ground of surprise may be granted if settlement negotiations are occurring between counsel or the parties to litigation and default is taken despite an oral or implied understanding that no default will be taken without prior notice (Beard v. Beard (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 645, 648, 107 P.2d 385 ; Ochinero v. Wertz (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 533, 536-537, 19 Cal. Rptr. 466).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment should be set aside on the ground of surprise [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. Specifically, this form may be used when the default was taken because settlement negotiations misled the defendant to believe a responsive pleading need not be filed.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief from default or default judgment based on surprise (see § 70.80).

Although a party typically seeks relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), from a default or default judgment, or both, a court may grant relief under that section from any "judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding." This form may be modified for use, when appropriate, in seeking relief in situations other than a default and default judgment.

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should describe the manner in which the moving party was surprised and how that surprise resulted in default. Counsel should also show that the moving party was not careless or negligent in his or her handling of the case. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.180[1] may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Settlement Negotiations in Progress

In Beard v. Beard (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 645, 107 P.2d 385 , an action to recover alimony based on a foreign judgment, a default judgment was entered on a cross complaint seeking declaratory relief, in favor of the cross complainant. When plaintiff and cross defendant's original cause came on for trial, the cross complainant set up the default judgment in defense, and was sustained by the trial court. In explaining why he failed to answer the cross complaint, the attorney for plaintiff and cross defendant stated that he believed none was required in a declaratory relief action. The trial court granted the motion to set aside the default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473. Cross complainant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, finding no abuse of discretion in the trial court's granting of the motion (16 Cal. 2d 645, 648-649) . The court noted that, in the instant case, the trial court found that there was a sufficiently reasonably excuse to justify the setting aside of the default judgment, apparently because the continued negotiations between the two attorneys allegedly lulled the defaulting attorney into a sense of security. Although as a general rule an attorney's ignorance of the law is not a sufficient ground for setting aside a default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, the mere fact that the defaulting attorney misstated the law with regard to the requirement of filing an answer does not bar him from asserting other grounds for setting aside the default that the court might have found sufficient (16 Cal. 2d 645, 648) .

Ochinero v. Wertz (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 533, 19 Cal. Rptr. 466 , involved a contract action in which defendants' default was taken while settlement negotiations were in progress. At the outset of the litigation, one of the defendants, who was handling the matter for his codefendants, was told by plaintiff that there was no need to worry about the matter and that it would be straightened out shortly. With this assurance, defendant took no immediate action. When he later contacted plaintiff to settle the case, negotiations were commenced between the parties at plaintiff's suggestion. Because plaintiff was unable to contact his attorneys, they were unaware of the meeting between the parties, and they, in turn, took defendants' default without plaintiff's knowledge. Defendants moved under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 for relief from the default and ensuing judgment, and the trial court vacated the default and judgment as to two of them.

The court of appeal affirmed, finding it significant that the negotiations were carried on at the request of the plaintiff, which the court felt was evidence of a substantial nature to support the trial court's vacation of the defaults (200 Cal. App. 2d 533, 536) . The court concluded that a trial court may relieve a party from default on the ground of excusable neglect or surprise when settlement negotiations are occurring between counsel or the parties to litigation if there is an oral or implied understanding that no default will be taken without prior notice (200 Cal. App. 2d 533, 536-537) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.82-70.89

[Reserved]

§§ 70.82[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.90

§ 70.90 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Reasonably Prudent Person Would Have Acted Similarly Under Same Circumstances

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see, e.g., §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) ON THE GROUND OF EXCUSABLE NEGLECT ON THE PART OF THE [LEGAL REPRESENTATIVE OF THE] DEFENDANT, IN THAT A REASONABLY PRUDENT PERSON WOULD HAVE ACTED SIMILARLY UNDER THE SAME CIRCUMSTANCES.

A. Policy Favors Relief if Excusable Neglect Shown. A party is entitled to relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) on the ground of excusable neglect, and doubts should be resolved in favor of an application to set aside a default judgment on that ground (Karlein v. Karlein (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 496, 498, 229 P.2d 831).

B. Excusable Neglect Defined. Excusable neglect, within the meaning of Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b), is that neglect which might have been the act of a reasonably prudent person under the same circumstances (Hodge Sheet Metal Products v. Palm Springs Riviera Hotel (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 653, 657, 11 Cal. Rptr. 435).

C. Relief for Excusable Neglect Based on Prudent Conduct. A default may be set aside and a default judgment vacated on the ground of the excusable neglect of the [legal representative of the] moving party if the default resulted from neglect that might have been the acts of a reasonably prudent person in the same circumstances (Hodge Sheet Metal Products v. Palm Springs Riviera Hotel (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 653, 657, 11 Cal. Rptr. 435).

[Add supporting points and authorities for the particular ground of excusable for which relief is sought (see, e.g., § 70.91 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) should be set aside on the ground of excusable neglect, in that the moving party acted as a reasonably prudent person would have under the circumstances [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); see also Hodge Sheet Metal Products v. Palm Springs Riviera Hotel (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 653, 657, 11 Cal. Rptr. 435] .

This form should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief on other grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see, e.g., §§ 70.50 -70.81, 70.91 -70.110; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g], regarding multiple grounds of relief].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Therefore, counsel should describe the defaulting party's actions and show how they were reasonable under the circumstances. Counsel should carefully explain the causal connection between the circumstances described and the moving party's failure to respond within the period of time allowed [see, e.g., Bellm v. Bellia (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 1036, 1038, 198 Cal. Rptr. 389 (denial of relief upheld based on moving party's failure to explain why family illnesses and business pressures caused him to neglect complaint; discussed in § 70.196[3])].

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

If the request for relief is based on the mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect of the moving party's attorney, the granting of the motion is mandatory if the attorney at fault files an affidavit to that effect, and certain other conditions are met. Specifically, if the application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect, the court must grant relief unless it finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. For further discussion, see § 70.12[3].

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.190 et seq. and § 70.210 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Policy Favors Relief if Excusable Neglect Shown

In Karlein v. Karlein (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 496, 229 P.2d 831 , an interlocutory judgment of divorce was entered on defendant husband's default. Defendant moved to set aside the default and judgment, alleging that he was unfamiliar with legal procedure, had difficulty with the English language, was not represented by counsel, and, at the time of the default hearing, had been in custody in the psychopathic ward of the county hospital, which plaintiff had known. The trial court denied the motion.

The court of appeal reversed, finding that, on the facts of the case, defendant should have had an opportunity to defend himself. The court noted that neither party should be deprived of a hearing except when guilty of inexcusable neglect, and doubts should be resolved in favor of an application to set aside a default judgment. The court concluded on the basis of the evidence before it that defendant was in a disturbed mental state at the relevant time (103 Cal. App. 2d 496, 498) . The court acknowledged that, as a general rule, reviewing courts will uphold the discretion of a trial court in granting or denying relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, but asserted that a reviewing court considers an appeal from an order denying relief more readily than one granting relief (103 Cal. App. 2d 496, 498) . The court concluded that the defendant made a sufficient showing of excusable neglect based on his disability, in support of relief under the statute (103 Cal. App. 2d 496, 498-499) .

[b] Excusable Neglect Defined

The facts and procedural background of Hodge Sheet Metal Products v. Palm Springs Riviera Hotel (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 653, 11 Cal. Rptr. 435 , are discussed in § 70.50[3]. In Hodge, the court of appeal held that defendant's motion to set aside a default under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), was proper on the ground of reasonable mistake in fact (189 Cal. App. 2d 653, 657-658) . The court in Hodge also briefly discussed the other applicable and related grounds for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, noting that "excusable neglect" within the meaning of the statute, is that neglect which might have been the act of a reasonably prudent person under the same circumstances (189 Cal. App. 2d 653, 657) .

[c] Relief for Excusable Neglect Based on Prudent Conduct

The facts and procedural background of Hodge Sheet Metal Products v. Palm Springs Riviera Hotel (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 653, 11 Cal. Rptr. 435 , are discussed in § 70.50[3]. In Hodge, the court of appeal held that defendant's motion to set aside a default under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), was proper on the ground of reasonable mistake in fact (189 Cal. App. 2d 653, 657-658) . The court in Hodge also held that a default may be set aside and a default judgment vacated on the ground of excusable neglect if the default resulted from neglect that might have been the acts of a reasonably prudent person in the same circumstances (189 Cal. App. 2d 653, 657) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.91

§ 70.91 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Disability of Party--Party Unable to Arrange to Defend

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief from default or default judgment (see, e.g., §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) ON THE GROUND OF EXCUSABLE NEGLECT ON THE PART OF THE DEFENDANT, IN THAT THE DEFAULT RESULTED UNAVOIDABLY FROM THE DISABILITY OF THE DEFENDANT.

A. Policy Favors Relief if Excusable Neglect Shown. [See 70.90[1], Paragraphs A and B.]

B. Disability of Party. If a party suffers a disability that renders him or her unable to arrange to defend an action, and the party's default results, relief from the default and ensuing judgment is available on the ground of excusable neglect under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) (Karlein v. Karlein (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 496, 498-499, 229 P.2d 831).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment should be set aside on the ground of excusable neglect, in that the party suffered from an unavoidable disability that prevented representation, resulting in a default taken against that party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)].

For forms of points and authorities supporting a motion for relief when the moving party suffers from mental confusion or illness, or is unable to comprehend the legal proceeding, see § 70.92[1] and § 70.93[1], respectively.

This form should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40]. It may also be combined when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief on other grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see, e.g., §§ 70.50 -70.90, 70.95 -70.110; see also discussion in 70.10[3][g]].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should describe the disability of the party, and show that under the circumstances, the party's failure to act in time to prevent the default was reasonable and excusable [see Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 855, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 (reasonableness is essential element in support of relief)]. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in 70.190 et seq. and 70.210 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Disability of Party

Karlein v. Karlein (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 496, 229 P.2d 831 , is discussed in 70.90[3][a].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Disability of Party

In Kesselman v. Kesselman (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 196, 27 Cal. Rptr. 769 , the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order granting defendant's motion for relief under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), from entry of a default taken against him in a divorce action, on the ground that by reason of paralytic strokes, defendant was not capable of understanding the nature of the legal documents served on him. The court of appeal held that the trial court could reasonably conclude that the defendant's physical condition rendered him susceptible to plaintiff's undue influence, resulting in the default; and that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in affording defendant relief under the facts (212 Cal. App. 2d 196, 207-208) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.92

§ 70.92 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Disability of Party--Moving Party Suffers From Mental Confusion or Illness

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see, e.g., §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40, 70.90).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) ON THE GROUND OF EXCUSABLE NEGLECT ON THE PART OF THE DEFENDANT, IN THAT THE _____ [identify proceedings, e.g., DEFAULT] RESULTED FROM SOME DEGREE OF MENTAL _____ [CONFUSION or ILLNESS] ON THE PART OF THE MOVING PARTY.

Moving Party's Mental Confusion or Illness. Relief may be granted under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) based on the existence of some degree of mental confusion or illness on the part of the moving party, and the court may infer the existence of such problems from the whole record before it (In re the Marriage of Kerry (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 456, 466, 204 Cal. Rptr. 660).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) should be set aside on the ground of excusable neglect, in that the default was entered as a consequence of the moving party's mental confusion or illness.

For forms of points and authorities supporting a motion for relief when a party's disability prevented representation, see § 70.91[1]; or when the moving party is unable to comprehend the legal proceeding, see § 70.93[1].

This form should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40]. It may also be combined when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief on other grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see, e.g., §§ 70.50 -70.90, 70.95 -70.110; see also discussion in 70.10[3][g]].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should describe the disability of the party, and show that under the circumstances, the party's failure to act in time to prevent the default was reasonable and excusable [see Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 855, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 (reasonableness is essential element in support of relief)]. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in 70.190 et seq. and 70.210 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Moving Party's Mental Confusion or Illness

In re the Marriage of Kerry (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 456, 204 Cal. Rptr. 660 , is discussed in 70.53[3].

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.93

§ 70.93 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Disability of Party--Inability to Comprehend Legal Proceeding

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see, e.g., §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) ON THE GROUND OF DEFENDANT'S EXCUSABLE NEGLECT, IN THAT THE _____[identify proceeding, e.g., DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT] RESULTED UNAVOIDABLY FROM THE DEFENDANT'S INABILITY TO COMPREHEND THE NATURE OF THE LEGAL PROCEEDING.

A. Policy Favors Relief if Excusable Neglect Shown. [See 70.90[1], Paragraphs A and B.]

B. Inability to Comprehend Legal Proceeding. Relief from default and default judgment may be granted if the default was caused by the defaulting party's reasonable and excusable failure to act based on his or her ignorance of the English language, or other factors preventing that party from comprehending the nature of the legal proceedings or the applicable procedural and substantive laws (Berri v. Rogero (1914) 168 Cal. 736, 739-741, 145 P. 95 ; Buck v. Buck (1954) 126 Cal. App. 2d 137, 138-140, 271 P.2d 628).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) should be set aside on the ground of excusable neglect, in that the party was unable, because of ignorance of the language or other factors, to comprehend the nature of the legal proceedings or applicable laws [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); see also Berri v. Rogero (1914) 168 Cal. 736, 739-741, 145 P. 95] .

This form should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40]. It may also be combined when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief on other grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see, e.g., §§ 70.50 -70.92, 70.94 -70.110; see also discussion in 70.10[3][g]].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore describe the circumstances of the moving party's reasonable failure to act, and set forth facts concerning his or her lack of understanding, for example, his or her recent arrival in the United States and inability to speak English, as well as other related factors causing the party's confusion or misunderstanding [see Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 855, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 (reasonableness is essential element in support of relief)]. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inability to Comprehend Legal Proceeding

In Berri v. Rogero (1914) 168 Cal. 736, 145 P. 95 , the trial court granted a motion to set aside a default and default judgment taken against defendants in plaintiff's malicious prosecution action. Defendants' motion to set aside the default and default judgment was based on inadvertence, surprise, and excusable neglect, and was accompanied by affidavits averring that: defendants, who were Italian-Swiss, were unable to understand, read, or write the English language. They were unacquainted with legal procedure and judicial proceedings, and they did not know that after once consulting their attorney any further action was necessary on their part to defend against the proceedings (168 Cal. 736, 739-740) .

The Supreme Court affirmed. The Court reviewed the general rules of the remedial nature of motions to set aside defaults and default judgments, and noted that when plaintiff fails to show that he or she has suffered any prejudice or that injustice will result from a trial on the merits, very slight evidence is required to justify the setting aside of a default or default judgment (168 Cal. 736, 740) . The Court noted that it is required to presume that the oral testimony warranted the trial court to set aside the judgment, even if it finds that the affidavits submitted to the trial court were insufficient to sustain the order. The Court concluded that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in granting the motion (168 Cal. 736, 741) .

In Buck v. Buck (1954) 126 Cal. App. 2d 137, 271 P.2d 628 , the cross defendant (wife) in an annulment proceeding, who was Argentinian and spoke no English, entered into a stipulation through her attorney, which ultimately resulted in a judgment of annulment, based on a default hearing in which the cross complainant (husband) testified. The judgment affected, inter alia, the legal status of the couple's child. After learning of the judgment, the wife obtained different counsel, who unsuccessfully moved to set aside the decree. The motion was based on the contention that the husband confused the wife, whose ignorance of the English language and lack of education prevented her from comprehending that an annulment decree could be entered against her based on the stipulation, and that she understood that by signing the stipulation the lawsuit would be concluded.

The court of appeal reversed. The court noted that the granting of relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is primarily committed to the discretion of the trial court, but that the decision must be founded on a sound discretion, predicated on a fair consideration of the evidence in its entirety and the reasonable and logical inferences to be drawn from it. The court also noted that the burden of proving excusable neglect is on the defendant moving party, who must establish the thesis by a preponderance of the evidence (126 Cal. App. 2d 137, 141) . However, if from a scrutiny of all of the evidence in a proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 to vacate a judgment of annulment, it is clear that the trial court abused its discretion in holding that there was excusable neglect on the part of the defendant, the order must be reversed (126 Cal. App. 2d 137, 141-142) . The court stated that the principles applicable when a motion is made under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 to set aside a default judgment severing the marital status differ in many respects from those that govern other actions, in that very slight showing supports the granting of relief from the judgment (126 Cal. App. 2d 137, 142) . In addition, an appellate court "listens more readily to an appeal from an order denying relief than to one granting relief" because of the remedial character of the statute and the policy of liberal application to permit an opportunity to present a substantial defense (126 Cal. App. 2d 137, 142) . The court found the judgment a "harsh" one, in that it affected for all practical purposes the legitimacy of a child; and that sound public policy therefore favors the determination of the action on its merits. The court concluded that under the circumstances of the case, the trial court abused its discretion in denying relief to the cross defendant (126 Cal. App. 2d 137, 143) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.94

§ 70.94 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Disability of Party's Attorney

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see, e.g., §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) ON THE GROUND OF EXCUSABLE NEGLECT ON THE PART OF THE LEGAL REPRESENTATIVE OF THE DEFENDANT, IN THAT THE _____ [identify proceeding, e.g., DEFAULT] RESULTED UNAVOIDABLY FROM THE DISABILITY OF THE ATTORNEY FOR THE DEFENDANT.

A. Policy Favors Relief if Excusable Neglect Shown. [See 70.90[1], Paragraphs A and B.]

B. Disability of Attorney. Illness or disability of a party's counsel that is severe enough to prevent counsel from appearing in an action is good ground for vacating a default and default judgment if the party did not know of it in time to retain other counsel, or was prevented in some other way from doing so (Van Dyke v. MacMillan (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 594, 599, 328 P.2d 215 ; Stub v. Harrison (1939) 35 Cal. App. 2d 685, 690, 96 P.2d 979).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of excusable neglect, in that the party's counsel suffered from an unavoidable disability that prevented representation, resulting in a default taken against that party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)].

This form should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40]. It may also be combined when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief on other grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see, e.g., §§ 70.50 -70.93, 70.95 -70.110; see also discussion in 70.10[3][g]].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should describe the disability of the party or the attorney, and show that under the circumstances, the party's failure to act in time to prevent the default was reasonable and excusable [see Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 855, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 (reasonableness is essential element in support of relief)]. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

If the request for relief is based on the mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect of the moving party's attorney, the granting of the motion is mandatory if the attorney at fault files an affidavit to that effect, and certain other conditions are met. Specifically, if the application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect, the court must grant relief unless it finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. For further discussion, see 70.12[3].

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in 70.190 et seq. and 70.210 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Disability of Attorney

In Van Dyke v. MacMillan (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 594, 328 P.2d 215 , defendant's attorney was advised by his physician a week before the appointed trial date in the action that his illness would preclude his participation in the trial, which was scheduled in another county. The attorney advised defendant by telephone that he would be unable to appear at the trial and that he would arrange for a continuance. Defendant was unable to obtain other counsel because of heavy snows in the area. The attorney wired the trial judge, informing the judge of his illness and stating that he would move for a continuance. He mailed his affidavit for continuance to the judge, but, because the affidavit was not received until after the time for trial, the matter was heard as scheduled and judgment was entered for plaintiff. The trial court denied defendant's motion to set aside the judgment.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that the illness of a party's counsel, so severe as to prevent him or her from appearing and trying a case, is good ground for vacating a judgment, provided the party did not know of the disability in time to retain other counsel or was prevented in some other way from doing so (162 Cal. App. 2d 594, 599) .

In Stub v. Harrison (1939) 35 Cal. App. 2d 685, 96 P.2d 979 , defendant's default was taken when his attorney failed to respond to the complaint because of his preoccupation with his injured and hospitalized child. On discovering his error, the attorney prepared and filed an answer. Immediately after learning of the entry of default, he moved to set it aside. Defendant's motion to vacate was granted after entry of judgment against him, and plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court stressed the discretion residing in the trial judge in considering motions to vacate, noting that the courts, because of the remedial nature of Code Civ. Proc. § 473, are "somewhat loath to penalize a litigant on account of some omission on the part of his attorney, particularly when the litigant himself or herself has acted promptly and has relied upon the attorney to protect his rights" (35 Cal. App. 2d 685, 689-690) . Although acknowledging that the showing by defendant's attorney was not of the strongest character, the court considered certain relevant factors: defendant's diligence in obtaining legal assistance, his reliance on his attorney, the seriousness of the attorney's mental state, counsel's diligence in seeking relief from the default, and the penalty paid to and accepted by plaintiff as a condition for setting aside the default (35 Cal. App. 2d 685, 690) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.95

§ 70.95 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Justifiable Reliance on Codefendant's Promise to Defend

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see, e.g., §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) ON THE GROUND OF DEFENDANT'S EXCUSABLE NEGLECT, IN THAT THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT RESULTED UNAVOIDABLY FROM HIS/HER JUSTIFIABLE RELIANCE ON A _____ CODEFENDANT'S PROMISE TO DEFEND HIS/HER INTERESTS IN THE DEFENDANT'S ABSENCE.

A. Policy Favors Relief if Excusable Neglect Shown. [See 70.90[1], Paragraphs A and B.]

B. Reliance on Representation of Codefendant. Excusable neglect sufficient to relieve a party of a default and default judgment may be found when the party fails to file an appearance because of his or her justifiable reliance on the commitment or undertaking of a codefendant to defend the action (Stout v. Bakker (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 78, 83, 27 Cal. Rptr. 661).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment should be set aside on the ground of excusable neglect, in that the party reasonably relied on a commitment made by a codefendant to defend the matter [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); see also Ramsey Trucking Co. v. Mitchell (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 862,

866 , 11 Cal. Rptr. 283] . For form of points and authorities supporting a motion to set aside based on reasonable reliance on the commitment by a third party, see 70.96[1].

Although a party typically seeks relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), from a default or default judgment, or both, a court may grant relief under that section from any "judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding." This form may modified for use, when appropriate, in seeking relief in situations other than a default and default judgment.

This form should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40]. It may also be combined when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief on other grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see, e.g., §§ 70.50 -70.94, 70.96 -70.110; see also discussion in 70.10[3][g]].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief. For discussion of the Code Civ. Proc. § 587 requirement that all applications for entry of default under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 585(a)-(c) or 586 include a declaration that a copy of the application has been mailed to defendant (or defendant's attorney, if any), see § 70.70[2][d].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore set forth facts showing that the moving party's reliance on a commitment made by a codefendant to defend the matter on his or her behalf was reasonable. If the promise was made by a third party, counsel should describe that person's relationship to the defendant, such that the defendant's trust in that person to protect his or her interests was reasonable under the circumstances. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in 70.190 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reliance on Representation of Codefendant

In Stout v. Bakker (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 78, 27 Cal. Rptr. 661 , the purchaser of real property sued several defendants, alleging conspiracy regarding the defendants' entry onto the property without their permission, in connection with a dispute over the real property contract payments. After being served with process, the defendants who were identified in the original complaint obtained a change a venue to a different county. Plaintiffs filed an amended complaint, naming additional defendants (named as Does in the original complaint). Two of those additional defendants, who were employees of a codefendant who had already filed an answer, were served with copies of the original complaint (which bore the caption of the first county, that is, before the change of venue). They approached the employer-codefendant, who assured them that his attorney would take care of the matter on their behalf. A default judgment was subsequently entered against the two defendant employees. On the motion to set aside the default and default judgment, the affidavits of the moving parties showed that after being served, they each relied on representations made in good faith by the codefendant that an attorney would represent them in the matter. The codefendant stated that because of his confusion regarding the two venues, he misjudged the time period in which he needed to notify his attorney regarding the service of the two defendants. The attorney stated that when he first learned of the situation, the default had already been taken. The trial court granted the motion to set aside the default judgments.

The court of appeal affirmed (212 Cal. App. 2d 78, 84) . The court noted that plaintiffs did not contend that the defendants were derelict in relying on the codefendant to provide an attorney, but did contend that their inaction for some three months following notification of the defaults requires reversal (212 Cal. App. 2d 78, 82) . The court stated that the determination of whether a time period is reasonable depends largely on the facts and circumstances of each case. The general rule is to favor, whenever possible, a hearing on the merits. Appellate courts are much more disposed to affirm an order compelling a trial on the merits than it is when a judgment by default is allowed to stand and it appears that a substantial defense could be made. The court noted that ordinarily, abuse of discretion must be shown before an appellate court reverses such an order. It stated that although the showing of defendants' diligence was not entirely satisfactory, it was not so fatally defective as to justify the conclusion that the court below abused its discretion in opening the default (212 Cal. App. 2d 78, 83) . The court also observed that if the default judgments in the instant case were allowed to stand, it would severely penalize the two defendants, who might well succeed in defending themselves in a trial on the merits, and that plaintiffs' rights would apparently not be unjustly affected by the granting of relief (212 Cal. App. 2d 78, 84) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.96

§ 70.96 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Justifiable Reliance on Third Party's Promise to Defend

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief from default or default judgment (see, e.g., §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) ON THE GROUND OF DEFENDANT'S EXCUSABLE NEGLECT, IN THAT THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT RESULTED UNAVOIDABLY FROM HIS/HER JUSTIFIABLE RELIANCE ON A _____ THIRD PARTY'S PROMISE TO DEFEND HIS/HER INTERESTS IN THE DEFENDANT'S ABSENCE.

A. Policy Favors Relief if Excusable Neglect Shown. [See § 70.90[1], Paragraphs A and B.]

B. Reliance on Representation of Third Party. Excusable neglect sufficient to relieve a party of a default and default judgment may be found when the party fails to file an appearance because of his or her justifiable reliance on the commitment or undertaking of a third party to defend the action (Ramsey Trucking Co. v. Mitchell (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 862, 866 , 11 Cal. Rptr. 283).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment should be set aside on the ground of excusable neglect, in that the party reasonably relied on a commitment made by a third party or codefendant to defend the matter [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); see also Ramsey Trucking Co. v. Mitchell (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d

Supp. 862, 866 , 11 Cal. Rptr. 283] .

Although a party typically seeks relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), from a default or default judgment, or both, a court may grant relief under that section from any "judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding." This form may modified for use, when appropriate, in seeking relief in situations other than a default and default judgment.

For form of points and authorities supporting a motion to set aside based on reasonable reliance on the commitment by a codefendant, see 70.95[1]. This form should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40]. It may also be combined when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief on other grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see, e.g., §§ 70.50 -70.95, 70.97 -70.110; see also discussion in 70.10[3][g]].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief. For discussion of the Code Civ. Proc. § 587 requirement that all applications for entry of default under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 585(a)-(c) or 586 include a declaration that a copy of the application has been mailed to defendant (or defendant's attorney, if any), see § 70.70[2][d].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore set forth facts showing that the moving party's reliance on a commitment made by a third party or codefendant to defend the matter on his or her behalf was reasonable. If the promise was made by a third party, counsel should describe that person's relationship to the defendant, such that the defendant's trust in that person to protect his or her interests was reasonable under the circumstances. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.190 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reliance on Representation of Third Party

In Ramsey Trucking Co. v. Mitchell (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 862 , 11 Cal. Rptr. 283 , plaintiff sued defendant service station, alleging that defendant negligently serviced plaintiff's truck. Defendant informed an employee of the oil company whose products he sold of plaintiff's claim, and the employee advised defendant that the claim was referred to an insurance company, whose policy insured defendant against any claims arising out of workmanship and materials and provided for defense against any claims made. An adjustor for the insurance company investigated the claim and indicated that it would handle the matter. Defendant, relying on the insurance company to take care of the claim and to appear in his behalf in the lawsuit, took no further action until his default was taken and judgment entered against him for failure to answer the complaint. His subsequent motion to set aside the default and judgment was granted on the ground of excusable neglect.

The court of appeal affirmed, asserting that California courts have approved as a legitimate excuse for failure to file an appearance the commitment or undertaking of a third person to take care of a claim and defend a suit (188 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 862, 866) . Although cases normally show that the summons and complaint were actually forwarded by defendant to the person who had given the commitment to defend, the court stated that it did not think such a showing must be made in all cases. It reasoned that anyone familiar with modern business practices of corporations and retailers, and the handling of tort claims by insurance representatives, could well conclude that it is not fatally unreasonable for a busy local merchant to rely implicitly on the undertaking of authorized employees of a large corporation and an insurance company to take care of a claim (188 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 862, 866) . However, the court also noted that there was unquestionably serious neglect by defendant in this case in failing to turn the summons and complaint over to the insurance company and in not following up on the case; and cautioned that it was not establishing a general rule of excuse applicable to all similar cases. Rather, each case must be evaluated on its own facts (188 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 862, 866) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.97

§ 70.97 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Justifiable Reliance on Statements of Court Officers

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief from default or default judgment (see, e.g., §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) ON THE GROUND OF EXCUSABLE NEGLECT ON THE PART OF THE [LEGAL REPRESENTATIVE OF THE] DEFENDANT, BECAUSE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT RESULTED UNAVOIDABLY FROM THE JUSTIFIABLE RELIANCE OF THE [ATTORNEY FOR THE] DEFENDANT ON STATEMENTS OF COURT OFFICERS IN THE ACTION.

A. Policy Favors Relief if Excusable Neglect Shown. [See 70.90[1], Paragraphs A and B.]

B. Reliance on Representations of Officers of Court. When judgment is taken as a result of the reliance of a party or his or her counsel on statements made by an officer of the court, relief from the judgment is available on the ground of excusable neglect (Bodin v. Webb (1936) 17 Cal. App. 2d 422, 424-426, 62 P.2d 155 ; Lynch v. de Boom (1915) 26 Cal. App. 311, 314, 146 P. 908).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment should be set aside on the ground of excusable neglect, in that the party's failure to act in a timely manner resulted from reliance by the party or the party's attorney on a statement made by an officer of the court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); see also Bodin v.

Webb (1936) 17 Cal. App. 2d 422, 424-426, 62 P.2d 155] .

Although a party typically seeks relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), from a default or default judgment, or both, a court may grant relief under that section from any "judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding." This form may modified for use, when appropriate, in seeking relief in situations other than a default and default judgment.

This form should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40]. It may also be combined when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief on other grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see, e.g., §§ 70.50 -70.96, 70.98 -70.110; see also discussion in 70.10[3][g]].

See also 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

For discussion relating to an attorney's affidavit of fault, see §§ 70.12[2], 70.70[2][c]. For discussion of the Code Civ. Proc. § 587 requirement that all applications for entry of default under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 585(a)-(c) or 586 include a declaration that a copy of the application has been mailed to defendant (or defendant's attorney, if any), see § 70.70[2][d].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore set forth facts describing the erroneous representation made by an officer of the court to the party or his or her attorney, and the circumstances under which it was reasonable for the party or the attorney to rely on that representation (for example, that it was the custom in that particular courtroom for attorneys to rely on oral representations by the court clerk). For discussion of additional facts that should be described, if appropriate, see § 70.98[2][b]. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.210 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reliance on Representations of Officers of Court

In Bodin v. Webb (1936) 17 Cal. App. 2d 422, 62 P.2d 155 , a personal-injury action, default judgment was entered against defendant on the day of trial because neither defendant nor defense counsel appeared. The trial court granted defendant's motion to set aside the default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed (17 Cal. App. 2d 422, 426) . The court rejected plaintiff's argument that although a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is the proper remedy to vacate a default entered for failing to plead to a complaint, the only remedy to vacate a judgment for failure to appear at the trial is a motion for a new trial on the ground of unavoidable accident or surprise. The court noted that the statute provides relief from "a judgment, order, or other proceeding," and that it has been held applicable to judgments entered after trial for failure to appear (17 Cal. App. 2d 422, 424) . The court also rejected plaintiff's contention that the showing in support of the motion was insufficient. The evidence showed that the secretary of the court had assured defense counsel that, because of the congested court calendar, the case would not go to trial on the day set, and that he would reset the matter on a date convenient for the attorney. It also appeared that practicing attorneys relied on the information conveyed to them by the secretary. Moreover, on the following day, the defense attorney telephoned the secretary to ascertain the new trial date, and was told that through inadvertence a default judgment had been entered. The court stated that the power vested in the trial courts by Code Civ. Proc. § 473 should be freely and liberally exercised so that cases may be disposed of on their substantial merits, and to give a party claiming in good faith to have a substantial defense to an action an opportunity to present it. In the absence of a clear abuse of discretion, an appellate court will not disturb a trial court's ruling on a motion under the statute (17 Cal. App. 2d 422, 425) .

In Lynch v. de Boom (1915) 26 Cal. App. 311, 146 P. 908 , plaintiff, an attorney at law, appeared in court without his attorney in response to a court order setting the action for trial on that date. When he called the clerk's attention to the fact that the case was omitted from the court calendar for that day, the clerk informed him that the action would not be tried that day but would be reset for a later date. After plaintiff left the courtroom believing that no action would be taken on that date, the matter was called for trial and, on plaintiff's failure to appear, defendant's motion to dismiss was granted and judgment entered for defendant. Plaintiff's motion to vacate the judgment was denied.

The court of appeal reversed, and stated that the facts concerning plaintiff's conversation with the clerk of the court constituted a prima facie showing of excusable neglect which, in the absence of a counter showing by defendant, should have impelled the lower court to set aside the judgment (26 Cal. App. 311, 314) . The court found that, even if plaintiff was guilty of neglect in not waiting for the judge to appear on the bench to ascertain with certainty that the action would not be tried, it was undisputed that he had in good faith endeavored to ascertain from the clerk the state of the case and was honestly misled by the information he received (26 Cal. App. 311, 314) . The court cited with approval a Montana Supreme Court case based on similar facts, which held that the clerk as a ministerial officer of the court "had the records of the court, and knew its business," and that reliance on statements of the clerk was therefore excusable (26 Cal. App. 311, 315) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.98

§ 70.98 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Justifiable Reliance on Representations of Opposing Counsel

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief from under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see, e.g., §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) ON THE GROUND OF EXCUSABLE NEGLECT ON THE PART OF THE [LEGAL REPRESENTATIVE OF THE] DEFENDANT, IN THAT THE _____ [identify proceeding, e.g., DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT] RESULTED UNAVOIDABLY FROM THE JUSTIFIABLE RELIANCE OF THE [ATTORNEY FOR THE] DEFENDANT ON REPRESENTATIONS OF PLAINTIFF'S COUNSEL.

A. Policy Favors Relief if Excusable Neglect Shown. [See 70.90[1], Paragraphs A and B.]

B. Reliance on Representations of Opposing Counsel. When a defendant fails to file responsive pleadings in a timely manner because of opposing counsel's representations indicating a willingness to further communicate with defendant without obtaining a default or default judgment, he or she is entitled to relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) on the ground of excusable neglect, if the opposing counsel obtains a default or default judgment without defendant's knowledge and while defendant believes none will be entered (Beard v. Beard (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 645, 648, 107 P.2d 385 ; Nelson v. Southerland (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 140, 141-142, 9 Cal. Rptr. 735).

C. Conduct of Both Attorneys Evaluated. An evaluation of an attorney's neglect under Code of Civil Procedure, Section 473(b), involves a consideration of the reasonableness of the defaulting attorney's conduct and of the conduct of the attorney taking the default (Robinson v. Varela (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 611, 615-616, 136 Cal. Rptr. 783).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of excusable neglect, in that the opposing counsel's representations led defendant or defendant's attorney to believe that no default or default judgment (or other applicable court action) would be taken despite defendant's failure to file responsive pleadings in a timely manner, because opposing counsel desired to resolve the matter through negotiations [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); see also Beard v. Beard (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 645, 648, 107 P.2d 385] .

This form should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40]. It may also be combined when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief on other grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see, e.g., §§ 70.50 -70.97, 70.99 -70.110; see also discussion in 70.10[3][g]].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief. For discussion of the Code Civ. Proc. § 587 requirement that all applications for entry of default under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 585(a)-(c) or 586 include a declaration that a copy of the application has been mailed to defendant (or defendant's attorney, if any), see § 70.70[2][d].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore set forth facts describing the substance of opposing counsel's representations, and the context in which they were made, to illustrate the reasonableness of the assumption that a default would not be taken. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Factors Supporting Entitlement to Relief

An issue that sometimes arises in connection with neglect of the moving party's counsel vis-a-vis opposing counsel's conduct is that of the "quiet speed" of opposing counsel in taking the default (for example, the taking of default on the beginning of the first day on which the responsive pleading is delinquent). Some courts have held this conduct to be a valid ground for entitlement to relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), but in finding in favor of the moving party, have done so in the context of additional supporting facts [see, e.g., Robinson v. Varela (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 611, 616, 136 Cal. Rptr. 783 (discussed in § 70.98[3][b])]. Other courts have held that "quiet speed" does not, as a matter of law, require reversal of an order of the trial court refusing to set aside a default [see, e.g., Carrasco v. Craft (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 796, 807, 210 Cal. Rptr. 599 ; Bellm v. Bellia (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 1036, 1038, 198 Cal. Rptr. 389] .

Another related issue with respect to the neglect of moving party's counsel is that of the press of other business, such that he or she was unable to attend adequately to that particular case. Courts have afforded relief on this ground within their discretion (in the absence of an attorney affidavit of fault) only when all the surrounding circumstances of the entry of default justify granting the motion. For example, the granting of relief was affirmed when defendants' attorney, engaged in trial on the date of hearing on plaintiff's motion for summary judgment, arranged for another attorney to appear in his stead to request a continuance; and the substitute attorney, occupied at an earlier hearing, was misinformed by the clerk regarding his ability to appear in time to prevent a default. In that case, defendants' motion to vacate the ensuing judgment was granted on the ground that the attorney's default at the hearing was due to his inadvertence and excusable neglect [see Lynch v. Spilman (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 251, 258, 62 Cal. Rptr. 12, 431 P.2d 636] . However, the attorney's press of other business (in the absence of an attorney affidavit of fault), absent other compelling circumstances, is not a sufficient ground to warrant the granting of relief [see, e.g., Transit Ads, Inc. v. Tanner Motor Livery, Ltd. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 281, 75 Cal. Rptr. 848 (discussed in § 70.212[3])].

Whenever these issues arise, counsel should argue that, when viewed in the context of the primary ground or grounds for relief, they further justify the granting of relief from default.

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.190 et seq. and 70.210 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reliance on Representations of Opposing Counsel

Beard v. Beard (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 645, 107 P.2d 385 , is discussed in § 70.81[3].

In Nelson v. Southerland (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 140, 9 Cal. Rptr. 735 , defendants' attorney sought an extension of time in which to answer the complaint but was informed that defendants' default had been taken prior to receipt of the request for extension. Defendants' attorney later learned that the default was actually entered at a later date, prior to which he had attempted several times to contact plaintiffs' attorney to negotiate a settlement of the case. Defendants' motion to set aside the default and ensuing judgment was granted. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, noting that plaintiffs had failed to show that prejudice resulted from the trial court's order, and that plaintiffs' attorney had failed to advise defendants' attorney that he intended to take defendants' default. The court also noted that, although there was no statutory rule at that time requiring plaintiffs' attorney to notify defendants' attorney that he intended to take a default [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 587 (discussed in § 70.70[2][d])], failure to do so would usually be sufficient ground for setting aside the default under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (187 Cal. App. 2d 140, 142) .

[b] Conduct of Both Attorneys Evaluated

In Robinson v. Varela (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 611, 136 Cal. Rptr. 783 , plaintiff filed an action on a Friday against defendant for unlawful detainer and for damages for breach of a lease. The next day defendant was served with process, and on the following Monday (Christmas week), a copy of the summons and complaint was delivered to the law office representing defendant. On the Wednesday of that week, defendant's attorney contacted the law firm representing plaintiff to obtain an extension of time in which to answer. Plaintiff's attorney was not present, and no one else would grant the extension. On the following Monday, defense counsel again attempted to reach plaintiff's attorney, and discovered at that time that plaintiff had just filed for default. Less than two weeks later, following a hearing on default, a default judgment was entered against defendant. Eleven days later, defendant sought to have the judgment vacated, alleging by motion under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), that the judgment was taken as a result of attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect. The trial court granted the motion, and set aside the default. Plaintiff appealed, contending that there was no showing that the neglect of defendant's attorney in failing to file an answer was excusable.

The court of appeal affirmed, stating that an evaluation of an attorney's neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 involves a consideration of the reasonableness of the defaulting attorney's conduct and of the conduct of the attorney taking the default (67 Cal. App. 3d 611, 615-616) . The court noted that, because the law looks with disfavor on a party who attempts to take advantage of his or her adversary, the "quiet speed" of plaintiff's counsel in seeking a default has been deemed a sufficient ground for setting aside a default under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (67 Cal. App. 3d 611, 616) . The court stated that whether it characterized the conduct of defendant's counsel as reasonable, or the conduct of plaintiff's counsel as unreasonable, the result is the same under the "peculiar factual context" of the case before it. The court held that given the short period of time in which an answer had to be filed (five days under Code Civ. Proc. § 1167.3), the press of business at defense counsel's office arising from the illness of the chief trial attorney, the limited office hours during Christmas week, and defense counsel's preoccupation with other litigated matters, it might be found that the failure to file a timely answer or a request for an extension to file an answer was excusable (67 Cal. App. 3d 611, 616) . On the other hand, it held, it might also have been found that reliance on opposing counsel to give notice prior to taking default was justifiable, or contrariwise, that the quiet taking of default on the beginning of the first day on which defendant's answer was delinquent was the sort of professional discourtesy that justifies vacating the default. In either case, the court stated, given the broad discretion with which the court was vested in making its determination under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), and the policy favoring orders that permit a hearing on the merits, it concluded that the trial court acted well within its discretion in setting aside the default judgment (67 Cal. App. 3d 611, 616) . The court also held that defendant did not unreasonably delay in applying for relief as a matter of law (67 Cal. App. 3d 611, 617) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.99

§ 70.99 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Calendaring Error by Party's Attorney

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see, e.g., §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) ON THE GROUND THAT IT WAS ENTERED BECAUSE OF EXCUSABLE NEGLECT ON THE PART OF THE DEFENDANT'S ATTORNEY, IN THAT THE _____ [identify proceeding, e.g., DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT] RESULTED FROM HIS/HER EXCUSABLE CALENDARING ERROR.

A. Policy Favors Relief if Excusable Neglect Shown. [See 70.90[1], Paragraphs A and B.]

B. Calendaring Error of Attorney or Attorney's Office Staff. Relief from default and default judgment may be granted when the default resulted from a calendaring error by the defaulting party's attorney or that attorney's office staff if the error is reasonable and sufficiently explained (Flores v. Board of Supervisors (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 480, 483, 91 Cal. Rptr. 717).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of excusable neglect, in that it was caused by an excusable calendaring error made by the moving party's attorney or the office staff of the moving party's attorney [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); see also Flores v. Board of Supervisors (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 480, 483, 91 Cal. Rptr. 717] .

This form should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40]. It may also be combined when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief on other grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see, e.g., §§ 70.50 -70.98, 70.100 -70.110; see also discussion in § 70.10[3][g]].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

For discussion relating to an attorney's affidavit of fault, see §§ 70.12[2], 70.70[2][c].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore set forth facts describing the reasonableness of the attorney's calendaring error in light of the surrounding circumstances. For example, if appropriate, counsel should describe the complexity of the litigation and the proliferation of calendar dates, and the resulting confusion to the attorney for the moving party. For discussion of additional facts that should be described, if appropriate, see § 70.98[2][c]. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.210 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Calendaring Errors of Attorney or Attorney's Office Staff

In Flores v. Board of Supervisors (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 480, 91 Cal. Rptr. 717 , the trial court denied a petition for relief under Gov. Code § 946.6 from the tardy filing of a tort claim against a county under Gov. Code § 911.2 (requiring at that time that claims against government entities for death or injury be presented within 100 days of the accrual of the case of action). Attorneys for petitioners admitted that the lateness of the claim was due to the failure of the attorneys to open a file in the action, which would have reminded them of the limitation for filing petitioners' claim against the county. Their oversight was compounded by difficulties they encountered in obtaining copies of relevant hospital records to aid in preparing petitioners' claim.

The court of appeal reversed, noting that the showing required of a petitioner seeking relief under Gov. Code § 946.6 on the grounds of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect is the same as that required under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), for relieving a party from a default or default judgment (13 Cal. App. 3d 480, 483) . The court cited an earlier appellate case that reviewed cases of attorney neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 and declared that, although not every mistake of an attorney constitutes excusable neglect, calendar errors by an attorney or his or her staff are, in appropriate circumstances, excusable (13 Cal. App. 3d 480, 483-484) . The court distinguished cases relied on by the county to oppose petitioners' motion, pointing out that relief was denied in those actions because allegations of inadvertence and neglect were insufficiently explained (13 Cal. App. 3d 480, 484) . Petitioners in the instant case had taken every action to present their claim within the time permitted and only a "relatively minor error" by their counsel prevented litigation of their claim. In view of the case law, and because the county made no showing of prejudice to it due to the late filing of the claim, the court reversed the order denying relief to petitioners, commenting that the fact that the delay involved in filing the claim was only 23 days deserved special emphasis (13 Cal. App. 3d 480, 485) .

Counsel should note that Flores was criticized in Shank v. County of Los Angeles (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 152, 188 Cal. Rptr. 644 , regarding the relevance of the absence of prejudice to the county defendant. The court in Shank stated that Flores ignores the rule that a public entity has no burden to establish prejudice until the plaintiff has satisfied the trial court that the failure to file a timely claim was because of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect (139 Cal. App. 3d 152, 158-159) . The conflict is not important in the context of a motion under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), as distinct from a proceeding for relief pursuant to the Government Code against a public entity (the case under both Flores and Shank). The holding under Flores regarding an attorney's calendaring error as a ground for relief because of excusable neglect is relevant to relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), because the grounds for relief under that statute are the same as those under the relevant Government Code regarding actions against public entities, and courts look to authority under both codes in determining the appropriateness of particular grounds for relief [see, e.g., Flores v. Board of Supervisors (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 480, 483, 91 Cal. Rptr. 717] .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Calendaring Errors of Attorney or Attorney's Office Staff

In Nilsson v. City of Los Angeles (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 976, 58 Cal. Rptr. 20 , the court of appeal reversed the trial court's denial of relief to a claimant under the Tort Claims Act (Gov. Code § 900 et seq.), based on a calendaring error made by the claimant's attorney (249 Cal. App. 2d 976, 979-983) . The court stated that the basis for relief under Gov. Code § 912 is the same as that required under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, which has been applied with liberality in relieving parties from a default judgment (249 Cal. App. 2d 976, 979) .

In Taliaferro v. Riddle (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 235, 5 Cal. Rptr. 874 , the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's granting of defendant's motion to set aside the default and default judgment, basing its decision on affidavits of defendant's attorneys, which described the attorneys' confusion because of the number and complexity of the proceedings between the parties. The court noted that the "litigious history" of plaintiff's disputes with defendant supported the claim that the confusion of defendant's attorneys was not unreasonable, particularly in light of earlier cases cited by the court in which relief was granted in "less complex" circumstances (182 Cal. App. 2d 235, 236-237) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.100

§ 70.100 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Exception for Inexcusable Neglect of Attorney That Constitutes Positive Misconduct

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief from under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see, e.g., §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) BECAUSE THE NEGLECT ON THE PART OF THE DEFENDANT'S ATTORNEY AMOUNTED TO POSITIVE MISCONDUCT, THROUGH NO FAULT OF DEFENDANT.

A. Policy Favors Relief if Excusable Neglect Shown. [See 70.90[1], Paragraphs A and B.]

B. Attorney's Neglect Amounting to Positive Misconduct. Relief from default and default judgment may be granted when the default resulted from neglect of the moving party's attorney even though the neglect is inexcusable, if the neglect is of that extreme degree amounting to positive misconduct, and the person seeking relief is relatively free from negligence (Buckert v. Briggs (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 296, 301, 93 Cal. Rptr. 61).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of excusable neglect. The ground of the contention is that although the moving party's attorney committed inexcusable neglect, his or her conduct was so extreme that it amounts to positive misconduct, constituting an exception to the rule that excusable neglect must be shown, so long as the moving party is relatively free of negligence in causing the default to be taken [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); see also Buckert v. Briggs (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 296, 301, 93 Cal. Rptr. 61] .

This form should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40]. It may also be combined when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief on other grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see, e.g., §§ 70.50 -70.99, 70.110; see also discussion in 70.10[3][g]].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

For discussion relating to an attorney's affidavit of fault, see §§ 70.12[2], 70.70[2][c].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore describe the conduct of the attorney whose neglect caused the default to be taken, and show that it is extreme enough to be classified as positive misconduct, and that it effected an obliteration of the attorney-client relationship. Counsel should also describe the moving party's conduct with respect to the default, and show why he or she was not negligent or blameworthy under the circumstances. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.215 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney's Neglect Amounting to Positive Misconduct

Buckert v. Briggs (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 296, 93 Cal. Rptr. 61 , involved a complaint and cross complaint to quiet title to an easement over property owned by plaintiffs. The action was set for trial, but plaintiffs' attorney failed to appear or to notify plaintiffs of the trial date, and judgment was entered against the plaintiffs on defendant's cross complaint. Plaintiffs contacted the trial judge, who stated that Code Civ. Proc. § 473 would provide a method for seeking relief from the default and that plaintiffs had six months in which to act. Plaintiffs sought to engage a new attorney, but had difficulty in raising funds with which to pay the attorney's retainer and in obtaining the cooperation of the original attorney. Consequently, they did not move for relief until some five months after the judgment was entered. Based on the appellate court's references to the six-month limit of Code Civ. Proc. § 473, it would appear that plaintiffs' motion was founded on that section, although the court indicated that "[r]elief may be given in the action in which the judgment was entered in the exercise of the court's equitable jurisdiction or under the authority statutorily conferred by Code of Civil Procedure Section 473" (15 Cal. App. 3d 296, 301) . The trial court granted the motion, and defendant and cross complainant appealed, arguing that there was no showing that plaintiffs' attorney's failure to give notice of the trial was excusable and that the application for relief was not made within a reasonable time.

The court of appeal affirmed, stating that the attorney's failure to advise the plaintiffs of the trial date constituted positive misconduct such that his negligence would not be imputed to plaintiffs; and plaintiffs' failure to attend the trial was therefore the product of extrinsic surprise and mistake without negligence on their part. The court noted that relief granted to a party for his or her attorney's extreme negligence is "premised on the concept that the attorney's conduct, in effect, obliterates the existence of the attorney-client relationship" and therefore the negligence should not be imputed to the client. Plaintiffs' attorney failed to appear on plaintiffs' behalf because he believed, without cause, that they had lost interest in the case. This, the court said, supported the inference that he regarded the attorney-client relationship to have been discharged and that he did not intend to act on their behalf, despite the fact that plaintiffs had requested that the case be tried as soon as possible (15 Cal. App. 3d 296 , 301-302). Further, the court held that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in finding that plaintiffs had acted with reasonable diligence under the circumstances, particularly because there was no showing that defendant had suffered prejudice by the delay other than that incident to a trial of the issues, which is not cause for denying relief from default (15 Cal. App. 3d 296, 302) . The court noted that when there is no showing that the party opposing the motion to vacate a judgment has suffered any prejudice or that injustice will result from a trial on the merits, very slight evidence is required to justify the court in setting a default aside (15 Cal. App. 3d 296, 302-303) .

Counsel should note that the court in Mitchell v. Department of Transportation (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1016, 210 Cal. Rptr. 266 , a case that distinguished itself from Buckert, and declined to allow a claimant under the Torts Claims Act (Gov. Code § 900 et seq.) to file a late claim, observed that the factual circumstances in cases that fall within the "positive misconduct" exception demonstrate a "total failure on the part of counsel to represent the client to the extent that each attorney had de facto substituted himself out of the case" (163 Cal. App. 3d 1016, 1023) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Attorney's Neglect Amounting to Positive Misconduct

In Daley v. County of Butte (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 380, 38 Cal. Rptr. 693 , the court of appeal reversed a trial court order denying plaintiff's motion to set aside a judgment of dismissal granted by the court for lack of prosecution of the action. Evidence showed gross negligence on the part of plaintiff's attorney in that he maintained almost complete silence and inactivity in the action for some two years, failing to make any appearance in numerous pretrial conferences, and failing to cooperate with the client's attempt to substitute in another attorney. The court held that under these circumstances, a client who was unknowingly deprived of effective representation will not be charged with responsibility for the misconduct of her nominal counsel of record (227 Cal. App. 2d 380, 391-392) .

In Vartanian v. Croll (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 639, 256 P.2d 1022 , the trial court granted plaintiff's motion (on grounds of mistake, inadvertence, excusable neglect, and fraud) to set aside a judgment rendered after a trial on the merits in favor of defendant. The ground of excusable neglect was based on negligence of the moving party's first counsel to produce available evidence. The court noted that although that conduct alone would not usually warrant relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, the omission of that evidence constituted a miscarriage of justice, and together with other irregularities of the case, warranted relief as an exception to the general rule that a client is chargeable with his or her attorney's negligence (117 Cal. App. 2d 639, 644-648) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.101-70.109

[Reserved]

§§ 70.101[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.110

§ 70.110 Supporting Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Fraud of Opposing Party

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see, e.g., §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) BECAUSE THE _____ [identify proceeding, e.g., DEFAULT] WAS CAUSED BY FRAUD ON THE PART OF THE OPPOSING PARTY.

Statutory Relief Based on Fraud. Relief from default and default judgment is available under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) if the default was caused by the fraud of the opposing party, based on either extrinsic or intrinsic fraud, and relief is sought within the time limitations set forth in the statute (Batchelor v. Finn (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 410, 417-418, 337 P.2d 545 ; In re Johnson (1908) 7 Cal. App. 436, 439, 94 P. 592).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of fraud [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); see also Batchelor v. Finn (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 410, 417, 337 P.2d 545] .

This form should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see §§ 70.10, 70.30, 70.40]. It may also be combined when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief on other grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see, e.g., §§ 70.50 -70.100; see also discussion in 70.10[3][g]].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore describe the circumstances under which the default was taken, for example, perjured testimony given at the default hearing on behalf of the opposing party, and show why the default or default judgment was the result of fraud on the part of the opposing party. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Relief Based on Opposing Party's Fraud

[i] Generally

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), does not specifically mention fraud as a basis for relief, case law has established that relief is available under the statute for fraud [see, e.g., In re Johnson (1908) 7 Cal. App. 436, 439, 94 P. 592 ; see also Witkin, California Procedure, Vol. 8, Attack on Judgment in Trial Court, § 148 (3d ed. 1985)]. Relief is available under the statute for either extrinsic or intrinsic fraud, if the application for relief is brought within the time limitations of the statute [In re Johnson (1908) 7 Cal. App. 436, 439, 94 P. 592 (discussed under [3], below)].

[ii] Extrinsic and Intrinsic Fraud Distinguished

Fraud is intrinsic when a party has been given proper notice of an action and has not been prevented from full participation, even though he or she does not take the opportunity to appear before the court [Westphal v. Westphal (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 393, 397, 126 P.2d 105] . Thus, use of perjured testimony or forged documents, or the withholding of evidence from the court constitute intrinsic fraud [see Gale v. Witt (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 362, 366, 188 P.2d 755 ; Buesa v. City of Los Angeles (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1537, 1545-1548, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 86].

Fraud is extrinsic when it deprives the unsuccessful party of an opportunity to present his or her case to the court, such as when a party is kept in ignorance of a proceeding or has been prevented by the adversary's actions from fully participating. Examples of extrinsic fraud are keeping one's opponent away from court with a false promise of compromise, or depriving defendant of knowledge of the suit [see Caldwell v. Taylor (1933) 218 Cal. 471, 476-477, 23 P.2d 758] .

[iii] Alternate Relief Available When Fraud Is Extrinsic

If the fraud is extrinsic, equitable relief is also available, in which case the restrictions set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 473 generally do not apply [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Adkins (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 68, 76, 186 Cal. Rptr. 818] . The availability of relief under the court's equitable powers is significant particularly because the statutory six-month time limitation does not apply. For memoranda of points and authorities supporting a motion for equitable relief based on extrinsic fraud, see § 70.480 et seq.

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.147 and 70.148 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statutory Relief Based on Fraud

Batchelor v. Finn (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 410, 337 P.2d 545 , involved two consolidated actions based on the sale of an airplane. One of the actions resulted in a default judgment for plaintiff. At the default hearing in that case, plaintiff, who was the only witness, deliberately withheld information regarding the underlying written agreement. The trial court granted defendants' motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 to vacate the default judgment, on the ground that the suppression of evidence was a fraud on the court and on the defendants. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, finding that the trial court's conclusion that plaintiff had committed a fraud on the court was reasonable, in that circumstances pointed to deliberate suppression. The court observed that the trial court would probably not have found for the plaintiff had it known the terms of the concealed agreement (169 Cal. App. 2d 410, 416) . The court noted that when a trial court in a proper proceeding vacates a judgment it has rendered in ignorance of material facts that it believes a party had a duty to disclose, and that, if known, would have precluded the judgment, the appellate court will not question the action. The court stated that the fact that the fraud perpetrated on the court was intrinsic rather than extrinsic is immaterial on a motion to vacate made within six months, as was the instant case (169 Cal. App. 2d 410, 417) .

In re Johnson (1908) 7 Cal. App. 436, 94 P. 592 , involved an order confirming the sale of stocks by the executrix of an estate. The superior court vacated the order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 on the challenge of an heir of the estate that the sale at a disproportionately low price was a fraud on the estate of the heir. The prospective buyer of the stock brought a petition for writ of review, questioning whether the superior court had jurisdiction to grant the relief.

The court of appeal dismissed the writ of review, holding that the superior court did have jurisdiction and that it had properly exercised discretion in the case (7 Cal. App. 436, 438-439) . The court noted that equity will grant relief after the time limitation imposed by Code Civ. Proc. § 473 has expired, if extrinsic fraud is alleged (7 Cal. App. 436, 439) . The court stated, however, that in applying for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 within the statutory time limits, no distinction will be made between extrinsic or other fraud. Fraud or "its equivalent," whether on the court or a party or "one so situated as to be held in law an adversary," is sufficient ground for relief (7 Cal. App. 436, 439) . On the facts of the case, however, the court held that the buyer had no standing to invoke a review of the order vacating the confirmation of sale, in that the executrix had earlier rescinded the contract of sale, leaving the buyer with no interest in the property at issue (7 Cal. App. 436, 439) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Statutory Relief Based on Fraud

In Peterson v. Peterson (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 812, 288 P.2d 171 , plaintiff husband had obtained, ex parte, a final decree of divorce. Defendant's motion to set aside that decree, made nearly six years later, was granted on the ground that plaintiff had committed fraud in concealing from the court the fact that the parties had reconciled prior to entry of the final decree. Plaintiff successfully moved under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 to vacate the order setting aside the final decree on the ground of defendant's fraud in falsely testifying that the parties had reconciled, and plaintiff's excusable neglect in failing to produce certain evidence at the hearing on defendant's motion that would have demonstrated the fraud. The court of appeal affirmed, noting that it is a "well-recognized principle" that a court of general jurisdiction has inherent power to set aside a judgment obtained through fraud practiced on the court (135 Cal. App. 2d 812, 816) . If the fraud is intrinsic and time for appeal has expired, the party seeking relief must make application under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 within six months after judgment (135 Cal. App. 2d 812, 816) . The court noted that when the motion for relief on the ground of fraud is made under the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 473, it is immaterial if the fraud is extrinsic or intrinsic (135 Cal. App. 2d 812, 817) .

In Rice v. Rice (1949) 93 Cal. App. 2d 646, 209 P.2d 662 , the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's granting of plaintiff's motion under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), for relief, on the ground of fraud, from an interlocutory decree of divorce. The court held that fraud is recognized as a ground for relief under the statute, and that the trial court properly found that the defendant committed fraud in connection with the classification of certain real property as separate, rather than community property (93 Cal. App. 2d 646, 651-652) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.111-70.119

[Reserved]

§§ 70.111[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.120

§ 70.120 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form--Relief Is Subject to Court's Sound Discretion

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION
vs.	)	TO SET ASIDE _____ [DEFAULT
_____ [name],	)	AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or Defendant.	)	DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____
	)	(identify other proceeding)]
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
		[Judge: _____]
		Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE THE MOTION IS NOT SUPPORTED BY ANY SUFFICIENT GROUND UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) AND THE COURT THEREFORE HAS NO DISCRETION TO GRANT RELIEF.

A. Relief Pursuant to Trial Court's Discretion. A motion under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) is addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court (Iott v. Franklin (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 521, 527, 253 Cal. Rptr. 635 ; Gardner v. Superior Court (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 335, 338, 227 Cal. Rptr. 78).

B. Court Has No Discretion to Grant Relief When Ground for Relief Not Shown. If a party fails to show that a judgment has been taken against him or her through mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, the court may not grant relief; it has no discretion in the matter (Iott v. Franklin (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 521, 528, 253 Cal. Rptr. 635).

C. Burden of Proof on Moving Party. The burden of showing that the default was entered through mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect is on the moving party, and in the absence of that showing, the default may not be set aside (Luz v. Lopes (1960) 55 Cal. 2d 54, 62, 10 Cal. Rptr. 161, 358 P.2d 289 ; Moghaddam v. Bone (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 283, 289-292, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 602 ; Price v. Hibbs (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 209, 216, 37 Cal. Rptr. 270).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing the motion on additional, general grounds, for example, that the mistake was not reasonable (see, e.g., § 70.121 et seq.). In addition, when appropriate, add points and authorities opposing the motion on additional particular grounds, for example, that motion is not timely (see, e.g., § 70.140 et seq.), or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted (see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.216). Additional points and authorities may be also be added, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief (see, e.g., § 70.230 et seq.).]

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[opposing party]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). It is a general form that asserts that the moving party has failed to set forth a ground of relief under the statute, and that the trial court therefore has no discretion to grant the relief requested [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); see also Iott v. Franklin (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 521, 528, 253 Cal. Rptr. 635] .

The caption and form should be modified as necessary when relief is sought from the entry of default only, as distinguished from the entry of default and a resulting default judgment. Although a party typically seeks relief under

Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), from a default or default judgment, or both, a court may grant relief under that section from any "judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding." This form may be modified, as appropriate, for use in opposing the grant of relief in situations other than a default and default judgment.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.10 -70.41.

When appropriate, this form may be combined with the following points and authorities generally opposing the motion for relief, on the following grounds:

- The motion should be denied based on policy [see, e.g., § 70.121[1]].
- The mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect was not reasonable [see, e.g., § 70.122[1]].
- The moving party failed to exercise reasonable diligence in arranging for his or her defense [see, e.g., § 70.123[1]].
- An attorney's negligence is imputed to the client [see, e.g., § 70.124[1]].
- The moving party's argument that he or she has a meritorious defense is irrelevant [see, e.g., § 70.125[1]].

This form should be combined with additional points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that:

- The motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148].
- The moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.216; see also discussion in 70.10[2][g]].

This form may also be combined, in an appropriate case, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of relief based on other statutory or decisional authority, when the motion and supporting memorandum has asserted such additional authority as alternate bases for relief [see discussion in § 70.10[2][c]]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should show that defendant had no reasonable excuse for the default, and that the circumstances surrounding the default indicate that the court has no discretion to grant relief.

In an appropriate case, counsel would refer to evidence set forth in:

- Declarations submitted in opposition to relief from the judgment, order, or dismissal [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1306(a)].

- Discovery documents, such as deposition transcripts and answers to interrogatories and requests for admission.

- The opposing party's pleadings that constitute admissions.

- Other documentary evidence generally.

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion"), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702].

When counsel cites facts in his or her argument, counsel should refer to the particular page and line number of the declaration, deposition transcript, or other document, that contains the cited facts. In addition, the relevant portion of any testimony in a deposition should be marked in a manner that calls attention to the testimony [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1116(c)].

For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice and affidavits and declaration, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

The granting of relief is mandatory if based on an attorney affidavit of fault. Specifically, whenever an application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect, the court must vacate any resulting default judgment or dismissal entered against his or her client unless the court finds that the default or dismissal was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. However, an attorney's affidavit of fault does not mandate relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) from judgments entered on an arbitration award [Brown v. Williams (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 182, 188-189, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 634 ; see § 70.131].

Further, notwithstanding the mandatory nature of the provision, a court may deny relief on the ground of lack of causation between the attorney's conduct and the taking of the default [see Billings v. Health Plan of America (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 250, 256, 275 Cal. Rptr. 80] . A court may also deny relief based on lack of diligence when relief is sought within the six month period but beyond a date the court considers reasonable [see Caldwell v. Methodist Hospital (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1521, 1524-1525, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 894 (court rejected motion for relief based on attorney's affidavit of fault filed three months after action was dismissed)]. Caldwell relied on Billings in so holding, and did not discuss the possible effect of the amendment of Section 473 on Billings, as discussed in § 70.12[3][a].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Relief Pursuant to Trial Court's Discretion

In Iott v. Franklin (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 521, 253 Cal. Rptr. 635 , defendants' attorney allegedly attempted by mail to contact plaintiff's attorney prior to the deadline for filing a responsive pleading. A letter allegedly sent to plaintiff's attorney was not accompanied by a declaration of mailing, and there was no showing that plaintiff's attorney received it prior to the deadline. Shortly after the time for filing responsive pleading had elapsed, plaintiff's attorney prepared a request to enter default, and mailed copies to all defendants. At approximately the same time that the plaintiff's attorney filed the request with the court clerk, the defendants' attorney telephoned the office of the plaintiff's attorney and left a message requesting an extension; he also wrote a letter to that effect. At the default hearing, plaintiff presented evidence, and judgment was entered in his favor. Several weeks later, defendants filed a motion to set aside the default and default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, on the ground of excusable neglect. The trial court granted the motion, and plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that the trial court abused its discretion in granting the motion (206 Cal. App. 3d 521, 531) . The court initially noted that trial judges are presumed to be intelligent, honest, and fair-minded individuals. Within the limit of the power to grant relief from default under the statute, it must be exercised wisely, reasonably, and fairly, with the view of advancing the administration of justice. The court added that these policies favoring relief from default and deference to trial court discretion do not transform appellate courts into mere spectators. However strong the preference for a trial on the merits, there are limits to that preference, and however great is trial court discretion, there are bounds to that discretion (206 Cal. App. 3d 521, 527) . The court stated: "[I]f a party shows that a judgment has been taken against him through his mistake, inadvertence, surprise or excusable neglect the court may grant relief. Or it may not. It has discretion. But if a party fails to show that a judgment has been taken against him through his mistake, inadvertence, surprise or excusable neglect, the court may not grant relief. It has no discretion." The court further stated that "excusable" neglect means just that: inexcusable neglect prevents relief. Moreover, the burden of establishing excusable neglect is on the party seeking relief, who must prove it by a preponderance of the evidence (206 Cal. App. 3d 521, 528) . The court noted that, under the facts shown, the defendants' failure to respond in time was founded on his counsel's premise that he could unilaterally grant his own extension without any communication from opposing counsel (206 Cal. App. 3d 521, 529) . The court concluded that a litigant who fails to attend court on the day of trial for the simple reason that he or she believes the attorney will succeed in securing a continuance cannot claim either mistake or surprise, within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 if a continuance is refused. The court added that it would be absurd to countenance or encourage unilateral, self-created extensions of time. Consequently, an attorney who assumes that opposing counsel has granted extensions of time to file an answer because, in an effort to request the extensions, he has placed telephone calls to but not spoken with, and written letters to but not received answers from opposing counsel, is guilty of inexcusable neglect within the meaning of the statute. Under such circumstances, the court concluded, it is an abuse of discretion for a trial court to grant relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473. The court further stated that to hold otherwise would permit the courts to become a sanctuary for chronic procrastination and irresponsibility on the part of either litigants or their attorneys. It would also thwart vital policies that favor getting cases to trial on time, avoiding unnecessary and prejudicial delay, and preventing litigants from "playing fast and loose" with the pertinent legal rules and procedures. The court concluded that when inexcusable neglect is condoned even tacitly by the courts, they themselves unwittingly become instruments undermining the orderly process of the law (206 Cal. App. 3d 521, 531) .

In Gardner v. Superior Court (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 335, 227 Cal. Rptr. 78 , plaintiff brought suit in San Diego, California, against defendant residents of Montana for an unpaid principal balance on a promissory note. Defendants answered, but failed to appear for depositions or at the trial setting conference. Defendants claimed only that they did not wish to travel from Montana to San Diego, and that defendant wife was ill. At trial, defendants again did not appear; an attorney made a special appearance on their behalf, asking for a continuance, claiming only that defendant wife was ill. The trial court denied the continuance, and entered a default judgment in favor of plaintiff. A month later, defendants noticed a motion for relief from default pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473. Defendants filed various declarations, claiming only that defendant wife had been ill with bronchitis, and that the roads in Montana at that time of year were usually icy and often closed by snow. The trial court granted the motion for default relief against its opinion that defendants "haven't got a prayer," only because it felt compelled to grant relief or be reversed by the appellate court. Plaintiff sought a writ of mandate to set aside the order vacating the default judgment.

The court of appeal ordered that a writ of mandate issue directing the trial court to vacate the judgment setting aside the default, and to exercise informed discretion in deciding the matter. The court of appeal viewed the trial court's comments as inappropriate to a determination of whether or not to set aside a default. The court of appeal noted that a policy of the law favors deciding cases on their merits. It further stated, however, that other policies favor getting cases to trial on time, avoiding unnecessary and prejudicial delay, and preventing litigants from "playing fast and loose" with the pertinent legal rules and procedures. Inasmuch as relief has been denied when a party's neglect is truly inexcusable, it should not be assumed that relief will automatically be given. Rather, the task of the trial court is to use its discretion in determining whether or not relief from default should be given (182 Cal. App. 3d 335, 338-341) .

[b] Court Has No Discretion to Grant Relief When Ground for Relief Not Shown

Iott v. Franklin (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 521, 253 Cal. Rptr. 635 , is discussed under [a], above.

[c] Burden of Proof on Moving Party

In Luz v. Lopes (1960) 55 Cal. 2d 54, 10 Cal. Rptr. 161, 358 P.2d 289 , the trial court denied defendants' motion to set aside a default and default judgment. Immediately after serving the complaint on defendants, plaintiffs agreed to a settlement, stipulating that failure to comply with its terms would result in plaintiffs' proceeding for the relief demanded in their complaint. Defendants defaulted within a month of agreeing to the settlement, and plaintiffs demanded in writing that defendants answer within 10 days. Instead of answering, defendants asked plaintiffs to allow them more time, stating that they would soon have the necessary funds to pay plaintiffs. Plaintiffs responded that further cooperation was impossible and that they would pursue their legal remedies. Three weeks later, plaintiffs obtained entry of default; three days after that date, a default judgment was entered. Defendants appealed the denial of their motion for relief under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)).

The Supreme Court affirmed, finding that defendants had not been misled and that their default was not excusable. The Court stated that it is the duty of every party desiring to resist an action or to participate in a judicial proceeding to take timely and adequate steps to retain counsel or to act to avoid an undesirable judgment. The court also stated that unless in arranging for his or her defense the party exercises such reasonable diligence as a person of ordinary prudence usually bestows on important business, a motion for relief under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), will be denied; courts do not act as guardian for incompetent parties, or for those who are grossly careless of their own affairs. It added that the burden of proof on the motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is on the moving party, who must establish his or her position by a preponderance of the evidence. The court noted that in the case before it, the affidavits and testimony show that immediately after serving the complaint on defendants, plaintiffs conditionally agreed to a settlement, but warned that failure to comply with its terms would result in their proceeding for the relief demanded (55 Cal. 2d 54, 62) . The Court found that the facts do not show any mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect under the statute, in that the defendants were aware of the facts regarding plaintiffs' intention to pursue their rights if necessary, and were not misled. Therefore, the trial court was justified in refusing to set aside the default or default judgment (55 Cal. 2d 54, 63) .

In Moghaddam v. Bone (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 283, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 602 , plaintiff and defendants disputed their relative obligations under a car lease. After defendants did not answer the complaint, the trial court entered default judgment in favor of plaintiff. The defendants moved to set aside the default on the grounds of extrinsic fraud or mistake, claiming they were not served with the summons and complaint nor did they receive notice of the default prove up hearing. The court then set aside the default based on defendants' unopposed claim of extrinsic fraud/mistake. Plaintiff then moved the court to abandon its decision to vacate the default judgment on the grounds that he did not receive notice of the defendants' motion to set aside. The trial court revisited the motion to set aside and reaffirmed its previous ruling (142 Cal. App. 4th, 283, 286) .

The court of appeal reversed both the order setting aside the default and the trial court's affirmation of that ruling. The court held first that the order setting aside the default judgment was void, because service of papers to an incorrect address was not acceptable notice, and both of plaintiff's addresses to which defendants sent notice contained incorrect zip codes. Thus, plaintiff was never given proper notice of the motion to set aside the court's previous judgment (142 Cal. App. 4th 283, 288-289 & n.4). The court then held that, although the burden of proof rested with the defendants as the moving party of the motion being reconsidered and the trial court properly placed the burden of proving a meritorious defense on the defendants as the moving party, it later misplaced the burden of proof on plaintiff regarding the other elements required to set aside the default and concluded that plaintiff failed to meet his burden of proof (142 Cal. App. 4th 283, 289-292) .

In Price v. Hibbs (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 209, 37 Cal. Rptr. 270 , service of summons and plaintiffs' complaint was made on defendant on March 25. Apparently, defendant did not believe he had been served on this date, and for some reason not explained in the supporting declarations, thought he had been served either two, three, or four weeks after this date. In any case his default was entered on April 25, one day after the expiration of the time to file a responsive pleading. On May 2, defendant's attorneys received the complaint, which defendant had forwarded to them. On May 28 the attorneys filed a motion to vacate the default, supported by responsive pleadings and declarations by the defendant and the attorneys concerning defendant's mistaken belief regarding the time of service. The trial court denied the motion, and defendant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed (225 Cal. App. 2d 209, 223) . The court stated that the burden of showing that the default was entered through mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect is on the moving party, and in the absence of that showing, the default may not be set aside (225 Cal. App. 2d 209, 216) . The court noted that the trial court's order involves two aspects: a question of fact regarding the date of service; and the question whether, the facts being as impliedly found, the trial court abused its discretion in upholding the strict letter of the law with respect to the default (225 Cal. App. 2d 209, 216-217) . The court stated that the mislaying of process, forgetfulness, or intentional disregard of service does not constitute mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (225 Cal. App. 2d 209, 217) . The court concluded that under the facts, it is compelled to affirm the trial court's exercise of discretion (225 Cal. App. 2d 209, 218) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Relief Pursuant to Trial Court's Discretion

Beeman v. Burling (1990) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1586, 265 Cal. Rptr. 719 , is discussed in § 70.210[3][b].

Martin v. Johnson (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 595, 151 Cal. Rptr. 816 , is discussed in § 70.162.

In A & B Metal Products v. MacArthur Properties, Inc. (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 642, 89 Cal. Rptr. 873 , the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's denial of defendant's motion seeking relief from a default and default judgment entered against it. The court held, inter alia, that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying the motion because no mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect was shown in support of the grant of relief (11 Cal. App. 3d 642, 648-650) .

In Stevens v. Stevens (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 426, 74 Cal. Rptr. 54 , the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's denial of plaintiff's motion to set aside an entry of default and interlocutory judgment of divorce, which was entered at the plaintiff's request based on an incorporated property settlement agreement. The plaintiff contended in support of the motion that defendant's subsequent bankruptcy proceeding rendered the property settlement agreement fraudulent, and that her reliance on the defendant's representations constituted mistake and excusable neglect within the meaning of former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)). The court stated that it is a settled principle of law that motions for relief under the remedial provisions of the statute are addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court, and that the trial court had not abused its discretion in denying relief when the evidence did not sustain any ground for relief under the statute, in that the plaintiff was at all relevant times fully aware of the defendant's precarious financial condition (268 Cal. App. 2d 426, 429-436) .

In Robinson v. Robinson (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 213, 25 Cal. Rptr. 143 , the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's denial of relief to the plaintiff in a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, following a default judgment entered against the plaintiff based on a cross complaint in a divorce action. The court stated that it is a settled principle of law that motions for relief under the remedial provisions of the statute are addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court, and that the trial court was fully justified in denying relief inasmuch as the affidavits supporting the motion were in conflict, and the court readily could draw the reasonable inference that there was no mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect on the plaintiff's part (208 Cal. App. 2d 213, 221) .

[b] Court Has No Discretion to Grant Relief When Ground for Relief Not Shown

In Schwab v. So. Calif. Gas Co. (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 1308, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 627 , after being severely burned in an explosion and fire in a building in which the husband was working, the plaintiffs, husband and wife, sued the company that had installed a plastic water main under the alleyway behind the building that had caused a steel gas line to explode, the gas company, an electric company, a city and other defendants for personal injuries and loss of consortium. The gas company, electric company and city cross-complained against the company that had installed the water main. Before the lawsuits, that company had filed for bankruptcy and its corporate status had been suspended by the Franchise Tax Board. The company never responded to the complaint or cross-complaints and its insurers denied coverage and never intervened in the action. After plaintiffs settled their claims against the gas company, the electric company, the city, and other parties, plaintiffs and cross-complainants applied for default judgments against the company. The plaintiffs and the gas company personally served a statement of damages on the company. The plaintiffs' statement set forth the amounts of general and special damages each plaintiff sought. The court entered the default in favor of the plaintiffs 15 days after the statement was served and entered a default judgment more than three years later in an aggregate amount less than the amounts set forth in plaintiffs' statement of damages (114 Cal. App. 4th 1308, 1313-1318, 1323) . On the cross-complaints, the gas company personally served the company with a statement of damages more than six weeks before the default was entered against the company on the gas company's cross-complaint. The statement set forth specific dollar amounts in property damages and other damages. It included a detailed declaration stating that the amounts sought were paid in settlement of various claims in the action, including plaintiffs' claims, and it identified the persons to whom each amount was paid. The trial court entered the default and eventually the default judgment in favor of the gas company on its cross-complaint and against the company (114 Cal. App. 4th 1308, 1313-1318, 1323) . After applying for defaults on their cross-complaints but before the defaults were entered, on the court's suggestion the city and the electric company each filed and served a statement of damages on the company by mail, together with an application for default judgment and supporting documents, setting forth total damages, including costs. The trial court entered the company's defaults nunc pro tunc effective three days before the statements were properly served (114 Cal. App. 4th 1308, 1313-1318, 1324) . The court entered the defaults and eventually entered default judgments on the cross-complaints in favor of the cross-complainants and against the company.

The court of appeal affirmed the entry of the default judgments as to the plaintiffs and the gas company. The court held that the company had not explained why the default or judgment in favor of plaintiffs is invalid and the court could discern no reason. The 15 days the company had to respond to plaintiffs' statement of damages was a reasonable period of time, given that the company was properly served with the summons and complaint more than 30 days before the statement was served. The default judgment was also valid, because it did not exceed the amounts set forth in plaintiffs' statement of damages (114 Cal. App. 4th 1308, 1323) . As to the gas company, the court found first that it was unsettled whether Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11, governing the service of a statement of damages, applied to a cross-complaint for indemnity and contribution in a personal injury action, but that in any event, a valid default and judgment required formal notice in some form of the nature and amount of damages sought, within a reasonable time before default was entered and the gas company complied with these requirements because its statement was sufficiently specific to allow the company to make an informed decision whether to appear and defend the cross-complaint. Further, service of the statement more than six weeks before the entry of the default allowed the company a reasonable time to determine whether to appear and defend the action. The company had not offered any reason why the default or judgment in favor of the gas company are invalid, and the court could discern none (114 Cal. App. 4th 1308, 1323-1324) .

However, the court reversed the entry of default judgments against the company in favor of the city and electric company on their cross-complaints. The court held that neither statement of damages was served in the same manner as a summons as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11(d), and that even if the city's and electric company's cross-complaints were not subject to § 425.11, they failed to give formal notice in some form of the amount of money damages they sought within a reasonable time before the defaults were entered. The trial court's entry of the defaults effective three days before the statements were properly served gave the company no time to respond to the cross-complaints after it was finally given formal notice of the amount of damages the city and the electric company were seeking. Thus, the defaults and judgments in favor of the electric company and the city were invalid. The court also held that although the company may have had actual notice of the amount of damages the city sought, actual notice does not satisfy the formal notice requirements of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10 et seq., 585. A plaintiff's or cross-complainant's failure to give formal notice of the amount of money damages it seeks constitutes a critical defect in the proceedings, so that the clerk or judge has no authority to enter a default unless and until formal notice is given and failure to give formal notice may deprive a defendant of due process. The electric company and the city could not rely on plaintiffs' statement of damages because their indemnity and contribution claims were not limited to the amounts they paid to plaintiffs, but encompassed substantial sums paid to other parties as well and plaintiffs' statement of damages did not encompass amounts paid to or claimed by other parties. Moreover, §§ 425.10 et seq. and 585 require formal notice of the amount of money damages or other relief sought by the party seeking relief. Further, although the electric company and the city were unable to give notice of the precise amount of damages they were seeking until after they settled the claims pending against them, the cross-complaints for indemnity and contribution ultimately sought money judgments and nothing prevented them from estimating and properly serving notice of the amount of money damages they were seeking at any time (114 Cal. App. 4th 1308, 1324-1326) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.121

§ 70.121 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form--Policy Favors Denial of Relief

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.120[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE THE POLICY OF THE LAW FAVORS DENIAL OF THE MOTION ON THE FACTS OF THIS CASE.

Policies Favoring Denial of Relief. Although the policy of the law favors deciding cases on their merits, other policies favor getting cases to trial on time, avoiding unnecessary and prejudicial delay, and preventing litigants from abusing pertinent legal rules and procedures (Gardner v. Superior Court (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 335, 339, 227 Cal. Rptr. 78).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) when relief would be adverse to the policy of the law.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.10 -70.41.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. When appropriate, this form should be combined with other points and authorities opposing the motion on additional, general grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.122 -70.125]. In addition, when appropriate, this form should be combined with points and authorities opposing the motion on additional particular grounds [see, e.g., § 70.140 et seq.], or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.216].

This form may be combined, in an appropriate case, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of relief based on other statutory or decisional authority, when the motion and supporting memorandum has asserted such additional authority as alternate bases for relief [see discussion in § 70.10[2][c]]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see, e.g., § 70.230 et seq.].

This form may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief. For discussion of when a court may deny relief despite the mandatory nature of an application for relief based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, see § 70.120[2][c].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Policies Favoring Denial of Relief

Gardner v. Superior Court (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 335, 227 Cal. Rptr. 78 , is discussed in § 70.120[3][a].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.122

§ 70.122 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form--Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect Not Reasonable

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.120[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE THE FACTS OF THIS CASE REVEAL THAT THE ALLEGED MISTAKE, INADVERTENCE, OR SURPRISE IS NOT REASONABLE.

Mistake, Inadvertence, or Surprise Must Be Reasonable to Justify Relief. The mistake, inadvertence, or surprise that justifies a court in setting aside a default under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) must be reasonable (Cyrus v. Haveson (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 306, 315, 135 Cal. Rptr. 246).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) when the alleged mistake, inadvertence, or surprise is not reasonable.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.10 -70.41.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. §

473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. When appropriate, this form should be combined with other points and authorities opposing the motion on additional, general grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.121 and 70.123 -70.125]. In addition, when appropriate, this form should be combined with points and authorities opposing the motion on additional particular grounds [see, e.g., § 70.140 et seq], or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.216].

This form may be combined, in an appropriate case, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of relief based on other statutory or decisional authority, when the motion and supporting memorandum has asserted such additional authority as alternate bases for relief [see discussion in § 70.10[2][c]]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see, e.g., § 70.230 et seq].

This form may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief. For discussion of when a court may deny relief despite the mandatory nature of an application for relief based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, see § 70.120[2][c].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mistake, Inadvertence, or Surprise Must Be Reasonable to Justify Relief

Cyrus v. Haveson (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 306, 135 Cal. Rptr. 246), is discussed in § 70.193[3].

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.123

§ 70.123 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form--Party Failed to Exercise Reasonable Diligence in Arranging for Defense

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.120[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE THE MOVING PARTY HAS FAILED TO EXERCISE REASONABLE DILIGENCE IN ARRANGING FOR HIS/HER DEFENSE.

No Relief for Lack of Reasonable Diligence. Unless in arranging for his or her defense the party exercises such reasonable diligence as a person of ordinary prudence usually bestows on important business, a motion for relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) will be denied (Luz v. Lopes (1960) 55 Cal. 2d 54, 62, 10 Cal. Rptr. 161, 358 P.2d 289 ; Caldwell v. Methodist Hospital (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1521, 1525, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 894).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) when the moving party failed to exercise reasonable diligence in arranging for his or her defense.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.10 -70.41.

When appropriate, this form should be combined with other points and authorities opposing the motion on additional, general grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.121, 70.122, 70.124, 70.125]. In addition, when appropriate, this form should be combined with points and authorities opposing the motion on additional particular grounds [see, e.g., § 70.140 et seq], or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.216]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see, e.g., § 70.230 et seq].

This form may be combined, in an appropriate case, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of relief based on other statutory or decisional authority, when the motion and supporting memorandum has asserted such additional authority as alternate bases for relief [see discussion in § 70.10[2][c]].

This form may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief. For discussion of when a court may deny relief despite the mandatory nature of an application for relief based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, see § 70.120[2][c].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Relief for Lack of Reasonable Diligence

Luz v. Lopes (1960) 55 Cal. 2d 54, 10 Cal. Rptr. 161, 358 P.2d 289 , is discussed in § 70.120[3][c] under Burden of Proof on Moving Party, above.

In Caldwell v. Methodist Hospital (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1521, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 894 , the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's denial of plaintiff's motion to set aside an order of dismissal on the grounds of excusable neglect. The trial court dismissed the action under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.410(a), following a hearing at which neither party appeared through counsel. Three months after plaintiff received a copy of the minute order of dismissal, he sought to set the order aside on the basis of his counsel's affidavit of fault in which counsel stated that he and the opposing counsel failed to appear at the court hearing because of their mutual erroneous belief that the hearing was scheduled on another day. Counsel also asserted that the intervening three-month period included the holiday season.

The court of appeal held that plaintiff failed to establish diligence in seeking relief from the dismissal order. It relied exclusively on Billings v. Health Plan of America (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 250, 258, 275 Cal. Rptr. 80 , which held that the 1988 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 473, which added the provision for mandatory relief for attorney error, did not alter the diligence requirement and further noted that delays of three months or more routinely result in denial of relief when there is no explanation for the delay (24 Cal. App. 4th 1521, 1525) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] No Relief for Lack of Reasonable Diligence

In Gillingham v. Lawrence (1909) 11 Cal. App. 231, 104 P. 584 , the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's denial of defendant's motion (apparently brought under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)) to vacate a default judgment. The court stated that defendant inexplicably let time pass once he was served with the summons and complaint, concluding that he was guilty of such carelessness and lack of diligence as could not be imputed to a prudent businessperson in a matter of material concern to himself or herself. The court held that although courts are liberal in relieving parties of defaults caused by inadvertence or excusable neglect, and although they prefer that a case be heard on its merits, they do not act as guardians for incompetent parties or parties who are grossly careless with regard to their own affairs (11 Cal. App. 231, 233) . The court also stated that if a party "willfully slumbers" on his or her rights when he or she should be alert, and makes no effort to protect himself or herself, courts cannot "patiently listen to flimsy excuses and the claim of ignorance of the law" (11 Cal. App. 231, 234) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.124

§ 70.124 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form--Attorney's Conduct Is Imputed to Client

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.120[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE THE MOVING PARTY IS BOUND BY THE ERRORS AND OMISSIONS OF HIS/HER ATTORNEY, AND THE MOVING PARTY HAS FAILED TO SHOW THAT THE CONDUCT ON WHICH HIS/HER MOTION IS BASED IS EXCUSABLE.

Attorney's Conduct Imputed to Client. When the claimed mistake or neglect in support of relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b), arises from the conduct of the party's attorney, the general rule is that the conduct must be shown to be of the excusable variety; otherwise, the default will not be set aside, because the negligence of the attorney is imputed to the client, who is bound by the attorney's errors and omissions (Conway v. Municipal Court (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1018, 166 Cal. Rptr. 246).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) on the ground that the conduct of the moving party's attorney is imputed to his or her client.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.10 -70.41, when the conduct is alleged to have been committed by the moving party's attorney. This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]].

When appropriate, this form should be combined with other points and authorities opposing the motion on additional, general grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.121 -70.123, 70.125]. In addition, when appropriate, this form should be combined with points and authorities opposing the motion on additional particular grounds [see, e.g., § 70.140 et seq], or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.216]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see, e.g., § 70.230 et seq.].

Although a party typically seeks relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), from a default or default judgment, or both, a court may grant relief under that section from any "judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding." This form may be modified, as appropriate, for use in opposing the grant of relief in situations other than a default and default judgment.

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief. For discussion of when a court may deny relief despite the mandatory nature of an application for relief based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, see § 70.120[2][c].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney's Conduct Imputed to Client

Conway v. Municipal Court (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 166 Cal. Rptr. 246 , is discussed in § 70.142[3][a].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.125

§ 70.125 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form--Existence of Meritorious Defense Is Irrelevant

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.120[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE THE MOTION IS NOT SUPPORTED BY ANY GROUND UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b), AND THE DEFENDANT'S ASSERTION THAT HE/SHE HAS A MERITORIOUS DEFENSE IS IRRELEVANT.

Existence of Meritorious Defense Is Irrelevant. The existence of a defense is irrelevant to the critical question of whether the moving party showed his or her failure to act was caused by mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect (Lipson v. Jordache Enterprises, Inc. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 151, 161, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 271 ; Uva v. Evans (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 356, 362, 147 Cal. Rptr. 795).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), when defendant asserts a meritorious defense as a ground for relief, and the motion is not otherwise supported by a ground under section 473(b).

Although a party typically seeks relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), from a default or default judgment, or both, a court may grant relief under that section from any "judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding." Thus, this form may be modified, as appropriate, for use in opposing the grant of relief in situations other than a default and default judgment.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.10 -70.41.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. When appropriate, this form should be combined with other points and authorities opposing the motion on additional, general grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.121 -70.124]. In addition, when appropriate, this form should be combined with points and authorities opposing the motion on additional particular grounds [see, e.g., § 70.140 et seq], or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.216].

This form may be combined, in an appropriate case, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of relief based on other statutory or decisional authority, when the motion and supporting memorandum has asserted such additional authority as alternate bases for relief [see discussion in § 70.10[2][c]]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see, e.g., § 70.230 et seq].

This form may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief. For discussion of when a court may deny relief despite the mandatory nature of an application for relief based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, see § 70.120[2][c].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Existence of Meritorious Defense Is Irrelevant

In Lipson v. Jordache Enterprises, Inc. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 151, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 271 , an insurer attempted to have a posttrial judgment against its insured set aside after it initially declined to undertake the defense. The trial court denied the motion and the insurer appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. Although the insurer prevailed on appeal, the court, citing Uva v. Evans (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 356, 362, 147 Cal. Rptr. 795 , discussed below, stated that the existence of a defense is irrelevant to the critical question of whether the moving party showed his or her failure to act was caused by mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect (9 Cal. App. 4th 151, 161) .

In Uva v. Evans (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 356, 147 Cal. Rptr. 795 , plaintiffs filed an action for damages arising from injuries sustained as a result of a dog bite. After the trial court ordered a default judgment for plaintiffs, defendant moved to set aside the default. The motion was denied and the trial court entered judgment for the plaintiffs. The defendant appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment and ordered retrial on the issue of damages only, but affirmed the judgment in all other respects. One argument raised by the defendant was that the trial court abused its discretion in denying defendant's motion to set aside the default, pointing out that he had proffered an arguably meritorious defense. The court stated that it was not persuaded that defendant's presentation of his answer could be a basis for a finding that the trial court abused its discretion. Although the existence of an arguably meritorious defense may reasonably lend support to a trial court's determination that a default should be vacated, it does so only because it aids the policy that appellate courts are more disposed to affirm an order when the result compels a trial on the merits. Former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), requires that a proposed answer be filed with the motion to set aside the default. The existence of a defense, however, is irrelevant to the critical question of whether the moving party showed that his failure to act was caused by mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect (83 Cal. App. 3d 356, 362) . Because the defendant failed to make that essential showing, the court held that the trial court was well within its discretion in denying defendant's motion to set aside the default (83 Cal. App. 3d 356, 362) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.126

§ 70.126 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Attorney Affidavit of Fault--No Mandatory Relief for Failure to File Complaint Within Period of Limitation

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.120[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DISMISSAL OF ACTION WITH PREJUDICE DESPITE THE ATTORNEY'S AFFIDAVIT OF FAULT BECAUSE THERE MAY BE NO MANDATORY RELIEF UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) FROM DISMISSALS THAT ARE A RESULT OF COUNSEL'S ERROR IN FILING THE COMPLAINT BEYOND THE PERIOD OF LIMITATIONS.

No Mandatory Relief From Dismissal for Filing Complaint Beyond Period of Limitations. The extension of mandatory relief to dismissed plaintiffs does not include relief from dismissals that are a result of counsel's error in filing the complaint beyond the period of limitations (Castro v. Sacramento County Fire Protection Dist. (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 927, 934, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 193).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a dismissal when the moving party seeks to set aside a dismissal that results from counsel's error in filing the complaint beyond the period of limitations [Castro v. Sacramento County Fire Protection Dist. (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 927, 929, 934, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 193] .

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the motion for relief supported by the points and authorities set out in § 70.12.

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

In Castro v. Sacramento County Fire Protection Dist. (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 927, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 193 , plaintiff filed a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 for an order setting aside the trial court's order sustaining the defendants' demurrer to the first amended complaint. The defendant demurred on the ground that the complaint was filed 19 days after the expiration of the six months following the notice of claim of rejection. The trial court concluded that section 473 relief was unavailable to the plaintiff and dropped her motion from the calendar. The trial court entered judgment dismissing the complaint and the plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The issue before the court was whether the extension of the mandatory relief to dismissed plaintiffs includes relief from dismissals the result of counsel's error in filing the complaint beyond the period of limitations. The court stated that prior to 1992 amendments to section 473, the section had been interpreted to exclude relief from default caused by failure to comply with the statute of limitations. The court reviewed decisions that followed the 1992 amendments to the section and concluded that the Legislature did not intend by its "noncontroversial" 1992 amendments to section 473 to overrule prior cases interpreting section 473 and create a loophole through which a plaintiff may escape the bar of the statute of limitations. The court also distinguished a late-filed claim, for which relief may be granted under the tort claims statute, and a late-filed complaint (47 Cal. App. 4th 927, 933) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.127

§ 70.127 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Court Lacks Jurisdiction Because of Pending Appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 916(a)]--Further Proceedings Are In Excess of Court's Jurisdiction

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.120[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] ON THE GROUND THAT THE TRIAL COURT HAS BEEN DEPRIVED OF JURISDICTION TO HEAR THE MOTION BECAUSE AN APPEAL IS PENDING IN THE ACTION.

A. Trial Court's Power to Vacate Is Suspended. The trial court's power to enforce, vacate, or modify an appealed judgment or order is suspended while an appeal is pending (Elsea v. Saberi (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 625, 629, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 742 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 916).

B. Motion Is in Excess of Court's Jurisdiction. Further trial court proceedings in contravention of a stay pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 916 are in excess of the court's jurisdiction, including motions to vacate default judgments under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473 (Elsea v. Saberi (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 625, 629, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 742).

C. Test to Determine Whether Stay Applies. Whether a matter is "embraced" in or "affected" by a judgment within the meaning of Code of Civil Procedure Section 916 depends on whether postjudgment trial court proceedings on the particular matter would have any impact on the "effectiveness" of the appeal. If so, the proceedings are stayed (Elsea v. Saberi (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 625, 629, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 742).

D. Order on Section 473 Motion Impacts Effectiveness of Pending Appeal. Because a trial court's ruling on a statutory motion to set aside a default judgment under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473 affects enforcement of a default judgment, it impacts on the effectiveness of a pending appeal and therefore is in excess of the trial court's jurisdiction (see Elsea v. Saberi (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 625, 629, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 742).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). The ground for opposition is that the trial court has been deprived of jurisdiction to hear the motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 916(a) because an appeal is pending in the action.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the motion to set aside supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.10 -70.110.

This form may be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing the contention that relief should be granted to set aside a default and default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) on other grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.120 -70.125, 70.140 -70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should refer to the notice of appeal filed on the judgment and the date of the filing to argue that the court has been deprived of jurisdiction to consider the motion. On proper request, the court is required to take judicial notice of its own records [see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453]. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Trial Court's Power to Vacate Is Suspended

Elsea v. Saberi (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 625, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 742 , involved a personal injury action against the president of a corporation and the corporation. After defendants repeatedly ignored service of process and related notices, the trial court entered a default judgment against them in favor of the plaintiff. The defendants filed a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 to vacate the judgment, made through counsel retained by defendants' liability insurer. The motion was denied by a different judge and the defendants appealed. While the defendants' appeal was pending, their liability insurer, through different counsel, moved the trial court for leave to intervene and vacate the judgment. The insurer's motion was assigned to yet a third judge, who allowed it to intervene and set aside the judgment as to the insurer. The plaintiff appealed the orders granting the insurer relief.

The court of appeal reversed. The plaintiff contended that the trial court lacked jurisdiction to vacate or modify the judgment because it was on appeal, and the insurer argued that the motions to vacate filed by it and defendants were separately appealable and therefore its own motion to vacate was a collateral matter residing within the trial court's jurisdiction. The court stated that, as a general rule, the perfecting of an appeal stays the proceedings in the trial court on the judgment or order appealed from, or on the matters embraced therein or affected thereby, including enforcement of the judgment or order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 916(a)]. In addition, citing Gold v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 275, 280, 90 Cal. Rptr. 161, 475 P.2d 193 , the court stated that the trial court's power to enforce, vacate, or modify an appealed judgment or order is suspended while an appeal is pending. The purpose of the rule depriving the trial court of jurisdiction during the pending appeal, noted the court, is to protect the appellate court's jurisdiction by preserving the status quo until the appeal is decided. The rule prevents the trial court from rendering an appeal futile by altering the appealed judgment or order by conducting other proceedings that may affect it (4 Cal. App. 4th 625, 629) . Thus, the court held that the trial court's ruling was in excess of the trial court's jurisdiction (4 Cal. App. 4th 625, 629) . The court also noted that although three different judges presided over the issues relating to the judgment in the case, the superior court is but one tribunal (4 Cal. App. 4th 625, 630-631) .

[b] Motion Is in Excess of Court's Jurisdiction

The facts and procedural background of Elsea v. Saberi (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 625, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 742 , are discussed under [a], above. In Elsea, the court of appeal reversed the trial court's judgment ordering that a default judgment be set aside under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) now]. The court stated that further trial court proceedings in contravention of a stay pursuant to *Code Civ. Proc. § 916(a)*are in excess of the court's jurisdiction, including motions to vacate default judgments under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (4 Cal. App. 4th 625, 629) .

[c] Test to Determine Whether Stay Applies

The facts and procedural background of Elsea v. Saberi (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 625, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 742 , are discussed under [a], above. In Elsea, the court of appeal reversed the trial court's judgment ordering that a default judgment be set aside because an appeal was pending, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 916(a). The court stated that whether a matter is "embraced" in or "affected" by a judgment within the meaning of that section depends on whether postjudgment trial court proceedings on the particular matter would have any impact on the "effectiveness" of the appeal. If so, the proceedings are stayed (4 Cal. App. 4th 625, 629) .

[d] Order on Section 473 Motion Impacts Effectiveness of Pending Appeal

The facts and procedural background of Elsea v. Saberi (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 625, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 742 , are discussed under [a], above. In Elsea, the court of appeal reversed the trial court's judgment ordering that a default judgment be set aside because an appeal was pending, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 916(a). The court stated that because the trial court's ruling on the statutory motion to set aside a default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 affected enforcement of the default judgment, it impacted on the effectiveness of the pending appeal and therefore was in excess of the trial court's jurisdiction (4 Cal. App. 4th 625, 629) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.128

§ 70.128 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Motion Constitutes Inadequate Motion for Reconsideration

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.120[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO VACATE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE THE MOTION CONSTITUTES AN INAPPROPRIATE MOTION FOR RECONSIDERATION, IN THAT THE MOTION IS BASED ON THE SAME FACTS AND EXISTING LAW AS RAISED IN A PRIOR MOTION FOR RELIEF, WHICH WAS DENIED.

A. Second Bite at Apple Not Permitted. When a subsequent motion to set aside a default or default judgment is based on the same facts and existing law as determined in a prior motion to set aside, the subsequent motion may be denied as an inappropriate motion for reconsideration (see Taylor v. Varga (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 750, 760-761, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 904 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1008).

[Optional] B. Sanctions for Inappropriate Motion for Reconsideration. The duplicative nature for a request to set aside a default or default judgment is sufficient to justify sanctions. "Neither the court, litigants, nor opposing counsel should be subject to sequential efforts to challenge rulings. This type of duplicative proceeding is not to be encouraged" (Taylor v. Varga (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 750, 762, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 904).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). The ground for opposition is that the motion for relief is based on the same facts and law as a prior motion for relief that had been denied, and therefore constitutes an inappropriate motion for reconsideration [see Taylor v. Varga (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 750, 760-761, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 904 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1008].

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the demurrer supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.10 -70.110.

This form may be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing the contention that relief should be granted to set aside a default and default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) on other grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.120 -70.127, 70.140 -70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should request the court to take judicial notice of the papers filed in support of the prior motion for relief, and point out the facts and rules of law common to both proceedings [see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453]. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Second Bite at Apple Not Permitted

In Taylor v. Varga (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 750, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 904 , nearly six months after a default and default judgment was entered on the cross complaint in an action by the lessors of a restaurant against the lessees seeking indemnification for damages arising out of a fire on the premises, the cross defendant lessees moved to set aside the default based on Code Civ. Proc. § 473. Then, in their reply brief, the lessees for the first time raised the issue that the there was a lack of statutory authority for entering a default after service by publication under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(c). The initial motion was denied and the lessees filed a subsequent motion to set aside in based on Code Civ. Proc. § 585(c). The trial court denied the motion and imposed sanctions. The lessees appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment and sanctions order. The court observed that the lessees second motion to set aside was an "a second bite at the apple." Although conceding that the motion to set aside the entry of their default was not based on different facts than the first motion under section 473, the lessees contended that the second motion was based on a new legal argument and was not a motion for reconsideration. The court concluded that the trial court was well within its discretion in denying the second motion on the merits because the lessees waited until almost six months after the default was entered before filing their initial motion to set aside and then waited until that motion was denied before filing the second motion to set aside the default based on section 585. In addition, the motion could be denied as an inappropriate motion for reconsideration because the motion was based on the same facts and existing law (37 Cal. App. 4th 750, 761) .

[b] Sanctions for Inappropriate Motion for Reconsideration

The facts and procedural background of Taylor v. Varga (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 750, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 904 , are discussed under [a], above. In Taylor v. Varga, the trial court ordered sanctions in denying cross defendant's second motion to set aside a judgment or order based on Code Civ. Proc. § 585. The court of appealed affirmed the sanctions order, stating that the duplicative nature of the request was sufficient to justify the sanctions imposed. Neither the court, litigants, nor opposing counsel should be subject to such sequential efforts to challenge rulings. This type of duplicative proceeding, according to the court, is not to be encouraged. Thus, the court concluded that the sanctions were properly imposed (37 Cal. App. 4th 750, 762) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.129

§ 70.129 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--No Relief for Failure to Take Jurisdictional Procedural Step--General Form

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.120[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [identify proceeding] BECAUSE THE _____ [JUDGMENT or ORDER] WAS THE RESULT OF THE MOVING PARTY'S FAILURE TO TAKE A JURISDICTIONAL PROCEDURAL STEP, AND THE COURT LACKS AUTHORITY TO GRANT RELIEF IN SUCH CASES.

Section 473 Does Not Apply to Failure to File Jurisdictional Motion. Although a court may grant relief under Code of Civil Procedure section 473(b) from a party's failure to take various kinds of nonjurisdictional procedural steps, it cannot grant relief from a failure to take to take a jurisdictional step (Advanced Building Maintenance v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1388, 1393, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 310).

[Combine with points and authorities relating to specific proceeding from which moving party is seeking relief, e.g., § 70.130.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). The ground for opposition is that the motion for relief is based on the moving party's failure to take a jurisdictional step, and that the court lacks subject matter jurisdiction to grant relief in such a case.

This form should be combined with points and authorities relating to the specific proceeding from which moving party is seeking relief [see, e.g., § 70.130].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points and authorities in this form with the facts of the case. See § 70.120[2][d] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

In Advanced Building Maintenance v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1388, 1393, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 310 , a judgment of dismissal was entered against an employer who had brought an action against its workers' compensation insurer. The employer filed a motion to vacate the judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 663 (incorrect or erroneous legal basis), and a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473. The trial court granted the motion, vacated the judgment of dismissal, and set the case for trial. The insurer appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. The court stated that under section 473, relief may be granted from failure to take various kinds of nonjurisdictional steps. Relief cannot be granted for failure to take a jurisdictional step, such as filing a timely notice for new trial. Although the court's research revealed no cases which decide whether section 473 applies to section 663, the court compared section 663 with the section governing the statutory requirements of a new trial, and concluded that the motion to vacate should also be considered a jurisdictional motion, and that section 473 similarly should not apply (49 Cal. App. 4th 1388, 1393-1394) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.130

§ 70.130 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--No Relief for Failure to Take Jurisdictional Procedural Step--No Relief for Untimely Motion to Vacate Judgment on Erroneous Legal Basis

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a general form providing that relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) is not available when party fails to take jurisdictional procedural step. See § 70.129[1].]

Motion to Vacate Judgment on Erroneous Legal Basis Is Jurisdictional Step. A motion to vacate under Code of Civil Procedure section 663, based on an incorrect or erroneous legal basis for the decision, is considered a jurisdictional motion, to which relief under Code of Civil Procedure section 473(b) does not apply (Advanced Building Maintenance v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1388, 1393, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 310).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). The ground for opposition is that there may be no relief under section 473(b) for and untimely motion to set aside judgment on erroneous legal basis under Code Civ. Proc. § 663.

This form should be combined with a general form of points and authorities providing that relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) is not available when party fails to take jurisdictional procedural step [see § 70.129[1]].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points and authorities in this form with the facts of the case. See § 70.120[2][d] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

The facts and procedural background of Advanced Building Maintenance v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1388, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 310 , are discussed in § 70.129[3]. In Advanced Building Maintenance, the court compared a motion to vacate judgment on ground of an erroneous legal basis under Code Civ. Proc. § 663, with a motion for new trial, and concluded that relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) is not available when the motion to vacate was filed beyond 15 days after service of the written notice of entry of judgment (49 Cal. App. 4th 1388, 1393-1394) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.131

§ 70.131 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) Does Not Provide Mandatory Relief From Judgment Entered on Arbitration Award Based on Attorney Affidavit of Fault Unless Client Was Denied Hearing

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.120[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE THE RELIEF SOUGHT IS FROM A _____ [JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] ENTERED ON AN ARBITRATION AWARD, AND THE PARTY SEEKING TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] WAS NOT DEPRIVED OF A HEARING.

Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)* Does Not Provide Mandatory Relief Based on Attorney Affidavit of Fault Where Relief Is Sought From Judgment Entered on Arbitration Award Unless Client Was Denied Hearing. Although an attorney affidavit of fault makes relief mandatory under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) from a default judgment or dismissal, it does not mandate relief from a judgment entered on an arbitration award, unless the client was deprived of a hearing [Brown v. Williams (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 182, 188-189, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 634] .

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a judgment or dismissal entered on an arbitration award, under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). The ground for opposition is that section 473(b) does not provide mandatory relief based on an attorney affidavit of negligence where the relief sought is from a judgment entered on an arbitration award, unless the attorney's negligence deprived the client of a hearing.

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should argument linking the points and authorities in this form with the facts of the case. Specifically, counsel should specify facts showing the following:

- The judgment from which relief is sought was entered on an arbitration award, not a default judgment or dismissal.

- The attorney's negligence consisted of something other than behavior that deprived the client of a hearing. For example, in Brown v. Williams (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 182, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 634 , discussed in [3], below, the facts showed that the attorney and client actually participated in the arbitration hearing, and that the attorney's negligence consisted of failing to timely request a trial de novo.

See § 70.120[2][d] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

In Brown v. Williams (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 182, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 634 , the plaintiff sued defendants for personal injuries allegedly suffered on defendants' premises. Defendants answered the complaint, and the action was ordered into judicial arbitration. Plaintiff and her attorney both attended the arbitration and presented testimony, documents, and argument. The arbitration award in favor of defendants was served by mail and filed shortly thereafter. Plaintiff did not file a request for trial de novo, and judgment was entered on the award after the time for the request had passed. Plaintiff's attorney then filed a motion for relief from his failure to request a trial de novo, seeking mandatory relief provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), or, alternatively, for discretionary relief allows by section 473; defendants opposed the motion. The trial court denied the motion.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that although an attorney's affidavit makes relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) mandatory from a default judgment or dismissal, it does not mandate relief from judgments entered on an arbitration award, unless the client was deprived of a hearing (78 Cal. App. 4th 182, 188) . The court found that there is no mandatory relief under § 473(b) for attorney negligence consisting of a failure to timely request a trial de novo after there was an arbitration hearing in which the plaintiff and her attorney actually participated (78 Cal. App. 4th 182, 189) . The court also found that the trial court did not abuse its discretion by denying plaintiff relief under the discretionary provisions of section 473 (78 Cal. App. 4th 182, 190) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

2-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.132

§ 70.132 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) Does Not Provide Mandatory Relief From Failure to Timely File Opposition to and Cross-Motion to Enforce Settlement

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.120[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(B) DOES NOT APPLY TO AN ATTORNEY'S FAILURE TO TIMELY FILE OPPOSITION TO AND A CROSS-MOTION TO ENFORCE A SETTLEMENT.

Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)* Does Not Provide Mandatory Relief Based on Attorney Affidavit of Fault Where Relief Is Sought From Attorney's Failure to Timely File Opposition to and Cross-Motion to Enforce Settlement. Although an attorney affidavit of fault makes relief mandatory under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) from a default judgment or dismissal, it does not mandate relief from a judgment entered on a motion to enforce a settlement, because those circumstances do not constitute a default or default judgment within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (Hossain v. Hossain (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 454, 457-459, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 356).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a judgment entered on a motion to enforce a settlement under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). The ground for opposition is that § 473(b) does not provide mandatory relief based on an attorney affidavit of negligence when the relief sought is from a judgment entered on a motion to enforce settlement based on the attorney's failure to timely file opposition and/or a cross-motion to enforce settlement.

This form of memorandum may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Specifically, counsel should specify facts showing that the judgment from which relief is sought was entered on a motion to enforce settlement.

See § 70.120[2][d] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

Hossain v. Hossain (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 454, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 356 , involved a dispute over the termination of a partnership for the operation of a hotel. Plaintiff failed to file timely opposition to the defendant's motion to enforce the settlement agreement, and also was late in filing his own motion to enforce. The trial court declined to consider plaintiff's late papers and denied relief sought by plaintiff under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). The court of appeal affirmed, finding that the attorney fault provision in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) does not apply to an attorney's failure to timely file opposition and a cross-motion to a motion to enforce a settlement. The court found that the circumstances did not constitute a default or default judgment to bring the case within that provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) because no default was entered by the clerk, and there was no default judgment (157 Cal. App. 4th 454, 456-458) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

2-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.133

§ 70.133 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Attorney Affidavit of Fault--No Mandatory Relief for Attorney Representing Self or Bringing Action in Representative Capacity

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.120[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DISMISSAL OF ACTION WITH PREJUDICE DESPITE THE ATTORNEY'S AFFIDAVIT OF FAULT BECAUSE THERE CAN BE NO MANDATORY RELIEF UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) FOR ATTORNEYS REPRESENTING THEMSELVES IN PROPRIA PERSONA OR BRINGING ACTION IN REPRESENTATIVE CAPACITY.

No Mandatory Relief For Attorney Representing Self in Propria Persona. The extension of mandatory relief does not include relief for attorneys who are representing themselves in propria persona (Esther B. v. City of Los Angeles (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1099-1100, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 596).

No Mandatory Relief For Attorney Bringing Action in Representative Capacity. The extension of mandatory relief does not include relief for attorneys who bring an action in a representative capacity, such as a taxpayer representing other taxpayers (Esther B. v. City of Los Angeles (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1099-1100, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 596).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a default or dismissal on the ground of an attorney affidavit of excusable neglect in an action brought by an attorney either in pro per or in a representative capacity, such as a taxpayers' action.

In an appropriate case, this memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the motion for relief supported by the memoranda set out in § 70.120.

This memorandum may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

In Esther B. v. City of Los Angeles (2008) Esther B. v. City of Los Angeles (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 596 , an attorney initiated an action against a city and other public agencies on behalf of herself and her minor daughter seeking damages and an order removing their names from California's Child Abuse Central Index (CACI). She also sued as a taxpayer seeking reforms of the CACI through injunctive and declaratory relief. She is licensed to practice in California, and appeared in propria persona along with cocounsel. She did not obtain the judicial relief she sought. However, during the pendency of the litigation the legislature amended the statutes governing the CACI to provide greater protections to persons listed in CACI. Claiming her lawsuit was the catalyst in bringing about these changes, she moved for attorney's fees under California's private attorney general statute (Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5) and under other statutory and common-law theories.

The trial court stayed the attorney's fee motions for trial work pending her appeal on another aspect of the case. After the remittitur issued in the appeal, the court gave the attorney several deadlines to file the attorney's fees motion for fees incurred at trial and on appeal. In granting her ex parte request to further extend the filing deadline, the court stated that no further continuance would be granted. The attorney missed the final deadline. After the defendant filed a proposed order seeking to deem the fee requests abandoned because of the attorney's failure to timely file her attorney's fee documents as ordered by the court, the trial court issued an order directing the attorney to show cause why the court should not deem her request for attorney's fees abandoned for failure to file moving papers as requested. The attorney filed a response apologizing for the late filing and attributing the cause to illness and limited resources, compounded by the intricacy and breadth of the legal and factual matters the papers had to address. She also submitted the declaration of co-counsel, who was unwilling to work for free when plaintiff ran out of funds. After taking the matter under submission, the trial court issued an order that the attorney's untimely filings were not excused, and the requests for attorney's fees were deemed waived, which the appellate court affirmed. The attorney then moved to set aside default and/or dismissal of the motion for attorney's fees under both the mandatory and discretionary provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). The trial court denied plaintiff's motion for relief (158 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1095-1099) .

The court of appeal affirmed. The court held that the mandatory relief provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) applies only in the case of an attorney representing a client. The discretionary relief provision of § 473(b) provides that the court may set aside a default or dismissal on the motion of a party or legal representative and thus applies to a party, including a party appearing in propria persona, and an attorney representing a party. However, the mandatory provision applies only to an attorney representing a party. The court held that the attorney did not qualify for relief under § 473(b) as an attorney who brought the action, in part, as a taxpayer on behalf of the other taxpayers. The court noted that if she bound other taxpayers by her action she did so as a fellow taxpayer, not as an attorney for the taxpayers (158 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1099-1100) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.134-70.139

[Reserved]

§§ 70.134[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.140

§ 70.140 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground that Motion Is Untimely [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Relief Not Based on Attorney Affidavit of Fault--Motion Brought After Six-Month Limitation

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.120[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE IT IS UNTIMELY, IN THAT THE NOTICE OF MOTION WAS NOT FILED WITHIN SIX MONTHS AFTER THE ENTRY OF THE _____ [identify proceeding, e.g., DEFAULT JUDGMENT].

A. Timeliness of Motion. Application for relief from a judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding taken against a party through his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect must be made within a reasonable time, not exceeding six months, after the judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding was taken (Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); Johnson v. E-Z Insurance Brokerage, Inc. (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 86, 98-99, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 782 ; Title Insurance etc. Co. v. King etc. Co. (1912) 162 Cal. 44, 45-46, 120 P. 1066).

B. Six-Month Limitation Is Jurisdictional. In the absence of extrinsic fraud, the six-month limitation under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b), is jurisdictional (Jackson v. Bank of America (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 55, 59, 190 Cal. Rptr. 78).

[When appropriate, add memoranda opposing the motion on additional particular grounds, for example, that motion is not timely (see, e.g., § 70.146 et seq.), or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted (see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.216). Additional points and authorities may be also be added, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief (see, e.g.,§ 70.230 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). This form is for use when the relief sought is not based on an attorney affidavit of fault, and the ground of opposition is that the motion was not filed in a timely manner because the motion was brought after the six-month limitation period [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. For points and authorities providing that the six-month limitation runs from the date of default, see § 70.141[1].

For a form for use when the motion was brought within the six-month limitation period but not within a reasonable time, see §§ 70.142, 70.143. For a form of points and authorities for use in opposing a motion for relief based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, see § 70.145[1].

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.10 -70.41.

This form may be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. When appropriate, this form may be combined with points and authorities for use in refuting a contention that the preoccupation of the moving party's attorney with other matters is sufficient ground to justify delay in seeking relief [see § 70.144[1]; see also § 70.212[1] (opposing the grant of relief on the ground of excusable neglect when showing in support of this ground in the moving party's attorney's assertion of the press of other business)].

This form may be combined with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with:

- Additional points and authorities showing that the motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148].

- Additional points and authorities showing that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.216; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]].

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore set forth the relevant dates of entry of default and the date of the filing of the motion, and show that the motion was not made within six months after judgment had been entered [see discussion in § 70.146[2][c]]. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Timeliness of Motion

Johnson v. E-Z Insurance Brokerage, Inc. (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 86, 98-99, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 782 involved a default judgment entered against a defendant as a discovery sanction. Twelve years later, the defendant sought to have the default set aside on the ground it was wrongly entered on an ex parte basis as a terminating sanction for misuse of the discovery process. The trial court denied the defendant's motion.

The court of appeal affirmed. It held that the default judgment was voidable, not void, because the trial court had fundamental jurisdiction over the subject matter and the parties when it entered the default judgment 12 years earlier. By awarding terminating sanctions on an ex parte basis, the court of appeal held, the trial court at most failed to follow proper procedure. Accordingly, the court held that Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), which does not provide a time limit, did not apply. Instead, Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) applied, and a motion to set the default aside had to be brought within six months of entry (175 Cal. App. 4th 86, 98-99) .

In Title Insurance etc. Co. v. King etc. Co. (1912) 162 Cal. 44, 120 P. 1066 , the trial court denied several motions of defendants to set aside a judgment, and to relieve them from a default entered against them. One defendant filed the motion more than eleven months after the default was entered; the remaining defendants more than sixteen months afterward.

The Supreme Court affirmed, holding that under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 , the motion must be filed within six months after entry of default (162 Cal. 44, 45-46) .

[b] Six-Month Limitation Is Jurisdictional

In Jackson v. Bank of America (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 55, 190 Cal. Rptr. 78 , plaintiff filed a complaint against defendant bank seeking recovery of money due. The complaint alleged that plaintiff had signed a promissory note to the bank as guarantor for another, and had placed with the bank as security certain bonds; and that the bank fraudulently failed to inform plaintiff that the principal borrower had increased the original amount of the loan, and had defaulted in payments on that loan. Plaintiff sought judgment releasing him from liability as the guarantor of the note. The bank notified plaintiff that the bonds would be sold unless additional security was deposited. The bank apparently sold the bonds immediately prior to being served with process regarding a show-cause hearing and an amended complaint, seeking an injunction against the sale of the bonds and additional damages. The show-cause hearing was taken off calendar; defendant failed to file an answer to the amended complaint. Plaintiff obtained a default judgment, and filed a declaration of mailing to counsel for defendant. Six and one-half months later, defendant filed a notice of motion for relief from default. The trial court granted the motion. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that in the absence of extrinsic fraud, the six-month limitation of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is jurisdictional (141 Cal. App. 3d 55, 59) . The court noted that although the statute is to be liberally applied to grant relief (so that issues may be tried on their merits), nothing in the facts of the case before it justifies the grant of relief. Further, the bank did not timely qualify for the relief. The court rejected the bank's contention that it is entitled to relief on the ground of excusable neglect, holding that the bank's belief that the case was moot (because the bonds had been sold) does not constitute excusable neglect (141 Cal. App. 3d 55, 58) . The court stated that on a motion for relief from default, the moving party has the burden of showing that the neglect leading to default was excusable; and to entitle a party to relief, the acts that brought about the default must have been the acts of a reasonably prudent person under the same circumstances. The court concluded that the bank's assumption that the case was moot has its attendant risk; the bank was wrong in its assumption and its neglect was not of the excusable variety. Further, the court rejected the bank's argument that the notice of default was deficient, justifying relief, because it was not addressed to include the floor or suite number of the attorney's office, which was located in a large office building. The court found that argument "somewhat disingenuous," in that the mailing was addressed to the attorney, by name, as counsel for the bank, at the proper address, a building that served as principal headquarters for the bank (141 Cal. App. 3d 55, 58) . The court also noted that under Code Civ. Proc. § 587, nonreceipt of notice does not invalidate a default judgment. The court stated that the trial court abused its discretion because although it was not asked to grant relief on the basis of extrinsic fraud, it nevertheless ordered relief after having expressly found the motion to be untimely (141 Cal. App. 3d 55, 59)

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Six-Month Limitation Is Jurisdictional

In Stevenson v. Turner (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 315, 156 Cal. Rptr. 499 , the court of appeal reversed the trial court's denial of defendant's motion for relief from default, on the ground that the judgment was void (94 Cal. App. 3d 315, 318-320) . In the course of its reasoning, the court noted that the six-month outside time limit for granting relief under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), is jurisdictional, and the court may not consider any motion made after that period has elapsed (94 Cal. App. 3d 315, 318) . The court concluded, however, that the time limitation did not apply in the instant case because of the fact that the default judgment was void on its face (94 Cal. App. 3d 315, 318) .

For forms of memoranda relating to void judgment or orders, see § 70.310 et seq.

The facts and procedural background of Northridge Financial Corp. v. Hamblin (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 819, 122 Cal. Rptr. 109 , are discussed in § 70.191[3]. In Northridge, the court of appeal held that defendants failed to show excusable neglect in support of their motion for relief under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), based on the defendants' inexcusable failure to file an answer despite receiving an extension of time from opposing counsel in which to do so (48 Cal. App. 3d 819, 823-824) . The court in Northridge also considered whether the trial court properly denied one defendant's motion for reconsideration, which was filed 24 days after the statutory six-month period under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 had expired. The court initially noted that all applications for relief under the statute must be made within the six-month period. It also noted that defendant's motion was filed as a motion for reconsideration, although it was based on the identical statutory grounds as those contained in the first motion (that is, the motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473); and that it was based on a new affidavit of the defense attorney, his secretary, and the moving party. The court determined that the motion for reconsideration in the case before it must be considered as a renewal of the prior motion for relief, and that, consequently, it is subject to the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 473. Therefore, it must be made within the six-month statutory limitations period (48 Cal. App. 3d 819, 825) . Inasmuch as the second motion was made after the prescribed period had expired, the court was without jurisdiction to act (48 Cal. App. 3d 819, 826) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.141

§ 70.141 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground that Motion Is Untimely [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Relief Not Based on Attorney Affidavit of Fault--Motion Brought After Six-Month Limitation--Six-Month Limitation Period Runs From Date of Default

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) on the ground that the motion was filed beyond the six-month limitation (see § 70.140[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE IT IS UNTIMELY, IN THAT THE SIX-MONTH LIMITATION PERIOD RUNS FROM THE DATE OF THE DEFAULT AND NOT FROM THE DEFAULT JUDGMENT.

Six-Month Limitation Period Runs From Date of Default. As a general rule, the six-month period within which to bring a motion to vacate under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b), runs from the date of the default and not from the judgment taken afterwards (Weiss v. Blumencranc (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 536, 541, 131 Cal. Rptr. 298).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment should be set aside on the ground of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). This form is for use when the moving party asserts that the six-month period runs from the date of the default judgment. The relief sought in this form is not based on an attorney affidavit of fault. For a form of points and authorities for use in opposing a motion for relief based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, see § 70.145[1].

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.10 -70.41.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside on the ground that the motion was filed beyond the six-month limitation period of section 473(b) [see § 70.140[1]].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Six-Month Limitation Period Runs From Date of Default

In Weiss v. Blumencranc (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 536, 131 Cal. Rptr. 298 , the trial court granted defendant's motion under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), to set aside two amended supplementary judgments awarding the plaintiff punitive damages in an action involving the dissolution of a partnership. Default and default judgment were entered, deferring determination of punitive damages (based on fraud) until completion of the accounting of the partnership assets. Several years later, after completion of the accounting, an ex parte hearing on punitive damages was held. The trial court entered the first supplementary judgment of damages, awarding general and punitive damages, and setting forth other provisions regarding sources and methods of payment. Subsequently, the court entered a first amended judgment, generally awarding punitive damages; and a second amended judgment, which specifically awarded punitive damages but otherwise was identical to the previous judgment. Shortly afterward, defendant filed a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 for relief from the first and second amended judgments. The trial court granted the motion, and plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, with directions to re-enter the last amended judgment as the true judgment (61 Cal. App. 3d 536, 544) . Plaintiff contended that the trial court did not have jurisdiction to issue any order vacating the default judgment, pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)). The court noted that according to the record, defendant did not file his application for relief within the requisite six-month period after the default was taken, and also failed to accompany his motion with an answer or proposed pleading, as further required by statute. The court stated that defendant had no right to notice of the hearing regarding an opportunity to be heard after default, because, as clearly indicated by the record the trial court's decision to vacate the amended judgments was not made on the basis of extrinsic fraud (61 Cal. App. 3d 536, 540) .

The record indicated that the trial court was concerned about the ex parte nature of the hearing on punitive damages, and carefully pointed out that only supplementary judgments awarding punitive damages were set aside under the motion for relief. Therefore, the default and the original default judgment dissolving the partnership requiring an accounting were never set aside or appealed, and thus became final. The record also indicated that the trial court was satisfied that the six-month requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 had been met by defendant's motion only with regard to the amended judgments, and not the initial default or default judgment (61 Cal. App. 3d 536, 540-541) . The court of appeal held that the trial court erred in that conclusion, in that neither of the amended judgments pertaining to punitive damages could have been properly vacated under Code Civ. Proc. § 473. The court stated that the defendant had six months from the date of the entry of default to apply for relief under the statute, but did not file a motion until well over two years later. The court held that the trial court's effort to set aside only the amended judgments was ineffective, because the six-month period runs from the date of entry of default, rather than from the date of entry of the default judgment. The court noted that despite the purported vacation of the amended judgments alone, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473, the default itself remained, which permitted immediate entry of another judgment that gave plaintiff the relief to which he was entitled on the basis of his complaint for dissolution (61 Cal. App. 3d 536, 541) . The court further considered other issues unique to punitive damages awards, and concluded that the last amended judgment is valid (61 Cal. App. 3d 536, 542-544) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.142

§ 70.142 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground that Motion Is Untimely [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Relief Not Based on Attorney Affidavit of Fault--Motion Brought Within Six-Month Limitation But After Reasonable Time

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.120[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE IT IS UNTIMELY, IN THAT THE NOTICE OF MOTION WAS NOT FILED WITHIN A REASONABLE TIME AFTER THE ENTRY OF THE _____ [identify proceeding, e.g., DEFAULT JUDGMENT].

A. Timeliness of Motion. [See § 70.140[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Extended Delay Must Be Sufficiently Explained. A moving party who files a motion under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b), after an extended delay following entry of the default, must provide sufficient explanation of the delay (Benjamin v. Dalmo Mfg. Co. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 523, 529, 190 P.2d 593 ; Conway v. Municipal Court (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1019, 166 Cal. Rptr. 246).

C. Showing of Diligence Required. The moving party under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) has a double burden: he or she must show a satisfactory excuse for the default, as well as diligence in making the motion after discovery of the default (Kendall v. Barker (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 625, 243 Cal. Rptr. 42).

D. Reasonable Time Test Is Independent Consideration. The reasonable time test under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) stands as an independent consideration in any given situation; and its determination, within the maximum six-month period, depends on the circumstances of the particular case (Benjamin v. Dalmo Mfg. Co. (1948)

31 Cal. 2d 523, 530, 190 P.2d 593).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing the motion on additional particular grounds, for example, that motion is not timely (see, e.g., § 70.146 et seq.), or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted (see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.216). Additional points and authorities may be also be added, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief (see, e.g.,§ 70.230 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). This form is for use when the relief sought is not based on an attorney affidavit of fault, and the ground of opposition is that the motion was not filed within a reasonable time under the circumstances [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)].

For a form of points and authorities for use when the motion was brought after the six-month limitation period, see § 70.140[1]. For a form of points and authorities for use in opposing a motion for relief based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, see § 70.145[1].

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.10 -70.41.

This form may be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. When appropriate, this form may be combined with points and authorities for use in refuting a contention that the preoccupation of the moving party's attorney with other matters is sufficient ground to justify delay in seeking relief [see § 70.144[1]; see also § 70.212[1] (opposing the grant of relief on the ground of excusable neglect when showing in support of this ground in the moving party's attorney's assertion of the press of other business)].

This form may be combined with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with:

- Additional points and authorities showing that the motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148].

- Additional points and authorities showing that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.216; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]].

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore set forth the relevant dates of entry of default and the date of the filing of the motion, and show that the motion was filed after an unexplained or inexcusable delay. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Notice of Request to Enter Default

Code Civ. Proc. § 587, enacted in 1969, requires that all applications for entry of default under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 585(a)-(c) and 586, include an affidavit (or declaration (Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) stating that a copy of the application has been mailed to defendant or his or her attorney of record, if any. This provision affects the "reasonable time" requirement under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), in that the moving party has a greater burden to justify any delay in bringing the motion after receiving notice as required under that section. Even if the moving party adequately shows facts in support of a particular ground of relief, the motion will be denied if it is untimely [see Kendall v. Barker (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 625, 243 Cal. Rptr. 42 (discussed under [3][b], below)]. Cases decided before the enactment of this statute that discuss the moving party's conduct with respect to reasonableness of delay, should therefore be viewed in light of the current law regarding notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 587.

For further discussion of requirements for entry of default (including the procedural distinction between actions in which service was made by publication and those in which service was effected by other means), see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Extended Delay Must Be Sufficiently Explained

Benjamin v. Dalmo Mfg. Co. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 523, 190 P.2d 593 , is discussed under [c], below.

In Conway v. Municipal Court (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 166 Cal. Rptr. 246 , an action brought by a bank against an individual, the court of appeal reversed a superior court order granting defendant's petition for peremptory writ commanding the municipal court to set aside a default judgment against the defendant (107 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1021) . The action was originally set for trial in municipal court. Approximately two months before the trial date, defendant was at the office of his attorney, who informed him of the trial date. Defendant made no attempt to contact the attorney after that meeting, and the attorney's attempts to contact the defendant after that point were unsuccessful. Defendant did not appear on the date of trial. When his attorney arrived in the courtroom, he waved to a clerk whom he believed knew him, and left to telephone the defendant. When no one in the courtroom answered for defendant, the matter was assigned to another courtroom for default hearing, and default judgment was entered against defendant. More than four months later, defendant filed a motion under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), to vacate the default and set aside the default judgment. After the trial court denied that motion, defendant filed a motion for reconsideration, which the court also denied. Defendant filed a petition for writ of mandamus, as well as an appeal from denial of the reconsideration motion, in the appellate department of the superior court. The superior court granted the petition, and ordered a peremptory writ of mandate to issue, commanding the municipal court to vacate the entry of default and set aside the default judgment. Plaintiff appealed the granting of the writ.

The court of appeal reversed (107 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1021) . With respect to the motion under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), the court noted that the municipal court judge had discretionary power to set aside the default under the remedial provisions of that statute, and the judge's exercise of that discretion could not be disturbed unless there is a clear showing of abuse (107 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1016) . As the moving party, defendant had the burden of proving he was entitled to relief. The court stated that neither mistake, inadvertence, or neglect will warrant relief unless on consideration of all the evidence, it is found to be of the excusable variety. To entitle defendant to relief, the acts that brought about the default must have been the acts of a reasonably prudent person under the same circumstances. Moreover, the credibility of the persons executing the declarations and the weight to be given their contents was for the determination of the municipal court. The court stated that when a party's failure to appear is the result of the neglect of his or her attorney, the party is charged with the neglect. It concluded that defendant failed to sustain his burden of showing that the neglect leading to his default was excusable, in that he merely showed the combined neglect of himself and his prior counsel with no excuse for it.

The court of appeal rejected the superior court's conclusion that the attorney's conduct could not be imputed to the defendant (107 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1017) . The court held that when the claimed mistake or neglect arises from the conduct of the party's attorney, the general rule is that the conduct must be shown to be of the excusable variety; otherwise, the default will not be set aside. The court noted that the reason for the rule is that the negligence of the attorney is imputed to the client, who is bound by the attorney's errors and omissions. An exception to the rule exists when the attorney's neglect is of that extreme degree amounting to positive misconduct, and the person seeking relief is relatively free from negligence. The court stated that the facts in the instant case do not fall within that exception, and that both the defendant and his attorney were negligent (i.e., defendant failed to appeal, and the attorney absented himself from the courtroom). The court stated that courts do not act as guardians for those who are grossly careless with their affairs (107 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1018) . The court also noted that a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 must be made "within a reasonable time" not exceeding six months after the judgment, order, or proceeding. In this case, defendant delayed more than four months after the default and judgment were taken against him before seeking relief; and at the time he sought to have the judgment and default set aside, he failed to set forth any reason for the delay. The court concluded that, absent an explanation of the delay in bringing the motion, the trial court could not excuse and set aside the default, because it was not empowered to dispense with the reasonable-time requirement. The court noted finally that the record was without evidence that would justify the setting aside of the judgment or default (107 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1019) .

Counsel should note, with respect to the discussion in Conway regarding the attorney's neglect, that Conway was decided prior to the 1988 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 473 that provides for mandatory granting of relief based on an attorney's affidavit of fault if the conduct caused the default. For discussion, see § 70.145[3].

[b] Showing of Diligence Required

In Kendall v. Barker (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 243 Cal. Rptr. 42 , the defendant filed a motion to set aside the default and default judgment entered against him, almost six months after the default was entered. The only evidence in support of the motion was the defense attorney's declaration, which stated under information and belief that the defendant's previous attorney excusably neglected to answer the complaint. The trial court granted the motion, requiring the defendant to pay sanctions because of the "long delay in seeking relief from default." Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed on the ground that the defendant failed to show diligence in filing the motion after discovery of default (197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 625-626) . The court noted that the discretion vested in the trial court to determine relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is not capricious or arbitrary, but impartial, guided and controlled in its exercise by fixed legal principles; it is a legal, rather than mental discretion, to be exercised in conformity with the spirit of the law, and in a manner to subserve and not to impede or defeat the ends of substantial justice. The court stated that a party who seeks relief under the statute must make a showing that because of some mistake, either of fact or of law, of the party or the party's counsel, or through some inadvertence, surprise, or neglect that may properly be considered excusable, the judgment or order from which he or she seeks relief should be reversed. In a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 the initial burden is on the moving party to prove excusable neglect by a preponderance of the evidence (197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 623-624) . In addition, the motion must be made within a reasonable time, in no case exceeding six months, after the judgment, order, or proceeding was taken (197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 624) . The court stated that although the determination of reasonableness is largely for the trial court, the limitation is not perfunctory. The moving party has a double burden: he or she must show a satisfactory excuse for the default, as well as diligence in making the motion after discovery of the default (197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 624-625) . The court observed that nothing in the record supports an inference that the defendant exercised diligence in seeking relief after knowledge of the default. Defendant's present counsel asserted that he unsuccessfully sought to contact plaintiff's counsel during the long period between the entry of default and filing of the motion, but the assertions were not supported by any evidence in the record. The court noted that statements of alleged fact in appellate briefs that are not contained in the record and were never presented to the trial court are disregarded by the appellate court. Pursuant to case law, unexplained delays of more than three months in seeking relief from default after knowledge of its entry generally result in denial of relief (197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 625) . Inasmuch as the defendant waited almost twice that long to remedy the default after discovering its existence, he did not act within a reasonable time (197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 625-626) .

[c] Reasonable Time Test Is Independent Consideration

Benjamin v. Dalmo Mfg. Co. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 523, 190 P.2d 593 , was an appeal from a minute order and written order setting aside a default and default judgment taken against defendant corporation. Six days after defendant failed to appear in the action, defendant's default was taken and a formal judgment entered. Three and one-half months later, defendant moved to set aside the default, supported by affidavits of the president and secretary and accompanied by a verified answer. No counter affidavits were filed. The trial court granted defendant's motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473. Plaintiffs appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed, on the ground that defendant furnished no explanation for failing to move sooner than it did for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (31 Cal. 2d 523, 532-533) . The Court noted that defendant had not cited, nor did their independent research reveal, any case in which a court had set aside a default when there was an unexplained delay of anything approaching three months after full knowledge of the default (31 Cal. 2d 523, 529) . On the contrary, the Court stated, under the proper procedure, the moving party presents some explanation, by affidavit or testimony, of any extended delay, and the court then determines if the explanation is sufficient to justify granting relief (31 Cal. 2d 523, 529) . Defendant relied heavily on William Wolff & Co. v. Canadian P. Railway (1891) 89 Cal. 332, 337, 26 P. 825 , because of its statement that when a delay in instituting proceedings to set aside a default judgment does not appear to have been injurious to the rights of the other party, the six months' limitation prescribed by the statute should be considered as the only limit of reasonable time (31 Cal. 2d 523, 529) .

The Court in Benjamin noted that in Wolff, application for relief under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), was filed three days after the entry of the default judgment; some five months later, a defect was discovered in the application, and an amended application was filed. Meanwhile, the hearing had been delayed with the consent of both parties. In reviewing the situation, the Court in Wolff noted that the second application was substantially an amendment of the first, and for the purpose of determining the question of diligence, must be so regarded (31 Cal. 2d 523, 529-530) . Therefore, in Wolff the "reasonable time" of the making of the application was not open to dispute. The Court stated that although the statutory six-month limitation is the standard or criterion in all cases as the measure of the court's jurisdiction to grant relief in any event, the reasonable time test stands as an independent consideration. In any given situation, its determination, within the maximum six-month period, depends on the circumstances of the particular case (31 Cal. 2d 523, 530) . The Court acknowledged that when the plaintiff files no counter affidavit and makes no showing that he or she has suffered any prejudice or that injustice will result from the trial of the case on its merits, very slight evidence will be required to justify a court in setting aside the default. However, it held, that rule does not obviate a showing of compliance with the "reasonable time" requirement in making the motion (31 Cal. 2d 523, 531) .

The Court noted that in the case before it, the conduct of defendant's corporate officers in excuse for their inadvertence bearing on the entry of the default judgment, and their prompt action thereafter in mailing the process papers to defendant's attorney are fully presented in the record, but beyond that point "there is deep silence" (31 Cal. 2d 523, 531-532) . The Court also stated that although plaintiffs made no showing of prejudice, none was necessary until defendant had at least made some excuse for the delay in question. To hold otherwise (that in the absence of any explanation a delay of more than three months in undertaking to open a default can be excused), the Court held, would empower the trial court to dispense with the "reasonable time" requirement of the statute (31 Cal. 2d 523, 532) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.143

§ 70.143 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground that Motion Is Untimely [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Relief Not Based on Attorney Affidavit of Fault--Motion Brought Within Six Months From Entry of Judgment But Beyond Six-Months After Entry of Default

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.120[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT BECAUSE THE COURT HAS NO JURISDICTION TO GRANT RELIEF FROM THE DEFAULT IN THAT THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENTS ARE DISCRETE EVENTS AND THE MOVING PARTY HAS FILED FOR RELIEF UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b) MORE THAN SIX MONTHS AFTER THE DEFAULT WAS ENTERED.

Court Has Jurisdiction to Set Aside Default Judgment, but Not Default. When circumstances of the case indicate that the default and default judgments are discrete events, and the moving party files for relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) more than six months after the default was entered, but within six months after the judgment, the court has jurisdiction to grant relief from the judgment, but not the default (Rutan v. Summit Sports, Inc. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 965, 970, 219 Cal. Rptr. 381).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing the motion on additional particular grounds, for example, that motion is not timely (see, e.g., § 70.146 et seq.), or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted (see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.216). Additional points and authorities may be also be added, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief (see, e.g.,§ 70.230 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment should be set aside on the ground of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). This form is for use when the relief sought is not based on an attorney affidavit of fault, and that the court has no jurisdiction to grant relief from the default in that the default and default judgments are discrete events and the moving party has filed for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) more than six months after the default was entered.

For a form of points and authorities for use when the motion was brought within the six-month limitation period but not within a reasonable time generally, see § 70.142[1]. For a form of points and authorities for use when the motion was brought after the six-month limitation period, see § 70.140[1]. For a form of points and authorities for use in opposing a motion for relief based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, see § 70.145[1].

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.10 -70.41.

This form may be modified to oppose a motion to set aside that was filed more than six months after the entry of default, but within six months after the entry of default judgment, and the default and default judgment are not considered discrete events, such that the court lacks jurisdiction for any purposes under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and therefore may not vacate either the default or the default judgment.

This form may be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. When appropriate, this form may be combined with points and authorities for use in refuting a contention that the preoccupation of the moving party's attorney with other matters is sufficient ground to justify delay in seeking relief [see § 70.144[1]; see also § 70.212[1] (opposing the grant of relief on the ground of excusable neglect when showing in support of this ground in the moving party's attorney's assertion of the press of other business)].

This form may be combined with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with:

- Additional points and authorities showing that the motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148].

- Additional points and authorities showing that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.216; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]].

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court Has Jurisdiction to Set Aside Default Judgment, But Not Default

In Rutan v. Summit Sports, Inc. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 965, 219 Cal. Rptr. 381 , plaintiffs brought an action against defendants to recover on a promissory note and to obtain possession of an airplane securing the note. The complaint alleged default on the note and security agreement, and sought damages on the note, plus interest and attorney fees. Plaintiffs also requested orders permitting them to take possession of and sell the airplane and apply the net proceeds of sale to the debt. Defendants were served with the summons and complaint, but failed to respond. Plaintiffs requested entry of default, and the court entered the default of defendants. At a hearing, the court granted plaintiffs possession of the property, but continued the default judgment hearing, indicating that it wished to consider the details of sale of the airplane to assure that it would be conducted in a commercially reasonable manner. The following year, plaintiffs sold the airplane for an amount less than that prayed for in the complaint. After a hearing, the court approved the sale and, after deducting expenses from the sale proceeds, determined plaintiffs were entitled to a deficiency judgment, attorney fees, and costs. The default judgment was entered shortly thereafter. More than four months later, defendants made their first appearance in the action by moving to vacate the default and default judgment under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), or, alternatively, under the court's inherent equitable power. The trial court granted the motion on the sole ground that the deficiency judgment obtained was barred by plaintiffs' failure to comply with certain procedures under the California Uniform Commercial Code. Plaintiffs appealed, contending, inter alia, that the court lacked jurisdiction to set aside the default under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 and otherwise abused its equitable power to do so.

The court of appeal reversed in part and affirmed in part (and remanded the case for further determination), holding, inter alia, that the motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 was untimely with respect to the default itself, because it was not filed within six months of entry of default, as distinct from the default judgment (173 Cal. App. 3d 965, 970, 974) . With respect to the jurisdictional issue under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 the court noted that generally the six-month period within which to bring a motion to vacate under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 runs from the date of the default and not from the judgment taken after it. The reason for the rule, the court explained, is that vacation of the judgment alone ordinarily would constitute an idle act; if the judgment were vacated, the default would remain intact and permit immediate entry of another judgment giving the plaintiff relief in accordance with the complaint. Nonetheless, the court stated, the default and default judgment are separate procedures. The default judgment does not necessarily have any bearing on, and may be set aside without disturbing, the default. The court noted that in the case before it, the default and default judgment are discrete events (173 Cal. App. 3d 965, 970) . The court noted that plaintiffs sued for two different forms of relief: recovery of the debt owing on the promissory note, and possession of the collateral securing the note under the security agreement. The court observed that the trial court clearly never intended the default entered in the instant case to be conclusive of plaintiffs' right to a deficiency judgment; in granting plaintiffs possession of the collateral, the court expressly reserved jurisdiction to determine the reasonableness of any deficiency remaining between the proceeds of the sale of the plane and the full amount of the indebtedness (173 Cal. App. 3d 965, 971) . Inasmuch as defendants' motion was made more than six months after the default was entered, but within six months after the judgment, the court had jurisdiction under the statute to grant relief from the judgment, but not the default (173 Cal. App. 3d 965, 970) . (The court also stated that the basis of the trial court's order does not constitute grounds in equity for setting aside the default (173 Cal. App. 3d 965, 970) ; and remanded the matter for determination of compliance with notice requirements under the Commercial Code, which affects the validity of the default (173 Cal. App. 3d 965, 972-974) .)

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.144

§ 70.144 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground that Motion Is Untimely [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Relief Not Based on Attorney Affidavit of Fault--Attorney's Preoccupation With Other Matters Is Insufficient Reason for Delay

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.120[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE IT IS UNTIMELY, AND THE ASSERTION THAT THE MOVING PARTY'S ATTORNEY WAS PREOCCUPIED WITH OTHER MATTERS IS AN INSUFFICIENT GROUND FOR FAILURE TO SEEK RELIEF FROM A _____ [identify proceeding, e.g., DEFAULT] WITHIN A REASONABLE TIME.

Attorney's Preoccupation With Other Matters Is Insufficient Reason for Delay. The assertion that the moving party's attorney was preoccupied with other matters is an insufficient ground for failure to seek relief from a default within a reasonable time (Martin v. Taylor (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 112, 117, 72 Cal. Rptr. 847).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing the motion on additional particular grounds, for example, that motion is not timely (see, e.g., § 70.146 et seq.), or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted (see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.216). Additional points and authorities may be also be added, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief (see, e.g.,§ 70.230 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). This form may be used to refute the contention that the preoccupation of the moving party's attorney with other matters is sufficient ground to justify delay in seeking relief, when the relief sought is not based on an attorney affidavit of fault [see also § 70.212[1] (opposing the grant of relief on the ground of excusable neglect when showing in support of this ground in the moving party's attorney's assertion of the press of other business)].

For a form of points and authorities for use in opposing a motion for relief based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, see § 70.145[1].

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.10 -70.41.

This form may be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. This form may be combined with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with:

- Additional points and authorities showing that the motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148].

- Additional points and authorities showing that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.216; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]].

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney's Preoccupation With Other Matters Is Insufficient Reason for Delay

In Martin v. Taylor (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 112, 72 Cal. Rptr. 847 , defendants received the summons and complaint, and sent plaintiffs their check for the original amount agreed on by plaintiffs and defendants on the condition that it be accepted as payment in full. Plaintiffs returned the check, stating that it was returned on advice of counsel, and demanding a larger amount for the claim in addition to costs. Plaintiffs advised defendants they would dismiss the suit on receiving the principal amount, or they would accept a lower amount and litigate the question of the additional amount claimed. Defendants consulted their attorney, who requested them to obtain additional information with a view to filing a counterclaim. Their attorney did not contact either of the plaintiffs or their attorneys, nor did he in any manner let them know he was acting of defendants' behalf. He also did not seek an extension of time for defendants to appear. Plaintiffs, not hearing from defendants or their attorney, caused a default to be entered; a default judgment was entered the same day. Two weeks later, defendants conferred with their attorney, who telephoned plaintiffs' attorney and learned that the default judgment had been entered. The trial court denied defendants' motion for relief from the default and default judgment under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)).

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the inexcusable neglect of the defense attorney as well as the defendants themselves, precluded relief under the statute (267 Cal. App. 2d 112, 114-118) . The court noted that mere mistake, inadvertence, or neglect does not warrant relief unless, on a consideration of all the evidence, it is found to be excusable (267 Cal. App. 2d 112, 113) . Defendants contended that their failure to appear comes within the term "excusable neglect and mistake" in that plaintiffs' letter (included with the return check), stating that they would await word from the defendants or their counsel, misled them to believe that plaintiffs would allow them a "reasonable period of time" to negotiate the matter, and that there was no urgency. The court noted, however, that plaintiffs had made a prior demand for payment and after waiting a month, filed the complaint to enforce the demand. Under those circumstances, the court found it difficult to state that the delay in not appearing in the action within the time allowed by law was excusable under any of the grounds set forth in former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)). Moreover, the court stated, defendants had a second hurdle to clear: the burden of showing that their delay in instituting proceedings to set aside the default judgment was excusable (267 Cal. App. 2d 112, 115) . The motion, which was filed three days prior to the expiration of the six-month limitation period, was accompanied by a single declaration, that of the defendants' attorney, stating that the principal reason for the delay was due to his law partner's vacationing in Europe and the resultant backlog of work in the law office. The court held that the "busy attorney" reason for delay has been almost uniformly rejected by the courts as a ground for failure to seek relief from a default within a reasonable time. The court stated that to accept this ground as legal justification would be to discourage diligence in the prosecution of appeals and establish a precedent that might lead to vexatious delays (267 Cal. App. 2d 112, 117) . The court also noted that the defendants themselves were inexcusably negligent in their failure to remain in communication with their attorney after the default had been taken, and in their failure to pay him to take action (267 Cal. App. 2d 112, 117-118) .

Counsel should note that Martin was decided prior to the 1988 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 473 that provides for mandatory granting of relief based on an attorney's affidavit of fault if the conduct caused the default. For discussion, see § 70.145[3].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.145

§ 70.145 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground that Motion Is Untimely [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Relief Based on Attorney Affidavit of Fault

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.120[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT or DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL] BECAUSE THE MOTION IS UNTIMELY IN THAT THE MOTION IS BASED ON AN ATTORNEY'S AFFIDAVIT OF FAULT AND WAS NOT MADE WITHIN SIX MONTHS AFTER ENTRY OF THE _____ [JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL].

Attorney Affidavit of Fault Filed. An application for relief from default based on an attorney's affidavit of fault is untimely when it is not made within six months after the judgment has been entered (Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing the motion on additional particular grounds, for example, that motion is not timely (see, e.g.,§ 70.146 et seq.), or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted (see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.216). Additional points and authorities may be also be added, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief (see, e.g., § 70.230 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to the contention that default judgment or dismissal should be set aside on the ground of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). This form is for use when the motion for relief is based on an attorney affidavit of fault.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in § 70.12.

This form may be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. It may also be combined with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.216; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore set forth the relevant dates of entry of default and the date of the filing of the motion, and show that the motion is based on the moving party's attorney's affidavit of fault and was not made within six months after judgment had been entered [see [3], below]. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney Affidavit of Fault Filed

Whenever an application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is made no more than six months after entry of judgment, and is in proper form, and is accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect, the court is required to vacate any (1) resulting default entered by the clerk against his or her client and which will result in entry of a default judgment, or (2) resulting default judgment or dismissal entered against his or her client, unless the court finds that the default or dismissal was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise or neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. For further discussion, see the § 70.12[3], and § 70.120[2][c].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.146

§ 70.146 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground that Motion Is Untimely [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Proposed Responsive Pleading Is Untimely

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.120[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT TAKEN AGAINST THE DEFENDANT BECAUSE THE PROPOSED RESPONSIVE PLEADING WAS NOT FILED WITHIN SIX MONTHS OF THE ENTRY OF THE DEFAULT.

Proposed Responsive Pleading Must Be Filed Within Six-Month Period. A motion for relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) is not timely filed if the proposed responsive pleading is not filed within six month from the date of the default, even though the notice of motion itself is filed within that time (Puryear v. Stanley (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 291, 294-295, 218 Cal. Rptr. 196).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing the motion on additional particular grounds, for example, that motion is not timely (see, e.g., § 70.141 et seq.), or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted (see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.216). Additional points and authorities may be also be added, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief (see, e.g.,§ 70.230 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment should be set aside on the ground of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see Code Civ. Proc.

§ 473(b)].

The ground of opposition is that the proposed responsive pleading, a copy of which must accompany the application for relief, was not filed within six months after the entry of default [see Puryear v. Stanley (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 291, 294, 218 Cal. Rptr. 196 ; contra Job v. Farrington (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 338, 341, 257 Cal. Rptr. 210 (discussed under [3], below)]. For a reply memorandum taking a contrary position, see § 70.236[1] [see also discussion under [c], below].

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.10 -70.41.

This form may be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that the motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.145, 70.147, 70.148, or with additional points and authorities showing that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.216; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] and § 70.120[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore set forth the relevant dates of entry of default and the date of filing, if any, of the moving party's proposed responsive pleading.

In addition, inasmuch as there is a conflict of opinion at the appellate level on the issue set forth in this form (discussed under [c], below), counsel may wish to show facts supporting the conclusion that defendant's failure to file a responsive pleading within the six-month period precludes a finding of substantial compliance with the statute. This point would be particularly compelling if, for example, the proposed pleading was not filed at all, was filed substantially later than the six-month period, or was not filed prior to the default hearing [cf. Job v. Farrington (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 338, 340-341, 257 Cal. Rptr. 210 (finding substantial compliance based on filing of proposed pleading shortly after six-month period, and prior to default hearing)].

See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Conflict in Court of Appeal Decisions on Viability of Substantial Compliance

There is a conflict of opinion at the appellate level on the issue set forth in this form. Thus, the Court of Appeal of the Third Appellate District has ruled that, although a motion for relief from default and a default judgment is timely filed, the trial court is without jurisdiction to grant relief when the defendant fails to serve and file the proposed answer or other responsive pleading with the motion for relief or within the six-month period prescribed by the statute [Puryear v. Stanley (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 291, 293-295, 218 Cal. Rptr. 196 (distinguishing County of Los Angeles v. Lewis (1918) 179 Cal. 398, 399, 177 P. 154 , and Sousa v. Capital Co. (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 744, 759-761, 34 Cal. Rptr. 71 , both involving substantial compliance with the statute; see [3], below)]. In Puryear, the court affirmed the order denying relief from default and default judgment on the ground that, although the motion was timely filed, the proposed answer was not filed until after the six-month limitation period had passed.

However, the Court of Appeal of the Second Appellate District, Division 6, relying on the cases distinguished by Puryear, rejected Puryear and ruled to the contrary in a case involving substantially similar circumstances [Job v. Farrington (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 338, 340-341, 257 Cal. Rptr. 210] . In Job v. Farrington, the court reversed the order denying relief from default and default judgment when the motion for relief was timely filed within six months of entry of the default, but the proposed answer was not filed until after the six-month period had passed, although it was filed before the scheduled hearing on motion [Job v. Farrington (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 338, 340-341, 257 Cal. Rptr. 210] .

Citing Job, the Fifth Circuit held that a party substantially complies with the "accompanied by" requirement by filing the proposed answer sufficiently in advance of the hearing to permit the other party to prepare for the hearing [County of Stanislaus v. Johnson (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 832, 838, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73 , discussed in § 70.236[3]].

[d] Reply Memorandum

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.236[1] may be used to reply to the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Proposed Responsive Pleading Must Be Filed Within Six-Month Period

In Puryear v. Stanley (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 291, 218 Cal. Rptr. 196 , the defendant's motion to set aside a default and default judgment was noticed within six months of entry of default, but was unaccompanied by a proposed answer or other responsive pleading as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 473. The default and default judgments were entered on February 8 and February 15, respectively. Defendant noticed a motion under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), for hearing on July 26. The motion stated that the answer was attached to the motion, and that the answer would be presented as a supplement to the motion; but the proposed answer was not filed until August 23, the date the motion was heard by the trial court. The trial court denied relief on the ground that the motion was rendered untimely because of the untimely filing of the proposed responsive pleading. The defendant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the motion was untimely filed (172 Cal. App. 3d 291, 294-295) . The court noted that the single issue on appeal is whether the defect of the untimely filing of the pleading may be cured after the six-month period has expired. It noted that former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), provides that the application for relief must be accompanied by a copy of the answer or other pleading proposed to be filed; and must be made within a reasonable time, in no case exceeding six months, after the judgment, order, or proceeding was taken. The court stated that when application is not made within the six-month period, the court is without jurisdiction to grant relief from a judgment. It further stated that before the trial court can be called on to exercise its discretion in relieving a party from a default judgment, the party in default must show not only a good excuse for the default, but also that he or she has a meritorious defense to the action (172 Cal. App. 3d 291, 293) . The court held that the requirement that a pleading accompany the application for relief or that one be on file is mandatory, and failure to comply necessarily results in denial of relief (172 Cal. App. 3d 291, 293-294) . It noted that an application for relief from default is deemed to have been made when notice of the motion for relief is filed. In the instant case, defendant's notice of motion was filed within six months of the entry of default and default judgment, but the proposed answer was not served on plaintiff or received by the court until after the six months had expired. The court distinguished from the instant case two appellate court cases in which a responsive pleading was submitted to the trial court two days before service of the motion; and a motion for an order continuing time within which to plead accompanied the motion, and the proposed answer was filed prior to the default hearing (172 Cal. App. 3d 291, 294) .

The court rejected the defendant's reliance on a case in which the notice of motion was timely filed and accompanied by a proposed answer, but after the six-month period, the trial court permitted the defendant to file affidavits in support of the motion; holding that the concept of substantial compliance in that case could not properly be extended to the facts in the present case. The court concluded that because defendant's proposed answer was not submitted within the six-month period, the trial court correctly determined that it was without jurisdiction to grant relief (172 Cal. App. 3d 291, 295) .

Counsel should note that there is a conflict of authority on this issue among appellate courts. Puryear, discussed above, was decided by the Third Appellate District. The Second Appellate District expressly disagreed with Puryear, and in a case involving similar circumstances, held to the contrary. In Job v. Farrington (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 338, 257 Cal. Rptr. 210 , the Second District Court of Appeal reversed and remanded a trial court ruling based expressly on Puryear, holding instead that the defendant's filing of a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, supported by a declaration and points and authorities, but unaccompanied by a proposed responsive pleading, was timely filed based on the filing of the proposed answer shortly after expiration of the six-month period and prior to the default hearing. Job held that the doctrine that the statute should be construed "liberally with a view to substantial compliance" supports a finding of timely filing under the facts (172 Cal. App. 3d 291, 294) . In support of its holding, Job cited County of Los Angeles v. Lewis (1918) 179 Cal. 398, 400, 177 P. 154 , which stated that "[t]he plain object of the provision was simply to require the delinquent party seeking leave to contest on the merits, to show his good faith and readiness to at once file his answer in the event that leave is granted by producing a copy of the proposed answer for the inspection of his adversary and the court." Job also noted that the moving party may not file an answer until the court has ruled on the motion for relief (172 Cal. App. 3d 291, 295) .

Counsel should also note that the references in court opinions to the requirement of a showing of meritorious defense under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), may in some instances be questionable. For further discussion of this point, see § 70.10[2][e].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.147

§ 70.147 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground that Motion Is Untimely [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Alleged Fraud Is Intrinsic

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.120[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE THE ASSERTED FRAUD IS INTRINSIC AND THE MOVING PARTY FAILED TO FILE THE MOTION WITHIN _____ [SIX MONTHS or A REASONABLE TIME] OF THE ENTRY OF THE _____ [identify proceeding, e.g., DEFAULT].

A. Alleged Fraud Is Intrinsic Not Extrinsic. Alleged fraud consisting of deliberate, intentional misrepresentations, untruths, half truths, and deceitfully misleading affidavits, arguments, and declarations on the part of the opposing party, constitutes intrinsic, rather than extrinsic fraud (Buesa v. City of Los Angeles (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1537, 1545-1548, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 86 ; Beresh v. Sovereign Life Ins. Co. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 547, 553, 155 Cal. Rptr. 74).

B. Motion Based on Intrinsic Fraud Must Be Brought Within Six-Month Limitation Period. Although a motion based on extrinsic fraud may be brought pursuant to the court's equitable powers, without the time limitations of Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b), a motion based on intrinsic fraud is available only under statutory authority, and must be brought within the time limitations of the statute, that is, within six months from the date of default, and within a reasonable time after default (Beresh v. Sovereign Life Ins. Co. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 547, 552, 155 Cal. Rptr. 74).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing the motion on additional particular grounds, for example, that the motion is not timely (see, e.g., § 70.141 et seq.), or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted (see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.216). Additional points and authorities may be also be added, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief (see, e.g.,§ 70.230 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. The ground of opposition is that the motion was not filed in a timely manner, in that the motion was based on fraud, and, contrary to the assertion of the moving party that the fraud is extrinsic (and therefore not subject to the time limitations under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), the facts show that the fraud was intrinsic, and, inasmuch as the motion was not filed within the statutory time limitations, it is untimely [see, e.g., Beresh v. Sovereign Life Ins. Co. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 547, 552-555, 155 Cal. Rptr. 74] .

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in § 70.110[1].

This form may be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]].

It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that the motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.146, 70.148], or with additional points and authorities showing that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.231; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] and § 70.120[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Inasmuch as the opposing party must assert that the fraud is extrinsic, in order to circumvent the time limitation requirement under the statute, counsel should show why the conduct, if it does constitute fraud, constitutes intrinsic, rather than extrinsic fraud. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Alleged Fraud Is Intrinsic Not Extrinsic

In Buesa v. City of Los Angeles (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1537, 1545-1548, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 86 , after the two plaintiff police officers arrested a suspect, the defendant learned of alleged acts of misconduct by the plaintiffs arising from that arrest. The next day, a sergeant from the LAPD Internal Affairs Group was assigned to investigate the alleged misconduct. The Public Safety Officers Procedural Bill of Rights Act (Gov. Code § 3300 et seq. (POBRA)) provides a one-year statute of limitations for bringing police misconduct charges. The time runs from the discovery of the misconduct. The limitations period may be tolled while a criminal investigation or prosecution is pending. The sergeant asked LAPD superiors to toll the statute of limitations against the plaintiffs because of the pending criminal investigation. The Los Angeles Police Commission found the plaintiffs guilty of misconduct and recommended that they be discharged. Accordingly, the defendant terminated the plaintiffs.

The plaintiffs filed a petition for writ of administrative mandamus seeking review of their terminations. They alleged that the sergeant furnished a false declaration regarding the date of the criminal investigation, thereby fraudulently extending the tolling period authorized by POBRA. The trial court denied the petition.

The plaintiffs filed a separate action seeking damages against the defendant for violation of POBRA based upon the plaintiffs' claim for perjury in the underlying mandamus proceeding. The defendant filed a motion for judgment on the pleadings. The trial court granted the defendant's motion, holding that perjury is not a basis for collateral attack on a judgment.

On appeal, the plaintiffs argued that they were not collaterally attacking the mandate judgment, and therefore the doctrines of finality of judgments and collateral estoppel did not apply. They argued that their rights under POBRA were thwarted by the sergeant's alleged perjury. The court of appeal held that after the time for seeking a new trial has expired and any appeals have been exhausted, a final judgment may not be directly attacked and set aside on the ground that evidence has been suppressed, concealed, or falsified. Similarly, a judgment may not be collaterally attacked on the ground that evidence was falsified [177 Cal. App. 4th 1537, 1544-1545]. The court distinguished between intrinsic fraud, which may not be used to overthrow a judgment, and extrinsic fraud which can [177 Cal. App. 4th 1537, 1545-1546]. The court held that the introduction of perjured testimony is a classic example of intrinsic fraud [177 Cal. App. 4th 1537, 1545-1546]. The plaintiffs argued that the finality of judgments policy does not apply because their second action was based on different legal issues than their administrative mandate action. The court disagreed and held that, because the tolling issue was actually litigated in the mandate proceeding, a new claim based on the allegedly perjured declaration was a collateral attack on the mandate decision and was not allowed [177 Cal. App. 4th 1537, 1548].

In Beresh v. Sovereign Life Ins. Co. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 547, 155 Cal. Rptr. 74 , summary judgment was entered against the plaintiffs. Two months later, plaintiffs filed a notice of appeal. While the appeal was pending, plaintiffs also filed the first of two motions under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), to vacate the trial court's order granting summary judgment. The trial court denied the motion on the ground that it had no jurisdiction during pendency of appeal. More than six months after entry of the summary judgment, plaintiffs filed their second motion to vacate, in conjunction with an "Abandonment of Appeal" from the summary judgment they sought vacated. The trial court denied the motion on the ground that it was filed more than six months after entry of default, and therefore was untimely. The trial court stated that a motion to reconsider a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, filed after six months have expired from the date of default, does not relate back to the date of filing the original motion. Accordingly, all issues that could have been reconsidered on a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, including intrinsic fraud, could not be considered on the motion for reconsideration. The trial court also stated that although plaintiffs are correct in asserting that the running of the six-month limitations period does not prevent the filing of a motion based on extrinsic fraud, the facts alleged by plaintiffs amount at the most to intrinsic, not extrinsic, fraud. Plaintiffs appealed from the two orders denying their motions made under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), for relief from summary judgment.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the appeal from the denial of the first motion was untimely (and that the trial court's ruling regarding lack of jurisdiction was correct), and that the second motion to vacate was untimely filed (92 Cal. App. 3d 547, 551-555) . The court stated that although Code Civ. Proc. § 473 does not expressly refer to fraud, cases have nevertheless regarded fraud as an even more compelling ground for relief than mistake, which is an enumerated ground under the statute. If the fraud is extrinsic, equitable relief may be had without the time limitations under the statute. If the fraud is intrinsic (occurring in the course of an adversary hearing), equitable relief is unavailable, but a motion under the statute will lie (92 Cal. App. 3d 547, 552) . The court observed that although plaintiffs did not speak specifically in terms of extrinsic fraud in their appellate brief, they clearly based their second motion primarily on the power of the court to grant equitable relief from a judgment procured by extrinsic fraud. However, the court noted, the alleged fraud, consisting of deliberate, intentional misrepresentation, untruths, half truths, and deceitfully misleading affidavits, arguments, and declaration on the part of defendants, is clearly what courts have consistently characterized as intrinsic fraud (92 Cal. App. 3d 547, 553) .

The court stated that there is no question that in equity, a former judgment or decree may be set aside and annulled for some frauds; but the fraud must be extrinsic or collateral to the questions examined and determined in the action. In equity, a decree will not be vacated merely because it was obtained by forged documents or perjured testimony. The reason for the rule is that there must be an end of litigation. When parties have once submitted a matter, and when they have exhausted all review procedures, it must be regarded as final and conclusive, unless it can be shown that the jurisdiction of the court has been imposed on, or that the prevailing party, by some extrinsic or collateral fraud, has prevented a fair submission of the controversy. The court stated that extrinsic fraud consists of such conduct as keeping the unsuccessful party away from the court by a false promise of a compromise, or purposely keeping him or her in ignorance of the suit. It also exists when an attorney fraudulently pretends to represent a party, and connives at his or her defeat, or, being regularly employed, corruptly "sells out" the client's interest. In all such instances, the unsuccessful party is really prevented, by the fraudulent contrivance of his or her adversary, from having a trial. However, at trial, the party must be prepared to meet and expose perjury then and there (92 Cal. App. 3d 547, 553) . If he or she fails to prove an injustice on a motion for a new trial, and the judgment is affirmed on appeal, the party is without a remedy. Although the wrong committed is "grievous," the courts cannot remedy the evil without producing mischiefs far worse than the evil to be remedied. The court stated that endless litigation in which nothing was ever finally determined, would be worse than occasional miscarriages of justice (92 Cal. App. 3d 547, 554) .

Further, the court stated, California cases uniformly hold that the introduction of perjured testimony or false documents in a fully litigated case constitutes intrinsic fraud rather than extrinsic fraud. Inasmuch as plaintiffs failed to show that the summary judgment was procured by extrinsic fraud, the motion to vacate was untimely. The court also noted that if the second motion were to be considered a motion for reconsideration of the first motion, the result would be the same. Although there is no statutory ground for a motion for reconsideration in such a case, appellate courts have always recognized that a court has power, on a subsequent motion, to reconsider its prior decision denying a similar motion. However, because such a motion is considered a renewal of the previous motion, the subsequent motion must also meet the requirements of the statute (92 Cal. App. 3d 547, 554) .

[b] Motion Based on Intrinsic Fraud Must Be Brought Within Six-Month Limitation Period

Beresh v. Sovereign Life Ins. Co. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 547, 155 Cal. Rptr. 74 , is discussed under [a], above. The court of appeal stated that although Code Civ. Proc. § 473 does not expressly refer to fraud, cases have nevertheless regarded fraud as an even more compelling ground for relief than mistake, which is an enumerated ground under the statute. If the fraud is extrinsic, equitable relief may be had without the time limitations under the statute. If the fraud is intrinsic (occurring in the course of an adversary hearing), equitable relief is unavailable, but a motion under the statute will lie (92 Cal. App. 3d 547, 552) .

99 of 156 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.148

§ 70.148 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground that Motion Is Untimely [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Motion Not Filed Within Shortened Statutory Limitation Period Regarding Property Rights

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.120[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE IT IS UNTIMELY, IN THAT THE NOTICE OF MOTION WAS NOT FILED WITHIN 90 DAYS AFTER THE ENTRY OF DEFAULT, PURSUANT TO THE REQUIREMENT UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b), REGARDING AN ACTION INVOLVING PROPERTY RIGHTS.

Action Involving Property Rights. In the case of a judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding determining the ownership or right to possession of real or personal property, without extending the six-month period under the general rule of limitation, when a notice in writing is personally served within California both on the party against whom the judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding has been taken, and on his or her attorney of record, if any, notifying the party and attorney that the order, judgment, dismissal, or other proceedings was taken against him or her, and that any rights the party has to apply for relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) shall expire 90 days after service of the notice, then the application must be made within 90 days after service of the notice on the defaulting party or his or her attorney of record, if any, whichever service is later (Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing the motion on additional particular grounds, for example, that motion is not timely (see, e.g., § 70.141 et seq.), or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted (see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.216). Additional points and authorities may be also be added, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief (see, e.g.,§ 70.230 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment should be set aside on the ground of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. The ground of opposition is that the motion was not filed in a timely manner pursuant to the shortened limitation period applicable to an action concerning a proceeding determining the ownership or right to possession of real or personal property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)].

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in § 70.10 -70.41.

This form may be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that the motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.147], or with additional points and authorities showing that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.231; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]]. This form of points and authorities may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] and § 70.120[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore set forth the nature of the action and show the applicability of the relevant limitation provision; and should also set forth all the relevant dates. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.149-70.159

[Reserved]

§§ 70.149[Reserved]

101 of 156 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.160

§ 70.160 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.120[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE THERE IS INSUFFICIENT SHOWING OF AN EXCUSABLE MISTAKE, WITHIN THE MEANING OF CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b), THAT WOULD ENTITLE THE MOVING PARTY TO RELIEF.

No Showing That Mistake Excusable. Mere mistake, inadvertence, or neglect does not warrant relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) unless, on a consideration of all the evidence, it is found to be excusable (Martin v. Taylor (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 112, 113, 72 Cal. Rptr. 847).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing the motion on particular grounds, for example, that motion is not timely (see, e.g., § 70.141 et seq.). When appropriate, add additional points and authorities asserting that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted in the motion (see, e.g., §§ 70.161 -70.216). Additional points and authorities may be also be added, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief (see, e.g.,§ 70.230 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of mistake under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), because there is an insufficient showing of entitlement to relief for a mistake [see, e.g., Martin v. Taylor (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 112, 113, 72 Cal. Rptr. 847] . For points and authorities for use when the defendant has asserted the specific ground of a mistake of law, but has failed to show that a mistake of law occurred, see § 70.161[1].

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.50 -70.64.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that the motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148], or with additional points and authorities showing that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.161 -70.216; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] and § 70.120[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore show why the mistake was not excusable under the circumstances. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

Whenever an application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, the court must vacate any resulting default judgment or dismissal entered against his or her client unless the court finds that the default or dismissal was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. For further discussion, see the § 70.12[3] and § 70.120[2][c] [see also § 70.140 et seq.].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Showing That Mistake Excusable

Martin v. Taylor (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 112, 72 Cal. Rptr. 847 , is discussed in § 70.144[3].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] No Showing That Mistake Excusable

In Drinnon v. Oliver (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 571, 101 Cal. Rptr. 120 , an action arising from a traffic accident, the court of appeal reversed a trial court order granting relief under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), to the defendant's insurer as intervenor. After the accident occurred, the insurer denied coverage, and plaintiff obtained a default judgment against the defendant. Plaintiff and defendant settled their controversy, and commenced an action against the defendant's insurer. At that point, the insurer moved to set aside the default, intervene in the action between plaintiff and defendant, and file an answer on behalf of the defendant. The trial court granted the motion, and plaintiff and defendant appealed. The court of appeal reversed, on several issues, including estoppel and notice (24 Cal. App. 3d 571, 579-586) . The court noted parenthetically that the insurer was well aware of its mistake, and could not obtain relief under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), because it did not act with the same degree of diligence as a person of ordinary prudence usually bestows on his or her important business affairs (24 Cal. App. 3d 571, 586) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.161

§ 70.161 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--No Showing of Mistake of Law

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) based on excusable mistake (see § 70.160[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE THERE IS INSUFFICIENT SHOWING OF A MISTAKE OF LAW.

No Showing of Mistake of Law. No relief is available under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) based on a mistake of law, when there is no showing of a mistake of law (Ludka v. Memory Magnetics International (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 316, 321, 101 Cal. Rptr. 615).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of mistake under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), because defendant has asserted the specific ground of a mistake of law, but has failed to show that a mistake of law occurred.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.50 -70.64.

This form should be combined with a form of memorandum opposing a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) based on excusable mistake generally [see § 70.160[1]].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Showing of Mistake of Law

In Ludka v. Memory Magnetics International (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 316, 101 Cal. Rptr. 615 , the trial court denied defendant's motion under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), for relief from a default against it. Defendant's motion was filed more than three months after the default was entered, and prior to entry of default judgment. Following denial of that motion, the defendant filed a second motion to vacate the order denying the motion to vacate the default and set aside the judgment, which was also denied. Defendant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that there was no showing in support of the motion, and that the motion was untimely filed (25 Cal. App. 3d 316, 321-324) . The court noted that the basis of defendant's motion to vacate the default was that it had not been properly served. Defendant presented declarations asserting that copies of the summons and complaint were given to people in defendant's office building who were not employed by or associated with defendant's business. The opposing declarations of plaintiff's counsel recited his previous difficulties in attempting to serve defendant, and his decision to order "abode service" to be made on defendant (that is, leaving the papers at office or home of the person being served, and mailing a copy to the person being served, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20). Another declaration in opposition to the motion stated that defendant used many corporate titles, that an employee of one of those corporations had been served, and that defendant's reception area was the only public access to defendant's offices.

The court noted that the lower court has discretionary power to decide the issue growing out of a motion for relief under the remedial provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 473, and its exercise of that discretion will not be disturbed by an appellate tribunal unless there is a clear showing of abuse. The court stated that, tested by this elementary principle, the trial court was will within its discretion in denying the motion, based primarily on two considerations: (1) effective service on defendant of the summons and complaint; and (2) the untimeliness of the motion. With respect to the issue of service, the court noted that the trial court could well find that a copy of the summons and complaint had been left during usual office hours of defendant with the person who was apparently in charge, and that plaintiff properly mailed a copy to defendant pursuant to the statutory requirements. The court noted that, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20, service was completed on the 10th day after mailing. The court stated that, although a mistake of law may be grounds for granting relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, in the instant case there is no showing that defendant, in fact, labored under any mistake of law. The court found that the "totally erroneous and entirely gratuitous" advice of one declarant (who observed the delivery of papers in the reception area of defendant's office building) that service had not been effected, did not constitute a mistake of defendants; he himself declared that he was not an officer, employee, agent, or otherwise associated with defendant (25 Cal. App. 3d 316, 321) .

For further discussion of the timeliness issue in Ludka, see § 70.142[3].

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.162

§ 70.162 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Attorney's Mistake of Law--Mistake Is Not Justifiable

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) based on excusable mistake (see § 70.160[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE THE MISTAKE OF LAW COMMITTED BY THE ATTORNEY FOR THE MOVING PARTY IS NOT EXCUSABLE.

Justifiability of Mistake of Law Required for Relief. An attorney's failure to determine the correct law will not support the grant of relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b), if the error is not reasonable or justifiable under the circumstances (Martin v. Johnson (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 595, 605-607, 151 Cal. Rptr. 816 ; A & S Air Conditioning v. John J. Moore Co. (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 617, 620, 7 Cal. Rptr. 592).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of mistake, based on a mistake of law made by the moving party's attorney at the time the default was taken [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. The ground of opposition is that the mistake was not excusable or justifiable [see A & S Air Conditioning v. John J. Moore Co. (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 617, 620, 7 Cal. Rptr. 592] . For a form of memorandum that includes points and authorities opposing relief on the ground that an attorney's negligence is imputed to the client, see § 70.124[1].

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.60 -70.64.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside based on excusable mistake [see § 70.160[1]]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that the motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148], or with additional points and authorities showing that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160, 70.161, 70.163 -70.216; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] and § 70.120[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore show why the mistake was not justifiable, for example, that it was caused by the attorney's ignorance of the relevant law, coupled with his or her laxness or negligence in a matter that was not complex or inherently confusing [see Security Truck Line v. Monterey (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 441, 445, 257 P.2d 755] . See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

Whenever an application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, the court must vacate any resulting default judgment entered against his or her client unless the court finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. For further discussion, see the § 70.12[3] and § 70.120[2][c] [see also § 70.140 et seq.].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Justifiability of Mistake of Law Required for Relief

In Martin v. Johnson (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 595, 151 Cal. Rptr. 816 , a defamation action, the trial court denied plaintiff's motion to set aside a summary judgment in defendants' favor. At the hearing on the summary judgment motion, defendants argued that plaintiff's affidavits in opposition to the motion were legally defective because they contained hearsay and were not based on the declarant's personal knowledge. On that basis, the trial court granted defendants' motion to strike certain crucial portions of plaintiff's declaration and exhibits; and ultimately awarded summary judgment to defendants. Plaintiff filed a motion to set aside the judgment under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)). In support of the motion, plaintiff asserted that his attorney inadvertently and mistakenly filed affidavits that were not within plaintiff's personal knowledge. His attorney asserted in a declaration that he attached the defective affidavits to the opposition papers because he waited too long to file them (and did not wish to seek a continuance), and believed the affidavits were sufficient to allow plaintiff to state what other persons had told him personally. The trial court denied plaintiff's motion to set aside the summary judgment, as well as a motion for a new trial. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed (88 Cal. App. 3d 595, 608) . With regard to the motion to set aside the judgment, the court stated that it is axiomatic that a motion for relief under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), is addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court, and that the exercise of that discretion will not be disturbed on appeal absent a clear showing of abuse. The discretion to be exercised is that of the trial court, not that of the reviewing court. Therefore, even if the reviewing court might have ruled otherwise in the first instance, the trial court's order will not be reversed unless, as a matter of law, it is not supported by the record. The court stated that the law favors trials on the merits, and that courts are loath to penalize a litigant for the omission of counsel, particularly when the litigant has acted promptly, and has relied on the attorney to protect the client's rights (88 Cal. App. 3d 595, 604) . Nevertheless, to obtain relief under the statute, the plaintiff must demonstrate that the mistake or neglect on the part of counsel was excusable (88 Cal. App. 3d 595, 604-605) . The court noted that California courts have expressly taken the position that ignorance of the law, at least when coupled with negligence in failing to look it up, will not justify a trial court in granting relief, and those facts will certainly sustain a denial of relief (88 Cal. App. 3d 595, 605) . By contrast, an honest mistake when the problem is complex and debatable, and when there are no elements of negligence, laxness, or indifference, may compel the granting of a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (88 Cal. App. 3d 595, 606) . In the present case, the court noted that the declaration offered by plaintiff's original counsel fails to offer any adequate excuse to permit relief under the statute, but rather demonstrates a failure to read carefully the procedural requirements with regard to avoiding an adverse summary judgment motion, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 437c (88 Cal. App. 3d 595, 606-607) . The concluding assertion that "the affidavits were mistakenly thought to be legally sufficient" fails to explain why the obvious mistake occurred; and the circumstances involve an easy, uncomplicated rule of law expressly embodied in the Code of Civil Procedure. The court concluded that the misconception was not reasonable nor justifiable; and that the trial court consequently did not abuse its discretion in denying the motion (88 Cal. App. 3d 595, 607) .

In A & S Air Conditioning v. John J. Moore Co. (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 617, 7 Cal. Rptr. 592 , the trial court denied defendants' motion to set aside a default and default judgment entered in plaintiff's action on two promissory notes. The damages awarded included attorneys' fees in the sum of $6,000. When defendants were served with the summons and complaint, they did not contest their liability on the notes, but considered the attorneys' fee figure too high. In a telephone conversation with defendants' attorney, plaintiff's attorney stated that the figure represented fees for a contested case, and that in the case of default, the fees allowed would be nominal. After defendants' attorney became aware of the actual fees awarded, he moved to set aside the default and default judgment, arguing in part that the figure was too high, and that he mistakenly believed that the court would follow a particular (lower) fee schedule.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court noted that if there is any reasonable ground on which the action of the lower court may be upheld, it was bound to do so (184 Cal. App. 2d 617, 619-620) . It rejected defendants' argument that their attorney's mistaken belief as to the rules governing fees on default matters required the default be vacated. The court pointed out that although an honest mistake of law is a valid ground for relief when a problem is complex and debatable, ignorance of the law coupled with negligence in ascertaining it will certainly sustain a finding denying relief. The court observed that because it would have been simple for the attorney to determine the applicable fee schedule, the mistake was not excusable (184 Cal. App. 2d 617, 620) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Justifiability of Mistake of Law Required for Relief

In Hanooka v. Pivko (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1553 , 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 70 , defendants moved for summary judgment on the ground that the one-year limitations period of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5had run. The trial court granted the motion, finding that the one-year period had not been extended by virtue of Code Civ. Proc. § 364(d), which provides an extension when notice of intent to file a medical malpractice action is served within the last ninety days, because the defendant-doctors had not received actual notice of the intent to sue. Plaintiffs sought relief pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473 on the basis of plaintiffs' counsel's mistake of law in complying with the service requirements for the notice of intent to sue. The trial court denied the motion, and the court of appeal affirmed. The court of appeal held that Section 473 could not be used to extend the statute of limitations. Moreover, the court went on to state that even if Section 473 did apply, the counsel's mistake in failing to properly effectuate service was not based on a reasonable mistake of law (22 Cal. App. 4th 1553, 1563) .

In Garroway v. Jennings (1922) 189 Cal. 97, 207 P. 554 , defendant moved to set aside the default and default judgment entered against him on the ground that his attorney mistakenly believed that the trial court's order overruling the demurrer to plaintiff's complaint was appealable and that an appeal would stay all further proceedings. The Supreme Court affirmed denial of the motion, noting that the attorney could have remedied his failure if he had read the Code of Civil Procedure; and, instead of showing an excuse for his failure, the attorney's affidavit showed that the mistake was due to his own gross neglect to take any pains whatsoever to inform himself as to the law affecting his case (189 Cal. 97, 99) .

In Guenter v. Lomas & Nettleton Co. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 460, 189 Cal. Rptr. 470 , a consolidated action asserting a fraudulent reconveyance of a deed of trust, the court of appeal affirmed, inter alia, the trial court's denial of plaintiff's motion to set aside an order striking class action allegations of the complaint and striking a document purporting to associate nonparties as plaintiffs. The plaintiff's attorney asserted, among other things, that he relied on the apparent propriety of filing that document, based on the trial court's suggestion to do so, and opposing counsel's failure to object at the time. The court held that plaintiff was not entitled to relief on the ground of reasonable mistake, because the particular mistake of law is not of the type that caused the attorney to fail to make the showing he could have made at the hearing on the motion to strike; and moreover, that he is not entitled to blame the opposing counsel for his failure to determine correctly the validity of the document in question (140 Cal. App. 3d 460, 466-467) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.163

§ 70.163 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Attorney's Mistake of Law Is Not Excusable--Ignorance and Negligence Compel Denial of Relief

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) based on excusable mistake (see § 70.160[1])].

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE THE MISTAKE OF LAW IS COUPLED WITH NEGLIGENCE IN ASCERTAINING IT.

Ignorance and Negligence Compel Denial of Relief. Relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) is not justified based on ignorance of the law, coupled with negligence in ascertaining it (A & S Air Conditioning v. John J. Moore Co. (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 617, 620, 7 Cal. Rptr. 592 ; Security Truck Line v. Monterey (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 441, 445, 257 P.2d 755).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of mistake, based on a mistake of law made by the moving party's attorney at the time the default was taken [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. The ground of opposition is that the attorney was negligent in ascertaining the law.

For a form of memorandum opposing relief based on mistake of law generally, see § 70.162[1]. For a form of memorandum that includes points and authorities opposing relief on the ground that an attorney's negligence is imputed to the client, see § 70.124[1].

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.50 -70.64.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside based on excusable mistake [see § 70.160[1]].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

Whenever an application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, the court must vacate any resulting default judgment entered against his or her client unless the court finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. For further discussion, see the § 70.12[3] and § 70.120[2][c] [see also § 70.140 et seq.].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Ignorance and Negligence Compel Denial of Relief

A & S Air Conditioning v. John J. Moore Co. (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 617, 7 Cal. Rptr. 592 , is discussed in § 70.162[3].

In Security Truck Line v. Monterey (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 441, 257 P.2d 755 , plaintiff filed its complaint on October 11. On October 25, after a hearing, the trial court issued a preliminary injunction from which defendants appealed on November 14. The city attorney erroneously believed that defendants' appeal operated as a stay of all proceedings in the action. On November 16, plaintiff, after having warned defendants two weeks earlier, caused defendants' default to be entered. On November 20, defendants moved to set aside the default. At the hearing on the motion, the trial court denied the motion and entered judgment in plaintiff's favor.

The court of appeal affirmed (117 Cal. App. 2d 441, 446) . The court stated that an honest mistake of law is a ground for granting relief, and, in a proper case, the granting of relief may be compelled if the mistake is an honest one, the problem involved is complex and debatable, and there are no elements of negligence, laxness, or indifference. On the other hand, ignorance of the law, at least when coupled with negligence in failing to look it up, will not justify a trial court in granting relief (117 Cal. App. 2d 441, 445) . Noting that its function was only to determine if the trial court's holding was within its discretion, the court found that the problem of law involved was a simple one and its solution was readily ascertainable (117 Cal. App. 2d 441, 445-446) . Coupled with the fact that plaintiff had warned defendants that it would take their default, it was clear that the trial court was justified in believing that the failure to look up the law indicated at least indifference (117 Cal. App. 2d 441, 446) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.164-70.169

[Reserved]

§§ 70.164[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.170

§ 70.170 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Excusable Inadvertence [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.120[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE THERE IS INSUFFICIENT SHOWING OF EXCUSABLE INADVERTENCE, WITHIN THE MEANING OF CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b), THAT WOULD ENTITLE THE MOVING PARTY TO RELIEF.

Inadvertence Inexcusable. Inadvertence that is wholly inexcusable will not support entitlement to relief from default under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) (Shearman v. Jorgensen (1895) 106 Cal. 483, 485, 39 P. 863 ; Davis v. Kay (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 680, 683-684, 110 Cal. Rptr. 198).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing the motion on additional, particular grounds, e.g., that the motion is not timely (see, e.g., §§ 70.140 -70.148), or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on any other specific ground or grounds asserted (see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.163, §§ 70.180 -70.216). Additional points and authorities may be also be added, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.230, 70.231).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of inadvertence [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. The ground of opposition is that the inadvertence asserted by the moving party will not support entitlement to relief [see, e.g., Kendall v. Barker (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 624, 243 Cal. Rptr. 42] . For points and authorities opposing the motion on ground that mere inadvertence in the abstract is not a ground for relief, see § 70.171[1].

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.70, 70.71.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that the motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148], or with additional points and authorities showing that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.163, 70.171 -70.216; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] and § 70.120[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore show that the asserted inadvertence is inexcusable under the circumstances set forth. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

Whenever an application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, the court must vacate any resulting default judgment entered against his or her client unless the court finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. For further discussion, see the § 70.12[3] and § 70.120[2][c] [see also § 70.140 et seq.].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inadvertence Inexcusable

In Shearman v. Jorgensen (1895) 106 Cal. 483, 39 P. 863 , defendants' attorney received a notice from plaintiff's attorney that his demurrer to plaintiff's complaint had been overruled and that he had 10 days to answer. Taking more than 10 days to draft an answer because he mistakenly believed that the notice was of no legal effect, he did prepare the answer but failed to serve or file it. No further showing was made at the default judgment hearing. The trial court granted defendants' motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph, on grounds of mistake of law and inadvertence. Plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed and remanded (106 Cal. 483, 485) . With respect to the ground of inadvertence, the Court stated that the moving party's showing was "wholly inadequate" to meet the needs of the statute. The Court stated that the reasons, causes, and excuses for the inadvertence are matters that concern the Court, but were not stated by the moving party. The Court held that inadvertence in the abstract is no plea on which to set aside a default. The trial court must be made acquainted with the reasons for the inadvertence and, if satisfactory, will act on them and relieve the moving party from burdens caused by them. However, if the inadvertence is wholly inexcusable, as if it arises from gross negligence, the court will not grant relief (106 Cal. 483, 485) .

In Davis v. Kay (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 680, 110 Cal. Rptr. 198 , a default judgment was entered against defendants after defendants failed to file a responsive pleading within the statutory time allowed. Defendant filed a motion under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), for relief from the default judgment on the ground of excusable neglect attributable to counsel's secretary. The trial court granted the motion. Plaintiff filed a motion for summary judgment; defendants filed no opposition to the motion, and did not appear on the date set for the summary judgment hearing. The trial court granted the summary judgment motion. Shortly thereafter, defendants filed a motion under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), to vacate the summary judgment, also on the ground of excusable neglect because of an oversight by counsel's secretary. The trial court granted the motion to set aside the judgment. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that no showing was made in support of the motion to set aside the summary judgment (34 Cal. App. 3d 680, 684) . The court noted that the affidavit of the secretary for defendants' counsel stated that the secretary failed to enter the motion on counsel's calendar, and that counsel was therefore unaware of the date of the hearing on the motion for summary judgment. It observed that the granting of relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is largely a matter of discretion, and unless an abuse of discretion affirmatively appears, the ruling will not be disturbed on appeal. The court stated that "the busiest attorneys with completely competent secretaries generally charge their minds with pressing and complex court commitments which appear to be imminent." The court stated that it could not assume that any attorney examining the notice of motion would not have noted the time it was set to be heard, especially, as was the case, if the attorney told the secretary that he intended to prepare counter-declarations. The court noted with disapproval that counsel for defendant waited 23 days after they were notified of the ruling on the summary judgment motion before taking any steps to vacate it. It observed that the tactics of defense counsel was to "proceed with all deliberate delay," and it stated that the court would not tolerate such tactics (34 Cal. App. 3d 680, 683) . The court held that the trial court abused its discretion with respect to vacating the judgment. It stated that the inadvertence referred to in Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is not inadvertence in the abstract, but it must be inadvertence that is satisfactory (34 Cal. App. 3d 680, 683-684) . The court held that in the instant case, defense counsel should have been placed on notice of the alleged unreliability of his secretary when the first default was entered, but irrespective of the secretary's omission the first time, the record clearly charges counsel with personal notice of the date of the summary judgment hearing. The court sated that no showing of excusable neglect or inadvertence is made that has a legal, equitable, or otherwise valid claim on judicial discretion for relief (34 Cal. App. 3d 680, 684) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Inadvertence Inexcusable

In Baratti v. Baratti (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 917, 242 P.2d 22 , the trial court denied defendant wife's motion to have her default and the related interlocutory decree of divorce vacated on the ground of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, and excusable neglect on her part. Her affidavit in support of the motion stated that, had she known she was pregnant at the time of her default, she would not have permitted the default to be taken. She further stated that she had been confused by the divorce suit and had not known what to do about it. The court of appeal affirmed, stating that inadvertence is defined as lack of heedfulness or attentiveness, inattention, or fault from negligence. The court noted that defendant presented no excuse for her failure to file for relief until five months after entry of her default, nor did she make a showing of any of the grounds claimed for relief. Rather, her motion to be relieved from the default was due solely to a change of mind, for which no relief was available (109 Cal. App. 2d 917, 921-923) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.171

§ 70.171 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Excusable Inadvertence [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Inadvertence In the Abstract Is Not Ground for Relief

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) based on excusable inadvertence (see § 70.170[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE MERE INADVERTENCE IN THE ABSTRACT IS NOT A GROUND FOR RELIEF.

Inadvertence in the Abstract. Inadvertence in the abstract is not a ground for relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b)(Shearman v. Jorgensen (1895) 106 Cal. 483, 485, 39 P. 863 ; Kendall v. Barker (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 624, 243 Cal. Rptr. 42).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of inadvertence [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. The ground of opposition is that mere inadvertence in the abstract is not a ground for relief.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.70, 70.71.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) based on inadvertence [see § 70.170[1]]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that the motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148], or with additional points and authorities showing that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.163, 70.170, 70.180 -70.216; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] and § 70.120[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore show that the moving has failed to state the reasons, causes, and excuses for the inadvertence [Shearman v. Jorgensen (1895) 106 Cal. 483, 485, 39 P. 863] . See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

Whenever an application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, the court must vacate any resulting default judgment entered against his or her client unless the court finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. For further discussion, see the § 70.12[3] and § 70.120[2][c] [see also § 70.140 et seq.].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inadvertence in the Abstract

Shearman v. Jorgensen (1895) 106 Cal. 483, 39 P. 863 , is discussed in § 70.170[3].

The facts and procedural background of Kendall v. Barker (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 243 Cal. Rptr. 42 , are discussed in § 70.142[3][b]. In Kendall, the court of appeal held that the moving party under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), has a double burden: he or she must show a satisfactory excuse for the default; and must also show diligence in making the motion after discovery of the default (197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 625) . The court in Kendall also held that the moving party made no showing to support the entitlement to relief under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)). The court noted that the defendant's entire substantive showing in support of the motion for relief consisted of a conclusory declaration by his counsel stating on information and belief that defendant's previous attorney "excusably neglected" to answer the complaint. The court stated that the reasons, causes, and excuses for the inadvertence are matters that concern the court, but were not stated by the moving party. The court held that inadvertence in the abstract is no plea on which to set aside a default. The court must be made acquainted with the reasons for the inadvertence and, if satisfactory, will act on them and relieve the moving party from burdens caused by them. However, if the inadvertence is wholly inexcusable, as if it arises from gross negligence, the court will not grant relief (citing Shearman v. Jorgensen (1895) 106 Cal. 483, 39 P. 863 , discussed in § 70.140[3]) (197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 624) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Inadvertence in the Abstract

The facts and procedural background of Davis v. Thayer (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 170 Cal. Rptr. 328 , are discussed § 70.190[3][b]. In Davis, the court of appeal held that the defendant was not entitled to relief under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), because his conduct in permitting the matter to go to default was not the result of mistake, inadvertence, or surprise; and that it was solely the consequence of inexcusable neglect (113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 906) . In the course of discussing defendant's failure to show a legitimate ground under the statute for relief, the court also held that inadvertence in the abstract is no plea on which to set aside a default (113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 905) .

Davis v. Kay (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 680, 110 Cal. Rptr. 198 , is discussed in § 70.170[3].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.172-70.179

[Reserved]

§§ 70.172[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.180

§ 70.180 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Surprise [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.120[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE THERE IS INSUFFICIENT SHOWING OF SURPRISE, WITHIN THE MEANING OF CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b), THAT WOULD ENTITLE THE MOVING PARTY TO RELIEF.

No Showing of Surprise. Relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b), on the ground of surprise, is not available unless the surprise alleged is some condition or situation in which a party is unexpectedly placed to his or her injury, without any fault of the party, under circumstances that he or she was not reasonably called on to anticipate and that ordinary foresight could not have guarded against (Lint v. Chisholm (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 615, 620, 177 Cal. Rptr. 314).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing the motion on additional, particular grounds, e.g., that the motion is not timely (see, e.g., §§ 70.140 -70.148), or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on any other specific ground or grounds asserted (see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.171, 70.190 -70.216). Additional points and authorities may be also be added, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.230, 70.231).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of surprise [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. The ground of opposition is that the moving party has failed sufficiently to show that the default was caused by surprise [see Lint v. Chisholm (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 615, 620, 177 Cal. Rptr. 314] .

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.80 -70.81.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that the motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148], or with additional points and authorities showing that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.171, 70.190 -70.216; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] and § 70.120[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore show that the asserted surprise is not a condition or circumstance that warrants relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), for example, that the moving party was at fault and should have anticipated and prevented the entry of default. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

Whenever an application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, the court must vacate any resulting default judgment entered against his or her client unless the court finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. For further discussion, see the § 70.12[3] and § 70.120[2][c] [see also § 70.140 et seq.].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Showing of Surprise

In Lint v. Chisholm (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 615, 177 Cal. Rptr. 314 , plaintiff filed a complaint in municipal court based on alleged conversion, breach of contract, and fraud. Defendant moved unsuccessfully for summary judgment; and plaintiff filed an amended complaint. Defendant answered and cross complained. Defendant removed the case to superior court, and was ordered to pay transfer fees, which he failed to do. Plaintiff eventually paid the transfer fees, and trial was set in superior court. Notice was mailed to both parties at the addresses listed with the court clerk. Defendant failed to appear at trial. After hearing, plaintiff was granted relief as prayed. The trial court denied defendant's motion for relief under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)). Defendant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed after modification of the interest award, holding, inter alia, that the defendant failed to assert any ground for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (121 Cal. App. 3d 615, 620-621, 625) . The court rejected defendant's assertion that the trial court erred in rejecting his claim of surprise and excusable neglect. He argued that overwhelming domestic problems resulted in his inability to receive mail regularly during the period in which notice was sent; but conceded that he did not notify the clerk of any change of address. The court stated that the events described by the defendant do not constitute surprise or excusable neglect under the statute. It held that the "surprise" contemplated by the statute is some condition or situation in which a party is unexpectedly placed to his or her injury, without any fault on the part of the moving party, under circumstances that he or she was not reasonably called on to anticipate and that ordinary foresight could not have guarded against. Excusable neglect is that neglect that might have been the act of a reasonably prudent person under the same circumstances. The court concluded that defendant did not show that: (1) his failure to notify the court of his address change, or alternatively to otherwise adequately arrange for mail delivery, was the act of a reasonably prudent person under the same circumstances; or (2) the nonreceipt occurred without any fault of his own (121 Cal. App. 3d 615, 620) . Inasmuch as the defendant was an attorney licensed to practice in other jurisdictions, the court noted that he was aware of his duty to inform the court of any change of address, and that his failure to do so does not enable him to claim lack of notice (121 Cal. App. 3d 615, 620-621) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.181-70.189

[Reserved]

§§ 70.181[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.190

§ 70.190 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground of Inexcusable Neglect of Defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Deliberate Refusal to Act

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.120[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE THE DEFENDANT'S DELIBERATE REFUSAL TO ACT CONSTITUTES INEXCUSABLE NEGLECT.

A. Burden of Proof on Moving Party to Show Excusable Neglect. On a motion for relief from default, the moving party has the burden of showing that the neglect leading to default was excusable (Kendall v. Barker (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 624, 243 Cal. Rptr. 42 ; Jackson v. Bank of America (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 55, 58, 190 Cal. Rptr. 78).

B. Deliberate Refusal to Act. When a default occurred as a result of deliberate refusal to act, and relief is sought after a change of mind, the remedy under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) is inappropriate (Davis v. Thayer (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 907, 170 Cal. Rptr. 328).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing the motion on additional, particular grounds, e.g., that the motion is not timely (see, e.g., §§ 70.140 -70.148), or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on any other specific ground or grounds asserted (see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.180, 70.191 -70.216). Additional points and authorities may be also be added, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.230, 70.231).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of asserted excusable neglect on the part of the moving party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. The ground of opposition is that the moving party's deliberate refusal to act constitutes inexcusable neglect [see Davis v. Thayer (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 907, 170 Cal. Rptr. 328] .

For points and authorities based on other conduct considered inexcusable neglect, see §§ 70.191 -70.195. For points and authorities opposing relief on the ground of an attorney's inexcusable neglect, see §§ 70.210 -70.216.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.90 -70.100.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that the motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148], or with additional points and authorities showing that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.180, 70.191 -70.216; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] and § 70.120[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore show why the moving party's conduct constituted mere inexcusable failure to act or a decision not to act followed by a change of mind. Therefore, counsel should set forth facts regarding the date on which the moving party was served with the summons and complaint, and the unexplained failure to file a responsive pleading in a timely manner. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

Whenever an application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, the court must vacate any resulting default judgment entered against his or her client unless the court finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. For further discussion, see the § 70.12[3] and § 70.120[2][c] [see also § 70.140 et seq.].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Burden of Proof on Moving Party to Show Excusable Neglect

Kendall v. Barker (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 243 Cal. Rptr. 42 is discussed in § 70.142[3][b].

Jackson v. Bank of America (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 55, 190 Cal. Rptr. 78 , is discussed in § 70.140[3][b].

[b] Deliberate Refusal to Act

In Davis v. Thayer (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 170 Cal. Rptr. 328 , the plaintiff filed a complaint against two defendants, alleging fraud in connection with a sales contract. Plaintiff had one defendant (the defendant) served with process while he appeared in court on criminal charges related to the plaintiff's claim. His mother (the codefendant) was served at her home. Approximately one month later, both defendants were served by mail, at the mother's address, with a copy of a request for entry of default. After hearing, the trial court granted judgment on the cause of action for fraud, awarding actual and punitive damages. Defendants filed a notice of motion for relief under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), approximately six months later. The trial court denied the motion, and defendants appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that both parties were negligent in failing to take any meaningful action to protect themselves after being served with summons and complaint and notice requesting entry of their defaults (113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 911) . Because the motion was arguably filed more than six months after the default was entered, the court first determined that the six month period is defined as one-half of a year, or 182 days. Under that definition, the motion was filed within six months from the date of the default, and the court therefore had jurisdiction to grant the motion (113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 901-904) . The court then considered whether the evidence supported the trial court's denial of the motion. The court noted that in his declarations in support of the motion, the defendant stated that he lacked funds to file an answer, that his primary concern was the criminal charges, and that he was unaware that the complaint sought damages for fraud (113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 905) . The court observed that his conduct in permitting the matter to go to default was not the result of mistake, inadvertence, or surprise; and that it was solely the consequence of inexcusable neglect (113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 906) . The court stated that it is the duty of every party desiring to resist an action or to participate in a judicial proceeding to take timely and adequate steps to retain counsel or to act to avoid an undesirable judgment. Unless in arranging for a defense, the defendant shows that he or she has exercised such reasonable diligence as a person of ordinary prudence usually bestows on important business, the motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 will be denied. The court stated that the law frowns on setting aside default judgments resulting from inexcusable neglect of the complainant; and when the default occurred as a result of deliberate refusal to act, and relief is sought after a change of mind, the remedy is clearly inappropriate. The court noted that the defendant did not deny that when served with the papers, an attorney who represented him told him to pick them up from the ground to which he permitted them to fall. The court surmised that the defendant must have discussed the matter to some extent with that attorney (113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 907) . The court stated that the notice requirement under Code Civ. Proc. § 587 is designed to protect the unwary litigant from the entry of default; and that the beneficial purposes of that provision would be thwarted if defendants are permitted to disregard, with impunity, the notices served pursuant to it (113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 907-908) . The court noted that the codefendant asserted that her poor health and preoccupation with family matters precluded her timely response to the complaint (113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 909) . (She also asserted that her son operated the business, and that she was merely an employee, but the court observed that her proposed answer stated otherwise (113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 910) . The court concluded that she, too, is guilty of inexcusable neglect, in that she made no showing that her alleged circumstances completely prevented timely response for six months (113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 909-910) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Burden of Proof on Moving Party to Show Excusable Neglect

Conway v. Municipal Court (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 166 Cal. Rptr. 246 , is discussed in § 70.142[3][a].

[b] Deliberate Refusal to Act

Martin v. Taylor (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 112, 72 Cal. Rptr. 847 , is discussed in § 70.144[3].

In Fidelity Fed. Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Long (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 149, 345 P.2d 568 , the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order denying a motion to set aside a default judgment entered against the defendant in an action based on a promissory note. In support of his motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc.§ 473, 3rd Paragraph, made three and one-half months after the default judgment had been entered, defendant claimed that he mistakenly believed that a provision in the note precluded a defense based on a discharge in bankruptcy. However, no petition in bankruptcy had been filed at the time the action was commenced; when it was filed it was involuntary; and defendant did not consent to an adjudication in bankruptcy until nearly four months after the filing of the complaint. The court of appeal stated that it could be reasonably inferred from the record that before the default had been entered, defendant contemplated neither a discharge in bankruptcy nor the fact that a discharge might be available to him as a defense (175 Cal. App. 2d 149, 153) . The court stated that the only occasion for the application of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is when a party is unexpectedly placed in a situation to his or her injury because of no fault or negligence of his or her own. Neither one's change of mind nor one's inexcusable negligence is ground for vacating a judgment (175 Cal. App. 2d 149, 155) .

In Baratti v. Baratti (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 917, 242 P.2d 22 , the court of appeal affirmed a trial court's denial of a motion for relief from default under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)). The court held that defendant's unexplained delay of three months after she consulted with her present attorney precluded relief under the statute, noting that her failure to appear was not due to mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, but was solely due to a change of mind (109 Cal. App. 2d 917, 922-923) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.191

§ 70.191 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground of Inexcusable Neglect of Defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Failure to Act Despite Full Knowledge of Proceedings

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.120[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE THE DEFENDANT'S FAILURE TO ACT DESPITE FULL KNOWLEDGE OF THE PROCEEDINGS CONSTITUTES INEXCUSABLE NEGLECT.

A. Burden of Proof on Moving Party to Show Excusable Neglect. [See § 70.190[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Failure to Act Despite Full Knowledge of Proceedings. When a defendant with full knowledge of the proceedings fails to take action to protect his or her interests until after the default, it is an abuse of discretion to set the default aside (Northridge Financial Corp. v. Hamblin (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 819, 824, 122 Cal. Rptr. 109).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing the motion on additional, particular grounds, e.g., that the motion is not timely (see, e.g., §§ 70.140 -70.148), or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on any other specific ground or grounds asserted (see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.190, 70.192 -70.216). Additional points and authorities may be also be added, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.230, 70.231).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of asserted excusable neglect on the part of the moving party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. The ground of opposition is that the moving party's failure to act despite full knowledge of the proceedings constitutes inexcusable neglect [Northridge Financial Corp. v. Hamblin (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 819, 824, 122 Cal. Rptr. 109] .

For points and authorities based on other conduct considered inexcusable neglect, see §§ 70.190, 70.192 -70.195. For points and authorities opposing relief on the ground of an attorney's inexcusable neglect, see §§ 70.210 -70.216.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.90 -70.100.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that the motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148], or with additional points and authorities showing that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.190, 70.192 -70.216; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] and § 70.120[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore show why the moving party's conduct constituted mere inexcusable failure to act or a decision not to act followed by a change of mind. Therefore, counsel should set forth facts regarding the date on which the moving party was served with the summons and complaint, and the unexplained failure to file a responsive pleading in a timely manner. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

Whenever an application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, the court must vacate any resulting default judgment entered against his or her client unless the court finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. For further discussion, see the § 70.12[3] and § 70.120[2][c] [see also § 70.140 et seq.].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Act Despite Full Knowledge of Proceedings

In Northridge Financial Corp. v. Hamblin (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 819, 122 Cal. Rptr. 109 , an action against an individual and a corporation, the trial court denied defendants' motion under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), for relief from the entry of a default judgment (and motion for reconsideration). Plaintiff's counsel granted defendants' counsel an extension to answer the complaint. After the extension period had passed and no answer had been filed, plaintiff's counsel filed a request to enter default. A default was entered, followed by a default judgment. Defendants filed a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 five days prior to the statutory six-month limitation period. The trial court denied that motion, as well as defendants' subsequent motion for reconsideration. Defendants appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding, inter alia, that defendants failed to show excusable neglect in support of their request for relief (48 Cal. App. 3d 819, 824) . The court stated that at the outset, it is clear from the attorney's declaration that defendants' default was not the result of mistake, inadvertence, or surprise. It found that the trial court could reasonably have inferred from the attorney's declaration that a deliberate decision was made by defendants not to move immediately for relief from default. The inference then arose that defendants might choose not to answer (48 Cal. App. 3d 819, 823) . Specifically, the court noted that the individual defendant initially decided to pursue a bankruptcy proceeding in lieu of filing an answer to the complaint in the instant action; the extension of time was obtained for that purpose. Following the entry of default, the defendants' attorney discussed the defaults with the defendants, who decided at that time to wait several more weeks until a final decision on filing a petition in bankruptcy was made, before requesting relief from the default (48 Cal. App. 3d 819, 823) . The attorney's declaration showed that subsequent to that time, he misfiled the relevant papers in the instant action with the bankruptcy papers, and did not remember them until proceeding with the bankruptcy petition. The court stated that when a defendant with full knowledge of the proceedings fails to take action to protect his or her interests until after the default, it is an abuse of discretion to set the default aside; the trial court does not have the legal power to set aside the default simply because the defendant did not realize the legal effect of failing to file an answer. The court noted that defendants were given additional time to file their answer, yet did not file one; and held that the fact that one of the defendants contemplated bankruptcy is no excuse. The moving party's attorney also averred that he was distracted from attending to the client's affairs because of his relocation to a new law office The court held, however, that the assertion that the attorney's practice was disrupted does not negate the fact that defendants were given an extension and still did not bother to file any answer; nor does the fact that the file may have been misplaced militate against the inference that defendants decided not to file their answer because they were considering filing a petition for bankruptcy (48 Cal. App. 3d 819, 824) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to Act Despite Full Knowledge of Proceedings

Yarbrough v. Yarbrough (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 610, 301 P.2d 426 , is discussed in § 70.194[3].

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.192

§ 70.192 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground of Inexcusable Neglect of Defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--No Relief When Defendant's Conduct Is Not Reasonable

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.120[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE THERE MAY BE NO RELIEF WHEN THE DEFENDANT'S CONDUCT IS NOT REASONABLE.

A. Burden of Proof on Moving Party to Show Excusable Neglect. [See § 70.190[1], Paragraph A.]

B. No Relief When Defendant's Conduct Not That of Reasonably Prudent Person. Relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b), on the ground of excusable neglect, is not available unless the defendant is able to show that the neglect asserted might have been the act of a reasonably prudent person under the same circumstances (Lint v. Chisholm (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 615, 620, 177 Cal. Rptr. 314).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing the motion on additional, particular grounds, e.g., that the motion is not timely (see, e.g., §§ 70.140 -70.148), or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on any other specific ground or grounds asserted (see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.191, 70.193 -70.216). Additional points and authorities may be also be added, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.230, 70.231).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of asserted excusable neglect on the part of the moving party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. The ground of opposition is that the moving party failed to act as a reasonably prudent person would under similar circumstances [Lint v. Chisholm (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 615, 620, 177 Cal. Rptr. 314] .

For points and authorities based on other conduct considered inexcusable neglect, see §§ 70.190, 70.191, 70.193 -70.195. For points and authorities opposing relief on the ground of an attorney's inexcusable neglect, see §§ 70.210 -70.216.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.90 -70.100.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that the motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148], or with additional points and authorities showing that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.191, 70.193 -70.216; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] and § 70.120[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore show why the moving party's conduct constituted mere inexcusable failure to act or a decision not to act followed by a change of mind. Therefore, counsel should set forth facts regarding why the moving party's actions were not reasonable under the circumstances, and the unexplained failure to file a responsive pleading in a timely manner. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

Whenever an application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, the court must vacate any resulting default judgment entered against his or her client unless the court finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. For further discussion, see the § 70.12[3] and § 70.120[2][c] [see also § 70.140 et seq.].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Relief When Defendant's Conduct Not That of Reasonably Prudent Person

Lint v. Chisholm (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 615, 177 Cal. Rptr. 314 , is discussed in § 70.180[3].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.193

§ 70.193 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground of Inexcusable Neglect of Defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Unreasonable Reliance on Third Party's Agreement to Defend

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.120[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE DEFENDANT'S RELIANCE ON THE AGREEMENT BY _____ [identify third party] TO UNDERTAKE HIS/HER DEFENSE WAS UNREASONABLE.

A. Burden of Proof on Moving Party to Show Excusable Neglect. [See § 70.190[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Unreasonable Reliance on Third Party's Agreement to Defend. A defendant's reliance on a third party to undertake his or her defense is not a proper ground for relief under *Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b)*when that reliance is unreasonable (Cyrus v. Haveson (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 306, 315, 135 Cal. Rptr. 246).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing the motion on additional, particular grounds, e.g., that the motion is not timely (see, e.g., §§ 70.140 -70.148), or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on any other specific ground or grounds asserted (see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.192, 70.194 -70.216). Additional points and authorities may be also be added, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.230, 70.231).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of asserted excusable neglect on the part of the moving party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. The ground of opposition is that the moving party's reliance on a third party's agreement to defend was unreasonable under the circumstances [Cyrus v. Haveson (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 306, 315, 135 Cal. Rptr. 246] .

For points and authorities based on other conduct considered inexcusable neglect, see §§ 70.190 -70.192, 70.194, 70.195. For points and authorities opposing relief on the ground of an attorney's inexcusable neglect, see §§ 70.210 -70.216.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.90 -70.100.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that the motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148], or with additional points and authorities showing that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.192, 70.194 -70.216; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] and § 70.120[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore show why the moving party's conduct constituted mere inexcusable failure to act or a decision not to act followed by a change of mind. Therefore, counsel should set forth facts regarding the moving party's unreasonable reliance on a third party's promise to defend, and the unexplained failure to file a responsive pleading in a timely manner. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

Whenever an application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, the court must vacate any resulting default judgment entered against his or her client unless the court finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. For further discussion, see the § 70.10[2] and § 70.120[2] [see also § 70.140 et seq.].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Unreasonable Reliance on Third Party's Agreement to Defend

In Cyrus v. Haveson (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 306, 135 Cal. Rptr. 246 , the trial court denied defendants' motion to set aside a default and default judgment. When defendants were served with copies of the summons and complaint, they informed the insurance company whose policy covered plaintiff's claims. The company assigned an investigator, and, for approximately seven months, plaintiff's attorney and the investigator attempted to settle the matter. When plaintiff's attorney decided that the matter would not be settled, he informed defendants twice in writing that counsel intended to enter their default if no answer was filed. No answer was filed. Defendants appealed the trial court's order denying their motion.

The court of appeal affirmed with modification (regarding the type and amount of allowable damages), holding that defendants' continued reliance on the insurance company to provide a defense was unreasonable, precluding relief (65 Cal. App. 3d 306, 315, 319) . The court stated that the record does not establish that the trial court abused it discretion when it determined that defendants had not made a sufficient showing to satisfy the requirements under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)). The court noted that the statute provides in part that the court may relieve a party from a judgment, order, or other proceeding taken against the party through the party's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect. It stated that the mistake, inadvertence, or surprise that justifies a court in setting aside a default must be reasonable. The court observed that the trial court could properly find that defendants did not act reasonably in failing to plead to the complaint. Defendants sought to excuse their neglect by their reliance on the insurance company and its investigator. The court stated that although reliance on a third person's agreement to defend may be reasonable so as to justify a failure to plead to a complaint, the instant case contains evidence from which the trial court could determine that defendants' continued reliance on the insurance company was unreasonable. The court stated that defendants properly relied on the insurance company until they were informed by plaintiff's counsel that a default would be taken. They were thus placed on notice that some action was required of them, and counsel's subsequent letter emphasized that the investigator and the company he represented were not protecting defendants' position in the litigation. Because their declarations did not explain why no action was taken by them until well after the default was taken, the court concluded that the evidence supported the trial court's implied finding of inexcusable neglect (65 Cal. App. 3d 306, 315) .

115 of 156 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.194

§ 70.194 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground of Inexcusable Neglect of Defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Disregard of Process

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.120[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE DEFENDANT'S DISREGARD OF PROCESS DOES NOT CONSTITUTE EXCUSABLE NEGLECT.

A. Burden of Proof on Moving Party to Show Excusable Neglect. [See § 70.190[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Disregard of Process. The mislaying of process, forgetfulness, or intentional disregard of service does not constitute mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect as those terms are used in Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b), and does not require a court to set aside a default (Price v. Hibbs (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 209, 217, 37 Cal. Rptr. 270).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing the motion on additional, particular grounds, e.g., that the motion is not timely (see, e.g., §§ 70.140 -70.148), or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on any other specific ground or grounds asserted (see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.193, 70.195 -70.216). Additional points and authorities may be also be added, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.230, 70.231).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment should be set aside on the ground of asserted excusable neglect on the part of the moving party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. The ground of opposition is that the moving party's disregard of process does not constitute excusable neglect under section 473(b) [Price v. Hibbs (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 209, 217, 37 Cal. Rptr. 270] .

For points and authorities based on other conduct considered inexcusable neglect, see §§ 70.190 -70.193, 70.195. For points and authorities opposing relief on the ground of an attorney's inexcusable neglect, see §§ 70.210 -70.216.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.90 -70.100.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that the motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148], or with additional points and authorities showing that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.193, 70.195 -70.216; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] and § 70.120[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore show why the moving party's conduct constituted mere inexcusable failure to act or a decision not to act followed by a change of mind. Therefore, counsel should set forth facts showing that the moving party's actions were due to mere forgetfulness or were an intentional disregard of service. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

Whenever an application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, the court must vacate any resulting default judgment entered against his or her client unless the court finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. For further discussion, see the § 70.12[3] and § 70.120[2][c] [see also § 70.140 et seq.].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Disregard of Process

Price v. Hibbs (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 209, 37 Cal. Rptr. 270 , is discussed in § 70.120[3].

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.195

§ 70.195 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground of Inexcusable Neglect of Defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Press of Business Is Inadequate Excuse

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.120[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE THE PRESS OF BUSINESS IS NOT A SUFFICIENT EXCUSE FOR FAILING TO RESPOND TO THE SERVICE OF A SUMMONS AND COMPLAINT.

A. Burden of Proof on Moving Party to Show Excusable Neglect. [See § 70.190[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Press of Business Inadequate Excuse. The press of business is not a sufficient excuse for failing to respond to service of a summons and complaint (Bellm v. Bellia (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 1036, 1038, 198 Cal. Rptr. 389).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing the motion on additional, particular grounds, e.g., that the motion is not timely (see, e.g., §§ 70.140 -70.148), or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on any other specific ground or grounds asserted (see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.194, 70.210 -70.216). Additional points and authorities may be also be added, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.230, 70.231).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment should be set aside on the ground of asserted excusable neglect on the part of the moving party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. The ground of opposition is that the press of business is not a sufficient excuse for failing to respond to service of a summons and complaint [Bellm v. Bellia (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 1036, 1038, 198 Cal. Rptr. 389] .

For points and authorities based on other conduct considered inexcusable neglect, see §§ 70.190 -70.194. For points and authorities opposing relief on the ground of an attorney's inexcusable neglect, see §§ 70.210 -70.216.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.90 -70.100.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that the motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148], or with additional points and authorities showing that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.194, 70.210 -70.216; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] and § 70.120[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Therefore, counsel should refer to declarations supporting the motion and point out the motion is based solely on press of business and, therefore, does not justify relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

Whenever an application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, the court must vacate any resulting default judgment entered against his or her client unless the court finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. For further discussion, see the § 70.12[3] and § 70.120[2][c] [see also § 70.140 et seq.].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Press of Business Inadequate Excuse

In Bellm v. Bellia (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 1036, 198 Cal. Rptr. 389 , the trial court denied defendant's motion under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), for relief from a default judgment taken against him. Plaintiff had defendant served with copies of the summons and complaint. Defendant filed no response. Counsel for plaintiff represented another person who had sued the same defendant, and had periodic communications with defendant's attorney concerning discovery matters in that case, but did not notify defendant's attorney of the present action against defendant, or of the impending default. Defendant moved to set aside the default a few weeks after it was entered, and the trial court denied the motion. After the default hearing, judgment was ordered in favor of plaintiff for damages, costs, and interest. Defendant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that defendant failed to show entitlement to relief under the statute. Defendant contended that the trial court abused its discretion when it denied his motion, because defendant made a showing of excusable neglect justifying relief from the default under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)). In his declarations, defendant stated that after he was served with the summons and complaint he forgot about the matter because of the business pressures of the holiday season, and because of the serious illness of his father, and the recent death of his mother. The court noted that the only allegations defendant made regarding the effect of those factors were that his parents' illnesses and death "were very trying," and that business pressures caused him to forget about the service of papers. Defendant did not allege that his parents' illnesses occupied any amount of his time or that he was too distraught to think about the complaint. The court stated that although denial of relief is a harsh measure, defendant's showing of excuse was not strong enough to require relief as a matter of law. Defendant also contended that plaintiff's counsel should have given notice of the impending default to the attorney who represented defendant in the other matter. Although as a matter of professional courtesy, counsel should have given notice of the impending default, counsel was under no legal obligation to do so. By taking a default without giving notice, counsel took the risk that the trial court would grant relief from the default, but the failure to give notice did not require the court to grant relief (150 Cal. App. 3d 1036, 1038) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.196-70.209

[Reserved]

§§ 70.196[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.210

§ 70.210 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground of Inexcusable Neglect of Counsel [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Mere Neglect Is Not Sufficient Ground for Relief

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.120[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE THE INACTION OF THE ATTORNEY FOR THE MOVING PARTY CONSTITUTES INEXCUSABLE NEGLECT.

A. Mere Neglect or Negligence of Counsel. Mere neglect or negligence is not a sufficient ground for relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b); to afford relief under this ground, the neglect or mistake on the part of counsel must be excusable (Cochran v. Linn (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 245, 252, 205 Cal. Rptr. 550).

B. Required Showing That Counsel's Neglect Was Excusable. A party who seeks relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) on the basis of mistake or inadvertence of counsel must demonstrate that the mistake, inadvertence, or general neglect was excusable, because the negligence of the attorney is imputed to the client and may not be offered by the client as a basis for relief (Beeman v. Burling (1990) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1586, 1602, 265 Cal. Rptr. 719).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing the motion on additional, particular grounds, e.g., that the motion is not timely (see, e.g., §§ 70.140 -70.148), or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on any other specific ground or grounds asserted (see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.190, 70.211 -70.216). Additional points and authorities may be also be added, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.230, 70.231).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of mistake, based on asserted excusable neglect on the part of the moving party's attorney [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. The ground of opposition is that the neglect of the moving party's attorney was inexcusable [see Davis v. Thayer (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 906, 170 Cal. Rptr. 328] .

For other points and authorities related to an attorney's inexcusable neglect, see § 70.211 et seq. For points and authorities opposing a motion for relief based on the moving party's inexcusable neglect generally, see §§ 70.190 -70.195. See also § 70.144[1] (opposing relief on the ground that the attorney's press of business is no excuse for failing to file the motion within a reasonable time), and § 70.124[1] (opposing relief on the ground that an attorney's negligence is imputed to the client).

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.90 -70.100.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that the motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148], or with additional points and authorities showing that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.195, 70.211 -70.216; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] and § 70.120[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should set forth facts showing that the opposing counsel's failure to respond in a timely manner to the complaint was due to inexcusable neglect rather than uncontrollable circumstances. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

Whenever an application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, the court must vacate any resulting default judgment entered against his or her client unless the court finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. For further discussion, see the § 70.12[3] and § 70.120[2][c] [see also § 70.140 et seq.].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mere Neglect or Negligence of Counsel

In Cochran v. Linn (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 245, 205 Cal. Rptr. 550 , the trial court entered summary judgment against plaintiffs, and denied plaintiffs' motion under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), to vacate the judgment. Plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying the motion (159 Cal. App. 3d 245, 252-253) . The court noted that plaintiffs' motion to set aside the summary judgment (and to be permitted to file an amended complaint) was based on former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), and is addressed to the court's sound discretion. The court stated that the exercise of that discretion will not be disturbed on appeal absent a clear showing of abuse, and that the discretion is that of the trial court, not that of the reviewing court. Therefore, even if the reviewing court might have ruled otherwise in the first instance, the trial court's order will not be reversed unless, as a matter of law, it is not supported by the record. The court noted that the thrust of plaintiffs' argument is that certain information came to the attention of their counsel subsequent to the granting of the summary judgment regarding a basis of liability attributable to defendant that had not been stated in their pleadings. The court observed, however, that most of that information was in plaintiffs' possession prior to the summary judgment hearing (159 Cal. App. 3d 245, 251) . The court stated that even assuming that new information had been revealed to plaintiffs subsequent to the summary judgment hearing, no showing was made whatsoever by plaintiffs that the failure to secure the information was the result of excusable neglect, as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 473. The court held that mere neglect or negligence is not a sufficient ground for relief under the statute. On the contrary, the neglect or mistake on the part of counsel must be excusable. The court of appeal noted that in its minute order denying the motion to vacate the judgment, the trial court stated that plaintiffs' counsel relied on the fact that they were negligent in preparing their case, and that no good cause had been shown that would permit relief under the statute. The court concluded that the trial court was therefore completely justified in refusing to vacate the summary judgment; and that, in the absence of an abuse of discretion, it is not the function of the appellate court to substitute its discretion for that of the trial court (159 Cal. App. 3d 245, 252) .

[b] Required Showing That Counsel's Neglect Was Excusable

In Beeman v. Burling (1990) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1586, 265 Cal. Rptr. 719 , a wrongful-eviction action, the plaintiff sought special and general damages according to proof, punitive damages, and treble statutory damages under local rent-control ordinances. The defendant demurred and moved to strike portions of the amended complaint. The trial court overruled the demurrer, granted the motion to strike in part, and ordered the defendant to respond to the complaint within 30 days. Defendant's counsel agreed to answer the complaint in the instant action, as well as related complaints by other tenants who were also represented by plaintiff's attorney, by a specific date approximately four months later; and answered several of the other complaints within that time period. Shortly after that date, plaintiff's counsel served defendant's counsel with a statement of damages, and offered to settle for a specific sum, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 998. Approximately one month later, he warned defendant's counsel that he would obtain a default in the absence of a response. The defendant's attorney did not respond, according to his declaration, because his girlfriend's hospitalization during that time distracted him and caused him additional personal responsibilities. He claimed not to have seen the letter threatening default until after the stated deadline had passed. At the hearing on the default judgment, plaintiff presented witness testimony, and the trial court awarded plaintiff damages and costs. The defendant was unaware of those proceedings, and did not learn of the judgment until he retained new counsel approximately two weeks later. His new counsel moved for relief from default on the grounds that: (1) the default was taken in violation of Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11, which, he alleged, requires personal service of a statement of damages; and (2) an answer was not filed because of the former counsel's excusable mistake and neglect, which warranted relief under Code Civ. Poc. § 473. The trial court denied the motion on the ground that defendant did not demonstrate that the default resulted from counsel's excusable neglect. Defendant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding, inter alia, that the conduct of defendant's former counsel did not constitute excusable neglect, and that the 1988 amendment to former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)) (effective January 1, 1989), mandating relief pursuant to an attorney's affidavit regarding mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect, is not retroactive in application (216 Cal. App. 3d 1586, 1602-1607) . With respect to the issue of entitlement of relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, the court noted that it is axiomatic that a motion for relief from default under the statute is addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court; and that the exercise of that discretion will not be disturbed on appeal absent a clear showing of abuse. The court stated that a party who seeks relief under the statute on the basis of mistake or inadvertence of counsel must demonstrate that the mistake, inadvertence, or general neglect was excusable because the negligence of the attorney is imputed to the client, and may not be offered by the client as a basis for relief. The client's redress for inexcusable neglect by counsel is an action for malpractice. The court observed that in the case before it, defendant's counsel was warned that a default would be taken shortly, in the absence of a response; and that the default was actually taken after the stated date. Moreover, counsel was informed of the default judgment hearing date, and was asked whether he would bring a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 prior to that date, but took no steps to avert the judgment (216 Cal. App. 3d 1586, 1602) .

The court rejected the contention that the hospitalization of the attorney's girlfriend established a basis for excusable neglect, holding that excusable neglect is an act or omission that might have been committed by a reasonably prudent person under the same circumstances. The court concluded that the trial court was entirely justified in finding the neglect inexcusable and denying relief under the motion (216 Cal. App. 3d 1586, 1602-1603) . The court also rejected the contention that defendant was abandoned by his attorney and consequently should not be penalized for the attorney's errors; holding that under the facts the attorney did not entirely abandon the client within the meaning of the exception for the attorney's "gross misconduct," which, if established, would justify relief (216 Cal. App. 3d 1586, 1603-1604) . Defendant also contended that the 1988 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 473 requiring the trial court to grant relief from default based on an attorney's affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect, although effective after the date of the default and default judgment, should be applied retroactively to mandate relief. The court discussed at length the retroactive application of procedural, as distinct from substantive, statutes, in the absence of a statutory provision expressly regarding retroactivity. The court concluded that the effect of retroactive application of the amendment would be substantive in nature, in that it would effect a trial on the merits despite the fact that under the law existing at the time of the default judgment, the defendant clearly lost that right. Consequently, the court stated, the amendment cannot be applied retroactively (216 Cal. App. 3d 1586, 1604-1607) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Required Showing That Counsel's Neglect Was Excusable

In In re Marriage of Fuller (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1070, 210 Cal. Rptr. 73 , the court of appeal issued a writ of mandate vacating the portion of a court order awarding sanctions against an attorney based on failure to comply with an order compelling the production of documents. Relief was granted on due process grounds (that is, lack of notice that the attorney would have to defend his own actions) (163 Cal. App. 3d 1070, 1075-1079) . However, the court of appeal also found that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying the attorney's motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 for relief from the imposition of sanctions, when the motion was based the attorney's assertions that he advised his client to obtain an accountant for the purpose of gathering the information required by the production order, and that he was scheduled to take a vacation during that period of time and left the matter for resolution by the client. The court noted that the moving party established no grounds under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 for vacating the sanction order (163 Cal. App. 3d 1070, 1074-1075) .

119 of 156 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.211

§ 70.211 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground of Inexcusable Neglect of Counsel [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--No Showing of Causation Between Excusable Neglect and Default

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.120[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE THE MOVING PARTY HAS FAILED TO SHOW THAT EXCUSABLE NEGLECT WAS THE ACTUAL CAUSE OF THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT.

Causation Between Excusable Neglect and Default. To obtain relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) on the ground of excusable neglect, the moving party must show that the excusable neglect was the actual cause of the default (Cisneros v. Vueve (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 906, 908, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 682 ; Transit Ads, Inc. v. Tanner Motor Livery, Ltd. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 279, 75 Cal. Rptr. 848).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing the motion on additional, particular grounds, e.g., that the motion is not timely (see, e.g., §§ 70.140 -70.148), or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on any other specific ground or grounds asserted (see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.210, 70.212 -70.216). Additional points and authorities may be also be added, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.230, 70.231).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment should be set aside on the ground of mistake, based on asserted excusable neglect on the part of the moving party's attorney [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. The ground of opposition is that the moving party has failed to show that excusable neglect was the actual cause of the default and default judgment [Cisneros v. Vueve (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 906, 908, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 682 ; Transit Ads, Inc. v. Tanner Motor Livery, Ltd. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 279, 75 Cal. Rptr. 848] .

For other points and authorities related to an attorney's inexcusable neglect, see §§ 70.210 and 70.212 et seq.. For points and authorities opposing a motion for relief based on the moving party's inexcusable neglect generally, see §§ 70.190 -70.195. See also § 70.144[1] (opposing relief on the ground that the attorney's preoccupation with other matters is no excuse for failing to file the motion within a reasonable time), and § 70.124[1] (opposing relief on the ground that an attorney's negligence is imputed to the client).

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.90 -70.100.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that the motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148], or with additional points and authorities showing that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.210, 70.212 -70.216; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] and § 70.120[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should set forth facts showing that the opposing counsel's failure to respond in a timely manner was not actually caused by the asserted excusable neglect. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

Whenever an application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, the court must vacate any resulting default judgment entered against his or her client unless the court finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. For further discussion, see the § 70.12[3] and § 70.120[2][c] [see also § 70.140 et seq.].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Causation Between Excusable Neglect and Default

In Cisneros v. Vueve (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 906, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 682 , plaintiff had defendants' default entered in June 1993. On learning of the default, the defendants notified their insurance carrier about the lawsuit. In July, plaintiff appeared for a "prove-up" hearing. In August, the defendants' insurer retained an attorney to represent defendants, but the attorney became involved in other matters and completely forgot about the file. The court entered default judgment against the defendants in September. In March 1994, the attorney filed an affidavit confessing his responsibility for the lengthy period of inaction in the case. The trial court denied defendants motion to set aside the default because the underlying default was not caused by the attorney.

The court of appeal affirmed the order denying relief on the basis that since the attorney was not representing the defendants at the time the default was entered he was not the proximate cause of the entry of default (37 Cal. App. 4th 906, 912) . The defendants argued that relief under the mandatory provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is required when the default judgment was caused by attorney neglect even if the attorney had nothing to do with the underlying default. Defendants suggested that the Legislature was using the word "default" in the statute generically, to refer to either the default or the default judgment. However, the court reasoned that even under that interpretation the defendants would lose the appeal because the trial court could deny relief if either event were not caused by counsel (37 Cal. App. 4th 906, 911) . Furthermore, the court concluded that the legislative history indicated that the statute was directly calculated to deny relief to parties who bear personal responsibility for allowing the default to occur in the first place (37 Cal. App. 4th 906, 912) . The court thus held that the trial court properly concluded that the defendants were not entitled to relief under the attorney affidavit provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (37 Cal. App. 4th 906, 912) .

Transit Ads, Inc. v. Tanner Motor Livery, Ltd. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 75 Cal. Rptr. 848 , is discussed in § 70.212[3].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.212

§ 70.212 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground of Inexcusable Neglect of Counsel [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Attorney's Press of Business, By Itself Is Not Ground for Relief

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.120[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE THE MOVING PARTY HAS FAILED TO SHOW EXCUSABLE NEGLECT IN THAT UNUSUAL PRESS OF AN ATTORNEY'S BUSINESS, BY ITSELF, IS NOT A LEGITIMATE EXCUSE FOR GRANTING RELIEF UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(b).

Attorney's Press of Business, by Itself, Is Not Ground for Relief. The unusual press of an attorney's business, by itself, is not a legitimate excuse for granting relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b)(Transit Ads, Inc. v. Tanner Motor Livery, Ltd. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 281, 75 Cal. Rptr. 848 ; Fairfield v. Ahlstrom (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 590, 592, 24 Cal. Rptr. 70).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing the motion on additional, particular grounds, e.g., that the motion is not timely (see, e.g., §§ 70.140 -70.148), or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on any other specific ground or grounds asserted (see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.211, 70.213 -70.216). Additional points and authorities may be also be added, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.230, 70.231).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of mistake, based on asserted excusable neglect on the part of the moving party's attorney [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. The ground of opposition is that unusual press of an attorney's business, by itself, is not a legitimate excuse for granting relief under section 473(b) [Transit Ads, Inc. v. Tanner Motor Livery, Ltd. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 281, 75 Cal. Rptr. 848 ; Fairfield v. Ahlstrom (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 590, 592, 24 Cal. Rptr. 70] .

For other points and authorities related to an attorney's inexcusable neglect, see §§ 70.210, 70.211, and 70.213 et seq.. For points and authorities opposing a motion for relief based on the moving party's inexcusable neglect generally, see §§ 70.190 -70.195. See also § 70.144[1] (opposing relief on the ground that the attorney's preoccupation with other matters is no excuse for failing to file the motion within a reasonable time), and § 70.124[1] (opposing relief on the ground that an attorney's negligence is imputed to the client).

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.90 -70.100.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that the motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148], or with additional points and authorities showing that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.211, 70.213 -70.216; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] and § 70.120[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should refer to declarations supporting the motion and point out the motion is based solely on press of business and, therefore, does not justify relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

Whenever an application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, the court must vacate any resulting default judgment entered against his or her client unless the court finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. For further discussion, see the § 70.12[3] and § 70.120[2][c] [see also § 70.140 et seq.].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney's Press of Business, by Itself, Is Not Ground for Relief

In Transit Ads, Inc. v. Tanner Motor Livery, Ltd. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 75 Cal. Rptr. 848 , the trial court granted defendant's motion to set aside an entry of default and a default judgment. After defendant was served with summons and complaint, defendant's attorney obtained two extensions of time to answer. When the answer was not filed, plaintiff's attorney wrote defendant's attorney, explaining that defendant's default would be entered unless he received the answer in one week. When there was no response to his letter, plaintiff's attorney entered defendant's default. Approximately one month later, defendant's attorney contacted plaintiff's attorney to state that he had been ill, that he had requested another attorney to prepare the answer, and that he would try to provide an answer within the next few days. Plaintiff's attorney agreed to vacate the entry of default on the filing of an answer in the next two days. The defendant's attorney turned the matter over to substitute counsel, but failed to advise him of the urgency of filing an answer. The two defense attorneys failed to keep various appointments to meet for the purpose of drafting an answer, and plaintiff's attorney, not having heard from defendant's attorney again, obtained a default judgment almost two months after his last discussion with defendant's attorney. When substitute counsel prepared an answer in the following month, he telephoned the office of plaintiff's attorney, and was told that a default judgment had been entered, but that plaintiff intended to seek a modification of the judgment to obtain a higher damages award, and would take no action on the case until the attorney returned from Europe. When plaintiff's attorney returned, he consulted with plaintiff, who refused to agree to vacate the default and default judgment, but agreed to a possible settlement. Defendant's original attorney filed a motion for relief under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), shortly thereafter. Plaintiff's appealed the trial court's grant of the motion.

The court of appeal reversed, holding, inter alia, that the attorney's conduct constituted inexcusable neglect (270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 286-288) . The court stated that the burden of proof was on the defendant, who was required to establish his position by a preponderance of the evidence (270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 279) . It stated that when the ground for the motion is excusable neglect, the neglect must be an act or omission that might have been committed by a reasonably prudent person under the same circumstances, and must be the actual cause of the default (270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 279) . With respect to the specific ground of counsel's illness, the court stated that illness constitutes excusable neglect if counsel is disabled and moves promptly for relief as soon as the disability terminates or attenuates to the extent that a reasonable person under similar conditions would take action for relief. If there was an opportunity to obtain substitute counsel to prevent the default from occurring, no relief should be granted (270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 280) . The court also noted that the affidavits or declarations supporting the motion may disclose inexcusable carelessness by silence as well as by facts affirmatively set forth. The court stated that the failure to produce evidence that would naturally have been produced by an honest and therefore fearless claimant permits the inference that its tenor is unfavorable to the party's cause. Moreover, the court noted, unusual pressure of business by itself is not a legitimate excuse for granting relief (270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 281) . The court concluded that: (1) there was no adequate showing that the prescribed treatment confined the defendant's attorney to a bed or hospital or rendered him suddenly unfit; (2) there was no showing that he could not have explained the situation to his client in order to obtain substitute counsel; (3) there was no showing of an excuse for not keeping in closer contact with the attorney with whom he had associated; and (4) there was, thus, no showing that the disabling illness and counsel's inexcusable neglect were the real causes for the default. The court also held that there was an unreasonable delay in setting aside the default and default judgment (270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 286-288) .

In Fairfield v. Ahlstrom (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 590, 24 Cal. Rptr. 70 , the defendant sought relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, from an order striking his memorandum of costs on the ground that it was filed late. The trial court denied the motion, and defendant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying the motion, because the assertion of the defendant's attorney that he was occupied with other matters constituted an insufficient excuse (206 Cal. App. 2d 590, 592-593) . The court noted that the declaration of the defendant's attorney explained his failure to file the memorandum within the time allowed by stating that he was "busily engaged in representing other defendants" at that time (206 Cal. App. 2d 590, 591-592) . He also stated that he was required to give substantial time to other matters that he was handling in the course of his law practice, and that he had difficulty in verifying the items of taxable costs for inclusion in the memorandum. The court held that, manifestly, the trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying the motion for relief. It stated that the burden of proof is on the party seeking relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 to show a failure to act within the time allowed by statute through mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect. The court observed that the facts stated in the attorney's declaration made an extremely weak case, because the information needed by the attorney was readily available. The court held that an attorney's preoccupation with other matters affords insufficient grounds to warrant relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473; nor is the unusual press of business a legal excuse. The court noted that to accept that excuse as a legal justification would be to discourage diligence in the prosecution of appeals, and establish a precedent that might lead to vexatious delays (206 Cal. App. 2d 590, 592) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Attorney's Press of Business, by Itself, Is Not Ground for Relief

In Farias v. Farias (1917) 33 Cal. App. 237, 164 P. 818 , the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order denying defendant's motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 from a judgment by default in an action for divorce. The court held that the motion was insufficiently supported by facts showing that the defendant's attorney was travelling on other business during the time in which it was necessary to file required papers in the action (33 Cal. App. 237, 238-239) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.213

§ 70.213 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground of Inexcusable Neglect of Counsel [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Attorney's Illness When Substitute Counsel Was Obtainable

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.120[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)] BECAUSE THE MOVING PARTY HAS FAILED TO SHOW EXCUSABLE NEGLECT IN THAT COUNSEL'S ILLNESS DOES NOT CONSTITUTE EXCUSABLE NEGLECT BECAUSE THERE WAS AN OPPORTUNITY TO OBTAIN SUBSTITUTE COUNSEL TO PREVENT THE _____[identify proceeding, e.g., DEFAULT].

Attorney's Illness When Substitute Counsel Obtainable. The illness of counsel does not constitute excusable neglect if there was an opportunity to obtain substitute counsel to prevent the default from occurring (Transit Ads, Inc. v. Tanner Motor Livery, Ltd. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 280, 75 Cal. Rptr. 848).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing the motion on additional, particular grounds, e.g., that the motion is not timely (see, e.g., §§ 70.140 -70.148), or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on any other specific ground or grounds asserted (see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.212, 70.214 -70.216). Additional points and authorities may be also be added, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.230, 70.231).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment, or judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding should be set aside on the ground of mistake, based on asserted excusable neglect on the part of the moving party's attorney [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. The ground of opposition is that the illness of counsel does not constitute excusable neglect if there was an opportunity to obtain substitute counsel to prevent the default from occurring [Transit Ads, Inc. v. Tanner Motor Livery, Ltd. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 280, 75 Cal. Rptr. 848] .

For other points and authorities related to an attorney's inexcusable neglect, see §§ 70.210 -70.212, and 70.214 et seq. For points and authorities opposing a motion for relief based on the moving party's inexcusable neglect generally, see §§ 70.190 -70.195. See also § 70.144[1] (opposing relief on the ground that the attorney's preoccupation with other matters is no excuse for failing to file the motion within a reasonable time), and § 70.124[1] (opposing relief on the ground that an attorney's negligence is imputed to the client).

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.90 -70.100.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that the motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148], or with additional points and authorities showing that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.212, 70.214 -70.216; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] and § 70.120[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should refer to declarations supporting the motion which point out that substitute counsel was available and, therefore, relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) is not justified. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

Whenever an application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, the court must vacate any resulting default judgment entered against his or her client unless the court finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. For further discussion, see the § 70.12[3] and § 70.120[2][c] [see also § 70.140 et seq.].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney's Illness When Substitute Counsel Obtainable

Transit Ads, Inc. v. Tanner Motor Livery, Ltd. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 75 Cal. Rptr. 848 , is discussed in § 70.212[3].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.214

§ 70.214 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground of Inexcusable Neglect of Counsel [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Attorney's Illness Occurred After Time for Response Expired

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.120[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE THE MOVING PARTY HAS FAILED TO SHOW EXCUSABLE NEGLECT IN THAT COUNSEL'S ILLNESS OCCURRED AFTER THE STATUTORY TIME FOR FILING A RESPONSE HAD EXPIRED.

Attorney's Illness Occurring After Time for Response Has Expired. The illness of counsel does not constitute excusable neglect if it occurred after the time for filing a response within the regular statutory time (Transit Ads, Inc. v. Tanner Motor Livery, Ltd. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 280, 75 Cal. Rptr. 848).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing the motion on additional, particular grounds, e.g., that the motion is not timely (see, e.g., §§ 70.140 -70.148), or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on any other specific ground or grounds asserted (see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.213, 70.215 -70.216). Additional points and authorities may be also be added, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.230, 70.231).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment should be set aside on the ground of mistake, based on asserted excusable neglect on the part of the moving party's attorney [

see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. The ground of opposition is that the illness of counsel does not constitute excusable neglect because the illness occurred after the time for filing a response within the regular statutory time [Transit Ads, Inc. v. Tanner Motor Livery, Ltd. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 280, 75 Cal. Rptr. 848] .

For other points and authorities related to an attorney's inexcusable neglect, see §§ 70.210 -70.213, and 70.215 et seq.. For points and authorities opposing a motion for relief based on the moving party's inexcusable neglect generally, see §§ 70.190 -70.195. See also § 70.144[1] (opposing relief on the ground that the attorney's press of business is no excuse for failing to file the motion within a reasonable time), and § 70.124[1] (opposing relief on the ground that an attorney's negligence is imputed to the client).

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.90 -70.100.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that the motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148], or with additional points and authorities showing that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.213, 70.215 -70.216; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] and § 70.120[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should refer to facts revealing that the asserted illness of the moving party's counsel occurred after the statutory period elapsed. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

Whenever an application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, the court must vacate any resulting default judgment entered against his or her client unless the court finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. For further discussion, see the § 70.12[3] and § 70.120[2][c] [see also § 70.140 et seq.].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney's Illness Occurring After Time For Response Has Expired

Transit Ads, Inc. v. Tanner Motor Livery, Ltd. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 75 Cal. Rptr. 848 , is discussed in § 70.212[3].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.215

§ 70.215 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground of Inexcusable Neglect of Counsel [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Positive Misconduct Exception Does Not Apply When There Is No Abandonment of Attorney-Client Relationship

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.120[1]), and with points and authorities generally opposing relief on the ground of excusable neglect of counsel (see, e.g., §§ 70.210 -70.214.]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE THE "POSITIVE MISCONDUCT" EXCEPTION DOES NOT APPLY, IN THAT THE CONDUCT OF THE ATTORNEY FOR THE MOVING PARTY DID NOT CONSTITUTE AN ABANDONMENT OF THE ATTORNEY-CLIENT RELATIONSHIP; CONSEQUENTLY, THE ATTORNEY'S NEGLIGENCE IS IMPUTED TO HIS/HER CLIENT, THE _____ [PLAINTIFF or DEFENDANT], WHO IS THEREFORE NOT ENTITLED TO RELIEF.

A. Attorney's Negligence Imputed to Client. As a general rule, a party seeking relief on the basis of mistake or inadvertence of counsel must demonstrate that the mistake, inadvertence, or general neglect was excusable, because the negligence of an attorney is imputed to the client and may not be offered by the client as a basis for relief (Carroll v. Abbott Laboratories, Inc. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 892, 898, 187 Cal. Rptr. 592, 654 P.2d 775).

B. No Abandonment of Attorney-Client Relationship. The "positive misconduct" rule, an exception to the general rule that no relief will be afforded under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) based on the attorney's inexcusable neglect, does not apply unless the attorney's conduct is so grossly negligent that it effectually and unknowingly deprives the client of representation (Carroll v. Abbott Laboratories, Inc. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 892, 898-899, 187 Cal. Rptr. 592, 654 P.2d 775 ; Kendall v. Barker (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 626, 243 Cal. Rptr. 42).

C. Narrow Application of Positive Misconduct Exception. The "positive misconduct" exception should be narrowly applied (Carroll v. Abbott Laboratories, Inc. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 892, 900, 187 Cal. Rptr. 592, 654 P.2d 775).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing the motion on additional, particular grounds, e.g., that the motion is not timely (see, e.g., §§ 70.140 -70.148), or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on any other specific ground or grounds asserted (see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.214, 70.216). Additional points and authorities may be also be added, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.230, 70.231).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment should be set aside on the ground of neglect on the part of the moving party's attorney that, although inexcusable, allegedly falls within the "positive misconduct" exception to the general rule that an attorney's inexcusable neglect does not afford relief [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. The ground of opposition is that the attorney's conduct was not of the type that affords relief under the exception, that is, that the attorney did not in essence abandon the client, and deprive him or her of misrepresentation.

For other points and authorities related to an attorney's inexcusable neglect, see §§ 70.210 -70.214, 70.216. For points and authorities opposing a motion for relief based on the moving party's inexcusable neglect generally, see §§ 70.190 -70.195. See also § 70.144[1] (opposing relief on the ground that the attorney's preoccupation with other matters is no excuse for failing to file the motion within a reasonable time), and § 70.124[1] (opposing relief on the ground that an attorney's negligence is imputed to the client).

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in § 70.100[1].

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that the motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148], or with additional points and authorities showing that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.214, 70.216; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] and § 70.120[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore set forth facts showing that the attorney's conduct was merely negligent rather than grossly negligent, that is, that there was no obliteration of the attorney-client relationship. For example, if appropriate, counsel should show that the moving party's attorney maintained communications with the client throughout the period in which the default was taken, and although the attorney mishandled the case, he or she was available to the client and for all relevant purposes and continued to represent the client for the entire period of time involved. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

Whenever an application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, the court must vacate any resulting default judgment entered against his or her client unless the court finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. For further discussion, see the § 70.12[3] and § 70.120[2][c] [see also § 70.140 et seq.].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney's Negligence Imputed to Client

Carroll v. Abbott Laboratories, Inc. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 892, 187 Cal. Rptr. 592, 654 P.2d 775 , is discussed in [b], below.

[b] No Abandonment of Attorney-Client Relationship

In Carroll v. Abbott Laboratories, Inc. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 892, 187 Cal. Rptr. 592, 654 P.2d 775 , the trial court granted plaintiff's motion under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), seeking relief from a judgment of dismissal. The action involved a claim by a minor plaintiff against defendant drug manufacturer for injuries allegedly suffered when plaintiff's mother, while pregnant with plaintiff, ingested a drug manufactured by defendant. The action was dismissed after plaintiff's counsel failed to comply with two orders compelling discovery of certain documents. Plaintiff's counsel moved for relief from the dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 473. The trial court granted the motion on the condition that plaintiff and his counsel file declarations stating that they did not know the whereabouts of the requested documents. When they failed to fulfill the condition, the motion was taken off calendar. Plaintiff's counsel filed a second motion for relief, declaring that plaintiff did possess the requested documents after all. The documents had in fact been turned over to counsel but had been inadvertently returned to plaintiff. The trial court granted the second motion for relief after finding that counsel had substantially complied with the court order and that counsel had been grossly negligent in representing plaintiff. Plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed (32 Cal. 3d 892, 901) . The Court reiterated the general rule that a party seeking relief on the basis of mistake or inadvertence of counsel must demonstrate that the mistake, inadvertence, or general neglect was excusable because the negligence of an attorney is imputed to the client and may not be offered by the client as a basis for relief. Excepted from this rule, however, are those instances in which the attorney's neglect is of such an extreme degree as to amount to positive misconduct and the person seeking relief is relatively free from negligence. The exception is premised on the concept that the attorney's conduct, in effect, obliterates the existence of the attorney-client relationship (32 Cal. 3d 892, 898) . The Court noted that the exception is applicable when there has been a total failure on the part of counsel to represent the client (32 Cal. 3d 892, 898-900) . In this case, the Court held that, although plaintiff's counsel grossly mishandled a routine discovery matter, no abandonment of the client appeared. He had participated in other discovery matters and had obtained four extensions to respond to the motions to compel discovery of the documents. After dismissal of the action, he obtained the favorable judgment from which defendant appealed. Therefore, although in connection with the production of documents, the attorney obviously failed to give effective representation, he did not obliterate the existence of the attorney-client relationship. The Court noted that when inexcusable neglect is condoned even tacitly by the courts, they themselves unwittingly become instruments undermining the orderly process of the law. Given that concern, the "positive misconduct" exception should be narrowly applied, lest negligent attorneys find that the simplest way to gain the twin goals of rescuing clients from defaults and themselves from malpractice liability, is to "rise to ever greater heights of incompetence and professional irresponsibility while, nonetheless, maintaining a beatific attorney-client relationship" (32 Cal. 3d 892, 900) .

The facts and procedural background of Kendall v. Barker (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 243 Cal. Rptr. 42 , are discussed in § 70.142[3][b]. In Kendall, the court of appeal reversed the trial court's grant of defendant's motion for relief under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), from a default and default judgment entered against him, holding that the defendant failed to show diligence in filing the motion after discovery of default (197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 624-626) . The court in Kendall also held that the positive misconduct exception did not apply to afford relief under the facts of the case. The court noted that defendant's motion for relief was based on the alleged "excusable neglect" of his "former counsel." The court stated that in general, a party who seeks relief under the statute on the basis of mistake or inadvertence of counsel must demonstrate that the mistake, inadvertence, or general neglect was excusable, because the negligence of the attorney is imputed to the client and may not be offered by the client as a basis for relief. The court noted the exception to the general rule applies in those instances in which the attorney's neglect is of that extreme degree amounting to positive misconduct, and the person seeking relief is relatively free from negligence. The exception, the court stated, is premised on the concept that the attorney's conduct, in effect, obliterates the existence of the attorney-client relationship, and for this reason the negligence should not be imputed to the client. The court observed that the record in the case before it sheds no light on the conduct of the defendant's attorney, other than that he failed to respond to plaintiff's written request for a responsive pleading, and received notice of request for entry of default. The court concluded that there was nothing before it that suggests positive misconduct so egregious as to obliterate the attorney-client relationship. Moreover, the court found the defendant not to be free from negligence because he knew about the default for several months and did nothing about it (197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 626) .

[c] Narrow Application of Positive Misconduct Exception

Carroll v. Abbott Laboratories, Inc. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 892, 187 Cal. Rptr. 592, 654 P.2d 775 , is discussed under No Abandonment of Attorney-Client Relationship, above.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] No Abandonment of Attorney-Client Relationship

The facts and procedural background of Conway v. Municipal Court (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 166 Cal. Rptr. 246 , are discussed in § 70.142[3][a]. In Conway, the court of appeal held that the superior court abused its discretion in commanding the municipal court to vacate a default and set aside a default judgment on the ground of excusable neglect, when the motion was untimely, and no evidence supported the finding that the neglect was excusable (107 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1016-1019) . In rejecting the application of the positive misconduct exception, the court noted that at all relevant times, defendant's attorney continued his efforts to represent the defendant; and that the attorney-client relationship remained intact (107 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1018) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.216

§ 70.216 Opposing Contention That Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding on Ground of Inexcusable Neglect of Counsel [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Positive Misconduct Exception Does Not Apply When Moving Party Is Negligent

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.120[1]), and with points and authorities generally opposing relief on the ground of excusable neglect of counsel (see, e.g., §§ 70.210 -70.215.]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE THE "POSITIVE MISCONDUCT" EXCEPTION DOES NOT APPLY BECAUSE THE MOVING PARTY WAS NEGLIGENT IN PERMITTING THE DEFAULT TO BE ENTERED.

Positive Misconduct Exception Inapplicable When Moving Party Also Negligent. The "positive misconduct" exception does not apply when the moving party is not relatively free from his or her own negligence in permitting the default to be entered (Kendall v. Barker (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 626, 243 Cal. Rptr. 42 ; see Cisneros v. Vueve (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 906, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 682).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing the motion on additional, particular grounds, e.g., that the motion is not timely (see, e.g., §§ 70.140 -70.148), or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on any other specific ground or grounds asserted (see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.215). Additional points and authorities may be also be added, when appropriate, supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.230, 70.231).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default and default judgment should be set aside on the ground of neglect on the part of the moving party's attorney that, although inexcusable, allegedly falls within the "positive misconduct" exception to the general rule that an attorney's inexcusable neglect does not afford relief [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. The ground of opposition is that the positive misconduct exception does not apply when the moving party was negligent in permitting the default to be entered [Kendall v. Barker (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 626, 243 Cal. Rptr. 42] .

For other points and authorities related to an attorney's inexcusable neglect, see §§ 70.210 -70.215. For points and authorities opposing a motion for relief based on the moving party's inexcusable neglect generally, see §§ 70.190 -70.195. See also § 70.144[1] (opposing relief on the ground that the attorney's preoccupation with other matters is no excuse for failing to file the motion within a reasonable time), and § 70.124[1] (opposing relief on the ground that an attorney's negligence is imputed to the client).

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in § 70.100[1].

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that the motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148], or with additional points and authorities showing that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.215; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]]. This form of points and authorities may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] and § 70.120[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore set forth facts showing that the default resulted from the moving party's negligence and, consequently, the positive misconduct exception does not apply. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Attorney Affidavit of Fault

Whenever an application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, the court must vacate any resulting default judgment entered against his or her client unless the court finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473]. For further discussion, see the § 70.12[3] and § 70.120[2][c] [see also § 70.140 et seq.].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Positive Misconduct Exception Inapplicable When Moving Party Also Negligent

Kendall v. Barker (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 243 Cal. Rptr. 42 , is discussed in § 70.215[3][b].

The facts and procedural background of Cisneros v. Vueve (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 906, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 682 , are discussed in § 70.211[3]. In Cisneros v. Vueve, a purchaser of real property obtained a default against a real estate broker in an action alleging fraud and breach of fiduciary duty. The real estate broker contacted his insurance carrier, who retained counsel to represent the broker in the action. After starting work on a motion to set aside the default, the attorney became involved in other matters and forgot about the file. Thereafter, the court entered a default judgment in the amount of $598,049 against the real estate broker in favor of the purchaser. The lawyer brought a section 473 motion on the broker's behalf to set aside the default and default judgment. In support of the motion, the lawyer filed an affidavit confessing his responsibility for the lengthy period of inaction in the case. The court denied the motion and the insurance broker appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order denying the Code Civ. Proc. § 473 motion. The court assumed that the application was timely and that the affidavit was sufficient to establish attorney neglect. Thus, the court pointed out, relief was mandatory absent application of the "unless" clause of the statute. That provision provides an exception to the mandatory duty when "the court finds that the default or dismissal was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect." The court observed that while the section 473 authorizes relief from both default and default judgment, the statute is clear that for mandatory relief to apply the court must also satisfy itself that the default was in fact caused by the attorney's mistake or neglect (37 Cal. App. 4th 906, 910-911) . The Legislature did not intend to relieve parties who carelessly permit the default to be entered when they subsequently hire equally neglectful attorneys whose failure to take action allows the default to ripen into a judgment (37 Cal. App. 4th 906, 912) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.217-70.229

[Reserved]

§§ 70.217[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.230

§ 70.230 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)] With Alternative Request That Terms Be Imposed or Money Awarded in Event Relief Is Granted--Relief From Default May Be Granted on Terms as May Be Just

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.120[1])].

IF THE COURT GRANTS THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or DISMISSAL or ORDER or _____ (identify other proceeding)], THE COURT _____ [SHOULD IMPOSE THE FOLLOWING CONDITIONS, AS JUST UNDER THE CIRCUMSTANCES: _____ (specify conditions) and/or SHOULD AWARD TO _____ (PLAINTIFF or DEFENDANT) _____ (ATTORNEY'S FEES and/or COSTS and/or SANCTIONS) IN THE FORM OF _____ (specify, e.g., A PENALTY CHARGED AGAINST THE ATTORNEY FOR THE DEFENDANT)].

A. Application for Relief From Default. A court that relieves a party from a judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding taken against him or her under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b), may do so on any terms as may be just (Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)).

B. Award of Attorney's Fees and Costs Allowed. The term "on any terms as may be just," as used in Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b), allows the court to require the moving party to pay costs or attorney's fees to the adverse party to compensate him or her for any losses or expenses suffered by the granting of the motion for relief (Jade K. v. Viguri (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1459, 1474, 258 Cal. Rptr. 907).

C. Penalties and Sanctions Discretionary. Whenever the court grants relief from a default or default judgment based on any of the provisions of Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b), the court may do any of the following: impose a penalty of no greater than $1,000 on an offending attorney or party, direct that an offending attorney pay an amount no greater than $1,000 to the State Bar Client Security Fund, grant other relief as is appropriate (Code Civ. Proc. § 473(c)(1)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form is for use in a motion opposing the grant of relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), to request that, in the event that the court does grant relief notwithstanding the arguments in opposition, the relief be granted subject to certain conditions that are just under the circumstances, including a monetary award to the opposing party for attorney's fees or costs, either pursuant to the general wording of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), relating to relief from judgments, dismissals, orders, or other proceedings (Paragraphs A, B). For a form of points and authorities for use when relief is granted under the specific provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) based on an attorney affidavit of fault, see § 70.231.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds [see §§ 70.140 -70.216]. In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may also be combined with points and authorities generally supporting a motion for the imposition of sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 (frivolous or dilatory tactics in actions filed before January 1, 1995) or under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 (sanctions in actions filed on or after January 1, 1995) [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees (Matthew Bender)].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] and § 70.120[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Therefore, for example, counsel should state facts showing the costs and fees incurred by the opposing party as the result of the moving party's default and the subsequent proceeding for relief from that default. Facts supporting the imposition of a monetary award should be set out by affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury submitted with the points and authorities in opposition to the motion for relief from default and default judgment; this may be relied on by the court as a basis for imposing a monetary award [see [d], below]. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Court's Statutory Authority to Award Costs

If relief from a default or default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), is granted, the court may, under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(c)(1), do any of the following:

(A) Impose monetary penalties no greater than $1,000 against an offending attorney or party.

(B) Direct that the offending attorney pay an amount no greater than $1,000 to the State Bar Client Security Fund.

(C) Grant other relief as is appropriate.

Because the options appear to be stated in the alternative, counsel should, if he or she is claiming such other relief, include the entire statement of the applicable law in the memorandum (Paragraph C). For further discussion, see § 70.10[2][h].

Whenever an application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is timely, in proper form, and accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, the court must vacate any resulting default judgment entered against his or her client unless the court finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473; see § 70.231[1] (form)]. For further discussion, see the § 70.12[3] and § 70.120[2][c] [see also § 70.140 et seq.].

[d] Written Statement Supporting Sanctions Required

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), empowers the trial court to award attorney's fees occasioned by the resisting party, due process requires that the court provide the party with a written statement of reasons for the award when the fees are imposed as "sanctions." The requirement of written reasons affords a safeguard against an abuse of the trial court's discretion and permits appellate review of that discretion [Hearst v. Ferrante (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 234 Cal. Rptr. 385 (order awarding attorney's fees as sanctions vacated in absence of written statement of reasons; discussed under [4], below)].

[e] Award of Attorney's Fees Must Be Just Condition

An award of attorney's fees will be reversed if, under the circumstances, it is not a just condition on granting of relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see In re the Marriage of Kerry (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 456, 463-465, 204 Cal. Rptr. 660 (discussed in § 70.53[3] (relating to mistake caused by incapacity))].

[f] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion and forms relating to the imposition of sanctions based on frivolous or dilitory tactics under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 128.5, 128.7, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 510, Sanctions (Matthew Bender).

[g] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities related to the imposition of sanctions based on frivolous or dilitory tactics under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 128.5, 128.7, see Ch. 60, Costs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Award of Attorney's Fees and Costs Allowed

In Jade K. v. Viguri (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1459, 258 Cal. Rptr. 907 , a default was entered against the defendant in an action alleging professional negligence. Defendant filed a motion under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), for relief from the default and any default judgment, and shortly before the hearing on the motion, tendered his defense to his insurance carrier. The trial court denied the motion. Defendant filed a motion for reconsideration; the trial court proceeded with the default judgment hearing, and entered a default judgment against the defendant. The insurer, as intervenor, filed a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 for relief from the default taken against the defendant, on the ground that before entry of default, it was unaware of the plaintiff's claim against the defendant, and was therefore unable to extend a defense. The trial court denied the defendant's motion for reconsideration, and the insurer's motion to vacate. Defendant and the insurer appealed.

The court of appeal dismissed the defendant's appeal from the default judgment and the order denying his motion to vacate default as untimely and affirmed the denial of his motion to reconsider (210 Cal. App. 3d 1459, 1474) . The court also reversed the order denying the insurer's motion to vacate the default judgment (discussed in § 70.40[4]). The court also stated that former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), permits the court to grant relief "upon such terms as may be just," and that the court may properly order payment of costs or attorney fees to the adverse party as compensation for loss or expense occasioned by the granting of the motion. Accordingly, the court held, as a condition to relief from default under the statute, that the insurer must pay the plaintiff reasonable costs and attorney fees in an amount to be determined by the trial court (210 Cal. App. 3d 1459, 1474) . The 1992 amendment of Code of Civ. Proc. § 473, which changed the phrase "upon such terms as may be just" to "upon any terms as may be just" should not change this holding.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Award of Attorney's Fees and Costs Allowed

Hearst v. Ferrante (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 201, 234 Cal. Rptr. 385 , was a breach of contract action in which defendants cross complained against plaintiff for damages for false imprisonment and infliction of emotional distress. Plaintiff did not file a responsive pleading to the cross complaint; his default was entered and a default judgment against him was taken. Plaintiff moved to set aside the default and default judgment on the ground that plaintiff's attorneys believed that the cross complaint had not been served. The motion for relief was granted, and the trial court awarded cross complainants $600 for attorney's fees incurred on the motion. Plaintiff appealed. The court of appeal stated that former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), permits the trial court to relieve a party from a judgment or order against him or her under specified conditions and "upon such terms as may be just," and that courts have long construed this phrase to allow payment of costs or attorney's fees to the adverse party to compensate him or her for any losses suffered by reason of the motion. The 1992 amendment of Code of Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph, which changed the phrase "upon such terms as may be just" to "upon any terms as may be just" should not change this result. The court further stated that although Code Civ. Proc. § 473 empowers the trial court to award attorney's fees occasioned by the resisting party, due process requires that the court provide the party with a written statement of reasons for the award when the fees are imposed as "sanctions." The requirement of written reasons affords a safeguard against an abuse of the trial court's discretion and permits appellate review of that discretion (189 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204) . Consequently, the court remanded the case to enable the trial court to make findings or to vacate its award of attorney's fees (189 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204-205) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.231

§ 70.231 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)] With Alternative Request That Terms Be Imposed or Money Awarded in Event Relief Is Granted--Award of Fees and Costs Is Mandatory on Attorney's Affidavit of Fault

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see § 70.120[1]), and with points and authorities generally opposing relief on the ground of excusable neglect of counsel (see, e.g., §§ 70.210 -70.216.]

IF THE COURT GRANTS THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BASED ON THE ATTORNEY'S AFFIDAVIT OF FAULT, THE COURT SHOULD DIRECT THE OPPOSING PARTY'S ATTORNEY, _____ [name], TO PAY REASONABLE COMPENSATORY LEGAL FEES AND COSTS.

Mandatory Fees and Costs Based on Attorney Affidavit of Fault. Whenever relief is granted based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, the court is required to direct the attorney to pay reasonable compensatory legal fees and costs to opposing counsel or parties (Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing the motion on additional, particular grounds, e.g., that the motion is not timely (see, e.g., §§ 70.140 -70.148), or that the moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on any other specific ground or grounds asserted (see, e.g., §§ 70.160 -70.216).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form is for use in a motion opposing the grant of relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), to request that, in the event that the court does grant relief notwithstanding the arguments in opposition, the relief be granted subject to a monetary award to the opposing party for attorney's fees or costs under the specific provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), relating to relief based on an attorney affidavit of fault.

For a form of points and authorities for use in generally requesting that conditions be imposed on terms as may be just, see § 70.230[1]. For a form of points and authorities for use when relief is granted pursuant to the general wording of section 473(b) relating to relief from judgments, dismissals, orders, or other proceedings under the specific provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) based on an attorney affidavit of fault, see § 70.230[1]. For discussion regarding requirement of written statement supporting award of sanctions, see § 70.230[2][d].

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see § 70.120[1]]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds [see §§ 70.140 -70.216]. In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may also be combined with points and authorities generally supporting a motion for the imposition of sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(frivolous or dilatory tactics in actions filed before January 1, 1995) or under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 (sanctions in actions filed on or after January 1, 1995) [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees (Matthew Bender)].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.10[2] and § 70.120[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Therefore, for example, counsel should state facts showing the costs and fees incurred by the opposing party as the result of the moving party's default and the subsequent proceeding for relief from that default. Facts supporting the imposition of a monetary award should be set out by affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury submitted with the points and authorities in opposition to the motion for relief from default and default judgment; this may be relied on by the court as a basis for imposing a monetary award [see § 70.230[2][d]]. See also § 70.120[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Relief Based on Attorney Affidavit of Fault

Whenever relief from a default or default judgment is granted based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, the court is required to direct the attorney to pay reasonable compensatory legal fees and costs to opposing counsel or parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); see also § 70.230[2][c] (court's statutory authority to award costs)]. However, the relief granted from the default or default judgment must not be made conditional on the attorney's payment of compensatory legal fees or costs or monetary penalties imposed by the court or on compliance with other sanctions ordered by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(c)(2)].

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion and forms relating to the imposition of sanctions based on frivolous or dilitory tactics under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 128.5, 128.7, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 510, Sanctions (Matthew Bender).

[e] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities related to the imposition of sanctions based on frivolous or dilitory tactics under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 128.5, 128.7, see Ch. 60, Costs .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.232-70.235

[Reserved]

§§ 70.232[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.236

§ 70.236 Reply Memorandum Supporting Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Substantial Compliance With Requirement for Filing of Proposed Answer

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	REPLY MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF DE-
_____ [name],	)	FENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE DEFAULT
Defendant.	)	AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
		Location: _____

_____

DEFENDANT HAS SUBSTANTIALLY COMPLIED WITH THE REQUIREMENT THAT THE NOTICE OF MOTION BE ACCOMPANIED BY THE PROPOSED ANSWER BY FILING THE PROPOSED ANSWER SUFFICIENTLY IN ADVANCE OF THE HEARING TO PERMIT PLAINTIFF TO PREPARE FOR THE HEARING.

Substantial Compliance When Opposing Party Has Time to Prepare. A party substantially complies with the "accompanied by" requirement in Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) by filing the proposed answer sufficiently in advance of the hearing to permit the other party to prepare for the hearing. The objectives of the six-month limitation are fulfilled by timely and substantial compliance with that section] (County of Stanislaus v. Johnson (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 832, 837-838, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73 (Fifth Appellate District)) .

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[moving party]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form is a reply memorandum that may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default and default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). The basis of the reply is that defendant has substantially complied with the Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) requirement that the notice of motion be accompanied by the proposed response because the pleading was filed sufficiently in advance of the hearing to permit the plaintiff to prepare for the hearing. The optional language in the form provides that the objective of the six-month requirement is satisfied by substantial compliance with the section.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in reply to opposing memorandum set out in § 70.146[1].

These points and authorities may be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs ,].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the proposed answer was served on the plaintiff sufficiently in advance of the hearing to permit the plaintiff to prepare for the hearing. See also § 70.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Conflict in Court of Appeal Decisions on Viability of Substantial Compliance

The form in [1], above, should be used with caution. There is a conflict of opinion at the appellate level on the issue of whether there may be substantial compliance with the requirement in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) that the notice of motion "shall be accompanied by a copy of the answer or other pleading proposed to be filed therein."

The form sets out a position that is contrary to the holding by the Third Appellate District in Puryear v. Stanley (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 291, 293-295, 218 Cal. Rptr. 196 [compare Puryear v. Stanley (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 291, 293-295, 218 Cal. Rptr. 196 with County of Stanislaus v. Johnson (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 832, 838, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73 (Fifth Appellate District) ; Job v. Farrington (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 338, 340-341, 257 Cal. Rptr. 210 (Second Appellate District)] .

For further discussion, see § 70.146[2][c].

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For further discussion and forms for use in proceedings to set aside a default, default judgment, or other judgment, dismissal, or order, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Substantial Compliance When Opposing Party Has Time to Prepare

County of Stanislaus v. Johnson (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 832, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73 , involved an action by a county against a father of a minor child to recover child support. After default and default judgment was entered against him, the father's attorney filed a timely motion to set aside the judgment, but failed to file a proposed answer with the notice of motion. The county filed an opposition to the motion contending that the motion was defective because it was not accompanied by points and authorities and contending that the father should lose on the merits. At the county's request, the hearing on the motion was continued. When the hearing was held, the county contended for the first time that the court was without jurisdiction to grant the motion because the father did not file a proposed answer. The matter was reset and the father filed a proposed answer. The matter was heard before a commissioner and the court adopted the commissioner's recommendation that the motion for relief be granted. The county appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the order. The court stated that it was satisfied the trial court had jurisdiction because the father's moving papers substantially complied with Code Civ. Proc. § 473. The notice of motion and accompanying declaration adequately informed the county of the basis of the father's attack on the judgment. The court concluded that there was substantial compliance with the "accompanied by" requirement by serving and filing the proposed answer three weeks in advance of the hearing on the section 473 motion, which was sufficiently in advance of the hearing to permit the other party to prepare for the hearing (43 Cal. App. 4th 832, 838) . Johnson criticized the Puryear v. Stanley (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 291, 218 Cal. Rptr. 196 (Third Appellate District, discussed in § 70.146[3]) refusal to extend the concept of substantial compliance to the section 473 directive that a motion for relief be accompanied by an answer or other proposed pleading and be submitted to the trial court within six months of entry of default. Johnson stated that Puryear's "rigid application of the 'accompanied by' requirement fails to give full remedial effect to the statute and is unnecessarily strict" (43 Cal. App. 4th 832, 837) . The court instead, favored the holding in Job v. Farrington (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 338, 341, 257 Cal. Rptr. 210 (Fifth Appellate District, discussed in § 70.146[2][c]) that a motion for relief from default may substantially comply with section 473 even if the proposed answer is not attached to the motion when it is filed (43 Cal. App. 4th 832, 838) .

Further, according to the court, the trial court is deprived of jurisdiction merely because the proposed pleading was not filed within the six month time limitation. Rather, the objectives of that requirement are fulfilled by timely and substantial compliance with section 473. The opposing party is on notice within a reasonable time that the judgment is under attack, even if that notice is defective in some manner (43 Cal. App. 4th 832, 837-838) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
1. Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.237-70.239

[Reserved]

§§ 70.237[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
2. Other Statutory Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.240

§ 70.240 Supporting Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground That Service of Summons Did Not Result in Actual Notice to Defendant in Time to Defend [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5]--General Form

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO Plaintiff,	)	SET ASIDE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDG-
vs.	)	MENT
_____ [name],	)	Date: _____
Defendant.	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473.5 FOR RELIEF FROM THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE HE/SHE RECEIVED NO ACTUAL NOTICE OF THE ACTION IN TIME TO DEFEND, HE/SHE FILED A TIMELY MOTION FOR RELIEF, AND THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT WERE NOT CAUSED BY DEFENDANT'S AVOIDANCE OF

SERVICE OR INEXCUSABLE NEGLECT.

A. Motion for Relief From Default for Lack of Actual Notice. When service of a summons has not resulted in actual notice to a party in time to defend the action and a default or default judgment has been entered against him or her in the action, the party may serve and file a notice of motion to set aside the default or default judgment and for leave to defend the action (Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5(a)).

B. Court May Grant Relief on Timely Motion if Defendant Not at Fault. On a finding by the court that the motion was made within the period permitted by Code of Civil Procedure Section 473.5(a) and that his or her lack of actual notice in time to defend the action was not caused by his or her avoidance of service or inexcusable neglect, it may set aside the default or default judgment on whatever terms as may be just and allow the party to defend the action (Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5(c); Goya v. P.E.R.U. Enterprises (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 886, 890-891, 151 Cal. Rptr. 258).

C. Granting of Relief Within Discretion of Trial Court. Whether or not relief should be granted under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473.5 is a matter within the discretion of the trial court (Brockman v. Wagenbach (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 603, 611, 313 P.2d 659).

D. Policy Favors Application for Relief. Unless inexcusable neglect is clear, the policy favoring trial on the merits prevails over the general rule of deference to the trial court's exercise of discretion, and doubts are resolved in favor of the application for relief from default (Tunis v. Barrow (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 1079, 229 Cal. Rptr. 389).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[moving party]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a motion to set aside a default and default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5. It is a general form that sets out the grounds for obtaining relief from defaults under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5, that is:

- Service of summons did not result in actual notice to defendant.
- A default and default judgment was entered against defendant in the action.
- Defendant filed a timely motion for relief.
- Lack of notice was not caused by defendant's avoidance of service or inexcusable neglect.

The caption and form should be modified as necessary when relief is sought from the entry of default only, as distinguished from the entry of default and a resulting default judgment.

Paragraph B of this form may be adapted for use in a reply memorandum to oppose a contention that defendant is not entitled to relief because he or she avoided service or in some way inexcusably neglected to prevent the default.

This form may be combined with additional points and authorities supporting a request for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 based on specific grounds [see §§ 70.241, 70.272].

This form may also be combined, in an appropriate case, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of relief based on other statutory or decisional authority [see discussion under [c], below].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore show that relief is appropriate under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5, for example, that the moving party did not receive actual notice, and the lack of actual notice was not caused by the moving party's avoidance of service or his or her inexcusable neglect.

In an appropriate case, counsel would refer to evidence set forth in:

- Declarations submitted in support of relief from the judgment, order, or dismissal [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1306(a)].
- Discovery documents, such as deposition transcripts and answers to interrogatories and requests for admission.
- The opposing party's pleadings that constitute admissions.
- Other documentary evidence generally.

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion"), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702].

When counsel cites facts in his or her argument, counsel should refer to the particular page and line number of the declaration, deposition transcript, or other document, that contains the cited facts. In addition, the relevant portion of any testimony in a deposition should be marked in a manner that calls attention to the testimony [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1116(c)].

For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice and affidavits and declaration, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Alternative Methods of Obtaining Relief

Various other statutes provide additional grounds for relief from a default judgment [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473, 473.1]. For forms of memoranda supporting a grant of relief from default judgment on other statutory grounds, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with this form, see §§ 70.10 -70.110, 70.250 -70.270. A default judgment may also be set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), on the ground that it is void. For forms of memoranda supporting a grant of relief from a void default judgment or other void judgment or order, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with this form, see § 70.310 et seq. Finally, a default judgment may be attacked by a motion or separate action in equity, when the judgment was obtained through extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress. For forms of memoranda supporting a grant of relief from a default judgment or other judgment or order on such equitable grounds, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with this form, see § 70.480 et seq.

[d] Timely Filing of Motion Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5

A notice of motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 must be served and filed within a reasonable time, but in no event exceeding the earlier of: (1) two years after entry of a default judgment against the moving party; or (2) 180 days after service on the moving party of a written notice that the default or default judgment has been entered [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5(a); see §§ 70.280, 70.281].

[e] Requirement of Showing of Meritorious Defense Unconstitutional

Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 does not expressly require any showing of a meritorious defense as a prerequisite to obtaining relief under that section. Such a requirement would, in fact, violate procedural due process when a defendant has received no actual notice of the proceeding that is the subject of the default [see Peralta v. Heights Medical Center, Inc. (1988) 485 U.S. 80, 84-87, 108 S. Ct. 896, 99 L. Ed. 2d 75 (holding that a requirement in a foreign state statute, that a defendant show a meritorious defense to obtain relief from default despite the fact that service on the defendant was defective, violated the due process clause of U.S. Const., amend. XIV)]. For further discussion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders (Matthew Bender).

[f] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.280 -70.282 may be used to oppose this form.

[g] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion and forms relating to relief from default and default judgment based on lack of actual notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court May Grant Relief on Timely Motion if Defendant Not at Fault

In Goya v. P.E.R.U. Enterprises (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 886, 151 Cal. Rptr. 258 , plaintiff filed a complaint based on the unauthorized publication of her photograph. She subsequently filed an amended complaint, substituting various named defendants for Does. Service was allegedly made on defendants by plaintiff's counsel. Plaintiff obtained default judgments against all but one defendant, and gave notice of entry of the judgments seven months later. Four months after receiving notice of the default judgments, three individual defendants, in their individual capacities and representing their respective businesses, filed motions to set aside the default and vacate the default judgments. The court granted the motions, and plaintiff appealed, contending that defendants failed to meet their burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence that they did not receive actual notice of the lawsuit, and that she was seriously prejudiced by the granting of relief from default.

The court of appeal affirmed (87 Cal. App. 3d 886, 895) . The court stated that Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 permits the court to set aside a default or default judgment against a defendant and allow him or her to defend the action on its merits if: (1) the defendant received through no inexcusable fault of the defendant's, no actual notice of the action in time to appear and defend, and had not made a general appearance; (2) a default or default judgment has been entered against him or her by the court; and (3) he or she acted with reasonable diligence in serving and filing the notice of motion to set aside the default or default judgment (87 Cal. App. 3d 886, 890-891) . After viewing the defendants' declarations, the court concluded that they supported the implied finding that if service of summons and complaint was made, it did not result in actual notice of the action in time to defend (87 Cal. App. 3d 886, 891) . The opposing declarations showed that service on one of the individual defendants was made by leaving a copy of the summons and complaint with someone not a party to the action, who identified himself as the defendant's assistant, and by mailing copies to the defendant. (The person served was not, in fact, defendant's agent, and he later stated he did not remember receiving any documents.) They also alleged personal service on the remaining defendants by virtue of service of copies of the summons and complaint at their residence (87 Cal. App. 3d 886, 891-892) . The supporting declarations established that the first defendant was never personally served with summons and complaint or amended complaint, either as an individual, or on behalf of any fictitious entity, never received any documents relating to the lawsuit, and never received any papers from the person who identified himself as his assistant; and that he had no actual notice in time to defend the action. The supporting declarations also showed that the remaining two defendants, although served with copies of summons and complaint and amended complaint, were unaware of the nature of the documents, and that the documents did not result in actual notice to them in time to defend the action (87 Cal. App. 3d 886, 891-892) . Specifically, their declarations established, inter alia, that they took no active part in running the business, that they were natives of Peru and did not understand the documents or the oral explanation given to them by the person who served te papers and that they turned the documents over to the active owner of the business, who did nothing about them. The court noted that the trial court obviously believed the supporting declarations, in which case the defendants had met their burden of proof. The court observed that the declarations supported not only the implied finding that service of summons and complaint and the amended complaint did not result in actual notice to defendants in time to defend the action, but also the express finding that their motion was made within the period of time specified by the statute, and that defendants' lack of actual notice was not caused by avoidance of service or inexcusable neglect (87 Cal. App. 3d 886, 892) .

The court also stated that the moving party must show a meritorious defense in order to obtain relief (87 Cal. App. 3d 886, 891) . On this point the decision appears to have abrogated by the United States Supreme Court's decision in Peralta v. Heights Medical Center, Inc. (1988) 485 U.S. 80, 84-87, 108 S. Ct. 896, 99 L. Ed. 2d 75 , discussed under [2][e], above.

[b] Granting of Relief Within Discretion of Trial Court

In Brockman v. Wagenbach (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 603, 313 P.2d 659 , an action for personal injuries in which service of process was made by publication, defendant's default was entered six months after the order for publication was issued, and judgment was entered a month later. More than six months after entry of the judgment, defendant moved under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473a [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5] to set aside the default judgment and obtain permission to file his verified answer. The motion was granted and plaintiff appealed, arguing that the court abused its discretion in that defendant had knowledge of the pendency of the action but unreasonably and in bad faith delayed entering his appearance; defendant had failed to show a meritorious defense; plaintiff was prejudiced by defendant's delay; and defendant's motion had attacked only the judgment, not the default underlying it.

The court of appeal reviewed the terms of former Code Civ. Proc. § 473a [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5] and noted that under its provisions, defendant was entitled to relief if he could show that he was not personally served and that he had a good defense on the merits, unless it appeared that he had actual notice, and that failure to appear in the action was due to neglect or laches and resulted in prejudice to plaintiff such that it would be inequitable to grant relief (152 Cal. App. 2d 603, 611) . The court held that whether or not relief should be granted was a matter within the discretion of the trial court, and that its order would not be disturbed except on a showing of abuse of discretion (152 Cal. App. 2d 603, 611) . The court concluded that defendant appeared to have had knowledge of the proceeding but did not know that service by publication had been authorized. The court further found that plaintiff was not prejudiced by defendant's failure to appear (152 Cal. App. 2d 603, 611-612) . The court agreed with defendant that his motion was sufficient to vacate the default as well as the judgment, in that filing of his proposed answer indicated his intention to move for relief from the default (152 Cal. App. 2d 603, 613-614) . The court concluded that the trial court did not abuse its discretion, and affirmed the order vacating the default and the default judgment (152 Cal. App. 2d 603, 617) .

Note that, to the extent that the court stated that the defendant was required to show a meritorious defense in order to obtain relief, the decision appears to have been abrogated by the United States Supreme Court's decision in Peralta v. Heights Medical Center, Inc. (1988) 485 U.S. 80, 84-87, 108 S. Ct. 896, 99 L. Ed. 2d 75 , discussed in under [2][e], above.

[c] Policy Favors Application for Relief

In Tunis v. Barrow (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 229 Cal. Rptr. 389 , plaintiff purchaser of a trailer sued defendant seller for breach of contract and fraud based on defendant's failure to deliver title. Plaintiff purchased a trailer from the individual defendant, who promised that he would soon deliver the pink slip to plaintiff. Unknown to plaintiff, the trailer was subject to a lien in favor of the manufacturer of the trailer. The defendant gave his attorney a portion of the purchase price paid by the plaintiff, so that he could pay the manufacturer that sum in return for the pink slip. The attorney assured defendant that he would carry out those instructions, but in fact, failed to do so. After filing suit, the plaintiff filed a first amended complaint, adding corporate defendants. Pursuant to court order, the corporate defendants were eventually served through the secretary of state. Plaintiff served a writ of attachment on the county sheriff, covering proceeds in escrow payable to the individual defendant. On the same day that the sheriff received money from that attachment, service was made on defendant's attorney (that is, the same attorney who failed to procure the pink slip). Approximately two months later, after unsuccessfully attempting to serve defendant personally, plaintiff served defendant by publication. Defaults were entered against the corporate defendants and the individual defendant, and copies of requests to enter default were mailed to defendant's previous address. The court entered default judgment against all defendants. Defendant's attorney did not inform him of the existence of the action filed by plaintiff. Approximately six months after entry of judgment, another attorney, who was a friend of the defendant, informed him of the action and the default judgment entered. The defendant asked his attorney to take immediate steps to set the judgment aside, but the attorney again failed to carry out the request. Several months later, defendant dismissed that attorney and retained other counsel. Defendants moved to vacate the default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5, on the ground that they id not receive actual notice of the action in time to defend it; they also sought equitable relief. The trial court denied that motion, as well a motion for rehearing. Defendants appealed.

The court of appeal dismissed the appeal from the order denying the motion for rehearing, reversed the order denying the motion to vacate default judgment against defendant seller, and affirmed the order denying the motion to vacate default judgment against corporate defendants (184 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 1080) . The court noted that Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 provides that when service of a summons has not resulted in actual notice to a party in time to defend the action and a default or default judgment has been entered against him or her, the party may move to set it aside if he or she acts within two years after entry of the default judgment and shows that lack of actual notice in time to defend the action was not caused by the party's avoidance of service or inexcusable neglect. The court of appeal noted that in Rosenthal v. Garner (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 891, 895, 191 Cal. Rptr. 300 , it previously construed Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 "to mean what it says when it refers to actual notice." It rejected the notion that there is an identity of attorney and client so as to impute invariably to a client the attorney's inaction concerning the attorney's notice of new litigation to which the client is an unknowing party defendant. The court stated that in denying corporate defendants' motion to vacate the default judgment, the trial court determined that defendants received actual notice of the existence of plaintiff's action through the attorney, who was acting for the individual defendant in dealing with the plaintiff, and was not discharged by that defendant until after the default was entered. The trial court distinguished Rosenthal from the instant case on the ground that in Rosenthal, the defendant's attorney represented him in an action prior to the one in which the default judgment was entered against him. The court of appeal stated that the difference in the respective positions of the attorneys is irrelevant. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5, pursuant to Rosenthal, a defendant's right to relief from a default judgment initially turns on whether or not he or she had actual notice of the action in which the judgment was entered against the defendant. In Rosenthal, the phrase "actual notice" under the statute was construed to mean "genuine knowledge of the party litigant and does not contemplate notice imputed to a principal from an attorney's actual notice." In his declaration in support of the motion to vacate the default judgment, the defendant in the instant case conceded that the escrow company informed him of the attachment of his funds in escrow; however, he further stated that when he asked his attorney about the attachment, his attorney said the plaintiff was allowed to "file a lien" against the escrow funds without filing a lawsuit. The court stated that the evidence is uncontradicted that although the defendant's attorney had notice of the action, he never informed the defendant of its existence, and that the defendant did not lean of the action through any source until six months after entry of the default judgment (184 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 1077) .

The court also stated that a defendant seeking vacation of a default judgment must further show that his or her lack of actual notice in time to defend the action was not caused by his or her inexcusable neglect or avoidance of service (184 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 1077-1078) . The court observed that defendants recognize the general rule that neglect of the attorney is imputed to the client and may not be offered by the client as a basis for relief, but argue that in the present case, the "positive misconduct" exception applies. According to that exception, in those instances in which the attorney's neglect is of that extreme degree amounting to positive misconduct, and the person seeking relief is relatively free from negligence, the attorney's conduct obliterates the existence of the attorney-client relationship; therefore, the attorney's negligence should not be imputed to the client. The court stated that courts applying that exception have emphasized that an attorney's authority to bind his or her client does not permit the attorney to impair or destroy the client's cause of action or defense. The court agreed that the facts of the instant case bring it within the exception (184 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 1078) . The court also rejected plaintiff's contention that lack of actual notice was caused by the defendant's avoidance of service. The court observed that although the defendant left the state on occasion, and eventually moved outside California, he informed his attorney of his whereabouts, and no evidence showed that his moving was motivated by a desire to avoid service (184 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 1078-1079) . The court stated that when, as in the instant case, the trial court denies the motion for relief from default, the strong policy in favor of trial on the merits conflicts with the general rule of deference to the trial court's exercise of discretion. Unless inexcusable neglect is clear, the policy favoring trial on the merits prevails. Doubts are resolved in favor of the application for relief from default, and reversal of an order denying relief results (184 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 1079) . The court stated, however, that the corporate defendants were properly served and were therefore not entitled to relief (184 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 1079-1080) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
2. Other Statutory Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.241

§ 70.241 Supporting Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground That Service of Summons Did Not Result in Actual Notice to Defendant in Time to Defend [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5]--Service on Attorney Whose Failure to Inform Defendant Results From Positive Misconduct

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief from default or default judgment based on lack of actual notice (see, e.g., § 70.240[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473.5 FOR RELIEF FROM THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE DEFENDANT'S ATTORNEY FAILED TO INFORM HIM/HER OF THE ACTION, AND THAT FAILURE RESULTED FROM SUCH POSITIVE MISCONDUCT THAT THE ATTORNEY-CLIENT RELATIONSHIP IS OBLITERATED,

Service on Attorney Who Commits Positive Misconduct. Service on defendant's attorney is not imputed to the defendant if the attorney's failure to inform the defendant of the existence of the action results from the attorney's positive misconduct such that the attorney-client relationship is obliterated; and the defendant otherwise receives no actual notice, within the meaning of Code of Civil Procedure Section 473.5, of the action, and is relatively free from negligence in causing the default (Tunis v. Barrow (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 1078, 229 Cal. Rptr. 389 ; Rosenthal v. Garner (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 891, 893-895, 897-898, 191 Cal. Rptr. 300).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment against the defendant should be set aside on the ground of lack of actual notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5]. The specific ground of the contention is that although the defendant's attorney was served in the action, the attorney's positive misconduct caused the defendant to remain uninformed of the action; and that the defendant did not otherwise receive actual notice of the action in time to defend, nor was he or she negligent in causing the default [see Rosenthal v. Garner (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 891, 893-895, 897-898, 191 Cal. Rptr. 300] .

This form should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 [see § 70.240[1]]. It may also be combined when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief on other, specific grounds [see, e.g., § 70.242[1]].

These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a reply memorandum, to refute opposing argument that defendant is not entitled to relief because the default was caused by the inexcusable neglect of the defendant's attorney, which is imputed to defendant. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.240[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore show that the attorney's conduct amounted to neglect so extreme that it constituted positive misconduct, and effected a severance of the attorney-client relationship. If appropriate, counsel should set forth facts showing that plaintiff had notice that defendant's purported counsel was not in fact acting in the capacity of his or her legal representative with respect to the action in which the default was taken. See also § 70.240[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Positive Misconduct Exception

Cases applying the "positive misconduct" exception have found a "total failure on the part of counsel to represent the client to the extent that each attorney had de facto substituted himself out of the case" [see Mitchell v. Department of Transportation (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1016, 1023, 210 Cal. Rptr. 266 (regarding relief from late filing of claim under Torts Claims Act (Gov. Code § 900 et seq.)]. The "positive misconduct" exception is frequently litigated in the context of a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), on the ground of excusable neglect, as an exception to the general rule that an attorney's negligence is imputed to the client. For points and authorities in support of, and in opposition to, a grant of relief on this ground under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), see §§ 70.100 and 70.215, 70.216, respectively.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Service on Attorney Who Commits Positive Misconduct

Tunis v. Barrow (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 229 Cal. Rptr. 389 , is discussed in § 70.240[3][c].

In Rosenthal v. Garner (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 891, 191 Cal. Rptr. 300 , defendant had been represented by an attorney in a previous action between the parties. When plaintiffs filed another action against defendant, the complaint was sent to defendant's attorney, who neither responded to the suit nor notified defendant of the existence of the action. Plaintiffs effected service on defendant by publication, and obtained a judgment after default. Some 21 months later, defendant learned of the litigation through sources other than her attorney, and moved to set aside the default and default judgment. The trial court denied the motion, and defendant appealed.

The court of appeal reversed (142 Cal. App. 3d 891, 899) . Plaintiffs contended that sending a copy of the summons and complaint to defendant's attorney provided defendant with "actual notice," although it did not constitute personal service. They also contended that the failure of defendant's attorney to advise her of the litigation was inexcusable neglect, which is imputed to defendant. The court noted that although Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 refers to "actual notice," plaintiffs assert that constructive notice under Civ. Code § 2332 (regarding notice to principal or agent) is sufficient to vitiate a motion to set aside a default judgment. However, the court held, Civ. Code § 2332 should not be applied to meet the requirement of actual knowledge. The court stated that to read "actual notice" as imputed notice would "stand [the definition of actual and constructive notice set out in] Civ. Code § 18 on its head." Consequently, the court held, "actual notice" means genuine knowledge of the party litigant and does not contemplate notice imputed to a principal from an attorney's actual notice. The court also rejected plaintiffs' argument that a letter to defendant's attorney threatening a possible future lawsuit was actual notice to defendant of litigation to be defended within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5. The court stated that an attorney is usually the agent of his or her client in transactions in which the attorney acts for the client (142 Cal. App. 3d 891, 895) . Therefore, the court observed, the doctrine of imputed notice is usually invoked by the attorney-client relationship. However, the doctrine of imputation of the attorney's knowledge to the client has its exceptions. In the instant case, the court noted "a certain distance, rather than a close connection" between the attorney's prior representation of defendant and the filing of the subsequent action. Under the facts, the court noted, rather than speculate that an attorney-client relationship continued beyond the first action, plaintiffs might as well have assumed that friction existed between the two, which belied the existence of that relationship (142 Cal. App. 3d 891, 896) .

The court noted that under the "positive misconduct" exception to the general rule that an attorney's negligence is imputed to the client, when an attorney's neglect is so extreme as to amount to positive misconduct, the attorney-client relationship is obliterated. In the instant case, the court held, before defendant moved for relief from the default judgment, that there was a total failure on the part of counsel to represent the client. Under such circumstances, the court concluded, neither notice to the attorney, nor the asserted inexcusable neglect of the attorney, is imputed to defendant (142 Cal. App. 3d 891, 897) . The court held that the proof established the kind of de facto severance of the attorney-client relationship that invokes the positive misconduct doctrine (142 Cal. App. 3d 891, 898) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
2. Other Statutory Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.242

§ 70.242 Supporting Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground That Service of Summons Did Not Result in Actual Notice to Defendant in Time to Defend [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5]--Defendant Unaware of Nature of Documents Served

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion for relief from default or default judgment based on lack of actual notice (see, e.g., § 70.240[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473.5 FOR RELIEF FROM THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE DEFENDANT WAS JUSTIFIABLY UNAWARE OF THE NATURE OF THE DOCUMENTS; THEREFORE, SERVICE DID NOT RESULT IN ACTUAL NOTICE.

Defendant Unaware of Nature of Documents. Even if the defendant was actually served with the summons and complaint, if he or she was justifiably unaware of the nature of the documents, service does not result in actual notice (Goya v. P.E.R.U. Enterprises (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 886, 892, 892 n.3, 151 Cal. Rptr. 258).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that a default and default judgment against the defendant should be set aside on the ground of lack of actual notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5]. The specific ground of the contention is that although the defendant was personally served with a copy of the summons and complaint, he or she was unable to understand the nature of the documents in time to defend the action [see Goya v. P.E.R.U. Enterprises (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 886, 892, 892 n.3, 151 Cal. Rptr. 258] .

This form should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. §

473.5 [see § 70.240[1]]. It may also be combined when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief on other, specific grounds [see, e.g., § 70.241[1]].

This form may also be adapted for use in a reply memorandum, to refute opposing argument that defendant is not entitled to relief because the defendant was personally served with a copy of the summons and complaint. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.240[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore show that the defendant was unaware of the nature of the documents served because, for example, he or she did not understand the documents or any oral explanation given regarding the documents. See also § 70.240[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Defendant Unaware of Nature of Documents

Goya v. P.E.R.U. Enterprises (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 886, 890-891, 151 Cal. Rptr. 258 , is discussed in § 70.240[3][a].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
2. Other Statutory Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.243-70.249

[Reserved]

§§ 70.243[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
2. Other Statutory Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.250

§ 70.250 Supporting Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground of Improper Venue in Consumer Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5]--General Form

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO SET ASIDE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)	Date: _____
Defendant.	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT or DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT] BECAUSE THE ACTION WAS COMMENCED IN AN IMPROPER COURT, CONTRARY TO THE VENUE PROVISIONS OF _____ [CIVIL CODE SECTION 1812.10 or CIVIL CODE SECTION 2984.4 or CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 395(b)], AND DEFENDANT IS ENTITLED TO RELIEF UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 585.5.

A. Motion for Relief From Default When Action Filed in Wrong Venue. When a default or default judgment has been entered without full compliance with the venue provision of _____ [Civil Code Section 1812.10 or Civil Code Section 2984.4, or Code of Civil Procedure Section 395(b)], the defendant may serve and file a notice of motion to set aside the default or default judgment and for leave to defend the action in the proper court (Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5(b)).

B. Relief Available to Defendant. On a finding by the court that defendant's motion is timely and that the action was not commenced in the proper court, it shall set aside the default or default judgment on such terms as may be just, and allow defendant to defend the action in the proper court (Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5(d)).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[moving party]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be used in support of a motion to set aside a default or default and default judgment entered in an action governed by the Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act [Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.], the Automobile Sales Finance Act [Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.], or the venue provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) regarding consumer actions other than those governed by these two acts, when the action was brought in an improper court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5].

This form may also be combined, in an appropriate case, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of relief based on other statutory or decisional authority [see discussion under [c], below].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should show that the action is governed by the relevant consumer statute, and the basis for venue.

In an appropriate case, counsel would refer to evidence set forth in:

- Declarations submitted in support of relief from the judgment, order, or dismissal [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1306(a)].

- Discovery documents, such as deposition transcripts and answers to interrogatories and requests for admission.

- The opposing party's pleadings that constitute admissions.

- Other documentary evidence generally.

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion"), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702].

When counsel cites facts in his or her argument, counsel should refer to the particular page and line number of the declaration, deposition transcript, or other document, that contains the cited facts. In addition, the relevant portion of any testimony in a deposition should be marked in a manner that calls attention to the testimony [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1116(c)].

For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice and affidavits and declaration, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Alternative Methods of Obtaining Relief

Various other statutes provide additional grounds for relief from a default judgment [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473, 473.5]. For forms of memoranda supporting a grant of relief from default judgment on other statutory grounds, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with this form, see §§ 70.10 -70.110, 70.240 -70.242, and 70.251 -70.270. A default judgment may also be set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), on the ground that it is void. For forms of memoranda supporting a grant of relief from a void default judgment or other void judgment or order, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with this form, see § 70.310 et seq. Finally, a default judgment may be attacked by a motion or separate action in equity, when the judgment was obtained through extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress. For forms of memoranda supporting a grant of relief from a default judgment or other judgment or order on such equitable grounds, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with this form, see § 70.330 et seq.

[d] Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act

Civ. Code § 1812.10 provides, in part, that actions on contracts or installment accounts under the provisions of the Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act [Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.] must be tried in the county in which: (1) the contract was signed; (2) the buyer resided at the time of signing the contract; (3) the buyer resides at the commencement of the action; or (4) goods purchased under the contract have been affixed to real property. The statute also provides that plaintiff must state facts in an affidavit or verified complaint showing that the action has been commenced in the proper court. If plaintiff fails to do so, the court is required to dismiss the action on its own motion or on motion of any party to the action, without prejudice.

[e] Automobile Sales Finance Act

Civ. Code § 2984.4 is the venue provision of the Automobile Sales Finance Act (also known as the Rees-Levering Act) [Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.] and contains provisions similar to those under Civ. Code § 1812.10. An action on a contract or purchase order under the act must be tried in the county in which: (1) the contract or purchase order was signed by the buyer; (2) the buyer resided at the time the contract or purchase order was signed; (3) the buyer resides at commencement of the action; or (4) the motor vehicle purchased under the contract or purchase order is permanently garaged. As with Civ. Code § 1812.10, plaintiff is required to state on oath facts showing that the action was commenced in the proper court.

[f] General Consumer Provision

Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) is the venue provision for the following types of actions:

(1) Actions arising from an offer or provision of goods, services, loans or extensions of credit intended primarily for personal, family or household use, other than an obligation described in Civ. Code § 1812.10 or Civ. Code § 2984.4; or

(2) Actions arising from a transaction consummated as a proximate result of an unsolicited telephone call made by a seller engaged in the business of consummating transactions of that kind or electronic transmission made by the buyer or lessee in response to a solicitation by the seller.

The proper county for trial of these actions is the county in which the buyer or lessee in fact signed the contract, the county in which the buyer or lessee resided at the time the contract was entered into, or the county in which the buyer or lessee resides at the commencement of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b)].

[g] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.290[1] may be used to oppose this form.

[h] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a discussion and forms relating to the Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act [Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.], and the Automobile Sales Finance Act [Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.], see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales (Matthew Bender). For discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b), see Ch. 140, Contracts , and Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution , in that publication.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
2. Other Statutory Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.251

§ 70.251 Supporting Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground of Improper Venue in Consumer Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5]--Damages and Costs May Be Awarded to Moving Party

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5 (see § 70.250[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD AWARD DEFENDANT ACTUAL DAMAGES AND COSTS, INCLUDING REASONABLE ATTORNEY'S FEES, ON A FINDING BY THE COURT THAT THE ACTION WAS FILED IN THE WRONG VENUE.

Award of Damages and Costs to Defendant. Unless plaintiff can show the use of reasonable diligence to avoid filing the action in the improper court, on a finding that venue is improper, the court shall award the defendant actual damages and costs, including reasonable attorney's fees (Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5(e)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be used in support of a motion to set aside a default or default and default judgment entered in an action governed by the Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act [Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.], the Automobile Sales Finance Act [Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.], or the venue provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) regarding consumer actions other than those governed by these two acts, when the action was brought in an improper court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5], and the moving party seeks an award of actual damages and costs, including reasonable attorney's fees [Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5(e)].

These points and authorities should be combined with points and authorities generally supporting a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5 [see § 70.250[1]].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should show that the action is governed by the relevant consumer statute, and the basis for venue. See also § 70.250[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
2. Other Statutory Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.252-70.259

[Reserved]

§§ 70.252[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
2. Other Statutory Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.260

§ 70.260 Supporting Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground That Defendant's Military Service Prejudiced Defense [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g)]--Application for Relief Is Proper

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO
vs.	)	SET ASIDE DEFAULT JUDGMENT BY DEFEND-
_____ [name],	)	ANT IN MILITARY SERVICE
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE THEY WERE ENTERED IN VIOLATION OF THE SERVICEMEMBERS CIVIL RELIEF ACT, IN THAT DEFENDANT WAS ENGAGED IN MILITARY SERVICE, WHICH PREJUDICED HIS/HER ABILITY TO PRESENT A DEFENSE IN A TIMELY MANNER.

Application for Vacation of Default Judgment. If a default judgment is entered in an action covered by the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act against a servicemember during the servicemember's period of military service, or within 60 days after termination of or release from military service, the court entering the judgment must, upon application by or on behalf of the servicemember, reopen the judgment for the purpose of allowing the servicemember to defend the action if it appears that the servicemember was materially affected by reason of that military service in making a defense to the action, and the servicemember has a meritorious or legal defense to the action or some part of it [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(a), (g)(1)].
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to vacate and set aside a default and default judgment on the ground that a default and/or default judgment was entered against the moving party during his or her period of military service [see [d], below] (or within 60 days after termination of or release from military service), in violation of the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.) [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 521]. The governing statute applies in any civil action or proceeding in which the defendant did not make an appearance [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(a)].

This form may also be combined, in an appropriate case, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of relief based on other statutory or decisional authority [see discussion under [c], below].

This form may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should show that the motion for relief is timely, either by indicating that defendant is still in the military or that the application for relief is made within 90 days of his or her release from the service. Prejudice to the defendant should be explained by reference to facts demonstrating defendant's difficulties in presenting a defense to the action because of his or her military service. Counsel should also set forth facts in support of a meritorious defense.

In an appropriate case, counsel would refer to evidence set forth in:

- Declarations submitted in support of relief from the judgment, order, or dismissal [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1306(a)].

- Discovery documents, such as deposition transcripts and answers to interrogatories and requests for admission.

- The opposing party's pleadings that constitute admissions.

- Other documentary evidence generally.

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion"), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702].

When counsel cites facts in his or her argument, counsel should refer to the particular page and line number of the declaration, deposition transcript, or other document, that contains the cited facts. In addition, the relevant portion of any testimony in a deposition should be marked in a manner that calls attention to the testimony [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1116(c)].

For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice and affidavits and declaration, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Alternative Methods of Obtaining Relief

Various other statutes provide additional grounds for relief from a default judgment [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473, 473.5]. For forms of memoranda supporting a grant of relief from default judgment on other statutory grounds, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with this form, see §§ 70.10 -70.110, 70.240 -70.242, 70.250 -70.251, 70.261 -70.270. A default judgment may also be set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), on the ground that it is void. For forms of memoranda supporting a grant of relief from a void default judgment or other void judgment or order, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with this form, see § 70.310 et seq. Finally, a default judgment may be attacked by a motion or separate action in equity, when the judgment was obtained through extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress. For forms of memoranda supporting a grant of relief from a default judgment or other judgment or order on such equitable grounds, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with this form, see § 70.480 et seq.

[d] Military Service Defined

Under the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act, the term "servicemember" means a member of the uniformed services, as "uniformed services" is defined in 10 U.S.C. § 101(a)(5) [50 U.S.C. App. § 511(1)]. 10 U.S.C. § 101(a)(5) defines "uniformed services" as including the armed forces, the commissioned corps of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, and the commissioned corps of the Public Health Service. Under the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act, the term "military service" means, in the case of a member of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard, active duty as defined in 10 U.S.C. § 101(d)(1), and in the case of a member of the National Guard, includes service under a call to active service authorized by the President or the Secretary of Defense for a period of more than 30 consecutive days under 32 U.S.C. § 502(f), for purposes of responding to a national emergency declared by the President and supported by Federal funds; in the case of a servicemember who is a commissioned officer of the Public Health Service or the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, active service, and any period during which a servicemember is absent from duty on account of sickness, wounds, leave, or other lawful cause [50 U.S.C. App. § 511(2)(C)].

The period of military service begins on the date on which a servicemember enters military service and ends on the date on which the servicemember is released from military service or dies while in military service [50 U.S.C. App. § 511(3)].

[e] Timeliness of Application

Defendant seeking relief from a default judgment entered while he or she was in the military service may apply for relief not later than 90 days after termination of the military service [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g)(2)].

[f] Showing of Prejudice to Defendant

A default judgment rendered against a person in military service may be opened if it appears that the servicemember was prejudiced in making his or her defense in the action by reason of his or her military service [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g)(1)].

[g] Showing of Meritorious or Legal Defense

Relief from a default judgment is available to a defendant in military service under the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act when it is made to appear that the defendant has a meritorious or legal defense to the action or some part thereof [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g)(1)].

[h] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.300 -70.303 et seq. may be used to oppose this form.

[i] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion and forms relating to declarations under the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.), see the California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments (Matthew Bender).

139 of 156 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
2. Other Statutory Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.261

§ 70.261 Supporting Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground That Defendant's Military Service Prejudiced Defense [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(b)]--Relief Based on Failure to Appoint Attorney

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5 (see § 70.250[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE THE COURT FAILED TO APPOINT AN ATTORNEY FOR DEFENDANT PRIOR TO ENTERING THE DEFAULT JUDGMENT.

Failure to Appoint Attorney. A default judgment cannot be entered against a defendant who is in military service without an order of the court, and the court cannot order entry of judgment until it appoints an attorney to represent the defendant and protect his or her interests (50 U.S.C. App. § 521(b)(2)). If the court fails to appoint an attorney for defendant prior to entering the default judgment, the defendant may obtain relief from the judgment (50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g); Allen v. Allen (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 433, 436, 182 P.2d 551).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to vacate and set aside a default and default judgment on the ground that the court entered a default judgment against the defendant without first appointing an attorney to protect the defendant's interests [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 521(b)(2)].

This form may also be combined, in an appropriate case, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of relief based on other statutory or decisional authority [see § 70.260[2][c]].

This form may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.260[2] for further discussion and related Pleading and Practice Chapters.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should show that the motion for relief is timely, either by indicating that defendant is still in the military or that the application for relief is made within 90 days of his or her release from the service. Prejudice to the defendant should be explained by reference to facts demonstrating defendant's difficulties in presenting a defense to the action because of his or her military service. Counsel should also set forth facts in support of a meritorious defense. See also § 70.260[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Appoint Attorney

In Allen v. Allen (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 433, 182 P.2d 551 , two years after entry of a final judgment of divorce, plaintiff served on defendant's former attorney a notice of motion to modify the support provisions. The attorney informed plaintiff's counsel that he was no longer authorized to represent defendant and did not know of his whereabouts, except that he was in the military. Attempts by the attorney to locate defendant had been unsuccessful, and he so informed the court. However, on defendant's default, the court granted plaintiff's motion for increased support without appointing an attorney to represent the defendant. Defendant first learned of the modification 27 months later. Shortly thereafter, and immediately on his release from the service, defendant moved to vacate the modification on the ground that it was void because of plaintiff's failure to comply with the former Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940, now entitled the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.). The motion was denied, and defendant appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed (30 Cal. 2d 433, 437) . The Court noted that plaintiff had filed no affidavits regarding defendant's military status, as required by former Section 200(1) of the act (former 50 U.S.C. App. § 520(1); see now Section 201(b) of the act, 50 U.S.C. Appen. § 521(b)) although the trial court was informed of defendant's military service (30 Cal. 2d 433, 434-435) . The Court found that the trial court erred in failing to appoint an attorney for defendant (30 Cal. 2d 433, 435) . However, proceedings contrary to the act are valid until properly attacked, rather than void (30 Cal. 2d 433, 436) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to Appoint Attorney

In re Marriage of Lopez (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 776, 173 Cal. Rptr. 718 , concerned the court of appeal's reversal of a trial court order denying relief to a defendant based on a post-dissolution modification order entered while he was in the military. The court held that the trial court's failure to appoint an attorney to represent the defendant's interests required vacation of the modification order, and the trial court's denial of defendant's motion constituted an abuse of discretion (115 Cal. App. 3d 776, 783-784) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
2. Other Statutory Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.262

§ 70.262 Supporting Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Judgment Entered During Period of Military Service [Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d)]--Defendant Was Prejudiced and Has Meritorious or Legal Defense

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO
vs.	)	SET ASIDE JUDGMENT ENTERED DURING
_____ [name],	)	PROTECTED PERIOD OF MILITARY SERVICE
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Dept.: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE JUDGMENT BECAUSE THE JUDGMENT WAS ENTERED [either DURING A PERIOD OF MILITARY SERVICE AS DEFINED IN SECTION 400(b) OF THE MILITARY AND VETERANS CODE or WITHIN 30 DAYS OF A PERIOD OF MILITARY SERVICE AS DEFINED IN SECTION 400(b) OF THE MILITARY AND VETERANS CODE], DEFENDANT WAS PREJUDICED BY REASON OF MILITARY SERVICE FROM MAKING A DEFENSE TO THE ACTION, AND DEFENDANT HAS A MERITORIOUS OR LEGAL DEFENSE.

Entry of Judgment During Period of Military Service. If a judgment is rendered against a service member, as defined in Mil. & Vet. Code § 400(a), during a period of military service, as defined in Mil. & Vet. Code § 400(b), or within 30 days thereafter, and it appears that the service member was prejudiced by reason of the service in making a defense to the action, the court rendering the judgment may open it on application by the service member or his or her legal representative no later than 90 days after termination of the service, provided the application states a meritorious or legal defense to the action or to some part of it (Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to vacate and set aside a judgment on the ground that the court entered the judgment against the defendant during a period of protected military service and that defendant has a meritorious or legal defense to the action or to some part of it [Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d)].

This form may also be combined, in an appropriate case, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of relief based on other statutory or decisional authority.

This form may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should show that the motion for relief is timely, either by indicating that defendant is still in military service or that the application for relief is made within 90 days of termination of his or her service. Prejudice to the defendant should be explained by reference to facts demonstrating defendant's difficulties in presenting a defense to the action because of his or her military service. Counsel should also set forth facts in support of a meritorious or legal defense.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

Effective June 21, 2002, if any judgment is rendered in any action or proceeding against a service member during the period of his or her service or within 30 days thereafter, and it appears that the service member was prejudiced by reason of the military service in making a defense to the judgment, on application by the service member or his or her legal representative, the judgment may be opened by the court rendering it and the defendant or his or her legal representative allowed to defend. Application to reopen must be made by the service member or his or her legal representative not later than 90 days after termination of military service and must state a meritorious or legal defense to the action or some part of it [Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d)]. However, the vacating, setting aside or reversal of a judgment for this reason will not impair any right or title acquired by a bona fide purchaser for value under the judgment [Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d)].

A "service member" is defined for these purposes as either of the following [Mil. & Vet. Code § 400(a)]:

- Officers and enlisted members of the National Guard called or ordered into active state service by the Governor pursuant to Mil. & Vet. Code §§ 143 or 146 or into active federal service by the President pursuant to Title 10 or 32 of the United States Code.

- Reservists of the United States Military Reserve who have been called to full-time active duty.

"Military service" means full-time active state or federal service as defined in Mil. & Vet. Code § 400(a)(1) or full-time active of a reservist as defined in Mil. & Vet. Code § 400(a)(2), for a period in excess of seven days in any 14-day period. Days of service for a service member called to active service or duty since September 11, 2001, to engage in homeland defense against terrorism are credited toward the seven-day period [Mil. & Vet. Code § 400(b)].

A certificate signed by an appropriately authorized officer of the military department, branch, or unit in which a service member is serving is prima facie evidence as to any of the following facts as stated in the certificate [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.8(a)]:

- That a person named has not been, or is, or has been in the military service.
- The time when and the place where the person entered military service.
- The person's residence at that time, and the rank, branch, and unit of the service the person entered.
- The dates within which the person was in the military service.
- The monthly pay received by the person at the date of issuing the certificate.
- The time when and the place where the person died in or was discharged from the service.

The authorized officer must furnish the certificate on application. Any certificate purporting to be signed by an officer purporting on the face of the certificate to have been authorized to sign it, is prima facie evidence of its contents and of the authority of the signer to issue it [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.8(b)].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
2. Other Statutory Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.263-70.269

[Reserved]

§§ 70.263[Reserved]

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

§ 70.270 Supporting Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground of Court's Jurisdiction Over Law Practice of Defendant's Attorney [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.1]

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO Plaintiff,	)	SET ASIDE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDG-
vs.	)	MENT
_____ [name],	)	Date: _____
Defendant.	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT WERE ENTERED AFTER FILING OF THE APPLICATION FOR THE ASSUMPTION OF COURT JURISDICTION OVER THE LAW PRACTICE OF DEFENDANT'S ATTORNEY, AND DEFENDANT IS THEREFORE ENTITLED TO RELIEF PURSUANT TO CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473.1.

Relief From Judgment When Court Assumed Jurisdiction Over Attorney's Law Practice. The court may, on such terms as may be just, relieve a party from a judgment, order, or other proceeding taken against him or her if a California court has assumed jurisdiction, pursuant to Business and Professions Code section 6180 or 6190, over the law practice of the attorney for the party, and the judgment, order, or other proceeding was taken against the party after the application for the court to assume jurisdiction over the practice was filed (Code Civ. Proc. § 473.1).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[moving party]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be used in support of a motion to set aside a default and default judgment, on the ground that the judgment was entered after the filing of an application for a California court to assume jurisdiction over the defendant's attorney [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6180, 6190 (court jurisdiction over law practice); Code Civ. Proc. § 473.1 (relief from judgment or other proceeding based on court jurisdiction over law practice)]. The caption and form should be modified as necessary when relief is sought from the entry of default only, as distinguished from the entry of default and a resulting default judgment.

This form may be adapted for use by a plaintiff to seek relief from an involuntary dismissal [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473.1 (referring to relief on the same grounds from a dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 581 and former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 581a, 583 [now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.110-583.430])]. This form may also be modified, as appropriate, for use in seeking relief in situations other than a default and default judgment, that is, from any other "judgment, order, or other proceeding" [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.1].

This form may also be combined, in an appropriate case, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of relief based on other statutory or decisional authority [see [c], below].

This form may, in addition, be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should show that the application for court jurisdiction over defendant's attorney was filed prior to the entry of the default or default and default judgment.

In an appropriate case, counsel would refer to evidence set forth in:

- Declarations submitted in support of relief from the judgment, order, or dismissal [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1306(a)].

- Discovery documents, such as deposition transcripts and answers to interrogatories and requests for admission.

- The opposing party's pleadings that constitute admissions.

- Other documentary evidence generally.

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion"), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702].

When counsel cites facts in his or her argument, counsel should refer to the particular page and line number of the declaration, deposition transcript, or other document, that contains the cited facts. In addition, the relevant portion of any testimony in a deposition should be marked in a manner that calls attention to the testimony [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1116(c)].

For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice and affidavits and declaration, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Alternative Methods of Obtaining Relief

Various other statutes provide additional grounds for relief from a default judgment [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473, 473.5]. For forms of memoranda supporting a grant of relief from default judgment on other statutory grounds, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with this form, see §§ 70.10 -70.110, 70.240 -70.242, and 70.250 -70.261. A default judgment may also be set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), on the ground that it is void. For forms of memoranda supporting a grant of relief from a void default judgment or other void judgment or order, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with this form, see § 70.310 et seq. Finally, a default judgment may be attacked by a motion or separate action in equity, when the judgment was obtained through extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress. For forms of memoranda supporting a grant of relief from a default judgment or other judgment or order on such equitable grounds, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with this form, see § 70.480 et seq.

[d] Limitations Period

Application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.1 must be made within a reasonable period of time, in no case exceeding six months, after the court takes jurisdiction over the practice. However, in the case of a judgment, order, or other proceeding determining the ownership or right to possession of real or personal property, without extending the six-month period, when a notice in writing is personally served within California both on the party against whom the judgment (or order or other proceeding) has been taken, and on the attorney appointed pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6180.5 to act under the court's direction, notifying the party and the appointed attorney that the judgment (or order or other proceeding) was taken against him or her and that any rights the party has to apply for relief under the provisions of the statute expire 90 days after service of notice, then application for relief must be made within 90 days after service of the notice on the defaulting party or the attorney appointed to act under the court's direction, whichever service is later [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.1; cf. §§ 70.140, 70.148 (opposing grant of relief under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), when moving party fails to satisfy similar time limitations under that section)].

[e] No Declaration of Merits Required

No affidavit or declaration of merits is required of the moving party who applies for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.1[Code Civ. Proc. § 473.1].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
2. Other Statutory Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.271-70.279

[Reserved]

§§ 70.271[Reserved]

144 of 156 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
2. Other Statutory Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.280

§ 70.280 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground That Service of Summons Did Not Result in Actual Notice to Defendant in Time to Defend [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5]--Motion Is Untimely--Notice of Motion Was Not Filed Within Statutory Period

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.120[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473.5 TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT or DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT] BECAUSE IT IS UNTIMELY, IN THAT THE NOTICE OF MOTION WAS NOT FILED WITHIN _____ [TWO YEARS AFTER THE ENTRY OF THE DEFAULT JUDGMENT or 180 DAYS AFTER SERVICE OF NOTICE OF ENTRY OF THE _____ (DEFAULT or DEFAULT JUDGMENT)].

Timeliness of Motion. A notice of motion under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473.5 must be served and filed within a reasonable time, but in no event exceeding the earlier of: (1) two years after entry of a default judgment against the moving party; or (2) 180 days after service on the moving party of a written notice that the default or default judgment has been entered (Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5(a)).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[opposing party]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a default or default and default judgment on the ground of lack of actual notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5]. The ground of opposition is that the motion is untimely, in that it was not filed within time limitations of that section. For points and authorities for use in opposing a motion under section 473.5 on that ground that the motion was not filed within a "reasonable time" under the facts, see § 70.281[1].

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in § 70.240 -70.242.

This form may be combined with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 on other specific grounds [see §§ 70.281 -70.282]. If the moving party has sought relief on additional grounds other than those provided under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5, they may also be combined, as appropriate, with points and authorities opposing the grant of such alternative relief [see, e.g., § 70.120[1] (relief based on mistake, surprise, inadvertence, or excusable neglect), § 70.310 et seq. (relief from void judgments), § 70.480 et seq. (equitable relief)].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.240[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore set forth the relevant dates of entry of default or the date of notice of entry of the default or default judgment (whichever is earlier), and the date of the filing of the motion, and show that the motion was filed later than the date of the applicable period.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.10 -70.41.

When appropriate, this form may be combined with the following points and authorities generally opposing the motion for relief, on the following grounds:

- The motion should be denied based on policy [see, e.g., § 70.121[1]].
- The mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect was not reasonable [see, e.g., § 70.122[1]].
- The moving party failed to exercise reasonable diligence in arranging for his or her defense [see, e.g., § 70.123[1]].
- An attorney's negligence is imputed to the client [see, e.g., § 70.124[1]].
- The moving party's argument that he or she has a meritorious defense is irrelevant [see, e.g., § 70.125[1]].

This form should be combined with additional points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that:

- The motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148].

- The moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.216; see also discussion in 70.10[2][g]].

This form may also be combined, in an appropriate case, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of relief based on other statutory or decisional authority, when the motion and supporting memorandum has asserted such additional authority as alternate bases for relief [see discussion in § 70.10[2][c]]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion and forms relating to relief from default and default judgment based on lack of actual notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders (Matthew Bender).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
2. Other Statutory Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.281

§ 70.281 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground That Service of Summons Did Not Result in Actual Notice to Defendant in Time to Defend [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5]--Motion Is Untimely--Moving Party Failed to Act With Reasonable Diligence

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 on ground of untimeliness (see § 70.280[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473.5 TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT or DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT] BECAUSE IT IS UNTIMELY, IN THAT THE NOTICE OF MOTION WAS NOT FILED WITHIN A REASONABLE TIME.

Diligence Required. A party seeking relief pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 473.5 must show that he or she acted with reasonable diligence in serving and filing the notice of motion to set aside the default or default judgment (Goya v. P.E.R.U. Enterprises (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 886, 891, 151 Cal. Rptr. 258).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a default or default and default judgment on the ground of lack of actual notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5]. The ground of opposition is that the motion was not filed within a "reasonable time" under the facts [Goya v. P.E.R.U. Enterprises (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 886, 891, 151 Cal. Rptr. 258] .

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.240 -70.242.

This form should be combined with a form generally opposing a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 on the ground of untimeliness [see § 70.280[1]].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.240[2] for related chapters in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore set forth the relevant dates of entry of default or the date of notice of entry of the default or default judgment (whichever is earlier), and the date of the filing of the motion, and show that the motion was filed after an unexplained and inexcusable delay. See also § 70.280[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion and forms relating to relief from default and default judgment based on lack of actual notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Diligence Required

Goya v. P.E.R.U. Enterprises (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 886, 151 Cal. Rptr. 258 , is discussed in § 70.240[3][a].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
2. Other Statutory Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.282

§ 70.282 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground That Service of Summons Did Not Result in Actual Notice to Defendant in Time to Defend [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5]--Denial of Relief Is Proper Exercise of Court's Discretion

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.120[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473.5 TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT or DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT] UNDER THE FACTS, PURSUANT TO THE COURT'S PROPER EXERCISE OF SOUND DISCRETION.

Trial Court Has Discretion to Grant or Deny Relief. The trial court has a sound discretion to grant or deny relief under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473.5 if the evidence is conflicting (Crescendo Corp. v. Shelted, Inc. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 209, 213, 72 Cal. Rptr. 776).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default or default and default judgment should be set aside on the ground of lack of actual notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5]. The ground of opposition is that under the facts, the trial court in its sound discretion should deny relief [see Crescendo Corp. v. Shelted, Inc. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 209, 213, 72 Cal. Rptr. 776] .

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.240 -70.242.

This form may be combined with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of relief under Code Civ. Proc. §

473.5 on other specific grounds [see §§ 70.280, 70.281]. If the moving party has sought relief on additional grounds other than those provided under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5, they may also be combined, as appropriate, with points and authorities opposing the grant of such alternative relief [see, e.g., § 70.120[1] (relief based on mistake, surprise, inadvertence, or excusable neglect), § 70.310 et seq. (relief from void judgments), § 70.480 et seq. (equitable relief)].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.240[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore describe defendant's conduct with respect to the entry of default, and show that relief is not warranted under the circumstances, for example, because the defendant actively avoided plaintiff's attempts to complete service. See also § 70.280[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion and forms relating to relief from default and default judgment based on lack of actual notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Trial Court Has Discretion to Grant or Deny Relief

In Crescendo Corp. v. Shelted, Inc. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 209, 72 Cal. Rptr. 776 , a default judgment was entered against a corporate defendant in an unlawful detainer action. Defendant moved for relief from the judgment under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473a [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5], contending that service, which was made on one of defendant's corporate officers, was insufficient. The trial court denied the motion, and defendant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the trial court properly exercised its discretion in denying relief (267 Cal. App. 2d 209, 213) . The court noted that plaintiff had served a three-day notice on an individual who was an officer of defendant corporation; there was no dispute regarding the notice. Subsequently, the process server attempted to serve the same person with a copy of the summons and complaint. He visited the same residence, knocked on the front door, and heard a man's voice tell another person that if the call was for him, to say that he was not at home. The process server could see the man through a window, and identified him as the same person to whom he had served the three-day notice. A woman answered the door, and stated that the man was not at home. The process server stated loudly that he was serving the corporate officer with a copy of the unlawful detainer, and left the papers under the windshield wiper of a car parked in a carport; the car was registered to the corporate officer. The corporation made no appearance in the action (267 Cal. App. 2d 209, 211) . In his affidavit in support of relief, the corporate officer who received the papers falsely denied service. However, at the hearing on the motion, he admitted that he found the papers on his car, and subsequently advised other officers and directors, and consulted a lawyer (267 Cal. App. 2d 209, 212-213) . The court stated that personal service usually contemplates actual delivery. However, the person on whom service is sought may not, by merely declining to take the document offered, deny the personal service on the ground of lack of delivery, when under the circumstances it would be obvious to a reasonable person that personal service was being attempted. In such a case, the service may be made by merely depositing the process in some appropriate place where it would be most likely to come to the attention of the person being served. The court observed that the trial court determined on conflicting evidence that the process server attempted to make personal service and did effect good and sufficient service on the corporate officer on behalf of the corporation (267 Cal. App. 2d 209, 212) . The court stated that the individual on whom the process server attempts to make personal service by manual delivery may not claim that service was improper because he or she refused to accept service; and that the evidence was sufficient to support the court's necessarily implied finding that the process server attempted to deliver the documents to the corporate officer personally but was prevented from doing so by that person. The court stated that under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (see § 70.10 et seq.) and former Code Civ. Proc. § 473a [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5], when the evidence s conflicting, the court has sound discretion to grant or deny the motion, and in the absence of a clear showing of abuse of discretion, the trial court's order will not be interfered with on appeal (267 Cal. App. 2d 209, 213) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Trial Court Has Discretion to Grant or Deny Relief

In Trujillo v. Trujillo (1945) 71 Cal. App. 2d 257, 162 P.2d 640 , the trial court denied defendant's motion under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473a [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5] for relief from entry of default in a divorce action, after considering conflicting evidence with regard to whether the defendant was served with copies of the summons and complaint (that is, defendant attempted to avoid service, but the process server left the papers on his car). The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the evidence adequately supports the finding of personal service of process, and that when the evidence is conflicting, the trial court has sound discretion to grant or deny the motion (71 Cal. App. 2d 257, 259-260) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
2. Other Statutory Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.283

§ 70.283 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground That Service of Summons Did Not Result in Actual Notice to Defendant in Time to Defend [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5]--Moving Party Had Actual Notice in Time to Defend

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.120[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473.5 TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT or DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT] UNDER THE FACTS, BECAUSE DEFENDANT HAD ACTUAL NOTICE IN TIME TO DEFEND.

Defendant Had Actual Notice in Time to Defend. A motion to vacate a default or default judgment when service of summons has not resulted in actual notice to a party in time to defend the action should be denied when the party had actual notice in time to defend (Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5(a); Ellard v. Conway (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 540, 547-548, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 399).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a default or default and default judgment should be set aside on the ground of lack of actual notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5]. The ground of opposition is that under the facts, the defendant had actual notice in time to defend the lawsuit [see Ellard v. Conway (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 540, 547-548, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 399] .

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.240 -70.242.

This form may be combined with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 on other specific grounds [see §§ 70.280, 70.281]. If the moving party has sought relief on additional grounds other than those provided under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5, they may also be combined, as appropriate, with points and authorities opposing the grant of such alternative relief [see, e.g., § 70.120[1] (relief based on mistake, surprise, inadvertence, or excusable neglect), § 70.310 et seq. (relief from void judgments), § 70.480 et seq. (equitable relief)].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.240[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore describe the facts of defendant's obtaining actual notice and facts showing defendant obtained actual notice in time to defend the lawsuit. See also § 70.280[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion and forms relating to relief from default and default judgment based on lack of actual notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Defendant Had Actual Notice in Time to Defend

In Ellard v. Conway (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 540, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 399 , plaintiffs sued defendants for fraud and to void deeds of trust and notes which plaintiffs had executed and delivered to defendants on three residential properties to secure promissory notes. The process server who attempted to achieve personal service on the defendants was informed that they had moved. Plaintiffs' counsel obtained a forwarding address, which was a private mail service. The process server confirmed that defendants received mail there, left the summons and complaint with the manager and later mailed a copy to the defendants at that address. Plaintiffs' counsel also mailed a copy of the summons and complaint to the defendants at the private mail service. One of the defendants then called plaintiff's counsel. The next day, he faxed counsel a signed waiver proposing to toll the time limit for responding and/or answering, specifying the case number. He later called plaintiffs' counsel to discuss settlement, at which time counsel told him that if counsel did not receive an answer, he would seek a default. Plaintiffs then moved for a default and mailed a copy of the request to the defendants. The court entered default judgment against the defendants and plaintiffs' counsel mailed a copy of the judgment to defendants. Defendants moved to vacate the default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 on the grounds they were not properly served and did not have actual notice of the litigation. The trial court denied the motion (94 Cal. App. 4th 540, 543-544) .

The Court of Appeal affirmed. The court held that service was proper (94 Cal. App. 4th 540, 544-547) . The court then found that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying the motion to vacate the default judgment. The court found that the trial court could reasonably conclude that defendants had actual notice, since one of the defendants had plaintiffs' counsel's telephone number and the case number, and he wanted to settle the case. The court concluded that the defendant would not have been willing to settle if he were unaware of the plaintiffs' claims against the defendants. The court then found that the trial court could also reasonably conclude that the defendants had time to defend the action, since they had actual notice two weeks before an answer was due, and their failure to answer was a result of inexcusable neglect, since they knew their answer was due and chose not to respond (94 Cal. App. 4th 540, 547-548) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
2. Other Statutory Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.284-70.289

[Reserved]

§§ 70.284[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
2. Other Statutory Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.290

§ 70.290 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground of Improper Venue in Consumer Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5]--Motion Is Untimely

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.120[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT or DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT] BECAUSE IT IS UNTIMELY, IN THAT THE NOTICE OF MOTION WAS NOT FILED WITHIN 60 DAYS AFTER THE DEFENDANT FIRST RECEIVED NOTICE OF THE PROCEDURE FOR ENFORCING THE DEFAULT JUDGMENT.

Sixty-Day Limitation Period. A motion to set aside a default or default judgment entered without full compliance with Civil Code Section 1812.10, Civil Code Section 2984.4, or Code of Civil Procedure Section 395(b), must be served and filed within 60 days after the defendant first receives notice of levy under a writ of execution, or notice of any other procedure for enforcing the default judgment (Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5(b)).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[opposing party]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to vacate a default or default and default judgment entered in an action governed by the Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act (Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.), the Automobile Sales Finance Act (Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.), or the general consumer provision under Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b), based on improper venue [see Civ. Code §§ 1812.10, 2984.4; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395(b), 585.5]. The ground of opposition is that the motion was not brought within 60 days after the defendant first received notice of levy under a writ of execution, or notice of any other procedure for enforcing the default judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5(b)].

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.250 -70.251.

This form may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.250[b] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5 and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore set forth the nature of the action and show the applicability of the relevant limitation provision; and should also set forth the date of entry of default and the date of the filing of the motion.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.10 -70.41.

When appropriate, this form may be combined with the following points and authorities generally opposing the motion for relief, on the following grounds:

- The motion should be denied based on policy [see, e.g., § 70.121[1]].
- The mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect was not reasonable [see, e.g., § 70.122[1]].
- The moving party failed to exercise reasonable diligence in arranging for his or her defense [see, e.g., § 70.123[1]].
- An attorney's negligence is imputed to the client [see, e.g., § 70.124[1]].
- The moving party's argument that he or she has a meritorious defense is irrelevant [see, e.g., § 70.125[1]].

This form should be combined with additional points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that:

- The motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148].
- The moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.216; see also discussion in 70.10[2][g]].

These points and authorities may also be combined, in an appropriate case, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of relief based on other statutory or decisional authority, when the motion and supporting memorandum has asserted such additional authority as alternate bases for relief [see discussion in § 70.10[2][c]]. These points and authorities may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a discussion and forms relating to the Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act [Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.], and the Automobile Sales Finance Act [Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.], see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales (Matthew Bender). For discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b), see Ch. 140, Contracts , and Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution , in that publication.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
2. Other Statutory Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.291-70.299

[Reserved]

§§ 70.291[Reserved]

151 of 156 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
2. Other Statutory Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.300

§ 70.300 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground That Defendant's Military Service Prejudiced Defense [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g)]--No Relief Absent Showing of Prejudice

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION
vs.	)	TO SET ASIDE DEFAULT JUDGMENT BY DE-
_____ [name],	)	FENDANT IN MILITARY SERVICE
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE HE/SHE HAS FAILED TO SHOW THAT MILITARY SERVICE PREJUDICED HIS/HER PRESENTATION OF A DEFENSE TO THE ACTION.

A. No Relief Absent Showing of Prejudice. A judgment rendered in the absence of a court-appointed attorney representing the defendant under the provisions of the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act is not void, and may be set aside only on a showing that defendant was prejudiced in making his or her defense by reason of military service (Kromm v. Kromm (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 523, 530, 191 P.2d 115).

B. No Relief Absent Showing of Material Effect on Defense. The relief provided by the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act is only available when the military service materially affects the conduct of a defendant's defense; the rights under the act are not absolute but dependent in each case on the judge's determination whether the military person's rights would be adversely affected by the fact of his or her service (Wilterdink v. Wilterdink (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 526, 535, 184 P.2d 527).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to vacate and set aside a default and default judgment on the ground that the entry of the default and default judgment took place during the moving party's period of military service [see § 70.260[2][d]] (or within 60 days after termination of or release from military service), in violation of the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.) [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 521]. The governing statute applies in any civil action or proceeding in which the defendant did not make an appearance [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(a)]. The ground of opposition is that the defendant failed to show that his or her military service prejudiced the defense of the action [see, e.g., Kromm v. Kromm (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 523, 530, 191 P.2d 115] .

For points and authorities for use when the defendant based his or her motion on the plaintiff's filing of a false affidavit regarding the defendant's military status, see § 70.301[1]. For points and authorities for use when the defendant executed a waiver of rights prior to the entry of default, see § 70.302[1].

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to points and authorities set out in § 70.260[1].

This form may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.260[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under 50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g) and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore show that the defendant's military service did not prejudice his or her defense. If applicable, counsel should set forth the terms of any waiver executed by the defendant.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.10 -70.41.

When appropriate, this form may be combined with the following points and authorities generally opposing the motion for relief, on the following grounds:

- The motion should be denied based on policy [see, e.g., § 70.121[1]].

- The mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect was not reasonable [see, e.g., § 70.122[1]].

- The moving party failed to exercise reasonable diligence in arranging for his or her defense [see, e.g., § 70.123[1]].

- An attorney's negligence is imputed to the client [see, e.g., § 70.124[1]].

- The moving party's argument that he or she has a meritorious defense is irrelevant [see, e.g., § 70.125[1]].

This form should be combined with additional points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that:

- The motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148].

- The moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.216; see also discussion in 70.10[2][g]].

This form may also be combined, in an appropriate case, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of relief based on other statutory or decisional authority, when the motion and supporting memorandum has asserted such additional authority as alternate bases for relief [see discussion in § 70.10[2][c]]. This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting the imposition of terms, including an award of attorney's fees, costs, or sanctions, in the event that the court grants relief [see §§ 70.230, 70.231].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion and forms relating to declarations under the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (50 U.S.C. § 501 et seq.), see the California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Relief Absent Showing of Prejudice

In Kromm v. Kromm (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 523, 191 P.2d 115 , the trial court denied defendant's motion to set aside a default and default judgment in a divorce action. Defendant asserted that the trial court failed to appoint counsel to represent him, and that he had been in the military service and confined by severe illness in a military hospital at the time of the entry of the default and default judgment.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court stated that a judgment rendered without the court appointing an attorney under the former Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940 (now called the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act) is not void and may be set aside only on a showing, as required by the act, that the defendant was prejudiced in presenting a defense by reason of military service. The court found defendant's affidavit in support of his motion deficient in showing prejudice. Although the affidavit of defendant's attorney stated that defendant had been confined in an army hospital (which was hearsay), it did not claim that if he desired to do so, he could not have appeared at the trial. The court also found evidence from which the trial court could have inferred that defendant had intended to permit a default to be entered against him, but later changed his mind. The court also observed that plaintiff's opposing affidavit claimed that defendant had been away from the hospital at the time defendant claimed he was confined in the hospital (84 Cal. App. 2d 523, 530) .

[b] No Relief Absent Showing of Material Effect on Defense

In Wilterdink v. Wilterdink (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 526, 184 P.2d 527 , the trial court denied defendant's motion to set aside his default and an interlocutory decree of divorce. When defendant and plaintiff decided to obtain a divorce, both parties visited an attorney. Defendant agreed that he would not retain an attorney and would permit his default to be entered in a divorce action to be commenced by his wife. He later confirmed his satisfaction with this arrangement in a letter to plaintiff. However, after his default had been obtained and the interlocutory decree entered, defendant moved to set the default and decree aside under both Code Civ. Proc. § 473 and former 50 U.S.C. Appen. § 520(1) (now see 50 U.S.C. Appen. § 521(g)) In part, defendant argued that although he was to be retired from military service within five months after the decree was entered, the affidavit filed in compliance with the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act falsely stated that defendant was not in the military; and that therefore the judgment should be set aside since no attorney had been appointed for him as provided in former 50 U.S.C. Appen. § 520(1) (now see 50 U.S.C. Appen. § 521(b)(2)).

The court of appeal affirmed (81 Cal. App. 2d 526, 536) . The court stated that there is effectively no distinction between a failure to file an affidavit and the filing of a false affidavit, since in either case defendant must show how his or her military service prejudiced him in making a defense (81 Cal. App. 2d 526, 534) . (There was no contention that plaintiff filed the affidavit in bad faith.) The court concluded that the decree was voidable but not void, and that defendant failed to show any prejudice, since the decree conformed exactly to the previous agreement made between the parties (81 Cal. App. 2d 526, 534-535) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
2. Other Statutory Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.301

§ 70.301 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground That Defendant's Military Service Prejudiced Defense [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g)]--False Affidavit Does Not Render Judgment Void

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside under 50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g) (see § 70.300[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE THE FILING OF AN AFFIDAVIT THAT FALSELY STATES THAT THE DEFENDANT IS NOT IN THE MILITARY SERVICE DOES NOT RENDER THE JUDGMENT VOID.

Filing of False Affidavit Does Not Render Judgment Void. The filing of an affidavit that falsely states that the defendant is not in the military service does not render the judgment void, particularly when the untrue statement could well have been the result of a misunderstanding of the true situation, and when the defendant was not prejudiced by it (Wilterdink v. Wilterdink (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 526, 534, 184 P.2d 527).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to vacate and set aside a default and default judgment on the ground that the filing of an affidavit that falsely states that the defendant is not in the military service does not render the judgment void, particularly when the untrue statement could well have been the result of a misunderstanding of the true situation, and when the defendant was not prejudiced by it [Wilterdink v. Wilterdink (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 526, 534, 184 P.2d 527] .

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to points and authorities set out in § 70.260[1].

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside under 50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g). For points and authorities for use when the defendant executed a waiver of rights prior to the entry of default, see § 70.302[1]. This form may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.260[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under 50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g) and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.260[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Filing of False Affidavit Does Not Render Judgment Void

Wilterdink v. Wilterdink (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 526, 184 P.2d 527 , is discussed in § 70.300[3][b].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
2. Other Statutory Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.302

§ 70.302 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment on Ground That Defendant's Military Service Prejudiced Defense [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g)]--Defendant Waived Rights

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside under 50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g) (see § 70.300[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE HE/SHE HAS WAIVED HIS/HER RIGHTS UNDER THE SERVICEMEMBERS CIVIL RELIEF ACT.

Waiver of Rights. A servicemember may waive any of the rights and protections provided by the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (see 50 TU.S.C. Appen. § 507(a)). A defendant's waiver of rights under the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act supports the denial of defendant's subsequent request for relief from default (McMahon v. McMahon (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 126, 127-128, 160 P.2d 892).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to vacate and set aside a default and default judgment on the ground that the defendant waived his or her rights under the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act, and that waiver supports the denial of defendant's subsequent request for relief from default [McMahon v. McMahon (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 126, 127-128, 160 P.2d 892] .

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to points and authorities set out in § 70.260[1].

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside under 50 U.S.C. App. §

521(g). For points and authorities for use when the defendant based his or her motion on the plaintiff's filing of a false affidavit regarding the defendant's military status, see § 70.301[1].

See also § 70.260[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under 50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g) and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.260[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Waiver of Rights

A servicemember may waive any of the rights and protections provided by the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (see 50 U.S.C. Appen. § 507(a)). In the case of a waiver that permits an action based on modification, termination, or cancellation of a contract, lease, or bailment or an obligation secured by a mortgage, trust, deed, lien, or other security in the nature of a mortgage, or the repossession, retention, foreclosure, sale, forfeiture, or taking possession of property that is security for any obligation or was purchased or received under a contract, lease, or bailment, the waiver is effective only if made pursuant to a written agreement of the parties executed during or after the servicemember's period of military service. In that case, the written agreement must specify the legal instrument to which the waiver applies and, if the servicemember is not a party to that instrument, the servicemember concerned (50 U.S.C. Appen. § 507(a), (b)).

In McMahon v. McMahon (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 126, 160 P.2d 892 , defendant was served with the summons and copy of plaintiff's complaint for divorce. On the same day, he filed his voluntary appearance, stipulating that the action might be heard as a default, and waived all of his rights under the former Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940 (now called the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act). After the entry of the default and the interlocutory decree of divorce, he moved under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 to vacate the waiver and set aside the default. The trial court denied the motion.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying relief. The court noted that there was no indication that the trial court did not seriously consider the motion to vacate the default (70 Cal. App. 2d 126, 127) . The trial court impliedly found that the defendant suffered no mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect. The court noted that defendant was healthy, intelligent, and mature, and was not suffering from any form of hypnosis or oppression. Defendant was apprised of the contents of the decree to be entered, and waived his right to a delay under the federal statute after hearing an explanation of his rights under the statute. Consequently, the court concluded that the trial court properly exercised its discretion in denying the motion (70 Cal. App. 2d 126, 128) .

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

§ 70.303 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Judgment Entered During Protected Period of Military Service [Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d)]--Defendant Was Not Prejudiced by Reason of Military Service in Making Defense

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OPPOSING MOTION TO SET
Plaintiff,	)	ASIDE JUDGMENT ENTERED DURING PRO-
vs.	)	TECTED PERIOD OF MILITARY SERVICE
_____ [name],	)	Date: _____
Defendant.	)	Time: _____
	)	Dept.: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE JUDGMENT BECAUSE THE DEFENDANT HAS FAILED TO SHOW THAT MILITARY SERVICE PREJUDICED DEFENDANT'S PRESENTATION OF A DEFENSE TO THE ACTION.

No Relief Absent Showing of Prejudice. The court may not reopen a judgment entered during a period of protected military service unless it appears that the service member was prejudiced by reason of military service in making a defense to an action (see Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d)).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____
[opposing party]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to vacate and set aside a judgment on the ground that the entry of the judgment took place while the defendant was in military service or within 30 days after the termination of defendant's military service (Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d)). The ground of opposition is that the defendant failed to show that his or her military service prejudiced the defense of the action.

For points and authorities to use when the ground of opposition is that the defendant does not have a meritorious or legal defense to the action, see § 70.304[1].

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to points and authorities set out in § 70.262[1].

This form may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.262[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d).

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should therefore show that the defendant's military service did not prejudice his or her defense.

When appropriate, this form may be combined with the following points and authorities generally opposing the motion for relief, on the following grounds:

- The motion should be denied based on policy [see, e.g., § 70.121[1]].
- The mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect was not reasonable [see, e.g., § 70.122[1]].
- The moving party failed to exercise reasonable diligence in arranging for his or her defense [see, e.g., § 70.123[1]].
- An attorney's negligence is imputed to the client [see, e.g., § 70.124[1]].
- The moving party's argument that he or she has a meritorious defense is irrelevant [see, e.g., § 70.125[1]].

This form should be combined with additional points and authorities opposing relief on other particular grounds. For example, it may be combined with additional points and authorities showing that:

- The motion is not timely [see §§ 70.140 -70.148].

- The moving party has not made a sufficient showing justifying relief on the specific ground or grounds asserted [see §§ 70.160 -70.216; see also discussion in § 70.10[2][g]].

This form may also be combined, in an appropriate case, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of relief based on other statutory or decisional authority, when the motion and supporting memorandum has asserted such additional authority as alternate bases for relief [see discussion in § 70.10[2][c]].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion and forms relating to declarations under Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d), see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 489, Relief from Judgments Orders (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

For discussion of the provisions of Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d), see § 70.262[3].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
2. Other Statutory Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.304

§ 70.304 Opposing Motion to Vacate and Set Aside Judgment Entered During Protected Period of Military Service [Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d)]--Defendant Has No Meritorious or Legal Defense

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside under Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d) (see § 70.303[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE JUDGMENT BECAUSE DEFENDANT HAS NO MERITORIOUS OR LEGAL DEFENSE TO THE ACTION OR TO ANY PART OF IT.

No Meritorious or Legal Defense. For the court rendering a judgment during a period of military service to open it and allow the defendant to defend, the application to vacate or set aside the judgment must state a meritorious or legal defense to the action or to some part of it (Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to vacate and set aside a judgment on the ground that the defendant has failed to state a meritorious or legal defense to the action in the application to open the judgment under Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d).

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to points and authorities set out in § 70.262[1].

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside under Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d). See § 70.303[1].

See also § 70.262[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief under Mil. & Vet. Code §

402(d).

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.262[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

For discussion of the provisions of Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d), see § 70.262[3].

156 of 156 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding
2. Other Statutory Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.305-70.309

[Reserved]

§§ 70.305[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.310

§ 70.310 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--General Form

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO Plaintiff,	)	SET ASIDE VOID _____
vs.	)	[DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or
_____ [name],	)	JUDGMENT or ORDER]
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
		Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] IN THIS ACTION AS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE _____ [specify, e.g., DEFENDANT WAS NEVER SERVED WITH SUMMONS IN THIS CASE AND MADE NO APPEARANCE IN IT, AND THE FAILURE TO SERVE DEFENDANT APPEARS FROM THE JUDGMENT ROLL, IN THAT IT CONTAINS NO PROOF OF SERVICE].

A. Relief From Void Judgment or Order. The court may, on motion of either party after notice to the other party, set aside any void judgment or order (Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)).

B. Inherent Power to Set Aside Judgment Void on Its Face. A court has inherent power, independent of statute, to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face (People v. Greene (1887) 74 Cal. 400, 405-406, 16 P. 197 ; Hendrix v. Hendrix (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 379, 383, 279 P.2d 58).

C. Test for Establishing That Judgment Is Void on Its Face. A judgment or order is void on its face when its invalidity appears from an examination of the judgment roll (People v. Davis (1904) 143 Cal. 673, 676, 77 P. 651 ; Carrasco v. Craft (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 796, 808, 210 Cal. Rptr. 599).

[EITHER]

D. Judgment Roll When Complaint Not Answered. If the complaint is not answered by any defendant, the following papers, without being attached together, constitute the judgment roll: the summons, with the affidavit or proof of service; the complaint; the request for entry of default with a memorandum endorsed thereon that the default of the defendant in not answering was entered, and a copy of the judgment; if defendant has appeared by demurrer, and the demurrer has been overruled, then notice of the overruling thereof served on defendant's attorney, together with proof of the service; and in case the service is made by publication, the affidavit for publication of summons, and the order directing the publication of summons (Code Civ. Proc. § 670(a)).

[OR]

D. Judgment Roll When Complaint Answered by at Least One Defendant. In all cases, other than those in which the complaint is not answered by any defendant, the following papers, without being attached together, constitute the judgment roll: the pleadings, all orders striking out any pleading in whole or in part, a copy of the verdict of the jury, the statement of decision of the court, or finding of the referee, and a copy of any order made on demurrer, or relating to a change of parties, and a copy of the judgment. If there are two or more defendants in the action, and any one of them has allowed judgment to pass against him or her by default, the following will also be included in the judgment roll: the summons, with proof of its service, on the defendant; and if the service on the defaulting defendant is by publication, the affidavit for publication, and the order directing the publication of the summons (Code Civ. Proc. § 670(b)).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities supporting additional grounds for relief from the void judgment or order (see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.421). In addition, when applicable, add points and authorities that generally support a defendant's motion for relief from a judgment or order that is void on its face (see, e.g., § 70.311 et seq.).]

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[moving party]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face. The form is a general one which sets out the authority of the court to set aside a facially void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), and under the court's inherent power. This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant).

For points and authorities for use by a party seeking to intervene for the purpose of attacking a void judgment, see § 70.313[1]. For forms of memoranda of points and authorities relating to intervention by a nonparty generally, see Ch. 124, Intervention .

For points and authorities for use in obtaining relief from a default judgment, when a defendant files a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), in conjunction with a motion to quash service of summons for lack of jurisdiction, see § 70.314[1] [see Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10]. For forms of memoranda supporting a motion to quash under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10, which may in such cases be combined with this form, see Ch. 132, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction and Inconvenient Forum .

For points and authorities for use when a notice of appeal has been filed on the void judgment or order, see § 70.315[1].

This form should be combined with points and authorities that generally support a defendant's motion for relief from the void judgment or order [see, e.g., § 70.311 et seq.]. In addition, this form should be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), on the ground that other, specific defects in the judgment roll have rendered the judgment void on its face [see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.421].

This form may also be combined, in an appropriate case, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of relief based on other statutory or decisional authority [see discussion under [c], below].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should specify how the judgment is void (for example, the court lacked personal jurisdiction because service was not made in the manner required by law), and demonstrate how the defect is shown by examination of the judgment roll.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see [d][iii].

[c] Alternative Methods of Obtaining Relief

A judgment not valid on its face, but void in fact (that is, its invalidity may be shown by extrinsic evidence) may also be set aside as void under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) [for further discussion, see [d], below]. For forms of memoranda supporting a grant of relief from a judgment or order on the ground that it is void in fact, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with this form, see §§ 70.360 -70.363.

A party may, in addition, obtain relief from a default and default judgment or other judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding on the ground of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. Additional statutory grounds also exist for relief from a default and default judgment [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473.1, 473.5]. For forms of memoranda supporting a grant of relief from default and default judgment or other judgment or order on these various additional statutory grounds, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with this form, see § 70.240 et seq.

A default judgment or other judgment or order may also be attacked by a motion or separate action in equity when the judgment was obtained through extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress. For forms of memoranda supporting a grant of relief from a default judgment or other judgment or order on such equitable grounds, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with this form, see § 70.480 et seq.

[d] Void Judgment or Order

[i] In General

An order or judgment that is void on its face is simply a nullity, and can be neither the basis nor evidence of any right whatever [Forbes v. Hyde (1866) 31 Cal. 342, 355] . A court may not only set aside such a judgment or order on the motion of a party, but may on its own motion set it aside or disregard it, regardless of how the invalidity is brought to its attention [Morgan v. Clapp (1929) 207 Cal. 221, 224, 277 P. 490 ; Andrisani v. Saugus Colony Limited (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 517, 523 , 10 Cal. Rtpr. 2d 444].

[ii] Invalidity Determined From Judgment Roll

As set out in Paragraph C of this form (discussed under [3][c], below), the general rule is that a judgment or order is void on its face when its invalidity appears from an examination of the judgment roll [Morgan v. Clapp (1929) 207 Cal. 221, 224, 277 P. 490 ; People v. Davis (1904) 143 Cal. 673, 676, 77 P. 651] . What constitutes the judgment roll is discussed under [iii], below.

Courts sometimes refer to judgments or orders that are void on their "face" [see, e.g., Hendrix v. Hendrix (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 379, 383, 279 P.2d 58] , or void on the face of the "record" [see, e.g., Nagel v. P & M Distributors, Inc. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 176, 179-180, 78 Cal. Rptr. 65] , or void on the face of the "judgment roll" [see, e.g., People v. Davis (1904) 143 Cal. 673, 676, 77 P. 651] . Generally, these terms are synonymous and refer to a judgment or order whose invalidity can be determined by examination of the judgment roll, without resort to extrinsic evidence.

Notwithstanding the foregoing general rule, however, some courts have held a judgment to be void on its face by resort to papers in the record other than those that are strictly included in the judgment roll. For example, one court has held that a default judgment entered without any statement of damages being served on the defendant is void on the "face of the record" and may be successfully challenged at any time [Lopez v. Fancelli (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1305, 1310, 271 Cal. Rptr. 87 ; Plotitsa v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 755, 760, 189 Cal. Rptr. 769 ; see §§ 70.400 -70.403]. Another court has held that an order requiring a stepfather to pay child support was void on its face based on evidence stated in a domestic relations officer's report [Swain v. Swain (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 1, 10, 58 Cal. Rptr. 83 ; see §§ 70.420, 70.421].

[iii] What Constitutes the Judgment Roll

If the complaint is not answered by any defendant, the following papers, without being attached together, constitute the judgment roll [Code Civ. Proc. § 670(a)]:

- The summons, with the affidavit or proof of service.

- The complaint.

- The request for entry of default with a memorandum endorsed thereon that the default of the defendant in not answering was entered, and a copy of the judgment.

- If defendant has appeared by demurrer, and the demurrer has been overruled, then notice of the overruling thereof served on defendant's attorney, together with proof of the service; and in case the service is made by publication, the affidavit for publication of summons, and the order directing the publication of summons.

In all cases, other than those in which the complaint is not answered by any defendant, the following papers, without being attached together, constitute the judgment roll [Code Civ. Proc. § 670(b)]:

- The pleadings.

- All orders striking out any pleading in whole or in part.

- A copy of the verdict of the jury.

- The statement of decision of the court, or finding of the referee.

- A copy of any order made on demurrer, or relating to a change of parties.

- Copy of the judgment.

If there are two or more defendants in the action, and any one of them has allowed judgment to pass against him or her by default, the following will also be included in the judgment roll [Code Civ. Proc. § 670(b)]:

- The summons, with proof of its service, on the defendant.

- If the service on the defaulting defendant is by publication, the affidavit for publication, and the order directing the publication of the summons.

[iv] Distinguished From Judgment Valid on Its Face but Void in Fact

A judgment or order void on its face is distinguished from one that is valid on its face but void in fact, that is, void only by reference to extrinsic evidence [see City of Los Angeles v. Morgan (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 726, 730, 234 P.2d 319] (if invalidity of a judgment or order is not apparent by an inspection of the judgment or judgment roll, it may nonetheless be set aside by motion made within a reasonable time); for forms of memoranda supporting a motion to set aside a judgment valid on its face but void in fact, see §§ 70.460 -70.463.

The critical distinction between a judgment or order void on its face and one void in fact is that, in the latter case, there is a time limitation for seeking relief by motion [see, e.g., Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1124, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286 (discussed in § 70.470[3][b])], whereas a motion for relief from a judgment or order void on its face may be sought at any time [see, e.g., Nagel v. P & M Distributors, Inc. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 176, 176, 179-180, 78 Cal. Rptr. 65 (discussed in § 70.312[3])]. Note that, while a judgment void on its face may be set aside by motion at any time, or otherwise attacked collaterally, or simply ignored, it may be desirable in some instances to seek relief promptly, for example, to clear record title of property affected by the judgment.

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.430 -70.453 may be used to oppose this form.

[f] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For forms of a notice of motion and order relating to a motion to set aside judgment, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders (Matthew Bender).

[g] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities for use proceedings relating the subject matter or personal jurisdiction of the court, see Ch. 132, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction and Inconvenient Forum , and Ch. 133, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter Jurisdiction .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Relief From Void Judgment or Order

In 1933, Code Civ. Proc. § 473 was amended to provide that a court may, on motion of either party after notice to the other party, set aside any void judgment or order [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]. This particular provision had formerly applied only to municipal courts, which as courts of limited jurisdiction had not been deemed to posses this power inherently [see former Code Civ. Proc. § 900a (repealed by Stats. 1933, ch. 744, § 198]. Thus, the 1933 amendment merely codified and made applicable to all trial courts a power that superior courts had and do possess inherently and independent of statute [see F.E. Young Co. v. Fernstrom (1938) 31 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 763, 765 , 79 P.2d 1117 ; see also People v. Greene (1887) 74 Cal. 400, 405-406, 16 P. 197 ; Estate of Estrem (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 563, 571, 107 P.2d 36 ; Hendrix v. Hendrix (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 379, 383, 279 P.2d 58 ; and [b], below)].

[b] Inherent Power to Set Aside Judgment Void on Its Face

People v. Greene (1887) 74 Cal. 400, 16 P. 197 , involved an action to foreclose on the interest of the defendant under a certificate of purchase of real estate. A judgment by default was taken against the defendant and the defendant thereafter moved to have the judgment set aside and for leave to answer. The motion was granted and an answer was filed setting up a defense to the action. The trial court, however, later annulled the order without taking action on the defendant's answer. The defendant moved to set aside the latter order and the judgment. The trial court denied the motion and the defendant appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed the order and directed the trial court to set aside the judgment. The Court stated that a court whose process is abused by an attempt to enforce a void judgment will interfere, for its own dignity, and for the protection of its officers, to arrest further action. The version of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 then in existence (prior to the 1933 amendment which added what is now Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) providing for a motion to set aside void judgments) was intended to apply to cases when a judgment has been taken against a party by mistake, accident, surprise, or excusable neglect; to cases in which the moving party must move on evidence outside the record; and to cases in which the relief to be granted is largely in the sound discretion of the court. The section had no application to a pretended judgment which was shown by the judgment roll to be void for want of jurisdiction, either of the person of the defendant or of the subject matter (74 Cal. 400, 405-406) . Since by the judgment roll it appeared that there was no personal service on the defendant, and no sufficient affidavit that the summons was ever in fact published, the judgment was void, and should have been set aside, and a trial had on the complaint and answer on file (74 Cal. 400, 406) .

Hendrix v. Hendrix (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 379, 279 P.2d 58 , involved an action for the custody of minor children by the plaintiff husband against the defendant wife. The wife did not appear in the action and a hearing was held. The court awarded the husband the exclusive custody of the children. Thereafter, the wife filed a motion to set aside the default. The trial court denied the motion, but ordered plaintiff to pay attorneys fees of $75 to defendant's counsel. The trial court later reconsidered its order granting the attorney's fees and decreed that the order was void and set it aside. Defendant appealed, contending that the trial court abused its discretion.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court cited the rule that except when attorney's fees are specifically allowed by statute, or by contract of the parties, they are not recoverable by a successful litigant as costs or otherwise. The court held that the trial court properly set aside its prior order since the order permitting attorneys fees was void on its face. A court has inherent power, apart from statute, to correct its records by vacating a judgment which is void on its face, for such judgment is a nullity and may be ignored (130 Cal. App. 2d 379, 383) .

[c] Test for Establishing That Judgment Is Void on Its Face

People v. Davis (1904) 143 Cal. 673, 77 P. 651 , involved an appeal from an order vacating and setting aside a prior order vacating and setting aside a default judgment. The action was brought to foreclose and annul a certificate of purchase of state lands which had been issued to the defendant. The defendant did not appear and a default judgment was entered against him, annulling and declaring void the certificate of purchase held by him and his rights thereunder. Defendant's successor in interest thereafter moved for an order setting aside and vacating the default judgment, and the trial court after a hearing made an order purporting to vacate the default judgment. On application of the plaintiff's attorney, the trial court vacated its previous order setting aside the judgment on the ground that the order was beyond the jurisdiction of the court and was null and void. From the latter order the defendant appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed the order. The issue before the Court was whether the original default judgment was void on its face. If it was not void on its face, the order setting it aside was on its face an absolute nullity, and it was not necessary for the plaintiff to appeal therefrom. The Supreme Court stated that whether the judgment was void on its face must be determined from an inspection of the judgment roll (143 Cal. 673, 677) . A court's jurisdiction to declare a judgment or order a nullity derives solely from the fact that a judgment or order on the face of the judgment roll demonstrates to the world its own invalidity. If a judgment or order on its face is such that it could not be successfully assailed in a collateral proceeding, the court that rendered or made it cannot by determining otherwise give itself jurisdiction to vacate it. Whether or not it is such a judgment or order is purely a question of law presented by the judgment roll; in other words, the jurisdiction of the court to vacate it depends on what the judgment roll shows as a matter of law, and not on what such court may determine that it shows (143 Cal. 673, 676) .

Although the defendant contended that there were various defects in the summons and publication of the summons, after examination of the judgment roll, the Supreme Court held that the lower court did not err in holding that the judgment was on its face a valid judgment, and that the order purporting to vacate it, made after the lapse of eight years, was a mere nullity and was properly vacated (143 Cal. 673, 678) .

In Carrasco v. Craft (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 796, 210 Cal. Rptr. 599 , defendants had not answered the amended complaint against them for several reasons, including the following: they were not represented by counsel at the time it was served; they had insufficient funds to retain counsel and did not feel competent to answer it in pro per; they had answered the original complaint and they did not think they had to answer the amended complaint; and, they believed it had been filed only for the purpose of naming new defendants and stating proper causes of action against them. Five months after the entry of default and four months and three weeks after the entry of the default judgment, after having saved money and retained counsel, defendants filed a motion to set aside the default under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 on the grounds of excusable neglect. Although not specified as a ground in the notice of motion, a supplemental memorandum in support of the motion urged the court to examine the judgment for voidness because, in fact, no answer to the amended complaint was required of them, and they were therefore not in default. The trial court found excusable neglect, but did not consider the lapse of time, even in light of defendants' lack of funds to retain counsel, reasonable. The trial court denied the motion to set aside the default judgment based on excusable neglect and held that the voidness ground was not properly before it. Defendants appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. After finding evidentiary support for the trial court's determination that the lapse of time precluded granting relief for excusable neglect, the court of appeal went on to consider the voidness issue. That issue, it said, was properly before the trial court. According to the court, the question of whether the default judgment should be voided is a legal one determinable by examination of the judgment roll. The notice of motion had specified that it was based on accompanying papers and the record, therefore the defect in the notice of motion, in stating voidness as a ground for relief, should have been disregarded (164 Cal. App. 3d 796, 808) . The court then considered the differences between the original complaint and the amended complaint and concluded that, as a matter of law, the original answer could stand as the answer to the amended complaint, and that it was error to enter the default and default judgment on the bases that the defendants failed to file an answer to the amended complaint (164 Cal. App. 3d 796, 811) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Inherent Power to Set Aside Judgment Void on Its Face

Riley v. Superior Court (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 365, 244 P.2d 474 , involved proceedings to set aside an order vacating a dismissal filed by the clerk in a declaratory relief action. After the complaint was filed, the defendant demurred, moved to strike portions of the complaint, filed her answer, and moved for judgment on the pleadings. Thereafter the plaintiffs filed a dismissal of the action with the county clerk. Plaintiffs then objected to further proceedings at the hearing on the motions and demurrer on the ground that a dismissal of the action was on file with the clerk. The objection was overruled and the court ordered that the dismissal be set aside. Plaintiffs filed a petition for a writ of prohibition and certiorari. The court of appeal denied the writ. The plaintiffs contended that the entry of an order for dismissal in the clerk's register has the effect of a final judgment and that a judgment can be nullified by the court which rendered it only on a motion for new trial, motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, or motion when the judgment is void on its face. The court stated, however, that since affirmative relief was sought in the answer, the dismissal was without authority and was void. Citing Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 574, 122 P.2d 564 , the court stated that a court has inherent power, apart from statute, to correct its records by vacating a judgment which is void on its face, because such a judgment is a nullity and may be ignored (111 Cal. App. 2d 365, 367) .

See also Estate of Estrem (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 563, 571, 107 P.2d 36 and Sullivan v. Sullivan (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 301, 303-304, 64 Cal. Rptr. 82 ("Long prior to this amendment (adding what is now 5th paragraph of Section 473) it was well established that the superior court had jurisdiction at any time set aside a judgment or order void on its face," and citing cases).

[b] Test for Establishing that Judgment Is Void on Its Face

The facts and procedural background of Morgan v. Clapp (1929) 207 Cal. 221, 277 P. 490 , are discussed in § 70.312[3] . In Morgan, the Court, in affirming the trial court's order setting aside its earlier order vacating a default judgment, and affirming the default judgment, stated that a judgment or order is said to be void on its face when the invalidity is apparent on an inspection of the judgment roll (207 Cal. 221, 224) . At the time the affidavit was filed in the case, former Code Civ. Proc. § 412 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50) authorized an order directing publication of summons when, among other requirements, in the absence of a verified complaint it appeared by affidavit that there is a cause of action against the defendant to whom the service is made or that it is an action which relates to real property in which the defendant claims an interest or demands relief that excludes the plaintiff from any interest in the property. Since it was readily apparent from the affidavit that the action related to adverse interests in certain real property situated in California, and had as its object and purpose the exclusion of appellant from any interest in the property, the statutory requirements were fully satisfied. Hence, the Court held that since the affidavit was sufficient, the judgment thereafter entered was valid on its face and the order purporting to vacate the judgment was void and properly disregarded by the trial court (207 Cal. 221, 226) .

In Heidary v. Yadollahi (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 857, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 695 , cross-complainants entered into agreements with cross-defendants and a third cross-defendant concerning the ownership and operation of two gas stations. The cross-complaint alleged breaches of those agreements. The cross-complaint prayed for compensatory and punitive damages, although it specified the amount of compensatory damages sought in only a few causes of action, and never specified any amount of punitive damages. Cross-defendants' attorney received permission from the court to withdraw as their counsel, and the withdrawal order included the last known addresses for each cross-defendant. Several months later, plaintiff's counsel served a notice of continuance of the trial date, but that notice did not include cross-defendants or their former counsel. Neither cross-defendant appeared for the trial. The trial court, apparently without checking to see if cross-defendants had been given notice, ordered their answers to the cross-complaint stricken and their defaults entered for failure to appear at trial. The court continued the trial date again. The day after the court ordered the defaults, the cross-complainants filed a request for entry of default with the clerk. It was served on the cross-defendants by mail on the same date, at the addresses included in the order relieving their counsel. The default was entered by the clerk the same day the request was filed and mailed to the cross-defendants. Approximately one month later, the cross-complainants filed an ex parte application for entry of judgment based on the defaults, including a "statement of damages" sought. The statement made no distinction between the varied claims asserted against each cross-defendant, and simply requested general and punitive damages totaling $942,952.37. The cross-complainants did not serve cross-defendants with any of the documents supporting the entry of judgment. The judgment was entered the application and supporting documents were filed, and in the exact total amount requested in the statement of damages. It is not clear when cross-defendants first became aware of the judgment entered against them, but the record suggests it may have been when the cross-complainants recorded an abstract of judgment and a lien. Less than one month later, cross-defendants re-retained their previous lawyer and filed a motion to vacate the judgment. They argued the judgment was void because they had never received notice of the trial, and the court had no power to enter their defaults. They also argued that the damages awarded in the judgment were in excess of the damages specified in the complaint. The court denied the motion to vacate on the grounds the amounts of the judgments were supported by the cross-complaint (99 Cal. App. 4th 857, 859-861) .

The Court of Appeal reversed. The court held first that the cross-defendants were not constrained by the six-month time limitation for moving to vacate the judgment in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) because the plaintiff neglected to inform them of the trial date; the court improperly ordered their default for failing to appear apparently without confirming they were notified; the cross-complainants sought a type and amount of damages not specified in their cross-complaint; and the court granted that request, so that none of the acts was attributable to anything done by cross-defendants (99 Cal. App. 4th 857, 862) . The court then held that the default order and judgment were void on their face, so that the motion was governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), under which the court has authority to set aside the judgment at any time. The Court of Appeal found that the trial court had no power to enter cross-defendants' defaults when they failed to appear at the trial; the court's error was compounded by the fact they were never given notice of the trial, but that was irrelevant in establishing their right to relief. Even assuming they had been properly noticed, the court's only options when they did not appear were to proceed with the trial in their absence, or to continue the trial (99 Cal. App. 4th 857, 862-864) . The court also found the judgment void for awarding damages clearly exceeding what was pled, both because the amount was higher and because each cross-defendant was held jointly liable for the damages alleged against the other (99 Cal. App. 4th 857, 864-868) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.311

§ 70.311 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Judgment Is Void for Lack of Jurisdiction

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face (see § 70.310[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] IN THIS ACTION AS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM THE JUDGMENT ROLL THAT THE COURT _____ [LACKED JURISDICTION OF THE SUBJECT MATTER or LACKED JURISDICTION OF THE DEFENDANT or EXCEEDED ITS JURISDICTION BY GRANTING RELIEF THAT IT HAD NO POWER TO GRANT].

Judgment Void for Lack of Jurisdiction. Any judgment or order of any court is absolutely void if it appears that there was a lack of jurisdiction either of the subject matter or of the defendant (Hahn v. Kelly (1868) 34 Cal. 391, 402 (overruled on other grounds in Belcher v. Chambers (1879) 53 Cal. 635, 643) ; County of Ventura v. Tillett (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 105, 110, 183 Cal. Rptr. 741). [It is also void to the extent that the court which rendered the judgment exceeded its jurisdiction in granting relief that it had no power to grant (County of Ventura v. Tillett (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 105, 110, 183 Cal. Rptr. 741)].

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face. The ground for relief set forth in this form is that the judgment or order is void for lack of jurisdiction, either of the person or of the subject matter, or because the court exceeded its jurisdiction [County of Ventura v. Tillett (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 105, 110, 183 Cal. Rptr. 741] .

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face [see § 70.310[1]].

This form may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.310[2] for related chapters in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should specify how the judgment is void (for example, the court lacked personal jurisdiction because service was not made in the manner required by law), and demonstrate how the defect is shown by examination of the judgment roll.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.430 -70.453 may be used to oppose this form.

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities for use proceedings relating the subject matter or personal jurisdiction of the court, see Ch. 132, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction and Inconvenient Forum , and Ch. 133, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter Jurisdiction .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment Void for Lack of Jurisdiction

Hahn v. Kelly (1868) 34 Cal. 391 , involved an action to quiet title in real property which had been originally owned in part by one Jones. As the result of a judgment against Jones, his real property interest had been sold to plaintiff at an execution sale. Defendant, who had obtained a later judgment against Jones, sought to execute his judgment by an execution sale of the same property. Plaintiff brought the action to quiet title and restrain the sale by defendant. The trial court granted judgment for defendant on the ground that service by publication of summons in the earlier action, through which plaintiff had obtained his interest in the property, was defective and that the judgment was therefore void. The plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment and ordered a new trial. Although the Court concluded that the judgment in the original case was valid on its face, the Supreme Court stated the rule that, when a judgment of a court of superior jurisdiction is offered in evidence during a trial, that judgment may be attacked on the ground that the court which rendered it had no jurisdiction either of the subject matter or of the defendant or of both; any judgment of any Court is absolutely void, if it appears that there was a want of jurisdiction in either respect (34 Cal. 391, 402) .

Note that Hahn v. Kelly (1868) 34 Cal. 391 was overruled on another ground in Belcher v. Chambers (1879) 53 Cal. 635, 643 .

County of Ventura v. Tillett (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 105, 183 Cal. Rptr. 741 , cert. denied, 460 U.S. 1051, 103 S. Ct. 1497, 75 L. Ed. 2d 929 (1983) , involved an action by a county for reimbursement of welfare funds that the county provided in support of defendant's two minor children, and for an order that defendant continue to make monthly child support payments to the county. Defendant and the county executed a "Judgment for Child Support and Reimbursement of Welfare Funds by Stipulation." Defendant thereafter moved to set aside and vacate the stipulated judgment when the county commenced proceedings on violation of summary probation for nonpayment of child support and arrears. The trial court denied the motion and defendant appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the order and remanded the case with directions. It appears that defendant's motion was equitable (see 133 Cal. App. 3d 105, 115 , discussing applicability of laches; for discussion and forms relating to motions in equity, see § 70.480 et seq.). The court, however, in reversing, stated that a judgment is void on its face if the court which rendered the judgment lacked personal or subject matter jurisdiction or exceeded its jurisdiction in granting relief which the court had no power to grant (133 Cal. App. 3d 105, 110) . The motion was based on the contention that the judgment was constitutionally invalid. Since California courts do not have jurisdiction to render judgments that violate the California or United States Constitutions, the defendant's argument was, essentially, that the superior court's judgment was in excess of the court's subject matter jurisdiction (133 Cal. App. 3d 105, 110) .

Note that County of Ventura v. Tillett (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 105, 183 Cal. Rptr. 741 , cert. denied, 460 U.S. 1051, 103 S. Ct. 1497, 75 L. Ed. 2d 929 (1983) , was disapproved on another point in County of Los Angeles v. Soto (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 483, 492 n.4, 198 Cal. Rptr. 779, 674 P.2d 750).

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Judgment Void for Lack of Jurisdiction

The facts and procedural background of People v. Greene (1887) 74 Cal. 400, 16 P. 197 , are discussed in § 70.310[3][b] . In People v. Greene, the court held that the trial court's judgment was void and directed that it be set aside. The Court stated that the version of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 then in existence (prior to the 1933 amendment adding the provision, now the 6th paragraph, for a motion to set aside void judgments), had no application to a pretended judgment which was shown by the judgment roll to be void for want of jurisdiction, either of the person of the defendant or of the subject matter and concluded that the time restraints under that section did not apply in such cases (74 Cal. 400, 405-406) .

Capital Bond and Invest. Co. v. Hood (1933) 218 Cal. 729, 24 P.2d 765 , involved an order setting aside a decree of foreclosure of bonds issued under an act providing for improvement of streets. The Supreme Court affirmed the order, stating that when the trial court entered judgment on the foreclosure on one of the bonds it had no jurisdiction of the subject matter because the bond was issued prior to an amendment of the act permitting foreclosure of such bonds by court action (218 Cal. 729, 731) .

In John Siebel Associates v. Keele (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 560, 233 Cal. Rptr. 231 , the parties entered into a stipulated judgment whereby the defendant agreed to pay 15 percent annual interest on the principal, and the remaining balance plus accrued interest would become due on default. The defendant filed a motion seeking, among other things, to vacate the judgment as partially void on its face, contending that the stipulated judgment awarded a usurious interest rate of 15 percent. The trial court denied the motion and the defendant appealed. Although the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's judgment and found that a usurious interest rate was not awarded, the court stated that a stipulated judgment is as conclusive as one entered after trial and is subject to a motion to vacate. Citing County of Ventura v. Tillett (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 105, 110-111, 183 Cal. Rptr. 741 , discussed under [3], above, the court stated that motions to vacate void judgments may be made at any time after judgment, that a judgment is void on its face if the trial court exceeded its jurisdiction by granting relief that it had no power to grant, that jurisdiction cannot be conferred on a trial court by the consent of the parties, and, thus, the fact that a judgment is entered pursuant to stipulation does not insulate the judgment from attack on the ground that it is void (188 Cal. App. 3d 560, 564 n.3).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.312

§ 70.312 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Judgment May Be Attacked at Any Time

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face (see § 70.310[1]).]

THE MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] IN THIS ACTION AS VOID ON ITS FACE IS TIMELY BECAUSE A JUDGMENT OR ORDER VOID ON ITS FACE MAY BE VACATED ON MOTION MADE AT ANY TIME.

Judgment May Be Attacked at Any Time. A judgment or order void on its face may be vacated on motion made at any time, or the court may, of its own motion, set it aside or disregard it, regardless of how the invalidity is brought to its attention (Morgan v. Clapp (1929) 207 Cal. 221, 224, 277 P. 490 ; Nagel v. P & M Distributors, Inc. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 176, 179-180, 78 Cal. Rptr. 65).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face. The ground for relief set forth in this form is that a judgment or order void on its face may be vacated on motion made at any time [Morgan v. Clapp (1929) 207 Cal. 221, 224, 277 P. 490 ; Nagel v. P & M Distributors, Inc. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 176, 179-180, 78 Cal. Rptr. 65] .

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face [see § 70.310[1]].

This form may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.310[2] for related chapters in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, in this case, counsel would point out that the motion is timely because a motion to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face may be filed at any time.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities for use proceedings relating the subject matter or personal jurisdiction of the court, see Ch. 132, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction and Inconvenient Forum , and Ch. 133, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter Jurisdiction .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment May Be Attacked at Any Time

Morgan v. Clapp (1929) 207 Cal. 221, 277 P. 490 , involved an action to quiet the plaintiff's title to certain real property. Service of summons was by publication, and judgment as prayed for in the complaint was entered. More than two years later the defendant moved to set aside and vacate the judgment and decree on the ground that the affidavit accompanying the request for an order directing publication of summons failed to comply with statutory requirements by not averring sufficient probative facts to establish the existence of a cause of action against the defendant. The motion was granted. When the cause came on again for hearing in the trial court, the trial court reopened the proceedings looking to the vacation of the judgment on the ground that transferees of the plaintiff had not been served with the notice of motion to vacate the judgment. On reconsideration, the trial court concluded that the affidavit, filed by the original plaintiff, was sufficient to meet the code requirements and denied the defendant's motion to vacate the default judgment against her. The trial court also decreed that the substituted plaintiffs were the owners in fee. The defendant appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed. The Court acknowledged that it is well settled that a court has no power to set aside or vacate, on motion, a judgment not void on its face, unless the motion is made within a reasonable time. Further, stated the Court, it is definitely determined that such time will not extend beyond the limit fixed by Code Civ. Proc. § 473. In the absence of application made within the time specified in Section 473, a judgment which is not invalid on its face is entirely beyond the reach of the court that rendered it, except in a separate action; and any order of the court purporting to vacate it is beyond the jurisdiction of the court, and therefore, void. However, a judgment or order void on its face may be vacated on motion made at any time, or the court may, of its own motion, set it aside or disregard it, regardless of how the invalidity is brought to its attention (207 Cal. 221, 224) . The Court stated that should it be determined that the affidavit accompanying the request for order directing publication of summons fully satisfied the requirements of the code, the underlying judgment would not be void on its face, and the attempt of the court to vacate it on motion made more than a year after entry would be beyond the jurisdiction of the court. The order purporting to vacate the judgment would occupy no better position than a judgment that is void on its face. Like such a judgment, the order would be assailable wherever and whenever it might be produced (207 Cal. 221, 225) . The Court, after reviewing the judgment roll in the case, concluded that the order purporting to vacate the judgment was void and properly disregarded by the trial court (207 Cal. 221, 226) .

Nagel v. P & M Distributors, Inc. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 176, 78 Cal. Rptr. 65 , involved a contract dispute between plaintiff and defendant corporation. Plaintiff filed a request to enter defendant's default, filing with it a declaration of service stating that defendant had been served pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 410 [now see Code

Civ. Proc. § 412.30]. The request was denied because service had not been made pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 411 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10]. Thereafter the process server executed a second declaration of service alleging that the service was on a person authorized to receive service of process pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 411. Although a second request for entry of default was denied, plaintiff's third such request, made nearly a year after service was alleged to have been made on defendant, was granted and judgment entered thereon. On receiving notice of a levy of execution in connection with the judgment, defendant moved to vacate the judgment on the ground that jurisdiction was lacking because the person served on the corporation's behalf was a sales representative who was not authorized to accept service as provided for in relevant sections of the Corporations Code. Defendant's motion was granted.

The court of appeal affirmed the order setting aside the default and judgment. The court cited earlier cases for the proposition that a judgment or order which is void on the face of the record may be set aside at any time by the court that made it on the ground that it is void (273 Cal. App. 2d 176, 179-180) . Thus, the court said, the fact that defendant waited 10 months after it apparently learned of the entry of the judgment and the levy of execution did not preclude it from attacking the validity of the judgment by a motion to vacate (273 Cal. App. 2d 176, 180) . Examining the judgment roll, the court found that the judgment was void on its face for lack of jurisdiction in that there was nothing before the court alleging that the person receiving service was authorized to do so (273 Cal. App. 2d 176, 181-182) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Judgment May Be Attacked at Any Time

In Forbes v. Hyde (1866) 31 Cal. 342 , plaintiff purchased a lot in a sheriff's sale, made under a judgment foreclosing on a mortgage. Defendant also claimed title derived from the mortgagee. Plaintiff commenced an action for ejectment and recovered judgment. Defendant appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment and ordered a new trial. The Court stated a judgment absolutely void on its face may be attacked anywhere, directly or collaterally, whenever it presents itself, either by parties or strangers. It is simply a nullity, and can be neither the basis nor evidence of any right whatever. A judgment against a party over whose person the court has not acquired jurisdiction is void for want of jurisdiction (31 Cal. 342, 347) . The Court observed that the plaintiff's title to the land was derived through a judgment in favor of a judgment creditor who foreclosed on a mortgage, and a sheriff's sale and deed thereunder. However, it appeared from the record that there was a total absence of any legal evidence tending to prove an essential jurisdictional fact relating to an order to publish summons. For that reason the order for publication, and the publication pursuant to it, were absolutely void, and the court failed to acquire jurisdiction of the person of the defendant (31 Cal. 342, 355) .

The facts and procedural background of People v. Greene (1887) 74 Cal. 400, 16 P. 197 , are discussed in § 70.310[3][b] . In People v. Greene, the court held that the trial court's judgment was void and directed that it be set aside. The Court was faced with the issue of whether the superior court, after the lapse of a period of twelve years from the entry of a judgment could set it aside even if void (74 Cal. 400, 403) . The question arose because there was authority that no motion could be entertained by a district court to set aside a judgment on any ground, including for lack of jurisdiction over the defendant, after the expiration of the term during which it was entered. The rule originated under a former system of practice in California in which trial courts sat during terms. At the time of the opinion, however, terms of court had been abolished and the relief that formerly could be obtained only during the term could, under the version of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 then existing, be sought within a reasonable time up to six months (the case was decided before the 1933 amendment that added the provision, now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), for a motion to set aside a void judgment).

The Court stated that a judgment which is void on its face, and which requires only an inspection of the judgment roll to demonstrate its want of vitality is a dead limb on the judicial tree that should be lopped off if the power to do so exists. It can bear no fruit to the plaintiff, but is a constant menace to the defendant. A court, whose process is abused by an attempt to enforce a void judgment, will interfere, for its own dignity and for the protection of its officers, to arrest further action. The Court concluded that former Section 473, and its time limitation, was not intended to apply to such cases (74 Cal. 400, 405) .

In Luckenbach v. Krempel (1922) 188 Cal. 175, 204 P. 591 , on application of the plaintiff, the trial court appointed a receiver over the property of a judgment debtor company to collect on a money judgment. Thereafter the receiver began an action against the defendants. The defendants moved for an order vacating orders appointing the receiver and authorizing him to sue. The court denied the motion, and the defendants appealed and petitioned the Supreme Court for a writ of supersedeas to restrain further proceedings by the receiver and in the court below, pending the appeals.

The Supreme Court issued the writ of supersedeas staying all proceedings in the court below in any action begun by the receiver. The Court stated that the motions to set aside the order appointing the receiver were made on matters appearing on the face of the record and on the ground that the court had no jurisdiction to appoint the receiver; in other words, that the order was void because of lack of jurisdiction in the court to make it. If that order was void, the orders purporting to authorize the receiver to sue would also be void. The Court cited the rule that a judgment or order which is void on the face of the record thereof may be set aside at any time by the court that made it (188 Cal. 175, 176-177) .

In Estate of Poder (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 786, 79 Cal. Rptr. 484 , setting aside a decree of final distribution and an order admitting a will to probate, the court stated that when the record on its face discloses a want of jurisdiction a judgment or order may be attacked at any time on this ground. The court added that statutes of limitations do not protect a void judgment (274 Cal. App. 2d 786, 790) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.313

§ 70.313 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Intervention to Set Aside Void Judgment

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face (see § 70.310[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD PERMIT INTERVENTION IN THIS ACTION BY THE MOVING PARTY BECAUSE INTERVENTION IS ALLOWED AFTER JUDGMENT FOR THE PURPOSE OF SETTING ASIDE A JUDGMENT THAT IS VOID ON ITS FACE.

Intervention to Set Aside Void Judgment. Intervention is allowed after judgment for the purpose of setting aside a judgment that is void on its face (Johnson v. Hayes Cal Builders, Inc. (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 572, 575-576, 35 Cal. Rptr. 618, 387 P.2d 394).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face by a person seeking to intervene for the purpose of setting aside the void judgment or order [Johnson v. Hayes Cal Builders, Inc. (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 572, 575-576, 35 Cal. Rptr. 618, 387 P.2d 394] .

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face [see § 70.310[1]].

This form may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.310[2] for related chapters in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel would refer to facts that establish the applicant's right to intervene, or his or her interest permitting intervention, and those facts would normally be contained in a declaration supporting the motion to intervene and set aside the void judgment or order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 387]. The question of whether the person should or must be permitted to intervene is independent of the question of whether the judgment or order should be set aside as void on its face, and grounds for the latter must appear on the judgment roll.

For discussion regarding evidentiary support for facts stated in counsel's argument generally, see § 70.10[2][b]. For further discussion and forms relating to mandatory and permissive intervention, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 395, Parties (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion and forms relating to mandatory and permissive intervention, including motion to intervene and complaint in intervention, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 395, Parties (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities relating to intervention by a nonparty generally, see Ch. 124, Intervention .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intervention to Set Aside Void Judgment

In Johnson v. Hayes Cal Builders, Inc. (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 572, 35 Cal. Rptr. 618, 387 P.2d 394 , the parties stipulated to the release of plaintiff's writ of attachment on obtaining a release of attachment bond. The bond was subsequently issued by Continental. Thereafter, defendant failed to answer certain interrogatories plaintiff had served on it, its answer to plaintiff's first amended complaint was stricken, its default was then entered within the requisite statutory time, and after a default hearing, judgment was entered for plaintiff. Seven months after the default, Continental moved to set aside the default and judgment and to intervene on the ground of the invalidity of the judgment. The trial court ordered the judgment set aside and permitted Continental to intervene. Plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed, but held that intervention was proper to set aside a judgment void on its face. It noted that because Continental's motion was more than six months after the default had been entered, it could not have been addressed to the discretion of the trial court under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (60 Cal. 2d 572, 576) . Instead, Continental's contention had to be that the judgment was void on its face and therefore could be set aside despite the expiration of the six-month period. Continental's problem was that former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 required intervention "before trial" (present Code Civ. Proc. § 387 merely provides that intervention must be on "timely application"), and prior case law had held that a default hearing was the equivalent of trial. However, the Court reasoned first that the contention that a default judgment was void on its face questioned the authenticity of the default hearing and, therefore, no legitimate trial had taken place. Moreover, the Court pointed out that any judgment void on its face may be set aside by the court on its own motion so that intervention in this case did no more than direct the Court's attention to a matter which it could have examined and resolved itself. However, the Court held that the judgment was not void on its face since the alleged defect in the judgment did not appear on the judgment roll (60 Cal. 2d 572, 577-578) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.314

§ 70.314 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Motion in Conjunction With Motion to Quash Is Not General Appearance

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face (see § 70.310[1]).]

A MOTION UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473(d), WHEN JOINED WITH A MOTION TO QUASH UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 418.10, DOES NOT CONSTITUTE A GENERAL APPEARANCE BY THE DEFENDANT.

Motion in Conjunction With Motion to Quash Does Not Constitute General Appearance. A motion under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(d), when joined with a motion to quash under Code of Civil Procedure Section 418.10, does not constitute a general appearance by the defendant (Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(d)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face. This form is for use in obtaining relief from a default judgment, when a defendant files a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), in conjunction with a motion to quash service of summons for lack of jurisdiction [see Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10].

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face [see § 70.310[1]].

This form may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.310[2] for related chapters in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, in this case, counsel would point out that the motion to set aside is combined with a motion to quash, and by statute the combined motion does not constitute a general appearance [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(d)].

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For forms of memoranda supporting a motion to quash under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10 which may in be combined with this form, see Ch. 132, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction and Inconvenient Forum .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.315

§ 70.315 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Pending Appeal Will Not Prevent Relief

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face (see § 70.310[1]).]

THE FACT THAT AN APPEAL IS PENDING IN THIS CASE DOES NOT DEPRIVE THE TRIAL COURT OF JURISDICTION TO CONSIDER WHETHER TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] AS VOID ON ITS FACE.

Pending Appeal Will Not Prevent Relief From Void Judgment or Order. As an exception to the general rule that a pending appeal deprives the trial court of jurisdiction of the cause, a court may set aside a void order at any time. An appeal will not prevent the court from at any time lopping off what has been termed a dead limb on the judicial tree--a void order (Andrisani v. Saugus Colony Limited (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 517, 523 , 10 Cal. Rtpr. 2d 444).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face. This form is for use when a notice of appeal has been filed on the void judgment or order.

For a tactical advantage, counsel may consider using this argument in a reply memorandum to respond to a contention in the opposing memorandum that a trial court is deprived of jurisdiction by the taking of an appeal, rather than raising the point in his or her supporting memorandum [see Code Civ. Proc. § 916(a); Andrisani v. Saugus Colony Limited (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 517, 523, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 444] .

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face [see § 70.310[1]].

This form may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.310[2] for related chapters in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, in this case, counsel would point out that although an appeal is pending in the action, the trial court maintains jurisdiction to determine the motion to set aside the facially void judgment or order.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Pending Appeal Will Not Prevent Relief From Void Judgment or Order

In Andrisani v. Saugus Colony Limited (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 517 , 10 Cal. Rtpr. 2d 444, the court of appeal, in a prior unpublished opinion, had reversed the dismissal of plaintiff's complaint for failure to post security on the ground that the trial court abused its discretion in setting the amount of security under the vexatious litigant statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 391.1]. While a petition for review in the Supreme Court was pending, the trial court conducted a new hearing to set the amount of security and issued a new order requiring a lower amount of security. The trial court then issued a minute order granting defendants' motion to dismiss for failure to furnish that security. The Supreme Court summarily denied the pending petition for review, and remittitur to the trial court issued. The trial court later entered the order of dismissal and plaintiff appealed. Shortly thereafter, the trial court, apparently realizing that the remittitur had not issued prior to its orders setting the security and dismissing the case, vacated those orders and reset the matter for hearing. After the hearing, the trial court again ordered plaintiff to furnish security and subsequently granted a motion to dismiss for failure to furnish it. Plaintiff appealed from that order.

The court of appeal dismissed the first of these new appeals as moot and on the second appeal affirmed the judgment. Plaintiff contended that the trial court lacked jurisdiction to enter its order dismissing appellant's complaint for failure to furnish security because a petition for review of the matter was pending in the Supreme Court and the remittitur had not issued. The court acknowledged that although under the general rule the perfecting of an appeal stays proceedings in the trial court on the judgment or order appealed from [see Code Civ. Proc. § 916(a)], it is subject to certain exceptions. Quoting from People v. West Coast Shows, Inc. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 462, 467, 89 Cal. Rptr. 290 , the court stated that a court may set aside a void order at any time. An appeal will not "prevent the court from at any time lopping off what has been termed a dead limb on a judicial tree--a void order." Such a void order may be set aside on the court's motion and by a judge, other than the one who made it. In addition, the setting aside of a void order by the trial court while an appeal is pending renders the appeal moot and subject to dismissal (8 Cal. App. 4th 517, 523) .

Although Andrisani, above, involves a sua sponte order setting aside a void judgment, it appears that a party may also bring the defect to the court's attention by motion since a court may set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face regardless of how the invalidity is brought to its attention [Morgan v. Clapp (1929) 207 Cal. 227, 224, 277 P. 490] .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.316-70.329

[Reserved]

§§ 70.316[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.330

§ 70.330 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] Based on Defective Summons or Manner of Service--General Form--Statutory Requirement for Service of Summons

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face (see § 70.310[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] IN THIS ACTION AS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM THE RECORD THAT THE COURT LACKED PERSONAL JURISDICTION OVER DEFENDANT.

A. Statutory Requirement for Service of Summons. Except as otherwise provided by statute, a summons must be served on a person within California in the manner prescribed in Code of Civil Procedure, Section 413.10 et seq., and a defendant has an absolute right to demand that process be issued against him or her in a manner prescribed by law (Code Civ. Proc. § 413.10(a); Mannesmann DeMag, Ltd. v. Superior Court (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 1118, 1123, 218 Cal. Rptr. 632).

B. Judgment Void on Its Face for Insufficient Service. When the record speaks as to what was done on the subject of service, it will not be presumed that something other, different, or additional was done; and when what was done is insufficient as a matter of law to give the court jurisdiction, the judgment is void on its face when the remainder of the record is silent on the question of service, appearance, and default of the party affected (Steuri v. Junkin (1938) 27 Cal. App. 2d 758, 760, 82 P.2d 34).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities supporting additional grounds for relief from void judgment or order (see, e.g., §§ 70.335 -70.421). In addition, when applicable, add points and authorities based on particular grounds for granting relief from a judgment or order that is void on its face because of defective service (see, e.g., § 70.331 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a judgment or order when the defendant was not served with a summons in the form or manner specified by statute, and the failure or deficiency is apparent by inspection of the judgment roll. This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant).

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a void judgment or order [see § 70.310[1]]. In addition, when applicable, these points and authorities should be combined with points and authorities that support a defendant's motion for relief from a judgment or order that is void on its face because of defective service in particular situations, for example:

- The default should be set aside because defendant was not served [see § 70.331].

- Personal jurisdiction was not conferred because the summons is substantially defective [see § 70.332].

- Personal jurisdiction was not conferred because the manner of service was improper [see § 70.333].

- Notice was inadequate because it did not substantially comply with statutory requirements for service of summons [see § 70.334].

For points and authorities for use when combining a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), with a motion to quash service of summons for lack of jurisdiction, see § 70.314[1] [see also Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10; forms and discussion in Ch. 132, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction and Inconvenient Forum].

These points and authorities may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief from a void judgment on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.335 -70.421]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.310[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should refer to the specific document in the judgment roll, or the absence of proof in the judgment roll, that shows that the defendant was not served with a summons in the form or manner specified by statute.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[c] Methods of Service of Summons

The five alternative methods for the serving of summons authorized by the basic service of summons statutes are [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.10 et seq.]:

- Personal delivery of a copy of the summons and complaint to the person to be served [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.10].

- The leaving of a copy of the summons and complaint with a specified person at the defendant's usual place of abode, usual place of business or, if no physical address is known, at the person's usual mailing address, other than a United States Postal Service post office box, with the person who is apparently in charge [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20].

- The sending of a copy of the summons and complaint by ordinary mail to the person to be served with a request that he or she execute and return an enclosed statutory form of "Acknowledgment of Receipt of Summons" to the sender [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30].

- The sending of a copy of the summons and complaint to the person to be served, by first-class mail, postage prepaid, requiring a return receipt [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.40].

- The service of summons by publication [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50].

Service by mail under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.40 may be used only to effectuate service of summons on a person who is outside the State of California [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.40]. Any of the other four methods of serving summons may be used to effectuate the service of summons on a person either within or outside of the State of California [Code Civ. Proc. § 413.10; see 1969 Annual Report, Judicial Council of California, p. 43 (Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.10)].

[d] Absence of Proof of Service in Judgment Roll Not Definitive

Counsel should use this memorandum with caution. A default judgment may be affirmed despite the absence or defect of proof of service in the judgment roll, when service as required by statute was in fact made [see, e.g., Hibernia S. and L. Soc. v. Matthai (1897) 116 Cal. 424, 426, 48 P. 370 (default judgment affirmed although judgment roll did not contain the summons with proof of service, when judgment recited that defendants were duly served, and trial court on proof of loss of originals authorized copies to be filed); for further discussion and authorities, see § 70.461].

[e] Alternative Relief When Improper Service Does Not Appear From Examination of Judgment Roll

In some instances a defect in manner of service may be established only by facts from sources outside the judgment roll. In these instances, the judgment is not void on its face but void in fact, and certain forms of points and authorities, particularly the form in § 70.333[1] , should be modified as necessary and combined with a memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a judgment valid on its face but void in fact [see § 70.460 -70.463; see also discussion in § 70.310[2][d][iv]].

[f] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.440 -70.453 may be used to oppose these points and authorities.

[g] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For forms of a notice of motion relating to proceedings to quash service of summons on ground of lack of personal jurisdiction, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances (Matthew Bender). For forms of notice of motion relating to service and return of summons, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statutory Requirement for Service of Summons

Mannesmann DeMag, Ltd. v. Superior Court (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 1118, 218 Cal. Rptr. 632 , involved a personal injury action in which the plaintiff filed an amendment to his complaint identifying Doe 13 as the company that manufactured a crane which malfunctioned and injured him. Just prior to expiration of the three year statute of limitations, the plaintiff attempted service of process on the company by delivering a copy of the summons, complaint and amendment to the company's supervisor and vice president. The company had actual knowledge that it was being sued. After the three-year period elapsed, the company moved to dismiss, alleging fatal defective service of process. The motion was denied by the trial court, and the defendant petitioned the court of appeal for writ mandate to require the trial court to set aside its order.

The court of appeal issued the writ of mandate. The court quoted MJS Enterprises, Inc. v. Superior Court (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 555, 557, 200 Cal. Rptr. 286 (discussed in § 70.332[3]), in support of its statement that summons is the process by which a court acquires personal jurisdiction over a defendant in a civil action, and a defendant has an absolute right to demand that process be issued against him in a manner prescribed by law (172 Cal. App. 3d 1118, 1122) . The court found that there was no indication on the face of the summons that the person served was not being served in an individual capacity and held that the summons was so incomplete on its face as to render it ineffective to impart notice to its recipient and therefore the attempted service on defendant did not satisfy the mandate of Code Civ. Proc. § 412.30 (172 Cal. App. 3d 1118, 1124) .

[b] Judgment Void on Its Face for Insufficient Service

Steuri v. Junkin (1938) 27 Cal. App. 2d 758, 82 P.2d 34 , involved a motion to set aside a judgment against a person on the ground that the judgment was void on its face. The moving party was named in a counterclaim, but had not previously been a party to the suit. No summons was ever issued on the counterclaim, nor was personal service ever had on the moving party as a party to the action or otherwise. The counterclaim was served by leaving a copy with the secretary of a defendant who was named in the original action. The trial court granted the motion to set aside the judgment and the plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court of appeal stated that the judgment did not recite service on the moving party, or his appearance, or default. But, on the contrary, the judgment roll showed that service was on the secretary of a defendant named in the original action. The court stated that when what occurred is conclusively established by the record, the contrary cannot be presumed. When the record speaks as to what was done on the subject of service, it will not be presumed that something other, different, or additional was done; and when what was done is insufficient as a matter of law to give the court jurisdiction, the judgment is void on its face when the remainder of the record is silent on the question of service, appearance, and default of the party affected (27 Cal. App. 2d 758, 760) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Statutory Requirement for Service of Summons

In Chaplin v. Superior Court (1927) 81 Cal. App. 367, 253 P. 954 , the court issued a writ of prohibition to restrain the respondent court from taking further proceedings under orders awarding alimony, child support, and counsel fees in a pending divorce action on the ground that they were void for lack of jurisdiction over the defendant. The court stated that in the absence of obtaining service on the defendant by any of the modes prescribed by statute, the ordinary rule appears to be that an order such as those in question is unauthorized and void (81 Cal. App. 367, 371) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.331

§ 70.331 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] Based on Defective Summons or Manner of Service--Entry of Default Is Proper Only if Defendant Was Served

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face, based on a defective summons or manner of service (see § 70.310[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT or DEFAULT JUDGMENT or DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT] IN THIS ACTION AS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM THE RECORD THAT DEFENDANT WAS NOT SERVED WITH A SUMMONS IN THE ACTION.

Entry of Default Proper Only if Defendant Was Served. Entry of default and default judgment, by the clerk or by the court, may be had only if the defendant has been served and the plaintiff makes written application for entry of default and judgment with proof of service (Code Civ. Proc. § 585; Steuri v. Junkin (1938) 27 Cal. App. 2d 758, 760, 82 P.2d 34).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default judgment when the defendant was not served with a summons, and the failure or deficiency is apparent by inspection of the judgment roll.

This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant).

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a void judgment or order based on a defective summons or manner of service [see § 70.330[1]].

These points and authorities may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

For related Pleading and Practice chapters, see § 70.330[2][g].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, if a default was entered on a cross complaint against the person against whom the default was taken, and the person was never served with the summons and the omission is disclosed by the judgment roll, counsel would refer to the fact of nonservice and the absence of proof in the judgment roll in arguing that the essential jurisdictional fact of service does not exist and that as a consequence the judgment should be set aside as void on its face [see Steuri v. Junkin (1938) 27 Cal. App. 2d 758, 760, 82 P.2d 34 , discussed under [3], below].

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Entry of Default Proper Only if Defendant Was Served

The facts and procedural background of Steuri v. Junkin (1938) 27 Cal. App. 2d 758, 82 P.2d 34 , are discussed in § 70.330[3][b]. In Steuri v. Junkin, the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order granting the motion to set aside the judgment. The court stated that when what occurred is conclusively established by the record, the contrary cannot be presumed. When the record speaks as to what was done on the subject of service, it will not be presumed that something other, different, or additional was done; and when what was done is insufficient as a matter of law to give the court jurisdiction, the judgment is void on its face when the remainder of the record is silent on the question of service, appearance, and default of the party affected (27 Cal. App. 2d 758, 760) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.332

§ 70.332 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] Based on Defective Summons or Manner of Service--Personal Jurisdiction Is Not Conferred if Summons Is Substantially Defective

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face, based on a defective summons or manner of service (see § 70.310[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT or DEFAULT JUDGMENT or DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT] IN THIS ACTION AS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM THE RECORD THAT THE COURT LACKS PERSONAL JURISDICTION OVER THE DEFENDANT IN THAT THE SUMMONS IS SUBSTANTIALLY DEFECTIVE.

Personal Jurisdiction Not Conferred if Summons Substantially Defective. A summons is the process by which a court acquires personal jurisdiction over a defendant in a civil action. The form of a summons is prescribed by law, and this form must be substantially observed. Service of a substantially defective summons does not confer jurisdiction over a party (MJS Enterprises, Inc. v. Superior Court (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 555, 557, 200 Cal. Rptr. 286 ; see Earl W. Schott, Inc. v. Kalar (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 943, 946-947, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 580 (failure to name business entity in its proper capacity).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default judgment when personal jurisdiction was not conferred because of a substantially defective summons deficiency is apparent by inspection of the judgment roll.

This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant).

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a void judgment or order based on a defective summons or manner of service [see § 70.330[1]].

These points and authorities may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

For related Pleading and Practice chapters, see § 70.330[2][g].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, if the defendant is a corporation, counsel would refer to the summons and point out each defect shown on the face of the summons, such as when the summons served notified the recipient that he or she was being served as an individual defendant under Code Civ. Proc. § 416.90, but provided no notice that he or she was also being served on behalf of a corporation named as a defendant in the complaint [see MJS Enterprises, Inc. v. Superior Court (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 555, 200 Cal. Rptr. 286 , discussed under [3], below].

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Personal Jurisdiction Not Conferred if Summons Substantially Defective

In MJS Enterprises, Inc. v. Superior Court (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 555, 200 Cal. Rptr. 286 , the summons served notified the recipient that he was being served as an individual defendant under Code Civ. Proc. § 416.90, but provided no notice that he was also being served on behalf of a corporation named as a defendant in the complaint. A default judgment was entered against the corporation, and it moved under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 to set the judgment aside. The motion was denied, and the corporation petitioned for a writ of mandate.

The court of appeal granted the writ. The court held that the default judgment was void for lack of personal jurisdiction over the corporation and that the trial court had therefore exceeded its jurisdiction in denying the motion (153 Cal. App. 3d 555, 558) . Even though the corporation had notice of the litigation, the summons completely failed to comply with the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 412.30. The court concluded that the summons was fatally defective in light of the rule that a summons does not confer personal jurisdiction over a party in the absence of substantial compliance with the statutory requirements for service (153 Cal. App. 3d 555, 557-558) .

Earl W. Schott, Inc. v. Kalar (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 943, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 580 , involved an action for breach of contract, fraud and common counts against "Gary Kalar, individually and DBA Kalar Construction Co." The plaintiff served the individual and the company by leaving a copy of the summons and complaint with the company's office manager. The plaintiff then filed its first proof of service of the summons and complaint without a declaration of due diligence or a notation of the subsequent mailing of a copy of the summons and complaint. After the plaintiff filed several requests for entry of default, which were rejected for defective proof of service, it obtained an entry of default based on a substituted service via delivery of the summons and complaint to the office manager for Gary Kalar, as an individual. The court entered default judgment against Gary Kalar, individually and doing business as Kalar Construction. Gary Kalar appealed in both capacities.

The court of appeal reversed. Plaintiff conceded that it had not exercised due diligence in serving Kalar Construction Company, as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(b), but argued that Kalar Construction Company was a corporation and, thus, due diligence was not required, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(a). In rejecting this contention, the court refused to take judicial notice that Kalar Construction was a corporation (20 Cal. App. 4th 943, 945 n. 3), noting that the complaint, summons, and lower court judgment all listed Gary Kalar, individually, and dba Kalar Construction as the defendants (20 Cal. App. 4th 943, 945) . Because the plaintiff had not named the corporation as a defendant, jurisdiction was never effected over the corporation and no valid judgment was entered against it (20 Cal. App. 4th 943, 945-947) . The court relied on the Judicial Council comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10, which provides that service on a corporation or unincorporated association can only be accomplished by serving some individual as its representative. The court concluded that if the existence of corporate structure is not alleged in either the complaint or the summons, it is not possible for an individual to have been served in his or her representative capacity for the unnamed corporation (20 Cal. App. 4th 943, 946) . The court also rejected plaintiff's argument that naming an entity as an association or partnership instead of a corporation should be treated as a minor spelling error that would not defeat the judgment (20 Cal. App. 4th 943, 947) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.333

§ 70.333 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] Based on Defective Summons or Manner of Service--Personal Jurisdiction Is Not Conferred if Manner of Service Is Improper

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face, based on a defective summons or manner of service (see § 70.310[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT or DEFAULT JUDGMENT or DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT] IN THIS ACTION AS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM THE RECORD THAT THE DEFENDANT HAS NOT BEEN SERVED WITH THE SUMMONS IN THE MANNER REQUIRED BY STATUTE.

Personal Jurisdiction Not Conferred If Manner of Service Improper. A court does not obtain jurisdiction over a defendant until, in the absence of an appearance, the defendant is served with summons in the manner required by statute (Apartments, Inc. v. Trott (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 7, 14, 342 P.2d 32 ; see Wilson v. Eddy (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 613, 616, 82 Cal. Rptr. 826 (involving motion to quash service of summons)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default judgment when the defendant has not been served with the summons in the manner required by statute [Apartments, Inc. v. Trott (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 7, 14, 342 P.2d 32 ; see Wilson v. Eddy (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 613, 616, 82 Cal. Rptr. 826 (involving motion to quash service of summons)].

This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant).

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a void judgment or order based on a defective summons or manner of service [see § 70.330[1]].

These points and authorities may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

For related Pleading and Practice chapters, see § 70.330[2][g].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, a trial court lacked personal jurisdiction over the defendants when service was made on defendants' attorney pursuant to an agreement executed by plaintiffs but not by defendants, which agreement purported to appoint the attorney as defendants' agent in California for the service of process [see Wilson v. Eddy (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 613, 616, 82 Cal. Rptr. 826 , discussed under [3], below].

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.440 -70.453 may be used to oppose these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Personal Jurisdiction Not Conferred if Manner of Service Improper

Apartments, Inc. v. Trott (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 7, 342 P.2d 32 , involved a judgment and order denying transfer of a case to the county of the defendants' residence. Defendants' argued that since they filed an answer and a cross complaint in the particular county, that county was the first to acquire jurisdiction over the action.

The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order. The court rejected the contention that the court in the county of the defendants' residence had already obtained jurisdiction and stated that the mere filing of a complaint does not confer jurisdiction. Service of summons is indispensable (172 Cal. App. 2d 7, 14) . Since no where in the record before the court did it appear that summons on the cross complaint in was ever served, the court was required to assume that the county did not acquire jurisdiction over the action (172 Cal. App. 2d 7, 14-15) .

In Wilson v. Eddy (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 613, 82 Cal. Rptr. 826 , plaintiffs filed a contract action against defendants, who were residents of New York. Service was made on defendants' attorney pursuant to an agreement executed by plaintiffs but not by defendants, which agreement purported to appoint the attorney as defendants' agent in California for the service of process. Defendants' motion to quash service was granted and plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the order to quash service. The court considered the propriety of a private individual appointing another private individual to accept service and noted the applicability of former Code Civ. Proc. § 411 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10 et seq.]. The court declared that, absent service in conformance with statutes, no jurisdiction is acquired by the court (2 Cal. App. 3d 613, 616) . The court went on to consider whether defendants had in fact appointed the attorney as their agent and found sufficient evidence to support the decision of the trial court that the attorney did not have that authority (2 Cal. App. 3d 613, 618-619) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.334

§ 70.334 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) Based on Defective Summons or Manner of Service--Notice Without Substantial Compliance With Statute Is Inadequate

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face, based on a defective summons or manner of service (see § 70.310[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT or DEFAULT JUDGMENT or DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT] IN THIS ACTION AS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM THE RECORD THAT SERVICE OF THE SUMMONS DOES NOT SUBSTANTIALLY COMPLY WITH THE STATUTORY REQUIREMENTS FOR SERVICE OF THE SUMMONS.

Notice Without Substantial Compliance With Statute Inadequate. Notice of the litigation does not confer personal jurisdiction absent substantial compliance with the statutory requirements for service of summons (Mannesmann DeMag, Ltd. v. Superior Court (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 1118, 1123, 218 Cal. Rptr. 632 ; MJS Enterprises, Inc. v. Superior Court (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 555, 557, 200 Cal. Rptr. 286).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default judgment when notice of the litigation lacks substantial compliance with statutory requirements [Mannesmann DeMag, Ltd. v. Superior Court (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 1118, 1123, 218 Cal. Rptr. 632 ; MJS Enterprises, Inc. v. Superior Court (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 555, 557, 200 Cal. Rptr. 286 , discussed under [3], below].

This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant).

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a void judgment or order based on a defective summons or manner of service [see § 70.330[1]].

These points and authorities may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

For related Pleading and Practice chapters, see § 70.330[2][g].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, for example, when it may be asserted that the defendant had actual notice of the litigation, counsel would refer to papers in the judgment roll (or their absence) and point out the specific respects in which service of the summons and complaint fails to substantially comply with statutory requirements.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.440 -70.453 may be used to oppose these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Notice Without Substantial Compliance With Statute Inadequate

The facts and procedural background of Mannesmann DeMag, Ltd. v. Superior Court (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 1118, 218 Cal. Rptr. 632 , are discussed in § 70.330[3][a] . In Mannesmann, the court acknowledged that, while it was undeniable that the defendant had actual notice of the lawsuit by reason of correspondence by its attorney to real party's attorney, the court quoted MJS Enterprises, Inc. v. Superior Court (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 555, 557, 200 Cal. Rptr. 286 (discussed in § 70.332[3]), in concluding that notice of the litigation does not confer personal jurisdiction absent substantial compliance with the statutory requirements for service of summons (172 Cal. App. 3d 1118, 1124) .

The facts and procedural background of MJS Enterprises, Inc. v. Superior Court (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 555, 200 Cal. Rptr. 286 , are discussed in § 70.332[3] . In this case, although the court concurred with the assertion that the statutes governing service of summons should be liberally construed to uphold jurisdiction when the defendant receives actual notice it is being sued, the court stated the rule that notice of the litigation does not confer personal jurisdiction absent substantial compliance with the statutory requirements for service of summons (153 Cal. App. 3d 555, 557-558) . Liberal construction, according to the court, cannot cure the plaintiff's complete failure to comply with Code Civ. Proc. § 412.30 (notice to person served on behalf of corporation or unincorporated association) (153 Cal. App. 3d 555, 558) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.335

§ 70.335 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] Based on Defective Summons or Manner of Service--Failure to Provide Statutory Notice to Person Served on Behalf of Corporation, Unincorporated Association, or Partnership [Code Civ. Proc. § 412.30]

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face (see § 70.310[1]), and with points and authorities generally supporting relief on the ground of lack of personal jurisdiction due to defective service (see, e.g., § 70.330[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE JUDGMENT AS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM THE RECORD THAT THE SUMMONS SERVED ON DEFENDANT _____ [CORPORATION or UNINCORPORATED ASSOCIATION or PARTNERSHIP] DID NOT CONTAIN THE MANDATORY NOTICE REQUIRED BY LAW.

A. Notice Requirement for Summons for Corporation, Unincorporated Association, or Partnership. In an action against a corporation or an unincorporated association, including a partnership, the copy of the summons that is served must contain the notice stating in substance as provided in Code of Civil Procedure Section 412.30. If such notice does not appear on the copy of the summons served, no default may be taken against the corporation or unincorporated association or against such person individually, as the case may be (Code Civ. Proc. § 412.30).

B. Judgment Based on Service of Summons Lacking Corporate Notice Requirement Is Void. A default judgment against a corporation or an unincorporated association defendant is void for lack of personal jurisdiction and may be set aside if the summons served on the defendant did not contain the mandatory notice required by Code Civil Procedure Section 412.30 or otherwise indicate an attempt to assert judicial power over the defendant (Mannesmann DeMag, Ltd. v. Superior Court (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 1118, 1123, 218 Cal. Rptr. 632 ; MJS Enterprises, Inc. v. Superior Court (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 555, 558, 200 Cal. Rptr. 286).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities supporting additional grounds for relief from void judgment or order (see, e.g., § 70.336 -70.421).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default judgment when a summons served on a person on behalf of a defendant corporation or unincorporated association (including a partnership) lacks the notice required by Code Civ. Proc. § 412.30, and the failure or deficiency is apparent by inspection of the judgment roll. This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant).

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a void judgment or order [see § 70.310[1]]. They may also be combined with points and authorities generally supporting relief on the ground of lack of personal jurisdiction due to defective service [see, e.g., § 70.330[1]]. For points and authorities for use when combining a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), with a motion to quash service of summons for lack of jurisdiction, see § 70.314[1] [see also Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10; forms and discussion in Ch. 132, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction and Inconvenient Forum].

These points and authorities may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief from a void judgment on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.336 -70.421]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also §§ 70.310, 70.330 for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order, alternative methods for obtaining relief, and discussion relating to use of this form to support an alternative motion for relief from a judgment valid on its face but void in fact.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, if the default was taken against a corporate defendant, counsel may refer to the "Notice to the Person Served" portion of the summons when it indicates that the person served was served as an individual defendant, rather than on behalf of the corporation [see, e.g., MJS Enterprises, Inc. v. Superior Court (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 555, 558, 200 Cal. Rptr. 286 (discussed under [3], below)].

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.440 -70.443 may be used to oppose this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment Based on Service of Summons Lacking Corporate Notice Requirement Is Void

The facts and procedural background of Mannesmann DeMag, Ltd. v. Superior Court (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 1118, 218 Cal. Rptr. 632 , are discussed in § 70.330[3][a]. In Mannesmann, the court found that there was no indication on the face of the summons that the person served was not being served in an individual capacity and held that the summons was so incomplete on its face as to render it ineffective to impart notice to its recipient and therefore the attempted service on defendant did not satisfy the mandate of Code Civ. Proc. § 412.30 (172 Cal. App. 3d 1118, 1124) .

The facts and procedural background of MJS Enterprises, Inc., v. Superior Court (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 555, 200 Cal. Rptr. 286 , are discussed in § 70.332[3]. In MJS Enterprises, summons in the action was personally served on a person and the proof of service indicated that the person was served on behalf of the defendant corporation. The summons that was served, however, under the "Notice to the Person Served" heading, stated that the person was served as an individual defendant. Nothing in the summons indicated that the process was directed to the defendant corporation (153 Cal. App. 3d 555, 557) . The court of appeal stated that the summons served on the corporation was fatally defective because it did not contain the mandatory notice required by law, nor did it otherwise in any manner indicate an attempt to assert judicial power over defendant. Thus, the default taken against the defendant corporation was expressly prohibited by Code Civ. Proc. § 412.30 (153 Cal. App. 3d 555, 558) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.336

§ 70.336 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] Based on Defective Summons or Manner of Service--Defective Affidavit for Publication of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50]

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face (see § 70.310[1]), and with points and authorities generally supporting relief on the ground of lack of personal jurisdiction due to defective service (see, e.g., § 70.330[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD ASIDE THE JUDGMENT AS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM THE RECORD THAT THE AFFIDAVIT FOR PUBLICATION OF SUMMONS FAILED TO COMPLY WITH THE REQUIREMENTS OF STATUTE.

A. Requirements for Service by Publication. Service of summons by publication is permitted if on affidavit it appears to the satisfaction of the court in which the action is pending that the party to be served cannot with reasonable diligence be served in another manner specified in Sections 415.10 through 415.50 of the Code of Civil Procedure and that: (1) a cause of action exists against the party on whom service is to be made or he or she is a necessary or proper party to the action; or (2) the party to be served has or claims an interest in real or personal property in this state that is subject to the jurisdiction of the court or the relief demanded in the action consists wholly or in part in excluding the party from any interest in the property (Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50(a)).

B. Strict Construction of Service by Publication Statute. Statutory provisions for acquiring jurisdiction of the person by publication of summons instead of a personal service must be strictly construed (Forbes v. Hyde (1866) 31 Cal. 342, 356 ; see Transamerica Title Ins. Co. v. Hendrix (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 740, 746, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 614 (failure to attempt service by mail under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30 when plaintiff was aware of post office box at which defendant received mail invalidated application for service by publication)).

C. Defective Affidavit for Service by Publication. If the affidavit on which the order directing publication of summons was had fails to comply with the provisions of statute, the default judgment thereafter entered on such defective service would be void on its face, and the trial court at any time may properly set it aside (Forbes v. Hyde (1866) 31 Cal. 342, 354 ; In re Behymer (1933) 130 Cal. App. 200, 202, 19 P.2d 829).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities supporting additional grounds for relief from void judgment or order (see, e.g., §§ 70.335, 70.350 -70.421).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default judgment when service on the defendant was by publication of summons, the affidavit for publication under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50 was defective, and the defect is apparent by inspection of the judgment roll. The form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant).

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a void judgment or order [see § 70.310[1]]. They may also be combined with and with points and authorities generally supporting relief on the ground of lack of personal jurisdiction due to defective service [see, e.g., § 70.330[1]]. For points and authorities for use when combining a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), with a motion to quash service of summons for lack of jurisdiction, see § 70.314[1] [see also Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10; forms and discussion in Ch. 132, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction and Inconvenient Forum].

These points and authorities may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief from a void judgment on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.335, 70.350 -70.421]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also §§ 70.310, 70.330 for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order, alternative methods for obtaining relief, and discussion relating to use of this form to support an alternative motion for relief from a judgment valid on its face but void in fact.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should state the particular defects that are shown on the face of the affidavit for publication.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[c] Motion Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 Distinguished

The circumstances in which this form may be used is to be distinguished from those on which a party may bring a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 [see § 70.240 et seq.]. Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 applies primarily to cases in which the service was constructive, and constructive service is permitted, and a valid judgment is secured, but the court relieves from the valid judgment because the defendant was not personally served.

When the service made is an invalid service, the court never acquires jurisdiction, the judgment based on such service is void, and may be collaterally or otherwise attacked [see People v. One 1941 Chrysler Sedan (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 18, 31, 183 P.2d 368 (construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 473a; disapproved on another ground in People v. One 1941 Chevrolet Coupe (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 283, 303, 231 P.2d 832)].

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.440 -70.443 may be used to oppose these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Strict Construction of Service by Publication Statute

Forbes v. Hyde (1866) 31 Cal. 342 , involved an ejectment to recover possession of a lot. Plaintiff recovered judgment in the trial court. Defendants' motion for new trial was denied and the defendants appealed from the judgment and order denying new trial. The plaintiff offered the judgment roll of an earlier case as one of the links in his chain of title. Defendants objected on the ground that it appeared from the judgment roll in that case that the court never acquired personal jurisdiction over the defendants in the earlier action, and that the judgment was therefore void. The judgment against the defendants in the earlier action was by default on a service of summons attempted to be made by publication.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment and order denying new trial and ordered a new trial. The question to be determined by the Court was whether service in the earlier case was valid. The Court stated that the principle remains untouched, that whenever the want of jurisdiction appears, the judgments of any and all courts will be void; and when the party in interest is to be brought in by means of a public notice, the want of such notice will be fatal. According to the Court, it had been well settled by prior decisions of the Supreme Court that when it appears in the record that the court had no jurisdiction of the person of the defendant against whom judgment is rendered, the judgment may be collaterally attacked (31 Cal. 342, 348) . After reviewing the sufficiency of the affidavit, the Court concluded that it appeared from the record that there was a total absence of any legal evidence tending to prove an essential jurisdictional fact, and for that reason the order for publication, and the publication pursuant to it, were absolutely void. The court in the earlier action, therefore, failed to acquire personal jurisdiction over the defendants (31 Cal. 342, 355) . Since the earlier action was void, it was improperly admitted into evidence (31 Cal. 342, 356) .

In Transamerica Title Ins. Co. v. Hendrix (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 740, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 614 , plaintiff brought an action against a defendant who was not a resident of California at the time the complaint was filed. At the time the plaintiff applied for an order for service by publication, the defendant maintained a post office box in California. Although the plaintiff knew of this post office box, plaintiff indicated in its application to serve by publication that it was unable to serve defendant by mail. The trial court granted the application, and notice of the summons was published. Thereafter, defendant's default and a default judgment were entered. On learning of the judgment, defendant petitioned the trial court to set it aside or vacate it. The motion was denied and the defendant appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. The court held that service by publication under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50 was defective as a matter of law when the plaintiff had been aware that the defendant was receiving mail at a post office box. A post office box is a sufficient address for Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30 service by mail, so that plaintiff's failure to attempt such service invalidated plaintiff's application for service by publication (34 Cal. App. 4th 740, 746) . The court therefore reversed, and directed the trial court to vacate the default and default judgment and to permit the defendant to file an answer.

[b] Defective Affidavit for Service by Publication

For discussion of Forbes v. Hyde (1866) 31 Cal. 342 , see [a], above.

In re Behymer (1933) 130 Cal. App. 200, 19 P.2d 829 , involved a judgment on a petition for initial registration of title to a city lot. The contestants filed an answer alleging that they were the owners in fee simple, as joint tenants, and were in possession and entitled to possession of the property. The matter was heard before a referee whose findings were adopted by the court and judgment was rendered in favor of the petitioners. The contestants appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The contestants claimed title through a judgment quieting title and by adverse possession. The court stated that the attack made on the judgment quieting title was collateral and not direct and that the chief distinction between a collateral and a direct attack on such judgment is that in a collateral attack the evidence which may be received to show excess of jurisdiction is restricted to the judgment roll as defined by law at the time of the rendition of the judgment. But when by resort to such evidence the want of vitality in the judgment is demonstrated, the duty to declare it void is as imperative on collateral as on direct attack. The court, citing Morgan v. Clapp (1929) 207 Cal. 221, 224, 277 P. 490 (discussed in § 70.312[3]), stated that if the affidavit on which the order directing publication of summons was had fails to comply with the provisions of statute, the default judgment thereafter entered on such defective service would be void on its face, and the trial court at any time may properly set it aside (130 Cal. App. 200, 202) . One of the papers constituting the judgment roll in the quiet title action was the affidavit for publication of summons. The court, after reviewing the affidavit, concluded that it omitted the formal requisites and failed to meet the test of sufficiency of an affidavit, requiring an affidavit to be so clear and certain that an indictment for perjury may be sustained on it if false (130 Cal. App. 200, 203-204) . In addition, all the statements in the affidavit showing diligence were hearsay (130 Cal. App. 200, 204) . The court also concluded that the acts claimed to constitute adverse possession failed to meet the requirements of statute (130 Cal. App. 200, 205) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.337-70.349

[Reserved]

§§ 70.337[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.350

§ 70.350 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Default Judgment Entered on Amended Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Amended Complaint Was Not Served [Code Civ. Proc. § 471.5]

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face (see § 70.310[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT JUDGMENT AS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE IT IS BASED ON A COMPLAINT THAT WAS AMENDED _____ [BEFORE or AFTER] ENTRY OF DEFAULT AND THE _____ [AMENDMENT or AMENDED COMPLAINT] WAS NEVER SERVED ON DEFENDANT.

A. Service of Amended Complaint Required. If a complaint is amended, a copy of the amendments or of the amended complaint must be filed and served on the defendants affected thereby in the manner provided for service of process. Defendant may answer the amendments or the complaint as amended within 30 days after service thereof, or such other time as the court may direct (Code Civ. Proc. § 471.5(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 413.10-415.50 (manner of service of process)).

B. Judgment Void if Based on Unserved Amended Complaint. A default judgment based on an amended complaint which has not been served on defendant is void (Woods v. Stallworth (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 517, 520, 2 Cal. Rptr. 250).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities supporting additional grounds for relief from void judgment or order (see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.336, 70.360 -70.421). In addition, when applicable, add points and authorities based on particular grounds for granting relief from a judgment or order that is void on its face because of an amended complaint that had not been served (see, e.g., § 70.352[1]).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default judgment when the judgment was entered on an amended complaint or amendment to a complaint that was not served on the defaulting party, and the deficiency appears on the face of the judgment roll. This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant).

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a void judgment or order [see § 70.310[1]]. They may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief from a void judgment on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.336, 70.360 -70.421]. The form in § 70.352[1], in particular, includes additional grounds for relief from a judgment based on an amended complaint. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also §§ 70.310, 70.330 for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order, alternative methods for obtaining relief, and discussion relating to use of this form to support an alternative motion for relief from a judgment valid on its face but void in fact.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should refer to the fact that it appears from the judgment roll that the amendments to the complaint or the amended complaint itself were not served on the defaulting defendant.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment Void if Based on Unserved Amended Complaint

Woods v. Stallworth (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 517, 2 Cal. Rptr. 250 , involved an action seeking an annulment of a sale of real property under a deed of trust, and other relief. The plaintiff filed a second amended complaint in the action and a summons was issued thereon. The defendants did not answer and the summons, with a writing stating that the summons attached to the second amended complaint was served on each defendant, was filed. The statement, however, bore no verification. The clerk entered the default of the defendants who did not answer. On motion of the defendants, the default was vacated. Thereafter, all the defendants in the action moved for an order dismissing the action, which was granted, and judgment of dismissal with costs was entered. The plaintiff moved to vacate the judgment and the order vacating the default. The motion was denied and the plaintiff appealed from the order.

The court of appeal affirmed the order. The court stated that there was no merit in the contention that the trial court committed error in vacating the default. The court, citing Reinhart v. Lugo (1890) 86 Cal. 395, 24 P. 1089 , held that the unverified statement of service filed with the return of the summons constituted no proof of service. Thus, the clerk had no authority to enter the default of the defendants in the absence of valid proof of service (177 Cal. App. 2d 517, 520) . The void character of the entry of the default appeared on the face of the record. The trial court, therefore, had a duty on application of the party or of its own motion to vacate the void entry of the default [see Code Civ. Proc. §

473(d)].

In Falahati v. Kondo (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 823, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 104 , plaintiffs' original verified complaint sued defendant along with a number of other defendants for intentional interference with economic relationship and prospective economic advantage, defamation, fraud, negligent misrepresentation, unfair business practices, and intentional infliction of emotional distress. The original complaint alleged numerous acts of wrongdoing by defendant that caused harm to plaintiffs. In response to a series of demurrers, plaintiffs eventually filed a verified third amended complaint which did not name defendant in the caption and contained no allegations he did anything which caused harm to plaintiffs. Defendant did not file a responsive pleading to the third amended complaint. Eight months after plaintiffs filed their third amended complaint, they filed a "Notice of Errata" to add defendant to the caption only, but did not amend the complaint to allege defendant engaged in any conduct causing them damage. The same day plaintiffs filed their "errata," they filed a request to enter his default, and the court clerk entered the default as requested. Four months later the trial court held a default prove-up hearing and awarded plaintiffs judgment against defendant. The record was silent as to whether defendant was served with notice of entry of the default judgment. Ten months after entry of the default judgment, defendant filed a motion to vacate the default and set aside the subsequent judgment on the ground he had not been served with the initial summons and complaint in the action and that adding him to the caption of the third amended complaint and entering his default on the complaint the same day denied him due process. The trial court denied the motion.

The court of appeal reversed. The court held that the third amended complaint failed to apprise defendant of the nature of the plaintiffs' demand against him, and neither the third amended complaint nor any subsequent notice, informed defendant of the amount of damages plaintiffs were seeking from him (127 Cal. App. 4th 823, 829-831) . In addition, the court held that the default was obtained through extrinsic fraud because it was entered the same day plaintiffs amended the complaint to add defendant to the caption, and defendant was thereby denied the opportunity to respond to the complaint in violation of Code Civ. Proc. § 471.5 and his right to due process under the federal and state constitutions (127 Cal. App. 4th 823, 831-834) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.351

§ 70.351 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Default Judgment Entered on Amended Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Substantial Amendment After Entry of Default Opens Default

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face, based on the failure to serve an amended complaint (see § 70.350[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT JUDGMENT AS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE PLAINTIFF OPENED THE DEFAULT BY AMENDING THE COMPLAINT IN A MATTER OF SUBSTANCE AFTER HE/SHE ENTERED DEFENDANT'S DEFAULT, AND FAILED TO SERVE THE DEFENDANT WITH THE AMENDMENT.

Amendment of Complaint After Entry of Default. A defendant in default as to the original complaint is entitled to service of any amended pleading making a change of substance, and has a right to answer or demur to such amendments. When, after defendant's default is entered, the complaint is amended in a matter of substance as distinguished from a matter of mere form, the amendment opens the default and a judgment on the default is improper unless the amended complaint is served on the defendant (Ford v. Superior Court (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 338, 342-343, 109 Cal. Rptr. 844).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default judgment when a plaintiff opens a default by amending the complaint in a matter of substance after defendant's default was entered and failing to serve the defendant with the amended pleading. This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant).

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face, based on the failure to serve an amended complaint [see § 70.350[1]]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should refer, in proper chronological order, to the papers in the judgment roll showing that the court lacked personal jurisdiction to award the judgment on the amended pleading. For example, counsel would refer to:

- The summons, with the affidavit or proof of service, relating to the original pleading.
- The original complaint.
- The request for entry of default with a memorandum endorsed thereon that the default of the defendant in not answering was entered.
- The complaint as amended.

Counsel would refer to specific allegations of the complaint that were modified in matters of substance, as well as the absence of any proof of service of the amended pleading in the record, arguing that the judgment on the complaint as amended was facially void.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Amendment of Complaint After Entry of Default

In Ford v. Superior Court (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 338, 109 Cal. Rptr. 844 , plaintiff sued on a promissory note. Defendant was validly served and his default was entered on his failure to answer the complaint. Thereafter, plaintiff filed her first amended complaints incorporating by reference causes of action in the original complaint, adding a third cause of action, and seeking recovery of an additional sum from each of the defendants. The defaulting defendant was not served with this amended complaint. Plaintiff filed a second amended complaint a year later, again incorporating the first cause of action and adding a new cause of action and seeking a recovery on another theory. Again, the defaulting defendant did not receive service of the amended complaint. Approximately two years later, plaintiff obtained a clerk's judgment against the defaulting defendant and dismissed the action as to the other defendants. Defendant later moved to vacate the default judgment, and when his motion was denied he petitioned for a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to vacate the judgment.

The court of appeal issued the writ, requiring the trial court to vacate its order denying relief and to grant defendant's motion. The court found two distinct infirmities in the judgment: (1) the entry of judgment by the clerk was improper [see also § 70.360 et seq.]; (2) defendant was entitled to service of amended complaints. On the latter issue, the court declared that plaintiff's filing of the amended pleadings had the effect of opening up the default on the original complaint. The court asserted that a defendant who is in default on the original complaint is entitled to service of amended pleadings making changes of substance as opposed to form, and following service such defendant has a right to answer or demur to the amendments (34 Cal. App. 3d 338, 342) . The amendments here involved purported to state new causes of action, asking for additional damages and basing claims on alternative legal theories. These, the court reasoned, were not mere matters of form (34 Cal. App. 3d 338, 343) . The court further noted that, in such circumstances, it is irrelevant whether the amendment is accomplished by an amended complaint or by an amendment to the complaint (34 Cal. App. 3d 338, 343) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.352

§ 70.352 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Default Judgment Entered on Amended Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Judgment Based on Failure to Answer Void When Amended Complaint Required No Answer

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face (see § 70.310[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT JUDGMENT AS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE IT IS BASED ON DEFENDANT'S FAILURE TO ANSWER AN AMENDED COMPLAINT, BUT THE AMENDMENTS WERE IMMATERIAL AND REQUIRED NO ANSWER FROM DEFENDANT.

Default Judgment Void When Based on Failure to Answer Immaterial Amendments. When a complaint has been amended only as to formal or immaterial matters, and does not change the cause of action against a particular defendant, that defendant does not have to answer. A default judgment entered under those circumstances is void and should be set aside (Carrasco v. Craft (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 796, 808-811, 210 Cal. Rptr. 599).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities supporting additional grounds for relief from void judgment or order (see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.351, 70.360 -70.421).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default judgment when the judgment was entered based on the defendant's failure to answer an amended complaint, but the amended complaint made changes only as to formal or immaterial matters, and the deficiency appears on the face of the judgment roll. This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant).

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a void judgment or order [see § 70.310[1]]. They may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief from a void judgment on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.351, 70.360 -70.421]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also §§ 70.310, 70.330 for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order, alternative methods for obtaining relief, and discussion relating to use of this form to support an alternative motion for relief from a judgment valid on its face but void in fact.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should refer to the specific facts and allegations in the original and amended complaint, as set out in the record, to demonstrate that the amendments in the latter complaint were so immaterial that they did not require an answer as a matter of law.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Default Judgment Void When Based on Failure to Answer Immaterial Amendments

The facts and procedural background of Carrasco v. Craft (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 796, 210 Cal. Rptr. 599 , are discussed in § 70.310[3][c]. In Carrasco v. Craft, the court of appeal, relying on Gray v. Hall (1928) 203 Cal. 306, 310-311, 265 P. 246 , for the proposition that a defendant need not answer an amendment that relates merely to formal or immaterial matters and does not change a cause of action, examined nine changes in the amended complaint. Four of the changes related to other defendants; one changed the amount of punitive damages sought, and four were minor and immaterial and did not alter the causes of action against the defaulting defendants. The court concluded that defendants' original answer could, as a matter of law, stand as their answer to the amended complaint and held that the entry of default was in error, and the default judgment was void (164 Cal. App. 3d 796, 808-811) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.353-70.359

[Reserved]

§§ 70.353[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.360

§ 70.360 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face Based on Unauthorized Entry of Default or Judgment by Clerk [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face (see § 70.310[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT AS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE THE CLERK'S ACTION WAS IN EXCESS OF HIS/HER STATUTORY AUTHORITY UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 585(a).

A. Clerk's Statutory Authority to Enter Default and Default Judgment. In an action arising on a contract or a judgment of a California court for recovery of money or damages, the clerk is authorized to enter defendant's default and judgment thereon on written application of plaintiff and proof of service of summons on defendant (Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)).

B. Judgment Void in Excess of Clerk's Authority. When the clerk is authorized to enter a default judgment, he or she has no authority other than that conferred by statutes and the failure to stay strictly within the statutory authorization renders any judgment entered by the clerk void on the face of the record (Burtnett v. King (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 805, 808, 205 P.2d 657 ; Brown v. Superior Court (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 519, 524, 51 Cal. Rptr. 633).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities supporting additional grounds for relief from void judgment or order (see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.352, 70.380 -70.421). In addition, when applicable, add points and authorities based on particular grounds for granting relief from a judgment or order that is void on its face because of an unauthorized entry of a default or default judgment by the court clerk (see, e.g., § 70.361 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default and default judgment when they were entered in excess of the clerk's statutory authority under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a), and the deficiency appears on the face of the judgment roll. This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant).

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a void judgment or order [see § 70.310[1]]. They may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief from a void judgment on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.352, 70.380 -70.421]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, for example, when the defaulting party claims that the entry of the default on which the judgment was based was premature, counsel should refer to judgment roll to show that the dates indicate that the default was entered before the time such entry was authorized by law [see § 70.361[1]].

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment Void in Excess of Clerk's Authority

In Burtnett v. King (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 805, 205 P.2d 657 , plaintiff sought to quiet title in certain real property which had been community property of himself and his former wife. Wife had been awarded all of the community property of the couple when husband defaulted in her divorce action, and she had subsequently conveyed the property to defendants. Defendants argued that the divorce decree was res judicata on the issue of title to the property. Judgment was granted for the defendants in the trial court, and the plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment. The court of appeal first pointed out that Code Civ. Proc. § 580 limits the amount of relief that can be granted on default to the amount demanded in the complaint, and noted additional language in Code Civ. Proc. § 585 authorizing the court to render a default judgment only for a sum not exceeding the amount stated in the complaint (33 Cal. 2d 805, 807) . In the divorce action, wife's complaint had made no mention of the property at issue, but had merely prayed for general relief. The court found that under these circumstances not only did the relief accorded wife exceed her demand, it adjudicated property rights when none were asserted, claimed, or prayed for (33 Cal. 2d 805, 807) . The court stated that due to the mandatory language of the statutes, the court's jurisdiction to render default judgments could be exercised only in the way authorized by statute (33 Cal. 2d 805, 807) and any act beyond the limits of the statute would render it in excess of the court's jurisdiction (33 Cal. 2d 805, 807) . Thus, the court in the divorce action had wholly lacked jurisdiction to render a judgment affecting the community property of the couple, in the absence of a demand for such relief, and that court's judgment was void (33 Cal. 2d 805, 807) . Similarly, when the clerk is authorized to enter a default judgment, he or she must strictly stay within the statutory authorization of former Code Civ. Proc. § 585(1) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)], and a failure to do so renders the judgment void (33 Cal. 2d 805, 808 , citing earlier cases). The court distinguished dissolution cases in which support was awarded without a specific demand therefor, reasoning that the issue of support or alimony is so germane to the issue of divorce that a defendant must anticipate an award of support although there is no prayer to that effect (33 Cal. 2d 805, 809-810) .

In Brown v. Superior Court (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 519, 51 Cal. Rptr. 633 , plaintiff sued defendants for recovery of legal fees owed to plaintiff's assignor. On defendants' default, plaintiff obtained entry of a default judgment by the clerk. Defendants' motion to set the default judgment aside was denied by the trial court, and defendants thereafter filed a proceeding in mandate to nullify the default and default judgment in the belief that the order denying relief was not appealable.

The court of appeal issued the peremptory writ of mandate. The court of appeal agreed with defendants' contention that the default judgment was void in that it was improperly entered by the clerk. The court pointed out that the complaint sought recovery of the reasonable value of the attorney's services. Citing Lynch v. Bencini (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 521, 525, 110 P.2d 662 , the court declared that if the determination of damages involves the exercise of discretion or the taking of evidence, the clerk has no power to enter a default judgment. If on the face of the complaint a case is not within the scope of former Code Civ. Proc. § 585(1) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)], the clerk's unauthorized entry of default judgment is void on the face of the record (242 Cal. App. 2d 519, 524) . Such a judgment may be set aside independently of Code Civ. Proc. § 473, with no fixed limit on the time within which a motion may be made (242 Cal. App. 2d 519, 524) . Thus, when the reasonable value of services must be determined, the clerk has no power to enter default judgment (242 Cal. App. 2d 519, 525) . The court concluded by pointing out that the invalidity of the default judgment did not affect the default which preceded it (242 Cal. App. 2d 519, 526) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.361

§ 70.361 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face Based on Unauthorized Entry of Default or Judgment by Clerk [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)]--Premature Entry of Default

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face, based on the unauthorized entry of default or judgment by clerk (see § 70.360[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT AS VOID ON THEIR FACE BECAUSE THE ENTRY OF THE DEFAULT WAS PREMATURE AND THEREFORE IN EXCESS OF THE CLERK'S STATUTORY AUTHORITY UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 585(a).

Premature Entry of Default. When the clerk enters a default prematurely because of an error in his or her mechanical computation of the time elapsed since service was completed, a judgment based on such default is void (Montgomery v. Norman (1953) 120 Cal. App. 2d 855, 857-858, 262 P.2d 360).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default and default judgment when the default was entered prematurely and was, therefore, in excess of the clerk's statutory authority under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a), and the deficiency appears on the face of the judgment roll. This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant).

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face, based on the unauthorized entry of default or judgment by clerk [see § 70.360[1]]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, when the defaulting party claims that the entry of the default on which the judgment was based was premature, counsel should refer to judgment roll to show that the dates indicate that the default was entered before the time such entry was authorized by law.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Premature Entry of Default

In Montgomery v. Norman (1953) 120 Cal. App. 2d 855, 262 P.2d 360 , after the trial court sustained a demurrer to a complaint and denied the defendant's motion to quash a writ of attachment, the defendant was required to respond to the amended complaint within 10 days after notice of the filing of an undertaking by the plaintiff. Plaintiff mailed notice of the undertaking to the defendant and the notice was received the next day. On the tenth day, a Friday, the plaintiff mailed to the clerk request to enter default. The clerk received and entered the default the following Monday morning, and entered the judgment on Wednesday. The defendant moved to set aside the default and the default judgment. The trial court granted the motion and the plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court agreed with defendant's contention that the version of Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 then in effect allowed the defendant an additional day because of distance between the place of deposit and the place of address. With that allowance, the tenth day would have fallen on a Saturday, which is a legal holiday on which the county clerk's office is closed, and since Sunday was also such a legal holiday, defendant had all day Monday in which to appear. Therefore, the clerk erroneously entered the default on Monday morning (120 Cal. App. 2d 855, 857) . The court then stated that the clerk is not authorized to enter a default or a default judgment until the time for appearance has expired. If the clerk enters such a judgment without such authority the judgment is void (120 Cal. App. 2d 855, 858) .

It should be noted that although the court stated that a judgment, void on its face, is not governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 473, this was in response to the plaintiff's contention that the defendant did not file an affidavit of merits in connection with his motion to set aside the default and default judgment. The statement therefore related to Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), as distinguished from the provision under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), codifying the court's inherent power to set aside void judgments and orders.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Premature Entry of Default

Bristol Convalescent Hosp. v. Stone (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 848, 66 Cal. Rptr. 404 , involved a dispute on an agreement relating to the building of a convalescent hospital. Plaintiff filed an amended complaint which was served on defendant's attorney by mail. Defendant's default was taken and judgment entered against him on his failure to answer the amendments. The court of appeal reversed the default judgment with directions to the trial court to dispose of issues raised in defendant's cross complaint. In dictum, the court noted that if the clerk's mechanical computation of the time elapsed since service was completed is in error and he or she enters default prematurely, a judgment based on such default is void (258 Cal. App. 2d 848, 862 , citing earlier cases). Such a default judgment may be set aside at any time, regardless of how it comes to the court's attention (258 Cal. App. 2d 848, 862) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.362

§ 70.362 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face Based on Unauthorized Entry of Default or Judgment by Clerk [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)]--Default Was Entered With Responsive Pleading on File

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face, based on the unauthorized entry of default or judgment by clerk (see § 70.360[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT AS VOID ON THEIR FACE BECAUSE THE DEFAULT WAS ENTERED WHEN A RESPONSIVE PLEADING WAS ON FILE AND THEREFORE IN EXCESS OF THE CLERK'S STATUTORY AUTHORITY UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 585(a).

Entry of Default When Responsive Pleading on File. A default judgment is void if, when the defendant's default was taken, a responsive pleading was on file (Stevens v. Torregano (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 105, 112, 13 Cal. Rptr. 604 ; see Laguna Village, Inc. v. Laborers' Internat. Union of North America (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 174, 182, 197 Cal. Rptr. 99, 672 P.2d 882). Such judgment is void even if the responsive pleading was filed after expiration of the time to plead (Goddard v. Pollock (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 137, 141, 112 Cal. Rptr. 215).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default and default judgment when the default was entered when a responsive pleading was on file and was, therefore, in excess of the clerk's statutory authority under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a), and the deficiency appears on the face of the judgment roll. This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant).

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face, based on the unauthorized entry of default or judgment by clerk [see § 70.360[1]]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel would refer to the answer, demurrer, or other responsive pleading on file and argue that the entry of the default was therefore not was authorized by law.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Entry of Default When Responsive Pleading on File

In Stevens v. Torregano (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 105, 13 Cal. Rptr. 604 , plaintiff, claiming as a pretermitted heir, filed an action to impose a constructive trust on assets of an estate and for other relief. The court overruled defendant's general demurrer to the first cause of action in the complaint, but sustained the demurrer as to the rest of the complaint. Plaintiff amended the complaint and defendant again demurred. While the matter was under submission in the trial court, plaintiff took defendant's default. Defendant moved to set aside the default on the ground that it was void because it was taken while the demurrer was under submission. Defendant's motion was granted and plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. In holding that the default was properly set aside as void under what was formerly the last paragraph of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)), the court noted that it is not the business of the clerk to pass on questions of the sufficiency or validity of a pleading filed within the time allowed (192 Cal. App. 2d 105, 112) . At the time the default was taken, there was a general demurrer on file, valid on its face and raising questions that could also be raised in an answer. Thus, the default was void and the trial court had properly set it aside (192 Cal. App. 2d 105, 112) .

The facts and procedural background of Laguna Village, Inc. v. Laborers' Internat. Union of North America (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 174, 197 Cal. Rptr. 99, 672 P.2d 882 , is discussed in § 70.363[3] . In Laguna, the Supreme Court reversed the trial court's decision declining to set aside a default and held that the motion to dismiss filed in federal court prior to remand was sufficiently similar to a demurrer to constitute a responsive pleading for purposes of avoiding default, and that the default was therefore voidable and should have been set aside (35 Cal. 3d 174, 182) .

In Goddard v. Pollock (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 137, 112 Cal. Rptr. 215 , plaintiffs sued defendants, alleging that defendants had breached an agreement to redeem certain bonds and certificates of deposit purchased from defendants by plaintiffs. Defendants' default was taken after defendants had filed a notice of motion to quash service. The defendants moved for an order vacating the clerk's entry of default and default judgment. The trial court denied the order and the defendants appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the order denying defendants' motion with directions to the trial court to set aside the clerk's entry of default and the default judgment against the defendants. The court, although recognizing that the motion to quash was defective in that it was unaccompanied by supporting declarations or memoranda, determined that the trial court had erred in ordering entry of defendants' default. The court pointed out that a motion to quash is specifically mentioned in Code Civ. Proc. § 585 and clearly constitutes a pleading which, if timely filed, would preclude the clerk from entering a default (37 Cal. App. 3d 137, 141) . Defendants' motion to quash came after expiration of the time to plead. However, the court declared that it is "well established" that when a pleading is belatedly filed, but at a time when the default has not yet been taken, plaintiff has, in effect, granted defendant additional time within which to plead, and defendant is not strictly in default. The proper procedure in that situation is for plaintiff to move to strike the untimely pleading and, if the court grants the motion, to proceed to obtain entry of default (37 Cal. App. 3d 137, 141) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.363

§ 70.363 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face Based on Unauthorized Entry of Default or Judgment by Clerk [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)]--Entry of Default in Action Remanded After Motion to Dismiss Is Granted in Federal Action

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face, based on the unauthorized entry of default or judgment by clerk (see § 70.360[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT AS VOID ON THEIR FACE BECAUSE A MOTION TO DISMISS WAS FILED IN THE FEDERAL COURT PRIOR TO THE CASE BEING REMANDED TO STATE COURT, CONSEQUENTLY, THE ENTRY OF THE DEFAULT WAS PREMATURE AND IN EXCESS OF THE CLERK'S STATUTORY AUTHORITY UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 585(a).

Entry of Default in Action Remanded to State Court After Motion to Dismiss Filed in Federal Action. A motion to dismiss filed in federal court is sufficiently similar to a demurrer to constitute a responsive pleading for purposes of avoiding default after the action is remanded to state court (Laguna Village, Inc. v. Laborers' Internat. Union of North America (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 174, 182, 197 Cal. Rptr. 99, 672 P.2d 882).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default and default judgment when the default was entered in an action remanded to state court after a motion to dismiss was filed in a federal action and was, therefore, in excess of the clerk's statutory authority under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a); and the deficiency appears on the face of the judgment roll. This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant).

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face, based on the unauthorized entry of default or judgment by clerk [see § 70.360[1]]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should refer to judgment roll to show that the dates indicate that the default was entered after a motion to dismiss was filed in the action while in federal court.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Entry of Default in Action Remanded to State Court After Motion to Dismiss Filed in Federal Action

Laguna Village, Inc. v. Laborers' Internat. Union of North America (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 174, 197 Cal. Rptr. 99, 672 P.2d 882 , involved an action for trespass by an employer against a labor union. After the action was filed in state court by plaintiff, defendant union removed to federal court and there filed a motion to dismiss for failure to state a cause of action. Plaintiff filed a brief in opposition to the motion to dismiss and moved for remand to the state court. The federal court granted the remand and stated that in light of the remand, it declined to consider the motion to dismiss. After being granted one extension of time to file a response to the complaint in the state court, defendant filed a response several days after the extended period had already run. Plaintiff subsequently sought and obtained entry of default, set a hearing on damages that counsel for defendant failed to attend, and obtained judgment. Defendant moved to set aside the default pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 4th Paragraph [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)], but the trial court denied the motion. Defendant appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed the trial court's decision declining to set aside the default. The Court held that the motion to dismiss filed in federal court was sufficiently similar to a demurrer to constitute a responsive pleading for purposes of avoiding default, and that the default was therefore voidable (that is void) and should have been set aside (35 Cal. 3d 174, 182) . The Court noted that the trial court was apparently swayed by the fact that Code Civ. Proc. § 585, which provides for entry of default unless defendant has filed one of the responses enumerated in that section, does not list a motion to dismiss in federal court as one of the responses that avoid default. Older decisions had declined to give effect on remand to pleadings filed in federal court after a defendant had tried to remove the case. However, these cases were decided before an amendment of the federal removal statute, which now expressly prohibits any proceeding in the state court after removal and prior to remand. Recently, courts have been willing to give effect to pleadings filed in federal court before remand (35 Cal. 3d 174, 179-180) . The Court identified three policy considerations from the more recent cases for giving effect to federal pleadings before remand. The first is judicial economy and avoidance of duplication of effort. The Court stated that this consideration did not apply to the case before it, since defendant could have simply refiled the federal motion to dismiss as a demurrer at little added expense in time or money. The second consideration is that a plaintiff suffers no real prejudice from a court's giving effect to federal pleadings. The Court stated that this consideration did apply to the case before it, since plaintiff had been served with the motion to dismiss and had filed an opposition to it and was therefore clearly appraised of the federal pleading and the contentions made. Third, there is a policy of favoring resolution of disputes on the merits. This policy suggests flexibility rather than mechanical adherence to motion and pleading labels, even at the expense of sacrificing a degree of procedural rigidity. The Court noted that a federal motion to dismiss and a demurrer in a state action are closely related in substance, and that the motion to dismiss performs the function in federal courts that was formerly performed by a demurrer. The Court stated that these policy considerations overcame any weight that it might otherwise give to plaintiff's technical assertion that because demurrers and motions to dismiss are different in form, the trial court was justified in refusing to give effect to the motion (35 Cal. 3d 174, 181-182) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.364

§ 70.364 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face Based on Unauthorized Entry of Default or Judgment by Clerk [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)]--Entry of Default Judgment in Contract Action

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face, based on the unauthorized entry of default or judgment by clerk (see § 70.360[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT AS VOID ON THEIR FACE BECAUSE THE DETERMINATION OF DAMAGES IN A CONTRACT ACTION INVOLVES THE EXERCISE OF DISCRETION AND IS THEREFORE IN EXCESS OF THE CLERK'S STATUTORY AUTHORITY UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 585(a).

Judgment in Contract Actions. When a contract action is involved, the clerk has power to enter a default judgment only if the terms of the contract provide for some definite fixed amount of damages or if such sum can be ascertained from the terms of the contract by simple mathematical computation by the clerk (Liberty Loan Corp. of North Park v. Petersen (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 915, 918, 101 Cal. Rptr. 395). If the determination of damages involves the exercise of discretion or the taking of evidence, the clerk has no power to enter a judgment (Lynch v. Bencini (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 521, 525, 110 P.2d 662 ; Brown v. Superior Court (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 519, 524, 51 Cal. Rptr. 633).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default and default judgment. This form may be used when the default judgment was entered as a consequence of an exercise of discretion by the court clerk in determining damages in a contract action, and the deficiency appears on the face of the judgment roll. The clerk has no power to enter a judgment in such a case [Lynch v. Bencini (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 521, 525, 110 P.2d 662 ; Brown v. Superior Court (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 519, 524, 51 Cal. Rptr. 633 ; discussed under [3], below].

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face, based on the unauthorized entry of default or judgment by clerk [see § 70.360[1]]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should refer to judgment roll to show that the determination of damages involved the exercise of discretion or the taking of evidence.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment in Contract Actions

In Liberty Loan Corp. of North Park v. Petersen (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 915, 101 Cal. Rptr. 395 , the superior court denied plaintiff's petition for a writ of mandate to compel the clerk of the municipal court to enter a default judgment in an action on a promissory note. The clerk had refused to enter the judgment because the note sued on contained a notation that it was secured by a chattel mortgage. Plaintiff's attorney resubmitted the request for entry of default judgment, with a declaration stating that the note was unsecured. The clerk again refused to enter judgment and plaintiff sought a writ of mandate rather than attempting to secure a court judgment under former Code Civ. Proc. § 585(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(b)].

The court of appeal affirmed the superior court's denial of the writ. The court noted authorities for the principle that when a contract action is involved, the clerk has authority to enter a default judgment only if the terms of the contract provide for some fixed amount of damages or if such a sum can be ascertained from the terms of the contract by simple mathematical computation by the clerk (24 Cal. App. 3d 915, 918) . The court declared that a default judgment for a deficiency after a creditor has sold property which was security for the debt sued on is not the type of default judgment a clerk is authorized to enter. Such a judgment would require a determination that the sale of the security complied with the provisions of former Com. Code § 9501 et seq. (now see Com. Code § 9601 et seq.), a determination that would require the exercise of judicial discretion (24 Cal. App. 3d 915, 919) . The court emphasized that since the clerk's authority is strictly construed, it should not be exercised in doubtful cases. The court concluded that when the note sued on shows on its face that it was secured, the clerk is not required to enter a default judgment absent positive allegations in a verified complaint that the creditor has not resorted to collateral securing the note in any manner (24 Cal. App. 3d 915, 920) .

Lynch v. Bencini (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 521, 110 P.2d 662 , involved a dispute over an agreement to repurchase corporate stock. A default judgment was entered against one defendant and the action was dismissed as to another. The defaulting defendant's motion to set the default judgment aside was denied by the trial court. The defendant appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed with directions. One of the issues on defendant's appeal from that judgment was the question of the authority of the clerk to enter a default judgment. Noting the strict construction of the clerk's authority under former Code Civ. Proc. § 585(1) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)], the Supreme Court declared that the clerk has no power to enter a default judgment when the taking of evidence is necessary or when the reasonable value of services or goods must be determined (17 Cal. 2d 521, 525) . Citing Landwehr v. Gillette (1917) 174 Cal. 654, 657, 163 P. 1018 , the Court stated that if the contract sued on is indefinite or uncertain in the amount of damages to be awarded, the matter is one for judicial determination by the court (17 Cal. 2d 521, 525-526) . Since the relief available was unclear from the contract at issue in Lynch, the Court thought it clear that evidence was needed, which indicated the impropriety of allowing the clerk to enter a judgment in the action (17 Cal. 2d 521, 529) . After considering the other issues involved in the action, the Court reversed the judgment against defendant with orders to the trial court to dismiss the action as to defendant.

The facts and procedural background of Brown v. Superior Court (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 519, 51 Cal. Rptr. 633 , is discussed in § 70.360[3] . In Brown, the court declared that if the determination of damages involves the exercise of discretion or the taking of evidence, the clerk has no power to enter a default judgment (242 Cal. App. 2d 519, 524) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.365

§ 70.365 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face Based on Unauthorized Entry of Default or Judgment by Clerk [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)]--Entry of Default Judgment Against One of Several Defendants

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face, based on the unauthorized entry of default or judgment by clerk (see § 70.360[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT AS VOID ON THEIR FACE BECAUSE THE JUDGMENT WAS RENDERED AGAINST ONE OF SEVERAL DEFENDANTS EACH OF WHOM MAY BE LIABLE IN THE ACTION AND THEREFORE IN EXCESS OF THE CLERK'S STATUTORY AUTHORITY UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 585(a).

Judgment Against One of Several Defendants. The clerk has no authority to enter a default judgment against a single defaulting defendant when the action is prosecuted against more than one defendant and a several judgment can be rendered (Kooper v. King (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 621, 628-629, 15 Cal. Rptr. 848).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default and default judgment against one of several defendants, each of whom may be liable in the action, and was, therefore, in excess of the clerk's statutory authority under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a), and the deficiency appears on the face of the judgment roll. This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant).

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside judgment or order void on its face, based on the unauthorized entry of default or judgment by clerk [see § 70.360[1]]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should refer to judgment roll to show that the judgment was entered against a single defaulting defendant when the action was prosecuted against more than one defendant and a several judgment could be rendered.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment Against One of Several Defendants

In Kooper v. King (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 621, 15 Cal. Rptr. 848 , defendant failed to answer a cross complaint after he inadvertently misfiled the summons and cross complaint. The cross plaintiff obtained a clerk's judgment of default, and defendant's subsequent motion to set aside the default judgment was granted. On appeal, the court of appeal first considered the question of defendant's neglect in failing to answer the cross complaint, and concluded that there was no showing of excusable neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 to warrant relief from the default itself. Thus, the trial court had abused its discretion in setting aside the default and permitting defendant to answer. However, the court went on to state that there was no error by the trial court in setting aside the judgment entered by the clerk. The court believed that the interests of justice might best be served by holding that Code Civ. Proc. § 579 constitutes an implied limitation on the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 585(1) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 579 provides that in an action against several defendants, the court may, in its discretion, render a judgment against one or more of them, leaving the action to proceed against the others, whenever a several judgment is proper. The court declared that the discretion to be exercised under Code Civ. Proc. § 579 is a judicial one to be exercised by the court and not the clerk (195 Cal. App. 2d 621, 628-629) . On that issue, the court concluded that when there are two or more defendants and defenses interposed by an answering defendant to the right of the plaintiff to recover, and when such a defense is successful, final judgment must be entered not only in favor of the answering defendant but in favor of the defaulting defendant as well (195 Cal. App. 2d 621, 629) . The trial court's order was reversed as to the default and affirmed as to the default judgment, with the court noting that the trial court would have discretion to render a judgment against the defaulting defendant, leaving the action to proceed as to the others, or to refuse to enter a final judgment against defendant until after trial on the merits (195 Cal. App. 2d 621, 629) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.366-70.379

[Reserved]

§§ 70.366[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.380

§ 70.380 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Relief Awarded to Plaintiff Is in Excess of Demand of Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10, 425.11, 425.115, 580]--Complaint Must Contain Demand for Judgment

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order void on its face (see § 70.310[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT JUDGMENT AS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM THE RECORD THAT THE JUDGMENT VIOLATES CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 580, IN THAT THE RELIEF GRANTED TO PLAINTIFF IN THE JUDGMENT EXCEEDS THE DEMAND OF THE COMPLAINT.

A. Demand for Judgment in Complaint. With exceptions not relevant to this case, "a complaint or cross complaint must contain a demand for judgment for the relief to which the pleader claims to be entitled. If the recovery of money or damages is demanded, the amount demanded shall be stated ... ." (Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)).

B. Limitation on Relief Awarded to Plaintiff on Default. The relief granted to the plaintiff, if there is no answer, cannot exceed that which the plaintiff shall have demanded in his or her complaint, in the statement required by Code of Civil Procedure Section 425.11, or in the statement provided for in Code of Civil Procedure Section 425.115 (Code Civ. Proc. § 580).

C. Judgment Void When Relief Exceeds Demand of Complaint. By reason of the mandatory language of Code of Civil Procedure Section 580, a default judgment that exceeds the demand of the complaint or gives relief when no demand is made therefore is void as in excess of the court's jurisdiction (Burtnett v. King (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 805, 807, 205 P.2d 657 ; Stein v. York (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 320, 325-327, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 ; National Diversified Services, Inc. v. Bernstein (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 410, 417, 214 Cal. Rptr. 113).

[When appropriate, add memoranda supporting additional grounds for relief from void judgment or order (see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.365, 70.400 -70.421). In addition, when applicable, add memoranda based on particular grounds for granting relief from a judgment or order that is void on its face because relief was awarded in excess of the demand of the complaint or statement required by statute (see, e.g., § 70.383 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default judgment when the defaulting party alleges that the judgment is void because the relief awarded to the plaintiff exceeds the demand made by plaintiff in his or her complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 580], and the deficiency appears on the face of the judgment roll. The form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant).

This memorandum should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a void judgment or order [see § 70.310[1]]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with a memorandum supporting relief from a void judgment on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.365, 70.400 -70.421]. See §§ 70.400 -70.404, in particular, for related memoranda supporting a grant of relief on the ground that plaintiff failed to serve the statement of damages required in a personal injury or wrongful death action under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11. In addition, when applicable, this memorandum may be combined with a memorandum regarding particular grounds for granting relief from a judgment or order that is void on its face because relief was awarded in excess of the demand of the complaint or statement required by statute [see, e.g., § 70.381 et seq.)].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also §§ 70.310, 70.330 for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order, alternative methods for obtaining relief, and discussion relating to use of this form to support an alternative motion for relief from a judgment valid on its face but void in fact.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should refer to judgment roll to show that the complaint does not set out the amount sought or that the amount of the judgment exceeds the amount stated in the complaint, and argue that the judgment is void, therefore, on its face.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Demand for Judgment in Complaint

The function of this form is to identify when the plaintiff should have stated the amount of damages claimed, which acts as a ceiling on the amount of the default judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 580], so that the argument may then move on to explain how and why the judgment exceeds the amount demanded. This form may be used in cases in which the complaint must include the amount demanded and there is no need to specifically address the exceptions to that rule [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)].

For a memorandum for use in cases in which the complaint is brought in superior court for personal injury or wrongful death and a Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages must be served on defendant before default may be taken, see § 70.381[1]. For a memorandum for use in cases in which the complaint includes a claim for punitive damages, but is not one brought in superior court for personal injury or wrongful death, and a Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement reserving punitive damages is required before default may be taken, see § 70.382[1].

[b] Judgment Void When Relief Exceeds Demand of Complaint

The factual and procedural background of Burtnett v. King (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 805, 205 P.2d 657 , is discussed in § 70.360[3]. In Burtnett, the court of appeal pointed out that Code Civ. Proc. § 580 limits the amount of relief that can be granted on default to the amount demanded in the complaint, and noted additional language in Code Civ. Proc. § 585 authorizing the court to render a default judgment only for a sum not exceeding the amount stated in the complaint (33 Cal. 2d 805, 806-807) . In the divorce action, wife's complaint had made no mention of the property at issue, but had merely prayed for general relief. The court found that under these circumstances not only did the relief accorded wife exceed her demand, it adjudicated property rights when none were asserted, claimed, or prayed for. The court stated that due to the mandatory language of the statutes, the court's jurisdiction to render default judgments could be exercised only in the way authorized by statute and any act beyond the limits of the statute would render it in excess of the court's jurisdiction (33 Cal. 2d 805, 807) .

In Stein v. York (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 320, 325-327, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 , the plaintiff sued the defendant for legal malpractice. The complaint did not specify the amount of damages sought. The parties engaged in pretrial procedures, including discovery, but the defendant did not file an answer to the complaint. At the default prove-up hearing, which the defendant attended, the court noted the complaint did not contain a prayer for damages. At the end of the hearing, the plaintiff requested damages of $2.61 million. When the defendant argued that the judgment was void pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 580, the plaintiff argued that the defendant was on notice of the amount of damages claimed and therefore was estopped from attempting to modify the damages awarded. The defendant filed a reply, asserting that he was not given formal notice of the amount of damages and therefore the default judgment was void. The trial court held that the defendant was in default and lacked standing to challenge the damage award. The court also concluded that the defendant waived his right to object to the amount of damages because he had been actively involved in discovery and had every opportunity to find out the amount of the plaintiff's claim.

The court of appeal disagreed. It held that Code Civ. Proc. § 580 must be strictly construed and that actual notice of the damages sought is not sufficient. Due process requires that the defendant have formal notice of the damages sought (181 Cal. App. 4th 320, 326-327) . The court held that the defendant was not on notice of the damages merely because he attended the default hearing. The court held that although the defendant was present at the hearing, he was in default, and therefore "out of court" (181 Cal. App. 4th 320, 327) .

National Diversified Services, Inc. v. Bernstein (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 410, 214 Cal. Rptr. 113 , involved an action for breach of contract in which plaintiff agreed to purchase two Ferrari automobiles from defendant corporation in exchange for which plaintiff was to convey a boat and to pay an additional specified amount. The original complaint was filed, alleging that plaintiff conveyed the boat to defendant corporation, but defendant corporation refused to deliver the automobiles. The complaint was amended approximately two and one-half years later adding allegations designed to pierce the corporate veil of defendant corporation and naming an individual as defendant. The individual defendant was served shortly thereafter. A return of service was filed approximately three years and four months after the action was commenced. Approximately one month later, the plaintiff requested to enter his default and judgment was entered on the same day for the amount of $56,779.89. The individual defendant moved to vacate the default judgment and the trial court denied the order. The individual defendant appealed from the order.

The court of appeal affirmed the default judgment in part, and modified in part. The defendant argued that because he was not served until over four months beyond the three-year period of limitation under former Code Civ. Proc. § 581a [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210 et seq.], the service was invalid and the resulting default judgment based thereon was void and subject to attack at any time. The court rejected this argument (168 Cal. App. 3d 410, 414) . The court did, however, find merit to defendant's contention that the default judgment was void to the extent that the defendant was not apprised by the complaint or the request to enter default of the damages sought from him under Code Civ. Proc. § 580. Citing Burtnett v. King (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 805, 808, 205 P.2d 657 , discussed above, the court stated that the policy behind the statute is that a defendant is entitled to be informed of the maximum liability which he or she will face if he chooses to default. If a judgment other than that which is demanded is taken against him or her, the defendant is deprived of his or her right to a hearing on the matter adjudicated (168 Cal. App. 3d 410, 417) . Thus, the court concluded that the judgment rendered was partially void for being excessive, concluding that the largest money judgment it could say that defendant was on notice of would be the value of the boat plus a sum for its detention (168 Cal. App. 3d 410, 419) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.381

§ 70.381 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Relief Awarded to Plaintiff Is in Excess of Demand of Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10, 425.11, 425.115, 580--Demand for Judgment in Section 425.11 Statement of Damages

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order void on its face (see § 70.310[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT JUDGMENT AS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM THE RECORD THAT THE JUDGMENT VIOLATES CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 580, IN THAT THE RELIEF GRANTED TO PLAINTIFF IN THE JUDGMENT EXCEEDS THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 425.11 STATEMENT OF DAMAGES.

A. Demand for Judgment in Section 425.11 Statement of Damages. A complaint or cross complaint must contain a demand for judgment for the relief to which the pleader claims to be entitled. If the recovery of money or damages is demanded, the amount demanded shall be stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)]. "[W]here an action is brought to recover actual or punitive damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the amount demanded shall not be stated, but the complaint shall comply with Section 422.30 [of the Code of Civil Procedure] and, in a limited civil case, with subdivision (b) of Section 70613 of the Government Code (Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)). [In addition, no claim for exemplary damages shall state an amount or amounts (Civ. Code § 3295(e))]. When a complaint or cross complaint is filed in an action in superior court to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, a statement of the nature and amount of damages being sought must be served on the defendant before a default may be taken (Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11(c)). [The plaintiff must serve a statement reserving the right to punitive damages on the defendant pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 425.115 before a default may be taken, when the motion for default judgment includes a request for punitive damages (Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115(b)). (The Section 425.115 statement may be served on the defendant as part of the statement required by Section 425.11 (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11(e), 425.115(e))].

B. Limitation on Relief Awarded to Plaintiff on Default. [See § 70.380[1], Paragraph B.]

C. Judgment Void When Relief Exceeds Demand of Complaint. [See § 70.380[1], Paragraph C.]

[When appropriate, add memoranda supporting additional grounds for relief from void judgment or order (see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.365, 70.400 -70.421). In addition, when applicable, add memoranda based on particular grounds for granting relief from a judgment or order that is void on its face because relief was awarded in excess of the demand of the complaint or statement required by statute (see, e.g., § 70.384 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default judgment when the defaulting party alleges that the judgment is void. It may be used when the relief awarded to the plaintiff exceeds the demand made by plaintiff in the statement of damages required by Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11, and the deficiency appears on the face of the judgment roll. The form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant).

This memorandum should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a void judgment or order [see § 70.310[1]]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief from a void judgment on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.365, 70.400 -70.421]. See §§ 70.400 -70.404, in particular, for related memoranda supporting a grant of relief on the ground that plaintiff failed to serve the statement of damages required in a personal injury or wrongful death action under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11. In addition, when applicable, this form may be combined with other memoranda addressing particular grounds for granting relief from a judgment or order that is void on its face because relief was awarded in excess of the demand of the complaint or statement required by statute [see, e.g., § 70.384 et seq.)].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also §§ 70.310, 70.330 for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order, alternative methods for obtaining relief, and discussion relating to use of this form to support an alternative motion for relief from a judgment valid on its face but void in fact.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should refer to judgment roll to show that the amount of the judgment exceeds the amount stated in the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages, and argue that the judgment therefore is void on its face.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Demand for Judgment in Section 425.11 Statement of Damages

The function of this form is to identify when the plaintiff should have stated the amount of damages claimed, which acts as a ceiling on the amount of the default judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 580], so that the argument may then move on to explain how and why the judgment exceeds the amount demanded. This form may be used when the complaint is brought in superior court for personal injury or wrongful death, in which case the complaint must not state the damages claimed, but a Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages must be served on defendant before default may be taken [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10(b), 425.11(c)]. This form includes optional sentences that should be included if the complaint includes a claim for punitive damages [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115].

For memoranda for use in cases in which plaintiff is awarded damages in excess of the demand of the complaint, see § 70.380[1]. For points and authorities for use in cases in which the complaint includes a claim for punitive damages, but is not one brought in superior court for personal injury or wrongful death, and a Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement reserving punitive damages is required before default may be taken, see § 70.382[1].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.382

§ 70.382 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Relief Awarded to Plaintiff Is in Excess of Demand of Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10, 425.11, 425.115, 580]--Demand for Judgment in Complaint and Section 425.115 Statement Reserving Punitive Damages

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order void on its face (see § 70.310[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT JUDGMENT AS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM THE RECORD THAT THE JUDGMENT VIOLATES CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 580, IN THAT THE RELIEF GRANTED TO PLAINTIFF IN THE JUDGMENT EXCEEDS THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 425.115 STATEMENT RESERVING THE RIGHT TO SEEK PUNITIVE DAMAGES.

A. Demand for Judgment in Complaint and in Section 425.115 Statement Reserving Punitive Damages. With an exception for superior court actions involving personal injury or wrongful death, a complaint or cross complaint must contain a demand for judgment for the relief to which the pleader claims to be entitled. If the recovery of money or damages is demanded, the amount demanded must be stated (Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)). However, no claim for exemplary damages shall state an amount or amounts (Civ. Code § 3295(e)). The plaintiff must serve a statement reserving the right to punitive damages on the defendant pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 425.115 before a default may be taken, when the motion for default judgment includes a request for punitive damages (Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115(b)).

B. Limitation on Relief Awarded to Plaintiff on Default. [See § 70.380[1], Paragraph B.]

C. Judgment Void When Relief Exceeds Demand of Complaint. [See § 70.380[1], Paragraph C.]

[When appropriate, add memoranda supporting additional grounds for relief from void judgment or order (see, e.g., §§

70.330 -70.365, 70.400 -70.421). In addition, when applicable, add memoranda based on particular grounds for granting relief from a judgment or order that is void on its face because relief was awarded in excess of the demand of the complaint or statement required by statute (see, e.g., § 70.384 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default judgment when the defaulting party alleges that the judgment is void. It may be used when the relief awarded to the plaintiff exceeds the amount stated in the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement reserving punitive damages, and the deficiency appears on the face of the judgment roll. The form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant).

This memorandum should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a void judgment or order [see § 70.310[1]]. It may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief from a void judgment on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.365, 70.400 -70.421]. See §§ 70.400 -70.404, in particular, for related points and authorities supporting a grant of relief on the ground that plaintiff failed to serve the statement of damages required in a personal injury or wrongful death action under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11. In addition, when applicable, these points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities on particular grounds for granting relief from a judgment or order that is void on its face because relief was awarded in excess of the demand of the complaint or statement required by statute [see, e.g., § 70.384 et seq.)].

They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also §§ 70.310, 70.330 for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order, alternative methods for obtaining relief, and discussion relating to use of this form to support an alternative motion for relief from a judgment valid on its face but void in fact.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should refer to judgment roll to show that the amount of the judgment exceeds the amount stated in the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement reserving punitive damages, and argue that the judgment is void, therefore, on its face.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Demand for Judgment in Complaint and in Section 425.115 Statement Reserving Punitive Damages

The function of this form is to identify when the plaintiff should have stated the amount of damages claimed, which acts as a ceiling on the amount of the default judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 580], so that the argument may then move on to explain how and why the judgment exceeds the amount demanded. This form may be used when the complaint includes a claim for punitive damages, but is not one brought in superior court for personal injury or wrongful death. No claim for punitive damages may state the amount claimed, but a Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement reserving punitive damages must be served on defendant before default may be taken [Civ. Code § 3295(e)*, 425.115(b)].

For points and authorities for use in cases in which plaintiff is awarded damages in excess of the demand of the complaint, see § 70.380[1]. For points and authorities for use in cases in which the complaint includes a claim for punitive damages, but is not one brought in superior court for personal injury or wrongful death, and a Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages, see § 70.381[1].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.383

§ 70.383 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Relief Awarded to Plaintiff Is in Excess of Demand of Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10, 425.11, 425.115, 580]--Default Judgment Awarding Support Is Void When Not Requested in Petition for Marital Dissolution

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order void on its face (see § 70.310[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT JUDGMENT AS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM THE RECORD THAT THE DEFAULT JUDGMENT ORDERED CHILD SUPPORT EVEN THOUGH THERE WAS NO REQUEST FOR CHILD SUPPORT IN THE PETITION FOR MARITAL DISSOLUTION AND NO REQUEST FOR CHILD SUPPORT WAS SERVED ON DEFENDANT.

Default Judgment Awarding Child Support Void When Not Requested in Petition Marital Dissolution. If a plaintiff's petition for marital dissolution fails to request child support, and no notice of any such request was served on the defendant, a default judgment ordering the defendant to pay child support is void for lack of notice and subject to collateral attack (In re Marriage of Lippel (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 1160, 1163, 276 Cal. Rptr. 290, 801 P.2d 1041).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default judgment when the defaulting party alleges that the judgment is void. This form may be used when the default judgment awards child support when that support is not requested in the petition for marital dissolution. The form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant).

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a void judgment or order [see § 70.310[1]]. They may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief from a void judgment on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.365, 70.400 -70.421]. See §§ 70.400 -70.404, in particular, for related points and authorities supporting a grant of relief on the ground that plaintiff failed to serve the statement of damages required in a personal injury or wrongful death action under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11. In addition, when applicable, these points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities on particular grounds for granting relief from a judgment or order that is void on its face because relief was awarded in excess of the demand of the complaint or statement required by statute [see, e.g., § 70.385 et seq.)].

They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also §§ 70.310, 70.330 for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order, alternative methods for obtaining relief, and discussion relating to use of this form to support an alternative motion for relief from a judgment valid on its face but void in fact.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should refer to judgment roll to show that the judgment awarded child support when that relief was not requested in the petition for dissolution, and argue that the judgment is void, therefore, on its face.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Default Judgment Awarding Child Support Void When Not Requested in Petition Marital Dissolution

In re Marriage of Lippel (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 1160, 276 Cal. Rptr. 290, 801 P.2d 1041 , involved proceedings for assignment of wages pursuant to former Civ. Code § 4701 (now see Fam. Code § 5200 et seq.). The wife had filed a petition for dissolution of marriage requesting custody of the child. She did not, however, check the block requesting "support of children if need is found." The husband was served with a summons and a copy of the petition and did not file a response. A default was entered, and thereafter the court entered an interlocutory judgment of dissolution of marriage, awarding the wife custody, and the husband visitation rights. The court also ordered the husband to pay a specified amount of child support monthly. The husband was never served with, and never received, a copy of the judgment and was allegedly unaware of its existence until the county commenced proceedings to assign his wages, judgment against him rendered, and an abstract of the judgment recorded and served on him. The husband moved to vacate the child support provision of the interlocutory judgment and to vacate the order assigning his wages. The trial court denied the motion, and the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order.

The Supreme Court reversed. The Court held that it is a denial of due process, as embodied in Code Civ. Proc. § 580, to enter a default judgment ordering a husband to pay child support, when the wife's petition for marital dissolution, which was served on the husband, did not request child support and no notice of any such request was ever served on the husband. The Court concluded that such a default judgment is void for lack of notice and therefore subject to collateral attack by the husband (51 Cal. 3d 1160, 1163) . The Court stated that it is a fundamental concept of due process that a judgment against a defendant cannot be entered unless he or she was given proper notice and an opportunity to defend. California satisfies these due process requirements in default cases through Civ. Code § 580 (51 Cal. 3d 1160, 1166) .

The Court also reviewed prior Supreme Court decisions and, in light of the pleading requirements for a dissolution action under the former Family Law Act (former Civ. Code § 4000 et seq.; now see Family Code), declined to perpetuate an exception to Civ. Code § 580 in dissolution cases based on the idea that a prayer for general relief in such cases supports an award of support (51 Cal. 3d 1160, 1170-1171) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.384

§ 70.384 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Relief Awarded to Plaintiff Is in Excess of Demand of Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10, 425.11, 425.115, 580]--Demand for Damages in Excess of Specified Amount or According to Proof

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order void on its face (see § 70.310[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT JUDGMENT AS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM THE RECORD THAT THE JUDGMENT VIOLATES CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 580, IN THAT THE COMPLAINT SEEKS DAMAGES IN EXCESS OF A SPECIFIED AMOUNT OR ACCORDING TO PROOF, AND THE TRIAL COURT EXCEEDED ITS JURISDICTION INSOFAR AS IT AWARDED DAMAGES IN EXCESS OF THAT SPECIFIED AMOUNT.

Demand for Damages in Excess of Specified Amount or According to Proof. A prayer for damages according to proof satisfies the requirements of Code of Civil Procedure Section 580 only if a specific amount of damages is alleged in the body of the complaint. Thus, when the complaint seeks damages in excess of a specified amount or according to proof, a trial court exceeds its jurisdiction insofar as it awards damages in excess of that specified amount (Becker v. S.P.V. Construction Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 489, 494, 165 Cal. Rptr. 825, 612 P.2d 915 ; Pino v. Campo (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1, 4-5 , 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 483).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default judgment when the defaulting party alleges that the judgment is void. This form may be used when the complaint seeks damages in excess of a specified amount or according to proof and the trial court has exceeded its jurisdiction insofar as it awarded damages in excess of that specified amount [Becker v. S.P.V. Construction Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 489, 494, 165 Cal. Rptr. 825, 612 P.2d 915] .

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a void judgment or order [see § 70.310[1]].

These points and authorities may be combined, when appropriate, with those supporting relief on the ground that the relief awarded to the plaintiff is in excess of the demand of the complaint [see § 70.380[1]], the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages [see § 70.381[1]], or the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement reserving punitive damages [see § 70.382[1]]. They may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief from a void judgment on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.365, 70.400 -70.421]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also §§ 70.310, 70.330 for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order, alternative methods for obtaining relief, and discussion relating to use of this form to support an alternative motion for relief from a judgment valid on its face but void in fact.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should refer to judgment roll to show that the complaint seeks damages in a specified amount or according to proof, and the court awarded a sum in excess of the specified amount; and argue that the judgment is void, therefore, on its face.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Demand for Damages in Excess of Specified Amount or According to Proof

In Becker v. S.P.V. Construction Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 489, 165 Cal. Rptr. 825, 612 P.2d 915 , a default judgment awarded plaintiffs $26,457.50 in damages, and $2,500 in attorney's fees. The trial court without opinion granted defendants' motion to set aside the judgment. Plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed the trial court's order vacating the entire judgment and remanded to the trial court with directions to modify the judgment by striking the award of damages in excess of $20,000 and any attorney's fees. Defendant contended that the judgment violated Code Civ. Proc. § 580 since it awarded compensatory damages in excess of $20,000 when plaintiffs' complaint sought damages "in excess of $20,000 ... or according to proof," punitive damages of $100,000, and costs. Reasoning that the purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 580 is to insure that defendants in cases which involve a default judgment have adequate notice of the judgment that may be taken against them, the Supreme Court concluded that no matter how reasonable it might appear in a particular case, the door would be opened to speculation to hold that a prayer for damages according to proof provided adequate notice of a defaulting defendant's potential liability (27 Cal. 3d 489, 494) . Relying on Thorson v. Western Development Corp. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 206, 59 Cal. Rptr. 299 , the Court held that a prayer for damages according to proof passes muster under Code Civ. Proc. § 580 only if a specific amount of damages is alleged in the body of the complaint. Since $20,000 was the only specific figure alleged in plaintiffs' complaint, the trial court exceeded its jurisdiction when it awarded damages in excess of that amount (27 Cal. 3d 489, 494) .

The Court also held that since no attorney's fees were prayed for in the complaint, the trial court exceeded its jurisdiction when it granted such relief. Finally, the Court held that the trial court's errors did not render the judgment void (27 Cal. 3d 489, 495) . Since the trial court could have modified the judgment to save that portion which was not void in a direct attack on the judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, there was no reason why it could not be modified in a collateral attack. Accordingly, the case was reversed and remanded to the trial court with directions to modify the judgment as provided in the Court's opinion.

Pino v. Campo (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1 , 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 483 , involved a complaint for personal injuries sustained in an automobile accident. The complaint was filed in municipal court and sought damages "according to proof" and exceeding "the jurisdiction minimum of [the municipal] court." The complaint expressly remitted all amounts in excess of the municipal court's jurisdiction, but nowhere requested a specific amount of damages. After defendant's default was taken for failure to answer timely, defendant moved to set the default aside on the ground the complaint failed to state the amount of damages as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10. The motion was denied, and a default judgment was entered for $20,867.84. The defendant appealed.

In reversing, the appellate department held that Code Civ. Proc. § 580 is designed to provide fundamental fairness by ensuring that defendants against whom default judgments are entered have adequate notice of the amount of the judgment that might be taken against them (15 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1, 4) . The court rejected Brown v. McAdoo (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 20, 22-23 , 242 Cal. Rptr. 473 (Los Angeles Superior Court, Appellate Department) , which holds on the identical issue that a complaint for damages according to proof and remitting amounts in excess of the court's jurisdiction, without stating a specific amount, is sufficient to support a default judgment up to the court's maximum jurisdictional limit. The Brown view rests on the assumption that the all defendants are aware of the amount of the monetary limit on the municipal court's jurisdiction. The court in Pino (Orange County Superior Court, Appellate Department), rejected that assumption, noting that the California Supreme Court had recently questioned whether a defendant has constructive notice of the minimum jurisdiction of the superior court. The Pino court, making the statements set out in the form, thus held that Code Civ. Proc. § 580 applies to municipal courts to limit default judgments to the amount specified in the complaint, and that the statute and due process require that defendants be told exactly what their exposure is (15 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1, 4-5) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.385

§ 70.385 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Relief Awarded to Plaintiff Is in Excess of Demand of Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10, 425.11, 425.115, 580]--Demand Expressly Remits Damages in Excess of Court's Jurisdiction

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order void on its face (see § 70.310[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT JUDGMENT AS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM THE RECORD THAT THE JUDGMENT VIOLATES CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 580, IN THAT THE DEMAND IN THE COMPLAINT REMITTING ANY DAMAGES IN EXCESS OF THE COURT'S JURISDICTION DEPRIVED DEFENDANT OF HIS/HER DUE PROCESS RIGHT TO BE TOLD EXACTLY WHAT HIS/HER EXPOSURE IS.

Demand Expressly Remitting Damages in Excess of Court's Jurisdiction. It is doubtful a municipal court defendant can be charged with constructive notice of the municipal court's jurisdictional limit. Moreover, such a defendant has no notice, actual or constructive, of the actual amount sought by the plaintiff. Even if defendants may be deemed to have constructive notice of the jurisdictional limit, due process requires that they know exactly what risk they assume by not responding to the pleading. It is not enough to know that this risk is no more than $25,000. Code of Civil Procedure Section 580 and due process require that defendants be told exactly what their exposure is (Pino v. Campo (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1, 5 , 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 483 (reversing default judgment for $20,867.84), criticizing Brown v. McAdoo (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 20 , 242 Cal. Rptr. 473).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default judgment when the defaulting party alleges that the judgment is void. This form may be used when the demand in the complaint expressly remits damages in excess of the court's jurisdiction [Pino v. Campo (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1, 5 , 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 483] .

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a void judgment or order [see § 70.310[1]].

These points and authorities may be combined, when appropriate, with those supporting relief on the ground that the relief awarded to the plaintiff is in excess of the demand of the complaint [see § 70.380[1]], the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages [see § 70.381[1]], or the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement reserving punitive damages [see § 70.382[1]]. They may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief from a void judgment on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.365, 70.400 -70.421]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also §§ 70.310, 70.330 for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order, alternative methods for obtaining relief, and discussion relating to use of this form to support an alternative motion for relief from a judgment valid on its face but void in fact.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should refer to judgment roll to show that the complaint remits damages in excess of the court's jurisdictional limit, arguing that the defendant was deprived of his or her due process right to have notice of the relief sought by the plaintiff, and that the judgment is void, therefore, on its face.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Demand Expressly Remitting Damages in Excess of Court's Jurisdiction

The facts and procedural background of Pino v. Campo (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1 , 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 483 , are discussed in § 70.384[3]. The appellate department of the superior court reversed the municipal court's denial of defendant's motion to set aside a default on the ground that the complaint failed to state the amount of damages as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10. The court held that Code Civ. Proc. § 580 is designed to provide fundamental fairness by ensuring that defendants against whom default judgments are entered have adequate notice of the amount of the judgment that might be taken against them (15 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1, 4) . The court rejected Brown v. McAdoo (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 20 , 242 Cal. Rptr. 473 (Los Angeles Superior Court, Appellate Department) , which holds on the identical issue that a complaint for damages according to proof and remitting amounts in excess of the court's jurisdiction, without stating a specific amount, is sufficient to support a default judgment up to the court's maximum jurisdictional limit. The Brown view rests on the assumption that the all defendants are aware of the amount of the monetary limit on the municipal court's jurisdiction. The court in Pino (Orange County Superior Court, Appellate Department), rejected that assumption, noting that the California Supreme Court had recently questioned whether a defendant has constructive notice of the minimum jurisdiction of the superior court. The Pino court, making the statements set out in the form, thus held that Code Civ. Proc. § 580 applies to municipal courts to limit default judgments to the amount specified in the complaint, and that the statute and due process require that defendants be told exactly what their exposure is (15 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1, 4-5) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.386

§ 70.386 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Relief Awarded to Plaintiff Is in Excess of Demand of Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10, 425.11, 425.115, 580]--Plaintiff in Action for Accounting Must Give Post-Complaint and Pre-Default Notice of Amount Sought

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order void on its face (see § 70.310[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT JUDGMENT AS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM THE RECORD THAT THE JUDGMENT VIOLATES CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 580, IN THAT THE PLAINTIFF FAILED TO GIVE DEFENDANT NOTICE OF THE AMOUNT PLAINTIFF WOULD SEEK TO PROVE WAS DUE THE PLAINTIFF IF THERE IS A DEFAULT IN THIS ACTION FOR ACCOUNTING.

Plaintiff in Action for Accounting Required to Give Post-Complaint and Pre-Default Notice of Amount Sought. A plaintiff who seeks an accounting is required to give notice to the defendant of the amount the plaintiff will seek to prove was due the plaintiff if the defendant defaults. The notice must be given with adequate time for the defendant to respond before a default is entered (Ely v. Gray (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1257, 1262-1263, 274 Cal. Rptr. 536).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default judgment when the defaulting party alleges that the judgment is void. This form may be used when the plaintiff fails to give the defendant post-complaint and pre-default notice of the amount sought in an accounting [Ely v. Gray (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1257, 1262-1263, 274 Cal. Rptr. 536] .

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a void judgment or order [see § 70.310[1]].

These points and authorities may be combined, when appropriate, with those supporting relief on the ground that the relief awarded to the plaintiff is in excess of the demand of the complaint [see § 70.380[1]], the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages [see § 70.381[1]], or the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement reserving punitive damages [see § 70.382[1]]. They may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief from a void judgment on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.365, 70.400 -70.421].

They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also §§ 70.310, 70.330 for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order, alternative methods for obtaining relief, and discussion relating to use of this form to support an alternative motion for relief from a judgment valid on its face but void in fact.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should refer to judgment roll to show that the default was entered despite the plaintiff's failure to give notice of the amount the plaintiff sought to prove was due from the defendant, and argue that the judgment is void, therefore, on its face.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Plaintiff in Action for Accounting Required to Give Post-Complaint and Pre-Default Notice of Amount Sought

In Ely v. Gray (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1257, 274 Cal. Rptr. 536 , the plaintiff filed an action for dissolution of two partnerships and for an accounting of both of them. Neither the body of the complaint nor the prayer for relief specifies or estimates a sum due plaintiff. Defendant did not answer the complaint and plaintiff requested a default judgment, without specifying the amount of money sought. At a hearing, the trial court ordered entry of the default, heard testimony from plaintiff detailing the sums he claimed were due him, and granted the judgment as requested, in the amount of $44,618.44. The defendant appealed from the judgment.

The court of appeal affirmed in part and reversed in part. The court stated that the case presented the meeting of two discordant legal principles. On the one hand, the defendant was provided with no notice of any amount of money that plaintiff claimed he was owed, and appealed arguing that a default judgment is void when the defendant is given no notice of the amount claimed. On the other hand, an action for accounting is such that an amount cannot be specified and specification of a precise amount may be grounds to deny the action (224 Cal. App. 3d 1257, 1259-1260) . The court resolved the conflict in the defendant's favor by citing the due process requirement of notice of the decree of financial liability of a defaulting defendant. The court stated that the plaintiff could have specified an amount before entry of the judgment since plaintiff offered proof to the court of the amount due. The court referred, by analogy, to the requirement in the case of a complaint requesting damages for personal injuries or wrongful death that the amount of damages not be stated in the complaint, but that, before a default may be taken against such a defendant, the defendant must have received notice from the plaintiff of the amount and nature of the damages sought to be recovered [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10, 425.11]. By analogy to the statutes on wrongful death and personal injury damages, the court found that a plaintiff who is unable to specify an amount in the prayer to which the plaintiff is willing to be limited in the case of a default is solved by a post-complaint and pre-default notice to the defendant of the amount the plaintiff will seek to prove was due him or her if the defendant defaults. As with Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11, the notice must be given with adequate time for the defendant to respond before a default is entered (224 Cal. App. 3d 1257, 1263) . The court affirmed the portion of the default judgment decreeing the dissolution of the partnership, but reversed with regard to the amount of $44,618.44, stating that the grant of relief not demanded in the complaint was in excess of the court's jurisdiction (224 Cal. App. 3d 1257, 1264) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.387

§ 70.387 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Relief Awarded to Plaintiff Is in Excess of Demand of Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10, 425.11, 425.115, 580]--Amount of Punitive Damages Sought Is Irrelevant to Determination of Whether Compensatory Award Is Excessive

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order void on its face (see § 70.310[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT JUDGMENT AS VOID ON ITS FACE DESPITE THE FACT THAT THE TRIAL COURT'S AWARD OF COMPENSATORY AND PUNITIVE DAMAGES WAS WITHIN THE TOTAL AMOUNT OF COMPENSATORY AND PUNITIVE DAMAGES DEMANDED IN THE COMPLAINT, BECAUSE COMPENSATORY AND PUNITIVE DAMAGES ARE DIFFERENT REMEDIES.

Amount of Punitive Damages Sought Is Irrelevant to Determination of Whether Compensatory Damages Award Is Excessive. The fact that a trial court's award of compensatory and punitive damages was within the total amount of compensatory and punitive damages demanded in the complaint is irrelevant, since compensatory and punitive damages are different remedies in both nature and purpose and a demand or prayer for one is not a demand legally, or otherwise, for the other, or both (Becker v. S.P.V. Construction Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 489, 494-495, 165 Cal. Rptr. 825, 612 P.2d 915 (quoting in part Gudarov v. Hadjieff (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 412, 417, 240 P.2d 621); see Ostling v. Loring (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1731, 1741, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 391).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default judgment when the defaulting party alleges that the judgment is void. This form may be used when the amount of the judgment is in excess of the demand for compensatory damages, but within the total amount of compensatory and punitive damages demanded in the complaint [Becker v. S.P.V. Construction Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 489, 494-495, 165 Cal. Rptr. 825, 612 P.2d 915] .

For a tactical advantage, counsel may consider using this argument in a reply memorandum to respond to a contention in the opposing memorandum that defendant had adequate notice of the damages since the award was within the total amount of compensatory and punitive damages demanded in the complaint.

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a void judgment or order [see § 70.310[1]].

These points and authorities may be combined, when appropriate, with those supporting relief on the ground that the relief awarded to the plaintiff is in excess of the demand of the complaint [see § 70.380[1]], the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages [see § 70.381[1]], or the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement reserving punitive damages [see § 70.382[1]]. They may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief from a void judgment on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.365, 70.400 -70.421].

They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also §§ 70.310, 70.330 for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order, alternative methods for obtaining relief, and discussion relating to use of this form to support an alternative motion for relief from a judgment valid on its face but void in fact.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should refer to judgment roll to show that the amount awarded in the judgment exceeded the demand for compensatory damages, despite the fact that the award was within the total amount of compensatory and punitive damages demanded in the complaint, and argue that the judgment is void, therefore, on its face.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Amount of Punitive Damages Sought Is Irrelevant to Determination of Whether Compensatory Damages Award Is Excessive

The factual and procedural background of Becker v. S.P.V. Construction Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 489, 165 Cal. Rptr. 825, 612 P.2d 915 , is discussed in § 70.384[3] . In Becker, the Supreme Court held that the trial court had exceeded its jurisdiction in awarding compensatory damages beyond the specific figure plaintiffs demanded in their complaint, and that it was irrelevant that the award of damages was within the total amount of compensatory and punitive damages demanded in the complaint (27 Cal. 3d 489, 494) . Quoting from Gudarov v. Hadjieff (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 412, 417, 240 P.2d 621 , the Court stated that since compensatory and punitive damages are different remedies in both nature and purpose, a demand or prayer for one is not a demand legally, or otherwise, for the other, or both (27 Cal. 3d 489, 494-495) .

Ostling v. Loring (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1731, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 391 , involved an action by landowners against defendant for the wrongful cutting down of trees. The complaint demanded actual damages of not less than $50,000 and up to treble damages pursuant to statutes relating to malicious injury to trees on the property of another. The defendant defaulted. At the default judgment hearing, plaintiffs requested actual damages of $150,000, and the trial court entered judgment in the amount of $150,000 in special damages. Defendant thereafter filed a motion to set aside the judgment on the ground that the court exceeded its jurisdiction by awarding relief in a different form than demanded. The trial court granted defendant's motion, vacated the judgment and the default and plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the court's order vacating the judgment (27 Cal. App. 4th 1731, 1751) . It noted that the statutory damages, which included either mandatory double damages under Civ. Code § 3346 or discretionary treble damages under either Civ. Code § 3346 or Code Civ. Proc. § 733, were penal and punitive, and, therefore, the plaintiffs' complaint could not support a default judgment awarding $150,000 in special, or actual, damages. Since the complaint prayed for $50,000 in actual damages, the default judgment awarding $150,000 in actual damages was properly vacated (27 Cal. App. 4th 1731, 1742) .

The court then reversed that part of the trial court's order that had set aside the default underlying the judgment, noting that ordinarily when a default judgment is set aside on the ground the damages exceeded those pled, the appropriate action is to modify the judgment to the maximum allowable amount warranted by the complaint (27 Cal. App. 4th 1731, 1742-1748) . The court then determined that the complaint adequately notified defendant of the prospect of statutory damages and that double damages were mandatory under Civ. Code § 3346. Thus, the court directed the trial court to enter judgment in the amount of $100,000 (27 Cal. App. 4th 1731, 1750-1751) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.388

§ 70.388 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Relief Awarded to Plaintiff Is in Excess of Demand of Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10, 425.11, 425.115, 580]--General Allegation of Entitlement to Punitive Damages Is Insufficient

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order void on its face (see § 70.310[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT JUDGMENT AS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM THE RECORD THAT THE JUDGMENT VIOLATES CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 580, IN THAT THE GENERAL ALLEGATION OF ENTITLEMENT TO PUNITIVE DAMAGES IN THE COMPLAINT IS NOT REASONABLY CALCULATED TO APPRISE THE DEFENDANT OF POTENTIAL FINANCIAL LIABILITY FOR PUNITIVE DAMAGES IF JUDGMENT IS TAKEN BY DEFAULT.

General Allegation of Entitlement to Punitive Damages Insufficient. A general allegation of entitlement to punitive damages is not reasonably calculated to apprise the defendant of potential financial liability for punitive damages if judgment is taken by default (Wiley v. Rhodes (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1470, 1474, 273 Cal. Rptr. 279), and plaintiff _____ [did not or did not properly] serve a Code of Civil Procedure Section 425.115 statement reserving the right to seek punitive damages.

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default judgment when the defaulting party alleges that the judgment is void. This form may be used when the complaint contains a general allegation of entitlement to punitive damages [Wiley v. Rhodes (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1470, 1474, 273 Cal. Rptr. 279] .

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a void judgment or order [see § 70.310[1]].

These points and authorities may be combined, when appropriate, with those supporting relief on the ground that the relief awarded to the plaintiff is in excess of the demand of the complaint [see § 70.380[1]], the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages [see § 70.381[1]], or the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement reserving punitive damages [see § 70.382[1]]. They may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief from a void judgment on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.365, 70.400 -70.421].

They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also §§ 70.310, 70.330 for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order, alternative methods for obtaining relief, and discussion relating to use of this form to support an alternative motion for relief from a judgment valid on its face but void in fact.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should refer to judgment roll to show that the complaint contains a mere general allegation of entitlement to punitive damages, and argue that the judgment violated the defendant's due process right to notice of the relief sought by the plaintiff, and is therefore facially void.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] General Allegation of Entitlement to Punitive Damages Insufficient

In Wiley v. Rhodes (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1470, 273 Cal. Rptr. 279 , after a default prove up hearing and trial court judgment awarding plaintiff specified amounts of general and punitive damages, and costs, the defendant appealed the judgment contending that the punitive damage award violated due process because before entry of the default judgment, the defendant was not given notice of the specified amount of punitive damages.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment. The court stated that while Civ. Code § 3295(e) provides that no claim for exemplary damages shall state an amount or amounts, and the statute does not specify how a plaintiff should notify the defendant of the amount of punitive damages, a default judgment greater than the amount specifically demanded is void as beyond the court's jurisdiction. Due process, according to the court, requires a defendant in a case involving a default judgment be given adequate notice of the judgment that may be entered (223 Cal. App. 3d 1470, 1472) . The court disagreed with the plaintiff's contention that allegations in the complaint claiming entitlement to punitive damages "appropriate to punish or set example of defendants" constituted sufficient notice to satisfy due process. The court stated that the plaintiff would leave defendants to speculate about the potential consequences of refusing to pursue a defense. A general allegation of entitlement to punitive damages is not reasonably calculated to apprise the defendant of potential financial liability for punitive damages if judgment is taken by default. Hence, the court concluded, the superior court should not have awarded the plaintiff punitive damages (223 Cal. App. 3d 1470, 1474) . The court noted the nothing in Civ. Code § 3295(e) prohibits a plaintiff from giving the defendant notice, separate from the complaint, of the amount of punitive damages sought (223 Cal. App. 3d 1470, 1474 n.4).

Several years subsequent to Wiley, the Legislature enacted Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115, which provides a procedure for serving a statement preserving the right to seek a specified amount of punitive damages under Civ. Code § 3294. Thus, in using this paragraph of the form, counsel should point out the plaintiff's failure to satisfy Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115. For discussion of the procedure, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments (Matthew Bender).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.389

§ 70.389 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Relief Awarded to Plaintiff Is in Excess of Demand of Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10, 425.11, 425.115, 580]--Attorney's Fees Award Is Improper Without Prayer

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order void on its face (see § 70.310[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT JUDGMENT AS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM THE RECORD THAT THE JUDGMENT VIOLATES CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 580, IN THAT THE TRIAL COURT AWARDED ATTORNEY'S FEES EVEN THOUGH PLAINTIFF FAILED TO PRAY FOR ATTORNEY'S FEES IN THE COMPLAINT.

Attorney's Fees Award Improper if Not Prayed for. A trial court exceeds its authority under Code of Civil Procedure Section 580 in awarding attorney's fees if plaintiff fails to set forth in his or her complaint a prayer for attorney's fees (Becker v. S.P.V. Construction Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 489, 495, 165 Cal. Rptr. 825, 612 P.2d 915 ; Wiley v. Rhodes (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1470, 1474, 273 Cal. Rptr. 279).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default judgment when the defaulting party alleges that the judgment is void. This form may be used when the judgment awards attorney's fees despite plaintiff's failure to request attorney's fees in the complaint [Becker v. S.P.V. Construction Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 489, 495, 165 Cal. Rptr. 825, 612 P.2d 915 ; Wiley v. Rhodes (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1470, 1474, 273 Cal. Rptr. 279] .

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a void judgment or order [see § 70.310[1]].

These points and authorities may be combined, when appropriate, with those supporting relief on the ground that the relief awarded to the plaintiff is in excess of the demand of the complaint [see § 70.380[1]], the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages [see § 70.381[1]], or the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement reserving punitive damages [see § 70.382[1]]. They may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief from a void judgment on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.365, 70.400 -70.421].

They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also §§ 70.310, 70.330 for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order, alternative methods for obtaining relief, and discussion relating to use of this form to support an alternative motion for relief from a judgment valid on its face but void in fact.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should refer to judgment roll to show that the complaint fails to request attorney's fees and the judgment awarded those fees, and argue that the judgment is therefore facially void.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney's Fees Award Improper if Not Prayed for

The factual and procedural background of Becker v. S.P.V. Construction Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 489, 165 Cal. Rptr. 825, 612 P.2d 915 , is discussed in § 70.384[3] . In Becker, the Supreme Court held that since no attorney's fees were prayed for in the complaint, the trial court exceeded its jurisdiction when it granted such relief (27 Cal. 3d 489, 495) .

The facts and procedural background of Wiley v. Rhodes (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1470, 273 Cal. Rptr. 279 , is discussed in § 70.388[3]. In Wiley, the court of appeal held that a default judgment awarding attorney's fees as costs violated due process because the complaint did not allege any contract or statute authorizing attorney's fees or demand them in the prayer, and the plaintiff failed to request attorney's fees as costs on the request to enter default under former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 870(a) [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1700(a)] (223 Cal. App. 3d 1470, 1474 n.5).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.390

§ 70.390 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face When Relief Awarded to Plaintiff Is in Excess of Demand of Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10, 425.11, 425.115, 580]--Limitation on Relief Applies When Answer Is Stricken as Discovery Sanction

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order void on its face (see § 70.310[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT JUDGMENT AS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM THE RECORD THAT THE JUDGMENT VIOLATES CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 580, IN THAT THE DEFAULT JUDGMENT WAS ENTERED AS A DISCOVERY SANCTION AND THE DEFENDANT'S ANSWER WAS STRICKEN, BUT THE AWARD EXCEEDED THE AMOUNT PRAYED FOR IN THE COMPLAINT.

Limitation on Relief Applicable When Answer Stricken as Discovery Sanction. When a default judgment is entered as a discovery sanction and the defendant's answer is stricken, the award is limited to the amount prayed for by the plaintiff in the complaint (Greenup v. Rodman (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 822, 824, 231 Cal. Rptr. 220, 726 P.2d 1295).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default judgment when the defaulting party alleges that the judgment is void. This form may be used when a default judgment is entered as a discovery sanction and the defendant's answer is stricken, but the award exceeds the amount prayed for in the complaint [Greenup v. Rodman (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 822, 824, 231 Cal. Rptr. 220, 726 P.2d 1295] .

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a void judgment or order [see § 70.310[1]].

These points and authorities may be combined, when appropriate, with those supporting relief on the ground that the relief awarded to the plaintiff is in excess of the demand of the complaint [see § 70.380[1]], the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages [see § 70.381[1]], or the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement reserving punitive damages [see § 70.382[1]]. They may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief from a void judgment on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.365, 70.400 -70.421].

They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also §§ 70.310, 70.330 for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order, alternative methods for obtaining relief, and discussion relating to use of this form to support an alternative motion for relief from a judgment valid on its face but void in fact.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should refer to judgment roll to show:

- The default was entered as a result of a discovery sanction.
- The answer was stricken.
- The amount of damages prayed for in the complaint.
- The amount of the judgment.
- The extent to which the judgment exceeds the amount prayed for in the complaint.

Counsel would argue that the judgment is therefore facially void.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Limitation on Relief Applicable When Answer Stricken as Discovery Sanction

In Greenup v. Rodman (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 822, 231 Cal. Rptr. 220, 726 P.2d 1295 , plaintiff brought an action against defendant for, inter alia, fraud and conversion. After repeated refusals by defendant to comply with discovery requests, the court granted plaintiff's motion to strike the answer and enter a default. The default judgment awarded plaintiffs $338,000 in compensatory damages and $338,000 in punitive damages. Plaintiff's complaint, however, had only requested the specific sum of $100,000 in exemplary and punitive damages, with other damages subject to proof at the time of trial, or as the court deemed just. Defendants appealed, contending that the court lacked jurisdiction to award damages in an amount exceeding the prayer. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment and the Supreme Court then granted review to consider whether a default judgment entered as a discovery sanction is excepted from the general rule under Code Civ. Proc. § 580 that "if there be no answer" filed, the plaintiff's relief "cannot exceed that which he shall have demanded in his complaint."

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment, and directed that the award be amended. The Court concluded that a plaintiff's demand sets a ceiling on recovery for any default judgment entered, including a judgment entered when an answer is stricken as a discovery sanction (42 Cal. 3d 822, 824, 828) . The Court stated that when an answer is stricken as a sanction for the defendant's obstruction of discovery, it is as if no answer had been filed in the first instance. Consequently, the ceiling on recovery in Code Civ. Proc. § 580 is applicable (42 Cal. 3d 822, 828) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.391-70.399

[Reserved]

§§ 70.391[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.400

§ 70.400 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Default Judgment Void on Its Face for Failure to Serve Statement of Damages on Cause of Action for Personal Injury or Wrongful Death [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11]--General Form

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) (see § 70.310[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT IN THIS ACTION AS VOID ON THEIR FACE BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM THE RECORD THAT DEFENDANT WAS NOT SERVED WITH _____ [ANY or A SUFFICIENT] STATEMENT OF DAMAGES.

A. Service of Statement of Damages Required in Personal Injury or Wrongful Death Action. If no request is made for a statement of damages setting forth the nature and amount of damages being sought in an action in the superior court to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the plaintiff must serve on the defendant a statement of the amount of special and general damages sought to be recovered before a default may be taken (Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11; Schwab v. Rondel Homes, Inc. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 428, 430, 435, 280 Cal. Rptr. 83, 808 P.2d 226).

B. Defendant Must Be Given Actual Notice of Special and General Damages Claimed. Use of the word "notice" and the terms of art "special and general damages," in Code of Civil Procedure Section 425.11, imply that the Legislature intended that a defendant be given actual notice of the special and general damages claimed by a plaintiff (Schwab v. Rondel Homes, Inc. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 428, 435, 280 Cal. Rptr. 83, 808 P.2d 226).

C. Failure to Serve Statement of Damages Renders Default Void on Its Face. A default entered without any statement of damages being served on the defendant is void on the face of the record and may be successfully challenged beyond the limitation period specified in Section 473 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Plotitsa v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 755, 760, 189 Cal. Rptr. 769 ; Stevenson v. Turner (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 315, 319-320, 156 Cal. Rptr. 499).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities supporting additional grounds for relief from void judgment or order (see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.390, 70.401 -70.421).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default judgment in an action for personal injury or wrongful death, when the defaulting party alleges that the judgment is void because the plaintiff failed to serve a statement of damages as required under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11, and the deficiency appears on the face of the judgment roll. The form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant).

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a void judgment or order [see § 70.310[1]]. They may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief from a void judgment on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.390, 70.401 -70.421]. See §§ 70.380 -70.390, in particular, for related points and authorities supporting a grant of relief on the ground that the relief awarded in the judgment exceeds that demanded in the complaint. Also see §§ 70.410 -70.413, relating to relief based on failure to have served a Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement reserving the right to punitive damages. The points and authorities in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also §§ 70.310, 70.330 for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order, alternative methods for obtaining relief, and discussion relating to use of this form to support an alternative motion for relief from a judgment valid on its face but void in fact.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. That is, counsel should refer to the record to show that the defendant was not, or was not properly, served with a statement of damages as required under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[c] Specification of Damages in Personal Injury and Wrongful Death Action

[i] Service of Statement of Damages Required

In an action for personal injury or wrongful death, the amount of damages sought cannot be stated in the complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)]. However, before a default can be taken in such an action, plaintiff must notify defendant of the amount of general and special damages sought by means of a statement setting forth those amounts [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 580]. Failure by plaintiff to serve a statement of damages will render a subsequent default judgment void on its face, and the judgment may be successfully challenged beyond the limitation period specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473 [Plotitsa v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 755, 760, 189 Cal. Rptr. 769 (discussed under [3][c], below)].

[ii] Manner of Service

The statement of damages must be served in the same manner as a summons if the party against whom the default is being taken has not appeared in the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11(d)(1)]. If the party against whom default is to be taken has appeared in the action, the statement of damages must be served either on the party's attorney or, if the party appears without an attorney, on the party. Service must be either in the manner provided for the service of summons or in the manner provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11(d)(2)]. For points and authorities for use when the statement of damages was not served in the same manner as the summons, see § 70.403[1].

[iii] Service by Publication

Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11 and 585(c), as amended by 1993 Stats., ch. 456, the defendant is entitled to be served with a statement of damages. Presumably, if service was originally by publication, the defendant has not appeared, and the defendant still cannot be served otherwise, the statement would be served by publication [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11(d)(1); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50 (service by publication)]. The 1993 amendments resolve a conflict in the courts of appeal [compare Candelaria v. Avitia (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1436, 1441, 269 Cal. Rptr. 32 (Sixth Appellate Dist., relying on Code Civ. Proc. § 585(c) and excusing service by publication of statement of damages as futile) with Parish v. Peters (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 202, 210-214, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836 (Third Appellate Dist., service by publication constitutionally mandated)].

[iv] Time for Service

The phrase "before a default may be taken" has been construed to require that the notice be given before the default is entered by the clerk [Hamm v. Elkin (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1343, 1346, 242 Cal. Rptr. 545] .

Prudent counsel should allow 30 days to elapse after service of the statement of damages before taking the defendant's default [but see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(a)(13), (b) (16-day notice for proceedings that require notice, but do not otherwise specify a time)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11, prior to its amendment by 1993 Stats., ch. 456, contained no language stating or suggesting the amount of notice that a plaintiff must give a defendant concerning the amount of damages sought before seeking default [Connelly v. Castillo (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1583, 1588, 236 Cal. Rptr. 112] . The Supreme Court, construing Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11, held that a defendant is entitled to actual notice of the liability to which he or she may be subjected, a reasonable period of time before default may be entered [Schwab v. Rondel Homes, Inc. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 428, 435, 280 Cal. Rptr. 83, 808 P.2d 226] . Prior to the Schwab decision, some courts, analogizing the situation to the time permitted to answer an amended complaint increasing the amount of damages sought, had held that the plaintiff must defer the entry of default until 30 days from the date the statement of damages was served [Twine v. Compton Supermarket (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 514, 517, 224 Cal. Rptr. 562 ; Plotitsa v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 755, 761, 189 Cal. Rptr. 769] . At least one court had rejected the 30-day rule, and held that a reasonable time was adequate [Connelly v. Castillo (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1583, 1589-1590, 236 Cal. Rptr. 112 (27 days)]. When Schwab held that a reasonable period of time was required, it cited the cases that required 30 days [see Schwab v. Rondel Homes, Inc. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 428, 434-435, 280 Cal. Rptr. 83, 808 P.2d 226] . The amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 by 1993 Stats., ch. 456, to specify the manner of service, seems to strengthen the service of summons analogy [see [ii], above].

[v] Defective Proof of Service

The distinction between the fact of service of the statement of damages and the proof of service should be kept in mind. A default judgment is valid when based on actual service of summons on the defendant, although no proof of service was filed prior to entry of the judgment. In such cases, the judgment is irregular, but not void. This rule has also been applied with regard to service of the statement of damages. Thus, when the plaintiff personally served the defendant with a statement of damages before requesting default, the plaintiff's failure to file proof of that service constitutes a mere irregularity that does not void the judgment [Connelly v. Castillo (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1583, 1589, 236 Cal. Rptr. 112 (discussed in § 70.453[3])].

[vi] Actual Notice of Special and General Damages Required

The Supreme Court has held that the use of the word "notice" and the terms of art "special and general damages" in Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 require that a defendant be given actual notice of the special and general damages claimed by the plaintiff [Schwab v. Rondel Homes, Inc. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 428, 435, 280 Cal. Rptr. 83, 808 P.2d 226] .

The requirement for actual notice of damages sought has been satisfied by the complaint itself. For example, a prayer for general damages in excess of the court's jurisdictional requirements, although not following the procedure required by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10, 425.11, is sufficient notice to the defendant of the amount of damages claimed [Schwab v. Rondel Homes, Inc. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 428, 435, 280 Cal. Rptr. 83, 808 P.2d 226 (dictum, citing Greenup v. Rodman (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 822, 830, 231 Cal. Rptr. 220, 726 P.2d 1295 with approval)].

The mere fact that an action is an unlimited civil case, however, does not put defendant on notice that the amount of general and special damages will be at least the jurisdictional minimum of the court. Thus, merely pleading damages "according to proof," without serving a statement of special and general damages on the defendant does not satisfy the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 [Schwab v. Rondel Homes, Inc. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 428, 434, 280 Cal. Rptr. 83, 808 P.2d 226 , overruling Morgan v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 976, 237 Cal. Rptr. 756 ; see also Hamm v. Elkin (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1343, 1347, 242 Cal. Rptr. 545 (unspecified general and special damages inadequate to fulfill function of statement of damages)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 requires specific notice of special and general damages. Thus, a prayer for statutory and punitive damages is insufficient to satisfy the statute [Schwab v. Rondel Homes, Inc. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 428, 435, 280 Cal. Rptr. 83, 808 P.2d 226] .

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.450 -70.453 may be used to oppose a motion supported by the points and authorities in this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Service of Statement of Damages Required in Personal Injury or Wrongful Death Action

In Schwab v. Rondel Homes, Inc. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 428, 280 Cal. Rptr. 83, 808 P.2d 226 , two tenants brought an action the owners and managers of an apartment complex for housing discrimination, claiming that the defendants would not rent to them because one of the two plaintiffs was deaf. The prayer of the complaint requested damages for emotional distress, further monetary and pecuniary losses and damages in amounts according to proof, treble statutory damages in amounts according to proof "but in a sum no less than $250," attorney's fees, and punitive damages of $500,000. The defendants failed to respond to the complaint, and a default was entered. Thereafter, at a prove-up hearing, the trial court awarded each plaintiff the principle sum of $50,000, punitive damages of $100,000, and attorney's fees and costs. The defendants moved to set aside the default and the default judgment. The trial court granted the motion, finding that plaintiffs should have served a statement of damages on defendants under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11. The court of appeal reversed the order setting aside the default, but limited the amount of damages.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment of the court of appeal. The plaintiffs relied on Morgan v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 976, 237 Cal. Rptr. 756 , and argued that since the action was brought in superior court, the defendants were on notice that the plaintiffs claimed at least the jurisdictional minimum. Morgan, according to the Court, interpreted Greenup v. Rodman (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 822, 231 Cal. Rptr. 220, 726 P.2d 1295

(discussed in §§ 70.390[3], 70.452[3]), to hold that all defendants should be presumed to be on notice of the plaintiffs' claim for general damages of at least the jurisdictional minimum, regardless of the form of complaint. The Court, however, distinguished Greenup by pointing out that, although Greenup awarded the plaintiff the jurisdictional minimum in general damages, the complaint in that case specifically pleaded general damages "in excess" of the court's jurisdictional requirements. Based on that notice, Greenup held that the defendant knew, or should have known, that the plaintiff was claiming at least the jurisdictional minimum of $15,000 (53 Cal. 3d 428, 433-434) . In the case before it, however, the Court noted that the demand for $500,000 per plaintiff in punitive damages in itself properly put the case before the superior court. Thus, neither a lay person nor an experienced attorney could be presumed to know the amount of general damages that the plaintiffs were seeking. Accordingly, the Court disapproved of Morgan to the extent that it suggested that a default judgment may be entered in the absence of notice in the complaint or a "statement of damages" of the special and general damages sought. The Court held that in § 425.11, the use of the word "notice" and the terms of art "special and general damages" imply that the Legislature intended that a defendant be given actual notice of the special and general damages claimed by a plaintiff. Hence, plaintiffs' prayer for statutory damages in an amount according to proof but no less than $250 and punitive damages in the amount of $500,000 was not sufficient to meet the requirements of § 425.11 (53 Cal. 3d 428, 435) .

[b] Defendant Must Be Given Actual Notice of Special and General Damages Claimed

The facts and procedural background of Schwab v. Rondel Homes, Inc. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 428, 280 Cal. Rptr. 83, 808 P.2d 226 , are discussed under [a], above. In this case, the Supreme Court held that in Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11, the use of the word "notice" and the terms of art "special and general damages" imply that the Legislature intended that a defendant be given actual notice of the special and general damages claimed by a plaintiff. Hence, plaintiffs' prayer for statutory damages in an amount according to proof but no less than $250 and punitive damages in the amount of $500,000 was not sufficient to meet the requirements of § 425.11 (53 Cal. 3d 428, 435) .

[c] Failure to Serve Statement of Damages Renders Default Void on Its Face

In Plotitsa v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 755, 189 Cal. Rptr. 769 , a default judgment was taken against the defendants in a personal injury action. The defendants filed a joint motion to set aside the default pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), claiming excusable neglect or inadvertence, and filed a reply memorandum contending that the default was void because the request to enter default had not been personally served and because entry of default one day after copies of the request were mailed to them did not afford them a due process opportunity to determine whether to defend against the action once they are apprised of the precise amount of damages plaintiff claimed, as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11. The defendants' motion was denied, and they filed a petition for a writ of mandate in the court of appeal.

The court of appeal issued a peremptory writ of mandate directing the trial court to vacate its order denying the defendants' motion for relief from default and to enter a new order granting the motion. The court stated that nothing in Section 425.11 would preclude the use of the request for default as a statement of damages, but held that the use here was inadequate, because time between service and the taking of default was inadequate and because the request merely stated a total amount sought without a breakdown between the special and general damages (140 Cal. App. 3d 755 760-761 ,). The court held that the plaintiffs had not satisfied the requirements of Section 425.11, and that a default entered in a personal injury or wrongful death action without any statement of damages being served on the defendant is void on the face of the record and may be successfully challenged beyond the six-month limitation period specified in former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)) (140 Cal. App. 3d 755, 760, 762) .

The facts and procedural background of Stevenson v. Turner (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 315, 156 Cal. Rptr. 499 , are discussed under [4][a], below. In Stevenson, the court found that there was a defect in the pre-default procedure which affected the validity of the subsequent entry of default in that plaintiff's failure to serve a statement of requested damages deprived defendant of any actual notice of her potential liability (94 Cal. App. 3d 315, 320) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Service of Statement of Damages Required in Personal Injury or Wrongful Death Action

Barragan v. Banco BCH (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 283, 232 Cal. Rptr. 758 , involved an action by former depositors of a nationalized Mexican bank against the bank for conversion, accounting, fraud and deceit, conspiracy, negligence, breach of contract, and false imprisonment arising out of the bank's refusal to honor checks drawn by the depositors on their account, which refusal resulted in the loss of their business and residence. The trial court entered a default judgment in favor of the former depositors, and denied the bank's motion for relief from the default. The court of appeal affirmed, holding, in part, that failure of the depositors to file the required notice of damages pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 did not render the default judgment void because their nonpersonal injury damages were clearly isolated from their personal injury damages and amply supported the amount set forth in the prayer for relief (188 Cal. App. 3d 283, 303-304) .

In Jones v. Interstate Recovery Service (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 925, 206 Cal. Rptr. 924 , which was an action for trespass, assault, conversion, intentional infliction of emotional distress, and wrongful repossession, the court of appeal held that the nonpersonal injury claims were so closely tied to the personal injury claims as to require the entire default judgment to be set aside for failure of plaintiff to give the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 disclosures (160 Cal. App. 3d 925, 929-930) .

In Stevenson v. Turner (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 315, 156 Cal. Rptr. 499 , the plaintiff was awarded damages in the amount of $20,000 by a default judgment. Although the defendant moved for relief from default under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), after the six-month limitation period, the court found, that there was a defect in the pre-default procedure which affected the validity of the subsequent entry of default. The court cited Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 requiring that a plaintiff give notice to the defendant of the amount of special and general damages sought to be recovered before a default may be taken, and observed that the record was barren of any indication that such a statement was ever served on the defendant at any time prior to the entry of default (94 Cal. App. 3d 315, 319) . The court noted that the clear import of the statute is to give the defendant one "last clear chance" to respond to the allegations of the complaint and to avoid the precise consequences which had obtained in the case before it, that is, a judgment for a substantial sum, well after the time for relief from default had passed, after an evidentiary hearing of which the defendant did not receive notice. The court held that the failure to serve the statement of requested damages deprived defendant of any actual notice of her potential liability and thus it could not be said that the omission was harmless (94 Cal. App. 3d 315, 320) .

[b] Failure to Serve Statement of Damages Renders Default Void on Its Face

In In re Marriage of Wells (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1434, 254 Cal. Rptr. 185 , the court of appeal affirmed a default judgment of dissolution of marriage in which the trial court had reserved the issue of spousal support, although support was not sought in the petition. The court reasoned that although Code Civ. Proc. § 580 (relief granted plaintiff when no answer is filed cannot exceed demand in complaint) is a general statute applying to all judgments taken by default for failure to answer, the trial court had jurisdiction to reserve the issue under former Civ. Code § 4801 (now see Fam. Code § 4300 et seq.), a special statute authorizing the court to order spousal support, and that the general statute had to yield to the special statute. The court nevertheless pointed out that the intent of Code Civ. Proc. § 580 is to ensure that a defendant who declines to contest an action does not thereby subject himself or herself to open-ended liability; because a default judgment that exceeds the demand would effectively deny a fair hearing to the defaulting party, courts have consistently read Code Civ. Proc. § 580 to mean that a default judgment greater than the amount specifically demanded is void as beyond the court's jurisdiction (206 Cal. App. 3d 1434, 1438) . The court added that the purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 580 is to assure a defendant that if he or she does not contest the action, the judgment taken against him or her will not go beyond the prayer of the complaint, for a defendant has the right to assume that the judgment that would follow a default on his or her part would embrace only the issues presented by the complaint and the relief therein asked (206 Cal. App. 3d 1434, 1437-1438) ; the court concluded that this purpose is fully accomplished in a divorce action even though the trial court reserves the issue of spousal support regarding both parties (206 Cal. App. 3d 1434, 1438) .

Petty v. Manpower, Inc. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 794, 156 Cal. Rptr. 622 , involved an action for personal injuries in which defendant's default was taken. Plaintiff's complaint complied with Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10 in that it did not state the amount of damages sought. Plaintiff did not file a statement notifying defendant of the amount of special and general damages sought as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11, nor did she indicate the amount of judgment to be entered in the request to enter default. Defendant's motion to set aside its default was denied and judgment was entered against it. On appeal, the court of appeal held that plaintiff's failure to notify defendant of the damages sought, in compliance with Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11, required reversal of the default judgment (94 Cal. App. 3d 794, 798) . Considering Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10 and 425.11 together with Code Civ. Proc. § 580 (limiting the amount of damages recoverable on default), the court concluded that any other result would effectively deny a defendant due process, a fair hearing. In the court's opinion, "[t]he meaning of section 425.11 is clear and removes the anomaly between section 580 and section 425.10." The court declared that a default judgment in excess of the amount of relief demanded by the prayer denies a defaulting party a fair hearing and is an act in excess of the court's jurisdiction. Thus, the court said, it would appear that when no specific amount of damages is requested, any amount would be in excess of that demanded (94 Cal. App. 3d 794, 798) .

The court noted that defendant's failure to present this ground in its motion to set aside the default in the trial court did not bar its consideration on appeal because questions of jurisdiction are never waived and may be raised for the first time on appeal (94 Cal. App. 3d 794, 798-799) . The fact that defendant had notice of the amount sought after it had been awarded was not adequate notice, despite plaintiff's reliance on marital dissolution cases which permit spousal support pursuant to a request of an unspecified amount. The court declared that such cases were not in point in that in dissolution cases the issue of support is so germane that a defendant must anticipate an award of support although there is no prayer to that effect. The court reversed the default judgment and stated that the trial court had erred in denying defendant's motion to set aside the default (94 Cal. App. 3d 794, 799) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.401

§ 70.401 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Default Judgment Void on Its Face for Failure to Serve Statement of Damages on Cause of Action for Personal Injury or Wrongful Death [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11]--Indication of Value During Settlement Conference Is Insufficient

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), based on the failure to serve Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages (see § 70.400[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT IN THIS ACTION AS VOID ON THEIR FACE BECAUSE THE ASSERTED INDICATION OF THE CASE'S VALUE MADE IN THE COURSE OF SETTLEMENT DISCUSSIONS BETWEEN COUNSEL FOR THE PARTIES IS NOT THE ACTUAL NOTICE OF SPECIAL AND GENERAL DAMAGES REQUIRED BY CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 425.11.

Indication of Value During Settlement Conference Is Insufficient. An indication of the value of a case made in the course of settlement discussions between counsel for the parties is not the actual notice of special and general damages required by Code of Civil Procedure Section 425.11. The legislative purpose behind the statutory requirement is evident: it is to give the defendant a specific notice of damages sought that is separate and apart from the existing mechanisms of settlement conference statements and the at-issue memorandum (Debbie S. v. Ray (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 193, 199, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 814).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default and default judgment as facially void. This form may be used when opposing counsel asserts that defendant received actual notice of general and special damages by an indication of the value of the case made in the course of settlement discussion between parties' counsel. This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant).

For a tactical advantage, counsel may consider using this argument in a reply memorandum to respond to a contention in the opposing memorandum that the defendant received actual notice by reason of counsels' valuation of the case during settlement negotiations.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), based on the failure to serve Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages [see § 70.400[1]]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. That is, counsel should refer to the record to show that the defendant was not, or was not properly, served with a statement of damages as required under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11, and argue that any valuation discussion during settlement negotiation does not satisfy the statutory requirements.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Indication of Value During Settlement Conference Is Insufficient

In Debbie S. v. Ray (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 193, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 814 , plaintiff tenant, who was raped in her apartment, sued defendants landlord and apartment manager for premises liability based on failure to take adequate safety precautions. Plaintiff's settlement offers, one for $175,000, and two later offers of $250,000 were rejected. The defendants did not appear at trial. The individual defendant apartment manager was dismissed, and on plaintiff's proof of damages against the corporate defendant landlord, judgment was entered for $1,000,000. Two days later a receiver was appointed for the corporate defendant. The receiver moved to vacate the judgment on the ground that plaintiff had not filed a statement of damages 60 days before trial as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11. The court vacated the judgment and plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, first holding that a party may move to vacate a judgment for failure to comply with Section 425.11, even though alternative procedures, such as seeking new trial under Code Civ. Proc. § 657, moving to set aside the judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 663, or appealing from the judgment, would also be proper. The court declined to determine minimum contents for a statement of damages, and limited itself to examining the record in the case (16 Cal. App. 4th 193, 198) . The court then noted that the plaintiff's complaint, which sought damages "according to proof," gave no notice of the damages sought. The court also found that the various settlement demands and the at-issue memorandum were inadequate to give notice. Finally, the court found that counsel's statements to the defense counsel that the value of the case before a jury would be in the $1,000,000 range were also not the type of notice required by Section 425.11 (16 Cal. App. 4th 193, 198-199) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.402

§ 70.402 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Default Judgment Void on Its Face for Failure to Serve Statement of Damages on Cause of Action for Personal Injury or Wrongful Death [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11]--Service of Statement of Damages Did Not Precede Clerk's Entry of Default

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), based on the failure to serve Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages (see § 70.400[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT IN THIS ACTION AS VOID ON THEIR FACE BECAUSE THE NOTICE OF THE AMOUNT OF DAMAGES REQUIRED BY CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 425.11 WAS NOT SERVED BEFORE THE CLERK ENTERED THE DEFAULT.

Service of Statement of Damages to Precede Clerk's Entry of Default. The notice to defendant of the amount of damages required under Code of Civil Procedure Section 425.11 must be given not merely before the entry of the default judgment, but before the clerk enters the default (Hamm v. Elkin (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1343, 1346, 242 Cal. Rptr. 545).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default and default judgment as facially void. This form may be used when the statement of damages was not served prior to entry of default by the clerk. This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant). This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), based on the failure to serve Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages [see § 70.400[1]]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. That is, counsel should refer to the record to show that the defendant was not, or was not properly, served with a statement of damages as required under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 prior to entry of the default by the clerk.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Service of Statement of Damages to Precede Clerk's Entry of Default

In Hamm v. Elkin (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1343, 242 Cal. Rptr. 545 , plaintiff filed an action for battery in which the complaint requested unspecified general and special damages and $100,000 in punitive damages. The plaintiff served a statement of damages on the defendant after the clerk had entered the default, but before the court rendered a default judgment after hearing the evidence of damages. Defendant did not appear at the hearing on damages and the court entered a judgment against him for $5,000 in general damages and $5,000 in punitive damages. The trial court granted defendant's motion to set aside the default and default judgment on the grounds that the statement of damages did not comply with the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 because it had not been served prior to entry of the clerk's default. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the trial court had correctly interpreted the statute as requiring service of the statement of damages before entry of the clerk's default. It noted that one of the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 is to give the defendant a final chance to respond to the allegations of the complaint, and this purpose would be frustrated if the plaintiff could wait to serve the statement until after the clerk's default was entered, when the defendant could respond only on the issue of damages (196 Cal. App. 3d 1343, 1346) . The appellate court also rejected plaintiff's contention that the absence of a statement was not prejudicial because the complaint sought $100,000 in punitive damages and thus gave notice to defendant of the amount sought. The court said that because the complaint requested unspecified general and special damages in addition to the punitive damages, it could not have fulfilled the function of a statement of damages as it did not give notice of the total amount of damages sought before the clerk entered the default (196 Cal. App. 3d 1343, 1347) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.403

§ 70.403 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Default Judgment Void on Its Face for Failure to Serve Statement of Damages on Cause of Action for Personal Injury or Wrongful Death [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11]--Unauthorized Method of Service--Defendant Has Not Appeared in Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11(d)(1)]

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), based on the failure to serve Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages (see § 70.400[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT IN THIS ACTION AS VOID ON THEIR FACE BECAUSE DEFENDANT HAS NOT APPEARED IN THIS ACTION AND THE STATEMENT OF DAMAGES WAS NOT SERVED IN THE SAME MANNER AS THE SUMMONS AS REQUIRED BY CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 425.11(d)(1).

Method of Service. If a party has not appeared in the action, the statement of damages must be served in the same manner as a summons (Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11(d)(1)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default and default judgment as facially void. This form may be used when the statement of damages was not served in the same manner as the summons as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11(d)(1). This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant). For a form of points and authorities for use in supporting a motion for relief when the defendant has appeared in the action, see § 70.404[1].

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), based on the failure to serve Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages [see § 70.400[1]]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. That is, counsel should refer to the record to show that the statement of damages was not served as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11(d)(1), and argue that the judgment, therefore, is void on its face.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.404

§ 70.404 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Default Judgment Void on Its Face for Failure to Serve Statement of Damages on Cause of Action for Personal Injury or Wrongful Death [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11]--Unauthorized Method of Service--Defendant Has Appeared in Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11(d)(2)]

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), based on the failure to serve Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages (see § 70.400[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT IN THIS ACTION AS VOID ON THEIR FACE BECAUSE DEFENDANT HAS APPEARED IN THIS ACTION BUT HAS NOT BEEN SERVED WITH THE STATEMENT OF DAMAGES EITHER IN THE SAME MANNER AS A SUMMONS, OR IN THE MANNER PROVIDED FOR NOTICES AND OTHER PAPERS.

Method of Service. If the party has appeared in the action, the statement of damages must be served on his or her attorney, or on the party if he or she has appeared without an attorney, either in the same manner as a summons pursuant to Article 3 (commencing with Section 415.10) of Chapter 4 of Title 5 of the Code of Civil Procedure or in the manner provided by Chapter 5 (commencing with Section 1010 of Title 14 of Part 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11(d)(2)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default and default judgment as facially void. This form may be used when the defendant was not served with the statement of damages either in the same manner as a summons pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.10 et seq. or in the manner provided for notices and other papers pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11(d)(2)]. For a form of points and authorities for use in supporting a motion for relief when the defendant has not appeared in the action, see § 70.403[1].

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), based on the failure to serve Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages [see § 70.400[1]]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. That is, counsel should refer to the record to show that the statement of damages was not served as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11(d)(2), and argue that the judgment, therefore, is void on its face.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.405-70.409

[Reserved]

§§ 70.405[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.410

§ 70.410 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Default Judgment Void on Its Face for Failure to Serve or Improper Service of Statement Reserving Right to Punitive Damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115]--General Form

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) (see § 70.310[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT IN THIS ACTION AS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM THE RECORD THAT DEFENDANT WAS NOT SERVED WITH _____ [ANY or A SUFFICIENT] STATEMENT RESERVING PLAINTIFF'S RIGHT TO PUNITIVE DAMAGES.

A. Service of Statement Reserving Right to Punitive Damages Required Before Default. The plaintiff must serve a statement reserving the right to punitive damages on the defendant pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 425.115 before a default may be taken, when the motion for default judgment includes a request for punitive damages (Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115(f)).

B. Failure to Serve Statement Reserving Punitive Damages Renders Default Void on Its Face. A default entered without any Code of Civil Procedure Section 425.11 statement of damages being served on the defendant is void on the face of the record and may be successfully challenged beyond the limitation period specified in Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(Plotitsa v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 755, 760, 189 Cal. Rptr. 769 ; Stevenson v. Turner (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 315, 319-320, 156 Cal. Rptr. 499). Failure to serve a Code of Civil Procedure Section 425.115 statement reserving the right to punitive damages should compel the same result because the Section 425.115 requirement parallels the Section 425.11 requirement.

[When appropriate, add points and authorities supporting additional grounds for relief from void judgment or order (see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.404, 70.420, 70.421).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default judgment that includes an award of punitive damages when the defaulting party alleges that the judgment is void because the plaintiff failed to serve a Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement reserving the right to punitive damages, and the deficiency appears on the face of the judgment roll [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115(f)].

The form may be adapted as necessary for use by a cross defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115(a)].

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a void judgment or order [see § 70.310[1]]. They may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief from a void judgment on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.404, 70.420, 70.421]. See §§ 70.380 -70.390 in particular for related authorities supporting relief on the ground the judgment awarded relief in excess of that demanded in the complaint or in a Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages.

See also §§ 70.310, 70.330 for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order, alternative methods for obtaining relief, and discussion relating to use of this form to support an alternative motion for relief from a judgment valid on its face but void in fact.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should refer to the record to show that the defendant was not, or was not properly, served with a Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement reserving the right to punitive damages.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[c] Reservation of Right to Punitive Damages

No claim for exemplary damages may state an amount or amounts [Civ. Code § 3295(e)]. However, before a default can be taken in an action in which the plaintiff will seek punitive damages in the default judgment, the plaintiff must notify the defendant of the amount of punitive damages sought in a statement reserving the right to punitive damages [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115(f), 580]. Authorities construing the similar requirement of a statement of damages in superior court actions for personal injury or wrongful death have held that failure to serve the statement will render a subsequent default judgment void on its face, and that the judgment may be challenged beyond the limitation period specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473 [see Plotitsa v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 755, 760, 189 Cal. Rptr. 769 ; Stevenson v. Turner (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 315, 319-320, 156 Cal. Rptr. 499)]. For further discussion of issues that may arise regarding Section 425.11 and 425.115 statements, see § 70.400[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Serve Statement Reserving Punitive Damages Renders Default Void on Its Face

The facts and procedural background of Plotitsa v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 755, 189 Cal. Rptr. 769 , and Stevenson v. Turner (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 315, 156 Cal. Rptr. 499 , are discussed in § 70.400[3][c].

Although these cases involved a Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages, Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 substantially parallels that statute [compare Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 with Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115]. Moreover, Code Civ. Proc. § 580 treats both statutes the same as sources of the maximum amount that may be awarded on a default judgment. Therefore, while Plotitsa and Stevenson are not controlling authority, counsel may wish to argue them as persuasive authority on this point.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.411

§ 70.411 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Default Judgment Void on Its Face for Failure to Serve or Improper Service of Statement Reserving Right to Punitive Damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115]--Service to Precede Clerk's Entry of Default

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), based on the failure to serve Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement reserving right to punitive damages (see § 70.410[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT IN THIS ACTION AS VOID ON THEIR FACE BECAUSE THE NOTICE OF THE AMOUNT OF PUNITIVE DAMAGES CLAIMED AS REQUIRED BY CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 425.115 WAS NOT SERVED BEFORE THE CLERK ENTERED THE DEFAULT.

Service of Statement to Precede Clerk's Entry of Default. The Code of Civil Procedure Section 425.115 notice to defendant of the amount of punitive damages claimed must be given not merely before the entry of the default judgment, but before the clerk enters the default (see Hamm v. Elkin (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1343, 1346, 242 Cal. Rptr. 545 (construing parallel language in Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11, relating to the statement of damages required in superior court actions for personal injury or wrongful death)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default and default judgment as facially void. This form may be used when the defendant was not served with the statement reserving right to punitive damages before the clerk entered the default.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), based on the failure to serve Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement reserving right to punitive damages [see § 70.410[1]]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. That is, counsel should refer to the record to show that the defendant was not, or was not properly, served with a statement of damages as required under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 before the clerk entered the default, and argue that the default and default judgment are therefore void on their face.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Service of Statement to Precede Clerk's Entry of Default

The facts and procedural background of Hamm v. Elkin (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1343, 242 Cal. Rptr. 545 are discussed in § 70.402[3].

Although this case involved a Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages, Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 contains a comparable requirement that the statement it requires be served "before a default may be taken" [compare Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11(c) with Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115(f)]. Therefore, while Hamm is not controlling authority, counsel may wish to argue it as persuasive authority on this point.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.412

§ 70.412 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Default Judgment Void on Its Face for Failure to Serve or Improper Service of Statement Reserving Right to Punitive Damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115]--Unauthorized Method of Service--Defendant Has Not Appeared in Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115(g)(1)]

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), based on the failure to serve Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement reserving right to punitive damages (see § 70.410[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT IN THIS ACTION AS VOID ON THEIR FACE BECAUSE DEFENDANT HAS NOT APPEARED IN THIS ACTION BUT HAS NOT BEEN SERVED WITH THE STATEMENT RESERVING THE RIGHT TO PUNITIVE DAMAGES IN THE SAME MANNER AS A SUMMONS.

Method of Service. If the party has not appeared in the action, the statement reserving punitive damages must be served in the same manner as a summons pursuant to Article 3 (commencing with Section 415.10) of Chapter 4 of Title 5 of Part 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115(g)(1)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default and default judgment as facially void. This form may be used when the defendant was not served with the statement reserving right to punitive damages in the same manner as a summons pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.10 et seq.[Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115(g)(1)]. For a form of points and authorities for use in supporting a motion for relief when the defendant has appeared in the action, see § 70.413[1].

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), based on the failure to serve Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement reserving right to punitive damages [see § 70.410[1]]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. That is, counsel should refer to the record to show that the defendant was not, or was not properly, served with a statement of damages as required under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115, and argue that the default and default judgment are therefore void on their face.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.413

§ 70.413 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Default Judgment Void on Its Face for Failure to Serve or Improper Service of Statement Reserving Right to Punitive Damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115]--Unauthorized Method of Service--Defendant Has Appeared in Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115(g)(2)]

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), based on the failure to serve Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement reserving right to punitive damages (see § 70.410[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT IN THIS ACTION AS VOID ON THEIR FACE BECAUSE DEFENDANT HAS APPEARED IN THIS ACTION BUT HAS NOT BEEN SERVED WITH THE STATEMENT RESERVING THE RIGHT TO PUNITIVE DAMAGES, EITHER IN THE SAME MANNER AS A SUMMONS, OR IN THE MANNER PROVIDED FOR NOTICES AND OTHER PAPERS.

Method of Service. If the party has appeared in the action, the statement reserving punitive damages must be served on his or her attorney, or on the party if he or she has appeared without an attorney, either in the same manner as a summons pursuant to Article 3 (commencing with Section 415.10) of Chapter 4 of Title 5 of the Code of Civil Procedure or in the manner provided by Chapter 5 (commencing with Section 1010) of Title 14 of Part 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115(g)(2)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default and default judgment as facially void. This form may be used when the defendant was not served with the statement reserving right to punitive damages either in the same manner as a summons pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.10 et seq. or in the manner provided for notices and other papers pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115(g)(2)]. For a form of points and authorities for use in supporting a motion for relief when the defendant has not appeared in the action, see § 70.412[1].

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), based on the failure to serve Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement reserving right to punitive damages [see § 70.410[1]]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. That is, counsel should refer to the record to show that the defendant was not, or was not properly, served with a statement reserving the right to punitive damages as required under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115, and argue that the default and default judgment are therefore void on their face.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.414-70.419

[Reserved]

§§ 70.414[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.420

§ 70.420 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Default Judgment Void on Its Face When Judgment in Family Law Proceeding Involving Children Is Void for Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction--General Form

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) (see § 70.310[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] IN THIS ACTION AS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM THE RECORD THAT THE TRIAL COURT LACKED JURISDICTION OVER THE SUBJECT MATTER OF THE ACTION/PROCEEDING.

Establishing That Judgment Is Void on Its Face in Family Law Proceeding Relating to Children. The words "judgment roll" are not an open sesame conjuring up the solution to whether presence or lack of subject matter jurisdiction appears "on the face of the record" in domestic relations proceedings applicable to children (Swain v. Swain (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 1, 10, 58 Cal. Rptr. 83).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities supporting additional grounds for relief from void judgment or order (see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.413).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a judgment or order in a family law proceeding when it appears from the record that the court lacked subject matter jurisdiction over the matter adjudicated.

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a void judgment or order [see § 70.310[1]]. They may also be combined, when appropriate, with points and authorities supporting relief from a void judgment on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.330 -70.413]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also §§ 70.310, 70.330 for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order, alternative methods for obtaining relief, and discussion relating to use of this form to support an alternative motion for relief from a judgment valid on its face but void in fact.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should refer to the record to show that the trial court lacked jurisdiction over the subject matter adjudicated.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Establishing That Judgment Is Void on Its Face in Family Law Proceeding Relating to Children

Swain v. Swain (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 1, 58 Cal. Rptr. 83 , was an action in which there was a divorce decree that declared the defendant husband to be the father of a minor child of the wife. The husband noticed a motion to vacate the decree on the ground that the trial court had acted in excess of jurisdiction for the reason that the father was not the child's natural father, but only a stepfather. The motion was granted and the trial court issued an order setting aside the provisions of the interlocutory and final decrees relating to parentage and support of the plaintiff wife. The wife moved for an order to vacate the set aside order and the trial court denied the motion. The wife appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the order setting aside the provisions of the interlocutory and final decrees relating to parentage and support. The court stated that an issue in the case was whether the husband was entitled to attack the decree collaterally by a motion to modify made two years after the entry of decree. Right to such an attack, according to the court, was limited to extrinsic fraud or mistake and to defects appearing on the face of the record. The court, citing a treatise, stated that a judgment void on its face may be collaterally attacked. That is another way of saying that the presumption of jurisdiction is overcome when the defects may be shown without going outside the "record" or "judgment roll," including the pleadings, proof of service, findings or verdict, and judgment. The court noted that "judgment roll" has been used synonymously with "record" and concluded that unless "there is magic in semantics" it could not accept the rigidity of the so-called "judgment roll" rule and unreasonably apply it in the case before it. The court stated that a court has no power to declare a child not the child of a defendant, either by birth or adoption, to be one, and no power to saddle the nonfather with the support of such child until her majority or emancipation, that is, it has no such power when nonparentage appears on the face of the record. On the other hand, according to the court, when the question of parentage or adoption is an issue properly litigated with both parties afforded a fair and equal chance to present evidence, the court does have jurisdiction to decide the issue. The words "judgment roll" are not an open sesame conjuring up the solution to whether presence or lack of subject matter jurisdiction appears "on the face of the record," not in that part of domestic relations proceedings applicable to children. The court went on to find that the report of the domestic relations officer presented the answer (250 Cal. App. 2d 1, 10) , disclosing that the husband was merely the stepfather, and not the natural father, of the child, a fact apparently forgotten by the trial court when it rendered its decree (250 Cal. App. 2d 1, 12)

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.421

§ 70.421 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Default Judgment Void on Its Face When Judgment in Family Law Proceeding Involving Children Is Void for Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction--Lack of Jurisdiction Appears on Face of Domestic Relations Officer Report

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), based on lack of subject matter jurisdiction in family law proceeding involving children (see § 70.420[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] IN THIS ACTION AS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM THE REPORT OF THE DOMESTIC RELATIONS OFFICER THAT THE TRIAL COURT LACKED JURISDICTION OVER THE SUBJECT MATTER OF THE ACTION/PROCEEDING.

Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction Appears on Face of Domestic Relations Officer Report. The lack of subject matter jurisdiction to render judgment may be established by facts in the report of the domestic relations officer, affirmed and accepted by the parties, read and considered by the court, and filed as a part of the record (Swain v. Swain (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 1, 10, 58 Cal. Rptr. 83).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a default and default judgment as facially void. This form may be used when the lack of subject matter jurisdiction appears on the face of domestic relations officer report [Swain v. Swain (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 1, 10, 58 Cal. Rptr. 83] .

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), based on lack of subject matter jurisdiction in family law proceeding involving children [see § 70.420[1]]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. That is, counsel should refer to the record to show that the lack of subject matter jurisdiction appears on the face of domestic relations officer report.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction Appears on Face of Domestic Relations Officer Report

The facts and procedural background of Swain v. Swain (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 1, 58 Cal. Rptr. 83 , are discussed in § 70.420[3]. The court of appeal stated that the words "judgment roll" are not an open sesame conjuring up the solution to whether presence or lack of subject matter jurisdiction appears "on the face of the record," not in that part of domestic relations proceedings applicable to children. The court went on to find that the report of the domestic relations officer presented the answer (250 Cal. App. 2d 1, 10) , disclosing that the husband was merely the stepfather, and not the natural father, of the child, a fact apparently forgotten by the trial court when it rendered its decree (250 Cal. App. 2d 1, 12) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.422-70.429

[Reserved]

§§ 70.422[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.430

§ 70.430 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--General Form

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION
Plaintiff,	)	TO SET ASIDE VOID _____
vs.	)	[DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or
_____ [name],	)	JUDGMENT or ORDER]
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
		Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] ON THE GROUND THAT IT IS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE AN EXAMINATION OF THE JUDGMENT ROLL DOES NOT DISCLOSE ANY INVALIDITY IN THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER].

Presumption Favoring Validity of Judgment. Every presumption is in favor of the validity of the judgment, and any condition of facts consistent with its validity, and not affirmatively contradicted by the judgment roll, will be presumed to have existed rather than one which will defeat it (Wells Fargo & Co. v. City etc. of S.F. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 37, 40, 152 P.2d 625).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing a grant of relief on other particular grounds asserted by the moving party (see, e.g., §§ 70.440 -70.453).]

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[opposing party]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a judgment or order on the ground that it is void on its face [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]. This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a plaintiff (for example, a cross complainant).

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.310 -70.421.

This form should be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of relief on other particular grounds asserted by the moving party [see, e.g., §§ 70.440 -70.453]. This form may also be combined, in an appropriate case, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of relief based on other statutory or decisional authority [see discussion under [c], below]. This form may, in addition, be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also §§ 70.310[2] and 70.330[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order, alternative methods for obtaining relief, and discussion relating to use of this form to oppose an alternative motion for relief from a judgment valid on its face but void in fact.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. That is, counsel should refer to facts in the judgment roll that are consistent with validity of the judgment.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. §

473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[c] Alternative Methods of Obtaining Relief

A judgment that is void on its face and void in fact (that is, its invalidity may be shown by extrinsic evidence) may also be set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) [for further discussion, see § 70.460[2][d]. For a form of memorandum opposing a grant of relief from a judgment or order on the ground that it is void in fact, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with this form, see § 70.470.

A party may, in addition, obtain relief from a default and default judgment or other judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding on the ground of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. Additional statutory grounds also exist for relief from a default and default judgment [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473.1, 473.5]. For forms of memoranda opposing a grant of relief from default and default judgment or other judgment or order on these various additional statutory grounds, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with this form, see § 70.240 et seq.

A default judgment or other judgment or order may also be attacked by a motion or separate action in equity, when the judgment was obtained through extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress. For forms of memoranda opposing a grant of relief from a default judgment or other judgment or order on such equitable grounds, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with this form, see § 70.480 et seq.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Presumption Favoring Validity of Judgment

Wells Fargo & Co. v. City etc. of S.F. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 37, 152 P.2d 625 , involved actions to recover from the county taxes paid under protest. In each case a general demurrer was overruled and time was allowed to answer, but no answers were filed. The plaintiff secured default judgments. Defendant thereafter moved to set the judgments aside as void. Among other contentions, the defendant asserted that the court had no jurisdiction to enter the judgments on the application of an attorney who was not plaintiff's attorney of record, and that both the awarding of costs against a subdivision of the state and the granting of interest for a period preceding the judgment were in excess of the jurisdiction of the county. The trial court granted the motions to set aside and the plaintiff appealed from the orders.

The Supreme Court reversed. In holding that the judgments were not subject to collateral attack, the Court stated that every presumption is in favor of the validity of the judgment, and any condition of facts consistent with its validity, and not affirmatively contradicted by the judgment roll, will be presumed to have existed rather than one which will defeat it (25 Cal. 2d 37, 40) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.431

§ 70.431 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Mere Erroneous Decision on Question of Law Does Not Make Judgment Void

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) (see § 70.430[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] ON THE GROUND THAT IT IS VOID ON ITS FACE BECAUSE A MERE ERRONEOUS DECISION ON A QUESTION OF LAW, EVEN THOUGH THE ERROR APPEARS ON THE FACE OF THE RECORD, DOES NOT MAKE THE JUDGMENT VOID.

Mere Erroneous Decision Does Not Make Judgment Void. A mere erroneous decision on a question of law, even though the error appears on the face of the record, does not make the judgment void, if the court had jurisdiction of the subject matter and of the person of the defendant (Wells Fargo & Co. v. City etc. of S.F. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 37, 40, 152 P.2d 625).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a judgment or order on the ground that it is void on its face [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]. This form may be used when the asserted invalidity is an error of law and the court otherwise has jurisdiction of the subject matter and the person [Wells Fargo & Co. v. City etc. of S.F. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 37, 40, 152 P.2d 625] . This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a plaintiff (for example, a cross complainant).

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.310 -70.421.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) [see § 70.430[1]].

See also § 70.430[2] for additional comments relating to opposition to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus for example, counsel may:

- Point out that the motion is based on an error of law rather than a ground of voidness, such as lack of jurisdiction.
- Argue that the appropriate forum for challenging the asserted defect is appeal.
- Request that the motion be dismissed because the time to file a notice of appeal has expired.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mere Erroneous Decision Does Not Make Judgment Void

The facts and procedural background of Wells Fargo & Co. v. City etc. of S.F. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 37, 152 P.2d 625 , is discussed in § 70.430[3] . In Wells Fargo & Co., the Court stated that a mere erroneous decision on a question of law, even though the error appears on the face of the record, does not make the judgment void, if the court had jurisdiction of the subject matter and of the person of the defendant (25 Cal. 2d 37, 40) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.432

§ 70.432 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Judgment Not Void Because of Failure of Complaint to State a Cause of Action

[1] FORM

[For caption, see § 70.430, with which this form should be combined.]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] AS VOID. THE JUDGMENT IS NOT VOID MERELY BECAUSE THE UNDERLYING COMPLAINT WOULD HAVE BEEN SUBJECT TO DEMURRER FOR FAILURE TO STATE A CAUSE OF ACTION.

Failure of Complaint to State Cause of Action Does Not Render Default Judgment Void Judgment. A default judgment is not void, as long as the court has jurisdiction over the parties and the subject matter, even if the complaint does not state a cause of action and would have been subject to a demurrer (Molen v. Friedman (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1149, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 651).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form points and authorities may be submitted by a defendant in opposition to a motion to set aside a judgment or order on the ground that it is void on its face [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]. This form may be used when the asserted invalidity is the failure of the complaint to state a cause of action.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside a void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) [see § 70-430[1]].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in the form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure of Complaint to State Cause of Action Does Not Render Default Judgment Void

In Molen v. Friedman (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1149, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 651 , the defendants failed to answer the plaintiffs' complaint for breach of a commercial lease and a default judgment was entered. The defendants moved to set aside the judgment because the complaint did not state a cause of action. The trial court set aside the judgment but entered a new judgment based on the complaint. The court of appeal affirmed. It concluded that a default judgment is void on its face only if the court lacked personal or subject matter jurisdiction, or if the court granted relief not within its powers, such as damages for which no notice had been given. Failure to state a cause of action was not cause for setting aside the judgment (64 Cal. App. 4th 1149, 1156-1157) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.433-70.439

[Reserved]

§§ 70.433[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.440

§ 70.440 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] on Ground That Service on Defendant Was Properly Made--General Form

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) (see § 70.430[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE SERVICE ON HIM/HER/IT WAS PROPERLY MADE.

A. Liberal Construction of Service of Process Statutes. The service of process statutes are to be liberally construed to effectuate service and uphold jurisdiction of the court if actual notice has been received by the defendant, and in the last analysis the question of service should be resolved by considering each situation from a practical standpoint (Courtney v. Abex Corp. (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 343, 346, 221 Cal. Rptr. 770).

B. Defect in Return of Service of Little Importance if Service Was Proper. The purpose of requiring a return to the court of the summons and proof of service is to give the court notice that the plaintiff is diligently prosecuting the case and that the defendant has been informed of the action against him or her and knows he or she must appear in court. If service on the defendant is properly made, it is of little importance that there is a defect in the return since it is the fact of service that gives the court jurisdiction, not the proof of service (Courtney v. Abex Corp. (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 343, 346-347, 221 Cal. Rptr. 770).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing a grant of relief on additional particular grounds asserted by the moving party (see, e.g., §§ 70.450 -70.453. When applicable, add points and authorities opposing a grant of relief on particular grounds relating to the adequacy of service on defendant (see, e.g., § 70.441 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a default and default judgment brought on the ground that defects in the proof of service indicates that the court lacked personal jurisdiction over the defendant. The basis for the opposition is that the requirements for service under statute were in fact satisfied, although the return of service was defective. This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a plaintiff (for example, a cross complainant).

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.310 -70.336.

This form should be combined with a general memorandum opposing a motion for relief from a void judgment or order [see § 70.430[1]]. When applicable, they may be combined with points and authorities opposing a grant of relief on particular grounds relating to the objection that service on defendant was proper [see, e.g., § 70.441 et seq.]. They may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of relief on other particular grounds asserted by the moving party [see, e.g., §§ 70.450 -70.453]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also §§ 70.310[2], 70.330[2] and 70.430[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order, alternative methods for obtaining relief, and discussion relating to use of this form to oppose an alternative motion for relief from a judgment valid on its face but void in fact.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, if the defendant's motion to set aside is based on the claim that the person serving the summons and complaint was not at least 18 years of age, as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 414.10, counsel should refer to evidence in an opposing declaration establishing that the true age of the person making the service was at least 18 years of age at the time of the service.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Liberal Construction of Service of Process Statutes

In Courtney v. Abex Corp. (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 343, 221 Cal. Rptr. 770 , plaintiffs brought an action against several companies alleging personal injuries caused by exposure to asbestos and silica products while they worked at a car dealership. Almost three years after commencing the action, the defendants, as "Does Two through Five" were served by mail with copies of the summons and the complaint and plaintiffs returned copies of the summons and proofs of service to the court just within three years of commencement of the action. The plaintiffs later moved to file the original summons nunc pro tunc to correct their failure to file it during the three-year statutory period and defendants moved to dismiss under former Code Civ. Proc. § 581a [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210]. The trial court denied the plaintiffs' motion to file the original summons and granted the defendants' motion to dismiss. The plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment of dismissal. The court, quoting Torgersen v. Smith (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 948, 952, 159 Cal. Rptr. 781 (disapproved on other grounds in Johnson & Johnson v. Superior Court (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 243, 254 n.7, 211 Cal. Rptr. 517, 695 P.2d 1058), stated that the service of process statutes are to be liberally construed to effectuate service and uphold jurisdiction of the court if actual notice has been received by the defendant, and in the last analysis the question of service should be resolved by considering each situation from a practical standpoint. The statutory scheme governing the commencement of actions and jurisdiction contemplates that a defendant received notice of the action against him or her; hence, the goal is satisfied by the defendant's receipt of a copy of the summons or the original (176 Cal. App. 3d 343, 346) . The court held that the defendants were properly served and the return of the copies of the summons and to the trial court was timely (176 Cal. App. 3d 343, 348) .

[b] Defect in Return of Service of Little Importance if Service Was Proper

The facts and procedural background of Courtney v. Abex Corp. (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 343, 221 Cal. Rptr. 770 , are discussed under [a], above. In Courtney, the defendants moved to dismiss the action under former Code Civ. Proc. § 581a [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210], citing the plaintiffs' failure to return the original summons to the court within the three year period. In holding that the filing of a copy of the original summons indicating service on the defendants within three years after commencement of the action satisfies the "return" requirement of former Section 581a, the court stated that the purpose of requiring a return to the court of the summons and proof of service is to give the court notice that the plaintiff is diligently prosecuting the case and that the defendant has been informed of the action against him or her and knows he or she must appear in court. If service on the defendant is properly made, it is of little importance that there is a defect in the return since it is the fact of service that gives the court jurisdiction, not the proof of service (176 Cal. App. 3d 343, 346-347) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.441

§ 70.441 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] on Ground That Service on Defendant Was Properly Made--Copies of Summons With Affidavits of Proof of Service Are Sufficient for Return

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), on ground that service on defendant was proper (see § 70.430[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE THE TRIAL COURT HAS RECEIVED ADEQUATE NOTICE BY WAY OF RETURN OF A COPY OF THE SUMMONS WITH AFFIDAVIT OF PROOF OF SERVICE THAT THE DEFENDANT HAS BEEN SERVED AND NOTIFIED OF THE CASE PENDING AGAINST HIM/HER.

Copies of Summons With Affidavits of Proof of Service Sufficient for Return. A trial court receives adequate notice by way of return of a copy of the summons with affidavit of proof of service that the defendant has been served and notified of the case pending against him or her (Sakaguchi v. Sakaguchi (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 852, 858-860, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 717 ; Courtney v. Abex Corp. (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 343, 347, 221 Cal. Rptr. 770).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a judgment or order on the ground that it is void on its face [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]. This form may be used when the asserted invalidity is insufficient service of process on the defendant, but the trial court has received adequate notice by way of return of a copy of the summons with affidavit of proof of service that the defendant has been served and notified of the case pending against him or her [Courtney v. Abex Corp. (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 343, 347, 221 Cal. Rptr. 770] . This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a plaintiff (for example, a cross complainant).

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.310 -70.336.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) on the ground of adequacy of service [see § 70.440[1]].

See also § 70.430[2] for additional comments relating to opposition to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel would refer to the judgment roll to show the basis for the personal jurisdiction of the court. Specifically counsel would refer to the copy of the summons with affidavit of proof of service returned to the court to argue that the defendant has been served and notified of the case pending against him or her.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Copies of Summons With Affidavits of Proof of Service Sufficient for Return

In Sakaguchi v. Sakaguchi (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 852, 858-860, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 717 , a wife sued her husband for assault and battery arising from a domestic dispute. The husband was incarcerated for the assault when the wife served him with the summons and complaint. Pursuant to the proof of service and notice of acknowledgement of receipt, the wife complied with Code Civ. Proc. § 416.90 and Penal Code § 4013 by serving process by mail on the sheriff, who had custody of the husband. The husband argued that service by mail was ineffective because he did not personally sign the acknowledgement of receipt. The court of appeal disagreed, holding that the husband failed to address Penal Code § 4013, which permitted the service [173 Cal. App. 4th 852, 858-860] .

The facts and procedural background of Courtney v. Abex Corp. (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 343, 221 Cal. Rptr. 770 , are discussed in § 70.440[3] . In Courtney, the court held that a trial court receives adequate notice by way of return of a copy of the summons with affidavit of proof of service that the defendant has been served and notified of the case pending against him (176 Cal. App. 3d 343, 345, 347) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Copies of Summons With Affidavits of Proof of Service Sufficient for Return

The facts and procedural background of Hibernia S. and L. Soc. v. Matthai (1897) 116 Cal. 424, 48 P. 370 , are discussed in § 70.443[3] . In this case, at the time the appeal was taken the original summons with the proof of service on the defendant had been lost from the files of the superior court, but afterward, the superior court, on proof of the loss, authorized copies to be filed and used in place of the originals. The court held that the order of the superior court authorizing the copies to be filed was a determination by that tribunal that they were correct copies of the originals, and the papers thus substituted were entitled to the same weight as would be the originals (116 Cal. 424, 426) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.442

§ 70.442 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] on Ground That Service on Defendant Was Properly Made--Late Return of Summons Is Mere Irregularity

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), on ground that service on defendant was proper (see § 70.430[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE THE JUDGMENT IS BASED ON A LATE RETURN OF THE SUMMONS WHICH IS MERELY AN IRREGULARITY, BUT NOT VOID AND NOT SUBJECT TO COLLATERAL ATTACK.

Late Return of Summons Mere Irregularity. A judgment based on a late return of a summons is merely an irregularity, but is not void and is not subject to collateral attack by reason of the late return (National Diversified Services, Inc., v. Bernstein (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 410, 416, 214 Cal. Rptr. 113).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a judgment or order on the ground that it is void on its face [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]. This form may be used when the asserted invalidity is insufficient service of process on the defendant, but the judgment is based on a late return of a summons which is merely an irregularity and not void [National Diversified Services, Inc. v. Bernstein (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 410, 416, 214 Cal. Rptr. 113] . This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a plaintiff (for example, a cross complainant).

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.310 -70.336.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) on the ground of adequacy of service [see § 70.440[1]].

See also § 70.430[2] for additional comments relating to opposition to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel would refer to the judgment roll to show the basis for the personal jurisdiction of the court. Specifically counsel would refer to the copy of the summons with affidavit of proof of service returned and argue that while the return of the summons was late, the judgment is not void and is not subject to collateral attack by reason of the late return.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Late Return of Summons Mere Irregularity

The facts and procedural background of National Diversified Services, Inc., v. Bernstein (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 410, 214 Cal. Rptr. 113 , are discussed in § 70.380[3]. In this case the court of appeal affirmed the default judgment in part. The defendant in the case argued that because he was not served until over four months beyond the three-year period of limitation under former Code Civ. Proc. § 581a [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210 et seq.], the service was invalid and the resulting default judgment based thereon was void and subject to attack at any time. The court noted that the defendant's argument would benefit by citation to Pearson v. Superior Court (1932) 122 Cal. App. 571, 574-575, 10 P.2d 489 , which held that a default judgment based on an untimely return of summons was void on the face of the record for want of jurisdiction. The court concluded, however, that the rationale of Pearson had succumbed to the evolution of the law regarding dismissals for failure to serve and return summons within three years and that several statutory and case law exceptions had developed since the time of that opinion (168 Cal. App. 3d 410, 414) . The court stated that it is illogical to say any longer that a judgment based on a late return of summons is void on its face. A judgment is void on its face when a jurisdiction defect appears on review of the judgment roll. A late return is not necessarily invalid and its validity will often depend on facts not appearing in the record until opposition to a motion to dismiss is filed. The court noted, for example, that a party's appearance may avoid dismissal, although not filed within the three-year period. Further, a written stipulation extending time may also avoid dismissal, although not filed within the three-year period. In addition, facts justifying estoppel of a defendant or demonstrating the impracticality or futility of returning a summons may not adequately appear on the face of the record absent a showing opposing a motion to dismiss (168 Cal. App. 3d 410, 415-416) .

The foregoing led the court to conclude that the modern rule must be that a judgment based on a late return of summons is irregular, but not void. The court held that the late return of a summons is merely an irregularity which does not render a default judgment based thereon subject to collateral attack (168 Cal. App. 3d 410, 416) . The court did, however, find merit to defendant's contention that the default judgment was void to the extent that the defendant was not apprised by the complaint or the request to enter default of the damages sought from him, under Code Civ. Proc. § 580, and on that basis concluded that the judgment rendered was partially void for being excessive (168 Cal. App. 3d 410, 419) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.443

§ 70.443 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] on Ground That Service on Defendant Was Properly Made--Proof of Service May Be Amended and Filed Nunc Pro Tunc as of Date of Judgment

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), on ground that service on defendant was proper (see § 70.430[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE A FAILURE TO MAKE THE PROOF OF SERVICE A MATTER OF RECORD DID NOT DEPRIVE THE COURT OF ITS JURISDICTION, AND A SUBSEQUENT AMENDMENT OF THE RECORD BY SUPPLYING PROOF OF SERVICE IS AS EFFECTIVE TO SUPPORT THE JUDGMENT AS IF IT HAD BEEN FILED BEFORE ITS ENTRY.

Proof of Service May Be Amended and Filed Nunc Pro Tunc as of Date of Judgment. A court acquires jurisdiction by the service of its process and does not lose it by neglecting to make the proof of such service a matter of record. A subsequent amendment of the record by supplying proof of service is as effective to support the judgment as if it had been filed before its entry (Hibernia S. and L. Soc. v. Matthai (1897) 116 Cal. 424, 426, 48 P. 370 ; Herman v. Santee (1894) 103 Cal. 519, 523-524, 37 P. 509).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a judgment or order on the ground that it is void on its face [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]. This form may be used when the court neglected to make the proof of such service a matter of record [see Hibernia S. and L. Soc. v. Matthai (1897) 116 Cal. 424, 426, 48 P. 370 ; Herman v. Santee (1894) 103 Cal. 519, 523-524, 37 P. 509] . This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a plaintiff (for example, a cross complainant).

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.310 -70.336.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) on the ground of adequacy of service [see § 70.440[1]].

See also § 70.430[2] for additional comments relating to opposition to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel would refer to the amended or late-filed proof of service to show that the defendant had in fact received notice sufficient for the court to exercise personal jurisdiction.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Proof of Service May Be Amended and Filed Nunc Pro Tunc as of Date of Judgment

Hibernia S. and L. Soc. v. Matthai (1897) 116 Cal. 424, 48 P. 370 , involved a judgment of foreclosure entered on the default of the defendant. The judgment roll did not contain a copy of the summons with proof of service on the defendant. The defendant appealed, contending that by reason of the failure of the record to show that the court had acquired jurisdiction, the judgment must be reversed.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment. The Court noted that it was recited in the judgment that the defendants in the action were severally, personally, and duly served with the summons, together with a copy of the complaint. At the time the appeal was taken the original summons with the proof of service thereof on the defendant had been lost from the files of the superior court, but afterward, the superior court, on proof of the loss, authorized copies to be filed and used in place of the originals. The court held that the order of the superior court authorizing the copies to be filed was a determination by that tribunal that they were correct copies of the originals, and the papers thus substituted were entitled to the same weight as would be the originals. The court cited Herman v. Santee (1894) 103 Cal. 519, 37 P. 509 , for the principle that the court had jurisdiction to enter the default even though at the time the summons with proof of service had not been filed with the clerk, and a subsequent amendment of the record by supplying proof of service was as effective to support the judgment as if had been filed before its entry (116 Cal. 424, 426) .

Herman v. Santee (1894) 103 Cal. 519, 37 P. 509 , involved an action to foreclose a mortgage given to secure payment of a promissory note. A decree of foreclosure was entered as prayed for, reciting that the defendants had been duly summoned to answer, defaulted, and that default had been duly entered. Defendant moved to vacate and set aside the decree, so far as it provided for a deficiency judgment against him, on the ground that previous to the commencement of the action he had been discharged from the indebtedness by bankruptcy. Prior to the hearing, without previous notice, plaintiff presented an amended affidavit of service of the summons and complaint in the case, and asked for an order that it be filed nunc pro tunc as of the date of the foreclosure decree and made a part of the judgment roll. The summons was served by a person other than the sheriff, and the affidavit of service, as originally made and returned, was defective because it did not state that the affiant was over the age of 18 years at the time of the service. The trial court granted the plaintiff's motion to amend the summons and denied the defendant's motion to vacate the default judgment. The defendant appealed from the judgment and the order granting the plaintiff's motion.

The Supreme Court affirmed. The defendant contended that because the affidavit of service was insufficient the clerk had no authority to enter the default, and the court had no jurisdiction to enter the judgment, and that both the default and judgment were void. The Court, citing previous opinions, stated that it is the fact of service which gives the court jurisdiction, not the proof of service. The Court considered that the amended affidavit of service, which the trial court allowed to be filed, was in all respects in proper form, and showed that the defendant was regularly served with a copy of the summons and complaint. None of the facts stated in the affidavit were controverted, concluded the Court, therefore, from the time of the service the court acquired jurisdiction of the parties to the action (103 Cal. 519, 523) . Further, the Court disapproved of the statement in Reinhart v. Lugo (1890) 86 Cal. 395, 401, 24 P. 1089 , that the default and default judgment was void, not because there was no service, but because there was, at the time of entering the default and default judgment, no proof of service. Rather, the Court cited a Supreme Court opinion predating that of Reinhart, to state that to support judgments entered on insufficient proof of service of process, or without the proof of such service appearing in the record, courts have uniformly permitted such proof to be amended or supplied, not for the purpose of authorizing them to enter new judgments based on such proof, but to show that judgments previously entered were not entered without jurisdiction, and are not, and never were, void (103 Cal. 519, 524) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.444-70.449

[Reserved]

§§ 70.444[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.450

§ 70.450 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] on Ground That Defendant Received Adequate Notice of Damages--Superior Court Personal Injury or Wrongful Death Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11]

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) (see § 70.430[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE DEFENDANT HAS RECEIVED NOTICE OF THE AMOUNT OF THE SPECIAL AND GENERAL DAMAGES SOUGHT TO BE RECOVERED FROM HIM OR HER.

Defendant Received Statement of Damages. When a complaint is filed in an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the defendant may at any time request a statement setting forth the nature and amount of damages being sought. If a defendant does not request the statement, the plaintiff must serve the statement on the defendant before a default may be taken. If a party has not appeared in the action, the statement must be served in the same manner as a summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11; Sakaguchi v. Sakaguchi (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 852, 860-861, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 717] .

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing a grant of relief on additional particular grounds asserted by the moving party (see, e.g., §§ 70.440 -70.443, 70.451 -70.453.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a default and default judgment brought on the grounds the defendant in a wrongful death or personal injury action in superior court was not, or was not properly, served a Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages. The basis for the opposition is that the requirements for service under the statute were in fact satisfied because defendant received notice of the amount of damages sought to be recovered and the notice received satisfies minimum standards of due process. The form may be adapted for use by a cross complainant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11(a)].

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.400 -70.404.

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum opposing a motion for relief from a void judgment or order [see § 70.430]. These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities opposing a motion in an action that includes a claim for punitive damages on the ground that the defendant was not, or was not properly, served a Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement of reserving the right to punitive damages [see § 70.451[1]]. They may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of relief on other particular grounds asserted by the moving party [see, e.g., §§ 70.440 et seq., 70.452, 70.453]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also §§ 70.310[2], 70.330[2] and 70.430[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order, alternative methods for obtaining relief, and discussion relating to use of this form to oppose an alternative motion for relief from a judgment valid on its face but void in fact.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, if the defendant has moved to set aside a default judgment which was granted in the amount of the jurisdictional minimum of the superior court, and the defendant was not served a statement of damages but the complaint served on the defendant alleged that the plaintiff suffered general damages in an amount that exceeds the jurisdictional requirements of the court, counsel should refer to the specific paragraph of that allegation in the complaint in his or her argument [see Greenup v. Rodman (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 822, 829-830, 231 Cal. Rptr. 220, 726 P.2d 1295 (discussed in § 70.452[3]); see also Schwab v. Rondel Homes, Inc. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 428, 433-434, 280 Cal. Rptr. 83, 808 P.2d 226 (citing Greenup with approval; see § 70.452[3] and [3], below)].

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Service of Statement of Damages Complied with Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11

In Sakaguchi v. Sakaguchi (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 852, 858-860, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 717 , a wife sued her husband for assault and battery arising from a domestic dispute. The husband was incarcerated for the assault when the wife served him with the summons and complaint. Pursuant to the proof of service and notice of acknowledgment of receipt, the wife complied with Code Civ. Proc. § 416.90 and Penal Code § 4013 by serving process by mail on the sheriff, who had custody of the husband. She served the statement of damages in the same manner. The husband argued that Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 required that the statement of damages be personally served on him. However, the court held that this interpretation of Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 contradicted the plain language of the statute, i.e., that if a party has not appeared in the action, the statement may be served in the same manner as a summons [173 Cal. App. 4th 852,

858-860] . As the court discussed (see § 70.441[3]), a summons may be served by mail pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.3. Thus, the court held, a statement of damages also may be served by mail, subject to the same requirements [173 Cal. App. 4th 852, 858-860] .

The factual and procedural background of Schwab v. Rondel Homes, Inc. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 428, 280 Cal. Rptr. 83, 808 P.2d 226 , is discussed in § 70.400[3]. In Schwab, although the Supreme Court held that the plaintiffs' prayer for statutory damages in an amount according to proof but no less than $250 and punitive damages in the amount of $500,000 was not sufficient to meet the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 and that the trial court properly vacated the default judgment entered against the defendants in the case, the Court stated that in Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11, the use of the word "notice" and the terms of art "special and general damages" imply that the Legislature intended that a defendant be given actual notice of the special and general damages claimed by a plaintiff (53 Cal. 3d 428, 435) . The Court cited with approval Greenup v. Rodman (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 822, 231 Cal. Rptr. 220, 726 P.2d 1295 , discussed under § 70.452[3] . In that case the plaintiff was awarded the jurisdictional minimum in general damages based on a complaint that specifically pleaded general damages "in excess" of the court's jurisdictional requirements. Based on that notice, the Supreme Court in Greenup held that the defendant knew, or should have known, that the plaintiff was claiming at least the jurisdictional minimum of $15,000 (53 Cal. 3d 428, 433-434) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.451

§ 70.451 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] on Ground That Defendant Received Adequate Notice of Damages--Action With Claim for Punitive Damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115]

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) (see § 70.430[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE DEFENDANT HAS RECEIVED NOTICE OF THE AMOUNT OF THE PUNITIVE DAMAGES SOUGHT TO BE RECOVERED FROM HIM/HER, AND THE NOTICE RECEIVED MEETS AT LEAST MINIMUM STANDARDS OF DUE PROCESS.

Notice Satisfies Minimum Standards of Due Process. Code of Civil Procedure Section 425.115, requires a plaintiff to serve a statement reserving the right to punitive damages on the defendant before taking a default if the motion for a default judgment includes a request for punitive damages (Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115(f)). Section 425.115 requires that the statement be served in the _____ [same manner as a summons pursuant to Article 3 (commencing with Section 415.10) of Chapter 4 of Title 5 of Part 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure if the party has not appeared in the action or same manner as a summons pursuant to Article 3 (commencing with Section 415.10) of Chapter 4 of Title 5 of the Code of Civil Procedure or in the manner provided by Chapter 5 (commencing with Section 1010) of Title 14 of Part 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure if the party has appeared in the action] (Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115(g)). Cases construing a comparable statement required by Code of Civil Procedure Section 425.11 have held that there was no hard-and-fast rule regarding the precise method or timing of service of the statement of damages required by Section 425.11. Rather, the court is to determine in each case whether minimum standards of due process have been met (California Novelties, Inc. v. Sokoloff (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 936, 945, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 795 ; see Schwab v. Rondel Homes, Inc. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 428, 432, 280 Cal. Rptr. 83, 808 P.2d 226). Although Section 425.115(g) provides a manner of service, it does not address the timing of service. Therefore as to the timing of service of the statement, the reasonable time rule of these cases should continue to apply.

[When appropriate, add points and authorities opposing a grant of relief on additional particular grounds asserted by the moving party (see, e.g., §§ 70.440 -70.443, 70.450, 70.452, 70.453.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a default and default judgment brought on the ground that the defendant in any action including a claim for punitive damages was not, or was not properly, served a Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement of reserving the right to punitive damages. The basis for the opposition is that the requirements for service under the statute were in fact satisfied because defendant received notice of the amount of damages sought to be recovered and the notice received satisfies minimum standards of due process. The form may be adapted for use by a cross complainant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115(a)].

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.400 -70.413.

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum opposing a motion for relief from a void judgment or order [see § 70.430]. These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities opposing a motion in a wrongful death or personal injury action in superior court made on the ground that the defendant was not, or was not properly, served a Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages [see § 70.450[1]]. They may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of relief on other particular grounds asserted by the moving party [see, e.g., §§ 70.440 et seq., 70.452, 70.453]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also §§ 70.310[2], 70.330[2] and 70.430[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order, alternative methods for obtaining relief, and discussion relating to use of this form to oppose an alternative motion for relief from a judgment valid on its face but void in fact.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[c] Reasonable Time Rule Pertaining to Statement of Damages May Apply by Analogy to Statement Reserving Right to Punitive Damages

Counsel should be particularly careful in evaluating whether to pursue the arguments in this form. Although the cases are applying Section 425.11, so that they apply to Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 only by analogy, it seems even clearer that Section 425.115 does not prescribe a time for service. Section 425.11(d) merely say that service shall be served "in the same manner as a summons" without referring to time or the statutes governing service of summons. Section 425.115(g) contains the same language but also specifies that it is referring to service of a summons pursuant to the article of the Code of Civil Procedure commencing with Section 415.10. The timing for service of summons is not given in that article of the Code of Civil Procedure, so Section 425.115 does not specify or incorporate a time requirement for serving the statement. Therefore, a strong argument can be made that the rule of California Novelties, Inc. v. Sokoloff (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 936, 945, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 795 should apply to service of a Section 425.115 statement, as long as service was made in a proper manner. For further discussion, see § 70.450[2][c].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Notice Satisfies Minimum Standards of Due Process

California Novelties, Inc. v. Sokoloff (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 936, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 795 , is discussed in § 70.450[3].

Schwab v. Rondel Homes, Inc. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 428, 280 Cal. Rptr. 83, 808 P.2d 226 , is discussed in § 70.450[3].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.452

§ 70.452 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] on Ground That Defendant Received Adequate Notice of Damages--Notice Requirement Was Satisfied by Complaint

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum opposing a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) on ground that defendant received adequate notice of damages (see §§ 70.450, 70.451).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE THE NOTICE REQUIRED BY _____ [CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 425.11 or CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 425.115] WAS SATISFIED BY THE COMPLAINT.

Notice Requirement Satisfied by Complaint. The requirements of Code of Civil Procedure Section 425.11 may be satisfied by the complaint itself (Schwab v. Rondel Homes, Inc. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 428, 435, 280 Cal. Rptr. 83, 808 P.2d 226 ; Greenup v. Rodman (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 822, 829, 231 Cal. Rptr. 220, 726 P.2d 1295). [Because the requirements of Code of Civil Procedure Section 425.115 are substantially parallel to those of Section 425.11, the same principle should apply when punitive damages have been stated in the complaint].

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a default and default judgment brought on the grounds the defendant was not, or was not properly, served a statement of damages or statement reserving the right to punitive damages. The basis for the opposition is that the requirements for service under the statute were in fact satisfied by the complaint in the action [Schwab v. Rondel Homes, Inc. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 428, 435, 280 Cal. Rptr. 83, 808 P.2d 226 ; Greenup v. Rodman (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 822, 829, 231 Cal. Rptr. 220, 726 P.2d 1295] .

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.400 -70.413.

These points and authorities should be combined with a opposing a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) on ground that defendant received adequate notice of damages [see §§ 70.450, 70.451]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel would refer to the specific allegations in the complaint that satisfy the notice requirement under the relevant statute.

In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Notice Requirement Satisfied by Complaint

The factual and procedural background of Schwab v. Rondel Homes, Inc. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 428, 280 Cal. Rptr. 83, 808 P.2d 226 , is discussed in § 70.400[3]. In Schwab, the Supreme Court cited Greenup v. Rodman (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 822, 231 Cal. Rptr. 220, 726 P.2d 1295 (discussed below), with approval. That case upheld a plaintiff's default judgment even though no statement of damages had been served on the defendant, based on the notice given to the defendant from the allegations of the complaint alone (53 Cal. 3d 428, 433-434) .

In Greenup v. Rodman (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 822, 231 Cal. Rptr. 220, 726 P.2d 1295 , plaintiff brought an action against defendants for, inter alia, fraud and conversion. After repeated refusals by defendants to comply with discovery requests, the court granted plaintiff's motion to strike the answer and enter a default. The default judgment awarded plaintiffs $338,000 in compensatory damages and $338,000 in punitive damages. Plaintiff's complaint, however, had only requested the specific sum of $100,000 in exemplary and punitive damages, with other damages subject to proof at the time of trial, or as the court deemed just. Defendants appealed, contending that the court lacked jurisdiction to award damages in an amount exceeding the prayer. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The Supreme Court then granted review to consider whether a default judgment entered as a discovery sanction is excepted from the general rule under Code Civ. Proc. § 580 that if there be no answer filed, the plaintiff's relief cannot exceed that which he or she shall have demanded in his or her complaint.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment, and directed that the award be amended. The Court concluded that a plaintiff's demand sets a ceiling on recovery for any default judgment entered, including a judgment entered when an answer is stricken as a discovery sanction (42 Cal. 3d 822, 824, 828) . The Court stated that when an answer is stricken as a sanction for the defendant's obstruction of discovery, it is as if no answer had been filed in the first instance. Consequently, the ceiling on recovery in Code Civ. Proc. § 580 is applicable (42 Cal. 3d 822, 828) . The Court rejected, however, the defendants' argument that because the plaintiff stated no amount of damages in her prayer, she was entitled to no compensatory damages whatever. The Court, citing the holding in Becker v. S.P.V. Construction Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 489, 494, 165 Cal. Rptr. 825, 612 P.2d 915 , that the allegations of a complaint may cure a defective prayer for damages and noted that each of the plaintiff's causes of action, with the exception of her personal injury claim, concluded with the allegation that she suffered damage "in an amount that exceeds the jurisdictional requirements of this court." From this, the Court concluded that by her allegations, the plaintiff gave sufficient notice to defendants that she claimed at least $15,000 in compensatory damages (42 Cal. 3d 822, 829-830) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.453

§ 70.453 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Void on Its Face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] on Ground That Defendant Received Adequate Notice of Damages--Late Return of Proof of Service of Statement of Damages Is Mere Irregularity

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum opposing a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) on ground that defendant received adequate notice of damages (see §§ 70.450 -70.452).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE PLAINTIFF PERSONALLY SERVED ON THE DEFENDANT THE STATEMENT OF DAMAGES BEFORE REQUESTING DEFAULT, THEREFORE, THE PLAINTIFF'S FAILURE TO FILE PROOF OF THAT SERVICE CONSTITUTES A MERE IRREGULARITY THAT DOES NOT VOID THE JUDGMENT

Late Return of Proof of Service of Statement of Damages Mere Irregularity. When a plaintiff personally serves on the defendant a statement of damages before requesting default, the plaintiff's failure to file proof of that service constitutes a mere irregularity that does not void the judgment (Connelly v. Castillo (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1583, 1589, 236 Cal. Rptr. 112). [Because the requirements of Code of Civil Procedure Section 425.115 are substantially parallel to those of Section 425.11, the same principle should apply when plaintiff has failed to file the proof of service of the Section 425.115 statement].

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a default and default judgment brought on the grounds the defendant was not, or was not properly, served a statement of damages or statement reserving the right to punitive damages. The basis for the opposition is that the late return of proof of service of statement of damages is a mere irregularity [Connelly v. Castillo (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1583, 1589, 236 Cal. Rptr.

112] .

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.400 -70.413.

These points and authorities should be combined with a opposing a motion to set aside void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) on ground that defendant received adequate notice of damages [see §§ 70.450 -70.452]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In proceedings to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting or opposing affidavit or declaration is prepared. Counsel should, however, request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if some other paper or report filed in the action is relevant to the issue of validity, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice, and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. For discussion of documents that are included in the judgment roll for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), see § 70.310[2][d][iii].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Late Return of Proof of Service of Statement of Damages Mere Irregularity

Connelly v. Castillo (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1583, 236 Cal. Rptr. 112 , involved a personal injury action in which the plaintiff personally served on the defendant a statement of special and general damages. The plaintiff did not, however, file proof of the service in superior court. Plaintiff subsequently filed her request to enter default and thereafter filed the damages statement with the trial court together with proof of service of the statement by mail on defendant. Meanwhile, the defendant mailed his answer to the complaint, which the court mailed back, informing the defendant that the plaintiff's request for default had already been filed. The matter was heard and default judgment was granted against the defendant. The defendant later moved to set aside the default, contending that it was void for the plaintiff's failure to give the defendant notice of the nature and amount of her damages under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11. The trial court granted the defendant's motion and ordered the default judgment set aside, finding the previous judgment void. The plaintiff appealed.

The court of reversed. The court stated that an examination of the record on appeal in the present case reveals that the plaintiff personally served the defendant with a statement of damages before requesting default. The judgment is therefore not invalid on its face (190 Cal. App. 3d 1583, 1588-1589) . The court stated that a default judgment is valid when based on actual service of summons on the defendant, although no proof of service is filed prior to entry of the judgment. The modern rule is that such a judgment is irregular, but not void. Thus, the court held that the plaintiff's failure to file proof of service of the statement of damages constituted a mere irregularity that did not void the judgment (190 Cal. App. 3d 1583, 1589) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
1. Relief From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.454-70.459

[Reserved]

§§ 70.454[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
2. Relief From Judgment or Order Void in Fact

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.460

§ 70.460 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Is Not Void on Its Face but Void in Fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.310[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] HEREIN ON THE GROUND THAT IT IS VOID BECAUSE, ALTHOUGH ITS INVALIDITY MAY NOT APPEAR FROM AN EXAMINATION OF THE JUDGMENT ROLL, IT IS NONETHELESS VOID IN FACT IN THAT _____ [specify].

A. Statutory Power to Set Aside Void Judgment. [See § 70.310[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Inherent Power to Set Aside Judgment Not Void on Its Face but Void in Fact. The law is settled that courts of record possess inherent power to set aside a void judgment, whether or not it is void on its face (Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1122, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286).

C. Court Has Duty to Set Aside Judgment. It is well settled that when an application to vacate and set aside a judgment that is not void on its face but void in fact is made within a reasonable time after its rendition, and is based on a sufficient showing, it is within the power of the court, and its duty, to set it aside (Smith v. Bratman (1917) 174 Cal. 518, 520, 163 P. 892).

[When appropriate, add points and authorities supporting additional grounds for relief from the void judgment or order (see, e.g., § 70.461[1]).]

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[moving party]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a judgment or order that is void in fact although not void on its face. The form is a general one, setting out the trial court's authority to set aside void judgments or orders generally, under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), and under the court's inherent power. In addition, the form sets out the court's more specific power to set aside a judgment or order that is void in fact on a motion brought within a reasonable time. This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant).

This form should be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), from a judgment or order void in fact because of other particular [see, e.g., §§ 70.461, 70.482].

This form may also be combined, in an appropriate case, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of relief based on other statutory or decisional authority [see discussion under [c], below].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. That is, counsel should refer to extrinsic evidence showing that the judgment or order is void for lack of jurisdiction over the person or the subject matter, or is void in whole or part as a judgment or order rendered in excess of the court's jurisdiction. Counsel should also refer to facts showing that the motion for relief was brought within a reasonable time under the circumstances of the case [see also § 70.470].

In an appropriate case, counsel would refer to evidence set forth in:

- Declarations submitted in support of relief from the judgment, order, or dismissal [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1306(a)].

- Discovery documents, such as deposition transcripts and answers to interrogatories and requests for admission.

- The opposing party's pleadings that constitute admissions.

- Other documentary evidence generally.

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion"), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702].

When counsel cites facts in his or her argument, counsel should refer to the particular page and line number of the declaration, deposition transcript, or other document, that contains the cited facts. In addition, the relevant portion of any testimony in a deposition should be marked in a manner that calls attention to the testimony [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1116(c)].

For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice and affidavits and declaration, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Alternative Methods of Obtaining Relief

A judgment void on its face may also be set aside as void under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), and under the court's inherent power [for further discussion, see [d], below]. For forms of memoranda supporting a grant of relief from a judgment or order on the ground that it is void on its face, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with this form, see §§ 70.310 -70.421.

A party may, in addition, obtain relief from a default and default judgment or other judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding on the ground of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. Additional statutory grounds also exist for relief from a default and default judgment [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473.1, 473.5]. For forms of memoranda supporting a grant of relief from default and default judgment or other judgment or order on these various additional statutory grounds, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with this form, see § 70.310 et seq.

A default judgment or other judgment or order may also be attacked by a motion or separate action in equity, when the judgment was obtained through extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress. For forms of memoranda supporting a grant of relief from a default judgment or other judgment or order on such equitable grounds, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with this form, see § 70.480 et seq.

[d] Void Judgment or Order

[i] In General

An judgment or order may be shown to be void either on its face, by examination of the judgment roll [see, e.g., Forbes v. Hyde (1866) 31 Cal. 342, 355 ; Morgan v. Clapp (1929) 207 Cal. 221, 224, 277 P. 490] , or in fact, by reference to extrinsic evidence outside the judgment roll [see City of Los Angeles v. Morgan (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 726, 730, 234 P.2d 319 (if invalidity of a judgment or order is not apparent by an inspection of the judgment or judgment roll, it may nonetheless be set aside by motion made within a reasonable time)]. For further discussion of what constitutes the judgment roll or record by which a judgment or order may be shown to be void on its face, see the § 70.310[2].

[ii] Time Limitation for Motion to Set Aside Judgment Void in Fact

The critical distinction between a judgment or order void on its face and one void in fact is that, in the latter case, there is a time limitation for seeking relief by motion [see, e.g., Johnson v. E-Z Insurance Brokerage, Inc. (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 86, 98-99, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 782 (discussed in § 70.140); Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1124, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286 (discussed under [3][a], below, and in § 70.470[3])], whereas a motion for relief from a judgment or order void on its face may be sought at any time [see, e.g., Nagel v. P & M Distributors, Inc. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 176, 179-180, 78 Cal. Rptr. 65 (discussed in § 70.312[3])].

Generally, any motion to set aside a judgment or order that is not void on its face but is void in fact must be brought within a "reasonable time" [City of Los Angeles v. Morgan (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 726, 730, 234 P.2d 319] . In determining the outer limits of what constitutes a reasonable time, courts have referred by analogy to statutory limitation periods. Some courts have applied the six-month limitation period applicable to motions under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (relief from otherwise valid judgment, order, or proceeding based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, and excusable neglect) [see, e.g., Wells Fargo & Co. v. City etc. of S.F. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 37, 40, 152 P.2d 625 ; In re Dahnke (1923) 64 Cal. App. 555, 560-563, 222 P. 381 ; for further discussion regarding this period, see the § 70.10[2]]. Other courts have applied the two-year or 180-day limitation period applicable to motions under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5, particularly when the judgment or order is void in fact due to some extrinsic defect in service [see, e.g., Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1122, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286] . For further discussion, see § 70.470[2].

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.470[1] may be used to oppose this form.

[f] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For forms of a notice of motion and order relating to a motion to set aside judgment, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders (Matthew Bender).

[g] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities for use in proceedings relating to the jurisdiction of the court over the subject matter and person, generally, see Ch. 132, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction and Inconvenient Forum , and Ch. 133, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter Jurisdiction .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inherent Power to Set Aside Judgment Not Void on Its Face but Void in Fact

The facts and procedural background of Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286 , is discussed in § 70.461[3]. In Rogers, the court of appeal, citing People v. One 1941 Chrysler Sedan (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 18, 21-22, 183 P.2d 368 , noted that is well established that trial courts have inherent power to set aside a void judgment whether or not it is void on its face. The court noted also that, when a judgment is not void on its face but is void in fact, this power may be used so long as a motion to set aside the judgment is made within a reasonable time. If a motion to set aside a judgment void in fact is not made within a reasonable time, the party seeking relief is relegated to an action in equity (216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1121) .

[b] Court Has Duty to Set Aside Judgment

In Smith v. Bratman (1917) 174 Cal. 518, 163 P. 892 , the plaintiff brought suit against the defendant and others to quiet title, had summons issued, and filed an affidavit by a person who stated that she had personally served the defendant with a summons and copy of the complaint. Subsequently, a default was entered and a decree quieting title of the plaintiff against the defendant was entered. Approximately four months thereafter, the defendant moved to vacate and set aside the decree on the ground that the affidavits of service on them were false, that no service whatever had been made on them, and that, hence, the court had not acquired jurisdiction to pronounce a decree against them and that the decree attempted to be pronounced was therefore void. In support of his motion, the defendant filed an affidavit stating that he had never been served and knew nothing of the pendency of the action until the decree was issued. The trial court granted the motion to set aside the decree and the plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed the trial court's order setting aside the decree, stating that it is well settled that when an application to vacate and set aside a judgment that is not void on its face but void in fact is made within a reasonable time after its rendition, and is based on a sufficient showing, it is within the power of the court, and its duty, to set it aside. According to the Court, what is a reasonable time within which to make such a motion has been clearly laid down in this state as being the same time that is allowed for motions which are permitted to be made under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, and must be made within six months after the entry of the order, judgment, or decree (174 Cal. 518, 520) . The Court held that since the motion in the case was made within six months after the entry of the decree, it was made within time and a sufficient showing in the judgment of the trial court having been made to warrant it, the order setting aside the decree must be sustained (174 Cal. 518, 520-521) .

Note that, in another opinion involving the same parties, the Supreme Court observed that two time periods were stated by Code Civ. Proc. § 473: one being six months [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)] and the other being one year [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 (providing a two-year or 180-day period, formerly a one-year period under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473 and, from 1933 to 1969, under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473a)]. In that case, however, the court did not reach the question of which period was applicable, since the motion had been made more than one year after the judgment [see Smith v. Jones (1917) 174 Cal. 513, 515, 163 P. 890 (discussed in § 70.470[3])]. For further discussion, see the Comments under [2][d][ii], above.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
2. Relief From Judgment or Order Void in Fact

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.461

§ 70.461 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Is Not Void on Its Face but Void in Fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Judgment or Order Is Void for Lack of Personal Jurisdiction Because of Improper Service of Process--Evidence Admissible to Challenge Fact of Service

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside a judgment or order void in fact (see, e.g., § 70.460).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT HEREIN, ON THE GROUND THAT IT IS VOID IN FACT, BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM EXTRINSIC EVIDENCE THAT DEFENDANT WAS NOT SERVED WITH SUMMONS AND A COPY OF THE COMPLAINT AS REQUIRED BY STATUTE.

A. Statutory Requirement for Service of Summons. [See § 70.330[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Personal Jurisdiction Not Conferred If Manner of Service Improper. [See § 70.333[1]].

C. Default Judgment Void in Fact Because of Improper Service. A default judgment that is not void on its face may be otherwise void in fact because service of the summons was improper (Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1121, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286).

D. Evidence Admissible to Challenge Fact of Service. A sworn return of service of summons may be impeached by evidence that contradicts it (City of Los Angeles v. Morgan (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 726, 731, 234 P.2d 319).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a judgment that is not void on its face but void in fact, because it appears from evidence outside the judgment roll that service was defective. This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant).

This form may be combined with points and authorities supporting a motion to set aside a void default and default judgment on the ground that defendant was not served [see § 70.331[1]]. It may also be combined with points and authorities supporting a motion to set aside when the motion is made in conjunction with a motion to quash [see § 70.314[1]]. For forms of memoranda supporting a motion to quash under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10, which may in such cases be combined with this form, see Ch. 132, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction and Inconvenient Forum .

This form should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a judgment or order void in fact [see § 70.460[1]]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.460[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a judgment or order void in fact and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, if the judgment was not void on its face but void in fact because defendant was never served despite a false statement to the contrary in the proof of service, counsel should refer to facts in the moving party's supporting declaration that establish nonservice. See also § 70.460[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Alternative Relief When Improper Service Appears on Examination of Judgment Roll

In some instances a defect in manner of service may be established by examination of the judgment roll. In these instances, the judgment is void on its face in addition to, or instead of, being void in fact. For further discussion and points and authorities for use in these instances, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with this form, see §§ 70.330 -70.336.

[d] Methods of Service of Summons

The five alternative methods for the serving of summons authorized by the basic service of summons statutes are:

- Personal delivery of a copy of the summons and complaint to the person to be served [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.10].

- The leaving of a copy of the summons and complaint with a specified person at the defendant's usual place of abode, usual place of business or, if no physical address is known, at the person's usual mailing address, other than a United States Postal Service post office box, with the person who is apparently in charge [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20].

- The sending of a copy of the summons and complaint by ordinary mail to the person to be served with a request that he or she execute and return an enclosed statutory form of "Acknowledgment of Receipt of Summons" to the sender [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30].

- The sending of a copy of the summons and complaint to the person to be served, by first-class mail, postage prepaid, requiring a return receipt [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.40].

- The service of summons by publication [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50]. Service by mail under Code Civ.

Proc. § 415.40 may be used only to effectuate service of summons on a person who is outside the State of California [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.40].

Any of the other four methods of serving summons may be used to effectuate the service of summons on a person either within or outside of the State of California [Code Civ. Proc. § 413.10; see 1969 Annual Report, Judicial Council of California, p. 43 (Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.10)].

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.470 -70.471 may be used to oppose this form.

[f] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For forms of a notice of motion relating to proceedings to quash service of summons on ground of lack of personal jurisdiction, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances (Matthew Bender). For forms of notice of motion relating to service and return of summons, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Default Judgment Void in Fact Because of Improper Service

The facts and procedural background of Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286 , are discussed in § 70.482[3] . In Rogers, the defendant's motion for relief was grounded in part on former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 6th Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)), which empowers a court on motion of either party after notice to the other party, to set aside any void judgment or order. The plaintiffs in the case did not dispute that a default judgment valid on its face but otherwise void because service was improper was governed by that section (216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1120-1121) .

[b] Evidence Admissible to Challenge Fact of Service

City of Los Angeles v. Morgan (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 726, 234 P.2d 319 , involved an action by the city to condemn a parcel of land in which the trial court was required to determine ownership. A decree in a quiet title action occurring nearly 30 years prior to the condemnation action had quieted title to the property in J. Truitt, the grantor of Catherine McKinna, a defendant in the condemnation suit. In that quiet title action, the title owner of record, a corporation, was not named as a defendant, but was purportedly served as a fictitious defendant. However, it appeared that service on the corporation was not made and that the return of service filed in the quiet title action was fraudulent. In the years following the quiet title action, the corporation and its successor, Los Angeles Rock and Gravel Company, paid property taxes and maintained possession of the property, during which time McKinna evinced no interest in the property. The trial court in the condemnation action determined, on the basis of these facts, that Los Angeles Rock and Gravel was the absolute owner of the property and as such was entitled to the condemnation award. McKinna appealed, contending among other things that the gravel company had constructive notice of the fraud in the quiet title action when the decree therein was recorded and for that reason could not be relieved of that judgment.

Affirming the trial court's judgment, the court of appeal cited McDonald v. Mabee (1917) 243 U.S. 90, 37 S. Ct. 343, 61 L. Ed. 608 , for the statement that under the due process clause of the federal Constitution a personal judgment rendered without service of process on, or legal notice to, a defendant is void, in the absence of a voluntary appearance or waiver (105 Cal. App. 2d 726, 730) . The court noted that a judgment void on its face may be vacated at any time, but went on to say that if the invalidity of the judgment is not apparent by an inspection of the judgment or the judgment roll, it may be set aside by a motion filed within a reasonable time. The court stated that a reasonable time is "not longer than the time set forth in Code of Civil Procedure section 473" (105 Cal. App. 2d 726, 730) . If the "reasonable time" has passed, the challenge permitted is restricted to an independent action in equity to vacate the judgment (105 Cal. App. 2d 726, 730) . The court cited earlier cases for the principle that a false affidavit of service constitutes extrinsic fraud in that it prevents a party from having his or her day in court, and that it has been the accepted rule in California that a sworn return of service of summons may be impeached by evidence that contradicts it (105 Cal. App. 2d 726, 731) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
2. Relief From Judgment or Order Void in Fact

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.462

§ 70.462 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Is Not Void on Its Face but Void in Fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Judgment or Order Is Void for Lack of Personal Jurisdiction Because of Improper Service of Process--Time Limitation on Default Judgment Is Void in Fact for Lack of Proper Service

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a memorandum supporting a motion to set aside a judgment or order void in fact because of lack of personal jurisdiction due to improper service of process (see, e.g., § 70.461[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT HEREIN, BECAUSE THE MOTION IS TIMELY MADE.

Time Limitation on Default Judgment Valid on Its Face but Void in Fact for Lack of Proper Service. The period of limitations stated Code Civil Procedure Section 473.5 governs, by analogy, the time within which a motion may be brought to set aside a judgment that is valid on its face but void in fact because of improper service of process. That section, which governs motions to set aside a default or default judgment when the service of summons has not resulted in actual notice to the defendant, requires that the motion for relief be made within two years after entry of the default judgment or 180 days after service on the defendant of a written notice that the default or default judgment has been entered, whichever is earlier (Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1124, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a judgment that is not void on its face but void in fact, because the motion is timely under the period of limitations stated in Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 [Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1124, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286] . This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant).

These points and authorities should be combined with a memorandum supporting a motion to set aside a judgment or order void in fact because of lack of personal jurisdiction due to improper service of process [see, e.g., § 70.461[1]]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.460[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a judgment or order void in fact and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.460[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Time Limitation on Judgment Not Void on Its Face but Void in Fact for Lack of Proper Service

Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286 , was an action filed on September 27, 1984, for fraud and negligent misrepresentation. The proof of service stated that the summons and complaint were served on October 19, 1985, by leaving them at a specified address in Mission Hills, California, with defendant's brother Richard, who was stated to be a co-occupant, competent adult apparently in charge at the place of defendant's residence. Defendant's default was entered on January 13, 1986, and a default judgment awarding plaintiff the sum of almost $3 million was entered March 4, 1987. On December 3, 1987, defendant appeared specially and moved (1) to quash service of summons (Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)) on the ground the court lacked jurisdiction over the defendant's person; (2) to set aside the judgment (Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)) on the ground the judgment was void for lack of jurisdiction; and (3) to dismiss the action (Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210) on the ground the summons and complaint had not been served within three years after the complaint was filed. In support of his motion, defendant declared (1) that he had never lived at or near the specified address in Mission Hills, California, and did not know and was not related to anyone living at that address; (2) that, since August 1984, he had lived at a specified address in Las Vegas, Nevada, and that before that time he had lived in Culver City, California; and (3) that he had no brother named Richard, only a brother named Jerome, who had never lived at the Mission Hills address but, rather, lived at a specified address in Tarzana, California, where he had resided for at least the past 10 years. The trial court granted defendant's motion, but set aside its order on a motion for reconsideration on the ground that defendant's motion for relief was untimely, having been made more than one year after the entry of default. Defendant appealed.

In reversing the order with directions to reinstate that part of its prior order vacating the default judgment, the court of appeal traced the legislative history of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 and related provisions. The court noted that previously most courts had applied a one-year limitation period to motions to set aside judgments that were void in fact, at least when the judgment had been obtained by default because of defective service. This period was derived by analogy to the one-year period in former Code Civ. Proc. § 473a, which provided for relief from a default judgment when service was constructive only and did not provide defendant with actual notice or an opportunity to defend. However, this one-year period has been altered under its successor statute, Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5, which now provides that a motion under that section must be served and filed within a reasonable time not either two years after entry of the default judgment, or 180 days after service on the defendant of a written notice that such default or default judgment had been entered, whichever period expires earlier (216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1121-1124) . The court concluded that in cases such as the one before it, when there had been no effective service on defendant, the period under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 should now apply by analogy, just as the former one-year period under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473a had previously been applied. Noting that no notice of the default or default judgment had been properly served on the defendant, the court concluded that the two-year period specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 applied by analogy and that the motion to vacate had been timely served and filed (216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1124) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
2. Relief From Judgment or Order Void in Fact

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.463

§ 70.463 Supporting Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Is Not Void on Its Face but Void in Fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Judgment or Order Is Void for Lack of Authority of Attorney

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion to set aside a judgment or order void in fact (see, e.g., § 70.460[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT PLAINTIFF'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE JUDGMENT OF DISMISSAL HEREIN, ON THE GROUND THAT IT IS VOID IN FACT, BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM EXTRINSIC EVIDENCE THAT PLAINTIFF'S ATTORNEY WAS ACTING WITHOUT AUTHORITY.

A. Void Judgment May Be Vacated if Attorney Acted Without Authorization of Client. A judgment of dismissal with prejudice is void and may be vacated if the party's attorney dismissed the action without the client's authorization (Robinson v. Hiles (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 666, 673, 260 P.2d 194).

B. Attorney's Mistaken Dismissal With Prejudice Is Without Client's Authorization. Plaintiffs' attorney's lack of authority to dismiss the action with prejudice invalidated the dismissal (Romadka v. Hoge (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1231, 1237, 283 Cal. Rptr. 878).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a motion to set aside a judgment of dismissal with prejudice when the attorney did not have the client's authorization to dismiss with prejudice.

This form should be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for relief from a judgment or order void in fact [see § 70.460[1]]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.460[2] for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a judgment or order void in fact and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, if the judgment was not void on its face but void in fact because the moving party never authorized dismissal with prejudice, counsel should refer to facts in the declaration of the moving party's supporting declaration that establish the lack of authorization. See also § 70.460[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For forms of a notice of motion and order relating to a motion to set aside judgment, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Void Judgment May Be Vacated if Attorney Acted Without Authorization of Client

In Robinson v. Hiles (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 666, 260 P.2d 194 , plaintiff's attorney had entered into a settlement agreement and subsequently dismissed the action with prejudice. The trial court granted plaintiff relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 based on plaintiff's assertion that he had not authorized settlement of the action. The court of appeal affirmed, noting that motions under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 are addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court and will not be disturbed unless there is a showing of an abuse of discretion (119 Cal. App. 2d 666, 673-674) .

[b] Attorney's Mistaken Dismissal With Prejudice Is Without Client's Authorization

In Romadka v. Hoge (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1231, 283 Cal. Rptr. 878 , plaintiffs' action in Santa Clara county fell subject to mandatory dismissal without prejudice for failure to serve defendant within three years. Within the limitations period, plaintiffs refiled the action in Santa Cruz county. Plaintiff's attorney then filed a request for dismissal of the still pending Santa Clara county action but, by mistake, checked the "with prejudice" box instead of the "without prejudice" box. Plaintiffs had not authorized dismissal of the action with prejudice. At trial defendant obtained a judgment based on the dismissal with prejudice; plaintiffs' motion to vacate the dismissal with prejudice or to correct it to reflect a dismissal without prejudice was denied (232 Cal. App. 3d 1231, 1234) .

Defendant then obtained a dismissal of the Santa Cruz county action on the ground of res judicata. Plaintiffs appealed from the judgment, arguing that the voluntary dismissal with prejudice was invalid because plaintiffs' attorney lacked authority to surrender plaintiffs' substantial rights in the action (232 Cal. App. 3d 1231, 1234) .

The court of appeal agreed, and reversed the denial of plaintiffs' motion to vacate and the ensuing judgment in the Santa Cruz action. Given that there was no conceivable reason to dismiss the action with prejudice rather than without prejudice, the trial court abused its discretion in disbelieving the attorney's testimony that she acted without authority and by mistake (232 Cal. App. 3d 1231, 1237) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
2. Relief From Judgment or Order Void in Fact

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.464-70.469

[Reserved]

§§ 70.464[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
2. Relief From Judgment or Order Void in Fact

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.470

§ 70.470 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Not Void on Its Face but Void in Fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] on Ground That Motion Is Untimely--When Motion Asserts That Judgment Is Void in Fact Based on Defective Service--In General

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.430[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE DEFENDANT DID NOT BRING THE MOTION WITHIN A REASONABLE TIME.

A. Court's Power to Set Aside Judgment Not Void on Its Face Limited to Reasonable Time. In order to invoke the power of the court to set aside a judgment that is not void on its face, the motion must be made within a reasonable time (Smith v. Jones (1917) 174 Cal. 513, 515, 163 P. 890).

B. Application by Analogy of Code of Civil Procedure Section 473.5 Time Limitation. The time limitation set forth in Code of Civil Procedure Section 473.5 applies by analogy to motions under the last paragraph of Code of Civil Procedure Section 473 for relief from a default judgment valid on its face but otherwise void because of improper service (Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1124, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286 ; Schenkel v. Resnik (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1, 3-4 , 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 60). Section 473.5 requires the defendant to bring the motion within a reasonable time, but in no event exceeding the earlier of (1) two years after entry of a default judgment against him or her; or (2) 180 days after service on him or her of a written notice that the default or default judgment has been entered (Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5(a)).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[opposing party]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a default and default judgment when the judgment is not void on its face but is asserted to be void in fact. The ground for opposition is that the motion is untimely if the motion asserts that judgment is void in fact for lack of personal jurisdiction based on defective service. The form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a plaintiff (for example, a cross complainant).

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.460 -70.482. These points and authorities may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief. They may also be combined, in an appropriate case, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of relief based on other statutory or decisional authority [see discussion under [c], below].

For a form of points and authorities setting forth the test for what constitutes reasonable time, see § 70.471[1].

See also §§ 70.310, 70.430, and 70.460 for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order, alternative methods for obtaining relief, and discussion relating to use of these points and authorities to oppose an alternative motion for relief from a judgment void on its face.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. That is, counsel should refer to facts showing that under the circumstances, the motion was not made within a reasonable time. See also § 70.460[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Alternative Methods of Obtaining Relief

A party may also obtain relief from a default and default judgment or other judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding on the ground of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. Additional statutory grounds also exist for relief from a default and default judgment [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473.1, 473.5]. For points and authorities supporting a grant of relief from default and default judgment or other judgment or order on these various additional statutory grounds, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with the points and authorities in this form, see § 70.10 et seq.

A default judgment or other judgment or order may also be attacked by a motion or separate action in equity, when the judgment was obtained through extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress. For points and authorities supporting a grant of relief from a default judgment or other judgment or order on those equitable grounds, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with the points and authorities in this form, see § 70.480 et seq.

[d] Time Limitation for Motion to Set Aside Judgment Void in Fact

Generally, a motion to set aside a judgment or order that is not void on its face but is void in fact must be brought within a "reasonable time" [City of Los Angeles v. Morgan (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 726, 730, 234 P.2d 319] . In determining the outer limits of what constitutes a reasonable time, courts have referred by analogy to statutory limitation periods.

Some courts have applied the six-month limitation period applicable to motions under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (relief from otherwise valid judgment, order, or proceeding based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, and excusable neglect) [see, e.g., Wells Fargo & Co. v. City etc. of S.F. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 37, 40, 152 P.2d 625 . For further discussion regarding this period, see the § 70.10[2]].

When the judgment or order is void in fact due to an extrinsic defect in service, some courts have applied the two-year or 180-day limitation period applicable to motions under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 [see, e.g., Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1122, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286 ; Schenkel v. Resnik (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1, 3-4 , 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 60] .

The cases are not always clear, and in some instances appear to be confused or mistaken, in applying the proper statutory limitation period by analogy. It appears reasonable to conclude from them, however, that the reasonable time rule, subject to the two-year or 180-day limitation, of Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 applies, by analogy, in any case in which the judgment is asserted to be void in fact because of lack of jurisdiction resulting from defective service, as set out in Paragraph B and § 70.471[1]. This is because relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 is authorized in a similar situation, in which a default judgment has been entered after proper constructive service, but the defendant has not received actual notice and has had no opportunity to defend [see Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1121-1124, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286] .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court's Power to Set Aside Judgment Not Void on Its Face Limited to Reasonable Time

Smith v. Jones (1917) 174 Cal. 513, 163 P. 890 , involved an action to quiet title to a tract of land. Summons was issued and a person subsequently filed an affidavit that he had personally served the defendant with a copy of the summons and complaint in the action. A default and default judgment was entered. Later, the defendant moved to set aside the default and vacate the judgment on the ground that he had never been served in the action. In support of the motion, the defendant submitted an affidavit swearing, among other things, that he had not been served with summons in the action at any time and that he was not in the county or the state during the year of the purported service, and that he had no knowledge of the pendency of the action until about a year after the rendition of the action against him. The motion was heard on the affidavit and the judgment roll in the case, and the trial court made an order setting aside the default and the judgment. The plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed, noting that it was not contended that the judgment entered in the action against the defendant was invalid on its face. What was claimed was that the judgment was in fact void because the affidavit of service by the person purporting to make the service was false, that no summons had ever been served on the defendant, and hence, the court was without jurisdiction to pronounce judgment against him. The court stated that, undoubtedly, though it may appear from the record of a judgment entered on a default that service was made on a defendant, and, hence, a judgment against him is valid on its face, it is well settled that such a judgment may be set aside on motion either under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 on any the grounds specified in that section, or independent of that section when, as in the case before the Court, the motion is made on the ground that its entry was based solely on a false return of person service on the defendant. In order to invoke the power of the court to set aside the judgment, however, the motion must be made within a reasonable time, or the right to make it is lost, and the party is remitted to an action in equity to have the judgment declared void (174 Cal. 513, 515) . The Court then referred to Section 473 to determine whether the motion was brought within a reasonable time, pointing out that two periods of time given in the version of Section 473 then in effect, which were six months and one year. The Court concluded that whether the latter period applied to the case before it was immaterial since the motion was not made even within that period (174 Cal. 513, 516) . Thus, the court held that the defendant's motion to set aside the judgment was made too late, and for that reason, the court had no power to make the order (174 Cal. 513, 517) .

[b] Application by Analogy of Code of Civil Procedure Section 473.5 Time Limitation

The facts and procedural background of Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286 , are discussed in § 70.461[3]. In Rogers, the court of appeal cited opinions applying the limitation periods in former Code Civ. Proc. § 473a, by analogy, to motions to relief a party from a void judgment not void on its face when there was no personal service (216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1121-1122) . The court noted that in 1969 former Code Civ. Proc. § 473a was repealed and replaced by the current Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5, and that the Legislature, in replacing Section 473a did not make a sweeping revision of the law relating to motions to set aside defaults and default judgments. The court held that what is a "reasonable time," for purpose of bringing a motion to vacate a default judgment that is valid on its face but is otherwise void for lack of jurisdiction because of improper service of the summons on the defendant, is to be determined by reference to the period of limitations set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5, which applies by analogy (216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1123) .

Under that statute, because the plaintiff had not served written notice of entry of a default judgment, the defendant had two years from entry of the default or default judgment to move for relief. The court rejected the plaintiff's argument that the two-year period had to be calculated from the entry of default as opposed to entry of the default judgment. Thus, the court held that the defendant's motion had therefore been timely, and that the trial court had jurisdiction to rule on the motion (216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1124-1126) . Because the trial court, on reconsideration of its original order vacating the default judgment, had reversed itself on the ground it had lacked jurisdiction to make that order because the motion had been untimely, the court of appeal reversed (216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1120) .

In Schenkel v. Resnik (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1 , 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 60 , defendant failed to file an answer to plaintiff's civil complaint. Plaintiff wrote to defendant's counsel, informing him that plaintiff had requested the entry of defendant's default. On October 8, 1990, five days after the default was entered, defendant's counsel acknowledged the entry of default by letter to plaintiff. On July 11, 1991, the trial court entered a default judgment for plaintiff and on May 14, 1992, defendant filed a motion to set aside the default judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473 on the grounds that defendant had not been served a copy of the summons, and that the judgment exceeded the relief demanded in the complaint. The trial court denied the motion, ruling that it had not been filed within a reasonable time after defendant's acknowledgment of the default (27 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1, 3) .

The appellate department of the superior court affirmed. Defendant contended that under Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286 , he had two years from the date the default judgment was entered to file a motion to set aside the default judgment. The court agreed that the time limitation set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 applies by analogy to motions for relief from a default judgment valid on its face but otherwise void because of improper service, but disagreed with the defendant's argument of how that rule applied to the case (27 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1, 3-4) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
2. Relief From Judgment or Order Void in Fact

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.471

§ 70.471 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Not Void on Its Face but Void in Fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] on Ground That Motion Is Untimely--When Motion Asserts That Judgment Is Void in Fact Based on Defective Service--What Constitutes Reasonable Time

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside a judgment or order void in fact on ground that motion is untimely (see, e.g., § 70.470[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE DEFENDANT HAS FAILED TO SHOW BOTH A SATISFACTORY EXCUSE FOR THE DEFAULT AND DILIGENCE IN MAKING THE MOTION AFTER DISCOVERY OF THE DEFAULT.

What Constitutes "Reasonable Time." The "reasonable time" limitation operates separately from the two-year or 180-day limitation periods, and begins to run on discovery of the default, not on entry of the default judgment (Schenkel v. Resnik (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1, 3-4 , 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 60). Thus, although the court has jurisdiction to set aside the judgment within the time periods specified in Section 473.5 (Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1124, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286), the party bringing a motion within that period must, by analogy to the construction of similar language in Code of Civil Procedure Section 473, third paragraph, show both a satisfactory excuse for the default and diligence in making the motion after discovery of the default (Schenkel v. Resnik (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1, 3-4).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a default and default judgment when the judgment is not void on its face but is asserted to be void in fact. The ground for opposition is that the motion is untimely in that the defendant did not act with satisfactory diligence in making the motion after discovery of the default. The form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a plaintiff (for example, a cross complainant).

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.460 -70.482.

These points and authorities should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion to set aside a judgment or order void in fact on ground that motion is untimely [see, e.g., § 70.470[1]].

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. That is, counsel should refer to facts showing that under the circumstances, the motion was not made within a reasonable time. See also § 70.460[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] What Constitutes "Reasonable Time"

The facts and procedural background of Schenkel v. Resnik (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1 , 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 60 , and Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286 , are discussed in § 70.470[2][b].

After agreeing that the time limitation of Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 applied to the motion by analogy, the court in Schenkel distinguished Rogers, which had discussed the two-year limit. The Schenkel court held that under the language of Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5, although the two years begins to run after entry of a default judgment, the reasonable time requirement is entirely separate. The court looked to cases interpreting analogous language in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) relating to relief based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect to hold that the reasonable time requirement requires both a satisfactory excuse for the entry of default and diligence in making the motion after discovery of the default. Applying that rule, the court found that defendant knew he had been sued and that plaintiff had requested a default in October, 1990. Since defendant took no action until May, 1992, the court concluded that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in finding that the motion was not made within a reasonable time (27 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1, 3-4) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
2. Relief From Judgment or Order Void in Fact

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.472

§ 70.472 Opposing Motion to Set Aside Judgment or Order Not Void on Its Face but Void in Fact [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] on Ground That Motion Is Untimely--When Motion Asserts Reason Other Than Defective Service

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.430[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT BECAUSE DEFENDANT DID NOT BRING THE MOTION WITHIN A REASONABLE TIME.

A. Court's Power to Set Aside Judgment Not Void on Its Face Limited to Reasonable Time. [See § 70.470[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Motion Must Be Brought Within Six-Month Period in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). A motion to vacate a judgment, made after the expiration of the six-month period allowed in Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b), is governed by the rules applicable to collateral attack. Under those rules, unless extrinsic fraud or mistake is shown, a judgment cannot be set aside unless it is void on its face (Wells Fargo & Co. v. City etc. of S.F. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 37, 40, 152 P.2d 625).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[opposing party]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion to set aside a default and default judgment when the judgment is not void on its face but is asserted to be void in fact. The ground for opposition is that the motion is untimely if the motion asserts that judgment is void in fact for a reason other than for lack of personal jurisdiction based on defective service. The form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a plaintiff (for example, a cross complainant).

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.460 -70.482. These points and authorities may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief. They may also be combined, in an appropriate case, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of relief based on other statutory or decisional authority.

See also §§ 70.310, 70.430, and 70.460 for additional general considerations relating to a motion for relief from a void judgment or order, alternative methods for obtaining relief, and discussion relating to use of these points and authorities to oppose an alternative motion for relief from a judgment void on its face.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. That is, counsel should refer to facts showing that under the circumstances, the motion was not made within a reasonable time. See also § 70.460[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion Must Be Brought Within Six-Month Period in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)

Wells Fargo & Co. v. City etc. of S.F. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 37, 40, 152 P.2d 625 , involved actions to recover from the county taxes paid under protest. In each case a general demurrer was overruled and time was allowed to answer, but no answers were filed. The plaintiff secured default judgments. Defendant thereafter moved to set the judgments aside as void. Among other contentions, the defendant asserted that the court had no jurisdiction to enter the judgments on the application of an attorney who was not plaintiff's attorney of record, and that both the awarding of costs against a subdivision of the state and the granting of interest for a period preceding the judgment were in excess of the jurisdiction of the county. The trial court granted the motions to set aside and the plaintiff appealed from the orders.

The Supreme Court reversed, stating that a motion to vacate a judgment, made after the expiration of the six-month period allowed in former (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) is governed by the rules applicable to collateral attack. In the absence of extrinsic fraud or mistake, a judgment so attacked cannot be set aside unless it is void on its face (25 Cal. 2d 37, 40) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Statutory Relief From Void Judgment or Order Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)
2. Relief From Judgment or Order Void in Fact

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.473-70.479

[Reserved]

§§ 70.473[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
1. Motions in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.480

§ 70.480 Supporting Motion in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--General Form

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF DEFEND-
vs.	)	ANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE
_____ [name],	)	_____ [DEFAULT AND DE-
Defendant.	)	FAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER]
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
		Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] ON THE GROUND THAT DEFENDANT WAS PREVENTED BY EXTRINSIC _____ [MISTAKE or FRAUD or DURESS] FROM PRESENTING HIS/HER CASE TO THE COURT.

A. Inherent Equitable Power of Court to Set Aside Judgment. The Court possesses an inherent equity power under which, apart from its statutory authority, it has the power to grant relief from a default judgment when there has been extrinsic fraud or mistake (Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 855, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 ; Manson, Iver & York v. Black (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 36, 43-49, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 522). A motion is a proper means of raising grounds for equitable relief when the court that rendered the judgment possesses general jurisdiction in law and equity (Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 576, 122 P.2d 564 (dictum)).

B. Motion Addressed to Discretion of Court. A motion for relief from a default is addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court (Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 854, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700).

C. Policy of Law. The policy of law favors, whenever possible, a hearing on the merits, and disfavors a party who, regardless of the merits of the case, attempts to take advantage of the mistake, surprise, inadvertence, or neglect of his or her adversary. Thus, appellate courts are much more disposed to affirm an order if the result is to compel a trial on the merits than they are when the judgment by default is allowed to stand and it appears that a substantial defense could be made (Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 854-855, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700).

[Add additional points and authorities supporting relief from judgment or order in particular circumstances (see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.623). In addition, when applicable, include additional points and authorities that generally support a defendant's motion in equity for relief from judgment or order (see, e.g., § 70.481 et seq.).]

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[moving party]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a motion in equity to set aside a default and default judgment or other judgment or order, on the ground of extrinsic fraud or mistake. The form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a defendant (for example, a cross defendant).

These points and authorities should be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of relief under the particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.623].

In addition, as applicable, this form should be combined with additional points and authorities that generally support a defendant's motion in equity for relief from judgment or order, for example:

- Motion is timely [§ 70.481[1]].
- Defendant has a meritorious defense to the action [§ 70.482[1]].

- Judgment or order resulted from extrinsic fraud [§ 70.483[1]].

- Judgment or order resulted from extrinsic mistake [§ 70.484[1]].

The points and authorities may also be combined, in an appropriate case, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of relief based on other decisional or statutory authority [see discussion under [c], below].

The points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

With appropriate modifications, the points and authorities set out in the form may be combined with points and authorities support a grant of equitable relief from default in a separate suit in equity. For example, they may be used in connection with a memorandum opposing a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief from default [see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528] or a memorandum opposing a motion for summary judgment in such an action [see, e.g., §§ 70.540, 70.541].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

In an appropriate case, counsel would refer to evidence set forth in:

- Declarations submitted in support of relief from the judgment, order, or dismissal [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1306(a)].

- Discovery documents, such as deposition transcripts and answers to interrogatories and requests for admission.

- The opposing party's pleadings that constitute admissions.

- Other documentary evidence generally.

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion"), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702].

When counsel cites facts in his or her argument, counsel should refer to the particular page and line number of the declaration, deposition transcript, or other document, that contains the cited facts. In addition, the relevant portion of any testimony in a deposition should be marked in a manner that calls attention to the testimony [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1116(c)].

For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice and affidavits and declaration, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Alternative Methods of Obtaining Relief

In addition to equitable relief, a party may obtain relief from a default and default judgment or other judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding on the ground of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. Additional statutory grounds also exist for relief from a default and default judgment [see, e.g., Code Civ.

Proc. §§ 473.1, 473.5]. For forms of memoranda supporting a grant of relief from default and default judgment or other judgment or order on these various additional statutory grounds, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with these points and authorities, see § 70.10 et seq.

A default judgment or other judgment or order may also be set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), on the ground that it is void. For forms of memoranda supporting a grant of relief from a void default judgment or other void judgment or order, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with these points and authorities, see § 70.310 et seq.

[d] Motion for Equitable Relief From Default

[i] In General

This form is a general one that sets out the policy of the law with respect to motions for equitable relief from default, and the elements the moving party must show to obtain relief, including:

- Diligence in seeking relief within a reasonable time after the discovery of the entry of the judgment.

- A showing of meritorious defense to the action, in cases involving relief from default judgments (except those involving marital dissolution or void judgments) [see discussion under [ii], below].

- The ground for relief, which requires a showing that the judgment resulted from the extrinsic mistake of the defaulting party or his or her attorney, or extrinsic fraud practiced on the defendant by the opposing party.

In an appropriate case, this form may be modified to support a motion for relief based on duress [see §§ 70.600 -70.603].

[ii] Showing of Meritorious Defense

Generally, equitable relief may be granted from a default and default judgment only when defendant can subsequently present a meritorious case [Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 578, 122 P.2d 564] . Thus, the points and authorities in § 70.482[1] should generally be used when seeking relief from a default judgment.

There are two noted exceptions to this general rule, however. One, for policy reasons, involves proceedings for marital dissolution [see, e.g., Sanchez v. Sanchez (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 159, 164, 77 Cal. Rptr. 884] . The other involves void judgments, which are deemed a nullity and hence may be set aside on a defendant's motion without a showing of good defense or that a different judgment would result from a new trial [see, e.g., Cadenasso v. Bank of Italy (1932) 214 Cal. 562, 568-569, 6 P.2d 944 ; Mattison v. Lichlyter (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 60, 65, 327 P.2d 599 ; see also Peralta v. Heights Medical Center, Inc. (1988) 485 U.S. 80, 108 S. Ct. 896, 99 L. Ed. 2d 75] . For forms of points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief on the basis of these two exceptions, see respectively §§ 70.622, 70.623.

[iii] Motion in Probate Proceeding

This memorandum may not be submitted in probate court proceedings since the superior court sitting in probate has no general equity jurisdiction but only has the power to apply equitable principles in aid of its functions as a probate court. This means that a judgment sought to be vacated which is not void on the face thereof may not be challenged by a motion to vacate on grounds of extrinsic fraud but may be challenged only as part of proceedings which are well within the accepted function of a court exercising its probate jurisdiction [see Neubrand v. Superior Court (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 311, 322, 88 Cal. Rptr. 586 (discussed under [4], below)]. Note, however, that a party may seek relief from a probate court decree or order in a separate action in equity [see Bacon v. Bacon (1907) 150 Cal. 477, 481-482, 89 P. 317

(discussed in § 70.522[3])].

[iv] Independent Suit in Equity

If a motion in equity is denied, a later suit in equity may be maintained if the issues involved in the action were not fully presented in the hearing on the motion [Rohrbasser v. Lederer (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 290, 298, 224 Cal. Rptr. 791 ; Darlington v. Basalt Rock Co. (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 706, 710, 10 Cal. Rptr. 556] . If a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is denied, a subsequent suit in equity may be brought on the same grounds presented in the hearing on the motion even if these grounds had been fully presented, since the statutory remedy is cumulative and does not displace the equitable remedy [Bacon v. Bacon (1907) 150 Cal. 477, 484-485, 89 P. 317 ; Estudillo v. Security Loan etc. Co. (1906) 149 Cal. 556, 564-565, 87 P. 19] . For forms of memoranda of points and authorities relating to an independent suit in equity, see § 70.500 et seq.

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.490 may be used to oppose the motion supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inherent Equitable Power of Superior Court to Set Aside Judgment

In Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 , defendant's default was taken and judgment entered against him when he failed to answer the complaint due to his reliance on his insurance company to defend. His motion to set aside the judgment was not made until nearly two years after entry of the default.

The Supreme Court affirmed the trial court's order granting defendant's motion. The Court, citing earlier cases, noted that, because his motion was made more than six months after entry of the default, it was not directed to the court's statutory power to grant relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473; rather it was directed to the court's inherent equity power, under which the court has the power to grant relief from a default judgment when there has been "extrinsic" fraud or mistake (63 Cal. 2d 849, 855) .

Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 122 P.2d 564 , involved an equitable action brought by the administrator of an estate to set aside a default judgment rendered against the deceased prior to her death, at a time when the deceased was mentally incompetent. The plaintiff administrator appealed from the trial court's judgment for defendant.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment. The Court discussed the law relating to the setting aside of judgments rendered against incompetent defendants, noting both a statutory power and an inherent power residing in the courts to open, vacate, or modify judgments (19 Cal. 2d 570, 573-575) . Citing earlier cases, the Court stated that one who has been prevented by extrinsic factors from presenting his or her case to the court may bring an independent suit in equity for relief from a judgment (19 Cal. 2d 570, 575) . Furthermore, the Court asserted, when the court that rendered the judgment possesses a general jurisdiction in law and in equity, the jurisdiction of equity may be invoked by means of a motion addressed to that court (19 Cal. 2d 570, 576) .

For further discussion of Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 122 P.2d 564 , see § 70.520 et seq.

In Manson, Iver & York v. Black (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 36, 43-49, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 522 , the plaintiff filed a complaint for personal injury against "Pamela Black," but served the complaint on defendant "Paula Black." Upon receiving the complaint, the defendant notified the plaintiff's counsel that she was not the person named in the complaint. Nonetheless, the plaintiff obtained a default judgment against her. The plaintiff subsequently filed an ex parte application to amend the judgment to correct the defendant's name, claiming that he had discovered her name was not Pamela Black, but Paula Black. The court granted the application and entered the order. The record does not reflect that notice of this application was given to the defendant. The defendant filed a motion to set aside the default judgment. The trial court granted the motion.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the trial court did not have jurisdiction to amend the judgment against "Pamela Black" ex parte to name the defendant. Accordingly, the judgment against the defendant was void on its face and could be set aside under Code of Civ. Proc. § 473(d) [176 Cal. App. 4th 36, 43-47]. In addition, the court held the judgment could be set aside on the ground of extrinsic mistake which occurs when circumstances extrinsic to the litigation unfairly cost a party a hearing on the merits. Extrinsic mistake occurs when the defaulting party's excusable neglect prevents him or her from appearing and presenting a claim or defense. If that neglect results in an unjust judgment without a fair adversary hearing, the basis for equitable relief on the ground of extrinsic mistake is present. However, the court held, relief will be denied if the complaining party's negligence permitted the mistake to occur [176 Cal. App. 4th 36, 47]. The court held the defendant acted diligently in notifying the plaintiff's counsel of the mistake, yet the plaintiff proceeded to take the defendant's default and amend the judgment years later [176 Cal. App. 4th 36, 48-49].

[b] Express Equitable Power of Municipal Court to Set Aside Judgment

Marianos v. Tutunjian (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 61, 138 Cal. Rptr. 529 , involved an appeal from an order of the municipal court setting aside a default judgment. Defendant made a motion to vacate the judgment seeking relief pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473 approximately seven months after the default judgment was entered. In support of the motion, defendant stated that he had delivered the summons and complaint in the action to an attorney, but defendant had never received notice of the default. His vehicle was later seized pursuant to a writ of execution. Defendant obtained another attorney, who made the motion for relief. The trial court set aside the default, finding excusable neglect by defendant within the meaning of former Code Civ. Proc. § 89(b)(3) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 86(b)(3)), even though defendant's motion had been based on Code Civ. Proc. § 473.

The court of appeal noted that a motion for relief pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473 must be made within a reasonable time, not exceeding six months, after entry of a judgment. Despite this six-month limitation, it has been held that courts of general jurisdiction have inherent equitable power to vacate and set aside default judgments obtained through extrinsic fraud or mistake, citing Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 855, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 (70 Cal. App. 3d 61, 64) . However, the Supreme Court in Bloniarz v. Roloson (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 143, 147, 74 Cal. Rptr. 285, 449 P.2d 221 , decided that municipal courts, having no inherent equitable jurisdiction, were limited to exercising the powers set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (70 Cal. App. 3d 61, 65) . The Legislature then added former Code Civ. Proc. § 89(b)(3), in what the Marianos court says "can only be regarded as a response to the Bloniarz decision," giving municipal courts jurisdiction of cases in equity to vacate a judgment or order of the court obtained through extrinsic fraud, mistake, inadvertence, or excusable neglect (70 Cal. App. 3d 61, 65) . Former Code Civ. Proc. § 89(b)(3) was amended in 1976 and renumbered as Code Civ. Proc. § 86(b)(3).

The court in Marianos stated that it did not believe the Legislature intended to supersede Code Civ. Proc. § 473 with respect to municipal courts, or to expand the jurisdiction of the inferior courts to vacate defaults beyond that of the superior court (70 Cal. App. 3d 61, 65) . The court therefore held that under Code Civ. Proc. § 86(b)(3), municipal courts have equitable powers coextensive with those of the superior courts to relieve parties from default (70 Cal. App. 3d 61, 65) . Since in the present case there was no evidence of extrinsic fraud or mistake, the applications for relief based on excusable neglect had to be brought within the six-month period specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (70 Cal. App. 3d 61, 65) .

The request for relief which the court in Marianos found to be untimely was based on excusable neglect. The court, however, appears to be of the opinion that a request may be entertained beyond the six-month period of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 on a showing of extrinsic fraud or mistake.

[c] Motion Addressed to Discretion of Court

The facts and procedural background of Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 , are discussed under [a], above. In Weitz, the Supreme Court, in affirming the order of the trial court setting aside a default judgment, stated that a motion to set aside a default judgment is addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court, and, in the absence of a clear showing of abuse of discretion when the trial court grants the motion, the appellate court will not disturb the order (63 Cal. 2d 849, 854) .

[d] Policy of Law

The facts and procedural background of Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 , are discussed under [a], above. In Weitz, the Supreme Court stated that the policy of law favors, whenever possible, a hearing on the merits, and disfavors a party who, regardless of the merits of the case, attempts to take advantage of the mistake, surprise, inadvertence, or neglect of his or her adversary. Thus, appellate courts are much more disposed to affirm an order if the result is to compel a trial on the merits than they are when the judgment by default is allowed to stand and it appears that a substantial defense could be made (63 Cal. 2d 849, 854-855) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Inherent Equitable Power of Superior Court to Set Aside Judgment

In McGuinness v. Superior Court (1925) 196 Cal. 222, 237 P. 42 , the Supreme Court denied a writ of prohibition seeking to restrain the trial court from considering a motion to set aside a final decree of divorce on the ground of fraud in its procurement. The Court held that the power to vacate on motion a judgment obtained by fraud is inherent in courts of general jurisdiction (196 Cal. 222, 231-232) .

In Bacon v. Bacon (1907) 150 Cal. 477, 89 P. 317 , the Supreme Court ruled that the reviewing court's equitable jurisdiction was not affected by the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 1666 [now see Prob. Code §§ 11603(b), 11605], making the decree conclusive, nor by Code Civ. Proc. § 473. The Court stated that the Legislature does not possess power to divest the court of its constitutional jurisdiction and that Code Civ. Proc. § 473 does not displace the remedy in equity (150 Cal. 477, 484-485) .

In Sanchez v. Sanchez (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 159, 77 Cal. Rptr. 884 , the court of appeal affirmed an order setting aside a default judgment in a divorce action on the motion of the wife. The basis of the motion was that the wife was mentally incompetent at the time of the entry of the default and that, therefore, she had been deprived of a fair adversary proceeding. The court of appeal stated that since the motion was made more than six months after the default was entered, it was not directed to the trial court's statutory power to grant relief for mistake and excusable neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473. On the contrary, said the court, it was directed to the court's inherent equity power under which, apart from its statutory authority, the court has power to grant relief from a default judgment when there has been extrinsic fraud or mistake. The court added that while there was no allegation of fraud, it is well established that incompetency is a basis for equitable relief and that equity will relieve an incompetent from a judgment taken without an adversary hearing, citing Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 122 P.2d 564 (discussed under [3][a], above) (273 Cal. App. 2d 159, 163-164) .

In Neubrand v. Superior Court (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 311, 88 Cal. Rptr. 586 , the court of appeal affirmed the probate court's denial of a motion to vacate a judgment which was not void on its face on grounds of extrinsic fraud, holding that although the probate court could vacate a judgment which is void on its face it had no jurisdiction to hear and determine the merits of the motion since it had no general equitable jurisdiction. In the original case, on petition of the administrators, the probate court made and entered orders and a judgment for partial distribution. Subsequently, certain alleged but unreported heirs filed a motion addressed to the court's equity power to vacate on the grounds of extrinsic fraud. The court of appeal noted the general rules that a judgment which is void on its face and which requires only an inspection of the judgment roll or record to show its invalidity, may be set aside on motion at any time after its entry by the court rendering the judgment and that when a judgment has been obtained through extrinsic fraud it may be set aside, though long since final, either by an independent suit in equity or, when the court that rendered the judgment possesses a general jurisdiction in law and in equity, by means of a motion addressed to that court (9 Cal. App. 3d 311, 317-318) . However, said the court, while the superior court sitting in probate is a court of general jurisdiction, its jurisdiction and powers are wholly statutory (9 Cal. App. 3d 311, 318) . It has no general equity jurisdiction; however, it has the power to apply equitable principles in aid of its functions as a probate court (9 Cal. App. 3d 311, 318) . The court then analyzed the cases of Security-First Nat. Bk. v. Superior Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 749, 37 P.2d 69 (holding that on a collateral attack the probate court is not vested with power to avoid its own decrees which have become final on the ground of extrinsic fraud) and Estate of Ausender 1960) 53 Cal. 2d 615, 2 Cal. Rptr. 769, 349 P.2d 537 (stating that, insofar as Security holds that a probate court cannot set aside a prior final order on the ground of extrinsic fraud, it appeared to have been impliedly overruled). The court concluded that insofar as statements in Security may be construed as meaning that in no case can a probate court set aside its prior final order on the ground of extrinsic fraud, it has been impliedly overruled. That a probate court may do so in a proper case now appears to be settled, the court of appeal held. However, in the case at issue, the judgment to be vacated was not void on its face and was challenged directly by a motion to vacate on grounds of extrinsic fraud long after it had become final. In the instant case, said the court, the probate court had no such general equity jurisdiction (9 Cal. App. 3d 311, 322) . The court of appeal added that the petitioner's independent civil action in the superior court to set aside the decree and the petition to determine heirship pending in the probate court could be consolidated for trial (9 Cal. App. 3d 311, 322-323) .

In Humes v. MarGil Ventures, Inc. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 486, 220 Cal. Rptr. 186 , which involved a controversy under the Artists' Managers Act governed by Lab. Code § 1700.44, defendant had written a letter to the Labor Commissioner requesting that the hearing be postponed because his incarceration prevented his attendance. The hearing officer, to whom Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1294.2 relating to arbitration, were applicable, ignored his power under Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(b) to postpone the hearing for good cause on request of a party and held the hearing in defendant's absence. Plaintiff obtained a default judgment and filed a petition in superior court seeking its confirmation. Defendant wrote a letter to the trial court explaining his inability to be heard at the original hearing and asked for a stay of proceedings; the letter, deemed a response, was filed more than 100 days after the date of service of the award on him. The superior court granted the petition for confirmation, and defendant appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, and directed the superior court to conduct a full adversary hearing to consider defendant's response seeking vacation of the award. The court of appeal held that defendant's failure to file a timely response seeking vacation of the award was an excusable mistake due to his disability of imprisonment, that he had acted diligently in seeking relief from the court once he became aware of the need to act, and that the defense he sought to present had potential merit. The court of appeal noted that excusable mistake applies to cases in which the complaining party is disabled at the time judgment is entered, and that such a disability necessarily includes imprisonment. The court used its inherent equitable power to relieve defendant of the default and deemed the request to have been timely filed in the superior court (174 Cal. App. 3d 486, 498-500) . Because the court also held that the fact of defendant's incarceration and other circumstances raised grounds which may support the vacation of the determination under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(e) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(5)), the court reversed the confirmation of the award and remanded to the superior court to determine whether defendant had presented sufficient cause for postponement to the hearing officer, and whether the officer's refusal to postpone substantially prejudiced defendant's rights (174 Cal. App. 3d 486, 496-498) .

77 of 158 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
1. Motions in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.481

§ 70.481 Supporting Motion in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Timeliness of Motion

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion in equity for relief (see § 70.480[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE THE MOTION IS MADE IN A TIMELY MANNER AND IS JUSTIFIED UNDER THE CIRCUMSTANCES.

Timeliness of Motion. After six months from entry of default, a trial court may still vacate a default on equitable grounds even if statutory relief is unavailable (Rappleyea v. Campbell (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 975, 981, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669, 884 P.2d 126). The time limit for the filing of a motion for relief from default or default judgment is a reasonable time from discovery of the default or default judgment irrespective of when it may actually have been entered (Munoz v. Lopez (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 178, 181, 79 Cal. Rptr. 563). Thus, relief may be granted when the defaulting party is diligent in making his or her motion for relief after learning of the entry of the default or default judgment. Factors to be considered in this regard are the failure of plaintiff to show any prejudice from any delay by defendant and the reasonableness of defendant's actions in filing his or her motion for relief, in light of the circumstances known to defendant (Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 857, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a motion in equity to set aside a default and default judgment or other judgment or order, on the ground that the motion was timely.

For a tactical advantage, counsel may consider using this argument in a reply memorandum to respond to a contention in the opposing memorandum that the motion in equity was not timely.

These points and authorities should be combined, when appropriate, with a memorandum generally supporting a motion in equity for relief [see § 70.480[1]].

The points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.490 may be used to oppose the motion supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Timeliness of Motion

In Rappleyea v. Campbell (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 975, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669, 884 P.2d 126 , defendants, residents of Arizona, were personally served with summons in a California action. They elected to appear in propria persona and had a friend, who was an Arizona attorney, telephone the Los Angeles County Superior Court to determine the filing fee. The court clerk misinformed the friend as to the appropriate fee. When the defendants' answer arrived by mail with a check for the amount the clerk had indicated, which was insufficient, the clerk rejected it and returned it to defendants. Defendants promptly answered with the proper fee, but due to the error, the answer was filed eight days late. The plaintiff had taken the defendant's default the first day it was possible to do so. Defendants did not move promptly to set aside the default. Before the six-month period for obtaining relief had expired, plaintiff's counsel sent a letter to the defendants misdescribing California law and advising them that they had forfeited their rights under Code Civ. Proc. § 473. The record was not clear, but defendants contended that the plaintiff's counsel had led them to miss the deadline by falsely saying he would stipulate to setting aside the default. In the meantime, the plaintiff did not move promptly to prove damages and obtain the judgment. When the court informed the defendants that entry of judgment was imminent, the defendants moved to set aside the default. The motion was denied for failure to show good cause under Section 473. The $70 filing fee error thus led to entry of a $200,000 judgment against defendants, who appealed. The court of appeal affirmed.

The Supreme Court reversed. The court first noted that the trial court's ground for denial was incorrect because the motion was made more than six months after the default was entered so that Section 473 relief was not available. The court then turned to alternative bases regarding the motion, and stated that after the six months have elapsed, a trial court may still vacate a default on equitable grounds even if statutory relief is unavailable (8 Cal. 4th 975, 980-981) . The court went on to reverse. It applied a stringent three-prong test, and stated that its decision was narrowly drawn, based on the clerk's error and the plaintiff's incorrect statement of law. The court stressed that mere self-representation is not a ground for exceptionally lenient treatment, and that rules of civil procedure apply equally to represented and unrepresented parties (8 Cal. 4th 975, 983) .

This four to three decision is accompanied by a vigorous dissent asserting that the majority had simply substituted its judgment for that of the trial court and had failed to identify the true issue on appeal: whether the court of appeal erred in holding that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in refusing to grant relief. The dissent describes the majority decision as aberrational (8 Cal. 4th 975, 986-987) .

In Munoz v. Lopez (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 178, 79 Cal. Rptr. 563 , an action for legal malpractice, plaintiffs filed a seriously defective affidavit and certification of personal service on defendant, which alleged service in Los Angeles at an address in Mexico City. Defendant's default was taken and judgment entered against him, on a finding by the trial court that jurisdiction was obtained by publication and by personal service on defendant. Some four and one-half years after entry of the default, defendant filed a notice of motion to vacate the judgment on the ground that personal jurisdiction was lacking due to the failure of plaintiffs to serve him personally, an allegation which implied that the purported affidavit and certification of service were false. The trial court granted the motion and plaintiffs appealed, contending that the motion was not timely and that the trial court had erred in admitting certain extrinsic evidence.

The court of appeal affirmed the order granting relief. The court first considered the issue of timeliness of defendant's motion. Plaintiffs contended that a motion to set aside a default judgment void, not on its face, but in fact for lack of jurisdiction over defendant, must be made within the time limits set out in former Code Civ. Proc. § 473a [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5; see also §§ 70.490 -70.492]. The court, however, said that such a contention "ignores the reality that a motion made pursuant to [that] section is not the only method of setting aside a default for failure of service" (275 Cal. App. 2d 178, 180-181) . The court pointed out that there is an equity power under which the court may grant relief from a default judgment obtained through extrinsic fraud or mistake (275 Cal. App. 2d 178, 181) . Citing Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 (discussed in § 70.480[3]), and other cases, the court noted that the time limit for filing a motion or separate suit in equity on such grounds is a reasonable time from discovery of the default judgment irrespective of when it may actually have been entered (275 Cal. App. 2d 178, 181) . Citing Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 558, 305 P.2d 20 , and the Restatement on Judgments, § 117, Comment C, p. 565, the court stated that a false recital of service, whether deliberate or not, will be treated as extrinsic fraud or mistake in the context of an equitable action to set aside a default judgment (275 Cal. App. 2d 178, 181) . The court found that this basis of equitable relief was adequately alleged and that the trial court had properly treated the matter as one governed by a time limitation of a reasonable period after discovery of the existence of the judgment (275 Cal. App. 2d 178, 181-182) .

The facts and procedural background of Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 , are discussed in § 70.480[3]. In Weitz, the Supreme Court considered the issue of defendant's diligence in moving to set aside a default judgment nearly two years after entry of his default, and some four months after defendant learned of the default judgment. The Court stated that one moving in equity to set aside a default judgment must act diligently in making his or her motion for relief after learning of the judgment (63 Cal. 2d 849, 856-857) . Noting that this requirement is sometimes put in terms of laches, the Court asserted that laches was not the appropriate doctrine to apply because it required a finding of prejudice caused by defendant's delay. Citing Benjamin v. Dalmo Mfg. Co. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 523, 531, 190 P.2d 593 , the court declared that lack of prejudice is only one of the factors the trial court may properly consider on a motion to set aside a default judgment (63 Cal. 2d 849, 857) . The other factor to be considered, the Court asserted, is whether defendant, in the light of the circumstances known to him, acted reasonably in not filing a motion to set aside the default judgment earlier (63 Cal. 2d 849, 857) . The Court believed that the defendant in Weitz was in a position analogous to that of a nominal party at the time he learned of the judgment against him. He had settled his own claim for damages with plaintiff's insurance company and could reasonably assume that the real parties in interest in the action were plaintiff and defendant's insurance company. Defendant was assured by the company that the matter would be taken care of and was not informed for some time that there was a possibility that he would not be indemnified by the insurer. The Court stated that, under these circumstances, the trial court could properly have concluded that defendant was justified in relying on the insurance company, that delays attributable to the insurance company should not prejudice defendant, and that defendant's one month delay in moving for relief after learning of the insurance company's failure to represent him was not unreasonable (63 Cal. 2d 849, 858) . The Court acknowledged that the showing of diligence was not strong, but said that it was not unreasonable for the trial court to have resolved any doubt it may have had in favor of permitting an adjudication on the merits (63 Cal. 2d 849, 858) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
1. Motions in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.482

§ 70.482 Supporting Motion in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Showing of Meritorious Defense

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion in equity for relief (see § 70.480[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE THE DEFENDANT HAS A MERITORIOUS DEFENSE TO THE ACTION.

Showing of Meritorious Defense. Equitable relief may be granted from default and default judgment when defendant can present a meritorious case, but defendant is not required to provide an absolute guarantee of victory (Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 578-579, 122 P.2d 564).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a motion in equity to set aside a default and default judgment or other judgment or order, on the ground that the defendant presents a meritorious case [Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 578-579, 122 P.2d 564] .

These points and authorities should be combined, when appropriate, with a memorandum generally supporting a motion in equity for relief [see § 70.480[1]].

The points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

For discussion relating to the showing of a meritorious defense, see § 70.480[2][d][ii].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.490 may be used to oppose the motion supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Showing of Meritorious Defense

The facts and procedural background of Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 122 P.2d 564 , is discussed in § 70.480[3]. In Olivera, the Supreme Court noted that it is a general rule that equity will not interfere with a judgment which is unjust unless it appears that the aggrieved party can present a meritorious case (19 Cal. 2d 570, 578) . However, the Court went on to state that the requirement that the complaint in equity allege a meritorious case does not require an absolute guarantee of victory (19 Cal. 2d 570, 579) . Rather, it is enough if the complaint presents facts from which it can be ascertained that plaintiff has a sufficiently meritorious claim to entitle him to a trial of the issue in an adversary proceeding (19 Cal. 2d 570, 579) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
1. Motions in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.483

§ 70.483 Supporting Motion in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Motion Based on Extrinsic Fraud

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion in equity for relief (see § 70.480[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE THE CIRCUMSTANCES OF THIS CASE FIT WITHIN THE BROAD MEANING GIVEN TO "EXTRINSIC FRAUD" FOR THE PURPOSE OF GRANTING RELIEF IN EQUITY.

A. Extrinsic Fraud Defined. Extrinsic fraud is that fraud practiced by an opposing party which prevents the unsuccessful party from presenting all of his or her case to the court (Caldwell v. Taylor (1933) 218 Cal. 471, 479, 23 P.2d 758 ; Granzella v. Jargoyhen (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 551, 555, 117 Cal. Rptr. 710 (both involving appeal from judgment of dismissal after order sustaining demurrer without leave to amend)).

B. Broad Meaning Given to Grounds of "Extrinsic Fraud" and "Extrinsic Mistake." The terms "extrinsic fraud" and "extrinsic mistake" are given a very broad meaning tending to encompass all circumstances that deprive an adversary of fair notice of a hearing, whether or not those circumstances would qualify as fraudulent or mistaken in the strict sense (In re Marriage of Coffin (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 139, 149, 133 Cal. Rptr. 583).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a motion in equity to set aside a default and default judgment or other judgment or order, on the ground that the circumstances of the case fit within the term "extrinsic fraud" for purposes of equitable relief [Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 578-579, 122 P.2d 564] . For points and authorities supporting a motion based on extrinsic fraud, see § 70.483[1]].

These points and authorities should be combined, when appropriate, with a memorandum generally supporting a motion in equity for relief [see § 70.480[1]].

The points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.490 may be used to oppose the motion supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Extrinsic Fraud Defined

In Caldwell v. Taylor (1933) 218 Cal. 471, 23 P.2d 758 , plaintiff sued in equity to have the defendant beneficiary of his father's will declared an involuntary trustee of the property devised to her on the ground that the will had been procured by fraud practiced on the testator by the defendant. Plaintiff further alleged that he had been prevented from presenting his contest of the will by fraud practiced on him by the defendant. The trial court entered a judgment of dismissal against plaintiff based on an order sustaining defendant's demurrer without leave to amend. The plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed. The Court first noted that the jurisdiction of equity to afford relief from orders and decrees in probate proceedings is well settled (218 Cal. 471, 475) . The Court declared that, under the authorities, only on proof of extrinsic and collateral fraud could plaintiff seek and secure equitable relief from the judgment (218 Cal. 471, 476) . The Court cited United States v. Throckmorton (1878) 98 U.S. 61, 65, 25 L. Ed. 93 , discussed in § 70.582[4], for its holding that a decree will not be vacated merely because it was obtained by forged documents or perjured testimony (218 Cal. 471, 476) . Quoting Throckmorton, the Court stated that relief from judgment would be granted in cases in which by reason of something done by the prevailing party, there was no adversary trial or decision of the issue in the case (218 Cal. 471, 476) . Examples of such fraud were said by the Throckmorton court to include cases when the unsuccessful party was kept from court by false promises of compromise, when defendant was given no notice of the suit, and when defendant's attorney sells out his client's interests to the other side (218 Cal. 471, 476) . The Court pointed out that such cases permit relief on the ground that by some fraud practiced directly on the party seeking relief against the judgment, that party was prevented from presenting all of his case to the court (218 Cal. 471, 477) , quoting Throckmorton). According to the Court in Caldwell, "[t]his definition has become the well recognized and standard definition of extrinsic fraud" (218 Cal. 471, 477) . The Court went on to say that the fraud alleged must not be the fraud on which the cause of action in the former suit was based (218 Cal. 471, 477) . Thus, plaintiff would be foreclosed from relief unless he could establish that by fraud practiced on him by defendant, he was prevented from presenting to the court his allegations of fraud practiced on the testator (218 Cal. 471, 477-478) . Admitting that the distinction between intrinsic and extrinsic fraud is "quite nebulous," the Court concluded that the fraud alleged by plaintiff did come within the general definition of extrinsic fraud, noting that "[t]he main requirement to establish extrinsic fraud is that the unsuccessful party was prevented by his adversary from presenting all of his case to the court" (218 Cal. 471, 479) .

Granzella v. Jargoyhen (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 551, 117 Cal. Rptr. 710 , involved a claim by plaintiffs that their deceased uncle's will, under which property had been distributed to defendant, was forged by defendant. Plaintiffs further alleged that defendant had represented to plaintiffs of her own personal knowledge that the will was genuine and that, in reliance on these representations and because of their blood relationship with defendant, plaintiffs had not contested the will nor had they discovered the true facts until after distribution of the estate. The trial court sustained without leave to amend defendant's demurrer to plaintiffs' complaint seeking to establish a constructive trust on property distributed under the will, and entered a judgment of dismissal against plaintiffs. The plaintiffs appealed (43 Cal. App. 3d 551, 553) .

The court of appeal reversed the judgment of dismissal. The court cited Caldwell v. Taylor (1933) 218 Cal. 471, 23 P.2d 758 , discussed, above, for its discussion of the distinction between intrinsic and extrinsic fraud, noting that Caldwell "seems to be the leading case in California on the subject of extrinsic fraud" (43 Cal. App. 3d 551, 554) . Citing Witkin, the court commented that the most common ground for equitable relief is extrinsic fraud, the essential characteristic of which is that it has the effect of preventing a fair adversary hearing; the aggrieved party being deliberately kept in ignorance of the action or proceeding, or in some other way fraudulently prevented from presenting his or her claim or defense (43 Cal. App. 3d 551, 555) . Acknowledging that forgery constitutes intrinsic fraud, the court pointed out that the complaint alleged that before, during, and after the probate proceedings, defendant made representations to plaintiffs as to the genuineness of the will, thereby stopping plaintiffs from contesting the probate or attempting to discover the true facts. The court declared that such deceit practiced on plaintiffs was "just as effective to prevent them from presenting to the court the true facts concerning the invalidity of the will as if defendant had physically prevented plaintiffs from appearing in the probate proceedings" (43 Cal. App. 3d 551, 556) . Finding that the interests of justice required that plaintiffs be given an opportunity to prove their case in court, the court held that the trial court had erred in sustaining the demurrer to the complaint, inasmuch as it alleged extrinsic fraud (43 Cal. App. 3d 551, 556-557) .

[b] Broad Meaning Given to Grounds of "Extrinsic Fraud" and "Extrinsic Mistake"

In re Marriage of Coffin (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 139, 133 Cal. Rptr. 583 , involved a marital dissolution action in which husband obtained an interlocutory decree of dissolution on wife's default. Approximately nine months after entry of her default, wife moved to set aside the default and interlocutory judgment, claiming that husband had failed to disclose to her the existence of pension benefits that were community property of the parties. The trial court ordered the default and default judgment set aside. The husband appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court of appeal noted that when the six-month period for relief has passed, relief may still be granted under the court's equity powers and that, although the grounds on which equitable relief may be granted are somewhat narrower than the statutory grounds, the procedure is essentially the same for both types of motions (63 Cal. App. 3d 139, 148-149) . Citing Munoz v. Lopez (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 178, 181, 79 Cal. Rptr. 563 , discussed in § 70.481[3] , the court enumerated the rules pertaining to equitable motions and quoted the Munoz court's statement that, "[w]hile the grounds for an equitable action to set aside a default judgment are commonly stated as being those of extrinsic fraud or mistake, the terms are given a very broad meaning which tends to encompass all circumstances that deprive an adversary of fair notice of hearing whether or not those circumstances would qualify as fraudulent or mistaken in the strict sense" (63 Cal. App. 3d 139, 149) . Applying the rule that affidavits favoring the prevailing party are accepted as true on appeal, the court pointed out that the wife's affidavits revealed that she was unaware of the existence of the retirement benefits at issue and that her husband did not inform her of them (63 Cal. App. 3d 139, 149-150) . The court reviewed earlier cases holding that the nondisclosure of community property has long been recognized as a basis for setting aside property settlement agreements and dispositions of property based thereon (63 Cal. App. 3d 139, 150-154) .

Husband contended that amendments to the California Civil Code, effective January 1, 1975, had destroyed husband's fiduciary duty of disclosure to wife in that such amendments gave both spouses management and control of the community property in lieu of the husband's exclusive management and control [former Civ. Code §§ 5125, 5127 (now see Fam. Code §§ 1100, 1102]. The court questioned the retroactivity of these statutes (63 Cal. App. 3d 139, 154) , and concluded that as of the time the agreement and judgment in question were procured, husband was under a fiduciary obligation to disclose the existence of all community assets to wife, and his failure to disclose the existence of retirement benefits was a constructive fraud on wife (63 Cal. App. 3d 139, 154-155) . The court affirmed the granting of relief to wife, finding that wife's delay in seeking relief from the judgment to avoid interfering with her child's marriage was not laches as a matter of law and that husband's claim of prejudice was unsupported (63 Cal. App. 3d 139, 155) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
1. Motions in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.484

§ 70.484 Supporting Motion in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Motion Based on Extrinsic Mistake

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion in equity for relief (see § 70.480[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE THE CIRCUMSTANCES OF THIS CASE FIT WITHIN THE BROAD MEANING GIVEN TO "EXTRINSIC MISTAKE" FOR THE PURPOSE OF GRANTING RELIEF IN EQUITY.

A. Extrinsic Mistake Defined. Extrinsic accident or mistake may be found when there are circumstances not amounting to extrinsic fraud but of a serious nature, for which defendant is not responsible and which prevented defendant from being heard (Corey v. Weerts (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 416, 423, 29 Cal. Rptr. 533).

B. Broad Meaning Given to Grounds of "Extrinsic Fraud" and "Extrinsic Mistake." [See § 70.484[1], Paragraph B.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a motion in equity to set aside a default and default judgment or other judgment or order, on the ground that the circumstances of the case fit within the term "extrinsic mistake" for purposes of equitable relief [Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 578-579, 122 P.2d 564] . For points and authorities supporting a motion based on extrinsic fraud, see § 70.483[1]].

These points and authorities should be combined, when appropriate, with a memorandum generally supporting a motion in equity for relief [see § 70.480[1]].

The points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.490 may be used to oppose the motion supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Extrinsic Mistake Defined

Corey v. Weerts (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 416, 29 Cal. Rptr. 533 , involved a dispute on an agreement of sale under which plaintiffs were to purchase a restaurant business from defendants. Because plaintiffs had serious financial difficulties and defendants feared that plaintiffs would be forced into bankruptcy, defendants hesitated to press plaintiffs for payment of the promissory note and mortgage executed by plaintiffs under the agreement. Defendants attempted through an attorney to settle their differences, but plaintiffs were unresponsive. Several months thereafter, plaintiffs filed an action against defendants for fraud, giving defendants an open extension of time to plead. Plaintiffs' attorney indicated to defendants' attorney that he had filed the action only to satisfy his clients and that he hoped the matter would be settled. Despite continuing efforts by defendants' attorney to negotiate a settlement, plaintiffs secured entry of a default and default judgment against defendants, without notice to defendants. When plaintiffs refused to stipulate that the default could be set aside, defendants immediately moved to set the default and default judgment aside, which motion was granted by the trial court. The plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court stated that the principal question was whether the facts supported a conclusion that there was an extrinsic mistake, extrinsic accident, or extrinsic fraud (214 Cal. App. 2d 416, 422) . The court cited Galper v. Galper (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 391, 397, 328 P.2d 487 , for its statement that since circumstances not amounting to extrinsic fraud, but of a serious nature, for which defendant was not responsible and which prevented him or her from being heard may exist to create an injustice, the courts in certain situations, such as those labeled extrinsic accident and mistake of fact, may exercise their inherent power to relieve a party from a judgment when it is probable that an injustice has resulted (214 Cal. App. 2d 416, 423) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
1. Motions in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.485-70.489

[Reserved]

§§ 70.485[Reserved]

82 of 158 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
1. Motions in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.490

§ 70.490 Opposing Motion in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Motion Not Made Within Reasonable Time Is Untimely

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM IN OPPOSITION TO DEFEND-Plaintiff,	)	ANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE
vs.	)	_____[DEFAULT AND DEFAULT
_____ [name],	)	JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER]
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
		Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE THE MOTION IS UNTIMELY.

Motion Is Not Timely. In addition to demonstrating that a case has merit and that the defaulted party has an adequate excuse for failing to defend, the party seeking relief must produce evidence that he or she has acted diligently to set aside the judgment (Stiles v. Wallis (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 1143, 1149, 195 Cal. Rptr. 377).

[When appropriate, add or substitute points and authorities opposing relief from judgment or order on other particular grounds (see, e.g., §§ 70.630 -70.670).]

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[opposing party]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion in equity to vacate and set aside a judgment or order which the defendant asserts as having been obtained as a result of extrinsic fraud, extrinsic mistake, or duress. The ground for opposition is that the motion is untimely under the circumstances. This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a plaintiff (for example, a cross complainant).

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.480 -70.484.

This form should be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of relief under the particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.630 -70.670].

This form may also be combined, in an appropriate case, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of relief based on other decisional or statutory authority [see discussion under [c], below].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

With appropriate modifications, the points and authorities set out in this form may be combined with points and authorities opposing a grant of equitable relief from default in a separate suit in equity. For example, they may be used in connection with a memorandum supporting a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief from default [see, e.g., §§ 70.500 -70.503] or a memorandum supporting a motion for summary judgment in such an action [see, e.g., §§ 70.510 -70.511].

See also § 70.480[2] for additional general considerations relating to an equitable motion for relief based on extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

In an appropriate case, counsel would refer to evidence set forth in:

- Declarations submitted in opposition to relief from the judgment, order, or dismissal [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1306(a)].

- Discovery documents, such as deposition transcripts and answers to interrogatories and requests for admission.

- The moving party's pleadings that constitute admissions.

- Other documentary evidence generally.

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion"), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish, or controvert the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702].

When counsel cites facts in his or her argument, counsel should refer to the particular page and line number of the declaration, deposition transcript, or other document, that contains the cited facts. In addition, the relevant portion of any testimony in a deposition should be marked in a manner that calls attention to the testimony [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1116(c)].

For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice and affidavits and declaration, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Alternative Methods of Obtaining Relief

In addition to equitable relief, a party may obtain relief from a default and default judgment or other judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding on the ground of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. Additional statutory grounds also exist for relief from a default and default judgment [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473.1, 473.5]. For forms of memoranda opposing a grant of relief from default and default judgment or other judgment or order on these various additional statutory grounds, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with this form, see § 70.10 et seq.

A default judgment or other judgment or order may also be set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), on the ground that it is void. For forms of memoranda opposing a grant of relief from a void default judgment or other void judgment or order, which may, in an appropriate case, be combined with this form, see § 70.310 et seq.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion Is Not Timely

Stiles v. Wallis (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 1143, 195 Cal. Rptr. 377 , involved a motion to set aside an earlier default judgment against the defendant. The default was based on defendant's failure to file an answer to plaintiff's complaint for fraud, negligent misrepresentation, constructive fraud, and breach of contract. The trial court relied on its equity power in setting aside the default. The plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the order setting aside the judgment. The court decided that the superior court's authority for setting aside the default must have been predicated on grounds of extrinsic mistake (147 Cal. App. 3d 1143, 1147) .

The court listed three elements necessary to set aside a default judgment based on extrinsic mistake: (1) the defaulted party must demonstrate that it has a meritorious case; (2) the party seeking to set aside the default must articulate a satisfactory excuse for not presenting a defense to the action; and (3) the moving party must demonstrate diligence in seeking to set aside the default once it has been discovered (147 Cal. App. 3d 1143, 1147-1148) . In discussing whether defendant had demonstrated a meritorious case, the court held that sufficiency was established by defendant's proposed verified answer (147 Cal. App. 3d 1143, 1148) . As to the second element, defendant had offered two explanations for failure to defend in a timely fashion, namely that he thought his employer was obligated to provide him with a defense and that he was an Australian citizen born in England and was therefore unfamiliar with California law (147 Cal. App. 3d 1143, 1148) . The court found defendant's explanations insufficient to justify setting aside the default judgment (147 Cal. App. 3d 1143, 1149) . As to the third element, the court found that defendant failed to act with proper diligence by waiting more than 20 months before taking action (147 Cal. App. 3d 1143, 1149-1150) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
1. Motions in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.491

§ 70.491 Opposing Motion in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Extrinsic Fraud Not Shown

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion in equity for relief (see § 70.490[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE THE DEFENDANT HAS NOT SHOWN EXTRINSIC FRAUD.

Extrinsic Fraud Not Shown. To obtain equitable relief, the defendant must show fraud that is extrinsic to the proceedings, not intrinsic. Extrinsic fraud usually arises when the defendant has been denied a fair adversary hearing because someone has kept the defendant deliberately in ignorance concerning the proceedings. Intrinsic fraud, on the other hand, goes to the merits of the proceedings, for example, to the facts and issues that would have been argued in the proceedings had the defendant diligently defended. Intrinsic fraud is insufficient to obtain equitable relief (In re Margarita D. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1288, 1294-1295, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 713).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion in equity to vacate and set aside a judgment or order which the defendant asserts as having been obtained as a result of extrinsic fraud. The ground for opposition is that the defendant has not shown extrinsic fraud. This form may be adapted as necessary for use by a party other than a plaintiff (for example, a cross complainant).

See also § 70.490[2] for general considerations and additional uses of this form.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case, that is, those facts tending to show that fraud, if any, is intrinsic to the proceedings rather than extrinsic.

See also § 70.490[2] for additional discussion regarding the evidence supporting argument relating to this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Extrinsic Fraud Not Shown

In re Margarita D. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1288, 1294-1295, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 713 , one who claimed to be the biological father of a minor sought to set aside, based on equitable grounds, a judgment that had determined another man to be the minor's father in a paternity proceeding. He asserted that false facts had been presented in the trial concerning paternity, resulting in an erroneous judgment that the other man was the minor's father. The trial court denied the motion to set aside the judgment

The court of appeal affirmed. It held that the fraud claimed by the appellant was intrinsic to the proceedings because it did not prevent him from claiming paternity in the earlier action. The fraud was intrinsic because it went to the merits of the proceeding (72 Cal. App. 4th 1288, 1294-1295) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
1. Motions in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.492-70.499

[Reserved]

§§ 70.492[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
2. Suits in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.500

§ 70.500 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Alleged Extrinsic Fraud or Mistake Not Pleaded With Particularity and Specificity

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF DEMURRER
Plaintiff,	)	TO COMPLAINT FOR EQUITABLE RELIEF
vs.	)	FROM JUDGMENT OBTAINED BY EXTRINSIC
_____ [name],	)	FRAUD OR MISTAKE
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
		Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE COURT SHOULD SUSTAIN THE DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT FOR EQUITABLE RELIEF FROM THE PRIOR _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE THE COMPLAINT FAILS TO STATE FACTS SUFFICIENT TO CONSTITUTE A CAUSE OF ACTION IN THAT IT FAILS TO PLEAD THE FACTS CONSTITUTING THE FRAUD OR MISTAKE WITH PARTICULARITY AND SPECIFICITY.

A. Objection by Demurrer. The party against whom a complaint has been filed may object, by demurrer as provided in Section 430.30 of the Code of Civil Procedure, to the complaint on the ground that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action (Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)). When any ground for objection to a complaint appears on the face thereof [or from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice], the objection on that ground may be taken by a demurrer to the complaint (Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)).

B. Pleading of Facts. In an action for equitable relief from a judgment allegedly obtained by extrinsic fraud or mistake, the facts constituting the fraud or mistake must be pleaded specifically and with particularity (Hammell v. Britton (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 72, 82, 119 P.2d 333).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[moving party]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a general demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief from a prior judgment or order allegedly obtained through extrinsic fraud or mistake. The ground for the demurrer is that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action because the facts constituting extrinsic fraud or mistake have not been pleaded specifically or with sufficient particularity.

This form should be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a demurrer on other grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.501 -70.503]. This form may be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of equitable relief in particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.630 -70.670]. This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

With appropriate modifications, this form may be used in another procedural context, such as in support of a defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel in his or her argument should refer to the specific allegations of the complaint, by paragraph numbers, and to any matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice, that disclose the lack of specificity or particularity in pleading fraud or mistake. See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.520 -70.522 may be used to oppose the demurrer supported by this form.

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a general form of demurrer, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender). For forms of complaint to set aside a judgment rendered due to extrinsic fraud or mistake, see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders , and Ch. 318, Judgments , in that publication.

[e] Related Points and Authorities

For general forms of memoranda supporting a demurrer to a complaint or a motion for judgment on the pleadings, see Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Pleading of Facts

Hammell v. Britton (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 72, 119 P.2d 333 , was an action for equitable relief in which the plaintiff attacked and sought to have set aside a judgment rendered against him. The case involved title to real property which depended on the status of the grantor as a married man. That status, in turn, depended on the validity of a Colorado divorce decree. A later Colorado judgment vacated the divorce decree for fraud, but the plaintiff contended that a third Colorado judgment ruled that the original divorce decree was valid and that the second one had been obtained through fraud. The defendant demurred and the court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend. The plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed a judgment of dismissal. The Supreme Court pointed out that the allegations of the plaintiff's complaint for equitable relief with respect to the alleged fraud were insufficient. His complaint alleged that he had charged, in a Colorado proceeding, that an earlier Colorado judgment had been obtained by means of fraud. However, there were no allegations of the facts constituting the fraud. Nor was there any allegation establishing that the plaintiff was prevented by fraud from making any defense available to him in the California action which resulted in the judgment under attack. The Court held it elementary that in an action for equitable relief based on extrinsic fraud in obtaining a judgment, the facts constituting the fraud must be pleaded with particularity and specificity (19 Cal. 2d 72, 81-82) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Pleading of Facts

Westphal v. Westphal (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 393, 126 P.2d 105 , involved an action seeking relief from a prior judgment on the grounds of fraud and mistake following the trial court's sustaining of a demurrer to the complaint. The prior judgment was a probate court order for decree of distribution of an estate pursuant to a petition therefor. The testator's will had provided for distribution of his estate as follows: one-fifth to each of three sons and one-fifth in trust to each of two other sons with remainders to the survivors of the trust beneficiaries. The testator had also provided that if any child contested his will, that child should take nothing. The latter two sons contested the will and the executors sought and were granted distribution excluding the contestants. Following the death of one of the excluded sons, his survivors brought this action against the recipients of the deceased's share asking that the defendants be declared involuntary trustees and seeking other relief. The defendants demurred on the grounds that the decree as not subject to attack because the alleged fraud and mistake were intrinsic. The trial court sustained the demurrer as to certain plaintiffs (20 Cal. 2d 393, 395-396) .

The Supreme Court affirmed, observing that no extrinsic fraud or mistake sufficient to constitute the basis for an attack in equity on the prior decree of distribution was alleged by the plaintiffs in the absence of any allegation that they had not received proper notice of the prior proceedings (20 Cal. 2d 393, 398) . Instead, it was presumed that the plaintiffs received such notice and that they had an opportunity to present their case (20 Cal. 2d 393, 398-399) .

In Baldwin v. Daniels (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 560, 282 P.2d 522 , the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's judgment for the defendants after its entry of an order sustaining a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief from a prior judgment. The plaintiff's first complaint alleged that the defendants had caused a court decree to be entered "through extrinsic fraud" and that said judgment was "void ab initio and altogether null" (132 Cal. App. 2d 560, 561) . An amended complaint repeated the first pleading in that it merely alleged fraud as a conclusion without any attempt to plead the facts constituting the claimed fraud. The court cited the memoranda of points and authorities submitted by the defendant in connection with her demurrers to both complaints stating: that (1) it is essential that the facts and circumstances which constitute the fraud should be set out clearly, concisely, and with sufficient particularity to apprise the opposite party of what he or she is called on to answer and to enable the court to determine if, on the facts pleaded, there is any foundation, prima facie, at least, for the charge of fraud; (2) allegations of fraud in general terms are merely allegations of conclusions of law which present no issuable facts (132 Cal. App. 2d 560, 561) ; (3) innumerable authorities indicate that equitable relief from the effect of a judgment or decree may only be obtained on allegations and proof of extrinsic fraud; and (4) it is elementary that in an action for equitable relief based on extrinsic fraud in obtaining a judgment, the facts constituting the fraud must be pleaded with particularity and specificity (132 Cal. App. 2d 560, 562) . The court of appeal thus concluded that the pleading was obviously defective. Moreover, the court noted that the defect had been clearly pointed out before the pleading was amended and that the amended complaint not only made no attempt to cure the defect but also stated that the plaintiff's position was that fraud could be pleaded as an ultimate fact notwithstanding innumerable authorities to the contrary (132 Cal. App. 2d 560, 563) .

In Pentz v. Kuppinger (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 590, 107 Cal. Rptr. 540 , the court of appeal reversed the trial court's dismissal of an action based on fraud in the procurement of a Mexican judgment, holding that the complaint contained sufficient allegations to form a valid basis for a claim of extrinsic fraud. The court stated that the fraud sufficient to justify equitable relief from a judgment must be extrinsic or collateral to the questions examined or determined. In an action for such relief based on extrinsic fraud in obtaining a judgment, the fraud must be pleaded with particularity (31 Cal. App. 3d 590, 595) . The complaint alleged that the defendant did not disclose to the Mexican courts or to any California court the fact of, or the amount of, certain payments involved, that the plaintiff was first informed thereof after the end of the Mexican proceedings, and that the plaintiff had inquired into such payments during the Mexican proceedings but that such inquiries were not answered. The trial court concluded, in sustaining the demurrer, that no additional facts were offered to support the claim of extrinsic fraud. The court of appeal noted that from the allegations involved it was clear that the plaintiff was denied the opportunity to acquaint the Mexican court with evidence as to the payment involved and that the alleged concealment constituted extrinsic fraud. Since the plaintiff was denied her day in court as to the issues tendered by her pleading, the court of appeal concluded that the trial court had erred in sustaining the demurrer (31 Cal. App. 3d 590, 597) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
2. Suits in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.501

§ 70.501 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Plaintiff Is Not Proper Party

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.500[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD SUSTAIN THE DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT FOR EQUITABLE RELIEF FROM THE PRIOR _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE THE COMPLAINT FAILS TO STATE FACTS SUFFICIENT TO CONSTITUTE A CAUSE OF ACTION IN THAT IT FAILS TO SHOW THAT PLAINTIFF IS A PARTY ENTITLED TO BRING SUCH A CAUSE OF ACTION.

A. Objection by Demurrer. [See § 70.500[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Proper Parties Plaintiff. A party or one in privity with him/her who has been prevented from obtaining a fair adversary hearing through extrinsic fraud or mistake may bring an equitable action to vacate the judgment. A stranger may maintain such an action only if his/her interests have been adversely affected by the judgment (People ex rel. Public Util. Com. v. Ryerson (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 115, 119, 50 Cal. Rptr. 246).

C. Interest Necessary for Action. The interest necessary to allow a third party to seek relief from a judgment must involve such an immediate and direct claim on the subject matter of the litigation that the intervenor will either gain or lose by the direct operation of the judgment (People ex rel. Public Util. Com. v. Ryerson (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 115, 119, 50 Cal. Rptr. 246).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

Attorney for Defendant

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a general demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief from a prior judgment allegedly obtained through extrinsic fraud or mistake. The ground for the demurrer is that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action because the complaint discloses that the plaintiff is not a proper party, that is, not a party to the prior action nor in privity with such a party, nor a stranger whose interests have been adversely affected by the judgment.

This form should be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a demurrer on other grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.500, 70.502, 70.503].

This form may be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of equitable relief in particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.630 -70.670].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

With appropriate modifications, this form may be used in another procedural context, such as in support of a defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings or a defendant's motion for summary judgment. If modified for use in support of a motion for summary judgment, counsel should attach supporting affidavits or declarations and a separate statement of material facts in addition to the supporting memorandum [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel in his or her argument should refer to the absence of facts in the complaint establishing the requisite interest required, and, if applicable, to specific allegations in the complaint, by paragraph number, and to any matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice, that disclose facts establishing the absence of that interest.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.520 -70.523 may be used to oppose the demurrer supported by this form.

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a general form of demurrer, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender). For forms of complaint to set aside a judgment rendered due to extrinsic fraud or mistake, see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders , and Ch. 318, Judgments , in that publication.

[e] Related Points and Authorities

For general forms of memoranda supporting a demurrer to a complaint or a motion for judgment on the pleadings, see Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings . For general forms of memoranda supporting a motion for summary judgment, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Proper Parties Plaintiff

In People ex rel. Public Util. Com. v. Ryerson (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 115, 50 Cal. Rptr. 246 , after an investigation and decision by the Public Utilities Commission (PUC) and pursuant to a PUC order, a carrier brought action against a shipper to recover undercharges. In that action, the parties entered into a factual stipulation on which judgment was rendered for the shipper. The PUC sought to vacate that judgment on the ground that it had been obtained by extrinsic fraud or mistake consisting of collusion between the parties. The parties contended that the people did not have a sufficient interest to have entitled them to bring the action to vacate the judgment. The defendant demurrer and the trial court sustained the demurrer and dismissed the action (241 Cal. App. 2d 115, 117-119) .

The court of appeal reversed the judgment of dismissal. The court of appeal held that a party or one in privity with him or her who has been prevented from obtaining a fair adversary hearing through extrinsic fraud or mistake may bring an equitable action to vacate the judgment and that a stranger may maintain such an action if his or her interests have been adversely affected by the judgment. The court stated that while the interest is normally pecuniary, that is not an indispensable element. The interest of the people in maintaining the integrity of the PUC order was clearly sufficient (241 Cal. App. 2d 115, 119-120) .

[b] Interest Necessary for Action

The facts and procedural background of People ex rel. Public Util. Com. v. Ryerson (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 115, 50 Cal. Rptr. 246 , are discussed under [a], above. In Ryerson, on the issue of whether the Commission was entitled to intervene in the action, the court stated that a party or one in privity with him or who has been prevented from obtaining a fair adversary hearing through extrinsic fraud or mistake may bring an equitable action to vacate the judgment. A stranger may maintain such an action if his or her interests have been adversely affected by the judgment. According to the court, the interest necessary for intervention must involve such an immediate and direct claim on the very subject matter of the litigation that the intervener will either gain or lose by the direct operation of the judgment that may be rendered therein. In addition, while the interest is normally pecuniary, that is not an indispensable element (241 Cal. App. 2d 115, 119) . The court concluded that the interest of the people in maintaining the integrity of the order of the Public Utilities Commission is clearly sufficient (241 Cal. App. 2d 115, 120) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
2. Suits in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.502

§ 70.502 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Lapse of Statute of Limitations

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.500[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD SUSTAIN THE DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT FOR EQUITABLE RELIEF FROM THE PRIOR _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE THE COMPLAINT FAILS TO STATE FACTS SUFFICIENT TO CONSTITUTE A CAUSE OF ACTION IN THAT IT SHOWS THAT THE ALLEGED FRAUD OR MISTAKE OCCURRED MORE THAN THREE YEARS PRIOR TO THE TIME THE ACTION WAS COMMENCED AND FAILS TO PLEAD FACTS SHOWING THAT THE ALLEGED FRAUD OR MISTAKE WAS DISCOVERED WITHIN THREE YEARS IMMEDIATELY PRIOR TO COMMENCEMENT OF THE ACTION.

A. Objection by Demurrer. [See § 70.500[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Failure to State Cause of Action. The objection that an action is barred by the statute of limitations must be deemed to be included in the ground of demurrer that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action (Bell v. Bank of California (1908) 153 Cal. 234, 245, 94 P. 889).

C. Three-Year Limitation Period. The period prescribed for the commencement of an action for relief on the ground of fraud or mistake is three years from the time the aggrieved party discovers the facts constituting the fraud or mistake (Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)).

D. Pleading Facts Relating to Discovery of Fraud or Mistake. A showing that the plaintiff did not discover the facts constituting the fraud or mistake until within three years immediately prior to commencement of the action is an essential element of the right of action and must be affirmatively pleaded (Anglo California Trust Co. v. Kelley (1931) 117 Cal. App. 692, 696, 4 P.2d 604).

E. Plaintiff Must Affirmatively Excuse Failure to Discover Fraud or Mistake. The tolling of the statute limitations until discovery of fraud or mistake under Code of Civil Procedure Section 338(d) is an exception, and, accordingly, the plaintiff must affirmatively excuse his or her failure to discover within three years by showing that he or she was not negligent in failing to make the discovery sooner and that he or she had no actual or presumptive knowledge of facts sufficient to put him or her on inquiry (Bedolla v. Logan & Frazer (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 118, 129, 125 Cal. Rptr. 59).

[This form may be combined with points and authorities for use in support of a general demurrer to a complaint that fails to plead facts relating to discovery of the fraud or mistake (see § 70.503[1]).]

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

Attorney for Defendant

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a general demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief from a prior judgment allegedly obtained through extrinsic fraud or mistake. The ground for demurrer is that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action because it appears that the action is barred by a statute of limitations.

This form should be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a demurrer on other grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.500, 70.501, 70.504].

This form may be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of equitable relief in particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.630 -70.670].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

With appropriate modifications, this form may be used in another procedural context, such as in support of a defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings or a defendant's motion for summary judgment. If modified for use in support of a motion for summary judgment, counsel should attach supporting affidavits or declarations and a separate statement of material facts in addition to the supporting memorandum [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In arguing that the complaint fails to comply with the exception allowed under Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d), counsel should from the complaint and specific allegations therein, by paragraph number, and to any matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice, identify:

- The date the action was commenced;
- The date the plaintiff was alleged to have discovered the fraud or mistake; and

- The absence of affirmative pleading of plaintiff's diligence regarding discovery.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.523 -70.526 may be used to oppose the demurrer supported by this form.

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a general form of demurrer, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender). For forms of complaint to set aside a judgment rendered due to extrinsic fraud or mistake, see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders , and Ch. 318, Judgments , in that publication. For a form of demurrer to a complaint based on the bar of a statute of limitations, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions .

[e] Related Points and Authorities

For general forms of memoranda supporting a demurrer to a complaint or a motion for judgment on the pleadings, see Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings . For a general memorandum supporting a general demurrer to a complaint on the ground of lapse of the applicable statute of limitations, see Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions . For general forms of memoranda supporting a motion for summary judgment, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to State Cause of Action

Bell v. Bank of California (1908) 153 Cal. 234, 94 P. 889 , was an action for the recovery of shares of stock. The defendant asserted in a general demurrer that the action was barred by a statute of limitations, and the trial court sustained the demurrer and dismissed the action. The method of asserting the defense of a bar of a statute of limitations was not, apparently, an issue either in the trial court or on appeal, but the Supreme Court said, "The bar of the statute of limitations is not specified in the code as a ground of demurrer ..., and that objection to a complaint, while required to be stated in the demurrer, must be deemed to be included within the ground of want of facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action" (153 Cal. 234, 245) .

[b] Pleading Facts Relating to Discovery of Fraud or Mistake

Anglo California Trust Co. v. Kelley (1931) 117 Cal. App. 692, 4 P.2d 604 , involved an action to quiet title to certain real property, alleging that in a prior action to foreclose a mortgage on the property the trial court duly made the decree of foreclosure. The defendant's answer denied this allegation and affirmatively alleged that the decree was secured by reason of the defendants' mistake and the plaintiff's fraud, thereby preventing the defendants from presenting their defenses. The plaintiff moved for judgment on the pleadings against the answer and judgment was granted by the trial court. The defendants appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, stating that equity will relieve an injured party from the effect of a judgment procured by extrinsic fraud, mistake, or excusable neglect which was not the result of negligence or laches on the part of the complainant (117 Cal. App. 692, 694) . The court noted that approximately four years elapsed from the commission of the alleged fraud or the happening of the mistake before the defendants sought relief. Nowhere in the answer was there any statement as to the time when the defendants learned the facts constituting the fraud or mistake nor any statement excusing their failure to learn the facts within the statutory period of limitation (117 Cal. App. 692, 695) . The statutory period was three years from discovery of the fraud or mistake (Code Civ. Proc. § 338). The court held, citing Osmont

v. All Persons (1913) 165 Cal. 587, 596, 133 P. 480 , that the right of a party to invoke the aid of a court of equity for relief against fraud after the expiration of three years from the time when the fraud was committed is an exception to the general statute and cannot be asserted unless that party brings himself or herself within the terms of the exception. This can only be done by a showing that he or she did not discover the facts constituting the fraud until within the three years immediately prior to the commencement of his or her action. This showing is an essential element of the right of action and must be affirmatively pleaded in order to authorize the court to entertain the action (117 Cal. App. 692, 695-696) .

[c] Plaintiff Must Affirmatively Excuse Failure to Discover Fraud or Mistake

Bedolla v. Logan & Frazer (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 118, 125 Cal. Rptr. 59 , involved a cross action by a limited partnership against its accountants, alleging fraud, breach of fiduciary duty, and professional negligence in the performances of services rendered on behalf of the limited partnership in connection with a lawsuit in which the partnership was a defendant. A jury trial was had and the trial court bifurcated the issue of the statute of limitations and presented the question to the jury before consideration of the merits of the case. The jury rendered verdicts on behalf of the accountants by finding that the claims contained in the cross complaint were barred by the statute of limitations. The cross complainant limited partnership appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The court acknowledged the rule stated in former Code Civ. Proc. § 338(4) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)] that the statute of limitations commences to run only when the wrongful acts are discovered, or could have been discovered with reasonable diligence (52 Cal. App. 3d 118, 125) . The trial court had instructed the jury that the cross complainant had the burden of proving that it did not know and should not have known of the material facts before the statutory deadline. The court of appeal stated that the cases construing Section 338(4) have held that the provision tolling operation of the statute until discovery is an exception, and, accordingly, the plaintiff must affirmatively excuse his or her failure to discover the fraud within three years by showing that he or she was not negligent in failing to make the discovery sooner and that he or she had no actual or presumptive knowledge of facts sufficient to put him or her on inquiry. The court concluded that the trial court's instruction was in full harmony with the above precepts and accurately laid down the applicable law (52 Cal. App. 3d 118, 129) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to State Cause of Action

In Anderson v. McNally (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 778, 310 P.2d 975 , affirming a judgment of dismissal following the sustaining of a demurrer to the complaint in a wrongful death action, the court stated that a demurrer based on failure to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action because the action was not commenced within the applicable period of limitation must be considered a general demurrer (150 Cal. App. 2d 778, 783-784) .

[b] Three-Year Limitation Period

Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 305 P.2d 20 , involved a direct attack on a prior judgment by an action for declaration of rights in a membership bank. The plaintiff had first learned of the possibility of her rights as a stockholder in the bank less than three years after she discovered facts indicating that she had a cause of action but filed her suit more than seven years after the judgment involved. She contended that judgment was obtained without proper service of process and by extrinsic fraud. The defendant demurred to plaintiff's first amended complaint. The trial court granted the demurrer without leave to amend, and dismissed the action.

The Supreme Court reversed the trial court's judgment. The Court stated that when it appears there was a willful failure to give the required service, a direct attack may be made on the judgment on the ground of extrinsic fraud, and the failure of the bank to comply with the statutory requirements for personal service constituted grounds for the vacation of the judgment (47 Cal. 2d 540, 558) . Moreover, in cases involving fraud or mistake, the statute of limitations commences to run when the plaintiff discovers that he or she has cause of action or, through the use of reasonable diligence, should have discovered it (47 Cal. 2d 540, 559, 561) .

[c] Pleading Facts Relating to Discovery of Fraud or Mistake

In Hart v. Gudger (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d 217, 314 P.2d 549 , the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's judgment for the defendants after sustaining a third amended complaint without leave to amend in an action to vacate a judgment in a will contest. The complaint had been filed more than three years after the discovery of the facts constituting the alleged fraud, and there was no sufficient showing in any of the complaints filed by the plaintiff of any excuse for the late filing. The court of appeal concluded that the action was barred under former Code Civ. Proc. § 338(4) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)], holding that the statute applies to actions in equity for relief from judgments obtained by fraud or mistake (153 Cal. App. 2d 217, 232) .

[d] Plaintiff Must Affirmatively Excuse Failure to Discover Fraud or Mistake

Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 305 P.2d 20 , involved a direct attack on a prior judgment by an action for declaration of rights in a membership bank. The plaintiff had first learned of the possibility of her rights as a stockholder in the bank less than three years after she discovered facts indicating that she had a cause of action but filed her suit more than seven years after the judgment involved. She contended that judgment was obtained without proper service of process and by extrinsic fraud. The defendant demurred to plaintiff's first amended complaint. The trial court granted the demurrer without leave to amend, and dismissed the action.

The Supreme Court reversed the trial court's judgment. The Court stated that when it appears there was a willful failure to give the required service, a direct attack may be made on the judgment on the ground of extrinsic fraud, and the failure of the bank to comply with the statutory requirements for personal service constituted grounds for the vacation of the judgment (47 Cal. 2d 540, 558) . Moreover, in cases involving fraud or mistake, the statute of limitations commences to run when the plaintiff discovers that he or she has cause of action or, through the use of reasonable diligence, should have discovered it (47 Cal. 2d 540, 559, 561) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
2. Suits in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.503

§ 70.503 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Laches Precludes Relief

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.500[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD SUSTAIN THE DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT FOR EQUITABLE RELIEF FROM THE PRIOR _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE THE COMPLAINT FAILS TO STATE FACTS SUFFICIENT TO CONSTITUTE A CAUSE OF ACTION IN THAT THE FACTS ALLEGED BY PLAINTIFF ESTABLISH THAT HE/SHE WAS GUILTY OF LACHES AND FAIL TO ESTABLISH THAT THERE WAS SUFFICIENT EXCUSE FOR THE DELAY INVOLVED

A. Objection by Demurrer. [See § 70.500[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Laches Is Bar to Action. The equitable rule that stale demands will not be recognized and enforced in equity, commonly called laches, may bar an action for equitable relief from a prior judgment (Hynes v. M.J. & M.M. Consolidated (1914) 168 Cal. 651, 654, 144 P. 144).

C. Laches Shown on Face of Complaint. A complaint for equitable relief from a prior judgment which shows on its face that the plaintiff was guilty of laches fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action (American Sur. Co. of N.Y. v. City St. Improvement Co. (1915) 169 Cal. 172, 173, 146 P. 428).

D. Pleading Excuse for Delay. In the absence of any allegation of a sufficient excuse for delay, an action for equitable relief from a prior judgment may be barred by the equitable doctrine of laches (see Hynes v. M.J. & M.M. Consolidated (1914) 168 Cal. 651, 654-655, 144 P. 144).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

Attorney for Defendant

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a general demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief from a prior judgment allegedly obtained through extrinsic fraud or mistake. The ground for demurrer is that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action because it appears that the action is barred by the equitable doctrine of laches.

This form should be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a demurrer on other grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.501 -70.502]. The form may be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of equitable relief in particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.630 -70.670]. This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

With appropriate modifications, this form may be used in another procedural context, such as in support of a defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings.

With appropriate modifications, this form may be used in another procedural context, such as in support of a defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings or a defendant's motion for summary judgment. If modified for use in support of a motion for summary judgment, counsel should attach supporting affidavits or declarations and a separate statement of material facts in addition to the supporting memorandum [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should refer to the allegations of the complaint, by specific paragraph number, and to any matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice, that demonstrate that the plaintiff's delay in bringing the action was long and that the complaint fails to sufficiently explain the delay. See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.527, 70.528 may be used to oppose the demurrer supported by this form.

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a general form of demurrer, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings , and see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders , and Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender) for forms of complaint to set aside a judgment rendered due to extrinsic fraud or mistake.

[e] Related Points and Authorities

For general forms of memoranda supporting a demurrer to a complaint or a motion for judgment on the pleadings, see Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings . For general forms of memoranda supporting a motion for summary judgment, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Laches Is Bar to Action

In Hynes v. M.J. & M.M. Consolidated (1914) 168 Cal. 651, 144 P. 144 , the plaintiff brought a suit in equity to set aside a judgment in a prior action. The judgment which the complaint sought to set aside was rendered in 1892 and the instant action was begun in 1911. The judgment at issue had the effect of declaring that a purchase of land by one Davis from the State of California on the payment of 20 percent of the purchase price was null and void and to terminate all right, interest, and estate of Davis in and to the land. The defendants filed demurrers, which the trial court sustained without leave to amend. The plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment. The Court noted that no action was taken with respect to the land by anyone claiming under Davis until after oil was discovered thereon; however, it was clear that before that event they did not intend to complete the purchase and did not want the land. On the other hand, the defendants, who were the parties claiming the land under a subsequent purchase, had expended large sums in making the discovery. The plaintiffs did not plead ignorance but, on the contrary, showed that 11 years before bringing this action they had become aware of all the facts set forth in their complaint. Thus, the Supreme Court ruled that no sufficient excuse for the delay had been alleged and that the equitable rule that stale demands will not be recognized and enforced in equity, commonly called the doctrine of laches, was a sufficient bar to the action (168 Cal. 651, 654) .

[b] Laches Shown on Face of Complaint

In American Sur. Co. of N.Y. v. City St. Improvement Co. (1915) 169 Cal. 172, 146 P. 428 , a surety company brought an action in equity to set aside a judgment in favor of a creditor in an earlier action, in which the surety company was a surety on a bond given to release an attachment issued to recover money claimed against the debtor in the prior action. The debtor in the prior action became insolvent and the action was brought to trial. Judgment was granted to the creditor without anyone appearing in opposition. In bringing the present action, the surety company was seeking to assert a defense available to the debtor in the prior action. The creditor, now the defendant, demurred to the complaint. The trial court sustained the demurrer and gave judgment in favor of the defendant.

The Supreme Court affirmed. The Court observed that the surety knew when it gave the bond that the action was pending and that the case had been set for trial. Since the complaint was devoid of allegations as to fraud or mistake, the Court held that the ruling on the demurrer was proper. In addition, said the Court, the complaint was subject to the objection that it showed on its face that the plaintiff was guilty of laches. A period of more than two years elapsed between the filing of the complaint in the former action and the taking of judgment. During that time, the surety took no action to protect its interest and waited almost six months after entry of judgment before seeking equitable relief. During this interval, the situation of the property of the debtor in the former action had changed in such a manner that the creditor had lost all possible chance of recovery on its claim from any source other than the bond. Thus, the Court concluded that the complaint was without equity and did not state a cause of action (169 Cal. 172, 173) .

[c] Pleading Excuse for Delay

The facts and procedural background of Hynes v. M.J. & M.M. Consolidated (1914) 168 Cal. 651, 144 P. 144 , is discussed under [a], above. In Hynes, the Supreme Court ruled that no sufficient excuse for the plaintiff's delay in bringing the action in equity had been alleged and that the equitable rule that stale demands will not be recognized and enforced in equity, commonly called the doctrine of laches, was a sufficient bar to the action (168 Cal. 651, 654) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
2. Suits in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.504-70.509

[Reserved]

§§ 70.504[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
2. Suits in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.510

§ 70.510 Supporting Motion for Summary Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c] on Complaint in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Plaintiff Had Adequate Opportunity to Litigate Issues at Hearing on Prior Motion to Vacate

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR Plaintiff,	)	SUMMARY JUDGMENT ON COMPLAINT FOR
vs.	)	EQUITABLE RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT OB-
_____ [name],	)	TAINED BY FRAUD OR MISTAKE
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
		Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT THE SUMMARY JUDGMENT FOR DEFENDANT BECAUSE, FROM ALL THE PAPERS SUBMITTED, IT IS SHOWN THAT PLAINTIFF HAS ALREADY FULLY LITIGATED THE ISSUES INVOLVED IN THIS LAWSUIT IN AN EARLIER MOTION TO VACATE AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER].

A. Summary Judgment. A defendant may move for summary judgment in any action or proceeding if it is contended that the action has no merit. Such motion must be granted if all of the papers submitted show that there is no triable issue as to any material fact and that defendant is entitled to a judgment as a matter of law (Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a), (c)).

B. Opportunity to Litigate on Motion to Vacate. A detailed presentation of issues of fraud and mistake on a motion to vacate, with full opportunity at the hearing to develop the issues by oral testimony, may bar a subsequent action to set aside the order attacked by the earlier motion (Darlington v. Basalt Rock Co. (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 706, 710, 10 Cal. Rptr. 556).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted by the defendant in an action for equitable relief from a judgment allegedly obtained through extrinsic fraud or mistake in support of a motion for summary judgment. The ground for the motion is that there is no triable issue of material fact and that the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a), (c)], because it is established by all the papers submitted with the motion that the plaintiff had previously submitted a motion to vacate the judgment on the same grounds and had an opportunity to litigate the issues involved at the hearing on that motion. For points and authorities in support of a motion for summary judgment asserting that an exhaustive adversarial hearing or presentation of a particular type of evidence is not essential, see § 70.511[1].

Counsel should attach supporting affidavits or declarations and a separate statement of material facts in addition to the supporting memorandum [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)].

This form may be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of equitable relief in particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.630 -70.670].

With appropriate modifications, this form may be used in another procedural context, such as in support of a demurrer or motion for judgment on the pleadings [see Barker v. Hull (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 221, 226, 236 Cal. Rptr. 285] .

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should refer to the record of the proceedings of motion to vacate, and to supporting declarations, in his or her argument that the same opportunity to litigate the issues before the court in the present lawsuit existed when the motion to vacate was made. See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.540 and 70.541 may be used to oppose the demurrer supported by this form.

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a general form of demurrer, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for

Judgment on the Pleadings , and for forms of complaint to set aside a judgment rendered due to extrinsic fraud or mistake, see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders , and Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender).

[e] Related Points and Authorities

For general forms of memoranda supporting a motion for summary judgment, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments . For general forms of memoranda supporting a demurrer to a complaint or a motion for judgment on the pleadings, see Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Opportunity to Litigate on Motion to Vacate

In Darlington v. Basalt Rock Co. (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 706, 10 Cal. Rptr. 556 , the plaintiff brought an action in equity to vacate an order approving the compromise of a minor's claim for damages for personal injuries. While the plaintiff was a minor, his claim was compromised and the settlement was approved by the trial court. Shortly after attaining the age of majority (see Fam. Code § 6502(a) (age of majority prior to 1974 was age 21)), the plaintiff filed a motion to vacate the order approving the compromise on the grounds that his attorneys at the time had not independently investigated the facts but had negligently relied on false representations of the defendant's agent that the defendant was not negligent, and that the attorneys had mistakenly assumed that some of the plaintiff's injuries were not permanent. After a full hearing which included oral testimony, the court refused to set aside the order. That action was affirmed on appeal. Thereafter, plaintiff brought this action in which no facts were alleged which were not raised in the hearing on the motion. On motion by the defendant, the trial court dismissed the action. The plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment of dismissal. The question on appeal was whether or not the adverse decision on the first attack (by motion) barred the second attack (by independent action in equity). The court ruled that the motion is not a bar when it fails to raise the same grounds urged in the later action, stating that the mere fact that issues might have been raised on the motion does not bar presentation of those issues in a later action if in fact they were not presented on the motion. The court added that the mere presentation of issues by affidavits supporting the motion is not a bar to the later action if the opportunity to present evidence was withheld in the discretion of the court to which the motion was made. However, the court held, detailed presentation of the issues of fraud and mistake on a motion to vacate, with full opportunity at a hearing to develop the issues by oral testimony, may bar a subsequent action to set aside the order attacked by the earlier motion (188 Cal. App. 2d 706, 710) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
2. Suits in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.511

§ 70.511 Supporting Motion for Summary Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c] on Complaint in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Exhaustive Adversarial Hearing or Presentation of Particular Type of Evidence Not Essential

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.510[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT THE SUMMARY JUDGMENT FOR DEFENDANT BECAUSE AN EXHAUSTIVE ADVERSARIAL HEARING [OR PRESENTATION OF A PARTICULAR TYPE OF EVIDENCE IS NOT ESSENTIAL].

Exhaustive Adversarial Hearing or Presentation of Particular Type of Evidence Not Essential. There is no requirement that an exhaustive adversarial hearing be held on an earlier motion to vacate a judgment in order to preclude relitigation of an issue. [Further, it need not be established that any particular type of evidence, such as oral testimony, was presented] (Barker v. Hull (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 221, 226, 236 Cal. Rptr. 285).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted by the defendant in an action for equitable relief from a judgment allegedly obtained through extrinsic fraud or mistake in support of a motion for summary judgment. This form is for use to contend that an exhaustive adversarial hearing or presentation of a particular type of evidence is not essential [Barker v. Hull (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 221, 226, 236 Cal. Rptr. 285] . For points and authorities that generally supports a motion for summary judgment on the ground that plaintiff is relitigating issues resolved in a prior hearing on a motion to vacate, see § 70.510[1].

For a tactical advantage, counsel may consider using this argument in a reply memorandum to respond to a contention in the opposing memorandum that the plaintiff did not have an adequate opportunity to litigate issues in the prior hearing on the motion to vacate [Barker v. Hull (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 221, 226, 236 Cal. Rptr. 285] .

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

For reference to related Pleading and Practice chapters, see § 70.510[2].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.540 and 70.541 may be used to oppose the demurrer supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exhaustive Adversarial Hearing or Presentation of Particular Type of Evidence Not Essential

In Barker v. Hull (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 221, 236 Cal. Rptr. 285 , the plaintiff was the president of a corporation who brought an action against a shareholder of the corporation and his attorney for various causes of action premised on an alleged representation made by the shareholder that an earlier action filed against the plaintiff and the corporation were not being filed against the plaintiff personally, but in his capacity as an officer of the corporation. The defendants moved for judgment on the pleadings, arguing that the plaintiff was barred by the doctrine of collateral estoppel from relitigating the fraud issue through a motion to vacate the earlier judgment. The trial court granted judgment on the pleadings and the plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment on the pleadings. The court, citing Darlington v. Basalt Rock Co. (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 706, 10 Cal. Rptr. 556 (discussed in § 70.510[3]), stated that the party asserting a collateral estoppel must prove that the issue was raised, actually submitted for determination and determined. A mere showing that affidavits were submitted may not be sufficient to carry the burden of proving that the issue was actually litigated, and denial of the motion does not establish an estoppel if the basis of the denial cannot be determined. The court did not believe, however, that the foregoing principles require that in every case an exhaustive adversarial hearing must be held on a motion to vacate in order to preclude relitigation of an issue. Rather, the court concluded the appropriate principle is that, while the party urging the estoppel must prove that the issue was actually litigated and that evidence was not restricted, he or she need not establish that any particular type of evidence, such as oral testimony, was presented (191 Cal. App. 3d 221, 226) . The court noted that in addition to the pleadings and the order, motion, declaration of the plaintiff and points and authorities from the previous case, the court took judicial notice of the file in the previous case. Neither party objected, and judicial notice of the prior file was appropriate. Thus, the court concluded that the trial court had sufficient undisputed facts before it, which were appropriate subjects of judicial notice, to support the conclusion that the issue was, therefore, actually litigated and determined in the prior action (191 Cal. App. 3d 221, 227) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
2. Suits in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.512-70.519

[Reserved]

§§ 70.512[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
2. Suits in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.520

§ 70.520 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--General Form

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM IN OPPOSITION TO DEMUR-
Plaintiff,	)	RER TO COMPLAINT FOR EQUITABLE RELIEF
vs.	)	FROM JUDGMENT OBTAINED BY FRAUD OR _____ [name],	)	MISTAKE
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
		Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT BECAUSE THE PLAINTIFF MAY INVOKE EQUITABLE JURISDICTION TO INTERFERE WITH A _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BY AN INDEPENDENT ACTION IN EQUITY TO SECURE

RELIEF WHEN THE COURT POSSESSES _____ [GENERAL JURISDICTION IN LAW AND IN EQUITY or STATUTORY JURISDICTION].

Independent Action in Equity. One who has been prevented by extrinsic factors such as fraud or mistake from presenting his/her case to the court in a prior action may bring an independent action in equity to secure relief from the judgment in such prior action (Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 575, 122 P.2d 564).

[This form may be combined with other points and authorities opposing a demurrer on particular grounds, such as the municipal court has jurisdiction in equity to vacate the judgment or order (see, e.g., §§ 70.521, 70.521)].

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

Attorney for Plaintiff

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used to oppose a general demurrer to a complaint in an equitable action for relief from a prior judgment or order allegedly obtained through extrinsic fraud or mistake. The ground for opposition is, in general, that the complaint alleges facts that do constitute a cause of action for equitable relief that is within the court's jurisdiction.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the demurrer supported by the points and authorities set out in § 70.500[1].

This form should be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing a demurrer on other grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.523 -70.528].

This form may be combined with other points and authorities opposing a demurrer on particular grounds, such as:

- The municipal court has jurisdiction in equity to vacate the judgment or order [§ 70.521[1]].

- A probate court decree is subject to review in equity on a showing that it was procured by extrinsic fraud or mistake [§ 70.521[2]].

This form may be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief in particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.623].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

With appropriate modifications, this form may be used in another procedural context, such as in opposition to a defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should refer to specific allegations in the complaint by paragraph number, and to any matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice, that state material facts that establish a cause of action for equitable relief within the court's jurisdiction. See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a general form of demurrer, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings , and for forms of complaint to set aside a judgment rendered due to extrinsic fraud or mistake, see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders , and Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For general forms of memoranda supporting a demurrer to a complaint or a motion for judgment on the pleadings, see Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Independent Action in Equity

The facts and procedural background of Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 122 P.2d 564 , are discussed in § 70.480[3]. In Olivera, the Supreme Court stated that there exists a well-recognized jurisdiction in equity which has been utilized to relieve incompetent defendants from judgments taken under circumstances of unfairness and injustice. Equity's jurisdiction to interfere with final judgments is based on the absence of a fair, adversary trial in the original action. According to the Court, typical of the situations in which equity has interfered with final judgments are the cases when the lack of a fair adversary hearing in the original action is attributable to matters outside the issues adjudicated therein which prevented one party from presenting his or her case to the court, as for example, when there is extrinsic fraud (19 Cal. 2d 570, 575) . The Court held that the action by the defendant constituted extrinsic fraud, and ruled that the facts set forth were sufficient to justify the intervention of a court of equity (19 Cal. 2d 570, 577-578) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Independent Action in Equity

The facts and procedural background of Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 305 P.2d 20 , are discussed in § 70.502[4]. In Bennett, the Supreme Court ruled that a suit in equity instituted for the purpose of vacating a judgment is a direct attack which may be made on the ground of extrinsic fraud or mistake (47 Cal. 2d 540, 558) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
2. Suits in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.521

§ 70.521 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Municipal Court's Statutory Jurisdiction

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a complaint in equity to vacate a judgment or order (see § 70.520[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT BECAUSE THE MUNICIPAL COURT HAS JURISDICTION IN EQUITY TO DO SO.

Municipal Court's Statutory Jurisdiction. Municipal courts have jurisdiction in equity to vacate a judgment or order obtained through extrinsic fraud or mistake (Code Civ. Proc. § 86(b)(3)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used to oppose a general demurrer to a complaint in an equitable action for relief from a prior judgment or order allegedly obtained through extrinsic fraud or mistake. The ground for opposition is that the municipal court has jurisdiction in equity to vacate the judgment or order [Code Civ. Proc. § 86(b)(3)].

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the demurrer supported by the points and authorities set out in § 70.500[1].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of points and authorities generally opposing a general demurrer to a complaint in an equitable action for relief [see § 70.520[1].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

For references to related Pleading and Practice Chapters and points and authorities, see § 70.520[2].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
2. Suits in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.522

§ 70.522 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Review of Probate Court Decrees

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a complaint in equity to vacate a judgment or order (see § 70.520[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT BECAUSE A PROBATE COURT DECREE IS SUBJECT TO REVIEW IN EQUITY ON A SHOWING THAT IT WAS PROCURED BY EXTRINSIC FRAUD OR MISTAKE.

Review of Probate Court Decrees. A probate court decree is subject to review in equity on a showing that it was procured by extrinsic fraud or mistake (Bacon v. Bacon (1907) 150 Cal. 477, 481, 89 P. 317).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used to oppose a general demurrer to a complaint in an equitable action for relief from a prior judgment or order allegedly obtained through extrinsic fraud or mistake. The ground for opposition is that a probate court decree is subject to review in equity on a showing that it was procured by extrinsic fraud or mistake [Bacon v. Bacon (1907) 150 Cal. 477, 481, 89 P. 317] .

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the demurrer supported by the points and authorities set out in § 70.500[1].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of points and authorities generally opposing a general demurrer to a complaint in an equitable action for relief [see § 70.520[1].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

For references to related Pleading and Practice Chapters and points and authorities, see § 70.520[2].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In his or her argument, counsel would refer to specific allegations in the complaint, by paragraph number, and to any matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Review of Probate Court Decrees

Bacon v. Bacon (1907) 150 Cal. 477, 89 P. 317 , involved an equitable action to declare a probate court decree void and to revise the distribution ordered therein. In the probate proceedings, a will which gave the plaintiff a legacy of $10,000 was, by mistake, copied so as to give her only $2,000. As a result of that mistake and without the negligence of the plaintiff, the final decree was for distribution of the latter amount only with the balance going to residuary legatees. On discovery of the mistake, the plaintiff sued and obtained a judgment declaring that the legacy bequeathed to her was the larger sum, that the balance remained unpaid, that a lien be declared on property of the estate which had been distributed, and that the decree of satisfaction be held void.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment. On appeal, the defendants contended that the superior court had no jurisdiction of the subject matter of the action and that decrees of distribution cannot be reviewed in equity. The Supreme Court ruled that the complaint stated a cause of action within the class of actions cognizable in equity and within the jurisdiction of the superior courts. Moreover, the Court held, the proposition that a decree of distribution is subject to review in equity on a showing that it was procured by fraud or mistake was well settled (150 Cal. 477, 481) . On analysis of facts showing the plaintiff had relied on statements made by her husband and the executors, who were also residuary legatees, that the legacy was the smaller sum and thus failed to appear at the time of the distribution, the Court concluded that she was not negligent and that there had been extrinsic mistake (150 Cal. 477, 492-493) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
2. Suits in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.523

§ 70.523 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Action Not Barred by Statute of Limitations or Laches Due to Tolling of Three-Year Statute of Limitations Until Discovery of Facts Constituting Fraud or Mistake--General Form

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.520[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT BECAUSE A CAUSE OF ACTION FOR EQUITABLE RELIEF FROM A _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] OBTAINED BY FRAUD OR MISTAKE DOES NOT ACCRUE UNTIL THE DISCOVERY, BY THE AGGRIEVED PARTY, OF THE FACTS CONSTITUTING THE FRAUD OR MISTAKE, AND THE MERE FACT THAT AN EARLIER INVESTIGATION MIGHT HAVE REVEALED SUCH FACTS WILL NOT ALONE BAR RECOVERY.

A. Accrual of Action for Relief From Fraud or Mistake. Although an action for relief on the ground of fraud or mistake must be commenced within three years, the cause of action will not be deemed to have accrued until the discovery, by the aggrieved party, of the facts constituting the fraud or mistake (Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)).

B. Investigation Which Would Have Revealed Facts. The fact that an investigation would have revealed the fraud or mistake sooner will not alone bar recovery. Further, a party's right to proceed on the theory of fraud or mistake is not destroyed merely because opportunities for examination or means of knowledge were open to the party when no legal duty devolved on him or her to employ that means of knowledge (Harkins v. Fielder (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 538, 310 P.2d 423).

[This form may be combined with other points and authorities opposing a demurrer on particular grounds, such as the municipal court has jurisdiction in equity to vacate the judgment or order (see, e.g., §§ 70.524, 70.525)].

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

Attorney for Plaintiff

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used to oppose a general demurrer to a complaint in an equitable action for relief from a prior judgment or order allegedly obtained through extrinsic fraud or mistake. The ground for opposition is that the three-year statute of limitations [Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)] does not operate to bar the cause of action because plaintiff has alleged facts showing that the statute was tolled until discovery of the facts constituting the fraud or mistake.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the demurrer supported by the points and authorities set out in § 70.502[1].

This form may be combined with other points and authorities opposing a demurrer on particular grounds, such as:

- The statute of limitation was tolled until the plaintiff discovers fraudulent concealment by the defendant that caused the plaintiff to forgo investigation [§ 70.524[1]].

- Defendant made representations that dissuaded inquiry and thereby precluded constructive notice to the plaintiff [§ 70.525[1]].

This form should be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing a demurrer on other grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.522, 70.526 -70.528].

This form may be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief in particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.623].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

With appropriate modifications, this form may be used in another procedural context, such as in opposition to a defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings or motion for summary judgment. If modified for use in opposing a motion for summary judgment, counsel should attach opposing affidavits or declarations and a separate statement of material facts in addition to the opposing memorandum [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In the argument, counsel should refer to specific allegations in the complaint, by paragraph number, and to any matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a general form of demurrer, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings , and for forms of complaint to set aside a judgment rendered due to extrinsic fraud or mistake, see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders , and Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender). For a form of demurrer to a complaint based on the bar of a statute of limitations, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions in that publication.

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For general forms of memoranda opposing a demurrer to a complaint or a motion for judgment on the pleadings, see Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings . For a general memorandum opposing a general demurrer to a complaint on the ground of lapse of the applicable statute of limitations, see Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions . For general forms of memoranda opposing a motion for summary judgment, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Investigation Which Would Have Revealed Facts

Harkins v. Fielder (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 310 P.2d 423 , involved actions seeking adjudications that property distributed pursuant to a probate decree be held in trust for the plaintiffs. The decedent died intestate leaving a brother who was the distributee, a half brother, and four half sisters who were the plaintiffs in the action at issue. The trial court found that the distributee breached a duty to disclose to the probate court, to his attorneys, and to his nominee for the position of administrator of the estate, the existence of the plaintiffs; that he breached a duty to the plaintiffs to refrain from any conduct preventing communication to them of their interest in the intestate's estate. These breaches of duty amounted to a fraud by which he was unjustly enriched. The defendants appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed judgments for the plaintiffs. The defendant argued that the statute of limitations barred the action in that the plaintiffs had known of the intestate decedent's death and that his property was being transferred to the defendant and were thus put on inquiry regarding the probate proceedings as to the means by which defendant was acquiring the property. The court of appeal, however, ruled that the fact that an investigation would have revealed the fraud sooner will not alone bar recovery. A party's right to seek equitable relief from a prior judgment on the theory of fraud is not destroyed merely because opportunities for examination or means of knowledge were open to him or her when no legal duty devolved on him or her to employ such means of knowledge. On analysis of the evidence, the court of appeal ruled that it could not hold as a matter of law that any of the circumstances known to the plaintiffs should have put a reasonably prudent person on inquiry at an earlier time. Since it is a question for the trier of fact to determine whether the plaintiffs' delay in the investigation and discovery of the true facts was reasonable and excusable, and since the trial court had decided in favor of the plaintiff, the judgment was affirmed (150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 539) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
2. Suits in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.524

§ 70.524 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Action Not Barred by Statute of Limitations or Laches Due to Tolling of Three-Year Statute of Limitations Until Discovery of Facts Constituting Fraud or Mistake--Improper Concealment Causing Lack of Investigation

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a complaint in equity to vacate a judgment or order on the ground that the action is not barred by the statute of limitations due to tolling (see § 70.520[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT BECAUSE DEFENDANT IMPROPERLY CONCEALED FACTS AT THE TIME OF THE TRANSACTION IN QUESTION AND AFTER THAT TIME THAT CAUSED PLAINTIFF TO FOREGO INVESTIGATION, THEREFORE, THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS DID NOT COMMENCE TO RUN UNTIL PLAINTIFF DISCOVERED THE FRAUD THEREBY WORKED.

Improper Concealment Causing Lack of Investigation. When there is an improper concealment of facts at the time of the transaction in question and thereafter that causes a party to forego an investigation, the statute of limitations does not commence to run until the party discovers the fraud thereby worked (Harkins v. Fielder (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 538, 310 P.2d 423).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used to oppose a general demurrer to a complaint in an equitable action for relief from a prior judgment or order allegedly obtained through extrinsic fraud or mistake. The ground for opposition is that the statute of limitation was tolled until the plaintiff discovered the defendant's fraudulent concealment that caused the plaintiff to forego investigation [Harkins v. Fielder (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 538, 310 P.2d 423] .

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a complaint in equity to vacate a judgment or order on the ground that the action is not barred by the statute of limitations due to tolling [see § 70.520[1]].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

For references to related Pleading and Practice chapters and points and authorities, § 70.523[2].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, in the case of an improper concealment that caused the plaintiff to forego an investigation, counsel should identify specific allegations in the complaint, by paragraph number, and to any matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice, that raise the issue of concealment.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Improper Concealment Causing Lack of Investigation

The facts and procedural background of Harkins v. Fielder (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 310 P.2d 423 , are discussed in § 70.523[3]. In Harkins, the court of appeal ruled that it could not hold as a matter of law that any of the circumstances known to the plaintiffs should have put a reasonably prudent person on inquiry at an earlier time (150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 539) . When there is an improper concealment of facts at the time of the transaction and thereafter which causes a party to forego an investigation, the statute of limitations does not commence to run until he or she discovers the fraud thereby worked on him or her. When, by reason of representations made to a defrauded party he or she is dissuaded from making inquiry, he or she is not charged with constructive notice of the contents of public records (150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 538) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
2. Suits in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.525

§ 70.525 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Action Not Barred by Statute of Limitations or Laches Due to Tolling of Three-Year Statute of Limitations Until Discovery of Facts Constituting Fraud or Mistake--Representations Dissuading Inquiry Precludes Constructive Notice of Public Records

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a complaint in equity to vacate a judgment or order on the ground that the action is not barred by the statute of limitations due to tolling (see § 70.520[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT BECAUSE PLAINTIFF IS NOT CHARGED WITH CONSTRUCTIVE NOTICE OF PUBLIC RECORDS FOR THE REASON THAT DEFENDANT MADE REPRESENTATIONS TO THE PLAINTIFF THAT DISSUADED HIM/HER FROM MAKING INQUIRY.

Representations Dissuading Inquiry Precludes Constructive Notice. When, by reason of representations made to a defrauded party, he or she is dissuaded from making inquiry, he or she is not charged with constructive notice of the contents of public records [which might have revealed the pertinent facts] (Harkins v. Fielder (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 538, 310 P.2d 423).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used to oppose a general demurrer to a complaint in an equitable action for relief from a prior judgment or order allegedly obtained through extrinsic fraud or mistake. The ground for opposition is that the defendant made representations that dissuaded inquiry, thereby precluding constructive notice to the plaintiff [Harkins v. Fielder (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 538, 310 P.2d 423] .

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a complaint in equity to vacate a judgment or order on the ground that the action is not barred by the statute of limitations due to tolling [see § 70.520[1]].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

For references to related Pleading and Practice chapters and points and authorities, see § 70.523[2][c].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, in the case of an improper representations that caused the plaintiff to forego an inquiry of public records, counsel should identify specific allegations in the complaint, by paragraph number, and to any matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice, that raise the issue of such improper representations.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Representations Dissuading Inquiry Precludes Constructive Notice

The facts and procedural background of Harkins v. Fielder (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 310 P.2d 423 , are discussed in § 70.524[3]. In Harkins, the court found that, as a matter of law, none of the circumstances known to the plaintiffs should have put a reasonably prudent person on inquiry at an earlier time (150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 539) . The court went on to state that when there is an improper concealment of facts at the time of the transaction and thereafter which causes a party to forego an investigation, the statute of limitations does not commence to run until he or she discovers the fraud thereby worked on him or her. When, by reason of representations made to a defrauded party he or she is dissuaded from making inquiry, he or she is not charged with constructive notice of the contents of public records (150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 538) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
2. Suits in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.526

§ 70.526 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Action Not Barred by Statute of Limitations or Laches Due to Aggrieved Party's Disability

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.520[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT BECAUSE A COMPLAINT FOR EQUITABLE RELIEF FROM A _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] OBTAINED BY EXTRINSIC FRAUD OR MISTAKE IS NOT BARRED, EVEN THOUGH IT SHOWS ON ITS FACE THAT IT WAS BROUGHT MORE THAN THREE YEARS BUT LESS THAN FOUR YEARS AFTER THE CAUSE OF ACTION AROSE, WHEN THE GRAVAMEN OF THE COMPLAINT IS THE DISABILITY OF THE AGGRIEVED PARTY IN THE ACTION LEADING TO THE JUDGMENT UNDER ATTACK.

Four-Year Period of Limitation Applicable. An action for relief from a judgment, grounded on the disability of a party in the action leading to the judgment under attack, is within the reach of Section 343 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the four-year statute of limitations governing actions not otherwise covered by statute (Zastrow v. Zastrow (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 710, 716-717, 132 Cal. Rptr. 536).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

Attorney for Plaintiff

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used to oppose a general demurrer to a complaint in an equitable action for relief from a prior judgment or order allegedly obtained through extrinsic fraud or mistake. The ground for opposition is that the three-year statute of limitations [Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)] does not operate to bar the cause of action because plaintiff has alleged facts showing his or her disability, so as to bring the cause of action within the four-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 343.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the demurrer supported by the points and authorities set out in § 70.502[1].

This form should be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing a demurrer on other grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.525, 70.527, 70.528]. This form may be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief in particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.623].

With appropriate modifications, this form may be used in another procedural context, such as in opposition to a defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings or motion for summary judgment. If modified for use in opposing a motion for summary judgment, counsel should attach opposing affidavits or declarations and a separate statement of material facts in addition to the opposing memorandum [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should refer to specific allegations in the complaint, by paragraph number, and to any matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice, that establish:

- Plaintiff's disability led to the judgment under attack; and
- The action was brought less than four years after the cause of action arose.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a general form of demurrer, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender). For forms of complaint to set aside a judgment rendered due to extrinsic fraud or mistake, see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders , and Ch. 318, Judgments , in that publication. For a form of demurrer to a complaint based on the bar of a statute of limitations, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions in that publication.

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For general forms of memoranda opposing a demurrer to a complaint or a motion for judgment on the pleadings, see Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings . For a general memorandum opposing a general demurrer to a complaint on the ground of lapse of the applicable statute of limitations, see Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions . For general forms of memoranda opposing a motion for summary judgment, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Four-Year Period of Limitation Applicable

In Zastrow v. Zastrow (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 710, 132 Cal. Rptr. 536 , former wife sued the former husband to set aside the divorce decree and rescind the property settlement agreement, alleging her mental incompetence at the time of the property settlement agreement and marital dissolution decree incorporating it. The former husband filed a demurrer, alleging that the action was barred by former Code Civ. Proc. § 338(4) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)], the three-year statute of limitations. The trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend, and the former wife appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, as the trial court's ruling was apparently based on the thesis that the suit was one to rescind a property settlement agreement that had merged with a judicial decree procured by fraud or mistake and was thus governed by the three-year statute of limitations was hence barred thereby since it was filed three years and five months after the statute began to run (61 Cal. App. 3d 710, 713) . The court of appeal noted that the suit involved an action by an ex-wife against her ex-husband, alleging her mental incompetence at the time of the execution of a property settlement agreement and the entry of the marital dissolution decree incorporating it. The plaintiff charged neither fraud nor mistake in express terms, although her complaint alleged facts which might culminate in findings of fraud or mistake. However, neither of these represented the dominant fact at the heart of her claim: mental incompetence. Fraud and mistake are the usual, but not the only grounds for equitable relief from a judgment. Equity has power to relieve incompetent defendants from judgments taken under circumstances of unfairness and injustice which deprive them of a fair opportunity fully to submit their cases to the courts (61 Cal. App. 3d 710, 715-716) . Thus, the plaintiff sought relief on the ground of her mental incompetence; a ground entirely distinct from fraud and mistake and outside the ambit of Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d) but within the reach of the four-year statute of limitations governing actions not otherwise covered by statute (Code Civ. Proc. § 343) (61 Cal. App. 3d 710, 717) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
2. Suits in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.527

§ 70.527 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Action Not Barred by Laches Due to Reasonable Diligence in Commencing Action--General Form

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 70.520[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT BECAUSE THE COMPLAINT SEEKING EQUITABLE RELIEF FROM A _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] OBTAINED BY FRAUD OR MISTAKE IS NOT BARRED BY LACHES, IN THAT THE FACTS ALLEGED SHOW THAT PLAINTIFF, AFTER DISCOVERY OF THE FACTS CONSTITUTING THE FRAUD OR MISTAKE, EXERCISED REASONABLE DILIGENCE THEREAFTER IN THE COMMENCEMENT AND PROSECUTION OF THE ACTION.

Reasonable Diligence After Discovery of Facts. A plaintiff seeking equitable relief from a prior judgment obtained by extrinsic fraud or mistake is not barred by laches from maintaining suit until after he or she discovers the facts constituting the fraud or mistake if, on learning the facts which leads him or her to suspect the fraud or mistake, the plaintiff exercises reasonable diligence in the commencement and prosecution of the action (In re Marriage of Modnick (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 897, 908-910, 191 Cal. Rptr. 629, 663 P.2d 187 ; Sullivan v. Lumsden (1897) 118 Cal. 664, 670, 50 P. 777).

[This form may be combined with other points and authorities opposing a demurrer on particular grounds, such as when the opposing party has suffered only minimal prejudice (see, e.g., § 70.528[1])].

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

Attorney for Plaintiff

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used to oppose a general demurrer to a complaint in an equitable action for relief from a prior judgment or order allegedly obtained through extrinsic fraud or mistake. The ground for opposition is that the plaintiff is not barred under the doctrine of laches, because the allegations sufficiently establish that the plaintiff, after learning of the facts concerning the fraud or mistake, exercised reasonable diligence in commencing and prosecuting the action.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the demurrer supported by the points and authorities set out in § 70.503[1].

This form may be combined with other points and authorities opposing a demurrer on particular grounds, such as when the opposing party has suffered only minimal prejudice [see, e.g., § 70.528[1]]. This form should be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing a demurrer on other grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.526]. This form may be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief in particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.623].

With appropriate modifications, this form may be used in another procedural context, such as in opposition to a defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings or motion for summary judgment. If modified for use in opposing a motion for summary judgment, counsel should attach opposing affidavits or declarations and a separate statement of material facts in addition to the opposing memorandum [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should refer to specific allegations in the complaint, by paragraph number, and to any matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice, that show that the plaintiff, on learning the facts that led him or her to suspect the fraud or mistake, exercised reasonable diligence in commencing the action.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a general form of demurrer, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender). For forms of complaint to set aside a judgment rendered due to extrinsic fraud or mistake, see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders , and Ch. 318, Judgments , in that publication.

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For general forms of memoranda opposing a demurrer to a complaint or a motion for judgment on the pleadings, see Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings . For general forms of memoranda opposing a motion for summary judgment, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reasonable Diligence After Discovery of Facts

In re Marriage of Modnick (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 897, 191 Cal. Rptr. 629, 663 P.2d 187 , involved a dissolution action in which the trial court had entered interlocutory and final judgments. After entry, the wife moved to vacate the judgments on the basis of extrinsic fraud, claiming that the husband had concealed the existence of certain community property during the proceedings. However, on reliance on her husband's assurances that she would not have to pursue legal remedies to obtain a fair division of the hidden property, she abandoned her motion, discharged her attorney, and had several meetings with her former husband and his counsel. When negotiations failed, she hired a new attorney who later withdrew from the action. After the present attorney was hired and another six months of futile negotiations were engaged in, a second motion to vacate was filed. The trial court denied the motion. The wife appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed the order of the trial court denying the wife's motion to vacate the interlocutory and final judgments of dissolution insofar as it related to the property settlement incorporated into the divorce decree and the award of spouse support. In all other aspects, the Court affirmed the order. One of the husband's arguments was that his wife was barred from seeking equitable relief by the doctrine of laches. In examining the reasonableness of the wife's actions in not filing a motion to vacate earlier, the Court found that, under the circumstances, the wife had acted with reasonable diligence in seeking relief following her discovery of the concealment. Therefore, the doctrine of laches did not preclude the claim of fraud (33 Cal. 3d 897, 910) .

In Sullivan v. Lumsden (1897) 118 Cal. 664, 50 P. 777 , the plaintiffs brought an action to have a decree of partition of certain lands vacated and set aside and a new partition made, on the ground that the referees and the court, in the prior action, by mistake and inadvertence, failed to allot or set apart to the plaintiffs any part or interest in the lands, but did set apart to them land in an adjoining lot, to which the plaintiffs could thereby acquire no title. The case was tried and the trial court found, among other things, that the averments of the complaint were true, and gave judgment in favor of the plaintiffs as prayed for. The defendants appealed from the judgment and an order denying a new trial.

The Supreme Court affirmed. The Supreme Court noted that the suit in equity was brought within one year after the original decree ordering partition of lands was entered (118 Cal. 664, 667) , that there was nothing in the report of the referees, the record of the prior action, or the decree to indicate the mistake. The Court further noted that the mistake was concealed by reason of the description of the lands in the complaint. Moreover, without fault or negligence on the part of the plaintiffs, the mistake was not discovered until after their remedy by motion or other legal process in the original action had expired. The plaintiffs took immediate steps to ascertain the facts as soon as they received information which led them to suspect the mistake and employed counsel to prosecute the suit in action. At all times, said the Court, they used reasonable diligence in the commencement and prosecution of the action. Thus, the Court held that the plaintiffs were not barred from maintaining their action by reason of delay or laches (118 Cal. 664, 670) , and the Court concluded that it found nothing in the record calling for a reversal, and affirmed the judgment and order appealed from (118 Cal. 664, 671) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
2. Suits in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.528

§ 70.528 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--Action Not Barred by Laches Due to Reasonable Diligence in Commencing Action--Minimal Prejudice to Opposing Party

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a complaint in equity to vacate a judgment or order on the ground that the action is not barred by laches (see § 70.527[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT BECAUSE THE COMPLAINT SEEKING EQUITABLE RELIEF FROM A _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] OBTAINED BY FRAUD OR MISTAKE IS NOT BARRED BY LACHES, IN THAT THE PREJUDICE SUFFERED BY THE DEMURRING PARTY, IF ANY, IS MINIMAL AT MOST.

Minimal Prejudice to Opposing Party. The doctrine of laches will not bar a motion to vacate a judgment on the basis of fraud when the moving party has been reasonably diligent in seeking relief and the prejudice resulting to the opposing party from the delay is minimal at most (In re Marriage of Modnick (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 897, 908-910, 191 Cal. Rptr. 629, 663 P.2d 187).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used to oppose a general demurrer to a complaint in an equitable action for relief from a prior judgment or order allegedly obtained through extrinsic fraud or mistake. The ground for opposition is that the prejudice suffered by the demurring party, if any, is minimal at most [In re Marriage of Modnick (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 897, 908-910, 191 Cal. Rptr. 629, 663 P.2d 187] .

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the demurrer supported by the points and authorities set out in § 70.503[1].

For references to related Pleading and Practice chapters and points and authorities, see § 70.527[2].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should refer to specific allegations in the complaint, by paragraph number, and to any matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice, that show that the prejudice suffered by the defendant, if any, is minimal at most.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Minimal Prejudice to Opposing Party

The facts and procedural background of In re Marriage of Modnick (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 897, 191 Cal. Rptr. 629, 663 P.2d 187 , are discussed in § 70.527[3]. In that case, the Supreme Court held that a two-year delay in seeking relief from a judgment on the basis of concealment of property by the moving party's former husband was not barred by laches. The concealment on which the motion was based took place over a period of eight years prior to the motion, and the Court held that a two-year delay did not significantly add to the husband's burden to account for the concealed property for that period of time (33 Cal. 3d 897, 908-909) . In passing on the argument of laches, the Court held, the court must look to the extent of prejudice to the opposing party and to the reasonableness of the moving party in not filing the motion earlier (33 Cal. 3d 897, 908) . In the present case, such prejudice was minimal, if any, and was balanced by reasonable diligence on the part of the moving party in seeking relief (33 Cal. 3d 897, 910) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
2. Suits in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.529-70.539

[Reserved]

§§ 70.529[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
2. Suits in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.540

§ 70.540 Opposing Motion for Summary Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c] on Complaint in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That Prior Motion to Vacate Does Not Bar Present Action--General Form

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION
Plaintiff,	)	FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT ON COMPLAINT
vs.	)	FOR RELIEF FROM JUDGMENT OBTAINED BY
_____ [name],	)	FRAUD OR MISTAKE
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
		Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT BECAUSE A TRIABLE ISSUE OF MATERIAL FACT EXISTS AND THE MOVING PARTY IS NOT ENTITLED TO A JUDGMENT AS A MATTER OF LAW, IN THAT, ALTHOUGH THERE WAS A PRIOR MOTION TO VACATE

THE EARLIER _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER], PLAINTIFF DID NOT MAKE A DETAILED PRESENTATION OF THE ISSUE(S) OF EXTRINSIC _____ [FRAUD and/or MISTAKE], NOR DID HE/SHE HAVE A FULL OPPORTUNITY AT THE TIME OF THE HEARING TO DEVELOP THE ISSUE(S) BY ORAL TESTIMONY.

A. No Summary Judgment Unless There Are No Triable Issues. A motion for summary judgment is appropriate only when no triable issue of material fact exists and when the moving party's affidavits set forth sufficient facts to sustain a judgment in its favor. A defendant moving for summary judgment maintains the burden of establishing the lack of merit of the plaintiff's action. Because of the drastic nature of the relief sought, the affidavits of the party moving for summary judgment must be strictly construed, while a liberal construction must be accorded any affidavits in opposition (Rohrbasser v. Lederer (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 290, 296, 224 Cal. Rptr. 791).

B. Attack on Judgment by Motion to Vacate and Independent Equitable Action Distinct and Cumulative. It is well settled in California that a judgment procured by extrinsic fraud or mistake may be attacked either by a motion in the same action or by an independent action in a court having equity jurisdiction, and that each remedy is distinct and cumulative. The preferred practice is for plaintiff to seek a summary disposition of the issue of whether the prior judgment was procured by extrinsic fraud or mistake on motion, and if defeated in that proceeding to commence a separate action for relief (Estudillo v. Security Loan etc. Co. (1906) 149 Cal. 556, 565, 87 P. 19 ; Rohrbasser v. Lederer (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 290, 297-298, 224 Cal. Rptr. 791).

C. Test Is Whether Issues Were Fully Presented or Full Opportunity to Develop Issues by Oral Testimony Granted. The test is whether the person attacking the judgment made a detailed presentation of the issues of fraud or mistake on his or her motion to vacate, or was given a full opportunity at the time of the hearing to develop the issues by oral testimony. Otherwise, denial of the motion is not res judicata of the issues and the subsequent independent action can be maintained (Rohrbasser v. Lederer (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 290, 298, 224 Cal. Rptr. 791).

[This form may be combined with other points and authorities opposing a motion for summary judgment or demurrer (see, e.g., § 70.541[1])].

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

Attorney for Plaintiff

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted by a plaintiff in an action for equitable relief from a judgment allegedly obtained through extrinsic fraud or mistake in opposition to a defendant's motion for summary judgment. The ground for opposition is that summary judgment is improper because a triable issue of material fact exists, and defendant is not entitled to judgment as a matter of law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a), (c)], in that all the papers submitted for and against the motion show that, although plaintiff had previously submitted a motion to vacate the judgment on the same grounds, he or she either did not make a detailed presentation of the issue of extrinsic fraud or mistake, or was not granted a full opportunity to develop the issue by oral testimony. Counsel should attach opposing affidavits or declarations and a separate statement of material facts in addition to the opposing memorandum [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b)].

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the demurrer supported by the points and authorities set out in § 70.510[1].

This form may be combined with other points and authorities opposing a motion for summary judgment or demurrer [see, e.g., § 70.541[1]]. This form may be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief in particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.623].

With appropriate modifications, this form may be used in another procedural context, such as in opposition to a demurrer or motion for judgment on the pleadings [see Barker v. Hull (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 221, 226, 236 Cal. Rptr. 285] .

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Therefore, in counsel's argument, counsel should refer to the record of the motion to vacate, as well as any pertinent affidavits or declarations, and identify: (1) the issues of fraud or mistake that must have been raised under the prior motion to vacate to bar the present action; and (2) facts showing either that a full presentation of those issues were not made, or that the plaintiff in this action was not granted a full opportunity to develop the issue by oral testimony. See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a general form of summary judgment, an opposing declaration, and an opposing statement of material facts, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 537, Summary Judgment (Matthew Bender). For forms of complaint to set aside a judgment rendered due to extrinsic fraud or mistake, see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders , and Ch. 318, Judgments , in that publication.

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For general forms of memoranda supporting a motion for summary judgment, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments . For general forms of memoranda supporting a demurrer to a complaint or a motion for judgment on the pleadings, see Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Summary Judgment Unless There Are No Triable Issues

In Rohrbasser v. Lederer (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 290, 224 Cal. Rptr. 791 , the plaintiff was an assignee of a default judgment obtained in an earlier action against the defendant. The plaintiff brought the action to set aside a fraudulent conveyance by the defendant. In addition to answering the complaint, the defendant filed a cross complaint against the plaintiff seeking to set aside the default judgment on the ground of extrinsic fraud. The cross complainant had also sought to vacate the default and set aside the default judgment previous to the present action by a motion, which was denied. The cross defendant filed a motion for summary judgment, claiming that the cross complaint was barred by the doctrine of res judicata, and contending that the issues raised in the cross complaint were resolved in the cross complainant's motion to vacate the default and set aside the default judgment. The trial court granted the motion and entered judgment for the cross defendant. The cross complainant appealed.

The court of appeal reversed and remanded the matter, instructing the trial court to deny the cross defendant's motion for summary judgment. The court stated that a motion for summary judgment is appropriate only when no triable issue of material fact exists and when the moving party's affidavits set forth sufficient facts to sustain a judgment in its favor. The court of appeal stated the principle that a defendant moving for summary judgment has the burden of establishing the lack of merit of the plaintiff's action. In addition, the court of appeal cited Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 111, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561 , for the proposition that, because of the drastic nature of the relief sought, the affidavits of the party moving for summary judgment must be strictly construed, while a liberal construction must be accorded any affidavits in opposition (179 Cal. App. 3d 290, 296) . The court held that the cross complainant's motion to vacate the default and set aside the default judgment could not operate as a bar to the cross complaint (179 Cal. App. 3d 290, 293, 300) .

[b] Attack on Judgment by Motion to Vacate and Independent Equitable Action Distinct and Cumulative

In Estudillo v. Security Loan etc. Co. (1906) 149 Cal. 556, 87 P. 19 , the plaintiffs were husband and wife who mortgaged certain lands to secure an indebtedness to the defendant loan corporation. Under a judgment of foreclosure entered on their default, the mortgaged premises were sold to the corporation by its codefendant, acting as special commissioner under the decree. The plaintiffs brought an action to obtain a decree vacating the foreclosure sale, canceling the certificates and deeds executed and recorded under the sale, requiring the corporation to account for moneys received by it from the plaintiffs, and for general relief. The trial court sustained the defendant's demurrer. Plaintiffs declined to amend and judgment was entered dismissing the action. The plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal reversed and remanded the cause, instructing the trial court to overrule the demurrer with leave to the defendants to answer. The court of appeal considered whether a party against whom an excessive judgment has been entered due to a fraudulent and collusive agreement between his or her attorney and the opposing party can maintain a separate suit in equity to vacate the judgment, or enjoin its enforcement when it appears that he or she had notice of its entry and the fraud in its procurement in ample time to have moved for relief under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)) (149 Cal. 556, 562-563) . The court observed that the burden of proof rests on no one more heavily than on a plaintiff seeking relief on the ground of fraud, and that plaintiff ought not to be unduly hampered as to the means of making proof. In support of a motion, the plaintiff is limited to ex parte affidavits of voluntary witnesses unless the court in its discretion permits a wider latitude. In a separate suit, the plaintiff may bring unwilling witnesses into court by subpoena, and may take their depositions. The remedy is ampler and more efficacious, and the case is one which demands the amplest and most efficacious remedy. The court then concluded that the plaintiffs had the right to maintain the suit, notwithstanding they knew of the fraud alleged in ample time to have moved on that ground (149 Cal. 556, 564) .

Further, the court stated that the fact that the plaintiff did move to vacate in this case was not res judicata, since the allegations of the complaint did not show that the order denying the motion to vacate is a bar to the action. In this latter regard, the court stated that in an action to set aside a judgment on the ground of fraud, neither the judgment thus sought to be vacated, nor an order refusing to set aside a default and permit an answer in that case can be set up as a bar to the action. The court observed that the correct practice would be to move promptly under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), and if defeated in that proceeding to commence a separate action for relief on the ground of the plaintiff's fraud; a practice to be commended as convenient and expeditious in case the motion should be granted, and as affording the injured party all the advantage of a regular trial of the issue of fraud if the more summary proceeding proved ineffectual (149 Cal. 556, 565) .

The facts and procedural background of Rohrbasser v. Lederer (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 290, 224 Cal. Rptr. 791 , are discussed under [a], above. In Rohrbasser, the court of appeal stated that it is well settled in California that a judgment procured by extrinsic fraud or mistake may be attacked either by a motion in the same action or by an independent action in a court having equity jurisdiction, and that each remedy is distinct and cumulative. The court compared, on the one hand, the heavy burden of proof on the plaintiff seeking relief on the ground of fraud, and that he or she is usually limited to evidence in declarations of voluntary witnesses, with, on the other hand, the more effective remedy of a separate suit in which the plaintiff may bring unwilling witnesses into court by subpoena. Citing Estudillo v. Security

Loan etc. Co. (1906) 149 Cal. 556, 565, 87 P. 19 (discussed above), the court stated that the better practice is to seek a summary disposition of the issue of whether the prior judgment was procured by extrinsic fraud or mistake on motion, and if defeated in that proceeding to commence a separate action for relief (179 Cal. App. 3d 290, 297-298) .

[c] Test Is Whether Issues Were Fully Presented or Full Opportunity to Develop Issues by Oral Testimony Granted

The facts and procedural background of Rohrbasser v. Lederer (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 290, 224 Cal. Rptr. 791 , are discussed under [a], above. In Rohrbasser, the court of appeal stated that the test for determining whether an order denying a prior motion for relief from a judgment is or is not res judicata is whether the person attacking the judgment made a detailed presentation of the issues of fraud or mistake on his or her motion to vacate, or was given a full opportunity at the time of the hearing to develop the issues by oral testimony. Absent these circumstances, a denial of the motion is not res judicata of the issues and the subsequent independent action can be maintained (179 Cal. App. 3d 290, 298) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
2. Suits in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.541

§ 70.541 Opposing Motion for Summary Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437] on Complaint in Equity to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That Prior Motion to Vacate Does Not Bar Present Action--Presentation of Issues Test Applies Whether Prior Motion Was in Equity or Under

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion for summary judgment on a complaint in equity to vacate a judgment or order (see § 70.540[1]).]

THE FULL PRESENTATION OF ISSUES TEST APPLIES WHETHER THE PRIOR MOTION WAS MADE IN EQUITY OR UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 473.

Presentation of Issues Test Applies Whether Prior Motion Was in Equity or Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 . The test requiring either detailed presentation of issues of extrinsic fraud or mistake or that there was granted a full opportunity to develop those issues by oral testimony, applies regardless of whether the prior motion was made pursuant to Section 473 of the Code of Civil Procedure or was one addressed to the equity power of the court (Rohrbasser v. Lederer (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 290, 299, 224 Cal. Rptr. 791).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted by a plaintiff in an action for equitable relief from a judgment allegedly obtained through extrinsic fraud or mistake in opposition to a defendant's motion for summary judgment. These points and authorities set forth the rule that the presentation of issues test applies whether prior motion was in equity or under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a motion for summary judgment on a complaint in equity to vacate a judgment or order [see § 70.540[1]].

For references to related Pleading and Practice chapters and points and authorities, see § 70.540[2].

This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See the § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Presentation of Issues Test Applies Whether Prior Motion Was in Equity or Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473

The facts and procedural background of Rohrbasser v. Lederer (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 290, 224 Cal. Rptr. 791 , are discussed in § 70.540[3]. In Rohrbasser, the court of appeal stated that the test for determining whether an order denying a prior motion for relief from a judgment is or is not res judicata, which requires either detailed presentation of issues of extrinsic fraud or mistake or that there was granted a full opportunity to develop those issues by oral testimony, applies regardless of whether the prior motion was made pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), or was addressed to the equity power of the court (179 Cal. App. 3d 290, 299) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
2. Suits in Equity

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.542-70.549

[Reserved]

§§ 70.542[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.550

§ 70.550 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress--General Grounds for Grant of Equitable Relief

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a general memorandum supporting a motion in equity (see, e.g., § 70.480[1]), a memorandum opposing a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528), a memorandum opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment in an independent suit in equity (see, e.g., § 70.540[1]), or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RELIEF IN EQUITY AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE _____ [THERE WAS AN ABSENCE OF A FAIR ADVERSARY TRIAL AT LAW IN THE ACTION IN WHICH THE JUDGMENT WAS RENDERED or THE JUDGMENT IN THE (PRIOR) ACTION WAS TAKEN UNDER CIRCUMSTANCES OF UNFAIRNESS AND INJUSTICE WHICH DEPRIVED THE AGGRIEVED PARTY OF A FAIR OPPORTUNITY TO SUBMIT THE CASE TO THE COURT].

[EITHER]

A. Absence of Fair Adversary Trial in Prior Action. Equity's jurisdiction to interfere with final judgments is based on the absence of a fair adversary at law in the original action (Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 575, 122 P.2d 564).

[OR]

A. Judgment Taken Under Circumstances of Unfairness and Injustice. Equity has power to grant relief from judgments taken under circumstances of unfairness and injustice which deprived the aggrieved party of a fair opportunity to submit his/her case fully to the court (Zastrow v. Zastrow (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 710, 716, 132 Cal. Rptr. 536).

[EITHER]

B. Extrinsic Fraud Which Prevents Fair Adversary Trial. When the lack of a fair adversary hearing in the original action is attributable to matters outside the issues adjudicated therein that prevented one party from presenting a case to the court, as for example, when there was extrinsic fraud, equity will interfere with the final judgment rendered in such prior action (Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 575, 122 P.2d 564).

[OR]

B. Extrinsic Mistake in Absence of Fair Adversary Trial. Extrinsic mistake is a ground for vacation of a judgment in equity when there has been no fair adversary trial or when the lack of such trial is attributable to extrinsic mistake (Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 575, 122 P.2d 564).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment or order obtained by reason of either extrinsic fraud or mistake. This memorandum establishes the general principle that equity may act when, because of extrinsic fraud or mistake, there was no fair adversary trial in the original action or the judgment was taken under circumstances of unfairness and injustice.

This form should be combined with a general memorandum, depending on the procedural context in which the contention is to be raised. It may, for example, be combined with a general form of points and authorities supporting a motion in equity [see, e.g., § 70.480[1]]. It may also be combined with a memorandum used to oppose a defendant's attempt to dispose of an independent suit in equity through a pretrial proceeding such as a general demurrer to the complaint [see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528], or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., § 70.540[1]].

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.560 -70.623].

See also § 70.480[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

This form may also be used in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus counsel should refer to specific facts establishing that the plaintiff was prevented from exhibiting fully his or her case. For example, counsel may refer to testimony that establishes the probability that the plaintiff's former, regularly employed, attorney corruptly sold out plaintiff's interests to the opposing side [see United States v. Throckmorton (1878) 98 U.S. 61, 66, 25 L. Ed. 93 , discussed under [4], below].

See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In appropriate cases, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.630 -780.668, and 70.660 -70.670 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Absence of Fair Adversary Trial in Prior Action

The facts and procedural background of Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 122 P.2d 564 , are discussed in § 70.480[3] [see also discussion in § 70.520[3]]. In Olivera, the Supreme Court observed that equity's jurisdiction to interfere with final judgments is based on the absence of a fair, adversary trial in the original action and that typical situations in which equity has interfered with such judgments are cases when the lack of a fair adversary hearing in the original action is attributable to matters outside the issues adjudicated therein which prevented one party from presenting his or her case to the court, as for example, when there is extrinsic fraud or mistake. The Court concluded that one who has been prevented by extrinsic factors from presenting his or her case to the court may bring an independent action in equity to secure relief from the judgment entered against him or her (19 Cal. 2d 570, 575) .

[b] Judgment Taken Under Circumstances of Unfairness and Injustice

The facts and procedural background of Zastrow v. Zastrow (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 710, 132 Cal. Rptr. 536 , are discussed in § 70.526[3]. In Zastrow, the court of appeal stated that fraud and mistake are the usual but not the only grounds for equitable relief from a judgment. Citing Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 575, 122 P.2d 564 , the court pointed out that equity has power to relieve incompetent defendants from judgments taken under circumstances of unfairness and injustice which deprive them of a fair opportunity fully to submit their cases to the courts (61 Cal. App. 3d 710, 716) .

[c] Extrinsic Fraud Which Prevents Fair Adversary Trial

The facts and procedural background of Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 122 P.2d 564 , are discussed in § 70.480[3] [see also discussion in § 70.520[3]]. In Olivera, the Supreme Court observed that typical situations in which equity has interfered with judgments are cases where the lack of a fair adversary hearing in the original action is attributable to matters outside the issues adjudicated therein which prevented one party from presenting his or her case to the court (19 Cal. 2d 570, 575) . The Court noted that when the defendant is under such a legal disability, and the plaintiff has knowledge of the defendant's condition, a duty rests on the plaintiff to disclose such matters to the court and to have a guardian appointed for the purpose of the proceeding. If the plaintiff knows of the defendant's incompetency but conceals the information from the court and, to prevent a true adversary hearing, proceeds to a default judgment by taking advantage of defendant's condition, the plaintiff's conduct constitutes fraud on the court as well as on the incompetent defendant. Since the direct effect of such concealment is to prevent the incompetent from presenting whatever defense the defendant has to the court, it is clear, the Court concluded, that the fraud is extrinsic in nature (19 Cal. 2d 570, 577) .

[d] Extrinsic Mistake in Absence of Fair Adversary Trial

The facts and procedural background of Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 122 P.2d 564 , are discussed in § 70.480[3] [see also discussion in § 70.520[3]]. In Olivera, the Supreme Court observed that courts have granted relief when the plaintiff's ignorance of defendant's legal disability prevented a true adversary hearing as well as when the plaintiff's fraud prevented such a hearing. After characterizing such a situation as extrinsic mistake, the Court held that even if no actual fraud on the part of the defendant could be proved, the facts of the case before it, involving judgment against an incompetent person who was not judicially declared of unsound mind and for whom no guardian was appointed, were sufficient to justify the intervention of a court of equity if the other requirements for equitable relief could have been established (19 Cal. 2d 570, 578) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Absence of Fair Adversary Trial in Prior Action

In United States v. Throckmorton (1878) 98 U.S. 61, 25 L. Ed. 93 , the Supreme Court affirmed a decree of the circuit court sustaining a demurrer to a bill in chancery and dismissing it on its merits, ruling, however, that when there has never been a real contest in the trial or hearing of a case a new suit may be sustained to set aside and annul the former judgment or decree and open the case for a new and fair hearing. The Court stated the general rule that when an unsuccessful party who has been prevented from exhibiting fully his or her case by fraud or deception practiced on him or her by his or her opponent, such as by keeping him or her away from court or a false promise of a compromise or who never had knowledge of the suit because of certain acts of the plaintiff, or when an attorney fraudulently or without authority assumes to represent a party and connives at his or her defeat, or an attorney regularly employed corruptly sells out his or her client's interest to the other side are examples of cases in which there has never been a real contest in the trial or hearing of the case and in which a new suit may be sustained. The Court analyzed the facts and concluded that the case involved a mere charge of carelessness or negligence on the part of an attorney which would not have supported a motion for a new trial much less a suit in chancery to set aside a decree (98 U.S. 61, 69) .

[b] Extrinsic Fraud Which Prevents Fair Adversary Trial

The facts and procedural background of United States v. Throckmorton (1878) 98 U.S. 61, 25 L. Ed. 93 , are discussed under [a], above. The United States Supreme Court in Throckmorton cited examples of conduct extrinsic fraud on a defendant, such as keeping him or her away from court or a false promise of a compromise, or who never had knowledge of the suit because of certain acts of the plaintiff, or when an attorney fraudulently or without authority assumes to represent a party and connives at his or her defeat, or an attorney regularly employed corruptly sells out his or her client's interest to the other side (98 U.S. 61, 65-66) .

[c] Extrinsic Mistake in Absence of Fair Adversary Trial

The facts and procedural background of Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 305 P.2d 20 , are discussed in § 70.502[4]. In Bennett, the plaintiffs alleged, in the prior action which it brought to determine membership rights, that the defendant bank failed to comply with statutory provisions as to personal service to members even though it knew of the membership rights of the plaintiffs' predecessor and her address, thereby precluding notice to the predecessor and opportunity to participate in the action. The Supreme Court held that these allegations were sufficient to bring the case within the principles of both extrinsic fraud and extrinsic mistake. The Court further ruled that the failure to comply with the statutory provisions for service of process constitutes grounds for the vacation of a judgment by way of a direct attack in equity. Such an attack may be made on the ground of extrinsic fraud when it appears that there was a willful failure to give the required service or that willfully false affidavits of service were filed. Moreover, the Court observed, a direct attack has been allowed in an independent action in equity when there has been a failure to exercise the degree of diligence required by law in connection with personal service, when false recitals of service were the result of fraud, negligence, or mistake, and when failure to name a person as a party was the result of mistake. These attacks have been made in accord with the general principle that extrinsic mistake may be a ground for vacation of a judgment by an independent action in equity when there has been no fair adversary trial (47 Cal. 2d 540, 558-559) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.551-70.559

[Reserved]

§§ 70.551[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.560

§ 70.560 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Mistake of Fact--Generally

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a general memorandum supporting a motion in equity (see, e.g., § 70.480[1]), a memorandum opposing a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528), a memorandum opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment in an independent suit in equity (see, e.g., § 70.540[1]), or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD EXERCISE EQUITABLE JURISDICTION TO GRANT RELIEF AGAINST THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE THE AGGRIEVED PARTY WAS PREVENTED BY EXTRINSIC ACCIDENT AND MISTAKE FROM PRESENTING HIS/HER DEFENSE IN THE [PRIOR] ACTION.

Relief in Equity for Mistake of Fact. A party who is prevented by extrinsic accident and mistake of fact from presenting his or her defense to an action may seek equitable intervention for relief from the mistake (Hallett v. Slaughter (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 552, 557, 140 P.2d 3).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment or order obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake.

This form should be combined with a general memorandum, depending on the procedural context in which the contention is to be raised. It may, for example, be combined with a general form of points and authorities supporting a motion in equity [see, e.g., § 70.480[1]]. It may also be combined with a memorandum used to oppose a defendant's attempt to dispose of an independent suit in equity through a pretrial proceeding such as a general demurrer to the complaint [see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528], or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., § 70.540[1]].

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.550, 70.561 -70.623], particularly additional points and authorities supporting relief based on extrinsic mistake in particular circumstances [see, e.g., § 70.561 -70.567].

See also *§ 70.480[2]*for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

This form may also be used in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, if the defendant's answer was never received by the court clerk for filing, but was in fact mailed to the court, counsel may refer to facts in declarations showing that the answer was prepared and given to the secretary for mailing, and that as a matter of customary office procedure that if the documents had been given to the secretary to be mailed, they were mailed with sufficient postage [see, e.g., Hallett v. Slaughter (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 552, 555-556, 140 P.2d 3 (discussed under [3], below)].

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.630 -780.668, and 70.660 -70.670 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Relief in Equity for Mistake of Fact

Hallett v. Slaughter (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 552, 140 P.2d 3 , involved an action in equity to set aside and vacate an earlier judgment by default that had been entered against the plaintiff in a municipal court action. The plaintiff had contacted an attorney to represent her in the municipal court action, and the attorney had mailed an answer to the complaint in the action to the clerk of the municipal court as well as to the opposing attorney. Neither the answer nor the copy was received by the clerk or the attorney. The evidence at trial on this matter showed that although the secretary for plaintiff's attorney in the municipal court action did not recall the matter, if the documents had been given to her to be mailed, they were mailed with sufficient postage as a matter of customary office procedure. The trial court granted judgment for the plaintiff and the defendant appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment. The Supreme Court found that the testimony given at the trial court supported the finding that the papers were mailed. Also finding that any delay in failing to discover the default sooner did not constitute inexcusable neglect as a matter of law, the Court stated that plaintiff was prevented by extrinsic accident and mistake of fact from presenting her defense in the municipal court action. That such accident and mistake furnished a ground for equitable intervention under the circumstance of the case was clear according to the Court (22 Cal. 2d 552, 557) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.561

§ 70.561 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Mistake of Fact--Mistake Preventing Proper Notice or Appearance

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a general memorandum supporting a motion in equity (see, e.g., § 70.480[1]), a memorandum opposing a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528), a memorandum opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment in an independent suit in equity (see, e.g., § 70.540[1]), or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RELIEF IN EQUITY AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE A MISTAKE PREVENTED THE AGGRIEVED PARTY FROM _____ [BEING GIVEN PROPER NOTICE OF or APPEARING IN] THE [PRIOR] ACTION.

Mistake Preventing Proper Notice or Appearance. When mistake prevents a defendant from having his/her day in court in the former action, that party is entitled to equitable relief against the judgment rendered in that action (Boyle v. Boyle (1929) 97 Cal. App. 703, 706-707, 276 P. 118).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment or order obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake which prevented the party from receiving proper notice of the action or from appearing in the action.

This form should be combined with a general memorandum, depending on the procedural context in which the contention is to be raised. It may, for example, be combined with a general form of points and authorities supporting a motion in equity [see, e.g., § 70.480[1]]. It may also be combined with a memorandum used to oppose a defendant's attempt to dispose of an independent suit in equity through a pretrial proceeding such as a general demurrer to the complaint [see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528], or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., § 70.540[1]].

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.560, 70.562 -70.623], particularly additional points and authorities supporting relief based on extrinsic mistake in particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.560, 70.562 -70.567].

See also *§ 70.480[2]*for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

This form may also be used in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, if the basis for the contention is that the aggrieved party was not named a party to the action in which the judgment was rendered because of an extrinsic mistake, counsel should refer to the circumstances that establish the mistake [see, e.g., Boyle v. Boyle (1929) 97 Cal. App. 703, 706, 276 P. 118 (plaintiff in prior action had been laboring under the mistaken belief that her decree would not affect her daughter's title), discussed under [3], below].

See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.630 -780.668, and 70.660 -70.670 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mistake Preventing Proper Notice or Appearance

In Boyle v. Boyle (1929) 97 Cal. App. 703, 276 P. 118 , involved an action to quiet title in the deceased, whose title to the property was at issue, had, during her lifetime, executed and delivered a deed of gift to the property to her daughter. The deed, which went unrecorded, reserved a life estate to the mother and gave the remainder to the daughter. Later, after the records of the mother's title to the property were destroyed by earthquake and fire, the mother obtained a decree under a remedial statute, the McEnerny Act, quieting title in her without notifying the daughter. The trial court had found that the mother's omission to name the daughter as a party in the original action was not fraudulent and, thus, held for the administrator, despite allegations in the daughter's cross complaint that the decree had been obtained without any notice to her whatever as a result of her mother's mistake and ignorance as to the legal effect of the decree on the cross complaint's title. The daughter appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment. The court noted that the mother had been laboring under the mistaken belief that her decree would not affect her daughter's title. It was also noted that if the daughter had been kept away from court by fraud on the part of her mother so that she never had her day in court, she would be entitled to equitable relief. Mistake, said the court, is just as potent as fraud as a ground for such relief when that mistake has prevented a defendant from having his or her day in court. Accordingly, the court held in favor of the cross complainant daughter (97 Cal. App. 703, 706-707) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.562

§ 70.562 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Mistake of Fact--Mistake of Prevailing Party in Original Action

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a general memorandum supporting a motion in equity (see, e.g., § 70.480[1]), a memorandum opposing a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528), a memorandum opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment in an independent suit in equity (see, e.g., § 70.540[1]), or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RELIEF IN EQUITY AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE AN EXTRINSIC MISTAKE ON THE PART OF THE PARTY WHO PREVAILED IN THE [PRIOR] ACTION PREVENTED THE AGGRIEVED PARTY FROM PARTICIPATING IN THE ACTION OR PRESENTING ALL OF HIS/HER CASE TO THE COURT.

Extrinsic Mistake of Prevailing Party. When the extrinsic mistake of the prevailing party has prevented the aggrieved party from participating in the original action or presenting all of his/her case to the court, the court is justified in granting equitable relief against the judgment (Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 577-578, 122 P.2d 564 ; Bacon v. Bacon (1907) 150 Cal. 477, 492, 89 P. 317).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment or order obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake, when the judgment or order was obtained by extrinsic mistake on the part of the party who prevailed in the original action.

This form should be combined with a general memorandum, depending on the procedural context in which the contention is to be raised. It may, for example, be combined with a general form of points and authorities supporting a motion in equity [see, e.g., § 70.480[1]]. It may also be combined with a memorandum used to oppose a defendant's attempt to dispose of an independent suit in equity through a pretrial proceeding such as a general demurrer to the complaint [see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528], or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., § 70.540[1]].

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.561, 70.563 -70.623], particularly additional points and authorities supporting relief based on extrinsic mistake in particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.560, 70.561, 70.563 -70.567].

See also § 70.480[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

This form may also be used in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, if the prevailing party in the action in which the judgment rendered had failed to secure the appointment of a guardian to represent an incompetent person or to inform the court as to the incompetency, counsel should refer to facts establishing the incompetency, knowledge of that incompetency by the prevailing party, and the prevailing party's failure to disclose that fact to the court [see Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 578, 122 P.2d 564] .

See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.630 -780.668, and 70.660 -70.670 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Extrinsic Mistake of Prevailing Party

The facts and procedural background of Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 122 P.2d 564 , are discussed in § 70.480[3] [see also discussion in § 70.520[3]]. In Olivera, the defendant in the prior action was an incompetent and the plaintiff had failed to secure the appointment of a guardian to represent her or to inform the court as to the incompetency. The Supreme Court ruled that the right of such a defendant to equitable relief may be established if the plaintiff's ignorance of the defendant's disability prevented a true adversary hearing as well as when the plaintiff's fraud prevented such a hearing. While some courts characterize such a situation as constructive fraud, the Court stated that it would be more accurate to characterize such a situation as extrinsic mistake, a recognized ground for the intervention of equity when the mistake has prevented a fair adversary hearing (19 Cal. 2d 570, 578) .

The facts and procedural background of Bacon v. Bacon (1907) 150 Cal. 477, 89 P. 317 , are discussed in § 70.522[3]. In Bacon, the aggrieved party had received $2,000 of a $10,000 legacy by reason of a misreading of the will involved. The Supreme Court noted that the plaintiff had been informed of the smaller figure during the probate period by her husband who was a personal representative of the estate and had been given a copy of the will which reflected the same misreading, and that she had thereby been induced to believe she was receiving her claim in full and had no reason to appear in the distribution proceeding, in which the same mistake was perpetuated. By reason of this mistake, said the Court, she was prevented from exhibiting her case fully and as a result there was no adversary trial, no real contest, and no fair submission of the question of whether her legacy was $2,000 or $10,000 (150 Cal. 477, 492) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Extrinsic Mistake of Prevailing Party

The facts and procedural background of Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 305 P.2d 20 , is discussed in § 70.502[4]. In Bennett, a bank failed to comply with statutory provisions relating to personal service to members even though it knew of the membership rights of the plaintiff's predecessor and her address, thereby precluding notice to the predecessor and opportunity to participate in the action. The Supreme Court held that allegations stating these facts were sufficient to bring the case within the principles of both extrinsic fraud and extrinsic mistake (47 Cal. 2d 540, 558-559) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.563

§ 70.563 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Mistake of Fact--Mistake of Aggrieved Party--Loss of Answer in Mail

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a general memorandum supporting a motion in equity (see, e.g., § 70.480[1]), a memorandum opposing a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528), a memorandum opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment in an independent suit in equity (see, e.g., § 70.540[1]), or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RELIEF IN EQUITY AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE OF EXTRINSIC MISTAKE, IN THAT THE FAILURE OF THE AGGRIEVED PARTY TO FILE A RESPONSIVE PLEADING WAS BECAUSE THE PLEADING HAD BEEN LOST IN THE MAIL AFTER IT HAD BEEN DULY ADDRESSED AND MAILED.

A. Extrinsic Mistake of Aggrieved Party. When the aggrieved party was prevented by extrinsic mistake [of fact] from presenting a defense in the prior action, there is a ground for equitable intervention and relief against the judgment in that action (Hallett v. Slaughter (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 552, 557, 140 P.2d 3).

B. Loss of Answer in Mail as Basis for Equitable Relief. Mistake of fact may furnish ground for equitable intervention to relieve a party from a default or default judgment when the party's failure to file a responsive pleading was because the pleading had been lost in the mail after it had been duly addressed and mailed (Hallett v. Slaughter (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 552, 557, 140 P.2d 3).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment or order obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake, when the judgment or order was obtained by extrinsic mistake on the part of the aggrieved party, specifically, when the party's failure to file a responsive pleading was because the pleading had been lost in the mail after it had been duly addressed and mailed to the party who prevailed in the original action.

This form should be combined with a general memorandum, depending on the procedural context in which the contention is to be raised. It may, for example, be combined with a general form of points and authorities supporting a motion in equity [see, e.g., § 70.480[1]]. It may also be combined with a memorandum used to oppose a defendant's attempt to dispose of an independent suit in equity through a pretrial proceeding such as a general demurrer to the complaint [see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528], or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., § 70.540[1]].

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.562, 70.564 -70.623], particularly additional points and authorities supporting relief based on extrinsic mistake in particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.560 -70.562, 70.564 -70.567].

See also *§ 70.480[2]*for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

This form may also be used in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, if the defendant's answer was never received by the court clerk for filing, but was in fact mailed to the court, counsel may refer to facts in declarations showing that the answer was prepared and given to the secretary for mailing, and that as a matter of customary office procedure that if the documents had been given to the secretary to be mailed, they were mailed with sufficient postage.

See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.630 -780.668, and 70.660 -70.670 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Extrinsic Mistake of Aggrieved Party

The facts and procedural background of Hallett v. Slaughter (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 552, 140 P.2d 3 , are discussed in § 70.560[3]. In Hallett, the Supreme Court found that any delay in failing to discover the default sooner did not constitute inexcusable neglect as a matter of law, when it was demonstrated to the satisfaction of the Court that the answer was lost in the mail. That plaintiff was prevented by extrinsic accident and mistake of fact from presenting her defense in the municipal court action and that such accident and mistake furnished a ground for equitable intervention under the circumstance of the case was clear, according to the Court (22 Cal. 2d 552, 557) .

[b] Loss of Answer in Mail as Basis for Equitable Relief

The facts and procedural background of Hallett v. Slaughter (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 552, 140 P.2d 3 , are discussed in § 70.560[3]. In Hallett, the plaintiff had contacted an attorney to represent her in the municipal court action, and the attorney had mailed an answer to the complaint in the action to the clerk of the municipal court as well as to the opposing attorney. Neither the answer nor the copy was received by the clerk or the attorney. The evidence at trial on this matter showed that although the secretary for plaintiff's attorney in the municipal court action did not recall the matter, if the documents had been given to her to be mailed, they were mailed with sufficient postage as a matter of customary office procedure. The Supreme Court found that the testimony given at the trial court supported the finding that the papers were mailed. Also finding that any delay in failing to discover the default sooner did not constitute inexcusable neglect as a matter of law, the Court stated that plaintiff was prevented by extrinsic accident and mistake of fact from presenting her defense in the municipal court action (22 Cal. 2d 552, 557) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.564

§ 70.564 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Mistake of Fact--Mistake of Aggrieved Party--Reasonable Reliance on Representations of Opposing Party's Attorney

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a general memorandum supporting a motion in equity (see, e.g., § 70.480[1]), a memorandum opposing a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528), a memorandum opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment in an independent suit in equity (see, e.g., § 70.540[1]), or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RELIEF IN EQUITY AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE OF EXTRINSIC MISTAKE, IN THAT THE DEFAULT WAS TAKEN BECAUSE THE AGGRIEVED PARTY WAS JUSTIFIABLY LULLED INTO A FALSE SENSE OF SECURITY BY THE IMPLIED OR EXPRESS REPRESENTATIONS OF OPPOSING COUNSEL.

A. Extrinsic Mistake of Aggrieved Party Induced by Prevailing Party. The right of equitable relief from judgments extends to judgments given by reason of mistake on the part of the aggrieved party and induced by the prevailing party (Corey v. Weerts (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 416, 423-424, 29 Cal. Rptr. 533).

B. Reliance on Representations of Opposing Counsel. When a party or a party's counsel is lulled into a sense of security by the express or implied representations of opposing counsel that no action need be taken, and for that reason such party's default is taken, a default and default judgment taken against the party may be set aside on the ground of extrinsic mistake (Hammel v. Lindner (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 426, 435, 36 Cal. Rptr. 656).

C. Deliberate Delay in Enforcing Default Judgment. A factor to be considered in determining if the defendant had been lulled into a sense of security by the express or implied representations of opposing counsel is the delay of the plaintiff in failing to take earlier action to secure and enforce the default judgment (see Hallett v. Slaughter (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 552, 556, 140 P.2d 3 ; Hammel v. Lindner (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 426, 435, 36 Cal. Rptr. 656).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment or order obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake, when the judgment or order was obtained by extrinsic mistake on the part of the aggrieved party, specifically, when a default judgment was taken because the aggrieved party was lulled into a false sense of security by the express or implied representations of opposing counsel.

This form should be combined with a general memorandum, depending on the procedural context in which the contention is to be raised. It may, for example, be combined with a general form of points and authorities supporting a motion in equity [see, e.g., § 70.480[1]]. It may also be combined with a memorandum used to oppose a defendant's attempt to dispose of an independent suit in equity through a pretrial proceeding such as a general demurrer to the complaint [see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528], or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., § 70.540[1]].

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.563, 70.565 -70.623], particularly additional points and authorities supporting relief based on extrinsic mistake in particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.560 -70.563, 70.565 -70.567].

This form may also be modified for use in support of the contention that the prior judgment should be set aside on the ground of extrinsic fraud. One of the most common forms of extrinsic fraud involves the case when the defaulting party, in reliance on representations made by the opposing party that his or her interests will not be adversely affected, is induced not to appear in the action [Davi v. Belfiore (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d 325, 327, 314 P.2d 596 (discussed under [4], below); see §§ 70.580 -70.591].

Counsel may consider whether to pursue relief by motion to set aside and vacate default and default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), because of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [see Beard v. Beard (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 645, 648, 107 P.2d 385 ; Nelson v. Southerland (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 140, 142, 9 Cal. Rptr. 735 ; see generally § 70.10 et seq., and § 70.480[2][c]]. See also *§ 70.480[2]*for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

This form may also be used in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should refer to facts of the representations made by the opposing counsel that led to the contending party's justifiable reliance on those representations and the judgment [see, e.g., Hammel v. Lindner (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 426, 429, 36 Cal. Rptr. 656 (discussed under [3][b], below)].

See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.630 -780.668, and 70.660 -70.670 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Extrinsic Mistake of Aggrieved Party Induced by Prevailing Party

The facts and procedural background of Corey v. Weerts (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 416, 29 Cal. Rptr. 533 , are discussed in § 70.484[3]. In Corey, the court of appeal found that the trial court had properly concluded that there was a sufficient showing of extrinsic mistake on the part of the defendants and noted the general rule that the right of equitable relief from judgments is not confined to judgments procured by fraud, but that it extends to judgments wrongfully given by mistake on the part of the injured party, unmixed with fraud, and not the result of negligence of the injured party (214 Cal. App. 2d 416, 422) .

[b] Reliance on Representations of Opposing Counsel

Hammel v. Lindner (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 426, 36 Cal. Rptr. 656 , involved a default judgment granted against the plaintiff on defendant's cross complaint because of plaintiff's failure to answer certain interrogatories. The plaintiff moved to set aside the default and default judgment. In support of the motion, plaintiff's counsel contended that defendant's counsel had agreed with plaintiff's former counsel to contact the court to continue the hearing on defendant's motion to compel plaintiff to answer interrogatories and to inform the attorney of the date when the matter would be set for hearing. Defendant's counsel, however, failed to notify plaintiff's counsel of this date and therefore plaintiff's counsel did not learn that on this date the trial court had granted defendant's motion to dismiss the complaint and the answer to the cross complaint and that plaintiff's default was then entered. The trial court granted the motion and the defendant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court rejected the defendant's primary contention on appeal that the attorney's affidavit was insufficient in that it was based on hearsay. The court acknowledged that the affidavit contained hearsay, and that the hearsay was essential evidence to support the setting-aside order, because everything else in the affidavit related to defendant's and defendant counsel's own activity after the default and default judgment had become known to the plaintiff (224 Cal. App. 2d 426, 429) . The mere declaration that statements in the affidavit supporting the motion are hearsay does not constitute an objection to the admissibility of the affidavit, in whole or in part. The court concluded that the declaration was not in form an objection to admissibility nor was it in form a motion to strike. When admitted without objection, incompetent statements included in an affidavit in support of a motion to vacate a default become competent evidence. The court construed the defendant counsel's declaration as urging that the hearsay was of less probative value than personal declarations would have been, and that defendant's counsel, having made this observation, was content to meet the hearsay with his own affidavit. After analyzing the defendant counsel's affidavit, however, it found little direct conflict (224 Cal. App. 2d 426, 432) .

The court stated that when an extrinsic factor is present (in this case, defendant counsel's representation), the favor of the law for trial on the merits is to be weighed among all of the factors which are before the trial judge (224 Cal. App. 2d 426, 435) . No showing of prejudice was made by defendant and the attorneys for defendant were paid $375 plus court costs. The court also noted the additional factor that defendant had refrained from taking action on the judgment he had obtained by default until a few days after the six-month limitation of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 had expired (224 Cal. App. 2d 426, 435) .

Note that the decision in Hammel, above, underscores a common problem that may arise when initially seeking relief by motion in equity: because the evidence supporting such a motion is usually confined to a declaration by a voluntary witness, it may be subject to evidentiary objections on the ground of hearsay, especially in situations when the relief is sought because of reliance of representations by opposing parties or their counsel. In these situations, if the motion is denied, counsel should consider the possibility of initiating a separate action in equity, in which case hostile witnesses may be subpoenaed and cross examined; the prior denial of the motion does not bar such suit when the aggrieved party can show that he or she did not have the opportunity for detailed presentation of the issues of fraud or mistake on his or her motion, or was not given a full opportunity at the time of the hearing to develop the issues by oral testimony [see Rohrbasser v. Lederer (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 290, 298, 224 Cal. Rptr. 791 (discussed in § 70.540[3])].

[c] Deliberate Delay in Enforcing Default Judgment

The facts and procedural background of Hallett v. Slaughter (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 552, 140 P.2d 3 , are discussed in § 70.560[3]. In Hallett, on appeal from a judgment setting aside an earlier default judgment, defendant argued in part that plaintiff's attorney in the earlier action was negligent in failing to discover sooner that plaintiff's answer had not been filed. In affirming the judgment, the Supreme Court said that although some degree of negligence could be charged, it was not prepared to say that his remissness amounted to such inexcusable neglect as a matter of law that plaintiff should be foreclosed of her right to maintain this suit. Moreover, the Court added, plaintiff's delay in discovering the entry of her default was due in part at least to the apparently designed and deliberate failure of defendants to take earlier action to secure and enforce their judgment (22 Cal. 2d 552, 556) .

The facts and procedural background of Hammel v. Lindner (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 426, 36 Cal. Rptr. 656 , are discussed under [b], above. In Hammel, the court stated that it is also to be considered, as an element of lulling the aggrieved party, in addition to the opposing party's representation, that the opposing party refrained from taking action on the judgment he obtained by default until a few days after the six-month limitation of former Code Civ. Proc. § 473, 3rd Paragraph (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), had expired (224 Cal. App. 2d 426, 435) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Reliance on Representations of Opposing Counsel

The facts and procedural background of Hallett v. Slaughter (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 552, 140 P.2d 3 , are discussed in § 70.560[3]. In Hallett, the Supreme Court stated that plaintiff was prevented by extrinsic accident and mistake of fact from presenting her defense in the municipal court action. That such accident and mistake furnished a ground for equitable intervention under the circumstance of the case was clear according to the Court (22 Cal. 2d 552, 557) .

In Davi v. Belfiore (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d 325, 314 P.2d 596 , defendant's default was taken in an action filed by plaintiff in municipal court. A default judgment was entered against him and a writ of execution was issued on the judgment. On defendant's motion the trial court set aside the judgment on the theory that the judgment was void as in excess of the municipal court's jurisdiction and that the judgment had been secured by extrinsic fraud on the part of plaintiff.

Affirming the order granting relief to defendant, the court of appeal found it unnecessary to consider the issue of the municipal court's jurisdiction because it was of the opinion that the judgment was obtained by extrinsic fraud (153 Cal. App. 2d 325, 326) . Evidence in support of defendant's motion showed that when served with the original summons on the original and amended complaints, and again when served with the order of examination, defendant had contacted plaintiff to ask why he had been served. Plaintiff had assured defendant repeatedly that he had been served only as a witness against other defendants and that plaintiff did not wish to recover any judgment against defendant. Plaintiff had agreed to meet with defendant at the office of plaintiff's attorney, but had failed to appear. The court noted that this evidence supported a finding of extrinsic fraud practiced by plaintiff against defendant, as well as showing diligence and excusable neglect on defendant's part (153 Cal. App. 2d 325, 327) . The court also noted that one of the most common forms of extrinsic fraud occurs when the aggrieved party in reliance on representations made by the adverse party that his or her interests will not be adversely affected, is induced not to appear (153 Cal. App. 2d 325, 327) . The court concluded that plaintiff's representations to defendant were calculated to induce, and did induce, defendant not to appear. The court noted that extrinsic fraud exists when the unsuccessful party was prevented from presenting all of his case to the court (153 Cal. App. 2d 325, 327) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.565

§ 70.565 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Mistake of Fact--Mistake of Aggrieved Party--Disability of Aggrieved Party or Party's Attorney Rendered Aggrieved Party Unable to Defend

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a general memorandum supporting a motion in equity (see, e.g., § 70.480[1]), a memorandum opposing a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528), a memorandum opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment in an independent suit in equity (see, e.g., § 70.540[1]), or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RELIEF IN EQUITY AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE OF EXTRINSIC MISTAKE, IN THAT THE AGGRIEVED PARTY WAS DEPRIVED OF A HEARING ON THE MERITS DUE TO _____ [HIS/HER DISABILITY or THE DISABILITY OF HIS/HER ATTORNEY].

[EITHER]

Relief for Incompetent Defendant. A mentally incompetent defendant is entitled to equitable relief from a judgment for mistake in that, through no fault of his or her own, the defendant was not permitted to participate in the proceedings (Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 577-578, 122 P.2d 564 ; Conforti v. Dunmeyer (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 41, 44, 25 Cal. Rptr. 504).

[OR]

Relief in Equity for Disability of Attorney. Counsel's death or serious physical or mental illness which prevents a fair presentation of defendant's cause warrants intervention by the court in equity to set aside a judgment taken against defendant (McCreadie v. Arques (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 39, 45, 56 Cal. Rptr. 188).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment or order obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake, when the judgment or order was obtained by extrinsic mistake on the part of the aggrieved party, specifically, because of the disability of the aggrieved party or his or her attorney.

This form should be combined with a general memorandum, depending on the procedural context in which the contention is to be raised. It may, for example, be combined with a general form of points and authorities supporting a motion in equity [see, e.g., § 70.480[1]]. It may also be combined with a memorandum used to oppose a defendant's attempt to dispose of an independent suit in equity through a pretrial proceeding such as a general demurrer to the complaint [see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528], or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., § 70.540[1]].

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.564, 70.596 -70.623], particularly additional points and authorities supporting relief based on extrinsic mistake in particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.560 -70.564, 70.596, 70.567].

This form may also be used in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, for example, counsel should refer to facts establishing the incompetency and evidencing that there was no true adversarial hearing conducted for the aggrieved party's benefit [see, e.g., Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 578, 122 P.2d 564 (discussed under [a], below)].

See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.630 -780.668, and 70.660 -70.670 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Relief for Incompetent Defendant

The facts and procedural background of Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 122 P.2d 564 , are discussed in § 70.480[3] [see also discussion in § 70.520[3]] . Olivera involved an appeal from a judgment of dismissal entered after the trial court sustained defendant's demurrer to a complaint, brought by the plaintiff, who was the administratrix of the estate, to set aside a default judgment. The judgment had been entered in an action to reform a joint tenancy deed in which the decedent had been named as one of the joint tenants. The basis of the complaint was the decedent's complete loss of mental capabilities because of a serious head injury which rendered her wholly devoid of understanding and incapable of transacting business of any nature at the time the underlying action had been commenced against her (19 Cal. 2d 570, 572) . Plaintiff alleged that defendant knew of Emilie's condition but failed to secure the appointment of a guardian and failed to inform the court of her condition (19 Cal. 2d 570, 572-573) . Reviewing the general authority of a court to set aside a judgment rendered against incompetent defendants when it is probable that injustice had resulted (19 Cal. 2d 570, 573) , the Supreme Court stated that out-of-state decisions which would support the power of a trial court to set aside a default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 could not be relied on to support an independent action in equity (19 Cal. 2d 570, 574) or a motion addressed to the equitable jurisdiction of the trial court (19 Cal. 2d 570, 576) .

In turning to the equitable grounds for the action, either extrinsic fraud or extrinsic mistake, the Court stated that if a plaintiff knows of the defendant's incompetency but conceals such information from the court, and, to prevent a true adversary hearing, proceeds to a default judgment by taking advantage of defendant's condition, his or her conduct constitutes a fraud on the court as well as on the incompetent defendant, and, thus, is extrinsic in nature (19 Cal. 2d 570, 577) . In reversing the trial court, the Court found that allegations, such as those found in plaintiff's complaint, are sufficient to state a cause of action in equity on behalf of the incompetent (19 Cal. 2d 570, 577) .

However, the Court added that it should not be understood that plaintiff's fraud in the underlying action was essential to obtaining equitable relief. Even if plaintiff was ignorant of defendant's legal disability, if the disability prevented a true adversary hearing, relief could be granted. Although out-of-state decisions had termed this type of equitable relief "constructive fraud," the Court stated that it is more accurate to characterize such a situation as extrinsic mistake. Thus, the Court concluded, even if no actual fraud on defendant's part could be proved in the present action, the allegations were sufficient to justify equity's intervention if the other requirements for equitable relief could be established (19 Cal. 2d 570, 578) .

Conforti v. Dunmeyer (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 41, 25 Cal. Rptr. 504 , was an appeal from a judgment of dismissal entered after the trial court sustained without leave to amend defendants' demurrer to plaintiff's third amended complaint to set aside a default judgment entered in defendants' earlier action to foreclose plaintiff's interest in certain real property. The complaint alleged that at the time the default judgment was entered, plaintiff was mentally ill, insane, and incompetent, and no guardian had been appointed for her (209 Cal. App. 2d 41, 43) .

Although affirming the judgment on other grounds, the court of appeal reviewed the courts' equitable powers to set aside judgments, relying in part on Olivera (discussed above), and stated that incompetent defendants are entitled to relief in equity such as are characterized by extrinsic mistake (209 Cal. App. 2d 41, 44) . The fact that no fraudulent design was alleged on defendants' parts made no difference in that the principle of law involved was that through no fault of defendant he was not permitted to participate in the proceedings (209 Cal. App. 2d 41, 44) .

[b] Relief in Equity for Disability of Attorney

McCreadie v. Arques (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 39, 56 Cal. Rptr. 188 , involved an action for damages for negligence and breach of warranty. On service of the summons and complaint, defendant had turned the matter over to his attorney. Unfortunately, the attorney was in the midst of a "physical-mental" breakdown. He was unable to do any work at all and suffered from a series of blackouts during which he could remember nothing. He did not answer plaintiff's complaint and assured defendant that any report of a default, or a default judgment, having been entered was entirely untrue. Plaintiff was completely unaware of his attorney's mental state until he was served with a writ of execution two years later and the attorney confessed to having lied to his client. Defendant moved to set aside the default and default judgment under the trial court's equitable powers. The trial court denied the motion and the defendant appealed.

Although affirming the trial court order on the ground of defendant's lack of diligence, the court of appeal agreed with the trial court's determination that defendant should not be chargeable with neglect for permitting the default or taking no action until he received a letter from plaintiff's attorney that a default judgment had been entered. The court said that it is established in California that the death or serious illness of counsel which prevents an appearance at the trial or a fair presentation of the cause may warrant the intervention of equity to set aside the judgment, at least in a situation when the circumstances could not reasonably have been anticipated or avoided by the exercise of due diligence (248 Cal. App. 2d 39, 45) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.566

§ 70.566 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Mistake of Fact--Mistake of Aggrieved Party--Inexcusable Neglect of Aggrieved Party's Attorney Rendered Aggrieved Party Unable to Defend

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a general memorandum supporting a motion in equity (see, e.g., § 70.480[1]), a memorandum opposing a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528), a memorandum opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment in an independent suit in equity (see, e.g., § 70.540[1]), or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RELIEF IN EQUITY AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE OF EXTRINSIC MISTAKE, IN THAT THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] WAS THE RESULT OF THE INEXCUSABLE NEGLECT OF THE AGGRIEVED PARTY'S ATTORNEY [AND THE NEGLECT WAS OF SUCH AN EXTREME DEGREE THAT IT AMOUNTED TO POSITIVE MISCONDUCT].

Relief for Attorney's Inexcusable Neglect. A client who is relatively free from personal neglect may be relieved from a default or dismissal attributable to the inaction or procrastination of his or her counsel. [This is particularly true when the attorney's failure to represent the client amounts to positive misconduct] (Orange Empire Nat. Bank v. Kirk (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 347, 353, 66 Cal. Rptr. 240).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment or order obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake, when the judgment or order was obtained by extrinsic mistake on the part of the aggrieved party, specifically, because of neglect of the aggrieved party or his or her attorney.

This form should be combined with a general memorandum, depending on the procedural context in which the contention is to be raised. It may, for example, be combined with a general form of points and authorities supporting a motion in equity [see, e.g., § 70.480[1]]. It may also be combined with a memorandum used to oppose a defendant's attempt to dispose of an independent suit in equity through a pretrial proceeding such as a general demurrer to the complaint [see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528], or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., § 70.540[1]].

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.565, 70.567 -70.623], particularly additional points and authorities supporting relief based on extrinsic mistake in particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.560 -70.565, 70.567].

This form may also be modified for use in support of the contention that the prior judgment should be set aside on the ground of extrinsic fraud [see, e.g., Lovato v. Santa Fe Internat. Corp. (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 549, 554-555, 198 Cal. Rptr. 838 (discussed under [4], below); see §§ 70.580 -70.591].

This form may also be used in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should detail facts illustrating the negligence of the attorney at fault, either in the memorandum or in accompanying affidavits or declarations. Similarly, the actions of the client should be set out to demonstrate the client's diligence and lack of negligence in retaining and continuing to employ the attorney, including facts showing that the client was unaware of the attorney's omissions.

See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.630 -780.668, and 70.660 -70.670 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Relief for Attorney's Inexcusable Neglect

Orange Empire Nat. Bank v. Kirk (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 347, 66 Cal. Rptr. 240 , involved a cross complaint based on a guaranty that cross defendant claimed he never signed. When the summons and complaint were served, cross defendant's attorney stated that he would take care of the entire matter. That proved to be something of an exaggeration. In fact, he never filed an appearance. Notified of his client's default, he failed to take any action within six months to set the default aside (except to request a stipulation to vacate the default, which cross complainant's attorney would not agree to); and having advance notice of the trial date (no default judgment was entered) and assuring his client that he would handle the defense, he again failed to act, such inaction resulting in a judgment of $50,000 being entered against his client. Thereafter, he continued to assure his client that the judgment would be set aside but did nothing. Defendant thereafter obtained new counsel who filed a motion to vacate the default and set aside the judgment. The trial court denied the motion and the defendant appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the trial court's order. The court stated that it would be difficult to conceive a set of circumstances when counsel displayed a more flagrant disregard for his or her client's best interests (259 Cal. App. 2d 347, 354) . Noting that the motion was addressed to the court's inherent equity power (259 Cal. App. 2d 347, 352) the court stated that although generally the law charges the client with the inexcusable neglect of his or her attorney, there are exceptional cases in which the client who is relatively free from personal neglect will be relieved from a default or dismissal attributable to the inaction or procrastination of his or her counsel. Citing Daley v. County of Butte (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 380, 38 Cal. Rptr. 693 (discussed under [4], below), the court stated that when a client is unknowingly deprived of effective representation by counsel's failure to serve process, appear at the pretrial conference, communicate with the court, client, and other counsel, and the action is dismissed by reason of the attorney's misrepresentation, the client will not be charge with responsibility for the misconduct of nominal counsel of record, providing the client acts with due diligence in moving for relief and the opposing party's rights will not be prejudiced nor suffer injustice as a result of granting relief (259 Cal. App. 2d 347, 353) . Finding that cross defendant had acted with due diligence and that the cross complainant would not suffer prejudice, the court reversed the order (259 Cal. App. 2d 347, 355-356) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Relief for Attorney's Inexcusable Neglect

The facts and procedural background of Hallett v. Slaughter (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 552, 140 P.2d 3 , are discussed in § 70.560[3]. In Hallett, the defendants in an independent action in equity to set aside a prior judgment argued that because of neglect the plaintiff should not be permitted to seek relief from equity. The Supreme Court rejected the argument by noting that although some degree of negligence may be charged to the attorney employed by the plaintiff to defend her in the earlier municipal court action in not sooner discover that plaintiff's answer had not been filed, the Court was not prepared to say that the attorney's remissness in that regard amounted to such inexcusable neglect as a matter of law that the plaintiff should have been foreclosed of her right to maintain the suit. Moreover, stated the Court, the plaintiff's delay in discovering the entry of the default was due in part at least to the apparently designed and deliberate failure of the defendants to take earlier action to secure and enforce their judgment (22 Cal. 2d 552, 556) .

In Lovato v. Santa Fe Internat. Corp. (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 549, 198 Cal. Rptr. 838 , defendant's attorney was suspended from practice and then dismissed by defendant. Afterwards, unknown to defendant, the former attorney continued representing to plaintiff that he was counsel for defendant, and plaintiff continued serving defendant through this attorney, with interrogatories, a notice of motion to compel answers, and finally a notice of motion for sanctions for failure to comply with the order compelling answers. Although the attorney asked plaintiff on two occasions for additional time to respond to the interrogatories, he took no other action on receipt of plaintiff's papers and never notified defendant of their existence. A default was consequently entered against defendant, who unsuccessfully sought relief from the trial court. The court of appeal reversed on two grounds, the first being that the judgment was void for lack of notice (151 Cal. App. 3d 549, 553-554) . The court also held that the trial court had abused its discretion in denying relief on the ground that the attorney's positive misconduct constituted extrinsic fraud, while defendant was relatively free from personal neglect, and no prejudice to plaintiff appeared (151 Cal. App. 3d 549, 554-555) .

In Daley v. County of Butte (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 380, 38 Cal. Rptr. 693 , the court of appeal reversed a trial court order denying plaintiff's motion to set aside a judgment of dismissal granted by the court for lack of prosecution of the action. Evidence relied on by the court of appeal in its opinion showed gross negligence on the part of plaintiff's attorney in that he maintained almost complete silence and inactivity in the action for some two years, failing to make any appearance in numerous pretrial conferences, place the action at issue by serving a party joined as defendant, or communicate with his client, the court, or opposing counsel. When plaintiff attempted to substitute another attorney, the original attorney failed to sign the substitution form until he received notice of the motion to dismiss. The court declared that under these circumstances, "where the client was unknowingly deprived of effective representation, she will not be charged with responsibility for the misconduct of her nominal counsel of record" (227 Cal. App. 2d 380, 392) . Plaintiff's failure to seek new counsel at an earlier point in the litigation was excused by the court on the ground that lay persons cannot be expected to know about statutory deadlines and should not be forced to act as "hawklike inquisitors" of their attorneys (227 Cal. App. 2d 380, 392) . Furthermore, the trial court itself might have attempted to remedy the situation when it became apparent that the attorney's continued failure to act in his client's behalf might lead the client to disaster (227 Cal. App. 2d 380, 393) . The court pointed out that it would be ironic to penalize plaintiff for omissions of which she was ignorant but which the trial court had the means to remedy (227 Cal. App. 2d 380, 393) .

In Vartanian v. Croll (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 639, 256 P.2d 1022 , the trial court granted plaintiff's motion to set aside a judgment rendered after a trial on the merits in favor of defendant. Plaintiff's attorney had failed to discover and produce certain facts and documents, in part because he had turned the case over to his son, a nonlawyer, for investigation and preparation. Affirming the trial court order granting relief to plaintiff, the court of appeal stated that, standing alone, the attorney's neglect would not warrant relief, but when considered with defendant's threats to a prospective witness, which tended to prevent a full trial on the merits, evidence supported the trial court's ruling (117 Cal. App. 2d 639, 647) .

Note that Vartanian, though relying for its holding on the fraud of defendant in preventing a fair trial, has been cited by courts for the proposition that relief is available to a party when judgment is rendered against such party because of the negligence of his or her attorney [see, e.g., Daley v. County of Butte (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 380, 391, 38 Cal. Rptr. 693 (discussed above)].

Antonsen v. Pacific Container Co. (1941) 48 Cal. App. 2d 535, 120 P.2d 148 , involved an action in equity to set aside two judgments that had been entered in a prior action as a result of an action that one Seely had filed on behalf of plaintiff under the purported authority of a power of attorney. Defendants in this action served cross complaints on plaintiff's attorney, who failed to notify anyone of the purported service of these papers and had in fact been suspended from the practice of law five days earlier. The trial court entered judgment in favor of the plaintiff and the defendants appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. Defendants argued, in part that the trial court had no equitable jurisdiction in the matter since no actual fraud had been alleged on defendants' part. The court of appeal pointed out the weakness in the argument by observing that equity will grant relief from a default judgment for extrinsic mistake as well as actual fraud (48 Cal. App. 2d 535, 538) . Stating in addition that plaintiff could not be charged with knowledge of his attorney's suspension as a matter of law, the court found that plaintiff had been deprived, through no fault of his own, from appearing and presenting his defense to the cross complaints (48 Cal. App. 2d 535, 539) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.567

§ 70.567 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Mistake of Fact--Mistake of Court or Referee

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a general memorandum supporting a motion in equity (see, e.g., § 70.480[1]), a memorandum opposing a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528), a memorandum opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment in an independent suit in equity (see, e.g., § 70.540[1]), or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RELIEF IN EQUITY AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE EXTRINSIC MISTAKE ON THE PART OF THE _____ [COURT or REFEREE or COMMISSIONER] THAT LED THE COURT TO DO WHAT IT NEVER INTENDED TO DO JUSTIFIES THE GRANTING OF EQUITABLE RELIEF AGAINST THE _____ [specify, e.g., JUDGMENT].

Extrinsic Mistake of Court, Referee, or Commissioner. An extrinsic mistake on the part of the _____ [court or referee or commissioner] that led the court to do what it never intended to do justifies the court in granting equitable relief against the judgment (Sullivan v. Lumsden (1897) 118 Cal. 664, 669, 50 P. 777).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment or order obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake, when the judgment or order was obtained by extrinsic mistake on the part of the court or its agents (that is, a referee or commissioner) which had the effect of leading the court to do what it never intended to do.

This form should be combined with a general memorandum, depending on the procedural context in which the contention is to be raised. It may, for example, be combined with a general form of points and authorities supporting a motion in equity [see, e.g., § 70.480[1]]. It may also be combined with a memorandum used to oppose a defendant's attempt to dispose of an independent suit in equity through a pretrial proceeding such as a general demurrer to the complaint [see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528], or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., § 70.540[1]].

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.566, 70.580 -70.623], particularly additional points and authorities supporting relief based on extrinsic mistake in particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.560 -70.566].

This form may also be used in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel would identify the specific error in the court's judgment or order, showing from the court's record of the prior proceedings or other admissible evidence the ruling the court intended to make.

See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.630 -780.668, and 70.660 -70.670 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Extrinsic Mistake of Court, Referee, or Commissioner

The facts and procedural background of Sullivan v. Lumsden (1897) 118 Cal. 664, 50 P. 777 , are discussed in § 70.527[3]. In Sullivan, the Supreme Court determined that the mistake was clearly extrinsic and collateral to the questions examined in the original action and that it led the court to do what it never intended to do; that is, to confirm to the plaintiffs a piece of land not described or referred to in the complaint or in the findings or interlocutory judgment and which was then owned and in the adverse possession of one who was not a party to the suit. The Court then concluded that the mistake complained of was one against which equity will grant relief (118 Cal. 664, 669) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.568-70.579

[Reserved]

§§ 70.568[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.580

§ 70.580 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud--Collusive Judgment--Generally

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a general memorandum supporting a motion in equity (see, e.g., § 70.480[1]), a memorandum opposing a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528), a memorandum opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment in an independent suit in equity (see, e.g., § 70.540[1]), or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RELIEF IN EQUITY AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] ON THE GROUND OF EXTRINSIC FRAUD BECAUSE THE _____ [specify, e.g., JUDGMENT] WAS ARRIVED AT BY COLLUSION BETWEEN THE PARTIES TO THE ORIGINAL CAUSE OF ACTION, AND HAS ADVERSELY AFFECTED THE AGGRIEVED PARTY.

A. Collusive Judgment. A collusive judgment adversely affecting the rights of third persons may be set aside on the ground of extrinsic fraud (People ex rel. Public Util. Com. v. Ryerson (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 115, 121, 50 Cal. Rptr. 246).

B. Standing of Third Parties. A stranger to a prior action resulting in a judgment may obtain equitable relief to vacate that judgment on the ground that it was obtained through extrinsic fraud or mistake when his/her interests have been adversely affected by that judgment (see People ex rel. Public Util. Com. v. Ryerson (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 115, 119, 50 Cal. Rptr. 246).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment or order obtained by reason of extrinsic fraud, when there was collusion between the original parties to the action. For a supporting memorandum asserting that a pecuniary interest is not an indispensable element for intervention, see § 70.581[1].

This form should be combined with a general memorandum, depending on the procedural context in which the contention is to be raised. It may, for example, be combined with a general form of points and authorities supporting a motion in equity [see, e.g., § 70.480[1]]. It may also be combined with a memorandum used to oppose a defendant's attempt to dispose of an independent suit in equity through a pretrial proceeding such as a general demurrer to the complaint [see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528], or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., § 70.540[1]].

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.567, 70.581 -70.623], particularly additional points and authorities supporting relief based on extrinsic mistake in particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.560 -70.567].

This form may also be used in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel would identify the specific error in the court's judgment or order, showing from the court's record of the prior proceedings or other admissible evidence the ruling the court intended to make.

See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.630 -780.668, and 70.660 -70.670 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Collusive Judgment

The facts and procedural background of People ex rel. Public Util. Com. v. Ryerson (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 115, 50 Cal. Rptr. 246 , are discussed in § 70.501[3]. In Ryerson, the court of appeal reversed a judgment sustaining a general demurrer in an independent action in equity brought by the Public Utilities Commission against a motor carrier to set aside a judgment based on extrinsic fraud. On the issue of whether the judgment should be set aside in equity, the court reviewed the allegations of the complaint. The complaint, as amended, alleged that there was no mistake on the part of the carrier in issuing freight bills that did not comply with tariff requirements, that the carrier colluded with the shipper in entering into a stipulation of facts for the purpose of enabling the shipper to obtain, with respect to numerous separate shipments, the benefit of lower multiple lot rates, and that an earlier judgment was entered on the basis of the collusive stipulation. It was further alleged that no notice was given to the Commission of the proposed stipulation or of its filing with the court although its decision and order required the carrier to keep the Commission informed on the progress made in collecting under charges (241 Cal. App. 2d 115, 120-121) . The court stated that a collusive judgment adversely affecting the rights of third persons may be set aside on the ground of extrinsic fraud, and concluded that the complaint as amended alleged facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action for equitable relief on the ground of extrinsic fraud (241 Cal. App. 2d 115, 121) .

[b] Standing of Third Parties

People ex rel. Public Util. Com. v. Ryerson (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 115, 50 Cal. Rptr. 246 , is discussed in § 70.501[3] .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Collusive Judgment

In Babbitt v. Babbitt (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 289, 282 P.2d 1 , the Supreme Court affirmed a judgment awarding certain property to the wife in a divorce case, notwithstanding the existence of a prior stipulated judgment dividing title to that property between the husband and another person. The husband had commenced living with another woman, Agnes, and acquired property in her name. In an action against the husband by Agnes for ejectment, the parties entered into a stipulated judgment that each should take a one-half interest in the property. The wife sued for a divorce and joined Agnes praying that it be decreed that Agnes held the property in trust for the community. The Court ruled that the trial court had properly held that such an agreed judgment was in effect merely a compromise among wrongdoers in a controversy between themselves as to a division of the spoils. On no principle of right or justice should that judgment be deemed binding on the plaintiff (44 Cal. 2d 289, 293) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.581

§ 70.581 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud--Collusive Judgment--Pecuniary or Other Interest

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a general memorandum supporting a motion in equity (see, e.g., § 70.480[1]), a memorandum opposing a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528), a memorandum opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment in an independent suit in equity (see, e.g., § 70.540[1]), or in a trial or appellate brief.]

A PECUNIARY INTEREST IS NOT INDISPENSABLE ELEMENT FOR INTERVENTION.

Pecuniary or Other Interest. While an intervener's interest in a judgment entered in an action between other parties is normally pecuniary, a pecuniary interest is not an indispensable element for intervention (People ex rel. Public Util. Com. v. Ryerson (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 115, 119, 50 Cal. Rptr. 246).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment or order obtained by reason of extrinsic fraud, when there was collusion between the original parties to the action. This form sets forth the principle that a pecuniary interest is not an indispensable element for intervention [People ex rel. Public Util. Com. v. Ryerson (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 115, 119, 50 Cal. Rptr. 246] . For a form generally supporting the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief when there was collusion between the original parties to the action, with which this form may be combined, see § 70.580[1].

This form should be combined with a general memorandum, depending on the procedural context in which the contention is to be raised. It may, for example, be combined with a general form of points and authorities supporting a motion in equity [see, e.g., § 70.480[1]]. It may also be combined with a memorandum used to oppose a defendant's attempt to dispose of an independent suit in equity through a pretrial proceeding such as a general demurrer to the complaint [see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528], or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., § 70.540[1]].

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.580, 70.582 -70.623], particularly additional points and authorities supporting relief based on extrinsic fraud in particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.582 -70.591].

This form may also be used in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.630 -780.668, and 70.660 -70.670 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Pecuniary or Other Interest

The facts and procedural background of People ex rel. Public Util. Com. v. Ryerson (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 115, 50 Cal. Rptr. 246 , are discussed in § 70.501[3]. In Ryerson, the court of appeal stated that, while the interest necessary for intervention is normally pecuniary, that is not an indispensable element (241 Cal. App. 2d 115, 119) . The court held that the interest of the people in maintaining the integrity of the order of the Public Utilities Commission is clearly sufficient (noting that the collection of undercharges, as ordered by the Commission in the case before it, had been held to be one of the most effective means of preserving the minimum transport rate structure and of eliminating collusion between carriers and shippers) (241 Cal. App. 2d 115, 120) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.582

§ 70.582 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud--Fraudulent Change in Terms of Oral Settlement

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a general memorandum supporting a motion in equity (see, e.g., § 70.480[1]), a memorandum opposing a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528), a memorandum opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment in an independent suit in equity (see, e.g., § 70.540[1]), or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RELIEF IN EQUITY AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] ON THE GROUND OF EXTRINSIC FRAUD BECAUSE THE _____ [specify, e.g., JUDGMENT] REFLECTS A FRAUDULENT CHANGE FROM THE TERMS OF A PRIOR ORAL SETTLEMENT UNDER CIRCUMSTANCES EXCUSING THE AGGRIEVED PARTY'S FAILURE TO DISCOVER THE CHANGE.

Change in Terms of Oral Settlement. A court will grant equitable relief from a judgment rendered pursuant to an agreement between the parties when it is shown that one party fraudulently changed the terms of the oral agreement in reducing it to a written document under such circumstances as would excuse the other party from recognizing and contesting the change (Lopez v. Lopez (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 735, 738-739, 48 Cal. Rptr. 136, 408 P.2d 744).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment or order obtained by reason of extrinsic fraud, when there was a fraudulent change in the terms of an oral settlement between the parties.

This form should be combined with a general memorandum, depending on the procedural context in which the contention is to be raised. It may, for example, be combined with a general form of points and authorities supporting a motion in equity [see, e.g., § 70.480[1]]. It may also be combined with a memorandum used to oppose a defendant's attempt to dispose of an independent suit in equity through a pretrial proceeding such as a general demurrer to the complaint [see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528], or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., § 70.540[1]].

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.581, 70.583 -70.623], particularly additional points and authorities supporting relief based on extrinsic fraud in particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.580, 70.581, 70.583 -70.591].

This form may also be used in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel would identify facts that establish the true terms of the oral agreement between the parties, and the specific words and phrases in the writing that do not conform to the oral agreement. See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Effect of Parol Evidence Rule

Counsel should be prepared to address objections based on the parol evidence rule. Extrinsic evidence can be admitted if an imperfection of the writing is put in issue by the pleadings or the validity of the agreement is the fact in dispute. In addition, the parol evidence rule does not exclude other evidence of the circumstances under which the agreement was made or to which it relates [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1860 (circumstances surrounding making of an instrument); see also Civ. Code § 3399 (written contract that does not truly express intention of parties because of fraud may be revised)]. For additional discussion of the parol evidence rule and its exceptions, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts (Matthew Bender).

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.630 -780.668, and 70.660 -70.670 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Change in Terms of Oral Settlement

In Lopez v. Lopez (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 735, 48 Cal. Rptr. 136, 408 P.2d 744 , pursuant to an oral stipulation between the parties, a husband and a wife, in open court, entered into a property settlement specifying that support payments would continue until the wife's death or remarriage. It was also stipulated that on reduction of the agreement to writing, either party might apply to the court for a default hearing. Thereafter, the husband's attorney drafted an agreement and submitted it to the husband, who was also an attorney. The writing inserted the words "or husband" into the agreement, so that it provided for payments to continue until either party died or remarried. The agreement was then submitted to the wife's attorney who did not notice the words that had been added. The wife likewise did not notice the insertion of the words. Thereafter, at a default hearing the executed agreement was introduced in evidence by the husband, and it was approved by the court and incorporated into the interlocutory decree of divorce, and subsequently into the final decree of divorce. Shortly after the final decree was entered, the husband remarried. He then stopped making the payments for the former wife's support in accordance with the terms of the writing. The wife moved for equitable relief, and the trial court set aside the interlocutory decree, the final decree, and the property settlement agreement on the ground of fraud on the part of the husband and ordered the husband to pay the wife all sums that had accrued under the provisions of the oral stipulation, together with attorney's fees and costs. The husband appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed the order, insofar as it set aside the interlocutory and final decrees of divorce. In all other aspects, the order was affirmed. Although the Court noted that there was no evidence of extrinsic fraud or mistake insofar as either decree was concerned (63 Cal. 2d 735, 738) , as to the property settlement agreement, the Court held that under the circumstances, the trial court's finding that extrinsic fraud was committed was supported by evidence in the record and that the court had properly set aside the agreement (63 Cal. 2d 735, 739) . The Court noted in a footnote that the trial court took judicial notice of the fact that it is usual to include in a written agreement for support a provision that "payments shall continue until such time as said wife shall die or remarry," but not usual to provide that such payments shall terminate on the remarriage of the husband, and found that the wife's attorney was justified in relying on the stipulation made in open court and under the circumstances need not have expected any substantial changes between the stipulation and the written agreement. The trial court further found that the husband anticipated that, in the absence of a letter or other communication pointing out any changes, the wife's attorney would fail to examine carefully the clauses considered "formal," that the wife herself, by reason of her upset and nervous condition, would be incapable of seeing the change, and that as a result, he would obtain a fraudulent, unfair, and unconscionable benefit (63 Cal. 2d 735, 739 n.1).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.583

§ 70.583 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud--Concealment of Legal Disability of Aggrieved Party

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a general memorandum supporting a motion in equity (see, e.g., § 70.480[1]), a memorandum opposing a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528), a memorandum opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment in an independent suit in equity (see, e.g., § 70.540[1]), or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RELIEF IN EQUITY AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] ON THE GROUND OF EXTRINSIC FRAUD BECAUSE THE DEFENDANT IN THE FORMER ACTION, THE AGGRIEVED PARTY HEREIN, WAS UNDER A LEGAL DISABILITY AT THE TIME OF THE ACTION AND THAT THE DISABILITY WAS KNOWN TO BUT CONCEALED BY THE PLAINTIFF IN THAT ACTION.

Concealment of Disability. In adversary proceedings, when the defendant is under a legal disability and the plaintiff has knowledge of the defendant's condition, [a duty rests on the plaintiff to disclose such matters to the court and to have a guardian appointed for the purpose of the proceeding and] if the plaintiff conceals such information from the court, a cause of action for relief in equity can be stated on the ground that extrinsic fraud prevented a fair adversary proceeding (Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 577, 122 P.2d 564 ; Saunders v. Saunders (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 67, 72, 320 P.2d 131).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment or order obtained by reason of extrinsic fraud, when there was a concealment of a legal disability of the plaintiff.

This form should be combined with a general memorandum, depending on the procedural context in which the contention is to be raised. It may, for example, be combined with a general form of points and authorities supporting a motion in equity [see, e.g., § 70.480[1]]. It may also be combined with a memorandum used to oppose a defendant's attempt to dispose of an independent suit in equity through a pretrial proceeding such as a general demurrer to the complaint [see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528], or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., § 70.540[1]].

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.582, 70.584 -70.623], particularly additional points and authorities supporting relief based on extrinsic fraud in particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.580 -70.582, 70.584 -70.591].

This form may also be used in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should refer to facts that establish that the aggrieved party was under a legal disability in the prior proceedings; facts tending to prove that the plaintiff in the former action knew of the aggrieved party's condition; and the fact that the aggrieved party's disability was concealed from the court by the plaintiff in that action.

See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.630 -780.668, and 70.660 -70.670 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Concealment of Disability

The facts and procedural background of Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 122 P.2d 564 , are discussed in § 70.480[3] [see also discussion in § 70.520[3]]. In Olivera, the defendant, who had been the plaintiff in the former action and who had failed to disclose to that court the incompetency of the then defendant, contended that, since there had been no judicial finding as to incompetency, there was no fraud since she could not have had knowledge of such incapacity and that concealment of information does not constitute fraud in the absence of a confidential relationship between the parties requiring disclosure. However, the Supreme Court ruled that incompetency that is alleged to render a party wholly devoid of understanding and incapable of transacting business of any nature is a condition that exists independently of a judicial determination. When the defendant is under such a legal disability and the plaintiff has knowledge of his or her condition, a duty rests on the plaintiff to disclose such matters to the court and to have a guardian appointed for the purpose of the proceeding. If the plaintiff knows of the defendant's incompetency but conceals such information from the court and, to prevent a true adversary hearing, proceeds to a default judgment by taking advantage of the defendant's condition, his or her conduct constitutes a fraud on the court as well as on the incompetent defendant. Since the direct effect of such concealment is to prevent the incompetent from presenting whatever defense he or she has to the court, it is clear that the fraud is extrinsic. The Court added that in cases such as this, when an adversary hearing has in fact been held, a cause of action for relief can be stated on the ground that extrinsic fraud prevented a fair adversary proceeding (19 Cal. 2d 570, 577) .

Saunders v. Saunders (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 67, 320 P.2d 131 , involved an action by a wife to set aside an interlocutory judgment divorce on the ground of extrinsic fraud. The complaint alleged that the plaintiff in the former action, the husband, had known of but concealed from the court therein the fact that the wife was mentally incompetent throughout the pendency of that action. At the beginning of trial, the defendant moved to exclude evidence, which the trial court granted. The trial court thereafter refused to allow the plaintiff to file an amended complaint which alleged that the wife's attorneys were ignorant of the fact of her incompetence, that the husband knew of their ignorance as well as the fact of the wife's disability and failed to reveal either fact to the court. Thereafter, the trial court entered judgment dismissing the action. The plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed with instructions to permit the filing of the plaintiff's proposed amended complaint. The defendant sought to distinguish the case from Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 122 P.2d 564 (discussed above), on the ground that the plaintiff in this case (the defendant in the prior action) was not wholly without understanding as was the defendant in Olivera (157 Cal. App. 2d 67, 71) . Despite allegations in the complaint that indicated that the plaintiff was not devoid of understanding, the court determined that it would accept as true for the purposes of the appeal that the plaintiff was mentally incompetent throughout the divorce proceeding (157 Cal. App. 2d 67, 71) . The court, however, did conclude that the reasoning in Olivera applied equally to the case before it. The court stated that while the defendant, as plaintiff in the divorce action, took no affirmative step to keep the wife away from the court and made no express misrepresentation to the court, he was in a position in which he had a positive duty to speak and to tell the truth. Cases involving confidential relationships, such as husbands and wife, are to the effect that the unwarranted silence of one who should speak works an extrinsic fraud or mistake that will undo a judgment obtained thereby (157 Cal. App. 2d 67, 72) . The averments of the amended complaint showed that the wife's attorneys were ignorant of the fact of her incompetency, that the plaintiff husband knew of their ignorance as well as the fact of the wife's disability and failed to reveal either fact to the court. This, said the court of appeal, raised an equity in favor of the wife sufficient to overthrow the interlocutory decree, whether it be called extrinsic fraud or extrinsic mistake or an exercise of the "well recognized jurisdiction in equity which has been utilized to relieve incompetent defendants from judgments taken under circumstances of unfairness and injustice." Equity's jurisdiction to interfere with final judgments is based on the absence of a fair, adversary trial in the original action. The court concluded that when an adversary hearing has in fact been held, a cause of action for relief in equity can be stated on the ground that extrinsic fraud prevented a fair adversary hearing. Accordingly, the court of appeal ruled that the trial court should have allowed the plaintiff to file the amended complaint (157 Cal. App. 2d 67, 73) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.584

§ 70.584 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud--Concealment or Misrepresentation by Fiduciary--Generally

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a general memorandum supporting a motion in equity (see, e.g., § 70.480[1]), a memorandum opposing a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528), a memorandum opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment in an independent suit in equity (see, e.g., § 70.540[1]), or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RELIEF IN EQUITY AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] ON THE GROUND OF EXTRINSIC FRAUD BECAUSE THE AGGRIEVED PARTY'S ADVERSARY IN THE FORMER ACTION, IN VIOLATION OF A DUTY ARISING FROM A TRUST OR CONFIDENTIAL RELATION, CONCEALED FROM THE AGGRIEVED PARTY FACTS ESSENTIAL TO THE PROTECTION OF HIS/HER RIGHTS.

Concealment or Misrepresentation by Fiduciary. A party may seek relief from a judgment entered in a proceeding in which he/she was deprived of a fair opportunity to present fully his/her case when the party's adversary, in violation of a duty arising from a trust or confidential relation, has concealed from him/her facts essential to the protection of his/her rights, even if such facts concerned issues involved in the case in which the judgment was entered (Estate of Anderson (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 336, 349, 196 Cal. Rptr. 782).

[Add additional points and authorities supporting relief from judgment or order in particular circumstances relating to concealment by a fiduciary (see, e.g., §§ 70.585 -70.588).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment or order obtained by reason of extrinsic fraud, due to a fiduciary's concealment from or misrepresentation of facts to the aggrieved party.

When applicable, this form may be combined with additional points and authorities supporting relief from judgment or order in particular circumstances relating to concealment by a fiduciary, for example, points and authorities on the following grounds:

- Failure by fiduciary to make disclosure [see § 70.585].
- False conclusions of fact or law made by fiduciary [see § 70.586].
- Fiduciary's lack of intent to defraud is immaterial [see § 70.587].
- A personal representative is shielded by good faith only in absence of negligence [see § 70.588].

This form should be combined with a general memorandum, depending on the procedural context in which the contention is to be raised. It may, for example, be combined with a general form of points and authorities supporting a motion in equity [see, e.g., § 70.480[1]]. It may also be combined with a memorandum used to oppose a defendant's attempt to dispose of an independent suit in equity through a pretrial proceeding such as a general demurrer to the complaint [see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528], or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., § 70.540[1]].

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.582, 70.584 -70.623], particularly additional points and authorities supporting relief based on extrinsic fraud in particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.580 -70.583, 70.585 -70.591].

This form may also be used in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.480[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should refer to facts that indicate: (1) the specific nature of the confidential relationship; (2) the specific misrepresentation, concealment, or nondisclosure; and (3) the resulting deprivation of the aggrieved party's right to a fair opportunity to fully present his or her case.

See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.630 -780.668, and 70.660 -70.670 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form. See, in particular, § 70.633[3].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Concealment or Misrepresentation by Fiduciary

Estate of Anderson (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 336, 196 Cal. Rptr. 782 , involved a judgment surcharging an executor bank for the estate of a decedent the amount of $1,563,759 as damages to the estate. The objectors were the sons of the decedent and life beneficiaries under a trust established by the decedent's will. In surcharging the bank, the trial court found that, due to the bank's acts of extrinsic fraud, the objectors were not barred, by a prior order confirming sale, from challenging the bank's actions. The bank appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. Applying the rules governing extrinsic fraud stated by the Supreme Court in Jorgensen v. Jorgensen (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 13, 19-20, 193 P.2d 728 , the court upheld the trial court's findings of extrinsic fraud. According to Jorgensen, it is necessary to examine the facts in light of the policy that a party who fails to assemble all his or her evidence at the trial should not be privileged to relitigate a case, as well as the policy permitting a party to seek relief from a judgment entered in a proceeding in which he or she was deprived of a fair opportunity to fully present his or her case. This latter policy applies when a party's adversary, in violation of a duty arising from a trust or confidential relation, has concealed from him or her facts essential to the protection of his or her rights, even though such facts concerned issues involved in the case in which judgment was entered. The court determined that the acts of the bank constituting extrinsic fraud, in the judgment of the court below, included concealment from objectors and the court of material facts in three communications (149 Cal. App. 3d 336, 347-348) .

Extrinsic fraud was, in the opinion of the court, supported by findings that the bank had deliberately either misstated, or failed to state, the following material facts: the failure of the bank to calculate the tax consequences of the sale; the loss of the 10-year installment deferment plan; the increase in estate taxes caused by the sale being far in excess of the down payment received from the sale; and, the knowledge by the bank that the estate obligations could not be discharged as represented. Further, the bank was notified by the IRS four days after the hearing, and before the order was signed of a new valuation on the retained parcel, yet no disclosure of that development was made until after confirmation of the sale had become res judicata (149 Cal. App. 3d 336, 349) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Concealment or Misrepresentation by Fiduciary

Jorgensen v. Jorgensen (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 13, 193 P.2d 728 , involved an action to set aside provisions of an interlocutory divorce judgment relating to a property settlement agreement. The wife's complaint alleged that in the divorce action the parties had agreed on division of the community property and that the husband had represented that a property settlement agreement drafted by his attorney did so, whereas it deprived her of such interest in certain stock. She alleged that the interlocutory decree approving and adopting the property settlement agreement was induced by the defendant's extrinsically fraudulent representations as to the character of the shares. The husband moved for judgment on the pleadings, which the trial court granted. The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment. However, the Court stated that it is necessary to examine the facts in light of the policy that a party who failed to assemble all his or her evidence at the trial should not be privileged to relitigate a case, as well as the policy permitting a party to seek relief from a judgment entered in a proceeding in which he or she was deprived of a fair opportunity fully to present his or her case. The latter policy, according to the Court, applies when a party's adversary, in violation of a duty arising from a trust or confidential relation, has concealed from him or her facts essential to the protection of his or her rights, even though such facts concerned issues involved in the case in which the judgment was entered (32 Cal. 2d 13, 19) .

Rivercourt Co. Ltd. v. Dyna-Tel, Inc. (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1477, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 279 , involved a confession of judgment that was fraudulently entered. The court of appeal held that the trial court properly set aside the judgment when an attorney was found to have acted as counsel for both parties, and was not independently representing the aggrieved party, despite attorney's statement in his declaration in support of confession of judgment that he had examined proposed judgment and had advised the party with respect to waiver of rights and defenses under the confession of judgment procedure (41 Cal. App. 4th 1477, 1481-1482) .

The facts and procedural background of Harkins v. Fielder (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 310 P.2d 423 , are discussed in § 70.520[3]. In Harkins, the court of appeal observed that while there are many facets of extrinsic fraud, one familiar example consists of deceptive conduct on the part of the distributee of an estate which has kept other interested parties away from court by some fraudulent artifice or willful suppression of material facts (150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 535) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.585

§ 70.585 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud--Concealment or Misrepresentation by Fiduciary--Failure by Fiduciary to Make Disclosure

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion in equity for relief, based on fraud resulting from concealment by a fiduciary (see § 70.584[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RELIEF IN EQUITY AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] ON THE GROUND OF EXTRINSIC FRAUD, BECAUSE THE _____ [identify capacity of party's fiduciary, e.g., PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE] OF THE AGGRIEVED PARTY FAILED TO MAKE DISCLOSURES TO THE AGGRIEVED PARTY, AND THAT FAILURE CONSTITUTES A FRAUD FOR WHICH EQUITY MAY GRANT RELIEF.

Failure by Fiduciary to Make Disclosure. The failure to perform the duty to speak or make disclosures that rests on one because of a trust or confidential relation is a fraud for which equity may relieve from a judgment thereby obtained (Estate of Anderson (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 336, 347-348, 196 Cal. Rptr. 782).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment or order obtained by reason of extrinsic fraud, due to a fiduciary's nondisclosure of facts to the aggrieved party.

This form should be combined with points and authorities generally supporting relief from judgment or order based on fraud resulting from concealment by a fiduciary, see § 70.584.

This form may also be used in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.480[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should refer to facts that indicate: (1) the specific nature of the confidential relationship; (2) the specific nondisclosure; and (3) the resulting deprivation of the aggrieved party's right to a fair opportunity to fully present his or her case.

See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.630 -780.668, and 70.660 -70.670 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form. See, in particular, § 70.633[3].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure by Fiduciary to Make Disclosure

The facts and procedural background of Estate of Anderson (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 336, 196 Cal. Rptr. 782 , are discussed in § 70.584[3]. In Estate of Anderson, in holding that representations by an executor bank to objectors and beneficiaries under the decedent's will constituted extrinsic fraud, the court stated that the failure to perform the duty to speak or make disclosures which rests on one because of a trust or confidential relation is obviously a fraud, for which equity may relieve from a judgment thereby obtained [citing Jorgensen v. Jorgensen (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 13, 19, 193 P.2d 728] (149 Cal. App. 3d 336, 349) . Put another way, the court stated that a special or fiduciary relationship dictates full and complete disclosure, and short of it, a finding of extrinsic fraud is required (149 Cal. App. 3d 336, 350) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure by Fiduciary to Make Disclosure

The facts and procedural background of Jorgensen v. Jorgensen (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 13, 193 P.2d 728 , are discussed § 70.584[3]. In Jorgensen, although the Supreme Court upheld a judgment on the pleadings in an action in equity to set aside a judgment in a prior proceeding, the Court stated that the failure to perform the duty to speak or make disclosures which rests on one because of a trust or confidential relation is obviously a fraud, for which equity may relieve from a judgment thereby obtained, even though the breach of duty occurs during a judicial proceeding and involves false testimony, and this is true whether such fraud be regarded as extrinsic or as an exception to the extrinsic fraud rule (32 Cal. 2d 13, 19) .

The facts and procedural background of Harkins v. Fielder (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 310 P.2d 423 , are discussed in § 70.523[3]. In Harkins, the court of appeal stated the invocation of equity on the grounds of extrinsic fraud is warranted when an heir or legatee fails to notify the court of the existence of other heirs of whose existence he or she has knowledge and files false petitions with the court representing that there are no such heirs (150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 535) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.586

§ 70.586 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud--Concealment or Misrepresentation by Fiduciary--False Conclusions of Fact or Law Equally Condemned

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion in equity for relief, based on fraud resulting from concealment by a fiduciary (see § 70.584[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RELIEF IN EQUITY AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] ON THE GROUND OF EXTRINSIC FRAUD, BECAUSE THE _____ [identify capacity of party's fiduciary, e.g., PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE] OF THE AGGRIEVED PARTY MADE STATEMENTS OF FALSE CONCLUSIONS OF _____ [FACT or LAW].

False Conclusions of Fact or Law Equally Condemned. Statements of false conclusions of fact or law made by a fiduciary to a beneficiary are condemned equally with untrue factual statements (Estate of Anderson (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 336, 350, 196 Cal. Rptr. 782).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment or order obtained by reason of extrinsic fraud, due to a fiduciary's statements of false conclusions of fact or law to the aggrieved party.

This form should be combined with points and authorities generally supporting relief from judgment or order based on fraud resulting from concealment by a fiduciary, see § 70.584.

This form may also be used in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.480[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should refer to facts that indicate: (1) the specific nature of the confidential relationship; (2) the specific statements of false conclusions of fact or law; and (3) the resulting deprivation of the aggrieved party's right to a fair opportunity to fully present his or her case.

See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.630 -780.668, and 70.660 -70.670 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form. See, in particular, § 70.633[3].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] False Conclusions of Fact or Law Equally Condemned

The facts and procedural background of Estate of Anderson (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 336, 196 Cal. Rptr. 782 , are discussed in § 70.584[3]. In Estate of Anderson, in concluding that the judgment was obtained as a result of extrinsic fraud of a fiduciary, the court stated that it must be remembered that statements of false conclusions of fact or law made by a fiduciary to a beneficiary are condemned equally with untrue factual statements (149 Cal. App. 3d 336, 349-350) .

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

§ 70.587 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud--Concealment or Misrepresentation by Fiduciary--Lack of Intent to Defraud Immaterial

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion in equity for relief, based on fraud resulting from concealment by a fiduciary (see § 70.584[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RELIEF IN EQUITY AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] ON THE GROUND OF EXTRINSIC FRAUD DESPITE ANY LACK OF INTENT TO DEFRAUD BY THE _____ [identify capacity of party's fiduciary, e.g., PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE], BECAUSE AN INTENT TO DEFRAUD IS IMMATERIAL.

Lack of Intent to Defraud Immaterial. When one party standing in a fiduciary relationship to another fails to reveal a fact or to speak, such action will constitute grounds for equity to afford relief regardless of the lack of intent to defraud (Cardozo v. Bank of America (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 833, 837-839, 254 P.2d 949).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment or order obtained by reason of extrinsic fraud, despite a lack of intent to defraud on the part of the fiduciary [Cardozo v. Bank of America (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 833, 837-839, 254 P.2d 949] .

This form should be combined with points and authorities generally supporting relief from judgment or order based on fraud resulting from concealment by a fiduciary, see § 70.584.

This form may also be used in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.480[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.630 -780.668, and 70.660 -70.670 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form. See, in particular, § 70.633[3].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Lack of Intent to Defraud Immaterial

In Cardozo v. Bank of America (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 833, 254 P.2d 949 , involved an action to establish a trust in those assets of an estate which had been distributed pursuant to a probate decree allegedly obtained through the fraud of the executrix-beneficiary. The will involved had given the defendant a life estate with remainder over to the plaintiff. The defendant had filed a petition for probate falsely stating that plaintiff's address was unknown. She also filed a petition for distribution falsely stating that she was the sole surviving heir and entitled to all of the estate. Judgment was granted in favor of the defendant, and the plaintiff appeal.

The court of appeal reversed. The court ruled that the circumstances of the case supported the trial court's conclusion that the defendant's actions were not done with any intent to defraud and that there can be no actual fraud without such intent. However, defendant's failure to give the plaintiff notice of the probate proceedings and to act in the utmost good faith towards him and her obtaining an undue advantage of him by her erroneous petition for distribution constituted a constructive fraud in view of the fiduciary relationship she bore towards him (116 Cal. App. 2d 833, 837) . Executors occupy trust relations towards the legatees and are bound to the utmost good faith in their transactions with the beneficiary, the court held. If there is a duty to speak because of a trust or confidential relation, a failure to do so is obviously a fraud for which equity may afford relief (116 Cal. App. 2d 833, 838) . In view of the fact that she notified the plaintiff that he was entitled to half of the remainder, rather than all, and that this fact had lulled him to some extent into a sense of security, defendant had thereby secured an unconscionable advantage, entitling the plaintiff to relief. The fact that she did not intend to defraud him is not important, the court held, since he was just as defrauded as if she had intended to defraud him (116 Cal. App. 2d 833, 839) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Lack of Intent to Defraud Immaterial

The facts and procedural background of Harkins v. Fielder (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 310 P.2d 423 , are discussed in § 70.523[3]. In Harkins, the court of appeal stated that actual or positive fraud is not required as an element of extrinsic fraud since a mistake on the part of the distributee, which keeps a legatee in ignorance of the true facts or deprives him or her of a fair notice of the probate proceedings, constitutes a type of extrinsic fraud (150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 535) . Accordingly, the court held that the distributee's concealment was a fraud on the court and on the plaintiffs (150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 536) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.588

§ 70.588 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud--Concealment or Misrepresentation by Fiduciary--Good Faith Shields Personal Representative Only in Absence of Negligence

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion in equity for relief, based on fraud resulting from concealment by a fiduciary (see § 70.584[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RELIEF IN EQUITY AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] ON THE GROUND OF EXTRINSIC FRAUD, AND THE AGGRIEVED PARTY'S PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE WILL NOT BE SHIELDED BY ANY SHOWING OF GOOD FAITH, BECAUSE HE/SHE IS NOT FREE OF NEGLIGENT CONDUCT.

Good Faith Shields Personal Representative Only in Absence of Negligence. Good faith will shield a personal representative charged with knowledge reasonably required of it in discharging its fiduciary duties only when the personal representative is free of negligence (Estate of Anderson (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 336, 350, 196 Cal. Rptr. 782).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment or order obtained by reason of extrinsic fraud, and the aggrieved party's personal representative will not be shielded by any showing of good faith, because he/she is not free of negligent conduct [Estate of Anderson (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 336, 350, 196 Cal. Rptr. 782] .

This form should be combined with points and authorities generally supporting relief from judgment or order based on fraud resulting from concealment by a fiduciary, see § 70.584.

This form may also be used in a trial or appellate brief.

See also § 70.480[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.630 -780.668, and 70.660 -70.670 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form. See, in particular, § 70.633[3].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Good Faith Shields Personal Representative Only in Absence of Negligence

The facts and procedural background of Estate of Anderson (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 336, 196 Cal. Rptr. 782 , are discussed in § 70.584[3]. In Estate of Anderson, the executor challenged one of the findings of extrinsic fraud by characterizing a misrepresentation it made as a clear and honest opinion. The court of appeal rejected the argument because it essentially holds for a good faith exception to chargeable knowledge. The court stated that good faith will shield an executor charged with knowledge reasonably required of it in discharging its fiduciary duties only when the executor is free of negligence (149 Cal. App. 3d 336, 350) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.589

§ 70.589 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud--Fraudulent or Negligent Failure to Give Notice of Original Action--Willful Failure to Give Required Service

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a general memorandum supporting a motion in equity (see, e.g., § 70.480[1]), a memorandum opposing a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528), a memorandum opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment in an independent suit in equity (see, e.g., § 70.540[1]), or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RELIEF IN EQUITY AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] ON THE GROUND OF EXTRINSIC FRAUD BECAUSE PREVAILING PARTY IN THE [PRIOR] ACTION FRAUDULENTLY OR NEGLIGENTLY FAILED TO GIVE NOTICE OF THAT ACTION TO THE AGGRIEVED PARTY.

Willful Failure to Give Required Service. A suit in equity may be instituted for the purpose of vacating a judgment on the ground of extrinsic fraud when it appears that there was a willful failure to give the required service (Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 558, 305 P.2d 20).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment or order obtained by reason of extrinsic fraud, when there was a fraudulent or negligent failure to give notice of the former action to the defendant. This form is based on the willful failure to give required service.

For points and authorities supporting relief in equity based on a lack of diligence in effecting personal service, see §

70.590[1]. For points and authorities supporting relief in equity based on false recitals regarding service, see § 70.591[1]

This form should be combined with a general memorandum, depending on the procedural context in which the contention is to be raised. It may, for example, be combined with a general form of points and authorities supporting a motion in equity [see, e.g., § 70.480[1]]. It may also be combined with a memorandum used to oppose a defendant's attempt to dispose of an independent suit in equity through a pretrial proceeding such as a general demurrer to the complaint [see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528], or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., § 70.540[1]].

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.588, 70.590 -70.623], particularly additional points and authorities supporting relief based on extrinsic fraud in particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.580 -70.588].

This form may also be modified for use in support of the contention that the prior judgment should be set aside on the ground of extrinsic mistake, when the failure to name a person as a party was the result of mistake [see Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 558, 305 P.2d 20 ; Boyle v. Boyle (1929) 97 Cal. App. 703, 706, 276 P. 118 (discussed under [4], below); §§ 70.560-70.567].

See also § 70.480[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

This form may also be used in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, counsel would refer to the specific conduct that discloses the willful failure to provide the required service to the aggrieved party.

See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.630 -780.668, and 70.660 -70.670 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Willful Failure to Give Required Service

The facts and procedural background of Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 305 P.2d 20 , are discussed in § 70.502[4]. In Bennett, the Supreme Court held that the defendant bank's failure to comply with statutory provisions concerning service constituted grounds for vacation of the prior judgment. The Court stated that a suit in equity instituted for the purpose of vacating a judgment constitutes a direct attack, and such an attack may be made on the ground of extrinsic fraud when it appears that there was a willful failure to give the required service or that willfully false affidavits of service were filed. It also observed that a direct attack is allowed in an independent action in equity when there has been a failure to exercise the degree of diligence required by law in connection with personal service, when false recitals of service were the result of fraud, negligence, or mistake, and when failure to name a person as a party was the result of mistake (47 Cal. 2d 540, 558) . These rules, said the Court, were in accord with the general principles followed by the Court in holding that extrinsic mistake may be a ground for the vacation of a judgment by an independent action in equity when there has been no fair adversary trial (47 Cal. 2d 540, 558-559) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Willful Failure to Give Required Service

In Wool v. Scott (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 835, 296 P.2d 17 , the court of appeal reversed a judgment for the defendants based on an order sustaining a demurrer to a complaint in an action for equitable relief against a judgment, holding that the original judgment was subject to attack in equity since the failure of the plaintiff in that action to serve the aggrieved party therein constituted extrinsic fraud. The plaintiff contended that in the prior action, a quiet title action, the plaintiff land company had failed to serve plaintiff's predecessor in interest even though that party was a known adverse claimant. The court of appeal stated that there can be no doubt that the failure to serve a party who is known by the party quieting title to assert an adverse claim in certain property is extrinsic fraud which will make the judgment subject to attack by the party kept in ignorance of the suit, citing United States v. Throckmorton (1878) 98 U.S. 61, 25 L. Ed. 93 , discussed in § 70.550[4] (140 Cal. App. 2d 835, 841) .

The facts and procedural background of Boyle v. Boyle (1929) 97 Cal. App. 703, 276 P. 118 , are discussed in § 70.561[3]. In Boyle, the court of appeal reversed a decree in favor of a plaintiff as administrator of the estate of a deceased, the defendant's mother, quieting title to certain property. The deceased, whose title to the property was at issue, had, during her lifetime, executed and delivered a deed of gift to the property to her daughter. The deed, which went unrecorded, reserved a life estate to the mother and gave the remainder to the daughter. Later, after the records of the mother's title to the property were destroyed by earthquake and fire, the mother obtained a decree under a remedial statute, the McEnerny Act, quieting title in her without notifying the daughter. The trial court had found that the mother's omission to name the daughter as a party in the original action was not fraudulent and, thus, held for administrator, despite allegations in the daughter's cross complaint that the decree had been obtained without any notice to her whatever as a result of her mother's mistake and ignorance as to the legal effect of the decree on the cross complaint's title. The court of appeal concluded that the mother had been laboring under the mistaken belief that her decree would not affect her daughter's title. It also noted that if the daughter had been kept away from court by fraud on the part of her mother so that she never had her day in court, she would be entitled to equitable relief. Mistake, said the court, is just as potent as fraud as a ground for such relief when that mistake has prevented a defendant from having his or her day in court. Accordingly, the court held in favor of the cross complainant (97 Cal. App. 703, 706-707) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.590

§ 70.590 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud--Fraudulent or Negligent Failure to Give Notice of Original Action--Lack of Diligence in Effecting Personal Service

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a general memorandum supporting a motion in equity (see, e.g., § 70.480[1]), a memorandum opposing a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528), a memorandum opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment in an independent suit in equity (see, e.g., § 70.540[1]), or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RELIEF IN EQUITY AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] ON THE GROUND OF EXTRINSIC FRAUD BECAUSE THERE HAS BEEN A FAILURE TO EXERCISE THE DEGREE OF DILIGENCE REQUIRED BY LAW IN CONNECTION WITH PERSONAL SERVICE.

Lack of Diligence in Effecting Personal Service. A suit in equity may be instituted for the purpose of vacating a judgment on the ground of extrinsic fraud when there has been a failure to exercise the degree of diligence required by law in connection with personal service (Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 558, 305 P.2d 20).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment or order obtained by reason of extrinsic fraud, when there was a fraudulent or negligent failure to give notice of the former action to the defendant. This form is based on the failure to exercise required diligence in serving the aggrieved party.

For points and authorities supporting relief in equity based on a willful failure to give required service, see § 70.589[1]. For points and authorities supporting relief in equity based on false recitals regarding service, see § 70.591[1]

This form should be combined with a general memorandum, depending on the procedural context in which the contention is to be raised. It may, for example, be combined with a general form of points and authorities supporting a motion in equity [see, e.g., § 70.480[1]]. It may also be combined with a memorandum used to oppose a defendant's attempt to dispose of an independent suit in equity through a pretrial proceeding such as a general demurrer to the complaint [see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528], or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., § 70.540[1]].

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.589, 70.591 -70.623], particularly additional points and authorities supporting relief based on extrinsic fraud in particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.580 -70.588].

This form may also be modified for use in support of the contention that the prior judgment should be set aside on the ground of extrinsic mistake, when the failure to name a person as a party was the result of mistake [see Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 558, 305 P.2d 20 ; Boyle v. Boyle (1929) 97 Cal. App. 703, 706, 276 P. 118 (discussed under [4], below); §§ 70.560-70.567].

See also § 70.480[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

This form may also be used in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, if the plaintiff in the prior action made very few and perfunctory efforts at serving the aggrieved party, counsel would refer to the sum of plaintiff's efforts and contrast those efforts with efforts that would be considered reasonably diligent under the circumstances [see Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(b)].

See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.630 -780.668, and 70.660 -70.670 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Lack of Diligence in Effecting Personal Service

The facts and procedural background of Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 305 P.2d 20 , are discussed in § 70.502[4]. In Bennett, the Supreme Court, citing Stern v. Judson (1912) 163 Cal. 726, 728, 127 P. 38 (discussed under [4], below), stated that a direct attack has been allowed in an independent action in equity when there has been a failure to exercise the degree of diligence required by law in connection with personal service (47 Cal. 2d 540, 558) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Lack of Diligence in Effecting Personal Service

In Stern v. Judson (1912) 163 Cal. 726, 127 P. 38 , the Supreme Court affirmed the trial court's judgment for the plaintiff in an action to set aside a prior judgment rendered following a constructive service of summons, holding that the plaintiff in that action had failed to use due, reasonable, or bona fide diligence to ascertain the whereabouts or address of the defendant therein (163 Cal. 726, 736) . The complaint alleged that the plaintiff's affidavit in the prior action for the order of publication of summons was false in stating that: (1) he had inquired of the county tax collector as to the defendant's address; (2) the tax collector gave him a negative reply; and (3) he had used due diligence in attempting to ascertain the address or whereabouts of the defendant. The complaint further alleged that the plaintiff was well acquainted with the parties from whom the plaintiff in this action had purchased the real property in question, and that by the exercise of reasonable diligence he could have ascertained by inquiry of them the defendant's whereabouts. The Supreme Court held that in availing himself or herself of constructive service of summons, a plaintiff must, in fact, have exercised due diligence. The question of due diligence is open, said the Court, as between the parties, and under a direct attack on the ground of fraud on the part of the plaintiff in procuring the judgment. When a false affidavit is presented to the court for the purpose of obtaining an order for the service of summons by publication, this of itself is an act of fraud both on the defendant and on the court, and any judgment based thereon will be set aside in an action by the defendant constructively served against the plaintiff claiming the benefit of the judgment thus fraudulently procured (163 Cal. 726, 735) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.591

§ 70.591 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud--Fraudulent or Negligent Failure to Give Notice of Original Action--False Recitals Regarding Service

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a general memorandum supporting a motion in equity (see, e.g., § 70.480[1]), a memorandum opposing a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528), a memorandum opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment in an independent suit in equity (see, e.g., § 70.540[1]), or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RELIEF IN EQUITY AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BASED ON THE FILING OF WILLFULLY FALSE AFFIDAVITS OF SERVICE.

False Recitals Regarding Service. A suit in equity may be instituted for the purpose of vacating a judgment on the ground of extrinsic fraud when willfully false affidavits of service were filed (Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 558, 305 P.2d 20).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment or order obtained by reason of extrinsic fraud, when there was a fraudulent or negligent failure to give notice of the former action to the defendant. This form is based on the filing of willfully false affidavits of service.

For points and authorities supporting relief in equity based on a willful failure to give required service, see § 70.589[1]. For points and authorities supporting relief in equity based on the failure to exercise required diligence in serving the aggrieved party, see § 70.590[1]

This form should be combined with a general memorandum, depending on the procedural context in which the contention is to be raised. It may, for example, be combined with a general form of points and authorities supporting a motion in equity [see, e.g., § 70.480[1]]. It may also be combined with a memorandum used to oppose a defendant's attempt to dispose of an independent suit in equity through a pretrial proceeding such as a general demurrer to the complaint [see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528], or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., § 70.540[1]].

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.590, 70.592 -70.623], particularly additional points and authorities supporting relief based on extrinsic fraud in particular circumstances [see, e.g., §§ 70.580 -70.588].

This form may also be modified for use in support of the contention that the prior judgment should be set aside on the ground of extrinsic mistake, when the failure to name a person as a party was the result of mistake [see Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 558, 305 P.2d 20 ; Boyle v. Boyle (1929) 97 Cal. App. 703, 706, 276 P. 118 (discussed under [4], below); §§ 70.560-70.567].

See also § 70.480[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

This form may also be used in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel would refer to the specific statements in the affidavit of service that are false.

See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.630 -780.668, and 70.660 -70.670 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] False Recitals Regarding Service

The facts and procedural background of Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 305 P.2d 20 , are discussed in § 70.502[4]. In Bennett, the Supreme Court stated that a suit in equity for the purpose of vacating a judgment, as a direct attack, may be made on the ground of extrinsic fraud when it appears that willfully false affidavits of service were filed (47 Cal. 2d 540, 558) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] False Recitals Regarding Service

In Carney v. Simmonds (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 84, 315 P.2d 305 , plaintiff sued defendants for partition of real property distributed under the will of plaintiff's son. Defendants' motion for judgment on the pleadings was granted and judgment was entered in defendants' favor. Plaintiff thereafter moved for a new trial and an order vacating the judgment. That motion was granted and defendants appealed. After determining that the motion for a new trial was a proper procedure ( 49 Cal. 2d 84, 88-91) , the Supreme Court turned to the issue of whether the new trial was properly granted under the circumstances. Plaintiff claimed that defendants had fraudulently procured a decree assigning the whole of the estate of plaintiff's deceased son to decedent's wife and defendants by misrepresenting the value of the estate and had failed to give plaintiff the notice required by Prob. Code § 1200. In its discussion, the Court cited Purinton v. Dyson (1937) 8 Cal. 2d 322, 324, 65 P.2d 777 , at length. The Purinton court had noted that "it is difficult to see how fraud could be practiced more directly ... than by keeping [a defendant] in ignorance of the proceedings" (49 Cal. 2d 84, 94) . Purinton had acknowledged that most cases of extrinsic fraud involve representations to defendant or acts amounting to such representations, but had declared that "the rule allowing the maintenance of an action in equity for extrinsic fraud should not be limited so strictly as to require as a basis evidence of representations made directly to the one defrauded" (49 Cal. 2d 84, 94) . Citing Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 558, 305 P.2d 20 (discussed in § 70.589[3]), the Court in Carney observed that a direct attack, such as the one involved in Carney, can be made on the ground of extrinsic fraud when it appears that there was a willful failure to give the required service or that willfully false affidavits of service were filed (49 Cal. 2d 84, 95) . Quoting Bennett, the Court recited instances in which equity had provided relief, including cases involving failure to exercise diligence in connection with personal service, false recitals of service resulting from fraud, negligence or mistake, and the failure to name a person as a party by mistake (49 Cal. 2d 84, 95) . Concluding that the trial court should have permitted plaintiff to amend her complaint, the Court affirmed the order vacating the judgment and granting a new trial (49 Cal. 2d 84, 97-98) .

In Rivieccio v. Bothan (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 621, 165 P.2d 677 , the Supreme Court affirmed a trial court's judgment for the plaintiff in an action for declaratory relief and to have a decree of divorce set aside, holding that the willful misstatement of the address of the defendant in that action (the plaintiff herein) in an affidavit for publication of summons was extrinsic fraud which justified setting aside the judgment. The plaintiff in the original divorce action had given a fictitious address as that of his wife, the defendant therein, with the fraudulent intent of withholding from her any notice of the proceedings against her. The trial court's conclusion that the plaintiff there had acted with fraudulent intent was justified by evidence of the plaintiff's familiarity with the streets in the city in which his wife was residing, his knowledge of her place of residence, and his previous addressing of letters so that they reached her. On the contention of the defendant in this action that there was no basis for an attack in equity on the final judgment, the Supreme Court ruled that it is settled that a willful misstatement of the defendant's address in an affidavit for publication of summons is extrinsic fraud which justifies setting aside the judgment resulting from proceedings of which the defendant did not have notice (27 Cal. 2d 621, 624) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.592-70.599

[Reserved]

§§ 70.592[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.600

§ 70.600 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Duress--Generally

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a general memorandum supporting a motion in equity (see, e.g., § 70.480[1]), a memorandum opposing a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528), a memorandum opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment in an independent suit in equity (see, e.g., § 70.540[1]), or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RELIEF IN EQUITY AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE THE AGGRIEVED PARTY WAS DENIED A FAIR ADVERSARY HEARING BY REASON OF DURESS.

A. Duress Is Valid Ground to Set Aside Judgment or Order. A judgment or order may be set aside when through duress, an aggrieved party was denied a fair adversary hearing (In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 83, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403).

B. Duress Defined. Duress, which includes whatever destroys one's free agency and constrains him or her to do what is against his or her will, may be exercised by threats, importunity, or any species of mental coercion. It is shown when a party intentionally used threats or pressure to induce action or inaction to the other party's detriment (In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 84, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403).

C. Determination of Duress Depends on Effect on Threatened Person's Mind. To determine whether a default judgment was the product of duress, the courts look not so much to the nature of the threats, but to their effect on the state of the threatened person's mind (In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 84, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403).

[When appropriate, add additional points and authorities supporting equitable relief from judgment or order based on duress (see, e.g., §§ 70.601 -70.603).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment or order obtained by reason of extrinsic factors showing duress.

When appropriate, add additional points and authorities supporting equitable relief from judgment or order based on duress [see, e.g., §§ 70.601 -70.603].

This form should be combined with a general memorandum, depending on the procedural context in which the contention is to be raised. It may, for example, be combined with a general form of points and authorities supporting a motion in equity [see, e.g., § 70.480[1]]. It may also be combined with a memorandum used to oppose a defendant's attempt to dispose of an independent suit in equity through a pretrial proceeding such as a general demurrer to the complaint [see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528], or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., § 70.540[1]].

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.591, 70.610 -70.623].

See also § 70.480[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

This form may also be used in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, in In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403 , the court of appeal cited various facts taken considered by the trial court including, testimony of a doctor to the effect that the wife, who was the moving party, was "very emotional, upset and distraught to the point that ... she was acting under her husband's will"; lack of independent legal advice; the gross unfairness of the agreement; and threats and misrepresentations by the other party (In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 85-87, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403).

See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.630 -780.668, and 70.660 -70.670 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Duress Is Valid Ground to Set Aside Judgment or Order

