In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403 , involved a motion by a wife to set aside the property and support provisions of the interlocutory and final judgments of dissolution of marriage on the grounds of duress and intrinsic fraud or mistake. The husband prepared a summons and a notice and acknowledgment of receipt of summons, as well as an appearance, stipulation, and waivers. The latter provided that the cause could be tried as an uncontested matter without notice. Without advice of counsel, the wife signed the documents. Two days later, the husband had the default entered, and an uncontested hearing that same day resulted in the court's granting an interlocutory judgment of dissolution of marriage. Six months later, the court entered the final judgment on the husband's request. Thereafter the wife filed her motion to set aside portions of the interlocutory and final judgments dividing the community property of the parties and providing for support. The trial court filed its ruling on motion setting aside the judgment and the husband appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court, citing In re Marriage of Brockman (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1045-1047, 240 Cal. Rptr. 96 and In re Marriage of Stevenot (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 1051, 1073 n.7, 202 Cal. Rptr. 116 , stated that duress has been recognized as a ground justifying relief from a final judgment. The court acknowledged that it found no cases that state that they are granting relief from the judgment solely on the ground of duress, but this, explained the court, is probably because duress is often characterized as fraud (212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 83) . After reviewing the evidence, the court held that through the "extrinsic" factor of duress, the wife was denied a fair adversary hearing (212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 87) , and that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in setting aside the interlocutory and final judgments, including the marital settlement agreement (212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 95) .

[b] Duress Defined

The facts and procedural background of In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403 , are discussed under [a], above. In Baltins, the court of appeal held that the aggrieved party was denied a fair adversary hearing through duress (212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 87) . The court noted that the stringent definition of duress contained in Civ. Code § 1569, codifying the early common law rule, has been relaxed. Under the modern rule, duress, which includes whatever destroys one's free agency and constrains him or her to do what is against his or her will, may be exercised by threats, importunity, or any species of mental coercion. It is shown when a party intentionally used threats or pressure to induce action or inaction to the other party's detriment. The coercion must induce the assent of the coerced party, who has no reasonable alternative to succumbing (212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 84) .

[c] Determination of Duress Depends on Effect on Threatened Person's Mind

The facts and procedural background of In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403 , are discussed under [a], above. In Baltins, the court of appeal stated that to determine whether a contract or a default judgment was the product of duress, the courts look not so much to the nature of the threats, but to their effect on the state of the threatened person's mind (212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 84) . In this regard, the court noted that the trial court cited as particularly persuasive the "overwhelming" testimony of a doctor that the wife was "very emotional, upset and distraught to the point that ... she was acting under her husband's will" (212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 84-85) . The threats consisted of the husband threatening the wife with bankruptcy and urging her with immediate action to prevent dissipation of her share of the property through credits to him of all payments for debts and support; he represented that she had no interest in his medical practice, telling her that she had not worked for it and that she was not an equal partner in the marriage; and he aimed at her most vulnerable spot when he threatened not to see their child (212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 86) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.601

§ 70.601 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Duress--Determination of Whether Consent to Entry of Default Judgment Was Voluntary

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion in equity for relief based on duress (see § 70.600[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RELIEF IN EQUITY AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE THE AGGRIEVED PARTY WAS DENIED A FAIR ADVERSARY HEARING BY REASON OF DURESS, IN THAT THE AGGRIEVED PARTY WAS IN SUCH A MENTALLY WEAKENED CONDITION DUE TO ANXIETY AND EMOTIONAL EXHAUSTION THAT HE/SHE WAS UNABLE TO PROTECT HIMSELF/HERSELF AGAINST THE OTHER PARTY'S DEMANDS RELATING TO ENTRY OF THE DEFAULT.

Determination of Whether Consent to Entry of Default Judgment Was Voluntary. The statutory grounds for attacking the validity of a contract set forth in Civil Code Section 1567 are relevant in determining whether consent to entry of a default judgment has been voluntary. To show lack of consent, however, it is unnecessary to establish that the aggrieved party lacked the capacity to contract, only that he or she was in such a mentally weakened condition due to anxiety and emotional exhaustion that he or she was unable to protect himself or herself against the other party's demands (In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 83, 85, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment or order obtained by reason of extrinsic factors showing duress. This form is based on the lack of capacity to contract for the entry of the default judgment.

This form should be combined with a general memorandum seeking relief from a judgment or order based on duress [see § 70.600[1]].

See also § 70.480[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

This form may also be used in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.630 -780.668, and 70.660 -70.670 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Determination of Whether Consent to Entry of Default Judgment Was Voluntary

The facts and procedural background of In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403 , are discussed in § 70.600[3] . In Baltins, the court of appeal considered whether a marital settlement agreement, including waivers that provided that the cause could be tried as an uncontested matter without notice, and the resulting entry of default and interlocutory and final judgments of dissolution of marriage, had been voluntary. The court stated that in addition to being grounds for setting aside a final judgment, both duress and fraud are statutory grounds for attacking the validity of a contract. Civ. Code § 1567 provides that an apparent consent is not real or free when obtained through duress, menace, fraud, undue influence, or mistake. These same grounds are relevant in determining whether consent to entry of a default judgment has been voluntary. Facts sufficient to set aside a contract, however, are not automatically sufficient to set aside judgment and each case will depend on whether the circumstances are sufficiently egregious to justify departing from the policy favoring the finality of judgments (212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 83) . The court later stated that to show lack of consent on the part of the wife, it was unnecessary to establish that she lacked the capacity to contract; only that she was in such a mentally weakened condition due to anxiety and emotion anguish or exhaustion that she was unable to protect herself against the husband's demands (212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 85) . The court held that from the totality of the circumstances, as shown by the evidence before the court, the trial court could infer that the husband intentionally used coercion to induce the wife's consent to an unconscionable contract and a default judgment dissolving the marriage (212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 87) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.602

§ 70.602 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Duress--Lack of Independent Advice Is a Fact to Be Weighed

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion in equity for relief based on duress (see § 70.600[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RELIEF IN EQUITY AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE THE AGGRIEVED PARTY WAS DENIED A FAIR ADVERSARY HEARING BY REASON OF DURESS, IN THAT THE COURT MAY CONCLUDE THAT THE AGGRIEVED PARTY DID NOT ACT VOLUNTARILY AND WITH COMPLETE UNDERSTANDING AFTER THE COURT WEIGHS THE LACK OF INDEPENDENT ADVICE TO THE AGGRIEVED PARTY, TOGETHER WITH THE OTHER CIRCUMSTANCES OF THIS CASE.

Lack of Independent Advice Is a Fact to Be Weighed. The lack of independent advice is a fact to be weighed by the trial court in determining whether the party acted voluntarily and with complete understanding of the transaction (In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 85, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment or order obtained by reason of extrinsic factors showing duress. This form is based on the lack of independent advice as factor in determining whether the aggrieved party acted voluntarily and with complete understanding of the transaction.

This form should be combined with a general memorandum seeking relief from a judgment or order based on duress [see § 70.600[1]].

See also § 70.480[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

This form may also be used in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.630 -780.668, and 70.660 -70.670 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Lack of Independent Advice Is a Fact to Be Weighed

The facts and procedural background of In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403 , are discussed § 70.600[3]. In Baltins, the court of appeal stated that lack of independent advice, standing alone, is not sufficient to support a finding that the wife's consent to a marital settlement agreement and default judgment dissolving the marriage was obtained through coercion. But, it is a fact to be weighed by the trial court in determining whether that party acted voluntarily and with a complete understanding of the transaction (212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 85) . Under the circumstances of the case, the court concluded, that lack of independent advice was persuasive evidence in support of the trial court's ruling (212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 85) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.603

§ 70.603 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Duress--Lack of Independent Advice With Interference With Attempts to Obtain Advice Is Persuasive

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion in equity for relief based on duress (see § 70.600[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RELIEF IN EQUITY AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE THE AGGRIEVED PARTY WAS DENIED A FAIR ADVERSARY HEARING BY REASON OF DURESS, IN THAT THE CIRCUMSTANCES OF THIS CASE INVOLVE A PERSON'S ACTIVE INTERFERENCE WITH THE AGGRIEVED PARTY'S ATTEMPTS TO OBTAIN LEGAL ASSISTANCE, AND THE LACK OF INDEPENDENT ADVICE IS PERSUASIVE EVIDENCE TO SUPPORT THE COURT'S RULING TO SET ASIDE THE JUDGMENT OR ORDER HEREIN.

Lack of Independent Advice With Interference With Attempts to Obtain Advice Is Persuasive. When the circumstances of the case involve a person's active interference with the aggrieved party's attempts to obtain legal assistance, the lack of independent advice is persuasive evidence to support a court's ruling to set aside a judgment or order on the ground of duress (In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 85, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment or order obtained by reason of extrinsic factors showing duress. This form is based on the active interference with aggrieved party's attempts to obtain legal assistance.

This form should be combined with a general memorandum seeking relief from a judgment or order based on duress [see § 70.600[1]].

See also § 70.480[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

This form may also be used in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.630 -780.668, and 70.660 -70.670 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Lack of Independent Advice With Interference With Attempts to Obtain Advice Is Persuasive

The facts and procedural background of In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403 , are discussed in § 70.600[3] . In Baltins, the court of appeal noted that the evidence showed that the opposing party actively interfered with the aggrieved party's attempt to obtain legal assistance (212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 85) . Under the circumstances of the case, the court concluded, the lack of independent advice was persuasive evidence in support of the court's finding (212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 85) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.604-70.609

[Reserved]

§§ 70.604[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.610

§ 70.610 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained When Moving Party's Negligence Does Not Prejudice Opposing Party

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a general memorandum supporting a motion in equity (see, e.g., § 70.480[1]), a memorandum opposing a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528), a memorandum opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment in an independent suit in equity (see, e.g., § 70.540[1]), or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RELIEF IN EQUITY AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE A PARTY MAY BE RELIEVED FROM THE CONSEQUENCES OF HIS/HER EXTRINSIC MISTAKE OF FACT, EVEN IF HE OR SHE WERE SOMEWHAT NEGLIGENT IN MAKING THE MISTAKE, IF THE NEGLIGENCE IN NO WAY PREJUDICED THE OPPOSING PARTY.

Mistake of Fact of Somewhat Negligent Plaintiff. A party may have relief in equity from the consequences of his/her extrinsic mistake of fact, even though he/she [or his/her counsel] was somewhat negligent in making the mistake, if the negligence in no way prejudiced the opposing party (Hallett v. Slaughter (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 552, 556-557, 140 P.2d 3 : Soule v. Bacon (1907) 150 Cal. 495, 497, 89 P. 324).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment or order obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake, fraud or duress, despite the fact that the aggrieved party was somewhat negligent, because his or her negligence did not prejudice the opposing party.

This form should be combined with a general memorandum, depending on the procedural context in which the contention is to be raised. It may, for example, be combined with a general form of points and authorities supporting a motion in equity [see, e.g., § 70.480[1]]. Note, however, that if used in this context, this form would most likely be adapted for use in a reply memorandum, following opposition to the motion which raised the issue of the moving party's negligence. This form may also be combined, for example, with a memorandum used to oppose a defendant's attempt to dispose of an independent suit in equity through a pretrial proceeding such as a general demurrer to the complaint [see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528], or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., § 70.540[1]].

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.603, 70.620 -70.623].

See also § 70.480[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

This form may also be used in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, in his or her argument, counsel should identify facts indicating that any negligence by counsel or the aggrieved party has not impaired the opposing party's ability to present his or her case.

See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.630 -780.668, and 70.660 -70.670 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mistake of Fact by Somewhat Negligent Plaintiff

The facts and procedural background of Hallett v. Slaughter (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 552, 140 P.2d 3 , are discussed in § 70.171[3]. In Hallett, the Supreme Court noted that although some degree of negligence could be charged to the attorney employed by the plaintiff to defend her in the prior action in not sooner discovering that her answer had not been transmitted through the mails to the court and filed, it could not be said that the attorney's remissness amounted to such inexcusable neglect as a matter of law that the plaintiff should be foreclosed of her right to maintain the suit. Moreover, the Court noted that the defendants had not shown that they had suffered injury as a result of the delay before the plaintiff learned of the mistake (22 Cal. 2d 552, 556-557) .

In Soule v. Bacon (1907) 150 Cal. 495, 89 P. 324 , involved a judgment declaring that certain residuary legatees under a will held funds in trust for the plaintiff which had been distributed to them under a prior decree of distribution. The plaintiff had received only $2,000 of a $10,000 legacy because the word "ten" in the will had been misread as "two," and the mistake was perpetuated in a copy made of the will which was given to the plaintiff by his wife, who was one of the personal representatives of the deceased. The plaintiff was thereby induced to believe that he was receiving his claim in full and had no reason to appear in the distribution proceeding, in which the same mistake was perpetuated, or to otherwise contest the amount, even though shortly after receiving the copy of the will he read a news account of the will to the effect that the legacy was $10,000. The plaintiff attributed the newspaper account to typographical error or ordinary newspaper exaggeration. The trial court gave judgment for the plaintiff and the defendants appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment. The Court noted that there are many cases holding that a party may have relief in equity from the consequences of his or her mistake of fact, although he or she was somewhat negligent in making the mistake, if his or her negligence in no way prejudiced the opposing party. The Court stated that although this rule may not apply with full force to suits in equity to relieve a party from a judgment, nevertheless the failure of the plaintiff under the circumstances of the case to make an earlier discovery of the true amount due him was not negligence of such a character that it must be declared negligence in law, contrary to the implied finding of the trial court that it was not negligence (150 Cal. 495, 497) . At most, it was a question of fact for the court below to determine whether or not the lack of vigilance on the part of the plaintiff was such as would not have occurred with a man of ordinary care and prudence, under the same circumstances (150 Cal. 495, 498) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Mistake of Fact of Somewhat Negligent Plaintiff

The facts and procedural background of Corey v. Weerts (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 416, 29 Cal. Rptr. 533 , are discussed in § 70.484[3]. In Corey, the court of appeals reviewed cases setting out the "fundamental rules" governing equitable relief from judgments. The court cited Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 122 P.2d 564 , and other cases for the proposition that circumstances not amounting to extrinsic fraud might support relief from default and default judgment. The court noted that to deny relief in equity, the lack of vigilance on the part of a person seeking to be relieved from a default or default judgment must be such as would not have occurred with a person of ordinary care and prudence in similar circumstance (214 Cal. App. 2d 416, 422-423) . In affirming the trial court's order granting relief, the court perceived no abuse of discretion in the trial court's conclusion that there was sufficient extrinsic mistake shown, that defendants were free from contributory fault, and that defendants had made a satisfactory showing of excuse for their failure to answer the complaint (214 Cal. App. 2d 416, 424) .

In Palmer v. Moore (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 134, 71 Cal. Rptr. 801 , a default and default judgment were entered against defendant when defendant's attorney failed to appear at a hearing on plaintiff's motion for entry of default for failure to answer interrogatories. The attorney's absence was due to the failure of his secretary to properly schedule the hearing date. Affirming the trial court's order granting relief, the court of appeal deduced that the trial court considered the attorney's absence at the hearing excusable, and said that "even if there was some negligence on the part of defendant's counsel the negligence might be excused if it did not prejudice the opposing party" (266 Cal. App. 2d 134, 141) . In this case, the court found no showing by plaintiff that the setting aside of the default and default judgment and the consequent requirement of a trial on the merits would be prejudicial to plaintiff (266 Cal. App. 2d 134, 141) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.611-70.619

[Reserved]

§§ 70.611[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.620

§ 70.620 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order on Ground That Requirement of Showing Meritorious Claim or Defense Is Satisfied--Meritorious Claim or Defense Sufficiently Shown--Generally

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a general memorandum supporting a motion in equity (see, e.g., § 70.480[1]), a memorandum opposing a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528), a memorandum opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment in an independent suit in equity (see, e.g., § 70.540[1]), or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RELIEF IN EQUITY AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE THE AGGRIEVED PARTY HAS A SUFFICIENTLY MERITORIOUS _____ [CLAIM or DEFENSE] TO ENTITLE HIM/HER TO A TRIAL OF THE ISSUE AT A PROPER ADVERSARY HEARING.

Meritorious Claim or Defense Sufficiently Shown. Equity may interfere with a judgment that is unjust when it appears that the one whose interests were thus infringed can present a meritorious case. An absolute guarantee of victory, however, is not required. It is enough that the aggrieved party has a sufficiently meritorious claim to entitle him/her to a trial of the issue at a proper adversary proceeding (Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 578-579, 122 P.2d 564).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake, fraud or duress, because he or she has sufficiently satisfied the requirement of showing that he or she has a meritorious claim or defense to the action, entitling him or her to a trial on the merits at a proper adversary proceeding.

This form should be combined with a general memorandum, depending on the procedural context in which the contention is to be raised. It may, for example, be combined with a general form of points and authorities supporting a motion in equity [see, e.g., § 70.480[1]]. Note, however, that if used in this context, this form would most likely be adapted for use in a reply memorandum, following opposition to the motion which raised the issue of the moving party's insufficient showing of a meritorious claim or defense. This form may also be combined, for example, with a memorandum used to oppose a defendant's attempt to dispose of an independent suit in equity through a pretrial proceeding such as a general demurrer to the complaint [see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528], or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., § 70.540[1]].

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.610, 70.621 -70.623], particularly additional points and authorities supporting relief on other particular grounds relating to the requirement of a meritorious claim or defense [see, e.g., § 70.622 -70.623].

See also § 70.480[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

They may, in addition, be used in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, the Supreme Court held that the complaint in Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 579, 122 P.2d 564 (discussed in [3], below), sufficiently alleged a meritorious claim, by alleging that but for the conduct of the opposing party, the court in the former action would have considered the testimony of additional witnesses concerning the grantor's intention in executing the original deed and would have reached a different conclusion.

See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.650[1] may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Meritorious Claim or Defense Sufficiently Shown

The facts and procedural background of Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 122 P.2d 564 , are discussed in § 70.480[3] [see also discussion in § 70.520[3]]. In Olivera, in an independent action in equity to set aside a prior judgment, defendant argued that the complaint failed to state a cause of action because it did not allege that a different result would have been reached if the interests of the aggrieved party had been properly protected. The Supreme Court stated that is a general rule that equity will not interfere with a judgment that is unjust unless it appears that the one whose interests were thus infringed can present a meritorious case (19 Cal. 2d 570, 578) . The requirement that the complaint allege a meritorious case does not require an absolute guarantee of victory. It is enough if the complaint presents facts from which it can be ascertained that the plaintiff has a sufficiently meritorious claim to entitle him or her to a trial of the issue at a proper adversary proceeding. The complaint in Olivera alleged that but for the conduct of the defendant, the court in the former action would have considered the testimony of additional witnesses concerning the grantor's intention in executing the original deed and would have reached a different conclusion. This, according to the Court, was a sufficient allegation under the rule stated (19 Cal. 2d 570, 579) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Meritorious Claim or Defense Sufficiently Shown

The facts and procedural background of Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 305 P.2d 20 , are discussed in § 70.502[4]. In Bennett, the Supreme Court reversed a judgment of dismissal on sustaining a demurrer without leave to amend. The Court stated that ordinarily equity will not interfere with a judgment on the ground of extrinsic fraud or mistake unless the one whose interests were infringed can present a meritorious case; the plaintiff must plead and prove facts from which it appears, at least prima facie, that if the judgment were set aside and the proceedings were reopened, a different result would probably follow (47 Cal. 2d 540, 554) .

In Turner v. Allen (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 753, 11 Cal. Rptr. 630 , the court of appeal affirmed a judgment setting aside a default judgment taken against the plaintiff when he was a defendant in a prior action. The complaint alleged, as to the merits of the plaintiff's defense in the prior action, that he had built an electric car for the plaintiff in that action, that the car had no defects, that the plaintiff had returned the car stating that he had been in an accident and that he had repaired and returned it, and that he did not hear from the plaintiff again until he filed the prior action. Through a series of technical omissions on the part of the attorney for the defendant in that action a default was taken against him but the default judgment was not entered until after the filing of the complaint in this action for equitable relief. The court of appeal ruled that the ground for the exercise of equitable jurisdiction is that there had been no fair adversary trial at law (189 Cal. App. 2d 753, 757) , and that extrinsic accident and mistake of fact would, under appropriate circumstances, justify the intervention of equity (189 Cal. App. 2d 753, 758) .

The court added that the plaintiff in this case was required to plead and prove that a good defense existed to the original claim which would be likely to result in a favorable judgment if asserted in a new trial. The court concluded that the required pleading of such matters was had in the case at bar (189 Cal. App. 2d 753, 759) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.621

§ 70.621 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order on Ground That Requirement of Showing Meritorious Claim or Defense Is Satisfied--Meritorious Claim or Defense Sufficiently Shown--Difficulty of Proof Is Not Determinative of Sufficiency of Allegation in Complaint

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion in equity for relief on the ground that a meritorious claim or defense is sufficiently shown (see § 70.620[1]).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RELIEF IN EQUITY AND SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE THE AGGRIEVED PARTY HAS A SUFFICIENTLY MERITORIOUS _____ [CLAIM or DEFENSE] TO ENTITLE HIM/HER TO A TRIAL OF THE ISSUE AT A PROPER ADVERSARY HEARING, AND THE MERE FACT THAT THE CLAIM OR DEFENSE MAY BE DIFFICULT TO PROVE IS NOT DETERMINATIVE.

Difficulty of Proof Not Determinative of Sufficiency of Allegation in Complaint. Although a complaint seeking equitable relief from a judgment on the ground of extrinsic fraud or mistake must allege facts showing a meritorious claim or defense, the fact that the claim or defense may be difficult to prove is not determinative (Evry v. Tremble (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 444, 448, 316 P.2d 49).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior judgment obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake, fraud or duress, because he or she has sufficiently satisfied the requirement of showing that he or she has a meritorious claim or defense to the action, entitling him or her to a trial on the merits at a proper adversary proceeding. This form is based on the principle that the fact that a claim or defense may be difficult to prove is not determinative [Evry v. Tremble (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 444, 448, 316 P.2d 49] .

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a motion in equity for relief on the ground that a meritorious claim or defense is sufficiently shown [see § 70.620[1]].

See also § 70.480[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

They may, in addition, be used in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.650[1] may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Difficulty of Proof Not Determinative of Sufficiency of Allegation in Complaint

Evry v. Tremble (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 444, 316 P.2d 49 , involved a "petition to vacate judgment" on the ground of extrinsic mistake regarding a sale by the plaintiff to the defendant of certain real property. The defendant contended that in underlying action she would have had a meritorious defense that contrary to the contention of the plaintiff there, she was the owner of the whole of the property involved at the time of the sale and that the plaintiff in that action knew there was no water on the property. The trial court treated the petition as a motion to set aside the judgment, and granted the motion. The plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order. On the issue of whether a meritorious defense was pleaded in the complaint for equitable relief, the court of appeal stated that the requirement for a showing of a meritorious defense does not require a guaranty of victory. The fact that the defense may be difficult to prove, said the court, is not determinative (154 Cal. App. 2d 444, 448) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.622

§ 70.622 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order on Ground That Requirement of Showing Meritorious Claim or Defense Is Satisfied--Showing of Meritorious Defense Not Required--Relief From Decree or Order in Marital Dissolution Proceeding

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a general memorandum supporting a motion in equity (see, e.g., § 70.480[1]), a memorandum opposing a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528), a memorandum opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment in an independent suit in equity (see, e.g., § 70.540[1]), or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE AGGRIEVED PARTY IS NOT REQUIRED TO SHOW THAT HE/SHE HAS A MERITORIOUS DEFENSE BECAUSE THAT REQUIREMENT IS NOT APPLICABLE TO MARITAL DISSOLUTION ACTIONS.

Showing of Meritorious Defense Not Required in Marital Dissolution Action. The general rule that a party attempting to set aside a default must show that he or she has a meritorious defense to the action is not applicable in marital dissolution actions in that the interest of the state in preserving marriage is such that a decree of dissolution of marriage will be set aside on a very slight showing without an affidavit of merits (Sanchez v. Sanchez (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 159, 164, 77 Cal. Rptr. 884).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior default judgment obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake, fraud or duress, despite the fact that he or she has made no showing of a meritorious defense to prior proceeding, because the prior proceeding was one for marital dissolution, in which cases the requirement of a meritorious defense is not applicable.

This form should be combined with a general memorandum, depending on the procedural context in which the contention is to be raised. It may, for example, be combined with a general form of points and authorities supporting a motion in equity [see, e.g., § 70.480[1]]. Note, however, that if used in this context, this form would most likely be adapted for use in a reply memorandum, following opposition to the motion which raised the issue of the moving party's insufficient showing of a meritorious claim or defense. This form may also be combined, for example, with a memorandum used to oppose a defendant's attempt to dispose of an independent suit in equity through a pretrial proceeding such as a general demurrer to the complaint [see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528], or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., § 70.540[1]].

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.621, 70.623], particularly additional points and authorities supporting relief on other particular grounds relating to the requirement of a meritorious claim or defense [see, e.g., § 70.622 -70.623].

See also § 70.480[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. That is, counsel would establish that the prior action was in fact one for dissolution of marriage.

See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.650[1] may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Showing of Meritorious Defense Not Required in Marital Dissolution Action

In Sanchez v. Sanchez (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 159, 77 Cal. Rptr. 884 , plaintiff husband was granted an interlocutory judgment of divorce by default, giving defendant wife custody of the couple's minor child and child support, but no community property or spousal support. When plaintiff obtained a final judgment, defendant's guardian ad litem filed a motion to vacate defendant's default and set aside the judgment on the ground that defendant was mentally incompetent at the time of the entry of her default. The trial court granted the motion. The plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the trial court order setting aside the default and judgment. The court noted that the motion, having been made more than six months after entry of the default, was addressed to the court's inherent equity power rather than to its statutory power under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (273 Cal. App. 2d 159, 163) . The court stated that it is well established that equity will relieve an incompetent from a judgment taken without an adversary hearing (273 Cal. App. 2d 159, 163-164) . Although plaintiff had not raised the issue of defendant's lack of showing of merits, the court felt that some mention should have been made of the issue (273 Cal. App. 2d 159, 164) . On that point, the court cited earlier cases for the principle that the interest of the state in preserving the marriage state is such that a divorce decree will be set aside on a very slight showing without an affidavit of merits (273 Cal. App. 2d 159, 164) . The court concluded that the uncontradicted affidavit of defendant's guardian ad litem as to defendant's mental condition was sufficient allegation of the necessity for the relief requested (273 Cal. App. 2d 159, 164) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.623

§ 70.623 Supporting Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order on Ground That Requirement of Showing Meritorious Claim or Defense Is Satisfied--Meritorious Claim or Defense Sufficiently Shown--Showing of Meritorious Defense Not Required--Relief From Void Judgment or Order

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a general memorandum supporting a motion in equity (see, e.g., § 70.480[1]), a memorandum opposing a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528), a memorandum opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment in an independent suit in equity (see, e.g., § 70.540[1]), or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE AGGRIEVED PARTY IS NOT REQUIRED TO SHOW THAT HE/SHE HAS A MERITORIOUS DEFENSE BECAUSE THAT REQUIREMENT IS NOT APPLICABLE WHEN THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] UNDER ATTACK IS A VOID JUDGMENT.

Showing of Meritorious Defense Not Required When Judgment Is Void. The rule that a complaint for equitable relief from a prior judgment must allege facts showing that the plaintiff has a meritorious case does not apply when the judgment under attack is void (Cadenasso v. Bank of Italy (1932) 214 Cal. 562, 568-569, 6 P.2d 944).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior default judgment obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake, fraud or duress, despite the fact that he or she has made no showing of a meritorious defense to prior action, because that requirement does not apply when relief is being sought from the resulting judgment on the ground that it is void.

This form should be combined with a general memorandum, depending on the procedural context in which the contention is to be raised. It may, for example, be combined with a general form of points and authorities supporting a motion in equity [see, e.g., § 70.480[1]]. Note, however, that if used in this context, this form would most likely be adapted for use in a reply memorandum, following opposition to the motion which raised the issue of the moving party's insufficient showing of a meritorious claim or defense. This form may also be combined, for example, with a memorandum used to oppose a defendant's attempt to dispose of an independent suit in equity through a pretrial proceeding such as a general demurrer to the complaint [see, e.g., §§ 70.520 -70.528], or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., § 70.540[1]].

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.550 -70.622], particularly additional points and authorities supporting relief on other particular grounds relating to the requirement of a meritorious claim or defense [see, e.g., § 70.620 -70.622].

See also § 70.480[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

They may, in addition, be used in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. That is, counsel would identify in what manner the prior judgment or order is void.

See also § 70.480[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Due Process Considerations

The United States Supreme Court has held that, before setting aside a default judgment, a court may not require a defendant to show that he or she has a meritorious defense when that defendant did not receive proper notice and the judgment had substantial adverse consequences for the defendant; to require such a showing would violate the due process clause of the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment [Peralta v. Heights Medical Center, Inc. (1988) 485 U.S. 80, 108 S. Ct. 896, 99 L. Ed. 2d 75, 80-82] . The Court, citing Mullane v. Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co. (1950) 339 U.S. 306, 314, 70 S. Ct. 652, 94 L. Ed. 865 , stated that an elementary and fundamental requirement of due process in any proceeding that is to be accorded finality is notice reasonably calculated, under the circumstances, to apprise interested parties of the pendency of the action and afford them the opportunity to present their objections. Failure to give notice violates the most rudimentary demands of due process of the law [Peralta v. Heights Medical Center, Inc. (1988) 485 U.S. 80, 84, 108 S. Ct. 896, 99 L. Ed. 2d 75, 84] .

The decision in Peralta thus appears to abrogate cases that have held that the meritorious case requirement applies to proceedings in equity to set aside a judgment on the ground that summons had not been served or that service was in some manner defective [Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 554-555, 305 P.2d 20 ; see also New York Higher Education Assistance Corp. v. Siegel (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 684, 689, 154 Cal. Rptr. 200] . Because such judgments are void for lack of personal jurisdiction, the decision in Peralta further supports the proposition that a meritorious defense is not required in seeking equitable relief from a void judgment.

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 70.650[1] may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Showing of Meritorious Defense Not Required When Judgment Is Void

In Cadenasso v. Bank of Italy (1932) 214 Cal. 562, 6 P.2d 944 , involved an action for equitable relief from a prior judgment. The original action had been brought by the Bank of Italy against the plaintiffs in this action. It was tried by the court without a jury and resulted in a judgment for the bank. Later, the plaintiffs in this action learned for the first time that the trial judge was a stockholder of the bank and by reason thereof was disqualified from acting as a judge in that action. The defendant filed a demurrer and the trial court sustained the demurrer. The plaintiffs appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed, holding that any act of a disqualified judge is absolutely void whenever brought in question. The defendants contended, that, nevertheless, the plaintiffs' complaint failed to state sufficient facts to constitute a cause of action because they failed to allege that they had a meritorious defense to the original cause of action and that a like judgment would not result from a new trial of that action. However, the Court stated that a different rule prevails when the judgment is void. It is no answer to say in the case of a disqualification of a judge in the prior action that the decision was correct. If the judge rendering the judgment was without jurisdiction in the proceeding, his action was a nullity. It was just as much a nullity if he decided the case correctly as if he had rendered an erroneous judgment. Therefore, as this was an action to set aside a void judgment, it was unnecessary for the plaintiffs to show that they had a good defense to the prior action or that a different judgment would result from a new trial in said action (214 Cal. 562, 568-569) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.624-70.629

[Reserved]

§§ 70.624[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.630

§ 70.630 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress Justifying Relief--Generally

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a general memorandum opposing a motion in equity (see, e.g., § 70.490[1]), a memorandum supporting a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.500 -70.503), a memorandum supporting a defendant's motion for summary judgment in an independent suit in equity (see, e.g., §§ 70.510, 70.511), or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE AGGRIEVED PARTY IS NOT ENTITLED TO RELIEF IN EQUITY SETTING ASIDE THE PRIOR _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE HE/SHE HAS FAILED TO ESTABLISH ANY SUFFICIENT GROUND FOR THAT RELIEF.

Circumstances of Case Do Not Overcome Strong Policy Favoring Finality of Judgments. A court's equitable power to modify a valid final judgment can only be exercised when the circumstances of the case are sufficient to overcome the strong policy favoring the finality of judgments. Public policy requires that only in exceptional circumstances should the consequences of res judicata be denied to a valid judgment (Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 470, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17).

[This form may be combined with other points and authorities opposing a contention that equitable relief should be granted because of extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress (see, e.g., §§ 70.631 -70.638)].

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior default judgment obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake, fraud or duress. The ground for opposition is that the aggrieved party has not made a sufficient showing of extrinsic fraud or mistake so as to justify a grant of equitable relief.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contentions supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.550 -70.623.

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum, depending on the procedural context in which the contention is to be raised. It may, for example, be combined with a general form of points and authorities opposing a motion in equity [see, e.g., § 70.490[1]]. They may also be combined, for example, with a memorandum supporting a defendant's attempt to dispose of an independent suit in equity through a pretrial proceeding such as a general demurrer to the complaint [see, e.g., §§ 70.500 -70.503], or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., §§ 70.510, 70.511]. They may, in addition, be used in a trial or appellate brief.

These points and authorities may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.650- 700].

See also §§ 70.480[2] and 70.490[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, if the aggrieved party seeks relief on the basis of fraud, and counsel wishes to establish that the fraud was intrinsic rather than extrinsic, counsel should refer to facts showing that the party seeking relief was given proper notice of the action, has not been prevented from fully participating therein, and has had an opportunity to present his or her case to the court and to protect himself or herself from any alleged fraud [see Westphal v. Westphal (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 393, 397, 126 P.2d 105 (discussed in § 70.631[3])].

See also § 70.490[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Circumstances of Case Do Not Overcome Strong Policy Favoring Finality of Judgments

Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17 , involved a trial court's order striking a portion of a prior divorce decree. The decree provided that the defendant husband would indemnify and hold the plaintiff free and harmless as to any taxes. After the divorce, the husband received a federal income tax assessment based on theretofore undisclosed income accumulated during the marriage by a foreign corporation in the wife's name. The husband moved to modify the decree to relieve him of liability for such taxes on the grounds of extrinsic fraud and mistake. The trial court concluded that the tax provision in the decree was included and approved by the parties as a result of the mutual mistake of the parties, and struck the tax provision from the decree.

The Supreme Court reversed the trial court's order. The Court stated that under certain circumstances a court, sitting in equity can set aside or modify a valid final judgment. This power, however, can only be exercised when the circumstances of the case are sufficient to overcome the strong policy favoring the finality of judgments. The Court, citing a comment to the Restatement, Judgments, stated that a basic requirement of an action which can lead to a valid judgment is that a procedure should be adopted which in the normal case will give to the parties an opportunity for a fair trial that is reasonable in view of the requirements of public policy in the particular type of case. If this requirement is met, a judgment awarded in an action is not void merely because the particular individual against whom it was rendered did not in fact have an opportunity to present his or her claim or defense before an impartial tribunal. Public policy requires that only in exceptional circumstances should the consequences of res judicata be denied to a valid judgment (1 Cal. 3d 467, 470) . Citing Jorgensen v. Jorgensen (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 13, 22-23, 193 P.2d 728 (discussed under Issues Previously Litigated, below), the Court held that the husband was barred from obtaining equitable relief because he and his attorney chose not to investigate the husband's taxability (1 Cal. 3d 467, 474) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.631

§ 70.631 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress Justifying Relief--Relief Denied if Party Had Notice and Was Not Prevented From Participating

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing the contention that equitable relief should be granted because of extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress (see § 70.630[1]).]

THE AGGRIEVED PARTY IS NOT ENTITLED TO RELIEF IN EQUITY SETTING ASIDE THE PRIOR _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE HE/SHE WAS GIVEN NOTICE OF THE ACTION AND WAS NOT PREVENTED FROM PARTICIPATING THEREIN.

Relief Is Denied if Party Has Been Given Notice and Not Prevented From Participating. Relief in equity is denied if a party has been given notice of an action and has not been prevented from participating therein. [He or she has had the opportunity to present his or her case to the court and to protect himself or herself from mistake or from any fraud attempted by his or her adversary] (Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 472, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17 ; Westphal v. Westphal (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 393, 397, 126 P.2d 105).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior default judgment obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake, fraud or duress. The ground for opposition is that relief is denied if the aggrieved party has been given notice and has not prevented from participating [Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 472, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17 ; Westphal v. Westphal (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 393, 397, 126 P.2d 105] .

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contentions supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.550 -70.623.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing the contention that equitable relief should be granted because of extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress [see § 70.630[1]]. They may, in addition, be used in a trial or appellate brief.

These points and authorities may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.650- 700].

See also §§ 70.480[2] and 70.490[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should refer to facts showing that the party seeking relief was given proper notice of the action, has not been prevented from fully participating therein, and has had an opportunity to present his or her case to the court and to protect himself or herself from any alleged fraud [see Westphal v. Westphal (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 393, 397, 126 P.2d 105 (discussed in § 70.631[3])].

See also § 70.490[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Relief Is Denied if Party Has Been Given Notice and Not Prevented From Participating

The facts and procedural background of Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17 , are discussed in § 70.630[3]. In Kulchar, the Supreme Court stated that relief in equity is denied if a party has been given notice of an action and has not been prevented from participating therein. He or she has had the opportunity to present his or her case to the court and to protect himself or herself from mistake or from any fraud attempted by his or her adversary (1 Cal. 3d 467, 472) .

The facts and procedural background of Westphal v. Westphal (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 393, 126 P.2d 105 , are discussed in § 70.500[4]. In Westphal, the Supreme Court stated that if an unsuccessful party to an action has been kept in ignorance thereof or has been prevented from fully participating therein, there has been no true adversary proceeding, and the judgment is open to attack at any time. A party who has been given proper notice of an action, however, and who has not been prevented from full participation therein, has had an opportunity to present his or her case to the court and to protect himself or herself from any fraud attempted by his or her adversary (20 Cal. 2d 393, 397) . The Court held that under the presumption of service plaintiffs had notice of the proceedings, and there was nothing to prevent their participating therein. They therefore had an opportunity to present their case and direct attention of the court to their interest in the estate (20 Cal. 2d 393, 398-399) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.632

§ 70.632 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress Justifying Relief--Relief Only When Fraud or Mistake Is Extrinsic

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing the contention that equitable relief should be granted because of extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress (see § 70.630[1]).]

THE AGGRIEVED PARTY IS NOT ENTITLED TO RELIEF IN EQUITY SETTING ASIDE THE PRIOR _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE RELIEF MAY BE GRANTED ONLY IF THERE HAS BEEN EXTRINSIC FRAUD OR MISTAKE, AND THE AGGRIEVED PARTY HAS FAILED TO SHOW THAT SUCH FRAUD OR MISTAKE OCCURRED.

A. Relief Only When Fraud or Mistake Is Extrinsic. A final judgment [of a court having jurisdiction over persons and subject matter] can be attacked in equity [after the time for appeal or other direct attack has expired] only if the alleged fraud or mistake is extrinsic rather than intrinsic (Lopez v. Lopez (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 735, 738, 48 Cal. Rptr. 136, 408 P.2d 744 ; Westphal v. Westphal (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 393, 397, 126 P.2d 105 ; In re Marriage of Melton (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 931, 937, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 761).

B. Intrinsic Fraud or Mistake Defined. An alleged fraud or mistake which goes to the merits of the prior proceedings [and which should have been guarded against at that time] is intrinsic and the courts will deny relief (Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 472-473, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17 ; Hendricks v. Hendricks (1932) 216 Cal. 321, 323, 14 P.2d 83 ; In re Marriage of Melton (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 931, 937-938, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 761).

C. Extrinsic Fraud or Mistake Distinguished. Fraud or mistake is extrinsic when it deprives the unsuccessful party of an opportunity to present his/her case to the court (Lopez v. Lopez (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 735, 738, 48 Cal. Rptr. 136, 408

P.2d 744 ; Westphal v. Westphal (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 393, 397, 126 P.2d 105 ; In re Marriage of Melton (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 931, 938, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 761).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior default judgment obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake, fraud or duress. The ground for opposition is that relief is denied unless there is a showing of extrinsic fraud or mistake if the aggrieved party has been given notice and has not prevented from participating [Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 472, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17 ; Westphal v. Westphal (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 393, 397, 126 P.2d 105] .

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contentions supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.550 -70.623.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing the contention that equitable relief should be granted because of extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress [see § 70.630[1]]. They may, in addition, be used in a trial or appellate brief.

These points and authorities may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.650- 700].

See also §§ 70.480[2] and 70.490[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.490[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Relief Only When Fraud or Mistake Is Extrinsic

The facts and procedural background of Lopez v. Lopez (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 735, 48 Cal. Rptr. 136, 408 P.2d 744 , are discussed in § 70.582[3]. In Lopez, the Supreme Court reversed an order setting aside a trial court's interlocutory and final decrees of divorce, observing that there was no evidence of extrinsic fraud or mistake insofar as either decree was concerned. The final judgment of a court having jurisdiction over persons and subject matter can be attacked in equity after the time for appeal or other direct attack has expired only if the alleged fraud or mistake is extrinsic rather than intrinsic. Fraud or mistake is extrinsic when it deprives the unsuccessful party of an opportunity to present his or her case to the court. Thus, it was error to grant the motion to set aside the decrees (63 Cal. 2d 735, 738) .

The facts and procedural background of Westphal v. Westphal (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 393, 126 P.2d 105 , are discussed in § 70.500[4]. In Westphal, the Supreme Court, citing United States v. Throckmorton (1878) 98 U.S. 61, 25 L. Ed. 93 , and Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 122 P.2d 564 , ruled that the final judgment of a court having jurisdiction over persons and subject matter can be attacked in equity after time for appeal or other direct attack has expired only if the alleged fraud or mistake is extrinsic rather than intrinsic. Fraud or mistake, said the Court, is extrinsic when it deprives the unsuccessful party of an opportunity to present his or her case to the court. If an unsuccessful party to an action has been kept in ignorance thereof or has been prevented from fully participating therein, there has been no true adversary proceeding, and the judgment is open to attack at any time. A party who has been given proper notice of an action, however, and who has not been prevented from full participation therein, has had an opportunity to present his or her case to the court and to protect himself or herself from any fraud attempted by his or her adversary. Thus, said the Court, fraud perpetrated under such circumstances is intrinsic, even though the unsuccessful party does not avail himself or herself or herself of his or her opportunity to appear before the court. Having had an opportunity to protect his or her interest, he or she cannot attack the judgment once the time has elapsed for appeal or other direct attack (20 Cal. 2d 393, 397) . In the absence of any allegation that the plaintiffs had not received proper notice of the proceedings, it was presumed that they received such notice and the Court concluded that they had an opportunity to present their case and that plaintiffs alleged no extrinsic fraud or mistake sufficient to constitute the basis for an attack in equity on the decree of distribtin (20 Cal. 2d 393, 38-399) .

In In re Marriage of Melton (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 931, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 761 , a former wife filed a motion for an order interpreting and implementing a stipulated dissolution judgment or, in the alternative, for an order setting the judgment aside for extrinsic fraud or mistake. On dissolution of their marriage, the parties had entered into a stipulation for entry of judgment and order under which the husband's future pension benefits were to be divided based on estimates supplied by the pension plan administrator. Due to the husband's decision to retire later than planned, along with certain amendments to the plan, the judgment resulted in far lower payments to the wife than to the husband. The trial court rejected the wife's contention that the husband had concealed the true amount of his expected retirement benefits and misled her into accepting a lesser dollar amount and denied her request to set aside the judgment, finding insufficient evidence of extrinsic fraud.

The court of appeal affirmed the order denying the motion to set aside the judgment, first stating that after six months, when relief is no longer available under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 for mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, an otherwise valid judgment may only be set aside for extrinsic fraud or mistake (28 Cal. App. 4th 931, 937) .

[b] Intrinsic Fraud or Mistake Defined

The facts and procedural background of Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17 , are discussed in § 70.630[3]. In Kulchar, the Supreme Court noted that equitable relief from a judgment is denied if a party has been given notice of an action and has not been prevented from participating therein and that courts deny relief when the fraud or mistake is "intrinsic"; that is, when it goes to the merits of the prior proceedings, which should have been guarded against at that time (1 Cal. 3d 467, 472-473) . In this case, the Court stated, both parties knew of the foreign assets, but the husband and his attorney chose not to investigate their taxability. The property settlement agreement expressly covered unknown tax liability. Having had full opportunity to consider all the wife's income and its concurrent tax consequences, the husband could not complain of the added tax burden (1 Cal. 3d 467, 474) .

Hendricks v. Hendricks (1932) 216 Cal. 321, 14 P.2d 83 , involved an action to set aside an interlocutory decree of divorce allegedly obtained by coercion and duress based on false threats. The complaint for equitable relief alleged that the defendant had coerced the plaintiff to abandon a separate maintenance suit against the defendant and institute an action for divorce instead by means of threats which were false, untrue, and made solely to intimidate and compel the plaintiff to bring the divorce action and free the defendant from his marital obligations. The defendant filed a general demurrer, which the trial court sustained without leave to amend.

The Supreme Court affirmed. The Court stated that equity will not vacate a judgment obtained through the connivance of the parties to the action. To warrant such relief, said the Court, there must be a showing of fraud on the party complaining, and the fraud must be extrinsic or collateral to the subject of dispute in the action involved. When, however, evidence of the fraud could have been presented to the court or to an attorney of the complainant's own choosing during the pendency of the action so that full examination of the facts could have been made and full protection given to the rights of the parties, equity will not interfere but will leave the parties to the fraudulent transactions in which they have placed themselves, said the Court (216 Cal. 321, 323) . The Court observed that the allegations of the complaint disclosed, at best, intrinsic fraud and that the action, therefore, was precluded since the complaint failed to present a case of equitable cognizance (216 Cal. 321, 324) .

The facts and procedural background of In re Marriage of Melton (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 931, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 761 , are discussed under [a], above.

In affirming the order denying the motion to set aside the judgment, the court of appeal stated that extrinsic fraud occurs when a party is deprived of the opportunity to present his or her claim or defense to the court, when he or she was kept in ignorance or in some other manner fraudulently prevented from fully participating in the proceeding. Examples cited by the court included concealing the existence of a community property asset and failing to give notice of the action (28 Cal. App. 4th 931, 937) . Fraud is intrinsic and not a valid ground for setting aside a judgment when the party has been given notice of the action and has had an opportunity to present his or her case and to protect himself or herself from any mistake or fraud of the adversary party, but has unreasonably neglected to do so (28 Cal. App. 4th 931, 937-938) .

Addressing the case before it, the court noted that both parties were represented by counsel, the husband had not concealed the existence of the pension plan and the plan itself was a party to the dissolution action. Although the husband did misrepresent the present value of his future pension benefits with the assistance of the plan administrator, the wife's attorney had a copy of the plan and could have discovered, with the exercise of reasonable diligence, that the plan increased benefits from time to time. Since the plan was a party, the wife's attorney could have conducted discovery on the plan to determine the projected benefits. Although the court noted that the husband may have been involved in a "sharp practice," it did not amount to extrinsic fraud, the essence of which is one party's preventing the other from having his or her day in court (28 Cal. App. 4th 931, 938) .

[c] Extrinsic Fraud or Mistake Distinguished

The facts and procedural background of Lopez v. Lopez (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 735, 48 Cal. Rptr. 136, 408 P.2d 744 , are discussed in § 70.582[3]. In Lopez, the Supreme Court reversed the order of the trial court setting aside divorce decrees and a property settlement agreement. The Court stated that fraud or mistake is extrinsic when it deprives the unsuccessful party of an opportunity to present his or her case to the court (63 Cal. 2d 735, 738) .

The facts and procedural background of Westphal v. Westphal (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 393, 126 P.2d 105 , are discussed in § 70.500[4]. In Westphal, the Supreme Court stated that fraud or mistake is extrinsic when it deprives the unsuccessful party of an opportunity to present his or her case to the court (20 Cal. 2d 393, 397) . In that case, the Court affirmed a judgment of the trial court following the sustaining of a demurrer to the complaint.

In re Marriage of Melton (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 931, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 761 , is discussed under [b], above.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.633

§ 70.633 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress Justifying Relief--Perjured Testimony or Forged Instrument Intrinsic

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing the contention that equitable relief should be granted because of extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress (see § 70.630[1]).]

THE AGGRIEVED PARTY IS NOT ENTITLED TO RELIEF IN EQUITY SETTING ASIDE THE PRIOR _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE THE ALLEGED _____ [PERJURED TESTIMONY or FORGED INSTRUMENT] WOULD CONSTITUTE MERE INTRINSIC FRAUD.

Perjured Testimony or Forged Instrument Intrinsic. Equitable relief from a judgment arising out of a contested action will not be granted merely because it was obtained by perjured testimony or forged documents--that constitutes intrinsic fraud against which defense could have been made at the trial (Hammell v. Britton (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 72, 82, 119 P.2d 333).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior default judgment obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake, fraud or duress. The ground for opposition is that relief is denied when the basis of the aggrieved party's application for relief is that the judgment resulted from perjured testimony or a forged instrument [Hammell v. Britton (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 72, 82, 119 P.2d 333] .

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contentions supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.550 -70.623.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing the contention that equitable relief should be granted because of extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress [see § 70.630[1]]. They may, in addition, be used in a trial or appellate brief.

These points and authorities may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.650- 700].

See also §§ 70.480[2] and 70.490[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.490[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Perjured Testimony or Forged Instrument Intrinsic

The facts and procedural background of Hammell v. Britton (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 72, 119 P.2d 333 , are discussed in § 70.500[3]. In Hammell, the plaintiff contended that a Colorado judgment which vacated a divorce decree had been obtained through fraud. Assuming the truth of that contention, the Court held the plaintiff had failed to state a case because such fraud would be intrinsic rather than extrinsic. The Colorado judgment that the Colorado divorce decree was invalid constituted conclusive evidence of that fact, and if obtained by fraud, was not unlike a forged instrument or perjured testimony forming the evidentiary basis for a judgment. Equitable relief will not be granted merely because it was obtained by perjured testimony or forged documents; that constitutes intrinsic fraud against which defense may be made at the trial (19 Cal. 2d 72, 82) . Thus, the Court concluded that the plaintiff had failed to allege extrinsic fraud entitling him to relief. The Court further observed that the plaintiff was not prevented by any fraudulent conduct of defendants from presenting his full case in court and that he had not set forth any equitable excuse for not having made the defense of fraud (19 Cal. 2d 72, 83) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.634

§ 70.634 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress Justifying Relief--Excuse for Failure to Present Defense Required

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing the contention that equitable relief should be granted because of extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress (see § 70.630[1]).]

THE AGGRIEVED PARTY IS NOT ENTITLED TO RELIEF IN EQUITY SETTING ASIDE THE PRIOR _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE THE AGGRIEVED PARTY HAS FAILED TO DEMONSTRATE A SATISFACTORY EXCUSE FOR NOT RESPONDING TO THE ORIGINAL ACTION IN A TIMELY MANNER.

Excuse for Failure to Present Defense Required. The party seeking relief from a default must demonstrate a satisfactory excuse for not responding to the original action in a timely manner (Stiles v. Wallis (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 1143, 1148, 195 Cal. Rptr. 377).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior default judgment obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake, fraud or duress. The ground for opposition is that the party seeking relief from a default has failed to demonstrate a satisfactory excuse for not responding to the original action in a timely manner [Stiles v. Wallis (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 1143, 1148, 195 Cal. Rptr. 377] .

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contentions supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.550 -70.623.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing the contention that equitable relief should be granted because of extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress [see § 70.630[1]]. They may, in addition, be used in a trial or appellate brief.

These points and authorities may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.650- 700].

See also §§ 70.480[2] and 70.490[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.490[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Excuse for Failure to Present Defense Required

The facts and procedural background of Stiles v. Wallis (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 1143, 195 Cal. Rptr. 377 , are discussed in § 70.490[3]. In Stiles, the court listed three elements necessary to set aside a default judgment based on extrinsic mistake: (1) the defaulted party must demonstrate that it has a meritorious case; (2) the party seeking to set aside the default must articulate a satisfactory excuse for not presenting a defense to the action; and (3) the moving party must demonstrate diligence in seeking to set aside the default once it has been discovered (147 Cal. App. 3d 1143, 1147-1148) . As to the second element, defendant had offered two explanations for failure to defend in a timely fashion, namely that he thought his employer was obligated to provide him with a defense and that he was an Australian citizen born in England and was therefore unfamiliar with California law (147 Cal. App. 3d 1143, 1148) . The court found defendant's explanations insufficient to justify setting aside the default judgment (147 Cal. App. 3d 1143, 1149) . As to the third element, the court found that defendant failed to act with proper diligence by waiting more than 20 months before taking action (147 Cal. App. 3d 1143, 1150) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.635

§ 70.635 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress Justifying Relief--Issues Previously Litigated

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing the contention that equitable relief should be granted because of extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress (see § 70.630[1]).]

THE AGGRIEVED PARTY IS NOT ENTITLED TO RELIEF IN EQUITY SETTING ASIDE THE PRIOR _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE THE AGGRIEVED PARTY IS SEEKING TO RELITIGATE AN ISSUE INVOLVED IN THE FORMER PROCEEDING.

Issues Previously Litigated. Equitable relief from a judgment allegedly obtained by fraud or mistake will be denied when the plaintiff seeks to relitigate an issue involved in the former proceeding on the ground that allegations or proof of either party was fraudulent or based on mistake (Jorgensen v. Jorgensen (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 13, 18, 193 P.2d 728).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior default judgment obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake, fraud or duress. The ground for opposition is that the party seeking relitigate and issue already decided in the prior proceeding [Jorgensen v. Jorgensen (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 13, 18, 193 P.2d 728] .

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contentions supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.550 -70.623.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing the contention that equitable relief should be granted because of extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress [see § 70.630[1]]. They may, in addition, be used in a trial or appellate brief.

These points and authorities may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.650- 700].

See also §§ 70.480[2] and 70.490[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.490[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Issues Previously Litigated

The facts and procedural background of Jorgensen v. Jorgensen (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 13, 193 P.2d 728 , are discussed in § 70.584[4]. In Jorgensen, in affirming a judgment for defendant on the pleadings in an action to set aside provisions of an interlocutory divorce judgment relating to a property settlement agreement, the Supreme Court noted that the public policy underlying the principle of res judicata requires issues involved in a case to be set at rest by a final judgment, even though a party has persuaded the court or jury by false allegations supported by perjured testimony. However, the Court added that this policy must be considered together with the policy that a party may not be deprived of a fair adversary proceeding in which he or she can fully present his or her case. Thus, said the Court, equitable relief will be denied when a party seeks to relitigate an issue involved in the former proceeding on the ground that allegations or proof of either party was fraudulent or based on mistake, but such relief may be granted if the party seeking it was precluded by fraud or the mistake of the other party from participating in the proceeding or from fully presenting his or her case (32 Cal. 2d 13, 18) . The latter policy applies, the Court ruled, when a party's adversary, in violation of a duty arising from a trust or confidential relation, has concealed from him facts essential to the protection of his or her rights, even though such facts concerned issues involved in the case in which the judgment was entered (32 Cal. 2d 13, 19) .

Thus, the issue in this case was whether or not the wife was deprived of a fair opportunity to submit her case fully because of a breach of a fiduciary duty on the part of the husband. There was no allegation of concealment of assets--they were disclosed. A husband, at the time of divorce, is entitled to take a position favorable to his own interest in claiming as separate property assets a court might hold to be community property. Confronted with such an assertion, the wife must take her own position and, if necessary, investigate the facts. If, as in this case, the wife and her attorney are satisfied with the husband's classification of the property, the wife cannot reasonably contend that fraud was committed or that there was such mistake as to allow her to overcome the finality of a judgment. The wife did not allege that her attorney intentionally failed to protect her interests (32 Cal. 2d 13, 22-23) . Thus, the Court held that the plaintiff was barred from obtaining equitable relief by her admission that she and her attorney did not investigate the facts, choosing instead to rely on the husband's statements as to the character of the property (32 Cal. 2d 13, 23) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.636

§ 70.636 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress Justifying Relief--Attorney's Erroneous Legal Conclusion

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing the contention that equitable relief should be granted because of extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress (see § 70.630[1]).]

THE AGGRIEVED PARTY IS NOT ENTITLED TO RELIEF IN EQUITY SETTING ASIDE THE PRIOR _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE THE MISTAKEN CONCLUSION BY THE AGGRIEVED PARTY'S ATTORNEY THAT CERTAIN FACTS ARE OF NO LEGAL SIGNIFICANCE IS MERELY AN INTRINSIC MISTAKE FOR WHICH NO RELIEF MAY BE GRANTED.

Attorney's Erroneous Legal Conclusion. When an attorney knows the facts but mistakenly concludes that they are of no legal significance and does not present them at the hearing of the matter in question, his/her mistake is intrinsic and not extrinsic (Lennefelt v. Cranston (1964) 231 Cal. App. 2d 171, 177, 41 Cal. Rptr. 598).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior default judgment obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake, fraud or duress. The ground for opposition is that a mistake by the aggrieved party's attorney that certain facts were of no legal significance and consequently failed to present them at the hearing is an intrinsic mistake [Lennefelt v. Cranston (1964) 231 Cal. App. 2d 171, 177, 41 Cal. Rptr. 598] .

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contentions supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.550 -70.623.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing the contention that equitable relief should be granted because of extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress [see § 70.630[1]]. They may, in addition, be used in a trial or appellate brief.

These points and authorities may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.650- 700].

See also §§ 70.480[2] and 70.490[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.490[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney's Erroneous Legal Conclusion

Lennefelt v. Cranston (1964) 231 Cal. App. 2d 171, 41 Cal. Rptr. 598 , involved an action to set aside an order fixing inheritance tax on the ground of extrinsic mistake. If the facts of which the plaintiffs were aware, and which were related to the attorney-accountant employed to represent the executrix in the original hearing, had been made known to the inheritance tax appraiser, the plaintiffs would have been classified as Class A transferees and the court would have fixed the inheritance tax at a lower amount than set in the order under attack. The trial court found that the mistake was intrinsic rather than extrinsic and denied relief. The plaintiff appealed from the judgment.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. Noting that fraud or mistake is extrinsic when it deprives the unsuccessful party of an opportunity to present his or her case to the court, the court observed that in the instant case the plaintiffs were given the opportunity to present all of the facts of which they had knowledge and that equity will not grant relief against a judgment at law when such judgment was obtained in consequence of the neglect, inattention, mistake, or incompetence of the attorney, unless caused by the opposite party (231 Cal. App. 2d 171, 175) . Moreover, held the court, when an attorney knows the facts but mistakenly concludes that they are of no legal significance and does not present them at the hearing of the matter in question, his or her mistake is intrinsic and not extrinsic (231 Cal. App. 2d 171, 177) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.637

§ 70.637 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress Justifying Relief--Attorney's Neglect

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing the contention that equitable relief should be granted because of extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress (see § 70.630[1]).]

THE AGGRIEVED PARTY IS NOT ENTITLED TO RELIEF IN EQUITY SETTING ASIDE THE PRIOR _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE THE BASIS FOR THE AGGRIEVED PARTY'S APPLICATION FOR RELIEF IS THE INEXCUSABLE NEGLECT OF HIS/HER LAWYER, AND EQUITY ORDINARILY WILL NOT SET ASIDE A FINAL JUDGMENT IN SUCH A CASE.

Attorney's Neglect. Ordinarily, equity will not set aside a final judgment if it resulted from the inexcusable neglect of the aggrieved party's lawyer (Tuck v. Tuck (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 743, 745-746, 70 Cal. Rptr. 822).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior default judgment obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake, fraud or duress. The ground for opposition is equity ordinarily will not grant relief based on inexcusable neglect by the aggrieved party's attorney [Tuck v. Tuck (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 743, 745-746, 70 Cal. Rptr. 822] .

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contentions supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.550 -70.623.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing the contention that equitable relief should be granted because of extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress [see § 70.630[1]]. They may, in addition, be used in a trial or appellate brief.

These points and authorities may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.650- 700].

See also §§ 70.480[2] and 70.490[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.490[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney's Neglect

Tuck v. Tuck (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 743, 70 Cal. Rptr. 822 , involved an action in equity to set aside a prior final judgment dissolving a partnership and ordering an accounting. The plaintiff in this action contended that the neglect of the attorney who represented him in the prior action on the merits deprived him of a new trial, of corrected findings and a modified judgment as ordered by the trial court, and of his right to appeal. The defendant filed a demurrer, which the trial court sustained without leave to amend and dismissed the action.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment of dismissal. The court of appeal noted that the cases in which equity has intervened to set aside a final judgment are cases in which the principal ground was that there was no fair adversary trial at law. No cases were cited and none had been found, said the court, setting aside a final judgment entered after a fully contested adversary hearing merely because an attorney's neglect deprived the aggrieved party of a new trial or his right to appeal (264 Cal. App. 2d 743, 745) . Ordinarily, the court stated, equity will not set aside a final judgment, even when there has been no adversary hearing, if it resulted from the inexcusable neglect of the aggrieved party or his lawyer, and the principle that an attorney's neglect is usually not grounds for equitable relief from a judgment applies rigidly to a matter heard on the merits (264 Cal. App. 2d 743, 746) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.638

§ 70.638 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress Justifying Relief--Mutual Mistake

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing the contention that equitable relief should be granted because of extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress (see § 70.630[1]).]

THE AGGRIEVED PARTY IS NOT ENTITLED TO RELIEF IN EQUITY SETTING ASIDE THE PRIOR _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE THE BASIS FOR THE AGGRIEVED PARTY'S APPLICATION FOR RELIEF IS MUTUAL MISTAKE, WHICH IS NOT SUFFICIENT TO SET ASIDE A FINAL JUDGMENT.

Mutual Mistake. A mutual mistake that might be sufficient to set aside a contract is not sufficient to set aside a final judgment (Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 472, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior default judgment obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake, fraud or duress. The ground for opposition is equity ordinarily will not grant relief from a final judgment based on mutual mistake [Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 472, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17] .

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contentions supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.550 -70.623.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing the contention that equitable relief should be granted because of extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress [see § 70.630[1]]. They may, in addition, be used in a trial or appellate brief.

These points and authorities may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.650- 700].

See also §§ 70.480[2] and 70.490[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.490[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mutual Mistake

The facts and procedural background of Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17 , are discussed in § 70.630[3]. In Kulchar, the Supreme Court ruled that mutual mistake (as to the taxability of certain foreign assets in this case) that might be sufficient to set aside a contract is not sufficient to set aside a final judgment. Quoting the Restatement of Judgments § 126 comment a, the Court stated that the principles of res judicata demand that the parties present their entire case in one proceeding. Public policy requires that pressure be brought on litigants to use great care in preparing cases for trial and in ascertaining all the facts. A rule which would permit the reopening of cases previously decided because of error or ignorance during the progress of the trial would in a large measure vitiate the effects of the rules of res judicata (1 Cal. 3d 467, 472) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.639-70.649

[Reserved]

§§ 70.639[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.650

§ 70.650 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That There Is Insufficient Showing of Meritorious Defense

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a general memorandum opposing a motion in equity (see, e.g., § 70.490[1]), a memorandum supporting a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.500 -70.503), a memorandum supporting a defendant's motion for summary judgment in an independent suit in equity (see, e.g., §§ 70.510, 70.511), or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE AGGRIEVED PARTY IS NOT ENTITLED TO RELIEF IN EQUITY TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE HE/SHE IS UNABLE TO DEMONSTRATE THAT HE/SHE HAS A MERITORIOUS _____ [CLAIM or DEFENSE].

A. Ability to Present Meritorious Claim or Defense. Equity will not interfere with a judgment which is unjust unless it appears that the one whose interests were thus infringed can present a meritorious case (Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 578, 122 P.2d 564).

B. Demonstration of Meritorious Claim or Defense Required. Courts are not required to set aside judgments for parties who flagrantly ignore the responsibility to present a claim or defense. The party seeking relief from a default is required to present evidence of a meritorious case (see Stiles v. Wallis (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 1143, 1148, 195 Cal. Rptr. 377).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior default judgment obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake, fraud or duress. The ground for opposition is that the aggrieved party has not sufficiently shown that he or she can present a meritorious claim or defense.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the contentions supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.620 -70.623.

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum, depending on the procedural context in which the contention is to be raised. It may, for example, be combined with a general form of points and authorities opposing a motion in equity [see, e.g., § 70.490[1]]. They may also be combined, for example, with a memorandum supporting a defendant's attempt to dispose of an independent suit in equity through a pretrial proceeding such as a general demurrer to the complaint [see, e.g., §§ 70.500 -70.503], or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., §§ 70.510, 70.511]. They may, in addition, be used in a trial or appellate brief.

These points and authorities may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.630- 70.668, 70.660-70.670].

See also §§ 70.480[2] and 70.490[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief. See particularly § 70.480[2][d][ii].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, if the aggrieved party is seeking relief by way of motion to set aside a default judgment on the basis of extrinsic mistake, but has submitted no evidence that the aggrieved party has a meritorious defense to the underlying action, counsel would refer to that absence in his or her argument.

See also § 70.490[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Ability to Present Meritorious Claim or Defense

The facts and procedural background of Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 122 P.2d 564 , are discussed in § 70.480[3] [see also discussion in § 70.520[3]]. In Olivera, the Supreme Court reversed judgment for the defendant in an action to set aside a judgment after the sustaining of a demurrer to a third amended complaint without leave to amend. The plaintiff brought this action to set aside a judgment reforming a joint tenancy deed. The plaintiff alleged that in the former action, the defendant, who was the plaintiff there, knew that the defendant in that action was incompetent prior to commencement thereof and throughout its prosecution but failed to secure the appointment of a guardian or to inform the court of her condition. Holding that such action constituted extrinsic fraud, the Court ruled that the facts set forth were sufficient to justify the intervention of a court of equity. However, the defendant in this action suggested that the complaint failed to state a cause of action because it did not allege that a different result would have been reached if the interests of the incompetent party had been properly protected. The Court stated the general rule that equity will not interfere with a judgment which is unjust unless it appears that the interests of the one whose interests were thus infringed can present a meritorious case. It continued, however, that the requirement for the allegation of a meritorious case does not require an absolute guarantee of victory. It is enough if the complaint presents facts from which it can be ascertained that the plaintiff has a sufficiently meritorious claim to entitle him to a trial of the issue at a proper adversary proceeding. The complaint alleged that but for the conduct of the defendant, the court in the former action would have considered the testimony of additional witnesses concerning the intention of the party who executed the joint tenancy deed and would have reached a different conclusion. This, said the Court, was a sufficient allegation under the rule stated. Accordingly, it concluded, that the complaint stated a cause of action for relief in equity and that the general demurrer should have been overruled (19 Cal. 2d 570, 578-579) .

[b] Demonstration of Meritorious Claim or Defense Required

The facts and procedural background of Stiles v. Wallis (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 1143, 195 Cal. Rptr. 377), are discussed in § 70.490[3]. In Stiles, the court of appeal stated that although the policy of the law is to favor a hearing on the merits of a case, courts are not required to set aside default judgments for defendants who flagrantly ignore the responsibility to present a defense. The court noted that the respondent provided evidence of a meritorious case by filing with his motion to set aside the default a proposed verified answer denying the material allegations of the first amended complaint. It has long been established, stated the court, that merely attaching a verification to a proposed answer is sufficient to demonstrate meritoriousness (147 Cal. App. 3d 1143, 1148) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Ability to Present Meritorious Claim or Defense

The facts and procedural background of Hallett v. Slaughter (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 552, 140 P.2d 3 , are discussed in § 70.560[2]. In Hallett, the Supreme Court affirmed a superior court's judgment setting aside a default judgment taken against the plaintiff in a municipal court. The superior court had held that the plaintiff had sufficiently shown a meritorious defense. The complaint alleged that (1) a major portion of the bill for medical services sued on in the original action was for services to her son at a time when he was a minor, rather than to herself; (2) for such services her obligation to the plaintiff was as guardian of the estate of her son, rather than individually; (3) the statute of limitations barred the debt; (4) the plaintiff doctor in that action had released and discharged her from all liability prior to bringing suit; (5) any obligation she had to the doctor had been discharged in bankruptcy; and (6) neither she nor her son had been under the doctor's care during certain months covered by the bill. The Supreme Court noted that the requirement that the complaint allege a meritorious case does not require an absolute guarantee of victory and stated that the plaintiff need only show with reasonable certainty that she would emerge in a more favorable position (22 Cal. 2d 552, 558) .

In Page v. Insurance Co. of N. America (1969) 3 Cal. App. 3d 121, 83 Cal. Rptr. 44 , the court of appeal ruled that a valid judgment will not be set aside merely because it was obtained by fraud or mistake in order to give the barren right to an adversary hearing. The plaintiff must plead and prove that he has a meritorious case, that is, a good claim or defense which, asserted in a new trial, would be likely to result in a judgment favorable to him. The court added that equitable relief from a judgment will be granted only when, and to the extent that, the judgment has deprived the complainant of something to which he is equitably entitled (3 Cal. App. 3d 121, 130) . In the final analysis of the newly discovered evidence the plaintiff sought to adduce at any new trial following vacation of the prior judgment of dismissal, the court concluded, nothing would be added to the plaintiff's claim (3 Cal. App. 3d 121, 131) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.651-70.659

[Reserved]

§§ 70.651[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.660

§ 70.660 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That Negligence or Fault of Party Seeking Relief Precludes Relief--Generally

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a general memorandum opposing a motion in equity (see, e.g., § 70.490[1]), a memorandum supporting a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.500 -70.503), a memorandum supporting a defendant's motion for summary judgment in an independent suit in equity (see, e.g., §§ 70.510, 70.511), or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE AGGRIEVED PARTY IS NOT ENTITLED TO RELIEF IN EQUITY BECAUSE HE/SHE IS UNABLE TO DEMONSTRATE THAT HE/SHE WAS FREE FROM NEGLIGENCE OR OTHER FAULT CONTRIBUTING TO THE RENDITION OF _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] AGAINST HIM/HER.

A. Fault on Part of Complaining Party. Equity will interfere to grant equitable relief from a prior judgment only when there has been no negligence or other fault on the part of the party seeking relief or his/her agents (Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 575, 122 P.2d 564).

[EITHER, if used in opposition to motion in equity]

B. Requirement of Diligence in Seeking Relief. One moving in equity to set aside a [default] judgment must act diligently in making his/her motion after learning of the judgment (Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 856-857, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700).

[OR, if used in opposing independent suit in equity]

B. Pleading Diligence in Seeking Relief After Discovery. As an indispensable condition of equitable relief from a judgment, a plaintiff is required to allege and prove diligence in seeking relief after discovery of the facts (Page v. Insurance Co. of N. America (1969) 3 Cal. App. 3d 121, 128-129, 83 Cal. Rptr. 44 ; Turner v. Allen (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 753, 759, 11 Cal. Rptr. 630).

[This form may be combined with particular points and authorities opposing a contention that equitable relief should be granted because of fault on the part of the aggrieved party (see, e.g., §§ 70.661, 70.662)].

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior default judgment obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake, fraud or duress. The ground for opposition is that the aggrieved party's own negligence contributed to the judgment or order form which relief is sought, thus precluding a grant of equitable relief.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the contentions supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.550 -70.623. See, in particular, § 70.610[1].

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum, depending on the procedural context in which the contention is to be raised. It may, for example, be combined with a general form of points and authorities opposing a motion in equity [see, e.g., § 70.490[1]]. This form may be combined with particular points and authorities opposing a contention that equitable relief should be granted because of fault on the part of the aggrieved party [see, e.g., §§ 70.661, 70.662]. They may also be combined, for example, with a memorandum supporting a defendant's attempt to dispose of an independent suit in equity through a pretrial proceeding such as a general demurrer to the complaint [see, e.g., §§ 70.500 -70.503], or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., §§ 70.510, 70.511]. They may, in addition, be used in a trial or appellate brief.

These points and authorities may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.630 -70.650, 70.670].

See also §§ 70.480[2] and 70.490[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should identify facts indicating that the party seeking relief did not exercise due care.

See also § 70.490[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Fault on Part of Complaining Party

The facts and procedural background of Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 122 P.2d 564 , are discussed in § 70.480[3] [see also discussion in § 70.520[3]]. In Olivera, the Supreme Court ruled that equity will interfere to grant equitable relief from a prior judgment on the suit of one against whom a legal judgment had been obtained through extrinsic fraud or mistake when there has been no negligence, laches, or other fault on his or her part or on the part of his or her agents (19 Cal. 2d 570, 575) .

[b] Requirement of Diligence in Seeking Relief

The facts and procedural background of Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 , are discussed in § 70.480[3]. In Weitz, the Supreme Court affirmed a trial court's order setting aside a default judgment on the motion of the defendant, holding that the defendant had exercised diligence in seeking such relief. The plaintiff sued the defendant for property damage and personal injury in an automobile accident. The defendant mailed the summons and complaint to his insurer's office but they were not received. Only when the defendant received word that his driver's license would be revoked did the insurer become aware of the suit and the default, whereupon it moved to have the judgment set aside. After determining that the defendant had acted reasonably in assuming that his insurer would defend and that the trial court had not abused its discretion in holding the defendant's failure to answer on time was due to an excusable extrinsic mistake, the Court added that it remained to be determined whether or not the defendant was barred from relief due to delay in moving to set aside the judgment. The Court held that one moving in equity to set aside a default judgment must act diligently in making his or her motion after he or she learns of the default judgment. It observed that this requirement is sometimes put in terms of laches but that this is not the appropriate doctrine because laches requires a finding of prejudice caused by the delay (63 Cal. 2d 849, 856-857) .

[c] Pleading Diligence in Seeking Relief After Discovery

Page v. Insurance Co. of N. America (1969) 3 Cal. App. 3d 121, 83 Cal. Rptr. 44 , involved a trial court's order issued pursuant to a petition for a writ of error coram nobis vacating a prior judgment. In the prior cause of action, grounded on uninsured motorist liability, the plaintiff's allegations were that the defendant's vehicle had collided with his vehicle when an unidentified vehicle had crossed the center line of the roadway, but it omitted any allegation that vehicle had come into contact with either the plaintiff's or the defendant's vehicle. The complaint was dismissed following the sustaining of a general demurrer. Approximately six months after the judgment of dismissal was affirmed on appeal, the plaintiff for the first time deposed the defendant and obtained new evidence. The plaintiff applied to recall the remittitur filed in the court of appeal and petitioned for a writ of coram nobis in the trial court. The application to court of appeal was denied, but the petition to the trial court was granted. The trial court vacated the judgment and permitted the plaintiff to file and a second amended complaint. The defendant appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the trial court's order. The court of appeal noted that the plaintiff's attorney had known that the insurer's defense was based on the lack of physical contact with the unidentified vehicle, and that the defendant was the only eyewitness other than the plaintiff. The court held that the plaintiff's failure to obtain defendant's evidence during the extended pleading stage of the case was inexcusable neglect. The court ruled that an indispensable condition of equitable relief from a judgment is the plaintiff's freedom from negligence or other fault contributing to the rendition of the judgment against him or her. He or she must allege and prove a satisfactory excuse for not having discovered the facts prior to the entry of the judgment. In addition, said the court, he or she must plead and prove diligence in seeking relief after discovery of the facts (3 Cal. App. 3d 121, 128-129 . The court further observed that because of the policy of the law that final judgments ought not to be set aside lightly on unsubstantial grounds, the claim of newly discovered evidence has not been looked on with favor and that a strong showing of the essential requirements has been demanded (3 Cal. App. 3d 121, 129) .

The facts and procedural background of Turner v. Allen (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 753, 11 Cal. Rptr. 630 , are discussed in § 70.620[4]. In Turner, the court of appeal stated that the plaintiff was required to plead and prove that a good defense existed to the original claim which would be likely to result in a favorable judgment if asserted in a new trial, that he had a satisfactory excuse for not having made such defense in the earlier proceeding, that he diligently sought relief after discovery of the facts, and that his conduct in no way prejudiced the other party (189 Cal. App. 2d 753, 758-759) . Citing Hallett v. Slaughter (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 552, 140 P.2d 3 , the court added that if the aggrieved party makes a strong showing of diligence in seeking relief after discovery of the facts, and the judgment creditor is unable to show prejudice from the delay, the original negligence in allowing the default to be taken will be excused on a weak showing (189 Cal. App. 2d 753, 759) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.661

§ 70.661 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That Negligence or Fault of Party Seeking Relief Precludes Relief--Complaining Party Contributed to Fraud or Mistake

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing the contention that equitable relief should be granted because of extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress, because fault of aggrieved party precludes (see § 70.660[1]).]

THE AGGRIEVED PARTY IS NOT ENTITLED TO RELIEF IN EQUITY BECAUSE HE/SHE CONTRIBUTED TO THE ALLEGED _____ [FRAUD or MISTAKE] GIVING RISE TO THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER] AGAINST HIM/HER.

Complaining Party Contributed to Fraud or Mistake. Relief from a judgment will be denied when the complaining party has contributed to the fraud or mistake giving rise to the judgment thus obtained (Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 473, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17 ; Hammell v. Britton (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 72, 80, 119 P.2d 333).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior default judgment obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake, fraud or duress. The ground for opposition is that the aggrieved party contributed to the fraud or mistake that gave rise to the judgment obtained against him or her [Hammell v. Britton (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 72, 80, 119 P.2d 333 ; Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 473, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17] .

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the contentions supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.550 -70.623. See, in particular, § 70.610[1].

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing the contention that equitable relief should be granted because of extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress, because fault of aggrieved party precludes [see § 70.660[1]].

See also §§ 70.480[2] and 70.490[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.490[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Complaining Party Contributed to Fraud or Mistake

The facts and procedural background of Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17 , are discussed in § 70.630[3]. In Kulchar, the Supreme Court noted that both parties knew of the foreign assets at issue prior to the divorce. The defendant testified that he knew the plaintiff was receiving income from those assets, listed the wife's interest therein as her separate property in his divorce questionnaire, and offered to transfer to the plaintiff any interest he might have therein. The plaintiff also knew of the holdings but did not know of their value or tax consequences but stated to the defendant's attorney that another law firm had advised her that the income therefrom was not taxable. The defendant's attorney knew that the foreign holdings were sizable. The case, therefore, did not involve the failure of one spouse to disclose fully the assets to be divided on separation but, rather, one in which the husband and his attorney chose not to investigate the taxability of the foreign assets; yet the property settlement agreement expressly covered unknown tax liability. Having had full opportunity to consider all income of the wife and its concurrent tax consequences, the husband could not later complain of the added tax burden pursuant to the property settlement agreement. Relief is denied when the complaining party has contributed to the fraud or mistake giving rise to the judgment thus obtained, and, if the complainant was guilty of negligence in permitting the fraud to be practiced or the mistake to occur, equity will deny relief (1 Cal. 3d 467, 473) .

The facts and procedural background of Hammell v. Britton (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 72, 119 P.2d 333 , are discussed in § 70.500[3]. In Hammell, the Supreme Court pointed out that under proper circumstances an action will lie for equitable relief from a judgment but that a party is not entitled to that relief on grounds which would have been a defense to the original action in the absence of a showing of some appropriate equitable excuse for not having made the defense or of not having succeeded if made (19 Cal. 2d 72, 80) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.662

§ 70.662 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That Negligence or Fault of Party Seeking Relief Precludes Relief--Complaining Party Guilty of Negligence

[1] FORM

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing the contention that equitable relief should be granted because of extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress, because fault of aggrieved party precludes (see § 70.660[1]).]

THE AGGRIEVED PARTY IS NOT ENTITLED TO RELIEF IN EQUITY BECAUSE HE/SHE IS GUILTY OF NEGLIGENCE IN PERMITTING THE ALLEGED _____ [FRAUD TO BE PRACTICED or MISTAKE TO OCCUR].

Complaining Party Guilty of Negligence. If the complaining party was guilty of negligence in permitting the fraud to be practiced or the mistake to occur, equity will deny relief from the judgment thus obtained (Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 575, 122 P.2d 564 ; Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 473, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior default judgment obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake, fraud or duress. The ground for opposition is that the aggrieved party contributed to the fraud or mistake that gave rise to the judgment obtained against him or her by his or her own negligence [Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 473, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17] .

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the contentions supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.550 -70.623. See, in particular, § 70.610[1].

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing the contention that equitable relief should be granted because of extrinsic fraud, mistake, or duress, because fault of aggrieved party precludes [see § 70.660[1]].

See also §§ 70.480[2] and 70.490[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. See also § 70.490[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Complaining Party Guilty of Negligence

The facts and procedural background of Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 122 P.2d 564 , are discussed in § 70.480[3] [see also discussion in § 70.520[3]]. In Olivera, the Supreme Court pointed out that when the prior judgment was obtained or entered through fraud or mistake or when the defendant in the action, having a valid legal defense on the merits, was prevented from maintaining it by fraud or mistake and there had been no negligence, laches, or other fault on his or her part or on the part of his or her agents, then a court of equity will interfere (19 Cal. 2d 570, 575) .

The facts and procedural background of Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17 , are discussed in § 70.630[3]. In Kulchar, the Supreme Court stated that if the complainant was guilty of negligence in permitting the fraud to be practiced or the mistake to occur, equity will deny relief (1 Cal. 3d 467, 473) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Complaining Party Guilty of Negligence

In Wilson v. Wilson (1942) 55 Cal. App. 2d 421, 130 P.2d 782 , the court of appeal affirmed a judgment of nonsuit in an action to set aside an interlocutory decree of divorce, holding that the plaintiff was either guilty of negligence or chargeable with the negligence of her attorney in connection with the prior adverse decree. The plaintiff contended that her absence from the trial and her failure to secure the presence of counsel was caused by her unavoidable illness. The court of appeal noted that equity will not grant relief from a prior judgment unless the complainant was without fault. If the complainant was guilty of negligence in permitting the fraud to be practiced or the mistake to occur, equity will deny relief (55 Cal. App. 2d 421, 427) . The nonsuit was proper, said the court, in view of the facts that the plaintiff had more than two months to secure replacement counsel when her original attorney withdrew from the case, particularly since the latter had told her it would be difficult to obtain any further continuance of the matter and that the plaintiff made no real effort to secure counsel until two days before the trial (55 Cal. App. 2d 421, 429) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities §§ 70.663-70.669

[Reserved]

§§ 70.663[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7 Chapters 70 DEFAULTS
CHAPTER 70 DEFAULTS, DEFAULT JUDGMENTS, AND RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Equitable Relief From Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Based on Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress
3. Grounds for Granting or Denying Equitable Relief

7-70 California Points & Authorities § 70.670

§ 70.670 Opposing Contention That Equitable Relief Should Be Granted to Vacate and Set Aside Default and Default Judgment or Other Judgment or Order Obtained Through Extrinsic Fraud, Mistake, or Duress on Ground That Court Should Exercise Discretion to Deny Equitable Relief Under Particular Circumstances of Case

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a general memorandum opposing a motion in equity (see, e.g., § 70.490[1]), a memorandum supporting a demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief (see, e.g., §§ 70.500 -70.503), a memorandum supporting a defendant's motion for summary judgment in an independent suit in equity (see, e.g., §§ 70.510, 70.511), or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD EXERCISE ITS DISCRETION TO DENY RELIEF IN THIS CASE BECAUSE IT WOULD BE UNJUST AND UNFAIR TO SET ASIDE THE _____ [DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT or JUDGMENT or ORDER].

A. Court Has Discretion to Deny Relief. Relief from a [default] judgment is addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court, and, in the absence of a clear showing of abuse of discretion when the trial court grants relief, an appellate court will not disturb the order (Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 854, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 (motion in equity)).

B. Discretion to Be Exercised With View Toward Accomplishment of Justice. The discretion of a court in deciding whether to set aside a judgment or order should be exercised with a view to seeing that justice is done (Sanford v. Smith (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 991, 998, 90 Cal. Rptr. 256).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the party is entitled to equitable relief from a prior default judgment obtained by reason of extrinsic mistake, fraud or duress. The ground for opposition is that the circumstances are such that the more just result would be for the court to exercise its discretion to deny relief [see Gudarov v. Hadjieff (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 412, 418, 240 P.2d 621 (the fact that a motion for relief from default is addressed to the discretion of the trial court "is a rule as familiar as any to be found in the books")].

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the contentions supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 70.550 -70.623.

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum, depending on the procedural context in which the contention is to be raised. It may, for example, be combined with a general form of points and authorities opposing a motion in equity [see, e.g., § 70.490[1]]. This form may be combined with particular points and authorities opposing a contention that equitable relief should be granted because of fault on the part of the aggrieved party [see, e.g., §§ 70.661, 70.662]. They may also be combined, for example, with a memorandum supporting a defendant's attempt to dispose of an independent suit in equity through a pretrial proceeding such as a general demurrer to the complaint [see, e.g., §§ 70.500 -70.503], or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., §§ 70.510, 70.511]. They may, in addition, be used in a trial or appellate brief.

This form may also be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities opposing a grant of equitable relief on other particular grounds [see, e.g., §§ 70.630 -70.662].

See also §§ 70.480[2] and 70.490[2] for additional general considerations relating to equitable relief, and alternative methods for obtaining relief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should identify facts that show that a setting aside of the judgment would be unfair and unjust.

See also § 70.490[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court Has Discretion to Deny Relief

The facts and procedural background of Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 , are discussed in § 70.480[3]. In Weitz, the Supreme Court affirmed the order of the trial court setting aside a default judgment. However, the Court stated the general rule that a motion to set aside a default judgment is addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court, and, in the absence of a clear showing of abuse of discretion when the trial court grants the motion, the appellate court will not disturb the order (63 Cal. 2d 849, 854) .

[b] Discretion to Be Exercised With View Toward Accomplishment of Justice

In Sanford v. Smith (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 991, 90 Cal. Rptr. 256 , the court of appeal reversed a superior court order denying defendants' motion to set aside their default and the judgment entered thereon. There, defendants' motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 was based on their assertion that service by publication was improper in that they had been available for personal service and the order permitting publication had been based on declarations containing hearsay allegations contrary to the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 412. The court first stated the general rule regarding the court's discretion in granting or denying equitable relief, and went on to note that the trial court should exercise its discretion to see that justice is done, "particularly when prompt application for relief is made" (11 Cal. App. 3d 991, 998) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS

7A-71 California Points & Authorities 71.syn

§ 71.syn Synopsis to Chapter 71: DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS

§ 71.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 71.02 Governing Statutes

§ 71.03 Raising Objection to Complaint, Cross Complaint, or Answer by Demurrer

[1] When Ground for Objection Appears on Face of Pleading

[2] When Ground for Objection Appears From Judicially Noticed Matter

[3] Demurrer to All or Part of Pleading

§ 71.04 Grounds for Objection

[1] To Complaint or Cross Complaint

[a] In General

[b] Lapse of Statute of Limitations

[2] To Answer

§ 71.05 "General" and "Special" Demurrers Distinguished

§ 71.06 Waiver of Objection to Complaint or Cross Complaint

§ 71.07 Attacking Defects in Pleadings

§ 71.08 How to Use the Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Memoranda

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

§ 71.09 Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

§ 71.10 Related Memoranda

§§ 71.11-71.19 [Reserved]

§ 71.20 Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Nonwaiver of Objection

[c] Allegations Stated as Conclusions of Law

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[e] Related Memoranda

[f] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Allegations Stated as Conclusions of Law

[b] Conjectured Facts Not Stated

[c] Sustain Demurrer Without Leave to Amend

[d] Complaint Affirmatively Alleges Affirmative Defense

[e] Allegations of Complaint on Their Face Are Barred by Compulsory Cross-Complaint Statute

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Allegations Stated as Conclusions of Law

[b] Conjectured Facts Not Stated

[c] Sustain Demurrer Without Leave to Amend

[d] Complaint Affirmatively Alleges Affirmative Defense

§ 71.21 Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Insufficiency Established by Judicially Noticed Matter [Evid. Code § 452]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Mandatory Judicial Notice

[c] Request for Permissive Judicial Notice

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Ground for Objection Appears From Matter of Which Court May Take Judicial Notice

[b] City and County Ordinances

[c] Acts of State Administrative Agencies

[d] Court Records

[e] Facts and Propositions Not Reasonably Subject to Dispute

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Ground for Objection Appears From Matter of Which Court May Take Judicial Notice

[b] Acts of State Administrative Agencies

[c] Court Records

§ 71.22 Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Lacks Standing to Maintain Action

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Amendment to Substitute Parties

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Prosecution by Real Party in Interest

[b] Action Stated Not in Plaintiff

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Action Stated Not in Plaintiff

§ 71.23 Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Action Is Premature

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Prematurity Must Exist at Time Issue Determined

[c] Waiver of Ground of Objection

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Premature Complaint Fails to State Cause of Action

[b] Another Matter to Be Resolved

[c] Action on Note Before Maturity

[d] Action on Accelerated Contract Balance Prior to Occurrence of Condition Precedent

[e] Action Against Buyer Before Expiration of Credit Period

[f] Action on Debt Superseded by Nonmatured Promissory Note

[g] Action Against Personal Representative of Decedent Prior to Presentation of Claim

§ 71.24 Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Action Barred by Prior Judgment (Res Judicata)

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Sameness of Parties

[c] Sameness of Actions

[d] Sameness of Issues

[e] Matters Concluded by Former Judgment

[f] Issues That Might Have Been Raised

[g] Voluntary Dismissal With Prejudice

[h] Collateral Estoppel Distinguished

[i] Related Points and Authorities

[j] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Conclusiveness of Judgment

[b] Effect of Prior Judgment

[c] Showing That Action Is Barred

[d] Judicial Notice of Prior Action

[e] Sameness of Actions

[f] Sameness of Issues

[g] Matters Concluded by Former Judgment

[h] Issues That Might Have Been Raised

[i] Voluntary Dismissal With Prejudice

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Effect of Prior Judgment

[b] Showing That Action Is Barred

[c] Sameness of Actions

[d] Issues That Might Have Been Raised

[e] Judicial Notice of Prior Action

[f] Sameness of Actions

[g] Issues That Might Have Been Raised

§ 71.25 Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Operative Allegations Contradicted by Written Instrument Attached to Complaint

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attached Exhibit Subject to Court Examination on Demurrer

[b] Pleader's Allegations of Exhibit's Legal Effect Treated as Surplusage

[c] Sustention of Demurrer

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Attached Exhibit Subject to Court Examination on Demurrer

[b] Sustention of Demurrer

§ 71.26 Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Amended Complaint Is Inconsistent With Prior Complaint

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Purpose of Rule

[c] Judicial Notice

[d] Verification of Original Complaint

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Allegations Inconsistent With Prior Pleading Not Assumed True

[b] Examination of Prior Complaint Permitted

[c] Inconsistent or Omitted Allegations Read Into Amended Complaint

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Allegations Inconsistent With Prior Pleading Not Assumed True

[b] Examination of Prior Complaint Permitted

[c] Inconsistent or Omitted Allegations Read Into Amended Complaint

§ 71.27 Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Equitable Action Barred by Laches

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action Barred by Laches

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Action Barred by Laches

§ 71.28 Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Insufficiency Established by Judicial Admission

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Insufficiency Established by Judicial Admission

§ 71.29 Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Judicial Restraint Requires Lack of Intervention

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judicial Restraint Is Compelled in Areas of General Public Policy

§ 71.29A Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Previous Demurrer to Same Cause of Action Was Sustained

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Previous Demurrer to Same Cause of Action Was Sustained

§ 71.30 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Complaint States Cause of Action

[b] Demurrer Limited to Face of Pleading and Judicially Noticed Matter

[c] At Least One Count or Cause of Action Not Subject to Objection Raised

[d] Rule of Liberal Construction

[e] Cause of Action Alleged Despite Mistaken Labels and Confusion of Legal Theory

[f] Cause of Action Alleged Despite Legal Conclusions

[g] Cause of Action Alleged Despite Unclear Facts

[h] Cause of Action Alleged Despite Irrelevant Facts

[i] Cause of Action Alleged Despite Demand for Wrong Relief

[j] Implied or Inferred Facts Deemed True

[k] Disregard of Nonprejudicial Defect

[l] Cause of Action Not Necessarily Barred By Affirmative Defense

[m] Demurrer Inappropriate to Determine Truth of Disputed Facts

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Complaint States Cause of Action

[b] Demurrer Limited to Face of Pleading and Judicially Noticed Matter

[c] At Least One Count or Cause of Action Not Subject to Objection Raised

[d] Rule of Liberal Construction

[e] Cause of Action Alleged Despite Mistaken Labels and Confusing Legal Theory

[f] Cause of Action Alleged Despite Legal Conclusions

[g] Cause of Action Alleged Despite Unclear Facts

[h] Cause of Action Alleged Despite Demand for Wrong Relief

[i] Implied or Inferred Facts Deemed True

[j] Disregard of Nonprejudicial Defect

§ 71.31 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Insufficiency Not Established by Judicially Noticed Matter [Evid. Code § 452]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Taking of Judicial Notice Does Not Require Acceptance of Truth of Related Factual Matters

[b] Judicially Noticed Matter Not Dispositive of Demurrer When Factual Dispute Exists

[c] Matter Requested to be Judicially Noticed Not Supported by Sufficient Information

§ 71.32 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Complaint Rendered Sufficient by Judicially Noticed Facts [Evid. Code § 452]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Complaint Sufficient by Inclusion of Judicially Noticed Matter

§ 71.33 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Is Authorized by Statute to Sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 369]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Person Authorized by Statute May Sue

[b] Taxpayer's Action

§ 71.34 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Action Is No Longer Premature

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Premature Filing

[c] Continuance

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Prematurity of Action as Plea in Abatement

[b] Ground No Longer Exists

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Prematurity of Action as Plea in Abatement

[b] Ground No longer Exists

§ 71.35 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Action Not Barred by Res Judicata if Federal Court in Prior Action Declined to Exercise Pendent Jurisdiction Over State Claim

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Nonexercise of Pendent Jurisdiction

§ 71.36 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--General Demurrer Does Not Raise Objections Constituting Grounds of Special Demurrer

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] General Demurrer Does Not Raise Objections Made Grounds of Special Demurrer

§ 71.37 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Inconsistent Counts Not Incorporating Each Other's Inconsistent Allegations Do Not Render Complaint Defective

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Rules With Respect to Other Inconsistencies

[c] Effect of Verification of Complaint

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inconsistent or Alternative Counts May Be Pled

[b] Inconsistent Allegations in Separate Counts Are Not Subject to General Demurrer

§ 71.38 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Action Is Not Founded on Attached Exhibit

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action Not Founded on Attached Document

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Action Not Founded on Attached Document

§ 71.39 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--General Damages Are Sufficiently Alleged

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] General Damages Sufficiently Alleged

§ 71.40 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff May Omit Facts Pled in Prior Pleading to Correct Mistakes

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Omission of Facts in Amended Pleading Permitted to Correct Mistakes

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Omission of Facts in Amended Pleading Permitted to Correct Mistakes

§ 71.41 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Fact That Prior Pleadings May Have Contained True, but Irrelevant, Matters Does Not Render Proposed Amended Complaint a Sham

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Sham Pleading Rule Is Inapplicable When There Are No Inconsistencies in the Underlying Material or Factual Allegations

§ 71.42 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Delay Alone Does Not Establish Laches

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Points and authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Delay Without Acquiescence or Prejudice

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Delay Without Acquiescence or Prejudice

§ 71.43 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Demurrer Supplies Missing Allegation

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Missing Allegation Supplied by Demurrer

§ 71.44 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Prior Demurrer to Same Cause of Action Overruled

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Previous Demurrer to Same Cause of Action Was Overruled

§§ 71.45-71.59 [Reserved]

§ 71.60 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Court Lacks Jurisdiction of Subject of Cause of Action Alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(a)]--Jurisdiction of Action Is in Probate Court

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Nature of Probate Jurisdiction

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Jurisdiction Over Property of Decedent's Estate and Those Claiming Under It Rests Exclusively in Probate Court

§ 71.61 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Court Lacks Jurisdiction of Subject of Cause of Action Alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(a)]--Jurisdiction of Action Exclusively in Federal Court

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Federal Preemption

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Lack of Jurisdiction Over Subject Matter Based on Preemption by Federal Law Is Ground for Demurrer

[b] Exclusive Federal Jurisdiction

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Exclusive Federal Jurisdiction

§ 71.62 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Does Not Have Legal Capacity to Sue [The Moses Taylor v. Wilson Hammons (1867) 4 Wall. 411, 429, 18 L. Ed. 2d 397 4 Wall. 411, 429) McCormick v. TravelerIns. Co. (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 404, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258 42 U.S.C. § 4001 et seq. 86 Cal. App. 4th 404, 409-410) 86 Cal. App. 4th 404, 420) Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 606, 619-621, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 765 Civ. Code § 2948.5 42 U.S.C. § 1461 et seq.de Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)]--Failure to Allege Compliance With Fictitious Business Name Statutes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17918]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Fictitious Business Name

[c] Lack of Capacity and Lack of Standing Distinguished

[d] Objection by Answer

[e] Waiver of Objection

[f] Subsequent Compliance

[g] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[h] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Objection by Demurrer

[b] Maintenance of Action Prohibited

[c] Failure to Allege Compliance

§ 71.63 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Does Not Have Legal Capacity to Sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)]--Guardian or Conservator Suing as Plaintiff for Damages Suffered by Ward or Conservatee

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Guardian or Conservator Lacks Legal Capacity to Sue in Own Name

§ 71.64 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Does Not Have Legal Capacity to Sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)]--Foreign Personal Representative Suing on Behalf of Conservatee, Decedent's Estate, or Ward [Code Civ. Proc. § 1913]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Foreign Personal Representative Lacks Legal Capacity to Sue

§ 71.65 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Another Action Is Pending Between Same Parties on Same Cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(c)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Judicial Notice of Prior Pending Action

[c] Abatement of Action

[d] Interlocutory Judgment on Abatement of action

[e] Review by Extraordinary Writ

[f] Waiver of Objection

[g] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[h] Related Points and Authorities

[i] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Objection by Demurrer

[b] Pending Action Defined

[c] Judicial Notice of Court Records and Request

[d] Sameness of Actions

[e] Test for Determining Sameness of Actions

[f] Rule Against Splitting Cause of Action

[g] Basis of Rule Against Splitting Cause of Action

[h] Right to Have Second Action Abate

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Objection by Demurrer

[b] Pending Action Defined

[c] Sameness of Actions

[d] Test for Determining Sameness of Actions

[e] Rule Against Splitting Cause of Action

[f] Basis of Rule Against Splitting Cause of Action

[g] Right to Have Second Action Abate

§ 71.66 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Defect or Misjoinder of Parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(d)]--Nonjoinder of Party

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Mandatory Joinder

[c] Dismissal of Action

[d] Waiver of Objection

[e] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[f] Related Points and Authorities

[g] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Joinder Required

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Joinder Required

§ 71.67 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Defect or Misjoinder of Parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(d)]--Misjoinder of Party

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] No Charging Allegation

[c] Waiver of Objection

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Objection by Demurrer

[b] Improper Plaintiff

[c] Improper Defendant

[d] No Charging Allegation

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Improper Plaintiff

[b] Improper Defendant

[c] No Charging Allegation

§ 71.68 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Pleading Is Uncertain [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f)]--Material Allegations Left to Surmise

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Waiver of Objection

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Objection by Demurrer

[b] Matters Left to Surmise

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Matters Left to Surmise

§ 71.69 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Pleading Is Uncertain [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f)]--Material Time or Date Omitted

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Specify Time or Date

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to Specify Time or Date

§ 71.70 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Pleading Is Uncertain [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f)]--Meaning of Allegations Ambiguous or Doubtful

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Meaning Doubtful

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Meaning Doubtful

§ 71.71 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Pleading Is Uncertain [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f)]--Allegations Are Unintelligible

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Incoherent Allegations

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Incoherent Allegations

§ 71.72 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Pleading in Action on Contract Does Not Sufficiently Establish Whether Contract Is Written, Oral, or Implied by Conduct [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(g)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Waiver of Objection

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Objection by Demurrer

[b] Sustention of Demurrer

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Sustention of Demurrer

§ 71.73 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Certificate Required in Action Based on Professional Negligence [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 411.35(g), 430.10(h)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Waiver of Objection

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Objection by Demurrer

[b] Judicial Notice of Court Records and Request

§ 71.74 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Has Legal Capacity to Sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)]--Lack of Capacity Not Shown on Face of Complaint

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Statute Requires Plaintiff to Allege Capacity to Sue

[b] Lack of Capacity Does not Appear on Face of Complaint

§ 71.75 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Has Legal Capacity to Sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)]--Plaintiff Is Entity Exempt From Fictitious Business Name Statutes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17911]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Who Must File Statement

[b] Nonprofit Organizations

[c] Real Estate Investment Trust

[d] Capacity to Sue

[e] Capacity of Association to Sue

§ 71.76 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Has Legal Capacity to Sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)]--Plaintiff's Name Is Not Fictitious [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inapplicability of Business and Professions Code Section 17918 to Plaintiff

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Inapplicability of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17918 to Plaintiff

§ 71.77 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Has Legal Capacity to Sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)]--Failure to File and Publish Fictitious Business Name Statement [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17910, 17917] Does Not Bar Tort Action

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Business and Professions Code Section 17918 Does Not Apply to Tort Actions

§ 71.78 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Has Legal Capacity to Sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)]--Plaintiff Is Foreign Business Not Transacting Business in California

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Who Must Comply

§ 71.79 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--No Other Action Is Pending Between Same Parties on Same Cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(c)]--Other Action Is Not Between Same Parties

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Nonfavored Plea

[b] Same Parties and Same Actions Required

[c] Actions Not Between Same Parties

[d] Actions Not on Same Cause

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Nonfavored Plea

[b] Actions Not Between Same Parties

[c] Actions Not on Same Cause

§ 71.80 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--No Other Action Is Pending Between Same Parties on Same Cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(c)]--Prior Action Is No Longer Pending

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Requirement That Other Action Be Pending

[b] Prior Action No Longer Pending

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Prior Action No Longer Pending

§ 71.81 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--No Other Action Is Pending Between Same Parties on Same Cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(c)]--Demurrer Does Not Lie to Abate First Action

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Objection Does Not Lie to Complaint in First Action

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Objection Does Not Lie to Complaint in First Action

§ 71.82 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Defect or Misjoinder of Parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(d)] Not Established--Nonjoined Party Is Jointly and Severally Liable in Tort

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Joinder of Jointly and Severally Liable Tortfeasor Not Required

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Joinder of Jointly and Severally Liable Tortfeasor Not Required

§ 71.83 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Defect or Misjoinder of Parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(d)] Not Established--Joinder Not Feasible [Code Civ. Proc. § 389(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Joinder Not Feasible

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Joinder Not Feasible

§ 71.84 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Defect or Misjoinder of Parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(d)] Not Established--No Misjoinder When Pleading Shows Common Questions of Law or Fact for Relief Arising Out of Same Transaction or Series of Transactions [Code Civ. Proc. § 378]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Permissive Joinder of Parties

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Permissive Joinder of Plaintiffs

[b] Permissive Joinder of Defendants

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Permissive Joinder of Plaintiffs

[b] Joinder in Case of Doubt as to Defendant Liable

§ 71.85 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Defect or Misjoinder of Parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(d)] Not Established--Demurring Defendant Not Misjoined

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Who May Object

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Who May Object

§ 71.86 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Pleading Is Not Uncertain [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Demurrer For Uncertainty Not Dispositive of Cause of Action

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Specify in What Particulars Pleading Is Uncertain

[b] Defendant Apprised of Issues to Be Met

[c] Ambiguous Facts Alleged Presumptively Within Defendant's Knowledge

[d] Challenged Allegations Immaterial

[e] Uncertainty as to Legal Effect of Facts Alleged

[f] Demurrer for Uncertainty Challenges Only Allegations Made

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Defendant Apprised of Issues to Be Met

[b] Ambiguous Facts Alleged Presumptively Within Defendant's Knowledge

[c] Challenged Allegations Immaterial

[d] Uncertainty as to Legal Effect of Facts Alleged

[e] Demurrer for Uncertainty Challenges Only Allegations Made

§ 71.87 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Pleading Does Not Sufficiently Establish Whether Contract Is Written, Oral, or Implied by Conduct [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(g)]--Action Not Founded on Contract

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Objection Lies Only Where Action Is Founded on Contract

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Objection Lies Only When Action Is Founded on Contract

§ 71.88 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Demurrer Construed as Nonmeritorious Because of Absence of Memoranda [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Absence of Memorandum Construed as Admission of Nonmerit and Waiver of Grounds

§§ 71.89-71.99 [Reserved]

§ 71.100 Supporting General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Demurrer to Answer

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Objection by Demurrer

[b] Failure to State Defense

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to State Defense

§ 71.101 Supporting General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--Denial of Immaterial Allegations Only

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Denial of Immaterial Matter Only

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Denial of Immaterial Matter Only

§ 71.102 Supporting General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--On Ground No Defense Is Stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(a)]--Conjunctive Denial of Matters Conjunctively Alleged

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Conjunctive Denial of Matters Conjunctively Alleged

[b] Sustension of Demurrer

§ 71.103 Supporting General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--On Ground No Defense Is Stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(a)]--Affirmative Defense of Setoff Not Applicable [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Setoff as Allowed Only in Action

[b] Unemployment and Disability Benefits Immune From Banker's Setoff

[c] Claims Must Be Mutual

§ 71.104 Supporting Special Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(b), 430.30(a)]--Pleading Is Uncertain

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Waiver of Objection

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Objection by Demurrer

§ 71.105 Opposing General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Answer Raises Material Issue

[b] General Demurrer Admits Facts Well Pleaded

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Answer Raises Material Issue

[b] General Demurrer Admits Facts Well Pleaded

§ 71.106 Opposing General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--General Demurrer Does Not Lie to Challenge Defectively Stated Facts

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Facts Defectively Stated Not Subject to General Demurrer

[b] Answer Sufficient Against General Demurrer Despite Unclear or Irrelevant Facts, or Demand for Wrong Relief

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Facts Defectively Stated Not Subject to General Demurrer

§ 71.107 Opposing General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--Demurrer to Whole Answer on Ground No Defense Is Stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(a)]--Answer Pleads at Least One Valid Defense

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Sufficiency of One Defense

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Sufficiency of One Defense

§ 71.108 Opposing General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--Demurrer on Ground No Defense Is Stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(a)]--Pleading Inconsistent Defenses in Answer Is Permissible

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Separate Consideration of Defenses

[b] Inconsistent Defenses Permitted

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Separate Consideration of Defenses

[b] Inconsistent Defenses Permitted

§ 71.109 Opposing General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--Demurrer on Ground No Defense Is Stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(a)]--Affirmative Defense of Payment Available Although Independent Action on Claim Barred by Statute of Limitations at Time Answer Filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Defense of Payment Available Although Statute of Limitations Bars Independent Claim

[b] Code of Civil Procedure Section 431.70 as Applicable to Unliquidated Cross Demands

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Defense of Payment Available Although Statute of Limitations Bars Independent Claim

§ 71.110 Opposing Special Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(b), 430.30(a)]--Demurrer Fails to Specify Uncertainty

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Demurrer Fails to Specify Uncertainty

§§ 71.111-71.129 [Reserved]

§ 71.130 Supporting Motion by Plaintiff for Judgment on Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(A)]--Complaint States a Cause of Action and Answer Does Not Deny Material Allegation of Complaint and Alleges No Affirmative Defense--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] When Motion Should Be Granted

[b] Evasive Answer Raising No Material Issue

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] When Motion Should Be Granted

[b] Evasive Answer Raising No Material Issue

§ 71.131 Supporting Motion by Plaintiff for Judgment on Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(A)]--Complaint States a Cause of Action and Answer Does Not Deny Material Allegations of Complaint and Alleges No Affirmative Defense--Denial on Information and Belief of Matters Within Defendant's Presumptive Knowledge

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Applicability of Rule to Corporations and Associations

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Denial of Information and Belief of Matters Presumptively Known

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Denial on Information and Belief of Matters Presumptively Known

§ 71.132 Supporting Motion by Plaintiff for Judgment on Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(A)]--Complaint

States a Cause of Action and Answer Does Not Deny Material Allegation of Complaint and Alleges No Affirmative Defense--Matters Denied for Lack of Information or Belief Within Defendant's Presumptive Knowledge

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Denial for Lack of Information or Belief of Matters Presumptively Known

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Denial for Lack of Information or Belief of Matters Presumptively Known

§ 71.133 Supporting Motion by Plaintiff for Judgment on Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(A)]--Complaint States a Cause of Action and Answer Does Not Deny Material Allegation of Complaint and Alleges No Affirmative Defense--Denial of Legal Conclusion Only as Insufficient

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Denial of Legal Conclusion Only

§ 71.134 Opposing Motion by Plaintiff for Judgment on the Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(A)]--Answer Raises Material Issue of Fact or Defense--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Material Issue of Fact or Defense Raised

[b] Truth of Answer Assumed

[c] Motion Not Available in Lieu of Special Demurrer

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Material Issue of Fact or Defense Raised

[b] Truth of Answer Assumed

§§ 71.135-71.149 [Reserved]

§ 71.150 Supporting Motion by Defendant for Judgment on the Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(B)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Objection to Complaint by Motion for Judgment on Pleadings

[b] Motion Directed to Portion of Complaint

[c] Insufficiency Is Established by Facts Appearing on Face of Complaint

[d] Essential Allegation Omitted

[e] No Legal Duty Alleged

[f] Action Barred by Limitations

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Objection to Complaint by Motion for Judgment on the Pleadings

[b] Motion Directed to Portion of Complaint

[c] No Legal Duty Alleged

§ 71.151 Supporting Motion by Defendant for Judgment on the Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438 (c)(1)(B)]--Insufficiency Established by Facts Subject to Judicial Notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(d)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judicial Notice

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Judicial Notice

§ 71.152 Supporting Motion by Defendant for Judgment on the Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(B)]--Insufficiency Established by Judicial Admission

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action Barred by Judicial Admission

§ 71.153 Opposing Motion by Defendant for Judgment on Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(B)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Denial of Motion

[b] Sufficiency of Complaint

[c] Rule of Liberal Construction

[d] Motion as Admitting Allegations

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Denial of Motion

[b] Rule of Liberal Construction

[c] Motion as Admitting Allegations

§ 71.154 Opposing Motion by Defendant for Judgment on Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(B)]--Motion Does Not Lie to Challenge Defectively Stated or Uncertain Facts

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Defective Statement or Uncertain Facts

§ 71.155 Opposing Motion by Defendant for Judgment on Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(B)]--Motion May Not Be Based on Extrinsic Matter Not Subject to Judicial Notice

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Judicial Notice

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Extrinsic Evidence

[b] Interpretations Requiring Extrinsic Evidence

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Extrinsic Evidence

§ 71.156 Opposing Motion by Defendant for Judgment on Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(B)]--Defects in Pleading Cured by Admissions in Answer

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Defect Cured by Answer

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.01

§ 71.01 Scope of Chapter

The first set of forms includes memoranda relating to demurrers. Subpart A relates to demurrers to complaints or cross complaints. Subpart B relates to motions for judgments on the pleadings.

The first set of forms includes memoranda supporting [see §§ 71.20 -71.29] and opposing [see §§ 71.30 -71.43] a general demurrer. It also includes memoranda supporting [see §§ 71.61 -71.73] and opposing [see §§ 71.74 -71.88] a special demurrer. The memoranda supporting a demurrer to the complaint on the ground of uncertainty [see §§ 71.68 -71.71] and on the ground that it cannot be ascertained whether the contract on which the action is founded is written or oral [see § 71.72] may, with appropriate modifications, be used to support a demurrer to an answer on similar grounds under Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(b) or (c). Moreover, the memorandum set forth in this chapter (supporting and opposing motions for judgment on the pleadings) may be used to support or oppose a general demurrer to a complaint or cross complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)], or to an answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)], as the case may be.

This chapter also includes memoranda supporting [see §§ 71.100 -71.103] and opposing [see §§ 71.105 -71.109] a general demurrer to an answer, and memoranda supporting [see § 71.104] and opposing [see § 71.110] a special demurrer to an answer.

Memoranda relating to demurrers in particular types of actions, such as actions based on contracts, are set out in the specific chapters in this set covering those actions.

This chapter also includes memoranda relating to motions for judgment on the pleadings. It includes memoranda supporting [see §§ 71.130 -71.133] and opposing [see § 71.134] a plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings. It also includes memoranda of points and authorities supporting [see §§ 71.150 -71.152] and opposing [see §§ 71.153 -71.156] a defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaCivil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsJudgment on the Pleadings

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.02

§ 71.02 Governing Statutes

Demurrers are governed generally by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 422.10, 430.10-430.80, 472a-472d, 589, 591, and by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1.6, 2.100-2.119, 3.1100, 3.1103(c), 3.1109, and 3.1320. Points and authorities in support of a demurrer are required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100 and 3.1113(a).

The service and filing of demurrers and points and authorities are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 465, 1011-1013, 1015, 1017, 1020, and by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1.30-1.45, 3.1100, 3.1103(b), 3.1113(a), and proof of service by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1013a, 2009, 2015.5.

The amendment of pleadings, which term includes a demurrer [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.10; Baxter v. Boston-Pacific Oil Co. (1927) 81 Cal. App. 187, 189, 253 P. 185] , is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 471.5, 472, 473(a), and the entry of a default judgment against a defendant who fails to plead to an amended complaint or to answer a complaint after his or her demurrer to it has been overruled, is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(1), (2).

Some of the rules established pursuant to the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act [see Gov. Code § 68600 et seq.] include special provisions when the responsive pleading is a demurrer [see, e.g., Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 4.2(3)(c)(2) (no extension of time to file response to demurrer by stipulation of parties, except by order of court on proper application to court on showing of good cause); Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.7(a)(3) (if demurrer is filed, court will on hearing make appropriate orders regarding filing of further pleadings)]. Thus, counsel is advised to consult local rules in all cases. For further discussion of the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 552, Trial Court Delay Reduction (Matthew Bender).

Motions for judgment on the pleadings are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 438, which became effective January 1, 1994. Prior to 1994, the motion was governed only by case law [see, e.g., Hibernia S. & L. Soc. v. Thornton (1897) 117 Cal. 481, 482, 49 P. 573 ; Sofias v. Bank of America (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 583, 586, 218 Cal. Rptr. 388] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsAmended PleadingsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsDefaultDefault JudgmentsCivil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsJudgment on the PleadingsCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersContinuances

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.03

§ 71.03 Raising Objection to Complaint, Cross Complaint, or Answer by Demurrer

[1] When Ground for Objection Appears on Face of Pleading

When any ground for objection to a complaint, cross complaint, or answer appears on the face of the pleading the objection on that ground may be taken by demurrer to the pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)].

[2] When Ground for Objection Appears From Judicially Noticed Matter

An objection by demurrer may also be taken from any matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]. The matters of which the court must take judicial notice are listed in Evid. Code § 451 and the matters of which it may take judicial notice in Evid. Code § 452 [see § 71.21]. The matter must be specified in the demurrer or supporting points and authorities for the purpose of invoking such notice, except as the court may otherwise permit [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.70; see also Evid. Code § 453].

For discussion and forms relating to judicial notice, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 321, Judicial Notice .

[3] Demurrer to All or Part of Pleading

A demurrer to a complaint or cross complaint may be taken to the whole complaint or cross complaint or to any of the causes of action stated in it [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.50(a)]. A demurrer to fewer than all causes of action may be filed without answering the other causes of action [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(b)].

A demurrer to an answer may be taken to the whole answer or to any one or more of the several defenses set up in the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.50(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersEvidenceJudicial NoticeGeneral

Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.04

§ 71.04 Grounds for Objection

[1] To Complaint or Cross Complaint

[a] In General

A party against whom a complaint or cross complaint has been filed may object, by demurrer or answer as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30 [see § 71.03], to the pleading on any one or more of the following grounds:

- The court has no jurisdiction of the cause of action alleged in the pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(a); see §§ 71.60 -71.61].

- The person who filed the pleading does not have legal capacity to sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b); see §§ 71.62 -71.64, 71.75 -71.78].

- There is another action pending between the same parties on the same cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(c); see §§ 71.65, 71.79 -71.80].

- There is a defect or misjoinder of parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(d); see §§ 71.66, 71.67, 71.82 -71.84].

- The pleading does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e); see §§ 71.20 -71.43].

- The pleading is "uncertain," which term includes "ambiguous" and "unintelligible" [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f); see §§ 71.68 -71.71, 71.86].

- In an action founded on a contract, it cannot be ascertained from the pleading whether the contract is written or oral, or whether it is implied by conduct [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(g); see §§ 71.72, 71.87].

- In an action for damages arising out of the professional negligence of an architect, professional engineer, or land surveyor, no certificate of merit was filed as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35 [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 411.35(g), 430.10(h); see also § 71.73].

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(i) authorizes a demurrer when the certificate required by Code Civ. Proc. § 411.36 has not been filed, there is no longer any such requirement, because Section 411.36 was repealed by its own terms as of January 1, 1997.

Additional or alternative grounds of demurrer to a pleading filed in a special proceeding may be found in the particular statutes governing the special proceeding. See, for example, Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1250.350-1250.370 (proceeding in eminent domain).

[b] Lapse of Statute of Limitations

The defense that an action is barred by a statute of limitations may be raised by demurrer when the ground of objection appears on the face of the pleading or from matter of which a court must or may take judicial notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a); see also Kendrick v. City of Eureka (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 364, 367, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 153] . The statutory basis for a demurrer grounded on the statute of limitations is that the challenged pleading does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)].

For a memorandum supporting a demurrer on the ground of the statute of limitations, see Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions .

[2] To Answer

A party against whom an answer has been filed may object to it by demurrer as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30 [see § 71.03] on any one or more of the following grounds:

- The answer does not state facts sufficient to constitute a defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(a); see §§ 71.100 -71.103, 71.105 -71.109].

- The answer is "uncertain," which term includes "ambiguous" and "unintelligible" [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(b); see §§ 71.104, 71.110].

- When the answer pleads a contract, it cannot be ascertained from the answer whether the contract is written or oral [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(c); see § 71.72].

If the party against whom the answer is filed fails to demur to the answer, the party is deemed to have waived the objection unless it is an objection that the answer does not state facts sufficient to constitute a defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsAffirmative DefensesGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsFailures to State ClaimsCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to DismissCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticePleadingsAnswers

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.05

§ 71.05 "General" and "Special" Demurrers Distinguished

A "general demurrer" describes either a demurrer to a complaint or cross complaint on the ground that it fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] or a demurrer to an answer on the ground that it does not state facts sufficient to constitute a defense [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(a)]. Demurrers on all other grounds listed in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10, 430.20 are referred to as "special demurrers" [see, e.g., Buss v. J.O. Martin Co., Inc. (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 123, 133, 50 Cal. Rptr. 206 ; Timberidge Enterprises, Inc. v. Santa Rosa (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 873, 879-80, 150 Cal. Rptr. 606] . The fundamental effect of this distinction is that the general demurrer objection of failure to state a cause of action or defense is never waived. Grounds for special demurrer, however, must be raised by demurrer or answer or are deemed waived [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80].

The exception to the foregoing rule is that the special demurrer objection that the court has no jurisdiction of the subject of the cause of action alleged in the pleading also is not waived by a failure to raise it by demurrer or answer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80].

The California Rules of Court also refer to a "special demurrer" [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1113(a) (absence of memoranda may be construed as admission that special demurrer is not meritorious and as waiver of all grounds not supported), 3.1320(f) (failure to appear in support of special demurrer may be construed as admission that special demurrer is not meritorious and waiver of all grounds thereof)]. Although considered a special demurrer, a demurrer based on lack of subject matter jurisdiction [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(a); see §§ 71.60 -71.61], however, would not be governed by the foregoing rules of court since the objection is not waived by a failure to raise it by demurrer or answer and can normally be raised at any time [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(a)].

Special demurrers are not allowed in a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 92(c); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 85.1, 86, 91(a)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersCivil ProceduresPleading &

PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsFailures to State ClaimsCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to DismissCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsWaiver & Preservation

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.06

§ 71.06 Waiver of Objection to Complaint or Cross Complaint

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(a), a party who fails to object by demurrer or answer to a complaint or cross complaint is deemed to have waived any objection to it other than the objection that the court lacks jurisdiction of the subject of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(a); see §§ 71.60 -71.61] or that the pleading fails to state a cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e); see §§ 71.20 -71.43].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsWaiver & Preservation

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.07

§ 71.07 Attacking Defects in Pleadings

Defects in pleadings may be attacked by demurrers [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10, 430.20, 430.30, 430.80], motions to strike [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 435-437], motions for judgment on the pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438], and answers [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10, 430.30(b), 430.80(a), 431.30(b)(2)].

In addition, the objection that the complaint or cross complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] and the objection that the court lacks jurisdiction of the subject of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(a)] may normally be made at any time during the proceedings [see, e.g., Wilson v. Sharp (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 675, 677, 268 P.2d 1062 ; Parker v. Bowron (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 344, 351, 254 P.2d 6] , or on appeal [see, e.g., Greene v. Municipal Court (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 446, 450, 124 Cal. Rptr. 139] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to DismissCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to StrikeGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticePleadingsAnswersCivil ProceduresPretrial JudgmentsJudgment on the Pleadings

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.08

§ 71.08 How to Use the Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Memoranda

One of the more significant drafting requirements to keep in mind are page limits: supporting memoranda (other than those in a summary judgment proceeding) must not exceed 15 pages in length. Exhibits, declarations, attachments, and tables of content are not included in the page limitation. A reply or closing memorandum may not exceed 10 pages in length. Any party desiring to file a longer memorandum must obtain leave of court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d)]. These and other drafting requirements are discussed in further detail in Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs, § 1.05.

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

The forms included in this chapter are designed to be combined with other points and authorities to form a complete memorandum. For a detailed discussion on how to select and use the forms in the publication to build a draft memorandum and complete the draft, with detailed discussion of all drafting requirements and strategic or stylistic considerations, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs, §§ 1.02 -1.06.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.09

§ 71.09 Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

A discussion and forms of demurrers and notices of motion for judgment on the pleadings are contained in California Forms of Pleading and Practice Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender). Alternative and additional forms of demurrers are also contained in Ch. 3, Abatement of Actions, and other titles in that publication relating to specific types of actions.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsWaiver & PreservationCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsJudgment on the Pleadings

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.10

§ 71.10 Related Memoranda

For memoranda for use in a specific action (for example, contracts), see the chapter relating to that action. For memoranda relating to motions for separate trial of issues which are also grounds for demurrers, see Ch. 10, Abatement and Survival of Actions .

For memoranda relating to demurrers based on the statute of limitations, see Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions .

For memoranda supporting and opposing a motion to strike, see Ch. 160, Motions to Strike .

For a discussion of how to use the forms in this chapter to draft a memorandum or a trial or appellate brief, and for a sample of a complete memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsAffirmative DefensesGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting Memoranda

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

7A-71 California Points & Authorities §§ 71.11-71.19

[Reserved]

§§ 71.11[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.20

§ 71.20 Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--General Form

[1] FORM Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--General Form
SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF DEMURRER
Plaintiff,	)	TO COMPLAINT
vs.	)	Date: _____
_____ [name],	)	Time: _____
Defendant.	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE COURT SHOULD SUSTAIN THE GENERAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT BECAUSE THE COMPLAINT FAILS TO STATE FACTS SUFFICIENT TO CONSTITUTE A CAUSE OF ACTION.

A. Ground for Objection Appears on Face of Complaint. When any ground for objection to a complaint appears on the face thereof, the objection on that ground may betaken by a demurrer to the pleading (Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)).

B. Objection by General Demurrer. The party against whom a complaint has been filed may object, by demurrer to the pleading, on the ground that the pleading does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action (Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)).

[Optional] C. Allegations Stated as Conclusions of Law. Conclusions of law set forth in a complaint are not admitted by a general demurrer and must be ignored in ruling on the sufficiency of the complaint to state a cause of action (Going v. Dinwiddie (1890) 86 Cal. 633, 638-639, 25 P. 129 ; Beresford Neighborhood Assn. v. City of San Mateo (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1180, 1190, 255 Cal. Rptr. 434).

[Optional] D. Conjectured Facts Not Stated. In order to be sufficient, a complaint must contain a statement of facts which, without the aid of other conjectured facts not stated, shows a complete cause of action (Going v. Dinwiddie (1890) 86 Cal. 633, 637, 25 P. 129 ; see Garcia v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 728, 737, 268 Cal. Rptr. 779, 789 P.2d 960).

[Optional] E. Sustain Demurrer Without Leave to Amend. A trial court does not abuse its discretion by sustaining a general demurrer without leave to amend if it appears from the complaint that under applicable substantive law there is no reasonable possibility that an amendment could cure the complaint's defect (Coffman Specialties, Inc. v. Dept. of Transp. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1135, 1144, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 643 ; Heckendorn v. City of San Marino (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 481, 486, 229 Cal. Rptr. 324, 723 P.2d 64 ; Dalton v. East Bay Mun. Utility Dist. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 1566, 1570-1571, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 230). Moreover, when a complaint is successfully challenged by a general demurrer, the burden is on the plaintiff to demonstrate how the complaint might be amended to cure it of the defect (Nazir v. United Airlines (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 243, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 296 ; Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now v. Department of Industrial Relations (1995) 41 Cal. App. 4th 298, 302, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 486).

[Optional] F. Complaint Affirmatively Alleges Affirmative Defense. When a complaint affirmatively alleges facts amounting to an affirmative defense, it is subject to a demurrer (Halvorsen v. Aramark Uniform Services, Inc. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1383, 1391, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 383).

[Optional] G. Allegations of Complaint on Their Face Are Barred by Compulsory Cross-Complaint Statute. A demurrer will be sustained without leave to amend if the allegations of the complaint on their face are barred by Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30(a), the compulsory cross-complaint statute, because they are claims logically related to a pleading in a prior suit and were required to have been asserted in the prior suit (Align Technology, Inc. v. Tran (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 949, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a general demurrer (that is, a demurrer on the ground that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action) when the defect appears on the face of the pleading [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)].

For a memorandum for use if the failure to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action is revealed by facts of which the court may take judicial notice, see § 71.21.

This form contains optional paragraphs for use when the complaint avers only legal conclusions, rather than the facts supporting the legal conclusion, or relies on conjectured facts to state a cause of action. Optional Paragraph E of the form may be used to argue that the demurrer should be sustained without leave to amend.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, if the plaintiff attempts to sue for breach of contract but fails to allege any loss as a result of the alleged breach, counsel would (1) cite the rule that a complaint alleging breach of contract must specify the damages proximately caused by the defendant's breach [see Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 830, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377 , discussed in § 71.22[4][a]]; (2) refer to the complaint, pointing out that omission; and (3) conclude that the complaint fails to allege facts sufficient to state a cause of action for breach of contract and that the general demurrer should for that reason be granted [see Hawkins v. Oakland Title Ins. & Guar. Co. (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 116, 121-123, 331 P.2d 742 , discussed under § 71.20[4][b]].

With appropriate modifications, this form may be used in support of a demurrer that is directed against a single cause of action or count in a complaint that alleges multiple causes of action or counts. The form may also be modified for use in support of a demurrer to a cross complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10, 430.30(a)], or to a single cause of action or count set up in a cross complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.50(a)], or in support of a motion by a defendant or cross defendant for judgment on the pleadings [see § 170.150 et seq.], or an objection by a defendant or cross defendant at trial to the introduction of any evidence [see Parker v. Bowron (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 344, 351, 254 P.2d 6] . With appropriate modifications, they may also be used in support of a petition for writ of mandate to compel the trial court to sustain the demurrer after that court has erroneously overruled it [see Babb v. Superior Court (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 841, 851, 92 Cal. Rptr. 179, 479 P.2d 379] .

[b] Nonwaiver of Objection

The objection that the complaint or cross complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action is not waived by failure to raise it by demurrer or answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(a)].

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a), requires that a party filing a demurrer serve and file with it a supporting memorandum. Although the absence of a memorandum may be construed by the court as an admission that a special demurrer is not meritorious and cause for its denial and as a waiver of all grounds not supported, arguably, this would not be true of a general demurrer, since even a total failure to demurrer does not waive the defect of insufficient facts to state a cause of action [see Dikkers v. Superior Court (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 816, 819, 199 P.2d 709] .

[c] Allegations Stated as Conclusions of Law

A general demurrer is proper only if, after omitting the legal conclusions, the complaint lacks an essential allegation necessary to state a cause of action [see City of Santa Barbara v. Eldred (1895) 108 Cal. 294, 297-298, 41 P. 410 ; see also § 71.30]. Otherwise, objections that a complaint is ambiguous or uncertain, or that essential facts appear only inferentially, or as conclusions of law, or by way of recitals, must be raised by special demurrer, and cannot be reached on a general demurrer [City of Santa Barbara v. Eldred (1895) 108 Cal. 294, 297-298, 41 P. 410 ; Johnson v. Mead (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 156, 160, 236 Cal. Rptr. 277] .

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of demurrers on single and multiple grounds and forms of general demurrers, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender).

[e] Related Memoranda

For memoranda in support of a general demurrer in a particular substantive context, see the specific chapter. The following are some of the chapters that include forms of points and authorities that may be used to support a demurrer against a complaint for failure to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action: Ch. 21, Assault and Battery; Ch. 33, Carriers; Ch. 35, Civil Rights: Unruh Civil Rights Act; Ch. 43, Common Counts and Bills of Particulars; Ch. 46, Conspiracy; Ch. 50, Contracts; Ch. 52, Corporations, Pts. II, IV, and V; Ch. 66, Death and Survival Actions; Ch. 103, False Imprisonment, Parts I, IV, and V; Ch. 105, Fraud and Deceit, Pts. I and II; Ch. 100, Employer and Employee; Ch. 120, Insurance, Pt. III; Ch. 141, Landlord and Tenant; Ch. 142, Libel and Slander (Defamation); Ch. 147, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process; Ch. 153, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress; Ch. 165, Negligence, Pt. I; Ch. 175, Physicians and Surgeons: Medical Malpractice; Ch. 195, Public Administrative Law; Ch. 196, Public Entities; Ch. 198, Quieting Title; Ch. 206, Sales; Ch. 214, Specific Performance; Ch. 225, Trespass; and Ch. 135, Unfair Competition, Pt. I.

[f] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in §§ 71.30 -71.43 may be used to oppose the general demurrer supported by these points.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Allegations Stated as Conclusions of Law

Going v. Dinwiddie (1890) 86 Cal. 633, 25 P. 129 , was an action for damages for false imprisonment against a justice of the peace who had had plaintiff jailed for contempt of court for disobeying a writ of restitution. Plaintiff in her complaint had alleged that defendant "wrongfully" caused plaintiff to be arrested and "unlawfully" did certain other things. Defendant's demurrer to the complaint was overruled and defendant appealed from the subsequent judgment for plaintiff.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment with directions to the superior court to sustain defendant's demurrer to the complaint. The Court pointed out that there may be some instances in which "wrongfully" and "unlawfully," and similar adverbs, have some significance, but the ordinary rule is that for the purposes of pleading, they are utterly valueless (86 Cal. 633, 638) .

The Court, at 86 Cal. 633, 638-639, reviewed earlier cases that had considered the issue. In Miles v. McDermott (1866) 31 Cal. 271, 273 , the Court had stated that such words as "duly," "wrongfully," and "unlawfully," so frequently used in pleadings, might better be omitted as they tender no issue. In Triscony v. Orr (1875) 49 Cal. 612, 617 , which was an action for conversion of certain sheep, the complaint had merely alleged that the defendants took the property "unlawfully, fraudulently, willfully, and maliciously," and the Supreme Court affirmed a judgment entered after a demurrer to the complaint had been sustained. The Court in Triscony had stated that whether the defendants took the sheep "unlawfully" was a question of law, and not the statement of an issuable fact. If they were taken "fraudulently," the facts constituting fraud should have been averred, otherwise no issuable fact was stated. In Reardon v. San Francisco (1885) 66 Cal. 492, 496, 6 P. 317 , the Court had said that if the defendant was empowered by law to do the work counted on, the averment in the complaint that such work was unlawful and wrongful would amount to nothing. Such epithets in a pleading are, in general, meaningless and unless the matters averred show the acts complained of to be unlawful or wrongful, such words are mere superfluous verbiage. The Court in Going concluded in the case before it that the complaint was insufficient because it failed to show that the acts complained of were in excess of defendant's jurisdiction as justice of the peace, and that use of the words "wrongfully" and "unlawfully" did not supply the omitted facts (86 Cal. 633, 639) .

In Beresford Neighborhood Assn. v. City of San Mateo (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1180, 255 Cal. Rptr. 434 , the plaintiff neighborhood association brought an action against the defendant city seeking declaratory and injunctive relief and a writ of mandate, alleging various improprieties associated with the city's purchase of a site for a senior citizens' project. The city demurred, and the trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend on the ground that no causes of action were stated because the plaintiff failed to comply with applicable statutes of limitation and had not joined indispensable parties. The plaintiff appealed from the judgment.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. With regard to the failure to comply with the statutes of limitation and failure to join indispensable parties, the court stated that the burden was on the appellant association to demonstrate that the trial court abused its discretion in sustaining the demurrer without leave to amend and discussed why the burden had not been met (207 Cal. App. 3d 1180, 1190-1191) . Although the judgment dismissed the entire complaint, the reasons given by the trial court only disposed of some of the claims advanced. With regard to one of the remaining claims, the court noted that the complaint alleged that the city was required under its municipal code to employ bidding procedures in connection with the proposed transfer of the site. This, however, was a conclusion of law and, a demurrer does not admit conclusions of law. The association alleged no facts tending to show that failure to follow bidding procedures in the case was an abuse of discretion. The court therefore held that the claim was properly dismissed for failure, under Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e), to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action (207 Cal. App. 3d 1180, 1190-1191) .

[b] Conjectured Facts Not Stated

Garcia v. Superior Court (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 728, 268 Cal. Rptr. 779, 789 P.2d 960 , involved an action by the survivors of a murder victim against the murderer's parole officer and the state for wrongful death and violation of civil rights. The trial court sustained demurrers by the defendants without leave to amend. The court of appeal denied plaintiffs' petition for writ of mandate.

The Supreme Court affirmed the court of appeal's decision insofar as it held that plaintiffs did not state a cause of action and dismissed the purported civil rights cause of action, but reversed insofar as the denial of leave to amend. In all cases for negligent misrepresentation, the Court stated, plaintiffs must allege facts sufficient to show that the defendant actually and reasonably relied on the alleged misrepresentations. The Court concluded that the complaint was deficient in this regard (stating that an allegation that the victim failed to take steps to protect herself from the murderer did not suffice to satisfy the reasonable reliance requirement). The Court stated that it should not be required by conjecture to supply a necessary but missing allegation, which, if it had been made, would run counter to reasonable probability, even though it would have to be accepted as true for the purpose of testing the sufficiency of the complaint (50 Cal. 3d 728, 737) .

The facts and procedural background of Going v. Dinwiddie (1890) 86 Cal. 633, 25 P. 129 , are discussed under § 71.20[3][a]. In Going, the Supreme Court reversed the trial court's judgment with directions to sustain the defendant's demurrer to the complaint. The Court held that the complaint, which alleged false imprisonment against a justice of the peace who had the plaintiff jailed for contempt of court, was fatally defective because it was clear that the acts complained of were done by the defendant in his official capacity as a judicial officer, there was no averment in the complaint that the acts were without or in excess of his jurisdiction, and there were no facts averred from which such want of jurisdiction appeared. The Court said that the question was not one of evidence or of burden of proof, but one of pleading, and that a complaint, to be sufficient, must contain a statement of facts that, without the aid of other conjectured facts not stated, shows a complete cause of action (86 Cal. 633, 637) . The Court explained that pleadings poorly subserve the purpose intended if the court, before declaring the law on the points presented in a case, is compelled to surmise many of the essential facts on which the points turn (86 Cal. 633, 637) . In the case at bar the court was left to assume, to imagine, and to surmise that defendant, as justice of the peace, for some unrevealed and unknown reason had no jurisdiction to do the acts complained of (86 Cal. 633, 637) . The Supreme Court reversed the judgment with directions to the superior court to sustain defendant's demurrer to the complaint.

Note, however, that while a court may not resort to aid of conjecture of facts not stated, a court may take as true facts that may be implied or inferred from those expressly alleged [see C & H Foods Co. v. Hartford Ins. Co. (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1055, 1062, 211 Cal. Rptr. 765 (dicta)].

[c] Sustain Demurrer Without Leave to Amend

Heckendorn v. City of San Marino (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 481, 229 Cal. Rptr. 324, 723 P.2d 64 , involved a complaint for declaratory and injunctive relief against an ordinance that imposed a tax. The complaint alleged that the tax violated the Cal. Const., art. XIII A, limitation on ad valorem taxes on real property. The trial court sustained the defendant's general demurrer without leave to amend, and plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed, concluding that the tax at issue was not an ad valorem tax. The Court stated that a trial court does not abuse its discretion by sustaining a general demurrer without leave to amend if it appears from the complaint that under applicable substantive law there is no reasonable possibility that an amendment could cure the complaint's defect (42 Cal. 3d 481, 486) . The Court concluded that the trial court properly sustained the general demurrer without leave to amend because under the applicable law there was no reasonable possibility that an amendment could cure the complaint's defect (42 Cal. 3d 481, 489) .

Dalton v. East Bay Mun. Utility Dist. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 1566, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 230 , was an action by employees of a public entity for breach of fiduciary duty and denial of equal protection. The complaint alleged that the entity and its retirement board discriminated between different groups of employees because of the manner in which the entity's retirement system was funded. The defendants demurred, asserting that plaintiffs' failure to file a claim under the California Tort Claims Act barred their claims, that defendants were fulfilling all their obligations to plaintiffs, and that the funding practice did not violate plaintiff's equal protection rights. Without stating specific grounds, the trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend, and dismissed the complaint. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal initially stated the standard for granting a demurrer with or without leave to amend, citing Heckendorn v. City of San Marino (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 481, 229 Cal. Rptr. 324, 723 P.2d 64 , discussed, above, (18 Cal. App. 4th 1566, 1570-1571) . The court then held that the plaintiffs' claim did not fall into any exception to the claims statute and the action was barred by failure to have filed a claim and affirmed the judgment (18 Cal. App. 4th 1566, 1571-1574) .

In Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now v. Department of Industrial Relations (1995) 41 Cal. App. 4th 298, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 486 , a political public interest organization challenged the constitutionality of California's minimum wage laws. The trial court sustained a demurrer without leave to amend and rendered a defense judgment. On appeal, plaintiff first argued that the minimum wage laws were unconstitutional as applied to it, and then contended that the trial court should have granted it leave to amend the complaint.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The court held that the minimum wage laws are not unconstitutional as applied because the compelling state interest in ensuring a minimum wage justifies any incidental infringement on the plaintiff's First Amendment freedoms. With regard to whether the trial court should have granted leave to amend, the court recognized that if there is a reasonable possibility that the defect in a complaint can be cured by amendment, then it is an abuse of discretion to sustain a demurrer without leave to amend. However, the court stated that the burden is on the plaintiff to demonstrate the manner in which the complaint might be amended, and concluded that no error was demonstrated because plaintiff had not met this burden (41 Cal. App. 4th 298, 302) . The court further noted that a recent decision had held that when a demurrer is sustained to an original complaint, a denial of leave to Amend constitutes an abuse of discretion if the pleading does not show on its face that it is incapable of amendment. However, the court stated that this rule is limited to cases in which the complaint is good as against a general demurrer for failure to state a cause of action but is subject to a special demurrer for uncertainty or ambiguity in the pleading; in such cases the plaintiff must be given an opportunity to clarify the uncertainty or ambiguity unless the pleading shows on its face that the defect cannot be cured. Since the complaint in this action fell to a general demurrer this special rule did not apply, and the burden remained on the plaintiff to demonstrate how the complaint might be amended (41 Cal. App. 4th 298, 302) .

In Coffman Specialties, Inc. v. Dept. of Transp. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1135, 1144, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 643 , the plaintiff engineering contractor brought an action against the defendant California Department of Transportation (Caltrans), seeking a declaratory judgment that arbitration provisions in the State Contract Act (Pub. Contract Code, § 10240 et seq.) were unconstitutional. The San Diego County Superior Court, entered judgment in favor of Caltrans after sustaining its demurrer without leave to amend. The contractor appealed.

The contractor contended that the arbitration provisions, on their face and as applied, violated its constitutional rights to a neutral arbitrator, petition the government, and equal protection of the law. The court held the plaintiff's facial and an as-applied challenge to the constitutionality of the public works arbitration statutes may be decided on a demurrer; however, the analysis is different on each claim. In evaluating a facial challenge, a court considers "only the text of the measure itself, not its application to the particular circumstances of an individual." On an as-applied challenge, the plaintiff must plead and prove the specific facts giving rise to the alleged constitutional violation. The courts reasoned that the constitutional challenges were inadequate as a matter of law and sustained the demmurrer without leave to amend was appropriate (176 Cal. App. 4th 1135, 1150-1155) .

[d] Complaint Affirmatively Alleges Affirmative Defense

Halvorsen v. Aramark Uniform Services, Inc. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1383, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 383 , involved an at will employee who was terminated. The employee sued his manager alleging the manager intentionally interfered with the employment relationship by wrongfully inducing plaintiff's employer to terminate plaintiff. Plaintiff sued the employer for breach of contract and breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing, and the employer's manager for intentional interference with contractual relations. The trial court granted the manager's demurrer and the employer's motion for summary judgment and thereafter entered judgment against plaintiff. Plaintiff appealed (65 Cal. App. 4th 1386-1387) .

The court of appeal affirmed. After reviewing the contract and the factual allegations made in the complaint and the motion for summary judgment, the court concluded the trial court was correct in determining plaintiff's employment with the defendant employer was at will as a matter of law (65 Cal. App. 4th 1383, 1387) . Plaintiff's employment was at will under the terms of the contract and an implied in fact promise not to terminate except for good cause cannot contradict the contractual at will provision (65 Cal. App. 4th 1383, 1390) . Although the law may permit modification of a written contract by an oral agreement under Civ. Code § 1698(c) (which provides that unless the contract otherwise expressly provides, a contract in writing may be modified by an oral agreement supported by new consideration), the facts presented in the case do not rise to the level of an agreement to modify by contract (65 Cal. App. 4th 1383, 1389) . Summary judgment on the breach of contract action was proper (65 Cal. App. 4th 1383, 1390) .

Next, plaintiff attempted to create a requirement of good cause for termination by invoking the covenant of good faith and fair dealing. The court found that this attempt was futile because the covenant of good faith and fair dealing cannot be used to imply an obligation that would completely obliterate a right expressly provided by a written contract. Moreover, the requirement to conduct a reasonable investigation before termination under Cotran v. Rollins Hudig Hall Internat., Inc. (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 93, 95, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 900, 948 P.2d 421 is inapplicable. Cotran expressly applies only to cases in which an employee is under an implied agreement not to be dismissed except for good cause. Plaintiff was under no such agreement (65 Cal. App. 4th 1383, 1390-1391) .

Finally, plaintiff contended that the trial court improperly concluded the employer's manager could not be held liable in tort for intentional interference with contractual relations. The trial court reasoned that the manager's alleged actions in inducing plaintiff's termination were privileged under the manager's privilege (65 Cal. App. 4th 1383, 1391) . A privilege, such as the manager's privilege, is an affirmative defense to the tort. When a complaint affirmatively alleges facts amounting to an affirmative defense, it is subject to a demurrer. There are three formulations of the manager's privilege: (1) absolute, (2) mixed motive, and (3) predominant motive. Citing cases applying each of the formulations, the court concluded that under the circumstances of the case the manager's privilege was absolute (65 Cal. App. 4th 1383, 1391-1395) . Although this approach is not consistent with all the cases on the management privilege because there is no consensus to follow, it is, however, consistent with Marin v. Jacuzzi (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 549, 553-554, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 880 , the California case most in point (65 Cal. App. 4th 1383, 1395) . Accordingly, when an at will employee is terminated, the manager's privilege is absolute. The manager's state of mind is irrelevant under these circumstances and, therefore, an action against the manager for interference with contractual relations may be deposed of by way of demurrer. Applying these principles, the trial court properly sustained the demurrer (65 Cal. App. 4th 1383, 1396) .

[e] Allegations of Complaint on Their Face Are Barred by Compulsory Cross-Complaint Statute

In Align Technology, Inc. v. Tran (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 949, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343 , plaintiff sued a former employee for (among other things) breach of contract and conversion of patents belonging to the employer. The former employee demurred, claiming that the action was barred under Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30, the compulsory cross-complaint statute. He asserted that plaintiff, in a prior state court action, had sued him, he had cross-complained for wrongful termination, and plaintiff failed to assert the current claims at the time it answered the cross-complaint. The trial court agreed that plaintiff's claims were barred under section 426.30 because they should have been raised in the prior suit, and it sustained the demurrer without leave to amend. The court concluded that the claims now being asserted against defendant were related claims that plaintiff failed to assert in the underlying litigation. It did not specify the reasoning for denying plaintiff leave to amend (179 Cal. App. 4th 949, 953-958) .

The Court of Appeal reversed, concluding that the allegations of the complaint included claims that were barred on their face by the compulsory cross-complaint statute because they were claims logically related to the cross-complaint that should have been asserted in the prior suit (179 Cal. App. 4th 949, 958-970) . However, based upon certain allegations in the complaint and representations made by counsel both at the hearing on the demurrer and on appeal, plaintiff could be able to assert claims against defendant that did not exist when it answered defendant's cross-complaint in the prior suit and would thus not be barred under Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30. Thus, plaintiff should have been granted leave to amend, and the court remanded with instructions that the trial court enter an order sustaining the demurrer with leave to amend (179 Cal. App. 4th 949, 971-972) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Allegations Stated as Conclusions of Law

In Freeman v. San Diego Assn. of Realtors (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 171, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534 , the trial court sustained defendants' demurrers to plaintiff's third amended complaint that alleged claims for violation of the Cartwright Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 16700 et seq.) and dismissed the action. Plaintiff appealed. The court of appeal affirmed.

Initially, the court noted that when examining the sufficiency of a complaint against a general demurrer, an appellate court treats as true all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions or conclusions of fact or law (77 Cal. App. 4th 171, 178 n.1). The court concluded that the complaint, read in the context of facts subject to judicial notice, and shorn of its conclusory allegations, did not state an illegal tying claim (77 Cal. App. 4th 171, 183-184) . Similarly, the court concluded that the complaint did not state a price fixing claim, which requires allegation of facts demonstrating that separate entities conspired together. A general demurrer will be sustained if the complaint makes conclusory allegations of a combination and does not allege with factual particularity that separate entities maintaining separate and independent interests combined for to restrain trade (77 Cal. App. 4th 171, 188-189) . A conclusory allegation that two entities are competitors is a legal conclusion that does not preclude a court from dismissing a complaint for not stating a claim (77 Cal. App. 4th 171, 192 n.21). The court also concluded that the complaint did not state a group boycott claim in that a conclusory allegation by plaintiff was insufficient to satisfy the requirement of alleging overt acts in furtherance of the conspiracy. California requires a high degree of particularity in the pleading of Cartwright Act violations, and therefore, generalized allegations of antitrust violations are usually insufficient, and general allegations of conspiracy unaccompanied by factual allegations of overt acts in furtherance of conspiracy are insufficient to state a group boycott antitrust claim (77 Cal. App. 4th 171, 195-196) .

In C & H Foods Co. v. Hartford Ins. Co. (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1055 , 211 Cal. Rptr. 765 , the court of appeal affirmed an order of dismissal in an action by insureds against their insurer to obtain benefits from a marine insurance policy for loss of pails of cured beef. The Court stated that contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law alleged in a complaint are not considered in judging the complaint's sufficiency (163 Cal. App. 3d 1055, 1062) . The court found that the provisions of the policy concerning a private statute of limitations that were incorporated into the complaint as an exhibit were inconsistent with the plaintiff's conclusory allegations concerning them. It held that when a conclusion and special facts from which the conclusion is drawn are alleged, the special facts control if they are inconsistent with the conclusion. In this case, the sufficiency of the complaint is determined from the special facts pleaded (163 Cal. App. 3d 1055, 1063-1064) .

Megeff v. Doland (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 251, 176 Cal. Rptr. 467 , was a personal injury action against the wife and daughter of the perpetrator of a stabbing for negligent failure to exercise control over the perpetrator. Plaintiffs alleged, among other things, that but for defendants' voluntary assumption of custody over the perpetrator, the hospital in which the perpetrator had been temporarily confined would have instituted commitment proceedings against him, that defendants themselves should have instituted such proceedings against the perpetrator, and that such proceedings would have been successful. The trial court granted judgment on the pleadings to defendant wife.

In upholding the trial court's granting of judgment on the pleadings, the court of appeal held that these allegations constituted nothing but legal or factual conclusions, unsupported by ultimate facts, and consequently would not be deemed true in a ruling on a demurrer or motion for judgment on the pleadings (123 Cal. App. 3d 251, 258-259) .

Faulkner v. Cal. Toll Bridge Authority (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 317, 253 P.2d 659 , was an action to restrain the public agency defendants, from constructing and financing a bridge and to compel the defendants to grant plaintiffs a fair and adequate hearing on the question of whether a bridge or an earth-fill type crossing should be built. The first four causes of action of the complaint alleged that the defendants failed to comply with certain regulations and a statute and the fifth alleged that defendant had not made an adequate study and investigation. After stating various investigations and studies that the defendants allegedly failed to make, plaintiffs alleged that "such insufficient investigation, study and consideration ... constitutes arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable conduct" and that the decision to construct the bridge based on "such insufficient investigation, constitutes an abuse of the discretion vested in" the defendants (40 Cal. 2d 317, 325-326) . Defendants' general demurrer to the complaint was sustained without leave to amend, and plaintiffs appealed from the judgment. The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment, holding that the statutes and regulations did not apply to the circumstances as alleged in the first four causes of action. With regard to the fifth cause of action, the Court stated that allegations that the acts were "arbitrary, capricious, fraudulent, wrongful and unlawful," like other adjectival descriptions of such proceedings, constitute mere conclusions of law that are not to be deemed admitted by a demurrer (40 Cal. 2d 317, 329) .

Marin v. Jacuzzi (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 549, 36 Cal. Rptr. 880 , was an action for general and punitive damages for wrongful discharge by a former employee of a corporation against the corporate vice president and general manager, who was also a director, and other individuals who, together, made up a majority of the corporation's board of directors. The complaint alleged that the defendants had no authority to discharge plaintiff and that the act was done maliciously. Defendants' demurrer was sustained without leave to amend, and plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal. The court of appeal affirmed, stating that a demurrer does not admit contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law alleged in a complaint, and that the allegation that defendants had no authority to discharge plaintiff was Such a conclusion, as was the allegation that the act was done maliciously (224 Cal. App. 2d 549, 552) . The court said that use of the words "wrongfully," "willfully," and "maliciously" added nothing to the pleadings, except to convey a sense of outrage on the part of plaintiff (224 Cal. App. 2d 549, 552) .

Beeler v. West American Finance Co. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 702, 20 Cal. Rptr. 190 , was an action for damages based on fraud and conspiracy arising out of a foreclosure sale after plaintiff had defaulted on the payment of a note secured by a trust deed on the property. Defendants were a title insurance company, a finance company, and certain individuals. With regard to the finance company defendant, the court held, however, that no cause of action was stated and affirmed the judgment as to it. The allegations relied on by plaintiff to state a cause of action were that defendants by misrepresentation, fraud, deceit, and the violation of a confidential relationship on the part of the defendant did by "surreptitious and underhanded means, in collaboration and in conspiracy" with other defendants obtain an interest in real property adverse to that of plaintiff. The court pointed out that these allegations were merely generalities and conclusions insofar as the finance company was concerned and, as such, insufficient as a statement of a cause of action against that defendant (201 Cal. App. 2d 702, 707) .

See also Sklar v. Franchise Tax Board (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 616, 621, 230 Cal. Rptr. 42 (court as not admitting truth of allegations that action was "impermissible," "improper," "arbitrary and capricious," "contrary to law," and "an abuse of discretion"); Zumbrun v. University of Southern California (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 1, 12, 101 Cal. Rptr. 499 (allegations of damages without allegations of fact to support them as conclusions of Law which are not admitted by demurrer); Holmes v. City of Oakland (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 378, 382 , 67 Cal. Rptr. 197 (demurrer as not admitting contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law, or facts impossible in law, or allegations contrary to facts of which court may take judicial knowledge); and Hilltop Properties v. State of California (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 349, 353-354, 43 Cal. Rptr. 605 (demurrer as not admitting contentions, deductions or conclusions of fact or law, or construction placed on instrument pleaded in complaint, or facts impossible in law, or allegations contrary to facts of which court may take judicial knowledge).

[b] Conjectured Facts Not Stated

Hawkins v. Oakland Title Ins. & Guar. Co. (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 116, 331 P.2d 742 , was an action against a title insurance company by two individuals and a corporation for damages for an alleged defect in a title insurance policy, arising out of defendant's failure to reveal the existence of a recorded deed from a prior owner of the covered real property granting access rights to the property to the state. In the first of the individual plaintiffs' two counts, plaintiffs sought damages for breach of the contract of title insurance but failed to allege any facts showing that they suffered pecuniary loss as a result of the breach. The title policy expressly disclaimed coverage for any defects, liens, etc., which did not result in pecuniary loss to the insured. The defendant's demurrers to all four counts of the complaint were sustained without leave to amend. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment in part and reversed in part. In holding that the trial court properly sustained the general demurrer to the first count (but that it erred in denying leave to amend), the court of appeal, after quoting from Going v. Dinwiddie (1890) 86 Cal. 633, 25 P. 129 , discussed under § 71.20[3][a], said that it was only with the aid of conjecture that it could be concluded that plaintiffs might have sustained some loss and that it therefore appeared the complaint was vulnerable to a general demurrer (165 Cal. App. 2d 116, 122) .

[c] Sustain Demurrer Without Leave to Amend

In Patrick v. Alacer Corp. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 995, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 642 , plaintiff asserted shareholder derivative and direct causes of action against defendant corporation and three individuals who were both on the board of directors and trustees of the shareholder trust. Defendant demurred to plaintiff's cause of action for fraud, and the trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend. Plaintiff appealed. The court of appeals affirmed. Plaintiff was unable to state a cause of action for fraud because she could not establish causation. Plaintiff alleged defendants' misrepresentations induced her to vote the three defendants onto the board, and in turn she suffered damages because the board fired her and she ceased receiving corporate benefits. However, because the three defendants held the majority of the voting power in the trust, they did not need her vote to become directors. The misrepresentation did not lead to plaintiff's damages. Defendants' demurrer was therefore sustained without leave to amend (167 Cal. App. 4th 995, 1017) .

In Rakestraw v. California Physicians' Service (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 39, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 354 , the trial court sustained a demurrer to plaintiffs' third amended complaint and entered judgment for defendant. Plaintiffs appealed. The court of appeal affirmed. The issue before the court was whether a private health care service plan contract requiring a $1,000 copayment in connection with pregnancy and child delivery violated the prohibition against the use of copayments "because of sex" in the Knox-Keene Health Care Service Plan Act of 1975 (Health & Saf. Code § 1340 et seq.). In affirming the judgment, the court concluded that the complaint did not state a cause of action, and moreover, that the plaintiffs had not provided adequate legal authority or factual allegations as required to satisfy their burden of showing that there was a possibility that they could have amended the legal effect of their complaint (81 Cal. App. 4th 39, 53) . The court stated that when a demurrer is sustained without leave to amend, the appellate court decides whether a reasonable possibility exists that amendment may cure the defect. The plaintiff bears the burden of proving there is a reasonable possibility of amendment. The plaintiff may make this showing for the first time on appeal. To satisfy that burden, the plaintiff must show in what manner the plaintiff can amend the complaint and how that amendment will change the legal effect of the pleading. The plaintiff must clearly and specifically set forth the applicable substantive law and legal basis for amendment, i.e., the elements of the cause of action and authority for it (81 Cal. App. 4th 39, 43) . Allegations must be factual and specific, not vague or conclusory. The burden of showing that a reasonable possibility exists that amendment can cure the defects remains with plaintiff; neither the trial court nor appellate court will rewrite the complaint. When the appellant offers no allegations to support the possibility of amendment and no legal authority showing the viability of new causes of action, there is no basis for finding the trial court abused its discretion when it sustained the demurrer without leave to amend (81 Cal. App. 4th 39, 44) .

G.L. Mezzetta, Inc. v. City of American Canyon (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1087, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 292 , involved an action for breach of an oral and written contract, inverse condemnation, and civil rights violations. The trial court ultimately sustained defendant's demurrers as to all causes of action without leave to amend. In affirming the trial court's order, the court of appeal noted that when a demurrer is sustained without leave to amend, the appellate court will only reverse for abuse of discretion if it determines there is a reasonable possibility the pleading can be cured by amendment. Otherwise, trial court's decision will be affirmed for lack of abuse (78 Cal. App. 4th 1087, 1091-1092) .

Lazar v. Hertz Corp. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1494, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 368 , involved a class action complaint for damages and injunctive relief against four rental car companies alleging that they refused to rent automobiles to persons under 25 years old or unreasonably restricted such rentals. Causes of action were pled for age discrimination in violation of the Unruh Civil Rights Act; unlawful, fraudulent and unfair business practices; unfair and fraudulent advertising; and false and misleading advertising. Initially, the trial court sustained one defendant's demurrer to four of seven causes of action alleged without leave to amend, but overruled the demurrer on the other three causes of action. Thereafter, plaintiff moved for and obtained a dismissal without prejudice of two causes of action, leaving one cause of action. Ultimately, the trial court granted a motion for summary adjudication filed by two of the defendants on the last cause of action. Judgment in the defendants' favor was then entered (69 Cal. App. 4th 1494, 1499-1500) . The court of appeal upheld the judgment. In concluding that the trial court properly sustained the demurrer without leave to amend, the court of appeal noted that when the trial court sustains a demurrer without leave to amend, the appellate court must consider whether the complaint might state a cause of action if a defect could reasonably be cured by amendment. If the defect can be cured, judgment of dismissal must be reversed to allow plaintiff opportunity to do so. The plaintiff bears the burden of demonstrating a reasonable possibility to cure any defect by amendment. The trial court abuses its discretion if it sustains a demurrer without leave to amend when the plaintiff shows a reasonable possibility to cure any defect by amendment. If the plaintiff cannot show an abuse of discretion, the trial court's order sustaining the demurrer without leave to amend must be affirmed (69 Cal. App. 4th 1494, 1501) .

Redmond v. Secure Horizons, Pacificare, Inc. (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 96, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 174 , involved a bad faith action based on the plaintiff's claim for reimbursement of health care expenses covered under plaintiff's Medicare-subsidized agreement with defendant. Defendant filed a demurrer claiming that the court lacked subject matter jurisdiction because plaintiff failed to exhaust administrative remedies under the Medicare Act and also that subject matter jurisdiction was lacking because of plaintiff's non-joinder/misjoinder of parties (60 Cal. App. 4th 96, 99-100) . The court granted defendant's demurrer without leave to amend and judgment was entered in defendant's favor (60 Cal. App. 4th 96, 100) . In affirming the judgment and holding that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in failing to grant leave to amend, the court of appeal pointed out that denial of leave to amend constitutes an abuse of discretion if the pleading does not show on its face that it is incapable of amendment. Generally it is an abuse of discretion to sustain a demurrer without leave to amend if there is any reasonable possibility that the defect can be cured by amendment. However, the burden is on plaintiff to demonstrate that the trial court abused its discretion. Plaintiff must show in what manner plaintiff can amend plaintiff's complaint and how that amendment will change the legal effect of plaintiff's pleading. If there are no factual disputes in the case, the nature of the claim is obvious, and no liability exists under the applicable substantive law, a court should deny leave to amend. Under the circumstances of the case, there was no reasonable possibility that plaintiff could amend plaintiff's complaint to allege that the conduct on which plaintiff based plaintiff's actions formed the basis for one or more causes of action over which the trial court had jurisdiction (60 Cal. App. 4th 96, 105-106) .

Lucas v. Santa Maria Public Airport Dist. (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 1017, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 177 , involved a complaint against an Airport District alleging that the District violated law and the public trust by entering into a multiyear employment contract with its general manager. The plaintiff claimed that the Public Utilities Code did not permit the District to employ a general manager for a term of years. The trial court sustained the District's demurrer to the complaint. The court of appeal noted that it was required to determine whether the complaint stated a cause of action and whether the pleading could be cured by amendment (39 Cal. App. 4th 1017, 1022) . The court then determined that as a matter of law, the provisions of the District's employment contract did not violate any applicable statutes or administrative regulations (39 Cal. App. 4th 1017, 1024) . The court thus affirmed the order sustaining the demurrer (39 Cal. App. 4th 1017, 1029) .

[d] Complaint Affirmatively Alleges Affirmative Defense

In Easton v. Sutter Coast Hospital (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 485, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 316 , the court construed the breadth of the immunity from civil liability conferred under Welf. & Inst. Code § 15634 both for those who report suspected elder abuse and those who facilitate access to the victims of suspected abuse. Plaintiffs, successors in interest to deceased, alleged causes of action for trespass and false imprisonment. As to both torts, the complaint alleged intentional or negligent infliction of emotional distress. The complaint also alleged negligent infliction of emotional distress based on the failure to train and supervise employees and failure to promulgate reasonable policies to minimize excessive suffering to patient's relatives. The trial court sustained defendants' demurrers concluding that under Welf. & Inst. Code § 15634 defendants were immunized from their conduct and dismissed plaintiffs' complaint (80 Cal. App. 4th 485, 488-490) . The court of appeal affirmed the judgment of dismissal (80 Cal. App. 4th 485, 497) . Under the facts, the court construed Welf. & Inst. Code § 15634 to create absolute privileges barring plaintiffs' claims (80 Cal. App. 4th 485, 490-497) . During the course of the opinion the court noted that a demurrer to a complaint is properly sustained if the complaint on its face alleges facts amounting to an affirmative defense of absolute privilege (80 Cal. App. 4th 485, 490) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.21

§ 71.21 Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Insufficiency Established by Judicially Noticed Matter [Evid. Code § 452]

[1] FORM Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Insufficiency Established by Judicially Noticed Matter [Evid. Code § 452]

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a general demurrer (see § 71.20).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE SUSTAINED BECAUSE THE INSUFFICIENCY IS ESTABLISHED BY FACTS OF WHICH THE COURT IS REQUIRED TO OR MAY TAKE JUDICIAL NOTICE.

A. Ground for Objection Appears From Matter of Which Court May Take Judicial Notice. When any ground for objection to a complaint or cross complaint appears from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice, the objection on that ground may be taken by a demurrer to the pleading (Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)). Accordingly, matters judicially noticed may be read into the complaint in determining its sufficiency to state a cause of action (see E.H. Morrill Co. v. State of California (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 787, 795, 56 Cal. Rptr. 479, 423 P.2d 551).

B. Objection by General Demurrer. [See § 71.20, Paragraph B].

[EITHER]

C. Laws of Other States. The court may take judicial notice of the _____ [decisional or constitutional or statutory or combination of these] laws of any state of the United States, to the extent that such matters are not embraced within Section 451 of the Evidence Code, relating to mandatory Judicial Notice (Evid. Code § 452(a)).

[AND/OR]

D. Resolutions and Private Acts of Congress or Legislature. The court may take judicial notice of the resolutions and private acts of the _____ [Congress of the United States or Legislature of this state or both], to the extent that such matters are not embraced within Section 451 of the Evidence Code, relating to mandatory judicial notice (Evid. Code § 452(a)).

[AND/OR]

E. Regulations and Enactments of Federal Government or Public Entity. The Court may take judicial notice of regulations and legislative enactments issued by or under the authority of _____ [the United States or any public entity in the United States or both], to the extent that such matters are not embraced within Section 451 of the Evidence Code, relating to mandatory judicial notice (Evid. Code § 452(b)).

[Optional] F. City and County Ordinances. City and county ordinances may be judicially noticed, under Section 452(b) of the Evidence Code, as regulations and legislative enactments issued by or under the authority of a public entity in the United States (see Beresford Neighborhood Assn. v. City of San Mateo (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1180, 1190-1191, 255 Cal. Rptr. 434 ; Grant v. Hipsher (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 375, 380 n.2, 64 Cal. Rptr. 892).

[AND/OR]

G. Official Acts of Federal and State Government. The court may take judicial notice of official acts of the _____ [legislative or executive or judicial] department of _____ [the United States or any state of the United States], to the extent that such matters are not embraced within Section 451 of the Evidence Code, relating to mandatory judicial notice (Evid. Code § 452(c)).

[Optional] H. Acts of State Administrative Agencies. Regulations and legislative enactments issued by or under the authority of any public entity in the United States, include, within the meaning of Section 452 of the Evidence Code, the orders, regulations, decisions, and records of state administrative agencies (El Rancho Unified School Dist. v. National Education Assn. (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 946, 950 n.6, 192 Cal. Rptr. 123, 663 P.2d 893

[AND/OR]

I. Court Records. The court may take judicial notice of records of _____ [any court of this state or any court of record of the United States or any court of record of any state of the United States or combination of these], to the extent that such matters are not embraced within Section 451 of the Evidence Code, relating to mandatory judicial notice (Evid. Code § 452(d); Cote v. Henderson (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 796, 802, 267 Cal. Rptr. 274 ; Tarr v. Merco Constr. Engineers, Inc. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 707, 712, 148 Cal. Rptr. 813).

[AND/OR]

J. Court Rules. The court may take judicial notice of the rules of court of _____ [any court of this state or any court of record of the United States or any court of record of any state of the United States or combination of these], to the extent that such matters are not embraced within Section 451 of the Evidence Code, relating to mandatory judicial notice (Evid. Code § 452(e)).

[AND/OR]

K. Laws of Foreign Nations and Public Entities. The court may take Judicial Notice of the law of _____ [an organization of nations or foreign nations or public entities in foreign nations or combination of these], to the extent that such matters are not embraced within Section 451 of the Evidence Code, relating to mandatory judicial notice (Evid. Code § 452(f).)

[AND/OR]

L. Facts and Propositions of Common Knowledge Within Court's Territorial Jurisdiction. The court may take judicial notice of facts and propositions that are of such common knowledge within the territorial jurisdiction of the court that they cannot reasonably be the subject of dispute, to the extent that such matters are not embraced within Section 451 of the Evidence Code, relating to mandatory judicial notice (Evid. Code § 452(g)).

[AND/OR]

M. Facts and Propositions Not Reasonably Subject to Dispute. The court may take judicial notice of facts and propositions that are not reasonably subject to dispute and are capable of immediate and accurate determination by resort to sources of reasonably indisputable accuracy, to the extent that such matters are not embraced within Section 451 of the Evidence Code, relating to mandatory judicial notice (Evid. Code § 452(h); Estate of Rudolph (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 81, 84, 169 Cal. Rptr. 126).

[CONTINUE]

N. Requirement That Court Take Judicial Notice. A trial court is, on proper request that it do so, required to take judicial notice of the matters specified in Evidence Code Section 452 (Evid. Code §§ 11, 453).

O. Request That Court Take Judicial Notice. The court is hereby requested to take judicial notice of _____ [specify matter to be judicially noticed, e.g., the Constitution of the State of _____ (sister state), and, specifically, of Article II, § 15 thereof], and to enable the court to do so, a _____ [e.g., copy of that Constitution, certified by the Secretary of State of _____ (sister state) as being current], is attached hereto and made a part hereof. (See Code Civ. Proc. § 430.70.)

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in support of a general demurrer when the failure to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action appears by reference to facts that may be judicially noticed by the court.

The foregoing memorandum should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a demurrer to a complaint made on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see § 71.20]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, if the plaintiff is suing defendant for breach of contract, but his or her claim had already been transferred to a trustee in bankruptcy proceedings before commencing the action, the defendant should argue that (1) the court may take judicial notice of the bankruptcy petition as a record of a court of record of the United States; (2) the petition bears a filing date prior to the filing date of plaintiff's action; and (3) because plaintiff's claim was transferred to the bankruptcy trustee prior to the action, plaintiff lacks standing to sue, the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, and the demurrer, therefore, should be sustained [see Tarr v. Merco Constr. Eng'rs, Inc. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 707, 712, 148 Cal. Rptr. 813 , discussed under § 71.21[3][d]].

[b] Mandatory Judicial Notice

Matters of which the court is required to [Evid. Code § 11] take Judicial Notice are enumerated in Evid. Code § 451. These matters would be cited in the memorandum as primary authorities (e.g., the decisional, constitutional, and statutory laws of California, the Rules of Professional Conduct for attorneys, the California Rules of Court, etc.).

[c] Request for Permissive Judicial Notice

When the ground for demurrer is based on a matter that the court may take permissive judicial notice under Evid. Code § 452 or 453, the matter must be specified in the demurrer, or in the supporting points and authorities for the purpose of invoking the notice, except as the court may otherwise permit [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.70].

The trial court is required to take judicial notice of any matter specified in Evid. Code § 452, if a party requests it, and (a) gives each adverse party sufficient notice of the request, through the pleadings or otherwise, to enable such adverse party to prepare to meet the request; and (b) furnishes the court with sufficient information to enable it to take judicial notice of the matter [Evid. Code § 453; see also Evid. Code §§ 454 (consultation of pertinent information by court), 455 (opportunity to present information by parties), 456 (denial of request)].

Various tests or rules have been applied in determining whether a court taking Judicial Notice of a document may take the further step of accepting its truth or adopting a proposed interpretation of its meaning [Joslin v. H.A.S. Ins. Brokerage (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 369, 374, 228 Cal. Rptr. 878] . The court in Joslin noted three specific approaches [see Joslin v. H.A.S. Ins. Brokerage (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 369, 374-375, 228 Cal. Rptr. 878] .

The first approach is that when a court takes judicial notice of a document in its own files or in the files of another court [see Evid. Code § 452(d)], the court will not consider the truth of the document's contents unless it is an order, statement of decision, or judgment [Joslin v. H.A.S. Ins. Brokerage (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 369, 374-375, 228 Cal. Rptr. 878 (citing Garcia v. Sterling (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 17, 22, 221 Cal. Rptr. 349 and Ramsden v. Western Union (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 873, 879, 138 Cal. Rptr. 426)]. Under this approach, a court may take Judicial Notice of the existence of each document in a court file [see Evid. Code § 452(d)], but can only take judicial notice of the truth of facts asserted in documents such as orders, statements of decision, and judgments. A court may not judicially notice as true, assertions in declarations and affidavits filed in court proceedings or factual matters asserted in a court's file in other proceedings, or hearsay allegations, just because they are part of a court record or file [Bach v. NcNelis (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 852, 864-865, 255 Cal. Rptr. 232] .

The second approach is that the court may accept the truth of statements made by the party whose pleadings are being challenged but not statements of an opponent or third party [Joslin v. H.A.S. Ins. Brokerage (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 369, 374-375, 228 Cal. Rptr. 878 (citing Del E. Webb Corp. v. Structural Materials Co. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 593, 604-605, 176 Cal. Rptr. 824 , and Able v. Van Der Zee (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 728, 734, 64 Cal. Rptr. 481)].

The third approach, which provides maximum flexibility while still insisting that disputed factual issues cannot be resolved on demurrer, proposes judicial notice of matters on demurrer will be dispositive only in those instances in which there is not or cannot be a factual dispute concerning that which is sought to be judicially noticed [Joslin v. H.A.S. Ins. Brokerage(1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 369, 374-375, 228 Cal. Rptr. 878 (citing Cruz v. County of Los Angeles (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1131, 1134, 219 Cal. Rptr. 661)]. Under this approach, judicial notice is dispositive of a demurrer only when no factual dispute exists concerning that which is sought to be judicially noticed. The taking of judicial notice does not in and of itself require acceptance of the truth of a factual matter that might be deduced from that matter, since in many instances what is being noticed and thereby established is no more than the existence of an act or a thing and not, without supporting evidence, what might factually be associated with or flow from the noticed matter [Cruz v. County of Los Angeles (1985)173 Cal. App. 3d 1131, 1134, 219 Cal. Rptr. 661] .

The court in Joslin concluded that correct results will be reached in most cases by application of either of the first two rules, but that there may be occasional cases that can only be resolved properly by using the third approach; and although this approach is more subtle and for this reason requires greater skill in its use, the third approach is the most reliable in all cases [Joslin v. H.A.S. Ins. Brokerage (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 368, 375, 228 Cal. Rptr. 878] .

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For additional authorities, including cases, supporting the taking of judicial notice of the prior records of a court in ruling on a general demurrer based on res judicata, see § 71.24.

For a memorandum in support of a special demurrer to a complaint on the ground of another action pending and invoking judicial notice of that other action, see § 71.65.

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in §§ 71.30 -71.32 may be used to oppose the general demurrer supported by the foregoing memorandum.

See also § 71.20[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Ground for Objection Appears From Matter of Which Court May Take Judicial Notice

Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10 authorizes a party against whom a complaint or cross complaint has been filed to object by demurrer or answer, as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30, to the pleading on any one or more of the grounds enumerated in that section, and Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a) provides that when the ground for objection appears on the face of the pleading or from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice, the objection on that ground may be taken by a demurrer to the pleading.

E.H. Morrill Co. v. California (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 787, 56 Cal. Rptr. 479, 423 P.2d 551 , was an action for damages for the costs of performing additional work under a construction contract with the state. The damages were alleged to have resulted from the state's misrepresentation or warranty as to the subsurface conditions the contractor would encounter in excavating for the facility to be constructed. The complaint set forth three causes of action: the first based on misrepresentation, the second on breach of implied warranty, and the third on a common count that derived its validity or lack of it from the propriety of either of the first two causes of action. The state's demurrer to the complaint was sustained without leave to amend. The trial court took judicial notice of section four of the General Conditions of the contract between the parties which it construed as constituting a disclaimer of liability by the state.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment of dismissal. The Court held that the trial court erred in construing section four of the General Conditions as an effective disclaimer as a matter of law, that the complaint stated a cause of action for recovery on a theory of breach of implied warranty, and that the complaint could be amended to state a cause of action for fraudulent misrepresentation (65 Cal. 2d 787, 791) . In rejecting plaintiff's contention that the trial court improperly took judicial notice of section four of the General Conditions of the contract, which plaintiff had failed to include in its pleadings, the Supreme Court said, "Section 1875 of the Code of Civil Procedure [repealed; now Evid. Code § 452(a), (c)] provides: 'Courts take judicial notice of the following: ... 3. Public and private official acts of the legislative, executive and judicial departments of this state and of the United States. ...' It has been held proper for the trial and appellate courts to take judicial notice of the official records of a state agency (see [citation]) and, specifically, that 'The trial court was bound to notice judicially the provisions of the contract [between defendant and the United States government] and, in considering the complaint, to read the pleading as if the contract were set out in full therein.' [Citations.] In determining the sufficiency of the complaint those matters properly judicially noticed may be considered" (65 Cal. 2d 787, 794-795) .

[b] City and County Ordinances

The facts and procedural background of Beresford Neighborhood Assn. v. City of San Mateo (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1180, 255 Cal. Rptr. 434 , are discussed in § 71.20[3][a]. In Beresford Neighborhood Assn., the court of appeal noted that the complaint alleged that the city was required under its municipal code to employ bidding procedures in connection with the proposed transfer of the site. The defendant city asked the trial court to take Judicial Notice of the city's municipal code, which indicated that the city's use of bidding procedures is discretionary. The court stated that for the purposes of a demurrer, a court may consider matters that are subject to judicial notice (207 Cal. App. 3d 1180, 1191) .

Grant v. Hipsher (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 375, 64 Cal. Rptr. 892 , was a wrongful death action in which administrator of the decedent's estate sued the owner of property where the decedent drowned in a swimming pool. The property was leased to a tenant at the time of the accident. A jury verdict was entered for defendant owner and the administrator appealed, arguing that the trial court erred in withholding from the jury the question of whether defendant violated provisions of a county ordinance requiring that the premises be fenced with self-closing and self-latching gates.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that it was the duty of the lessor to see that permanent improvements to the demised premises conformed to applicable safety ordinances. The court stated, in a footnote, that normally it would have been necessary for the plaintiff to have offered to prove the contents of an ordinance before he or she could complain on appeal of the court's rulings with reference thereto. If, however, it would have been futile to offer the ordinance into evidence such an offer would have been excused. Futility in this case, the court concluded, was established by the fact that at the time the case went to trial (prior to the January 1, 1967, operative date of Evid. Code § 452), courts did not take judicial notice of the contents of a city or county ordinance. By way of dictum, the court then cited Evid. Code § 452(b), "for the present rule," implying that, at the time the appeal was taken, courts were authorized under that section to take judicial notice of the contents of a city or county ordinance (257 Cal. App. 2d 375, 380 n.2).

[c] Acts of State Administrative Agencies

In El Rancho Unified School Dist. v. National Education Assn. (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 946, 192 Cal. Rptr. 123, 663 P.2d 893 , plaintiff, a school district, charged the four defendant labor unions with violations of the Education Employment Relations Act (Gov. Code § 3450 et seq.). During the pendency of administrative hearings on the matter, the district filed a tort action in superior court. The defendants demurred to the complaint on the ground that the court lacked subject matter jurisdiction of the action because a provision of the Government Code divested the trial court of jurisdiction. While still in the pleading stages, the case went on appeal to the Supreme Court on the issue of jurisdiction.

The Supreme Court affirmed the trial court's order sustaining the union's demurrer and dismissing the school district's action. Prior to its discussion of the merits of the case, the Court stated in a footnote that defendants' demurrer reached not only the contents of the challenged pleading itself but also such matters as may be properly considered under the doctrine of judicial notice. The Supreme Court cited Evid. Code § 452(c) as authority for the rule that such matters include the orders, regulations, decisions, and records of state administrative agencies (33 Cal. 3d 946, 950 n.6).

[d] Court Records

In Cote v. Henderson (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 796, 267 Cal. Rptr. 274 , plaintiff filed a complaint against defendant for malicious prosecution and intentional infliction of emotional distress. Defendant's general demurrer was sustained without leave to Amend and plaintiff appealed from the order of dismissal.

The court of appeal affirmed. On appeal, the plaintiff asserted that it was error for the trial court to take judicial notice of the truth of factual matters such as arrest reports, probation and sentencing reports as well as psychiatric reports. The court stated that it had no quarrel with the plaintiff's recitation of the law, but found that nothing in the record on appeal reflected that the trial court improperly took judicial notice of anything in the court files in question (218 Cal. App. 3d 796, 801-802) . The court quoted Day v. Sharp (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 904, 914, 123 Cal. Rptr. 918 , for the rule that a court may take judicial notice of the truth of facts asserted in documents such as orders, findings of fact and conclusions of law (now statement of decision), and judgments (218 Cal. App. 3d 796, 802) .

Tarr v. Merco Constr. Eng'rs, Inc. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 707 , 148 Cal. Rptr. 813 , was an action against a construction company and an insurer for damages arising out of a construction contract. Defendants demurred to plaintiff's third amended complaint on the ground, among others, that plaintiff lacked standing to sue since he had filed for bankruptcy prior to commencement of the action and his claim had passed to his trustee in bankruptcy. The trial court took judicial notice of the filing by plaintiff of a petition in bankruptcy, sustained the demurrers, and entered a judgment of dismissal.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The court stated that the doctrine is well settled that, in measuring the validity of a pleading in the face of a demurrer, both the trial court and the appellate court are entitled to consider the impact of information that has surfaced by reason of invocation of the doctrine of judicial notice (84 Cal. App. 3d 707, 712) .

[e] Facts and Propositions Not Reasonably Subject to Dispute

In Estate of Rudolph (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 81, 84, 169 Cal. Rptr. 126 , the decedent's sister petitioned the court for revocation of an order admitting decedent's formally executed will and codicil to probate and appointing an administrator with the will annexed, and for admission to probate of a holograph that did not mention the month of execution, only "Monday 26, 1978." Without objection the trial court took judicial notice that in the year 1978 only once did the 26th day of a month occur on a Monday: in June. Nevertheless, the petition was denied on the sole ground the document did not contain an "entire" date.

The court of appeal reversed. The court stated that although some decisions contain language which if read out of context require inscription of the month, day, and year, they were distinguishable because not one of them involved a dating that could refer to only one day. In this case, judicial notice corrected the facially incomplete dating without resort to extrinsic evidence, and both capacity and chronology could then be appropriately determined (112 Cal. App. 3d 81, 83-84) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Ground for Objection Appears From Matter of Which Court May Take Judicial Notice

In Scannell v. County of Riverside (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 596, 199 Cal. Rptr. 644 , plaintiff sued a county and certain of its employees, attempting to state, among others, causes of action for false imprisonment. The trial court sustained general demurrers to these causes of action without leave to amend, and plaintiff appealed the ensuing judgment of dismissal. The court of appeal affirmed as to these causes of action. The court held that the causes of action were barred by the applicable statute of limitation, Gov. Code § 911.2. The court stated the rule that a complaint otherwise good on its face is nevertheless subject to demurrer when facts judicially noticed render it defective (152 Cal. App. 3d 596, 606) . In this case the causes of action were timely on their face, but were nonetheless defective in light of facts manifesting that the plaintiff was actually released from jail over 10 months before he filed his claim against the county pursuant to Gov. Code § 911.2. Specifically, the court took judicial notice of the municipal court record of the prior criminal case showing the date the plaintiff filed his bail bond, and of the booking sheet of the county sheriff's department showing the date of his release from jail (152 Cal. App. 3d 596, 605-606) .

See also Dwan v. Dixon (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 260, 265, 30 Cal. Rptr. 749 ("The rule is well established that a complaint good on its face is nevertheless subject to demurrer when facts judicially noticed render it defective"); Byrne v. Harvey (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 92, 106-107, 27 Cal. Rptr. 110 .

[b] Acts of State Administrative Agencies

Contractor's etc. Assn. v. Cal. Comp. Ins. Co. (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 71, 307 P.2d 626 , was an action to recover dividends on an agreement made in conjunction with the purchase of a workers' compensation insurance policy. Defendant's "oral demurrer" (objection) to the introduction of any evidence was sustained on the ground the agreement constituted an illegal rebate and was unenforceable. In affirming the subsequent judgment of dismissal, the Supreme Court said that in ruling on the demurrer the trial court, in concluding the agreement was illegal, had before it the Insurance Code and administrative rules of the Insurance Commissioner and that a consideration of these was proper. Although not pleaded, the trial court could take judicial notice pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1875 (repealed; now see Evid. Code § 452(a), (c)) of "Public and private official acts of the legislative, executive and judicial department of this state. ..." (48 Cal. 2d 71, 75) .

Note:

In the above-cited case plaintiff was seeking to recover illegal rebates under workers' compensation insurance and the substantive ruling in the case has been distinguished on this ground in subsequent cases [see Homestead Supplies, Inc. v. Executive Life Ins. Co. (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 978, 987-990, 147 Cal. Rptr. 22 (court assumed without deciding that oral agreement to modify premiums on term life insurance after specified number of years violated both rebate and price discrimination statutory provisions but held illegality was not such as to render agreement unenforceable under circumstances of case); R.D. Reeder Lathing Co. v. Cypress Ins. Co. (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 995, 998-999, 84 Cal. Rptr. 98 (action, not to recover illegal rebates, but to recover damages suffered when defendants fraudulently induced plaintiff to enter into illegal transaction involving workers' compensation insurance)].

Chas. L. Harney, Inc. v. State of California (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 77, 31 Cal. Rptr. 524 , was an action by a contractor against the state on a claim for work done and materials furnished for a highway project. Defendant demurred to the complaint on several grounds, including the ground of failure to state a cause of action, and filed in the trial court certified copies of plaintiff's claims filed with the State Board of Control and other documents relating to it. Defendant's position was that the official documents, together with plaintiff's pleadings, showed that the causes of action attempted to be set forth in the second amended complaint were barred by the statute of limitations, that is, that they had not been brought within six months after rejection of the original claim as required by Gov. Code § 644 (repealed; now see Gov. Code § 945.6). The trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend, and plaintiff appealed from the judgment of dismissal. In affirming the judgment, the court of appeal said that courts have power to take judicial notice of the official records and files of the State Board of Control and of the office of the State Controller and that the matters to be judicially noticed were properly brought to the attention of the trial court by transmission of the certified copies of the records involved (217 Cal. App. 2d 77, 85-86) . The court held that matters judicially noticed may be considered in construing the pleadings, that in the consideration of a pleading the courts must read it as if it contained a statement of all matters of which they are required to take judicial notice, even when the pleading contains an express allegation to the contrary, and that the rule is well established that a complaint good on its face is nevertheless subject to demurrer when facts not alleged but judicially noticed render it defective (217 Cal. App. 2d 77, 86-87) .

[c] Court Records

In Britz, Inc. v. Dow Chemical Co. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 177, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 188 , a joint tortfeasor settled with plaintiffs who had brought separate actions, obtained a good faith settlement determination, was dismissed from the actions and dismissed a cross-complaint for indemnity against its codefendants that it had brought in one of the actions. The joint tortfeasor then filed an action against its former codefendants seeking indemnity for the amount it had paid to settle with the plaintiffs. Subsequently, the former codefendants settled with the plaintiffs and, after notice to the joint tortfeasor, obtained a good faith settlement. Thereafter, the joint tortfeasor filed a first amended complaint against its former codefendants seeking indemnity, declaratory relief and damages for fraud and negligent misrepresentation. The trial court sustained the former codefendants' demurrer to the first amended complaint taking judicial notice of the good faith settlement determinations and dismissed the action. In affirming, the court of appeal noted that when court records which the court may judicially notice provide ground for objection to a complaint, a demurrer on that ground is proper (73 Cal. App. 4th 177, 180) .

Morton v. Loveman (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 712, 73 Cal. Rptr. 623 , was an action in equity to set aside certain property provisions of interlocutory and final divorce decrees. Defendant's general and special demurrer to the amended complaint was sustained without leave to amend after plaintiff elected to stand on her pleading, and the action was dismissed. The theory of the amended complaint was that defendant had breached his fiduciary duty to plaintiff in the prior divorce action by undervaluing some community assets and concealing others. It appeared from the record in the divorce case that the issues presently sought to be litigated were before the court in the prior action. In affirming the judgment, the court of appeal held that it was proper for the trial court to take judicial notice of the prior divorce action, and, quoting from Watson v. Los Altos School Dist. (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 768, 771-772, 308 P.2d 872 , said, "The rule is well settled that a complaint otherwise good on its face is nevertheless subject to demurrer when facts judicially noticed render it defective. As pointed out in 2 Witkin, California Procedure, page 1185: 'The theory is that the pleader should not be allowed to by-pass a demurrer by suppressing facts which the court will judicially notice. The principle is that of truthful pleading, and is applied for the same reason as in the similar situation of pleaded exhibits which contradict allegations.' " (267 Cal. App. 2d 712, 717) .

See also Able v. Van Der Zee (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 728, 734, 64 Cal. Rptr. 481 (in ruling on a demurrer, the court may "take judicial notice of evidentiary matters in its own records, including affidavits, declarations, and interrogatories or requests for admissions, which are inconsistent with the allegations in the complaint").

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.22

§ 71.22 Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Lacks Standing to Maintain Action

[1] FORM Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Lacks Standing to Maintain Action

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a general demurrer (see § 71.20).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE SUSTAINED BECAUSE IT APPEARS ON THE FACE OF THE COMPLAINT [OR FROM MATTERS OF WHICH THE COURT MUST OR MAY TAKE JUDICIAL NOTICE] THAT PLAINTIFF IS NOT THE REAL PARTY IN INTEREST.

A. Prosecution by Real Party in Interest. Every action must, except as otherwise expressly authorized by law, be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest (Code Civ. Proc. § 367; see Killian v. Millard (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1601, 1605, 279 Cal. Rptr. 877).

B. Action Stated Not in Plaintiff. A complaint that states a cause of action in a person other than plaintiff, and does not state a cause of action in plaintiff is subject to a general demurrer for failure to state a cause of action (Klopstock v. Superior Court (1941) 17 Cal.2d 13, 19, 108 P.2d 906 ; Ventura County Ry. Co. v. Hadley Auto Transport (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 878, 880, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a general demurrer to a complaint when it appears on the face of the complaint or from judicially noticed matter that the cause of action stated is in some person other than plaintiff, and plaintiff is not a person expressly authorized by law to maintain the action [see Klopstock v. Superior Court (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 13, 19, 108 P.2d 906 , discussed under § 71.22[3][b]]. For a similar memorandum in support of a general demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

For the procedure for invoking judicial notice, see § 71.21[2].

These points and authorities should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a demurrer to a complaint made on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see § 71.20]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should include discussion showing how the allegations of the complaint or facts from which the court is required to or may take Judicial Notice establish that the plaintiff is not the real party in interest in the action.

[b] Amendment to Substitute Parties

If the demurrer is sustained, the court may permit the filing of an amended complaint naming the real party in interest as the plaintiff [see Klopstock v. Superior Court (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 13, 21, 108 P.2d 906 ; Tinsley v. Palo Alto Unified School Dist. (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 871, 888-889, 154 Cal. Rptr. 591] . Amendments to substitute a plaintiff with standing for one who is not a real party in interest are freely allowed [Charpentier v. Los Angeles Rams Football Co. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 301, 308, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 115] .

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in § 71.33 may be used to oppose the general demurrer supported by these points and authorities.

See also § 71.20[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Prosecution by Real Party in Interest

Code Civ. Proc. § 367 provides that every action must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest, except as otherwise provided by statute. For example, Code Civ. Proc. § 369, and Civ. Code § 1363(c), relate respectively, to actions by executors, administrators, trustees of an express trust, and other persons expressly authorized by statute, and to actions by owners' associations established in condominium, community apartment, and undivided interest subdivision projects and planned developments.

Killian v. Millard (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1601, 279 Cal. Rptr. 877 , was a breach-of-contract action, in which the trial court voided certain agreements between plaintiffs and third-party investors under which plaintiffs, to fund their lawsuit, had sold units to the investors in return for a percentage share in the net profits of the lawsuit. The court also ordered plaintiffs to repay, with interest, the money they had received under the agreements. The orders were made on the defendant's motion. The investors were not parties to the lawsuit and plaintiffs' agreements with them were not relevant to any issue in the case. Plaintiffs appealed from the orders.

The court of appeal reversed. Although the case involved an attempt by defendant, through an improper use of the motion procedure, to secure an adjudication of his claim, the court of appeal said it is well settled that only parties with a real interest in a dispute have standing to seek its adjudication, that a real party in interest ordinarily is defined as the person possessing the right sued on by reason of the substantive law, that the question of standing to sue is one of the right to relief and goes to the existence of a cause of action against the defendant, and that when a complaint states a cause of action in someone, but not in the plaintiff, a general demurrer for failure to state a cause of action will be sustained (288 Cal. App. 3d 1601, 1605) . The court said that defendant had no substantive right in the agreements with the investors, that he lacked standing to seek to void them, and that lack of standing is not waived by the failure to raise it in the trial court, but may be raised at any point in the proceedings (288 Cal. App. 3d 1601, 1605) . The court concluded that defendant lacked standing to attack the agreements and the trial court erred in making the orders (288 Cal. App. 3d 1601, 1607) .

[b] Action Stated Not in Plaintiff

Klopstock v. Superior Court (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 13, 108 P.2d 906 , was a mandate proceeding to compel respondent court to dismiss an action after judgment in the case had been reversed on appeal. In 1926 a corporation was organized with its entire stock held by three brothers, Isaac, Frederick, and Samuel Klopstock, who were also its directors. In 1933 Isaac died, leaving his property to his wife, Grace. While Isaac's estate was still in probate, Grace died and Samuel Samter was appointed executor of her will. Samter then commenced the action on behalf of the corporation to compel the two surviving brothers to repay to the corporation certain sums alleged to have been wrongfully withheld. His theory was that since Isaac had died leaving his property to Grace, Grace was the beneficial owner of the stock (no distribution in Isaac's estate had yet been made), and that when Grace died, he, as her executor, could bring the action on behalf of the corporation. Defendants' general demurrer to the complaint was overruled and judgment after trial was given in favor of Isaac's estate. The court of appeal reversed on the ground Isaac's estate was not a party to the action. It also declared that plaintiff was not the proper party to bring the action and that this objection could be raised by general demurrer. After the reversal, Samter sought and, over defendants' objection, was granted leave to file an amended complaint naming the administratrix of Isaac's estate as plaintiff. Defendants then filed their petition for writ of mandate to compel dismissal.

The Supreme Court denied the writ. The Court stated that although the holding on the prior appeal that Samter lacked standing to sue was correct, the trial court also correctly allowed the filing of the amended complaint to name the real party in interest as plaintiff.

In the course of the opinion, the court also distinguished the objection that plaintiff lacks capacity to sue, a ground of special demurrer, from the objection that plaintiff lacks standing to sue (17 Cal. 2d 13, 17-19) . The court stated that the former raises the question of whether any general legal disability exists, such as infancy or insanity, or want of title in the plaintiff to the character in which he or she sues, and such defect is waived by a failure to demur to it specially, whereas the latter allows that a complaint may state a cause of action in someone, but not in the plaintiff. In addition, the court cited a case from another state providing that there is a difference between capacity to sue, which is the right to come into court, and a cause of action, which is the right to relief in court (17 Cal. 2d 13, 18-19) . For discussion related to the distinction between a general and special demurrer generally, see § 71.05.

In Ventura County Ry. Co. v. Hadley Auto Transport (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 878, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362 , a truck driver was injured in his truck was hit by a train. In the ensuing litigation, the railway cross complained against the truck driver's employer, alleging that the employer unlawfully discriminated against the employee under the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA; 42 U.S.C. § 12101 et seq.) by refusing to rehire him because of his injuries. The railway's theory was that this employment would mitigate damages. The employer demurred on the ground that the railway lacked standing. The trial court sustained the demurrer, and the railway appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court first quoted the language of Code Civ. Proc. § 367, requiring every action to be brought by the real party in interest, except as otherwise provided by statute. The court then defined real party in interest as the person possessing the right sued on by reason of the substantive law and stated that when the complaint states a cause of action in someone, but not the plaintiff, a demurrer will be sustained (38 Cal. App. 4th 878, 880) . Reviewing the terms of the ADA, the court concluded that, despite the broad language of the Act, the railway had failed to establish that it sought to assert its own substantive rights, so that it failed to satisfy the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 367 (38 Cal. App. 4th 878, 882) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Action Stated Not in Plaintiff

Hart v. County of Alameda (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 766, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 386 , involved an action brought by plaintiff on behalf of himself and others similarly situated against 25 California counties, seeking the return of unused jury deposit fees. The trial court sustained the counties' demurrers without leave to amend. The court of appealed affirmed. In so doing, the court initially noted that plaintiff had alleged that plaintiff or his assignors made jury deposits in courts in four counties. The remaining 22 counties contended plaintiff lacked standing to sue because plaintiff did not allege plaintiff made a deposit in those counties and therefore plaintiff was not the real party in interest. The court concluded that this contention had merit, whether characterized as a standing defect or a failure to satisfy the class action typicality requirement. Plaintiff did not allege that plaintiff or plaintiff's assignors deposited jury fees in 22 of the 25 counties nor did plaintiff allege any facts to fit within an exception requiring a personal cause of action. Thus, plaintiff had no standing to sue the 22 counties and was not a proper class representative in claims against those counties (76 Cal. App. 4th 766, 775-776) . The court also found that the complaint failed to state a cause of action on several other grounds (see 76 Cal. App. 4th 766, 776-783) .

Charpentier v. Los Angeles Rams Football Co. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 301, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 115 , involved an action for breach of contract, intentional misrepresentation, concealment and breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing. The trial court concluded the complaint did not state a cause of action and dismissed the case. The court of appeal affirmed in part and reversed in part. With regard to the standing issue, the defendant had not raised plaintiff's standing as an issue during the demurrer proceedings. Defendant, however, argued on appeal that plaintiff lacked, or was judicially estopped to, assert standing to appeal. The court of appeal concluded that the factual allegations of plaintiff's second amended complaint contained sufficient allegations as to plaintiff's standing and that plaintiff's standing was an issue to be fleshed out in discovery or perhaps at trial (75 Cal. App. 4th 301, 307-308) . In reaching this conclusion the court discussed standing, noting that a complaint filed by a party who lacks standing is subject to demurrer. A complaint by a party lacking standing fails to state a cause of action by the particular named plaintiff, inasmuch as the claim belongs to somebody else. A more accurately stated rationale would be that there is a defect in the parties, since the party named as plaintiff is not the real party in interest (75 Cal. App. 4th 301, 307) .

American Home Ins. Co. v. Travelers Indemnity Co. (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 951, 175 Cal. Rptr. 826 , involved a complaint for reformation of an insurance contract and declaratory relief. Plaintiff, a liability insurer, sought reformation of a policy executed between defendant insurance company and a distributing company that was a subsidiary, along with plaintiff's assured (the sales division), of a larger corporation. After a fire destroyed property leased by the distributor from plaintiff's assured, plaintiff sought to reform defendant's policy to include plaintiff's assured on grounds that the parties mistakenly omitted the sales division from the policy and that the alter ego relationship between the two subsidiaries dictated that the distributor had entered into the insurance contract on sales division's behalf. Rejecting plaintiff's contentions, the trial court sustained defendant's demurrer to the complaint without leave to Amend on grounds that plaintiff lacked standing to seek either reformation or declaratory relief.

The court of appeal affirmed the dismissal, remanding only for a declaration of the rights and duties of both insurers with regard to the distributor. The general principles of third-party beneficiary law apply equally to insurance contracts, stated the court, and are decisive of a plaintiff's standing to sue. The sales division, as lessor of the damaged property, was only an incidental beneficiary and not an intended insured, and thus could not enforce any terms in the policy. Since plaintiff was seeking to assert whatever rights the incidental beneficiary had, it was similarly without standing to reform the contract (122 Cal. App. 3d 951, 967-968) .

Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 337 , was an action by an insured against his insurers for actual and punitive damages for malicious nonpayment of fire insurance. Defendants' general demurrer to the second amended complaint was sustained without leave to amend and plaintiff appealed from the judgment of dismissal. The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment on the ground the complaint showed on its face that plaintiff had been adjudicated a bankrupt after the cause of action accrued and hence under Section 70 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act [11 U.S.C. § 110; repealed, now see 11 U.S.C. § 541], the rights plaintiff sought to assert had passed to his trustee in bankruptcy and were no longer claims resident in him (68 Cal. 2d 822, 830, 837) .

People v. Kings Point Corp. (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 544, 233 Cal. Rptr. 227 , involved an appeal of a judgment against a defendant who had declared bankruptcy. The bankruptcy trustee had assumed all authority in the litigation, and stipulated to the judgment. After it became clear to the bankrupt that the bankruptcy trustee was not going to appeal the judgment, the bankrupt filed an appeal. The court of appeal dismissed the appeal, holding that the bankrupt had no standing in the action, even on appeal. Instead, the bankrupt's remedy is to petition the bankruptcy court to compel the trustee to file an appeal or to authorize the bankrupt to file an appeal on its own behalf (188 Cal. App. 3d 544, 549) .

By contrast, in Kaley v. Catalina Yachts (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1187, 232 Cal. Rptr. 384 , a personal injury plaintiff, after filing the action, filed a petition in bankruptcy under Title 11 of the United States Code. On appeal of judgment for plaintiff, defendant unsuccessfully argued that the bankruptcy trustee should have been substituted in for plaintiff, and that he had been denied a fair trial against the trustee, who was the real party in interest. The court of appeal upheld the judgment, holding that although plaintiff's cause of action for personal injuries became a part of the bankruptcy estate on the filing of the bankruptcy petition [see 11 U.S.C. § 541(a)], the transfer by operation of law did not divest plaintiff of his right to continue to prosecute the action, pending assertive action by the bankruptcy trustee as representative of the estate. Until the bankruptcy trustee intervenes and substitutes himself or herself in the action, the trustee is not the real party in interest. Under former Code Civ. Proc. § 385 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 368.5), the bankrupt remains the real party in interest even after the cause of action is transferred to the bankruptcy estate by operation of law, until the time that the trustee seeks, and is allowed, to substitute in by the state court. In the meantime, a bankruptcy trustee may allow a plaintiff to pursue an action and await the results, any recovery being first for the benefit of the estate (187 Cal. App. 3d 1187, 1194-1195) .

The facts and procedural background of Tarr v. Merco Constr. Engineers, Inc. (1978)84 Cal. App. 3d 707, 148 Cal. Rptr. 813 , are discussed in § 71.21[3][d]. Tarr was an action against a construction company and an insurer for damages arising out of a construction contract. Defendants' demurrer to plaintiff's third amended complaint on the ground, among others, that plaintiff lacked standing to sue since he had filed for bankruptcy prior to the commencement of the action and his claim had passed to his trustee in bankruptcy. The trial court took judicial notice of the filing by plaintiff of a petition in bankruptcy, sustained the demurrers, and entered a judgment of dismissal. In affirming the judgment on the ground that plaintiff lacked standing to sue, the court of appeal pointed out that the fact that plaintiff's attorney had been appointed by the bankruptcy judge as special counsel to pursue the claim on behalf of a corporation wholly owned by plaintiff, that was also in bankruptcy, did not give plaintiff standing to sue in his own behalf, and the fact that plaintiff alleged in his complaint that such corporation might have an interest in plaintiff's cause of action as a debtor in bankruptcy and was being joined as a defendant pursuant to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 389 lacked merit, since Code Civ. Proc. § 389 cannot be construed to authorize a debtor in bankruptcy to file an action on a cause of action that has vested in the trustee in bankruptcy (84 Cal. App. 3d 707, 714-716) .

Phillips v. Crocker-Citizens National Bank (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 901, 113 Cal. Rptr. 688 , was a purported class action against four lending institutions alleging their collection from borrowers of mortgage insurance premiums was in excess of the amount of such premiums actually paid to the FHA. The general demurrers of three of the defendants, to whom plaintiff was not indebted, were sustained without leave to amend and the complaint dismissed as to them. On appeal from the subsequent order of dismissal, the court of appeal, in affirming the judgment (order), pointed out that plaintiff had alleged no concerted action or conspiracy among the defendants and pleaded no dealings with or injury suffered at the hands of the three defendants as to whom the complaint had been dismissed. Having stated no personal cause of action against them, he could not represent a class of plaintiffs alleged to have been injured by them (38 Cal. App. 3d 901, 908) . The court held that the defect was subject to attack by demurrer and stated the following rule: the question of standing to sue is one of the right to relief and goes to the existence of a cause of action against the defendant; when the complaint states a cause of action in someone, but not in plaintiff, a general demurrer for failure to state a cause of action will be sustained (38 Cal. App. 3d 901, 910) .

Hart v. County Los Angeles (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 512, 67 Cal. Rptr. 242 , was an action for declaratory relief, forfeiture, and an accounting, and arose out of the last will and testament of one William S. Hart, Sr., which designated defendant county as trustee of two charitable trusts consisting of a 220-acre ranch, cash, other personal property, and the residue and remainder of the testator's estate. Plaintiff, William S. Hart, Jr., was the only issue of the decedent, who left no surviving spouse, and would have been entitled to the entire estate had his father died intestate. He unsuccessfully contested the will, and the exclusive management, supervision, and control of the property was awarded to defendant county pursuant to the two trusts. The will provided that if specified conditions were not performed by the county, the property would revert to the testator's estate and be distributed to the State of California for the same uses and purposes and on the same conditions as imposed on the county. In his present action, plaintiff alleged that the county had failed to perform the conditions of the will, that plaintiff was informed and believed that the state would not accept the property or trusts, and that plaintiff was, therefore, entitled to it the same as if decedent had died intestate. Defendant's demurrer to the second amended complaint on the ground that it did not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action "in that said cause of action is not brought by the real party in interest," was sustained without leave to amend on the grounds that a charitable trust for the public benefit would not fail for want of a trustee, that the court would, if necessary, appoint a trustee to carry out the purposes of the trust, and that the property could not revert to plaintiff as an heir at law. The court of appeal, in affirming the subsequent judgment of dismissal with prejudice, agreed with the trial court and held that the general demurrer was properly sustained as the complaint did not state a cause of action in plaintiff and could not be amended to do so, since the party to enforce the provisions of such trusts was the state Attorney General (260 Cal. App. 2d 512, 517) .

See also McKinny v. Board of Trustees (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 79, 90, 181 Cal. Rptr. 549, 642 P.2d 460 (plaintiff who lacks standing to sue cannot state valid cause of action and, therefore, contention based on plaintiff's lack of standing cannot be waived under Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80 and may be raised at any time in the action); Powers v. Ashton (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 783, 790, 119 Cal. Rptr. 729 (demurrer is properly sustained when plaintiff is not real party in interest but leave to amend in such case is required); Oakland Municipal Improvement League v. City of Oakland (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 165, 170, 100 Cal. Rptr. 29 (when complaint states cause of action in someone but not in plaintiff, general demurrer for failure to state cause of action will be sustained, or issue may be raised at any time in the proceedings, as by objection to introduction of any evidence); compare Electric Utilities Co. v. Smallpage (1934) 137 Cal. App. 640, 642, 31 P.2d 412 (demurrer to complaint on ground of defect of parties plaintiff (Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(d)) when it appeared cause of action, if any, had been vested in plaintiff's trustee in bankruptcy held properly sustained).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.23

§ 71.23 Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Action Is Premature

[1] FORM Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Action Is Premature

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a general demurrer (see § 71.20).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE SUSTAINED BECAUSE IT APPEARS ON THE FACE OF THE COMPLAINT [OR FROM MATTERS OF WHICH THE COURT MUST OR MAY TAKE JUDICIAL NOTICE] THAT THE ACTION IS PREMATURE.

A. Premature Complaint Fails to State Cause of Action. A complaint that shows on its face that the action sued on has not yet accrued and, hence, is premature fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action (Bank of Italy etc. Assn. v. Bentley (1933) 217 Cal. 644, 658, 20 P.2d 940 ; Breneric Associates v. City of Del Mar (1998) 69 Cal. App. 4th 166, 188-189, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324).

[Optional] B. Another Matter to Be Resolved. A general demurrer is appropriate if the causes of action in the complaint are not yet ripe because they depend on the final determination in some other matter (Schell v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1039, 1047, 251 Cal. Rptr. 667).

[Optional] C. Action on Note Before Maturity. An action on a promissory note prior to its maturity is premature (Southern Cal. M. Co. v. Skinner (1911) 17 Cal. App. 205, 208, 119 P. 106).

[Optional] D. Action on Accelerated Contract Balance Prior to Occurrence of Condition Precedent. An action to recover the accelerated balance due under a contract after its breach but prior to the occurrence of an essential condition precedent is premature (Southern Cal. M. Co. v. Skinner (1911) 17 Cal. App. 205, 208, 119 P. 106).

[Optional] E. Action Against Buyer Before Expiration of Credit Period. An action to recover the purchase price of goods sold and delivered when the goods were sold on credit for a period that has not yet expired is premature (Landis v. Morrissey (1886) 69 Cal. 83, 86-87, 10 P. 258).

[Optional] F. Action on Debt Superseded by Nonmatured Promissory Note. An action on a debt that has been superseded by a promissory note, accepted by the creditor, that has not yet matured is premature (Gardner v. Shreve (1949) 89 Cal. App. 2d 804, 808, 202 P.2d 322).

[Optional] G. Action Against Personal Representative of Decedent Prior to Presentation of Claim. An action sounding in contract against the personal representative of a decedent's estate prior to presentation of a claim is premature (Burke v. Maguire (1908) 154 Cal. 456, 462, 98 P. 21).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a general demurrer to a complaint when it appears on the face of the complaint or from judicially noticed matter that the action is premature.

These points and authorities should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a demurrer to a complaint made on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see § 71.20]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should include discussion showing how the allegations of the complaint, or facts that may be judicially noticed, indicate that at this time there is no cause of action properly before the court. For example, if successful recovery by plaintiff depends on the determination of a fact that the court does not have jurisdiction to decide, and the fact is yet undetermined, counsel should (1) indicate that the particular fact alleged is one that is necessary to state a cause of action; (2) argue the fact is one that the court lacks jurisdiction to determine, but must yet be determined; and (3) argue that until an appropriate tribunal determines the matter, the plaintiff's action is not ripe and the defendant is therefore entitled to a general demurrer [see Schell v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1039, 1047, 251 Cal. Rptr. 667 , discussed under § 71.23[3][b]].

For the procedure for invoking judicial notice, see § 71.21[2][c].

[b] Prematurity Must Exist at Time Issue Determined

The cases cited in this form, as well as in others [see, e.g., Jaffe v. Albertson Co. (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 592, 616, 53 Cal. Rptr. 25 ; Browar v. Paul Hardeman, Inc. (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 708, 712, 7 Cal. Rptr. 231] insofar as they state or hold that the cause of action must exist at the time the complaint is filed and that the rights of the parties must be judged by conditions existing at the time the action is commenced, have been modified by subsequent cases holding that for the plea of prematurity to be sustained the prematurity must exist at the time the issue is determined [see, e.g., Ostrowski v. Miller (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 79, 86, 37 Cal. Rptr. 790 ; see also § 71.34, and Ch. 10, Abatement and Survival of Actions, § 10.30 et seq.].

[c] Waiver of Ground of Objection

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80 provides in part that the objection that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action is not waived by failure to take it by demurrer or answer, the rule is otherwise when the failure to state a cause of action results from the fact that no cause of action has accrued when the complaint is filed.

The plea that an action has been prematurely brought is in the nature of a dilatory plea that must be specially pleaded to be available as a defense [Verbeck v. Clymer (1927) 202 Cal. 557, 562, 261 P. 1017 ; see also Kelley v. Upshaw (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 179, 186, 246 P.2d 23 ; Seches v. Bard (1932) 215 Cal. 79, 81, 8 P.2d 835] . Failure to plead it by demurrer or answer normally constitutes a waiver of it [see Bollinger v. National Fire Ins. Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 399, 405-406, 154 P.2d 399 (defendant lost privilege of urging defense of prematurity by failing to plead it plainly and to assert it promptly); Green v. Sherritt (1936) 17 Cal. App. 2d 732, 737-738, 62 P.2d 769 (defense that action was premature when not pleaded in answer as waived); see also Vanoni v. County of Sonoma (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 743, 748, 115 Cal. Rptr. 485 (claim of prematurity cannot be raised for first time on appeal)].

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in § 71.34 may be used to oppose the general demurrer supported by these points and authorities.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.34[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Premature Complaint Fails to State Cause of Action

Bank of Italy Trust & Sav. Ass'n v. Bentley (1933) 217 Cal. 644, 20 P.2d 940 , was an action, filed three days before expiration of the statute of limitations, to recover on a promissory note secured by a trust deed. Defendants, by way of affirmative defense in their answer, alleged that the action was premature for the reason that at the time the complaint was filed no cause of action existed. The trial court upheld this defense on the theory that no action may be brought on a note secured by a trust deed until the security is exhausted. From a judgment for defendants, plaintiff appealed contending, among other things, that under the circumstances the action must be deemed one to keep the obligation of the note alive until it could sell under the trust deed.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment. The Court stated that it was elementary that under our system there is no such thing as filing an action to keep an obligation alive unless at the time the complaint is filed a cause of action exists, and that every complaint is predicated on the theory that plaintiff is entitled to judgment at the time it is filed (217 Cal. 644, 658) .

In Breneric Associates v. City of Del Mar (1998) 69 Cal. App. 4th 166, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 324 , defendant denied plaintiffs' application for a design review permit regarding a two-story addition to an existing single-family house. Thereafter, plaintiffs filed a lawsuit against the defendant seeking (1) a writ of administrative mandate to compel defendant to issue a design review permit and (2) damages under 42 U.S.C. § 1983. The trial court sustained defendant's demurrer to the section 1983 claim without leave to amend and dismissed that claim. The trial court also, however, granted plaintiffs' petition for writ of mandate. Plaintiffs appealed arguing the ruling on the section 1983 claim was error and defendant cross-appealed arguing the granting of the writ of administrative mandate was error.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment granting the writ of mandate and directed the trial court to enter a new judgment denying the writ, but affirmed the judgment in all other respects (69 Cal. App. 4th 166, 189) . With regard to the section 1983 claim based on a taking, the court held that the complaint alleged no facts sufficient to show the claim was ripe. The court noted that a demurrer may be sustained when the complaint shows on its face the claim is not ripe for adjudication. A plaintiff's action for damages under section 1983 based on a regulatory taking is premature until the plaintiff has (1) obtained a final determination from the administrative agency charged with enforcing the regulation and (2) exhausted his or her state provided remedies for receiving just compensation for the alleged taking. California provides a procedure for an applicant to seek just compensation for alleged injuries from regulatory takings. A section 1983 claim is ripe for adjudication only when those avenues have been pursued and fail to yield just compensation for the alleged regulatory taking (69 Cal. App. 4th 166, 188) . The face of the complaint showed that plaintiffs' had not exhausted those state remedies but instead was pursuing those remedies in this action. Thus, to the extent the section 1983 claim was based on an assertion of a taking without just compensation it was premature, and defendant's demurrer was properly sustained on that basis (69 Cal. App. 4th 166, 189) .

[b] Another Matter to Be Resolved

In Schell v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1039, 251 Cal. Rptr. 667 , plaintiff was the owner of a recreational park who brought an action against a utility company for damages, constructive trust, and injunctive relief, alleging that the utility company discriminated against him by charging him a commercial rate for electricity and by refusing to supply him under a rate schedule reserved for mobile homes. The utility company generally demurred to the complaint on the ground that the complaint failed to state a cause of action. The trial court sustained the defendant utility company's general demurrer without leave to amend.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment, stating that a demurrer is appropriate if the causes of action are not yet ripe. In the plaintiff's case, his causes of action would not ripen until the Public Utilities Commission and, ultimately, the Supreme Court had made a final determination as to whether or not the rate schedule reserved for mobile homes applied to him. The court concluded, therefore, that the causes of action in the complaint were not properly before the court at that time (204 Cal. App. 3d 1039, 1047) .

[c] Action on Note Before Maturity

Southern Cal. M. Co. v. Skinner (1911) 17 Cal. App. 205, 119 P. 106 , was an action on a promissory note and for the balance due under a sales contract. A copy of each of these instruments, neither of which referred to the other, was attached to the complaint. The complaint alleged a sale by plaintiff to defendant of a piano for $405, that on July 15, 1909, defendant executed and delivered to plaintiff his promissory note and contract in payment for the piano, that no part of the $405, other than the sum of $25, had been paid, that defendant had defaulted in his payments, that plaintiff had declared the balance of the sum due, and that no part of the balance had been paid. The note was for $380 payable 48 months after date with interest at 6 percent per annum and providing for payment of attorney's fees in the amount of 10 percent of the judgment if suit were brought to enforce payment of the note. The action was commenced long before the date the note matured. Defendant demurred to the complaint both generally, for failure to state a cause of action, and specially on the ground of uncertainty in that it could not be determined from the complaint whether the action was on the promissory note, the alleged agreement, or both. The trial court overruled the demurrer and, after trial, rendered judgment for plaintiff. Defendant appealed.

The court of appeal reversed with directions to the trial court to sustain the demurrer. With respect to the promissory note, the court pointed out that the action was commenced some six months after its date, which, by its own terms, was not to become due until four years after that date, that the agreement contained no reference to the note, that the complaint failed to allege any fact under which the note might be declared due prior to its maturity date, and that the complaint, therefore, failed to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action on the promissory note (17 Cal. App. 205, 208) .

[d] Action on Accelerated Contract Balance Prior to Occurrence of Condition Precedent

The facts and procedural background of Southern Cal. M. Co. v. Skinner (1911) 17 Cal. App. 205, 119 P. 106 , are discussed under § 71.23[3][c]. In Southern Cal. M. Co., the agreement for the sale of the piano required payment of $25 cash on delivery of the instrument and the balance in installments of $8 per month, payable on the 15th day of each month. It was further provided that should defendant fail to pay monthly installments when due, plaintiff could rescind the contract and take possession of the piano, or if such monthly payment remained due and unpaid for a period of 60 days, plaintiff could declare the whole sum still unpaid under the contract due and payable. The complaint alleged defendant's default in paying installments but not that they were unpaid for a period of 60 days.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment with directions to the trial court to sustain the demurrer. The court pointed out that the agreement gave plaintiff no right to accelerate payment of the balance merely because of defendant's default in the payment of an installment. The court said that to constitute a cause of action for a breach of the contract, assuming that such a right exists, the complaint should not only allege that defendant had defaulted in the payment of one or more installments, but that the default had continued for the period of 60 days (17 Cal. App. 205, 208) .

[e] Action Against Buyer Before Expiration of Credit Period

Landis v. Morrissey (1886) 69 Cal. 83, 10 P. 258 , was an action to recover from defendant, as the survivor of a partnership, the agreed price of goods, wares, and merchandise allegedly sold by plaintiffs to the partnership. The complaint alleged that payment was to be made on demand, that demand had been made, and that neither all nor any part of the agreed price had been paid. Defendant denied specifically the material allegations of the complaint, including the allegation that payment was to be made on demand. At trial, defendant offered to prove that the sale had been made on a credit of 60 days, which period had not expired when the action was commenced. Plaintiffs' objection that the offered testimony was not within the issues raised by the pleadings was sustained, and defendant appealed from a judgment for plaintiffs.

The Supreme Court reversed. It said that defendant's offer was to show that the cause of action did not exist when the action was begun and that the issue was properly raised by defendant's denials (69 Cal. 83, 86-87) . The Court observed that counsel erred in assuming that defendant's offer could only be presented in a plea in abatement, and said that it went to the merits of the action and showed it never existed when suit was brought, that it was an answer to the whole action and a perfect defense, that such a defense can be made without any plea in abatement, and that it does not merely abate the action but defeats it (69 Cal. 83, 87) .

[f] Action on Debt Superseded by Nonmatured Promissory Note

Gardner v. Shreve (1949) 89 Cal. App. 2d 804, 202 P.2d 322 , was an action to recover the sum of $5,000 which defendant, after termination of the parties' business relationship, promised to repay to plaintiff on or before April 15, 1947. The defendant failed to pay. Plaintiff's action on the agreement to recover the $5,000, with interest at 7 percent from April 15, 1947, was filed November 20, 1947. On November 21, 1947, plaintiff received by registered mail a promissory note signed by defendant and dated April 15, 1947, in which she promised to pay the sum of $5,000 one year from the date with interest at the rate of 6 percent. The letter had been mailed on November 19, 1947, and the complaint was served on defendant on November 24, 1947. The note was never returned to defendant, but in the course of the present action it was delivered by plaintiff to the court with an affidavit that plaintiff did not at any time accept it. Plaintiff's motion for summary judgment was granted and defendant appealed.

The court of appeal reversed on the ground a triable issue of fact was presented With respect to the acceptance of the note and said that an executed agreement to give and receive the note in full satisfaction of the debt is effective to discharge the original debt (a novation) and that even when the note is accepted without such agreement, the right of action on the debt is suspended until maturity of the note (89 Cal. App. 2d 804, 808) .

The court also rejected plaintiff's argument that the judgment should be affirmed since after its entry the note matured, saying that the defect could not be cured by a supplemental complaint founded on what subsequently occurred (89 Cal. App. 2d 804, 810) . However, it appears that this rule has been modified by subsequent cases [see § 71.34].

[g] Action Against Personal Representative of Decedent Prior to Presentation of Claim

Burke v. Maguire (1908) 154 Cal. 456, 98 P. 21 , was one of nine appeals in nine actions, each by a different plaintiff, taken against defendant, the administrator of the estate of one Bridget McDermott. Plaintiffs were legatees under the will of Hugh McDermott, deceased, and distributees under the final distribution of his estate. Bridget McDermott had been the executrix of his estate. Each plaintiff was suing the administrator of her estate to recover the share of the legacy to which he was entitled under the distribution of Hugh McDermott's estate. In each case, the trial court sustained a demurrer to the complaint and rendered judgment for defendant, from which the plaintiff appealed. The allegations in each case were the same and the cases were consolidated on appeal and presented for decision on the transcript of the record in one alone. The second count alleged the background facts and that the money required by terms of Hugh's will to be distributed to trustees for the eventual benefit of plaintiffs was never paid to the trustees, but that Bridget, until her death, retained possession of it as executrix of Hugh's estate, and that plaintiff was entitled to a part of the fund applicable to the legacies and sought judgment against Bridget's estate for the share due plaintiff.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment. The Court held that the second count was deficient by failing to allege that any claim for the demand sued on was ever presented for allowance against Bridget's estate, since the demand was clearly founded on contract and the Code of Civil Procedure (now see Probate Code) requires that such demands be presented to the administrator of the estate for allowance [Code Civ. Proc. § 1493; repealed, now see Prob. Code § 9002(a)] and provides that no action can be maintained on it unless a claim for it has been so presented before the action is begun [Code Civ. Proc. § 1500; repealed, now see Prob. Code § 9351] (154 Cal. 456, 461-462) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.24

§ 71.24 Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Action Barred by Prior Judgment (Res Judicata)

[1] FORM Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Action Barred by Prior Judgment (Res Judicata)

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a general demurrer (see § 71.20).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE SUSTAINED BECAUSE IT APPEARS ON THE FACE OF THE COMPLAINT [OR FROM MATTERS OF WHICH THE COURT IS REQUIRED TO OR MAY TAKE JUDICIAL NOTICE] THAT THE ACTION IS BARRED BY A PRIOR JUDGMENT AND IS RES JUDICATA.

A. Conclusiveness of Judgment. A final judgment is conclusive with respect to the matter adjudicated in an action or proceeding in rem; in other actions a judgment is conclusive as between the parties, their successors in interest, and persons who were not parties but who controlled the action (Code Civ. Proc. § 1908).

B. Effect of Prior Judgment. A final judgment on the merits between the same parties bars a later action on the same cause of action (Weil v. Barthel (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 835, 839, 291 P.2d 30 ; Carroll v. Puritan Leasing Co. (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 486, 143 Cal. Rptr. 772).

C. Showing That Action Is Barred. When all the facts necessary to show that the action is barred by res judicata are within the complaint or subject to judicial notice, the complaint is subject to a general demurrer on the ground it fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action (Carroll v. Puritan Leasing Co. (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 485, 143 Cal. Rptr. 772).

D. Judicial Notice of Prior Action. In ruling on a demurrer the court may take judicial notice of the records of _____ [any court of this state or any court of record of the United States or any court of record of any state of the United States] and on proper request therefor is required to do so (Evid. Code §§ 11, 452(d), 453; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a), 430.70; Lazzarone v. Bank of America (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 581, 590, 226 Cal. Rptr. 855). Pursuant to this requirement, the court is hereby requested to take judicial notice of the case of _____ [name] vs. _____ [name], No. _____ filed in the _____ Court of _____ and to enable it to do so, certified copies of the complaint, answer, and judgment filed in that case, together with a certificate from the clerk, and under the seal, of that court authenticating these papers and certifying that the judgment is final, are attached hereto and made a part hereof.

[Optional] E. Sameness of Parties. Parties are deemed to be the same when those between whom the evidence is offered were on opposite sides in the former case, and a judgment or other determination could in that case have been made between them alone, though other parties were joined with both or either (Code Civ. Proc. § 1910).

[Optional] F. Sameness of Actions. Under the primary rights theory, which is consistently applied in California to identify a cause of action under the doctrine of res judicata, an invasion of one primary right gives rise to a single cause of action. Two actions constitute a single cause of action if they both affect the same primary right. The cause of action is based on the harm suffered rather than the particular theory asserted by the litigant. Although there may be multiple theories on which recovery might be predicated, one injury gives rise to only one claim for relief. A cause of action is to be distinguished from the remedy or relief sought, in view of the fact that a plaintiff may frequently be entitled to several species of remedy for the enforcement of a single right (Weikel v. TCW Realty Fund II Holding Co. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1234, 1246-1247, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25 ; see Hatch v. Bank of America (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 206, 211, 5 Cal. Rptr. 875). When there is only one primary right, an adverse judgment on the merits in the first suit is a bar even though the second suit is based on a different theory, or seeks a different remedy. Thus, when a plaintiff splits a cause of action (i.e., divides a primary right into more than one lawsuit) and a judgment on the merits is entered in one of the lawsuits, the defendant in the second suit may set up that judgment as a bar under the principles of res judicata (Weikel v. TCW Realty Fund II Holding Co. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1234, 1249-1250, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25 ; Phillips v. Western Pac. R.R. Co. (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 441, 444, 99 Cal. Rptr. 451).

[Optional] G. Sameness of Issues. Res judicata bars relitigation of an issue previously adjudicated between the same parties or their privies to final judgment on the merits (Sych v. Insurance Co. of North America (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 321, 328, 220 Cal. Rptr. 692).

[Optional] H. Matters Concluded by Former Judgment. That which appears on the face of a former judgment to have been adjudged, or which was actually and necessarily included therein or necessary thereto, is deemed to have been adjudged by that judgment (Code Civ. Proc. § 1911).

[Optional] I. Issues That Might Have Been Raised. The prior judgment determines not only every issue raised in that action, but every issue that might have been raised (Interinsurance Exchange of the Auto. Club v. Superior Court (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 177, 183, 257 Cal. Rptr. 37 ; Carroll v. Puritan Leasing Co. (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 486, 143 Cal. Rptr. 772).

[Optional] J. Voluntary Dismissal With Prejudice. A voluntary dismissal of an action with prejudice constitutes a retraxit and bars a second action based on the same factual situation (Kronkright v. Gardner (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 214, 218-219, 107 Cal. Rptr. 270).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a general demurrer to a complaint when the present action is barred by a former judgment between the same parties on the same cause and, consequently, is res judicata.

These points and authorities should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a demurrer to a complaint made on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see § 71.20]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. That is, counsel would refer to facts in the complaint or to matters of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice establishing that the current action is barred by res judicata.

[b] Sameness of Parties

This form provides an optional paragraph for use if the parties in the two actions are not identical [see Optional Paragraph E]. For example, it is appropriate when the prior action involved multiple plaintiffs or multiple defendants, or both, and the present action is by a single plaintiff who was a plaintiff in the prior action against a single defendant who was a defendant in the prior action. Or, the form may be used when the relationship of the parties in the two lawsuits is not identical, such as when the roles of the parties as plaintiff and defendant are reversed. In addition, since successors in interest to the original parties and persons who control the prior action may also be privies for the purposes of res judicata, the form may also be used in such cases [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1908(a)(2), (b); see also § 71.24[3][a]].

[c] Sameness of Actions

This form provides an optional paragraph for use if the two actions are on the same cause of action but in each, liability is predicated on a different legal theory [see Optional Paragraph F]. For example, it is appropriate if in the first action plaintiff sues to recover on the basis of negligence and loses, and in the second suit sues on the same cause of action basing liability on strict liability in tort. The paragraph may also be used when the remedy or relief sought in the two actions is different. For example, it is appropriate if a plaintiff injured in an automobile accident sues and recovers judgment for general damages for personal injuries, and then sues to recover special damages for medical expenses incurred in treating the personal injuries.

[d] Sameness of Issues

This form provides an optional paragraph for use if the issues litigated in the prior action are identical to the issues in the present action, and the prior action was adjudicated between either the same parties or their privies, even if the second suit is for a different cause of action [see Optional Paragraph G]. For example, it is appropriate in an action brought by a third party against an insurer, after a prior action against the insured has been concluded adversely to plaintiff.

[e] Matters Concluded by Former Judgment

This form provides an optional paragraph for use if the issue sought to be adjudicated in the present action was necessarily, although not expressly, adjudicated in the prior action [see Optional Paragraph H].

[f] Issues That Might Have Been Raised

This form provides an optional paragraph for use if the issue sought to be adjudicated in the present action could have been, but was not, litigated in the prior action [see Optional Paragraph I]. For example, if a plaintiff injured in a car accident sues and recovers judgment for damages for personal injuries and in a second action sues to recover property damage for the loss of his or her automobile proximately caused by the same collision (injury to person and injury to property are separate causes of action--that is, invasion of two different primary rights--even though they both result from the same wrong).

[g] Voluntary Dismissal With Prejudice

This foregoing form provides an optional paragraph to use if the two actions are between the same parties on the same cause and plaintiff dismissed the prior action with prejudice [see Optional Paragraph J].

[h] Collateral Estoppel Distinguished

Closely related to res judicata is the doctrine of collateral estoppel by judgment. It decrees that any issue necessarily decided in the litigation of a cause of action finally determined by a court of competent jurisdiction is conclusively determined as to the parties or their privies if it is involved in a subsequent lawsuit on a different cause of action [O'Connor v. O'Leary (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d 646, 648, 56 Cal. Rptr. 1] . This defense is seldom one that would appear from the face of the complaint or, without the introduction of extrinsic evidence, from judicially noticed matter, and would normally be raised by pleading it as an affirmative defense and then moving either for a separate trial of that issue under Code Civ. Proc. § 597 or for summary judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c.

For further discussion comparing the effects of res judicata and collateral estoppel, see Ch. 491, Res Judicata in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

For points and authorities asserting the doctrine of collateral estoppel in contexts of a wrongful death action or indemnity, see Ch. 66, Death and Survival Actions and Ch. 115, Indemnity and Contribution , respectively.

[i] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities in support of a special demurrer to a complaint on the ground of another action pending between the same parties for the same cause that contains additional points and authorities against splitting a cause of action, see § 71.65.

[j] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in § 71.35 may be used to oppose the general demurrer supported by the foregoing memorandum.

See also § 71.20[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Conclusiveness of Judgment

Code Civ. Proc. § 1908 provides that the effect of a judgment or final order in an action or special proceeding before a court or judge of this state, or of the United States, having jurisdiction to pronounce the judgment or order, is as follows:

1. In case of a judgment or order against a specific thing, or in respect to the probate of a will; or the administration of the estate of a decedent; or in respect to the personal, political, or legal condition or relation of a particular person, the judgment or order is conclusive on the title to the thing, the will, or administration, or the condition or relation of the person.

2. In other cases, the judgment or order is, in respect to the matter directly adjudged, conclusive between the parties and their successors in interest by title subsequent to the commencement of the action or special proceeding, litigating for the same thing under the same title and in the same capacity, provided they have notice, actual or constructive, of the pendency of the action or proceeding (Code Civ. Proc. § 1908(a)).

In addition, the section provides that a person who is not a party but who controls an action, individually or in cooperation with others, is bound by the adjudications of litigated matters as if the person were a party if the person has a proprietary or financial interest in the judgment or in the determination of a question of fact or of law with reference to the same subject matter or transaction. If the other party has notice of that participation, the other party is equally bound (Code Civ. Proc. § 1908(b)).

[b] Effect of Prior Judgment

Weil v. Barthel (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 835, 291 P.2d 30 , was an action to compel redemption and to quiet title to real property. Plaintiff alleged that in a prior action against plaintiff's assignors in the same court involving title to the same property, the property was by judgment of the court ordered sold as on execution and the effect of the judgment was to create in plaintiff's assignors, as an equitable interest, a right to redeem the property. The complaint included the official record of the prior judgment but pleaded its terms by a statement of their legal effect. It was further alleged that pursuant to the judgment the property was sold by the sheriff at execution sale to defendants and that prior to expiration of the redemption period the sheriff delivered a deed of the property to defendants who recorded it. The trial judge, in ruling on defendants' general demurrer, considered the prior judgment, concluded that the present action was barred by it, and sustained the demurrer without leave to amend.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment. The Court pointed out that a final judgment is res judicata of the issues involved in the action when the trial court has jurisdiction (45 Cal. 2d 835, 837) . The Court concluded that the very issue presented in the present case was before the trial court in the prior action and that all equity of redemption was expressly foreclosed in that judgment (435 Cal. 2d 835, 839) .

Carroll v. Puritan Leasing Co. (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 143 Cal. Rptr. 772 , was a quiet title action by which plaintiff sought to invalidate a judgment lien against her separate property. In a prior action, defendant had secured judgment against plaintiff and her husband, jointly and severally, for breach of their restaurant equipment lease and for plaintiff's breach of her guarantee of the lease. That decision became final. Defendant then recorded with the county recorder an abstract of judgment creating a lien on plaintiff's separate real property in the county and commenced execution proceedings against that property. In her present action, plaintiff alleged that (1) she was the sole owner of the property; (2) she and her former husband had entered into the lease agreement with defendant for rental of certain restaurant equipment; (3) the restaurant enterprise was community property; (4) defendant obtained a judgment against them for the lease, which she asserted was a debt secured by the restaurant enterprise; (5) the abstract of judgment filed by defendant affected her land which washer separate property; and (6) pursuant to former Civ. Code § 5123 (relating to liability of spouse's separate property for debt secured by hypothecation of community property), her sole and separate property could not be held liable for the debt. Defendant's demurrer to the complaint was sustained and, on plaintiff's failure to amend, the trial court dismissed the action on the ground it was res judicata.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The court said that when a judgment prior to the quiet title action determined the same rights between the same parties as in the quiet title action, that judgment was a defense to the quiet title action (77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 485) , and that it is well settled that a final judgment on the merits between the same parties bars a later action on the same cause (77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 486) . The court pointed out that by bringing a quiet title action to assert limits on the liability of her separate property based on Civ. Code § 5123, plaintiff was once again attempting to litigate the extent of personal liability under the contract of guarantee, and that that cause of action had been conclusively litigated on its merits by the same parties in the previous action (77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 488) .

The court added that even if it assumed that which it did not assume--that the quiet title action was based on a distinct cause of action--the action would still be barred under the doctrine of collateral estoppel (77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 489-494) .

[c] Showing That Action Is Barred

The facts and procedural background of Carroll v. Puritan Leasing Co.(1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 143 Cal. Rptr. 772 , are discussed under § 71.24[3][b]. In Carroll, the defendant had demurred to the complaint on the ground that the action was barred by a former judgment in its favor against plaintiff and her husband, jointly and severally, and had properly invoked judicial notice of the prior action. The trial court sustained the demurrer with leave to amend and, on plaintiff's failure to amend, granted defendant's motion to dismiss. On appeal, plaintiff contended that the prior action did not decide the limitations on the liability of her separate property under former Civ. Code §§ 5121 and 5123, and that consequently res judicata did not apply.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The court held that the prior action was res judicata as to the present action and barred it and said that if all of the facts necessary to show that the action is barred are within the complaint or subject to judicial notice, a trial court may properly sustain a general demurrer (77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 485) .

[d] Judicial Notice of Prior Action

For matters of which the court may take judicial notice and the procedure for invoking such notice, see § 71.21.

In Lazzarone v. Bank of America (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 581, 226 Cal. Rptr. 855 , plaintiff was a beneficiary of a trust who brought an action in superior court for damages based on negligence and fraud against a bank that administered the trust, after the plaintiff learned that the trust corpus sustained losses during the bank's administration. The bank demurred on grounds that the plaintiff's claims were within the exclusive jurisdiction of the probate court and were barred by res judicata. The trial court ordered the bank's demurrer sustained without leave to amend and entered a judgment dismissing the action. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. Although the plaintiff's principal contention was that the trial court erred in sustaining the bank's demurrer without leave to amend because the action was properly brought in superior court sitting outside of probate, the parties briefed the res judicata issue and the court found it dispositive of the appeal (181 Cal. App. 3d 581, 590) . The court noted that prior to the present action, the bank obtained from the probate court orders settling its several accounts and reports as trustee. Although affirmative defenses such as res judicata are not properly alleged in a complaint and ordinarily may not be raised on demurrer, a complaint maybe read as if it included matters judicially noticed. The bank requested the trial court to take judicial notice of all orders, pleadings, and other matters on file in the earlier matter before the probate court, and the trial court was required to judicially notice those matters on the bank's request [Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453]. Under former Prob. Code §§ 1120, 1123 [now see Prob. Code §§ 17104(b), 17200(b)(5)], the orders settling trustee accounts are given res judicata effect and are binding as to all matters passed on, but not binding as to those matters not passed on. Because the probate court, in approving the bank's several accountings and its request for discharge, necessarily passed on the bank's veracity and its exercise of due care, the probate court's orders are conclusive on those issues, and the plaintiff's complaint was therefore barred by the res judicata affect of those orders (181 Cal. App. 3d 581, 587, 591-592) .

[e] Sameness of Actions

Weikel v. TCW Realty Fund II Holding Co. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1234, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25 , involved an ongoing controversy entering its second decade concerning a small wedge of land that formed the boundary line between two adjacent shopping centers. Plaintiff owned a shopping center on one side of the wedge, and wished to build on the wedge. To accomplish this, plaintiff initially entered into an agreement with the developer of the shopping center on the other side of the wedge. The developer granted plaintiff an encroachment or building easement over its side of the wedge to allow plaintiff to build over the wedge. The developer then sold the shopping center, and shortly thereafter plaintiff learned that the building easement would not work because the city, as its policy, would not approve construction which straddled a lot boundary. Plaintiff and the new owner then entered into an agreement enabling plaintiff to build on the wedge, but the building department would not approve the plans because the lot line relocation caused a tenant's shop to be in violation of both the building code and the zoning code. All of plaintiff's proposals to solve the concerns of the building department were rejected by the department, the tenant, and the new owner. The initial lawsuit was commenced against the new owner, its developer, and the tenant. The complaint included counts for breach of agreement, fraud, declaratory relief, injunction, and a common count for restitution.

Ultimately, judgment was rendered in favor of defendants, and the court of appeal affirmed the great bulk of the trial court's rulings. Slightly over one month later, when that opinion became final, plaintiff filed another lawsuit against all of the original defendants seeking to: quiet title to interests conveyed by the building easement; recover damages for trespass; abate a nuisance; recover damages for alleged breach of warranty and of an implied covenant; and obtain various declarations of rights and restitution for use of the easements. The owner demurred, one ground being that plaintiff's claims were barred by res judicata, and the tenant moved for judgment on the pleadings on the same grounds. The court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend, holding that the action was barred by the doctrine of res judicata. Judgment of dismissal was thereafter entered. Similarly, after the developer's default was set aside, its demurrer to the complaint was sustained without leave to amend, and judgment of dismissal was thereafter entered. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The court pointed out that the doctrine of res judicata precludes piecemeal litigation that results from splitting a single cause of action or relitigating the same cause of action on a different legal theory or for different relief. The central question is whether plaintiff's second suit was an attempt to relitigate the same cause of action on a different legal theory. In conducting this analysis, it is irrelevant whether identical causes of action were in fact litigated in the two lawsuits; all that is required is for plaintiff to have had the opportunity to litigate in the first lawsuit the claims that were litigated in the second. The relevant question is whether the causes of action resolved the first lawsuit, and those matters as to which plaintiff then had an opportunity to litigate, embrace the claims sought to be asserted in the second lawsuit (55 Cal. App. 4th 1234, 1245-1246) . This in turn requires a determination as to the primary rights to be asserted. For the purpose of identifying a cause of action under the doctrine of res judicata, California has consistently applied the primary rights theory under which an invasion of one primary right gives rise to a single cause of action. But the cause of action is based on the harm suffered, as opposed to the particular theory asserted by the litigant. Even when there are multiple theories on which recovery might be predicated, one injury gives rise to only one claim for relief. Thus, two actions constitute a single cause of action if they both affect the same primary right (55 Cal. App. 4th 1234, 1246) . A cause of action is to be distinguished from the remedy or relief sought, for a plaintiff may frequently be entitled to several species of remedy for the enforcement of a single right (55 Cal. App. 4th 1234, 1247) . The primary rights theory is most often invoked when a plaintiff attempts to divide a primary right and enforce it in two lawsuits. The theory prevents this result in one of two ways: (1) if the first suit is still pending at the time of the filing of the second suit, defendant may plead that fact in abatement in the second suit, or (2) if an adverse judgment on the merits has been rendered against plaintiff, under the principles of res judicata, defendant may set up the judgment as a bar in the second suit (55 Cal. App. 4th 1234, 1249) . Accordingly, when there is only one primary right, an adverse judgment on the merits in the first suit is a bar even though the second suit is based on a different theory or seeks a different remedy (55 Cal. App. 4th 1234, 1249-1250) .

The court pointed out that in the case at bar, the primary right involved must be seen as plaintiff's interest in constructing a building on a portion of the wedge of land. The corresponding primary duty owed to plaintiff by defendant owner is no more than the duty not to unreasonably interfere with plaintiff's rights, but that duty cannot be transmuted into an obligation to tear down the structure of an existing tenant for the sole benefit of plaintiff. Essentially, the refusal of the owner to damage its own tenant for the benefit of plaintiff is the breach of the primary right which is the subject of plaintiff's second lawsuit, just as it was asserted as a basis for judicial action in the first lawsuit. This does not suffice (55 Cal. App. 4th 1234, 1248) .

Hatch v. Bank of America (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 206, 5 Cal. Rptr. 875 , was an action for damages for conversion of a truck, and for the loss of operating revenues. Plaintiff had pursued to final judgment a prior action against the same defendants and others to quiet title to the same truck, claiming to be the owner of the truck. Final judgment in that case was entered in favor of plaintiff. A second action was commenced to recover damages for the conversion and for the loss of operating revenues for the period of time during which plaintiff was deprived of the use and benefit of the truck. On separate trial of the special defense of res judicata, the trial court found that the damages sought had accrued at the time the prior action was filed, and concluded that the relief sought was barred by the judgment in the prior action.

The court of appeal affirmed judgment for defendants on the ground that the action was barred by the doctrine of res judicata. A party may not split a single cause of action raising the same obligation as the basis of separate suits. When this is done, the judgment in the first action may be pleaded as a bar to a subsequent suit based on the same fundamental claim that could have been presented in the first action (182 Cal. App. 2d 206, 210-211) . Quoting from Wulfjen v. Dolton (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 891, 895-896, 151 P.2d 846 (discussed in § 71.65[3][d]), the Court held that "the violation of one primary right constitutes a single cause of action, although it may entitle the injured party to many forms of relief, and the relief is not to be confounded with the cause of action, one not being determinative of the other" (182 Cal. App. 2d 206, 211) .

Phillips v. Western Pac. R.R. Co. (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 441, 99 Cal. Rptr. 451 , was an action by an insurance company, as subrogee, to recover from a railroad company the full face amount of a policy the insurance company had paid its insureds as a result of the destruction of their real and personal property by a fire for which defendant railroad was responsible. The insureds were joined as defendants under Code Civ. Proc. § 382, which provides that if the consent of one who should have been joined as plaintiff cannot be obtained, that person may be made a defendant. The insureds cross-complained against the railroad for the total amount of alleged damage to their property as a result of the fire, which greatly exceeded the amount of the insurance company's claim. The railroad settled with the insurance company for the full amount of insurance paid by it, and judgment in that amount was entered for plaintiff. The railroad then filed an answer to the cross-complaint in which it alleged that the insureds were proceeding on the same cause of action as the insurer, and that they were barred from splitting their cause of action. The insureds' demurrer to this defense was sustained without leave to amend, and after trial, judgment was rendered for the insureds. The railroad appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment, determining that the procedure followed by plaintiff and the insureds in the trial court was proper, and that no splitting of causes of action was involved. The court noted that the rule against splitting a cause of action is based on two principles: (1) the defendant should be protected against vexatious litigation, and (2) it is against public policy to permit litigants to consume the court's time by relitigating matters already judicially determined, or by asserting claims which properly should have been settled in some prior action. The court further acknowledged that the rule against splitting a cause of action is harsh as applied in some cases, and consequently, in some situations approaches to the rule have been developed where causes of action should be viewed with flexibility to avoid a harsh result not intended by the basic principles of the rule. One of these situations is in regard to actions by a partial assignee or subrogee. A partial subrogee may sue, as in the case at bar, the negligent party who cause the monetary damage partially paid by the subrogee (22 Cal. App. 3d 441, 444-445) .

[f] Sameness of Issues

Sych v. Insurance Co. of North America (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 321, 220 Cal. Rptr. 692 , was an action brought on behalf of a minor against the insurer of a physician alleging several causes of action based on the minor's premature birth and complications arising from the premature birth. The action was brought under Ins. Code § 790.03 (statutory remedy for unfair insurance practices), prior to the California Supreme Court's holding in Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Companies (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 297-305, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58 (discussed in Ch. 120, Insurance , Part III, Subpart B) precluding a private action by a third party under that statute. Plaintiff had previously filed a suit against the physician for damages based on professional negligence. Prior to the trial, plaintiff and defendants in the instant action attempted unsuccessfully to negotiate a settlement. A jury in the prior trial found in favor of defendant physician. Defendants in the instant action filed demurrers without leave to amend, on the ground that plaintiff could not state a cause of action. The trial court sustained the demurrers, and plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the previously litigated action against the physician constituted a bar to the instant action (173 Cal. App. 3d 321, 328). Principles of public policy and res judicata preclude plaintiff from relitigating the issue of the physician's alleged negligence and liability. It is a rational inference, in a third-party action against an insurer, that the value of plaintiff's claim is equivalent to the amount of judgment entered against the insured. Even if the second suit is for a different cause of action, the right, question, or fact once so determined must, as between the same parties or their privies, be taken as conclusively established, so long as the judgment in the first suit remains unmodified (173 Cal. App. 3d 321, 328). Moreover, the court held that the prior adverse judgment precluded a prima facie case for violation Ins. Code § 790.03(h)(5) (Unfair Practices Act), in that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action (173 Cal. App. 3d 321, 327-328). (As mentioned previously, a private cause of action no longer exists for violation of this statute; however, the res judicata issue decided in the above case may apply with regard to a previous action brought by a third party pursuant to a common-law bad faith insurance action, following a proper assignment of the claim to the third party by the insured. See Ch. 120, Insurance , Part III, Subpart A.)

[g] Matters Concluded by Former Judgment

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1911, that only is deemed to have been adjudged in a former judgment which appears on its face to have been so adjudged, or which was actually and necessarily included therein or necessary thereto.

[h] Issues That Might Have Been Raised

Interinsurance Exchange of the Auto. Club v. Superior Court (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 177, 257 Cal. Rptr. 37 , was a mandate proceeding that arose out of an action by an insured against her insurer for damages for breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing. The insured had been involved in an automobile accident with another driver who was also insured by the same insurer. The insured signed a release for all claims connected with the accident. The insurer thereafter refused to renew her insurance, and she filed a negligence action against the other driver, who obtained a summary judgment. On appeal from that judgment, the insured argued for the first time that the insurer had committed fraud and overreaching. The summary judgment was affirmed. The insured then filed the instant action against the insurer. The insurer's demurrer to the complaint, based on collateral estoppel, was overruled, and the insurer petitioned the court of appeal for a writ of mandate.

The court of appeal issued the writ, directing the superior court to vacate its order overruling the defendant's general demurrer to the complaint, to enter an order sustaining the demurrer without leave to amend, and to dismiss the action. The court quoted extensively from Sutphin v. Speik (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 195, 202, 99 P.2d 652 and concluded that the issue involved (breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing) was the same as that raised on the prior appeal (alleged fraud and overreaching of the insurer) and could have been decided in the earlier action had it been raised in the trial court. The court said that as a result of the final adjudication of the issue of the effectiveness of the insured's assent to the release, which was based on facts with which the insured could have urged theories of fraud and overreaching as bases for vitiating her consent, the insured is precluded from asserting her cause of action for breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing based on the same factual background (209 Cal. App. 3d 177, 183) .

The facts and procedural background of Carroll v. Puritan Leasing Co.(1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 143 Cal. Rptr. 772 , are discussed under § 71.24[3][b]. In Carroll, the plaintiff contended that the liability of her separate property for the judgment had not been adjudicated in the prior action because the issue had been mentioned in neither the trial court's findings of fact nor judgment in that case. The liability of plaintiff's separate property had not been raised in the prior action until after trial and the case had been submitted on briefs to be filed. Defendants then fired their trial lawyer, and new counsel asked for an extension of time to file defendants' brief. It was in this request that, for the first time, it was asserted that the judgment in that action should contain a condition that the wife's separate property was not liable. This theme was expanded in the brief subsequently filed. The trial court's memorandum of decision on August 16, 1974, had discussed this contention and had found it had no merit because "a wife who signs a guarantee cannot claim a lack of consideration because the transaction involved her spouse." On September 26, 1974, defendants had asked for special findings, one of which (finding seven) would have been to the effect that the property sold by the leasing company was the community property of the parties. A hearing with respect to findings was held November 8, 1974, and requested finding number seven was denied. The judgment, entered December 18, 1974, did not limit plaintiff's liability nor did it expressly say that her liability extended to her separate property (77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 487 n.3 77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 484) .

The court of appeal in Carroll, after pointing out that a final judgment on the merits between the same parties bars a later action on the same cause, stated that the Prior Judgment determined not only every issue raised in that action, but every issue that might have been raised as well (77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 486) . The court observed that the prior judgment was not qualified by any stated limitation that it be satisfied only out of community property (77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 487) and explained that when former Civ. Code §§ 5121, 5123 operated to limit a party's personal liability, the judgment itself should have been specifically limited with a direction that it be satisfied only out of such separate property as is made liable by the section (77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 488) . When such limitation is appropriate, a general unqualified personal judgment would constitute error (77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 488) . Thus, plaintiff's assertion that her liability under the lease did not extend to her separate property interests was a matter within the scope of the previously litigated cause of action and barred her present action that sought in essence to subtract from rights that the previous judgment had confirmed to defendant (77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 488) .

[i] Voluntary Dismissal With Prejudice

Kronkright v. Gardner (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 214, 107 Cal. Rptr. 270 , involved a second action after a prior action based on identical grounds had been voluntarily dismissed by plaintiff with prejudice. Defendant's general demurrer to the complaint in the present action was sustained without leave to amend and the action was dismissed as to him.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment of dismissal. The court held that a voluntary dismissal of an action with prejudice constitutes a judgment (31 Cal. App. 3d 214, 218) and that the judgment constituted a retraxit and hence was a bar to the second action (31 Cal. App. 3d 214, 218-219) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Effect of Prior Judgment

The facts and procedural background of Weikel v. TCW Realty Fund II Holding Co. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1234, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25 , are discussed under § 71.24[3][e]. In Weikel, the court of appeal stated that res judicata operates as a bar to maintaining a second suit between the same parties or parties in privity with them on the same cause of action. The doctrine of res judicata gives conclusive effect to a final judgment rendered on the merits by a court having jurisdiction of the cause (55 Cal. App. 4th 1234, 1245) .

The facts and procedural background of Morton v. Loveman (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 712, 73 Cal. Rptr. 623 , are discussed in § 71.21[4][c]. In Morton v. Loveman, the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order sustaining the defendant's general and special demurrers without leave to amend. The court stated that when parties have once submitted a matter, or have had the opportunity of submitting it, for investigation and determination, and when they have exhausted every means for reviewing such determination in the same proceeding, it must be regarded as final and conclusive unless it can be shown that the prevailing party, by some extrinsic or collateral fraud (which did not appear in the present case), has prevented a fair submission of the controversy (267 Cal. App. 2d 712, 717-718) .

Legg v. United Benefit Life Ins. Co. (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 573, 6 Cal. Rptr. 73 , was an action filed March 12, 1959, by an insured in propria persona to recover monthly disability payments under a policy issued in October, 1948, for an injury suffered in February, 1947 before the policy was issued. Plaintiff alleged that a judgment of dismissal under former Code Civ. Proc. § 583 [now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.110-583.430] had been entered against her in a prior action on the same policy for the same injury but asserted that it was not res judicata as to any subsequent monthly disability benefits thereafter accruing. That is, she submitted to the application of the doctrine of res judicata as to her original claim. Defendant's general and special demurrers to the complaint were sustained without leave to amend and plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal. The court of appeal affirmed. It pointed out that it could not be ascertained from the complaint whether the prior judgment was on the merits but that plaintiff had settled the issue by having submitted to application of the doctrine of res judicata any matter relating to initial liability under the policy by seeking only subsequently accruing payments (182 Cal. App. 2d 573, 579) . Because liability under the policy had been resolved against her by the Prior Judgment, there was no liability on which a continuing obligation to make monthly payments could be predicated (182 Cal. App. 2d 573, 580) .

See also Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 554, 305 P.2d 20 (a complaint that discloses the existence of a prior judgment determining plaintiff's rights is subject to demurrer on the ground of res judicata unless additional facts are alleged that will justify setting aside the prior judgment).

[b] Showing That Action Is Barred

The facts and procedural background of Weil v. Barthel (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 835, 291 P.2d 30 , are discussed under § 71.24[3][b]. In Weil, the Supreme Court held that a properly pleaded former judgment may be considered by the trial court on demurrer in determining whether it is res judicata of a plaintiff's alleged cause of action (45 Cal. 2d 835, 837) .

Note:

In Weil, the dissent was of the view that because a copy of the judgment had not been attached to the complaint and only portions of it had been pleaded, the trial court could not take judicial notice of the unpleaded portions that were the ones relied on by defendants in establishing the defense of res judicata. The law of judicial notice, however, has since been changed and under present law the court is expressly authorized to take judicial notice of the records of any court of this state [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.30(a), 430.70; Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453].

The facts and procedural background of Legg v. United Benefit Life Ins. Co. (1960)182 Cal. App. 2d 573, 6 Cal. Rptr. 73 , are discussed under § 71.24[4][a]. In Legg, the court of appeal said that in raising the issue of res judicata on the face of her complaint and relying on several prior actions, plaintiff not only directly allowed the plea of res judicata to be raised on demurrer by defendant but also permitted the trial court to take judicial notice of the actions referred to (182 Cal. App. 2d 573, 580) . The court pointed out that it appeared from the face of the pleading that plaintiff had been previously defeated in a suit for the same injuries on the same policy and held that in this manner the plea of res judicata had been made good on demurrer (182 Cal. App. 2d 573, 581) .

[c] Sameness of Actions

The facts and procedural background of Carroll v. Puritan Leasing Co. (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 143 Cal. Rptr. 772 , are discussed under § 71.24[3][b]. In Carroll, plaintiff urged that the two actions were not the same because the prior action was based on breach of agreements, whereas the action at bar sought to quiet title to property, and to have it declared free of a judgment lien. In rejecting this contention, the court of appeal pointed out that the nature and substance of a cause of action are determined by the right or liability sought to be established or enforced, and that if the second action is based on the same right or obligation, the cause of action is the same even though different or additional relief is sought (77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 487) . The Court held that the two causes of action were the same (77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 485) , and that plaintiff's error in her contention rested on a false distinction between liability of persons and liability of property. The Court recognized that former Civ. Code §§ 5121 and 5123 referred to liability of a spouse's separate property, but explained that these sections do not act directly on property or purport to exempt property from execution, as that phrase was used in the exemption provisions under former Code Civ. Proc. § 690 et seq. [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 703.010 et seq.], but rather that they act directly on persons, defining the nature and extent of personal liability for the contractual obligations of spouses (77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 487-488) .

[d] Issues That Might Have Been Raised

See Weikel v. TCW Realty Fund II Holding Co. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1234, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25 , which is discussed under § 71.24[3][e].

See also Willson v. Security-First Nat'l Bank (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 705, 710-711, 134 P.2d 800 (although holding that, under law as it then existed, a court may not generally take judicial notice of another proceeding with a view to determining whether it is a bar to a pending suit, nevertheless said that it is the general rule that defense of res judicata may be raised by demurrer when the facts which give rise to it appear in the complaint); Savage v. Emery (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 603, 604-605, 63 Cal. Rptr. 566 (prior action against minor and car owner resulted in rendition and payment of judgment for plaintiff; present action was against minor's father, on ground he was liable as signer of minor's application for driver's license under Veh. Code § 17707, to recover damages in addition to those recovered in prior action, and held that second action was barred by res judicata and trial court properly sustained demurrer to complaint without leave to amend).

[e] Judicial Notice of Prior Action

In Dunkin v. Boskey (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 171, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44 , the trial court had dismissed plaintiff's breach of contract action after sustaining a demurrer without leave to amend. In reversing the judgment for defendant in part and remanding the case to the trial court, the court of appeal noted that to determine whether to sustain a demurrer on res judicata grounds, judicial notice may be taken of a prior judgment and other court records. The court observed that the trial court had not confronted the issue of res judicata in sustaining defendant's demurrer (82 Cal. App. 4th 171, 180 n.4).

The facts and procedural background of Carroll v. Puritan Leasing Co. (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 143 Cal. Rptr. 772 , are discussed under § 71.24[3][b]. In Carroll, the court of appeal said, relying on Evid. Code § 452, that it is now settled that a court may take judicial notice of the official acts or records of any court in this state and any state of the United States (77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 486) . Pursuant to this authority, a trial court may take notice of the prior judgment in deciding whether to sustain a demurrer based on res judicata (77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 486) . In analyzing a demurrer based on res judicata, the court will take judicial notice of a prior judgment, whether or not pleaded, provided only that (1) the court has been correctly apprised of the judgment, and (2) the plaintiff is given adequate notice and opportunity to be heard as to the effect of the judgment (77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 486) .

The facts and procedural background of Morton v. Loveman (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 712, 73 Cal. Rptr. 623 , are discussed under § 71.24[4][a]. In Morton, the court of appeal held that it was proper in that case for the trial court to take judicial notice of the records in the prior divorce action since the amended complaint made specific reference to it by name and case number, and in effect sought to make a collateral attack on the judgment therein. The court added that the former proceedings were further reflected by true copies of the relevant portions of the records accompanying the memorandum in support of the demurrer (267 Cal. App. 2d 712, 717) .

The facts and procedural background of Kronkright v. Gardner (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 214, 107 Cal. Rptr. 270 , are discussed under § 71.24[3][i] and [4][f]. In Kronkright, the court of appeal, in holding that the present action was barred by the voluntary dismissal with prejudice of the prior action, said it had no doubt that the defense was properly raised by demurrer (31 Cal. App. 3d 214, 217) . The court explained that the demurrer was heard and determined in 1971 when Code Civ. Proc. § 431.5 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.70] was in effect, and that the memorandum accompanying the demurrer properly invoked judicial notice of the earlier file pursuant to Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453 (31 Cal. App. 3d 214, 217-218) .

The facts and procedural background of Legg v. United Benefit Life Ins. Co. (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 573, 6 Cal. Rptr. 73 , are discussed under § 71.24[4][a]. In Legg, the court of appeal said that a complaint otherwise good on its face is nevertheless subject to demurrer when facts judicially noticed render it defective, basing this on the theory of "truthful pleading," that the pleader should not be allowed to bypass a demurrer by suppressing facts that the court can judicially notice (182 Cal. App. 2d 573, 581) .

See also Flores v. Arroyo (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 492, 496, 497, 15 Cal. Rptr. 87, 364 P.2d 263 (although holding action was not barred by res judicata and reversing judgment of dismissal entered following sustaining without leave to amend of general demurrer to complaint, held that in ruling on demurrer essentially founded on res judicata, trial court may take judicial notice of prior judgment in different case even though judgment or its content is not pleaded in the complaint, provided (a) judgment is appropriately drawn to court's attention, and (b) plaintiff has adequate notice and opportunity to be heard on question of effect of such judgment). The Court overruled prior Supreme Court decisions and disapproved court of appeal decisions to the extent they contained any statements contrary to the foregoing rule.

[f] Sameness of Actions

The facts and procedural background of Kronkright v. Gardner (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 214, 107 Cal. Rptr. 270 , are discussed under § 71.24[3][i]. In Kronkright, the complaints in both actions involved the same property of which plaintiff was formerly the record owner and the same joint venture agreement executed by plaintiff and defendant. In each plaintiff claimed she was induced to execute the agreement by the false and fraudulent representations of the defendant. Plaintiff sought to distinguish the prior action on the ground the relief sought was not in all respects identical, particularly since in the first case she sought to rescind the joint venture agreement whereas in the present case she did not request rescission but asked that the joint venture be dissolved. In rejecting this contention, the court of appeal observed that the lawsuits arose from the same alleged factual situation and the fact that different forms of relief were sought "is here irrelevant. Were the rule otherwise, litigation finally would end only when a party ran out of counsel whose knowledge and imagination could conceive of different theories of relief based upon the same factual background" (31 Cal. App. 3d 214, 216) . Quoting from Owl Drug Co. v. Bryant (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 296, 302, 252 P.2d 69 , the court said that it is the title, right, or obligation sought to be established or enforced, not the remedy or relief sought, which determines the nature and substance of the cause of action (31 Cal. App. 3d 214, 217) .

[g] Issues That Might Have Been Raised

Sutphin v. Speik (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 195, 99 P.2d 652, 101 P.2d 497 , was an action to recover royalties accruing after entry of a prior judgment adjudicating plaintiff's rights under an assignment of a participating royalty interest in an oil and gas lease. In this case it was defendant who attacked the findings and judgment of the court in the prior action between the same parties which judgment was determinative of plaintiff's right to recover in the current suit. Defendant argued that certain of its present contentions had not been adjudicated in the prior action. The trial court decided the case on the theory that the prior judgment was res judicata and defendant appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment. The Court declined to discuss the conflicting evidence in the case on the ground that the action was res judicata and that plaintiff was entitled to judgment without any further consideration of the merits (15 Cal. 2d 195, 204) . The Court stated the applicable rules pointing out that if the matter was within the scope of the action, related to the subject matter and relevant to the issues, so that it could have been raised, the judgment inconclusive on it despite the fact that it was not in fact expressly pleaded or otherwise urged (15 Cal. 2d 195, 202) . A party cannot by negligence or design withhold issues and litigate them in consecutive actions, and therefore the rule is that the prior judgment is res judicata on matters that were raised or could have been raised, on matters litigated or litigable (15 Cal. 2d 195, 202) . The principle set out in Price v. Sixth District Agricultural Ass'n

(1927) 201 Cal. 502, 511, 258 P. 387 , that an issue may not be split into pieces and, if it has been determined in a former action, it is binding even though the litigants may have omitted to urge for or against matters which, if urged, would have produced an opposite result, also operates to demand of a defendant that all of its defenses to the cause of action urged by the plaintiff be asserted under the penalty of forever losing the right to thereafter so urge them (15 Cal. 2d 195, 202) .

The facts and procedural background of Kronkright v. Gardner (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 214, 107 Cal. Rptr. 270 , are discussed under 71.24[3][i]. In Kronkright, the court quoted the rule stated in Sutphin v. Speik (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 195, 202, 99 P.2d 652, 101 P.2d 497 (31 Cal. App. 3d 214, 216-217) , discussed above. Quoting from Owl Drug Co. v. Bryant (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 296, 302, 252 P.2d 69 , the court said that when an action has once been adjudicated it cannot be relitigated on any grounds that were or that could have been determined in the former action (31 Cal. App. 3d 214, 217) .

Glendale v. Roseglen Constr., Inc. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 777, 89 Cal. Rptr. 219 , was an interpleader action by a city holding a fund deposited by a developer to secure its performance in regard to a development. The action named several defendants, including a successor trustee in bankruptcy of the original developer. Each defendant, including the trustee, filed a cross complaint claiming the fund. The trial court concluded that the trustee had no interest in the interpleaded fund because of a prior adjudication in the United States District Court, affirmed by the United States Court of Appeals, that the fund was not an asset in the bankrupt estate. The successor trustee appealed. In affirming the judgment, the court of appeal pointed out that the successor trustee could assert no rights in the fund as the federal court had determined that the fund was not an asset of the estate, that the determination was conclusive, and that the successor trustee was bound by the prior judgment (10 Cal. App. 3d 777, 780) . In answer to the successor trustee's argument that the issue as to whether the amount of the fund exceeded the value of the work not performed by the original developer was not decided in the federal action, the court of appeal said that it was immaterial whether appellant's predecessor in that action actually raised the issue since the issue concerning the ownership of the fund was squarely raised and decided adversely to appellant's predecessor. The court then quoted the rules announced in Sutphin v. Speik (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 195, 202, 99 P.2d 652, 101 P.2d 497 , discussed above (10 Cal. App. 3d 777, 781) .

See also Van Horne v. Treadwell (1913) 164 Cal. 620, 622, 130 P. 5 (second action to recover damages for wrongfully withholding stock barred by prior action to recover possession of stock in which claim for damages for withholding could have been adjudicated); Lortz v. Connell (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 286, 297, 78 Cal. Rptr. 6 (quoting in part rule stated in Sutphin v. Speik (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 195, 202, 99 P.2d 652, 101 P.2d 497 , discussed above); McCaffrey v. Wiley (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 621, 626, 230 P.2d 152 (second action for damages for wrongful withholding of land barred by prior action of ejectment in which issues of damages for withholding could have been litigated).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.25

§ 71.25 Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Operative Allegations Contradicted by Written Instrument Attached to Complaint

[1] FORM Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Operative Allegations Contradicted by Written Instrument Attached to Complaint

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a general demurrer (see § 71.20).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE SUSTAINED BECAUSE THE COMPLAINT INCORPORATES AS AN EXHIBIT A WRITTEN INSTRUMENT THAT REVEALS FACTS SHOWING THAT THE CAUSE OF ACTION ALLEGED IS FATALLY DEFECTIVE.

A. Attached Exhibit Subject to Court Examination on Demurrer. Although allegations in complaint must be accepted as true for purposes of demurrer, facts appearing in exhibits attached to complaint are also accepted as true and, if contrary to allegations of the pleading, are given precedence (Holland v. Morse Diesel Internat., Inc. (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1443, 1447, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 239 ; Dodd v. Citizens Bank of Costa Mesa (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1624, 1626-1627, 272 Cal. Rptr. 623).

[Optional] B. Pleader's Allegations of Exhibit's Legal Effect Treated as Surplusage. When a written instrument that is the foundation of a cause of action is attached to a pleading as an exhibit and incorporated into it by proper reference, the court may, on demurrer, examine the exhibit and treat the pleader's allegations of its legal effect as surplusage (Hill v. City of Santa Barbara (1961) 196 Cal. App. 2d 580, 586, 16 Cal. Rptr. 686).

C. Sustention of Demurrer. A general demurrer to a complaint should be sustained when it appears from the attached and incorporated writing on which the action is founded that no cause of action exists, notwithstanding the allegations of the complaint to the contrary (Gosewisch v. Doran (1911) 161 Cal. 511, 515-516, 119 P. 656 ; Beck v. American Health Group Internat., Inc. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 1555, 1560, 1562, 260 Cal. Rptr. 237).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in support of a general demurrer to a complaint in an action founded on a written instrument attached to and incorporated by reference in the complaint when the material provisions of the incorporated instrument are contrary to plaintiff's allegations of them and thus render the complaint fatally defective.

The foregoing memorandum should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a demurrer to a complaint made on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see § 71.20]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. That is, counsel should refer to specific portions of the exhibit and point out the statements that contradict material allegations of the complaint, disclosing that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in § 71.38 may be used to oppose the general demurrer supported by the foregoing memorandum.

See also § 71.20[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attached Exhibit Subject to Court Examination on Demurrer

In Holland v. Morse Diesel Internat., Inc. (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1443, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 239 the plaintiff, an individual, filed an action against a general contractor for breach of contract and racial discrimination. The initial complaint pled that the plaintiff had a contract with the defendant to supply construction site cleanup services that was breached by defendant; also the complaint pled racial discrimination claims. Defendant's demurrers were sustained on the grounds that the services performed were those required to be performed by a licensed contractor, and plaintiff was not a licensed contractor. Plaintiff thereafter pled that he was providing labor and materials and was therefore not required to be a licensed contractor. The court examined the terms of the contract that was attached to the original complaint and determined that it contradicted plaintiff's allegation in his second amended complaint that he was merely a supplier of labor and materials. The contract provided for cleanup services to be performed for a fixed sum, rather than for provision of labor to be paid at a set rate (86 Cal. App. 4th 1443, 1446-1447) .

The Court of Appeals affirmed the trial court's sustaining of the demurrers as to the breach of contract claims. Not only did the exhibits to earlier versions of the complaint establish that plaintiff was acting as a contractor, but plaintiff's allegations in earlier versions of the complaint also pled that plaintiff was acting as a contractor. If an amended complaint contradicts or omits facts pleaded in the earlier complaints, the court will take judicial notice of the earlier complaints and disregard inconsistent allegations, absent an explanation for the inconsistency. The court may also take notice of exhibits attached to the complaints. If facts appearing in the exhibits contradict those alleged, the facts in the exhibits take precedence (Catholic Healthcare West v. California Ins. Guarantee Assn. (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 15, 23, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 125 .

Dodd v. Citizens Bank of Costa Mesa (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1624, 272 Cal. Rptr. 623 , was an action by a trucking business operator against a payroll service for unauthorized use of plaintiff's funds and against the service's bank for alleged negligent mismanagement of the payroll account. Plaintiff had contracted with the payroll service for the preparation of his payroll checks and tax returns and authorized it to transfer funds from his bank directly into the payroll service's account at defendant bank. Plaintiff attached as an exhibit to his complaint a signature card that identified the payroll service as the account holder. The trial court ruled that plaintiff was not a customer of defendant bank and that the bank owed him no duty. It sustained the bank's demurrer to the causes of action against it without leave to amend and dismissed the complaint as to bank. Plaintiff appealed, pointing out that his complaint alleged a customer relationship between him and the bank and that such allegation must be accepted as true for the purposes of demurrer. He contended that notwithstanding the signature card, a question of fact was created by his allegations that defendant bank knew about the payroll service's method of operation, accepted preauthorized deposits from plaintiff's bank, and processed checks identifying plaintiff as the account holder and argued that the trier of fact should be allowed to examine his relationship with defendant bank to determine whether it should have sent him statements and canceled checks that would have revealed the payroll service's misuse of his funds.

The court of appeal rejected these arguments and affirmed the judgment. The court said that although allegations in a complaint must be accepted as true for the purposes of a demurrer, the facts appearing in exhibits attached to the complaint will also be accepted as true and, if contrary to the allegations in the pleading, will be given precedence (222 Cal. App. 3d 1624, 1626-1627) . The Court said that former Com. Code § 4104 (now see Com. Code § 4104(a)) defines "customer" as a person having an account with the bank and said that the signature card clearly identified the payroll service as the account holder (222 Cal. App. 3d 1624, 1627) .

[b] Pleader's Allegations of Exhibit's Legal Effect Treated as Surplusage

In Hill v. City of Santa Barbara (1961) 196 Cal. App. 2d 580, 16 Cal. Rptr. 686 , plaintiff filed an action seeking a declaration of rights under a deed allegedly conveying real property to defendant city as plaintiff's trustee under a trust agreement. The complaint alleged that the city was to convey the property to whomever the plaintiff directed, and that the trustee had no interest in the property other than legal title for the benefit of the plaintiff. A copy of the deed was attached to the complaint and incorporated by reference. The city interposed a general demurrer based on, among other grounds, the failure to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. The plaintiff declined to amend the complaint and the trial court entered a judgment of dismissal in favor of the defendant city. The plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The court, citing Alphonzo E. Bell Corp. v. Bell View Oil Syndicate (1941) 46 Cal. App. 2d 684, 691, 116 P.2d 786 , discussed under § 71.25[4][b], stated that recitals in an exhibit to the complaint, if contrary to allegations in the pleading, will be given precedence, and the pleader's inconsistent allegations as to the meaning and effect of an unambiguous document will be disregarded. The court observed that the plaintiff's allegations in the complaint were inconsistent with the recitals contained in the exhibit because the complaint alleged delivery with a condition limiting the use of the property as expressed in a formal motion and acceptance by the defendant's city council, but the exhibit, consisting of the deed and the city council's resolution, did not contain any such condition or restriction (196 Cal. App. 2d 580, 586) .

[c] Sustention of Demurrer

Gosewisch v. Doran (1911) 161 Cal. 511, 119 P. 656 , was a libel action arising from allegedly libelous statements made by defendants in a complaint filed by them in a prior action against plaintiff. Plaintiff alleged that in the prior complaint he had been charged with the misappropriation and embezzlement of corporate funds and that the charge was false, malicious, and defamatory and wholly without justification or excuse, and was not pertinent or material or at all necessary to the proceedings instituted by the filing of the complaint. A copy of the prior complaint was attached to the present complaint. Defendants' demurrer was sustained.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment. In holding that the demurrer was properly sustained, the Court said that as against the showing of the exact contents of the prior complaint filed against plaintiff, plaintiff's allegation in the complaint that the publications charging him with misconduct were not pertinent or material to the prior action was a mere conclusion of law not admitted by the demurrer and had to be disregarded as contrary to the facts alleged (161 Cal. 511, 515-516) .

Beck v. American Health Group Internat., Inc. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 1555, 260 Cal. Rptr. 237 , was an action by a psychiatrist against a hospital and its parent corporation for damages for breach of an alleged employment contract. The alleged contract was in the form of a letter, signed by the hospital's executive director and the plaintiff, which was incorporated by reference and which showed on its face that it was not a contract but a preliminary agreement concerning the terms of a contract to be executed in the future. Defendants' general demurrer to the complaint was sustained without leave to amend, and plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal.

The court of appeal affirmed, concluding that there was no contract, but merely an agreement to agree which cannot be made the basis of a cause of action (211 Cal. App. 3d 1555, 1563) . The court held that the trial court did not err in construing the alleged contract on demurrer because the plaintiff neither alleged that the "contract" was ambiguous nor placed any definite construction on it by averment (which is required if extrinsic evidence as to its meaning is to be introduced and considered), but merely attached it to the complaint and incorporated it by reference, leaving it to speak for itself (211 Cal. App. 3d 1555, 1560-1562) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Attached Exhibit Subject to Court Examination on Demurrer

Washer v. Bank of America (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 822, 136 P.2d 297 (overruled on another point in MacLeod v. Tribune Pub. Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 551, 343 P.2d 36), was an action for damages for libel and slander. Defendants' general and special demurrers to the second amended complaint were sustained without leave to amend and Plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment for defendants. The Supreme Court reversed the judgment. The Court stated that the general rule is that when a written instrument that is the foundation of a cause of action or defense is attached to a pleading as an exhibit and incorporated into it by proper reference, the court may, on demurrer, examine the exhibit and treat the pleader's allegations of its legal effect as surplusage. An instrument that is not, however, the basis of a cause of action or defense falls in a different category. The pleading of such a document as an exhibit is only an assertion of its existence and character in the absence of allegations indicating the pleader's intention to adopt as his or her own the recitals of the exhibit. There was nothing in the complaint that indicated that the plaintiff intended to include as a part of his pleading any statement of facts included in the exhibit (21 Cal. 2d 822, 829-830) .

Kronsberg v. Milton J. Wershow Co. (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 170, 47 Cal. Rptr. 592 , was an action for damages for breach of contract, conversion, and fraud. Plaintiff alleged the parties had entered into a written agreement supplemented by another writing executed the same day (copies of which were attached as exhibits to and incorporated in the complaint) by the terms of which defendant was to sell at auction certain of plaintiffs' personal and real property; that title to the property was conveyed to defendant, the auction was held, and certain property was sold; that an "air facility" was not sold and never redelivered to plaintiffs; and that defendant accepted bids on the real property but never arranged for consummation of the sales. After demurrers and motions to strike had been granted with respect to the several amended pleadings and plaintiff had finally elected to stand on its fourth amended complaint, the trial court granted defendant's motion to dismiss. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. It noted that the trial court had properly applied the rule of Washer v. Bank of America (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 822, 828-830, 136 P.2d 297 , discussed above, which it had cited in ruling on the second amended complaint. The court held that the attached exhibits constituted the contract between the parties and that all of plaintiff's contrary allegations in the complaint as to the agreement were to be disregarded under the rule of Washer, which it quoted (238 Cal. App. 2d 170, 173) . The court then examined the provisions of the attached exhibits and concluded that under the facts alleged by plaintiff, defendant had complied with, rather than breached, its contract, that the same was true of the conversion count, and that the oral representations relied on as establishing fraud had been superseded by the written agreements (238 Cal. App. 2d 170, 173-174) .

See also Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 778, 785-786, 256 P.2d 947 (the general rule is that when a written instrument that is the foundation of a cause of action or defense is attached to a pleading as an exhibit and incorporated in it by proper reference, the court may, on demurrer, examine the exhibit and treat the pleader's allegations of its legal effect as surplusage); Peak v. Republic Truck Sales Corp. (1924) 194 Cal. 782, 790, 230 P. 948 (when pleader sets forth in pleading what he or she either admits or alleges to be substance or legal effect of written instrument and in same pleading sets forth in haecverba written instrument itself, if latter is unambiguous, matter in pleading that is inconsistent with text of writing will be treated as surplusage); Stoddard v. Treadwell (1864) 26 Cal. 294, 302-303 (when plaintiff sets forth contract in terms in which it is written and then proceeds by averment to put false construction on terms, allegations repugnant to terms should be regarded as surplusage to be struck out on motion); Lingsch v. Savage (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 729, 740, 29 Cal. Rptr. 201 (court noted that provisions of agreement attached to and incorporated in a complaint by reference and bearing on the right of either party to recover may thereby generate defect or defense apparent on face of complaint, defeating recovery by the plaintiff and making complaint subject to a general demurrer); Bashford v. A. Levy & J. Zentner Co. (1932) 123 Cal. App. 204, 209-210, 11 P.2d 51 (allegations of pleading that are negated by express and certain language of written instrument set forth in, or made part of pleading by reference, are to be disregarded as surplusage).

[b] Sustention of Demurrer

Byrne v. Harvey (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 92, 27 Cal. Rptr. 110 , was an action for damages for breach of contract, consisting of a letter agreement, a copy of which was attached to and incorporated in the complaint. Defendant was sued in his individual capacity. The attached letter agreement was directed to and accepted by defendant in his representative capacity as the administrator of two probate estates. Defendant's demurrer was sustained without leave to amend, and plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal. The court of appeal affirmed. It held that the trial court properly ignored plaintiff's allegation that the agreement was duly signed by defendant individually because, in accordance with the rule stated in Washer v. Bank of America (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 822, 136 P.2d 297 , discussed under § 71.25[4][a], when a written instrument that is the foundation of a cause of action or defense is attached to a pleading as an exhibit and incorporated into it by proper reference, the court may, on demurrer, examine the exhibit and treat the pleader's allegations of its legal effect as surplusage (211 Cal. App. 2d 92, 104) .

Alphonzo E. Bell Corp. v. Bell View Oil Syndicate (1941) 46 Cal. App. 2d 684, 116 P.2d 786 , was an action for damages and injunctive relief against a business trust and its trustees who were alleged to have abstracted large quantities of oil from plaintiff's property by means of slant wells. Unit holders of the trust intervened seeking to prevent the trust estate from being held liable for the torts of its trustees. The trustees compromised and settled the action by payment to plaintiff of $450,000 from the trust estate. Demurrers to the amended and supplemental complaints in intervention were sustained without leave to amend. On appeal from the subsequent judgment of dismissal, appellants argued that the trustees were without right to drill the wells, that the trust estate was not a party capable of being sued in court, and that the trustees were without power to defend the estate in court, and hence, without power to compromise and settle the litigation, but that all these conclusions of the pleader were contrary to the express terms of the instrument creating the trust that was pleaded in full and made a part of the complaint. Under those circumstances a court would, in hearing on the demurrer, examine the exhibits and treat the pleader's conclusions as surplusage (46 Cal. App. 2d 684, 691) . The court said that turning to the trust indenture it found that the trustees were given express power to develop and operate oil properties and wells in the name of the trust estate, to exercise the exclusive management and control of the trust estate, and to employ counsel to begin, prosecute, defend or settle law suits, at law, in equity or otherwise, and to compromise or to refer to arbitration, any claims in favor of or against the trust (46 Cal. App. 2d 684, 691) . The court concluded that the demurrers were properly sustained and affirmed the judgment (46 Cal. App. 2d 684, 693) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.26

§ 71.26 Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Amended Complaint Is Inconsistent With Prior Complaint

[1] FORM Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Amended Complaint Is Inconsistent With Prior Complaint

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a general demurrer (see § 71.20).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE SUSTAINED BECAUSE THE PLEADING WITHOUT EXPLANATION, _____ [OMITS FACTS ALLEGED IN and/or IS INCONSISTENT WITH] A PRIOR COMPLAINT, THEREBY RENDERING THE COMPLAINT FATALLY DEFECTIVE.

A. Allegations Inconsistent With Prior Pleading Not Assumed True. Although a court generally must assume the truth of the factual allegations of the complaint, an exception exists when a party files an amended complaint and seeks to avoid the defects of a prior complaint either by omitting the facts that rendered the complaint defective or by pleading facts inconsistent with the allegations of the prior pleadings (Owens v. Kings Supermarket (1988)198 Cal. App. 3d 379, 384, 243 Cal. Rptr. 627).

B. Examination of Prior Complaint Permitted. Courts will not disregard an original pleading after an amended pleading has been filed, if an amended complaint attempts to avoid defects set forth in a prior complaint by ignoring them. The court may examine the prior complaint to ascertain whether the amended complaint is merely a sham (Amid v. Hawthorne Community Medical Group, Inc. (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1383, 1387, 261 Cal. Rptr. 240).

C. Inconsistent or Omitted Allegations Read Into Amended Complaint. The policy against sham pleading permits the court to take judicial notice of the prior pleadings and to require that the pleader explain the inconsistency. If the pleader fails to do so, the court may disregard the inconsistent allegations and read into the amended complaint the allegations of the superseded complaint (Owens v. Kings Supermarket (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 379, 384, 243 Cal.

Rptr. 627).

D. Court Records. [See § 71.21, Paragraph I.]

E. Request That Court Take Judicial Notice. [See § 71.21, Paragraph O.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in support of a general demurrer to a complaint if an amended complaint without explanation omits facts from, or is inconsistent with, the original complaint.

The foregoing memorandum should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a demurrer to a complaint made on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see § 71.20]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, if the amended complaint omits a fact alleged in the original complaint, counsel should (1) request judicial notice of the court's file in the case and, specifically, of the earlier pleading; (2) identify the now-omitted fact, specifically referring to the paragraph number of the earlier pleading; (3) point out that the fact was omitted from the current pleading; (4) argue that if the omitted fact were true, the complaint would fail to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, and the general demurrer should therefore be sustained.

[b] Purpose of Rule

The rule set out in the foregoing form, that allegations of fact in a complaint subsequently omitted or contradicted are still binding on the plaintiff, is valid and useful to defeat abuses of the privilege to amend and to discourage sham and untruthful pleadings. However, the rule is not intended to prevent honest plaintiffs from correcting erroneous allegations of generic terms that may have legal implications but that are also loosely used by lay persons, or to prevent the correction of ambiguous statements of fact [Contreras v. Blue Cross of California (1988)199 Cal. App. 3d 945, 950, 245 Cal. Rptr. 258 ; see § 71.40].

[c] Judicial Notice

The court is permitted to take judicial notice of records of any court of this state to the extent that such matters are not embraced within Evid. Code § 451, relating to mandatory judicial notice [Evid. Code § 452(d); Tarr v. Merco Constr. Eng'rs, Inc. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 707, 712, 148 Cal. Rptr. 813] . For discussion of the procedure for requesting judicial notice, and forms of request and argument supporting the request, see § 71.21.

[d] Verification of Original Complaint

One formulation of the rule set forth in the foregoing complaint is that material factual allegations in a verified pleading that are omitted in a subsequent amended pleading without adequate explanation will be considered by the court in ruling on a demurrer to the later pleading [see Shoemaker v. Myers (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 1, 12, 276 Cal. Rptr. 303, 801 P.2d 1054 ; Lamoreux v. San Diego etc. Ry. Co (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 617, 623, 311 P.2d 1] . Although this statement of the rule refers to verification, apparently, it is not essential that the original pleading be verified [see Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 836, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377 ; Hills Transp. Co. v. Southwest Forest Indus., Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 702, 710-711, 72 Cal. Rptr. 441 ; see also Witkin, California Procedure, vol. 5, Pleading, § 1117 (3d ed. 1985) ("Although some of the cases stress the fact that the complaint was verified, the rule applies equally to unverified pleadings")].

In Reichert, the Supreme Court stated, "In the case before us, it does not appear that the original complaint is verified. Nevertheless we feel that the principle underlying the above authorities [defect in original infects subsequent pleadings] is applicable here" [Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 836, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377] . In Hills Trans. Co., the court observed that a respectable number of cases had applied the rule that superseded pleadings may be considered by the court at a subsequent stage of the case to prior pleadings in general, without drawing any distinction between verified and unverified pleadings. In these latter cases the pleadings appeared to The Court to have been unverified, at least so far as the court could tell from the opinion. The court stated its view that the better formulation of the rule "draws no artificial distinction between verified and unverified pleadings but permits the trial court in either case to function without blinkers and take note, when pertinent, of the entire history of the pleadings" [Hills Transp. Co. v. Southwest Forest Indus., Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 702, 710-711, 72 Cal. Rptr. 441 ; discussed under § 71.26[4][c]].

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in § 71.40 may be used to oppose the general demurrer supported by the foregoing memorandum.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.21[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Allegations Inconsistent With Prior Pleading Not Assumed True

Owens v. Kings Supermarket (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 379, 243 Cal. Rptr. 627 , was an action against a supermarket by a customer for injuries sustained when he was struck by a motorist while on a public street adjacent to the supermarket's property. The original complaint alleged that plaintiff was injured in the street adjacent to the supermarket premises. The same allegations were made in the first amended complaint. In his second amended complaint, plaintiff alleged that the injury occurred on "defendant's premises" rather than on the street. He offered no explanation for the inconsistency. The trial court sustained defendant's demurrer to the second amended complaint without leave to amend, and Plaintiff appealed from the order of dismissal.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The court reiterated the rule that when reviewing a judgment entered following the sustaining of a demurrer without leave to amend, the appellate court must assume the truth of the factual allegations of the complaint (198 Cal. App. 3d 379, 383) . However, said the court, an exception exists when a party files an amended complaint and seeks to avoid the defects of a prior complaint either by omitting the facts that rendered the complaint defective or by pleading facts inconsistent with the allegations of prior pleadings. In these circumstances, the policy against sham pleadings permits the court to take judicial notice of the prior pleadings and requires that the pleader explain the inconsistency. If he or she fails to do so, the court may disregard the inconsistent allegations and read into the amended complaint the allegations of the superseded complaint (198 Cal. App. 3d 379, 384) . The appellate court held that the trial court properly disregarded the allegation in the second amended complaint that the accident occurred on defendant's premises and that for the purposes of appeal, the appellate court assumed that, as alleged in the original and first amended complaints, the plaintiff was injured while on the street adjacent to the premises of the supermarket (198 Cal. App. 3d 379, 385) . So assuming, the court of appeal affirmed the judgment on the ground that the defendant owed plaintiff no duty of care (198 Cal. App. 3d 379, 384-388) .

[b] Examination of Prior Complaint Permitted

Amid v. Hawthorne Community Medical Group, Inc. (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1383, 261 Cal. Rptr. 240 , involved an action by plaintiff doctor against his hospital employer. The dispute arose after the hospital's board of directors adopted a peer review committee's evaluation of the doctor's medical performance and forwarded a copy of the report's recommendations to an affiliated health insurer. The doctor's initial complaint alleged a "contractual relationship" with the hospital and did not state whether the original complaint was written, oral, or implied, what its terms were, and whether there was a nondisclosure term. A second amended complaint alleged that the doctor entered into written employment contracts with the hospital. A third amended complaint stated that the breach of contract cause of action was based on an implied contract (covenants of good faith and fair dealing) and was not based on any express contract, either written or oral. Finally, the doctor's fourth amended complaint alleged an explicit oral contract of nondisclosure and omitted any mention of good faith or fair dealing covenants. The latter alleged causes of action for breach of contract, intentional and negligent breach of a confidential relationship, interference with prospective business advantage, and negligence. The hospital filed a general demurrer to the complaint. The trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend, and entered an order of dismissal. The plaintiff appealed from the judgment.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court stated that although a demurrer admits all material and issuable facts, properly pleaded, it does not admit contentions, deductions or conclusions of law. When an allegation is contrary to law or to a fact of which the court may take judicial notice, it is to be treated as a nullity. The court is permitted to take judicial notice of such records as an appellant's affidavits and prior complaints in the same action. The court said that although generally, after an amended pleading has been filed, courts will disregard the original pleading, they will not do so when an amended complaint attempts to avoid defects set forth in a prior complaint by ignoring them. The court may examine the prior complaint to ascertain whether the amended complaint is merely a sham (212 Cal. App. 3d 1383, 1387) . The court cited Owens v. Kings Supermarket (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 379, 384, 243 Cal. Rptr. 627 , discussed below, and concluded that in the present case, as in Owens, no explanation for the pleading inconsistency having been offered, the trial court was entitled to conclude that the doctor's breach of contract cause of action was a sham (212 Cal. App. 3d 1383, 1390-1391) .

[c] Inconsistent or Omitted Allegations Read Into Amended Complaint

The facts and procedural background of Owens v. Kings Supermarket*(1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 379, 243 Cal. Rptr. 627* , are discussed under § 71.26[3][a]. In Owens, the court of appeal, citing Hills Trans. Co. v. Southwest Forest Industries, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 702, 709-713, 72 Cal. Rptr. 441 , discussed under § 71.26[2][d] and [4][c], said that when a party files an amended complaint and seeks to avoid the defects of a prior complaint either by omitting the facts that rendered the complaint defective or by pleading facts inconsistent with the allegations of the prior pleadings, the policy against sham pleadings permits the court to take judicial notice of the prior pleadings and requires that the pleader explain the inconsistency. If he or she fails to do so, the court may disregard the inconsistent allegations and read into the amended complaint the allegations of the superseded complaint (198 Cal. App. 3d 379, 384) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Allegations Inconsistent With Prior Pleading Not Assumed True

Continental Ins. Co. v. Lexington Ins. Co. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 637, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 116 , was an action involving an insurance coverage dispute between insurance companies concerning primary and excess insurance coverage. The trial court sustained defendant's general demurrer without leave to amend, and judgment of dismissal was entered. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment, noting that in reviewing the sustaining of a demurrer, the court determines whether the complaint alleged facts sufficient to state a cause of action, and accepts as true all material facts properly pleaded in the complaint (55 Cal. App. 4th 637, 647) . Even if appellant were given leave to amend its complaint, it would not be allowed to amend the complaint to state a fact contradictory to one stated previously. Citing California Dental Assn. v. California Dental Hygienists' Assn. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 49, 53, n.1, 271 Cal. Rptr. 410 , the court noted that a plaintiff may not discard factual allegations of a prior complaint, or avoid them by contradictory averments, in a superseding, amended pleading (55 Cal. App. 4th 637, 646) .

[b] Examination of Prior Complaint Permitted

Reichert v. General Ins. Co (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377 , was an action by an insured against four insurance companies for alleged malicious nonpayment of fire insurance after a fire damaged plaintiff's hotel, as a result of which plaintiff was adjudicated a bankrupt. The second amended complaint set forth nine causes of action, the first four of which were common counts. Defendants' demurrers were sustained without leave to amend. The plaintiff appealed. The Supreme Court, pointed out that plaintiff's original complaint contained an allegation as to his bankruptcy and that the demurrers were sustained on the ground that plaintiff lacked capacity to sue. However, in both his first and second amended complaints, he set forth the four common counts alleging causes of action ex contractu and omitted reference to his bankruptcy. The Court observed that such actions would have vested in the trustee by virtue of the bankruptcy allegation of the original complaint but on their face failed to disclose the defect in plaintiff's right arising from the bankruptcy. The Court held that plaintiff could not circumvent a demonstrated defect by such an expedient. If a verified complaint contains allegations destructive of a cause of action, the defect cannot be cured in subsequently filed pleadings by simply omitting such allegations without explanation. In such a case the original defect infects the subsequent pleading so as to render it vulnerable to a demurrer. The Court noted that it did not appear in the case before it that the original complaint was verified but held that the foregoing rules nevertheless applied (68 Cal. 2d 822, 836) .

It should be noted the Court in Reichert pointed out that a party should be allowed to correct a pleading by omitting an allegation that, it appears, was made as the result of mistake or inadvertence, but concluded that the allegation of plaintiff's bankruptcy in his prior unverified complaint was not the result of any such mistake or inadvertence (68 Cal. 2d 822, 836-837) .

Sackett v. Wyatt (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 592, 108 Cal. Rptr. 219 , was an action by an employer against a union representative. In his original verified complaint, plaintiff named the union representative, the union local, and a Joint Committee as defendants and alleged two causes of action arising out of an alleged breach of an oral agreement to withdraw grievances against plaintiff before the Joint Committee in consideration of plaintiff's withdrawing pending disciplinary charges against certain of his employees who were union members and a refusal of the Joint Committee to issue a clarification of its decision against plaintiff. Over a year later, before any responsive pleading was filed, plaintiff filed an amended complaint naming only the union representative and certain Does as defendants and again setting forth two causes of action. In the first, he sought damages for breach of contract for defendant's failure to withdraw, and instead prosecuting, the grievances against him. In the second cause of action, he sought damages for fraud and alleged that defendant had not intended to withdraw the grievances at the time oral agreement was entered into and that his promise to do so was false and fraudulent. Defendant's demurrer to the complaint was sustained without leave to amend. In affirming the judgment of dismissal, the court of appeal, with respect to the first cause of action, said that in ruling on the demurrer the trial court was not confined to the allegations of the first amended complaint but was entitled to consider the verified allegations of the earlier complaint, and that allegations of fact made under oath may not ordinarily be dropped without adequate explanation merely for the purpose of avoiding their harmful effect in a subsequent pleading (32 Cal. App. 3d 592, 597) . The Court then pointed out that the original complaint contained factual allegations showing that defendant in doing the things alleged was acting as a known agent for a disclosed principal and that under California law a personal judgment for damages for breach of contract may not be obtained against such a person (32 Cal. App. 3d 592, 597) .

[c] Inconsistent or Omitted Allegations Read Into Amended Complaint

Freeman v. San Diego Assn. of Realtors (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 171, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534 , involved an action alleging violation of the Cartwright Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 16700 et seq.). The trial court sustained defendants' demurrers to plaintiff's third amended complaint and dismissed the action. Plaintiff appealed. The court of appeal affirmed. In so doing, the court noted that a plaintiff may not avoid defects of plaintiff's earlier pleadings by omitting facts that made the earlier pleadings defective or alleging new facts inconsistent with the allegations of the earlier pleading parenthetically noting that when plaintiff pleads inconsistent facts without explaining the inconsistency, the court will read into the amended complaint the facts alleged in the superseded complaint. Moreover, the court noted that when affidavits or exhibits filed by a plaintiff may be judicially noticed, the court may consider those facts to assess whether the complaint survives a general demurrer (77 Cal. App. 4th 171, 178 n.3).

Software Design & Application, Ltd. v. Hoefer & Arnett, Inc. (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 472, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 756 , involved an action by a foreign corporation and its sole owner and founder, against banks and brokerage firms. Plaintiffs, who were not customers of defendants, attempted to state causes of action against defendants for negligence, conversion, and violation of California Uniform Commercial Code § 11204. The real culprit, however, was plaintiffs' faithless financial consultant entrusted with a valuable portfolio, who liquidated the assets with the help of his sister through a scheme involving a series of fictitious accounts. One transaction involved the transfer of individual plaintiff's Paine- Webber portfolio to an account opened by the consultant in the name of a limited partnership that did not exist with defendant Hoeffer & Arnett, Inc. The trial court sustained demurrers to the first amended complaint, concluding there was no liability under the pleadings, and then dismissed the complaint after plaintiffs failed to further amend.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The court pointed out that in connection with the transfer of the individual plaintiff's Paine-Webber portfolio to defendant Hoeffer & Arnett, plaintiffs averred that certain documentation from Paine-Webber accompanied the transfer of the portfolio to Hoefer & Arnett which indicated that the securities and funds being transferred were owned and controlled exclusively by the individual plaintiff. The initial pleading stated that the documentation included true copies of a letter signed by plaintiff, and a transfer request form signed by him which were attached as exhibits. The amended complaint, however, did not include a description of this documentation, nor were copies of these documents attached. The court noted that these documents were not at all questionable or irregular on their face and authorized a transfer of plaintiff's account. The court further noted that plaintiffs cannot retreat from these allegations and supporting exhibits concerning actual documentation and supplant them in amended pleadings, with conclusory allegations characterizing documentation in general terms, and with an entirely different twist. When a complaint contains allegations destructive to a cause of action, the defect cannot be cured by their omission without explanation in a subsequent pleading. Moreover, allegations in a complaint must yield to contrary facts found in exhibits to the complaint (49 Cal. App. 4th 472, 484) .

Zappas v. King Williams Press, Inc. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 768, 89 Cal. Rptr. 307 , was an action against owners of real property. Plaintiff's third amended complaint alleged an oral contract by defendants to compensate him in connection with his obtaining of a lessee and a building contractor for defendants and sought an accounting and judgment for the sums owed him under the alleged oral agreement. The original and first amended complaints had been unverified; the second and third amended complaints were verified. Defendants' demurrer to the last amended complaint was sustained without leave to amend. Although the trial court cited no reasons for the ruling, its later order denying reconsideration indicated that it felt the oral contract pleaded was barred by the statute of frauds. The court of appeal held that the action was not barred by the statute of frauds as it read at the time of the transaction involved, but affirmed the judgment on the grounds that under Bus. & Prof. Code § 10136 plaintiff was required to both allege and prove that he was a licensed broker at the time of the transaction, that plaintiff never claimed he could amend to so allege, and the trial court was entitled to believe on the record before it, including the prior unverified complaints filed in the action, that plaintiff was unable to allege facts that would cast him in the role of a "finder" exempt from the operation of the statute. In this connection, the court quoted the rule that when a verified complaint contains allegations destructive of a cause of action, the defect cannot be cured in subsequently filed pleadings by simply omitting such allegations without explanation. The court, citing Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 836-837, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377 , discussed under § 71.26[4][b], held that the rule applies as well to unverified complaints (10 Cal. App. 3d 768, 775) .

Hills Transp. Co. v. Southwest Forest Indus., Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 702, 72 Cal. Rptr. 441 , was an action for damages for alleged breach of a contract to transport goods. The issue was whether the trial court abused its discretion in sustaining defendants' demurrer to the verified second amended complaint without leave to amend. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment of the trial court. The court said that a pleader may not attempt to breathe life into a complaint by omitting relevant facts that made the previous complaint defective, and that if an amended pleading is only a sham and it is apparent that no cause of action can be truthfully stated, the court should disregard that pleading (266 Cal. App. 2d 702, 713) .

The Hill court further stated that a respectable number of cases had applied the rule that superseded pleadings may be considered by the court at a subsequent stage of the case to prior pleadings in general, without drawing any distinction between verified and unverified pleadings (266 Cal. App. 2d 702, 710) . For additional discussion relating to the question of whether the original pleadings should be verified, see § 71.26[2][d].

See also Converse v. Joslin (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 638, 643, 1 Cal. Rptr. 777 (when verified complaint contains allegations destructive of a cause of action, the defect cannot be cured in subsequently filed pleadings by simply omitting such allegations without explanation) and cases cited there.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.27

§ 71.27 Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Equitable Action Barred by Laches

[1] FORM Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Equitable Action Barred by Laches

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a general demurrer (see § 71.20).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE SUSTAINED BECAUSE IT APPEARS ON THE FACE OF THE COMPLAINT [OR FROM MATTERS OF WHICH THE COURT IS REQUIRED TO OR MAY TAKE JUDICIAL NOTICE] THAT THE ACTION IS BARRED BY LACHES.

Action Barred by Laches. A complaint in equity that on its face shows a great lapse of time between the time the cause of action arose and the filing of the complaint that would make it inequitable to enforce the claim and fails to allege facts excusing the delay and showing good faith and reasonable diligence on plaintiff's part fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action and is demurrable on that ground (Kleinclaus v. Dutard (1905) 147 Cal. 245, 248-250, 81 P. 516 ; Converse v. Joslin (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 638, 645, 1 Cal. Rptr. 777).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in support of a general demurrer to a complaint for equitable relief when it appears on the face of the complaint or from judicially noticed matter that the action is barred by laches. The equitable doctrine of laches becomes pertinent only when the statutory period of limitations has not yet run; if it has run, the action is barred by the statute of limitations [see Estate of Peebles (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 163, 166, 103 Cal. Rptr. 560] . For memoranda of points and authorities in support of a general demurrer to a complaint on the ground the action is barred by the statute of limitations, see Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions .

The foregoing memorandum should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a demurrer to a complaint made on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see § 71.20]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Referring to the complaint or judicially noticed facts, counsel should identify the date the cause of action accrued, the date the action was filed, the death of any witnesses, and loss of evidence, and argue that these circumstances would prejudice the defendant [see Converse v. Joslin (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 638, 645, 1 Cal. Rptr. 777] .

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in § 71.42 may be used to oppose the general demurrer supported by the foregoing memorandum.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.21[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action Barred by Laches

Kleinclaus v. Dutard (1905) 147 Cal. 245, 81 P. 516 , was an action against the executors of the will of Hyppolite Dutard to establish that all property possessed by him at the time of his death was held in trust for his siblings. Plaintiffs were a brother and sister of Hyppolite. The amended complaint alleged that (1) Hyppolite's father owned a small produce business; (2) he requested Hyppolite to carry on the business after his death for the benefit of Hyppolite's mother, his siblings, and himself; (3) Hyppolite promised to do so; (4) the father died in 1865; (5) Hyppolite, then a 20-year-old man, assumed control of the business that was then worth $15,000; (6) Hyppolite promised and agreed with his mother and siblings to build up, enlarge, carry on, conduct, and extend the business in trust for them and himself; (7) he so managed the business, and on the death of the mother in 1875 it was worth $100,000; (8) on the death of the mother he renewed his promise to his siblings; and (9) he continued to manage the business and to invest and reinvest the proceeds until his death in 1900 when he left an estate worth $2,500,000 consisting of both personal and real property. It was further alleged in terms that no accounting had ever been had and that nothing had ever been paid or delivered by Hyppolite to any of the alleged beneficiaries. Defendants' general demurrer to the amended complaint was sustained without leave to amend. The trial court stated that it was manifest that it would have been impossible after the death of Hyppolite Dutard to do justice to the parties by attempting to ascertain what property was left by the father at the time of his death, and trace it in all its mutations and transformations down to the time of the death of Hyppolite Dutard (147 Cal. 245, 252) . The plaintiffs should have asserted what rights they claimed in this property during Hyppolite Dutard's life (147 Cal. 245, 252) . By reason of his death it had become morally impossible for the court to do what it was asked to do by the complaint (147 Cal. 245, 252) .

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment (147 Cal. 245, 252) . In concurring with the trial court, the Supreme Court pointed out that one of the grounds of the demurrer was that it appeared on the face of the complaint that the action was barred by laches and that trial court had held this ground to have been well taken (147 Cal. 245, 248) . The Court said that entirely independent of any statutory period of limitations, stale demands will not be aided by equity when the claimant has slept on his rights for so long a time and under such circumstances as to make it inequitable to enter on an inquiry as to their validity, and under such conditions the demand is, in a court of equity, barred by laches (147 Cal. 245, 249) . The Court held the present action was barred by laches and that this defense had been properly raised by demurrer on the ground the complaint failed to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action (147 Cal. 245, 250) .

Converse v. Joslin (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 638, 1 Cal. Rptr. 777 , was an action to establish a trust in property. Special and general demurrers to the second amended complaint were sustained without leave to amend. The defendants were the heirs of Melville E. Joslin, the Joslin Lumber Company, and various other persons. Melville had been president of the lumber company and had owned one share of its stock; his mother-in-law, Alameda A. Converse, had owned 518 shares and had been its first vice president; Ploma Joslin was Alameda's daughter and Melville's wife; Byron J. Converse was Alameda's son and the distributee of her estate; plaintiff, Helen M. Converse, was Byron's widow. Plaintiff alleged that in 1938 Melville "attempted" to dissolve the corporation but never turned any of its assets over to Alameda. The court of appeal held that the second amended complaint failed to state a cause of action because the case depended on dissolution of the lumber company and plaintiff had not alleged that it had been dissolved or that action necessary to dissolution had been taken (176 Cal. App. 3d 638, 644-645) .

The court of appeal affirmed the judgments of dismissal. The court stated that another equally serious defect appeared. The attempted dissolution had occurred in 1938 and the action was not commenced until March of 1953. During that period the following casualties took place: Melville E. Joslin died August 8, 1952; Ploma, his wife, was committed to Camarillo State Hospital in April of 1940, and was still there when the second amended complaint was filed; Alameda A. Converse died in 1945; Byron J. Converse died in August of the following year; and all of these facts appear in the second amended complaint. What appeared was an unexcused delay of about 15 years from the wrong complained of until the action was commenced during which period those who could tell of the understanding reached, the reasons for action taken, the explanation for inaction, became permanently unable to do so. This amounted to laches appearing from the pleading itself (176 Cal. App. 3d 638, 645) . Then, quoting from Zakaessian v. Zakaessian (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 721, 725, 161 P.2d 677 , discussed in § 71.42[4][a], the court said that it is a well-settled rule of law that the defense of laches can be raised by a general demurrer and that when an action is commenced many years after its accrual, the death of witnesses or destruction of evidence, presumed as well as actual, may prejudice the defendant and justify denial of relief because of staleness of the claim (176 Cal. App. 3d 638, 645) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Action Barred by Laches

In Williams v. International Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union (1959)172 Cal. App. 2d 84, 341 P.2d 729 , although the court of appeal affirmed judgment of dismissal entered after the defendant's demurrer to first amended complaint was sustained without leave to amend on ground action was barred by statute of limitations, which defense was properly raised (172 Cal. App. 2d 84, 88) , the court pointed out that the defense of laches maybe properly raised by general demurrer (172 Cal. App. 2d 84, 86) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.28

§ 71.28 Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Insufficiency Established by Judicial Admission

[1] FORM Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Insufficiency Established by Judicial Admission

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a general demurrer (see § 71.20).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE SUSTAINED BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM A JUDICIAL ADMISSION ON THE FACE OF THE COMPLAINT THAT A CAUSE OF ACTION CANNOT BE STATED.

A. Insufficiency Established by Judicial Admission. A complaint that on its face contains an admission that negates an essential element of the cause of action fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action; the plaintiff is bound by such an admission in his or her complaint (see Setliff v. E. I. Du Pont De Nemours & Co. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 1534, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a general demurrer to a complaint when an admission contained within the complaint negates the plaintiff's ability to allege an essential element of the cause of action.

These points and authorities should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a demurrer to a complaint made on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see § 71.20]. They may also be adopted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts in the case and the points of law stated. Thus counsel should include discussion showing how the allegations of the complaint containing the admission negates the possibility of the plaintiff being able to allege an element essential to state a cause of action.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Insufficiency Established by Judicial Admission

Setliff v. E. I. Du Pont De Nemours & Co. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763 , involved a Judicial Council form amended complaint in which plaintiff attempted to state a cause of action for negligence and products liability under traditional theories as well as a cause of action for products liability under alternative liability and market share theories. Defendants were manufactures of paint, solvents, strippers and glue products (32 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 1529-1530) . Plaintiff, among other things, alleged in the amended complaint that he was an employee of a paint store and was injured by these products (32 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 1530) . Several defendants demurred claiming that the complaint failed to state a cause of action, seizing on an admission by the plaintiff contained in an allegation of plaintiff's complaint that he could not identity the product or products that injured him. The trial court focused on this judicial admission in sustaining the defendants' demurrers and granted plaintiff 20 days leave to amend (32 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 1532) . Other allegations in the complaint contained certain other admissions. After the plaintiff failed to amend, the demurring defendants moved for dismissal and judgments of dismissal were entered for these defendants. Other defendants then moved for judgment on the pleadings on the same grounds as the successful demurrers and the court granted judgment on the pleadings in favor of these defendants (32 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 1532) . Still other defendants settled with the plaintiff. Ultimately, the trial court granted judgment in favor of all the nonsettling defendants and plaintiff appealed (32 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 1532-1533) .

On appeal, the judgment was affirmed. Initially, the court noted that a judgment on the pleading is governed by the same standard as a judgment following a successful demurrer and that an identical standard of review applies (32 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 1532-1533) . With regard to the traditional theories of negligence and products liability, the court pointed out that plaintiff in his amended complaint admitted that plaintiff "is unable to identify which of the products separately or jointly injured him" and that plaintiff could not identify the specific chemicals and toxins involved in his injury or which defendant manufactured the product or products responsible for his injury (32 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 1534) . Noting that the plaintiff is bound by an admission in his pleading, the court concluded that these admissions negated any attempt to allege that plaintiff was injured by a particular defendant's product. Thus, without this element of causation, under a traditional tort theory plaintiff failed to state a cause of action (32 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 1534) .

With regard to a cause of action for products liability under either the alternative liability or market share theories, the court considered certain admissions contained in the plaintiff's opposition to the demurrers in concluding that plaintiff could not state a cause of action under either theory (32 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 1534-1537) . The court noted that plaintiff's papers in opposition to the demurrers are reliable indications of plaintiff's position on the facts and that The Court may use these admissions against him (32 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 1536) . The admissions defeated plaintiff's attempt to state a cause of action under either theory (32 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 1534-1537) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.29

§ 71.29 Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Judicial Restraint Requires Lack of Intervention

[1] FORM Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Judicial Restraint Requires Lack of Intervention

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum or points and authorities in support of a general demurrer (see § 71.20).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE SUSTAINED BECAUSE THE ISSUES RAISED ARE BEST ADDRESSED BY THE LEGISLATURE RATHER THAN THE JUDICIAL SYSTEM.

Judicial Restraint Is Compelled in Areas of General Public Policy. Judicial interference is unwarranted and improper in the area of general economic policy for the State (Wolfe v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Ins. Co. (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 554, 565, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 878).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a general demurrer to a complaint on the ground that the subject matter of the complaint is not appropriate for judicial intervention because it involves a matter of general public policy or economic policy that is best left to the Legislature.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to other procedural contexts in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue that a court should adopt the policy of judicial restraint, for example in a motion for summary judgment. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief or in jury instructions.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should discuss the general public policy effects of the remedy sought by the complaint, and should argue that the matter is not appropriate or proper for judicial intervention [see Wolfe v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Ins. Co. (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 554, 559, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 878] .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judicial Restraint Is Compelled in Areas of General Public Policy

In Wolfe v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Ins. Co*. (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 554, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 878* , plaintiff, acting as a "private attorney general," filed a complaint seeking injunctive relief against a group of the largest residential real property insurers in the state on the ground that their failure to sell new homeowners insurance policies was an unfair business practice. The insurers had ceased selling such policies because state law required them to offer earthquake insurance with homeowner coverage, and they had decided to avoid writing new earthquake policies. The insurers demurred to the complaint on various grounds, including the contention that judicial interference in a matter involving the highly regulated insurance industry was unwarranted and improper. The trial court sustained the demurrers, stating that the issues raised were best addressed by the Legislature.

The court of appeal agreed with the trial court, and affirmed the dismissal following the order sustaining the demurrers (46 Cal. App. 4th 554, 559) . The court noted that it has neither the power nor the duty to determine the wisdom of any economic policy because that function rests solely with the Legislature (46 Cal. App. 4th 554, 562) . The court concluded that a judicial resolution of plaintiff's complaint would involve the courts in microeconomic managing, so that judicial restraint required that the court decline to undo what the Legislature had done (46 Cal. App. 4th 554, 567-568) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.29A

§ 71.29A Supporting General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Previous Demurrer to Same Cause of Action Was Sustained

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum or points and authorities in support of a general demurrer (see § 71.20).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE SUSTAINED BECAUSE A PREVIOUS DEMURRER TO THE SAME CAUSE OF ACTION WAS SUSTAINED.

Previous Demurrer to Same Cause of Action Was Sustained. A demurrer should be sustained when a previous demurrer to the same cause of action was sustained (Berg & Berg Enterprises, LLC v. Boyle (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1020, 1034-1036, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 875).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a general demurrer to a complaint on the ground that a previous demurrer to the same cause of action was sustained.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to other procedural contexts in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue that a court should adopt the policy of judicial restraint, for example in a motion for summary judgment. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief or in jury instructions.

For a memorandum opposing a demurrer on the ground that a demurrer to the same cause of action was previously overruled, see § 71.44.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Previous Demurrer to Same Cause of Action Was Sustained

In Berg & Berg Enterprises, LLC v. Boyle (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1020, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 875 , a creditor of a failed company sued the individual members of the company's board of directors. After they challenged the creditor's prior pleadings by successful demurrers and an anti-SLAPP (strategic lawsuit against public participation) motion, the creditor's operative pleading alleged a single cause of action for breach of fiduciary duty. The initial complaint alleged a single cause of action for breach of fiduciary duty. Before any responsive pleadings were filed, the creditor filed a first amended complaint restating the breach-of-fiduciary-duty claim and adding two causes of action for fraudulent and negligent misrepresentation. The directors demurred to the amended pleading on various grounds, and some filed an anti-SLAPP motion (under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16) to the misrepresentation causes of action, which the other defendants joined. In the face of the anti-SLAPP motion, the creditor voluntarily dismissed its two misrepresentation causes of action, leaving only its claim for breach of fiduciary duty as the target of the demurrers. The trial court sustained the demurrers with leave to amend based, in essence, on lack of standing, i.e., the creditor's claim of injury was not unique to itself or to a particular class of creditors but rather incidental to injury that all of the company's creditors might have suffered. Therefore, the claim was not direct and particular to the creditor, but, rather, derivative and assertable only on behalf of all of the creditors. The court further noted that in light of its dispositive ruling, it need not directly address another ground raised by demurrer--that the directors were insulated from liability by the business judgment rule. However, "for the guidance of the parties," the court nevertheless observed that particular allegations of the first amended complaint appeared "sufficient to rebut the business judgment presumption." The creditor filed a second amended complaint, on behalf of itself and all other creditors of the company, consistent with the court's prior ruling. The new pleading in substance restated the allegations of the previously asserted breach-of-fiduciary-duty claim. The directors demurred to the second amended complaint on numerous grounds. The trial court determined that while the pleading could be reasonably be interpreted as alleging a creditors' claim under common law, the creditor had failed to allege specific facts to rebut the business judgment rule and thus had not stated a viable claim for breach of fiduciary duty. The creditor filed a third amended complaint, for itself and purportedly on behalf of all of the creditors, restating its single cause of action for breach of fiduciary duty against the directors. The directors all demurred to the third amended complaint for its failure to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, reprising many arguments they had raised in previous pleading challenges. The trial court sustained the demurrers without leave to amend on the ground that the third amended complaint failed to allege a viable claim for breach of fiduciary duty against the directors. The creditor moved for reconsideration of the order under Code Civ. Proc. § 1008. Over defendants' opposition, the trial court granted reconsideration of its prior order, but affirmed its prior order sustaining the demurrers to the third amended complaint without leave to amend (178 Cal. App. 4th 1020, 1024-1033) .

The Court of Appeal affirmed. The court held that the jurisdictional components of Code Civ. Proc. § 1008, governing motions for reconsideration of prior rulings and renewed motions, did not preclude the trial court from considering the viability of the breach-of-fiduciary-duty claim. There was only one cause of action and the prior demurrers to that cause of action were sustained. When the creditor filed an amended pleading in response to the orders sustaining the prior demurrers to the breach of fiduciary cause of action with leave to amend, the amended cause of action was treated as a new pleading and the defendants were free to respond to it by demurrer on any ground. Because defendants demurred to the single cause of action of the new third amended complaint as to which no prior demurrer had been overruled, the restrictive provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1008 were inapplicable. Thus, the trial court did not err by disposing of the third amended complaint based on the creditor's failure to state a viable claim for breach of fiduciary duty and by not limiting its consideration of the pleading challenge to the bar of the business judgment rule (178 Cal. App. 4th 1020, 1034-1036) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.30

§ 71.30 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--General Form

[1] FORM Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--General Form

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name] Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM IN OPPOSITION TO DEMUR-
vs.	)	RER TO COMPLAINT
_____ [name], Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE GENERAL DEMURRER SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE THE COMPLAINT HAS STATED FACTS SUFFICIENT TO CONSTITUTE A CAUSE Of ACTION.

A. Complaint States Cause of Action. A complaint is invulnerable to a general demurrer if on any theory it states a cause of action (Johnson v. Clark (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 529, 536, 61 P.2d 767 ; Truta v. Avis Rent A Car System, Inc. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 802, 815, 238 Cal. Rptr. 806). That is, all that is necessary as against a general demurrer is to plead facts showing that the plaintiff may be entitled to some relief (Richard H. v. Larry D. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 591, 594, 243 Cal. Rptr. 807).

[Optional] B. Demurrer Limited to Face of Pleading and Judicially Noticed Matter. In ruling on a demurrer, the court is limited to defects that appear from the face of the pleading and matter subject to judicial notice. The rule is well established that, except for judicially noticed matter, a demurrer can neither allege facts that if true would disclose a defect in the challenged pleading nor bring in extrinsic evidence that would disclose such a defect (Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a); Brosterhous v. State Bar (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 315, 324, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 87, 906 P.2d 1242 ; SKF Farms v. Superior Court (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 902, 905-906, 200 Cal. Rptr. 2d 497).

[Optional] C. At Least One Count or Cause of Action Not Subject to Objection Raised. A demurrer that attacks an entire pleading should be overruled if one of the counts therein is not vulnerable to the objection raised (Lord v. Garland (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 840, 850, 168 P.2d 5 ; Knickerbocker v. City of Stockton (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 235, 245, 244 Cal. Rptr. 764).

D. Rule of Liberal Construction. In the construction of a pleading, for the purpose of determining its effect, its allegations must be liberally construed, with a view to substantial justice between the parties (Code Civ. Proc. § 452; Saxer v. Philip Morris, Inc. (1975) 54 Cal. App. 3d 7, 18, 126 Cal. Rptr. 327).

[Optional] E. Cause of Action Alleged Despite Mistaken Labels and Confusion of Legal Theory. The court is not limited to plaintiff's theory of recovery in testing the sufficiency of the complaint against a demurrer, but instead must determine whether the factual allegations of the complaint are adequate to state a cause of action under any legal theory. Mistaken labels and confusion of legal theory are not fatal; if the plaintiff's complaint states a cause of action on any theory, the plaintiff is entitled to introduce evidence thereon (Nguyen v. Scott (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 725, 729-730, 253 Cal. Rptr. 800).

[Optional] F. Cause of Action Alleged Despite Legal Conclusions. Although a court in ruling on a general demurrer may ignore allegations of the complaint that are in the form of legal conclusions, the court should overrule the demurrer when, apart from the legal conclusions, the complaint sets forth sufficient facts to state a cause of action (Maxwell v. City of Santa Rosa (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 274, 279-281, 1 Cal. Rptr. 334, 347 P.2d 678).

[Optional] G. Cause of Action Alleged Despite Unclear Facts. If on a consideration of all the facts stated it appears that the plaintiff is entitled to any relief at the hands of the court against the defendant, the complaint will be held good, although the facts may not be clearly stated (Chase Chemical Co. v. Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 229, 242-243, 205 Cal. Rptr. 469).

[Optional] H. Cause of Action Alleged Despite Irrelevant Facts. If on a consideration of all the facts stated it appears that the plaintiff is entitled to any relief at the hands of the court against the defendant, the complaint will be held good, although the facts may be intermingled with a statement of other facts irrelevant to the cause of action shown (Chase Chemical Co. v. Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 229, 242-243, 205 Cal. Rptr. 469).

[Optional] I. Cause of Action Alleged Despite Demand for Wrong Relief. If on a consideration of all the facts stated it appears that the plaintiff is entitled to any relief at the hands of the court against the defendant, the complaint will be held good, although the plaintiff may demand relief to which he or she is not entitled under the facts alleged (Chase Chemical Co. v. Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. (1984)159 Cal. App. 3d 229, 242-243, 205 Cal. Rptr. 469).

[Optional] J. Implied or Inferred Facts Deemed True. The sole issue involved in a hearing on a demurrer is whether the complaint, as it stands, unconnected with extraneous material, states a cause of action. In testing the legal sufficiency of a pleading against a general demurrer, all properly pleaded allegations, including those that arise by reasonable inference, are deemed admitted regardless of the possible difficulty of proof at trial (Saxer v. Philip Morris, Inc. (1975) 54 Cal. App. 3d 7, 18, 126 Cal. Rptr. 327).

[Optional] K. Disregard of Nonprejudicial Defect. A court is required, in every stage of an action, to disregard any defect in the pleadings that in the opinion of the court does not affect the substantial rights of the parties (Code Civ. Proc. § 475; Gressley v. Williams (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 636, 639, 14 Cal. Rptr. 496).

[Optional] L. Cause of Action Not Necessarily Barred By Affirmative Defense. A demurrer based on an affirmative defense cannot properly be granted when the action might be barred by the defense, but is not necessarily barred (CrossTalk Productions, Inc. v. Jacobson (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 635, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615).

[Optional] M. Demurrer Inappropriate to Determine Truth of Disputed Facts. A demurrer is not the appropriate procedure for determining the truth of disputed facts or what inferences should be drawn when competing inferences are possible (CrossTalk Productions, Inc. v. Jacobson (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 635, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint under Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e), failure to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. Several optional paragraphs are provided for use in responding to a variety of objections to the complaint, when the complaint, notwithstanding the objections, does state a cause of action.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the general demurrer supported by the memorandum set out in §§ 71.20 -71.27.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, if the defendant objects to the complaint on the basis that the complaint omits an element essential for stating a particular cause of action designated in the complaint, the plaintiff should (1) argue that if the plaintiff's complaint states a cause of action on any theory, the general demurrer should be overruled [see Nguyen v. Scott (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 725, 729-730, 253 Cal. Rptr. 800 , discussed under § 71.30[3][e]]; (2) identify some other theory under which plaintiff would be entitled to relief; and (3) identify the essential elements of the alternative theory and the facts alleged in the pleading satisfying those elements, and based on those allegations, request that the court overrule the demurrer.

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used in opposition to a demurrer that is directed against a single cause of action or count in a complaint that alleges multiple causes of action or counts. The form may also be modified for use in opposition to a demurrer to a cross complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10, 430.30(a)], or to a single cause of action or count set up in a cross complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.50(a)], or in opposition to a motion by a defendant or cross defendant for judgment on the pleadings [see § 71.130 et seq.], or an objection by a defendant or cross defendant at trial to the introduction of any evidence [see Parker v. Bowron (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 344, 351, 254 P.2d 6] . With appropriate modifications, they may also be used in opposition to a petition for writ of mandate to compel the trial court to sustain the demurrer after the court has overruled it [see Babb v. Superior Court (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 841, 851, 92 Cal. Rptr. 179, 479 P.2d 379] .

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion of the grounds, format, and accompanying papers in proceedings on demurrer, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities in opposition to a general demurrer in a particular substantive context, see the specific chapter.

See also § 71.20[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Complaint States Cause of Action

Johnson v. Clark (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 529, 536, 61 P.2d 767 , was an action for breach of contract in which the defendant, who purchased the plaintiff's retail store, agreed to pay plaintiff $350 a month for the rest of plaintiff's life, or until her marriage, in consideration of plaintiff transferring the business to defendant in trust to operate and conduct the business for the plaintiff's benefit. Concurrent with the transfer, the parties executed an agreement, prepared by defendant's attorney, providing for payment of $350 to the plaintiff in consideration of love and affection. The complaint alleged that the agreement failed to embody the understanding of the parties that the expressed consideration of love and affection was not the true consideration, but rather the transfer of the business to defendant. Defendant filed a general demurrer against the first cause of action. The trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend and entered judgment for defendant.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment. The complaint was framed on the theory of an express agreement by the defendant to hold the property in trust for the plaintiff. The theory was revealed to be untenable, however, by the written agreement set forth in the complaint. According to the Court, even though there was no allegation in the complaint that the agreement between the parties transferring the business to the defendant set up a trust, the plaintiff was seeking to hold the defendant to account for the proceeds of the business that the defendant held in trust for her. It does not follow from the fact that the plaintiff failed to allege a trust based on an agreement therefor, either written or oral, between the parties, that the complaint fails to state a cause of action. The Court cited facts alleged that support a cause of action for imposition of a constructive trust. The Court stated that a complaint is invulnerable to a general demurrer if on any theory it states a cause of action (7 Cal. 2d 529, 536) .

Richard H. v. Larry D. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 591, 243 Cal. Rptr. 807 , involved a complaint for fraud, professional negligence, and negligent infliction of emotional distress against a psychiatrist and a hospital, alleging that the psychiatrist had surreptitious sexual relations with the plaintiff's wife while the couple were the defendant's patients for purposes of receiving marital counseling. The psychiatrist filed a general demurrer claiming that the claims are barred by Civ. Code § 43.5, which provides that no cause of action arises for alienation of affection, criminal conversation, or seduction of a person over the age of legal consent. The trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend. The plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment and remanded with instructions to vacate the order granting the demurrer, and to enter a new order overruling it as to the doctor on all causes of action, and as to the hospital on one cause of action, and granting the plaintiff leave to amend against the hospital on certain other causes of action. According to the court, all that is necessary as against a general demurrer is to plead facts showing that the plaintiff may be entitled to some relief (198 Cal. App. 3d 591, 594) . The court stated that a review of the decisional law applying Civ. Code § 43.5 revealed that the statute does not create a blanket immunization from liability for conduct that, although technically within the constraints of the statute, breaches a duty of care independent of the causes of action barred in the statute.

The court cited examples in which a defendant may be held liable for professional negligence and misrepresentation, and not protected by the section. In the instant case, the defendant, as a psychiatrist rendering marriage counseling owed the plaintiff a special duty to use care for the patient's health in the conduct of the therapist-patient relationship (198 Cal. App. 3d 591, 595) . The court concluded that the statute was enacted to shield innocent persons from the burden of defending fraudulent or meritless litigation, but was not intended to lower the standard of care that psychiatrists owe their patients, or to permit them to avoid liability for breach of their professional and fiduciary responsibility, or to commit fraud (198 Cal. App. 3d 591, 596) .

Truta v. Avis Rent A Car System, Inc. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 802, 238 Cal. Rptr. 806 , involved a dispute over a "collision damage waiver" provision in an automobile rental agreement, which provided that for a daily fee the automobile rental company defendants agreed to assume responsibility (subject to certain terms and conditions) for the term of one day for collision or upset damage or loss to the vehicle in an amount up to $1,000. The complaint was brought by the plaintiff who had rented the vehicles from the various defendants. The complaint consisted of several causes of action alleging unlawful business practices constituting unfair competition, fraud, and negligent misrepresentation, unconscionability, and unlawful price-fixing. The defendants demurred and the trial court entered a judgment of dismissal after sustaining the demurrer without leave to amend. The plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. The court initially observed, quoting Johnson v. Clark (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 529, 536, 61 P.2d 767 , discussed above, that a complaint is invulnerable to general demurrer if on any theory it states a cause of action. The court considered each cause of action and concluded that the general demurrer was properly sustained as to all, except the cause of action based on unconscionability. The court stated that the contract itself was one of adhesion and the plaintiff had alleged the defendants' superior bargaining position and the nonnegotiable nature of the contract terms. According to the court, this absence of meaningful choice on the part of one of the parties together with contract terms that are unreasonably favorable to the other party, will permit affirmative relief based on the concept of unconscionability. The court held that sufficient facts were pled to survive a general demurrer (193 Cal. App. 3d 802, 821) .

[b] Demurrer Limited to Face of Pleading and Judicially Noticed Matter

Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a) authorizes the filing of a demurrer only when the objection raised [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10] appears on the face of the challenged pleading or from matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice.

In Brosterhous v. State Bar (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 315, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 87, 906 P.2d 1242 , plaintiffs, members of the State Bar, challenged a procedure by which a member's challenge to the State Bar's annual calculation of the amount of compulsory membership dues to be used for "political activities" were to be resolved by arbitration. After an arbitration decision which allowed a $4.36 refund to challengers, plaintiffs filed an action against the State Bar alleging that even after the dues reduction allowed by the arbitrator, the State Bar had compelled all attorneys to pay for expenditures related to political and ideological activities of the State Bar, thus violating their First Amendment rights to freedom and speech and association. The State Bar demurred, and the trial court sustained the demurrer.

The court of appeal reversed, viewing the State Bar's arbitration procedure as analogous to labor arbitration conducted pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement which does not preclude a separate legal action to vindicate violation of an employee's statutory rights. The court of appeal concluded that plaintiffs were entitled to bring a Section 1983 action to vindicate their rights. On appeal, the State Bar argued that, because plaintiffs had an available state administrative remedy, the arbitration was entitled to res judicata effect.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment of the court of appeal. The court stated that the initial problem with the State Bar's argument was that the complaint did not allege all of the facts necessary to establish that the action was barred on res judicata grounds, since the complaint did not establish on its face that the issues in the arbitration were identical ( 12 Cal. 4th 315, 324) . In an attempt to overcome this procedural bar to consideration of the res judicata defense on a demurrer, the State Bar asked the court to take judicial notice of the entire record of the arbitration proceeding. The court acknowledged that a demurrer may be good if the grounds on which it is based appear either on the face of the complaint or from a matter of which The Court is required to or may take judicial notice. However, the State Bar did not ask the Superior Court to take judicial notice of the arbitration record, so that the record of the arbitration was not before the superior court (12 Cal. 4th 315, 325) . Although a reviewing court may take judicial notice of matters not before the trial court, it need not do so, and the Supreme Court declined to do so in this case since the matter should have been presented to the trial court for its consideration in the first instance (12 Cal. 4th 315, 325-326) .

In SKF Farms v. Superior Court (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 902, 200 Cal. Rptr. 497 , plaintiff sought to recover for damage to crops caused by defendants' cropdusting of an adjacent farm on a theory, among others, of strict liability. The trial court sustained defendants' demurrer to this cause of action without leave to amend, based on its ruling that as a matter of law crop dusting was not an ultrahazardous activity giving rise to strict liability. Plaintiff sought a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to overrule the demurrer to cause of action.

The court of appeal granted the writ. The court first noted that there was no precedent ruling that crop dusting was not an ultrahazardous activity. The court held that it was error to determine this issue on demurrer, since the determination of whether or not the activity was ultrahazardous necessarily required the consideration of several factors that were beyond the Pleadings and matters subject to judicial notice and therefore were beyond the proper scope of demurrer (153 Cal. App. 3d 902, 905-906) .

[c] At Least One Count or Cause of Action Not Subject to Objection Raised

Lord v. Garland (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 840, 168 P.2d 5 , was an action against the director and registrar of the state Department of Motor Vehicles for declaratory and injunctive relief. The complaint set forth three causes of action. Defendants demurred to the whole complaint on the grounds there was another action pending between the same parties for the same cause [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(c)] and that several causes of action had been improperly united (no longer a ground of objection). (As additional grounds for demurrer, they asserted that the first and third counts stated insufficient facts to constitute a cause of action [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] and that the second count was ambiguous, unintelligible, and uncertain [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f)].) The trial court, without indicating the basis for its ruling, sustained the demurrer without leave to amend and Plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal.

The Supreme Court, reversed the judgment with directions to overrule the demurrer with respect to the ground of objection that another action was pending. The Court held that the second count was not subject to that objection (27 Cal. 2d 840, 849) , and stated that a demurrer that attacks an entire pleading should be overruled if one of the counts in the pleading is not vulnerable to the objection (27 Cal. 2d 840, 850) .

Knickerbocker v. City of Stockton (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 235, 244 Cal. Rptr. 764 , involved an action by a police officer seeking damages for loss of pay and benefits, and for emotional distress as a result of being fired from the defendant city's police department. The plaintiff had challenged his firing at city civil service commission hearing, and received an order reinstating him at a lower rank with back pay. He thereafter filed a timely claim for damages with the city, which was deemed rejected by operation of law, and the plaintiff filed his lawsuit. The defendant filed a general demurrer to the plaintiff's second amended complaint on the ground that the plaintiff had failed to exhaust his "administrative" remedies by not challenging the decision of the commission through a writ of administrative mandamus. The trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend. The Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. The court stated that the doctrine of exhaustion of administrative remedies had no application in the case, but that defendant was really asserting exhaustion of "judicial remedies." The court stated that since plaintiff acquiesced to the commission's determination by failing to seek review, the plaintiff was bound by that determination to the extent that his causes of action were inconsistent. However, the court noted, while the issue of plaintiff's demotion was conclusively adjudicated in the earlier administrative proceeding before the commission, the adverse determination was not fatal to his causes of action seeking recovery for emotional distress, to the extent that he could prove that he suffered emotional distress from the improper firing (as distinguished from that related to his proper demotion). The court stated that it is settled that it is error to sustain a demurrer without leave to amend as to the entire complaint when the defect relates only to part of the complaint and at least one count is good (199 Cal. App. 3d 235, 245) .

[d] Rule of Liberal Construction

Code Civ. Proc. § 452 states the rule that in the construction of a pleading, for the purpose of determining its effect, its allegations must be liberally construed, with a view to substantial justice between the parties.

Saxer v. Philip Morris, Inc. (1975) 54 Cal. App. 3d 7, 126 Cal. Rptr. 327 , was a class action by the purchaser of a home in a large development complex, which at the time of the action consisted of some 4,000 homes and 20,000 people, against the corporation selling the homes, the corporation that controlled it, and the selling corporation's subsidiary corporations (an escrow corporation and a financial lending corporation). The complaint set forth three causes of action. The first in substance alleged that defendants entered into a conspiracy to restrain trade in the sale of escrow services required by purchasers of the homes and to increase the price of such escrow services to an amount in excess of those charged by other firms in the surrounding area. The second alleged in substance that the selling corporation combined with the financial corporation to restrain trade to increase the price of new homes sold, enabling the selling corporation to reap a higher profit and to prevent outside lending institutions from making any F.H.A. and V.A. guaranteed loans to the home buyers, thereby assuring the financial corporation of a monopoly in lending. The third contained similar averments as to restrictions of trade and excessive prices for upgraded floor coverings, which a purchaser selected in lieu of those provided with the home and for which the purchaser was given a credit, provided the upgraded coverings were purchased from the Decorating Center which was a separate operating division of the selling corporation. The complaint alleged numerous facts showing the formation, operation, and purposes of the combinations in restraint of trade, the illegal acts done, the damage caused by such acts, and, in the third cause of action, an illegal tying arrangement. Demurrers to the first, second, and third amended complaints were sustained with leave to amend and demurrers to the fourth amended complaint were sustained without leave to amend.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment of dismissal with a direction that plaintiff be allowed to proceed to trial without the necessity of amending. In so doing, the court enunciated the following rules to be applied in determining the sufficiency of a complaint: the sole issue involved in a hearing on a demurrer is whether the complaint, as it stands, unconnected with extraneous material, states a cause of action; that in testing the legal sufficiency of a pleading against a general demurrer, all properly pleaded allegations, including those that arise by reasonable inference, are deemed admitted regardless of the possible difficulty of proof at trial; and that the allegations must be liberally construed with a view toward substantial justice between the parties, under Code Civ. Proc. § 452 (54 Cal. App. 3d 7, 18) . The court held that plaintiff had exceeded the requirements for alleging a cause of action for a combination in restraint of trade (54 Cal. App. 3d 7, 20) , that both proximate cause and injury resulting from the illegal combination, under the rule of liberal construction, were sufficiently alleged (54 Cal. App. 3d 7, 22-23) , and that the complaint sufficiently alleged facts showing a tying arrangement in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 16720, 16726 (54 Cal. App. 3d 7, 23-24) . The court also held that sufficient facts were alleged to establish the participation of the controlling corporation in the allegedly unlawful combinations (54 Cal. App. 3d 7, 24-25) and that plaintiff had standing to bring the action (54 Cal. App. 3d 7, 26) .

[e] Cause of Action Alleged Despite Mistaken Labels and Confusion of Legal Theory

In Nguyen v. Scott (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 725, 253 Cal. Rptr. 800 , the plaintiffs were owners of an interest in an apartment complex who brought an action against areal estate broker who represented a cotenant's lender, for failing to transmit to the lender the plaintiffs' offer to buy the cotenant's interest and instead purchasing the interest for himself at a lower price. A second amended complaint in the action sought damages and imposition of a constructive trust. The trial court sustained defendant's general demurrer without leave to amend. The plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment as to the defendant broker. The court stated that the complaint must be liberally construed with a view toward attaining substantial justice among the parties. Hence, the court was not limited to the plaintiffs' theory of recovery in testing the sufficiency of their complaint against a demurrer but instead must determine if the factual allegations of the complaint are adequate to state a cause of action under any legal theory. Mistaken labels and confusion of legal theory are not fatal; if appellant's complaint states a cause of action on any theory, he or she is entitled to introduce evidence thereon. The first and second causes of action sought damages and to impose a constructive trust. Although the allegations of the complaint did not support a dual agency relationship, the allegations did support the inference that the defendant was acting in his capacity as a broker for the lender. Thus, court concluded, both causes of action were premised on the alleged breach of a duty owed by a licensed real estate broker to prospective purchasers (206 Cal. App. 3d 725, 731, 737) .

[f] Cause of Action Alleged Despite Legal Conclusions

Maxwell v. City of Santa Rosa (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 274, 1 Cal. Rptr. 334, 347 P.2d 678, was an action against the city and members of its city council to enjoin enforcement of street assessments against plaintiffs' properties and to secure a determination that the assessment proceedings were null and void. Defendants' demurrers to the amended complaint were sustained and when plaintiffs elected to stand on their pleading the action was dismissed.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment. The Court summarized the contents of the complaint and held that any of the various matters alleged (fraud, manifestly unjust assessment, arbitrary and unreasonable action by the city council, or abuse of discretion) would entitle plaintiffs to relief if properly pleaded and proved. The Court then held that the complaint stated sufficient facts to constitute a cause of action (53 Cal. 2d 274, 279-281) . In this regard, the Court said that defendants' principal attack on the specific allegations of the complaint was that the allegations of fraud were general in nature, consisted of legal conclusions, and failed to point out any acts amounting to fraud. The Court said that while the complaint was long and rambling and contained many conclusions it did contain sufficient allegations, good as against a general demurrer (53 Cal. 2d 274, 280) . In summarizing the contents of the complaint, the Court noted that while it was alleged that something was "fraudulently" done, this allegation was followed by a specific allegation of the facts constituting the alleged fraud and on this ground distinguished the case relied on by defendants that involved allegations in the form of bare legal conclusions without specifically alleging the particulars of the fraud (53 Cal. 2d 274, 280-281) .

[g] Cause of Action Alleged Despite Unclear Facts

In Chase Chemical Co. v. Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 229, 205 Cal. Rptr. 469 , employees brought an action against a chemical company for injuries sustained while the employees were using a degreasing machine. The chemical company filed a cross complaint against the employer, the employer's insurance carrier, and the employer's workers' compensation carrier, for indemnity, comparative contribution, and an offset of workers' compensation benefits. The employer's insurance carrier demurred. In sustaining the insurer's demurrer without leave to amend, the trial court found that because the cross complainant could not sue the employer directly, in the absence of an allegation of a written agreement to indemnify, under Lab. Code § 3864, it could not sue the employer's insurance carrier for the same conduct. The cross complainant appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the order of dismissal. The court stated that in determining whether or not the complaint is sufficient as against the demurrer, on the ground that it does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, the rule is, that if on a consideration of all the facts stated it appears that the plaintiff is entitled to any relief at the hands of the court against the defendants, the complaint will be held good, although the facts may not be clearly stated, or may be intermingled with a statement of other facts irrelevant to the cause of action shown, or although the plaintiff may demand relief to which he or she is not entitled under the facts alleged (159 Cal. App. 3d 229, 242) .

Although the workers' compensation law barred the employee's action at law for an initial injury, a cause of action may exist for aggravation of the disease because of an employer's fraudulent concealment of the condition and its cause. Hence, the cross complainant, as a third party, may have been entitled to indemnity from the employer for such aggravation without regard to the lack of existence of a written indemnity agreement for those damages proximately caused by the aggravation. The cross complaint, however, failed to allege facts sufficient to establish fraudulent concealment. The cross complaint did, albeit disjunctively, in the court's view, state a valid cause of action for offset of compensation benefits. The fact that the cross complainant requested relief to which it was not entitled to does not negate the fact that it has stated a valid cause of action. Whether the chemical company could also state a cause of action for comparative indemnity could only be decided after the filing of the next amended cross complaint. Therefore, the court held that the trial court abused its discretion in sustaining the demurrer to the cross complaint without leave to amend (159 Cal. App. 3d 229, 243) .

[h] Cause of Action Alleged Despite Irrelevant Facts

Chase Chemical Co. v. Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 229, 205 Cal. Rptr. 469 , is discussed under § 71.30[3][g].

[i] Cause of Action Alleged Despite Demand for Wrong Relief

Chase Chemical Co. v. Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 229, 205 Cal. Rptr. 469 , is discussed under § 71.30[3][g].

[j] Implied or Inferred Facts Deemed True

The facts and procedural background of Saxer v. Philip Morris, Inc. (1975) 54 Cal. App. 3d 7, 126 Cal. Rptr. 327 , were discussed under § 71.30[3][d]. In Saxer v. Philip Morris, Inc., the court of appeal reversed the judgment of dismissal with a direction that plaintiff be allowed to proceed to trial without the necessity of amending. The plaintiff contended that sufficient facts were alleged to establish the participation of defendants in allegedly unlawful combinations. After reciting the relevant allegations and argument by the defendants, the court concluded that at least an inference of knowing and willful participation by the particular defendant in the allegedly illegal conduct could be gleaned from the pleadings (54 Cal. App. 3d 7, 25-26) .

[k] Disregard of Nonprejudicial Defect

Code Civ. Proc. § 475 in pertinent part provides that the court must, in every stage of an action, disregard any defect in the pleadings that, in the opinion of the court, does not affect the substantial rights of the parties.

Gressley v. Williams (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 636, 14 Cal. Rptr. 496 , was an action for damages for breach of two oral contracts employing plaintiff as an automobile sales manager at a fixed salary plus a percentage of gross profits and for an accounting. The sixth amended complaint set forth three counts, the first two of which were for breach of the oral contracts and the third for an accounting. Defendants demurred generally to all three counts and specially, on the grounds of uncertainty, ambiguity, and unintelligibility, to Counts I and II. The demurrer was sustained and, after plaintiff's counsel stated he did not desire to further amend, it was sustained without leave to amend. In holding that the general demurrer to the first count was properly sustained since that action was barred by the statute of frauds but that both the second and third counts each stated facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action and reversing the judgment on that ground, the court of appeal, citing Code Civ. Proc. § 475, stated the rule that a court must, in every stage of an action, disregard any defect in the Pleadings that does not affect the substantial rights of the parties (193 Cal. App. 2d 636, 639) .

With respect to the statute of frauds defense, it should be noted that in Nesson v. Moes (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 655, 657, 30 Cal. Rptr. 428 , the court of appeal distinguished Gressley on the ground the services under the oral contract in Gressley were only partly performed whereas the services under the oral contract in Nesson were fully performed and hence the statute of frauds did not apply.

[l] Cause of Action Not Necessarily Barred By Affirmative Defense

In CrossTalk Productions, Inc. v. Jacobson (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615 , the complaint alleged, among other things, that plaintiffs were employees of a television network. Defendant was a vice--president of the television network and plaintiffs' boss. Defendant's responsibilities at the television network included selecting outside vendors, overseeing vendor contracts, and approving contract payments to vendors. Defendant would select the vendor, negotiate the terms of the contract and approve the final contract. Even if a vendor contract exceeded defendant's final authority dollar level, thus requiring the signature of defendant's superior, defendant decided which vendors to select and defendant's superior routinely approved defendant's decision. Plaintiffs approached defendant with the idea of forming an outside company to contract with the television network to provide video promotional spots and asked defendant if they might negotiate such a contract with the television network. The defendant said yes.

Thereafter, the individual plaintiffs met with defendant and defendant's superior to make a formal request to be considered for an exclusive contract with the television network for the production of video promotional spots. Defendant's superior approved the request and directed defendant to prepare the contract. Defendant and defendant's superior asked the individual plaintiffs to remain with the television network until replacements could be hired. At or about this time plaintiffs let it be known to management they would be leaving the television network to form CrossTalk Productions, Inc. (another plaintiff in the action hereafter called CrossTalk). The next day, defendant told one of the individual plaintiff's that defendant wanted plaintiff's company to help defendant out by paying defendant $500 a month. By this time, defendant knew the individual plaintiffs had notified management that they were leaving and had staked their entire future on CrossTalk's deal with the television network. In considering defendant's demand, the individual plaintiffs knew that defendant had the ability to kill the contract CrossTalk was negotiating with the Television network, and the power to terminate the contract once the individuals were out on their own. The defendant was also still the individual plaintiffs' boss and had the power to terminate their employment before they could start up CrossTalk. The television network had not yet provided the promised contract, and the individual plaintiffs feared they would lose both the contract and there jobs if they refused, or told anyone of, defendant's demand. Plaintiffs believed that they had no reasonable alternative under the circumstance but to accede to defendant's demand in order to secure CrossTalk's contract with the Television network. Accordingly, plaintiffs reluctantly agreed to pay. The individual plaintiffs then incorporated CrossTalk and the contract was executed. Under the contract CrossTalk would work exclusively for the television network for two years in exchange for a guaranteed minimum number of projects.

Thereafter, plaintiffs made three monthly payments to defendant in September, October, and November of 1996. Plaintiffs in the meantime heard from a different source that defendant wanted to cancel the agreement and they become more fearful of the consequences of failing to pay. In December, 1996, one of the individual plaintiff's called defendant to discuss billing on a project for which CrossTalk sought additional compensation at which time defendant said defendant wanted defendant's payments increased to $1,000. Defendant was told that CrossTalk could not afford that sum. Thereafter, defendant failed to respond to work related communications, which made CrossTalk's performance under the contract difficult. Later on in the month $300 in cash and $200 in gift certificates were delivered to defendant in the hopes it would pass as the fourth payment. Defendant then claimed there were a number of problems with CrossTalk projects. Although other television network representatives had voiced satisfaction with CrossTalk's work, one of the individual plaintiff's learned that defendant had been overheard suggesting that CrossTalk would not be with the television network much longer. On January 16, 1997, the individual plaintiffs met with defendant and were given a letter detailing the alleged problems with CrossTalk's work that had to be resolved to avoid cancellation of the contract. The individual plaintiffs believed they were being set up and that the identified problems were merely props for defendant's staged threat. Unable to afford the $1,000 and believing that the defendant was about to terminate the contract, the individual plaintiffs on January 17, told the television network about defendant's demands along with the threat to cancel the contract after CrossTalk indicated it could not pay the increased amount. The television network terminated defendant in March of 1997 (giving defendant a substantial settlement). By letter dated May 15, 1997, the television network stated it was terminating CrossTalk's contract on the basis of the admitted wrongdoing of the individual plaintiffs. Plaintiffs then sued.

Plaintiffs complaint advanced three theories against defendant. The first titled "Economic Duress" alleged that defendant "wrongfully employed economic duress in demanding and receiving payments. ... " The individual plaintiffs also asserted claims for intentional and negligent infliction of emotional distress. Defendant demurred to all three causes of action for failure to state a claim on which relief could be granted because each claim was barred by the affirmative defense of unclean hands.

The trial court sustained the demurrers without leave to amend on the theory that the allegations in the complaint established as a matter of law that the individual plaintiffs committed Commercial Bribery as defined in Pen. Code § 641.3, and that such an offense would necessarily establish a defense of unclean hands. Judgment of dismissal was entered and plaintiffs appealed (65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 636-639) .

The court of appeal reversed. The court noted that a demurrer is treated as admitting all material facts properly pleaded, but not contentions, deductions, or conclusions of fact or law. The appellate court gives the complaint a reasonable interpretation, reading it as a whole and its parts in their context. When a demurrer is sustained, the appellate court determines whether the complaint states facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, and when it is sustained without leave to amend, the appellate court decides whether there is a reasonable possibility that the defect can be cured by amendment. If there is a reasonable possibility that the defect can be cured by amendment the trial court has abused its discretion and the appellate court reverses whereas if the defect cannot be so cured there has been no abuse of discretion and the appellate court affirms. The complaint must be liberally construed with a view toward substantial justice between the parties. Here, the demurrer was based on an affirmative defense (unclean hands). In such a case, the affirmative defense must clearly appear on the face of the complaint in order to support a demurrer. A demurrer is not the appropriate procedure for determining the truth of disputed facts or what inferences should be drawn when competing inferences are possible. Nor is a demurrer the appropriate procedure for determining the truth of disputed facts or what inferences should be drawn when competing inferences are possible. The complaint here did contain a factual ambiguity (65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 635) .

The complaint alleged that plaintiffs believed " 'that they had no reasonable alternative under these circumstances but to accede to [defendant's] demand in order to secure CrossTalk's contract with [the television network]' (Italics added)." The trial court apparently interpreted the word "secure" in the sense of "obtain, procure, get, acquire or gain." "Secure," however, can also mean "protect, guard or safeguard." Applying the first meaning stated above, the complaint could be read to mean that the individual plaintiffs paid defendant a bribe in order to obtain CrossTalk's contract with the television network. If this is what the individual plaintiffs did, i.e., pay a bribe to obtain a contract, the doctrine of unclean hands would apply to bar their claim for damages caused by losing that very contract (65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 639-640) . The individual plaintiffs, however, argued that the word "secure" was used in the complaint in the second sense noted above. Applying the second sense, the complaint alleged that the individual plaintiffs were forced to accede to defendant's extortionate demands in order to safeguard the finalization of a contract which had already been negotiated between the television network and CrossTalk and which would be finalized without incident in the absence of extortionate interference by defendant. This safeguarding was necessary, according to a fair reading of the complaint, only because of the defendant's extortionate threats. If what actually happened here is the second scenario, i.e., an extortionate scheme perpetrated by defendant to take advantage of plaintiffs' vulnerable position, there appears to be no authority that would bar plaintiffs from recovering against defendant merely for trying to avoid the damage that might follow if defendant's extortionate threats were carried out. So long as no bribe was paid to obtain CrossTalk's contract with the television network and hence the contract was awarded on merit, defendant's moral culpability would be far and away greater than any that would attach to CrossTalk and the individual plaintiffs. The defendant would then not be shielded by the individual plaintiffs' failure to resist extortionate demands. To construe the doctrine of unclean hands otherwise would be to transform the doctrine into protection for extortionists. Unclean hands is an equitable doctrine. Thus, the court found that the proposition that it is not equitable to protect extortionists against liability for the injuries caused their victims should not require an elaborate defense (65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 640) .

Ironically, this case would probably not have been on appeal had counsel used some other word than "secure" to describe what happened. Or the entire passage in which the word "secure" appeared could have been deleted without detracting materially from the complaint. If the allegation that plaintiffs believed " 'that they had no reasonable alternative under these circumstances but to accede to [defendant's] demand in order to secure CrossTalk's contract with [the television network]' (Italics added)" ended with a period after the word "demand," the appeal might not have been necessary. Although precision is generally a virtue, counsel drafting a complaint can hardly be expected to anticipate that a word such as "secure" will be construed as necessarily constituting an adverse admission, much less that leave to amend will then be denied. Courts should not sustain demurrers without leave to amend based on such ambiguities. Instead, the court found that leave to amend should be granted to clarify ambiguity (65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 640-641) .

Because the doctrine of unclean hands is heavily fact dependent, the court also found that it is a uniquely poor candidate to support a demurrer. There have been unusual situations, however, in which a defense of unclean hands has been established solely by the allegations of the complaint. The court pointed to Blain v. Doctor's Co. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1048, 1060, 272 Cal. Rptr. 250 as an example. There, the court applied a three prong analysis to determine whether the doctrine of unclean hands applies, i.e., whether there is a bar depends on (1) the analogous case law, (2) the nature of the misconduct, and (3) the relationship of the misconduct to the claimed injuries (65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 641) . In this case the three prongs of the Blain test were not established by the pleadings and a defense of unclean hands cannot support a demurrer (65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 649) . Similarly, the court found that the allegations of the complaint did not compel the conclusion that plaintiffs necessarily committed commercial bribery under Pen. Code § 641.3. The facts alleged here did not necessarily establish that plaintiffs intended to injure or defraud anyone. The complaint did not necessarily demonstrate any intent on the plaintiffs that the television network not receive the full benefit of a market value bargain or that the plaintiffs obtained a contract improperly (65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 643-644) .

With regard to economic duress, the doctrine of economic duress can apply when one party has done a wrongful act which is sufficiently coercive to cause a reasonably prudent person, faced with no reasonable alternative, to agree to an unfavorable contract. The party subjected to the coercive act, and having no reasonable alternative, can then plead economic duress to avoid the contract. The instant case directly concerned not economic duress, but instead allegations of extortion. Plaintiffs, however, used the term economic duress in their complaint and the treatment of the reasonable alternative issue in economic duress cases is instructive. When a party pleads economic duress, that party must have had no reasonable alternative to the action it now seeks to avoid (generally agreeing to the contract). If a reasonable alternative was available, and there hence was no compelling necessity to submit to coercive demands, economic duress cannot be established. Whether the party asserting economic duress had a reasonable alternative is determined by examining whether a reasonably prudent person would follow the alternative course, or whether a reasonably prudent person might submit. The court found that this inquiry was clearly a factual one, rarely if ever susceptible to determination on demurrer (65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 644) .

Plaintiffs also cited the related concept of an exception to the unclean hands doctrine which allows a party relief even if the party has been guilty of wrongdoing. The exception can apply only when the party seeking the relief is the one least at fault. The rule is ordinarily invoked when the party seeking relief is not a free moral agent and that party's participation in the wrongdoing is the result of undue influence, menace, or duress of the other party. The court found that the existence of duress always depends on the circumstances and is a factual question (65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 644-645) . Defendant argued there is no cause of action for economic duress. It appears that the Supreme Court has noted a general right to be free from acts constituting duress and the propriety of a cause of action for wrongful acts in the nature of duress. Such duress may consist of threats to business or property interests. Moreover, other theories are potentially applicable to the facts alleged here. For example, plaintiffs' allegations did not negate the possibility of amendment to state a cause of action for interference with prospective economic advantage (65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 645-646) . Plaintiffs could easily have chosen a label other than economic duress for their theory that defendant caused them to lose their contract with the television network. Hence there was ample basis for successful amendment and possible eventual recovery against defendant. Thus, it was error for the trial court to sustain the demurrer without leave to amend (65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 649) .

[m] Demurrer Inappropriate to Determine Truth of Disputed Facts

CrossTalk Productions, Inc. v. Jacobson (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 635, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615 , is discussed under § 71.30[3][l].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Complaint States Cause of Action

In Savage v. Trammell Crow Co. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1562, 273 Cal. Rptr. 302 , the court of appeal reversed a judgment dismissing a complaint by an individual who was distributing religious tracts in a shopping center parking lot, seeking an injunction against the shopping center management. Although the court affirmed the trial court's order denying the plaintiff a preliminary injunction with regard to the leafleting, the court held that a written prohibition by defendants against nonpolitical expression unlawfully distinguished between "political" and "religious" speech and therefore gave rise to a cause of action against them. The court stated that a trial court may not sustain a demurrer without leave to amend when the plaintiff has alleged facts showing entitlement to relief under any possible legal theory (223 Cal. App. 3d 1562, 1576) .

The court of appeal in Rogoff v. Grabowski (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 624, 246 Cal. Rptr. 185 , reversed the judgment entered against plaintiff after sustaining general and special demurrers. Because the trial court denied the demurrers in general terms, it had to be assumed that that court had ruled only on the general demurrer (200 Cal. App. 3d 624, 628) . Plaintiff's second amended complaint had one count labeled "tortious breach of covenant of good faith and fair dealing." Although plaintiff had not stated a cause of action for tortious breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing, the demurrers should not have been sustained, because the complaint stated at least one other valid cause of action (200 Cal. App. 3d 624, 634) . The court of appeal stated the rule as being that if the facts pleaded will support any theory of recovery, it is immaterial that the plaintiff may have misconceived the theory of his or her cause of action (200 Cal. App. 3d 624, 628) .

Surina v. Lucey (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 539, 214 Cal. Rptr. 509 , involved a complaint for damages alleging interference with a parental relationship by a third party. The complaint, by parents of a female teenager, alleged that her uncle had impermissibly removed her from their custody, induced her to remain away, and entered into a sexual relationship. The trial court sustained the uncle's demurrer to the second amended complaint without leave to amend. The court of appeal reversed the dismissal and held that the parents' multiple allegations stated a cause of action under Civ. Code § 49 (168 Cal. App. 3d 539, 543-545) .

In Certified Grocers of California, Ltd. v. San Gabriel Valley Bank (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 281, 197 Cal. Rptr. 710 , a creditor's action against a bank in which the judgment debtor had an account, the bank's general demurrer was sustained and the action was dismissed. On appeal, the court of appeal reversed the dismissal except as to an isolated issue of punitive damages. The court held that a pleading is sufficient against a general demurrer if it contains allegations essential to the statement of any one cause of action, even, as in the instant case, an abortive attempt is made to state facts calling for other and different relief (150 Cal. App. 3d 281, 288) .

See also Alcorn v. Anbro Engineering, Inc. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 493, 496, 86 Cal. Rptr. 88, 468 P.2d 216 (plaintiff need only plead facts showing he or she may be entitled to some relief); Maxwell v. City of Santa Rosa (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 274, 279, 1 Cal. Rptr. 334, 347 P.2d 678 (same); TRIM, Inc. v. County of Monterey County (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 539, 543, 150 Cal. Rptr. 351 (if, on a consideration of all facts stated, it appears plaintiff is entitled to any relief at hands of court against defendants, complaint will be held good, although facts may not be clearly stated, or may be intermingled with statement of other facts irrelevant to cause of action shown, or although plaintiff may demand relief to which he or she is not entitled under facts alleged); Gonzales v. State of California (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 621, 631, 137 Cal. Rptr. 681 (same); Jaffe v. Carroll (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 53, 57, 110 Cal. Rptr. 435 (same); Taschner v. City Council (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 48, 57, 107 Cal. Rptr. 214 (same; overruled on another point in Associated Home Builders Etc., Inc. v. City of Livermore (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 582, 596 n.14, 135 Cal. Rptr. 41, 557 P.2d 473); Tiburon v. Northwestern P. R. Co. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 160, 170, 84 Cal. Rptr. 469 (same); Laing v. Laubach (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 511, 516-517, 43 Cal. Rptr. 537 (all that is necessary as against a general demurrer is to plead facts entitling the pleader to some relief).

[b] Demurrer Limited to Face of Pleading and Judicially Noticed Matter

Johnson Rancho etc. Dist. v. County of Yuba (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 681, 35 Cal. Rptr. 828 , was an action by the water district against the county and others by which plaintiff sought to quiet title to certain water rights claimed under a written assignment that was pleaded according to its legal effect and not appended to the complaint. Defendants demurred both generally and specially to the complaint and at the same time filed a demand under former Code Civ. Proc. § 449 for production of the written assignment. Thereafter the assignment was produced and filed with the clerk by defendants. The water rights covered by it were not those described in the complaint. The trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend on the ground, among others, that the agreement showed on its face that the water rights claimed were not included in those covered by the written assignment. Plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal. The court of appeal held that the trial court erred In sustaining the demurrer since demurrers reach only those defects appearing on the face of the complaint or judicially noticeable (223 Cal. App. 2d 681, 684) and the proper way to have raised and disposed of the issue was by a motion for summary judgment (223 Cal. App. 2d 681, 685) . The court nevertheless affirmed the judgment on the ground plaintiff had effectually confessed it had no cause of action because it claimed no interference with the water rights described in its assignment and had acquired no interest in the water rights described in its complaint (223 Cal. App. 2d 681, 684) .

Hayward v. Henderson (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 64, 151 Cal. Rptr. 505 , was an action by a former city police officer trainee challenging procedures used in his dismissal. Funding for his trainee position was provided by the federal government under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act, and plaintiff was dismissed near the end of his one-year probationary period. Defendants' demurrer to the complaint on the ground plaintiff had not sufficiently alleged his exhaustion of applicable administrative remedies provided under federal rules and regulations, was sustained and, on plaintiff's failure to amend his complaint, the action was dismissed. On appeal it was plaintiff who contended that the trial court in ruling on the demurrer tried the facts and erred in failing to make findings of fact and conclusions of law. In rejecting this contention, on the ground no relevant authority for this novel position was cited, and affirming the judgment, the court of appeal said that a demurrer, by its very nature involves no issue of fact. A defendant cannot make allegations of fact in his or her demurrer which, if true, would disclose a defect in the complaint, nor can he or she strengthen the demurrer by asserting evidence that would make the complaint defective (88 Cal. App. 3d 64, 71) .

Cravens v. Coghlan (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 215, 315 P.2d 910 , was an action against an executrix on a rejected claim for the value of work and services allegedly rendered by plaintiff to decedent. Defendant demurred on the ground plaintiff lacked capacity to sue because, when the complaint was filed and the services were rendered, plaintiff was either serving time instate prison for a felony or on parole and had not received permission from the Adult Authority to enter into contracts or sue. At the hearing, the court entered its order "finding" that plaintiff was, at the time the complaint was filed, in prison for the commission of a felony and that neither before nor after the filing of the complaint, and while on parole, did plaintiff secure the consent of the Adult Authority to file a civil action. Based on these "findings," the court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend. In reversing the subsequent judgment of dismissal, the court of appeal pointed out that the trial court had no power on demurrer to pass on the factual issue raised because it could be presented only by answer. The court stated that it is an elementary rule that the sole function of a demurrer is to test the sufficiency of the challenged pleading, and it cannot properly be addressed to or be based on evidence or other extrinsic matters. A defendant is not permitted to allege facts in his demurrer that, if true, would make the complaint vulnerable (154 Cal. App. 2d 215, 217) .

Stratford Irr. Dist. v. Empire Water Co. (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 61, 111 P.2d 957 , was a condemnation proceeding by the irrigation district against a water company. Defendant demurred generally and specially on several grounds, including the ground of nonjoinder of parties defendant. This latter ground was based on a recorded contract and deed claimed to have been pleaded by reference to the deed in the complaint, although the terms of the contract and deed were not set forth in the complaint. The trial court sustained the demurrers on the ground the complaint did not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. In reversing the subsequent judgment of dismissal, the court of appeal, with respect to the ground of nonjoinder of parties, stated the rule that a demurrer admits all the material allegations of a complaint but does not change or enlarge those allegations and it certainly cannot insert allegations in a complaint that do not appear in it. The court pointed out that there was not the slightest reference in the complaint to the contract on the terms of which defendants rested their argument of nonjoinder, that the complaint made only a causal reference to the deed that defendants maintained referred to the contract, and that plaintiff made no attempt to plead either the deed or contract by stating its substance, by attaching copies as exhibits, or by reference to the book when the contract was recorded (44 Cal. App. 2d 61, 70) .

See also Kleiner v. Garrison (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 442, 447, 187 P.2d 57 (in ruling on a demurrer the court is bound by the facts alleged in the pleading against which the demurrer is directed and cannot consider facts presented in an affidavit accompanying the demurrer); Kadota Fig Assn. v. Case-Swayne Co. (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 796, 803, 167 P.2d 518 (same); Mackay v. Clark Rig Bldg. Co. (1935) 5 Cal. App. 2d 44, 55, 42 P.2d 341 (same).

[c] At Least One Count or Cause of Action Not Subject to Objection Raised

Cooper v. Leslie Salt Co. (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 627, 75 Cal. Rptr. 766, 451 P.2d 406 , cert. denied 396 U.S. 821, 90 S. Ct. 62, 24 L. Ed. 2d 72 , was an action attacking the manner in which municipal improvements and services were financed by a municipal improvement district of which plaintiff was a taxpayer. The complaint alleged four causes of action on various theories and was amended twice. Defendants' general demurrer to the second amended complaint was sustained without leave to amend, and plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal. Though holding the demurrer was properly sustained without leave to amend, the Supreme Court stated the general rule that if one count of a complaint states a cause of action it is an abuse of discretion to sustain the demurrer as to that count (70 Cal. 2d 627, 636) .

Polderman v. C.G. Hokanson Co., Inc. (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 28, 320 P.2d 59 , was an action to recover the reasonable value of services rendered and for other relief. A general demurrer to the second amended complaint was sustained with leave to amend and, on plaintiff's failure to timely amend, the action was dismissed. On appeal, the court stated that in light of the familiar rule that if any count or cause of action in a complaint setting up several counts or causes of action is good against a demurrer, a judgment of dismissal for insufficiency of the complaint cannot be sustained and that the court therefore needed to consider whether any count stated a cause of action against the demurrer directed thereto (157 Cal. App. 2d 28, 30) . The court held that the second cause of action was sufficient and reversed the judgment.

Skipper v. Gilbert J. Martin Constr. Co. (1957) 156 Cal. App. 2d 82, 318 P.2d 732 , was an action to foreclose a mechanic's lien and for money allegedly due under a written contract and additional money due under a subsequent oral contract to furnish materials and labor. Defendant's demurrer to plaintiff's second amended complaint was sustained without leave to amend and plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal. Although holding plaintiff could not recover for the work performed pursuant to the written contract since that contract showed on its face that plaintiff was contracting as a contractor, for which he had no license [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 7031], the court reversed the judgment on the ground it could not hold as a matter of law that plaintiff was not entitled to the additional sum he sought under the alleged oral contract. In this connection, the court said that a demurrer that attacks an entire pleading should be overruled if one of the counts therein is not vulnerable to the objection raised, and that if any count or cause of action in a complaint setting up several counts or causes of action is good as against demurrer, a judgment of dismissal for insufficiency of the complaint cannot be sustained (156 Cal. App. 2d 82, 86-87) .

Shook v. Pearson (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 348, 221 P.2d 757 , was an action for damages for breach of oral contracts. The complaint set forth two causes of action. The first was for breach of an oral contract granting plaintiff an exclusive agency for the marketing of defendants' products and the second was for breach of an oral contract to manufacture certain airplanes for plaintiff. Defendants' demurrer to the fourth amended complaint on the grounds of failure to state a cause of action and for uncertainty with respect to the allegation of special damages was sustained without leave to amend and plaintiff appealed from the subsequent order of dismissal. Although holding that both counts stated a cause of action (but that the special demurrer was properly sustained), and reversing the judgment on that ground, the court of appeal said that it is the general rule that a demurrer that attacks an entire pleading should be overruled if one of the counts in the pleading is not vulnerable to the objection and that if any count or cause of action in a complaint setting up several counts or causes of action is good as against a demurrer, a judgment of dismissal for insufficiency of the complaint cannot be sustained (99 Cal. App. 2d 348, 351) .

See also Brandt v. Brandt (1918) 178 Cal. 548, 550, 174 P. 55 (demurrer directed to complaint as a whole and not to separate causes of action stated in it should be overruled if any count is good); Taylor v. S & M Lamp Co. (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 700, 703, 12 Cal. Rptr. 323 (demurrer that attacks entire pleading should be overruled if one of the counts in the pleading is not vulnerable to the objection); Bacon v. Wahrhaftig (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 599, 605, 218 P.2d 144 (same).

[d] Rule of Liberal Construction

See Dunkin v. Boskey (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 171, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44 , discussed under § 71.30[4][e].

Mack v. Soung (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 966, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 830 involved an action by surviving children against their deceased parent's former physician for either violation of the Elder Abuse and Dependent Adult Civil Protection Act (Welf. & Inst. Code § 15600 et seq.), or intentional infliction of emotional distress. Demurrers to both causes of actions were ultimately sustained without leave to amend in the trial court. The court of appeal reversed the judgment concerning the elder abuse cause of action, concluding that plaintiffs sufficiently stated a cause of action for elder abuse (see 80 Cal. App. 4th 966, 968, 975-976) . The court liberally construed the pleadings noting that for demurrer purposes, the allegations of a complaint must be liberally construed with a view to substantial justice between the parties (80 Cal. App. 4th 966, 972) .

Stevens v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 594, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370 , involved the issue of whether a plaintiff, on behalf of the general public, may state a claim under the Unfair Competition Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200), for violation of Insurance Code and California Code of Regulations provisions that require insurance agents, brokers, and automobile dealers, to be licensed to transact insurance. In two related actions the trial court had sustained defendants' demurrers without leave to amend. The court of appeal consolidated the cases for review. In reversing, the court of appeal noted that for purpose of determining the effect of a complaint, its allegations are liberally construed, with a view toward substantial justice (75 Cal. App. 4th 594, 601) .

See CrossTalk Productions, Inc. v. Jacobson (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 631, 635, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615 , discussed under § 71.30[3][l].

[e] Cause of Action Alleged Despite Mistaken Labels and Confusing Legal Theory

Dunkin v. Boskey (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 171, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44 , involved a breach of contract action. The trial court had dismissed plaintiff's action after sustaining a demurrer without leave to amend. In reversing the judgment for defendant in part and remanding the case to the trial court, the court of appeal noted that regardless of the labels attached to a cause of action, the appellate court must examine the complaint's factual allegations to determine whether they state a cause of action on any available legal theory. Reversible error is committed if the facts alleged show entitlement to relief under any possible legal theory. And if the complaint, liberally construed, can state a cause of action, or if it is reasonably possible that the plaintiffs can cure the complaint by amendment, the trial court should not sustain a demurrer without leave to amend (82 Cal. App. 4th 171, 180) .

Schnall v. Hertz Corp. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1144, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 439 , involved a class action seeking damages and injunctive relief against defendant based on fuel service charges under defendant's rental agreement. Plaintiff's amended complaint alleged four causes of action: (1) violation of the Unfair Competition Law (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq.); (2) money had and received on the basis of an unconscionable and adhesive contract; (3) restitution; and (4) violation of the Consumers Legal Remedies Act (Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.). The trial court sustained defendant's demurrer without leave to amend on the ground that plaintiff failed to state facts sufficient to constitute any alleged cause of action and entered judgment for defendant, dismissing the action with prejudice. The court of appeal reversed. In so doing, the court noted that in determining whether or not a complaint is sufficient to constitute a cause of action, the rule is, that if on consideration of all the facts stated it appears that the plaintiff is entitled to any relief at the hands of the court against the defendants, the complaint will be held good, although the facts may not be clearly stated, or may be intermingled with a statement of other facts irrelevant to the cause of action shown, or although the plaintiff may demand relief to which he or she is not entitled under the facts alleged. In other words, plaintiff need only plead facts showing that he or she may be entitled to some relief (78 Cal. App. 4th 1144, 1152) .

LiMandri v. Judkins (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 326, 339, , involved an appeal from a judgment of dismissal entered after the court had sustained defendant's general demurrer to plaintiff's complaint without leave to amend. Plaintiff had alleged four causes of action, including a third cause of action for intentional interference with prospective economic advantage. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment as to the first, second, and fourth causes of action, but reversed the judgment of dismissal as to the third cause of action, and directed the trial court to overrule the general demurrer as to that cause of action (52 Cal. App. 4th 326, 350). The court concluded that although the complaint failed to state a cause of action for intentional interference with prospective economic advantage as the third cause of action was titled, the complaint stated facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action for the distinct tort of intentional interference with contractual relations (52 Cal. App. 4th 326, 339-344). In reaching its conclusion, the court of appeal noted that it has been long established that the trial court in ruling on a demurrer must look past the form of a pleading to its substance. Labels that are attached that are erroneous or confusing must be ignored if the complaint pleads facts that would entitle plaintiff to relief. What a paper is, rather than how it is named, fixes its character (52 Cal. App. 4th 326, 339).

[f] Cause of Action Alleged Despite Legal Conclusions

Wise v. Southern Pacific Co. (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 50, 35 Cal. Rptr. 652 , disapproved on other grounds by Applied Equipment Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 521 n.10, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454 (rejecting Wise to the extent it held that a party to a contract may be held liable in tort based on a conspiracy to interfere with its own contract), was an action for damages for the alleged wrongful discharge by defendant railroad of plaintiff from its employ in breach of a collective bargaining agreement (first count) and for damages resulting from the alleged conspiracy among all defendants, including the railroad, to obtain the discharge (second count). Defendants' demurrers asserted that each count of the complaint failed to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action and was uncertain, ambiguous, and unintelligible in various particulars. These demurrers were sustained without leave to amend. In reversing the subsequent judgment of dismissal, the court of appeal, among other things, distinguished those cases that involved the pleading of essential allegations in the form of bare legal conclusions. The Court said that it did not face the problem of a bare allegation without more, that said defendant "breached" or "violated" its contract, an allegation that would clearly be conclusionary and insufficient (223 Cal. App. 2d 50, 60) . Equally conclusionary and defective are allegations that an act was "wrongful," "illegal," "without authority," "unlawful," "unjust," "arbitrary," or "fraudulent" which, without additional allegations, raise no triable issue (223 Cal. App. 2d 50, 60) . If plaintiff had done no more than characterize defendant's acts by the terms "wrongful," "unjust," and "without cause" the general demurrer would be well taken, but the court was satisfied that there was considerably more pleaded and that the first count complied with the rule that sufficient facts should be alleged to apprise the defendant of the specific conduct that the plaintiff assigns as violative of the contract (223 Cal. App. 2d 50, 60) .

[g] Cause of Action Alleged Despite Unclear Facts

The facts and procedural background of Holmes v. City of Oakland (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 378, 67 Cal. Rptr. 197 , are discussed in § 71.32[3][a]. In Holmes v. City of Oakland, the court of appeal discussed the rules applicable to demurrers. Citing Gressley v. Williams (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 636, 639, 14 Cal. Rptr. 496 , discussed under § 71.30[3][k], the court said that all that is necessary against a general demurrer is that, on a consideration of all the facts stated, it appears that the plaintiff is entitled to any judicial relief against the defendant, notwithstanding unclearly stated facts, facts intermingled with a statement of other facts irrelevant to the cause of action shown, or a demand for relief by plaintiff to which he or she is not entitled under the facts alleged (260 Cal. App. 2d 378, 382-383) .

[h] Cause of Action Alleged Despite Demand for Wrong Relief

Scott v. City of Indian Wells (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 541, 99 Cal. Rptr. 745, 492 P.2d 1137 , was a class action for declaratory relief to void a conditional use permit granted by the city without notice to nonresident owners of adjoining land (class represented), except the individual plaintiffs who received notice by mistake. Defendant's general demurrer to the complaint was sustained without leave to amend and plaintiffs appealed from the subsequent judgment for defendant. In reversing the judgment with directions, the Supreme Court held that the complaint stated facts sufficient, as against a general demurrer, to constitute a cause of action on the basis of the city's failure to give nonresidents notice as required by its ordinance to the same extent as given to similarly situated city residents. The Court said that as against a general demurrer it is unimportant that plaintiff's pleading was not in form a petition for mandamus or certiorari; all that is required is that plaintiff state facts entitling him to some type of relief, and if a cause of action for mandamus or certiorari has been stated, the general demurrer should have been overruled; accordingly, an action for declaratory relief to review an administrative order should be regarded as a petition for a writ of mandate for purposes of ruling on a general demurrer (6 Cal. 3d 541, 546) . The Court further said that the rule is that, if on a consideration of all the facts stated it appears that plaintiff is entitled to any relief at the hands of the court against the defendants, the complaint will be held good, although the facts may not be clearly stated, or maybe intermingled with a statement of other facts irrelevant to the cause of action shown, or although the plaintiff may demand relief to which he or she is not entitled under the facts alleged (6 Cal. 3d 541, 549) .

[i] Implied or Inferred Facts Deemed True

Harvey v. City of Holtville (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 816, 76 Cal. Rptr. 795 , was an action for damages for injuries allegedly caused by a dangerous condition of defendant city's property. Defendant demurred generally to the complaint on the ground it did not allege the presentation of the claim within the time provided by Gov. Code §§ 911.4, 911.6. The demurrer was sustained with leave to amend and, after intervening appellate court proceedings in the case and a denial of a subsequent motion for reconsideration, the action was dismissed on plaintiff's failure to have filed an amendment. In reversing the judgment, The Court of appeal pointed out that the trial court had concluded that the complaint did now show presentation of the claim within the time required by law because it was not alleged that plaintiff's application for leave to present a late claim had been granted. To this, the court observed that, although not expressly alleged, the fact her application had been granted is supplied by inference or implication from the allegations she applied for leave to present a late claim, her application was accompanied by her claim, and defendant denied the claim itself (271 Cal. App. 2d 816, 818) . The court, citing numerous cases, then stated the rule that a general demurrer admits not only the facts expressly alleged but also facts essential to a cause of action that the facts alleged supply by implication or inference (271 Cal. App. 2d 816, 819) .

Taeleifi v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 366, 368 n.1, 181 Cal. Rptr. 697 , noted the established rule that on demurrer all material facts properly pleaded and all reasonable inferences that can be drawn from them are deemed admitted; disapproved on another ground in Lopez v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1985) 40 Cal.3d 780, 787 n.4, 221 Cal. Rptr. 840, 710 P.2d 907 ; Universal By-Products, Inc. v. City of Modesto (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 145, 151, 117 Cal. Rptr. 525 (although holding city immune to suit, court said that in testing the sufficiency of a pleading against a general demurrer, all well-pleaded allegations, including those that arise by reasonable inference, are deemed admitted irrespective of the difficulty of proof at trial).

[j] Disregard of Nonprejudicial Defect

Smith v. Kern County Land Co. (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 205, 331 P.2d 645 , was an action for damages for personal injuries sustained by plaintiff, a county employee. The amended complaint alleged that plaintiff was using heavy excavating equipment on defendant's property to remove certain trees, roots, and stumps; that the trees grew on a right-of-way owned by the county; that the roots extended into defendant's adjoining land; that on defendant's land, a blade on plaintiff's equipment struck a buried pipeline containing highly combustible fluids; and that in the resulting explosion plaintiff was injured. He alleged that the proximate cause of the injury was defendant's negligent failure to advise the county and its employees of the presence of the pipeline and the dangerous substances it carried. Plaintiff further alleged that the defendant and the county "desired and wished" the trees, roots, and stumps to be removed and that several days before the accident defendant "gave permission" to the county and its employees to enter on the land for that purpose. Defendant's general and special demurrer to the complaint was sustained with leave to amend. Plaintiff elected to stand on his pleading and the action was dismissed. Defendant contended that the complaint showed on its face that plaintiff was, under the law as it then existed, a mere licensee to whom no affirmative duty to inform existed and that the phrases "desired and wished" and "gave permission" were mere conclusions of law. In rejecting these contentions and reversing the judgment with directions to overrule the demurrer, the Supreme Court, citing Code Civ. Proc. § 475 and several cases, stated that any defects in the complaint that do not affect the substantial rights of the parties should be disregarded (51 Cal. 2d 205, 207) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.31

§ 71.31 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Insufficiency Not Established by Judicially Noticed Matter [Evid. Code § 452]

[1] FORM Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Insufficiency Not Established by Judicially Noticed Matter [Evid. Code § 452]

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint (see § 71.30).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE A FACTUAL DISPUTE STILL EXISTS AS TO MATTERS THAT ARE ASSOCIATED WITH OR FLOW FROM THE JUDICIALLY NOTICED MATTER.

A. Taking of Judicial Notice Does Not Require Acceptance of Truth of Related Factual Matters. The taking of judicial notice does not in and of itself require acceptance of the truth of a factual matter that might be deduced from that matter, since in many instances what is being noticed and thereby established is no more than the existence of an act or a thing and not, without supporting evidence, what might factually be associated with or flow from the noticed matter (Cruz v. County of Los Angeles (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1131, 1134, 219 Cal. Rptr. 661).

B. Judicially Noticed Matter Not Dispositive of Demurrer When Factual Dispute Exists. Judicial notice of a matter is dispositive of the demurrer only when no factual dispute exists concerning that which is sought to be judicially noticed. When a factual dispute exists over the very fact that occasioned the request for judicial notice, it is error for the trial court to sustain a demurrer (Cruz v. County of Los Angeles (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1131, 1134, 219 Cal. Rptr. 661).

C. Matter Requested to be Judicially Noticed Not Supported by Sufficient Information. The burden is on the party seeking judicial notice to provide sufficient information to allow the court to take judicial notice, and in the absence of sufficient information the court may refuse to judicially notice the evidence and overrule the demurrer (Ross v. Creel Printing and Publishing Co. (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 736, 744, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 787).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint when the trial court has judicially noticed matter but factual dispute nevertheless remains over the very fact that occasioned the request for the judicial notice. The ground of opposition is that the court may not deduce the truth of certain facts relating to the viability of the cause of action from the mere judicial notice of certain matter, and that since those facts remain in dispute, it would be improper for the court to make a factual determination at the demurrer stage of the proceedings.

The foregoing memorandum should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a demurrer to a complaint made on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see § 71.30]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the general demurrer supported by the memorandum set out in § 71.21.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, if the defendant requests and obtains judicial notice of a governmental entity's practice of preparing and mailing rejections of claims to establish that the plaintiff's complaint was filed after expiration of the period of limitations, and the plaintiff disputes whether the judicially noticed procedure was in fact practiced in the plaintiff's case, the plaintiff should point out that, because a factual dispute still existed as to whether or not the practice judicially noticed had actually been followed in this instance, it would be inappropriate for the trial court to resolve that factual dispute at the demurrer stage of the proceedings [see Cruz v. County of Los Angeles (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1131, 1134, 219 Cal. Rptr. 661 , discussed under § 71.31[3][a]].

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.30[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Taking of Judicial Notice Does Not Require Acceptance of Truth of Related Factual Matters

In Cruz v. County of Los Angeles (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1131, 219 Cal. Rptr. 661 , a baby allegedly suffered injuries at birth at a county medical center. The baby's guardian ad litem (hereinafter "plaintiff") filed a timely claim with the county on April 19, 1983, and a complaint for medical malpractice in superior court on February 6, 1984. The county demurred to the complaint on the ground that it was barred by the statute of limitations of Gov. Code § 945.6, which requires that an action against a county be filed within six months from the date that a notice of rejection of a county claim is deposited in the mail. The county requested that the court take judicial notice of the county's practice of preparing and mailing rejections of claims, and attached to its demurrer a proof of service that plaintiff had been personally mailed a letter of rejection. The court sustained the demurrer with leave to amend. Plaintiff then amended the complaint, alleging that the notice had never been received. The county again demurred, and the court again sustained the demurrer, this time without leave to amend. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that the trial court erred in sustaining the demurrer. The court explained that the taking of judicial notice of the official act of a governmental entity does not in and of itself require acceptance of the truth of a factual matter that might be deduced from that matter, since in many instances what is being noticed and thereby established is no more than the existence of that act and not, without supporting evidence, what might factually be associated with or flow from the noticed matter. Rather, judicial notice of a matter is dispositive of the demurrer only when no factual dispute exists concerning that which is sought to be judicially noticed. In the case at bar, because factual dispute still existed as to whether or not the practice judicially noticed had actually been followed in this instance (that is, the very fact that occasioned the request for judicial notice), it was inappropriate for the trial court to resolve that factual dispute at the demurrer stage of the proceedings. Therefore, the trial court erred In sustaining the demurrer (173 Cal. App. 1131, 1134) .

[b] Judicially Noticed Matter Not Dispositive of Demurrer When Factual Dispute Exists

Cruz v. County of Los Angeles (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1131, 219 Cal. Rptr. 661 , is discussed in § 71.31[3][a].

[c] Matter Requested to be Judicially Noticed Not Supported by Sufficient Information

In Ross v. Creel Printing and Publishing Co. (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 736 , a demurrer to a complaint for intentional infliction of emotional distress was supported by a request for judicial notice of a "Bad Check Diversion Unit Handbook for Business" allegedly issued by a Nevada District Attorney's office. The purpose of the judicial notice request was to prove that the handbook showed the District Attorney's office is empowered to prosecute consumer fraud claims and that the handbook fell under the category of a regulation or legislative enactment. The court declined to take judicial notice of the handbook because the defendant did not provide information about its source, purpose, or official ratification (100 Cal. App. 4th 736, 744) . Additionally, in support of the demurrer, the defendant submitted a request for judicial notice of a complaint filed by defendant against plaintiff in a Nevada proceeding. The court declined to take judicial notice of the complaint because it was neither certified nor provided under subpoena from the Nevada court (100 Cal. App. 4th 736, 743) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.32

§ 71.32 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Complaint Rendered Sufficient by Judicially Noticed Facts [Evid. Code § 452]

[1] FORM Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Complaint Rendered Sufficient by Judicially Noticed Facts [Evid. Code § 452]

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint (see § 71.30).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE FACTS ALLEGED IN THE COMPLAINT, SUPPLEMENTED BY MATTERS OF WHICH THE COURT MAY TAKE JUDICIAL NOTICE, ARE SUFFICIENT TO STATE A CAUSE OF ACTION.

A. Complaint Sufficient by Inclusion of Judicially Noticed Matter. Matter subject to judicial notice may, on proper request, be read into a complaint, which is otherwise insufficient on its face, in determining on demurrer the sufficiency of the complaint to state a cause of action (Performance Plastering v. Richmond American Homes of California, Inc. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 659, 665, 63 Cal.Rptr.3d 537 ; Holmes v. City of Oakland (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 378, 384, 67 Cal. Rptr. 197).

[Here, and in subsequent paragraphs, set forth bases for judicial notice under Evid. Code § 452, and a request that the court take judicial notice of that fact (see § 71.21, Paragraphs C through O).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint that omits essential facts to a statement of the cause of action, when the omitted facts may be supplied by matters of which the court may take judicial notice. The ground of opposition set out is that the omitted facts are subject to judicial notice. For further discussion of judicial notice, see § 71.21[2].

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the general demurrer supported by the memorandum set out in §§ 71.20 -71.27.

The foregoing memorandum should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a demurrer to a complaint made on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see § 71.30]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. That is, counsel should identify the particular matter that the court is required to or may take judicial notice of that will supply the omitted allegation, and argue that from the face of the pleading and the judicially noticed fact, the complaint states facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action and the demurrer should therefore be denied.

See also § 71.30[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Complaint Sufficient by Inclusion of Judicially Noticed Matter

In Performance Plastering v. Richmond American Homes of California, Inc. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 659, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 537 , home builder Richmond American had contracted with Performance Plastering to perform stucco work on some of Richmond's homes. CalFarm Insurance Co. was Performance's liability insurer. Richmond began receiving complaints that Performance's work was defective, and eventually Richmond and Performance entered into what were named the El Nino settlement agreements, which released Performance and CalFarm from liability for defects at 65 homes in exchange for a certain amount of money. Additionally, Richmond and CalFarm entered into the Air Design settlement agreement, which gave Performance a release from all claims in exchange for a payment from CalFarm to Richmond. At this point, Performance was a suspended corporation. Subsequently, CalFarm and Performance sued Richmond for declaratory relief and breach of contract based on alleged violations of the settlement agreements. Richmond demurred to the complaint on the basis that Performance, as a suspended corporation, had no capacity to sue and that CalFarm had no standing to bring a suit as it was not a party to the El Nino agreements. The trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that CalFarm had standing to bring a lawsuit based on the El Nino agreements because it was a third party beneficiary to those agreements. Although the El Nino agreements were outside the four corners of the complaint, the court took judicial notice of the agreements, which were attached to CalFarm's opposition to demurrer, because there could be no factual dispute concerning their contents (153 Cal. App. 4th 659, 665 n.2).

Holmes v. City of Oakland (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 378, 67 Cal. Rptr. 197 , was an action, based on the alleged maintenance of a dangerous condition [see Gov. Code § 835], against a city for personal injuries sustained by plaintiff when he was run over by a train on a railroad's right-of-way over city-owned land. The complaint set forth four "causes of action" (counts), although enforcement of only a single right allegedly violated by the city was involved. The essence of the complaint was that the city owed plaintiff the duty of maintaining its property in a safe condition and that it breached this duty resulting in injuries and damages to plaintiff. The city's contended that it had no duty to plaintiff because the definition of property of a public entity in Gov. Code § 830(c) excluded easements and encroachments and other property located on the property of the public entity but not owned or controlled by the public entity. Defendant city's demurrer to the complaint was sustained with leave to amend and, on plaintiff's failure to amend, the action was dismissed. The plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment and directed the trial court to overrule the general demurrer as to the second and third counts. The court of appeal explained that while the complaint did not allege facts indicating whether the right-of-way came within the meaning of land owned by a public entity or the exception, regulations and enactments of the city that disclose the relationship between the city and the railroad and the legal status and nature of the subject right-of-way are matters that may be judicially noticed and read into the complaint (260 Cal. App. 2d 378, 384) . The court noted that the record did not disclose that any such matter had been judicially noticed by the trial court or that the trial court had been appropriately requested under Evid. Code § 453 to take such notice. Nevertheless, the appellate court invoked the provisions of Evid. Code § 459, allowing an appellate court the same discretionary power to take judicial notice as is possessed by the trial court, and requested the city to furnish it with pertinent information to enable it to determine the propriety of taking judicial notice and the tenor of the matter to be noticed. On receipt of this information the court examined it and concluded that the property involved was under the control of the city and was property of a public entity within the meaning of Gov. Code § 830(c) (260 Cal. App. 2d 378, 384-385) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.33

§ 71.33 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Is Authorized by Statute to Sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 369]

[1] FORM Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Is Authorized by Statute to Sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 369]

[The following should be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint (See § 71.30).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE PLAINTIFF IS A PERSON EXPRESSLY AUTHORIZED BY STATUTE TO MAINTAIN THE ACTION.

A. Person Authorized by Statute May Sue. A person expressly authorized by statute may sue without joining with him or her the persons for whose benefit the action is prosecuted (Code Civ. Proc. § 369).

[EITHER]

B. Taxpayer's Action. A resident taxpayer may sue to enjoin the illegal expenditure of, waste of, or injury to the estate, funds, or other property of a county, town, city, or city and county of this state (Code Civ. Proc. § 526a). [This section is broadly construed to authorize similar actions against state officers (Duskin v. San Francisco Redevelopment Agency (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 769, 773, 107 Cal. Rptr. 667)].

[OR]

B. _____ [Set forth other statutory authorization for prosecution of the specific action involved by plaintiff].

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint on the ground plaintiff lacks standing to sue. The ground of opposition set out is that plaintiff is authorized by statute to maintain the action, and the specific authority illustrated is Code Civ. Proc. § 526a, authorizing an action by a resident taxpayer to enjoin illegal expenditures or waste of public funds or injuries to public property.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the general demurrer supported by the memorandum set out in § 71.22.

These points and authorities should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a demurrer to a complaint made on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see § 71.30]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel would refer to facts in the complaint or of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice that establish that plaintiff satisfies applicable statutory standards for maintaining the action.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.30[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Person Authorized by Statute May Sue

Code Civ. Proc. § 369 enumerates each person who may sue without joining as parties the persons for whose benefit the action is prosecuted, and specifies that any person expressly authorized by statute may sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 369(a)(4)].

[b] Taxpayer's Action

Code Civ. Proc. § 526a in relevant part provides that an action to obtain a judgment, restraining and preventing any illegal expenditure of, waste of, or injury to the estate, funds, or other property of a county, town, city, or city and county of the state may be maintained against any officer thereof, or any agent, or other person, acting in its behalf, either by a citizen resident therein, or by a corporation, who is assessed for and is liable to pay, or within one year before the commencement of the action, has paid, a tax therein. The section, however, prohibits enjoining the sale, offering for sale, or issuance of municipal bonds for public improvements or public utilities.

Duskin v. San Francisco Redevelopment Agency (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 769, 107 Cal. Rptr. 667 , was a representative taxpayers' action against defendant agency and its director and commissioners for declaratory relief and to restrain the sale by the agency of certain public property to a corporation for an amount alleged to be less than its fair value in violation of specified federal and state statutes and regulations. Defendants demurred generally to the first amended complaint on the ground, among others, that Code Civ. Proc. § 526a authorizes taxpayers' actions against officers and agents of counties, towns, and cities only, and defendant was a state agency. The demurrer was sustained without leave to amend.

The court of appeal reversed the subsequent judgment. The court noted that the complaint was not limited to and did not specify Code Civ. Proc. § 526a but added that in any event court decisions have established the right to sue state officers under Code Civ. Proc. § 526a (31 Cal. App. 3d 769, 773) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.34

§ 71.34 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Action Is No Longer Premature

[1] FORM Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Action Is No Longer Premature

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint (see § 71.30).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE THE ACTION IS NO LONGER PREMATURE.

A. Prematurity of Action as Plea in Abatement. The defense that an action is premature is simply a matter of abatement (Radar v. Rogers (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 243, 250, 317 P.2d 17 ; Edwards v. Container Kraft Carton & Paper Supply Co. (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 752, 756, 327 P.2d 622).

B. Ground No Longer Exists. The plea that the action is premature should be disregarded if the prematurity no longer exists (Radar v. Rogers (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 243, 250, 317 P.2d 17 ; Edwards v. Container Kraft Carton & Paper Supply Co. (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 752, 756, 327 P.2d 622).

[If appropriate, here, and in subsequent paragraphs, set forth bases of judicial notice of facts (see Evid. Code § 452) that establish that the action has matured, and a request that the court take judicial notice of such facts (see § 71.21, Paragraphs C through O).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint on the ground the action is premature in that the complaint shows on its face or it appears from judicially noticed matter that the action is premature. The ground of opposition is that the action has matured and, therefore, the ground of objection no longer exists.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the general demurrer supported by the memorandum set out in § 71.23.

The foregoing memorandum should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a demurrer to a complaint made on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see § 71.30]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, if the complaint seeking to recover damages for malicious prosecution of another action was filed before the time to appeal from the judgment in the other action had expired (although that judgment had become final before hearing on the demurrer in the instant action), counsel would argue that (1) the prematurity of plaintiff's action is merely a ground for abatement, (2) the prematurity has since been cured, (3) the complaint is no longer defective based on the prematurity and the general demurrer should therefore be dismissed [see Edwards v. Container Kraft Carton & Paper Supply Co. (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 752, 327 P.2d 622 , discussed under § 71.34[3][a]].

If the occurrence of the condition precedent to bringing the action is one of which the court may or is required to take judicial notice, the memorandum should include argument setting forth the relevant basis for taking judicial notice and an application that the court take judicial notice [see § 71.21].

If the occurrence of the condition precedent cannot be shown from either the face of the complaint or judicially noticeable facts, counsel should request leave to file a supplemental complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 464]. For memoranda of points and authorities relating to supplementing pleadings in civil actions generally, see Ch. 16, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings .

[b] Premature Filing

The filing of a complaint before a cause of action has accrued is to be distinguished from the filing of a complaint after a cause of action has accrued but before completion of some procedural condition precedent, such as the filing of a claim against, and its rejection by, a public entity or the representative of a decedent's estate. In both situations, the filing of the complaint is premature, but in the former situation the error cannot normally be corrected by the filing of a supplemental complaint after the cause of action accrues whereas in the latter situation, a supplemental complaint may normally be filed to show the subsequent occurrence or performance of the condition precedent.

This distinction was, however, not noted in Walton v. Kern County (1940) 39 Cal. App. 2d 32, 102 P.2d 531 , in which the court of appeal held that plaintiff could not file a supplemental complaint to allege the defendant county's denial by operation of law of plaintiff's claim when the original complaint had failed to allege the submission and rejection of the claim (although plaintiff had in fact timely submitted the claim) and the statute of limitations had run by the time plaintiff sought to file the supplemental complaint. In affirming a judgment on the Pleadings entered for defendant on the ground of the prematurity of action, the court stated that the supplemental complaint had to fall with the original complaint since the action had been prematurely brought and the supplemental complaint could not stand as an original complaint because it was barred by the statute of limitations [Walton v. Kern County (1940) 39 Cal. App. 2d 32, 34-35, 102 P.2d 531] .

Subsequent cases have substantially eroded the Walton holding, although the Supreme Court has never expressly disapproved the case nor has it been overruled. In Radar v. Rogers (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 243, 247, 317 P.2d 17 , involving the filing of a claim against a decedent tortfeasor's estate, the Supreme Court held that the defense that the suit was commenced before presentation and rejection of the claim was a matter of abatement and that the Walton rule did not require dismissal of the case when at the time defendant sought to raise the defense, plaintiff had already presented the claim and it had been rejected. Cory v. Huntington Beach (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 131, 135, 117 Cal. Rptr. 475 , noted the serious erosion of Walton in the recent years and pointed out that it is now recognized that the waiting period requirement is not part of the cause of action but a procedural condition precedent to suit. Quoting from Petersen v. Vallejo (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 757, 771, 66 Cal. Rptr. 776 , the court of appeal said that the Legislature has since realized that in providing the manner in which a public entity may be sued, a cause of action is not being created, only the manner in which it may be asserted is being prescribed.

For points and authorities relating to the issues of whether a supplemental pleading relates back to the original pleading and of the requirement of the filing and rejection of a claim against a public entity, see Ch. 16, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings and Ch. 196, Public Entities respectively.

[c] Continuance

As a concomitant of the rule that the matter in abatement must exist at the time the pleading urging it is filed and that it may be disregarded if the ground does not exist at the time of trial, the court may, when the matter of abatement still exists at the time of the hearing on the plea and can be corrected, on application by plaintiff, continue the hearing to a future date to give plaintiff an opportunity to correct it [see, e.g., Ostrowski v. Miller (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 79, 86, 37 Cal. Rptr. 790 ; see also Ch. 10, Abatement and Survival of Actions, § 10.30 et seq.].

See also §§ 71.20[2], 71.23[2], and 71.30[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Prematurity of Action as Plea in Abatement

Radar v. Rogers (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 243, 317 P.2d 17 , was an action for damages for personal injuries and property damage arising out of a motor vehicle collision. The defendant had been killed in that accident, and at the time the complaint was filed no personal representative had been appointed. The complaint named as defendants "John Doe and Jane Doe, as Administrator and/or Administratrix of the Estate of George Rogers, Deceased" and alleged "that the defendants John Doe and Jane Doe are sued herein as Administrator and/or Administratrix of the Estate of George Rogers, deceased, for the reason that the true name of the administrator and/or administratrix is unknown to plaintiffs at this time." Almost a year later, an administratrix was appointed and notice to creditors was published. Plaintiffs presented their claims to the administratrix who gave notice of rejection of the claims. Approximately six months later, plaintiffs filed a first amended complaint to name "Alpha C. Rogers, as Administratrix of the Estate of George W. Rogers," as defendant. Defendant demurred generally and specially to this complaint and the demurrer was sustained with leave to amend. Plaintiffs then filed a second amended complaint to which defendant again demurred and, for the first time in the supporting points and authorities, raised the contention that the action was barred by limitation because it was not instituted within three months after rejection of the claims as assertedly required by former Prob. Code § 714 [now see Prob. Code § 9353]. This demurrer was sustained without leave to amend and plaintiffs appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment with directions to overrule it (49 Cal. 2d 243, 250) . The Court concluded that the general demurrer had been improperly sustained. The Court first said that the so-called amended complaints were, technically speaking, by code definition, supplemental complaints because they alleged facts material to the case occurring after the former complaint, citing Code Civ. Proc. § 464 (49 Cal. 2d 243, 247) . The Court further held that the general rule that a supplemental pleading has no place as a pleading when an action is prematurely brought and the original complaint must fall did not apply to a case when the cause of action had already accrued before the complaint was filed. The Court said the present cause of action accrued when the accident happened and that every fact essential to state a cause of action, at least in the absence of a plea in abatement, was well pleaded (49 Cal. 2d 243, 247) . The Court held that it would be "highly technical" to apply former Prob. Code § 714 to bar this complaint, which was not filed too late, but, at worst, prematurely (49 Cal. 2d 243, 249) and said the defense that the suit was commenced before the presentation and rejection of claim is simply a matter of abatement (49 Cal. 2d 243, 250) .

Edwards v. Container Kraft Carton & Paper Supply Co. (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 752, 327 P.2d 622 , was an action for damages for malicious prosecution of an action for injunctive relief. The complaint was filed, however, before the time to appeal from the judgment in the injunction action had expired, although that judgment had become final before trial of the instant action. Judgment was for plaintiff and defendant appealed arguing, among other things, that the action was premature.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The court of appeal said that California is now definitely committed to the doctrine that prematurity of action is merely ground for abatement (161 Cal. App. 2d 752, 756).

[b] Ground No Longer Exists

The facts and procedural background of Radar v. Rogers (1957) 49 Cal.2d 243, 317 P.2d 17 , are discussed under § 71.34[3][a]. In Radar, the Supreme Court said the defense that suit was commenced before the presentation and rejection of claim is simply a matter of abatement--a defense that is not favored, and must be made by plea, and in proper time, or it is waived. The Court added that in the case before it, there was no occasion to consider whether the unfavored defense was waived, for it had ceased to exist at the time defendant sought to raise it, and that a consequence of the disfavor with which such pleas are viewed is that matter in abatement must exist at the time of filing the pleading urging it and if the stated ground does not exist at the time of trial, it may be disregarded (49 Cal.2d 243, 250) .

The facts and procedural background of Edwards v. Container Kraft Carton & Paper Supply Co. (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 752, 327 P.2d 622 , are discussed under § 71.34[3][a]. In Edwards, the court quoted at page 756 the statements from Radar v. Rogers (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 243, 250, 317 P.2d 17 , above.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Prematurity of Action as Plea in Abatement

Moore v. Fellner (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 330, 325 P.2d 857 , was an action to recover attorney's fees on a contingent fee contract. As a result of a dispute between plaintiff and defendant as to whether plaintiff was entitled to an additional fee for handling an appeal on an underlying action and plaintiff's refusal to handle it unless he were paid the additional fee, defendant discharged plaintiff and plaintiff filed the present action to recover the reasonable value of his services. Defendant, for the first time, objected at trial to the introduction of evidence by plaintiff on the ground the action was premature in that it was filed while the appeal by Steinbaum was still pending. The judgment had, however, by that time been affirmed on appeal and defendant had collected the judgment. The trial court overruled the objection and denied the subsequent motion for nonsuit made on the same ground, judgment for plaintiff was entered and both parties appealed. The Supreme Court reversed the judgment with directions to the trial court to redetermine the value of the services (50 Cal. 2d 330, 334, 344) . The Court said the unfavored defense that the action was prematurely brought is simply a matter of abatement (50 Cal. 2d 330, 343) .

Note:

Moore, discussed above, was overruled on another point in Fracasse v. Brent (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 784, 790, 100 Cal. Rptr. 385, 494 P.2d 9 .

See also Bemmerly v. Woodward (1899) 124 Cal. 568, 574-575, 57 P. 561 (prematurity of action is simply a matter of abatement); San Mateo County v. Bartole (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 422, 430, 7 Cal. Rptr. 569 (same); Taylor v. Los Angeles (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 255, 263-264, 4 Cal. Rptr. 209 (same).

[b] Ground No longer Exists

The facts and procedural background of Moore v. Fellner (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 330, 325 P.2d 857 , are discussed under § 71.34[3][a]. In Moore, the Supreme Court said the unfavored defense that the action was prematurely brought must be pleaded in proper time or it is waived and that if the defense has ceased to exist at the time defendant seeks to raise it, there is no occasion to consider whether it has been waived, as it may be disregarded (50 Cal. 2d 330, 343) .

Bahten v. Merced County (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 101, 130 Cal. Rptr. 539 , was an action for damages for injuries sustained by a minor in a high school football game on October 6, 1972. The minor's parents did not seek legal advice until almost a year after the injury. On September 27, 1973, plaintiffs presented to the county board of supervisors a petition for leave to file a late claim against the county. A verified claim was attached to the petition. The board took no action on the petition and it was deemed denied by operation of law 45 days after it was presented. The complaint, naming the county and others as defendants and alleging a cause of action for negligent medical care and treatment of the minor's injuries, was filed October 1, 1973. It did not allege compliance with Gov. Code § 945.4, relating to claims against public entities. Plaintiffs' subsequent motion for an order relieving them from compliance with Gov. Code § 945.4 was granted and plaintiffs filed an amended complaint alleging the prior order relieving them from compliance with Gov. Code § 945.4 and two separate causes of action: (1) negligent medical care; and (2) negligent management, control, and supervision of the football game. Defendant county moved to strike the amended complaint on the ground the complaint did not state a cause of action against it and concurrently demurred on the same ground. The trial court granted the motion to strike and sustained the demurrer without leave to amend and dismissed the complaint against the county only.

In reversing the judgment, the court of appeal said that there was no showing whatsoever that any of the county's rights were prejudiced or impaired by the premature filing of the Original Complaint (before expiration of time county had to act on petition for leave to file late claim) and pointed out that defendant had made no attempt to abate the prematurely filed action. It said that when defendant filed its motion to strike and demurrer, the defect in the complaint arising from plaintiffs' failure to allege either the filing of a claim or relief from the provisions of the claims presentation statutes had been earlier cured by the order granting plaintiffs' relief from the provisions of Gov. Code § 945.4 (59 Cal. App. 3d 101, 112) .

See also Walter J. Warren Ins. Agency v. Surpur Timber Co. (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 99, 105, 58 Cal. Rptr. 143 (prematurity of action is merely ground for abatement and if ground has ceased to exist before time of trial it cannot then or thereafter prevail); Miller v. Mountain View Sav. & L. Ass'n (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 644, 654-655, 48 Cal. Rptr. 278 (defense that action is premature cannot be interposed for first time after defect has ceased to exist); San Mateo County v. Bartole (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 422, 430, 7 Cal. Rptr. 569 (same); Taylor v. Los Angeles (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 255, 263, 264, 4 Cal. Rptr. 209 (if defense of prematurity has ceased to exist at time defendant seeks to raise it, it may be disregarded).

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.35

§ 71.35 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Action Not Barred by Res Judicata if Federal Court in Prior Action Declined to Exercise Pendent Jurisdiction Over State Claim

[1] FORM Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Action Not Barred by Res Judicata if Federal Court in Prior Action Declined to Exercise Pendent Jurisdiction Over State Claim

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint (see § 71.30).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE THE FEDERAL COURT _____ [DECLINED or CLEARLY WOULD HAVE DECLINED, HAD IT BEEN REQUESTED TO DO SO], TO EXERCISE PENDENT JURISDICTION OVER THE STATE CLAIM HEREIN SUED ON.

Nonexercise of Pendent Jurisdiction. A cause of action on a state claim is not barred by res judicata on the ground the issues raised could have been adjudicated in a prior federal court action between the same parties if the federal court declined[, or clearly would have declined had it been requested to do so], to exercise pendent jurisdiction over the cause (Merry v. Coast Community College Dist. (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 214, 225-228, 158 Cal. Rptr. 603).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint based on the objection that the action, although on a state claim, is barred by a federal court judgment previously entered against plaintiff on a federal claim. The basis for the opposition is that the federal court declined to exercise pendent jurisdiction over the state claim. The opposition may also be based on the ground that the federal court clearly would have declined to exercise jurisdiction had it been requested to do so, in which case the optional language in the form should be used.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the general demurrer supported by the memorandum set out in § 71.24 (memorandum in support of demurrer based on bar of res judicata).

The foregoing memorandum should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a demurrer to a complaint made on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see § 71.30]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, if a federal court has refused to exercise pendant jurisdiction, counsel would request the court to take judicial notice of the file of the federal court action, and particularly its order declining pendant jurisdiction over the state claim now being asserted in plaintiff's action [see Evid. Code § 452(d)]. For a form of application to take judicial notice, see § 71.21.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.30[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Nonexercise of Pendent Jurisdiction

Merry v. Coast Community College Dist. (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 214, 158 Cal. Rptr. 603 , was an action by a college professor against a college district and others arising out of a contract relating to the production of a color television series on cultural anthropology, of which plaintiff was to be the project director. The contract provided that all right, title, and interest in the series, including any royalties or residuals from the series, would vest exclusively in the district. Plaintiff objected to the waiver of rights to royalties and residuals, but district representatives informed him that the county counsel had advised them that it would be illegal for plaintiff to receive royalties, and plaintiff signed the contract. Unknown to plaintiff at the time was the existence of a written district policy that would have permitted the district to negotiate an agreement with plaintiff permitting him to retain ownership rights to the series provided the district was reimbursed for the production cost. Plaintiff thereafter wrote the material for the series, participated in the planning and shooting of the film, appeared on the screen as the narrator, and took part in handling technical and other details involved in the production of the series. After completion of the series, defendant district began leasing the film to school districts and educational television stations throughout the United States. Plaintiff's demand for an accounting of royalties and residuals was refused.

In 1975, plaintiff filed an action in the United States District Court for the Central District of California in which he sought redress of alleged violations of his civil rights under color of law, declaratory relief, infringement of common law copyright, recovery under quasi-contract, and imposition of a constructive trust. Defendant's motion to dismiss the action on the ground it was not a person within the meaning of the Civil Rights Act (42 U.S.C. § 1983) was granted and the case was dismissed in January, 1976. In March, 1976, plaintiff filed a second action in the federal court to redress alleged grievances and violations of civil rights under color of law and for declaratory relief. The complaint alleged substantially the same facts alleged in the first action. Defendants' motion for summary judgment on the merits was granted on the ground there was no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the facts failed to state a claim on which relief could be granted under the cited provisions of the federal Constitution and federal statutes. Plaintiff then sued in state court for the vindication of his state claims based on the same operative facts. Defendants' demurrer was sustained without leave to amend on the ground the federal court summary judgment was res judicata. Plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment. The court summarized the general rules applicable to the two aspects of res judicata (bar and collateral estoppel) (97 Cal. App. 3d 214, 221-222, 223-225) , and stated that the prior federal court judgment must be given the same effect instate courts as it would have in a federal court (97 Cal. App. 3d 214, 222) . The court explained when federal courts may exercise pendent jurisdiction over state claims (97 Cal. App. 3d 214, 222-223) , and said that the refusal to exercise such jurisdiction over a state claim following pretrial dismissal of a federal claim does not bar litigation of the state claim in a state court (97 Cal. App. 3d 214, 228) . The court concluded that had plaintiff raised his state claims in the federal action they would have been dismissed without prejudice, because the federal claims were patently so flimsy and insubstantial that they called for summary pretrial disposition (97 Cal. App. 3d 214, 225) and held that since the federal court would have declined to adjudicate plaintiff's state claims had they been raised, the federal court summary did not bar the present action (97 Cal. App. 3d 214, 225, 231) . The court dismissed the argument that plaintiff was attempting to split his cause of action by saying that plaintiff's right to pursue his state remedies in the state court depends, not on whether it involves a different primary right, but on whether under federal law the summary judgment on the federal claims is res judicata of the state law claims (97 Cal. App. 3d 214, 227) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.36

§ 71.36 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--General Demurrer Does Not Raise Objections Constituting Grounds of Special Demurrer

[1] FORM Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--General Demurrer Does Not Raise Objections Constituting Grounds of Special Demurrer

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint (see § 71.30).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE THE ONLY OBJECTION IT RAISES IS A GROUND FOR SPECIAL DEMURRER.

General Demurrer Does Not Raise Objections Made Grounds of Special Demurrer. A general demurrer to a complaint, pursuant to Section 430.10(e) of the Code of Civil Procedure, does not lie to raise objections that are subject to being raised by special demurrer only (Tennant v. Pfister (1876) 51 Cal. 511, 513 ; Central Sur. & Ins. Corp. v. Foley (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 738, 741-743, 22 Cal. Rptr. 504).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing point and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint when the general demurrer seeks to raise objections subject to special demurrer only, and the challenged pleading states facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. For discussion of the distinctions between a general and special demurrer, see § 71.05.

The foregoing point and authorities should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a demurrer to a complaint made on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see § 71.30]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, if the essence of defendant's objection to the complaint is that facts are in an uncertain form, counsel should argue that for the purpose of evaluating the sufficiency of a complaint against a general demurrer, the court disregards alleged uncertainties because a general demurrer is not an appropriate vehicle for such objections, and that unless there is an entire absence of some fact or facts essential to a cause of action, it should be overruled [see Uptown Enterprises v. Strand (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 45, 50, 15 Cal. Rptr. 486 , discussed under § 71.154[3][a]].

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.30[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] General Demurrer Does Not Raise Objections Made Grounds of Special Demurrer

Tennant v. Pfister (1876) 51 Cal. 511 , was an action against sureties on an undertaking given by appellants on appeal from a judgment in a prior action partitioning real property, which judgment was affirmed, to recover the value of the use and occupation of the land by appellants pending the appeal. Defendants demurred to the complaint on the ground of misjoinder of parties plaintiff. The demurrer was overruled but at trial the court granted defendants' motion to exclude all of the evidence of plaintiffs on that ground. The Supreme Court reversed the subsequent judgment for defendants on the ground that, having overruled the demurrer, the trial court should have proceeded with the case as if no demurrer had been interposed or should have set aside its prior order overruling the demurrer and granted reconsideration. On remand, the case was tried and judgment was for plaintiffs. Defendants appealed on the ground their demurrer for misjoinder should have been sustained.

The Supreme Court explained its prior holding that was, in effect, that a motion to exclude all evidence is proper only when the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. In this connection the Court said that if on the face of a complaint there appears to be a misjoinder of parties plaintiff, the objection must be taken by special demurrer or it is waived, and that, under a general demurrer for failure to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, the objection of misjoinder cannot be raised (51 Cal. 511, 513) . The Court nevertheless held there was a misjoinder of parties plaintiff and reversed the judgment with directions to the trial court to sustain the demurrer.

Central Sur. & Ins. Corp. v. Foley (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 738, 22 Cal. Rptr. 504 , arose out of an action by property owners against the contractors and their surety on a building contract. The surety cross complained against the contractors for indemnity. It prayed for an order that the contractors be required to deposit collateral to secure it against any loss, costs, or damages for which it might become liable, that if plaintiffs recovered judgment against it, the court award it damages in that amount over against the contractors, and that it be awarded judgment against them for the costs of investigation and attorney's fees it had incurred. Judgment went against plaintiffs in the main action. When the cross complaint came on for trial, the contractors objected on the grounds that because judgment had gone against plaintiffs no deposit was required, that there was no judgment or claim as to which the surety could seek indemnity, that the attorney's fees and other costs sought were not mentioned in the body of the cross complaint but only in the prayer, and that the cross complainant had in any case failed to allege the amount of these fees and costs. The trial court sustained the objection and rendered judgment for cross defendants. As an alternative ground for its judgment, it found that the cross complaint failed to plead any items of damages and amounts thereof in detail and with certainty.

The court of appeal reversed with directions to allow an amendment to the cross complaint. It said that in awarding judgment solely on the face of the cross complaint the trial court was in effect ruling, as on a general demurrer, that it failed to state a cause of action. Quoting from American Tel. & Tel. Co. v. California Bank (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 46, 53, 138 P.2d 49 , the court explained that as against a general demurrer any mere ground of special demurrer for uncertainty will be resolved in support of the complaint and that a general demurrer will be overruled when the necessary facts are shown to exist, although inaccurately or ambiguously stated, or appearing only by necessary implication (204 Cal. App. 2d 738, 741) . If the cross complaint was not already sufficient to state a cause of action, it could easily have been amended to do so (204 Cal. App. 2d 738, 743) . With respect to the trial court's alternative ground for the judgment, the court of appeal said that a mere failure to plead damages in detail and with certainty is the type of defect that is waived in the absence of a demurrer on that ground (204 Cal. App. 2d 738, 743) ; that is, it is not an objection raised by general demurrer.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.37

§ 71.37 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Inconsistent Counts Not Incorporating Each Other's Inconsistent Allegations Do Not Render Complaint Defective

[1] FORM Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Inconsistent Counts Not Incorporating Each Other's Inconsistent Allegations Do Not Render Complaint Defective

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint (see § 71.30).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE INCONSISTENT ALLEGATIONS IN DIFFERENT COUNTS DO NOT RENDER A PLEADING SUBJECT TO GENERAL DEMURRER IF THE COUNTS DO NOT INCORPORATE THE INCONSISTENT ALLEGATIONS.

[EITHER]

A. Inconsistent or Alternative Counts May Be Pled. A complaint may plead inconsistent causes of action, although it is verified, if there are no contradictory or antagonistic facts. Thus, unless the alternative pleadings contain antagonistic statements, the statement of facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in one count is not a bar to the maintenance of a separately stated count in the same pleading based on inconsistent allegations (Steiner v. Rowley (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 713, 718-719, 221 P.2d 9 ; Berman v. Bromberg (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 936, 944-945, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 777). In the absence of inconsistent factual allegations any inconsistency between plaintiff's legal theories is immaterial (Berman v. Bromberg (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 936, 945, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 777).

[OR]

A. Inconsistent or Alternative Counts May Be Pled. When the exact nature of the facts is in doubt, or when the exact legal nature of a plaintiff's right and a defendant's liability depend on facts not well known to the plaintiff, the pleading may properly set forth alternative theories in varied and inconsistent counts (Rader Co. v. Stone (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 10, 29, 223 Cal. Rptr. 806).

[CONTINUE]

B. Inconsistent Allegations in Separate Counts Are Not Subject to General Demurrer. The fact that the allegations of one count of a multicount complaint are inconsistent with the allegations of another count that does not incorporate by reference the inconsistent allegations of the first count, does not render either count subject to a general demurrer (Lambert v. Southern Counties Gas Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 347, 352, 340 P.2d 608).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint on the ground that the allegations of one count or cause of action are inconsistent with those of another count or cause of action set forth in the same pleading. The ground of opposition set out is that the inconsistent allegations of one count or cause of action are not incorporated by reference into the other.

Two versions of point A (Inconsistent or Alternative Counts May Be Pled) are set forth in the form. Counsel may use the version that is best suited for the facts and circumstances of his or her case.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. That is, counsel should identify each allegation that defendant cites as inconsistent, by paragraph number, and showing the allegation to be consistent with the other allegations in the same count.

[b] Rules With Respect to Other Inconsistencies

When there is any inconsistency between specific allegations of the complaint on which a conclusion must be based and the conclusion, the specific allegation controls [Wood v. Elling Corp. (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 353, 364 n.8, 142 Cal. Rptr. 696, 527 P.2d 755] . Furthermore, the specific pleading of a matter controls, limits, and supersedes a general pleading in the same or a prior complaint [Henderson v. Superior Court (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 583, 590, 142 Cal. Rptr. 478] .

[c] Effect of Verification of Complaint

A complaint may plead inconsistent causes of action even though the complaint is verified, if there are no contradictory or antagonistic facts [Faulkner v. Cal. Toll Bridge Authority (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 317, 328, 253 P.2d 659 ; Steiner v. Rowley (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 713, 718-719, 221 P.2d 9 ; see DuBarry Internat., Inc. v. Southwest Forest Industries, Inc. (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 552, 576, 282 Cal. Rptr. 181] . The Supreme Court noted in Faulkner that the rule allowing a plaintiff to plead inconsistent counts or causes of actions was not intended to sanction the statement in a verified complaint of certain facts as constituting a transaction in one count or cause of action, and in another count or cause of action a statement of contradictory or antagonistic facts as constituting the same transaction. In short, stated the Court, "the rule does not permit the pleader to blow both hot and cold in the same complaint on the subject of facts of which [the plaintiff] purports to speak with knowledge under oath" [Faulkner v. Cal. Toll Bridge Authority (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 317, 328, 253 P.2d 659 , citing Beatty v. Pacific States Sav. & Loan Co. (1935) 4 Cal. App. 2d 692, 679, 41 P.2d 378 with approval]. To verify inconsistent facts alleged in a complaint indicates perjury in the matter [Manti v. Gunari (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 442, 449, 85 Cal. Rptr. 366] .

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.30[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inconsistent or Alternative Counts May Be Pled

Steiner v. Rowley (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 713, 221 P.2d 9 , was an action by the purchasers of real property to recover a commission paid to a real estate broker, an alleged secret profit, and exemplary damages. The complaint was in four counts, all arising out of the same transaction. The first alleged that defendant was employed by plaintiffs as a broker under an oral contract and owed them $2,000 paid to him for their use and benefit. More specifically, it alleged that the grantees of the property purchased by plaintiffs paid defendant that amount as a side payment and secret profit in consideration of receiving from him a favorable recommendation for the purchase of certain property. This payment, it was asserted, was obtained by defendant in violation of his duty to deal with plaintiffs honestly and fairly as their real estate broker. The second count was for money had and received. The third count alleged that in addition to the fee paid by plaintiffs to defendant, defendant received a secret profit of $2,000 out of a certain escrow to which plaintiffs were parties without plaintiffs' knowledge or consent. The fourth count sought exemplary damages based on defendant's fraud, oppression, and malice, express or implied, in obtaining the $2,000. Defendant's general demurrer to the complaint was sustained and plaintiffs appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal.

In holding all four counts sufficient and reversing the judgment, the Supreme Court pointed out that even if the facts pleaded in the third count showed knowledge of the secret purpose of the payment, the first count would not fall because of those allegations (35 Cal. 2d 713, 718) . The Court explained that a complaint may plead inconsistent causes of action, although it be verified, if there are no contradictory or antagonistic facts (35 Cal. 2d 713, 718-719) . The Court pointed out that the allegations of the first count to the effect that the profit was secret at most would be inconsistent with, but not antagonistic to, those of the third count in regard to the payments out of escrow. Even though under the third count the plaintiffs would be charged with notice that the defendant would be paid $2,000 out of the escrow, that knowledge would not include notice of an illegal purpose for the payment, which was not disclosed by the escrow documents (35 Cal. 2d 713, 718) . Moreover, even if the allegations of the third count showed knowledge of the illegal purpose of the payment, evidence offered at trial in support of the first count might tend to prove the invalidity of the escrow contract, ambiguity in its terms, or mistake in connection with its execution, and if, for any reason, the escrow contract was invalid, then the plaintiffs were not by imputation bound through knowledge of its provisions. The Court further said that in the parallel field of aider by reference, the averments of one count cannot be amplified by the allegations of another separately stated cause of action in the same pleading unless the latter are included by special reference or otherwise in the portion of the complaint under attack. Similarly, the Court also found that unless the alternate pleadings contain antagonistic statements, the statement of facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in one count is not a bar to the maintenance of a separately stated count in the same pleading based on inconsistent allegations (35 Cal. 2d 713, 719) .

The facts and procedural background of Berman v. Bromberg (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 936, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 777 , are discussed in § 71.41[3][a]. With regard to inconsistent or alternative counts, the court pointed out that a complaint may plead inconsistent causes of action, although it be verified, if there are no contradictory or antagonistic facts. Thus, unless the alternate pleadings contain antagonistic statements, the statement of facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in one count is not a bar to the maintenance of a separately stated count in the same pleading based on inconsistent allegations. In the absence of inconsistent factual allegations any inconsistency between plaintiff's legal theories is immaterial (56 Cal. App. 4th 936, 944-945) .

In Rader Co. v. Stone (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 10, 29, 223 Cal. Rptr. 806 , the plaintiff brought various causes of action against defendant to recover a broker's commission allegedly due the plaintiff for its services in procuring a tenant for defendant's real property. Defendant demurred to plaintiff's third amended complaint mainly in reliance on the statute of frauds. The trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend and entered an order of dismissal as to the defendant. The plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. Defendant maintained that writings appended to the complaint did not show on their face the fact of the plaintiff's employment and none of the writings were signed by the party to be charged. The court discussed the applicability of the statute of frauds and concluded that its requirements were satisfied by the writings at issue. In addition, the court stated that the plaintiff was not precluded by law from alleging in one cause of action a breach of contract and an inconsistent theory of recovery in another cause of action. To the extent the plaintiff's allegation in one cause of action of a fully executed contract with the defendant was at odds with an allegation in a separate cause of action that another party interfered in plaintiff's advantageous relationship with defendant, that inconsistency, stated The Court, was not fatal to the plaintiff's claims at the pleading stage, as a plaintiff is permitted to plead inconsistent or alternative counts. When the exact nature of the facts is in doubt, or when the exact legal nature of a plaintiff's right and a defendant's liability depend on facts not well-known to the plaintiff, the pleading may properly set forth alternative theories in varied and inconsistent counts (178 Cal. App. 3d 10, 29) .

[b] Inconsistent Allegations in Separate Counts Are Not Subject to General Demurrer

Lambert v. Southern Counties Gas Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 347, 340 P.2d 608 , was an action by owners of a bulldozer for its destruction by fire after it struck and punctured an underground gas pipeline. The first count was directed against the lessees of the bulldozer and was based on their alleged negligence in the operation of the bulldozer over the pipeline when they should have known its location. The second count was against the gas company and was based on its alleged negligence in permitting its pipeline to remain so near the surface of the ground. The gas company demurred generally to the first amended complaint on the ground that plaintiffs by alleging negligence on the part of the lessees in count one, which negligence was imputed to plaintiffs as the owner of the bulldozer, pleaded their own contributory negligence that barred them from recovery against it. The demurrer was sustained without leave to amend, and plaintiffs appealed from the judgment for the gas company.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment. The Court pointed out that a plaintiff may plead inconsistent causes of action in separate counts of a single complaint, that each count or cause of action in a complaint must be complete in itself and must either contain all the averments necessary to state a cause of action or expressly refer therefor to other counts, and that a count sufficient within itself may not ordinarily be defeated by importing from another count an allegation to which the sufficient count makes no reference (52 Cal. 2d 347, 352) . The Court, after pointing out that the gas company alone was named defendant in count two and that only its alleged negligence was involved in that count, explained that the two counts in their respective separate statements of alleged negligence--that of the ranch owners, on the one hand, and that of the gas company, on the other--indicated that plaintiffs were in doubt as to which defendants should be held liable for the damages sustained (52 Cal. 2d 347, 353) . For that reason plaintiffs elected to set forth their two causes of action in the one complaint, which plaintiffs were permitted to do under the right of joinder of defendants afforded by our system of code pleading (52 Cal. 2d 347, 353) . The Court stated it would defeat the principles underlying our liberal system of pleading to permit the gas company, the only defendant named in count two, to import, from the separately stated count one, allegations against other defendants based on a different premise of liability; each count should be tested on the basis of its own allegations (52 Cal. 2d 347, 353-354) . The Court concluded that the allegations of count two were sufficient to state a cause of action against the gas company, and that its general demurrer should have been overruled (52 Cal. 2d 347, 354) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.38

§ 71.38 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Action Is Not Founded on Attached Exhibit

[1] FORM Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Action Is Not Founded on Attached Exhibit

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint (see § 71.30).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE THE ACTION IS NOT FOUNDED ON THE EXHIBIT AND THE COMPLAINT DOES NOT ALLEGE AN INTENT TO ADOPT THE RECITALS.

Action Not Founded on Attached Document. The pleading of an instrument, attached as an exhibit to and incorporated by reference in the complaint, that is not the basis of the cause of action is, in the absence of allegations indicating the pleader's intentions to adopt the recitals of the exhibit as his or her or its own, only an assertion of its existence and character; recitals not so adopted may not be read into the complaint in determining the sufficiency of the complaint to state a cause of action (Washer v. Bank of America (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 822, 830, 136 P.2d 297 (overruled on another point in MacLeod v. Tribune Pub. Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 551, 343 P.2d 36)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to A general demurrer to a complaint based on the objection that allegations in the complaint are contradicted by statements contained in an exhibit that is attached to and by reference incorporated in the complaint. The ground of opposition set out is that the action is not founded on the exhibit, which is attached for evidentiary purposes only.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the general demurrer supported by the memorandum set out in § 71.25.

These points and authorities should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a demurrer to a complaint made on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see § 71.30]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel would refer to the complaint, pointing out the absence of any allegations expressly or impliedly indicating the pleader's intentions to adopt the recitals of the exhibit as his or her or its own.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.30[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action Not Founded on Attached Document

Washer v. Bank of America (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 822, 136 P.2d 297 (overruled on another point in MacLeod v. Tribune Pub. Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 551, 343 P.2d 36), was an action for damages for slander and libel. Plaintiff had been employed, and subsequently discharged, by defendant bank. The National Labor Relations Board ordered his reinstatement on the ground he had been fired because of his activities in connection with the organization of a labor union. The complaint in the first cause of action for slander alleged that the individual defendant, acting in the scope of his duties as vice president and personnel director of defendant bank, in commenting on the board's decision, orally made the following statement concerning plaintiff to newspaper reporters and others solely for the purpose that it be published and it was so published, "We cannot see how this institution could possibly reinstate anybody who had admitted he had falsified his expense account, who has been guilty of flagrant insubordination." Plaintiff additionally pleaded the innuendo, detriment, damages, and malice. The second cause of action was for libel and was in substantially the same form but alleged that the individual defendant handed the press in writing his comment on the board's decision. Defendants demurred both specially and generally to the complaint on the ground, among others, that the complaint taken as a whole showed the truth of the alleged defamatory language and to support this assertion relied on the statement of facts set forth in the copy of the board's decision which plaintiff had attached as an exhibit to his complaint. Plaintiff took the position that the exhibit could not be used to establish the truth or falsity of the alleged defamatory statement as the language of the complaint showed that the sole purpose of the exhibit was to identify plaintiff as the person concerning whom the statement was made. The demurrers were sustained without leave to amend.

The Supreme Court reversed the subsequent judgment. In so doing, the Court said that when a written instrument, that is the foundation of a cause of action or defense, is attached to a pleading as an exhibit and incorporated into it by proper reference, the court may, on demurrer, examine the exhibit and treat the pleader's allegations of its legal effect as surplusage (21 Cal. 2d 822, 829-830) . The Court added, however, that an instrument that is not the basis of a cause of action or defense falls into a different category (21 Cal. 2d 822, 830) . The Court explained that in this latter situation the pleading of the document as an exhibit is only an assertion of its existence and character, in the absence of allegations indicating the pleader's intention to adopt as his own the recitals in it, and that, consequently, the language of the complaint or answer determines the extent to which the document has been made a part of the pleading (21 Cal. 2d 822, 830) . The Court concluded that there was nothing in the complaint indicating plaintiff intended to include as apart of his pleading any statement of facts made by the board in deciding the matter before it, and hence, the recitals could be considered only insofar as they showed that there was a determination concerning plaintiff and that the individual defendant's comment was made in reference to the requirement as to reinstatement (21 Cal. 2d 822, 830) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Action Not Founded on Attached Document

Morrison v. Home Sav. & L. Ass'n (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 765, 346 P.2d 917 , was an action for damages. Although recitals in instruments attached to the complaint were not contrary to any allegations in the complaint, the court of appeal, in reversing a judgment of dismissal, pointed out that although the action against defendant arose out of the failure of the contract of sale between plaintiffs and the purchaser, it was in fact based on the defendant's breach of an agreement not evidenced by a writing attached to the complaint and hence did not come under the rule that allegations in a complaint contrary to the recitals in an instrument on which the action is based that is attached to and incorporated in the complaint are to be disregarded as surplusage (175 Cal. App. 2d 765, 771-773) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.39

§ 71.39 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--General Damages Are Sufficiently Alleged

[1] FORM Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--General Damages Are Sufficiently Alleged

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint (see § 71.30).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE A COMPLAINT DOES NOT LACK SUFFICIENT ALLEGATIONS OF DAMAGES IF ONLY GENERAL DAMAGES ARE SOUGHT AND THOSE DAMAGES PROXIMATELY RESULTING FROM DEFENDANT'S BREACH ARE ALLEGED.

General Damages Sufficiently Alleged. A complaint for damages that sets forth a legal right on the plaintiff's part, a wrongful violation of that right by defendant, and damages proximately resulting therefrom states a cause of action, and it is not necessary to point out in detail in the complaint the nature and extent of such damages unless special damages are claimed (Colvig v. RKO Gen., Inc. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 68-69, 42 Cal. Rptr. 473).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint based on the objection that plaintiff failed to allege damages sufficiently. The ground of opposition set out is that the fact that plaintiff sustained detriment and general damages in a specified amount as a proximate result of defendant's breach is alleged.

These points and authorities should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a demurrer to a complaint made on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see § 71.30]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel would refer to specific allegations in the complaint, by paragraph number, indicating that only general damages are sought and those damages proximately resulting from defendant's breach are alleged.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.30[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] General Damages Sufficiently Alleged

Colvig v. RKO Gen., Inc. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 42 Cal. Rptr. 473 , was an action against RKO, KFRC, and a number of Doe defendants by which plaintiff sought recovery of damages resulting from defendants' failure to comply fully with an arbitrator's award, confirmed by the superior court, ordering that he be restored to his position as a staff announcer on KFRC. The complaint alleged that plaintiff was a third-party beneficiary to a contract between defendants and the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists, that he had been terminated by defendants from employment as a staff announcer at KFRC, that defendants were ordered to restore plaintiff to such position by an arbitration award made pursuant to the contract, that the award recognized that plaintiff had "a right to practice his profession there," that defendants paid all salary due but failed and refused to broadcast plaintiff's voice over the radio waves, that defendants' conduct was intended to and did deprive plaintiff of a personal right that had been fixed by that award to practice his profession there, and that as a proximate result of defendants' conduct, plaintiff "has been damaged" in his profession by not being able to be and remain known to the public as a radio announcer to his "detriment" in the sum of $250,000. The general and special demurrer of defendant RKO, which was the owner of KFRC, to the complaint was sustained without leave to amend. Plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment. The court held that the complaint stated a cause of action and, with respect to defendant's contention that the complaint lacked sufficient allegations of damages, said it is the general rule that if the allegations of a complaint demurred to set forth a legal right on the part of the plaintiff, a wrongful violation of that right by the defendant, and damages proximately resulting from the violation of that right, a cause of action is stated, and it is not necessary to point out in detail in the pleadings the nature and extent of such damages unless special damages are claimed (232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 68-69) . The court explained that damages that may be said to be the normal and natural result of the breach complained of may be denominated general damages and pleaded accordingly, while those suffered as a consequence, though not necessarily the certain result of the breach, must be pleaded specially, and that, accordingly, the natural and ordinary damages resulting from a breach of contract may be recovered under a general allegation of damages (232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 69) . The court added that the question as to how general damages from the breach of a contract have arisen otherwise than as disclosed by the general allegation of damages, is the subject of evidence, rather than pleading, but that special damages must be specially set forth in the complaint or the plaintiff will not be permitted to give evidence of it at trial (232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 69) . The court held that the instant complaint satisfied the requirement with respect to general damages but that insofar as it might purport to be a claim for special damages it was deficient and vulnerable to a special demurrer (232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 69) .

It is to be noted that the court in Colvig used the word "damages" variously to mean both "damages" and "detriment" and that plaintiff in his complaint used the word "detriment" to mean "damages." "Detriment" is the loss or harm suffered by plaintiff in person or property [Civ. Code § 3282] as a result of defendant's unlawful act [Civ. Code § 3281]. "Damages" is the measure of that detriment in terms of money [Civ. Code § 3281]. Thus, by reason of a defendant's unlawful act, a person is, for example, deprived of the use of property to which he or she is entitled. The detriment sustained is the loss of the use of that property. The damages sustained are the value of that lost use. The amount of damages is yet a third element.

A complaint, to be sufficient, must allege both the detriment suffered by plaintiff as a proximate result of defendant's alleged wrong, and damages. The amount of the damages must also be set forth, unless the action is to recover actual or punitive damages for personal injury or wrongful death, in which case the amount must not be stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.40

§ 71.40 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff May Omit Facts Pled in Prior Pleading to Correct Mistakes

[1] FORM Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff May Omit Facts Pled in Prior Pleading to Correct Mistakes

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint (see § 71.30).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE PLAINTIFF IS ENTITLED TO CORRECT _____ [ERRONEOUS ALLEGATIONS OF GENERIC TERMS THAT MAY HAVE LEGAL IMPLICATIONS BUT THAT ARE ALSO LOOSELY USED BY LAY PERSONS and/or AMBIGUOUS STATEMENTS OF FACT].

Omission of Facts in Amended Pleading Permitted to Correct Mistakes. The rule that all allegations of fact in a verified complaint that are subsequently omitted or contradicted, are still binding on the complainant is valid and useful, but it does not exist in a vacuum and cannot be mechanically applied. It is not a rule intended to prevent honest complainants from correcting erroneous allegations of generic terms that may have legal implications but that are also loosely used by lay persons or to prevent the correction of ambiguous statements of fact (Contreras v. Blue Cross of California (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 945, 950, 245 Cal. Rptr. 258).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint that objects to an omission, without explanation, of facts alleged in the Original Complaint.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the general demurrer supported by the memorandum set out in § 71.26.

These points and authorities should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a demurrer to a complaint made on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see § 71.30]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should argue that the subsequent pleading is a clarification of the plaintiff's valid claims.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.30[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Omission of Facts in Amended Pleading Permitted to Correct Mistakes

Contreras v. Blue Cross of California (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 945, 245 Cal. Rptr. 258 , was a wrongful discharge action involving numerous plaintiffs. A demurrer to the original complaint was sustained with leave to amend. Plaintiffs, however, failed to amend within the time permitted by leave to amend and defendants moved to dismiss the action. Plaintiffs opposed the motion to dismiss and promptly submitted the first amended complaint, urging that extenuating circumstances had prevented them from filing it in time. The trial court, however, dismissed the action first, telling plaintiffs that their remedy was under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 to set aside the dismissal. The plaintiffs submitted a motion to set aside the dismissal and the trial court granted the motion. Defendants filed notice of appeal from the order, contending that the original complaint contained allegations that rendered it defective, due to federal preemption under ERISA, and that the first amended complaint was basically the same but with the offensive allegations improperly omitted. The defendants contended that this was one of those cases in which a pleader should not be permitted to withdraw allegations in a prior pleading, and that in such circumstances the trial court abused its discretion by granting relief.

The court of appeal affirmed the order. The court quoted Macomber v. State of California (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 391, 399, 58 Cal. Rptr. 393 , stating that rules of pleading are conveniences to promote justice and not to impede or warp it. Macomber did not question the rule that all allegations of fact in a verified complaint, which are subsequently omitted or contradicted, are still binding on the complainant. The court agreed that the rule is valid and useful but stated that it does not exist in a vacuum and cannot be mechanically applied. It is a good rule to defeat abuses of the privilege to amend and to discourage sham and untruthful pleadings. It is not a rule, however, that is intended to prevent honest complainants from correcting erroneous allegations of generic terms that may have legal implications but that are also loosely used by lay persons or to prevent the correction of ambiguous statements of fact (199 Cal. App. 3d 945, 950) .

The court observed that the case before it involved numerous individual plaintiffs having individual circumstances with a wide variety of employment promises alleged to have been broken and that possible federal preemption under ERISA was not a simple, blatant, and incurable defect such as res judicata or delay beyond the statute of limitations. Plaintiffs had the right to amend to clarify their claims in light of the complex and developing law. The first amended complaint in the case was extensively reorganized and improved and was not nearly identical to the original complaint. The amended pleading was not the type of sham pleading to which the rule of preventing omission of an incurable defect applies (199 Cal. App. 3d 945, 950) . The court concluded that to deny the plaintiffs' request for relief would result in a windfall for the defendants, unrelated to the potential merit of any of the causes of action stated in the first amended complaint (199 Cal. App. 3d 945, 951) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Omission of Facts in Amended Pleading Permitted to Correct Mistakes

The facts and procedural background of Berman v. Bromberg (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 936, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 777 , are discussed in § 71.41[3][a]. With regard to correcting mistakes, quoting Contreras v. Blue Cross of California (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 945, 950, 245 Cal. Rptr. 258 , the court noted that it did not question the rule that all allegations of fact in a verified complaint, which are subsequently omitted or contradicted, are still binding on the complainant. The rule is valid and useful, but it does not exist in a vacuum and cannot be mechanically applied. It is a good rule to defeat abuses of the privilege to amend and to discourage sham and untruthful pleadings. It is not a rule, however, which is intended to prevent honest complainants from correcting erroneous allegations of generic terms which may have legal implications but which are also loosely used by laymen or to prevent the correction of ambiguous statements of fact (56 Cal. App. 4th 936, 946) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.41

§ 71.41 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Fact That Prior Pleadings May Have Contained True, but Irrelevant, Matters Does Not Render Proposed Amended Complaint a Sham

[1] FORM Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Fact That Prior Pleadings May Have Contained True, but Irrelevant, Matters Does Not Render Proposed Amended Complaint a Sham

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint (see § 71.30) and may also be combined with § 71.37, if appropriate.]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE AN AMENDED COMPLAINT THAT ALLEGES DIFFERENT LEGAL THEORIES BASED ON THE SAME SET OF GENERAL FACTS AS SET OUT IN THE SUPERSEDED PLEADINGS, BUT OMITS FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS THAT ARE IRRELEVANT AND IMMATERIAL TO THE NEW LEGAL THEORIES ASSERTED, IS NOT A SHAM

A. Sham Pleading Rule Is Inapplicable When There Are No Inconsistencies in the Underlying Material or Factual Allegations. The fact that the prior pleadings in the case may have contained true, but irrelevant, matters does not render the amended complaint a sham. Although prior legal theories are abandoned in the amended complaint, it is based on the same general set of underlying material facts. The sham pleading rule should not be applied in a case where the plaintiff seeks to change plaintiff's legal theory of recovery and the legal conclusions plaintiff seeks to draw from the underlying factual events, and also seeks to omit factual allegations that are irrelevant and immaterial to the new legal theories asserted (Berman v. Bromberg (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 936, 948-949, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 777).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to an amended complaint based on an objection that the amended complaint attempts to avoid defects set forth in a prior complaint by avoiding them, when the amended complaint has omitted factual allegations that are irrelevant and immaterial to new legal theories asserted in the amended complaint and the new legal theories are based on the same general set of underlying facts. Under the sham pleading rule, when an amended complaint attempts to avoid defects set forth in a prior complaint by ignoring them, the court may examine the prior complaint to ascertain if the amended complaint is merely a sham. Moreover, any inconsistencies with prior pleadings must be explained and if the pleader fails to do so the court may disregard the inconsistent allegations [see Berman v. Bromberg (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 936, 945-946, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 777] . For effect of verification, see discussion under § 71.37[2][c].

Counsel may wish to consider combining this form with the points and authorities in § 71.37, which support the contention that inconsistent allegations may be made in different counts in a complaint.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts and the points of law stated. Counsel should show how each omitted fact in the amended complaint is irrelevant and immaterial to the new legal theories asserted and that the new legal theories are based on the same general set of underlying facts.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Sham Pleading Rule Is Inapplicable When There Are No Inconsistencies in the Underlying Material or Factual Allegations

In Berman v. Bromberg (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 936, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 777 , plaintiff brought an action against the defendant for an accounting, audit, breach of contract, intentional and negligent misrepresentation, and declaratory relief arising out of plaintiff's investment in a limited partnership and thereafter filed a verified first amended complaint containing essentially the same causes of action. Before filing the original complaint, plaintiff had asked for an accounting from the defendants and also for copies of financial statements. One of the defendant's responded by sending plaintiff a check for $30,000 stating on its face and in an accompanying letter that it was for the purchase of the plaintiff's interest in the limited partnership. Defendants answered the verified first amended complaint and alleged as an affirmative defense that they tendered payment in full to the plaintiff for plaintiff's entire interest in the partnership, that plaintiff accepted payment and never tendered return or returned payment to the defendants, and since that time plaintiff has never been a member of the partnership. Ultimately, defendants filed a motion for judgment on the pleadings and plaintiff filed an opposition to the motion and also filed a motion for leave to file a second amended complaint indicating plaintiff's intention to abandon all of the causes of action in the first amended complaint and allege two causes of action based on the same general set of facts, but premised on two different legal theories, one being for violation of Corp. Code § 25401. Plaintiff's proposed verified second amended complaint alleged that plaintiff at no time intended a sale of plaintiff's interest in the limited partnership nor did plaintiff agree to such a sale, but if plaintiff did so, plaintiff did so based on untrue statements or omissions made by the defendants. At the hearing the court apparently elected to treat the motion for judgment on the pleadings as a demurrer to the first amended complaint and sustained the demurrer as to all the causes of action with 20 days leave to amend. At the hearing on the motion for leave to file the second amended complaint the court denied the motion without prejudice and thereafter plaintiff filed a motion for leave to file a third verified amended complaint which was substantially similar to the second amended complaint except that it added a third cause of action for "constructive fraud--breach of fiduciary duty owed limited partner by general partner and president." The proposed third amended complaint did not contain the language of the proposed second amended complaint relating to the plaintiff's subjective intent not to sell plaintiff's interest, but instead alleged that plaintiff cashed the check and that such transaction constituted a sale of security within the meaning of Corp. Code §§ 25401, 25019 and that a sale of a security occurred when plaintiff cashed the check. Defendants opposed the motion for leave to amend maintaining that because the allegations concerning a sale of a security contradict the earlier allegations that there was no sale of plaintiff's interest, the third amended complaint was a sham and the fatal defect could not be cured by simply omitting the earlier allegations in a later pleading without explanation. The trial court agreed with the defendants' argument and denied the motion to amend. Judgment was entered in defendants' favor and plaintiff appealed (56 Cal. App. 4th 936, 940-944).

The court of appeal reversed. The only issue before the court of appeal was whether the trial court properly denied the motion for leave to amend on the ground that the third amended complaint was a sham pleading designed to untruthfully omit a fatal and incurable defect (56 Cal. App. 4th 936, 947 n.3). Notwithstanding this, the points of law discussed in the court's opinion also apply to demurrer cases. The court pointed out that generally, after an amended pleading has been filed, courts will disregard the original pleading. There is an exception when an amended complaint attempts to avoid defects set forth in a prior complaint by ignoring them. The court may examine the prior complaint to ascertain whether the amended complaint is a sham. The rationale for this is that a pleader may not attempt to breathe life into a complaint by omitting relevant facts that made the previous complaint defective. Moreover, any inconsistencies with the prior pleading must be explained and if the pleader fails to do so, the court may disregard the inconsistent allegations (56 Cal. App. 4th 936, 945-946) .

Turning to the case at hand, the court noted that the fact that the prior pleadings may have contained true, but irrelevant, matters does not render the proposed amended complaint a sham. The third amended complaint alleged different legal theories based on the same set of general facts as set out in the superseded pleadings and the prior omitted allegations pertaining to the plaintiff's lack of intent and lack of agreement to sell the plaintiff's partnership interest, even if true and even if read into the third amended complaint, were immaterial to the legal theories set out in the third amended complaint (56 Cal. App. 4th 936, 946-948) . The sham pleading rule should not be applied in a case where the plaintiff seeks to change plaintiff's legal theory of recovery and the legal conclusions plaintiff seeks to draw from the underlying factual events, and also seeks to omit factual allegations that are irrelevant and immaterial to the new legal theories asserted (56 Cal. App. 4th 936, 949) . Accordingly, the court held that the sham pleading rule was inapplicable and that there was no need for the plaintiff to explain the reasons for the amended pleading because there were no inconsistencies in the underlying material or relevant factual allegations (56 Cal. App. 4th 936, 949) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.42

§ 71.42 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Delay Alone Does Not Establish Laches

[1] FORM Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Delay Alone Does Not Establish Laches

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint (see § 71.30).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE THE COMPLAINT SHOWS ONLY THAT PLAINTIFF DELAYED FILING THE ACTION, AND DOES NOT SHOW ANY PREJUDICE TO DEFENDANT BECAUSE OF IT OR ACTS INDICATING THAT BY SUCH DELAY PLAINTIFF ACQUIESCED IN THE ACT OF WHICH COMPLAINT IS MADE.

Delay Without Acquiescence or Prejudice. The defense of laches requires unreasonable delay plus either acquiescence in the act about which plaintiff complains or prejudice to the defendant resulting from the delay; absent a showing on the face of the complaint of unreasonable delay plus prejudice or acquiescence, a demurrer on this ground should not be sustained (Barndt v. County of Los Angeles (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 397, 259 Cal. Rptr. 372 ; Duskin v. San Francisco Redevelopment Agency (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 769, 774-775, 107 Cal. Rptr. 667).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to A general demurrer to a complaint based on the objection that an equitable action is barred by laches. The ground of opposition set out is that it does not appear from the face of the complaint, or from any judicially noticed matter, that defendant has been prejudiced by plaintiff's delay in commencing the action, or that plaintiff has acquiesced in the act complained of.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the general demurrer supported by the memorandum set out in § 71.27.

These points and authorities should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a demurrer to a complaint made on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see § 71.30]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel would point out that it does not appear from the face of the complaint, or from any judicially noticed matter, that defendant has been prejudiced from any delay by the plaintiff in filing his or her action.

[b] Related Points and authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities in opposition to a demurrer to a complaint on the ground the action is barred by the statute of limitations, see Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions .

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.30[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Delay Without Acquiescence or Prejudice

In Barndt v. County of Los Angeles (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 397, 259 Cal. Rptr. 372 , plaintiff initiated an action against the county to specifically enforce the terms of a settlement agreement entered into by the parties to resolve a long-standing employment dispute between them. The action was commenced nearly four years after the plaintiff had been denied appointment to the cardiology section of defendant's medical center as a physician specialist. The defendant demurred to the third amended complaint, contending that plaintiff was collaterally estopped from asserting the validity of the settlement agreement, and as a separate ground, that plaintiff was guilty of laches because of unreasonable and prejudicial delay in filing the complaint. The trial court sustained the defendant's demurrer to the third amended complaint without leave to amend, finding that plaintiff was collaterally estopped to seek such relief because of the denial of his petition for writ of mandate in another proceeding and that plaintiff was guilty of laches. Following entry of a stipulated judgment of dismissal, plaintiff appealed.

Although the court of appeal affirmed the judgment on the independent ground that the settlement agreement, which contemplated personal services, could not be specifically enforced under Civ. Code § 3390 (211 Cal. App. 3d 397, 403-407) , it nevertheless held that the third amended complaint did not establish the defense of laches as a matter of law sufficient to support the sustaining of the demurrer (211 Cal. App. 3d 397, 403) . Quoting Witkin, California Procedure, vol. 3, Pleading, § 913 (3d ed. 1985), the court said that laches consists of unreasonable delay that result in some prejudice to the defendant; delay alone, apart from the statute of limitations, is not a bar. If the complaint merely discloses the lapse of a long period of time without affirmatively showing or necessarily implying any injury to the defendant from the delay, it does not show laches on its face, and a demurrer should not be sustained. Prejudice may then be pleaded in the answer and the issue will be determined at the trial (211 Cal. App. 3d 397, 403) . The court pointed out that the complaint adequately pleaded justification for the delay based on plaintiff's belief that the county intended to comply with the settlement agreement, and the court could not say at this stage of the proceedings that, as a matter of law, such belief was unreasonable or that the delay in filing resulted in undeniable prejudice to the county (211 Cal. App. 3d 397, 403) .

The facts and procedural background of Duskin v. San Francisco Redevelopment Agency (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 769, 107 Cal. Rptr. 667 , are discussed in § 71.33[3][b]. In reversing the judgment, the court of appeal, quoting from Conti v. Board of Civil Serv. Comm'rs (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 351, 82 Cal. Rptr. 337, 461 P.2d 617 , discussed under § 71.42[4][a], said that the court has consistently rejected the concept that lapse of time less than the period of limitation in itself constitutes a defense. The defense of laches requires unreasonable delay plus either acquiescence in the act about which plaintiff complains or prejudice to the defendant resulting from the delay (31 Cal. App. 3d 769, 774) . The court acknowledged the "well established" rule that the defense of laches may be raised by demurrer if the complaint shows on its face unreasonable delay, plus prejudice or acquiescence, and that only then is the burden of establishing an excuse shifted to the plaintiff (31 Cal. App. 3d 769, 744) . The Court concluded that no prejudice appeared from the face of the complaint and that the agency had not seen fit to augment its demurrer with an affidavit setting forth any facts pertaining to prejudice, although its brief on appeal alluded to the existence of certain facts that, if properly pleaded by a verified answer or affidavit supporting a motion for summary judgment, would have enabled the court to resolve the matter (31 Cal. App. 3d 769, 774-775) . Under these circumstances, said the court, it was clear that laches had not been established on the face of the complaint and could not have been a ground on which the court sustained the general demurrer of the Agency (31 Cal. App. 3d 769, 775) .

To the extent the court in the above-quoted statement implied that an affidavit might have been used in support of the demurrer to set forth facts establishing prejudice, it must be kept in mind that any such facts submitted, in the form of an affidavit or otherwise, must be such as to be subject to judicial notice [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.30(a), 430.70; Evid. Code §§ 451, 452] and, in the case of permissive judicial notice [Evid. Code § 452], a proper request that the court take judicial notice of the matter must have been made [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.70; Evid. Code § 453; see also § 71.21[2]]. The rule is well established that, except for judicially noticed matter, a demurrer can neither allege facts that, if true, would disclose a defect in the challenged pleading, nor bring in extrinsic evidence that would disclose such a defect [see § 71.30]. The proper way to secure pretrial review of a defense to the action that does not appear from the face of the complaint is by motion for summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c], as suggested by the court, or by pleading the defense in the answer as an affirmative defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)] and then moving for a separate trial of this issue [Code Civ. Proc. § 597], subject to the exception noted above that if the defense can be established by matter subject to judicial notice the complaint is subject to demurrer.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Delay Without Acquiescence or Prejudice

Conti v. Board of Civil Serv. Comm'rs (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 351, 82 Cal. Rptr. 337, 461 P.2d 617 , did not involve a demurrer but did involve the defense of laches. The Court said that it had consistently rejected the concept that lapse of time less than the period of limitation in itself constitutes a defense (1 Cal. 3d 351, 359) . The defense of laches requires unreasonable delay plus either acquiescence in the act about which plaintiff complains or prejudice to the defendant resulting from the delay (1 Cal. 3d 351, 359) . The Court also stated that laches may be raised by demurrer, but only if the complaint shows on its face unreasonable delay plus prejudice or acquiescence and that, in the absence of prejudice or acquiescence, delay does not establish a defense and petitioner therefore did not need to plead excuse or explanation (1 Cal. 3d 351, 362) . The Court overruled Wolstenholme v. Oakland (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 48, 4 Cal. Rptr. 153, 351 P.2d 321 , and disapproved its progeny and other court of appeal cases to the extent they held or implied that, in an action or proceeding seeking reinstatement to public employment, prejudice is presumed from undue delay (1 Cal. 3d 351, 362) .

Jones v. H.F. Ahmanson & Co. (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 93, 81 Cal. Rptr. 592, 460 P.2d 464 , was an action for damages and other relief by a minority stockholder against a holding company formed by the defendant majority stockholders and officers based on alleged breaches of the fiduciary duty. Certain of defendants' general and special demurrers were sustained without leave to amend. Plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal, and defendants filed a protective cross appeal. The Supreme Court affirmed the trial court order overruling the demurrer. After reviewing the sequence of events, the Court said the delay in initiating the action was not so long as to be unreasonable and to constitute laches as a matter of law, and that it is well established that a mere lapse of time without a showing of prejudice to the defendant does not constitute laches (1 Cal. 3d 93, 120) . Since prejudice to the defendants did not appear from the complaint and stipulated facts, the order of the trial court overruling the demurrer on that ground was proper (1 Cal. 3d 93, 120) .

Maguire v. Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc'y (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 719, 146 P.2d 673 , involved consolidated actions brought after 1940 for declaratory relief by successors in interest to alleged members of and depositors in an incorporated savings and loan society. On their demurrer, defendants argued that since the rights sought to be declared had their origin in a contract entered into in 1862 and a determination of those rights required an inquiry into transactions commencing in 1859, plaintiffs' claims were stale and hence barred (23 Cal. 2d 719, 735-736) . Demurrers to the amended complaints were sustained without leave to amend on the ground that no cause of action was stated and that the relief sought was barred by the statute of limitations and by laches. The Supreme Court reversed the judgments. The Court explained that the policy of this state with respect to lapse of time is embodied in statutes applicable to both legal and equitable actions, and mere lapse of time, other than that prescribed by such statutes, does not bar relief (23 Cal. 2d 719, 736) . The defense of stale claims is a particular application of the doctrine of laches and is based on estoppel (23 Cal. 2d 719, 736) . When, for example, an action is commenced many years after its accrual, the death of witnesses or destruction of evidence, presumed as well as actual, may prejudice the defendant and justify denial of relief because of staleness of the claim (23 Cal. 2d 719, 736) ; even the authorities that refer to staleness of claims as a distinct concept recognize that lapse of time is of no consequence in the absence of a showing of any act by the defendant in denial of the plaintiff's rights that would have required affirmative action by the plaintiff (23 Cal. 2d 719, 736) . The Court concluded that it did not appear from the face of the complaint that the cause of action alleged in either the first or second count was barred by the statute of limitations or by laches and reversed the judgments (23 Cal. 2d 719, 737) .

Warren v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 24, 96 Cal. Rptr. 317 , was an action by the trustees of a dissolved corporation against the railroad and others arising out of two deeds executed by the dissolved corporation in 1888 granting defendant railroad's predecessor in interest either easements or property in fee, or both, for railroad purposes only. The third amended complaint alleged that portions of the easements or property were being used for nonrailway purposes and sought a judgment quieting title and incidental injunctive relief. The trial court sustained without leave to amend the general demurrers to the complaint. In reversing the judgments of dismissal on the grounds the trial court erred sustaining the general demurrers, and that the complaint stated a cause of action for relief, the court of appeal, in response to defendants' contention that the demurrers were properly sustained because the complaint showed on its face that relief was barred by laches, said that even if it be assumed that laches may be asserted as a defense to an action for quiet title pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 738, a demurrer on the basis of laches cannot be sustained absent a showing on the face of the complaint of an unexplained, unreasonable delay and some prejudicial effect from that delay, and pointed out that no such facts were apparent from the face of the third amended and supplemental complaint (19 Cal. App. 3d 24, 35-36) .

In Zakaessian v. Zakaessian (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 721, 161 P.2d 677 , the court of appeal concluded that laches did not apply unless the delay resulted in some prejudice to defendants (70 Cal. App. 2d 721, 726) . The court noted that the only possible prejudice to defendants that appeared from the face of the complaint, other than mere lapse of time, was the death of a witness (70 Cal. App. 2d 721 , 726). The court held, however, that although the death of a material witness is a factor to be considered in determining whether laches is present, it is not sufficient in itself to establish as a matter of law that the action is barred by laches and, on this ground, reversed the judgment (70 Cal. App. 2d 721, 726-728) .

See also Gerhard v. Stephens (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 864, 904, 69 Cal. Rptr. 612, 442 P.2d 692 (defendant asserting laches on plaintiff's part must show that plaintiff has acquiesced in defendant's wrongful acts and has unduly delayed seeking equitable relief to the prejudice of defendant; mere lapse of time, other than that prescribed by statutes of limitations, does not bar relief); Laing v. Laubach (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 511, 519, 43 Cal. Rptr. 537 (delay induced by defendant); South v. Wishard (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 276, 288-289, 303 P.2d 805 (delay induced by defendant's fraud).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.43

§ 71.43 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Demurrer Supplies Missing Allegation

[1] FORM Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Demurrer Supplies Missing Allegation

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint (see § 71.30).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE THE DEMURRER SUPPLIES THE ALLEGATION THAT DEFENDANT COMPLAINS IS MISSING.

Missing Allegation Supplied by Demurrer. The rule is well settled that a complaint that lacks the averment of a fact essential to a cause of action may be so aided by the averment of that fact in the answer as to uphold a judgment thereon (Mohlmann v. City of Burbank (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 1037, 1041 n.2, 225 Cal. Rptr. 109).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint when the demurrer supplies information that the demurring party asserts is missing.

These points and authorities should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a demurrer to a complaint made on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see § 71.30]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

For a form of memorandum in opposition to motion for judgment on the pleadings, for use when an answer supplies facts omitted from a complaint, see § 71.156.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should identify the fact stated in the demurrer that supplies the missing material allegation in the complaint.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.30[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Missing Allegation Supplied by Demurrer

In Mohlmann v. City of Burbank (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 1037 , 225 Cal. Rptr. 109 , the plaintiff appealed from a dismissal after a demurrer to his complaint was sustained. The complaint alleged false arrest and imprisonment, and intentional and negligent infliction of emotional distress arising out of plaintiff's arrest by the city and police department defendants. In their demurrer, the defendants correctly pointed out that on the face of the complaint, the claim was presented more than 100 days after the plaintiff's arrest.

The court of appeal reversed the dismissal. The court observed that the demurrer had attached to it copies of the claim filed by the plaintiff that stated the criminal charge filed against the plaintiff following his arrest and the date of the dismissal of the charge. The court observed that a statute existing at the time of plaintiff's arrest postponed both the filing of the lawsuit and the date for filing a claim against the employing government entity. The court found that the claim and the correspondence attendant to it did not appear to be matters properly the subject of judicial notice and defendants' offering "evidence" of plaintiff's claim was improper. However, stated the court, the defendants cannot complain when their responsive pleading aids the plaintiff by plugging gaps in his complaint. The rule is well settled that a complaint that lacks the averment of a fact essential to a cause of action may be so aided by the averment of that fact in the answer as to uphold a judgment on it. The court stated that there is no reason why an admission of "fact" in a demurrer may not similarly be employed (179 Cal. App. 3d 1037, 1041 n.2). The speaking demurrer offered "evidence" not before the court, in the complaint or otherwise, that supplemented the complaint and filled the holes. But for that fact, concluded The Court, a demurrer would have been properly sustained. As so aided, however, the complaint was not deficient and the demurrer was erroneously sustained (179 Cal. App. 3d 1037, 1045) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.44

§ 71.44 Opposing General Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Prior Demurrer to Same Cause of Action Overruled

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint (see § 71.30).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE THE DEMURRER CHALLENGES THE SAME CAUSE OF ACTION AS TO WHICH A PREVIOUS DEMURRER WAS OVERRULED.

Previous Demurrer to Same Cause of Action Was Overruled. Where a prior demurrer was sustained as to some causes of action but overruled as to others, a defendant may not demur again on the same grounds to those portions of an amended pleading as to which the prior demurrer was overruled (Bennett v. Suncloud (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 91, 96-97, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 80).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint when the demurrer challenges a cause of action as to which a demurrer was previously overruled.

These points and authorities should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a demurrer to a complaint made on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see § 71.30]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should identify the fact stated in the demurrer that supplies the missing material allegation in the complaint.

For a memorandum opposing a demurrer on the ground that a demurrer to the same cause of action was previously overruled, see § 71.29A.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Previous Demurrer to Same Cause of Action Was Overruled

In Bennett v. Suncloud (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 91, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 80 , an attorney acting on his own behalf filed a complaint for negligence, property damage, and fraud, alleging that he was injured by a defective pair of one defendant's sunglasses purchased at another defendant's store. The complaint further stated that defendants represented that the sunglasses were unbreakable or break resistant, safe, and otherwise suitable and specifically designed for skiing, and that in reliance on that representation, appellant purchased the product and used it while skiing. The manufacturer of the sunglasses demurred on the grounds that the causes of action were barred by the one-year statute of limitations (see Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3)), and that the complaint failed to plead the fraud cause of action with sufficient specificity. The trial court sustained the demurrer to all three causes of action with 30 days leave to amend, and specifically stated that to the extent the attorney claimed his inability to file the action prevented the statute of limitations from running, those facts had to be alleged in the complaint. As to the fraud cause of action, the court concluded more specificity was required. The attorney filed a first amended complaint alleging causes of action for breach of express warranty, breach of implied warranty, products liability, false advertising, unfair competition, intentional infliction of emotional distress, negligent infliction of emotional distress, negligence per se, and negligence. The amended complaint alleged that while shopping at the defendant store, he was directed to the sunglasses as suitable for ski eyewear. Concerning the sunglasses manufacturer, the complaint alleged on "information and belief" that it "expressly and implicitly stated, described, conveyed, indicated, affirmed, reassured, reiterated, promised, guaranteed, represented, and warranted" that the subject sunglasses "were and are designed, made, manufactured, fabricated, assembled, produced, suitable, safe, and intended for use as snow-skiing eyewear, unbreakable, nonbreakable, break resistant, flexible, and/or safe for snow-skiing activities and otherwise suitable and fit for the particular uses and purposes intended and/or reasonably foreseeable." He alleged that he appeared at the west district courthouse to file his original complaint, but that the courthouse, and "upon information and belief, all Superior Courts in Los Angeles County within which Plaintiff's complaint was permitted and/or required to be filed," were closed. Attached to the complaint was a media advisory, which stated that due to damage resulting from the Northridge earthquake, specified court facilities in the Los Angeles Superior Court would be closed for business on the specified date. The manufacturer demurred to the first amended complaint on both statute of limitations and failure to state cause of action grounds based on insufficient specificity as to its conduct as opposed to the store's, and the demurrer was sustained by the trial court pursuant to the moving papers, with leave to amend. The attorney filed a second amended complaint, which essentially repeated the allegations and claims of the first amended complaint with some minor elaboration. The manufacturer demurred, again on statute of limitations and failure to state a cause of action grounds. The trial court found that the statute of limitation was tolled for one day by the earthquake, so that the filing was timely, but sustained the demurrer to the causes of action for false advertising/unfair competition, fraud, intentional infliction of emotional distress, and negligence per se with 30 days leave to amend. The attorney filed the third amended complaint, making the same allegations with some slight modification to the false advertising/unfair competition, fraud, and negligence per se causes of action, and withdrew the cause of action for intentional infliction of emotional distress. The manufacturer demurred to the entire complaint on the same grounds as in its three previous demurrers, and the trial court sustained the demurrer to all causes of action, without leave to amend, on the grounds of the bar of the statute of limitations and that plaintiff could not cure the pleading defects. The attorney filed a motion for reconsideration, which was denied.

The Court of Appeal affirmed. The order concerning the second amended complaint sustained the demurrer to the false advertising/unfair competition, fraud, intentional infliction of emotional distress, and negligence per se causes of action.

After the specified causes of action were amended, the manufacturer was free to demur to those causes of action on any ground. The order concerning the statute of limitations and the failure of the appellant to cure the previously noted pleading defects was completely appropriate as it pertained to those causes of action. On the other hand, when the trial court overruled the demurrer to causes of action for breach of express warranty, breach of implied warranty, products liability, negligent infliction of emotional distress, and negligence, the trial court was foreclosed from rendering a new determination on the viability of those claims unless some new facts or circumstances were brought to his attention. Thus, the decision to render judgment on the entire complaint and not just the three amended causes of action was improper (56 Cal. App. 4th 91, 96-97) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
1. General Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities §§ 71.45-71.59

[Reserved]

§§ 71.45[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.60

§ 71.60 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Court Lacks Jurisdiction of Subject of Cause of Action Alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(a)]--Jurisdiction of Action Is in Probate Court

[1] FORM Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Court Lacks Jurisdiction of Subject of Cause of Action Alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(a)]--Jurisdiction of Action Is in Probate Court

[Caption. See § 71.20.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE SUSTAINED BECAUSE JURISDICTION OVER THE SUBJECT MATTER OF THE CAUSE(S) Of action ALLEGED IS EXCLUSIVELY VESTED IN THE SUPERIOR COURT SITTING IN PROBATE.

A. Lack of Jurisdiction Over Subject Matter Is Ground for Demurrer. The party against whom a complaint has been filed may object to it by demurrer on the ground the court has no jurisdiction of the subject of the cause of action alleged when the ground of the objection appears from the face of the complaint [or from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice] (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(a), 430.30(a)).

B. Jurisdiction Over Property of Decedent's Estate and Those Claiming Under It Rests Exclusively in Probate Court. The Probate Code provides one comprehensive, exclusive method for administration on the estates of decedents. The proceeding is in rem and the jurisdiction of the court is complete over the property of the estate and over all persons claiming interests therein under the decedent, as to all matters involved in a complete and effective administration (Spencer v. Crocker First Nat. Bank (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 397, 401, 194 P.2d 775 ; see Prob. Code §§ 800, 7050(b)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a special demurrer to a complaint when it appears on the face of the complaint or from matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice that the action or proceeding is within the exclusive jurisdiction of the superior court sitting in probate.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show, from the face of the complaint or by facts of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice, specifically how the subject matter of the action is one that is reserved to the superior court sitting in probate. For example, if the complaint is labeled as an action for money had and received and fraud, counsel may point out that the action is, in its essence, really a controversy between the executor and the beneficiaries relating to the conduct of the executor and its administration of the estate [see Spencer v. Crocker First Nat. Bank (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 397, 401 , 194 P.2d 775 , discussed under § 71.60[3][a]].

[b] Nature of Probate Jurisdiction

The jurisdiction of the courts is created by the California Constitution [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10]. The superior courts have original jurisdiction of all civil actions and special proceedings of a civil nature, other than those enumerated for other courts [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10]. The superior court has jurisdiction of proceedings under the Probate Code concerning the administration of the decedent's estate [Prob. Code § 7050]. According to the Law Revision Commission, the reference to the superior court in former Section 7050(a) (now simply Section 7050) means the department or judge of the court that deals with probate matters [see Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to 1990 enactment of Prob. Code § 7050]. Prob. Code § 800 further maintains the distinction by referring to the "court in proceedings under this code." Hence, §§ 800 and 7050 preserve the division among different departments of the superior court [see Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to 1990 enactment of Prob. Code § 7050 (former Section 7050(b) subsequently moved to become Prob. Code § 800)].

The Probate Code provides in the probate court one comprehensive, exclusive method for administration on the estates of decedents. The proceeding is in rem and the jurisdiction of The Court is complete over the property of the estate and over all persons claiming interests therein under the decedent, as to all matters involved in a complete and effective administration. Thus, actions within the probate court's jurisdiction that are brought in other courts, or in the superior court not sitting in probate, are subject to general demurrer [see Spencer v. Crocker First Nat. Bank (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 397, 194 P.2d 775 , discussed under § 71.61[3][a]].

For further discussion of the scope and nature of probate jurisdiction, see California Probate Practice, Chapter 3.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.60

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Jurisdiction Over Property of Decedent's Estate and Those Claiming Under It Rests Exclusively in Probate Court

In Spencer v. Crocker First Nat. Bank (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 397, 194 P.2d 775 , the plaintiffs, who were beneficiaries under a will, filed a second amended complaint alleging causes of action for money had and received and fraud against the defendant bank. The complaint alleged that the bank, the executor of the decedent's estate, fraudulently procured the plaintiffs to release portions of their shares in the estate. The defendant demurred, both specially and generally, and the trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court stated that although the plaintiffs contended that their action was one against the defendant bank in its individual capacity for fraud, their cause of action was actually based on the fact that they were beneficiaries under the will; that the defendant, as executor, fraudulently induced them to act in order that the defendant might settle a contest of the will; and that the defendant had improperly failed to pay them the share of the estate. The action was really a controversy between the executor and the beneficiaries relating to the conduct of the executor and its administration of the estate. The court quoted Colden v. Costello (1942) 50 Cal. App. 2d 363, 370, 122 P.2d 959 , stating that the Probate Code provides one comprehensive, exclusive method for administration on the estates of decedents. The proceeding is in rem and the jurisdiction of the court is complete over the property of the estate and over all persons claiming interests in the property under the decedent, as to all matters involved in a complete and effective administration (86 Cal. App. 2d 397, 401) . The court held that because the sole jurisdiction of the subject matter and the parties is in the probate court, the demurrer to the second amended complaint was properly sustained without leave to amend (86 Cal. App. 2d 397, 406) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.61

§ 71.61 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Court Lacks Jurisdiction of Subject of Cause of Action Alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(a)]--Jurisdiction of Action Exclusively in Federal Court

[1] FORM Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Court Lacks Jurisdiction of Subject of Cause of Action Alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(a)]--Jurisdiction of Action Exclusively in Federal Court

[Caption. See § 71.20.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE SUSTAINED BECAUSE JURISDICTION OVER THE SUBJECT MATTER OF THE CAUSE(S) OF ACTION ALLEGED IS EXCLUSIVELY VESTED IN THE FEDERAL COURTS.

A. Lack of Jurisdiction Over Subject Matter Based on Preemption by Federal Law Is Ground for Demurrer. The party against whom a complaint has been filed may object to it by demurrer on the ground the court has no jurisdiction of the subject of the cause of action alleged when the ground of objection appears from the face of the complaint [or from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice] (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(a), 430.30(a)). A demurrer is an appropriate vehicle to secure a dismissal of a state law action based on federal law preemption (Ball v. GTE Mobilnet of California (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 529, 535, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 801).

B. Exclusive Federal Jurisdiction. Congress may so completely preempt a particular area, that any civil complaint raising this select group of claims is necessarily federal in character and exclusive jurisdiction is vested in the federal courts (see Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Taylor (1987) 481 U.S. 58, 63, 107 S. Ct. 1542, 95 L. Ed. 2d 55 ; The Moses Taylor v. Wilson Hammons (1867) 4 Wall. 411, 429, 18 L. Ed.2d 397).

_____ [Set forth points and authorities for federal preemption of the cause (s) of action brought by plaintiff].
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a special demurrer to a complaint filed in a superior court when it appears on the face of the complaint or from matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice that the action or proceeding is preempted by federal law.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show, from the face of the complaint or by facts of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice, specifically how jurisdiction of the subject matter of the action has been exclusively vested in the federal courts.

[b] Federal Preemption

Whether or not federal law has completely preempted state law depends on whether the preemptive force of the federal statute is so powerful as to entirely displace any state cause of action. If so, then any such suit is purely a creature of federal law, despite the fact that state law would provide a cause of action in the absence of the federal statute [see Caterpillar Inc. v. Williams (1987) 482 U.S. 386, 393-394, 393 n.8, 107 S. Ct. 2425, 96 L. Ed. 2d 318 ; Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Taylor (1987) 481 U.S. 58, 63, 107 S. Ct. 1542, 95 L. Ed. 2d 55 ; Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 606, 619-621, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 765 (Home Owners' Loan Act [42 U.S.C. § 1461 et seq.] preempted state claims under California's Civ. Code § 2948.5 alleging unlawful interest on home loans)].

Complete preemption is the exception rather than the rule, and has been found in a limited number of cases [see Caterpillar Inc. v. Williams (1987) 482 U.S. 386, 393-394, 393 n.8, 107 S. Ct. 2425, 96 L. Ed. 2d 318] . The following is a partial list of areas in which complete preemption exists:

- Actions by and against foreign ambassadors [28 U.S.C. § 1251].
- Admiralty, maritime, and prize cases [28 U.S.C. § 1333].
- Bankruptcy proceedings [28 U.S.C. § 1334].
- Cases arising under federal patent laws [28 U.S.C. § 1338].
- Actions against foreign consuls [28 U.S.C. § 1351].
- Actions under Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 [Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Taylor (1987) 481 U.S. 58, 67, 107 S. Ct. 1542, 95 L. Ed. 2d 55 ; see 29 U.S.C. § 1001; see also § 71.61[3][b] and Ch. 100, Employer and Employee: Wrongful Termination and Discipline].
- Actions for right of possession to Indian tribal lands [Oneida Indian Nation v. County of Oneida (1974) 414 U.S. 661, 675, 94 S. Ct. 772, 39 L. Ed. 2d 73] .

- Actions to enforce collective bargaining contract under § 301 of Labor Management Relations Act [Avco Corp. v. Aero Lodge, I.A.M. & A.W. (1968) 390 U.S. 557, 559-561, 88 S. Ct.1235, 20 L. Ed. 2d 126 ; see 29 U.S.C. § 185(a); see also Ch. 100, Employer and Employee: Wrongful Termination and Discipline].

The question is whether a state-law claim necessarily raises a stated federal issue, actually disputed and substantial, which a federal forum may entertain without disturbing any congressionally approved balance of federal and state judicial responsibilities [Grable & Sons Metal Products, Inc. v. Darue Engineering & Mfg. (2005) 545 U.S. 308, 314, 125 S. Ct. 2363, 162 L. Ed. 2d 257] . For example, exclusive federal jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1338 is proper only when a well-pleaded complaint establishes either that federal patent law creates the cause of action or that the plaintiff's right to relief necessarily depends on resolution of a substantial question of federal patent law, in that patent law is a necessary element of one of the well-pleaded claims [Christianson v. Colt Industries Operating Corp. (1988) 486 U.S. 800, 809, 108 S. Ct. 2166, 100 L. Ed. 2d 811] . Thus, federal jurisdiction over a legal malpractice action based on patent proceedings is exclusive when the nature and extent of the patent rights present a substantial issue of federal patent law that is properly adjudicated in federal court [Landmark Screens, LLC v. Morgan, Lewis & Bockius, LLP (2010) 183 Cal. App. 4th 238, 244-251, 107 Cal. Rptr. 3d 373] .

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.60.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Lack of Jurisdiction Over Subject Matter Based on Preemption by Federal Law Is Ground for Demurrer

In Ball v. GTE Mobilnet of California (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 529, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 801 , plaintiffs sued every major provider and owner of cellular phone services and related wireless personal communication services in California. Basically, plaintiffs objected to having to pay for noncommunication time when using these services. The grounds for their objection were based on California's law on unfair and unlawful business practices (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq.). The trial court sustained defendants' demurrer without leave to amend on the ground that the Federal Communications Act § 332(c)(3)(A) (42 U.S.C. § 332(c)(3)(A)) preempted all state regulatory authority over wireless service rates. Judgment of dismissal was entered and plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. The court held that under its standard of review for a demurrer sustained without leave to amend, there was a reasonable possibility that plaintiffs could allege state law causes of action (81 Cal. App. 4th 529, 544) . Although the court reached this conclusion, the court also noted that a demurrer is an appropriate vehicle to secure a dismissal of a state law action based on federal law preemption (81 Cal. App. 4th 529, 535) .

[b] Exclusive Federal Jurisdiction

Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Taylor (1987) 481 U.S. 58, 63, 107 S. Ct. 1542, 95 L. Ed. 2d 55 , involved an action in which the defendant sought removal to federal district court based on preemption of the plaintiff's state court claim by federal law. The employee was involved in a job-related automobile accident and sustained injury. He filed a worker's compensation claim for his injury and later filed suit in Michigan state court against the employer and the employer's worker's compensation insurance carrier, praying for judgment for compensatory damages for money contractually owed plaintiff, compensation for mental anguish caused by breach of the contract, and reimplementation of benefits. The plaintiff also asserted claims for wrongful termination of his employment and retaliation for the workers' compensation claim. The defendants removed the suit to federal court alleging federal question jurisdiction over the disability benefits claim by virtue of ERISA (29 U.S.C. § 1001 et seq.), and pendent jurisdiction over the remaining claims. The U.S. district court found the case properly removable and granted summary judgment on the merits. The U.S. court of appeals reversed on the ground the U.S. district court lacked removal jurisdiction and the U.S. Supreme Court granted certiorari.

The U.S. Supreme Court reversed the judgment of the court of appeals. The Court reviewed the "well-pleaded complaint rule," which provides that a cause of action arises under federal law only when the plaintiff's well-pleaded complaint raises issues of federal law. The Court stated that federal preemption is ordinarily a federal defense to the plaintiff's suit. As a defense, it does not appear on the face of a well-pleaded complaint, and therefore, does not authorize removal to the federal court. The Court recharacterized the state law complaint, however, as an action arising under federal law by virtue of the "clearly manifested intent of Congress" (481 U.S. 58, 67) .

Although in Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., preemption did not appear on the face of the complaint and apparently was not obvious at the time the suit was filed, the Supreme Court cited a corollary to the well-pleaded complaint rule, that states that Congress may so completely preempt a particular area, that any civil complaint raising this select group of claims is necessarily federal in character (481 U.S. 58, 63) .

The Moses Taylor v. Wilson Hammons (1867) 4 Wall. 411, 429, 18 L. Ed. 2d 397 , was an action brought by a steerage passenger against owners of a steamship for breach of a contract for passage on the vessel from New York to San Francisco. The action was brought in a California court under a state statute relating to actions against steamers, vessels, and boats. The defendants objected to jurisdiction, insisting that the cause of action was one over which the courts of admiralty had exclusive jurisdiction, and also traversed the matters alleged as breaches of contract. The trial court overruled the objection to jurisdiction and appeals were made to the county court, which was the highest court of jurisdiction based on the amount in controversy. The objection to jurisdiction was made de novo, and again overruled. The case was then brought to the U.S. Supreme Court by a writ of error.

The U.S. Supreme Court reversed the judgment of the county court and remanded the cause, with directions to dismiss th The Moses Taylor v. Wilson Hammons (1867) 4 Wall. 411, 429, 18 L. Ed. 2d 397 action for want of jurisdiction. The Court cited the declaration of Congress that in certain cases, from their commencement, jurisdiction in the federal courts is exclusive, and that civil causes of the admiralty and maritime jurisdiction, were among such cases. Congress's declaration recognized and was framed on the theory that in all cases to which the judicial power of the United States extends, Congress may rightfully vest exclusive jurisdiction in the federal courts (4 Wall. 411, 429) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Exclusive Federal Jurisdiction

In Landmark Screens, LLC v. Morgan, Lewis & Bockius, LLP (2010) 183 Cal. App. 4th 238, 107 Cal. Rptr. 3d 373 , a former client sued an attorney and his law firm for legal malpractice in patent prosecution. The client alleged that defendants engaged in a deceptive course of action by actively concealing from the client the negligent filing of a divisional application. The trial court dismissed the action after sustaining defendants' demurrer for lack of subject matter jurisdiction based on exclusive federal jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1338 (183 Cal. App. 4th 238, 240-243). The Court of Appeal affirmed, concluding that the action should have been adjudicated in federal court because of the substantial patent questions presented in the elements of causation and damages. The showing required by the client went beyond the question of whether defendants' alleged concealment and deception amounted to malpractice. To recover, the client needed to prove that but for defendants' failure to disclose, or their intentional concealment of, the attorney's negligence in filing the application, it would not have lost valuable and pioneering patent rights. The client's success would have derived from demonstrating that the concealment closed the door on its opportunity to pursue patent rights for its invention. The nature and extent of those rights presented a substantial issue of federal patent law that was properly adjudicated in federal court (183 Cal. App. 4th 238, 244-251).

In McCormick v. Travelers Ins. Co. (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 404, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258 , the plaintiff, an insured homeowner, brought an action against a private insurer that had insured plaintiffs against flood loss under a standard flood insurance policy issued as part of the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP) [42 U.S.C. § 4001 et seq.], alleging breach of the insurance contract, bad faith, and fraud. The court held that the federal courts have exclusive jurisdiction over all of the claims asserted in the McCormicks' first amended complaint. While the insurer in this action is a private entity, in 1983, the Federal Emergency Management Administration (FEMA) exercised its regulatory authority by creating the Write Your Own (WYO) program to assist it in the marketing and administration of flood insurance through the "facilities of the Federal Government." While flood insurance can be issued either by FEMA or by private WYO insurers, in either case, FEMA fixes the terms and conditions of the policies, and the standard language to be included in all federal flood insurance policies is set out verbatim in the Code of Federal Regulations, and no provision of the policy may be altered, varied, or waived other than by the express written consent of the Federal Insurance Administrator (86 Cal. App. 4th 404, 409-410) . This exclusive jurisdiction encompasses all claims regardless of whether they plead contract, tort, or state statutory remedies and damages, and regardless of whether the named defendant is the FEMA or a WYO insurer (86 Cal. App. 4th 404, 420) .

In Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 606, 619-621, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 765 , two class actions were brought against Washington Mutual Bank alleging that the Bank's practice of charging pre-closing interest on home loans violated California law [Civ. Code § 2948.5]. The court held that the Home Owners' Loan Act [42 U.S.C. § 1461 et seq.] preempted these state claims even though there was no federal statute or regulation directly on point.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.62

§ 71.62 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Does Not Have Legal Capacity to Sue [The Moses Taylor v. Wilson Hammons (1867) 4 Wall. 411, 429, 18 L. Ed. 2d 397 4 Wall. 411, 429) McCormick v. TravelerIns. Co. (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 404, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258 42 U.S.C. § 4001 et seq. 86 Cal. App. 4th 404, 409-410) 86 Cal. App. 4th 404, 420) Washington Mutual Bank v. Superior Court (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 606, 619-621, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 765 Civ. Code § 2948.5 42 U.S.C. § 1461 et seq.de Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)]--Failure to Allege Compliance With Fictitious Business Name Statutes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17918]

[1] FORM Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Does Not Have Legal Capacity to Sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)]--Failure to Allege Compliance With Fictitious Business Name Statutes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17918]

[Caption. See § 71.20.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT ON OR ON ACCOUNT OF A _____ [CONTRACT MADE or TRANSACTION HAD] IN A FICTITIOUS BUSINESS NAME ON THE GROUND OF LACK OF LEGAL CAPACITY TO SUE SHOULD BE SUSTAINED BECAUSE PLAINTIFF HAS FAILED TO ALLEGE COMPLIANCE WITH THE FILING AND PUBLISHING REQUIREMENTS OF THE FICTITIOUS BUSINESS NAME STATUTES.

A. Objection by Demurrer. The party against whom a complaint has been filed may object to it by demurrer on the ground that plaintiff does not have legal capacity to sue when the ground of objection appears from the face of the complaint [or from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice] (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(b), 430.30(a)).

B. Maintenance of Action Prohibited. A plaintiff transacting business under a fictitious business name is prohibited from maintaining any action on, or on account of, any contract made, or transaction had, in the fictitious business name until the fictitious business name statutes requiring the filing and publishing of the fictitious business name statement have been complied with (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17918).

C. Failure to Allege Compliance. A demurrer for lack of legal capacity to sues should be sustained when the complaint shows on its face that plaintiff is suing on or on account of a contract made, or transaction had, in the fictitious business name but is silent as to whether or not plaintiff has complied with the filing and publication requirements of the fictitious business name statute (Pleaters & Stitchers Ass'n v. Davis (1934) 140 Cal. App. 403, 406, 35 P.2d 401).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a demurrer to a complaint on or on account of a contract made or transaction had by plaintiff in a fictitious business name when the complaint fails to allege that plaintiff has complied with the filing and publishing requirements of the fictitious business name statutes [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17918].

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show how the contract or transaction that plaintiff is suing on was in a fictitious business name as that term is defined by statute [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900], and that the complaint fails to allege plaintiff's compliance with the fictitious business name statute; and argue that the court should sustain the demurrer on the ground of the plaintiff's noncompliance.

[b] Fictitious Business Name

In determining whether or not to demur on this ground, defendant will first want to be sure that plaintiff's name is in fact a fictitious business name. That term is defined in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900, with respect to individuals, partnerships and other associations, and corporations, as being:

1. In the case of an individual, a name that does not include the surname of the individual or a name that suggests the existence of additional owners [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900(b)(1)].

2. In the case of a partnership or other association of persons, other than (1) a limited partnership that has filed a certificate of limited partnership with the Secretary of State pursuant to Corp. Code § 15621, or 15902.01, (2) a foreign limited partnership that has filed an application for registration with the Secretary of State pursuant to Corp. Code § 15692 or 15692.02, (3) a registered limited liability partnership that has filed a registration pursuant to Corp. Code § 15049 or 16953, or (4) a foreign limited liability partnership that has filed an application for registration pursuant to Corp. Code § 15055 or 16959, a name that does not include the surname of each general partner or a name that suggests the existence of additional owners Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900(b)(2)].

3. In the case of a corporation, any name other than the corporate name stated in its articles of incorporation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900(b)(3)].

4. In the case of a limited partnership that has filed a certificate of limited partnership with the Secretary of State pursuant to Corp. Code § 15621 or 15902.01, and in the case of a foreign limited partnership that has filed an application for registration with the Secretary of State pursuant to Corp. Code § 15692 or 15902.02, any name other than the name of the limited partnership as on file with the Secretary of State [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900(b)(4)].

5. In the case of a limited liability company, any name other than the name stated in its articles of organization and in the case of a foreign limited liability company which has filed an application for registration with the Secretary of State pursuant to Corp. Code § 17451, any name other than the name of the company as on file with the Secretary of State [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900(b)(5)].

A name that suggests the existence of additional owners within the meaning of the above definitions is defined as one that includes such words as "Company," "& Company," "& Son," "& Sons," "& Associates," "Brothers," and the like, but not words that merely describe the business being conducted [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900(c)].

Moreover, the fictitious business name requirements do not apply to nonprofit corporations or associations, including, without limitation, organizations such as churches, labor unions, fraternal and charitable organizations, nonprofit hospitals, and similar organizations [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17911; see § 71.75].

Limited liability partnerships (LLPs) also appear not to be subject to the fictitious business name statutes. When this form of business was authorized in 1995 Stats., ch. 679, Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900(a)(2) [now see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900(b)(2)] was amended to exclude them from the provision defining fictitious business names of partnerships or other associations of persons. However, LLPs were not added to the definition of persons to whom the fictitious business name provisions apply [see Bus. & Prof. § 17902]. Requirements for the names of registered LLPs are established by Corp. Code § 15048, or for LLPs formed after December 31, 1996, and for all LLPs after December 31, 1998, Corp. Code § 16952, and for the names of foreign LLPs by Corp. Code § 15054, or for foreign LLPs formed after December 31, 1996, and for all LLPs after December 31, 1998, Corp. Code § 16959(a)(1) [see Corp. Code § 16111].

[c] Lack of Capacity and Lack of Standing Distinguished

A distinction must be drawn between lack of capacity to sue and lack of standing to sue. Incapacity is merely a legal disability, such as illustrated in the foregoing form or such as infancy or insanity, which deprives a party of the right to come into court; the objection is raised by a special demurrer on the ground plaintiff has no legal capacity to sue. Standing to sue goes to the existence of a cause of action in plaintiff, and the objection that plaintiff lacks standing to sue is raised by a general demurrer, rather than by a special demurrer, to the complaint [see Parker v. Bowron (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 344, 351, 254 P.2d 6 ; Klopstock v. Superior Court (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 13, 19, 108 P.2d 906 ; Oakland Municipal improvement League v. City of Oakland (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 165, 170, 100 Cal. Rptr. 29 ; see also § 71.22].

[d] Objection by Answer

A line of older cases stated by way of dictum that compliance with the provisions of former Civ. Code §§ 2466 and 2468 (repealed; now see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17910 and 17917) need not be affirmatively alleged in a complaint and that the failure to have complied with these sections was a matter of special defense to be raised by answer [see, e.g., Holden v. Mensinger (1917) 175 Cal. 300, 303, 165 P. 950 ; Carlock v. Cagnacci (1891) 88 Cal. 600, 601, 26 P. 597 ; Curtin v. Salomon (1926) 80 Cal. App. 470, 476, 251 P. 237 ; Amundson v. Shafer (1918) 36 Cal. App. 398, 400, 172 P. 173] . The modern view, however, appears to be that if the complaint shows on its face that plaintiff is doing business under a fictitious business name and that the contract or transaction sued on was made or had in the fictitious business name, then failure to allege compliance with the fictitious business name statutes renders the complaint vulnerable to attack by demurrer on the ground plaintiff lacks capacity to sue [see cases cited under § 71.62[3][c]]. However, if a determination of the issue requires a consideration of facts not appearing from the face of the complaint (such as whether plaintiff, a foreign business, regularly transacts business in California under a fictitious business name so as to render it subject to the filing and publishing requirements of the fictitious business name statutes), the objection should probably be taken by answer followed by a motion for separate trial of that defense under Code Civ. Proc. § 597 [see § 71.78[2]].

[e] Waiver of Objection

The objection that the plaintiff lacks legal capacity to sue is waived if not taken by demurrer or answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(a); Tingley v. Times Mirror (1907) 151 Cal. 1, 13, 89 P. 1097] .

[f] Subsequent Compliance

The objection that plaintiff lacks legal capacity to sue because of his, her, or its failure to have filed and published the fictitious business name statement required by Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17910 and 17917 is a plea in abatement. Hence, compliance with the statutes at any time before trial of the issue constitutes sufficient compliance with the statutes [see, e.g., Holden v. Mensinger (1917) 175 Cal. 300, 303, 165 P. 950 (involving predecessor statutes); Goodman v. Anglo-California Trust Co. (1923) 62 Cal. App. 702, 708, 217 P. 1078 (same)]. Moreover, the court may grant plaintiff a continuance, if necessary, to allow time for compliance [see Ch. 10, Abatement and Survival of Actions]. For discussion relating to general demurrer on ground that action is premature, see §§ 71.23 and 71.34.

[g] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of demurrer on the ground of lack of legal capacity to sue, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings, § 206.124, in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[h] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in §§ 71.75 -71.78 may be used to oppose the special demurrer supported by the foregoing memorandum.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.60.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Objection by Demurrer

Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10 provides that the party against whom a complaint has been filed may object to it by demurrer or answer, as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30, on the ground "(b) The person who filed the pleading does not have the legal capacity to sue." Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a) provides that when any ground for objection to a complaint appears on the face thereof, or from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice, the objection on that ground may be taken by a demurrer to the pleading. For a discussion of judicial notice generally, see § 71.21[2].

[b] Maintenance of Action Prohibited

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17918 in relevant part provides that no person transacting business under a fictitious business name contrary to the provisions of "this chapter" (that is, Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900 et seq.), or his or her assignee, may maintain any action on or on account of any contract made, or transaction had, in the fictitious business name in any court of this state until the fictitious business name statement has been executed, filed, and published as required by "this chapter."

[c] Failure to Allege Compliance

Pleaters & Stitchers Asso. v. Davis (1934) 140 Cal. App. 403, 35 P.2d 401 , was a proceeding to confirm an arbitrator's award. Respondent demurred to the petition on the ground, among others, that petitioner lacked legal capacity to sue in that it had failed to allege compliance with the provisions of former Civ. Code § 2468, the predecessor to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17918. The demurrer was sustained without leave to amend and petitioner appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal.

Although it reversed the judgment on the ground the trial court should not have denied leave to amend the petition, the court of appeal, with respect to the fictitious business name statute, stated that the complaint showed on its face that plaintiff was a voluntary association doing business under a fictitious name, but the record was silent as to whether or not petitioner had filed the certificate required under former Civ. Code § 2468 (140 Cal. App. 403, 406). Therefore the lower court properly sustained the demurrer, although it had erred in sustaining the demurrer without leave to amend (140 Cal. App. 403, 406).

Other cases in which the objection that plaintiff did not comply with the fictitious business name statutes include Rivers v. Beadle (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 691, 700-701, 7 Cal. Rptr. 170 (propriety of demurrer assumed); and Spreckels v. Grace Darling Hosp. Assn. (1915) 28 Cal. App. 646, 648, 153 P. 718 (question as to plaintiff's want of legal capacity to sue may be raised by special demurrer on that ground when the fact he or she is doing business under fictitious name within meaning of former Civ. Code §§ 2466 and 2468 appears on face of complaint).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.63

§ 71.63 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Does Not Have Legal Capacity to Sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)]--Guardian or Conservator Suing as Plaintiff for Damages Suffered by Ward or Conservatee

[1] FORM Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Does Not Have Legal Capacity to Sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)]--Guardian or Conservator Suing as Plaintiff for Damages Suffered by Ward or Conservatee

[Caption. See § 71.20.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE SUSTAINED ON THE GROUND OF LACK OF LEGAL CAPACITY TO SUE BECAUSE THE ACTION IS BROUGHT IN THE NAME OF THE _____ [GUARDIAN or CONSERVATOR] RATHER THAN IN THE NAME OF THE _____ [WARD or CONSERVATEE].

A. Objection by Demurrer. [See § 71.62, Paragraph A.]

B. Appearance by Guardian or Conservator. A party who is a minor, an incompetent person, or a person for whom a conservator has been appointed is required to appear in the action either by a guardian or conservator of his or her estate or by a guardian ad litem appointed by the court in which the action or proceeding is pending (Code Civ. Proc. § 372(a)).

C. Guardian or Conservator Lacks Legal Capacity to Sue in Own Name. A guardian suing in his or her own name rather than in the name of the ward lacks legal capacity to sue (Siegal v. Superior Court (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 22, 27, 21 Cal. Rptr. 348).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a special demurrer to a complaint prosecuted in the name of the personal representative rather than in the name of the ward or conservatee by the guardian or conservator.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should demonstrate, from facts appearing on the face of the complaint or of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice, that the action is one that is required to be brought in the name of the ward or conservatee, the action was not brought in the ward's or conservatee's name, and because the action was not brought in the ward's or conservatee's name, the demurrer should be sustained.

See also §§ 71.20[2], 71.60[2], and 71.62[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Guardian or Conservator Lacks Legal Capacity to Sue in Own Name

Siegal v. Superior Court (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 22, 21 Cal. Rptr. 348 , was a proceeding in mandate to compel the superior court to dismiss an action by the foreign guardian of a minor ward on the ground that under Code Civ. Proc. § 1913 [see § 71.64], the foreign guardian had no authority outside the jurisdiction that appointed him and, hence, lacked legal capacity to sue in California. The action arose out of a contract entered into by Rancho Tomasina of Sonora, Mexico, with a corporation and an individual concerning the production and sale of watermelons under which, among other things, the latter parties agreed to pay Rancho Tomasina the sum of $10,000. The individual died in Los Angeles County later the same year. A creditor's claim on behalf of Rancho Tomasina was filed against his estate and rejected, whereupon the present action was brought. The complaint named as plaintiff "Pedro R. Morillon, Administrator of the Estate of Tomasina Jamison Provas, a Minor, owner of Rancho Tomasina." The minor was alleged to be a Mexican citizen and the owner of Rancho Tomasina. The complaint showed that the minor was the real party in interest. It was not alleged that Morillon had qualified in this state as guardian. Defendant's motion to dismiss the action under the authority of Code Civ. Proc. § 1913 was denied and defendant petitioned the court of appeal for a writ of mandate.

Although it denied the peremptory writ, the court of appeal pointed out, among other things, that under Code Civ. Proc. § 372, as it then read, an action by a minor or insane or incompetent person was required to be prosecuted in the name of the ward as a party by the ward's guardian or guardian ad litem. Although acknowledging that this defect was not raised by demurrer or answer, was not the basis of the present petition, and was not jurisdictional in the fundamental sense, the court nevertheless said that the trial court has no authority to disregard the statutory requirement that a minor appear by a general guardian or guardian ad litem and that were that court to proceed to trial and judgment, it would be an act in excess of that court's jurisdiction which could be prevented by prohibition (203 Cal. App. 2d 22, 27).

The court, however, held that the defect was one that could be corrected by amendment and, in effect, directed the trial court, on application properly made within a reasonable time, to allow an amendment to the complaint to properly name the minor as plaintiff, by a guardian ad litem (203 Cal. App. 2d 22, 27-28).

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.64

§ 71.64 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Does Not Have Legal Capacity to Sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)]--Foreign Personal Representative Suing on Behalf of Conservatee, Decedent's Estate, or Ward [Code Civ. Proc. § 1913]

[1] FORM Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Does Not Have Legal Capacity to Sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)]--Foreign Personal Representative Suing on Behalf of Conservatee, Decedent's Estate, or Ward [Code Civ. Proc. § 1913]

[Caption. See § 71.20.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE SUSTAINED ON THE GROUND OF LACK OF LEGAL CAPACITY TO SUE BECAUSE THE ACTION IS BROUGHT ON BEHALF OF A _____ [CONSERVATEE or DECEDENT'S ESTATE or WARD] BY A FOREIGN PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE WHO HAS NOT QUALIFIED AS SUCH IN THIS STATE OR BEEN APPOINTED PLAINTIFF'S GUARDIAN AD LITEM.

A. Objection by Demurrer. [See § 71.62, Paragraph A.]

B. Limitation on Authority of Personal Representative. The authority of A guardian, conservator, or committee, or of a personal representative, does not extend beyond the jurisdiction of the government under which that person was invested with authority, except to the extent expressly authorized by statute (Code Civ. Proc. § 1913(b)).

C. Foreign Personal Representative Lacks Legal Capacity to Sue. A foreign guardian suing in a California court on behalf of his or her ward lacks legal capacity to sue when he or she has not qualified as such in California or been appointed plaintiff's guardian ad litem (Siegal v. Superior Court (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 22, 25-27, 21 Cal. Rptr. 348).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be used to support a special demurrer to a complaint prosecuted on behalf of a conservatee, decedent's estate, or ward by a foreign personal representative who has not qualified as such in this state or been appointed guardian ad litem of the ward.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should refer to allegations in the complaint, or to facts of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice, indicating that the person who is suing on behalf of the real party at interest has not been invested with Authority to serve as guardian, conservator, or personal representative in this state and has not been appointed guardian ad litem.

See also §§ 71.20[2], 71.60[2], and 71.62[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Foreign Personal Representative Lacks Legal Capacity to Sue

The facts and procedural background of Siegal v. Superior Court (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 22, 21 Cal. Rptr. 348 , are discussed in § 71.63[3][a]. With respect to the objection that the foreign guardian lacked capacity to appear in the action on behalf of the foreign minor, the court pointed out that under Code Civ. Proc. § 1913 the authority of a guardian or committee does not extend beyond the jurisdiction of the government under which he or she was invested with authority (203 Cal. App. 2d 22, 25) . Although holding that the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1913 did not go to the jurisdiction of the court, the court of appeal said that they did place the foreign representative under a disability that involved the question of capacity to sue (203 Cal. App. 2d 22, 26-27) , that the trial court has no authority to disregard the public policy expressed in Code Civ. Proc. § 1913 with respect to the incapacity of a foreign guardian, and that to proceed to trial and judgment in the present posture of the case would have been an act in excess of the trial court's jurisdiction that could be prevented by prohibition (203 Cal. App. 2d 22, 27) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.65

§ 71.65 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Another Action Is Pending Between Same Parties on Same Cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(c)]

[1] FORM Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Another Action Is Pending Between Same Parties on Same Cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(c)]

[Caption. See § 71.20.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE SUSTAINED BECAUSE THERE IS ANOTHER ACTION PENDING BETWEEN THE SAME PARTIES ON THE SAME CAUSE OF ACTION.

A. Objection by Demurrer. The party against whom a complaint has been filed may object to it by demurrer on the ground there is another action pending between the same parties on the same cause of action when the ground of objection appears on the face of the complaint or from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(c), 430.30(a); Bistawros v. Greenberg (1987)189 Cal. App. 3d 189, 191-192, 234 Cal. Rptr. 377).

B. Pending Action Defined. A civil action is deemed to be pending from the time the complaint is filed until its final determination on appeal, or until the time for appeal has passed, unless the judgment is sooner satisfied (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 411.10, 1049).

C. Judicial Notice of Court Records and Request. This court may take judicial notice of the records of any court of this state [or of any court of record of the United States or of any court of record of any state of the United States] and on proper request therefor is required to do so (Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453). Pursuant to this authority, The Court is hereby requested to take judicial notice of the case of _____ [name] vs. _____ [name], No. _____ now pending in the _____ Court of _____, and to enable it to do so certified copies of the complaint and answer filed in that case, together with a certificate from the clerk, and under the seal, of that court showing the present status of that case, are attached hereto and made a part hereof (see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.70).

[Optional] D. Sameness of Parties. Parties are deemed to be the same when those between whom the evidence is offered were on opposite sides in the former case, and a judgment or other determination could in that case have been made between them alone, though other parties were joined with both or either (Code Civ. Proc. § 1910).

[Optional] E. Sameness of Actions. The nature and substance of a cause of action are determined by the right or liability sought to be established or enforced; if the prior and present actions are both based on the same right or obligation, then the causes of action are the same even though the relief sought by each is different (Carroll v. Puritan Leasing Co. (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 487, 143 Cal. Rptr. 772 ; see also Wulfjen v. Dolton (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 891, 895-896, 151 P.2d 846).

[Optional] F. Test for Determining Sameness of actions. The circumstance that the remedies sought by the two actions are not precisely the same is of little moment. The true test is whether or not the determination in the first suit would be res judicata in the second suit (Stearns v. Los Angeles City School Dist. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 696, 714, 53 Cal. Rptr. 482).

[Optional] G. Rule Against Splitting Cause of Action. A party may not split up a single cause of action and make it the basis of separate suits; should a party do so, the first action may be pleaded in abatement of any subsequent suit on the same claim (Wulfjen v. Dolton (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 891, 894, 151 P.2d 846).

[Optional] H. Basis of Rule Against Splitting Cause of Action. The basis of the rule against splitting a cause of action is twofold: (1) defendant should be protected against vexatious litigation; and (2) it is against public policy to permit litigants to consume the time of the courts by relitigating matters already judicially determined or by asserting claims which property should have been settled in some prior action (Wulfjen v. Dolton (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 891, 894-895, 151 P.2d 846).

[Optional] I. Right to Have Second Action Abate. When it is shown that there is another action pending in a California state court between the same parties on the same cause of action, defendant is entitled to the entry of an interlocutory judgment abating the second action (Code Civ. Proc. § 597; Lord v. Garland (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 840, 851, 168 P.2d 5 ; Shahin v. Wawro (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 749, 754, 186 Cal. Rptr. 446).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in support of a demurrer to a complaint when it appears on the face of the complaint or from judicially noticed matter that there is another action pending between the same parties on the same cause. For a discussion of judicial notice generally, see § 71.21[2].

Optional Paragraph D would be used when the parties in the two actions are not identical. Optional Paragraphs E and F would be used together when the relief sought by plaintiff in the two actions is different. Optional Paragraphs G and H would be used together when plaintiff issuing on a split cause of action, that is, when plaintiff is suing defendant on a part of a cause of action only and has another action against defendant on another part of the same cause of action pending in the same or another court. Optional Paragraph I would be used when the prior action is pending in a California state court.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. That is, counsel should identify the parties in the former action and the right or obligation that is common to both actions.

[b] Judicial Notice of Prior Pending Action

All that is required for a court to sustain a demurrer on the ground of another action pending is that the other action be pending between the same parties on the same cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(c)].

The former statutory provision, adopted in 1957, authorizing the court to take judicial notice of other pending actions but limiting its power to do so to other actions pending in the same or another California court [see former Code Civ. Proc. § 433, as amended by Stats. 1957, ch. 1442; and, e.g., Colvig v. RKO General, Inc. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 70, 42 Cal. Rptr. 473 ; Hanrahan v. Superior Court (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 432, 435, 184 P.2d 157] was repealed by the 1965 amendment to former Code Civ. Proc. § 433 and the concomitant adoption of the Evidence Code, both operative January 1, 1967 [Stats. 1965, ch. 299]. Since January 1, 1967, a California court may take judicial notice of the records of any court of this state or of any court of record of the United States or of any state of the United States [Evid. Code § 452(d)] and must do so if a proper request is made [Evid. Code §§ 11, 453; see Bistawros v. Greenberg (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 189, 191-192, 234 Cal. Rptr. 377 , discussed under § 71.65[3][a]]. Under current law, the pendency of an action in a federal court of record or a court of record of a sister state is, therefore, subject to judicial notice by a California court.

[c] Abatement of Action

The court is required to abate the second action when the prior action on the same cause is pending in a California state court [see, e.g., Simmons v. Superior Court (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 119, 122-123, 214 P.2d 844 ; and § 71.65[2][e]]. But it is not required to do so when the prior action is pending in a court of a sister state or in a federal court in another state; rather, whether a stay in this situation will be granted is within the sound discretion of the trial court [Thomson v. Continental Ins. Co. (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 738, 748, 59 Cal. Rptr. 101, 427 P.2d 765 (prior action pending in federal court in another state); Farmland Irrigation Co. v. Dopplmaier (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 208, 215, 308 P.2d 732 (same); Leeds v. Superior Court (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 723, 724, 42 Cal. Rptr. 151 (prior action pending in court of sister state)]. On the factors to be considered by the court in such case, see Thomson v. Continental Ins. Co. (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 738, 746-747, 59 Cal. Rptr. 101, 427 P.2d 765 .

It would appear that when there is another action pending between the same parties on the same cause in a federal court in California, the California state court should abate the second action, although whether it does so remains a matter of comity [see discussion in Thomson v. Continental Ins. Co. (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 738, 747-748, 59 Cal. Rptr. 101, 427 P.2d 765] .

On staying or dismissing a California state court action on the related ground of inconvenient forum, see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 410.30, 418.10; and Ch. 132, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction and Inconvenient Forum.

[d] Interlocutory Judgment on Abatement of action

If the demurrer is sustained and the court abates the action, the court will enter an interlocutory judgment in favor of the defendant to the effect that no trial of other issues shall be had until the final determination of the other action [Code Civ. Proc. § 597; Lord v. Garland (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 840, 851, 168 P.2d 5] . An order dismissing the action in such case would normally be error [Lord v. Garland (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 840, 850-851, 168 P.2d 5 ; Childs v. Eltinge

(1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 843, 848, 105 Cal. Rptr. 864 ; Colvig v. RKO Gen., Inc. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 71, 42 Cal. Rptr. 473] .

[e] Review by Extraordinary Writ

When two or more courts in this state have concurrent jurisdiction, the court first assuming jurisdiction retains it to the exclusion of all other courts in which the action might have been initiated. Should another court proceed to exercise jurisdiction, it may be restrained from doing so by issuance of a writ of prohibition from a higher court [see, e.g., Greene v. Superior Court (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 307, 310, 231 P.2d 821 ; Browne v. Superior Court (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 593, 597, 107 P.2d 1 ; Kresteller v. Superior Court (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 545, 549, 56 Cal. Rptr. 771 ; Morrisette v. Superior Court (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 597, 599-600, 46 Cal. Rptr. 153] . This rule applies when the objection that another action is pending between the same parties in California on the same cause of action is erroneously overruled [Padula v. Superior Court (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 567, 571, 45 Cal. Rptr. 500 (plea of another action pending raised in answer); see also Stearns v. Los Angeles City School Dist. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 696, 711, 53 Cal. Rptr. 482 ; see also Childs v. Eltinge (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 843, 848-852, 105 Cal. Rptr. 864 (comparing rule of exclusive concurrent jurisdiction and demurrer rule with respect to another action pending)].

The foregoing rule does not apply, however, when the prior action is pending in a federal court or in a court of record of a sister state. But should the trial court erroneously overrule the demurrer, the defendant may petition a higher court for a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to stay the California action [see, e.g., Simmons v. Superior Court (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 119, 131-133, 214 P.2d 844] .

[f] Waiver of Objection

The objection that there is another action pending between the same parties on the same cause of action is waived if not taken by demurrer or answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(a)].

[g] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of demurrer on the ground of another action pending between the same parties on the same cause, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings, § 206.125, in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[h] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities in support of a general demurrer to a complaint on the ground the action is res judicata and barred, see § 71.24.

[i] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in §§ 71.79 -71.81 may be used to oppose the special demurrer supported by the foregoing memorandum.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.60[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Objection by Demurrer

Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(c) provides that the party against whom a complaint has been filed may object to it by demurrer or answer, as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30, on the ground that there is another action pending between the same parties on the same cause of action. Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a) provides that when any ground for objection to a complaint appears on the face thereof, or from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice, the objection on that ground may be taken by a demurrer to the pleading.

In Bistawros v. Greenberg (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 189, 234 Cal. Rptr. 377 , plaintiff filed an action against an attorney hired to represent him in his quest for religious asylum in the United States. The complaint claimed there was a conspiracy between the attorney and the "Underground Egyptian Intelligence Agency of the Egyptian Embassy," and that he was illegally detained and physically mistreated when a member of defendant law firm called the police to prevent removal of the plaintiff's file from the office. Thereafter, the plaintiff and his brother filed another complaint against the same defendants alleging substantially the same facts. The defendants demurred to the second complaint on the ground that the earlier cause of action involved the same cause of action against the same parties. The trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend. The plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's judgment and imposed sanctions for pursuing a frivolous appeal. The court stated that the plaintiff's claim that the demurrer was improperly sustained was patently insupportable and that it is well settled that the law abhors vexatious and unnecessary litigation wherein several lawsuits are brought involving the same parties and subject matter. An objection to a complaint on the basis that a substantially similar lawsuit is pending is properly raised by demurrer under Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(c), provided the defect appears on the face of the pleading or from judicially noticed facts (189 Cal. App. 3d 189, 191-192) .

[b] Pending Action Defined

Code Civ. Proc. § 411.10 provides that a civil action is commenced by filing a complaint with the court. Code Civ. Proc. § 1049 provides that an action is deemed to be pending from the time of its commencement until its final determination on appeal, or until the time for appeal has passed, unless the judgment is sooner satisfied.

[c] Judicial Notice of Court Records and Request

Evid. Code § 452 in pertinent part provides that judicial notice may be taken of the following matters to the extent that they are not embraced in Evid. Code § 451 (relating to mandatory judicial notice): "(d) Records of (1) any court of this state or (2) any court of record of the United States or of any state of the United States." Evid. Code § 453 provides that the trial court "shall" (which is defined in Evid. Code § 11 as being mandatory) take judicial notice of any matter specified in Evid. Code § 452 if a party requests it and (a) gives each adverse party sufficient notice of the request, through the Pleadings or otherwise, to enable such adverse party to prepare to meet the request; and (b) furnishes the court with sufficient information to enable it to take judicial notice of the matter.

Code Civ. Proc. § 430.70 provides that when the ground of demurrer is based on a matter of which the court may take judicial notice pursuant to Evid. Code § 452 or 453, such matter shall be specified in the demurrer, or in the supporting points and authorities for the purpose of invoking such notice, except as the court may otherwise permit.

[d] Sameness of Actions

The facts and procedural background of Carroll v. Puritan Leasing Co. (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 143 Cal. Rptr. 772 , are discussed in § 71.24[3][b]. In Carroll v. Puritan Leasing Co., the court of appeal affirmed a dismissal of the action on the ground that it was res judicata. In discussing the sameness of the actions, the court of appeal said that the nature and substance of a cause of action are determined by the right or liability sought to be established or enforced and that, if the second action is based on the same right or obligation, the cause of action is the same even though different or additional relief is sought (77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 487) . The court pointed out that plaintiff's liability to defendant had been established in the prior action and, since the judgment in that action did not prohibit execution on her separate property, her separate property could be levied on to satisfy her liability on the judgment debt (77 Cal. App. 3d 481, 488-494) .

Wulfjen v. Dolton (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 891, 151 P.2d 846 , was an action against four named individuals for damages based on an alleged conspiracy to commit and perpetrate a series of frauds on plaintiff. The transactions involved were also the subject of a prior action by plaintiff against three of the named individuals and a corporation. The complaint in the prior action alleged in part that plaintiff, having been induced through the fraud and misrepresentations of the individual defendants to part with substantial sums of money to the defendant corporation, which she later learned was insolvent, had elected to rescind and had rescinded the agreement and each and every transaction relating to it. Prior to the commencement of that action, plaintiff had served a notice of rescission on the defendants. At trial of that action, a nonsuit was granted as to one of the individual defendants on all five of the causes of action alleged and as to the other two individual defendants on the first cause of action only. After trial, the court found that the rescission was effective against the corporation because it had consented to it by defaulting, that the corporation was not the alter ego of the individual defendants, and that all the money advanced by plaintiff went to the corporation. Judgment was entered for plaintiff against the defendant corporation, from which no appeal was taken, and for the individual defendants on the four remaining causes of action not covered by the nonsuit. Plaintiff appealed from the adverse portions of the judgment. That appeal was pending when the present action was filed and was still pending.

In the second action, defendants interposed the defenses of another action pending, election of remedies, and estoppel. On trial of these separate defenses the court found that the allegations of the complaint in the prior action were substantially identical with those in the present action, that by the prior action plaintiff had elected the remedy of rescission, that the remedy was inconsistent with the remedy sought in the present action, and that plaintiff was estopped from maintaining the present action. Judgment was entered in favor of all four defendants and Plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment as to the three defendants who were also the individual defendants in the prior action and reversed it as to the other defendant who was not a party to the prior action. The Court said that whatever plaintiff's ground of recovery might be for the single wrong involved--that is, defendant's perpetration of fraud to plaintiff's injury in advancing various sums of money without consideration--she was bound to frame her complaint in the prior action so as to avail herself of whatever relief the controlling set of facts would warrant and so meet any possible developments in the presentation of the evidence (24 Cal. 2d 891, 895) . The Court said that the violation of one primary right constitutes a single cause of action, though it may entitle the injured party to many forms of relief and that the relief is not to be confounded with the cause of action, one not being determinative of the other (24 Cal. 2d 891, 895-896) .

Note that the Supreme Court in Wulfjen concluded that plaintiff had had her day in court in the prior action and affirmed the judgment of dismissal as to three of the four defendants. Normally, a defendant whose plea of another action pending is sustained, is merely entitled to an interlocutory judgment that the second action abate [see Code Civ. Proc. § 597; see also § 71.65[3][h]], rather than to a judgment of dismissal. The judgment in the prior action, once it has become final, may then be raised as a bar to the present action under the doctrine of res judicata.

[e] Test for Determining Sameness of Actions

Stearns v. Los Angeles City School Dist. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 696, 53 Cal. Rptr. 482 , was an action against the Los Angeles City School District, the Los Angeles City High School District, and fictitiously named defendants to quiet title to real property in Mendocino County and was filed in the superior court of that county. Plaintiffs were the transferees of the property. Defendant districts demurred to the complaint and moved to stay the action on the ground another action was pending between the same parties in the Los Angeles County Superior Court. This latter action, brought by the districts against the original owners and transferors of the property, the transferees, and others claiming under the transferors, was in the nature of a creditor's bill to have various conveyances of the property set aside as having been made in fraud of creditors. The trial court ordered that the action be stayed pending determination of the Los Angeles action "or until further order of the court." Thereafter, plaintiffs moved to vacate the order and the motion was granted. The districts then filed a cross complaint. Cross defendants' demurrers to the cross complaint were sustained and the court dismissed the cross complaint. After trial, judgment was for plaintiffs decreeing that title to the property was vested in them and that the districts had no interest in it, and enjoining the districts from asserting any claim to the property. The districts appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment for plaintiffs on the merits for error in law and for error in vacating the stay order, with directions to set aside the order vacating the stay of proceedings. The court said that the true test in determining whether the two actions are the same is whether or not the determination in the first suit would be res judicata in the second suit (244 Cal. App. 2d 696, 714) . Quoting from Myers v. Superior Court (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 925, 931, 172 P.2d 84 , the court explained that the circumstance that the remedies sought by the two actions Are Not precisely the same is of little moment, the significant fact being that the court in the prior pending action has the power and is charged with the duty of litigating all the issues and giving all the relief to which any of the parties may be entitled under the pleadings (244 Cal. App. 2d 696, 714) .

[f] Rule Against Splitting Cause of Action

The facts and procedural background of Wulfjen v. Dolton (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 891, 151 P.2d 846 , are discussed under § 71.65[3][d]. The Supreme Court said that it was clearly established that a party may not split up a single cause of action and make it the basis of separate suits and that in such case the first action may be pleaded in abatement of any subsequent suit on the same claim (24 Cal. 2d 891, 894) . The Court pointed out, with respect to the three defendants who were joined in both actions, that the theory of relief urged in the present action was open to plaintiff within the legitimate scope of her pleading in the prior action and that, if plaintiff through negligence in not properly presenting her claim in the first instance lost her right to recover money that she allegedly advanced in reliance on fraudulent representations of the individual defendants, it was a hardship but one from which the courts cannot relieve if the general and well-established rule against splitting of a single cause of action is to be followed for the benefit of all (24 Cal. 2d 891, 896) .

[g] Basis of Rule Against Splitting Cause of Action

The facts and procedural background of Wulfjen v. Dolton (1944) 24 Cal.2d 891, 151 P.2d 846 , are discussed under § 71.65[3][d]. The Court explained that the rule against splitting a cause of action is based on two reasons: (1) that the defendant should be protected against vexatious litigation; and (2) that it is against public policy to permit litigants to consume the time of the courts by relitigating matters already judicially determined, or by asserting claims that properly should have been settled in some prior action. Quoting from Bingham v. Kearney (1902) 136 Cal. 175, 177, 68 P. 597 , The Court said that it is not the policy of the law to allow a new and different suit between the same parties concerning the same subject matter that has already been litigated, and that, in addition, the law will not allow the parties to trifle with the courts by piecemeal litigation (24 Cal.2d 891, 894-895) . The court concluded that the fact plaintiff's judgment against the insolvent corporation might prove fruitless did not alter the situation as to the right of the individual defendants in the prior action to be protected from harassment by successive suits on the same basic cause of action (24 Cal.2d 891, 896) .

[h] Right to Have Second Action Abate

Code Civ. Proc. § 597 requires that if the defense of another pending action, or a demurrer based on another action pending pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(c), is sustained, an interlocutory judgment must be entered in favor of the defendant to the effect that no trial of the issues in the action may be had until the final determination of that other action, and the plaintiff may appeal from the interlocutory judgment in the same manner and within the same time as provided for appeals from judgment.

The facts and procedural background of Lord v. Garland (1946) 27 Cal.2d 840, 168 P.2d 5 , are discussed under § 71.65[4][d]. In Lord, the Supreme Court held that the word "answer," as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 597, includes demurrers, and hence, an interlocutory judgment abating the action is required to be entered when the defense of another action pending is raised by demurrer and sustained (27 Cal.2d 840, 851) . See also discussion in § 71.65[2][c].

In Shahin v. Wawro (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 749, 186 Cal. Rptr. 446 , a shareholder-employee of a corporation filed a complaint that included a cause of action to validate an election of a corporate director. Defendant's demurrer to that cause of action was sustained on two grounds: (1) failure to state a cause of action and (2) that another action was pending.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment, finding that plaintiff had stated a cause of action, but remanded the case with directions to enter an order to (1) sustain the demurrer to the subject cause of action on the basis of another action pending and (2) to abate that cause. The Court found that the action to validate the election was properly subject to abatement based on a pending proceeding for the dissolution of the corporation because both actions depended on a resolution of the same issues (136 Cal. App. 3d 749, 754) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Objection by Demurrer

Fresno Planing Mill Co. v. Manning (1912) 20 Cal. App. 766, 130 P. 196 , was an action to recover for building materials sold and delivered by plaintiff to defendants and used by them as contractors in the construction of a building for a third person. Prior to commencement of the action, plaintiff had filed an action to foreclose its mechanic's lien on the third person's property and in that action named both the third person and the present defendants as defendants. In their answer to the complaint in the present action, defendants pleaded the pendency of the previous action in abatement. Plaintiff both moved to strike this defense and demurred to it. The motion to strike was granted and the demurrer was not ruled on. Judgment was for plaintiff and defendants appealed. In reversing the judgment on the ground that the pendency of the prior action was a material defense and that the trial court prejudicially erred in granting the motion to strike it, the court of appeal pointed out that a plea in abatement, based on the ground of another action pending, may be raised either by demurrer or answer (20 Cal. App. 766, 769) .

[b] Pending Action Defined

The facts and procedural background of Fresno Planing Mill Co. v. Manning (1912) 20 Cal. App. 766, 130 P. 196 , are discussed under § 71.65[4][a]. The court of appeal, citing Code Civ. Proc. §§ 350 (repealed, now Code Civ. Proc. § 411.10) and 1049, said that an action is commenced when the complaint in the action is filed and it is thereafter deemed to be pending until it is finally determined on appeal (20 Cal. App. 766, 769) .

[c] Sameness of Actions

In Lawyers Title Ins. Corp. v. Superior Court (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 455, 199 Cal. Rptr. 1 , the trial court denied a motion for abatement made under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10 and 597, and the moving party sought review by petition for a writ of prohibition. In granting the writ, the reviewing court noted that it was undisputed that there was another action pending for declaratory relief at the time a second action for damages was filed, and that both actions involved the same parties and arose out of the same transaction (151 Cal. App. 3d 455, 458) . The court held that this was a sufficient ground for abatement of the second action, despite the fact that it sought a dissimilar type of relief than the first action, because there was no obstacle to preclude the filing of a cross complaint for damages in the first action, and it was thus possible for the first action to afford the same relief sought in the second (151 Cal. App. 3d 455, 459-460) .

Merchants Fire Assur. Corp. v. Retail Credit Co., Inc. (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 55, 23 Cal. Rptr. 544 , involved consolidated appeals in two cases between the same parties. The first action had been dismissed by the trial court after a separate trial on the statute of limitations. The second action had been abated by interlocutory judgment after separate trial on the issue of another action pending. The court of appeal reversed the judgment of dismissal on the ground the complaint sounded in fraud, rather than for breach or tortious breach of contract, and hence was not barred by the applicable statute of limitations, but affirmed the interlocutory judgment abating the second action pending determination of the dismissed action. Plaintiff was in the business of insuring property against physical damage, and defendant was in the business of furnishing information for a price to insurance companies among others. Plaintiff issued a policy insuring a certain home against all physical loss. Subsequently, plaintiff ordered a report from defendant for the purpose of evaluating the risk and to determine whether to cancel the policy. Defendant furnished the report that stated, among other things, that the house was not on filled land. However, it was on filled land. Plaintiff relied on the report and kept the policy in force. Thereafter, a landslide of the fill caused damage to the house and plaintiff settled the claim with its insured for $18,750 and then commenced the first action to recover its damages from defendant. After dismissal of the first action, plaintiff filed the second action for damages for fraudulent deceit and breach of written contract. Defendant's plea of another action pending between the same parties on the same cause was separately tried [Code Civ. Proc. § 597] and resulted in the interlocutory judgment of abatement. In holding that the trial court properly abated the second action so long as the first case remained pending, the court of appeal said that the cause of action is the obligation sought to be enforced or the primary right that was involved, that new legal theories do not make new causes of action, and that the transaction, the acts done, the legal duties, and the primary rights involved in the second case were the very same as in the former case (206 Cal. App. 2d 55, 63) .

See also Colvig v. RKO Gen., Inc. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 66, 42 Cal. Rptr. 473 (the essence of a cause of action is the existence of a primary right and a violation of that right; that is, it arises out of an antecedent primary right and corresponding duty, and a breach of the primary right and duty by the person on whom the duty rests; the primary right and duty and the delict or wrong constitute the cause of action in the legal sense; the cause of action is simply the obligation sought to be enforced), and discussion of cause of action in Abatti v. Eldridge (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 484, 487-489, 163 Cal. Rptr. 82 .

[d] Test for Determining Sameness of Actions

In Lord v. Garland (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 840, 168 P.2d 5 , the Supreme Court said that a demurrer on the ground of another action pending between the same parties for the same cause may be made only when the face of the complaint shows that the causes of action and the issues in the two suits are substantially the same and that as a test for determining whether the causes of action are the same or different, it is the universal rule that a plea in abatement may be maintained only when the claim sued on in the second action is such that a final judgment in the first one could be pleaded in bar as a former adjudication (27 Cal. 2d 840, 848) . The Court held, however, it did not appear that the prior suit involved the entire cause of action presented by the complaint in the present case (and hence that the plea of abatement should have been raised by answer rather than by demurrer), and reversed the judgment with directions to overrule the demurrer.

Note:

When Lord was decided, the objection, to be raised by demurrer, had to appear from the face of the complaint; under present law, it may appear either from the face of the complaint or from matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)].

San Martin v. Superior Court (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 14, 336 P.2d 618 , was a prohibition proceeding to restrain respondent superior court from taking further proceedings in an annulment action after that court had denied petitioner's motion to abate the action. The motion was made on the ground that on the same day the annulment action was filed petitioner had filed an action for separate maintenance in another superior court and that this latter court had first obtained jurisdiction of the subject matter by service of summons. The summons in that action was served on November 2, 1958. The summons in the present action, as well as an order to show cause re pendente lite suit money, support, and child custody, were served December 6, 1958. Respondent court, on December 9, 1958, pursuant to the stipulation of respective counsel, made its order granting the pendente lite relief. That order became final December 18, 1958, the same day petitioner moved for the abatement order. In denying the motion, respondent court noted that the pendente lite order to which petitioner had stipulated gave it priority.

Although it denied the writ on the grounds petitioner had submitted to the jurisdiction of respondent court, had stipulated to the pendente lite order, and had subsequently filed a cross complaint for separate maintenance in that action, the court of appeal stated that the general test applied to determine the identity of causes of action is that when the claim sued on in the second action is such that a final judgment in the first one could be pleaded in bar as a former adjudication, the actions are substantially the same (169 Cal. App. 2d 14, 16) .

[e] Rule Against Splitting Cause of Action

Phillips v. Western Pac. R.R. Co. (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 441, 99 Cal. Rptr. 451 , was an action by an insurance company, as subrogee, to recover $10, 300, the full face amount of a policy, it had paid its insureds as a result of the destruction of their real and personal property by a fire for which defendant railroad was responsible. The insureds were joined as defendants under the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 382, providing that if the consent of one who should have been joined as plaintiff cannot be obtained, that person may be made a defendant. The insureds cross complained against the railroad for damages in the sum of $47, 643, the total amount of alleged damage to their property as a result of the fire, and alleged that plaintiff had paid them a total of $10, 300 on its policy. The railroad settled with plaintiff for the full amount of insurance paid by it and judgment in that amount was entered for plaintiff. The railroad then filed an answer to the cross complaint in which it alleged that the insureds were proceeding on the same cause of action as the insurer and that they were proceeding to split their cause of action and were barred. The insureds' demurrer to this defense was sustained without leave to amend and, after trial, judgment was rendered for the insureds. The railroad appealed. Although holding that the procedure followed by the plaintiff and insureds in the trial court was proper and no splitting of causes of action was involved, the court of appeal, in affirming the judgment, said that an entire claim cannot be divided and made the basis of several suits, and that if an effort is made to split a cause of action into more than one lawsuit, the defendant in the second suit may plead the pendency of the first in abatement (22 Cal. App. 3d 441, 444) .

The facts and procedural background of Merchants Fire Assur. Corp. v. Retail Credit Co., Inc. (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 55, 23 Cal. Rptr. 544 , are discussed under § 71.65[4][c]. The court of appeal, after pointing out that plaintiff based the second action on exactly the same facts on which it relied in the first case, quoting from Wulfjen v. Dolton (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 891, 894, 151 P.2d 846 , discussed under § 71.65[3][g], said it is clearly established that a party may not split up a single cause of action and make it the basis of separate suits, and in such case the first action may be pleaded in abatement of any subsequent suit on the same claim (206 Cal. App. 2d 55, 63) .

The facts and procedural background of Fresno Planing Mill Co. v. Manning (1912) 20 Cal. App. 766, 130 P. 196 , are discussed under § 71.65[4][a]. The court of appeal said that it is not the policy of the law to permit different suits to be instituted and pending between the same parties concerning the same subject matter; hence the rule that an action abates on a showing of the institution and pendency of a prior action between the same parties on the same subject matter (20 Cal. App. 766, 769) .

[f] Basis of Rule Against Splitting Cause of Action

The facts and procedural background of Phillips v. Western Pac. R.R. Co. (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 441, 99 Cal. Rptr. 451 , are discussed under § 71.65[4][e]. Although holding the rule inapplicable to the case before it, the court of appeal, citing Wulfjen v. Dolton (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 891, 894-895, 151 P.2d 846 , discussed under § 71.65[3][g], said that the California Supreme Court has held that the rule against splitting is based on two principles as follows: (1) The defendant should be protected against vexatious litigation; and (2) it is against public policy to permit litigants to consume the time of the courts by relitigating matters already judicially determined, or by asserting claims that properly should have been settled in some prior action (22 Cal. App. 3d 441, 444) .

The facts and procedural background of Fresno Planing Mill Co. v. Manning (1912) 20 Cal. App. 766, 130 P. 196 , are discussed under § 71.65[4][a]. The court of appeal said that the reason for the rule that an action abates on a showing of the pendency of a prior action between the same parties on the same subject matter is founded on the theory that, if the first suit affords an ample remedy to the party claiming to be aggrieved, it would be not only unnecessary but vexatious to permit the prosecution of a second suit founded on the same cause of action (20 Cal. App. 766, 769) .

[g] Right to Have Second Action Abate

The facts and procedural background of Lawyers Title Ins. Corp. v. Superior Court (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 455, 199 Cal. Rptr. 1 , are discussed under § 71.65[4][c]. In Lawyers Title Ins. Corp., the court of appeal granted a writ of prohibition to restrain an action for damages when it was undisputed that another action was pending for declaratory relief, involving the same parties and arising out of the same transaction (151 Cal. App. 3d 455, 458, 461) . The court held that this was a ground for abatement as a matter of right, not discretion, under the circumstances, and it made no difference that the second action for damages might seem more appropriate or expeditious than the otherwise proper first action for declaratory relief (151 Cal. App. 3d 455, 460) .

Hanrahan v. Superior Court (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 432, 184 P.2d 157 , was a prohibition proceeding to restrain respondent court from proceeding with an action. Real party in interest (plaintiff) had originally filed an action in that court seeking a judgment for goods sold and delivered and for equipment rentals. Defendant's motion for change of venue was granted and the case transferred to another superior court. Plaintiff then filed in respondent court a dismissal of the action without prejudice and, subsequently, filed in that same court a new action based on the same grounds as the prior action but which included allegations showing that that county was the proper venue. Defendant then petitioned the court of appeal for the writ of prohibition. Although it denied the peremptory writ on the ground defendant had failed to seek relief in respondent court (81 Cal. App. 2d 432, 436) , the court of appeal stated that the "well settled" rule in California is that the pendency of a prior action based on the same cause and contested by the same parties is ground for abatement of the second action (81 Cal. App. 2d 432, 435) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.66

§ 71.66 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Defect or Misjoinder of Parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(d)]--Nonjoinder of Party

[1] FORM Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Defect or Misjoinder of Parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(d)]--Nonjoinder of Party

[Caption. See § 71.20.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE SUSTAINED BECAUSE THERE IS A DEFECT OF PARTIES.

A. Objection by Demurrer. The party against whom a complaint has been filed may object to it by demurrer on the ground there is a defect of parties when the ground of objection appears on the face of the complaint [or from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice] (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(d), 430.30(a)).

[EITHER]

B. Joinder Required. A person who is subject to service of process and whose joinder will not deprive the court of jurisdiction over the subject matter of the action must be joined as a party in the action if in his or her or its absence complete relief cannot be accorded among those who are already parties (Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a)). If the person has not been so joined, the court is required to order that he or she or it be made a party (Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a)).

[OR]

B. Joinder Required. A person who is subject to service of process and whose joinder will not deprive the court of jurisdiction over the subject matter of the action must be joined as a party in the action if he or she or it claims an interest relating to the subject of the cause of action and is so situated that the disposition of the action in his or her or its absence may as a practical matter impair or impede his or her or its ability to protect that interest or leave any of the persons already parties subject to a substantial risk of incurring double, multiple, or otherwise inconsistent obligations by reason of his or her or its claimed interest (Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a)). If the person has not been so joined, the court is required to order that he or she or it be made a party (Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a)).

[CONTINUE]

C. Factors to Determine Indispensability. In determining whether in equity and good conscience the action should proceed among the parties before it, or should be dismissed without prejudice, the following factors are to be considered: (1) to what extent a judgment rendered in the person's absence might be prejudicial to him or her or to those who are already parties; (2) the extent to which, by protective provisions in the judgment, by the shaping of relief, or other measures, the prejudice can be lessened or avoided; (3) whether a judgment rendered in the person's absence will be adequate; (4) whether the plaintiff or cross complainant will have an adequate remedy if the action is dismissed for nonjoinder (Code Civ. Proc. § 389(b)).

[Optional] D. Dismissal of Action. When it appears that the nonjoined person is one described in Section 389(a) of the Code of Civil Procedure, that the person cannot be made a party to the action, and that on a consideration of the factors set forth in Section 389(b) of the Code of Civil Procedure, the action should be dismissed, the court should dismiss the action without prejudice, the absent person being thus regarded as indispensable to the action (Code Civ. Proc. § 389(b)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in support of a demurrer to a complaint when it appears from the face of the complaint or from judicially noticed matter that there is a defect of parties, that is, that a person described in Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a) [see Paragraph B of form] has not been made a party to the action.

The first alternative Paragraph B may be used in the situation in which complete relief cannot be accorded among those already parties because of the absence of a person who is subject to service of process and whose joinder will not deprive the court of jurisdiction over the subject matter of the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a)].

The second alternative Paragraph B may be used in the situation in which a person who is not a party to the action claims an interest relating to the subject of the cause of action and is so situated that the disposition of the action in his or her or its absence may as a practical matter impair or impede his or her or its ability to protect that interest or leave any of the persons who are already parties subject to a substantial risk of incurring double, multiple, or otherwise inconsistent obligations by reason of his or her or its claimed interest [see Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a)].

Optional Paragraph D would be used when the nonjoined person cannot be made a party to the action and is indispensable in the conclusory sense [see § 71.66[2][b]].

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should argue, from facts appearing on the face of the complaint or of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice, that (1) a certain person was not named a party in the action, (2) the person is one who is described in Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a), and (3)(b) the failure to name the person constitutes a defect of parties and the defendant's demurrer should therefore be sustained.

[b] Mandatory Joinder

Code Civ. Proc. § 389 was completely reworded in 1971 [Stats. 1971, ch. 244, operative July 1, 1972]. Prior to this amendment the section defined an "indispensable party" as one (1) whose absence would prevent the court from rendering any effective judgment between the parties, or (2) whose absence would seriously prejudice any party before the court, or (3) whose interest would be inequitably affected or jeopardized by a judgment rendered between the parties. It defined a "conditionally necessary party" as a person who was not an indispensable party but whose joinder would enable the court to determine additional causes of action arising out of the transaction or occurrence involved in the action. The section required joinder of both classes of parties. Subdivision (a) of the revised statute, which is substantially set forth in Paragraph B of the form, omits the indispensable party-conditionally necessary party dichotomy, but requires joinder of persons who formerly fit the definition of either so long as such person is subject to service of the court's process and the joinder will not deprive the court of subject matter jurisdiction.

[c] Dismissal of Action

If the person described in Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a) cannot be made a party, the court is required to determine whether in equity and in good conscience the action should proceed among the parties before it, or should be dismissed without prejudice, the absent person being regarded as indispensable. In making this determination, the court will consider the following factors: (1) to what extent a judgment rendered in the person's absence might be prejudicial to that person or to those already parties; (2) the extent to which, by protective provisions in the judgment, by the shaping of relief, or other measures, the prejudice can be lessened or avoided; (3) whether a judgment rendered in the person's absence will be adequate; (4) whether the plaintiff will have an adequate remedy if the action is dismissed for nonjoinder [Code Civ. Proc. § 389(b)]. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a), above, if the demurrer is sustained and the omitted person can be joined, the court will order joinder [see, e.g., Conrad v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 237, 241, 120 Cal. Rptr. 803] . If the consent of one who should have been joined as plaintiff cannot be obtained, that person may be made a defendant, the reason thereof being stated in the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 382]. If the omitted person cannot be joined and it is concluded that the person is indispensable, the demurrer will be sustained without leave to amend and a judgment of dismissal without prejudice will be entered [see Vanoni v. County of Sonoma (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 743, 746, 115 Cal. Rptr. 485 (discussed in § 71.83[3][a]].

The California Law Revision Commission, which proposed the 1971 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 389, stated that the statute was amended to substitute practically in its entirety Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 19 for the former wording of the statute, but that the words "without prejudice" had been added to the language of the federal rule in Code Civ. Proc. § 389(b) merely to avoid any contrary implication that might be created by the omission of the somewhat similar provision formerly found in Code Civ. Proc. § 389.

The Commission explained that basically the statute as amended requires joinder of persons materially interested in an action whenever feasible, that in certain instances joinder cannot be accomplished because it would deprive the court of subject matter jurisdiction, that in other situations joinder is impossible because personal jurisdiction over the party cannot be obtained, and that when joinder cannot be accomplished the circumstances must be examined and a choice made between proceeding with or dismissing the action. The adequacy of the relief that may be granted in a person's absence and the possibility of prejudice to either such person or the parties before the court are factors to be considered by the court in making this choice. However, a person is regarded as indispensable only in the conclusory sense that, in the person's absence, the court has decided the action should be dismissed. When the decision is to proceed, the court has the power to make a legally binding adjudication between the parties properly before it.

The Commission further explained that Code Civ. Proc. § 389 formerly attempted not only to avoid prejudice to the parties or absent person but also to promote the general convenience of the courts by preventing a multiplicity of suits. As revised, the section takes a different approach; it limits compulsory joinder to those situations when the absence of a person may result in substantial prejudice to that person or to the parties already before the court. Under the former law, an indispensable party had to be joined in the action; until and unless the person was joined the court had no jurisdiction to proceed with the case. This absolute rule has been changed; however, practically speaking, the change is perhaps more one of emphasis. The guidelines provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 389 are substantially those that have guided the courts for years [see Bank of Cal. v. Superior Court (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 516, 106 P.2d 879] . These guidelines should require dismissal in the same circumstances when formerly a person was characterized as indispensable [10 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reps. 535-536 (1971)].

[d] Waiver of Objection

The objection that there is a defect of parties plaintiff or defendant is waived if not raised by demurrer or answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(a); see, e.g., Work v. Campbell (1912) 164 Cal. 343, 349, 128 P. 943 ; Kraus v. Willow Park Public Golf Course (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 354, 364, 140 Cal. Rptr. 744 ; Peerless Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 358, 361, 85 Cal. Rptr. 679] , unless the nonjoined person is an indispensable party.

An objection to the nonjoinder of an indispensable party may be raised at any time. However, when the issue of failure to join an indispensable party is raised for the first time on appeal, that fact is itself a factor that may be evaluated in considering joinder [Kraus v. Willow Park Public Golf Course (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 354, 370 n.11, 140 Cal. Rptr. 744] .

Both before and after the 1971 revision of Code Civ. Proc. § 389 it was said that the failure to join an indispensable party is a jurisdictional defect [see, e.g., Bank of California v. Superior Court (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 516, 522, 106 P.2d 879 ; Fraser-Yamor Agency, Inc. v. County of Del Norte (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 201, 214, 137 Cal. Rptr. 118 ; Vanoni v. County of Sonoma (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 743, 746, 115 Cal. Rptr. 485] . However, in Kraus v. Willow Park Public Golf Course (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 354, 140 Cal. Rptr. 744 , the court stated that the failure to join an indispensable party is not a jurisdictional defect in the fundamental sense. Even in the absence of an indispensable party, the court still has the power to render a decision as to the parties before it which will stand. The court stated that it is for reasons of equity and convenience, and not because it is without the power to proceed, that the court should not proceed with a case when it determines that an indispensable party is absent and cannot be joined [Kraus v. Willow Park Public Golf Course (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 354, 364, 140 Cal. Rptr. 744] . Kraus, citing both Fraser-Yamor Agency, Inc. and Vanoni, acknowledged that the courts of appeal had continued to state that the absence of an indispensable party deprives the court of jurisdiction over the subject matter. According to the court, this conclusion was dicta and not the correct rule under either the former Code Civ. Proc. § 389, or as amended in 1971 [Kraus v. Willow Park Public Golf Course (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 354, 365, 140 Cal. Rptr. 744 ; see also Witkin, California Procedure, vol. 5, Pleading, § 922 (3d ed. 1985)].

[e] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of demurrer on the ground of defect of parties, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings, § 206.126, in California Forms of Pleading and Practice. For forms relating to joinder of parties on motion, see Ch. 395, Parties in that set.

[f] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities supporting or opposing motions to bring in new parties to an action, see Ch.

168, Parties .

[G] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in §§ 71.82 and 71.83 may be used to oppose the special demurrer supported by the foregoing memorandum.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.60[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Joinder Required

A person who is subject to service of process and whose joinder will not deprive the court of jurisdiction over the subject matter of the action must be joined as a party in the situations described in Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a) [see Paragraphs B of form, above]. If the person has not been joined, the court is required to order that the person be made a party [Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a)].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Joinder Required

Greco v. Oregon Mut. Fire Ins. Co. (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 674, 12 Cal. Rptr. 802 (party plaintiff), was an action by the vendor, the vendee, and the encumbrancer of improved real property against an insurance company for a declaration of rights under a fire insurance policy issued by defendant to the vendor. The insurance company denied liability under the policy on a number of grounds, none of which was sustained. Judgment was for plaintiffs and defendant appealed. The court of appeal reversed the judgment for a new trial on the sole issue of who was the real party plaintiff in interest. The court said that under the circumstances of the case the nonjoined third person was the real party in interest. The court said that plaintiff in a suit on a chose in action, to qualify as the real party in interest, must have such a title to the chose that a judgment against defendant will protect the latter from future annoyance or loss, that the assignee of a chose in action has such a title and is a necessary party to any suit on it even though he or she may hold it for security purposes only, that failure to join such a party is reversible error, and that the assignor, although a proper party to the suit, is not a necessary party (191 Cal. App. 2d 674, 687) . The court noted exceptions to the rule that failure to join the assignee is reversible error when (1) the assignee consents that suit be brought by the assignor; and (2) the assignment occurs after the suit has been filed. In this latter situation, the action may be continued in the name of the assignor or the court may permit the assignee to be substituted in the action (191 Cal. App. 2d 674, 687) .

Although decided prior to the 1971 revision of Code Civ. Proc. § 389, the case would support joinder under present Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a)(2)(ii) (nonjoinder would leave defendant subject to substantial risk of incurring double, multiple, or otherwise inconsistent obligations by reason of nonjoined person's claimed interest).

Bank of California v. Superior Court (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 516, 106 P.2d 879 (party defendant), arose out of an action to enforce the provisions of an alleged contract by which decedent agreed to leave her entire estate to plaintiff. The complaint named as defendants the executor and all the beneficiaries under decedent's will, but only the executor and the residuary beneficiary were served with summons. When the matter came on for trial, the appearing defendants moved for an order to have summons issued and served on the other defendants as necessary and indispensable parties to the action. On denial of the motion, the executor petitioned for a writ of prohibition. The Supreme Court, in holding the other heirs were not indispensable parties and denying the peremptory writ, discussed which parties were indispensable. It stated that there may be some persons whose interests, rights, or duties will inevitably be affected by any decree that can be rendered in the action such as in situations when a number of persons have undetermined interests in the same property and one of them seeks, in an action, to recover the whole, to fix his or her share, or to recover a portion (16 Cal. 2d 516, 521) . The other persons with similar interests are indispensable parties as a judgment would affect their rights since a judgment in favor of one claimant for part of the property or fund would necessarily determine the amount or extent of what remains available to the others (16 Cal. 2d 516, 521) . Thus, the Court stated, in an action by one creditor against assignees for the benefit of creditors seeking an accounting and payment of his share of the assets, the other creditors were held indispensable; and in an action by plaintiff to enforce a trust, when he claimed the property in his own right, to the exclusion of another actual beneficiary, failure to join the latter was held fatal to the judgment (16 Cal. 2d 516, 521-522). Also, when the plaintiff seeks some other type of affirmative relief that, if granted, would injure or affect the interests of a third person not joined, that third person is an indispensable party. Thus, in an action by a lessor against a sublessee to forfeit a parent lease because of acts of the sublessee, the sublessors (original lessees) were indispensable parties, since a decree of forfeiture would deprive them of their lease, and in a suit to cancel illegal registration of voters, all voters whose registration was challenged were indispensable parties (16 Cal. 2d 516, 522) . The Court stated that all of these persons are, of course, "necessary" parties, but the decisions show that they come within a special classification of necessary parties, to which the term "indispensable" seems appropriate (16 Cal. 2d 516, 522).

Covarrubias v. James (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 129, 98 Cal. Rptr. 257 , was a taxpayers' action to restrain defendants, a city and certain public agencies and officials, from disbursing public funds on a named public construction project and on unspecified future public construction projects on the ground the building trade unions that would supply skilled workers to the subcontractors engaged by the general contractors discriminated against racial minorities. Neither the general contractor on the named construction project nor any other contractor, subcontractor, or union was joined as a defendant. Defendants' general and special demurrers to the amended complaint were sustained without leave to amend on the ground, among others, that the general contractor, subcontractors, and unions whose practices were challenged were indispensable parties. Plaintiffs appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal, and the court of appeal affirmed. The court stated that California courts have consistently held that when a plaintiff seeks some type of affirmative relief that, if granted, would injure or affect the interests of a third person not joined, that third person is an indispensable party, and that under this definition the contractor, the anonymously mentioned subcontractors, and the unions alluded to in the complaint were indispensable parties, due to the impact of the case on their contracts and collective bargaining agreements (21 Cal. App. 3d 129, 133) . The court held that the nonjoined persons were indispensable parties as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 389 prior to its 1971 revision. Under the former wording, an indispensable party was defined as one (1) whose absence would prevent the court from rendering any effective judgment between the parties, or (2) whose absence would seriously prejudice any party before the court, or (3) whose interest would be inequitably affected or jeopardized by a judgment rendered between the parties. The substance of this definition is incorporated in the present Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a) [see Paragraph B of form, above], and the factors to be considered by the court under Code Civ. Proc. § 389(b) [see Comments, Dismissal of Action, above].

See also Ursino v. Superior Court (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 611, 617-618, 114 Cal. Rptr. 404 ; Hebbard v. Colgrove (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 1017, 1026, 105 Cal. Rptr. 172 ; Irwin v. City of Manhattan Beach (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 634, 637-638, 38 Cal. Rptr. 875 ; Thomson v. Talbert Drainage Dist. (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 687, 689, 336 P.2d 174 ; Miracle Adhesives v. Peninsula Tile Assn. (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 591, 593, 321 P.2d 482 .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.67

§ 71.67 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Defect or Misjoinder of Parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(d)]--Misjoinder of Party

[1] FORM Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Defect or Misjoinder of Parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(d)]--Misjoinder of Party

[Caption. See § 71.20.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE SUSTAINED BECAUSE THERE IS A MISJOINDER OF PARTIES.

A. Objection by Demurrer. The party against whom a complaint has been filed may object to it by demurrer on the ground there is a misjoinder of parties when the ground of objection appears on the face of the complaint [or from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice] (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(d), 430.30(a)).

[EITHER]

B. Improper Plaintiff. A person may be joined as a plaintiff only if he, she, or it either (1) asserts a right to relief jointly, severally, or in the alternative, in respect of or a rising out of the same transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences and a question of law or fact common to all plaintiffs will arise in the action or (2) the person has a claim, right, or interest adverse to defendant in the _____ [property or controversy] that is the subject of the action (Code Civ. Proc. § 378(a)). A plaintiff who meets neither of these requirements is an improperly joined plaintiff (Coleman v. Twin Coast Newspaper, Inc. (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 650, 653-654, 346 P.2d 488).

[OR]

B. Improper Defendant. A person may be joined as a defendant in an action if either (1) there is asserted against him, her, or it any right to relief jointly, severally, or in the alternative, in respect of or arising out of the same transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences and if any question of law or fact common to all defendants will arise in the action; or (2) there is asserted against him, her, or it any claim, right, or interest in the property or controversy that is the subject of the action (Code Civ. Proc. § 379(a)). A plaintiff may also, if in doubt as to the person from whom he or she is entitled to redress, join two or more defendants with the intent that the question as to which, if any, of them is liable and to what extent may be determined between the parties (Code Civ. Proc. § 379(c)). Finally, a plaintiff may join as a defendant a person who should have been joined as plaintiff but whose consent to such joinder could not be obtained, the reason for the joinder of such person as defendant being stated in the complaint (Code Civ. Proc. § 382). A defendant who comes within none of the above categories is an improperly joined defendant (see Farmers Ins. Exchange v. Adams (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 712, 722, 216 Cal. Rptr. 287 ; Hoag v. Superior Court (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 611, 618, 620, 24 Cal. Rptr. 659).

[CONTINUE]

[Optional] C. No Charging Allegation. A defendant who is not charged in the complaint with any act giving rise to liability to plaintiff for the cause of action sued on is not a proper party to the action (Gardner v. Samuels (1897)116 Cal. 84, 88, 47 P. 935).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in support of a special demurrer to a complaint when it appears on the face of the complaint or from judicially noticed matter that there is a misjoinder of parties. For discussion relating to judicial notice generally, see § 71.21[2].

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should argue, from facts appearing on the face of the complaint or of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice, that a party to the action does not possess the requisite community of interest necessary to allow permissive joinder [see Coleman v. Twin Coast Newspaper, Inc. (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 650, 653-654, 346 P.2d 488 , discussed under § 71.67[3][b]].

[b] No Charging Allegation

With respect to the point set forth in Optional Paragraph C in the body of the foregoing form, although demurrers on the ground of misjoinder of parties defendant have been filed and sustained under the circumstances set out in that paragraph, as shown by the authorities cited under 71.67[3] and [4]. it would appear that the proper ground of objection would be failure to state a cause of action under Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e) rather than misjoinder [see, e.g., Converse v. Joslin (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 638, 642-643, 645, 649, 1 Cal. Rptr. 777 (general demurrer of defendant whose name appeared only in title of action and nowhere else in complaint properly sustained without leave to amend)]. The objection that there is a misjoinder of parties defendant, strictly speaking, should lie only in the situation described in the alternative Paragraphs B of the form.

[c] Waiver of Objection

The objection that there is a misjoinder of parties is waived if not raised by demurrer or answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(a); see also Follansbee v. Benzenberg (1954) 122 Cal. App. 2d 466, 474-475, 265 P.2d 183 ; Shahabian v. Najarian (1936) 14 Cal. App. 2d 435, 441-442, 58 P.2d 396] .

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of demurrer on the ground of misjoinder of parties, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings § 206.127 in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in §§ 71.84 and 71.85 may be used to oppose the special demurrer supported by the foregoing memorandum.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.60[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Objection by Demurrer

Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10 provides that a party against whom a complaint or cross complaint has been filed may object to it by demurrer or answer, as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30, on the ground "(d) There is a ... misjoinder of parties." Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a) provides that when any ground for objection to a complaint or cross complaint appears on the face thereof, or from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice, the objection on that ground may be taken by a demurrer to the pleading.

Counsel should note that once the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 378(a) (set out in first Paragraph B of form) are met, it is not necessary that each plaintiff be interested as to every cause of action or as to all relief prayed for and that judgment may be given for one or more of the plaintiffs according to their respective right to relief (Code Civ. Proc. § 378(b)).

[b] Improper Plaintiff

Coleman v. Twin Coast Newspaper, Inc. (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 650, 346 P.2d 488 , arose from actions by three chiropractors against an employee of the State Food and Health Department, an investigator of the State Board of Medical Examiners, Twin Coast Newspaper, Inc., and several Doe defendants. Each plaintiff set forth a separate cause of action against the three named defendants sounding in trespass; each also set forth a separate second cause of action against two of the named defendants for damages for conversion. Thus, the complaint contained six separate causes of action, each of which referred only to the particular plaintiff involved. Although each plaintiff alleged a conspiracy among the defendants in committing the trespasses, the complaint contained no allegation to the effect that there was any community of interest among the three plaintiffs in any respect whatsoever. The State Food and Health Department employee demurred to the third amended complaint on the ground of misjoinder of parties plaintiff. The demurrer was sustained on that ground in that the causes of action alleged by each plaintiff were not only separate and distinct from the causes of action alleged by the other two plaintiffs, but that the causes of action of each plaintiff were based on a transaction entirely separate and distinct from the transactions giving rise to the causes of action of the other two. On plaintiffs' failure to file a fourth amended complaint, a judgment dismissing the actions as against the demurring defendant was entered and plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The court stated that the ruling of the trial court was clearly correct. The court quoted Code Civ. Proc. § 378 as it then read (which in substance is the same as the current provisions of that section) and said that the purpose of the section was to permit joinder in one action of several causes arising out of identical, related transactions and involving common issues and that the section applied to tort actions as well as to contract actions. The court pointed out that Code Civ. Proc. § 378 permits permissive joinder of parties plaintiff in two situations: (1) when there exists both a common interest in the subject of the action and any question of law or fact common to all the plaintiffs, and (2) when there exists both a right to relief arising out of the same transaction or series of transactions and any common question of law or fact (175 Cal. App. 2d 650, 653) . The court said that in the case before it three separate and distinct plaintiffs were suing to recover damages for alleged trespasses on separate and distinct premises and for alleged conversions of separate and distinct property. Clearly, these events did not constitute a single transaction and nothing was alleged to indicate a related series of transactions. The only fact that appeared in the complaint was that three chiropractors, practicing in the same city, underwent scrutiny during the course of the same day. The community of interest necessary to allow permissive joinder under Code Civ. Proc. § 378 was entirely lacking (175 Cal. App. 2d 650, 654) .

[c] Improper Defendant

Note that once the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 379(a) [see second alternative Paragraph B of form] are met, it is not necessary that each defendant be interested as to every cause of action or as to all relief prayed for [Code Civ. Proc. § 379(b)]. Judgment may then be given against one or more defendants according to their respective liabilities [Code Civ. Proc. § 379(b)].

In Farmers Ins. Exchange v. Adams (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 712, 216 Cal. Rptr. 287 , an insurance company brought an action for declaratory relief against several homeowner insureds, seeking a declaration that the plaintiff's policies do not provide coverage for damages or losses arising out of a heavy storm that damaged defendants' property because of subsurface and ground water and earth movement conditions. Defendants demurred on various grounds, including the contention that there was misjoinder of the various defendant insureds. The trial court sustained the demurrers without leave to amend and dismissed the amended complaint. Judgment was entered and the plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The court noted that the trial court sustained the demurrer on the ground of misjoinder of defendants because of the need to individually analyze the causation question with regard to each insured. Citing Code Civ. Proc. § 379, the court stated that joinder was inappropriate because the insurance company's alleged right to declaratory relief against the numerous insureds did not arise out of the same transaction or occurrence (170 Cal. App. 3d 712, 722-723) . Although the same storm played a role in the damage to the property of all the defendants, noted the court, it could not be said that all the claims of the insureds arose out of the same transaction or occurrences. The court found it improper to label the damage to innumerable types of structures, occurring at widely separated locations within the state, resulting from a myriad of causes, and under various conditions as the "same transaction or occurrence" within the meaning of § 379. Thus, the trial court properly sustained the demurrer on the ground of misjoinder (170 Cal. App. 3d 712, 723) .

Hoag v. Superior Court (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 611, 24 Cal. Rptr. 659 , was a mandate proceeding to compel transfer from the Los Angeles Superior Court to the Orange County Superior Court of three alleged causes of action against petitioner in a complaint for damages for invasion of privacy filed by three separate plaintiffs. Each plaintiff had set forth a separate cause of action against each of the four defendants for a total of 12 causes of action. The actions arose out of the alleged unauthorized use by defendants at separate times and places of mug shots of plaintiffs taken by the San Francisco police department. No conspiracy or concerted action among the defendants was alleged. With respect to the three defendants other than petitioner, at least one of whom resided in Los Angeles County, the unauthorized use took place at different times and places in Los Angeles County. Petitioner's unauthorized use was alleged to have occurred in San Bernardino County. Petitioner's motion in the trial court for change of venue with respect to the actions alleged against him to his county of residence (Orange County), pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 395 was denied.

The court of appeal issued a peremptory writ of mandate directing the trial court to transfer the three causes of action alleged against petitioner on the ground there had been a misjoinder of actions and a misjoinder of parties defendant. With respect to misjoinder of parties, the court said that although the modern joinder statutes are to be liberally construed and applied, neither the statutes nor the case law in California permit unlimited joinder and that while defendants may be joined even though each named defendant is not a party to, or interested in, or affected by every count pleaded in the complaint, there must be some sort of factual nexus connecting or associating the claim pleaded against the several defendants (207 Cal. App. 2d 611, 618). The court stated that in the instant case, there was no allegation of conspiracy, community of interest, or concerted action in any respect. The complaint demonstrated no doubt as to the person from whom plaintiffs claimed they were entitled to redress, nor was there any showing that the acts of defendants operated successively to cause the injury for which recovery was sought. There was no one cause in which all defendants were interested or affected (207 Cal. App. 2d 611, 618-619) . The court further pointed out that the existence of possible common questions of law and fact was insufficient in itself to permit joinder (207 Cal. App. 2d 611, 620) .

See also Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 744, 748, 76 Cal. Rptr. 909 (improper joinder of actions and defendants in action by utility company against three separate insurance companies and a number of their insureds for damages to plaintiff's telephone poles arising out of 17 separate and unrelated automobile collisions).

[d] No Charging Allegation

Gardner v. Samuels (1897) 116 Cal. 84, 47 P. 935 , was an action to recover the value of improvements placed by plaintiff lessee on leased premises during the term of the lease. The lease permitted, but did not obligate, plaintiff to place improvements on the property but provided that if he did so the lessor would pay him their value, not to exceed $1,500, on termination of the lease. The lessor refused to comply with this agreement. Named as defendants were the lessor and the person to whom he had sold the property some 18 months after the lease terminated. Each defendant demurred separately to the complaint on the grounds of failure to state a cause of action and misjoinder of parties defendant. The demurrers were sustained and plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment.

The Supreme Court held that the purchaser's demurrer was properly sustained on the ground of misjoinder of parties defendant because the lessor's agreement to pay for the improvements was not a covenant that could be enforced against the subsequent purchaser of the land and that on breach of the agreement plaintiff had merely a right of action against the lessor that was purely personal and that was not assumed by the purchaser when he subsequently became the owner of the land (116 Cal. 84, 88). The court reversed the judgment as to the lessor, however, on the ground the complaint stated a cause of action against him and he could not object to the misjoinder of the purchaser without showing that his interests were affected by the misjoinder (116 Cal. 84, 90-91) . This point is discussed in § 71.85 opposing demurrer on ground of misjoinder of parties.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Improper Plaintiff

Gonzales v. State of California (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 621, 137 Cal. Rptr. 681 , was a class action brought by plaintiffs on their own behalf and on behalf of others who had or would have had their convictions for misdemeanor drunk driving under former Veh. Code § 23102(a) [now see Veh. Code § 23152(a)] declared unconstitutional to establish and enforce a constructive trust naming the state as trustee of fines or penalties paid pursuant to the convictions. Defendant's demurrer to the amended complaint on the ground, among others, that there was a misjoinder of parties plaintiff was sustained and the action was dismissed on plaintiffs' motion, plaintiffs having elected to stand on their amended pleading. In affirming the judgment, the court of appeal concluded that the demurrer for misjoinder of parties was properly sustained since the allegations of the complaint did not establish facts necessary to constitute a class action. There was not a cognizable and manageable class of plaintiffs and the utilization of a class action would not serve the ends of justice. The court explained that the complaint not only sought to encompass convictions that had been declared constitutionally invalid but also all those that in the future might fit into this category (68 Cal. App. 3d 621, 629) . The court concluded that because a manageable class had not been defined, the demurrer on the misjoinder ground had been properly sustained (68 Cal. App. 3d 621, 630) .

[b] Improper Defendant

Oppenheimer v. Ashburn (1959) 173 Cal. App. 2d 624, 343 P.2d 931 , was an action against associate justices of the court of appeal to recover statutory damages under Penal Code § 1505. At that time, Penal Code § 1505 provided that if any judge, after a proper application is made, refuses to grant an order for a writ of habeas corpus, or if the officer or person to whom such writ may be directed, refuses obedience to the command thereof, he shall forfeit and pay to the person aggrieved a sum not exceeding $5,000 (now $10,000) to be recovered by action in any court of competent jurisdiction. The complaint charged three associate justices on a division of a court of appeal with having "willfully and unlawfully" on August 14, 1957, denied plaintiff a writ of habeas corpus and sought $5,000 from each justice. Thereafter, plaintiff amended his complaint repleading the above cause of action as count I and including a second count against three additional associate justices charging them with having violated Penal Code § 1505 on December 26, 1956, and seeking recovery of statutory damages from them. The justices named in the second count demurred on the grounds of failure to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, misjoinder of actions (no longer a ground of demurrer), and misjoinder of parties defendant. The demurrer was sustained with leave to amend and, on plaintiff's failure to amend, a judgment of dismissal as to these judges was entered.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment of dismissal. The court held that the general demurrer was properly sustained since the material allegations of the complaint were conclusionary averments only, which are not admitted by demurrer, and that the special demurrers for misjoinder of actions and parties were properly sustained. In this latter regard the court said that the alleged tortious denial by the judges in count I and count II constituted independent and disconnected events, separated in time by more than seven months, that respondents are merely persons who were alleged to have committed the same type of tort as the defendants named in count I, and that they had no interest in the subject matter of count I (173 Cal. App. 2d 624, 634) .

The court also held Penal Code § 1505 unconstitutional as a violation of the separation of powers doctrine. The section was amended in 1959 to delete the reference to judges Stats. 1959, ch. 559].

[c] No Charging Allegation

Helfrich v. Kerley (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 726, 13 Cal. Rptr. 753 , was an action by plaintiff individually and as assignee of two named associates against Kerley, a corporation, and others to recover an undivided one-third interest in land purchased at a probate sale by Kerley in the name of the corporation that was alleged to be Kerley's alter ego. Under the agreement Kerley was to bid for the land up to a specified amount. Plaintiff's group was to pay one third of the purchase price and of the expenses of purchase, and Kerley, if successful in acquiring the land, agreed to convey an undivided one-third interest to plaintiff's group. The complaint alleged that in reliance on Kerley's promise plaintiff did not bid, that Kerley acting through his alleged alter ego corporation was the successful bidder and acquired the land, that Kerley refused to perform the agreement, and that he never intended to perform his promises. The demurrer to plaintiff's second amended complaint was sustained without leave to amend and plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment with directions to overrule the general demurrer, sustain the special demurrers, and grant plaintiff a reasonable time to amend. The court concluded that the allegation of actual fraud that induced plaintiff and his associates not to bid and permitted Kerley to bid without competition was sufficient to permit imposition of a constructive trust and because the corporation was alleged to be Kerley's alter ego, the trust could be enforced against it. With respect to the demurrer for misjoinder of parties defendant, the court pointed out that the complaint did not allege that defendant Spect had taken part in the alleged fraud or had any interest in the subject real property and was misjoined. The court said that there was no allegation that would show him to be a proper party (192 Cal. App. 2d 726, 729) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.68

§ 71.68 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Pleading Is Uncertain [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f)]--Material Allegations Left to Surmise

[1] FORM Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Pleading Is Uncertain [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f)]--Material Allegations Left to Surmise

[Caption. See § 71.20.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT ON THE GROUND OF UNCERTAINTY SHOULD BE SUSTAINED BECAUSE ALLEGATIONS OF MATERIAL FACTS ARE LEFT TO SURMISE.

A. Objection by Demurrer. The party against whom a complaint has been filed may object to it by demurrer on the ground the complaint is uncertain when the ground of objection appears on the face of the complaint (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(f), 430.30(a)). The term "uncertain" in this context includes ambiguous and unintelligible (Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f)).

B. Matters Left to Surmise. Mere recitals, references to, or allegations of material facts that are left to surmise are subject to a special demurrer for uncertainty (Bernstein v. Piller (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 441, 443-444, 220 P.2d 558 ; see also Ankeny v. Lockheed Missiles & Space Co. (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 531, 537, 151 Cal. Rptr. 828).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in support of a special demurrer to a complaint when the complaint is uncertain (which term includes ambiguous [see § 71.70] and unintelligible [see § 71.71] in that material allegations are left to surmise).

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, if the complaint alleges that the defendant has enticed customers of the plaintiff to sever their business relationships with the plaintiffs and instead patronize defendant's business, but omitted the names of the customers, counsel would refer to the allegation and omission, arguing that defendant is left to surmise the particulars of the wrongful conduct he or she is alleged to have committed and for that reason, the special demurrer should be sustained [see Bernstein v. Piller (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 441, 444, 220 P.2d 558 , discussed under § 71.68[3][b]].

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, the foregoing memorandum may be used in support of a special demurrer to an answer to a complaint or cross complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(b), 430.30(a)] or to a single defense in the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.50(b)].

[c] Waiver of Objection

The objection that the pleading is uncertain is waived if not raised by demurrer or answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(a); see also Cutting Fruit Packing Co. v. Canty (1904) 141 Cal. 692, 695, 75 P. 564 ; Cole v. Segraves (1891) 88 Cal. 103, 105, 25 P. 1109 ; Stockton Newspapers, Inc. v. Redevelopment Agency (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 95, 103, 214 Cal. Rptr. 561] .

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of demurrers to the complaint and to the answer on the ground of uncertainty, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings § 206.128, in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in § 71.86 may be used to oppose the special demurrer supported by the foregoing memorandum.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.60[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Objection by Demurrer

Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10 provides that a party against whom a complaint or cross complaint has been filed may object to it by demurrer or answer, as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30, on the ground "(f) The pleading is uncertain. As used in this subdivision, 'uncertain' includes ambiguous and unintelligible." Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a) provides that when any ground for objection to a complaint or cross complaint appears on the face thereof, or from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice, the objection on that ground may be taken by a demurrer to the pleading.

[b] Matters Left to Surmise

Bernstein v. Piller (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 441, 220 P.2d 558 , was an action for an injunction, an accounting, and damages for an alleged conspiracy and wrongful use of plaintiffs' secret lists and processes. The complaint alleged that defendant Piller had been a former partner of plaintiffs in the collection service business, that the other defendants were former employees of plaintiffs, that defendant Piller in January 1948 sold his interest in the partnership to plaintiffs, and that in January 1949 defendants formed a partnership for the purpose of conducting a collection service business. Paragraph XXIX of the complaint further alleged, "3. That Defendants have endeavored to induce various employees of Plaintiffs to leave the employ of Plaintiffs and to enter the employ of Defendants. ... 5. That Defendants have solicited customers and clientele obtained from said secret and confidential list of Plaintiffs' customers. 6. That Defendants have attempted to induce and entice and have actually induced and enticed various of said Plaintiffs' customers and clientele to sever their business relationships with Plaintiffs and instead to patronize Defendants. ..." Defendants demurred specially to the complaint on the ground the quoted paragraphs were uncertain in that it could not be ascertained how defendants endeavored to induce various employees of plaintiffs to leave plaintiffs' employ and enter defendants' employ or the names of such employees and that it could not be ascertained what customers defendants had solicited, or what customers defendants had attempted to induce and entice and had actually induced and enticed, to sever their business relationships with plaintiffs and instead to patronize defendants' business. The demurrers were sustained. On plaintiffs' failure to amend within the time allowed, the court dismissed the action and plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The court stated that in pleading, the essential facts on which a determination of the controversy depends should be stated with clearness and precision so that nothing is left to surmise (98 Cal. App. 2d 441, 443) . Mere recitals, references to or allegations of material facts that are left to surmise are subject to a special demurrer for uncertainty (98 Cal. App. 2d 441, 443-444) . The court held that the complaint was uncertain in the particulars specified because it did not give (a) the names of the employees of plaintiffs or any of them whom defendants endeavored to induce to leave plaintiffs' employ, (b) the names of any of the customers or clients defendants allegedly obtained from the secret and confidential list of plaintiffs' customers, and the names of the customers or clients of plaintiffs whom defendants had attempted to induce or had actually induced to sever their business relationships with plaintiffs (98 Cal. App. 2d 441, 444).

The facts and procedural background of Ankeny v. Lockheed Missiles & Space Co. (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 531, 151 Cal. Rptr. 828 , are discussed in § 71.70[4][a]. In holding that the trial court was correct in sustaining defendant's special demurrer to the complaint for uncertainty, the court of appeal said that, in pleading, the essential facts on which a determination of the controversy depends should be stated with clearness and precision so that nothing is left to surmise and, citing Bernstein v. Piller (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 441, 443-444, 220 P.2d 558 , discussed above, said that those recitals, references to, or allegations of material facts that are left to surmise are subject to special demurrer for uncertainty (88 Cal. App. 3d 531, 537) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Matters Left to Surmise

The facts and procedural background of Gonzales v. State of California (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 621, 137 Cal. Rptr. 681 , are discussed in § 71.67[4][a]. Defendant demurred to the amended complaint on the ground, among others, that the complaint was uncertain. One of its objections on this latter ground was that the complaint did not make clear whether the convictions that had been declared unconstitutional had been so declared on appeal or on a collateral attack; defendant sought clarity of this matter on the ground that if the complaint disclosed that the convictions were declared constitutionally invalid as the result of a collateral attack plaintiffs could not state a cause of action. The demurrer was sustained on all the grounds set forth in it with leave to amend. Plaintiffs chose not to amend and the action was, on plaintiffs' motion, dismissed. In affirming the judgment, the court of appeal held that plaintiffs' failure to set forth clearly how or in what manner the convictions had been declared constitutionally invalid rendered the complaint vulnerable to demurrer for uncertainty and that the demurrer had been properly sustained (68 Cal. App. 3d 621, 634) .

In a footnote the court pointed out that plaintiffs also failed to allege the amounts of the fines and/or penalties assessed for which they sought recovery, but that this element of uncertainty had not been specified as a basis for the special demurrer (68 Cal. App. 3d 621, 634 n.5). With respect to the ground of special demurrer that was upheld, the court added that the nonalleged matter was material to plaintiffs' cause of action and would also have been ground for a general demurrer because it was an uncertainty with regards to matters not alleged that were essential to the cause of action (68 Cal. App. 3d 621, 634) .

Hege v. Worthington, Park & Worthington (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 670, 26 Cal. Rptr. 132 , was an action against a building contractor, its surety, a law firm, and others arising out of the contractor's failure to complete construction of a residence for plaintiff. The law firm was joined on the ground it had been retained by plaintiff to prosecute plaintiff's action against the contractor and surety and had allowed the statute of limitations to run. With respect to the cause of action against the surety, the third amended complaint alleged that the surety had issued a bond to ensure faithful performance of the contract for construction of the residence, that the contractor had defaulted and abandoned its contract, that the surety elected and agreed to complete the contract on behalf of the contractor, and that in spite of that fact, the surety failed, neglected, and refused to do so, to plaintiff's damage in the sums set forth. The surety demurred to this cause of action both generally and specially on the grounds of misjoinder of actions (no longer a ground of demurrer) and uncertainty. The general demurrer was overruled but the special demurrer was sustained with leave to amend and plaintiff elected not to amend.

On the subsequent appeal from the judgment for defendants, the court of appeal reversed various portions of the judgment but affirmed it insofar as it was based on the order sustaining the surety's special demurrer for uncertainty. The court pointed out that the demurrer alleged that count two of the complaint was uncertain in that it failed to give the date the surety refused to complete the contract; whether the residence had ever been occupied or used; the date the surety ceased work on the dwelling; in what respect the surety failed, neglected, and refused to complete the contract; and whether plaintiff was alleging that the surety refused to complete the contract in each of the respects in which the contractor failed to complete it. The court held that all these matters were ones the surety was entitled to be informed about in the complaint (209 Cal. App. 2d 670, 682) .

See also Burke v. Maguire (1908) 154 Cal. 456, 467, 98 P. 21 (inadequate description of property in action based on fraudulent concealment of property); Warren v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 24, 36, 96 Cal. Rptr. 317 (defect in description of property in quiet title complaint); Hills Trans. Co. v. Southwest Forest Industries, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 702, 707-708, 72 Cal. Rptr. 441 (complaint for damages for fraud uncertain in numerous respects); Ingram v. Glissman (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 418, 421-422, 302 P.2d 640 (complaint against surety on broker's bond for broker's defalcations uncertain in numerous respects); Geo. Pepperdine Foundation v. Pepperdine (1954) 126 Cal. App. 2d 154, 162-163, 271 P.2d 600 (complaint by nonprofit charitable corporation against its former directors for damages resulting from alleged mismanagement of corporation's affairs during their incumbencies uncertain in numerous respects; case disapproved on another point in Holt v. College of Osteopathic Physicians & Surgeons (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 750, 757, 40 Cal. Rptr. 244, 394 P.2d 932); Corum v. Hartford Acc. & Ind. Co. (1945) 67 Cal. App. 2d 891, 894, 155 P.2d 710 (complaint by plaintiff, who had been injured when hit by car of defendant's insured, to recover under insurance policy as alleged third-party beneficiary failed to allege date of accident); Craig v. City of Los Angeles (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 71, 73, 111 P.2d 977 (disjointed and incoherent complaint in action for damages for alleged conspiracy to defraud); Powell v. Lampton (1938) 30 Cal. App. 2d 43, 45-46, 85 P.2d 495 (complaint uncertain in its pleading of another action that might have constituted a plea in bar to the present action on the ground of es judicata or a plea in abatement on the ground of another action pending); Butler v. Wyman (1933) 128 Cal. App. 736, 740, 18 P.2d 354 (complaint inaction for damages for personal injuries uncertain in raising doubt as to whether plaintiff at time of injury was in defendant's employ and injured in course of employment); Lapique v. Ruef (1916) 30 Cal. App. 391, 392, 158 P. 339 (complaint uncertain and ambiguous in that it was not clear whether causes of action sued on were founded on alleged injuries to plaintiff's person, to his property, or to his character, or on injury to property of another, and whether acts complained of were committed by defendants in their individual capacities or in one of other capacities in which they were alleged to have acted).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.69

§ 71.69 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Pleading Is Uncertain [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f)]--Material Time or Date Omitted

[1] FORM Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Pleading Is Uncertain [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f)]--Material Time or Date Omitted

[Caption. See § 71.20.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT ON THE GROUND OF UNCERTAINTY SHOULD BE SUSTAINED BECAUSE THE COMPLAINT FAILS TO STATE THE DATE OR TIME THE ISSUABLE FACTS ALLEGED OCCURRED.

A. Objection by Demurrer. [See § 71.68, Paragraph A.]

B. Failure to Specify Time or Date. A complaint that fails to state the date or time of the issuable facts averred is uncertain and subject to demurrer on that ground (Kraner v. Halsey (1889) 82 Cal. 209, 212, 22 P. 1137 ; Gonzales v. State of California (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 621, 634, 137 Cal. Rptr. 681).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in support of a special demurrer for uncertainty when the complaint fails to state the date or time the issuable facts averred occurred.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel would the point out the omission from the face of the pleading, arguing, for example, that the date is essential to ascertain whether action is barred by the statute of limitations.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in § 71.86 may be used to oppose the special demurrer supported by the foregoing memorandum.

See also §§ 71.60[2] and 71.68[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Specify Time or Date

Kraner v. Halsey (1889) 82 Cal. 209, 22 P. 1137 , was an action to recover money paid by plaintiff at defendant's request. The complaint failed to state the date and time the issuable facts took place. Defendant demurred on the grounds the complaint failed to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, the action was barred by the statute of limitations, and the complaint was uncertain, ambiguous, and unintelligible. The demurrer was sustained and plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment with directions to overrule the demurrer. The Court held that the complaint sufficiently stated a cause of action, that since dates and times were omitted it could not be ascertained from the face of the complaint whether or not the action was barred by the statute of limitations, and that the complaint was uncertain in having omitted the times and dates the issuable facts occurred. The court, however, held that the complaint was neither ambiguous nor unintelligible and that since these three grounds (uncertain, ambiguous, and unintelligible) were stated in the conjunctive and only one such ground appeared, the trial court erred in sustaining the demurrer on these grounds (82 Cal. 209, 211-212) .

It is to be noted that at the time the Kraner case decided, uncertainty, ambiguity, and unintelligibility each constituted a separate ground of demurrer. Under present law, ambiguity and unintelligibility are not separate grounds of demurrer, but, rather, are included in the word "uncertain." A principal reason a defendant may have for wanting the dates and times the issuable events occurred alleged is to expose the fact that the action is barred by the statute of limitations. Defendant will then file a demurrer to the amended complaint raising the objection that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that it shows on its face that the action is barred by the statute of limitations. For points and authorities in support of such a demurrer, see Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions .

The facts and procedural background of Gonzales v. State of California (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 621, 137 Cal. Rptr. 681 , are discussed in § 71.67[4][a]. Defendant demurred to the amended complaint on the ground, among others, that the complaint was uncertain. One of its objections on this latter ground was that the complaint failed to set forth when the alleged causes of action arose, when the setting aside of the previous convictions occurred, or when the filing of the claim with the State Board of Control was made. The demurrer was sustained on all the grounds set forth in it with leave to amend. Plaintiffs chose not to amend and the action was, on plaintiffs' motion, dismissed. In affirming the judgment the court of appeal held that the complaint was objectionable in failing to set forth when the alleged causes of action arose and when the setting aside of the previous convictions occurred and that the demurrer for uncertainty was properly sustained (68 Cal. App. 3d 621, 634) .

Note that the court added that the foregoing matters were material to plaintiffs' cause of action and would also have been grounds for general demurrer because they were uncertainties with regard to matters not alleged that were essential to the cause of action (68 Cal. App. 3d 621, 634) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to Specify Time or Date

Geo. Pepperdine Foundation v. Pepperdine (1954) 126 Cal. App. 2d 154, 271 P.2d 600 , was an action by a nonprofit charitable corporation against its former directors for damages resulting from mismanagement of the corporation's affairs during their incumbencies. General and special demurrers to the second amended complaint were sustained and the action was dismissed on plaintiff's failure to amend. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. With respect to the demurrers for uncertainty, the appellate court held that the complaint was uncertain in numerous respects. Among these, were the following: "While actions for negligence are barred after the lapse of two years from the act complained of, no dates are given whereby it can be ascertained which investments were made after February 6, 1950. Neither can it be ascertained which notes were sold after that date, or which transactions were completed prior to February 6, 1952, the date the action was filed." (126 Cal. App. 2d 154, 162) and, "It is alleged that the directors advanced $95,000 to Albert Nobell between January 6, 1948, and July 18, 1950. It is not certain what significance should be ascribed to such allegations. The failure to allege specific dates of such advances makes an intelligible answer impossible. Appellant has custody of all its books and correspondence; respondents have none of them. The dates of the occurrences of such events must be alleged with certainty." (126 Cal. App. 2d 154, 162-163) .

Note:

This case was disapproved on another point in Holt v. College of Osteopathic Physicians & Surgeons (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 750, 757, 40 Cal. Rptr. 244, 394 P.2d 932 .

See also Hills Trans. Co. v. Southwest Forest Industries, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 702, 706, 72 Cal. Rptr. 441 (complaint in action for damages for breach of contract uncertain as to duration of contract); Hege v. Worthington, Park & Worthington (1962)209 Cal. App. 2d 670, 682, 26 Cal. Rptr. 132 (discussed in § 71.68[4][a]); Corum v. Hartford Acc. & Ind. Co. (1945) 67 Cal. App. 2d 891 , 894, 155 P.2d 710 (complaint alleging accident occurred "on a date well known to defendant" rather than alleging date).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.70

§ 71.70 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Pleading Is Uncertain [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f)]--Meaning of Allegations Ambiguous or Doubtful

[1] FORM Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Pleading Is Uncertain [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f)]--Meaning of Allegations Ambiguous or Doubtful

[Caption. See § 71.20.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT ON THE GROUND OF UNCERTAINTY SHOULD BE SUSTAINED BECAUSE THE MEANING OF THE ALLEGATIONS OF THE PLEADING ARE AMBIGUOUS, THAT IS, DOUBTFUL.

A. Objection by Demurrer. [See § 71.68, Paragraph A.]

B. Meaning Doubtful. A complaint is uncertain, which term includes ambiguous, when because of lack of clarity in pleading or inconsistency between allegations, its meaning is doubtful as to the theory of liability or basis of recovery, or as to other material matters (Crow v. Hildreth (1870) 39 Cal. 618, 620 ; Oppenheimer v. General Cable Corp. (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 293, 298, 300 P.2d 151).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in support of a special demurrer for uncertainty if the meaning of the allegations in the complaint is doubtful and hence ambiguous.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus counsel would identify conflicting allegations in the complaint, by paragraph number. For example, if a complaint in a breach of employment contract action contains in a single cause of action, allegations that plaintiff's damages resulted from wrongful discharge and from defendant's failure to give the employee the position for which the employee applied, counsel would argue that the conflict renders the defendant unable to prepare a defense and the court should therefore sustain the demurrer [see Oppenheimer v. General Cable Corp. (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 293, 298, 300 P.2d 151 , discussed under § 71.70[3][a]].

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in § 71.86 may be used to oppose the special demurrer supported by the foregoing memorandum.

See also §§ 71.60[2] and 71.68[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Meaning Doubtful

Crow v. Hildreth (1870) 39 Cal. 618 , was an action for damages for the alleged breach of an agreement. In one part of the complaint plaintiff alleged that the agreement breached was one to make a lease and in another part of the complaint that the agreement was a lease. This doubt as to the nature of the agreement was not clarified by the allegation as to the breach since it was to the effect that defendants had "wholly neglected, failed and refused to comply with the terms of their said agreement or to keep and perform any of their covenants, though often requested so to do." Defendants' demurrer to the complaint was overruled and they appealed from the subsequent judgment for plaintiff.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment with directions to the trial court to sustain the demurrer. The Court stated that the demurrer should have been sustained on the ground of ambiguity (now uncertainty) and that this was not a mere matter of form since plaintiffs would been titled to a different measure of damages if it were a lease than they would be entitled to if it were a contract for a lease (39 Cal. 618, 620) .

Oppenheimer v. General Cable Corp. (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 293, 300 P.2d 151 , was an action for declaratory relief or damages for breach of contract. Plaintiff was employed by defendant corporation and working pursuant to an employment contract between defendant and a labor union acting as a collective bargaining agent. The contract required defendant to recognize the principle of seniority in cases of layoffs, transfers, promotions, and filling vacancies and to fill vacancies by transfer or promotion of employees within defendant's respective units. Plaintiff alleged he was hired by defendant on October 28, 1955, that on November 30, 1955, defendant declared a vacancy in the position of raw materials and cost control clerk and invited applications from its employees, that plaintiff applied, that a few days later defendant hired a new employee to replace him in his current position, that the next day defendant orally notified him he was not being considered for the vacant position, and that he was then discharged without just or any cause and replaced by the new employee. He sought declaratory relief as to the rights and duties of the parties under the contract and damages up to $5,000 for any substantial breach by defendant determined to have occurred. Defendant's general demurrer was overruled but its special demurrer for ambiguity (now uncertainty) was sustained and on plaintiff's failure to amend the action was dismissed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The court stated that in an action for damages for breach of an employment contract it is incumbent on a plaintiff to state with clarity how or in what manner he or she has been damaged, that this is particularly true when his or her pleading is challenged by a special demurrer for ambiguity on such grounds, and that the defendant was entitled to know the basis of plaintiff's claim for damages to enable it to prepare a defense. The court pointed out that in certain of his allegations the plaintiff seemed to base his claim for damages on the ground he was wrongfully discharged, while in other allegations he seemed to indicate his damages flowed from defendant's failure to give him the position for which he applied. The court said it was apparent that the plaintiff's complaint was ambiguous in failing to show clearly on which basis he intended to rely and concluded that it could not be ascertained from the complaint how or in what manner the plaintiff had been damaged, that such information was important to the defendant in the preparation of its defense, and that the defendant had properly sought this information by way of a special demurrer (143 Cal. App. 2d 293, 298) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Meaning Doubtful

Hawley Bros. etc. Co. v. Brownstone (1899) 123 Cal. 643, 56 P. 468 , was an action to recover on six promissory notes. The caption of the complaint named Isaac Brownstone and Joseph Brownstone, partners, doing business under the firm name and style of I. Brownstone & Co., defendants. The body of the complaint did not name the defendants, contained no allegation as to who were the members of the partnership, referred throughout the six counts to the "defendant" in the singular number, and when referring to that defendant used the possessive adjective "its." Defendants demurred to the complaint on the grounds it failed to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action and was ambiguous (now uncertain). The demurrer was overruled and defendants filed an answer. Plaintiff's demurrer to the answer on the grounds it failed to state facts sufficient to constitute a defense and was uncertain was sustained, and judgment was entered for plaintiff from which judgment defendants appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment on the ground the demurrer to the answer should have been overruled and the demurrer to the complaint sustained (123 Cal. 643, 648) . The Court pointed out that the caption is not part of the complaint unless referred to in the body of the complaint (123 Cal. 643, 646) and said that it was not possible by any reading of the complaint, without interpolation, to say, whether one, and if one, which one, of the persons named in the caption, or whether both, or whether the partnership by its common name, was the defendant. To make the pleading intelligible and free from ambiguity it would be necessary to change the language in several material particulars, such as changing the word "defendant" to "defendants" in all the counts, wherever the word defendant appeared; changing the word "its" to "their," so that it would refer to the persons sued as copartners, and making the complaint show, what it does not, that they, the defendants named, were copartners as I. Brownstone & Co.; and that the several notes were executed by these defendants in the copartnership name. The Court stated that to do this, however, would extend the liberal rules of construction beyond reasonable bounds (123 Cal. 643, 646-647) .

Ankeny v. Lockheed Missiles & Space Co. (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 531, 151 Cal. Rptr. 828 , was an action by an employee against his employer and fellow employees for damages for intentional infliction of emotional distress causing physical illness and disability. Lockheed demurred specially and generally to the third amended complaint on several grounds. The trial court concluded it had no jurisdiction over the action, because workers' compensation was plaintiff's only remedy, that the complaint failed to state a cause of action for intentional infliction of emotional distress, and that the complaint was uncertain, and it sustained the demurrer. Plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal.

The court of appeal held the demurrer had properly been sustained on all the above-stated grounds and affirmed the judgment. With respect to the demurrer for uncertainty, the appellate court pointed out that plaintiff had alleged that defendants "tortiously caused" and "conspired to tortiously cause" acts of an unspecified nature that caused plaintiff to be passed over for promotion and deprived of stewardship in his union. After first stating the rule that a pleading must allege facts and not conclusions and that material facts must be alleged directly and not by way of recital, the court said that, in pleading, the essential facts on which a determination of the controversy depends should be stated with clearness and precision so that nothing is left to surmise and that those recitals, references to, or allegations of material facts that are left to surmise are subject to special demurrer for uncertainty. The court concluded that these conclusionary allegations, without facts to support them, were ambiguous. In response to plaintiff's argument that defendant was complaining of insufficient facts and not uncertainty, the court replied that an examination of the pleading with reference to these points showed the allegations to be ambiguous, hence uncertain, and that the trial court had properly sustained this special demurrer (88 Cal. App. 3d 531, 537) .

See also Lapique v. Ruef (1916) 30 Cal. App. 391, 392, 158 P. 339 (complaint uncertain and ambiguous in that it was not clear whether causes of action sued on were founded on alleged injuries to plaintiff's person, to his property, or to his character, or on injury to property of another, and whether acts complained of were committed by defendants in their individual capacities or in one of other capacities in which they were alleged to have acted).

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.71

§ 71.71 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Pleading Is Uncertain [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f)]--Allegations Are Unintelligible

[1] FORM Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Pleading Is Uncertain [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f)]--Allegations Are Unintelligible

[Caption. See § 71.20.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT ON THE GROUND OF UNCERTAINTY SHOULD BE SUSTAINED BECAUSE THE ALLEGATIONS OF THE COMPLAINT ARE UNINTELLIGIBLE.

A. Objection by Demurrer. [See § 71.68, Paragraph A.]

B. Incoherent Allegations. A complaint, the allegations of which are so disjointed and incoherent as to render their meaning incomprehensible, is unintelligible (Evarts v. Jones (1951) 104 Cal. App. 2d 109, 111, 231 P.2d 74).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in support of a special demurrer for uncertainty if the allegations in the complaint are unintelligible.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel would identify each statement in the complaint that renders the allegations unintelligible.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in § 71.86 may be used to oppose the special demurrer supported by the foregoing memorandum.

See also §§ 71.60[2] and 71.68[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Incoherent Allegations

Evarts v. Jones (1951) 104 Cal. App. 2d 109, 231 P.2d 74 , was an action for specific performance. The amended complaint was long, set forth the content of conversations, quoted from textbooks, code sections, and court decisions, and contained much lengthy argument. Defendant's demurrer on the grounds of failure to state a cause of action, misjoinder of actions (no longer a ground of demurrer), ambiguity, unintelligibility, and uncertainty was sustained with leave to amend, and on plaintiffs' failure to amend the action was dismissed. Plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment on the grounds the complaint failed to state a cause of action and that it was uncertain and unintelligible. The court, with respect to these latter grounds, said, "The uncertainties in the amended complaint are too numerous to enumerate here. The entire document is thoroughly unintelligible." Quoting from Craig v. Los Angeles (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 71, 73, 111 P.2d 977 , the court added that the complaint was framed in such a disjointed and incoherent manner that the only course open to defendant was that of interposing a demurrer raising the questions of misjoinder of causes of action, uncertainty, ambiguity and unintelligibility (104 Cal. App. 2d 109, 111) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Incoherent Allegations

The facts and procedural background of Beresford Neighborhood Assn. v. City of San Mateo (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1180, 255 Cal. Rptr. 434 , are discussed in § 71.20[3][a]. In Beresford Neighborhood Assn., the court of appeal affirmed judgment entered after the trial court sustained a demurrer and denied leave to amend. The complaint alleged, among other things that hearings by defendant city on a redevelopment project "were not in accordance with substantive due process." The court concluded that the demurrer was proper as to this claim because the claim was unintelligible (207 Cal. App. 3d 1180, 1191) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.72

§ 71.72 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Pleading in Action on Contract Does Not Sufficiently Establish Whether Contract Is Written, Oral, or Implied by Conduct [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(g)]

[1] FORM Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Pleading in Action on Contract Does Not Sufficiently Establish Whether Contract Is Written, Oral, or Implied by Conduct [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(g)]

[Caption. See § 71.20.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT FOUNDED ON A CONTRACT SHOULD BE SUSTAINED BECAUSE IT CANNOT BE ASCERTAINED FROM THE COMPLAINT WHETHER THE CONTRACT IS WRITTEN OR ORAL OR IMPLIED BY CONDUCT.

A. Objection by Demurrer. The party against whom a complaint has been filed may object to it by demurrer when the action is founded on a contract and it cannot be ascertained from the complaint whether the contract is written or oral or implied by conduct (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(g), 430.30(a)).

B. Sustention of Demurrer. When it cannot be ascertained from the complaint whether the contract on which the action is founded is written or oral or implied by conduct, a demurrer on that ground should be sustained (see Otworth v. Southern Pac. Transportation Co. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 452, 458-459, 212 Cal. Rptr. 743 ; Hills Trans. Co. v. Southwest Forest Industries, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 702, 706, 72 Cal. Rptr. 441).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in support of a special demurrer to a complaint if it cannot be ascertained from the complaint whether the contract on which the action is founded is written or oral or implied by conduct.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel would (1) identify allegations that establish the action to be one founded on contract; and (2) point out the absence of any allegation as to whether the alleged contract is written, oral, or implied by conduct.

With appropriate modifications, the foregoing memorandum may be used in support of a special demurrer to an answer that pleads a contract and from which it cannot be ascertained whether the contract is written or oral or implied by conduct [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(c)]. For a form of demurrer to the answer on this ground, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings , § in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[b] Waiver of Objection

The objection that it cannot be ascertained from the pleading whether the contract on which the action is founded is written or oral or implied by conduct is waived if not raised by demurrer or answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(a)].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of demurrer on the ground it cannot be ascertained from the complaint whether the contract on which the action is founded is written or oral or implied by conduct, see the Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings, § 206.129, in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in § 71.87 may be used to oppose the special demurrer supported by the foregoing memorandum.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.60[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Objection by Demurrer

Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(g) provides that a party against whom a complaint or cross complaint has been filed may object to it by demurrer or answer, as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30, on the ground that in an action founded on a contract, it cannot be ascertained from the pleading whether the contract is written, oral, or implied by conduct. Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a) provides that when any ground for objection to a complaint or cross complaint appears on the face thereof, or from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice, the objection on that ground may betaken by a demurrer to the pleading.

[b] Sustention of Demurrer

In Otworth v. Southern Pac. Transportation Co. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 452 , 212 Cal. Rptr. 743 , the complaint, which alleged numerous theories of recovery, including breach of contract, arose out of a dispute concerning wage withholdings for income tax purposes by an employer. The defendant's demurrer was sustained and the plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the dismissal. The court held that the complaint failed to state a cause of action. The court reasoned that the complaint failed to allege whether the employment contract was written or oral, it did not set forth the contract terms, and did not assert whether plaintiff, the employee, had performed. It also failed to allege whether the contract required the employer to refrain from withholding wages for tax purposes, even though that type of contract provision might have been invalid (166 Cal. App.3d 452, 458-459) .

Hills Trans. Co. v. Southwest Forest Industries, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 702, 72 Cal. Rptr. 441 , was an action by a truck common carrier against a paper company for damages for alleged breach of a haulage contract. The second amended complaint alleged that on September 1, 1962, defendant entered into a written contract with a newspaper company (originally named as a defendant but subsequently dropped from the action) to sell the latter newsprint at a price to include cost of delivery to the newspaper company in Los Angeles and that under this contract the newsprint was to be shipped by rail to Los Angeles and from the Los Angeles rail depot by a single trucking company to the newspaper company in Los Angeles. The complaint further alleged that (1) on October 19, 1962, defendant offered plaintiff an exclusive contract to haul the newsprint by truck from the railway depot to the newspaper facility; (2) under this offer deliveries were to start February 2, 1963, and to continue thereafter for a reasonable time; (3) the provisions of the defendant newspaper company contract governing delivery would be incorporated in the contract; (4) rates would be adjusted at 30-day intervals in accordance with the requirements of the Public Utilities Commission; (5) on November 8, 1962, plaintiff, in writing, accepted the offer; (6) plaintiff invested some $200,000 in equipment to carry out its duties under the contract; and (7) on May 13, 1964, defendant breached the contract by commencing to ship newsprint by truck direct from Arizona to the newspaper company in Los Angeles resulting in elimination of the local haulage business previously enjoyed by plaintiff under the contract. Defendant's general and special demurrers were sustained without leave to amend and plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. One of the grounds of special demurrer was that it could not be ascertained from the face of the pleading whether the contract sued on was written or oral. The appellate court held that this demurrer was properly sustained. The court pointed out that the complaint specifically described the contract between defendant and the newspaper company as written and plaintiff's acceptance of defendant's offer was written, but that it failed to state whether defendant's offer to plaintiff was written or oral.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Sustention of Demurrer

In Ingram v. Glissman (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 418, 302 P.2d 640 , defendant surety demurred on the grounds of failure to state a cause of action, uncertainty, and failure to state whether plaintiff's contract employing defendant broker was written or oral. The trial court sustained the demurrer but did not specify the grounds. On plaintiff's failure to amend, the action was dismissed as to the surety and plaintiff appealed. The court of appeal held the special demurrers were properly sustained and affirmed the judgment. It pointed out numerous respects in which the complaint was uncertain (145 Cal. App. 2d 418, 421-422) and said that the uncertainties were aggravated by the fact that plaintiff refused to allege whether his agreement with defendant broker, on which the action against the surety was founded, was oral or written, which was a proper ground of demurrer (145 Cal. App. 2d 418, 421).

See also Bollotin v. Cal. State Personnel Board (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 197, 202, 280 P.2d 509 (failure to allege whether contractual undertakings to employ plaintiff were written or oral).

53 of 125 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.73

§ 71.73 Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Certificate Required in Action Based on Professional Negligence [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 411.35(g), 430.10(h)]

[1] FORM Supporting Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Certificate Required in Action Based on Professional Negligence [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 411.35(g), 430.10(h)]

[Caption. See § 71.20.]

THE COURT SHOULD SUSTAIN THE DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT BECAUSE THE COMPLAINT SEEKS DAMAGES ARISING OUT OF THE ALLEGED PROFESSIONAL NEGLIGENCE OF DEFENDANT AS _____ [specify, e.g., AN ARCHITECT or PROFESSIONAL ENGINEER or LAND SURVEYOR] AND PLAINTIFF'S ATTORNEY HAS NOT FILED THE CERTIFICATE REQUIRED BY CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 411.35.

A. Objection by Demurrer. In an action for damages arising out of the professional negligence of an _____ [architect or professional engineer or land surveyor] holding a valid _____ [certificate or registration or license] issued under California law, the defendant may object to the complaint by demurrer when it appears that the certificate required by Code of Civil Procedure Section411.35(a) to be executed and filed by the plaintiff's attorney has not been filed (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 411.35(g), 430.10(h), 430.30(a)).

B. Judicial Notice of Court Records and Request. This court may take judicial notice of the records of any court of this state (which includes its own) and on proper request therefor is required to do so (Evid. Code §§ 452, 453). Pursuant to this authority, the court is hereby requested to take judicial notice of its records and file in this action (see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.70), which will reveal that the required certificate has not been filed.
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a demurrer to a complaint in an action for damages based on the professional negligence of an architect, professional engineer, or land surveyor, certified, registered, or licensed under California law, when plaintiff's attorney has not filed the certificate required by Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35(a).

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Counsel should refer to facts that may be judicially noticed by the court, in this case the court's records showing the absence of the certificate to be filed by plaintiff's attorney, and point out that the omission is grounds for a demurrer under Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35(g) and that the defendant's demurrer should therefore be sustained.

[b] Waiver of Objection

Although no appellate case has yet construed the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 411.35 and 430.10(h) vis-a-vis Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.30 and 430.80(a), it appears that the requirement of a certificate under Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35(a) is waived if not raised by demurrer or motion to strike [see Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35(g)]. That is, the objection is not one that may be raised by answer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(a) (providing that failure of a party against whom a complaint has been filed to object to it by demurrer or answer is deemed a waiver of the objection unless the objection is that the court has no jurisdiction of the subject of the action alleged or the pleading fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action)]. This conclusion is based on the fact that Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35(g) expressly makes failure to file the certificate grounds for objection by demurrer or motion to strike only [see also Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a) (authorizing filing of demurrer when the ground for objection appears on its face and from matter of which the court may take judicial notice)]. The court may take judicial notice of its own records in the case [see Evid. Code § 452(d)] that will disclose the failure to have filed the certificate.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of demurrer on the ground that the certificate required by Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35(a) has not been filed, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings, § 206.130, in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.60[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Objection by Demurrer

Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35(a) requires that on or before the date of service of the complaint (or cross complaint) on any defendant in any action for damages or indemnity, arising out of the professional negligence of a person holding a valid architect's certificate or a valid registration as a professional engineer or a valid land surveyor's license issued under California law, the plaintiff's (or cross complainant's) attorney shall file and serve the certificate specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35(b). This requirement applies to any complaint or cross complaint for equitable indemnity arising out of the rendition of professional services, whether or not the complaint or cross complaint specifically asserts or uses the terms "professional negligence" or "negligence" [Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35(i)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35(g) provides that failure to file the certificate "shall be grounds for a demurrer" pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10 or a motion to strike pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 435.

Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10 provides that the party against whom a complaint or cross complaint has been filed may object to it by demurrer or answer as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30 on the ground that no certificate was filed as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35 [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10, 430.10(h)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a) provides that when any ground for objection to a complaint or cross complaint appears on the face thereof, or from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice, the objection on that ground may be taken by a demurrer to the pleading.

[b] Judicial Notice of Court Records and Request

Evid. Code § 452 in pertinent part provides that judicial notice may be taken of the following matters to the extent they are not embraced in Evid. Code § 451 (relating to mandatory judicial notice): "(d) Records of (1) any court of this state. ..." Evid. Code § 453 provides that the trial court "shall" (which is defined in Evid. Code § 11 as being mandatory) take judicial notice of any matter specified in Evid. Code § 452 if a party requests it and (a) gives each adverse party sufficient notice of the request, through the pleadings or otherwise, to enable such adverse party to prepare to meet the request; and (b) furnishes the court with sufficient information to enable it to take judicial notice of the matter.

Code Civ. Proc. § 430.70 provides that when the ground of demurrer is based on a matter of which the court may take judicial notice pursuant to Evid. Code § 452 or 453, such matter shall be specified in the demurrer, or in the supporting points and authorities for the purpose of invoking such notice, except as the court may otherwise permit.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.74

§ 71.74 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Has Legal Capacity to Sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)]--Lack of Capacity Not Shown on Face of Complaint

[1] FORM Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Has Legal Capacity to Sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)]--Lack of Capacity Not Shown on Face of Complaint

[Caption. See § 71.30.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO COMPLAINT SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE THE PLAINTIFF IS NOT REQUIRED TO ALLEGE CAPACITY TO SUE IN THIS ACTION AND THE FACE OF THE COMPLAINT DOES NOT DISCLOSE THAT HE/SHE LACKS CAPACITY TO SUE.

A. No Statute Requires Plaintiff to Allege Capacity to Sue. Unless a governing statute states otherwise, a complaint need not allege the plaintiff's capacity to sue (Hydrotech Systems, Ltd. v. Oasis Waterpark (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 988, 994 n.4, 277 Cal. Rptr. 517, 803 P.2d 370).

B. Lack of Capacity Does not Appear on Face of Complaint. If lack of capacity does not appear on the face of the complaint, it cannot be raised by demurrer (Hydrotech Systems, Ltd. v. Oasis Waterpark (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 988, 994 n.4, 277 Cal. Rptr. 517, 803 P.2d 370).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a special demurrer to a complaint based on the ground plaintiff lacks legal capacity to sue. The ground of opposition set out is that the plaintiff is not required by statute [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 17918; see also § 71.62], to allege capacity to sue and alack of capacity is not apparent on the face of the complaint.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel would indicate that the complaint does not allege any facts showing that plaintiff is required by a statute to allege capacity to sue or that the plaintiff lacks capacity to sue.

Although the issue may not be raised by demurrer when the lack is not apparent from the face of the complaint (and, presumably, from facts of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice), the issue may be raised in the defendant's answer to the complaint as a special plea in abatement [see Hydrotech Systems, Ltd. v. Oasis Waterpark (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 988, 994 n.4, 277 Cal. Rptr. 517, 803 P.2d 370] .

See also § 71.20[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Statute Requires Plaintiff to Allege Capacity to Sue

In Hydrotech Systems, Ltd. v. Oasis Waterpark (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 988, 277 Cal. Rptr. 517, 803 P.2d 370 , an out-of-state corporation that manufactures and installs equipment designed to simulate ocean waves sued a California corporation that operates a water-oriented amusement park for, among other theories, breach of written contract and fraud. The defendant demurred on various grounds, including the ground that the complaint failed to show plaintiff's capacity to sue because it did not allege that plaintiff, as a foreign corporation conducting intrastate business had obtained a certificate of qualification from the Secretary of State (52 Cal. 3d 988, 994 n.4). The trial court sustained the demurrer to the written contract count with leave to amend, and sustained the demurrers to all other causes of action, including fraud, without leave to amend, and entered an order dismissing most of the defendants from the action. The plaintiff appealed. The court of appeal reversed the portion of the trial court's judgment that dismissed the plaintiff's fraud count, but affirmed the dismissal of the complaint in all other respects. Both parties sought review.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment of the court of appeal insofar as it upheld the plaintiff's cause of action for fraud and affirmed in all other respects. In dicta, however, the Court addressed defendant's contention that the plaintiff failed to allege its capacity to sue. The Court stated that the business qualification issue was not presented by the appeal for that reason that unless the governing statute states otherwise, a complaint need not allege the plaintiff's capacity to sue. If lack of capacity does not appear on the face of the complaint, it cannot be raised by demurrer, but is a special plea in abatement (52 Cal. 3d 988, 994 n.4).

[b] Lack of Capacity Does not Appear on Face of Complaint

Hydrotech Systems, Ltd. v. Oasis Waterpark (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 988, 277 Cal. Rptr. 517, 803 P.2d 370 , is discussed under § 71.74[3][a].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.75

§ 71.75 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Has Legal Capacity to Sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)]--Plaintiff Is Entity Exempt From Fictitious Business Name Statutes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17911]

[1] FORM Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Has Legal Capacity to Sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)]--Plaintiff Is Entity Exempt From Fictitious Business Name Statutes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17911]

[Caption. See § 71.30.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO COMPLAINT SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE THE PLAINTIFF IS A _____ [NONPROFIT CORPORATION or NONPROFIT ASSOCIATION or REAL ESTATE INVESTMENT TRUST] AND THEREFORE EXEMPT FROM FICTITIOUS BUSINESS NAME STATUTE REQUIREMENTS.

A. Who Must File Statement. Only an individual, a limited liability company, or a partnership or other association or a corporation that regularly transacts business in this state for profit under a fictitious business name is required to file and publish a fictitious business name statement (Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17902, 17910, 17917).

[EITHER]

B. Nonprofit Organizations. The fictitious business name statutes (Bus.& Prof. Code § 17900 et seq.) do not apply to nonprofit corporations or associations (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17911; see Athens Lodge No. 70 v. Wilson (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 322, 324, 255 P.2d 482) .

[OR]

B. Real Estate Investment Trust. The fictitious business name statutes (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900 et seq.) do not apply to a real estate investment trust, as defined in Section 23000 of the Corporations Code, which has on file, pursuant to Section 18200 of the Corporations Code, a statement designating an agent for service or process or has qualified to do business under Sections 2100 through 2116 of the Corporations Code (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17912).

[CONTINUE]

C. Capacity to Sue. A plaintiff not required by the fictitious business name statutes (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900 et seq.) to publish and file a fictitious business name statement is not barred from maintaining a court action for its failure to have done so (see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17918).

[Optional] D. Capacity of Association to Sue. Any partnership or other unincorporated association may sue in the name that it has assumed or by which it is known (Code Civ. Proc. § 369.5(a)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a special demurrer to a complaint based on the ground plaintiff lacks legal capacity to sue because the complaint does not allege that plaintiff has filed and published a fictitious business name statement. The ground of opposition set out is that plaintiff is a nonprofit organization or real estate investment trust and, hence, is exempt from that requirement.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the demurrer supported by the memorandum set out in § 71.62.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. That is, counsel should demonstrate, from facts appearing on the face of the complaint or from those that the court is required to or may take judicial notice, that the plaintiff is an entity that is by statute exempt from the fictitious business name filing requirements.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.74[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Who Must File Statement

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17910 in pertinent part provides that every person who regularly transacts business in this state for profit under a fictitious business name shall file a fictitious business name statement.

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17902 defines "person" as used in the fictitious business name statutes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900 et seq.] as including individuals, a limited liability company, partnerships and other associations, and corporations.

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17917 sets forth the requirements with respect to the publication of the fictitious business name statement.

[b] Nonprofit Organizations

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17911 provides that "this chapter" [i.e., Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900 et seq.] does not apply to a nonprofit corporation or association, including, but not limited to, organizations such as churches, labor unions, fraternal and charitable organizations, nonprofit hospitals, and similar organizations.

Athens Lodge No. 70 v. Wilson (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 322, 255 P.2d 482 , was an action by an unincorporated fraternal association to enjoin acts of alleged unfair competition. Both in the trial court and on appeal from the judgment for plaintiff, defendant contended that plaintiff did not have legal capacity to sue both on the ground it was not a jural entity and hence could not sue in its own name and on the ground it had not published and filed the fictitious business name certificate required by former Civ. Code § 2466 et seq. (the predecessor statutes to Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900 et seq.).

The court of appeal held that the association could, under former Civ. Code § 3369, sue in its own name [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 369.5, discussed under § 71.75[3][e]], and that it was not required to publish and file a fictitious business name certificate. With respect to this latter ground the court pointed out that the former statutes applied (as does Bus. & Prof. Code § 17910) only to a plaintiff "transacting business in this state" and that plaintiff was not transacting business within the meaning of the statute (117 Cal. App. 2d 322, 324) . (Implicit in the court's holding was the requirement that the business engaged in be for profit and this requirement is now made express in the present statute.)

[c] Real Estate Investment Trust

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17912 exempts from the fictitious business name statutes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900 et seq.] a real estate investment trust meeting the requirements of that section as set forth in Optional Paragraph D of the form.

[d] Capacity to Sue

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17918 in pertinent part provides that no person transacting business under a fictitious business name contrary to the provisions of "this chapter" [i.e., Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900 et seq.], or his, her, or its assignee, may maintain any action on or on account of any contract made, or transaction had, in the fictitious business name in any court of this state until the fictitious business name statement has been executed, filed, and published as required by this chapter.

[e] Capacity of Association to Sue

Code Civ. Proc. § 369.5(a) provides that any partnership or other unincorporated association, whether organized for profit or not, may sue and be sued in the name that it has assumed or by which it is known.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.76

§ 71.76 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Has Legal Capacity to Sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)]--Plaintiff's Name Is Not Fictitious [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900]

[1] FORM Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Has Legal Capacity to Sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)]--Plaintiff's Name Is Not Fictitious [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900]

[Caption. See § 71.30.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE PLAINTIFF'S BUSINESS NAME IS NOT FICTITIOUS.

[EITHER]

A. Nonfictitious Business Name. For the purpose of determining if the fictitious business name statutes should be complied with, a fictitious business name is defined as, in the case of an individual, a name that does not include the surname of the individual or a name that suggests the existence of additional owners (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900(b)(1)). A name that suggests the existence of additional owners within the meaning of subdivision (b) is one which includes such words as "Company," "& Company," "& Son," "& Sons," "& Associates," "Brothers," and the like, but not words that merely describe the business being conducted (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900(c)).

[OR]

A. Nonfictitious Business Name. For the purpose of determining if the fictitious business name statutes should be complied with, a fictitious business name is defined as, in the case of a partnership or other association of persons, other than a limited partnership which has filed a certificate of limited partnership with the Secretary of State pursuant to Corporations Code Section 15621 or 15902.01, a foreign limited partnership which has filed an application for registration with the Secretary of State pursuant to Corporations Code Section 15692 or 15902.02, a registered limited liability partnership that has filed a registration pursuant to Corporations Code Section 15049 or 16953, or a foreign limited liability partnership that has filed an application for registration pursuant to Corporations Code Section 15055 or 16959, a name that does not include the surname of each general partner or a name that suggests the existence of additional owners (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900(b)(2)). A name that suggests the existence of additional owners within the meaning of subdivision (a) is one which includes such words as "Company," "& Company," "& Son," "& Sons," "& Associates," "Brothers," and the like, but not words that merely describe the business being conducted (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900(c)).

[OR]

A. Nonfictitious Business Name. For the purpose of determining if the fictitious business name statutes should be complied with, a fictitious business name is defined as, in the case of a corporation, any name other than the corporate name stated in its articles of incorporation (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900(b)(3)).

[OR]

A. Nonfictitious Business Name. For the purpose of determining if the fictitious business name statutes should be complied with, a fictitious business name is defined as, in the case of a _____ [limited partnership which has filed a certificate of limited partnership with the Secretary of State pursuant to Corporations Code Section 15621 or foreign limited partnership which has filed an application for registration with the Secretary of State pursuant to Corporations Code Section 15692], any name other than the name of the limited partnership as on file with the Secretary of State (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900(b)(4)).

[OR]

A. Nonfictitious Business Name. For the purpose of determining if the fictitious business name statutes should be complied with, a fictitious business name is defined as, in the case of a _____ [limited liability company, any name other than the name stated in its articles of organization or foreign limited liability company which has filed an application for registration with the Secretary of State pursuant to Corporations Code Section 17451], any name other than the name of the limited liability company as on file with the Secretary of State (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900(b)(5)).

[CONTINUE]

B. Inapplicability of Business and Professions Code Section 17918 to Plaintiff. Business and Professions Code Section 17918, prohibiting maintenance of an action by a party who has failed to file and publish a fictitious business name statement, does not apply to a business whose name is not a fictitious business name within the meaning of Business and Professions Code Section 17900 (Flora v. Hankins (1928) 204 Cal. 351, 352-353, 268 P. 331).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a special demurrer to a complaint based on the ground plaintiff lacks legal capacity to sue because the pleading does not allege that plaintiff has filed and published a fictitious business name statement. The ground of opposition set out is that plaintiff's name is not a fictitious business name within the meaning of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the demurrer supported by the memorandum set out in § 71.62.

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel would point out how the name under which plaintiff sues is not a fictitious business name, as that term is defined in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.74[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inapplicability of Business and Professions Code Section 17918 to Plaintiff

Flora v. Hankins (1928) 204 Cal. 351, 268 P. 331 , was an action by copartners doing business under the name of Flora & Mahedy to foreclose a mechanic's lien on real property. Defendant appealed the judgment for plaintiffs, contending, among other things, that plaintiffs lacked capacity to maintain the action because they had not been shown to have filed or published the fictitious business name certificate (now statement) required by former Civ. Code §§ 2466 and 2468 [now see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17910 and 17917].

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment. The Court pointed out that Flora & Mahedy, which were the surnames of the two partners, was not a fictitious business name, and held that compliance with the fictitious business name statutes is not required when the business name is not a fictitious one (204 Cal. 351, 352-353) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Inapplicability of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17918 to Plaintiff

Lamberson v. Bashore (1914) 167 Cal. 387, 139 P. 817 , was an action by an attorney against his clients on promissory notes and an account stated. Some of the notes had been executed while plaintiff was in legal partnership with his son doing business under the name of Lamberson & Lamberson and were made payable to the firm, but plaintiff had acquired the entire interest in the notes before suit. Defendants appealed from a judgment for plaintiff contending, among other things, that plaintiff, as the assignee of the firm of Lamberson & Lamberson, lacked capacity to sue because the firm had failed to sign and acknowledge the certificate (now statement) required by former Civ. Code §§ 2466 and 2468 [now see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17910, 17917]. In modifying the judgment with respect to the amount awarded and affirming it as modified, the Supreme Court said there was no merit in defendants' contention since the name, Lamberson & Lamberson, indicates that there are two persons of that name engaged in business together and is not a fictitious business name (167 Cal. 387, 391) .

Pendleton v. Cline (1890) 85 Cal. 142, 24 P. 659 , was an action by copartners, doing business under the firm name of Pendleton & Williams, to recover for services in making an abstract of title. Defendants counterclaimed for damages caused by plaintiffs' alleged failure to make the abstract in time to enable them to borrow money on their property with which to purchase other lands for which they had been negotiating and which had substantially increased in value during the period of the delay. From a judgment for plaintiffs, defendants appealed, contending, among other things, that plaintiffs were prevented from recovery in their action because they had never published the fictitious business name required by former Civ. Code § 2466 [now see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17917]. The Supreme Court, after pointing out that the name of one of the partners was Pendleton and that of the other was Williams and that the firm name of Pendleton & Williams was "certainly not fictitious," held that former Civ. Code § 2466 was inapplicable to such a name (85 Cal. 142, 144-145) and affirmed the judgment (85 Cal. 142, 146).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.77

§ 71.77 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Has Legal Capacity to Sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)]--Failure to File and Publish Fictitious Business Name Statement [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17910, 17917] Does Not Bar Tort Action

[1] FORM Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Has Legal Capacity to Sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)]--Failure to File and Publish Fictitious Business Name Statement [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17910, 17917] Does Not Bar Tort Action

[Caption. See § 71.30.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE THE ACTION SUED ON IS IN TORT AND NOT ON A CONTRACT MADE OR TRANSACTION HAD IN THE FICTITIOUS BUSINESS NAME.

Business and Professions Code Section 17918 Does Not Apply to Tort Actions. Business and Professions Code Section 17918 by its own terms, prohibits maintenance by a plaintiff who is required but has failed to file and publish a fictitious business name statement only of actions on or on account of a contract made or transaction had in the fictitious business name. The statement, therefore, is not a condition precedent to the maintenance of an action in tort (see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17918; Ralph v. Lockwood (1882) 61 Cal. 155, 156 ; Thompson v. Byers (1931) 116 Cal. App. 214, 216-217, 2 P.2d 496).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a special demurrer to a complaint based on the ground plaintiff lacks legal capacity to sue because the complaint does not allege that plaintiff has filed and published a fictitious business name statement. The ground of opposition set out is that Bus. & Prof. Code § 17918, prohibiting maintenance of an action by a person who is required but has failed to file and publish a fictitious business name statement, does not apply to tort actions.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the demurrer supported by the memorandum set out in § 71.62.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should refer to specific allegations in the complaint that indicate that the action is a tort action.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.74[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Business and Professions Code Section 17918 Does Not Apply to Tort Actions

Ralph v. Lockwood (1882) 61 Cal. 155 , was an action for conversion of crops. Defendant, among other things, contended that plaintiffs could not maintain the action for the reason they had not filed the certificate (now statement) required by former Civ. Code §§ 2466 and 2468 [now see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17910, 17917, 17918]. From a judgment for plaintiffs, defendant appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment. The Court said that Civ. Code § 2468 [now see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17918] does not apply to torts and that as the action was for a conversion of personal property, plaintiffs' rights were unaffected by the provisions of that section (61 Cal. 155, 156) .

Thompson v. Byers (1931) 116 Cal. App. 214, 2 P.2d 496 , was an action for conversion of a stock of goods. Plaintiff conducted business under the name of Home Specialty Company and was retailing goods under that name but had neither filed nor published a fictitious business name certificate (now statement) as required by former Civ. Code §§ 2466 and 2468 [now see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17910, 17917, 17918]. The action was brought in plaintiff's own name. The trial court ruled that plaintiff's failure to file and publish any certificate of carrying on business under a fictitious name was immaterial as to her right to maintain the action. From a judgment for plaintiff, defendant appealed contending, among other things, that the above ruling was error. Defendant attempted to distinguish the earlier cases holding that former Civ. Code § 2468 did not apply to tort actions by pointing out that that section had been amended to include the phrase "or transactions had."

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The court reiterated the rule that former Civ.Code § 2468 did not apply to tort cases and, specifically, that the word "transaction," as used in the section as amended, "must be something of a mutual nature and would not extend to torts" (116 Cal. App. 214, 216-217) . The court explained that had the phrase been added to the statute to cover tort cases, the Legislature could and properly would have added "in all cases" or "transactions and torts." The court pointed out that the Legislature did not do this and that the court would not presume that the Legislature meant anything more than it said (116 Cal. App. 214, 217) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.78

§ 71.78 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Has Legal Capacity to Sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)]--Plaintiff Is Foreign Business Not Transacting Business in California

[1] FORM Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Plaintiff Has Legal Capacity to Sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)]--Plaintiff Is Foreign Business Not Transacting Business in California

[Caption. See § 71.30.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE THE COMPLAINT SHOWS ONLY THAT PLAINTIFF IS A FOREIGN BUSINESS SUING ON A _____ [CONTRACT MADE or TRANSACTION HAD] IN ITS FICTITIOUS BUSINESS NAME AND _____ [DOES NOT ALLEGE ANY FACTS FROM WHICH IT MAY BE INFERRED THAT PLAINTIFF IS (REGULARLY) TRANSACTING or AFFIRMATIVELY ALLEGES FACTS SHOWING THAT PLAINTIFF IS NOT (REGULARLY) TRANSACTING] BUSINESS IN CALIFORNIA UNDER ITS FICTITIOUS BUSINESS NAME.

A. When Demurrer Is Authorized. A demurrer to a complaint on the ground plaintiff lacks legal capacity to sue (Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)) is authorized only when the ground for objection appears from the face of the complaint or from matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice (Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)).

B. Applicability of Statutory Prohibition Against Maintenance of Action. The statutory prohibition against maintenance of an action by a person doing business under a fictitious business name on a _____ [contract made or transaction had] in the fictitious business name until he or she or it has filed and published a fictitious business name statement as required by Sections 17900 through 17930 of the Business and Professions Code applies only to actions by persons required to comply with those statutes (Bus.& Prof. Code § 17918).

C. Who Must Comply. Only a person who regularly transacts business in California for profit under a fictitious business name is required to file and publish a fictitious business name statement in accordance with the provisions of Sections 17900 through 17930 of the Business and Professions Code (Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17910, 17917(a)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a special demurrer to a complaint based on the ground plaintiff lacks legal capacity to sue because the complaint does not allege that plaintiff has filed and published a fictitious business name statement. The ground of opposition is that plaintiff is excluded from the filing and publishing requirement of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17918 because the plaintiff is a foreign business not transacting, or not regularly transacting, business in California under a fictitious business name [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17910].

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the demurrer supported by the memorandum set out in § 71.62.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should demonstrate from facts appearing on the face of the complaint, or of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice, that the plaintiff is not transacting, or is not regularly transacting business in California.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.74[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Who Must Comply

Bus. & Prof. Code § 17910 requires only persons who regularly transact business in this state for profit under a fictitious business name to file a fictitious business name statement. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17917(a) requires that a fictitious business name statement be published within 30 days after it has been filed.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.79

§ 71.79 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--No Other Action Is Pending Between Same Parties on Same Cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(c)]--Other Action Is Not Between Same Parties

[1] FORM Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--No Other Action Is Pending Between Same Parties on Same Cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(c)]--Other Action Is Not Between Same Parties

[Caption. See § 71.60.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE THE TWO ACTIONS ARE NOT _____ [BETWEEN THE SAME PARTIES or BASED ON THE SAME CAUSE].

A. Nonfavored Plea. The objection that there is another action pending between the same parties on the same cause is a plea in abatement and is not favored (Lord v. Garland (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 840, 848, 168 P.2d 5).

B. Same Parties and Same Actions Required. An objection that there is another action pending on the same cause of action lies only when the parties to the two actions are the same and the prior pending action is on the same cause as the present action (see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(c)).

[EITHER]

C. Actions Not Between Same Parties. A demurrer on the ground of another action pending does not lie unless it appears that both actions are contested by the same parties (Williams v. California (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 960, 965, 133 Cal. Rptr. 539).

[OR]

C. Actions Not on Same Cause. A demurrer on the ground of another action pending does not lie unless it appears that the causes of action and the issues in the two suits are substantially identical (Lord v. Garland (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 840, 848, 168 P.2d 5).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a special demurrer to a complaint based on the ground of another action pending. The grounds of opposition set out are that the two pending actions are not contested by the same parties or are not based on the same cause of action.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the demurrer supported by the memorandum set out in § 71.65.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should refer to the absence of allegations in the complaint and of judicially noticeable facts from which it may be inferred that there is another action pending between the same parties on the same cause of action, and should refer to any affirmative allegations and judicially noticeable facts showing that the action pending is not between the same parties on the same cause of action.

[b] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities opposing a general demurrer to a complaint to a ground the action is barred by a prior federal court judgment and the point of the opposition is that the federal court in the prior action declined to exercise pendent jurisdiction over the state claim sued on, see § 71.35.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.74[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Nonfavored Plea

Lord v. Garland (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 840, 168 P.2d 5 , was an action for declaratory and injunctive relief and to recover money deposited with the State Department of Motor Vehicles. Pursuant to a stipulation filed in a prior action and a court order based on it, plaintiff had paid certain fees imposed by a statute to the DMV on condition that, if the statute should finally be declared unconstitutional in that action or otherwise, the amount deposited should be returned to him, but in the event of a contrary determination the department might retain the fund, which amounted to over $88,000. The prior action was not brought to trial within five years and was dismissed on that ground. The present action was filed during the pendency of the appeal in the prior action. The complaint was in three counts: (1) for a declaration of the rights of the parties to the money deposited under the stipulation and order in the prior litigation; (2) for a determination of the constitutionality of the specific statute involved; and (3) for an order enjoining the state officials as trustees from disposing of the fund created pursuant to the stipulation prior to an adjudication on the merits. Defendants' general and special demurrer to the complaint on the ground, among others, of another action pending was sustained without leave to amend, although the trial court did not indicate the basis for its ruling. Plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment with directions to the trial court to overrule the demurrer. The Court said that under Code Civ. Proc. § 430 (repealed; now see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10), the pendency of another action between the same parties for the same cause is made a ground for demurrer, but that the plea is dilatory in its nature and is not favored (27 Cal. 2d 840, 848) .

[b] Same Parties and Same Actions Required

Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10 provides that a party against whom a complaint or cross complaint has been filed may object to it by demurrer or answer as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30 on the ground "(c) There is another action pending between the same parties on the same cause of action."

[c] Actions Not Between Same Parties

Williams v. California (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 960, 133 Cal. Rptr. 539 , was an action against the State of California and the Director of the California Department of Benefit Payments by an applicant for benefit payments under Aid to the Totally Disabled Program (ATD) for damages allegedly resulting from the director's failure to have rendered a fair hearing decision on the application within the time prescribed by law. The State's demurrer on the ground the complaint failed to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action (based on alleged immunity from suit) was overruled but its demurrer on the ground of another action pending was sustained without leave to amend and plaintiff appealed.

Although the court of appeal affirmed the judgment on the ground the general demurrer should have been sustained, the court held that the special demurrer on the ground of another action pending should not have been sustained since the prior action was no longer pending, it was not between the same parties, and it was not on the same cause. With respect to the special demurrer, the court pointed out that the prior action was a class action for a writ of mandate to compel the director to comply with the time requirements of the federal regulation, that while plaintiff was not a named party in the prior action he was within the class of persons represented, that judgments in class actions were binding on all members of the class subsequently coming into the class, and that the judgment is one which can be availed of by every member of there presented class, present or future (62 Cal. App. 3d 960, 965) . But, to sustain the idea of another action pending, it is essential that it appear that both suits are contested by the same parties. The court concluded that both suits were not contested by the same parties (62 Cal. App. 3d 960, 965) and held that the trial court erred in sustaining the demurrer on the ground of another action pending (62 Cal. App. 3d 960, 966) .

[d] Actions Not on Same Cause

The facts and procedural background of Lord v. Garland (1946) 27 Cal.2d 840 , 168 P.2d 5 , are discussed under § 71.79[3][a]. In reversing the judgment with directions to the trial court to overrule the demurrer, the Supreme Court said that a demurrer on the ground of another action pending may be made only when the face of the complaint shows that the causes of action and issues in the two suits are substantially the same and that when the prior suit does not involve the entire cause of action presented by the complaint in the later litigation, the plea should be raised by answer rather than by demurrer (27 Cal.2d 840, 848) . The Court said the plea could be maintained only when the claim sued on in the second action was such that a final judgment in the first could be pleaded in bar as a former adjudication (27 Cal.2d 840, 848) and that the rule of res judicata extends only to the facts and conditions as they existed at the time the judgment was rendered, or more correctly speaking, at the time the issues in the first action were made, and to the legal rights and relations of the parties as fixed by the facts determined by that judgment, and that when other facts or conditions intervene before the second suit, furnishing a new basis for the claims and defenses of the respective parties, the issues are no longer the same and the former judgment cannot be pleaded in bar to the second action (27 Cal.2d 840, 849) . Applying these rules to the complaint before it, the Court said it did not appear whether all matters sued on in the second action were adjudged in the former action, or whether such matters were actually and necessarily included in or necessary to the first action, or whether other facts and conditions had intervened before commencement of the second suit and for these reasons, at least, the objection of another action pending should have been raised by answer rather than by demurrer (27 Cal.2d 840, 849) .

With respect to the statement in the above case that the ground of abatement must appear from the face of the complaint, note that under present law the objection may appear either from the face of the complaint or from judicially noticed matter [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Nonfavored Plea

The facts and procedural background of Williams v. California (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 960, 133 Cal. Rptr. 539 , are discussed under § 71.79[3][c]. With respect to the special demurrer on the ground of another action pending, the court of appeal explained that the underlying theory of the plea that there is another action pending is that the first action normally will be an ample remedy and that the second action is therefore unnecessary and vexatious, that such a plea does not challenge plaintiff's claim on the merits but merely objects to the particular proceeding to enforce it, and that, for this reason, the ground of demurrer is regarded as a plea in abatement and is not favored (62 Cal. App. 3d 960, 964) .

The facts and procedural background of Colvig v. RKO Gen., Inc. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 42 Cal. Rptr. 473 , are discussed in § 71.39[3][a]. The court of appeal held that the plaintiff's demurrer should not have been sustained on any of the asserted grounds, including the ground that the court lacked jurisdiction to hear the matter because it involved the same controversy that was the subject of the confirmation of an arbitration award in a prior proceeding in the same court. With respect to the objection that another action was pending, the court said that this ground of demurrer is a plea in abatement, also sometimes called a dilatory plea, and that such a plea does not challenge the plaintiff's claim on the merits but merely objects to the particular proceeding to enforce it, and that, for this reason, a plea in abatement is said to be disfavored (232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 70) . The court added that with respect to this plea, the underlying theory is that the first cause of action will normally be an ample remedy, and that the second action is therefore unnecessary and vexatious (232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 70) .

See also Perry v. Jordan (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 87, 90, 207 P.2d 47 (plea of another action pending is dilatory in nature and not favored by the courts); Conner v. Bank of Bakersfield (1917) 174 Cal. 400, 402, 163 P. 353 (same); San Martin v. Superior Court (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 14, 18, 336 P.2d 618 (a plea in abatement is dilatory in nature and not favored).

[b] Actions Not Between Same Parties

The facts and procedural background of Colvig v. RKO Gen., Inc. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 42 Cal. Rptr. 473 , are discussed in § 71.39[3][a]. In reversing the judgment, the court of appeal said that to sustain the plea of another action pending it is essential that it shall appear that both suits are contested by the same parties (232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 70) .

See also Ashton v. Heggerty (1900) 130 Cal. 516, 520, 62 P. 934 (overruling plea in abatement was justified since present action was not between same parties as former action); Daly v. White (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 22, 26, 222 P.2d 950 (abatement lies only when parties plaintiff and parties defendant are identical).

[c] Actions Not on Same Cause

The facts and procedural background of Williams v. California (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 960, 133 Cal. Rptr. 539 , are discussed under § 7179[3][c]. The court said that to sustain the plea of another action pending, it must appear that both suits are predicated on the same cause of action. The court explained that the two suits were not on the same cause since the prior action sought compliance by the director with federal and state law whereas the present action sought damages for personal injuries allegedly sustained by the defendants' delay in granting plaintiff ATD assistance (62 Cal. App. 3d 960, 965) .

The facts and procedural background of Colvig v. RKO Gen., Inc. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 42 Cal. Rptr. 473 , are discussed in § 71.39[3][a]. The court of appeal said that for a second action to be abated because of the pendency of a prior action, it is elementary that the issues in the two actions must be substantially the same and that in determining this question the test applied is whether a final judgment in the first action could be pleaded in bar as a former adjudication (232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 73) . In applying the rules set forth in Lord v. Garland (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 840, 849, 168 P.2d 5 , discussed under § 71.79[3][d], the court of appeal said it appeared the issues in the proceeding leading to the judgment confirming the arbitrator's award were not the same as those involved in the present action and that the judgment rendered in the prior case could not be pleaded in bar as a former adjudication. The court then cited several factual distinctions between the two cases and concluded that since these facts or conditions furnished a new basis for the claim, the issues were no longer the same and the former judgment could not be pleaded in bar of the present action (232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 74) .

See also Knapp v. Knapp (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 237, 243, 100 P.2d 759 (prior action on promissory note not same cause of action as subsequent action for accounting of partnership interest that was consideration for note previously sued on); Hagan v. Fairfield (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 240, 246, 16 Cal. Rptr. 14 (when prior suit did not involve entire cause of action presented by complaint in later litigation, plea of abatement should be raised by answer rather than by demurrer); Trickey v. Long Beach (1951) 101 Cal. App. 2d 871, 881, 226 P.2d 694 (to abate second action because of pendency of prior action, "it is elementary that the issues in the two actions must be substantially the same"); Daly v. White (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 22, 26, 222 P.2d 950 (second action may be abated only when subject of the two actions is the same).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.80

§ 71.80 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--No Other Action Is Pending Between Same Parties on Same Cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(c)]--Prior Action Is No Longer Pending

[1] FORM Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--No Other Action Is Pending Between Same Parties on Same Cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(c)]--Prior Action Is No Longer Pending

[Caption. See § 71.30.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE THE PRIOR ACTION IS NO LONGER PENDING.

A. Nonfavored Plea. [See § 71.79, Paragraph A.]

B. Requirement That Other Action Be Pending. An objection that there is another action between the same parties on the same cause lies only when the other action is still pending (see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(c)).

C. Prior Action No Longer Pending. A demurrer on the ground of another action pending does not lie when the prior action is no longer pending at the time the objection is made (Williams v. California (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 960, 965, 133 Cal. Rptr. 539).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a special demurrer to a complaint based on the ground of another action pending. The ground of objection set out is that the prior action is no longer pending.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the demurrer supported by the memorandum set out in § 71.65.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should point out, from facts of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice (for example, the court's file), that the prior action is no longer pending.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.74[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Requirement That Other Action Be Pending

Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10 provides that a party against whom a complaint has been filed may object to it by demurrer or answer as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30 on the ground "(c) There is another action pending between the same parties on the same cause of action."

[b] Prior Action No Longer Pending

The facts and procedural background of Williams v. California (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 960, 133 Cal. Rptr. 539 , are discussed in § 71.79[3][c]. The prior action involved in that case was a class action seeking a writ of mandate to compel the director to render his fair hearing decisions on applications within the time required by the applicable federal regulation. The trial court had denied the writ but its judgment had been reversed on appeal with directions to the trial court to grant relief compelling compliance with the time requirement of the regulation. In Williams, the court of appeal said that a demurrer on the ground of another action pending will not be sustained if the former action is no longer pending, and that an action is deemed pending only from the time of its commencement until its final determination on appeal, or until the time for appeal has passed, unless the judgment is sooner satisfied, and that the asserted prior action had been finally determined on appeal prior to the commencement of the present action (62 Cal. App. 3d 960, 965) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Prior Action No Longer Pending

The facts and procedural background of Colvig v. RKO Gen., Inc. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 42 Cal. Rptr. 473 , are discussed in § 71.39[3][a]. In reversing the judgment of dismissal with directions, the court of appeal, with respect to the demurrer on the ground of another action pending, said that a demurrer on this ground will not be sustained if the former action is no longer pending, and that an action commenced, tried, and pursued to judgment is deemed to be pending only from the time of its commencement until its final determination on appeal, or until the time for appeal has passed unless the judgment is sooner satisfied. The court pointed out that the judgment confirming the arbitrator's award in the former action had become final before the present action was commenced (232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 71) .

See also National Auto. Ins. Co. v. Winter (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d 11, 16, 136 P.2d 22 (another action pending as ground for demurrer does not include an action that has been fully adjudicated and plea is ineffective unless former suit is actually pending at time later suit is commenced).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.81

§ 71.81 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--No Other Action Is Pending Between Same Parties on Same Cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(c)]--Demurrer Does Not Lie to Abate First Action

[1] FORM Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--No Other Action Is Pending Between Same Parties on Same Cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(c)]--Demurrer Does Not Lie to Abate First Action

[Caption. See § 71.30.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE THE PRESENT ACTION IS THE FIRST, AND NOT THE SUBSEQUENT, ACTION FILED.

A. Nonfavored Plea. [See § 71.79, Paragraph A.]

B. Objection Does Not Lie to Complaint in First Action. The objection that another action is pending between the same parties for the same cause may be raised only in the subsequent action filed and not in the first filed action (California Union Ins. Co. v. Trinity River Land Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 104, 108-109, 163 Cal. Rptr. 802 ; Hagan v. Fairfield (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 240, 246-247, 16 Cal. Rptr. 14).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a special demurrer to a complaint based on the ground of another action pending. The ground of opposition set out is that the demurrer is filed to the complaint in the first action rather than in the subsequently filed action.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the demurrer supported by the memorandum set out in § 71.65.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should refer to the filing dates of the respective actions in argument that the action before the court is the first action.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.74[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Objection Does Not Lie to Complaint in First Action

California Union Ins. Co. v. Trinity River Land Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 104, 163 Cal. Rptr. 802 , was an action by plaintiff insurers for a declaration of nonliability or limited liability to defendant corporation whose insured building was destroyed by fire. The action was against the corporation and its sole shareholder and alleged that the sole shareholder was responsible for the fire. About one month after the original complaint was served, defendants filed a complaint in another county claiming a loss under the policy, wrongful refusal to pay the claim, negligence of an insurance agent in failing to provide $50,000 worth of insurance, and misrepresentation, unfair claim practices, and defamation by plaintiffs. Both plaintiffs and the insurance agent were named defendants in this action. The day after defendants filed their action they demurred to the amended complaint in the present action. Their demurrer was sustained without leave to amend on the ground the complaint failed to state a cause of action and another action was pending, being the action filed by defendants. Plaintiffs' motion for reconsideration was denied and plaintiffs appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment with directions to overrule the demurrer. The court held that the complaint stated a cause of action and that the special demurrer was erroneously sustained and stated that, with respect to the special demurrer, the pendency of another action growing out of the same transaction is a ground for abatement of the second action but never for abatement of the first. The underlying theory of the plea of another action pending, according to the court, is that the first action will normally be an ample remedy and the second action is therefore unnecessary and vexatious (105 Cal. App. 3d 104, 108-109) . The court said that since there was no issue raised in the second suit that could not be raised and determined in the first suit and no necessary party who could not be joined in that suit, neither the special demurrer nor the rule of exclusive concurrent jurisdiction allows "granting defendants' motion" [sic, sustaining defendants' demurrer?] (105 Cal. App. 3d 104, 109). The court explained that the rule of exclusive current jurisdiction provides that when two superior courts have concurrent jurisdiction over the subject matter and all the parties involved in litigation, the first to assume jurisdiction has exclusive and continuing jurisdiction over the subject matter and all parties involved until such time as all necessarily related matters have been resolved and that priority of jurisdiction resides in the tribunal where process is first served. The court pointed out that the proof of service in the present case attached to plaintiffs' initial complaint showed that service was effected on July 25, 1978, prior to defendants' August 23, 1978, filing of suit and concluded that the trial court erred in sustaining defendants' demurrer on the ground of another action pending (105 Cal. App. 3d 104, 109) .

Hagan v. Fairfield (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 240, 16 Cal. Rptr. 14 , was an action by two plaintiffs against the last elected officers and directors of a corporation and the managing agent to whom they had relinquished control of the corporation several years previous to the commencement of the action. Plaintiffs sought judgment compelling defendants to register on the corporation's books shares of stock purchased by them from various stockholders and to issue new certificates in their names evidencing such shares, which defendants had refused to do, and for an order enjoining defendants from transferring or disbursing any assets of the corporation until a new board of directors had been elected. Defendants demurred to the amended complaint on several grounds, including the ground of other actions pending between the same parties for the same cause. In support of this ground, defendants filed a declaration for the purpose of invoking judicial notice of three other actions or proceedings pending in the same court. The demurrer was sustained without leave to amend and defendants' concurrent motion to dismiss the complaint on the ground it was sham and frivolous was granted, and plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment with directions to deny the motion to dismiss and to grant leave to file a second amended complaint within a reasonable time. The court, with respect to the plea of other actions pending, held that one of the pending actions did not involve the same subject matter and that the present action was filed prior to the other two pending actions. In this regard, the court, quoting from Kirman v. Borzage (1949) 89 Cal. App. 2d 898, 903, 202 P.2d 303 , discussed under § 71.81[4][a], said that the pendency of another action growing out of the same transaction is ground for the abatement of the second action but never for the abatement of the first action (194 Cal. App. 2d 240, 246-247) .

The court further pointed out that even when the plea is properly sustained the only judgment to which defendant is entitled under Code Civ. Proc. § 597 is a judgment abating the second action and not a judgment of dismissal (194 Cal. App. 2d 240, 247) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Objection Does Not Lie to Complaint in First Action

Kirman v. Borzage (1949) 89 Cal. App. 2d 898, 202 P.2d 303 , was an action to foreclose a mechanic's lien and to recover money due on a written contract. The action resulted in a judgment for plaintiffs that was reversed on appeal. Thereafter, plaintiffs filed their amended, second amended, and third amended complaints; defendant's demurrer to the latter pleading was sustained without leave to amend, and judgment was entered accordingly, although reversed on appeal. On retrial on the third amended complaint, plaintiffs recovered judgment and defendant appealed. In affirming the judgment, the court of appeal stated one of the issues as follows: Was there another action pending at the time of the trial that would bar the judgment in the present case? The court answered the question in the negative. It pointed out that subsequent to the filing of the present action, plaintiffs filed another action to preserve their rights on the second cause of action alleged in their original complaint in the event the appellate court should sustain the ruling of the trial court in dismissing their action on the third amended complaint. The court said that the rule is that the pendency of another action growing out of the same transaction is ground for abatement of the second action but never for the abatement of the first action and that, applying this rule to the present case, it was apparent that the present action being first in point of time of filing was not abated by the filing of the subsequent action (89 Cal. App. 2d 898, 903) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.82

§ 71.82 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Defect or Misjoinder of Parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(d)] Not Established--Nonjoined Party Is Jointly and Severally Liable in Tort

[1] FORM Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Defect or Misjoinder of Parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(d)] Not Established--Nonjoined Party Is Jointly and Severally Liable in Tort

[Caption. See § 71.30.]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT BASED ON NONJOINDER OF A PARTY DEFENDANT BECAUSE THE NONJOINED PERSON IS A JOINTLY AND SEVERALLY LIABLE TORTFEASOR AND THEREFORE MERELY A PERMISSIVE PARTY.

A. Circumstances In Which Joinder Is Required. [See § 71.66, Alternative Paragraphs B.]

B. Joinder of Jointly and Severally Liable Tortfeasor Not Required. The description of the circumstances in Section 389 of the Code of Civil Procedure, in which a person is required to be joined in an action, is not at variance with the settled authorities holding that a tortfeasor with the usual joint and several liability is merely a permissive party to an action against another with like liability. Joinder of such a tortfeasor is regulated by Section 379 of the Code of Civil Procedure, governing permissive joinder of defendants (10 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports, pp. 536-538; see Grundel v. Union Iron Works (1900) 127 Cal. 438, 442, 59 P. 826).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a special demurrer to a complaint on the ground of defect of parties defendant. The ground of objection is that the alleged defect is not objectionable because it consists of the nonjoinder of a person whose liability on the tort sued on is joint and several with that of defendant.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the demurrer supported by the memorandum set out in § 71.66.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Counsel would, therefore, refer to the allegations of the complaint and to facts of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice (such as the court's file in the separate action against the nonjoined defendant), pointing out that the person not named in the present case would be jointly and severally liable with the defendant in tort.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Joinder of Jointly and Severally Liable Tortfeasor Not Required

In 1971 Code Civ. Proc. § 389 was revised to substitute practically in its entirety Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 19 for former Code Civ. Proc. § 389 [see Stats. 1971, ch. 244, operative July 1, 1972; see also § 71.66[2][b]]. In its comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 389, the Law Revision Commission stated that the explanatory note prepared by the Federal Rules Advisory Committee in conjunction with the amendment of Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 19 is "particularly helpful in describing the nature and effect of Code Civ. Proc. § 389. "The Commission quoted excerpts of the note to explain that the subdivision (a) definition of persons to be joined is not couched in terms of the abstract nature of their interests, such as "joint," "united," "separable," or the like [see former Code Civ. Proc. § 382]. The excerpt, citing Moore's Federal Practice (2d ed.), went on to state that it should be noted particularly, however, that the description is not at variance with the settled authorities holding that a tortfeasor with the usual joint and several liability is merely a permissive party to an action against another with like liability, and that joinder of these tortfeasors continues to be regulated by Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 20 [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 378, 379; see, e.g. Grundel v. Union Iron Works (1900) 127 Cal. 438, 442, 59 P. 826 (stating common law rule, discussed below)].

In Grundel v. Union Iron Works (1900) 127 Cal. 438, 442, 59 P. 826 , the plaintiff executor brought a wrongful death action to recover damages on account of the death of the deceased. One of the defendants, United Iron Works, moved for dismissal from the action on the ground that it was a joint tortfeasor with other defendants who had instituted proceedings in federal court for limitation of liability and obtained a restraining order against the plaintiff from proceeding to trial. The trial court granted the motion, and entered a judgment of dismissal. The plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment and remanded the cause. The Court stated that the general rule followed in America is that the liability of two or more persons who jointly engage in the commission of a tort is joint and several, and gives the same rights of action to the person injured as a joint and several contract. Consequently, a judgment recovered against one of the two joint tortfeasors, remaining unsatisfied, is no bar to an action against the other for the same tort (127 Cal. 438, 440-441). The Court further stated that if one is injured by a tortious act, he or she is entitled to compensation for the injury suffered, and, if several persons are guilty in common of the tort, the injured one has his or her right of action for damages against each and all of the joint tortfeasors, and may at his or her election sue them individually or together (127 Cal. 438, 442) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Joinder of Jointly and Severally Liable Tortfeasor Not Required

Williams v. Reed (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 195, 248 P.2d 147 , was an action to enforce payment of two promissory notes and to foreclose a chattel mortgage given to secure the notes. Named as defendants were the four makers of the notes on which each maker was jointly and severally liable. The appearing defendants moved for summary judgment and dismissal and the motions were granted on the ground the debt sued on had been satisfied by judgment. The plaintiff appealed. The court of appeal reversed the judgment. In dicta, the court, citing Grundel v. Union Iron Works (1900) 127 Cal. 438, 442, 59 P. 826 , discussed under § 71.82[3][a], stated the common law rule governing joinder of tortfeasors that in an action against one or more, and less than all, of a number of persons jointly and severally obligated as tortfeasors, a judgment obtained against one is not a bar to an action against the others (nothing short of satisfaction in some form constitutes a bar). The court concluded, by analogy, that the same rule applied with respect to joint and several obligors under a contract (113 Cal. App. 2d 195, 204) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.83

§ 71.83 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Defect or Misjoinder of Parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(d)] Not Established--Joinder Not Feasible [Code Civ. Proc. § 389(b)]

[1] FORM Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Defect or Misjoinder of Parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(d)] Not Established--Joinder Not Feasible [Code Civ. Proc. § 389(b)]

[Caption. See § 71.60.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT ON THE GROUND OF DEFECT OF PARTIES SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE THE NONJOINED PERSON CANNOT BE MADE A PARTY TO THE ACTION AND, IN EQUITY AND GOOD CONSCIENCE, THE ACTION SHOULD PROCEED AMONG THE PARTIES BEFORE THE COURT.

Joinder Not Feasible. When joinder is not feasible the court is required to determine whether in equity and good conscience the action should proceed among the parties before it, or be dismissed without prejudice, the absent person being thus regarded as indispensable. The factors to be considered by the court include (1) to what extent a judgment rendered in the person's absence might be prejudicial to the person or those already parties; (2) the extent to which, by protective provisions in the judgment, by the shaping of relief, or other measures, the prejudice can be lessened or avoided; (3) whether a judgment rendered in the person's absence will be adequate; and (4) whether the plaintiff will have an adequate remedy if the action is dismissed for nonjoinder (Code Civ. Proc. § 389(b); see also Vanoni v. Sonoma County (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 743, 747, 115 Cal. Rptr. 485).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a special demurrer to a complaint on the ground of defect of parties. The ground of opposition set out is that the nonjoined person is one described in Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a) and cannot be made a party to the action but the action should, on a consideration of the factors listed in Code Civ. Proc. § 389(b), in equity and good conscience, proceed among the parties before the court.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the demurrer supported by the memorandum set out in § 71.66.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated, and why, on a consideration of the factors listed in Code Civ. Proc. § 389(b), the action should proceed.

See also §§ 71.20[2], 71.66[2], and 71.74[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Joinder Not Feasible

Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a) provides that a person who is subject to service of process and whose joinder will not deprive the court of jurisdiction over the subject matter of the action shall be joined as a party in the action if (1) in his or her absence complete relief cannot be accorded among those already parties or (2) he or she claims an interest relating to the subject of the action and is so situated that the disposition of the action in his or her absence may (i) as a practical matter impair or impede his or her ability to protect that interest or (ii) leave any of the persons already parties subject to a substantial risk of incurring double, multiple, or otherwise inconsistent obligations by reason of his or her claimed interest, and that if he or she has not been joined the court shall order that he or she be made a party.

Code Civ. Proc. § 389(b) provides that if a person described in Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a)(1) or (2) cannot be made a party, the court shall determine whether inequity and good conscience the action should proceed among the parties before it, or should be dismissed without prejudice, the absent person being thus regarded as indispensable. In making this determination, the court is to consider the factors set out in the form.

Vanoni v. Sonoma County (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 743, 115 Cal. Rptr. 485 , was a taxpayers' action against the county, a flood control district having boundaries coterminous with the county, members of the county board of supervisors, and members of the district's board of directors. The complaint alleged that in 1964 the district had entered into a contract with the United States obligating the county and the district for debts in excess of the county's annual revenue and income without the consent of two thirds of the electors as required by Cal. Const., art. XIII, § 40 (repealed, now see Cal. Const., art. XVI, § 18), which provided in part that no county, city, town, township, board of education, or school district shall incur any indebtedness or liability in any manner or for any purpose exceeding in any year the income and revenue provided for such year, without the assent of two thirds of the qualified electors thereof, voting at an election to be held for that purpose. Plaintiffs sought declaratory relief and an injunction prohibiting further action under the contract. Defendants' demurrer to the complaint was sustained without leave to amend and plaintiffs appealed from the subsequent judgment for defendants.

Although the court of appeal affirmed the judgment on the ground the above-cited constitutional provision did not apply to flood control and water conservation districts, the court considered defendants' objection that the United States was an indispensable party to the action, although not raised in the trial court, on the ground the objection is one that may be raised for the first time on appeal (40 Cal. App. 3d 743, 746) . The court said that parties to a contract should usually be joined in an action challenging the validity of the contract (40 Cal. App. 3d 743, 746) , but that joinder of the United States was not feasible because the United States is not subject to the jurisdiction of the state courts (40 Cal. App. 3d 743, 747) . The court explained that when joinder is not feasible, Code Civ. Proc. § 389(b), discussed above, directs the court to determine whether in equity and good conscience the action should proceed among the parties before it or should be dismissed without prejudice, the absent person being thus regarded as indispensable. The court then quoted the four factors set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 389(b), discussed above, to be considered by the court in reaching this determination and concluded that the term "indispensable" is used in Code Civ. Proc. § 389(b) only in a conclusory sense--a person is regarded as indispensable when he or she cannot be made a party and, on a consideration of relevant factors, it is determined that in his or her absence it would be preferable to dismiss the action (40 Cal. App. 3d 743, 747) . The court observed that no direct authority had been found on the question of whether, under the circumstances of the case, the United States should be regarded as an indispensable party but observed that plaintiffs would be left with no remedy in the state courts if their action were dismissed for nonjoinder of the United States. Since Code Civ. Proc. § 389 directs that one factor to be considered by the court is whether the plaintiff will have an adequate remedy if the action is dismissed for nonjoinder, equity and good conscience suggested that the action should proceed (40 Cal. App. 3d 743, 747) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Joinder Not Feasible

Citizens Task Force on Sohio v. Board of Harbor Comrs. (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 812, 153 Cal. Rptr. 584, 591 P.2d 1236 , was a mandate proceeding by which petitioner sought to compel the Board of Harbor Commissioners of the Port of Long Beach to comply with the California Environmental Quality Act. The petition challenged the adequacy of an environmental impact report prepared jointly by the port and by the Public Utilities Commission with regard to a project to move Alaskan crude oil from a delivery point in Long Beach by overland pipeline to Texas. The board's motion to compel joinder of the PUC as an indispensable party was granted and the trial court then transferred the matter to the Supreme Court on the ground it lacked authority to compel the PUC to comply with the act. In holding the transfer improper on the ground the port was the lead agency and hence required to defend the adequacy of the entire report, the Supreme Court, in ordering the case transferred back to the superior court, said that accordingly, although the PUC could not properly be made a party because its joinder would deprive the court of jurisdiction over the subject matter, the court should have permitted the action to proceed against the port alone (23 Cal. 3d 812, 814) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.84

§ 71.84 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Defect or Misjoinder of Parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(d)] Not Established--No Misjoinder When Pleading Shows Common Questions of Law or Fact for Relief Arising Out of Same Transaction or Series of Transactions [Code Civ. Proc. § 378]

[1] FORM Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Defect or Misjoinder of Parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(d)] Not Established--No Misjoinder When Pleading Shows Common Questions of Law or Fact for Relief Arising Out of Same Transaction or Series of Transactions [Code Civ. Proc. § 378]

[Caption. See § 71.30.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE _____ [COMPLAINT or CROSS COMPLAINT] SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE, PURSUANT TO SECTION _____ [378 or 379] OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE, ALL OF THE _____ [PLAINTIFFS or CROSS COMPLAINANTS or DEFENDANTS or CROSS DEFENDANTS] ARE PERMITTED TO JOIN IN THE ACTION.

[EITHER, if demurrer is for misjoinder of party plaintiffs or cross complainants]

A. Permissive Joinder of Plaintiffs. All persons may join in one action as plaintiffs if (1) they assert any right to relief jointly, severally, or in the alternative, in respect of or arising out of the same transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences and if any question of law or fact common to all these persons will arise in the action; or (2) they have a claim, right, or interest adverse to the defendant in the property or controversy that is the subject of the action (Code Civ. Proc. § 378(a); State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. v. Superior Court (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1113, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 229 ; Anaya v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 228, 231, 206 Cal. Rptr. 520).

[Optional] B. Interest in Action or Relief Need Not Be Same. It is not necessary that each plaintiff be interested as to every cause of action or as to all relief prayed for. Judgment may be given for one or more of the plaintiffs according to their respective right to relief (Code Civ. Proc. § 378(b)).

[Optional] C. Joinder of Cross Complainant Permitted. When a person files a cross complaint as authorized by Section 428.10 of the Code of Civil Procedure, he or she may join any person as a cross complainant, whether or not such person is already a party to the action, if, had the cross complaint been filed as an independent action, the joinder of that party would have been permitted by the statutes governing joinder of parties (Code Civ. Proc. § 428.20).

[OR, if demurrer is for misjoinder of party defendants]

A. Permissive Joinder of Defendants. All persons may be joined in one action as defendants if there is asserted against them (1) any right to relief jointly, severally, or in the alternative, in respect of or arising out of the same transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences and if any question of law or fact common to all these persons will arise in the action, or (2) a claim, right, or interest adverse to them in the property or controversy that is the subject of the action (Code Civ. Proc. § 379(a); Javor v. State Bd. of Equalization (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 790, 802 n.10, 117 Cal. Rptr. 305, 527 P.2d 1153).

[Optional] B. Interest in Action or Relief Need Not Be Same. It is not necessary that each defendant be interested as to every cause of action or as to all relief prayed for. Judgment may be given against one or more defendants according to their respective liabilities (Code Civ. Proc. § 379(b)).

[Optional] C. Joinder in Case of Doubt as to Defendant Liable. When the plaintiff is in doubt as to the person from whom he or she or it is entitled to redress, he or she or it may join two or more defendants, with the intent that the question as to which, if any, of the defendants is liable, and to what extent, may be determined between the parties (Code Civ. Proc. § 379(c)).

[Optional] D. Joinder of Cross Defendant Permitted. When a person files a cross complaint as authorize by Section 428.10 of the Code of Civil Procedure, he or she may join any person as a cross defendant, whether or not such person is already a party to the action, if, had the cross complaint been filed as an independent action, the joinder of that party would have been permitted by the statutes governing joinder of parties (Code Civ. Proc. § 428.20).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a special demurrer to a complaint on the ground of misjoinder of parties when it has been asserted that a plaintiff, defendant, cross complainant, or cross defendant has been improperly joined under the statutes governing joinder of parties [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 378, 379, 428.10, 428.20]. The ground of opposition set out is that the joinder is permitted because the pleading shows common questions of law or fact for relief arising out of the same transaction or series of transactions.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the demurrer supported by the memorandum set out in § 71.67.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel would show from the allegations in the complaint or from facts of which the court must or may take judicial notice that the joinder of the plaintiffs is permitted by statute.

[b] Permissive Joinder of Parties

The permissive joinder of plaintiffs is authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 378. Permissive joinder of actions is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 427.10.

In the case of joinder the court may order separate trials or make such other orders as appear just to prevent any party from being embarrassed, delayed, or put to undue expense [Code Civ. Proc. § 379.5; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1048 on severance and consolidation of causes generally].

Code Civ. Proc. § 378, and Code Civ. Proc. § 379 relating to permissive joinder of defendants, are broader in their scope than is Code Civ. Proc. § 389, the compulsory joinder statute. Persons required to be joined under the latter statute would clearly be included in the persons described in the former statutes. Consequently, when the objection to a complaint or cross complaint is that there is a misjoinder of parties, the question is not whether such parties must be joined under Code Civ. Proc. § 389, but rather, whether such parties may be joined under Code Civ. Proc. § 378 or 379. If they may, the demurrer for misjoinder should be overruled.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.74[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Permissive Joinder of Plaintiffs

Code Civ. Proc. § 378, as amended in 1971 [Stats. 1971, ch. 244, operative July 1, 1972], continued the substance of former California law and superseded former Code Civ. Proc. § 381, portions of Code Civ. Proc. § 378, and portions of former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 383 and 384. The California Law Revision Commission, in commenting on the amendment, stated that Code Civ. Proc. § 378(a)(1) and (b) was phrased in substantial conformity with Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 20(a), that the broadest sort of joinder is permitted under the transaction clause of the federal rule and under Code Civ. Proc. § 378, and that Code Civ. Proc. § 378(a)(2) is derived from the "interest in the subject of the action" provision formerly found in Code Civ. Proc. § 378 and expressed in principle in former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 381, 383, and 384. The Commission explained that Code Civ. Proc. § 378(a)(2) was not, however, needed to expand the broad scope of permissive joinder under the transaction clause of Code Civ. Proc. § 378(a)(1) but was included to eliminate any possibility that omission of the "interest in the subject of the action" provision formerly found in Code Civ. Proc. § 378, and the deletion of other permissive joinder provisions, might be construed to preclude joinder in cases in which it was formerly permitted [10 Cal. Law Rev. Comm'n Reps. 528 (1971)].

In State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. v. Superior Court (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 229 , 165 individual plaintiffs filed a complaint against their insurer based on allegations of unfair and unreasonable claims practices regarding the treatment of claims on plaintiffs' homeowner insurance following a major earthquake. Defendant demurred on the ground that the plaintiffs are separate individuals with disparate claims who have been improperly joined together without a common occurrence or common question of law or fact. After the trial court overruled the demurrer, defendant petitioned for a writ of mandate to overturn the ruling.

The court of appeal agreed with the trial court that the plaintiffs were properly joined, noting initially that joinder of plaintiffs is permitted if there is any factual relationship between the claims alleged. The court considered the plaintiff's claim that defendant engaged in a systematic practice to deceive its policyholders with respect to their purchase of earthquake insurance, and concluded that this claim contained common facts central to the alleged deception (45 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1113) . The court thus denied the petition for a peremptory writ of mandate.

In Anaya v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 228, 206 Cal. Rptr. 520 , some 218 plaintiffs sought damages for exposure to a chemical in a fertilizer and agricultural chemicals manufacturing facility. Defendants demurred, asserting misjoinder of plaintiffs. After hearing, the trial court ruled that plaintiffs were misjoined and that separate complaints should be filed on behalf of each allegedly injured employee. The plaintiffs unsuccessfully sought reconsideration of the trial court order, and petitioned the court of appeal for writ of mandate to compel the trial court to vacate its decision sustaining the demurrer.

The court of appeal issued the writ of mandate. The court distinguished the facts before it from those of Coleman v. Twin Coast Newspaper, Inc. (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 650, 346 P.2d 488 , discussed in § 71.67[3][b], in which misjoinder had been found. In Coleman, three separate and distinct plaintiffs were suing to recover damages for trespasses on separate and distinct premises and for conversions of separate and distinct property. The only fact that appeared in the complaint was that three chiropractors, practicing in the same city, underwent scrutiny during the course of the same day. Coleman concluded that the community of interest necessary to allow permissive joinder under Code Civ. Proc. § 378 was entirely lacking. In Anaya, however, the employees were said to have been exposed to harmful chemicals at one location over a period of many years by inhalation, drinking of water, and physical contact. Thus, according to the court, they were all involved in the same series of transactions or occurrences and asserted rights to relief therefrom. The fact that each employee was not exposed on every occasion any other employee was exposed did not destroy the community of interest linking the plaintiffs (160 Cal. App. 3d 228, 233) .

[b] Permissive Joinder of Defendants

Code Civ. Proc. § 379, as amended in 1971 [Stats. 1971, ch. 244, operative July 1, 1972], provides statutory standards for joinder of defendants comparable to those governing joinder of plaintiffs under Code Civ. Proc. § 378. The California Law Revision Commission, in commenting on the 1971 amendment, stated that the deleted provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 379 and former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 379a, 379b, 380, and 383 provided liberal joinder rules but were criticized for their uncertainty and overlap, and that the amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 379 substituted the more understandable "transaction" test set forth in Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 20(a). The Commission concluded that in so doing the section "probably makes explicit what was implicit in prior decisions." The Commission further explained that Code Civ. Proc. § 379(a)(2) was included merely to make clear that the section as amended permits joinder in any case in which it was formerly permitted, that the provision was derived from the deleted provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 379 and the principle stated in former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 379a, 379b, 379c, 380, and 383, and that the phrase "in the alternative" retains without change the prior law under former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 379a and 379c [10 Cal. Law Rev Comm'n Reps. 529 (1971)].

Javor v. State Bd. of Equalization (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 790, 117 Cal. Rptr. 305, 527 P.2d 1153 , was a class action by a customer individually and on behalf of consumer purchasers of certain new motor vehicles and accessories in California during a specified period, against the retailers of the vehicles and accessories to recover overpayments of the state sales tax. The action arose out of the retroactive repeal by Congress of the federal manufacturers' excise tax imposed on the sale of specified new motor vehicles and accessories and the requirement that the manufacturers refund the federal tax to those persons who had made purchases during the retroactive period, approximately four months. The state sales tax was based on the sales price of the vehicle and accessories which price included the repealed federal excise tax. It was the sales tax paid on the excise tax that was sought to be recovered. The State Board of Equalization was joined as a party on the ground it held the excess sales tax collected and paid to it by the defendant retailers as a constructive trustee for the benefit of the plaintiffs. Plaintiff had alleged that the defendant retailers were under no statutory obligation to claim any refunds from the Board for the benefit of plaintiffs and had no financial interest to do so, and that defendant Board was under no statutory obligation to voluntarily refund the taxes to plaintiffs and had no financial interest in doing so. The Board's general demurrer to the complaint was sustained with leave to amend, and on plaintiff's election to stand on the complaint, the action was dismissed as to the Board.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment with directions to overrule the demurrer and allow the Board to answer. The Court stated that since the Board has a vital interest in the integrity of the sales tax and would acquire rights to the money once the limitation period for refunds expired, it was clear that it could be joined as a defendant pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 379(a), which provides that all persons may be joined in one action as defendants if there is asserted against them "(2) A claim, right, or interest adverse to them in the property of controversy which is the subject of the action." (12 Cal. 3d 790, 802 n.10 .)

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Permissive Joinder of Plaintiffs

Wadleigh v. Phelps (1906) 149 Cal. 627, 87 P. 93 , was an action to have certain deeds, absolute in form, decreed to be mortgages, to have the amount owing by plaintiffs ascertained, and for an order that on payment of the amount adjudged to be due, the property described in the deeds be reconveyed to plaintiffs. Defendant was the executrix of the will of the deceased lender-grantee. The complaint alleged in substance that plaintiff Wadleigh had borrowed specified sums of money from defendant's decedent, that he had given a note therefor, and that to secure the note he had executed conveyances of certain of his properties to the decedent. It was further alleged that to secure the same note, plaintiff Smith had executed a conveyance to decedent of certain of her mining property in Nevada County. Defendant demurred to the complaint on the grounds, among others, that there had been a misjoinder of actions (no longer a ground of demurrer) and a misjoinder of parties plaintiff, since Smith was the only proper party plaintiff in an action to redeem as to her land and Wadleigh was the only proper party plaintiff in an action to redeem as to his land. The demurrer was overruled and defendant appealed from the subsequent judgment for plaintiffs. In modifying the judgment with respect to the award of interest and affirming the judgment as modified, the Supreme Court said there was no misjoinder of causes of action because there was but a single cause of action stated, that the effect of the various deeds given to secure the one indebtedness was to combine all the property thereby conveyed as a single security for the debt (149 Cal. 627, 635) . The court further held that there was no misjoinder of parties, that when two tracts have been mortgaged by different persons to another person to secure a single indebtedness, the owners of both parcels and all persons interested in them must be parties to the action to redeem, if not as plaintiffs then at least as defendants (149 Cal. 627, 636-637) .

In Aldrich v. Transcontinental Land & Water Co. (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 788, 281 P.2d 362 , defendants appealed from an order granting a preliminary injunction enjoining them from prosecuting municipal court actions for breach of contract against numerous plaintiffs who were suing them in superior court for rescission of the same contracts. Defendants argued, among other things, that there was a misjoinder of parties plaintiff in that there was no question of law or fact that was common to all the parties to the action, that in each of the numerous groups of causes of action a different parcel of real property was involved, and that in each sale a different plaintiff or plaintiffs were involved (131 Cal. App. 2d 788, 790-791). The court of appeal affirmed the orders, holding that the complaint presented questions of law and fact common to all the parties to the action and that the sales arose out of the same transaction or series of transactions. The common questions included, among others, whether defendants schemed to cheat and defraud plaintiffs, incorporated companies to shield individuals from liability, and made false representations (131 Cal. App. 2d 788, 793-794) . In addition, the court cited Akely v. Kinnicutt (1924), 238 N.Y. 466, 144 N.E. 682 , which held that several purchases by plaintiffs in that case did not lose their character as a series of transactions because they occurred at different places and times extending through many months." (131 Cal. App. 2d 788, 795-796 .)

DeMille v. Los Angeles County (1938) 25 Cal. App. 2d 506, 77 P.2d 905 , was an action to recover taxes paid under protest and to have an assessment levied by the county on plaintiffs' respective properties declared void. Defendant's demurrer on the grounds of failure to state a cause of action and misjoinder of parties plaintiff was overruled. On defendant's failure to answer, default and default judgment were entered that plaintiffs recover the taxes paid and declaring the assessment void. On appeal, the court held that the general demurrer for failure to state a cause of action should have been sustained and reversed the judgment with directions on that ground, but that the demurrer for misjoinder was without merit. The court held that when it appears that questions of law or fact would arise that are common to all the parties mentioned in the complaint it is permissible for several plaintiffs to join in an action instead of severally instituting suits to obtain the same relief. The court said that from an examination of the various counts of the complaint it was apparent that there were questions of law that were common to all the parties plaintiff, that the validity of the assessment was attacked on the same ground by each of the plaintiffs, and that a decision as to the law involved in the case necessarily determined the rights of every one of them. The court said that the question of fact as to the value of the properties and the amount of the assessment that should be levied are the only different questions presented, but that the rate would be the same as applied to the properties of the different plaintiffs and that the law determining their rights would be exactly the same (25 Cal. App. 2d 506, 508) .

See also Adams v. Albany (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d 639, 646-647, 269 P.2d 142 (actions by war veterans and their wives for damages for conspiracy and fraud in construction of houses and their sale to plaintiffs).

[b] Joinder in Case of Doubt as to Defendant Liable

Landau v. Salam (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 901, 95 Cal. Rptr. 46, 484 P.2d 1390 , was an action for damages for personal injuries allegedly sustained as the result of both negligent driving of an automobile on April 28, 1968, and the negligent maintenance of property on August 12, 1968. Plaintiff joined as defendants the persons he alleged were responsible for each occurrence and asserted his uncertainty as to whether his injuries, medical expenses, and loss of income emanated from the first or second accident. Both causes of action asserted that plaintiff sustained permanent injuries, had and would incur medical expenses, and could not pursue his usual work. Both counts then stated that plaintiff was uncertain as to which defendant caused his described injuries and whether or not they were caused by the first or second cause of action, and he therefore joined both causes of action under Code Civ. Proc. § 379c [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 379(c)]. Defendants named regarding the automobile accident demurred to the complaint on the grounds of misjoinder of parties defendant. The trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend and dismissed the action as to those defendants. In reversing the judgment with directions to allow plaintiff to filea further amended complaint, the Supreme Court held that under Code Civ. Proc. § 379c [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 379(c)], a plaintiff may join two independent and successive tortfeasors in a single action if he or she pleads facts showing that he or she entertains a reasonable doubt as to which defendant is liable for his injuries, or the extent to which each may be liable, and that although the complaint failed to plead with specificity a "reasonable uncertainty" as to the liability of the respective defendants, plaintiff's opportunity to do so should not have been truncated by a demurrer sustained without leave to amend (4 Cal. 3d 901, 903, 905, 909) .

Kraft v. Smith (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 124, 148 P.2d 23 , was an action for damages for medical malpractice. Plaintiffs, husband and wife, joined as defendants two physicians and surgeons, who, independently of each other treated plaintiff wife at different times and places, but the treatment of each of whom, it was alleged, contributed to aggravating injuries she had previously received, including a broken ankle, a broken leg, and a fractured knee. Plaintiffs alleged they were in doubt as to whether they were entitled to redress from either or both of the defendants, and for that reason both defendants had been joined with the intent that the question as to whether both were or one was liable to the plaintiffs and to what extent might be determined in the action, and that the court might award judgment to plaintiffs as against the defendants either jointly, severally, or in the alternative. One of the defendants demurred, specifying as grounds of the special demurrer that there was a misjoinder of parties defendant and causes of action (no longer a ground of demurrer). From a judgment entered on the order sustaining the demurrer without leave to amend, plaintiffs appealed. The Supreme Court reversed the judgment with directions to grant plaintiffs a reasonable time within which to serve and file another amended complaint to clear up uncertainties. The Supreme Court held that the joinder of the actions and parties was authorized under former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 379a-379c [now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 379(a)(1) (right to relief jointly, severally, or in the alternative), (b) (interest in action or relief need not be same), and (c) (joinder of defendants in case of doubt as to liability)] (24 Cal. 2d 124, 127-129). The Court stated that if it appeared that negligence of both defendants contributed proximately to cause an injury for which plaintiff was entitled to recover it might be a matter entailing great difficulty of proof as to the amount in which each defendant was responsible. Further, to require separate actions and separate trials in such a situation would enhance the difficulties of proof and tend to obstruct, rather than to promote, justice, and that through having both defendants before the court at the same time and in the same action it could be expected more sanguinely that a jury should arrive at soundly based and just verdicts (24 Cal. 2d 124, 130) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.85

§ 71.85 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Defect or Misjoinder of Parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(d)] Not Established--Demurring Defendant Not Misjoined

[1] FORM Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Defect or Misjoinder of Parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(d)] Not Established--Demurring Defendant Not Misjoined

[Caption. See § 71.30.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE THE PARTY DEMURRING IS NOT MISJOINED, AND IT DOES NOT APPEAR THAT THE DEMURRING PARTY'S INTERESTS ARE ADVERSELY AFFECTED BY THE JOINDER.

Who May Object. Unless it appears that the interests of a properly named defendant will be adversely affected by the improper joinder of another party, only the improperly joined party may raise the objection of misjoinder of parties (see California Farm & Fruit Co. v. Schiappa-Pietra (1907) 151 Cal. 732, 744, 91 P. 593 ; Anaya v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 228, 231 n.1, 206 Cal. Rptr. 520).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a special demurrer to a complaint on the ground of misjoinder of parties. The ground of opposition set out is that the demurring party is not misjoined and it does not appear that the interests of the demurring party will be adversely affected by the misjoinder of the other party.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the demurrer supported by the memorandum set out in § 71.67.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel would show from the complaint or from facts of which the court must or may take judicial notice that the demurring party is not the allegedly misjoined party and that his or her interests have not been adversely affected by the joinder.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.74[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Who May Object

California Farm & Fruit Co. v. Schiappa-Pietra (1907) 151 Cal. 732, 91 P. 593 , was an action brought by a corporation to rescind the sale to it of certain real property on the ground of alleged fraudulent representations and to restore the parties as far as possible to the same position they occupied at the time of entering into the transaction. To this end, the complaint sought the setting aside of the deed of the property, the cancellation of the notes and bonds given on the purchase, and an accounting to determine the amounts due plaintiff, and to have certain of its stock issued to one of the defendants cancelled. Defendants' demurrer to the complaint on the ground, among others, that there was a misjoinder of parties plaintiff because a bondholder, who owned the stock of the corporation, was joined as plaintiff, was sustained with leave to amend and, on plaintiffs' failure to amend, judgment was entered for defendants.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment. The Court held that the bondholder would be a proper party defendant to oppose or advocate any proposed disposition of the bonds "... and if some disposition of them is essential to complete relief, he or she would be a necessary party. If he desires now to make common cause with the plaintiff corporation ... and makes proffer of the stock and bonds for the purposes of the suit, it is immaterial to the other defendants whether he or she is plaintiff or defendant" (151 Cal. 732, 744) .

The facts and procedural background of Anaya v. Superior Court (1984)160 Cal. App. 3d 228, 206 Cal. Rptr. 520 , are discussed in § 71.84[3][a]. On issuing a writ of mandate compelling the trial court to vacate its decision sustaining a demurrer based on misjoinder of parties, the court noted that in considering whether the plaintiffs qualify for joinder under Code Civ. Proc. § 378(a), it could not ignore the observation that although the code seems to authorize the sustaining of a demurrer solely for misjoinder of parties, the authorities indicate that the defendant is entitled to a favorable ruling only when he or she can show some prejudice suffered or some interest affected by the misjoinder. In practical effect this means that such a demurrer can be successfully used only by the person improperly joined. A proper defendant is seldom injured by the joinder of unnecessary or improper parties plaintiff or defendant, and his or her demurrer ought to be overruled (160 Cal. App. 3d 228, 231 n.1).

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Who May Object

The facts and procedural background of Gardner v. Samuels (1897) 116 Cal. 84, 47 P. 935 , are discussed in § 71.67[3][d]. In reversing the judgment as to the defendant lessor, the Supreme Court held that the complaint as to him stated a cause of action and that he was not a proper party to raise the objection that the purchaser had been misjoined as a defendant. The Court explained that a demurrer for misjoinder of parties defendant was taken from the system of equity pleading, that under that system the demurrer could be interposed only by the party who was improperly made a defendant, and that a defendant against whom the complaint was sufficient could not object that others who had no interest in the subject matter of the dispute were made defendants unless it also appeared that his interests were thereby affected (116 Cal. 84, 90) .

Kennedy v. Bank of America (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 637, 47 Cal. Rptr. 154 , was an action against a bank as executor and the beneficiaries (real parties in interest) under a will. The second amended complaint was in two counts. The first was for quasi-specific performance of an alleged oral agreement to leave property to plaintiff by will as compensation for her services and the second on a quantum meruit, for the reasonable value of the same services, and seeking to impose a constructive trust on decedent's property. The bank's general and special demurrer to the first count was sustained without leave to amend and its general and special demurrer to the second count was sustained with leave to amend. The bank's demurrer to the third amended complaint was likewise sustained with leave to amend, one of the grounds being misjoinder of parties defendant. Plaintiff declined to further amend and the action was dismissed. In reversing the judgment on the second count but affirming it on the first, the court of appeal, with respect to the ground of misjoinder, based on the joining of the beneficiaries with the executor, which conceded that it was a proper party, said that it was not open to the executor to complain that the real parties in interest were misjoined, that only the person misjoined may complain, and that as to the executor, the improper joinder of its named codefendants did not adversely affect its interests in the action (237 Cal. App. 2d 637, 653) .

Division of Labor Law Enforcement v. Barnes (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 337, 23 Cal.Rptr. 55 (disapproved on another point in White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 351 n.9, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438 P.2d 345), involved a cross complaint in an action brought by the division to recover on assigned claims for wages allegedly due to four ranch workers and for statutory penalties for nonpayment. The cross complaint was by the defendants against the division, a deputy labor commissioner, and the four assignors. The division and the deputy labor commissioner jointly filed a special and general demurrer and the four assignors jointly filed a similar demurrer. One of the grounds of both joint demurrers was that the division and the deputy labor commissioner had been misjoined as cross defendants. The demurrers were sustained without leave to amend and the concurrent motion to strike the cross complaint was granted. Cross complainants appealed from the subsequent judgment entered. The court of appeal, in affirming the judgment of dismissal of the causes of action against the division and deputy labor commissioner and holding that their joint demurrer for misjoinder was good, reversed the judgment as to the four wage claimants (assignors) on the grounds, among others, that their joint demurrer for misjoinder was improperly sustained, that only the person misjoined may complain of the misjoinder, and that the joinder of the Division and deputy labor commissioner did not adversely affect their interests (205 Cal. App. 2d 337, 345) .

Wuest v. Wuest (1942) 53 Cal. App. 2d 339, 127 P.2d 934 , was an action to vacate and modify in part an interlocutory judgment of divorce. Defendant's demurrer on both general and special grounds, including the ground of misjoinder of parties defendant, was sustained without leave to amend, and the action was dismissed. In reversing the judgment, the court of appeal, with respect to the ground of misjoinder, said that concerning defendant's claim of misjoinder of parties by naming the county clerk as a defendant, it may well be said that this ground of demurrer, while available to the county clerk, did not furnish defendant Wuest with a legal or valid objection to the complaint, and that it was not open to defendant Wuest to demur for misjoinder of parties when the action properly lay against him and his interests were not affected by the joinder of the county clerk (53 Cal. App. 2d 339, 344) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.86

§ 71.86 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Pleading Is Not Uncertain [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f)]

[1] FORM Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Pleading Is Not Uncertain [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f)]

[Caption. See § 71.30.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE _____ [IT FAILS TO SPECIFY IN WHAT PARTICULARS THE PLEADING IS UNCERTAIN or THE ALLEGATIONS OF THE COMPLAINT ARE SUFFICIENTLY CLEAR TO APPRISE DEFENDANT OF THE ISSUES TO BE MET or THE AMBIGUOUS FACTS ALLEGED ARE PRESUMPTIVELY WITHIN THE DEMURRING DEFENDANT'S KNOWLEDGE or THE CHALLENGED ALLEGATIONS ARE IMMATERIAL or THE DEMURRER IS BASED ON UNCERTAINTY ARISING FROM THE LEGAL EFFECT OF FACTS or IT ATTEMPTED TO REACH FAILURE TO ALLEGE SUFFICIENT FACTS or combination of these.]

[EITHER]

A. Failure to Specify in What Particulars Pleading Is Uncertain. The failure to specify the uncertain aspects of a complaint will defeat a demurrer based on the grounds of uncertainty (see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.60; Fenton v. Groveland Community Services Dist. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 797, 809, 185 Cal. Rptr. 758).

[AND/OR]

B. Defendant Apprised of Issues to Be Met. When the allegations of the complaint are sufficiently clear to apprise the defendant of the issues to be met, a demurrer to the complaint on the ground of uncertainty should be overruled (Lord v. Garland (1946) 27 Cal.2d 840, 853, 168 P.2d 5 ; Williams v. Beechnut Nutrition Corp. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 135, 139 n.2, 229 Cal. Rptr. 605).

[AND/OR]

C. Ambiguous Facts Alleged Presumptively Within Defendant's Knowledge. A demurrer for uncertainty should not be sustained if the ambiguous facts alleged are presumptively within the knowledge of the demurring party (Bacon v. Wahrhaftig (1950)97 Cal. App. 2d 599, 605, 218 P.2d 144).

[AND/OR]

D. Challenged Allegations Immaterial. A demurrer for uncertainty will not lieas to uncertain and ambiguous allegations if such allegations refer to immaterial matters; in such event they will be treated as surplusage and will be disregarded (Bacon v. Wahrhaftig (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 599, 605, 218 P.2d 144).

[AND/OR]

E. Uncertainty as to Legal Effect of Facts Alleged. Uncertainty arising out of the legal effect of facts alleged is not a ground of demurrer (Gressley v. Williams (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 636, 644, 14 Cal. Rptr. 496).

[AND/OR]

F. Demurrer for Uncertainty Challenges Only Allegations Made. A demurrer for uncertainty does not lie to reach a failure to incorporate sufficient facts but is directed to uncertainty existing in the allegations actually made (Bacon v. Wahrhaftig (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 599, 605, 218 P.2d 144).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a special demurrer to a complaint on the ground of uncertainty, which term includes ambiguity and unintelligibility. The grounds of objection set out, which may be used singly or in combination with each other, are (1) the demurrer fails to specify in what particulars the pleading is uncertain (Paragraph A); (2) the complaint sufficiently apprises defendant of the issues to be met (Paragraph B); (3) the facts asserted to be ambiguously alleged are presumptively within defendant's knowledge (Paragraph C); (4) the allegations objected to as uncertain are immaterial to the cause of action alleged (Paragraph D); (5) defendant's objection is that there is uncertainty in the legal effect of the facts alleged (Paragraph E); (6) defendant's objection is misdirected to an asserted failure to have alleged facts rather than to an uncertainty in allegations actually made (Paragraph F).

Paragraph F is for use in opposing the contention that the complaint is uncertain because it fails to incorporate other facts. The basis for the opposition is that a special demurrer may not be used to raise such an objection when the allegations of the complaint are sufficiently clear to apprise the defendant of the issues that he or she is to meet [see, e.g., People v. Lim (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 872, 882-883, 118 P.2d 472] . Thus, a memorandum asserting Paragraph F would also normally include the point set forth in Paragraph B. It should be noted that although a defendant's objection that a complaint fails to incorporate particular facts is not a proper ground for a special demurrer when the complaint is sufficiently clear, the objection that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action may be raised at any time [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.80(a)]. Hence, counsel should also be prepared to address that objection when appropriate. For memoranda of points and authorities opposing a demurrer to a complaint on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, see §§ 71.30 -71.43.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the demurrer supported by the memorandum set out in §§ 71.68 -71.71.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, if the defendant objects to the complaint on the ground of uncertainty as to matters that are presumptively within his or her knowledge, plaintiff would refer to allegations in the complaint that show defendant's capacity, control, position, or other facts from which the court may infer that defendant should reasonably be presumed to have knowledge as to those matters [see Gressley v. Williams (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 636, 644, 14 Cal. Rptr. 496] .

[b] Demurrer For Uncertainty Not Dispositive of Cause of Action

For actions brought in Los Angeles County Superior Court, that court has stated in its local rules that demurrers founded on uncertainty under Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f) should be used sparingly and that such demurrers are disfavored when they are not dispositive of one or more causes of action [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 9.18(c)].

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.74[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Specify in What Particulars Pleading Is Uncertain

In Fenton v. Groveland Community Services Dist. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 797, 185 Cal. Rptr. 758 , the plaintiffs filed an amended complaint alleging a conspiracy on the part of several public and private defendants to deny them of their right to vote and negligence. The defendants filed a general and special demurrer. The trial court sustained the demurrer and granted plaintiffs 20 days leave to file an amended complaint. Thereafter, the defendants filed a motion to dismiss the case for failure to timely file an amended complaint. The trial court granted the motion, and judgment was entered. The plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. With regard to the demurrer on the grounds of uncertainty, the court stated that the accompanying points and authorities failed to specify in what particulars the complaint was uncertain. The court, citing Code Civ. Proc. § 430.60, stated that generally, the failure to specify the uncertain aspects of a complaint will defeat a demurrer based on the grounds of uncertainty (135 Cal. App. 3d 797, 809) . In referring to the record before it, the court concluded that the trial court erred in sustaining the demurrer on the grounds of uncertainty because none of the grounds found in the record, nor the grounds alleged in the defendants' brief, were sufficient to sustain a demurrer (35 Cal. App. 3d 797, 811) .

[b] Defendant Apprised of Issues to Be Met

Lord v. Garland (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 840, 168 P.2d 5 , was an action against the director and registrar of the state Department of Motor Vehicles for declaratory and injunctive relief. The complaint set forth three causes of action. The defendants demurred to the whole complaint both generally and specially on several grounds, including the ground that the second cause of action was ambiguous, unintelligible, and uncertain (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f)). The trial court, without indicating the basis of its ruling, sustained the demurrer without leave to amend and plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment with directions to overrule the demurrer. The Court stated that with respect to the demurrer for uncertainty, the allegations of the complaint were sufficiently clear to apprise the defendants of the issues that they were to meet, and the special demurrer therefore should have been overruled (7 Cal. 2d 840, 853) .

Williams v. Beechnut Nutrition Corp. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 135, 229 Cal. Rptr. 605 , involved an action for damages resulting from plaintiff's use of an alleged defective product. Defendant manufacturer demurred to the fourth amended complaint on various grounds, including the objection that the complaint was uncertain due to the plaintiff's failure to label the causes of action, as required by former Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct., Law Depts. Pol. Man., Rule 103(d) [now see Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 9.3 (providing for motion to strike cause of action with leave to amend)]. The trial court sustained the defendant's demurrer without leave to amend and the plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment, and ordered the trial court to enter an order overruling the demurrer and allowing defendant a reasonable time to answer. The court, citing Parnham v. Parnham (1939) 32 Cal. App. 2d 93, 96, 89 P.2d 189 , stated that when the complaint contains substantive factual allegations sufficiently apprising the defendant of the issues it is being asked to meet, a demurrer for uncertainty should be overruled or plaintiff be given leave to amend. "It is not what a paper is named," quoted the court, "but what it is that fixes its character." The court observed that although inconvenient, annoying, and inconsiderate, the lack of labels for the plaintiff's causes of action did not substantially impair the defendant's ability to understand the complaint, and the demurrer sustained on the ground of uncertainty without leave to amend should have been overruled (185 Cal. App. 3d 135, 139 n.2).

[c] Ambiguous Facts Alleged Presumptively Within Defendant's Knowledge

Bacon v. Wahrhaftig (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 599, 218 P.2d 144 , was an action for partition of oil land and other relief. The trial court sustained the demurrers of three named defendants on the ground of misjoinder of causes of action (no longer a ground of demurrer) and the demurrers of the other defendants on both general grounds and the ground of uncertainty. Judgments of dismissal were entered after plaintiff declined to amend and plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment and held that none of the grounds of the demurrer was well taken and reversing the judgments. The court, quoting from Merlino v. West Coast Macaroni Mfg. Co. (1949) 90 Cal. App. 2d 106, 108, 202 P.2d 748 , discussed under § 71.86[4][a], said that a demurrer for uncertainty will not lie when the ambiguous facts are presumptively within the knowledge of the demurring party. Specifically, most, if not all, of the matters defendants claimed were uncertain, arose out of transactions that were evidenced by writings attached to the complaint and pleaded in their exact language (97 Cal. App. 2d 599, 605) .

[d] Challenged Allegations Immaterial

The facts and procedural background of Bacon v. Wahrhaftig (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 599, 218 P.2d 144 , are discussed under § 71.86[3][c]. In holding the demurrers for uncertainty were not well grounded in that case, the court, quoting from Merlino v. West Coast Macaroni Mfg. Co. (1949) 90 Cal. App. 2d 106, 108, 202 P.2d 748 , discussed under § 71.86[4][a], said that a demurrer for uncertainty will not lie as to even uncertain and ambiguous allegations, if such allegations refer to immaterial matters, and that in such event they will be treated as surplusage and will be disregarded (97 Cal. App. 2d 599, 605) .

[e] Uncertainty as to Legal Effect of Facts Alleged

Gressley v. Williams (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 636, 14 Cal. Rptr. 496 , was an action for damages for breach of contracts employing plaintiff as an automobile sales manager at a fixed salary plus a percentage of gross profits and for an accounting. The sixth amended complaint contained three counts. The first two were for breach of the oral contracts and the third for an accounting. Defendant demurred to all three counts both generally and on the grounds of uncertainty, ambiguity, and unintelligibility. The demurrer was sustained. Plaintiff elected to stand on the pleading and the demurrer was sustained without leave to amend.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment. The court held the general demurrer to the first count was properly sustained because the action was barred by the statute of frauds; but that both the second and third counts stated a cause of action. The court pointed out that the record failed to disclose the grounds on which the demurrer was sustained but that it had examined the grounds of the special demurrer and found them inconsequential. It stated a number of rules applicable to special demurrers for uncertainty, and in this connection said that some of the claimed uncertainties arose out of the legal effect of facts alleged and that uncertainty arising out of the legal effect of facts alleged is not a ground of demurrer (193 Cal. App. 2d 636, 644) .

[f] Demurrer for Uncertainty Challenges Only Allegations Made

The facts and procedural background of Bacon v. Wahrhaftig (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 599, 218 P.2d 144 , are discussed under § 71.86[3][c]. In reversing the judgments, the court of appeal, with respect to the demurrers for uncertainty, explained that nearly all of the specifications involved assertions or claims that demurrants could not determine how certain interests were adverse or how legal results occurred, that most, if not all, of the alleged uncertainties and ambiguities arose out of the pleader's attempt to state the legal effect of certain transactions and that these transactions were all evidenced by writings that were attached to the complaint and pleaded in their exact language. The court then set forth a number of rules applicable to demurrers for uncertainty, including the rule that a demurrer for uncertainty is not intended to reach the failure to incorporate sufficient facts in the pleading, but is directed at the uncertainty existing in the allegations actually made (97 Cal. App. 2d 599, 605) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Defendant Apprised of Issues to Be Met

The facts and procedural background of Gressley v. Williams (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 636, 14 Cal. Rptr. 496 , are discussed under § 71.86[3][e]. In holding the demurrer for uncertainty was not well grounded, the court said that a special demurrer should be overruled when the allegations of the complaint are sufficiently clear to apprise the defendant of the issues he or she is to meet, and that all that is required of a complaint, even as against a special demurrer, is that it set forth the essential facts of plaintiff's case with reasonable precision and with particularity sufficiently specific to acquaint defendant of the nature, source, and extent of the cause of action (193 Cal. App. 2d 636, 643) .

The facts and procedural background of Bacon v. Wahrhaftig (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 599, 218 P.2d 144 , are discussed under § 71.86[3][c]. In reversing the judgments, the court of appeal, citing Lord v. Garland (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 840, 853, 168 P.2d 5 , discussed under § 71.86[3][b], stated that a special demurrer for uncertainty should not be sustained when the allegations of the complaint are sufficiently clear to apprise the defendant of the issues that he or she is to meet, and quoting from Merlino v. West Coast Macaroni Mfg. Co. (1949) 90 Cal. App. 2d 106, 108, 202 P.2d 748 , below, said that a special demurrer should not be sustained if the allegations are sufficiently clear to apprise the defendant of the issues that must be met, even if the allegations of the complaint may not be as clear and as detailed as might be desired (97 Cal. App. 2d 599, 605) .

Merlino v. West Coast Macaroni Mfg. Co. (1949) 90 Cal. App. 2d 106, 202 P.2d 748 , was an action for breach of an agreement to share profits of a corporation. Defendant corporation was a wholly owned subsidiary of another corporation that owned 800 of its 804 issued shares of capital stock; the other four shares were owned one each by plaintiff, plaintiff's wife, the individual defendant, and the individual defendant's wife. The parent corporation had 675 outstanding shares; of these plaintiff and the individual defendant each owned 337 1/2 shares and their wives each owned one share until the time plaintiff and his wife, pursuant to a court decree, transferred their shares to the individual defendant. The complaint alleged that it was the custom of plaintiff and the individual defendant to divide a substantial portion of the earnings of both corporations between themselves as payment of salary and that, when defendant corporation was incorporated, it was orally agreed between them that, so long as plaintiff owned 50 percent of the stock of the parent corporation, he would be in active control and would manage defendant corporation; it was further alleged that the agreement was subsequently modified to provide that each was too draw $9,000 a year from the consolidated enterprises as long as each should continue to own 50 percent of the parent corporation's stock. Plaintiff alleged facts showing that some six months prior to the date he transferred his shares to the individual defendant, the latter breached the agreement to share profits. Plaintiff sought recovery of the sum of $4,500 for that six-month period.

Defendants demurred to the complaint on both general and special grounds and pointed out numerous allegations they claimed generated uncertainties and ambiguities. The trial court sustained the demurrer and on plaintiff's failure to amend gave judgment for defendants. In reversing the judgment on the ground the complaint stated a cause of action and was not susceptible to the objection of uncertainty, the court stated a number of rules applicable to demurrers for uncertainty. Among these was the rule that a special demurrer should not be sustained if the allegations of the complaint are sufficiently clear to apprise the defendant of the issues that must be met, even if the allegations may not be as clear and as detailed as might be desired (90 Cal. App. 2d 106, 108) .

See also Youngman v. Nevada Irrigation Dist. (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 240, 245, 74 Cal. Rptr. 398, 449 P.2d 462 (even as against special demurrer, plaintiff required only to set forth essential facts of his or her case with reasonable precision and with particularity sufficient to acquaint a defendant with the nature, source, and extent of cause of action); Smith v. Williams (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 617, 619 , 12 Cal. Rptr. 665 , 361 P.2d 241 (asserted uncertainties not sufficient to warrant sustaining of demurrer on that ground if allegations sufficiently clear to apprise defendant of the issues he or she is to meet); Smith v. Kern County Land Co. (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 205, 209, 331 P.2d 645 (even as against special demurrer, plaintiff required only to set forth in complaint the essential facts of case with particularity sufficiently specific to acquaint defendant of nature, source, and extent of cause of action); People v. Lim (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 872, 882, 118 P.2d 472 (special demurrer for uncertainty should not be sustained when allegations of complaint are sufficiently clear to apprise defendant of issues that he or she is to meet); Miller v. Luco (1889) 80 Cal. 257, 260 22 P. 195 (objection that complaint ambiguous and uncertain because land not sufficiently described as untenable; complaint describes land as that part of the Mission Rancho of San Diego, known as lot 23, containing 516 acres; description as sufficient for identification of property); Gonzales v. California (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 621, 631, 137 Cal. Rptr. 681 (quoting from Merlino v. West Coast Macaroni Mfg. Co. (1949) 90 Cal. App. 2d 106, 108, 202 P.2d 748 , above); Wise v. Southern Pac. Co. (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 50, 62-63, 35 Cal. Rptr. 652 (all that is required of plaintiff, even as against special demurrer, is that he or she set forth in complaint the essential facts with reasonable precision; essentially, problem is one of fairness in pleading so as to give defendant such notice by the complaint that he or she may prepare case); Beeler v. West American Fin. Co. (1962)201 Cal. App. 2d 702, 706, 20 Cal. Rptr. 190 (when allegations of complaint are sufficiently clear as to apprise defendant of issues to be met, special demurrer should not be sustained even though allegations of complaint may not be as clear or as detailed as might be desired); Butler v. Sequeira (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 143, 145-146, 223 P.2d 48 (special demurrer should not be sustained when the allegations of complaint sufficiently clear to apprise defendant of issues to be met).

[b] Ambiguous Facts Alleged Presumptively Within Defendant's Knowledge

The facts and procedural background of Gressley v. Williams (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 636, 14 Cal. Rptr. 496 , are discussed under § 71.86[3][e]. In holding that the demurrer for uncertainty was not well grounded, the court said that while there were some uncertainties in counts II and III of the complaint, they were largely matters that lay within the knowledge of defendants, and that a demurrer does not lie to such matters (193 Cal. App. 2d 636, 644) .

The facts and procedural background of Merlino v. West Coast Macaroni Mfg. Co. (1949) 90 Cal. App. 2d 106, 202 P.2d 748 , are discussed under § 71.86[4][a]. In holding that the complaint was not susceptible to the objection of uncertainty, the court of appeal said that a demurrer for uncertainty will not lie when the ambiguous facts alleged are presumptively within the knowledge of the demurring party (90 Cal. App. 2d 106, 108) .

See also Smith v. Kern County Land Co. (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 205, 209, 331 P.2d 645 (plaintiff need not particularize matters presumptively within the knowledge of the demurring defendant); Cunningham v. Los Angeles R. Co. (1897) 115 Cal. 561, 566, 47 P. 452 (demurrer to the complaint was properly overruled; while negligence was averred in general terms, such mode of presenting facts is sufficient in this character of action (for personal injuries to child hit by streetcar) when, as a general thing, more specific facts are more largely within the knowledge of defendant than that of plaintiff; and the complaint cannot, therefore, beheld open to the objection of uncertainty); Gonzales v. California (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 621, 631, 137 Cal. Rptr. 681 (quoting from Merlino v. West Coast Macaroni Mfg. Co. (1949) 90 Cal. App. 2d 106, 108, 202 P.2d 748 , above); Beeler v. WestAmerican Fin. Co. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 702, 706, 20 Cal. Rptr. 190 ; James v. Herbert (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 741, 750, 309 P.2d 91 ; Dumm v. Pacific Valves (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 792, 799, 304 P.2d 738 ; Terry v. Bender (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 198, 209, 300 P.2d 119 ; Schessler v. Keck (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 827, 835-836, 271 P.2d 588 (less particularity required in allegations of complaint when, from nature of matters alleged, adverse party has knowledge of facts superior to the party pleading them).

[c] Challenged Allegations Immaterial

The facts and procedural background of Gressley v. Williams (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 636, 14 Cal. Rptr. 496 , are discussed under § 71.86[3][e]. In holding the demurrer for uncertainty was not well grounded, the court said that a special demurrer for uncertainty will not lie as to even uncertain and ambiguous allegations if they are with respect to inconsequential matters, and that in such event they are to be treated as surplusage and disregarded (193 Cal. App. 2d 636, 643) .

The facts and procedural background of Merlino v. West Coast Macaroni Mfg. Co. (1949) 90 Cal. App. 2d 106, 202 P.2d 748 , are discussed under § 71.86[4][a]. In holding the complaint not susceptible to the objection of uncertainty, the court of appeal said that a demurrer for uncertainty will not lie as to even uncertain and ambiguous allegations, if such allegations refer to immaterial matters and that in such event they will be treated as surplusage and will be disregarded (90 Cal. App. 2d 106, 108) .

See also Gardner v. California Guar. Inv. Co. (1902) 137 Cal. 71, 75, 69 P. 844 (neither the question of actual fraud nor that of the statute of limitations is material to the case and it therefore makes no difference whether the allegations as to these are defective or otherwise); Gonzales v. California (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 621, 631, 137 Cal. Rptr. 681 (quoting from Merlino v. West Coast Macaroni Mfg. Co. (1949) 90 Cal. App. 2d 106, 108, 202 P.2d 748 , above); Dumm v. Pacific Valves (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 792, 799, 304 P.2d 738 (a demurrer for uncertainty does not lie as to immaterial matter); Swasey v. De L'Etanche (1936) 17 Cal. App. 2d 713, 717, 62 P.2d 753 (same; disapproved on another point in Gagne v. Bertran (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 481, 487 n.4, 275 P.2d 15).

[d] Uncertainty as to Legal Effect of Facts Alleged

Santa Clara County v. Hayes Co. (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 615, 275 P.2d 456 , was an action by the county against a newspaper owner for damages arising out of the defective publication of the contents of a proposed county charter. In the first cause of action of its amended complaint, plaintiff alleged that it orally contracted with defendant for the latter to publish in its newspaper a proposed county charter for 10 days before the election of November 2, 1948, that five of the publications were so defective that the charter was invalidated in quo warranto proceedings commenced a few weeks after the charter went into effect on July 1, 1949, that on or about September 27, 1948, defendant filed its affidavit with plaintiff that the charter had been published for 10 days and plaintiff did not discover the defective publications until November 10, 1948, after the charter had been approved by the voters, and that in May, 1949, plaintiff had submitted the charter to the Legislature and that it had been adopted and approved. In its second cause of action, plaintiff realleged the facts stated in its first cause of action and also alleged that the oral contract had been reduced to writing by defendant, the writing consisting of defendant's bill for the publishing costs. In its third cause of action, it alleged facts purporting to show that defendant was estopped to plead the statute of limitations. Defendant's demurrer to each cause of action on the grounds it was barred by the statute of limitations and was uncertain, ambiguous, and unintelligible was sustained. After plaintiff declined to further amend, the court dismissed the action, from which judgment plaintiff appealed.

In reversing the judgment, the Supreme Court, after holding that the action was timely and in response to defendant's contention that the demurrer for uncertainty, unintelligibility, and ambiguity was properly sustained since it could not be determined whether the action was in contract or in tort, said that the uncertainty, if any, does not arise out of the allegations of the relevant facts, but out of the legal effect of those facts, and that the plaintiff could not be required to resolve such uncertainty on demurrer but was entitled to seek any relief consistent with the facts alleged (43 Cal. 2d 615, 619-620) .

See also James v. Herbert (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 741, 750, 309 P.2d 91 (uncertainty arising out of the legal effect of facts alleged is not a ground for demurrer).

[e] Demurrer for Uncertainty Challenges Only Allegations Made

People v. Lim (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 872, 118 P.2d 472 , was an action by the district attorney to restrain the operation of a gambling establishment as a nuisance. The complaint set forth the manner in which the various games were played and alleged that the operation of the gambling house constituted a public nuisance by encouraging idle and dissolute habits, by disturbing the public peace, and by corrupting public morals. It was further alleged that previous attempts to eradicate this evil by prosecutions under the penal laws had proven ineffective and that the aid of equity was necessary to accomplish its suppression. Plaintiff also sought pendent elite injunctive relief. Defendants demurred both generally and specially for uncertainty. The trial court sustained the demurrers and denied plaintiff's motion for a preliminary injunction. On plaintiff's refusal to amend, the court entered judgment for defendants and plaintiff appealed. In reversing the judgment, the Supreme Court, with respect to the special demurrer for uncertainty, said that such a demurrer is not intended to reach the failure to incorporate sufficient facts in the pleading, but is directed at the uncertainty existing in the allegations actually made (18 Cal. 2d 872, 883) .

Dumm v. Pacific Valves (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 792, 304 P.2d 738 , was an action by minors through their guardian ad litem against a corporation and its majority stockholders for declaratory relief with respect to the ownership of 180 shares of the stock in defendant corporation and dividends. Defendants demurred to the third amended complaint on both general and special grounds, including the ground of uncertainty, the demurrer setting forth a number of specifications in which the complaint was assertedly uncertain. The trial court, without specifying the grounds of its ruling, sustained the demurrer with leave to amend and on plaintiff's failure to amend dismissed the action. In concluding the complaint stated a cause of action and that none of the grounds of the special demurrers were well taken, the court of appeal reversed the judgment. With respect to the demurrer for uncertainty, the appellate court pointed out that many of the uncertainties specified by the demurrer were with regard to matters not alleged, which, if essential to the cause of action, were grounds for general demurrer, not special, and said that a demurrer for uncertainty is directed at the allegations actually made (146 Cal. App. 2d 792, 799) .

See also Callahan v. Broderick (1899) 124 Cal. 80, 83, 56 P. 782 (objection of uncertainty goes to doubt as to what pleader means by facts alleged, not to failure to allege sufficient facts; when facts alleged are insufficient, pleading is to be tested by general demurrer); Brea v. McGlashan (1934) 3 Cal. App. 2d 454, 459, 39 P.2d 877 (objection of uncertainty does not go to failure to allege sufficient facts but to doubt as to what pleader means by facts alleged); Smith v. Hollander (1927) 85 Cal. App. 535, 542, 259 P. 958 (demurrer for uncertainty lies for what is said with an uncertain meaning and not for what is omitted; disapproved on another point in Scott v. Burke (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 388, 401, 247 P.2d 313).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.87

§ 71.87 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Pleading Does Not Sufficiently Establish Whether Contract Is Written, Oral, or Implied by Conduct [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(g)]--Action Not Founded on Contract

[1] FORM Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Pleading Does Not Sufficiently Establish Whether Contract Is Written, Oral, or Implied by Conduct [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(g)]--Action Not Founded on Contract

[Caption. See § 71.30.]

SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT ON THE GROUND THAT IT CANNOT BE ASCERTAINED FROM THE PLEADING WHETHER THE CONTRACT THEREIN REFERRED TO IS WRITTEN OR ORAL SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE THE ACTION IS NOT FOUNDED ON A CONTRACT.

Objection Lies Only When Action Is Founded on Contract. The failure of a complaint to allege whether the contract therein referred to is written or oral is not a ground for objection when the action is not founded on the contract (Strozier v. Williams (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 528, 532, 9 Cal. Rptr. 683).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a special demurrer to a complaint on the ground that it cannot be ascertained from the pleading whether the contract alleged is written, oral, or implied by conduct. The ground of opposition setout is that the action is not founded on the contract.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the demurrer supported by the memorandum set out in § 71.72.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel would refer to specific allegations in the complaint (and, if applicable, to any matters of which the court must or may take judicial notice), that indicate that the action is one based on tort and not on breach of contract.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.74[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Objection Lies Only Where Action Is Founded on Contract

Strozier v. Williams (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 528, 9 Cal. Rptr. 683 , was an action for declaratory relief and damages. Plaintiff's fourth amended complaint alleged that until August 12, 1958, and for a period of 10 years before, plaintiff was the owner of and was occupying certain real property in Los Angeles; that a certain mortgage company had instituted proceedings to foreclose a second trust deed on the property and plaintiff had filed a declaratory relief action against the encumbrance holder; that about August 8, 1958, plaintiff's attorney had entered into an agreement with the attorneys for the encumbrance holder that the foreclosure sale might take place and that plaintiff would bid at the sale $3,500, being the full amount of the encumbrance, but would pay only the sum of $1, 400 and dismiss certain actions previously filed by plaintiff; that defendant Williams represented to plaintiff that defendant Deckard would purchase the real property for $8,000, would pay plaintiff the sum of $2,800 in cash and assume the first trust deed of $5,200; that the $2,800 was in the bank and would be paid to plaintiff as soon as the deed was ready to be delivered; that plaintiff, relying on Williams' promise, authorized the trustee in foreclosure to make the deed to Deckard but instructed him to deliver the deed to plaintiff's attorney and that the deed would be turned over to defendants only on payment of the $2,800; that on August 12, 1958, Williams went to the office of the trustee in foreclosure and falsely represented to him that he was sent by plaintiff's attorney; that the trustee, believing the deed would be delivered to plaintiff gave it to Williams; that Williams thereupon proceeded to file the deed of record and to transfer the first trust deed to Deckard without performing his part of the agreement of paying the monies due under the agreement; that defendants claimed an estate or an interest in the real property adverse to plaintiff by reason of the trustee's deed; that defendants threatened and intimidated plaintiff and by reason of those threats and intimidation plaintiff moved from the premises; and that Deckard obtained a judgment in small claims court against plaintiff and recorded an abstract of it which was a cloud on plaintiff's property. Plaintiff prayed for a judgment that defendants be required to set forth the nature of their claims that all adverse claims of defendants be determined by decree of court, that it be declared that defendants had no estate or interest whatever in or to the real property, and that plaintiff be awarded actual damages of $2,500 and exemplary damages of $5,000. Defendants' demurrer was sustained without leave to amend on the representation of plaintiff's attorney that he could allege no additional ultimate facts. Plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment with directions to overrule the demurrer and grant defendants a reasonable time within which to answer. With respect to the special demurrer on the ground that it could not be ascertained from the complaint whether the agreement between plaintiff and defendants was written or oral, the court said that the action was not based on the agreement but, rather, was one growing out of fraud and held that the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 430(10) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(g)], therefore, did not apply and that the special demurrer on this ground was not well taken (187 Cal. App. 2d 528, 532) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Objection Lies Only When Action Is Founded on Contract

Fanucchi v. Coberly-West Co. (1957) 151 Cal. App. 2d 72, 311 P.2d 33 , was a class action by 18 cotton growers against a ginning company and its agents to recover for a portion of the cottonseed derived from cotton delivered by the growers to defendants over a period of years for the purpose of ginning and processing the cotton and for an accounting of the proceeds. After separating the cotton lint from the cottonseed in each grower's cotton, defendants weighed each grower's lint and accounted for it. Each grower's cottonseed was not, however, separately weighed, but the seed coming from all the growers was commingled and weighed as a whole. Defendants fixed the amount of cottonseed to be attributed to each grower by using an arbitrary formula without regard to the actual weight of the seed in each grower's cotton, and on that basis statements and payments were made to each grower. The action was based on the theory that by this method of accounting to the respective growers for their cottonseed, the amounts paid to each grower for his cottonseed were erroneous and that a large overage of cottonseed remained that defendants retained for their own use and for which the growers had never been paid. Defendants filed both a general demurrer and a special demurrer separately stating 13 grounds, among which was the ground that the complaint was based on three sorts of contract without stating whether they were oral or written. The special demurrer was sustained on the grounds of misjoinder of parties plaintiff, failure to separately state causes of action (no longer a ground of demurrer), and want of capacity to sue, with 10 days' leave to amend, and was overruled on all other grounds. On plaintiffs' failure to amend, the action was dismissed and plaintiffs appealed.

In holding that the demurrer was erroneously sustained and reversing the judgment, the court of appeal, with respect to defendants' contention that the special demurrer for failure to allege whether the contracts were written or oral should have been sustained, said that the failure to allege whether a contract was written or oral is not a ground for demurrer when, as here, the action is not founded on a contract (151 Cal. App. 2d 72, 83) .

Brubaker v. Mallickzadha (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 780, 233 P.2d 635 , was an action for wages due for services rendered. Plaintiff alleged he had rendered services to defendant for which he was to receive $15 per day, that the total of wages earned amounted to $1,533, and that there was a balance of $743.83 due him from defendant. Defendant's demurrer on the ground that it could not be ascertained whether the contract was oral or in writing was overruled. After trial, judgment was rendered for plaintiff in the amount of $630 and defendant appealed, on the grounds, among others, that the trial court had erred in overruling his demurrer to the complaint. In affirming the judgment, the court of appeal said that plaintiff was suing for wages and not on a contract, and the court did not believe he was required to state whether or not there was any writing (105 Cal. App. 2d 780, 781-782) . The court, however, added that no prejudice could have resulted to defendant by the overruling of the demurrer since defendant did set up a written agreement as a defense and the trial court found that that agreement had been rescinded (105 Cal. App. 2d 780, 782) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.88

§ 71.88 Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Demurrer Construed as Nonmeritorious Because of Absence of Memoranda [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)]

[1] FORM Opposing Special Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]--Demurrer Construed as Nonmeritorious Because of Absence of Memoranda [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)]

[Caption. See § 71.30.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE COMPLAINT SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE THE DEFENDANT ADMITS, BY THE ABSENCE OF A SUPPORTING MEMORANDUM, THAT THE SPECIAL DEMURRER IS NOT MERITORIOUS, AND WAIVES ALL GROUNDS NOT SUPPORTED.

Absence of Memorandum Construed as Admission of Nonmerit and Waiver of Grounds. A party filing a demurrer must serve and file therewith a memorandum to be relied on. The absence of the memorandum may be construed by the court as an admission that the special demurrer is not meritorious and cause for its denial and as a waiver of all grounds not supported (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a special demurrer when there is no memorandum supporting the demurrer; or, if there is a memorandum, the memorandum fails to support certain grounds raised in the demurrer [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)].

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should identify those grounds raised by the demurrer that are not supported by a memorandum.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.74[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Absence of Memorandum Construed as Admission of Nonmerit and Waiver of Grounds

Under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a), a party filing a demurrer is required to serve and file with it a supporting memorandum [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)]. The absence of a supporting memorandum may be construed by the court, in the case of a special demurrer, as an admission that the demurrer is not meritorious and as a waiver of all grounds not supported by a memorandum [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)].

The term, "special demurrer," as used in the foregoing rule obviously does not include a demurrer to a complaint or cross complaint on the ground the court lacks jurisdiction of the cause of action alleged [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(a)], since this objection, like the objection that the complaint or cross complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, is not waived by a failure to raise it by demurrer or answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(a)] and can normally be raised at any time [Certified Grocers of California, Ltd. v. San Gabriel Valley Bank (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 281, 285 n.1, 197 Cal. Rptr. 710 ; Buss v. J.O. Martin Co. (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 123, 133, 50 Cal. Rptr. 206 (demurrer on ground court lacks subject matter jurisdiction operates like, and is functionally similar to, a demurrer for insufficiency of facts)].

69 of 125 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
2. Special Demurrers to Complaint

7A-71 California Points & Authorities §§ 71.89-71.99

[Reserved]

§§ 71.89[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
3. Demurrers to Answer

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.100

§ 71.100 Supporting General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--General Form

[1] FORM Supporting General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--General Form

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF DEMURRER
_____ [name], Plaintiff,	)	TO ANSWER
vs.	)	[Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30]
_____ [name], Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE GENERAL DEMURRER TO THE ANSWER SHOULD BE SUSTAINED BECAUSE THE ANSWER FAILS TO DENY THE MATERIAL ALLEGATIONS OF THE COMPLAINT AND CONTAINS NO NEW MATTER CONSTITUTING AN AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE.

A. Objection by Demurrer. A party against whom an answer has been filed may object to it by demurrer on the ground that it fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a defense when the ground of objection appears on the face of the answer [or from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice] (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)).

B. Failure to State Defense. An answer that fails to deny the material allegations of the complaint and contains no new matter constituting an affirmative defense fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a defense (see Wheeler v. West (1888) 78 Cal. 95, 98, 20 P. 45 ; LaMar v. Superior Court (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 126, 128, 196 P.2d 98).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in support of a general demurrer to an answer that fails to deny the material allegations of the complaint and sets forth no new matter that would constitute an affirmative defense to the action.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel would refer to the answer showing that it fails to controvert each material element of the cause of action and assert any matter constituting an affirmative defense.

With appropriate modifications, the foregoing memorandum may be used in support of a motion by plaintiff or cross complainant for judgment on the pleadings [see pt. II].

Since the ground of a general demurrer to an answer (failure to state facts sufficient to constitute a defense) and the ground of a motion by plaintiff for judgment on the pleadings are the same [see Carlson v. Lindauer (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 292, 301, 259 P.2d 925] , the memorandum set forth in this form and in §§ 71.130-71.133, may also be used to support a plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings.

[b] Demurrer to Answer

A party who has filed a complaint or cross complaint may, within 10 days after service of the answer to his or her pleading, demur to the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.40(b)]. The demurrer may be taken to the whole answer or to any one or more of the several defenses set up in it [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.50(b)].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of general demurrer to an answer for failure to state facts sufficient to constitute a defense, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings, § 206.132, in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in §§ 71.105 -71.109 may be used to oppose the general demurrer to an answer supported by the foregoing memorandum.

See also § 71.20[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Objection by Demurrer

Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(a) provides that a party against whom an answer has been filed may object to it by demurrer as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30 on the ground the answer does not state facts sufficient to constitute a defense. Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a) provides that when any ground for objection to an answer appears on the face thereof, or from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice, the objection on that ground may be taken by a demurrer to the pleading.

[b] Failure to State Defense

Wheeler v. West (1888) 78 Cal. 95, 20 P. 45 , was an action to enjoin defendants from trespassing on plaintiff's mining claim and taking gold from it. Defendants' amended answer to the amended complaint admitted the acts complained of by plaintiff and alleged immaterial matters not constituting an affirmative defense, including the facts that plaintiff had changed his form of action from ejectment (original complaint) to an action for injunction (amended complaint) without defendants' consent and that no summons was issued on the amended complaint. Plaintiff's motion to strike these and other immaterial matters alleged on the ground they were irrelevant and redundant was granted. The court also sustained plaintiff's demurrer to the answer and judgment was rendered against defendants.

In affirming the judgment, the Supreme Court held that the motion to strike was properly granted, that the answer was clearly insufficient, and that the demurrer to it was properly sustained (78 Cal. 95, 97-98) .

LaMar v. Superior Court (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 126, 196 P.2d 98 , was an original proceeding in mandate to compel the superior court to amend an interlocutory judgment of divorce. The real party in interest filed a demurrer to the petition that contained argument but stated no ground for demurrer. She also filed an unverified answer consisting of argument and citations of authorities but did not deny any of the allegations of fact contained in the petition. She did deny that there had been any mistake or inadvertence on the part of the trial court in the interlocutory judgment but this was a conclusion of law.

The court of appeal ordered issuance of a peremptory writ of mandate directing the trial court to correct and amend the interlocutory divorce judgment in specified manners. The court stated that in the absence of a denial that raises an issue of fact petitioner's demurrer to the answer will be sustained (87 Cal. App. 2d 126, 128). The court concluded, on the merits, that the peremptory writ should issue. It overruled the demurrer of the real party in interest to the petition, sustained petitioner's demurrer to the real party in interest's answer, and ordered issuance of a peremptory writ of mandate directing the trial court to correct and amend the interlocutory divorce judgment in specified manners (87 Cal. App. 2d 126, 134) .

Note that the grounds of demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate or to an answer to the petition are, by virtue of the incorporating provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1109, the same as in civil actions, that is, the grounds set forth in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10 and 430.20, respectively.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to State Defense

California Trust Co. v. Gustason (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 268, 101 P.2d 74 , was an action to quiet title to real property. Defendant answered, admitting he claimed an interest in the property and denying his claim was without right. He also alleged that he had entered into certain agreements for the purchase of the property and that he rescinded the agreements when he discovered fraud had been perpetrated on him; he requested that the agreements be declared alien against the property. He also filed a cross complaint based on the alleged fraud in which he sought a judgment that the sum of $11,356 paid by him prior to his discovery of the alleged fraud be declared a lien on the property. By affirmative defense in his answer he also pleaded that another action was pending between the same parties involving the same subject matter. Plaintiff filed general and special demurrers to both the answer and the cross complaint. After twice permitting amendments, the trial court sustained the demurrers without leave to amend and entered judgment quieting title in plaintiff.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment. It held the attempted pleading in the answer of fraud was insufficient in numerous respects but that, even if it had been properly pleaded, it would have constituted neither a defense to the action nor a valid counterclaim (counterclaims have since been abolished; see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.80); it would not have supported any claim of right, title, or interest to the property involved and hence was not a defense to the quiet title action; it would not have tended to diminish plaintiff's recovery in the action and hence was not a proper counterclaim (15 Cal. 2d 268, 272-273). The Court also held that the special demurrers for uncertainty were properly sustained since it was impossible to tell from the answer what right, title, or interest defendant claimed to have in the property, whether he claimed a title, a lien, or some other interest, or whether he claimed any such interest in the whole or in some part of it (15 Cal. 2d 268, 273) . With respect to the allegation in the answer that another action was pending, the answer failed to state when the other action was brought, what the cause of action was, or what relief was demanded (15 Cal. 2d 268, 273) . The Court also held, however, that the general demurrer to the cross complaint was properly sustained since the action alleged was barred by the statute of limitations (15 Cal. 2d 268, 274) .

Le Breton v. Stanley Contracting Co. (1911) 15 Cal. App. 429, 114 P. 1026 , was an action by the receiver of a defunct bank against the makers of a note. Defendants' answer made no attempt to deny the due execution of the note to the bank or the amount of indebtedness due on it; rather, it denied, for lack of information or belief, only those allegations that the bank had been adjudicated insolvent and plaintiff appointed its receiver. These denials were held to be improper and insufficient to raise any material issue (15 Cal. App. 429, 433-434). As an affirmative defense, defendants alleged they were the holders of a check drawn on the defunct bank by one of its depositors the day before the bank closed its doors and ceased to do business, and that by reason of the bank's failure, the check was never paid or presented for acceptance and payment, and was ever since held by defendants. The check was in an amount somewhat larger that the amount due on the note. The answer did not allege that the check had ever been certified or accepted by the bank or that it had been drawn against a special fund or that it was for the precise balance the drawer had on deposit with the bank. Plaintiff's general demurrer to the answer was sustained and its concurrent motion for judgment on the pleadings was granted. The court of appeal held that the demurrer had been properly sustained without leave to amend since, in the absence of an assignment of the amount of the check to defendant, no cause of action on it existed in favor of defendant against the bank and hence the check could not properly be pleaded as a defense (offset) to plaintiff's cause of action (15 Cal. App. 429, 432-433) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
3. Demurrers to Answer

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.101

§ 71.101 Supporting General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--Denial of Immaterial Allegations Only

[1] FORM Supporting General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--Denial of Immaterial Allegations Only

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a general demurrer to an answer (see § 71.100).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER TO THE ANSWER SHOULD BE SUSTAINED BECAUSE THE ANSWER DENIES ONLY IMMATERIAL MATTER ALLEGED IN THE COMPLAINT AND SETS UP NO SUFFICIENT DEFENSE TO THE ACTION.

A. Objection by Demurrer. [See § 71.100, Paragraph A.]

B. Denial of Immaterial Matter Only. A demurrer to an answer that sets up no sufficient defense to the action and denies only immaterial allegations of the complaint should be sustained (see Wheeler v. West (1888) 78 Cal. 95, 98, 20 P. 45).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in support of a general demurrer to an answer that sets up no sufficient defense and denies only immaterial matter in the complaint.

The foregoing memorandum should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a demurrer to an answer made on the ground that the answer fails to deny the material allegations of the complaint and sets forth no new matter that would constitute an affirmative defense to the action [see § 71.100]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. That is, counsel would specifically refer to each denial, showing that the denial relates to other than an essential element of the cause of action alleged. In addition, counsel would identify in what respects the defense is insufficient to state an affirmative defense.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in §§ 71.105 -71.107 may be used to oppose the general demurrer to an answer supported by the foregoing memorandum.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.100[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Denial of Immaterial Matter Only

The facts and procedural background of Wheeler v. West (1888) 78 Cal.95, 20 P. 45 , are set forth in § 71.100[3][b]. In holding that plaintiff's demurrer to the answer was properly sustained, the Supreme Court stated that a defendant cannot answer a complaint by an allegation that the complaint was improperly filed. Such a question should be raised by objection to the filing of the amendment or by motion to strike the amended pleading. Hence, such a statement in the answer is immaterial and surplusage and properly striken out (78 Cal.95, 97) . The Court concluded that although the answer contained some denials, some of them were mere conclusions and the others did not, alone or in connection with the defenses pleaded, constitute a defense to the action (78 Cal.95, 98) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Denial of Immaterial Matter Only

Goldberg v. Rempp (1928) 95 Cal. App. 452, 273 P. 63 , was an action on a joint and several bond given by defendant sureties to release certain property from attachment after plaintiff had recovered judgment against the debtor. Plaintiff alleged both a demand on defendant debtor (principal on the bond) for redelivery of the property (execution was returned "wholly unsatisfied") and a demand on the sureties for payment of the bond. With respect to this latter demand, plaintiff alleged that on July 5, 1925, plaintiff demanded of defendants, including defendant sureties, "the payment of said judgment, which was by each and all of them refused." Appellant surety filed an answer in which she denied that on July 5th or any other time plaintiff demanded of her the payment of said judgment, but she did not deny the remainder of the allegation, to wit, "which was by each and all of them refused." She also denied on information and belief that demand was made on the other defendants. Plaintiff's general demurrer to this answer was sustained and, on defendant's failure to amend, her default was entered and judgment was rendered against defendants. Defendant surety appealed. In affirming the judgment, the court of appeal said that failure to deny the allegation that payment "was by each and all of them refused" was equivalent to an admission that defendant refused to pay (95 Cal. App. 452, 455) . With respect to her denial on information and belief that demand had been made on the other defendants, the court said that the bond was joint and several and that for the purpose of a judgment against appellant, no demand for payment on the other defendants was necessary (95 Cal. App. 452, 456) .

See also Loveland v. Garner (1887) 74 Cal. 298, 300, 15 P. 844 (judgment on pleadings for plaintiff affirmed when only direct and positive denial in answer was of immaterial allegation of complaint).

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
3. Demurrers to Answer

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.102

§ 71.102 Supporting General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--On Ground No Defense Is Stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(a)]--Conjunctive Denial of Matters Conjunctively Alleged

[1] FORM Supporting General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--On Ground No Defense Is Stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(a)]--Conjunctive Denial of Matters Conjunctively Alleged

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a general demurrer to an answer (see § 71.100).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER TO THE ANSWER SHOULD BE SUSTAINED BECAUSE THE ANSWER DENIES CONJUNCTIVELY MATERIAL MATTERS CONJUNCTIVELY ALLEGED IN THE COMPLAINT.

A. Conjunctive Denial of Matters Conjunctively Alleged. A conjunctive denial in the answer of a material matter conjunctively alleged in the complaint is evasive and constitutes an admission of that matter (California Trust Co. v. Gustason (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 268, 271, 101 P.2d 74).

B. Sustention of Demurrer. When an answer denies conjunctively material matters conjunctively alleged in the complaint and no other good defense is set forth, plaintiff's demurrer to the answer should be sustained (see California Trust Co. v. Gustason (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 268, 271, 101 P.2d 74).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in support of a general demurrer to an answer that denies in the conjunctive material allegations conjunctively alleged in the complaint.

The foregoing memorandum should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a demurrer to an answer made on the ground that the answer fails to deny the material allegations of the complaint and sets forth no new matter that would constitute an affirmative defense to the action [see § 71.100]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, if the complaint alleges that plaintiff "is now and at all times herein mentioned as to it was the owner of the following described real property ...," and the answer reads, "... defendant denies that plaintiff is now and at all times herein mentioned was the owner of that certain real property described in the complaint," counsel would refer to the complaint's allegation and the answer's denial of that allegation, pointing out that the denial is a conjunctive denial of a matter conjunctively alleged, and is therefore subject to general demurrer [see California Trust Co. v. Gustason (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 268, 271, 101 P.2d 74 , discussed under § 71.102[3][a]].

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.100[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Conjunctive Denial of Matters Conjunctively Alleged

The facts and procedural background of California Trust Co. v. Gustason (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 268, 101 P.2d 74 , are discussed in § 71.100[4][a]. In California Trust Co., plaintiff had alleged in its complaint that it "is now and at all time herein mentioned as to it was the owner of the following described real property. ..." The answer read, "... defendant denies that plaintiff is now and at all times here mentioned is [sic] the owner of that certain real property described in the complaint." In affirming the judgment for plaintiff after plaintiff's demurrers to the answer were sustained without leave to amend, the Supreme Court said that the courts have long held that the conjunctive denial of matters conjunctively alleged results in an admission of the allegation purportedly denied (in this case plaintiff's ownership of the property) for the reason that such a denial is evasive and either averment might be true, even though together they may not be (15 Cal. 2d 268, 271) .

[b] Sustension of Demurrer

The facts and procedural background of California Trust Co. v. Gustason (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 268, 101 P.2d 74 , are discussed in §§ 71.100[4][a] and 71.102[3][a]. In California Trust Co., the Supreme Court held that since the denials and the affirmative defense were insufficient to raise any material issue, the demurrer had been properly sustained (15 Cal. 2d 268, 274) .

See also Janeway & Carpender v. Long Beach Co. (1922) 190 Cal. 150, 153-154, 211 P. 6 , involving a motion for judgment on the pleadings, discussed in § 71.130[4][b].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
3. Demurrers to Answer

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.103

§ 71.103 Supporting General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--On Ground No Defense Is Stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(a)]--Affirmative Defense of Setoff Not Applicable [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70]

[1] FORM Supporting General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--On Ground No Defense Is Stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(a)]--Affirmative Defense of Setoff Not Applicable [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70]

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a general demurrer to an answer (see § 71.100).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER TO THE ANSWER BY _____ [name] SHOULD BE SUSTAINED BECAUSE THE AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE OF PAYMENT AS A SETOFF IS NOT AVAILABLE IF _____ [set forth applicable grounds under Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70, e.g., THERE NEVER WAS ANY POINT IN TIME WHEN THE CROSS DEMAND BY DEFENDANT WAS NOT BARRED BY THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS].

[EITHER]

A. Defense of Payment Unavailable if Cross Demand Previously Barred by Statute of Limitations. A defendant's right to a setoff under the defense of payment is only available if the cross demands for money between plaintiff and defendant existed at some point in time when neither demand was barred by the statute of limitations (see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70).

[AND/OR]

B. Defense of Payment Unavailable if Cross Demand Not Asserted by Compulsory Cross Complaint in Prior Action. The affirmative defense of payment as provided for in Section 431.70 of the Code of Civil Procedure is not available if the cross demand is barred for failure to assert it in a prior action by a compulsory cross complaint pursuant to Section 426.30 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70).

[AND/OR]

C. Setoff as Allowed Only in Action. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70 a setoff can be alleged only in an action; the section does not apply to special proceedings, such as a special proceeding to confirm an arbitrator's award (Airfloor Co. of Cal., Inc. v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 1004, 1009, 149 Cal. Rptr. 130).

[AND/OR]

D. Unemployment and Disability Benefits Immune From Banker's Setoff. Deposits derived from unemployment and disability benefits are immune from setoff by a bank (Kruger v. Wells Fargo Bank (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 352, 367, 113 Cal. Rptr. 449, 521 P.2d 441 ; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.120, 704.130).

[AND/OR]

E. Claims Must Be Mutual. Code of Civil Procedure Section 431.70 requires that claims must be mutual if they are to qualify as "cross demands," because the statute was intended to protect mutual claims existing between the same persons in the same capacities (Carnation Co. v. Olivet Egg Ranch (1986) 189 Cal. App. 3d 809, 820-821, 229 Cal. Rptr. 261).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be used to support a demurrer to an answer on the ground that the affirmative defense of payment under Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70 is not available because the cross demands never existed at any point in time when neither of them was not barred by the statute of limitation, because a special proceeding is involved and setoff is only available in an action, because the dispute involves unemployment or disability payments that are immune from setoff, or because the claims are not mutual claims existing between the same persons in the same capacities.

The foregoing memorandum should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a demurrer to an answer made on the ground that the answer fails to deny the material allegations of the complaint and sets forth no new matter that would constitute an affirmative defense to the action [see § 71.100]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and points of law stated. For example, counsel should show from the face of the pleading, that at no point in time did both cross demands exist when neither was barred by the statute of limitations, or, when appropriate, that the source of money deposited in a bank claiming a setoff was unemployment or disability benefits.

[b] Related Points and Authorities

For a form of memorandum supporting a motion to compel acknowledgment of satisfaction of judgment through setoff of cross demands, see Ch. 131, Judgments .

See also § 71.100[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Setoff as Allowed Only in Action

In Airfloor Co. of Cal., Inc. v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 1004 , 149 Cal. Rptr. 130 , a contractor petitioned the court to confirm an arbitration award. Defendant did not contest the award but claimed entitlement to set off an alleged debt, not subject to arbitration. The trial court held that litigation of a nonarbitrable debt is beyond the scope of the special proceeding. Defendant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court stated that hearings to confirm arbitration awards were special proceedings as contrasted with actions and were creatures of statute. Therefore, the court's jurisdiction in such proceedings was limited by statutory authority (84 Cal. App. 3d 1004, 1007-1008) . The court held that setoff could be alleged when an action, not a special proceeding, was commenced (84 Cal. App. 3d 1004, 1009) .

[b] Unemployment and Disability Benefits Immune From Banker's Setoff

In Kruger v. Wells Fargo Bank (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 352, 113 Cal. Rptr. 449, 521 P.2d 441 , plaintiff maintained a deposit account comprised of payments from unemployment compensation and state disability benefits, from which defendant bank deducted the balance and applied it to her Master Charge delinquency, thereafter refusing to honor checks drawn on the account. Plaintiff sued, claiming exemption from attachment and execution under former Code Civ. Proc. § 690.18(a) [now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.120, 704.130]. Defendant demurred. The superior court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend and plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed. The Court held that to permit bankers' setoffs against unemployment and disability benefits would frustrate the Legislature's objectives in providing such benefits and in protecting them from seizure by creditors. Therefore, deposits derived from unemployment and disability benefits are immune from setoff (11 Cal. 3d 352, 367) .

[c] Claims Must Be Mutual

In Carnation Co. v. Olivet Egg Ranch (1986) 189 Cal. App. 3d 809, 229 Cal. Rptr. 261 , a chickenfeed supplier brought an action against a limited partnership, a partner thereof, and several coventurers, to recover damages resulting from default on a promissory note arising from an outstanding commercial debt. Defendants filed cross complaints on various theories, including the assertion that damages incurred by the partner-defendant's previous partnership should set off plaintiff's damages, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70. On that issue, the trial court granted plaintiff's motion for directed verdict. Ultimately, the court ordered entry of the net judgment after separate judgments for both parties. Defendants appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment with respect to the granting of a nonsuit regarding a provision of the Uniform Commercial Code (189 Cal. App. 3d 809, 814-819) . However, the court affirmed the judgment with regard to the directed verdict based on Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70 (189 Cal. App. 3d 809, 821) . Section 431.70 requires that claims must be mutual if they are to qualify as "cross demands" under the statute (189 Cal. App. 3d 809, 820) . Therefore, the partner-defendant cannot set off a former partnership's claim against plaintiff, either individually or as a partner in the instant case, because the former partnership has no obligation regarding the instant action. The language of Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70 and the cases interpreting it make clear that the statute was intended to protect mutual claims existing between the same persons in the same capacities. To allow defendants to assert a former partnership's claim against plaintiff when plaintiff is not maintaining any claim against it would require stretching Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70 beyond its intended boundaries. The underlying purpose of the statute is to prevent a party from not acting on a claim against a particular person, thereby inducing that person to permit a counterclaim to become time-barred, and then surprising the defenseless victim. That purpose would not be served by applying the statute in the instant case (189 Cal. App. 3d 809, 821) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
3. Demurrers to Answer

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.104

§ 71.104 Supporting Special Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(b), 430.30(a)]--Pleading Is Uncertain

[1] FORM Supporting Special Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(b), 430.30(a)]--Pleading Is Uncertain

[Caption. See § 71.100.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE ANSWER SHOULD BE SUSTAINED BECAUSE THE ANSWER IS UNCERTAIN.

Objection by Demurrer. The party against whom an answer has been filed may object to it by demurrer on the ground the answer is uncertain when the ground of objection appears on the face of the complaint (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(b), 430.30(a); California Trust Co. v. Gustason (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 268, 273, 101 P.2d 74). The term "uncertain" in this context includes ambiguous and unintelligible (Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(b)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in support of a special demurrer to an answer on the ground that an answer is uncertain (which term includes ambiguous and unintelligible).

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, if the answer is uncertain because of ambiguity, counsel should identify the particular allegations in the answer and demonstrate how those allegations are susceptible to two or more meanings.

[b] Waiver of Objection

The objection that the pleading is uncertain is waived if not raised by demurrer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(b)].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of demurrers to the complaint and to the answer on the ground of uncertainty, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings, § 206.133, in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in § 71.110 may be used to oppose the special demurrer to an answer supported by the foregoing memorandum.

See also §§ 71.20[2], 71.68[2], and 71.100[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Objection by Demurrer

Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(b) provides that a party against whom an answer has been filed may object to it by demurrer, as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30, on the ground the pleading is uncertain. As used in this subdivision, "uncertain" includes ambiguous and unintelligible. Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a) provides that when any ground for objection to an answer appears on the face thereof, or from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice, the objection on that ground may be taken by a demurrer to the pleading.

The facts and procedural background of California Trust Co. v. Gustason (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 268, 101 P.2d 74 , are discussed in § 71.100[4][a]. In California Trust Co., in affirming the judgment, the Supreme Court stated that the answer was manifestly bad as against the special demurrer for uncertainty, ambiguity, and unintelligibility. It was impossible to tell what right, title or interest defendant claimed to have in the property; or whether he claimed title, a lien, or some other interest; or whether he claimed any such interest in the whole or in some part of it (15 Cal. 2d 268, 273) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
3. Demurrers to Answer

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.105

§ 71.105 Opposing General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--General Form

[1] FORM Opposing General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--General Form

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
	)	MEMORANDUM IN OPPOSITION TO DEMUR-
_____ [name] Plaintiff,	)	RER TO ANSWER
vs.	)	[Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30]
_____ [name], Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE GENERAL DEMURRER TO THE ANSWER SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE THE ANSWER PUTS IN ISSUE A MATERIAL ALLEGATION OF THE COMPLAINT.

A. Answer Raises Material Issue. It is error to sustain a general demurrer to an answer if the answer raises a material issue of fact (Warren v. Harootunian (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 546, 548, 11 Cal. Rptr. 305). In other words, all that is necessary against a general demurrer is that on a consideration of all the facts stated, it appears that the party whose pleading is attacked by such a demurrer is entitled to any relief at the hands of the court against his or her adversary ( South Shore Land Co. v. Petersen (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 725, 733, 38 Cal. Rptr. 392).

[Optional] B. General Demurrer Admits Facts Well Pleaded. A general demurrer admits all facts well pleaded in the answer, including denials (Warren v. Harootunian (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 546, 548, 11 Cal. Rptr. 305).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to an answer when the answer puts in issue one or more material issues of fact.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the general demurrer to an answer supported by the memorandum set out in § 71.100.

Optional Paragraph B would be included when plaintiff has urged that defendant's denial of a material allegation of the complaint is sham and that the allegation of the complaint is true.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should make specific reference to the denials and affirmative defenses of the answer, pointing out that notwithstanding any defectively stated facts, the specific facts plead suffice to raise issues of fact warranting the overruling of the general demurrer [see South Shore Land Co. v. Petersen (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 725, 738, 38 Cal. Rptr. 392 , discussed under § 71.105[3][a]].

With appropriate modifications, the foregoing memorandum may be used in opposition to a demurrer to an answer to a cross complaint, or to a motion by plaintiff or cross complainant for judgment on the pleadings [see pt. II].

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.30[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Answer Raises Material Issue

In South Shore Land Co. v. Petersen (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 725, 38 Cal. Rptr. 392 , the plaintiff filed a complaint to quiet title to certain property, claiming that the plaintiff had been in the actual, exclusive, adverse possession of the parcel by itself and its predecessors continuously for 20 years prior to the filing of the complaint, claiming during all of that period to own the property in fee against the whole world, and in the five years preceding the filing of the complaint, paid all taxes levied or assessed against the property. The complaint was answered by the defendant, who also cross complained, seeking ejectment and damages. The plaintiff demurred generally and specially to both the answer and the cross complaint. The trial court sustained the demurrers without leave to amend and judgment was entered quieting title to the property against the defendant and decreeing that she take nothing by her answer and cross complaint. The defendant appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment with directions. The court reviewed the general principles applicable to general demurrers. That is, a demurrer reaches only to the contents of the pleading and such matters as may be considered under the doctrine of judicial notice; the allegations of the pleading demurred to must be regarded as true; a demurrer does not, however, admit contentions, deductions or conclusions of fact or law alleged in the pleading, or the construction placed on an instrument pleaded in the pleading, or facts impossible in law, or allegations contrary to facts of which a court may take judicial knowledge (226 Cal. App. 2d 725, 732) . All that is necessary against a general demurrer is that on a consideration of all facts stated it appears that the party whose pleading is attacked by such a demurrer is entitled to any relief at the hands of the court against his or her adversary, notwithstanding the facts may not be clearly stated, or may be intermingled with a statement of other facts irrelevant to the cause of action or defense shown, or although the plaintiff, in his or her complaint, or the defendant, in his or her answer, may demand relief to which he or she is not entitled under the facts alleged (226 Cal. App. 2d 725, 733) . The defendant had denied, by way of general denial, the allegations in the complaint that the plaintiff was the owner of the fee in the parcel in question and had denied that the plaintiff was in adverse possession of the land. She had also alleged in her answer that she was the owner in fee and in possession of the parcel in question and had alleged several facts not inconsistent with ownership. The court concluded that the specific facts pled in the answer sufficed to raise issues of fact warranting the overruling of the general demurrer to the answer (226 Cal. App. 2d 725, 738). (The court also concluded that the cross complaint was good against the general demurrer, but directed the trial court to rule on the points presented by the special demurrer.)

Warren v. Harootunian (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 546, 11 Cal. Rptr. 305 , was an action to determine the validity of building restrictions on property owned by plaintiffs. The complaint alleged that plaintiffs were the owners of certain real property, that they had received the property by grant deed from their grantors for $2, 500, that the deed contained a provision that the property was subject to certain "covenants, conditions and restrictions now of record," that the grantors derived their title from defendants, and that the deed contained the following restriction: "One private dwelling to contain no less than 650 square feet of floor space; no tents, trailers or camping allowed at any time; and plans for home and set backs to be approved in writing by sellers." Plaintiffs further alleged that they desired to construct a multiple family dwelling on the property, that they could not build without subjecting themselves to the hazard of violating the building restrictions and to the hazard of litigation, that the property had been subdivided by the defendants, that defendants had sold virtually all the property, that building restrictions were inserted in the deeds to some of the property sold and not in others, that the result was that some property was subject to the restrictions and some not, that defendants failed to enforce the building restrictions, that in the immediate vicinity of the property owned by plaintiffs buildings were erected in violation of the restrictions, that plaintiffs' lot was no longer suitable for a single family residence, and that by reason of the changed conditions and the failure of defendants to enforce the restrictions they were not binding. Plaintiffs sought a declaration that the restrictions were not binding, were unenforceable inequity, and that the erection of a multiple family dwelling would not be in violation of the restrictions. Defendants' answer denied the allegations of the complaint and set up three affirmative defenses that allege laches and estoppel. Plaintiffs' general demurrer to the answer on the ground the answer did not state facts sufficient to constitute a defense was sustained with leave to amend and on defendants' failure to amend their default was entered and judgment was entered for plaintiffs granting them the relief prayed for. Defendants appealed.

The court of appeal reversed with directions to overrule the demurrer. The court said that the answer denied all the material allegations of the complaint, thus creating issues of fact as to the relief sought by plaintiffs, and that the three affirmative defenses were sufficient as against a general demurrer to set up the defenses of laches and estoppel. The court added that even if the general demurrer was good as to the special defenses, the trial court erred in entering judgment by default because the denials of the allegations in plaintiffs' complaint clearly created issues of fact (189 Cal. App. 2d 546, 548) .

[b] General Demurrer Admits Facts Well Pleaded

The facts and procedural background of Warren v. Harootunian (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 546, 11 Cal. Rptr. 305 , are discussed under § 71.105[3][a]. In reversing the judgment in Warren for plaintiffs, the court of appeal said that a general demurrer admits all facts well pleaded in the answer, including denials (189 Cal. App. 2d 546, 548) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Answer Raises Material Issue

Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Minnette (1949) 92 Cal. App. 2d 401, 206 P.2d 1138 , was an action by a public utility to quiet title to an easement that had been granted to it by defendants' predecessors in interest for the purpose of erecting and maintaining power poles and lines. The complaint alleged that the grant contained a covenant prohibiting the grantors from erecting or maintaining any building or structure beneath the power lines, that the grant had been recorded, that defendants had purchased the property in 1945, and that with full knowledge of the easement and the restriction defendants in 1947 had constructed beneath the power lines a basalt block building as an automobile garage and repair shop. Plaintiff sought a judgment quieting its title to the easement and a mandatory injunction requiring defendants to remove the building. The amended answer stated that the building covered only a portion of the alleged right-of-way and did not interfere with plaintiff's ingress and egress. In addition, however, it denied material allegations of the complaint and affirmatively alleged that defendants had no knowledge of the existence of the easements, that plaintiff's poles and wires were not erected or maintained on the easements, that for a long time prior to the construction of the building, other buildings were permitted by plaintiff, without objection, to remain beneath the wires on the easements in the immediate vicinity, including defendants' frame building that had been replaced by the basalt building, and that defendants, with full knowledge on plaintiff's part, tore down their frame building in January, 1947, and replaced it with the basalt block building at a cost of about $9,000, which building was under construction for eight months, during all of which time plaintiff had full notice and knowledge of the construction. Paragraph IV of the amended answer denied on information and belief that plaintiff erected its poles and wires on the easement granted but rather that they were erected on another part of defendants' land. In Paragraph VI, defendants denied affirmatively that the building was constructed on the easement or that they had invaded the easement by constructing and maintaining the building. The answer also alleged that prior to their purchase, defendants secured a title company report that the land was free and clear of any recorded easements, liens, or encumbrances whatsoever and it setup the defenses of estoppel and laches. Plaintiff's general demurrer to the answer was sustained without leave to amend and judgment was entered for plaintiff.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment with directions to overrule the demurrer. The court held that the answer presented an issue of fact as to whether the building was constructed on the easement, that it sufficiently alleged an equitable defense (estoppel), and that the trial court, therefore, erred in having sustained the demurrer to it (92 Cal. App. 2d 401, 405, 408) .

Coons v. Thompson (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 687, 171 P.2d 443 , was an action to quiet title to real property. In Paragraph III of the complaint, it was alleged that plaintiff was the owner and entitled to possession of certain real property. The third amended answer contained numerous allegations by which defendants endeavored to allege that they had certain equities in the property; it also denied "generally and specifically each and every allegation contained in paragraph III of plaintiff's complaint." Plaintiff's demurrer to the answer on both general and special grounds was sustained without leave to amend, and defendants appealed from the subsequent judgment for plaintiff.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment with directions to overrule the demurrer. The court said that in a quiet title action the denial in the answer of plaintiff's ownership and right to possession of the property raises issues of fact requiring a trial of the action (75 Cal. App. 2d 687, 689). The court concluded that since the third amended answer denied specifically the allegation of the complaint that plaintiff was the owner and entitled to possession of the real property described, it raised material issues of fact requiring a trial and that the trial court, therefore, had erred in sustaining the general demurrer to it (75 Cal. App. 2d 687, 690) .

See also Cohn v. Klein (1930) 209 Cal. 421, 424, 287 P. 459 ("In view of the general allegations of ownership by plaintiffs and the general denial thereof by defendants, it may be said that a motion by plaintiffs for judgment on the pleadings is improper as such a motion is in the nature of a demurrer to the answer and when the answer raises a material issue, no such motion can be allowed to prevail"); Cass v. Rochester (1917) 174 Cal. 358, 360, 163 P. 212 ("Judgment on the pleadings cannot be given in favor of the plaintiff when the answer puts in issue a material allegation of the complaint, or sets up affirmative matter constituting a defense"); Neale v. Morrow (1916) 174 Cal. 49, 54, 161 P. 1165 ("As the answer sets up a good defense and denies material allegations of the complaint, it was sufficient as against a general demurrer ...").

[b] General Demurrer Admits Facts Well Pleaded

Sheward v. Citizens' Water Co. (1891) 90 Cal. 635, 27 P. 439 , was an action to enjoin defendant water company from shutting off plaintiff's water for nonpayment of the monthly bills. Under a city ordinance, the monthly charge for water was either a flat rate, or if a meter was installed, the meter rate. Defendant, with plaintiff's consent, installed a water meter at plaintiff's house. Prior to the installation of the meter, plaintiff's monthly charge was $6.20. After the meter was installed, the charge for the succeeding two months was $12.95 and $11.95, respectively. Plaintiff tendered to defendant the sum of $6.20 on the last day of each of the months and demanded a receipt for payment in full, but defendant refused. On plaintiff's refusal to pay any more than the amounts tendered, defendant threatened to shut off the water and the action for injunction followed. Plaintiff's general demurrer to the amended answer was sustained, and on defendant's failure to file an amended pleading, judgment was rendered that that portion of the city ordinance providing for meter rates at the option of the company furnishing water was contrary to law and void and, permanently enjoining defendant from shutting off plaintiff's water. Defendant appealed.

In holding the amended answer sufficient and reversing the judgment, the Supreme Court said that a demurrer to the answer admits not only the facts alleged in it but also, for the purpose of determining the sufficiency of the answer, that the facts alleged in the complaint that are denied in the answer form no part of plaintiff's cause of action and are not to be regarded by the court (90 Cal. 635, 639) . Applying this rule, the Court said that it was thus admitted by plaintiff that the ordinance was properly adopted, that defendant was entitled to collect from plaintiff for the water consumed by him according to the rates specified in the ordinance, that defendant for the purpose of ascertaining the exact amount of water consumed on the premises applied a meter with plaintiff's knowledge and consent, that plaintiff's consumption during July and August 1890 was much in excess of the amount reasonably required and was large, unusual, and wasteful, that the meter would and did accurately measure the amount consumed, that the sums demanded of plaintiff for this water were reasonable, were the ordinary meter charge made by defendant to its customers, did not discriminate against plaintiff, and were less than the amount of the rates fixed by the ordinance, and that plaintiff refused to pay these sums (90 Cal. 635, 639-640) . The Court concluded on the facts thus admitted that plaintiff showed no cause of action for compelling defendant to continue to supply water to him or for enjoining it from cutting off his supply (90 Cal. 635, 640) .

See also Miller & Lux, Inc. v. Light & Power Corp. (1932) 120 Cal. App. 589, 600, 8 P.2d 560 (demurrer to answer admits not only facts alleged in the answer, but also, for purpose of determining sufficiency of answer, that facts alleged in complaint that are denied in answer form no part of plaintiff's cause of action and are not to be regarded by court).

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
3. Demurrers to Answer

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.106

§ 71.106 Opposing General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--General Demurrer Does Not Lie to Challenge Defectively Stated Facts

[1] FORM Opposing General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--General Demurrer Does Not Lie to Challenge Defectively Stated Facts

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum opposing a general demurrer to an answer (see § 71.105).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER TO THE ANSWER SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE THE DEMURRER CHALLENGES MERELY THE DEFECTIVE STATEMENT OF FACTS, RATHER THAN THE FAILURE TO RAISE ANY MATERIAL ISSUE OF FACT.

A. Facts Defectively Stated Not Subject to General Demurrer. A general demurrer does not lie to challenge facts defectively stated in an answer or those set forth therein by way of inference or argument (Miller & Lux, Inc. v. Light & Power Corp. (1932) 120 Cal. App. 589, 602, 8 P.2d 560).

[Optional] B. Answer Sufficient Against General Demurrer Despite Unclear or Irrelevant Facts, or Demand for Wrong Relief. If it appears that the party whose pleading is attacked by the demurrer is entitled to any relief at the hands of the court against the party's adversary, the general demurrer against the answer will be overruled, notwithstanding that the facts may not be clearly stated, or may be intermingled with a statement of other facts irrelevant to the defense shown, or although the defendant, in his or her answer, may demand relief to which the defendant is not entitled under the facts alleged (South Shore Land Co. v. Petersen (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 725, 733, 38 Cal. Rptr. 392).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to an answer when the answer raises one or more material issues of fact and the gist of the objection is merely that the facts alleged are defectively stated, for example, that they are uncertain (which term includes ambiguous and unintelligible).

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the general demurrer to an answer supported by the memorandum set out in §§ 71.100 -71.103.

The foregoing memorandum should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a demurrer to an answer made on the ground that the answer fails to deny the material allegations of the complaint and sets forth no new matter that would constitute an affirmative defense to the action [see § 71.105]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel would refer to the answer and to matters of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice [see § 71.21], indicating that notwithstanding any defectively stated facts, the defendant is entitled relief [see South Shore Land Co. v. Petersen (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 725, 733, 38 Cal. Rptr. 392 , discussed under § 71.106[3][b]].

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.105[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Facts Defectively Stated Not Subject to General Demurrer

Miller & Lux, Inc. v. Light & Power Corp. (1932) 120 Cal. App. 589, 8 P.2d 560 , was an action to enforce by injunction the terms of a contract executed some 20 years before, involving the rights of the parties to the waters of a river. Defendant's answer denied various allegations of the complaint and set forth 15 separate defenses. At trial plaintiff, on the close of its case, objected to the introduction of any evidence by defendant on the ground the answer failed to state any facts that would constitute a defense to the action. The court sustained the objection and also sustained plaintiff's general demurrer to the answer without leave to amend. Defendant appealed from the subsequent judgment. The court of appeal reversed the judgment with directions to overrule the demurrers to specified defenses. In a lengthy analysis of the pleadings and the law applicable to the defenses asserted, the court, although concluding some of the defenses stated no defense, held that other defenses alleged facts sufficient to constitute a defense to the action, requiring a trial of the case on the merits (120 Cal. App. 589, 601-613) . The court said that a general demurrer or objection to the admission of evidence under a pleading on account of its insufficiency as a pleading does not reach facts defectively stated or those set forth by way of inference or argument, but only the entire absence of any essential fact (120 Cal. App. 589, 602) .

[b] Answer Sufficient Against General Demurrer Despite Unclear or Irrelevant Facts, or Demand for Wrong Relief

The facts and procedural background of South Shore Land Co. v. Petersen (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 725, 38 Cal. Rptr. 392 , are discussed in § 71.105[3][a]. In South Shore Land Co., the court stated that all that is necessary against a general demurrer is that on a consideration of all facts stated it appears that the party whose pleading is attacked by such a demurrer is entitled to any relief at the hands of the court against his or her adversary. This is true, notwithstanding that facts may not be clearly stated, or may be intermingled with a statement of other facts irrelevant to the cause of action or defense shown, or although the plaintiff, in his or her complaint, or the defendant, in his or her answer, may demand relief to which he or she is not entitled under the facts alleged (226 Cal. App. 2d 725, 733) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Facts Defectively Stated Not Subject to General Demurrer

Terry Trading Corp. v. Barsky (1930) 210 Cal. 428, 292 P. 474 , was an action to collect the balance due on a promissory note. The elements of defendant's case, set forth with some duplication in his second amended answer and second amended cross complaint, boiled down to the pleas of usury and breach of contract, and a demand for an accounting. Plaintiff's general demurrers to these pleadings were sustained without leave to amend and defendant appealed from the subsequent judgment for plaintiff. In reversing the judgment with directions to overrule the demurrers to both pleadings the Supreme Court said: "It is sometimes a difficult task for the pleader to state enough facts to establish his cause of action or defense, and also to avoid the inclusion of confusing evidentiary matter. The code has provided adequate means for the correction of an error in either direction; the adverse party may move to strike out the evidentiary matter or demur specially to an inadequate statement of the facts on the ground of uncertainty or ambiguity. But to deny the party his right to a trial, there must be an obvious failure of the pleadings to state a cause of action or defense. This is not the case here, and as against the general demurrers, they should stand. We are enjoined by statute to construe pleadings liberally (Code Civ. Proc., sec. 452) and such has been our practice" (210 Cal. 428, 438) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
3. Demurrers to Answer

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.107

§ 71.107 Opposing General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--Demurrer to Whole Answer on Ground No Defense Is Stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(a)]--Answer Pleads at Least One Valid Defense

[1] FORM Opposing General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--Demurrer to Whole Answer on Ground No Defense Is Stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(a)]--Answer Pleads at Least One Valid Defense

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum opposing a general demurrer to an answer (see § 71.105).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER TO THE ENTIRE ANSWER SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE AT LEAST ONE OF THE DEFENSES IN THE ANSWER STATES FACTS SUFFICIENT TO CONSTITUTE A DEFENSE.

Sufficiency of One Defense. A demurrer to an entire answer setting forth two or more defenses should be overruled when at least one of the defenses is sufficient (Ramsey v. Flournoy (1881) 58 Cal. 260, 261 ; South Shore Land Co. v. Petersen (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 725, 734, 38 Cal. Rptr. 392).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to an answer when the demurrer is to the whole answer and the answer sets forth at least one valid defense.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the general demurrer to an answer supported by the memorandum set out in §§ 71.100 -71.103.

The foregoing memorandum should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a demurrer to an answer made on the ground that the answer fails to deny the material allegations of the complaint and sets forth no new matter that would constitute an affirmative defense to the action [see § 71.105]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the point of law stated. Thus, counsel would identify the valid defense asserted and set forth argument as to its validity.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.105[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Sufficiency of One Defense

Ramsey v. Flournoy (1881) 58 Cal. 260 , was an action involving conflicting claims to a certain tract of swamp and overflowed land. One of the defendants filed an answer denying that plaintiff was entitled to purchase the land in question and alleged that the land was surveyed and segregated by authority of the United States in 1876. Plaintiff's demurrer to the whole answer was sustained and judgment by default was entered against that defendant, from which he appealed. Although the Supreme Court affirmed the judgment on the ground the demurrer was properly sustained because the answer failed to state facts sufficient to defeat plaintiff's claim, it said that a demurrer to a whole answer, if there are more than one count in it and all are not bad, should be overruled (58 Cal. 260, 261) .

The facts and procedural background of South Shore Land Co. v. Petersen (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 725, 38 Cal. Rptr. 392 , are discussed in § 71.05[3][a]. In South Shore Land Co., in reversing the judgment with directions to overrule the general demurrers to the second amended answer and cross complaint and to rule on the points presented by the special demurrers, the court of appeal said that if one of the defenses is free from the objections urged by demurrer, then a demurrer to the entire answer must be overruled (226 Cal. App. 2d 725, 734) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Sufficiency of One Defense

Eich v. Greeley (1896) 112 Cal. 171, 44 P. 483 , was an action by the endorsee against the makers of a negotiable promissory note for $3,000 to recover the full amount of the note plus interest. Defendants in their answer among other things admitted the making of the note to John Eich as payee but averred that it was endorsed to plaintiff after maturity; they denied there was any consideration for the note beyond $2,000 and claimed an offset of $1,000 for labor performed for the payee while the latter was the owner and holder of the note and before the note became due; they also averred that prior to the endorsement they had paid $1,000 on the note and that plaintiff had notice of that payment before the transfer, that the transfer to plaintiff was made without consideration for the fraudulent intent on the part of the payee and plaintiff of defrauding defendants out of the $1,000, and that plaintiff was the payee's son. Plaintiff demurred to the whole answer and moved to strike portions of it other than the above. The motion was granted and the demurrer was sustained. Defendants declined to amend, their default was entered, and judgment was rendered for plaintiff from which defendants appealed.

In reversing the judgment with leave to defendants to amend their answer, the Supreme Court said that the demurrer, which was to the whole answer, was improperly sustained, that while that portion of it constituting a counterclaim (now abolished; see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.80) was fatally defective, the plea of payment of $1,000 on the note before its endorsement to plaintiff, with notice of the payment to plaintiff, coupled with the denial that it was endorsed before maturity, and the allegation that the transfer of the note was without consideration, constituted, pro tanto, a valid defense to the action (112 Cal. 171, 173-174) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
3. Demurrers to Answer

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.108

§ 71.108 Opposing General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--Demurrer on Ground No Defense Is Stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(a)]--Pleading Inconsistent Defenses in Answer Is Permissible

[1] FORM Opposing General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--Demurrer on Ground No Defense Is Stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(a)]--Pleading Inconsistent Defenses in Answer Is Permissible

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum opposing a general demurrer to an answer (see § 71.105).]

THE GENERAL DEMURRER TO THE ANSWER ON THE GROUND THE SEVERAL DEFENSES PLEADED IN THE ANSWER ARE INCONSISTENT WITH EACH OTHER SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE THE PLEADING OF INCONSISTENT DEFENSES IS PERMISSIBLE.

A. Separate Consideration of Defenses. Each defense stated in the answer must be separately considered and the allegations of one defense cannot be read into the allegations of another separately stated defense (South Shore Land Co. v. Petersen (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 725, 733, 38 Cal. Rptr. 392).

B. Inconsistent Defenses Permitted. The joinder of inconsistent defenses is permissible and does not render the answer vulnerable to the objection that it fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a defense (South Shore Land Co. v. Petersen (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 725, 733-734, 738, 38 Cal. Rptr. 392).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to an answer that makes the objection that the answer pleads inconsistent defenses.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the general demurrer to an answer supported by the memorandum set out in §§ 71.100 -71.103.

The foregoing memorandum should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a demurrer to an answer made on the ground that the answer fails to deny the material allegations of the complaint and sets forth no new matter that would constitute an affirmative defense to the action [see § 71.105]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel would refer to the affirmative defenses arguing that each must be considered separately without regard to any other defense

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.105[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Separate Consideration of Defenses

The facts and procedural background of South Shore Land Co. v. Petersen (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 725, 38 Cal. Rptr. 392 , are discussed in § 71.105[3][a]. In South Shore Land Co., although the court of appeal said that the answer was prolix, discursive, and replete with evidentiary matters, conclusions of fact, conclusions of law, opinions, arguments, and immaterial matter, and was clearly vulnerable to a special demurrer and certainly subject to a motion to strike, it reversed the judgment with directions to overrule the general demurrers and to rule on the special demurrers for uncertainty, ambiguity, and unintelligibility (now only uncertainty) (226 Cal. App. 2d 725, 747) . In reaching this conclusion, the court, citing former Code Civ. Proc. § 441 (repealed by Stats. 1971, ch. 244, operative July 1, 1972; now see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30), said that a rule, particularly applicable to the case of a demurrer to the answer, is that each so-called defense must be considered separately without regard to any other defense (226 Cal. App. 2d 725, 733) .

Former Code Civ. Proc. § 441, cited by the court, provided, "The defendant may set forth by answer as many defenses and counterclaims as he or she may have. They must be separately stated, and the several defenses must refer to the causes of action which they are intended to answer, in a manner by which they may be intelligibly distinguished. The defendant may also answer one or more of the several causes of action stated in the complaint and demur to the residue."

Counterclaims have since been abolished and causes of action formerly asserted by counterclaim must now be asserted by cross complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.80]. Affirmative relief may no longer be claimed in the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(c)]. To the extent that Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30 continues the law set forth in former Code Civ. Proc. § 441, it in relevant part provides that the answer shall contain a statement of any new matter constituting a defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)] and that defenses shall be separately stated and the several defenses shall refer to the causes of action that they are intended to answer, in a manner by which they may be intelligibly distinguished.

[b] Inconsistent Defenses Permitted

The facts and procedural background of South Shore Land Co. v. Petersen (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 725, 38 Cal. Rptr. 392 , are discussed in § 71.105[3][a]. In South Shore Land Co., in reversing the judgment with directions to overrule the general demurrers to the second amended answer and cross complaint and to rule on the points presented by the special demurrers, the court of appeal pointed out that a separately stated defense that is sufficient in form and substance when viewed in isolation does not become insufficient when, on looking at the answer as a whole, that defense appears inconsistent with or repugnant to other parts of the answer (226 Cal. App. 2d 725, 733-734) . The court concluded that defendant's general denials as to plaintiff's alleged ownership and adverse possession, her independently pleaded general allegation of ownership in herself, and the conclusionary allegation of ownership supported by the specific facts pleaded, sufficed to raise issues of fact warranting the overruling of the general demurrer to the answer, and that this was so notwithstanding the pleading by defendant of apparent inconsistent defenses that purported to assert that ownership of the parcel in question was in the United States, the State of California, and the County of Alameda (226 Cal. App. 2d 725, 738) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Separate Consideration of Defenses

The facts and procedural background of Miller & Lux, Inc. v. Light & Power Corp. (1932) 120 Cal. App. 589, 8 P.2d 560 , are discussed in § 71.106[3][a]. In Miller & Lux, Inc., the court of appeal, in a lengthy analysis of the pleadings and the law applicable to the defenses asserted, although concluding some of the defenses stated no defense, held that other defenses alleged facts sufficient to constitute a defense to the action, requiring a trial of the case on the merits (120 Cal. App. 589, 601-613) . The court said that each so-called defense must be considered separately without regard to any other defense and, no matter how illogical this may at times seem, it was the rule at common law and is the rule by our code, citing former Code Civ. Proc. § 441 (120 Cal. App. 589, 601) . For the wording of former Code Civ. Proc. § 441, see § 71.108[3][a].

See also McDonald v. Southern C. R. Co. (1894) 101 Cal. 206, 213 ("[T]he statement in one defense cannot be used as evidence upon another issue, because to so hold would deprive the defendant of the benefit of his denials. This I understand to be the universal rule.").

[b] Inconsistent Defenses Permitted

Banta v. Siller (1898) 121 Cal. 414, 53 P. 935 , was an action for damages for personal injuries sustained by a bicyclist in a collision with a horse and wagon owned by defendants. In their answer, defendants, in addition to denials, set up two separate and distinct defenses: (1) at the time of the collision the horse and wagon were not under their control or being driven by their servants but were in possession and control of a named third person to whom they had furnished them for the purpose of carrying out an independent contract made by the third person; and (2) that the horse and wagon were at the time owned by them and being driven by them along the highway and that the accident occurred through the negligence of plaintiff and not through any fault of defendants. The court tried the case on the theory that when an answer is verified there cannot be set up in it two inconsistent and contradictory averments; it therefore refused to stop plaintiff's counsel in his argument to the jury from contending that defendants had committed perjury in their answer and it instructed the jury that the third person must be held to have been defendants' servant and that a defendant may plead as many separate defenses as he or she has, but a sworn answer must not deny a fact in one part, which is averred to be true in another part. Judgment was for plaintiff and defendants appealed. In reversing the judgment, the Supreme Court held the above rulings of the trial court erroneous (121 Cal. 414, 417) and quoted the statement from Buhne v. Corbett (1872) 43 Cal. 264, 269 , quoted below.

Buhne v. Corbett (1872) 43 Cal. 264 , was an action to recover possession of land in Humboldt County. The pleadings were verified. Plaintiff, in his complaint, alleged that he was the owner in fee of the land, that on February 2, 1870, defendants had entered into possession of it, and that ever since defendants had unlawfully withheld possession from him. Defendants, on information and belief, denied that plaintiff was the owner or entitled to possession of the land, and denied that they had entered into possession of it, or that they had ever withheld possession from plaintiff. They alleged that the land was owned by the United States Government reserved for lighthouse purposes and that they were the keepers of the lighthouse, employed for that purpose by the United States, that is, that they were mere occupants of the land. They denied claiming any interest in the land or its improvements and averred that the United States by and through them and other of its employees had been and was in sole and exclusive possession of the property. Taking the position that defendants by their answer admitted their possession and withholding, plaintiff at trial offered no evidence on the issue of possession and was nonsuited. The Supreme Court, in affirming the judgment and assuming the separate defenses were inconsistent with respect to defendants' possession, said that it would not follow that plaintiff would be at liberty to disregard them, or either of them, at trial. The Court explained that a party defendant in pleading may plead as many defenses as he or she may have and that "If a plea or defense separately pleaded in an answer contain several matters, these should not be repugnant or inconsistent in themselves. But the plea or defense regarded as an entirety, if it be otherwise sufficient in point of form and substance, is not to be defeated or disregarded merely because it is inconsistent with some other plea or defense pleaded. And there is no distinction in this respect between pleadings verified and pleadings unverified" (43 Cal. 264, 269) .

See also Burrow v. Carley (1930) 210 Cal. 95, 103, 290 P. 577 (it is thoroughly settled that defenses, consistent in themselves, but inconsistent with one another, may be set up in answer and evidence may be admitted in support thereof); McDonald v. Southern C. R. Co. (1894) 101 Cal. 206, 212-213 (one may verify certain inconsistent defenses and yet not commit perjury; for instance, one may deny execution of a note sued on and yet in another defense plead payment or the statute of limitations; in legal theory the second defense would admit the execution of the note, and the third admits its execution and that it has not been paid; yet one may claim that it is forged and also that he or she has paid it; and also, in case he or she fails in his proofs as to either point, that it is barred); Southern Glass Co. v. Beverly Dairies (1935) 7 Cal. App. 2d 451, 454, 45 P.2d 1023 (a defendant may plead inconsistent defenses).

79 of 125 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
3. Demurrers to Answer

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.109

§ 71.109 Opposing General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--Demurrer on Ground No Defense Is Stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(a)]--Affirmative Defense of Payment Available Although Independent Action on Claim Barred by Statute of Limitations at Time Answer Filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70]

[1] FORM Opposing General Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.30(a)]--Demurrer on Ground No Defense Is Stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(a)]--Affirmative Defense of Payment Available Although Independent Action on Claim Barred by Statute of Limitations at Time Answer Filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70]

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum opposing a general demurrer to an answer (see § 71.105).]

THE DEMURRER TO THE ANSWER SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS DOES NOT BAR AN AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE OF PAYMENT IF THE PARTIES' CROSS DEMANDS COEXISTED AT A TIME WHEN NEITHER DEMAND WAS BARRED.

A. Defense of Payment Available Although Statute of Limitations Bars Independent Claim. When cross demands for money have existed between persons at any point in time when neither demand was barred by the statute of limitations, and an action is thereafter commenced by one such person, the other person may assert in the answer the defense of payment in that the two demands are compensated so far as they equal each other, notwithstanding that an independent action asserting the person's claim would at the time of filing the answer be barred by the statute of limitations (Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70; see Jones v. Mortimer (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 627, 632-633, 170 P.2d 893).

[Optional] B. Code of Civil Procedure Section 431.70 as Applicable to Unliquidated Cross Demands. The fact that a person's demand is an unliquidated claim for damages does not affect his or her right to setoff because Section 431.70 of the Code of Civil Procedure does not require that the cross demands be liquidated (Hauger v. Gates (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 752, 755, 269 P.2d 609 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 440; now see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be used to oppose a demurrer to an answer on the ground that the affirmative defense of payment is not barred by the statute of limitations because cross demands for money existed between plaintiff and defendant when neither demand was barred by the statute of limitations, and the action was commenced by plaintiff thereafter [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70].

Cases decided prior to the enactment of Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70 in 1971 still appear to be persuasive authority as this section continues the substantive effect of former Code Civ. Proc. § 440.

The foregoing memorandum should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a demurrer to an answer made on the ground that the answer fails to deny the material allegations of the complaint and sets forth no new matter that would constitute an affirmative defense to the action [see § 71.105]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show that the cross demands both existed at a certain point in time when neither demand was barred by the statute of limitations.

[b] Related Points and Authorities

For a form of memorandum supporting a motion to compel acknowledgment of satisfaction of judgment through setoff of cross demands, see Ch. 131, Judgments .

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.105[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Defense of Payment Available Although Statute of Limitations Bars Independent Claim

In Jones v. Mortimer (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 627, 170 P.2d 893 , plaintiff sued a corporation in receivership to recover for services rendered. Approximately five years after commencement of the action, the corporation levied a stock assessment, and plaintiff, a stockholder, became indebted to the corporation. Two years later, plaintiff recovered judgment on his original action. Plaintiff then sought a writ of execution to enforce his judgment; the corporation claimed the right to set off the assessment against the judgment although the statute of limitations would ordinarily have run on the assessment. The setoff was allowed and an order denying the petition to enforce payment of the judgment was issued. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court reasoned that the cross demands had existed between plaintiff and defendant at least at the time the assessment became due and plaintiff's action was pending. Thus, the claims existed under circumstances in which if either brought an action on his or her claim the other could have set up a counterclaim and there would be no question about the statute of limitations having run. Therefore, the court held that the demands were compensated, that is, each of the claimants was paid to the extent that their claims were equal and there was no outstanding claim on which the statute could run (28 Cal. 2d 627, 632-633) .

[b] Code of Civil Procedure Section 431.70 as Applicable to Unliquidated Cross Demands

In Hauger v. Gates (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 752, 269 P.2d 609 , plaintiffs brought an action to set aside an extrajudicial sale made under a deed of trust. Defendants demurred to plaintiffs' second amended complaint. The demurrers were sustained without leave to amend. Plaintiffs appealed from the judgment entered for defendants. Plaintiffs contended that they were entitled to a setoff in an amount exceeding the amount due on the note and that therefore they were not in default on their obligation.

The Supreme Court reversed. The Court held that the fact that plaintiffs' demand was an unliquidated claim for damages for breach of the contract of sale did not affect their right to setoff since former Code Civ. Proc. § 440 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70] did not require that the cross demands be liquidated (42 Cal. 2d 752, 755) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Defense of Payment Available Although Statute of Limitations Bars Independent Claim

In Davis & Cox v. Summa Corp. (9th Cir. 1985) 751 F.2d 1507 , the U.S. Court of Appeals held that the U.S. District Court erred in denying a corporation's motion to permit its counterclaims as a defense in an action against the corporation for attorney's fees without first determining whether the corporation's claim for malpractice coexisted with the attorney's claim for attorney's fees, for the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70 (751 F.2d 1507, 1522) .

In Murchison v. Murchison (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 600, 33 Cal. Rptr. 285 , plaintiff in a divorce action appealed from an order denying a motion to quash execution and enter satisfaction of judgment. Plaintiff contended that part of an income tax deficiency paid after the divorce could be offset against the balance due defendant under the divorce judgment. The court of appeal reversed, stating that because plaintiff was compelled by law to make a payment that benefited defendant in that defendant's tax liability was discharged, and since a new claim or cause of action arose by operation of law in favor of plaintiff against defendant, the setoff applied between the parties to extinguish the debt even though no action was pending (219 Cal. App. 2d 600, 604-605) . The court held that the principle of setoff was not limited to judicial proceedings. Thus plaintiff's obligation to pay the balance of $3, 600 to defendant was extinguished when defendant became obligated to pay plaintiff a greater sum as contribution for tax deficiency. The effect was to compensate defendant just as though payment had been made to her in cash (219 Cal. App. 2d 600, 605) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
3. Demurrers to Answer

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.110

§ 71.110 Opposing Special Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(b), 430.30(a)]--Demurrer Fails to Specify Uncertainty

[1] FORM Opposing Special Demurrer to Answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(b), 430.30(a)]--Demurrer Fails to Specify Uncertainty

[Caption. See § 71.105.]

THE SPECIAL DEMURRER TO THE ANSWER SHOULD BE OVERRULED BECAUSE THE DEMURRER FAILS TO SPECIFY WHEREIN THE ANSWER IS AMBIGUOUS, UNINTELLIGIBLE, OR UNCERTAIN.

Demurrer Fails to Specify Uncertainty. A special demurrer on the ground that an answer is ambiguous, unintelligible, or uncertain is insufficient unless the demurrer points out specifically wherein the pleading is ambiguous, uncertain, or unintelligible (Coons v. Thompson (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 687, 690, 171 P.2d 443).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a special demurrer to an answer on the ground of uncertainty when the demurrer fails to specify wherein the answer is uncertain.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the special demurrer to an answer supported by the memorandum set out in § 71.104.

With appropriate modifications, the foregoing memorandum may be used in opposition to a demurrer to an answer to a cross complaint, or a motion by plaintiff or cross complainant for judgment on the pleadings [see pt. II].

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. That is, the memorandum should point out the omission in the demurrer of what specific portion of the answer is uncertain.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.85[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Demurrer Fails to Specify Uncertainty

The facts and procedural background of Coons v. Thompson (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 687, 171 P.2d 443 , are discussed in § 71.105[4][a]. In Coons, the court of appeal, in reversing the trial court's judgment for the plaintiff after sustaining a demurrer to the answer without leave to amend, stated that a special demurrer on the ground that an answer is ambiguous, unintelligible, or uncertain is insufficient unless the demurrer points out specifically wherein the pleading is ambiguous, uncertain, or unintelligible. In the case before it, the court concluded that the special demurrer failed to point out wherein the answer was contained those defects (75 Cal. App. 2d 687, 690) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
A. Demurrers
3. Demurrers to Answer

7A-71 California Points & Authorities §§ 71.111-71.129

[Reserved]

§§ 71.111[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
B. Motions For Judgment on The Pleadings
1. Motion By Plaintiff

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.130

§ 71.130 Supporting Motion by Plaintiff for Judgment on Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(A)]--Complaint States a Cause of Action and Answer Does Not Deny Material Allegation of Complaint and Alleges No Affirmative Defense--General Form

[1] FORM Supporting Motion by Plaintiff for Judgment on Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(A)]--Complaint States a Cause of Action and Answer Does Not Deny Material Allegation of Complaint and Alleges No Affirmative Defense--General Form

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFF'S
_____ [name] Plaintiff,	)	MOTION FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
vs.	)	Date: _____
_____ [name], Defendant.	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	[Trial Date: _____]

_____

PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE THE COMPLAINT STATES FACTS SUFFICIENT TO CONSTITUTE A CAUSE OR CAUSES OF ACTION AND THE ANSWER FAILS TO RAISE A MATERIAL ISSUE OR TO SET UP AN AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE TO THE COMPLAINT.

A. When Motion Is Proper. A plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings is proper when the plaintiff claims that the complaint states facts sufficient to constitute a cause or causes of action against the defendant and the answer does not state facts sufficient to constitute a defense to the complaint (Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(A)).

B. When Motion Should Be Granted. A plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings should be granted when the complaint is sufficient and the answer presents nothing, either by way of denial or new matter, to bar or defeat the action (Hemme v. Hayes (1880) 55 Cal. 337, 339 ; Allstate Ins. Co. v. Kim W. (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 326, 334-335, 206 Cal. Rptr. 609).

[Optional] C. Evasive Answer Raising No Material Issue. A plaintiff is entitled to a judgment on the pleadings when the defendant's answer is evasive and raises no issue on a material allegation of the complaint (Adjustment Corp. v. Hollywood Hardware & Paint Co. (1939) 35 Cal. App. 2d 566, 569, 96 P.2d 161).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in support of a motion by plaintiff for judgment on the pleadings when the complaint states facts sufficient to constitute a cause or causes of action and the answer states no defense to the action, either by the way of specific denial of a material allegation in the complaint or by setting up an affirmative defense. The optional paragraph would be used when a material allegation in the complaint is denied but the denial is evasive [see Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(A)].

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, if the defendant's answer generally denies each and every allegation of the complaint, but also admits facts that are in conflict with, and that negate, the denials, plaintiff should identify the conflicts and indicate how each material allegation of the complaint remains uncontroverted [see, e.g., Adjustment Corp. v. Hollywood Hardware & Paint Co. (1939) 35 Cal. App. 2d 566, 569, 96 P.2d 161 , discussed under § 71.130[3][b]].

With appropriate modifications, the foregoing memorandum may be used in support of a general demurrer to an answer to a complaint or to an answer to a cross complaint that fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a defense.

In addition to the memoranda of points and authorities in the foregoing form, and in §§ 71.131-71.133, in an appropriate case memoranda supporting a general demurrer to an answer may be modified for use in supporting a plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings [see pt. I, subpt. B].

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in § 71.134 may be used to oppose the motion supported by the foregoing memorandum. In addition, the memorandum set out in §§ 71.105 -71.109, opposing a general demurrer to an answer, may be modified for use in opposing the motion supported by the foregoing memorandum.

See also §§ 71.20[2], 71.100[2], and 71.150[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] When Motion Should Be Granted

Hemme v. Hayes (1880) 55 Cal. 337 , was an action on a promissory note. Defendant denied the due execution of the note and that it was executed for a valuable consideration for certain reasons that he set forth in his answer. These reasons, however, did not show that the note was not duly executed or that it was not executed for a valuable consideration. There was, therefore, no denial of these allegations. Plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings was granted and defendant appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed. It said that the answer was frivolous, a frivolous answer being one that denies no material averment in the complaint and sets up no defense, and that when an answer presents nothing, either by way of denial or new matter to bar or defeat an action, a motion by plaintiff for judgment on the pleadings is properly granted (55 Cal. 337, 339) .

Allstate Ins. Co. v. Kim W. (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 326, 335, 206 Cal. Rptr. 609 , involved an action by a minor, through her guardian ad litem against the defendant, seeking compensatory and punitive damages for injuries resulting from sexual assault. The defendant was insured under a homeowner's insurance policy, that expressly excluded coverage for bodily injury or property damage intentionally caused by an insured person. The defendant's insurer brought an action for declaratory relief against both the plaintiff and defendant, seeking a declaration that the policy provided no coverage for the acts alleged in the plaintiff's complaint. The plaintiff answered, denying most of the allegations of the insurer's complaint for lack of information and belief. The plaintiff attached a copy of her verified complaint as an exhibit to her answer. Immediately prior to the commencement of trial, the insurer moved for judgment on the pleadings [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 438(e), under which this would no longer be a timely motion, absent the court's permission to bring it]. The trial court granted the motion and judgment was entered declaring that the defendant's insurance did not cover his acts of sexual molestation and assaults and batteries, and that the insurer was not required to defend him in the plaintiff's action. The plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment on the pleadings. The court held that the plaintiff's answer and her pleading in the action against the defendant did not raise a material issue or set up affirmative matter constituting a defense to the insurer's complaint. The court stated that the answer denied, for lack of information and belief, the allegations of the insurer's complaint. However, the trial court was entitled to and did judicially notice the verified complaint attached to the plaintiff's answer, when it ruled on the motion for judgment on the pleadings. The plaintiff's own complaint alleged that the defendant's acts were willful and intentional. The plaintiff's purported cause of action for negligence specifically incorporated all the allegations of other causes of action, one of which expressly alleges that the assaults were intentional and for the purpose of causing harm. The court further stated that while a party may plead inconsistent defenses to a complaint, each defense must be consistent in itself (160 Cal. App. 3d 326, 334-335) .

[b] Evasive Answer Raising No Material Issue

Adjustment Corp. v. Hollywood etc. Co. (1939) 35 Cal. App. 2d 566, 96 P.2d 161 , was an action by an assignee on a common count to recover for goods sold and delivered. Defendant answered, denying each and every allegation of the complaint, but admitting she had not paid all of her indebtedness to plaintiff's assignor. Plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings was granted and defendant appealed. Affirming, the court of appeal said that although it is true that the answer denied generally and specifically each and every allegation of the complaint and that it is the rule that a plaintiff is not entitled to a judgment on the pleadings if the answer denies and thereby presents an issue or issues as to the material allegations of the complaint, the answer in question nevertheless admitted that defendant had not paid all of her indebtedness to plaintiff's assignor. In other words, the complaint alleged facts showing an indebtedness due to plaintiff's assignor from defendant and that the amount was then due and owing to plaintiff, but defendant, although denying each and every allegation of the complaint, by her express admission had presented an evasive answer that failed to raise an issue on a material allegation of the complaint (35 Cal. App. 2d 566, 569). The court held that the motion was proper to test the sufficiency of the answer and that a judgment on the pleadings may be rendered if the answer is evasive, frivolous, or sham (35 Cal. App. 2d 566, 569-570) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] When Motion Should Be Granted

Boscus v. Bohlig (1916) 173 Cal. 687, 162 P. 100 , was an action to foreclose a mechanic's lien. The verified complaint alleged that (1) defendants owned the subject real property; (2) plaintiffs had entered into a written contract to furnish certain plumbing and gas-fitting work in a building on the property for the sum of $2,500 to be paid in stipulated installments; (3) the work had been fully performed by plaintiffs according to the contract; (4) defendants had accepted the work; (5) no part of the contract price (which was alleged to be the reasonable value of the work) had been paid; and (6) a claim of lien against the property had been filed within the time limited by statute. Defendants' answer failed to deny execution of the contract, plaintiffs' completion of all that was required of them, or defendants' acceptance of the work; and the denials it did contain were insufficient in form to raise any material issue of fact. Plaintiffs' motion for judgment on the pleadings was granted and defendants appealed.

Except for modifying the judgment with respect to the allowance of interest, the Supreme Court affirmed the judgment. It held that the allegations admitted by failure to deny established defendants' liability, that their denial of the reasonable value of the work was frivolous, and that their other denials were insufficient in form to raise an issue (173 Cal. 687, 689-690) .

Gribble v. Columbus Brewing Co. (1893) 100 Cal. 67, 34 P. 527 , was an action to foreclose a mortgage. Defendant corporation, through its president, had executed a note and mortgage of its premises to plaintiffs in consideration of a loan of $17,000 repayable in one year with interest at 10 percent payable monthly. The note contained an acceleration clause for nonpayment of interest and provided for payment of an attorney's fee in the event of foreclosure. The money was paid to the corporation, the mortgage was recorded, the corporation paid the monthly interest for three months but failed to pay in the fourth month, and the action to foreclose was commenced. Defendant's answer admitted all the allegations of the complaint except the amount claimed for attorney's fees and asserted that a specified lesser amount should be allowed. After commencement of the action, defendant was adjudicated insolvent and an assignee was appointed. The assignee was made a defendant in the action and filed an answer admitting the indebtedness but denying the president's authority to contract a loan for one year, to make interest payable monthly, to agree to acceleration, or to provide for payment of a counsel fee in the event of foreclosure on the grounds the corporate resolution authorizing the president to negotiate the loan at 10-percent interest authorized a five-year term and was silent as to when the interest would be paid, acceleration, and counsel fees. Plaintiffs' motion for judgment on the pleadings was granted and defendant assignee appealed. The Supreme Court affirmed on the grounds that execution of the note and mortgage was not ultra vires, that from the facts pleaded in the complaint it appeared the corporation ratified the acts of its president in negotiating the loan and hence estopped the corporation from denying his authority, and that the assignee's answer in admitting the indebtedness and failing to deny the ratification presented no defense to the action (100 Cal. 67, 71-74) .

Loveland v. Garner (1887) 74 Cal. 298, 15 P. 844 , was an action by a stockholder of a mining corporation against its directors to recover statutory penalties resulting from defendants' failure to have complied with certain provisions of then existing law. Only one denial in defendant's answer was direct and positive and it was of an immaterial allegation in the complaint. The rest of the denials were insufficient to raise any issue, and no new matter was set up as a defense. Plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings was granted and defendants appealed. In affirming the judgment, the Supreme Court said that it was settled practice that a judgment for plaintiff may be rendered on the pleadings when the material averments of a sufficient complaint are not denied by the answer (74 Cal. 298, 300) .

Felch v. Beaudry (1871) 40 Cal. 439 , was an action to recover on a promissory note. The answer failed to deny the material allegations of the complaint and set up a number of immaterial matters as defenses. Plaintiff's demurrer to the answer was overruled but plaintiff's later motion for judgment on the pleadings was granted and judgment was entered accordingly. Defendant's subsequent motion for leave to file an amended answer and to set aside the judgment was denied and defendant appealed. In affirming the judgment and order, the Supreme Court said that a plaintiff may move for judgment on the pleadings when defendant files an answer that (1) expressly admits the material facts stated in the complaint or fails to deny them; (2) is verified and contains denials that are literal merely, or conjunctive, evasive, or the like; and (3) insufficiently denies the material allegations of the complaint and sets forth new matter that is insufficient to bar or to defeat plaintiff's action (40 Cal. 439, 443) . The Court concluded that the answer disclosed no defense to plaintiff's action and that the trial court did not err in granting plaintiff's motion (40 Cal. 439, 445) .

Fitzgibbon v. Calvert (1870) 39 Cal. 261 , was an action on an undertaking executed by defendants to secure release of property levied on under a writ of attachment. Judgment was for plaintiff and defendants appealed. In affirming the judgment, the Supreme Court said that no material allegation of plaintiff's complaint was denied by defendants and that the substantive matter pleaded in the answer, even if proved as alleged, was no defense and that plaintiff would have been entitled to a judgment on the pleadings had a motion for it been made (39 Cal. 261).

The facts and procedural ground of Adjustment Corp. v. Hollywood Hardware & Paint Co. (1939) 35 Cal. App. 2d 566, 96 P.2d 161 , are discussed under § 71.130[3][b]. In Adjustment Corp., the court of appeal said that a plaintiff may recover judgment on the pleadings without the introduction of any evidence if the complaint states facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action and the answer interposed by defendant neither raises any material issue nor states a defense, that is, when the answer expressly or substantially admits or does not sufficiently deny all the material allegations of the complaint and sets up no new matter that is sufficient to bar or defeat the action (35 Cal. App. 2d 566, 569) .

Knoff v. City & County of San Francisco (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 184, 81 Cal. Rptr. 683 , was a taxpayer's suit for a writ of mandate to require that official action be taken addressed to the situation brought about by a former assessor's criminal misconduct in office as disclosed by a grand jury investigation. Defendants named were the city and county, its board of supervisors (as such and as the board of equalization), and the former assessor. The petition sufficiently alleged a cause of action. The answer pleaded admissions, denials, other matters, and 12 separate affirmative defenses, none of which negated the material allegations of the petition. Defendants' motion to strike various portions of the petition was denied and their general demurrer was overruled. The trial court stated that in its view, the material allegations of the petition had been admitted by the answering defendants and it entered judgment on the pleadings ordering issuance of a peremptory writ of mandate as prayed. In affirming this judgment, the court of appeal said that the trial court determined in the judgment that the answer to the petition for writ of mandate raised only questions of law, or put in issue immaterial statements not affecting the substantial rights of the parties or the gravamen of the action, and that it agreed with that determination (1 Cal. App. 3d 184, 199-200). The court concluded that the answer therefore stated no defense to the action and that the trial court, therefore, properly entered judgment on the pleadings (1 Cal. App. 3d 184, 200) .

[b] Evasive Answer Raising No Material Issue

Janeway & Carpender v. Long Beach Co. (1922) 190 Cal. 150, 211 P. 6 , was an action to recover the balance due on three sales contracts, each alleged in a separate count of the complaint. Each count alleged, among other things, that on a specified date defendant "made, executed and delivered" to plaintiff its contract for goods and that plaintiff sold and delivered the goods to defendant. Defendant denied that it "made, executed and delivered" the contracts. Plaintiffs' motion for judgment on the pleadings was granted and defendant appealed. In affirming the judgment, the Supreme Court held the foregoing denial insufficient. It said that under this denial defendant may have executed and delivered the contracts or it may have made and executed them, in which case the denial would be true and yet defendant would be liable. By connecting the words together with the conjunction "and," it limited its denial to a simple statement that it did not do all three of the things, leaving an admission that it did any two of them. The Court held that this amounted to an admission that it executed the contract, which was all that was necessary to make it liable (190 Cal. 150, 153) . The Court further held that defendant's attempted denials of other material allegations of the complaint were, in effect, negatives pregnant and insufficient to raise a triable issue (190 Cal. 150, 153-154) .

The facts and procedural background of Boscus v. Bohlig (1916) 173 Cal. 687, 162 P. 100 , are discussed under § 71.130[4][a]. In Boscus, the defendants additionally denied that plaintiffs had performed all the terms and conditions of the agreement. In affirming judgment on the pleadings for plaintiff as modified, the Supreme Court held this denial "utterly insufficient," that it amounted to an admission that substantially all of the terms and conditions of the agreement had been duly met and executed (173 Cal. 687, 690) .

See also Felch v. Beaudry (1871) 40 Cal. 439, 443 , discussed under § 71.130[4][a], and Kennedy v. Rosecrans Gardens, Inc. (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 87, 89, 249 P.2d 593 (denial that plaintiff had been damaged in sum of $3, 500 as alleged in complaint as admission that plaintiff had suffered substantial damage).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
B. Motions For Judgment on The Pleadings
1. Motion By Plaintiff

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.131

§ 71.131 Supporting Motion by Plaintiff for Judgment on Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(A)]--Complaint States a Cause of Action and Answer Does Not Deny Material Allegations of Complaint and Alleges No Affirmative Defense--Denial on Information and Belief of Matters Within Defendant's Presumptive Knowledge

[1] FORM Supporting Motion by Plaintiff for Judgment on Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(A)]--Complaint States a Cause of Action and Answer Does Not Deny Material Allegations of Complaint and Alleges No Affirmative Defense--Denial on Information and Belief of Matters Within Defendant's Presumptive Knowledge

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings (see § 71.130).]

PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE THE DEFENDANT HAS DENIED MATERIAL ALLEGATIONS OF THE COMPLAINT ON INFORMATION AND BELIEF WHEN THE MATTERS ARE PRESUMPTIVELY WITHIN THE DEFENDANT'S KNOWLEDGE.

Denial on Information and Belief of Matters Presumptively Known. A denial on information and belief of material allegations of a complaint that are presumably within defendant's knowledge raises no issue of fact and subjects the answer to a motion by plaintiff for judgment on the pleadings (Boscus v. Bohlig (1916) 173 Cal. 687, 689-690, 162 P. 100 ; Dobbins v. Hardister (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 787, 791, 51 Cal. Rptr. 866).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in support of a plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings when defendant's denials are on information and belief and are of matters presumptively within defendant's knowledge, or are matters of public record.

For a form of memoranda in support of a plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings on the ground that the matters denied for lack of information or belief are within the defendant's presumptive knowledge, see § 71.132

The foregoing memorandum should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings [see § 71.130]. They may also be adapted for use in an appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, if the action is for breach of contract and the defendant in the answer denied on information and belief that there was a contract with plaintiff, that plaintiff performed its part of the agreement, and that a certain amount of money became due under the agreement to plaintiff and that no part of it has been paid, counsel should argue that plaintiff is entitled to judgment on the pleadings on the ground that these matters are presumptively within the knowledge of defendant [see Zany v. Rawhide Gold Min. Co. (1911) 15 Cal. App. 373, 375-376, 114 P. 1026 ; see also Dobbins v. Hardister (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 787, 795, 51 Cal. Rptr. 866 , discussed under § 71.131[3][a]].

[b] Applicability of Rule to Corporations and Associations

The rule illustrated in this form (a defendant's denial on information and belief of material facts alleged in a complaint, which facts are presumably within defendant's knowledge, raises no issue of fact and constitutes an admission of the allegation) applies to corporations and their officers [Loveland v. Garner (1887) 74 Cal. 298, 300, 15 P. 844] and to unincorporated associations [Oliver v. Swiss Club Tell (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 528, 540, 35 Cal. Rptr. 324] , as well as to individuals.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in § 71.134 may be used to oppose the general demurrer to an answer supported by the foregoing memorandum.

See also §§ 71.20[2], 71.100[2], 71.130[2], and 71.150[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Denial of Information and Belief of Matters Presumptively Known

The facts and procedural background of Boscus v. Bohlig (1916) 173 Cal. 687, 162 P. 100 , are discussed in § 71.130[4][a]. In Boscus, defendants denied on information and belief that the reasonable value of the work was $2, 500 (which was the contract price) or any other sum and that plaintiffs had duly kept and performed all the terms of their agreement. The Supreme Court, in affirming the judgment as modified, held that the denial on information and belief of the reasonable value of the work was frivolous and that the other denials on information and belief were insufficient. Citing Gribble v. Columbus Brewing Co. (1893) 100 Cal. 67, 34 P. 527 [discussed in § 71.130[4][a]], the Court said that a positive denial is necessary when the pleader has knowledge, or means of acquiring knowledge, which might enable him or her to traverse or to admit the unequivocal averments in the complaint, and that a plaintiff must admit or deny facts alleged by plaintiff or must show how it happens that he or she is destitute of such knowledge concerning such facts (173 Cal. 687, 689-690) .

Dobbins v. Hardister (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 787, 51 Cal. Rptr. 866 , was an action to recover the reasonable value of goods sold and delivered. The complaint set forth two counts, the first on a quantum valebant and the second on an open book account. Defendant's answer denied the allegations of both counts for lack of information and belief. Plaintiffs' general demurrer to the answer was overruled but their subsequent motion for judgment on the pleadings was granted. The ground of the demurrer and motion was that the matters denied were presumptively within defendant's knowledge and, hence, should have been admitted or denied positively (242 Cal. App. 2d 787, 790-791) . Defendant appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment. The ground for the court's reversal was that defendant should have been granted leave to amend his answer. However, the court said that if a matter alleged in the complaint is within the defendant's actual knowledge or by its nature is presumed to be within his knowledge, or if the defendant has the means of ascertaining whether or not it is true, a denial on information and belief or for lack of either will be deemed sham and evasive and may be stricken out or disregarded (242 Cal. App. 2d 787, 791) and that, consistent with this rule, if the answer otherwise fails to put in issue the material allegations of the complaint, judgment may be rendered for plaintiff and entered on the pleadings (242 Cal. App. 2d 787, 792) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Denial on Information and Belief of Matters Presumptively Known

The facts and procedural background of Loveland v. Garner (1887) 74 Cal. 298, 15 P. 844 , are discussed in § 71.130[4][a]. In Loveland, other than one positive and direct denial of an immaterial allegation in the complaint, defendants' answer denied plaintiff's allegations on information and belief. All the matters denied on information and belief were presumably matters within defendants' knowledge. Plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings was granted and defendants appealed. In affirming the judgment, the Supreme Court said that it is settled practice that a judgment for plaintiff may be rendered on the pleadings when the material averments of a sufficient complaint are not denied by the answer, that it is equally well settled that if the facts alleged in the complaint are presumably within defendant's knowledge defendant must answer positively, and that a denial on information and belief in such case will be treated as an evasion (74 Cal. 298, 300) .

See also Dietlin v. General American Life Ins. Co. (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 336, 349, 49 P.2d 570 (allegation of verified complaint cannot be controverted on information and belief when alleged fact is presumably within defendant's knowledge or when defendant has means of ascertaining whether or not it is true); Goldwater v. Oltman (1930) 210 Cal. 408, 425, 292 P. 624 (denial on information and belief of delivery of note sued on as raising no issue since matter was presumptively within defendants' knowledge and denial on information and belief of allegation that plaintiff had filed fictitious business name certificate as presenting no triable issue since whether plaintiff had filed certificate was matter of public record); Mulcahy v. Buckley (1893) 100 Cal. 484, 489, 35 P. 144 (defendant as not permitted to controvert allegation of verified complaint on information and belief when alleged fact is presumably within defendant's knowledge or defendant has means of ascertaining whether it is true).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
B. Motions For Judgment on The Pleadings
1. Motion By Plaintiff

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.132

§ 71.132 Supporting Motion by Plaintiff for Judgment on Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(A)]--Complaint States a Cause of Action and Answer Does Not Deny Material Allegation of Complaint and Alleges No Affirmative Defense--Matters Denied for Lack of Information or Belief Within Defendant's Presumptive Knowledge

[1] FORM Supporting Motion by Plaintiff for Judgment on Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(A)]--Complaint States a Cause of Action and Answer Does Not Deny Material Allegation of Complaint and Alleges No Affirmative Defense--Matters Denied for Lack of Information or Belief Within Defendant's Presumptive Knowledge

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings (see § 71.130).]

PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE DEFENDANT HAS DENIED MATERIAL ALLEGATIONS OF THE COMPLAINT FOR LACK OF INFORMATION OR BELIEF WHEN THE MATTERS ARE PRESUMPTIVELY WITHIN THE DEFENDANT'S KNOWLEDGE.

Denial for Lack of Information or Belief of Matters Presumptively Known. A denial for lack of information or belief of material allegations of a complaint that are presumably within a defendant's knowledge raises no issue of fact and subjects the answer to a plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings (Raphael Weill & Co. v. Crittenden (1903) 139 Cal. 488, 489-490, 73 P. 238 ; Dobbins v. Hardister (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 787, 790, 51 Cal. Rptr. 866).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in support of a plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings when the defendant's denials are for lack of information or belief and are of matters presumptively within the defendant's knowledge, or are matters of public record.

For a form of memoranda in support of a plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings on the ground that the matters denied on (rather than lack of) information or belief are within the defendant's presumptive knowledge, see § 71.131.

The foregoing memorandum should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings [see § 71.130]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, if the plaintiff's action is one based on common counts and the defendant's answer denies on lack of information and belief that goods were sold and delivered by plaintiff to defendant and that defendant made any payments to the plaintiff for such goods, counsel would argue that these matters are presumptively within defendant's knowledge, that defendant should have positively admitted or denied them, that defendant has failed to do so, and therefore plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings should be granted [see Dobbins v. Hardister (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 787, 794, 51 Cal. Rptr. 866 , discussed under § 71.132[3][a]].

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in § 71.134 may be used to oppose the general demurrer to an answer supported by the foregoing memorandum.

See also §§ 71.20[2], 71.100[2], 71.130[2], and 71.150[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Denial for Lack of Information or Belief of Matters Presumptively Known

Raphael Weill & Co. v. Crittenden (1903) 139 Cal. 488, 73 P. 238 , was an action on a common count for goods sold and delivered. Plaintiff in the first paragraph of its complaint alleged its status as a California corporation and its principal place of business and in the second paragraph set forth the common count. Defendant in his answer alleged he had no information or belief on the subject sufficient to enable him to answer the above two paragraphs and placing his denial on that ground denied them. Plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings was granted and defendant appealed. In affirming the judgment, the Supreme Court said that whether or not plaintiff had sold and delivered the property mentioned in the complaint to defendant was a matter presumably within defendant's knowledge and that defendant's denial was therefore insufficient and raised no issue (139 Cal. 488, 489-490) . (With respect to the denial of plaintiff's corporate capacity, the Court said that it need not consider the form of the denial since, in an action to recover the price of goods purchased and received by defendant from plaintiff, defendant is not in a position to question plaintiff's corporate capacity (139 Cal. 488, 490) .)

The facts and procedural background of Dobbins v. Hardster (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 787, 51 Cal. Rptr. 866 , are discussed in § 71.131[3][a]. In Dobbins, although it reversed the judgment on the ground defendant should have been granted leave to amend his answer, the court of appeal said that if a matter is within the defendant's actual knowledge or by its nature is presumed to be within his knowledge, or if the defendant has the means of ascertaining whether or not it is true, a denial on information and belief or for lack of either will be deemed sham and evasive and may be stricken out or disregarded (242 Cal. App. 2d 787, 791) and that, consistent with this rule, if the answer fails otherwise to put in issue the material allegations of the complaint, judgment may be rendered and entered on the pleadings (242 Cal. App. 2d 787, 792) .

Defendant sought to distinguish Raphael Weill & Co. v. Crittenden (1903) 139 Cal. 488, 73 P. 238 , discussed above, on the ground, among others, that that case was over 60 years old. The Court acknowledged that Crittenden was not a recent decision but pointed out that the principle of law stated in it, that denials cannot be made on information and belief as to matters presumptively within the defendant's knowledge, had been stated and applied in a number of more recent decisions that it cited (242 Cal. App. 2d 787, 792) and added that, in any event, being a decision of the Supreme Court, Crittenden was, under the doctrine of stare decisis, binding on the lower courts and had to be followed by it (242 Cal. App. 2d 787, 792-793) . The court in Dobbins also explained that if defendant, when he was served with the complaint, was actually ignorant of the items of the account or of the payments, if any, made for such items, it was his duty to become informed before he filed his answer since these were material facts that he should have known and that, since the complaint was framed in the form of common counts, defendant could have demanded a bill of particulars under Code Civ. Proc. § 454 requiring plaintiffs to furnish him with the details regarding the items charged against him (242 Cal. App. 2d 787, 794) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Denial for Lack of Information or Belief of Matters Presumptively Known

The facts and procedural background of Gribble v. Columbus Brewing Co. (1893) 100 Cal. 67, 34 P. 527 , are discussed in § 71.130[4][a]. In Gribble, the insolvent corporation's assignee also denied for lack of information or belief the allegation in the complaint that certain items of property attached to the building were fixtures necessary for the conduct of the business. In affirming judgment on the pleadings for plaintiffs, the Supreme Court held that this denial was insufficient on the ground that defendant, as assignee in insolvency, must be presumed to have been in possession of the property and to have known whether or not the appliances were so attached, and hence the denial should have been positive in form (100 Cal. 67, 75) .

Le Breton v. Stanley Contracting Co. (1911) 15 Cal. App. 429, 114 P. 1028 , was an action by the receiver of a defunct bank against the makers of a note. Defendant's answer denied only those allegations of the complaint with reference to the court's order adjudicating the bank to be insolvent and appointing plaintiff as its receiver, and these denials were based on lack of information or belief. No attempt was made to deny due execution of the note or the amount of the indebtedness due on it. Defendants also attempted to allege an affirmative defense that was held to be insufficient (15 Cal. App. 429, 432-433) . Plaintiff's general demurrer to the answer was sustained and its concurrent motion for judgment on the pleadings was granted. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. With respect to the denials mentioned above, the court said that the truth of the allegations of the complaint with references to the order adjudicating the bank insolvent and appointing plaintiff as its receiver could have been readily ascertained by defendants from an inspection of the court records; therefore, defendants' denials of these allegations for lack of information or belief were wholly insufficient (15 Cal. App. 429, 433) . The court added that denials in this form, with knowledge or means of knowledge as to the truth or falsity of the allegation attempted to be denied, are never permissible, that they may be disregarded by the court, and that if the answer fails otherwise to put in issue the material allegations of the complaint, judgment may be rendered for plaintiff and entered on the pleadings (15 Cal. App. 429, 434) .

See also Mullally v. Townsend (1897) 119 Cal. 47, 53-54, 50 P. 1066 (denial for lack of information sufficient to form belief of matters of public record as impermissible); Mulcahy v. Buckley (1893) 100 Cal. 484, 487, 35 P. 144 (denial for lack of information and belief as not permitted when defendant may be presumed to know, or when he or she is aware before answering, that he or she has the means of ascertaining whether or not such allegation is true).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
B. Motions For Judgment on The Pleadings
1. Motion By Plaintiff

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.133

§ 71.133 Supporting Motion by Plaintiff for Judgment on Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(A)]--Complaint States a Cause of Action and Answer Does Not Deny Material Allegation of Complaint and Alleges No Affirmative Defense--Denial of Legal Conclusion Only as Insufficient

[1] FORM Supporting Motion by Plaintiff for Judgment on Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(A)]--Complaint States a Cause of Action and Answer Does Not Deny Material Allegation of Complaint and Alleges No Affirmative Defense--Denial of Legal Conclusion Only as Insufficient

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings (see § 71.130).]

PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE THE ANSWER DENIES ONLY A LEGAL CONCLUSION SET FORTH IN THE COMPLAINT BUT NOT THE FACTS ALLEGED FROM WHICH THE LEGAL CONCLUSION FOLLOWS.

Denial of Legal Conclusion Only. An answer that denies only a legal conclusion alleged in the complaint and not the facts alleged that lead to that conclusion fails to raise any material issue of fact (Morel v. Morel (1928) 203 Cal. 417, 419, 164 P. 760).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in support of a plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings when defendant's answer fails to deny the material factual allegations of the complaint but denies only one or more legal conclusions alleged that flow from the facts alleged.

The foregoing memorandum should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings [see § 71.130]. They may also be adapted for use in an appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, if the defendant's answer denies only the allegation that plaintiff owns certain real property, counsel should argue that since the question of ownership is a legal conclusion, and defendant only denies that conclusion and not the facts on which the conclusion is based, the answer fails to raise any material issue of fact and the plaintiff's motion should therefore be granted [see Morel v. Morel (1928) 203 Cal. 417, 419, 164 P. 760 , discussed under § 71.133[3][a]].

See also §§ 71.20[2], 71.100[2], 71.130[2], and 71.150[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Denial of Legal Conclusion Only

Morel v. Morel (1928) 203 Cal. 417, 164 P. 760 , was an action to quiet title to real property. Plaintiff, in her second amended complaint, alleged that she was the owner and was entitled to possession of the property and set forth in detail her chain of title. She also set forth with like detail the sources of the defendant's claim of an estate or interest in the property and alleged that his claims were false, fictitious, and fraudulent. Defendant in his answer merely denied that plaintiff was the owner or entitled to possession of the real property described. Plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings was granted and defendant appealed from the subsequent judgment for plaintiff. He claimed his denial of plaintiff's ownership of the property raised a sufficient issue to require denial of the motion for judgment on the pleadings.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment. The trial court did not err in granting the motion, the Court held, because defendant's denial could not be held sufficient to present an issue in view of the fact that plaintiff's second amended complaint set forth in detail the probative facts on which plaintiff's title to ownership were based and since defendant failed to deny these allegations his denial was merely of a legal conclusion (203 Cal. 417, 419) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
B. Motions For Judgment on The Pleadings
1. Motion By Plaintiff

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.134

§ 71.134 Opposing Motion by Plaintiff for Judgment on the Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(A)]--Answer Raises Material Issue of Fact or Defense--General Form

[1] FORM Opposing Motion by Plaintiff for Judgment on the Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(A)]--Answer Raises Material Issue of Fact or Defense--General Form

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name] Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM IN OPPOSITION TO vs.	)	PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR JUDGMENT ON THE _____ [name], Defendant.	)	PLEADINGS
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE THE ANSWER RAISES A MATERIAL ISSUE OF FACT AND/OR SETS UP A DEFENSE.

A. Material Issue of Fact or Defense Raised. A motion by plaintiff for judgment on the pleadings is in the nature of a general demurrer to the answer and must be denied if the answer raises a material issue of fact or sets up a defense ( MacIsaac v. Pozzo (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 809, 812-813, 161 P.2d 449 ; Barasch v. Epstein (1957) 147 Cal. App. 2d 439, 440, 442-443, 305 P.2d 283).

[Optional] B. Truth of Answer Assumed. In ruling on a motion by plaintiff for judgment on the pleadings, the trial court must treat all of defendant's allegations as true (MacIsaac v. Pozzo (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 809, 813, 161 P.2d 449 ; Union Oil Co. v. Moesch (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 72, 78, 151 Cal. Rptr. 517).

[Optional] C. Motion Not Available in Lieu of Special Demurrer. A motion for judgment on the pleadings does not lie to challenge defects in a pleading subject to special demurrer (Barasch v. Epstein (1957) 147 Cal. App. 2d 439, 442, 305 P.2d 283).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a motion by plaintiff for judgment on the pleadings when the answer raises material issues of fact or states a defense.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings supported by the memorandum set out in §§ 71.130 -71.133.

Optional Paragraph C is for use only when the motion is based on a ground of special demurrer other than lack of subject matter jurisdiction. Lack of subject matter jurisdiction is expressly authorized as a ground for a defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(B)(i)].

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, if plaintiff claims that its motion for judgment on the pleadings should be granted on the ground that certain facts averred in the answer are false, counsel should argue that the trial court must treat all of defendant's allegations as true for the purpose of evaluating a motion for judgment on the pleadings, and demonstrate how the specific facts alleged create issues with regard to the material allegations of the complaint [see MacIsaac v. Pozzo (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 809, 813, 161 P.2d 449 , discussed under § 71.134[3][a]].

With appropriate modifications, the foregoing memorandum may be used in opposition to a general demurrer to an answer to a complaint or cross complaint.

In addition to the memoranda of points and authorities in the foregoing form, in an appropriate case memoranda opposing a general demurrer to an answer may be modified for use in opposing a plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings [see pt. I, subpt. B].

See also § 71.20[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Material Issue of Fact or Defense Raised

MacIsaac v. Pozzo (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 809, 161 P.2d 449 , was an action for declaratory relief arising out of a joint venture agreement for the construction of a housing project in which the profits were to be divided equally between the parties and a second joint venture agreement between the same parties that provided that certain facilities of the original joint venture should be used in the performance of a job for the Utah Fuel Company, profits to be divided 85 percent to plaintiffs and 15 percent to defendants. It was alleged that (1) partial payments made on account of the Utah Fuel job were divided on the 85 percent/15 percent basis; (2) defendants prevented the Utah Fuel Company from settling the amount of the balance owing to plaintiffs and defendants until the respective rights of plaintiffs and defendants shall have been determined; (3) an actual controversy existed between the parties; (4) defendants contended that the second joint venture agreement was invalid and not enforceable and that they were entitled to receive one half of the moneys theretofore paid and which might thereafter be paid; and (5) plaintiffs contended that the second joint venture agreement was an enforceable contract and that plaintiffs were entitled to receive the payments provided for in the contract. Defendants filed an answer in which they alleged facts showing that plaintiffs had perpetrated a fraud on defendants in inducing them to enter into the second joint venture agreement and showing that the work performed under this agreement was actually obtained by agents of the first joint venture and was work belonging to that venture. They also filed a cross complaint.

When the case came on for trial, plaintiffs moved for judgment on the pleadings on the ground the cross complaint did not state any cause of action against plaintiffs and that the answer to the complaint raised no issue of law whatever. The motion was granted and defendants' request for leave to amend their answer to conform with the trial court's expressed opinion regarding the pleadings was denied.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment with directions to grant defendants leave to amend their pleadings. The Court held that, although the pleadings were uncertain in specified respects, the answer raised material issues of fact requiring determination and that the cross complaint sufficiently alleged facts appropriate to an action for rescission of the second joint venture agreement or for damages for fraud, as well as facts entitling defendants to an accounting (26 Cal. 2d 809, 813-814) . With respect to the sufficiency of the answer, the Court said that a motion by plaintiff for judgment on the pleadings is in the nature of a general demurrer and the motion must be denied if the defendant's pleadings raise a material issue or set up affirmative matter constituting a defense (26 Cal. 2d 809, 812-813) .

Barasch v. Epstein (1957) 147 Cal. App. 2d 439, 305 P.2d 283 , was an action to recover money. The complaint alleged that (1) defendant was in effect the alter ego of a named corporation and its president; (2) he was authorized to draw checks on the corporation's funds; (3) on August 28, 1950, plaintiff was the owner and payee of $18,000 worth of promissory notes executed by the corporation and the owner of nine shares of the corporation's stock; (4) on that date plaintiff and defendant agreed in writing that plaintiff would sell the notes to defendant for $900 cash and Israeli pounds to be paid in installments on specified future dates; and (5) on defendant's failure to make the specified future payments, the agreement with respect to the future payments, was modified by a partly oral, partly written agreement by which it was agreed that in lieu of the Israeli pounds nine checks of 1,000 Israeli pounds each, payable on demand, would be drawn in favor of plaintiff by the corporation on its funds on deposit in a bank in Israel. The complaint further alleged that (1) defendant would guarantee in writing that the checks would equal $12,000 in American dollars; (2) defendant would advance to plaintiff $4, 500 against the $12,000 and plaintiff would give him credit for an additional $500; (3) the $4, 500 limit was paid but the checks were not issued; (4) plaintiff had performed his part of the agreement; and (5) there was then owing and unpaid the sum of $7,000 with interest. Defendant filed an answer admitting and denying various allegations of the complaint, setting up a special defense, and asserting a counterclaim (counterclaims have since been abolished; see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.80). Plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings was granted and defendant appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment. The court concluded that the answer explicitly traversed various material allegations of the complaint and held the trial court erred in granting the motion (147 Cal. App. 2d 439, 440) . The court said that (1) a plaintiff may recover judgment on a motion for judgment on the pleadings only if the complaint states facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action and the answer neither raises a material issue nor states a defense (147 Cal. App. 2d 439, 440) ; (2) a motion by a plaintiff for judgment on the pleadings is in the nature of a general demurrer to the answer and must be denied if the answer raises a material issue or sets up affirmative matter constituting a defense (147 Cal. App. 2d 439, 442) ; and (3) when the answer, fairly construed, suggests that the defendant may have a good defense, a motion for judgment on the pleadings should not be granted (147 Cal. App. 2d 439, 443) .

[b] Truth of Answer Assumed

The facts and procedural background of MacIsaac v. Pozzo (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 809, 161 P.2d 449 , are discussed under § 71.134[3][a]. In MacIsaac, in reversing the judgment on the pleadings for plaintiff with directions to grant defendants leave to amend their pleadings (answer and cross complaint), the Supreme Court, with respect to the answer, said that, for the purpose of ruling on plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings, the trial court must treat all of defendant's allegations as being true, and because the moving party admits the untruth of his own allegations insofar as they have been controverted, all such averments must be disregarded whether there is a direct and specific denial or an indirect denial by virtue of affirmative allegations of a contrary state of facts (26 Cal. 2d 809, 813) .

Union Oil Co. v. Moesch (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 72, 151 Cal. Rptr. 517 , was an unlawful detainer proceeding by the oil company against a gasoline service station operator. The complaint alleged a lease agreement between plaintiff as lessor and defendant as lessee executed on July 31, 1973, for real property to be used by defendant to operate a gasoline service station. The lease provided, "The term of the Lease commences July 31, 1973, and terminates July 30, 1976. The Lease ends automatically and without notice on the termination date. If the Lessee remains in possession of the Station after the termination date with Union's expressed or implied consent, Lessee is a tenant from month to month on the terms and conditions specified herein. ..." The complaint further alleged that defendant entered into possession on or about July 31, 1973, that pursuant to the above-quoted language he became a month-to-month tenant on July 31, 1976, that on January 6, 1977, plaintiff gave defendant notice it was terminating the lease effective March 16, 1977, that the termination was for good cause and legitimate business reasons, and that although the lease was duly terminated on March 16, 1977, defendant refused to vacate and to surrender possession of the premises. Defendant's first amended answer denied that there was good cause for termination of the lease and affirmatively alleged (1) the existence of a franchise agreement between plaintiff and defendant (consisting of the lease and a separate "Retail Dealer Gasoline Storage and Purchase Agreement"); (2) the applicability of Bus. & Prof. Code § 20999.1 (prohibiting gasoline franchiser from terminating, cancelling, or refusing to renew existing franchise without good cause); and (3) as required by that code section, the lack of good cause to terminate the lease. It also contained other affirmative defenses. Plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings, premised in part on the theory that the factual issue of good cause was immaterial because Bus. & Prof. Code § 20999.1 was enacted after the instant leasehold was created and hence could not be constitutionally applied, was granted, and defendant appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment. The court pointed out that the lease expired prior to the enactment of Bus. & Prof. Code § 20999.1, that plaintiff had thereafter given its approval to a month-to-month tenancy, and that the statute could, therefore, constitutionally be applied (88 Cal. App. 3d 72, 77-78) . The court said that in ruling on a motion by plaintiff for judgment on the pleadings the trial court is obliged to accept as true allegations of material fact contained in defendant's answer that disclose the possibility of an affirmative defense (88 Cal. App. 3d 72, 78) .

[c] Motion Not Available in Lieu of Special Demurrer

The facts and procedural background of Barasch v. Epstein (1957) 147 Cal. App. 2d 439, 305 P.2d 283 , are discussed under § 71.134[3][a]. In Barasch, in reversing the judgment on the pleadings for plaintiff, the court of appeal said that a motion for judgment on the pleadings does not operate as a special demurrer and that uncertainty and ambiguities in a complaint must be specifically raised by proper procedure (147 Cal. App. 2d 439, 442) , that is, by demurrer [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(f), 430.30(a)].

Subsequent to these cases, one ground of special demurrer, lack of subject matter jurisdiction, has been authorized by statute as a ground for a motion for judgment on the pleadings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(B)(i)].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Material Issue of Fact or Defense Raised

The facts and procedural background of Union Oil Co. v. Moesch (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 72, 151 Cal. Rptr. 517 , are discussed under § 71.134[3][b]. In Union Oil Co., in reversing the judgment on the pleadings for plaintiff, the court held that the trial court was obliged to accept as true that portion of the answer alleging as a material fact that plaintiff's termination of the lease was without good cause, and that because the pleadings thus disclosed the possibility of an affirmative defense under Bus. & Prof. Code § 20999.1, it was error for the trial court to have granted the motion (88 Cal. App. 3d 72, 78) .

Amacorp Indus. Leasing Co. v. Robert C. Young Associates, Inc. (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 724, 47 Cal. Rptr. 294 , was an action for money allegedly due on a lease contract of an offset duplicating press. Defendant in its answer denied every allegation of the complaint, admitting only the allegation as to the amount of money defendant had paid on the contract. Defendant also set up an affirmative defense in the answer and filed a cross complaint against plaintiff, adding as a new cross defendant a third party that it was alleged had represented itself to defendant as plaintiff's parent corporation. The cross complaint sought rescission of the lease contract and damages for breach of warranty. Plaintiff filed an answer to the cross complaint, but the third-party cross defendant demurred to it both generally and specially. The demurrer was sustained with leave to amend. Defendant timely served the amended cross complaint on both plaintiff and the third-party cross defendant but did not timely file it. Plaintiff filed an answer to the amended cross complaint but the third-party cross defendant demurred to it generally and moved to strike it on the ground it was not timely filed. The demurrer was sustained without leave to amend and the motion to strike was granted. Plaintiff then moved for judgment on the pleadings and the motion was granted. Defendant appealed from both judgments.

The court of appeal held that the cross complaint stated a cause of action for breach of warranty (237 Cal. App. 2d 724, 728) and that under the circumstances the trial court erred in granting the motion to strike (237 Cal. App. 2d 724, 729-730) . With respect to the judgment on the pleadings, the court said the effect of such a judgment is the same as a dismissal after ruling on a general demurrer, that the ruling in question determined that the answer constituted no defense and the amended cross complaint stated no cause of action. The court held that the cross complaint stated a cause of action against plaintiff as well as against the third-party cross defendant and that since the answer to the complaint was essentially the same as the amended cross complaint it was clear that a valid defense to plaintiff's action was stated. The court reversed the judgment with directions to overrule the third-party cross defendant's demurrer, to deny its motion to strike, and to deny plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings (237 Cal. App. 2d 724, 730) .

See also Richter v. United Cal. Theatres, Inc. (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 126, 128, 1 Cal. Rptr. 895 (it is well settled that if the answer puts in issue a material allegation or sets up affirmative matter constituting a defense, a motion for judgment on the pleadings made by the plaintiff should not be granted).

[b] Truth of Answer Assumed

The facts and procedural background of Barasch v. Epstein (1957) 147 Cal. App. 2d 439, 305 P.2d 283 , are discussed under § 71.134[3][a]. In Barasch, in reversing the judgment on the pleadings for plaintiff, the court of appeal said that on such a motion the moving party admits the untruth of his or her own allegations insofar as they have been controverted, and all such averments must be disregarded whether there is a direct and specific denial or an indirect denial by virtue of affirmative allegations of a contrary state of facts, and that every allegation affirmatively pleaded in the answer must be deemed true (147 Cal. App. 2d 439, 443) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
B. Motions For Judgment on The Pleadings
1. Motion By Plaintiff

7A-71 California Points & Authorities §§ 71.135-71.149

[Reserved]

§§ 71.135[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
B. Motions For Judgment on The Pleadings
2. Motion By Defendant

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.150

§ 71.150 Supporting Motion by Defendant for Judgment on the Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(B)]--General Form

[1] FORM Supporting Motion by Defendant for Judgment on the Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(B)]--General Form

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF DEFEND-
_____ [name] Plaintiff,	)	ANT'S MOTION FOR JUDGMENT ON THE vs.	)	PLEADINGS
_____ [name], Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM THE FACE OF THE COMPLAINT THAT THE PLEADING FAILS TO STATE FACTS SUFFICIENT TO CONSTITUTE A CAUSE OF ACTION.

[EITHER]

A. Lack of Subject Matter Jurisdiction. A motion for judgment on the pleadings may be made on the ground that the court has no subject matter jurisdiction of the cause of action alleged in the complaint (Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(B)(i)). _____ [Specify why court lacks subject matter jurisdiction, providing authority].

[OR]

A. Objection to Complaint by Motion for Judgment on Pleadings. A defendant may move for judgment on the pleadings on the ground that the complaint fails to state a legally cognizable cause of action against him or her (Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(B)(ii); see also (IMO Development Corp. v. Dow Corning Corp. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 451, 457, 185 Cal. Rptr. 341 ; see also Pierson v. Sharp Memorial Hospital, Inc. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 340, 343, 264 Cal. Rptr. 673).

[CONTINUE]

[Optional] B. Motion Directed to Portion of Complaint. A motion by defendant for judgment on the pleadings may be directed to one or more counts or causes of action of a multiple count or multiple cause of action complaint that fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action for recovery of the relief sought (Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(2)(A); see also Stencel Aero Eng'r Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 978, 988, 128 Cal. Rptr. 691).

C. Insufficiency Is Established by Facts Appearing on Face of Complaint. A motion for judgment on the pleadings has the same basic purpose and effect as a general demurrer, and like a demurrer is confined to the face of the pleading under attack (City of Fresno v. California Highway Com. (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 687, 692, 173 Cal. Rptr. 671).

[Optional] D. Essential Allegation Omitted. A motion for judgment on the pleadings may properly be granted if an essential allegation is absent (Fraker v. Sentry Life Ins. Co. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 276, 285-286, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1144).

[Optional] E. No Legal Duty Alleged. A complaint for damages fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action when it fails to set forth facts showing a legal duty owed by defendant (see McCarthy v. Frost (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 872, 874, 109 Cal. Rptr. 470), including when a state law which would otherwise impose a legal duty is inapplicable (Smiley v. Citibank (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 138, 165, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 441, 900 P.2d 690).

[Optional] F. Action Barred by Limitations. Judgment on the pleadings is proper if a complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action because the complaint shows on its face, or it appears from judicially noticed matter, that the action sued on is barred by the statute of limitations and this fact has been pleaded in the answer as an affirmative defense (see Wrightson v. Dougherty (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 257, 262, 264-265, 54 P.2d 13).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a pretrial motion by defendant for judgment on the pleadings when the court lacks subject matter jurisdiction of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(B)(i)] or the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(B)(ii)].

The form is for use when the insufficiency of the complaint appears on the face of the pleading. The court may also, however, consider matters subject to judicial notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(d); see also Hughes v. Western MacArthur Co. (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 951, 955, 237 Cal. Rptr. 738] . For a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings based on facts subject to judicial notice, see § 71.151. If the motion is based on an admission, see § 71.152.

Because the motion raises the same objection as a general demurrer to the pleading [Lehto v. City of Oxnard (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 285, 287, 217 Cal. Rptr. 450 , criticized on other grounds in Doggett v. U.S. (9th Cir. 1989) 875 F.2d 684, 690 n.4], counsel may adapt the memorandum provided in §§ 71.20-71.27 for use in support of a defendant's general demurrer to a complaint, for use in a memoranda supporting a motion for judgment on the pleadings.

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used in support of a motion by a cross defendant against a cross complainant for judgment on the pleadings or to support a general demurrer to either a complaint or a cross complaint.

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law raised.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of notice of motion for judgment on the pleadings, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings, § 206.149, in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in §§ 71.153 -71.156 may be used to oppose the motion supported by these points and authorities. In addition, the memorandum set out in §§ 71.30 -71.43, opposing a general demurrer to a complaint, may be modified for use in opposing the motion supported by the foregoing memorandum.

See also § 71.20[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Objection to Complaint by Motion for Judgment on Pleadings

Pierson v. Sharp Memorial Hospital, Inc. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 340, 264 Cal. Rptr. 673 , involved an action for negligence and strict liability in which the plaintiff sought recovery for damages incurred from a fall caused by an allegedly defective carpet during her visit to her husband's room at the defendant hospital's facility. The hospital moved to strike the strict liability cause of action and nonsuit on the negligence claim. The trial court granted the motions, and entered judgment favoring the hospital. The plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court stated a motion for judgment on the pleadings is made on the same grounds and decided on the same basis as a general demurrer. That is, judgment on the pleadings will be granted if the complaint on its face fails to state a cause of action (216 Cal. App. 3d 340, 342). The court noted that while the hospital's motion was labeled a motion to strike, it attacked the strict liability claim on the ground that it failed to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action and therefore effectively sought judgment on the pleadings (216 Cal. App. 3d 340, 343).

The court held that the hospital was a provider of professional medical services, rather than a producer or marketer of products and because the room was an integral component of the professional services the hospital provided, the trial court properly declined to permit the plaintiff to proceed against the hospital in strict liability (216 Cal. App. 3d 340, 347).

IMO Development Corp. v. Dow Corning Corp. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 451, 185 Cal. Rptr. 341 , was an action for damages and declaratory relief by a purchaser of real property against the seller. At issue was the validity of a waiver provision. The defendant seller moved for judgment on the pleadings on the grounds that one of the causes of action sought an improper remedy of partial rescission and failed to state facts establishing a claim for economic duress. The plaintiff argued that it did not seek a partial rescission, but rather a declaration that a waiver clause in the contract was unenforceable as an unconscionable provision under Civ. Code § 1670.5. The trial court granted the motion without leave to amend and entered judgment in favor of defendant with damages, together with interest and attorney's fees. The plaintiff appealed.

With the exception of the attorney's fees award, the court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The court, citing Crain v. Electronic Memories & Magnetics Corp. (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 509, 512, 123 Cal. Rptr. 419 , stated that a defendant may move for judgment on the pleadings on the ground that the complaint fails to state a legally cognizable cause of action. The court concluded that the plaintiff's contention that by merely pleading economic duress it had invoked the court's power to declare the waiver unconscionable was without merit because nowhere did the plaintiff allege in the pleading that it sought a declaration of the waiver as an unconscionable provision, nor did it allege ultimate facts demonstrating its unconscionability (for instance, that the sales agreement constituted a contract of adhesion, or that the waiver provision was unduly one-sided, oppressive, or inherently unfair) (135 Cal. App. 3d 451, 457, 460) .

[b] Motion Directed to Portion of Complaint

Stencel Aero Eng'r Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 978, 128 Cal. Rptr. 691 , was a mandate proceeding arising out of a wrongful death action by the heirs and special administratrix of the estate of one McCarthy, who had been killed in an airplane accident, against the manufacturers of the aircraft involved and its component parts. The complaint in that action was in five counts. The first three sought compensatory damages on varying theories for wrongful death; the fourth was by the special administratrix to recover $200 compensatory damages for property damage alleged to have been sustained by the decedent before his death actually occurred; the fifth was by all plaintiffs for punitive damages in the sum of $10,000,000. Stencel Aero moved for judgment on the pleadings on the fifth count only (for punitive damages). The motion was denied and Stencel Aero petitioned the court of appeal for a writ of mandate.

The court of appeal issued a peremptory writ of mandate directing the trial court to vacate its order denying defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings as to the heirs and to grant it as to them. It further directed the trial court to order that the complaint be amended so that the special administratrix alone pleaded punitive damages and did so in association with the fourth count of the complaint with an appropriate theory or theories of liability (56 Cal. App. 3d 978, 988) . The court held that punitive damages were not recoverable in the wrongful death action [first three counts; see former Code Civ. Proc. § 377 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.61); former Prob. Code § 573(c) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.34)], but were recoverable on the survival count [fourth count; see former Prob. Code § 573(c) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.34)] (56 Cal. App. 3d 978, 983) . The court further held that the denial of the motion was, however, correct as to the special administratrix and denied the relief prayed for as to her (that the trial court's order denying the motion be vacated and the motion granted) (56 Cal. App. 3d 978, 988) .

[c] Insufficiency Is Established by Facts Appearing on Face of Complaint

City of Fresno v. California Highway Com. (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 687, 692, 173 Cal. Rptr. 671 , involved an action by a city against the state for, among other relief, an injunction compelling the state to build freeways in the city.

The action was based on so-called "freeway agreements" executed from 1962 until 1968 in which the state agreed, in contemplation of building a freeway, to pay for and to make necessary changes in city streets in exchange for the city's agreement to the changes and to accept future control and maintenance of the changes. The complaint alleged that the state began, but did not complete, the construction. The state demurred to the complaint and simultaneously moved for judgment on the pleadings. The trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend. The judgment on the pleadings ordered and determined that the freeway agreements alleged in the complaint did not bind the state to construct any freeway at a certain time and the state was not required by law to construct or budget for the construction of a freeway in the city. The city appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's judgment. The court held that the ruling on the demurrer and entry of judgment on the pleadings was procedurally and substantively correct. The court stated the general principle that a motion for judgment on the pleadings has the same basic purpose and effect as a general demurrer, and like a general demurrer is confined to the face of the pleading under attack. In strictly construing the agreements, the court stated that it could not find any language that legally obligated the state to commence or complete construction of any planned freeway (118 Cal. App. 3d 687, 692, 694) .

[d] Essential Allegation Omitted

Fraker v. Sentry Life Ins. Co. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 276, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1144 , involved an action for declaratory relief regarding plaintiff's right to reimbursement for medical expenses under his group health insurance policy and for fraud due to defendant's alleged misrepresentations that the group policy would provide certain medical coverage. The trial court granted defendant's motion for summary judgment as to the declaratory relief cause of action and granted defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings as to the fraud count.

The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's orders. It stated that a motion for judgment on the pleadings has the same purpose and effect of a general demurrer in that it determines whether the complaint contains the necessary facts to state a cause of action. It noted that the plaintiff had concluded that there was a connection between his inability to obtain replacement insurance and defendant's conduct in terminating group coverage. The essential allegations for a fraud action include a false representation as to a material fact, knowledge of the falsity, intent to defraud, justifiable reliance and resulting damage. The court stated that the absence of any of these elements would preclude recovery. The court then found that, apart from other missing allegations, the element of damages was missing since plaintiff's complaint failed to state any facts connecting the defendant's alleged conduct to the damages claimed. The defendant had given plaintiff ample notice of the policy's termination and of his ability to retain insurance with it under an individual policy; no more was required under the group policy. Therefore, plaintiff had failed to properly allege the necessary element of resulting damage and judgment on the pleadings was properly granted in defendant's favor (19 Cal. App. 4th 276, 285-286) .

[e] No Legal Duty Alleged

McCarthy v. Frost (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 872, 109 Cal. Rptr. 470 , was a wrongful death action by the widow and minor children of the decedent against highway patrolmen and the State of California. The complaint set forth seven causes of action. In the first three, plaintiffs alleged that the decedent was driving a 1966 Jaguar eastbound on Highway 101 near Sheffield Drive in Santa Barbara County and that "At all times and at such time and place defendants negligently and carelessly failed to discover William Joseph McCarthy, the decedent, and failed to search for him or his vehicle, failed to find him, failed to summon medical aid, failed to administer first aid, failed to remove him from his vehicle, prevented others from finding him and prevented others from rendering medical aid, and defendants so negligently and carelessly conducted themselves as to proximately cause the death of William Joseph McCarthy, deceased, as hereinabove alleged." Defendants moved for judgment on the pleading on the first three causes of action and the motion was granted. Plaintiffs appealed, stipulating that the other four causes of action could be dismissed with prejudice, and the appeal was entertained.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment with directions to supplement it by the addition of a paragraph dismissing the remaining four causes of action against the patrolmen and the state. The court said that the complaint did not state a cause of action because it did not set forth a legal duty owed by defendants to decedent or to plaintiffs (33 Cal. App. 3d 872, 874) . Plaintiff's reliance on Veh. Code § 2412, authorizing highway patrolmen to investigate accidents resulting in personal injuries or death as establishing a duty was held misplaced on the grounds the complaint did not allege there was an accident and the code section merely authorizes highway patrolmen to investigate accidents but imposes no duty on them to do so (33 Cal. App. 3d 872, 874-875) . The court held, however, that regardless of "pleading niceties," the decision of a peace officer to investigate or not investigate is a matter of discretion for which the officers and state were immune from liability under Gov. Code §§ 815.2(a) and 820.2, absent the pleading of facts that would justify specific reliance by the decedent that an investigation would be conducted at any particular time and place or in any particular fashion, which was not done (33 Cal. App. 3d 872, 875-876) .

Smiley v. Citibank (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 138, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 441, 900 P.2d 690 , was a class action on behalf of California residents holding a specific credit card. The action stated various causes of action against a national bank arising under California law, going ultimately to the amount of late payment fees charged by the bank in connection with the credit card. The bank filed a motion for judgment on the pleadings, contending that the complaint failed to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action against it as a result of preemption by federal law regarding the amount a national bank could charge for late payment fees. The trial court denied the motion, but the bank obtained a writ of mandate from the court of appeal compelling the trial court to vacate its order or show cause. The trial court subsequently granted the judgment on the pleadings and filed a judgment of dismissal. On appeal, the court of appeal affirmed, holding that the state law regarding the amount of late payment fees was inapplicable due to preemption by federal law.

The Supreme Court affirmed the court of appeal judgment. The court initially stated that it was clear that the federal National Bank Act preempted state law within the coverage of the Act. The question thus was not the existence of preemption by federal law, but rather whether the scope of the federal law covered the late payment fees in question (11 Cal. 4th 138, 148) . The court ultimately concluded that the term "interest" in the federal law should be construed to cover late payment fees (11 Cal. 4th 138, 153) . Since the complaint was based on state law bearing on the amount of late payment fees, and that law was preempted by federal law, the pleading failed to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action (11 Cal. 4th 138, 164) .

[f] Action Barred by Limitations

Wrightson v. Dougherty (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 257, 54 P.2d 13 , was an action against the administratrix of a decedent's estate and others to enforce an alleged oral agreement between plaintiff and the decedent allegedly entered into about three-and-one-half months before the latter's death in 1927. By the terms of this agreement, plaintiff agreed to cancel a $12,500 obligation owing to him from the decedent in consideration of the transfer by decedent to the decedent and plaintiff as copartners of 100 shares of oil company stock that decedent owned, subject to the proviso that the stock was to remain in the name and possession of the decedent. After the latter's death, the shares passed into the possession of the administratrix who, it was alleged, refused to deliver to plaintiff that portion of the 100 shares allegedly owned by him and his proportionate share of royalties and profits that had accrued. It does not appear from the court's opinion when the complaint was filed, but it was apparently filed several years after the decedent's death. The complaint was in two counts, the first, in effect, for claim and delivery of the stock and the second to quiet title. Defendants' demurrer to the complaint on general and special grounds was overruled (5 Cal. 2d 257, 265) , and defendants answered denying various allegations and pleading affirmative defenses, including the bar of the statute of limitations (5 Cal. 2d 257, 260) . At trial, after plaintiff's opening statement, which followed the allegations of his complaint, defendants moved for nonsuit and for judgment on the pleadings on the ground the action was barred by the statute of limitations (5 Cal. 2d 257, 260) . The motions were granted and plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgments of dismissal.

The Supreme Court, affirmed the judgments (5 Cal. 2d 257, 266) . The Court assumed the complaint included the allegations essential to a statement of a cause of action (5 Cal. 2d 257, 265) , and held that the motions for judgment on the pleadings were properly granted since the complaint showed on its face that the action was barred by the three-year period specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 338 (5 Cal. 2d 257, 262, 264) and, if the administratrix were regarded as an involuntary trustee of partnership property coming into her possession, by the four-year period specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 343 (5 Cal. 2d 257, 264) , which section had been added to the answer by amendment (5 Cal. 2d 257, 265) . Note that the procedure in this case is affected by the subsequent enactment of Code Civ. Proc. § 438(e) and (g).

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Objection to Complaint by Motion for Judgment on the Pleadings

Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc'y v. Thornton (1897) 117 Cal. 481, 49 P. 573 , was an action on a promissory note, a copy of which was attached to the complaint. On a former appeal in the case, the judgment for plaintiff had been reversed on the ground the note, at the time of its execution, was secured by a mortgage on real property and, by reason of Code Civ. Proc. § 726, the makers were not liable to an action on the note independent of a suit to foreclose the mortgage. On retrial, defendant moved for judgment on the pleadings on the ground that complaint did not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action because the copy of the note attached to the complaint stated that it was "secured by a mortgage of even date herewith." The motion was granted, judgment was rendered for defendant, and plaintiff appealed. Although the Supreme Court reversed the judgment on the ground it did not appear from the face of the complaint that the note was secured and that the recital in the note could not be treated as the equivalent of such averment in the complaint (117 Cal. 481, 483) , the court said that the right of a defendant to move for judgment on the pleadings when the complaint fails to state a cause of action is well settled in this state (117 Cal. 481, 482) .

The facts and procedural background of McCarthy v. Frost (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 872, 109 Cal. Rptr. 470 , are discussed under § 71.150[3][e]. In affirming the judgment in McCarthy with directions to supplement it by the addition of a paragraph dismissing the remaining four actions against the patrolmen and the state, the court of appeal said that on a motion for judgment on the pleadings, as on a general demurrer, the question is whether the complaint states a cause of action (33 Cal. App. 3d 872, 874) .

Kachig v. Boothe (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 626, 99 Cal. Rptr. 393 , was an action against a real estate broker, his salesman, the other party to a real property exchange agreement with plaintiffs, and the attorney who represented the broker and the other party in two prior consolidated actions against plaintiffs. These prior actions resulted in judgments against plaintiffs in favor of the broker for $10,000 as his commission on the aborted exchange and for $100 plus costs in favor of the other party to the exchange agreement. Plaintiff paid the $10,000 judgment but not the $100 judgment. These judgments had been obtained by perjured testimony suborned by the attorney (who was subsequently convicted of the crime and both sentenced to prison and suspended from the practice of law) and false evidence manufactured by the attorney and the other party to the exchange agreement. Plaintiffs in the present action sought recovery of the $10,000 they had paid the broker and damages for severe emotional distress and loss of income. Their theories of recovery were fraud, malicious prosecution, and intentional infliction of emotional distress. Defendants' motion for judgment on the pleadings was granted and plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed on the ground the prior judgments had not been vacated and could not be vacated because they had been procured by intrinsic fraud (perjury and false evidence) for which there was no judicial relief (22 Cal. App. 3d 626, 631-636) . The court pointed out that recovery could not be had for malicious prosecution since plaintiffs had not prevailed in the prior consolidated actions (22 Cal. App. 3d 626, 636, 638-640) . Recovery for fraud could not be had for the same reason the prior judgments could not be vacated, to wit, the fraud was intrinsic (22 Cal. App. 3d 626, 636-638) . Finally, plaintiffs could not recover for intentional infliction of emotional distress since that would constitute a collateral attack on the prior judgments, and, like the causes of action for fraud and malicious prosecution, was precluded by the doctrine of finality of judgments (res judicata), as well as on the ground the perjured testimony and false evidence were privileged under the rule that publications made in the course of judicial proceedings are absolutely privileged (22 Cal. App. 3d 626, 640-641) .

[b] Motion Directed to Portion of Complaint

See also McCarthy v. Frost (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 872, 873-874, 109 Cal. Rptr. 470 (partial judgment on pleadings as to three of seven causes of action alleged); Lortz v. Connell (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 286, 289 n.2, 78 Cal. Rptr. 6 (motion for judgment on pleadings as to two of three causes of action granted and subsequent motion as to remaining cause of action granted).

[c] No Legal Duty Alleged

In Shin v. Kong (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 498, 95 Cal. Rptr. 304 , when plaintiff was divorced from his wife, plaintiff learned for the first time that he was not the biological father of the child born during their marriage. After disclaiming all parental rights to the child in the dissolution proceeding, plaintiff sued his wife's doctor and the true biological father. Plaintiff alleged that the doctor performed an artificial insemination on plaintiff's ex-wife without plaintiff's consent resulting in the birth of a child assumed to be plaintiff's son and demanded tort damages. Defendant filed a motion for judgment on the pleadings, arguing, among other things, that defendant owed no duty to plaintiff. The court found that absent a relationship between plaintiff and the doctor that would give rise to a duty, plaintiff could plead no viable cause of action. Judgment was entered and plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court concluded that plaintiff's complaint was barred for lack of a legal duty owing from the defendant doctor to plaintiff and for public policy reasons embodied in statutes that preclude recovery for breach of moral duties (80 Cal. App. 4th 498, 501) . Specifically, the court found that Fam. Code § 7613 did not apply to the case (80 Cal. App. 4th 498, 504-506) , public policy precluded liability in the case (80 Cal. App. 4th 498, 506-509) , plaintiff had not stated a cause of action for procreative rights (80 Cal. App. 4th 498, 509-510) , plaintiff could not recover for emotional distress on a direct or bystander theory (80 Cal. App. 4th 498, 510-512) , and plaintiff could not recover for intentional infliction of emotional distress (80 Cal. App. 4th 498, 512-513) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
B. Motions For Judgment on The Pleadings
2. Motion By Defendant

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.151

§ 71.151 Supporting Motion by Defendant for Judgment on the Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438 (c)(1)(B)]--Insufficiency Established by Facts Subject to Judicial Notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(d)]

[1] FORM Supporting Motion by Defendant for Judgment on the Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438 (c)(1)(B)]--Insufficiency Established by Facts Subject to Judicial Notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(d)]

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings (see § 71.150).]

DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE MATTERS SUBJECT TO JUDICIAL NOTICE ESTABLISH THAT THE COMPLAINT FAILS TO STATE FACTS SUFFICIENT TO CONSTITUTE A CAUSE OF ACTION.

A. Judicial Notice. As in the case of a demurrer, the court may, in ruling on a motion for judgment on the pleadings, consider matters subject to judicial notice (Code Civ. Proc. 438(d); see also Barker v. Hull (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 221, 224, 236 Cal. Rptr. 285 ; Megeff v. Doland (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 251, 257-258, 176 Cal. Rptr. 467).

[Here, and in subsequent paragraphs, set forth bases for judicial notice under Evid. Code §§ 452 or 453, and a request that the court take judicial notice of that fact (See § 71.21, Paragraphs C through O).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a pretrial motion by defendant for judgment on the pleadings when it appears from matters that are subject to judicial notice that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. For a form of memorandum for use when the insufficiency appears on the face of the complaint and for a general form in support of the motion, see § 71.150. For a form for use when the insufficiency appears from a judicial admission, see § 71.152.

These points and authorities should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings [see § 71.150]. They may also be adapted for use in an appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law raised. For example, if a prior action between the parties finally determined facts that contradict material allegations in the complaint, counsel should request that the court take judicial notice of relevant portions of its file showing the final determination of those matters, and argue that because of those matters, the complaint fails to allege facts sufficient to state a cause of action [see Barker v. Hull (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 221, 224, 227, 236 Cal. Rptr. 285 , discussed under § 71.151[3][a]].

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in §§ 71.153 -71.156 may be used to oppose the motion supported by these points and authorities. In addition, the memorandum set out in §§ 71.30 -71.43, opposing a general demurrer to a complaint, may be modified for use in opposing the motion supported by these points and authorities.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.150[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judicial Notice

Barker v. Hull (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 221, 236 Cal. Rptr. 285 , was a suit by a corporate president against a shareholder and the shareholder's attorney for, among other things, fraud and deceit, after a default judgment was entered against the president on behalf of the shareholder in an earlier action and a motion to set aside the judgment by the president was denied. The shareholder and attorney moved for judgment on the pleadings arguing that the president was barred by the doctrine of collateral estoppel from relitigating the fraud issue. Each party requested the court to take judicial notice of portions of the file in the previous case. The court took judicial notice of the entire file, determined that the issue of fraud has been previously determined and granted the motion. The president appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment on the pleadings. The court stated that in addition to the facts alleged in the complaint, the court may consider matters that may be judicially noticed, including court records. The court concluded that the trial court had sufficient undisputed facts before it, which were appropriate subjects of judicial notice, to support the conclusion that the issues involved were identical with those litigated in the earlier action (191 Cal. App. 3d 221, 224, 227) .

Megeff v. Doland (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 251, 176 Cal. Rptr. 467 , was a personal injury action against the wife and daughter of the perpetrator of a stabbing for failure to exercise control over the perpetrator. Plaintiffs alleged that the perpetrator was insane and that defendants should have known of his propensity for violence and should have exercised control over him. Plaintiffs also alleged that had it not been for defendants' voluntary assumption of custody over the perpetrator, the hospital in which he had been temporarily confined just before he committed the stabbing would have instituted commitment proceedings, that defendants should have instituted such proceedings themselves, and that such proceedings would have been successful, thus preventing the perpetrator's release. The trial court granted judgment on the pleadings for defendant wife.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The court held that a motion for judgment on the pleadings has the purpose and effect of a general demurrer and that allegations in the complaint that are contradicted by facts of which the courts may take judicial notice will not be assumed to be true for purposes of ruling on such a motion (123 Cal. App. 3d 251, 257 n.1, 258) . At the request of defendants, the court took judicial notice of the court files of two criminal cases that had arisen out of the stabbing incident. The court held that certain psychiatric reports contained in these files indicated that the perpetrator of the stabbings had shown no propensity for violence in the past and contradicted plaintiff's essential allegation that defendants should have known of the perpetrator's propensity for violence (123 Cal. App. 3d 251, 258) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Judicial Notice

Pang v. Beverly Hospital, Inc. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 986, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 643 , involved three causes of action, in one of which plaintiff alleged she was fired in violation of the Moore-Brown-Roberti Family Rights Act (Gov. Code §§ 12945.1, 12945.2) for taking time off to care for her mother. Plaintiff brought a motion for summary adjudication concerning this cause of action. At the start of the hearing on the summary adjudication motion, the court issued a tentative decision denying the motion because plaintiff failed to properly refer to or argue the facts set forth in plaintiff's separate statement of undisputed facts. The court, on its own motion, deemed the matter a motion for judgment on the pleadings, heard argument, and granted the motion. Plaintiff then dismissed her two remaining causes of action and the court entered judgment for defendant.

The court of appeal affirmed (79 Cal. App. 4th 986, 990) . In so doing the court noted that in addition to the facts pleaded, the appellate court may consider matters that may be judicially noticed, including a party's admissions or concessions which can not reasonably be controverted (79 Cal. App. 4th 986, 989-990) . At the request of both parties, the appellate court did so as to certain evidence placed before the trial court by the summary adjudication motion. Specifically, the court judicially noticed declarations of plaintiff and her sister, excerpts from plaintiff's deposition testimony and plaintiff's separate statement of undisputed facts, to the extent they related to plaintiff's need for family leave. These items contained judicial admissions and concessions fatal to plaintiff's claim (79 Cal. App. 4th 986, 990) .

Evans v. California Trailer Court, Inc. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 540 , 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 646 , involved contract and tort claims arising out of the plaintiffs' sale of their trailer park business and property. Plaintiffs had taken back two promissory notes secured by separate deeds of trust on the real property and, following default by the buyers' transferee, reacquired the property at a nonjudicial foreclosure sale of the senior deed of trust with a bid of less than the amount of indebtedness. On the first day of trial, certain defendants sought judgment on the pleadings on the grounds that certain causes of action were barred by the antideficiency statutes, Code Civ. Proc. §§ 580b, 580d, and the one-action rule, Code Civ. Proc. § 726. Defendants requested that the court take judicial notice of a recorded trustee's deed; plaintiffs did not object. The trial court granted judgment on the pleadings and plaintiffs appealed (28 Cal. App. 4th 540, 547-548) .

The court of appeal upheld the trial court's action in judicially noticing the deed of trust, rejecting plaintiffs' contention that the lower court had improperly considered matters beyond the pleadings (28 Cal. App. 4th 540, 549) . It expressly stated that the court may take judicial notice of recorded deeds. It further noted that the deed did not negate any explicit allegation of the amended complaint, but even if it did its existence and authenticity could not reasonably be controverted as plaintiffs conceded these matters. Therefore, the court concluded that such admissions or concessions of matters which cannot reasonably be controverted were properly considered by the lower court on the motion for judgment on the pleadings (28 Cal. App. 4th 540, 549) .

Baillargeon v. Department of Water & Power (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 670, 138 Cal. Rptr. 338 , was an action against a city water and power department, the Board of Administration of the Water and Power Employees Retirement Plan, and various employees of the Plan arising out of dispute as to benefits payable for an on-the-job injury. The representation relied on by plaintiff to impose liability was a statement in a booklet issued by defendant board explaining benefits payable under the Plan on which plaintiff claimed to have relied in continuing her employment but which was contrary to the actual provisions of the Plan, which allowed limited benefits only. Plaintiff's complaint set forth three causes of action: (1) breach of contract; (2) infliction of mental distress; and (3) declaratory relief. The department and board answered the complaint setting forth various affirmative defenses, including the statute of limitations. Their subsequent motion for judgment on the pleadings on the grounds the complaint failed to state a cause of action and was barred by the statute of limitations was granted, and plaintiff appealed from the ensuing judgment.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment as to the first and third causes of action and affirmed it as to the second on the grounds that (1) the complaint sufficiently alleged the elements of equitable estoppel; (2) the one-year period for presenting claims prescribed in Gov. Code § 911.2 applied to the contract and declaratory relief actions and was tolled while plaintiff pursued her workers' compensation remedy; and (3) the 100-day period for presenting claims prescribed by the same code section (claim presentation period extended to six months for actions based on acts or omissions occurring after January 1, 1988) applied to the tort cause of action, that that period was not tolled and had expired, and hence, that that cause of action was barred. The court said, in effect, however, that the trial court, in ruling on a motion for judgment on the pleadings, as in the case of a demurrer, is limited to a consideration of the face of the pleading attacked and to matters subject to judicial notice (69 Cal. App. 3d 670, 675-676) .

See also Sullivan v. Los Angeles County (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 710, 714 n.3, 117 Cal. Rptr. 241, 527 P.2d 865 (on defendant's motion for judgment on pleadings, trial court properly took judicial notice of relevant court files, records, and documents); Tiffany v. Sierra Sands Unified School Dist. (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 218, 225, 162 Cal. Rptr. 669 (on motion for judgment on pleadings, court may consider matters subject to judicial notice); Cristmat, Inc. v. Los Angeles County (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 590, 598, 93 Cal. Rptr. 325 (motion for judgment on the pleadings as used to perform function of general demurrer and reaches only contents of challenged pleading and such matters as may be considered under doctrine of judicial notice).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
B. Motions For Judgment on The Pleadings
2. Motion By Defendant

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.152

§ 71.152 Supporting Motion by Defendant for Judgment on the Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(B)]--Insufficiency Established by Judicial Admission

[1] FORM Supporting Motion by Defendant for Judgment on the Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(B)]--Insufficiency Established by Judicial Admission

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings (see § 71.150).]

DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE IT APPEARS FROM A JUDICIAL ADMISSION ON THE FACE OF THE COMPLAINT THAT A CAUSE OF ACTION CANNOT BE STATED.

A. Action Barred by Judicial Admission. A complaint that on its face contains an admission that negates an essential element of the cause of action fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action; the plaintiff is bound by such an admission in his or her complaint (see Setliff v. E. I. Du Pont De Nemours & Co. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 1534, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a pretrial motion by defendant for judgment on the pleadings when an admission contained within the complaint negates the plaintiff's ability to allege an essential element of the cause of action.

These points and authorities should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings [see § 71.150], and if the motion is also based on facts subject to judicial notice, with a form a form relating to judicial notice [see § 71.151]. They may also be adopted for use in an appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts in the case and the points of law stated. Thus counsel should include discussion showing how the allegations of the complaint containing the admission negates the possibility of the plaintiff being able to allege an element essential to state a cause of action.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action Barred by Judicial Admission

Setliff v. E. I. Du Pont De Nemours & Co. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763 , is discussed in § 71.28[3][a].

91 of 125 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
B. Motions For Judgment on The Pleadings
2. Motion By Defendant

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.153

§ 71.153 Opposing Motion by Defendant for Judgment on Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(B)]--General Form

[1] FORM Opposing Motion by Defendant for Judgment on Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(B)]--General Form

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name] Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM IN OPPOSITION TO DEFEND-
vs.	)	ANT'S MOTION FOR JUDGMENT ON THE _____ [name], Defendant.	)	PLEADINGS
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE THE COMPLAINT DOES NOT ENTIRELY OMIT AN ESSENTIAL ALLEGATION TO THE STATEMENT OF A CAUSE OF ACTION AND IT DOES NOT APPEAR FROM THE FACE OF THE COMPLAINT OR FROM JUDICIALLY NOTICED MATTER THAT THE ACTION IS BARRED BY AN AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE.

A. Denial of Motion. A motion by defendant for judgment on the pleadings must be denied unless there is an entire absence of some essential allegation to the statement of a cause of action (Rannard v. Lockheed Aircraft Corp. (1945)

26 Cal. 2d 149, 151, 157 P.2d 1) or unless it appears from the face of the complaint or judicially noticed matter that the action is barred by an affirmative defense (see Sullivan v. Los Angeles County (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 710, 714 n.3, 117 Cal. Rptr. 241, 527 P.2d 865 ; Bach v. McNelis (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 852, 865, 255 Cal. Rptr. 232).

[Optional] B. Sufficiency of Complaint. A complaint that sets forth the essential facts of the case with reasonable precision and with sufficient particularity to acquaint the defendant with the nature, source, and extent of the cause of action is sufficient (Rannard v. Lockheed Aircraft Corp. (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 149, 156-157, 157 P.2d 1).

[Optional] C. Rule of Liberal Construction. In ruling on a motion for judgment on the pleadings, the facts alleged in the complaint must be assumed to be true and liberally construed in favor of the party against whom the motion is made (Code Civ. Proc. § 452; Mobil Oil Corp. v. Exxon Corp. (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 942, 947, 223 Cal. Rptr. 392).

[Optional] D. Motion as Admitting Allegations. A motion by defendant for judgment on the pleadings, for the purpose of ruling on the motion, admits as true all the facts alleged in the complaint (Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc'y v. Thornton (1897) 117 Cal. 481, 482, 49 P. 573 ; Baillargeon v. Department of Water & Power (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 670, 676, 138 Cal. Rptr. 338), if they are not contrary to facts of which the court may take judicial notice (see Stoney Creek Orchards v. California (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 903, 906, 91 Cal. Rptr. 139).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion by defendant for judgment on the pleadings. The grounds of the opposition are that the complaint alleges all the essential elements of the cause of action and that it does not appear from the face of the complaint or from judicially noticed matter that the action is barred by an affirmative defense.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings supported by the memorandum set out in §§ 71.150 -71.151.

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to oppose a motion by a cross defendant against a cross complainant for judgment on the pleadings or to oppose a general demurrer to either a complaint or a cross complaint.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, if defendant asserts that a certain fact on which an essential element of the complaint is based is false, counsel should argue that the facts as alleged are sufficient to state a cause of action and that in passing on the question of sufficiency; it is beyond the scope of the inquiry to ascertain whether the facts stated are true or untrue [see Stoney Creek Orchards v. California (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 903, 906, 91 Cal. Rptr. 139 , discussed under § 71.153[3][d]].

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.150[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Denial of Motion

Rannard v. Lockheed Aircraft Corp. (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 149, 157 P.2d 1 , was an action against a physician and surgeon and his employer, Lockheed Aircraft Corp., by a husband and wife. The complaint alleged that: (1) the physician was employed by Lockheed to physically examine applicants for employment; (2) plaintiff husband applied for employment and had to submit to such an examination, which he did; (3) after the examination he was negligently advised by defendants that as a condition precedent to plaintiff husband's proposed employment he would have to submit to an operation designed to correct a purported double hernia purportedly discovered by defendant physician during the physical examination; (5) he submitted to the operation; (6) defendant physician negligently performed the operation and postoperative treatment; and (7) as a result plaintiff husband sustained injuries for which damages were sought. At the commencement of the trial after defendant Lockheed's objection to plaintiffs' introduction of any evidence had been sustained, defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings was granted and plaintiffs appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment. The Court stated that it is only when there is an entire absence of some essential allegation that a motion for judgment on the pleadings may properly be granted (26 Cal. 2d 149, 151) . The Court held that negligence was alleged generally, which is permissible, and the complaint stated all the essential elements of a cause of action for medical malpractice against defendant physician and against Lockheed based on the doctrine of respondeat superior (26 Cal. 2d 149, 154-159) .

Sullivan v. Los Angeles County (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 710, 117 Cal. Rptr. 241, 527 P.2d 865 , was an action for damages for false imprisonment resulting from the county's continued incarceration of defendant after criminal charges against him had been dismissed. The felony counts had been dismissed on July 13, 1967, and the misdemeanor count on July 21. Plaintiff was released on August 7. In his amended complaint, plaintiff alleged he was imprisoned in the county jail by county sheriffs and employees who knew or should have known there were no charges of any kind pending against him and that he was entitled to his release and freedom. In ruling on the motion, the trial court took judicial notice of the superior and municipal courts' records relating to the criminal proceedings and of when the release order to the sheriff was issued (August 7, 1967). At the hearing on the motion, the court stated that it assumed there was no proof the sheriff knew there were no charges pending against plaintiff prior to issuance of the release order and granted the motion on the ground the county was immune from liability (12 Cal. 3d 710, 714 n.3).

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment. The Court held that the county was not immune from liability for false imprisonment in view of the mandatory duty imposed by Penal Code § 1384, requiring discharge from custody of a defendant against whom criminal charges are dismissed and that the county's liability was both direct and derivative (12 Cal. 3d 710, 715) . The Court stated that while the trial court properly took judicial notice as indicated above, it improperly involved itself in the merits of the case when it failed to accept plaintiff's allegation as true and relied on the release order as negating the sheriff's knowledge (12 Cal. 3d 710, 714 n.3). The Court said that the fact no release order was sent prior to August 7, merely foreclosed one possible source of the sheriff's alleged knowledge but was not sufficient to defeat plaintiff's allegation that the sheriff had knowledge (12 Cal. 3d 710, 714 n.3).

Bach v. McNelis (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 852, 255 Cal. Rptr. 232 , involved an action in which the complaint, among other issues, challenged the constitutional validity of the assignment of two judges to courts of record in the county and included causes of action claiming the judges violated the Political Reform Act of 1974 (Gov. Code § 81000 et seq.). Both of the judges demurred on the ground that the complaint failed to state a cause of action for violation of the Act and one of the judges also filed a motion for judgment on the pleadings that raised the identical contentions as the demurrer, as well as the claim of judicial immunity. The trial court sustained both demurrers and granted the motion for judgment on the pleadings. The plaintiff appealed.

With regard to the motion for judgment on the pleadings, the court of appeal reversed the portion of the judgment dismissing the cause of action based on the alleged violation of the Political Reform Act of 1974. The plaintiff argued that because the complaint properly reported that the judge violated the reporting requirements of the Act, the defendant judge's assertion that he was not required to report on a loan could not be determined on demurrer. Although the judge countered that the court took judicial notice of a sworn affidavit, the court held that a court may not judicially notice the truth of assertions in declarations or affidavits filed in court proceedings. A motion for judgment on the pleadings is made on the same grounds, and is decided on the same basis, as a general demurrer. That is, the motion will be granted only if the complaint on its face fails to state a cause of action. Because the court erred in sustaining the demurrer for that reason, it erred for the same reason in granting the judge's motion of judgment on the pleadings. Because the complaint stated a cause of action on its face and was not otherwise defeated by matters properly subject to judicial notice, the motion should have been denied as well (207 Cal. App. 3d 852, 865) .

[b] Sufficiency of Complaint

The facts and procedural background of Rannard v. Lockheed Aircraft Corp. (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 149, 157 P.2d 1 , are discussed under § 71.153[3][a]. In Rannard, in reversing judgment on the pleadings for defendant, the Supreme Court said that all that is required of a plaintiff, as a matter of pleading, even as against a special demurrer, is that the complaint set forth the essential facts of the case with reasonable precision and with sufficient particularity to acquaint the defendant with the nature, source, and extent of the cause of action, and that the complaint in question did so (26 Cal. 2d 149, 156-157) .

[c] Rule of Liberal Construction

Code Civ. Proc. § 452 provides that in the construction of a pleading, for the purpose of determining its effect, its allegations must be liberally construed, with a view to substantial justice between the parties.

Mobil Oil Corp. v. Exxon Corp. (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 942, 223 Cal. Rptr. 392 , involved an action by a group of oil companies against another group of oil companies to enjoin the second group from nominating arbitrators under a binding arbitration clause in a contract between the parties to jointly operate a petroleum reservoir. One of the plaintiffs' arguments was that the contract was ambiguous as to whether arbitration was permitted under the circumstances, and, therefore plaintiffs should be allowed to adduce evidence of intent in this regard. The defendants demurred and moved for judgment on the pleadings. The trial court overruled the demurrer but granted the motion for judgment on the pleadings without allowing extrinsic evidence on the interpretation of the contract and denied the plaintiffs' motion for a preliminary injunction. Arbitration was completed, but, the superior court stayed confirmation of the arbitration award.

The court of appeal reversed the trial court's judgment on the pleadings remanded for further proceedings. The court stated that on a motion for judgment on the pleadings, the facts alleged in the complaint must be assumed to be true and liberally construed in favor of the party against whom the motion is made. The court cited the plaintiffs' argument that they had not been permitted to complete their discovery, which was necessary in developing evidence on the intent of the parties, and therefore the granting of the judgment on the pleadings foreclosed the opportunity to present evidence on their interpretation of the arbitration provisions. The court agreed and concluded that judgment on the pleadings was error (177 Cal. App. 3d 942, 948) .

[d] Motion as Admitting Allegations

The facts and procedural background of Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc'y v. Thornton (1897) 117 Cal. 481, 49 P. 573 , are set forth in § 71.150[4][a]. In Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc'y, the Supreme Court reversed the judgment on the pleadings for defendant, stating that all the facts alleged in the complaint are admitted for the purposes of the motion and that the court is simply to determine whether these facts constitute a cause of action (117 Cal. 481, 482) .

The facts and procedural background of Baillargeon v. Department of Water & Power (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 670, 138 Cal. Rptr. 338 , are discussed in § 71.151[4][a]. In Baillargeon, the court of appeal reversed the judgment on the pleadings for defendants as to two of the three causes of action alleged in the complaint and affirmed it as to the third, stating that a motion for judgment on the pleadings performs the function of a general demurrer and, therefore, admits all material and issuable facts pleaded, and that the facts alleged in the pleading attacked must be accepted as true (69 Cal. App. 3d 670, 676) .

Stoney Creek Orchards v. California (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 903, 91 Cal. Rptr. 139 , was an action against the state for erosion of plaintiff's property. The action was predicated on the theory that use of the Sacramento River as a canal and the artificial regimen of its flow attributable to the plan, design, construction, and operation of certain dams substantially contributed to the erosion and that the state was liable because it participated in the planning and development of the multi-reservoir system. The state's general demurrer to the complaint was sustained without leave to amend and plaintiff appealed from the subsequent judgment of dismissal.

The court of appeal reversed, with directions to rule on the special demurrer for uncertainty, on the ground the complaint stated a cause of action for inverse condemnation. With respect to the allegations of the complaint, the court said that in passing on the question of the sufficiency or insufficiency of a complaint to state a cause of action, it is wholly beyond the scope of the inquiry to ascertain whether the facts stated are true or untrue and that the allegations of the complaint must for the purposes of demurrer be accepted as true unless they are contrary to facts of which a court may take judicial notice (12 Cal. App. 3d 903, 906) .

Since the motion for judgment on the pleadings is a substitute for a general demurrer, the same rule would apply in ruling on the motion.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Denial of Motion

Lortz v. Connell (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 286, 78 Cal. Rptr. 6 , was an action arising out of plaintiff's purchase of a business in which he had been jointly interested with the defendants. The complaint set forth three causes of action: malicious prosecution, conversion, and breach of contract. Defense motions for judgment on the pleadings on the malicious prosecution and conversion causes of action were granted and were not involved in the present appeal. With respect to the breach of contract action, plaintiff alleged that on a specified date defendants entered into a written agreement with him for the sale and transfer to him of all their interest in a logging company, that they breached the agreement in that on a specified date they retook and seized possession of the logging company and all of its assets from plaintiff, and that they caused plaintiff to be arrested to prevent his possession and management of the company. Defendants' subsequent motion for judgment on the pleadings on this count was also granted. Although holding that the motion was properly granted (but that it was error to deny leave to amend), the court nevertheless stated that a motion for judgment on the pleadings should not be granted unless there is an entire absence of an essential allegation (273 Cal. App. 2d 286, 291) .

See also Burrow v. Timmsen (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 283, 288, 35 Cal. Rptr. 668 (it is only where there is an entire absence of some essential allegation that motion for judgment on pleadings may be properly granted); Welshans v. Santa Barbara (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 304, 305, 23 Cal. Rptr. 108 (motion by defendant for judgment on pleadings operates as demurrer to complaint and if complaint states a cause of action it is error to grant the motion); Shabrick v. Moore (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 56, 60, 15 Cal. Rptr. 310 (some essential allegation must be entirely lacking from the complaint before motion for judgment on pleadings may be properly granted); Uptown Enterprises v. Strand (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 45, 48, 15 Cal. Rptr. 486 (there must be an entire absence of some fact or facts essential to constituting a cause of action before motion for judgment on pleadings for defendant will be granted), discussed in § 71.154[3][a].

[b] Rule of Liberal Construction

In Kempton v. City of Los Angeles (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 1344, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 852 , plaintiff homeowners sued the city of Los Angeles, seeking monetary damages and injunctive relief after the city rejected their efforts to require their neighbors to remove fencing constructed on city property. Plaintiffs alleged the fences created diminished sightlines and created a dangerous condition. The city moved for judgment on the pleadings, arguing plaintiffs had not alleged any damages. Plaintiffs appealed, and the appellate court reversed, holding the trial court erred in not granting plaintiffs leave to amend their complaint to state a cause of action for nuisance. On appeal, the court must review the pleadings to determine whether the facts as alleged support any valid cause of action and, if not, whether the complaint can be amended to do so. Leave to amend is liberally allowed following a motion for judgment on the pleadings (165 Cal. App. 4th 1344, 1348) .

In Ludgate Ins. Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 592, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 277 , the trial court granted cross defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings to cross complainant's fifth amended cross complaint, having concluded that the cross complainant had failed to allege facts sufficient to state a cause of action for declaratory relief. Defendant and cross complainant appealed. The court of appeal reversed the order granting the motion for judgment on the pleadings and remanded the matter to the trial court (82 Cal. App. 4th 592, 613-614) . The court noted that review of a judgment on the pleadings requires the appellate court to determine, de novo and as a matter of law, whether the complaint states a cause of action. A motion for judgment on the pleadings is analogous to a general demurrer. All facts alleged in the complaint are deemed admitted, and the appellate court gives the complaint a reasonable interpretation by reading it as a whole and all of its parts in their context. The appellate court is not concerned with a plaintiff's possible inability to prove the claims made in the complaint, the allegations of which are accepted as true and liberally construed with a view toward attaining substantial justice (82 Cal. App. 4th 592, 602) .

In Higgins v. Del Faro (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 558, 176 Cal. Rptr. 704 , the court of appeal reversed the trial court's order granting judgment on the pleadings in favor of defendant. The court cited the rule that in ruling on such a motion the facts alleged in the complaint are to be treated as true and liberally construed in favor of the party against whom the motion is made, and held that aside from a minor technical error easily resolved by amendment (replacement of an erroneous attachment), the complaint stated all essential elements for the cause of action (123 Cal. App. 3d 558, 565) .

Gabaldon v. United Farm Workers Organizing Comm. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 757, 111 Cal. Rptr. 203 , was a class action by 10 farm workers against an unincorporated labor organization and 26 major growers of agricultural crops in the San Joaquin Valley for damages and declaratory and injunctive relief with respect to a collective bargaining agreement entered into between the defendant labor organization and growers. Plaintiffs in their complaint alleged that union security provisions in the agreement violated their fundamental rights and liberties under the state and federal constitutions. Defendants' motion for judgment on the pleadings was granted on the ground the complaint failed to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. Although the court of appeal affirmed the judgment, it nevertheless stated that in ruling on a motion for judgment on the pleadings the facts alleged in the challenged pleading must be liberally construed in favor of the party against whom the motion is made (35 Cal. App. 3d 757, 759) .

The facts and procedural background of Lortz v. Connell (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 286, 78 Cal. Rptr. 6 , are set forth under § 71.153[4][a]. In Lortz, although the court of appeal held that the motion was properly granted (but that it was error to deny leave to amend) since there was a failure to set forth an essential allegation of an action for breach of contract, to wit, plaintiff's performance of the contract or excuse for nonperformance, the court nevertheless stated that in ruling on a motion for judgment on the pleadings the challenged pleading must be liberally construed (273 Cal. App. 2d 286, 291) .

See also Gill v. Curtis Pub. Co. (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 273, 275, 239 P.2d 630 ; Pacific Architects Collaborative v. California (1979) 100 Cal. App. 3d 110, 118, 166 Cal. Rptr. 184 (a motion for judgment on the pleadings is treated identically to a demurrer; consequently, the complaint must be liberally construed in favor of plaintiff).

[c] Motion as Admitting Allegations

See Ludgate Ins. Co. v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 592, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 277 discussed under § 71.153[4][b].

See also Mechanical Contractors Assn. v. Greater Bay Area Assn. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 672, 677, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 225 (motion admits truth of all material facts pleaded unless contrary to law or fact of which the court may take judicial notice); Tiffany v. Sierra Sands Unified School Dist. (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 218, 225, 162 Cal. Rptr. 669 (because it is analogous to a general demurrer, motion for judgment on pleadings admits all material and issuable facts well pleaded; facts alleged in pleading attacked must be accepted as true, although court may consider matters subject to judicial notice); Pacific Architects Collaborative v. California (1979) 100 Cal. App. 3d 110, 118, 166 Cal. Rptr. 184 (motion for judgment on pleadings is treated identically to demurrer; hence, facts alleged in complaint must be assumed to be true); Sullivan v. Los Angeles County (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 710, 714 n.3, 117 Cal. Rptr. 241, 527 P.2d 865 (trial court in ruling on motion by defendant for judgment on pleadings improperly involved itself in merits of whether plaintiff's allegations were true); Gill v. Curtis Pub. Co. (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 273, 275, 239 P.2d 630 (in ruling on motion by defendant for judgment on pleadings, allegations in plaintiff's complaint must be taken as true, and so taken, the question is whether a cause of action has been stated); Gabaldon v. United Farm Workers Organizing Comm. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 757, 759, 111 Cal. Rptr. 203 (facts alleged in complaint must be assumed to be true); Hospital Council of N. Cal. v. Superior Court (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 331, 337-338, 106 Cal. Rptr. 247 (motion for judgment on pleadings is in nature of general demurrer and issues raised by it are legal and not factual; as such, motion admits material facts alleged in pleadings of adverse party).

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
B. Motions For Judgment on The Pleadings
2. Motion By Defendant

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.154

§ 71.154 Opposing Motion by Defendant for Judgment on Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(B)]--Motion Does Not Lie to Challenge Defectively Stated or Uncertain Facts

[1] FORM Opposing Motion by Defendant for Judgment on Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(B)]--Motion Does Not Lie to Challenge Defectively Stated or Uncertain Facts

[The following should be combined with a memorandum in opposition to a motion for judgment on the pleadings (see, e.g., § 71.153).]

DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE A MOTION FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS DOES NOT LIE TO CHALLENGE DEFECTIVELY STATED OR UNCERTAIN FACTS ALLEGED IN THE COMPLAINT.

Defective Statement or Uncertain Facts. A motion by defendant for judgment on the pleadings does not lie to raise the objection that the necessary facts contained in the complaint are defectively set forth or are uncertain in form (Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc'y v. Thornton (1897) 117 Cal. 481, 482-483, 49 P. 573 ; Uptown Enterprises v. Strand (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 45, 48, 15 Cal. Rptr. 486).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be combined with a memorandum in opposition to a motion by defendant for judgment on the pleadings, such as the one set out in § 71.153, when defendant's motion is directed not to the absence from the complaint of allegations necessary to state a cause of action but asserts that the allegations are defectively stated or uncertain in form.

These points and authorities should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings [see § 71.153]. They may also be adapted for use in an appellate brief.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings supported by the memorandum set out in §§ 71.150 and 71.151.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, if defendant objects to the complaint on the ground that facts are in an uncertain form, counsel should argue that for the purpose of evaluating the sufficiency of a complaint on a motion for judgment on the pleadings, the court disregards alleged uncertainties because the motion is not an appropriate vehicle for such objections, and that unless there is an entire absence of some fact or facts essential to a cause of action, the motion should be denied [see Uptown Enterprises v. Strand (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 45, 50, 15 Cal. Rptr. 486 , discussed under § 71.154[3][a]].

See also § 71.153[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Defective Statement or Uncertain Facts

The facts and procedural background of Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc'y v. Thornton (1897) 117 Cal. 481, 49 P. 573 , are set forth in § 71.150[4][a]. In Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc'y, the Supreme Court, in reversing the judgment on the pleadings for defendant, stated that if all the facts necessary to state a cause of action are contained in the complaint, the objection that they are defectively set forth, or are in an ambiguous or uncertain form, may not be raised by a motion by defendant for judgment on the pleadings; to support such a motion, there must be an entire absence of some fact or facts essential to constituting a cause of action (117 Cal. 481, 482-483) .

Uptown Enterprises v. Strand (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 45, 15 Cal. Rptr. 486 , was an action by the owner and operator of a drive-in theater to restrain a sheriff and his deputies from unlawful interference with the operation of the theater and to enjoin their threatened repeated trespasses. At trial, defendants' objection to the introduction of any evidence on the ground the complaint failed to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action was sustained, and a judgment on the pleadings for defendants was entered.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that the complaint stated a cause of action for injunctive relief on the two grounds mentioned above (unlawful interference and threatened repeated trespasses) (195 Cal. App. 2d 45, 50) . The court, quoting from Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc'y, discussed above, said that if the necessary facts are contained in the complaint, the objection that they are defectively set forth, or are in an ambiguous or uncertain form, will be unavailing and that to grant a defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings there must be an entire absence of some fact or facts essential to constituting a cause of action (195 Cal. App. 2d 45, 48) . In examining the sufficiency of the complaint, the court stated that it had disregarded several ambiguities that appeared throughout the complaint because, although the motion may serve the office of a general demurrer, it is not a vehicle for objections that may be urged by special demurrer (195 Cal. App. 2d 45, 50) . This statement is no longer valid to the extent that one ground for a special demurrer, lack of subject matter jurisdiction, may be asserted by a defendant through a motion for judgment on the pleadings [Code Civ. Proc § 438(c)(1)(B)(i)].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
B. Motions For Judgment on The Pleadings
2. Motion By Defendant

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.155

§ 71.155 Opposing Motion by Defendant for Judgment on Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(B)]--Motion May Not Be Based on Extrinsic Matter Not Subject to Judicial Notice

[1] FORM Opposing Motion by Defendant for Judgment on Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(B)]--Motion May Not Be Based on Extrinsic Matter Not Subject to Judicial Notice

[The following should be combined with a memorandum in opposition to a motion for judgment on the pleadings (see, e.g., § 71.153).]

DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE NONJUDICIALLY NOTICED, EXTRINSIC MATTER MAY NOT BE CONSIDERED BY THE COURT IN RULING ON THE MOTION.

A. Extrinsic Evidence. In ruling on a motion for judgment on the pleadings, the court may not consider any nonjudicially noticed matter outside the challenged pleading (see Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc'y v. Thornton (1897) 117 Cal. 481, 482, 49 P. 573 ; Uptown Enterprises v. Strand (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 45, 47, 15 Cal. Rptr. 486). Thus, presentation of extrinsic evidence is not proper on a motion for judgment on the pleadings (Cloud v. Northrop Grumman Corp. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 995, 999, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548).

[Optional] B. Interpretations Requiring Extrinsic Evidence. In ruling on a motion for judgment on the pleadings, the court may not make interpretations of any of the matters before it when the proper interpretation of such matters is a fact question that could only be determined from evidence produced at time of trial (see Trewin v. State of California (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 975, 980, 198 Cal. Rptr. 263).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings, when defendant, to establish that the plaintiff has no cause of action against defendant, attempts to rely on extrinsic matters that are not subject to judicial notice under Evid. Code § 451, 452 or 453 [see § 71.21]. The proper way to raise an affirmative defense not appearing on the face of the complaint or from matter subject to judicial notice is by alleging it in the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]. If the action lacks merit and it can be established by affidavit, declaration, deposition, and so forth, that there is no triable issue as to any material fact, defendant can and should move for summary judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c].

These points and authorities should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings [see § 71.153]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings supported by the memorandum set out in §§ 71.150 and 71.151.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should specify the facts that the defendant relies on that cannot be found by reference to the face of the complaint or to matters of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice.

the memorandum in this form may be adapted for use by the moving party when it is the opposing party who seeks to rely on extrinsic evidence not subject to judicial notice to support the sufficiency of the pleading [see, e.g., McCarthy v. Frost (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 872, 874, n.2, 109 Cal. Rptr. 470 , cited in the form and discussed below].

[b] Judicial Notice

Matters subject to judicial notice are set out in Evid. Code §§ 451, 452 and 453. A court may, among other things, take judicial notice of its own records, including orders, statements of decision, and judgments [see Evid. Code § 452(d)]. However, it cannot, in this guise, judicially notice the truth of hearsay allegations simply because they are contained in supporting testimonial documents that are included in a court record or file [Garcia v. Sterling (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 17, 21-22, 221 Cal. Rptr. 349] .

For further discussion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.153[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Extrinsic Evidence

The facts and procedural background of Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc'y v. Thornton (1897) 117 Cal. 481, 49 P. 573 , are set forth in § 71.150[4][a]. In Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc'y v. Thornton, the Supreme Court reversed the judgment on the pleadings for defendant, stating that the trial court cannot, on a motion by defendant for judgment on the pleadings, consider any matter outside of the complaint, or any defense to it in the answer, but rather, that the motion is to be determined on the same principles as a demurrer to the complaint on the same ground (117 Cal. 481, 482) .

Note that the court may in ruling on a motion for judgment on the pleadings, as in the case of ruling on a general demurrer [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.30(a), 430.70], consider matters subject to judicial notice [see § 71.151].

Cloud v. Northrop Grumman Corp. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 995, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548 , involved an action for wrongful termination and sexual harassment against plaintiff's former employer and plaintiff's former supervisor (collectively referred to as Northrop). After being terminated from employment, plaintiff filed for chapter 7 bankruptcy protection (11 U.S.C. § 701 et seq.). In the schedules filed with the bankruptcy court, plaintiff did not disclose any claim or potential claim against Northrop. While the bankruptcy action was pending, plaintiff filed a complaint against Northrop with the Department of Fair Employment and Housing and received a right-to-sue letter from the department. Shortly after plaintiff received a bankruptcy discharge, but while the bankruptcy action remained pending, plaintiff filed the wrongful termination and sexual harassment action. After the bankruptcy case was closed, Northrop moved for judgment on the pleadings requesting the court to take judicial notice of the bankruptcy filings, which revealed that plaintiff had not scheduled plaintiff's claims against Northrop as assets of plaintiff's bankruptcy estate. Northrop contended first that plaintiff lacked standing to pursue the civil action because, under bankruptcy law, plaintiff's claim against Northrop was the property of the bankruptcy estate and therefore the bankruptcy trustee was the real party in interest. Second, Northrop contended that plaintiff was judicially estopped from pursuing the lawsuit because of plaintiff's prior failure to schedule the lawsuit as an asset of the bankruptcy estate. The trial court agreed and granted the motion without leave to amend on the grounds that the plaintiff lacked standing and that plaintiff was judicially estopped from pursuing plaintiff's claim. Judgment in favor of Northrop was entered and plaintiff appealed (67 Cal. App. 4th 995, 998-1000) .

The court of appeal reversed. As to the standing issue the court held that leave to amend should have been granted either to substitute the real party in interest (the bankruptcy trustee) or to obtain the trustee's abandonment of the claim (67 Cal. App. 4th 995, 1000) . On the issue of judicial estoppel, the court noted that a motion for judgment on the pleadings attacks only defects appearing on the face of the pleadings or by matters that can be judicially noticed. Therefore presentation of extrinsic evidence is not proper on a motion for judgment on the pleadings (67 Cal. App. 4th 995, 999) . Because the defense of judicial estoppel raised factual issues that could not be decided solely by reviewing plaintiff's complaint and the bankruptcy filings that could be judicially noticed, it could not be decided on a motion for judgment on the pleadings (67 Cal. App. 4th 995, 1000, 1018-1019) .

The facts and procedural background of Uptown Enterprises v. Strand (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 45, 15 Cal. Rptr. 486 , are discussed in 71.154[3][a]. The court of appeal reversed the judgment on the pleadings for defendants. Quoting from Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc'y, discussed above, the court said that on a motion by defendant for judgment on the pleadings the court cannot consider any matter outside of the complaint, or any defense to the complaint in the answer, but rather, that the motion is to be determined on the same principles as would be a demurrer to the complaint on the same ground (195 Cal. App. 2d 45, 47) .

[b] Interpretations Requiring Extrinsic Evidence

Trewin v. State of California (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 975, 198 Cal. Rptr. 263 , involved an action growing out of an automobile accident. Plaintiffs alleged that defendant state had issued a driver's license to the individual who had caused the accident after having determined that the individual was incapable of operating a motor vehicle safely for reasons of diminished mental and physical agility. The trial court granted judgment on the pleadings for defendant on the grounds that issuing the license had been a discretionary act, for which the state could not be sued. Plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment on the pleadings. The court held that under the applicable statutes, the act of issuing the license was a violation of a mandatory duty, for which the state could be sued, if defendant had actually determined that the person who had received the license was not capable of operating a vehicle safely before issuing the license (150 Cal. App. 3d 975, 981) . Considering the propriety of the judgment on the pleadings, the court cited a portion on the record in which the trial court listened to plaintiffs state their proffered evidence to support their allegation that the DMV was aware of the person's unfitness to drive before issuing the license, including evidence that the DMV examiner noted on the person's driver's license application that the person was suffering from "general debilities." In the cited portion of record, the trial judge concluded that the notation of "general debilities" was not sufficient to show that the DMV had made a determination according to applicable statute that the person was not fit to drive a vehicle. The court of appeal held that the trial judge's statement showed that the trial court had acted outside the scope of the motion by receiving evidence and interpreting the notation of "general debilities" as a condition less severe than that required by statute to trigger the state's mandatory duty not to issue a license. The court stated that whether that examiner was using the term "general debilities" in a sense analogous to the statutory provisions triggering the mandatory duty not to issue a license was a question of fact that could only be determined from all of the evidence produced by plaintiffs at the time of trial (150 Cal. App. 3d 975, 980) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Extrinsic Evidence

The facts and procedural background of McCarthy v. Frost (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 872, 109 Cal. Rptr. 470 , are discussed in § 71.150[3][e]. In McCarthy, it was plaintiffs who sought to rely on extrinsic evidence in opposing defendants' motion for judgment on the pleadings. In affirming the judgment for defendants, the court of appeal said that on a motion for judgment on the pleadings, as on a general demurrer, the question is whether the complaint states a cause of action (33 Cal. App. 3d 872, 874) and in a footnote explained that in the light of this rule the court had to ignore plaintiffs' repeated reference to exhibits and depositions (33 Cal. App. 3d 872, 874 n.2).

The facts and procedural background of Lortz v. Connell (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 286, 78 Cal. Rptr. 6 , are discussed in § 71.153[4][a]. In Lortz, although holding that defendants' motion for judgment on the pleadings was properly granted but that it was error to deny plaintiff leave to amend, the court of appeal said that it is generally stated that on a motion for judgment on the pleadings the court cannot consider any matter outside the complaint and that neither the former judgment, nor the relevancy, competency, or weight of the evidence produced in the action, was a proper matter for consideration on the merits of the motion for judgment (273 Cal. App. 2d 286, 292-293) .

Note

that a prior judgment may be considered under the doctrine of judicial notice [see § 71.21] and that matters subject to judicial notice may be considered by the court in ruling on a motion for judgment on the pleadings [see § 71.151].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
CHAPTER 71 DEMURRERS AND MOTIONS FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
PART II. FORMS
B. Motions For Judgment on The Pleadings
2. Motion By Defendant

7A-71 California Points & Authorities § 71.156

§ 71.156 Opposing Motion by Defendant for Judgment on Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(B)]--Defects in Pleading Cured by Admissions in Answer

[1] FORM Opposing Motion by Defendant for Judgment on Pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(B)]--Defects in Pleading Cured by Admissions in Answer

[The following should be combined with a memorandum in opposition to a motion for judgment on the pleadings (see, e.g., § 71.153).]

DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE THE DEFENDANT, BY HIS/HER ADMISSIONS IN THE ANSWER, HAS CURED THE ALLEGED DEFECT IN THE COMPLAINT.

Defect Cured by Answer. Notwithstanding the omission of an essential allegation in the complaint, it is error to grant judgment on the pleadings when the answer has come to the relief of the complaint by admitting the matters that were omitted (see Way v. Shaver (1906) 2 Cal. App. 650, 652-653) .

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a motion by defendant for judgment on the pleadings, when the defendant asserts that the complaint omits an essential allegation but alleges in the answer the matter omitted.

These points and authorities should be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings [see § 71.153]. They may also be adapted for use in an appellate brief.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings supported by the memorandum set out in §§ 71.150 and 71.151.

It should be noted that a result contrary to the point raised in this memorandum was reached in Hatch v. Draper (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 411, 412, 138 P.2d 682 . Hatch, without citing Way v. Shaver, stated that the complaint was not aided by the answer. Both opinions were rendered by the Second Appellate District. However, in Estate of Supple (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 410, 415, 55 Cal. Rptr. 542 , the First Appellate District observed that the result in Hatch was presumably reached because the trial court had dismissed the complaint only after the plaintiff had been given leave to amend and declined to do so. In Estate of Supple, the motion for judgment on the pleadings was also affirmed because appellant's counsel declined to amend the pleading in conformity with the answer with the result being that he was not permitted to contend that the defects in the pleading were cured by matters in the answer [Estate of Supple (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 410, 415-416, 55 Cal. Rptr. 542] .

On the other hand, Mohlmann v. City of Burbank (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 1037, 1041 n.2, 225 Cal. Rptr. 109 [see § 71.43], yet another Second Appellate District decision, stated that the rule is "well settled" that a complaint that lacks the averment of a fact essential to a cause of action may be so aided by the averment of that fact in the answer as to uphold a judgment on it. It would seem that the same result would apply in the case of a motion for judgment on the pleadings.

For a form of points and authorities in opposition to a demurrer when the demurrer supplies the missing allegation, see § 71.43.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel would identify the fact admitted in the answer that supplies the allegation omitted from the complaint.

See also §§ 71.20[2] and 71.153[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Defect Cured by Answer

Way v. Shaver (1906) 2 Cal. App. 650 , was an action by a creditor against a debtor to declare an instrument a deed of trust and for an order of sale of certain property for the benefit of the creditor. The debtor defendant moved for judgment on the pleadings on the ground that the complaint was insufficient to authorize the court to declare a trust because it failed to allege that the trustee denied the trust or refused to carry out the terms of the trust. The trial court granted the judgment on the pleadings.

The court of appeal reversed. The court stated that although the complaint did not aver any demand on the trustee to enforce the trust, any refusal to do so, or any knowledge of the plaintiff's claim, the answer came to the relief of the complaint by admitting knowledge of the claim, denying its validity, and pleading payment. The effect of these admissions was to admit that a formal demand would have been unavailing, and therefore not an essential prerequisite. The court distinguished the facts before it from those of Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc'y v. Thornton (1897) 117 Cal. 481, 49 P. 573 , which determined that averments in the answer could not be considered, because in that case the effect of the allegations, if they were true, would be to defeat the action, and evidence is necessary to establish their truth. In this case, however, the allegations were in aid of the complaint and the court was bound to consider such admissions that would have the effect of obviating proof of particular matters on plaintiff's part, and if the complaint, coupled with such admissions, conferred jurisdiction in equity to declare a trust, the motion for a judgment should have been denied (2 Cal. App. 650, 652) .

95 of 125 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 7A Chapters 71-79 DEMURRERS
Chapters 72through 79 RESERVED

7A-72 California Points & Authorities Chapters 72through 79

RESERVED

Chapters 72RESERVED

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING

8-80 California Points & Authorities 80.syn

§ 80.syn Synopsis to Chapter 80: DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING

§ 80.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 80.02 Governing Law

[1] California Civil Discovery Act and Related Law

[2] General Provisions Limiting or Regulating Discovery

[3] Case Law Decided Under Prior Discovery Acts

[4] Federal Authority

§ 80.03 Effect of Trial Court Delay Reduction Act and Local Delay Reduction Rules

§ 80.03A Discovery of Electronically Stored Information (E-Discovery)

[1] California Governing Law

[2] Federal Rules Governing Electronic Discovery

§ 80.04 How to Use the Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Memoranda

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

§ 80.05 Related Discussion and Forms

[1] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[2] Related Memoranda Chapters

§§ 80.06-80.09 [Reserved]

§ 80.10 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Irrelevancy Objection [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Liberal Standard for Subject Matter Relevancy

[b] Relevancy to Discovery Is Broader Than Relevancy to Issues

[c] Potential as Well as Actual Issues Are Relevant to Subject Matter

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Matters Relevant to Subject Matter of Litigation Discoverable

§§ 80.11-80.19 [Reserved]

§ 80.20 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Matters Relating to Defendant's Liability Insurance Are Discoverable [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.210]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Existence and Extent of Liability Insurance Is Discoverable

[b] Insurer's Disclaimer of Liability Is Discoverable

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Existence and Extent of Liability Insurance Is Discoverable

§ 80.21 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Insurer's Loss Reserves and Reinsurance Information Are Relevant and Discoverable in Insurance Bad Faith Litigation

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Discoverability of Loss Reserves and Reinsurance Information

§ 80.22 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Names, Addresses, and Files of Insurer's Claimants Are Relevant and Discoverable in Action for Unfair Settlement Practices

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Discovery of Names, Addresses, and Files of Insurer's Claimants

§ 80.23 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery of Matters Supporting Amendment of Pleadings

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Facts Needed to State Cause of Action

[b] Facts Needed to Amend Pleadings

[c] Facts Needed to Overcome Demurrer

[d] Potential Class Members

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Facts Needed to Amend Pleadings

[b] Facts Needed to State Cause of Action

[c] Potential Class Members

§ 80.24 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery of Facts on Which Allegations Are Based, Contentions, Matters Known to Party Seeking Discovery, Evidence That May Be Inadmissible at Trial, Jurisdictional Information, Hearsay Evidence, or Questions That Assume Facts Not in Evidence

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Facts on Which Allegations Are Based

[b] Contentions of Party

[c] Matters Known to Party Seeking Discovery

[d] Evidence That May Be Inadmissible at Trial

[e] Jurisdictional Information

[f] Hearsay Evidence

[g] Questions That Assume Facts Not in Evidence

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Facts on Which Allegations Are Based

§ 80.25 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery Into Areas Relating to Concession by Opposing Party

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Discovery Into Areas Relating to Matters Which Were Conceded

§§ 80.26-80.39 [Reserved]

§ 80.40 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery Improper When Irrelevant Matters Sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Disclosure of Irrelevant Information

[b] Questions Unrelated to Claim for Relief

[c] Disclosure of Information Unrelated to Subject Matter of Action

[d] Questions That Are Unlikely to Lead to Discovery of Admissible Evidence

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Questions That Are Irrelevant to Action and Unlikely to Lead to Discovery of Admissible Evidence

§§ 80.41-80.49 [Reserved]

§ 80.50 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery in Aid of Amendment of Pleadings Improper When No Cause of Action Stated or No Genuine Issue of Material Fact Present

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Uses

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Discovery When Complaint Cannot Be Improved by Amendment

[b] Discovery Improper When No Genuine Issue of Material Fact

§ 80.51 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Information Relating to Non-Party Insurer's Financial Condition Is Not Discoverable for Settlement Purposes [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.210]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Non-Party Insurer's Financial Condition Is Not Discoverable Under Code of Civ. Proc. § 2017 for Purposes of Settlement

[b] Non-Party Insurer's Reinsurance Information Is Irrelevant for Settlement Purposes

§§ 80.52-80.79 [Reserved]

§ 80.80 Supporting Motion for Protective Order--Burden, Expense, or Intrusiveness Outweighs Likelihood of Obtaining Admissible Evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.020]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Balancing Burden Against Likelihood of Discovering Admissible Evidence

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Balancing Burden Against Likelihood of Discovering Admissible Evidence

§§ 80.81-80.99 [Reserved]

§ 80.100 Supporting Motion for Protective Order--Restricting Frequency or Extent of Use of Discovery Methods [Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.030]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Discovery Methods

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

§ 80.101 Supporting Motion to Establish Sequence and Timing of Discovery [Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.020(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

§ 80.102 Supporting Motion for the Use of Technology in Complex Cases and Certain Other Cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.730]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

§§ 80.103-80.109 [Reserved]

§ 80.110 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery Request on New Trial Is Not Barred by Discovery Cutoff Date for Initial Trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.020]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Time for Completing Discovery For New Trial Is Subject to New Trial Cutoff Date

§ 80.111 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to Complete Discovery, to Have Discovery Motion Heard, or to Reopen Discovery [Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.050]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Time Limitations on Discovery

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Time Limitations on Discovery

[b] Factors to Be Considered

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART I. INTRODUCTION

8-80 California Points & Authorities § 80.01

§ 80.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter includes memoranda relating to the general provisions of the Civil Discovery Act that govern the overall scope, regulation and timing of civil discovery proceedings.

Subpart A of Part II includes memoranda relating to the general limits on the scope of discovery set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010 et seq.:

- Forms supporting [80.10 et seq.] and opposing [§ 80.40 et seq.] a motion to compel discovery based on the relevancy of the matter sought to be discovered.

- A form supporting [§ 80.80] a motion for protective order limiting the scope of discovery on the ground that the burden, expense, or intrusiveness of discovery under the particular circumstances outweighs the likelihood that the matters sought to be discovered will lead to admissible evidence.

Subpart B of Part II includes memoranda relating to the general provisions by which discovery may be regulated under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2019.010 et seq. and 2024.010 et seq.:

- A form supporting a motion for protective order [§ 80.100] under Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.030 that restricts the frequency or extent of discovery that is unreasonably cumulative, burdensome, or expensive under the circumstances.

- A form supporting a motion to establish a particular sequence and timing for discovery [§ 80.101] under Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.020(b), when it serves the convenience of parties or witnesses or otherwise serves the interests of justice.

- A form supporting [§ 80.110] a motion to compel discovery on the ground that it is not barred by the general time limits for completing discovery under Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.020.

- A form supporting [§ 80.111] a motion seeking leave under Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.050 to complete discovery, hear a discovery motion, or reopen discovery notwithstanding the general time limits for completing discovery.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryDisclosuresMotions to CompelCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMotions to CompelCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective OrdersCivil ProcedureDiscoveryRelevanceCivil ProcedureDiscoveryUndue Burdens

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART I. INTRODUCTION

8-80 California Points & Authorities § 80.02

§ 80.02 Governing Law

[1] California Civil Discovery Act and Related Law

Civil discovery in California is governed primarily by the California Civil Discovery Act, codified at Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.010 et seq. The Act governs all discovery proceedings filed on or after its operative date, July 1, 2005 [Stats. 2004, ch. 182, § 64].

The Discovery Act also applies to discovery in other proceedings. The Act applies to:

- Limited civil cases, to the extent provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 94 and 95 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 94; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 345A, Limited Civil Cases (Matthew Bender)].

- Discovery in aid of enforcement of a money judgment, to the extent provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 708.010-708.020 (written interrogatories to judgment debtor) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 708.010; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments (Matthew Bender)].

- Judicial arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.10 et seq., subject to certain limitations [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing, § 190.50[2] (Matthew Bender); see generally California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration (Matthew Bender)].

- Probate proceedings, except as otherwise provided by the Probate Code or the rules adopted by the Judicial Council [Prob. Code § 1000; see Mota v. Superior Court (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 351, 353, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 303 (petitioner was entitled to conduct discovery relevant to her objections to distribution petition)].

- Uninsured motorist proceedings provided for and limited by Ins. Code § 11580.2(f) [see Miranda v.

21st Century Ins. Co. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 913, 926, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 159 (superior court has exclusive jurisdiction under uninsured motorist law to hear discovery matters arising in uninsured motorist arbitrations; thus, court had power to dismiss case as terminating sanction)].

- Formal state bar proceedings, as adopted and limited by the rules of procedure of the State Bar of California [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 70, Attorney Admission and Discipline (Matthew Bender)].

- Proceedings by the New Motor Vehicle Board, if deemed appropriate in proceedings by the New Motor Vehicle Board [Veh. Code §§ 3050.1, 3050.2].

- Family law court proceedings [Schnabel v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 704, 711, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 200, 854 P.2d 1117 (family law litigants are entitled to all the discovery provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.010 et seq.); see, e.g., In re Marriage of Hixson (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1116, 1121, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 483 (family court did not abuse its discretion in preventing unnecessary discovery with respect to parties' stock)]. Fam. Code § 3666 also specifically makes the usual practices of civil discovery applicable to the enforcement of expedited family law discovery [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Loh (2002) 93 Cal. App. 4th 325, 327, 330-331, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 893 (reversing child support order based on "lifestyle" evidence consisting of photos of ex-spouse at his girlfriend's home and with different cars because such evidence "is not a cheap substitute for proper discovery of income reported on tax returns," when ex-wife made no motions to compel production of those documents)].

Depositions are available in certain circumstances in workers' compensation proceedings [see Labor Code § 5710].

In addition, the Third and Sixth Appellate Districts held that the Discovery Act applies to proceedings under the Sexually Violent Predators Act (SVPA) (Welf. & Inst. Code § 6600 et seq.) [see Lee v. Superior Court (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1108, 1128, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 712 (scope of appropriate discovery in SVPA proceedings is limited, citing Cheek); People v. Superior Court (Cheek) (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 980, 991, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 760 (holding that deposition method of discovery is available in SVPA proceedings, that discovery in SVPA proceedings is subject to certain civil discovery provisions expressly authorizing trial court to manage discovery and to prevent misuse of discovery procedures, and that scope of discovery in SVPA proceedings is circumscribed by narrow issues presented at trial); Leake v. Superior Court (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 675, 682, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 767 , overruled on other grounds, People v. Yartz (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 529, 537, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 328, 123 P.3d 604 (trial court erred by denying motion to compel exchange of expert witness information based on its erroneous conclusion that civil discovery procedures did not apply)]. However, the Fourth Appellate District, Division Three, held, as a matter of first impression, that requests for admissions may not be propounded in SVPA proceedings because their use would eviscerate the SVPA's requirement that the state prove its case beyond a reasonable doubt and, when the case is tried to a jury, obtain a unanimous verdict before a person may be committed. To relieve the state of this burden would deprive a person of liberty interests in violation of the right to due process [Murillo v. Superior Court (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 730, 739-740, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 511] . The Fourth Appellate District, Division Two, held that as a special proceeding of a civil nature, a civil commitment proceeding under the SVPA requires application of the civil discovery rules [People v. Dixon (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 414, 443, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 33]. However, the court did not address whether all of the specific procedures afforded under the Civil Discovery Act apply to SVPA proceedings, noting Division Three's holding that, in SVPA proceedings, the use of request for admission under Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.010(e) would violate defendant's due process rights [People v. Dixon (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 414, 442 n.2, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 33 ; see Murillo v. Superior Court (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 730, 740, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 511].

The First Appellate District has held that the Discovery Act applies to competency hearings under Penal Code § 1369 [Baqleh v. Superior Court (People) (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 478, 491, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 673 ; see Penal Code § 1367 et seq. (mentally incompetent immune from trial or punishment; determination of competency)]. The appellate court ruled the trial court may order a criminal defendant to submit to a mental examination by an expert designated by the prosecution in order to evaluate mental competence under Penal Code § 1369, but the order must comply with Discovery Act, specifying the time, place, manner, conditions, scope and nature of the examination, and the identity and specialty of persons performing the examination, in accordance with former Code Civ. Proc. § 2032(d) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.310(b)) [Baqleh v. Superior Court (People) (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 478, 505-506, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 673] .

Statewide rules of court relating to discovery papers and discovery motions are set out in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1000, 3.1345, 3.1346, 3.1347, and 3.1348.

[2] General Provisions Limiting or Regulating Discovery

The general scope of permissible discovery under the Discovery Act is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010.

General provisions for protective orders are set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.020, which permits the issuance of a protective order to limit the scope of discovery on the ground that the burden, expense, or intrusiveness of discovery under the particular circumstances outweighs the likelihood that the matters sought to be discovered will lead to admissible evidence. In addition, the general provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.030 permits the issuance of a protective order to restrict the frequency or extent of use of discovery methods to prevent discovery that is unreasonably cumulative, burdensome, or expensive under the circumstances.

Note that elsewhere in the Discovery Act, provisions governing the particular method of discovery usually include more specific provisions for protective orders relating to the use of that particular method. For example, a protective order regarding a deposition is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 2025.420, while a protective order regarding an interrogatory is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 2030.090.

The general provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.020(b) permits the court to make, in effect, a regulatory order, that is, an order establishing a particular sequence and timing for discovery, when to do so would serve the convenience of parties or witnesses or otherwise serve the interests of justice.

The general deadlines for completing discovery proceedings and motions, applicable generally to any motion to compel discovery, are set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.020. A motion for an order granting leave to complete discovery or to have a discovery motion heard closer to the initial trial date, or to reopen discovery after a new trial date has been set, is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.050. Unless the court orders otherwise, the parties may also modify the procedures for taking depositions or using other discovery methods by written stipulation [Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.030].

[3] Case Law Decided Under Prior Discovery Acts

The Civil Discovery Act was passed in 2004 and became effective July 1, 2005. It repealed and renumbered the Civil Discovery Act of 1986 but did not substantively change the law of civil discovery [Stats. 2004, ch. 182 §§ 22, 23, 61]. Thus cases decided under the 1986 Act remain controlling authority. A considerable body of case law interpreted the discovery provisions of the Discovery Act of 1956 (former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2016-2037.9), which preceded the 1986 Act. Although the 1986 Act, which became operative July 1, 1987, implemented numerous changes in the prior law, it also continued provisions of the prior law in many other instances, or even codified decisions interpreting the prior law. Decisions construing this prior law are therefore cited as persuasive, rather than controlling, authority to the extent that they are consistent with current provisions [see In re Marriage of Skelley (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 365, 369, 134 Cal. Rptr. 197, 556 P.2d 297] .

[4] Federal Authority

When the prior Discovery Act became operative in 1957 [see [3], above], its provisions adapted the then existing federal rules relating to discovery. The prior Act was intended to broaden discovery procedures in California so that they would be comparable to those in the federal courts [see Report of the Committee on Administration of Justice, 31 Cal. St. B.J., Discovery, 204-231 (1956); Kahn v. Kahn (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 372, 384, 137 Cal. Rptr. 332] . Federal cases, therefore, were frequently considered as authority in certain situations for the interpretation of California discovery statutes [see, e.g., Gorman Rupp Indus., Inc. v. Superior Court (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 28, 30, 97 Cal. Rptr. 377] .

Federal cases are now generally less useful, however, as persuasive authority for interpreting California's discovery provisions. With the revision of the Discovery Act in 1986 and with changes in the federal rules relating to discovery [see Fed. R. Civ. P., Rules 26-37], there is more disparity between the state and federal provisions. State appellate courts have also developed an extensive body of law construing the Discovery Act and related state provisions. Authorities cited in this and subsequent chapters on civil discovery are therefore almost exclusively state court decisions. Counsel with novel questions of law, however, may consider seeking federal authorities in support of their arguments, when the federal rules are substantially similar to the California statute to be construed [see Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 26, General Provisions Governing Discovery; Duty of Disclosure ; Ch. 27, Depositions or Other Discovery Before Action or Pending Appeal ; Ch. 28, Persons Before Whom Depositions May Be Taken ; Ch. 29, Stipulations Regarding Discovery Practice ; Ch. 30, Depositions Upon Oral Examination ; Ch. 31, Depositions Upon Written Questions ; Ch. 32, Use of Depositions in Court Proceedings ; Ch. 33, Interrogatories to Parties ; Ch. 34, Production of Documents and Things and Entry Upon Land for Inspections and Other Purposes ; Ch. 35, Physical and Mental Examinations of Persons ; Ch. 36, Requests for Admissions ; Ch. 37, Failure to Make Disclosure or Cooperate in Discovery: Sanctions (3d ed. Matthew Bender)]. Similarly, due to the importance of federal rules covering electronic evidence and electronic discovery, and the lack of detailed California regulation of that topic [see § 80.03A, below], federal cases dealing with electronic evidence and e-discovery remain important in the context of these issues in California.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryProtective OrdersCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewLegal EthicsSanctionsDisciplinary ProceedingsInvestigations

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART I. INTRODUCTION

8-80 California Points & Authorities § 80.03

§ 80.03 Effect of Trial Court Delay Reduction Act and Local Delay Reduction Rules

Under the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act (Gov. Code § 68600 et seq.), many local courts have adopted delay reduction or "fast track" programs for non-complex cases. The Discovery Act, however, continues to govern discovery in cases subject to these programs, except in arbitration proceedings. Local rules are not allowed to shorten time periods set forth in the Discovery Act [Gov. Code § 68616(f)]. In limited civil cases, discovery is governed in addition by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 94 and 95, and discovery subject to these provisions also may not be affected by the provisions of a trial court delay program [Gov. Code § 68620(c)].

Nonetheless, local delay reduction programs may include rules providing for the court to regulate all discovery, consistent with these laws [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.020(b) (court may make order establishing particular sequence and timing for discovery in interests of justice); see also §§ 80.02[2] and 80.101]. In such cases, the trial court may, for example, inquire of the parties at status conferences as to the nature and extent of discovery remaining [Los Angeles Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.9(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryElectronic DiscoveryCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART I. INTRODUCTION

2-80 California Points & Authorities § 80.03A

§ 80.03A Discovery of Electronically Stored Information (E-Discovery)

[1] California Governing Law

Discovery of electronically stored information under the Civil Discovery Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2016.010-2036.050] is governed generally by the Electronic Discovery Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.8, 2031.010-2031.510; Stats. 2009 Ch. 5], which became effective as an urgency measure on June 29, 2009. Related provisions of the Civil Discovery Act include the provisions governing discovery generally, set out in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2016.010-2019.030, 2023.010-2023.040.

The extent of discovery permitted under the Civil Discovery Act is restricted in limited civil cases by the economic litigation provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 94 and 95 [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 345A, Limited Civil Cases (Matthew Bender)]. The use of demands for the production or inspection of tangible evidence is limited specifically by Code Civ. Proc. § 94(a).

"Meet and confer" requirements regarding discovery of electronically stored information are set out in California Rules of Court, Rule 3.724(8). Statewide rule provisions relating to the format, content, and service of discovery papers and motions, and to discovery sanctions, are contained in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1000, 3.1020, 3.1025, and 3.1030.

For a more detailed discussion of the Electronic Discovery Act, see Ch. 85A, Discovery : E-Discovery.

[2] Federal Rules Governing Electronic Discovery

The Electronic Discovery Act is modeled in part on federal rules governing e-discovery [see Fed. R. Civ. P. 16(b)(3)(B)(iii), (iv), 26(b)(2)(B), (b)(5), (f)(3)(c), 34(b)(1)(C), (b)(2)(D), (b)(2)(E), 37(e)]. The Federal Rules were revised to address e-discovery issues, effective December 1, 2006--before most states (including California) had enacted their own rules governing e-discovery in state proceedings. As a result, state courts throughout the United States have often looked to federal judicial decisions--primarily in the federal district courts--for guidance on how to deal with similar e-discovery issues under state law. Because the California electronic discovery statutes are new, and e-discovery issues were considered only infrequently in published California court opinions under the prior law [see, e.g., People v. Lugashi (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 632, 640, 252 Cal. Rptr. 434 (allowing admission of bank computer records); R.S.

Creative v. Creative Cotton (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 486, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 353 (terminating sanctions for actions including spoliation of evidence on computers)]. California courts may be expected to look to federal decisions construing the federal rules, and to out-of-state authority, for guidance on the treatment of e-discovery issues.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART I. INTRODUCTION

8-80 California Points & Authorities § 80.04

§ 80.04 How to Use the Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Memoranda

One of the more significant drafting requirements to keep in mind is page limits: supporting and opposing memoranda filed in discovery motion proceedings may not exceed 15 pages. A reply or closing memorandum may not exceed 10 pages. Exhibits, declarations, attachments, the table of contents, the table of authorities, and the proof of service are excluded from these page limits. Any party must obtain leave of court to file a longer memorandum [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d)]. These and other drafting requirements are discussed in further detail in Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

The forms included in this chapter are designed to be included in a memorandum supporting or opposing a particular type of discovery motion, such as motion to compel discovery or a motion for a protective order.

In many cases it will be appropriate to combine them with additional memoranda set out in the related discovery chapters, Chapters 81 through 89A. For example, they may be combined with memoranda supporting or opposing a motion to compel discovery, or a motion for protective order, in the context of a particular discovery method [see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.30 et seq. (supporting and opposing motion to compel in context of deposition), § 83.80 et seq. (supporting and opposing motion for protective order in context of deposition)]. They may also be combined with memoranda supporting or opposing a motion to compel discovery based on the application of an evidentiary privilege or other provision limiting discovery [see, e.g., Ch. 81, Discovery: Privileges and Other Discovery Limitations, § 81.60 et seq. (supporting and opposing motion to compel based on application of attorney-client privilege)].

It may also be appropriate to modify the memorandum for use in another procedural context. For example, memoranda designed to oppose a motion to compel may in an appropriate case be modified for use in supporting a motion for protective order.

For a detailed discussion on how to select and use the forms in the publication to build a draft memorandum and complete the draft, with detailed discussion of all drafting requirements and strategic or stylistic considerations, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs . For a skeletal form of memorandum for use in creating a properly formatted outline in which to compile relevant forms from this publication, see also Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting Memoranda

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART I. INTRODUCTION

8-80 California Points & Authorities § 80.05

§ 80.05 Related Discussion and Forms

[1] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For background discussion of the general provisions of the Discovery Act relating to overall scope, regulation, and timing, with related forms of motions and supporting papers, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation and Timing (Matthew Bender).

[2] Related Memoranda Chapters

For memoranda supporting or opposing a motion to compel discovery on the ground that the matter sought to be discovered is privileged or is otherwise protected from disclosure, see Ch. 81, Discovery: Privileges and Other Discovery Limitations .

For memoranda supporting or opposing a motion to compel discovery, or supporting or opposing a motion for protective order, in the context of a particular discovery method, see Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions , through Ch. 88, Discovery: Exchange of Expert Witness Information .

For memoranda for use in seeking or opposing writs to review discovery orders, see Ch. 89A, Discovery: Review of Discovery Orders .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsExpert Witness DiscoveryCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryPrivileged MattersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryPrivileged MattersWork ProductGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART I. INTRODUCTION

8-80 California Points & Authorities §§ 80.06-80.09

[Reserved]

§§ 80.06[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART II. FORMS
A. General Provisions Limiting Scope

8-80 California Points & Authorities § 80.10

§ 80.10 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Irrelevancy Objection [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010]--General Form

[1] FORM Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Irrelevancy Objection [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010]--General Form

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general memorandum in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11).]

MATTERS ARE RELEVANT TO THE SUBJECT MATTER, AND THEREFORE DISCOVERABLE, IF THEY WILL LEAD TO ADMISSIBLE EVIDENCE OR HELP IN TRIAL PREPARATION, AND DOUBTS AS TO SUBJECT MATTER RELEVANCY SHOULD BE DECIDED IN FAVOR OF PERMITTING DISCOVERY.

A. Matters Relevant to Subject Matter of Litigation Discoverable. Unless otherwise limited by order of the court, any party may obtain discovery regarding any matter, not privileged, that is relevant to the subject matter involved in the pending action or to the determination of any motion made in that action if the matter either is itself admissible in evidence or appears reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence (Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010).

B. Liberal Standard for Subject Matter Relevancy. Discovery should not be denied on the grounds of "irrelevancy" if there is a reasonable possibility that the answers sought by a given line of questioning will lead to the discovery of admissible evidence or be helpful in preparation for trial. Doubts as to relevancy should be resolved in favor of permitting discovery (Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 161, 173, 84 Cal. Rptr. 718, 465 P.2d 854).

C. Relevancy to Discovery Is Broader Than Relevancy to Issues. There is a wide divergence between the subject matter of anaction and the issues in an action. Relevancy to the subject matter is a broader concept than relevancy to the issues (Greyhound Corp. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 355, 390, 15 Cal. Rptr. 90, 364 P.2d 266 ; Pettie v. Superior Court (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 680, 687, 3 Cal. Rptr. 267).

D. Potential as Well as Actual Issues Are Relevant to Subject Matter. Relevancy to the subject matter is not restricted to the issues formally raised in the pleadings. It is determined by potential as well as actual issues in the case (Union Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 1, 10, 145 Cal. Rptr. 316).

[Optional] E. Discovery Relating to Claim or Defense. Except as limited by privilege or court order, discovery may relate to the claim or defense of the party seeking discovery or of any other party to the action (Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010).

[Optional] F. Discovery of Identity or Location of Persons, Documents, or Things. Except as limited by privilege or court order, discovery may be obtained of the identity and location of persons having knowledge of any discoverable matter, as well as of the existence, description, nature, custody, condition, and location of any document, tangible thing, or land or other property (Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be used in support of compelling discovery if a party or other person has resisted providing discovery on the ground that it does not call for relevant material. Unless the moving party anticipates a relevancy objection to the motion, it will usually be used in a reply memorandum submitted in response to the opposing memorandum. It does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of compelling discovery, as well as with forms relating to the specific facts in question.

Note that cases cited in this form construe law in effect before the operative date of the Civil Discovery Act. They are cited and discussed as persuasive authority to the extent that remain consistent with current provisions [see also § 80.02[3]].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, counsel should show how the mattersought to be discovered is itself admissible in evidence or appears reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 80.40 may be used to oppose the motion supported by the foregoing points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Liberal Standard for Subject Matter Relevancy

Plaintiff in Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 161, 84 Cal. Rptr. 718, 465 P.2d 854 , brought an action based on an alleged invasion of privacy through unauthorized wiretapping. Two defendants and a nonparty deponent refused to answer deposition questions posed by plaintiff's attorney relating to (1) procedure used in making unauthorized telephone taps; (2) knowledge of illegality of unauthorized monitoring; (3) a possible working relationship between the local police department and the security division of PT&T, and (4) monitoring of telephone conversations of subscribers other than plaintiff. Plaintiff filed motions for orders compelling answers to these questions, and defendant opposed the motions on the ground that the questions were irrelevant to the litigation and therefore not proper matters for discovery under former Code Civ. Proc. § 2016(b) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010). The trial court issued an order compelling answers to most of the questions on which the motion was based, and defendants sought a writ of prohibition to restrain the trial court from enforcing its order, which they claimed exceeded its jurisdiction.

In discussing the irrelevancy objection raised to the discovery, the Supreme Court stated that the standard of subject matter relevancy for discovery is broad and flexible (2 Cal. 3d 161, 173) . Some guidance is provided in interpreting the portion of former Code Civ. Proc. § 2016(b) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010) that provides that the deponent may be examined regarding any matter "relevant to the subject matter involved in the pending action," by the following language, which provides that inadmissibility at trial is not an objection if the matter is "reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence" (2 Cal. 3d 161, 172) . Although the Court has not articulated a single, comprehensive standard of relevancy to the subject matter, it has set forth the following guidelines: (1) the relevancy to the subject matter criterion is a broader concept than relevancy to the issues [see, e.g., Chronicle Pub. Co. v. Superior Court (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 548, 560, 7 Cal. Rptr. 109, 354 P.2d 637] ; (2) matters sought are discoverable if they will aid in the party's preparation for trial; (3) the trial court should give the party seeking discovery ample leeway inits determination of what is relevant for discovery purposes, since all of the issues and arguments that will come to light at trial often cannot be ascertained at the time discovery is sought (2 Cal. 3d 161, 172-173) . The Court concluded its discussion of this issue by stating that the standard of relevance to the subject matter must be reasonably applied under the liberal policies underlying discovery procedures, and doubts as to relevance should generally be resolved in favor of permitting discovery (2 Cal. 3d 161, 173) .

The Court in Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. found the questions to be relevant to the subject matter of the action and upheld the trial court's order. The Court stated that the questions requesting general information about the wiretapping equipment, training, and method might lead to the discovery of evidence useful in challenging defendant's allegations that the interception consisted of a tape recording of only some phone conversations of the plaintiff, and questions concerning division of authority in the company's security division would identify the individuals who might be liable, as well as possibly illustrating the company's negligence in allocating authority (2 Cal. 3d 161, 175-176) . Questions concerning whether the employees who allegedly performed the unauthorized eavesdropping knew that the activity was illegal clearly related to the subject matter of the action, since plaintiff specifically alleged this knowledge in the complaint and the answer expressly denied it (2 Cal. 3d 161, 176) . Similarly, questions seeking information concerning a possible general practice of employees of the security division communicating with the local police were clearly relevant because defendants expressly denied in their answer that any information relayed to the police resulted in plaintiff's arrest (2 Cal. 3d 161, 176) . Questions inquiring into the existence of a general telephone company practice of unauthorized monitoring and into the number of subscribers subjected to unauthorized eavesdropping were also relevant for discovery purposes. The responses to those questions might have produced evidence of similar wrongful acts relevant to show motive, intent, knowledge, plan, and absence of mistake, and the fact that defendants admitted monitoring plaintiff's phone did not render this information irrelevant to the subject matter (2 Cal. 3d 161, 177-178) .

[b] Relevancy to Discovery Is Broader Than Relevancy to Issues

In the landmark case of Greyhound Corp. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 355, 15 Cal. Rptr. 90, 364 P.2d 266 , the Supreme Court stated that it had previously considered and found untenable the contention that no material is discoverable under former Code Civ. Proc. § 2031 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2031.010 et seq.) unless it is shown to be relevant to the issues of the case (56 Cal. 2d 355, 390) . The Court mentioned its prior approval of the statements in Pettie v. Superior Court (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 680, 3 Cal. Rptr. 267 , discussed below, relating to subject matter relevancy (56 Cal. 2d 355, 390) .

The Greyhound case is discussed in greater detail in Ch. 81, Discovery: Privileges and Other Discovery Limitations, § 81.10[3][a].

Pettie v. Superior Court (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 680, 3 Cal. Rptr. 267 arose from a personal injury accident.

Defendant did not answer interrogatories seeking information about the extent or limits of her insurance coverage, and instead objected on the grounds that matters relating to a defendant's liability insurance did not relate to the subject matter involved in the action, and that the information was inadmissible in evidence and did not appear to be reasonably calculated to lead to admissible evidence. The trial court upheld the objections, and plaintiff sought a writ of mandate setting aside the trial court's order.

The court of appeal held that liability policy limits were clearly relevant to the subject matter involved in plaintiff's pending personal injury action against the insured (178 Cal. App. 2d 680, 687) . The court pointed out that the test is relevancy to the subject matter rather than relevancy to the issues, and that relevancy to the subject matter involved in a pending suit is a broader concept than relevancy to the issues (178 Cal. App. 2d 680, 687) . The court ordered the issuance of a peremptory writ of mandate.

[c] Potential as Well as Actual Issues Are Relevant to Subject Matter

Plaintiff in Union Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 1, 145 Cal. Rptr. 316 brought an action for declaratory relief and breach of contract relating to a group disability insurance policy issued to plaintiff's employer. Plaintiff served interrogatories, and defendant objected to some of them on the ground that the interrogatories were not relevant to the subject matter of the action. The interrogatories to which defendant initially objected related to information concerning (1) plaintiff's coemployees covered under the same policy, (2) similar insurance policies that were issued to employers within California other than plaintiff's employer and that were terminated, and (3) employers in states other than California who were operating under the same master policy that had been terminated.

The parties in Union Mut. worked out their differences relating to the interrogatories listed under (1). The information sought in the interrogatories listed in Groups (2) and (3) was being sought to enable plaintiff to amend the complaint to state a class action relating to long-term employee disability policies issued by Union Mutual to employers other than plaintiff's employer. Defendant apparently contended that the information was not relevant to the subject matter of the action, since no California or nationwide class action was alleged in the complaint and, therefore, therewas no subject matter to which the material could be relevant. The court of appeal stated, however, that relevancy of the subject matter is not restricted to the issues formally raised in the pleadings; it is determined by potential as well as actual issues in the case. Furthermore, discovery is proper if it would be material to any possible issue raised by new allegations in an amended complaint, and it was clear from the complaint in question that plaintiff intended to include the class actions in question in his complaint if a basis for them was disclosed by discovery (80 Cal. App. 3d 1, 10) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Matters Relevant to Subject Matter of Litigation Discoverable

In Volkswagen of Am., Inc. v. Superior Court, 139 Cal. App. 4th. 1481, 1497, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 723 , plaintiff sued 67 named defendants, including petitioner Volkswagen of America, Inc. (Volkswagen), for injuries he allegedly suffered as a result of asbestos exposure. Volkswagen sought production of documents that plaintiff submitted to bankruptcy trusts that were administering assets of other defendants. The trial court limited discovery on basis that the documents might be inadmissible at trial or because they were prepared or signed by plaintiff's attorney rather than plaintiff. Volkswagen sought a writ of mandate. The court of appeal concluded the trial court's discovery order had to be reevaluated based on whether the requested information was reasonably calculated to lead to admissible evidence, as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010 (139 Cal. App. 4th. 1481, 1497) . The court also discussed three different types of documentation in the production request. First, claim forms were discoverable because they could lead to admissible admissions against interest (139 Cal. App. 4th. 1481, 1493-1495) . Second, factual information concerning plaintiff's work history and medical condition was discoverable to the extent it was contained in a submission to a bankruptcy trust, because Volkswagen had good reason to review that information to determine whether plaintiff has overstated Volkswagen's share of responsibility for plaintiff's asbestos related disease (139 Cal. App. 4th. 1481, 1495-1496) . Finally, the trial court would be justified in refusing to order production of attempts to negotiate compromise if plaintiff itemized the documents and Volkswagen failed to show a reasonable likelihood that the documents would lead to admissible evidence (139 Cal. App. 4th. 1481, 1497) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART II. FORMS
A. General Provisions Limiting Scope

8-80 California Points & Authorities §§ 80.11-80.19

[Reserved]

§§ 80.11[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART II. FORMS
A. General Provisions Limiting Scope

8-80 California Points & Authorities § 80.20

§ 80.20 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Matters Relating to Defendant's Liability Insurance Are Discoverable [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.210]

[1] FORM Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Matters Relating to Defendant's Liability Insurance Are Discoverable [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.210]

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as well as with a general form of points and authorities refuting an irrelevancy objection (see, e.g., § 80.10).]

THE REQUESTED DISCOVERY SHOULD BE ALLOWED BECAUSE A PARTY MAY OBTAIN DISCOVERY OF THE EXISTENCE AND CONTENTS OF ANY AGREEMENT UNDER WHICH AN INSURANCE CARRIER MAY BE LIABLE TO SATISFY A JUDGMENT OR TO INDEMNIFY OR REIMBURSE FOR PAYMENTS MADE TO SATISFY A JUDGMENT[, AS WELL AS DISCOVERY ABOUT WHETHER THE INSURANCE CARRIER IS DISPUTING THE AGREEMENT'S COVERAGE OF THE CLAIM].

[EITHER]

A. Existence and Extent of Liability Insurance Is Discoverable. A party may obtain discovery of the existence and contents of any agreement under which any insurance carrier may be liable to satisfy in whole or in part a judgment that may be entered in the action or to indemnify or reimburse for payments made to satisfy the judgment. This discovery may include the identity of the carrier and the nature and limits of the coverage (Code Civ. Proc.§ 2017.210; see Pettie v. Superior Court (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 680, 687, 3 Cal. Rptr. 267).

[AND/OR]

B. Insurer's Disclaimer of Liability Is Discoverable. A party may obtain discovery as to whether an insurance carrier that may be liable to satisfy or reimburse for payments on a judgment is disputing the agreement's coverage of the claim involved in the action (Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.210; see Smith v. Superior Court (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 6, 11, 11 Cal. Rptr. 165).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be used in support of compelling discovery if a party or other person has resisted providing discovery on the ground that the existence or contents of liability insurance policies or disputes regarding coverage of the claims are not relevant or are otherwise improper. It does not provide a complete memorandum, but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of compelling discovery, as well as with forms relating to the specific facts in question.

Note that while discovery about whether defendant's liability insurer is disputing coverage is proper, the nature and substance of the dispute is not discoverable, and information concerning the insurance agreement is not by reason of disclosure admissible in evidence at trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.210].

Note that cases cited in this form construe law in effect before the operative date of the Civil Discovery Act. They are cited and discussed as persuasive authority to the extent that remain consistent with current provisions [see also § 80.02[3]].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Existence and Extent of Liability Insurance Is Discoverable

Pettie v. Superior Court (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 680, 3 Cal. Rptr. 267 , concerned a personal injury action in which plaintiff inquired by writteninterrogatories about whether defendant was covered by liability insurance and, if so, the combined total liability limits of all such policies. Defendant objected to these questions on the ground of irrelevance, and the trial court sustained the objection.

The court of appeal issued a writ of mandate, holding that under California statutory and case law, there is a contractual relationship between the injured party and the insurer that gives the injured party a discoverable interest in the insured's liability policy. In this regard, the existence and extent of liability insurance are relevant to the subject matter of the action. Since relevance to the subject matter, rather than relevance to the issues, is the statutory test for relevance under former Code Civ. Proc. § 2016(b) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010), the interrogatory in question was indeed proper (178 Cal. App. 2d 680, 687) .

The court held further that the disclosure of the existence and amount of liability insurance may lead to more efficacious disposition of negligence litigation, whether by trial or by settlement (178 Cal. App. 2d 680, 688, 689) . If a plaintiff is aware of the extent of insurance coverage, then he or she will be able to use better judgment concerning settlements (178 Cal. App. 2d 680, 689) . Moreover, it is important to the conduct of plaintiff's case that plaintiff's attorney be aware of whether his or her real adversary is an insurer or merely a private defendant (178 Cal. App. 2d 680, 690) .

[b] Insurer's Disclaimer of Liability Is Discoverable

Smith v. Superior Court (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 6, 11 Cal. Rptr. 165 arose out of an action for personal injuries and wrongful death in which one of plaintiff's interrogatories inquired about whether defendant had reason to believe that his insurer might disclaim liability. The trial court refused to order defendant to answer this interrogatory on the ground that it called for immaterial and confidential information, and the court of appeal issued a writ of mandate. In discussing the interrogatory in question, the court held that it was proper, in that an answer to the interrogatory would serve the purpose of permitting plaintiff to ascertain realistically whether a settlement might be worked out (189 Cal. App. 2d 6, 11) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Existence and Extent of Liability Insurance Is Discoverable

In Hecht, Solberg, Robinson, Goldberg & Bagley LLP v. Superior Court (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 579, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 446 , a legal malpractice action brought by real party in interest client against attorneys who represented him in obtaining settlement from another law firm, the trial court found the non-party law firm's subpoenaed business records, including information about its financial condition and liability insurance polices, were discoverable, subject to protective order, because the information was relevant and material to prove that better result should have been obtained for plaintiff by the attorney defendants. Defendant law firm brought this writ proceeding, opposing discovery on privacy grounds. The court of appeal denied relief. While declining to rule on the extent of the firm's privacy rights, the court held the non-party law firm's insurance policies were discoverable under Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.210, because they could lead to admissible evidence about the extent of coverage provided and whether coverage would have been contested (137 Cal App. 4th 579, 595) . Admissible evidence also could include information about assets or net worth (137 Cal App. 4th 579, 560-561) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART II. FORMS
A. General Provisions Limiting Scope

8-80 California Points & Authorities § 80.21

§ 80.21 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Insurer's Loss Reserves and Reinsurance Information Are Relevant and Discoverable in Insurance Bad Faith Litigation

[1] FORM Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Insurer's Loss Reserves and Reinsurance Information Are Relevant and Discoverable in Insurance Bad Faith Litigation

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motionto compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as well as with a general form of points and authorities refuting an irrelevancy objection (see, e.g., § 80.10).]

THE MOTION TO COMPEL SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE AN INSURER'S LOSS RESERVES AND REINSURANCE CONTRACTS ARE DISCOVERABLE IN INSURANCE BAD FAITH CLAIMS.

Discoverability of Loss Reserves and Reinsurance Information. In insurance bad faith litigation, parties may discover information pertaining to the insurer's loss reserves when such information will assist a party in evaluating the case, preparing for trial, or will facilitate settlement. Reinsurance information is discoverable on the same grounds, but must first be submitted to the court for an in camera inspection. (Lipton v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 1599, 1613-1618, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be used to compel discovery in an action for bad faith by an insurer. It should be combined with general memoranda of points and authorities supporting a motion to compel discovery.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, counsel should demonstrate how information about the insurer's loss reserves in the particular case will assist him or her in evaluating the case or preparing for trial or how access to the requested information will facilitate settlement.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion relating to discovery of insurance company information, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 191, Discovery: Privileges and Other Discovery Limitations (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Discoverability of Loss Reserves and Reinsurance Information

Lipton v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 1599, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341 arose from plaintiff's allegations of bad faith on the part of a liability insurer. The opinion addressed the plaintiff's motion to compel production of information relating to the defendant insurer's loss reserves and any reinsurance contracts in effect. The insurer argued that the information was not discoverable because they did not relate to its obligations to the insured. Loss reserves are established in compliance with State regulations applicable to all insurers, and reinsurance agreements serve to indemnify insurers and diversify the insurers' risks of loss. The opinion focused, however, on the recognition that information is relevant for discovery purposes if it might reasonably assist a party in evaluating the case, preparing for trial, or if it may facilitate settlement (48 Cal. App. 4th 1599, 1616) .

Under this standard, the court found that the insurer's loss reserves were discoverable. The information is discoverable in bad faith litigation because it could demonstrate how the insurer viewed its potential obligations to the insured, whether the insurer had conducted a proper investigation, and whether it recognized the likelihood that the insured could face an excess verdict (48 Cal. App. 4th 1599, 1613-1616) .

These same considerations may also apply to communications between an insurer and a reinsurer discussing liability, exposure, coverage issues or the likelihood of an excess verdict. Before a party could discover such communications, however, the court must conduct an in camera inspection to protect against the disclosure of privileged information (48 Cal. App. 4th 1599, 1616-1618) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART II. FORMS
A. General Provisions Limiting Scope

8-80 California Points & Authorities § 80.22

§ 80.22 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Names, Addresses, and Files of Insurer's Claimants Are Relevant and Discoverable in Action for Unfair Settlement Practices

[1] FORM Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Names, Addresses, and Files of Insurer's Claimants Are Relevant and Discoverable in Action for Unfair Settlement Practices

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as wellas with a general form of points and authorities refuting an irrelevancy objection (see, e.g., § 80.10).]

DISCOVERY OF THE NAMES, ADDRESSES, AND FILES OF AN INSURER'S CLAIMANTS WHO HAVE ATTEMPTED SETTLEMENTS IS RELEVANT IN AN ACTION FOR UNFAIR SETTLEMENT PRACTICES.

Discovery of Names, Addresses, and Files of Insurer's Claimants. Discovery of the names, addresses, and files of an insurer's nonparty claimants who have attempted settlements with the insurer's claims adjuster is relevant in an action for unfair settlement practices and may lead to admissible evidence (Colonial Life & Accident Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 785, 792, 183 Cal. Rptr. 810, 647 P.2d 86).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities are for use in an action for unfair settlement practices to refute an insurer's objection to disclosing the names and addresses of its claimants who have attempted settlements on the ground that the information is irrelevant. The form may be combined with general memoranda of points and authorities supporting a motion to compel discovery.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. In particular, counsel should describe the alleged misconduct towards plaintiff and state plaintiff's need to acquire the names and addresses of other claimants in order to establish a pattern of unfair settlement practices.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Discovery of Names, Addresses, and Files of Insurer's Claimants

Colonial Life & Accident Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 785, 183 Cal. Rptr. 810, 647 P.2d 86 arose out of an action by an insured's administratrix against an insurer and its claims adjuster for unfair settlement practices in violation of Ins. Code § 790.03(h), breach of contract, and breach of the duty of fair dealing and good faith. The insured had sought coverage from defendants for a leg amputation. Defendants denied coverage and offered $1,500 as full settlement of the claim, contingent onsurrender of the policy. The insured refused the offer, demanding the maximum policy benefit of $10,000. After commencement of the action, plaintiff served the claims adjuster with a request to inspect and copy all documents pertaining to cases assigned by the insurer to the adjuster for settlement, about 35 in all. The adjuster refused to supply the information, basing its objection on the Insurance Information and Privacy Protection Act (Ins. Code § 791 et seq.), overbreadth, and relevancy considerations. On a motion to compel discovery, the trial court ordered the claims adjuster to produce the names and addresses of the claimants, and approved a letter to be sent by plaintiff's counsel to those individuals, requesting that they consent to the release of their records by the claims adjuster. The court expressly prohibited the parties and counsel from initiating any contact with nonparty claimants pending their response to the letter. On request of the claims adjuster, the court issued an additional protective order preventing plaintiff's counsel from disclosing to any other person the names, addresses, or records of nonparty claimants or from making use of the information except for preparation and trial of the action. Additional restrictions sought by the insurer to prevent plaintiff's attorney from soliciting new clients from those who responded to the letter were denied by the court. The insurer sought a writ of mandate preventing plaintiff's counsel from seeking to represent other claimants against defendants, and barring discovery of the names and records of the claimants on the ground that the information was irrelevant to a private action for unfair practices against insurers.

The Supreme Court denied the writ. In relation to the relevancy objection, the insurer argued that in an action by a private litigant for unfair settlement practices, evidence of a general business practice as a matter of law was irrelevant. The argument was based on a passage in Royal Globe Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 880, 891, 153 Cal. Rptr. 842, 592 P.2d 329 (overturned prospectively in Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Companies (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 297-305, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58), which stated that the frequency of an insurer's misconduct and its application to others was irrelevant to a private litigant who can demonstrate that the insurer acted deliberately. The Court observed, however, that the statement in that case was made in the context of rejecting an insurance company's claim that a third-party claimant may not base such an action against an insurer on a single instance of unfair conduct, but must show a continuing course of conduct. The Court stated that Ins. Code § 790.03(h) and Royal Globe, above, clearly indicate that a plaintiff may establish a claim by showing either that the acts were knowingly committed or were engaged in with such frequency as to indicate a general business practice. When a knowing violation is difficult to establish, knowledge can be proved circumstantially. Discovery aimed at determining the frequency of alleged unfair settlement practices was thus likely to produce evidence directly relevant to the action (31 Cal. 3d 785, 791) . The Court also statedthat other instances of alleged unfair settlement practices may be relevant to plaintiff's claim for punitive damages, which may be proven directly or by implication (31 Cal. 3d 785, 791-792) . Thus, the Court held that the discovery of the names, addresses, and files of other claimants of the insurer with whom the claims adjuster attempted settlement was relevant to the subject matter of the action and might lead to admissible evidence (31 Cal. 3d 785, 792) . The Court also noted that the procedure for contacting other claimants approved by the trial court should satisfy the requirements of Ins. Code § 791.13(a), which protects the privacy of claimants, if the authorization form included in the consent letter was returned within a year (31 Cal. 3d 785, 792 n.10), and denied a protective order prohibiting plaintiff's counsel from seeking employment from other claimants in the absence of any improper conduct by counsel (31 Cal. 3d 785, 793-795) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART II. FORMS
A. General Provisions Limiting Scope

8-80 California Points & Authorities § 80.23

§ 80.23 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery of Matters Supporting Amendment of Pleadings

[1] FORM Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery of Matters Supporting Amendment of Pleadings

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as well as with a general form of points and authorities refuting an irrelevancy objection (see, e.g., § 80.10).]

DISCOVERY INTO FACTS THAT AID A PARTY IN AMENDING PLEADINGS IS PROPER.

[EITHER]

A. Facts Needed to State Cause of Action. Discovery into facts essential to stating a cause of action is proper (Budget Fin. Plan v. Superior Court (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 794, 798, 110 Cal. Rptr. 302).

[AND/OR]

B. Facts Needed to Amend Pleadings. Discovery is proper when it enables a plaintiff to amend the complaint (Union Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 1, 12, 145 Cal. Rptr. 316 ; Keely v. Price (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 209, 217, 103 Cal. Rptr. 531).

[AND/OR]

C. Facts Needed to Overcome Demurrer. Discovery into facts that are needed to overcome a demurrer is proper when the factsare within the knowledge of the opposing party (see Credit Managers Assn. v. Superior Court (1975) 51

Cal. App. 3d 352, 362, 124 Cal. Rptr. 242).

[Optional] D. Potential Class Members. Parties are entitled to discover other potential class members in the process of amending their complaint (Budget Fin. Plan v. Superior Court (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 794, 799, 110 Cal. Rptr. 302).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities is for use in support of a motion compelling discovery of matters that are needed to amend pleadings, to state a cause of action, or to overcome a demurrer. Paragraph D may be used when plaintiff is seeking information regarding other potential class members which will be used in framing the complaint in a class action. This form may be combined, when appropriate, with general memoranda of points and authorities supporting motions to compel discovery.

Note that cases cited in this form construe law in effect before the operative date of the Civil Discovery Act. They are cited and discussed as persuasive authority to the extent that remain consistent with current provisions [see also § 80.02[3]].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 80.50 may be used to oppose the motion supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Facts Needed to State Cause of Action

Budget Fin. Plan v. Superior Court (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 794, 110 Cal. Rptr. 302 concerned a class action in which two plaintiffs on behalf of themselves and others in the alleged class sought rescission of certain retail installment sales contracts. Each of the defendants filed a demurrer to the complaint, which the trial court granted with leave to amend. The theory on which the demurrers were sustained was that plaintiffs had failed to allege assignment of their particular contracts, and that therefore they had no legal capacity to sue. On the other hand, plaintiffs contendedthat the named defendants had financed the transactions in question, and contended further that they were entitled to know who the other class members were. Plaintiffs therefore propounded interrogatories that the trial court ordered defendants to answer. Defendants then petitioned for a writ of mandate, claiming that since the trial court had sustained a general demurrer, there was no proper party before the court to conduct discovery.

The court of appeal declined to issue the writ, holding that since the trial court had granted leave to amend, plaintiffs had remained parties to the cause of action. Thus former Code Civ. Proc. § 2030 (now Code Civ. Proc. § 2030.010 et seq.), which allows any party to serve interrogatories, allowed plaintiffs to undertake discovery even to the extent of inquiring into facts that were essential to their stating a cause of action (34 Cal. App. 3d 794, 798) .

[b] Facts Needed to Amend Pleadings

Union Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 1, 145 Cal. Rptr. 316 arose out of an action for wrongful reduction in disability insurance benefits, in which plaintiff alleged that there were others similarly situated whose insurance benefits were also wrongfully reduced. Seeking facts to support this allegation, plaintiff served interrogatories inquiring about persons covered under his employer's policy, and persons covered under other policies whose benefits were reduced by increased social security payments. The interrogatories were extensive, inquiring into last known addresses, telephone numbers, and other details. Defendant objected to the various interrogatories on several grounds, including their irrelevance in the absence of a determination that the lawsuit could proceed as a class action. Nevertheless, the trial court ordered defendant to answer all the interrogatories and imposed expenses on defendant under former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034(a) (now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2023.010 et seq., 2030.290). Defendant then petitioned for a writ of prohibition.

The court of appeal issued the writ, holding that the expense sanction was improper (80 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15) , and that the interrogatories that would be truly time consuming and expensive to answer (such as those calling for names, addresses, and telephone numbers of employees who have worked for employers other than plaintiff's employer) could be deferred until after a class determination had been made (80 Cal. App. 3d 1, 14) . However, insofar as general discovery was sought to enable plaintiff to amend his complaint to bring both a nationwide and a California class action, discovery would indeed be proper (80 Cal. App. 3d 1, 12, 13) .

Keely v. Price (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 209, 103 Cal. Rptr. 531 concerned an action for breach of contract, fraud, and interference with advantageous economic relationship, in which plaintiff, a licensed real estate broker, sued the attorney who acted on behalf of the buyers of a certain parcel of real property. A general demurrer without leave to amend was sustained based on the oral nature of the contract, and the fact that estoppel was not applicable. Before the demurrer was sustained, plaintiff had attempted to depose defendant in order to inquire into the identity of the purchasers and to see if there had been a written memorandum of the agreement with defendant. The depositions had been scheduled for a certain date, but prior to that date, the demurrer was sustained and the depositions were never taken.

Plaintiff appealed the sustaining of the demurrer and the court of appeal reversed and remanded, holding that the cause of action for interference with advantageous economic relationship was capable of cure by amendment (27 Cal. App. 3d 209, 216) . The court also held that once leave to amend is granted, plaintiff should be allowed to take defendant's deposition and to pursue other types of discovery in aid of such amendment (27 Cal. App. 3d 209, 217) .

[c] Facts Needed to Overcome Demurrer

In Credit Managers Assn. v. Superior Court (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 352, 124 Cal. Rptr. 242 , plaintiff filed a complaint for breach of fiduciary duty and conspiracy against a number of defendants. After a demurrer to the complaint was filed by Mordy and Company, one of the defendants, plaintiff filed an amended complaint. Again a demurrer filed by Mordy was sustained. Plaintiff then served interrogatories on Mordy for the purpose of enabling it to amend its complaint, and Mordy moved for a protective order, which the trial court granted.

The court of appeal issued a peremptory writ of mandate. In opposition to the writ, Mordy had argued that California law prohibits a plaintiff from using discovery to determine whether it has a cause of action (51 Cal. App. 3d 352, 361) . The court disagreed with this contention, holding that because the demurrer was based on the failure to allege facts that were within Mordy's knowledge, discovery should have been allowed. In fact, the court held that the victim of a wrongdoer (especially a fiduciary) who has concealed his or her misdeeds has a greater need for discovery, and as much right to it, as has the victim who is fully advised of all the details of the wrong (51 Cal. App. 3d 352, 362) .

[d] Potential Class Members

The facts and procedural background of Budget Fin. Plan v. Superior Court (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 794, 110 Cal. Rptr. 302 are discussed in [a], above. There the court held that plaintiffs were entitled to discover other potential class members so that these other possible plaintiffs might help in the presentation of the case and share in the burdens of its prosecution (34 Cal. App. 3d 794, 799) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Facts Needed to Amend Pleadings

In Los Angeles Cemetery Ass'n v. Superior Court (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 492, 74 Cal. Rptr. 97 , plaintiff had sued a number of defendants for fraudulent representations. A demurrer was sustained with leave to amend, and plaintiff then served interrogatories on one of the defendants seeking information that might enable it to better plead its alter ego theory. The trial court denied plaintiff's motion to compel answers and granted defendant's motion for a protective order.

The court of appeal issued a writ of mandate, holding that under the circumstances of this case, since plaintiff already knew some of the facts it needed to plead a cause of action, it should be allowed to discover other facts so as to render its amended pleadings less conclusionary and more informative (268 Cal. App. 2d 492, 494) .

[b] Facts Needed to State Cause of Action

In Best Buy Stores, L.P. v. Superior Court (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 772, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 575 , the trial court granted the attorney's motion for precertification discovery after finding that he could not act as both class representative and as counsel for the class. Best Buy argued, in part, that the trial court abused its discretion in permitting the discovery, because the order and the letter to be sent to Best Buy's customers violated their privacy rights. The court of appeal observed, first, that discovery to ascertain a suitable class representative is proper, citing Budget Finance Plan v. Superior Court, discussed in [3][a], above (137 Cal. App. 4th 772, 779) . In these circumstances, the trial court must "expressly identify any potential abuses of the class action procedure that may be created if the discovery is permitted, and weigh the danger of such abuses against the rights of the parties under the circumstances" (137 Cal. App. 4th 772, 779) . Here, the trial court performed that "weighing process" in formulating its order for discovery. However, the court of appeal directed the trial court to modify the letter to be sent to prospective class-action plaintiffs to protect their privacy by stating that the recipients were free to ignore the request for information and that the neutral third-party sender would not disclose their identities to the attorney (137 Cal. App. 4th 772, 778) .

[c] Potential Class Members

In Cashcall, Inc. v. Superior Court (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 273, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 441 , petitioner, a lender, sought a writ of mandate challenging a superior court order that granted, in part, a motion filed by real party in interest borrowers for precertification discovery of the names and contact information of potential plaintiffs in a class action for violating the borrowers' privacy rights. The court of appeal found no abuse of discretion, concluding, as an issue of first impression, that an original plaintiff who lacked standing in a Code Civ. Proc. § 382 class action should be allowed to obtain precertification discovery of the identities of potential plaintiffs with standing, subjectto a balancing test weighing the danger of potential abuses against the rights of the parties (159 Cal. App. 4th 273, 286) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART II. FORMS
A. General Provisions Limiting Scope

8-80 California Points & Authorities § 80.24

§ 80.24 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery of Facts on Which Allegations Are Based, Contentions, Matters Known to Party Seeking Discovery, Evidence That May Be Inadmissible at Trial, Jurisdictional Information, Hearsay Evidence, or Questions That Assume Facts Not in Evidence

[1] FORM Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery of Facts on Which Allegations Are Based, Contentions, Matters Known to Party Seeking Discovery, Evidence That May Be Inadmissible at Trial, Jurisdictional Information, Hearsay Evidence, or Questions That Assume Facts Not in Evidence

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as well as with a memorandum refuting an irrelevancy objection (see, e.g., 80.10).]

DISCOVERY INTO _____ [FACTS ON WHICH ALLEGATIONS ARE BASED or A PARTY'S CONTENTIONS or MATTERS KNOWN TO THE PARTY SEEKING DISCOVERY or EVIDENCE THAT MAY BE INADMISSIBLE AT TRIAL or JURISDICTIONAL INFORMATION or HEARSAY EVIDENCE or QUESTIONS THAT ASSUME A FACT NOT IN EVIDENCE] IS PROPER.

[EITHER]

A. Facts on Which Allegations Are Based. A party is entitled to discover facts on which the opposing party's allegations are based(Singer v. Superior Court (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 318, 324, 5 Cal. Rptr. 697, 353 P.2d 305).

[AND/OR]

B. Contentions of Party. A party is entitled to discover the contentions of the opposing party both in regard to the facts and in regard to the possible issues in the case (Code Civ. Proc. § 2030.010(b); Burke v. Superior Court (1969)

71 Cal. 2d 276, 281, 78 Cal. Rptr. 481, 455 P.2d 409 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010).

[AND/OR]

C. Matters Known to Party Seeking Discovery. It is not a proper objection to an interrogatory that the answer is already known to the party propounding the interrogatory (Singer v. Superior Court (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 318, 324, 5 Cal. Rptr. 697, 353 P.2d 305).

[AND/OR]

D. Evidence That May Be Inadmissible at Trial. It is not necessary that the matters sought to be discovered be admissible in evidence at trial (Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010; Associated Brewers Distr. Co. v. Superior Court (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 583, 587, 55 Cal. Rptr. 772, 422 P.2d 332).

[AND/OR]

E. Jurisdictional Information. Discovery is proper into jurisdictional information that is relevant to the subject matter of a motion to quash, even though the motion is made pursuant to a special appearance (1880 Corp. v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 840, 843, 22 Cal. Rptr. 209, 371 P.2d 985).

[AND/OR]

F. Hearsay Evidence. An interrogatory that requires a party to give hearsay evidence is a proper one (Durst v. Superior Court (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 460, 464, 32 Cal. Rptr. 627).

[AND/OR]

G. Questions That Assume Facts Not in Evidence. It is not a proper objection to an interrogatory that the interrogatory assumes a fact not in evidence (West Pico Furniture Co. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 407, 421, 15 Cal. Rptr. 119, 364 P.2d 295).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities is for use in support of a motion compelling discovery when discovery has been objected to on various grounds, including the impropriety of inquiry into (1) a party's factual or legal contentions, (2) matters which are already known to the party seeking discovery, (3) inadmissible evidence, (4) jurisdictional information, (4) hearsay evidence, or (5) questions that assume facts not in evidence. This form may be combined, when appropriate, with general memoranda of points and authorities supporting a motion to compel discovery, as well as with a general form of points and authorities refuting an irrelevancy objection.

Note that cases cited in this form construe law in effect before the operative date of the Civil Discovery Act. They are cited and discussed as persuasive authority to the extent that remain consistent with current provisions [see also § 80.02[3]].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Facts on Which Allegations Are Based

Singer v. Superior Court (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 318, 5 Cal. Rptr. 697, 353 P.2d 305 , arose out of an action for personal injuries brought under the Jones Act. Defendant's answer raised the defenses of contributory negligence and assumption of the risk. During the course of discovery, plaintiff served interrogatories, including three that inquired into the facts known to defendant on which defendant based the allegations given in his answer. Defendant refused to answer the three interrogatories in question, and the trial court denied plaintiff's motion for an order requiring further answers.

Plaintiff then petitioned for a writ of mandate. In arguing against the writ, defendant made several arguments, including the argument that it should not be required to limit itself by stating all facts on which it might subsequently rely. The Supreme Court granted the writ, holding that interrogatories inquiring into facts that underlie the contentions of the parties are proper (54 Cal. 2d 318, 324) , so long as the inquiry is limited to facts that are presently known to the party from whom discovery is sought (54 Cal. 2d 318, 325) .

[b] Contentions of Party

Burke v. Superior Court (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 276, 78 Cal. Rptr. 481, 455 P.2d 409 arose out of an action for wrongful attachment against a bonding company. Plaintiffs propounded interrogatories asking whether defendants contended that the levy was not valid or regular on its face, and requesting all facts, grounds, and evidence that would support the contentions. Defendants refused to answer these questions, claiming that they improperly called for legal conclusions, and the trial court denied plaintiffs' motion for further answers.

The Supreme Court issued a writ of prohibition, holding that it would subvert the whole purpose of discovery to hold that contentions are not the proper subject of discovery (71 Cal. 2d 276, 281) . Accordingly, the Court held that a party may be required to disclose not only the evidentiary facts underlying his or her denials or affirmative defenses, but may also be required to disclose whether he or she is making a particular contention either about the facts or possible issues in the case (71 Cal. 2d 276, 281, 282) .

Note that Code Civ. Proc. § 2030.010(b), which became operative in 1987 as former Code Civ. Proc. § 2030(c)(6), codifies the 1969 holding in Burke to the extent that it specifically allows an interrogatory to relate to whether another party is making a certain contention, or to the facts, witnesses, and writings on which a contention is based. Code Civ. Proc. § 2033.010 similarly allows a request for admission to relate to a matter that is in controversy between the parties.

[c] Matters Known to Party Seeking Discovery

The facts and procedural background of Singer v. Superior Court (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 318, 5 Cal. Rptr. 697, 353 P.2d 305 are discussed in [a], above. There the court held that an objection that the answer to the interrogatory is already known to the propounding party is not a proper objection to an interrogatory (54 Cal. 2d 318, 324) .

[d] Evidence That May Be Inadmissible at Trial

Associated Brewers Distr. Co. v. Superior Court (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 583, 55 Cal. Rptr. 772, 422 P.2d 332 involved an action for recovery of an amount allegedly due for goods delivered under a distributorship contract. Defendant counterclaimed for breach of an oral distribution agreement. In the course of discovery, defendant moved for production and inspection of some documents related to the termination of the oral agreement. Plaintiff opposed this discovery on the ground that the parol evidence rule would bar proof of an oral agreement. The trial court denied the motion to produce on unrelated grounds, and the Supreme Court granted a writ of mandate, holding, inter alia, that the purpose of discovery is not only the discoveryof admissible evidence; it also enables the parties to effectively prepare for trial. Therefore, whether discovery is requested pursuant to the former version of Code Civ. Proc. § 2031 or by subpoena under Code Civ. Proc. § 1985, it is not necessary to show that the material sought will actually be admissible in evidence (65 Cal. 2d 583, 587) .

Note that Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010, which became operative in 1987 as former Code Civ. Proc. § 2017(a), codifies the 1967 holding in Associated Brewers to the extent that it expressly allows discovery, not only of matters that are admissible in evidence, but also matters that appear reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence.

[e] Jurisdictional Information

In 1880 Corp. v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 840, 22 Cal. Rptr. 209, 371 P.2d 985 , defendant appeared specially and moved to quash a service of summons based on the absence of personal jurisdiction. Defendant claimed that it had never engaged in business in California. Plaintiff then served interrogatories that were designed to ascertain facts concerning the question of jurisdiction. Defendant refused to answer, and the trial court denied plaintiff's motion to compel answers.

The Supreme Court granted a writ of mandate, holding in part that the plaintiff should be entitled to this jurisdictional information, which was relevant to the subject matter of the motion to quash, even though this motion was made only on defendant's special appearance (57 Cal. 2d 840, 843) .

[f] Hearsay Evidence

Durst v. Superior Court (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 460, 32 Cal. Rptr. 627 concerned an action against an insurance company for recovery under a disability policy. Plaintiff served interrogatories calling for facts known to defendant that were inconsistent with plaintiff's assertions of injuries and total disability. Defendant refused to answer on the grounds that the questions called for conclusions and for hearsay. The trial court denied plaintiff's motion for further answers.

The court of appeal granted a writ of mandate, holding that insofar as the hearsay objection was concerned, an interrogatory that compels a party to give hearsay evidence is a proper one (218 Cal. App. 2d 460, 464) .

[g] Questions That Assume Facts Not in Evidence

West Pico Furniture Co. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 407, 15 Cal. Rptr. 119, 364 P.2d 295 arose out of an action against a loan company for allegedly making loans at usurious interest rates. Plaintiff propounded interrogatories, and defendant objected to one of them on the ground thatthe question assumed a fact not in evidence. The trial court sustained this objection, as well as the many other objections to other interrogatories, and plaintiff sought a writ of mandate.

The Supreme Court granted the writ, holding, inter alia, that the objection that one of the interrogatories assumed a fact not in evidence is not a valid objection. The court stated that when an answer is given in writing, as opposed to one given in oral examination, the answering party has due time for deliberation, so that he or she may frame an answer that avoids the pitfalls inherent in the form of the question (56 Cal. 2d 407, 421) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Facts on Which Allegations Are Based

Sheets v. Superior Court (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 1, 64 Cal. Rptr. 753 concerned an action for injunctive relief and for dissolution of a limited partnership. Plaintiff also sought damages for breach of a partnership agreement and for fraud. During the course of discovery, defendant served some interrogatories on plaintiff, who answered some and objected to others. Some of the interrogatories to which plaintiff objected inquired into facts on which plaintiff and his experts based their allegations and conclusions. Defendant then sought and obtained an order requiring answers to those interrogatories to which plaintiff had objected. Plaintiff petitioned for a writ of prohibition.

The court of appeal granted the writ restraining the trial court from enforcing its order requiring plaintiff to answer certain of the interrogatories (257 Cal. App. 2d 1, 13) . It based its holding on the lawyer-client privilege, noting that although a party is entitled to discover facts on which the opposing party's allegations are based (257 Cal. App. 2d 1, 8, 9) , these interrogatories were improper in that they went far beyond such an inquiry by calling on plaintiff to disclose the evaluation and analysis of the experts' reports that plaintiff's lawyer had made in the course of trial preparation (257 Cal. App. 2d 1, 9) .

111 of 125 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART II. FORMS
A. General Provisions Limiting Scope

8-80 California Points & Authorities § 80.25

§ 80.25 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery Into Areas Relating to Concession by Opposing Party

[1] FORM Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery Into Areas Relating to Concession by Opposing Party

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as wellas with a general form of points and authorities refuting an irrelevancy objection (see, e.g., § 80.10).]

DISCOVERY INTO AREAS RELATING TO MATTERS THAT WERE CONCEDED BY THE OPPOSING PARTY MAY NOT BE CURTAILED.

Discovery Into Areas Related to Matters That Were Conceded. One party cannot, by unilaterally conceding some matters, foreclose all discovery concerning that concession (Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 161, 174, 175, 84 Cal. Rptr. 718, 465 P.2d 854).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities is for use in supporting a motion to compel discovery when discovery has been resisted on the ground that the areas into which inquiry is sought were related to concessions that were made, and thus cannot be the subject of discovery. This form may be combined with general memoranda of points and authorities compelling discovery.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Discovery Into Areas Relating to Matters Which Were Conceded

Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 161, 84 Cal. Rptr. 718, 465 P.2d 854 concerned an action for invasion of privacy through unauthorized wire tapping. Two defendants and a nonparty deponent refused to answer various deposition questions. Plaintiff filed motions for orders compelling answers to these questions, and defendant opposed the motions on the ground of irrelevance. The trial court issued an order compelling answers to most of the questions on which the motion was based. Defendants then apparently attempted to narrow the issues in the case, thereby avoiding the probing discovery approved by the court, by filing an amended answer admitting that they had recorded some of the plaintiff's conversations. Defendants continued to deny, however, that they knew their action constituted an invasion of privacy or was illegal, or that their conduct was malicious.

The Supreme Court declined to issue a writ of prohibition overturning the trial court's order compelling answers. In its opinion, the Court stated that defendants were wrong in their assumption that by admitting participation in the eavesdropping, and thereby ostensibly narrowing the issues for trial, they also narrowed the scope of permissible discovery (2 Cal. 3d 161, 174) . Although one purpose of discovery is to ascertain issues on which the parties agree, thereby simplifying the trial, one party cannot, by conceding some matters, unilaterally eliminate all discovery relating to that topic (2 Cal. 3d 161, 174-175) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART II. FORMS
A. General Provisions Limiting Scope

8-80 California Points & Authorities §§ 80.26-80.39

[Reserved]

§§ 80.26[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART II. FORMS
A. General Provisions Limiting Scope

8-80 California Points & Authorities § 80.40

§ 80.40 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery Improper When Irrelevant Matters Sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010]

[1] FORM Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery Improper When Irrelevant Matters Sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010]

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30).]

DISCOVERY CONCERNING _____ [specify subject matter of deposition question or other discovery request objected to] SHOULD NOT BE _____ [PERMITTED or COMPELLED] BECAUSE THE MATTER IS NEITHER RELEVANT TO THIS ACTION NOR LIKELY TO LEAD TO THE DISCOVERY OF RELEVANT EVIDENCE.

[EITHER]

A. Disclosure of Irrelevant Information. Disclosure of information is not warranted when it is not relevant to any issue in the case (see Shaffer v. Superior Court (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 993, 1000-1003, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 506).

[AND/OR]

B. Questions Unrelated to Claim for Relief. Parties should not be required to answer questions that are unrelated to any claim for relief that has been asserted by them (Alpine Mut. Water Co. v. Superior Court (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 45, 52, 66 Cal. Rptr. 250).

[AND/OR]

C. Disclosure of Information Unrelated to Subject Matter of Action. Discovery is improper if it is so broad that it might necessitate production of information that would be wholly alien to the subject matter of the action (City of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 778, 783, 109 Cal. Rptr. 365).

[AND/OR]

D. Questions That Are Unlikely to Lead to Discovery of Admissible Evidence. Discovery is improper when the questions are neither relevant to the action nor likely to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence (Deaile v. General Telephone Co. of California (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 841, 851, 115 Cal. Rptr. 582).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities are for use in opposing a motion to compel discovery when there has been an attempt to discover matters that are irrelevant to the subject matter of the action or of a particular party's claim for relief, or that are unlikely to lead to the disclosure of admissible evidence. This form may be used in opposition to points and authorities based on a general contention of relevancy [see, e.g., § 80.10]. This form should be used in combination with general forms of memoranda of points and authorities in opposition to a motion to compel discovery [see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30). These general forms set out the statutory requirements of subject matter relevancy for the specific methods of discovery.

Note that cases cited in this form construe law in effect before the operative date of the Civil Discovery Act. They are cited and discussed as persuasive authority to the extent that remain consistent with current provisions [see also § 80.02[3]].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, counsel should point out the basis for the claim of irrelevancy.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Disclosure of Irrelevant Information

Shaffer v. Superior Court (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 993, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 506 involved a client's malpractice action against a law firm in whichthe client alleged that he was charged unconscionable attorney's fees. The client, while taking the deposition of petitioner, a nonparty contract staff attorney who worked on defendant's representation of the client, questioned the petitioner regarding her hourly rate. Petitioner refused to answer, and the client filed a motion to compel her to answer. The trial court accepted a referee's recommendation and ordered petitioner to answer the question. Petitioner sought a writ of mandamus with the court of appeal.

The court of appeal issued a writ of mandate compelling the trial court to vacate its order and issue a new order denying plaintiff's motion to compel discovery of the hourly rate paid to the contract attorney by the law firm. The court held that disclosure of petitioner's hourly rate for her work on behalf of defendant simply constituted part of defendant's costs and was not relevant to whether the client was charged an unconscionable fee (33 Cal. App. 4th 993, 996) . The court held that an attorney's profit margin is not relevant to the issue of whether the attorney's fee is unconscionable; what is relevant is whether the client received the services he or she paid for, as measured in the marketplace (33 Cal. App. 4th 993, 1000-1002) .

[b] Questions Unrelated to Claim for Relief

Alpine Mut. Water Co. v. Superior Court (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 45, 66 Cal. Rptr. 250 involved an action in which some plaintiffs alleged slander of title arising out of an allegedly invalid lien, and other plaintiffs alleged other causes of action. Several plaintiffs objected on various grounds to answering some of the interrogatories propounded by defendants, including the ground of irrelevance, but the trial court ordered them to answer.

The court of appeal granted a writ of prohibition. Concerning the interrogatories relating to the slander of title action, the court held that plaintiffs who had no interest in that cause of action should not have to answer any questions unrelated to any claim for relief asserted by them (259 Cal. App. 2d 45, 52) .

[c] Disclosure of Information Unrelated to Subject Matter of Action

City of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 778, 109 Cal. Rptr. 365 arose out of a personal injury action in which plaintiff alleged battery by a police officer. Among the interrogatories propounded by plaintiff were some inquiring whether other complaints had been made against the same police officer. Defendant city objected on various grounds, including irrelevance, but the trial court ordered defendant to answer the interrogatories. Defendant petitioned for a writ of mandate to review the order regarding these and other interrogatories.

The court of appeal issued a writ of mandate, partially on the ground that the interrogatories regarding other complaints were so broad that they might necessitate production of information that would be wholly alien to the subject matter of the action (33 Cal. App. 3d 778, 783) . The court held further that even if the interrogatories were narrowed to inquire into only similar assault and battery complaints, this inquiry would still only be of dubious value, since the evidence of other instances of misconduct is not admissible to prove misconduct on a particular occasion (33 Cal. App. 3d 778, 784) .

[d] Questions That Are Unlikely to Lead to Discovery of Admissible Evidence

Deaile v. General Telephone Co. of California (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 841, 115 Cal. Rptr. 582 arose out of an action for defamation, intentional infliction of emotional distress, and wrongful discharge. Plaintiff propounded interrogatories inquiring, inter alia, about the names and addresses of all women employed by defendant as of a certain date. Defendant objected on the grounds of oppression, burden, and unreasonableness, and on the ground that the interrogatories were unlikely to lead to the discovery of relevant evidence. The trial court denied, in toto, plaintiff's motion to compel further answers. After a jury trial, the trial court entered a judgment that plaintiff take nothing by her complaint, and plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. Regarding the trial court's blanket refusal to compel further answers to interrogatories, the court held that the trial court's order was correct in that the questions were neither relevant to the action nor likely to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence (40 Cal. App. 3d 841, 851) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Questions That Are Irrelevant to Action and Unlikely to Lead to Discovery of Admissible Evidence

In Shade Foods, Inc. v. Innovative Products Sales & Marketing, Inc. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 847, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 364 , a complex insurance case in which two insurance companies appealed a judgment awarding compensatory and punitive damages to two insureds, insurers objected under Evid. Code § 1152 to the trial court's admission of evidence relating to settlement negotiations between one of the insurers and one of the insureds (78 Cal. App. 4th 847, 914) .

The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's admission of the evidence as relevant to the issue of the insurer's bad faith, explaining that Evid. Code § 1152 does not preclude the introduction of settlement negotiations if offered to prove failure to process the claim fairly and in good faith, not to prove liability for the original loss.Although this evidence contained allusions to the second insured's participation in the settlement negotiations, the court did not find prejudicial error. Moreover, to mitigate any prejudice, the court offered to give a limiting instruction and to allow the second insurance company to explain its own response to plaintiff's offer (78 Cal. App. 4th 847, 915) .

City of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 744, 216 Cal. Rptr. 311 involved an action by a city to enforce alleged violation of a rent control ordinance. The defendant sought to depose a city attorney with regard to her research and opinions in drafting the ordinance, arguing that the information was relevant to a proper interpretation of the ordinance. The trial court ordered this disclosure, and the city petitioned for a writ of mandate to vacate this and other discovery orders. The court of appeal issued a writ directing the trial court to vacate its order compelling disclosure by the city attorney. The court noted that even if the ordinance was ambiguous and required interpretation, the information sought was nonetheless irrelevant, because the ordinance was required to be interpreted according to the rules of statutory construction, not according to the drafter's opinion. Also, the information was not calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence, because the motives or understandings of individual legislators are not considered in construing a statute, and the testimony of an individual legislator regarding his or her intention, motive, or opinion with respect to a particular piece of legislation is therefore inadmissible (170 Cal. App. 3d 744, 752-753) .

Covell v. Superior Court (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 39, 205 Cal. Rptr. 371 involved a malicious prosecution brought by plaintiff against defendants after the unsuccessful conclusion of a prior action brought by defendants against plaintiff. While deposing plaintiff, defendants asked about settlement offers that he made in the prior action. Plaintiff objected and, when the trial court subsequently granted a motion to compel answers, sought a writ of prohibition. The court of appeal treated plaintiff's petition as one for a writ of mandate and granted a writ to compel the trial court to vacate its order (159 Cal. App. 3d 39, 41 n.1, 43-44) . The court held that the settlement offers would be inadmissible at trial under Evid. Code § 1152(a). It stated that under former Code Civ. Proc. § 2016(b) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010), evidence that is inadmissible at trial may be discovered only if it is relevant to the subject matter of the pending action or appears reasonably calculated to lead to discovery of admissible evidence (159 Cal. App. 3d 39, 42-43) . Here the evidence in issue was sought to prove that defendants' prior action was not brought without probable cause or initiated with malice, by showing that plaintiff had offered to settle in recognition of the validity of defendants' claims. The court concluded that the issue in the malicious prosecution action was whether defendants believed that they had probable cause or whether they acted out of malice, and plaintiff's state of mind in making settlement offers was neither relevant to thesubject matter of the pending action, nor was it reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence (159 Cal. App. 3d 39, 43) .

In City and County of San Francisco v. Superior Court (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 481, 181 Cal. Rptr. 775 , a mandamus proceeding commenced by the city against its treasurer and controller to compel payments pursuant to a city ordinance to the surviving dependents of assassinated elected officials, the treasurer requested to inspect and copy the city attorney's tentative opinion draft on the ordinance's legality. The trial court ordered the city to produce the draft. On the city's application, the court of appeal issued a writ of mandate directing the trial court to set aside its discovery order. The court of appeal observed that effect must be given to a statute's plain meaning, and that it was not contended that the ordinance's intent or purpose was ambiguous or unclear. Moreover, in construing a statute, an individual legislator's testimony about his or her intention with regard to the legislation is inadmissible. A city supervisor had testified in a deposition that he would not have voted for the ordinance if he had known of the draft. Further, the court observed that any writing reflecting an attorney's impressions, conclusions, opinions, or legal research or theories is not discoverable. Thus, the court held that the draft was neither relevant admissible evidence, nor a matter reasonably calculated to lead to such evidence. Additionally, its discovery was not otherwise permitted by statute, and would not aid in resolution of the city's contentions or the issues in the trial court action regarding the ordinance's validity (130 Cal. App. 3d 481, 485-486) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART II. FORMS
A. General Provisions Limiting Scope

8-80 California Points & Authorities §§ 80.41-80.49

[Reserved]

§§ 80.41[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART II. FORMS
A. General Provisions Limiting Scope

8-80 California Points & Authorities § 80.50

§ 80.50 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery in Aid of Amendment of Pleadings Improper When No Cause of Action Stated or No Genuine Issue of Material Fact Present

[1] FORM Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery in Aid of Amendment of Pleadings Improper When No Cause of Action Stated or No Genuine Issue of Material Fact Present

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30).]

DISCOVERY MAY NOT BE HAD _____ [TO CURE A DEFECT IN THE PLEADINGS WHEN NO CAUSE OF ACTION HAS BEEN STATED or TO AID IN RESISTING A JUDGMENT ON THEPLEADINGS WHEN NO GENUINE ISSUE OF MATERIAL FACT HAS BEEN PRESENTED].

[EITHER]

A. No Discovery When Complaint Cannot Be Improved by Amendment. Discovery may not be used to cure a defect in a complaint when no cause of action has been stated, and the complaint is not curable by amendment (Silver v. City of Los Angeles (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 673, 674, 54 Cal. Rptr. 203).

[AND/OR]

B. Discovery Improper When No Genuine Issue of Material Fact. When there is no genuine issue of material fact, then discovery is improper in resisting an action for judgment on the pleadings (Knoff v. City and County of San Francisco (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 184, 200, 81 Cal. Rptr. 683).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form is for use in opposition to a motion to compel discovery when discovery is sought in aid of amending a complaint but the complaint is really not curable, or when discovery is attempted in resisting an action for judgment on the pleadings but there is an absence of any genuine issue of material fact. The form may be used, when appropriate, to oppose a form of memorandum of points and authorities such as that set out in § 80.23. This form may also be used in combination with general forms of memoranda of points and authorities in opposition to motion to compel discovery.

Note that cases cited in this form construe law in effect before the operative date of the Civil Discovery Act. They are cited and discussed as persuasive authority to the extent that remain consistent with current provisions [see also § 80.02[3]].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. In particular, counsel might wish to show why the opposing party has not stated a cause of action or has not raised any genuine factual issue.

[c] Related Uses

These points and authorities may be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion for a protective order [see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.80 et seq. (protective order in context of oral deposition)].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Discovery When Complaint Cannot Be Improved by Amendment

Silver v. City of Los Angeles (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 673, 54 Cal. Rptr. 203 was an appeal from a dismissal of an action by a taxpayer to recover the salary of a superintendent of a hospital on the ground that the superintendent had not devoted his entire time to his duties. The trial court dismissed the action for failure to state a cause of action, and plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. One of the grounds for appeal was that the trial court had granted a protective order to prohibit the taking of depositions. The court of appeal ruled that this protective order was correct in that the infirmity in the complaint was not one of form and that there was no contention that the complaint could have been improved by amendment (245 Cal. App. 2d 673, 674) .

[b] Discovery Improper When No Genuine Issue of Material Fact

Knoff v. City and County of San Francisco (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 184, 81 Cal. Rptr. 683 concerned a taxpayers' suit to correct abuses in the county assessor's office. The trial court entered judgment on the pleadings in favor of plaintiffs. Defendants appealed, contending, as one ground of error, that they should have been allowed to exercise their right to discovery under the former version of Code Civ. Proc. § 2030 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2030.010 et seq].

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment on this and other grounds. Insofar as discovery was concerned, the court held that since the pleadings joined no genuine issue of material fact, there was no error in denying defendants the exercise of their right to discovery (1 Cal. App. 3d 184, 200) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART II. FORMS
A. General Provisions Limiting Scope

-80 California Points & Authorities § 80.51

§ 80.51 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Information Relating to Non-Party Insurer's Financial Condition Is Not Discoverable for Settlement Purposes [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.210]

[1] FORM Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Information Relating to Non-Party Insurer's Financial Condition Is Not Discoverable for Settlement Purposes [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.210]

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general memorandum opposing a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30), as well as with a general memorandum refuting a relevancy objection (see, e.g., § 80.40).]

INFORMATION RELATED TO A NON-PARTY INSURER'S FINANCIAL CONDITION IS NOT DISCOVERABLE UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 2017.210 FOR PURPOSES OF SETTLEMENT.

A. Non-Party Insurer's Financial Condition Is Not Discoverable Under Code of Civil Procedure Section 2017 for Purposes of Settlement. Code of Civil Procedure Section 2017.210 allows for discovery of the "existence and contents" of liability insurance policies that may be available to satisfy a judgment (Code Civ. Proc. § 2107.210). However, Code of Civil Procedure Section 2017.210 does not authorize broad discovery of the financial health of the liability insurer or its ability to meet its contractual obligations under its policies (Catholic Mut. Relief Soc'y v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 358, 373-374, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434, 165 P.3d 154).

[Optional] B. Non-Party Insurer's Reinsurance Information Is Irrelevant for Settlement Purposes. Disclosure of information is not warranted when it is not relevant to any issue in the case [or when the information in neither admissible inevidence or reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence]. A non-party insurer's reinsurance information is not relevant to settlement, because a liability insurer's reinsurance agreements do not increase the amounts of liability insurance policy limits directly available to respond to the underlying judgment (Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010; see Catholic Mut. Relief Soc'y v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 358, 373, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434, 165 P.3d 154).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used to oppose a motion to compel discovery of a non-party insurer's financial condition based on Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.210, permitting discovery of the existence and contents of liability insurance policies available to satisfy a judgment [see § 80.20], or on a general contention of relevancy [see, e.g., § 80.10]. This form does not provide a complete memorandum, but rather should be combined with a general memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery [see, e.g., § 80.40, Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30]. These general forms set out the statutory requirements of subject matter relevancy for the specific methods of discovery.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should point out the basis for any claim of irrelevancy.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Non-Party Insurer's Financial Condition Is Not Discoverable Under Code of Civ. Proc. § 2017 for Purposes of Settlement

In Catholic Mut. Relief Soc'y v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 358, 373, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434, 165 P.3d 154), an insurer and the insurer's corporate parent sought to vacate a discovery order denying their motion to quash deposition subpoenas aimed at obtaining documents concerning the insurer's financial condition, including its reserves and any reinsurance agreements. In the underlying case, the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of San Diego had been sued by numerous individuals claiming they were the victims of childhood sexual abuse by various Catholic priests. Petitioners, the church's insurer and the insurer's corporate parent, were non-parties to the underlying litigation. Plaintiffs sought the information to determine whether the church's insurers were financially able to pay any judgment that might be entered. The trial court found that plaintiffs' subpoena requests were "clearly relevant and discoverable." The court's order was supported by decisions holding that information which might facilitate settlement was discoverable.

The court of appeal granted mandamus relief, holding that a non-party liability insurer's financial condition was not discoverable under Code Civ. Proc. § 2107.210, which authorizes limited discovery of a defendant's liability insurance coverage as a matter of right. The court further held that the insurer's financial condition was not discoverable for settlement purposes under the general relevancy rules of Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010. Plaintiffs did not challenge the relevancy aspect of the court of appeal's holding on review. Instead, they sought review only of the specific question whether Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.210 authorizes discovery of the nonparty liability insurer's reinsurance agreements, for purposes of facilitating pretrial settlement of underlying tort claims (42 Cal. 4th 358, 366) .

The Supreme Court held that Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.210 does not authorize discovery of reinsurance policies by an injured plaintiff to facilitate settlement of the underlying tort action (42 Cal. 4th 358, 373-374). The Court concluded that the "language of section 2017.210 allows for discovery of the 'existence and contents' of liability insurance policies that may be available to satisfy a judgment, not the assets of the insurance companies providing the insurance. Reinsurance is an asset of a liability insurer, just as capital reserves are, and nothing in prior case law, legislative history, or the statutory language suggests that either the common law right to discover insurance information or section 2017.210 authorize broad discovery of the financial health of the liability insurer or its ability to meet its contractual obligations under its policies" (42 Cal. 4th 358, 373-374) . The Court added that a nonparty insurer's reinsurance information generally is irrelevant to a plaintiff in a tort action brought against the liability insurance policyholder and could lead to burdensome discovery requests directed at nonparties (42 Cal. 4th 358, 368, 373) .

The Supreme Court observed that in the only reported California decision to allow the discovery of an insurer's reinsurance information, discoverability also turned on whether the requested information was relevant to an issue in the case (see Lipton v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 1599, 1611-1612, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341 , discussed in § 80.21[3][a]). In that case, the discovery was allowed because the insurer was the defendant in a bad faith action and the information was relevant to the issues in the case. Discovery was limited to only unprivileged communications between the insurer and reinsurer concerning coverage issues and potential liability. That discovery was allowed under the general relevancy test of former Code Civ. Proc. § 2017(a) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010), without reference to former Code Civ. Proc. § 2017(b) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2107.210). Accordingly, Lipton did not provide a basis for discovery in this case (42 Cal. 4th 358, 368. n.7).

The Supreme Court added, in dicta, that there may be "unusual circumstances" in which the discovery of reinsurance agreements would be appropriate, as when, for example, those agreements are "directly on the risk to satisfy a judgment" or are the subject matter of the litigation, as in a coverage dispute between a liability insurer and its reinsurer (42 Cal. 4th 358, 374) .

[b] Non-Party Insurer's Reinsurance Information Is Irrelevant for Settlement Purposes

The facts and procedural background of Catholic Mut. Relief Soc'y v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 358, 373, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434, 165 P.3d 154) are discussed in [a], above. There, the court of appeal rejected plaintiffs' argument that a non-party's insurer's reinsurance information is discoverable for purposes of settlement under the general relevancy test of Code Civ. Proc. § 2017(a) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010), which provides that "information is discoverable if it is relevant to thesubject matter of the action and, additionally, is either admissible in evidence or reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence." The court of appeal concluded that wide-ranging inquiry into the financial health of defendant's insurer was "simply far too remote from the subject matter of this action to be relevant," given that the liability insurer and the insurer's corporate parent had testified that the insured's coverage was not reduced by payment of other claims or fees.

Although plaintiffs did not appeal this aspect of the court of appeal's ruling on review, the Supreme Court observed that a nonparty insurer's reinsurance information is irrelevant to a plaintiff in a tort action brought against the liability insurance policyholder (42 Cal. 4th 358, 368) . The Court explained: "An essential feature of reinsurance is that it does not alter the terms, conditions or provisions of the contract of liability insurance between the direct liability insurer and its insured (the tort defendant) ... . The amounts of policy limits directly available to respond to the underlying judgment are not increased by the existence of reinsurance agreements. In other words, a reinsurance agreement does not answer to liability for the underlying third party tort claim" (42 Cal. 4th 358, 369) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART II. FORMS
A. General Provisions Limiting Scope

8-80 California Points & Authorities §§ 80.52-80.79

[Reserved]

§§ 80.52[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART II. FORMS
A. General Provisions Limiting Scope

8-80 California Points & Authorities § 80.80

§ 80.80 Supporting Motion for Protective Order--Burden, Expense, or Intrusiveness Outweighs Likelihood of Obtaining Admissible Evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.020]

[1] FORM Supporting Motion for Protective Order--Burden, Expense, or Intrusiveness Outweighs Likelihood of Obtaining Admissible Evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.020]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR PROTECTIVE ORDER LIMITING SCOPE OF DISCOVERY
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)	Date: _____
Defendant.	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE SCOPE OF THE REQUESTED DISCOVERY SHOULD BE LIMITED BECAUSE ITS _____ [BURDEN and/or EXPENSE and/or INTRUSIVENESS] CLEARLY OUTWEIGHS THE LIKELIHOOD THAT THE INFORMATION SOUGHT WILL LEAD TO THE DISCOVERY OF ADMISSIBLE EVIDENCE.

A. Motion for Protective Order. _____ [A party or An affected person] may make a motion for a protective order to limit the scope of discovery (Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.020).

B. Balancing Burden Against Likelihood of Discovering Admissible Evidence. The court shall limit the scope of discovery if, pursuant to a motion for protective order, it determines that the burden, expense, or intrusiveness of that discovery clearly outweighs the likelihood that the information sought will lead to the discovery of admissible evidence (Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.020(a); see Southern California Edison Co. v. Superior Court (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 832, 842-843, 103 Cal. Rptr. 709, 500 P.2d 621 ; Greyhound Corp. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 355, 383-384, 15 Cal. Rptr. 90, 364 P.2d 266 ; Calcor Space Facility, Inc. v. Superior Court (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 216, 223, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 567).

C. Court Must Impose Monetary Sanction Absent Specified Findings. The court must impose a monetary sanction under Section 2023.010 et seq. of the Code of Civil Procedure against any party, person, or attorney who unsuccessfully opposes a motion for a protective order, unless it finds that the one subject to the sanction acted with substantial justification or that other circumstances make the imposition of the sanction unjust (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2017.020(b), 2023.030(a)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities are for use in supporting a motion for a protective order to limit the scope of discovery [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.020]. The motion must be accompanied by a declaration stating facts showing a good faith attempt at an informal resolution of each issue presented by the motion [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2016.040, 2017.020(a)].

Note that cases cited in this form construe law in effect before the operative date of the Civil Discovery Act. They are cited and discussed as persuasive authority to the extent that remain consistent with current provisions [see also § 80.02[3]].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, counsel should state facts showing the burden, expense, or intrusiveness of the discovery, and that the likelihood that the information sought would lead to the discovery of admissible evidence is slight. Counsel's factual showing should demonstrate substantial justification for the motion in order to avoid a monetary sanction if the motion is denied [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.020(b)].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For further discussion and a form of motion for protective order under Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.020, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation and Timing (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Balancing Burden Against Likelihood of Discovering Admissible Evidence

Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.020 codifies the holding in Greyhound Corp. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 355, 383-384, 15 Cal. Rptr. 90, 364 P.2d 266 and its progeny, discussed below, that in exercising their discretion in considering requests for discovery, courts should weigh the relative importance of the information sought against the hardship entailed by its production. The Reporter's Note to Proposed Code Civ. Proc. § 2017(c) (now Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.020) explains that in drafting Code Civ. Proc. § 2017(c), the State Bar-Judicial Council Joint Commission on Discovery "concluded that this discretion was so important as a counter-balance to the broad standard of discovery relevance, that it should be written into the statute, and not left to implication."

Southern California Edison Co. v. Superior Court (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 832, 103 Cal. Rptr. 709, 500 P.2d 621 was a class action suit in nuisance and/or trespass, in which the class consisted of five named plaintiffs. In the course of discovery proceedings, defendant received the names of some unnamed plaintiffs and sought to depose 20 of them at random. When plaintiffs' attorney could only produce two, defendant sought depositions of 20 others, stating its intention to exclude from the class those who did not appear for depositions. On plaintiff's motion, the trial court issued a protective order which required defendant to subpoena the unnamed plaintiffs.

The Supreme Court upheld this order, denying defendant's petition for a writ of mandate (7 Cal. 3d 832, 843) . The Court noted that without the protective order, which shifts from plaintiffs to defendant the onus of compelling attendance of unnamed class members at depositions, the hardship on plaintiffs in class actions would be great (7 Cal. 3d 832, 842) . First of all, there is no particular reason for plaintiffs to be required to compel attendance; they have little control over the loosely knit class, and the defendants are just as capable as the named plaintiffs of compelling deponents' attendance (7 Cal. 3d 832, 841-842) . More importantly, however, the burden on the class in the absence of this particular type of protective order is severe in that plaintiffs' attorneys would be forced to expend extraordinary time and trouble to round up persons with whom they have had no prior contact. The risk they take if they fail to compelthe attendance of these persons is that the prospective deponents will be excluded from the class. Therefore, a defendant would effectively be able to stifle a class action at the discovery stage (7 Cal. 3d 832, 842) . The Supreme Court thus went on to hold that in fashioning this particular protective order, the trial court wisely balanced defendant's right to discovery against the hardships which would be imposed on plaintiffs in the absence of the protective order (7 Cal. 3d 832, 842-843) .

Greyhound Corp. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 355, 15 Cal. Rptr. 90, 364 P.2d 266 is the leading case construing the purposes and philosophy behind the former Discovery Act. Greyhound concerned a personal injury action involving an accident between plaintiffs' motor vehicle and defendant's bus. At the scene of the accident, before plaintiffs were taken to the hospital, defendant's adjusters and investigators obtained written and signed statements concerning the accident from various witnesses, many of whom were out-of-state residents. After unsuccessfully attempting to obtain these witnesses' accounts from other sources, plaintiffs made a motion to require defendant to produce and permit the inspection, copying, or photographing of the witnesses' statements. Although defendant objected to the production of these statements on various grounds, the trial court ordered their production. This holding was affirmed by the Supreme Court, which denied defendant's application for a writ of prohibition (56 Cal. 2d 355, 402) .

In discussing factors which courts should apply in deciding whether to uphold or deny discovery, the Greyhound Court stated that courts should weigh the relative importance of the information sought against the hardship entailed by its production in exercising their discretion (56 Cal. 2d 355, 383-384) . Thus if great hardship would be imposed on the party whose depositions are sought, and if relatively unimportant information would be elicited from the depositions, then it is reasonable to infer that a protective order is proper.

Calcor Space Facility, Inc. v. Superior Court (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 216, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 567 arose from a dispute over a contract to supply gun mounts for military aircraft. The defendant in the contract action had allegedly repudiated its original contract with the plaintiff and had arranged to obtain the gun mounts from Calcor, one of the contract plaintiff's competitors. The contract plaintiffs had served a deposition subpoena on Calcor's custodian of records, seeking production of extensive documentation regarding all of Calcor's gun mount business, including any dealings with the contract defendant.

In this opinion, the court of appeal reversed the trial court's denial of Calcor's motion for a protective order because the 12-page demand, which included six pages of instructions and definitions was burdensome in the extreme, was overly general and failed to demonstrate any reasonable relationship between the materials sought to be produced and the issuesin the case (53 Cal. App. 4th 216, 222-223) . The court observed that in ruling on discovery motions, trial judges must carefully weight the cost, time, expense, and disruption of normal business resulting from an order compelling the discovery against the probative value of the material which might be disclosed (53 Cal. App. 4th 216, 223) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Balancing Burden Against Likelihood of Discovering Admissible Evidence

In Jaffe v. Albertson Co. (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 592, 53 Cal. Rptr. 25 , plaintiff sued for a breach of contract to pay a real estate commission. Before trial, there were exhaustive discovery proceedings, including an attempt to depose various persons concerning the settlement of litigation between defendant seller and the company which ultimately purchased the real property involved. Plaintiff had specified that the scope of the depositions would be limited to the terms of the settlement. However, defendant moved for a protective order, contending that the subject of the proposed depositions was irrelevant to the subject matter of the action, and also that taking of the depositions would cause delay in the commencement of trial, which was imminent. The trial court granted the protective order, and a writ of mandate seeking reversal of this order was denied.

The court in Jaffe noted, that one of the prime purposes of the former Discovery Act was to expedite the trial of an action (citing Ryan v. Superior Court (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 813, 816, 817, 9 Cal. Rptr. 147). The court held that, in balancing the delay that would be caused by the belated discovery against the relative unimportance of the information which plaintiff was seeking, the trial court had correctly exercised its discretion in denying the discovery (243 Cal. App. 2d 592, 617, 618) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART II. FORMS
A. General Provisions Limiting Scope

8-80 California Points & Authorities §§ 80.81-80.99

[Reserved]

§§ 80.81[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART II. FORMS
B. General Provisions Regulating Sequence, Manner, and Timing

8-80 California Points & Authorities § 80.100

§ 80.100 Supporting Motion for Protective Order--Restricting Frequency or Extent of Use of Discovery Methods [Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.030]

[1] FORM Supporting Motion for Protective Order--Restricting Frequency or Extent of Use of Discovery Methods [Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.030]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR PROTECTIVE ORDER RESTRICTING _____ [FREQUENCY and/or EXTENT] OF USE OF DISCOVERY METHODS
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
		[Judge: _____
		Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE _____ [FREQUENCY and/or EXTENT] OF USE OF _____ [specify methods sought to be used, e.g., DEPOSITIONS AND INTERROGATORIES] SHOULD BE RESTRICTED BECAUSE THE DISCOVERY IS _____ [UNREASONABLY CUMULATIVE and/or UNREASONABLY DUPLICATIVE and/or OTHERWISE OBTAINABLE and/or UNDULY BURDENSOME and/or UNDULY EXPENSIVE].

A. Motion for Protective Order. _____ [A party or An affected person] may make a motion for a protective order to restrict the _____ [frequency and/or extent] of use of the discovery methods (Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.030).

[EITHER]

B. Restriction When Discovery Unreasonably Cumulative or Duplicative. The court must restrict the frequency or extent of use of any discovery method if, pursuant to a motion for a protective order, it determines that the discovery sought is unreasonably cumulative or duplicative (Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.030(a)(1)).

[AND/OR]

C. Restriction When Discovery Otherwise Obtainable. The court must restrict the frequency or extent of use of any discovery method if, pursuant to a motion for a protective order, it determines that the discovery sought is obtainable from some other source that is more convenient, less burdensome, or less expensive (Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.030(a)(1)).

[AND/OR]

D. Restriction When Discovery Method Unduly Burdensome or Expensive. The court must restrict the frequency or extent of use of any discovery method if, pursuant to a motion for protective order, it determines that the selected method of discovery is unduly burdensome or expensive, taking into account the needs of the case, the amount in controversy, and the importance of the issues at stake in the litigation (Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.030(a)(2)).

E. Court Must Impose Monetary Sanction Absent Specified Findings. The court must impose a monetary sanction under Code of Civil Procedure Section 2023.010 et seq. against any party, person, or attorney who unsuccessfully opposes a motion for a protective order, unless it finds that the one subject to the sanction acted with substantial justification or that other circumstances make the imposition of the sanction unjust (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2019.030(c), 2023.030(a)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum is for use in supporting a motion for a protective order to restrict the frequency or extent of use of the discovery methods [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.030]. The motion must be accompanied by a declaration stating facts showing a good-faith attempt at an informal resolution of each issue presented by the motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.030(b)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.030 is generally patterned after FRCP, Rule 26(b)(1).

Note that cases cited in this form construe law in effect before the operative date of the Civil Discovery Act. They are cited and discussed as persuasive authority to the extent that remain consistent with current provisions [see also § 80.02[3]].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should state facts showing that another method or methods have previously been used to obtain the same information, or showing another source from which the information could be obtained that is more convenient or less burdensome or less expensive, or showing how the selected method of discovery is unduly burdensome or expensive in relation to the factors of the case. Counsel's factual showing should demonstrate substantial justification for the motion in order to avoid a monetary sanction if the motion is denied [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.030(c)].

[c] Discovery Methods

The discovery methods that may be restricted by court order pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.030 are the following [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.010]:

- Oral or written depositions [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2020.010 et seq., 2025.010 et seq., 2029.100 et seq.].
- Interrogatories to a party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2030.010 et seq.].
- Inspection, copying, testing, or sampling of documents, tangible things, land or other property, and electronically stored information [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2031.010 et seq.].
- Physical and mental examinations [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2032.010 et seq.].
- Requests for admissions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2033.010 et seq.].
- Exchanges of expert trial witness information [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.010 et seq.].

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For further discussion and a form of motion for protective order under Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.030, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation and Timing (Matthew Bender).

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART II. FORMS
B. General Provisions Regulating Sequence, Manner, and Timing

8-80 California Points & Authorities § 80.101

§ 80.101 Supporting Motion to Establish Sequence and Timing of Discovery [Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.020(b)]

[1] FORM Supporting Motion to Establish Sequence and Timing of Discovery [Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.020(b)]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO ESTABLISH SEQUENCE AND TIMING OF DISCOVERY
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)	Date: _____
Defendant.	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE COURT SHOULD ESTABLISH THE SEQUENCE AND TIMING OF DISCOVERY AS REQUESTED BY _____ [specify moving party, e.g., DEFENDANT] BECAUSE GOOD CAUSE HAS BEEN SHOWN FOR THE SEQUENCE AND TIMING REQUESTED, AND THE ORDER WILL FURTHER THE CONVENIENCE OF ALL PARTIES AND WITNESSES IN THE ACTION AND BE IN THE INTERESTS OF JUSTICE.

Court May Establish Sequence and Timing. On motion and for good cause shown, the court may establish the sequence and timing of discovery for the convenience of parties and witnesses and in the interests of justice (Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.020(b)).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form is a memorandum of points and authorities is for use in supporting a motion to establish the sequence and timing of discovery. Note that, absent a statewide or local court rule to the contrary, the methods of discovery otherwise may be used in any sequence. The fact that a party is conducting discovery, whether by deposition or otherwise, does not operate to delay the discovery of another party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.020(a); see also discussion in § 80.03].

Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.020 is generally patterned after FRCP, Rule 26(d).

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should propose a particular sequence and timing, then show how that sequence and timing would be for the convenience of parties and witnesses and in the interests of justice, setting out facts good cause for the particular sequence and timing.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For further discussion and a form for a motion to establish sequence and timing under Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.020(b), see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation and Timing (Matthew Bender).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART II. FORMS
B. General Provisions Regulating Sequence, Manner, and Timing

8-80 California Points & Authorities § 80.102

§ 80.102 Supporting Motion for the Use of Technology in Complex Cases and Certain Other Cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.730]

[1] FORM Supporting Motion for the Use of Technology in Complex Cases and Certain Other Cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.730]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OF IN SUPPORT OF MOTION
Plaintiff,	)	FOR THE USE OF TECHNOLOGY IN DISCOV-
vs.	)	ERY
_____ [name],	)	Date: _____
Defendant.	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE COURT SHOULD ENTER AN ORDER FOR THE USE OF _____ [specify telephone, e-mail, CD-ROM, Internet web sites, electronic documents, electronic document depositories, Internet depositions and storage, videoconferencing, or other electronic technology used to improve communication and discovery] IN CONDUCTING DISCOVERY [and FOR THE DISCOVERY TO BE MAINTAINED IN ELECTRONIC MEDIA] [and FOR THE APPOINTMENT OF _____, A TECHNOLOGY SERVICE PROVIDER].

A. Availability of Motion in Cases Designated as Complex, Cases Ordered to Be Coordinated, Exceptional Cases, or Cases Assigned to Plan 3, or Upon the Stipulation of the Parties. Pursuant to noticed motion, a court may enter orders for the use of technology in conducting discovery in cases designated as complex pursuant to Section 19 of the Judicial Administration Standards, cases ordered to be coordinated pursuant to Part 2, Title 4, Chapter 3 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Code Civ. Proc. § 404 et seq.), or exceptional cases exempt from case disposition time goals pursuant to Title 8, Chapter 2, Article 5 of the Government Code (Gov. Code § 68600 et seq., or cases assigned to Plan 3 pursuant to paragraph (3) of subdivision (b) of Section 2105 of the California Rules of Court, or upon stipulation of the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.730(a)].

B. Findings Required. The court must make express findings that the procedures adopted [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.730(c)]:

- Promote cost-effective and efficient discovery or motions relating thereto.
- Do not impose or require undue expenditures of time or money.
- Do not create an undue economic burden or hardship on any person.
- Promote open competition among vendors and providers of services in order to facilitate the highest quality service at the lowest reasonable cost to the litigants.
- Do not require parties or counsel to purchase exceptional or unnecessary services, hardware, or software.

[EITHER]

C. Appointment of Provider. The court must appoint the person or organization agreed upon by the parties and approve the contract agreed upon by the parties and the service provider. If there is no agreement, and no nominations are received from any of the parties, the court must appoint one or more service providers [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.740(a)].

[OR]

C. Appointment of Provider from Among Nominees. If the parties do not agree on the selection, each party should submit to the court up to three nominees for appointment together with a contract acceptable to the nominee and the court will appoint a service provider from among the nominees. The court may condition its appointment on the acceptance of modifications in the terms of the contract [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.740(a)].

[AND]

D. Court Supervision. The continued service of the service provider is subject to review periodically, as agreed by the parties and the service provider, or annually if they do not agree. Any disputes involving the contract or the duties, rights, and obligations of the parties or service providers may be determined on noticed motion in the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.740(b)].

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum is for use in (1) cases designated as complex pursuant to Section 19 of the Judicial Administration Standards, (2) cases ordered to be coordinated pursuant to Gov. Code § 404 et seq., (3) exceptional cases exempt from case disposition time goals pursuant to Gov. Code § 68600 et seq. or (4) cases assigned to Plan 3 pursuant to Cal. Rules of Court § 2105(b)(3), or (5) when the parties have stipulated to the use of technology in conducting discovery.

For an overview of issues and trends in e-discovery, see § 80.03A.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should describe the utility of electronic media in conducting discovery, such as data storage, tracking of data changes, reduced time in delivering data to other parties, reduced costs, commonality of data platforms, availability of vendors, and other facts in support of the findings required under Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.730(c). If the parties have not agreed on a provider, nominees should be submitted, as well as a description of their qualifications and proposed contractual details.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART II. FORMS
B. General Provisions Regulating Sequence, Manner, and Timing

8-80 California Points & Authorities §§ 80.103-80.109

[Reserved]

§§ 80.103[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART II. FORMS
B. General Provisions Regulating Sequence, Manner, and Timing

8-80 California Points & Authorities § 80.110

§ 80.110 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery Request on New Trial Is Not Barred by Discovery Cutoff Date for Initial Trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.020]

[1] FORM Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery Request on New Trial Is Not Barred by Discovery Cutoff Date for Initial Trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.020]

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30).]

A REQUEST FOR DISCOVERY ON NEW TRIAL IS SUBJECT TO THE DISCOVERY CUTOFF DATE APPLICABLE TO THE NEW TRIAL, AND IS NOT BARRED BY CUTOFF DATE APPLICABLE TO THE INITIAL TRIAL.

Time for Completing Discovery For New Trial Is Subject to New Trial Cutoff Date. The deadlines for completing discovery proceedings and motions are determined by reference to the "date initially set for the trial of the action" (Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.020(a)). When a new trial or retrial has been ordered, this refers to the date initially set for the new trial or retrial, and not the date initially set for the original trial (Fairmont Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 245, 247-249, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 70, 991 P.2d 156).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities in support of a motion for an order compelling discovery are for use by a party seeking discovery in the course of new trial or a retrial, when the opposing party is resisting discovery on the ground that the time for completing discovery has lapsed, as determined by the date on which the original trial in the action was first set. The ground for compelling discovery is that the discovery request is not untimely, because the time for completing discovery in the new trial is determined by reference to the date initially set for the new trial, not the date initially set for the original trial.

This form does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion to compel discovery.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For further discussion and forms relating to the time limits for completing discovery proceedings and motions under Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.010 et seq., see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation and Timing (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Time for Completing Discovery For New Trial Is Subject to New Trial Cutoff Date

In Fairmont Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 245, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 70, 991 P.2d 156 , a bad faith insurance action went through its original trial and an appeal. On appeal, the court of appeal reversed thetrial court's judgment for the defendant insurance company and remanded the cause for a new trial. On remand, the plaintiffs served the defendant with basic discovery requests, and the defendant objected. The defendant petitioned for review by extraordinary writ after the trial court granted the plaintiff's motion to compel. The court of appeal granted the writ, ordering the trial court to deny the motion to compel, holding that the cutoff for completing discovery under former Code Civ. Proc. § 2024(a) (now Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.020) is determined by reference to the date set for the original trial, regardless of whether a new trial is set after a reversal on appeal. The court of appeal added that the motion to compel could be renewed if the party requesting discovery could establish good cause for the additional discovery (22 Cal. 4th 245, 249) .

The Supreme Court granted review and reversed the decision of the court of appeal. The Court held that in the case of a mistrial, an order granting a new trial, or a remand for new trial after reversal of judgment on appeal, the last day for completing discovery is 15 days before the date initially set for the new trial (22 Cal. 4th 245, 247) . The Court agreed with the appellate court in Beverly Hospital v. Superior Court (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1289, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 238 , that the phrase "initial trial date" in former Code Civ. Proc. § 2024(a) (now Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.020) refers to first date set for each trial scheduled in the action for purposes of calculating discovery cutoff. It does not refer to date initially set for original trial of the action, without regard to the date set for new trial (22 Cal. 4th 245, 247) .

The Court explained that the court of appeal's construction in Beverly Hospital is more consistent with the language of former Code Civ. Proc. § 2024 (now Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.010 et seq.). Language in former Code Civ. Proc. § 2024 (now Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.020(b)), which states that, except as provided in former Code Civ. Proc. § 2024(e) (now Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.050), "a continuance or postponement of the trial date does not operate to reopen discovery proceedings," does not expressly limit discovery following an order granting a new trial, a mistrial, or a remand for a new trial after reversal on appeal. It refers simply to a continuance or postponement and its effect, whether it occurs during the original trial or in a subsequent new trial (22 Cal. 4th 245, 251) .

The construction in Beverly Hospital is also consistent with the legislative history of the provision, which indicates that the purpose of the statute is to eliminate a source of discovery abuse and unnecessary trial delays caused by party's seeking continuances or postponements of trial for the sole purpose of extending the time for discovery. The Court reasoned that parties were unlikely to manipulate the discovery procedure by creating grounds for a new trial, mistrial, or appellate reversal merely in order to extend the time for discovery (22 Cal. 4th 245, 252) .

Like the court in Beverly Hospital, the Supreme Court was disinclined to adopt a construction of former Code Civ. Proc. § 2024(a) (now Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.020) that would require additional court proceedings to determine if good cause existed to reopen discovery (22 Cal. 4th 245, 252) . The Court added that the lengthy timeframe of Code Civ. Proc. § 583.320, governing computation of time in which a new trial must be brought to action, appears to contemplate additional discovery by the parties (22 Cal. 4th 245, 252) .

Finally, the Court rejected arguments that reopening discovery would be unduly burdensome or duplicative, noting that discovery in the event of a new trial is not unlimited, and that a party objecting to a particular discovery request may seek a protective order (22 Cal. 4th 245, 254-255) .

For further discussion of the court of appeal opinion in Beverly Hospital, see Ch. 88, Discovery: Exchange of Expert Witness Information, § 88.22[3][a].

125 of 125 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 80 DISCOVERY: SCOPE, REGULATION, AND TIMING
PART II. FORMS
B. General Provisions Regulating Sequence, Manner, and Timing

8-80 California Points & Authorities § 80.111

§ 80.111 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to Complete Discovery, to Have Discovery Motion Heard, or to Reopen Discovery [Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.050]

[1] FORM Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to Complete Discovery, to Have Discovery Motion Heard, or to Reopen Discovery [Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.050]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR ORDER GRANTING LEAVE TO _____ [COMPLETE DISCOVERY PROCEEDINGS CLOSER TO TRIAL DATE or HAVE DISCOVERY MOTION HEARD CLOSER TO TRIAL DATE or REOPEN DISCOVERY]
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)
Defendant.	)
	)
	)
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
		[Judge: _____
		Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE COURT SHOULD EXERCISE ITS DISCRETION TO GRANT LEAVE TO _____ [COMPLETE DISCOVERY PROCEEDINGS CLOSER TO THE INITIAL TRIAL DATE or HAVE THE DISCOVERY MOTION HEARD CLOSER TO THE INITIAL TRIAL DATE or REOPEN DISCOVERY] BECAUSE

IT IS NECESSARY, _____ [specify moving party, e.g., PLAINTIFF] HAS BEEN DILIGENT IN SEEKING DISCOVERY, AND IT IS UNLIKELY THAT THE DISCOVERY WILL PREVENT THE TRIAL FROM GOING TO TRIAL ON THE DATE SET OR OTHERWISE INTERFERE WITH THE TRIAL CALENDAR OR PREJUDICE ANY OTHER PARTY.

A. Availability of Motion. On motion of any party, accompanied by a declaration stating facts showing a reasonable and good-faith attempt at an informal resolution of each issue presented by themotion, the court may grant leave to _____ [complete discovery proceedings closer to the initial trial date or have a motion concerning discovery heard closer to the initial trial date or reopen discovery after a new trial date has been set] (Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.050(a)).

B. Factors to Be Considered. In exercising its discretion to grant leave to _____ [complete discovery proceedings or have a discovery motion heard or reopen discovery], the court is required to take into consideration any matter relevant to the leave requested, including but not limited to the following:

1. The necessity and the reasons for the discovery (Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.050(b)(1));

2. The diligence of the party seeking the _____ [discovery or hearing of the discovery motion], and the reasons that the discovery _____ [was not completed or motion was not heard earlier] (Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.050(b)(2));

3. Any likelihood, or absence thereof, that _____ [permitting the discovery or hearing the discovery motion] will prevent the case from going to trial on the day set, or otherwise interfere with the trial calendar, or result in prejudice to any other party (Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.050(b)(3));

4. The length of time that has elapsed between the date(s) previously set, and the date presently set, for the trial of the action (Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.050(b)(4)).

C. Court Must Impose Monetary Sanction Absent Specified Findings. The court must impose a monetary sanction under Section 2023.010 et seq. of the Code of Civil Procedure against any party, person, or attorney who unsuccessfully opposes a motion to extend or reopen discovery, unless it finds that the one subject to the sanction acted with substantial justification or that other circumstances make the imposition of the sanction unjust (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2023.030(a), 2024.050(c)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum is for use in supporting a motion for an order granting leave to complete discovery proceedings, hear a discovery motion, or reopen discovery [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.050]. The motion must be accompanied by a declaration stating facts showing a reasonable and good-faith attempt at an informal resolution of each issue presented by the motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.050(a)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, counsel should state facts that show (1) necessity and reason for the discovery, (2) the diligence of the moving party in seeking the discovery or discovery hearing, (3) the reasons that the discovery was not completed or the hearing held earlier, (4) the lack of likelihood that permitting the discovery or hearing the discovery motion will prevent the case from going to trial on the date set or otherwise interfere with the trial calendar, or that prejudice will result to any party, and (5) if applicable, the length of time that has elapsed between any date previously set, and the date presently set, for the trial of the action. These facts should help demonstrate substantial justification for the motion in order to avoid a monetary sanction if the motion is denied [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.050(c)].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For further discussion and forms relating to time limits for completing discovery proceedings and notions under Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.010 et seq., see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Time Limitations on Discovery

Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.010 et seq. derives from and supersedes former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 333. It provides that, as a general rule, any party is entitled as a matter of right to complete discovery proceedings until 30 days before the date initially set for the trial of the action. In addition, any party is entitled as a matter of right to have motions concerning discovery heard until 15 days before the initial trial date [Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.020(a)]. If either of these dates falls on a Saturday, Sunday, or holiday (see Code Civ. Proc. § 10 (designated holidays)), the last day is the next court day closer to the trial date [Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.060]. However, any party is entitled as a matter of right to complete discovery proceedings pertaining to an expert witness [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2034.010 et seq.] until 15 days, and to have motions concerning that discovery heard until 10 days, before the date initially set for the trial of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.030]. If either of those days falls on a Saturday, Sunday, or holiday, the last day becomes the next court day closer to the trial date [Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.060; see Code Civ. Proc. § 10 (designated holidays)]. Discovery is considered "completed" on the day a response is due or on the day a deposition begins [Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.010].

In the case of mistrial, an order granting a new trial, or remand for new trial after reversal of judgment on appeal, the last day for completing discovery is 15 days before the date initially set for the new trial [Fairmont Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 245, 247, 249, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 70, 991 P.2d 156 ; see further discussion in § 80.110[3][a]].

When the last day to perform or complete any act provided for in the California Civil Discovery Act (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2016.010 et seq.-2036.010 et seq.), falls on a Saturday, Sunday, or holiday, the time limit is extended until the next court day closer to the trial date that is not a Saturday, Sunday, or holiday [Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.060; see Code Civ. Proc. § 10 for definition of holiday].

Note that Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.010 et seq. does not apply to summary proceedings for obtaining possession of real property or to eminent domain proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.040(b)]. Discovery in summary proceedings to obtain possession of real property must be completed on or before the fifth day before the date set for trial except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2024.050 and 2024.060 [Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.040(b)(1)]. Furthermore, the statute's application in judicially arbitrated cases is restricted [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.040(a)].

Unless ordered otherwise pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.050, a continuance or postponement of the trial date does not operate to reopen discovery proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.020(b)].

After the time periods have passed, a party generally may not complete discovery proceedings, have discovery motions heard, or have discovery reopened unless the party obtains leave of court pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.050. However, the parties may agree to extend the time for completion or hearing of motions, or to reopen discovery. The agreement, which may be informal, must be confirmed in a writing that specifies the extended date. Any party affected by the agreement must consent to it. In no event, however, may the agreement require a court to grant a continuance or postponement of the trial of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.060].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Time Limitations on Discovery

In Hernandez v. Superior Court (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 1242, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 821 , personal injury plaintiff moved for a continuance of the trial date and to reopen discovery to supplement his expert witness list, after his attorney died of pancreatic cancer. The trial court continued the trial date one month and denied plaintiff's other requests. Plaintiff filed a petition for writ of mandate.

The court of appeal granted the writ, directing the trial court to vacate its orders and enter new orders continuing the trial to a date at least six months out and permitting plaintiff to supplement his designation of expert witnesses and extending the discovery cutoff date (115 Cal. App. 4th 1242, 1248) . Citing Cal. Stds. Jud. Admin., § 9 and former Code Civ. Proc. § 2024(e) (now Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.050(b)), the court held that death or serious illness of a trial attorney or a party should, under normal circumstances, be considered good cause for granting the continuance of a trial date, as well as good cause to reopen discovery after a trial date has been continued (115 Cal. App. 4th 1242, 1247-1248) . The court balanced the prejudice petitioner suffered due to the terminal illness and death of his attorney against real party's unsubstantiated claim that he would be prejudiced by the extension of the discovery cut-off date and a trial continuance, concluding that "the strong public policy favoring disposition on the merits outweighs the competing policy favoring judicial efficiency" (115 Cal. App. 4th 1242, 1246) .

[b] Factors to Be Considered

In Pelton-Shepherd Industries, Inc. v. Delta Packaging Products, Inc. (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 1568, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 64 , defendant appealed trial court orders imposing monetary sanctions for discovery misconduct in a contract action, striking defendant's answer to plaintiff complaint, and dismissing defendant's cross-complaint (165 Cal. App. 4th 1568, 1570) . After the discovery motion cutoff date, plaintiff filed a motion to compel discovery without seeking leave from the trial court under Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.050 to reopen discovery. The trial court granted the motion and later sanctioned defendant for failing to comply. The appellate court held that the trial court abused its discretion under Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.020 by hearing the motion to compel without first deciding whether discovery should be reopened for that purpose, considering all of the relevant circumstances, as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.050(b). The trial court should have assessed plaintiff's reasons for seeking the discovery, and its diligence or lack of diligence (165 Cal. App. 4th 1568, 1571, 1587-1588). The error was prejudicial because it was reasonably probable that the trial court would have denied the motion to reopen discovery based on plaintiff's unexplained delay and the marginal relevance of the requested documents (165 Cal. App. 4th 1568, 1571, 1589-1590) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS

8-81 California Points & Authorities 81.syn

§ 81.syn Synopsis to Chapter 81: DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS

§ 81.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 81.02 Governing Law

[1] California Civil Discovery Act and Related Law

[2] Evidentiary Privileges and Other Provisions Limiting Discovery

[3] Case Law Decided Under Prior Discovery Acts

[4] Federal Authorities

§ 81.03 How to Use the Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Memoranda

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

§ 81.04 Related Discussion and Forms

[1] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[2] Related Points and Authorities Chapters

§§ 81.05-81.09 [Reserved]

§ 81.10 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Privilege--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Uses

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Burden of Showing Privilege

[b] Strict Construction of Privileges

[c] No Implied Exceptions to Evidence Code Privileges

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Burden of Showing Privilege

§§ 81.11-81.19 [Reserved]

§ 81.20 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Privileged Material Not Discoverable--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Uses

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Privileged Material Not Discoverable

§§ 81.21-81.59 [Reserved]

§ 81.60 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954]--Client's Communication to Lawyer Not Privileged When Not Intended to Be Confidential

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Privilege Applicable Only to Information Communicated in Confidence

[b] Privilege Inapplicable When Disclosure Made for Purpose of Communication to Another

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Privilege Applicable Only to Information Communicated in Confidence

§ 81.61 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954]--Information Not Privileged Merely Because Communicated to Lawyer

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Information Not Privileged Merely Because Communicated to Lawyer

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Information Not Privileged Merely Because Communicated to Lawyer

§ 81.62 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954]--Information Communicated Through Nonagent Third Party Not Privileged

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Privilege Not Applicable to Information Communicated Through Nonagent Third Party

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Privilege Not Applicable to Information Communicated Through Nonagent Third Party

§ 81.63 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954]--Joint Client's Communication of Matters of Common Interest Not Privileged in Action Between Joint Clients [Evid. Code § 962]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Joint Client's Communication to Lawyer Not Privileged in Action Between Joint Clients

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Joint Client's Communication to Lawyer Not Privileged in Action Between Joint Clients

§ 81.64 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954]--Communication by Nonparty Corporate Employee

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Communication Not Privileged if Information Does Not Emanate From Corporation

[b] Corporate Employee Is Independent Witness

[c] Dominant-Purpose Rule Applies When Employee Not Independent Witness

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Corporate Employee Is Independent Witness

[b] Dominant-Purpose Rule Applies When Employee Not Independent Witness

§ 81.65 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954]--Privilege Waived by Holder's Disclosure of Communication [Evid. Code § 912(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Privilege Waived by Disclosure of Communication

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Privilege Waived by Disclosure of Communication

§ 81.66 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954]--Privilege Waived by Consent to Disclosure of Communication [Evid. Code § 912(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Privilege Waived by Consent to Disclosure of Communication

[b] Failure to Claim Privilege

[c] Consent Inferred From Other Evidence

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Privilege Waived by Consent to Disclosure of Communication

§ 81.67 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954]--Privilege Impliedly Waived

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Waiver Implied by Placing Mental State of Lawyer in Issue

[b] Implied Waiver Occurs When Gravamen of Suit Is So Inconsistent With Privilege as to Compel Waiver

[c] Implied Waiver Occurs When Party Designated as Expert Witness Produces Privileged Documents or Testifies as Expert

[d] Test for Implied Waiver of Lawyer-Client Privilege

§ 81.68 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954]--Matter Relates to Arbitration of Attorney-Client Fee Dispute [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6202]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

§ 81.69 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954]--Privilege Does Not Preclude Discovery by Successor Trustee

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Predecessor Trustee May Not Assert Lawyer-Client Privilege to Preclude Discovery by Successor Trustee

§ 81.70 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery-Refuting Claim of Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954]--Subject to Evidence Code Section 956.5--Confidential Communications Are Not Protected When Threat of Criminal Act Is Likely to Result in Death or Substantial Bodily Harm

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exception to Lawyer-Client Privilege Under Evidence Code Section 956.5 Applies When Necessary to Prevent Client from Committing Criminal Act Likely to Result in Death or Serious Bodily Harm

[b] Lawyer-Client Privilege Is Inapplicable When Client Threatens to Kill or Harm Witnesses

§ 81.71 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code §§ 953(c), 954, Prob. Code § 12252]--Deceased Client's Personal Representative Is Only Person Authorized to Assert Privilege

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Additional Authorities

[a] Personal Representative of Deceased Client Is Sole Holder of Privilege

§§ 81.72-81.79 [Reserved]

§ 81.80 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954] Applicable--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Claimant of Privilege

[b] Definition of Confidential Communication

[c] Presumption of Confidentiality

[d] Privilege Bars Discovery of Confidential Communication Irrespective of Whether or Not It Includes Unprivileged Material

[e] Identity of Clients Is Confidential

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Claimant of Privilege

[b] Definition of Confidential Communication

[c] Presumption of Confidentiality

[d] Identity of Clients Is Confidential

§ 81.81 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954] Applicable--Communication When No Litigation Is Threatened

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Privilege Applies Although No Litigation Is Threatened

[b] Open Meeting Requirements Do Not Require Disclosure of City Attorney's Letter to City Council

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Open Meeting Requirements Do Not Require Disclosure of City Attorney's Letter to City Council

§ 81.82 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954] Applicable--Communication Before Actual Employment of Lawyer as Privileged

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Communication Before Actual Employment of Lawyer

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Communication Before Actual Employment of Lawyer

§ 81.83 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954] Applicable--Failure to Establish Joint-Client Relationship [Evid. Code § 962] by Showing Actual Employment of Lawyer

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Joint-Client Relationship Not Established When No Showing of Attorney's Actual Employment

§ 81.84 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954] Applicable--Communication by Nondefendant Corporate Employee as Privileged Under Facts

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Corporation Entitled to Same Lawyer-Client Privilege as Natural Person

[b] Communication Privileged When Information Emanates From Corporation

[c] Employee's Statement as Statement of Corporate Employer

[d] Applicability of Privilege to Corporate Employee's Communication Determined by Employer's Dominant Purpose

[e] Employee's Communication Privileged Although Obtained by Employer's Agent

[f] There Is No Shareholder Exception to Lawyer-Client Privilege

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Applicability of Privilege to Corporate Employee's Communication Determined by Employer's Dominant Purpose

[b] There Is No Shareholder Exception to Lawyer-Client Privilege

§ 81.85 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954] Applicable--Communication to Insurer for Attorney's Use Is Privileged

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Confidential Statements Made by Insured to Insurer for Attorney's Use Are Protected

§ 81.86 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954] Applicable--Communication to Physician or Psychologist at Attorney's Request

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Client's Communication to Attorney's Agent in Preparation of Case Is Privileged

§ 81.87 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954] Applicable--Trustee's Confidential Communication to Attorney Is Privileged Against Beneficiaries

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Trustee May Assert Lawyer-Client Privilege to Preclude Discovery by Trust Beneficiaries

[b] Trustee's Confidential Communications With Its Attorneys About Its Potential Personal Liability Are Privileged

[c] Trustee Enjoys Absolute Privilege Against Beneficiaries for Confidential Communications About Trust Administration

§ 81.88 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954] Applicable--No Exception to Lawyer-Client Privilege for Condominium Owners

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] There Is No Exception to the Attorney-Client Privilege for Individual Condominium Owners When Condominium Association Brings Suit on Its Own Behalf

§ 81.89 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954] Applicable--Privilege Not Waived [Evid. Code § 912]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intent to Disclose Not a Waiver

[b] Confidential Communication Privileged Although Information Previously Transmitted to Third Party

[c] Privilege Applicable to Communication Between Client and Particular Lawyer

[d] Waiver by Joint Holder Not Applicable

[e] Statements to Lawyer for Purpose of Answering Interrogatories as Privileged

[f] No Waiver of Privilege If Disclosure Coerced by Court Order

[g] Tendering Issue of Damages in Legal Malpractice Action

[h] No Waiver by Disclosure of Fact That Privileged Communication Occurred

[i] No Waiver Under Evidence Code Section 912 Without Disclosure

[j] Inadvertent Disclosure by Attorney Does Not Waive Privilege

[k] Partial Waiver of Attorney-Client Privilege

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Confidential Communication Privileged Although Information Previously Transmitted to Third Party

[b] No Waiver of Privilege If Disclosure Coerced by Court Order

§ 81.90 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954] Applicable--Privilege Not Impliedly Waived

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Implied Waiver Unless Privileged Communication Has Been Put in Issue

[b] No Implied Waiver After Party Has Been Designated Expert Witness

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] No Implied Waiver Unless Privileged Communication Has Been Put in Issue

§ 81.91 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954] Applicable--Lawyer's Services Not Sought to Enable or Aid Commission of Crime or Fraud [Evid. Code § 956]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Privilege Applies Absent Crime or Fraud

[b] Evidence Code Section 956 Exception Inapplicable When Lawyer Commits Crime or Fraud

[c] Validity of Claim of Privilege Must Be Determined Before Discovery Is Ordered

[d] Proponent of Exception Must Show Something More Than Probable Cause

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Privilege Applies Absent Crime or Fraud

[b] Validity of Claim of Privilege Must Be Determined Before Discovery Is Ordered

§§ 81.92-81.109 [Reserved]

§ 81.110 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Physician-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 994]--Disclosure of Patient's Name Is Not Always Privileged

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Permissible Disclosure of Patient's Name

§ 81.111 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Physician-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 994]--Purpose of Communication Not to Obtain Diagnosis of Subject's Condition [Evid. Code § 991]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Communication to Physician for Nondiagnostic Purpose Not Privileged

§ 81.112 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Physician-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 994]--Waiver by Disclosure [Evid. Code §§ 912(a), 992]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Privilege Waived by Disclosure of Communication

[b] Consent to Disclosure May Be Manifested by Failure to Assert Privilege, or Other Conduct Indicating Consent

§§ 81.113-81.119 [Reserved]

§ 81.120 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Physician-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 994] Applicable--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Uses

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Claimant of Privilege

[b] Dual Purposes of Privilege

[c] Definition of Confidential Communication

[d] "Confidentiality" Liberally Construed in Favor of Patient

[e] Presumption of Confidentiality

§ 81.121 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Physician-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 994] Applicable--Patient's Name as Privileged Under Certain Circumstances

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Patient's Name Is Privileged

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Patient's Name Is Privileged

§ 81.122 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Physician-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 994] Applicable--Claim of Privilege by Third-Party Recipient of Material

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Third Party Is Able to Claim Privilege

§ 81.123 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Physician-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 994] Applicable--Information Transmitted to Third Party for Purpose of Payment of Physician's Fee

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Information Transmitted for Payment of Fee Is Privileged

§ 81.124 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Physician-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 994] Applicable--Patient-Litigant Exception [Evid. Code § 996] Not Applicable

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Narrow Interpretation of Patient-Litigant Exception

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Narrow Interpretation of Patient-Litigant Exception

§§ 81.125-81.139 [Reserved]

§ 81.140 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014]--Waiver [Evid. Code § 912(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Waiver of Privilege

[b] Inability of Psychotherapist to Assert Privilege When Patient Has Previously Waived It

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Waiver of Privilege

§ 81.141 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014]--Privilege Inapplicable When Patient-Litigant Has Placed Mental Condition in Issue [Evid. Code § 1016]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Patient-Litigant Exception Applicable

[b] Psychotherapist's Right to Keep Patient's Confidence Limited by Patient-Litigant Exception

[c] Burden of Showing Applicability of Privilege on Patient After Mental Issue Tendered

§ 81.142 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014]--Privilege Inapplicable When Patient Threatened Danger to Another [Evid. Code § 1024]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege Inapplicable When Patient Believed to Be Dangerous to Another

[b] Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege Inapplicable to Warning Made to Victim

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege Inapplicable When Patient Believed to Be Dangerous to Another

§ 81.143 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014]--Disclosure of Patient's Name, Address, and Telephone Number Is Necessary to Protect Patient in State Custody

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Right of Patient to Be Free From Harm While in State Custody Justifies Disclosure of Otherwise Privileged Information

§ 81.144 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014]--Privilege Inapplicable to Information Relating to Child Abuse and Neglect or Injuries Resulting From Weapons, Assault, or Abuse

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Psychotherapist Privilege Inapplicable to Information Reported Pursuant to Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act

[b] Psychotherapist Privilege Inapplicable to Information Reported Relating to Injuries Resulting From Weapons,

Assault, or Abuse

§ 81.145 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014]--Communication Was Not Privileged

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Dominant Purpose of Communication to Psychotherapist Must Be Within Course of Professional Counseling

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Dominant Purpose of Communication to Psychotherapist Must Be Within Course of Professional Counseling

§§ 81.146-81.149 [Reserved]

§ 81.150 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014] Applicable--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Uses

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] "Confidentiality" Liberally Construed in Favor of Patient

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] "Confidentiality" Liberally Construed in Favor of Patient

[b] Definition of Confidential Communications

§ 81.151 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014] Applicable--Information Sought Not Within Patient-Litigant Exception [Evid. Code § 1016]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Limitation of Patient-Litigant Exception

[b] Party's Attempt to Invade Privilege Based Only on Speculation

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Limitation of Patient-Litigant Exception

§ 81.152 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014] Applicable--Disclosure of Object of Treatment to Avoid Application of Patient-Litigant Exception Is Not Waiver

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Disclosure to Avoid Application of Patient-Litigant Exception Is Not Waiver

§ 81.153 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014] Applicable--Disclosure of Insignificant Part of Communication Is Not Waiver as to Remainder

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Insignificant Disclosure of Part Is Not Waiver of Confidentiality of Whole Psychotherapist-Patient Communication

[b] Insignificant Disclosure of Existence of Psychotherapist Visits

[c] Insignificant Disclosure of Purpose of Psychotherapeutic Treatment

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Insignificant Disclosure of Existence of Psychotherapist Visits

[b] Insignificant Disclosure of Purpose of Psychotherapeutic Treatment

§ 81.154 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014] Applicable--Patient's Signing of General Medical Consent Form Is Not Waiver

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] General Medical Records Consent Is Not Waiver of Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege

§ 81.155 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014] Applicable--Exchange of Records Between Psychotherapist and Other Treating Professionals Is Not Waiver

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exchange of Reports Between Healing Professionals Is Not Waiver of Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Exchange of Reports Between Healing Professionals Is Not Waiver of Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege

§ 81.156 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014] Applicable--Psychotherapist Is Unable to Waive Privilege by Disclosure Without Patient's Consent

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Psychotherapist Is Unable to Waive Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege Without Patient's Consent

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Psychotherapist Is Unable to Waive Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege Without Patient's Consent

§ 81.157 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014] Applicable--Privilege Includes Communications by Patient's Family

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Communications by Patient's Intimate Family Members to Psychotherapists

§ 81.158 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014] Applicable--Disclosure of Fact of Psychiatric Treatment Is Privileged If Disclosure Would Divulge Nature of Condition for Which Treatment Sought

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Fact of Psychiatric Treatment Is Privileged If Disclosure Would Divulge Condition

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Fact of Psychiatric Treatment Is Privileged If Disclosure Would Divulge Condition

§ 81.159 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014] Applicable--Privilege Includes Names, Addresses, and Telephone Numbers of Psychotherapist's Patients

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Identities of Psychotherapist's Patients Are Privileged

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Identities of Psychotherapist's Patients Are Privileged

§ 81.160 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014] Applicable--Information Sought Is Not Within Court-Appointed Psychotherapist Exception [Evid. Code § 1017]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Limitation on Court-Appointed Psychotherapist Exception

§§ 81.161-81.179 [Reserved]

§ 81.180 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Privilege Not to Disclose Tax Returns

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Uses

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Waiver by Contract

[b] Waiver by Litigation

[c] Proceedings Involving Child, Family, or Spousal Support

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Proceedings Involving Public Policy Greater Than That of Confidentiality of Tax Returns Involved--Proceedings Involving Child, Family, or Spousal Support

§§ 81.181-81.189 [Reserved]

§ 81.190 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Privilege Not to Disclose Tax Returns

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Uses

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] State and Federal Income Tax Returns

[b] Corporate Tax Returns

[c] Partnership Tax Returns

[d] Employment Tax Returns

[e] Estate Tax Returns

[f] W-2 Forms

[g] Sales Tax Returns

[h] Holder of the Privilege

[i] New Spouse May Assert Privilege in Action for Modification of Child Support

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] State and Federal Income Tax Returns

[b] Corporate Tax Returns

§§ 81.191-81.199 [Reserved]

§ 81.200 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery Improperly Resisted on Ground of Work Product Protection [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.010 et seq.]--Matters Not Protected by Work Product Doctrine

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Nature of Work Product Protection

[d] Protection Limited in Actions Between Attorney and Client

[e] No Work Product Protection May Be Asserted by Attorneys Suspected of Knowingly Participating in Crime or Fraud If Their Services Were Sought to Commit Crime or Fraud

[f] Effect of Civil Discovery Act on Prior Case Law

[g] Claim of Privilege or of Work Product Protection for Electronically Stored Information Produced in Discovery

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Identity of Potential Nonexpert Witnesses

[b] Attorney's Legal Contentions

[c] Facts Relied on to Prove Case

[d] Notes Recording Witness's Statements

[e] Attorney's Notes Made as Business Agent

[f] Events Provable at Trial or Identity and Location of Physical Evidence

[g] Report of Investigator-Witness

§ 81.201 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery Improperly Resisted on Ground of Work Product Protection [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.010 et seq.]--Material Not Product of Attorney or Attorney's Agents or Employees

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Work Product Required to Be Product of Attorney or Attorney's Agents or Employees

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Work Product Required to Be Product of Attorney or Attorney's Agents or Employees

§ 81.202 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery Improperly Resisted on Ground of Work Product Protection [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.010 et seq.]--Opinions and Reports of Experts Discoverable Under Certain Circumstances [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.030(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Work Product of Experts

[d] Exchange of Expert Witness Lists

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Expert to Be Called as Witness

[b] Discovery of Expert's Opinions When Required by Fairness and Justice

[c] Refusal to Designate Expert as Witness

[d] Expert's Observations Not Communicated to Attorney

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Expert to Be Called as Witness

§ 81.203 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery Improperly Resisted on Ground of Work Product Protection [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.010 et seq.]--Overcoming Conditional Protection [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.030(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Partial Disclosure

[b] Disclosure Necessary to Impeach Credibility of Witness

§ 81.204 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery of Work Product Permissible--Waiver

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Waiver Under Discovery Act

[d] Related Uses

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Waiver of Work Product Protection by Revealing Material for Use by Witness

[b] Waiver by Attorney's Voluntary Disclosure

[c] Voluntary Disclosure by Prior Attorney

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Waiver by Attorney's Voluntary Disclosure

§ 81.205 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery Improperly Resisted on Ground of Work Product Protection [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.010 et seq.]--Attorney Is Holder of Privilege

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney Is Holder of Privilege

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Attorney Is Holder of Privilege

§ 81.206 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery Improperly Resisted on Ground of Work Product Protection [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.010 et seq.]--Matter Relates to Arbitration of Attorney-Client Fee Dispute [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6202]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

§ 81.207 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery Improperly Resisted on Ground of Work Product Protection [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.010 et seq.]--Work Product Discoverable in Action by Client [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.080]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

§ 81.208 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery Improperly Resisted on Ground of Work Product Protection [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.010 et seq.]--Work Product Discoverable in Official Proceeding When Attorney's Services Were Sought to Aid Commission of Crime or Fraud [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.050]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Attorney's Right to In Camera Hearing

§§ 81.209-81.219 [Reserved]

§ 81.220 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Work Product Protected From Disclosure [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.020]--Absolute Protection [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.030(a)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Discoverability of Work Product

[d] Work Product Protection Not a "Privilege"

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Absolute Work Product Protection

[b] Legal Reasoning Not Discoverable

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Absolute Work Product Protection

§ 81.221 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Work Product Protected From Disclosure [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.020]--Absolute Protection [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.030(a)]--Not Subject to Evid. Code § 956 Commission of Crime or Fraud Exception

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Crime-Fraud Exception Not Applicable to Absolutely Protected Work Product Documents

§ 81.222 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Work Product Protected From Disclosure [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.020]--Absolute Protection [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.030(a)]--Nature and Extent of Testimony of Nonexpert Witnesses, Comments on Statements of Nonexpert Witnesses, or Attorney's Legal Reasoning or Theories

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inquiry Into Expected Testimony of Nonexpert Witnesses

[b] Comments on Statement of Witness by Attorney or Agent

[c] Attorney's Legal Reasoning or Theories

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Attorney's Legal Reasoning or Theories

§ 81.223 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Work Product Protected From Disclosure [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.020]--Conditional Protection [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.030(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Absolute Attorney Work Product Protection

[d] Discovery of Information Concerning Merely Potential Witnesses

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Definition of Work Product

[b] Material Protected as Work Product

[c] Burden on Party Seeking Disclosure

[d] Complete List of Nonexpert Witnesses Who Will Be Called at Trial

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Conditional Work Product Protection

§ 81.224 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Work Product Protected From Disclosure [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.020]--Conditional Protection [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.030(b)]--Protection Against Discovery of Experts

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Good Cause Needed for Discovery of Expert's Opinions

[b] Broad Immunity From Discovery of Expert Witness Information If Expert Not Scheduled to Testify at Trial

[c] Discovery of Percipient, as Opposed to Retained, Experts

[d] Opinions Imparted to Experts

[e] Discovery of Experts Far in Advance of Trial

[f] Services of Expert Rendered in Purely Advisory Capacity

[g] Knowledge or Opinion of Expert Taken off List of Designated Trial Witnesses Before Deposition

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Broad Immunity From Discovery of Expert Witness Information If Expert Not Scheduled to Testify at Trial

§ 81.225 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Work Product Protected From Disclosure [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.020]--Protection Not Waived

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Filing and Prosecuting Civil Action

[b] Giving File to Clients

[c] Involuntary Disclosure

[d] Tendering Probable Cause Defense in Malicious Prosecution Action

[e] Tendering Issue of Damages in Legal Malpractice Action

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] No Waiver of Protection if Disclosure Involuntary

§ 81.226 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Work Product Protected From Disclosure [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.020]--Protection Extends Beyond Termination of Litigation

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Protection Extends Beyond Termination of Litigation

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Protection Extends Beyond Termination of Litigation

§ 81.227 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Work Product Protected From Disclosure [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.030(a)]--Client Has Standing to Claim Absolute Work Product Protection of Attorney [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.030]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Client Has Standing to Claim Absolute Work Product Protection

§§ 81.228-81.239 [Reserved]

§ 81.240 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Privacy--General Form--Privacy Must Be Balanced Against Compelling State Interest

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Uses

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Requiring Discovery Despite Right to Privacy

[b] Compelling State Interest in Disclosure

[c] Disclosure of Relevant Matters Essential to Fair Resolution of Lawsuit

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Requiring Discovery Despite Right to Privacy

[b] Compelling State Interest in Disclosure

[c] Disclosure of Relevant Matters Essential to Fair Resolution of Lawsuit

§ 81.241 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Privacy--Narrowly Limited Disclosure Will Not Invade Right of Privacy

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Uses

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Disclosure Permissible When Limited

[b] Disclosure Not Revealing Identity of Nonparties

[c] Disclosure Not Revealing Identity of Authors of Confidential Communications

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Disclosure Permissible When Limited

§§ 81.242-81.249 [Reserved]

§ 81.250 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery Infringing Right of Privacy Is Improper--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Uses

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Right of Privacy Valid Basis for Refusal to Submit to Discovery

[b] Right of Privacy Precludes Disclosure Even When Inquiry Is Relevant and Not Privileged

[c] Right of Privacy Self-Executing

[d] Burden on Party Seeking Discovery

[e] Broad Discovery May Be Impermissible Even When Compelling State Interest

[f] Broad Discovery May Be Impermissible Even If Waiver of Right to Privacy

[g] Any Required Disclosure Should Be Narrowly Drawn

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Broad Discovery May Be Impermissible Even When Compelling State Interest

[b] Any Required Disclosure Should Be Narrowly Drawn

[c] Right to Privacy Valid Basis for Refusal to Submit to Discovery

§ 81.251 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery Infringing Right of Privacy Is Improper--Activities and Communications Covered by Right to Privacy

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Uses

[d] Scope of Authority

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Sexual Relationships Within Zone of Privacy

[b] Financial Affairs Within Zone of Privacy

[c] Associational Activity Within Zone of Privacy

[d] Matters Protected by Physician-Patient Privilege Within Zone of Privacy

[e] Confidential Customer List Within Zone of Privacy

[f] Protection of Bank Customers

[g] Matters Protected by Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege Within Zone of Privacy

[h] Disclosure of HIV Positive Status Within Zone of Privacy

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Sexual Relationships Within Zone of Privacy

[b] Associational Activity Within Zone of Privacy

[c] Matters Protected by Physician-Patient Privilege Within Zone of Privacy

[d] Protection of Bank Customers

[e] Disclosure of HIV Positive Status Within Zone of Privacy

§ 81.252 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery Infringing Right of Privacy Is Improper--Right to Privacy Outweighs Potential Usefulness of Information Sought

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Uses

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Value of Information Highly Speculative

[b] Tenuous Relevance of Information Balanced Against Compelling State Interest Standard

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Tenuous Relevance of Information Balanced Against Compelling State Interest Standard

§ 81.253 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery Infringing Right of Privacy as Improper--Disclosure Would Infringe Third Persons' Right of Privacy

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Uses

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Burden on Party Seeking Discovery That Might Intrude on Third Parties' Privacy Rights

[b] Narrowly Limited Discovery for Protection of Third Parties

[c] Standing of Custodian of Records to Assert Rights of Third Parties

[d] Third Person Residing With Support-Paying Parent Does Not Waive Right of Privacy of Financial Records

[e] Right of Third Party in Administrative Proceeding to Object to Disclosure of Personal Records

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Narrowly Limited Discovery for Protection of Third Parties

[b] Standing of Custodian of Records to Assert Rights of Third Parties

§ 81.254 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery Infringing Right of Privacy Is Improper--Right to Privacy in Psychotherapeutic Records Is Not Waived in Personal Injury Lawsuit

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Uses

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Filing of Lawsuit Is Not Waiver of Right to Privacy

[b] Personal Injury Plaintiff With Limited Emotional Distress Claim Does Not Waive Privacy of Psychotherapeutic Records

§§ 81.255-81.269 [Reserved]

§ 81.270 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Privilege Against Self-Incrimination [Evid. Code § 940]--Waiver of Privilege

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Privilege Against Self-Incrimination Is Waived With Reference to Factual Issues Tendered by Complaint

[b] Failure to Make Timely Objection Based on Privilege Against Self-Incrimination Serves as Waiver

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Privilege Against Self-Incrimination Is Waived With Reference to Factual Issues Tendered by Complaint

§ 81.271 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Privilege Against Self-Incrimination [Evid. Code § 940]--Insufficient Showing of Incrimination

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Claimant of Privilege Against Self-Incrimination Is Required to Demonstrate That Fear of Incrimination Is Reasonable

[b] Privilege Against Self-Incrimination Is Required to Be Claimed With Specific Reference to Particular Questions Asked or Other Evidence Sought

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Claimant of Privilege Against Self-Incrimination Is Required to Demonstrate That Fear of Incrimination Is Reasonable

§ 81.272 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Privilege Against Self-Incrimination [Evid. Code § 940]--Privilege Covers Only Personal Papers and Effects of Claimant

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Privilege Covers Only Personal Papers and Effects of Claimant

§ 81.273 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Privilege Against Self-Incrimination [Evid. Code § 940]--Privilege Does Not Cover Voluntarily Kept Business Records or Records Required to Be Kept by Law

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Privilege Does Not Cover Voluntarily Kept Business Records or Records That Are Required to Be Kept by Law

§ 81.274 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Privilege Against Self-Incrimination [Evid. Code § 940]--Witness Subject to Potential Civil, But Not Criminal, Liability

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Privilege Covers Only Matters That Will Subject Witness to Criminal, Not Civil, Liability

§ 81.275 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Clergy-Penitent Privilege [Evid. Code § 1032]--Communication Not Within Scope of Privilege

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Privileged Penitential Communications

[b] Privilege Applicable Only to Information Communicated in Confidence

[c] Privilege Applicable Only to Information Communicated to Authorized Clergy Member

[d] Privilege Applicable Only to Information Communicated to Clergy Member With Religious Duty to Keep

Communication Secret

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Privilege Applicable Only to Information Communicated to Clergy Member With Religious Duty to Keep Communication Secret

§ 81.276 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery of Official Information [Evid. Code § 1040]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Privilege Is Conditional in Absence of Specific Statute or Act Forbidding Disclosure

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Disclosure of Official Information is Not Prohibited by Act or Statute and Is Not Against Public Interest

[b] Privilege Is Conditional in Absence of Specific Statute or Act Forbidding Disclosure

§ 81.277 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery of Official Information [Evid. Code § 1040]--Discovery of Information Found in Accident Reports

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Information Derived From Accident Reports Is Not Privileged

[b] Information Derived From Reports of Accidents at Same Location Is Discoverable

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Information Derived From Reports of Accidents at Same Location Is Discoverable

§ 81.278 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery of Official Information [Evid. Code §

1040]--Discovery of Accident Reports

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Accident Reports May Be Discovered by Person With Proper Interest

§ 81.278A Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery of Official Information [Evid. Code § 1040]--Discovery of Information Contained in DMV Records Relating to Physical and Mental Condition

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Information in DMV Files Relating to Physical and Mental Condition Is Not Privileged Under Vehicle Code Section 1808.5

[b] Vehicle Code Section 1808.5 Is Not a Statute that Forbids Disclosure of DMV Information Relating to Physical and Mental Condition Under Evidence Code Section 1040(b)(1)

[c] Necessity for Disclosure of DMV Information Relating to Motorist's Physical and Mental Condition Outweighs Public's Interest

§ 81.279 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Newsperson's Qualified Privilege to Protect News Source--Existence and Veracity of News Source Placed in Issue by Newsperson

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Newsperson's First-Amendment Privilege Distinguished From Newsperson's Immunity From Contempt

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Newsperson's Qualified Privilege Must Give Way to Interest Favoring Disclosure When Newsperson Has Instituted Action Placing Existence and Veracity of News Source in Issue

§ 81.280 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery of Marital Communication [Evid. Code § 980]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Confidential Marital Communication Privilege Inapplicable to Statements Made While That Relationship Is Being Abused

[b] Privilege Waived by Disclosure

§§ 81.281-81.289 [Reserved]

§ 81.290 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Married Spouse's Privilege Not to Be Called as Witness Against Spouse [Evid. Code § 971]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Refusal to Testify Against One's Spouse

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Spouse's Privilege Not to Be Deposed by Party Who Is Adverse to Other Spouse

§ 81.291 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Confidential Marital Communication Privilege [Evid. Code § 980]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Marital Communications

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Marital Privilege Is Not Restricted to Oral Communications

§ 81.292 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery of Official Information [Evid. Code § 1040(b)(2)]--Discovery of Information in Police Investigative Files Sought in Civil Discovery

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Evidence in Police Investigative Files Is Confidential

[b] Information in Police Investigative Files Sought in Civil Discovery Remains Confidential When Need for Confidentiality Outweighs Benefit of Disclosure

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Information in Police Investigative Files Sought in Civil Discovery Remains Confidential When Need for Confidentiality Outweighs Benefit of Disclosure

§ 81.293 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Newsperson's Qualified Privilege to Protect News Source Applies

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Newsperson's First-Amendment Privilege Distinguished From Newsperson's Immunity From Contempt

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Newsperson's Qualified Privilege to Protect News Source

[b] Availability of Privilege Depends on Balancing of Relevant Factors in Each Case

[c] Privilege Applies in Libel Action Against Newsperson When Plaintiff Fails to Show That Information Sought Goes to Heart of Claim, That There Are No Alternative Sources, and That Alleged Defamatory Statements Are False

§ 81.294 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Unpublished Information or Source of Nonparty Newsperson Protected From Discovery by Contempt Shield Law [Cal. Const., art. I, § 2(b); Evid. Code § 1070]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Newsperson's Shield Provides Immunity From Contempt

[d] Additional Statutory Protections for Journalists Invoking Shield Law

[e] Relief Inappropriate Until Newsperson Held in Contempt

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Nonconfidential Information Is Within Scope of Shield

[b] Shield Encompasses Source Materials Merely Confirming or Amplifying Published Information

[c] Criminal Defendant Seeking Disclosure of Unpublished Information Must Show Disclosure Will Materially Assist His or Her Defense

[d] Shield is Available to Online Journalists

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Nonconfidential Information Is Within Scope of Privilege

[b] Shield Encompasses Source Materials Merely Confirming or Amplifying Published Information

§ 81.295 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery of Official Information Prohibited [Evid. Code § 1040]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Disclosure of Hospital Peer Review Records Is Against Public Interest

§ 81.296 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Proceedings and Records of Health Care Committees and Peer Review Committees Protected From Discovery [Evid. Code § 1157]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[4] Additional Authorities

§ 81.297 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Protection of Trade Secret Will Not Work Injustice [Evid. Code § 1060]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Trade Secret Is Protected Even When Relevant or Helpful

[b] Only Trade Secret Information That Is Relevant and Necessary to Material Element of Proof and Essential to Fair Resolution Is Discoverable

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Only Trade Secret Information That Is Relevant and Necessary to Material Element of Proof and Essential to Fair Resolution Is Discoverable

§§ 81.298-81.329 [Reserved]

§ 81.330 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Discovery of Plaintiff's Sexual Conduct in Action for Sexual Harassment or Assault Is Improper When Good Cause Not Shown [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.220]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Discovery of Plaintiff's Sexual Conduct Requires Showing of Good Cause and Relevancy

[b] Strong Showing of Good Cause Required

[c] Protection From Discovery Includes Nonconsensual Sexual Conduct

§ 81.331 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Action for Misappropriation of Trade Secret Not Yet Identified [Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.210]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Protection of Trade Secret Not Covered by Privilege

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Plaintiff Required to Identify Trade Secret Prior to Seeking Discovery

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Plaintiff Required to Identify Trade Secret Prior to Seeking Discovery

§ 81.332 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Information Sought Would Identify Individual Who Is Subject of Blood Test to Detect Antibodies to HIV [Health & Safety Code § 120975]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Information That Would Identify Individual Who Is Subject of Test for AIDS Is Not Discoverable

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Information That Would Identify Individual Who Is Subject to Test for AIDS Is Not Discoverable

§ 81.333 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Requested Discovery Violates Requirements of International Comity

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Discovery Improper If Violates Requirements of International Comity

[b] Matters Subject to Permissive Judicial Notice

[c] Requirement That Court Take Judicial Notice on Request

§§ 81.334-81.339 [Reserved]

§ 81.340 Supporting Motion for Protective Order--Prohibiting Inquiry Into Defendants' Financial Affairs in Punitive Damages Cases [Civ. Code § 3295(c)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Prohibition on Discovery Into Defendant's Financial Affairs

§ 81.341 Supporting Motion for Protective Order--Presumptive Right Limiting Access to and Use of Financial Information [Cal. Const., art. I, § 1]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Presumptive Right to Protective Order Limiting Access to Financial Information

[b] Mere Failure to Show Annoyance, Embarrassment, or Oppression Does Not Negate Presumption of Right to Protective Order

[c] Right to Protective Order Is Not Waived by Plaintiff's Putting Financial Condition in Issue

[d] Sealing Financial Information

[e] Use of Defendant's Stipulation or Financial Statement in Action Involving Punitive Damages Claim

[f] Access to Financial Information May Be Limited to Discovering Party's Attorney

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Presumptive Right to Protective Order Limiting Access to Financial Information

§§ 81.342-81.349 [Reserved]

§ 81.350 Opposing Motion for Protective Order--Financial Information Sought Goes to Heart of Punitive Damages Case [Civ. Code § 3295(c)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Civ. Code § 3295 Is Not Applicable When Financial Information Sought Goes to Heart of Cause of Action

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.01

§ 81.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter includes memoranda relating to the effect on civil discovery of evidentiary privileges and other provisions limiting or protecting against disclosure.

Subpart A of Part II includes memoranda relating to the general objection that matter sought to be discovered is privileged and therefore beyond the proper scope of discovery [§ 81.10 et seq.].

Subpart B of Part II includes memoranda opposing or supporting a motion to compel discovery on the ground that matter sought to be discovery is subject to the attorney-client privilege set out in Evid. Code § 950 et seq. [§ 81.60 et seq.].

Subpart C of Part II includes memoranda opposing or supporting a motion to compel discovery on the ground that matter sought to be discovery is subject to the physician-patient privilege set out in Evid. Code § 990 et seq. [§ 81.110 et seq.].

Subpart D of Part II includes memoranda opposing or supporting a motion to compel discovery on the ground that matter sought to be discovery is subject to the psychotherapist-patient privilege set out in Evid. Code § 1010 et seq. [§ 81.140 et seq.].

Subpart E of Part II includes memoranda opposing or supporting a motion to compel discovery on the ground tax returns are subject to protections from disclosure derived from provisions governing such returns (e.g., Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 19542 (income taxes), and 7056 (sales taxes)) [§ 81.180 et seq.].

Subpart F of Part II includes memoranda opposing or supporting a motion to compel discovery on the ground that matter sought to be discovery is attorney work product protected from disclosure under Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.010 et seq. [§ 81.200 et seq.].

Subpart G of Part II includes memoranda opposing or supporting a motion to compel discovery on the ground that matter sought to be discovery is protected against disclosure by the right to privacy embodied in Cal. Const., art. I, § 1 [§ 81.240 et seq.].

Subpart H of Part II includes memoranda opposing or supporting a motion to compel discovery on the ground that matter sought to be discovery is subject to one of the privileges set out in the Evidence Code not otherwise covered in Parts B-D [§ 81.270 et seq.].

Subpart I of Part II includes memoranda opposing or supporting a motion to compel discovery on the ground that matter sought to be discovery is protected by one of a number of miscellaneous statutory protections both within and outside the Discovery Act (Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.010 et seq.) [§ 81.330 et seq.].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMotions to CompelCivil ProcedureDiscoveryPrivileged MattersGeneral OverviewEvidencePrivilegesDoctor-Patient PrivilegeGeneral OverviewEvidencePrivilegesPsychotherapist-Patient PrivilegeGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.02

§ 81.02 Governing Law

[1] California Civil Discovery Act and Related Law

Civil discovery in California is governed primarily by the California Civil Discovery Act, codified at Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2016.010-2036.050. Discovery in limited civil cases is further governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 94 and 95. Statewide rules of court relating to discovery papers and discovery motions are set out in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1000, 3.1345, 3.1346, 3.1347, and 3.1348.

[2] Evidentiary Privileges and Other Provisions Limiting Discovery

Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010 limits discovery generally to matters that are relevant and "not privileged."

Evidentiary privileges are governed by Evid. Code §§ 900-1070. The constitutional right to privacy, which is applicable in some instances to limit discovery, is set out in Cal. Const., art. I, § 1.

Other provisions, both within and outside the Discovery Act, which operate to limit discovery or protect against disclosure in particular situations include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.010 et seq., which sets out the protections against disclosure of an attorney's work product.

- Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.210, detailing discovery relating to insurance coverage.

- Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.220, providing protections against discovery relating to a defendant's sexual conduct.

- Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 19542 (income taxes), and 7056 (sales taxes), and Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1094, 2111 (employment taxes), which protect against disclosure of tax returns.

- Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 7099.1, 21028 and Unemp. Ins. Code § 13019, which extend the attorney-client privilege to communications between a federally authorized tax practitioner (accountant, enrolled agent, or enrolled actuary) regarding tax advice.

- Civ. Code § 3295, which provides for the issuance of a protective order limiting discovery of a defendant's financial affairs in an action involving a claim for punitive damages.

[3] Case Law Decided Under Prior Discovery Acts

The Civil Discovery Act was passed in 2004 and became effective July 1, 2005.It repealed and renumbered the Civil Discovery Act of 1986 but did not substantively change the law of civil discovery [Stats. 2004, ch. 182 §§ 22, 23, 61]. Thus cases decided under the 1986 Act remain controlling authority. A considerable body of case law interpreted the discovery provisions of the Discovery Act of 1956 (former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2016-2037.9), which preceded the 1986 Act. Although the 1986 Act, which became operative July 1, 1987, implemented numerous changes in the prior law, it also continued provisions of the prior law in many other instances, or even codified decisions interpreting the prior law. Decisions construing this prior law are therefore cited as persuasive, rather than controlling, authority to the extent that they are consistent with current provisions [see In re Marriage of Skelley (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 365, 369, 134 Cal. Rptr. 197, 556 P.2d 297] .

[4] Federal Authorities

When the 1957 Discovery Act became operative [see § 81.02[3]], its provisions were an adaptation of the existing federal rules relating to discovery. The 1957 Act was intended to broaden discovery procedures in California so that they would be comparable to those in the federal courts [see Report of the Committee on Administration of Justice, 31 Cal. St. B.J., Discovery, 204-231 (1956); Kahn v. Kahn (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 372, 384, 137 Cal. Rptr. 332] . Federal cases, therefore, were frequently considered as authority in certain situations for the interpretation of California discovery statutes [see, e.g., Gorman Rupp Indus., Inc. v. Superior Court (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 28, 30, 97 Cal. Rptr. 377].

Federal cases are now less useful, however, as persuasive authority for interpreting California's discovery provisions. With the revision of the Discovery Act in 1986 and with changes in the federal rules relating to discovery [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rules 26-37], there is more disparity between the state and federal provisions. State appellate courts have also developed an extensive body of law construing the 1986 Discovery Act and related state provisions. Authorities cited in this and subsequent chapters on civil discovery are therefore almost exclusively state court decisions. Counsel with novel questions of law, however, may consider seeking federal authorities in support of their arguments, when the federal rules are substantially similar to the California statute to be construed [see Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 26, General Provisions Governing Discovery; Duty of Disclosure ; Ch. 27, Depositions or Other Discovery Before Action or Pending Appeal ; Ch. 28, Persons Before Whom Depositions May Be Taken ; Ch. 29, Stipulations Regarding Discovery Procedure ; Ch. 30, Depositions Upon Oral Examination ; Ch. 31, Depositions Upon Written Questions ; Ch. 32, Use of Depositions in Court Proceedings ; Ch. 33, Interrogatories to Parties ; Ch. 34, Production of Documents and Things and Entry Upon Land for Inspection and Other Purposes; Ch. 35, Physical and Mental Examinations of Persons; Ch. 36, Requests for Admission; Ch. 37, Failure to Make Disclosure or Cooperate in Discovery: Sanctions; Ch. 37A, Discovery of Computer-Based Information (Matthew Bender)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryPrivileged MattersGeneral OverviewConstitutional LawSubstantive Due ProcessPrivacyGeneral OverviewEvidencePrivilegesAccountant-Client PrivilegeGeneral OverviewEvidencePrivilegesAttorney-Client PrivilegeGeneral OverviewTax LawState & Local TaxesAdministration & ProceedingsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.03

§ 81.03 How to Use the Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Memoranda

One of the more significant drafting requirements to keep in mind are page limits: supporting and opposing memoranda filed in discovery motion proceedings may not exceed 15 pages. A reply or closing memorandum may not exceed 10 pages. Exhibits, declarations, attachments, the table of contents, the table of authorities, and the proof of service are excluded from these page limits. Any party must obtain leave of court to file a longer memorandum [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d)]. These and other drafting requirements are discussed in further detail in Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

The forms included in this chapter are designed to be included in a memorandum supporting or opposing a motion to compel discovery.

In many cases it will be appropriate to combine them with additional memoranda set out in the related discovery chapters, Chapters 80 and 82 through 89A. For example, they may be combined with memoranda supporting or opposing a motion to compel discovery in the context of a particular discovery method [see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.30 et seq. (supporting and opposing motion to compel in context of deposition)].

It may also be appropriate to modify the memorandum for use in another procedural context. For example, a memorandum designed to oppose a motion to compel may in an appropriate case be modified for use in supporting a motion for protective order.

For a detailed discussion on how to select and use the forms in the publication to build a draft memorandum and complete the draft, with detailed discussion of all drafting requirements and strategic or stylistic considerations, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs . For a skeletal form of memorandum for use in creating a properly formatted outline in which to compile relevant forms from this publication, see also Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting Memoranda

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.04

§ 81.04 Related Discussion and Forms

[1] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For detailed discussion and forms relating to privileges and other protections against disclosure, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 191, Discovery: Privileges and Other Discovery Limitations (Matthew Bender).

[2] Related Points and Authorities Chapters

For memoranda supporting or opposing a motion to compel discovery based on a general objection of relevancy, see Ch. 80, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing .

For memoranda supporting or opposing a motion to compel discovery in the context of a particular discovery method, see Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions , through Ch. 88, Discovery: Exchange of Expert Witness Information .

For memoranda for use in seeking or opposing writs to review discovery orders, see Ch. 89A, Discovery: Review of Discovery Orders .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsExpert Witness DiscoveryCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMotions to CompelCivil ProcedureDiscoveryRelevanceCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

8-81 California Points & Authorities §§ 81.05-81.09

[Reserved]

§§ 81.05[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
A. General Objections Based on Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.10

§ 81.10 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Privilege--General Form

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general memorandum in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11).]

PRIVILEGE STATUTES ARE STRICTLY CONSTRUED, WITH THE BURDEN OF SHOWING THAT MATERIAL IS PRIVILEGED ON THE ONE ASSERTING THE PRIVILEGE.

A. Burden of Showing Privilege. When there is a prima facie showing of relevance, the party opposing disclosure on the basis of a privilege bears the burden of establishing application of the privilege (Gonzalez v. Superior Court (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1539, 1548, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 896 ; see Greyhound Corp. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 355, 398, 15 Cal. Rptr. 90, 364 P.2d 266).

B. Strict Construction of Privileges. Privilege statutes are required to be narrowly construed, while discovery statutes must be liberally construed (Greyhound Corp. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 355, 377, 396, 397, 15 Cal. Rptr. 90, 364 P.2d 266).

C. No Implied Exceptions to Evidence Code Privileges. The Legislature has determined that evidentiary privileges are available only as defined by statute (Schnabel v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 704, 711-712, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 200, 854 P.2d 1117 ; see Evid. Code § 911). The courts may not add to the statutory privileges except as required by state or federal constitutional law, and the courts may not imply unwritten exceptions to existing statutory privileges (Roberts v. City of Palmdale (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 363, 373, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 330, 853 P.2d 496).

[Add specific memorandum relating to the particular privileges and fact situations in question.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a motion for an order compelling discovery if a party or other person has resisted providing discovery on the ground that the material sought is privileged. It does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general memorandum in support of compelling discovery, as well as memoranda relating to the particular privilege and fact situation in question.

If electronically stored information produced in discovery is subject to a claim of privilege, and the receiving party contests the legitimacy of that claim, he or she may seek a determination of the claim from the court by making a motion within 30 days of receiving the claim and presenting the information to the court conditionally under seal [Code Civ. Proc. § 2031.285(d)(1)]. For further discussion of claims of privilege or work product protection for electronically stored information produced in discovery, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 195A, Discovery: Discovery of Electronically Stored Evidence (E-Discovery) (Matthew Bender); see also Matthew Bender(R) Practice Guide: California E-Discovery and Evidence, Ch. 3, Ethical Issues for Attorneys in E-Discovery, §§ 3.14, 3.15; Ch. 9, Gathering and Producing Electronically Stored Information, § 9.36 et seq. (privilege review); Ch. 10, Opposing Demands for Production of Electronic Evidence in California Court, § 10.14.

Note that some cases cited in this form construe law in effect before the operative date of the Civil Discovery Act. They are cited and discussed as persuasive authority to the extent that remain consistent with current provisions [see also § 81.02[3]].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[c] Related Uses

This memorandum may be combined with a general memorandum opposing a motion for a protective order brought in the context of a particular discovery method [see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.100 (in context of oral depositions)], when the protective order is being sought on the ground that the material is privileged. In such situations, this form should be combined with memoranda relating to the particular privilege and fact situation as well.

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in § 81.20 may be used to oppose the motion supported by this memorandum.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Burden of Showing Privilege

Gonzalez v. Superior Court (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1539, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 896 was a sexual harassment case based on the display of photographs of a seminude female in a men's locker room of a police station, in which the plaintiff's assistant obtained the photographs for the plaintiff, a female police radio dispatcher. Defendants served interrogatories on plaintiff, asking in part for the identity of the assistant who obtained the photographs. Plaintiff refused to reveal the identity of the assistant because she feared the information might lead to retaliation against the assistant. Defendants moved to compel an answer, and the trial court granted the motion.

The court of appeal affirmed because the plaintiff failed to show that retaliation was more than speculative, and the assistant was not a whistle-blower. However, the court held that, even if the assistant was a whistle-blower, there is no whistle-blower's privilege. The court held that when there is a prima facie showing of relevance, the party opposing disclosure on the basis of a privilege bears the burden of establishing the preliminary facts essential to the privilege claim. Here, the relevancy of the assistant's identity was clear, and no recognized privilege applied to the case (33 Cal. App. 4th 1539, 1546-1550) .

In Greyhound Corp. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 355, 15 Cal. Rptr. 90, 364 P.2d 266 , the Supreme Court granted an alternative writ of prohibition to review an order for discovery made pursuant to plaintiff's motion under a former version of Code Civ. Proc. § 2031.010 et seq. for an order requiring defendant to produce and permit inspection of certain documents. The former version of Code Civ. Proc. § 2031.010 was amended in 1974 to permit inspection by request and in 1986 to provide for inspection by demand. However, under current law as well as prior law, the discovery of documents is limited to those that are not privileged [Code Civ. Proc. § 2031.010(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010].

In evaluating the defendant's claim that the requested statement of independent witnesses could not be compelled on the ground that such statements came within the attorney-client privilege existing at that time under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1881(2) [see now Evid. Code §§ 950-962], the Court relied on Chronicle Pub. Co. v. Superior Court (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 548, 565, 7 Cal. Rptr. 109, 354 P.2d 637 , for the rule that the burden of establishing that the material is within the terms of the statute providing the privilege is on the party claiming the privilege (56 Cal. 2d 355, 398). The Court then went on to decide that the material was not privileged under the attorney-client privilege (56 Cal. 2d 355, 399) [see also Mize v. Atchison, T. & S.F. Ry. Co. (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 436, 447, 120 Cal. Rptr. 787].

[b] Strict Construction of Privileges

Greyhound Corp. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 355, 15 Cal. Rptr. 90, 364 P.2d 266 is discussed in § 81.10[3][a]. In discussing the discovery statutes, generally, the Court stated that in order to accomplish the legislative purposes of those statutes, they must be construed liberally in favor of disclosure unless the request is clearly improper by virtue of well-established causes for denial (56 Cal. 2d 355, 377). Later in its opinion,the Court discussed the attorney-client privilege, which is obviously a well-established cause for denial of discovery, and stated that because the privilege tends to suppress otherwise relevant facts, it must be strictly construed (56 Cal. 2d 355, 396). Since other privileges also tend to suppress otherwise relevant facts, this rule of strict construction appears to apply to them as well.

[c] No Implied Exceptions to Evidence Code Privileges

In Schnabel v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 704, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 200, 854 P.2d 1117 , the Supreme Court noted that the privileges contained in the Evidence Code are exclusive, and that the courts may not create new privileges as a matter of judicial policy (5 Cal. 4th 704, 711-712). The Legislature has determined that evidentiary privileges shall be available only as defined by statute [Evid. Code § 911]. As a result, the Supreme Court held in Roberts v. City of Palmdale (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 363, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 330, 853 P.2d 496 , that the courts may not add to the statutory privileges except as required by state or federal constitutional law, and the courts may not imply unwritten exceptions to existing statutory privileges (5 Cal. 4th 363, 373). For further discussion of Schnabel, see § 81.180[3][c]. For further discussion of Roberts, see § 81.81[3][a].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Burden of Showing Privilege

In the case underlying Kirkland v. Superior Court (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 92, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 279 , plaintiff corporation sued defendant broker for damages for fraud and other civil wrongs. Plaintiff demanded production of documents and transcripts of testimony related to a Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) investigation of defendant. Defendant admitted that he had copies of the transcripts and documents but refused to produce them. He claimed the request was vague, ambiguous, overbroad, oppressive, burdensome, irrelevant, and not likely to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence, and that it called for the production of "confidential documents relating to a private SEC investigation." The discovery referee found that plaintiff had established good cause for the production of the SEC materials, that its discovery requests are clear and unambiguous, that defendant's claims of confidentiality and privacy were not supported by California law, and that the requested testimony and documents about the SEC transactions were relevant. The trial court adopted the referee's recommendations and ordered defendant to produce the documents and transcripts. At a further hearing held before the referee, defendant conceded the relevance of the SEC testimony relating to certain transactions and agreed to produce that testimony and related documents (95 Cal. App. 4th 92, 95-96). However, defendant argued that he was entitled to withholdpersonal financial material belonging to third parties, even though the information had been produced to the SEC in connection with his testimony (95 Cal. App. 4th 92, 96). The trial court disagreed and, once again, ordered defendant to produce the documents and transcripts. Defendant filed a petition for writ of mandate, seeking relief from the discovery order. The appellate court held that transcripts of testimony given before the SEC in the course of an investigation are discoverable in civil litigation when, as here, the party from whom discovery is sought has possession of, or ready access, to the documents and transcripts (95 Cal. App. 4th 92, 94) .

The court of appeal rejected defendant's contention that documents and transcripts related "to a private and confidential SEC investigation" should be deemed non-public because an investigation might not necessarily reveal any misconduct on the part of the subject of the investigation. The appellate court held that all doubts about discoverability were resolved in favor of disclosure (95 Cal. App. 4th 92, 97). Further, the court found the requested material relevant because it bore on defendant's intent and motives (95 Cal. App. 4th 92, 97-98). Ample good cause for the production of the SEC documents had also been shown. Once good cause was shown, the burden shifted to plaintiff to justify his objection (95 Cal. App. 4th 92, 98). Defendant produced no evidence to support his claim that he (or any witness) actually believed the SEC investigation was private or confidential (95 Cal. App. 4th 92, 98-99). In fact, witnesses who testify or produce documents to the SEC generally have the right to obtain copies of the transcripts of their testimony and documents, and when they have done so (as had defendant), there is no cognizable claim of confidentiality or privacy in those documents or transcripts. Moreover, to the extent there was a privilege, it belonged to the SEC, not the witness. Finally, it was not unduly burdensome to require witnesses in SEC investigations to obtain and produce copies of their own testimony and documents (95 Cal. App. 4th 92, 99).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
A. General Objections Based on Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities §§ 81.11-81.19

[Reserved]

§§ 81.11[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
A. General Objections Based on Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.20

§ 81.20 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Privileged Material Not Discoverable--General Form

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30).]

PRIVILEGED MATERIAL IS NOT DISCOVERABLE.

Privileged Material Not Discoverable. Discovery may pertain only to unprivileged matters (Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010). There can be no discovery of matter that is privileged (Rudnick v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 924, 929, 114 Cal. Rptr. 603, 523 P.2d 643 ; Greyhound Corp. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 355, 395, 15 Cal. Rptr. 90, 364 P.2d 266).

[Add specific memoranda relating to the particular privileges and fact situations in question.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum in opposition to a motion for an order compelling discovery may be submitted by a party or other person who has resisted providing discovery on the ground that the information sought is privileged. It does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general memorandum in opposition to compelling discovery, as well as memoranda relating to the particular privilege and fact situation in question.

In an appropriate case, this memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the memorandum in § 81.10.

Note that cases cited in this form construe law in effect before the operative date of the Civil Discovery Act. They are cited and discussed as persuasive authority to the extent that remain consistent with current provisions [see also § 81.02[3]].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[c] Related Uses

This memorandum may be combined with a general memorandum supporting a motion for a protective order brought in the context of a particular discovery method [see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.80 (in context of oral depositions)], when the protective order is being sought on the ground that the material is privileged. In such situations, this form should be combined with memoranda relating to the particular privilege and fact situation as well.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Privileged Material Not Discoverable

Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010 limits the discovery to matters that are not privileged. This provision applies generally to all methods of discovery. Furthermore, various statutes relating to specific discovery methods incorporate the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010 [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2025.010 (depositions), 2030.010 (interrogatories), 2031.010(a) (inspecting, copying, testing, or sampling documents, tangible things, land or other property, and electronically stored information)].

In Rudnick v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 924, 114 Cal. Rptr. 603, 523 P.2d 643 , plaintiff brought an action for damages for personal injuries allegedly sustained when she used a medication manufactured by defendants. At the deposition of their custodian of records, defendants refused to produce records as requested by plaintiff in the notice of deposition. The records contained adverse drug reaction reports made by doctors, and defendants claimed that the reports were confidential communications and that production of the reports would violate the physician-patient privilege of the patients who had experienced the adverse drug reactions. The trial court granted plaintiff's motion to compel production of the reports only in regard to the names and addresses of the doctors who made the reports. Plaintiff filed a petition for a writ of mandate in the court of appeal, and the court summarily denied the petition.

The Supreme Court granted a hearing and issued an alternative writ of mandate so it could consider the question of whether a third-party recipient of confidential information may assert the physician-patient privilege [see § 81.122]. In deciding this question, the Court restated the basic principle set forth in Greyhound, above, that there can be no discovery of matter that is privileged (11 Cal. 3d 924, 929) . The Court went on to discuss the question of when the physician-patient privilege may be claimed on behalf of a patient, and returned the case to the trial court for a determination of whether defendants could claim that the reports were protected from disclosure by the physician-patient privilege.

Greyhound Corp. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 355, 15 Cal. Rptr. 90, 364 P.2d 266 is discussed in § 81.10[3][a]. Although inspection is limited to matters that are not privileged (56 Cal. 2d 355, 395), the Court in Greyhound found that the trial court was justified in requiring defendant to disclose the statements in question because they were not privileged (56 Cal. 2d 355, 399-402).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
A. General Objections Based on Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities §§ 81.21-81.59

[Reserved]

§§ 81.21[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
B. Attorney-Client Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.60

§ 81.60 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954]--Client's Communication to Lawyer Not Privileged When Not Intended to Be Confidential

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as well as with points and authorities generally refuting a claim of privilege (see, e.g., § 81.10).]

THE LAWYER-CLIENT PRIVILEGE CANNOT BE INVOKED WHEN THE CLIENT'S COMMUNICATION WAS NOT INTENDED TO BE CONFIDENTIAL.

A. Privilege Applicable Only to Information Communicated in Confidence. The lawyer-client privilege applies only to information communicated "in confidence" between a client and his or her lawyer. The privilege cannot be invoked when the client's communication was not intended to be confidential (Evid. Code § 952; Sacramento Newspaper Guild v. Sacramento County Bd. of Suprs. (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 41, 51, 69 Cal. Rptr. 480).

[Optional] B. Privilege Inapplicable When Disclosure Made for Purpose of Communication to Another. The objection that a statement is protected by the lawyer-client privilege cannot be asserted when the disclosure by the client to the lawyer was made for the purpose of communication to another (Solon v. Lichtenstein (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 75, 79, 244 P.2d 907 ; Klang v. Shell Oil Co. (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 933, 938, 95 Cal. Rptr. 265).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a motion for an order compelling discovery if a party or other person has resisted providing discovery on the ground that the information sought is a privileged communication between lawyer and client but in fact the communication was notintended to be confidential. It does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of compelling discovery, as well as a form refuting a claim of privilege generally. Optional Paragraph B may be used in those cases in which the facts indicate that the communication from the client to his or her attorney was made for the purpose of communication to another person.

Counsel who wish to set out general points relating to the attorney-client privilege as well may adapt the points and authorities in opposition to a motion to compel discovery set out in § 81.80 and combine them with this form. For forms relating to waiver of the privilege, see §§ 81.65 -81.67.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Privilege Applicable Only to Information Communicated in Confidence

Evid. Code § 952 provides, in part, that a confidential communication between client and lawyer, for the purposes of the privilege, means information transmitted between a client and his or her lawyer in the course of that relationship and in confidence.

In Sacramento Newspaper Guild v. Sacramento County Bd. of Suprs. (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 41, 69 Cal. Rptr. 480 , plaintiff brought an action premised on asserted violations of California's public meeting law, the Brown Act [Gov. Code § 54950 et seq.]. The occasion for the lawsuit was a luncheon attended by the five county supervisors, the county counsel, county executive, county director of welfare, and several members of a labor union council at which the topic of discussion was a strike of a union against the county. Newspaper reporters sought, but were denied, admission to the gathering. At the behest of plaintiff, the trial court issued a preliminary injunction restraining the board of supervisors from holding any closed meeting at which three or more members were present, except under certain statutory exceptions. On appeal from the order granting the preliminary injunction, defendants contended that the injunction was too broad because the meeting was not within the scope of the Brown Act and was a lawful exercise of the lawyer-client privilege existing between the supervisors and the county counsel, as their attorney.

The court of appeal, in denying the claim of privilege under Evid. Code § 952, relied on the testimony of the supervisors that they had said nothing to the county counsel in confidence, did not claim attendance at the luncheon for the purpose of getting the county counsel's legal advice, and didnot claim receiving any. Nor did the record reveal any communication passing between the supervisors and their attorney at the luncheon. The court concluded that Evid. Code § 952 confers the privilege only on information communicated "in confidence" to a lawyer and on advice given by a lawyer, and that any communications by the supervisors at the luncheon to the county counsel were not intended to be confidential (263 Cal. App. 2d 41, 51). Thus, the luncheon meeting was in violation of the Brown Act (263 Cal. App. 2d 41, 51-52). The court noted that California decisional law assumes without discussion that the privilege is just as available to public agency clients and their lawyers as to their private counterparts (263 Cal. App. 2d 41, 53).

The court in Sacramento Newspaper Guild, in addition to relying on Evid. Code § 952, cited as authority San Francisco v. Superior Court of San Francisco, (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 227, 234235, 231 P.2d 26 . In that personal injury action, a physician who had examined the plaintiff at the request of the latter's attorneys in preparation for the lawsuit refused to answer certain deposition questions regarding the plaintiff's condition on the grounds that, inter alia, he was an intermediate agent for communication between plaintiff and his attorneys and therefore the information was privileged. The defendant sought a writ of mandamus to compel the trial court to order the doctor to answer the questions, which was denied by the Supreme Court. In discussing the attorney-client privilege, the Court reiterated that the privilege cannot be invoked unless the client intended the communication to be confidential (37 Cal. 2d 227, 234-235).

Although City & County of San Francisco was decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1881(2), and the attorney-client privilege is now governed by Evid. Code §§ 950-962, the rule that the privilege cannot be invoked unless the client intended the communication to be confidential is nevertheless still effective in interpreting the Evidence Code privilege, and it has been relied on in cases such as Sacramento Newspaper Guild, above.

[b] Privilege Inapplicable When Disclosure Made for Purpose of Communication to Another

In Solon v. Lichtenstein (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 75, 244 P.2d 907 , plaintiff brought an action to establish a constructive trust in certain personal property that defendant held in joint tenancy with her deceased father. The trial court granted defendant's motion for a nonsuit, and on appeal, plaintiff contended, inter alia, that the trial court erred in excluding certain testimony on the theory that it constituted a privileged communication under the attorney-client privilege of former Code Civ. Proc. § 1881(2). The testimony excluded was the deposition of an attorney to the effect that the decedent had asked him to see if the plaintiff would agree to care for certain cemetery lots in Chicago in exchange for the decedent's transferring those lots to her. The attorney communicated decedent's request to plaintiff, whoagreed to the plan. The Supreme Court concluded that the trial court had erred in applying the attorney-client privilege to the attorney's deposition because the decedent had intended his instructions with regard to the cemetery lots to be conveyed by the attorney to the plaintiff, stating that the objection of a privileged statement cannot be asserted when the disclosure was made for the purpose of communication to another (39 Cal. 2d 75, 79).

In Klang v. Shell Oil Co. (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 933, 95 Cal. Rptr. 265 , a personal injury action, plaintiff's former attorney had given a statement, which was very damaging to plaintiff, to a police officer regarding the automobile accident that was the subject of the case. At trial, plaintiff sought to exclude the statement on the ground that it had been a confidential communication between him and his attorney, but the trial court ordered the statement admitted in evidence. On appeal from a judgment entered on a defense verdict, plaintiff contended, inter alia, that the trial court had erred in admitting the statement. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment, holding that the record supported the inference that the attorney had disclosed the information about the accident to the officer with the plaintiff's consent to prevent plaintiff from being charged with a traffic violation. The court stated that the attorney-client privilege is lost when the attorney, with the consent of the client, discloses the content of an otherwise privileged communication other than in confidence, citing Solon as authority. The court also held that the fact of the client's consent may be inferred from other evidence, as for example the disclosure for the client's benefit in negotiations on his behalf (17 Cal. App. 3d 933, 938).

Although Solon was decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1881(2), and the attorney-client privilege is now governed by Evid. Code §§ 950-962, Solon was used by the court in Klang to interpret the Evidence Code privilege and is therefore good authority for such an interpretation.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Privilege Applicable Only to Information Communicated in Confidence

Stockton Newspapers, Inc. v. Redevelopment Agency (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 95, 214 Cal. Rptr. 561 involved an action for injunctive and declaratory relief concerning the violation of the notice and open-meeting requirements of the Brown Act (Gov. Code § 54950 et seq.). The court of appeal, in reversing a judgment on the pleadings in defendants' favor, held that allegations in the complaint of telephone conversations between defendant agency members and agency counsel were not privileged under Evid. Code §§ 950-962, but constituted a meeting within the meaning of the Brown Act. The complaint did not indicate that the conversations involved legal consultation regarding a lawsuit, or that they were otherwise a genuine occasion forattorney-client confidentiality; it alleged that they had the single purpose of taking legislative action in a manner calculated to evade the Brown Act. The complaint therefore stated a cause of action and reversal of the judgment on the pleadings was required (171 Cal. App. 3d 95, 104-105).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
B. Attorney-Client Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.61

§ 81.61 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954]--Information Not Privileged Merely Because Communicated to Lawyer

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as well as with points and authorities generally refuting a claim of privilege (see, e.g., § 81.10).]

THE LAWYER-CLIENT PRIVILEGE DOES NOT EXTEND TO SUBJECT MATTER OTHERWISE UNPRIVILEGED MERELY BECAUSE IT HAS BEEN COMMUNICATED TO THE CLIENT'S LAWYER.

Information Not Privileged Merely Because Communicated to Lawyer. Knowledge that is not otherwise privileged does not become so merely by being communicated to an attorney (People ex rel. Dept. of Public Works v. Donovan (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 346, 355, 19 Cal. Rptr. 473, 369 P.2d 1 ; Jasper Constr., Inc. v. Foothill Jr. College Dist. (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 1, 17, 153 Cal. Rptr. 767).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a motion for an order compelling discovery if a party or other person has resisted providing discovery on the ground that the information is privileged because it was communicated to a client's attorney but in fact the information is not a protected communication. It does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of compelling discovery, as well as a form refuting a claim of privilege generally.

Counsel who wish to set out general points relating to the attorney-client privilege as well may adapt the points and authorities in opposition to amotion to compel discovery set out in § 81.80 and combine them with this form.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 81.82 may be used to oppose the motion supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Information Not Privileged Merely Because Communicated to Lawyer

In People ex rel. Dept. of Public Works v. Donovan (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 346, 19 Cal. Rptr. 473, 369 P.2d 1 , defendant property owner appealed from a jury verdict awarding compensation in an eminent domain proceeding. The trial court had sustained an objection by plaintiff, the state, that the attorney-client privilege protected the disclosure of the opinion of the appraiser employed by the state, who was called as a witness by defendant. The Supreme Court held that since defendant only sought the expert's opinion about the fair market value of the property he had appraised, and not his disclosures to plaintiff's counsel, that opinion was not privileged and had not become privileged merely because it had been communicated to plaintiff's attorney (57 Cal. 2d 346, 355).

Although People ex rel. Dept. of Public Works was decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1881(2), and the lawyer-client privilege is now governed by Evid. Code §§ 950-962, it was cited as authority in Jasper Construction, Inc. (discussed below), in interpreting the Evidence Code privilege and is therefore good authority for interpreting that privilege.

In Jasper Constr., Inc. v. Foothill Jr. College Dist. (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 1, 153 Cal. Rptr. 767 , a general contractor brought an action against a junior college district and architects for damages for breach of contract resulting from alleged defects in plans and specifications for the construction of an auditorium, and the district cross complained against the contractor for liquidated damages based on delays in completion of the construction project. On appeal by the district from a jury verdict in favor of the contractor, the court of appeal reversed, holding, inter alia, that the trial court had improperly excluded testimony of a consultant, who had been asked by the contractor to develop a claim against the district and who had met with the contractor and his attorney to report his findings after investigating the case. The contractor argued that the consultant'stestimony was privileged as a confidential communication between attorney and client. In rejecting this argument, the court found that the consultant was plainly not an intermediary for communication between the contractor and his attorney, and the fact that the consultant's findings were communicated to the attorney was irrelevant; the court stated that a litigant cannot silence a witness by having him reveal his knowledge to the litigant's attorney. The court cited People ex rel. Dept. of Public Works v. Donovan (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 346, 19 Cal. Rptr. 473, 369 P.2d 1 (discussed above), as authority (91 Cal. App. 3d 1, 17).

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Information Not Privileged Merely Because Communicated to Lawyer

In Green & Shinee v. Superior Court (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 532, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 886 , petitioner law firm appealed an order by the trial court that released documents seized from the law firm's offices and sealed by a special master under Penal Code § 1524(c). The law firm's appeal was treated as a petition for writ of mandate (88 Cal. App. 4th 532, 533). The law firm argued that the attorney-client privilege precluded the unsealing and protected the supplemental incident reports prepared by police officers and transmitted to the law firm for review and legal advice (88 Cal. App. 4th 532, 536). The court of appeal found, with sufficient evidentiary support, that the sheriff's department procedure required a supplemental report by any officer involved in a forceful encounter, whether on or off duty. Thus, the deputies prepared the reports as part of their official duties and the reports were public records. The attorney-client privilege does not embrace matters otherwise unprivileged merely because the client has communicated those matters to its attorney (88 Cal. App. 4th 532, 537).

In Sheets v. Superior Court (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 1, 64 Cal. Rptr. 753 , an action for injunctive relief, dissolution of a partnership, an accounting, and for damages for breach of the partnership agreement and fraud, defendant sought and obtained an order from the trial court requiring plaintiff to answer certain interrogatories to which he had objected. Plaintiff sought a writ of prohibition on the ground that the interrogatories sought information protected by the attorney-client privilege, namely an analysis and evaluation made by the plaintiff's lawyer, in the course of preparation of the case for trial, of the report of an accountant and an estimator who had been retained by plaintiff's attorney to examine the books and records of the partnership that was the subject of the litigation. The court of appeal issued the writ prohibiting enforcement of the trial court's order requiring plaintiff to answer the interrogatories, holding that the information sought by the interrogatories was privileged, but stating that the accountant's report, based on his examination of the partnership books that were themselves not privileged, was not privileged simply because it was reduced to writing and delivered to plaintiff's attorney. Rather, the information sought was privileged not because it asked for the report itself, but because it asked for the attorney's analysis and evaluation of the accountant's report, and the analysis and evaluation must be looked on as part of the advice given by the lawyer to the client in the course of their professional relationship (257 Cal. App. 2d 1, 10).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
B. Attorney-Client Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.62

§ 81.62 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954]--Information Communicated Through Nonagent Third Party Not Privileged

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as well as with points and authorities generally refuting a claim of privilege (see, e.g., § 81.10).]

THE LAWYER-CLIENT PRIVILEGE DOES NOT PROTECT INFORMATION COMING TO A LAWYER FROM A THIRD PERSON WHO IS NOT THE CLIENT'S AGENT.

Privilege Not Applicable to Information Communicated Through Nonagent Third Party. The lawyer-client privilege protects a "confidential communication" between "client and lawyer," but does not protect information coming to a lawyer from a third person who is not a client unless such person is acting as the client's agent [Evid. Code § 952; People v. Lee (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 514, 527, 83 Cal. Rptr. 715 .

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a motion for an order compelling discovery if a party or other person has resisted providing discovery on the ground that the information is a privileged communication between attorney and client but in fact the information was communicated to the attorney through a third party who is not the client's agent. It does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of compelling discovery, as well as a form refuting a claim of privilege generally.

Counsel who wish to set out general points relating to the attorney-client privilege as well may adapt the points and authorities in opposition to a motion to compel discovery set out in § 81.80 and combine them with this form.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Privilege Not Applicable to Information Communicated Through Nonagent Third Party

In People v. Lee (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 514, 83 Cal. Rptr. 715 , a jury found defendant guilty of attempted murder, partially because of evidence of blood on a pair of defendant's shoes that was found to be of the same type as the victim's blood, and which appeared to match a bloody footprint found at the scene of the crime. Defendant's wife delivered the shoes to his attorney and they were subsequently obtained by the district attorney through use of a search warrant and admitted as evidence at the trial over defendant's objection. On appeal, defendant argued that testimony from representatives of the public defender's office that they received the shoes from his wife should have been excluded on the basis of attorney-client privilege. The court of appeal affirmed the conviction, finding that the challenged testimony did not involve disclosure of confidential communications between defendant and his counsel; there was no evidence of an attorney-client relationship between defendant's wife and the public defender's office, nor any evidence that in delivering the shoes to the public defender, the wife was acting as defendant's agent or under his direction. Evid. Code § 952 protects a "confidential communication between client and lawyer" but does not protect information coming to an attorney from a third person who is not a client unless such person is acting as the client's agent (3 Cal. App. 3d 514, 527).

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Privilege Not Applicable to Information Communicated Through Nonagent Third Party

In San Francisco v. Superior Court of San Francisco, (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 227, 231 P.2d 26 , a personal injury action, a physician who examined plaintiff solely for the purpose of the lawsuit refused to answer certain deposition questions on the ground of attorney-client privilege. The Supreme Court denied a writ of mandamus sought by defendants to compel the physician to answer, holding that although the physician could invoke no privilege of his own, he was an intermediate agent for communication between plaintiff and his attorney regarding the former's physical condition, and the attorney-client privilege could be invoked where no physician-patient relationship existed and where plaintiff's disclosure to the physician was made to the latter as agent of plaintiff's attorney (37 Cal. 2d 227, 234-238).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
B. Attorney-Client Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.63

§ 81.63 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954]--Joint Client's Communication of Matters of Common Interest Not Privileged in Action Between Joint Clients [Evid. Code § 962]

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as well as with points and authorities generally refuting a claim of privilege (see, e.g., § 81.10).]

A JOINT CLIENT'S COMMUNICATION TO HIS/HER LAWYER ON A MATTER OF COMMON INTEREST IS NOT PRIVILEGED IN A CIVIL PROCEEDING BETWEEN ANY OF THE JOINT CLIENTS.

Joint Client's Communication to Lawyer Not Privileged in Action Between Joint Clients. When two or more clients have retained or consulted a lawyer on a matter of common interest, none of them or their successors in interest may claim the privilege for a communication made in the course of that relationship when the communication is offered in a civil proceeding between any of the clients or their successors in interest (Evid. Code § 962; Wortham & Van Liew v. Superior Court (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 927, 932-933, 233 Cal. Rptr. 725 ; Glacier Gen. Assurance Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 836, 840, 157 Cal. Rptr. 435).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a motion for an order compelling discovery if a party or other person has resisted providing discovery on the ground that the information sought is a privileged communication between attorney and client but in fact the communication was made in the course of a relationship between joint clients and their attorney, and it is now being offered in a civil proceeding between any of the clients or their successors in interest. It does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of compelling discovery, as well as a form refuting a claim of privilege generally.

Counsel who wish to set out general points relating to the attorney-client privilege as well may adapt the points and authorities in opposition to a motion to compel discovery set out in § 81.80 and combine them with this form.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 81.83 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion to compel discovery supported by this memorandum.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Joint Client's Communication to Lawyer Not Privileged in Action Between Joint Clients

Evid. Code § 962 sets forth an exception to the lawyer-client privilege. It provides that if two or more clients have retained or consulted a lawyer on a matter of common interest, neither they nor their successors in interest may claim the lawyer-client privilege for a communication made in the course of that relationship when such communication is offered in a civil proceeding between two of the clients.

In Wortham & Van Liew v. Superior Court (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 927, 233 Cal. Rptr. 725 , plaintiff brought an action seeking dissolution and accounting of a partnership, and for judicial relief against defendants. Plaintiff and defendants formed a partnership for the purpose of developing a parcel of real estate. Later defendants formed a new partnership without plaintiff and conveyed to it title to the real property. Plaintiff contended the transfer was made without his consent in violation of the partnership agreement. After the attorney for the original partnership refused to answer questions during a deposition, plaintiff moved for an order compelling discovery. The trial court issued an order compelling the attorney to answer the questions. Defendants sought a writ of prohibition to prevent enforcement of that order, claiming that the information sought was protected by the lawyer-client privilege between the attorney and the second partnership.

The court of appeal denied the petition for a writ of prohibition and vacated the temporary stay order on the ground that the joint-client exception to the lawyer-client privilege applied, pursuant to Evid. Code § 962 (188 Cal. App. 3d 927, 929). Plaintiff wanted the attorney to disclose information regarding communications between the attorney and defendants regardingthe formation of the second partnership and the transfer of the real property to the second partnership. Plaintiff based his request on the facts that the attorney was counsel for the original partnership as well as the new one, that he had played a key role in the transfer and formation of the new partnership, and that he had had numerous communications with defendants regarding their intent to form the new partnership. The court said that although the lawyer-client privilege is important, even more important is the relationship that the privilege is intended to protect, the relationship of an attorney to his or her client and his or her fiduciary obligations to the client. In the instant case, the attorney was counsel for the first partnership, and was therefore plaintiff's attorney. His fiduciary obligations to plaintiff required his disclosing to his client all matters concerning the partnership, including the formation of a second entity and the transfer of partnership property to it (188 Cal. App. 3d 927, 931-932). The court said that the exception of Evid. Code § 962 is intended to provide joint clients access to communications with the jointly retained attorney that touch on matters affecting both clients. It also said that in the context of the representation of a partnership, the attorney for the partnership represents all the partners regarding matters of partnership business. Only matters involving purely private or personal interests of one of the partners may be privileged (188 Cal. App. 3d 927, 932). Although the communications between defendants and the attorney may have been actually intended to be confidential, the court found they could not be so legitimately regarded concerning the plaintiff, in light of the obligations of full disclosure between partners regarding partnership affairs. Evid. Code § 962 applied to communications between the attorney and either partnership involving the partnership business of the first partnership, including the circumstances regarding the disposition of the major asset of the first partnership (188 Cal. App. 3d 927, 933).

In Glacier Gen. Assurance Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 836, 157 Cal. Rptr. 435 , an action by the assignees of a deceased doctor's cause of action against his insurer for bad-faith failure to settle a medical malpractice claim within the policy limits, the trial court ordered production of the entire litigation file of an attorney who had represented both the insurance company and the doctor in the malpractice action. The insurer sought a writ of mandamus against the trial court to prevent enforcement of the discovery order, contending that Evid. Code § 962 should be interpreted as vitiating the privilege only for those communications made to an attorney by joint clients in the presence of each other; in the instant case, the doctor was not privy to the insurer's communications with the attorney. In denying the peremptory writ, the court of appeal held that the Legislature did not intend the effect of Evid. Code § 962 to be limited to only those situations where both joint clients were privy to a communication with the attorney (95 Cal. App. 3d 836, 841). The insurer was still afforded some protection by the language of Evid. Code § 962 itself, which limits disclosures to "a matter of common interest" between the joint clients (95 Cal. App. 3d 836, 842). The court emphasized that when an insurer employs counsel to defend its insured, as required by the contract of insurance, any communication with the lawyer concerning the handling of the claim against the insured is necessarily a matter of common interest to both the insured and the insurer (95 Cal. App. 3d 836, 842). The court found that the notice appeared to seek only matters that would have been of common interest to both clients (95 Cal. App. 3d 836, 843).

Counsel should note that in Glade v. Superior Court (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 738, 143 Cal. Rptr. 119 , another district of the court of appeal stated as dicta that the exception to the attorney-client privilege defined by Evid. Code § 962 is not invoked for communications made in confidence to the attorney by one of the joint clients at a time when the other client was not present (76 Cal. App. 3d 738, 747). The court in Glacier did not discuss Glade, but said it found no case that directly limits the joint-client exception to situations where communications were made in the presence of both clients (95 Cal. App. 3d 836, 841). However, the court in Wortham specifically rejected an attempt to use Glade as support for the argument that the joint-client exception does not apply to communications made outside the presence of the other client. It pointed out that such a holding would have a nonsensical effect, since the client, being present, would have little need to compel revelation of the communication and any privilege would have been waived. It also noted that in Glade the alleged joint clients were not shown to be clients of the attorney concerning a mutual transaction, and were not parties to the lawsuit involved, so that Evid. Code § 962 was literally inapplicable (188 Cal. App. 3d 927, 933).

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Joint Client's Communication to Lawyer Not Privileged in Action Between Joint Clients

In Hecht v. Superior Court (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 560, 237 Cal. Rptr. 528 , plaintiff brought an action against defendant alleging that she was deprived of her interest in a corporation headed by defendant. The parties had lived together and started a business together. When a corporation was formed, an attorney was retained. The documentation listed plaintiff and defendant as officers and shareholders. When the parties ended their personal relationship, the corporate documents were redrafted, removing plaintiff's name. During discovery, plaintiff asked the attorney about the redrafting of the corporate documents, and he refused to answer, claiming the lawyer-client privilege. In ruling on plaintiff's motion to compel, the trial court held that defendant had only waived his right to assert the lawyer-client privilege concerning the conversations at which plaintiff was present.Plaintiff petitioned for a writ of mandate to compel the attorney to testify about all the lawyer-client conversations concerning formation of the corporation. The court of appeal issued a peremptory writ (192 Cal. App. 3d 560, 567). In responding to defendant's claim that the attorney was his alone, the court said that it is the intent and conduct of the parties that is critical to the formation of the lawyer-client relationship. The court said that the parties' intent was not clear, so it looked to their conduct. The court reviewed the facts and found that plaintiff's role in the business was no different than that of a partner (192 Cal. App. 3d 560, 565-566). The court said that in the context of the representation of a partnership, the attorney for the partnership represents all the partners on matters of partnership business. The lawyer-client privilege will not bar disclosure of matters related to a partnership business simply because that business was conducted through a law firm. Only matters involving purely private or personal interests of one of the partners may be privileged (192 Cal. App. 3d 560, 567). The court found that plaintiff had made a showing sufficient to bring herself within the joint-client exception to the lawyer-client privilege, and was entitled to compel the testimony of the attorney about the lawyer-client conversations with defendant regarding the removal of plaintiff from corporate involvement. The court said that the disclosure was not limited to conversations at which plaintiff was present (192 Cal. App. 3d 560, 567).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
B. Attorney-Client Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.64

§ 81.64 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954]--Communication by Nonparty Corporate Employee

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as well as with points and authorities generally refuting a claim of privilege (see, e.g., § 81.10).]

THE COMMUNICATION BY THE NONDEFENDANT CORPORATE EMPLOYEE IS DISCOVERABLE BECAUSE IT IS NOT PRIVILEGED UNDER THE LAWYER-CLIENT PRIVILEGE.

A. Communication Not Privileged If Information Does Not Emanate From Corporation. When the employee of a defendantcorporation is not a codefendant or person who may be charged with liability, the employee's communication should not be privileged unless, under all of the circumstances of the case, he or she is a natural person to be speaking for the corporation, or in other words, unless the communication constitutes information that emanates from the corporation, as distinct from the nonlitigant employee, and the communicating employee is such a person who would ordinarily be utilized for communication to the corporation's lawyer (D.I. Chadbourne, Inc. v. Superior Court (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 723, 736, 737, 36 Cal. Rptr. 468, 388 P.2d 700 ; Sierra Vista Hospital v. Superior Court (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 359, 366-367, 56 Cal. Rptr. 387).

[EITHER]

B. Corporate Employee Is Independent Witness. When an employee has been a witness to matters that require communication to the corporate employer's lawyer, and the employee has no connection with those matters other than as a witness, he or she is an independent witness; the fact that the employer requires him or her to communicate with or make a statement for transmittal to the employer's lawyer regarding the subject matter of the lawsuit does not alter his or her status or make his or her statement subject to the lawyer-client privilege (D.I. Chadbourne, Inc. v. Superior Court (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 723, 737, 36 Cal. Rptr. 468, 388 P.2d 700).

[AND/OR]

C. Dominant-Purpose Rule Applies When Employee Not Independent Witness. If the employee's connection with the matter grows out of his or her employment to the extent that the employee's statement or report is required in the ordinary course of business, the employee is no longer an independent witness, and his or her statement or report is that of the employer (D.I. Chadbourne, Inc. v. Superior Court (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 723, 737, 36 Cal. Rptr. 468, 388 P.2d 700). Whether that communication is privileged is determined by the employer's dominant purpose in requiring it, unless a secondary purpose has resulted in a waiver of confidentiality; thus, if the employer does not direct the making of the report for confidential transmittal to its attorney, the communication is not privileged (D.I. Chadbourne, Inc. v. Superior Court (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 723, 737, 36 Cal. Rptr. 468, 388 P.2d 700).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a motion for an order compelling discovery if a party or other person has resisted providing discovery on the ground that the material sought is privileged as a confidential communication between a corporate employer and its attorney, although made or prepared by a nonparty corporate employee who is not a natural person to be speaking for the corporation. Paragraph B is for use by a party contending that the employee is an independent witness. A party may argue instead or in the alternative that although the witness is not an independent witness because his or her connection with the matter grows out of his or her employment, since the report or statement was required in the ordinary course of the corporation's business, the report or statement is not privileged under the "dominant purpose" rule [Paragraph C].

Although this form is for use when the corporation is a defendant, portions of the form may be adapted for use when the corporation is a plaintiff.

The form does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of compelling discovery, as well as a form refuting a claim of privilege generally.

Counsel who wish to set out general points relating to the attorney-client privilege as well may adapt the points and authorities in opposition to a motion to compel discovery set out in § 81.80 and combine them with this form.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 81.84 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion to compel discovery supported by this memorandum.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Communication Not Privileged if Information Does Not Emanate From Corporation

D.I. Chadbourne, Inc. v. Superior Court (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 723, 36 Cal. Rptr. 468, 388 P.2d 700 was an action by a husband and wife for personalinjuries that the wife allegedly sustained when she fell on a sidewalk as a result of defendant's negligence. In response to interrogatories, defendant stated that it had obtained the written statement of a person who had performed work on the sidewalk. When plaintiffs moved for an order allowing inspection of the statement pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 2031(b) (see now Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2031.300, 2031.310), defendant opposed the motion on the ground that it was protected by the attorney-client privilege. The trial court found good cause for inspection of the statement and ordered defendant to allow inspection and copying of the statement.

The witness was an employee of defendant corporation. His statement had been taken by an investigator who contended the following: that he worked for a firm employed by defendant's insurance carrier for the purpose of investigating accidents likely to lead to litigation involving its insureds; that defendant's attorneys were the attorneys for the insurance carrier and had directed the investigator's firm to investigate all such accidents and transmit their reports "to their attorneys"; that the statement in question had been taken as part of the investigation and preparation for defense and after plaintiffs had engaged the services of their attorneys; and that the statement was made for the purpose of being, and was, transmitted to the insurance carrier for transmission to its attorney.

Defendant petitioned for a writ of mandate, and the Supreme Court denied the petition. The Court stated that if the attorney-client privilege was shown as a matter of law, the trial court was required to deny the motion for inspection (60 Cal. 2d 723, 729). However, if the privilege did not appear as a matter of law, but presented a question of fact, then the determination of the trial court could not be set aside (60 Cal. 2d 723, 729). The Court found that the facts presented to the trial court did not determine the question of privilege as a matter of law, and that the Supreme Court could not disturb the trial court's decision that the material was not privileged, since the evidence presented in support of the claim of privilege was inconclusive and subject to contrary inferences (60 Cal. 2d 723, 739).

In reaching its decision in Chadbourne, the Supreme Court set forth certain principles to be followed in the area of attorney-corporate client privilege, stating, inter alia, that when an employee of a corporate defendant is not a codefendant or person who may be charged with liability, his or her communication should not be privileged unless, under all the circumstances of the case, he or she is the natural person to be speaking for the corporation, or the communication constitutes information that emanates from the corporation as distinct from the nonlitigant employee, and that employee is such a person who would ordinarily be utilized for communication to the corporation's attorney (60 Cal. 2d 723, 736-737).

Note that Chadbourne was decided under the attorney-client privilege of former Code Civ. Proc. § 1881(2), and the lawyer-client privilege is nowgoverned by Evid. Code §§ 950-962. Chadbourne, however, has often been cited as authority in this area in cases based on the Evidence Code lawyer-client privilege (see, e.g., cases cited in [4], below), and is therefore still good authority.

This case is also discussed in § 81.84[3][a].

The facts and procedural background of Sierra Vista Hospital v. Superior Court (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 359, 56 Cal. Rptr. 387 are discussed in § 81.84[3][b]. Sierra Vista was an action for medical negligence. The court of appeal issued a peremptory writ prohibiting the trial court from enforcing a discovery order, citing the principle of D.I. Chadbourne, Inc. v. Superior Court (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 723, 36 Cal. Rptr. 468, 388 P.2d 700 , set out in Paragraph A of the form, as authority (248 Cal. App. 2d 359, 366-367) .

[b] Corporate Employee Is Independent Witness

The facts and procedural background of D.I. Chadbourne, Inc. v. Superior Court (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 723, 36 Cal. Rptr. 468, 388 P.2d 700 are discussed in § 81.64[3][a]. In Chadbourne, the Supreme Court set forth rules of the attorney-corporate client privilege, including the principle that when an employee has no connection, other than as a witness, with matters which he or she is required to communicate to his or her corporate employer's attorney, that employee is an independent witness, and the fact that the employer requires the employee to communicate with the corporation's attorney regarding the subject matter of the litigation does not alter the employee's status or make the employee's statement or communication subject to the attorney-client privilege (60 Cal. 2d 723, 737) .

[c] Dominant-Purpose Rule Applies When Employee Not Independent Witness

In D.I. Chadbourne, Inc. v. Superior Court (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 723, 36 Cal. Rptr. 468, 388 P.2d 700 (discussed in § 81.64[3][a]), the Supreme Court set forth rules governing the attorney-corporate client privilege, including the dominant-purpose rule, which provides that when an employee is not an independent witness and a corporate employer defendant requires a nondefendant employee to make a report or communication regarding the subject matter of litigation, the privilege accorded that communication is determined by the employer's purpose in requiring it; when the employer has more than one purpose, the dominant purpose controls, unless the secondary use is such that confidentiality has been waived (60 Cal. 2d 723, 737).

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Corporate Employee Is Independent Witness

In Nalian Truck Lines, Inc. v. Nakano Warehouse & Transportation Corp. (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1256, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467 , a negligence action arising out of a fire, plaintiff filed a motion to have defendant's counsel disqualified after it was revealed that he had engaged in ex parte communications with plaintiff's former general manager. Plaintiff based its motion for disqualification on the grounds that the communication was a violation of State Bar Rules of Professional Conduct, Rule 2-100 and the lawyer-client privilege. Defendant's counsel claimed that he had not discussed privileged information, but only discussed the underlying facts related to the fire loss, plaintiff's customers, lost profits, and alleged fraud. The trial court granted the motion, and stayed the action pending an appeal by defendant. The court of appeal reversed. The court outlined the rules regarding confidentiality of lawyer-client privilege. Although the party opposing the privilege has the burden of proof to show that the communication is not one made in confidence, the party claiming the privilege has the burden to show that the communication sought to be suppressed falls within the terms of the statute. The court concluded that the showing made by plaintiff, as claimant for the privilege, was inadequate. At best, it demonstrated that the former general manager possessed certain information protected by the privilege, but made a wholly inadequate showing to prove that particular protected communications were divulged by him (6 Cal. App. 4th 1256, 1264-1265). Defendant also argued that since the former general manager was neither a current employee nor a current member of plaintiff's control group at the time of the communication, it was not prohibited by Rule 2-100 from engaging in ex parte communication with him. Citing the legislative history of Rule 2-100 the court said that it applies only to persons employed at the time of the communication, and agree with defendant (6 Cal. App. 4th 1256, 1261-1262). However, the court suggested that a corporation, realizing which of its former employees may be parties to privileged communications, should seek a protective order with respect to communications with them (6 Cal. App. 4th 1256, 1263-1264).

In Triple A Machine Shop, Inc. v. State of California (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 131, 261 Cal. Rptr. 493 , the State appealed a preliminary injunction prohibiting government authorities from contacting all present and certain former employees of a corporate machine shop in connection with civil and criminal proceedings involving alleged unlawful disposal of hazardous waste. The court of appeal reversed the order, noting that the information sought by the authorities concerned nonprivileged observations by the witnesses, and that those observations occurred outside any lawyer-client relationship. Applying the scope of the privilege established in D.I. Chadbourne, Inc. v. Superior Court (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 723, 36 Cal. Rptr. 468, 388 P.2d 700 , the court concluded that there had been no demonstration that the privilege had been violated (213 Cal. App. 3d 131, 141-143). It found that the mere possibility that the authorities may inadvertently obtain privileged information was an insufficient basis for an injunction (213 Cal. App. 3d 131, 144).

The court distinguished Bobele v. Superior Court (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 708, 245 Cal. Rptr. 144 (discussed below), decided under former Rule 7-103 of the Rules of Professional Conduct of the State Bar of California, observing that Rule 2-100 of the Rules of Professional Conduct, effective May 27, 1989, permits contact with certain current employees (213 Cal. App. 3d 131, 140).

Bobele v. Superior Court (1988) 199 App. 3d 708, 245 Cal. Rptr. 144 was a sex and age discrimination action brought by waitresses whose employment was terminated by defendant hotel. When counsel for plaintiffs attempted to interview former employees of the hotel, defendants objected on the grounds that the contact violated former Rule 7-103 of the Rules of Professional Conduct of the State Bar of California, which prohibited attorneys from communicating with a party represented by counsel on a subject of controversy, without the express consent of that counsel. Plaintiffs sought a protective order allowing them to interview ex parte defendant's former and current employees who do not "speak for the defendants." The trial court denied the motion, but stated that plaintiffs could depose former employees. Plaintiffs sought a writ of mandate granting their protective orders, and the court of appeal issued a peremptory writ directing the trial court to issue a new and different order. It found that absent a privilege, counsel for all parties have a right to interview an adverse party's witnesses in private, without the presence or consent of opposing counsel. Requiring plaintiffs to limit their contact with any of defendant's ex-employees to formal discovery procedure would make the litigation so costly for plaintiffs that they would be unable to pursue their case. The court characterized former employees who were not members of defendant's "control group," that is, not officers and agents responsible for directing the company's actions in response to legal advice, as third-party witnesses who were not sufficiently identified with defendant to be considered parties "represented by counsel" (199 App. 3d 708, 713). The court ordered that plaintiffs be permitted to contact ex parte all former employees, so long as they were not members of defendant's "control group." Defendant was free to seek a protective order with respect to any former employee if it knew or suspected that the former employee was privy to privileged information and believed there was a real danger that such information might be disclosed in an ex parte interview. The court prohibited ex parte contact of all current employees (199 App. 3d 708, 714).

[b] Dominant-Purpose Rule Applies When Employee Not Independent Witness

Scripps Health v. Superior Court (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 529, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126 was a wrongful death medical malpractice case. During the course of discovery, plaintiffs served written document requests on defendant hospital, seeking all records regarding any incidents or changes in decedent's condition, during his hospital stay, not contained in his medical records. The hospital responded to the request by indicating it had five "occurrence reports" that it would withhold based on the attorney-client and work product privileges and the privilege for hospital peer review materials contained in Evid. Code § 1157. The hospital supplied a blank occurrence report form and provided a privilege log indicating that hospital employees prepared the reports in anticipation of litigation. Plaintiffs filed a motion for production. After a hearing, the trial court granted the motion. The court ruled that the reports did not fall under either the attorney-client or the attorney work product privileges, "essentially finding that the dominant purpose of the occurrence reports was accident prevention" (109 Cal. App. 4th 529, 534).

The appellate court reversed. It concluded that the undisputed facts showed the dominant purpose of the reports was for transmittal to an attorney in the course of the professional attorney-client relationship, under circumstances in which the hospital expected confidentiality (109 Cal. App. 4th 529, 534). The court relied on D. I. Chadbourne, Inc. v. Superior Court of San Francisco (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 723, 36 Cal. Rptr. 468, 388 P.2d 700 (discussed in [3][a], above), detailing the basic principles to be applied in determining whether the attorney-client privilege exists in a corporate setting (109 Cal. App. 4th 529, 533). Although the court acknowledged that the reports served a dual purpose, attorney review in anticipation of possible litigation and quality assurance/peer review, the fact that the information contained in the communications might also have been used for incidental purposes not entitled to the privilege was unimportant. The actual physical reports were not reviewed or submitted to any peer review or quality assurance committee, but were kept confidential, with access provided only to the Risk Managers, in-house or outside counsel and third party litigation claim administrators. Accordingly, the attorney-client privilege was "clearly established" (109 Cal. App. 4th 529, 536 ). Based on this conclusion, the court found no need to discuss application of the attorney work product privilege or the privilege for hospital peer review materials (109 Cal. App. 4th 529, 536).

The facts and procedural background of Payless Drug Stores, Inc. v. Superior Court (1976) 54 Cal. App. 3d 988, 127 Cal. Rptr. 4 are set out in § 81.84[3][d]. Payless was an action arising from an accidental fall. The court of appeal issued a writ of prohibition to prevent enforcement of anorder compelling production of an accident report prepared by the defendant corporation's employees after the accident, holding that the dominant purpose for the preparation of the report was, in effect, the confidential communication of information by the corporation to its attorneys to defend against litigation arising out of the accident claim, and thus the attorney-client privilege applied as a matter of law. The court relied on the principle of D.I. Chadbourne, Inc. v. Superior Court (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 723, 36 Cal. Rptr. 468, 388 P.2d 700 , set out in Paragraph C of this form, as authority (54 Cal. App. 3d 988, 991).

See also Rodriguez v. North American Rockwell Corp. (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 441, 449, 104 Cal. Rptr. 678 (action for conspiracy to commit slander, discussed in § 81.84[3][a]).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
B. Attorney-Client Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.65

§ 81.65 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954]--Privilege Waived by Holder's Disclosure of Communication [Evid. Code § 912(a)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as well as with points and authorities generally refuting a claim of privilege (see, e.g., § 81.10).]

THE LAWYER-CLIENT PRIVILEGE IS WAIVED BY THE HOLDER'S DISCLOSURE OF THE CONFIDENTIAL COMMUNICATION.

Privilege Waived by Disclosure of Communication. The right of any person to claim the lawyer-client privilege is waived with respect to a protected communication if any holder of the privilege, without coercion, has disclosed a significant part of the communication (see Evid. Code § 912(a); Julrik Productions, Inc. v. Chester (1975) 38 Cal. App. 3d 807, 811, 113 Cal. Rptr. 527).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a motion for an order compelling discovery if a party or other person has resisted providingdiscovery on the ground that the information sought is a privileged communication between lawyer and client when, in fact, the privilege has been waived by the holder through disclosure of a significant part of the communication. This form does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of compelling discovery, as well as a form refuting a claim of privilege generally.

Counsel who wish to set out general points relating to the attorney-client privilege as well may adapt the points and authorities in opposition to a motion to compel discovery set out in § 81.80 and combine them with this form.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 81.89 may be used to oppose the motion supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Privilege Waived by Disclosure of Communication

Except as provided in Evid. Code § 912(b)-(d), the right of any person to claim the lawyer-client privilege of Evid. Code § 954 is waived with respect to a communication protected by that privilege if any holder of the privilege, without coercion, has disclosed a significant part of the communication [Evid. Code § 912(a)].

The exceptions to this rule are that a waiver of the right of one joint holder does not affect the right of another joint holder to claim the privilege [Evid. Code § 912(b); see § 81.89], a disclosure that is itself privileged is not a waiver [Evid. Code § 912(c)], and a confidential disclosure that is reasonably necessary for the accomplishment of the purpose for which the lawyer was consulted is not a waiver of the privilege [Evid. Code § 912(d)].

In Julrik Productions, Inc. v. Chester (1975) 38 Cal. App. 3d 807, 113 Cal. Rptr. 527 , an action for damages for fraud in inducing the modification of a contract, the trial court sustained an objection to disclosure of a letter from plaintiff to his attorney on the ground of the lawyer-client privilege. On appeal from a judgment in plaintiff's favor, the court of appeal held that plaintiff had waived the privilege when, without objection, he testified under cross-examination not only that there was such a letter but went into some detail about its contents. The court stated, therefore, thatplaintiff had disclosed a significant part of the communication (38 Cal. App. 3d 807, 811) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Privilege Waived by Disclosure of Communication

In People v. Urbano (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 396, 403, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 871 , defendant appealed his conviction of assault by means likely to produce great bodily injury. He argued that the admission in evidence at trial of a comment and a gesture he made to his attorney in the jury box of his preliminary hearing courtroom when court was not in session violated the attorney-client privilege. The court of appeal disagreed. The attorney-client privilege is inapplicable to a conversation a client and his attorney hold in the presence of a third party. Here, defendant, sitting next to his attorney in the jury box when court was not in session and lawyers were engaged in conversation throughout the courtroom, spoke to his attorney loudly enough that the assault victim, openly present in the last row of seats in the courtroom, overheard his comment and saw his gesture. Accordingly, the attorney-client privilege was inapplicable because defendant made his communication in a way that clearly disclosed it to third persons, even though defendant intended that the communication be confidential (128 Cal. App. 4th 396, 403) .

McKesson HBOC, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 1229, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 812 involved consolidated civil actions against a corporation that was the target of federal government investigation for securities fraud. Plaintiffs moved to compel the corporation to produce an audit committee report and memoranda of employee interviews, which had been prepared by the attorneys retained by the corporation to perform an internal review of improperly recorded revenues, and which the corporation had shared with the government. The trial court found the documents were subject to the attorney-client privilege, but that the corporation had waived the privilege by disclosing the documents to third parties who did not have an interest in preserving the confidentiality of the documents. On appeal, the corporation again asserted the government was not an adversary and had a common interest in rooting out the source of any accounting improprieties.

The court of appeal disagreed. An interest in maintaining confidentiality exists "when the parties are aligned on the same side in the litigation and have a similar stake in the outcome" (115 Cal. App. 4th 1229, 1239-1240) . In this case, there no real alignment of interests between the government and an entity or individuals under investigation for securities law violations. Accordingly, the corporation waived the attorney-client privilege when it shared the privileged documents with government investigators (115 Cal. App. 4th 1229, 1240) .

For discussion of work product protection in the context of this case, see § 81.204[4][b].

In OXY Resources California LLC v. Superior Court (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 874, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 621 , plaintiff natural gas company sued two resources companies, contending it was denied the opportunity to exercise its contractual right of first refusal to purchase one defendant's interest in specified property. At issue was the confidentiality of some 200 documents reflecting communications that took place between defendants both before and after they finalized their transaction, but before plaintiff filed its lawsuit. Defendants argued that these documents were protected from disclosure by their "joint defense" agreement. The "joint defense" or "common interest" doctrine relies on the principle that parties who possess common legal interests may share privileged information without losing the protection afforded by the attorney-client privilege. The trial court granted in part, and denied in part, plaintiff's motion to compel production of the documents. Plaintiff and one defendant each petitioned for a writ of mandate.

The court of appeal concluded in camera inspection of the material must occur before determining whether disclosure was compelled (115 Cal. App. 4th 874, 879) . While the joint defense agreement was not void as a matter of public policy, it could not serve as sole ground for withholding the documents (115 Cal. App. 4th 874, 893) . The court instructed the trial court to take the following steps when ruling on a claim that documents are protected by a joint defense agreement: First, the trial court must establish that the documents are protected by either the attorney-client privilege or the attorney work product doctrine. Second, the trial court must determine that there was a reasonable expectation the communications would be maintained in confidence and that the disclosures were reasonably necessary for the purpose for which attorneys were consulted. "This determination will invariably hinge on the content and context of the communication." Finally, in order to assess the claims of common interest and the need for disclosure, the trial court may conduct an in camera review of the disputed documents (115 Cal. App. 4th 874, 902) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
B. Attorney-Client Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.66

§ 81.66 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954]--Privilege Waived by Consent to Disclosure of Communication [Evid. Code § 912(a)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions,§ 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as well as with points and authorities generally refuting a claim of privilege (see, e.g., § 81.10).]

THE LAWYER-CLIENT PRIVILEGE IS WAIVED BY A DISCLOSURE OF THE COMMUNICATION TO WHICH THE HOLDER CONSENTED.

A. Privilege Waived by Consent to Disclosure of Communication. The right of any person to claim the lawyer-client privilege is waived with respect to a protected communication if any holder of the privilege, without coercion, has consented to such disclosure made by anyone (see Evid. Code § 912(a)).

B. Manifestation of Consent to Disclosure. Consent to disclosure is manifested by any statement or other conduct of the holder of the privilege indicating his or her consent to the disclosure (Evid. Code § 912(a)).

[Optional] C. Failure to Claim Privilege. Consent to disclosure is manifested by the failure by the holder of the privilege to claim it in any proceeding in which he or she had legal standing and opportunity to claim the privilege (Evid. Code § 912(a)). The privilege is waived if not claimed at the first opportunity (Mize v. Atchison, T. & S.F. Ry. Co. (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 436, 449, 120 Cal. Rptr. 787).

[Optional] D. Consent Inferred From Other Evidence. The fact of the client's consent may be inferred from other evidence. An example of this is the disclosure for the client's benefit in negotiations on the client's behalf (Klang v. Shell Oil Co. (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 933, 938, 95 Cal. Rptr. 265).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a motion for an order compelling discovery if a party or other person has resisted providing discovery on the ground that the information sought is a privileged communication between lawyer and client, but in fact the privilege has been waived by the holders through his or her consent to disclosure of a significant portion of the communication. This form does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of compelling discovery, as well as a form refuting a claim of privilege generally.

Counsel who wish to set out general points relating to the attorney-client privilege as well may adapt the points and authorities in opposition to a motion to compel discovery set out in § 81.80 and combine them with this form.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Privilege Waived by Consent to Disclosure of Communication

Except as provided in Evid. Code § 912(b)-(d) (discussed in § 81.65[3][a]), the right of any person to claim the lawyer-client privilege of Evid. Code § 954 is waived if any holder of the privilege, without coercion, has consented to such disclosure made by anyone [Evid. Code § 912(a)].

[b] Failure to Claim Privilege

In Mize v. Atchison, T. & S.F. Ry. Co. (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 436, 120 Cal. Rptr. 787 , an administrator of an estate brought a wrongful death action for the benefit of the heirs of a decedent's estate, as well as an action for damages for personal injuries sustained by decedent before his death. In the main action, judgment was entered for plaintiff. On appeal, the judgment was upheld. Two defendants contended that the trial court had erred when it allowed plaintiff's counsel to inspect a part of the file of the investigator of one of defendants. The investigator had been called as a witness and was examined, without objection, about taking certain statements. There was also no objection to the use of a certain letter. The court of appeal stated, citing Kerns Constr. Co. v. Superior Court (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 405, 72 Cal. Rptr. 74 (discussed in § 81.83[3][c]), held that the privilege is waived if not claimed at the first opportunity (46 Cal. App. 3d 436, 449) .

[c] Consent Inferred From Other Evidence

The facts and procedural background of Klang v. Shell Oil Co. (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 933, 95 Cal. Rptr. 265 are discussed in § 81.60[3][b]. The court stated that the lawyer-client privilege is lost if the attorney, with consent of the client, discloses the content of a privileged communication other than in confidence (17 Cal. App. 3d 933, 938) . The client's consent may be inferred from other evidence, such as the fact that the disclosure was for the client's benefit in negotiations on his or her behalf (17 Cal. App. 3d 933, 938) . In the case before the court, there was substantial evidence, such as the fact that the statement was given in a successful effort to prevent an assertion of criminal liability against the client, to support the trial court's inference that the attorney disclosed the information with the client's consent (17 Cal. App. 3d 933, 938) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Privilege Waived by Consent to Disclosure of Communication

In Hiott v. Superior Court (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 712, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 157 , the appellate court held that a personal injury plaintiff waived the attorney-client privilege with respect to a videotape of a conversation between her and her attorney made while she was in the hospital, when, in a verified response to defendant's discovery request, plaintiff informed defendant of the existence of the videotape and indicated that defendant was welcome to a copy of it. Plaintiff's verified response to the request, made while she was represented by three attorneys, constituted an express consent to the disclosure within the meaning of Evid. Code § 912. The court noted that plaintiff had the legal standing and the opportunity to claim the privilege in accordance with former Code Civ. Proc. § 2031(f) (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 2031.240(b)), and her failure to do so in the response also constituted consent to disclosure (16 Cal. App. 4th 712, 719-720) . For further discussion of Hiott, see § 81.80[4][c].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
B. Attorney-Client Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.67

§ 81.67 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954]--Privilege Impliedly Waived

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as well as with points and authorities generally refuting a claim of privilege (see, e.g., § 81.10).]

THE LAWYER-CLIENT PRIVILEGE MAY BE IMPLIEDLY WAIVED WHEN THE CLIENT HAS PUT OTHERWISE PRIVILEGED COMMUNICATIONS DIRECTLY AT ISSUE OR WHEN THE GRAVAMEN OF A LAWSUIT IS SO INCONSISTENT WITH THE PRIVILEGE AS TO COMPEL WAIVER.

[EITHER]

A. Waiver Implied by Placing Mental State of Lawyer in Issue. A party may impliedly waive the lawyer-client privilege by placing in issue the decisions, conclusions, and mental state of his or herlawyer, who will be called as a witness to prove those matters (Merritt v. Superior Court (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 721, 730, 88 Cal. Rptr. 337).

[OR]

A. Implied Waiver Occurs When Gravamen of Suit Is So Inconsistent With Privilege as to Compel Waiver. An implied waiver of the lawyer-client privilege may occur when the gravamen of the lawsuit is so inconsistent with the continued assertion of a privilege as to compel the conclusion that the privilege has in fact been waived. For example, in an action for fraud based on detrimental reliance, when corporate plaintiff's counsel is the one person who could most thoroughly testify concerning plaintiff's relevant knowledge and when the counsel's privileged and unprivileged activities are so intertwined as to render them indistinguishable the privilege is impliedly waived (Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 1142, 1150, 1154, 220 Cal. Rptr. 507).

[OR]

A. Implied Waiver Occurs When Party Designated as Expert Witness Produces Privileged Documents or Testifies as Expert. A party designated as an expert trial witness impliedly waives the attorney-client privilege by producing privileged documents or testifying as an expert (such as by stating an opinion in a declaration or at a deposition) (Shooker v. Superior Court (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 923, 930, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 334).

B. Test for Implied Waiver of Lawyer-Client Privilege. The lawyer-client privilege may be impliedly waived when (1) there is a legitimate need to reach to evidence sought to be obtained, (2) there is a showing of the relevance and materiality of that evidence to the issue before the court, and (3) the party seeking to bar assertion of the privilege shows by a fair preponderance of the evidence, including all reasonable inferences, that the information cannot be secured from any less intrusive source (Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 1142, 1153, 220 Cal. Rptr. 507).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a motion for an order compelling discovery if a party or other person has resisted providingdiscovery on the ground that the information sought is a privileged communication between lawyer and client when, in fact, the privilege has been impliedly waived by the client through placing otherwise privileged communications directly at issue. The Optional Paragraphs A reflect different factual situations. The first paragraph focuses on the client placing his or her lawyer's mental state in issue and depending on the lawyer's testimony for proof. The second paragraph is more appropriate for use when the client is a corporation, and the lawyer involved in the lawyer-client relationship is the corporate counsel. The third paragraph is for use when a party designated as an expert trial witness has impliedly waived the privilege by producing privileged documents or testifying as an expert.

This form does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of compelling discovery, as well as a form refuting a claim of privilege generally.

For a form discussing waiver by the initiation of and manner of prosecuting a lawsuit, see § 81.65.

Counsel who wish to set out general points relating to the attorney-client privilege may adapt the points and authorities in opposition to a motion to compel discovery set out in § 81.80 and combine them with this form.

If the third Optional Paragraph A is used, this form may be combined with one or more forms refuting claims of work product protection on grounds such as waiver. For authorities that discuss when an expert's opinion may not be protected under the work product doctrine, see § 81.202.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in Form § 81.91 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion to compel discovery supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Waiver Implied by Placing Mental State of Lawyer in Issue

Merritt v. Superior Court (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 721, 88 Cal. Rptr. 337 arose from a personal injury claimant's action against an insurer for satisfaction of a judgment against its insured in excess of policy limits, basedon the insurer's wrongful failure to settle the claim within policy limits. Defendant sought by interrogatory to ascertain the mode, date, and substance of communications between plaintiff's prior personal injury counsel and the workers' compensation carrier, as well as the effect of a large workers' compensation lien on counsel's handling of the personal injury action. The trial court ordered plaintiff to answer over his objection that the information was protected by the lawyer-client privilege, and plaintiff sought a writ of prohibition or mandate to compel the trial court to vacate its order.

In denying the writ, the court of appeal held that by initiating a lawsuit in which he placed in issue the decisions, conclusions, and mental state of his then attorneys, particularly their confusion and disability allegedly caused by defendant's conduct that precluded them from making a settlement offer, and by relying heavily on evidence to be given by his prior counsel that could only have been learned in the course of their employment, plaintiff waived the lawyer-client privilege regarding the information sought by the interrogatories. The court stated that any plaintiff who brings an action against an insurer for bad-faith refusal to settle does not necessarily waive the lawyer-client privilege with respect to the prior negligence action; it was not merely the initiation of the lawsuit but rather the manner of its prosecution that constituted the waiver (9 Cal. App. 3d 721, 730) .

[b] Implied Waiver Occurs When Gravamen of Suit Is So Inconsistent With Privilege as to Compel Waiver

In Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 1142, 220 Cal. Rptr. 507 , plaintiff corporation filed a suit against defendant bank, alleging five causes of action, among them fraud. The complaint alleged that plaintiff acted as an escrow agent in the transfer of funds involving two parties in transactions whereby checks were delivered to plaintiff drawn on one party's accounts with defendant. In reliance on that party's representations, plaintiff issued checks to the other party, who then endorsed these checks to the original party, who in turn deposited them in its accounts at defendant bank to cover the checks drawn on nonexistent funds. Plaintiff alleged that defendant knew of unusual activity of the accounts, placed the accounts on a "kite suspect" list, conducted its own investigation, and thereafter assisted those parties in perpetrating fraud on plaintiff. Plaintiff alleged that it was not informed of the kiting activity, was unaware of the fraud, and was unaware that the representations on which it relied were false. During the course of discovery, defendant deposed several of plaintiff's employees, including its in-house counsel. After the employees did not answer questions concerning certain communications, defendant moved to compel answers. The court adopted the recommendations of a discovery referee who found an implied waiver of the lawyer-client privilege. Plaintiff filed petitions for two writs of mandate, oneseeking review of the court's order compelling discovery and the other requesting vacation of the court order granting summary judgment.

The court of appeal denied both petitions. Initially the court observed that the in-house counsel performed functions not typically part of those of counsel, and confined its analysis to the acts performed in a legal capacity. The right to assert the lawyer-client privilege is not absolute. In addition to the waiver provided by Evid. Code § 912(a), a waiver to the privilege may be implied. An implied waiver occurs when the plaintiff has placed in issue a communication that goes to the heart of the claim in controversy (174 Cal. App. 3d 1142, 1149) . The court reviewed the reasoning in earlier implied-waiver cases, notably that supporting a finding of waiver when the gravamen of the lawsuit is so inconsistent with the continued assertion of a privilege as to compel the conclusion that the privilege has in fact been waived (174 Cal. App. 3d 1142, 1150) . The court said that since an action for fraud involves an analysis of plaintiff's reliance and whether it was justified, plaintiff, by bringing such an action, put in issue the question of its own knowledge of the events complained of (174 Cal. App. 3d 1142, 1151) . It cited Upjohn Co. v. United States (1981) 449 U.S. 383, 101 S. Ct. 677, 66 L. Ed. 2d 584 , in saying that all confidential communications concerning the scope of their employment between corporate employees and the corporation's in-house counsel are covered by the lawyer-client privilege, and then noted that nothing precludes application of a waiver to those communications (174 Cal. App. 3d 1142, 1152) . The court cited with approval a test to determine whether the privilege must yield: (1) there must be a legitimate need to reach to evidence sought to be obtained; (2) there must be a showing of relevance and materiality of that evidence to the issue before the court; and (3) the party seeking to bar assertion of the privilege must show by a fair preponderance of the evidence, including all reasonable inferences, the information cannot be secured from any less intrusive source (174 Cal. App. 3d 1142, 1153) . The court focused its analysis on the third part of the test, since the first two were clearly met. The court concluded that through the synthesis of both privileged and nonprivileged communications, as well as through direct involvement as a corporate employee, the in-house counsel had accumulated knowledge that could not be discovered elsewhere, and was the person who most thoroughly could attest to the knowledge of the corporate entity that had been placed in issue by the complaint. Consequently, any lawyer-client privilege existing between the in-house counsel and plaintiff must be deemed impliedly waived. The court cautioned that its finding did not mean that the lawyer-client privilege disappears solely by bringing a fraud action, nor does the employment of in-house counsel alone erode the privilege. Rather, the in-house counsel's merger of business and legal functions and plaintiff's assertion of detrimental reliance resulted in the waiver (174 Cal. App. 3d 1142, 1153-1154) .

[c] Implied Waiver Occurs When Party Designated as Expert Witness Produces Privileged Documents or Testifies as Expert

In Shooker v. Superior Court (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 923, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 334 , a former partner of venture capital company sued the company and its owner for breach of their partnership agreement, breach of fiduciary duty, constructive fraud, and conversion. Plaintiff designated six expert trial witnesses, including himself. Defendant responded with a subpoena to plaintiff to testify at a deposition and produce documents in his capacity as an expert witness. Plaintiff appeared for his deposition and produced four binders filled with documents culled from the tens of thousands previously produced in this litigation, plus five charts he had prepared to summarize those documents. Plaintiff objected to deposition questions about conversations with his attorneys on the grounds of attorney- client privilege and work product. No privileged information was disclosed. Defendant claimed that plaintiff had waived the attorney-client privilege by designating himself as an expert. Plaintiff disagreed and sought a protective order. The discovery referee recommended that the motion be denied because plaintiff had "waived the attorney-client privilege because [his] testimony will necessarily disclose a significant part of the privileged communication with respect to all communications relating to the subject of his expert testimony." The designation itself constituted an implied waiver and disclosure was irrelevant. Plaintiff filed objections and requested a hearing. A few months later, plaintiff served notice that he was withdrawing his designation of himself as an expert witness and filed a motion for reconsideration. The discovery referee rejected plaintiff's argument that his withdrawal preserved the privilege and concluded again that the designation itself constituted an implied waiver, even though no privileged information had been disclosed before the withdrawal. The referee recommended that the court order plaintiff to submit to a resumed deposition. The trial court rejected plaintiff's motion for reconsideration and, ultimately, plaintiff filed for a writ of mandate.

The court of appeal agreed with plaintiff that his attorney-client privilege was not waived (impliedly or otherwise) by the expert witness designation, that he did not disclose any confidential information before he withdrew his designation, and that he was entitled to the full protection of the privilege (111 Cal. App. 4th 923, 927) . The court found two relevant cases. In County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1990) 222 Cal. App.3d 647, 271 Cal. Rptr. 698 (discussed in detail § 81.224[3][a]), the County designated a pathologist as one of its experts but withdrew the designation before the doctor was deposed. When the plaintiff then designated the pathologist, the County moved to disqualify the plaintiff's attorney and for other relief, claiming the doctor was still its consultant, that his opinionswere the County's work product and that the doctor had disclosed privileged information to the plaintiff's attorney. In that context, the court held that "once it appears reasonably certain that the consultant-expert 'will give his ... professional opinion as a witness on a material matter in dispute,' the attorney's work product privilege terminates and the expert's knowledge and opinions are subject to discovery and disclosure." The court granted the requested relief (111 Cal. App. 4th 923, 928-929) . In National Steel Products Co. v. Superior Court (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 476, 210 Cal. Rptr. 535 (discussed in detail § 81.224[3][f]), plaintiff wanted to discover an engineering report prepared by the defendant steel manufacturer's expert trial witness for a New York case arising out of the construction of a similar building, and the trial court permitted the discovery. In response to the plaintiff's contention that the attorney-client privilege was waived "by identifying the expert as a witness," the court of appeal held "the information and opinion of an expert respecting the subject matter about which he is a prospective witness are subjects of discovery by interrogation or deposition procedures and, if submitted in a report confined thereto, by production of such a report. In addition, because the expert's prospective testimony will necessarily disclose a 'significant part' of the privileged communication to the expert, the privilege is waived with respect to all communications to that expert" (111 Cal. App. 4th 923, 929-930) .

This court distilled the following rule from these cases: The designation of a party as an expert trial witness is not in itself an implied waiver of the party's attorney-client privilege because the party's initial status is that of a possible expert witness. If the designation is withdrawn before the party discloses a significant part of a privileged communication (as in this case), or before it is known with reasonable certainty that the party will actually testify as an expert, the privilege is secure. However, if the party provides privileged documents or testifies as an expert (such as by stating his opinion in a declaration or at a deposition) the privilege is waived (111 Cal. App. 4th 923, 930-931) .

[d] Test for Implied Waiver of Lawyer-Client Privilege

Chicago Title Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 1142, 220 Cal. Rptr. 507 is discussed in [b], above.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
B. Attorney-Client Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.68

§ 81.68 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954]--Matter Relates to Arbitration of Attorney-Client Fee Dispute [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6202]

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in support of a motionto compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as well as with points and authorities generally refuting a claim of privilege (see, e.g., § 81.10).]

THE LAWYER-CLIENT PRIVILEGE DOES NOT APPLY TO RELEVANT COMMUNICATIONS IN CONNECTION WITH _____ [AN ARBITRATION HEARING PURSUANT TO or A TRIAL AFTER ARBITRATION UNDER or JUDICIAL CONFIRMATION, CORRECTION, OR VACATION OF AN ARBITRATION AWARD THAT WAS MADE UNDER] SECTIONS 6200-6206 OF THE BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONS CODE.

Privilege Inapplicable in Matter Related to Arbitration of Attorney's Fee. Sections 950-962 of the Evidence Code, governing the lawyer-client privilege, do not prohibit the disclosure of any relevant lawyer-client communications in connection with (1) an arbitration hearing or mediation pursuant to Sections 6200 through 6206 of the Business and Professions Code; (2) a trial after arbitration; or (3) judicial confirmation, correction, or vacation of an arbitration award (Bus. & Prof. Code § 6202).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form is for use in support of a motion for an order compelling discovery, when the party or other person has resisted discovery on the ground that the information sought is protected by the lawyer-client privilege. The ground for compelling discovery is that, pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6202, the lawyer-client privilege does not prevent disclosure of communications that are relevant to a proceeding under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6200-6206 (mandatory fee arbitration).

The form does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of compelling discovery, as well as a form refuting a claim of privilege generally.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For a form supporting a motion to compel discovery on the ground that work product protection does not preclude discovery of communications relevant to a proceeding under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6200-6206, see § 81.206.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
B. Attorney-Client Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.69

§ 81.69 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954]--Privilege Does Not Preclude Discovery by Successor Trustee

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as well as with points and authorities generally refuting a claim of privilege (see, e.g., § 81.10).]

THE LAWYER-CLIENT PRIVILEGE DOES NOT EXIST BETWEEN A PREDECESSOR TRUSTEE AND A LAWYER TO PREVENT DISCLOSURE TO THE SUCCESSOR TRUSTEE OF CONFIDENTIAL COMMUNICATIONS BETWEEN THE PREDECESSOR TRUSTEE AND THAT LAWYER REGARDING MATTERS OF TRUST ADMINISTRATION.

Predecessor Trustee May Not Assert Lawyer-Client Privilege to Preclude Discovery by Successor Trustee. A predecessor trustee may not assert the lawyer-client privilege to withhold from the successor trustee documents reflecting confidential communications between the predecessor trustee and a lawyer on matters of trust administration (Moeller v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 1124, 1130-1133, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 317, 947 P.2d 279).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form is for use in supporting a motion for an order compelling discovery when the person has resisted discovery on the ground that the information is protected by the lawyer-client privilege. The ground for compelling discovery is that the predecessor trustee maynot assert the lawyer-client privilege to preclude discovery by the successor trustee of confidential communications between the predecessor and a lawyer on matters of trust administration.

The form does not provide a complete memorandum, but should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of compelling discovery, as well as a form refuting a claim of privilege generally.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Predecessor Trustee May Not Assert Lawyer-Client Privilege to Preclude Discovery by Successor Trustee

In Moeller v. Superior Court (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 1124, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 317, 947 P.2d 279 , a proceeding for an accounting, the successor trustee objected to the predecessor trustee's accounting and settlement petition and formally demanded production and inspection of certain documents and records related to the predecessor trustee's administration of the trust. The predecessor trustee contended that those documents and records were protected from disclosure by the lawyer-client privilege. The trial court held the privilege applied, while the court of appeal issued a writ of mandate compelling the trial court to order the production and inspection of the documents and records.

The Supreme Court granted the predecessor trustee's petition for review, and affirmed the judgment of the court of appeal (16 Cal. 4th 1124, 1139) . The Court said that a trustee has the power to assert the lawyer-client privilege to prevent disclosure of confidential communications between the trustee and a lawyer consulted on behalf of the trust. The trustee retains that right so long as it remains the holder of the privilege (16 Cal. 4th 1124, 1129-1130) . The privilege vests in the office of the trustee and not in any particular individual or entity who at one time is the trustee. When a successor trustee takes over administration of the trust, the predecessor trustee loses, and the successor trustee acquires, the privilege to refuse to disclose confidential lawyer-client communications regarding the predecessor trustee's administration of the trust (16 Cal. 4th 1124, 1130-1133) . A predecessor trustee may not assert the lawyer-client privilege to withhold from the successor trustee documents reflecting confidential communications between the predecessor and a lawyer on matters of trust administration. Unless the trust provides otherwise, which the Court noted was not at issue, on taking office a successor trustee assumes all of thepowers of trustee, including the power to assert the lawyer-client privilege regarding confidential communications on the subject of trust administration (16 Cal. 4th 1124, 1131) .

The Court noted that the successor trustee inherits the power to assert the privilege only as to those communications that occurred when the predecessor, in its fiduciary capacity, sought the lawyer's advice for guidance in administering the trust. If a predecessor trustee seeks legal advice in its personal capacity out of a genuine concern for possible future charges of breach of fiduciary duty, the predecessor may be able to avoid disclosing the advice to a successor trustee by hiring a separate lawyer and paying for the advice out of its personal funds (16 Cal. 4th 1124, 1133-1135) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
B. Attorney-Client Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.70

§ 81.70 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery-Refuting Claim of Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954]--Subject to Evidence Code Section 956.5--Confidential Communications Are Not Protected When Threat of Criminal Act Is Likely to Result in Death or Substantial Bodily Harm

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as well as with points and authorities generally refuting a claim of privilege (see, e.g., § 81.10).]

THE EXCEPTION TO THE LAWYER-CLIENT PRIVILEGE UNDER EVIDENCE CODE SECTION 956.5 APPLIES WHEN THE LAWYER REASONABLY BELIEVES THAT DISCLOSURE OF A CONFIDENTIAL COMMUNICATION IS NECESSARY TO PREVENT A CRIMINAL ACT THAT THE LAWYER REASONABLY BELIEVES IS LIKELY TO RESULT IN DEATH OF, OR SUBSTANTIAL BODILY HARM TO, AN INDIVIDUAL.

A. Exception to Lawyer-Client Privilege Under Evidence Code Section 956.5 Applies When Necessary to Prevent Criminal Act Likely to Result in Death or Serious Bodily Harm. The exception to the lawyer-client privilege under Evidence Code Section 956.5 applies when the lawyer reasonably believes that disclosure of any confidential communication relating to representation of a client is necessary to prevent a criminal act that the lawyer reasonablybelieves is likely to result in death of, or substantial bodily harm to, an individual (Evid. Code § 956.5; see People v. Dang (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 1293, 1298-1299, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763).

[Optional] B. Lawyer-Client Privilege Is Inapplicable When Client Threatens to Kill or Seriously Harm Witnesses. The exception to the lawyer-client privilege provided by Evidence Code Section 956.5 applies to otherwise protected communications when the client threatens to dissuade a witness by force likely to result in death or serious bodily harm (People v. Dang (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 1293, 1298-1299, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a motion for an order compelling discovery if the party or other person has resisted providing discovery on the ground that the information sought is a privileged communication between lawyer and client, if the party moving to compel discovery contends that the privilege is inapplicable under the exception of Evid. Code § 956.5. That statute provides an exception to the privilege if the lawyer reasonably believes that disclosure of a confidential communication is necessary to prevent the client from committing a criminal act that the lawyer believes is likely to result in death or substantial bodily harm [Evid. Code § 956.5]. Effective July 1, 2004, the statute instead makes the exception applicable if the lawyer reasonably believes disclosure is necessary to prevent any criminal act that the lawyer reasonably believes is likely to result in death or substantial bodily harm to an individual [Evid. Code § 956.5, as amended effective July 1, 2004; see 2003 Stats., ch. 765 § 2]. This form may be modified and used to compel discovery of confidential communications between lawyer and client based on other statutory exceptions to the lawyer-client privilege [see Evid. Code §§ 956-962].

This form does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of compelling discovery, as well as with points and authorities refuting a claim of privilege generally.

The case discussed below was decided under the statute in effect before July 1, 2004.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, the form may be adapted for use when the lawyer reasonably believes that disclosure of a confidential communication relating to a client's representation is necessary to prevent the client from committing a criminal act likely to result in death or substantial bodily harm [see Evid. Code § 956.5; [a], above].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exception to Lawyer-Client Privilege Under Evidence Code Section 956.5 Applies When Necessary to Prevent Client from Committing Criminal Act Likely to Result in Death or Serious Bodily Harm

Evid. Code § 956.5 exempts certain communications from the scope of the attorney-client privilege. The exception applies when the lawyer reasonably believes that disclosure of any confidential communication relating to representation of a client is necessary to prevent a criminal act that the lawyer reasonably believes is likely to result in death of, or substantial bodily harm to, an individual (Evid. Code § 956.5; as amended effective July 1, 2004; see 2003 Stats., ch. 765 § 2; [a], above).

In People v. Dang (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 1293, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763 , defendant was charged with various felonies, after he beat his girlfriend and threatened to kill her and other witnesses if they reported his conduct to the police. Before trial, defendant told his attorney that he was going to try to "pay off" one or more witnesses and that he would "whack" the witnesses if he was not successful in bribing them. In a second conversation, defendant repeated his threats against witnesses and also threatened the attorney. Defendant's attorney reported these threats to the district attorney and was relieved as defendant's counsel. At trial, the former attorney testified about defendant's threats against the witnesses. On appeal, defendant argued, in part, that the testimony of his former attorney violated the attorney-client privilege and should have been excluded. The government argued that the testimony came within Evid. Code § 956.5 (as in effect before July 1, 2004; see [2][a], above). As a matter of first impression interpreting Evid. Code § 956.5 (as in effect before July 1, 2004; see [2][a], above), the court of appeal concluded that defendant's death threats clearly fell within that exception to the lawyer-client privilege.

The court of appeal rejected defendant's characterization of the threats as an attempt to "pay off one or more witnesses," rather than threats of death or physical harm. The court concluded that "the language of section 956.5 is plain" and that it applied to the threats made by defendant (93 Cal. App. 4th 1293, 1298) . The court noted a possible conflict between Evid. Code § 956.5 and Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e), which requires the attorney to "maintain inviolate the confidence, and at every peril to himself or herself to preserve the secrets, of his or her client." Because defendant did not raise this issue either in the trial court or on appeal, the court found it unnecessary to resolve this conflict. However, the court noted that Evid. Code § 956.5 is an evidentiary rule, while Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e) isa codified rule of conduct for attorneys. Other appellate cases have held that the duty of confidentiality under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(e) is modified by the exceptions to the attorney-client privilege codified in the Evidence Code (93 Cal. App. 4th 1293, 1298-1299) .

[b] Lawyer-Client Privilege Is Inapplicable When Client Threatens to Kill or Harm Witnesses

The facts and procedural background of People v. Dang (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 1293, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763 are discussed in § 81.70[3][a]. In a case of first impression interpreting Evid. Code § 956.5 (as in effect before July 1, 2004; see § 81.70[2][a]), the court of appeal held that defendant's statements to his attorney that he was going to try to "pay off" one or more witnesses, and that he would "whack" the witnesses if he were not successful in bribing them, clearly fell under the exception. Accordingly, the attorney's testimony about those statements was exempt from the lawyer-client privilege under Evid. Code § 956.5, (as in effect before July 1, 2004; see § 81.70[2][a]) because defendant threatened the witnesses with death if they testified (93 Cal. App. 4th 1293, 1298) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
B. Attorney-Client Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.71

§ 81.71 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code §§ 953(c), 954, Prob. Code § 12252]--Deceased Client's Personal Representative Is Only Person Authorized to Assert Privilege

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general memorandum in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as well as with memoranda generally refuting a claim of privilege (see, e.g., § 81.10)].

THE PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE OF A DECEASED CLIENT IS THE HOLDER OF THE DECEASED CLIENT'S LAWYER-CLIENT PRIVILEGE. NO OTHER PERSONS OR ENTITIES ARE AUTHORIZED BY STATUTE TO ASSERT THE LAWYER-CLIENT PRIVILEGE HELD BY THE DECEASED CLIENT, UNLESS THE PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE HAS AUTHORIZED SOME OTHER PERSON TO CLAIM THE PRIVILEGE.

A. Privilege May Be Claimed Only by Holder of Privilege or Person Authorized by Holder. In the context of this case, the lawyer-client privilege may be claimed only by (1) the holder of the privilege; (2) a person who is authorized to claim the privilege by the holder of the privilege; or (3) the person who was the lawyer at the time of the confidential communication unless there is no holder of the privilege in existence or the lawyer is otherwise instructed by a person authorized to permit disclosure [Evid Code § 954(a)].

B. Personal Representative of Deceased Client Is Sole Holder of Privilege. If the client is deceased, the holder of the privilege is the personal representative of the client, including a personal representative appointed under Probate Code Section 12252 for subsequent administration of the estate after the original personal representative was discharged. Except as provided in Evidence Code Section 954(c) with respect to the lawyer, no one else is authorized by statute to assert the privilege [Evid. Code § 953(c)].

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be used in support of a motion for an order compelling discovery when the person resisting discovery has asserted the attorney-client privilege, the client in question is deceased, and the person asserting the privilege is someone other than the decedent's personal representative, a person authorized by the personal representative, or the lawyer who originally was privy to the disclosure. The ground for compelling discovery in this situation is that the personal representative of a deceased client becomes the holder of the client's privilege under Evid. Code § 953(c) and, in the absence of a delegation to a third person, is the only person authorized to assert the privilege formerly held by the client.

This form is not a complete memorandum, but is designed to be combined with a general memorandum in supporting discovery and, if appropriate, refuting the claim of privilege generally.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the fact of the case. Specifically, counsel should assert that client who was originally holder of the privilege is now deceased (see Evid. Code § 953(c)), and that the person who is now attempting to assert the privilege is not the personal representative of the client's estate, nor a person to whom the personal representative has delegated authority to assert the privilege [see Evid. Code § 954(a), (b)] (Note that the statute does not seem fully clear on the question of whether a delegation of authority by the client to a third person during the client's lifetime would remain valid after the client's death.)

[3] Additional Authorities

[a] Personal Representative of Deceased Client Is Sole Holder of Privilege

In HLC Properties, Ltd. v. Superior Court (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 54, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 199, 105 P.3d 560 , a case concerning Bing Crosby's entertainment empire, the successor to Crosby's management company sued various recording companies for underpayment of royalties. The trial court held that Crosby was the client and the holder of the privilege and that the privilege terminated after his death. The court did not recognize Crosby's management company or its successor as a privilege holder. The court of appeal reversed, holding that the entity that was the legal successor of Crosby's management company was, under Evid. Code § 953(d), the holder of the attorney-client privilege that belonged to that business organization.

The Supreme Court held that the attorney-client privilege terminates under California law, once the client who is a natural person is deceased and his or her estate has been finally distributed and the personal representative discharged because there is no longer any holder authorized by statute to assert the privilege (35 Cal. 4th 54, 65-66) . Evid. Code § 953(c) states without qualification that the holder of a deceased client's attorney-client privilege is the client's personal representative. Evid. Code § 954 specifies that, except as otherwise provided by statute, the privilege may be claimed only by a holder of the privilege, by a person whom the holder authorizes to claim the privilege, or by the person who was the attorney at the time of the confidential communication, so long as a privilege holder exists and has not authorized disclosure. Taken together, these two sections unambiguously provide that, in the case of a deceased client, only a personal representative may claim the attorney-client privilege (35 Cal. 4th 54, 65-66) .

The record contained substantial evidence supporting the trial court's determination that a natural person, the decedent, was the original client who held the attorney-client privilege for the communications pertaining to the recording contracts at issue. The evidence also failed to show that the management company was the client of the named attorneys with interests of its own or its collective members to protect (35 Cal. 4th 54, 64) . Accordingly, when Crosby died, his privilege transferred to the executor of his estate and ceased to exist on the executor's discharge.

In arguing to the contrary, plaintiff (a limited partnership that was the legal successor of Bing Crosby's ongoing entertainment business organization) contended that, even assuming Crosby individually held the attorney-client privilege with respect to the documents in dispute, an estate also qualifies as an "organization" within the meaning of Evid. Code § 953(d), so that it is capable of holding and then validly transferring the decedent's privilege to a "successor." Plaintiff reasoned that because it acquired all of the estate's rights to Crosby's recordings pursuant to a limited partnership agreement, it validly held the privilege under Evid. Code § 953(d), as a successor to the estate (35 Cal. 4th 54, 66) .

The Court rejected plaintiff's argument that the term "organization," as it appears in Evid. Code § 953(d), includes an estate. Evid. Code § 953(c) unambiguously limits the holder of the attorney-client privilege in cases of a deceased client to the personal representative. Moreover, "estates are not listed and do not logically belong in section 953, subdivision (d), where provision is made for the privilege to survive when the client is not a natural person and no longer exists." Such an interpretation would nullify Evid. Code § 953's specific limitation on who may hold the privilege "if the client is dead" (35 Cal. 4th 54, 66-67) . Accordingly, the trial court correctly rejected plaintiff's claim of attorney attorney-client privilege with respect to the withheld documents, authored or received by persons Crosby had hired to help manage his business interests (35 Cal. 4th 54, 68) .

CAUTION:

The Supreme Court's holding above that the privilege ceased to exist on discharge of the personal representative appears to have been modified in part, or at least clarified, by the 2009 amendment to Evid. Code § 953(c) (Stats. 2009 ch. 8), which expanded that subsection to provide that the "holder of the privilege" of a deceased client includes a personal representative appointed pursuant to Prob. Code § 12252. Prob. Code § 12252 provides that a personal representative may be appointed after the personal representative has been discharged if subsequent administration of the estate becomes necessary because other property is discovered, or for some other reason. Thus, even if the attorney-client privilege ceases to exist on initial discharge of the personal representative, as held by the Supreme Court above, it may in effect be resurrected if it later becomes necessary to again appoint a personal representative to conduct subsequent administration. The Law Revision Commission comments to the 2009 amendment provide in part that "Subdivision (c) is amended to make clear that a personal representative holds the decedent's lawyer-client privilege at any time while the personal representative has duties as a personal representative, including, without limitation, during any subsequent estate administration."

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
B. Attorney-Client Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities §§ 81.72-81.79

[Reserved]

§§ 81.72[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
B. Attorney-Client Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.80

§ 81.80 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954] Applicable--General Form

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30), as well as with memoranda relating to resisting discovery on the grounds of privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.20).]

THE INFORMATION SOUGHT IS NOT DISCOVERABLE BECAUSE IT IS PRIVILEGED UNDER THE LAWYER-CLIENT PRIVILEGE.

A. Claimant of Privilege. The privilege may be claimed by (1) the holder of the privilege, that is, the client, a guardian or conservator of the client, the personal representative of a deceased client, or a successor, assign, trustee in dissolution, or any similar representative of a firm, association, organization, partnership, limited liability company, business trust, corporation, or public entity that is no longer in existence; (2) a person authorized to claim the privilege by the holder of the privilege; or (3) the person who was the lawyer at the time of the confidential communication (Evid. Code §§ 953, 954; see American Mut. Liab. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 579, 113 Cal. Rptr. 561).

B. Definition of Confidential Communication. A confidential communication between a client and lawyer means information transmitted between a client and his or her lawyer in the course of that relationship and in confidence by a means which, so far as the client is aware, discloses the information to no third persons other than those who are present to further the interest of the client in the consultation or to those to whom disclosure is reasonably necessary for the transmission of the information or the accomplishment of the purpose for which the lawyer is consulted, and includes a legal opinion formed and the advice given by the lawyer in the course of that relationship (Evid. Code § 952; see Insurance Co. of N. America v. Superior Court (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 758, 763-765, 166 Cal. Rptr. 880 ; In re Navarro (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 325, 328-329, 155 Cal. Rptr. 522).

C. Presumption of Confidentiality. When it is claimed that the matter sought to be disclosed is a communication made in the course of the lawyer-client relationship, the communication is presumed to have been made in confidence. The opponent of the claim of privilege has the burden of establishing that the communication was not confidential (Evid. Code § 917(a), Romo v. Southern Pac. Transportation Co. (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 909, 922, 139 Cal. Rptr. 787).

D. Privilege Bars Discovery of Confidential Communication Irrespective of Whether or Not It Includes Unprivileged Material. When the communication is a confidential one between attorney and client, the entire communication, including its recitation or summary of factual material, is privileged (Costco Wholesale Corp. v. Superior Court (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 725, 734, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 758, 219 P.3d 736).

[Optional] E. Identity of Clients Is Confidential. The identity of a lawyer's clients may be protected by the lawyer-client privilege when so much is already known of the lawyer-client relationship that to disclose a client's name would betray a confidential communication (Rosso, Johnson, Rosso & Ebersold v. Superior Court (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1514, 1518, 237 Cal. Rptr. 242).

[Optional] F. No Presumption of Nonconfidentiality for Electronic Communications. A communication between a client and his or her lawyer is not deemed lacking in confidentiality solely because the communication is transmitted by facsimile, cellular telephone, or other electronic means between the client and his or her lawyer (Evid. Code § 917(b)).

[Add points and authorities relating to the applicability of this privilege in the specific factual context (see, e.g., § 81.81 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum in opposition to a motion for an order compelling discovery may be submitted by a party or other person who has resisted providing discovery on the ground that the material sought is privileged as a confidential lawyer-client communication [see Evid. Code §§ 950-962]. It does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general memorandum in opposition to compelling discovery, as well as memoranda relating to the particular factual situation.

In an appropriate case, this memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the form set out in § 81.60.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Claimant of Privilege

Evid. Code § 954 states that a client has a privilege to refuse to disclose, and to prevent another from disclosing, a confidential communication between a client and a lawyer if the privilege is claimed by the persons set out in Paragraph A of this form. The holder of the privilege is defined in Evid. Code § 953 and may be a claimant of the privilege pursuant to Evid. Code § 954(a).

In American Mut. Liab. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 579, 113 Cal. Rptr. 561 , during trial of a medical malpractice action, the court ordered an attorney, who had been employed by defendant surgeon's insurance company to defend him against numerous malpractice claims, to produce his files from four of those actions. While the attorney had been attorney of record for the surgeon in the instant case, he had withdrawn after the surgeon had filed a malfeasance action against him. The surgeon's insurer unsuccessfully objected to the disclosure of the files, claiming attorney-client privilege, and sought a writ of mandate to vacate the disclosure order. In vacating the trial court's order, the court of appeal discussed the applicability of the privilege, concluding that in regard to the malpractice actions, the attorney had two clients, the surgeon and the insurer, and both were entitled to claim the privilege, and that the trial court erroneously concluded that the insurer was not a client but merely the employer of the attorney on defendant's behalf (38 Cal. App. 3d 579, 591-593) . For a discussion of this case as it relates to waiver of the privilege, see § 81.89[3][d].

[b] Definition of Confidential Communication

Insurance Co. of N. America v. Superior Court (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 758, 166 Cal. Rptr. 880 arose out of an action by an asbestos manufacturer against its products liability insurer, the insurer's parent holding company, and other affiliated companies for declaratory and other relief with respect to liability insurance coverage for asbestos-related claims. The insurer (petitioner herein) hired outside counsel to advise it on the claims and the extent of its insurance coverage. When counsel met with theinsurer, the vice-president in charge of the legal department of the parent holding company and the president of an affiliated subsidiary were in attendance. The manufacturer sought to discover the events, memorandums, notes, and conversations of the meeting, claiming the attorney-client privilege to be inapplicable because two outsiders were present at the meeting and attorney-client communications in the presence of third persons are not privileged. The trial court ordered discovery of the documents and testimony related to the meeting, reasoning that because outside counsel was hired only by the insurer, the presence at the meeting with the insurer's consent of the two officers from the other companies resulted in a waiver by the insurer of its attorney-client privilege.

On a petition for a writ of prohibition by the insurer, the court of appeal ordered a writ to issue prohibiting the trial court from enforcing its order and directing it to set the order aside. The court first held that the two officers were not outsiders to the insurer-subsidiary, that the confidentiality of the meeting was never breached, and that the legal communications remained privileged under Evid. Code § 952 in that the vice-president of the parent holding company attended in the capacity of legal consultant and adviser to the insurer and the president of the affiliate attended in the capacity of temporary employee and consultant to the insurer, and thus both furthered the insurer's interest in the consultation (108 Cal. App. 3d 758, 763-765).

On a broader issue, the court considered the question of whether an officer or employee of a holding or affiliated company can receive legal advice from counsel employed by a wholly owned subsidiary or affiliate without destroying the confidentiality of the attorney-client communication. The court considered it to be apparent that the authors of Evid. Code § 952 intended a comprehensive construction of the attorney-client privilege when they specified that neither disclosures to third persons present to further the interest of the client, nor disclosures to third persons that are reasonably necessary to transmit information or accomplish the purpose for which the attorney has been consulted, destroy confidentiality of communication (108 Cal. App. 3d 758, 766). Assuming that the president of the holding company was in attendance, the court stated that there was sufficient unity of interest and identity between the parent company and its wholly owned operating subsidiary to make the presence of a representative of the former at a legal briefing for representatives of the latter, one which furthers the interest of the client. The court applied similar reasoning to other representatives of the holding company and its affiliates who are present for good business reasons to further the interest of the client. Thus, the court held that absent some conflict of interest or some evidence of antagonism among entities, disclosure of counsel's legal opinion to holding company and affiliated company officers and employees who need to know this information in order to perform their duties properly is adisclosure that is reasonably necessary to accomplish the purpose for which counsel have been consulted, and is privileged. The court concluded, at least in the instance of wholly owned subsidiaries and affiliates, that the presence of a representative of a parent or affiliated company at a legal briefing of a subsidiary, and vice versa, does not destroy confidentiality of communication between counsel and client (108 Cal. App. 3d 758, 766-770).

The court also held that disclosures of legal advice and opinion by written or oral communication to those persons to whom such information is reasonably necessary to accomplish the purpose of the legal consultation remain confidential, even though the recipients have not been briefed by counsel in person. Thus, the court construed Evid. Code § 952 to mean that attorney-client communications in the presence of, or disclosed to, clerks, secretaries, interpreters, physicians, spouses, parents, business associates, or joint clients, when made to further the interest of the client or when reasonably necessary for transmission or accomplishment of the purpose of the consultation, remain confidential (108 Cal. App. 3d 758, 770, 771). The court noted that a discussion of corporate policy, as opposed to legal advice, is not confidential, and that the boundary lines between the two fields must be settled by the trier of fact during the course of discovery (108 Cal. App. 3d 758, 770-771).

In In re Navarro (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 325, 155 Cal. Rptr. 522 , an attorney representing a defendant in a robbery case was called to testify at a preliminary hearing in which the same defendant was charged with murder but was being represented by a different attorney. Asserting the attorney-client privilege, the attorney refused to disclose whether she had shown a specific arrest report for robbery, the contents of which might have provided a motive for the murder, to defendant. The magistrate found that the privilege was not applicable and held the attorney in contempt. The superior court granted a writ of habeas corpus and discharged the contempt order. On appeal by the municipal court, the court of appeal affirmed, holding that the lawyer's act of handing a police report to her client, if in fact she had done so, was a confidential communication privileged under Evid. Code § 952 because a "communication" need not be exclusively verbal but may be signs, actions, or other means (93 Cal. App. 3d 325, 330).

The court in Navarro, in addition to relying on Evid. Code § 952, cited San Francisco v. Superior Court of San Francisco (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 227, 235236, 231 P.2d 26 , a personal injury action, as authority (93 Cal. App. 3d 325, 330). Although the latter case was decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1881(2), and the attorney-client privilege is now governed by Evid. Code §§ 950-962, the rule that a "communication" need not be exclusively verbal in order to be confidential is nevertheless still effective. For a discussion of the facts and procedural history of City & County of San Francisco, see § 81.60[3][a].

[c] Presumption of Confidentiality

In Romo v. Southern Pac. Transportation Co. (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 909, 139 Cal. Rptr. 787 , a jury trial resulted in a verdict for defendant in an action for damages suffered in a railroad crossing accident when plaintiff's car was struck by a train. On appeal, plaintiff claimed, among other things, that the trial court had erred in denying, in part, his motion to inspect or have produced the files of a special committee established by defendant to reorganize its records of railroad crossing accidents. The trial court reviewed the files in camera and ruled that they were protected by the attorney-client privilege. In affirming, the court of appeal concluded that plaintiff had offered no evidence to disprove defendant's claim of privilege and therefore had not sustained its burden of establishing lack of confidentiality. In such a case, the court of appeal could not require in camera disclosure of the material in order to rule on the privilege claim (71 Cal. App. 3d 909, 922).

[d] Privilege Bars Discovery of Confidential Communication Irrespective of Whether or Not It Includes Unprivileged Material

In Costco Wholesale Corp. v. Superior Court (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 725, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 758, 219 P.3d 736 , petitioner, a corporation defending a wage and hour claim brought by employees, sought mandate relief from an court order directing the corporation to produce an opinion letter written by outside counsel to the corporation's in-house attorneys. A referee had redacted the letter, concluding that parts of the communication were not privileged because they involved factual information about various employees' job responsibilities based on nonprivileged documents and interviews with two of the corporation's managers. The court of appeal denied the writ, holding that the unredacted portions of the letter--factual statements that did not reveal strategy or communicate any legal knowledge, advice, or impressions--were protected by neither the attorney-client privilege nor work product protection (47 Cal. 4th 725, 731) .

The California Supreme Court reversed the judgment of the court of appeal and remanded with directions to vacate the trial court's discovery order and to remand the case to the trial court for further proceedings (47 Cal. 4th 725, 741) . The Court held that the attorney-client privilege attached to the attorney's opinion letter in its entirety because the opinion letter was a confidential communication as defined in Evid. Code § 952, irrespective of whether it included unprivileged material (47 Cal. 4th 725, 734) . Because Evid. Code § 915 prohibits a trial court from ordering disclosure of a communication claimed to be privileged in order to rule on the claim of privilege, the trial court erred in ordering in camera review (47 Cal. 4th 725, 732) . Moreover, the corporation, as the party seeking extraordinary relief from a discovery order that wrongfully invaded the attorney-client relationship, did not need to establish that its case would be harmed by disclosure of the evidence (47 Cal. 4th 725, 732) .

The Court clarified that Evid. Code § 915(a) does not prohibit:

- Disclosure or examination of other information to permit the court to evaluate the basis for a claim of privilege, for example, whether the privilege is held by the party asserting it (47 Cal. 4th 725, 737) .

- Review of the facts asserted as the basis for the privilege to determine, for example, whether the attorney-client relationship existed at the time the communication was made, whether the client intended the communication to be confidential, or whether the communication emanated from the client (47 Cal. 4th 725, 737) .

- Voluntary disclosure of the communication in camera, by the party claiming the privilege, to prevent the court from ordering disclosure of private information bearing no relevance to the litigation (47 Cal. 4th 725, 738) .

- In camera disclosure of the content of a communication by the party claiming a privilege, to respond to an argument or tentative decision that the communication is not privileged (Morse v. Frederick, 127 S. Ct. 2618 (2007) .

The Court added that after a court has determined the privilege is waived or an exception applies generally, the court--to protect the claimant's privacy--may conduct or order an in camera review of the communication at issue to determine if some protection is warranted notwithstanding the waiver or exception (47 Cal. 4th 725, 740) .

[e] Identity of Clients Is Confidential

In Rosso, Johnson, Rosso & Ebersold v. Superior Court (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1514, 237 Cal. Rptr. 242 , in response to an advertisement placed by defendant attorneys, in which they claimed expertise with injuries sustained through the use of intrauterine devices, plaintiff contacted defendants. After reviewing plaintiff's case, defendants refused to take it, advising her of the need to contact another attorney promptly if she wished to pursue the case. Plaintiff retained another firm, which filed suit against defendants, alleging they had missed the applicable statute of limitations. Plaintiff requested production of defendants' client list of intrauterine device cases. Defendants refused, claiming the lawyer-client privilege. After the trial court granted plaintiff's motion to compel disclosure, defendants filed a petition of writ of mandate or prohibition to restrain the court from requiring disclosure.

The court of appeal issued a peremptory writ of mandate directing the trial court to vacate its discovery order (191 Cal. App. 3d 1514, 1519). The court said that generally, the identity of an attorney's clients is not protected by the lawyer-client privilege. However, in unusual situations, as when so much is already known of the lawyer-client relationship that to disclose a client's name would betray a confidential communication, the identity of a client may be treated as privileged information (191 Cal. App. 3d 1514, 1518). The court observed that the client list consisted of women who were suffering injuries arising from the use of an intrauterine device, and that revealing their names would reveal the nature of their medical problems, which are considered confidential communications. The court concluded that since disclosure of the list would reveal the problem of the client, disclosure of the list revealing the identity of the clients should not be allowed either (191 Cal. App. 3d 1514, 1519).

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Claimant of Privilege

In Venture Law Group v. Superior Court (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 96, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 656 , a law firm and a former firm attorney filed a writ petition for relief from the trial court's discovery order compelling the attorney to answer deposition questions asked by real parties in interest about the legal advice given to the law firm's corporate client regarding a merger. Petitioners contended that the successor corporation was the holder of the attorney-client privilege of the merged client corporation, and because the successor corporation had not waived the privilege, the attorney could not answer the deposition questions without violating the privilege. The court of appeal agreed, and issued a peremptory writ of mandate to vacate the discovery order. Evid. Code § 953(d) provides that the successor of a disappeared corporation becomes the holder of the attorney-client privilege. Thus, after the merger, the attorney-client privilege belonged to the successor corporation, and petitioner attorney had a duty to assert the privilege in the absence of any contrary instructions from the successor corporation (118 Cal. App. 4th 96, 105-106).

In Mylan Lab., Inc. v. Soon-Shiong (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 71, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 111 , appellants challenged, among other things, an order denying their motion to intervene. Appellants had sought intervention in order to become parties to the action so that they would have "standing" to assert the attorney-client privilege and the work-product doctrine with respect to a document sought by plaintiff. The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order denying the motion, holding that appellants had standing to assert the attorney-client privilege based solely on their claimed status as holder of the privilege; they did not have to intervene as a party in order to assert any claim of privilege (76 Cal. App. 4th 71, 73-74, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 111). Moreover, the court concluded that intervention as a party was never intended to be used as a means by which a non-party could assert the attorney-client privilege. In so holding, the court relied on the language of Evid. Code § 954, which expressly provides that the privilege can be claimed by a non-party as long as the non-party asserting the privilege is the client or other authorized person, as well as on sound policy reasons to avoid the cumbersome and expensive process of intervention in this context (76 Cal. App. 4th 71, 79-80, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 111).

In Kroll & Tract v. Paris & Paris (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1537, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 78 , an attorney sued for malpractice by a former client cross-complained against the client's successor attorney for comparative equitable indemnity. The court of appeals affirmed the trial court's order sustaining the demurrer without leave to amend on the grounds that public policy considerations barred the requested relief. In so holding, the court rejected cross-complainant's argument that the fear of revealing confidences should not bar its cross-complaint because the commencement of the malpractice action as to one attorney should operate as a waiver of the attorney-client privilege as to both attorneys regarding communications relevant to the joint representation. The court explained that the client is the holder of the attorney-client privilege, and that the client expressly preserved the privilege as to its successor attorney by choosing not to sue it for malpractice (72 Cal. App. 4th 1537, 1544, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 78). The court added that if the indemnity action were allowed, the successor attorney would be unable to defend itself to the extent that its actions depended on client communications (72 Cal. App. 4th 1537, 1544, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 78).

[b] Definition of Confidential Communication

In Zurich Am. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 1485, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 833 , the court of appeal held that confidential communications between an insurer's employees regarding legal advice and strategy could be privileged, because confidential communications under Evid. Code § 952 includes information transmitted to persons to whom disclosure was reasonably necessary to further the interest of the litigant. Thus, even if the insurer's attorneys were not directly involved, and the documents did not include excerpts of direct communications from the attorneys, communications reflecting a discussion of litigation strategy and expressing that the strategy was in response to advice of counsel would come within the privilege (155 Cal. App. 4th 1485, 1502-1504). The court remanded the case to determine whether employees with whom advice of counsel was shared came within these principles (155 Cal. App. 4th 1485, 1503-1504) .

The facts and procedural background of OXY Resources California LLC v. Superior Court (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 874 are discussed in § 81.65[4][a]. There, the court of appeal held that when parties negotiating a business transaction entered into a joint defense agreement in anticipation of litigation by a third party, in camera review was required to determine whether the disclosure of the documents in the course of the transaction waived the attorney-client privilege or work product protection (115 Cal. App. 4th 874, 879). While the joint defense agreement was not void as matter of public policy, it could not serve as sole ground for withholding the documents. Rather, the agreement evidenced the expectation of confidentiality necessary to avoid waiver by disclosure to someone outside the attorney-client relationship, but could not protect the documents from disclosure unless they contained or reflected attorney-client communications or attorney work product (115 Cal. App. 4th 874, 893).

In Roberts v. City of Palmdale (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 363, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 330, 853 P.2d 496 , the Supreme Court held that the attorney-client privilege applies to communications made in the course of professional employment that are intended to be confidential (5 Cal. 4th 363, 371). The privilege has a strong basis in public policy and the administration of justice in that it seeks to ensure the right of every person to freely and fully confer and confide in an attorney so that that person may have adequate legal advice (5 Cal. 4th 363, 380). For further discussion of Roberts, see § 81.81[3][a].

In De Los Santos v. Superior Court (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 677, 166 Cal. Rptr. 172, 613 P.2d 233 , a minor had made statements to his mother, who was also his guardian ad litem for the lawsuit, in response to questions she asked at the request of the minor's attorney for the purpose of preparing the minor's answers to the interrogatories propounded by defendants or to assist the attorney in preparing for trial. The Supreme Court stated that the statements were given in the course of a lawyer-client relationship and were intended to be confidential. The Court also agreed with plaintiffs' contention that the mother, in her capacity as guardian ad litem, was a third party to whomcommunication was reasonably necessary for the transmission of the information to the lawyer, or the accomplishment of the purpose for which the lawyer was consulted under Evid. Code § 952, and that the statements were protected whether or not all of the minor's remarks were communicated in full to his lawyer (27 Cal. 3d 677, 683, 685). De Los Santos is discussed further in § 81.89[3][e].

Benge v. Superior Court (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 336, 182 Cal. Rptr. 275 arose out of an action by union members for damages resulting from lead poisoning. Defendant in the action obtained a trial court order compelling plaintiffs to respond to deposition questions regarding their discussions with other union members and attorneys at meetings held before commencement of the action. Plaintiffs and the other union members attended the meetings to obtain legal advice on their workers' compensation rights. At the first meeting, additional legal advice was given concerning plaintiffs' legal rights against third parties relative to the lead poisoning. The court of appeal issued a writ of mandate setting aside the trial court order, holding that the attorney-client privilege protected all communications made at the meetings concerning the alleged lead dust (131 Cal. App. 3d 336, 348).

In Lohman v. Superior Court (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 90, 146 Cal. Rptr. 171 , an action for breach of trust, personal injury, and fraud by a conservatee against her temporary conservator and his attorney, the court of appeal held that answers given at a deposition by the plaintiff's former attorney, over plaintiff's objections, should be suppressed as violative of the attorney-client privilege (81 Cal. App. 3d 90, 99). The answers, regarding the deponent's opinions relating to the culpability of the defendants and his interpretation of the Probate Code, constituted a legal opinion under the Evid. Code § 952 definition of a confidential communication, which includes legal opinions formed and advice given by a lawyer in the course of the lawyer-client relationship (81 Cal. App. 3d 90, 99). For a more detailed discussion of the facts and procedural history of Lohman, see § 81.89[3][a].

In Sheets v. Superior Court (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 1, 64 Cal. Rptr. 753 , an action for injunctive relief, dissolution of a partnership, an accounting, and damages for breach of the partnership agreement and fraud, the court of appeal found that plaintiff's attorney's analysis and evaluation of the report of a certified public accountant who examined the partnership books was, as distinguished from the accountant's report itself, part of the advice given by plaintiff's lawyer to his client in the course of his professional relationship within Evid. Code § 952 and therefore was a privileged communication (257 Cal. App. 2d 1, 10). For a more detailed discussion of the facts and procedural history of Sheets, see § 81.61[3][a].

[c] Presumption of Confidentiality

In Hiott v. Superior Court (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 712, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 157 , the court found that the lawyer-client privilege applied to a videotaped communication between a personal injury victim and her brother who was a lawyer made while she was in the hospital following the accident. Although there was nothing in the record indicating whether the plaintiff believed an attorney-client relationship existed at that time or whether she considered their communication confidential, such beliefs could be inferred from the circumstances surrounding their videotaped communication (16 Cal. App. 4th 712, 717-718). But note that although the videotaped communication was protected, the court held that plaintiff waived the protection (16 Cal. App. 4th 712, 719-720) .

In Rockwell Internat. Corp. v. Superior Court (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1255, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 153 , the court held that the presumption of confidentiality regarding a communication made in the course of a lawyer-client relationship is not established by a standard cooperation clause in a third-party liability insurance policy (26 Cal. App. 4th 1255, 1261-1266) .

[d] Identity of Clients Is Confidential

In Tien v. Superior Court (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 528, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 121 , a putative class action lawsuit alleging wage and hour violations, petitioner employee brought a writ proceeding to challenge the Superior Court's order requiring disclosure to the real party in interest employer of the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of all putative class members who contacted the employees' counsel. The court of appeal concluded that the trial court's discovery order did not violate the attorney-client privilege. "It is well established that the attorney-client privilege, designed to protect communications between them, does not ordinarily protect the client's identity[], and, in this case, no personal, confidential information was requested" (139 Cal. App. 4th 528, 537) . However, discovery would violate the privacy rights of class members whose identities were disclosed, because they had a significant interest in maintaining their privacy, and the employer had no compelling need to learn their identities (139 Cal. App. 4th 528, 540-541) . For discussion of other aspects of this case, see § 81.253[4][a].

In Hooser v. Superior Court (2001) 84 Cal. App. 4th 997, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341 , the court of appeal considered whether a judgment debtor who is an attorney must disclose certain client information in judgment debtor examination, including a list of the attorney's current clients. The attorney relied on the attorney-client privilege and his clients' rights of privacy as the bases for refusing to respond to judgment creditor's discovery requests (84 Cal. App. 4th 997, 1003). Generally, the identity of an attorney's client is not within the protection of the attorney-client privilege. As the attorney made no argument that a recognized exception to this rule applied in his case, the court concluded that the attorney-client privilege did not apply to prevent disclosure of the identities of the attorney's clients (84 Cal. App. 4th 997, 1005). However, the court also concluded that the identity of an attorney's clients is sensitive, personal information that implicates the clients' rights of privacy (84 Cal. App. 4th 997, 1005).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
B. Attorney-Client Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.81

§ 81.81 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954] Applicable--Communication When No Litigation Is Threatened

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery:Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30), as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the grounds of privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.20), and relating to the attorney-client privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.80).]

THE INFORMATION SOUGHT TO BE DISCOVERED IS PROTECTED BY THE ATTORNEY-CLIENT PRIVILEGE BECAUSE IT WAS CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION BETWEEN _____ [name], AN ATTORNEY, AND HIS/HER CLIENT _____ [name], EVEN THOUGH NO LITIGATION WAS THREATENED IN THE MATTER.

A. Privilege Applies Although No Litigation Is Threatened. The attorney-client privilege applies to confidential communications between an attorney and his or her client, even though no litigation is threatened in the matter (Roberts v. City of Palmdale (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 363, 371, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 330, 853 P.2d 496).

[Optional] B. Open Meeting Requirements Do Not Require Disclosure of City Attorney's Letter to City Council. A city attorney's legal advice given by letter to a city council is not required to be disclosed under the Public Records Act (Gov. Code § 6250 et seq.) or the Brown Act (Gov. Code § 54950 et seq.). The language in Government Code Section 54956.9 abrogating the attorney-client privilege applies to open meeting requirements only, and does not regulate the transmission of documents such as a city attorney's letter (Roberts v. City of Palmdale (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 363, 373-381, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 330, 853 P.2d 496).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted by a party or other person resisting discovery on the ground that disclosure is not required simply because no litigation is threatened in the matter. This memorandum is designed to be combined with a general memorandum in opposition to discovery, as well as with points and authorities generally relating to the application of privileges and to the attorney-client privilege.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Privilege Applies Although No Litigation Is Threatened

In Roberts v. City of Palmdale (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 363, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 330, 853 P.2d 496 , the Supreme Court held that the attorney-client privilege applies to communications made in the course of professional employment that are intended to be confidential (5 Cal. 4th 363, 371). The privilege applies not only to communications made in anticipation of litigation, but also to legal advice when no litigation is threatened (5 Cal. 4th 363, 37) . The privilege has a strong basis in public policy and the administration of justice in that it seeks to ensure the right of every person to freely and fully confer and confide in an attorney so that that person may have adequate legal advice (5 Cal. 4th 363, 380). The Court held that public entities have the right to assert the privilege (5 Cal. 4th 363, 370-371). It concluded that a letter the city attorney prepared for the city council in which the attorney expressed legal opinions concerning a resident's pending appeal of a parcel map was a confidential communication within the attorney-client privilege, even if the letter was not a document pertaining to pending litigation (5 Cal. 4th 363, 373). Disclosure of the letter was not required under the Public Records Act (Gov. Code § 6250 et seq.) or under the Brown Act (Gov. Code § 54950 et seq.). The language in Gov. Code § 54956.9 abrogating the attorney-client privilege applies to open meeting requirements only, and does not regulate the transmission of documents such as the city attorney's letter (5 Cal. 4th 363, 373-381).

[b] Open Meeting Requirements Do Not Require Disclosure of City Attorney's Letter to City Council

Roberts v. City of Palmdale (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 363, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 330, 853 P.2d 496 is discussed in [a], above.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Open Meeting Requirements Do Not Require Disclosure of City Attorney's Letter to City Council

At issue in Shapiro v. Bd. of Directors of the Centre City Dev. Corp. (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 170, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 826 was whether the Brown Act, California's open meeting law, allowed a nonprofit corporation created by the city of San Diego to hold closed-session meetings with legal counsel for the city Redevelopment Agency to assist the Agency with its eminent domain litigation. Gov. Code § 54956.9 permits the legislative body of a local agency to hold closed-session meetings with its legal counsel to discuss litigation to which it is a party. The trial court concluded that the non-profit was acting on behalf of the Agency with respect to the eminent domain litigation and thus could meet in closed session with the Agency's counsel under the closed-session rules applicable to the Agency. The court of appeal disagreed. It held that, under the plain language of the Brown Act, the non-profit could not meet in closed session with the Agency's counsel to discuss pending litigation to which the non-profit was not a party (134 Cal. App. 4th 170, 174). The appellate court reasoned that it was constrained to narrowly interpret exceptions to the Brown Act's open meeting requirements, and the Brown Act does not expressly authorize one local agency to delegate to a second local agency the authority to meet in closed session with legal counsel (134 Cal. App. 4th 170, 185).

In County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (Union of American Physicians and Dentists) (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1099, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 708 , the superior court had granted the county's motion to compel production of documents listed in a third-party deposition subpoena directed to the district attorney, who had conducted an investigation into whether the county board of supervisors violated the Brown Act during two closed sessions. The court of appeal reversed, holding that closed session minutes are specifically exempt from disclosure under Gov. Code § 54957.2. Although closed session minutes may be disclosed "to a court of general jurisdiction wherein the local agency lies" for the limited purpose of allowing the court to determine whether aBrown Act violation has occurred, here, the closed sessions were properly convened under Gov. Code § 54956.9 to discuss anticipated litigation related to a federal agency's decision to terminate a medical center's Medicare and Medi-Cal funding. Thus, the minutes of the closed sessions were confidential and were not subject to discovery (130 Cal. App. 4th 1099, 1106).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
B. Attorney-Client Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.82

§ 81.82 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954] Applicable--Communication Before Actual Employment of Lawyer as Privileged

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30), as wellas with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the grounds of privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.20), and relating to the attorney-client privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.80).]

INFORMATION ACQUIRED BY _____ [name], A LAWYER, IN THE COURSE OF INTERVIEWS OR NEGOTIATIONS LOOKING TOWARD HIS/HER EMPLOYMENT IS PRIVILEGED, EVEN THOUGH NO ACTUAL EMPLOYMENT FOLLOWED.

Communication Before Actual Employment of Lawyer. When a person consults a lawyer, with a view to employing him or her professionally, any information acquired by the lawyer in the course of interviews or negotiations looking toward such employment is privileged and cannot be disclosed, even though no actual employment of the lawyer, as such, follows (People v. Canfield (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 699, 705, 117 Cal. Rptr. 81, 527 P.2d 633 ; Sullivan v. Superior Court (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 64, 69, 105 Cal. Rptr. 241).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities in opposition to a motion for an order compelling discovery may be submitted by a party or other person who has resisted providing discovery on the ground that disclosure of a confidential communication between an attorney and a prospective client is privileged. It does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to compelling discovery, as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the ground of privilege and relating to the attorney-client privilege generally.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in § 81.61.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Communication Before Actual Employment of Lawyer

In People v. Canfield (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 699, 117 Cal. Rptr. 81, 527 P.2d 633 , a criminal case, the Supreme Court relied on Sullivan, below, in regardto the application of the privilege before employment as counsel, in discussing the extent of the attorney-client privilege (12 Cal. 3d 699, 705).

In Sullivan v. Superior Court (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 64, 105 Cal. Rptr. 241 , the trial court ordered one of the plaintiffs in a personal injury action to produce a transcription of a tape-recorded conference with her attorney that the plaintiff had used to refresh her memory before the taking of her deposition. The court of appeal granted the petition of plaintiff's attorney for a writ to prohibit enforcement of the order to produce, holding that Evid. Code § 771, requiring a witness to produce, on request, any writing used to refresh his memory for testifying, could not be construed as applicable to a transcription of a client's discussion with her attorney concerning an accident for which she was employing the attorney's legal services. In discussing the attorney-client privilege, the court stated that when a person consults an attorney with a view to employing that attorney professionally, any information acquired by the attorney in the course of interviews or negotiations looking toward such employment is privileged and cannot be disclosed, even though no actual employment of the attorney as such follows (29 Cal. App. 3d 64, 69).

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Communication Before Actual Employment of Lawyer

The facts and procedural background of Benge v. Superior Court (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 336, 182 Cal. Rptr. 275 are discussed in § 81.80[4][b]. The court of appeal held that the attorney-client privilege protected all communications made at meetings between union members and attorneys held before the commencement of the action. The members' legal rights concerning alleged lead poisoning were discussed at these meetings. The court stated that since the members were seeking legal advice, the fact that they did not intend to retain counsel when they went to the first meeting or that the attorneys at the meeting did not represent the members who eventually brought suit was irrelevant, since a person may discuss a problem with an attorney for the purpose of obtaining legal advice, and the discussion is privileged even though no actual employment ensues (131 Cal. App. 3d 336, 347).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
B. Attorney-Client Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.83

§ 81.83 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954] Applicable--Failure to Establish Joint-Client Relationship [Evid. Code § 962] by Showing Actual Employment of Lawyer

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30), as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the grounds of privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.20), and relating to the attorney-client privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.80).]

COMMUNICATIONS WITH AN ATTORNEY REMAIN PROTECTED UNDER THE LAWYER-CLIENT PRIVILEGE WHEN THERE IS NO SHOWING THAT THE ATTORNEY WAS ACTUALLY EMPLOYED CONCERNING MATTERS OF COMMON INTEREST SO AS TO ESTABLISH A JOINT-CLIENT RELATIONSHIP.

Joint-Client Relationship Not Established When No Showing of Attorney's Actual Employment. Confidential communications between one person and an attorney concerning a matter of common interest with a second person remain protected under the lawyer-client privilege in a subsequent action between the two persons, or their assignees, when there is no showing that the attorney was actually employed by the first person to handle the common matter so as to establish a joint-client relationship (see Houston Gen. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 958, 966-967, 166 Cal. Rptr. 904).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities opposing a motion for an order compelling discovery may be submitted by a party who has resisted discovery on the ground that the material sought is privileged as a confidential attorney-client communication, when the party moving to compel discovery has contended that the joint-client exception [see Evid. Code § 962] to the lawyer-client privilege applies. This form does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to compelling discovery, as wellas with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the ground of privilege and relating to the attorney-client privilege generally.

In an appropriate case, these memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a motion to compel discovery supported by the points and authorities set out in § 81.63.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Joint-Client Relationship Not Established When No Showing of Attorney's Actual Employment

Houston Gen. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 958, 166 Cal. Rptr. 904 arose out of a personal injury action by a homeowner against a construction company for alleged negligence in construction of the home. Defense of the action was initially assumed by one insurance company, which tendered the defense to petitioner in this proceeding when it was revealed that petitioner had insured the construction company. Petitioner disclaimed coverage and refused to defend but did contact an attorney concerning its obligation to defend the action against its insured. Judgment was entered against the construction company, and its assignee, the homeowner, filed an action against petitioner seeking damages for bad-faith refusal to defend. The homeowner sought to discover excised portions of its file activity log kept by petitioner containing notes of telephone conversations between petitioner and the attorney it had contacted. The homeowner, citing the joint-client exception to the lawyer-client privilege contained in Evid. Code § 962, argued that the attorney was consulted by petitioner on a matter of common interest between his assignor and petitioner, and thus petitioner could not claim the privilege because the communications were to be offered in a civil proceeding between joint clients. The trial court ordered production of the excised portions of the log. Petitioner then sought a writ of mandate to have the order vacated.

The court of appeal directed that a peremptory writ of mandate be issued compelling the trial court to set aside its order compelling discovery of the excised portions of the log. After reviewing the depositions of the attorneys for the insurance companies involved and the rest of the record, the court stated it was apparent that the lawyer-client privilege protected confidential communications between the attorney and petitioner before petitioner's acceptance of its obligation under the policy and its employment of an attorney to defend the action filed against its insured. Although theattorney was consulted with respect to the action filed against the construction company, and gave advice to petitioner, the record contained no evidence that the attorney in question or any other attorney was employed by petitioner to defend the action. While the log stated that petitioner's employees had agreed to assign the case to the attorney contacted, there was no evidence that it was ever referred to that person except for an opinion (108 Cal. App. 3d 958, 964-966). The court distinguished Glacier Gen. Assurance Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 836, 157 Cal. Rptr. 435 (discussed in § 81.63[3][a]), in which the underlying action was based on a claim of bad-faith failure to settle a claim within the policy limits. It was clear from the facts of Glacier that the insurance company had engaged the services of a law firm to represent its insured in litigation that had proceeded to judgment, and thus any communication with the lawyer employed to defend the insured concerning the handling of the claim was necessarily a matter of common interest to both the insured and the insurer (108 Cal. App. 3d 958, 966). In this action, the homeowner had not met his burden of establishing that the communications between petitioner and the attorney were not confidential. There was no showing that the attorney was ever employed by petitioner to defend its insured. Consequently, the tripartite relationship that would have imposed on the attorney the dual obligation to the insured and to the insurer never materialized, and under Evid. Code § 952, the legal opinion formed and the advice given by the attorney to petitioner in the course of their lawyer-client relationship was clearly privileged (108 Cal. App. 3d 958, 967).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
B. Attorney-Client Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.84

§ 81.84 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954] Applicable--Communication by Nondefendant Corporate Employee as Privileged Under Facts

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30), as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the grounds of privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.20), and relating to the attorney-client privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.80).]

THE COMMUNICATION BY THE NONDEFENDANT CORPORATE EMPLOYEE IS NOT DISCOVERABLE BECAUSE IT IS PRIVILEGED UNDER THE LAWYER-CLIENT PRIVILEGE.

A. Corporation Entitled to Same Lawyer-Client Privilege as Natural Person. The public policy behind the lawyer-client privilege requires that an artificial person be given equal opportunity with a natural person to communicate with its lawyer, within the professional relationship, without fear that its communication will be made public (D.I. Chadbourne, Inc. v. Superior Court (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 723, 736, 36 Cal. Rptr. 468, 388 P.2d 700 ; Rodriguez v. North American Rockwell Corp. (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 441, 449, 104 Cal. Rptr. 678 ; see Evid. Code §§ 175, 951).

B. Communication Privileged When Information Emanates From Corporation. When the employee of a defendant corporation is not a codefendant or person who may be charged with liability, the employee's communication is privileged when, under all the circumstances of the case, he or she is a natural person to be speaking for the corporation, or in other words, the communication constitutes information that emanates from the corporation as distinguished from the employee, and the employee is a person who would ordinarily be used for communication to the corporation's lawyer (D.I. Chadbourne, Inc. v. Superior Court (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 723, 736-737, 36 Cal. Rptr. 468, 388 P.2d 700 ; Sierra Vista Hospital v. Superior Court (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 359, 366-367, 56 Cal. Rptr. 387).

C. Employee's Statement as Statement of Corporate Employer. When the employee's connection with the subject matter of the statement grows out of his or her employment to the extent that his or her report or statement is required in the ordinary course of the corporation's business, the employee is no longer an independent witness, and the employee's statement or report is that of the employer (D.I. Chadbourne, Inc. v. Superior Court (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 723, 737, 36 Cal. Rptr. 468, 388 P.2d 700 ; Kerns Constr. Co. v. Superior Court (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 405, 412, 72 Cal. Rptr. 74).

D. Applicability of Privilege to Corporate Employee's Communication Determined by Employer's Dominant Purpose. If a corporate employer requires the employee to make a report or other communication regarding the subject matter of a claim, the privilege of that communication is determined by the employer's dominant purpose in requiring it, unless a secondary purpose has resulted in a waiver of confidentiality. Thus, if the employer directs the making of the communication for confidential transmittal to its lawyer, it may be privileged (D.I. Chadbourne, Inc. v. Superior Court (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 723, 737, 36 Cal. Rptr. 468, 388 P.2d 700 ; Scripps Health v. Superior Court (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 529, 533, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126 ; Payless Drug Stores, Inc. v. Superior Court (1976) 54 Cal. App. 3d 988, 991, 127 Cal. Rptr. 4).

[Optional] E. Employee's Communication Privileged Although Obtained by Employer's Agent. If otherwise privileged, a corporate employee's communication does not lose its privilege because it was obtained, with the knowledge and consent of the employer, by an agent of the employer acting under such agency (D.I. Chadbourne, Inc. v. Superior Court (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 723, 737, 36 Cal. Rptr. 468, 388 P.2d 700 ; Sierra Vista Hospital v. Superior Court (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 359, 367, 56 Cal. Rptr. 387).

[Optional] F. There Is No Shareholder Exception to Lawyer-Client Privilege. Although shareholders have some rights to corporate information that are not enjoyed by the general public, they do not have unfettered access to corporate confidences and secrets. There is no shareholder exception to the corporate lawyer-client privilege. A lawyer representing a corporation does not become the representative of its stockholders merely because the lawyer's actions on behalf of the corporation also benefit the stockholders; as lawyer for the corporation, counsel's first duty is to the corporation (National Football League Properties, Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 100, 107-108, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 893).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form in opposition to a motion for an order compelling discovery may be submitted by a party or other person who has resisted providing discovery on the ground that the material sought is privileged as a confidential communication between a corporate employer and its attorney, although made or prepared by a nonparty corporate employee. It does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to compelling discovery, as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the ground of privilege and relating to the attorney-client privilege generally.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in § 81.64.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Corporation Entitled to Same Lawyer-Client Privilege as Natural Person

The facts and procedural background of D.I. Chadbourne, Inc. v. Superior Court (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 723, 36 Cal. Rptr. 468, 388 P.2d 700 are set out in § 81.64[3][a]. In Chadbourne, plaintiffs sought damages for personal injury resulting from a fall on defendant corporation's sidewalk and moved for an order allowing inspection of a written statement obtained from a corporate employee who had performed work on the sidewalk involved. The trial court ordered inspection and copying of the statement, and defendant sought a writ of mandate to prevent it. The court of appeal denied defendant's petition on the ground that, inter alia, there was no showing that defendant corporation intended that its employee's statement be transmitted to its attorney in confidence, or otherwise; thus, defendant did not carry its burden of proving the applicability of the attorney-client privilege as a matter of law. The Supreme Court set forth guidelines for applying the attorney-corporate client privilege, beginning with the basic principle that the public policy behind the attorney-client privilege requires that an artificial person be given equal opportunity with a natural person to communicate with its attorney, within the professional relationship, without fear that its communication will be made public (60 Cal. 2d 723, 736).

In Rodriguez v. North American Rockwell Corp. (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 441, 104 Cal. Rptr. 678 , an action for conspiracy to commit slander, the court of appeal affirmed judgment in defendant's favor, holding that the trial court properly granted defendant's motion to quash a subpoena duces tecum designed to elicit information contained in reports made by corporate employees for transmission to defense counsel, when the evidence strongly supported the finding that the reports were made solely for the purpose of preparing for the defense of the action and that they were required and made for confidential transmittal to defense counsel (28 Cal. App. 3d, 441, 448-449) . In so holding, the court reiterated that the attorney-client privilege applies to corporate parties as well as to natural persons, citing D.I. Chadbourne, Inc., above, as authority (28 Cal. App. 3d 441, 449). Although the latter case was decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1881(2), and the attorney-client privilege is now governed by Evid. Code §§ 950-962, the principles for which it is cited as authority in Rodriguez are still effective.

Evid. Code § 951 defines a "client," one of the holders of the attorney-client privilege [Evid. Code § 954(a)], as a person who consults a lawyerfor certain purposes; "person" includes both a natural person and a corporation, as well as other artificial entities [Evid. Code § 175]. For a discussion of who is the proper claimant of the privilege, see § 81.80[3][a].

[b] Communication Privileged When Information Emanates From Corporation

The facts and procedural background of D.I. Chadbourne, Inc. v. Superior Court (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 723, 36 Cal. Rptr. 468, 388 P.2d 700 are discussed in [a], above. The Court set forth certain principles to be followed in the area of attorney-corporate client privilege, stating that a communication by a nondefendant corporate employee may be privileged when it constitutes information that emanates from the corporation, as distinct from the employee (60 Cal. 2d 723, 736-737).

In Sierra Vista Hospital v. Superior Court (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 359, 56 Cal. Rptr. 387 , an action for medical negligence, the trial court granted plaintiff's motion for production of an incident report made by the hospital, and the hospital sought a writ of prohibition to restrain the trial court from enforcing its order. The court of appeal issued a peremptory writ prohibiting enforcement of the order, holding that the incident report was privileged as a matter of law because it was prepared by the hospital's employees as a confidential communication and forwarded to the adjuster for the hospital's insurer in the event a lawsuit should be filed by the plaintiff (248 Cal. App. 2d 359, 369).

Sierra Vista Hospital, above, cites D.I. Chadbourne, Inc., above, as authority (248 Cal. App. 2d 359, 366-367). Although the latter case was decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1881(2), and the attorney-client privilege is now governed by Evid. Code §§ 950-962, the principles for which it is cited as authority in Sierra Vista Hospital are still effective.

[c] Employee's Statement as Statement of Corporate Employer

The facts and procedural background of D.I. Chadbourne, Inc. v. Superior Court (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 723, 36 Cal. Rptr. 468, 388 P.2d 700 are discussed in [a], above. In Chadbourne, the Supreme Court set forth rules of the attorney-corporate client privilege, including the principle that when the employee's connection with the subject matter of his communication grows out of his employment to the extent that it is required in the ordinary course of corporate business, it becomes a communication by the employer (60 Cal. 2d 723, 737).

In Kerns Constr. Co. v. Superior Court (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 405, 72 Cal. Rptr. 74 , an action for personal injuries, Kerns Construction Company, the cross defendant, moved for an order pursuant to Evid. Code § 771 requiring the defendant to produce and permit it to inspect and copycertain investigation and accident reports made by defendant's employee in connection with the accident that gave rise to the personal injury suit, and on which he had based his deposition testimony. The employee had been directed to make the reports by defendant, who intended them to be confidential. The reports were to be forwarded to defendant's claims department and in the event of litigation, to defendant's attorneys. The discovery motion was denied on the ground of attorney-client privilege, and cross defendant sought a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to grant the motion to produce.

The court of appeal granted the writ on the ground that while the reports were privileged under the Chadbourne standards, defendant had waived the privilege (266 Cal. App. 2d 405, 412-414). In discussing the applicability of the privilege, the court quoted the language of Chadbourne indicating that when the employee's report or statement is required in the ordinary course of the corporation's business, his statement is that of the employer, and concluded that, under the facts in Kerns, the employee's statements were those of the defendant (266 Cal. App. 2d 405, 412). Although D.I. Chadbourne, Inc., was decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1881(2), and the attorney-client privilege is now governed by Evid. Code §§ 950-962, the rule for which it is cited as authority in Kerns Constr. Co. is still effective.

[d] Applicability of Privilege to Corporate Employee's Communication Determined by Employer's Dominant Purpose

The facts and procedural background of D.I. Chadbourne, Inc. v. Superior Court (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 723, 36 Cal. Rptr. 468, 388 P.2d 700 are discussed in [a], above. The Supreme Court set forth rules governing the attorney-corporate client privilege, including the dominant-purpose rule, which provides that when a corporate employer defendant requires a nondefendant employee to make a report or communication regarding the subject matter of litigation, the privilege accorded that communication is determined by the employer's dominant purpose in requiring it, unless the employer's secondary purpose has resulted in a waiver of confidentiality (60 Cal. 2d 723, 737).

The facts and procedural background of Scripps Health v. Superior Court (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 529, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126 are discussed in § 81.64[4][b]. In this wrongful death medical malpractice case, the trial court abused its discretion in ruling that "occurrence reports" did not fall under either the attorney-client or the attorney work product privileges, "essentially finding that the dominant purpose of the occurrence reports was accident prevention" (109 Cal. App. 4th 529, 534). The undisputed facts showed the dominant purpose of the reports was for transmittal to an attorney in the course of the professional attorney-client relationship,under circumstances in which the hospital expected confidentiality (109 Cal. App. 4th 529, 534). The court relied on D. I. Chadbourne, Inc. v. Superior Court of San Francisco (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 723, 36 Cal. Rptr. 468, 388 P.2d 700 (discussed in [3][a], above), detailing the basic principles to be applied in determining whether the attorney-client privilege exists in a corporate setting (109 Cal. App. 4th 529, 533). Although the court acknowledged that the reports served a dual purpose, attorney review in anticipation of possible litigation and quality assurance/peer review, the fact that the information contained in the communications might also have been used for incidental purposes not entitled to the privilege was unimportant. The actual physical reports are not reviewed or submitted to any peer review or quality assurance committee, but are kept confidential, with access provided only to the Risk Managers, in-house or outside counsel and third party litigation claim administrators.

Accordingly, the attorney-client privilege was "clearly established" (109 Cal. App. 4th 529, 536). Based on this conclusion, the court found no need to discuss application of the attorney work product privilege or the privilege for hospital peer review materials (109 Cal. App. 4th 529, 536).

In Payless Drug Stores, Inc. v. Superior Court (1976) 54 Cal. App. 3d 988, 127 Cal. Rptr. 4 , an action arising from an accidental fall in a store, plaintiff moved to compel production of accident reports prepared by defendant corporation's employees after the accident. The trial court granted the motion and the employer sought a writ of prohibition to prevent its enforcement. The accident reports were prepared on preprinted forms supplied to defendant by its insurer and were forwarded by the carrier to defendant's attorney when the defense of the lawsuit was assigned to him. It appeared from the declaration submitted by defendant in opposition to the motion to compel that the insurance carrier required reports in cases in which accidents were claimed to have occurred, that both the insurance carrier and defendant intended the reports to be confidential for transmission to and use by attorneys defending the employer in litigation arising out of such claims, and that the reports were transmitted by the insurance carrier to defendant's attorney for use in defending litigation arising out of that claim.

In granting prohibition to prevent enforcement of the discovery order, the court of appeal held that the dominant purpose for the preparation of the report was, in effect, the confidential communication of information by the corporation to its attorneys to defend against litigation arising out of the accident claim, and thus the attorney-client privilege applied as a matter of law (54 Cal. App. 3d 988, 991). In discussing the applicability of the privilege, the court of appeal cited D.I. Chadbourne, Inc., as authority for the dominant-purpose rule (54 Cal. App. 3d 988, 991).

Although D.I. Chadbourne, Inc., was decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1881(2) and the attorney-client privilege is now governed by Evid.Code §§ 950-962, the rule for which it is cited as authority in Payless Drug Stores, Inc. is still effective.

[e] Employee's Communication Privileged Although Obtained by Employer's Agent

The facts and procedural background of D.I. Chadbourne, Inc. v. Superior Court (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 723, 36 Cal. Rptr. 468, 388 P.2d 700 are discussed in [a], above. In D.I. Chadbourne, Inc., the Supreme Court set forth rules governing the attorney-corporate client privilege, including the principle that if otherwise privileged under the rules of the attorney-corporate client privilege, a communication does not lose its privilege merely because it was obtained, with the knowledge and consent of the employer, by an agent of the employer acting under such agency; for such purpose, an insurance company with which the employer carries indemnity insurance, and its duly appointed agents, are agents of the employer corporation (60 Cal. 2d 723, 737).

In Sierra Vista Hospital v. Superior Court (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 359, 56 Cal. Rptr. 387 , the incident report that was sought by plaintiff's motion for production had been forwarded from defendant hospital's administrator to the hospital's attorney directly through the agency of its insurance carrier. Citing the agency rule of D.I. Chadbourne, Inc., discussed above, the court of appeal held that the incident report did not lose confidentiality by being transmitted in such a way through the employer's agent (248 Cal. App. 2d 359, 367).

[f] There Is No Shareholder Exception to Lawyer-Client Privilege

In National Football League Properties, Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 100, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 893 , the Oakland Raiders Football Club sued the National Football League (NFL), the National Football League Properties, Inc. (NFLP), and related entities, alleging that management's wrongful control of NFL entities resulted in a breach of fiduciary duty and adverse treatment of the Raiders. During discovery, a dispute arose concerning the Raiders' right to inspect corporate documents of NFLP that are protected by the lawyer-client privilege. NFLP objected to disclosure, arguing that the Raiders club is a shareholder that does not have a right to inspect corporate documents that are protected by the lawyer-client privilege. When the trial court disagreed, and ordered NFLP to produce the documents on the ground that the club has a director's right of inspection, it filed a petition for writ of mandate.

The court of appeal found that the trial court had abused its discretion and issued a peremptory writ of mandate directing the trial court to vacate the portion of its order that compelled production of the documents, andto enter a new order denying that part of the motion (65 Cal. App. 4th 100, 111-112). The court characterized the issue as whether the Raiders club, as a plaintiff in a shareholder's suit against the corporation, has the right to inspect NFLP documents that are protected by the lawyer-client privilege (65 Cal. App. 4th 100, 107). Citing both statutory and case law, the court explained that under the Evidence Code a corporation is a person whose confidential communications with its lawyer are protected by the lawyer-client privilege. Although shareholders have some rights to corporate information that are not enjoyed by the general public, shareholder status does not in and of itself entitle an individual to unfettered access to corporate confidences and secrets. California courts, bound by Evid. Code § 911 and its preclusion of judicially created exceptions to statutory privileges, have refused to carve out a shareholder exception to the lawyer-client privilege accorded to corporations (65 Cal. App. 4th 100, 107). Thus, the court concluded, there is no shareholder exception to the corporate lawyer-client privilege. A lawyer representing a corporation does not become the representative of its stockholders merely because the lawyer's actions on behalf of the corporation also benefit the stockholders; as lawyer for the corporation, counsel's first duty is to the corporation. Thus, even when counsel for a closely held corporation treats the interests of majority shareholders and the corporation interchangeably, it is the lawyer-client relationship that is paramount for purposes of upholding the lawyer-client privilege against a minority shareholder's challenge. Decisions holding that corporation lawyers stand in a fiduciary relationship to individual shareholders have relied upon a finding that the lawyers stood in a confidential relationship with respect to both the corporation and the individual shareholders, and not upon a rationale for piercing the corporate lawyer-client privilege (65 Cal. App. 4th 100, 108).

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Applicability of Privilege to Corporate Employee's Communication Determined by Employer's Dominant Purpose

In People ex rel. Dept. of Public Works v. Glen Arms Estate, Inc. (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 841, 41 Cal. Rptr. 303 , an eminent domain proceeding to acquire real property for state highway purposes, defendant owner appealed from a judgment entered on a jury verdict awarding compensation and damages, contending that the trial court erred in excluding as privileged the state appraiser's report on the value of the subject property. Citing D.I. Chadbourne, Inc., the court of appeal concluded that the report had been prepared in the ordinary course of the appraiser's duties as an agent of the state for the purpose of preparing for litigation and had been transmitted to the state's attorneys; thus, judgment was affirmed (230 Cal. App. 2d 841, 855-858).

[b] There Is No Shareholder Exception to Lawyer-Client Privilege

In Venture Law Group v. Superior Court (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 96, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 656 , a law firm and a former firm attorney filed a writ petition for relief from the trial court's discovery order compelling the attorney to answer deposition questions asked by real parties in interest about the legal advice given to the law firm's corporate client regarding a merger. Real parties in interest argued, in part, that the attorney's answers were not barred by the attorney-client privilege because the individual defendants had raised advice of counsel as a defense, thereby waiving the privilege by implication. The court of appeal disagreed. The implied waiver caused by asserting the advice of counsel defense is limited to situations in which "the client has placed into issue the decisions, conclusions, and mental state of the attorney who will be called as a witness to prove such matters." Here, there was no dispute that the defendants in their individual capacities as directors, officers, and majority shareholders of the merged corporation were not the clients of petitioner law firm and petitioner attorney. Rather, the successor corporation was the holder of the attorney-client privilege of the merged client corporation, as provided under Evid. Code § 953(d); and because the successor corporation had not waived the privilege, the attorney could not answer the deposition questions without violating the attorney-client privilege (118 Cal. App. 4th 96, 105-106).

For further discussion of Venture Law Group v. Superior Court (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 96, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 656 refer to § 81.80[4][a].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
B. Attorney-Client Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.85

§ 81.85 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954] Applicable--Communication to Insurer for Attorney's Use Is Privileged

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30), as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the grounds of privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.20), and relating to the attorney-client privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.80).]

THE COMMUNICATION BY THE INSURED TO HIS/HER INSURER IS NOT DISCOVERABLE BECAUSE IT IS PROTECTEDUNDER THE LAWYER-CLIENT PRIVILEGE, IN THAT IT CONCERNED AN EVENT THAT WAS THE BASIS OF A COVERED CLAIM AND WAS INTENDED FOR USE BY AN ATTORNEY IN DEFENSE OF THAT CLAIM.

Confidential Statements Made by Insured to Insurer for Attorney's Use Are Protected. A report or other communication made by an insured to his or her liability insurance company, concerning an event which may be made the basis of a claim covered by the policy, is a privileged communication if the policy requires the company to defend the insured through its attorney, and the communication is intended for the information or assistance of the attorney in that defense (Soltani-Rastegar v. Superior Court (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 424, 427, 256 Cal. Rptr. 255).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion for an order compelling discovery, by a party or other person who is resisting disclosure on the ground that the material sought is protected by the lawyer-client privilege. The ground for opposing discovery is that the material sought was communicated in confidence by an insured to his or her insurer for use by an attorney in defense of an action arising out of a claim covered by the insured's policy.

This form does not provide a complete memorandum, but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to compelling discovery, as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the ground of privilege and relating to the lawyer-client privilege generally.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Confidential Statements Made by Insured to Insurer for Attorney's Use Are Protected

In Soltani-Rastegar v. Superior Court (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 424, 256 Cal. Rptr. 255 , plaintiffs in a personal injury action which arose out of an automobile accident sought to compel production of statements made by defendants to defendant owner's automobile insurance carrier. The statements had been made in confidence to the insurance agent for the solepurpose of defending defendants against claims brought by those involved in the accident, and were delivered along with the insurance file to defendants' attorney. The trial court found that defendants had not established the existence of a lawyer-client relationship justifying application of the privilege, and ordered production of the statements. Defendants petitioned for a writ of mandate.

The court of appeal granted a writ of mandate directing the trial court to vacate its order. The court said that confidential reports of an accident procured for the use of an insurance company's attorney are protected by the lawyer-client privilege. It further elaborated that a report or other communication made by an insured to his or her liability insurance company, concerning an event which may be made the basis of a claim covered by the policy, is a privileged communication, if the policy requires the company to defend the insured through its attorney, and the communication is intended for the information or assistance of the attorney in that defense. In discussing the dominant purpose test, the court observed that there is no privilege in a communication which is not made to or for further communication to an attorney, even though the communication might have some connection with possible liability in the future (208 Cal. App. 3d 424, 427). The court refuted plaintiff's claim that the statements were not protected because they were made long before the lawsuit was filed and before the insurer had retained an attorney to represent the defendants, and explained that there is no valid basis for a distinction between a communication created for transmittal to an attorney to prepare for threatened litigation following particular accidents, and a communication prepared for an identical purpose under standing rules in the case of all accidents involving person or property injury (208 Cal. App. 3d 424, 427-428). It concluded that the fact that litigation was only a threat on the horizon and that attorneys had not yet been selected to avert or to meet that threat did not convert the purpose of the transmission. To hold otherwise might encourage insurance companies to bring in their attorneys at early stages in the claims handling and discourage early settlement of claims (208 Cal. App. 3d 424, 428).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
B. Attorney-Client Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.86

§ 81.86 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954] Applicable--Communication to Physician or Psychologist at Attorney's Request

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions,§ 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30), as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the grounds of privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.20), and relating to the attorney-client privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.80).]

PLAINTIFF'S/DEFENDANT'S STATEMENT TO _____ [name], A _____ [PHYSICIAN or PSYCHOLOGIST], MADE AT HIS/HER ATTORNEY'S REQUEST FOR PURPOSES OF EVALUATION IN PREPARATION OF THE CASE, IS A PRIVILEGED COMMUNICATION BETWEEN AN ATTORNEY AND CLIENT UNDER EVIDENCE CODE SECTION 952.

Client's Communication to Attorney's Agent in Preparation of Case Is Privileged. A communication by any form of agency employed or set in motion by the client is within the attorney-client privilege, including communications through an interpreter or messenger, as well as communications originating with the client's agent and made to the attorney. When communication by a client to the attorney regarding the client's physical or mental condition requires a physician's assistance to interpret the client's condition to the attorney, the client is entitled to submit to an examination without fear that the physician will be compelled to reveal the information disclosed (Rodriguez v. Superior Court (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1260, 1266, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 120).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted by a party or other person resisting discovery on the ground that the communication to a physician or psychologist in preparation for the case is a confidential communication. This memorandum is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to discovery, as well as with points and authorities generally relating to the application of privileges and to the attorney-client privilege.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be used in opposition to a motion supported by § 81.62.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Client's Communication to Attorney's Agent in Preparation of Case Is Privileged

In Rodriguez v. Superior Court (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1260, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 120 , the appellate court held that a defendant's statement to a psychologist made at the request of defense counsel for purposes of evaluation in preparation of the defense case was within the definition of a privileged communication between an attorney and client under Evid. Code § 952. A communication by any form of agency employed or set in motion by the client is within the attorney-client privilege, including communications through an interpreter or messenger, as well as communications originating with the client's agent and made to the attorney. Communications of the attorney's agent to the attorney are also within the privilege, since the attorney's agent is also the client's subagent and is acting as such for the client. When communication by a client to the attorney regarding the client's physical or mental condition requires a physician's assistance to interpret the client's condition to the attorney, the client is entitled to submit to an examination by the physician without fear that the physician will be compelled to reveal the information disclosed (14 Cal. App. 4th 1260, 1266).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
B. Attorney-Client Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.87

§ 81.87 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954] Applicable--Trustee's Confidential Communication to Attorney Is Privileged Against Beneficiaries

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30), as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the grounds of privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.20), and relating to the attorney-client privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.80).]

THE LAWYER-CLIENT PRIVILEGE PROTECTS A TRUSTEE'S PRIVILEGED COMMUNICATIONS WITH ATTORNEYS AGAINST THE TRUST BENEFICIARIES.

A. Trustee May Assert Lawyer-Client Privilege to Preclude Discovery by Trust Beneficiaries. A trustee may assert thelawyer-client privilege to withhold privileged communications or documents from the trust beneficiaries, regardless of their subject matter (Wells Fargo Bank v. Superior Court (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 201, 206, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716, 990 P.2d 591).

[Optional] B. Trustee's Confidential Communications With Its Attorneys About Its Potential Personal Liability Are Privileged. A trustee may assert the lawyer-client privilege to withhold privileged communications or documents from the trust beneficiaries concerning the beneficiaries' claims of trustee misconduct (Wells Fargo Bank v. Superior Court (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 201, 209, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716, 990 P.2d 591).

[Optional] C. Trustee Enjoys Absolute Privilege Against Beneficiaries for Confidential Communications About Trust Administration. A trustee may assert the lawyer-client privilege to withhold privileged communications or documents from the trust beneficiaries concerning trust administration (Wells Fargo Bank v. Superior Court (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 201, 209-210, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716, 990 P.2d 591).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities in opposition to a motion for an order compelling discovery may be used by a trustee to resist providing discovery to the trust beneficiaries on the ground that the material sought is privileged as a confidential lawyer-client communication.

This form does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to compelling discovery, as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the ground of privilege and relating to the lawyer-client privilege generally.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Trustee May Assert Lawyer-Client Privilege to Preclude Discovery by Trust Beneficiaries

In Wells Fargo Bank v. Superior Court (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 201, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716, 990 P.2d 591 , a proceeding for an accounting, the trustbeneficiaries, real parties in interest, compelled petitioner trustee to disclose documents containing privileged communications with attorneys on the subject of trust administration. However, petitioner asserted the lawyer-client privilege as to documents reflecting communications with its attorneys about the beneficiaries' claims of misconduct. In addition, petitioner's outside trust administration counsel claimed the protection of the work product doctrine for other documents. The superior court granted trust beneficiaries' motion to compel production and ordered petitioner to produce the remaining documents. Trustee petitioned for a writ of mandate or prohibition and sought a stay of the superior court's order compelling production. The court of appeal vacated the superior court's order compelling production of documents subject to the lawyer-client privilege and directed the superior court to examine in camera the documents subject to the work product protection claim (22 Cal. 4th 201, 205-206) .

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment of the court of appeal, holding that the beneficiaries were not entitled to privileged documents relating to trust administration or to petitioner trustee's personal liability (22 Cal. 4th 201, 206) . The Court found no authority under California law for requiring a trustee to produce communications protected by the lawyer-client privilege, regardless of their subject matter (22 Cal. 4th 201, 206) . The Court rejected the beneficiaries' argument that petitioner must produce privileged communications to fulfill its statutory and common law duties as a trustee to report to the beneficiaries about the trust and its administration. The Court found no justification for that argument in the relevant sections of the Probate Code (see Prob. Code § 16060 et seq.), governing a trustee's duties. Instead, the Court found that a trustee could provide a report of information to beneficiaries without having to disclose confidential information (22 Cal. 4th 201, 206-207) . The Court distinguished its decision in Moeller v. Superior Court (1997) 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 317, 947 P.2d 279 (discussed in § 81.69[3][a]), explaining that that case did not suggest that anyone other than the current holder of the privilege might be entitled to inspect privileged communications; it merely identified the current holder of the privilege (22 Cal. 4th 201, 209) . The Court also rejected beneficiaries' argument that petitioner had waived its privilege as to remaining communications not yet disclosed through disclosures it had already made in discovery; the Court concluded that an honest mistake of law, when the law is unsettled and debatable, militated against a finding of waiver (22 Cal. 4th 201, 211) . Additionally, the Court rejected beneficiaries' contention that they were joint clients of petitioner's attorneys and, thus, were entitled to inspect any privileged communications, although the Court declined to say that trustees and beneficiaries could not possibly become joint clients (22 Cal. 4th 201, 212) .

With respect to the work product claim, the Court found that the court of appeal ruled correctly when it directed an in camera review, noting thata superior court's inspection in camera is an appropriate way to determine whether documents are entitled to protection as work product (22 Cal. 4th 201, 215) .

[b] Trustee's Confidential Communications With Its Attorneys About Its Potential Personal Liability Are Privileged

Wells Fargo Bank v. Superior Court (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 201, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716, 990 P.2d 591 is discussed in [a], above.

[c] Trustee Enjoys Absolute Privilege Against Beneficiaries for Confidential Communications About Trust Administration

Wells Fargo Bank v. Superior Court (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 201, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716, 990 P.2d 591 is discussed in [a], above.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
B. Attorney-Client Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.88

§ 81.88 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954] Applicable--No Exception to Lawyer-Client Privilege for Condominium Owners

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30), as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the grounds of privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.20), and relating to the attorney-client privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.80).]

THE INFORMATION SOUGHT TO BE DISCOVERED IS PROTECTED BY THE ATTORNEY-CLIENT PRIVILEGE BECAUSE THE CONDOMINIUM ASSOCIATION, NOT THE INDIVIDUAL CONDOMINIUM OWNERS, IS THE HOLDER OF THE PRIVILEGE.

There Is No Exception to the Attorney-Client Privilege for Individual Condominium Owners When Condominium Association Brings Suit on Its Own Behalf. A condominium association that brings a construction defect lawsuit on its own behalf is the holder of the attorney-client privilege, and the individual condominium owners, who are not individually named as plaintiffs in thelitigation, cannot demand production of privileged documents (Smith v. Laguna Sur Villas Community Assn. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 639, 643, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 321).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities in opposition to a motion compelling discovery may be submitted by a party or other person who has resisted providing discovery on the ground that the material sought is privileged as a confidential communication between a condominium association and its attorney. This form does not provide a complete memorandum, but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to compelling discovery, as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the ground of privilege and relating to the attorney-client privilege generally.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] There Is No Exception to the Attorney-Client Privilege for Individual Condominium Owners When Condominium Association Brings Suit on Its Own Behalf

In Smith v. Laguna Sur Villas Community Assn. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 639, 643, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 321 , plaintiff condominium owners appealed the dismissal of their action against defendant condominium association for declaratory and injunctive relief, seeking to review defendant's legal materials in its action against a developer, which defendant claimed were privileged (79 Cal. App. 4th 639, 642) . The court of appeal refused to order disclosure, finding that defendant, who had retained the attorney to act on its behalf, was the holder of the attorney-client privilege (79 Cal. App. 4th 639, 643) .

The court rejected plaintiffs' argument that they were holders of the privilege as the "true clients" of the attorneys retained by the association because the condominium association could only act in a representative capacity (79 Cal. App. 4th 639, 644) . The court pointed out that corporations and unincorporated associations enjoy the benefit of the attorney-client privilege when the entity (rather than its individual members) has retained the attorney to act on its behalf (79 Cal. App. 4th 639, 644) . Thecourt also rejected plaintiff's argument that they were the attorney's true clients because the association owed them a fiduciary duty to act in their best interests as rightful owners who paid with their association dues for the legal services being rendered on their behalf. The court likened the relationship between the individual members of the condominium association and the association itself to that of shareholders to their corporation, and of beneficiaries to their trust or receivership. The court noted that there was no statutory exception for shareholders, even for closely held corporations, and even though the corporate board members owed a fiduciary duty to the complaining shareholders (79 Cal. App. 4th 639, 644) . The court pointed out that a receiver could assert an absolute privilege as to communications with its counsel, even as to a disclosure request by the corporation which was placed into receivership and to which it owned fiduciary responsibilities (79 Cal. App. 4th 639, 644) . The court followed the dictates of Wells Fargo Bank v. Superior Court (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 201, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716, 990 P.2d 591 (discussed in § 81.87[3][a]), in which the California Supreme Court declined to create a so-called "fiduciary" exception to the attorney-client privilege and refused to create an exception in this case, explaining that cots "do not enjoy the freedom to restrict California's statutory exception to the attorney-client privilege based on notions of policy or ad hoc justification" (79 Cal. App. 4th 639, 644) . The court added that any indirect payment of attorneys fees by the association members did not determine the ownership of the attorney-client privilege (79 Cal. App. 4th 639, 645) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
B. Attorney-Client Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.89

§ 81.89 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954] Applicable--Privilege Not Waived [Evid. Code § 912]

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30), as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the grounds of privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.20), and relating to the attorney-client privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.80).]

THE INFORMATION SOUGHT IS NOT DISCOVERABLE BECAUSE THE LAWYER-CLIENT PRIVILEGE HAS NOT BEEN WAIVED.

[EITHER]

A. Intent to Disclose Not a Waiver. The mere intent to disclose a privileged communication does not act as a waiver of the lawyer-client privilege absent actual voluntary disclosure (Lohman v. Superior Court (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 90, 95, 146 Cal. Rptr. 171 ; see Evid. Code § 912(a)).

[AND/OR]

B. Confidential Communication Privileged Although Information Previously Transmitted to Third Party. It is not the content of a confidential communication but the lawyer-client relationship that is protected by the privilege. Thus, if the client discloses certain facts to a third person and later advises his or her lawyer of those same facts in the form of a confidential communication, there has been no waiver, since the client had not disclosed that certain information had been communicated to the lawyer (Lohman v. Superior Court (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 90, 97, 146 Cal.

Rptr. 171).

[AND/OR]

C. Privilege Applicable to Communication Between Client and Particular Lawyer. Waiver of a confidential communication with one lawyer does not waive confidential communications with subsequent lawyers who succeed to represent that client in the same substantive matter. The privilege protects the client from disclosure of the confidential communication between the client and a particular lawyer (Lohman v. Superior Court (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 90, 97, 146 Cal. Rptr. 171).

[AND/OR]

D. Waiver by Joint Holder Not Applicable. When two or more persons are joint holders of the lawyer-client privilege, a waiver of the right by one joint holder of the privilege to claim the privilege does not affect the right of another joint holder to claim the privilege (Evid. Code § 912(b); American Mut. Liab. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 579, 595, 113 Cal. Rptr. 561).

[AND/OR]

E. Statements to Lawyer for Purpose of Answering Interrogatories Are Privileged. Statements made by a client to his or her lawyer for the purpose of answering interrogatories do not lose their confidential character on the ground they were designed to be communicated by the lawyer to others (De Los Santos v. Superior Court (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 677, 683, 166 Cal. Rptr. 172, 613 P.2d 233).

[AND/OR]

F. No Waiver of Privilege If Disclosure Coerced by Court Order. Disclosure of items pursuant to a court order is coerced and does not constitute a waiver of the lawyer-client privilege (Evid. Code § 919(b); Schlumberger Limited v. Superior Court (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 386, 391-392, 171 Cal. Rptr. 413).

[AND/OR]

G. Tendering Issue of Damages in Legal Malpractice Action. A plaintiff in a malpractice action against his or her former lawyer has not waived protection from disclosure of confidential communications with his or her present lawyer merely by tendering the issue of damages (Schlumberger Limited v. Superior Court (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 386, 393, 171 Cal. Rptr. 413).

[AND/OR]

H. No Waiver by Disclosure of Fact That Privileged Communication Occurred. Mere disclosure of the fact that a communication between client and lawyer has occurred does not amount to a disclosure of the specific content of that communication, and does not necessarily constitute a waiver of the privilege (Mitchell v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 591, 601-603, 208 Cal. Rptr. 886, 691 P.2d 642).

[AND/OR]

I. No Waiver Under Evidence Code Section 912 Without Disclosure. The exclusive means by which the lawyer-client privilege may be waived under Evid. Code § 912 is by disclosure or consent to disclosure. Thus, when there is a timely assertion of the lawyer-client privilege, putting the other side on notice, a forced waiver for some technical shortfall under the civil discovery statutes is at odds with Section 912, and is excessive (see Blue Ridge Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 339, 345-347, 248 Cal. Rptr. 346).

[AND/OR]

J. Inadvertent Disclosure by Attorney Does Not Waive Privilege. When the client or privilege holder clearly did not consent or intend to disclose privileged matter, the accidental, inadvertent disclosure of such matter by the client's attorney does not constitute a waiver under Evidence Code Section 912 (State Comp. Ins. Fund v. WPS, Inc. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 644, 652-654, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 799).

[AND/OR]

K. Partial Waiver of Attorney-Client Privilege. A client's waiver of the attorney-client privilege regarding one aspect of the protected attorney-client relationship does not necessarily waive the privilege regarding other aspects of the relationship (Rodriguez v. Superior Court (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1260, 1270, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 120).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities in opposition to a motion for an order compelling discovery may be submitted by a party or other person who has resisted providing discovery on the ground that the material sought is privileged as a confidential lawyer-client communication, when the party moving to compel discovery has contended that the privilege has been waived:

- Paragraph A may be used when the holder of the privilege has evidenced the intent to disclose a significant part of the confidential communication but has not actually done so.

- Paragraph B is appropriate when the holder of the privilege has disclosed to a third person facts that are the same facts contained in the confidential communication, but has not disclosed the confidential communication itself.

- Paragraph C may be used when the privilege has been waived only for the client's communications with another lawyer in regard to the same matter.

- Paragraph D is for use when a joint holder has claimed the privilege.

- Paragraph E may be used when the client has communicated information to the lawyer in order to answer interrogatories.

- Paragraph F may be used when items have been disclosed pursuant to a court order.

- Paragraph G may be used when the issue of damages has been tendered in a legal malpractice action.

- Paragraph H may be used when there has been a disclosure of the fact that a privileged communication has occurred.

- Paragraph I may be used when the holder of the privilege committed a technical shortfall under the civil discovery statutes, but asserted the privilege in a timely manner.

- Paragraph J may be used when the client's attorney has inadvertently disclosed privileged communications, but the client clearly did not consent to or intend the disclosure.

- Paragraph K may be used if the client has waived part, but not all, of the privilege and now seeks to oppose discovery of the other protected part of the communication.

This form does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to compelling discovery, as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the ground of privilege and relating to the lawyer-client privilege generally.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 81.65 and 81.66.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intent to Disclose Not a Waiver

In Lohman v. Superior Court (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 90, 146 Cal. Rptr. 171 , an action by a conservatee for breach of trust, personal injury, and fraud against her temporary conservator, defendant sought an order requiring plaintiff's former attorney to answer certain questions at his deposition that he refused to answer on the ground of lawyer-client privilege. The trial court issued the order compelling discovery and plaintiff sought a writ of mandamus or prohibition to direct the trial court to vacate that order.

The court of appeal issued a writ of mandate, holding that some of the communications sought to be discovered were protected by the lawyer-client privilege and that the privilege had not been waived (81 Cal. App. 3d 90, 98) . The court held that plaintiff had not waived the privilege by having issued a subpoena duces tecum to her former attorney because no records were produced in compliance with that subpoena. There was no voluntary disclosure or consent to disclosure made in fact. The intent to disclose does not operate as a waiver (81 Cal. App. 3d 90, 95) .

[b] Confidential Communication Privileged Although Information Previously Transmitted to Third Party

The facts and procedural background of Lohman v. Superior Court (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 90, 146 Cal. Rptr. 171 are discussed in [a], above. The Lohman court held that plaintiff did not waive the lawyer-client privilege by testifying to privileged communications with her former attorneys, who were not being deposed, regarding the subject matter of thelitigation and by permitting one of her former attorneys to be so examined. The court stated that if a client discloses certain facts to a third person and subsequently advises his or her attorney of those same facts in the form of a confidential communication, there has been no waiver, since the client had not disclosed to the third person that certain information had been communicated to the attorney (81 Cal. App. 3d 90, 96-97) . In addition, the court held that the privilege protects the client from disclosure of the confidential communication between the client and a particular attorney. Waiver of the privilege for a confidential communication between a client and an attorney does not operate as a waiver for confidential communications with subsequent attorneys who succeed to the representation of the client in the action (81 Cal. App. 3d 90, 97) .

[c] Privilege Applicable to Communication Between Client and Particular Lawyer

Lohman v. Superior Court (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 90, 146 Cal. Rptr. 171 is discussed in [a] and [b], above.

[d] Waiver by Joint Holder Not Applicable

The facts and procedural background of American Mut. Liab. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 579, 113 Cal. Rptr. 561 are discussed in § 81.80[3][a]. In American Mut., the court of appeal held that an attorney who had been employed by the surgeon's insurance company to defend the surgeon with respect to previous malpractice claims had had joint clients, the doctor and the insurer, and that the doctor's waiver of the lawyer-client privilege in respect to the files of the malpractice actions could not act as a waiver of the privilege in regard to confidential communications between the attorney and American, the insurer (38 Cal. App. 3d 579, 592, 595) .

[e] Statements to Lawyer for Purpose of Answering Interrogatories as Privileged

In De Los Santos v. Superior Court (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 677, 166 Cal. Rptr. 172, 613 P.2d 233 , a minor made statements to his mother, who was also his guardian ad litem in the lawsuit, at the request of his attorney for the purpose of preparing the minor's answers to defendants' interrogatories and to assist the attorney in preparation for trial. Defendants deposed the minor's mother, and asked her questions about statements the minor had made to her regarding the circumstances of the accident and the condition of his bicycle at the time of the accident. She refused to answer on the ground that the information was protected by the lawyer-client privilege. The trial court granted defendants' motion to compel answers. The Supreme Court issued a writ of mandate to compel the trialcourt to prohibit discovery of the information sought and to issue a protective order.

In deciding that the information was privileged, the Court remarked that statements made by a client to his or her lawyer for the purpose of answering interrogatories do not lose their confidential character on the ground that they were designed to be communicated by the attorney to others (27 Cal. 3d 677, 682-683) . The Court said that to so hold would completely destroy the privilege whenever a client sought to litigate his or her case, and would leave no opportunity for the full disclosure and open discussion between lawyer and client that the privilege exists to promote (27 Cal. 3d 677, 683) . For other points relating to the lawyer-client privilege discussed in De Los Santos, see § 81.80[4][b].

[f] No Waiver of Privilege If Disclosure Coerced by Court Order

Evid. Code § 919(b) provides that if a person authorized to claim the lawyer-client privilege claimed it, but nevertheless disclosure was erroneously required, neither the failure to refuse to disclose nor the failure to seek review of the order indicates consent to the disclosure or constitutes a waiver.

Schlumberger Limited v. Superior Court (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 386, 171 Cal. Rptr. 413 is discussed in [g], below. The court held that plaintiff's failure to seek review of a prior court order compelling discovery did not prevent him from seeking relief from a subsequent order requiring production. The disclosure was coerced and did not constitute a waiver under Evid. Code § 919(b) (115 Cal. App. 3d 386, 391-392) .

[g] Tendering Issue of Damages in Legal Malpractice Action

Schlumberger Limited v. Superior Court (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 386, 171 Cal. Rptr. 413 arose out of an action for legal malpractice by a client against a former attorney. Defendant requested production of communications and memorandums between plaintiff and his present counsel for a certain period. Plaintiff refused to produce the items, arguing that production would violate his lawyer-client privilege. Defendant moved for and obtained an order from the trial court compelling production of the items on the ground that they were not privileged and were relevant to the subject matter of the lawsuit.

The court of appeal granted a peremptory writ of mandate directing the trial court to vacate its order compelling production. The court held that affirmatively tendering the issue of damages did not waive the lawyer-client privilege even though the communications might be relevant to the issue. Additionally, the court held that this was not a case in which the privilegewas impliedly waived because the decisions, conclusions, and mental state of the attorney were placed in issue or because the attorney would be used to prove matters that he or she could have learned only in the course of employment (115 Cal. App. 3d 386, 393) .

[h] No Waiver by Disclosure of Fact That Privileged Communication Occurred

Mitchell v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 591, 208 Cal. Rptr. 886, 691 P.2d 642 was an action against manufacturers, distributors, and marketers of a chemical used as an agricultural soil fumigant. Plaintiffs alleged that their water was contaminated by the chemical and they sought to recover under several causes of action for personal and property injuries, including intentional infliction of emotional distress, which plaintiffs allegedly suffered after becoming aware of the health dangers associated with the chemical. Defendants sought to compel one plaintiff to respond to interrogatories about the specific nature of information or warnings communicated to her by her attorney concerning the dangers of the chemical. The trial court granted defendants' motion.

The Supreme Court granted plaintiff's petition for a writ of mandate compelling the trial court to vacate its order compelling discovery. The Court, after holding that certain communications made by plaintiff's attorney were privileged, also held that the privilege was not waived by plaintiff's disclosure of the fact that these communications occurred. The Court stated that mere disclosure of the fact that a communication between client and attorney occurred does not amount to disclosure of the specific content of that communication, and as such does not necessarily constitute a waiver of the privilege under Evid. Code § 912 (37 Cal. 3d 591, 601-603) .

[i] No Waiver Under Evidence Code Section 912 Without Disclosure

Blue Ridge Ins Co v. Superior Court (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 339, 248 Cal. Rptr. 346 was a suit for bad faith, breach of duties, and fraud brought by plaintiffs, who were homeowners, against defendant, their insurance company. In a timely but unverified response to a request for production of documents, defendant asserted the lawyer-client privilege and work product protection with respect to three of the four categories of documents requested, and agreed to full production of the remaining category of documents. Plaintiffs claimed that because the response was unverified, defendant's objections were not timely, and that all of the requested documents should be produced. When defendant declined to do so, plaintiffs filed a motion to compel their production. The trial court ruled that defendant's failure to provide a verification at the time of service of its response was tantamount to a failure to respond, and that such a failureconstituted a waiver of objections. Defendant's motions for reconsideration and relief from default were denied, and it was ordered to produce all documents without objection and to pay sanctions. Defendant filed a petition for writ of mandate and/or prohibition, which was denied. A petition for review was granted by the Supreme Court, and the matter was transferred back to the court of appeal with directions to issue an alternative writ.

The court of appeal issued a peremptory writ of mandate directing the trial court to vacate its order. After observing that the trial court had erred in applying former Code Civ. Proc. § 2031(l) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2031.250) because it had not yet become operative during the period of discovery, the court said that neither former Code Civ. Proc. § 2031(l) nor the controlling provision, former Code Civ. Proc. § 2031(b), require that objections be verified in order to be preserved. The court concluded that defendant's objections were effective in that the response was timely filed, and there was no waiver of legal objections to the production request (202 Cal. App. 3d 339, 343-345) .

The court went on to consider whether the lawyer-client privilege could be waived because of a technical defect under the civil discovery statutes. The court emphasized the importance of the lawyer-client privilege, noting that the privilege should not be whittled away by means of specious argument that it has been waived. The exclusive means by which the privilege may be waived under Evid. Code § 912 is by disclosure, by consent to disclosure, or by failing to claim the privilege in any proceeding in which the holder has the legal standing and opportunity to do so. Accordingly, the court said that when there is a timely assertion of the lawyer-client privilege, putting the other side on notice, a forced waiver for some technical shortfall is at odds with Evid. Code § 912, and is an excessive sanction not reasonably calculated to achieve the purpose of effecting compliance with discovery (202 Cal. App. 3d 339, 347) .

[j] Inadvertent Disclosure by Attorney Does Not Waive Privilege

In State Comp. Ins. Fund v. WPS, Inc. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 644, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 799 , plaintiff's counsel, in response to a discovery request by defendant's counsel, sent documents that inadvertently included privileged communications between plaintiff and plaintiff's counsel. Plaintiff discovered the error and asked for the return of the privileged documents, but defense counsel refused. The trial court found this refusal to be in bad faith and imposed sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5.

On appeal from this ruling, the court of appeal held the defendant's refusal was not justified by a waiver of the privilege through disclosure. A trial court called to determine whether inadvertent disclosure of privileged communications constitutes waiver of the privilege by the holder,must examine the subjective intent of the holder and the relevant surrounding circumstances for any manifestation of holder's consent to disclose. When, as in this case, the client or privilege holder clearly did not consent or intend to disclose privileged matter, the accidental, inadvertent disclosure of such matter by the client's attorney does not constitute a waiver under Evid. Code § 912 (70 Cal. App. 4th 644, 652-654) .

For future cases, the court of appeal articulated an ethical standard of conduct to be followed by California attorneys who receive an apparently inadvertent disclosure of privileged matter, drawn from ABA Formal Ethics Opinion No. 92-368. For discussion of the ethical duty of counsel receiving inadvertently disclosed privileged matters, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 191, Discovery: Privileges and Other Discovery Limitations (Matthew Bender).

[k] Partial Waiver of Attorney-Client Privilege

In Rodriguez v. Superior Court (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1260, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 120 , the court held that a client's waiver of the attorney-client privilege as to one aspect of the protected attorney-client relationship does not necessarily waive the privilege as to other aspects of the relationship. Thus, disclosure of the client's psychological report, which was protected by the attorney-client privilege, pursuant to court order did not waive that privilege with respect to a deleted section of the report containing the client's remarks to the psychologist concerning the offenses with which he had been charged (14 Cal. App. 4th 1260, 1270) . For further discussion of Rodriguez, see § 81.86[3][a].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Confidential Communication Privileged Although Information Previously Transmitted to Third Party

In Meza v. H. Muehlstein & Co. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 969, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 422 , plaintiff sued numerous defendants, alleging personal injuries caused by workplace exposure to toxic chemical products. A case management conference (CMC) order authorized defense counsel to exchange information regarding their common interests without waiving the attorney-client and attorney work product privileges. Defense counsel shared their individual work product regarding the litigation. Plaintiff argued that the common interest doctrine did not apply, because defendants had separate, dissimilar and, at times, adverse interests (176 Cal. App. 4th 969, 981-982) . The trial court held the defendants had a shared interest and that the communications among counsel, which were made in furtherance of that interest, were confidential (176 Cal. App. 4th 969, 982) . The court of appeal agreed. While all defendants had different and potentially adverse interests, they also indisputably had common interests. All defendants, for example, had common interests in plaintiff's medical condition, alleged discrepancies in her claims, and her presentation as a witness. Similarly, all defendants had common interests in anticipating and analyzing plaintiff's litigation strategies and in retaining joint defense consultants and experts. And in light of the CMC order, defendants' attorneys reasonably expected that counsel for co-defendants would preserve the confidentiality of attorney work product disclosed in communications regarding common interests. Finally, communications among defense counsel were "reasonably necessary" in order to better prepare for trial. Accordingly, under the common interest doctrine, the attorney work product privilege was not waived (176 Cal. App. 4th 969, 982-983) .

In California Oak Foundation v. County of Tehama (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1217, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 902 , the trial court denied plaintiff environmental group's petition for a writ of administrative mandamus to overturn defendant county's approval of a development project and an associated environmental impact report (EIR). The trial court denied plaintiff's motion to include in the administrative record documents that defendant claimed were subject to attorney-client privilege. The documents came from an outside law firm retained to provide advice on compliance issues under California Environmental Quality Act (Pub. Res. Code § 21050 et seq.). Defendant county had disclosed the documents to counsel for co-defendant developers. The court of appeal held that this disclosure did not waive attorney-client privilege, because the common interest doctrine codified in Evid. Code § 912(d) applied. The county and the developers both sought to defend the EIR in litigation, and disclosure of the advice was reasonably necessary to further the purpose of the original legal consultation (174 Cal. App. 4th 1217, 1222) .

In OXY Resources California LLC v. Superior Court (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 874, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 621 , plaintiff natural gas company sued two resources companies, contending it was denied the opportunity to exercise its contractual right of first refusal to purchase defendant's interest in specified property. At issue was the confidentiality of some 200 documents reflecting communications that took place between defendants both before and after they finalized their transaction, but before plaintiff filed its lawsuit. Defendants argued that these documents were protected from disclosure by their "joint defense" agreement. The "joint defense" or "common interest" doctrine relies on the principle that parties who possess common legal interests may share privileged information without losing the protection afforded by the attorney-client privilege. The trial court granted in part, and denied in part, plaintiff's motion to compel production of the documents. Plaintiff and one defendant each petitioned for a writ of mandate.

The court of appeal held an in camera review was required to determine whether the disclosure of the documents in the course of the transaction waived the attorney-client privilege or work product protection (115 Cal. App. 4th 874, 879) . While the joint defense agreement was not void as matter of public policy, it could not serve as sole ground for withholding the documents. Rather, the agreement evidenced the expectation of confidentiality necessary to avoid waiver by disclosure to someone outside the attorney-client relationship, but could not protect the documents from disclosure unless they contained or reflected attorney-client communications or attorney work product (115 Cal. App. 4th 874, 893) .

For additional discussion of OXY Resources California LLC, refer to § 81.65[4][a].

In Maas v. Municipal Court (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 601, 221 Cal. Rptr. 245 , codefendant entered into a plea bargain, agreeing to plead no contest to being an accessory to murder and to cooperate fully in the investigation and prosecution of defendant. Defendant issued a subpoena duces tecum requiring codefendant to appear and produce documents. Codefendant moved to quash, asserting the lawyer-client privilege. The magistrate denied the motion. Codefendant sought a writ of mandate in the superior court, and the court issued the writ, commanding the magistrate to vacate its order and grant the motion to quash. In affirming, the court of appeal concluded that codefendant's agreement to testify completely in exchange for immunity did not waive the lawyer-client privilege. Waiver of this privilege occurs with disclosure of a significant part of the communication, but a client does not waive the privilege by testifying about facts that might have been discussed in confidential conversations with his or her attorney because that testimony is not equivalent to disclosure of the actual content of those lawyer-client conversations (175 Cal. App. 3d 601, 606) .

[b] No Waiver of Privilege If Disclosure Coerced by Court Order

In Regents of Univ. of Cal. v. Superior Court (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 672, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 186 , a coordinated antitrust case, energy suppliers were under criminal and regulatory investigation when they disclosed the documents in response to subpoenas or requests for documents from federal agencies. At that time, the United States Department of Justice considered the extent of a corporation's willingness to cooperate with document requests in deciding whether to indict. The trial court found that the energy suppliers' cooperation with the federal agencies did not waive the attorney-client privilege or work product protection. The trial court concluded that production of the documents to the government was coerced within the meaning of Evid. Code § 912(a), given the dramatic impact that failure to cooperate might have had and the absence of any cost-free redress (165 Cal. App. 4th 672, 683) . The appellate court agreed, denying petitioner energy users motion to compel production of the documents that had been disclosed to the federal government. The appellate court held that when privileged documents have been disclosed either in response to the request of a government agency or inadvertently in the course of civil discovery, the privilege is not waived if the holder has taken reasonable steps under the circumstances to prevent disclosure. The holder of the privilege is not required to take "strenuous or Herculean efforts." This standard is consistent with Evid. Code § 919(b), which does not require that a privilege holder of a privilege suffer a contempt finding in order to preserve the privilege or to appeal an order directing disclosure (165 Cal. App. 4th 672, 683) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
B. Attorney-Client Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.90

§ 81.90 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954] Applicable--Privilege Not Impliedly Waived

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30), as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the grounds of privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.20), and relating to the attorney-client privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.80).]

THE INFORMATION SOUGHT IS NOT DISCOVERABLE BECAUSE THE LAWYER-CLIENT PRIVILEGE HAS NOT BEEN IMPLIEDLY WAIVED.

A. No Implied Waiver Unless Privileged Communication Has Been Put in Issue. There is no implied waiver of the lawyer-client privilege unless the client has put an otherwise privileged communication directly at issue and disclosure is essential for a fair adjudication of the action (Southern Cal. Gas Co. v. Public Utilities Com. (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 31, 40-43, 265 Cal. Rptr. 801, 784 P.2d 1373 ; Mitchell v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 591, 603-611, 208 Cal. Rptr. 886, 691 P.2d 642).

[AND/OR]

B. No Implied Waiver After Party Has Been Designated Expert Witness. Designation of a party as an expert trial witness is not in itself an implied waiver of the party's attorney-client privilege; if the designation is withdrawn before the party discloses a significant part of a privileged communication, or before it is known with reasonable certainty that the party will actually testify as an expert, the privilege is secure (Shooker v. Superior Court (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 923, 930, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 334).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum are for use in opposition to a motion to compel discovery on the ground that there is no implied waiver of the attorney-client privilege because the party or other person resisting discovery has not put an otherwise privileged communication directly at issue, and disclosure is not essential to the fair adjudication of the action. In addition, this form may be used in opposition to a motion to compel discovery on the ground that designation of a party as an expert trial witness is not itself an implied waiver of the privilege, if the designation is withdrawn before the party discloses a significant part of a privileged communication, or before it is known with reasonable certainty that the party will actually testify as an expert.

This form does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum opposing a motion to compel discovery, as well as with points and authorities that relate to privilege in general and the lawyer-client privilege in particular, as grounds for resisting discovery. If Optional Paragraph B is used, this form may be combined with one or more forms refuting claims of work product protection on grounds such as waiver. For authorities thatdiscuss protection of an expert's opinion under the work product doctrine, see § 81.224.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in § 81.67.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Implied Waiver Unless Privileged Communication Has Been Put in Issue

In Southern Cal. Gas Co. v. Public Utilities Com. (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 31, 265 Cal. Rptr. 801, 784 P.2d 1373 , a gas company applied to the Public Utilities Commission to recover costs incurred as a result of buying out a supply contract it did not want to perform. The company disclosed to the commission that its attorney had advised that the contract could not be unilaterally terminated without subjecting the company to liability. The commission concluded that the company had thereby impliedly waived its lawyer-client privilege, and ordered the company to produce the documents containing its attorney's legal analysis regarding termination of the contract. The company appealed that order.

The State Supreme Court vacated the order, concluding that the lawyer-client privilege had not been impliedly waived. The Court observed that the gas company had expressly stated that it did not intend to rely on its attorney's advice or state of mind to demonstrate that it acted reasonably when it bought out the contract. Because the attorney's advice or state of mind was not in issue, the Court found the privilege had not been waived (50 Cal. 3d 31, 42) . Further, the Court said that although the reasonableness of the buyout was at issue, a determination of whether the contract was enforceable was an objective one that did not depend on a particular attorney's analysis. Finally, the Court found that the information sought, although relevant, was not vital to a fair adjudication in the proceedings (50 Cal. 3d 31, 43) .

The facts and procedural background of Mitchell v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 591, 208 Cal. Rptr. 886, 691 P.2d 642 are discussed in § 81.89[3][h]. The trial court in Mitchell had granted the motion compelling discovery on the ground that plaintiff had placed her attorney's communications in issue by seeking damages for emotional distress because disclosure of these communications would help to determine the genuineness and reasonableness of her claim.

The Supreme Court granted plaintiff's petition for a writ of mandate compelling the trial court to vacate its order compelling discovery. The Court stated that while plaintiff's knowledge of the health hazards of the chemical was relevant and discoverable, the content of what she was told by her attorney was not put in issue (37 Cal. 3d 591, 607) .

The Court noted that in an action for intentional infliction of emotional distress, it is evidence of the outrageousness of the defendant's conduct that determines the genuineness of the claim, rather than any information provided by the plaintiff's attorney. The Court concluded that plaintiff had not put her attorney's communications directly in issue, and that disclosure of these communications was not necessary to a fair adjudication of the claim for emotional distress (37 Cal. 3d 591, 609) . Moreover, it said public policy considerations favored a finding of no waiver in such a case (37 Cal. 3d 591, 609-611) .

[b] No Implied Waiver After Party Has Been Designated Expert Witness

The facts and procedural background of Shooker v. Superior Court (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 923, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 334 are discussed in § 81.67[3][c]. In that case, the court of appeal issued a writ of mandate directing the trial court to enter a new order reflecting that plaintiff had not waived the attorney-client privilege. The court held that designation of a party as an expert trial witness is not in itself an implied waiver of the party's attorney-client privilege because the party's initial status is that of a possible expert witness. If the designation is withdrawn before the party discloses a significant part of a privileged communication (as in this case), or before it is known with reasonable certainty that the party will actually testify as an expert, the privilege is secure. However, if the party provides privileged documents or testifies as an expert (such as by stating his opinion in a declaration or at a deposition) the privilege is waived (111 Cal. App. 4th 923, 930-931) .

The court explained that in cases in which discovery was allowed, the expert had advanced from his initial role as a possible trial witness to the role of prospective trial witness, and no effort had been made by the proponent to withdraw the designation of that expert as a trial witness, even after the privilege issue was raised. In this case, plaintiff, who designated himself as an expert, appeared for his deposition, but recognized the privilege issue before he did anything more than identify his charts and the previously disclosed documents he had brought with him, and no confidential information was disclosed. On the facts of this case, plaintiff was entitled to relief (111 Cal. App. 4th 923, 931) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] No Implied Waiver Unless Privileged Communication Has Been Put in Issue

In Laguna Beach County Water Dist. v. Superior Court (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 1453, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 387 , plaintiff alleged defective construction of a reservoir near her home. Plaintiff served deposition subpoenas, but defendant water district refused to produce certain documents, mainly letters from the defendant district's attorney to a water agencies association and the defendant's auditors. The trial court ruled that any privilege or work product protections had been waived. On appeal, the court found that two of the letters were not subject to work product protection because they merely transmitted non-privileged documents (124 Cal. App. 4th 1453, 1458) . However, defendant's attorney did not waive the right to assert attorney work product protection by sending letters containing work product to defendant's auditors. The letters themselves made clear that the attorney did not intend to waive protection; he sent letters only to comply with defendant's request; and the third party auditors had an interest in maintaining the confidentiality of the work product (124 Cal. App. 4th 1453, 1459-1461) .

In Venture Law Group v. Superior Court (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 96, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 656 , a law firm and a former firm attorney filed a writ petition for relief from the trial court's discovery order compelling the attorney to answer deposition questions asked by real parties in interest about the legal advice given to the law firm's corporate client regarding a merger. Real parties in interest argued, in part, that the attorney's answers were not barred by the attorney-client privilege because the individual defendants had raised advice of counsel as a defense, thereby waiving the privilege by implication. The court of appeal disagreed. The implied waiver caused by asserting the advice of counsel defense is limited to situations in which "the client has placed into issue the decisions, conclusions, and mental state of the attorney who will be called as a witness to prove such matters." Here, there was no dispute that the defendants in their individual capacities as directors, officers, and majority shareholders of the merged corporation were not the clients of petitioner law firm. Rather, the successor corporation was the holder of the attorney-client privilege of the merged client corporation, as provided under Evid. Code § 953(d); and because the successor corporation had not waived the privilege, the attorney could not answer the deposition questions without violating the attorney-client privilege (118 Cal. App. 4th 96, 105-106) .

For further discussion of Venture Law Group v. Superior Court (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 96, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 656 refer to § 81.80[4][a].

In Kaiser Foundation Hospitals v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1217, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 543 , an action for sex discrimination andharassment, plaintiff sought to discover, among other things, the "complete investigation files ... for any and all complaints of sexual discrimination" involving defendant. In this case the defendant employer had arranged for nonattorney personnel to conduct the investigation, had already produced most of the documents in its investigation files, and had obtained a written stipulation between the parties that such production did not constitute a waiver as to any privileged communications made during the investigation between the employer, a or its nonattorney investigators, and employer's attorneys. The trial court nevertheless ruled that the employer could be compelled to produce documents otherwise protected by the attorney-client privilege and the attorney work product doctrine (66 Cal. App. 4th 1217, 1221-1222) . The employer sought review by writ, and the writ was granted (66 Cal. App. 4th 1217, 1229) .

Addressing the extent to which an employer may assert the protection of the attorney-client privilege and the attorney work product doctrine as to documents contained in its investigation files, when the employer pleads the adequacy of its prelitigation investigation into the claimed misconduct as a defense in the action, the court of appeal held that if an employer has produced the substance of relevant in-house investigations performed by nonattorney personnel and seeks only to protect specific communications between those personnel and the employer's attorneys, the protections afforded by the law for communications between attorneys and their clients are not waived (66 Cal. App. 4th 1217, 1219-1220, 1228-1229) . The court distinguished Wellpoint Health Networks, Inc. v. Superior Court, discussed below, noting that the court in Wellpoint posited a waiver only in the context of that case's particular circumstances, in which the employer's attorneys themselves had conducted the investigation, while the employer claimed the investigation was entirely privileged yet simultaneously placed its adequacy in issue by citing as a defense to the employee's charges. The court explained that Wellpoint does not make a blanket holding that the attorney-client privilege and the work product doctrine are waived in every case in which an employer puts the adequacy of its prelitigation investigation at issue (66 Cal. App. 4th 1217, 1225) .

In Wellpoint Health Networks, Inc. v. Superior Court (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 110, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844 , an employment discrimination action alleging a hostile work environment, plaintiff sought to discover documents resulting from an investigation of the workplace conducted by a lawyer retained by defendant. After the trial court sustained defendant's demurrer to plaintiff's second amended complaint, it granted plaintiff's motion to compel evidence. Defendant sought, and received, a stay of discovery from the court of appeal. Noting that the lawyer-client privilege and work product doctrine apply to prevent mandatory disclosure of such documents, the court of appeal said that the party opposing the privilege has the burden of showing that there has been a waiver (59 Cal. App. 4th 110 ,123-124). Such a waiver may be shown when the employer, hoping to prevail by showing that it investigated an employee's complaint and took action appropriate to the findings of that investigation, places the adequacy of that investigation directly at issue. When the adequacy of such an investigation is directly at issue, the lawyer-client privilege and attorney work product protection regarding that investigation are waived (59 Cal. App. 4th 110, 125-129) . However, the court found that because there was no complaint on file showing whether a hostile work environment theory was at issue or an indication of defense strategy, an order compelling discovery would be premature.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
B. Attorney-Client Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.91

§ 81.91 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Lawyer-Client Privilege [Evid. Code § 954] Applicable--Lawyer's Services Not Sought to Enable or Aid Commission of Crime or Fraud [Evid. Code § 956]

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30), as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the grounds of privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.20), and relating to the attorney-client privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.80).]

THE EXCEPTION UNDER EVIDENCE CODE SECTION 956 TO THE LAWYER-CLIENT PRIVILEGE APPLIES ONLY WHEN THE LAWYER'S SERVICES ARE SOUGHT TO COMMIT A CRIME OR FRAUD.

A. Privilege Applies Absent Crime or Fraud. The exception to the lawyer-client privilege under Evidence Code Section 956 is applicable only when the services of the lawyer were sought or obtained by the client to enable or aid anyone to commit or plan to commit a crime or a fraud (Evid. Code § 956; Glade v. Superior Court (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 738, 745, 143 Cal. Rptr. 119).

[Optional] B. Evidence Code Section 956 Exception Inapplicable When Lawyer Commits Crime or Fraud. The exception to the lawyer-client privilege provided by Evidence Code Section 956 does not apply to a lawyer's misuse of confidential information to defraud others if the client did not seek legal assistance to further thispurpose and was unaware of the lawyer's contemplated wrongdoing (Glade v. Superior Court (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 738, 745-746, 143 Cal. Rptr. 119).

[Optional] C. Validity of Claim of Privilege Must Be Determined Before Discovery Is Ordered. On a colorable claim of lawyer-client privilege, discovery of the allegedly privileged material may not be ordered until the validity of the claim is determined. If the only means to assess the validity of the claim requires examination of the purportedly privileged items, the court must examine the items in camera, regardless of the burdensome and time-consuming nature of the inspection (Geilim v. Superior Court (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 166, 173-177, 285 Cal. Rptr. 602 ; see Penal Code § 1524(c)).

[Optional] D. Proponent of Exception Must Show Something More Than Probable Cause. The crime-fraud exception to the lawyer-client privilege is very limited, and requires the proponent of the exception to prove the existence of a crime or fraud. Probable cause sufficient for issuance of a search warrant is not sufficient to establish a prima facie crime-fraud exception (Geilim v. Superior Court (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 166, 174-175, 285 Cal. Rptr. 602).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities in opposition to a motion for an order compelling discovery may be submitted by a party or other person who has resisted providing discovery on the ground that the material sought is privileged as a confidential lawyer-client communication, if the party moving to compel discovery contends that the privilege has been waived under the crime or fraud exception of Evid. Code § 956. This form does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to compelling discovery, as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the ground of privilege and relating to the lawyer-client privilege generally.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Privilege Applies Absent Crime or Fraud

In Glade v. Superior Court (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 738, 143 Cal. Rptr. 119 , an action for declaratory relief and damages against an attorney for conflict of interest, the court of appeal held that Evid. Code § 956 operates as an exception to the lawyer-client privilege only when the client abuses the professional relationship by seeking the lawyer's aid with the intent to enable or aid someone to commit a crime or fraud. Accordingly, the court held that the lawyer's misuse of confidential information to defraud others would not invoke the Evid. Code § 956 exception absent the clients' intent and knowledge, and thus there had been no waiver of the lawyer-client privilege (76 Cal. App. 3d 738, 745-746) .

[b] Evidence Code Section 956 Exception Inapplicable When Lawyer Commits Crime or Fraud

Glade v. Superior Court (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 738, 143 Cal. Rptr. 119 is discussed in [a], above.

[c] Validity of Claim of Privilege Must Be Determined Before Discovery Is Ordered

In Geilim v. Superior Court (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 166, 285 Cal. Rptr. 602 , a criminal action against a lawyer for insurance fraud, property was taken from defendant's office pursuant to a search warrant. Defendant moved for the return of the seized property, claiming that the lawyer-client privilege applied and that the warrant was overbroad. The trial court postponed the hearing on the motion, but ordered that all the property that had been sealed pursuant to Penal Code § 1524 could be unsealed by the State. Defendant petitioned for a writ of mandate/prohibition to prohibit the trial court from disclosing the items until after the hearing on the application of the lawyer-client privilege. Although the court of appeal denied the petition, the State Supreme Court granted defendant's petition for review, and transferred the matter back to the court of appeal with instructions to vacate its order.

The court of appeal granted the petition for writ of mandate/prohibition and ordered the trial court to conduct an in camera inspection to determine whether any of the seized documents were protected by the lawyer-client privilege or whether any of them were within the crime-fraud exception to that privilege. Evid. Code § 915(a) provides that in a Penal Code § 1524(c) hearing in which a claim of privilege is made and there is no other feasible means to rule on the validity of that claim other than to require disclosure, the court must conduct an in camera hearing. On a colorable claim of privilege, the court cannot order the unsealing of seized property until thevalidity of the claim is determined. If the only means to assess the validity of the claim requires examination of the purportedly privileged items, the court must examine the items in camera with only the person from whom disclosure is sought or the person authorized to claim the privilege, or both, and any other person authorized by the holder present.

If the judge determines that the information is privileged, neither the judge nor any other person may ever disclose, without the consent of a person authorized to permit disclosure, what was disclosed (234 Cal. App. 3d 166, 173-174) . Disclosure to the court for the purpose of determining the merits of a claim of privilege does not terminate the privilege (234 Cal. App. 3d 166, 176) . The court of appeal concluded that in camera inspection was warranted because the trial court ordered the disclosure with the expectation that the privilege could be claimed after examination by the State. That contradicts Evid. Code § 917 (now see Evid. Code § 917(a)), which creates a presumption of confidentiality and places the burden of proof to establish the nonprivileged nature of the item on the party seeking discovery. Once that party has free access to all the seized items, a substantial component of the privileged nature of the items would be destroyed, even if the information was never used. At the very least, disclosure prior to ruling on the status of the claimed privilege might invade an innocent client's right to privacy and implicate the privilege holder's due process rights. The fact that an in camera inspection might be burdensome and time-consuming does not render examination impractical. Rather, the seizure of a large quantity of materials increases the likelihood that privileged documents are gathered along with the legally seized property, thus making more urgent the need for careful, individualized review of each item (234 Cal. App. 3d 166, 176-177) .

[d] Proponent of Exception Must Show Something More Than Probable Cause

The facts and procedural background of Geilim v. Superior Court (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 166, 285 Cal. Rptr. 602 are discussed in [c], above. The Geilim court explained that the crime-fraud exception to lawyer-client privilege is very limited. The proponent of the exception bears the burden of proof of the existence of crime or fraud. The prosecutor argued that the "probable cause" requirement for issuance of the search warrant was sufficient to establish a prima facie crime-fraud exception. The court was not persuaded, however, noting that such an argument presumes that all the items seized pursuant to a warrant fall within the exception and disregards the possibility that items outside the scope of the warrant were seized (234 Cal. App. 3d 166, 174-175) . Determination of a claim of privilege requires an in camera inspection. The alleged privilege stands until the party seeking disclosure presents evidence sufficient to establish an exception (234 Cal. App. 3d 166, 176) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Privilege Applies Absent Crime or Fraud

In Nowell v. Superior Court (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 652, 36 Cal. Rptr. 21 , a libel action, one of the defendants refused to answer numerous questions at his deposition on the ground of lawyer-client privilege. The trial court granted plaintiff's motion to require answers. Defendants sought a writ of prohibition to restrain the trial court from enforcing its order, arguing that plaintiff had not shown that they had consulted their attorney with the intent to commit a crime or fraud, among other things, and therefore that the privilege had not been waived. The court of appeal agreed, holding that plaintiff's mere assertion of crime or fraud was not sufficient to find that defendants had waived the privilege, and that the exception to the privilege for crime or fraud did not extend to communications to an attorney involving contemplated tortious acts as well (223 Cal. App. 2d 652, 657) . Although Nowell was decided before 1967, the effective date of Evid. Code § 956, the court in Glade v. Superior Court (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 738, 143 Cal. Rptr. 119 stated that Evid. Code § 956 merely codified the common-law rule that had already been applied in California (76 Cal. App. 3d 738, 745) .

[b] Validity of Claim of Privilege Must Be Determined Before Discovery Is Ordered

In People v. Superior Court (Bauman & Rose) (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1757, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 734 , the Los Angeles District Attorney appealed the superior court's order sealing certain documents seized during a search of the respondents' law offices pursuant to a search warrant, as part of an investigation to uncover evidence of insurance fraud. The court of appeal affirmed. The court held that a trial court has the authority to hold an in camera hearing to determine the validity of an assertion of the attorney-client privilege by an attorney suspected of criminal activity (37 Cal. App. 4th 1757, 1767) [see § 81.223[4][a] (discussion of same case in context of work-product privilege)].

36 of 194 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
B. Attorney-Client Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities §§ 81.92-81.109

[Reserved]

§§ 81.92[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
C. Physician-Patient Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.110

§ 81.110 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Physician-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 994]--Disclosure of Patient's Name Is Not Always Privileged

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as well as with points and authorities generally refuting a claim of privilege (see, e.g., § 81.10).]

A DISCLOSURE OF THE PATIENT'S NAME THAT DOES NOT REVEAL ANY COMMUNICATION CONCERNING THE PATIENT'S AILMENTS DOES NOT VIOLATE THE PHYSICIAN-PATIENT PRIVILEGE.

Permissible Disclosure of Patient's Name. If the connecting factor between the patient whose identity is sought and the action that is before the court is not the patient's ailments and treatment, the identity of the patient is not within the physician-patient privilege (Ascherman v. Superior Court (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 506, 516, 62 Cal. Rptr. 547).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a motion for an order compelling discovery if a party or other person has resisted providing discovery on the ground that the patient's name is privileged, but in fact revealing the name would not reveal any communication concerning the patient's ailments. It does not provide a complete memorandum, but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of compelling discovery, as well as a form refuting a claim of privilege, generally.

Counsel who also wish to set out general points relating to the physician-patient privilege may adapt the form in opposition to a motion to compel discovery set out in § 81.120, and combine it with this form.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Permissible Disclosure of Patient's Name

In Ascherman v. Superior Court (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 506, 62 Cal. Rptr. 547 , plaintiff brought two actions for reinstatement of his hospital staff privileges. While deposing another physician, plaintiff's counsel attempted to ascertain the name of one of that physician's patients. The deponent had accused plaintiff of soliciting surgery from that patient, but refused to reveal the patient's name, claiming the physician-patient privilege.

In overturning an order that awarded sanctions against plaintiff and his attorneys and that arose from proceedings to compel answers to the deposition question, the court of appeal considered whether the patient's name was privileged information under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1881(4), which set forth the physician-patient privilege at the time in question. The court stated that the communication involved had no relation to treatment or to the patient's ailment. Because it is not necessary for a physician to know the name of the patient in order to treat him or her, and because any unethical solicitation by another is unrelated to information communicated to enable the physician to prescribe or act for the patient, the communication was not privileged (254 Cal. App. 2d 506, 515-516) .

The court in Ascherman distinguished Costa v. Regents of Univ. of California (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 445, 463-464, 254 P.2d 85 in which an objection to a request for a patient's name was upheld. In that case, the factors connecting the patient and the action before the court were the patient's ailments and the physician's treatment, and the information was therefore within the policy of the privilege.

Counsel should note that although Ascherman was decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1881(4), and the physician-patient privilege is now governed by Evid. Code §§ 990-1007, the rule of Ascherman was cited with approval in Rudnick v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 924, 933-934 fn. 13, 114 Cal. Rptr. 603, 523 P.2d 643 , a case relating to the physician-patient privilege as set forth in the Evidence Code. For a discussion of Rudnick, see § 81.20[3][a], and for a discussion of cases holding that a patient's name is not discoverable under certain circumstances, see § 81.121.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
C. Physician-Patient Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.111

§ 81.111 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Physician-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 994]--Purpose of Communication Not to Obtain Diagnosis of Subject's Condition [Evid. Code § 991]

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as well as with points and authorities generally refuting a claim of privilege (see, e.g., § 81.10).]

THE PHYSICIAN-PATIENT PRIVILEGE DOES NOT PROTECT A COMMUNICATION MADE TO A PHYSICIAN WHEN THAT COMMUNICATION IS MADE FOR A PURPOSE OTHER THAN THAT OF SECURING A DIAGNOSIS OR TREATMENT.

Communication to Physician for Nondiagnostic Purpose Not Privileged. The physician-patient privilege only arises when a person consults a physician or submits to an examination by a physician for the purpose of securing a diagnosis or treatment of his or her physical or mental or emotional condition. When the purpose of a communication with a physician is for a different purpose, the physician-patient privilege is inapplicable (Evid. Code § 991; Kizer v. Sulnick (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 431, 439, 248 Cal. Rptr. 712).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a motion for an order compelling discovery if a party or other person has resisted providing discovery on the ground that a communication to a physician is privileged, but in fact the communication was for a purpose other than securing a diagnosis or treatment of the subject's medical condition. It does not provide a complete memorandum, but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of compelling discovery, as well as a form refuting a claim of privilege generally.

Counsel who also wish to set out general points relating to the physician-patient privilege may adapt the form in oppositionto a motion to compel discovery set out in § 81.120, and combine it with this form.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Communication to Physician for Nondiagnostic Purpose Not Privileged

In Kizer v. Sulnick (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 431, 248 Cal. Rptr. 712 , as part of an investigation of whether a waste facility presented a threat to public health, the director of the Department of Health Services issued an administrative subpoena duces tecum to a private attorney to produce records generated as part of a health study of persons residing near the facility. The attorney had secured the study in connection with a lawsuit for personal injuries brought by a residents' group against the waste facility. The attorney refused to comply with the subpoena duces tecum, arguing that the records were protected on a number of grounds, among them the physician-patient privilege. The director filed a petition to compel compliance. The trial court denied the petition, and the director appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. The court cited Evid. Code § 991, which provides that the physician-patient privilege arises when a person "consults a physician or submits to an examination by a physician for the purpose of securing a diagnosis or preventive, palliative, or curative treatment." The party asserting the physician-patient privilege has the burden of proof regarding its existence. The court noted that although the brief description of the health effects study suggested that participation by the residents might constitute consultation with a physician, there was no evidence that the purpose of the communication was to obtain a diagnosis of the subjects' condition. Rather, the purpose appeared to be to determine whether a statistically significant portion of the residents shared similar medical complaints in order to ascertain whether the presence of the waste facility was the cause of these symptoms. The court said that participation in such a group study does not invoke the same considerations of confidentiality as an individual's communication with his or her doctor. It concluded that the record did not support a finding that the attorney had sustained his burden of proof that the physician-patient privilege was applicable (202 Cal. App. 3d 431, 439) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
C. Physician-Patient Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.112

§ 81.112 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Physician-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 994]--Waiver by Disclosure [Evid. Code §§ 912(a), 992]

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general memorandum in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as well as with points and authorities generally refuting a claim of privilege (see, e.g., § 81.10).]

THE PHYSICIAN-PATIENT PRIVILEGE IS WAIVED BY THE HOLDER'S DISCLOSURE OF THE CONFIDENTIAL COMMUNICATION.

A. Privilege Waived by Disclosure of Communication. The right of any person to claim the physician-patient privilege is waived with respect to a protected communication if any holder of the privilege, without coercion, has disclosed a significant part of the communication or has consented to disclosure made by anyone (Evid. Code § 912(a)).

B. Consent to Disclosure May Be Manifested by Failure to Assert Privilege, or Other Conduct Indicating Consent. Consent to disclosure is manifested by any statement or other conduct of the holder of the privilege indicating consent to the disclosure, including failure to claim the privilege in any proceeding in which the holder has the legal standing and opportunity to claim the privilege (Evid. Code § 912(a); Manela v. Superior Court (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1139, 1146-1147, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 736).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a motion for an order compelling discovery if a party or other person has opposed discovery on the ground that the information sought is a privileged communication between physician and patient, when the privilege has been waived by the holder through disclosure of a significant part of the communication.

This form does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general memorandum in support of compelling discovery, as well as a memorandum refuting a claim of privilege generally.

Counsel who wish to set out general points relating to the physician-patient privilege as well may adapt the memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery set out in § 81.120 and combine them with this form.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Privilege Waived by Disclosure of Communication

The right of any person to claim the physician-patient privilege of Evid. Code § 994 is waived (with exceptions not applicable here) with respect to a communication protected by that privilege if any holder of the privilege, without coercion, has disclosed a significant part of the communication, or has consented to such disclosure by anyone (Evid. Code § 912(a); see Evid. Code 992 ("confidential communication between patient and physician" defined); see also Evid. Code § 912(b)-(d) (exceptions)).

[b] Consent to Disclosure May Be Manifested by Failure to Assert Privilege, or Other Conduct Indicating Consent

Manela v. Superior Court (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1139, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 736 was a marital dissolution action brought by the real party in interest, a father, against the petitioner, the mother. The mother opposed joint custody of the couple's 4-year-old child and claimed that the father's medical records would support her allegations regarding the father's seizures. The superior court granted the father's motion to quash subpoenas for the medical records of two of the father's physicians on the ground that the documents were protected by the physician-patient privilege. The mother petitioned for a writ of mandate.

The court of appeal held that the trial court abused its discretion by quashing the subpoena to a doctor who had examined the father regarding his neurological condition. The father had waived the physician-patient privilege under Evid. Code §§ 912(a) and 992 with respect to certain medical records, because the mother was present during the father's intake exam with his neurologist, and the father consented to disclosure of significant part of his communications with the neurologist on that date (177 Cal. App. 4th 1139, 1146-1147) . Moreover, the father's filing of another physician's declaration, stating that he had treated father for the past nine years for hypnagogic movements, waived the privilege with respect to those records (177 Cal. App. 4th 1139, 1147-1148) . However, in keeping with the fact that the scope of the waiver of a privilege is generally construed narrowly, the disclosure of the father's communications with his current physicians did not relate back to the father's communications to a doctor who treated the father for seizures as a teenager. Access to the earlier records would undermine the father's interest in disclosing all necessary information to his treating physician. Therefore, the father's waiver of the physician-patient privilege with respect to his two current physicians did not waive the privilege with respect to the doctor who treated father as a child (177 Cal. App. 4th 1139, 1148) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
C. Physician-Patient Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities §§ 81.113-81.119

[Reserved]

§§ 81.113[Reserved]

41 of 194 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
C. Physician-Patient Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.120

§ 81.120 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Physician-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 994] Applicable--General Form

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30), as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the grounds of privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.20).]

THE INFORMATION SOUGHT IS NOT DISCOVERABLE BECAUSE IT IS PRIVILEGED UNDER THE PHYSICIAN-PATIENT PRIVILEGE.

A. Claimant of Privilege. The privilege may be claimed by: (1) the holder of the privilege, that is, the patient, a guardian or conservator of a patient, or the personal representative of a deceased patient; (2) a person authorized to claim the privilege by the holder of the privilege; or (3) the physician who received the confidential communication (Evid. Code §§ 993, 994; Rudnick v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 924, 929, 114 Cal. Rptr. 603, 523 P.2d 643).

B. Dual Purposes of Privilege. The physician-patient privilege creates a zone of privacy for the purposes of (1) avoiding humiliation of the patient following disclosure of his or her ailments, and (2) encouraging the patient's full disclosure to the physician of all information necessary for effective diagnosis and treatment. Disclosure that subverts these purposes is violative of the privilege (Binder v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 893, 898, 242 Cal. Rptr. 231).

C. Definition of Confidential Communication. A confidential communication between a patient and physician means information, including information obtained by an examination, transmitted between a patient and his or her physician in the course of that relationship and in confidence by a means which, so far as the patient is aware, does not disclose the information to third persons other than those present to further the patient's interest in the consultation, or those to whom disclosure is reasonably necessary for the transmission of the information or the accomplishment of the purpose for which the physician is consulted. A diagnosis madeand the advice given by the physician in the course of the relationship are confidential communications (Evid. Code § 992; Binder v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 893, 897, 242 Cal. Rptr. 231).

D. "Confidentiality" Liberally Construed in Favor of Patient. The provisions of Section 992 of the Evidence Code, which define confidential communications between a patient and physician, must be liberally construed in favor of the patient (Carlton v. Superior Court (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 282, 288, 67 Cal. Rptr. 568).

E. Presumption of Confidentiality. When it is claimed that the matter sought to be disclosed is a communication made in the course of the physician-patient relationship, the communication is presumed to have been made in confidence. The opponent of the claim of privilege has the burden of establishing that the communication was not confidential (Evid. Code § 917(a); Palay v. Superior Court (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 919, 926 n.7, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839 ; Carlton v. Superior Court (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 282, 288-289, 67 Cal. Rptr. 568).

[Add points and authorities relating to the applicability of this privilege in the specific factual context (see, e.g., § 81.121 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities in opposition to a motion for an order compelling discovery may be submitted by a party or other person who has resisted providing discovery on the ground that the material sought is privileged as a confidential physician-patient communication [see Evid. Code § 990 et seq.]. It does not provide a complete memorandum, but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to compelling discovery, as well as points and authorities relating to the particular factual situation.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in § 81.110 et seq.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[c] Related Uses

This form may be combined with a memorandum in opposition to discovery based on the right to privacy [see, e.g., § 81.250 et seq.] or with a memorandum in support of a motion for a protective order [see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.80 et seq.].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Claimant of Privilege

Evid. Code § 994 sets out the conditions under which a patient may refuse to disclose, or prevent another from disclosing, a confidential communication between patient and physician. It includes a "holder" of the privilege; "holder" is defined in Evid. Code § 993. Evid. Code § 995 states that the physician who received or made a communication subject to the privilege shall claim the privilege whenever he or she is present when the communication is sought to be disclosed, there is a holder of the privilege in existence, and the physician is not otherwise instructed by the person authorized to permit disclosure [see Evid. Code §§ 994(c), 995].

The facts and procedural background of Rudnick v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 924, 114 Cal. Rptr. 603, 523 P.2d 643 are discussed in § 81.20[3][a]. In considering the question of whether a third party may claim the physician-patient privilege, the Supreme Court stated that Evid. Code § 994 limits the right to claim the physician-patient privilege to the holder of the privilege, a person authorized to claim the privilege by the holder of the privilege, or the physician who received the confidential communication (11 Cal. 3d 924, 929) . For a discussion of this case as it relates to a third party's claim of the privilege, see § 81.122[3][a].

[b] Dual Purposes of Privilege

In Binder v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 893, 242 Cal. Rptr. 231 , plaintiffs brought a medical malpractice action on behalf of their decedent who died allegedly due to defendant dermatologist's failure to diagnose the decedent patient's skin lesions as melanoma. Defendant's customary practice was to take photographs of all patients' skin lesions. As part of their discovery, plaintiffs requested defendant to produce any photographs in his possession depicting a lesion suspected to be or diagnosed as melanoma. Defendant objected, claiming that compliance with the request would violate the physician-patient privilege. The trial court granted plaintiffs' motion to compel defendant to comply with the request. After his motion for reconsideration was denied, defendant petitioned for a writ of mandate to vacate the trial court's order.

The court of appeal granted the petition. The court stated that the physician-patient privilege creates a zone of privacy for the purposes of preventing humiliation of the patient that might follow disclosure of his or her ailments, and encouraging the patient's full disclosure to the physician of all information necessary for effective diagnosis and treatment of the patient. The patient should have the assurance of knowing that the law recognizes the communication as confidential and guards against the possibility of his or her feelings being shocked or his or her reputation being tarnished by its subsequent disclosure. The court noted that matters disclosed to a physician arise in very sensitive areas that are often difficult to reveal even to the doctor. Unauthorized disclosure of such matters can provoke more than just simple humiliation in a fragile personality. The reasonable expectation that such personal matters will remain with the physician are no less important in a physician-patient relationship than in a relationship between patient and psychotherapist. The court concluded that the individual's right to privacy encompasses not only the state of his or her mind, but also his or her viscera, detailed complaints of physical ills, and their emotional overtones (196 Cal. App. 3d 893, 898) .

The court found that disclosure of the photographs as requested by plaintiffs would subvert both objectives of the physician-patient privilege. First, it would undoubtedly shock and humiliate present and former patients of defendant to learn that pictures of their bodies and ailments would be turned over to strangers. Furthermore, it is probable the patients' sensibilities would be offended whether or not their identities were disclosed together with the photographs (196 Cal. App. 3d 893, 898) . The court distinguished dictum in Rudnick v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 924, 114 Cal. Rptr. 603, 523 P.2d 643 (discussed in [a], above), which plaintiffs argued supported disclosure so long as the identity of the patients is not revealed. The court observed that having an ailment depicted in a photograph is quite different from having a description of an ailment read. The court also opined that a rule compelling disclosure of patient photographs would discourage patients from allowing physicians to photograph their ailments or other conditions (196 Cal. App. 3d 893, 898-899) .

[c] Definition of Confidential Communication

The facts and procedural background of Binder v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 893, 242 Cal. Rptr. 231 are discussed in [b], above. In Binder, the court of appeal found that photographs were taken in conjunction with and as part of defendant's examination of his patients. The court said they were taken strictly in the course of the physician-patient relationship. Moreover, both defendant and his patients understood that the photographs would be disclosed to no third persons other than those present during the taking of the photographs and medical personnel to whom disclosure would be reasonably necessary for the patient'streatment. The court characterized defendant's purpose in taking the photographs as the obtaining of confidential and private information regarding the patients' condition to assist in rendering proper diagnosis and treatment. Thus, the photographs were clearly "confidential communications" within the meaning of Evid. Code § 992 (196 Cal. App. 3d 893, 897) .

[d] "Confidentiality" Liberally Construed in Favor of Patient

Plaintiff in Carlton v. Superior Court (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 282, 67 Cal. Rptr. 568 brought an action for damages for personal injuries sustained while he was a guest in an automobile driven by defendant who was allegedly intoxicated at the time of the accident. Plaintiff made a motion for inspection and copying under Code Civ. Proc. § 2031 (as it existed prior to the 1974 enactment of a provision providing for a self-executing request for inspection and the 1986 revision providing for a self-executing demand for inspection (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2031.010 et seq.) of hospital records relating to the care and treatment of defendant on the date of the accident. Defendant opposed the motion on the ground that the records sought were confidential communications between him and his physician and were protected by the physician-patient privilege. The trial court granted the motion, limiting the inspection to materials relating to defendant's intoxicated condition. The custodian of records refused to open the records, and plaintiff brought another motion for an order requiring inspection of the records, and served a subpoena duces tecum by which the records were brought before the court. The court then issued an order for the court to examine the records to select the ones that were to be inspected. Defendant sought a writ of prohibition restraining the court from enforcing these orders.

Since defendant did not raise the issues of whether it was proper to proceed under Code Civ. Proc. § 2031 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 2031.010 et seq.) to inspect the records of a nonparty hospital or whether there was good cause for the order, the court of appeal did not consider those issues. It did, however, grant a writ directing the trial court to vacate its orders (261 Cal. App. 2d 282, 286-287) . In considering whether the physician-patient privilege applied, the court noted that the privilege extends no further than a confidential communication between patient and physician and that the terms of Evid. Code § 992, defining a confidential communication, must be liberally construed in favor of the patient (261 Cal. App. 2d 282, 288) . The court also pointed out that pursuant to Evid. Code § 917 (now see Evid. Code § 917(a)), when there is a claim that the matter sought to be disclosed is a communication made in the course of the physician-patient relationship, the communication is presumed to have been made in confidence and the opponent of the privilege has the burden of establishing that the communication was not confidential (261 Cal. App. 2d 282 ,288-289). The court found the material in question to be privileged under the physician-patient privilege, that it was not subject to the patient-litigant exception to the physician-patient privilege [see § 81.124], and that the court had improperly ordered an in camera inspection of the records (261 Cal. App. 2d 282, 289-293) .

[e] Presumption of Confidentiality

In Palay v. Superior Court (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 919, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839 , the court reiterated the general rule that communications between patient and physician are presumptively confidential. The burden of proof to establish otherwise is on the opponent pursuant to Evid. Code § 917 (now see Evid. Code § 917(a)) (18 Cal. App. 4th 919, 926 n.7).

Carlton v. Superior Court (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 282, 67 Cal. Rptr. 568 is discussed in [d], above.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
C. Physician-Patient Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.121

§ 81.121 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Physician-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 994] Applicable--Patient's Name as Privileged Under Certain Circumstances

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30), as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the grounds of privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.20), and relating to the physician-patient privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.120).]

THE PATIENT'S NAME IS PROTECTED FROM DISCLOSURE BY THE PHYSICIAN-PATIENT PRIVILEGE BECAUSE REVEALING THE NAME WOULD REVEAL A COMMUNICATION CONCERNING THE PATIENT'S CONDITION OR DIAGNOSIS.

Patient's Name Is Privileged. A patient's name is privileged from disclosure if the context would reveal any communication concerning the patient's condition or the physician's diagnosis (Marcus v. Superior Court (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 22, 25, 95 Cal. Rptr. 545).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities in opposition to a motion for an order compelling discovery may be submitted by a party or other person who has resisted providing discovery on the ground that disclosure of a patient's name is privileged. It does not provide a complete memorandum, but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to compelling discovery, as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the ground of privilege and relating to the physician-patient privilege generally.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in § 81.110.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Patient's Name Is Privileged

In Marcus v. Superior Court (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 22, 95 Cal. Rptr. 545 , plaintiff sought to recover damages from a physician and hospital for damages allegedly sustained when defendants performed various tests on him. Plaintiff sought disclosure through depositions, interrogatories, and a motion to produce documents, of the names and addresses of other patients to whom defendants gave angiographic testing, and defendants sought protective orders relieving them from disclosing this information. The trial court ordered defendants to supply plaintiff with the names and addresses of the eight patients who received the test before plaintiff did, and of the eight patients who received the test after plaintiff, including two patients who developed complications. Defendants applied to the court of appeal for a writ of prohibition setting aside the discovery order on the ground that it violated the physician-patient privilege of Evid. Code §§ 990-1007.

The court of appeal issued the writ. The court stated that a patient who received the test from defendant physician would have communicated to the physician facts about himself or herself indicating the need for the testing. By listing the persons who received the tests, the physician would necessarily reveal the confidential information (18 Cal. App. 3d 22, 24) . The court applied the rule of Costa v. Regents of Univ. of California (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 445, 463, 254 P.2d 85 in which such a disclosure washeld to violate the physician-patient privilege that existed under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1881(4). The court in Marcus also recognized that the disclosure of a patient's name does not necessarily violate the privilege, citing as an example Ascherman v. Superior Court (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 506, 62 Cal. Rptr. 547 , as a case in which the context in which the patient's name was disclosed did not reveal any part of a communication concerning the patient's condition or diagnosis (18 Cal. App. 3d 22, 25) . Ascherman is discussed in § 81.110[3][a], and involved disclosure of the name of a patient who had allegedly accused plaintiff physician of soliciting him as a patient for surgery.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Patient's Name Is Privileged

Rudnick v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 924, 114 Cal. Rptr. 603, 523 P.2d 643 is discussed in § 81.120[3][a]. The Supreme Court stated that the record indicated "sporadic and unclear concern by the parties as to the discoverability of patients' names in the context of the physician-patient privilege" (11 Cal. 3d 924, 933 fn. 13). Therefore, the Court discussed guidelines for the trial court. The Court cited Ascherman v. Superior Court (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 506, 62 Cal. Rptr. 547 (discussed in § 81.110[3][a]), for the rule that if disclosure of the patient's name reveals nothing of any communication concerning the patient's ailment, disclosure of the patient's name does not violate the privilege (11 Cal. 3d 924, 933 n.13). If, however, the disclosure of the patient's name would inevitably reveal in the context of the disclosure the confidential information, that is, the ailments, the disclosure would violate the privilege (11 Cal. 3d 924, 933-934, n.13 , citing Marcus v. Superior Court (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 22, 95 Cal. Rptr. 545 ; Costa v. Regents of Univ. of California (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 445, 463, 254 P.2d 85).

In Blue Cross v. Superior Court (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 798, 132 Cal. Rptr. 635 , the court of appeal found that the trial court had improperly ruled that an interrogatory seeking the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of Blue Cross subscribers, other than plaintiff, who had filed claims for psoriasis treatment did not seek privileged information (61 Cal. App. 3d 798, 801-802) . This case is discussed in § 81.123[3][a].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
C. Physician-Patient Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.122

§ 81.122 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Physician-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 994] Applicable--Claim of Privilege by Third-Party Recipient of Material

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30), as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the grounds of privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.20), and relating to the physician-patient privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.120).]

A THIRD PERSON TO WHOM DISCLOSURE OF A CONFIDENTIAL PHYSICIAN-PATIENT COMMUNICATION IS NECESSARY TO ACCOMPLISH THE PURPOSE FOR WHICH THE PHYSICIAN WAS CONSULTED MAY CLAIM THE PRIVILEGE.

Third Party Is Able to Claim Privilege. A third person has the right to claim the physician-patient privilege if the physician discloses, in confidence, communications protected by the privilege, with or without the consent of the patient, to a third person to whom disclosure is reasonably necessary for the accomplishment of the purpose for which the physician was consulted. The third person has thereby become a person authorized by the holder of the privilege to claim it, within the meaning of Section 994 of the Evidence Code (Rudnick v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 924, 932, 114 Cal. Rptr. 603, 523 P.2d 643).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities in opposition to a motion for an order compelling discovery may be submitted by a party or other person who has resisted providing discovery on the ground that he or she is a third-party recipient of a confidential physician-patient communication. It does not provide a complete memorandum, but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to compelling discovery, as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the ground of privilege and relating to the physician-patient privilege generally.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Third Party Is Able to Claim Privilege

The facts and procedural background of Rudnick v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 924, 114 Cal. Rptr. 603, 523 P.2d 643 are discussed in § 81.20[3][a]. The Supreme Court stated that the existence of a confidential patient-physician communication as defined by Evid. Code § 992 appears to be determined at the time the information is communicated to, or ascertained by, the physician, and that the contents of the adverse drug reaction reports seemed to constitute a confidential communication and were protected by the privilege. The Court, therefore, was concerned only with the effect of the disclosure by the physicians to defendants (11 Cal. 3d 924, 930) .

Under Evid. Code § 912(d), disclosure in confidence of a privileged communication is not a waiver of the privilege if the disclosure was reasonably necessary for the accomplishment of the purpose for which the physician was consulted (11 Cal. 3d 924, 930) . However, if the disclosure was not reasonably necessary to accomplish such purpose, a patient who expressly or impliedly consented to the disclosure would have waived the privilege, while a patient who did not consent to the disclosure would not have waived the privilege (11 Cal. 3d 924, 932) . In considering the question of whether defendant drug companies could claim the physician-patient privilege, the Court in Rudnick stated that Evid. Code § 994 limits the right to claim that privilege to (1) the holder of the privilege, (2) a person authorized to claim the privilege by the holder, and (3) the physician who received the communication (11 Cal. 3d 924, 929) . The drug companies were neither the patient (the holder pursuant to Evid. Code § 993), nor the physician, so they could claim the privilege only on the basis that they were authorized to do so by the patient (11 Cal. 3d 924, 929) . Since there was no indication that the drug companies were expressly authorized to claim the privilege, the question was whether they had authorization impliedly, as a matter of law (11 Cal. 3d 924, 929) .

The Court held that if the disclosure to the third person is reasonably necessary for the accomplishment of the purpose for which the physician was consulted, the third person has the right to claim the privilege on behalf of the patient, as the third person has thereby become a person authorized to claim the privilege by the holder within the meaning of Evid. Code § 994 (11 Cal. 3d 924, 932) . However, if the disclosure is not necessary to accomplish the purpose for which the physician was consulted, the third person may not claim the privilege even if the patient didnot consent to the disclosure and therefore did not waive the privilege (11 Cal. 3d 924, 933) . Under such circumstances, the third person is not a person authorized by the holder to claim the privilege because there is nothing in the Evidence Code, or its history or interpretation, or in reason, to warrant such a conclusion (11 Cal. 3d 924, 933) . In such cases, the third person cannot claim the privilege on behalf of the patient, but the trial court may, in its discretion, on its own motion or on the third person's motion protect the physician-patient privilege of an absent patient who has not waived the privilege (11 Cal. 3d 924, 934) . The Court in Rudnick returned the case to the trial court to determine whether the defendants were authorized to claim that the reports were privileged (11 Cal. 3d 924, 934) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
C. Physician-Patient Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.123

§ 81.123 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Physician-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 994] Applicable--Information Transmitted to Third Party for Purpose of Payment of Physician's Fee

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30), as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the grounds of privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.20), and relating to the physician-patient privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.120).]

A CONFIDENTIAL PHYSICIAN-PATIENT COMMUNICATION TRANSMITTED TO A THIRD PARTY TO ACCOMPLISH PAYMENT OF A PHYSICIAN'S FEES RETAINS PROTECTION OF THE PHYSICIAN-PATIENT PRIVILEGE.

Information Transmitted for Payment of Fee Is Privileged. Transmittal of information to a third party for the purpose of payment of the physician's fee is reasonably necessary to achieve the diagnostic and treatment purposes of the patient's consultation with his or her physician. Confidentiality of the information is retained and no waiver of the physician-patient privilege occurs (Blue Cross v. Superior Court (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 798, 800-801, 132 Cal. Rptr. 635).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities in opposition to a motion for an order compelling discovery may be submitted by a party or other person who has resisted providing discovery on the ground that information transmitted for the purpose of payment of medical expenses, such as a claim to a prepaid health care plan, is privileged under the physician-patient privilege. It does not provide a complete memorandum, but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to compelling discovery, as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the ground of privilege and relating to the physician-patient privilege generally.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Information Transmitted for Payment of Fee Is Privileged

In Blue Cross v. Superior Court (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 798, 132 Cal. Rptr. 635 , plaintiff brought an action against Blue Cross for wrongful refusal to pay medical expenses she had incurred for psoriasis treatment. Plaintiff propounded an interrogatory to Blue Cross seeking the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of other Blue Cross subscribers who had filed claims for the same treatment. Blue Cross objected to the interrogatory, claiming overbreadth and privilege. The trial court sustained the first ground of objection, but overruled the assertion of privilege and rejected a request for a protective order which Blue Cross had sought to preserve the anonymity of the subscribers in question. Blue Cross then filed a petition for mandate or prohibition.

The court of appeal issued an order to show cause to consider the issue of whether disclosure of the requested information to a third party, in this case the operator of a prepaid health plan, caused loss of confidentiality or waiver of the privilege. In deciding the issue, the court considered Evid. Code § 992, which states that confidentiality is lost by disclosure to a third person unless the "disclosure is reasonably necessary for the ... accomplishment of the purpose for which the physician is consulted." The court also pointed out the parallel provision of Evid. Code § 912(d), the section relating to waiver of confidential communication privileges, which provides, in effect, that the privilege is not waived by such a "reasonably necessary"disclosure (61 Cal. App. 3d 798, 800) . The court stated that anticipated payment is a prerequisite of medical care if financial recourse to a prepaid health plan is involved, and determination of such coverage unavoidably calls for disclosure of the patient's name and ailment (61 Cal. App. 3d 798, 801) . Such disclosure, therefore, is reasonably necessary to achieve the diagnostic and treatment purposes of the consultation. The court concluded that confidentiality of the information had not been lost, the privilege had not been waived, and the trial court had exceeded its authority when it ordered a response to the interrogatory (61 Cal. App. 3d 798, 801-802) . The court of appeal therefore issued a writ of mandate directing the trial court to vacate its order.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
C. Physician-Patient Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.124

§ 81.124 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Physician-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 994] Applicable--Patient-Litigant Exception [Evid. Code § 996] Not Applicable

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30), as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the grounds of privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.20), and relating to the physician-patient privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.120).]

A PARTY SEEKING RECOVERY FOR PHYSICAL INJURIES WAIVES THE PHYSICIAN-PATIENT PRIVILEGE ONLY REGARDING THE CONDITIONS THAT PARTY HAS PLACED IN QUESTION.

Narrow Interpretation of Patient-Litigant Exception. The courts have placed a narrow interpretation on Section 996 of the Evidence Code, the patient-litigant exception to the physician-patient privilege. Although a litigant seeking recovery for physical injuries waives his or her physician-patient privilege regarding information concerning the medical conditions which that litigant has put in issue, and which are in question, all of the litigant's past medical history is not open to scrutiny (Britt v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 844, 849, 864, 143 Cal. Rptr. 695, 574 P.2d 766 ; Hallendorf v. Superior Court (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 553, 557, 149 Cal. Rptr. 564).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities in opposition to a motion for an order compelling discovery may be submitted by a party or other person who has resisted providing discovery on the ground that the material is privileged under the physician-patient privilege if the moving party has contended that the patient waived the privilege by bringing the lawsuit [see Evid. Code § 996]. It does not provide a complete memorandum, but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to compelling discovery, as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the ground of privilege and relating to the physician-patient privilege generally.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For instance, counsel should set forth the medical conditions that are in issue in the action and show how the information sought through discovery does not concern those conditions.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Narrow Interpretation of Patient-Litigant Exception

In Britt v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 844, 143 Cal. Rptr. 695, 574 P.2d 766 , plaintiffs brought an action seeking compensation for diminution of property values, personal injuries, and emotional disturbance, all allegedly due to the operation of an airfield as a facility for jet aircraft. Defendants sought to obtain certain information by deposition, and also served all 936 plaintiffs with interrogatories that included a request for a complete account of their entire medical histories covering all illnesses, physical injuries, and mental or emotional disturbances for which plaintiffs sought treatment at any time during their lives. Plaintiffs moved for a protective order challenging defendant's unlimited demand for medical information, and defendant moved for an order compelling answers to its questions. The trial court denied plaintiffs' motion for a protective order, granting defendant's motion to compel answers to deposition questions relating to the associational activities of plaintiffs and others, and fixed a deadline for plaintiffs to answer the interrogatories. Plaintiffs sought an extraordinary writ to restrain the trial court from requiring them to supply such information, and the Supreme Court issued an order to show cause.

The Court in Britt found that at least a significant portion of the medical histories sought to be discovered was privileged under Evid. Code §§ 992 (physician-patient) and 1012 (psychotherapist-patient) (20 Cal. 3d 844, 862) [see discussion in § 81.151[4][a]). The Court also discussed Evid. Code § 996, which establishes the patient-litigant exception to the physician-patient privilege, and provides that there is no privilege for communications relevant to an issue tendered by the patient concerning the condition of the patient. However, the Court noted (relying on In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 435, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557) that communications not relevant to those specific conditions do not fall within the terms of the exception and remain privileged (20 Cal. 3d 844, 863-864) . The Court, therefore, issued the writ, holding that the trial court's discovery order was impermissibly overbroad and that plaintiffs, while they may not withhold information that relates to any physical or mental condition that they put in issue by bringing the lawsuit, are entitled to retain the confidentiality of all unrelated past treatments (20 Cal. 3d 844, 864) . The Court did point out that defendant would be entitled to discover information relating to illness or injuries which, although not attributed to defendant's conduct, contributed to a medical condition put in issue by plaintiff (20 Cal. 3d 844, 864 n.9).

Plaintiff in Hallendorf v. Superior Court (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 553, 149 Cal. Rptr. 564 brought an action for damages arising from a collision with defendant's automobile. Defendant propounded interrogatories to plaintiff requesting information about medical problems before or since the accident, other than those caused by the accident, as well as a list of the names of all doctors examining or treating plaintiff for any medical condition before the accident, and a list of all hospitals in which plaintiff had been an in-patient or out-patient during his lifetime. Plaintiff refused to respond on the ground that the information was unrelated to injuries complained of in the action, and directed his physician of 20 years not to comply with a subpoena duces tecum seeking all of plaintiff's medical records. Defendant moved to compel answers to the interrogatories and compliance with the subpoena duces tecum on the ground that plaintiff had waived the physician-patient privilege under the patient-litigant exception of Evid. Code § 996. The trial court issued an order compelling answers to the interrogatories and enforcing the subpoena duces tecum. The court of appeal adopted the narrow interpretation of the patient-litigant exception set forth by the court in Britt, above, found the trial court's discovery order to be clearly overbroad, and issued a peremptory writ of prohibition (85 Cal. App. 3d 553, 557) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Narrow Interpretation of Patient-Litigant Exception

In Allison v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 654, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 915 , petitioner sought relief from an order of a workers'compensation judge directing her to answer questions relating to her general past medical history, asserting that the information was protected by her privacy rights and by the physician-patient privilege. Citing Britt v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 844, 143 Cal. Rptr. 695, 574 P.2d 766 discussed in [3][a], above, the court of appeal declined to determine with precision which portion of the requested discovery information was privileged and which was not because the discovery authorized by the challenged order was clearly overbroad. The court noted that "on remand the defendant will bear responsibility for framing narrower, more precisely tailored [discovery] which do[es] not improperly impinge on privileged information" (72 Cal. App. 4th 654, 661) . The court explained that defendant's own medical expert's analysis of plaintiff's workers' compensation claim, based on injury to her wrist, narrowed the scope of discovery to something far less broad than a general inquiry into plaintiff's hospitalization history prior to 1965 (72 Cal. App. 4th 654, 661) . The court added, for the guidance of the parties, that an attorney claiming a privilege on behalf of his or her client does not have a right unilaterally to determine the validity of the claim, but must advise opposing counsel so that opposing counsel can bring the matter before a workers' compensation appeals judge for determination of the validity of the claim (72 Cal. App. 4th 654, 661) .

In Simek v. Superior Court (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 169, 172 Cal. Rptr. 564 , a marriage dissolution proceeding, the wife issued subpoenas duces tecum to produce her husband's medical records after they had failed to agree on a visitation schedule, claiming he was not competent to carry on normal visitation. After the trial court ordered production of the documents, the husband petitioned for and obtained a writ of mandate from the court of appeal directing the trial court to vacate its order and to grant the husband's motion to quash service of the subpoenas. The court held that the husband had not tendered his mental or emotional condition so as to invoke the patient-litigant exception under Evid. Code § 996 to the physician-patient privilege by asserting his rights to visitation (117 Cal. App. 3d 169, 176) .

In Carlton v. Superior Court (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 282, 67 Cal. Rptr. 568 , an action for personal injuries sustained in an automobile accident, the court of appeal issued a peremptory writ enjoining enforcement of the trial court's order permitting plaintiff to inspect hospital records relating to defendant's alleged condition of intoxication. The court of appeal stated that in such an action, the issues are tendered within the meaning of the patient-litigant exception of Evid. Code § 996 by plaintiff's factual allegations, and not by defendant's denial of such allegations regarding his intoxicated condition (261 Cal. App. 2d 282, 289-290) . Since defendant had not put this condition in issue, the patient-litigant exception did not apply, and defendant had the benefit of the physician-patient privilege (261 Cal. App. 2d 282, 290) . Carlton is discussed in more detail in § 81.120[3][d].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
C. Physician-Patient Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities §§ 81.125-81.139

[Reserved]

§§ 81.125[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
D. Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.140

§ 81.140 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014]--Waiver [Evid. Code § 912(a)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as well as with points and authorities generally refuting a claim of privilege (see, e.g., § 81.10).]

THE PSYCHOTHERAPIST-PATIENT PRIVILEGE MAY NOT BE ASSERTED BY THE PSYCHOTHERAPIST IN REGARD TO INFORMATION THAT HAS PREVIOUSLY BEEN DISCLOSED BY THE HOLDER OF THE PRIVILEGE.

A. Waiver of Privilege. The right of a person to claim the psychotherapist-patient privilege is waived, with exceptions not applicable here, with respect to a communication protected thereby if a holder of the privilege, without coercion, has disclosed a significant part of the communication or has consented to such disclosure by anyone (Evid. Code § 912(a)). Consent to disclosure is manifested by any statement or other conduct of the holder of the privilege indicating consent to the disclosure, including failure to claim the privilege in any proceeding in which the holder has the legal standing and opportunity to claim it (Evid. Code § 912(a); In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 430, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557).

[Optional] B. Inability of Psychotherapist to Assert Privilege When Patient Has Previously Waived It. Although the psychotherapist who received or made a confidential communication must claim the psychotherapist-patient privilege whenever such person is present when the communication is sought to be disclosed and is otherwise properly authorized (see Evid. Code § 1015), such psychotherapist cannot assert the privilege if it previously has been waived by the holder thereof (Evid. Code § 912(a); In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 430, 439, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a motion for an order compelling discovery, if a party or other person has resisted providing discovery on the ground that it is protected by the psychotherapist-patient privilege, but the privilege has been waived. It does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of compelling discovery, as well as a form refuting a claim of privilege generally.

Counsel who wish to set out general points relating to the psychotherapist-patient privilege, as well, may adapt the points and authorities in opposition to a motion to compel discovery set out in § 81.150 and combine them with this form.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Waiver of Privilege

Evid. Code § 912(a) provides that except as provided in Evid. Code § 912(b)-(d), the right of any person to claim a privilege provided by Evid. Code § 1014 (psychotherapist-patient privilege) is waived if the holder of the privilege, without coercion, has disclosed a significant part of the communication or has consented to such disclosure made by anyone. The exceptions to this involve situations in which two or more persons are joint holders [see Evid. Code § 912(b)], when the disclosure itself is privileged [see Evid. Code § 912(c)], or when a disclosure is made in confidence and is reasonably necessary for the accomplishment of the purpose for which the psychotherapist was consulted [Evid. Code § 912(d)].

A psychiatrist sought a writ of habeas corpus in In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557 to secure release from custody after being found in contempt of court for refusing to comply with a court order instructing him to answer questions and produce records relating to communications with a former patient. The patient had sued a third party for assault, alleging both physical injuries and severe mental and emotional distress, and on deposition by the defendant had disclosed having received the psychiatric treatment over a six-month period about 10 years earlier. The psychiatrist was subpoenaed by defendant to appear for a deposition and bring all records related to the patient, but he refusedto answer any questions relating to treatment of patients or to produce the records. He declined even to disclose if plaintiff had consulted him or had been his patient. Neither plaintiff nor his attorney appeared at the deposition or any subsequent hearings involving the psychiatrist, nor did the patient expressly claim or waive any privilege.

Defendant in the assault action then moved for an order to compel answers to the questions and production of the records. The superior court ruled the psychotherapist-patient privilege inapplicable because in instituting the action plaintiff had tendered as an issue his mental and emotional condition, bringing it under the patient-litigant exception of Evid. Code § 1016. The psychiatrist refused to comply with the order compelling answers and production and instead sought a writ of prohibition against the order. The writ was denied by the court of appeal, hearing was denied by the Supreme Court, and certiorari was denied by the United States Supreme Court. After a further trial court hearing and refusal by the psychiatrist, he was adjudged in contempt and ordered confined in custody. The psychiatrist then petitioned the court of appeal for habeas corpus; and on the denial of the petition without opinion, the Supreme Court agreed to hear the case and ordered the petitioner released on his own recognizance.

The Court determined that the psychiatrist had no constitutional privilege to avoid disclosure and was not denied equal protection even though clergy were given an absolute privilege of confidence under Evid. Code § 1034 (2 Cal. 3d 415, 427-429) . In refusing the relief requested, the Court further noted that Evid. Code § 912(a) provides that the right to claim the psychotherapist-patient privilege is waived if the holder of the privilege, without coercion, has disclosed a significant part of the communication or has consented to such disclosure by anyone else, and that consent includes the failure to claim the privilege in the appropriate circumstances in a legal proceeding (2 Cal. 3d 415, 430) . Since the record showed that the holder of the privilege in the instant case had disclosed at a prior deposition that he had consulted the psychiatrist for psychiatric treatment, the Court determined that the patient therefore had waived whatever privilege he might have had to keep such information confidential (thus leaving the psychiatrist without a basis for asserting it either; see further discussion of case, below) (2 Cal. 3d 415, 430) .

[b] Inability of Psychotherapist to Assert Privilege When Patient Has Previously Waived It

The facts and procedural background of In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557 are discussed in [a], above. The Court decided that the psychiatrist could not raise the psychotherapist-patient privilege when the holder thereof had already disclosed the communication (2 Cal. 3d 415, 430) . Since there was no evidence of expressinstructions from the patient directing the doctor to decline the privilege, Evid. Code § 1015 permitted the latter generally to assert the patient's privilege to prevent disclosure of confidential communications (2 Cal. 3d 415, 429-430) . However, since the patient had disclosed at a prior deposition that he had consulted the doctor for psychiatric treatment, the psychiatrist could not properly have refused to answer at least that question concerning the communications (2 Cal. 3d 415, 439) .

Note, however, that the Court stated that the questions posed inquired only into whether the psychotherapist had treated plaintiff and whether he possessed records regarding plaintiff. In admitting the existence of the psychotherapist-patient relationship, plaintiff did not disclose a "significant part of the communication" so as subsequently to waive his right to claim the privilege as to other elements of the communication (2 Cal. 3d 415, 430) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Waiver of Privilege

In Inabnit v. Berkson (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1230, 245 Cal. Rptr. 525 , plaintiffs, a mother and daughter, brought an action against defendant psychiatrist, seeking damages for his disclosure of their medical records to the defendant in a wrongful death action plaintiffs had previously brought. Defendant psychiatrist provided the records pursuant to a subpoena duces tecum served on him in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3. The trial court granted summary judgment for defendant psychiatrist, and the court of appeal affirmed. The court held that plaintiffs had waived their privilege by failing to take any action to prevent the unwanted disclosure after receiving the requisite notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(e) of their right to object to production of their records, and to seek the services of an attorney in order to protect their privacy rights. As a result of plaintiffs' failure to act, defendant was compelled to disclose the medical records under Civ. Code § 56.10(b)(3), which requires disclosure of medical information by a health care provider if the disclosure is compelled by a party to a proceeding before a court or administrative agency pursuant to a subpoena duces tecum (199 Cal. App. 3d 1230, 1235-1239) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
D. Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.141

§ 81.141 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014]--Privilege Inapplicable When Patient-Litigant Has Placed Mental Condition in Issue [Evid. Code § 1016]

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as well as with points and authorities generally refuting a claim of privilege (see, e.g., § 81.10).]

UNDER THE PATIENT-LITIGANT EXCEPTION OF SECTION 1016 OF THE EVIDENCE CODE, THE PSYCHOTHERAPIST-PATIENT PRIVILEGE IS INAPPLICABLE WHEN THE PATIENT'S MENTAL OR EMOTIONAL CONDITION HAS BEEN TENDERED TO THE COURT AS AN ISSUE BY THE PATIENT.

A. Patient-Litigant Exception Applicable. There is no psychotherapist-patient privilege regarding a communication relevant to an issue concerning the mental or emotional condition of the patient if the issue has been tendered by such person, as in bringing an action raising the issue of such conditions (Evid. Code § 1016; In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 435, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557 ; see Caesar v. Mountanos (9th Cir. 1976) 542 F.2d 1064,1070) .

[Optional] B. Psychotherapist's Right to Keep Patient's Confidence Limited by Patient-Litigant Exception. The patient-litigant exception to the psychotherapist-patient privilege limits the right of a psychotherapist to refuse to disclose confidential information concerning his or her patient (In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 423, 435, 438-439, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557 ; see Caesar v. Mountanos (9th Cir. 1976) 542 F.2d 1064,1068,1070) .

C. Burden of Showing Applicability of Privilege on Patient After Mental Issue Tendered. The burden rests on the patient initially to submit some showing that a given confidential communication between patient and psychotherapist is not directly related to the issue the party has tendered to the court (In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 436, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion for an order compelling discovery if a party or other person has resisted providing discovery on the ground that it is protected by the psychotherapist-patient privilege, but the patient-litigant exception to the psychotherapist-patient privilege applies because the mental or emotional conditions were put in issue by the patient. This form does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of compelling discovery, as well as a form refuting a claim of privilege generally.

Counsel who wish to set out general points relating to the psychotherapist-patient privilege, as well, may adapt the points and authorities in opposition to a motion to compel discovery set out in § 81.150 and combine them with this form.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Patient-Litigant Exception Applicable

Evid. Code § 1016 provides that there is no psychotherapist-patient privilege regarding a communication relevant to an issue concerning the mental or emotional condition of the patient if such issue has been tendered by: (a) the patient; (b) any party claiming through or under the patient; (c) any party claiming as a beneficiary of the patient through a contract to which the patient is or was a party; or (d) the plaintiff in an action brought under Code Civ. Proc. § 376 or 377 for damages for the injury or death of the patient (Code Civ. Proc. § 377 was repealed and replaced by Code Civ. Proc. § 377.10 et seq. in 1992).

The facts and procedural background of In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557 are discussed in § 81.140[3][a]. To avoid the necessity for further contempt proceedings against the psychiatrist or delaying appellate review, the Supreme Court undertook to decide whether defendant had accurately identified the proper reach of the patient-litigant exception (2 Cal. 3d 415, 431) . It determined that under Evid. Code § 1016, disclosure can be compelled if restricted to those mental conditions the patient-litigant has disclosed by bringing an action in which such conditions are in issue (2 Cal. 3d 415, 435) . The Court statedthat since the statutory exception compels disclosure only in those cases in which the patient's own action initiates the exposure, "intrusion" into a patient's privacy remains essentially under the patient's control, and as such, the Court found no constitutional infirmity in it (2 Cal. 3d 415, 435) .

In Caesar v. Mountanos (9th Cir. 1976) 542 F.2d 1064 , a psychiatrist sought a writ of habeas corpus seeking to set aside a contempt adjudication and sentence issued for his failure to answer questions on a deposition in a California superior court action. The psychiatrist had been consulted by a patient following a second automobile accident, the first one having occurred the previous year, and saw her on about 20 occasions. She filed actions for the accidents in the following year, alleging they caused her personal injury and pain and suffering not limited to physical ailments. At her deposition in one of the cases, plaintiff and her counsel indicated that "some" of the psychiatrist's care and treatment might be "involved" in the suit. The psychiatrist, on deposition after consolidation of the cases, refused to answer any questions regarding his treatment, stating such breach of confidence could be harmful to the patient's health and that he did not have her consent. He refused further when her counsel announced he had authorized stipulation of her consent, responding he would refuse testimony even with her consent. She then filed a notice revoking her waiver of the privilege.

On being ordered by the trial court to answer, on the ground that the patient-litigant exception provided by Evid. Code § 1016 applied, the psychiatrist merely acknowledged he had treated plaintiff for her injuries and had diagnosed her condition as depressed. He refused to answer questions concerning the relationship of her emotional condition to the accidents. On receipt of the contempt order, the psychiatrist exhausted his state court remedies and then went to federal district court on writ of habeas corpus. The court upheld Evid. Code § 1016 and found it did not invade any rights of the doctor or his patient.

The court of appeals for the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, in denying the petition, primarily agreed with the disposition of similar arguments that had been presented to the California Supreme Court in In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557 (discussed above), in deciding the major issues of the instant case on constitutionality of the limited privilege. The federal appellate court determined, however, that all the communications in question were clearly not privileged due to the patient-litigant exception to the psychotherapist-patient privilege. Plaintiff had clearly raised the issue concerning her mental and emotional condition and was seeking damages for injuries in that area. By raising the issue, she herself had breached the confidential relationship and made her emotional problems known to the public (542 F.2d 1064, 1070) .

The psychiatrist was found to have testified that he had an opinion with respect to whether the plaintiff suffered emotional distress of any kindresulting from the two accidents, but he declined to give it. The relevant questions he refused to answer were all related directly to his opinion regarding whether plaintiff suffered emotional distress or depression from the accidents, whether any condition the psychiatrist found was the result of a combination of the accidents and other factors in plaintiff's life, and whether the psychological factors the psychiatrist found played a role in the origin or aggravation of cervical pain plaintiff testified she was suffering. The questions were all clearly relevant and related directly to the issue, raised by plaintiff, of her mental and emotional condition (542 F.2d 1064, 1070) .

[b] Psychotherapist's Right to Keep Patient's Confidence Limited by Patient-Litigant Exception

The facts and procedural background of In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557 are discussed in [a], above, and in § 81.140[3][a]. The broadest issue before the court in the case, as the Supreme Court saw it, was whether the Legislature, in attempting to accommodate the conceded need of confidentiality in the psychotherapeutic process with general societal needs of access to information for the ascertainment of truth in litigation, unconstitutionally weighted its resolution in favor of disclosure under the patient-litigant exception of Evid. Code § 1016. The Court concluded that the exception did not unconstitutionally infringe the rights of privacy of either psychotherapists or their patients (2 Cal. 3d 415, 423, 438) .

The Court rejected the concept of an independent right of privacy on the part of a psychotherapist as grounded on Griswold v. Connecticut (1965) 381 U.S. 479, 85 S. Ct. 1678, 14 L. Ed. 2d 510 , since the privilege even in that case belonged to the patient and not the physician (2 Cal. 3d 415, 424) . The Court also dismissed the contentions that requiring the psychotherapist to reveal confidences amounts to a "taking" of the right to practice such profession and does not allow for its successful practice. The Court pointed out that there has been a constitutionally adjudicated trend toward a reasonable amount of compelled disclosure; and it observed that psychotherapy has nevertheless flourished despite the fact that no such absolute privilege on a practitioner's part has been recognized (2 Cal. 3d 415, 424-427) .

Petitioner had also claimed denial of equal protection because the clergy are given an absolute privilege to retain a confidence separate from the penitent's privilege, under Evid. Code § 1034, whereas the psychotherapist has no privilege independent of the patient's. The Court disagreed that the functions of psychotherapists and clergy are the same for privilege purposes, although elements overlap. The Court decided that the priest-penitent privilege was primarily an accommodation by the secular state to strongly held religious tenets of a large segment of its citizenry (2 Cal.3d 415, 427-429) , and its allowance does not deny psychotherapists equal protection of the laws (2 Cal. 3d 415, 439) .

The facts and procedural background of Caesar v. Mountanos (9th Cir. 1976) 542 F.2d 1064 are discussed in [a], above. The court denied that the psychiatrist had an absolute, constitutional privilege to retain the patient's confidences or that he was being denied equal protection because California afforded the clergy, but not psychotherapists, such an absolute privilege, just as both arguments were rejected in In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 423-429, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557 (discussed above). Contrary to petitioner's assertion that the more recent United States Supreme Court cases of Roe v. Wade (1973) 410 U.S. 113, 93 S. Ct. 705, 35 L. Ed. 2d 147 and Doe v. Bolton (1973) 410 U.S. 179, 93 S. Ct. 739, 35 L. Ed. 2d 201 offered a superseding analysis, the court of appeals found that such decisions spoke of and relied on a conditional right of privacy in the doctor-patient relationship (542 F.2d 1064, 1067) .

The court also agreed with the Lifschutz court that the special treatment of the clergy-penitent privilege was justified because of the different circumstances of that relationship and the policies it served (542 F.2d 1064, 1068-1069) . In addition, the court determined there was no denial of equal protection to psychotherapeutic patients by their losing the right to absolutely rely on confidences between themselves and their psychotherapists, since disclosure thereof is restricted to those issues tendered by the patient (542 F.2d 1064, 1068) .

[c] Burden of Showing Applicability of Privilege on Patient After Mental Issue Tendered

The facts and procedural background of In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557 are discussed in [a], above, and in § 81.140[3][a]. In attempting to avoid the necessity for further contempt proceedings against the psychiatrist or delaying appellate review, the Court concluded that the burden rests on the patient initially to submit some showing that a given confidential communication is not directly related to the mental or emotional issue that patient has tendered to the court (2 Cal. 3d 415, 436) . This is because the patient alone, not the party seeking disclosure, knows both the nature of the ailments for which recovery is sought and the general content of the of the psychotherapeutic communications (2 Cal. 3d 415, 436) . The Court compared this policy with that expressed under Evid. Code § 404, in which a person claiming a privilege against self-incrimination must show that proffered evidence might tend to be so incriminating. The patient may have to delimit the claimed "mental or emotional distress" or explain, in general terms, the object of the psychotherapy in order to illustrate that it is not reasonably probable that the psychotherapeutic communications sought are directly relevant to the mental condition that party has placed in issue (2 Cal. 3d 415, 436-437) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
D. Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.142

§ 81.142 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014]--Privilege Inapplicable When Patient Threatened Danger to Another [Evid. Code § 1024]

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as well as with points and authorities generally refuting a claim of privilege (see, e.g., § 81.10).]

THE PSYCHOTHERAPIST-PATIENT PRIVILEGE DOES NOT APPLY BECAUSE THE PSYCHOTHERAPIST HAD REASONABLE CAUSE TO BELIEVE THE PATIENT WAS IN SUCH MENTAL OR EMOTIONAL CONDITION AS TO BE DANGEROUS TO _____ [name or status, e.g., PLAINTIFF], WHO WAS READILY IDENTIFIABLE, AND THAT DISCLOSURE WOULD BE NECESSARY TO PREVENT THAT DANGER.

A. Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege Inapplicable When Patient Believed to Be Dangerous to Another. If a psychotherapist has reasonable cause to believe that the patient is in such mental or emotional condition as to be dangerous to himself or herself, or to the person or property of another readily identifiable victim, and that disclosure of the communication is necessary to prevent the threatened danger (see Evid. Code § 1024), then the psychotherapist-patient privilege does not attach to communications in that relationship at that time (Menendez v. Superior Court (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 435, 450-451, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 92, 834 P.2d 786 ; Mavroudis v. Superior Court (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 594, 603-604, 162 Cal. Rptr. 724).

[Optional] B. Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege Inapplicable to Warning Made to Victim. When a psychotherapist warns a potential victim pursuant to Evidence Code Section 1024, the psychotherapist is permitted to reveal, in a later trial or proceeding, both the substance of the warning and the patient's statements, made in therapy, that caused or triggered the warning (People v. Wharton (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 522, 554, 563, 280 Cal. Rptr. 631, 809 P.2d 290).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a motion for an order compelling discovery if a party or other person has resisted discovery based on the psychotherapist-patient privilege, but that privilege is inapplicable because the psychotherapist could reasonably have believed the patient threatened danger to another and that a warning was necessary to prevent that danger. Optional Paragraph B may be used to support the argument that testimony by the psychotherapist, in a later trial or proceeding, concerning both the substance of the warning and the patient's statements, made in therapy, that caused or triggered the warning. It does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of compelling discovery, as well as a form refuting a claim of privilege generally.

Counsel who wish to set out general points relating to the psychotherapist-patient privilege, as well, may adapt the points and authorities in opposition to a motion to compel discovery set out in § 81.150 and combine them with this form.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

CAUTION:
Counsel should note that a psychotherapist's duty to predict a patient's violent behavior and warn or protect third persons is subject to certain statutory limitations [see Civ. Code § 43.92; see also Ch.117, Insane and Incompetent Persons].

[a] Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege Inapplicable When Patient Believed to Be Dangerous to Another

In Menendez v. Superior Court (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 435, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 92, 834 P.2d 786 , while investigating the murder of a married couple, the police obtained a search warrant for the office and residence of the psychotherapist for the couple's two sons. Pursuant to the warrant, the police seized audiotapes of one treatment session as well as audiotapes of notes of other sessions. The tapes contained confidential communications andincluded threats aimed at the psychotherapist, his wife, and his mistress. The psychotherapist warned the women of the possible threat to their lives. After the sons were charged with the murders of their parents, the psychotherapist, joined by the sons, initiated proceedings to enforce the psychotherapist-patient privilege with regard to all of the tapes. The trial court held that the psychotherapist-patient privilege did not apply to any of the taped communications. The court of appeal denied the brothers' petition for a writ of mandate.

The State Supreme Court affirmed as to the order concerning one tape, finding that the dangerous-patient exception to the privilege applied, and that disclosure was permissible because the communication was not privileged. The Court explained that the dangerous-patient exception was applicable in that its conditions were met: the psychotherapist had reasonable cause to believe that his patients were dangerous to himself directly and to his wife and mistress collaterally, and that disclosure to the two women was necessary to prevent any harm (3 Cal. 4th 435, 450) . The exception requires only reasonable cause for belief by the psychotherapist in the dangerousness of the patient and the necessity of disclosure. It does not require that the patient be dangerous to a person other than the psychotherapist. Nor does it demand that the psychotherapist actually disclose the relevant communication or even issue a warning. The Court further explained that the reasonableness of the psychotherapist's belief of the patient's dangerousness is determined in light of the standards of the psychotherapeutic community. The test is objective, but takes account of all the relevant circumstances; it is based on the norms prevailing among psychotherapists as a group, but allows broad discretion to the individual psychotherapist. In certain cases, expert testimony as to the relevant standards may be necessary (3 Cal. 4th 435, 451) .

Petitioners in Mavroudis v. Superior Court (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 594, 162 Cal. Rptr. 724 were plaintiffs in an action for personal injury damages against defendants, health care facilities that had treated their son for various mental disorders. Petitioners' son injured them in a hammer assault, and they contended that defendants knew or should have known that he posed a danger of physical violence to them, but failed to warn them. One defendant objected to petitioners' request to produce medical records based on Evid. Code § 1014, the psychotherapist-patient privilege. On petitioners' motion to compel production of the records, the trial court ordered production for an in-camera inspection, after which it denied the motion on the ground that there was no information indicating that a warning to the parents would have been appropriate. Petitioners' motion to reconsider requested that the records be inspected by their psychiatric expert under a protective order. The court denied this motion also, and petitioners filed a petition for a writ of mandate.

The court of appeal issued a writ requiring the trial court to vacate its order and reconsider the motion. The court noted that although the literalreach of Evid. Code § 1024 appeared to be prospective only ("disclosure ... necessary to prevent the threatened danger"), precedent existed indicating that the exception to the privilege applies even when the disclosure is no longer necessary to prevent the threatened danger. The court said that in a civil proceeding, when it is claimed that defendants owed plaintiffs a duty to warn them of the patient's danger, a duty based on Tarasoff v. Regents of University of California (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 425, 131 Cal. Rptr. 14, 551 P.2d 334 (discussed in [4][a], below), the court may determine the applicability of the dangerous patient exception to the privilege after the fact. If the preliminary facts on which the exception rests were present at a time before the injury complained of, no privilege attaches, and the psychiatric records are subject to discovery in the later proceeding. Thus, the court must find that, before the time of the injury, the therapist determined, or reasonably should have determined, that the patient presented a serious danger of violence to a readily identifiable victim and the disclosure of confidential communications was necessary to prevent the threatened danger (102 Cal. App. 3d 594, 604) . The court directed the trial court to examine the records in camera to determine if the material revealed that petitioners were readily identifiable as victims in the event their son was ultimately determined to have posed a serious threat of violence. If the court's examination negates such a finding, the dangerous-patient exception does not apply, and the records are not subject to discovery. However, if after its initial examination the court finds that petitioners were readily identifiable victims, the court must determine whether defendants determined, or reasonably should have determined, that the patient posed a serious danger of violence to them and whether the disclosure of confidential communications was necessary to prevent that threatened danger (102 Cal. App. 3d 594, 605) .

[b] Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege Inapplicable to Warning Made to Victim

In People v. Wharton (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 522, 563, 280 Cal. Rptr. 631, 809 P.2d 290 , defendant was convicted of the first degree murder of his girlfriend. At his trial, two psychotherapists who had developed a relationship with defendant when he voluntarily sought mental health counseling had testified. They explained that, based on defendant's history, as well as comments made in therapy sessions, they had believed his girlfriend was at risk, and had so warned her. Defendant appealed his conviction and the imposition of the death penalty.

The State Supreme Court affirmed. Defendant argued that the trial court's decision to permit the prosecutor to examine his psychotherapists violated the psychotherapist-patient privilege. Defendant claimed that the trial court misconstrued the exception to the privilege embodied in Evid. Code § 1024. The Court explained that the mere fact that some statementsare nonprivileged by operation of Evid. Code § 1024 does not automatically make all of the confidential communications nonprivileged. Rather, the exception permits testimony regarding statements made by the patient that led to the impressions and diagnosis and ultimate conclusion to communicate with the victim. Necessarily excluded are any statements that did not trigger the warning. The Court said that the trial court had correctly expressly limited application of § 1024 to those confidential communications that triggered their decision to warn the victim (53 Cal. 3d 522, 554) . Defendant also argued that § 1024 should not apply after the victim is dead because once the threat of harm ceases to exist, the reason for the exception evaporates. The Court disagreed, observing that if the exception ceases once the threat of harm no longer exists, a dangerous patient could regain the protection of the privilege by simply killing his or her victim, which would be an absurd result. Such a rule would ill serve the public interest in safety from violent assault, an interest the Legislature found predominant when balanced against the admitted importance of maintaining the confidential nature of statements made in psychotherapy (53 Cal. 3d 522, 554-555) . The Court concluded that when a psychotherapist warns a potential victim pursuant to Evid. Code § 1024, the psychotherapist is permitted to reveal, in a later trial or proceeding, both the substance of the warning and the patient's statements, made in therapy, that triggered the warning (53 Cal. 3d 522, 563) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege Inapplicable When Patient Believed to Be Dangerous to Another

In Tarasoff v. Regents of University of California (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 425, 131 Cal. Rptr. 14, 551 P.2d 334 , a patient had confided an intention to kill an unnamed girl, who was readily identifiable, to a psychologist. The latter, in concert with some colleagues, arranged for the police to detain the patient, but the police released him with a warning. The director of the psychiatric facility, where the patient had been treated, then ordered certain records pertinent to the case to be destroyed and that no commitment action be taken with regard to the patient. No warning was given the girl or her parents by the psychotherapists or the police, and the patient killed her.

The Supreme Court upheld the trial court's order sustaining the demurrer without leave to amend only in regard to claims predicated on the psychotherapists' duty to confine the patient or the liability of the police, but it allowed amendment to state a claim against the psychotherapists on the basis of failure to protect and to warn the identifiable victim. Defendants, contending there was no duty to warn third persons, protested that confidential communication with patients was required for the successfulpractice of psychotherapy to encourage the cooperation of the patients, and that a warning would constitute a breach of trust. The Court said that the public interest in safety from violent assault must be weighed against the interest in supporting effective mental treatment and protecting patients' privacy along with safeguarding psychotherapeutic communication. It raised the related issue of the dangerous patient exception [Evid. Code § 1024] to the psychotherapist-patient rule and concluded that the public policy of protecting the particular confidential character of communication must yield to the extent to which disclosure is essential to avert danger to others--that the protective privilege ends where the public peril begins (17 Cal. 3d 425, 440-442) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
D. Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.143

§ 81.143 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014]--Disclosure of Patient's Name, Address, and Telephone Number Is Necessary to Protect Patient in State Custody

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as well as with points and authorities generally refuting a claim of privilege (see, e.g., § 81.10).]

THE PSYCHOTHERAPIST-PATIENT PRIVILEGE DOES NOT INCLUDE THE NAME, ADDRESS, AND TELEPHONE NUMBER OF A PATIENT WHEN THAT INFORMATION MAY BE NECESSARY TO PROTECT THE RIGHT OF A PATIENT WITHIN STATE CUSTODY TO BE FREE FROM HARM FROM ANOTHER PATIENT.

Right of Patient to Be Free From Harm While in State Custody Justifies Disclosure of Otherwise Privileged Information. A patient within the custody of the state is entitled to protection from harm from other patients, and the state's interest in facilitating the ascertainment of truth in connection with legal proceedings based on that right is substantial enough to compel disclosure of the name, address, and telephone number of a patient suspected of violating another patient's right to be free from harm (County of Alameda v. Superior Court (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 254, 260-263, 239 Cal. Rptr. 400).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a motion for an order compelling discovery if a party or other person has resisted discovery based on the psychotherapist-patient privilege, but the privilege is inapplicable because the information is necessary to protect the rights of a patient within state custody. It does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of compelling discovery, as well as a form refuting a claim of privilege generally.

Counsel who wish to set out general points relating to the psychotherapist-patient privilege, as well, may adapt the points and authorities in opposition to a motion to compel discovery set out in § 81.150 and combine them with this form.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 81.159 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion for discovery supported by this memorandum.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Right of Patient to Be Free From Harm While in State Custody Justifies Disclosure of Otherwise Privileged Information

In County of Alameda v. Superior Court (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 254, 239 Cal. Rptr. 400 , plaintiff, a female patient of defendant county psychiatric hospital, brought a personal injury action against defendant after she had been raped while in its custody. Defendant refused to answer an interrogatory submitted to it by plaintiff that sought the name, address, and telephone number of the male patient found with plaintiff immediately after her rape. Its refusal was based on the psychotherapist-patient privilege. The trial court ordered defendant to answer the interrogatory. Defendant sought a writ of mandate to restrain the enforcement of the discovery order requiring disclosure.

The court of appeal affirmed the order, discharged the alternative writ, and denied the petition for a peremptory writ (194 Cal. App. 3d 254, 264) .The court distinguished the facts from those in Smith v. Superior Court (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 136, 173 Cal. Rptr. 145 (discussed in § 81.159[3][a]), and said that the Smith rule declaring the patient's identity to be a privileged communication should not be rigidly applied in every case (194 Cal. App. 3d 254, 258-261) . The court cited federal law that recognizes that while confined under state authority, a patient retains a liberty interest in personal security and is entitled to protection from harm from other patients (194 Cal. App. 3d 254, 260) . The court combined this safety right with the exception based on the necessity of preventing threatened danger to third parties and reasoned that disclosure was required (194 Cal. App. 3d 254, 261-263) . It also noted that if the male patient's identity was not revealed, plaintiff would be deprived of a real day in court (194 Cal. App. 3d 254, 260) . If the balance does weigh in favor of disclosure of private information because of a compelling state interest, the scope of the disclosure must be drawn with narrow specificity (194 Cal. App. 3d 254, 263-264) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
D. Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.144

§ 81.144 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014]--Privilege Inapplicable to Information Relating to Child Abuse and Neglect or Injuries Resulting From Weapons, Assault, or Abuse

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as well as with points and authorities generally refuting a claim of privilege (see, e.g., § 81.10).]

THE PSYCHOTHERAPIST-PATIENT PRIVILEGE DOES NOT APPLY TO INFORMATION SOUGHT TO BE DISCOVERED IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE IT WAS REPORTED PURSUANT TO _____ [THE CHILD ABUSE AND NEGLECT REPORT ACT and/or THE PENAL CODE REQUIREMENT THAT HEALTH PRACTITIONERS REPORT INJURIES RESULTING FROM WEAPONS, ASSAULT, OR ABUSE].

A. Psychotherapist Privilege Inapplicable to Information Reported Pursuant to Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act. Thepsychotherapist privilege does not apply to information reported pursuant to the Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act (Penal Code § 11164 et seq.) in any action or proceeding, including one that is not a prosecution action (Roe v. Superior Court (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 832, 845, 280 Cal. Rptr. 380 ; Penal Code § 11171.2(b)).

[AND/OR]

B. Psychotherapist Privilege Inapplicable to Information Reported Relating to Injuries Resulting From Weapons, Assault, or Abuse. The psychotherapist-patient privilege does not apply in any court proceeding or administrative hearing to information required to be reported under Penal Code § 11160 et seq., with respect to any patient suffering from any wound or other physical injury inflicted by his or her own act or inflicted by another when the injury is by means of a firearm, or any patient suffering from any wound or other physical injury that is the result of assaultive or abusive conduct (Penal Code §§ 11160(a), 11163.2(a)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a motion for an order compelling discovery if a party or other person has resisted discovery based on the psychotherapist-patient privilege, but the privilege is inapplicable because the information sought was reported pursuant to the Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act (Penal Code § 11164 et seq.), or pursuant to Penal Code § 11160 et seq. with respect to self-inflicted wounds or injuries resulting from the use of firearms, certain weapons or from assaultive or abusive conduct [see Penal Code §§ 11160(a), 11163.2(a)]. The form does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum points and authorities in support of compelling discovery, as well as a form refuting a claim of privilege generally.

Counsel who wish to set out general points relating to the psychotherapist-patient privilege, as well, may adapt the points and authorities in opposition to a motion to compel discovery set out in § 81.150 and combine them with this form.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Psychotherapist Privilege Inapplicable to Information Reported Pursuant to Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act

In Roe v. Superior Court (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 832, 280 Cal. Rptr. 380 , plaintiff brought a tort action against his former wife after he had been wrongly accused of abusing their son and had been temporarily denied visitation rights. These actions had been taken after the former wife's psychotherapist filed a suspected child abuse report against plaintiff. During discovery plaintiff moved to compel the therapist to give limited deposition testimony in order to authenticate her child abuse report, ascertain her oral communications with social workers who investigated the report, and determine whether the report was based on statements made by plaintiff's former wife. Defendant resisted such discovery, claiming it violated the psychotherapist-patient privilege and the right to privacy. The trial court granted plaintiff's motion, and defendant filed a petition for writ of mandate. After the court of appeal summarily denied the writ, the State Supreme Court transferred the matter back to the court of appeal with directions to vacate its order and to issue an alternative writ.

The court of appeal again denied the petition, concluding that the psychotherapist-patient privilege did not apply to information reported by a psychotherapist pursuant to the Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act [Penal Code § 11164 et seq.]. The Act requires psychotherapists to report known or suspected cases of child abuse, and subjects them to punishment if they fail to do so. By enacting that Act, specifically the exception to the psychotherapist privilege specified in Penal Code § 11171(b) (now see Penal Code § 11171.2(b)), the court said the Legislature has determined that the patient's right to privacy must yield in furtherance of the state's compelling interest to further the reporting, detection, and prosecution of child abuse cases (229 Cal. App. 3d 832, 836-838) . The court framed the issue as whether the exception of Penal Code § 11171(b) (now see Penal Code § 11171.2(b)) applied to plaintiff's action, which was not a prosecution of child abuse.

After weighing the interests protected by shielding the evidence sought with those advanced by disclosure, the court concluded that plaintiff's need for disclosure was paramount. It explained that one of the primary reasons for its conclusion was that the confidential communications had already been disclosed to several parties, including the investigating authorities. Under the circumstances, to prohibit discovery would be obstructionist. In addition, to deny discovery under such circumstances would grant defendant de facto immunity from liability for filing a false child abuse report. Additionally, the court said that the evidence sought was essential to the adjudication of the complaint, in that plaintiff stoodlittle chance of being able to prove his allegations if he could not authenticate the psychotherapist's report or confirm that the information in the report came from defendant. The court concluded that the state's interest in facilitating the ascertainment of truth in connection with legal proceedings is substantial enough to compel disclosure of communications between psychotherapist and his or her patient (229 Cal. App. 3d 832, 843) . Finally, the court said that it was clear from the entire statutory scheme regarding child abuse that the Legislature never intended to provide immunity to patients who knowingly or recklessly caused their therapists to file false child abuse reports (229 Cal. App. 3d 832, 844) . The court concluded that although plaintiff's action was not a prosecution of child abuse, it fell within the ambit of the child abuse reporting exception, and Penal Code § 11171(b) (now see Penal Code § 11171.2(b)) applied to the information reported by the psychotherapist (229 Cal. App. 3d 832, 844-845) .

[b] Psychotherapist Privilege Inapplicable to Information Reported Relating to Injuries Resulting From Weapons, Assault, or Abuse

Acts that constitute "assaultive or abusive conduct" are listed in Penal Code § 11160(d).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
D. Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.145

§ 81.145 Supporting Motion to Compel Discovery--Refuting Claim of Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014]--Communication Was Not Privileged

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in support of a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.31, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.10, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.11), as well as with points and authorities generally refuting a claim of privilege (see, e.g., § 81.10).]

THE PSYCHOTHERAPIST-PATIENT PRIVILEGE DOES NOT PROTECT THE COMMUNICATION BECAUSE _____ [name or status of person claiming privilege, e.g., THE DEFENDANT] HAS NOT ESTABLISHED THAT THE DOMINANT PURPOSE OF THE COMMUNICATION WAS WITHIN THE COURSE OF PROFESSIONAL PSYCHOTHERAPEUTIC COUNSELING.

Dominant Purpose of Communication to Psychotherapist Must Be Within Course of Professional Counseling. Unless thedominant purpose for which an individual contacts a psychotherapist is to secure a diagnosis or treatment of his or her mental or emotional condition in the course of professional counseling, no psychotherapist-patient privilege has been established and a communication between those persons is not privileged (People v. Cabral (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 820, 827-828, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 866 ; see Evid. Code § 1011).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be used in support of a motion for an order compelling discovery if a party or other person has resisted discovery based on the psychotherapist-patient privilege, but the privilege is inapplicable because the communication was not made within the course of a psychotherapist-patient relationship. It does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of compelling discovery, as well as a form refuting a claim of privilege generally.

Counsel who wish to set out general points relating to the psychotherapist-patient privilege, as well, may adapt the points and authorities in opposition to a motion to compel discovery set out in § 81.150 and combine them with this form.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Dominant Purpose of Communication to Psychotherapist Must Be Within Course of Professional Counseling

In People v. Cabral (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 820, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 866 , defendant, a man accused of sexually molesting his daughter, wrote a letter to the psychotherapist operating a program for admitted sex offenders that offered rehabilitation and reduced prison time. In the letter, he admitted the charges and requested admittance into the program. The trial court admitted the letter into evidence, over defendant's objection that it was protected by the psychotherapist-patient privilege. Defendant appealed his conviction.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment on one of the counts, but otherwise affirmed the judgment. The court said that the party claimingthe psychotherapist-patient privilege has the burden of proving the preliminary facts to show that the privilege applies. Citing reasoning from a case interpreting the attorney-client privilege, and finding that reasoning applicable to the psychotherapist-patient privilege, the court said that as an obstruction to discovery, the existence of the privilege is strictly construed. However, once the requisite facts, such as the psychotherapist-patient relationship, have been established, the privilege is liberally construed in the patient's favor (12 Cal. App. 4th 820, 827) . The court said that a person's purpose in consulting a psychotherapist is one preliminary fact necessary to establish a psychotherapist-patient privilege. Citing Evid. Code § 1011, the court explained that a patient is a person who consults a psychotherapist to secure a diagnosis or treatment of his or her mental or emotional condition (12 Cal. App. 4th 820, 827) . Relying on reasoning interpreting the attorney-client privilege, the court said that if the dominant purpose of the communication is for transmittal to a psychotherapist in the course of professional counseling, that communication is within the psychotherapist-patient privilege. Whether a particular communication is predominantly in furtherance of the psychotherapist-patient relationship is a question of fact (12 Cal. App. 4th 820, 828) . Applying this dominant-purpose test to the facts, the court found that defendant's purpose in contacting the psychotherapist was to receive a reduced prison sentence. Even assuming that part of his purpose was to receive treatment, the court found that defendant had not established that it was his dominant purpose. Accordingly, there was no psychotherapist-patient relationship and the letter was not a privileged communication (12 Cal. App. 4th 820, 827-828) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Dominant Purpose of Communication to Psychotherapist Must Be Within Course of Professional Counseling

The facts and procedural background of Story v. Superior Court (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1007, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 532 are discussed in § 81.150[4][b]. In that case, the court of appeal rejected the dominant purpose test set forth in People v. Cabral (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 820, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 866 (discussed in [3][a], above), "to the extent the test would automatically preclude the application of the psychotherapist-privilege to records generated as the result of psychotherapy attended by a defendant as a condition of probation." The dominant purpose of probation-conditioned psychotherapy must always be therapeutic, regardless of defendant's motive because Pen. Code § 1203.1(j) expressly provides that the general purpose of all probation conditions is "the reformation and rehabilitation of the probationer" (109 Cal. App. 4th 1007, 1016) .

In In re Tabatha G. (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1159, 1168, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 93 , an action to terminate parental rights, the juvenile court properlyordered discovery of a bonding study of a child and her mother. The child was not a patient for purposes of the privilege since she was not seeking diagnosis or treatment for a mental or emotional condition nor was any scientific research involved. In addition, the bonding study was discoverable by the child's counsel and not protected by the qualified work product privilege since discovery of the study was in the child's best interest and denial of discovery would result in the injustice of the child having to undergo another examination. (45 Cal. App. 4th 1159, 1168) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
D. Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities §§ 81.146-81.149

[Reserved]

§§ 81.146[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
D. Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.150

§ 81.150 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014] Applicable--General Form

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30), as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the grounds of privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.20).]

THE INFORMATION SOUGHT IS NOT DISCOVERABLE BECAUSE IT IS PRIVILEGED AS A CONFIDENTIAL COMMUNICATION BETWEEN PATIENT AND PSYCHOTHERAPIST.

A. Claimant of Privilege. The psychotherapist-patient privilege may be claimed, under appropriate circumstances, by: (1) the holder of the privilege, being the patient or the guardian, conservator, or personal representative thereof; (2) a person authorized to claim the privilege by the holder thereof; or (3) the psychotherapist at the time of the confidential communication (Evid. Code § 1014).

B. Definition of Confidential Communication. A confidential communication between patient and psychotherapist means information, including that obtained by an examination of the patient, transmitted between such two persons in the course of their relationship and in confidence. Such transmission is by a means which, so far as the patient is aware, discloses the information to no third persons other than those who are present to further the patient's interest in the consultation, or those to whom disclosure isreasonably necessary for the transmission of the information or the accomplishment of the purpose for which the psychotherapist is consulted. Such a communication includes a diagnosis made and the advice given by the psychotherapist in the course of the relationship (Evid. Code § 1012).

C. "Confidentiality" Liberally Construed in Favor of Patient. In general, the statutory psychotherapist-patient privilege is to be liberally construed in favor of the patient (In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 437, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557).

D. Presumption of Confidentiality. When a privilege is claimed on the ground that the matter sought to be disclosed is a communication made in confidence in the course of the psychotherapist-patient relationship, the communication is presumed to have been made in confidence. The opponent of the claim has the burden of proof to establish that the communication was not confidential (Evid. Code § 917(a)).

[Add points and authorities relating to the applicability of this privilege in the specific factual context (see, e.g., § 81.151 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities in opposition to a motion for an order compelling discovery may be submitted by a party or other person who has resisted providing discovery on the ground that the material sought is privileged as a confidential psychotherapist-patient communication [see Evid. Code §§ 1010-1027]. It does not provide a complete memorandum, but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to compelling discovery, as well as points and authorities relating to the particular factual situation.

Note that in addition to the psychotherapist-patient privilege, Evid. Code §§ 1035-1036.2 provides a privilege for confidential communications between a victim of sexual assault and a sexual assault victim counselor, and Evid. Code §§ 1037-1037.7 provides a privilege for confidential communications between a victim of domestic violence and a domestic violence counselor.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[c] Related Uses

This form may be combined with general points and authorities in support of a motion seeking a protective order [see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.80 et seq.] as to portions of the psychotherapist-patient communications claimed to remain privileged.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] "Confidentiality" Liberally Construed in Favor of Patient

The facts and procedural background of In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557 are discussed in § 81.140[3][a]. In attempting to avoid further contempt proceedings against the psychiatrist and delay of appellate review in that case, the Supreme Court considered the scope of the patient-litigant exception to the psychotherapist-patient privilege. It noted that in determining whether communications between psychotherapist and patient sufficiently relate to the mental condition at issue to require disclosure, the trial court should heed the basic privacy interests involved in the privilege. In general, the Court stated, the privilege as set out in Evid. Code § 1014, should be liberally construed in favor of the patient (2 Cal. 3d 415, 437) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] "Confidentiality" Liberally Construed in Favor of Patient

The facts and procedural background of Roberts v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 330, 107 Cal. Rptr. 309, 508 P.2d

309 are discussed in § 81.151[3][a]. In reaffirming its analysis of the narrow scope of the patient-litigant exception to the psychotherapist-patient privilege in In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557 (discussed in [3][a], above), and granting prohibition against the discovery order, the Court noted that it had been concerned in that case about the patient's rights of privacy. Because of the potential encroachment on those constitutionally protected rights by the compelled disclosure of confidential communications between the patient and the psychotherapist, the Court stressed again, trial courts should carefully control compelled disclosures in this area. Thus, the Court restated the rule that the psychotherapist-patient privilege must be liberally construed in the patient's favor (9 Cal. 3d 330, 337) .

The facts and procedural background of Alhambra v. Superior Court (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 513, 168 Cal. Rptr. 49 are discussed in § 81.158[3][a]. In reviewing a challenge to the trial court's order compellingfurther answers to interrogatories on the ground that the information sought was protected from disclosure by the psychotherapist-patient privilege, the court of appeal restated the rule set forth in In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 437, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557 that the psychotherapist-patient privilege is to be construed liberally in favor of the patient and his or her right to privacy (110 Cal. App. 3d 513, 518) .

[b] Definition of Confidential Communications

In Roman Catholic Archbishop of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (People) (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 417, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 209, mod. 2005 Cal. App. LEXIS 1274 , a grand jury subpoenaed documents from petitioners, the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Los Angeles and two priests, for an investigation into allegations that the priests sexually assaulted children. Petitioners argued, in part, that the psychotherapist-patient privilege attached to the documents under Evid. Code § 1012, because disclosures by the Archbishop's staff about petitioner priests were made only as reasonably necessary to accomplish the purpose of the psychotherapy, the diagnosis and treatment of issues relating to celibacy and sexuality. The court of appeal found only one memorandum from a member of the Archbishop's staff to a priest's psychotherapist was protected by psychotherapist-patient privilege because this document supplied the troubled priest's therapeutic team with information about his personal history as an aid to diagnosis and treatment (131 Cal. App. 4th 417, 455) . For discussion of other aspects of this case, see § 81.275[3][b].

In In re Christopher M. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 684, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 61 , appellant juvenile, who was made a ward of the court after admitting he had committed a robbery that constituted a hate crime, appealed the trial court's order imposing various probation conditions on him, including that all records related to his treatment be made available to the trial court and the probation department. On appeal, the court affirmed. The probation conditions were reasonable and tailored to fit his rehabilitative needs, given his lack of empathy toward others, his gang activity history, his participation in criminal conduct that involved violence against innocent victims, his substance abuse problems, and his refusal to participate in treatment programs. Although defendant had a privacy interest in his medical and psychological treatment records, the state had a legitimate countervailing interest in protecting the public against defendant's violent and anti-social conduct and in determining whether he was fully complying with his probation conditions. Thus, the trial court did not violate defendant's right to privacy. And by reasonably limiting disclosure of otherwise privileged psychotherapist-patient communications to the probation officer and the trial court, the trial court "acted under the authority of Evidence Code section 1012" (127 Cal. App. 4th 684, 696) .

In Story v. Superior Court (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1007, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 532 , inmate petitioned for writ review, after the trial court denied his motion to quash the government's subpoena duces tecum and allow release of his psychotherapy records. The case presented an issue of first impression: whether the psychotherapist-patient privilege attaches to the records of psychotherapy a defendant has undergone as a condition of probation, in a subsequent criminal action in which the prosecution seeks Evid. Code § 1108 evidence regarding the petitioner's commission of a previous sexual offense. Petitioner contended that the psychotherapist-patient privilege barred discovery of his psychotherapy records. He claimed that the psychotherapist-patient privilege attached to the records under Evid. Code § 1012 because the records were the result of information that petitioner had given his psychotherapist in confidence, and the prosecution had failed to rebut the presumption of confidentiality (109 Cal. App. 4th 1007, 1014-1015) . The government responded that the psychotherapist-patient privilege did not attach because petitioner was not a patient within the meaning of the Evid. Code § 1011, as petitioner's motivation in attending psychotherapy was to obtain probation, not to treat his mental or emotional condition. In support of this argument, the government cited People v. Cabral (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 820, 828, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 866 (discussed in § 81.145[3][a]). Relying on the reasoning interpreting the attorney-client privilege, the court of appeal in Cabral said that if the dominant purpose of the communication is for transmittal to a psychotherapist in the course of professional counseling, that communication is within the psychotherapist-patient privilege. On that basis, the court ruled that defendant's letter to a psychotherapist, confessing that he had sexually molested his daughter and requesting admission to a sex offenders treatment program, was not protected by the psychotherapist-patient privilege because the defendant admitted in the letter that his purpose was to obtain probation (109 Cal. App. 4th 1007, 1014-1015) .

The court of appeal rejected the government's argument that petitioner's communications were similarly non-privileged, for two reasons. First, this court rejected the dominant purpose test of People v. Cabral, "to the extent the test would automatically preclude the application of the psychotherapist-privilege to records generated as the result of psychotherapy attended by a defendant as a condition of probation." The dominant purpose of probation-conditioned psychotherapy must always be therapeutic, regardless of defendant's motive because Pen. Code § 1203.1(j) expressly provides that the general purpose of all probation conditions is "the reformation and rehabilitation of the probationer" (109 Cal. App. 4th 1007, 1016) . Second, in Menendez v. Superior Court (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 435, 454, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 92, 834 P.2d 786 (discussed in § 81.142[3][a]), the California Supreme Court established that a defendant's motive in attending psychotherapy is immaterial to a determination of whether the psychotherapist-patient privilege attaches. Accordingly, the court found it immaterial in this case that petitioner may have been motivated to attend psychotherapy as a means of obtaining probation and avoiding incarceration (109 Cal. App.4th 1007, 1016) . The court concluded that petitioner was a patient within the meaning of Evid. Code § 1011 because, as stated in the Department of Corrections' diagnostic study and recommendation regarding petitioner, the purpose of the psychotherapy was to treat petitioner's emotional problems and thereby aid his reformation and rehabilitation while on probation (109 Cal. App. 4th 1007, 1018-1019) .

However, the court also held that some records or testimony concerning probation-conditioned psychotherapy may be disclosed without violating the psychotherapist-patient privilege, as explained by the court in In re Pedro M. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 550, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839 (discussed below). Thus, the psychotherapy records of an adult probationer may be disclosed under Evid. Code § 1012 to the extent necessary for the court to monitor the defendant's participation and progress in the psychotherapy ordered as a condition of probation (109 Cal. App. 4th 1007, 1018-1019) .For all these reasons, the trial court abused its discretion in ordering disclosure of petitioner's psychotherapy records (109 Cal. App. 4th 1007, 1019) .

In In re Mark L. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 573, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 499 , appellant father appealed a juvenile court order denying him visitation with his adopted son, after a review hearing six-months after the boy had been taken into protective custody. The appellate court affirmed the order because substantial evidence supported that visitation would be detrimental to the son at that time. However, the appellate court found that the trial court misinterpreted Welf. & Inst. Code § 317(f) (providing that a dependent child who is of sufficient age and maturity may invoke the psychotherapist-client privilege) to preclude the son's therapist from testifying or providing any information to the court or the county health and human services agency regarding his therapeutic progress (94 Cal. App. 4th 573, 581) . Appellant father was prejudiced, at the 12-month hearing, by the absence of information from his son's therapist regarding any therapeutic progress or changed circumstances during the intervening six months which might have made visitation appropriate or facilitated reunification (94 Cal. App. 4th 573, 581) . The court relied on Evid. Code § 1012, which defines confidential communications to exclude communications to "those to whom disclosure is reasonably necessary for the transmission of the information or the accomplishment of the purpose for which the psychotherapist is consulted." The court also found the rationale of In re Pedro M. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 550, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839 (discussed below) applicable in the juvenile dependency context, in which therapy has a dual purpose-to treat the child to ameliorate the effects of neglect or abuse and to disclose information from which reasoned recommendations and decisions regarding the child's welfare can be made (94 Cal. App. 4th 573, 581) . Therefore, the court held that, in the juvenile dependency context, the psychotherapist-patient privilege protected the minor's confidential communications and the details of his therapy, but did not preclude his therapist from giving "circumscribed information to accomplish the information-gathering goal of therapy" (94 Cal. App. 4th 573, 583-584) .

In In re Kristine W. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 521, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 369 , a juvenile court dependent (age 17) appealed the court's order permitting the county health and human services agency (agency) to receive certain information from her therapist regarding her therapy. She argued the court was not authorized to disregard her invocation of the psychotherapist-patient privilege. The court of appeal concluded the psychotherapist-patient privilege protected appellant's confidential communications and details of the therapy, but did not preclude her therapist from giving "circumscribed information to accomplish the information-gathering goal of therapy" (94 Cal. App. 4th 521, 528) . In reaching its decision, the court relied, in part, on Evid. Code § 1012, which defines "confidential communication between patient and psychotherapist" as "information, includinginformation obtained by an examination of the patient, transmitted between a patient and his [or her] psychotherapist in the course of that relationship and in confidence by a means [that], so far as the patient is aware, discloses the information to no third persons other than those who are present to further the interest of the patient in the consultation, or those to whom disclosure is reasonably necessary for the transmission of the information or the accomplishment of the purpose for which the psychotherapist is consulted" (italics added by this court) (94 Cal. App. 4th 521, 527) . The appellate court also observed that without the testimony of psychologists in many juvenile dependency and child custody cases, superior courts and juvenile courts would have little or no evidence, and would be reduced to arbitrary decisions based upon the emotional response of the court (94 Cal. App. 4th 521, 528) . However, the court recognized that appellant had a substantial privacy interest at stake in her therapy. Accordingly, the appellate court affirmed the juvenile court's order only to the extent it permitted limited disclosure of matters that would reasonably assist the court in evaluating whether further orders are necessary for appellant's benefit, while preserving the confidentiality of the details of her therapy (94 Cal. App. 4th 521, 528-529) .

In In re Pedro M. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 550, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839 , appellant, a ward of the juvenile court, was placed in a sexual offender program subject to conditions of probation that required him, among other things, to cooperate in a plan for psychological testing and treatment. He was removed from the sexual offender program for refusing to comply with the treatment plan. The trial court found that he had violated the terms of his probation and ordered him committed to the California Youth Authority (CYA). Appellant sought review. Appellant contended that his therapist's testimony was erroneously admitted after he invoked the psychotherapist-patient privilege. The court of appeal relied on Evid. Code § 1012 in holding that the trial court did not err in admitting the therapist's testimony after appellant's invocation of the psychotherapist-patient privilege (81 Cal. App. 4th 550, 554) . The court explained: "Quite obviously, the court's ability to evaluate [the minor]'s compliance with [a] condition of the court's disposition order and its effect on his rehabilitation would be severely diminished in the absence of some type of feedback from the therapist, and it would be unreasonable for [the minor] to think otherwise" (81 Cal. App. 4th 550, 554) . The court noted the juvenile court carefully sought to circumscribe the therapist's testimony so that the details of the therapeutic sessions would not be disclosed. As a consequence, no testimony was admitted regarding any specific statements appellant had made to the therapist, any advice given by, or diagnosis made by, the therapist. Under these circumstances, the psychotherapist-patient privilege did not preclude the therapist from testifying concerning appellant's participation and progress in the court-ordered treatment plan (81 Cal. App. 4th 550, 554-555) .

55 of 194 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
D. Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.151

§ 81.151 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014] Applicable--Information Sought Not Within Patient-Litigant Exception [Evid. Code § 1016]

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30), as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the grounds of privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.20), and relating to the psychotherapist-patient privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.150).]

DISCLOSURE MAY BE COMPELLED ONLY IN REGARD TO MENTAL CONDITIONS THAT THE PATIENT-LITIGANT HAS PLACED IN ISSUE BY THE PLEADINGS, BUT NOT REGARDING ANY OTHER CONFIDENTIAL COMMUNICATIONS WITH THE PSYCHOTHERAPIST ALTHOUGH THEY MAY BEAR SOME RELEVANCY TO SUBSTANTIVE ISSUES OF LITIGATION.

A. Limitation of Patient-Litigant Exception. The patient-litigant exception, Section 1016 of the Evidence Code, to the psychotherapist-patient privilege is limited to disclosure only of matters directly relevant to the specific emotional or mental conditions placed at issue by the patient's pleadings. Communications not directly relevant to the specific mental conditions thus disclosed remain privileged even if somehow "relevant" to the substantive issues of the litigation (Roberts v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 330, 337-339, 107 Cal. Rptr. 309, 508 P.2d 309 ; In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 431, 435, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557).

[Optional] B. Party's Attempt to Invade Privilege Based Only on Speculation. The right of a party to an existing or prospective lawsuit to invade the psychotherapist-patient privilege is limited to cases in which something more than mere speculation supports the invasion (Grey v. Superior Court (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 698, 703-704, 133 Cal. Rptr. 318).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities in opposition to a motion for an order compelling discovery may be submitted by a party or other person who has resisted providing discovery on the ground that the information being sought is not within the issues tendered in the action by the patient. It does not provide a complete memorandum, but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to compelling discovery as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the ground of privilege and relating to the psychotherapist-patient privilege generally.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Limitation of Patient-Litigant Exception

The petitioner in Roberts v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 330, 107 Cal. Rptr. 309, 508 P.2d 309 , as plaintiff in the trial court, filed an action for injuries arising out of an automobile collision, alleging she was rendered "sick, sore, lame, and disabled." Responding to defendants' written interrogatories regarding health history and present injuries, she mentioned past hospitalization for an overdose of pills and psychiatric treatment for a few months, after which the doctor had reported there was nothing wrong with her, and she stated she had no after effects. She also described present back pains. A different doctor's report noted she had suffered backache to some extent since her attempted suicide, but made no other connection to that incident. When the defendants subpoenaed all her records from the various treating physicians, the psychiatrist refused to submit his records on grounds of privilege. Defendants subsequently received certain reports of the psychiatrist, however, through other doctors' records. While not immediately objecting thereto, plaintiff eventually received an order in another proceeding sealing such reports. Defendants then obtained a limited order compelling production of the psychiatrist's records, after which the Supreme Court granted petitioner an alternative writ of prohibition sealing such records in the county clerk's possession until further notice.

In determining that in bringing the action for the alleged injuries plaintiff had not waived the psychotherapist-patient privilege, the Court extensively reviewed the analysis it had earlier rendered on the point in In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 431-437, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557 (discussed below), and explicitly reaffirmed that decision's narrow interpretation of the scope of the patient-litigant exception [see also Britt v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 844, 864, 143 Cal. Rptr. 695, 574 P.2d 766 , discussed in [4][a], below] (9 Cal. 3d 330, 337-339) .

The Court noted there were no allegations in the complaint claiming damages for emotional distress or mental suffering, and that in the verified petition for a writ of prohibition, and through counsel's argument thereon, plaintiff stated she had tendered no issue concerning her mental or emotional condition. Neither of the doctors who had examined petitioner had found any relationship between her previous psychiatric treatment and her current back problems, although they had known of the treatment. On such a showing, the Court concluded, it could not be said that it was reasonably probable that the psychotherapeutic communications were directly relevant to a specific mental condition placed in issue by plaintiff (9 Cal. 3d 330, 338) .

In refuting defendants' assertion that the allegations of the complaint regarding injuries, coupled with medical reports that her alleged effects seemed to be in excess of clinical findings, indicated her injuries contained a "mental component," the Court recognized that any physical injury is likely to have such a factor in the form of some amount of pain, at least insofar as the patient is conscious of such injury. However, it reasoned that to allow discovery of past psychiatric treatment merely to ascertain whether a past condition may have decreased the patient's tolerance to pain, or whether the patient may have discussed with the psychotherapist complaints similar to those to be litigated, would defeat the purpose of the privilege of Evid. Code § 1014 (9 Cal. 3d 330, 338-339) .

The Court also observed that the doctor's notes connecting the backache and the attempted suicide did not change this result. Defendants' speculation regarding the connection drew a conclusion not reached by the doctors in the case. Without further proof that the present back problems antedated the collision, the doctor's notes did not make it reasonably probable that the psychotherapeutic communications were directly relevant to a specific mental condition voluntarily placed at issue in the litigation by the petitioner (9 Cal. 3d 330, 339) .

The facts and procedural background of In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557 are discussed in § 81.140[3][a]. In attempting to avoid further contempt proceedings against the psychiatrist and delay of appellate review in that case, the Supreme Court considered the scope of the patient-litigant exception to the psychotherapist-patient privilege. It had been contended in the trial court by the defendant, who was seeking to depose the psychiatrist, that any communication between the plaintiff and the psychiatrist had lost its privileged status because the plaintiff had filed a personal injury action in the instant case, claimingrecovery for "mental and emotional distress." Defendant relied on Evid. Code § 1016 which provides that there is no psychotherapist-patient privilege in regard to a communication relevant to an issue concerning the mental or emotional condition of the patient if such issue has been tendered by the patient or through certain derivative parties or capacity (2 Cal. 3d 415, 431) .

The Court concluded that the patient-litigant exception allows only a limited inquiry into the confidences of the psychotherapist-patient relationship, compelling disclosures of only those matters directly relevant to the nature of the specific emotional or mental condition that the patient has voluntarily disclosed and tendered in the pleadings or in answer to discovery inquiries (2 Cal. 3d 415, 431) . The whole purpose of the psychotherapist-patient privilege is to preclude the humiliation of the patient that might follow disclosure of such person's ailments. When the patient discloses those ailments by bringing an action in which they are in issue, there is no longer any reason for the privilege. However, the Court could see no reason to read the patient-litigant exception to signify an automatic, complete waiver of privilege whenever a patient institutes a claim for any physical or mental injury. The Court relied on the fact that cases dealing with a similar exception under the physician-patient privilege have so limited that exception and the more liberal psychotherapist-patient privilege exception should not be given a broader reading (2 Cal. 3d 415, 434) .

If the exception were so widely drawn, the Court speculated, it might effectively deter many psychotherapeutic patients from instituting general claims for mental suffering and damage out of fear of opening up all past communications to discovery (2 Cal. 3d 415, 435) . The Court noted that in Griswold v. Connecticut (1965) 381 U.S. 479, 484, 85 S. Ct. 1678, 14 L. Ed. 2d 510 , the United States Supreme Court declared that various guarantees of the Bill of Rights create zones of privacy. The California Supreme Court announced its own belief that the confidentiality of the psychotherapeutic session falls within one such zone, so that a patient's interest in keeping such confidential revelations from public purview and in retaining such a substantial privacy has deeper roots than the California statute, drawing sustenance from a constitutional heritage (2 Cal. 3d 415, 431-432) .

The Court acknowledged that in some situations the patient's pleadings may clearly demonstrate that such person's entire mental condition is being placed in issue and that records of past psychotherapy will clearly be relevant (2 Cal. 3d 415, 435) . In other cases, however, the determination of the specific "mental condition" in issue may present more complex problems. The Court observed that the complaint in the instant case contained the typical allegations of "mental and emotional distress" arising out of a physical assault without specifically identifying the nature of the mental and emotional condition at issue. Yet, the Court stated, in incorporating this allegation, the plaintiff obviously neither disclosed his entiremedical history of treatment for mental or emotional conditions nor realistically waived his interest in maintaining the confidentiality of that treatment (2 Cal. 3d 415, 436) .

The Court saw that the generality of such a claim did create the possibility that some feature of plaintiff's psychological history might be directly relevant to the determination of whether his emotional or mental distress could be properly attributed to the alleged assault; the Court could not determine from the present state of the record whether plaintiff's distress was merely the normal distress experienced as a result of physical assault or whether it included unusual or particularly serious elements on which prior history might be directly relevant. The Court doubted, however, that the 10-year-old therapeutic treatment sought to be discovered would be sufficiently relevant to a typical claim of mental distress to bring it within the patient-litigant exception (2 Cal. 3d 415, 436) .

The Court stated that the automatic waiver contemplated by Evid. Code § 1016 must be construed not as a complete waiver of the psychotherapist-patient privilege, but only as a limited waiver concomitant with the purposes of the exception. Disclosure can be compelled only with respect to those mental conditions the patient-litigant has disclosed by bringing an action in which they are in issue. Communications which are not directly relevant to those specific conditions do not fall within the terms of the exception and remain privileged. Disclosure cannot be compelled with respect to other aspects of the patient-litigant's personality even though they may, in some sense, be relevant to the substantive issues of litigation. The Court ultimately observed on this point that the patient thus is not obligated to sacrifice all privacy to seek redress for a specific mental or emotional injury. Rather, the scope of the inquiry permitted depends on the nature of the injuries which the patient-litigant has brought before the court (2 Cal. 3d 415, 435) .

[b] Party's Attempt to Invade Privilege Based Only on Speculation

Petitioner in Grey v. Superior Court (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 698, 133 Cal. Rptr. 318 was the widow of a doctor who was killed in an automobile which collided with a parked vehicle. Petitioner had filed a claim on a double indemnity life insurance policy, stating death had resulted from an "accidental bodily injury." In connection with a general medical authorization, petitioner listed physicians but not a psychiatrist her husband had consulted. The insurer, on learning of the psychiatrist, attempted to depose him and obtain his records, but both the latter and the widow denied such access on the basis of the psychiatrist-patient privilege. The insurer then filed an action for declaratory relief, basing its right to the information on the ground of a covenant of good faith and fair dealing among those interested in an insurance policy and the patient-litigant exception to theprivilege under Evid. Code § 1016. The insurer also asserted that it was relieved of liability because the insured's death was really a suicide, whether he was sane or insane at the time, or a result of bodily or mental disease, and the petitioner's refusal to divulge the psychiatric information was a breach of the insurance covenant. On the insurer's seeking and receiving an order for the deposition of the psychiatrist with production of records, the petitioner sought a writ of prohibition.

The court of appeal issued the peremptory writ. While it agreed with the holding of the trial court that petitioner's mere execution and filing of a proof of death form did not waive the psychotherapist-patient privilege, it decided it would not have to determine whether such filing waived the privilege under Evid. Code § 1016(c) (as a party claiming as a beneficiary of the patient's contract) because of its conclusion that invasion of that privilege would have to be supported by more than mere speculation (62 Cal. App. 3d 698, 703) . After reviewing the general public policy of encouraging people to confide in their professional counselors, the court concluded that the law does not allow an insurer merely to speculate that somewhere in an insured's past life, there may be some indication of a suicidal tendency. Such a speculation, the court went on, could be raised in every case involving a claim that death was accidental, and would subject everyone claiming damages therefore to a total revelation of all the decedent's past life (62 Cal. App. 3d 698, 703-704) .

The court advised that, in order to invade the patient's confidentiality of communication to, and diagnosis by, the psychiatrist the insurer must make some prima facie proof that there may be something to support its speculation. The only showing of materiality in the instant case was that an investigating officer had "speculated" the collision might have been due to suicide, and had determined that the car had drifted, with a hypothesis that the patient may have fallen asleep, and a "suggestion" that the sheriff investigate the possibility of suicide. That kind of speculation, the court concluded, based solely on the physical evidence of the collision, is not enough to justify an invasion of the patient's privacy (62 Cal. App. 3d 698, 704) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Limitation of Patient-Litigant Exception

In Britt v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 844, 143 Cal. Rptr. 695, 574 P.2d 766 , petitioners had sued an airport authority for personal and property injuries and emotional disturbance allegedly caused by various kinds of pollution in operation of that facility. Defendant's main discovery tactic was to depose a number of plaintiffs on the subject of political associations, but it also served all 936 plaintiffs with interrogatories requesting, among other matters, a complete account of their entiremedical histories, including all mental or emotional disturbances for which they sought treatment at any time during their lives. The trial court denied plaintiffs' motion for a protective order, which included a challenge to the legal propriety of the unlimited demand for medical information, and instead granted defendant's motion for an order compelling plaintiffs to answer its questions, fixing a deadline for answers to the interrogatories. Plaintiffs filed a petition for extraordinary relief, and the Supreme Court issued an alternative writ of mandate.

The Court denied defendant's contention that the broad discovery order properly allowed it to determine for itself whether plaintiffs' injuries stemmed from airport activity or from other medical conditions and upheld petitioners' contention that the trial court's order to answer questions on their lifetime medical histories without regard to whether the information related in any way to physical or emotional injuries for which they sought recovery below had to be vacated as overbroad. The Court once again approved its analysis in In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 435, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557 , as reiterated in Roberts v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 330, 337-339, 107 Cal. Rptr. 309, 508 P.2d 309 (discussed in [3][a], above), that the patient-litigant exception did not automatically obviate the application of the psychotherapist-patient privilege (20 Cal. 3d 844, 862-864) . The Court concluded that, while petitioners could not withhold information which related to any physical or mental condition which they had put in issue by bringing the suit below, they would be entitled to retain the confidentiality of all unrelated medical or psychotherapeutic treatment they might have undergone in the past (20 Cal. 3d 844, 864) .

In San Diego Trolley, Inc. v. Superior Court (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 1083, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 476 , plaintiff was injured while crossing defendant trolley company's tracks. In discovery, plaintiff learned that the driver had seen a psychiatrist for stress-related anxiety due to a previous work-related incident. Plaintiff sought discovery of, and the trial court ordered defendant company and defendant driver to disclose information about, the driver's communications to her psychiatrist [87 Cal. App. 4th 1083, 1088-1089]. The court of appeal reversed, holding that the driver did not waive her privilege by revealing, both in her deposition in this case and in her previous workers' compensation claims for stress-related anxiety due to the previous work-related incident, that she was seeing a psychiatrist. The driver's willingness to put her psychotherapeutic relationship somewhat at risk in the workers' compensation proceedings, and any resulting limited disclosure, did not support the inference that she meant her relationship with her psychiatrist could continue to be put at risk following the disposition of her claims [87 Cal. App. 4th 1083, 1094] . Moreover, in her testimony in this case, the driver disclosed only the fact that she was being treated for anxiety by a psychiatrist and the medications the psychiatrist prescribed.Nothing in this testimony could be construed as disclosing any significant part of her communications with her psychiatrist [87 Cal. App. 4th 1083, 1094] .

In Simek v. Superior Court (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 169, 172 Cal. Rptr. 564 , a marriage dissolution proceeding, the wife issued subpoenas duces tecum to produce the husband's medical records after they had failed to agree on a visitation schedule, claiming he was not competent to carry on normal visitation. After the trial court ordered production of the documents, the husband petitioned for and obtained a writ of mandate from the court of appeal directing the trial court to vacate its order and to grant the husband's motion to quash service of the subpoenas. The court held that the husband had not tendered his mental or emotional condition so as to invoke the patient-litigant exception under Evid. Code § 1016 to the psychotherapist-patient privilege by asserting his rights to visitation (117 Cal. App. 3d 169, 176-177) .

In Boling v. Superior Court (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 430, 164 Cal. Rptr. 432 , decedent's mother brought a wrongful death action against a company which had rented bedding to decedent for his use in his home while he was recovering from an automobile accident. Decedent died when he was trapped in the bed which caught fire. Decedent's mother resisted production of certain hospital records relating to decedent on the ground of the psychotherapist-patient privilege, and the court of appeal applied the reasoning of In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557 (discussed in [3][a], above). The court in Boling found indications of the Legislature's intent that the psychotherapist-patient privilege survive on the death of the patient (105 Cal. App. 3d 430, 439) . The court also stated that there was no reason that the mere commencement of an action for the patient's wrongful death should operate as an automatic waiver of the privilege (105 Cal. App. 3d 430, 439) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
D. Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.152

§ 81.152 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014] Applicable--Disclosure of Object of Treatment to Avoid Application of Patient-Litigant Exception Is Not Waiver

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30), as wellas with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the grounds of privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.20), and relating to the psychotherapist-patient privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.150).]

DISCLOSURE OF THE SUBJECT OF PSYCHIATRIC TREATMENT, WHEN MADE TO AVOID APPLICATION OF THE PATIENT-LITIGANT EXCEPTION TO THE PSYCHOTHERAPIST-PATIENT PRIVILEGE AS TO AN ISSUE TENDERED BY THE PATIENT, DOES NOT CONSTITUTE A WAIVER OF THE PRIVILEGE.

Disclosure to Avoid Application of Patient-Litigant Exception Is Not Waiver. The psychotherapist-patient privilege is not waived by disclosure of the object of psychotherapeutic treatment made to avoid application of the patient-litigant exception to the privilege after a mental or emotional issue has been tendered by the patient (Roberts v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 330, 340-341, 107 Cal. Rptr. 309, 508 P.2d 309).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities in opposition to a motion for an order compelling discovery may be submitted by a party or other person who has resisted providing discovery on the ground that disclosing the object of psychiatric treatment in order to avoid application of the patient-litigant exception to the psychotherapist-patient privilege, with respect to mental issues tendered by such person, is not a waiver of the privilege. It does not provide a complete memorandum, but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to compelling discovery as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the ground of privilege and relating to the psychotherapist-patient privilege generally.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Disclosure to Avoid Application of Patient-Litigant Exception Is Not Waiver

The facts and procedural background of Roberts v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 330, 107 Cal. Rptr. 309, 508 P.2d 309 are discussed in § 81.151[3][a]. Defendants argued that petitioner had waived the psychotherapist-patient privilege through disclosure in the interrogatories of the nature of the treatment given her by the psychiatrist, but the Supreme Court found she had disclosed no more than was necessary to avoid application of the patient-litigant exception to the psychotherapist-patient privilege. The Court referred to its opinion in In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 436-438, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557 (discussed in § 81.140[3][a], and in § 81.151[3][a]), in which it had recognized that in order to avoid the application of the patient-litigant exception to the privilege, the patient might be compelled to explain in general terms the object of the psychotherapy. The Court acknowledged the vast difference between the disclosure of a general description of the object of the patient's psychotherapeutic treatment, and the disclosure of all or a part of the patient's actual communications during psychotherapy. In the instant case, it concluded she did not waive her privilege merely by stating she had received psychiatric treatment following an overdose of pills. The Court determined that such disclosure was no more than it had suggested in Lifschutz as necessary to avoid application of the exception (9 Cal. 3d 330, 340-341) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
D. Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.153

§ 81.153 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014] Applicable--Disclosure of Insignificant Part of Communication Is Not Waiver as to Remainder

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30), as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the grounds of privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.20), and relating to the psychotherapist-patient privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.150).]

ALTHOUGH PART OF A CONFIDENTIAL COMMUNICATION BETWEEN PATIENT AND PSYCHOTHERAPIST WAS DISCLOSED, IF IT IS NOT A SIGNIFICANT PART, THEN THE DISCLOSURE DOES NOT WAIVE THE PSYCHOTHERAPIST-PATIENT PRIVILEGE AS TO THE REMAINDER.

A. Insignificant Disclosure of Part Is Not Waiver of Confidentiality of Whole Psychotherapist-Patient Communication. Disclosure of a confidential communication between patient and psychotherapist must reveal a significant part of the communication before a waiver of the psychotherapist-patient privilege occurs (Evid. Code § 912(a); Roberts v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 330, 340, 107 Cal. Rptr. 309, 508 P.2d 309 ; In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 430, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557).

[Optional] B. Insignificant Disclosure of Existence of Psychotherapist Visits. Disclosure of the existence of the psychotherapist-patient relationship, in itself, does not reveal a significant part of the communication and thus does not constitute a waiver of the psychotherapist-patient privilege (In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 430, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557).

[Optional] C. Insignificant Disclosure of Purpose of Psychotherapeutic Treatment. Disclosure of the purpose of the psychotherapeutic treatment does not reveal a significant part of the communication and thus does not constitute a waiver of the psychotherapist-patient privilege (Roberts v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 330, 340-341, 107 Cal.

Rptr. 309, 508 P.2d 309).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities in opposition to a motion for an order compelling discovery may be submitted by a party or other person who has resisted providing discovery on the ground that the material is privileged by the psychotherapist-patient privilege, and who has disclosed an insignificant part of the communication. It does not provide a complete memorandum, but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to compelling discovery, as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the ground of privilege and relating to the psychotherapist-patient privilege generally.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Insignificant Disclosure of Part Is Not Waiver of Confidentiality of Whole Psychotherapist-Patient Communication

Roberts v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 330, 107 Cal. Rptr. 309, 508 P.2d 309 is discussed in [c], below. In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557 is discussed in [b], below.

[b] Insignificant Disclosure of Existence of Psychotherapist Visits

The facts and procedural background of In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557 are discussed in § 81.140[3][a]. In preparing itself to address the question of the reach of the patient-litigant exception, and in order to avoid the necessity for further contempt proceedings against the psychiatrist or delaying appellate review, the Supreme Court determined that mere revelation of the existence of the psychotherapist-patient relationship did not render the privilege entirely inapplicable (2 Cal. 3d 415, 430) .

The Court recited the provisions of Evid. Code § 912(a), providing for a waiver of the privilege through voluntary disclosure of a significant part of the communication. It concluded that in making the admission during deposition of his visits to the psychotherapist, the patient "certainly" had not disclosed a significant part of the communication between himself and the psychiatrist so as to waive his right to subsequently claim the privilege as to other elements of the communication. The Court then appeared to suggest that such topics as the nature of the treatment of the plaintiff, the diagnosis, or the content of any particular communication might all be separate issues for determination in the case as to whether they constituted elements of the communication that still remained under the privilege (2 Cal. 3d 415, 430) .

[c] Insignificant Disclosure of Purpose of Psychotherapeutic Treatment

The facts and procedural background of Roberts v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 330, 107 Cal. Rptr. 309, 508 P.2d 309 are discussed in § 81.151[3][a]. In restating the provisions of Evid. Code § 912(a) that the disclosure must reveal a significant part of the communication protected by the psychotherapist-patient privilege before a waiver of it will occur, the Supreme Court noted that in In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 430, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557 (discussed in [b], above), it had made it clear that mere disclosure of the existence of the psychotherapist-patient relationship did not reveal a significant part of the communication and wasinsufficient to constitute a waiver. Similarly, the Court stated it did not believe that petitioner's disclosure in the instant case of the purpose of her psychiatric treatment waived the privilege either (9 Cal. 3d 330, 340) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Insignificant Disclosure of Existence of Psychotherapist Visits

People v. Perry (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 756, 103 Cal. Rptr. 161, 499 P.2d 129 was an appeal by two defendants from a murder conviction. One of the defendants sought to review the records of a county mental health department where an accomplice who testified for the State had been treated by psychotherapists. He contended the psychotherapist-patient privilege asserted by the department on the accomplice's behalf was inapplicable because the psychotherapy had been ordered by a court (the exception of Evid. Code § 1017), and also because the accomplice had waived the privilege herself through disclosure [see Evid. Code § 912] by giving certain testimony on cross-examination.

The Supreme Court ruled against these contentions, as against all others raised by defendants in the case on appeal. After disposing of the first point, there having been no evidence of court appointment of the psychotherapists and defendant furthermore having failed to challenge the claim of privilege below (7 Cal. 3d 756, 782) , the Court reviewed the accomplice's cross-examination and determined she had not disclosed a significant part of any psychotherapeutic communication. At most, the Court found, her testimony disclosed that she had consulted two psychiatrists, but she had not revealed the substance of her consultations. It reiterated the holding of In re Lifschutz (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 415, 430, 85 Cal. Rptr. 829, 467 P.2d 557 (discussed in [3][b], above), that mere admission that a psychotherapist-patient relationship exists does not disclose a significant part of the communication (7 Cal. 3d 756, 783) .

[b] Insignificant Disclosure of Purpose of Psychotherapeutic Treatment

The facts and procedural background of People v. Perry (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 756, 103 Cal. Rptr. 161, 499 P.2d 129 are discussed in [a], above. In reviewing the cross-examination of the accomplice to find that she had not waived her psychotherapist-patient privilege by disclosing a significant part of the communication therein, the Court stated that the revelation that certain subjects were not discussed in a psychotherapist-patient relationship does not constitute such a disclosure resulting in waiver (7 Cal. 3d 756, 783) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
D. Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.154

§ 81.154 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014] Applicable--Patient's Signing of General Medical Consent Form Is Not Waiver

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30), as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the grounds of privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.20), and relating to the psychotherapist-patient privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.150).]

SIGNING OF A GENERAL CONSENT FORM FOR RELEASE OF A PATIENT'S MEDICAL RECORDS, NOT SPECIFICALLY AUTHORIZING RECORDS IN REGARD TO MENTAL CONDITION, DOES NOT CONSTITUTE A WAIVER OF THE PSYCHOTHERAPIST-PATIENT PRIVILEGE.

General Medical Records Consent Is Not Waiver of Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege. A general medical records consent form that does not apply specifically to records pertaining to the patient's mental condition or past psychiatric treatments is insufficient, on being signed by the patient, to constitute a waiver of such person's psychotherapist-patient privilege (Roberts v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 330, 343, 107 Cal. Rptr. 309, 508 P.2d 309).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities in opposition to a motion for an order compelling discovery may be submitted by a party or other person who has resisted providing discovery on the ground that signing of a general medical consent form does not constitute a waiver as to the psychotherapist-patient privilege. It does not provide a complete memorandum, but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to compelling discovery, as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the ground of privilege and relating to the psychotherapist-patient privilege generally.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] General Medical Records Consent Is Not Waiver of Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege

The facts and procedural background of Roberts v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 330, 107 Cal. Rptr. 309, 508 P.2d 309 are discussed in § 81.151[3][a]. In deciding against the defendants' contention that petitioner had waived the psychotherapist-patient privilege by signing a medical records consent form, the Supreme Court first noted that the waiver of an important right must be a voluntary and knowing act done with sufficient awareness of the relevant circumstances and likely consequences. A form consent by a patient-litigant waiving the privilege is to be strictly construed against the insurance company supplying the form so that the waiver encompasses only that which clearly appears on its face (9 Cal. 3d 330, 343) .

The consent form in question authorized furnishing of all reports or information regarding (1) the petitioner's "medical history, physical condition, and treatment rendered," and (2) all x-rays or records regarding the latter items. The Court determined that these descriptions did not refer to past psychiatric treatment or mental conditions, respectively. The form also had been signed only six days after the petitioner's accident involving physical injuries, and this would lead such a person to believe that the authorization only applied to injuries resulting from the accident under investigation. Therefore, the Court concluded, the consent form was insufficient to constitute a waiver of petitioner's psychotherapist-patient privilege (9 Cal. 3d 330, 343) . The Court further opined that it hesitated to sanction the solicitation of such waivers, for this would substantially defeat the privacy afforded by the privilege and possibly disrupt the confidential relationship historically recognized as so fundamental to the psychotherapist-patient relationship (9 Cal. 3d 330, 343) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
D. Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.155

§ 81.155 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014] Applicable--Exchange of Records Between Psychotherapist and Other Treating Professionals Is Not Waiver

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30), as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the grounds of privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.20), and relating to the psychotherapist-patient privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.150).]

EXCHANGE OF A PATIENT'S RECORDS BETWEEN A PSYCHOTHERAPIST AND OTHER MEDICAL TREATMENT PROFESSIONALS DURING THE COURSE OF TREATMENT DOES NOT CONSTITUTE A WAIVER OF THE PSYCHOTHERAPIST-PATIENT PRIVILEGE.

Exchange of Reports Between Healing Professionals Is Not Waiver of Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege. Since disclosure in confidence of a communication protected by the psychotherapist-patient privilege, reasonably necessary to accomplish purposes of the consultation, remains privileged pursuant to Section 912(d) of the Evidence Code, the mere exchange of the patient's records between the psychotherapist and other physicians in the normal course of medical treatment does not constitute a waiver of the privilege (Roberts v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 330, 341, 107 Cal. Rptr. 309, 508 P.2d 309).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities in opposition to a motion for an order compelling discovery may be submitted by a party or other person who has resisted providing discovery on the ground that disclosure of the patient's records for purposes of the course of treatment is not a waiver of the privilege. It does not provide a complete memorandum, but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to compelling discovery, as well as with points and authoritiesrelating to resisting discovery on the ground of privilege and relating to the psychotherapist-patient privilege generally.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exchange of Reports Between Healing Professionals Is Not Waiver of Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege

The facts and procedural background of Roberts v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 330, 107 Cal. Rptr. 309, 508 P.2d 309 are discussed in § 81.151[3][a]. The Supreme Court denied the contention that the petitioner had waived the psychotherapist-patient privilege by reason of the exchange of the psychiatrist's reports with the patient's physicians (9 Cal. 3d 330, 341) . Defendants did not claim that plaintiff's medical doctors obtained plaintiff's psychiatric records in anything other than the normal course of treating her. The Court noted that under Evid. Code § 912(d), a confidential disclosure of a protected psychotherapist-patient or physician-patient communication reasonably necessary to accomplish the purpose of the professional consultation is not a waiver of the privilege. The Court thus concluded that the psychotherapist's records remained confidential communications while in the hands of the physicians (9 Cal. 3d 330, 341) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Exchange of Reports Between Healing Professionals Is Not Waiver of Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege

Petitioner in Huelter v. Superior Court (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 544, 151 Cal. Rptr. 138 , as the wife in a dissolution action below, had disclosed ailments through a physician's report that allegedly prevented her from accepting employment. Contrary to the husband's claim that she had opened up the entire issue of her physical and mental fitness, she contended that only the issue of her physical condition was being tendered as relevant for the determination of spousal support. The husband obtained an order directing production of all medical records in possession of her physicians, including records from any source requested, used, or relied on by them. While the order provided that records could not be subpoenaed from the wife's psychiatrist, the wife contended that the order violated her psychotherapist-patient privilege by allowing the husband to obtain the records of her psychiatrist that were in the possession of herinternist. In her declaration in support of a motion for a protective order, the wife had attached the treating physician's report noting disability because of disc injuries. She asserted that the report did not infer incapacity on any psychiatric ground, and that she was not claiming disability on such ground. She did not object to disclosure of her medical records from the internist or a neurologist, but argued that the psychiatric records in possession of the former remained privileged, since they did not involve her physiological condition or relate to her capacity to be employed. She sought a writ of mandate to compel the lower court to set aside its order.

In issuing the writ, the court of appeal determined that the mere exchange of records between psychiatrist and physician did not constitute a waiver of the psychotherapist-patient privilege, relying on the resolution of the similar situation in Roberts v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 330, 341, 107 Cal. Rptr. 309, 508 P.2d 309 (discussed in [3][a], above). It noted that in this case, as in Roberts, there was no showing that the physician had obtained the psychiatrist's records in anything other than the normal course of his medical treatment of the wife. Thus, the latter's records, in the hands of the doctor, remained confidential communications. The court concluded that the lower court's order permitted the husband to obtain indirectly that which he was not entitled to obtain directly (87 Cal. App. 3d 544, 549) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 8 Chapters 80-89A DISCOVERY
CHAPTER 81 DISCOVERY: PRIVILEGES AND OTHER DISCOVERY LIMITATIONS
PART II. FORMS
D. Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege

8-81 California Points & Authorities § 81.156

§ 81.156 Opposing Motion to Compel Discovery--Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege [Evid. Code § 1014] Applicable--Psychotherapist Is Unable to Waive Privilege by Disclosure Without Patient's Consent

[1] FORM

[The following may be combined, when appropriate, with a general form of memorandum in opposition to a motion to compel discovery (see, e.g., Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, § 83.45, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, § 84.20, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, § 85.30), as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the grounds of privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.20), and relating to the psychotherapist-patient privilege generally (see, e.g., § 81.150).]

DISCLOSURE BY A PSYCHOTHERAPIST OF A COMMUNICATION BETWEEN A PATIENT AND THE PSYCHOTHERAPIST, WITHOUT THE PATIENT'S CONSENT, DOES NOT CONSTITUTE A WAIVER OF THE PRIVILEGE PERTAINING TO THE COMMUNICATION.

Psychotherapist Is Unable to Waive Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege Without Patient's Consent. Disclosure of the confidential communication between patient and psychotherapist by the psychotherapist, unless done with the consent of the patient, does not constitute a waiver of the privilege under Section 912(a) of the Evidence Code (Roberts v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 330, 341, 107 Cal. Rptr. 309, 508 P.2d 309).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities in opposition to a motion for an order compelling discovery may be submitted by a party or other person who has resisted providing discovery on the ground that a psychotherapist does not waive the psychotherapist-patient privilege by disclosing a communication if doing so without the patient's authorization. It does not provide a complete memorandum, but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum in opposition to compelling discovery, as well as with points and authorities relating to resisting discovery on the ground of privilege and relating to the psychotherapist-patient privilege generally.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Psychotherapist Is Unable to Waive Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege Without Patient's Consent

The facts and procedural background of Roberts v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 330, 107 Cal. Rptr. 309, 508 P.2d 309 are discussed in § 81.151[3][a]. Defendants argued that the petitioner had waived the privilege by virtue of an exchange of the psychiatrist's reports with certain physicians, who in turn disclosed the former's reports to defendants as part of their records. In deciding this was not a waiver of the petitioner's privilege, the Supreme Court reiterated that the psychotherapist, under Evid. Code § 1015, like the physician, under Evid. Code § 995, is under a duty to assert the privilege whenever present when a privileged communication is sought to be disclosed (9 Cal. 3d 330, 341) . Evid. Code § 912(a) contemplates a waiver of the privilege only when the holder thereof, the patient under Evid. Code § 1013, reveals a significant portion of the communication, consents to disclosure, or fails to object when having theopportunity. Thus, the Court concluded, disclosure of the communication by the psychotherapist, unless done with the consent of the patient, will not constitute a waiver of the privilege (9 Cal. 3d 330, 341) .

The Court also observed that the petitioner had actively asserted the privilege prior to the disclosure of the psychiatrist's report to defendants by the physicians, so that the contention that such physicians' disclosure waived the privilege must separately be rejected. The privilege had been properly invoked by the psychiatrist's refusal to release his records to defendants' photocopy service as requested in a subpoena duces tecum. There is no formal opportunity to assert the privilege until the party seeking discovery seeks an order to compel production. The argument that a waiver occurred because of the failure of counsel to object to production at the time the subpoena was served on the psychiatrist was thus without merit (9 Cal. 3d 330, 342) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Psychotherapist Is Unable to Waive Psychotherapist-Patient Privilege Without Patient's Consent

